

CAYMAN ISLANDS LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT

2001 SESSION

(12 February 2001 through 14 January 2002)

Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP
Speaker

(9 March – 14 November 2001)

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly, JP
Speaker

(14 November 2001 – 14 January 2002)

Disclaimer: The electronic version of the Official Hansard Report is for informational purposes only. The printed version remains the official record.

OFFICIAL MEMBERS AND MINISTERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

**Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP,
Speaker

**Hon. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly, JP, Speaker

---

* 9 MARCH - 8 NOVEMBER 2001:

Hon. James M. Ryan, MBE, JP

First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs

Hon. David F. Ballantyne

Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration

Hon. George A. McCarthy, OBE, JP

Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts, JP

Leader of Government Business
Elected Minister responsible for Planning, Communications and Works

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush, OBE, JP

Deputy Leader of Government Business
Elected Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Transport

Hon. Linford A. Pierson, JP

Elected Minister responsible for Health and Information Technology

Hon. Edna M. Moyle, JP

Elected Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports

Hon. Roy Bodden

Elected Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture

* 9 NOVEMBER 2001 - 14 JANUARY 2002:

Hon. James M. Ryan, MBE, JP

First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs

Hon. David F. Ballantyne

Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration

Hon. George A. McCarthy, OBE, JP

Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush, OBE, JP

Leader of Government Business
Elected Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment, Development and Commerce

Hon. Linford A. Pierson, JP

Deputy Leader of Government Business
Elected Minister responsible for Planning, Communications, Works and Information Technology

Hon. Roy Bodden

Elected Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture

Hon. Dr. Frank S. McField

Elected Minister responsible for Community Services, Youth and Women's Affairs

Hon. Gilbert A. McLean

Elected Minister responsible for Health Services, District Administration and Agriculture

ELECTED MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

* 9 MARCH - 8 NOVEMBER 2001

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin

Second Elected Member for the Electoral District of West Bay

Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks

Third Elected Member for the Electoral District of West Bay

**Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.

Fourth Elected Member for the Electoral District of West Bay

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.

Second Elected Member for the Electoral District of George Town

**Dr. Frank S. McField

Deputy Speaker

Third Elected Member for the Electoral District of George Town

**Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly, JP

First Elected Member for the Electoral District of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin

Second Elected Member for the Electoral District of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean

Second Elected Member for the Electoral District of Bodden Town

Mr. Anthony S. Eden, OBE, JP

Third Elected Member for the Electoral District of Bodden Town

Mr. V. Arden McLean

Elected Member for the Electoral District of East End

* 9 NOVEMBER 2001 - 14 JANUARY 2002

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin

Second Elected Member for the Electoral District of West Bay

Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks

Third Elected Member for the Electoral District of West Bay

**Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.

Deputy Speaker

Fourth Elected Member for the Electoral District of West Bay

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts, JP

First Elected Member for the Electoral District of George Town

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.

Second Elected Member for the Electoral District of George Town

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin

Second Elected Member for the Electoral District of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman

Mr. Anthony S. Eden, OBE, JP

Third Elected Member for the Electoral District of Bodden Town

Mr. V. Arden McLean

Elected Member for the Electoral District of East End

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle, JP

Elected Member for the Electoral District of North Side

* REVOCATION AND RE-ELECTION OF HONOURABLE MINISTERS TO EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

On 5 November 2001, a letter signed by nine Members of the Legislative Assembly was hand-delivered to the Speaker's Office. Attached was a Private Member's Motion that sought to remove from Executive Council the Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts, JP, and the Hon. Edna M. Moyle, JP. A meeting of the Legislative Assembly was called for Thursday 8 November 2001; the business to be dealt with being Private Member's Motion No. 24/01 entitled "Revocation of Ministers of Executive Council."

The motion read:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT as provided for under section 6(2)(f) of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order 1972, the election to the Executive Council of the Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts, JP, and the Hon. Edna M. Moyle, JP, be revoked and that the two vacated positions be filled."

The Motion was passed by a majority of the House and the Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts, JP, and the Hon. Edna M. Moyle, JP, took their seats on the backbench. Mr. Gilbert A. McLean, the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, and Dr. Frank S. McField, the Third Elected Member for George Town, were elected to fill the vacated ministerial positions on Executive Council.

~~~~~

** RETIREMENT OF SPEAKER AND ELECTION OF NEW SPEAKER AND DEPUTY SPEAKER

The Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, declared his retirement effective Wednesday 14 November 2001.

At the first Sitting of the Fifth (Budget) Meeting of the Legislature on 14 November 2001, Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly, JP, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, was elected new Speaker of the House. Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr., the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, replaced Dr. Frank S. McField (who had taken a seat on Executive Council) as Deputy Speaker.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT

2001 SESSION

—INDEX—

Abbreviations: (1r), (2r), (3r), first, second, third reading; (A) Amendment; BT, Bodden Town; (C), Committee; CAL, Cayman Airways, Ltd.; CDB, Caribbean Development Bank; CIHCA, Cayman Islands Hotel and Condominium Association; CPA, Central Planning Authority; CITA, Cayman Islands Tourism Association; C&W, Cable & Wireless (CI) Ltd.; CUC, Caribbean Utilities Co. Ltd.; DVES, Department of Vehicle Equipment Services; DOE, Department of Environment; DOT, Department of Tourism; EE, East End; FATF, Financial Action Task Force; GHHS, George Hicks High School; GM, Government Motion; GT, George Town; ICCI, International College of the Cayman Islands; JGHS, John Gray High School; PMM, Private Member's Motion; OECD, Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development; PWD, Public Works Department; (R), Report; SO, Standing Order.

---

Administration of Oaths or Affirmations,

Bulgin, Hon. Samuel, 39, 519, 761, 1053, 1363
Ebanks, Hon. Donovan, W.F., 297, 417, 985, 1053, 1495
Walton, Hon. A. Joel, 177, 371, 519, 783, 957, 1347

Anglin, Mr. Rolston M.:

Adoption of the Report of the Committee to Examine Conditions Relating to Recruitment of Caymanians to the Teaching Profession (GM 7/01), 1219-1222
Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 4/01) (Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly), 8
Airing of Mature Audience Television Programmes by Licensed Television Cable Operators in the Cayman Islands (PMM 21/01), 1000-1001
Amendments to the Penal Code (1995 Revision) (PMM 16/01), 631, 649-651
Appropriation Bill, 2001, 233-243; 253-262
Appropriation (2002) Bill, 2001, 1327-1345, 1350-1355
Cayman Islands Development Bank Bill, 2001, 1313-1316
Companies (A) (Fees) Bill, 2001, 564-566
Customs Tariff (A) (Further Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001, 1499-1500
Customs Tariff (A) (Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001, 474
Debate on the Budget Address (2002), 1327-1345, 1350-1355
Debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address, 233-243; 253-262
Development and Planning (A) (Infrastructure Fund) Bill, 2001, 564-566
Electronic Form of Laws, Regulations, Directives and Hansards (PMM 11/01), 114-116, 118-119
Establishment of a National Youth Commission and Committee of Enquiry into the Causes of Social Breakdown and Violence among Youth in the Cayman Islands (GM 1/01), 199-203; 545-549
Establishment of a Select Committee on Minimum Wage (PMM 1/01), 86-90
Establishment of a Select Committee to Review Caymanian Owned Businesses (PMM 2/01), 159-160
Government Fees (A) (Increased Fees) Bill, 2001, 564-566
Land Holding Companies Share Transfer Tax (A) (Variation of Tax) Bill, 2001, 564-566
Penal Code (A) (Incest) Bill, 2001, 666-667
Prescribed Decibel Level for Automobile Sound Systems (PMM 22/01), 998
Prevailing Economic Conditions of the Cayman Islands (PMM18/01), 949-955
Prime Lending Rate (PMM 20/01), 1001, 1002-1005, 1008-1011, 1017-1018
Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (A) (Financial Intelligence Units) Bill, 2001, 494-495
Public Access to the Deliberations of Statutory Boards (PMM 19/01), 856-857, 866-867
Public Health (A) Bill, 2001, 966
Public Management and Finance Bill, 2001, 1141-1144
Regulation of Dangerous and Ferocious Dogs in the Islands (PMM 23/01), 989-991, 997-998
Report of the Standing Public Accounts Committee (PAC) on the Report of the Auditor General on the Financial Statements of the Government of the Cayman Islands for the year ended 31 December 1999, together with the Report of the Auditor General on the Financial Statements of the Government of the Cayman Islands for the year ended 31 December 1999, 1587-1590
Review of the Government Guaranteed Mortgage Scheme (PMM 5/01), 592
Review of the Labour Law (PMM 3/01), 813-819, 826, 836-838
Revocation and Appointment of Membership to the Standing Public Accounts Committee (GM 13/01), 1289-1290
Revocation of Ministers of Executive Council (PMM 24/01), 1231, 1255-1261
Search and Rescue of Mr. Ronnie Martin Ebanks, 1115
Select Committee to Review the Health Insurance Law (PMM 9/01), 627-629
Special Relationship Privilege (PMM 4/01), 880, 885-887

Stamp Duty (A) Bill, 2001, 564-566
 Travel (Departure Tax and Environmental Impact Fee) (A) (Variation of Fees) Bill, 2001, 564-566
 Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1270

Ballantyne, Hon. David F.:

Amendments to the Penal Code (1995 Revision) (PMM 16/01), 633-635
 Court of Appeals (A) (Prosecution Appeals) Bill, 2001, (deferred, 660), (withdrawn, 964)
 Criminal Procedure Code (A) Bill, 2001, 680-683, 688-691
 Criminal Procedure Code (A) (Sentencing, Indictment and Incest, Etc.) Bill, 2001 (withdrawn, 659)
 Evidence (A) (Spouses, Experts, Foreign Convictions, Alibis, Right to Silence, Etc.) Bill, 2001, 973-975, 977-978
 Evidence (A) (No. 2) Bill, 2001, 1227-1228
 Independence and Integrity of the Cayman Islands Judiciary, 353-355
 Judicature (A) Bill, 2001, 702-703, 707-708
 Judicature (A) (Costs) Bill, 2001, 709, 722
 Penal Code (A) Incest Bill, 2001, 660-661, 679-680
 Police (A) (Intimate Samples) Bill, 2001, 691-692, 701, 973
 Prevailing Economic Conditions of the Cayman Islands (PMM 18/01), 944-945
 Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (A) (Financial Intelligence Units) Bill, 2001, 492-493, 496-498
 Public Access to the Deliberations of Statutory Boards (PMM 19/01), 869-871
 Public Decency Legislation (PMM 12/01), 754-758
 Special Relationship Privilege (PMM 4/01), 891-896
 Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1270

Bills:

Appropriation Bill, 2001, (1r) 139; (2r) 139-518; (R) 520; (3r) 520
 Appropriation (2002) Bill, 2001, (deferred, 1276), (1r) 1291; (2r) 1293-1494; (R) 1496; (3r) 1496
 Banks and Trust Companies (A) (Prudent Management) Bill, 2001: (1r) 469; (2r) 485-490; (C) 499; (R) 505; (3r) 506
 Cayman Islands Development Bank Bill, 2001, (1r) 1293; (2r) 1304-1318; (C) 1319; (R) 1321; (3r) 1322
 Companies (A) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1109; (2r) 1162; (C) 1181; (R) 1182; (3r) 1184
 Companies (A) (Custody of Bearer Shares) Bill, 2001, (1r) 470; (2r) 485-490; (C) 502; (R) 506; (3r) 507
 Companies (A) (Fees) Bill, 2001, (1r) 554; (2r) 555, 556-572; (C) 573; (R) 576; (3r) 577
 Companies (A) (Segregated Portfolio Companies) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1630; (2r) 1630-1631; (C) 1631; (R) 1632; (3r) 1633
 Companies Management (A) Bill, 2001, (1r) 470; (2r) 485-490; (C) 502; (R) 506; (3r) 507
 Court of Appeal (A) (Prosecution Appeals) Bill, 2001, (deferred, 660); (withdrawn, 964)
 Criminal Procedure Code (A) Bill, 2001, (1r) 659; (2r) 680-691; (C) 725; (R) 729; (3r) 730
 Criminal Procedure Code (A) (Sentencing, Indictment and Incest, Etc.) Bill, 2001, (withdrawn, 659)
 Customs Tariff (A) (Further Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1497; (2r) 1497-1500; (C) 1502; (R) 1503; (3r) 1504
 Customs Tariff (A) (Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001, (1r) 373; (2r) 470-480; (C) 480; (R) 484; (3r) 484
 Development and Planning (A) (Infrastructure Fund) Bill, 2001, (1r) 554; (2r) 555, 556-572; (C) 573; (R) 576; (3r) 577
 Development and Planning (A) (Temporary Provisions) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1276; (2r) 1280-1282; (C) 1284; (R) 1285; (3r) 1285
 Evidence (A) (Spouses, Experts, Foreign Convictions, Alibis, Right to Silence, Etc.) Bill, 2001, (1r) 660; (2r) (postponed 701), 973-978; (C) 979; (R) 981; (3r) 982
 Evidence (A) (No. 2) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1227; (2r) 1227-128; (C) 1228; (R) 1229; (3r) 1229
 Exempted Limited Partnership (A) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1051; (2r) 1157-1158; (C) 1180; (R) 1182; (3r) 1183
 Government Fees (A) (Increased Fees) Bill, 2001, (1r) 554; (2r) 555, 557-572; (C) 573; (R) 576; (3r) 577
 Health Insurance (A) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1051; (2r) 1158-1161; (C) 1181; (R) 1182; (3r) 1183
 Insurance (A) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1536; (2r) 1568-1569; (C) 1581; (R) 1584; (3r) 1585
 Insurance (A) (Prudent Management) Bill, 2001, (1r) 469; (2r) 485-490; (C) 500; (R) 505; (3r) 506
 Judicature (A) Bill, 2001, (1r) 660; (2r) 702-708; (C) 727; (R) 729; (3r) 730
 Judicature (A) (Costs) Bill, 2001, (1r) 660; (2r) 709-710, 722-723; (C) 729; (R) 729; (3r) 730
 Land Holding Companies Share Transfer Tax (A) (Temporary Provisions) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1276; (2r) 1279-1280; (C) 1282; (R) 1284; (3r) 1285
 Land Holding Companies Share Transfer Tax (A) (Variation of Tax) Bill, 2001, (1r) 554; (2r) 555, 557-572; (C) 575 (R) 576; (3r) 578
 Legal Practitioners (A) Bill, 2001, (1r) 989; (2r) 1070-1073, 1078-1079; (C) 1162; (R) 1181; (3r) 1182
 Loan Bill, 2001, (1r) 469; (2r) 520-534; (C) 535; (R) 535; (3r) 535
 Loan (No. 2) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1515; (2r) 1516; (C) 1517; (R) 1518; (3r) 1518
 Marine Conservation (A) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1567; (2r) 1596-1613; (C) 1613; (R) 1619; (3r) 1619
 Merchant Shipping (A) (Surveys and Certification and Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1536; (2r) 1537-1538; (C) 1571; (R) 1584; (3r) 1585

Merchant Shipping (Marine Pollution) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1536; (2r) 1538-1548; (C) 1573; (R) 1584; (3r) 1585
 Monetary Authority (A) (Fees) Bill, 2001, (1r) 964; (2r) 965; (C) 978; (R) 981; (3r) 982
 Mutual Funds (A) (Prudent Administration) Bill, 2001, (1r) 470; (2r) 485-490; (C) 501; (R) 505; (3r) 506
 Notaries Public (A) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1370, 1497; (2r) 1501; (C) 1503; (R) 1503; (3r) 1504
 Partnership (A) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1051; (2r) 1158; (C) 1180; (R) 1182; (3r) 1183
 Penal Code (A) (Incest) Bill, 2001, (1r) 659; (2r) 660-669, 679-680; (C) 723-725; (R) 729; (3r) 729
 Police (A) (Intimate Samples) Bill, 2001, (1r) 660; (2r) 691-692 (Debate postponed, 701, 973)
 Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (A) (Financial Intelligence Units) Bill, 2001, (1r) 470; (2r) 492-498; (C) 503; (R) 506; (3r) 507
 Public Health (A) Bill, 2001, (1r) 964; (2r) 965-973; (C) 979; (R) 981; (3r) 982
 Public Management and Finance Bill, 2001, (1r) 1051; (2r) 1086-1157; (C) 1164; (R) 1182; (3r) 1183
 Securities Investment Business Bill, 2001, (1r) 1536; (2r) 1569-1570; (C) 1582; (R) 1584; (3r) 1585
 Stamp Duty (A) Bill, 2001, (1r) 554; (2r) 555, 557-572; (C) 574; (R) 576; (3r) 577
 Stamp Duty (A) (No.2) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1051; (2r) 1079-1085; (C) 1163; (R) 1182; (3r) 1182
 Stamp Duty (A) (No.3) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1497; (2r) 1501-1502; (C) 1502; (R) 1503; (3r) 1504
 Stamp Duty (A) (Temporary Provision) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1276; (2r) 1277-1279; (C) 1282; (R) 1285; (3r) 1285
 Traffic (A) Bill, 2001, (1r) 1370; (2r) 1536-1537; (C) 1571; (R) 1584; (3r) 1585
 Travel (Departure Tax and Environmental Protection Fee) (A) (Variation of Fees) Bill, 2001, (1r) 554; (2r) 555, 557-572; (C) 574; (R) 576; (3r) 578

Bodden, Hon. Roy:

Adoption of the Report of the Committee to Examine Conditions Relating to Recruitment of Caymanians to the Teaching Profession (GM 7/01), 1200-1203, 1223-1227
 Cayman Islands Development Bank Bill, 2001, 1312-1313
 Community College of the Cayman Islands—Audited Statements 2000 and Annual Report 2000/01, 1591-1592
 Debate on the Budget Address (2002), 1407-1412
 Debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address, 432-436; 438-446; 449-454
 Establishment of a National Youth Commission and Committee of Enquiry into the causes of social breakdown and violence among youth in the Cayman Islands (GM 1/01), 194-197
 Establishment of a Select Committee on Minimum Wage (PMM 1/01), 60-62
 Establishment of a Select Committee to Review Caymanian Owned Businesses (PMM 2/01), 160-162
 First Interim Report of the Select Committee of the Whole House on Minimum Wage, 1626-1627
 Gratuities at the Hyatt Regency Grand Cayman and Layoffs in the Tourism Industry (Reply to Public Matter raised under SO 11(6)), 1198
 Loan Bill, 2001, 523-524
 Partial Collapse of some Ceilings at the GHHS, 1463, 1566
 Pension Deductions (PMM 17/01), 776-780
 Prevailing Economic Conditions of the Cayman Islands (PMM 18/01), 947-949
 Public Health (A) Bill, 2001, 970-971
 Public Management and Finance Bill, 2001, 1112-1113
 Reply to Public Matter raised under SO 11(6) (Gratuities paid by the Hyatt Regency Grand Cayman to persons unauthorised to receive them under the Gratuities Entitlement Regulation 1994), 1198
 Report of the Committee to Examine the Conditions Relating to the Recruitment of Caymanians into the Teaching Profession, 1021
 Review of the Cayman Islands Education Department – the Millett Report, 245-246
 Review of the Labour Law (PMM 3/01), 831-835
 Review of the Trade Union Law (PMM 6/01), 172-173
 Revocation and Appointment of Membership to the Standing Public Accounts Committee (GM 13/01), 1288, 1290
 Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1266
 Update on GHHS, 1566
 Working in Partnership: Report to the Government by Peter Syson (9 July 2001), 1549-1551

Budget Address (2001) (Also see: Debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address (2001)), 139-147
 Clarification, 229

Budget Address (2002) (Also see: Debate on the Budget Address (2002)), 1293-1303

Bulgin, Hon. Samuel:

Amendment to Succession Law (PMM 7/01), 96
 Legal Practitioners (A) Bill, 2001, 1070-1071, 1072-1073, 1078-1079
 Public Access to the Deliberations of Statutory Boards (PMM 19/01), 849-851

Bush, Hon. W. McKeeva:

- Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 3/01), 284, 285
- Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 4/01) (Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly), 15
- Amendments to the Marine Conservation Law, Regulations and Directives, 1060
- Amendments to the Penal Code (1995 Revision) (PMM 16/01), 648-649
- Audited Financial Statements of the Housing Development Corporation for the year ended 31 December 2000, 1059
- Cayman Islands Development Bank Bill, 2001, 1304-1305, 1316-1318
- Changes to Tourism Arrival Statistics, 698-701
- Contract for the Rehabilitation of the Runway at the Gerrard Smith International Airport in Cayman Brac, 810
- Cruise Tourism in the Cayman Islands and Port Authority, 863-866
- Customs Tariff (A) (Further Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001, 1499
- Debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address, 262-268; 289-295; 309-315
- Debate on the Budget Address (2002), 1430-1435, 1436-1444
- Establishment of a National Youth Commission and Committee of Enquiry into the causes of social breakdown and violence among youth in the Cayman Islands (GM 1/01), 198-199
- Establishment of a Select Committee on Minimum Wage (PMM 1/01), 69-70
- Establishment of a Select Committee to Review Caymanian Owned Businesses (PMM 2/01), 158
- Fair Competition Act (PMM 14/01), 839
- Grants of Caymanian Status, 1349-1350
- Importation of Aggregate into the Cayman Islands, 963
- Marine Conservation (A) Bill, 2001, 1596-1599, 1610-1612
- Merging of CIHCA and CITA, 588-591
- Prevailing Economic Conditions of the Cayman Islands (PMM18/01), 930-934
- Programme Director Quincentennial Office and New Director of Tourism, 889
- Reports of the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board for Years Ending 31 December 1998, 1999, 2000, 1059
- Review of the Government Guaranteed Mortgage Scheme (PMM 05/01), 593-594
- Review of the Labour Law (PMM 3/01), 835-836
- Special Relationship Privilege (PMM 4/01), 890
- Tourism Statistics, 1532-1535
- United States Summer Sales Promotion 2001, 189-190
- Update on Cayman Airways, 1368
- Visitor Arrivals – A Review of the Monthly Statistics and Changes Made to Improve Them, 437

Commonwealth Day Message – “A New Generation”, 39*Debate on the Budget Address (2002):

- Anglin, Mr. Rolston M., 1327-1345, 1350-1355
- Bodden, Hon. Roy, 1407-1412
- Bush, Hon. W. McKeeva, 1430-1435, 1436-1444
- Ebanks, Capt. A. Eugene, 1479
- Glidden, Mr. Cline A., Jr., 1453-1461
- Martin, Mr. Lyndon L., 1444-1452
- McCarthy, Hon. George A., 1293-1303, 1492-1494
- McField, Hon. Dr. Frank S., 1377-1385, 1389-1393
- McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 1413-1427
- McLean, Hon. Gilbert A., 1464-1479
- McLean, Mr. V. Arden, 1393-1406
- Pierson, Hon. Linford A., 1479-1492
- Tibbetts, Mr. D. Kurt, 1355-1361, 1370-1377

Debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address (2001):

- Anglin, Mr. Rolston M., 233-243; 253-262
- Bodden, Hon. Roy, 432-436; 438-446; 449-454
- Bush, Hon. W. McKeeva, 262-268; 289-295; 309-315
- Ebanks, Capt. A. Eugene, 347-351
- Glidden, Mr. Cline A., Jr., 402-416; 422-432
- Martin, Mr. Lyndon L., 377-389; 391-402
- McCarthy, Hon. George A., 139-147; 514-518
- McField, Dr. Frank S., 315-323; 328-347
- McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 454-468; 509-514

McLean, Mr. Gilbert A., 207-222; 229-233
 McLean, Mr. V. Arden, 355-369; 374-377

Deputy Speaker in the Chair, 1463-1486

Divisions:

1/01—(PMM 1/01), 92
 2/01—(GM 2/01), 148
 3/01—((A) to GM 3/01), 288
 4/01—(GM 3/01), 288
 5/01—(Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (A) (Financial Intelligence Units) Bill, 2001, (2r)), 498
 6/01—(Loan Bill, 2001, (2r)), 534
 7/01—(Loan Bill, 2001, (3r)), 536
 8/01—(Travel (Departure Tax and Environmental Protection Fee) (A) (Variation of Fees) Bill, 2001, 572
 9/01—(PMM 16/01 1st Resolve), 657
 10/01—(PMM 16/01 2nd Resolve), 657
 11/01—(Judicature (A) Bill, 2001, (2r)), 709
 12/01—(PMM 17/01), 813
 13/01—(PMM 4/01), 904
 14/01—(Adjournment), 921
 15/01—(PMM 20/01), 1019
 16/01—(GM 8/01), 1037
 17/01—(PMM 24/01), 1261
 18/01—(GM 11/01), 1287
 19/01—(GM 13/01), 1290
 20/01—(Cayman Islands Development Bank Bill, 2001 (2r)), 1319
 21/01—(Appropriation (2002) Bill, 2001 (2r)), 1494
 22/01—(Appropriation (2002) Bill, 2001 (3r)), 1496
 23/01—(Customs Tariff (A)(Further Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001 (2r)), 1501
 24/01—(Loan (No. 2) Bill, 2001(2r)), 1517

Ebanks, Capt. A. Eugene:

Amendments to the Penal Code (1995 Revision) (PMM 16/01), 631-633, 656-657
 Customs Tariff (A) (Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001, 472
 Debate on the Budget Address (2002), 1479
 Debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address, 347-351
 Disappearance of illicit drugs from Police vault (Public Matter raised under SO 11(6)), 820
 Establishment of a Select Committee on Minimum Wage (PMM 1/01), 58, 90
 Establishment of a Select Committee to Review Caymanian Owned Businesses (PMM 2/01), 155, 160
 Fair Competition Act (PMM 14/01), 838-839
 Marine Conservation (A) Bill, 2001, 1605
 Prescribed Decibel Level for Automobile Sound Systems (PMM 22/01), 998, 1000
 Public Management and Finance Bill, 2001, 1153
 Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1270

Ebanks, Hon. Donovan W. F.:

Prescribed Decibel Level for Automobile Sound Systems (PMM 22/01), 999-1000
 Public Management and Finance Bill, 2001, 1145-1146

Eden, Mr. Anthony S.:

Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 4/01) (Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly), 13-14
 Penal Code (A) (Incest) Bill, 2001, 593, 668-669
 Prescribed Decibel Level for Automobile Sound Systems (PMM 22/01), 1000
 Public Decency Legislation (PMM 12/01), 752-753
 Public Management and Finance Bill, 2001, 1152-1153
 Review of Standing Orders (PMM 8/01), 112
 Revocation of Ministers of Executive Council (PMM 24/01), 1254-1255
 Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1267

Glidden, Mr. Cline A., Jr.:

- Companies (A) (Fees) Bill, 2001, 566-568
- Debate on the Budget Address (2002), 1453-1461
- Debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address, 402-416; 422-432
- Development and Planning (A) (Infrastructure Fund) Bill, 2001, 566-568
- Electronic Form of Laws, Regulations, Directives and Hansards (PMM 11/01), 117
- Establishment of a Select Committee on Minimum Wage (PMM 1/01), 58-60, 90-92
- Establishment of a Select Committee to Review Caymanian Owned Businesses (PMM 2/01), 155, 165-166
- Fair Competition Act (PMM 14/01), 838
- Government Fees (A) (Increased Fees) Bill, 2001, 566-568
- Land Holding Companies Share Transfer Tax (A) (Variation of Tax) Bill, 2001, 566-568
- Public Decency Legislation (PMM 12/01), 753-754
- Public Management and Finance Bill, 2001, 1138-1140
- Review of the Government Guaranteed Mortgage Scheme (PMM 5/01), 592-593, 595
- Review of the Labour Law (PMM 3/01), 813, 829-830
- Special Relationship Privilege (PMM 4/01), 900-901
- Stamp Duty (A) Bill, 2001, 566-568
- Travel (Departure Tax and Environmental Protection Fee) (A) (Variation of Fees) Bill, 2001, 566-568
- Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1271

Government Motions:

- 1/01—Establishment of a National Youth Commission and Committee of Enquiry into the Causes of Social Breakdown and Violence Among Youth in the Cayman Islands
  - Anglin, Mr. Rolston M., 199-203; 545-549
  - Bodden, Hon. Roy, 194-197
  - Bush, Hon. W. McKeeva, 198-199
  - McField, Dr. Frank S., 198
  - McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 192-194
  - Moyle, Hon. Edna M., 191-192; 549
- 2/01—The Customs Law (1998 Revision) The Customs Tariff Law (1999 Revision)
  - McCarthy, Hon. George A., 147
- 3/01—Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001
  - Amendment thereto, 283
  - Bush, Hon. W. McKeeva, 284, 285
  - Martin, Mr. Lyndon L., 284-286
  - McCarthy, Hon. George A., 281, 286, 288
  - O'Connor-Connolly, Mrs. Julianna Y., 283, 288
- 4/01—Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly)
  - Anglin, Mr. Rolston M., 8
  - Bush, Hon. W. McKeeva, 15
  - Eden, Mr. Anthony S., 13-14
  - Martin, Mr. Lyndon L., 4-6
  - McCarthy, Hon. George A. 1-4, 21-24
  - McField, Dr. Frank S., 6
  - McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 8
  - McLean, Mr. Gilbert A., 10
  - McLean, Mr. V. Arden, 12
  - Moyle, Hon. Edna M., 21
  - O'Connor-Connolly, Mrs. Julianna Y., 14
  - Pierson, Hon. Linford A., 20
  - Tibbetts, Hon. D. Kurt, 16-20
- 5/01—The Insurance Law (1999 Revision) The Insurance (Variation of Fees) Regulations 2001
  - O'Connor-Connolly, Mrs. Julianna Y., 579
  - Walton, Hon. A. Joel, 578, 579

- 6/01—Nomination of Members to the Cinematographic Authority
Moyle, Hon. Edna M., 982
- 7/01—Adoption of the Report of the Committee to Examine Conditions Relating to Recruitment of Caymanians to the Teaching Profession
Anglin, Mr. Rolston M., 1219-1222
Bodden, Hon. Roy, 1200-1203, 1223-1227
Martin, Mr. Lyndon L., 1222-1223
McField, Dr. Frank S., 1215-1217
McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 1217-1219
McLean, Mr. Gilbert A., 1203-1208
McLean, Mr. V. Arden, 1209, 1212-1215
- 8/01—Laying of Records of the Select Committee to Review the Immigration Law, 1992 (1997 Revision), The Local Companies (Control) Law (1995 Revision), and the Trade and Business Licensing Law (1996 Revision)
Ebanks, Hon. Donovan W. F., 1037
- 9/01—Health Insurance Law 1997; Health Insurance (A) Regulations 2001
Pierson, Hon. Linford A., 1184
- 10/01—The Development and Planning Law (1999 Revision), The Development and Planning (A)(Temporary Provisions) Regulations, 2001
Pierson, Hon. Linford A., 1286
- 11/01—Revocation and Appointment of Membership to the Standing Business Committee
McField, Hon. Dr. Frank S., 1287
- 12/01—Revocation and Appointment of Membership to the Standing House Committee
McLean, Hon. Gilbert A., 1287
- 13/01—Revocation and Appointment of Membership to the Standing Public Accounts Committee
Anglin, Mr. Rolston M., 1289
Bodden, Hon. Roy, 1288, 1290
McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 1288
- 14/01—Health Services (Fees and Charges) Regulations, 2001
Martin, Mr. Lyndon L., 1521
McLean, Hon. Gilbert A., 1518-1522
- 15/01—Insurance (Further Variation of Fees) Regulations, 2001
McCarthy, Hon. George A., 1504-1505
- 16/01—Amendment to the Development Plan 1997
Pierson, Hon. Linford A., 1633

Martin, Mr. Lyndon L.:

- Adoption of the Report of the Committee to Examine Conditions Relating to Recruitment of Caymanians to the Teaching Profession (GM 7/01), 1222-1223
Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 3/01), 284-286
Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 4/01) (Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly), 4-6
Allegations by former banker Mr. John Mathewson (Public Matter raised under SO 11(6)), 579
Banks and Trust Companies (A) (Prudent Management) Bill, 2001, 488
Companies (A) (Custody of Bearer Shares) Bill, 2001, 488
Companies (A) (Fees) Bill, 2001, 558-560
Companies Management (A) Bill, 2001, 488
Customs Tariff (A) (Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001, 474
Debate on the Budget Address (2002), 1444-1452
Debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address, 377-389; 391-402
Development and Planning (A) (Infrastructure Fund) Bill, 2001, 558-560
Establishment of a Select Committee on Minimum Wage (PMM 1/01), 66-67

Government Fees (A) (Increased Fees) Bill, 2001, 558-560
 Health Insurance (A) Regulations 2001, 1159-1160
 Health Services (Fees and Charges) Regulations, 2001 (GM 14/01), 1521
 Insurance (A) (Prudent Management) Bill, 2001, 488
 Land Holding Companies Share Transfer Tax (A) (Variation of Tax) Bill, 2001, 558-560
 Loan Bill, 2001, 521
 Merchant Shipping (Marine Pollution) Bill, 2001, 1540-1542
 Mutual Funds (A) (Prudent Administration) Bill, 2001, 488
 Pension Deductions (PMM 17/01), 772, 786-791
 Prescribed Decibel Level for Automobile Sound Systems (PMM 22/01), 998-999
 Prevailing Economic Conditions of the Cayman Islands (PMM 18/01), 904-907, 909-926
 Prime Lending Rate (PMM 20/01), 1012-1014
 Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (A) (Financial Intelligence Units) Bill, 2001, 494
 Public Access to the Deliberations of Statutory Boards (PMM 19/01), 845, 852-853
 Public Management and Finance Bill, 2001, 1109-1112
 Raising of Public Matter (SO 11(6)) — Allegations by former banker Mr. John Mathewson, 579
 Review of the Government Guaranteed Mortgage Scheme (PMM 5/01), 594
 Review of the Trade Union Law (PMM 6/01), 166, 174
 Revocation of Ministers of Executive Council (PMM 24/01), 1231
 Select Committee to Review the Health Insurance Law (PMM 18/01), 596, 598-599
 Special Relationship Privilege (PMM 4/01), 901-902
 Stamp Duty (A) Bill, 2001, 558-560
 Television Broadcasting of Legislative Assembly Proceedings (PMM 10/01), 122-123
 Travel (Departure Tax and Environmental Protection Fee) (A) (Variation of Fees) Bill, 2001, 558-560
 Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1269

McCarthy, Hon. George A.:

Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 3/01), 281, 286, 288
 Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 4/01) (Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly), 1-4, 21-24
 Appropriation Bill, 2001, 139-147; 514-518
 Appropriation (2002) Bill, 2001, 1293-1303, 1492-1494
 Banks and Trust Companies (A) (Prudent Management) Bill, 2001, 485-488, 490
 Budget Address, 139-147; 514-518
 Budget Address (2002), 1293-1303, 1492-1494
 Clarification/Correction to Budget (2001), 229
 Companies (A) Bill, 2001, 1162
 Companies (A) (Custody of Bearer Shares) Bill, 2001, 485-488, 490
 Companies (A) (Segregated Portfolio Companies) Bill, 2001, 1630-1631
 Companies Management (A) Bill, 2001, 485-488, 490
 Customs Law (1998 Revision), Customs Tariff Law (1999 Revision) (GM 2/01), 147
 Customs Tariff (A) (Further Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001, 1497, 1500
 Customs Tariff (A) (Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001, 470-471, 479
 Draft Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure of the Cayman Islands' Government for the Year 2001, 139
 Draft Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure of the Cayman Islands' Government for the Year 2002 (deferred, 1275), 1291
 Exempted Limited Partnership (A) Bill, 2001, 1157-1158
 Insurance (A) (Prudent Management) Bill, 2001, 485-488, 490
 Insurance (A) Bill, 2001, 1568-1569
 Insurance (Further Variation of Fees) Regulations, 2001, 1496
 Insurance (Further Variation of Fees) Regulations, 2001 (GM 15/01), 1504-1505
 Land Holding Companies Share Transfer Tax (A) (Temporary Provisions) Bill, 2001, 1279-1280
 Loan (No. 2) Bill, 2001, 1516-1517
 Merchant Shipping (A) (Surveys and Certification and Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill, 2001, 1537-1538
 Merchant Shipping (Marine Pollution) Bill, 2001, 1538-1540, 1547-1548
 Mutual Funds (A) (Prudent Administration) Bill, 2001, 485-488, 490
 Notaries Public (A) Bill, 2001, 1501-1502
 Partnership (A) Bill, 2001, 1158
 Prevailing Economic Conditions of the Cayman Islands (PMM 18/01), 922, 923-926
 Prime Lending Rate (PMM 20/01), 1011-1012
 Public Management and Finance Bill, 2001, 1086-1089, 1155-1157
 Report of the Cayman Islands 1999 Population and Housing Census, 447-448

Report of the Standing Finance Committee 15 August 2001; 24 October, 2001; 27 December 2001, 1621
 Securities Investment Business Bill, 2001, 1569-1570
 Stamp Duty (A) (No.2) Bill, 2001, 1079, 1084-1085
 Stamp Duty (A) (No.3) Bill, 2001, 1501
 Stamp Duty (A) (Temporary Provision) Bill, 2001, 1277-1278, 1279
 Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1268

McField, Dr. Frank S.: (Also see: McField, Hon. Dr. Frank S.)

Adoption of the Report of the Committee to Examine Conditions Relating to Recruitment of Caymanians to the Teaching Profession (GM 7/01), 1215-1217
 Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 4/01) (Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly), 6
 Amendment to the Succession Law (PMM 7/01), 96
 Amendments to the Penal Code (1995 Revision) (PMM 16/01), 635-638, 645-648
 Banks and Trust Companies (A) (Prudent Management) Bill, 2001, 489
 Companies (A) (Custody of Bearer Shares) Bill, 2001, 489
 Companies Management (A) Bill, 2001, 489
 Criminal Procedure Code (A) Bill, 2001, 684-685
 Customs Tariff (A) (Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001, 471-472
 Debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address, 315-323; 328-347
 Electronic Form of Laws, Regulations, Directives and Hansards (PMM 11/01), 118
 Establishment of a National Youth Commission and Committee of Enquiry into the causes of social breakdown and violence among youth in the Cayman Islands (GM 1/01), 198
 Establishment of a Select Committee on Minimum Wage (PMM 1/01), 62-65
 Establishment of a Select Committee to Review Caymanian Owned Businesses (PMM 2/01), 162-164
 Gratuities paid by the Hyatt Regency Grand Cayman to persons unauthorised to receive them under the Gratuities Entitlement Regulation 1994 (Public Matter raised under SO 11(6)), 1185
 Insurance (A) (Prudent Management) Bill, 2001, 489
 Judicature (A) Bill, 2001, 703-705
 Judicature (A) (Costs) Bill, 2001, 722
 Loan Bill, 2001, 524-526
 Mutual Funds (A) (Prudent Administration) Bill, 2001, 489
 Penal Code (A) (Incest) Bill, 2001, 661-664
 Pension Deductions (PMM 17/01), 780-782
 Prevailing Economic Conditions of the Cayman Islands (PMM 18/01), 935-941
 Public Access to the deliberations of Statutory Boards (PMM 19/01), 847, 850, 851, 853-855
 Public Decency Legislation (PMM 12/01), 748-749
 Public Health (A) Bill, 2001, 966-967
 Public Management and Finance Bill, 2001, 1090-1091
 Review of the Government Guaranteed Mortgage Scheme (PMM 5/01), 594-595
 Review of the Labour Law (PMM 3/01), 827-829
 Review of the Trade Union Law (PMM 6/01), 166-172, 174-175
 Revocation of Ministers of Executive Council (PMM 24/01), 1243-1247
 Select Committee to Review the Health Insurance Law (PMM 9/01), 599-600
 Special Relationship Privilege (PMM 4/01), 877-880
 Stamp Duty (A) (No.2) Bill, 2001, 1079-1080
 Television Broadcasting of Legislative Assembly Proceedings (PMM 10/01), 123

McField, Hon. Dr. Frank S.: (Also see: McField, Dr. Frank S.)

Cayman Islands Development Bank Bill, 2001, 1307-1310
 Cayman Islands Marine Institute, 1435-1436
 Debate on the Budget Address (2002), 1377-1385, 1389-1393
 Report of Committee of Inquiry into causes of social breakdown and youth violence among Caymanian youth in the Cayman Islands, 1622-1626
 Revocation and Appointment of Membership to the Standing Business Committee (GM 11/01), 1287
 Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1269

McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr.:

Adoption of the Report of the Committee to Examine Conditions Relating to Recruitment of Caymanians to the Teaching Profession (GM 7/01), 1217-1219
 Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 4/01) (Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly), 8
 Amendment to the Succession Law (PMM 7/01), 92, 93-96, 99

Amendments to the Penal Code (1995 Revision) (PMM 16/01), 653-654
 Banks and Trust Companies (A) (Prudent Management) Bill, 2001, 489
 Cayman Islands Development Bank Bill, 2001, 1305-1307
 Companies (A) (Custody of Bearer Shares) Bill, 2001, 489
 Companies Management (A) Bill, 2001, 489
 Criminal Procedure Code (A) Bill, 2001, 683-684
 Customs Tariff (A) (Further Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001, 1498-1499
 Debate on the Budget Address (2002), 1413-1427
 Debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address, 454-468; 509-514
 Electronic Form of Laws, Regulations, Directives and Hansards (PMM 11/01), 116
 Establishment of a National Youth Commission and Committee of Enquiry into the causes of social breakdown and violence among youth in the Cayman Islands (GM 1/01), 192-194
 Establishment of a Select Committee on Minimum Wage (PMM 1/01), 65-66
 Establishment of a Select Committee to Review Caymanian Owned Businesses (PMM 2/01), 164
 Evidence (A) (Spouses, Experts, Foreign Convictions, Alibis, Right to Silence, Etc.) Bill, 2001, 975-977
 Grants of Caymanian Status, 1350
 Insurance (A) (Prudent Management) Bill, 2001, 489
 Judicature (A) Bill, 2001, 594(1r), 706-707
 Judicature (A) (Costs) Bill, 2001, 709-710
 Legal Practitioners (A) Bill, 2001, 1071-1072
 Loan Bill, 2001, 531
 Marine Conservation (A) Bill, 2001, 1603-1604
 Mutual Funds (A) (Prudent Administration) Bill, 2001, 489
 Penal Code (A) (Incest) Bill, 2001, 664-666
 Pension Deductions (PMM 17/01), 791-793
 Prevailing Economic Conditions of the Cayman Islands (PMM 18/01), 934-935
 Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (A) (Financial Intelligence Units), 496
 Public Access to the Deliberations of Statutory Boards (PMM 19/01), 853
 Public Decency Legislation (PMM 12/01), 730-731; 758-760
 Public Health (A) Bill, 2001, 968
 Public Management and Finance Bill, 2001, 1125-1129
 Review of the Labour Law (PMM 3/01), 830-831
 Revocation and Appointment of Membership to the Standing Public Accounts Committee (GM 13/01), 1288
 Revocation of Ministers of Executive Council (PMM 24/01), 1232-1237
 Select Committee to Review the Health Insurance Law (PMM 9/01), 600-602
 Special Relationship Privilege (PMM 4/01), 874-877
 Stamp Duty (A) (No.2) Bill, 2001, 1080-1081
 Television Broadcasting of Legislative Assembly Proceedings (PMM 10/01), 119, 120
 Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1267
 Young People (Statement by Member), 693

McLean, Hon. Gilbert A.: (Also see: McLean, Mr. Gilbert A.)

Debate on the Budget Address (2002), 1464-1479
 Draft Health Practitioners Bill, 2001, 1326
 Health Services (Fees and Charges) Regulation, 2001 (GM 14/01), 1518-1519, 1521-1522
 Revocation and Appointment of Membership to the Standing House Committee (GM 12/01), 1287
 Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1266

McLean, Mr. Gilbert A.: (Also see: McLean, Hon. Gilbert A.)

Adoption of the Report of the Committee to Examine Conditions Relating to Recruitment of Caymanians to the Teaching Profession (GM 7/01), 1203-1208
 Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 4/01) (Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly), 10
 Amendments to the Penal Code (1995 Revision) (PMM 16/01), 651-653
 Companies (A) (Fees) Bill, 2001, 558
 Debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address, 207-222; 229-233
 Development and Planning (A) (Infrastructure Fund) Bill, 2001, 558
 Establishment of a Select Committee on Minimum Wage (PMM 1/01), 67-69
 First Report of the Standing House Committee, 540-544
 Government Fees (A) (Increased Fees) Bill, 2001, 558
 Health Insurance (A) Regulations 2001, 1160

Land Holding Companies Share Transfer Tax (A) (Variation of Tax) Bill, 2001, 558
 Loan Bill, 2001, 522-523
 Pension Deductions (PMM 17/01), 772, 773-776, 810-813
 Prevailing Economic Conditions of the Cayman Islands (PMM 18/01), 904, 926-930
 Prime Lending Rate (PMM 20/01), 1014-1016
 Public Access to the Deliberations of Statutory Boards (PMM 19/01), 845-847, 850, 851-852, 871-872
 Public Decency Legislation (PMM 12/01), 733-735; 746-748
 Public Health (A) Bill, 2001, 969-970
 Public Management and Finance Bill, 2001, 1122-1125
 Regulation of Dangerous and Ferocious Dogs in the Islands (PMM 23/01), 993-995
 Review of Standing Orders (PMM 8/01), 112, 113, 114
 Select Committee to Review the Health Insurance Law (PMM 9/01), 596-598, 629-630
 Special Relationship Privilege (PMM 4/01), 872, 896-898
 Stamp Duty (A) Bill, 2001, 558
 Stamp Duty (A) (No.2) Bill, 2001, 1083-1084
 Television Broadcasting of Legislative Assembly Proceedings (PMM 10/01), 119, 125, 133-136
 Travel (Departure Tax and Environmental Protection Fee) (A) (Variation of Fees) Bill, 2001, 558

McLean, Mr. V. Arden:

Adoption of the Report of the Committee to Examine Conditions Relating to Recruitment of Caymanians to the Teaching Profession (GM 7/01), 1212-1215
 Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 4/01) (Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly), 12
 Amendment to the Succession Law (PMM 7/01), 93, 98
 Cayman Islands Development Bank Bill, 2001, 1310-1312
 Companies (A) (Fees) Bill, 2001, 568-570
 Criminal Procedure Code (A) Bill, 2001, 685-686
 Customs Tariff (A) (Further Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001, 1498
 Customs Tariff (A) (Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001, 472
 Debate on the Budget Address (2002), 1393-1406
 Debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address, 355-369; 374-377
 Development and Planning (A) (Infrastructure Fund) Bill, 2001, 568-570
 Development and Planning (A) (Temporary Provisions) Bill, 2001, 1281
 Electronic Form of Laws, Regulations, Directives and Hansards (PMM 11/01), 114, 117-118
 Establishment of a Select Committee on Minimum Wage (PMM 1/01), 70-72
 Government Fees (A) (Increased Fees) Bill, 2001, 568-570
 Judicature (A) Bill, 2001, 705-706
 Land Holding Companies Share Transfer Tax (A) (Variation of Tax) Bill, 2001, 568-570
 Loan Bill, 2001, 526-527
 Marine Conservation (A) Bill, 2001, 1496-1500
 Merchant Shipping (Marine Pollution) Bill, 2001, 1542-1544
 Penal Code (A) (Incest) Bill, 2001, 667-668
 Pension Deductions (PMM 17/01), 793-795
 Prevailing Economic Conditions of the Cayman Islands (PMM 18/01), 945-947
 Prime Lending Rate (PMM 20/01), 1001
 Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (A) (Financial Intelligence Units) Bill, 2001, 493
 Public Access to the deliberations of Statutory Boards (PMM 19/01), 847-849, 855-856
 Public Decency Legislation (PMM 12/01), 731-733
 Public Health (A) Bill, 2001, 971-972
 Public Management and Finance Bill, 2001, 1129-1132, 1137-1138
 Regulation of Dangerous and Ferocious Dogs in the Islands (PMM 23/01), 993-995
 Revocation of Ministers of Executive Council (PMM 24/01), 1237-1243
 Select Committee to Review the Health Insurance Law (PMM 9/01), 550, 614-617
 Special Relationship Privilege (PMM 4/01), 898-900
 Stamp Duty (A) Bill, 2001, 568-570
 Stamp Duty (A) (No.2) Bill, 2001, 1081-1082
 Stamp Duty (A) (Temporary Provision) Bill, 2001, 1278
 Television Broadcasting of Legislative Assembly Proceedings (PMM 10/01), 119, 136
 Travel (Departure Tax and Environmental Protection Fee) (A) (Variation of Fees) Bill, 2001, 568-570
 Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1268

Moyle, Hon. Edna M.:

- Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 4/01) (Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly), 21
- Establishment of a National Youth Commission and Committee of Enquiry into the causes of social breakdown and violence among youth in the Cayman Islands (GM 1/01), 191-192; 549
- National Youth Policy, 154
- Nomination of Members to the Cinematographic Authority (GM 6/01), 982
- Report and Recommendations for Upgrading Sunrise Training Centre and Other Matters Relating to Persons with Disabilities, 761
- Revocation of Ministers of Executive Council (PMM 24/01), 1247-1248
- Water Authority of the Cayman Islands Annual Report, 437

Nominations/Elections:

- Deputy Speaker, 1275
- Ministers to Executive Council (See PMM 24/01), 1261
- Speaker, 1273

O'Connor-Connolly, Mrs. Julianna Y.:

- Acceptance Speech upon being elected new Speaker, 1274
- Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 3/01), 283, 288
- Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 4/01) (Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly), 14
- Amendments to the Penal Code (1995 Revision) (PMM 16/01), 654-656
- Amendment to the Succession Law (PMM 7/01), 98-99
- Banks and Trust Companies (A) (Prudent Management) Bill, 2001, 490
- Companies (A) (Custody of Bearer Shares) Bill, 2001, 490
- Companies Management (A) Bill, 2001, 490
- Criminal Procedure Code (A) Bill, 2001, 687-688
- Insurance (A) (Prudent Management) Bill, 2001, 490
- Insurance Law (1999 Revision) The Insurance (Variation of Fees) Regulations 2001(GM 5/01), 579
- Mutual Funds (A) (Prudent Administration) Bill, 2001, 490
- Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (A) (Financial Intelligence Units), 493
- Public Decency Legislation (PMM 12/01), 749-752
- Public Management and Finance Bill, 2001, 1089, 1146-1152
- Special Relationship Privilege (PMM 4/01), 872-874, 902-903
- Television Broadcasting of Legislative Assembly Proceedings (PMM 10/01), 122
- Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1271

Parliamentary Questions by Category (Also see: Parliamentary Questions in numerical order):Agriculture:

- 27. Official policy of Department of Agriculture and/or Agriculture Society on spraying of trees, 151

Cayman Airways Ltd.:

- 63. Buddy pass system and monitoring thereof, 639

Cayman Brac & Little Cayman:

- 92. Anticipated commencement date for construction of West End Post Office, 985
- 93. Progress report on construction of Ann Tatum Road and Polack Drive on Cayman Brac, 986
- 99. Security guard for Cayman Brac High School, 1031
- 105. Installation of drains in flood-prone areas in Cayman Brac, 1045
- 109. Progress by government in establishing “back office” work on Cayman Brac, 1064
- 117. Expected completion date for renovations of Aston Ruddy Civic Centre, 1103
- 118. Provision for plumbing inspector for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, 1104
- 119. Status of establishment of Cadet Corp for Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac, 1106

Civil Service:

- 5. Rent paid by government annually for office space and plans to build additional office space, 51
- 6. Caribbean Home Insurance coverage for civil service, 53
- 9. Restructuring of Human Resources Department, 58, 82
- 32. Total number of civil servants – Caymanian/non-Caymanian, 184
- 33. Efforts to replace longest serving contracted expatriates with Caymanians, 185
- 34. Status of suspended DEVS officers, 188
- 53. Protocols governing public service employees (deferred, 327), 371
- 83. Reason for reduction of PWD employees’ wages, 821
- 87. Monthly payroll of government as of May 2001, 883

- 89. Review/renewal of contracts attracting contracted officers' supplement, (withdrawn, 957) (See P.Q. # 114)
- 90. Effect of resolution by Finance Committee to discontinue contracted officers' supplements, incentives, (withdrawn, 958)
- 94. Payment of retroactive wages to group employees of PWD, 987
- 104. Policy of paying retiring permanent secretaries one year's pre-retirement salary, 1041
- 109. Progress by government in establishing "back office" work on Cayman Brac, 1064
- 114. Review/renewal of contracts attracting contracted officers' supplement, 1093
- 115. Number of persons employed in 2001 to posts attracting contracted officer's supplement (COS), 1098
- 116. Posts in government receiving inducement allowance, 1101
- 132. Succession plan for Lands and Survey Department, 1387
- 135. Criteria for becoming a prison officer, 1507
- 136. Guidelines for disciplinary action when prison officer is found with drugs, 1509
- 141. Succession plan for Public Works Department, 1523
- 144. Number of civil servants hired since 2001 moratorium, 1527
- 145. Total number of persons employed by CI Government, including civil servants and group employees, 1529
- 152. Criteria for Civil Servant's Annual Performance Award, number awarded and number who did not qualify, 1565
- 155. Removal and replacement of Director of Tourism, 1592

Computer Services:

- 39. Qualifications of staff of Computer Services— nationality/job title/training, 224
- 42. Training courses provided for staff of Computer Services, 249
- 47. Number of Caymanians resigning from Computer Services Department in past three years, 277
- 48. Number of "couples" working in Computer Services Department, 277
- 49. Number of Caymanians sent for tertiary education by Computer Services Department, 279

Department of Vehicle & Equipment Services:

- 34. Status of suspended DVES officers, 188

Development/Environmental Issues:

- 1. Expected remaining life of government landfill, 40
- 54. Update on CH2M study, 519 (deferred), 619
- 55. Aggregate import licences granted, 583
- 60. Regulation or system of inspection ensuring safety of high pressure tanks, 620
- 81. Status of proposed permanent moorings in GT Harbour, 805
- 91. Continuing review of central wetlands in light of passing of PMM 15/00, 958
- 106. Proposed George Town Port development project, 1046
- 110. List of major capital works initiated and presently outstanding, 1065
- 127. Drainage works carried out by government in GT area, 1325
- 130. Regulation of commercial or residential [rental] properties, 1365

Drugs Task Force:

- 97. Monies realised from sale of confiscated assets by the Drugs Task Force, 1027
- 122. Monies received re: government-to-government cooperation in money laundering and drug confiscation, 1133
- 139. Storage of confiscated or recovered drugs, 1513
- 140. Status of internal audit of DTF, 1513
- 142. Movement of monies into and out of Police Commissioner's account relating to monies collected by DTF, (deferred, 1526), 1551
- 148. Report of internal audit of Drugs Task Force, 1561

Education:

- 2. Plans to introduce vocational/technical school, 43
- 3. Technical/vocational courses available at Community College, 47
- 18. Number of teacher's aides at EE Primary School, 105
- 19. Preschool (government funding/inspections/complaints), 107, 108
- 29. Number of after school programmes in each district, and who runs them, 181
- 37. Networking of Education, Labour and Social Services Department to assist in finding employment for persons receiving aid, 223
- 64. Number of young offenders and education provided, 641
- 67. Projected enrollment at government primary schools, 693
- 68. Procedure for student to move from Alternative Education to High School, 696
- 99. Security guard for Cayman Brac High School, 1031
- 100. Education Department's policy on awarding scholarships to teachers who wish to pursue a Master's Degree, 1033
- 101. Number of scholarships applied for and awarded during 2001, 1034
- 119. Status of establishment of Cadet Corps for Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac, 1106
- 134. Status of "History of the Cayman Islands" by Dr. Michael Craton, 1389

Euro Bank Prosecution:

- 150. Status of Euro Bank prosecution, (deferred, 1564, 1629)
- 151. Terms of agreement to retain services of Andrew Mitchell, QC, in connection with the prosecution of the Euro Bank matter, (deferred, 1564, 1629)

Financial Action Task Force (FATF):

- 74. Immediate requirements to be met for OECD, FATF initiatives, 737

Financial Reporting Unit (FRU):

- 52. Financial Reporting Unit (FRU), 300
- 123. Civilianisation of post of Head of FRU, 1187

Freedom of Information Act:

- 26. Freedom of Information Act, 151

Government Information Services:

- 69. Status of GIS Journal, 676

Government Finances:

- 74. Immediate requirements to be met for OECD, FATF initiatives, 737
- 87. Amount of government's monthly payroll as of May 2001, 883
- 104. Policy of paying retiring permanent secretaries one year's pre-retirement salary, 1041
- 122. Monies received re: government-to-government cooperation in money laundering and drug confiscation, 1133
- 124. Government revenue, expenditure and debt since 1 January 2001, 1190
- 126. Monies due on government's leased properties, 1324
- 140. Status of internal audit of DTF, 1513
- 146. Status of Bill for a law to amend the Judicature Law, 1530
- 156. Investment instruments of general reserves, 1595
- 157. Rate of return on general reserve investment accounts, 1595
- 158. Investment criteria for general reserves, 1596

Government Offices:

- 103. Acquiring additional working space for Ministry of Community Affairs, 1040

Health/Medical:

- 40. Measures to ascertain high incidence of cancer in Islands, 226
- 41. Ambulance service for eastern districts, 226
- 56. Criteria for registration not met by eight doctors, 603
- 57. Section of Health Practitioners' Law eight doctors were registered under, 608 (withdrawn)
- 58. Section of law or regulations not met by the eight doctors, 608
- 59. What is being done to ensure doctors at government hospital meet requirements, 611
- 65. Financial responsibility for adult deemed to have a chemical imbalance sent off island for drug abuse, 671
- 79. Total owed to government for overseas medical loans, advances and receivables, 767
- 96. Recipients of free medical services for members of the Veterans Association, 1025

Housing:

- 30. Affordable housing for lower income families, 182
- 143. Number of homes built over last nine years by Social Services or Public Works Department for persons in need, (deferred, 1527), 1628

Immigration Matters:

- 71. Government's policy in regard to asylum seekers, 717
- 72. Total number of work permits issued, 719
- 85. Number of foreign nationals working at PWD and Caymanian understudies, 842
- 131. Efforts to remove Afghan refugees from Cayman Islands, 1366

Information Technology Strategy Unit:

- 66. Mission and objectives of Information Technology Strategy Unit, 673

Labour Issues:

- 7. International Labour Conventions in Cayman Islands, 54
- 9. Restructuring of Human Resource Department, 58, 82
- 10. Minimum Wage Advisory Committee (April 1997), conclusions/recommendations, 60
- 46. Director of Labour advised by Crown Counsel, 273
- 83. Reason for reduction of PWD employees' wages, 821
- 84. Total number of private sector workforce, 769 (withdrawn)
- 85. Details of foreign nationals working at PWD and Caymanian understudies, 842

Legal Issues:

- 21. Reason why the Attorney General instructed QC in Quarry Products case but not in the Hyatt Regency Hotel gratuity case (deferred, 205), 269
- 45. Hiring of experienced QC to represent Labour Department in Hyatt Regency Hotel case, 272
- 46. Director of Labour advised by Crown Counsel, 273
- 88. Legal procedure for evicting adult child from family home, (withdrawn, 957)
- 113. Progress made drafting a law to replace the Confidential Relationships (Preservation) Law (1995 Revision), 1076
- 146. Status of Bill for a law to amend the Judicature Law, 1530
- 149. Status of Bill amending the Succession Law in accordance with PMM 7/01, 1563, 1564
- 150. Status of Euro Bank prosecution, (deferred, 1454, 1519)
- 151. Terms of agreement to retain services of Andrew Mitchell, QC, in connection with the prosecution of the Euro Bank matter, (deferred, 1564, 1629)

Monetary Authority:

- 20. Staffing at Monetary Authority, 109

Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD):

- 74. Immediate requirements to be met for OECD, FATF initiatives, 737

Port Authority:

- 62. Status of expansion and upgrading of Port Authority, 623
- 81. Status of proposed permanent moorings in GT Harbour, 733
- 106. Proposed George Town Port development project, 1046
- 128. Employment status of Director of Port Authority (deferred, 1349, 1592, 1628),

Postal:

- 28. Introduction of postal zip code, 153
- 92. Anticipated commencement date for construction of West End Post Office, 985

Prison:

- 11. Mandatory drug testing of prisoners and prison guards, 73
- 24. Number of prisoners serving life sentences, 129
- 25. Criteria for release of life term prisoners, number released to date, 129
- 73. Outcome of parole review (2000) of “lifers” at Northward Prison, 721
- 76. Criteria to have past criminal offences removed from one’s record, (postponed, 762), 783
- 78. Definition of “life imprisonment” since replacing “death penalty”, 766
- 135. Criteria for becoming a prison officer, 1507
- 136. Guidelines for disciplinary action when prison officer is found with drugs, 1509
- 137. Phasing in of “sniffer” dogs into security system at Northward Prison, 1511

Public Works Department:

- 83. Reason for reduction of PWD employees’ wages, 821
- 85. Details of foreign nationals working at PWD and Caymanian understudies, 842
- 94. Payment of retroactive wages to group employees of PWD, 987
- 110. List of major capital works initiated and presently outstanding, 1065
- 127. Drainage works carried out by government in GT area, 1325
- 141. Succession plan for Public Works Department, 1523
- 143. Number of homes built over last nine years by Social Services or Public Works Department for persons in need, (deferred, 1527)

Roads:

- 13. Number of miles of road resurfaced and cost per mile, 76
- 14. Miles of public highway yet to be resurfaced and anticipated cost, 79
- 15. Road resurfacing contracts, 81
- 17. Master Ground Transportation Plan, 103
- 93. Progress report on construction of Ann Tatum Road and Polack Drive on Cayman Brac, 986

Royal Cayman Islands Police:

- 22. Police complement and number of crimes committed during 1998/1999/2000 by district, 246
- 50. Confiscation of illegal goods from 11/1996 to 12/2000 and compensation received, (deferred, 297), 417
- 97. Monies realised from sale of confiscated assets by the Drugs Task Force, 1027
- 108. Progress by police in acquiring equipment to measure decibels of noise, 1063
- 120. Status of Cayman Protector, 1117
- 121. Normal retirement age for members of the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force, 1119
- 122. Monies received re: government-to-government cooperation in money laundering and drug confiscation, 1133
- 123. Civilianisation of post of Head of FRU, 1187
- 129. RCIP policy for destruction of drugs, 1363
- 138. Repair works effected to Cayman Protector, 1511

- 139. Storage of confiscated or recovered drugs, 1513
- 142. Movement of monies into and out of Police Commissioner's account relating to monies collected by DTF, (deferred, 1526), 1551
- 147. Arrangements currently in place for marine search and rescue, 1558

Seamen's Grant:

- 16. Eligibility for Seamen's Grant, (deferred, 103), 177

Security:

- 77. Control and regulation of private security companies, 763

Social Services:

- 8. Social Services officers stationed outside GT area, 56
- 23. Elderly residential care facilities – number in country by district, 127
- 30. Affordable housing for lower income families, 182
- 51. Plans for Sunrise Centre in West Bay, 297
- 143. Number of homes built over last nine years by Social Services or Public Works Department for persons in need, (deferred, 1527), 1628

Sports:

- 12. Estimated completion date for Dalmain Ebanks Civic Centre, 75
- 31. Reason why staff of Sports Department are not actively involved in outer districts, 182
- 38. Status of Cayman Brac playing field, (deferred, 224), 325
- 43. Sports Ministry grants 1998/1999/2000, 251
- 88. Legal procedure for evicting adult child from family home, (withdrawn, 957)
- 98. Plans to employ a coach/sports coordinator for the eastern districts, 1031
- 154. Break-down of the users of the sport's/recreation hall at the Community College (withdrawn), 1592

Stamp Duty:

- 36. How is stamp duty on cheques accounted for, 206
- 133. Removal of pressurized vessels and dive operations from public beaches, 1388
- 155. Removal and replacement of Director of Tourism, 1592

Telecommunication:

- 107. Status of legislation to prevent invasion of privacy over telecommunication equipment (per PMM 2/93), 1061

Tourism:

- 4. Revenue generated at Pedro St. James (1999/2000), 49
- 44. QE II Botanic Park development plans, 251
- 81. Status of proposed permanent moorings in GT Harbour, 805
- 106. Proposed George Town Port development project, 1046
- 153. Plans for proper restroom facilities, garbage collection, beach cabanas, etcetera, at the Cemetery beach in West Bay (withdrawn), 1592

Utility Companies:

- 35. Status of Private Member's Motion 11/00 (Public Utilities Commission), 205
- 70. Consideration to allow another telephone company to operate in the Cayman Islands, 643
- 75. Government approval of C&W rate increases, 711
- 80. Steps being taken by government to reduce utility rates and 15% profit to CUC, 803
- 95. Efforts taken by Government to deter electricity increase by CUC, 1021
- 125. Government's negotiations to reduce CUC's capital costs, 1348

Vehicle Licensing Department:

- 82. Policy of Vehicle Licensing Department in refusing to register new vehicles where fees on a previous vehicle are outstanding, 807

Veterans Association:

- 96. Recipients of free medical services for members of the Veterans Association, 1025

Watersports:

- 61. Agreement under which dive operations are conducted at West Bay Beach, 621

Women's Affairs:

- 102. Status of plan preparation for proposed Women's Shelter, 1039
- 112. Convention of Elimination of Discrimination Against Women extended to Cayman Islands, (deferred, 1070), 1075

Youth,

- 119. Status of establishment of Cadet Corps for Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac, 1106

Parliamentary Questions Numerically (Also see: Parliamentary Questions by Category):

- 1. Expected remaining life of government landfill, 40
- 2. Plans to introduce vocational/technical school, 43
- 3. Technical/vocational courses available at Community College, 47

4. Revenue generated at Pedro St. James (1999/2000), 49
5. Rent paid by government annually for office space and plans to build additional office space, 51
6. Caribbean Home Insurance coverage for civil service, 53
7. International Labour Conventions in Cayman Islands, 54
8. Social Services officers stationed outside GT area, 56
9. Restructuring of Human Resources Department, 58, 82
10. Minimum Wage Advisory Committee (April 1997), conclusions/recommendations, 84
11. Mandatory drug testing of prisoners and prison guards, 73
12. Estimated completion date for Dalmain Ebanks Civic Centre, 75
13. Number of miles of road resurfaced and cost per mile, 76
14. Miles of public highway yet to be resurfaced and anticipated cost, 79
15. Road resurfacing contracts, 81
16. Eligibility for Seamen's Grant, (deferred, 103), 177
17. Master Ground Transportation Plan, 103
18. Number of teacher's aides at EE Primary School, 105
19. Preschool (government funding/inspections/complaints), 107, 108
20. Staffing at Monetary Authority, 109
21. Reason why the Attorney General instructed QC in Quarry Products case but not in the Hyatt Regency Hotel gratuity case (deferred, 205), 269
22. Police complement and number of crimes committed during 1998/1999/2000 by district, 246
23. Elderly residential care facilities – number in country by district, 127
24. Number of prisoners serving life sentences, 129
25. Criteria for release of life term prisoners, number released to date, 129
26. Freedom of Information Act, 151
27. Official policy of Department of Agriculture and/or Agriculture Society on spraying of trees, 151
28. Introduction of postal zip code, 153
29. Number of after school programmes in each district, and who runs them, 181
30. Affordable housing for lower income families, 182
31. Reason why staff of Sports Department are not actively involved in outer districts, 182
32. Total number of civil servants – Caymanian/non-Caymanian, 184
33. Efforts to replace longest serving contracted expatriates with Caymanians, 185
34. Status of suspended DVES officers, 188
35. Status of Private Member's Motion 11/00 (Public Utilities Commission), 205
36. How is stamp duty on cheques accounted for, 206
37. Networking of Education, Labour and Social Services Department to assist in finding employment for persons receiving aid, 223
38. Status of Cayman Brac playing field, (deferred, 224), 325
39. Qualifications of staff of Computer Services– nationality/job title/training, 224
40. Measures to ascertain high incidence of cancer in Islands, 226
41. Ambulance service for eastern districts, 226
42. Training courses provided for staff of Computer Services, 249
43. Sports Ministry grants 1998/1999/2000, 251
44. QE II Botanic Park development plans, 251
45. Hiring of experienced QC to represent Labour Department in Hyatt Regency Hotel case, 272
46. Director of Labour advised by Crown Counsel, 273
47. Number of Caymanians resigning from Computer Services Department in past three years, 277
48. Number of "couples" working in Computer Services Department, 277
49. Number of Caymanians sent for tertiary education by Computer Services Department, 279
50. Confiscation of illegal goods from 11/1996 to 12/2000 and compensation received, (deferred, 297), 417
51. Plans for Sunrise Centre in West Bay, 297
52. Financial Reporting Unit (FRU), 300
53. Protocols governing public service employees, (deferred, 327), 371
54. Update on CH2M study, (deferred, 583), 619
55. Aggregate import licences granted, 583
56. Criteria for registration not met by eight doctors, 603
57. Section of Health Practitioners' Law eight doctors were registered under, 608 (withdrawn)
58. Section of law or regulations not met by the eight doctors, 608
59. What is being done to ensure doctors at government hospital meet requirements, 611
60. Regulation or system of inspection ensuring safety of high pressure tanks, 620
61. Agreement under which dive operations are conducted at West Bay Beach, 621

62. Status of expansion and upgrading of Port Authority, 623
63. Buddy pass system and monitoring thereof, 639
64. Number of young offenders and education provided, 641
65. Financial responsibility for adult deemed to have a chemical imbalance sent off island for drug abuse, 671
66. Mission and objectives of Information Technology Strategy Unit, 673
67. Projected enrollment at government primary schools, 693
68. Procedure for students to move from Alternative Education to High School, 696
69. Status of GIS Journal, 676
70. Consideration to allow another telephone company to operate in the Cayman Islands, 711
71. Government's policy in regard to asylum seekers, 717
72. Total number of work permits issued, 719
73. Outcome of parole review (2000) of "lifers" at Northward Prison, 721
74. Immediate requirements to be met for OECD, FATF initiatives, 737
75. Government approval of C&W rate increases, 744
76. Criteria to have past criminal offences removed from one's record, (postponed, 762), 783
77. Control and regulation of private security companies, 763
78. Definition of "life imprisonment" since replacing "death penalty", 766
79. Total owed to government for overseas medical loans, advances and receivables, 767
80. Steps being taken by government to reduce utility rates and 15% profit to CUC, 803
81. Status of proposed permanent moorings in GT Harbour, 805
82. Policy of Vehicle Licensing Department in refusing to register new vehicles where fees on a previous vehicle are outstanding, 807
83. Reason for reduction of PWD employees' wages, 821
84. Total number of private sector workforce, (deferred, 841)
85. Details of foreign nationals working at PWD and Caymanian understudies, 842
86. Policy allowing 'lifers' at Northward Prison to work in community, 859
87. Amount of government's monthly payroll as of May 2001, 883
88. Legal procedure for evicting adult child from family home, (withdrawn, 957)
89. Review/renewal of contracts attracting contracted officers' supplement, (withdrawn, 957) (See P.Q. # 114)
90. Effect of resolution by Finance Committee to discontinue contracted officers' supplements/incentives, (withdrawn, 958)
91. Continuing review of central wetlands in light of passing of PMM 15/00, 958
92. Anticipated commencement date for construction of West End Post Office, 985
93. Progress report on construction of Ann Tatum Road and Polack Drive on Cayman Brac, 986
94. Payment of retroactive wages to group employees of PWD, 987
95. Efforts taken by Government to deter electricity increase by CUC, 1021
96. Recipients of free medical services for members of the Veterans Association, 1025
97. Monies realised from sale of confiscated assets by the Drugs Task Force, 1027
98. Plans to employ a coach/sports coordinator for the eastern districts, 1031
99. Security guard for Cayman Brac High School, 1031
100. Education Department's policy on awarding scholarships to teachers who wish to pursue a Master's Degree, 1033
101. Number of scholarships applied for and awarded during 2001, 1034
102. Status of plan preparation for proposed Women's Shelter, 1039
103. Acquiring additional working space for Ministry of Community Affairs, 1040
104. Policy of paying retiring permanent secretaries one year's pre-retirement salary, 1041
105. Installation of drains in flood-prone areas in Cayman Brac, 1045
106. Proposed George Town Port development project, 1046
107. Status of legislation to prevent invasion of privacy over telecommunication equipment (per PMM 2/93), 1061
108. Progress by police in acquiring equipment to measure decibels of noise, 1063
109. Progress by government in establishing "back office" work on Cayman Brac, 1064
110. List of major capital works initiated and presently outstanding, 1065
112. Convention of Elimination of Discrimination Against Women extended to Cayman Islands, (deferred, 1070), 1075
113. Progress made in drafting a law to replace the Confidential Relationships (Preservation) Law (1995 Revision), 1076
114. Review/renewal of contracts attracting contracted officers' supplement, 1093
115. Number of persons employed in 2001 to posts attracting contracted officer's supplement (COS), 1098
116. Posts in government receiving inducement allowance, 1101
117. Expected completion date for renovations of Aston Rutty Civic Centre, 1103
118. Provision for plumbing inspector for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, 1104
119. Status of establishment of Cadet Corps for Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac, 1106
120. Status of Cayman Protector, 1117

121. Normal retirement age for members of the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force, 1119
122. Monies received re: government-to-government cooperation in money laundering and drug confiscation, 1133
123. Civilianisation of post of Head of FRU, 1187
124. Government revenue, expenditure and debt since 1 January 2001, 1190
125. Government's negotiations to reduce CUC's capital costs, 1348
126. Monies due on government's leased properties, 1324
127. Drainage works carried out by government in GT area, 1325
128. Employment status of Director of Port Authority (deferred, 1349, 1592, 1628),
129. RCIP policy for destruction of drugs, 1363
130. Regulation of commercial or residential [rental] properties, 1365
131. Efforts to remove Afghan refugees from Cayman Islands, 1366
132. Succession plan for Lands and Survey Department, 1387
133. Removal of pressurized vessels and dive operations from public beaches, 1388
134. Status of "History of the Cayman Islands" by Dr. Michael Craton, 1389
135. Criteria for becoming a prison officer, 1507
136. Guidelines for disciplinary action when prison officer is found with drugs, 1509
137. Phasing in of "sniffer" dogs into security system at Northward Prison, 1511
138. Repair works effected to Cayman Protector, 1511
139. Storage of confiscated or recovered drugs, 1513
140. Status of internal audit of DTF, 1513
141. Succession plan for Public Works Department, 1523
142. Movement of monies into and out of Police Commissioner's account relating to monies collected by DTF, (deferred, 1526), 1551
143. Number of homes built over last nine years by Social Services or Public Works Department for persons in need, (deferred, 1527), 1628
144. Number of civil servants hired since 2001 moratorium, 1527
145. Total number of persons employed by CI Government, including civil servants and group employees, 1529
146. Status of Bill for a law to amend the Judicature Law, 1530
147. Arrangements currently in place for marine search and rescue, 1558
148. Report of internal audit of Drugs Task Force, 1561
149. Status of Bill amending the Succession Law in accordance with PMM 7/01, 1563, 1564
150. Status of Euro Bank prosecution, (deferred, 1564, 1629)
151. Terms of agreement to retain services of Andrew Mitchell, QC, in connection with the prosecution of the Euro Bank matter, (deferred, 1564, 1629)
152. Criteria for Civil Servant's Annual Performance Award, number awarded and number who did not qualify, 1565
153. Plans for proper restroom facilities, garbage collection, beach cabanas, et cetera, at the Cemetery beach in West Bay (withdrawn), 1592
154. Break-down of the users of the sport's/recreation hall at the Community College (withdrawn), 1592
155. Removal and replacement of Director of Tourism, 1592
156. Investment instruments of general reserves, 1595
157. Rate of return on general reserve investment accounts, 1595
158. Investment criteria for general reserves, 1596

Pierson, Hon. Linford A.:

- Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 4/01) (Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly), 20
- Annual Report and Audited Financial Statements of the National Drug Council for the Period Ending 30 June 2000, 1116
- Cayman Islands Cemetery Report—June 2001, 1622
- Companies Management (A) Bill, 2001, 560-564
- Debate on the Budget Address (2002), 1479-1492
- Development and Planning (A) (Infrastructure Fund) Bill, 2001, 560-564
- Development and Planning (A) (Temporary Provisions) Bill, 2001, 1280-1281, 1281-1282
- Development and Planning (A) (Temporary Provisions) Regulations, 2001, 1276
- Development and Planning Law (1999 Revision), The Development and Planning (A) (Temporary Provisions) Regulations, 2001 (GM 10/01), 1286
- First Interim Report of the Select Committee of Elected Members to Review the Health Insurance Law, 1627
- First Interim Report of the Select Committee of the whole House to review Caymanian Owned Businesses and Fair Competition Act, 1627
- Government Fees (A) (Increased Fees) Bill, 2001, 560-564
- Health Insurance (A) Bill, 2001, 1158-1159, 1160-1161

Health Insurance (A) Regulations 2001, 1057
 Health Insurance Law 1997; Health Insurance (A) Regulations 2001 (GM 9/01), 1184
 Health Practitioners' Bill, 2001, 1057,
 Information and Communications Bill White Paper, 1326
 Information and Communications Technology Authority Bill, 2001, 1059
 Land Holding Companies Share Transfer Tax (A) (Variation of Tax) Bill, 2001, 560-564
 Public Access to the Deliberations of Statutory Boards (PMM 19/01), 851
 Recent Surgery in Miami (Statement by Honourable Minister), 223
 Report of the Standing Business Committee—Second Meeting of the 2001 Session, 1621
 Report of the Standing Business Committee—Third Meeting of the 2001 Session, 1622
 Report of the Standing Business Committee—Fifth (Budget) Meeting of the 2001 Session, 1622
 Select Committee to Review the Health Insurance Law (PMM 9/01), 626-627
 Stamp Duty (A) Bill, 2001, 560-564
 Travel (Departure Tax and Environmental Protection Fee) (A) (Variation of Fees) Bill, 2001, 560-564
 Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1272

Presentation of Papers and Reports:

Amendments to the Marine Conservation Law, Regulations and Directives, 1060
 Annual Report and Audited Financial Statements of the National Drug Council for Period Ending 30 June 2000, 1116
 Audited Financial Statements of the Housing Development Corporation for the year ended 31 December 2000, 1059
 Cayman Islands Cemetery Report—June 2001, 1622
 Cayman Islands Government—2000 Annual Report of Central Planning Authority & Development Control Board, 538
 Community College of the Cayman Islands—Audited Statements 2000 and Annual Report 2000/01, 1591-1592
 Department of Environmental Health Alternative Systems Analysis Solid Waste Feasibility Study for Grand Cayman
 31 March 2001, 539
 Development and Planning (A) (Temporary Provisions) Regulations, 2001, 1276
 Draft Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure of the Cayman Islands' Government for the Year 2001, 139
 Draft Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure of the Cayman Islands Government for the Year 2002, 1291
 First Interim Report of the Select Committee of Elected Members to Review the Health Insurance Law, 1627
 First Interim Report of the Select Committee of the whole House on Minimum Wage, 1626-1627
 First Interim Report of the Select Committee of the whole House to review Caymanian Owned Businesses and Fair
 Competition Act, 1627
 First Interim Report of the Standing Orders Committee, 1627-1628
 First Report of the Standing House Committee, 540
 Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law (1998 Revision) Report and Recommendation on the Request for a Crown Grant
 (Unclaimed) of Block 48E, Parcel 26, to Mary Frances Williamson, 537
 Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law (1998 Revision) Report and Recommendation on the Request for a Crown Grant
 (Unclaimed) of Block 14D, Parcel 58, to Cephas S. Robinson, 537
 Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law (1998 Revision) Report and Recommendation on the Transfer of Block 4D, Parcel
 463, to the Cayman Islands Mission of Seventh Day Adventists, 537
 Health Insurance (A) Regulations, 2001, 1057
 Health Practitioners Bill, 2001, 1057
 Information and Communications Technology Authority Bill, 2001, 1059
 Insurance (Further Variation of Fees) Regulations, 2001, 1496
 Insurance (Variation of Fees) Regulations, 2001, 553
 Report and Recommendation of the Minister Responsible for Lands on the GHHS Home School Association's Request for the Lease of a Portion of Crown Land Block 15B, Parcel 249, 1211
 Report and Recommendation of the Minister Responsible for Lands on the Request for Crown Grant (Unclaimed)
 Block 44B, Parcel 204, 1212
 Report and Recommendation of the Minister Responsible for Lands on the Request for Crown Grant (Unclaimed)
 Block 4D, Parcel 6, 1212
 Report and Recommendation of the Minister Responsible for Lands on the Request for Crown Grant (Unclaimed)
 Block 44B, Parcel 205, 1212
 Report and Recommendations for Upgrading Sunrise Training Centre and Other Matters Relating to Persons with Disabilities, 761
 Report of the Cayman Islands 1999 Population and Housing Census, 447
 Report of the Committee of Inquiry into Causes of Social Breakdown and Youth Violence Among Caymanian Youth in the Cayman Islands, 1622-1626
 Reports of the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board for the years ending 31 December 1998, 1999 and 2000, 1059

- Report of the Committee to Examine the Conditions Relating to the Recruitment of Caymanians into the Teaching Profession, 1021
- Report of the Standing Business Committee
- State Opening & Budget Session First Meeting 2001, 619
  - Second Meeting of the 2001 Session, 1621
  - Third Meeting of the 2001 Session, 1622
  - Fifth (Budget) Meeting of the 2001 Session, 1622
- Report of the Standing Finance Committee
- 6, 7, 8, 11, December 2000, 519
  - 18 May 2001, 520
  - 15 August 2001, 1621
  - 24 October 2001, 1621
  - 27 December 2001, 1621
- Report of the Standing Public Accounts Committee (PAC) on the Report of the Auditor General on the Financial Statements of the Government of the Cayman Islands for the year ended 31 December 1999, together with the Report of the Auditor General on the Financial Statements of the Government of the Cayman Islands for the year ended 31 December 1999, 1587-1590
- Review of the Cayman Islands Education Department – The Millett Report, 245
- Royal Cayman Islands Police Service Annual Report, 1551
- Traffic (A) (Variation of Fees) Regulations 2001, 553
- Traffic (Radar Speedometer) Regulations 2001, 539
- Water Authority of the Cayman Islands Annual Report, 437
- Working in Partnership: Report to the Government by Peter Syson (9 July 2001), 1549-1551

Private Members' Motions

- 1/01—Establishment of a Select Committee on Minimum Wage
- Anglin, Mr. Rolston M., 86-90
  - Bodden, Hon. Roy, 60-62
  - Bush, Hon. W. McKeeva, 69-70
  - Ebanks, Capt. A. Eugene (Seconder), 58, 90
  - Glidden, Mr. Cline A., Jr. (Mover), 58-60, 90-92
  - Martin, Mr. Lyndon L., 66-67
  - McField, Dr. Frank S., 62-65
  - McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 65-66
  - McLean, Mr. Gilbert A., 67-69
  - McLean, Mr. V. Arden, 70-72
- 2/01—Establishment of a Select Committee to Review Caymanian Owned Businesses
- Anglin, Mr. Rolston M., 159-160
  - Bodden, Hon. Roy, 160-162
  - Bush, Hon. W. McKeeva, 158
  - Ebanks, Capt. A. Eugene (Seconder), 155, 160
  - Glidden, Mr. Cline A., Jr. (Mover), 155, 165-166
  - McField, Dr. Frank S., 162-164
  - McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 164
- 3/01—Review of the Labour Law (withdrawn, 549)
- Anglin, Mr. Rolston M. (Mover), 813-819, 826, 836-838
  - Bodden, Hon. Roy, 831-835
  - Bush, Hon. W. McKeeva, 835-836
  - Glidden, Mr. Cline A., Jr. (Seconder), 813, 829-830
  - McField, Dr. Frank S., 827-829
  - McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 830-831
- 4/01—Special Relationship Privilege (deferred), 845 (withdrawn, 551)
- Anglin, Mr. Rolston M., 880, 885-887
  - Ballantyne, Hon. David F., 891-896
  - Bush, Hon. W. McKeeva, 890
  - Glidden, Mr. Cline A., Jr., 900
  - Martin, Mr. Lyndon, 901-902
  - McField, Dr. Frank S., 876-880

McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 874-877
McLean, Mr. Gilbert A. (Seconder), 872, 896-898
McLean, Mr. V. Arden, 898-900
O'Connor-Connolly, Mrs. Julianna Y. (Mover), 872-874, 902-903

5/01—Review of the Government Guaranteed Mortgage Scheme (withdrawn, 550)

Anglin, Mr. Rolston M. (Seconder), 592
Bush, Hon. W. McKeever, 593-594
Glidden, Mr. Cline A., Jr. (Mover), 592-593, 595
Martin, Mr. Lyndon L., 594
McField, Dr. Frank S., 594-595

6/01—Review of the Trade Union Law

Bodden, Hon. Roy, 172173
Martin, Mr. Lyndon L. (Seconder), 166, 174
McField, Dr. Frank S. (Mover), 166172, 174175

7/01 – Amendment to Succession Law

Bulgin, Hon. Samuel, 96
McField, Dr. Frank S., 96
McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr. (Mover), 92, 93-96, 99
McLean, Mr. V. Arden (Seconder), 93, 98
O'Connor-Connolly, Mrs. Julianna Y., 98-99

8/01—Review of Standing Orders

Eden, Mr. Anthony S. (Seconder), 112
McLean, Mr. Gilbert A. (Mover), 112, 113, 114
Ryan, Hon. James M., 113

9/01—Select Committee to Review the Health Insurance Law (withdrawn, 550)

Anglin, Mr. Rolston M., 627-629
Martin, Mr. Lyndon L. (Seconder), 596, 598-599
McField, Dr. Frank S., 599-600
McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 600-602
McLean, Mr. Gilbert A. (Mover), 596-598, 629-630
McLean, Mr. V. Arden, 550, 614-617
Pierson, Hon. Linford A., 626-627

10/01—Television Broadcasting of Legislative Assembly Proceedings

Amendment thereto, 119
Martin, Mr. Lyndon L., 122-123
McField, Dr. Frank, S., 123
McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr. (Seconder), 119, 120
McLean, Mr. Gilbert A., 119, 125, 133-136
McLean, Mr. V. Arden (Mover), 119, 136
O'Connor-Connolly, Mrs. Julianna Y., 122
Tibbetts, Hon. D. Kurt, 124

11/01—Electronic Form of Laws, Regulations, Directives and Hansards

Anglin, Mr. Rolston M. M. (Mover), 114-116, 118-119
Glidden, Mr. Cline A., Jr., 117
McField, Dr. Frank S., 118
McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 116
McLean, Mr. V. Arden (Seconder), 114, 117-118
Ryan, Hon. James M., 116

12/01—Public Decency Legislation (withdrawn, 550)

Ballantyne, Hon. David F., 754-758
Eden, Mr. Anthony S., 752-753
Glidden, Mr. Cline A., Jr., 753-754
McField, Dr. Frank S., 748-749

McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr. (Mover), 730-731; 758-760
McLean, Mr. Gilbert A., 733-735; 746-748
McLean, Mr. V. Arden (Seconder), 731-733
O'Connor-Connolly, Mrs. Julianna Y., 749-752

13/01—Amendments to the Immigration Law (withdrawn, 552, 969)

14/01—Fair Competition Act (withdrawn, 551)
Bush, Hon. W. McKeeva, 839
Ebanks, Capt. A. Eugene (Mover), 838-839
Glidden, Mr. Cline A., Jr. (Seconder), 838

15/01—Protection of Consumers (withdrawn), 550

16/01—Amendments to the Penal Code (1995 Revision), (withdrawn, 551)
Anglin, Mr. Rolston M. (Seconder), 631, 649-651
Ballantyne, Hon. David F., 633-635
Bush, Hon. W. McKeeva, 648-649
Ebanks, Capt. A. Eugene (Mover), 631-633, 656-657
McField, Dr. Frank S., 635-638, 645-648
McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr. 653, 654
McLean, Mr. Gilbert A., 651-653
O'Connor-Connolly, Mrs. Julianna Y., 654-656

17/01—Pension Deductions (withdrawn, 551)
Amendment thereto, 773
Bodden, Hon. Roy, 776-780
Martin, Mr. Lyndon L. (Seconder), 772, 786-791
McField, Dr. Frank S., 780-782
McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr. 791-793
McLean, Mr. Gilbert A. (Mover), 772, 773-776, 810-813
McLean, Mr. V. Arden, 793-795
Tibbetts, Hon. D. Kurt, 797-801
Walton, Hon. A. Joel, 795-797

18/01—Prevailing Economic Conditions of the Cayman Islands
Anglin, Mr. Rolston M., 949-955
Ballantyne, Hon. David F., 944-945
Bodden, Hon. Roy, 947-949
Bush, Hon. W. McKeeva, 930-934
Martin, Mr. Lyndon L. (Mover), 904-907, 909-926
McCarthy, Hon. George A., 922, 923-926
McField, Dr. Frank S., 935-941
McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 934-935
McLean, Mr. Gilbert A. (Seconder), 904, 926-930
McLean, Mr. V. Arden, 945-947

19/01—Public Access to the Deliberations of Statutory Boards
Amendment thereto, 849
Anglin, Mr. Rolston M., 856-857, 866-867
Ballantyne, Hon. David F., 869-871
Bulgin, Hon. Samuel, 849-851
Martin, Mr. Lyndon L. (Seconder), 845, 852-853
McField, Dr. Frank S., 847, 850, 851, 853-855
McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 853
McLean, Mr. Gilbert A. (Mover), 845-847, 850, 851-852, 871-872
McLean, Mr. V. Arden, 847-849, 855-856
Pierson, Hon. Linford A., 851
Tibbetts, Hon. D. Kurt, 867-869

- 20/01—Prime Lending Rate
 Anglin, Mr. Rolston M. (Mover), 1001, 1002-1005, 1008-1011, 1017-1018
 Martin, Mr. Lyndon L., 1012-1014
 McCarthy, Hon. George A., 1011-1012
 McLean, Mr. Gilbert A., 1014-1016
 McLean, Mr. V. Arden (Seconder), 1001
- 21/01—Airing of Mature Audience Television Programmes by Licensed Television Cable Operators in the Cayman Islands (Withdrawn, 1001)
 Anglin, Mr. Rolston M. (Mover), 1000
- 22/01—Prescribed Decibel Level for Automobile Sound Systems
 Anglin, Mr. Rolston M. (Seconder), 998
 Ebanks, Capt. A. Eugene (Mover), 998, 1000
 Ebanks, Hon. Donovan W. F., 999-1000
 Eden, Mr. Anthony S., 1000
 Martin, Mr. Lyndon L., 998-999
- 23/01—Regulation of Dangerous and Ferocious Dogs in the Islands
 Anglin, Mr. Rolston M., (Mover) 989-991, 997-998
 McLean, Mr. Gilbert A., 993-995
 McLean, Mr. V. Arden (Seconder), 989, 991-993
 Tibbetts, Hon. D. Kurt, 995-997
- 24/01—Revocation of Ministers of Executive Council
 Anglin, Mr. Rolston M. (Mover), 1231, 1255-1261
 Eden, Mr. Anthony S., 1254-1255
 Martin, Mr. Lyndon L. (Seconder), 1231
 McField, Dr. Frank S., 1243-1247
 McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr. 1232-1237
 McLean, Mr. V. Arden, 1237-1243
 Moyle, Hon. Edna M., 1247-1248
 Tibbetts, Hon. D. Kurt, 1249-1254

Proclamation No. 3 of 2001, 25

Raising of Public Matters for which Government has Responsibility (SO 11(6))

- Allegations by former banker, Mr. John Mathewson, 579
 Disappearance of illicit drugs from Police Vault, 820
 Gratuities paid by the Hyatt Regency Grand Cayman to persons unauthorised to receive them under the Gratuities Entitlement Regulation, 1994, 1185

Resignation Statement by Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker, 1264

Retirement Statement by Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker, 1265

Ryan, Hon. James M.:

- Disappearance of illicit drugs from Police Vault (Reply to Public Matter raised under SO 11(6)), 820
 Electronic Form of Laws, Regulations, Directives and Hansards (PMM 11/01), 116
 First Interim Report of the Standing Orders Committee, 1627-1628
 Reply to Public Matter raised under SO 11(6) (Disappearance of illicit drugs from Police Vault), 820
 Review of Standing Orders (PMM 8/01), 113
 Royal Cayman Islands Police Service Annual Report, 1551
 Traffic (A) Bill, 2001, 1536-1537
 Traffic (Radar Speedometer) Regulations 2001, 539-540
 Tribute to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement), 1266

Search and Rescue of Mr. Ronnie Martin Ebanks (statement by Mr. Rolston M. Anglin), 1115

Speaker's Announcements and Rulings:

- Acceptance speech (O'Connor-Connolly, Hon. Julianna Y.), 1274
 Commercial Airline Attacks in the United States of America on Tuesday, 11 September 2001, 1053
 Commonwealth Day Message, 39

House visitors:

- Ebanks, Miss Casandra & students, 190
- Prospective participants in the Youth Parliament from Cayman Prep School, Faulkner Christian Academy, George Hicks High School and Wesleyan Christian Academy, 1
- Students of John Gray High School class 11DS, 245
- Students of St. Ignatius Year 6, 603

Member asked to withdraw statement, 403, 532

Obituary:

- Bodden, Anton, 1495
- Brancker, George E.T., LLB, CBE, 1515
- Connolly, Angelia, 1495
- Ebanks, Graham, 1497
- Myrie, Mr. Edward Jerome S., 519
- Powery, Evelyn Teresa, 1495
- Sister-in-Law of Member for North Side, 1495

Quorum, 293, 382, 385, 1175, 1401, 1542, 1187

Reading of section 10 (1) of the Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law (1998 Revision), 537

Reading of section 18 (1) (f) of the Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law (1999 Revision), 1231

Reading of section 28 (3) of the Interpretation Law (1995 Revision), 537

Resignation statement (Kirkconnell, Hon. Mabry S.), 1264

Retirement statement (Kirkconnell, Hon. Mabry S.), 1265

Statement of displeasure with Members' actions (during debate on PMM 18/01), 921

Statements by Members/Ministers of the Government:

Ballantyne, Hon. David F.:

Independence and Integrity of the Judiciary of the Cayman Islands, 353

Bodden, Hon. Roy:

Gratuities at the Hyatt Regency Grand Cayman and Layoffs in the Tourism Industry (Reply to Public Matter raised under SO 11(6)), 1198

Partial Collapse of Some Ceilings at the GHHS, 1463

Update on GHHS, 1566

Bush, Hon. W. McKeeva:

Changes to Tourism Arrival Statistics, 698

Contract for the Rehabilitation of the Runway at the Gerrard Smith Int'l Airport in Cayman Brac, 810

Cruise Tourism in the Cayman Islands and Port Authority, 863

Grants of Caymanian Status, 1349-1350

Importation of Aggregate into the Cayman Islands, 963

Merging of CIHCA and CITA, 588

Programme Director Quincentennial Office and New Director of Tourism, 889

Tourism Statistics, 1532-1535

United States Summer Sales Promotion 2001, 189

Update on Cayman Airways, 1368

Visitor Arrivals – A Review of the Monthly Statistics and Changes Made to Improve Them, 437

Ebanks, Hon. Donovan W. F.:

Statement in Regard to Three Afghanistan Nationals Living on Grand Cayman since 22 August 2000, 1054

McCarthy, Hon. George A.:

Clarification/Correction to Budget (2001), 229

Draft Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure of the Cayman Islands Government for the Year 2002—Deferred, 1275

McField, Hon. Dr. Frank S.:

Cayman Islands Marine Institute, 1435-1436

McLean, Hon. Gilbert A.:

Draft Health Practitioners Bill, 2001, 1326

Moyle, Hon. Edna M.:

National Youth Policy, 154

Pierson, Hon. Linford A.:

Information and Communications Bill White Paper, 1326

Recent surgery in Miami, 223

Tibbetts, Hon. D. Kurt:

Cayman Airways Limited, 810, 943

Removal of Cayman Islands from FATF List 22 June 2001, 771

Statement on Immigration Issues, 1035

Statement in Regard to the Four Commercial Airline Attacks in the United States of America on Tuesday, 11 September 2001, 1054

Throne Speech: (Also see: Debate on Throne Speech and Budget Address), 26-37

Tibbetts, Hon. D. Kurt: (Also see: Tibbetts, Mr. D. Kurt)

Advance Expenditure Prior to Appropriation Bill, 2001 (GM 4/01) (Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly), 16-20

Allegations by Former Banker, Mr. John Mathewson (Reply to Public Matter raised under SO 11(6)), 580

Cayman Airways Limited, 810, 943

Cayman Islands Government –2000 Annual Report of the Central Planning Authority and Development

Control Board, 538

Customs Tariff (A) (Variation of Duties) Bill, 2001, 475-478

Department of Environmental Health Alternative Systems Analysis Solid Waste Feasibility Study for Grand Cayman 31 March 2001, 539

Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law (1998 Revision) Report and Recommendation on the Request for a Crown Grant (Unclaimed) of Block 48E, Parcel 26, to Mary Frances Williamson, 537

Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law (1998 Revision) Report and Recommendation on the Request for a Crown Grant (Unclaimed) of Block 14D, Parcel 58, to Cephas S. Robinson, 537

Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law (1998 Revision) Report and Recommendation on the Transfer of Block 4D, Parcel 463, to the Cayman Islands Mission of Seventh Day Adventists, 537

Loan Bill, 2001, 527-531

Pension Deductions (PMM 17/01), 797-801

Public Access to the Deliberations of Statutory Boards (PMM 19/01), 867-869

Regulation of Dangerous and Ferocious Dogs in the Islands (PMM 23/01), 995-997

Removal of Cayman Islands from FATF List 22 June 2001, 771

Reply to Public Matter raised under SO 11(6) (Allegations by former banker Mr. John Mathewson), 580

Report and Recommendation of the Minister Responsible for Lands on the GHHS Home School Association's Request for the Lease of a Portion of Crown Land Block 15B, Parcel 249, 1211

Report and Recommendation of the Minister Responsible for Lands on the Request for Crown Grant (Unclaimed) Block 44B, Parcel 204, 1212

Report and Recommendation of the Minister Responsible for Lands on the Request for Crown Grant (Unclaimed) Block 4D, Parcel 6, 1212

Report and Recommendation of the Minister Responsible for Lands on the Request for Crown Grant (Unclaimed) Block 44B, Parcel 205, 1212

Report of the Standing Business Committee: State Opening & Budget Session First Meeting 2001, 619

Revocation of Ministers of Executive Council (PMM 24/01), 1249-1254

Stamp Duty (A) (No.2) Bill, 2001, 1082-1083

Statement on Immigration Issues, 1035

Television Broadcasting of Legislative Assembly Proceedings (PMM 10/01), 124

Tibbetts, Mr. D. Kurt: (Also see: Tibbetts, Hon. D. Kurt)

Appropriation (2002) Bill, 2001, 1355-1361, 1370-1377

Debate on the Budget Address (2002), 1355-1361, 1370-1377

Marine Conservation (A) Bill, 2001, 1599-1603

Merchant Shipping (Marine Pollution) Bill, 2001, 1544-1547

Tributes to Hon. Mabry S. Kirkconnell, OBE, JP, Speaker (upon his retirement)

Anclin, Mr. Rolston M., 1270

Ballantyne, Hon. David F., 1270

Bodden, Hon. Roy, 1266

Ebanks, Capt. A. Eugene, 1270

Eden, Mr. Anthony S., 1267

Glidden, Mr. Cline A., Jr., 1271

Martin, Mr. Lyndon L., 1269

McCarthy, Hon. George A., 1268

McField, Hon. Dr. Frank S., 1269

McLaughlin, Mr. Alden M., Jr., 1267

McLean, Hon. Gilbert A., 1266

McLean, Mr. V. Arden, 1268

O'Connor-Connolly, Mrs. Julianna Y., 1271
 Pierson, Hon. Linford A., 1272
 Ryan, Hon. James M., 1266

Walton, Hon. A. Joel:

Companies (A) (Fees) Bill, 2001, 555-558; 570-572
 Development and Planning (A) (Infrastructure Fund) Bill, 2001, 555-558; 570-572
 Government Fees (A) (Increased Fees) Bill, 2001, 555-558; 570-572
 Insurance Law (1999 Revision) Insurance (Variation of Fees) Regulations 2001 (GM 5/01), 578, 579
 Land Holding Companies Share Transfer Tax (A) (Variation of Tax) Bill, 2001, 555-558; 570-572
 Loan Bill, 2001, 521, 532
 Monetary Authority (A) (Fees) Bill, 2001, 965
 Pension Deductions (PMM 17/01), 795-797
 Public Health (A) Bill, 2001, 965-966, 972-973
 Report of the Standing Finance Committee, 519
 Stamp Duty (A) Bill, 2001, 555-558; 555-558; 570-572
 Traffic (Variation of Fees) Regulations 2001, 553
 Travel (Departure Tax and environmental Protection Fee) (A) (Variation of Fees) Bill, 2001, 555-558; 570-572

Young People (Statement made by Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.), 693

| MEETING         | NUMBER OF SITTINGS | DATES                                     | PAGES IN OFFICIAL REPORT | VOLUME |
|-----------------|--------------------|-------------------------------------------|--------------------------|--------|
| Special Meeting | 1                  | 12 February 2001                          | 1—24                     | 1      |
| First Meeting   | 26                 | 9 March to25 May 2001                 | 25—582                   | 1      |
| Second Meeting  | 21                 | 20 June to25 July 2001                | 583—984                  | 1      |
| Third Meeting   | 12                 | 5 to 28 September2001                 | 985—1230                 | 2      |
| Fourth Meeting  | 1                  | 8 November 2001                           | 1231—1264                | 2      |
| Fifth Meeting   | 15                 | 14 November 2001to14 January 2002 | 1265—1634                | 2      |

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
MONDAY
12 FEBRUARY, 2001
10.07 AM
Special Meeting

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth, as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power, and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Legislative Assembly is in session.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

HOUSE VISITORS

The Speaker: We have no apologies this morning.

I would like to welcome prospective participants in the Youth Parliament from Cayman Prep School, Faulkner Christian Academy, George Hicks High School and Wesleyan Christian Academy. We sincerely hope that you will gain something from the parliamentary proceedings today. We wish you good luck in your event and may God's blessings go to each of you.

Honourable Members, I welcome each of you this morning to this Special Meeting of the Legislative Assembly. Certainly, we are making history. I feel it is my responsibility to call upon each and every Member to be at his/her very best parliamentary procedure. I would like in particular to call to your attention Erskine May, 22nd Edition, pages 378, 379, 393 and 756 which clearly outline relevance and also tedious repetition. So, as we proceed in the debate I would ask each one to have this in mind.

Item number one on today's Order Paper, Government Business, Government Motion No.4/2001. This meeting has been called to deal specifically with this Motion—Government Motion No. 4/2001; there will be no additions.

Government Motion No. 4/2001, Advance Expenditure prior to the Appropriation Bill 2001. The Honourable Third Official Member.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 4/2001

ADVANCE EXPENDITURE PRIOR TO THE
APPROPRIATION BILL 2001

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, thank you very much.

Before I move Government Motion No. 4/2001 and read the preamble, I would just crave your indulgence and the indulgence of Honourable Members to comment as to why this route is being taken as against going through Finance Committee by way of supplementary expenditure.

Mr. Speaker, as you have correctly pointed out in the letter that you sent around to Honourable Members informing each and every one concerning this special meeting under the provisions of sections 8(1) and 9 of the Public Finance and Audit Law, I think it is important to note that what we have in front of us today is a resolution. Before looking at the specifics of section 8(1), if we were to look at section 67(1)(a) and (b), which provide for supplementary estimates to be submitted to Finance Committee, these [supplementary estimates] are put forward on the assumption that the Appropriation Bill would have been passed.

If you will permit me, Mr. Speaker, I will read the following from the Public Finance and Audit Law, section 67(1):

“If a member of government presents a paper setting out the financial requirements of any proposal –

“(a)for expenditure incurred or likely to be incurred in the course of the current financial year, either in respect of a service or of several services for which no provision has been made in the estimates for that year, or in respect of further financial provision beyond the total sum already sanctioned for a particular head or subhead, or for expenditure incurred in the course of a previous financial year in excess of the total sum sanctioned for a particular head or subhead by the estimates, or supplementary estimates for that year that paper shall stand referred to Finance Committee.”

So, it is quite evident, Mr. Speaker, when a meeting of Finance Committee is held, the assumption is made that it is either to deal with the Appropriation Bill or the Appropriation Bill would have already been dealt with so additional sums are being sought.

When we go to section 8(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law, it reads, “The Legislative Assembly may in advance of an Appropriation Law by resolution or to raise expenditure for services of the government in respect of a financial year to be charged on revenue in accordance with this law and subject to such limitation and conditions as may be specified in the resolution.”

So, absent a Finance Committee agenda, Mr. Speaker, what is allowed for in law prior to the Appropriation Bill is for the necessary authorisation for expenditure to be sought through the passing of a resolution in this Honourable House.

There is a further provision when we look at section 22 of the Public Finance and Audit Law. If you will permit me again, I will just read section 22(1)(b).

The Speaker: Please continue.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Which reads, “Subject to subsections (2) and (4) where the Financial Secretary is satisfied that due to exceptional circumstances an urgent need has arisen for payment to meet expenditure which cannot be deferred without detriment to the public interest, he may by contingency warrant under his hand authorise the Accountant General to pay from public monies an advance of monies to meet that need.”

Quite obviously, Mr. Speaker, this allows for the Government to use contingency warrants in order to provide the necessary authorisation prior to the Appropriation Bill being brought. But, Mr. Speaker, the Government took the view that given the materiality of the amount it would be best if this was dealt with by way of debate in this Honourable House. This debate would come through the bringing of this resolution whereby Honourable Members would be apprised in terms of the need of the Government to go over and above Government Motion No. 3 which was passed in November, as approval is being sought for approximately $19 million.

So, this is the reason why Government took the view that it would be within the interest of the country as a whole and for the benefit of Honourable Members of this Legislative Assembly to go the route as provided for under section 8(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law to introduce this resolution.

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I will now read the—

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member would you move the Motion first please?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I will now move the Motion.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 4/2001 has been duly moved. Does the Honourable Member wish to speak to it? The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the narrative of the Motion reads:

“WHEREAS Government Motion No. 03/00 advanced to the Government the sum of $69,521,439 to meet needs incurred by the Government prior to the passing of the Appropriation Law;

“AND WHEREAS a further sum of $18,780,993 is required to continue the operation of Government:

“BE IT RESOLVED that this House, acting in accordance with the provisions of section 8(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law, (1997 Revision), in advance of an Appropriation Law, authorises further expenditure of Ci$18,780,993 for the services of the Government in respect of the 2001 financial year, the sum to be charged on revenues in accordance with the Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision) and to be used for the purposes detailed in the following schedule.” (For Schedule, see Appendix)

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member your Motion has been duly moved, do you wish to speak to the Motion?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, thank you very much.

Mr. Speaker, several Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly wrote to the Financial Secretary last week asking for further details in support of the Motion. These Honourable Members are: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the Third Elected Member for George Town, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

In response, the Honourable Kurt Tibbetts, Leader of Government Business, responded to this memorandum that was sent to the Financial Secretary and provided further details being sought by these Honourable Members.

In his memorandum, he pointed out that the amount of approximately $19 million covers essentially five items:

- Retroactive cost of living adjustment for the period of January through October [2000] and for the period, January through March 2001 for approximately $7.83 million.
- Bills brought forward as at the beginning of the year (what remains out of those bills), an additional sum of $300,000 is being sought to cover these outstanding bills.
- An additional amount of approximately $3.46 million subsidy for Cayman Airways; and
- $1.18 million for seamen's grants and $6.01 million for capital development expenditure to cover contractually committed; and
- Continuing projects from Year 2000 and also certain projects that are to be put out to tender during the course of the current year.

It can be shown that the details of recurrent expenditure (as I have read in the Motion itself) was submitted to Honourable Members of this House. There is an analysis sheet and the caption of it reads, "Explanatory notes to Government Motion No. 4." It sets out the details of the outstanding bills amounting to $292,136. It sets out, again, the cost of living [adjustment] - it gives the full breakdown of the $7,838,769.

It also shows the breakdown under Others of two sums—one, for $1,180,000 for the Ministry of Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Culture. This sum is to cover the Seamen's grants. Also, the sum for Cayman Airways under the Ministry of Planning is shown. So, when we take these two amounts other than provisions to cover outstanding bills, cost of living—these two amounts total $4,637,875. So, if Honourable Members have details of this information, as was circulated, it can be clear that these three amounts achieve a total of $12,768,780.

Mr. Speaker, there is another document that has been presented and this provides the breakdown by heads and subheads. This is in accordance with section 8(2) of the Public Finance and Audit Law, which reads, "Expenditure charged on revenue pursuant to our resolution under this section shall be ar- anged in accordance with the heads and subheads shown in the estimates of expenditure laid under section 6. And this law shall for the purposes of this subsection and subject to such conditions and limitations as may be specified in the resolutions apply to such estimates as though they were the approved estimates of expenditure."

So, in light of the fact that the resolution itself sets out the amounts in just broad sums or just gives the overall total against each head, it was felt that it would be necessary and consistent with the provisions of section 8(2) of the Public Finance and Audit Law in order to provide this breakdown by heads and subheads. It is very clear that from the narrative as set out in the document itself that essentially most of the details can be seen as applying to the cost of living adjustment.

There is a discrepancy in the document and I will ask Honourable Members to take note of this. The reference to the cost of living adjustment only makes reference to the period, January through October 2000. What has been omitted is the period, January through 31 March 2001. So, I will apologise to Honourable Members for the absence of those details.

Honourable Members will recall that when Government Motion No. 3/2000 was passed, the amount sought for under the capital provision was $2.5 million. But as pointed out, there are contractual obligations for approximately $8.3 million and details of this information have been provided on a project by project basis. For example, of the $2.5 million approved in November, the sum of $1,858,850 was allocated to public buildings under Head 6201. But it can be seen from the details provided to Honourable Members that of the additional sum of $6 million being sought, $4,563,325 relate to the Public Building projects. [Pause]

Mr. Speaker, I made an error in giving the details. I apologise to you and Members, and I will just go over it once more. Of the $2.5 million approved under Government Motion No. 3/2000, as shown in the Schedule, $1,858,850 was allocated to public buildings. It can be seen from the additional sum of $6 million being sought, a further sum of $2,704,475 will be allocated against public buildings, bringing the overall total for the interim period to a sum of $4,563,335.

Mr. Speaker, the details have been set out against each project item in the Schedule itself, and as Honourable Members can see, it is quite lengthy.

Under Subhead for Roads, $250,000 was allocated out of the sum of $2.5 million approved in November. A further sum of $2,517,958 will be allocated out of this new sum of $6 million being approved, bringing the overall total to be approved in the interim under these two Motions to a value of $2,767,958.

Under Cultural Facilities, of the $2.5 million, $98,400 was allocated against that Head. A further sum of $108,760 is to be allocated bringing the total to $207,160.

Under Cemeteries, the sum of $4,000 was allocated under the original Motion, [Government Motion] No. 3/2000. From this Motion a further sum of $1,000 is to be allocated bringing the value of allocations from these two Motions to $5,000.

Under Harbours and Docks, the sum of $3,500 was allocated out of $2.5 million. No further allocation is being sought against this Head in the interim.

Under Purchase of Lands, $166,000 was allocated. A further sum of $427,020 is to be allocated bringing the total allocation from these two Motions to $593,020.

Landfill Development, no allocation was made from the original Motion of $2.5 million, therefore $15,000 out of this sum of $6 million plus will be allocated.

Under Healthcare Facilities, a sum of $100,000 was allocated from the $2.5 million originally approved. A total of $110,000 is to be allocated. This can be seen by taking the figure of $100,000 to the furthest right column.

Under Agricultural Development, a sum of $4,000 was allocated out of the $2.5 million originally approved. No further allocation will be made from Motion No. 4.

Under Projects Development, Design and Costing, of the $2.5 million approved in November, $15,250 was allocated. A further $1,000 will be allocated from the approval against this Motion bringing the overall total to $16,250.

So, when we take the $2.5 million that was approved under [Government] Motion 3/2000 and expenditure, requiring supplementary approval of $5,785,213 for new projects to be financed (prior to the Appropriation Bill being presented), and also two contracts to be awarded to the value of $227,000—when we take this $227,000 plus the $5,785,213 this takes us back to the overall value of $6,012,213 as set out in summary in the Motion itself.

So when we take that and add this provision of $6,012,213 to the sum of $2.5 million that was approved under [Government] Motion No. 3 in November of last year (2000) this brings us to an overall total of $8,285,213 to be available for capital expenditure.

As I pointed out, Mr. Speaker, I trust that Members would have had the opportunity to peruse the details of the additional information that would have been provided. I do trust that the additional information as provided would have allowed for Members to see in detail the breakdown of the sums for recurrent and capital expenditure.

I thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The floor is open to debate?

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would first like to add that it is a great pleasure to find myself here in the Parliament with you as Speaker. Given our lifetime relationship, this is especially significant and I do hope that this will continue for the duration of the four years.

Now the matter of the proposed Motion that is before this House to approve an additional $19 million, an advance appropriation on to the $69 million approved in December: First, I want to thank the Government for choosing this route of bringing it to the Legislative Assembly rather than the use of contingency warrants. I think that this is a step in the right direction and I hope it is a trend that will continue through the four years.

In December, I stated that the use of contingency warrants was a weakness in the system and I wholeheartedly believe that. I think that this is the only democratic way to allocate the funds of the people, not using contingency warrants and bringing it back to the Parliament for ratification, as has been the trend in the past. I hope that this action will be formalised during the revision of the Public Finance and Audit Law and an amendment made to disallow the use of contingency warrants.

Mr. Speaker, this is quite an unusual occasion. Normally, advanced appropriation is set at the amount of the first quarter expenditure for the year before. Governments in the past have had to make do, although it has been difficult, and the first quarter is normally characterised as being one that is very tight on the fiscal management of the country.

As I stated in December, I was very concerned over the state of our economy and, be that, I am not prepared to support any tightening of fiscal responsibility at the moment. So, in that regard I am willing to support this $19 million that would allow the Government to continue its operation, continue its capital projects such as road works and other expenditures. At this time we cannot afford for any component or for the gross domestic product to be slowed down.

Mr. Speaker, I note with interest that 42% of approximately $19 million has been brought to this House today and relates to the retroactive pay that is owed to the civil servants. I want to draw the Members' attention to the fact that in December a Motion was brought to this House and seconded by the Third Elected Member for George Town, emanating from an earlier Motion brought by the First Elected Member from Cayman Brac. The Motion was quite straightforward and simple. It read:

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Government consider moving a motion to appropriate such amount of money as is required to meet the retroactive pay for the agreed cost of living to the civil service giving the date of which such payment will be made.”

The key word is for the Government to appropriate the money that they have committed to. I am of the view that this retroactive pay, as the Third Official Member pointed out, represents the most significant part of this meeting here today. If this Motion had been accepted in December we would not be here today deliberating over $19 million.

This Motion was put to a vote and a decision called. Seven Members of this Honourable House voted no, I read from the Hansards: Honourable Linford A. Pierson, Honourable D. Kurt Tibbetts, Honourable Edna Moyle, Honourable Roy Bodden, Mr. Rolston Anglin, Captain Eugene Ebanks and Mr. Alden McLaughlin. Absent from the vote was the Honourable McKeeva Bush and an abstention was Mr. Cline Glidden.

I do believe the reason that this very fair and sensible Motion was defeated, was simply because it was brought by what is now the default Opposition of the House. I do believe that if the Government had then reviewed the Motion and appropriated the amount as requested, we would have saved our taxpayers money. I read from the Hansard here, part of the debate on this very fair and sensible Motion. A quotation from the Second Elected Member for George Town, “Mr. Chairman forgive me for viewing what has transpired this morning as a monumental waste of time and taxpayers’ money.”

I am of the strong view that calling a special sitting of the Legislative Assembly and having us here today to appropriate this amount is a greater waste of time and taxpayer’s money. We could have dealt with it in December when the Motion was brought. I beg of this Honourable House that we put political barriers aside and vote according to what is good for the country: not simply opposition for the sake of opposition

This Member of the default Opposition makes a commitment to you here today, Mr. Speaker and to the Members of Executive Council, that when the Government of the day brings a Motion that has merit to benefit the people of these Islands, I will strongly support it. But I, as a Member of the people’s opposition, will strongly oppose and scrutinise any Motion that comes here that I view as unhealthy. I ask of the Government and every Member of this Honourable House to take a similar view.

A Motion such as the one brought in December could have only saved the country money, could have given our civil servants a formal commitment, but it was opposed simply for the sake of opposition.

Mr. Speaker, if that Motion had been passed, it would have demonstrated that we had a government that was operating in a proactive mode—approving and appropriating the amounts of money at the time of making the commitment—rather than in this crisis mode where today we have to approve money that we are hoping to pay next week, Thursday. I do not think it is a good trend to start.

It would have also demonstrated that the Government was in a mode of co-operating with all individuals putting aside political barriers and doing what was right for the country. I bring this point out just to highlight the need for us to all work together and I will demonstrate my commitment to supporting the Government when they are bringing something good by voting on the Motion that is at hand here today.

I also note with interest that the sum for retroactive pay is $7.83 million. I notice that it covers not only January to October 2000—because we know that the civil servants’ pay increased from November and the 4.8% was included—but it also includes a period of January to March 2001. I understand that to be that the January payroll on January 22nd would have included the 4.8% without money being appropriated for it. So, if my understanding of that is correct we are simply here to ratify that particular component. I bring this out just for clarity, and hope that it will be responded to, to allow for clarity in my mind before the vote is cast.

I also think an important lesson can be learned here, Mr. Speaker. The Public Finance and Audit Law, Part III, Control and Management, section 11, “The Financial Secretary shall subject to this and any other law have the management of the finances of the Government and the supervision control and direction of all matters relating to the financial affairs of the Government.” It is important that all governments, all political branches make the separation between the political arm of government and the official arm of government.

As one who has had the pleasure and the privilege to work for and along side the Third Official Member, and have great respect for his ability to conduct the full ambit of his responsibility as covered under the Public Finance and Audit Law, I urge the Government not to make the mistake of the past of getting involved too deeply with the finances of the country. The reporting and the dealing with the financial affairs of the country is a responsibility that our Constitution and our Public Finance and Audit Law places in an official Member responsible—the Third Official Member.

Our forefathers, who were the authors of the Constitution and wrote these laws, saw the need to have the finances of the Government transcend beyond politics. They could go beyond one elected government onto the next elected government. If that individual is allowed to carry out his responsibility, we would not be in a situation when a new government is elected that certain things are just being revealed—these unpaid bills are being put forward. The Financial Secretary would be the same individual from the past government who is transcending into the new government and would be responsible and accountable for such finances.

I see grave indications that worry me that the Government of the day is conducting a similar path. I am one who strongly believes in education, and I strongly believe in the Minister of Education who at the last sitting stated that we should study the path and learn from it.

I see that there have been numerous debates published in the local press as to the financial affairs of the Government. But rather than these issues being dealt with by the person who is responsible and who knows the true picture, they are being dealt with by a political branch. Even the response to the letter that we wrote to the Government, we addressed to the Financial Secretary. Those of us who wrote were: the Third Elected Member for George Town, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town. He—the Financial Secretary—is the individual who is responsible for the finances of this country.

The letter simply asked for further details to a Motion that he was sponsoring in his capacity as the Third Official Member responsible for the finances of this country. I am amazed that the response did not come from the individual responsible, it came, not even from the Leader of Government Business in his capacity but it came from the Minister for Planning, Communications and Works. That is indicating to me that we are heading down the same path where politics is getting involved into the financial control of the country's coffers. That causes me concern and I bring it to the attention of each and every Member of this Honourable House.

The system that we have where the official Member is responsible for the finances is a system that has worked. It is a system that has proven itself over time but it must be given its ability to work on its own without political interference.

Mr. Speaker, the Motion as I see it here today is straightforward and one that I encourage all Members of this Honourable House to approve because it will ensure that the civil servants get their money this Thursday and next pay-day in March as has been committed. I think, however, that the method used to get to this point had to be brought to the attention of the public and to each Member's attention here, so that we can work as a Parliament together to ensure that the Parliament is perceived not only locally but internationally as a Parliament that is proactive in its action and not reactive as this special sitting here illustrates today.

Mr. Speaker, again I give the Government my commitment to support this Motion when it goes to the vote. Thank you very much.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, please allow me to congratulate you and your Maker that you are in such good health and here with us today. As I said when we parted in the last House, it was a pleasure for me to work with you, and I am happy to have you here today.

Mr. Speaker, if there comes a point where you feel that relevancy is not being observed by me, please, it is your authority, and I shall not resist.

The Speaker: I shall do.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, the reason why I must be aware of all of these things, of course, is because I would not like to cast any kind of doubt on my ability to be the Deputy Speaker in this Legislative Assembly.

I would like to just briefly create a framework for my debate because I think it is important. As you know I always like to show how things are interconnected and if you lose a part of the puzzle, you will miss the bigger picture which should, of course, be what is important.

The democratic process, which is the reason why I am able to stand on this side and make my comments, is a process that must not just be observed by what might be termed the Opposition. It should also be observed by what is the Government. I find it strange when I sign my name to a letter with regards this Motion seeking this advance appropriation, and send this letter off to the Financial Secretary, that when I read before even doing so the Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision), section 11, “The Financial Secretary shall subject to this and any other law have the management of the finances of the government and the supervision control and direction of all matters relating to the financial affairs of the government.”

Why then do I find that my queries and the queries of other Members with regards to the need to have more of an in-depth explanation to the request is being answered by the Minister for Planning, Communication and Works? I believe that there is a difference between the Financial Secretary and a Minister of Planning, Communications and Works. I should hope that finances are not just divided from Planning, Communications and Works because it is dealing with different areas but also we have different people dealing with these issues.

I am saying this because of the information which deals with the proposed Motion which has given us further details which is a part of what it is I am trying to mention here today.

The Speaker: Could I just interrupt you for a short moment?

I would the attention to all honourable Members that under Standing Order 9(1), it says, “If, during an adjournment of the House, it is represented by the government to the Presiding Officer that the public interest requires that the House should meet . . .” I direct that this Honourable House should meet on instructions from the Government which is the Leader of Government Business. That is where my position of saying government - what is done within the financial sector is but my prerogative was to have the Leader of Government Business sign, which I then in turn directed that this special session be called.

Please continue.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Thank you very much for that useful information and I think the general public will certainly benefit from it immensely.

I understand that the Government has the right to call a special meeting or, at least, ask the Speaker to call a special meeting and that the Speaker calls the special meeting under the relevant standing orders. We have basically here the question of whether or not in the process of bringing this Motion to the Legislative Assembly which is the Government's part, preparing the Motion, having a particular approach to presenting the Motion to the House, and a way of defending the response of the persons involved in the debate . . . The total process is that we in voting money want to make sure that the government that is asking for this money is a responsible government. It can only be a responsible government if the government is acting according to the Constitution, which means that each Member is acting within his ambit.

The Financial Secretary is charged with issues of finance. This is my second term here and I don't believe that I have ever before had an issue of finance in any correspondence or verbally that I have addressed that I have had answered than any one other than the Financial Secretary. So, what I am saying is that this is a very strange occurrence—not only because a special meeting is being called at this time before the March state opening. We understand the relevant standing orders under which the Government can ask the presiding officer to call this meeting but the fact is, as my good friend, the Second Elected Member from Cayman Brac stated, we brought a Motion on 8th December 2000, which would have allowed the Government to appropriate the money which was necessary to have settled the cost of living adjustments with the civil servants.

My understanding therefore is that in government not doing this and in government asking that a special meeting be called and then we asking the Government for additional information it is almost as if someone says, 'Well, I am in control here. Let me answer them—the opposition, the troublemakers, the ones that are coming here to oppose for opposition sake'. How quickly people forget, Mr. Speaker! How quickly they forget!

One thing that I am happy of is that we have a special meeting because some people I would not even see anymore if we did not have these special meetings. It is funny how people can crawl away and disappear as if the running of the country has only to do with the management of their portfolios. A significant [number] of the people elected by the people of these Cayman Islands are on this particular side. Now, I don't know about those with the little political connections but I can tell you, I am the outsider here in George Town. So the only way that I have to communicate with certain people is when they come down here. So I best say what I have to say today because otherwise I might not have a chance again until we open.

Mr. Speaker, I have no qualms with regard to voting this amount of money. As a matter of fact if the procedures had been followed correctly I would not even have a reason to speak—not just to be here. Mr. Speaker, why would I have a reason to speak? They are asking for the advance, for the adjustment. They are asking for the seamen, they are asking for Cayman Airways. Wow!

I cannot make a big thing because we are still waiting until we get the report and so in the meantime the airline must continue to function. There is nothing that I can actually make a big thing about here today except the way the Leader of Government Business has addressed us in this memorandum.

I see here where he talks about . . . and if you talk about wasting time, we would not have to be here if they had not brought us here in the first place. So, if I just waste a little bit more time by saying how he writes this to the "Second Elected Member from Bodden Town," the "First Elected Member from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman," the "Third Elected Member from Bodden Town" and the "Third Elected Member from George Town." To him, in correspondence, I am Dr. Frank McField, MLA. In this House I am referred to as the "Third Elected Member [for George Town]" but in no case has any Member of Government written to me as the Third or Second Elected Member for any district. It is unusual.

So, if we are going to be changing the procedure now because we have a new government, then we want to know . . . well, we have the same thing about the Leader of Government Business and Deputy Leader of Government Business. I do not see anything in the Constitution that allows us to be talking and using these labels and titles. So, it looks like not only do we have a new government: we have a new government that is creating a new constitutional arrangement. They are arranging the Financial Secretary's portfolio in the Ministry of Planning, Communication and Works. They are moving everything around.

So, let us—

[Inaudible comment]

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Minister for Tourism, I am quite sure that Mr. Speaker realises that I am off the point. I have made my point. I hope, Mr. Minister of Tourism, that our day has been a little bit more humorous as a result of my speaking.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Oh, yes sir!

Dr. Frank S. McField: I believe that you should get the amount of money you came here for and, Mr.

Speaker, when the time comes I have no problem with voting for it. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The floor is open for debate does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) This is my last call. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause)

The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Good morning, Mr. Speaker.

I have listened with some degree of incredulity (and perhaps it is because of my newness to this place) at the grandstanding and gamesmanship employed in the affairs of this country.

I thought that Members of this House would have commended the Government for finally—for the first time that I am aware of—taking responsibility for the fiscal affairs of this country and not pretending that it really is a responsibility of the Financial Secretary. It is his duty to properly manage and supervise the fiscal affairs of this country, but it is certainly not his duty, nor do I believe that he pretends that it is, to set fiscal policy. That is the responsibility of the political directorate—one that I am pleased to see the Government of the day prepared to assume.

I have listened carefully to what the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman had to say, but his proposition, and Dr. Frank's as well—

The Speaker: Please refer to him by his district.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Sorry, Mr. Speaker, but the Third Elected Member for George Town had complained so bitterly just now about being called “the Third Elected Member” that I made a slip. I am sorry, Mr. Speaker.

[Members' laughter]

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: To say that what is being done is to confuse the role of the Financial Secretary with that of the elected Members of Executive Council is to ignore the concept of collective responsibility. I am pleased that we finally have a Leader of Government Business who is prepared to assume the leadership role and not afraid to append his signature to a document which sets out the policy of the Government.

I believe that had any Member of this government come to any of us on 9th March and told us that they had continued the process of signing contingency warrants to spend the country's money, even for the most necessary matters, we would have all complained bitterly about that abuse. I know that I certainly would have done so.

While this meeting may be somewhat unusual, I am pleased to see that I am not going to be asked in Finance Committee in April to approve sums which have already been spent, and for which Members of Finance Committee would be asked to simply rubber stamp. I am pleased that we have the opportunity to debate the rightness, or otherwise, of expenditures being proposed, and I am also delighted that even the most vocal Members of the default Opposition (as the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has named them) are able to support the sums Government is asking us to appropriate.

I know that the waters of reform are somewhat difficult for Members to navigate. Any change is always resisted. But I believe all of us, including Members of the default Opposition, campaigned and convinced the electorate that what this country really needed was change. And one of the main areas of change to which we all committed was fiscal reform. I am pleased that the Government has sought to effect that reform right from the beginning, not to continue the abuse of contingency warrants but, if necessary, as was the case here today, to bring to this House a Motion open to debate in respect of each and every item for which expenditure is required.

I welcome that and I commend that Motion and that approach to all Honourable Members of this House. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The floor is open for debate does any other Member wish to speak? I would ask any other Member, if you wish to speak, please, I cannot hold off too long. (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Mr. Speaker, I would like to tell you how good it is to see you in the Chair and to see you in good health. I know we all wished you that last time we were here.

In regard to Government Motion No. 4/2001, it seems to me, being a first-time Member here in this House, that sometimes the debate can be off the topic and can often be carried out in manners that are not in the true spirit of responsible representation. I wish to remind Members (and those who may come behind me to speak) that we do have—

The Speaker: Please direct your debate to the Chair.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: —that we do have young aspiring parliamentarians in the gallery and as such our debate on this Motion should be relevant, to the point and concise.

In going through the details of the Motion at hand, as an elected representative for the district of West Bay, there would be certain items that we should speak to. After all, that is what the debate on the Motion is all about. I think, as an elected representative, it is my duty to do so.

There are two items that particularly concern me as a legislator. The first is the amount being requested for the Cayman Airways subsidy. I know there is an ongoing review of the airline. However, it would be useful if all Members actually knew the status of the review, and if Members were to think about the items they are being asked to vote on.

I will support this Motion because the business of the country must go on. However, it is my duty to ensure that in my contribution that I speak to the specifics of the Motion itself. Let me state clearly that I do not have any particular axe to grind either for or against Cayman Airways. It would be useful, however, for all of us here to enjoy the privilege of knowing what the course of the airline will be in the future. We need to know what the current state of the airline is and why it is that we are in the height of the busy season and all we have to do is open the Caymanian Compass and see coloured ads with Cayman Airways having seat sales at this time. The financial affairs of this country are what will make or break us. If we do not have money to spend on the important matters, how can we truly build an effective and productive Caymanian society?

The other item I noted was the Seamen's Ex gratia Pension. I am sure that every Member of this House, and the public, will recognise that the seamen played an integral role in our being here today. I think we all would say that it is fair that amounts due under a prior commitment be paid. I would also like to add that most of us in the community thought that we were talking about ex gratia pensions to Caymanians who left this island many years ago to make a living at sea, and sent monies home to build this country.

However, as one learns more and more about certain goings-on in an election year, one will quickly realise that the rush to obtain votes sees no end. And the finances of this country will be used directly to this end. I am concerned as a legislator to have learned that there is no means test for the ex gratia payment, and that "Caymanian" was not defined.

Mr. Speaker, the former point is outrageous in a time when everyone in Cayman is financially stretched, especially the poor citizens of this country. How could it be that money is spent and no consideration is made to the financial status of ex-seamen? I had the privilege of meeting one the other day who said to me, 'Rolston, I will not apply for the ex gratia pension because my conscience would not allow me. Yes, I went to sea. However, I am now in a position that I do not need the money. Therefore, I will not apply for it.'

In regard to the latter point, that is not defining what "Caymanian" is, I would term this downright rascality in the rush for votes. Let us use an example: How can we say that a man could go to sea in any country—name a country, Panama, Japan—move to these islands, marry a Caymanian, acquire Caymanian status and apply for the ex gratia pension? I think that the community of Cayman is greatly disappointed with this turn of events. After all, how can we say that a person who went to sea in another country to help build that other country, can now be a qualifying Caymanian (that is, by way of status) and receive the ex gratia pension? This pension was intended for the men who left this island, and left their families to help build this country.

As I said earlier, I will vote in support of this Motion. However, I was elected here to represent the people of the Cayman Islands, in particular the district of West Bay. So, when seamen from our country and from my district take the time out of their day to come to my office to sit down and speak to me in regard to their great concern that men who did not go to sea to build this country are receiving the ex gratia payment, that is very disappointing to me, as a young, first-time parliamentarian. It is very disappointing that this sort of ploy is employed in this country to garner votes.

After all, it is fair to say that those particular men who would have served another country, and helped build another country by going to sea while there, having obtained Caymanian status can vote in these islands. I would just like to also add that Finance Committee votes and approves the monies of this country. The Honourable Third Official Member carries out fiscal responsibility and directs it, but the people of West Bay sent me here to vote on matters of financial affairs, to vote on the financial priorities of this country. The last time I checked I was a politician, and I am from the political arm. I certainly would not support any move, as was insinuated earlier, to have the complete financial control of this country be reserved to the Third Official Member. It is our right and our duty to debate the financial affairs of this country.

To say that 42 per cent of the current amount being requested would have prevented us from being here, again seems a bit absurd. What about the other 58 per cent? To get up in this Honourable House and not speak to the details of the Motion is disappointing. I am sure that the young aspiring politicians in the wings and those on the radio would have been equally disappointed, as I was. I got up to speak to the Motion. I spoke to the two matters that were of particular concern to me.

Mr. Speaker, we must afford this country the highest standard of governance, afford every person who voted for us, and even those who did not; in other words, every citizen of this country we must afford the highest level of debate. We must have relevance, we must speak to the Motions, not get up to cry like babies simply for the sake of crying.

Mr. Speaker, I cannot speak to who was here prior to November, but I am here to speak to Motions. I spoke to the Motion. Two of the three speakers prior to me did not seem to speak to this Motion. I am sure that the people of these islands are listening as they have never listened before.

I would just like to close by saying that it should be philosophical differences that cause us to be Opposition Members, not a mad rush for power!

[Inaudible interjections]

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Not a mad rush for power, and once not getting it we declare ourselves Opposition. Thank you.

The Speaker: The floor is open for debate, does any Member wish to speak? The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I too wish to say that it is unusual . . . I think it is the first time that the Legislature has ever been called into this special session to do what it has been asked to do—that is approve an additional sum of approximately $19 million in an advance appropriation against the 2001 budget.

I tend to agree with the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and previous speakers who say that it is true that the main rush is to find the money to pay the civil servants their cost of living increase. Had this matter been dealt with, as it could have been dealt with in December, we would not be here now.

I also think that it is very necessary when this government (and it will be there for the next four years unless something strange happens) puts forth monies for any given quarter, or any budgeting, that they ensure what the correct amounts are and put them forward so that we can deal with them in a proper fashion all at one time.

Various speakers have spoken about the role of the Financial Secretary. Indeed, it is a very important one. The Financial Secretary, or the person charged with the finances of the country, happens to be a civil servant playing a dual role—that of civil servant and also an elected representative—which he is not. He has to play a political role and an administrative role. But I too signed the letter to the Honourable Third Official Member, the Financial Secretary, on Thursday asking him for information we did not have when we were summoned by the Clerk to be here today for this meeting.

We wrote to him because he is the person responsible for the finances, and we would naturally assume that he had the details. Just for the record, what we received was a memorandum signed by the First Elected Member for George Town, Minister of Planning, Communications and Works. But the caption on the letter is “Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development.” That tends to make the situation confusing.

Whether we like it or not, colonialism as it exists in the Cayman Islands says that the Third Official Member is the person responsible for finances. It is true that we as elected Members vote the sums that come before us. But the actual day-to-day management of the finances of the Cayman Islands is the charge of the Financial Secretary. Unless we elected Members have the courage to do something about the Constitution legally it will continue that way.

I, for one, certainly look forward to the talked about constitutional review where we can deal with matters such as this. I think the role of the Financial Secretary can continue to be the role of the Financial Secretary, but we can have a Minister of Finance who will deal with the policy matters to come and sit in the Legislative Assembly like it is in all of the other dependent territories. I would not swear to that, but I know it is possible to do that without raising what some persons call the “independence” bogeyman from his grave.

Mr. Speaker, one thing that concerns me since the present Government has taken office, is that I am hearing too often that the country is broke, the Government is bankrupt. I have been approached by various persons employed at Public Works, for example, who have said ‘Look, we have been told there is no money. We cannot carry on the projects we were working with. We are going to be cut back to three or four days. They are not going to pay us because there is no money to do it. We are not going to be paid like the other civil servants who are permanent and pensionable.’

Of course, I told them that is nonsense: once the decision is taken, there will be a cost of living increase and it has to be for all Government employees. We the “default Opposition”, tried to do something about that way back in December.

I think that the terminology used by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman states how we all came about. But I am very proud of being in the position that I am because when the dice was being cast, I believe that those of us who have now been effectively placed in the Opposition, dealt a fair hand and there were a few cards up other sleeves. But I have no problem whatsoever being in the role of opposition, neither do the other Members I think.

I think that we need to stop talking about the country being broke. If the country were broke, the Ministers who are saying it through their political allies would be like the hoteliers—when the hotel is empty, they tell you it is full. Because the country is not broke, they figure they can sing that song. My argument is that it is not good for the country for us to keep saying that. It will cause a loss of confidence—a certain amount of fear in the people of this country—and it is not good for investors.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to address some areas of the Motion which are asking for payments of certain sums of money. One, is the cost of living adjustment for civil servants: I think it is good management for Government administration to keep a yearly analysis of the changing of the cost of living and be prepared in any budget to put forward what the adjustment should be so that it is not a case where the cost of living adjustment is three or four years behind and attempts being made to catch up. It always seems that the catch up moment comes when the finances are at their lowest ebb. I think that needs to be done.

Also, I believe the time has come for an independent review of the civil service in its entirety, job description, job classification, job evaluation and then arrive at what are the true costs, whether the number of jobs we have are truly necessary, or whether through redistribution of work some duties can be combined with others and one post eliminated. I think the time has come, and is perhaps long past for this to be done.

The civil service has grown to extremely large numbers. There is evidence that it is going to continue to grow. We hear of persons needed for the Monetary Authority. There are persons needed in other support areas. But we have to be absolutely sure that the numbers we have can be justified from a true scientific analysis, proper review of the civil service. I believe that to be most important.

I hope that the bills that were brought forward by the Government from the year 2000 are the last we will hear about between now and March when it is anticipated that the House will be called into normal session. If not, then I seriously question who is handling the finances. Or, is it because there is a duplication of responsibility where finances are concerned that it is causing a problem? I hope when we vote on this money that it will pay those bills that are being advanced into the first quarter of 2001.

I see in two instances in the details that have been given to us, amounts for Cayman Airways. I see $3 million, and I see $457,875 for advertisements. Many of us believe that Cayman Airways is essential to the Cayman Islands. Until someone can prove to me that it is absolutely not necessary, I continue to believe it is. I have always felt that it needs to be managed properly, and I am not convinced that over the years it has had its share of good management.

Mr. Speaker, you will know (as you were a sitting Member at that time) that I moved the Motion that a major study done on Cayman Airways made certain recommendations. But those recommendations were only implemented in a partial manner. I think Cayman Airways continues to be driven more by politics than by the revenue it gets from the various routes. I think that even now, we hear of a study being done by someone capable of doing it, but until now we have not seen that study, nor do we know what is happening to Cayman Airways. I trust that this information will be forthcoming no later than March.

We must note that the Parliament allows Cayman Airways a subsidy of $4 million each year, and they are asking for the $4 million in the first quarter of the year. So, what is to be the case about the other three-quarters yet to come? We must remember that the first quarter is not yet spent. This is a very important area of Government expenditure. We all need the opportunity to reach some conclusion in regard to the continued operation of Cayman Airways and what it will cost the country; whether the country can bear it, and whether the country wants to attempt to bear it. I trust there will be detailed information on it soon.

The area of roads is of concern to me in that when the last government was re-paving the roads throughout the Cayman Islands, it seems as if someone decided to punish Bodden Town with every other road being the glassy-type—and we are still bumping across the old roads. So when I support the Motion for these funds, I hope that one of the areas to receive money for re-paving the roads is Bodden Town. It is one of the longest stretches of road in any district on this Island. It runs from the crossroads at North Side down to Spotts. We must have our share of the hot mix asphalt. So, Mr. Speaker, I hope that the contracts and ongoing works will include that particular project.

The Lighthouse School is necessary for our country. It provides specialised education for special needs children. It seems that it is costing a very large amount. It does not say if the $1.4 million will complete it, or if there will be more money in the budget to complete this project. I imagine that we would all like to know if this money represents the last of the funds necessary.

I hope that the capital works, which include the road building, will be done speedily. I have observed the cost of work on various government buildings, and for the future I trust that contracts will be negotiated in a manner that will give us the best value for money and that projects finish on time and that we do not pay $1 million for four classrooms as has been done in the past.

Education is ultra important to the Cayman Islands and I trust that the budget coming forward in another month or so will show in the greatest detail how the money is to be spent in education, both for physical plant and for human resources.

In closing, I look forward to the Financial Secretary giving the answers on matters of finance. According to law it is only he that can be held responsible for it and I trust that in the future and always, when Motions or money bills are sent to legislators for their consideration, that all the details are sent. It is rather humiliating for legislators to have to listen to the radio station to hear the details of a Motion they are asked to debate and approve.

I do not know, for example, if there is still time for us ordinary legislators to put forward monies for the budget. I will be doing so, and I have consulted with one of the Ministers who is a representative from Bodden Town on a few of these issues. I trust that that will not get cut from the Budget which is to come.

Mr. Speaker, I am glad to see you here today, and I look forward to working with you in the future. I thank you.

The Speaker: Honourable Members, it is past the usual time for the morning break, but if it is the wish of the House, I would like to suggest that we continue until 1.00 pm in order that our guests—the students in the gallery—will not be delayed by the break. Is that the wish of the House? [Members' inaudible response]

Thank you, we will continue. The floor is open for debate. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Through you, Mr. Speaker, I would like to welcome all the students in the public gallery this morning. I believe that that is where politics should begin, and that parliamentary procedure should be learned. I trust that they will leave here with much.

In understanding where one must go in life, it is understood that we cannot always look behind. If you do that for too long, you will not see where you are going. Certainly, one must always look behind to see where he came from. In so saying, I would like to congratulate the Government for taking a different approach in spending government and public funds.

In December when we were in Finance Committee, each and everyone in this Honourable House was extremely disappointed (and the Hansards of this House will bear me out) about the manner in which the previous government had used contingency warrants. Today, while it marks an historical moment in the meeting of the Legislative Assembly, it also marks a historical moment in the manner in which I trust Government will operate in the future. I applaud them for doing it in this manner.

I too had concerns about the amount of information I received on Thursday. I was also disappointed to hear it on the radio Thursday evening. I made my disappointment known to the Leader of Government Business in no uncertain terms. I hope this is a lesson in learning for the Government—send all the information up front.

We have heard much this morning. I am going to add to some of that. Particularly, Cayman Airways. For many years this country has seen Cayman Airways given monies to the tune of $3 million or $4 million per year. I notice where this $3 million is up until 31 December 2001. Maybe the Government can indicate whether that is a mistake or not because I know that in previous years we have seen Cayman Airways needing much more than the $3 million being asked for here.

I notice that the narrative from the details of expenditure reads, "Legislative Assembly approval is hereby sought for an advance appropriation in the amount of $3 million to provide funds for Cayman Airways subsidy for the period April to December 2001." Then I see in the famous memorandum of 9 February under bullet (3) that "an additional $3.46 million first quarter 2001 subsidy to Cayman Airways." There may be a mix-up in that.

If it is only for the first quarter, I think Government really needs to work with utmost haste to ensure that the independent audit of Cayman Airways that which is currently ongoing, be completed as soon as possible..

This country has supported Cayman Airways and rightly so, but it certainly has to be managed properly. The country is demanding of Cayman Airways—not only Cayman Airways but particularly Cayman Airways because it has been the focal point for many years—value for money. We need to start operating Cayman Airways as a business and not as a political dumping ground for supporters.

Mr. Speaker, I have every confidence in the individual doing the audit on Cayman Airways, and I look forward to his early report. But I would invite the Government to explain to this Honourable House if this subsidy is really for the first quarter or if it is for April to December.

Another area that concerns me is roads. I notice there is a continuing capital development on roads, in particular the Crewe Road Bypass. But there are many other 'half-finished' roads—in the words of the Second Elected Member for West Bay—that need to be done. Roads that were half-finished just prior to the Election, for those needed votes. In particular, I am talking about the roads around the eastern end of the Island. They need to be completed as soon as possible. While they are nice and black, they are as rough as they were prior to putting that surface on them. I throw that challenge out once again to the Government.

Another area is the Seamen's Ex gratia Pension. I too have some concerns about where this is leading this country. I have had much representation concerning this ex gratia payment. And while I support the ex gratia payment to seamen, it must be done on a means test. We hear rumours of people living overseas who are applying for this ex gratia payment. It was hastily done, in my opinion, and I think it is grossly unfair to this country and the residents (and by residents I mean those who reside here, those who live here year round) to have to pay for someone who has left our shores and resides in another country. While it's nice to recognise our seamen, seniors, indigent, we cannot open our coffers to everybody who lives in America, England, or whatever country they live in.

Not because they went to sea from this country at a very young age should they now be applying for ex gratia payments while residing elsewhere. Those same people, if they wanted to come back to this country to register as electors, have to meet one specific criterion, and that is, under the application for registration as an elector in this country, section 6 says, and I quote, "I have been ordinarily resident in the Cayman Islands since (blank) day of (blank) 19__ or 20__, and during the three years immediately preceding this application I have been absent from the islands for a total of 300 days or less." I would like to see something similar for the ex gratia payment. Everyone cannot hold out his or her hand to the Government of this country.

I would like to come back briefly to Roads and Public Works. I have had much representation from the employees at Public Works in the last month concerning the move to come within General Orders, and that is to move them from a 44 hour week to 40. I wonder how—and the Government may be able to answer this when they reply—the 4.8% is going to factor in to moving Public Works employees from 44 hours down to 40? It is my understanding that as it stands they will be going home at the end of the year with less than they are currently making. While I do not understand everything about it, I would ask that Government responds concerning the 4.8% increase and how it will affect Public Works employees' wages.

As I said in the beginning, I welcome Government's approach to getting approval from this Honourable House on these expenditures. Like previous speakers, I will support this Motion.

In my maiden speech in this Honourable House I made a commitment. I said, and I quote, "And, in anticipation of a challenging term, I expect to work tirelessly with all Members of the Legislative Assembly in the best interest of these beloved islands.

"In the same vein, I will be equally vigilant and unrelenting in my scrutiny of good governance at all levels. It is not my intention to oppose for the sake of opposition, nor will I support frivolous and untenable positions. My mission here is specifically to represent the people of East End and generally to safeguard the well being and success of the Cayman Islands." That goes for the Government Bench and this side of this Honourable House as well.

[Inaudible interjection]

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, the Third Elected Member for George Town would like to be called the "Opposition." That's fine. I believe in any democratic society we need opposition. Opposition is healthy. I will oppose anything the Government brings that in my opinion is not in the best interest of this country. I just wanted to ensure that the Government and every Honourable Member understands that. But I am not going to do it just to say that I oppose.

There were 57 candidates in the recent elections. If memory serves me well, everyone campaigned on the basis of transparency. We cannot campaign on transparency and not practice it. I hope that this is the first move on the part of Government to fulfilling that campaign promise to the populace.

Mr. Speaker, as I conclude, I welcome the approach that Government has taken. I look forward to supporting these monies so that the country can continue to run until the Appropriation Bill is brought to this Honourable House. It would be foolhardy of me to vote against giving civil servants their cost of living increase when in December we had much to say in Finance Committee concerning why it was not given to them. I trust that civil servants will enjoy it after the long wait of over one year. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The floor is open to debate does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) I cannot wait much longer. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As other speakers have said, I welcome you back into the Chamber and I am glad to see how well you are looking.

From the beginning I would like to say that I appreciate the detailed response we received Friday afternoon. As a matter of fact I was in the Public Accounts Committee with some of my colleagues. I say, being part of the past government, that this was quite prompt action. I hope this will continue.

There has been talk and debate about who is responsible for certain actions. I have worked with the Honourable Third Official Member, and I know his dedication. I know that whatever needs to be done for this country he will do. But as alluded to by some speakers, the main emphasis will be placed by the political directorate of Executive Council, that is the elected politicians. The majority of the people in this House feel that is the way it is until otherwise changed.

Mr. Speaker, being at risk of not staying with the Motion—and before I get to a number of points and questions that I would ask the mover to comment on in his winding up—I must say that I think it is high time that people at a very early stage realise that the past government has gone. The time will come when we can no longer blame what has happened, or is happening now, on them.

[Inaudible interjections]

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Well, that is politics, Mr. Speaker.

One of the areas coming up is the cost of living allowance for civil servants, which I support 100 per cent. I am proud to say that in the eight years of the past government of which I was a part (six years on Executive Council) we put efforts to upgrade the Civil Service to where today it is very competitive with the private sector. We did not do that by ourselves as a government. I see Members across there who worked with us on that. I am glad that we did it. It was the right thing to do.

Yes, in December, I felt . . . and we all know as politicians that eventually it had to come, that we must give the civil servants their increase. I would have been willing, as a past Member of government, to be saddled with the supplementary to say they could have gotten it for Christmas. I had no problem with that, and I have no problem now. But the Government in power spoke, and we must respect their wishes. They evidently had what they wanted to do and that is their democratic right under the system of government we now have.

The other area I would like to touch on is item 2 in the response from the Leader of Government Business regarding the $0.3 million expenditure incurred in 2000. I am just wondering if this would not be handled by supplementary. You can clarify that Mr. Speaker. I know it takes some time for these bills to come in. I am not really questioning why these are still drifting in. But if this is the appropriation for 2001, how can this be included if it was incurred in 2000?

I move to number 5 of that same memo, which requests $6.01 million for capital development. I wonder if anything was left out of the $45 million or $47 million that some of this money could not be used until we have passed the Appropriation Bill for 2001. I would ask that some of these be dealt with by the Honourable Third Official Member in his winding up.

There was one area in the detailed information relating to the expenditure as set out in Government Motion No. 4. On page 9, under "Legislative" there is an amount of $18,000. It is not much, but I am sure the Honourable Third Official Member would be glad to know that we actually approved this amount of money on the 8th December, on page 88 of the Report of Finance Committee. You may want to check that.

The only other question I have (and a number of people have touched on it) is in regard to Cayman Airways. In the past the subsidy was normally about $4 million. I note that has been requested in the first quarter, up until April. Would someone please expand on this?

As I said, I will await this information. I am pleased to see the approach of sharing so much detailed information. It was unfortunate . . . and I do know what happens in the preparation of this information. It can take an eternity. I am not faulting anyone as to why it did not come out at the same time. But I will give my support to this because the country must run. I give this Motion my full support.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I too would like to thank you, Mr. Speaker, for being here. I am also happy to see that your health is much improved. I wish you much success as you continue with your most distinguished career.

In my very brief presentation, I would first like to congratulate the Government for making a financial request for the cost of living [supplement] for civil servants. Much can be said and much has been said as to the timing. It is better late than never. I shall not be spending time discussing the semantics as to the timing except to say that it is good that the civil servants can expect it as the Government has set out in its memorandum to the various departments that are so affiliated.

In item 1 of the memorandum, headed "Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development" coming from the Minister of Planning, Communications and Works, there is an item that whoever is responding could perhaps clarify in his or her final summation, and that is the additional sum for January 2001 to indicate whether that is the carryover cost of living, or if that is in fact the cost of living for the first quarter for this particular financial year being 2001. If so, what is the percentage of that cost of living?

Secondly, Mr. Speaker, I would move into item 3 from the same memorandum relating to Cayman Airways, the request for $3.46 million for the first quarter 2001, which is their subsidy. Yes, it is a request for a subsidy within the first quarter. I commend the Minister responsible for that because we have known for a long time that Cayman Airways has been operating on a meagre subsidy of $4 million for a number of years. And I say meagre taking that in the correct perspective and comparing it to other statutory boards or heads of government expenditure, for example, roads, hospital, social services, where there is no finite return.

We often see Cayman Airways being used as a football in different political platforms, sometimes fairly, sometimes unfairly. Like the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town emphasised in his deliberation, Cayman Airways is a most vital entity to the Cayman Islands, in particular for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I have always supported Cayman Airways, even before being in this Honourable House. It is my intention, with the help of Almighty God, to continue to give my full support to Cayman Airways.

The airline business is not easy, and often times not very profitable. But the staff there are diligent from my experience in working closely with them over the past five years. They have the interest of Cayman Airways at heart. I would say that we should give Cayman Airways a fair start. Members from both sides of this House have said that it needs to be fully capitalised. I think that once the report comes out from Mr. Naul Bodden, a capable Bracker, we can then sit down as a government in its entirety and look at Cayman Airways and see it as something we have to work with in the interest of the country as opposed to something that we can use as a boxing tool because it is politically correct.

I challenge all Honourable Members to not politicise Cayman Airways. It is much too important for us to take that approach. We must move forward. As my good friend and colleague, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town said, there will always be a "past government" and if we use the peeling away exercise most if not all of us will come into that category at some stage in our lives.

We are here to look after the best interest of the country. I am certainly here not as an "opposition" Member; I am here as a representative of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. If that means opposing, then it shall be. If it means supporting, then it shall be. But it will not be purely for the sake of opposition. There are too many important matters in particular in my constituency of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman that need dire attention for me to waste four years just playing the role of petty politics. I rise above that, albeit sometimes it is hard taking into consideration the circumstances.

I also wish to comment briefly on item 4 in the memorandum which deals with the item for $1.18 million for the Seamen's grant. That was approved in 2000, but was never a part of the original 2000 budget. Again, much has been said about this particular item. But I would like to say that as far as I understood, such a grant was not meant to be a poor man's grant. The Veterans [grant], which was put in by the present Minister of Tourism some years ago, was done on the same footing. It has served well for the veterans and has been greatly appreciated. The Ministry I was in charge of at the time, together with a Motion on the floor by Honourable Members and my colleagues in Executive Council saw fit that the seamen as well be added to the extension of the veterans. I am happy to take the blame or the honour—whichever one would wish, it matters not—for the seamen getting the grant.

At this juncture I would also like to congratulate in particular the present Minister for bringing this large sum of money at this particular forum to pay this outstanding contractual obligation to the veterans.

I did not then, nor do I now, feel that any seaman or veteran should be penalised for making a financial success of his life. We paid them for a contribution that they made to this country during the tenure of their seamanship. It was to Caymanians. I will not yield to the temptation of attempting to define "Caymanian" seeing that our very own Immigration Law, which one would think made the best attempt to define it, has not to date been successful in defining that. As far as I am concerned, once a person has been granted Caymanian status, they are Caymanian. I will say no more on that.

I believe that if any Member has any knowledge of any seaman granted a grant during my tenure, or the present Minister's tenure for that matter, that they have a responsibility to bring those details to the Minister responsible so that it can be investigated. We took all measures to ensure that no one fell through the loopholes. But if any Member has knowledge of that, Mr. Speaker, I submit that they are in fact acquiescing to this continuous wrong by not bringing it to the attention of a person who can rectify that situation.

I also note in item 5 of the said memorandum from the Leader of Government business that there is $6.01 million for capital development expenditure to cover contractual committed continuing projects from last year (2000) and items out for tender. I noticed that one of those items referred to the postal line items. There are about three or four post offices, one of which has the letters "WE." I take it that refers to the West End Post Office. I hope that one of these matters out to tender is in fact the West End Post Office because the residents of that area have long awaited this project which money was put in for last year. It would to a vast extent be a re-voting exercise. I look forward to seeing this completely budgeted for in the upcoming Budget as a very highly prioritised project in my constituency.

Mr. Speaker, I also note that the full amount as requested from District Administration for the cost of living increase has been included. I believe it was $152,301. They have asked many questions, like many of the civil servants, as to when they will receive it. I thank my friend and colleague, the First Official Member, for ensuring that this allocation was put forward at this time so that they too can be brought into the loop and receive their cost of living in a timely and expeditious fashion.

Mr. Speaker, if one were to take an average after a close analytical look at the first quarter of requested expenditure, one would see as I have (and with an element of concern), that Cayman Brac and Little Cayman seem to be receiving quite a minute share. I trust that the Budget in a few weeks time will prove me wrong and that the request that the First Official Member will submit (if he has not already done so) will be given favourable acceptance and move on to the implementation stage.

I thank the Government Bench, as well as the First Official Member for the allocation of some $100,000 in this particular request for roads on Cayman Brac. As Members have heard me say, this is a very vital element in our functioning on the Brac, as our men rely on this quite heavily. Any Minister visiting and meeting with District Administration and or Public Works, or the Honourable First Official Member, will see that as in all first quarters we are back at that point in time where if a release were not forthcoming we would have to go to that unfortunate position of laying off our men within the community. So I thank Government for having the foresight and the sensitivity to ensure that a reasonable allocation was put in to bridge that gap at this particular time.

I also note that there was no further request for capital acquisitions. That was reassuring to me at this time because it tells me that the Government and its advisors were indeed bringing this resolution for matters that were necessary at this time and the Standing Orders as well as the Public Finance and Audit Law did not allow for any other avenue to be taken. Although it is historical and unprecedented, as far as I am aware if it is in the interest to bring it at this time, I have no problem supporting this Motion. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Tourism.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: I intend to be brief, but I have listened to several things said that I think I need to say something about. It is true that this is perhaps the first time a government has had to take this route.

But this way of doing business gives Members an opportunity to speak to the matters before the funds are actually spent.

It is true that it is not good to have to say that the country is broke. That does no country any good. But the sad fact is that there was such mismanagement in various levels in the past four years, and in particular the months running up to the General Election—

The Speaker: May I just stop you briefly for one minute?

You are stating your opinion. I would like you to rephrase that statement of mismanagement.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Well, Mr. Speaker, I do not know what you want to call it, but I can tell you it is pretty bad.

The Speaker: I would just like it to come from your lips that it is your view.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Sir. That is whose view I am speaking about—mine! In my view!

The Speaker: Thank you very much. Please continue.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: In my view, Mr. Speaker, from what we have found and from what we have been told, from what the facts bear out, there was mismanagement at various levels, and in particular the months running up to the General Election when Ministers were in a mad rush to ensure their return here.

I believe that the cost of living adjustment is timely to be paid in this year's budget. I was not here when the last Finance Committee met. I take note that one Member ensured that went into the record. I was out on Government business, but from the record the Government was well represented. If the Government had agreed to the Opposition's Motion, the deficit would have been that much more. In the way it is being done today, the huge deficit left by the last government cannot be increased because of the Civil Service salary increase.

In the last four years, particularly last year, Members of the Backbench implored the Government to recommend that on a yearly basis we should include the cost of living in the annual budget—the particular cost of living adjustment on salaries. It would have been good if that had been done.

I note that Members of the last government, former Ministers, are saying that we should not blame the last government for everything. But we can blame them for not listening to sound advice. We can blame them for making bad decisions. And we can blame them for a complete disregard for financial prudence. One of those Members said that he would have preferred if the Civil Service had gotten its raise or salary adjustment for Christmas, when, as I understand it, what we are doing here today was agreed by them when they were there. So how could they have gotten the raise for Christmas if they agreed for it to be paid at this time except for the roundabout way they went in the Finance Committee to push the Government into doing something it was not ready or able to do at the time. They knew that because they set the pace.

We have promised to be prudent and will endeavour to spend what is considered needed and in the best interest of the country. I do not think the Leader of Government Business has done anything out of place. I note that much has been said about that aspect, that memorandum. He is charged with that responsibility of management of the affairs of Government, and that is what he is attempting to do. So the calling of the Legislative Assembly is part and parcel of his responsibility and that is what he has done.

I believe that if this Government had not gone this route, the Opposition would be up blaming him saying he is not taking a position and there would be too many contingency warrants. The Opposition is opposition: they oppose. No matter how they say they oppose, they oppose. But there is nothing in parliamentary procedure or in democracy that says a government does not have the right to reply to the Opposition. So, in the four years ahead of us, bear that in mind.

The Speaker: At this time I think it is appropriate that we take the luncheon break. Before doing so, I would like to belatedly welcome the delegation from the John Gray High School who were not in the gallery when I welcomed the other schools. We are very happy to have you all, and are happy to know that you will be participating in the Youth Parliament. I wish you all the very best.

Proceedings are suspended until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12. 49 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.28 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Proceedings are resumed. Does any other Member wish to speak? The floor is open to debate. Continuing debate on Government Motion No. 4/2001. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause)

The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

Perhaps most of what is left to be said can be dealt with by the Honourable Third Official Member, but I think there are a few items which it might be deemed appropriate for me to address. I do not think I have to go into the specifics of Government Motion No. 4/2001 as other Members have spoken to the Motion and discussed several areas at length. Perhaps some Members will think that I should not address some of the areas that I will choose to address. Nevertheless, I will do so.

I just want to talk about contingency warrants for a moment. I think Members will fully realise the reason we are here today is simply because the Government has taken the position that any use of contingency warrants must be as prescribed. The Public Finance and Audit Law of 1985 provides the basis for the Financial Secretary to issue a contingency warrant which is written authorisation to meet an urgent expenditure need where there is no or insufficient provision in the approved budget. This warrant authorises the Treasury to make payments to meet the urgent need as and when presented by the controlling officer possessing the contingency warrant.

Members will also know that a contingency warrant is only an interim measure, and the necessary appropriation has to be sought via Finance Committee in order to validate this warrant.

I have served in this Legislative Assembly since 1992 and being where I am today is fairly new. I have always taken the position, as have most Members that were there then and here now, that a contingency warrant should not be abused. I held the opinion in the past that on many occasions government had abused this privilege via the Financial Secretary's office. And this Government takes the position that it should not follow suit.

For example, in 1996 when general elections were over, and the Motion for advance expenditure for the first quarter of 1997 was brought to the Legislative Assembly, that amount totalled $48.2 million. Needless to say, there was no other meeting of the Legislative Assembly before the Budget was brought, and the fact is that the $48.2 million that was approved was followed by a series of contingency warrants which obviously (and I was there at that time) the Legislative Assembly had no knowledge of.

During the period January to April 1997 alone, an additional $48.8 million worth of contingency warrants were issued. We are here today because we do not believe that we should follow what has been the practice in the past. So, from the point of view of the contingency warrants . . . and I heard Members speak to this and agree with this method. I just wish to make it very clear that the Government's intention in asking you to hold this special meeting of the Legislative Assembly was simply so that all Members and the public would be fully informed of exactly what was proposed to be spent, how it was proposed to be spent, and in what areas it was proposed to be spent.

I heard some mention of a press release. Some Members of the Backbench noted that the press release that came out last Thursday had a bit more information than what they got when they received notice of the meeting. That certainly was not intentional because in train, before we even got the letter from the five Backbench Members, was a sequence of events to request the meeting to advise Members of the agenda, to inform the public of what was happening, and finally, to hold the meeting.

So, if during the interim there was some difference in knowledge between Backbenchers and the public, if I have to publicly apologise for that, I do not have a problem with that. But it certainly was not meant with any other intention than for everyone to know exactly what was happening.

And so that it can be absolutely clear, the line items that were produced on Friday, while that has never been the practice, it was no intention of Members not seeing those line items because everyone is going to know in any case. Unfortunately, sometimes if we wait for everything to be prepared, then other things seem to be delayed and then you have another query as to why it took so long for certain information to be disseminated. That was the case based on what transpired.

The memorandum with my signature, of 9 February, which was in reply to the letter addressed to the Honourable Third Official Member from the five Members, and carbon copied to me, was done in the following fashion: When the Third Official Member received the letter, he came to my office; I sought my copy; we read it; we discussed it. We saw the points he should address, and we also saw the points he did not have the authority to address. That is the reason you will find that the memo is headed from the Honourable Third Official Member's office, but signed by me. We simply put all of the information together, and, after conferring, agreed that had it been his signature it would have been done without authority. We even contemplated having both signatures, but thought that was a bit of overkill.

Perhaps even if Members feel that was not how it should have been done, at the end of the day I believe the position is fairly clear. But I guess had I been on the Backbench I might have picked it up also and found reason to deal with the matter. So, that is not something I think we need to argue very long about. I only wish for everyone to understand what transpired, seeing that some Members felt my signature on the memo was overstepping some authority in dealing with financial matters.

I think it is worthy to note also that there was even a point in time when I contemplated taking what I needed to answer, after conferring with the other Members of Council, and giving an answer to that portion, asking the Third Official Member to give an answer for his portion of the letter. So, there were various ways it could have been handled, but we thought it was being a bit picky going that far with it. I think that is enough said about the memorandum itself.

That letter addressed to the Honourable Financial Secretary spoke to situations that were unprecedented. I think the letter is absolutely correct, because what has happened today has never happened before. I believe, as Members have said, that it is the right thing to do. Some Members have also stated that they hope this continues. Speaking on behalf of the Government . . . and I like to do it like this to keep myself in check. Let me say here and now that while we are only a few months into the tenure, certainly whether times are good or bad, this Government is going to hold true to the philosophy of transparency.

The accountability issue is one that has to be dealt with over a longer period of time, but this Government is also going to be practising accountability even though in certain instances, constitutionally, accountability may not rest where it is thought it should rest.

There has to be collaboration between the official arm and the elected arm of Government. While some Members have spoken to the issue of the Honourable Third Official Member having responsibility for the finances of the country, there is no one, singly or collectively, in this elected Government who has any intention of crossing the path and interfering with the Honourable Third Official Member's responsibility. Obviously, by way of being responsible for policy, there has to be talk between the two arms of Government to ensure that everybody is headed in the same direction.

I think it is also worthy to note that the Government has every intention of moving forward in a direction which even when other Members here may find philosophical differences in which to argue methodologies, they will see very clearly that you do not have people going off in all different directions. It will be apparent that the Government is operating in unison heading in one direction.

There were some specific areas mentioned. I will try not to cross over to what the Honourable Third Official Member will respond to, but there are a few specific instances I noted that I should respond to. First of all, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman spoke to a motion he and the Third Elected Member for George Town brought regarding the Civil Service cost of living adjustment. The Motion called for monies to be appropriated and for the Government to indicate when this amount was to be paid out. It is important for us to fully appreciate that at that time the Government was not in a position to fully appreciate what the year-end position was going to be. It may have been deemed by some at that time that Government took the position not to agree with the Motion because of from whence it came. But I wish to tell them straight and plain that that was not the case.

This Government was sworn in on the 15th day of November—and perhaps what I say will not convince them—I cannot help that. I can only tell them like it is because it is no sense making it up. First of all we were not sure; absolutely not sure if it was prudent to appropriate that amount, which was at that time (up until the end of December 2000, I think) about $5.6 million. Had we appropriated it during that period of time, it certainly was going to negatively affect the surplus/deficit position at year-end, and money was not appropriated for it in the budget.

There seems to be some doubt. I am quite willing to give way if a Member wishes to correct what I am saying. Monies were appropriated in the budget for the year 2000. There was no appropriation in the 2000 budget for the cost of living adjustment for the civil servants during the year 2000. Any amount paid out would affect the surplus/deficit position; it would mean that we could not put that into any other account. It would affect the cash position also.

The first statement is . . . Let me say it the other way around then: The cash position at that time was going to cause the overdraft to go beyond its limit, although in the same meeting we were seeking to have the overdraft extended at that time. But suffice it to say, Mr. Speaker, without going into a long debate, going through all of the figures, that it was going to affect the surplus/deficit position because the money had not been appropriated. Secondly, we were advised at that time that because of the cash position, it simply could not be paid unless we were going to be beyond the overdraft limit. Other factors involved included monies not spent and bills not taken into account.

There was some comment in a letter in the Caymanian Compass regarding all of this that when I made certain statements I was not taking into account monies owed to Government. Government operates on a cash basis, and while we can look at the track record of Government's monthly receipts, the Government cannot work on anticipation of how much by projection it is going to collect for any specific period of time. The facts are that from the month of May 2000, going straight through until the month of January 2001, every projection for the amount of money Government hoped to receive during each of those months, the actuals fell short of the projections. Those are simply the facts.

So we could not work on the premise that all of a sudden there was going to be a windfall and everything was going to catch right up again, because history has proven that on some occasions that is what happens—but certainly it has been proven that the hesitation was warranted because as of now while we are into the year 2001 the projections up until December have fallen a bit short in actuality.

So, Mr. Speaker, in speaking to the cost of living adjustment, in summary, not paying it out prior to year-end we thought at that time was simply putting the Government too much at risk. At the same time, when the amendment was sought to extend it into June 2001, we did not want to take that position either. We preferred to do it and get it out of the way during the first quarter of the year when most of Government's revenue is collected on a proportionate quarterly basis. Thereafter, we could deal with the rest of the issues facing us. We still believe we were correct in doing what we were doing.

Of course, it was also said that had we agreed to that we would not have had to come here today. But that is but $7.8 million (I believe) out of approximately $19 million. There still would have been another $11 million we would have had to go through the same procedure with. Better for us, we believe, at this time we have a clearer picture because we have the unaudited year-end figures and we know where we are headed—even if it calls for a bit of what I call a tightening of the belt.

The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town referred to some people and their . . . I cannot remember his exact words, but I think he was speaking to the Government and its agents, or whatever—talking about the country being broke. I do not believe that anyone on the Government bench wishes to send any wrong message about the country being broke. But I do believe that if anyone has taken it to sound like that, it is simply because the year-end deficit is showing that there needs to be close attention paid to how government involves itself in its expenditure. It also is important that the expectations of the public at large do not continue to the point where they believe that the Government has this unending well, and whatever those demands are can be met. That, I believe, is certainly the intention of the Government.

If it makes any difference to anyone, let me say clearly that the Government does not take the position about the country being broke. The position of Government is that when we look at year-end figures, when we look at expenditure that is already committed, it simply means that we have to take a long and hard look at two things: first, we have to examine any inefficiency which might exist in central Government. We cannot continue to just identify another position and fill it with another body whenever a task needs to be done because we have to ensure that efficiency is the order of the day when it comes to central Government.

I think the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town alluded to an independent job evaluation being done. That is not my ambit to respond to, but I doubt the Honourable First Official Member is going to be speaking to this Motion today. Let me just say that while I had a short discussion with him on the matter, he would be quite satisfied (seeing that the Member asked for a response) if the Member would put the question in writing to him. He will gladly give an answer. Once the Member gets the answer, he can take it from there as he so desires. That is the easiest way for me to deal with that.

Mr. Speaker, mention has also been made of Cayman Airways. The subject falls under my Ministry—fortunately or unfortunately depending on how people look at it. Members have already mentioned that there is a very capable individual who is doing an independent study. It is an operational and financial assessment of the airline as it presently is. Members will also note that what is being sought here will be the total amount that was last year's subsidy for Cayman Airways as has been standard for several years now. But this amount is being sought for the first quarter.

In his winding up, I think the Honourable Third Official Member will explain exactly what is being addressed in the Motion here. But let me say for the record, Mr. Speaker, that while we wait for this assessment that is being done, as has been mentioned before, Cayman Airways must remain in operation. I think that now is as good a time as any to publicly state that the unaudited figures for the year 2000 show Cayman Airways with an operational loss in excess of $7 million—after subsidy. What that means, in a nutshell, is that whatever figure it owes to the Civil Aviation Authority for landing fees and rent and I think there is also an amount (which is small compared to all else) owed to Customs, and the $4.6 million subsidy that it received in the year 2000 . . . if we were to simply look at Cayman Airways paying all of its bills, and not getting a subsidy, that the amount would be as an operational loss of close to $15 million. That is not meant to frighten anyone; those are the facts.

As soon as we are able to get the assessment, and I am confident it will be done before we come to budget, we are going to have to immediately set about making decisions. I am not going to shirk from making any decisions, Mr. Speaker, and Members can rest assured that everyone will be allowed to make his or her contribution as to whatever decision is made. I agree that Cayman Airways should not be made a political football, but I also agree that a decision as to the way forward for Cayman Airways must be done with everyone being totally informed, and that includes the public of this country. Whatever method we use to make final decisions, the public and their representatives will have a say. At this point in time I do not think I need to go into the subject in any more detail.

The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town also mentioned the road in Bodden Town and that he would expect something to be done during the upcoming year with regards to the budget. I can assure him that whatever amount is allocated we will do everything we can to spread it into its most effective use.

While mentioning that, I think it is important for all Members to understand that I, for one, used to be at this Legislative Assembly very often keeping informed, deciding on ways forward regarding legislative activities. But life is a bit different nowadays. Whereas some people say they do not see people any more, I am certainly not in hiding. It is just that the job description is a bit different right now. But I want all Members to clearly understand that I do not need to have any specialised personal relationships to do my job. My doors are always open. My lines of communication are always open. There are times when one might try to get me and it might be a bit difficult because I am either in a meeting or on the way to one—that is just the nature of the beast at present. I do not wish for any Member to feel that I am not accessible, I mean that. If representatives wish to deal with matters affecting my Ministry, they may feel free to deal with me: I will do so to the best of my ability.

The Elected Member for East End spoke to Public Works and the cost of living adjustment, and that there is some query regarding moving from 44 hours per week to 40 hours per week. Being the Minister responsible for Public Works, I would like the Member to know that we held meetings very recently regarding the matter. Again, it is a crossover situation because some of the matter is a personnel issue regarding General Orders and how many hours per week everyone in the service should be working.

It is not a question that it is really complicated; it is a matter of compliance in certain areas. I can only say at this point in time that every effort is being made to get those negatively affected at this time by their hourly wage to a situation of normalcy. And while there may be specific issues that Member, or other Members, may know about causing them to think that this is not the case, there are several steps that have to be taken. The personnel issue is addressed separately from the political directorate.

So, it is not quite as simple as saying 'Let the political directorate make a policy decision and pass it on' because the system does not allow for that. But we are in dialogue and we will do everything possible to ensure that at the end of the day the situation is as balanced as possible, given the circumstances.

I do not think I should go into a lot of detail because it will take up a lot of time. But I trust that the Members who have a specific interest in that will understand what I am alluding to at this point in time. If there is anything specific that Members wish to bring to my attention, I certainly will hear what they have to say and again have dialogue with the powers that be to see how best the matter can be corrected.

Mr. Speaker, that is most of what I had to deal with. I think the Honourable Third Official Member will deal capably with all other matters. I wish to thank Members for understanding the Government's position. For all those who may wonder if it will continue, I trust that you will watch carefully to ensure that the Government keeps on its toes doing everything it should be doing as a government with the new philosophy we are portraying both to you Members of the Backbench and to the people of this country.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you.

Mr. Speaker, I believe it is true to say that my Honourable colleague, the Leader of Government Business, the Minister for Planning, has done a comprehensive job in replying to the various comments made, so my contribution will be fairly brief.

Mr. Speaker, may I also take the opportunity to join my colleagues in wishing for you all the very best, and to say how pleased we are to see you here in such good spirits and obviously in good health. Long may that continue!

I believe it is true to say that all Honourable Members of this House have but one thing in mind, and that is providing the best services to ensure the best quality of life for the people we represent. I really do not think that there are any Members here who do not have that objective in mind.

That said, I feel it is important for all Members of this House to have an active say in the affairs of the House. I wish to comment on the point raised regarding the role of the Financial Secretary in what would appear to be a move to usurp that role. Before speaking on that, I would just like to refer to the Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision) section 11, which states specifically the general powers and duties of the Financial Secretary. "The Financial Secretary shall subject to this and any other law have the management of the finances of the government and the supervision control and direction of all matters relating to the financial affairs of the government."

The Second Elected Member for George Town was correct in stating that the policy direction of the country is one for the elected members of government. If this were not so, you would not have a situation where successive governments coming into power would blame past governments for any misdeeds or poor financial performance. I remember a case in point in 1992 when the 1984 to 1992 government was ridiculed for many months in this House for what was considered poor financial performance. But that is politics, Mr. Speaker. In the same way that this government—the 2000 government—will be criticising the financial and other areas of performance of the previous government. So it does not mean that what is being done is wrong. I believe this is a part of the political process in these islands. I believe that regardless of the constitutional advancement in these islands, that that situation will continue. It is not peculiar to the Cayman Islands: the situation obtains in many Parliaments, even our Mother Parliament.

I believe that all five items stated in Government Motion 4/2001 are all needed. This was reinforced by the previous speakers and they all stated that they would support this Motion. It seems like the major difference of opinion was on procedure rather than on the content of the Motion. I really do not see any area for differences in this matter except for those obvious areas where there will be political differences.

Regarding Cayman Airways, we, the Members of this House will have to decide on the future of Cayman Airways. I personally believe that Cayman Airways is good for these Islands. We will all have to put our heads together and try to assist through these difficult times. I do not believe we can hold any government, or any politician, past, present or future, for the performance of the Airline. I think one Member mentioned that until such time as we can run Cayman Airways as a business, it will continue to have problems.

We cannot expect Cayman Airways to be a profitable business if a lot of the social and welfare issues are going to be brought into play. There are three islands in the Cayman Islands. We must give the same service to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, as obtains in Grand Cayman. And because of that, we will have to provide the airline service to the Brac even though there will be times when the plane will come back with five or six people. If it is even one individual, he should be given the same kind of treatment we expect here in Grand Cayman.

We will have to decide as a legislature where we go from here with Cayman Airways. There is no use in just paying lip service. We have to do what is important to keep the airline going. That said, I believe that if we are going to make Cayman Airways a viable proposition, we need to be looking at the equipment of the airline. I think it is high time we look at those 737s. They are old planes. They are eating up a lot of money in maintenance. We need to be looking at them and deciding if we are going to remain with Cayman Airways, what is the way forward.

I totally support this Motion. But apart from my constitutional responsibility, I believe these items are needed. Regardless of what may have occurred in regard to the cost of living allowance, I believe all Members here support that. I would not want the impression to be given that any Member of this House is not supportive of this allowance. I also give my total support for the capital side of this request, the $6.01 million. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The Honourable Minister of Community Development.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, my contribution to this debate will be very short, unless I want to stand here and repeat what other Members and Ministers have said.

I stand in support of this Motion, but there is one point I would like to clear up, and that is the matter of the Seamen's Ex gratia Payment

The Second Elected Member for West Bay raised this point about persons who came to these Islands and received Caymanian status after they had completed their stint at sea. This is totally correct. The Second Elected Member for West Bay brought this to my attention, and the research was done. There are one or two instances where persons served their time at sea for another country and are now receiving these benefits.

I would like to make it very clear for the record that the Ministry for which the Governor gave me responsibility is now in the process of researching all applications to see that people who should be receiving this benefit are definitely getting it. The Ministry is in the process of re-writing the criteria. To me, there has to be some stipulation of the time served at sea. We cannot pay people for going to sea for three weeks and consider them seamen, which is happening at present.

It is an ex gratia payment that I support for seamen who contributed greatly to these Islands. But, Mr. Speaker, I am concerned that if we are going to continue to grow as we have since August last year—741 seamen—that we are going to have to step back and do an assessment.

The motion that was brought to this parliament said "as needed." The policy decision taken in Executive Council said "as needed." But we seem to have decided to ignore those words and every soul that has applied has received. It would be good for any country to give each seaman who went to sea an ex gratia payment. But in my opinion, the financial burden . . . well, I should not say "burden" in case the seamen think that I think that giving them an ex gratia payment is a burden, but the cost to these islands is going to be astronomical. We are looking for some $4 million in the 2001 budget to pay this ex gratia payment.

So, I assure this Honourable House that when this research is done (and we are seeking advice from the Auditor General), whether the decision be to assess, or to put in place a proper pension fund for the seamen, it will be brought to this Parliament and every Member will vote as he wishes, whether it be for a pension or for an assessment of our seamen. Thank you.

The Speaker: I think all Honourable Members have spoken. If I am correct, I will now call upon the mover to exercise his right of reply.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I have made note of the observations made by Honourable Members. I will respond to some, others are bordering on the political line and I think the Elected Members of Executive Council have responded to some of those comments. I will focus on the memorandum of 9 February, signed by the Leader of Government Business because I think those items that I have been called to comment on, fall within the ambit of the five areas that have been listed.

First, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman raised the question as to whether the component for the year 2000 was contained within this $7.83 million listed under item 1. This $7.83 million can be broken down as follows: $6.02 million relates to the period January to October 2000 and $1.81 million for the period January to March 2001.

As that Honourable Member and all other Members will recall, as of 1st November 2000 the 4.8% salary adjustment was implemented. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town raised a question on item 2 as to whether it would have been more appropriate to be dealing with the $300,000 shown in this item by way of supplementary appropriation. But as the Member will recall, under our present system the authority to expend falls away at the end of the year.

I should mention that although approval would have been granted during the December meeting of Finance Committee for bills in relation to the year 2000 to be settled, every attempt was made to stay within the overdraft limit approved by Finance Committee. As a consequence, a sum to the value of $5.6 million of bills relating to the year 2000 was carried over to 2001. I should point out that of this $5.6 million, some of the items submitted to the Treasury Department were not covered by any approval by way of supplementary appropriation or by way of the original budget.

In order to settle these bills brought forward into the New Year, a part of the $69 million approved under [Government] Motion No. 3/2001 was used to defray these expenditures. So what remains at this time to be settled out of that amount (the value of sums brought forward) is $300,000. The question to be raised is, How are we going to ameliorate this situation where we are carrying forward expenditure from the proceeding year into the current year, and what impact will it have?

We do know that when it comes to monies due to Government it seems to be—and it is not a question of wanting to be mean—a general view that Government should operate as a benevolent organisation in that there should be no rush to pay monies owed by certain persons to Government.

Mr. Speaker, the comment I am going to make will not necessarily relate to the item that I am going to be raising at this time because I know this poses some difficulty for the insurance companies because of the fact that a number of them did not have the appropriate arrangements in place to deal with the refund of medical costs, or payment of monies due the Hospital.

As at 27 December 2000 (and the same obtained as at 31 December 2000) a sum of $6.4 million was owed by various insurance companies to the Government. A substantial part of this was owed by the insurance company with which Government has contracted to provide medical coverage to civil servants and other entitled cases. Success is being obtained in that area, in that as a result of several meetings and looking at what procedures can be put in place, we have seen evidence of these arrears now being addressed. We do trust that we will realise a significant portion of this $6 million of what can be termed receivables. So this should ameliorate the situation and have a positive impact on it.

Mr. Speaker, please permit me to digress a bit. The Government will be turning attention to revenues that are due. We have seen in terms of the overall deficit for the year, amounts to $10.4 million. I received a note from the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town. He mentioned that he did not have the opportunity to raise the financial position in his contribution to the Motion, but that if I had the figures he would welcome some comments. So I am just taking this opportunity to do so.

When we provide this information to Honourable Members of this House and look at the various categories, we can see where we have had undercollections, or shortfalls. In particular, we have seen in “other customs import duties” that there has been a significant shortfall: these are unaudited figures.

Mr. Speaker, I should mention—and I am sure this will come as no surprise to Honourable Members—I have spoken to the Collector of Customs concerning the following matter:

We have persons travelling to the United States, where it has become the norm to offer customers in stores a customs invoice that understates the amount of goods bought. I am not saying all of the stores, but I myself have experienced this kind of offer without my asking. We know that for Caymanians and residents in the Cayman Islands there is a normal exemption of $350 per person, not per household. This is an area where it is the general view that persons going overseas to shop, on their way into the Cayman Islands they should be able to provide the Customs department with copies of invoices. Even if it means for the Government to expend a good sum of money to get the message across, some of these invoices will be taken as test cases, and where purchases have been made in the US, every attempt will be made to verify the accuracy of the amount reported.

It is necessary to do this to send the message. And a further recommendation will be made that for these persons purposely engaging in under-declaration, rather than going to the Customs department and quietly paying the penalty, which amounts to three times the amount, that there should be some publicity. But ample notice will be given to ensure that the necessary reform takes place and that the message gets across. This will have to stop!

When we look at our revenue system here in these Islands, there is always a complaint about the high cost of providing governance. But when we take the average household in the Cayman Islands, every fee paid is discretionary. That is from garbage collection right up to motor vehicles. I can opt not to own a car. And I can get my income in the Cayman Islands and it can be virtually free in terms of levies to government.

We know that whatever we buy has a certain component in it in respect to customs import duty. Given the small amounts that persons in the Cayman Islands . . . and I must say that the majority of our citizens are honest people. But to the extent we have an element of dishonesty creeping into the system, this will have to be curbed as quickly as possible.

Another area that has come to Government's attention deals with the area of tourism accommodation tax. This is particularly in the area of condominium tax. We have persons on the island providing accommodation for tourists. Some, not all, are collecting the tourism accommodation tax and that money may not be remitted in part or in full to the Government. We have a number of persons coming to the Cayman Islands as friends of the owners of these condominiums. It is known that these individuals are paying these owners in the US (or elsewhere) the cost of the accommodation. And that 10% portion is just on accommodation: not food, not beverage—just accommodation.

We are saying that if a person comes to the Islands and spends $2000 on accommodation, they should pay $200 to the Government. That is reasonable. It is something we will have to look at.

There is one country that has addressed this by way of legislation, and we will have to look in terms of how this can be addressed. This is what we have to look at.

The notion that the Government is a benevolent organisation . . . When we look in terms of the infrastructure we have in the Cayman Islands, when we look in terms of the standard of living and in terms of the facilities and amenities that have to be provided to enjoy a wholesome lifestyle in the community, I think it is reasonable, given the fact we do not have any form of direct taxation, that there should not be an unwillingness on the part of the citizenry to pay what is due to the Cayman Islands Government. Every attempt will be made to tighten up on the collection of what is due Government in these areas. These are just some of the areas we will be looking at right across the board.

During the course of this week the Government will be going over to Cayman Brac for a retreat, to look at the details of the Medium Term Financial Plan that is being developed. I have been told that the figures for the draft budget have been produced as of today. I am hoping to see them when I get back to the office to see exactly what they look like. We will take a very close look at the budget on what has been submitted so far.

We have the case where the tourism accommodation tax is being collected by the Treasury. The department that has the details of the tourism tax is the Tourism Department. That falls under the Honourable Minister of Tourism. I have not discussed this with him as yet, but I am going to be recommending that rather than the Treasury—because the Treasury only collects what has been remitted to it—I think the department that would have full knowledge of the accommodation units operating within the Cayman Islands should have responsibility for the collection of the tourism accommodation tax. They will know what departments might be short-changing the Government or what entities are offering tourism accommodation and not paying taxes due Government. So these are areas that will have to be looked at very carefully.

In regards to item 3, the Honourable Elected Member for East End pointed out what seems to be a disparity in the narrative. It would be best if it stated that an additional $3.46 million subsidy to Cayman Airways be paid in the first quarter of the year 2001. If this is done there will not be a disparity between the details as set out in terms of the explanatory notes.

What is provided in the explanatory notes is that $3 million—and it reads “the Legislative Assembly's approval is being sought for an advance appropriation in the amount of $3 million to provide for Cayman Airways subsidy for the period April through December 2001.” It is still the Government's policy that the subsidy to Cayman Airways should be $4 million per annum. Cayman Airways has already received $1 million. What is being proposed now is to pay the remaining $3 million covering the remaining three-quarters of the year. If it is that this amount is to be modified, this is a question that will have to be decided upon by the Government in consultation with the Legislative Assembly. So this is why the narrative has been developed to read as presented in the supporting details.

When we take this and modify the narrative in the memorandum, this will remove the inconsistency that has been correctly pointed out. The way it has been written, it would suggest that the amount being paid would exceed the quarterly grant that should be paid to the airline.

The Honourable Third Elected Member for Bodden Town raised the question as to what seems to be a repeat of $18,000 approved during the meeting of Finance Committee held in December. He is correct. But as this Member is aware, if the money is not spent, or if disbursement is not made prior to the end of the year, the authorisation to expend those funds will lapse. As a consequence, this is what has occurred: what we have here is a re-vote.

Mr. Speaker, I have briefly commented on the end-of-year financial position. I have taken on board the points and questions raised by new Members.

There is one final question I may have overlooked. The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman raised the question as to whether a provision has been made for the West End Post Office in Government Motion No. 4/2001. There is a sum of $100,000 provided. This is set out in the details.

I think I have covered all the points that have been raised. The remaining point of the 4.8% to PWD weekly paid workers has been commented on by the Leader of Government Business. He mentioned that this is a matter being reviewed at this time in consultation with the Personnel Department.

I would like to thank Honourable Members for their support of this Motion as indicated by those who have spoken. Thank you.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Government Motion No. 4/2001. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 4/2001 PASSED.

The Speaker: This concludes proceedings of the Special Meeting. I shall now call upon the Leader of Government Business to move the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Friday, 9 March 2001 at 10.00 am.

The Speaker: Before putting the question, I would like to thank Members for their courtesy and tolerance to the Chair and for the kind remarks they made of my presence here today. I thank the Clerk, the Deputy Clerk, the office staff, the Hansard Officers, the Serjeant-at-Arms and Miss Anita who serves us so well. I wish for the short period you have between now and the Budget that you will enjoy yourselves.

I shall now put the question that this House stand adjourned until Friday, 9 March 2001, at 10.00 am Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 3.44 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 9 MARCH 2001.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 4

ADVANCE EXPENDITURE PRIOR TO THE APPROPRIATION BILL, 2001

WHEREAS Government Motion 003/00 advanced to the Government the sum of $69,521,439 to meet needs incurred by the Government prior to the passing of the Appropriation Law;

AND WHEREAS a further sum of $18,780,993 is required to continue the operation of Government:

BE IT RESOLVED that this House, acting in accordance with the provisions of section 8(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law, (1997 Revision), in advance of an Appropriation Law, authorises further expenditure of C$18,780,993 for the services of the Government in respect of the 2001 financial year, the sum to be charged on revenues in accordance with the Public Finance and Audit Law ( 1997 Revision ) and to be used for the purposes detailed in the following schedule..

SCHEDULE

| EXPENDITURE HEADS                                                    | 2001 RECURRENT ADVANCE(further advance to 1st quarter release |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| H.E. The Governor                                                    |                                                                                      |
| H.E. The Governor                                                           | 19,187                                                                               |
| C.I. Audit Office                                                           | 40,904                                                                               |
| Judicial                                                                    | 285,150                                                                              |
| Portfolio of Internal &amp; External Affairs                         |                                                                                      |
| Portfolio of Internal & External Affairs                                    | 130,966                                                                              |
| Immigration Department                                                      | 298,145                                                                              |
| Police HQ – Administration                                                  | 766,323                                                                              |
| Prison                                                                      | 309,517                                                                              |
| Personnel                                                                   | 77,054                                                                               |
| Legislative                                                                 | 121,060                                                                              |
| Broadcasting                                                                | 43,562                                                                               |
| Cayman Brac & Little Cayman                                                 | 152,301                                                                              |
| Portfolio of Legal Affairs                                           |                                                                                      |
| Portfolio of Legal Affairs                                                  | 131,420                                                                              |
| Portfolio of Finance &amp; Economic Development                      |                                                                                      |
| Customs                                                                     | 176,300                                                                              |
| General Registry                                                            | 227,010                                                                              |
| Statistics Office                                                           | 91,571                                                                               |
| Treasury                                                                    | 17,838                                                                               |
|                                                                             | 63,828                                                                               |
| Ministry of Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth &amp; Sports |                                                                                      |
| Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth & Sports                        | 1,242,519                                                                            |
| Youth and Sports                                                            | 52,512                                                                               |
| Social Services Department                                                  | 279,702                                                                              |
| Ministry of Tourism, Environment &amp; Transport                     |                                                                                      |
| Tourism, Environment & Transport                                            | 66,465                                                                               |

|                    |         |
|--------------------|---------|
| Fire               | 267,268 |
| Tourism Department | 185,008 |
| Environment        | 47,649  |

Ministry of Health and Information Technology

|                                   |           |
|-----------------------------------|-----------|
| Health and Information Technology | 35,948    |
| Health Services                   | 1,425,031 |
| Substance Abuse Services          | 48,885    |
| Computer Services                 | 128,610   |

Ministry of Planning Communications and Works

|                                     |           |
|-------------------------------------|-----------|
| Planning Communications and Works   | 3,504,075 |
| Public Works Department             | 318,057   |
| Vehicle & Equipment Services (5010) | 56,455    |
| Agriculture                         | 286,682   |
| Environmental Health                | 205,333   |
| Mosquito Research and Control Unit  | 74,906    |
| Lands & Survey                      | 124,540   |
| Postal                              | 118,342   |
| Planning                            | 91,559    |

Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture

|                                        |                  |
|----------------------------------------|------------------|
| Education, Human Resources and Culture | 96,030           |
| Labour                                 | 24,291           |
| Education                              | 1,136,777 |

Total Recurrent Expenditure Advance:- 12,768,780

Total Capital Development Expenditure Advance:- 6,012,213

TOTAL RECURRENT AND CAPITAL EXPENDITURE ADVANCE 18,780,993

Moved by: Hon George A McCarthy, OBE, JP
Third Official Member responsible for the Portfolio
Of Finance and Economic Development

Received in the Office of the Clerk this 7th day of February 2001.

Passed/Rejected by the Legislative Assembly this                      day of February 2001.

Clerk of the Legislative Assembly

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
FRIDAY
STATE OPENING
9 MARCH 2001
9.43 AM
First Sitting

The Speaker: I will ask the Reverend Father Sean Major-Campbell to say prayers.

PRAYERS

The Rev. Father Sean Major-Campbell: As we pray we will remember the youth of the Cayman Islands, bearing in mind the theme for this year's Commonwealth celebration: A New Generation.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that they may be enabled faithfully to perform their responsible duties of their high office.

All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's prayer together: Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth, as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power, and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless you and keep you. The Lord make His face to shine upon you and be gracious unto you. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon you and give you peace this day and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Legislative Assembly is in session.
 Proclamation.

PROCLAMATION NO. 3 OF 2001

The Clerk: Proclamation No. 3 of 2001 by His Excellency Peter John Smith, Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor of the Cayman Islands.

"WHEREAS section 46(1) of the Constitution of the Cayman Islands provides that the sessions of the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands shall be held at such places and begin at such times as the Governor may from time to time by Proclamation appoint.

"NOW, THEREFORE, I, Peter John Smith, Governor of the Cayman Islands by virtue of the powers conferred upon me by the said section 46(1) of the Constitution of the Cayman Islands HEREBY PROCLAIM that a session of the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands shall be held at the Legislative Assembly building in George Town on the Island of Grand Cayman beginning at 10:00 am on Friday, the 9th day of March, 2001.

"GIVEN UNDER MY HAND AND THE PUBLIC SEAL OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS AT GEORGE TOWN IN THE ISLAND OF GRAND CAYMAN ON THIS 8th DAY OF MARCH IN THE YEAR OF OUR LORD TWO THOUSAND AND ONE IN THE FIFTIETH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF HER MAJESTY QUEEN ELIZABETH II."

MOTION TO RISE AND AWAIT HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR

The Speaker: Motion for the suspension of the House to be moved by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport, the Father of the House.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I move that this honourable House do rise to await His Excellency the Governor and re-assemble on his arrival to receive a gracious message from the Throne.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that the House do rise to await His Excellency the Governor and to re-assemble on his arrival to receive a gracious message from the throne.

Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is suspended.

AGREED: THAT THIS HOUSE DO RISE TO AWAIT HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR AND RE-ASSEMBLE, ON HIS ARRIVAL, TO RECEIVE A GRACIOUS MESSAGE FROM THE THRONE.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 9.46 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 10.00 AM

ARRIVAL OF HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR

The Governor's Aide-de-Camp gave three knocks on the door.

The Serjeant-at-Arms: His Excellency the Governor.

Procession:
*Serjeant-at-Arms
The Speaker
His Excellency the Governor
Mrs. Smith
The Aide-de-Camp
The Clerk of the Legislative Assembly
The Deputy Clerk*

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Your Excellency, I have much pleasure in inviting you to address this Honourable House.

THE THRONE SPEECH Delivered by His Excellency the Governor Mr. Peter John Smith, CBE

H.E. The Governor: Honourable Speaker, Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly, it is again with great honour, respect and humility that I deliver the Speech from the Throne.

I am reminded constantly these days of that old saying "so much to do and so little time". We live in a busy and impatient world with decisions and demands being made at a relentless rate. Fortunately, one of the keys to survival and indeed to success comes in the shape of IT – information technology - and you will find a number of references in this Speech to "web sites" and "on-line access". Cayman is taking IT very seriously and is well placed to take full advantage of its exciting possibilities. In this regard, may I wish the Minister responsible for IT, the Hon. Linford Pierson, a speedy and complete recovery from his recent surgery and an early resumption of his critical responsibilities? It is also good to note that the next generation is in even better shape to compete on the wider IT stage – I know from my own visits to the schools just how many students are fully computer-literate at a surprisingly young age.

But whilst our investment in our youth will pay great dividends in IT as in other areas of learning, there is a dark shadow clouding my optimism. I fear that we need urgently to engage more parents in the academic progress and development of their offspring. I am saddened indeed by the lack of involvement shown by far too many parents in their children's development – witness their failure to attend school meetings, to get involved in the PTA, or even to support their own children's needs and desire to learn. At best this disregard or apathy will cause students to underachieve and at worst can result in 12-14 year olds hanging around nightclubs at midnight with the inevitable exposure to real mischief. I find it difficult to excuse parents whose lack of interest in, and responsibility for, their children goes that far. It may be trite to say that the youth are our future but it is no less true for all that and we ignore it at our peril.

You will also hear references today to Vision 2008. The review of Vision that I promised last year has been completed by the Deputy Chief Secretary and the recommendations for the way ahead and the further implementation of the Vision agenda will be submitted shortly to Executive Council.

The exemplary degree of public consultation that was a feature of the Vision process will, I hope, be mirrored in the forthcoming Constitutional Modernization Review. There are no preconceived outcomes and no hidden agendas. This is a splendid chance for us all to debate whether we feel that our present 30-year old Constitution reflects our current wishes and thinking in this the 21st century.

Nor have I forgotten my Ombudsman proposal of last year. I have invited a most distinguished former Jamaican Ombudsman, The Honourable Mr Justice James Kerr QC, to visit Cayman shortly. He will be discussing the role of an Ombudsman with legislators, the public service as well as the private sector and the legal fraternity.

Let me now proceed to report on the activities and intentions of the various Ministries, Portfolios and Departments.

THE JUDICIARY

In the year 2001 the judiciary intends to consider new procedures to improve the management of civil cases.

The Chief Justice along with representatives of other agencies will consider the establishment of a Drugs Court as another means of rehabilitation of offenders with drug problems. Plans for the much-needed expansion of the Courts facilities are underway.

THE PORTFOLIO OF INTERNAL & EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

In May of this year, [the Portfolio] will for the first time host the annual conference of Deputy Governors and Chief Secretaries of Bermuda and the five Caribbean Overseas Territories.

ROYAL CAYMAN ISLANDS POLICE SERVICE

The Royal Cayman Islands Police Service has a range of targets and initiatives for this year to reduce crime, with reduction of burglaries as a priority. A new post to plan and implement a system of intelligence gathering and crime management is being proposed.

Since our young offenders are potentially the criminals of tomorrow, a new Family Support Unit will deal speedily and effectively with these young offenders whilst working with other agencies to reduce the risk of re-offending. This Unit will also address the problems of domestic violence.

The police will continue to target international drug smuggling and local drug dealing and consumption, while continuing to provide drug education both in and out of schools to help increase awareness amongst our youth. The Drug Abuse Resistance Awareness (DARE) Programme will be extended from 3 to 6 schools this coming year.

As a result of recommendations from the various international reviews of Cayman's finance industry, the RCIPS will also provide additional officers to strengthen the Financial Reporting Unit.

The RCIPS will seek to develop partnerships, for example, with Crime Stoppers, which contribute to making the Cayman Islands a peaceful place to live: a safe place to visit and a secure place to do business.

GOVERNMENT INFORMATION SERVICES

The Government Information Services, this year, will intensify its involvement in the technological initiative through a new staff member responsible for assisting departments, from content and creative perspectives, towards their e-Government efforts.

Publishing government information and providing government services online will bring numerous benefits, not just in terms of improved customer service and convenience for the public, but also greater efficiency and cost savings.

PRISON DEPARTMENT

This year will see a continuation of the successful period of reconstruction and stabilization in the Prison Service. It is very much to the credit of the staff that so much has been achieved so far at both Northward and Fairbanks (the female prison) since the major disturbances of 1999. It is also encouraging to see the involvement of the community and prisoners in this process both in construction work at both prisons and also in a number of external projects benefiting the community.

Following completion of the new perimeter fence, security will be further improved through the provision of more electronic aids.

Addressing the rising prison population presents a significant challenge for 2001, but there are cost effective plans in place to alleviate this. The emphasis this year will be on improving the management systems to ensure the prison budget is spent economically and effectively.

CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT OFFICE IN THE UNITED KINGDOM

The Cayman Islands Government office in the United Kingdom plans to continue its focus on developing and maintaining contacts within the UK government and political arena, in order to be able to have a voice in Parliament there when necessary. This is to be accomplished through regular meetings with Peers, UK Government Ministers, MPs, and various governmental agencies as well as making more use in PR terms of UK visits by the Governor, Cayman Ministers and senior civil servants.

IMMIGRATION

The Immigration Department will continue to strive to ensure that its procedures and processes enhance the access to and delivery of service for the benefit of its customers. The continued use of technology will be a critical factor for success in the delivery of an efficient, accurate and customer-friendly service. Accordingly, the capabilities of the Immigration website will be expanded with the view to offering some on-line services to our customers.

Government is cognizant of the challenge of accommodating long-term residents and persons with close Caymanian connections. In this regard it is the intention of government to examine the positions of these two groups with a view to offering some form of residence which will satisfy expectations while at the same time allaying any fears or apprehensions among Caymanians who may feel threatened by the permanent absorption of these groups on present day Cayman.

THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

Under the auspices of the local branch of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association it is proposed to host the first Youth Parliament here in the Legislative Assembly Building on the 12th March 2001, next Monday, to commemorate Commonwealth Day. Of the 12 schools invited to participate, eight have agreed to do so. Students aged between 14 – 17 will speak on motions entitled, "Teenage Pregnancy" and "An Analysis of the Constitution: Is there a need for a Constitutional Review".

PERSONNEL DEPARTMENT

The Department's Training Unit will concentrate on the provisions of Management Development programmes through in-service workshops and courses provided locally by overseas universities and professional organisations. Programmes will be updated and expanded to meet the training needs identified through the new Assessment and Development Centres (ADCs), and will enable all those in managerial and supervisory posts to become fully proficient in staff appraisal utilizing the new individual Performance Management Process introduced this past January.

Emphasis will be placed on succession planning with manpower and human resources identified for attention and training.

A review will be undertaken to explore options for replacing the over-lapping salary scale introduced in 1999 with a non-overlapping scale.

CAYMAN BRAC AND LITTLE CAYMAN ADMINISTRATION

Nature Tourism facilities continue to grow with a further 28 signs to be installed this year. More than 1,500 enquiries have been received requesting information. A second phase will commence in the second half of this year and plans are to mark heritage sites in Little Cayman as well as historic buildings on both Sister Islands.

A study of Cayman Brac's endangered Brown Booby birds will begin this year (2001), funded by a grant from the UK Government, to pursue reason(s) for their decline in numbers.

Another concentrated effort will be made to provide an atmosphere for attracting "white collar" type jobs in Cayman Brac.

PORTFOLIO OF LEGAL AFFAIRS

This year began with the first money laundering prosecution under the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law (PCCL). The evidence was assembled using scanning equipment and was presented on computer screens within the court at the preliminary enquiry stage. This process also enabled disclosure to the defence by compact disc.

This and another major case are being supported by the Financial Reporting Unit (FRU) which has now adopted a more proactive role in pursuit of money laundering prosecutions in the Cayman Islands. To strengthen this new 'results-based' policy on money laundering prosecutions Crown Counsel from the Legal Department have been appointed as case controllers and to also assist the FRU in statement taking. Forensic accounting and paralegal services are also planned.

A steering group will co-ordinate the planning for the integration of the Legal Portfolio and centralization of its resources, including the database of the laws and an associated website.

The working group on legislation announced earlier this year will focus on law reform as well as establishing a forum for legislative development. Later this year a programme of continuous professional development for lawyers will begin with the participation of the Law School.

PORTFOLIO OF FINANCE AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

During the year 2001, the Portfolio will spearhead the implementation of the third and final step of Phase 1 of the Financial Management Initiative – that is, the preparation of the 2002 Budget on a full output basis. It is also intended to introduce the Public Finance Bill, 2001, to the Legislative Assembly later this year.

Top priority will continue to be placed on ensuring that the Cayman Islands gains full international recognition from the FATF, and associated bodies like the OECD, G7 and EU, for its robust anti-money laundering and international cooperation regime.

Other notable projects include the introduction to the Legislative Assembly of amendments to the Monetary Authority Law to allow for its full independence, various amendments to the Shipping and Companies laws; securities legislation; and new legislation to create a "Cayman Maritime Safety Authority".

BUDGET AND MANAGEMENT UNIT

The Unit will refine the Public Sector Budgeting Module of IRIS to facilitate the move to full output budgeting in 2002. The Unit will also review its structure and staffing to prepare for its new role under the Financial Management Initiative. In addition, the Unit will develop new strategies to improve revenue collection and recurrent expenditure reduction.

MARKETING AND PROMOTIONS

The Marketing and Promotions Unit will continue its efforts to raise the profile of Cayman's financial services industry including increased utilization of the finance web-site, www.caymanfinance.gov.ky and the production of new and updated collateral materials.

INTERNAL AUDIT UNIT

In executing its 2001 risk-based audit plan, the Internal Audit Unit will conduct operational, cash financial, expenditure, and prepayment audits and for the first time, information technology audits. All these audits will be conducted in accordance with the Standards for the Professional Practice of Internal Auditing.

PUBLIC SERVICE PENSIONS BOARD

The Board's objectives for 2001 include a comprehensive review of its investment policies and the preparation of Benefit Statements for all participants by the end of the second quarter. Other goals include creating an information based web-site and continuing to educate participants by holding information sessions and distributing handbooks on the Public Service Pensions Plan.

CAYMAN ISLANDS STOCK EXCHANGE

The Cayman Islands Stock Exchange, building on the positive evaluation from the KPMG review, will continue its efforts to obtain recognition from relevant international bodies. The Exchange proposes to build upon its success to date as a first class international facility by targeting increased listings of mutual funds, specialist debt securities, derivative warrants and Eurobonds.

CAYMAN ISLANDS MONETARY AUTHORITY

The Cayman Islands Monetary Authority will implement various recommendations from the KPMG Report and the Financial Secretary's Task Force including:

- operational independence;
- enhancement of the on-site visits and inspections programme;
- the issuance of various guidance notes for industry; and
- assisting in the review and amendment of legislation.

The Authority will also expand electronic reporting of prudential or regulatory information to encompass mutual funds. The collection compilation and the production of statistical data will also be enhanced.

OFFICE FOR ECONOMIC RESEARCH & DEVELOPMENT

The Office for Economic Research & Development will compile a Medium Term Financial Strategy (MTFS) as a document that will elucidate Government's fiscal policy, its plans and priorities for the various sectors and a Public Sector Investment Programme (PSIP) for the period 2001 to 2003.

STATISTICS OFFICE

The Statistics Office will complete an updated Household register in time for the 15th Labour Force Survey, which is planned for this October. Preliminary work will also be done in detailing a series of intercensal surveys to be conducted over the next three years, including a Household Income and Expenditure Survey.

GENERAL REGISTRY

Efforts will be made to continue development of the documents imaging project, as well as the creation of an electronic index for the Public Records Register to enhance customer service requests for searches.

A revised Birth and Death Registration Law is expected to be tabled in the House during 2001 and to support this new Law a computerised system for maintaining the births, deaths, marriages and stillbirths Register is planned.

SHIPPING REGISTRY

It is planned to introduce a new Marine Pollution Law and amendments to the Merchant Shipping Law 1997 in this current year. In addition, some 15 new regulations under these two laws are to be introduced, including new Fees Regulations, aimed at increasing the profitability of the registry.

The Cayman Islands have been voted chairman of the Caribbean Port State Control MOU for a further period of three years. The registry will therefore continue its active ongoing work to ensure safe ships and clean seas in the Caribbean region.

TREASURY

The Treasury: Two additional modules of IRIS, Purchasing and Cash Management, will be implemented this year, as its department reviews its structure and staffing to facilitate the implementation of accrual-based accounting next year.

Debt recovery continues to play a significant role in the work of the Treasury and during the year 2000, the Debt Collection Unit recovered $2.3 million, a 60% increase over the preceding year (1999).

CUSTOMS

For Customs, the headquarters have now been relocated from the Tower Building to the expanded main offices at Owen Roberts International Airport. This will lead to greater efficiency in the Department's operations. Training of staff in all areas of Customs work will remain a priority during the year, and specific emphasis will be placed on combating revenue fraud.

MINISTRY OF EDUCATION, HUMAN RESOURCES & CULTURE

This Ministry provides for the first time, an opportunity to focus on the core issues of education and training, to develop a Department of Human Resources, which includes employment relations, and to unite the various cultural agencies under one policy.

The Minister has committed to a five-pronged approach to education issues which will be emphasized over the next three years. These five are: school improvement, citizenship education, technical and vocational training, improved information and communication technology in schools, and training of teachers.

The Ministry will liaise with the Chamber of Commerce on a public/private partnership to include a National Mentoring Programme, the development of a National Youth Service, and the E-business partnership with schools.

The full text of the Millett Report, commissioned last year, will be tabled at this meeting of the Legislative Assembly. The Ministry is committed to ensuring that a timely action-plan is developed to address the key issues raised in that report and its recommendations which have been accepted by government.

EDUCATION

Increased emphasis will be placed on programmes to assist parents and students with positive attitudes to school and behaviour changes, which will increase responsibility and accountability.

The new Spotts Primary School will be put on hold for the time being, as due to delays caused by the planning appeal process, the school cannot now be completed by the time it will be needed. Instead, three primary schools will be given additional classrooms to accommodate the need for more places for Year One students, in September 2001. The planned improvements to Bodden Town Primary will go ahead this year, with an addition of four new classrooms. Red Bay and Savannah primary schools will gain two new classrooms each.

The Alternative Education Centre needs more secure accommodation, and it is hoped that this will be accomplished by moving this programme temporarily to the old Lighthouse School when the new Lighthouse School at Red Bay is completed in May. In the long term, a purpose-built Alternative Centre is a priority, and it is hoped that land for this new facility can be identified and purchased this year.

As the first cycle of inspection of all government schools draws to a close, this year the Schools Inspectorate will give priority to ensuring that inspection-findings are reflected to a greater extent in decision and policy-making in education at a national level.

Except for technical areas, enrolment in the Community College is increasing by more than 30% per annum and in 2001 the College will address the provision of adequate resources to cater to this projected enrolment.

HUMAN RESOURCES

Over the next twelve months, the Ministry will concentrate on employment relations and training, to develop a tripartite system of co-operation between employees, employers and government. The Labour Department will be reorganised with three divisions, namely regulation, audit and appeal, and human resource development including training. The appeals function will be separated from the regulatory function through a revision of the Labour Law.

The Human Resources Centre should provide one-stop shop services and include the Careers Advisory Service, the Summer Internship Programme, and new initiatives under development like the e-business Partnership for Schools, Investors in People and Small Business Development.

Liaison with the Chamber of Commerce as the representative of employers, as well as with organised employee representatives will be developed to ensure stable and progressive labour relations. Efforts will be strengthened to enforce the law with regard to both labour and pensions violations through the Courts.

CULTURE

The long-awaited new History of the Cayman Islands is now in the editing stage, and will it is hoped, be available by the end of the year.

In keeping with the recommendations of Vision 2008, a National Cultural Policy will be developed to define the roles and responsibilities of each entity within a strengthened framework of national pride and preservation of Caymanian heritage.

Events such as the recent Art at Government House demonstrate the increased public appreciation of the creative arts, but one artistic group has still not gained full recognition: Caymanian professional musicians and entertainers. Plans are being laid, with the musicians' association to redress this by assisting them to restructure their organisation and promote their work.

The National Gallery still in its embryonic stages should be developed.

MINISTRY OF COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT, WOMEN AFFAIRS, YOUTH & SPORTS

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

The Ministry will continue its effort on strengthening families. A new officer will be appointed with the responsibility for Community Development and will work closely with the Community Development Unit in the Social Services Department.

SUNRISE CENTRE

The Sunrise Adult Centre is looking forward to this year in the hope that it will provide long awaited opportunities to grow and develop so they can better address the Vocational and Life Skills needs of all Adults with Disabilities in the Cayman Islands.

SOCIAL SERVICES

In an effort to produce a plan of action to address the social ills that follow rapid development, the Ministry will begin the development of a Social Policy, which will continue in 2002.

WATER AUTHORITY OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

The Water Authority will carry on with expansion of its public water supply system through the eastern districts of Grand Cayman during 2001 in accordance with the Ten-Year Development Plan. The piped water system is expected to be completed up to the Gun Bay area of East End by December 2001 and will continue on through the district of East End and North Side during 2002.

To meet the growing demand, the Authority expects to contract for a new 3000 cubic metres per day water production plant at the Red Gate Water Works. In Cayman Brac, the Authority plans to double the production capacity of the water plant to meet the demand during the dry season.

Also this year, the Authority will commence construction of the long awaited Grand Cayman Wastewater Treatment Plant to replace the current waste stabilization ponds. The new plant is expected to be on-line in 2003.

WOMEN'S AFFAIRS

In 2001, the Ministry will complete a draft National Policy on Gender Equity and Equality. Finalization of the policy is anticipated in March 2002.

In keeping with Vision 2008, the Ministry will continue to share coordination responsibilities with the Royal Cayman Islands Police for the Domestic Violence Intervention Training Programme for Police Officers and Social Workers. To date 53 people have been trained since the programme began in 2000. Space has been secured to house a Family Protection Unit to be operated jointly with the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service.

With the addition of a counselor and a research officer, programming will be expanded and services will be enhanced at the Women's Resource Centre. The Convention on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW) is to be extended to the Cayman Islands. Plans will be developed for a place of safety for abused persons in 2001 with construction commencing in 2002.

YOUTH

The Department of Youth and Sports, under the guidance of the Ministry, will develop an implementation plan for the National Youth Policy (NYP). This will include a National Youth Commission that will act as an independent body responsible for monitoring the implementation of the NYP.

SPORTS

The Ministry will continue to promote sports through the development of a National Sports Policy through grants to twenty-six sporting organizations, partial and full scholarships and various other initiatives.

The Ministry in partnership with the Cayman Islands Cricket Association will continue the construction of the National Cricket Pavilion at the Jimmy Powell Oval in West Bay.

Planning approval will be sought for the Cayman Brac football field.

DEPARTMENT OF SOCIAL SERVICES

The Department will be considering a facility in which juvenile offenders can be accommodated and rehabilitated.

The Children's Law is now ready to be returned to the [Legislative] Assembly. Due to the many changes which had to be made to the law, it is proposed that the 1995 law be repealed and a new and more comprehensive Children's Law be put forward.

The Adoption Law will be revised so that Adoption practices can be brought into line with those that are internationally accepted.

The Adoption and Foster Care programme will continue to provide a comprehensive range of quality child care services and will join with the Community Development Unit in strengthening the national Parent Training Programme. The Ministry expects to mount 30 workshops this year, the first of which commenced in January.

The successful Young Parents Programme will focus for 2001 on improving the academic and employability skills of its participants, returning young mothers under age 16 to mainstream education and providing support where necessary.

Objectives of the Adult Special Needs Programme for 2001 include the establishment of a Seniors Day Care programme in Cayman Brac at the Kirkconnell Centre, the construction of a senior residential home and day care centre in North Side and the completion of plans for the Bodden Town Senior Residential Centre, due for construction in 2002.

The Ministry will aim to respond to the increased demands for probation and after-care services as Magistrates and Judges seek innovative sentencing options to deal with offenders.

MINISTRY OF PLANNING, COMMUNICATIONS & WORKS

The Ministry has seven main focus areas for 2001, which will be:

1. The construction of new government office accommodations;
2. Growth Management;
3. Cayman Airways;
4. The Agricultural Sector;
5. Solid Waste issues;
6. Quantitative Risk Assessment on LPG plant and petroleum operations
7. An independent audit of Caribbean Utilities Company.

To take these in order: Firstly, significant amounts of funds are expended each year by Government on leasing and renting outside office accommodation and additional space is also required every year. Government must address this critical situation and attempt to meet its own accommodation requirements. In this regard directives have been issued for preparatory work to commence towards the construction of purpose-built Government office facility on Crown property adjacent to the Government Administration Building in George Town.

Second, in Vision 2008, the people made it clear that the overarching Government policy objective should be to achieve and maintain balanced development in our society in accordance with Growth Management Principles. Government is committed to this philosophy and the Ministry has already commenced efforts to move growth management forward.

Thirdly, the Ministry has commissioned an independent audit and assessment of the operational and financial position of Cayman Airways. This exercise will be completed within the first quarter of this year. Full discussion and evaluation of the various options available will take place immediately following presentation of the detailed findings.

Fourthly, the National Strategic Plan calls for the diversification of the Islands economic base and the Ministry is concentrating efforts to strengthen the agricultural sector. In this regard an Agricultural Development Committee has been established with wide public/private sector representation from Government, the farming/business community, Agricultural Society, Farmers Cooperative as well as the Sister Islands.

Fifthly, increasing pressures continue to be placed on Government to find cost effective and innovative solutions for the collection and disposal of solid waste. The Ministry has already begun to evaluate the various options and technologies available and to discuss potential public/private sector partnership opportunities. The Ministry is committed to satisfactorily resolving the issue for the betterment of our community as a whole.

Sixthly, the overall review of bulk petroleum storage and handling operations was completed in late 2000. The post of Chief Petroleum Inspector was created and recruitment should be completed before the end of the first quarter 2001. The review recommended various legislative amendments which are being pursued and that Government conduct a further Quantitative Risk Assessment (QRA) specifically on the Liquefied Petroleum Gas (Propane) operations and the petroleum bulk terminals and offloading operations at Jackson Point.

And lastly, the Ministry has already initiated dialogue with Caribbean Utilities Company (CUC) regarding possible ways of lowering rates for consumers. CUC has also been advised that an independent audit will be conducted on their operations as provided for in their franchise agreement with Government.

9-1-1 EMERGENCY COMMUNICATIONS

The Radio Communication System at the 911 Centre is being upgraded under the recommendation of the Telecommunications Office and should be fully digital before the end of this year.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

The Department will move to conduct an Agricultural Census in 2001 and the information obtained will be used to create informed strategic plans for the continued development of the sector over the next 5 to 10 years. Local agricultural commodities will continue to be promoted as safe and of superior nutritive value.

A Pesticide and Toxic Chemical Authority will be established and a Board appointed. A new Pesticide Law with regulations that govern the function of the Board will be presented to the Legislative Assembly at its June Meeting. An Integrated Pest Management approach to the control of pests and diseases, in which biological control is emphasized, will auger well for the protection of the health of persons and animals and that of the natural environment.

A Bill to repeal and replace the Plants (Regulation of Importation and Exportation) Law, 1983 will be tabled. This Bill will provide the Chief Agricultural and Veterinary Officer with greater powers to ensure that plants and plant pests which would be a threat to the flora of these Islands are not introduced. Draft amendments to the Animals Law and Regulations in order to bring them up to date, will also be submitted for passage through the Legislative Assembly.

DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH

The Department will begin site preparation and preliminary design for a new landfill in Cayman Brac.

Here in Grand Cayman, 57,500 tons of waste (or 1.4 tons per person) were disposed of in the George Town Landfill this past year and that landfill is now rapidly approaching capacity. The Department has completed a study of the advantages and costs of solid waste alternatives and is poised to contribute to the serious decisions, which need to be made with respect to replacing the George Town Landfill.

ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH SECTION

After a successful launching effort in December of last year, the Department of Environmental Health will expand its education and monitoring programme of the beauty industry to provide weekly basic training for cosmetologists, and barbershop and beauty salon operators.

The Department plans to open a new Environmental Health Office and Water Laboratory in Cayman Brac.

The programme to register and train swimming pool operators will begin this year.

The Department also plans to construct two new public cemeteries - one in Bodden Town and one in East End.

LANDS & SURVEY DEPARTMENT

The Lands and Survey Department will expand its range of land-related services, to include the publication of a complete Street Atlas of the islands. It will also continue to embrace the technological revolution, and specifically WEB technology, with initially, electronic delivery of information, to be followed by the taking of service orders, until ultimately there is a complete electronic service delivery option available to the public.

MOSQUITO RESEARCH & CONTROL UNIT (MRCU)

The Mosquito Research & Control Unit (MRCU) will continue to protect residents and visitors from mosquito-transmitted diseases, and endeavour to maintain the disease-free status of all three Islands. The Unit will greatly increase the use of Global Positioning Systems in conjunction with data from Lands & Survey, to locate specific mosquito-breeding sites.

An expansion of the aerial larviciding programme – the application of pellets to prevent mosquito emergence – particularly into the eastern districts of Grand Cayman is anticipated, as is the use of ground-based equipment in those areas not amenable to treatment by air.

A study of the specific mosquito problems on Little Cayman will enable the design of a suitable control strategy, with particular emphasis on environmentally responsible methods for that island.

PLANNING DEPARTMENT

The Department welcomes the Government's commitment to adopting a Growth Management Plan at the earliest opportunity and is prepared to initiate an ambitious work programme to make this important, much needed plan a reality for Cayman.

The review of the Development Plan 1997 will be completed within the first six months of this year and should be tabled in this House in September. The Department is also committed to having the Wetlands Committee complete its report to the Central Planning Authority by June 2001. The Committee's report will make recommendations as to how we can address the contentious issue of environmental protection throughout Grand Cayman.

The review of the Proposed Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Development Plans will also resume later this year, involving extensive public input in order to arrive at Development Plans that represent the vision of the residents of the Sister Islands.

Another important initiative is the new Planning Department website, which allows customers to download forms, and applications, conduct zoning inquiries, access information and review the Development Plans.

To improve the way it does business, the Planning Department will draft its own strategic plan. This initiative commenced in January and a series of "get to know your customer" meetings will be on-going throughout this year.

POSTAL DEPARTMENT

The Post Office anticipates construction of a new post office for West End this year. Necessary repairs and refurbishment of all Sub-Post Offices in Cayman Brac and the relocation of the Little Cayman Post Office will be addressed.

Customer services will be enhanced during the year by the introduction of Internet cafes in post office(s). Additional promotions for the Philatelic Bureau will include a philatelic on-line shop to be launched as an initial approach to postal e-commerce. A highlight of the year will be a special stamp issue featuring Cayman Brac, another first for the Post Office and scheduled for release within the first half of 2001. A new five-year definitive stamp issue "Transportation to the Millennium" will be released in September this year.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT

Roads Section

Phase One of the Crewe Road Bypass will be completed this year.

With the acquisition of a Road Sweeper in 2000, a programme of sweeping roads, mainly in the Central Business District and West Bay Road, will be implemented. To extend the useful service life of existing roads, construction maintenance will be focused on minor base repair to those roads and a second application of wearing course.

The programme of residential road improvements will continue and PWD will also implement some measures for traffic calming in residential areas.

Planning, design, gazetting and land acquisition will be carried out for two major sections of road,

Phase III of the Harquail Bypass from the Hyatt area to Safehaven and the section of road running north to south that will connect the Crewe Road Bypass to the Harquail Bypass. These roads form an integral part of the proposed National Roads Plan.

Building Section

The department will continue to emphasize quality and value for money with hurricane resistant, low maintenance construction. The major capital building projects, which began construction prior to 2001 and will be completed this year are the new Lighthouse School, the new Red Bay primary school multi-purpose hall and the extension and upgrading of the George Hicks High School administrative building. These projects form part of the major capital education programme which commenced in 1999.

CAYMAN AIRWAYS LIMITED

Cayman Airways' financial situation continues to be of national concern, and I referred earlier to the independent financial review and operational assessment of the airline. Its findings and recommendations will be used to develop a long-term strategy for the national carrier. The goal is to find the best business model to bring about a sustainable profitability at the national airline. Regardless of which business strategy is adopted there are a number of issues that need to be addressed, some of these would include the fleet, information technology and automation of systems and the financial structure. The challenge will be to find the capital necessary to restructure the airline.

The Government expects to have a fully developed long-term plan for the national airline by the third quarter of this year.

MINISTRY OF TOURISM, ENVIRONMENT & TRANSPORT

CAYMAN TURTLE FARM

The Turtle Farm will continue with the implementation of the Master Redevelopment Plan with upgrades to the visitor areas being undertaken this year.

The Farm opened a new outlet in central George Town in January of this year. The location offers visitors and residents the opportunity to purchase the Farm's many unique products from a central location. Information about the Farm, these Islands and other tourist attractions will also be available as a service to visitors.

TOURISM ATTRACTIONS BOARD

The Tourism Attractions Board has added Pirates Week and Hell to the existing Pedro St. James Historic site and the Queen Elizabeth II Botanic Park.

A site manager has been appointed at Pedro St. James and a marketing programme, for all units of the Board, is being developed in conjunction with the Department of Tourism locally and overseas. At Pedro St. James, equipment is being acquired to provide all facilities for site rentals, the front entrance is being enhanced, a comprehensive craft centre created, and a strolling musician will be on site during peak hours. The restaurant facility at Pedro will be upgraded and expanded, with the eventual aim being an upscale dining facility taking advantage of the unique scenic attributes of the site.

At the Botanic Park, additional gardens are being developed and a small portion of land is being acquired to meet the need for expanded tour bus parking. Special events will be expanded and a full colour coffee table book on the Park is being produced. Due to the Botanic Park's high demand for irrigation water (approximately one million gallons per year) there is pressing need to acquire piped water to the site.

FIRE SERVICES

The Cayman Islands Fire Service will continue to give priority to the development of its human resources. During 2001, six Middle Managers and Supervisors will be attending advanced courses in fire fighting and rescue at institutions in the U.K. and three officers will be attending a Breathing Apparatus Repair Course in the United States.

To reduce the response time to the Bodden Town district, the feasibility of establishing a substation in that district will be pursued.

The present fire hydrant system will be extended to the outer districts and replaced where necessary.

A review of the existing Fire Code, which is now over 7 years old, will be carried out with a view to adapting the most current editions of the SBCCI (International) Code.

DEPARTMENT OF TOURISM

A global review at the Department of Tourism will be undertaken during this year to ensure that the tourism efforts of the Government, coupled with its private sector interface, are capable of delivering sustainable tourism services.

The Department will continue to strengthen its current web activities utilising this medium to communicate more effectively with its customers.

The Government will support and advance the approved Ritz-Carlton development project and explore other opportunities to diversify our tourist accommodation offerings.

The Ministry of Tourism will be leading the development of a Co-operative to help smaller independent operators improve their reach in the tourism market.

DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENT

In 2001 the Department of Environment will continue on-going projects and programmes aimed at enabling sustainable management of our natural environment and resources. April of this year will be 15 years since the establishment of Marine Parks in the Cayman Islands and the Department plans to carry out a review of the Parks which will involve consultation with focus groups, as well as the general public. Government will adopt an Environmental Charter for the Cayman Islands as called for in the White Paper.

In addition, the Department will finalize preparation of draft comprehensive environmental legislation which will provide a more effective legal framework with which to address the environmental issues the Cayman Islands now face. The new legislation will also allow obligations under international conservation agreements to be met, while keeping in mind Cayman's need for striking a balance between sustainable development and our very important environmental sensitivities.

VEHICLE LICENSING AND TRANSPORT

It is the desire of the Government to proceed with decentralization into the Bodden Town area and formal architectural plans and budgeting of the first phase is intended to come next year.

The Government's plans for 2001 include the development of certain aspects of the Traffic Law. Objectives would cover:

1. Provision of set times for movement of backhoes and other slow moving equipment, along major roads;
2. Improvement of the regulation and enforcement of Public Transport, including uniforms for persons involved in this industry; and,
3. Provision of regulations for the better enforcement of revenue collection measures.

As the George Town Licensing Office has now outgrown its current site and creates serious congestion problems, a Project Definition Document will be developed in 2001, subject to budgetary approval, to relocate this office.

PORT AUTHORITY

There is a need to expand and improve the port facility in George Town. In that respect the plans for its expansion are being reviewed in an attempt to provide a more efficient operation in respect of cargo facilities and the very important issue of the handling of our cruise ship passengers.

The Authority will also examine the hours of operation of the Port facilities in an attempt to provide a more efficient service to the public.

CIVIL AVIATION AUTHORITY

Many of the projects earmarked for last year were not completed and are therefore being brought forward to year 2001. These will include: the Terminal Hurricane Proofing, a Wastewater Treatment Plant, and an Express Cargo Terminal at Owen Roberts International Airport plus a Runway Rehabilitation Project at Gerrard-Smith International Airport on the Brac.

The Ministry has also announced bold initiatives for the future development of our aviation infrastructure over the next few years to meet future capacity demands and to enhance the safety of our airports. These include: -

Firstly, expansion of the Owen Roberts Passenger Terminal;

Secondly, extension of the runway and construction of a parallel taxiway at Owen Roberts;

Thirdly, additional navigational facilities at Owen Roberts; and,

Lastly, improved air traffic management facilities.

Approval was granted last year for the Little Cayman Airport Development Project and preliminary works such as necessary boundary surveys have been undertaken. However, the immediate continuance of this development will be subject to review in light of the proposed development focus at Owen Roberts.

Following an International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) regulatory oversight audit of the United Kingdom in July 2000, the UK and its Territories will be subjected to regulatory changes in order to fully comply with international standards and recommended practices. This will involve a study being undertaken by the UK, beginning in March 2001, of the regulatory functions of aviation in its Territories after which appropriate recommendations will be made.

AIDB/HOUSING DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

It is expected that a legal entity to effect the merger of the functions of both the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board (AIDB) and the Housing Development Corporation (HDC) will take place during the year 2001.

The merged institution will enhance its efforts geared, inter alia, at facilitating greater economic development in agriculture, industry, tourism, housing, as well as the promotion of human resource development, and in particular the assistance to small local entrepreneurs.

One of the main objectives of the HDC during 2001, will be the compilation of a 10-Year National Housing Strategic Plan which will take into account the various levels of housing needs. A housing demand survey will form a part of this information database. The Corporation will also be assuming the responsibility for administering the Government Guaranteed Home Mortgage Scheme that is currently being administered by the Department of Finance, and will redesign and improve the Scheme to make it more attractive to low income borrowers.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

The Ministry of Health and Information Technology anticipates the achievements of the following objectives in 2001:

STRATEGIC PLANNING

The Ministry will continue to place emphasis on the implementation of the Strategic Plans for Health and Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation

Detailed discussions will take place with Cable and Wireless concerning the provision of state of the art telecommunications at competitive prices. The report of the e-Business Advisory Board Subcommittee on Infrastructure will be studied, and recommendations made on the likely benefits, or otherwise, of the partial or complete liberalization of telecommunications.

LEGISLATION

The following legislation will be presented to the Legislative Assembly for approval:

- Revised Regulations to accompany the Health Services Fees Law 1999
- A revised Mental Health Law
- A revised Health Practitioners' Law and accompanying Regulations
- The Telecommunications Bill
- A revised Pharmacy Law with accompanying Regulations; and
- The Regulations for the Electronic Transactions Law, 2000

Legislation giving the Minister of Information Technology the authority to authorize, prohibit or regulate the registration and use of the ky domain name will be brought as an amendment to the Electronic Transactions Law 2000.

MENTAL HEALTH AND GERIATRIC FACILITY

Subject to approval by Finance Committee, the Ministry will oversee the commencement of construction of an in-patient Mental Health and Geriatric facility.

HEALTH SERVICES DEPARTMENT

The Health Services will continue its quest to provide care that is of high quality, technically proficient and safe, and will accord high priority to health promotion, patient education, disease prevention and ambulatory care. Mental Health Services will also be given significant emphasis this year.

A Health Needs Assessment for Grand Cayman will be conducted in 2001. This will take account of the incidences of disease as well as the views of the community. The findings of the assessment will inform the strategic plan for health.

It is anticipated that an accreditation system for the service will be introduced during the year 2001 to ensure that the Department is maintaining standards to improve the quality of care provided to patients.

The Dental Service for the Sister Islands will be enhanced with the upgrade of facilities on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman plus the provision of a full-time Dental Officer, subject to funds being available.

The recent appointment of a new Medical Officer in Charge of the Sister Islands Health Services will improve the efficiency of those services. Plans will be developed to provide additional facilities for Pharmacy, Outpatients, Physiotherapy, X-ray, Emergency Room and Administration.

The Department will host a Health Services Career Week in September with various activities designed to promote among Year 10 and Year 11 students from all schools the possibility of careers in the Health Services Department.

Provision of hyperbaric services for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will be further explored this year.

THE INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY STRATEGY UNIT

This year the Information Technology Strategy Unit (ITSU) will be responsible for leading Government's e-Business Initiative.

In conjunction with the e-Business Advisory Board, the Strategy Unit will develop and implement a plan for the marketing and promotion of the Cayman Islands as the premier offshore e-Business centre. It is hoped that a joint Government and Chamber of Commerce website promoting e-Business will be launched shortly.

A code of practice covering e-Business service providers will be published this year.

Consultation with the private sector on a Bill to introduce mandatory data protection legislation will be undertaken, and a study to assess the need for a strengthening of our laws on intellectual property rights, copyright and trademarks will be completed.

A survey will be carried out to establish the current and anticipated requirement for highly skilled Information Technology professionals, together with an estimate of a number of Caymanians currently possessing these skills or due to enter the workforce over the next few years. The results will be used to develop policies covering such issues as scholarships, on-the-job training, further education and work permits.

COMPUTER SERVICES DEPARTMENT

The Department will increase its focus on assisting other departments to meet their business objectives while improving the efficiency and quality of services being delivered. The provision to the general public of access to Government forms and information online will commence this year.

Recognising that 'Information Technology' solutions are integral to the delivery of several key government services, Computer Services is implementing a multiyear disaster tolerant programme. This year, a backup main database server and backup equipment to allow information to be saved and secured within hurricane timescales is to be implemented, which would reduce the high costs and negative publicity following any loss of IT services.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS UNIT

At the Telecommunications Unit, the application process for receiving broadcasting licences has been streamlined and matters that have been outstanding will be "fast-tracked". The granting of new licences will result in further revenue to Government.

The Integrated Government Telephone System will be further expanded to cover most of the major departments in the George Town area.

DEPARTMENT OF SUBSTANCE ABUSE SERVICES

As a complement to the intensive three-week inpatient treatment programme, a day treatment programme supported by an on-site childcare facility will be implemented at Caribbean Haven Residential Centre.

The Department expects to work closely with the new Drug Court to provide treatment for individuals whose substance abuse has resulted in their falling foul of the Law.

NATIONAL DRUG COUNCIL

The establishment of the first Community Intervention Programme at the Scranton site will be supplemented by planned facilities in West Bay, Cayman Brac and North Side this year.

The publication of the second round of the Student Drug Use Survey this year will allow for the examination of trends and emerging patterns and will help to determine the effectiveness of substance abuse reduction programmes.

The NDC will promote the incorporation of the National Database System of the United Nations Drug Control Programme in the Cayman Islands to help global co-ordination and control of trade in precursor chemicals, those elements used in the production of synthetic drugs.

The NDC, finally, will host a regional conference on the subject of substance abuse this year.

CONCLUSION

Honourable Speaker, Honourable Members, as I conclude this my second Speech from the Throne may I record officially my deep appreciation of the efforts made by all those people who were involved in the compilation, editing and completion of the finished product.

As you now embark on the First Meeting of the new Session of the Legislative Assembly, I pray that the wisdom and compassion of the Almighty will inform your important deliberations. May the Lord continue to direct and nurture all the people of this beloved Isle of Cayman.

Thank you.

---

DEPARTURE OF HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR

Serjeant-at-Arms (Mace-bearer)

The Speaker

His Excellency the Governor

Mrs. Smith

The Aide-de-Camp

The Chief Justice

Mrs. Smellie

Mrs. Kirkconnell

Minister

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.01 AM

The Serjeant-at-Arms: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

It is my pleasure to recognise and welcome a delegation from Triple C School headed by its Director, Mrs. Marjorie Ebanks, who has for many years been a member of the Education profession and of the Education Council. Your interest in parliamentary procedure is appreciated, and once again we welcome you.

I would also like to welcome the Speaker we had at the Parliamentary Prayer Breakfast yesterday, Mr. Jim Slattery, from Washington D.C. We are glad to have you and thank you for your presence.

At this time I will call upon the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport, the Father of our House, to move a resolution to the deferral of the debate on the Throne Speech.

Honourable Minister for Tourism.

MOTION FOR DEFERRAL OF THE DEBATE OF THE THRONE SPEECH

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I am pleased to move that:
“BE IT RESOLVED that this Honourable Legislative Assembly record its grateful thanks to His Excellency the Governor for the Address delivered at this meeting.

“BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the debate on the Address delivered by His Excellency the Governor be deferred until Monday, 26 March 2001.”

The Speaker: If there is no debate, I shall put the question:

“BE IT RESOLVED that this Honourable Legislative Assembly record its grateful thanks to His Excellency the Governor for the Address delivered at this meeting.

“BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the debate on the Address delivered by His Excellency the Governor be deferred until Monday, 26 March 2001.”

No debate? Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion is passed.

I will now call upon the Honourable Minister for Planning, Communication and Works to move the adjournment of this House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday, 14 March 2001 at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 14 March 2001 at 10.00 AM.

Before putting the question I would like to recognise the Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The 2001 Budget Address and its accompanying Appropriation Bill were originally slated for presentation to the Legislative Assembly this morning. With the support of all Honourable Members it is proposed that this presentation be delayed until the 21st of March.

This postponement is required in order to facilitate the continuation of the necessary work to produce a balanced budget and the need to fully assess the 2001 Budget within the context of fiscal projections for the next three years.

Mr. Speaker, the Government holds the firm view that greater emphasis must be placed upon presenting attainable budget targets to this Honourable House and country. As such, the 2001 budget will be presented in a medium term context and in a way that more realistically reflects Government's current and projected financial position.

These are indeed challenging times for public finances. The demand for public services continues to increase steadily. Against this backdrop, Mr. Speaker, the Government is very much aware of the potential impact that the national budget has on the domestic economy. Any set of measures that the Government proposes has to take into full consideration the availability of public revenues, public expenditure growth management and other fiscal measures that are required to promote sustainable economic growth whilst providing much needed public services. This work is ongoing and it is expected to be completed in time to allow for the Budget to be presented on the 21st March, this year.

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: For the benefit of the record I would like to record the apologies of the Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology, who is overseas recuperating from an operation. In speaking with him a day ago, he asked that I convey his best wishes to all the people of the Cayman Islands.

At this time I shall now put the question that the House do adjourn until the 14th March 2001. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. This Honourable House stands adjourned until 14th March 2001 at 10am.

AT 11.12 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 14 MARCH 2001.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
WEDNESDAY
14 MARCH 2001
10.07 AM
Second Sitting

[Prayers read by the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman]

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Legislative Assembly is in session.

Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Administration of Oath, Oath of Allegiance to Mr. Samuel Bulgin, Solicitor General, to be the Acting Honourable Second Official Member.

Mr. Bulgin, would you come forward to the Clerk's table?

All Honourable Members please stand.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

(Mr. Samuel Bulgin)

Mr. Samuel Bulgin: I, Samuel Bulgin, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to law, so help me God.

The Speaker: Mr. Bulgin on behalf of all Honourable Members I welcome you to this House for the time of your service. Please take your seat as the Honourable Acting Second Official Member.

All Honourable Members please be seated.

Item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Honourable Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies from the Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology, who is sick and recuperating overseas from an operation.

COMMONWEALTH DAY MESSAGE 2001

FROM HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN
HEAD OF THE COMMONWEALTH

The Speaker: Item number 4, Commonwealth Message 2001 from Her Majesty the Queen, Head of the Commonwealth.

It gives me great pleasure to read a message of Commonwealth Day 2001 from Her Majesty the Queen, Head of the Commonwealth. I quote:

"The theme this year — A New Generation — captures the reality of a young Commonwealth. More than half of our 1.7 billion people are under the age of twenty-five. They are the future of the organisation

"These young people face a world of challenge and change. Many must cope with a life where even the basics of human existence—food, shelter and clean water—are far from guaranteed, or in very short supply. Others have had their lives blighted by war, disease, or environmental damage. Far too few enjoy the prospect of a decent education, or work which can give expression to their talents and energies.

"Yet for all its ills and difficulties the world of the new generation also offers opportunities: instant communication, the transfer of knowledge, and advances in science and technology which, if applied sensibly, can help people achieve a more fulfilling life.

"Despite all these opportunities, we still seem transfixed by our differences. This is where our young people are so important. They know there are many problems which can only be resolved when people in different countries work together. I hope we can persuade them that the Commonwealth, whose very strength is in its diversity, has much to offer them in charting a path across the barriers of race and religion, distance and economic circumstances.

"Making our Commonwealth matter to its younger members is the task for those of us who have lived through its development over the last fifty years or so. I hope that when the ten commonwealth leaders who have been charged with conducting a review of our association's future report to the Summit in Brisbane in six months' time they will bring with them a message of hope and renewal. For what the Commonwealth becomes will depend on its success in addressing itself to the new generation; capturing their imagination; finding their vision; and enlisting their energy and commitment to an association which I believe can be as important to the twenty-first century as it has been to the twentieth.

"Signed Elizabeth R.
"12 March 2001."

The Speaker: Item number 5 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No.1 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 1

No. 1: Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications and Works what is the remaining expected life of the Government landfill and what are the plans for the future with regards to landfill.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Department of Environmental Health commissioned two recent topographic surveys (March and November 2000) at the George Town landfill. These surveys were used to determine the rate at which the available landfill volume is consumed and to predict when the available space will be totally exhausted.

The Department has developed a Final Grading Plan for the George Town landfill that is based upon the assumption that:

1. the current footprint or area of the landfill will not be changed;
2. the side slopes will remain as is, typically not exceeding 3:1; and
3. the top elevation will be 50 feet above sea level.

The Final Grading Plan will be achieved in September 2002. This projection does not include the possibility of dramatic waste volumes that may be generated as a result of a disaster such as a hurricane.

Remaining landfill capacity calculations were based upon the assumption that waste tonnage entering the landfill would grow at an annual 5 percent rate. The 1999 estimates placed waste generation at 44,000 tons/year (based on solid waste planning estimates and one-half year of weigh-ins at the landfill). With an annual 5 percent growth rate, waste tonnages would be expected to approach 46,000 tons in the year 2000. In December 2000, the Department of Environmental Health tallied annual weigh scale data for the first full year of weigh-ins. The total was 57,379 tons; Department vehicles collected 40,091 tons of that total. After only one and one-half years of weigh-ins, insufficient data exists to determine whether this is part of an overall trend in waste generation. If so, the landfill capacity calculations will result in less than the two years' capacity remaining.

In response to the year 2000 weigh figures, the Department of Environmental Health examined the potential for stretching the existing footprint slightly north and confirmed that further volume capacity could be achieved. This would be a fallback measure to extend capacity to somewhere between March and August 2003. The Department is, therefore, using an estimated two years' capacity at the George Town landfill as a goal for construction of a new solid waste disposal facility. I emphasise that this is an estimate that must be closely monitored and revised periodically by the Department of Environmental Health as it is difficult to predict the many variables, such as the rate of growth in waste generation, that could impact on this estimate.

In preparation for the eventual closure of the George Town landfill, the Department of Environmental Health has completed an Alternative Systems Analysis on behalf of the Ministry of Planning, Communications and Works. This study characterises the current solid waste system and presents several waste management alternatives for the future and the costs of implementing them. A common thread among all alternatives is the need for a new landfill. I am prepared to table this study for the benefit of the Legislative Assembly and to commence the public debate over future alternatives. In the interim, the Department of Environmental Health will begin a landfill site selection process in preparation for the closure of the George Town landfill within the next two years. A closure plan for the George Town landfill will be prepared by the Department. It will include proposals for future use of the site and a recommended post-closure monitoring protocol.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks: I wonder if the Honourable Member could say approximately how far north the estimate will be taking the landfill, as it creates a concern on my part in regards to the proximity of the North Sound and the effects it could possibly have in that area.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: It is difficult for me to give an exact answer by way of distance to the Member's question. Let me say to the Member, though, that the Head of Department and I—in fact all of the other members of staff who were involved in the 'look-see' as regards to any additions—are very conscious of the very fact he mentioned in his question. There was consultation, I believe, with the Department of Environment to ensure that the risk was not a high risk to increase the capacity going in that direction. If the Member wishes a firm reply in writing, I could get that.

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks: I do not really have any desire for a reply in writing. However, just to clear my mind, if the Minister at some point could arrange for a visit for the rest of the Honourable Members of the House to visit the site.

The Speaker: Please turn it into a question.

Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks: Honourable Minister, would you arrange a visit to the site at your convenience?

The Speaker: Before calling on the Honourable Minister, I would advise Honourable Members to direct your questions to the Chair.

The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Needless to say before I answer I can remember my first day of asking questions but we will all get there, not to worry.

Mr. Speaker, I do not have any problems whatsoever arranging a visit. The analysis that I spoke of in the answer, will be tabled shortly. The original analysis was done from March 2000 but was not presented and tabled in this Legislative Assembly. I am simply getting a few updates done to that analysis because a period of time has passed since then. So in a matter of days, the document will be tabled. In tandem with tabling that document we will make the arrangements for the visit so that Members will have the benefit of being able to read the document and actually have a 'look-see' and be able to get a clear understanding to what the position is.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Could the Minister say if so far the Department of Environmental Health has been able to suggest where a possible site location would be?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, if I may just refer to my answer— please give me a minute.

Just to quickly read the part of the answer so that it will be clear. "A common thread among all alternatives is the need for a new landfill. I am prepared to table this study for the benefit of Members and to commence the public debate over future alternatives. In the interim, the De- partment of Environmental Health will begin a landfill site selection . . ."

So, we have not gone through the process of being able to identify specific locations as yet, but the process that will be used will be one that is public.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, could the Minister say how long this process would take?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: To be truthful, Mr. Speaker, I have not issued any instructions as to timelines as yet. I am waiting to table the document and to speak to all Members of the Legislative Assembly regarding that process so that everyone is on board when it is done.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member of George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, could the Minister say to what extent will the location and size of the site be influenced by other considerations such as alternative methods of disposing of waste?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I think what I heard the Member say was location and size of site?

The Member is wondering how will that influence alternative waste management systems that might be employed.

The fact is there is no answer that I can give at present for that because the Department has not gone that far with the entire process.

This study—just so that I can quickly explain, and as soon as I have tabled it Members will see what I am saying—is to give various alternatives for us to consider. The Department has not taken a fixed position of making a specific recommendation because the dynamics will depend on the policy emanating from the Government in consultation with the Members. The route that is being taken is that there are various alternatives, which we will discuss, have the facts available to us, and then make the necessary decisions.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I will put this into a question. Just for the information of the Minister, the reason why I am asking the question in this manner is because I would like to know if anything was done by the past government. Do we know that the landfill will somehow expire within less than two years? Was anything started—any motion—to alleviate these conditions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am pretty certain that the Third Elected Member for George Town will remember when we were both on the Backbench all the questions that were asked about the landfill and the fact that it would soon be to its maximum capacity.

The study that we had requested, which was promised to be tabled, was done in March 2000. The Department was not in a position to act any further because there were no policy decisions made. The document was not tabled. There was no discussion about the document so it was at a standstill.

At this point in time I am proposing to do the best that I can to move the situation forward so that decisions can be made as timely as possible.

The Speaker: Does any other Member have a supplementary?

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, through you to the Honourable Minister.

I know there is a minimum amount of recycling. Is Government giving consideration to trying to separate the glass, the plastic, the aluminium cans? It has been said in other territories that the glass, especially, can be used for some of the work on the roads. Just recently on CNN I heard that this is being done extensively in parts of the United States. I just wondered if Government could give some consideration and promotion to this area.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I am aware of what the Member has just spoken about and the question, whether it is being considered by the Department. The Department is very conscious and in the process of examining the various alternatives. Information is now being collected (as I speak) to try to determine certain volumes and the practicality of doing just what the Member asked about. But that too will be part and parcel of the options that we will be looking at. We have to see what it is going to cost to do that and what are the benefits to be derived either way: not necessarily by equating it to a dollar bill, but if we are looking at the environmental impacts and volume being occupied and that kind of stuff. That is part and parcel of the document to be tabled and the discussions that will certainly ensue.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Member state if studies have also been conducted to determine the effects of drainage from the George Town landfill on the North Sound, and on the surrounding water table?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I am not certain that I can speak to any specific study. What I do know is that there have been several tests done in the canals, that we call the dikes, to check the quality of the water—to see if there is any contamination. And, there also have been ground water tests done on a regular basis which would be able to determine if there was any underground activity contaminating either the immediate area or extending farther out. I think the Member would be considering the North Sound.

At this point in time there has been no detrimental activity that would cause for great concern. While that statement has been made by me, the others in the Department and the Ministry are very conscious of continuing the practice and that not having the proper base for the landfill there is a risk involved. That is one of the reasons for wanting—not only because of the lack of space—to shift the landfill site as it is a risk not only to the immediate environment but also to the North Sound in the longer term.

The Speaker: I am going to have to limit the supplementaries to two additional.

The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, through you, could the Honourable Minister state whether there is any commission or study that has been done on the air quality surrounding the immediate area of the landfill site? As we all know the decomposing waste will turn into some toxic fumes and generate—

I am just wondering if there has been any commission or study done or if it is an ongoing process?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I cannot say if any study has been done which has brought about a specific result. I am not trying to be generic in the answer. I just don't have the facts in front of me to be able to speak to the question specifically.

I can find that out and if the Member wishes that answer in writing or verbally, whichever he wishes, I will give him the reply.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr.: I would appreciate if the Minister could get the information to the House.

Could I also ask for an undertaking from the Minister that if such a study has not been commissioned if it would be possible to have one done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. As new as I am, Mr. Speaker, I will not get caught into that trap.

I certainly am very conscious of what the Member has asked, but I cannot give a commitment of that nature. What I will commit to is that once the document that I have referred to before is tabled and we begin discussions that all input from Members will be taken into consideration and whatever is reasonable and necessary to do will be done.

The Speaker: Moving on to Question no. 2 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 2

No. 2: Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture if there are any plans to introduce a Trade, Vocational or Technical School so that students passing through the school system without graduating, or other young people, will be able to learn a trade to become productive citizens.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Government has no plans, at present, to do away with the comprehensive system of education where college-bound and non-college bound students are educated together. Government is, however, looking at ways to provide a more meaningful course of study, including qualifications for what is euphemistically called non-academic students. At the same time, the Government has begun to look at an apprenticeship scheme which will combine work and study and at entrepreneurship schemes which will involve young people and boost their skills to enable them to join the workforce.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: First I would like to thank him for this comprehensive answer and to ask the Honourable Minister whether it would be a correct assessment upon reading the question, to come to the conclusion that up until now the Government has had a comprehensive education system.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the present political directorate has inherited a comprehensive system of education and it is my understanding that such a system of education had its genesis in the 1970's.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Minister give the House some indication as to the non-academic courses or areas of study that might be included in teaching the various skills that he has referred to in his answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Currently, there are several non-academic courses being taught: art, home economics, carpentry, auto-mechanics, et cetera.

Mr. Speaker, the reason the Government is taking an interest in this is because it realises that the introduction of these courses is critical to later success. It has been established that we need to pay greater emphasis on the introduction to ensure that we have proper lab facilities and proper workshop facilities. These are the areas that the Government intends to place its emphasis on in the next triennium.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Minister say if the areas he has named, if students have the opportunity of actually taking an examination in these areas or to what level are they taught at the school at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, students have options of taking some of these subjects at either CXC or through the IGCSE examination syndicates.

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Third Elected Member of West Bay.

Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Minister could say at what stage in the student's schooling, whether it is in junior high or when he is ready to come out of high school, will he be introduced to vocational or technical studies?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddén: Students are introduced to these subjects from the time they enter the George Hicks School and they follow through up to the John Gray High School until graduation time.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?
The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Member say after finishing high school—in his most recent answer to the supplementary, he said, “up to the George Hicks High School”—what provisions are in place for continuation after high school in vocational training?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddén: That answer is forthcoming in the answer I have prepared for the next question, if the Honourable Member can wait, Sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O’Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not the subject of information technology is included into the trade, vocational or technical curriculum in any of the schools’ curriculum, be it primary through high school?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddén: It most certainly is, and I apologise to the House because that was my glaring omission.

Mr. Speaker, this Government places great emphasis on information technology and we have embarked upon strengthening the procedures and the system we inherited in terms of information technology. Currently, all of the primary schools have information technology units and we are striving to bring some uniformity to the kinds of equipment used and programmes to which the children are exposed. This continues up through middle school into high school. And, of course, the Community College—with the cooperation of Cable and Wireless and under the auspices of Bill Gates and his organisation—has an excellent programme of continuing education studies in the computer field.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Through you to the Minister responsible for Education, can the Minister provide us with the courses offered at the Cayman Brac High School for the non-academically inclined, and are they in-line and as comprehensive as those offered in Grand Cayman?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, the courses offered at the Cayman Brac High School follow a similar trend as those offered in the high schools on Grand Cayman.

On a recent visit to the Cayman Brac High School, I was impressed with the quality and the enthusiasm of the students. My team and I were entertained at the Bluff Café and treated to a most sumptuous meal by the students in Home Economics—boys as well as girls. Immediately after that they invited us to visit a project which they had embarked upon constructing a storehouse, that is, in the field of carpentry and building technology. So, yes they are. Indeed their success is only limited by the size of the school population.

In terms of information technology at the [Cayman] Brac High School, we are in the process of upgrading and reorganising their computer lab. I think it suffered some kind of damage due to a lightning strike but we should be well on the way to restoring this to its original, if not, improved state.

The Speaker: Do you have a follow-up?

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: You mentioned the IT at the Cayman Brac High School and its equipment. Can the Minister also confirm that the three primary schools in Cayman Brac are adequately equipped with the computers and the support staff for IT?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, it gives me great pleasure to give these answers since I am speaking from a position of knowledge because I personally visited all these schools. I would say that conditions at the Brac for education and educational exposure are excellent because we have small sizes, excellent equipment and pupil/teacher ratio is very low.

Yes, the primary schools in Cayman Brac are well equipped to expose the students to the world of information technology. The examination results at the high school level prove that the teachers at the Brac are doing an excellent job and that the students are receptive and with it, as we say.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, can the Honourable Minister say if that is true also for East End? Does the East End Primary School have sufficient technology equipment available for the learning experience, the exposure experience? And, could the Minister state why the primary schools have Apple- based information technology equipment and the high school, Windows?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: To say that we are equipped to introduce the students from the primary school to the world of information technology is a true statement. However, that statement does not by any means mean to convey the fact that we are in the best position we could be.

The Ministry and the Government are aware of the challenges which we face and I assure all honourable Members that we are working to meet these challenges within the limits of the constraints, which we now face.

I want to specifically refer to East End. The East End Primary School is one of the schools where we still have some challenge. The Honourable Member asking the question, accompanied me along with members of my department (including my Permanent Secretary), when we visited the school. We discussed these problems. I gave the Honourable Member my assurance that the Minister and the Ministry would work to overcome the challenges and indeed we are doing that.

There are some discrepancies between some of the programmes and some of the equipment offered in the primary schools regarding compatibility, with that offered at the High Schools. We are working to bring complete and total compatibility, but Honourable Members will have to realise that the world was not built in a day and it takes us some time. We, in the Education establishment are constantly working to improve the standards and improve performance.

I ask Honourable Members for their patience and understanding.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: This question is directed again to the Honourable Minister for Education. I wonder if he could state for the record what is the policy regarding inviting representatives from the district during district visits, as it was revealed in the last answer that the Member from East End was invited, unlike the First and Second Elected Members from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to whom no invitations were given during the Education visit to the Brac?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I do not think it is accurate to remark that the Honourable Member for East End was invited. I certainly cannot recall extending any personal invitation to him. It is my understanding that he is a regular and frequent visitor to the school. When I arrived there, I found him there and I do not think it was in my place to ask him how he got there, and I did not.

The reason why the First and Second Elected Members for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Brac were not invited on the visit that we made to Cayman Brac was because I told the Permanent Secretary on the first visit I wanted a heart-to-heart talk with the teachers. I preferred to meet them without any of the other representatives being present because I had some things to say to them which would not have been of interest to the other representatives.

The Speaker: Do you have a follow-up?

The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: I wonder if the Honourable Minister could give an undertaking that since he has done the housekeeping on his first official visit that he would undertake to invite First and Second Elected representatives from the district of Cayman Brac on any subsequent visits.

I can undertake for myself that if there comes a time during the meeting that there is a conflict of interest, I have no problem stepping outside and enjoying the cool breeze on the Brac.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I give an undertaking in the interest of transparency and accountability to invite any and all Honourable Members to accompany me on school visits when the visits are of a mutual interest and can be mutually informative. What I do not want to say is that I give an undertaking to invite them at all future visits because sometimes it may not be convenient. Sometimes matters crop up which are of an emergency nature and sometimes they are of such a sensitive nature that it may not be relevant, nor of interest, to Honourable Members to accompany us on those visits. But I can say this much, Honourable Members will be invited at least once per annum to accompany our team from the Ministry when we visit the schools of the various constituencies.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Minister could in the interest of open government, transparency, honesty and all those other things say, whether or not, these seemingly favourable conditions that he has described existing in the schools have been a result of the present or of the past government, or of both?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if the Honourable Member can show me the relevance and association of that question with the substantive question I shall be glad to provide my disposition, Sir.

The Speaker: I will have to limit additional supplementaries to two. Third Elected Member for George Town would you re-phrase your question?

Dr. Frank S. McField: I think that the Minister in answering the question did give us a picture of what was happening in the schools as one which he seems to be rather satisfied with and proud of. And, I was trying to find out how much his government has been able to achieve so far in terms of these results or could he easily say whether or not he came and found those conditions there?

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8)

The Speaker: Before asking the Honourable Member to reply I would appreciate the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) in order that Question Time can continue beyond 11 am.

The floor is open to the motion.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I respectfully beg of you to allow the suspension of the relevant Standing Orders that I may answer the immediate question and all other supplementaries thereafter, Sir.

The Speaker: The question is that we suspend Standing Order 23(7) and (8) in order that Question Time can continue beyond the hour of 11 am. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question Time continuing.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ALLOW QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11 AM.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: I wish to say that I have gone on record publicly to state that at the end of my visits I was pleased with what I found in terms of infrastructure and foundation in most of the schools. I commented, Sir, that generally they were well equipped. The physical plans were reasonably well maintained and I gave credit to past administrations and past political directorates including that of the immediate.

I made no attempt, Mr. Speaker, to claim for myself as Minister, nor for the Government of which I am a part, any credit not due us. Mr. Speaker, I have always practised honesty and graciousness and will be glad to give credit where credit is due. I do not seek to take all the glory, or any glory, for myself – particularly that which is not due me.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, in the defence of the Minister of Education—

The Speaker: Please turn it into a question.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I will, Mr. Speaker. He is right. I learnt of his impending visit that morning from the teachers at that school in East End because I have a very good relationship with the teachers and the principal at the school. I invited myself and he graciously accepted me and I thank him for that.

Mr. Speaker, could the Minister explain to this Honourable House what is the policy with regards to politicians or representatives visiting the schools within the parameters of the school hours and otherwise?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture. I am allowing two additional supplementaries. The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has caught my eye after this one and the Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Hon. Roy Bodden: I thank the Honourable Member for his question and although it puts me on the spot a little now, I am not caught completely flat-footed. This is one of the matters which we are presently discussing and I believe that in keeping with the announced policy of the Government towards openness and transparency it would be good if Honourable Members could visit the schools anytime they wished. However, it is a matter which the Ministry and the Department will have to get together to iron out because there are certain protocols and certain procedures which need to be followed.

First of all, the Education Department is responsible for what happens in the schools and on the school compound on a day-to-day basis. While I as a Minister might not have any objections to politicians or representatives visiting their schools, the matter should first be cleared through the Education Department after consultation with the schools' principals. I undertake to give to Honourable Members a clear and definitive position in writing after I have fully consulted with the Education Department and my Permanent Secretary so that there can be no misunderstanding of what the policy is.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, a supplementary.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, would the Honourable Minister confirm whether or not I was extended an invitation to visit the schools on Grand Cayman and not Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, regrettably, I am not in a position to confirm that. But as regards the visit to the schools in Cayman Brac perhaps it is fortunate that the Honourable Member was not extended an invitation to visit the schools in Cayman Brac because she was already extended an invitation to accompany the Minister for Youth and Community Affairs on her official visit. So, I can hardly see what the big deal is about not being extended a visit to the schools in Cayman Brac since the Honourable Member could not have been in two places at the same time.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Mr. Speaker, would the Honourable Minister state what the situation is in regards to technical and vocational training opportunities to schools on Little Cayman?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it looks like I am paying for my old sins today. [Laughter]

What exists on Little Cayman can hardly be described as a school. It is a facility which caters to the education of two children and they are at the very early stages of elementary school. The population of Little Cayman does not justify any greater educational investment at the time than that, so we do not have the challenge of providing technical and vocational education for the students on Little Cayman at this time.

The Speaker: Moving on to Question No. 3 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO.3

No. 3: Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture what technical/vocational courses are available at the Community College and what is the current enrolment in each, broken down by country of origin.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: (See Appendix I)

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I think today should be noted as an occasion where Caymanians seem to be in the majority in the information that the only Minister has given us in regards to these courses.

The question that I would like to ask is whether in these various subjects all spaces are filled, or if indeed there is more capacity for persons to enter these fields of study?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: I would like to assure the Honourable Member that it is my information that there is more space for, hopefully, Caymanians who are desirous of enrolling in these courses.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Minister say based on his answer whether or not the Community College is at its full capacity physically? If so, are there any plans for expansion of the Community College?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: It gives me great pleasure to inform Honourable Members that the Community College was developed as an institution to provide immediate access to tertiary level education and professional training for working Caymanians. As such, it is a showpiece that one and all can be proud of.

Recently, I had the pleasure of appointing a new board to the College and sitting with them briefly at the first Board Meeting along with the President of the College. And, I have been subsequently informed that the future of the Community College is a rosy one.

The College is not up to capacity. Expansion plans are on the way. They are practical plans and Honourable Members can look forward to the college even rising to greater heights.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town. Do you have a follow-up?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: No, it is a new question.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Mr. Speaker, can the Minister state what is offered in Cayman Brac compared to what is offered in Grand Cayman for the opportunity of its citizens to have equal access to tertiary education immediately?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, unfortunately, the offering at this level over at Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has to be limited because of the size. However, I take great pleasure in informing the Honourable Member that Cayman Brac students, where they qualify, have full access to a $12,000 scholarship, which allows them to access these courses at the Community College of the Cayman Islands.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Member say if any of the subjects listed here are done through distance learning?

And, is there any intention in the future to restart areas of vocational training in the building trades, hotel training and so on, which I understand is no longer carried on there and which the college started out with?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: The answer to the first part of the question is that none of these courses are done through distant learning. There is a collaborative effort on the part of the Community College of the Cayman Islands and the University of the West Indies in some courses—including degree courses—where distance learning takes place and the Community College facilities and some of its staff are used for tutoring. As I understand it, that is a collaborative effort between the Community College of the Cayman Islands and the University of the West Indies. It is called UWID-ITE—University of the West Indies Distance Learning Education Project.

If there is a demand, certainly, the College is equipped to cater to some of these courses including hospitality courses. There is a fully equipped kitchen and Honourable Members will know that several years ago the hotel school was operated out of there. It is my understanding that demand fell off.

In recent times I have been speaking with my colleague, the Minister of Tourism, with the view to resuscitating this on a formal and practical way which will be enticing and interesting to the students.

As I understand it, the problem is this: there is a gap between what happens at the technical and vocational level at the secondary schools. As a result of that, it is difficult to just on a cold-turkey-basis introduce these courses at the Community College and expect the full participation of students, who may not have had continuous exposure and developed an interest at earlier levels. It is the proposal and plan of the Government to reformulate the system so that there is introduction at the middle school level followed through the John Gray High School then up into the Community College. This will whet the appetites and interests of the students to such an extent that they will develop a continuing interest in these areas and there won't be any problem of lack of interest at the high school level.

The Speaker: In the interest of time I am going to have to limit this to three additional supplementaries.
The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Mr. Speaker, it certainly is heartening to hear the last response from the Minister. Through you, can the Minister state how long the Construction Technology Certificate, Electrical Technology Certificate and the Hospitality Studies Course run?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Certificate courses are of one-year duration and diploma courses are of two-year duration.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable Minister inform this House how many students graduated from the John Gray High School for the school year 2000?

The Speaker: I do not think that is directly related to the substantive answer but if the Minister wishes to answer he may. The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if this is what my friends are doing me, can you imagine what other people are going to do me? Unfortunately, and regrettably, I am not in a position to answer that question at this time, Sir.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I appreciate that fact, however, being a relatively young person I can inform the Minister that in 1989 when I graduated there were over 300 students. One would think there would have been growth since then and so, Mr. Speaker, the reason for asking that question is simply because if you look at the number of Caymanians enrolled in what is termed the vocational programme, it comes up to some 55.

I was just a bit disheartened at the low enrolment considering that we have hundreds of high school students graduating, not to mention that we also have high school students graduating on Cayman Brac as well.

The Speaker: Please turn that into a question because this is Question Time.

The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you. Can the Minister state whether or not it is a fact that government policy now requires that when one is given a scholarship to pursue a discipline he must spend two years in the Community College to obtain an associate's degree?

The Speaker: Again, this is outside the ambit of this particular question but if you wish to answer you may.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I can categorically state that is not the policy at this time. However, if the Community College offered courses and particularly, at the associate degree level, which can help the student, then students are encouraged to avail themselves of studies at the Community College.

This is logical for a number of reasons—not the least of which is the confidence of studying at home plus the foreign exchange that can be saved. But the educational authorities recognise that a significant part of tertiary level education is a broadening of the experience and that includes the experience outside of formal learning.

I want to comment, Mr. Speaker, if you will allow me on a point raised by the previous Honourable Member who made a statement or asked a question. The average graduating class of the High School is probably around 300. I do not think that it grew significantly from the time he stated that he graduated. In relation to that, the enrolment at the Community College last year was 2000—80% of which were Caymanians.

Mr. Speaker, I want to say to Honourable Members that we are quite cognisant of the challenges we face in education and some of them are going to be time consuming and difficult, but they are not insurmountable. Honourable Members should rest assured that they have an educator and a practitioner as Minister and with my team, I am sure that the results we are going to deliver are going to be pleasing and satisfactory to the House and to the country as a whole. We just need a little time and understanding, and Honourable Members will be apprised and informed as will the public.

Thank you, sir.

The Speaker: Moving on to Question No. 4 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 4

No. 4: Mr. Rolston M. Anglin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport what is the subsidy at Pedro St James Castle and the total number of visitors and visitor revenue in 1999 and 2000, broken down by cruise ship and local resident.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The Government subsidy, total number of visitors and revenue generated for Pedro St. James for the year 1999 and 2000 was as follows:

|                                      | 1999    | 2000    |
|--------------------------------------|---------|---------|
| Subsidy                              | 619,778 | 643,617 |
| Total number of visitors to the site | 23,300  | 25,077  |
| Total visitors' revenue              | 210,131 | 240,418 |

The present entry and accounting systems do not determine between the status of visitors and revenue generated. Thus, it is difficult to give a breakdown of local residents and cruise ship visitors and revenue received from cruise ship business.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: Would the Minister be able to say whether or not the number of visitors and the revenue generated for the years 1999 and 2000 are meeting the projections?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Perhaps the Member could say what projections he is talking about.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: Mr. Speaker, if my memory serves me correctly there were certain projections made about the number of visitors in revenue, and, therefore the viability of the Pedro St. James project when that project was undertaken.

So, my question to the Honourable Minister is, can he state whether or not the number of visitors in revenue for the years, 1999 and 2000 accord with the projections which were made at the time that the project was proposed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: As Members know, nothing about this project in the stages of development has gone right. There are no figures to say that . . . In fact, I think everything is just out of whack and we have to take time, turn the position around. There were no marketing programmes in place or use, I should say.

With the new Board in place and new Manager on site and an overall Overseer, I hope to turn this around by next year. At least, when I say turn around let me clarify that—to increase visitors to the site.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town, a supplementary.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: Is the Honourable Minister in a position to say what the recurrent cost of operating the Pedro St. James' attraction is currently?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: What I will have to do is to find out and get it to him in writing because I do not have that readily available to me at this time. As I said earlier, the subsidy is quite substantial, as Members can see.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: The Minister mentioned that there is a new Manager at Pedro St. James. Could he say who that person is and when did that person become the Manager at Pedro St. James?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The new Manager is an old member of staff—and perhaps the first member of staff—Mr. Carson Ebanks.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say to the House the names of the present committee members for the Board at Pedro Castle?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: It is not part of the question and it has been gazetted, but I will attempt to relate those names to the House.

The Director of Tourism, [Mrs. Angela Martins]; Mr. Kirkland Nixon, Mrs. Karen Hunter; Mrs. Zeta May Bodden; Mrs. Orilee Ebanks and Mrs. Deidre Seymour.

The Speaker: The Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: It appears to me that based on the statistics that were provided for that answer, we are collecting less than ten dollars from each visitor to Pedro Castle—that is what it calculates to, a little over $9—and that is within each year as well—the two years asked for.

Mr. Speaker, can the Minister say what steps are being made to enhance the spending of the visitors at the Pedro Castle?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: That is a good question, but first of all we have to get visitors to the site before we can get them spending. We are working on an aggressive marketing programme with cruise ships, et cetera.

Hopefully, we can be successful in getting Pedro Castle to a place where it can become more self-sufficient. At the present time to get the number of visitors increased, we will have to wait and see how effective the new marketing programme will be.

The Speaker: Two additional supplementaries.
The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Member say if we have aggressively advertised for Caymanians for functions like weddings, et cetera, to be held at the Pedro Castle site? Is it a possibility in the future?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, that is a part of the marketing programme, but I can say to the House that so far out of these visitors a good proportion of them would be Caymanian firms who hold special functions and events at Pedro Castle at Christmas time and various times, also marriages and other ceremonies. I just cannot say what the numbers are, but as I said, we do have a new marketing programme and that is all part of it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, I wonder whether the Minister can say whose responsibility it was, as it related to the marketing programme which he indicated was not in place or not used?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: You know, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say to that Honourable Member that perhaps she could tell me because she was part of the former government who ran this project. And, she might have some information to give me because I certainly cannot add anymore to what I have already said.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay, the final supplementary.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Mr. Speaker, can the Minister say how receptive the Cruise industry has been to having the project as part of their tours considering its proximity to the Port?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, there has not been much feedback from the Cruise industry. I have taken the Florida Caribbean Cruise Association to Pedro Castle. We have had meetings there and we have talked about it, but there really is not much feedback. We do get a few visitors from the cruise ships.

What we have had was trouble collecting from the tour operators. The system that was in place, the tour operators had not paid Pedro Castle for like six months. So, we have put a system in place to stop that sort of abuse. But there has not been much feedback as yet. As Members know we have just taken over and I think they need to give us some more time to get our programme on the way.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Moving on to Question No. 5 standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO.5

No. 5: Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr. asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Planning, Communications and Works to state:

- (a) What is the total amount of rent paid annually by Government and its Departments; and
- (b) What plans, if any, are there to improve on this situation by either building or buying additional office space?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Sir.

(a) In the year 2000, Government paid rent totalling $3,361,916. In the year 2001 it is projected that $4,136,489 will be paid.

I will add to that, Mr. Speaker, by saying that projected amount of $4.1 million is not inclusive of several requests from various departments and agencies who are at present really cramped for space but given budget constraints are going to be forced, it seems like, to continue to exist within the existing space that they have.

The answer to section (b) of the question is:

(b) A select committee made up of senior civil servants is currently investigating the options to the increasingly large take-up of space from the private sector. It is estimated that some additional 160,000 square feet of accommodation will be required over the next three to five years. Various statutory authorities are included in this figure, particularly the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange, Monetary Authority and Pensions Board. It is considered that this need can best be met by the construction of purpose-built facilities on existing Crown land adjacent to the present Government Administration Building.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: Mr. Speaker, would the Honourable Minister say whether any consideration is being given to enhancing the existing government buildings to make them more commodious and conducive to productivity?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In order to make them more commodious and conducive, I believe that we have to look at the big picture.

In regards to the two largest accommodations that Government now owns—the Tower Building and the Government Administration, which we know as the Glass House—both buildings are in need of attention. But it is the Tower Building that is in dire straits with regards to the structural integrity and the need to refurbish.

We find ourselves in the position of having to look at a staged development and whenever we are able, to complete a first new structure where we can move the existing tenants from one of these buildings then refurbish that, et cetera. So, while we do not have it fine-tuned at this point in time, what the Member is asking is certainly part and parcel of the big plan. I do not know if we would even find space to shift people from either one of these buildings, but nevertheless the economies of scale dictate that we are going to have to acquire our own accommodation to move them into before we can get to that stage.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Mr. Speaker, could the Minister say whether or not any of the two present facilities, namely, the Glass House and the Tower Building have been condemned?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, if that rumour is spread it is not a fact. The fact is, as I said before, the Tower Building is in more need of structural repairs than the Government Administration Building. It is expected that within 2 - 3 years we will have to do the repairs that are obviously necessary. Recognising that fact, after the structural integrity of the building was tested that is being borne in mind in the whole master plan again.

There are some views to dispose of the Tower Building site but there are also other schools of thought which might allow for people to be vacated from the site and the refurbishing to go on, and it would still accommodate some of the agencies of central government as part and parcel of the whole new accommodation package that we are looking at.

The Speaker: Two additional supplementaries, the Member from East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I wonder if the Minister can say whether the Government intends to purchase already completed properties to accommodate, or will the Government go straight to building its own buildings on the Crown property next to the Glass House?

With regards to the Tower Building, it was no good from the time we bought it and I am just wondering if the school of thought on the disposal of the Tower Building is not a better one in the interest of Government since the parking around Tower Building does not lend to the number of departments currently existing within the Tower Building?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, as the answer states, the Government at this point in time is certainly more disposed to having its own premises constructed on existing Crown land rather than to be purchasing any existing buildings. There are more reasons than one for that disposition which also has to do with the present cash position, but that is not the only consideration.

The second part of the supplementary question regarding the Tower Building and whether it is not best to dispose of it, no final decision has been made on it. The technical people are examining the pros and cons.

With regards to the situation about parking, it is going to totally depend on what agencies are housed in the premises if it is kept, as regards to what the needs are for parking. So all of those considerations are going to be borne in mind. However, the magnitude is one that calls for the equation to be looked at very closely to find what is the right combination as to who goes where and when we do what. All of that is being considered now.

I do not have a problem answering other questions, but let me say to all Members and Ministers today that as soon as we have a position that is very clear as to the way forward—and that is being worked on as we speak—I certainly will let all Members know what that position is. And again, I shall be quite willing to accept any recommendations that may vary from the disposition of the group working together on this.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr.: Could the Minister please state whether all the Government buildings and, specifically, the Glass House and Tower Building, are current with building code regulations, specifically, including fire and safety?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I can truthfully say that is not the case at present. It is an inherited situation for many people, not just me who has just been there. I think Ministers in the past were in the same position. Recognising all of those factors, it is part and parcel of the whole big picture. So when I spoke about the refurbishing of the existing premises, that included bringing it up to the required standards for fire and for all of the other sections which complete the area of building control.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, it is good to hear the Minister say that serious thought is being given to the erection of purpose built buildings for government. I have seen the incredible and unbelievable inadequacies for space in the Glass House. But in keeping with his answer he gave earlier with respect to parking, would the Minister give some undertaking that he would look into the matter of parking right now, at the Glass House (as it is commonly called) and the Tower Building to see if it is possible to provide some percentage of space for the public? It does appear that every single soul in those two buildings claims a parking spot.

I wonder what the policy is, or if there is one, or if the Minister is thinking of developing one in that regard.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let me take it one building at a time. With regards to the Government Administration Building, I think, all of us recognise the inadequacy there with the parking. The only difficulty that we have is, in the short period of time that it is going to take for us to get the master plan for the various pieces of properties that Government has acquired there and to know exactly what is to be located where, it might be more wasteful to provide additional parking by way of paving or filling property and such the like just to deal with parking alone.

Notwithstanding the fact that there is a bitter pain at the moment, with regards to parking, the thought at present is to get the master plan as quickly as possible. Once we know what will go where, even while construction is going on we will be able to address the issue of parking at the Government Administration Building. We will not have to wait until construction is completed. That is the plan for that circumstance.

With regards to the Tower Building, it is a bit more difficult because at present we have not come to a final decision with regards to whether or not the Tower Building site will be kept. Given the situation that obtains at present, I have not been willing to go forward to seek approval to acquire any more property that may adjoin the site at present because I am not so sure whether that is being penny wise and pound foolish.

Decisions that need to be made will be made as soon as we have all the facts together and when we have a better idea of whether it suits us to vacate those premises and to refurbish the entire building including utilising that big hole that is in the middle now. If the structural integrity can be brought to where that is satisfactory, then we will be looking at what the necessary parking requirements are going to be.

I hear what the Member is saying, and while I have experienced what I am sure he is thinking about at present with both sites, I am simply explaining that although we are going forward to bring about solutions, we cannot address parking in an insular fashion because of the other considerations. But for certain, the parking issues are right up front with the other priorities.

The Speaker: Moving on to Question no. 6 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO.6

No. 6: Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development to state if the arrangements with Caribbean Home, the company that currently provides health insurance coverage to Civil Servants and Civil Service Pensioners, is operating satisfactorily.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the insurance arrangements at the time of providing this answer, are not operating satisfactorily.

Recent amendments proposed by Caribbean Home Insurance Company purported to be effective as of 1 March 2001 would significantly vary the benefits from those agreed upon under the original plan which came into effect as at 1 March 2000. As a consequence, this matter has now been turned over to the Legal Department for action.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: Mr. Speaker, would the Honourable Third Official Member say whether or not this unsatisfactory situation has negatively impacted the health insurance coverage for civil servants and civil service pensioners? And, if so, how is this matter being addressed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the proposed modification to the plan would adversely affect civil servants, their dependencies, pensioners and all other entitled cases, if accepted. However, in the interim, a committee has been set up by Executive Council under the Chair of the Permanent Secretary of Health and drawing on expertise from other relevant departments of government to consider the proposal that has been put forward by Caribbean Home and also to make recommendations to the Government.

In the interim, also, those persons who are presently undergoing medical care, or their relatives, or persons associated with them, to be in contact with the Chief Medical Officer so that appropriate arrangements can be made for their continuing medical treatment. And, for continuing medical treatment for civil servants and all entitled, cases are now required to be referred through the Chief Medical Officer until this matter is resolved.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, could the Member say if this now means that Caribbean Home as of 1st March 2001 no longer stands responsibility for medical treatment gained by civil servants and members of their families?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I cannot confirm that position to the Honourable Member. As I said, the matter has been referred for legal action. There is a contractual arrangement between the Government and Caribbean Home. Caribbean Home has sought to modify that arrangement. What's been done has not been accepted by the Government; therefore the matter has been referred to the Legal Department.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, this is simply to know if at the moment Caribbean Home is honouring the original agreement, which would mean that they would be paying for the medical treatment of civil servants and their dependants. Or, is Caribbean Home at the moment honouring the amendment to the agreement?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, because the matter has been referred to the Legal Department, I have information on hand that could answer the questions that have been raised by the Honourable Member. During the break, I could share with him and any other Honourable Members interested in seeing the correspondence.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, would the Member tell the House what happens in the instance of an emergency? How quickly can the Chief Medical Officer (or someone filling his absence) give authority to proceed with a particular treatment?

Would the Member undertake to make available to Members of the House copies of the contract between Government and this particular health insurance company?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: There is a 24-hour line that has been established. Civil servants and all entitled cases have been advised of that number in the event of an emergency. A copy of the agreement that was entered into can be made available to Honourable Members.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, I wonder whether he could say if the Medical Officer has designated someone on Cayman Brac for such authorisation or whether that too has to be channelled through the Chief Medical Officer in Grand Cayman?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, all enquires will have to be channelled through the Chief Medical Officer.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?

If no further supplementaries, we will move on to Question No. 7 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO.7

No. 7: Dr. Frank S. McField asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture what International Labour Organisations' Conventions are the Cayman Islands a party to as a result of the extensions of these conventions to the Cayman Islands by the United Kingdom Government. And, if we are a party to the International Labour Organisations' Conventions, please say what is being done to assure these conventions are adhered to and the proper reporting procedures to the International Labour Organisations are followed.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: The International Labour Organisation declares that all Members, even if they have not ratified the Conventions in question, have an obligation arising from the very fact of membership in the Organisation to respect, to promote and to realise, in good faith and in accordance with the Constitution, the principles concerning the fundamental rights which are the subject of those Conventions, namely:

- (a) Freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining;
- (b) the elimination of all forms of forced or compulsory labour;
- (c) the effective abolition of child labour; and
- (d) the elimination of discrimination in respect of employment and occupation.

For a number of years the Director of Labour has worked closely with the International Labour Organisation Caribbean Office and has utilised the expertise of that Office in a number of areas including the training of Labour Inspectors and members of the Labour Tribunals and Labour Appeals Tribunal.

Our relationship with that Office includes participation in various surveys and data-gathering activities of the International Labour Organisation (ILO), attendance at conferences, seminars and training institutes and hosting periodic visits by ILO officers. My Ministry intends to continue and, if possible, to strengthen this cordial and beneficial relationship. In addition, we intend as a matter of some priority to conduct a thorough review of our Labour Law to ensure that it is fully in line with the highest international standards.

Mr. Speaker, to this I would like to add that recently the Ministry has received an invitation to send a representative as part of the United Kingdom's delegation to attend a conference of the ILO to be held in Switzerland from June 5th - 21st. It is the intention of the Ministry to find a suitable person to send on this important and informative conference, which is a demonstration of the Ministry's intention and announced policy of continuing to co-operate and to work with the ILO to better improve working conditions and the understanding and relations of labour and employment as regards both the employer and employee in the Cayman Islands.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, please could the Minister say why he did not answer the question? The question asks what ILO conventions are the Cayman Islands a party to as a result of the extensions of these conventions to the Cayman Islands by the United Kingdom government. What conventions are we a party to?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: Mr. Speaker, the Cayman Islands by virtue of their association of the United Kingdom is a party to all of the conventions of the ILO that the United Kingdom is a party to. I do not have the catalogue but I am sure that the Honourable Member will know what some of these conventions are, having to do with some that I read out: Freedom of Association, Freedom to join collective bargaining organisations, Freedom from harassment, Freedom from discrimination and all the other relevant conventions.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: I thank the Minister for giving me a definite answer on the question. Now, I will ask him the second part of the question: What are the reporting procedures and if they are being followed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: Mr. Speaker, if the Honourable Member can explain what he means by reporting procedures—reporting to whom? Reporting to the ILO? Or if the Honourable Member could be a little bit more specific then I would be happy to provide an answer, Sir.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, when we speak of reporting procedures, the ILO in order to assure that the members who are signatory to the conventions are complying with the conventions. Member states usually report the kind of progress being made with regards to these conventions. So, for instance, freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining, what is being done from the point of the Department of Labour in the Cayman Islands to encourage and support persons who are interested in the concept of collective bargaining, which is one of the fundamental principles and rights of the ILO conventions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: Mr. Speaker, one must understand that the Cayman Islands is not a direct signatory to the ILO conventions. The association of the Cayman Islands comes by way of their relationship with the United Kingdom.

That being the case, it is not a requirement of the Cayman Islands to report directly to the ILO in these instances. I can say to the Honourable Member that it is not the position of the Government to encourage or discourage anyone from joining collective bargaining units. Let me state, Mr. Speaker, what I see the position of the Government and what the philosophy of the political directorate is.

The philosophy of this political directorate is that they realise that the relationship is a tripartite relationship. It is employer, employee and then there is the Government. The Government's business is as a facilitator, a provider and an educator. The Government must find itself in a position where it is a neutral and impartial person. The Government must be a referee respected and accepted by both parties.

If the Government would go out and openly encourage people to join trade unions and collective bargaining units then the Government would be compromising its position as a neutral referee—as an impartial body. It would be compromising its position just like if it would go out and side, obviously, with the employers—it would compromise its position.

The Government has to set the mechanism in place so that it is a level and open playing field for those who want to join collective bargaining organisations to do so. But I do not see it as the role of the Government to say to someone to join this collective bargaining and that collective bargaining unit. The Government must make sure that no one is impeded if he wishes to exercise his democratic right to join. Similarly, persons should not be intimidated if they refuse to join.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I hope that my possibility for supplementaries is not limited by the Minister's windy replies.

I would like to ask the Minister if he believes that in order for there to be a tripartite system—and if that is the interest of the Government to have this framework—if he can imagine no ways that the Government could be involved with supporting the concept of collective bargaining by way of assisting persons, and to make sure that persons who are interested are not being intimidated, for instance, in the workplace. And if his reply does not suggest somehow that he is being defensive with regards to the Member's question?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: Mr. Speaker, I am not a judge of my answer so I cannot say if I am defensive or offensive. I am only trying to give an answer that is factual and in keeping with the philosophy of the political directorate.

I reiterate, Government's business, the Labour Law and the policy of the Government must be one that enables persons to practise and perform their democratic rights and responsibilities. Now, if persons are disposed to joining collective bargaining organisations, the Government dare not stand in their way. Certainly, any government I represent I would not put obstacles in their way.

Similarly, if any employer or employing agency tries to prevent anyone from exercising his democratic right to join, then it is the responsibility of the Government to ensure that the law is such that those persons can exercise their democratic rights and join the collective bargaining organisation of their choice.

I know of no case of intimidation which has been brought to my desk where people were prevented from joining any collective bargaining association. If the Honourable Member has such knowledge could he convey it to me formally and I give him my undertaking that I shall act upon it post-haste.

The Speaker: Does any other Member have a supplementary so we can put—

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Could the Minister say if his position with regards to collective bargaining is, as he has stated? Does that mean then that he will bring an amendment to the Labour Law to allow collective bargaining to be formally recognised as part of the laws of the Cayman Islands and not just a principle that the Cayman Islands Government is a party to by virtue of the United Kingdom being a party to the ILO convention?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: Mr. Speaker, one will have to understand in this case that any labour law that is drafted in the Cayman Islands has to be in keeping with the relationship of the United Kingdom being a signatory to ILO conventions. Therefore, it would be unwise for anyone to draft a labour law in the Cayman Islands, which is ultra vires that relationship because it would be a waste of time. And I am not prepared to be a time-waster.

I see no reason for there to be any more specific clause or conjunction than to say that it is a fundamental human right of persons to be allowed to join collective bargaining units. That does not have to be etched in stone or written in blood. It is an accepted fact.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?

No further supplementaries, we will move on to Question No. 8 standing in the name of the Elected Member for East End.

QUESTION NO.8

No. 8:Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports if the Department of Social Services has any officers stationed, or even working part-time, in districts outside of George Town.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: There are seven Community Development Officers throughout the districts. Two are assigned to the district of George Town; one to West Bay; one to Boddan Town; one to East End; one to North Side; and one to Cayman Brac, but there are currently no Social Workers stationed in the districts outside George Town. All Social Workers, however, visit the districts to work with their clients and their families. The Community Development Coordinator is a qualified Social Worker with 20-odd years' experience and she works along with her staff, the Community Development Officers, who have had some social training, in all the districts. In instances where the cases require more in-depth work and follow-up, clients are referred to the Department.

In the near future the Department intends to assign Social Workers to work in each district half a day per week. This will be closely monitored to determine if the hours need to be increased.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say with regards to these social workers, do people have to come all the way into George Town, from East End, North Side, West Bay and the other districts? Or does the social worker go to the referrals in the outer districts?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, this is done upon a needs basis. If the persons required for interviews are capable of coming into George Town then they do so; if not, a social worker will visit those persons in their districts.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries?
The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Mr. Speaker, can I then determine from the answer provided that the Social Services Department in Cayman Brac would be comprised of a community development officer rather than social service workers?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, it is really good that I have the personality that I have, seeing that I just visited the Social Services Department in Cayman Brac with both representatives from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

We have two social workers in Cayman Brac in the Social Services Department.

The Speaker: The Elected Member from East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: In the latter part of the Honourable Minister's answer, she said that in the near future the department intends to send social workers to work in each district half a day per week. I just wonder if the Minister can state whether locations in each district have been identified for these social workers to be at for that half day per week?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: In reply to this question, discussions have taken place with the Ministry of Health in this regard and they have offered the use of a dedicated room in each health centre, set aside for use by drug counsellors, social workers and any other parapatetic staff in related workers.

Social workers, however, will also be expected to work in the field with clients, singularly, or in collaboration with the respective Community Development Officer.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?
The Member from East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Minister give us some definite time with regards to the near future?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: The Director of Social Services has informed me that it will be by June of this year.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?
If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning. I would suggest that we take the luncheon break at this time and return at 2 pm.
We shall now suspend proceedings until 2 pm.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.29 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.07 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 6 on today's Order Paper, Other Business, Private Member's Motions.

First of all I would ask for the suspension of Standing Order 14(2) out of an abundance of caution, although there is no Government Business on the Order Paper today. Thursdays are set aside for Private Member's Motions.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture would you move the suspension of Standing Order 14(2).

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14(2)

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the suspension of Standing Order 14(2) in order that Private Members' business can be conducted at this time.

The Speaker: The question is that we suspend Standing Order 14(2) in order that we can proceed with Private Members' Motions. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14(2) APPROVED.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 1/01

ESTABLISHMENT OF A SELECT COMMITTEE ON MINIMUM WAGE

The Speaker: Continuing, Private Member's Motion No.1/2001 Establishment of a Select Committee on Minimum Wage to be moved by the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 1/2001 entitled Establishment of a Select Committee on Minimum Wage standing in my name and reading as follows:

"WHEREAS the high cost of living is placing unbearable hardships on many of the hardworking citizens of the Cayman Islands;

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government consider as expeditiously as possible the implementation of a minimum wage to be determined by a Select Committee of the whole House."

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder?
The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks: I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 1/2001 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the mover wish to speak to it?
The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In rising to introduce this Motion, I must say that I am a bit disheartened to have to be bringing a Motion of this nature to be discussed by this Honourable House in this day and age of the much talked about prosperity in these our beautiful Cayman Islands.

In doing my research for this Motion I was amazed to learn that there were Motions attempting to address this major discrepancy in our country from as far back as 1988, 1995, 1998 and 1999. I find it utterly disgusting that from 1988 our legislators were aware that insufficient wages were a problem and causing serious hardships on the people of this country. Here we are a brand new government, in a brand new millennium in the year 2001, and the problem still exists and as expected, the extent and the ramifications of the associated problems have multiplied.

Well, Mr. Speaker, my colleagues and I, in this Honourable House, were elected by our constituents to fix some of these problems that have been used to disadvantage our people for far too long. We all campaigned and were elected on the premise that a change in the government would be a positive change for our people who are our country's greatest asset—especially here in the Cayman Islands with such a small indigenous population.

Mr. Speaker, I feel that as leaders who have been charged with the honourable job of serving our people we have to realise that this duty will often require the making of unpopular decisions in various sections of the society. My feelings, however, are that if all employers in this country were treating their employees fairly then there would be no need for this legislation.

Yes, Mr. Speaker, it is much in the same way that we have the Traffic Law. We do not require the Traffic Law, for the people who are reasonable and understanding, and exercise good judgement, but for those who are selfish and have no regard or respect for their fellow man.

So, I offer no apologies to those sections of the society not supporting such legislation; I feel that for far too long certain groups have used their influence to allow them to take advantage of the situation that exists and to exploit the hardworking people of this country.

Actually, I would like to believe that in a country ranking as the fifth largest financial centre in the world, and boasting of such a high quality of living, that a minimum wage would have very little effect. Hopefully, the majority of the work force already receives a higher amount than the minimum that would be prescribed.

Mr. Speaker, as I said, I would like to believe that is the case and it would be great, but we all know this is not so. I am a new, young Member in this Honourable House and even so, I know that this is not the case. We are all aware of the many employees making $2.50 or $3.00 per hour and for a 40-hour week if we equate that, it works out to somewhere between $100 - $120 per week. We all know that no one can survive on that. So, how do these people survive? Well, most of them work two or three jobs and even though we may find that ambition admirable, there are many negative social effects that are created when an individual has to spend 18 hours a day working.

I am sure that we as politicians are all aware of the many strains involved in these sorts of working arrangements required for survival. Both parents having to work, no time for family bonding, kids left to raise themselves, high rates of divorce, severe health problems and the list goes on and on.

There are also some taking another approach and that is to supplement their salary with some sort of illegal means. This could range from stealing, to buying the illegal lottery. We have to admit that low wages can actually push people into a life of crime.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is important that we also have to acknowledge how the lack of a minimum wage affects our immigration system. Having a national prescribed minimum wage can only eliminate some of the problems that we are having as regards to labour from outside of these islands versus Caymanian labourers. We often hear the argument that the foreign nationals earn more than the Caymanians even for unskilled labour. Yet, there is no way of ascertaining the level of skill or the level of expertise and the differences between those of the foreign nationals and those of the Caymanians.

Another issue that adversely affects this country from an immigration standpoint, is that when employers (in whatever area) seek to hire non-Caymanians to do a job at a much lower wage than a Caymanian would, we are then leaving Caymanians unemployed which causes a strain on our Social Services Department. The people coming here to work for lower wages—higher than most of the countries that they are coming from—we are forcing these people to live in substandard housing which causes grave environmental and safety issues.

In another area where concern has been highlighted is the effect on our marine life. A few days ago I saw some foreign nationals fishing off the shores behind my in-laws. When I saw the size of the fish they were taking, I was enraged. When I approached them about it, they told me they were going to use them to make some soup. The little reef fish they were catching were about 3 inches long—the maximum. Hopefully, the forthcoming regulations on the environmental issues will address this issue to some extent.

I have been to some of the fish supply stores and I have been told that they cannot find hooks that are small enough! The small hooks they get do not last long on the shelves. We know that this is contributing greatly to the depletion of our marine livelihood.

I think that commendations are in order for the stand that the Immigration Board took on establishing a minimum wage for work permit applications, even though there is no minimum wage legislation. It is very good to see that they are aware of the problem and are trying to do something about it, even if the wage set is too low.

Mr. Speaker, we also have to realise that if a person does not feel that he is getting a fair wage for the work that he is expected to perform, the chances are that his performance will falter. This could be part of the problem that has caused people to say that Caymanians are lazy because if Caymanians believe that they are not being paid a fair wage for a fair day's work then they will quite naturally decide that they are going to work according to the pay.

This problem is much more obvious when the situation exists when the Caymanian is working alongside the foreign national and the foreign national is being paid more than the Caymanian. The common complaint is 'this person is being paid more than I am and I have to train him'.

Now, Mr. Speaker, when discussing the minimum wage there are some who may feel the way they implement a minimum wage is by just setting an amount across the board, which would mean that a person could not earn less than that set amount.

However, because of the wide range that would have to be covered, it could actually mean that because the amount would have to be low enough to cover the entire range you could get employers that reduce certain hourly rates that they pay now to the prescribed rate. So, if someone is being paid $10 per hour now, and the minimum wage set across the board was $7 per hour, theoretically that employer could drop the wage to $7 per hour and remain within the law.

There is also the fact that some workers are involved in jobs where gratuities are received and this would also have to be taken into account.

A 1997 report by the Minimum Wage Advisory Committee highlights some of the problems that would be incurred with one wage across the board. I quote:

"It must be noted that wage data submitted by employers indicate that minimum basic hourly wages paid by condominiums are on average significantly higher, approximately 46% for like jobs than those paid by hotels. It must therefore be borne in mind that a fair minimum wage for hotel employees will likely be unfair for condominium employees."

The point, Mr. Speaker, is that a minimum wage across the board will not necessarily satisfy everybody and it could actually hurt some of the employees that we do have now.

What I envisage is a system similar to what exists in the largest single employer in the island now, and that is our Government. The Civil Service has various scales of pay and all of their employees fall within one of these scales. Of course, there is a range within each scale to accommodate the varying levels of skills and experience. This system is also used in all the larger employers like the banks and utility companies.

The purpose of the minimum wage law should be to clearly establish the bottom line in which wages in certain occupation and skills are rested upon. That does not mean for example that because the minimum wage is $6 per hour that a person employed in that particular vocation, occupation or skill will be paid only $6 per hour. What it means is that someone in that particular vocation or skill would be paid no less than $6 per hour as the case may be. But there is a distinct possibility that depending on their experience and qualifications that the person could fit at the upper end of the scale or somewhere in between.

This law would ensure that people in the labour force do not earn less than the stipulated amounts for the respective categories, but that they can earn more depending on their experience and level of skill, et cetera.

Now, Mr. Speaker, in doing the research for this Motion it goes back quite far, so I will try to give a brief history which may save some time in the debate, especially since this House has made a commitment to possibly review our Standing Orders to look at a two-hour time limit. Since that has not been implemented yet and being the first private Member to speak on the Motion I figured I would start off by trying to set that example.

In April of 1997 there was a Minimum Wage Advisory Committee Report that was given to the then Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women and Youth Affairs and Culture. This report was compiled by a committee of twelve members of a cross-section of Government and the private sector. The mandate of this committee was to investigate and enquire into all matters related to the appropriate level of a national minimum basic wage for hotel and condominium employees, and to make recommendations as to the minimum rates of wages, which should be payable to workers in these two types of establishments.

Now, Mr. Speaker, after much research from which the Committee solicited data on minimum wages from all hotels and condominiums on the three Islands—concerning each establishment minimum starting wage by employee position, and after also examining Government's hourly wage rates recommended by the Contractors' Association—the Committee then used the cost-of-living statistics provided by the Government's Statistics Unit and made their recommendations to the government of the day on the 10 April 1997.

Now, after all of this work, time and effort, the government of the day did not have the political will to implement the findings and recommendations of this Committee. So, again, nothing was done and the people continued to suffer.

In July 1998, the First Elected Member from West Bay and the Third Elected Member from Bodden Town brought a Private Member's Motion asking the then Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture to report back to the House on the intentions of the Government as to the implementation of the recommendations of the Report.

Well, Mr. Speaker, the Government amended the Motion to place the issue back into a select committee of the House, of which I am made to understand the Minister was the Chairman, which never met. Then in 2000 the House was prorogued and the select committee fell away. And, once again, our poor Caymanians who were struggling to survive, were forgotten again.

Well, Mr. Speaker, the people have spoken and now those same Members who were bringing these Motions to stop the exploitation of our people in the labour force are now in a position that they can do something for this worthy cause. I dare say, Mr. Speaker, that if nothing is done, their fate could be the same as the last government who did not accept this responsibility seriously enough to do something about it.

So now, Mr. Speaker, since we have come full circle, I have full confidence that this Motion will be accepted by the government of this day, who I hope has the political will to make the difficult decisions and that it will be dealt with in the period as defined, hopefully, within a one-year period.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The floor is now open to debate, does any Member wish to speak?

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Would you wish to give way to the Honourable Minister?

Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I will give way. Sorry about that.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I rise to reply on behalf of the Government as the Minister who has been assigned constitutional responsibility for Labour. I am pleased to say that the Government has instructed me and I did not have to be persuaded to accept the Motion.

The Government realises – and I listened to the Mover – that the time has come in this Country for us to exercise the political will and to make certain statements by our behaviour and by our setting in place certain mechanisms which will serve not only to level the playing field but to encourage the hardworking people of this Country.

I am proud to associate myself with the movements in this Parliament to have a minimum wage implemented. I can safely say that from the time I came here in 1988 this is a movement which has been close to my heart and in much more challenging times, beginning in 1993, 1995 and again in 1998, I have been in all three of those instances associated with Motions calling for the establishment of a minimum wage.

I would hope that we can, within the year, effect this legislation and also that the legislation would be accepted by employers as being fair and reasonable. Certainly, I would see the opportunity arising for them to have some input at the Committee stage, if it goes to the committee, or at some level where their views and concerns can be represented.

Mr. Speaker, to go on any further into the 21st century without an instrument such as this is only contributing to the frustration and only making it easy for those persons who insist on exploiting the system to continue to do so.

In making this statement I recognise the fact that the Cayman Islands is what I call a frontier society. And so, Mr. Speaker, the work, the economy, the society is set up of many different elements and bases—some of them existing in contra distinction to the other, and some of them existing in adversarial relationships with the other. Also, we have to understand that the Cayman Islands came out of a merchant society, where those people who were in a position to provide the capital were always in a dominant position. Modern thinking dictates that production is a partnership—a partnership between those who hold the capital and those who provide the labour. And, as such, the partnership must be one which is mutually advantageous to both parties for it is not unlike a marriage. So, if it is one-sided, it is bound to break down. The thrust and flux of the situation is bound to make it bogged down.

Production is also based on trust and mutual understanding. If people believe they are deprived of a fair day's wage, and yet, they are expected to produce a fair day's wage, the feelings cannot be good on the part of the worker or the labourer. So, we have to come to grips with certain realities. In the past one of the things that spoilt and prevented an amicable solution from being reached was that there were too many persons who only wanted to protect their special interests and were not prepared to come to the table for fair, open and frank negotiations. I would hope, Mr. Speaker, that those persons have been long gone because as a Minister I would frown upon any attempt to deprive hardworking people of the honest day's wage that they should get.

The situation, however, is compounded by the fact that in the Cayman Islands we have many different nationalities recruited and vying for some of these posts. When you have a situation like that, Mr. Speaker, persons who are bent on taking advantage—and notice I did not say exploiting because I am giving the benefit of the doubt—they are sometimes keen to play one faction against the other. Unfortunately, in these kinds of cases while it should not be, the person or group most disadvantaged is the Caymanian. Now, that would not seem obvious because these are the Cayman Islands. But let me put it this way: A Caymanian can afford to demand and hold out for a certain wage.

When you recruit persons who have reasons to emigrate for purely economic reasons, they are much more keen on bargaining and lowering the rate of their wage or their salary than persons who find themselves in the jurisdiction of the work and the employment. So often I hear complaints about people being recruited because they agree to work for a lower wage or lower salaries than Caymanians. There is substance to these complaints. Often upon investigation all hold water. I would hope that when we come to talk about this we can do so in a spirit of honesty and frankness.

And to go back, Mr. Speaker, to the efforts of the past: I cannot understand why it took us this long and these many tries before we could agree that a minimum wage is necessary. Let me hasten to add, less anyone consoles himself in the fact that we have agreed, that the agreement is just the beginning and now we have to work out the mechanics of this situation and get it into legislation and legalise that all can accept. It is here that the wrangling is going to come.

Mr. Speaker, when we come to the Table, I hope that people come with open minds prepared to yield and to understand the position of the other side because there is another side other than the side of the employee. Also, the employers and their representatives can be frank and fair. It is a partnership, Mr. Speaker, which leads me to say that I believe it is a partnership best facilitated by a strong and informed government so that the Government can take a middle of the road position and can ensure both employers and employees, and their representatives that fairness and frankness will be the order of the day. When I say frankness, Mr. Speaker, pardon the pun.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that in a society that touts itself as abiding by Christian principles, as being democratic, and as being fair, the time has come for the establishment of a minimum wage by category. I want to emphasise by category because if there is a blanket minimum wage exactly what the Honourable Mover said will happen is bound to happen. If the minimum wage is struck across the board—if we use just a minimum wage per se, blanket minimum wage—and that minimum wage is arrived at $7 and people are now earning $10 per hour for argument sake, certain persons are going to use the $7 as a licence to lower the wage. So, I specify and emphasise, it must be by category.

[Inaudible interjection by a Member]

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am reminded of what some companies did with the medical insurance and pension fees: they lowered the scales and lowered their contribution when it suited them. This is exactly the kind of practice that needs to be eliminated if our society is to continue to move forward.

Mr. Speaker, we already have an example of this: the Government which is one of the major employers has for its group employees a minimum wage structured by category. Indeed, Mr. Speaker, I can still hear the voice of the now Second Elected Member from Bodden Town reverberating and emphasising that the Government has its minimum wage by category structured and it could be used as an example.

I cannot let politicians get away. I believe that the reason why we are still struggling with this is because politicians lack the political will to do what they know is right. They allowed themselves to be bamboozled, baffled and intimidated by the establishment. It is time we get beyond lip service and get down to the realities of the situation.

Mr. Speaker, this Motion is in the right direction and after at least three false starts that I have categorised and counted, we need now to begin. Perhaps, in his wind-up, the Honourable Mover might like to explain how the mechanics of the exercise should be handled. But I want to say something about select committees and this kind of work. I do not necessarily believe that a select committee would be the best mechanism by which to handle such an exercise although the Select Committee seems almost ideal in the sense that it will open the hearings up and allow all and sundry, who want to contribute to contribute.

In the past however, Mr. Speaker, select committees—if the Hansards and Annals of this Honourable House are to be believed—do not handle certain matters in an ideal way. Indeed many good ideas and good bits of legislation have been buried unceremoniously by taking them to select committees. So, if we go the route of a select committee, we have to ensure that the work of the committee is consistent. It should be done within a reasonable time-line so that the findings of the Committee can be brought forward in time for legislation to be drafted and the law to be put in place. It must not be allowed to drag out for the length of the Parliament and die, as many other important ideas have died particularly in the recent past.

Then, Mr. Speaker, if we ensure that this is done we are about a third of the way towards doing what should have been done a long time ago. I accept the Motion on behalf of the Government and look forward to seeing this long needed piece of legislation put in place so that all those persons, not least of which are hard working Caymanians, can have access to a fair day's wage for a fair day's work.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I am going to try not to be a politician and try to seriously be 'frank' (laughter). We cannot have our cake and eat it too. We know that a select committee of the whole House will create certain types of difficulties because we have had committees of the whole House. And, we know that especially when we have Ministers who will probably be very busy within the next year trying to balance budgets it is not going to be easy for them to find the time to become members of the many select committees that probably will be established by this House during this year and perhaps even more so as we go along.

We have a House, Mr. Speaker, with a lot of interesting ideas and part of the problem that we have as a people is coming to agree not just on the ideas but how they should be implemented. The idea of trying to better the conditions of working people is something that all politicians, even if deep in their hearts they don't believe, must publicly attest to. The majority of the people who vote are working people—people who have to sell their labour and their skills in order to survive. Therefore, in the politics of a country, working people should be the essential playing important roles in the dialogues.

To want to improve the wages of those on the bottom, certainly should be a concern of the Government. It also has to realise that Government in itself, simply because it is empowered to legislate, does not have all the answers to all the problems. It must rely on those persons who are actually practising the roles of employers and employees in the society. If we are going to talk about wages, we have to talk about economics. We have to understand that wages is just one of the many aspects of working conditions.

I heard the Minister this morning answer a question with regards to the collective bargaining concept. The Minister was not willing to say that Government would go to any point to support the establishment or the survival of any kind of bargaining agency for working people, although it has been demonstrated in many countries that such agencies have helped to improve not only wages but also other conditions needing improvement and scrutiny in the workplace.

To say that to create a minimum wage would give the employee who is being exploited a tool to combat poverty and other types of ills that might result from low wages, is not necessarily borne out by comparative literature. For instance, the minimum wage in Jamaica, we understand is around JA$800 per week. That minimum wage in itself does not necessarily stop or prevent the existence of poverty in the society. As a matter of fact, in countries with extreme numbers of unemployed persons and where businesses are trying to cut corners in order to exist, the establishment of a minimum wage often does very little to solve the problem. The minimum wage is established at a level where at the end of the day it does not really provide people with the basic wages to be able to purchase what they need for survival.

So, how then is the minimum wage determined? Can it be determined by the political opinions of government or even the moral outlook of the society? Or are there other considerations that must be taken into account and weighed heavily?

For instance, if tomorrow we were to establish a minimum wage, which is what the mover of this Motion is calling for—a national minimum wage: the Government is saying a minimum wage by category. But let us take the first proposition which I believe is somehow implied by the mover of the Motion.

Mr. Speaker, again I must compliment the mover of the Motion because his heart is in the right direction. He said all the right things, I believe, or has the sincere concerns but the question now is whether or not it can work. And, whether or not in going into the exercise what we are going to be taking into there. There are still some who seem to have made up their minds already about what should be the result of the Select Committee and for that reason I feel it is necessary for me to speak now on the question of a national minimum wage.

For instance, if there was a national minimum wage and we had a large number of Caymanian women working in the private and public sector making perhaps $1,500 per month—which is what we looked at and said that 51% - 56% of the people were making below $1,500 per month—and they decide that they need to work but at the same time they need somebody to work for them. So, what we begin to realise is that this whole thing about employer and employee is not just a situation where you can say that class is the employer and that class is the employee. We are all employers and employees in our own rights and today I am employed . . .

So, I am saying, someone needs a domestic to help and we have some 5,000 domestics on work permits in the Cayman Islands, a typical example. They believe that they could be more efficient in terms of their productivity in the workplace, their ability to look after their children . . . and we were talking today about youth problems and the fact that kids are not being taken care of. No one is going to pay parents to stay home so they are going to have to go to work. And if parents have to go to work, they might be better off having someone to look after their children and to clean their houses, and make sure that when they come home they can 'cock up' their legs a little, rather than being bad-tempered because they have to cook, clean and do all those things.

Now, I know back in my mother's days they used to be able to manage that, but in today's modern world especially when you think about the time you have to spend getting ready to go to work—just to get dressed up the way you should to go to these jobs—you need some kind of assistance in the house. And perhaps even more so in cases where there are single parents because you do not have the men to depend on.

Let us use that as an example: How would a national minimum wage take into consideration the positive or negative impact that such legislation would have on that particular condition in the society? Now, some people would want to say right away, like we were doing with the pension, 'Let's exclude the domestics'. But you get into a situation where it seems as if your laws are not geared to cover everyone but just to cover particular categories of people. Then you get into the imperfections which can occur as a result of these forms of institutionalised discrimination in your society. So, that is one example that I am very concerned about.

But a gardener . . . and a lot of the gardeners that are working here are not Caymanian gardeners, they are gardeners working for landscaping companies that are out there paying a wage. If they had to pay a minimum wage that might be more than they could afford, it would send these companies out of business. You have to remember that at the same time we are talking about Caymanians having the right to create businesses in the Cayman Islands, you have to make it possible for small Caymanian business people also to establish those businesses. Unfortunately, when we come to the view of exploitation, small businesses usually have to start with the person who owns the business, sort of giving their labour to the business until they can afford to employ some cheap labour and then they can move up as they go along. But the profits have to be made out of the exploitation of labour or the employment of labour, to use a much more dignified term.

We understand if the wages which businesses have to pay are higher than what they can afford at the point which they begin, simply because the Government legislates what they must afford, then we are destroying the possibility for Caymanians to be successful entrepreneurs, for young small businesses to start. So, we have to look at where the Caymanians really are in terms of their dependence on cheap labour—in the homes and in the small businesses, the gardening business and the construction businesses. I know a lot of small Caymanian contractors that would not necessarily be better off as a result of that.

Now, this is not to say that I do not recognise that if the human being is treated as an unimportant asset, if labour is seen as something that is cheap and something that should not be trained and rehabilitated then the society is going to lose. But what I am asking is whether or not there is not another approach for this because once we destroy the possibility for flexibility to exist in the market, once we structure the market place by rigid legislation, it takes away the initiative from the social partners that should be responsible for arriving at what is a liveable wage and what is a liveable condition for the employers. Well, in other words, what the employer can afford to pay and what the employee can afford to work for. This should be worked out as much as possible in the modern world between the employer and the employees.

This is the reason why when the Government answers and says that it believes in the tripartite system, the tripartite system would not be seeking at this particular time to legislate for anyone the conditions that should exist in the workplace. But those conditions should be arrived at as a result of mutual discussion between the social partners. The Government would provide the framework for the discussions to take place but the conclusions would be a result of what the parties could agree to.

Now, there are a lot of people in our country who believe that Government should do everything for them. That Government should be out there doing whatever has to be done to solve certain problems rather than their becoming a part of the solution to their own problems. So, there is definitely going to be a strong voice especially after Election when people talk about how they are going to solve all the problems of the community. They will be a strong voice for these types of changes but as time goes on we see that these emergencies usually change.

Mr. Speaker, they change because we realise that Government is only one of the social partners. And there is the business sector that will at one particular point have its input, and it is at the point that things all begin to change again. So, we might be able to criticise previous political directorates and even present ones for what is done or what is not done. But at the end of the day until we reach the point where when we are dealing with conditions in the workplace, we are willing to create conditions for negotiation rather than conditions for legislation, we are not going to get any place. We have to find the happy medium there.

So, if we go by a national minimum wage across the board we are going to have certain problems. If we go where we have it by category, now, who is going to determine what it is going to be like by category? The minimum wage by category is collective bargaining. That is what it is. If the Government can sit down and collectively bargain with the hotel industry as to what the price of labour in the hotel industry should be, is that fairer than allowing the people to be organised in the hotel industry to bargain with the hotel industry as to what the price should be? Which position does the Government want to take?

I understand that most people in here are so afraid of anything that has to do with collective bargaining in any case that they stay far away from it. I was the only one who asked any question with regards to the ILO. But we have a minimum wage and we have everyone in here saying that they are concerned about working people. There are going to be people who perhaps don't even understand why my argument is the way it is since I am the one who is out there professing to be a person who is speaking for working people. But working people need jobs and if they don't have jobs they are worse off so [they] have to think just like business people. Working people have to think about profits and how to maintain profits and therefore how to maintain their jobs. That is what the new labour movement is concerned with.

It is concerned about the partnership between labour and management—a partnership that will breed harmony, productivity and prosperity. Not one that will lead to more rigid legislation, less flexibility in a competitive world that is expanding globally each second. That is not what labour wants. Labour wants the possibility to be able to sit down and negotiate the terms of employment that would lead to the improvement of working conditions including wages. That is what I believe we should be fostering.

If someone believes somehow that because I have this approach that I am not genuinely interested in working people, I think, that they are mistaken. Mr. Speaker, I believe I have taken enough risk out there from the point of view of my political and personal career to support labour initiatives without backing down, without being afraid to have some kind of credibility when I get up here and talk about wages. I have spoken to working people who know a lot about the issue of minimum wage. Many of those persons in the hotel industry are fearful that if there is a minimum wage it will not be as high as what some of them are making sometimes now in the Cayman Islands—at least, Grand Cayman down along the [Seven-Mile-

Beach] toward the West Bay area where they sometimes make $7 - $9 per hour including gratuities.

Mr. Speaker, we understand that the $3.50 and $2+ an hour, that some of these hotels have maintained over a period of time, is rough. It is also because of the prices in the country and not because of the wages. So we cannot just punish the employer who is employing labour and the merchant who is selling goods and services so that he does not have to contribute anything. At the end of the day we need to see that how a person needs to live does not only have to do with the wages but with the prices they have to pay for apartments, mortgages, car loans, electricity bills and water bills, for God sake, that we have to pay for these days - $100+ dollars per month for water.

Those things cause our wages not to go as far as they possibly could if people had a little bit more conscience with regards to pricing. But is the Government going to suggest that they now have price control? Or is it only easy to have wage control? If you fixed wages by category, Mr. Speaker, I do believe that what you are doing is fixing prices because labour is a commodity, an important commodity. If you are able to fix a price and say, 'a secretary is paid this, this is the minimum that a secretary could be paid' and so forth and so on, you would be fixing these prices.

Now, all of this is being done because there are those of us who would like to see the problems that we see existing in our society, especially the social problems, corrected. Low wages are the cause of problems; they cannot buy anything because prices are too high. So let us be fair in approaching this. We know that we have more political support for the wages than we would have for the prices but what we need to do is to begin discussions with those persons who are employing and those persons who are selling goods and services in the society as a whole.

Mr. Speaker, I shall wind up and I am quite sure that there will be some persons speaking after me who will refer you to Section 21 of the Labour Law (2000) Revision, which deals with the question of the national minimum wage and how the framework appears to already be in the law.

For Executive Council to establish a national minimum wage and to also punish persons for not following the minimum wage, the question is, Why hasn't anyone ever tried to do that in the Cayman Islands? Mr. Speaker, we do not want to send the wrong signals. Regardless of what anyone thinks about my movements with unions in this country, I am convinced that what we are saying is that we bargain—we sit down and we talk but we do not legislate. We create flexibility. We preserve that possibility.

So, with us not being able to come up with a substantial amount of money to balance our budget, with people calling me and saying, 'our business is going. We have not had any work in a while.' Small Caymanian companies, Mr. Speaker. But 'if they are going to charge me more to build a house than I can not even employ them.'

We need to make sure that what we are doing is not just acting on impulses and what we feel is right or wrong here. We need to study the problem: to take input. I support it going to a select committee but I have said that in going to the Select Committee we need to go there with a body of knowledge already. We need to involve people who will assist us in making a good decision and not assume that because we are Government and that we have the power to legislate that we have any monopoly on experiences and knowledge.

We need to do something about a living wage in this country, but we also need to encourage people to improve their skills and seeing promotion and the improvement of skills as also a way of improving their wages.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: Mr. Speaker, the Motion currently before this House seeks to appoint a select committee of the whole House to determine a minimum wage for the Cayman Islands and that the Government implement within a one-year time-frame the Committee's recommendations.

Mr. Speaker, without seeking or wishing to disagree with the objective of the Honourable Member who has moved the Motion, I do believe that sending this matter to a select committee of the whole House is not the right way to approach this issue. I do not believe, Mr. Speaker, having had a look at the Labour Law and particularly the two sections to which the Third Elected Member for George Town referred, that a select committee is the correct vehicle by which to achieve the end desired.

The Labour Law and particularly Section 20 sets up the legislative framework by which a national minimum wage is to be fixed. And, if I may say so, it appears to me that framework is mandatory and that there is, in fact, under the current legislation no other way of establishing a national minimum wage.

Mr. Speaker, if I may refer to the statute, Section 20, subsection 1, provides that "Subject to subsection (2) the Governor may by Order, prescribe a National Minimum Basic Wage". So, whether or not a national minimum basic wage is established is a matter for the Governor in Council.

Subsection 2 of Section 20 provides that "An Order under subsection 1 may only be made, varied, amended or revoked after consideration of recommendations made to the Minister by a Minimum Wage Advisory Committee established under Section 21".

Section 21, subsection 1, provides that "The Governor may establish a Minimum Wage Committee to investigate and enquire into all matters related to the appropriate level of a National Minimum Basic Wage and to make recommendations as to minimum rates of wage which should be payable".

So, it seems to me that if the objective of the Motion is to determine what should be the national minimum basic wage, that what is required is for the Governor, which means the Governor in Council—in other words, the political directorate—should "establish a Minimum Wage Advisory Committee to investigate and enquire into" this issue and make the appropriate recommendations to the Minister.

Section 21, subsection 3, provides for the constitution of the committee which "shall consist of not less than eight members who shall be appointed by the Governor and who shall comprise equal numbers of employers and employees, together with such other representatives of such other interests as he may see fit".

So, Mr. Speaker, it is my view that the Select Committee is not the right vehicle to set the minimum wage in this country. That is a function that has by legislation been given over to a combination of the Minimum Wage Advisory Committee and ultimately the Governor in Council.

It is perhaps useful for Members of this Honourable House to debate the issue as to whether or not there should be a national minimum basic wage and I believe that the Motion does provide us with that opportunity. Government has indicated that it does believe that there should be the establishment of such a national minimum basic wage.

Mr. Speaker, as far as I am concerned, the jury is still out on that one for me. I believe it is a matter that should be proceeded with, with a great deal of caution because there is much to be said for the reasons why a national minimum basic wage should be established. The mover of this Motion has done a good job in setting out some of those matters, but there is also the reverse side of the coin which has been alluded to by the Third Elected Member for George Town. There is the real risk that when you fix minimum wages you create a situation where marginal employees become unemployed. There is the question as to whether or not there should be a national basic minimum wage which is what the Labour Law seems to contemplate. And there is the other question as to whether or not you need a minimum wage in relation to various categories of occupations or jobs.

So, Mr. Speaker, I ask all Members of this Honourable House—and Government in particular—to proceed with caution. To think carefully and give much consideration to whether there should in fact be a minimum wage established, and if so, whether we need to think in terms of categories or otherwise.

As I said, Mr. Speaker, I do not believe that the Select Committee is the appropriate means to achieve the end that the Honourable Member who has moved the Motion is seeking. And, for those reasons I would ask the Honourable Member to consider seeking leave of you, Sir, to make the appropriate amendment to his Motion in due course.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to congratulate the mover of this Motion in bringing an issue to the surface that we legislators all take quite seriously, that is, the hardships that our people face. The district I represent probably has some of the lowest wages paid throughout the Cayman Islands and, I, like the Member moving the Motion, am committed to working with my colleague from the Brac and all colleagues in this Honourable House to eliminate such low wages.

The method of achieving what we are all seeking, is to provide our Caymanian people with a living standard that we can all be proud of and feel that we have fulfilled our role as legislators. However, we must be careful that we are not using inappropriate legislation: or using legislation to address symptoms, not problems.

When I look at my district we have low wages but the problem is not the wage—the problem is lack of jobs that allow employers to charge rates below what we would consider acceptable rates of pay. We need to address the problem—not the symptom. To cure the problem we need to increase jobs.

As the Third Elected Member for George Town pointed out, labour is a commodity. It is governed to demand and supply forces like all other commodities, and a price is derived—the price for labour is wage. A price is derived after years and years of moving between the demand and supply, and we reach an equilibrium. That price, that wage, is what the employee is willing to work for and the employer can afford to pay. When that price is reached, we are then in a stable set of the labour market.

When Government takes on the role of trying to legislate what that equilibrium price should be—normally it would be a price above the equilibrium because the legislation would be seeking to increase a price—when I refer to price of labour I am referring to wage. You are setting a situation where employees earning below that minimum wage could effectively be without jobs.

As a legislator responsible for good governance of this country I find it difficult to support anything that I feel would put my people, the people of the Cayman Islands, in a potential situation where they could be without jobs. We could reduce the amount of employed Caymanians if we do not be careful with legislating a minimum wage.

My background as a laissez-faire economist who believes in free movement of wages, of price, as a determining factor for the quantity of employees, dictates to me that we cannot set a precedent by trying to control the wage because we are then setting a precedent of where we are going to start to try to control other aspects of our country—of our economy—which is governed by free movement.

What we need to do as legislators, is to ensure that the tripartite system works—one in which we have a labour market that has no impediments of exit of the market. If an employee is working at an establishment and truly feels that the wage is unacceptable, our system should be strong enough: Government's role through its Labour Department, its Human Resources Department, should ensure that employee has free mobility—can move, can seek and not be discriminated for another job.

As a government we must provide a system so that our people can strive to achieve a higher pay through improving their marketability in the labour force. They can seek some of the vocational training that we were speaking about earlier, some advanced studies to improve their chances. We must ensure that a system is there to bring justice to those individuals who have been exploited and have grievances.

We spoke of Government in this system playing a middle of the role where they are not getting involved with the employer or the employee. However, in this Motion, a minimum wage would be putting Government directly into the labour market and dictating what a minimum wage would be. I urge this Honourable House caution in this regard.

The Motion reads: “WHEREAS the high cost of living is placing unbearable hardships on many of the hardworking citizens of the Cayman Islands.” Emphasis is on the cost of living. We must remember that a wage is the income for the employee, but it is the cost to the employer. When we talk of increasing the cost to the employer, we must remember that we are living in the Cayman Islands and the employer will pass that right back on to the employee. He will go back out to the stores and buy things at a higher cost. So we are not curing the problem; we are addressing these symptoms.

Mr. Speaker, I urge this House to take seriously the fact that we do have 56 percent of our populace earning less than $1,500 per month in an economy that has cost-of-living that we all know cannot be sustained at these low rates of income, but we must address it appropriately. We must address the true problem.

I note that we are in a time of economic slowdown in this country. A time in which we will see greater emphasis put on employers having to tighten their belts, having to look at ways of cutting their costs to survive. When that employer has to cut costs and government is setting a legislative minimum wage that they cannot cut the wage below, they will cut ours. They will cut employees in order to keep their costs under control. Are we truly doing our people justice by providing a minimum wage?

The mover of the Motion spoke of issues such as: discrimination in the labour force, where a Caymanian employee was earning less than the expatri-ate employee. A minimum wage is not the appropriate way in this legislator's opinion to handle that. We must have areas in our labour law to prevent such discrimination. We do not need to mandate a minimum wage.

I also make reference to the mover of the Motion and his acknowledgement of the minimum wage set by the Immigration Department which was established to ensure that those here on work permits were earning enough to sustain themselves. This is using the Immigration Law to enforce what the Immigration Department is about. The Immigration Department is to vet those that are coming across our borders and ensuring that when they are on our shores that they can sustain themselves.

However, our role is a lot different when we are talking of setting up a minimum wage for the entire populace. We cannot make a comparison of the two. The Immigration Department has the responsibility to ensure that each immigrant can support himself. It is a true concern and has been addressed and I support that.

However, for Caymanians, we must subject the labour, the setting of wage, to the economic forces. If we feel that our populace is being paid too low, which we all agree, we must then create extra economic demand for Caymanians and we have mechanisms that we can do so: economic stimulus packages. We can also look at increasing the cost of employing an expatriate through the amendment to the Registry of Fees and Charges to increase the amount paid for a work permit, which would restrict the supply of labour from the foreign component. That in itself would increase the demand of your Caymanian labour and consequently increase the value of that very special commodity.

I always make an analogy when trying to understand the importance of demand and supply: the use of diamonds. Diamonds, Mr. Speaker, is an expensive commodity because there is not a lot of it and a lot of people want it. If there were a sudden discovery of a reservoir of diamonds, the market value would go down. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) restricts the supply of oil to keep its price up. Price is the price of the commodity; wage is the price of the labour.

We have tools as a government to effect the wages paid in our economy through selective and careful restriction on the supply of labour through higher immigration costs. We are looking for sources of revenue—there is a good source. I will make this argument in a more elaborate way during the time of my contribution to the Throne Speech and the Budget Debate. But I truly believe that we can make a big difference for Caymanians by doubling the cost of an immigrant work permit. We will still have the provision—if you want to bring someone in you may, but it is going to cost you. That makes a Caymanian in greater demand because that Caymanian can now be shaped, educated, trained and motivated to fill that job. We have the control over all of these variables. I am of the view that the use of the minimum wage is not the appropriate way of achieving our goal.

Referring to my earlier statement, that we must ensure that legislation is appropriate and make sure that legislation is addressing the problem not the symptom, I reiterate 'the use of minimum wage legislation is not the appropriate legislation that we need in this country to achieve our goal of ensuring that the populace has a higher income'. We must look at other alternatives. When we are talking of preventing discrimination, we must make sure we are dealing with it in an appropriate manner not a minimum wage. We need a discriminatory legislation—a piece of legislation right within the Labour Law that states that we cannot discriminate. Employees performing similar or identical duties must be paid similar or identical wages. That is the way to address it—not to legislate minimum wage.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, I borrow the phrase from my colleague, the Third Elected Member from George Town, that if we simply give more income in one hand and take it out by greater cost of living, that the vendors will pass on, we have not achieved our goal.

I will do as the Third Elected Member from George Town has obligated. I will support that this goes to a select committee, if that is the way the Motion will end up. However, when we sit down in the Committee room these are some of the issues that we will have to address because for years we have had the provision within our laws to provide a minimum wage. It just so happens that a minimum wage has never been prescribed. I look forward to healthy debate when we sit and look at ways that we can address this problem.

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, for my contribution.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate, does any other member wish to speak?

The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When I look at this Motion, I see that the Resolve is asking for this Honourable House to appoint a select committee of the whole House to determine a minimum wage for the Cayman Islands and that the Government implement within a one-year time frame the Committee's recommendation.

Certainly, this Motion is assuming that there is a need for a minimum wage in the Cayman Islands and I think this point has been raised by the Second Elected Member for George Town. It does not ask, as it could have, that the Committee determines whether a minimum wage is necessary and what that wage should be. So, going on the basis of the Resolve of the Motion, the Motion is asking to determine a minimum wage.

I have listened to the various arguments put forward by the persons who spoke before me. What we are talking about here is that you could possibly have a minimum wage of the barest minimum of some minimums that I have heard, like $1. I am aware of that because in Cayman Brac some hotel workers used to be paid $1.75 an hour. That could be a minimum wage! We are talking about determining an amount of money per hour that is the very minimum for the people at the bottom of the work chain, or whatever we might choose to call it. In other words, we are trying to determine a minimum to pay the 'sufferers'—those who suffer the most among us. Those who get paid the least and often they perform the hardest, most demeaning tasks.

Most countries in the world have a minimum wage or they are working towards doing that—even in the most economically strapped countries, we find those persons prescribing by law a minimum wage. Now, of course, employers are not going to prescribe minimum wage. There are certain things everyone in the state looks to the state to do, and one of those things has to be the prescription of a minimum wage. I cannot really understand why the idea of having a minimum wage in the Cayman Islands is such an awful thing that it is going to affect employers and employees so that as a result of prescribing this, prices will shoot to the sky higher than they are now.

Suppose someone determines that the minimum wage is exactly what is being paid now by category, for example. I know the Minister raised the question of minimum wage by category. Well, in the world of reality that is the way wages are paid now. An accountant is paid more than a clerical officer and you might have one or two levels within the clerical officer scale, so already in the world wages exist by categories. Again, it is possible to determine minimum wage by category although—and I have certainly looked into this to quite an extent including getting information and text from the International Labour Organisation (ILO) that sets out how governments may set minimum wage by category. The text also points out that it is more difficult to implement and to keep intact because of the movement of persons from one category to the other and otherwise.

We all know that wages are affected by the demand. In Cayman the demand has grown to 60 per cent more than the country can supply; that is a statistical fact. So, we are talking about a very, very unique situation not only in the Caribbean, but the World. But within what one would see as a most unusual situation there are people who, we as legislators and other persons know, are being paid wages below what can rationally be seen as fair and equitable, and providing sufficient money for even a meagre reasonable existence.

Wages that the people in this country are working for now, are the wages they were working for twenty years ago—or less in some instances. Bedroom maids for instance, let's say $3 an hour: they were making that twenty years ago! So, the fact that a hotel room might now be sold for $800 or $1000 a night, into that there has to be some profit! It is hard to believe that the profit that hotelier is getting may be only $50 out of that $1000 and the $950 goes to pay for so many other expenses in that whole operation. It is outright major profit to whatever extent, but it is certainly high.

Now, what has obviously happened here is that the wages that would have naturally increased for the people who have worked in these jobs have for all practical purposes been suppressed by bringing in what I have heard before in here as cheap labour. Cheap labour! Now is cheap labour something for us to work towards in the Cayman Islands, or is finding a fair minimum wage something that we should work towards?

We hear of the United States—the bulwark of capitalism—closing certain factories there and sending it across the border to Mexico where we hear that wages are a few pesos, or you have other manufacturing companies that are laying it off in the Far East to get cheap labour. I bet you when the product comes back it is not sold cheaply! (Like the television sets, computers and everything else being made in China where we understand there is cheap labour).

We are looking at the Cayman setting. Mr. Speaker, I suggest that this Motion is one that is meaningful—one that addresses a certain condition in this society that needs to be addressed. We are talking about a minimum wage. Indeed, I think, the Immigration Board is acting within the law because . . . and I cannot quote the section right off but I know there is a section which states that the Board must satisfy itself that the person who is being granted a work permit will be making a wage sufficient to maintain himself in a decent and acceptable way. So, if we want to use that hourly wage or that weekly wage, that is something that could be done.

Or, Mr. Speaker, if the Committee would want to recommend that we take a whole slew of wages paid by different employers and strike an average wage and call that a minimum wage, that cannot hurt the Caymanian society, but it can surely help those who are being paid below what we know is a fair wage in this country.

There may be a trade union in the Cayman Islands. There may be two or three, but one of the main efforts of a trade union(s) . . . and I do have some knowledge about it. In fact, when I was talking about it in this country 10 - 20 years ago I got all sorts of labels attached to me that I could even conceive such a thing. I know that one of the main things that they bargain for is to increase the wages of individuals and to improve their working conditions. So, how could I stand in this Legislative Assembly (where I am supposed to be not only representing the professionals and those who make wages that they can live on) and say that it is bad to have a minimum amount that you can pay an individual. I believe I would have failed in my duty.

Mr. Speaker, I certainly support us finding a minimum wage in the Cayman Islands. I realise that it does not combat poverty in a society but it prescribes a minimum. I also want to make the point that a minimum wage is not something for Caymanians. It is a minimum wage to be paid to everyone working in the Cayman Islands. That is what a minimum wage is.

So, the whole idea of this differentiation does not logically come into play. It is just like a trade union. A trade union in the Cayman Islands should not be an entity that is looking solely after the rights of Caymanians; it should be open to all persons working in the Cayman Islands. Similarly, standards should be set across the board for everybody who works here. Perhaps if it were done in that way—if we got away from the thing of the Caymanian versus the other one and so forth, and understood that every job in the world can be costed and has a job value, we would understand that whether it is someone from Timbuktu, George Town or Bodden Town doing job X, it would have the same value. I think we are missing these concepts considerably in this country.

Mr. Speaker, the Second Elected Member for George Town raised the point with which I must agree, that it is prescribed in the Labour Law, Section 20 (1), Part III, Remuneration and Hours of Work, it says, “The Governor may, by Order, prescribe a National Minimum Basic Wage.” Well, we know there is a difference between may and shall, and since the existence of this law, to the best of my knowledge there has not been a minimum wage prescribed.

Mr. Speaker, when someone is coming to invest here, or to start a company, or to do a particular type of work, one of the first things they will enquire about is: Is there a minimum wage? From that minimum wage they can pretty well calculate what one cost is going to be if they are having this type of a person who falls in the minimum wage category. I submit that it is essential. It would make a difference in this society to have a minimum wage prescribed.

The Member, I am sure, is aware of this particular section in the law, but he chose to bring it to the place that made that law in the first instance, that is, this Legislative Assembly, which makes laws, and amends or repeals them. It is within the business of this legislature to refer this matter asked for in this Motion to a select committee.

The Minister for Education and Human Resources pointed out that matters referred to select committees often die a most unnatural death (and I have seen many die) through nothing being done once it is in a select committee. There is a duty (I believe) that when a matter is referred to a select committee, time is allotted to deal with that matter. I believe it is possible that a select committee of the whole House could meet once, twice or whatever. That Select Committee could refer this matter back to the methodologies as provided for in Section 20 of the Law and make a report to the House after Members have given their ideas about what should be, after having made their representations, I think that is possible. But to say that it is something that should not be—that the whole idea of a minimum wage could be something bad for this country—really makes me wonder.

I think, Mr. Speaker, that we could make one commendable step if the Select Committee meets and passes the matter on to the means provided by the Governor to have a minimum wage that we would be better off for so doing.

Mr. Speaker, I support the Motion that is before the House prescribing a minimum wage.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I rise to lend my support to what I believe is a very worthwhile Motion before this House. For a long time various governments have wrestled with this matter of a minimum wage. As long as I have been in this Parliament I have been talking about it. And as the Second Elected Member from Bodden Town and other Members have been saying, ‘when we get close to it there is always somebody to throw a spanner in the works’.

When I was responsible for Labour I got a committee set up. I promised the House I would. That Committee made a report and the government of the day was happy to let me go out there, talk about it and take the licks, even to let me set up the Committee. But once that Committee reported, I could not get it out of Executive Council. It is time to stop talking, to sit down with people we know and Members of this House and see whether this minimum wage is something that will work. Certainly, I believe that we should set a minimum because there are people today in categories of work who are being paid less than they were twenty years ago.

I do not want to get into any particular area. I started out at that time by saying we would set a minimum wage for the hotel industry and take it from there. I believe, Mr. Speaker, that a minimum should be set. I was in Cayman Brac a few days ago and people there are still making less than $2 per hour in some instances. This is at a time when inflation has grown out of proportion and people are making less and less and less.

So, I see nothing wrong even though the economy does seem to be somewhat in decline and we would have to tread carefully. Mr. Speaker, all those things taken into account, we cannot sit down here with our heads in the sand after telling the people whom we campaigned just recently, ‘Elect us and we are going to make life better for you’. Well, better for whom?

At the same time some of those people are complaining that we have to watch this and that, they are the same people who complain about the maldistribution of income. Well, why do you think we have a mal-distribution of income? These are the kinds of reasons why we have it.

Mr. Speaker, someone did say 'you cannot have your cake and eat it too'. You cannot campaign on an issue that is good for you but because there are situations that surround you in your constituency you have to take a slightly different position. Politics will be politics and politicians will be politicians, but the people's business must be done once and for all. This is a matter to which some closure must come. It has been around too long and nothing has been done.

Now, my learned friend, the Second Member from George Town, stated that the Member should not have brought the Motion because the Select Committee, in his opinion, is not the right way. He said that the law rightly sets out the right way but that is not the only way. The law says, as the Second Member from Bodden Town said, that the Governor may establish a minimum wage advisory committee. As long as I have been in this Parliament the furthest I could get it was past Executive Council for a committee to look into it, but when it came back to Executive Council it stayed right there.

Mr. Speaker, the law says that the Governor may set up a minimum wage committee but it was never done. While it sets out some parameters, the law says nothing about this House not being able to set up a committee. It could not bar this Honourable House from setting up a select committee to deal with a minimum wage or any other business—no law can do it.

The Standing Orders of this Honourable House is the instrument that sets out how business is to be conducted here. Above that is the Constitution and there is also the Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law which protects this Legislative Assembly. But none of them say that we cannot bring this law or set up a select committee.

The Standing Orders say that a Member can bring a motion and a select committee can be set up at any time and for any matter. No law, no governor, nor anyone else can stop this Honourable House from setting up a select committee. Our Standing Orders say that the select committee should have power to call on witnesses to come to the House or to the Committee to give information on the matters before it. It will have to make a report and every committee shall have power to send for persons, papers and records.

So, Mr. Speaker, I think what the young Member is attempting is the same as many old Members wished to get done, but did not get far in their efforts. I think we need to give ourselves time. It is true – as one Member said – that Members are busy. Today, however, everyone gets a good salary and, yes, as I said we would have to tread carefully but we need to set some sort of minimum or else the social decline will continue.

So, Mr. Speaker, I rise to congratulate the mover and the seconder in moving this Resolution.

The Speaker: The Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

First of all, let me make it abundantly clear that I support a minimum wage. I would like to congratulate the mover of the Motion for bringing such a motion back to this legislature, which has been around as long as I can remember – and I have followed the legislature for many years.

I have to question why previous legislators in this country were afraid. What were they afraid of? All legislators go out during campaign and talk about how they are going to better people's lives. Once they come to the Legislative Assembly they turn their backs on the promises that they made to the voters. That is unfortunate. But that is the situation as it stands.

I campaigned on the basis of a minimum wage. I made the people of East End a promise that I will do whatever is within my power to see that a minimum wage is put in place in this country and speak on whether or not it should be straight across the board or in categories. Much has been said about those two scenarios.

Mr. Speaker, in my former profession I worked in a very big organisation. Certainly, there were categories within that organisation for positions, and there were different points within those categories, but they were positions. They were not based on individuals in those categories. It is the value of that position to the particular company. And while it is fair to say that there were categories for all the different sections of the organisation, there also was a minimum that no category went below.

Speaking about the tourism industry in this country, there is an elderly lady in my district of East End who is soon to be retired from that industry. This lady worked for many years making less than $3 per hour. She will retire with little over $3,000 in pension. That is appalling! That bothers me, Mr. Speaker, and it should bother every legislator and every resident in this country!

Someone spoke about cheap labour: Is it cheap labour or is it exploitation of the people who work in this country? We must stop exploiting people – and I am not talking only about Caymanians – I am talking about every working being in this country.

I believe that some employers in this country are using foreign imported labour to keep Caymanians out. They are exploiting these people because as someone said (I think it was the mover), even though the wages here are low they are higher than what these people make in their respective countries. However, we cannot afford to allow it to go on in the Cayman Islands. We boast of having so much, yet there are Caymanians in this country practically living in squalor because of the lack of a minimum wage.

Someone applauded the Immigration Board on setting the minimum wage, but I am not here to applaud them because they included gratuities in that minimum wage and gratuities have absolutely nothing to do with a minimum wage. A minimum wage is what is paid as a wage for a day's work, whether it is on an hourly, or a daily basis. That is what that employee has agreed to work for, therefore, the employer expects to get a day's work out of that employee. A day's work is a day's work.

Mr. Speaker, gratuities are given for services rendered. It has nothing to do with the employee doing the job that he was employed to do, except in the sense that he treats the clients of the employer in such a manner that they see fit to give him a gratuity. Gratuities must be shared among the employees apart from their wages, but it is being included in their wages to make it look like they are paying Caymanians well. They are not paying some Caymanians well and the time has come to take our heads out of the sand and put a minimum wage in place. There is nothing wrong with categories, but there must be a minimum that you cannot go below.

Next, we need to find out the cost-of-living index in this country. No one has attempted to address this. The Statistics Office will give us inflation rates, and this rate and that rate. The census has not even been distributed. That is a very good place to start debating this Motion from. We got a little glimpse of it a few weeks ago, but nevertheless it has not been distributed for the populace to be able to see, and more particularly for the legislators to see exactly where this country is going. We need some kind of guidance as to how the country has progressed over the last ten years, and the census will give us a lot of this information. Certainly, that is if we can trust it.

Mr. Speaker, the lack of good wages—if we want to call it cheap labour—also creates instances where we get substandard housing in this country. We start creating environments where crime becomes the order of the day. We start creating situations where we get the imported labour encroaching on the Immigration Law by going and working two, three, four jobs, and then we start complaining that Caymanians cannot get the jobs. Then we talk about how Caymanians do not want to work and we talk about how Caymanians think that the Government is here to provide for them. While I believe that may be so, it is minimal.

Mr. Speaker, the Caymanians that I know do not want anything to be handed out to them and those who believe that the Government is here to give them everything, a minimum wage is not going to affect them anyway – they are not going to work whether you put it on their laps or otherwise. Therefore, a minimum wage will not do anything to assist or protect them. It is to protect the Caymanians who have forever been hardworking. It is to make them feel a sense of belonging in their own country. This is their country and if they cannot earn a decent wage for an honest day's work then the rest falls away as well: thus, the reason we see so many Caymanians who cannot qualify to even have a home. One of the greatest things that Caymanians held dear to them was the ability to build their homes.

I recall many years ago when the Planning Law was being drafted, Caymanians did not need to have a certificate of occupancy. Why? Because they built a little piece today with the money they had and the next year when they came home on vacation they would build on another piece: eventually they had a reasonable house for the whole family. That was put in place by our seamen. Well, I am here to say that the days of the seamen are over, therefore . . .

(Inaudible interjection)

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Well, it is almost over, Mr. Speaker – at least, my days at sea are over. I am here to say that the tables have now turned: the labour is coming here. I think, it is time we give them a fair opportunity in the market place whereby they can build for themselves as well. If they could do it by going to another country then they should be able to do it in one of the richest countries in the world. There is no need for them to go overseas anymore. Therefore, we as legislators have to make provisions for our people, and for the people who come here.

An example has been given concerning a minimum wage being put across the board: If $7 is the minimum wage and a person is making $10, some employers may want to drop it to $7. Well, that will be a dark day in this country because I am sure if an employer values an employee at $10 then I do not see that employer allowing that employer to drop that wage down to $7 as a result of minimum wage. That is not what a minimum wage is about.

There is another argument, but of course this one comes from the employer – that the cost of living is going to increase and inflation is going to increase. Well, inflation has been on the up for a very long time. Cost of living has been on the up for a very long time. That is the reason why those who earn $3 or $4 per hour – U.S. dollars at that – are experiencing difficulties. That is exactly the reason why they cannot pay and they live on near squalor as I said earlier. And if that is going to cause cost-of-living increase, well, we are going to have to live with that. But of course that argument is coming from the employers because they do not want to dip into their bottom lines so they are going to put up the cost on their products.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is time that someone other than the Government digs his hands in his pocket too. If it is so nice doing business in this country, (it must be profitable by those persons still being here because one does not invest money in a losing proposition), some payback should be coming.

We talk about partnerships and about commodities—labour being a commodity. Partnership, Mr. Speaker, yes, that is what it should be, but a partnership is not one-sided. There must be some equality in partnerships for them to continue, thus the reason why the Third Elected Member from George Town can start a union in this country. The reason being, because it is lopsided and the employees are not being treated fairly.

Whether starting a union is right or not, employees are getting fed up because of the low wages that they are receiving. Mr. Speaker, I respect the Second Elected Member from George Town and he rightly pointed out the section of the Labour Law which says that a creation of a minimum wage is vested in the powers of the Governor in Council. If the Government is mindful to do it, then we can stop all the debate right now.

Mr. Speaker, as we said, for many years it has not been done and it was vested in the Governor in Council for many years as well and nothing has been done. Now, I will not blame the new government, they are yet . . . and unfortunately this is the first Motion in this Honourable House since the new government took office. I have every confidence—since the Minister of Education and the Minister for Tourism have been advocating a minimum wage for many, many years—that in short order we will see a minimum wage in this country.

I find it quite amazing that the people in this country who oppose a minimum wage are the same people who, I believe, are exploiting labour. That should not come as a surprise. A number of these employers, have been in business for many years and they have reaped the benefits from paying low wages. Mr. Speaker, the Immigration Board – formerly the Protection Board – has supported this whether intentionally or unintentionally by giving work permit upon work permit to one employer and not demanding to see a legitimate wage proposal. We have perpetuated this problem over the years and it has to stop. They will make their applications and write down some fallacious number and no one follows up on it to see if has been carried out.

I am challenging the new government to ensure that Caymanians are protected. As soon as this goes to the Select Committee and recommendations are made, hopefully a minimum wage will be put in place. I am challenging the new government to ensure that the mechanism is put in place for employers to pay employees what is rightfully theirs.

I am also challenging the Government to ensure that gratuities are not included in wages. It is a separate amount of money that must be paid for services rendered. They have to stop! For too long in this country we have not been concerned for the small man who is being exploited. All we are concerned about is what we are making and how we can live our lives, not realising that it is the smaller man who affects how we live. Until someone realises that he is a part of the voting public this is not going to get any better. I just do not understand how the voting public can put up with having been given so many promises and then they re-elect those same persons in four years time.

I feel sorry for the new government because with all these new ones on the Backbench I am sure they are going to be bombarded with new things to do. I am sure that they will rise to the task and in four years time they may leave greyer, but I trust that the country will be better off.

Mr. Speaker, I support this Motion. It is long overdue, that is, the minimum wage. The Motion has been here for many years but the minimum wage has not been forthcoming. I support it and again I applaud the mover. I applaud the Government for accepting it, and I look forward to being a part of the committee.

Thank you.

The Speaker: In accordance with Standing Order 10(2) we have reached the hour of adjournment. I will now call upon a Member to move the adjournment.

The Honourable First Official Member.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. This Honourable House stands adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

AT 4.29 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 AM THURSDAY, 15 MARCH 2001.

PARLIAMENTARY QUESTION ASKED BY THE THIRD ELECTED MEMBER FOR THE WEST BAY CONSTITUENCY TO THE HONOURABLE MINISTER RESPONSIBLE FOR EDUCATION, HUMAN RESOURCES & CULTURE

---

QUESTION: What technical/vocational courses are available at the Community College and what is the current enrollment in each (broken down by country of origin).

ANSWER: The Community College of the Cayman Islands currently offers 14 programmes that prepare individuals for the world of work.

These programmes fall into two categories:

1. Vocational – target population – recent high school graduates
2. Professional – target population – working individuals.

1. Vocational Programmes

The following are the enrollment statistics for VOCATIONAL PROGRAMMES for September 2000:

| Programme                           | Total | Caymanian | Cuba | Honduras | Jamaica | USA |
|-------------------------------------|-------|-----------|------|----------|---------|-----|
| Accounting Certificate              | 14    | 10        |      |          | 4       |     |
| Computer Applications Certificate   | 20    | 17        |      | 2        | 1       |     |
| Construction Technology Certificate | 9     | 7         |      |          | 1       | 1   |
| Electrical Technology Certificate   | 15    | 13        | 1    | 1        |         |     |
| Hospitality Studies Certificate     | 10    | 8         | 1    |          | 1       |     |

2. PROFESSIONAL PROGRAMMES

Applied Management Practice

Computing

MCSE

A+

Legal Secretarial Certificate

Foundation Banking Certificate

Banking Diploma

Associate of Applied Science

Accounting

Business Administration

Office Administration

Professional Programmes Enrollment Summary

| Programme                      | Course Enrollment |
|--------------------------------|-------------------|
| Applied Management Practice    | 24                |
| Computing                      |                   |
| MCSE                           | 18                |
| A+                             | 15                |
| Legal Secretarial Certificate  | 52                |
| Foundation Banking Certificate | 33                |
| Banking Diploma                | 36                |
| Associate of Applied Science   |                   |
| Accounting                     | 41                |
| Business Administration        | 40                |
| Office Administration          | 7                 |

Professional Programmes Breakdown by Nationality

| Country      | Applied Management Practice | Legal Secretarial Certificate* | Foundation Banking Certificate | Banking Diploma* | TOTAL      |
|--------------|-----------------------------|--------------------------------|--------------------------------|------------------|------------|
| Canada       | 0                           | 1                              | 1                              | 0                | 2          |
| Cayman       | 18                          | 37                             | 29                             | 28               | 112        |
| Chile        | 0                           | 1                              | 0                              | 0                | 1          |
| Columbia     | 0                           | 1                              | 0                              | 0                | 1          |
| Honduras     | 0                           | 2                              | 0                              | 1                | 3          |
| Jamaica      | 3                           | 8                              | 1                              | 0                | 12         |
| Mexico       | 0                           | 0                              | 0                              | 1                | 1          |
| Montserrat   | 0                           | 0                              | 0                              | 1                | 1          |
| South Africa | 0                           | 0                              | 0                              | 1                | 1          |
| UK           | 1                           | 2                              | 0                              | 3                | 6          |
| USA          | 2                           | 0                              | 2                              | 0                | 4          |
| Venezuela    | 0                           | 0                              | 0                              | 1                | 1          |
| TOTAL | 24                   | 52                      | 33                      | 36        | 145 |

*figures affected by late registration

II. Professional Programmes – Computing – Enrollment/Nationality Summary

| Country           | MCSE      | A+        | TOTAL     |
|-------------------|-----------|-----------|-----------|
| Barbados          | 1         | 0         | 1         |
| Canada            | 1         | 0         | 1         |
| Cayman            | 9         | 7         | 16        |
| India             | 0         | 3         | 3         |
| Jamaica           | 4         | 2         | 6         |
| South Africa      | 0         | 1         | 1         |
| Trinidad & Tobago | 1         | 0         | 1         |
| UK                | 0         | 1         | 1         |
| US                | 4         | 0         | 4         |
| TOTAL      | 18 | 15 | 33 |

III. Associate Degree/Enrollment/Nationality Summary

| Country      | Accounting | Business Administration | Office Administration | TOTAL     |
|--------------|------------|-------------------------|-----------------------|-----------|
| Cayman       | 36         | 36                      | 7                     | 76        |
| Cuba         | 0          | 1                       | 0                     | 1         |
| Filipino     | 1          | 0                       | 0                     | 1         |
| Honduras     | 1          | 0                       | 0                     | 1         |
| Jamaica      | 1          | 2                       | 0                     | 3         |
| Guyana       | 1          | 0                       | 0                     | 1         |
| UK           | 1          | 1                       | 0                     | 2         |
| USA          | 0          | 0                       | 0                     | 0         |
| TOTAL | 41  | 40               | 7              | 88 |

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
THURSDAY
15 MARCH, 2001
10:13AM
Third Sitting

[Prayers read by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Spots]

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Legislative Assembly is in session.

Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies for late attendance from the Hon. Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture and also from the Hon. Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health and Information Technology who is away recuperating from an operation.

Item number 3, Questions to Honourable Ministers /Members. Question 9 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MINISTERS/MEMBERS

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, this question is directed to the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture who has been delayed.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I beg that Questions 9 and 10 be placed at the end of Question Time, at which time the Honourable Minister should be present.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Moving on to question 11, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 11

No. 11: Capt. Eugene Ebanks asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs if there is mandatory drug testing of prisoners and prison guards and how many prisoners and prison guards failed these tests in the past year.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible, for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The Prison Rules do not contain a mandatory drug testing provision for prisoners or staff. However, the Rules do provide the drug testing of prisoners if there are reasonable grounds to suspect a prisoner has been using illegal drugs.

Following the disturbances at the prison in 1999, drug testing of prisoners was suspended, but resumed in April 2000. In the 11 months since then, 276 prisoners have been tested and 44 (or 16 percent) have tested positive.

An average of 10 percent of the prison population is tested each month. It is encouraging to note the reduction in positive tests over this period.

|                     |          |                    |
|---------------------|----------|--------------------|
| April/May/June 2000 | 63 tests | 15 positive (24 %) |
| July/Aug/Sept 2000  | 89 tests | 16 positive (18 %) |
| Oct/Nov/Dec 2000    | 80 tests | 10 positive (2.5%) |
| Jan/Feb 2001        | 44 tests | 3 positive (7 %)   |

A programme of random drugs testing for staff is to be introduced by June this year.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable First Official Member give the logic behind not giving mandatory drug tests, given what seems to be a high prevalence of positive testing?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I think the simple answer is that the testing is done in accordance with the Prison Law. But I would like to add that work is being done on amending the Prison Law. The Prison rules is an area that will be carefully gone into.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden Jr.: Can the Honourable First Official Member say what arrangements are made for excuses or visits outside of the prison for prisoners, seeing that we have a problem with prisoners testing positive? I would imagine that it is pretty hard to control prisoners who are allowed to leave to visit family, to leave for funerals or even to leave for Christmas parties? How is that arrangement made for prisoners to actually leave the prison?

The Speaker: That is somewhat outside of the substantive question, but if the Honourable Member wishes to answer, he may. The Honourable First official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The social visits outside the prison are few and far between. There are in exceptional cases, social visits, or family visits (for the sake of argument) to occasionally attend a funeral, etc. but, as the Member would know there are regular work parties outside of the prison.

If inmates are allowed out, there will be a prisoner profile done so that the prison authorities are aware of the individual inmates, and they are searched upon their return. There are also drug tests done.

In addition to this, when inmates are allowed outside they are normally escorted by prison officers.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Honourable First Official Member confirm if these numbers tested here are in line with the previous part of the answer that stated they were based on suspicion, or are these numbers simple samples of the populous on a random basis?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: These figures we have here are not only for those who might be suspected of drugs; there is also random drug testing done. There is a policy in place that every inmate going up for parole has to be tested. So, it includes all those who are eligible for parole as well.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Just to follow up: what criteria are used in doing your random selection? On what basis do you select the prisoners?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The random drug testing is done mainly for inmates who are going on to the enhanced wing. Those legislators who visited the prison will recall that there is a selection of the prison where persons who are of good behaviour and who meet certain other good criteria are placed in the enhanced wing. Other than that, the drug testing is largely as a result of suspicion aroused prison officers' observations, etc. Then, of course, those who go up for parole are all tested.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: It has always amazed me that someone in prison can test positive for drugs, but I guess someone can enlighten me on that at a later time.

Can the Honourable First Official Member say if any study has been done, an investigation as to where these drugs are coming from inside the prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: First of all, it is a sad fact of life, but nevertheless a fact of life—and not peculiar to Cayman—that prisons around the world have problems with drugs. About three years ago I started the drug-testing programme at Northward Prison. When the numbers of inmates testing positive was discovered, we began to take steps to deal with it.

Let me say that this is not an easy task. One has to deal with persons who visit inmates, family members; one has to deal with drugs being thrown in from the outside; one has to deal with work parties or groups going out just to name three possible avenues.

I would like to stand here today and say that we have eliminated drugs at Northward Prison, but the figures will show otherwise. We have brought the numbers down dramatically since there has been a drug-testing programme. And the various measures have been put in place. All prisoners who go out will be searched upon their return. Visitors are searched. The higher fence at Northward with the other two fences inside will be a further deterrent to drugs being thrown over the fence.

Those are some of the ways we are dealing with drugs. On an occasional basis, we have been using a drug dog. And it had been planned to extend that to a more comprehensive programme, but because of budgetary constraints that may not be possible. Efforts are being made in several directions and the results show that the efforts are paying off.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Just to follow up on that, I know that on my visit to the prison there was a Visitor's Centre being built. Can the Honourable First Official Member say when that will be finished? Will that prevent visitors from coming in contact with the prisoners to avoid the transport of drugs inside the prison?

The Speaker: I think we are getting well outside the substantive question. If the Member wishes to answer, he may. The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I should remind this Honourable House that the Visitors' Centre is not being built with public funds, but by contributions that have been solicited from individuals in the private sector. We have worked on the Visitor's Centre as we have been able to get materials. But I am told that it is hoped we will finish the Centre in two to three months.

The Speaker: I am going to have to limit this to three additional supplementaries.

The Second Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I was wondering if the Honourable First Official Member could state the justification for not testing prison officers, [seeing that there is such] an alarming rate of positive testing.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I mentioned that random drug testing for staff will begin in June of this year. In fact, the prison authorities gave notice several months ago I believe. I do not know that there is any justification for not testing prison officers. That is why there is going to be a drug, testing programme for prison officers beginning in June.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Capt. Eugene Ebanks: Can the Honourable First Official Member say if any one prisoner tested positive for drugs more than once? And who conducted the tests?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, there have been inmates who have tested positive more than once and prison authorities have dealt with them by way of punishment under the prison rules.

In respect of who does the actual testing, it is done by the security section of the prison.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Honourable First Official Member advise the House as to what disciplinary action is taken when a prisoner tests positive for drugs?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member

responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The most common punishment meted out to inmates who test positive will be the loss of remission, as well as loss of other privileges that are normally earned by inmates, and the loss of the privilege to work outside the prison.

The Speaker: Moving on to question 12, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 12

No. 12: Capt. Eugene Ebanks asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications and Works what is the estimated time for completing the Dalmain Ebanks Civic Centre and approximately what it will cost.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The continuation of the Dalmain Ebanks Civic Centre is subject to approval of funding in the 2001 capital development budget. If the proposed funding is approved in April 2001, it is anticipated that the construction of the facility will be completed in approximately May 2002. The estimated cost of the completed facility is $4,000,000.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End,

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister tell us the cost per square foot on this building?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The building is 24,000 square feet. The projected square footage cost is $126.35. This does not include site preparation and external works, but it includes all other costs relating to the building itself.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not the Dalmain Ebanks Centre will be capable of being used as a hurricane centre? Will it be structurally sound enough for that purpose?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, that is exactly part of the dual purpose of building the centre. Just for the Member's information, on completion the hall will seat approximately 1400 persons, that is for graduations and those types of functions; and it will accommodate approximately 900 people when used as a hurricane shelter.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable Minister say if there are going to be MLA offices in the Dalmain Ebanks Civic Centre? And will there be a split air-conditioning system?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Unfortunately, I really cannot say this morning where the split is going to be. But if the Member wishes I can find out.

Regarding MLA offices, I do not have the plans with me at present, but I am certain that the representatives from West Bay can liaise with me before construction begins. We will see whether it is a feasible proposition. If it is cost effective, then certainly I am quite able to say that we would look forward to accommodating it so that we would not have to think of anywhere else.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden Jr.: Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not the fill that had to be removed from the site for the footings is being sold to offset some of the cost of the project?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning Communications and Works,

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That is the intention— "sold," meaning sold in-house for other projects that PWD might have to do. Just so the Member will also know, I think the Softball Association made a request through the Ministry for 12 loads of that fill for a project they were doing their own. That request was granted, but that was it. The rest of the material is going to be used on other projects and the costing will be balanced out by double entry (not single entry) bookkeeping.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we move on to question 13, standing in the name the Elected Member for East End.

QUESTION NO. 13

No. 13: Mr. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications and Works to state the number of miles of roe, and/or public highways that may have been (a) contracted (b) completed with asphalt concrete and surfacing; and at what cost per mile.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Public Works Department (PWD) commenced a resurfacing programme in 1999 extend the pavement life on main roads and secondary roads that are heavily trafficked. The attached she shows a summary of the areas that were resurfaced 1999 and 2000 (see Appendix

West Bay Road: The total cost of resurfacing 4 miles of West Bay Road from Sleep Inn to the Fire Station, was $2,945,444. The average cost per mile for this project was $701,296.

Other areas: The total cost of resurfacing a total of 29.6 miles in all other areas as listed on the attached summary sheet [See page 77] was $8,495,254, at an average cost of approximately $287,000 per mile.

I do not think it makes good sense for me to read the attached sheet. Members will have it clear and can ask supplementary questions from it.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Can the Honourable Minister explain the huge differential cost per mile between the resurfacing of the West Bay Road and resurfacing elsewhere?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: First of all, let me state that I was not there at the time so there were no directives coming from me. Nevertheless there is an explanation.

The works required along West Bay Road were considerably more extensive than in other areas. In addition to resurfacing of the pavements, corrections were also made to the vertical profile to address major drainage problems that existed in several areas on the West Bay Road.

PWD recommended raising the road in low areas using hotmix asphalt, rather than the normal techniques of granular based material, which would have been much more time consuming and disruptive to traffic as well as businesses along the West Bay Road. The cost would have been comparable as a greater quantity of granular based material would have been required to achieve the same base strength.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say how much more material would have been used? My understating of the answer to that supplementary was that if they had not used asphalt concrete they would have used more sub-base material to build that road up. I wonder if he can say how much more material?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I have asked representatives from PWD to come to the Legislative Assembly. They are on notice, but they are not here yet.

Let me say during the interim that when the answer to the Second Elected Member from George Town states that the cost would have been comparable as a greater quantity of granular based material would have been required to achieve the same base strength, I think the Member is asking how much we are talking about when we say a greater amount of material. I am not quite sure what the answer is, and I do not want to take too many chances because I know the Member is very knowledgeable about this area—perhaps more knowledgeable than I am—but I think it has to do with compaction of that base material.

I am not quite sure what the cost is, compared to the hotmix, but as soon as the representative from PWD comes we can get that answer.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I did not really mean to put the Minister on the spot, but I can assure him that base material compared to asphalt concrete—which is somewhere in the region of three to four times the cost—they would have to use a lot more to fill that up.

Anyway, I wonder if the Minister can say, apart from the amount of material used on West Bay Road compared to that used on the rest of the roads, if the reduction, the disparity in the cost per mile is also as a result of competition in the marketplace.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I understand the Member to be asking if the lack of competition in providers of asphalt concrete—

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I think he is asking for an opinion, if you wish to give it, you may.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: (Jokingly) The Member does that to me outside of the Chamber anyhow, so it doesn't matter.

I was going to say that it is difficult for me to give an exact answer to that, but, again, if the Member would stow the question, as soon as the rep from PWD arrives will be able to give an answer to that.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: I note with interest on the list of roads completed and in progress, that all of the districts are represented except Cayman Brac and Little Cayman I know there is good reason for that—the lack of an asphalt plant on the Sister Islands. However, I wonder if the Minister has given any consideration to commencing roadworks while Island Paving/Logan International has a plant located in Cayman Brac for the paving of the Gerrard Smith international Airport.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, the Second Elected Member from Cayman Brac has really driven down another road here. The fact is, at present we have not completed the capital side of the Budget. Members will be conferred with in deciding those amounts to be allocated, if at all possible and priorities indicate that there should be road works in Cayman Brac and/or Little Cayman, then certainly it will be a prudent decision to time it while the Plant is there doing another hotmix project. The Member asked if I am considering this and I can gladly say that I am. Of course, we will have to consult with the Honourable Chief Secretary who is responsible for Sister Islands Administration, and the two reps from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Suffice it to say, if at all possible, it will be done. I appreciate the Member bringing it up.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden Jr.: Can the Honourable Minister say if there has been any significant change in the per tonnage price of asphalt over the last three to five years? If so, would he know the reason why?

The reason why I feel this question is relative is because we are talking about cost per square mile, and we are also speaking about other roads to be done. So it would, be good to know if the cost has changed, and what the reasons were.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That is the third question that will have to wait for a few minutes. We will try to get sensible answers as soon as the rep from PWD gets here. He's on the way now.

As to whether there has been any significant change in price over the last three to five years, I suspect a supplementary before addressing "competition" will have had a bearing on the reply. As soon as we get the facts, I will let the Member know.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Capt. Eugene Ebanks: I wonder if the Minister could give some explanation as to why the roads were all paved and then had to be cut again for the sidewalks to go in. I have seen in my travels where sidewalks are put in and then the roads paved to the sidewalks. However, in this case it was the other way around. I just wondered if there was some explanation for that.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I am advised that in actual fact it did not cost any more doing it one way or the other. But let me say that at that point in time, during the latter part of last year, there were directives for these roads to be done within a certain period of time as quickly as possible. So, in many instances, drainage was not considered because there were specific timelines. The truth of the matter is, the PWD did not have the ability, nor were they allowed to plan and phase the various actions that had to take place in a most cost-effective manner.

Even now, after many of the roads have been done the PWD is now having to go back to entertain drainage when under normal circumstances they would have done so in tandem with the construction or paving of the roads. Unfortunately, this was not the case, but it is important for me to say because certainly the professional at PWD have the ability to do it right.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: The Minister said that as soon as his technical advisor arrived he would be able to answer the previous questions. Is it okay to address those now?

The Speaker: Please go ahead.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, can the, Honourable Minister say if competition in the marketplace has contributed to the large difference in the price for the West Bay Road—compared to roads in other areas per mile—that is the $701,296 per mile on the West Bay Road compared to $287,000 per mile in other areas?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In answer to the Member's question, if we speak to what work was done on the West Bay Road, that work was put out to bid. There was more than one tender for it, so it was not that it was just given to one contractor to do the job. It was by competitive bid.

Secondly, it has to be borne in mind that if it had not been done the way it was—using the hotmix to a larger, degree than the base material and then the hotmix—the length of time it would have taken doing it the longer way would have disrupted the traffic flow and there would have been additional labour cost as well.

In regard to the total per mile cost, and the question specific as to whether competition had anything to do with it, the fact is, it was put out to bid and there was competitive tendering involved. So, basically, it was not like it was just one person to do the job, and that whatever they charged Public Works had to pay.

The Speaker: I would appreciate a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) & (8).

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) AND (8)

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I move the suspension Standing Order 23(7) & (8) to allow Question Time to continue.

The Speaker: The question is that we suspend Standing Order 23(7) & (8) to allow Question Time to continue beyond the hour of 11 o'clock. Those in favour please say Aye, those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question Time continue.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ALLOW QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11 AM.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden Jr.: Now that we have the technical expertise in the House, can the Honourable Minister say whether the average cost per ton of asphalt for Government has changed significantly over the past three to five years? If so, what caused that change in price?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The fact of the matter is that over the last three to five years it is net a fact that the cost of hotmix has gone up and continued to go up. At one point in time (three or four years ago), it was $165 per ton. When larger volumes were demanded by PWD it went down to like $139 per ton. This was when there was still only one supplier.

Since the market has become more competitive, because there are other contractors, it is now between $100 and $110 per ton. So, it proves the point that competition certainly stabilises prices.

It would not be factual to say it has been on the rise, but, rather, the contrary.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Capt. Eugene Ebanks: Can the Honourable Minister say if the $701,296 per mile for West Bay Road covered just the asphalt paving or did that include the sidewalks as well?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: It did not include the sidewalks. The sidewalks that were redone cost a total of $230,000.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay. This will be followed by two more supplementaries.

Mr. Cline Glidden Jr.: Can the Honourable Minister say if since all this roadwork has been done, and all this money spent, and it was done in a relatively short time, if there has been any request that will require some cutting of those newly paved roads in the near future?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The fact of the matter is that PWD was in contact with the various agencies that might have had to do that type of work within the roads. The did meet on a regular basis and as far as possible when certain roads were going to be paved PWD tried to time it so that it would be less disruptive and destructive, the fact is that the volume expected to be done in such shed period of time caused that attempt to not be as effective as it might have been had there been an orderly planned situation.

So, there is quite likely a situation you will find in the not-too-distant future where those recently done road will be dug up for other works. But, again, it is not that PWD was not conscious of the situation. I have been told, though, that the West Bay Road is least likely to be affected.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we move on to question 14, standing in the name of the Elected Member for East End.

No. 14: Mr. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Mister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications and Works to state how many miles of public highways remain to be completed; during what period; and what is the anticipated cost.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning Communications and Works.

Hon. Kurt Tibbetts: Under the current resurfacing contracts, the section of road remaining to be completed is approximately three miles in Bodden Town, from Will T Drive to Moon Bay condominiums. Works in progress this section at present are scheduled for completion by the end of March. The anticipated cost of resurfacing this section of road is $860,000.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: It appears that the cost per mi gets lower and lower. That is good.

I wonder if the Minister (and I am coming back this one as I have been doing since December) can tell us about those roads in the eastern districts? Is it anticipated that they will be finished with the nice smooth stuff the rest of the country has, and when will it be done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: First of all, to address what the Member asked, and just to give a gentle reminder, there is a section of the East End Road, from Half Moon Bay up to High Rock that the contractor has an obligation to redo because it was done unsatisfactorily. PWD is pressing the contractor to redo that section.

Regarding the rest, that is with what we call the "rough surface," with just one layer, needing a second layer to smooth it off, I truly cannot give a commitment for a specific time period when it will be done at this point in time. If it is at all possible, it will be done this year. It is just going to depend totally on what the agreed capital works will be within the budget and the priorities.

I can appreciate the Member's position, as well as the Minister of Community Affairs from North Side who faces the same circumstance. Again, we will do the best we physically can to get that done as quickly as possible, But it is a bit difficult for me to stand here now and give a firm commitment. Let me say that from the time it was first mentioned, it has always stuck in my mind; and every time I see the Member I remember it. We will get to it as quickly as we can. The only thing that will hold it up is the funds—if it is held up.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for

QUESTION NO. 14

George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: The Honourable Minister has not addressed the completion and resurfacing of the Crewe Road Bypass in his response.

[Inaudible comment]

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: I hear the Minister saying it was not asked, but the question asked the Minister to state how many miles of public highways remain to be completed; during what period; and what is the anticipated cost. I do believe that that question encompasses the completion of the Crewe Road Bypass as well.

My question to the Minister is: Can he confirm (notwithstanding his answer to the substantive question), whether or not the Crewe Road Bypass will be completed during the course of this year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Just for purposes of clarity, the question was answered in the vein of resurfacing. Work is continuing on the Crewe Road Bypass at present. There are a few matters that have to be sorted out with settlement of claims. Those are being dealt with presently. Once we get these out of the way, the intention is to complete the Crewe Road Bypass up to Bobby Thompson Way this year. It is not going to be possible to continue any further for this year. But that in itself is going to provide some alleviation of the traffic problem.

The area being worked on now from below the Lion's Centre through Randyke Gardens over to Bobby Thompson Way will be completed.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: I am cognisant that this question may be treading dangerously close to the line of irrelevance to the substantive question, but if the Minister would be so kind as to indicate whether or not further steps will be taken to address the congestion problem at the junction of South Sound and Crews Road in the vicinity of the Grand Harbour Hurley's? If so, what steps are proposed?

The Speaker: I do think that is outside the ambit of question, but if the Honourable Minister wishes to answer, he may. The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

[Members' laughter]

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Notwithstanding what the Member said about treading on irrelevance, I will attempt to answer it.

Obviously, the way the Member asked the question he is of the opinion that what obtains there at present is not satisfactory either. I am assuming that is his opinion at this point in time. I think everyone knows what has been done thus far. I think the exit through the old Soul Sound Road onto the road leading to Bodden Town (given the circumstances), much improved.

I was hoping not to have to talk to this until people saw it, but at present we are re-examining the situation to see if there are any other improvements that can be made. A traffic study has been done as to numbers flowing at various times and I think an assessment will be made very shortly.

We have also had complaints—vigorous complaints—from the owner of the Grand Harbour development because the present situation does not allow exiting the development to turn right to go down Crew Road and in his opinion it has impeded the continuation of his project by way of sales. Of course, safety is the main factor that has to be considered. There is also some difficulty coming out of the South Sound Road, though the through-lane makes it more efficient than it was.

When we are satisfied as to any improvements that can be made that will enhance the situation, we will be doing that. And whatever decision is taken with that will be taken very shortly, within a matter of weeks.

Regarding the specific answers, it is impossible for me to give those at present because the firm decision to what will be done, if we will be doing anything, has not been made yet.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I know the question stated public highways, however there are numerous roads in my constituency that have been started, and people ask when they are going to be completed. As far as I am concerned, this is very close to the question. Just so the Minister and the PWD expert will know what I am referring to, I will give two examples: In West Bay, references are made to "sand storms" experienced on Aqua Lane and Capt. Curry Drive and there are other roads. Those roads have just been surfaced with marl. Residents in that area are requesting that those roads be properly surfaced.

There is another situation where cars disappear off roads because of holes-like those on Garston Smith Lane. Residents wonder when that road will be completed.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I think the Second Elected Member for West Bay is referring to roads where the base work has been done and they have not come back to seal. I am told that simply because of the way matters transpired last year, it was a matter of running out of time to complete them. They will be completed this year, and they are on a schedule. As quickly as the PWD can attend to those specific roads, they will be done.

The Speaker: Two additional supplementaries.
The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden Jr.: I know it has been a grilling for the Minister, and I hope that my forthcoming question is of some relevance. If not, I ask for your indulgence.

Can the Honourable Minister say—and this is to do with major highways—whether there is any consideration being given to reverting back to the prior system for two lanes heading into George Town at the end of West Bay Road in the vicinity of Seven Mile Shops and Sleep Inn? My constituents have expressed their opinions on the traffic situation and they feel that traffic flowed better when there were two lanes, compared to the present situation where the centre lane is used for turning.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: While the Member may have had some complaints from his constituents, I am told that when the Harquail Bypass was completed, the traffic flow in that area of the West Bay Road became less. Many vehicles went through the North Sound junction and made exit by the stoplight next to the cinema, or by the other exit turning left. Nevertheless, that has taken away a fair amount of traffic coming into town, because they turn left, use the bypass to come out to the industrial Park area and then go on to their destinations in town.

The PWD feels that lane would be more effective as a right-turn lane for allowing traffic to come off the main road rather than leaving it as two lanes and people who want to turn unable to do so. It was also a bit dangerous having to manoeuvre two lanes coming up.

So at this point in time, while the Member may have some complaints, I have to take the position that those complaints do not override the situation that obtains. In fairness to the situation, the technical people hear what the Member is saying and they will make some observations. If it proves best to revert to that, then that can happen. But I do not want to use what a few individuals may consider to be an inconvenience compared to the major traffic flow, to make a decision that would adversely affect the whole picture.

I hear what the Member is asking, and we will observe for a while and see what is the best thing to do. I trust he will appreciate it is not something we want to just jump at.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Anthony Eden: I would ask that you allow me two brief comments, on the Grand Harbour Junction, and then a quick question.

I have observed that the left turn access coming out of Hurley's going to Bodden Town (the east side), are stopping there because they come right on to the main road. People stop and let them out. The other observation is that people are doing five to ten miles per hour in the main lane going to Bodden Town. If speed could be picked up in that area it would change dramatically. Once you cross the Red Rabbit area, it just disappears.

Can the Minister say what is the expected life span of the hotmix we are now doing on the roads?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The observation the Member from Bodden Town made regarding the exit from Hurley's, the truth is, it is a matter of driver education. There is nothing telling the people to stop, but I think that by nature most Caymanians try to be courteous. On many occasions, however, because of the way the traffic flows, in trying to be courteous we solve one person's problem and create 100 problems behind us. I think that after a while people will get to understand that it is better to allow the smoother traffic flow by people getting out when there are natural gaps, rather than trying to create those gaps and cause the traffic to back up.

Speaking to the expected life span of the hotmix that has been done, if we talk about the rough course there now, the expected life span is only about five years. That is why it is important to keep the programme going, that those surfaces are not left like that, that they get the finished course. The finished course there now is expected to last about 15 years.

The Speaker: Moving on to question 15 standing in the name of the Elected Member for East End.

QUESTION NO. 15

No. 15: Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications and Works to say whether the finishing or sealing of road verges was a part of any contractual agreement with the company or companies that have been responsible for the recent road works.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Under the current road resurfacing contracts, the contractors were required to place granular material along the road shoulders or verges. This was required in those areas where the finished level of the new pavement was much higher than the existing shoulder along the road. After the the contractor has placed the material, the PWD is responsible for the grading, compaction and sealing of the shoulder.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say when it is anticipated that all the shoulders will be completed? I recognise where we have the rough course, such as East End and North Side, that it may be difficult to do it because we still have to lift that somewhat, but it certainly would not be that much, maybe just an inch.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The extensive workload of both paving contractors as well as PWD crews did not allow for completion of shoulder work during the year 2000. The shoulder works are currently in progress and it is anticipated that area will be complete by the end of April. In the areas where only the rough surface is at present, even though the smooth finish has to be done, there are some areas where the drop-off is fairly deep. That will also be done as a safety precaution, even if it is not sealed. The base will be put there so the drop-off is not as dangerous as it is at present.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we will return to question 9, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 9

No. 9: Dr. Frank S. McField asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture if the Government has embarked upon the restructuring of the Human Resource Department and, if so, how will the new Department be structured.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddén: Government intends to restructure the Department of Human Resources to focus on arbitration, conciliation, and advice. What is known now as the Labour Department will be responsible for regulation the Labour Tribunals will be relocated, and a Learning and Skills Centre will provide advice and support to both employees and employers—in a nutshell, these are the proposed changes. The Ministry will continue to seek advice, including advice from the Labour Department itself, and from other sources, before these changes are finalised. Concurrently, in keeping with these changes the present Labour Law will need to be revised to bring in line with modern labour practices and human rights.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Can the Honourable Minister say exactly what he means by "arbitration" and "conciliation?"

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddén: It is the opinion of the Minister and the Ministry that there can be a more effective and efficient system than the tribunals. Currently, there are tribunals. I am reminded constantly, including this morning, that decisions are still outstanding and have been outstanding for months.

It is this Minister's opinion that we should move to an arbitration system and the advantages are as I list them: There is less formality than in the courts and in the tribunal system as it exists; the arbitration award is final; there is no appeal as there is in the present system, provided no special case is to be stated; the time and place of the hearing can be fixed to suit the convenience of both parties; and disputes are settled by experienced technical people of integrity who understand the complexity of the problems presented to them for adjudication. It is a quick process, it may be cheaper, and it is private: it is also a system that is increasingly popular in these kinds of disputes in other jurisdictions.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Can the Honourable Minister say what empirical information he has available to suggest that the tribunal system within this jurisdiction has not been able to accomplish its mission?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddén: Any intelligent person who has been following the complaints and the handling of the tribunal system over the past little while will understand that there is an element of dissatisfaction by both the complainants and by those persons complained against.

I have inherited a system where tribunal awards have yet to be made to some people. As I said, just this morning I had a telephone call from a lady with whom have been dealing, who has had a problem for over one year, and she has not been able to get the result of the tribunal award. That is but one.

Persons who sit on the tribunals . . . the system is fraught with problems. When I assumed constitutional responsibility for the Ministry, the first thing I was faced with was a slew of resignations of persons who were chairmen of tribunals. We had to find replacements for those. In the midst of all that, there were awards to be made by these tribunals, some of which the chairmen have not signed off on. If there is any more evidence than that needed, then Heaven help us!

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I always wonder why the Minister is so huffity-puffity about answering questions. I mean, the reason we can exchange—

The Speaker: Please turn this into a question.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, the reason I am asking the question is because I feel that somehow there can be some intelligent exchange between the Minister and me.

Can the Honourable Minister say if in the restructuring of the Human Resource Department there will be a Director of Human Resource and a Chief Labour Officer, and whether or not the Director of Human Resources will also be the Head of that Department, meaning he will be the superior officer to the Chief Labour Officer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: We are still in the process of formulating exactly what this restructuring will be. On Thursday, 8 March, we held a meeting with all of the Labour Department to explain to them, and to discuss with them and receive feedback, as to the Ministry's and the Minister's idea of the restructure. To this point, it is still an ongoing process of dialogue, discourse and discussion,

The Minister and the Ministry are open and when we have finished the discussions and formulated a firm direction, the Minister, in keeping with his style, will make a public announcement. But at this time, I am unable to say if there is going to be any Director of Human Resources, Chief Labour Officer, or any other such post.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister assure this House that however the restructuring comes about that the end result will mean that a Caymanian will be head of Labour and Human Resources in this country?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: I am sure that informed and educated Members will understand that I have no constitutional responsibility, authority or jurisdiction to appoint any government civil servant. My major premise is policy. Quite obviously, I would be ill advised as a Caymanian to advocate that a person other than a Caymanian be placed at its head, but I can only make a request, a suggestion and an application for a Caymanian. The ultimate responsibility lies with the Public Service Commission or whoever makes the appointments.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In the Honourable Minister's answer, I note that he stated that the labour tribunals would be relocated. If understood correctly there was some indication that we may be doing away with the labour tribunal system. Could the Minister state for clarity exactly what the position is? Will we be keeping the labour tribunals as, indicated in his answer, or will they be made redundant?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: Mr. Speaker, until we have a new labour law we have to maintain the tribunal system. So, the proposal for the arbitrator only takes place after the new labour law comes to Parliament and is voted on.

But since the lady Member asked that question, let me give you an example of why we have to do away with the tribunals. The lady Member had appointed someone from Cayman Brac to a labour tribunal in Grand Cayman Government had to pay the air fare, rent a car and provide hotel accommodation. So, Mr. Speaker, these are some of the kinds of inefficiencies and nonsensical practices why I am saying now, as Minister, that the system has to be reviewed.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Minister give an indication as to the amount of outstanding caseload, now or in writing, back in 1997 as opposed to the year 2000? And, by way of a commitment, both the past Minister (who was his colleague) and I, put forward the labour tribunals and think it was quite a good system.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: I do not wish to engage in any comparative study as to what is a good system, My responsibility as the person in charge of labour now is to find the best, most efficient and satisfactory way of dispatching the complaints we have. I believe, after taking advice from my permanent secretary and other knowledgeable and technical persons, that the system we plan to implement in the new labour law is definitely a better more efficient, cheaper system, that will yield more satisfactory results.

As to the first part of the question, I give the undertaking to find the number of outstanding complaints. Unfortunately, I do not have the information at this time. I will be happy to provide it in writing.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: The Minister seems to suggest that there is a body of knowledge that will result in the improvement of labour relations. Can the Honourable Minister say why he is talking about arbitration, conciliation and advice as a new system that operates in other countries and in order to accomplish this suggesting the review, of the Labour Law? Why is it that the Minister is not talking about the review of the Trade Union Law, which is an important part of this system?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: I do not want to sound facetious, but the answer is easy: I am the Minister of Labour, not the Minister of trade unions!

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town. I am going to have to limit it to two additional supplementaries.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I know this is going to be cut off here because obviously we are not going anywhere here. But I guess people understand what is happening.

Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not his Ministry is aware of any directive issued to anyone in the Labour department to support the changes he is talking about? If so, how can we be guaranteed that the information which exchanges now between the Labour department and his Ministry will be the result of free, uninhibited thinking?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: There was no directive. The simple answer is, this is the Government's policy. This is the policy of the current political directorate espoused by its representative myself as the Minister who holds constitutional responsibility for labour and labour-related issues.

The guarantee that there is going to be dialogue is a guarantee that I offer personally because I am democratic, open, and have been transparent and already steps have been put in place. What we have to deal with and what we encounter are mischievous, uninformed persons who insist on saying things because they have access to sources that other people may not necessarily have access to, making the task more difficult.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I would like to ask the Honourable Minister, as indicated in the last sentence of his response, whether the Labour Law is currently being reviewed and if so, by whom.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: To the best of my knowledge there is no current review of the Labour Law. It is proposed that there be a review, and certainly that is a proposal that I, as Minister, would encourage because I think it is necessary that we get a modern Labour Law.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we move on to question 10, standing in the name the Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I am wondering if I should not withdraw this question in a show of good faith that questioning does not necessarily mean that I am wanting to somehow destroy the reputation of the Minister... I do not know.

The Speaker: You are not withdrawing it?

Dr. Frank S. McField: Yes Sir.

The Speaker: Please continue.

QUESTION NO. 10

No. 10: Dr. Frank S. McField asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture to say what were the main conclusions of the Minimum Wage Advisory Committee April 1997; and will the recommendations/conclusions be made into Law and, if so, when.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: The Minimum Wage Advisory Committee was appointed in 1997 under section 21 of the Labour Law to investigate and enquire into all matters related to the appropriate level of a national minimum basic wage for hotel and condominium employees and to make recommendations as to the minimum rates of wages which should be payable to workers in these two types of establishments.

A ten-Member committee met under the chairmanship of the Director of Labour and submitted its final report in April 1997. The Report, which was never tabled in this Honourable House, concluded it to be in the best interest of the country that a national minimum basic wage for hotels and condominiums be implemented at an early date,

I should like to commend the Minimum Wage Advisory Committee for its recommendations and for doing such a thorough job. I believe that it will be a good starting point for further discussions. However, one of the recommendations was that the new minimum wage levels be phased in over three years. This study would now have to be updated and it would be necessary to see whether the economic arguments still apply.

The other point is that I believe that all service workers should have the protection of a minimum wage, not just those in the hotel and condo sector. I think that we can build on the good work of the minimum wage associations and by involving the employer associations as well as employee representatives, we can look at introducing a minimum wage by sector. This is something that my Ministry will begin looking at with the reorganisation of the Labour Department.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: We just had a motion, which we are still debating, regarding minimum wage. What was mentioned yesterday was section 20 of the Labour Law, which allows the Governor to prescribe a minimum wage. If this was a report done to the Ministry responsible for labour, can the present Minister say if he has any knowledge as to why this was not taken into account and not prescribed in 1997?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: I have no idea, Sir. I assumed constitutional responsibility for Labour and labour-related matters on the 16th of November 2000. What transpired between 1997 and that time I do not know.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, with all due respect, does that mean that governments only start functioning every time we have changes? He—

The Speaker: Please turn it into a question.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, can the Minister say if anyone in his department would have knowledge as to why, if it was considered efficient to establish a minimum wage, and why if a study had been done recommending a minimum wage in the condo and hotel association minimum wage was not prescribed by the Governor or the Governor-in-Council at that time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: I do not want to be so ridiculous as to dissuade other Honourable Members from asking me questions in the future, but I hardly see how it could be reasonable and logical for anyone to expect me to give an account for something done prior to my assuming responsibility for it.

When I came to the office I was made aware that this document was there. I stated my intention to have complete and thorough review of the minimum wage by category. I was prepared to bring the proposal to this Honourable House myself. I was later made aware that certain parsons were bringing it in a Private Member's Motion to which I said I would consult with the Government and that it was my disposition to accept.

That being the case, and this study being complete in 1997 only covering two sections, I did not deem it urgent, nor appropriate to have this matter brought into play.

I, myself have a question, and that is, "Why did not my predecessor who had responsibility for labour do something about it?"

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Would the Honourable Minister give an undertaking to this House to seek the advice of the Government's principal legal advisor as to which is the most expeditious and efficient manner of getting the long awaited national minimum wage provisions put into law in the Cayman Islands? And would he undertake to take his advice?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: There is a Private Member's Motion the conclusion of which has not yet been reached. I can not go outside of the authority of the Honourable House if the House says we have to have a select committee and begin the process all over again, I would be ill advised and run the risk of being sanctioned by the House I would suggest that it is the best course of action I await the outcome of the Private Member's Motion which is currently on the floor.

I give all Members my assurance, as can be witnessed by my involvement in the three attempts to have a minimum wage instituted in this country by category that I am interested in this. I am committed to seeing it done. But I am also committed to having it done in the most efficient way according to the dictates of the Honourable Members of this House.

The Speaker: Two additional supplementaries.
The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Would the Minister be in a position to say if in fact the recommendations contained in the report of the 1997 Minimum Wage Committee would be in his opinion an administrative nightmare to enforce?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddin: Mr. Speaker, to tell the truth, I reviewed the recommendations. I did not study them in detail. Therefore, I do not consider myself informed and equipped to give such and opinion.

I can say that times have changed. The economy has changed. And it is possible that the minimum wage recommended at that time may be irrelevant now and may need adjusting upwards.

The Speaker: Final supplementary. The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable Minister say from his review of the report by the Minimum Wage Advisory Council whether there was any intention to have a minimum wage applied to other sectors? While I understand that the hotel and condo sectors would have been the areas of great concern at the time, did the Advisory Council make any such recommendation that it should extend to other sectors?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddin: At the time the Advisory Council made its report, the Council's work was limited exclusively to hotel and condo workers, in my opinion that was one of the weaknesses of the exercise. . .

I believe that to be effective and successful we must have a review of the whole spectrum, not just the hotel and condo.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today. It is customary that we take a break; I am grateful that yesterday we did not require it. Is it the wish of the House that we take the morning break now, or continue until 12.45 and take the luncheon break? [pause] The majority agrees, so we shall continue.

Item number 4 on today's Order Paper, Other Business, Private Members' Motions. The continuation of debate on Private Member's Motion No. 1/01, Establishment of a Select Committee on Minimum Wage.

Before we begin, I would like to call Members' attention to Standing Order 41, which speaks of irrelevance and tedious repetition, and I would also like to refer to Erskine May, 22nd Edition, pages 393 and 27 which speaks of relevance in debate. I ask all Members to make this a relevant debate. Thank you.

Does any Member wish to speak? The floor is open for debate. Does any Member wish to speak? The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 1/01

ESTABLISHMENT OF A SELECT COMMITTEE ON MINIMUM WAGE

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I rise in support of what I think is a timely Motion—one that I feel could greatly enhance the lives of people in our Caymanian society. Obvious, when we have discussions and debates on wages, one cannot have that without speaking of the economics surrounding wages and employment.

It is my opinion that numerous Members of this Honourable House raised very good points that will need to be brought up in the Select Committee. We must seek to address these points because in life for every action there will be reactions; there are numerous reactions that all of us as responsible Members must take into account when we go down this road and speak of minimum wages.

We have to recognise that wage, as was previously mentioned, is a commodity governed by the laws of demand and supply. However, think it is safe to say that when you have imported labour, or an imported commodity, this too will have an impact on the local price. In a perfect world we can look at theories of demand and supply and apply them to life. We can use empirical evidence and come up with reasonable estimations as what will happen to our economy when Government institutes certain mandates by law.

I want to talk about the fact that we have great market distortions in Cayman. In a perfect world we would have every country operating as a cocoon. Each country would have supply and demand factors for labour and derivation of a wage. Unfortunately, in this world human capital is free to move within the confines of each sovereign state or dependent territory's immigration policy. When we talk about wage in the Caymanian context, we have to recognise the impact that imported labour has on the price of labour in Cayman: in other words, the impact it has on wage.

We have imported labour that comes from territory significantly less economically prosperous than the Cayman Islands. When we look at supply and demand labour and the corresponding wages, we must also at the conditions that prevail in the jurisdiction we a speaking of. In the Caymanian context we have to look at what the expectations are of (a) Caymanians, and (b) imported labour.

Most Caymanians will have a family, will desire a house, will desire an automobile to move to and from school and work. Most Caymanians also aspire to have reasonable living conditions. A Caymanian's expectation of wage is often significantly different than that of imported labour, especially at the lower ends of the labour market.

Mr. Speaker, when we drive around our community and see where certain imported labour live—mind you, there are Caymanian families that live in these conditions as well—but when we see where imported labour, willingly live, most Caymanians are aspiring to move on. A lot of imported labour in this country live in conditions that cannot be described as anything better than slums. But, in the context of where they have come from, their lives are better.

Again, our Caymanian families expect a decent place to live, and an automobile to move around. However, when we look at imported labour, in a lot of instances, not only do the people live in slum conditions, they do not necessarily desire to have a car and privacy no longer means what it would to most people. So where you would find numerous people sharing cramped quarter. . . and I speak from experience of seeing eight adults living in a two bedroom house in my constituency, what they would expect the market to bear in the way of a wage is significantly different than that of our Caymanian people whom we were all elected to represent in the first instance.

When persons come to our country from conditions that most of us cannot even imagine, this is a huge step up in life. What they would expect as a wage would be significantly lower than what our Caymanians would expect and accept.

The rubber meets the road when we throw the employers into the equation. Why would an employer employ a Caymanian if he can get the imported labour to do the job for a fraction of the cost, assuming he can get the work permit? But our immigration situation has grown to the stage where, in my opinion, it is unmanageable with the current system. No one seems to have a handle on it, or on its impact on wages in this country and the effect it has had on our Caymanian people.

Let us touch on this imported labour again in relation to the employer. It is my opinion that the employer can pay them less because of the expectation of lifestyle versus a Caymanian. There is also something called a work permit which has become a magic wand in our society. Employers wave it over the heads of their imported labour. They do not even wait for him to ask to jump, they automatically look at him and ask "how high?" We not only have market distortions within the labour force because of the imported labour, in my opinion we have exploitation in the labour force.

We were elected to make tough unpopular decisions once they were for the betterment of our country and our people. We were elected to speak openly, honestly and frankly about the issues and the situations that prevail in our country.

I must commend the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town. In his contribution to this Motion he, in my opinion, was the one who focused on the fact that, yes, you can have economic theory, but you have to apply it in the context that prevails in your country. He spoke quite a bit about imported labour and the impact it has on the labour market, and, more importantly, on the price of labour the wages our people earn. I am not here to say that the establishment of a minimum wage is a magical cure all. In life, everything is inter-related: Education, Immigration, and Labour.

I was heartened to hear the Honourable Minister for Education speak to bridging gaps within the vocational and technical training realm. As other Honourable Members have correctly said, we cannot simply go after the conditions we see, but we must seek to cure the issues that underlie the visible conditions. We must seek to address the systemic problems. In so doing we will cure the ills that people overtly see day to day. Obviously education is a key component to solving our wage problem here in Cayman.

Our immigration policies and future reviews will have a direct impact, however, when I look around the various countries in this world that have relative economic success, countries such as the United States of America, and I see minimum wages it makes me think.

In fact, when digging deeper, we quickly find out that it is proven in most free market economies that people at the fringe of the employment market do not necessarily get what the market will bear in terms of wages. Most employers know who the marginally unemployable are. Most employers know exactly how to manipulate the situation so that their wage does not fit within the context of the economic model which dictates that price is very near the intersection of demand and supply.

We have a group of citizens within every society who are often referred to as the "marginally unemployable." Within the Caymanian context, we must look at what makes our people marginally unemployable. We must look at the causes, not the symptoms. The symptom is that they are marginally unemployable—why?

In my humble opinion, there are a few factors that contribute greatly to this: (1) Educational background; (2) employment practices of certain employers in Cayman (3) mental health status; (4) motivation (or lack thereof and (5) police record—criminal conviction. So, Mr. Speaker, how does a minimum wage cure any of those ills? It is my opinion that a minimum wage can address two, the other three will have to be addressed by other policies which we in this House will have to debate and address.

As I said before, it was heartening to hear the Honourable Minister for Education speak to the need of proper vocational and technical training in this country. I feel that this is the route that will address the first point mentioned—the educational background of the person.

We have to equip our people with tangible skills needed within the labour market. Mr. Speaker, we cannot simply rely on employers to train people. We have tried that for many years. It just has not worked.

It is my opinion that there needs to be greater emphasis on technical and vocational training in this country. We must ensure that once our people are equipped with skills they are not shut out of the labour market, or that their wages are not suppressed because an employer looks at the economic situation and simply says I can import labour cheaper and because I have the magic wand called a work permit, the person cannot get up and leave as his free will like a Caymanian can. So, who am I going to employ? And at what price?' The economics of the situation can quickly disintegrate within the Caymanian context.

We must, in my opinion, move forward and openly and frankly debate this issue and ensure that the people we describe as marginally unemployable are truly given a chance. With the system that currently exists, it is my opinion that they are not. It is my opinion that in the Caymanian context minimum wages do not make the marginally unemployable more unemployable. It is my opinion that unscrupulous employers and the situation that exists—that is the availability of cheap labour, and the magic wand called a work permit—makes our marginally unemployable people even more unemployable. Why would an employer hire them when he can get this readily available cheap commodity called imported labour?

Economic theory is great. Most theories are great, you read them and you get a warm fuzzy feeling because you think you start to understand an issue. But, we must always look at the theory within the confines, taking into account all the variables that exist in the local marketplace. I will say again that it is my opinion that the availability of cheap imported labour and the magic wand called a work permit makes the marginally unemployable in this country even mere unemployable.

If that is not so, how can I explain to a mother of four (who because of health reasons was forced to stop working, albeit hopefully temporarily) why it is that when her previous employer went out of business, that she could not find a job for six months? She is Caymanian, she has worked steady for the last 13 years, she has no criminal convictions, she has no mental health situation, she has no problem with motivation and has good references and she can do the job she wants to do. This lady cleans condominiums. She has done it for many years. She is a diligent hard worker and she is reliable. How is it that a person like that can take six months to find a job?

Obviously, a minimum wage would not cure that situation in its entirety. That issue has wider reaching effects within the labour market in Cayman. But I beg to say that the availability of cheap imported labour in conjunction with the magic wand called a work permit, made her less attractive to potential employers after all, she's a Caymanian, she has a voice in this country; she has a voice in the labour market. If you do not treat her fairly she can move on freely and get another job. When she would go from condo to condo and from hotel to hotel and apply for a job, why didn't some of these employers seek to employ her? She has four kids and a small house. She is a hard working lady and has worked consistently. She has bills to pay and children to feed, all in this expensive island.

Would she have gone in and accepted $2.50 per hour as she was offered at one place? That could be a person that is best described in the Caymanian context as marginally unemployable because she has no real tangible skill, no educational background to speak of. But, she is able-bodied, she is Caymanian, and she wants to work.

After not being able to secure a job within that six-month period in the private sector, she turned to the Government. She went to the George Town Hospital applied for a job. Again, the door was slammed in her face and she was told no, there was enough staff in the housekeeping department. I was able to find out that the time of her application there were three expatriates on contracts.

I do not expect magicians this Island. However, I would expect (and I am sure I speak for everyone in this House and everyone in this Island) that when there are art capable Caymanians who are willing and able to do certain jobs, that they would be given the opportunity to do those jobs. But you see, because of our unique situation in Cayman, certain Caymanians are being shut out of labour market.

I recognise the fact that jobs pay wages and that any policy that we seek to implement in this Honourable House must first protect Caymanians, but it must also allow Cayman to be conducive for business as it is business that creates jobs and jobs that pay wages. However, we must ensure that the system is fair and equitable. We must remove the loopholes, to try to eliminate exploitation, so that we can allow all Caymanians a fair opportunity to earn a decent wage.

We could then say "well, let us allow the market dictate the price." I have yet to hear anyone demonstrate why, if the labour market is so perfect around the world, almost every other country in the free world has some sort of a minimum wage. Labour is not something you go and buy off a shelf. This involves lives; this involves families and our communities. When our adults go home frustrated by low wages, discouraged by employment conditions, they are, at a minimum, disgruntled. How can disgruntled people effectively raise children, and provide the legacy required for us to move forward as an Island in a positive manner?

When our people have to work from 9 am to 5pm, take a break and then work from 8.00 pm to 11.00 pm and the children of our country are left unsupervised, how can we expect anything other than the increase youth violence? So, when we speak of a minimum wage, we are not just talking about what people make, we are talking about a lot of other issues that strike to the core of some of the problems we face in this Island.

When an employer can look a Caymanian in the face and say "well the person from jurisdiction X is willing to work for $10.00 per hour, that is all you are going to get" irrespective of demand and supply, that is when we as a government must look at the situation rationally and ask if a minimum wage should be part and parcel of the cure. In my opinion it is and should be part and parcel of the cure.

In my previous job I went from institution to institution performing audits. I had the opportunity to meet many Caymanians from many districts. I got to meet people from the cross-section of Caymanian society. I got to meet Caymanians who managed to reach a level of management, or supervision. I got to meet the Caymanians who are also at the lower ends, the clerks, the administrators, the messengers. The only way I can describe the feeling that I have for our society is cancerous.

When one of the first people asked me why I should leave my private comfortable life as an accountant to get into the dirty world of politics (as they called it), I asked if they had spoken to anyone recently and found out what life is really like for an ever-increasing number of our people. The gentleman looked at me and said "say no more. I understand where you are coming from."

I had the privilege of having a gentleman in construction come to my office looking for a job last week. We started talking about wages and I asked what he made in the late 1980s. He said $10.00 per hour. I said that was a pretty good wage in the late 1980s. I asked what he makes now. He said $10.00 per hour, but he was willing to work for $8.00 per hour because construction is relatively unstable.

When you look at the rate of inflation in this society since the, late 1980s (1989 for the sake of argument), 11 years ago the cost of living in this country was dramatically different than it is today. When a gentleman can look at me and say that despite the economic boom we have experienced over the last few years . . . demand and supply did not help him. His wages stagnated!

Mr. Speaker, I know a few contractors and I had the occasion to ask one who I know quite well what has happened to his margins, that is his return on contracts after he has paid all his expenses. He said, "Rolston, over the last ten years I have done exceedingly well." He has three sets of apartments to show for it. I do not know his personal banking details, but I do know that two sets of apartments are not with the bank any longer. I would say he did quite well.

He readily admitted to me that 80 percent of his crew are the imported commodity of labour. I think we can easily paint a picture of what has happened in this Island. Yes, we have had an economic boom over the last number of years which was in my opinion directly correlated to the boom in the US economy. However, the Cayman situation regarding labour is far from the perfect economic model. It is my opinion that for many of our people you can throw demand and supply out of the window. Yes, I know for people on the higher end of the scale (because I personally experience this) demand and supply is alive and well. There are some 400 qualified accountants on this island, only 50 are Caymanian. Trust me, most well qualified and experienced Caymanian practitioners in accountancy can make more than the market bears.

But, we are talking about our constituents around this entire island who are at the lower end of the scale. Demand and supply has not worked for them. I beg say that instituting a minimum wage would go a long way to curing some of these ills. With all things you can not do things willy-nilly, especially when you are going to talk about things like minimum wage. You must do your research. That is why the mover of this Motion is referring the Motion to a select committee. I commend him on that approach.

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for just a moment? We have reached the hour for lunch. Will you be finished within a few moments, or would you prefer to finish after lunch?

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Because I am not long-winded, I can safely say I will be wrapping up within the next couple of minutes.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you.

I would like to throw out one last thing: I had the opportunity during the campaign and again recently to get some information from the Economics and Statistics Office as to what it takes the average person in Cayman survive. Their estimation is somewhere in the neighbourhood of $1500 to $1800 per month.

Mr. Speaker, when we hear of this high level of the cost of living in Cayman, and if we assume that on the high end it is $1800, that would equate to having to make $11.25 to break even. If we go to the low end of $1500 per month, it would take $9.38 to break even, using hours per week, 160 hours per month as a guide.

There are many Caymanians, there are many people referred to as imported labour in this country who are not making anything approaching those amounts. So when we hear of increases in crime, drug abuse, people losing their houses, financial strain causing divorces, children getting caught up in the midst of this, it is no wonder that our society is decaying the way it is.

I am not saying that a minimum wage would cure these ills, but I am saying that I believe it is part and parcel of the cure. I look forward to debating this issue with all my colleagues in the Select Committee. I would recommend that the mover of this Motion also utilise minimum wage advisory council made up of private sector citizens who can do a study similar to that done 1997 so as to guide us. But, I support this Motion because I think it is in the best interest of the people of the Cayman Islands. I do not feel that at this point in time it would adversely affect the employability of the marginally employable, I only think it would go to enhance their standard of living.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings until 2, p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.5 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.22 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 1/01. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Capt. Eugene Ebanks: Thank you.

I too rise to support the Motion brought by the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, which I seconded. As I listened to the many speakers on the Motion, there was one thing that came to my attention: None of them mentioned the hardship that the absence of a minimum wage creates for many Caymanians.

I say this because with the way the imported labour is in Cayman today, many lower income families cannot compete in the job market. If there were a minimum wage across the board where employers paid Caymans and non-Caymanians the same wage, there would be a lot less work permits involved. Single parent Caymanians, women especially, who want to work and are willing to work, but cannot afford to work for the same wage that the non-Caymanian can work for.

That is particularly true where six or eight non-Caymanians share a one or two-bedroom apartment. The Caymanian has children to put through school, insurance to pay, many other expenses the expatriate does not have, therefore, before you know it, they are in a bind and end up in the office of Social Services. That creates an additional burden on the local populace.

I find that this Motion is very timely in view of the fact that it has been on the books for so many past administrations. When we campaigned prior to this Election we knew we would have to make some very unpopular decisions. That is exactly what we are prepared to do. I must say that there is really not much that I can contribute that has not already been spoken on. However, I feel that the lack of a minimum wage has created exploitation in the labour field. This is a problem that we as a government must address,

I applaud the mover of this Motion and I support it, Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The floor is open for debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The floor is open for debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) I cannot wait any longer. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The floor is open for debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause)

If not, does the Honourable Mover wish to exercise his right of reply? The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay,

Mr. Cline Glidden Jr.: In winding up the debate on this Motion, I would first like to thank the Honourable Members of this House who spoke in support of this Motion. I would also like to thank those Members who attempted to be objective and express their concerns with the Motion. I would also like to thank the Minister responsible for accepting the Motion on behalf of Government. I was happy to hear that the Government was planning on bringing the Motion if it had not come forward as a Private Member's Motion.

It was very heartening to hear the Minister speak the partnership necessary between employees and employers. When the idea of the Motion came forward, I envisaged the Minister being the chairman of the Select Committee. I was hoping that a select committee would request Members and have consultation with Members of the private and public sector, both employees and employers. I feel that the only way we can move forward with a practical solution to minimum wage is if we have co-operation on both sides.

Now that we have every indication that this Motion is going to be accepted, I have full confidence that the Government has the political will to move this forward in the indicated time-frame.

The idea behind proposing a select committee was an attempt to get away from the partisan politics that have caused stifling of this necessary legislation for so long. If we send this over to a committee of the Government and leave it as their responsibility, when it comes back to the House there would be a lot of debate and petty politics played. It is very possible that it would fall away as it has done in the past. The feeling and intent that a select committee of the whole House will allow the necessary debate to take place and the implementation will be a much smoother process.

One Member spoke about minimum wage not being a solution to the poverty in Cayman. I can assure all Honourable Members that we are not ridiculous enough to believe this is a solution in its entirety. This is but small part in the way forward to making a better life for our Caymanian people.

When the Third Elected Member for George Town made his contribution, he got the impression that I implied which way was the best way as to a general minimum wage or a minimum wage by category: What I attempted to do was show the possibility of two ways. I basically used the example of the Minimum Wage Advise Committee set up for hotel and condos to show why one wage across the board was not going to be what I felt was a good idea. But, again, the reason I proposed going to a select committee is that I will have an opinion, as will all Members of this House. Collectively we should be able to come up with the best workable approach.

I said that what I envisaged was a system similar that exercised by our Government and larger employers in Cayman, a scaled system in different categories. If the Select Committee feels that one wage across the board is the way to go then the democratic process will prevail.

There was also a concern mentioned for small businesses. I am proud to state that there is another Motion coming before this House which recognises the need for the protection of small Caymanian businesses. And I want to make it clear that when that Motion was thought about, it was not done so in a vacuum by itself—there is an attempt to address other issues that may come from it.

When the Third Elected Member for George Town said how careful we have to be because the minimum wage legislation could actually hurt jobs, I found it very enlightening to see that he had apparently learned quickly the importance of having a job before worrying about the wage. I am sure that if that lesson had been learnt before December, there are a lot of employees in the Labour Union who would have been very appreciative.

We all have to bear in mind that when we attempt to make things better for people, if the process is not well thought out we are actually making things worse for them. That is why we attempt to go into a select committee where we can get feedback from all Members of this Honourable House on the way forward with such important legislation

The Second Elected Member for George Town mentioned what he saw as being a problem with the legalities of this Motion set in such a way. He even recommended that there should be an amendment because the onus should be on the Government to move the Motion forward.

Mr. Speaker, there have been many mentions made about the changing of the guard. My Feeling as an elected representative of the people—firstly the constituency of West Bay, and the Cayman Islands on a whole—is that when major decisions have to be made, the onus should fall not only on the Government. As a representative of the people I have a responsibility to be a part of that decision-making process. I believe in an inclusive type of leadership, not exclusive. So, if the Member for George Town has a problem in being a part of that decision making process, I respectfully honour his problem. But, as far as I am concerned, I want to be a part of the solution.

Moving right along, when we look at the makeup of this Honourable House, we see that we have quite a good balance with Government and Backbench. I guess I was happy to see that we had an economist as part of this makeup. But there seems to be a part of that that I do not understand because what we had referred to as an increase in the potential cost of living in Cayman by setting a minimum wage, I then heard the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman mention that he is proposing that we will double the work permit fees.

If the minimum wage will increase the cost of living by the passing down of that fee, how then will the doubling of work permit fees not also have the same effect on the cost of living? Those fuzzy economics I do not understand too well.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman also mentioned that credit should be given to Immigration because they were doing their job. Well, I feel that as legislators we were also given a job to do: our job is to make sure that our Caymanian people get an honest day's pay for an honest day's work. That is the job we were elected to do.

In his contribution, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said that the solution to our problems is not forming a minimum wage, but creating economic packages that would cause economic boom and economic success in the Cayman Islands. I know he has the responsibility for the constituents of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and maybe things are different over there, but we have been going through quite an economic boom for the last ten or fifteen year and that has not solved the problem of minimum wage. We still have people complaining of being paid $2.50 c $3.00 an hour or less. Unless there is some other change he is talking about, again I do not understand that type of economics. Maybe that works for the employers, but not the employees.

Mr. Speaker, even though Members of this Honourable House may not all agree on the best way forward the purpose of this Motion is because something needs to be done about the low wages being paid in this country. I know we will have differences of opinion, hence the recommendation for a select committee. I fully expect that after the select committee has been set up we will have that debate. I look forward to—in a very timely fashion—being able to go to the people of the Cayman Islands having fulfilled one of the many promises that the Elected Member for East End referred to. I look forward to the support of this House. Thank you.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 1/01 shortly entitled, The Establishment of the Select Committee on the Minimum Wage.

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House a points a Select Committee of the whole House to determine a minimum wage for the Cay- man Islands and that the Government implement, within a one year time frame, the Committee's recommendations." Those In favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES (one audible NO).

The Speaker: Only heard one No.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Can I have a division?

The Speaker: A division? Certainly.

The Clerk:

Division No. 1/01

Ayes: 14

Hon. Samuel Bulgin
Hon. George A. McCarthy
Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts
Hon. Edna M. Moyle
Hon. Roy Bodden
Hon. W. McKeeva Bush
Mr. Rolston Anglin
Capt. Eugene Ebanks
Mr. Cline Glidden Jr.
Mr. Arden McLean
Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
Mr. Anthony Eden
Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly
Mr. Lyndon Martin

Noes: 0

Abstentions: 2

Mr. Alden McLaughlin
Dr. Frank S. McField

Absent: 2

Hon. James M. Ryan
Hon. Linford A. Pierson

The Speaker: The result of the division, 14 Ayes, two Abstentions, two Absent. The Motion has passed.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 1/01 PASSED.

The Speaker: In accordance with Standing Order 70(3) I appoint the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture to be Chairman of the Select Committee.

Moving on with Private Members' Motions . . . the Honourable First Official Member has had to leave the Chamber on very official business. I would appreciate it if a motion would be made to move on to Private Member's Motion No. 7/01.

The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Mr. Speaker, due to the reasons you just explained, the Government would seek your indulgence to allow us to move on to the next Motion and deal with that, and once through with that we can go back.

The Speaker: Thank you.

I shall put the question that we proceed with Private Member's Motion No. 7/01 in view of the absence of the Honourable First Official Member. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/01 TO TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/01 IN THE ABSENCE OF THE HONOURABLE FIRST OFFICIAL MEMBER.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 7/01, Amendment to Succession Law, to be moved by the Second Elected Member for George Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/01

AMENDMENT TO SUCCESSION LAW

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: I rise to move the following Motion.

"WHEREAS section 35 of the Succession Law (Law 18 of 1975) (1995 Revision) ("the Succession Law,") provides that:

- "1. Where the mother of an illegitimate child, such not being a legitimated person, dies intestate respects all or any of her property, the illegitimate child, or if he is dead, his issue, shall be entitled to take any interest therein to which he or such issue, would have been entitled if he been born legitimate;
- "2. Where an illegitimate child, not being a legitimated person, dies intestate in respect of all any of his property, his mother, if surviving be entitled to any interest therein to which she would have been entitled if the child had been born legitimate and she had been the only, surviving parent;
- "3. Where the father of an illegitimate child, not being a legitimated person, who has been adjudged as such by an affiliation order made under Affiliation Law, 1973 or any other law relating affiliation previously in force in the Islands, dies intestate as respects all or any of his property, the illegitimate child, or if he is dead, his issue shall be entitled to take any interest therein which he or such issue would have been entitle if he had been born legitimate;
- "4. Where an Illegitimate child, not being a legiti-

mated person, whose mother has predeceased him, dies intestate in respect of any or all of his property, his father, if he has been adjudged such by an affiliation order made under the Affiliation Law, 1973 or any other law relating to affiliation previously in force in the Islands, and surviving, shall be entitled to any interest there to which he would have been entitled if he had been born legitimate and he had been the only surviving parent.'

"AND WHEREAS the above provisions of Succession Law discriminate unfairly against an illegitimate child whose father acknowledged paternity and supported that child voluntarily, as well against the natural father of such a child;

"BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that section 35 of the Succession Law be amended to extend to illegitimate children, and to the natural fathers, such children, the same rights to succession on intestacy enjoyed by legitimate children and the fathers of legitimate children;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Succession Law also be amended to provide for an appropriate method of establishing paternity prior as well as following either the death of the man alleged to be the natural father of an illegitimate child who had not, prior to his death, been adjudged to the putative father of the said illegitimate child under the provisions of the Affiliation Law (1995 Revision), or the death of the illegitimate child."

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 7/01, having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate. The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: I wish to record my thanks to the Elected Member for East End for seconding this 'Motion.

This Motion seeks to remove the discrimination presently inherent in section 35 of the Succession Law, which currently operates unfairly against an illegitimate child where that child's father has acknowledged paternity and voluntarily supported that child. It also discriminates unfairly against the father of such a child. That discrimination is part of our English Common Law legacy as it relates to succession rights. While the law of the United Kingdom has long since removed that discrimination, the law of the Cayman Islands lags behind in this regard.

It would probably be helpful if I were to give some background to the position at Common Law, hence the position our law is currently in.

At Common Law succession was based on the supremacy of the man, the express purpose being to produce children of undisputed paternity. The reason for that was that these children would ultimately inherit their father's property as natural heirs. The primacy of succession can be seen reflected in the view of Sir William Blackstone, in his Commentaries on the Laws of England. in 1765, and I quote from that text, "The incapacity of the illegitimate child consists principally in this: he cannot be heir to anyone, neither can he have heirs but of his own body for being nullius filius. He is therefore of kin to nobody and has no ancestor from whom any inheritable blood can be derived."

In both the United Kingdom and in the Cayman Islands, significant legislative inroads have been made into the position at Common Law which created that absolute bar that Sir William Blackstone referred to. But in Cayman, further changes are necessary to our legislation to remove the remaining discriminatory features from our law.

The changes this Motion seeks are not novel. Such changes were made years ago to the legislation in the United Kingdom and to other jurisdictions within the Caribbean. In fact, some 30 years ago, the UK Parliament passed the Family Law Reform Act of 1969 which gave effect to a similar provision to the one which this Motion proposes.

Also by way of background, I propose to refer to the Law Commission's working paper on illegitimacy published in the United Kingdom back in 1979. Among the various things that working group did was to survey the basic question of discrimination for the purposes of succession between illegitimate and legitimate children. They had a look at the underlying philosophy often used as a basis for continuing such discrimination,

The Commission put it this way: "It is not now easy to put convincing arguments in favour of discrimination, because such arguments would logically justify a return to the strict common law position, and it is difficult to believe that there would be any substantive support for turning the clock back in this way. Nevertheless, arguments in favour of preserving the principle of discrimination may still be used by those who are prepared reluctantly to accept as an accomplished fact, the changes which have already been made toward improving the legal status of the illegitimate child but think that no further reforms should be made. We therefore briefly summarise the arguments in favour of discrimination. There are three in number though they are perhaps not altogether distinct.

"First, it is said that the legal distinction between 'legitimacy' and 'illegitimacy' reflects social realities. This was certainly true at one time. The birth of an illegitimate child was regarded as bringing disgrace not only on the mother but also on the immediate family. The child could no more expect to be recognised as a member of the family and be received into the family home than he could expect to inherit family property. He was not a real member of the family group. However, although there may still be cases where the illegitimate child is in this position, the evidence suggests that a significant and increasing proportion of all illegitimate children born each year are recognised by both parents, at least the parents have a relationship of some stability...

"Secondly, it is said that the distinction serves to uphold moral standards and also to support the institution of marriage. In relation to the preservation of moral standards, it is difficult to say how far the fear of producing illegitimate children influenced sexual behaviour in the past; since the risk of an unwanted pregnancy can now usually be avoided by contraceptive measures it seems improbable the such fears still influence sexual behaviour to any substantial extent. Support for the institution of marriage is of course of great importance, especially the present context, because a married relationship between parents should in principle be more stable than an unmarried one, so creating a better environment for the child's upbringing. However, many marriages are not stable, and statistically it seems that marriages that are entered into primarily for the pose of ensuring that an expected child is not born illegitimate are especially at risk. In a large proportion of marriages where the girl is under 20 she also pregnant; and the failure rate of marriage where the girl married young is statistically high. We therefore find it difficult to accept that the institution of marriage is truly supported by a state of the law which the conception of a child may encourage young couples to enter precipitately into marriages which may have little chance of success.

"The third argument in favour of preserving discriminatory treatment asserts that the legal relationship between the child's parents should be relevant in determining the child's legal status: that as the legal relationship of marriage results in legitimate status for the child, so a relationship which does not accord with the norm should not result in normal status for the child. On this view it is regarded as significant not only that a legitimate child is the issue of a legally recognised union, the incidents of which are fixed by law and which can only be dissolved by formal proceedings but also that marriage, at least in its inception, is intended to be permanent. The relationship of an illegitimate child's parents, on the other hand, is not in; general legally recognised and may never have been intended to be more than transient. However this argument is based on the premise that a child's status ought to be affected by that of his parents. This is the proposition which we do not accept; it is, after all, the child's status, and the nature of the relationship between his parents need not and should not affect this.

"In general, where a child is involved, the law is that his welfare is the first and paramount consideration; transcending even the consideration of doing justice between his parents or between his parents and outsiders. We do not think that the arguments mentioned above in favour of discrimination are sufficiently strong to justify a refusal, as a matter of law, to apply the same welfare principle to children simply on the ground that they have been born out of wedlock, In particular, we see no justification for preserving the status quo . . ."

Mr. Speaker, I adopt those words as mine and believe that the state of the law in Cayman as it was in the UK some 30 years ago is in need of reform in the way this Motion seeks.

With that background, I will now move on to deal with the current state of the law in Cayman and the social context in which it operates.

On average there are 548 births per annum, in the Cayman Islands. And between 1990 and 1999, an average of 43% of these births was outside of wedlock. Taking into account the relatively small number of children who are adopted or legitimated, it is obvious that illegitimacy is a notable feature of Caymanian society, however much we may prefer otherwise. Consequently, a significant percentage of our community are or may be affected by the current state of the law.

Quite recently the Grand Court had cause to comment on section 35 of The Succession Law, in a case in 1999 referred to as RE: The Estate of "B." This case involved the question of what circumstance an illegitimate child could claim an inheritance where the natural father died without leaving a will. The particular facts of that case were that "B" died intestate, a married man having one legitimate child and two illegitimate children whose mother was not his wife or widow.

His estate was quite small and his outside children (as we call them) claimed an interest in his estate. It was accepted that his widow and his illegitimate children could share in his estate and claim an interest therein.

The Court noted that under the Common Law the illegitimate children could not claim any interest in the estate of the deceased. Therefore order for them to be able to successfully assert any such claim, they would need statutory assistance. That assistance was to be derived from the provisions of section 35 of the Succession Law.

Subsections (3) and (4) of section 35 relate specifically to fathers and their illegitimate children. Essentially, those two subsections required proof of paternity. But under their provisions, proof of paternity can only take the form of an affiliation order made under the Affiliation Law (1995) or any other Law relating to Affiliation which had previously been in force in Cayman.

In the case of RE: The Estate of "B.", since "B" had never been the subject of an affiliation order his illegitimate children were denied an inheritance. It is noteworthy that in this case the Court found as a fact that the deceased was the natural father of the illegitimate children. Nevertheless, because of the statutory provision, the Court was forced to come to the conclusion that they could not share in his estate. The Court commented at some length at the apparent unfairness of a situation that allowed an illegitimate child to claim an inheritance where an affiliation order was in place, but not where a natural father had acknowledged paternity and supported his outside children voluntarily.

It is precisely that statutory discrimination which this Motion seeks to redress. In its current state the Law creates the disgraceful irony that children born out of wedlock whose fathers voluntarily supported them as deprived of an inheritance from their fathers, whereas children similarly born who had deadbeat dads for fathers, are entitled to inherit from their fathers. That cannot be right.

The shortcoming in section 35 is not in my view that it requires proof of paternity; but rather that it limits such proof to the existence of an order adjudging the natural father of an illegitimate child to be the child's putative father. Under our law, the only procedure by which a man can be so adjudged is the Affiliation Law. When an affiliation order is made, it simultaneously adjudges a man to be the putative father of an illegitimate child and orders him to make a weekly payment by way of maintenance of that child. Historically, the affiliation order had its genesis out of social concern that all children should be maintained by someone.

Legislation placed time limits on when applications or complaints under the Affiliation law could be made (and this was dependent upon a finding of paternity). It was thought that proceedings should be barred in cases where the evidence might become stale. That was the justification for imposing time limits.

One of the unfortunate consequences of using the affiliation order as the sole basis for inheritance is that paternity must be proven before the child reaches majority, or before the father dies. Once one of those events intervenes, there is no longer any focus in the mother or anyone else for that matter, to bring the matter before the Court. It should be apparent for obvious reasons that this restriction is both unsatisfactory and unfair. It is not a good enough basis by itself for establishing paternity.

To demonstrate why proof of paternity should not be restricted in such a manner, I wish to refer this Honourable House to certain statistics to demonstrate the problems inherent in limiting proof of paternity in the way section 35 currently does. In 1990, there were 167 children born out of wedlock in the Cayman Islands; there were 45 affiliation orders granted. In 1999, there were 190 children born out of wedlock in the Cayman Islands; there were 72 affiliation orders granted.

So, Mr. Speaker, if Section 35 of the Succession Law is not amended in the manner which this Motion proposes, this gap between actual and potential orders is certain to have negative repercussions insofar as succession rights are concerned.

Perhaps I should explain some of the reasons why more applications for affiliation orders are not made. That may well be because most mothers do not associate the existence of an affiliation order with the children's right to inherit from their natural fathers. Additionally, the whole process of obtaining an affiliation order and commencing affiliation proceedings deters many mothers from initiating those steps. Affiliation proceedings can be embarrassing and unpleasant. If mothers can raise their children without dragging the fathers before the Court to obtain affiliation orders, most mothers will opt for that route.

It is my submission that it is critical that section 35 of the Succession Law be amended to provide other means of establishing paternity both before and after the death of the natural father of an illegitimate child. These changes will bring our Law in line with the Succession Law in most developed countries, certainly in line with that of the UK, Jamaica and Barbados, to name a few relevant jurisdictions.

Reforms in the UK and elsewhere in the Caribbean have sought to provide other means of establishing paternity. They have used blood tests, registration of births, a procedure which allows the Court to declare paternity without there being any other substantive proceedings afoot, an acknowledgement by the father that he is the natural father of the child. The second resolve section of the motion asks this Honourable House to amend the current legislation, section 35 of the Succession Law, so that provision is made for other means of establishing paternity.

I think I have demonstrated that our Law is plainly inadequate. The circumstances which I have highlighted in RE: The Estate of "B" serve to demonstrate that the provisions of section 35 affect real people. It is clear that the affiliation order alone is insufficient to allow for adequate adjudication of paternity with respect to inheritance.

Furthermore, future reliance upon it as the sole arbiter of paternity will continue to work injustice. There are alternatives. These alternatives that I have proposed allow for someone other than the mother to assume responsibility for establishing paternity and for the determination of paternity to be made after the death of the natural father.

In my respectful submission, there is no longer any justification for visiting the sins of the father upon his children who were born out of wedlock. I will wind up with referring this Honourable House to the judgment in RE: The Estate of "B" and the closing words of the judge, Justice Murphy, formerly of the Grand Court, who said, conclude that in this jurisdiction illegitimate children do not share on the intestacy of the natural father except the narrow circumstances set forth in section 35 (3) of the Succession Law, that is, where the father has been the subject of affiliation proceedings in his lifetime.

That result may not be fair. It may point out a lacuna in our law. It may not accord with the values and mores of our society in the 21st Century. It may even be perceived by some as contrary to modern morality. Those are not my direct concerns as a judge. I may have my own views on what is proper and they may not accord with what I have decided. That is irrelevant. My function is to apply what I perceive the Law to be, and I have done that. My function is not the social engineer, or to impose my own values by creative judicial interpretation. If the law is to be reformed in this area, that is for the legislature to do for me."

Mr. Speaker, it is a matter for the legislature. It is a matter for all Honourable Members of this House. I commend the Motion to all Honourable Members and ask for their support.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Acting Temporary Second Official Member.

Hon. Samuel Bulgin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise on behalf of the Government to respond to Private Member's Motion No. 7/01.

The Second Elected Member for George Town (and in another forum I would refer to him as my learned friend), has in fact correctly identified certain defects in the Succession Law, defects which in their current form translate into unfair discrimination against certain children and where relevant, the father who quite honourably acknowledges his responsibilities as it relates to child born from a common-law relationship.

Indeed the tenor of the law as it now stands is that unless the father has the benefit of what is sometimes described as a very unpleasant experience, that is, affiliation order, then the child and/or the father is automatically disinherited in certain circumstances.

It is Government's position that no one wishes to encourage common-law unions, but where they exist and give rise to a child, the father should be encouraged to voluntarily accept paternity instead of being coerced by the Court. In its current form, one could argue that the Succession Law in fact discourages such voluntary affirmation, and it therefore creates an anomaly.

In other jurisdictions there is legislation (as the Member quite rightly pointed out) that recognises certain realities. In Barbados, for example, there is legislation recognising a common-law relationship if it remains intact for five years. The effect of such recognition is that children born as a result of that union enjoy the same right as those born out of wedlock.

The Government is aware of the lacuna in the law. They have been ably articulated by the Member and also by Justice Murphy in his judgment referred to by the Member. The current Succession Law I think was enacted in 1975. And it is the secret that the society then was far more conservative and at the time, quite properly, would not wish to encourage anything other than recognised traditional and cohesive family unit. However, the society has evolved over the years and so too has the relevant legislation.

The evolution of the legislation is evidenced by the various amendments in 1976, 1983, 1986, and 1989. Notwithstanding this evolution, there are still some areas that need to be addressed in order to prevent any disadvantage to a particular group of individuals. The law ought to be a medium of social engineering. It is with such recognition in mind that the Government readily accepts Private Member's Motion No. 7/01.

The proposed amendment will bring the Succession Law in line with already existing provisions in the Adoption of Children Law, the Maintenance Law, and the Guardianship and Custody of Children Law, and with relevant UK legislation all of which makes no distinction between children born in wedlock and those born from a common-law relationship.

The Member referred to the existence of legislation in other jurisdictions. I can recall from experience in the 1970s a particular piece of legislation was promulgated in Jamaica with great fanfare. The buzzword then was "no more bastards." It was part of a set of social legislation enacted at the time to bring in line what was then perceived to be certain social injustice depending on the structure of the family unit.

As I said, the Government recognises that it is a balancing exercise. It has the duty to encourage strong traditional family values, but there is also a reality, which is staring us in the face and has to be addressed. Accordingly, Government undertakes to do what is necessary to address the injustices and weaknesses correctly identified by the Second Elected Member for George Town and Justice Murphy in his judgment.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I would like to compliment the Second Elected Member from George Town for bringing this timely piece of legislation. And when I say timely, I mean within his time, not that it should not have come before. I can say that I understand the intent better now since he gave us the social and philosophical framework within which to understand the genesis of the law and the purpose of discriminating in this particular law.

As someone who is interested in trying to balance my concept of fairness with other social concerns—because a lot of times when we talk about human rights or citizens' rights, or the rights of any defined entity, we have to also realise that in assuming a right, somehow we appear to also be offending someone, or taking something away from someone.

My reason for saying this is because there are those who feel that the traditional nuclear family is an ideal transcends social considerations and finds itself at more religious stage. There are those who see the family as an institution that is part of a Christian heritage and to somehow say that other ways of producing and raising Children—for that to have the same status in law would be contrary to what we are supposed to believe from the point of view of the Bible and our tradition.

Just to perhaps console some of those persons that might be strongly of this opinion, and to say that illegitimate children should have the same rights in law as children born in wedlock; that the law in saying so does not necessarily attack the nuclear family. Not from my perspective, in any case. Persons reared in a particular manner will always see the sense (economically and socially) of having a nuclear family rather than having family where the children are separated from the father

The whole idea that someone born out of wedlock would inherit a status that would more or less make him an untouchable—almost like a caste system! In other words we caste this one in a nuclear family and that one outside; this one legitimate, the other illegitimate; this one moral, that one immoral. Not only do we serve visit upon persons who were not responsible (the children) unpleasant circumstances in their lives at school, the congregation's Sunday School. . . they go through their lives being referred to as illegitimate or bastards as we heard the term used before. We place them in situations where they do not feel loved and cared for, and where they are not as important to society.

The reality is that as the Second Elected Member for George Town stated, in 1999 there were 190 children born outside of wedlock in the Cayman Islands. These figures are not recent figures because when he went back to 1990 there was still a significant number.

If we were to look at the tradition of the Caribbean (not just the Cayman Islands), we would see that a large number of persons were always born outside of wedlock. So, for us to pretend somehow that there is not sufficient evidence to show that some persons have resorted these practices and although condemned in law, over period of time it has not stopped children being born outside of wedlock. It would be unreasonable for us to continue to hope that legislation such as that we now have that discriminates would mend the problem for us. Since the legislation we have is not going to mend the problem, and might even make the problem worse, it is reasonable for us to now contemplate changing that legislation in such a way as to give children born outside of wedlock similar rights, in artier words, we deal with children not different categories of children.

Even as a result of the Affiliation Law... that almost creates another category, or subcategory of legitimate and illegitimate, depending upon how the parents are willing to pursue the process of gaining recognition for their children through the court system.

But there are those who do not necessarily want to take up this type of procedure and as a result, we find that they lose the possibility of any benefits.

Two weeks ago, someone said to me that she had a child and asked how she would be able to prove that the child belonged to the parson she claimed it belonged to, because the person is dead. The person they referred to (and I was kind of shocked) is a member of my family, a first cousin. I said that the way to prove paternity is really by way of a genetic test. I did not know if it would be possible to do that at this time. But the child was registered to the father; he had given the child that degree of commitment at the time of birth. But, in relationship to the Immigration Department, that is not considered to be sufficient proof of paternity.

There we are. We have situations where many people are born outside of wedlock. We are losing them simply because a lot of them are not able to inherit the nationality of their fathers, whereas in the case of a mother, the child is able to inherit the nationality. So, there is discrimination here against men. I think this is a very important point—that we have the law balanced in such a way that it protects all the genders. A woman is able to have a child, and the child is not illegitimate from the point of view regarding the mother, simply because maternity can be proven. So the concept of illegitimacy does not really come about as a result of whether or not the person is born in wedlock, it seems to exist as a question of whether or not it is possible to prove ownership.

If the father can prove that the child belongs to him, like the mother can prove that the child belongs to her, if that were possible naturally, then we would not be discussing this issue. But it is more difficult for the father to establish ownership. And who does the father have to establish ownership to, or the child has to establish paternity to? In other words, who do they have to prove this to? It is usually to one department of government or another. And these are the people who for some reason or another want to maintain some degree of control—in the case of immigration where people are not willing to allow other persons to be status holders and they go to the point of making it difficult (if not impossible) for children to prove that they have that one Caymanian parent, the father.

A lot of persons have also said that they are not interested in proving that a child belongs to them by taking a DNA test. He says the child belongs to him, he registers the child, and that should be enough proof to anyone. I am glad that the Second Elected Member George Town has addressed this question in his Motion. He understands the importance of this issue—the question of how paternity is proven.

So, I thank him and wish to say also that the Minister for Social Services, the Honourable Edna Moyle, has obviously expressed a long awaited interest in this Motion. I am happy that it has come here. It will coincide brilliantly with my Motion on immigration that also deals with the question of illegitimacy. I am hoping that get as much support for that Motion as I have given this one.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate. Does Member wish to speak? The Elected Member for End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, I wish to briefly speak on this Motion before the legislature. I will not do what I did yesterday and speak until 4.30; I will give the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac Little Cayman an opportunity to speak.

I have supported this Motion and seconded it because I see the need for us to recognise all children this country as children, not as illegitimate or bastards some people call them. I think that is a very dirty word. In the old days, Caymanians took on their responsibilities. Yes, they had children out of wedlock, but they recognised those children. At the end of the day, if the father died without leaving a will, the other children recognised the so-called illegitimate children and they all shared that father's estate, in most instances that was true.

Here we are in the 21st Century and times have changed. It is unfortunate that there are instances where illegitimate children are not being recognised by the legitimate children. We are talking about modernising o Constitution, and then we are going to leave some of o children out of the 21st Century and the future of country to some extent if we de not make some arrangement in the Succession Law.

I agree with the Third Elected Member of George Town in regard to the immigration issue in this country. I suspect that any amendment to section 35 of the Succession Law will certainly affect other areas in the country where it comes to illegitimate children. As far as I know, there are provisions in the Immigration Law right now where any Caymanian man who has a child out wedlock can prove paternity through the DNA test, the child will be recognised as a Caymanian. Therefore, provisions are in place there to ensure that any child in this country gets his rightful entitlement as a Caymanian be it by virtue of having been born in or out of wedlock.

When we talk about common law, I am not encouraging children of common law unions. This is a fact life. I do not think anyone wants to see 100 or 200 of these children, but the fact is that we cannot just leave them and let them be called bastards and illegitimate and be alienated from the rest of society. The amendment to the Succession Law will make these children feel a sense of belonging.

I am aware of at least one instance now where three or four children were born to a common law union and the father died many years ago intestate. Today those children are not entitled to anything from the family's estate. That estate is much bigger than the one that Justice Murphy had to rule on. That estate owns much property. Unfortunately, that has to be shared amongst the father's brothers and sisters. That is what the lack of recognising and amendment to the Succession Law has brought to people in this country.

One of those kids has a young child (the grandchild of that man's estate) who is extremely sick. And that son does not have the means to take care of his child. Nevertheless, he cannot share in the big estate that his father has left behind. Certainly, those kids were not proven through an affiliation order. There was no proof in court, but everybody knows that they grew up in the common law union home.

I wholly support this Motion. I think it is time we recognise, our illegitimate children. I think it is time that they have the right to claim on their fathers' estates, particularly if the father was supporting those children and through circumstances which may have been irresponsible on the father's part, he dies without leaving a will and naming those children.

I look forward to the passage of this Motion so that the Government may move ahead and make the necessary amendments. I also wish to congratulate the Second Elected Member for George Town for bringing this such Motion to the House.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate. Does any Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: I rise to give my support to Private Member's Motion No. 7/01 brought by my friend, the Second Elected Member for George Town. I am also happy to see that it has been readily accepted by my friend the Honourable Acting Temporary Second Official Member.

I believe that the ideal situation would be where the child/children are born in wedlock. I have always endorsed that position. Nonetheless, I am fully cognisant of the fact that through no fault of the illegitimate children they have found themselves in such a situation.

When one looks at the history of section 35 in the its entire genesis, we will see that back in the 1970s (Law 18 of 1975) when this law was initially engineered, the engineers at that time saw fit to merely include section 1(2) as it stands in the latest provision where only the mother of the illegitimate child would have an entitlement on intestacy to the illegitimate child's estate. Vice versa, the illegitimate child would have a right to the mother's estate.

Years later the Parliament deemed it necessary in accordance with the social ambience at that time to add two farther sections, the insertion of subsections (3) and (4) of section 35 which then went on to add the possibility of the father to the illegitimate child. But there was a caveat proviso and/or restriction whereby they had to bring themselves within the ambit of section 3 of the Affiliation Law, 1973. That has many restrictions. Having practised family law I know that it creates quite a bit of embarrassment, undue financial hardship and indeed social and other negative consequences, not only on the illegitimate child, but on the mother.

So, Mr. Speaker, even with the addition of these two additional subsections, it is my respective view that the engineers at that time did not take it as far as the now Second Elected Member of George Town would seek to take it; whereby that gate would be opened up, with the amendment of the law being assented to by His Excellency the Governor, and being put into force. I hope that would come in a most expeditious fashion.

From representation that I have received not only in my own constituency, but from calls here, there is a concern (and perhaps genuine) that the illegitimate child would now have access to the estate of the legitimate children, meaning the pie would become smaller. But we have to look at the reality of the situation in that these children are minors. Even if the state attempted to look after them as is done under the social system we have in the Cayman Islands, it is not sufficient for these children. With the imposition of having to go through the method of the Affiliation Law, the interpretation section limits the meaning of a child (for obvious reasons) to a child born out of wedlock. As I understand it, in the same section a single woman who will be delivered with a child may in three circumstances make a complaint upon oath or affirmation before a JP alleging some man to be the father of the child. She can only do this (as I understand it) either before, or 12 months after the birth of such child, or at any time thereafter upon proof that the father maintained or supported the child. There is also a provision in the event the father is outside the Cayman Islands jurisdiction: there is another 12-month period in which a claim can be lodged in such a case.

I can remember some years ago when such an application was being made before our courts that the mother had to resort to the father giving one box of pampers as her only means of trying to prove that the man was the punitive father because of being outside of the 12 month period. I think that in the age we now live we really have to move away (albeit in a cautious manner) from things that we hold very dear and look at the children. I am not in any way endorsing the actions of the father or the mother, because of my own personal religious views, but I do feel sympathy for the children who are a result of these unions—as Miss Annie Hulda [Bodden] said back when she debated it “these love children”.

We will also see as we look at the Motion that it will give the ability for paternity to be determined by DNA testing and this is good as far as this scientific technology is available. But it is also an expensive exercise. We are a small community. It is rare when the mother would want to be put in a situation where she has to attend a clinic and there is lots of speculation that brings more psychological hardship on the mother and child. This is often not done on a voluntary basis by the father, but an order has to be sought from the courts which again add to the expense of this whole procedure.

I believe that the law should—as the mover intends, I believe—make provision for the voluntary acknowledgement, and in cases of illegitimate children by their fathers, so that they too on intestacy can have a claim. Of course, the perfect situation would be for the father to make provisions in a will so that the child would not have to resort to the intestacy proceedings. But we all know that we do not live in a perfect world. And although this should be done, we will still find deadbeat fathers, or mothers who are intimidated by statutory or financial restrictions and having children growing up with the stigma of not having appropriate financial provisions for their general maintenance and well being, so that they too can enjoy the progress and the success in our Cayman society, and have a right to the very fundamental and necessary human rights in our community.

I believe that even with this we will perhaps find those who may be tempted to draft a will referring to specific children and attempt to leave out the illegitimate children. I hope they will resist such temptation and refer merely to “children” unless there are specific legacies to be contained in the will.

At the end of the day, parents must take the responsibility and not only provide for children financially but also try to create an atmosphere within our community so that they too can have a future. I am glad to see the many Motions coming up that will go a long way to ensure that this will happen in years to come. The Good Book tells us that the father who does not provide for his children worse than an infidel—there are other colourful adjectives in there too!

I believe that although there is a responsibility for the father to provide, that we must be fair in this movement of gender equality. We must ensure that the father coupled with the responsibility, will also have access to the child's estate on intestacy as is given in the law to the mother. And I believe that in moving towards a fairer gender policy we can create a society whereby we would have less risk of children feeling unwanted and becoming deviants within our society. I believe we should now move into a reconciliation period where we can work together, Caymanians and residents alike, as human beings meeting each other's needs as best we can see fit, sharing and caring. It is only then that we can really achieve success.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) If not, does the mover wish to exercise his right of reply? The Second Elected Member for George Town

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you.

I wish to thank the Honourable Members who have spoken, for their support. I wish to thank those who did not speak, for their silent support.

I believe that we are at a point where the use of the pejorative term "illegitimate" should fall away from all legislation in these Islands. Children are children. That is an issue and a debate for another day. Such provisions appear in legislation in the UK and in most Caribbean jurisdictions. The distinction between illegitimate and legitimate children has disappeared for all purposes in other jurisdictions. That has implications which go beyond succession rights and affect things like immigration rights. It is something we will have to deal with carefully. But I believe that we are at a time that that too should be addressed.

Again, I thank Honourable Members for their support. I wish also to record my grateful thanks to Mrs. Terrence Caudeiron, my fellow graduate of the Cayman Islands Law School, for the assistance I have derived from her learned and insightful article entitled "The Legal Status of the illegitimate Child in Matters of Intestate and Testate Succession in the Cayman Islands—The case for Reform." That article appears in The Cayman Islands Law School Bulletin.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 7/01, Amendment to the Succession Law. The Resolve section reads as follows:

"BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that section 35 of the Succession Law be amended to extend to all illegitimate children, and to the natural fathers of such children, the same rights to succession on intestacy enjoyed by legitimate children and the fathers of legitimate children;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Succession Law also be amended to provide for an appropriate method of establishing paternity prior to, as well as following either the death of the man alleged to be the natural father of an illegitimate child, who had not, prior to his death, been adjudged to be the putative father of the said illegitimate child under the provisions of the Affiliation Law (1995 Revision, or the death of the illegitimate child."

Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it,

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/01 PASSED.

The Speaker: Is it the wish of this Honourable House that we now adjourn, or should we continue with the next Private Member's Motion?

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I do not think anybody was prepared to do any of the other Motions this afternoon. Seeing that the Honourable First Official Member has not returned, I would suggest we adjourn until tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: Please move the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 p.m. tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 am tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.10 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 AM FRIDAY, 16 MARCH 2001.

Appendix to Question No. 13
15 March 2001

PARLIAMENTARY QUESTION ASKED BY MR. V. ARDEN McLEAN, MLA FROM THE ELECTORAL DISTRICT OF EAST END TO THE HONOURABLE MINISTER FOR PLANING, COMMUNICATIONS & WORKS:

QUESTION: STATE THE NUMBER OF MILES OF ROAD AND/OR PUBLIC HIGHWAYS THAT HAVE BEEN (A) CONTRACTED (B) COMPLETED WITH THE "ASPHALTIC CONCRETE" SURFACING AND AT WHAT COST PER MILE.

ANSWER: Mr. Speaker, PWD commenced a Resurfacing Programme in 1999, to extend the pavement life on Main Roads and secondary roads that are heavily trafficked. The attached sheet shows a summary of the areas that were resurfaced in 1999 and 2000.

West Bay Road

The total cost of resurfacing 4.2 miles of West Bay Road -from Sleep Inn to the Fire Station was $2,945,444. The average cost per mile for this project was $ 701,296.

Other areas

The total cost of resurfacing a total of 29.6 miles in all other areas (as listed on the summary sheet) was $8,495,254, at an average cost of approximately $287,000 per mile.

BP 5 (41)

| Road Name                                                                              | Approximate Length (miles) |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| West Bay Area                                                                          |                                   |
| West Bay Road - Sleep Inn to West Bay Fire Station                                            | 4.2                               |
| Willie Farrington Dr                                                                          | 0.5                               |
| Mr. Pleasant Rd                                                                               | 1.2                               |
| Reverend Blackmon Rd                                                                          | 0.4                               |
| West Church St                                                                                | 0.7                               |
| Northwest Point Rd                                                                            | 2.8                               |
| George Town Area                                                                       |                                   |
| Fairbanks Road                                                                                | 0.4                               |
| South Sound Road - Memorial Ave to Crewe Road                                                 | 4.2                               |
| Hospital Road                                                                                 | 0.1                               |
| Mary St                                                                                       | 0.3                               |
| Elgin Ave - Shedden Rd to Thomas Russell Roundabout                                           | 0.5                               |
| Walkers Rd - Hospital 4 way stop to John Gray High School                                     | 0.9                               |
| Dorcy Drive - Home & Office City to North Sound Rd Intersection                               | 0.2                               |
| North Sound Rd - Nixon Roundabout to Dorcy Drive Intersection                                 | 0.2                               |
| George Town / Bodden Town Area                                                         |                                   |
| Shamrock Road - Selkirk Dr to Will T Drive                                                    | 4.6                               |
| Bodden Town Area                                                                       |                                   |
| Bodden Town Rd - Moon Bay Condominiums to Frank Sound Intersection                            | 1.0                               |
| Hirst Road                                                                                    | 1.1                               |
| Northward Road                                                                                | 1.0                               |
| North Side Area                                                                        |                                   |
| Frank Sound Rd - from Bodden Town Rd Intersection to Old Man Bay Seventh Day Adventist Church | 4.3                               |
| East End Area                                                                          |                                   |
| Seaview Drive - from Frank Sound Intersection to Skipwith Link                                | 5.2                               |
| TOTAL MILES COMPLETED                                                                  | 33.8                       |
| BODDEN TOWN AREA - IN PROGRESS                                                         |                                   |
| Bodden Town Rd - Will T Drive to Moon Bay Condominiums                                        | 3.0                               |

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
FRIDAY
16 MARCH 2001
10.12 AM
Fourth Sitting

[Prayers read by the Second Elected Member for West Bay]

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Legislative Assembly is in session. Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Honourable Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies for late attendance from the Honourable Third Official Member, and for the absence of the Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology who is sick and off the Island.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MINISTERS/MEMBERS

QUESTION NO.16

No. 16: Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports (a) what is the criteria for persons to be eligible for a Seaman's Grant; and (b) will persons who have not lived on the Islands for 10 years or more and who are still living overseas be eligible.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I request of this Honourable House that this question be deferred until a later date. I will advise the Business Committee of the new date for answering. I know this question is very important to Members of this Parliament, and I would like to have Members of this Legislative Assembly involved in the new criteria that the Ministry is now drafting for the Seamen's Ex gratia Grant.

The Speaker: Would you then move a motion please?

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I move that Question 16 be deferred to a later sitting.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that Question 16 be deferred to a later sitting. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it

AGREED: QUESTION NO.16 DEFERRED TO A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: Question No. 17 stands in the name of the Elected Member for East End.

QUESTION NO. 17

No. 17: Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Planning, Communications and Works, to say whether or not there is an official Master Ground Transportation Plan for these Islands and, if so, when was it officially approved.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: At present there is no officially approved Master Ground Transportation Plan for the Cayman Islands.

In 1987-1988, a Master Ground Transportation Plan was prepared for the Government by the team of consultants led by Wilbur Smith Associates. The Plan is now outdated as it addressed a ten-year time period to 1997. And may I interject that even though the Plan is outdated it was not approved in the first instance.

For the past two to three years, the Public Works Department has proposed to carry out an in-house exercise to prepare a National Roads Plan. Included in the Plan would be a prospective programme and schedule of road projects for a ten to twenty-year period, as well as recommendations for the improvement of operation, planning and management of the road transport sector.

It has not been possible to carry out this exercise in-house due to the heavy workload of a small staff complement within the Public Works Road Division.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not it is a priority of his Ministry to develop a National Roads Plan during the course of this year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Since taking over the Ministry in November, there have been many pressing issues. I have begun working with relevant agencies and staff in trying to address these various situations. Human resources have been limited, and because of this, I have been trying to prioritise as I go along.

One of the things already entrain is to re-examine all of the main proposed road corridors to develop costings for gazettal and acquisition, which I believe is most important — beyond everything else — because once that is done, the rest of the work can begin.

To say that there is a plan afoot to network the whole operation would not be factual at this point in time. As soon as the department, in liaison with the Lands & Survey Department, establishes those main road corridors that are proposed, and as soon as the Government accepts that this is the way forward, then certainly the next move when we establish costings and go to the gazettal procedure would be to deal with it on a national level. At that point in time, I will bring whatever is ready to the Legislative Assembly to take input and to move forward.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: The choices are very simple: decide that we stop importing cars, or we build roads. I am sure not too many people want to stop importing cars. Nevertheless, would the Minister give this House an undertaking, since it appears that the old Master Ground Transportation Plan which he says is outdated seems to be working fairly well with the two bypasses that were put in, that he will (1) increase the complement of staff at PWD, or (2) engage the services of consultants such as the Wilbur & Smith Associates to conduct yet another study?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I certainly do not wish to sound negative, and I understand what the Member wishes to achieve, so I will try to address the question in a positive manner, however, it may not seem to answer the question as he has put it.

Even though the Master Ground Transportation Plan that we speak to is outdated (because it was done for a ten-year period), it does not mean that the whole concept is thrown away. What has been done during that interim—between then and now—is that various bits and pieces of that Plan have been taken and adapted to the changing times and used as he mentioned, with the bypass roads. So, I do not believe that we have to start from scratch. I believe that we have the expertise in House to develop a plan of our own. I do not think we have to hire consultants.

The Member spoke about increasing the staff complement at PWD and I understand his reasoning. But at this point in time that cannot be considered: simply because the global picture tells us that the size of the Civil Service complement is a worrisome factor in the whole equation of Government and its revenue, and the cost to operate Government with the services it provides.

Matters like these, which are very important for medium and long range planning, are matters where we have to look to the resource people we have available in house, and they are there, and simply collate those minds together to work in tandem to develop such a plan. And that is my intention.

So, while I am not able to give the undertaking requested by the Member, I am saying to him that I do intend to achieve what he is looking for. However, because of all the factors involved, and the climate we are in at present, I have to go about it in a different manner from what he suggested.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I appreciate the Minister's answer, but sometime ago there was some discussion regarding the back road around Bodden Town to alleviate some of the eastern traffic, getting the traffic away from the front road. I wonder if the Minister can say if that was a fact, and if so, what type of priority is being placed on that road?

The Speaker: I do not believe that comes out of the answer to the substantive question, but if the Minister wishes to answer he may. The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you for your kind help, Mr. Speaker, but so that the Member for East End does not feel that he has me on the run, I am going to attempt to answer his question.

The fact is that some base work has already been done on that road. I am not 100 per cent sure at present about the gazettal process. I am assuming that has already been taken care of, and I will check to ensure that it has. Once that is done, the plans are—withstanding the budget constraints . . . Perhaps the Member will be aware because of his previous occupation that we have been having dialogue with Caribbean Utilities Company. Because it is suitable to them for that road to be built, they have given verbal undertaking that they will assist financially with the construction of the road. We are now in the process of finding out how far we can negotiate with them. The better that position gets, the quicker we will be able to complete it. But there will be more work done on it this year. At least we will get to the point where we can begin doing the final asphalt covering on that road. So, all things being equal, and with nothing unforeseen happening, by year-end we should have the road very close to finishing, or perhaps, finished.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister give us an update on the current status of the extension to the Harquail Bypass? I recall hearing in the Throne Speech about some plans. Can we get an update on the land acquisition and the gazetting, and what stages we expect to be completed and what time frame?

The Speaker: Again, this is outside the answer. Supplementaries are supposed to come out of the answer to the substantive question. We are taking a wide latitude this morning. But if the Minister wishes to elaborate, he may. The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am heartened to see the youngsters training the seasoned people, because we all need refresher courses from time to time. So I am happy to deal with it, Sir.

Hon. Roy Bodden: We are paying for his old sins!

[Members' laughter]

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Regarding the Harquail Bypass which, by the way, very shortly will be called the Esterly Tibbetts Highway—

Hon. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: There are bits and pieces that are already in place. The road reserve is already taken care of. Funding for the continuation of the Harquail Bypass is not in place for any continuation this year. Just so we can understand the ties we are talking about: if we go through the SafeHaven project, the road is in place already. I understand that a signing will go on next week with the Ritz Carlton project, allowing the project to start. Part of the agreement with that development is that a certain amount of road spanning through that development will be built by them, or they will provide the necessary funds for it to be built. Government has the option to deal with that when it sees fit. We must have continuity so it does not make sense for them to do that right now, if it is going to take another three years for us to connect from where we are now to them. That is the situation, but the call is the Government's.

Where the biggest gap is to put everything up to the SafeHaven area is the gap between the existing Harquail Bypass and coming down to where the Ritz Carlton project will start. That is going to be the priority as to Government's onus to deal with. I have to say that unfortunately that cannot be addressed this year.

There's another section in between that (I cannot remember the name of the project), and there was also a commitment from that project extending beyond where the road now finishes that they too will build that part of it. I do not remember all the exact figures and arrangements, but that is the way we are going forward with it. While people would love to see it completed much earlier, we have to prioritise based on the resources and juggle the act.

The Speaker: Two additional supplementaries.
The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say how they propose to go through or around the Hyatt parking lot?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, you came to my defence earlier, but this time you did not, and this is the time I needed it!

The Speaker: You were so anxious to answer!

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I say that in jest, Sir. I do not have the facts with me to answer that question. I do remember from years back (and the Second Elected Member for George Town and the Elected Member for East End will probably remember too when we all served on the Central Planning Authority) that there was a problem and there were several proposals. I have had a cursory look at it and there are some proposals at present to do a short causeway. But the decisions have not been made.

I can assure the Member that if I am still around when that time comes, a decision will be made. So it is not that we are trying to shift from what we have to do; it is just that we are not quite there yet. When we get to that point we will deal with it, look at the options available and choose the best one.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?

If not, we move on to Question No.18, standing in the name of the Elected Member for East End.

QUESTION NO. 18

No. 18: Mr. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture how many teachers' aides are currently employed at the East End Primary School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: There are no teachers' aides currently employed at the East End Primary School. There is currently one support assistant employed at the East End Primary School.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say (1) What is the policy regarding teachers' aides? (2) How many teachers' aides on average are employed at other primary schools?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is my information that teachers' aides are usually high school graduates who have expressed an interest in pursuing a teaching career. Over the last year, numbers were not of such a complement to allow for the platooning of these aides in every school. As a result, decisions of exigency had to be taken to place them in schools with the largest class sizes and the highest pupil/teacher ratios.

I crave your indulgence to give this information to Honourable Members: Teachers' aides are, as I said reserved for recent high school graduates who plan to pursue a teaching career. Support assistants are more mature persons who are placed in a classroom to assist the teacher, but who may not necessarily be interested in pursuing a teaching career. It is hoped that at the end of this school year numbers will be more forthcoming and that we can be more generous in the allocation of teachers' aides.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Minister did not really answer my question. I asked for the average per school. Nevertheless, he said that support assistants are older and they are put there to assist [teachers in] the classrooms. And that they may not necessarily have a desire to become teachers. But I wonder if it is normal to only have one support staff in the absence of teachers' aides at the primary schools.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: In the small primary schools, that is quite a normal procedure. To the best of my information, for example, North Side Primary has none.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not Creek Primary School has any teachers' aides at present?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: As of this time, there is one at Creek Primary School.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. Arden McLean: I believe that teachers' aides and support assistants are good for the teachers in our schools, particularly when teachers have to go on continuing education courses which takes them away from the classroom.

The Speaker: Please turn it into a question.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I will, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister give this House an undertaking to try to put more assistants or teachers' aides in the schools around the island, in particular at East End?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I most assuredly will give the House that undertaking. I think that Honourable Members are well advised to be interested in education, particularly as it is the belief and philosophy of most of us that education and training is the way forward for the Cayman Islands in the 21st Century. I will also take this opportunity to say that Honourable Members can expect a refreshingly different approach and more empathy and concern with education matters because I am a trained teacher, and an educator.

I want to make one distinction that I think is of paramount importance. Teachers' aides and support assistants are in no way expected to replace the classroom teachers who are regularly assigned to those classrooms. Neither the teachers' aides, nor the support assistants, are trained and qualified teachers. Their role is limited to bolstering the presence of the teacher, allowing the teacher greater flexibility in terms of moving around to individual children, and greater scope for individualised instruction. But no teacher is expected to leave his or her classroom with a teacher's aide or support assistant in charge.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?

If not, we will move on to Question No.19, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 19

No. 19: Mr. Rolston Anglin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture how many pre-schools receive Government funding; have there been regular inspections (by the Education, Planning and Health Departments); have there been any complaints against these institutions – if the answer is in the affirmative, which ones.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

<sup>1</sup>Hon. Roy Bodden: [Ordered by the House that names be expunged from the record.]

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In good faith the Minister is giving the complete answer to this question, but the part he is now reading has not been circulated to Members.

The Speaker: That is a point of order, and that is why I just called the Serjeant-at-Arms. Maybe we do not have the complete answer. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: I offer my apologies to Members. There seems to have been a mix up. I can make the answer available to Honourable Members and would crave your indulgence to have the answer photocopied and circulated to Members.

The Speaker: Would Members care to pause, or let the Minister go on with the answer?

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I think it would be in the interest of fairness and democracy to take a pause so that Members can peruse the answers and be completely informed so that they can better ask their questions, Sir. .

The Speaker: We shall await the circulation of the complete answer in writing.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, because I have given some specific information, I think the matter has to be handled gingerly and diplomatically. When Honourable Members receive the information, I am asking them if they could protect the identities of the schools when asking questions. We have been taking corrective measures and I do not want the schools to be penalised by being named in the Legislative Assembly. People may think they are not doing a good job.

The Speaker: That is a reasonable request, and I ask Members to comply. The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I fully concur with the Honourable Minister. Perhaps it may be deemed prudent, subject to his consent, to have the names already mentioned struck from the record.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Certainly, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Would you care to move a motion that they be expunged from the record?

MOTION TO EXPUNGE WORDS FROM RECORD

Hon. Roy Bodden: I rise to request that the information recently given by me in an answer which identifies a particular pre-school and its Principal, be struck from the records as a gesture of protecting and preserving the school and the Principal's ability to carry out duties in a fair and uncompromising way which is free from intimidation or repercussions which may be generated unnecessarily. Thank you.

The Speaker: I should inject that that answer is going to be circulated. I suggest that the answer be corrected.

Hon. Roy Bodden: No, Mr. Speaker, in the interest of openness and democracy I want the Members to have access to all that information. What I do not want them to do is to engage in a debate and questioning, revealing the names, Sir.

The Speaker: I fully understand what the Honourable Minister is saying, but in protecting openness, this will be circulated to the press and to the public. If the answer is corrected . . .

Hon. Roy Bodden: I cannot overrule the Chair. Members are responsible. I think they should know everything. I do not wish to hold anything back from them. It is my responsibility to provide them with the information. I have every confidence that they will handle it in a responsible manner, so I leave it at that. If you wish to overrule it, that is the Chair's prerogative. Similarly, I would ask that the press refrain from any specific references regarding this matter.

The Speaker: Your last statement covers what I was trying to get across. We will await the answer. Do you still wish that information expunged from the record?

<sup>1</sup> See answer to Question No. 19 on page 108.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Yes Sir.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that the identifying names be expunged from the record of this Honourable House. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: IDENTIFYING NAMES TO BE EXPUNGED FROM THE RECORD.

The Speaker: Honourable Members, I think we should take a brief suspension while we have a discussion. Proceedings will be suspended for 10 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 10.58 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.25 AM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Please be seated. Moving on to Question No. 19, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 19

No. 19: Mr. Rolston Anglin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture how many pre-schools receive Government funding; have there been regular inspections by the Education, Planning and Health Departments; have there been any complaints against these institutions? If the answer is in the affirmative, which ones?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) AND (8)

Hon. Roy Bodden: I respectfully beg to move the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) & (8) to allow Question Time to continue beyond 11 am.

The Speaker: The question is that we suspend Standing Order 23(7) & (8) to allow Question Time to continue beyond the hour of 11 o'clock. Those in favour please say Aye, those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question Time will continue.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ALLOW QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11 AM.

QUESTION NO. 19 (continuation)

Hon. Roy Bodden: At present there are no pre-schools receiving Government funding, however, there are 19 pre-schools which receive funds in regards to the Pre-schools Assistance Programme on behalf of parents who are experiencing difficulty in paying pre-school fees.

Yes, there have been inspections of all pre-schools and day care centres. These inspections are done twice per year and take two months to complete. The inspections are performed by the inspection team comprised of representatives from the Fire, Environmental Health, Public Health and Education Departments. The Education Officer for pre-schools makes spot checks on the centres.

Occasional complaints have been received from parents about a few centres, but these have all been investigated and resolved accordingly.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable Minister say if there is a standardised curriculum and testing as these years obviously are the foundation years for children?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. There is a standardised curriculum and there are tests administered during the first year of entry into primary school by students coming from these pre-schools and day care centres.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable Minister say if there are any pre-schools charging more than the $300 maximum that Government provides by way of funding?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, there are pre-schools that charge more than that amount.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable Minister say what the family income requirements are, in order to be eligible for assistance?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: A means test is administered. Unfortunately, I do not have that information here. If the Honourable Member wishes, I would have to give an undertaking to provide it at a later date with the caveat that the information, if required, is personal and should be treated with the greatest discretion and confidentiality.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I would like the information and I can assure the Minister that it will be treated accordingly.

Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not there will be any move toward ensuring that the amount people say they earn is actually true? I note that in the description of the programme there is reference to the fact that the Education Department has no way of ensuring that the people are telling the truth. But when one applies for a bank loan, one normally has to provide an employment letter. I think it would be only fair that people who are receiving grants from Government truly are the ones deserving these grants.

My question is, will there be a move to receive letters from employers verifying people's salaries?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: The practice is to elicit as much information as the Education authorities deem necessary. I take the Member's point that the procedure can be reviewed with the objective of ensuring that the information given is more accurate and reflective of the actual situations.

I want to add that these arrangements are predicated on trust and confidence. We, the Education establishment would like to believe that the answers forthcoming from applicants are truthful and can stand scrutiny. We are not prepared – the bureaucracy, that is – to go into minute examination of every applicant; nor do we think it necessary at this time. I am sure that we can arrive at a situation where we make random checks. But we would like to believe that we have the kind of society where persons making the applications can trust us to look after their best interests and the Education establishment can reciprocate that trust by believing that they have given us honest and accurate information.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say what income bracket Government provides pre-school assistance for? A ballpark figure.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I have to apologise for the fact that I do not have this information readily at hand. I will give the House an undertaking to provide it at a subsequent date in writing. I think it would be dangerous for me to try to hazard a guess. My tenure is still new and I do not want to colour my future by providing inaccurate information at this point.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?
The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Capt. Eugene Ebanks: Could the Honourable Minister say what, if any, is the cut-off amount as far as assistance goes? How far will Government go by way of providing uniforms, school fees, or lunch fees?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: I have to remark that I am getting paid for my old transgressions! In all honesty, I was not prepared for these kinds of supplementaries. I will have to ask Honourable Members to bear with me. I will give them complete and comprehensive information in written form. I will arrange for the Chief Education Officer to prepare and mail out the answer to Members at the address of the Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we will move on to Question No. 20, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 20

No. 20: Mr. Rolston M. Anglin asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development if there are any external sources of financial assistance available to assist funding the necessary staffing expansion at the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the planned expansion of the staff resources of the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority is being financed entirely from fees from the financial services' industry.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Third Official Member say if fees to the financial industry are being increased to accommodate that since more staff are required at the Monetary Authority? Or can it be funded under the present fee structure?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: A review of existing fees is being undertaken at this time as a part of the budget process. Therefore, the general view is that the additional cost to the Monetary Authority will be funded by additional or incremental fees from increasing the level of fees currently in place.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Third Official Member give this House an indication as to the number of employees that will be at the Monetary Authority after this expansion and the estimated cost of personal emoluments for the full complement once the expansion is completed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, this plan is being implemented over a three-year period, and the staff complement will be increased to 129 persons. At the end of three years (October 2004) the estimated cost of personal emoluments will be $10.4 million. In addition to the operational costs this will bring the overall cost of the Monetary Authority to $13.5 million.

The progression as at December 31, 2001, it is estimated that the operational costs for the Monetary Authority will be $8.5 million (for the year 2001). This will mean that the staff complement will be increased from the present number of 65 persons to 103.

As at December 31, 2002, the cost goes up to $10.6 million, and at that time it is estimated that there will be 119 persons in posts.

As at December 31, 2003, the number goes up to 129, and the cost at that time will be $13.4 million.

So it is a progression. Discussions commenced yesterday with the financial industry and will be continuing. They will be apprised of these progressive costs and it is expected that the full operational cost, or the increase, will come from additional fees imposed upon regulatory services to the financial industry.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Third Official Member say whether or not the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority is self-financing, or is it currently being subsidised by the Cayman Islands Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The way the operations of the Monetary Authority are structured at this time is that the Government provides a subsidy. The operational cost for the year 2000 was $5.2 million, but the fees generated for that year were approximately $16 million.

When the Monetary Authority moves to the position of operational independence, that structure will have to be rearranged. This is a matter that will be decided upon whereby based on the amount of money it is estimated it will cost to run the Monetary Authority, the fees will have to be apportioned. This is a matter that will have to be agreed upon by the Legislative Assembly, whereby a certain percentage of the fees will be allocated to the Monetary Authority while a certain percentage flows to Government in order to keep the revenue stream going.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Can the Honourable Third Official Member say whether under the present arrangement the revenue generated as a result of the fees from the financial services industry are paid into central Government's general revenue, or is there a separate account into which these funds are paid?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Fees collected are paid into general revenue.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Would the Honourable Member give an undertaking when looking into this necessary group for the Monetary Authority, if there would be any back office work that could be out-sourced to Cayman Brac?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, that undertaking will be given.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Third Official Member say if all efforts will be made to hire Caymanians in the positions that are becoming available? And will he give an undertaking that efforts will also be made to utilise young Caymanians currently in the public sector, moving them into the Monetary Authority, if possible?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, in the recruitment drive to fill all of the positions that will become vacant within the Monetary Authority, every attempt will be made to recruit from within the Cayman Islands community. We are having good success with what is now taking place. For example, a new section has been created under the designation of fiduciary services, and we have been successful in recruiting a senior Caymanian from the financial community to head that division. Every attempt will be made to fill all of the posts with Caymanians and if necessary secure resource personnel from elsewhere to provide training. That is going to be the first option before going overseas.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden Jr.: Mr. Speaker, can the Honourable Third Official Member explain why these changes are necessary for this significant expansion?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Third Elected Member would have seen the Report of the Financial Action Task Force where suggestions have been made that there are certain areas where the regulatory oversight needed to be strengthened. We have taken a look at the operational structure of the Monetary Authority and what has emerged is a plan looking at the resource personnel that will be required within the various sections. It is on that basis that the staffing structure has been arrived at. This has been done on the basis of a risk analysis profile. This is a matter that the technical personnel in the Monetary Authority have used to look in terms of the level of risk within the different sectors, and on this basis the staffing complement has been developed.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Third Official Member would make a commitment that the people he alluded to in our special sitting several weeks ago (who are coming back on Government scholarships and have to be released), that the possibility of funnelling them into the Monetary Authority will be investigated.

Could the Honourable Third Official Member also give the rationale behind what he described as the Monetary Authority being operationally independent, yet receiving a contribution from central government in order to operate; versus having the Monetary Authority collect the fees but having a contribution arrangement where all excess funds would be sent back to central Government.

It seems odd to profess that it would be operationally independent, yet have it subject to contributions from central government.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I can easily give a commitment to the Honourable Elected Member from West Bay. In fact, the Monetary Authority has been drawing on Caymanians coming back from overseas who are not being taken on board within the central Government. This has been the first call for the Monetary Authority, so there is an understanding in place.

His interpretation as to how the Monetary Authority should be operating as an independent entity is the method by which it will operate by way of how financing will be available to the Monetary Authority. This is that the Monetary Authority will continue to collect the fees. But instead of remitting the fees in full to central Government, for example if 30% of the fees are kept by the Monetary Authority on a monthly basis, then for every dollar 30 cents would be retained by the Monetary Authority, while 70 cents would be remitted to central Government.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: In relation to the Honourable Member's last answer, can he explain what criteria will be used in determining the portion to be allocated to the Monetary Authority versus government? And would a system where the full amount goes directly to the Monetary Authority and the operational surplus at the end of the year be handed over as a contribution from the Monetary Authority back to central government not be more operationally feasible?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: In the first instance, the yardstick that will be used to apportion the revenue at the point of the Monetary Authority becoming operationally independent will be the budget. An examination will be made to determine what level of revenue will be generated by the Monetary Authority. Then we will look in terms of the operational cost based on the budget. If it is that the budget represents 35% of the revenue to be generated by the Monetary Authority, for example, then this would be a safe yardstick to use to arrive at the allocation.

I should say that the allocation will have to be allowed for by way of provision in the Law in the first instance. It is anticipated that if it is to be varied it will have to be done by the Legislative Assembly, not necessarily administratively. The point that the Member made in terms of waiting until the end of the year, it will have to be borne in mind that the sources of revenue are somewhat limited. If the Government waits until the end of the year to receive the money it should be getting from the Monetary Authority on a monthly basis, it would have to make interim arrangements. That interim arrangement would have to be in terms of looking at means of financing that gap that would come about by not having that revenue flow from the Monetary Authority. So, it will be more expedient to arrive at an arrangement whereby this is done on a monthly basis and a final adjustment can be made at the end of the year.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Mr. Speaker, I would like the Honourable Third Official Member to clarify the very last part of his answer. I would agree that having that funding available could save the Government finance charges. When he said that there would be a final adjustment at the end of the year, am I to understand then that we will not be put in a situation where, for the sake of argument, 40 per cent was given to the Monetary Authority on a monthly basis, that we would not have an excess amount of cash being built up in the Monetary Authority and having the situation as it currently is with other statutory authorities whereby central Government has a fistfight with them because there was no clearly defined contribution rate? So the question is: Will that final adjustment be excess funds being remitted to central Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Mr. Speaker, it will be on excess funds being remitted. But it could also be the other way around, which I should point out, as the Honourable Member has alluded to. What we have to do in the first instance – because of the fact that the allocation will be based on the Budget, and although the Budget will be looked at carefully – arriving at a percentage allocation it could be possible that if Government agrees with Monetary Authority that 40% should be retained and it is covered by way of legislative requirement, the Government will not have the discretion if it finds out that the Monetary Authority only requires 30% to operate, to adjust that 40% to 30%. So there would have to be an end-of-year adjustment, or periodic adjustment, agreed upon by a process to be established in law through this Honourable Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, that concludes Question Time.

Before calling upon the mover of the Motion, I feel it my duty to make a few remarks. Standing Order 78 reads as follows:

“There shall be a standing select committee, to be styled the Standing Orders Committee, to consider, from time to time, generally what changes to Standing Orders are necessary and desirable and particularly to consider any proposed amendments to Standing Orders which are referred to it under paragraph (3) of Standing Order 87.

“(2) The Standing Orders Committee shall consist of the whole House with the Chief Secretary as chairman.

“(3) The quorum of the Standing Orders Committee shall be seven Members including the chairman.”

I would further like to state that I have accepted this Motion and shall allow it to be debated in view of the fact that at the conclusion of debate, if this Motion is accepted by the House, it will be referred to the Standing Orders Committee as in accordance with Standing Order 87(3).

I now call upon the Mover, the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 8/01

REVIEW OF STANDING ORDERS

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 8/01, Review of Standing Orders, which reads:

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT, notwithstanding Standing Order 87, the Standing Orders Committee convene to review and consider what changes to the Legislative Assembly Standing Order are necessary and desirable;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Government considers engaging the service of a resource person versed in parliamentary practice and procedure and Standing Orders to assist and advise the Committee.”

The Speaker: Is there a seconder? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 8/01 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Mover wish to speak on it?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you. We know that the Standing Orders under which the Parliament exists and follows have been in existence for a very long time. Indeed, there have been amendments made now and then to the Standing Orders to allow certain situations to come about. I think the last time the Standing Orders were reviewed was as far back as 1983 or thereabouts. This Motion really envisages a sit-down with the Standing Orders Committee to look at the Standing Orders in totality.

I was particularly interested in hearing the resource speakers at the most recent Commonwealth Parliamentary Seminar held here a few weeks back, examine and expound on our Standing Orders. I certainly learned much from what was said during those sessions, particularly when it came down to the discussion of our Standing Orders. There were many points raised by these resource persons which showed that the way we do business here could be improved with certain amendments to the Standing Orders.

Indeed, it seemed that our Standing Orders could use some updating, perhaps by inserting new procedures here and there, more in line with the trends taking place within the Commonwealth at this time. There was at least one instance where one of the resource speakers pointed out that our Standing Orders were not in accord with certain sections of the Constitution — at least it could be made clearer if some amendments were made.

These are some of the reasons why I thought this Motion would be a worthwhile one, that we could set about the task as a new government early in its term to review the Standing Orders. By having a select committee it allows all Members of the House to have a say in any changes, amendment, whatever, are made in the ff. Of course, our Standing Orders are not exceptionally long, nor are they exceptionally short. So, it could take us quite a while to set times and occasions to meet and go through them clause by clause, page by page, which I think to do a proper review would be necessary.

In the second Resolve, I have included a section asking Government to consider engaging someone to assist us in this regard. There was one person in particular who greatly impressed me with his knowledge, particularly of our Standing Orders. That was Mr. George Brancker, who I understand is advisor to the Senate of Barbados, and who I think you and your predecessor know quite well. From time-to-time, consultations are held between the two of you. I was most impressed with his knowledge of the history of our Standing Orders, with the changes that have been made in the past. He seemed to have gone the extra mile to study them for this occasion where he could point out things to us that many of us had not taken note of, or had not thought about. I would suggest if the Government so wishes to consider seeking some expertise in that field, it might consider Mr. George Brancker as a suitable person.

In fact, one of the things I recall from that seminar was that the various sections could be better refined. For example, the section dealing with Motions would be easier if all the [related] clauses were sectionalized. There might be the case where we are dealing with a matter in section 20 and you have to refer back to section 40, whereas it could all be within that particular section. I really think that is one area that needs to be looked at.

Indeed, should a person the level of Mr. Brancker be engaged, it would be well to ask that individual to take our Standing Orders, go through them, come up with a draft of what he thinks could be good for us, modernise what we have and take into consideration amendments we feel necessary, then give us that draft and at that point we, the legislators, get down to the dotting of the "i"s and crossing of the "t"s.

I cannot add much more to this proposition than to say that I believe the time has come for the Standing Orders to be reviewed and modernised changes made where necessary. I recommend the Motion to all Honourable Members..

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I rise on behalf of the Government to respond to Private Member's Motion No. 8/01 entitled, Review of Standing Orders.

I would like to turn back the pages of time to 19 June 1997 when Government Motion No. 9/97 was moved. That Motion was entitled "The Legislative Assembly Standing Orders (1997 Revision)." That Motion sought to establish the Select Committee called the Standing Orders Committee appointed to carry out a review of the Standing Orders.

That Government Motion passed and you appointed me Chairman of the Standing Orders Committee in accordance with Standing Orders 78(2). The Standing Orders Committee held three meetings between 1997 and 1999 with one interim report made to this Honourable House and a second interim report that was not acted upon. Attempts were made to hold other meetings, but unfortunately the attempts were unsuccessful because of a lack of a quorum, non-attendance of Members of this Honourable House and it is regrettable that we did not complete the work that had been started.

This leads me to remind Members of this Honourable House of the saying that a camel was a horse designed by a committee; I hope it was not a select committee! On a more serious note, I would like to sound a caution to Honourable Members that unless we are all fully committed to attending committee meetings we can spend a lot of time and not accomplish anything. We attempted on that occasion fairly early in the life of that Parliament to review the Standing Orders and I think it is widely known that with the passage of time they desperately need to be reviewed and revised. So, I would re-emphasise the need not only for this Committee, but for all select committees for Members to attend.

I have seen many times in the past where some Members have turned up, sat here for one hour and then had to disperse because of the lack of a quorum. So, that is important. I believe with the number of young energetic legislators in our midst we can see a lot done and committee work is as important as any other aspect of our duties here.

I would like to comment briefly on the second Resolve section that invites Government to consider engaging the services of a resource person, only to say that it is a good idea. But it comes at a time when it is a little too late for me to get funds included in the budgetary provision. I may have to rely on you, my Elected Colleagues to remember this in Finance Committee because if we are going to choose a resource person it is going to have a financial cost to it. I will therefore rely on you for that if we are going to use a person this year, as I think we should.

I do not think I need to speak very long on this because the Mover ably pointed out the dire need for having the Standing Orders reviewed. So, notwithstanding the mild reservations that I have stated, I accept on behalf of Government this private Member's Motion and I look forward to the Committee getting on with the job and getting our Standing Orders in line with the times.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? There appears to be no other Member wishing to speak, and I do not want to deprive anyone of his or her rights, but if no one wishes to speak, would the Mover care to exercise his right of reply? The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I thank the Honourable First Official Member for accepting the Motion on behalf of Government. I get the feeling that all Members of the House agree that there is need for a review of our Standing Orders. I look forward to the first meeting and any other meetings that may follow.

I take the Honourable Member's point that to recruit a resource person will cost money. Indeed, we know the Government is in a budget process now, so if there is no money for such an exercise, I would believe that in Finance Committee Members would provide funds once a figure is identified. I would certainly give it my full support.

Once again, I thank the Government for accepting the Motion.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 8/01 entitled, Review of Standing Orders. The Resolve section reads as follows:

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT, notwithstanding Standing Order 87, the Standing Orders Committee convene to review and consider what changes to the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders are necessary and desirable;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Government considers engaging the service of a resource person versed in parliamentary practice and procedure and Standing Orders to assist and advise the Committee.”

And further, under Standing Order 87(3), that this Motion be referred to the Standing Orders Committee. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 8/01 PASSED AND REFERRED TO THE STANDING ORDERS COMMITTEE.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 11/01

ELECTRONIC FORM OF LAWS, REGULATIONS, DIRECTIVES AND HANSARDS

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 11/01, Electronic Forms of Laws, Regulations, Directives and Hansards, which reads:

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government examine the feasibility of making all Laws, Regulations, Directives and Hansards available in electronic form to bring Cayman in line with the rest of the world in this, the digital millennium, and report its findings to this Legislative Assembly.”

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder? The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I wish to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 11/01 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Mover wish to speak to it? The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It gives me, a relatively young elected member, great privilege in bringing this Motion to this House. I feel that it is timely and greatly needed.

When the Motion refers to electronic form, let me state that I am simply referring to making laws, directives, regulations and Hansard available in their original typed form, as opposed to their current form, which is hard copy paper format. This exercise should not necessarily involve a lot of additional manpower because laws, directives, and regulations should all currently be in electronic form. Also, the Hansards are all currently typed. So, we are not talking about having to hire new people to put everything into the form I am speaking of, we are simply speaking of finding ways to get these materials to the public and users of these materials in such a format.

When the Motion refers to Hansards, we are talking about making the Hansards available on a website. In regard to laws, directives and regulations, we are referring to having them available on a website, or on CD ROM format, or disk format, but obviously to be for sale as they are currently sold by the Cayman Islands Government. This Motion seeks to enhance government's ability to sell laws. Currently, people are forced to come by the Legislative Assembly and buy the laws through a little window. This Motion seeks to make available to users of Cayman Islands laws access on the world-wide web.

In this age when we speak of diversifying our economy and getting into the e-commerce or e-business field, it would be fitting for the Cayman Islands Government to also be a player in this field, albeit in a small sense. When I speak about putting laws on the Website, I am not talking about people being able to log onto a website and read the laws. Like any other e-commerce site there would be a listing of the laws; there would be a brief description to ensure that users are purchasing the correct law. The user would then have to provide a mode of payment, a credit card number, and effect the sale.

In regard to laws, there would usually be two modes of obtaining the final product. One option would be to download the particular law, or to purchase it by way of CD ROM. And connected to the Website would be a cyberspace order centre. Any orders for laws in the CD ROM format would come to the current administrative staff here at this Legislative Assembly, attached to it would be the address of the purchaser, it would then be a matter of mailing that out to the purchaser.

We are not talking about rocket science here: it is a relatively easy exercise in today's digital world. Obviously, when we are talking about pricing I feel it would be prudent for the Government to charge a premium for those customers seeking the CD ROM version. I say that because we would have to pay for a CD ROM and postage to the purchaser, versus the alternative which is to download the law at the site. Users will have different preferences. Obviously, downloading would be a bit cheaper, but that takes time. Many times people do not want to dedicate their computer resources to downloaded information.

I realise that certain matters would have to be addressed before we take this bold step. Firstly, the Government will have to ensure that all the laws, regulations and directives are copyrighted. Secondly, the office of the Treasury would have to establish a credit card paying facility for the Legislative Assembly. But again, Mr. Speaker, I dare not even call those hurdles; those are minor first steps paving the way for much needed service.

In my former life, I only had to go into my office, or go to various clients, and see shelf after shelf filled with laws and regulations. I only have to speak to colleagues in other professions, especially the legal profession, to find out the pain they have to go through when doing research. The type of technology, especially in the compact disk arena, would allow users to do searches, to save the results for future reference; it would allow people to carry out their duties much more efficiently and effectively. After all, we brag of being a major player in the international financial arena in the global economy. We must enable the local practitioner to be as efficient and productive as possible.

It is my humble opinion that this Motion, once accepted and passed so that we could have this type of technology available, would serve our practitioners well. It will allow them to be efficient, productive, not lagging behind their contemporaries in other jurisdictions. One thing none of us in this Honourable House, or in our community, must take for granted is Cayman's position as a leader in the financial industry. When you are a leader, that means there is a big "X" on your back, and a lot of people seek to dethrone you. So, the business we have here does not have to stay here and we must do everything in our power to ensure that Cayman is able to be as efficient and productive as other jurisdictions. We must seek to be leaders and more efficient and more productive. We must provide the practitioners within Cayman with the tools necessary to do this. Also, we must make our laws readily available to all those who desire to require them.

I have had more than one occasion to be here in the Legislative Assembly in the area of the support staff and see them on the telephone with calls from overseas, from people wanting to obtain our laws. But not having any website to go to, they have to call the Legislative Assembly only to be told that we do not accept credit cards and that they would have to seek other ways to procure the laws. Surely, in this day and age we must not leave that impression on people who look to obtain our laws.

We must ensure that Cayman is a leader. Right now we are lagging behind in this area. At this point in time, this Motion seeks to get us caught up! Obviously, the comments I just made are no reflection on the staff here in the Legislative Assembly. They can only play the hand that has been dealt them.

In the interim the Government should, at a minimum, consider having a credit card acceptance machine here in the Legislative Assembly to bridge the gap until we get a proper website up and running. If people do call to purchase laws, or indeed, if they come by the Legislative Assembly, we would then be capable of accepting credit cards. What if a tourist seeks to purchase a law and does not want to go through the hassle of going to an ATM, but has his credit card? Once again, we would not be able to transact the business. If we had a credit card acceptance machine, people could use a credit card to purchase our laws.

Yes, there is a small charge attached to credit card transactions that the merchant (in this case, the Government) has to bear. But we would be reaching people that we ordinarily would not reach anyway. At the end of the day the Cayman Islands Government would obtain revenue it ordinarily would not obtain. So, this Motion seeks to broaden our customer base for Cayman Islands laws.

Last year we had 57 candidates up for election. We now have 15 representatives in this Honourable House. Every candidate campaigned on the basis of transparency, openness and accountability. This Motion asking to have the Hansard available on electronic form and on websites, seeks to increase that transparency. In fact, we should be proud to vote for such a Motion that would allow our constituents with Internet access (and that number grows daily) to have access to the business of this Honourable House in that format.

We all talk about "Generation D," the digital generation. We hear of primary schools having computer labs, something completely unheard of when most of us went to school. And primary school children have access to the Internet.

This is the mode of the future, so we must be there. We must provide for our constituents the ability to see the affairs of this country on line. There is a group that will listen to our proceedings on the radio. But most younger people do not accept that as a mode of keeping up with what is going on in this Honourable House. What do we do to bridge that gap? We make available our Hansards on a website. We allow our constituents to efficiently keep up with the business of this House.

If we are going to have openness then the halls of this Honourable House must be as open as possible. We have two Motions seeking to address that, and this is one. If we are going to deliver on our campaign promises of openness and accountability, then we must ensure that our actions, all our debates, all of our questions, are at the fingertips of our constituents.

What is particularly heartening in bringing this Motion is that I know for a fact that there are numerous Caymanians capable of building these Websites. So, we are not talking about having to procure expertise from overseas. I am confident that we have those resources here on the Island, not only in the private sector, but also in the public service in the computer services department.

Technology comes out, it is relatively expensive, and then as time passes it becomes relatively cheap. There was a time when a computer was cost prohibitive. That is not so any more. The same thing I can report to this House for CD ROM technology. The production of CD ROMs would not be cost prohibitive. I feel that this Motion would move us forward as a government and as players in the global community and it would also seek to make our business and our affairs here in this Honourable House more open and more transparent.

I look forward to my colleagues supporting this timely Motion. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I rise on behalf of Government to accept Private Member's Motion No. 11/01, moved by the Second Elected Member for West Bay, and seconded by the Elected Member for East End.

The Mover of this Motion very eloquently took this House through the proposal for the introduction of the selling of laws, regulations and directives, electronically, and making available the Hansard of this House to the rest of the world.

We are in the age of e-business and I believe that the Cayman Islands Government must be in line with the times in this regard if it does not want to be left behind. I know the current means of purchasing laws, regulations, directives, et cetera, by having to physically visit the Legislative Assembly and make the purchases is a rather onerous task, bearing in mind that parking is always a problem in this area, and that we are limited to the local clientele to make purchases. As the Mover ably pointed out, if by going to a website someone in South Africa can determine a particular law or regulation he wishes to have and by simply following through with a credit card he can make his purchase and be authorised to download it, or make a request for it to be physically mailed out, then it would widen the clientele for the selling of our products here in the Legislative Assembly immensely.

I know that the legal practitioners in this country in particular would appreciate this. It would save time by not having to send someone over here to collect the specific law or regulation. Time is money.

I think the Motion is an excellent one, it is timely, and I commend the Mover and the seconder on it. While the Motion resolves that we examine the feasibility of making this happen, I hope that as a government we can move forward with all haste to have this done and I will certainly give it my full support as the Member responsible for the Legislative department. We look forward in the not-too-distant future to seeing this become a reality.

I thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member have a short presentation? The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wish to commend the Second Elected Member for West Bay for moving what he has described as a very timely Motion. I would also like to commend Government for having the will and good sense to accept this Motion. My contribution will be very short. I just wish to touch on a few areas that were not dealt with specifically.

We are living in the much touted Information Age where knowledge and access to information are king! The prospect of having readily available on the Internet, Legislation, Regulations, and Hansards, is one that is filled with excitement and promise. It is something that has been carried on in other jurisdictions for quite some time. The UK Parliament has its own Website and its Hansards are readily available to be viewed or downloaded. I hope we can extend the terms of this Motion not just to Hansard, Regulations, Directives, but also that we take it outside the scope of the Legislative Department and extend it to items such as the Cayman Gazette, and Cayman Islands Law Reports.

We are moving closer and closer to a paperless world. As the Second Elected Member for West Bay said, we pride ourselves in being on the cutting edge in many respects in Cayman. As information technology is one of the principal drivers of this new age, it is imperative that Cayman takes the lead in e-business.

It has been of great assistance to me, and I am sure many of my fellow practitioners in recent years, to be able to access various English and other Commonwealth jurisdiction Law reports via the Internet. And as Cayman's reputation as a leading player continues to grow, I am sure that practitioners in other jurisdictions will find it useful to avail themselves of access to our Law reports, our Legislation, and the Hansards of this Honourable House.

So, Mr. Speaker, with those few words, I support this Motion.

The Speaker: I think this would be a convenient time to take the lunch break. We shall suspend proceedings until 2.30 pm.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.53 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.29 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 11/01. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay

Mr. Cline A. Glidden Jr.: I rise in support of Private Member's Motion No. 11/01, brought by my colleague, the Second Elected Member for West Bay.

I agree that in this age of digital modernisation the Motion is very timely. I think that this is a sign of good things to come for the young, dynamic new Government and Members of Parliament. In light of what was said yesterday by the Elected Member for East End, the seconder of this Motion, regarding promises made during the election campaign, I am happy to say that this is the second promise made by the Better Balance Team from West Bay, and the second Motion brought forward. If that is a sign of things to come, then I think the promises made during this election campaign may be honoured a bit more than they have been in the past.

Those of us who surf the Web regularly, know and appreciate the value of having a vast amount of information made available through the Internet and electronic highway. As a young parliamentarian, it has been very helpful to be able to log on to other countries' Legislative Websites and have access to their Hansards and different laws.

In the digital millennium that we are in, it gives me great pleasure to support this Motion, and I look forward to, as quickly as possible, having this electronic format available for the general public of the Cayman Islands, and for the rest of the World. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I think it is only prudent that since I seconded the Motion, I should speak briefly on it.

We heard about information technology for the future of Cayman in the Governor's Throne Speech. He went on at the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association's AGM dinner (where he was a guest speaker) and again spoke of information technology and the new millennium.

I welcome new technology in Government and Government's willingness to accept this Motion says that Government is going to move ahead to have it implemented. As I have said before in this Honourable House, I operate on the basis of efficiency and effectiveness. Already, I can envisage the effectiveness and efficiency it will bring to the Legislative Department. I look around that building with all the laws in printed form and it seems to be choking! There is very little space for the staff to operate. I think moving to the electronic form will assist in that. I hope it removes the majority of the printed matter so that the staff can have a little breathing space. I also believe that it will be much easier for them to operate and sell the Laws of this Country.

I am sure that the many law firms and businesses in the country will welcome laws in the electronic format, particularly when they have to maintain a library of many, many laws in printed form. It will also reduce the amount of times they have to walk over to the Legislative Assembly building to obtain these laws. More than that, it is my understanding that the Legislative Department receives many overseas requests and it takes an inordinate amount of time to process these requests because the funds have to first of all reach the Legislative Department before the laws can be forwarded.

I support the Mover in calling for a credit card payment process. That certainly will speed things up and increase the amount of sales, particularly from overseas. Like the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, I was pleased to go on the Internet and find websites from other countries where much information is available and research is made so much easier through that process. Much information can be obtained on the Internet from England and many of our neighbouring countries. Maybe we are catching up, but it is never too late. Let us spread our wings and let the World know that we are here also.

I support the Motion and look forward to Government implementing the process to get all of the Laws, Regulations, Directives and Hansard in electronic form.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, in rising to give my contribution to Private Member's Motion No. 11/01, I would like to call to Members' attention that the Resolve part of the Motion is asking that Government "examine the feasibility of making Laws, Regulations, Directives and Hansard available in electronic form, and that the Government report its findings to the Legislative Assembly."

Most Members seem to be already concluding that these findings will be positive and that it is feasible, and within the cost that the Members of Government would want to pay. But, having this information available is a good thing. The question is whether or not the cost will be one that Members will be willing to meet, especially in these times.

The Hansards are a particular concern. It has not been said whether or not the Movers of the Motion would like the Hansards from now on to be available in electronic form, or the Hansards of previous parliaments as well. Of course, if we have to go back and have all the Hansards available, I know that probably some of the Hansards have not been printed because of a lack of support and finances to hire the necessary staff. It is one reason that I think perhaps this Motion needs to be extremely well co-ordinated with the House Committee that would most definitely agree that as much information as possible be made available to the general public in electronic or other forms.

I do not know a whole lot about electronic forms like some younger Members, but I believe in order to get to that point, we have to get those documents in some type of printed form to begin with. For instance, dealing with the Hansard, it is necessary for them to be typed, proofread and edited. It takes a while to get the Hansards to the stage where they can be made public. So, they are asking that Government examine the feasibility. And for some reason there seems to be a feeling that the answer to the feasibility study would be that Government could find that this is a possibility.

Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to bring some of these issues to the attention of the House to suggest that the House Committee be as involved as possible with whatever study is being done, and that the House Committee be responsible if possible for doing the reporting back to the Legislative Assembly. That is my contribution since I do in principle agree with this Motion.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If not, does the Mover wish to exercise his right of reply?

The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Mr. Speaker, it is certainly heartening to know that this Motion has wide support and that we as legislators recognise the need for moving the country and the legislative arm of Government forward. I understand that Government, itself, is in the process of having a website developed, so I understand that a lot of what this Motion is asking for will soon have a backbone on which to exist.

I would like to thank the Second Elected Member for George Town for bringing up two other items, namely the Gazettes and Law Reviews that also need to be put into electronic form. I am confident that once the Government has done its review, which I imagine would be in conjunction with the Computer Services Department, they would find that such a proposition is not cost prohibitive. Also, we obviously do not have any empirical evidence as to how much Government revenue would be increased by having the Laws more readily available around the World, but one would assume that we would get some increase in the sale of laws. And in our fiscal condition every bit of money Government can make will obviously help.

In regard to the Hansards, I am told that they are up to date and that only one year needs to be finalised. However, even if all prior Hansards were not necessarily in electronic form, if they were typed, once the type is legible, with the advances in scanning technology these days much information can be scanned relatively easy, leaving a good product.

So, I implore the Government to recognise that even though some may feel that this Motion is not of paramount importance, I would like to remind everyone that it is, and it is very important that Government moves forward as quickly as possible. I am sure the work in this area would not take very long. I am confident that the Computer Services department has the resources to give guidance and direction and I look forward to a speedy response from the Government. Whether or not it is via the House Committee is at their discretion. That would be fine with me, and with the other Members too, I am sure.

I would like to thank all Members who made contributions and also those who did not. I take their silence to mean that they support the Motion. I would like to thank the Government Bench for accepting this Motion and I again implore them to move on it as quickly as possible once we are through the Budget process. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is Private Member's Motion No. 11/01 entitled, Electronic Forms of Laws, Regulations, Directives and Hansards. The Resolve section reads as follows:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government examine the feasibility of making all Laws, Regulations, Directives and Hansards available in electronic form to bring Cayman in line with the rest of the world in this, the digital millennium, and report its findings to this Legislative Assembly."

Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion is passed.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 11/01 PASSED.

The Speaker: Moving on to Private Member's Motion No. 10/01, Television Broadcasting of Legislative Proceedings to be moved by the Elected Member for East End.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 10/01

TELEVISION BROADCASTING OF LEGISLATIVE PROCEEDINGS

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 10/01, Television Broadcasting of Legislative Proceedings, which reads:

"WHEREAS the Government has pledged transparency and openness in all its public dealing;

"AND WHEREAS the electronic media, especially television, has become increasingly important as a means of communication;

"AND WHEREAS most households in Cayman have access to television through cable and/or other means;

"AND WHEREAS proceedings of the Legislative Assembly have been broadcast on Radio Cayman since 1983;

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable Legislative Assembly authorises the television broadcasting of its proceedings;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Government considers developing a public television channel of its own or, alternatively, make arrangements with the present television licenses for the use of a dedicated channel."

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder? The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 10/01, having been duly moved and seconded, is now open for debate.

The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Before I speak to the Motion and debate begins, I beg to move an amendment to this same Private Member's Motion No. 10/01.

(Members' laughter)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I was robbed of seconding the first part, but I have pleasure in seconding the amendment!

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 10/01

Mr. Arden McLean: An amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 10/01 reads:

"In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 25(1), (2) and (3), I, the Elected Member for East End, give notice of an amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 10/01 by adding the following Resolve at the end thereof: 'AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that all future matters pertaining to the broadcasting of the proceedings of the Legislative Assembly be coordinated through the Standing House Committee.'"

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate on the amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 10/01.

Does any Member wish to speak to it?

If there is no debate, I shall put the question that Private Member's Motion No. 10/01 [be amended]. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 10/01 PASSED.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 10/01, as amended, is open for debate.

The Elected Member for East End.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 10/01*TELEVISION BROADCASTING OF LEGISLATIVE PROCEEDINGS [AS AMENDED]

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I want to thank my good friend the Second Elected Member for George Town who, in his haste to go on record as supporting, I trust, this Motion, rose to second it. I also thank the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town who although scheduled to be the Secunder of the Motion, including the amendment, appears to enjoy the sharing, and that is good.

Mr. Speaker, while addressing the Youth Parliament, the Minister of Tourism spoke of the speedy manner in which Youth Parliament had dispatched its business. It appears that this Legislative Assembly is following suit.

The Speaker: Amen!

Mr. V. Arden McLean: This Motion is very straightforward and one I suspect will receive little debate. Maybe that is wishful thinking, but we shall see. The intent of this Motion is to have all the proceedings of this Honourable House broadcast on local television be it live or pre-recorded.

Over the years, proceedings of the House, Finance Committee and to a lesser extent, the Public Accounts Committee, have been broadcast on Radio Cayman. While conducting research for this Motion, I learned that there had been many debates and Motions on the broadcasting of proceedings during the 1980s (starting in 1983 up to 1985) when the former First Official Member, the Hon. Dennis Foster, brought a Government Motion listing the many different things that could be broadcast on radio.

I am not here to say why that was. It may have been that some Members had fears of what broadcasting of proceedings would do to them. I suspect there are Members in here today who would have some concerns also, and rightly so, because television is a visual means of communication and exposes conduct and behaviour. But I say to Members of this House that in my short tenure here I have not seen any conduct that warrants embarrassment. Anyone comparing the conduct of the Members of this Honourable House with that of the Mother of Parliaments—the English Parliament (which, incidentally, is broadcast worldwide on C-Span), we would all be choirboys and girls. The conduct there is less becoming of good conduct than it is here—much less! Members here have nothing to fear.

This Motion is an attempt to bring our Parliament in line with the 21st Century. Today most homes have access to television, which has become one of the most popular means of communication for Caymanians. I recall (maybe ten years ago) when local broadcasting through television was introduced to this country, there was a lot of fear and a lot of anticipation.

This country has seen three elections since the advent of local television in this country. I know it makes people extremely nervous because in 1992 it had only just begun and many of the people going on television for the first time were extremely nervous. I do not think that has changed much, because I know I still am. But, most people enjoy watching television at home with their families.

This is not an attempt to make Radio Cayman cease broadcasting proceedings of this House. Rather, it is to give the populace a choice. The only time people of this country hear the proceedings of this Honourable House is while driving home in their cars. Very few people actually sit and listen to the radio late into the night. I believe that if the proceedings of this Honourable House were broadcast on television more people would see and hear it.

The ratings on the Legislative Assembly would increase. The knowledge of Legislative Assembly proceedings would increase dramatically. Very importantly, we would be fulfilling our promise to the people of this country on transparency. I believe that the people of this country would enjoy sitting and watching the proceedings in this Honourable House.

At one time or another most of us have watched C-Span or PBS out of America. These are educational channels, politically and otherwise. I would venture to say that 99.9% of this country waited and watched patiently for the result of the vote on the impeachment of President Clinton. I am not saying that that is what we are looking for, but this is the kind of information these channels broadcast. They also broadcast debates. We in Cayman are no less gullible than the rest of the world; we enjoy watching a good television show, be it educational or otherwise.

This Motion calls for Government to develop a public television channel or, alternatively, make arrangements with the present television licensees for use of a dedicated television channel. I envisage this channel serving the same purpose as those I mentioned earlier, such as C-Span, PBS in America, and many others. However, I would like to spread it a little farther than the Legislative Assembly.

The Legislative Assembly will not be in session year round. But the country will be watching television year round. I know the country currently has channel 9 from the local television broadcasting company where we have tourist-related information. Then, Government Information Services (GIS) has a programme called GIS Journal, which is broadcast on channel 27, the local free channel. And we have other local stations, such as the religious channels.

One might say we have a lot of local channels now. But I contend that if there were a channel dedicated just to Government there are many things it could disseminate to the people—workings of government, press conferences . . . and you know the new Government enjoys press conferences, Mr.

Speaker, particularly my good friend the Leader of Government Business!

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: You just lost the Motion! (jokingly)

[Members' laughter]

Mr. V. Arden McLean: And rightly so, because the Government needs to let the people know the state of affairs in their own country. America has something called the State of the Union Address; that is another event that can be broadcast through the Government channel.

Another thing that needs publicity in this Country is the Constitutional Review. A television channel is the perfect place to have debate on this. I am not saying that the companies who currently have the license to operate a television station will not cover it. But we all know that news flashes last 30 seconds only and certainly the Country is grateful for that. But when it comes to the details needed, particularly with the Constitutional Review, it takes hours to debate in order for the populace to understand the process. We can do that with local television, but, of course, we have to pay for that.

Mr. Speaker, let us look at the younger generation of this country. I sat here when the Youth Parliament was conducted and I was pleasantly surprised to hear the amount of knowledge our young people have about their own country. I think that can go much further with Government having its own television channel. We can let these young people have their say on the Government's television channel as well.

So there are many reasons for Government to have its own dedicated channel. We can call it PBS, GIS, or whatever we choose to call it, and it will be for the education of the people in this country. This country is rich with history, but only a select few of us know it, because it sits in the archives and not many of us reach the archives. We need a public broadcasting channel that can be part of the responsibility of GIS and the Education Department, to get a lot of this information out.

The cost will be negligible when compared to the benefits to Government and the Country. It is my understanding also that GIS currently has some equipment to do the job. I think that was as a result of starting the programme GIS Journal. So we are not starting from rock bottom. We have very competent communications people in GIS.

Before I conclude to allow other Members to have their say, I know that the Elected Members for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are waiting to hear my proposal on how it will reach Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I understand that currently Cayman Brac does not even get the news until 24 hours later.

The Speaker: 36-40 over!

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Sometimes 48 hours.

We just passed the Motion on the electronic technology . . . the New Millennium—Cayman Brac is some 60-odd miles away and we cannot get a picture across there immediately. Mr. Speaker, that needs to be changed. It is relatively easy to change it.

Cable & Wireless currently has a fibre optic line linking Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac. The equipment it will require is relatively inexpensive. I am calling for the Government as part of this exercise (I trust the Leader of Government Business is listening to me) to spend a few hundred thousand dollars, put the equipment in place and both Cayman Brac and Grand Cayman can share in the same mass media . It takes a couple of weeks to install. That is it!

Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are no less than Grand Cayman and I do not understand why the licensees were not required to put it in place. Certainly, if it is not cost effective for them, then Government must put it in place and then make the licensees pay them back in the form of advertisements on the television. Cable & Wireless could do the same thing. A corporate responsibility in this country is a simple way to do it. The equipment is relatively inexpensive and the time has come. The advent of local television in this country came about some ten years ago—Cayman Brac and Little Cayman have not received it yet.

I am sure that in Government's response to this they will speak on that. I hope I am in good stead now with my colleagues from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

I understand some of the fears about broadcasting the proceedings from this Honourable House, but I also understand the benefits of doing so. This country needs to know that if this becomes a reality, whenever they see a chair vacant on television it does not necessarily mean that Member is not within the building; it does not necessarily mean that Member is not attending Parliament. Like any other human being, we too have to go to the bathroom and what have you.

[Members' inaudible comments by the Third Elected Member for George Town]

Mr. V. Arden McLean: The last person who should speak about being on television is the Third Elected Member for George Town, because he loves that!

Nevertheless, I believe there must be conditions placed on how the recording or live broadcast is conducted. I submit that the camera should be focused on the person speaking, and when a vote is taken, maybe the camera could go to wide-angle view. But it should be concentrated on the person speaking: it should not be scanning to and fro. I also believe that this is a good thing to do particularly for younger people in this country. It will give them an opportunity to learn and make some decisions in life as well. Many of them have never heard the proceedings. But when they are flipping through the channels on TV, perhaps they will see something that will spark their interest and get them involved in politics.

Since local television came to Cayman there have been broadcasts of proceedings of this Honourable House, particularly since the last general election. The swearing in on 15 November and the recent Throne Speech were both live broadcasts. The precedent has been set – the wheels have already been set – so there is nothing new in my Motion.

I look forward to the support of those who are enjoying the transparency we are now showing. I understand that it is a good means of politicking—it is free advertisement for politicians. But, if we keep within the promises I heard during the recent parliamentary seminar, where we promised to reduce the amount of time we stand on our feet in this Honourable House, I do not think we will get too much political time out of it.

Regarding the Amendment, I realised after doing the Motion that it is the responsibility of the Standing House Committee to have a say in whether or not proceedings of this House are broadcast and under what conditions it should be done. That was my reason for bringing it to the Motion. Mr. Speaker, I had no intention of embarrassing any Honourable Member of this House when I brought this Motion. It is merely to maintain transparency and to assist this Country in gaining a little more knowledge of the proceedings here in the Legislative Assembly.

I look forward to the debate and I commend this Motion to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate. Does any Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to give my full support to Private Member's Motion No. 10/01, dealing with the television broadcasting of Legislative proceedings and to make a very brief contribution.

I wish to compliment the Mover on his contribution and also for taking cognizance of the needs of the Sister Islands. I know that many of my constituents take much delight in listening to the proceedings on the radio—those who can receive it—especially the elderly folks. That's how they are able to keep up with current affairs of the Country. And now with the advent of television in more modern technological advancements that we have seen, including, but not limited to that of the Internet, I believe we would be moving in the right direction by using this advancement to provide information to our people. I also believe the Motion is timely. I realise that with transparency comes accountability. But that in itself is not bad, as I am also a full advocate of that.

Mr. Speaker, I realise that Cable & Wireless has fibre optics already, but I would ask that the Government, hopefully in accepting this Motion, will look at the various possibilities of going into a partnership either with the licensees or with Cable & Wireless to provide this to the Sister Islands. Perhaps in the interim we could go back to the temporary measures we had whereby CITN was providing tapes, albeit one day later, but Cayman Brac and Little Cayman were still able to get fairly current reports from Grand Cayman.

With the Legislative Assembly situated in George Town, unless Parliament takes it upon itself (as has been done on one or two occasions before) where we physically sit on Cayman Brac, they do not have the privilege of seeing the procedures. I realise the limitations, financial and otherwise, of taking the entire parliament up to Cayman Brac for a sitting. But as we watched the performance of the Youth Parliament, and those from the Brac, we realised that the young ones are becoming more interested in the workings of government. And, with the new direction in education and the possibility of civics and government being taught in our schools, it would assist my constituents if we were able to have this extended to them.

I am sure the Leader of Government Business will do everything within his power, and will so confirm in his contribution to have this extended. I would say, however, that the fibre optic system has been there for some time and only God perhaps knows why it has not been extended before. Rather than arguing or crying over spilled milk, now that the Motion is before this Honourable House, I ask that all reasonable steps be taken to ensure that not only Grand Cayman is covered, but indeed Cayman Brac and Little Cayman as well.

I believe that will also go a long way in the expectations that the constituents have with their representatives if they can see, for example, a motion or a bill going through all of the phases—debates, et cetera—they do in passing through Parliament. Oft times the fallacy is there that representatives do very little, especially when they come to Executive Council and they are not seen as often. But when they are able to see firsthand (through the process of transparency) all that is entailed in the day-to-day activities and running of Government, they will be more fully informed and in a better position to make conclusions as to their expectations of their representatives.

I concur with the Elected Member for East End in his assessment that there may be a degree of concern as to having the camera in here. Already we had a test with that during the Throne Speech. Most members are now quite familiar with television and I believe it could only enhance the performance of the entire Parliament. I look forward to the timely implementation of this Motion.

I thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I join my colleague, the First Elected Member for Cayman

Brac and Little Cayman, in thanking the Elected Member for East End for including the Cayman Brac and Little Cayman in his debate, making it a central point in his contribution. I am not sure if it was a political tactic to secure two votes, however, I think the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I are both inclined to support this Motion as it enhances transparency and accountability.

I urge Members of this Honourable House not to allow the presence of television, once introduced, to make our presentations more dramatic. I believe that the presence of television and the recording of proceedings will force each Member of this Honourable House to improve upon the manner in which we conduct the business of this Country and will ensure that our absence is minimised as it will be visible. I refer to the last Resolve of the Motion that presents two alternatives: (1) that Government considers the development of a devoted public television channel of its own, or (2) make arrangements with the present television licensee for the use of a dedicated channel.

My concern with Government developing its own channel is that I feel it is a great undertaking for us to do internally, and would probably involve recruiting outside assistance in the form of a consultant to develop. That could have negative impacts on our budget situation. I am more inclined to go with the dedicated channel provided by the current licensee providing television services in the Cayman Islands. I agree with the Mover that it is keeping in line with technological advancements and modernisation of our Parliament. And, as a member of the House Committee, I make the point that this is one of the areas we have discussed and have included in our report which will be tabled at a later date during this session of the Legislative Assembly. I conclude by once again expressing my gratitude to the Mover of this Motion, and undertake to give my support.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Not everything that the Elected Member for East End says is correct when he refers to my love of TV. I do not really love TV; what I love is the possibility to influence my constituents so that I do not have to come in here and talk nonsense. They understand me a little better because I attempt to communicate with them as often as possible. I would have taken radio if government had been interested in allowing private members to use Government radio in order to broadcast some of their ideas.

I think there is nothing wrong in improving the way in which we disseminate information to the general public. But we seem to be a new parliament with everyone having ideas, everyone wanting to prove to society that we have ideas. But ideas cost. Ideas really do lead to the materialisation, meaning goods and services, and that means money.

I am not necessarily saying that I am looking at Private Member's Motion No. 10/01 as something that is going to cost government a tremendous amount of money because that would depend upon what kind of approach is taken in regard to the final Resolve . . . well, not the final Resolve because he moved an amendment, but the second to the final Resolve asking that Government consider developing a public television channel of its own.

Now if Government were to consider that, we might find it to be an expensive exercise, as the First Second Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said, and therefore prohibitive because at this particular moment Government has undertaken so many things that it may have hung its hat higher than it can reach. When I say government, I do not mean the persons who are sitting in the positions at the moment. I mean that this has been the continuous habit where we come in here ordering and ordering things only to find out at the end of the day that we have to pay for all these things.

If the catchword is always "transparency" why is it that Government is not willing to issue radio licences? I know that persons have applied to Government for permission to establish radio stations. We know that right now people are making tremendous use of talk shows, like ICCI, Radio Cayman and maybe there will be other talk shows. And what people will be talking about without Government control or intervention are issues that affect them.

Ideas and issues do not begin and end with Parliament. Therefore, the mere fact that parliamentarians may have more possibilities to influence their constituents by way of having more radio broadcasts or television channels, specifically for the broadcasting of parliamentary procedures, does not necessarily mean that the entire populace will be enriched. Perhaps we also need to encourage people to take their own initiative to be a part of the political system because Parliament is only part of the political process. The constituents and how they are able to organise and communicate and make decisions is also an important part of the democratic process. The democratic process can be extended and improved and there would be greater political maturity in the Cayman Islands if we encourage the participation of our constituents in the decision-making process rather than merely relying on us being able to further project ourselves into their sphere.

In regard to the question of transparency and openness, which the Mover says Government has pledged, I believe that becomes possible when we allow more commercial television and radio stations to operate in the Cayman Islands. These stations will seek to find a way of broadcasting the sittings of the Legislative Assembly. But when we say that we pledge transparency and openness in public dealings yet we do not want to give any more television or radio licences, and at the same time we the Government would like to set one up and because we are the Government of course we can get a licence . . . All I am saying is that there is interest in the private sector for persons to broadcast the sittings of the Legislative Assembly. So, if we decide it can be done, there is no problem finding the appropriate company to do this.

I believe this might be the best way to go if it is what we resolve to do—the reason being that we would be able to broadcast to our constituents. Some persons might think that those constituents might be at a disadvantage who might want to run against us since we already have the radio and newspaper going for us making news when we sit in the Legislative Assembly: and now we have government TV going for us. Now how does that allow for the weaker persons to compete when we have very few political groupings in the Cayman Islands? We put those persons at a tremendous disadvantage.

If, in fact, we are saying that TV or radio gets our messages into the homes of people, then we would be able to get our message across twice as strongly. That means that persons who might want to challenge us will be at a disadvantage. The challenging of our positions and our ideas is a good thing because democracy cannot function without a certain amount of competition.

There is also the point where I feel that when we are dealing with a government-owned station where the Government, not the Legislative Assembly (that would fall under the Chief Secretary), would make the decisions. And I do not want to start a fight in here, but I remember what happened recently with Radio Cayman and the Chief Secretary. If something like that happened with the TV station, where the Government—not even the elected Government, but the nominated Government—would have that kind of power over mass communication in this country . . . I do not think that is a desirable thing. I believe we would be better off, if Government decided to do this, that it did not decide to begin its own TV station.

I know there are a lot of good things a TV station could do, and there are a lot of useful things Government could go with a TV station, like educational things. But there are a lot of negative things that could be done as well. We have to look at them, because experience teaches us that when one group or one person has the power, the others who have no power are going to be at a tremendous disadvantage. We cannot call that democracy because there is no equality and no fair play.

I think that this Motion can be accepted by me because I see the merits. I am only trying to point out some of the possible disadvantages. But I would prefer that if the Motion is accepted by other Members that at least the movement would be towards making arrangements with the present television licensees rather than Government trying to establish its own TV station.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

So that it is very clear why I am the one responding to this Motion, it is simply because while the Motion speaks to certain specific situations, it is going to require certain policy decisions. In speaking to the Honourable First Official Member, it was decided that since he had to reply to two consecutive Motions prior to this, that we would split them up so it would not seem quite so unfair.

It is not difficult to address the Motion on behalf of the Government in regard to its intent. There are a few areas I think we need to address. Before I start to do that let me say that based on the intention of the Motion and the way the three Resolve sections are worded, Government is quite willing to accept the Motion.

In accepting the Motion, I think we need to go through the three Resolve sections. The first one says, “BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable Legislative Assembly authorises the television broadcasting of its proceedings . . .” that is a matter for the membership who will decide via this Motion.

The second Resolve section states, “AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Government considers developing a public television channel of its own or, alternatively, make arrangements with the present television licensees for the use of a dedicated channel.”

In the last Resolve section, which is the amendment brought to the Motion, it says, “AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that all future matters pertaining to the broadcasting of the proceedings of the Legislative Assembly be coordinated through the Standing House Committee.”

That amendment makes it much more palatable for the Government to accept the Motion because it is Government’s view that this is exactly how the matter should proceed after looking at the area it needs to look at. It is also proper when the last Resolve section speaks to “all future matters pertaining to the broadcasting of proceedings of the Legislative Assembly because that encompasses whatever media is used.

The second Resolve section has two alternatives. As some Members said, it might be a difficult challenge to look to the first alternative—that is for Government at this point in time to consider developing a public television channel of its own—simply because there might be some difficulty with prohibitive costs. One could say that the Government could look at it from the point of view of providing its own public television channel and try to support the cost of that channel through private enterprise advertising.

The only difficulty is that while you may have some corporate giants or ordinary entities conducive to such a proposition and willing to advertise to help offset the cost, I have personal doubts we would be able to sell the situation to the level where it would be self-supporting. I am just giving my personal view, but it does not change the Government’s position.

In regard to making arrangements with the present television licensees for the use of a dedicated channel, that may well be an easier first approach. If we get that situation going with dedicated sales staff, the mix-and-match of other programming on a television station and advertisers willing to offload certain portions of their advertising budget to that area, with all of that, enough revenue might be generated to support the present licensees in broadcasting the proceedings of the Legislative Assembly.

One of the difficulties in filling the time with other types of Government programmes is the fact that the length of time the Legislative Assembly meets during the course of a year, determines how much air time on a daily basis is used up on a dedicated channel. There may not be enough hours to have a broadcast going on a daily basis to justify operating in that manner. There is the GIS Journal that operates now, and we might be able to extend that. There are educational programmes. Perhaps one could put down a real nice-looking wish-list for a situation of that nature. But we have to examine the costs on an ongoing basis.

I am only making these points, throwing a new twist on the line of discussion to say that I think no one has all of the real answers to the proposal at this point in time. We look to simply agree on the objective. Then, after getting all of the facts together, perhaps we will be able to make a decision on the best route to take. I think that may well have been the intention of the Mover and Seconder—the real Seconder!

The amendment to the Motion allows for continuity of the whole exercise. While Government is not able to articulate exactly the course of action or direction to go to accomplish what the Motion is seeking, the Government is saying that if we all are headed in the right direction we can use the right methodology to accomplish what we are looking for once we know all the facts.

Regarding the Motion, the Government is content to accept it as it is worded. Before I close, however, there are a couple of issues that were brought as sideliners, some of which asked for a reply from Government.

When the First and Second Elected Members for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and also the Mover, spoke to the fact that it would be desirable to have the two islands included in the process, they recognised that at present those islands are not able to access either channel 27 or 24, CITN, on a regular basis. I do not have all of the information collated, but I think there needs to be some agreement between Cable & Wireless and the providers, that is CITN, because Cable & Wireless seems to have the fibre optic infrastructure. I think the question is how to get access through the existing infrastructure to be able to provide the service and whether it is cost effective or not.

One of the problems we face with that . . . and I am not quite sure what the terms and conditions of the licence are. Perhaps someone will speak to that in more detail. But I know that a condition on a previous licence was the fact that Cayman Brac and Little Cayman had to have access to whatever television service was provided. That is not the situation that obtains with the present licensee. I do not know what the arrangements are; I do not know how committed they are. I do not wish to make judgement at this time. The Government intends to look into this situation. It will be brought to the forefront to ensure that access is granted to the Sister Islands, not just because of this Motion and what it seeks to have happen, but as a general rule regarding all television service provided locally. It should not lend itself only to Grand Cayman.

Although I am not the Minister responsible, as a general commitment the Government willingly says it will examine the situation and as far as possible, and as quickly as possible, make sure that situation obtains in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Third Elected Member for George Town spoke to transparency making some points regarding the fact that more television stations and/or radio stations should be allowed, and competition in its natural state would allow for more exposure. I understood him to say that the Government has taken a position that no more television or radio licences should be issued. I wish to make it categorically clear that that is not a fact!

The situation might seem to obtain as a spill-over from applications made months or years ago. But the fact of the matter is that there has been no policy established within this Government's framework that there shall be no more TV or radio licences. There are a few problems because time has not allowed for a satisfactory policy to be developed.

And in case anyone — and I wish to say this publicly because it is important to me — in case anyone believes that any existing radio or TV licensee has the ability to put any pressure on this Government to agree not to issue any more licences — whoever thinks that, is totally sadly mistaken. I want to make that very clear and I wish to go on record making that statement.

Mr. Speaker, the Government accepts this Motion and I trust that as we move forward and work together with the standing House Committee, in time to come we will see the performance of the Legislators on television on a regular basis.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I, myself, would like to speak and I think there is another Member also. But it is almost 4.30 pm and I am wondering if the House would be inclined to adjourn at this time.

The Speaker: I was thinking the same thing. The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Monday, 10 am.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until Monday, 10 am. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.19 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED
UNTIL 10 AM MONDAY, 19 MARCH 2001.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
MONDAY
19 MARCH 2001
10.15 AM
Fifth Sitting

[Prayers read by the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.]

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Legislative Assembly is in session.

Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Honourable Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies from the Honourable Second Official Member who is absent carrying out other official duties, and also from the Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology who is recuperating from surgery.

Next, Item 3: Questions to Honourable Ministers/Members of Government. Question 21 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MINISTERS/MEMBERS OF GOVERNMENT

Standing Order 23(5)
Motion to Defer Questions Nos. 21 and 22

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 23(5), I seek leave of the House on behalf of the Honourable Second Official Member to defer Question No. 21, and I seek leave of the House on my own behalf to defer Question No. 22.

The Speaker: The question is that Questions Nos. 21 and 22 be deferred to a later sitting. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED THAT QUESTIONS NOS. 21 AND 22 BE DEFERRED UNTIL A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: Question No. 23 stands in the name of the Second Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 23

No. 23: Mr. Rolston Anglin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports how many elderly residential care facilities are in the Country and who runs them (broken down by district).

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: There are five Residential Care Facilities for the elderly in the Cayman Islands:

- (a) The Sunrise Cottage in East End which is a five-bed facility.
- (b) Julie's House in George Town which houses three disabled clients.
- (c) The Golden Age Home in West Bay, which is a seven-bed facility.
- (d) The Kirkconnell Community Care Centre in Cayman Brac which accommodates fourteen persons.
- (e) The Pines Retirement Home which is a thirty-four bed facility.

The Sunrise Cottage, Julie's House, the Golden Age Home and Kirkconnell Community Care Centre are Government owned facilities and are all managed by the Department of Social Services. The Pines Retirement Home is owned and managed by the National Council of Voluntary Organizations. The Department of Social Services purchases services for around twenty elderly persons annually from the Pines Retirement Home.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable Minister say what plans there are for increasing such facilities given the rapid ageing of our population? With advances in medical technology people will be living longer over the next decade, so I just want to know the plans for expansion of such facilities.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: If we recall the Throne Speech by His Excellency the Governor, there are plans to build such a facility in North Side and Bodden Town. As other facilities are needed in other districts, I am sure that government will be committed to providing those facilities for our elderly.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Can the Honourable Minister say if any thought has been given to having the elderly persons reside with members of the community and have them subsidised rather than seeking the institutional remedies for this problem?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: The Government already assists the elderly with $400 per month financial assistance and also sends community care workers to the homes of the elderly which can range from one or two hours per day, or 24 hours per day.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Can the Honourable Minister say if the assistance given to the residential care facilities for the elderly forms but a very small portion of the help and assistance given to the elderly?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: The only answer I can give the Honourable Member is that this Government spends over $6 million per annum on the elderly.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister give an undertaking that the Sunrise Cottage in East End will be reviewed with regard to repairs as it seems to be in a state of disrepair?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I have been informed by the Director of Social Services . . . and I hate to answer questions referring to the civil servant involved, but it is renovated every year. But because it is an old building . . . but I will give the commitment of the Government that in 2001 we will look at the needs of the East End Sunrise Cottage as far as repairs are concerned.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Honourable Minister indicate that those districts listed with new recipients of senior care, such as North Side and Bodden Town, are selected on the basis that the current demand for services is greater in those locations?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I think it was the Family Study that indicated that the district of North Side has the largest number of elderly, which are mostly women. I think that the past government committed to doing something for the district of Bodden Town Senior Citizens' Centre through a motion accepted by this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I wonder if the Minister can say, based on that study, how many elderly people were in East End, and also what is the complement of the Sunrise Cottage in East End at present?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I am unable to give the Member a reply, but I will undertake to send it shortly in writing.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: The Golden Age Retirement Home in West Bay is in need of expansion because of demand. I am wondering if there are any pending plans for expansion of the Golden Age Retirement Home. Also, as I look across the floor I see the Director of the Prison here. I wonder if there is any plan to use prisoners to help build and repair such facilities.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I think the expansion of the Golden Age Home in West Bay was in the Budget last year and it is there again this year. So, hopefully we can achieve something with that facility.

The part of the question directed to the Director of Prisons, I think if the Honourable Chief Secretary would like to reply in writing to the Member from West Bay, seeing that it is not part of the original question before Parliament, he is entitled to do so.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?

If not, we move on to question 24, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 24

No. 24: Mr. Alden McLaughlin asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs to state the number of prisoners at Northward Prison who are currently serving (a) a term of life imprisonment; and (b) the number of those serving life imprisonment who have served a term in excess of 12 years.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: (a) Ten prisoners are currently serving sentences of life imprisonment at Northward Prison. (b) Four prisoners have served a term in excess of twelve years.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I wonder if the Honourable First Official Member could state if there is a policy within Government regarding the release of persons imprisoned for life, and how long it has been there..

The Speaker: I think that falls under question 25, which follows this one.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Oh yes, thank you, Mr. Speaker. I apologise for that.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?

If not, we move on to Question No. 25 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 25

No. 25: Mr. Alden McLaughlin asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs to state: (a) the criteria currently employed in determining the eligibility for release of prisoners sentenced to a term of life imprisonment; (b) the conditions imposed on such prisoners upon their release; and (c) the number released to date.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Currently there are no criteria in place to determine the eligibility for release of prisoners sentenced to a term of life imprisonment and, accordingly, no conditions have been imposed. No lifer has so far been released.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Can the Honourable First Official Member say whether a prisoner by the name of Phillip Glennon Ebanks was serving a term of life imprisonment and was released recently on licence?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The prisoner referred to by the Second Elected Member for George Town was released on licence, but was not serving a sentence of life imprisonment. He was in prison at what is known as the Governor's pleasure. He was released, but has now been recalled to resume serving that sentence.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Would the Honourable First Official Member say what conditions were imposed upon Mr. Ebanks upon his release?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: There is what I would term a standard licence when an inmate is released on parole. And while I do not actually have a copy of it here, it requires the parolee to adhere to a list of conditions which include getting a job, staying away from places that are liquor licensed premises (in all instances, I believe) and attending a church of his or her choice. The parolee also has to report at regular intervals to a probation officer and must not be involved in any crime. If these conditions are broken, then the parolee is recalled. This was the case with this particular individual.

I would add that if the Second Elected Member for George Town wishes a copy of the licence I could make it available to him.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Mr. Speaker, my question was the same as the Second Elected Member from George Town.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I wonder if the Honourable First Official Member can say what Government's intentions are regarding establishing criteria to determine the eligibility for release of lifers.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The issue of parole falls directly under His Excellency the Governor acting in his sole discretion under the Constitution, not the Governor in Executive Council. It is one of the areas that is the Governor's sole responsibility. And until such time as criteria are set for parole of lifers, the status quo as we know it today will remain.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Can the Honourable First Official Member say if this position he outlined in regard to lifers is consistent with the recommendations given to his portfolio?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I wonder if the Third Elected Member could elaborate a little bit more on that question.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: I think that the Honourable First Official Member might recall that there were recommendations given to the Government regarding the conditions in the prison. Part of the submission dealt with lifers and a recommendation regarding the period of time that should be considered as life imprisonment before parole on licence was considered. And if this is in the recommendations, why is it that we have not developed any terms and conditions for the release of prisoners up until now?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I understand the Member's question. Sir Stephen Tumim did make a recommendation in respect of parole for persons serving a term of life imprisonment. The Member will appreciate that it was a recommendation; it has been given consideration but has not yet been acted upon.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: If the recommendation has been considered, who is responsible for considering the recommendation? Is it solely His Excellency the Governor? Or would this recommendation be by the Chief Secretary, the Director of Prison, or the entire Executive Council? Who considers the recommendations and decides what action should be taken or not taken?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The responsibility for parole is the direct responsibility of His Excellency the Governor, acting in his sole discretion. Until such time as he determines that criteria will be set down for parole of lifers, the matter will remain as it is today.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: We are quite willing to take this question to London. I want to know who should be approached regarding the responsibility for the implementation of the recommendations which were made to the Chief Secretary's office regarding the prison and since this . . . and Mr. Speaker, I think I am not forming this too well as a question. My question is really this: How important was the recommendation with regards to the parole of lifers?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The recommendations, which were in my view easy to adopt and implement, were implemented. But I have to stress that these were recommendations and until such time it is decided to implement that recommendation the status quo will remain.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: In his response to the substantive question the Honourable First Official Member stated that there are four prisoners who have currently served more than 12 years. Can the Honourable Member state the length of term each of the four has served?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Three of the four lifers mentioned earlier have now served 15 years each. The other one has served 14 years, seven months.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: While I understand the Honourable First Official Member's statement concerning the Governor, I would like to read from section 7 of our Constitution: "The Governor shall, subject to the following provisions in this section consult with Executive Council in the formulation of policy and in the exercise of all powers conferred upon him by this Constitution . . ."

Can the Honourable First Official Member say whether or not the Governor has consulted with Executive Council concerning any criteria about the release of lifers within the last few years?

The Speaker: I think we are getting far outside of the intent of the original question. If the Honourable First Official Member wishes to answer he may. But you are actually asking for what was discussed in Executive Council.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Then could the Honourable First Official Member say if any of the four prisoners who served terms in excess of 12 years have been told or led to believe that they would be eligible or considered for parole at some time in the very near future?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: As the Third Elected Member for George Town will know, I tabled the report of Sir Stephen Tumim in this Honourable House and it became a public document. I think all persons in this territory had an opportunity to read the document once it became a public document. And even persons incarcerated at Northward Prison would have heard the issues and recommendations made.

So, yes, I think it is true to say that they would be aware of this and there are no doubt certain expectations by those lifers in regard to parole.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable Member say whether there are criteria set out for persons serving life sentences regarding visits outside the prison—that is formal/social visits?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, we began a programme last Christmas after assessing those individuals and a programme of social visits outside the Prison has been put in place and we expect that this will continue on certain occasions in the future.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden Jr.: Can the Honourable First Official Member say what security arrangements are made for lifers who are out on social visits in regard to safety for the residents of the area?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The lifers allowed out on social occasions are escorted by an officer and the usual security checks made, searches, et cetera. Those given this privilege – only three as I recall – are the ones allowed to work outside the Prison.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: The Honourable First Official Member said that the prisoners are escorted by an officer. I presume he would mean a prison officer. But can he say whether there would be any occasion where such prisoners are escorted by people in authority other than prison officers?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is my understanding that the lifer has to be escorted by someone from the Prison.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: The Honourable First Official Member said that there was a programme started to get some of the prisoners, like the lifers, out on social visits. Can he say the reason this programme was started? Was it the beginning of something to come?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: This programme has been introduced by the current director of Northward Prison. It has been introduced because of the exemplary behaviour within the prison of these three lifers. It is sort of a little reward for their good behaviour and the hard work they perform as part of work parties.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: This is obviously an area that a lot of our newcomers in this House will have to dig into and come to grips with. I am not sure that is what people on this Island call punishment. Anyway, how often are prisoners allowed social visits? Is there any cap put on this new programme we are hearing about today? Can they visit daily?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The programme has been confined to the three lifers I mentioned earlier. They have been risk assessed. It was started at Christmas and it went well from the standpoint of the prison authorities. We expect that we will continue this in the future.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay. Three additional supplementaries.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: The Honourable First Official Member said the prison authorities stated that it went well. Can he state whether the prison authorities have polled the people in the direct area where prisoners visit, in formulating the conclusion that it went well?

Also, in an earlier answer, the Honourable First Official Member stated that part of the licence for release would be that the person had to get a job. How will these persons be assisted in getting a job?

He also stated that the person is monitored. Can he say who monitors the person, and in what form the monitoring is, and whether the person is randomly tested for drugs?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The Second Elected Member for West Bay has not asked one, he has asked four supplementaries! Anyway, I will do my best.

On the first answer to, How do we know the visits went well? I thought I had said from the prison authority's point of view, but if I did not, that is where the assessment took place. There were no complaints from any member of the public in respect of the visits. The Member can rest assured that if something does not go well, complaints pour in.

On the matter of random drug testing – I think the Member is speaking in terms of the licence – yes, random drug testing is a part of the licence. Who does the parolee report to? There is a probation officer and the licence requires the parolee to report in certain intervals, and the time is very specific. I think it is on a weekly basis. Supervision of parolees works well as far as I am concerned.

Finally, the matter of jobs: There is a programme called "Programme Prepare" and the person responsible for that assists in finding jobs. Then quite often we find relatives of the person coming up for parole, assisting in finding jobs. So, there are a number of ways jobs are found, and the prison authorities are always informed of this well in advance.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden Jr.: I listened to the response from the Honourable First Official Member. I would just like to say that as a part of this new incentive used for the release of prisoners, I happened to speak to one who had been released and I think he was recalled. He seemed to have had a real difficult time finding a job after coming back into society. So there seems to be a breakdown in the preparation.

In the assessment done on the prisoner who was released (he was not a lifer, he had been held at the Governor's pleasure), it appears that there was some breakdown because very shortly after, he had to be recalled. I wonder if the same people will be doing the assessment on the lifers when they are released. If there is the same breakdown in that assessment then we have a potential for problems.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The recall of a parolee does not happen because of his not having a job. He would be recalled if he commits another offence. I can assure the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay that that is when the recall takes place.

On the matter of the individual who was released who was serving at the Governor's pleasure, one can never be 100% sure that these things will work. We can only take the information . . . in this case His Excellency took the information given to him. Incidentally, a recommendation had been made years ago as to a possible length of time the person should serve. The person served beyond that time even though serving it at the Governor's pleasure, and the parolee committed offences and got recalled.

In dealing with human beings we can never be sure – the exercise did not succeed; it failed; the individual got recalled. It is unfortunate, but that is something that will happen. The individual was released with the best of intentions.

I would say to the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay that the number of instances where parolees are recalled is relatively small. I do not have the statistics with me today, but the majority of cases of parole are successful. So, the case that does not succeed . . . it is just one of those things that has to be put down to experience. But the Parole Commissioner's Board made up of a number of persons from the community will go through reports very carefully and make recommendations to His Excellency the Governor for paroling individuals. The system may not be perfect, but it is the best we have and I think it works in the vast majority of cases.

The Speaker: I would appreciate a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) in order for Question Time to continue beyond 11 am.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) AND (8)

Hon. James M. Ryan: I move the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) to allow Question Time to continue beyond 11 am.

The Speaker: The question is that we suspend Standing Order 23(7) and (8) to allow Question Time to continue beyond the hour of 11 o'clock. Those in favour, please say Aye; those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question Time will continue.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ALLOW QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11.00 AM.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: In returning to one of the answers to the substantive question, I believe that the absence of any policy as to whether or not prisoners serving a term of life imprisonment should be released, is unhelpful. It creates much dissatisfaction as I have heard voiced recently.

My question to the Honourable First Official Member is, Has any decision been taken as to whether or not criteria will be developed for the release of prisoners serving a term of life imprisonment? Or must such prisoners expect to live out the balance of their natural lives in incarceration?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I believe I mentioned earlier that the recommendation for parole of lifers has been discussed. His Excellency and I, along with others, have discussed it. The criteria for paroling lifers has not been decided upon and while the criteria can be agreed, until such time it happens the lifers will remain incarcerated.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. Before moving on to other business I had received apologies from the Honourable Third Official Member who is on other very important business and will be arriving later today.

Moving on to item 4, Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Out of an abundance of caution, I would like a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 14(2) noting that there is no Government Business to follow.

The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14(2)

Hon. James M. Ryan: I move the suspension of Standing Order 14(2) to allow Private Members' Motions to be taken today.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 14(2) which allows for Private Members' Motions to be taken on days other than Thursday be suspended. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Order 14(2) suspended.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 14(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 10/01, as amended. Continuation of debate thereon.

The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

AMENDED PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 10/01

TELEVISION BROADCASTING OF LEGISLATIVE PROCEEDINGS

Continuation of debate on Motion as amended:

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I rise to offer my views on the Motion before the House, that is, Private Member's Motion No. 10/01, Television Broadcasting of Legislative Assembly Proceedings.

I think the Mover of the Motion has established that the idea of allowing television broadcasting of the proceedings of the House would be one further step in what seems to me generally accepted now by both sides of the House—that creating greater transparency is good for Government.

What happens in the Legislative Assembly, I need not say, but will anyway. We know it affects all of the people of this Country. If a law is made here, if a law is amended, it affects all persons in the Country. I think it was the idea that it would be best for the public at large to hear what their elected representatives were saying that the Chief Secretary, the First Official Member, as far back as 1983 brought a Motion which allowed radio broadcasting of the debates of the Legislative Assembly.

Mr. Speaker from the research I did on this matter, each time the Legislative Assembly convened from 1983 up to 1985, a motion was moved for the broadcasting of the debates in Committee and so on. For the first time the public could sit in their homes or in their cars at the particular time that the broadcast was going on and hear exactly what their representatives were saying about whatever subject they were discussing. Since 1985 it was adopted to broadcast the Legislative Assembly proceedings on radio.

Mr. Speaker, I think the public is better informed since that time about what is happening in the Legislative Assembly including times when there were quarrels and serious disagreements. I do not find anything wrong with that because this is the place chosen especially for the elected representatives of the people to disagree, to quarrel, and to take opposing views. From the discussions, disagreements, and differing views emerge what is a majority decision. So, I personally think it is good for the public to know what is happening in that regard.

Of course, radio can offer coverage to a wider spectrum of people in their cars, where we would not necessarily want them watching television while they are driving, although such is possible in this day and age. But television is a more defined audience. I see television being a very useful tool.

Very recently there was a Youth Parliament held here for the first time (to my knowledge), where young people played the role of the Government Bench, the Opposition Bench, the Speaker, the Clerk, the Serjeant-at-Arms—all the persons involved in the legislative process. I thought, as I watched, that the young people did extremely well despite not having occasion to practise as many times as they would have liked, I dare say. But I thought it went extremely well.

My compliments certainly go to all those persons who assisted them in their work. However, Mr. Speaker, I believe if there was the equivalent of a public broadcasting television station or the equivalent of C-Span, as we see it from American television and so on, they could actually sit in their homes and learn the practices and procedures in here.

Certainly, the television screen would show the Chamber: it would show how persons are seated in this Legislative Assembly. It would also show what happens when the Speaker calls for a particular action to be taken; the duties of the Clerk; the movement of the Serjeant-at-Arms, and they would be able to see the faces and hear the voices of the people who represent this Country. Television is one great education media.

Of course, Mr. Speaker, I believe a part of our social problem is the type of education that young people get from seeing crime movies and that sort of situation which leads them to emulate some of the things they see. But if television were in this Legislative Assembly it would give an opportunity of a visual education which is not now available.

In Motion No. 2/85 (to which I referred earlier), seven proceedings were set down to be broadcast from the Legislative Assembly and it was limited to those. I believe that should television be included in the Legislative Assembly, we could consider using the particular media to cover select committees—the Public Accounts Committee, for example, or any select committees that might be appointed—to see and hear the Elected Members deliberate on matters before them. It would give a visual picture of what is happening in here.

Mr. Speaker, some people have said that there is certain fear that the way people behave would be seen by the public on TV, and you really cannot see that on radio. Then it might also help to create better behaviour because one is on television.

I have heard others say, 'Well, you know, after lunch some people just simply catch a snooze.' Well, that's all part of it. I have been to the House of Commons and the House of Lords in the UK, and I have seen some folks come in there around 2.30 in the evening and you could see that they had some 'liquid' lunch prior to that and they were not the most steady on their feet as they walked through the door. So, it is not something so strange or unique to ourselves; and in the House of Lords, I saw people there so old that their greatest contribution was simply shaking and trembling. So, I do not think we really need to take those things to heart and believe that would be something so awful and so shocking that we could not deal with it.

Mr. Speaker, television is watched in the Cayman Islands daily, and if we had it here in the Legislative Assembly it would be like four times a year when the House is in session. But there could also be fillings as I have said during the time of select committees. Thus, it would give a greater overall presentation of the work in this Legislative Assembly.

The Motion asks for Government to consider having a public television channel that would broadcast the business of the House. I believe that Radio Cayman deserves the highest praise for the work that they have done for close to 30 years. I know that at least one person there has also worked on television. I think it is possible to have a combination of Radio Cayman and a television service. If they are given the opportunity to do this, I believe that the manpower resources already exist to a considerable extent. It is my understanding that the Government Information Service also has a camera crew and someone who has knowledge of being an anchorperson. So, it is not impossible for the Government to look into this and develop this particular exercise. I believe it is necessary, Mr. Speaker.

As part of good governance, one needs good public relations. And if ever there was a time in our history that Government needed good public relations, I think it is right now. On the local scene, and certainly on the international scene where the OECD countries are playing psychological warfare with us, we need to get smart real soon and realise that we have to have some kind of counter-measures as to what they portray us to be.

It would be a good starting point, I think, for us to be able to develop our own television clips, which we would get to the outside media. I know, for example, that CNN has broadcast clips from different countries on certain occasions. I do know that the first television venture here in the Cayman Islands produced clips, namely, Mr. Desmond Seales, and some were played on CNN. I cannot say that I have seen any since those times, so I would not want to say that we are retrogressing. Maybe there is another word for it or maybe the same amount of effort is not being put forth as in those times.

This brings me to a point, Mr. Speaker: I can see no reason why this Government should require less of the present licensees than was required 10 to 12 years ago. I know at the time that Mr. Desmond Seales was doing the television broadcasting in the Cayman Islands he was required to produce television in Cayman Brac—and he did. It was part of the licence requirements. He actually did that with less electronic capabilities than is now the case. In fact, I understand that there are three licensees in these Islands and I believe they should be required to provide television broadcast for Cayman Brac, at least, channels 24 and 27.

There is no excuse why that should not be done. Again I say that if it could be done more than a decade ago, surely now it should be a requirement. Cayman Brac and Little Cayman have the same rights . . . we are all citizens of these three Islands and we should have the same opportunity of viewing television which has been the privilege for one licensee up until now.

I did have concerns from the very beginning that three licences were allegedly granted, but an individual was supposedly able to create one company that managed the affairs of all three licensees. I find something seriously wrong with that. I think in the United States it would be called 'restraint of trade' and it would be an act where competition is being suppressed. It is not likely that we would find ABC, CBS and NBC run by the same company because it would take away the competitiveness of the whole situation.

I think the opportunity now presents itself at this time when the Government should take a serious look at what is happening with local broadcasting. This is amplified, I think, when one looks at how much local content there is, which is almost zero—one hour in the morning—and if we take out the advertising time it is much less than an hour.

There are so many things that should be portrayed within the society via television that is worthwhile to providing information and knowledge to the population. So, I believe that it makes sense for Government to seriously take this opportunity to look at producing information to the public starting with broadcasting of the proceedings of the Legislative Assembly and develop it from there.

If the alternative is taken, as the Motion suggests that Government seek to make an arrangement with one of the licensees to have a dedicated channel to use, I certainly hope that the Government would seek to make some money by taking advertisements in which it would collect for, or would share part of the profits which may come from that, should they go the route of giving this opportunity to the present licensees of channel 27 or CITN.

Mr. Speaker, while it might be a money-maker for the company which operates in these Islands now to simply collect and rebroadcast American stations, which anyone can get on a satellite dish, we need to move to a point where we are creating more of our own local information to broadcast on television.

Of course, it really could not hurt any of us to have some television time, and I guess all of us might turn actors in one way or the other to put on the best show for our constituents, but it would be a grand opportunity to show how well we can do, how well informed we can be, and how well we can argue the point that we are putting forth.

We do have someone who is quite a television personality, and now that he knows the many tricks of the trade, we would no doubt have to be in competition with him. But I am sure we could get around that. We would have to see to it that he does not outmanoeuvre us and get all the limelight!

Mr. Speaker, I think that this Motion truly gives the Legislative Assembly a good opportunity to step into modern times. It gives the opportunity for the Government to look at this particular aspect of communication and start the development process in the right direction, with the idea of helping the widest part of the population to inform and to educate them—not only just of the Legislative Assembly proceedings in the normal run of the day, but also in its Committee works and otherwise.

Mr. Speaker, I can mention that the House Committee has recently looked at this particular matter and how it could best be accommodated in the Legislative Assembly. There will be a report forthcoming during this meeting of the House, and of course, it will be more detailed then.

The general idea is for us to have the Legislative Assembly wired for television broadcasts, so that one, two, three, four, however many, might be able to capture the picture and it would not be limited to any one particular station. This is something that is very current all around and, of course, more recently in the CPA Seminar we discussed the idea of broadcasting the proceedings of the Legislative Assembly via television.

Mr. Speaker, I support this Motion because I think it is something that can have a very positive effect on the society. It can help the Legislative Assembly and its Members and is something that will fit within modern times. Having said that, Mr. Speaker, once again I lend the Motion my support.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate, does any Member wish to speak? (Pause) The floor is open to debate. Does any Member wish to speak? (Pause) The floor is open to debate, does any Member wish to speak? (Pause) If not, does the Mover wish to exercise his right of reply? The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I will not be long for fear of losing the support of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, but there were a few things mentioned that I would like to touch on briefly.

I understand the Third Elected Member for George Town when he spoke about the cost to Government to implement such television broadcasting of the Legislative Assembly and possibly further developing what I term a public broadcasting station. But I believe in today's technological age the cost is much less than it was many, many years ago when we were dealing with analogue equipment. Today it is all digital. The electronic world is upon us, and technology changes daily. We can see this with computers; as soon as you get a computer home, within a few weeks it is outdated. The computer technology has brought us into a millennium far exceeding the one that we currently live in. Therefore, I do not believe the cost will be that extraordinary.

There was also mention of the lack of willingness on the part of the Government to issue more licences to applicants, that is radio or otherwise. The Leader of Government Business replied to that and made it abundantly clear that no one is going to influence this current Government. Well, I am glad to hear that. But, by the same token, I would like to say the more competition the better; the more radio stations, the more television stations we get, the more information will get out to the populace and to the world. We constantly talk about monopolies in this country anyway. We have enough of those already. Therefore, the more television stations and radio stations we have, the better it is going to be for the people. Certainly, competition may very well lose some of those stations, but if someone wants to go into the free market, so be it.

I heard mention of the unfair advantage to our political competitors outside as well. I believe, and I submit that it is not altogether so. I think they are the ones who would have the edge on us, particularly if we stay in this Honourable House and conduct ourselves in such a manner that is unbecoming and it is televised. They will have something to talk about in the upcoming election.

Mr. Speaker, there is more than one reason for having the proceedings of this Honourable House televised. One reason that came to my mind over the weekend was the interest that the populace showed during the general elections. All the candidates used the television media to get the word out to their people and communicate with their constituents. In particular, the night of the General Election. Compared with 1992, this election did not see as many people at the counting polls because people were at home watching it on television. So, the country is interested in the see and hear—the visual and the audio communication. The Country is very interested in that, as is the whole world. Television is the preferred way of communication.

I was a bit surprised to hear that the licence granted to television did not include Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I challenge the new government to include Cayman Brac and Little Cayman in their discussions with whichever one of those three licensees they will discuss this matter with. I can appreciate the Leader of Government Business mentioning that at this time finances do not allow Government to develop its own station. But I will accept Government negotiating with the licensees to get a dedicated channel.

Over the weekend, on further researching the cost to connect Cayman Brac and Little Cayman with the television service we currently enjoy here in Grand Cayman, I was pleasantly surprised to learn that it would even cost less than I originally mentioned, of a couple hundred thousand dollars. Much less! I am sure that even though we are going through some financial difficulties in this country that can be arranged.

It appears to me that the further east you go, the less you are remembered. That was in the past. I trust this new government will not let that continue!

Mr. Speaker, the best person to tell his own story is the person himself. If he leaves it to someone else, it is always twisted to the other person's liking. I believe that if the Government of this country sets up its own station, or channel, and it is properly televised, the information coming out of Government and this Honourable House can get to the people the way we want our story told.

I am glad to hear that the House Committee is looking at wiring this Honourable House (the building), to accommodate the television broadcast of the proceedings. That says that even before I thought of this Motion other Members were also thinking along these lines. Certainly, it will prevent having so many wires running along the floors. I welcome that. I think it is a very good move on the part of the House Committee.

The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said that with transparency comes accountability. That is true. But I can also say that with accountability we must have some transparency. That is what television is going to bring to this Honourable House. Television and televising and broadcasting the proceedings of this Honourable House is good for this country, and also good for the Members of this Honourable House. Depending on how it is used or abused, it can be good or it can be bad. Mr. Speaker, I leave it entirely up to all Members of this Honourable House how they choose to use the televising of proceedings.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 10/01, as amended. The Resolve section reads:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable Legislative Assembly authorises the television broadcasting of its proceedings;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Government considers developing a public television channel of its own or, alternatively, make arrangements with the present television licensees for the use of a dedicated channel.

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that all future matters pertaining to the broadcasting of the proceedings of the Legislative Assembly be coordinated through the Standing House Committee."

Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 10/01 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Speaker: At this time I call upon the Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: As the House knows by now, the Honourable Second Official Member is unavailable today and he was to respond to the next Motion on the Order Paper. We also have arranged and agreed to a presentation from the Chief Veterinary Officer, Dr Alfred Benjamin, regarding Foot and Mouth disease. We think it is very important and Members appreciate how serious the situation is, meaning the global effects and what we have to do here to protect ourselves.

So based on the circumstances that prevail at this time, and all Members that we have spoken to, the vast majority agrees that it would be best for the House to adjourn until Wednesday morning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 am Wednesday..

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 am Wednesday. Let us also bear in mind that the Budget Address will be delivered then.

Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 11.50 AM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 AM WEDNESDAY, 21 MARCH 2001.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
WEDNESDAY
21 MARCH 2001
12.33 PM
Sixth Sitting

[Prayers read by the Second Elected Member for George Town]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Item no. 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Honourable Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies from the Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology who is recuperating from surgery in the United States.

I would like to apologise for the late start today. It was totally unavoidable.

Moving on to item no. 3 on today's Order Paper, Presentation of Papers and Reports. The Draft Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure of the Cayman Islands' Government for the Year 2001 to be laid on the Table by the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

The Honourable Third Official Member.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

THE DRAFT ESTIMATES OF REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS'
GOVERNMENT FOR THE YEAR 2001

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Thank you also for your indulgence and that of Honourable Members in dealing with the delay. Finally we are on the way.

I beg to lay upon the Table of this Honourable House the Draft Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure of the Cayman Islands' Government for the Year 2001.

The Speaker: So ordered.
Moving on to item no. 4 on Today's Order Paper, Government Business, Bills. First Reading.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

FIRST READING

THE APPROPRIATION BILL 2001

The Clerk: The Appropriation Bill 2001.

The Speaker: The Bill has accordingly been given a first reading and is set down for second reading.
Second Reading.

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION BILL 2001

The Clerk: The Appropriation Bill 2001.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the second reading of the Appropriation Bill, 2001.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the year 2000 was a very challenging but rewarding one for the Cayman Islands. During the year, the Government spent a considerable amount of time dealing with the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) 'harmful tax competition' issue and the concerns of the Financial Action Task Force (FATF). I am pleased to say that substantial progress has been made in these two areas.

The future success of the financial industry is of utmost importance to the Cayman Islands and the Government will continue to defend and maintain the integrity of this key industry.

In May 2000, after discussions on the OECD initiative that spanned approximately 18 months, the Cayman Islands committed to addressing specific concerns of the OECD. These related to issues of transparency, exchange of information and absence of substantial activity, which is now referred to as non-discrimination. As a result, the Cayman Islands became one of six jurisdictions that did not appear on the OECD list of harmful tax havens, which was published in June 2000. The key commitment given to the OECD was the introduction of a mechanism for international cooperation on tax matters. This commitment was defined in specific terms in the annex to our commitment letter, which is a public document.

There has been much discussion about the process leading to our commitment and about the commitment itself. The decision to provide information assistance on tax matters is as significant as our initial move in 1984 on narcotics-related offences, including money laundering. You will recall that the Cayman Islands was one of the first jurisdictions at that time to enter into such an agreement. This has now developed into a global standard. Our financial services industry absorbed the change and has continued to flourish.

Our Caribbean neighbours have quite rightly focused on the economic competition aspects of the OECD initiative. We agree fully with the principles of transparency, non-discrimination, and effective information exchange on tax matters. Further, the so-called 'non-committed' jurisdictions have indicated a willingness to adhere to the original deadline of 2005 for the full implementation of effective information exchange. Three countries—the Isle of Man, Netherlands Antilles and Seychelles—have recently committed to the OECD initiative.

The positive impact of our early decision was that it provided reassurance to our international industry partners. The Cayman Islands has also put itself in a position of influence in respect of the OECD process itself. Our interests have been significantly advanced. The exchange of information that now exists among and between non-OECD and OECD countries will help to ensure that no one is held to any higher (or lower) standard than anyone else.

Mr. Speaker, I assure this Honourable House that the Cayman Islands is keeping fully abreast of developments in the OECD initiative. In its address to the Commonwealth Secretariat meeting in Barbados earlier this year, the Government stressed fundamental presumptions and principles for arriving at fair and consistent outcomes in the OECD process. These included inclusive dialogue, the rule of law, and the right to privacy and due process. There are positive signs that the final shape of the OECD initiative will respect these principles and the mutually agreed objectives of transparency, non-discrimination, and effective information exchange.

Mr. Speaker, I now turn to the FATF initiative. At the FATF plenary in January, the Cayman Islands was publicly acknowledged as one of seven jurisdictions that enacted most, if not all legislation, to strengthen its counter-money laundering regime. The FATF president also congratulated the Cayman Islands on the 'substantial progress' made. The significant concerns raised by the FATF were addressed last year and Cayman is now dealing with some remaining issues that will allow it to cease to be listed amongst the 'non cooperative' countries.

Mr. Speaker, during the course of this meeting a number of Bills for amending legislation will be brought to this Honourable House. These are in respect of various undertakings given to the FATF. Some of these were also recommended in the KPMG review. They include issues such as explicit 'fit and proper' criteria for financial services applicants and licencees; immobilisation of bearer shares; and appropriate regulation of company formation and registered office services. These features do not appear in the regimes of our FATF colleagues. But we must be like Caesar's wife: above suspicion. At the same time, we will exercise our own judgement in these matters. The legislative measures being proposed by the Government are proportionate, business-sensitive and sensible.

The FATF plans to make its first on-site visit to the Cayman Islands in early May. This visit is expected to inform the FATF June plenary. All relevant branches of the Government, the Executive Council and members of the financial services sector have been working very hard to ensure the completion of all necessary work. I look forward to full support from this Honourable House when the relevant legislative Bills are discussed.

THE WORLD ECONOMY

Mr. Speaker, world economic growth in 2000 is estimated at 4.7%, compared to 3.4% in 1999. A strong US economy during the first half of 2000, robust expansion in Europe, and a promising, although fragile, recovery in Japan have contributed to this positive growth.

The major industrial countries are estimated to grow by 3.9%, compared to 2.9% in 1999. Positive growth is also expected in other regions of the world. During the year, economic fundamentals strengthened in most of the emerging market economies. This was aided by consolidation of the recovery in Asia where growth is expected to be 6.7% compared to 5.9% in 1999. The Latin American and the Middle Eastern economies are on the rebound and economic activity has improved in Africa.

In recent months, developments in the US economy have been of great concern internationally. Whereas US growth for the whole of 2000 amounted to 5.1%, growth slowed to 1.4% in the last quarter of 2000. Rising unemployment and the likely impact of higher oil prices are sources of great concern. The unemployment rate is expected to edge upwards to 4.4% in 2001 compared to 4% in 2000.

For the year ahead, US growth is forecasted at just 2.4%. In fact, since January 2001 the Federal Reserve has taken steps to speed up the economy by lowering the Federal Funds Rate. This rate, which now stands at 5.5%, has been lowered twice during 2001 by a one-half percentage point on each occasion. Further interest rate cuts are expected in the months ahead in an attempt to accelerate the economy.

Overall, global growth for 2001 is projected at 4.2%. This projection assumes that a prolonged US recession or financial crisis can be avoided and hence a global recession is unlikely. Other key assumptions include continued growth in the Euro region and a gradual rise in the yen against the US dollar over the medium term.

THE DOMESTIC ECONOMY

Economic growth has been fairly strong in recent years but the economy is now beginning to show signs of slowing in some sectors. Estimates suggest that real GDP growth in 2000 slowed to between 4.4% and 4.6%, down from the five-year average of 5%. In addition, unemployment seems to have stabilised at a rate of 4%.

At year-end 2000, inflation dipped to 2.3%, down from a high of 6.2% in 1999. This low level of inflation resulted despite large increases in gas prices and higher interest rates.

In terms of sectoral developments, the financial and business services sector continued to show resilient growth, but real estate, construction and tourism seem to be flattening out.

FINANCIAL AND BUSINESS SERVICES

Significant legislative changes in regard to the Monetary Authority were made during the year, which have strengthened its supervisory and regulatory ambit. This enhanced supervisory capacity will no doubt assist in the further development of the financial services industry.

Performance of the financial and business services sector remained strong in 2000. The Cayman Islands Stock Exchange continued to experience strong growth, with an increase in listings by 83.3% and market capitalisation by 66.2%. At the end of 2000, the number of listings was 385 and market capitalisation stood at US$34.9 billion.

In the banking sector, the number of bank and trust licences increased from 570 in 1999 to 580 in 2000. In addition, both the mutual funds and insurance industries remained robust. The former recorded a 32.7% increase in the number of registered funds, the largest annual increase in its history. The number of these funds rose from 2,271 in 1999 to 3,014 registered funds in 2000.

Growth in insurance licences was more modest, increasing from 529 in 1999 to 545 in 2000 or by 3%. However, gross assets increased significantly from US$12 billion to US$14.9 billion or by 24.2%.

In regard to company registration, the total number of companies shown on the register at the end of 2000 was 59,922—an increase of 17.6% over 1999. This included a 35% increase in new company registration. The growth in new company registration has been due partly to the global growth in e-commerce. In the area of shipping, gross tonnage increased during the year by 37.8%, with new vessel registration at 215,174 gross tons.

TOURISM

As initially reported, overall growth in the tourism sector improved in 2000, reflecting a 3.1% increase in air arrivals—from 394,500 to 406,600. This represents a higher growth rate than 1999 when air arrivals grew by 2.4%.

However, the new Government commissioned a survey that found that approximately 60,000 persons were incorrectly classified as tourists during 2000. As this occurrence is likely to also have occurred during 1999, further work needs to be done to correct any discrepancies.

Regarding cruise ship arrivals, there was a small decline in 2000 by 0.4%—or from 1,035,500 to 1,030,900 arrivals. This was due largely to the effect of bad weather, which diverted several ships from the Cayman Islands.

AGRICULTURE

Agriculture gained momentum in 2000 as a campaign launched last year helped to affirm the safe and healthy quality of local products sold at the Farmer's Market. The supply of local produce continues to be merited for the absence of artificial chemicals, hormones, or steroids. Turtle meat is among the items sold at the Farmer's Market and over the past year turtle production increased favourably allowing prices to remain stationary for consumers. Additionally, there was self-sufficiency in seasonal and non-seasonal crops such as mangoes and green bananas and substantial improvements have been made in the production of pork and beef.

A Motion calling for the commercial viability of the Farmer's Market was passed in 2000. This came as a result of requests from farmers for expanded facilities to market their products. The new Government is confident that the Farmer's Market with proper re-organisation will assist in reducing the dependence on imported food by providing high quality produce and meats for local consumption.

In terms of domestic agriculture production, the value of goods produced in 2000 was $1.8m (at farm gate prices), an increase of 13.4% over 1999. The largest increases were in meat and livestock produce (26%), juice (18%) and fruit (11%).

REAL ESTATE

The value of land transfers in 2000 increased by 12.1%—from $229.9m to $257.8m. This was mainly due to increases in the transfer of freehold real estate. The value of leasehold real estate, however, declined significantly from $7.4m to $0.6m.

Overall, stamp duty revenue for the year was down 11.9%—from $29.4m to $25.9m.

CONSTRUCTION

Activity in the construction sector showed a significant decline in 2000, with the total value of planning approvals falling by 20.9%—from $407.7m to $322.5m. This was caused mainly by a decline in planning applications in the “residential and apartment/condo” category. A decline in this category reflected, not only a return to the average level during the previous five years, but also a slight deterioration on account of slowing demand and rising interest rates.

Rising interest rates also had a negative impact on commercial property approvals, which fell to their lowest level in the past five years. The “hotel” category, however, benefited from roughly $75m in actual and planned investments. This includes the new Holiday Inn, Comfort Suites, Sunshine Suites, and Morrill's Grand Hotel.

DOMESTIC ECONOMIC OUTLOOK

Future domestic economic growth will depend to a large extent on what happens in the US economy over the next few months. Based on present projections, a slower rate of growth is expected in 2001 of around 3%. This compares to an estimated growth rate of 4% in 2000.

FISCAL MANAGEMENT REFORM

Mr. Speaker, since the early 1990s the Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development has worked assiduously to implement financial management reforms to support more open and accountable governance. At the initial stages of these reforms, our efforts were focused primarily on three new but interrelated initiatives:

- The development and introduction of a new on-line computerised budget information system that allowed for decentralised input by controlling officers, and the reform of the then budget preparation and implementation procedures to incorporate, among other things, departmental plans; 3-year budgeting, and performance measures.
- The introduction of standard project preparation and implementation procedures and the establishment of the Public Sector Investment Committee.

- The introduction of a computerised debt recording and management information system developed by the Commonwealth Secretariat.

Mr. Speaker, these initiatives were all supported by several years of broad-based training and were introduced primarily to underpin the planned transition from one-year financial management within an annual budgeting context to multi-year fiscal planning within a broader macroeconomic framework.

The Budget Office was retooled to become the Budget and Management Unit, and both the Economic Development Unit and the Public Sector Investment Committee were established. These efforts culminated in the production of a draft multi-year fiscal plan for the Cayman Islands entitled the “Medium Term Financial Strategy and Public Sector Investment Programme, 1994-1996.” In this regard, the following are excerpts from the 1994 Budget Speech as delivered on November 5, 1993:

“Recently, the Government has put forward a ‘Draft Medium Term Development Plan’ for 1994 through 1996 for discussion and possible adoption in early 1994. It is this type of forward looking, multi-year revolving plan that is necessary if we are to continue to improve our fiscal performance.”

The 1994 Speech went on to say, and I quote: “Prioritising projects on the Public Sector Investment Programme; using more profitable capital investment projects to fund non-revenue generating projects; introducing more revenue enhancement measures; further improving revenue collection methods; and further reductions in government spending have all been considered as valid ways of improving public sector financial performance.”

Mr. Speaker, unfortunately the 1994-1996 document was not presented to this Honourable House.

Mr. Speaker, the experience gained in the development and introduction of the on-line computerised budget preparation and implementation system highlighted the need for all of government's major resource management information systems to be integrated. The “Integrated Resource Information System” (IRIS project) was then initiated in 1996 to address this need.

By necessity, the IRIS project also later took on a Y2K readiness face. The IRIS project met the Y2K challenge and is now in its final stages of implementation. However, it is recognised that given the implementation of these new integrated information systems, on-going work will be required to ensure that the systems keep pace with the needs of our organisation.

Mr. Speaker, after having gained the reform experience of the earlier years, by the late-1990s it became more apparent that the financial management reform effort had to be moved to the next level. In order to respond to this need the new Financial Management Initiative (FMI) was introduced in 1998. In broad terms, FMI provides for a financial management system that has a more strategic focus and one that strengthens linkages between Government's priorities and resource allocation decisions. FMI will bring about greater role clarity and accountability and give more control to managers. The focus will now be on outputs and performance rather than on inputs such as personal emoluments and supplies.

Mr. Speaker, the reporting requirements that form part of the initiative will provide additional tools to promote greater openness and accountability in public sector affairs and involves three interrelated phases. These are:

- The introduction of output-based budgeting and a new Public Management and Finance Bill by 2002 that will support the new financial management framework and set out principles for responsible financial management such as borrowing limits and cash reserves.
- The introduction of accrual accounting by 2002.
- The decentralisation of financial and human resource controls within the Cayman Islands Public Service, by 2003 and beyond.

Fortuitously, the Vision 2008 document came later on and it too echoed FMI's call for greater levels of openness and accountability in Government's resource management matters. It provided FMI with a sound footing within Vision's much broader context.

FISCAL PERFORMANCE 1991-2000: A SUMMARY

Mr. Speaker, it is my view that it is through our personal experience that we learn most as individuals, and I do believe that this perspective also holds true in national affairs. As Cayman enters the new millennium, it is important for us to review our recent performance, take stock of the fiscal situation that is now before us and aim to provide attainable targets for the future.

Mr. Speaker, I turn first to the recent past. In a nutshell, the 1990s produced a mixed performance for Cayman's finances. We entered the decade at a time of slower economic growth and ended it with evidence of slowing growth in some sectors but after having experienced good growth in the middle years. The Government's finances has somewhat tracked this cycle but the situation today I would suggest remains more challenging because of a number of other factors which I will now discuss.

RECURRENT REVENUE AND RECURRENT AND STATUTORY EXPENDITURE, 1991-2000

Mr Speaker, I start with a review of the operational side of public finance.

During the period 1991-2000, recurrent revenue grew by an average annual rate of 10.5%. By comparison, recurrent and statutory expenditure grew by 10.9%. Further, recurrent revenue average annual growth during the first half of the decade (1991-1995) was 11.4% which was greater than during the second half of the decade (1996-2000), during which time it grew at 9.4%. By comparison, recurrent and statutory expenditure average annual growth during the first half of the 1990s was 9.2% which was less than the growth rate of 13.4% experienced during the second half of the decade.

In summary then, Mr. Speaker, not only did the growth in recurrent and statutory expenditure outpace the growth in recurrent revenue for the period 1991-2000, but more importantly this divergence in growth rates got larger during the latter half of the decade. Mr. Speaker, this pattern of divergence between what the country collects and what it spends on its day-to-day operations is clearly not sustainable.

Mr. Speaker, it should be noted, however, that during the first half of the 1990s the growth rate in recurrent revenue exceeded the growth rate in recurrent and statutory expenditure for the same period. This is the pattern that we need to restore if the country is to build-up general reserves and pay down debt over the medium- to long-term.

CAPITAL DEVELOPMENT EXPENDITURE AND CENTRAL GOVERNMENT DEBT, 1991-2000

Mr. Speaker, total capital expenditure (which includes capital acquisitions and capital development) for the period 1991-2000 was $279.3m. The average annual capital expenditure for that period was $27.9m. Whereas the average annual capital expenditure level for the period 1991-1995 was 17.3%, this average more than doubled to 38.5% during the second half of the decade.

Mr. Speaker this pattern of growth in capital expenditure is mirrored in the build-up of Central Government Debt for the same period, as debt has been the main source of financing for capital expenditure during the 1990s, and particularly so during the 1996-2000 period. Central Government Debt rose from $17m in 1991 to $93.7m in 2000. This represents an average annual growth rate of 20.9% for the decade. Of particular note is the average annual growth rate in Central Government Debt, which accelerated from 8.2% for the period 1990-1995 to 16% for the period 1996-2000.

Mr. Speaker, these statistics are especially important as capital expenditure (particularly Capital Development) contributes significantly to growth in Recurrent and Statutory expenditure. For example, Recurrent expenditure pays for employees' salaries and wages, utilities, supplies and so on for new buildings, and statutory expenditure pays for employees' pensions and for debt repayments. This relationship between Capital, Recurrent, and Statutory expenditure therefore helps to explain the growth rates for the latter two classes of expenditure during the period 1991-2000 as discussed previously.

Mr. Speaker, I turn now to Central Government indebtedness. The main point to note in respect of debt, however, is not so much the total value of the debt itself but it is the ability of an organisation to service debt that is more important. Mr. Speaker, successive governments have adhered to a debt service ceiling of 10% of recurrent revenue. It is important to note that in the case of our government, debt service payments are defined as including both interest and principal on Central Government Debt and Self Financing Loans.

During the period 1991-2000, the debt service ratio of Government peaked at 8.8% in 1995 from a decade low of 4.2% in 1992. At the end of 2000 our debt service ratio stood at 7.6%. I will return to this point later in the speech.

GENERAL RESERVES, ACCUMULATED SURPLUS/DEFICIT, AND OTHER FUNDS, 1991-2000

Mr. Speaker, we have had a continuing objective of building up General Reserves to 25% of Recurrent Expenditure. However, during the 1990s, a number of new 'reserve' and 'operational' funds were established and recurrent expenditure grew significantly as a single category. Mr. Speaker, I therefore suggest that a more appropriate measure would be to seek to build up the balance on all Government funds to 25% of Recurrent and Statutory expenditure.

In my view, Mr. Speaker, this measure will provide a more complete picture. This new measure would capture not only the General Reserve Fund, but other funds such as the Surplus and Deficit Account, the National Disaster Fund, the Infrastructure Development Fund, and so on. In addition, this measure would also rightly capture Statutory expenditure.

During the 1990s, this 'reserve ratio' peaked at a positive 15.5% [10.5%] in 1991 and fell to negative 4.6% [positive 2.2%] by year-end 2000 which in itself represented a swing from a positive 10.9% [10.6%] only a year before in 1999 [1998].

FISCAL YEAR 2000 OUTTURN

Mr. Speaker, as at December 31, 2000, the unaudited Accumulated Deficit was $10.7m. Net Cash was $14m overdrawn in the Treasury's cashbook. Honourable Members will recall that the approved overdraft limit for the Treasury's cashbook is $15m or approximately 17 days' recurrent, statutory & capital acquisitions expenditure.

The General Reserves were approximately $10.2m after the transfer of $5.8m out of the Fund to help reduce the deficit on the Accumulated Surplus/Deficit Account. Other 'reserve fund' year-end balances include the Government Guaranteed Housing Reserve Fund $1m, the Government Guaranteed Student Loan Reserve Fund $0.2m, and the National Disaster Reserve Fund $0.8m.

The Capital Development Fund had a balance of $3.6m. All Capital Development Fund loans were drawn down by December 31, 2000 and these funds form part of the $3.6m balance. Other 'operational' fund balances include the Environmental Protection Fund $1.3m, the Infrastructure Development Fund $7,000 and a nil balance on the Road Development Fund.

RECURRENT REVENUE AND TRANSFERS

Recurrent Revenue and Transfers was $283.7m, down $28m, as compared to the 2000 Budget of $311.7m. Recurrent Revenue exceeded the 2000 Budget in the following main areas: loans/interest $1m, and miscellaneous revenue $3.0m, which was mainly the result of an insurance settlement. Recurrent Revenue was less than the 2000 Budget in the following main areas: duty $18.2m, taxes $2.4m, licenses $5.8m, sales $1.6m, fees $6.4m, rentals/leases $1.8m and contributions $1.1m.

RECURRENT AND STATUTORY EXPENDITURE

Honourable Members should note that the references to the 2000 Budget expenditure figures in this section of the speech include supplementaries and virements, hence the references to the "modified 2000 Budget."

Recurrent and Statutory expenditure was $284m as compared to the modified 2000 Budget of $305.9m, down $21.9m. This $284m amount excludes budgeted and actual payments to various 'reserve' funds, totalling $1.7m.

Statutory expenditure exceeded the modified 2000 Budget by $1.5m. The recurrent expenditure was less than the modified 2000 Budget in the following main areas: personal emoluments $5.6m, supplies and materials $2.3m, utilities $1.3m, other operational and maintenance services $5.7m, grants, contributions and subsidies $3.1m, loans $1.1m, and insurance $3.1m.

OTHER OUTFLOWS

Capital acquisition expenditure was $4.7m as compared to the modified 2000 Budget of $6.2m. Contribution to the Capital Development Fund was equivalent to the modified 2000 Budget of $12.4m. Capital Development Fund expenditure was $38.5m as compared to the modified 2000 Budget of $48m.

OTHER INFLOWS

Environmental Protection Fund receipts were $3.3m as compared to the 2000 Budget of $3m, Infrastructure Development Fund receipts were $2.6m as compared to the 2000 Budget of $3.2m. Road Development Fund receipts were $1.6m as compared to the 2000 Budget of $2.2m.

ACCUMULATED SURPLUS/DEFICIT ACCOUNT AS AT DECEMBER 31, 2000

Mr. Speaker, the un-audited deficit on the year 2000 is $19.1m, up $4.3m as compared to the modified year 2000 Budget deficit of $14.8m. Taken together with the Accumulated Surplus of $8.4m brought forward from 1999, this produced an un-audited accumulated deficit of $10.7m, which is up $3m as compared to the modified 2000 Budget accumulated deficit of $7.7m.

Honourable Members should note that this $10.7m accumulated deficit does not take into account any of the un-audited $17.2m in 'overseas medical advances' outstanding as at December 31, 2000. (Their full treatment would have required either their write-off or conversion to a loan).

Mr. Speaker, there are 3 main items totalling $22.3m arising from fiscal year 2000 that require special consideration. These are as follows:

- the clearance of the 2000 brought forward accumulated deficit of $10.7m and its associated overdraft of $14.0m;
- the clearance of $5.6m in outstanding payments due to suppliers and others as at year-end 2000; and
- the payment of a $6m retroactive cost of living adjustment to government employees to cover the period January-October, 2000. The cost of living commitment is being paid in two equal installments along with the February and March 2001 pay cheques.

Mr. Speaker, these three items, when combined with the fiscal performance trend of the past decade and a slowing economy, have created major obstacles to achieving a balanced 2001 Budget. Given this situation, the level of consultation on the 2001 Budget within the public service has been extensive and far-reaching. A number of significant policy decisions were required to be taken by the government in order to produce a realistic budget.

MAIN 2001 BUDGET POLICY DECISIONS

Mr. Speaker, I now turn to a brief explanation of each of the main policies that underpin the Draft 2001 Budget. These policies include:

- Curtailing all new services except for new staff at the Bodden Town, Savannah, George Town, John A. Cumber, and Red Bay Primary and Lighthouse schools and staff for the Family Protection Unit and the Financial Reporting Unit.
- Holding the 2001 recurrent expenditure to the global 2000 actual figure at the Ministry or Portfolio level. Honourable Members are asked to note that whilst this was the general guiding policy there are notable exceptions. For example, education and human resource development received top priority and was not fully subjected to this general policy. However, this policy was fully applied in the case of the 'Official Travel' expenditure, which has been held at the 2000 actual level.

Continuing with the policy guidelines:

- Holding the 2001 capital acquisitions budget at the global 2000 actual level and financing this expenditure from borrowing.
- Holding the 2001 capital development budget to $28.2m and funding this expenditure through a combination of borrowing of $24.6m and by using the brought forward balance of $3.6m on the Capital Development Fund.
- Removing all restrictions on virements within a recurrent expenditure head.
- Implementing financial incentives to employees to increase recurrent revenue and/or reduce recurrent expenditure below the approved 2001 Budget.
- Limiting the leasing of new office accommodation in 2001 to that needed to house the Family Protection Unit, the Schools' Inspectorate, the Human Resources Unit, and the Financial Reporting Unit.
- Developing drawings to construct new government-owned office accommodation on Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac and finance the necessary preparatory work from the Capital Development Fund.
- Ensuring the correct usage of all future contingency warrants consistent with section 22 of the Public Finance and Audit Law.
- Implementing an 'offsetting policy' that involves the attachment of a specific revenue measure to any proposed recurrent expenditure item that exceeds $1m per annum.

For example, the Seamen's Grant has generated an extra $4.1m in 2001 expenditure with no revenue identified to offset it. This 'offsetting principle' has been applied to new 2001 expenditure relating to the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture, the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority, the Financial Reporting Unit, the Family Protection Unit, and The Secretariat.

Continuing with policy guidelines:

- Implementing a debt re-structuring package with a view to reducing the annual debt costs.
- Deferring the commencement of the payment of Year 2000 cost of living adjustment from January 2001 to January 2002.
- Holding the 2002 and 2003 recurrent expenditure and capital acquisitions expenditure at or near their 2000 levels.
- Removing the amounts for vacant posts from the 2001 Budget except where recruitment is already actively underway.

- Implementing a moratorium on the creation of new posts for the remainder of 2001 except for absolutely 'essential services' staff for new capital projects and new leased sites which come on stream in 2001 and where there are direct revenue or expenditure blocking offsets.
- Implementing a moratorium on recruitment for the remainder of 2001 except for absolutely 'essential services' or where there are direct revenue or expenditure blocking offsets.

Mr. Speaker, the Draft 2001 Budget which I am about to present for consideration has been shaped in the main by these policies.

2001 BUDGET

Mr. Speaker, the Government holds the firm view that greater emphasis must be placed on presenting attainable budgets in this House and to this country. As such, the 2001 Budget is being presented in a medium-term context and in a way that more realistically reflects Government's current and projected financial position.

Mr. Speaker, the total 2001 Budget is $360.3m broken down into total Recurrent Expenditure ($276.5m), Statutory Expenditure ($50.1m), New Services ($0.8m), Capital Acquisitions Expenditure ($4.7m) and Capital Development Expenditure ($28.2m).

The 2001 Budget is to be financed by: Recurrent Revenue ($311.9m); General Revenue Fund borrowing ($26.2m); Capital Acquisitions borrowing ($4.7m); Capital Development Fund borrowing ($24.6m); and the brought forward balance on the Capital Development Fund ($3.6m).

Mr. Speaker, the proposal to borrow $26.2 million for the General Revenue Fund was a difficult one to make. This proposal, however, is in the main related to the three items totalling $22.3m from the year 2000, which were discussed previously. The choice here was whether or not to continue the use of overdraft financing or seek to borrow over the medium term. The latter option was considered to be more prudent as it would allow for more effective financial management.

REVENUE MEASURES

Mr. Speaker, these are indeed challenging days for public finances at a time when the demand for public services continues to increase steadily. Against this backdrop the Government is very much aware of the potential impact that the national budget has on the domestic economy. In proposing any measure, the Government has to take into full consideration the availability of public revenues, public expenditure growth, and other fiscal measures that are required to promote sustainable economic growth whilst providing revenue to fund much needed public services.

Mr. Speaker, in addition to the expenditure control policies that have been implemented and which were discussed previously, the Government has identified revenue measures for the year 2001 totalling $19.9m. This amount represents 12 months' collection on the Health Insurance Fund and Room Tax ($4.3m), nine months' collection on import duty ($9m), and seven months' collection on the other items ($6.5m). A full year's collection on all items is estimated at $27.4m, based on the 2000 collection patterns.

These measures include new fees ($9.3m), fee increases in existing categories ($5.6m), and the streamlining of existing fee assessment and collection procedures ($5m). Included in the new fees are proposals to re-introduce import duty on some bakery products, excluding bread, and some foodstuff. The import duty lost from these areas is currently estimated at $10m to $12m per annum. Mr. Speaker, this was an extremely difficult proposal for the Government to put forward, but these funds are badly needed to help finance education and human resource development, health care, and social welfare programs.

Mr. Speaker, Honourable Members are asked to note that there has been significant consultation with the Private Sector Consultative Committee on these proposals. The Government expects that these measures will help to address deficiencies in the revenue side, which has contributed to the divergence between what the country collects and what it spends on public services. More will be said about these items when I present the various pieces of legislation that are required to effect the measures.

For now, Mr. Speaker, the proposed revenue measures and the incremental amounts expected from each category for the Year 2001 are as follows:

|                                     |             |
|-------------------------------------|-------------|
| Financial services fees             | $1,845,037 |
| Professional licensing fees         | 65,000      |
| Vehicle licensing unit fees         | 629,942     |
| Environmental health fees           | 215,886     |
| Spear-gun licenses                  | 11,667      |
| Law school fees                     | 13,400      |
| Postal fees                         | 864,063     |
| Customs warehouse fee & package tax | 1,629,450   |
| MRCU fees                           | 56,951      |
| Stamp duty on debit transactions    | 1,166,667   |

Customs Duty

|                                           |              |
|-------------------------------------------|--------------|
| Some bakery products (excluding bread)    | 5,250,000    |
| Water                                     | 318,750      |
| Ornamental plants                         | 375,000      |
| Some foodstuff                            | 1,200,000    |
| Personal watercraft for pleasure or sport | 262,500      |
| Timeshare fee                             | 700,000      |
| Infrastructure fee                        | 641,666      |
| Health insurance fund                     | 4,300,000    |
| Land holding companies – stamp duty       | 70,000       |
| Hotel/condo/guest house/room tax          | 79,875       |
| Various administrative fees               | 186,871      |
| Total:                                    | $19,882,725 |

Mr. Speaker, the Government is pleased to announce the appointment of a Fiscal Advisory Group under the chairmanship of Mr. Robert Bodden. This Group has been commissioned to make recommendations to Executive Council on public expenditure and revenue matters. These recommendations are expected within the next three months.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House more details of these revenue measures.

IMMEDIATE MEASURES

Mr. Speaker, the 2001 Budget is not likely to be approved until April/May 2001. In the interim, it is necessary to provide funds to facilitate the smooth functioning of public services. Accordingly, the Government intends to introduce to this Honourable House a Motion for Advance Expenditure to cover the 2001 Second Quarter. It is also necessary to present a Motion to effect the proposed 2001 import fees.

It has been mentioned as you will note in the Budget Address that both of these Motions will be presented today. However, only the one dealing with the import customs duty will be presented today. The one dealing with the advance expenditure will be presented during the course of next week.

CONCLUSION

Mr. Speaker, the 2001 Budget is more about what is absolutely necessary at this point in time to maintain an acceptable level of public services rather than about choice. It is immediately imperative for our country to more closely manage public expenditure growth without hampering the delivery of much needed public services while at the same time seeking to generate extra revenue. These have to be done in such way as to not stymie economic growth.

The 2001 Budget is a first step in this direction. The Medium Term Financial Strategy, which will be delivered shortly, will pick up from the point where the 2001 Budget leaves off and provide a medium term focus to our fiscal affairs.

Mr. Speaker, a time of difficulty can be viewed in two possible ways—as a time of danger or as a time of opportunity. The Government views the current situation as a time of opportunity: an opportunity to correct fundamental challenges in public finance, an opportunity to encourage innovation in the provision of public services and an opportunity to set the stage for meaningful economic opportunities for all Caymanians in particular, and all residents in general.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, I am honoured to recommend to this Honourable House the Appropriations Bill 2001 in the amount of $310.2m. This does not include statutory expenditure which amounts to $50.1m.

Mr. Speaker, I seek the indulgence of all Honourable Members to allow the distribution of a better formatted Draft 2001 Budget later in this meeting. This will allow the necessary time for formatting and printing. In the interim, a working document has been provided to all Members along with the Appropriations Bill 2001.

I wish to record my sincere thanks to all persons inside and outside the public service for their assistance and encouragement in the preparation of the 2001 Budget.

In particular I would like to thank the Deputy Financial Secretary and his staff within the Budget and Management Services Unit, and also within the Administration Office.

Thank you.

The Speaker: [microphone not turned on] The question before this Honourable House is that the Appropriation Bill 2001 be given a second reading. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE APPROPRIATION BILL 2001 GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Moving on to Motions. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 2/01

THE CUSTOMS LAW (1998 REVISION)

THE CUSTOMS TARIFF LAW (1999 REVISION)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move Government Motion No. 2/01 to give effect to the changes within the Customs Tariff Law. The narrative reads:

“IN ACCORDANCE with Standing Order 69, and pursuant to section 74 of the Customs Law (1998 Revision) the following resolution is moved:

“BE IT RESOLVED this day by the Legislative Assembly under the power conferred upon it by section 74 of the Customs Law (1998 Revision):

“THAT the following exemptions from, and variations of rates of, customs duty, and new charges of customs duty under the first and second schedule to the Customs Tariff Law (1999 Revision) be made:

| CODENUM-BER | HEADING                               | DUTY | NEWDUTY |
|---------------------|---------------------------------------|------|-------------|
| 04.03               | Flavoured milk, yoghurt and ice cream | Free | 20%         |

| CODE NUMBER | HEADING                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | DUTY | NEW DUTY |
|-------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|----------|
| 04.31       | Birds' eggs and egg yokes, fresh, dried or otherwise preserved                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Free | 15%      |
| 06.02       | Other live plants (including ornamental plants for landscaping or decoration whether bearing flowers or not)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Free | 20%      |
| 08.01       | Fruit, fresh, chilled or frozen. but not further prepared                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Free | 15%      |
| 19.05       | Bread loaves whole or sliced                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Free | Free     |
| 19.21       | Bakery products including biscuits, rolls, buns and similar products but excluding products under Code Number 19.05                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Free | 20%      |
| 22.01       | Purified, desalinated and natural waters, other than aerated waters                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Free | 20%      |
| 88.01       | All boats for local use, whether sailing from abroad under own power or not, and whether registered or not, but excluding oceangoing vessels in the Islands temporarily (subject to the discretion of the Collector of Customs acting in accordance with section 19 of the Customs Law (1998 Revision)-                                                                        |      |          |
|             | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ under 18 feet, other than jet skis, wave runners, rowboats, canoes, personal watercraft, kayaks, and rafts</li> <li>▪ between 18 feet and 35 feet</li> <li>▪ over 35 feet</li> <li>▪ Jet skis, wave runners, rowing boats, canoes, personal watercraft, kayaks, rafts and other boats or floating structures under 18 feet</li> </ul> | Free | Free     |
|             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 10%  | 10%      |
|             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 5%   | 5%       |
|             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Free | 20%      |

“AND THAT it is hereby declared that it is expedient in the public interest that this resolution shall have statutory effect under the provisions of the Customs Law (1998 Revision).”

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question before this Honourable House is that in accordance with Standing Order 69, which reads,

“69. Any Member of the Government may, without notice, make a motion for giving provisional statutory effect to any proposals in pursuance of section 74 of the Customs Law (1998); and the question on such a motion shall be put forthwith.”

I shall now put the question: Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES and NOES.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can we have a division Mr. Speaker?

The Speaker: Certainly.

Madam Clerk, will you please call a division?

The Clerk:

DIVISION NO. 2/01

AYES: 12

Hon. James M. Ryan
 Hon. David Ballantyne
 Hon. George A. McCarthy
 Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts
 Hon. W. McKeever Bush
 Hon. Roy Bodden
 Hon. Edna M. Moyle
 Mr. Rolston Anglin
 Capt. Eugene Ebanks
 Mr. Cline Glidden Jr.
 Mr. Alden McLaughlin
 Mr. Arden McLean

NOES: 5

Dr. Frank S. McField
 Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
 Mr. Anthony Eden
 Mrs. O'Connor-Connolly
 Mr. Lyndon Martin

ABSENT: 1

Hon. Linford A. Pierson

The Speaker: The result of the division is 12 Ayes, 5 Noes, 1 Absent. The Motion has passed.

AGREED BY MAJORITY: GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 2/01 PASSED.

The Speaker: Motion for the deferral of debate.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

MOTION FOR DEFERRAL OF DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I move that the debate on the second reading of the Appropriation Bill 2001 (the Budget Address) be deferred until Monday, 26 March, 2001, and that the Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday, 9 March 2001, and the Budget Address be debated simultaneously. Thank you.

The Speaker: The question before this Honourable House is that debate on the Appropriation Bill 2001 (the Budget Address) be deferred until Monday, 26 March, 2001, and that the Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday, 9 March 2001, and the Budget Address be debated simultaneously.

I shall now put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: DEBATE ON THE APPROPRIATION BILL 2001 DEFERRED UNTIL MONDAY, 26 MARCH, 2001, AND THAT THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR ON FRIDAY, 9 MARCH 2001, AND THE BUDGET ADDRESS BE DEBATED SIMULTANEOUSLY.

The Speaker: That concludes the business on the Order Paper for today. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 am tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until tomorrow, 22 March, at 10 am. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 1.40 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 AM THURSDAY, 22 MARCH 2001.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
THURSDAY
22 MARCH 2001
10.33 AM
Seventh Sitting

[Prayers read by the Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Speaker: I have apologies from the Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology who is overseas on medical purposes.

Moving on to item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Ministers and Members of Government. Question number 26 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for East End.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MINISTERS AND MEMBERS

QUESTION NO. 26

No. 26: Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communication and Works if this Government supports a Freedom of Information Act/Law or if it has any intention of putting one in place.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Government most definitely supports the enactment of legislation, and the institution of the necessary administrative and regulatory systems, to provide for greater freedom of public access to information.

The Government intends to adopt a plan and timetable for the implementation of the necessary legislative, administrative and regulatory systems by mid year.

The Speaker: Supplementaries. Are there any supplementaries?

No supplementaries?

We will move on to Question No. 27 standing in the name of the Elected Member for East End.

QUESTION NO. 27

NO. 27: Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communication and Works what is the official policy of the Department of Agriculture and/or the Agricultural Society on the spraying of diseased trees, especially if persons in need of such vital service are not members of the Society.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Department of Agriculture operates the National Tree Crop Husbandry Programme which is an holistic programme designed to provide technical advice and assistance to registered and bona fide farmers in the management of their commercial fruit tree orchards. The advice includes all aspects of tree crop husbandry including fertilizer recommendations, pest identification and control, harvesting, post harvest handling, et cetera. Physical assistance, namely, pruning and pesticide application to the crops also form part of the programme. The overall goal of the programme is to improve productivity and fruit quality, thereby increasing profitability.

Perhaps the best known component of this programme is the management and control of pest infestations and/or disease infections on trees owned by qualifying farmers.

When chemical control is deemed necessary, the affected trees are sprayed provided that such applications of pesticides meet all the safety criteria that protect the client, neighbouring properties, the applicators and the environment.

My Ministry is not aware of any policy or programme of the Agriculture Society that addresses the spraying of diseased trees.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: In the substantive answer the Minister did not give any indication about persons other than the bona fide farmers. I wonder if the Minister could tell us if this same service is provided to those people: particularly, private citizens who have fruit trees right in their yards?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, the answer speaks to registered and bona fide farmers. For purposes of clarity perhaps the Member will understand that when we talk about bona fide farmers they would be different from the registered farmers. But bona fide farmers are those he refers to as private citizens.

So, to extend the question by way of clarity, registered and bona fide farmers who grow a minimum of ten fruit trees for commercial production are the people outside of the registered farmers who qualify. If everyone having one or two fruit trees were to be serviced by the department, the staff would probably have to triple. It is really not a viable situation when you have the quantity of fruit trees being less than the 10 that are specified. The line had to be drawn somewhere.

I am not saying it would be a burden, all I am saying is that both human resources and equipment would have to be multiplied times over again and it is for that reason why that level is where it is at. They try to service anyone with ten fruit trees or more, as best they can.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Minister advise the House if this service is provided free of cost to the registered farmers and the bona fide farmers?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: This was being done for some time, but I believe it was two years ago when the costs were added up and it was obvious that it was prohibitive to deal with the operation like that anymore, charges were levelled. But the charges are very reasonable.

I cannot give a schedule of exactly what those charges are, but from firsthand experience I have an orchard (if you wish to call it that), and it takes them about an hour to spray my fruit trees when they come. It costs something like $50 or $60 to do.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I have some knowledge of the programme that the Minister refers to in his answer. I have had opportunity to speak with a well-informed and quite pleasant man, Mr. Small, who, I think sees about this particular management programme. I am wondering if the Minister has any plans, or if he would consider as part of a policy—since the expertise is in place within the department—to develop that unit so that it may serve persons with less than the present standard of 10 plants. I am not aware of any private operation that is doing this kind of thing.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, to the best of my knowledge there were two entities doing that type of spraying in the private sector—commercial entities. In having talks with the Department so that those entities knew what level the department was able to service and those businesses were put in place to cater to these smaller groups that the Member is talking about.

As I said before, it is certainly not the intention of the Department to be unable to service the needs of the community. But as a matter of viability and feasibility it was just very difficult to be able to service island-wide (including Cayman Brac) those people who have that small quantity. The private enterprise was supposed to trip in to take care of that.

If the Member wishes for me to ask the Department to look into the situation again to see if there can be any other arrangements that are satisfactory but not too cost prohibitive, I do not have a problem with that.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I would appreciate the Minister looking into the matter. I am not thinking of it as being free of cost because such an operation does have cost; it is having the service available is the way I am thinking.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Mr. Speaker, the Minister referred in his last answer to the Sister Islands. Could he add for clarity if the full husbandry programme is available to the registered and bona fide farmers in the Sister Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I cannot say what level of service is provided. I can only say that it is part and parcel of the bigger picture when the feasibility was looked into and I can certainly get that answer and provide it to the Member. In doing so I will also take that into consideration when I speak to the Department about the same question that the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town asked. I would tie the two of them together and give both of them the answers with that.

The Speaker: The Elected Member of East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, we need to ensure that farmers who are not registered or considered bona fide do not have diseased trees because if the disease is contagious it can certainly spread throughout the rest of them.

I wonder if the Minister can say if in his commitment that he just gave to consult with the Department, if they can also look at the amount of monies being charged for the services because I believe there is the possibility of it being profitable for the Department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I cannot answer the question because it is fairly vague. If the Member would clarify what he means by looking into the prices—whether he means about looking into the prices with a view to make the charges more for it to be profitable or not. Is that what the Member means?

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End would you clarify your question, please?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Yes, Mr. Speaker, that is what I meant because in one of his previous answers to a supplementary he said that when the department came to his place it took about an hour to spray his fruit trees and cost around $50. That amount does not seem reasonable enough for the use of pesticides for one hour and also to cover the cost of having department members come to peoples' farms.

The Speaker: Can you answer that, Honourable Minister for Planning, Communication and Works?

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, let me see if I can tie the answer in satisfactorily for the Member.

First of all, when the programme came into place and the minimum level of fruit trees were decided, the Department decided at that time to handle the situation in consultation with private enterprise (who are doing the same thing on a commercial basis), and have training sessions for anyone interested in the effective use of these pesticides. They are also available to give free advice to individuals or groups with regards to the most effective ways to use these pesticides on their fruit trees. Also, they sell the relevant pesticides to individuals to use.

Now, the philosophy of the whole thing—if we simply provide a service and we want just the Department of Agriculture to do so, then the philosophy will have to change. The Department's conscious decision, giving all of the advice that I spoke about free and everything else, is that they should gear themselves to be able to do this level of service.

For me personally, just hearing the discussions between us this morning I am not convinced that we should simply seek to provide the service that we are talking about to those people with less than ten fruit trees through the Department. It is much like every other service that Government provides and understanding that this Government, meaning the Cayman Islands Government, is with a philosophy of providing services, certainly there are acceptable levels and beyond that private enterprises can trip in.

It is another question again when we have private enterprises performing these functions and the Department of Agriculture goes out to compete with them so it is not really cut and dried to look at the argument in one direction. I trust the Member is satisfied with the answer.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?

No further supplementaries, we will move on to Question No. 28 standing in the name of Elected Member for East End.

QUESTION NO. 28

NO. 28: Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications and Works what steps have been, or are being taken to bring the Cayman Islands into the modern postal/communication world by means of the introduction of an internationally approved zip code.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Currently, no plans exist to introduce an internationally approved zip code in the Cayman Islands. To do so would involve costs of research, division of postal zones and automated sorting equipment at the Offices of Exchange in Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac. Mail is presently sorted by suffix and post box number. For example, PO Box 3232GT correctly identifies Post Box number 3232 in the district of George Town. Implementation of a zip code for the small Cayman Islands is not seen as a priority. Zip codes are not universal.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I noticed the Minister's last sentence that zip codes are not universal. I wonder then how come a lot of the mail sent from other places in the world wind up in Georgetown, Guyana?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The fact that some pieces of mail end up in Georgetown, Guyana, from other places in the world does not speak to the fact that zip codes are universal.

Not wanting to get into an exchange that is not going to make any sense, the fact of the matter is: While one would probably say that it would be good if this were the case, looking at the situation in the Cayman Islands – and while I accept the instance that the Member spoke about is one that will happen on occasion – at this time it still does not justify going that route for the Cayman Islands: simply because of size and what it would take to integrate the postal system in the Cayman Islands to that level. The end result is a good one but what one would have to go through as an exercise to get to that level at this time it is my understanding that the people who operate the system are not satisfied that it is at the level to justify going that route.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries?
The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, would the Minister explore the matter further with the other persons in the postal services if for no more than the reason where if one goes on the internet and you are giving an address within the Cayman Islands there is always a place for zip codes. You virtually cannot give a zip code and you keep going back and forth.

Someone quite versed in the business of the internet tells me that sometimes if you put in B.W.I it will accept it as a zip code. There seems to be a problem in that regard so maybe there is another answer near to having a zip code or whatever but if he would explore it a bit further from that perspective.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, so that none of us are vague about it and understanding the concerns of both the Member from East End and the Second Elected Member from Bodden Town, what I will do then is to ask the people who operate the service to put in writing a cost benefit analysis of what it would take to get to that level and what it would take by way of charges to make the whole operation self-sufficient that it is not subsidised. Perhaps then we can make a policy decision at that point in time and I will undertake to do that.

I think both Members should be satisfied with that.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning.

Moving on to item number 4, Statements by Ministers/Members of Government. A statement by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

STATEMENT BY HONOURABLE MINISTERS/MEMBERS OF GOVERNMENT

NATIONAL YOUTH POLICY

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, and Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly, even though the subject of youth violence is something I would prefer not to be speaking about, I am pleased to be able to say that Government understands the need for immediate action to address this destructive and deadly social ill.

Honourable Members will recall that the National Youth Policy was approved in Executive Council in September 2000 and consequently tabled in the Legislative Assembly. The policy is a document that has been formulated through input by more than 1,500 voices from our islands.

Using a consultative method, this document chronicles the conditions, needs, aspiration, and concerns of a wide cross section of the youth of the Cayman Islands.

Within the National Youth Policy, ten goals have been identified. I would crave your indulgence to allow me to draw your attention to goal one, which states:

1. Young people embracing healthy lifestyles free of acts of violence. The objectives are as follows:
  - To heighten the awareness of young men and women of the consequences of violent behaviour
  - To educate young women and men on the physical, psychological, social and emotional health issues related to youth violence.
  - To develop and promote programmes aimed at providing amicably and friendly ways to resolving conflicts.
  - To discourage the occurrence of organised antisocial activities, example: gangs.
  - To further develop punitive and rehabilitative measures to deal with young offenders.
  - To strive to eliminate the availability of illegal firearms and other offensive weapons.

The National Youth Policy calls for the establishment of a National Youth Commission. This Commission, it is envisaged, will be an independent body made up of members of the NYP Taskforce, representatives of the Cayman Islands' Youth Assembly, the religious community, the business community, educators, social workers and other Government and non-government providers of services to our young people. Its primary responsibility will be to monitor the implementation of the NYP and to advocate for youth issues to be addressed in all other relevant policies.

Subsumed under this National Youth Commission will be several committees. The National Youth Commission will be empowered to co-opt people to serve on these committees to address the specific goals and objectives of the National Youth Policy.

In the current situation, the National Youth Commission will focus on: Goal 1: Young People Embracing Healthy Lifestyles Free of Acts of Violence.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that there should be a committee of inquiry and it should be an active research "arm" of the National Youth Commission. Its primary function being to address current affairs that are youth-related on a national level. I envisage the immediate mission of this Committee will be to determine the causes of youth violence and to propose preventative and rehabilitative measures.

The majority of youth in these Islands are well adjusted and productive young women and young men. We must continue to take active measures to reduce the numbers of youth who are simply not realising their full potential. The National Youth Commission and the Committee of Inquiry is therefore acutely needed in the Cayman Islands at this time.

Over the past few weeks, Government, specifically the Elected Ministers, Permanent Secretaries and Heads of Departments, have been frequently meeting to brainstorm potential courses of action to combat youth violence. It is anticipated that these ideas will be made available to the Committee of Inquiry to be set up under a Government Motion to be brought before Parliament for possible inclusion in its recommendations should it see fit. This type of preparatory work will assist the Committee with a timely task completion.

Government also intends to ensure that there is an administrative secretariat office space and at least two highly qualified and experienced youth workers to be resource people. As the Minister responsible for education has stated, Dr. Frank S. McField will be the Chairman of the Committee. Government understands that we need action and also understands that knee-jerk reaction is best avoided. We will not have an easy task but through unity and commitment and intelligence we will, God willing, overcome this horrific problem.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Moving on to item number 5 on today's Order Paper, Other Business, Private Members' Motions, Private Member's Motion No. 2/01 entitled the Establishment of a Select Committee to Review Caymanian Owned Businesses to be moved by the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/01

ESTABLISHMENT OF A SELECT COMMITTEE TO REVIEW CAYMANIAN OWNED BUSINESSES

Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 2/01 standing in my name, which reads as follows:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable Legislative Assembly appoints a Select Committee of the whole House to determine which businesses should be restricted to 100 per cent Caymanian ownership and to recommend any necessary amendments to relevant legislation to protect and reserve these businesses for Caymanians only; and that any amending legislation be introduced within a one year timeframe."

The Speaker: Do we have a Seconder?
The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 2/01 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Mover wish to speak to it?

The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I want to start by saying that this Motion is only meant as an attempt to level the playing field for Caymanians in small businesses. Let me clearly state up front that this Motion does not in any way attempt to control all businesses. And, this Motion also does not intend to be anti-foreigner, nor does it attempt to stop any Caymanian from selling his business.

Mr. Speaker, there was a time not so long ago when the Cayman Islands were the very survival depended on foreign capital and expertise that was not available locally. We are grateful to our forefathers who made sure that our country was established in such a way to encourage the foreign capital and expertise that was necessary to build our wonderful Cayman Islands. But the time has come when we are now at a much different stage in our development. The time when we have to encourage and support entrepreneurship within our Caymanian people.

As sensible and responsible legislators, we all recognise the necessity of foreign investment and keeping the economic and financial wheels of this Country running. Foreign investments have created one of the highest standards of living in any place in the world for our residents and we will continue to welcome foreign investments and foreign investors in this Country. But, Mr. Speaker, because it is hard for small Caymanian owned businesses to compete with the large foreign owned businesses with which they are sometimes forced to compete. I do not think that it is wrong for me as a representative of the people to call on Government to consider putting in place measures and policies to promote or protect the local interest of Caymanians. Even the Good Book tells us that any man who does not look out for his own household is an infidel.

We all know that the Cayman Islands has been a place where Caymanians, regardless of what rung of society they may find themselves in, were always able to make an honest decent living in this Country. I believe that once Caymanians can continue to do that they will not feel too threatened or too concerned about the number of people who come here as visitors, or those here on work permits to fill jobs that Caymanians are not presently capable or available to fill. But we have to ensure that Caymanians continue to share in the success that we have in this Country.

We have many ambitious Caymanians who can provide a lot of the products and services, but they need a little assistance, protection and support to get started in these businesses. I know that sometimes in Cayman we have an underlying feeling that foreign things are better, but there are many cases to support that this is not always the case. Especially at this time what is going on in the UK with the provision of local beef with the current outbreak of Foot and Mouth Disease, is but one of those situations.

Another area that comes to mind is the Tourism industry. I know I am safe in saying that there is nobody in the world that can provide a better land and sea tour in the Cayman Islands than a Caymanian. They have always been known for their seafaring success and over the years they became known as some of the world's best seamen. They sailed the seven seas on merchant ships and turtle schooners and sent home their money to help build this Country. But then, Mr. Speaker, some of our Caymanians in a good old entrepreneurial spirit decided that they would try to make a living from the sea without leaving the Cayman Islands. These men, such as: Capt. Ertis Ebanks, Capt. Crosby Ebanks, Capt. Gleason, Capt. Marvin, Capt. Frank Ebanks and others, were pioneers in the watersports and charter fishing industry.

These were the men who were responsible for creating the big tourist attraction that we have today known as Stingray City. In the early days these men were able to earn an honest decent living in this industry and our visitors enjoyed real Caymanian hospitality. But over the years the watersports industry/dive industry has grown to where the Cayman Islands today now boast of being one of the top destinations in the world, and the watersports industry is now big business. As a result, large foreign investors have seen the opportunity and they have come in, through the assistance in some cases of Caymanian partners who get a piece of the action and have attempted to control all the business. And, in the process, have hurt many small Caymanians who are finding very difficult to continue to earn a decent honest living in this industry today.

Mr. Speaker, because this business is not largely capital intensive in today's standards, we have many Caymanians who could go to the bank and buy a bus or a boat and provide a high quality land or sea tour. But right now as that atmosphere stands they are not willing to take the chance to get committed to one of our lending institutions because of the lack of stability in the industry.

The reason why the industry is unstable—for clarity of my point I will use a hypothetical example including figures—let us say ten Caymanians decide to go into the tour business. To start off, they will do a business plan based on the availability of customers and the market price of these tours. Let us say they need $60,000 to buy a bus and a boat to start their own business. They calculate that the repayment to the bank will be around $1,500 per month and they will need around $4,500, including expenses, to provide a living for their families—the desire of all hard-working Caymanians. However, it means that they need to make $6,000 per month to make their business work. So, they look at the market and figure out that their land and sea tours can be sold for $35 per person, and that they need around nine customers per day to survive. And then they figure, 'Well, if we are getting around 6,000 tourists per day and even if only 50% of those are going on a tour, then it should not be too much of a problem getting the required nine people to make the business work'.

So, the Caymanians go out and they borrow the money and they purchase their buses and boats, and they are in business. Everything is going good; business is booming. Each of them has around the same expenses and the same capacity, and they are doing well. Then, Mr. Speaker, as happens in Cayman quite often, a foreign investor decides that he wants to get into the business so he gets a Caymanian partner or an LCCL, and he goes out and buys ten boats and ten buses that each carry 100 people with cash that he already has. Now because he is dealing with volume and he is not paying interest on the loan to the bank, he can drop the prices in half to get the business.

Now the whole market has changed and the local operators who had done their projections on $35 for nine passengers per day now need 18 passengers to survive because the market price is only $17. When that happens, we get what is going on now: a war at the docks. Everybody fighting for survival and banks foreclosing on the local business man.

The large foreign control business even though a lot of them are 60% owned on paper by some Caymanians have tremendous advantages compared to the small Caymanian who is in business. They have the cruise ship contacts, the contacts with the big wholesalers overseas, they have contacts at the hotels and condominiums locally, and as a result, they are able to sew-up the business at the expense of Caymanians. It has gotten so bad that some hotels even refuse to allow the local Caymanian operators the privilege of displaying their brochures in their lobby. So the odds are against Caymanians at the present time in the watersports industry.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I have used this example to show how an industry, founded by Caymanians, and which could very well be serviced entirely by Caymanians, is being dominated by foreign-owned business. I know that this same situation exists in many other businesses as well. That is why, Mr. Speaker, I have specifically not listed any businesses in this Motion but I have requested that a select committee of the House decides which businesses should be set aside and protected for Caymanians only.

We know that it is healthy to allow Caymanians to compete among themselves and we want to encourage that. We want to make sure that we can get the very best product because our economy is entirely service-based. But if we do not protect our people, foreigners will definitely not want to come. Nothing is as bad as going to an island (and many of us have visited such islands) where the people are so disgruntled that they lack stability. They are so ill-tempered—cursing and so on—that you feel like taking the next plane or ship out. We never want to see the Cayman Islands like that.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I think it is very important for us to do our part to make sure that our own people can survive in dignity in these Islands. As in all developing countries there comes a time when protection is necessary for the local people. Now, I know that there will be opposition to this Motion, if not in this Honourable House, I am sure there will be opposition outside. But, Mr. Speaker, I do not care who likes it from who does not. I am a Caymanian and I was elected by the people to promote Caymanian interests, but it does not mean that I am against any foreign investor in this country. I do take pride in being Caymanian but I know that the minute we start emphasising or promoting these types of ideas, people very quickly label you as being a radical or anti-foreigner. I just want to say that I (and I am sure the other Members of this House) recognise the value of the foreign investor. I recognise the value of foreigner financial industry in this country.

Now, Mr. Speaker, in saying that, I want to make reference to the Bahamas—a country whose economic policy states that: “the Government of the Commonwealth of the Bahamas is committed to building an economic environment in which free enterprise can flourish, where the government assumes its proper role as regulator and facilitator of economic development. Where the ideals of transparency, fair play and equality of treatment are paramount and a policy that maintains a stable society in which all people are afforded the opportunity to realise their maximum potential.

“In this regard the National Investment Policy is designed to support an investment friendly climate. It guarantees the complementarity of Bahamian and overseas investments; fosters appro- priate linkages with all sectors of the economy in particular the tourism and financial service sectors; it encourages the exploitation of our natural resources in an environmentally sound and sustainable manner; provides for the maximum level of employment; guarantees an acceptable level of economic security and generally fosters the economic growth and development of the Bahamas.”

Now, Mr. Speaker, even with that economic policy there is also a section in the Report that talks about the following businesses, which are reserved for Bahamians only which says that: “Areas reserved for Bahamians: wholesale and retail operations, commission agencies engaged in the import/export trade, real estate and domestic property management agencies, domestic newspapers and magazine publication, domestic advertising and public relation firms, night clubs and restaurants except speciality gourmet and ethnic restaurants, and restaurants operating in a hotel/resort complex or tourist attraction, security services, domestic distribution of building supplies, construction companies except for special structures for which international expertise is required, personal cosmetic beauty establishments, shallow water scale fish, crustacea, mollusc and sponge fishing operations, auto and appliance service operations, and public transportation.”

Now, Mr. Speaker, even though there are areas that are reserved for Bahamians, there are other areas that are especially targeted for overseas investors. These areas to encourage investment, they give investment incentives.

The areas especially targeted for overseas investors: Touristic resorts, upscale condominiums, timesharing, second home development, mariners, information and data processing services, assembly industries, high-tech services, ship repair and other services, light manufacturing for export, agro- industries, food processing, mariculture, banking and other financial services, captive insurance, aircraft services, pharmaceutical manufacturer and offshore medical centres.

As a caption under the areas especially targeted for overseas investors, it notes that this list is not exhaustive and investors interested in areas not included above are encouraged to bring their interest to the attention of the Bahamian government. But it also says, “Please note that investments of less than $250,000 will not be considered.”

Mr. Speaker, I use Bahamas and I have the information available here if any other Members would want to see it. But we also have Turks and Caicos, a country who is playing ‘catch-up’ to us in development. Even in the Turks and Caicos they have reserved certain areas of business for what they call “belongers.” In their report they state that “Government has reserved certain areas of business for “belongers.” These include accountancy - nonprofessional agencies, travel freight forwarding, shipping or sales, apartment or condominium sales, rental or management, architecture - non-professional, auctioneering, bakery, bars - not part of the hotel or restaurant, contracting - small and medium, dancehall or disco, motor vehicle sales or rental, vessel operation less than 30 feet, printing, provision of sanitary security or transport services, real estate agencies, retail stores and service station garage operations.”

So, Mr. Speaker, we are actually behind in legislation to protect our people. We have many examples in the region of legislation, such as what this Motion is seeking to address. Even though it has been long in coming, I say better late than never. We are not talking about businesses and investments that Caymanians are not qualified to undertake. We are not talking about the banks, trust companies and international organisations that have established themselves in the Cayman Islands. We are talking about simple businesses where there are sufficient Caymanians already amongst us to do the job.

I happen to be one of the members of the sub-committee on an inward foreign investment in the Cayman Islands of the Cayman Islands Chamber of Commerce. In closing, I would like to read one of the recommendations that this Committee made, it says that licences should not be issued to entities in certain restricted business sectors, for example: watersports, real estate agencies, management companies, restaurants and public transport. Now, even within the Chamber and from the surveys that were done and when we looked at the Turks and Caicos, Bahamas and Bermuda, we saw that there was a feeling within the Caymanian community that there were certain businesses that should be restricted.

Mr. Speaker, I have not discussed what should be done with existing businesses that fall into the restricted category. That is intentional. There are many possible solutions and if we decide to ‘grandfather’ them in but only allow them to sell to Caymanians, or institute a time frame in which they have to sell them to the existing Caymanian partners, or maybe decide to deal with only the new businesses . . . All of these questions including which businesses to restrict would be decided by a select committee because the important decisions as to the future of the Caymanian people should be a responsibility that we all share. After all, we are paid to represent the people.

I look forward to the ensuing debates on this Motion and I beg for your support. Thank you.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate. Does any Member wish to speak?

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I rise on behalf of Government to accept the Private Member’s Motion No. 2/01 which is before us.

Mr. Speaker, this responsibility spans across two areas of Government, that is, the Honourable Chief Secretary’s responsibility for the Trade and Business Licensing Board, and my responsibility for Commerce. This is not the first time that such a Motion has been brought to this Honourable House; we accept and support the establishment of a select committee of the whole House to review such a matter. The Select Committee could review whatever work has been done in the past and also take input from the general public on the matter.

Mr. Speaker, while there have been many calls in many different categories of businesses and commerce to be protected, as always, in such matters it will be necessary to move with caution. There are many sides to this issue and I have also held the position that Caymanians must be left free to dispose of their businesses for as fair a return as they see fit in a free market society. Nevertheless, it is quite obvious that there are some areas that a more levelled playing field is necessary. And, we would hope that the Committee will examine all aspects of this issue to get a clear indication of what the Caymanian business community wants and expects from this Legislative Assembly.

One thing I can give a firm commitment on, Mr. Speaker, is that there will be a revamping of the Agricultural Industrial Development Board (AIDB) into an entity that is capable of assisting small Caymanian businesses in a much better manner than is done today.

Mr. Speaker, in the Throne Speech, His Excellency the Governor mentioned that the AIDB will be revamped. The Honourable Minister of Education has spoken on many occasions about the Gramean Bank and I have talked along the same lines. And, there is draft legislation—there was draft legislation from 1997, while I had responsibility. That draft legislation exists today to turn the AIDB into a proper development bank. That is my intention to move along those lines in order to assist small businesses to be more viable.

I feel that is of great need in these Islands today. So, Mr. Speaker, we have no problem in accepting this resolution and I also would like to thank the Mover for doing such a capable job in his research and the Seconder as they worked together on this Motion.

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate. Does any Member wish to speak?

Getting back to our normal procedure, normally at this time is when we take the morning break. If it is the wish of Members that we take a break, we shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.11 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.33 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 2/01, Establishment of a select committee to review Caymanian-owned businesses.

Does any other Member wish to speak? The floor is open to debate.

The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in support of this Motion. I would like to commend the Mover for doing such a thorough job of taking us down the road as to where this Motion has come from and indeed some guidance as to where it would be headed, if accepted and in the Select Committee.

I would implore all my colleagues in this Honourable House to take this Motion seriously, as I am sure they do, and to attend the meetings of this Select Committee which would be established if the Motion is accepted and passed.

Mr. Speaker, there are many who feel like the World is one global market place, and as such, there is no place for such legislation. I am of a differing view. I think each territory and country in this world is unique in its development. In the context of Cayman, the way in which we went about ensuring economic development and promoting investment to generate jobs within our economy and to start to create economic momentum was a bit unique. There was a time when there was little by way of technical expertise on this Island and we were extremely limited in terms of capital and the ability to raise capital.

So, Mr. Speaker, as the Mover said, this Motion is not seeking to be against anyone. This Motion seeks to ensure that in areas where Caymanians can now reasonably be expected to raise capital and start businesses, we must now change the rules by which we generated investments in this country and the way in which we created economic momentum and economic growth.

So, Mr. Speaker, gone are the days when Caymanians cannot be expected to raise capital for small business. Obviously, there will have to be a natural tie-in with education and training in the confines of this Motion. There are numerous opportunities out there in the market place for which there is no local expertise but the cost of start-up is minimal.

We only need to try around and see some of the small businesses that are catered toward our tourists and our tourism sector. But again because we do not have adequate vocational and technical training programme we still see people coming here with ideas, simply as they may be, lucrative ideas, and basically you get a Caymanian partner and you go into business, once you go through the regulatory requirements.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is particularly interested to note that even a country or a territory such as Turks and Caicos, which when you look at a lot of their criteria for attracting foreign investment, they are at a very early stage in their game. They are far behind these islands. However, at the outset they have seen need to protect certain industries such as service stations and garage operations, real estate agencies, vessel operation for those vessels less than 30 feet long, bakeries. Mr. Speaker, they have seen the need to ensure that the entrepreneurial spirit is promoted and that they give their people the best opportunity to be successful and that is what drives at the heart of this Motion.

We have been elected to represent the people of the Cayman Islands and as such we must ensure that our Caymanians are given every opportunity to succeed. That we ensure that where necessary we give them the protection they may need and I think it is obvious that is needed.

Of course, we have to maintain our investor friendly environment. We must ensure that the foreign investment that is still greatly needed in this country such as large scale projects like hotels, mutual fund administrators, captive insurance managers, banks, trust companies and the list goes on. We must ensure that we keep and maintain our investor friendly environment.

Mr. Speaker, I feel we would be failing in our duties if we do not seize the opportunity and ensure that this Motion is passed and that meaningful results come out of this Select Committee.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to touch one thing in a bit more depth than the Mover did. That is when we spoke of activities at our Port. There are people within the land and sea tour operation who are finding it difficult to make ends meet in this country. We hear incidents about tourists being grabbed by the arm because they want business—cursing each other in front of tourists. Doing things [like] that is damaging to our tourism product. But why? Because they are not able to obtain a decent amount of business to afford them a reasonable standard of living.

Now, Mr. Speaker, there are little things that are happening. There is a Land and Sea Co-operative that seeks to integrate them so they can be marketed as one product. But we must ensure that they are given some level of protection against large scale operators who seek to drive prices down simply because they have the capital to be able to buy boats, bus after bus after bus and then operate just on volume.

Yes, Mr. Speaker, I know we must strike a balance and we must ensure that we are price competitive in the tourism sector. But when we look at this country as legislators and even as common citizens we must always seek to ask ourselves: What is it? For what reason are we developing? To whom are the benefits going to be derived? After all if our people are not able to make their way as this country develops, an undercurrent will be left to fester. An undercurrent because it is labour unrest and social unrest and, Mr. Speaker, we must avoid this at all costs in this country.

After all, we all have a lot to lose in Cayman - not only Caymanians but also the foreign investors. So, we must ensure that Caymanians seeking to go into business in certain areas have the first opportunity. There are a lot of details to be worked out. We must be diligent. As a select committee we must be thorough but once again I would like to commend the Mover by going this route. Now we can ensure that we illicit responses from a broad cross section of people within our society and be able to move this concept forward in a manner that will be helpful to our island and our people.

Mr. Speaker, I would just like to end by saying that I think this is a Motion that is timely. I recognise that it may have been brought before in this House but it is timely nonetheless and it's long overdue. So, Mr. Speaker, we must do what we can as legislators to properly represent our people and to give them every opportunity to be successful. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks: I too rise to support this Motion, as the Secunder of the Motion.

Just to repeat what the Second Elected Member for West Bay said. The Motion is very timely it is long overdue, as a matter of fact. I have seen many cases where there have been situations of fronting and such the like. It is high time that we have a close look at the ownership in respect of Caymanians having a fair share of the market.

In many industries which were established by Caymanians, the Caymanians are now in the minority shareholding or part-takers in those industries. There again, Mr. Speaker, without repeating what the Mover and the Second Elected Member for West Bay said, I support this Motion wholeheartedly. Thank you.

The Speaker: The floor is open, does any other Member wish to speak?

The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I rise to make my contribution to this Motion which calls for the establishment of a select committee to review Caymanian-owned businesses.

I wish to begin by making the observation that I understand what the Mover and Secunder are trying to achieve, and I empathise with these efforts. Mr. Speaker, there was a time in the Cayman Islands when Caymanians were in eminent position to benefit to a greater extent from the economic boom which we have been experiencing, than we are currently, by virtue of the fact that all of the businesses were predominately owned by Caymanians. And I am given to pondering as to what went wrong.

Indeed some of the problems with which we are currently confronted are as a result of Caymanians not being in a position to benefit as much as they should be. For when one examines, for example, the hospitality industry and all those services which are created as offshoots of that industry I wonder why in a nation of seafarers the dive industry is dominated by persons other than Caymanians. Similarly, there are other areas and elements, and while the legislation will go some way towards giving us an understanding I would like to see the Select Committee's ambit complemented by a full and thorough examination.

The Government is, I contend, eminently poised to offer some support. Here are my reasons for stating this: In other jurisdictions, governments realise that they have a moral obligation to enhance the ability of aspiring citizens to avail themselves of entrepreneurial opportunities. The Government has to take this responsibility because the Cayman Islands is a classic textbook example of a country filled with banks whose interest is not to help the small struggling and aspiring entrepreneur because they are hell-bent on sticking to the principles of strict capitalism and they are not prepared to offer any soft loans or any kinds of considerations which will help aspiring business people. Yet, Mr. Speaker, other countries much less well endowed than we are in the Cayman Islands have set up models for helping their citizens.

Mr. Speaker, I recall that during my first term here I mentioned one example, which has now grown to be a worldwide and classic example of a bank, designed to help small entrepreneurs. I am talking about the Grameen Bank, which was developed in Bangladesh. It is unique in that it is the only bank in the world that has consistently achieved a 98% repayment rate on all loans. It is designed and established to uniquely, and peculiarly, service a particular clientele: persons who would not normally have access to commercial loans. It has a ceiling above which it does not lend. It is not equipped to lend and it sets up the borrowers into a pool of persons who support each other and ensure that the commitments are made each month so that they can service the loan payments.

Mr. Speaker, the founder of that bank, Mohammed Yunus is a worldwide resource person invited to, among other places, the United States to inform and instruct the United States on how they could set up mechanisms in the inner cities to help disenfranchised small persons who would not normally be able to access commercial loans.

Further, in this hemisphere in Boston, Massachusetts, there is an organisation called Acción International, whose business it is to lend money to these kinds of organisations so that they in return can lend to entrepreneurs who need the money for the establishment of small businesses.

Mr. Speaker, I have gone on record in this Honourable Assembly as saying the time has come in the Cayman Islands for us to look about the establishment of a development bank. A bank which would have as its primary objective making available monies to lend to organisations and individuals which exhibit interests and have the capabilities to enter the entrepreneurial world.

Mr. Speaker, we are a major tourism designation and yet if you check all the services and all of the souvenirs that we sell and we have available for tourists, they all are made in China, Taiwan, Korea – made in other places by and large except the Cayman Islands. Even those Caymanian entrepreneurs who started out in what should have been viable projects have petered out, or have been allowed to suffer a process of attrition so that we have few and far between the numbers of Caymanians who offer any product or service to any significant extent.

Mr. Speaker, I am talking from the most basic in terms of transportation and boat tours, right on to the more sophisticated production of souvenirs. And, when I pass the docks on cruise ship days and see that Caymanian persons are relegated to holding signs saying 'boat tour to the North Sound' and so on, operating like beggars, while persons who are transplanted—and I am almost tempted to call the names because it fills me with righteous indignation—here, who are criminals from whence they came, are allowed to dominate the industry with impunity. Not only dominate the industry with impunity and not only dominate the industry by having six to ten boats, but paying people slave wages! I feel like I could lose control and give someone a big push off the drop-off!

Mr. Speaker, for too long there have been governments and people who have been content to let this condition exist. But the time has come to put a stop to it. I do not necessarily believe that the way to address these things is through legislation, but if legislation is the only way then it has to be the only way. Let those who want to scream all the "ifs" and "isms" that they want to scream, let them scream! They have laid that on me for twenty years and I have survived. The time has come now for the Government to be a Moses to the Caymanian people because they need a Moses!

Mr. Speaker, the statistics tell us that 80% of the employers in this country employ ten persons or less. So, there is a reason for us to be concerned about the protection of Caymanians, particularly small employers. I have reason to believe that the Government is cognisant of the fact that it is past the time of lip service. Now we have to act.

I certainly would love to see some kind of effort being made toward the establishment of a development bank in the Cayman Islands, and complementary to that a micro-finance initiative so that we can have available to us money specifically earmarked for the development of small Caymanian businesses. But, Mr. Speaker, not only that: we should also help these aspiring entrepreneurs to develop business plans, feasibility surveys and proper prioritisation, so that they can understand the commitments they have and that they can run their businesses according to modern management principles and practices.

Mr. Speaker, we have tried (through the AIDB) offering some assistance. Unfortunately, the record is blemished because there are more failures than there are successes. It should not have been that way, yet I believe that the breakdown was to a large extent because the capital (which was available) had to be loaned out at high interest rates, which the borrowers could not sustain. We have to find a way of accessing capital that can be loaned out at affordable rates. That is the key and when we do that, then we have to give the proper preparation.

Mr. Speaker, it is an objective of the Ministry for which I hold constitutional responsibility, that one of the things we do is offer some training in small business development and entrepreneurship. On a recent visit to Jersey, we paid special cognisance of the office they have which caters to these small business ventures. Persons who go into business are not left cold turkey to fend for themselves.

I believe that this call for a review is a step in the right direction, and I would only hope that the work of the Select Committee can be done in an expeditious and urgent fashion so that we are able in the next little while to get on with this. This is of crucial importance now when we consider the fact that the local economy here appears to be contracting.

Mr. Speaker, it is clear now that we need to take a broader view of the economic development of our country and we need to place greater emphasis on developing what I call onshore industries and areas vis-à-vis the offshore. Clearly, the offshore areas are under pressure, under threat, and in order for us to safeguard and ensure some reasonable development we must place greater emphasis on developing an internal or a domestic economy, which is not a concept foreign to the present speaker because I advocated and articulated this years ago.

Clearly, those countries are most powerful which have within their borders a great control of their own economy. And, since the money is really not our money, the only way we are going to be in a good position is if we develop industries and businesses which will allow a greater percentage of the money to remain within the Cayman Islands. We have to begin doing that. We have to begin encouraging Caymanians to get involved in that and we have to begin promoting that as a philosophical principle of the Caymanian economic development.

Mr. Speaker, it is the only true ingredient which is going to allow what economists call the multiplier effect to take place. It is the only method by which we are going to ensure the trickle down effect is going to reach everyone in the Caymanian society—from those at the top to those at the bottom. Clearly, it cannot be done through condominium development because the developers of these establishments are to a large extent not who I would call indigenous Caymanians. They are done from purely speculative purposes with no regard. The only thing that the Caymanian gets out of them, if they get anything at all, is a little construction job. When that is over—finish, kaput—the Caymanian is disenfranchised. He has no interest or no opportunity to earn anymore. We have to get our people working and evolved.

Mr. Speaker, every person who spoke, has spoken of the respect we have for the foreign investor and we still have that respect; we need them and we encourage them. But I am saying that certain areas have to be reserved. Mr. Speaker, it is so in most countries similar to the Cayman Islands. Certain areas have to be hived off and reserved for local entrepreneurship, otherwise our people cannot compete because big investors, particularly those in the hospitality industry control everything. They have their own buses, boats and their own hotels. So everything is in-house and we have allowed that! In no other country in the Caribbean would that be allowed to happen. I dare anyone to go to Jamaica and get that kind of establishment! So how can Jamaicans come here and get it?

Mr. Speaker, a stop has to be put to that kind of thing because we have given away already too much. If you go to the Bahamas you will understand that in certain areas and certain services you see and you deal exclusively with the Bahamians. So why can we not have that here? Why can we not have that in the Cayman Islands? We need that. The time has come and this Motion is a step forward. There is enough turf and territory here that the foreign investors whom we need can continue to develop those areas and enterprises which take maximum capital. But the Caymanians must have the right reserved to them to have certain areas which they can enter relatively competition free from outside elements, and the hospitality industry offers a showcase where we can do that. Mr. Speaker, to do otherwise, would be to fool ourselves and to be courting disaster.

It is unfortunate that while the Government now has the intention to give this kind of support, it is not in a position where it could actively at this time pursue the establishment of development bank. But I am calling again for the Government to be minded of this move and also to bear in mind the necessity of the Government to place itself in a position where it, the Government, can set up the mechanisms for proper micro-finance initiatives.

Mr. Speaker, in addition to what the hospitality industry offers by way of opportunities, there is also the agri-industry which is a good area for the Government to get into by virtue of the fact that it should set itself up where it can offer affordable capital for Caymanians to pursue areas in the agri-industry.

I hope, Sir, that the Motion when it is passed, as I know it will be accepted, can expeditiously set up a select committee, and that select committee can proceed with a minimum of procrastination because Heaven knows that Caymanians need all of the help they can get at this time. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I cannot miss the opportunity to speak after that Honourable Minister because I believe that he was saying so many relevant things.

What he needs to be saying though, Mr. Speaker, is that his government will see to it that it does this and it does that. Really it is now in the hands of his government to make sure that there is a change in the way in which business is done in these Islands.

We will start by looking at the question of how a business comes to being in the first place. A lot of us believe that a business is some legal instrument put together as soon as we get the relevant laws and put the Memorandums of Association and Articles of Association together, create company directors and secretaries of companies, and somehow at the end of the day we have a business. That provides a legal framework for a business, but a business is a trading entity and that is brought into being as a result of the existence of capital. Business uses capital in order to make profit on that capital which it has to its disposal.

Unfortunately, to begin with, businesses in Cayman have been at a disadvantage because of unfair lending practices among the merchant banks in the Cayman Islands. This is the true picture of the situation. It is not just that foreign companies have come in and competed against Caymanian small businesspersons. The banks have also fostered the growth of foreign businesses in these Islands to the disadvantage of Caymanian business people, and this is a fact. Our own banks that have taken our labels have set themselves up also and have pursued a policy similar to what we might consider to be the policies of the foreign banks.

So, if we start at an unfair disadvantage from the point of view of our access to capital, then we are going to, even if the Law favours us, end up at the end of the day at a disadvantage. So, it is important for the Government of the day to realise that they are now in a position to bring about a new attitude, a new policy with regards to lending.

If the Government of the day will continue to support the monopoly on lending which the Class A banks have at present – that continue to charge very high interest rates for business ventures . . . You can go into the bank and get a loan to get a business and you are given a much more unfavourable business arrangement than they would give you if you went to buy a house or a car. We know that. For instance, they will give you a 20-year loan on a house, but when it comes to a business they want to give you a three-year loan, or a five-year loan with even higher interest rates.

So, even at a time when interest rates are going down in the United States, we still have to pay high interest rates as a result of the fact that we have to pay the 3% above prime. We have never been able to figure out why they charge us 3% above prime. Maybe someone can explain what this 3% is for. What does that particular cost to the consumer in Cayman Islands represent?

So, until the Government can have more influence on the lending policies and strategies of commercial banks in such a way that they would favour local small entrepreneurs, the (local small entrepreneurs) will be at a disadvantage. They might turn around and misuse the position which they are given by the Law in terms of the preferred position, by going and fronting for other individuals or finding some other way. Because, although the law says that they can establish businesses and that they should have the priorities in terms of owning those businesses, they cannot afford to establish these businesses simply because they do not have the capital.

So, even when we look at the market as it is, every single individual out there looking for help is not just doing so with regards to legislative protection; those persons are looking for assistance with finding the capital to improve the productivity of their businesses—the businesses ability to deliver services by having the relevant personnel and equipment to do just that.

That means, Mr. Speaker, we would all have to go back to the lending institutions again. So, what the past speaker had to say was relevant with regards to the development bank. He is again in the position to make sure that idea is developed as speedily as possible or that some compromise is made regarding that concept. If it is not a development bank, there has to be some way that the lending institutions will allow the Caymanians to have access to capital.

So, one of the things that I have always said was necessary is that there is a need for the Government to look at some of the unnecessary fees that the banks are charging. You go there and you have to put your house back up for mortgage and before you know, they are charging you a percentage here, and you have to have the same lawyers. You have to pay lawyers again just to change the arrangement and nothing is being done from a legalistic point of view. Nothing is being altered! The only thing happening is that you are coming back and you are saying 'I am bringing my house back again' or whatever. 'I have paid down a bit on the loan and now I am saying that I would like to get a little bit more money'. Mr. Speaker, they have to get a lawyer involved. The Government takes a part too to re-indenture your house. So, these are the things we have to look at which cause small businesses not to be able to succeed as they should in the Cayman Islands – those businesses owned by Caymanians.

Now, I know that the Motion is being brought by the Fourth Elected Member from West Bay and I realise that there is a focus in terms of the Motion on the watersports industry. I heard mention of the co-op being encouraged as a way to allow people to rationalise more the use of capital and the use of other resources in order to improve their businesses and be more able to compete. But, certainly as the Minister for Education and Human Resources mentioned, there is one individual in particular who is involved in that watersports industry and I think that person is Ernest Smatt from the Beach Club; the Minister did not mention that but I will.

I feel somehow that there is a case in point of what could be done to assist the other struggling Caymanians in that particular industry because from dealing with that individual I would say that anyone who has to confront him on a business level will be at some great disadvantage. So there we are if we look a little closer at the persons who are operating today.

We have a company like Red Sail. What is that? That is a giant monopoly. From its very inception it was organised in such a form as to be able to out power any, not just small companies, but any company by having more capital available and by having more influence when necessary in order to preserve its trading ideology and strategies.

If we look at the ways in which the hotels are owned, if we look at hotel policies (this is a good one for the Minister of Tourism) where we have the people who are not Caymanians giving the information to the tourists as to what to do . . . So loyalty and identity are important questions here. We have always stressed that if we have Caymanians as the information managers in the hotel industry that they would favour their own Caymanians who they know are more qualified to develop that Caymanian tourist product than foreign persons that are brought here, that are transient, and have no interest in preserving certain types of attraction in the Cayman Islands.

We know that part of saving the small Caymanian business, at least, in the tourism industry also has to do with amendments of the way in which the hotel industry regards Caymanians. The hotels are owned by big companies and they are always saying that if they have to make certain types of changes that in itself would be an inconvenience to them and they are very reluctant to do this, and they are saying Caymanians are not trained and qualified.

I remember the days when Caymanians were doing all of the jobs that had to do with entertainment in the tourism industry. Caymanians were playing the music because music and groups are also part of small business. Musicians earn money so we are talking about the fact that if musicians are establishing in the hotels, at the end of each set, people will come up to the musicians and say, 'Oh what a nice song and your Island is such a great place. It is a beautiful place! Where do you recommend that we go to eat and where do you recommend that we go snorkelling and how do we get to Stingray City? Who should we use?' The way in which information is passed on is an important part of that entire business infrastructure that we have seen fall apart as a result of the fact that we have bowed down and bowed down to the policies of the banks and hoteliers, who at the end of the day serve a similar purpose. That purpose is to make sure that stability in the Cayman Islands is interpreted as their having control and their not having to answer to anyone.

So we know that what we have to do here is more than putting this into a select committee. We know that we have to start thinking. We have to start getting out there and finding out exactly what the small businesses are experiencing. We have to look to other countries. I do believe that the Minister for Education was in the Bahamas, and saw some very interesting and important things that were been done in the Bahamas in order to assist and improve small businesses.

So, I can support this Motion: I understand that those of us in George Town, for instance, have been a little bit more removed in terms of our tradition from the whole concept of small business. Our small businesses have been destroyed basically in George Town by some of the bigger Caymanian companies, in particular, not just foreign companies that came here in the fifties. So, some of us local George Towners whose parents owned shops, restaurants, bars and different things have been pushed into the rank and file to become the Caymanian proletariat as a matter of fact.

That is the reason why we are also interested in getting the Honourable Members from West Bay to see that trade unions are also some things that small people would like to have supported, in order that they can be brought together in a co-operative effort, in order to preserve their 'Caymanianness' and their Caymanian influence, and in having a stake in the Cayman Islands. Not all influence is derived from business. Some influence is also derived from labouring and being conscious of one's contribution to the society by virtue of the fact that one forms an important part of the spokes of the wheel of commerce.

Mr. Speaker, I support this Motion and I hope when the Motion to review the Trade Union Law comes that the Minister responsible will be as enthusiastic about that as he was about this one.

The Speaker: Let us not anticipate.

Does any other Honourable Member wish to speak?

The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, almost thirty years ago the legislature of these Islands passed three pieces of companion legislation—The Caymanian Protection Law, the Trade and Business Licensing Law and the Local Companies Control Law in 1971.

In 1971, the population of these Islands was approximately 11,000 souls and very much in the early stages of development. There was little capital around and many efforts were made to encourage investment in these Islands. But, Mr. Speaker, interestingly, notwithstanding that objective in 1971 when the Caymanian Protection Law was passed, its Memorandum of Objects and Reasons reads as follows: “By reason of the tax advantages afforded to many people by taking up residence in the Cayman Islands and the unprecedented prosperity of the tourist industry, there has arisen a grave risk that the social character of the islands as well as the way of life of the population may be adversely affected by the influx of private and business settlers and other consequential factors.

“It is sought to enact legislation calculated to control the situation by affording means of protecting the traditional way of life of the Islanders by cushioning the impact of the establishment of international business interests and of settlement here by people who formerly had no interest in the public and private affairs of these islands.”

Mr. Speaker, that was almost thirty years ago. I daresay that our forebears in this House had tremendous insight and forward thinking when they enacted those pieces of legislation. All three laws are still in full force and effect, some having undergone significant amendment and change, and, in the case of the Caymanian Protection Law, a change of name. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of that legislation was to ensure that while investment was encouraged, Caymanians continued to maintain a prominent place and role in the Island's progress and economy.

The Local Companies Control Law and the Trade and Business Licensing Law working together sought to ensure that businesses continued to be largely Caymanian-owned. Thus, the provision which required that a minimum of 60 per cent of the issued share capital of a company be owned by Caymanian interest and that 60 per cent of the directorship of companies also be Caymanian-owned.

The Local Companies Control Law provided the exception to this by permitting what was then the Caymanian Protection Board to grant licences to companies where in accordance with the Law considered that the particular investment or business which that company would engage in could not be carried on by Caymanians. Mr. Speaker, the provisions of the Local Companies Control Law required the Board to take into account when deciding whether or not to grant a licence to a company which was less than 60% Caymanian owned, a number of different factors, which included:

- The economic situation of the Islands and the due protection of persons already engaged in business in the Islands.
- The nature and previous conduct of the company, and the persons having an interest in that company.
- The advantage or disadvantage which may result from the company carrying on business in the Cayman Islands.

- The desirability of retaining in the control of Caymanians the economic resources of the Islands.
- The environmental and social consequences that would result from the carrying on of the business proposed to be carried on by the company, to name a few.

So over the last thirty years the situation which has obtained has been one in which, taking into account those various factors, various companies which are less than 60 per cent Caymanian-owned have been granted licences to do various things. Some of these have included the operation of watersports.

Mr. Speaker, we are now at a point in the development in Cayman (perhaps, we have been at that point for some time), where sadly there is a growing disillusionment – and I may even venture to say, anti-foreigner sentiment – within the community. This in my view is largely based on the perception by many Caymanians that the economic marvel which this Island now is, is one in which they have a disproportionate share.

This situation runs right through the length and breadth of commerce in these Islands. It is not limited merely to the watersports industry or the Tour industry, but also applies in the Retail and Wholesale industries in these Islands. There has been over the course of the last few years considerable agitation over this point and indeed even litigation.

There are companies that have been developed by Caymanians and have become quite successful with the assistance in some instances of foreign capital. There are companies that have been developed by Caymanians who now wish to sell either their entire company or shares within their company to a foreign interest. Mr. Speaker, this is when we arrive at a crossroads.

We have on the one hand, the Caymanian who feels that he has the legitimate expectation of selling his business interest or some part of them to anyone whom he chooses and anyone who will pay what he regards as a fair price. He believes that even though the consequence will be that the company becomes foreign controlled, he believes that because he has made a substantial investment in time, effort, and money, and has pulled himself up by his own bootstraps that he should be entitled to realise the profit of that hard labour. That is a fair position to take, looking at it entirely selfishly.

But on the other hand, when the foreign interest concern is a huge multinational co-operation with tremendous financial resources and access to capital, and when the business that is being purchased is one which trades locally and competes locally with local businesses then we have the real dilemma. This is not an easy question and I do believe that we have arrived at a time when a review of this range of legislation—The Immigration Law, The Trade and Business Licences Law and the Local Companies Control Law need to be reviewed.

Mr. Speaker, I support this matter being reviewed and support this Motion which would send this matter to a select committee of this House. While this is a very emotive matter I urge all Honourable Members of this House to approach this issue intelligently and sensitively. This is far too important a matter for us to act in an arbitrary manner.

We must strike the right balance between ensuring that Caymanians share in the continued development of this country. But we must also make sure that in achieving that we do not destroy the desire on the part of foreigners to continue to invest in these islands.

Caymanians have rightly said over the last few years, 'Who are we developing this country for?' That is a very important question and one that we need to ask ourselves every time we approve a new development. But I do not believe that we are at a point, nor did I hear any Member of this Honourable House suggest otherwise, where we can snub and shun all foreign investment and capital.

So, Mr. Speaker, with those few remarks and few words of caution I support the Motion. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: At this time we shall suspend proceedings until 2.15 pm for lunch.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.44 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.28 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed.

Debate continuing on Private Member's Motion No. 2/2001, Establishment of a Select Committee to Review Caymanian Owned Businesses.

Does any Member wish to speak? The floor is open to debate. No Member wishes to speak?

Does the Mover wish to exercise his right of reply?

The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I rise to thank the Government for so readily accepting this Motion and also the other Members of this Honourable House who have spoken in support of this Motion. It is very encouraging to see that this Motion has met with such widespread support. It seems to have been in the minds of the present Ministers of Executive Council and during the debate it was very enlightening to hear the various sections and discussions as to the reason and need for such a Motion and the need for protection of Caymanian businesses.

We heard from the Minister responsible for Education how another sector of the Caymanian society was being affected in an adverse way as well. Not only those sections that this Motion talks about as to existing Caymanian businesses which have acquired the required capital to start their own business, but as to the need for the Government to ensure that the lending practices that are exercised here in our wonderful Island are such that they also encourage people who have so far not been able to raise the required capital to again encourage more Caymanian businesses.

Mr. Speaker, in the Motion we did not get into the areas of fronting which is a terminology that most Caymanians are very versed in using. There has been much discussion as to the amount of fronting that goes on in the various businesses here in Cayman. And, even though we all know that this Motion will not solve that issue completely, I think, it is a fair statement to say that if the situation that exists now where we have people that are comfortable with putting up capital in return for having 40% of business on paper, it would be a bit more discouraging for those individuals if they were actually putting up 100% of the capital but legally on paper having no per cent. So, even though the Motion was not intended to address that problem it will have advantages in that area as well.

It was also enlightening to hear the Third Elected Member from George Town when he spoke about the needs and the influences that have been used to move Caymanians out of the areas of business that could influence and assist Caymanians in their various businesses that they are involved in. Especially the area I know he is familiar with - the tourism section.

In saying that, I just want to make mention of a letter that I received from one of the hotels where Concierge for those particular hotels are Caymanians and as to a new policy directed, it seems to have been sent down pertaining to those Caymanian concierges. That is to say and I quote: “This serves as an official clarification of shoeshine procedures. We do shine guest shoes should they need it. When guests contact service express or any other department enquiring about this service, the appropriate department simply needs to notify the bell attendants to pick up the shoes. These are to be brought to the Concierge who shines the shoes and returns them to the guests via the bell attendant. There is no charge for this service.”

Mr. Speaker, this does lend credit to what the Third Elected Member for George Town said, that the areas where we have the local concierge who could be used to encourage and direct business to the Caymanians . . . it appears to be an attempt to be driving them from those positions. So, Mr. Speaker, I look forward to the acceptance by those Members who have not spoken on the Motion. I know some of them intended to speak but in the interest of the efficient use of time, they have decided not to and I look forward to that support.

I look forward also to the speedy implementation by the Government of a select committee so that we can get this matter moved forward as expeditiously as possible.

Thank you.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 2/01 entitled Establishment of a Select Committee to Review Caymanian Owned Businesses. The Resolve section reads as follows:

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable Legislative Assembly appoints a Select Committee of the whole House to determine which businesses should be restricted to 100 per cent Caymanian ownership and to recommend any necessary amendments to relevant legislation to protect and reserve these businesses for Caymanians only; and that any amending legislation be introduced within a one year timeframe.”

I shall now put the Question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion is passed.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/01 PASSED.

The Speaker: Moving on to Private Member's Motion No. 6/01 entitled Review of the Trade Union Law.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 6/01

REVIEW OF THE TRADE UNION LAW

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, this Private Member's Motion standing in my name reads:

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Government undertakes a review of the Trade Union Law in order to address the existing shortcomings and to bring it in line with current developments in Caymanian society.”

The Speaker: Do we have a Seconder?

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Mr. Speaker, I beg to second this Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 6/01 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Mover wish to speak to it?

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, perhaps, I should begin by saying that one of the most alarming developments in the Cayman Islands at present is that the Concierge is being required to become the shoeshine boy. I think that this in itself places the Motion that I have brought before this Honourable House within the context because it certainly speaks to the dictatorial policies of hotel managers and owners. Part of what a trade union is supposed to do, is to look after the social and economic interest of its members, the workers.

So, we do see that there is some need for the recognition of a trade union movement, which already forms part of the laws of the Cayman Islands. In 1967, a trade union law was brought into force in the Cayman Islands. Unfortunately, this law was the result of combining the 1871 British Trade Union Act and the 1906 British Trade Dispute Act.

Mr. Speaker, this goes to show that somehow the Trade Union Law should be reviewed with the view of having it updated and be able to include some of the more relevant philosophies which now exist in this sphere of industrial relationships.

Mr. Speaker, our Trade Union Law defines a trade union as “any combination whether temporary or permanent, the principal purposes of which are, under its constitution, the regulation of the relations between workmen and employers, or between workmen and workmen, or between employers and employers whether such combination would or would not, if this Law had not been enacted, have been deemed to have been an unlawful combination by reason of some one or more of its purposes being in restraint of trade.”

What it tells us, in fact, is that a trade union has to do with unity in the sphere of trade. It could be a combination between employers and employers, or between employees and employees. The law is not prejudice as to which takes place, but at the time in which the law was enacted, it was enacted primarily in order that such combination would not be unlawful. That was the primary purpose of the law and the law has not developed very far since then. For instance, section 8 of the Law says,

“With respect to the rules of a registered trade union-

“(a) the rules of each such trade union shall contain provisions in respect of the matters mentioned in the Second Schedule; and

“(b) a copy of the rules shall be delivered by the trade union to every person on demand on payment of a sum not exceeding ten cents.”

Mr. Speaker, that is a very small amount of money and would certainly not cover the cost of printing the constitution of the Trade Union.

We find also in section 12(1) that it says,

“It shall be lawful for any registered trade union to purchase or take upon lease in the name of the trustees for the time being of such union any land not exceeding one acre . . .”

So again we see that is a very restrictive clause and I am pointing to this really just to show how long since the law has been examined to see whether or not it is practical and functional.

But, Mr. Speaker, these are just some of the minor reasons why I am bringing this Motion to ask the Government to look into the review. The main reason that this Motion is here is that I anticipated that the Government would have an interest in reviewing the present Labour Law. In answering a Parliamentary question, the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture said that the Government intended, as a matter of some priority, to conduct a thorough review of our Labour Law to ensure that it is fully in line with the highest international standards.

The international standards that the Minister is alluding to would, first of all, be with regards to the main question: “Was the Cayman Islands a party as a result of the extension of the ILO convention? Was the Cayman Islands a party as a result of the United Kingdom being a party to these conventions and having the conventions extended to the Cayman Islands.” The Minister’s answer was in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker, this means that the question of freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining has been recognised by the Cayman Islands Government and by the Minister here. Now, the position that it places us in, is that, by virtue of the ILO constitution, a state by ratifying a convention undertakes to take such action as may be necessary to make effective the provisions of such convention. The obligation is not limited to giving effect to the convention in law but extends also to ensuring its application in practice—the application of collective bargaining in practice.

Furthermore, a ratifying state is requested under Article 22 of the convention to supply regular reports to the ILO on the measures, which it has taken to give effect to the provisions of conventions. Even if they have not ratified the conventions in question, member states have an obligation (arising from the very fact of the membership in the organisation), to promote and to realise in good faith the following fundamental principles among which is ‘the freedom of association’ and the effective recognition of ‘the right to collective bargaining’.

So, the Government is, of course, being reminded at this particular time of those obligations and since the Government has already indicated that it will be reviewing its Labour Law, we are saying that this is a companion legislation law and that this law also needs to be looked into.

In reviewing, of course, these laws we need to understand that the Labour Law that was formed as late as 1987 does not even recognise the existence of a Trade Union Law. There is no definition of collective bargaining. There is no definition of collective agreement in the vocabulary of these laws. If we are going to treat our relationships with these conventions as serious, as the Minister had stated in his answer, then we would have to, at least, give some type of legal recognition of our understanding of these principles which are very important principles concerning the freedom of association.

Now, the freedom of association is the recognition of the right to organise. I have here the ILO Principles, Standards and Procedures Concerning Freedom of Association, and I ask your permission to read briefly from parts of it with regards to the recognition of the right to organise.

“In recognising that all workers, without distinction whatsoever, have the right to organise, Convention No. 87 summed up the idea that had already taken shape during the preparatory work on the Convention when it was stated in more detail that freedom of association must be guaranteed in both the private and public sector, without distinction or discrimination of any kind as to occupation, sex, colour, race, creed, nationality or political opinion.

“While in the great majority of countries the right to organise of workers in the private sector is recognised, recognition is somewhat less generalised in the case of civil servants and sometimes even in the case of workers in nationalised undertakings. Nevertheless, at the time the Convention in question was being framed it was clearly established that public servants should be included in the scope of the new instrument, it being pointed out that ‘it would be inequitable to draw any distinction, as regards freedom of association, between wage earners in private industry and officials in the public services, since persons in either category should be permitted to defend their interests by becoming organised’. At the same time, it was made clear that the recognition of the right of association of public servants in no way prejudged the question of their right to strike which was a problem quite apart.”

The other aspect of this concept of freedom of association deals with “Right to Collective Bargaining” and reads: The right to negotiate freely with employers and their organisations with respect to wages and conditions of employment constitutes a basic aspect of freedom of association and, consequently, trade unions should be able to exercise this right without being hampered by legal restrictions. The adoption of restrictive measures runs counter to the principle that workers’ and employers’ organisations shall have the right to organise their activities and to formulate their programmes, and is incompatible with the provision of Convention No. 98 which calls for the encouragement by governments of voluntary collective bargaining.

“Among the methods employed to promote collective bargaining are procedures for designating the most representative trade union as collective bargaining agents, provisions enforcing recognition of such a union by employers, the use of conciliation machinery to assist the parties in the collective bargaining process and the setting up of joint collective bargaining committees.

“It should be borne in mind that the right to bargain collectively is not the exclusive prerogative of primary organisations, but should also be granted to federations and confederations . . .”

Mr. Speaker, I would just like to table this so that it serves the other Members at some particular point and becomes a part of the record of this House.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I guess part of what I am pointing to is that it is not a freaky thing for a person to be interested in a trade union. It is not a strange occurrence. It is not like Martians coming down here to the Cayman Islands. It is part of modern industrial culture. The same way we want to talk about small businesses and the rights of small businesses, we want to talk about workers and the rights and interest of workers. We want to give them the democratic organisations, not give them the illegal weapons or encourage them to solve their grievances in undisciplined, unorganised, undemocratic methods. We want to create a framework within which they can continue to be a part of the solution to the problems which they encounter, which they view themselves as encountering on a day-to-day basis.

I have an example of that, that I can somehow give again with regards to the Concierge being required to shine shoes, which means if we had an underground organisation within that particular hotel it would be more difficult for them to use this type of constructive dismissal to remove the few remaining Caymanians in these positions. Our experiences tell us that the interests of Caymanian working people have been continuously eroded by the fact that they have no organisational support within the work place.

Now, it is fine and good that the Government sees itself as capable of representing the interests of all parties and groups in society. But, I think there is a folly to this, when Government thinks somehow that it can represent all groups perhaps even better than the groups can represent themselves. Government can assist groups in representing themselves, but primary organisations are necessary. Groups must all have their particular interest somehow in an organised fashion and it serves also to discipline working people and to keep them as a part of what we consider to be organisations that are a part of the norms of our society.

So, we have no . . . at least I have no desire in calling for this Motion to be reviewed—simply that it be put on the shelf, like it was when revised in 1989.

When we took the Trade Union Law off the shelf in 1999, most people did not know that a Trade Union Law existed in this country. Why did they not know, when they knew so much about the Labour Law? Why did they not know that a Trade Union Law existed when the Minister responsible for Labour talked about “for a number of years the Director of Labour has worked closely with the International Labour Organisation, Caribbean Office, and has utilised the expertise of that office in a number of areas including the training of labour inspectors and members of labour tribunals, and labour appeals tribunal”?

What the Minister did not say is that the ILO is a tripartite organisation and they not only have experts to assist the labour inspectors; they also have experts to assist labour unions and the leaders of labour unions. So, the same way Government is able to receive support from the ILO, the employers are able to receive support from the ILO. For instance, the Chamber of Commerce (Mr. Will Pineau) and I recently attended a conference in Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, which dealt with the whole question of labour management relationships. And it is unfortunate that the Government did not have representatives there, because we were beginning to coin the start of a new movement in the Caribbean which would bring in that phase where labour and management understand that only when they co-exist; only when they share information; only when they see themselves as joint stakeholders in enterprise would the enterprise be productive and beneficial to all the stakeholders.

This is the type of framework I am working within when a member of the Chamber of Commerce would be at the same forum that I am at, representing the employers, while I would represent the employees. I felt that the dialogues that we were having were progressive – that we are talking about how to improve the employers because there are some very good employers, just like there are some very bad employees.

So, trade unionism does not necessarily mean support for bad employees and the destruction of good employees. Trade unionism (at least in the modern context, the context in which the ILO speaks of and the context in which I speak of it) means the encouragement of good employers and the rewarding of good employees, and sanctioning the bad employees.

It also means that you have an organisation that has the capacity to recognise the need for skills improvement within the rank and file workers: the need to encourage them and to motivate them so that you organise even at that particular level. Your organisation goes that far in terms of working to complement each other; to have one common goal which is the success of the enterprise; to make it competitive, productive and rewarding—not just for the employers but for the workers. That is the new spirit of the new age of labour, the same type of labour that we were able to see ushered in in the UK when the Labour Government was voted in there not too long ago – I think it was in 1998.

I have a letter from the House of Commons, that I would like to read and table. It is addressed to me, as Secretary of NACE, dated Monday 18 December 2000, and it reads:

“Thank you for keeping me in touch with employment problems on the Cayman Islands. I have at last managed to speak to Bill Morris about the situation and he is happy for you to contact him directly at the Transport and General Workers’ Union, Transport House, 6 Palace Street, London, SW1E, 5JD, telephone [so forth and so on]. I am writing to Bill to let him know that you will be contacting him in the near future. I am also raising the matter with the Foreign Secretary, Robin Cook, I hope that they will be able to assist you.

[signed] “Fraser Kemp, MP.”

And then a letter that I got on 26 February from Fraser Kemp to show the continuation of correspondence. Although there is some correspondence that is not here. It reads:

“Dear Frank:

“Thank you for your letter. I was rather surprised by what you said in it though, as Bill Morris sent us copies of correspondence he had with you. I have enclosed copies in case you didn’t receive them. I have also forwarded your latest letter to Ray Collins at the TGWU who is dealing with your case. I hope things will move in your favour soon. I think we should see first if there are any funds available to fight your case before approaching a lawyer. Keep us in touch with everything.

“Best wishes,

[signed] “Fraser Kemp, MP.”

Now the letter that should have come from Bill Morris we got that a little bit later. I do not know what the problem was. It is addressed to me as Secretary of National Alliance of Cayman Island Employees, and it reads:

“Dear Dr. McField:

“Thank you for your letter dated January 3rd. I have had discussions with and correspondence from Fraser Kemp, MP, concerning the issue of trade unions in the Cayman Islands arising from his visit last year.

“I can advise that we do have membership around the world under different legislative authority. For example, we do have members in Gibraltar, which of course has the same status as the Cayman Islands.

“In order to move this matter forward, it would be extremely helpful if I could have details of the current structure and constitution of your organisation, and information whether it is, or has, attempted to affiliate with any international or regional trade union body, including those under the umbrella of the International Confederation of Free Trade Union.

“The T&G would be prepared to explore associate membership, direct membership or affiliation to our organisation. In this regard, I have asked my colleague, Ray Collins, Assistant General Secretary, to look after this matter and perhaps you could liaison with him directly at this address. He looks forward to hearing from you.

“Best wishes,

“Yours sincerely,

[signed] “Bill Morris, General Secretary.”

Now, Mr. Speaker, some of us know that this T&G Union is perhaps the largest trade union in the UK. We have managed to get their attention, and we have managed not only to get their attention, but also to get the attention of the people in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. The reason why is because we knew from the very beginning that there are certain rights that working people have with regard to their right to organise and bargain collectively. It seems that the Government should be doing something to make sure that these rights are being assisted. It is okay for people to say ‘Yes, you have the rights; nobody is stopping you from doing anything’, but Mr. Speaker, in the little limited experience that we have with trade unionism in the Cayman Islands we know that people discriminate against those persons who are members of NACE.

We have more than enough evidence to prove that workers are afraid to join the union. We know that civil servants have been led to believe that they have no right to join the union—which is untrue. Civil servants can join a union. We are not just talking about NACE. NACE is just one union registered under our Trade Union Law. We are not just talking about something that I might be involved with; we are talking about something that others might also want to do.

The mere fact that we have a general workers’ union excluding whatever trade, it is a union there because it is a small country and we have enough problems trying to financially and administratively support one union. It might even be more difficult to support more unions. So we have encouraged people to join this one union and to find within this union their own unique way of dealing with their particular trade or industry, because when administratively we come together we can accomplish a little bit more.

Now we have heard a lot about the difference between co-ops and unions. We know that part of our understanding about of a union is—strikes, trouble, this and that. But nobody knows the trouble I’ve known. We can see the manifestation of problems; but what about the problems that the working people are experiencing in the workplace? ‘Clean my shoes, concierge!’ How do they react? If they react they will lose their jobs. Open door policy, Mr. Speaker, always means the door is there – Leave! Go! We do not need you! The Caymanian has been so blessed in that sense—or cursed in that sense—that he leaves and goes out the door and as he is going out the door, rather than closing the door and tying a little thing around it he goes out of the door and somebody else comes in and takes his job. We have found ourselves—in particular in the hotel industry, where Caymanians have been less and less able to command any kind of important position in that industry. That affects the employment of managers, because if they need to employ a concierge from Canada, why would they employ a manager from Cayman? If you cannot even fill the concierge job with a Caymanian, how will you ever fill the managerial jobs with Caymanians? People are dreaming.

One thing for sure Unions do—and to use a case in point NACE has done—is to show people that ownership does not mean dictatorship. Because they own the hotels that should not mean that everybody should become subservient without any kind of rights and without any kind of social dignity. It is only when the working people organise together, unify and speak with one voice will they gain the respect of their employers. In most cases their employers are not Caymanians—have no use for many of them. The issues in the work place, are issues that should not just be resolved by Labour laws and by Government labour departments, but should also be resolved by the active involvement in those persons who provide employment and services.

We have the understanding that unions are just something for workers. When we use the word “workers,” we always mean poor people. But we are all workers. Most of us have to sell our labour in the form of physical labour or labour in the form of some skill, in order to survive. Whether or not we are working in a hotel or a bank, or whether or not we are working with the Government, we are working. And we have that in common. More than enough reasons exist why people should come together, therefore the framework to allow this coming together should exist in this country.

The Labour Department owes not just the employer recognition, the Labour Department should not encourage the employers’ unions to flourish and to be productive, the Labour Department should also encourage the workers’ union to flourish and be productive. And the Labour Department should be creating the framework for this to happen.

Now one of the things the Minister of Labour has been talking about is the tripartite system. That is the most advanced concept. You can’t get any more advanced than to come to the recognition that the three social partners have to work together in order to have a prosperous, productive, and harmonious society. For this to happen, Mr. Speaker, you cannot ignore the desire of the weaker group in your tripartite system, and expect to have a tripartite system. The weaker group in the tripartite system is the worker. He cannot gather the muscles in order to be able to put himself on the same footing as his employer who can much easier understand the benefits of organisations.

Also, Mr. Speaker, we have a culture in our country whereby people do not easily organise. We like to be individuals. We like to solve our problems on our own. We do not like the commitment; we do not like the responsibility. But paying dues to a union creates a certain kind of social responsibility and discipline in working people where we need to make sure that the traditional community fabric that is falling apart is reinforced by some new more dynamic more practical kind of organisation.

Most people spend most of their time working anyway, and the rest of the time they might spend watching TV. But, the big influence on our people in this country takes place in the work place. And so many parents have devalued the value of jobs that I can see why some of the kids say, 'Me Mama? Me Mama? Me naw going to no wuk.' I ask them, 'Well what you going to do?' 'Well, I dunno wha I gonna do, but I naw gonna wuk for dem Mama, because you tink I gonna sit by and let dem treat me like they treat you Mama? Because if dey do dat to me, Mama, you know wha I gonna do to dem Mama?' Do you hear it? They are devaluing the value of jobs. Why? Because the worker has no power.

So, by empowering the employee, we empower our community, and by empowering our community, we give respect and dignity back to our children because they depend upon their parents to have the respect and dignity. If there is no dignity in selling that labour, and if there is no dignity in labouring, then there can be no respect for the people that labours produce for, because they do not see the value.

So organisations/trade unions, teach people the value of work. One of the things we experienced is that we did not deal with those people who were rebellious. They left our movement early and went out there and criticised us, and cursed us because we would not tolerate the unfair criticism. And sometimes, even when we jumped in early, we changed our mood because we knew at the end of the day that working people could not benefit without jobs, and the employer needs to make profit in order to be encouraged to employ employees.

So we are not back in the 1870s when this first Trade Union Act was made in Britain and this situation where it was so confrontational where the trade unions were the result of a kind of daily confrontation, daily strike, daily fight between employers and the police and so forth. People still have the idea that if a few people go to demonstrate to the people their plight, to demonstrate to the people the reason for their dispute that somehow that is disruptive and will cause chaos, and that will give the country a bad name. And that is truthfully within the confines of how we saw the trade union.

So I am—

The Speaker: May I interrupt you, for just one moment?

I have listened very carefully to all of your debate. I have given you extremely wide latitude. But I must call to your attention that the Resolve section reads as follows, "BE IT RESOLVED that Government undertake to review the trade union law in order to address the existing shortcomings and to bring it in line with current developments in the Cayman society."

We are discussing the review of the Trade Union Law. Please—

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, with all due respect, I am trying to create reasons why the Government should accept this Motion asking for a review; this is not the review I am discussing.

The Speaker: No, I am not saying that; all I am saying is that we must address the Motion before the House. I have given you very wide latitude. You may continue, but I will be listening to you carefully.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

If we are going to talk about the short-comings of the Trade Union Law, I would hope that the review committee would concentrate on those specific points. I have not been able to get a copy of the Trade Union Law of any other jurisdiction. But I am sure they are available and if this is accepted to be reviewed, I will try to make sure to get that, Mr. Speaker.

I think it is important that we understand that one of the reasons why the Government might not want to review the Law is because of the prejudice people have against the concept of a trade union, which I am trying to deal with here. So to do my job, I really have to put the concept of a trade union within a more modern, more progressive light, which is what I am trying to do.

Once I have been able to establish, in fact, that a trade union is not something that is coming here to rob you merchants of this and that, but a trade union is something that is coming here to assist, probably, in reinforcing the solidarity in the community and reinforcing again the cohesiveness which is lacking today, it might help. This is another vehicle not just to be used in labour disputes but also in social issues as well.

Now, when we talk about trade unions, the point is that a trade union is usually interested in anything that its members are interested in, and the trade union covers a lot more than just work-place activity. Trade unions are involved with community activities.

For instance, the president of NACE has been trying to get a 'police watch' group going in the community. And people become interested; they become active; they learn how to organise; they learn how to (as a result of organising), perhaps preserve some of their interests. This whole idea that organisation of a particular kind of people is a negative, I just do not know where that came from.

Mr. Speaker, I think that I have put enough forward and I shall keep the rest of my remarks for when my colleagues have served me the message. But, as I said, at least we have the possibility that the people in London are aware that this Motion has been debated in this democratic House, and they will know at the end of the day what the reception will be and so forth.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate. Does any Member wish to speak?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: Mr. Speaker, the call to review the Trade Union Law is one that the Government willingly accepts because the Government purports to be responsible, to be modern and cognisant of the changes not only in Caymanian society, but in the World. Government realises that in a vibrant and developing society people must be in a position to exercise their democratic rights. It is indeed a fundamental right that people should have freedom of association.

I was happy to hear the Member moving the Motion, who by his own admission is Secretary of this union, stress the fact that trade unionism carries with it a certain amount of responsibility. I think you are right in pointing out that while we speak of rights and we are in an era of human rights, rights are always balanced with responsibilities.

The Government recognises that the Law needs revision. For example, it draws reference to certain fees (and the Mover mentioned some of them) that are irrelevant and unrealistic now. If one were to check page 18, the first schedule talks about the fee for registering a trade union as being two dollars, and for registering an alteration to the rules, as one dollar, and for inspection of documents, twenty-five cents. In an age when the Government is in a position to offer modern services and at a time when the Government is prone to take a realistic look at its finances, I am sure that all and sundry would agree that we could do better than this.

If, for no more than mere mundane reasons, this law needs to be reviewed and probably redrafted. Also, I think the Law needs to be more comprehensive in terms of what it spells out because we are in an era where the behaviour of business organisations and human beings takes place on a far more sophisticated plane than this law takes into account.

In fairness, it should be said that the law probably served the purpose it was drafted to serve at that time, because I am sure that nobody anticipated it would be so necessary and important to have a trade union. I believe, and so does the Government, that the Caymanian people must be given every encouragement to associate themselves if they see that in the best interest of their survival. I would certainly encourage them to articulate their concerns and to join associations. I have encouraged the teachers to form a teachers' association. It is much easier to deal with a collective group, than it is to deal with an agglomeration of individuals.

When you have a group of persons espousing the same philosophy and espousing the same concerns, it is much easier to deal with them than it is to deal with a thousand people all voicing individual concerns. So from the mere fact of an organisation and a managerial point of view, it is better to have people approach an entity as one organisation rather than an agglomeration.

The Government also realises that in a changing society it is necessary for people to have the right to articulate themselves through these kinds of forums. For that reason, the Government supports the drafting of a modern Trade Union Law.

The Honourable Member moving the Motion made reference to one meeting that he attended along with the representative of the Chamber of Commerce, sponsored by the ILO, in Trinidad, at the regional office. The reason why the Government had no representative there was simply because the Government was not invited to participate. It is my understanding that these things are usually extended by invitation. The Government had no invitation to send a representative.

Where the Government is invited to participate, since I have assumed responsibilities, we have made every effort to do so. For example, the Government is invited to send a representative as part of the United Kingdom delegation to a major ILO conference in Geneva from June the 5th to the 21st. We have made arrangements already to have a representative attend that conference as part of the United Kingdom delegation because the Government, and certainly the Ministry, believe that it will be beneficial and in our best interests to be represented.

The reference to a certain hotel demanding that the Concierge also takes on the responsibility of being a shoe-shine boy (or girl) can only be explained, as far as I am concerned, by the fact that anyone who would be so unrealistic must not have read Émile Durkheim's, The Division of Labor in the Society. That is the reason why, in the Labour Law, we need to be so sophisticated that we categorise the minimum wage for many of these things.

I believe that the call for someone who occupies the position of Concierge to also be a shoeshine person is a most facetious and unrealistic call. However, I have to realise that there is little (or nothing) I can do except chide those persons who would insist and indulge in those kinds of nonsensical practices and suggest to them that they should develop a broader understanding. Which leads me to the comment: The capitalist system is sometimes a difficult system to understand in that those persons who may be in positions of having the wealth may not necessarily be the most learned or the most informed persons. Which brings me to make the point that in these situations where we have these kinds of industrial relations, it is best to develop an understanding where each party is respected and appreciated for what he brings to the table. That is the reason why in modern trends the Government sees itself in a position to encourage the tripartite system where the Government holds the responsibility for offering some kind of education and understanding and in cases where necessary, mediation.

The Honourable Mover is right when he says that the modern concept of the trade union is not as an adversarial body calling strikes, but indeed is one which takes such a broad interest in representing its members that it is also respectful of management to the point where the Union itself is responsible for setting standards of behaviour and performance for its members. And he is also correct in saying that there are cases where the Union suspends or expels those members that it deems in contravention of the Unions best interests.

I think the problem which existed in the Cayman Islands in years past was one that when people heard of unions they thought that they merely existed to be mischievous, to be contentious, and to be adversarial, and did not realise that the unions themselves, by their very existence, have evolved to the point where not only are they protective of their membership and the rights of the membership, but they are also protective of the membership's right to fair employment. By their very existence they concede that the employers have cause to exist—and not only exist but exist to a point where they can realise realistic returns and profits on their investments.

Government realises that the Cayman Islands must move forward. In order for the Cayman Islands to move forward, the society has to be one where the playing field is not only level, but is seen to be level. As a result of that, the Government takes the view that it is in the society's best interest to have mechanisms where people can exercise their democratic rights—particularly in an era when individual human rights are coming into greater focus, and having greater emphasis and impact on the way business is done and conducted.

Mr. Speaker, I notice that the Motion, while it calls for the review, does not give any indication of how the review should be done. Which brings me to the point that in a way I am happy that the Mover did not ask for the Motion to be brought before another select committee. It is perhaps more practical, and certainly faster in these kinds of cases, to get a law or a number of laws from comparable jurisdictions such as the Cayman Islands, with a similar level of sophistication.

And (for want of a better word) copy those elements of those laws which can be best applied to our situation. Certainly that is the route I would suggest, and I notice that the Mover suggested that that is what he would be prepared to do.

Mr. Speaker, I reiterate that the Government is sincere and serious in its acceptance of this Motion. I hope that we can move forward expeditiously because it is the view of the Government that for the society to continue to develop along democratic and constructive lines we must have these kinds of organisations with the people being able to exercise their individual and democratic rights to join and to participate, if they so wish.

It is correct to say that any such law must be complementary to the Labour Law. I am reminded that George Lammy, that eminent and respected West Indian author remarked at one stage that “it is labour in all its manifestations which has been the most democratising influence in the Caribbean.”

So, I look forward to this review as much as I look forward to the development of a minimum wage law and a modern labour law because these are mechanisms which Caymanians and Caymanian Society—all elements—must have access to and be able to use to ensure that the Cayman Islands develop as a progressive, fair and democratic society which takes the interest of all and sundry in an attempt to develop in such a way that all stakeholders feel equally important.

It gives me great pleasure to accept the Motion on behalf of the Government, and I look forward to working with those interested parties in developing a modern law of which all can be proud and all can accept.

The Speaker: We have reached the time when we would ordinarily take our afternoon break. Is it the wish of the House that we continue without a break? I am in your hands.

We shall suspend proceedings for ten minutes, but before doing so, I would like to call to the attention of Honourable Members that on Private Member's Motion No. 2/01 a select committee was appointed. I have had no indication of a chairman, so I am going to leave the appointing of a chairman to its members. We shall suspend for ten minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.26 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.59 PM

The Speaker: Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 6/01 Trade Union Law, does any other Member wish to speak?

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon Martin: I rise to support a Motion calling for the Government to review the Trade Union Law. I am pleased that the Minister responsible for Labour has accepted the Motion on behalf of Government and has made a very positive contribution.

I would like it to be noted that an association of individuals is a natural phenomenon for individuals who share a common plight. It is not an occurrence that will be governed or encouraged by the provision of a law or even this revision. The Trade Union Law is merely a piece of legislation that ensures that this association of employees, or employers, is protected and not discriminated against, offering a vehicle to guide its operations.

I commend the Mover of the Motion, my colleague the Third Elected Member for George Town, for his contribution and all that he said in regard of trade unions. The most important thing that I think he highlighted is the importance of the relationship between employees and employers and the role that a modern trade union plays—a positive role, one that enhances that relationship; one that enhances the efficiency of negotiations between the two bodies.

The freedom of association and the right to collectively bargain is imperative to ensure that the rights of employers and employees are preserved. Throughout this sitting of the Legislative Assembly, during the debate on the Minimum Wage Bill and the Motion calling for a review of the need for the Caymanianising of various businesses, we heard much of the need to protect employees. We heard much of the practice and the pattern for our hardworking Caymanians to be overlooked. We heard much about the exploitation of our hardworking Caymanians and the poor conditions under which many of them have to work.

However, the Motions agreed to so far, such as the Minimum Wage Bill and the Motion today, do not address a vehicle in which employees can seek to improve the conditions under which they work. This Motion today encouraging an individual and protecting his right to collectively bargain, is the only Motion on the agenda of this Legislative Assembly that seeks to address the problem that we all have highlighted as necessary to curtail in our economy and community.

It should also be noted that the employers of this country are organised and have a collective voice. They have had the ability to collectively bargain on their behalf even to the extent of correcting and changing Government revenue measures. With such a strong body of employers joining together, it is necessary to offer a piece of legislation that will address the issues for employees.

I make note of the warning provided by the Speaker to the Mover of the Motion and progress with great caution for relevance to the Motion. Mr. Speaker, I would like to reiterate that an association of individuals is a natural phenomenon. Individuals have a need to be a part, and to have a fight for a common cause.

If the employers provide an atmosphere that employees are happy with, if the Government through its Labour Department intervenes when there is a problem in an efficient and effective way, the motivation for an employee to join a union will be reduced.

What we must do as a government is to ensure that all aspects of the tripartite system are in place. We must ensure that Government is there with its Labour Law and an effectively functioning Labour Department that administers the Law in a timely and efficient manner; and that employers are represented through one collective body and the employees must bring their views together for their various industries into one collective group, for this system to work efficiently.

I use this forum in addressing the Trade Union Bill to warn off some employers: We have a lot of employees in this country who are discontent, who are concerned about the conditions under which they work. Once we provide the assurance that their right to collectively bargain, and provide the legislation that ensures they will not be discriminated against for being part of a group that seeks to represent their interests, the employers can be assured that their employees will seek to rectify and remedy their concerns.

The district that I represent has been able to operate over the years without any form of trade union. However, the tension is there, especially among hotel employees. If these issues are not addressed through the current forums, such as the labour tribunal and the labour department, the natural phenomenon will be the joining of these individuals under one common union. That is something I would encourage.

It is not necessary for me to spend any more time on my contribution to this Motion as it has been stated that the Government will be accepting it, and that it will be going towards some kind of review. The exact format is yet to be determined. I conclude by inviting the entire House to give its support to this Motion. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment? (Pause)

If no other Member wishes to speak, does the Mover wish to exercise his right of reply?

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: I would like to thank the Seconder of this Motion, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman for speaking to the Motion. I believe he amply demonstrated not just his understanding, but also his commitment to the concept of labour management partnership that will result in the highest productivity, competitiveness, and high quality for sustainable economic growth.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture spoke brilliantly.

And although in the beginning I thought he was going in one direction, he proved himself to be a true Libran and balanced the scales in such a way that he proved that he understands exactly where we would like to see him go with the review.

I have not talked about the format of the review because I believe (as he said) that there are so many jurisdictions already bearing some similarity to ours where we would be able to get the legal framework. I would also like to remind the Minister and others that the motivation for joining a trade union does not have to be bad employers.

A trade union is people gathering together out of common interests. As was said by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, it is a natural occurrence. When it does not happen, there is something very unnatural. It means that society is beginning to decay and fall apart.

So, people can find good reasons to join trade unions. Therefore, in reviewing the Trade Union Law, we should take an approach to the law that we adapt to replace this law. An approach that will allow us not to see a trade union as a result of bad working conditions only, but also as a result of the desire on the part of the employee to be empowered in the workplace and in the community, and in the country. A trade union is more than a collective bargaining agency; it is an agency of social and political change as well.

Let us not believe that a union will come and go simply because of bad working conditions and that the need for a law will exist simply because there are bad employers, or because we have someone like me involved in a trade union movement and in this House, and therefore able to advocate on behalf of the Trade Union.

The Trade Union structure is an essential part of empowering working people to be stakeholders with their counterparts Government and the employers' union. Without the existence of some kind of formal organisation for the workers, it will make it very hard, if not impossible, for true tripartite system to function in this country.

Therefore, I say to the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman that whether or not he or someone else attempts to do something about organising in that district, should not depend upon situations getting so bad that people see a union as the solution to the problems. By that time, it is already at the conflict stage and hopefully the unions in today's world will mean less conflict, more agreement, more reconciliation, more negotiation, and more cooperation, productiveness and harmony.

I thank the Government through the Minister of Human Resources, for the genuine approach to the acceptance of this Motion. I thank the other Members who did not speak, but who I know have articulated their concerns for working people in other Motions brought before this Honourable House.

I think it is time that we recognise that approaches to problems can be from many different directions. Simply because I choose to say that people should be empowered to improve their wages, rather than having their wages legislated for them, does not mean that I lack an interest in those persons or a serious understanding of the issues which the country is now faced with. No one can tell me that giving a person a fish is more important than giving him the line to catch fish. Allowing people to collectively bargain and providing the legal and other framework for that to happen will put the working people in this country in a position to fish rather than be fed by the fish Government catches for them. I think we are changing our culture in so doing.

Mr. Speaker, in closing, I hope that the country as a whole will have gained a bit more tolerance in regard to the concept of a trade union, and that the review will go ahead in haste and that the Government will be able to report back to this Honourable House in a very short period of time, since we have resolved not to tie this up in Committee but to use research to find appropriate legislation that can be amended to fit our needs in this jurisdiction. Thank you.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 6/01 entitled Review of the Trade Union Law which Resolve section reads as follows:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Government undertake a review of the Trade Union Law in order to address the existing shortcomings and to bring it in line with current developments in Caymanian society."

Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 6/01 PASSED.

The Speaker: In view of the late hour, I would suggest that we adjourn at this time. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 am tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 am tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.18 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED
UNTIL 10 AM FRIDAY, 23 MARCH 2001.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
FRIDAY
23 MARCH 2001
10.31 AM
Eighth Sitting

[Prayers read by the Elected Member for East End]

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed.

Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Administration of Oaths or Affirmations. Oath of Allegiance to be administered to Mr. A. Joel Walton, JP to be the Honourable Temporary Acting Third Official Member.

Mr. Walton would you come forward to the Clerk's table? Would all Honourable Members please stand?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS
OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

by Mr. A. Joel Walton

Mr. A. Joel Walton: I, A. Joel Walton, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors, according to law, so help me God.

Mr. Speaker: Mr. Walton, on behalf of all Honourable Members I welcome you to this Honourable House for the time of your service here. Please take your seat as the Honourable Temporary Acting Third Official Member.

Honourable Members please be seated.

Item 3 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Honourable Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies from the Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology who is overseas recuperating from an operation.

Item 4 on the Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Ministers/Members. Question No. 16 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF GOVERNMENT

QUESTION NO. 16
deferred Friday 16 March

No. 16: Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports:

- (a) What is the criteria for persons to be eligible for a Seaman's Grant; and
- (b) Will persons who have not lived on the Islands for 10 years or more and who are still living overseas, be eligible?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: (a) The previous criteria for persons to be eligible for Seaman's grant, which were approved on 5 September 2000 was –

- The applicant (Seaman) must be Caymanian.
- The applicant (Seaman) must be retired from sea
- The applicant (or surviving spouse) must be 60 years of age or older. If the seaman dies at sea, the surviving spouse need not be age sixty (60) or over.
- The applicant or surviving spouse MUST not be receiving the ex-servicemen benefit.

As can be seen from the above, the previous criteria allowed for persons who have not lived on the Island for 10 years or more, and are still living overseas, to be eligible. Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly will recall that the original intention of Private Member's Motion No. 7/2000 (see below) was that the benefit be given on a needs' basis.

As the new Minister for Community Development, upon taking up office in November 2000, I was very concerned about the amount of money that the Government of the Cayman Islands would be committing the people of these Islands to in the future if the criteria remained the same.

Having consulted the Ministry staff, and staff having met with the Auditor-General, the Government has revised the eligibility criteria for the seamen's ex-gratia benefits and this criteria was approved by Executive Council on 20 March 2001. These revised criteria will save Government at least $1,000,000 this year and will not commit to any further expenditure in the future unless it is on a need basis.

(b) Under the revised criteria which was approved by Executive Council on 20 March 2001, the applicant (or surviving spouse) resident abroad shall not qualify for the benefit.

“AMENDED

“PRIVATE MEMBER’S MOTION NO. 7/2000

“EX-GRATIA PAYMENTS AND OTHER BENEFITS

“WHEREAS Government often grants ex-gratia payment to persons who have worked in the public service but who did not put in sufficient time to qualify as permanent and pensionable;

“AND WHEREAS Government increased the cost of burial vaults from $600 to $1,200;

“AND WHEREAS the cost of other funeral expenses are high;

“AND WHEREAS medical cost overseas runs high;

“AND WHEREAS Government grants free medical to some elderly at our local Hospital;

“AND WHEREAS medical care for our elderly who are sent overseas by Government is not free;

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government consider amending its policy that the spouse of ex-gratia payment recipients be the beneficiary should the recipient pass away.

“AND BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT Government consider granting a minimum of $2,500 towards funeral expenses for our elderly who are not working and for veteran seamen and veterans as needed and find ways and means to offset the cost;

“AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT Government finds a way of reducing the cost for overseas medical expenses for the handicapped, elderly persons of 60 years of age and over, veteran seamen and veterans who are in need of overseas medical attention;

“AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT, because of the high cost of living brought about by increased electrical and interest rates and other costs, financial assistance be increased as needed to veteran seamen and veterans, the handicapped, sick or elderly persons 60 years of age and over or those who are otherwise medically unfit to work.”

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O’Connor-Connolly: Can the Minister say whether or not there is any particular reason why Executive Council’s approval for the original criteria was not mentioned verbatim, or with permission to be attached to the answer to this question?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Member would repeat her question, please.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, please repeat your question.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O’Connor-Connolly: Certainly. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say why the criteria that was approved by the past government in Executive Council was not also attached by way of further information, and whether or not consent was sought for the attachment thereof?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: If the Honourable Member is asking me to refer to an Executive Council paper, I would have to get the permission of His Excellency the Governor to read that. Or does she want me to read the paper where it said you had to be a seaman as contained in this answer?

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O’Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, I was asking why it was not attached. Was it because consent was not sought from Executive Council to attach it by way of clarity and further information seeing that the Motion was attached to assist this Honourable House?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I undertake to request permission from His Excellency the Governor to circulate to all Members of this Legislative Assembly the paper which dealt with the criteria under the past government.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O’Connor-Connolly: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would also be so kind as to undertake to provide to this Honourable House (if she is not in a position to do so today) a list of the applicants which were approved from each of the six electoral districts?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, that question relates in no way to the question before Parliament.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With reference to the paragraph as specified in the question given to this Honourable House which refers to the Minister being very concerned about the amount of money that the Government of the Cayman Islands would be spending, could the Minister say whether this concern arose once she was given the constitutional responsibility as Minister, or whether it arose when the Elected Member for North Side submitted applications which were also approved?

The Speaker: I really do not know if this within the ambit of the substantive question.

Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports you may answer if you wish.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, most certainly there are seamen in the district of North Side and when I was handed the application form by that Minister (when she was the Minister) to deliver to the seamen what other choice did I have?

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Seeing that in the substantive answer the Minister spoke about the $1 million savings as a result of the new criteria, I wonder if the Minister can say whether that is as a result of the applications in hand or the applications that are anticipated?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: The Government took that decision because the past government—and I did not want to get into this sort of debate but I guess I have been pulled into it—took the decision when they decided to give the men what they called a pension/ex-gratia payment to make it retroactive to August [2000]. So those applications before Government right now will not be retroactive to August last year. That is why there will be a saving of $1 million.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?
The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the Minister's answer, but I wonder how much of this million dollars is saved under the new revised criteria, but based on the people from overseas who are now not eligible because of the new criteria.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: The Minister will have to go through over 600 or 700 applications and deal with those. We do not know how many applications we will be receiving from overseas. We have had seamen return from the United States, from Canada, the United Kingdom and anywhere else in the world to claim the $400 as the criteria is presently written. But as my colleague is pointing out the savings of that $1 million does not include that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Would the Minister say whether or not it is the case that persons have come to understand that the ex-gratia payments are due to ex-seamen not because of need but because of contribution?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Since I took over this Ministry we have had people who sailed for one year collecting this payment. It is believed that it is a pension Government has put in place for seamen—which it is not. It is an ex-gratia payment and that is why the Ministry will now deal with it upon a need basis.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Could the Minister say if she can recall whether or not this impression which ex-seamen seem to have could be the result of the entire debate on this, or whether or not it had something to do with the Ministry responsible?

The question is (if I can reformulate it), If the debate with regard to this particular entitlement was conducted in such a way would persons be privileged to conclude that it was a result of a contribution rather than as a result of some need entitlement?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Member is asking me to give an opinion, but I will say to him that I will research and see what basis it was done on.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Minister confirm whether the new criteria will affect any of the current recipients of the ex-gratia payment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I am not in a position to answer that question at this time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: I wonder whether the Honourable Minister is in a position to say that while an attempt is being made now to revise the criteria for the seamen whether it is her intention to do the same thing for the veterans who also receive ex-gratia/pension payment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I am not going to stand on this side of the House and get into a battle of words here this morning. No, I have not considered this. It is a matter that has been ongoing for years, and if it comes to the point where the Government has to, we will.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town, two additional supplementaries after this one.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, just briefly stating that this is a very important policy decision that Government would be making. The attempt here is to get some kind of clarification as to the direction that Government will be going in with regard reviewing—

The Speaker: Please turn that into a question.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I would like to know if in revising the criteria, whether or not it will affect mostly those persons who will turn 60 and apply, or will it affect those persons who have already applied and who are already receiving some type of payment with regard to the revised criteria?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, the major changes on the revised criteria are:

1. Qualifying service—this was necessary as the present criteria do not stipulate how many years a seaman must have gone to sea to qualify for the benefit.
2. Exceptions are listed to the present criteria. This was necessary as there are disabled seamen who are not yet 60 years of age and are in need of the benefit. Additionally, there are surviving spouses who are under 60 years of age whose need becomes more acute once the seaman is deceased.
3. The applicant seaman must not be receiving any other benefit that is based on service. Additionally, if the applicant is receiving financial assistance, he or she shall be reassessed by the Department of Social Services to ensure that both benefits are needed before the seaman's grant can be processed.

4. All new and pending applicants shall not receive retroactive payment. If the revised criteria is adhered to the Government should save, at least, $1 million.
5. The provisional cut-off date for inclusion to the approved list shall be December 2001. If this criteria is adhered to, Government will realise savings of $480,000. This is only an estimate, as the Ministry does not know how many seamen will become eligible in the future.
6. All recipients having obtained Caymanian status as an adult and are currently on the approved list shall be assessed and shall have been a Caymanian for at least three years of their sea-going career. This is necessary as there are some status holders who were not Caymanian at the time they were going to sea.
7. Future applicants without certified documentation will be carefully assessed in order to confirm that he had, in fact, gone to sea.
8. The applicant or surviving spouse shall be domiciled in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Minister elaborate on one of the criteria listed there that related to the spouse of a deceased seaman who is under the age of 60, and give me an exact definition of what would be incorporated into that?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I have discussed this question with that Member.

If the seaman dies at sea and the wife is under 60 years of age, the way it is written now she gets it. But we cannot say if a seaman dies when he goes out fishing that it is the same thing. I have discussed this and I sent the Member in the right direction to assist this woman if there is a need.

The Speaker: Final supplementary. The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I think I would like to direct this supplementary to the Minister of Tourism since he is giving all the answers out there, but not getting on the microphone.

The Speaker: This question is directed to the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Is the Minister suggesting, in fact, that persons who are outside the Cayman Islands presently receiving the seamen's grant would no longer receive the seamen's grant? Would they have to be resident in the Cayman Islands in order to receive the grant?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: This only applies to new applicants because all those persons living outside the Cayman Islands for 20, 25, 40 and 50 years that have come back to claim this have all given local addresses.

The Speaker: Question No. 29, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 29

No. 29: Capt. Eugene Ebanks asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture How many after-school programmes are in the country and who runs them (broken down by district).

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: There are approximately one hundred and fifty (150) after-school programmes in Government schools in the Cayman Islands. In addition, other after-school programmes are run by the churches and community organisations. The after-school programmes in Government schools are as follows:

West Bay: John A Cumber Primary has computer, cricket, netball, football, dance, pottery, uniformed groups, brownies and cubs, gardening, junior Red Cross and academic enrichment programmes.

George Town: George Town Primary has computer club, dance, football, gardening club, craft, steelband and netball.

John Gray High School: Activity clubs, art, badminton club, concert band, business club, choir, dance, drama, Duke of Edinburgh. Focus, girls weight club, guitar club, home economics, information technology, junior achievement, library, lose it all club, netball, peer counselling, recycling club, Red Cross, steel band, volleyball, yearbook committee, house sports and competitions, badminton, basketball, cross country, gymnastics, indoor hockey, netball, quiz, road relay, soccer, softball, squash, swimming, track and field, key club and volleyball.

George Hicks High School: Craft club, Red Cross, Spanish club, choir, recorder, reading club, web page design, Girl Guides, art club, key club, science club, Cayman folk fiddle, music appreciation, math club (year 9), technology club, sign language, table tennis, homework help, fitness club, year book club, football, fellowship club and swing band.

Red Bay: Red Bay Primary School has cricket, football, dance, computer, netball, steelband and academic enrichment programmes.

Savannah: Savannah Primary School has computer, swimming, art and craft, football, netball, dance, Red Cross and uniformed groups (Brownies).

Bodden Town: Bodden Town Primary School has netball, football, instrumental music and academic enrichment programmes.

East End: East End Primary School has computers, pottery, recorders, netball and football.

North Side: North Side Primary School has netball, football, computer club, instrumental music, dance and academic enrichment programmes.

Cayman Brac and Little Cayman: Cayman Brac High School has choir, steelband, agriculture club, newspaper club, art, computer and drama. New clubs still in development stage include Leo Club, debating society.

Spot Bay Primary School has netball, football, music, dance and local crafts.

West End Primary School has sewing, steelband, netball, craft, football, cooking and gardening.

Creek Primary School has arts and crafts, netball and pottery.

The After School Programmes are run by teachers and members of the community who are skilled in local crafts, cooking and dancing.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for his most detailed answer and would ask for his undertaking to look into the three primary schools of Cayman Brac to why they do not offer computers as an afterschool programme. I am sure he agrees this is a very important area.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: I most certainly will look into it and give the House an undertaking to give the Member an answer in writing.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we move on to Question No. 30 standing in the name of the Elected Member for East End.

QUESTION NO. 30

No. 30: Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport what are the current and future plans for the introduction of affordable and appropriate housing for lower income families in these Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The current arrangement for affordable housing is administered under the Government Guaranteed Mortgage Scheme. This has worked reasonably well in the past, but it now requires restructuring in order to make it more accessible to the intended recipients. This refocus will be done in conjunction with the recently appointed Housing Development Corporation Board. We are currently working aggressively on short and medium term plans for affordable and appropriate housing.

It should be noted, however, that it seems unlikely that we will be able to produce affordable housing using the traditional method on construction in the Cayman Islands. Consequently, we are exploring other options which will not only significantly reduce costs but will also offer structurally safe, strong and attractive accommodation. I intend to make a public announcement in late April which will detail one of our plans for affordable housing for these Islands. Honourable Members of this House will be briefed on these plans prior to the public announcement.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Can the Honourable Minister say what are the criteria currently employed to determine if one qualifies for a mortgage under the current scheme?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I do not have the criteria with me this morning. But that is already public knowledge. I will undertake to get a copy of the criteria to redistribute to Honourable Members.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not the current guaranteed mortgage scheme is still in place and operational?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The scheme is still operational in CIBC, Bank of Butterfield, British American Bank and Barclays Bank.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say why the other A class banks do not support this Government mortgage scheme?

The Speaker: I think you are asking the Honourable Minister for an opinion. Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport, you may answer it if you like.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I can say that we are in the process of inviting them to join this scheme. In fact, by now they have either met or spoken on the phone with Mr. Daniel Scott, the Chairman of the Housing Development Corporation Board.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we will move on to Question No. 31, standing in the name of the Elected Member for East End.

QUESTION NO. 31

No. 31: Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports why members of the Sports Department are not actively involved in or working with programmes in the districts outside of George Town.

The Speaker: Before asking the Honourable Minister to answer the question, I would appreciate a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) & (8).

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) AND (8)

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I respectfully move the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) to allow question time to continue.

The Speaker: The question is that we suspend Standing Order 23(7) and (8) to allow question time to continue beyond 11 am. Those in favour please say Aye, those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question time will continue.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ALLOW QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11.AM.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: The staff of the Department of Youth and Sports are not actively involved in the districts outside of George Town due to commitment to prepare age groups national and senior national teams. However, between the hours of 9 am and 3 pm they visit schools in the outer districts. However, the Ministry intends to expand the present programme to include district programmes.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say how frequently the staff visits the outer district schools per week?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: As the Department of Sports presently only has one coach on each sport, they travel to the outer district schools whenever that sport is in season to assist. I know in the district of North Side, the community police officer assists the North Side Primary School on his own with the football during football season.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I understood the substantive answer to read "However, between the hours of 9 am and 3 pm they visit schools in the outer districts." That suggests to me that it is on a daily basis. Can the Honourable Minister say if that is a fact?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: They do not go to the outer districts on a daily basis.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say how long it has been since we have had the commitment to prepare age groups and national and senior national teams? How long have we been preparing them?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: This has been in place since the Government hired coaches and they have worked with the associations and schools.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I was not talking about the coaches. I would like to know the timeframe. How long ago was it? Was it two years ago? Three years ago? Five years ago? Can the Honourable Minister say how many years ago this came into being?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I will undertake to provide the information in writing.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not the intended programme for expansion into the districts envisages including additional new staff for the Sports department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I guess it would entail additional members of staff, but this would not come about until the National Sports Policy has been completed so that we know exactly what our needs are.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: It appears that the outer districts have been left outside. However, I wonder if the Minister can give us a definitive time as to when the department intends to expand the present programmes enjoyed in the district of George Town to the outer districts?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: The answer to that question is no. I cannot give the Member a definitive time. But I can assure him that the Ministry will make every effort to have these programmes moved to the outer districts.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?

If not, we move on to Question No. 32, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay

QUESTION NO. 32

No. 32: Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr. asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs to state the total number of Civil Servants in the Cayman Islands and how many are Caymanian; and how many are non-Caymanian.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The total number of civil servants in the Cayman Islands on 9 March 2001 was 2,721. The total number of Caymanians was 1,565. The total number of non-Caymanians was 1,156.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Can the Honourable Member confirm that this number does not include group employees?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: That is correct. It does not include group employees.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Can the Honourable Member give the number of group employees currently employed by the Cayman Islands Government?

The Speaker: I think that falls outside the ambit of the question, but if the Honourable First Official Member wishes to answer it he may do so.

Are there any further supplementaries? The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: We note in the substantive answer that Caymanians only make up 57% of the total amount of 2,721. Can the Honourable First Official Member say what plans are in place to reverse this trend?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: A decision was taken last year to advertise every post held by an expatriate when it came due, or at the completion of the contract, in an effort to allow Caymanians to apply for the post. The Public Service Commission has been, in my view, very careful to look at Caymanian applicants to ensure that wherever possible as long as they were suitably qualified they would replace expatriates.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: It seems to be a global movement by governments to try to bring some equality in their wages compared with the private sector to attract more people of their own into the public service. Can the Honourable Member say if Government has ever considered that? And I know that we are in financial trouble now, but I wonder if that has ever been considered.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs. I think he is asking for an opinion. But if you wish to give it, you may.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Parity of salaries between the public sector and the private sector is a goal that is well nigh impossible to attain, not only in the Cayman Islands, but in many parts of the world. We have tried, where possible, and Honourable Members will be aware of this. There was a very comprehensive review a couple of years ago of all the posts. There was a very comprehensive job evaluation exercise carried out. Every post in the civil service was re-evaluated in an effort to more carefully ensure that they were graded and remunerated at the right level and wherever possible to bring them nearer to the private sector.

We had a team come in from overseas that looked at certain private sector organisations and tried to look at parity. One difficulty the team had was that the private sector organisations generally do not want to disclose this information.

I think it is a fact of life that salaries in the public sector will never really be brought in line with the private sector. But I believe there are certain benefits in the public service that civil servants enjoy—job security, for the sake of argument, that may not necessarily hold true in the private sector. That has to be put into the equation.

I hear what the Member has asked, but it is an extremely difficult, if not impossible task.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we move on to question 33, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 33

No. 33: Mr. Cline Glidden Jr. asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs to state the longest period of time in which Government has hired an expatriate on contract and who is still employed; and what attempts have been made to train and replace these officers with Caymanians.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The longest serving expatriate officer has been employed since 1969, i.e., 32 years. This officer, as well as the three next longest serving expatriate officers, is a teacher. Efforts to train replacements include:

- Scholarship applications from Caymanians who wish to pursue a teaching career are given priority by the Education Council.
- Annual funding for in-service scholarships for post-graduate training and continuing education for teachers is also made available where possible.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Can the Honourable Member say whether or not Government has in place, in relation to the civil service, succession planning?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: There is a succession plan in place in the public service. The effectiveness and efficiency of that plan depends on every department. The succession plan must be supported by each department.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Can the Honourable Member say how the succession plan is supposed to work?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The succession plan is a fairly comprehensive one and if the Member would like, I would be prepared to make a copy available to him.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I wonder if the Honourable First Official Member can say: (1) If this plan covers from the top of the civil service to the bottom, and (2) is it discussed with the people in the plan on a yearly basis when they are being reviewed for salary increases?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I think for me to answer that, I will have to explain that posts below the level of permanent secretary go through the Public Service Commission. Posts above that level are dealt with by His Excellency the Governor. In addition, posts where the postholder is required to have legal qualifications that does not go through the Public Service Commission; police officers and prison officers do not go through the Public Service Commission. So, it is difficult to answer that across the board.

On the matter of succession planning, department heads are aware of it and the fact is, contrary to the popular view that the Personnel Department must centrally control succession planning, it has to be dealt with on a departmental basis. Each head of department has to be committed and has to work with succession planning. It is difficult for me to say whether or not department heads take this into consideration on an annual basis. If they do not, the fact that we now have in place the requirement (and this is slightly off the subject) for posts to be advertised, then it does give Caymanians the opportunity to apply even if a successor is not identified in a department.

What that policy does is work against succession planning in the sense that I, as a head of department, might identify someone to succeed in a post, but I am still required to send it to Personnel to be advertised. The person that I (as a head of department) might identify as the successor, may not necessarily be the successor. If someone else comes along who is better qualified, better suited for the job, then the Public Service Commission is likely to appoint the best person for the job. But there are always risks in whatever one does in life.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden Jr.: Hearing the statement just made concerning succession planning—and I do not expect the Honourable First Official Member to have the information available . . . Looking at the 1998 Hansards, the ratio was 60% Caymanian to 40% non-Caymanian. There are changes in the numbers we just received. They are now 57.5% and 42.5%. So, we are actually getting a swing in the numbers of non-Caymanian staff. In light of that, would the Honourable First Official Member undertake to give us a breakdown so that we can view for ourselves how the succession planning is going in terms of which expatriate positions have been replaced by Caymanians in, say, the last five years?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I will certainly undertake to try to provide the information for the Member. However, I should say that two areas in particular where we have had increases in the number of posts in the last five years are the health services and the schools. The difficulty is that we are simply not attracting enough Caymanians as teachers and as long as the school system has been expanded, the only way to go is outside of Cayman for staff. The same thing holds true for the Health Services Department.

So, you will certainly see an increase in the non-Caymanian employee in the public service in the last five years because of the enormous expansion in those two areas of government, but particularly the Health Services Department since the new Hospital came on line.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Can the Honourable Member explain how Caymanianisation of the Civil Service features in the Civil Service's succession planning?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is my wish, to see more Caymanians in the public service. His Excellency the Governor shares that view and so do the Personnel Department and the Public Service Commission. But, if there are not Caymanians available, the only thing that can be done is to import labour. That has happened in the two instances in particular that I cited a few minutes ago.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable First Official Member say if, when students are being given scholarships, an effort is made to identify specific posts, that is targets, to which those students would strive to reach in terms of job positions once they return from university?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I am unable to say whether that is done. As the Member will appreciate, scholarships are handled by the Education Council and under the Ministry of Education. I am unable to say whether or not that is the case.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable Member give this House an undertaking that we will actually have Government departments working together? I mean, after all, this is the money of the people of the Cayman Islands. We are talking about Caymanians' lives! It is unacceptable to me to have it answered that another department handles it, therefore we cannot work with them to make sure this happens.

Will the Member give an undertaking that they will be working together to make sure that this critical process happens?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: If I gave the impression that I am not prepared to work with another department in Government, I certainly want to correct that. But I think that Member needs to understand something, and that is that when a youngster in this country makes an application to the Education Council for a scholarship, and if the Education Council approves the scholarship, if he gets a scholarship to be trained as an astronaut, I can do nothing about it.

The Minister of Education and I will work very closely, and I know he will do his best. But I have seen instances where scholarships are given to Caymanian youngsters to train in certain areas where there is no post available in the public service.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable First Official Member say if Government has a recognised evaluation scheme or programme in place, what recognised system it is, and if it includes sections for succession planning for each employee in Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I am not sure that I understand that question. I wonder if the Member could elaborate a little more.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End, please repeat your question.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I am asking [about a system] such as the Hay System—an evaluation system of employees. It talks about evaluating the employee on performance and goals for the next year and succession planning where the supervisor sits with the employee and between the two of them they evaluate the individual: a self evaluation. And he says 'Yes, I would like to be the Chief Secretary' and they set down the plan over the next five years showing what he has to do to be the Chief Secretary

I am just wondering if Government has such a plan, and if it is employed religiously.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: We used the Hay Management team for the job evaluation exercise that was carried out. We recently (beginning 1 January 2001) introduced new performance evaluation forms and, yes, there is a section that allows the appraiser to discuss the issue of succession planning with the one being appraised.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I wonder if the Honourable Member can say who is responsible in Government for ensuring that what the appraiser and the one being appraised decide upon is reasonable and put in place over the long term.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The appraiser is the individual who would deal with appraisals and would agree with the appraisee, the whole issue of appraisal, including succession planning. The Public Service Commission reviews appraisals and I expect that the new system will continue in that way.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable First Official Member say what happens when complaints are made against an individual by someone seeking to move up the ranks in the Civil Service and in his opinion, conscious efforts are being made by a non-Caymanian to stop his ascension? Who do those complaints go to? And how are they resolved?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member. I think that is outside the ambit of the question, but if you wish to answer it you may. The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable First Official Member say if the Public Service Commission, responsible for reviewing the appraisals, does so on a regular yearly basis? And is it working?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is done whenever a matter comes up to the Public Service Commission (PSC), whether it is for promotion, or in the case of non-Caymanians, the issue of replacement. But no, it is not done regularly. The PSC would never be able to deal with over 2,700 appraisals with all the other work it has to do.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Part (b) of the question reads: What attempts have been made to train and replace these officers with Caymanians? If there is a Caymanian in the Civil Service who does not feel he is getting adequate training and there have been conscious efforts by his direct report, that is a non-Caymanian, to provide adequate training so that he can replace that specific officer, who would those complaints go to? And how would the complaint be resolved?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: If an individual is aggrieved by inaction by his or her immediate supervisor, he can refer the matter to the Permanent Secretary in the Ministry involved, or, in the case of the official portfolios, can be referred on to the official member responsible. The matter can also be referred to me as Chief Secretary and can also be referred to the Public Service Commission.

The Speaker: The final supplementary. The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Member say what is the purpose of doing appraisals and what is done with them after being completed? Are they just put in a file and nobody looks at them again? Are they scrutinised, looking at the goals and objectives set and the succession planning? What is being done with these performance appraisals?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Up until last year there was one performance appraisal form for virtually the entire civil service. But it is a case of one size not fitting all. It is something that has been under review for some time and last year we brought in some expertise to assist (I will not get into all the details, it is fairly lengthy). We did workshops at various levels of the service and the end product is a set of performance appraisal forms that will be used at various levels in the service.

The new forms came into effect at the beginning of this year and in fact some are just being worked on as in the case of permanent secretaries who would be my responsibility. I have not yet met with them, but I will be doing so shortly. For the first time, everybody from the Chief Secretary down to the lowest post in the service will have an appraisal; His Excellency will deal with mine.

Those appraisal forms are designed where we will have regular meetings. There will be meetings at intervals throughout the year and it will form the basis for continuing appraisal. A copy will go into each officer's file in the Personnel Department. But the form will also be countersigned by an officer who will also be involved in the appraisal. I believe that the new performance appraisal system is going to make a big difference, a vast improvement over what we have had in place for many years.

The Speaker: Moving on to Question No. 34, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay

QUESTION NO. 34

No. 34: Mr. Cline Glidden Jr. asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs what is the status of the Civil Servants who were suspended from the Department of Vehicle and Equipment Services for the last 15 months.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: His Excellency the Governor has appointed tribunals to enquire into the alleged offences by the Civil Servants who were interdicted from their duties at the Department of Vehicle and Equipment Services.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Can the Honourable Member say when this process is likely to be completed?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The tribunals began meeting recently. It is difficult to say how long the process will take. As the Member asking the questions is an attorney himself – just for information – the civil servants are entitled to have legal representation at the tribunals. It is really a matter of how long those legal arguments go on. I would hope that the matter can be dealt with as quickly as is reasonably possible. I do not know if I can nail down a time, but I would certainly hope it is weeks rather than months. But it is really impossible to say for sure.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if these individuals are prohibited from having any employment during this period since the suspension by Government? And are they paid any emoluments in the meantime?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Persons who are interdicted may apply for permission to work. Indeed, I believe at least one has done so and been given permission.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In the answer it was my impression that the Honourable First Official Member was saying that the Government does not wish these persons to be employed once suspended. Can he clarify that point? Is there any money available to them in the case they are not employed?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I do not think I implied—I hope I did not—that Government is against them working. They are still civil servants and, as such, they can seek permission from the Governor to be employed. To my knowledge, whenever an application is made in one of these cases, it is always granted.

In addition to that, under the Public Service Commission Regulations, the fact is that civil servants when interdicted are paid no more than half their salary.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Honourable First Official Member advise this House why it has taken 15 months for the tribunal action to commence?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The matter was reported to the Police in the first instance to determine whether there was any criminal action to be taken. The Police investigated, went to the Legal Department and it was ruled that criminal charges would not be laid. This did not mean that disciplinary charges would not, or could not, be laid.

The police enquiry and the decision by the Legal Department is a fairly lengthy process. As soon as that process was completed, the disciplinary action was taken. In one of the cases the matter has progressed further than in another, because one of the individuals was off the Island for an extended period of time and asked that the matter be held in abeyance until his return.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: This is a follow-up to my other question. Did I understand the Honourable Member correctly that the hearings in relation to the interdicted officers are now underway?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is my understanding that in the case of the individual who had been off the Island and had asked for the matter to be held in abeyance until his return, that tribunal has not actually been started. It was authorised by His Excellency the Governor and it should start very shortly. But the other tribunal is in progress.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Honourable Member confirm the period of time between receiving the advice from the Legal Department that no criminal action would be taken and the commencement and appointment of a tribunal?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I am unable to give specific dates on this. But I do know that the matter, once word was received that no criminal charges were to be laid, and the civil servant responsible for requesting disciplinary action moved on it, came to my office, there was no delay. I am required under the Regulations to have the Attorney General bring charges. It was dispatched to the Legal Department and within a very short time came back.

I then wrote to the individuals. They are normally given three weeks in which to respond. In one instance, the individual asked for a further 30 days beyond the three weeks. Once the response was received, I dispatched it straightaway to the Public Service Commission, where the matter was considered and recommendations were made to His Excellency the Governor, who then authorised the appointment of the tribunals.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: It appears as if we are talking about two individuals. Can the Honourable First Official Member say whether or not there were three individuals? And what happened to the other one?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: There were only two civil servants involved.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, that concludes Question time for this morning. Moving on to item 5 on today's Order Paper, Statements by Honourable Members/Ministers of Government.

The Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MINISTERS/MEMBERS OF GOVERNMENT

UNITED STATES SUMMER SALES PROMOTION 2001

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Members of this Honourable House may have heard recently on the news hotel rates and discount for a range of services by on-island suppliers about a program which the Department of Tourism (DoT) and the tourism industry partners have put together for this summer season.

I felt, Mr. Speaker, that it would be good to bring to the House a brief overview of why the programme has been put together and what other opportunities have arisen as a result of our partnership with travel partners within the marketplace.

Mr. Speaker, for approximately four years the Cayman Islands DoT and members of the private sector have tried to support the traditional low summer period with a number of initiatives in the US. With more and more customer surveys speaking about the price/value relationship in the destination, Chillin 'n Cayman was the programme designed to offer a special value-added package based largely on reduced hotel rates and discounts for a range of services by on-island suppliers.

Feedback from both the local industry and the travel trade in the US has suggested that this programme has run its course, and is no longer perceived as offering any real value to the consumer. More so, it had become increasingly difficult to encourage the US wholesalers to sell these packages as they were able to negotiate, in some instances, better prices with some of the hotels, bypassing the actual Chillin 'n Cayman package.

Mr. Speaker, in short, the destination became uncompetitive in the US marketplace. Over the last three months, the DoT has been meeting with local industry partners in an attempt to come up with a revitalised programme that would not only stimulate the US traveller to make the Cayman Islands his/her destination of choice, but also to create added incentives to the travel trade to sell. The objective of the new campaign is simple: Increase travel to the Cayman Islands by US travellers during the traditional low summer season.

Since it is the common view that the destination needed to have a more aggressive position in the marketplace and in the minds of the consumer, the programme has been branded as Re-energize yourself in the Cayman Islands! The rationale being that this is how someone would feel after visiting the destination.

In order to make this a competitive programme, the local tourism sector—across the board—in conjunction with the DoT, had to come up with a creative way to entice the consumer. As such, all of the local associations in Grand Cayman and the Sister Islands provided input into its development.

The following is a brief outline of the components of the programme:

- 1) The programme will be available for sale in the US during the period May 1 through August 31, 2001 and visitors will be able to travel during the same period.
- 2) Book a vacation package of four nights or longer and receive one extra night free.
- 3) Kids under 12 stay free and eat free.
- 4) 20% off specified watersports services and select merchandise.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to report that airlines other than the National Carrier have also come up to the plate to offer discounted fares. In addition to Cayman Airways, American Airlines and Air Jamaica have joined the programme as well. Discussions are underway with Delta and Continental.

To stimulate the US travel trade to sell this package, the Department of Tourism and the industry have committed to providing cash and travel incentives to the top producers. A new creative campaign will support the efforts of promoting the programme, and the Department of Tourism sales force in the US has already been mobilised to 'blitz' the travel trade.

Consumer promotion would be via the following means:

- Travel publications and newspapers
- Direct Mail
- The Internet
- Press releases

Additional marketing programmes for the summer will see the DOT leveraging the Cayman Islands brand with other internationally recognisable brands, such as American Express (AMEX cards, AMEX Vacations, AMEX Travel) and MasterCard.

Both card companies have developed programmes that will give cash-value incentives to their cardholders for booking a vacation to the destination using their respective credit cards. This gives tremendous exposure of the Cayman Islands to a targeted database of potential visitors with the propensity to travel to the Caribbean.

The synergies realised by the DoT and its industry partners seek to remove the perception that the Cayman Islands is an expensive—and sometimes only aspirational—destination. This becomes an even more critical objective in the face of declines in the US stock market over the last few weeks.

Mr. Speaker, efforts such as these are the backbone of what drives business to the destination. These efforts, a result of a focused objective between public and private sector, are the template for success for our destination.

Airlift particularly is a critical ingredient to the tourism growth of these Islands, the growing partnership of all elements of the travel and hospitality sector of these Islands augur well for us. I now look forward with anticipation to the success of these efforts, which are underway.

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

SHORT QUESTIONS STANDING ORDER 30(2)

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, by virtue of Standing Order 30(2) would you please allow me to ask one short question for clarification?

The Speaker: A short question, please. The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Minister would be so kind as to explain a bit further his statement which reads, "Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to report that airlines other than the national carrier have also come up to the plate to offer discounted fares"?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: What we are trying to say, Mr. Speaker, is that in partnership with the other airlines we will reach other markets in the United States.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

HOUSE VISITORS

The Speaker: I would like to welcome Miss Cassandra Ebanks, and the group of students in the gallery. We hope you will enjoy your brief visit with us.

We will now proceed with Item 6 on Today's Order Paper: Government Business, Motions, Government Motion No. 1/01, Establishment of National Youth Commission and Committee of Enquiry into the Causes of Social Breakdown and Violence among Youth in the Cayman Islands.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 1/01

ESTABLISHMENT OF NATIONAL YOUTH COMMISSION AND COMMITTEE OF ENQUIRY INTO THE CAUSES OF SOCIAL BREAKDOWN AND VIOLENCE AMONG YOUTH IN THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to move Government Motion No. 1/01 Establishment of National Youth Commission and Committee of Enquiry into the Causes of Social Breakdown and Violence among Youth in the Cayman Islands, which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS events of the recent past in the Cayman Islands have given cause for national concern with the apparent social breakdown and incidents of violence among certain elements of Caymanian youth;

"AND WHEREAS the Cayman Islands society prides itself on its reputation for stability, compassion and orderliness;

"AND WHEREAS the National Youth Policy calls for the establishment of a National Youth Commission;

"BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable Legislative Assembly now authorizes the establishment of this National Youth Commission comprising young persons and other stakeholders—to monitor, implement, review and advise on the application of the National Youth Policy;

"AND BE IT THEREFORE FURTHER RESOLVED THAT this Honourable Legislative Assembly authorizes the establishment of a Committee of Enquiry and that such a Committee be charged with the following –

"1) to investigate the incidents of youth violence and the social breakdown among Caymanian youth;

"2) to enquire into the causes of youth violence in the Cayman Islands;

"3) to identify those issues and concerns which affect what appears to be disenchantment and alienation among some young persons; and

"4) to make recommendations as to ways and means of combating or countering youth violence in the Cayman Islands.

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT such a Committee of Enquiry be headed by Caymanian Sociologist and Member of the Legislative Assembly Dr Frank S McField, MLA, and comprised of Dr Ivan Henry, A Steve McField, Attorney-at-Law, Susan Barnes-Pereira, Ramona Ritch, Pastor Winston Rose, Judith Seymour, Lucille Seymour, Rolston M Anglin, MLA, Cathy Delapenha, Tanya Nelson, Patrice Donalds, Mr Leonard Hew and Janice Bradshaw, representative for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, as members.

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Committee be authorized to co-opt some young persons deemed at risk as well as any other person or persons it (the Committee) deems essential to the achievement of its objectives;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT such a Committee be required to present its findings to the Government within three months of the date which the Motion has been approved."

The Speaker: I have waived the necessary five days' notice for Motions.

Government Motion No. 1/01 has been duly moved. Would you like to speak to it?

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I could stand here and say that I do not need to speak to the importance of this Motion, but this Motion arises out of Government's concern over the seemingly increasing incidence of serious violence among some of our young people in these Islands.

The Motion seeks to address the best way forward for the Cayman Islands in dealing with this challenge by establishing a national youth commission and a committee of able persons to serve on the Committee of Enquiry.

I feel that these Islands have the expertise in the Chairman and all members of the Committee put forward by Government. They are all young Caymanians who are very concerned about the future of our youth.

The Government, specifically through the Ministry of Youth, and the Ministry of Education, is committed to coming to grips with this problem. These Islands can wait no longer to deal with this serious problem; we can no longer sweep it under the carpet. We believe the course we have embarked upon is constructive, effective and appropriate, and the Government at this time takes the opportunity to welcome on board all Caymanians to rally and help us wipe out and defeat and find out the cause of this scourge among our youth.

It is the Government's belief that the majority of our youth are productive, law abiding and respectful. Nevertheless, this country has an obligation to those who do not fall within that. We have an obligation to work with them, rescue them, and nurture them so they can find a way to develop positive self-images, pride and self-esteem. These Islands must give these youth a sense of hope and identity, which is positive, and also a sense of destiny.

The National Youth Policy and National Youth Commission are the instruments that will serve to guide us on the route we have embarked upon. The proposal to develop joint programmes between the Ministry of Youth and the Ministry of Education also holds great scope for these young people for positive development.

It is hoped that the two Ministries can put into place a cadet corps and a national youth service that will attract the youth into formal organisations where they can earn respect and recognition and will encourage Caymanian youngsters into constructive activities.

While the terms of reference of the Committee of Enquiry lay on specific parameters and a strict time-frame, it is recognised that for our efforts to be successful they must be extensive. We cannot afford to leave one stone unturned in our efforts to alleviate this serious problem. It must be stressed that this is our problem. It is not the Government's problem; it is not the Ministry's problem; it is Cayman's problem. And for us to be able to do anything about it there must be a collective effort.

The problem will not be solved with the establishment of The National Youth Commission; it will not be solved when the Committee of Enquiry presents its findings; it will not be solved when every Caymanian youth realises that he or she is a jewel—an essential beginning in the history of society's development. It will only be solved when parents take their responsibilities seriously and exercise their obligation to raise their children well.

I wish to speak briefly about the Committee of Enquiry and its work. It is appropriate for me to begin by expressing the Government's gratitude to the Chairman, Dr. Frank S. McField, the Third Elected Member for George Town, and all those members (some of whom are sitting in the gallery this morning) who demonstrated that this Motion is of utmost importance because they are ready to come on board to find solutions to the problem and accepted the invitation to participate in this project.

The Government is confident that the Committee is equipped to exercise its terms of reference and is behind the Committee 100 per cent. The feedback from the general public on the setting up of this Committee has been very positive. Caymanian society has always prided itself on its resilience, its spirit of cooperation and resoluteness. The establishment of this Committee will afford the society a glorious opportunity to work collectively for a common cause.

I commend this Motion to this Honourable House and hope it will have unanimous support. As responsible Members I would impress upon you not to allow this Motion to become political. It is too important for the future of the youth of these Islands. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The floor is open for debate. The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to offer my contribution to this Motion. As I look in the gallery at the future of Cayman, I am struck even more forcibly by the importance of this undertaking. And how very fundamental it is that we ensure through our efforts—through the efforts of the Commission—that the tragic events that have transpired over the last six months or so, never occur again.

Like many other Honourable Members of this House, I have looked into the anguished eyes of a bereaved father as he struggled to come to grips with the senselessness of the death of his young son. I, too, have listened with tears in my eyes to the heart-wrenching sobs of a bereaved mother as she came to grips with the result of the violence of some of the young people in this society.

Like other Members of this Honourable House and our small community, I have also felt the sense of loss, or outrage, of fear and of helplessness. But we cannot allow this feeling of helplessness to prevail. I am fortified that the Government of these Islands is finally taking steps to investigate the causes and seek solutions to what is now a major societal problem that is fast becoming endemic.

The creation of a national youth commission is one of the initiatives contained in the National Youth Policy that was laid on the Table of this Honourable House recently. That policy is the result of the National Youth Task Force, which carried out a survey of the youth of these Islands over a two-year period beginning in 1998.

After reviewing that survey, I was struck by a number of important considerations. The first was that 85 per cent of the young people who responded to that survey believed that Cayman would be a worse place to live in the next ten years if nothing was done to address the needs of its young people. Those young people had serious concerns about the future. They felt that in ten years Cayman would be an over-developed, over-populated, conflict-ridden, polluted society and country with the drug culture and crime rampant, and poverty widespread. In this scenario expectations were that young people would be disruptive felons and bitter about the negative outcome they were experiencing.

The results of this survey provide considerable insight into the disaffection and disillusionment of our young people, and the bitter fruit that those feelings are now bearing.

Over the course of the past three decades, this country has experienced what can only be described as unprecedented development and immigration at a pace it had never seen before. Over that period, the population increased from approximately 10,000 in 1970 to approximately 40,000 now—and increase of some 400 per cent! Importantly, much of that increase has been the result of immigration. And when a population increases so dramatically over such a relatively short time, there are bound to be serious social strains.

Mr. Speaker, one of the harsh consequences of the pace of development is that we have left many of our own people behind. This is particularly true in relation to our young people, many of whom find it impossible to cope with the society and the education system they find themselves in.

Today's youth are in a position that the youth of yesteryear (the time I grew up in) did not have to encounter, with both parents in most cases working full time just to survive in the expensive society that Cayman has become. Many children are growing up in single-parent homes. Young people today get a lot less attention and guidance and spend less time with their parents than used to be the case.

They are growing up in a society that is constantly in transition. Their attitudes are heavily influenced by the mixing of so many cultures as more people settle in Cayman. The impact of so much immigration has led to a dilution of the Caymanian culture and identity crises in many cases as young people are unsure in many cases of who they really are and where they came from. Added to this sad fact is an education system that does far more to frustrate our youth than to educate them.

Although it is conspicuously absent from the National Youth Policy tabled in this House, an earlier draft of that document reported that in 1999 almost one-quarter of the students who left the government high schools did not graduate. To say that is alarming is an understatement. I believe that this high dropout rate is largely the result of frustration on the part of young people who find that the education they are receiving either so overwhelming or irrelevant that they simply fall out of the system.

The problem is that our secondary education system is simply not designed to cater to the needs and abilities of the majority of students in it. It focuses principally on the 15 per cent or 20 per cent who have high academic abilities and expectations. By and large, it ignores the others, so many of them leave. In many cases, those who do not leave the system graduate from it with little or no skills or qualifications with which to join the workforce. As a result, they find it difficult to cope with the working environment and either find no job at all or float from job to job, never staying anywhere quite long enough to learn any real skills.

In the highly competitive and expensive society that Cayman has become, these young people are almost bound to fail, and bound to be angry and envious of the society which denies them the opportunity to share in its wealth.

But it is not just the Education system that is to blame for the problems with our youth, and it is not just the parents either, although they must share part of the blame. It is all of us who make up this community. Last year (January) I had the privilege of listening to the Hon. Chief Justice as he addressed the opening of Grand Court. He made a statement that has stayed with me since then. He observed that, "although a relatively small community, Cayman is fast becoming less the intimate community it once was. With that loss of sense of community goes the sense of responsibility to one's neighbour. The village does not think like a village if it does not see itself as one. The social fabric of the country has changed, perhaps beyond recognition. As we seek to deal with these problems it would be wrong to lay too great an emphasis upon outside influences. It would also be wrong to overemphasise the institutional solutions. Rather, in the spirit of inclusiveness, the answer will indeed require the support of the entire community." Wise words indeed. In this exercise, and in the time to come, we would do well to heed those words.

Most of us are quick to blame parents for the increase in juvenile delinquency and the attitudes of our young people generally. When a young person goes wrong, we almost automatically say it is because they did not receive a good upbringing, and because their parents failed to instil in them proper values and have not provided them with adequate supervision and guidance. What are these proper values? They are primarily the principles of respect for other people and for property, honesty and integrity in dealing with others, as well as responsibility for themselves and others.

Yes, those are the proper values. But the truth is that many of us in this community are ourselves too often inconsistent in living with the very values we claim are so important. We teach tolerance and mutual respect, but we practice discrimination. We teach that there is value in work, but we disregard the contributions of those who do an honest day's labour for a minimum wage. And too often we are contemptuous of the poor. As the dollar continues to replace all other values in the new Cayman and takes centre stage in this society as the most desirable social value, the virtues of honesty and integrity—which we were taught on our mothers' knees—are only practised by many of us as long as they do not affect the profit margin.

These mixed messages we are sending to our young people have caused the community of adults to lose credibility with them. Our young people not only watch their parents; they watch all of us. It is no wonder that so many of our young people reject those values since it certainly must appear to them that few of us practise what we are so fond of preaching.

So, our young people rebel. It is an understandable expression of their suspicion and distrust. They express this rebellion in increasingly antisocial ways—offences against property, offences against authority, and lately, Mr. Speaker, in horrific acts of violence.

Mr. Speaker, there are other factors at work as well contributing to the growing trend of serious juvenile delinquency. We boast about the high standard of living in Cayman. But poverty is relative, and not all persons share the Islands' high standard of living. Indeed, we know that more than half of our workforce is earning less than $1,500 per month. It is a generally accepted fact that young people from lower socio-economic groups regularly commit more violence than youth from higher socio-economic groups.

Social isolation and economic stress are two of the main products of poverty, and serious poverty undermines the relevance of school and the traditional path of upward mobility. It is also a fact that households headed by women are generally poorer than households headed by men. And more and more households in Cayman are being headed by women.

As Cayman becomes an increasingly materialistic society, there is an increasing division of society into distinct groups identifiable by their relative wealth. And the gap continues to widen between the haves and the have-nots. So, Mr. Speaker, as a country, we have to come to the realisation that children and young people in poorer households feel that their chances of success are limited. For them, and for a much wider group of Caymanians, there is a sense that they cannot travel the traditional routes of upward mobility to wealth—at least, not the wealth they see all around them.

When we couple that factor with the dysfunctional education system, it is inevitable that many of our young people will feel that education is irrelevant. These young people seek acceptance, respect and a sense of worth in a peer group and the value of that group—or gang—becomes their own.

It is widely recognised that a young person's environment is probably the most significant factor in determining behaviour, and that the most significant influence in the life of a young person is his or her particular peer group. The traditional values of which I spoke earlier are rejected by gangs. In fact, it is that rejection that causes the gang's formation in the first place. Eventually the dominant values in the peer group are the ones that the young person adopts.

What do we do? I have already mentioned that our current education system is not designed to cope with the needs of the majority of young people in it. This is a situation that must be addressed immediately. A full-time comprehensive vocational training course must become part of the high school curriculum.

We must do this to ensure that the less academically inclined students can begin to learn what they are good at and remain interested in school. The education system must keep our young people's interest or they will leave it. And when they leave the education system unequipped, unfulfilled, and without a sense of purpose, we have a major problem on our hands.

If we are lucky, those young people who leave the system in that way will just become a social burden. But in many instances, they become not just a social burden; they become involved in antisocial activities. When we lose our young people the gangs and the drug culture are sure to find them.

As parents, we need to exercise more control over the influences to which our young people are exposed. We need to see to it that they are engaged in structured activity of the kind that promotes acceptable values and ensures proper supervision. A young person in an unstructured environment with time on his hands and nothing to do is far more likely to be subjected to negative influences than is a young person who is engaged in useful extracurricular activity. As parents and members of this society, we must endeavour to practise what we preach, and be aware of the mixed messages we are sending to our young people when we do not do so. And more importantly, we need to change our attitudes toward young people at risk and to juvenile offenders. We have to stop regarding them as "those children," or "the children of those people." Delinquency is not limited to any racial group or social class, nor is it in the context of Cayman, a problem of foreigners—it is a Cayman problem. It is our problem and we must fix it.

This Motion calling for the establishment of a national youth commission and a committee of enquiry into the causes of youth violence is a major important step in the right direction. I pledge my support to its Chairman, the Third Elected Member for George Town, and all members of the Committee and the Commission. I believe that they will have the entire support of this Honourable House and we pray the support of this community.

There is far too much at risk. Far too much blood has already been shed; far too many tears have had to fall. Let us do all that is within our power to reverse the trend and ensure that it does not happen again. I thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: This is the usual time that we take our luncheon suspension, but in view of the fact that we have students in attendance in the gallery, is it the wish of the House that we continue with another speaker?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Boddan: Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding, Sir, that some of the students would like to speak with some of the Honourable Members before they leave at 12.55 pm. In light of that, may I respectfully ask the Chair if he would consider asking Honourable Members if they would wish to take the suspension at this time to facilitate the children speaking with some Members.

The Speaker: Certainly, we shall suspend proceedings. But before so doing, I want to again congratulate the teachers in bringing the students here today. We welcome you all, and want to say that the doors are always open when the legislature is in session. We would welcome your attendance and seek your cooperation in this important issue.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I crave your indulgence also to remind Honourable Members that the inter-primary school sports are being held at the Truman Bodden Sports Complex. We have for the first time about 16 schools, both public and private. I invite Honourable Members to visit. There will be a school there for every Honourable Member and more! Please come and encourage the students and teachers in this noble venture.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.15 pm for lunch.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.46 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.40 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Government Motion No. 1/01, Establishment of National Youth Commission and Committee of Enquiry into the Causes of Social Breakdown and Violence among Youth in the Cayman Islands.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to make a contribution to this most important of Motions at a time when it seems the Cayman Islands are faced with a myriad of intractable problems, not the least of which concerns our ability to access financial resources in the amounts we were hitherto accustomed to accessing.

The Cayman Islands today have been long removed from the mosquito infested, swampy backwater as they were described by Arthur Maloney in the 1950s, when he called them "The Islands that Time Forgot." With the change in the economy and in the societal makeup have come concomitant changes in the challenges we face.

I want to dwell a bit on the 1970's when it was realised that the Cayman Islands had taken off with an economic boom and political directorates were consumed with the fact that we were growing wealthy and waxing fat, but gave little or no thought to the repercussions of this new-found wealth. It is true that it is no fault of governments or politicians that they were taken up with the fact that the Cayman Islands became a 'boom' town without realising that there are always two sides to the coin.

So, while it is true that we have made rapid economic progress, with that progress comes certain social tolls. Our society was transformed to the point where a generation (if not generations) of young people grew up and were introduced into a society which because of the rapidity of its movement, was devoid of family structure and other societal structures which had been used in the past to nurture and bolster Caymanians, those from birth up through puberty into adulthood.

The family had changed: it was no longer the extended family system. Because of the economic boom it allowed itself to be segmented into small independent units rather than the extended family system we had come to know. Coupled with that was the advent of television, a medium foreign to the Cayman Islands prior to this time. All these things impinged upon the behaviour, the mores, and the value system of Caymanians. Particularly working class Caymanians became so enamoured, so caught up in the necessity to not only survive, but to do well, which certain things that were cherished in the past were given little or no importance.

The Cayman Islands was always a matriarchal society. It still is today, except that the role of the mother has changed from being a housewife—she is now the predominant breadwinner. We were a society where the majority of men went to sea. But it was known at that time that there was a man, even if he was absent. He periodically came home, sometimes for extended periods. So, sons and daughters knew that they had a father. There were pictures, letters, and money at the end of the month. The circumstances have changed now.

I grew up in a home where the only man I saw was my father—one father and five siblings. That was the old style. Now it is not uncommon to have five children with five different fathers! With these situations there is a certain amount of instability. But instability is not necessarily bad. Instability is only negative when it is not understood. Now we have a system where many of our young people come of age not knowing who is in authority. Mothers have to work two and sometimes three jobs. Some of these kids are termed "latchkey kids." They have the keys, let themselves in and set the rules.

Mr. Speaker, I want to establish that no parent wants to be bad. Every parent wants to be ideal and have children of whom they can be proud. But Caymanian society has been overtaken by a series of events for which parents were not prepared. We were not prepared for the advent of television. I say this again—after saying it umpteen times in this Legislative Assembly—when the television becomes the babysitter we are headed for chaos and problems.

Not to mention too that the world has shrunk and global communications make it possible for something to happen on one continent and before the end of the day we, in the Cayman Islands, are aware of it. All of this is not necessarily positive; some of it is negative. And all of it is attractive to the young and malleable.

We have a situation where our youth are exposed to many different kinds of stimuli which were not around in my generation and those closely following. As a result, we have certain contingencies coming to bear on our students. Particularly if they are in a system where their interests are not being catered to by virtue of the fact that what is taught is not interesting to them. It is foreign to them and they cannot make the connection between learning and mastering those things and making an economic livelihood. And not to mention the fact that they may be influenced by persons they see coming from outside doing much better than they are. All of this bears on how these persons think.

It is basic human nature to be ambitious, to strive to be noticed and accepted. The manifestations come out in many ways. Some people excel at their studies. Others develop a prowess for athleticism—becoming great athletes. Still others take on deviant behaviour. But the basic philosophy is that nobody is born bad. So, the point I wish to underscore is that we cannot afford to write these people off. We have to find a way to correct the problems.

It is pointless to blame any element in society, although that is the usual easy route. We have to try to begin to understand what has happened in Caymanian society since the 1950s up until this time when these problems have begun to manifest themselves at such a rate as to become alarming.

I am reminded of some cultural differences. In the book Men at Risk, Errol Miller tells about the first time he travelled to Washington DC and saw a white man eating out of the garbage receptacles alongside the road. To a West Indian that is a phenomenon because the white people we see in the West Indies do not do that. But if you have lived in North America, Canada and other countries you know that is not strange.

We are exposed to all kinds of influences. Recently we have seen the behaviour of young people become so alarming that it is culminating in violence—violence that was foreign to the Cayman Islands. What is the reason? I do not believe there is any one particular reason. Rather, I believe that this breakdown lies in a combination of elements, not the least of which is a breakdown in the family structure. I believe that the influence of television, particularly the Black Entertainment Network, this whole business of rap music and the genres that surrounds the lyrics of this music, the dress, the code of the streets, have all come to play a part in the deterioration of behaviour among certain elements of Caymanian young people.

Gangs are not new. Anyone familiar with the musical West Side Story will know that gangs existed a long time ago. Now, however, along with gangs (and behaviour associated with gangs) come the drug subculture and all the negative effects. When we have a combination of drugs and gangs, the problem becomes acute and begs for a solution.

In a society that prided itself on orderliness and compassion, we have now (like everywhere else) come to face this kind of problem. This Motion calling for an analysis of the problem by the establishment of a national youth commission is a direct culmination of the National Youth Policy. And equally as important, the Committee of Enquiry to investigate certain anti-social behaviour with a view to suggesting corrective measures, is one of the most important Motions to come to this Assembly in recent times.

Mr. Speaker, we should avail ourselves of this opportunity to be honest and sincere in our efforts to first of all admit that we have such elements in our society, and then to attempt to address them in ways which are meaningful. And I want to spend some time on the necessity of admission.

When previous attempts were made in this Legislative Assembly to enquire into this phenomenon it was met with semantic arguments that there were no gangs, there were groups, and there was an attempt to deny the existence of certain elements and antisocial behaviour at the schools. Previously, when persons like Dr. Frank S. McField wrote that this was the direction in which we were headed, the people who did not like the message sought to 'shoot' the messenger (if not literally, figuratively). The first point I wish to make is that we have to be honest with ourselves and admit there is a problem. If we can achieve this level then we have a good beginning.

I like the way the Committee is set up. In the past, we brought in experts. Here I am reminded of the 1997 Family Study in which commissioned—probably at great expense—Dr. Wint from the University of the West Indies. The study has much information, many things that can inform us. But, Mr. Speaker, it has been to this point little more than an academic exercise. To the best of my knowledge, there has been no attempt to incorporate the findings of this study in any of the policies of government. That was a colossal waste of intellectual ability and a colossal waste of the country's financial resources. I am happy that this attempt at enquiring into a serious problem has a predominately local flavour.

While it is true that a prophet has no honour in his own country, the foreign prophets who did this Family Study in 1997—and a similar study in 1991 whose work went unheeded . . . I hope that when the Government receives the report of this Commission it will meet with a more deserving end. If we do not pay heed, and if we do not understand the problems challenging us at this time, they are bound to grow worse. And while they are now confined to a certain element of society it will spread to the level where it will be out of control affecting us all.

I am happy to have played a very important part and I shall continue to stress that this exercise be done and when concluded that the report be acted upon. That is the challenge for all Honourable Members of this august Legislative Assembly. It is time, Mr. Speaker, that the matter of youth development (their roles, their responsibilities, et cetera) be given the prominence and the importance it deserves. For they will be the persons who occupy these halls when we are gone. If we do not prepare them by inculcating in them a sense of destiny, a sense of responsibility a sense of self, and a sense of country, then sad will be our fate.

The parameters are set. There is one observation that I think needs to be made. Probably due to an oversight, there was no mention of the facilities available to the Committee to carry out its work. I would suggest that the Legislative Assembly is the most fitting place for this Committee to carry out its work. I would like to see some arrangements made so that the Committee can have the appropriate clerical and secretarial pool available to it, and that if necessary there could be some facilities for recording verbatim depositions from persons who wish to appear before the Committee. Mr. Speaker, these kinds of considerations are important as there may be persons appearing before the Committee who may not be disposed to give written depositions but who may prefer to verbalise what they have to say.

I would also like to see the Committee empowered if necessary to go into any section of the community they deem fit in order to gather evidence, either as a whole committee or as a sub-committee. I believe that in order for the report to be as comprehensive and far-reaching as it should be, there should be no encumbrances to the Committee in an effort to carry out its work. But these are matters best developed by the chairman and his members. I see from the membership that we have an eminent panel. I look forward to the Committee doing its work.

I want to address a few matters raised by the Second Elected Member for George Town in his comprehensive and succinct contribution. The Honourable Member mentioned a failing education system. It is a concern of the Government that there needs to be some marked improvements in the Education system. I can vividly recall when the statistic was given that approximately 24 per cent of the students leaving the High School did not graduate, that there was great furore. I have always said that we have a good system if we measure it by the fact that it caters to the top 20 or 30 per cent. The system is significantly weaker when it comes to catering to the remaining 70 per cent. It is to this element that we have to bolster if we are to avoid these problems.

I used to see many youngsters who in my estimation were skilled soccer players, good basketball players. I can not recall too many of them getting scholarships to colleges or universities abroad. I see some of them in my travels along the roads of Cayman. I ask them what they are doing. Many of them express disappointment. It seems that we only give importance to excellence in academic subjects. We have not cultivated the ability to translate athleticism into intellectual prowess.

That is one of the things I like about the United States. It is possible for hardworking students who apply themselves (and heaven knows some have to plod and plod) and have athletic ability to go to college and graduate, some from good schools. It is an area the Cayman Islands needs to pay much more attention to, if only for the reason that as financial resources grow tighter we may be less able to give the number of scholarships we have been accustomed to giving and may have to explore ways of sending more students abroad through athletic scholarships.

For years Jamaica has gotten at least 20 scholarships by sending high school teams up to the Pen Relays in Pennsylvania, plus all the other scholarships they get for soccer and other sports. It is a sensible route to go and it is one I hope that we can explore. It is certainly one area in which I am committed to developing some understanding.

Mr. Speaker, this Government is committed to developing a practical Education system that benefits the majority and is meaningful to the point that students can understand where they are going, and that they themselves can formulate their own objectives and ambitions. But it is not through education alone that the solution lies.

We believe that the best effort has to be a collaborative effort and the Ministries of Youth and Education have agreed to collaborate on certain efforts which are bound to improve the opportunities for Caymanian youngsters to excel. We are talking about a cadet corps, a national youth service, and other organisations that Caymanian young people can enter into and develop themselves to the fullest.

We have entered a time when manhood in Caymanian society is being devalued by the threats and attractions of gang identity, the drug culture, opportunities to get rich quickly, being the neighbourhood 'Don' (a lady's man) and all those things which are not in the long term, positive. It is at this point that we have to exercise sense, restraint, understanding and the ability to deal with this challenge. As Edmund Burke cautioned his generation, "If our patrimony is cast aside, and we become smug and apathetic we shall come to know servitude of mind and body."

I say to those elements in our society who do not want to get involved because it does not affect them now, this is a cancer. It is going to affect everyone if it is not dealt with and treated. I have every confidence in what this Motion calls for. The Committee of Enquiry has my support, the youth commission has my support and I will continue to advocate and articulate for better opportunities for education and training for our young people.

I want to conclude by saying that it is regrettable and unfortunate that we do not hear enough about the good youngsters—that newspapers do not see fit to play up the success stories. We seldom hear about the A students and those who are role models,

I would like Caymanian young people to know that we care for all of them—those who are good, and those who are not so good—and that it is our responsibility to ensure that all of them have the protection, the opportunities and the ability to assimilate themselves into this society to be productive, respectful citizens. And we are determined to do that. That is why the Government has decided to exert an all-out effort to alleviate the scourge of gangs before it grows in our society.

Mr. Speaker, I commend this Motion to Honourable Members. I would like to encourage the Committee, wish them well, and thank them for accepting the invitation to serve in such an important capacity.

The Speaker: Honourable Members, before calling another person to speak, I would like to make a procedural correction.

This Government Motion No. 1/01 was tabled in this Honourable House on 21 March 2001. Therefore five days had not elapsed at the commencement of the Honourable Minister's presentation. I graciously waived the five-day notice, but procedure requires the suspension of Standing Order 24(5), "Subject to the exceptions specified in paragraph (9), no Member shall make a motion unless he has given notice in writing of that motion either at some previous sitting of the House, or to the Clerk, not less than five clear days prior to the commencement of the meeting of the House at which such motion is to be made."

I will now ask the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports to move the suspension of Standing Order 24(5).

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 24(5)

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I beg to move the suspension of Standing Order 24(5) in order for Government Motion No. 1/01 to be debated.

The Speaker: Thank you. I shall now put the question that Standing Order 24(5) be suspended in order for Government Motion No. 1/01 to be debated.

Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 24(5) SUSPENDED IN ORDER FOR GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 1/01 TO BE DEBATED.

The Speaker: Continuation of debate on Government Motion No. 1/01. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I had hoped to exercise a bit of patience waiting until toward the end of the discussion to make my contribution. I feel that since the Motion asks that I chair this Committee it might be best for me to hear what all other Members have to say.

[The Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport rose]

The Speaker: Will you give way to the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport?

Dr. Frank S. McField: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: I will not be long; but that will give the Member some more time. This matter before us is a laudable one in that we are bringing a Motion to set up a committee and a commission. The problem we are dealing with is one that affects everybody. There are so many angles to this problem that I will say a prayer for those who have to deal with it in the first instances, the two Ministers, and the Committee members and those appointed on the Commission.

Dealing with young people is not easy. I speak from a parental point of view. Sometimes we wonder where we have gone wrong, if we have gone wrong, as we strive to raise our children. I have two. As a couple we struggled, sometimes by trial and error. We looked at how our parents raised us. We took examples from other good families. It is not easy being a parent with teenage children. My mother used to say that she could account for them when they were around her frock tail, but after that the world takes over. That is so true!

I have been to funerals where very appropriate sermons have been preached, where speaker after speaker talked about, warned, lauded . . . but still we are faced with a growing problem. We can easily point our fingers blaming various factions and causes. This is much (and I will give this simple analogy) like finding the proper low-income housing scheme—the problem is so that we have to tackle it with various methods.

I wonder how some parents can allow ten-year-olds or twelve-year-olds to rule the roost. Yes, times have changed—pressures have changed. And new pressures have arisen. But, I cannot figure out how parents can allow these children to be so disruptive. Perhaps some of this will rise to the top when the Committee undertakes its work.

At one of my son's graduating ceremonies (in Florida) a teacher of his who was speaking, said that in the United States 92.5 percent of the young people were deemed good, not giving problems. It was the other 7.5 percent that got all the attention of social services; all the attention of the school services; all the attention of the police arm that dealt with young people, and the media. While we have problems at hand that burn us to our soul, we must always remember that we have excellent young people in our communities, in our churches, in our schools.

This morning a question was asked about after-school activities. When talking to various people the first thing they tell us is that Government is not doing enough, they do not have enough activities, the schools are not doing enough. The question this morning highlighted so many things that the school system is involved with. But it lends the question 'Is there time for anything else?' There are 150 after-school activities in Government schools in the Cayman Islands in addition to after school programmes run by the churches and community organisations. I do not know if that is the problem, but I believe that while there can be a few more programmes to deal with problems, I would hope that people understand that there is a lot going on in the school system.

I hope that the Family Study can be perused and that whatever statistics available will be used. I believe that the Family Study highlighted quite a few problems. It made some suggestions. I hope that will be looked at. I would like to thank the persons who have agreed to serve on the Committee. They have already been given the assurance that Government will work with them and do what it can to help them.

Mr. Speaker, I fully support the establishment of this National Youth Commission and Committee of Enquiry.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston Anglin: Mr. Speaker, I rise not only in support of this Motion but also as a future member of the Committee of Enquiry, once this Motion has passed.

In the first Resolve, Government states that there will be a national youth commission which for the National Youth Policy will be an independent body made up of the National Youth Policy Task Force, representatives of the Cayman Islands Youth Assembly, the religious community, the business community, educators, social workers, other Government and non-Government providers of services to young people. Its primary responsibility should be to monitor the implementation of the National Youth Policy and to advocate for youth issues to be addressed in all other relevant policies. Its first task should be to receive and approve a plan of action for the implementation of the National Youth Policy. This mechanism would further enhance the collaborative efforts in the entire community.

Mr. Speaker, it is that very last sentence that is of utmost importance, that is, this mechanism the National Youth Commission would further enhance the collaborative efforts of the entire community.

Being a small community, where resources are seemingly scarce, it is critical that we have a body that will seek to do just that, that is, enhance the collaborative efforts of the entire community in regard to youth.

Talk is cheap. Being the youngest Member of this Legislative Assembly, being four short years removed from the Government's official definition of youth, I feel it particular important to stress to all Honourable Members of this Legislative Assembly and to all citizens of Cayman, that we have heard slogans like "the youth are our future," and "the future is our youth". However, until the Honourable First Elected Member for West Bay and the former Minister of Youth called for a national youth policy, to the best of my knowledge there was no real formal document on youth or serious effort to ensure that issues faced by our youth are properly addressed or an effort to enfranchise them so they would have a holistic view.

The National Youth Policy seeks to do a few things. It is a transition from the old guard to a new policy, to move from an era of competition to one of collaboration; to move away from a one-dimensional approach to one that is holistic, multi-dimensional; to move away from having youth marginalised, to having them be integral participators of society; to move away from control to participation; to move away from seeking cures to seeking prevention.

Obviously, this Motion seeks to bring about some cures because there is illness among our youth. But also, the Committee of Enquiry ultimately must come up with some evidence and when used along with the National Youth Policy and its implementation will seek to provide preventative measures so that someone is not here 20 years from now reacting.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture laid out the entire history, so I do not need to go into that.

Our National Youth Policy brought together adults who were in positions of influence: young people, parents, teachers, police, clergy, sports leaders, club leaders, counsellors, social services, et cetera, in a quest to define high community standards for youth development. It is obvious from reading the document that many meetings, many conversations, and a lot of research went into it. Of course, its terms of reference were much broader than that of the Committee of Enquiry. However, it provides a lot of useful information that the Committee of Enquiry can use in its work.

As I said earlier, talk is cheap. The citizens of these Islands must make a commitment to make Cayman a wholesome place for youth by communicating high standards for people in homes, in schools and throughout the community. Standards and resolutions have been developed within the National Youth Policy, and should include standards of prohibitions against the kind of conduct that has become all too familiar—use of drugs, smoking and drinking, violent behaviour, gang activity, premarital sex.

Mr. Speaker, we have discussed and explored many topics that concern young people—early habits, mode of discipline, household chores, guidelines for watching TV, homework, friendships. A lot of the groundwork has been done.

When it comes to the youth in our community, there are many things we have to look at—parenting, peer pressure, culture, the influence of television, young people going unsupervised for long periods of time, discipline or the lack thereof, the education system, substance abuse, and the topic at hand—violence and gang activity. We need not look very far from the issues facing young people than to find solutions. Obviously born into any issue on any topic is to find a cure. Having said that, we must look at parenting.

I am glad to hear the Government speak of a cadet corps. I am glad to hear Government speak of education. We must look at authority within our society. We must look at television. I was glad to hear the Honourable Minister of Education express his concern about one particular television station, the Black Entertainment Television network (BET). I had a parent from my constituency tell me last year that BET was a great cause for destruction within our society in regard to youth; that it had a great influence on behaviour. Although I am the youngest Member of this House (and we all go through phases) I had not actually watched that station for quite a while. Probably not since my days of break-dancing and rapping.

In those days, life seemed so much more innocent in Cayman. In fact, I think every generation will look at the prior generation and normally conclude two things: 1) they were a lot smarter than us academically because as society grows educationally the parents will equip the children with tools and resources at an early stage that they would not have been exposed to; and 2) people always say 'boy, this generation is bad. It's the worse yet' simply because their lifestyle is very different from ours. The world changes. Some people cannot deal with that, but the world changes.

I would say that it is not that generations get worse. I can remember when rapping and break-dancing came to this country that there were numerous parents who did not want us taking part in that activity because it was so different. It was bad. It meant you were a bad, vulgar child. Different does not always mean worse.

I took the occasion to actually turn on Black Entertainment Television (BET). Another adult was in my home at the time and heard. He was shocked. He said "Rolston, what are you watching?" Once he saw it, he was in as much awe as I was. There were limousines with swimming pools in the rear. There were people who were actually naked except those body parts were fuzzed out on the screen. It was not that they had on skimpy clothing, the people were naked. Their private parts were fuzzed out so that you could not make them out.

This is the type of television our youth are exposed to. What do young persons in the early stage of formulating ideals as to right and wrong, what is acceptable and unacceptable, think when they are at home and this is what they watch? In fact, when I saw that this Motion was coming, I took the liberty of turning on BET just yesterday morning because I wanted to refresh myself. I did not want to come here and say something that might have been a hallucination, so I turned the channel on again in the late afternoon.

Again, I saw a circle of people acting out acts of violence, fights, gang fights, I saw them all gathered around like that is the norm, like that is acceptable behaviour. I saw the people on the television screen all gathered around fighting and the rap music played on, and on, and on.

I go back to what I said earlier, 'Are we going to be honest with ourselves as a legislature and as a community as we embark on this endeavour?' Or, are we simply going to say 'No, you can't censor what the cable station wants to show. It's the people's right to watch that. They should monitor their kids, do parental lock on the channel'

Every generation gets smarter and smarter. I do not buy these solutions because at the end of the day parents can do what they want. But if something is available, something that seems exciting, young people will find a way. If there are things that shock us as a community, things that we do not need, why have them?

To me, it is like all of us saying we do not want drugs, but why have drugs delivered into the living room of every home of this country every afternoon at 3.30 when children are home under lock and key because the children should not have it? No one would agree with that. But there will be people in this community who will find all sorts of excuses for keeping these lewd and disgusting channels in these Islands.

Mr. Speaker, double standards are wicked! They lead you to hell before you even know it! The Second Elected Member for George Town touched on that earlier. Parents can preach, but never teach unless they practise what they preach!

If we, as adults, are going to sit idly by and keep readily available things that we know are destructive, then how can we truly look at ourselves in the mirror and say 'the youth is our future, the future is our youth?' Nothing gets me going more than hypocrisy and double standards. I have seen too much of it in this community in my short 29 years here. This Committee has a lot of work to do. But so does this entire community. Are we going to look at ourselves in the mirror and do what is right?

We are a small community. But we seem so fragmented. Gone are the days when a village mentality prevailed. Can we get it back? It would be good. I am not sure it is practical. But we must try. Double standards . . . we say we are going to fight gangs in this country, yet we have adults who are members of fraternal organisations, such as lodges. Double standards, Mr. Speaker. We look at our youth and say to them "gangs are bad. Do not be involved in gang activities." And in the same breath we jump in our cars and go to our lodge meetings. Whoa, Mr. Speaker, I tell you that is what you call double standards. No wonder our youth are so disoriented and confused.

Speaking of denial, I was at a meeting of the police in West Bay some time last October. We were assured by the Police Commissioner that Cayman did not have gangs. In fact, he said he was from the "big country" where there are "real gangs" and "real gang activity." All we had here was loose groups. Again, maybe we are standing here in this House talking about things that are not in Cayman.

The day after I took part in the Chamber [of Commerce] Forum that I took part in in West Bay, I had the privilege of having the principal from the George Town Primary School call me and threaten me in no uncertain terms that she and her PTA were going to write a serious letter of rebuttal in the Caymanian Compass because she understood me to say that there were gangs in the George Town Primary Schools.

I cleared the air and told her that I did not actually say that. What I said was that it was reported that a particular gang by the name of "Central" was so organised that they had members in the John Gray High School, the George Hicks High School and the George Town Primary School. In other words, they had their legacy plan in place. Where we may struggle with legacy planning within the private sector and the civil service, the gangs have their legacy planning in place.

I was told that they were going to write a serious letter against me. Once I convinced the lady of exactly what I had said, she ended up telling me that yes, there may be gang members attending her school, but that there was no gang activity within her school, and that that stuff cannot be spread about her school. Again, I am not saying there are gangs in the George Town Primary School, or any other primary school.

Of course, there is another gang, or purported gang . . . you see, sometimes this issue even confuses me when I hear all the experts talk about it. Those who are so close to the situation should know whether or not there are gangs. But, there are gangs in West Bay, three they tell me, and a few from George Town. In other words, like an organism that destroys itself from within, so seems the path of us in Cayman where we have to align ourselves with various similarities (the predominant one being along the line of districts), and commit acts of violence against each other. This Committee has a lot of work to do.

One of the things that needs to happen, as I think the Honourable Ministers of Education and Tourism mentioned, is that we need to showcase the success stories, the good children we have. I agree with that 110 per cent! After all, we have two local channels and I am sure that our television station, being good corporate citizens, would avail itself to carry more youth oriented activities, to highlight them, to 'big them up'. I would implore the Caymanian Compass, Cayman Net News, and Radio Cayman that as a matter of doing business they seek out activities that highlight our youth, and cover them. Give our youth the recognition they need, that they deserve.

I was glad to see CITN send in a cameraman to a CASA graduation programme at Boatswain Bay Presbyterian Church last night. We had numerous young people graduate from an 8-week series of lectures on the harms of substance abuse. What was so disappointing was the lack of males in attendance. In fact, on the list of graduating students, four of the 11 were boys. But none of them were actually at the graduation ceremony to collect his certificate and prize for participating.

When we think of parenting, and when people talk about lack of good role models, the lack of good father figures, it starts from a young age in our community. I often hear about "at risk" youth. But on the other side of that coin, I see "high-risk" parents. It is my view that high-risk parents produce at risk youth.

Mr. Speaker, everything in life is interrelated. A few days ago when we were debating the Minimum Wage (Select Committee) Motion I mentioned in my contribution the fact that parents are disgruntled and discouraged because they are working as hard as they can doing what society tells them to do, making the most of their abilities. Yet, they cannot make ends meet. They go home frustrated and suffering from low self-esteem. After all, if we are taught at an early age that if we are honest and hardworking and do the best we can that life should be okay. When that doesn't happen, how can adults have high self-esteem. And if the adult doesn't have high self-esteem and he or she is a parent, how can he or she possibly pass on any level of esteem to the children? Mr. Speaker, everything is interrelated.

When this Committee meets and we start doing our work, we cannot focus only on youth violence, we must focus on everything that contributes to life in this society and address it all at the most common denominator. Everything affects everything.

Disgruntled adults make disgruntled homes, create young children who become disillusioned by having low self-esteem and look for other ways to identify. After all, which young person wants to identify with a parent who is disgruntled, obviously suffering from low self-esteem? The last time I checked, human nature makes one want to do better, and it is human nature to not look at things that you can definitively say are not of a positive standard.

When our young people come together in school and in other social settings, it only seems logical that they would acclimate towards each other and identify with the behaviour of each other.

Self-esteem is a key ingredient to life. On page 13 of the National Youth Policy, item (c) "Youth and Employment" is covered. Reading from paragraph 3 of that section, I quote, "In 1997 the overall unemployment rate was 4.1 percent and though this may be considered low in comparison to other countries, it is reason for concern in the Cayman Islands because of the country's large body of imported workers who make up 44.7 percent of the labour force. Some youth find it difficult to cope with the working environment and normally resign from work rather quickly and frequently. It should, however, be noted that the student drug use survey shows that about one in four students hold part time employment.

"The unemployment rate for young people is notably higher than the overall unemployment rate. The rate for young men aged 15 to 25 was 6.2 percent, and young women aged 15 to 25 was 12.5 percent. That equates to one in every eight."

One of the things that caught my eye was the age range (15 to 25). However, when one takes the time to talk to young people in this community one will find that these statistics do not lie.

I know a young man who used to frequently attend the Boatswain Bay Presbyterian Youth Group when he was in high school. He is out of high school now and he has his driver's licence and a car. So, youth group is not high priority any more. He graduated last June or July and he was only able to procure a permanent job two weeks ago. Yet, we have thousands of people in this country on work permits.

Here is a child who sees frustrated parents with low self-esteem. They made their way through high school and did not think it cool to cause trouble, or did not find it as a natural way of rebellion. They come up to graduation. They graduate and we have a new life coming into the labour force available for a job. They are Caymanian. How crushing it must be to have to look seven to nine months before finding a job. This is ludicrous! Again, everything affects everything.

The message I want to send out to my fellow committee members and to every Member of this Legislative Assembly and to the community at large, it's just that: Everything affects everything.

So, Mr. Speaker, I pick up this young person's life. He is now crushed. He is in the fifth largest financial centre of the world. He's been led to believe that Cayman is in a boom. He's been led to believe Cayman is a wealthy country. But he cannot find a job and he wants to work. What sort of behaviour are young people in that situation expected to carry out? It would seem to me that we expect miracles for youth in that situation to not get into antisocial behaviour. It would seem ridiculous to me for adults to expect people in that situation to not lash out in some way. It may not be immediately overt; it may start out with 'I'm home and out of school, so I'll walk around my district.' He bumps into some of his friends and they are having a drink, so he has a drink too. After all he is in his land of opportunity and he cannot find a job.

So, this young person wants attention. And he will naturally acclimate towards someone of the opposite sex. Then, the person winds up getting intimately involved with another human being. Guess what? Nine months later here comes the baby. How can we reasonably expect a person with that kind of start in life (which in my view is extremely common in these Islands) to be a good parent, other than by divine intervention?

I am glad to hear that the Government is committed to vocational and technical training. That will certainly address persons in the situation I have just described. After all, if that young person were equipped with a tangible skill, had gone through a proper mentoring and work experience programme . . . he should have been equipped to take up his rightful place in society. In fact, once we have the proper interworking within Government with Labour and Education (which I am glad to see housed under the same Ministry), then we can have young people able to come out of high school to take up their rightful places in society, get their lives off to a positive start, have self-esteem—all because they will have a tangible skill to offer this world and will get paid a fair wage for that skill. That would seem to be a decent start for the majority of our young people.

Mr. Speaker, in section (e) on page 14 of the National Youth Policy, we find that roughly 58 per cent of the households in Cayman have both parents present. In other words, 42 percent—four out of every ten young people—do not have the privilege, as ordained by the Holy and Living God, to have both parents raise them. How can we reasonably expect the situation to be anything other than it presently is? I think it is unreasonable to expect.

I think that if we do not act now, if we as a community do not stop putting our heads in the sand exposing the rest of our bodies, we will continue to go down this road that everyone fears so much: increasing crime, gang activity. We are a tourist destination. Everything in life is interconnected. How can we reasonably expect to maintain and enhance our position in the tourism marketplace if there is talk and the existence of real live gangs in the Cayman Islands?

If we are not going to properly equip our young people to take up their rightful place in society, nothing chases away tourists, nothing erodes a tourism product more than crime. You do not have to travel far in this region to see countries that as far as natural beauty is concerned are heaven on earth. The Cayman Islands pale in comparison in a lot of instances in terms of natural beauty. But, when you walk around and get haggled on the street . . . when you do not feel safe, that is probably not a place you are going to frequent.

We can talk about unmatched diving; the Seven Mile Beach; the Bluff; the parrot reserve and the tranquillity on Little Cayman. But crime will chase tourists away from anywhere, I do not care how beautiful it is. If people cannot go to a destination and feel safe, they will probably not come. We must address this issue. We cannot commit the sins of the past. And I am not blaming anyone. As said by earlier speakers, this has been festering for years as this country developed. It is now time for us who are in the here and now holding these high offices to do something about it.

But, the citizens of the Cayman Islands must realise that change starts in every home. The Government can only do so much. Some believe that the Government has a magic wand and when waved it can simply come up with some law and cure the ills of society. The ills of society are born in the homes of society. So, we must cure the ills at home.

We have to intervene where we see fit. We must put proper policies and infrastructure in place that will help our young people and all citizens. But as the old saying goes, "You can take the donkey to the well, but you can't make him drink". The cure starts in every household in the Cayman Islands, not in the Legislative Assembly! We are here to aid and assist. We are here to ensure that those who 'fall through the cracks' have a safety net in which to land so that we can turn lives around and try to get them back on the path towards being productive members of society.

We have to recognise as a community that we are going to be accountable to each other, not looking across the road thinking 'That's their children. It was them that did it. Boy, his girl bad and his boy wild.' His wild boy could break through your bedroom window tonight and do something bad. We have to become accountable to each other in this society. I am shocked at the lack of accountability within this society. I can remember going to John A. Cumber Primary School and seeing children causing trouble by fighting and disrupting classes. Yet, their parents came to the school wanting to beat up the teacher!

[Interjections by Members: Preach on brother!]

Mr. Rolston Anglin: And they would come here and lick us for saying it! Mr. Speaker, we can talk a lot. But, we need to realise that we must all be accountable to each other and seek ways to change our behaviour: there is room for improvement in every one of us.

[Interjection by Member: You got that right!]

Mr. Rolston Anglin: When I go to church and I see fidgety children, I can tell you this much I am not going to shy away whether or not the parent is sitting next to the child. In some fashion I will say "be still." But, Mr. Speaker, that does not happen any more. I have gone to functions, where adults watch children do all sorts of mischief and nothing is said or done because the parents are not there and everyone is afraid to say something to somebody else's child.

I say that if an adult in this community chastises a child (and I do not mean by beating) by correcting him for something he knows is wrong, that person should be commended. But we live in an age where that parent may want to come and fight you for saying something to his child: "How dare you say something to my child?" That parent feels his child is perfect and can do no wrong! Or, if it is wrong, it is just 'cute' they are just being children'. It is not that they are challenging authority—it is just that they are children.

I would say something else, but then it might be said that I am fascist or something like that.

[Inaudible interjection]

Mr. Rolston Anglin: Yeah, they might really throw licks at me, Mr. Minister.

Mr. Speaker, I think this is a convenient point to adjourn because I have more to say.

The Speaker: I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House as we have reached the hour of interruption.

The Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 am Monday.

The Speaker: Before putting the question, I would like to remind Honourable Members that debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address will commence on Monday. I ask Members to come prepared to participate in the debate.

I shall now put the question that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 am Monday, March 26. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.29 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 AM MONDAY, 26 MARCH 2001.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
MONDAY
26 MARCH 2001
10.14 AM
Ninth Sitting

[Prayers read by the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper. Reading by the Honourable Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies for absence from the Honourable Second Official Member who is on other official business and from the Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology who is back on the Island and hopes to be back in the Assembly on Wednesday 28 March.

Item 3 on the Order Paper is Questions to Honourable Ministers/Members.

Question No. 21 stands in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town. Since the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Legal Administration is not here, I would appreciate a motion to defer this question.

The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF GOVERNMENT

QUESTION NO. 21

Deferred on Monday 19 March 2001

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Due to the unavoidable absence of the Honourable Second Official Member, I move that this question be put on the Order Paper on Friday, if possible.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that this Question No. 21 which was previously deferred until a later Sitting to be determined by the Business Committee. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 21 DEFERRED TO A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: Question No. 35 standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 35

No. 35: Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr., Asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development what has been done regarding Private Member's Motion No. 11/2000 passed by the Legislative Assembly on 17 July 2000.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Since taking Office, the Government has agreed to establish a Public Utilities Commission to pull together the various matters relating to public utilities into one body.

Honourable Members will be aware that electrical rates and their method of determination are established in the existing franchise agreement between the Government and Caribbean Utilities Company Limited (CUC). The Government therefore, considers that the best way forward in dealing with electrical rates is to review this agreement with Caribbean Utilities Company Limited and this is the line the Government intends to take.

I now move on to the matter of interest rates. This is now under review and once an approach to dealing with this matter has been decided, I will inform all Honourable Members.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Honourable Third Official Member inform this House of the format of the review, and by whom it is being carried out on the interest rates?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: This is a matter that has been discussed in Executive Council. But with the myriad of matters now taking place, especially review of legislation and other issues that connect with the Monetary Authority, it is a question that an appropriate time will have to be determined as to the best way forward in terms of having this discussion.

It was initially felt that it would be useful since there is no provision in law at this time for the Monetary Authority to participate in discussions with the clearing banks in the setting of interest rates. A procedure will have to be developed whereby this is taken forward. But the specifics as to how this can be done cannot be articulated fully at this time.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Third Official Member say if a public utilities commission is only for CUC?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: It will not be limited to CUC only, but the parameters and terms of reference are being developed by the Ministry of Planning.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Honourable Third Official Member confirm that the utility companies on the Sister Islands will be included in this review and subject to this commission?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Third Official Member say if guidelines have been started as to how a utilities commission will be set up?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As I mentioned earlier, guidelines and terms of reference are now being developed by the Ministry of Planning.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I know CUC was specifically mentioned in the answer. Can the Honourable Third Official Member say who is going to perform the independent audit of CUC?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: A decision has been taken that this activity be carried out, but the specific firm to undertake this review has not been decided upon as yet.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Is any consideration being given to have the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority as the body that will regulate and set interest rates in the Cayman Islands in the future?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As I mentioned earlier, this matter is under review. Part of that process will include discussion with Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly. Until we get to that point, I am not in a position to go into any further details.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: For the benefit of Members who are not familiar with the Resolve of the Motion 11/2000, would the Honourable Third Official Member read it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: It reads: "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the Government has an in-depth discussion with relevant banking institutions and Caribbean Utilities Company Limited with a view of reducing the impact of these recent increases on their clients."

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we move on to question No. 36, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 36

No. 36: Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr.: To ask the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development to state how the amount of stamp duty, due from cheques, is accounted for; and what stops printing companies from using this stamp without paying Government the required fees.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The banks submit, through the mail, a cheque to cover the stamp duty on cheques issued to their customers. These funds are accounted for under Government Revenue Head (postage stamps) by the Treasury Department.

Up until now, there is no specific measure that has been put in place to prevent printing companies from preparing cheques for their clients without the required stamp duty having been paid. The reason underlying the absence of any such control was that it was less than a month ago that the Portfolio of Finance became aware that persons were able to order their cheques directly from printing companies without going through their banks. This practice will soon be corrected by an amendment to the Stamp Duty Law that will require the payment of stamp duty on all debit transactions by banks. This will be supported by the need for the filing of quarterly returns.

The Speaker: Are there any supplementaries? If not, that concludes Question Time for today.

Item 4, Government Business, Bills, Second Reading of the Appropriation Bill, 2001. Commencement of Debate on the Throne Speech, delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday 9 March 2001, together with the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member on Wednesday 21 March 2001.

I would like to remind Members that there is a long debate ahead of us, and I do not want to deprive anyone of his or her right to speak, but I will not be able to wait too long between speakers. The floor is open to debate.

The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION BILL, 2001

COMMENCEMENT OF DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH, DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR ON FRIDAY 9 MARCH 2001

TOGETHER WITH

THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON WEDNESDAY 21 MARCH 2001

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is at times like this that I remember clearly my time in this House prior to now that all participants in the business of this Legislative Assembly claimed the right to leadership and everyone attempted to lead from behind. Some believe that it is right to debate matters of the magnitude of the Throne Speech and Budget Address. They rise to do so. Then those who come behind speak to the largest extent on what the one who spoke first had to say as if there's little thought of their own. Things have not changed much for me; I have been in this position dozens of times.

I wish to thank the voters from the district of Bodden Town for electing me in November 2000 to be one of their representatives. It is a great honour and I shall do everything possible to earn the confidence they placed in me by electing me. I might add that there were many who "knew" that I would never be here and I guess there are some who are sorry that I am. But I owe a great debt to those persons who worked very hard to assist me in the past election. Of course, I represent those persons as well as those who did not vote for me. And when it comes right down to it, we do not know who voted for whom—that is the beauty of the election process.

As you said, Mr. Speaker, there are two matters before the Legislative Assembly: the Throne Speech, which is supposed to set out Government's policies, presented by His Excellency the Governor a few weeks ago; and the Budget Address, which is the estimate of revenue and expenditure for this year on into next year. I propose to speak first on matters related to the Budget.

Firstly, I would like to mention matters related to the business of the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). The Honourable Third Official Member has referred to this matter and said that substantial progress has been made in dealing with harmful tax competition—that is the child of the OECD and the Financial Action Task Force (FATF).

I am of the opinion that it is not in our best interest to take up the hymn of the OECD regarding harmful tax competition. What tends to harm us the most is the matter of taxation. If there is competition in tax, then I cannot see it being harmful. If it is harmful, perhaps those who claim that may have an excuse. But if taxes were not so high in their countries, people would not look to jurisdictions such as the Cayman Islands where there is some tax relief.

It is an attempt by them to make it look as if countries like the Cayman Islands exist wholly and solely to hide, smuggle, and assist criminals and drug dealers which is absolutely not true. They will not admit that their tax regimes are so harsh that their people try to find jurisdictions to give them a break from taxes.

Of course, there is another side in that it suits companies (even from the US) to have an overseas jurisdiction from which to carry on certain business.

I think there is much to be said for little Islands such as the Cayman Islands, with only 39,000 people (if we believe the latest census), that can find ways and means to assist themselves financially in order to survive in this big harsh world of money and money dealings.

The Cayman Islands have led the way in many instances of dealing with matters, which could have allowed some people opportunities to slip through a legislative loophole. These Islands have responded through various legislation—The Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law, prior to that The Narcotics Agreement, the Government of these Islands has signed various agreements over the years showing that it is prepared to create a legislative framework, which does its best to hinder criminal activity and encourage foreign investment.

The OECD countries, particularly those in Europe, are the same countries that profited from slavery hundreds of years ago. While no slaves are being moved by ship now, they are using similar tactics to browbeat and batter small economies like the Cayman Islands. That is my belief and up until now I have no cause to change it.

It is more threat than any standing in law what they are demanding other countries to do. It is not just the Cayman Islands or Turks and Caicos, or Montserrat, or BVI, the so-called Dependent Territories. They are also going after independent countries. If some of those independent countries such as Barbados or the Bahamas dare tell France, or even suggest that England should do this, or Liechtenstein should do that . . . well, if they did not drop one of their bombs right on us, they would certainly bomb us with bad publicity in international media. That is what is happening right now in the present scenario with the OECD.

They are creating "grey" publicity, a mixture of truth and lies. Those who study politics know that can be done. Every time a crook is captured in the Cayman Islands he is wined and dined back in the US (at least one comes to mind whose name I will not call), and the more he sings the more it scares would-be American investors. The more he sings the lighter his sentence. It is the game that is played and they are playing it to the hilt!

Mr. Speaker, it goes to show that when countries have harsh tax systems their people will try to get away from them. It is about their taxes. They have created these harsh taxes but no matter how hard they try, they cannot get the machinery in place to cover every loophole. Since they cannot deal with their own nationals in their own country on many of these issues because they are illegal, they pick up on small states as they are doing with Cayman.

I admire the stance of Barbados. On the international scene, Barbados has shown that what they are attempting to do has no standing in law. They have ganged together (that is the OECD countries) attempting to challenge the territorial integrity of independent countries. Some of the legislation I hear about definitely takes away the territorial integrity of a country.

If countries like the United States, Canada or England can sit thousands of miles away and demand to know about the account of X or Y, what kind of world are we now 'arriving' in? They want us to become tax collectors! They cannot do the job they are supposed to do with their citizens therefore we must become their tax collectors. The worst part of it is that even if we take the job we will not be paid for it!

I believe that this OECD thing has gone too far. If members of the OECD, the industrialised nations in the largest part, have a problem relating to an individual, they have the right in international law to make demands to find out information in Cayman and otherwise. Cayman has certainly cooperated in this. But I do not believe it can be right for any country in the world to be able to tarnish another by making blanket statements and accusations.

Mr. Speaker, again I say I think the OECD nations want countries like the Cayman Islands to go back to the situation of master and slave. I, for one, do not believe that is just or right. I think it affects the fundamental rights and freedom of the people of the Cayman Islands. We have not knowingly supported situations where criminal activity goes on in our banking system. Our laws hinder such a thing from happening whenever it is discovered. It is no different than when $10 billion was funnelled through one of the major banks in New York by the Russian Mafia. We did not say that the US Government was encouraging that. It just happened! And the US Government moved to do something about it through its agencies dealing with such matters.

One thing that gives me serious concern (because it is so irrational) is what is the role England plays in relation to the Cayman Islands? England is one of the main countries of the OECD—one of the first! How is it that we can possibly believe that someone is setting out to destroy what we have and is helping us at the same time? I am unable to rationalise that. We see press releases stating that they will be representing our views to the OECD. How are they going to represent our views? And what position will they take when the decision is made by the OECD? Will they take ours or their own and their colleagues? It is a ridiculous situation.

I personally believe that Cayman rolled over and played dead too quickly in the whole process. I do not really believe that we are negotiating in a way where we are saying 'No, we cannot do this or that.' My suspicion is that we are agreeing with a lot of things that are ultimately going to not be in our best interest down the line not too long from now. That can well put an end to us being a financial centre. I do not believe we should do that.

Included in my view is the fact that I believe the process by which we should negotiate with the OECD countries is to hire persons from their countries, consultants or experts in the field of finances that the OECD countries are complaining about, and have them represent us in forums where actual bargaining is undertaken. There could hardly be anyone better to deal with French law than a Frenchman who is an expert in French law. I think that we should largely be the ones to say to those people we hire, 'Here is what we can do. Here is what we cannot do. Advise us. What is the state of affairs in these various countries? Represent us in these forums.' And, if they decide we will be starved to death; if they shut off all air service; if they stop shipment by sea or whatever; or if they block us on the Internet . . . well, then let the world stand in judgment about that particular condition.

Somewhere along the line we have to take the courage to take a stand and do what countries like Barbados are doing. I wish them great success and hope it has a little spill-off effect on us.

One thing we have to bear in mind (that is, if we believe the Bible) is that we cannot serve God and Mammon. Therefore, we have to have a clear position where we stand with the UK Government in this particular issue. I think right now it is rather cloudy. How do we go signing agreements, undertakings and all the rest, not knowing what the ultimate requirement will be, or not knowing up front the true implications?

The situation of the White Paper is a living example. We hear about "partnership." I guess we are in a partnership something like what the Minister for Women's Affairs has to work against, that is, domestic abuse. We seem to be undergoing some sort of domestic abuse in our efforts here.

[Member's interjection: And violence too!]

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, there is violence too if they are taking away all our money. I cannot think of anything more violent!

So much for the OECD at this time.

I would like to speak on the domestic economy as mentioned by the Financial Secretary.

I agree with him that our economy has slowed down. Generally speaking, I believe we are a people extremely versed in the psychology of denial. I can recall many instances listening to debates in this House on tourism and otherwise that everything is just fine, things are buoyant, things are happening. But they are happening in a negative format. I believe we have to understand that the boom we have experienced must slow down, as it is Nature's way of check and balance. The question is, what is this present Government going to do about it? We know what the past has done, and now we ask what the present government will do about it.

I do not believe that we can boost our economy by simply continuing to issue work permits, as I heard it suggested that we need revenue from work permits, therefore we have to continue to issue work permits. I think it is an ideal time for a trimming process because if we can find our own Caymanians to do jobs it means that we are giving opportunities to our own people. Their finding employment will mean that the money will stay here, rather than leave our shores.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development also spoke about the growth of the listings on the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange. Let me say that I believe the Cayman Islands are a jurisdiction offering the best environment for doing business. Those who would work against us admit that we find ourselves in the fifth position in this particular world of finance. My question has been, and continues to be, what are we getting out of it? To what extent are we benefiting? Some jobs, yes. No question about that. But the fact that so many billions of dollars (that we hear about) move in and out of the Cayman Islands freely on a daily basis; what do we get from that movement?

I suggest we do not get what the accounts get and what the lawyers get for handling the movement of those funds. They charge fees. The Government charges a little measly fee to the banks/trust companies/lawyers/accountants and reaps nothing from creating the environment in which these businesses thrive. I think the time has come for government—this Government—to look at creating a system whereby we will charge fees as the managers of these monies do in order to benefit all people of these Islands.

When there is a bad story about the Cayman Islands financial ill repute, it reflects on us right down to the man on the street who does not have one clue what is going on, what is being talked about, and he certainly is not benefiting from the transfer of billions of dollars through this country as do the people who manage it. The time has come when the Government has to stop taxing the poor, the middle-class people of this country to create an environment where the wealthy increase their wealth while paying little or nothing.

I saw where the Financial Secretary said, "Growth in insurance licences was more modest, increasing from 529 in 1999 to 545 in 2000 or by 3%. However, gross assets increased significantly from US$12 billion to US$14.9 billion or by 24.2%." What did we get out of that?

Company registration had similar growth. But I remember way back some years ago when we had the 'Dream' team who went to London, Hong Kong, and New York. And to prove how powerful we were, we attempted to change the fees of our laws somewhere over in Hong Kong to put them below our competition's fees. Of course, they have had to increase them since that time because we did what we said we were not going to do: We said we were a destination of best choice; therefore you had to pay for that. We were not going to get down into low fees and all the rest of that. These are the mistakes we should not repeat!

There has been a drop in tourism. And the numbers are not good this year either. I think it will get worse if we do not do something about it. That something is to charge less for the goods and services. It is being driven by greed. Greed is affecting the tourism industry in the Cayman Islands. That is the main cause. When we compare our safety factor with any of the other islands, ours is the best. It is the greed factor: making things too expensive, living outside of the world of reality. It is allowing three or four large hotels to dictate what the terms are going to be and everybody sits down and sings what a wonderful job we are doing. It is ridiculous! Something needs to be done about it.

At most conferences attended in the Caribbean through the CTO and otherwise, there is a constant reminder that what makes tourism in the Caribbean what it is is the small hotels of 100 rooms or under. We are also told at those conferences that what might be good for the big 500 room hotel is definitely not good for the small one because they can pull people in in big numbers leaving less to spill off. They have advertising dollars to an extent that the smaller ones do not have and, therefore, they have an advantage.

When the Government has advertising programmes that do not focus attention on the smaller guesthouses, hotels, apartments and so on, but focuses on the smiling faces of some of the managers, it does not help those who really need the help. Wholesalers and travel agents like to deal with the big hotels because they can get more persons booked into larger hotels and get larger commissions. So, they automatically get a larger part of the pie.

The Government needs to intervene by saying to the people offering accommodation, food and beverage services that their prices are too high. Government cannot tell them how to reduce them, or what areas they need to cut, but Government can insist that we make Cayman a little less expensive. Other countries, our competitors, are doing it.

Most recently the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport made a statement regarding a summer package. I bet if we looked at the amount of the people's money is being put into that advertising programme compared to what the five big hotels—who are going to profit the most—put into it we would be absolutely shocked. It is a milking of the revenue with little return.

A good example is in a release I am thinking of. It was said in that statement that if they stayed [four] nights they would be given an extra night. But at the beginning of the journey Cayman Airways in effect was supposed to give them half price. Forget about the Government. Forget it is owned by the people. The ones who want the money and seem to get the money all the time are those who are offering the accommodation and food services.

Some of them tell their guests that going anywhere else is not good because the food is not good, and otherwise. They use all sorts of tactics to keep it all in house. Other than the few jobs, the money is collected here and sails back overseas because we import virtually everything used in those hotels.

The time has come for Government to realise that it has some harsh and hard decisions to make. Coming here in this Legislative Assembly talking about the past government does not help the present. We know about the past. We have to deal with the present.

There is certain expertise in government in dealing with revenue measures. But if we look at our various revenue measures, some are penny-ante.

I recently sold my car. I got approval from the bank to sell it. I went to the police station and learned that I had to pay the Government $10 for taking the lien I had on my car out of the computer . . . the bank did not charge me anything, and it was really theirs. But I had to pay government $10 to have it transferred. That is what we resort to when we talk about "billions of dollars" that pass through and are handled in the Cayman Islands. Where do we get off? We had better get wise.

Everyone has something to say about consultants. I do too. But there are times when consultants are needed. I believe that we need to hire a two-person team versed in financial management with ideas of ways and means of generating revenue to come and look at the situation in the Cayman Islands overall and advise us. I think we would first look to England to assist us in this regard. We need an objective examination of our situation done real soon because this year's budget clearly points to the need.

I think we need to struggle with agriculture. The Financial Secretary spoke about agriculture and its role. We need to get self-sufficient as quickly as possible and stay self-sufficient.

The most recent outbreak of foot and mouth disease in Europe shows how important it is for us to have our own cattle, not depending upon importation. Perhaps this will make us focus on buying things grown here, as our few farmers keep hoping we will. While it will cost a bit more, it is healthier for us.

I believe that one thing government can do is educate every household about having a home garden. It will reduce cost and provide food for the household.

If we want a barometer that tells us what is happening in the economy, we only need to look to the construction industry. I have heard from several persons that there is really a downturn in the construction industry. The Financial Secretary has made a comment that I think is very truthful and factual. In the section dealing with construction, he said, "Rising interest rates also had a negative impact on commercial property approvals, which fell to their lowest level in the past five years."

I think it was Shakespeare who said that a rose by any other name is just as sweet. If take that to be truth, we better get a central bank and call it by any name to see if it can bring something sweet to these Islands.

I have never understood how we (and when I say "we" I mean successive Governments in this country) talk about us being "giants" in the financial world. And we are not able (that is the Government) to manage the business of interest rates. It is given up to collusion between the banks that profit from it to charge basically anything they want in no relationship to foreign currency or the supply of Cayman Dollars. They sit down, collude, set an interest rate and that is it. They say we do not need a central bank, that it would be too restrictive. How can we claim to be big shots in the financial industry without having the regulatory benefit of a central bank and also give ourselves a direct vehicle for collecting fees from the banking that goes on here? That is something that needs to be dealt with immediately.

Government has said for years that it has various measures in place that sees to the collection of taxes and the management of funds but that is really not proving to be too accurate at this point in time. We hear of horrendous amounts of money owed to Government—

Mr. Lyndon Martin: Mr. Speaker, may I just interrupt to inquire if we have a quorum in the Chamber?

The Speaker: [addressing the Serjeant-at-Arms] Please summon the members to come back in.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Since I do not have a quorum, Mr. Speaker, I will give my throat a break. In fact, the whole Government is absent! I hope my speech is not all that bad or so overwhelming that they prefer to hear it in the Common Room on the monitor.

The Speaker: Please continue, Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I was speaking to fiscal management in the Government—

The Speaker: Can I just interrupt you for one minute? This is the normal time that we take a break. If you are going into a new subject, it may be convenient to give your throat a break.

We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.19 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.41 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing his debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Financial Secretary mentioned the fiscal performance of this country between 1991 to 2000. I believe in this decade we have seen many changes, which should point us to reality. We have been in good times, boom times, and those times must slow down, or come to an end. In the figures he put forward, it clearly shows the trend that things were slowing. Last year, the estimated revenue did not happen. It is my understanding from his speech and the Budget before the House that there is expectation that this is going to continue therefore the reason for such huge borrowing.

I think a lot of things have caught up with us—a lot of expenditure in all areas, uncollected bills in all areas, perhaps the most recent being millions of uncollected dollars from the [health] insurance provider for the civil service. There is the wild spending that took place—which I believe favoured certain political expectations—increased handouts from Social Services and other exgratia payments right down to the present time when we are told there was expenditure for recent roadwork not estimated.

There is one good thing about that—we have the roads. Therefore, the Government of the day will not have to expend more money on roadwork, at least on the major roads, too soon!

I believe there is bloating in the civil service. It is the impression I get. While I have observed in answers given during this session of the House, there appears to be a move towards differentiating persons who are permanent and pensionable as being civil servants and those in the wages group as not. I don't think that is accurate. There are persons in the wages group who have been there for decades. They certainly fall under the same personnel regulations. They must abide by the same rules as others. These are some of the areas that have been causes for increased expenditure and the revenue was not keeping pace.

I will quote what the Financial Secretary said in this regard, “In summary then Mr. Speaker, not only did the growth in Recurrent and Statutory expenditure outpace the growth in Recurrent Revenue for the period 1991-2000, but more importantly this divergence in growth rates got larger during the latter half of the decade. [And this is what I think is most important] Mr. Speaker, this pattern of divergence between what the country collects and what it spends on its day-to-day operations is clearly not sustainable.”

We do not have control over what we collect as revenue. But we must exert as much management prudence as we possibly can over what we spend. That is my interpretation of what was implied by that particular statement. Generally speaking, I think Government can get better value for money. The public at large is tired of hearing about over expenditure and overruns on projects where nobody is responsible. One good thing that the people who are responsible for these things can count on is that they are not responsible—or so it seems.

There needs to be some strong medicine taken in regard to financial management in this country. I am aware (as far back as 1995) that the United Kingdom Government had serious concerns. In 1995 and 1996, when I had occasion to go to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) along with the present Minister of Education, we were told quite bluntly by the officials we talked with that they had concerns about the finances, expenditure, and growing debt of this country. I believe that as sensible people we should all be concerned about it.

We do not want to reach a point (as did some of our neighbours) of asking for handouts from the UK Government (which I am sure they are not that anxious to do), or, worse yet, going to some of the other international lending institutions that demand our life and soul, to say nothing about dictating what we do.

I have a pamphlet issued by Deloitte & Touche (world renowned accounting firm with great financial standing in the world) on the Cayman Islands Budget of 1999. They made a few observations. If we took the contingent liabilities of that time, they said, “the total government debt and contingent liabilities was therefore $396 million. Servicing the direct debt represents an increasing proportion of the government's budget. According to the 199 Budget public debt of $111 million will create a debt service of $17 million or 6.3% of total budgeted expenditures." It has been growing. It did not happen overnight. We have to become more stringent in how we spend.

They also made some recommendations that I think are as relevant now as they were then. I will quote three: "Commission a current actuarial valuation of the pension plan, following actuarial suggestions for contribution to pension plan assets, and change to a defined contribution pension plan; Continue to encourage and accelerate reforms in fiscal management and financial reporting." I believe that needs to be intensified. I understand Government is working towards that to some degree, but I believe it has to come in place as quickly as possible to arrest the current situation.

Thirdly, "Provide an independent review of the efficiency and value for money within the operations of the public sector and establish a timetable and priorities for reform." I understand plans are in place and are being worked towards even now. How fast they go depends to a large extent on the political will and the general acceptance within Government of these changes. I have heard that is not too much an open deal. If that is the case, somebody has to make that happen. It will cost money, it will require man-hours but someone has to make that happen quickly. So, I agree with the Financial Secretary that changes need to come, and they need to come real fast.

It becomes interesting when it comes to what is proposed in this Budget for the year 2001. The proposed budget includes both borrowing and taxes.

I did not vote for the taxes and I do not intend to do so when it is put again. I have as a guideline for this action from what has happened in the past. I refer specifically to Private Member's Motion 24/99 which is captioned, "Review of Measures Imposed Under the Finance Law 1998."

It reads: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT, due to the hardships being experienced by both consumer and trader in the Cayman Islands as a result of the recent revenue measures imposed under the Finance Law 1998 (Law 20 of 1998), Government review the measures with a view to easing the burden imposed upon the people of the Cayman Islands." The motion was moved by Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts and seconded by Mr. Roy Bodden, both of whom are now ministers of Government.

The imposition of taxes now worsens the situation that existed in 1999. Everywhere, I hear the average citizen complain about the cost of living in Cayman. I believe the tax package, while assisting the people who provide purified and desalinated water, will directly impact all other areas in the cost of living for the average person. An avoidance of taxation is what I believe more appropriate.

It goes back to what I said earlier: why is it that the average citizen is constantly taxed to provide revenue for Government that in large part goes to expenditure that benefits the rich with the rich hardly having any cost of living in this country? A means must be found to place relevant fees in the areas of wealth to benefit the areas that are not wealthy. I am not here to say to Government how that can be best achieved. I have offered some suggestions. I believe there should be a fee on the money that passes back and forth in this country that lawyers, accounts, banks, and so on benefit from. We have to find a way other than taxing the average citizen.

The other thing that is very alarming is that approximately $56 million is to be borrowed—the largest single borrowing ever. Some of this money will go to finance recurrent revenue. That is really of great concern. Borrowing in the past normally went to capital expenditure. We now have to resort to borrowing for recurrent revenue. The problem has obviously become greater because, among other things, there are only approximately 39,000 people in the country. How long can the working people pay money to provide sufficient revenue to pay for the day-to-day expenditure and service Government's debt?

The United States is in a slump, perhaps brought about for political reasons. I am not here to say. It is affecting us now and I believe it will continue to affect us through this year. There seems to be no magic formula for their situation right now and we are reaching a point where alarm bells should go off that something is wrong. I suggest that for a country of 39,000 to have expenditure of CI $362 million is a serious situation. How can such a small population spend so much money? Where are we spending it?

Something has to be done. I believe the Government needs to do something about it. I believe that the UK, with her interest in the Cayman Islands, ought to take a look at it too, at least provide expertise to review the whole situation because we are all caught up in this particular debt vortex.

I am aware that Government pointed out there was a $10.7 million deficit, and that there were other bills to be paid from last year, along with the retroactive cost of living to civil servants. But I have also seen that the cost of living increase due for this year will be deferred until 2002. So, it is the same thing over and over again. My point is that it does not help to hear about the past, we are dealing with the present and the same costs will exist in 2002, when it might well be harder to pay that money.

Our country is at very serious crossroads. We have to remember that the outside pressures on us from the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), the Financial Action Task Force (FATF), and all the other Task Forces (TFs) we hear about, is making it more difficult for us to survive. That is why I say that those in Europe want to put us in the master/slave situation again. We are too much of an upstart, we have too much money, we are not poor enough, and we have to be put in our place. We have to be seriously careful of what is happening to us and do something about correcting it. We cannot go into long projections envisioning the future. We need to take control of our expenses and seek means of creating revenue that obviously we do not have, at least not to the extent we want to have it.

The question has been asked as to where the money for the loan will be coming from. My own guess is that four or five of the banks will each take a part of it, spreading the risk and making it easier to manage. I do not know but I do know that $56 million is a lot of money. We do not know what interest rate is on it. Add that to the national debt and the repayment of the debts we have is what will be extremely significant. I do not see any statement as to what percentage of recurrent expenditure paying such a loan will create. That is of concern to me, and I believe it should be of concern to us all.

I imagine that there are other means available for producing revenue. But the one the Government has come up with is largely through borrowing. I know that is one of the ways of finding money, and I guess that most of us in here are borrowers. So, that is the way they are looking at things. I believe that another way has to be found to get revenue other than borrowing and without taxing our people any further. As the Private Member's Motion I referred to stated, it was unbearable in 1999, it can't be any more bearable now.

I would now like to comment on some areas of the Throne Speech.

The Royal Cayman Islands Police (RCIP) fall under the Portfolio of the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs. We have a large police force, although those in command will always tell us there is a need for more. There has to be an acceptable ratio. I cannot say that I know what it is. We do not have the money to get all of the officers that I have heard we need, therefore, we have to get to the best possible deployment of police officers.

From the perspective of the district that I represent, we have wants and desires for police presence 24 hours per day and sufficient in number to not leave the station unattended. I daresay the Commission would say that does not happen, or if it does it is rare.

Crime seems to be on the increase against the Government's very best efforts to help the situation. However, I get the impression that we tend to over exaggerate the crime situation to some extent, not trying to downplay the fact that we do have murder occurring too often nowadays. We have to find our own people to do the job of policing as much as possible because only they can know as much about our country as they do. We cannot expect persons other than our own to understand the culture, nuances and so on, like they do. We are very short of such persons. We seem to regularly import police officers from the UK, irrespective of what anybody else thinks they are different from us socially and culturally. No disrespect to their professional training or ability to enforce law and order, we have to look at the expenditure in this area. Not only is their passage to Cayman paid, they are given the contracted officers' supplement. So, it is costing us money it would not cost us if we were able to recruit locally.

I hear of too many instances where Caymanian police officers are retiring long before the age of retirement. I am told it is out of sheer frustration. If that is the case, I believe something needs to be done to find out what the situation factually is. We should not rely on reassurances from the police high command that everything is all right. I must say that our present Commissioner is very reassuring and that is very good but we need more than reassurance in the situations where we, the people, feel a need for safety and protection and it is believed that it is not what it should be, or that it could be improved over and above what it is.

We have so many problems resulting from our own success, the growth of development, the growth of people coming into the country, the growth of drugs in the country that it is a never-ending story.

I would also like to comment on the judiciary. I see that His Excellency the Governor said, "In the year 2001 the judiciary intends to consider new procedures to improve the management of civil cases." We do not know what these are, hopefully we can find out when the Budget comes.

What seems clear is that things are not well in dealing with cases as quickly as they need to be dealt with and there is also a serious need for space.

I was in this House for eight years (my first time), and out four years, and still the problem of a courthouse is a major problem. I wonder if it does not strike anyone that it is necessary to create a place that can deal with all of the problems.

I wonder if legislators would be so minded to go to the courthouse. Go into the bathrooms, for example, and realise what is existing right in the middle of town. Persons from every strata of society might end up there. There is need for more courtroom space, need for lawyers, there is need for everything else.

I recall a time when two people had a problem one would threaten the other with 'We'll settle it in court.' Everyone in this country looked to the court as the final authority never to be questioned. They felt they would walk away with justice in most instances. In the past few days I have seen where a number of law practitioners wrote a letter about the judiciary, reaffirming their belief in it and the separateness of it. But I heard of a recent case where I had to seriously wonder what was happening.

I heard on the news about a woman who came here, gave a false name, was caught by Immigration, and was incarcerated. Shortly thereafter, this woman was taken from jail without being formally charged and taken to court on a Sunday. A Justice presided over the court finally charged her and she moved on. She left the Island supposedly on a private jet. I also heard from legal circles that it was a most unusual thing for that to occur on a Sunday.

I know that if it had been a Caymanian hoping to get his or her case heard on a Sunday . . . it sure would be unusual!

I think a formal statement should be made about that particular case. We need to know more about that because as it happens in law a precedent has been created. I am sure lawyers would love to be able to summon a judge on a Sunday and get that kind of alacrity.

A legal statement says that justice must not only be done, but it must be seen to be done. I think that is something that needs to be dealt with and the public needs to hear more about it as many people have spoken to me. It is also becoming a favourite on the talk shows.

I have always had a high regard for the people who work at Government Information Service (GIS). They are hardworking, and understaffed. I believe they are doing a good job and I think the staff there is as dedicated (the newer ones) as those of the past. I believe that this is an area that should be developed because any government need to have good Public Relations (PR). It need to explain to the public what it is doing and why. Certainly, I believe that we need to develop this in order to be able to respond to external forces that would accuse us of things that are not true. Part of GIS (at least in other countries) is to get news articles from different parts of the world, keeping up-to-date, calling the necessary Ministers, and suggesting and recommending certain responses.

I do not want to forget Radio Cayman in this regard, because if there is a department of Government that has performed to the benefit of everyone in this country, it is Radio Cayman. I still believe that it should be a statutory authority allowed to make its own way. In fact I understand that it pays its own way. Just about everyone in Cayman listens to Radio Cayman at one time or another because of the variety of its programming and because it is an official arm of Government.

In concert with Radio Cayman Government would be well advised to have a television broadcasting station operating from the building if possible. I know that the second floor was designed with that in mind, but that is now occupied by staff dealing with the radio station. But I believe Government should seriously look at producing local programming of public education, including what Government is doing, should do, can do and all the rest of it.

I think it is also appropriate to comment on a broadcast last week on the local television station. I seconded a motion brought before this Honourable House regarding broadcasting from the Legislative Assembly, and I made certain comments about my concern for television broadcasting in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I pointed out that the first television franchisee (Mr. Desmond Seales) had that as a requirement. I know that because I was the Member of the House who brought a motion here when television franchisees were going to be awarded. It was unanimously approved that more than one should be granted. There were three at the time.

But the owner or managing director (Mr. Colin Wilson) chose to particularly name me on Tuesday after the news. He had everybody's attention and stated that he was "mystified" and that what I was saying was untrue, or a lie. I would like to take a moment to demystify him.

I wondered why he would come on as personally as he did. I had a sneaky feeling that someone from the Government told him to do that. But I am sure that did not happen.

[Members' laughter]

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: There were three franchises given. We know that the one with Mr. Seales fell away for legal reasons or otherwise. So, I was not wrong in saying that.

I was told by various persons on the Brac that they were not getting Channel 27 news, which they should be getting. I understand it was started, but that there was a fall off. But he said on Tuesday evening that Channel 27 was there the day after.

Now, I am not trying to refute what he said but my main point was that the larger part of the business of that station is capturing what is available to all of us on satellite dish and re-broadcasting in which they insert certain advertisements. There is nothing wrong with that; that is business. But he really went out of his way to give the impression that I was trying to misinform, which I certainly was not. And I certainly made this point too: I do not believe that it is conducive to competition here or anywhere when one management company supposedly operates two or three television stations in virtually the same spot with the identical audience.

How do you decide which one gets the advertising? How do they compete? Does the management undersell one against the other? This is what I mean when I say it is not conducive to competition.

In the US it is a crime to not allow competition and if he is offended by my remarks, then so be it. I rely on the statement made by the Leader of Government Business that the Government of which he is a part will accept other television applications that might come and that his Government does not see television limited to the way it is now. Mr. Wilson said he welcomed that. I hope that the Minister will call on his Permanent Secretary and the relevant people to dust off those applications that have been sitting for many years unattended and that new ones will come in to make use of the new wireless technology to give some competition there. I hope he welcomes that, as he said. I certainly will. I believe all the people who will get television service here would welcome that too, as we will most likely find a reduction in cost.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let the applicants decide on their own financial viability, not the Government.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Absolutely!

The Minister said Let the applicants decide on their own financial viability, not the Government.

We hear much about the prison. I have had occasion in recent times to visit there with the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs, as did all Members of this House. There was one thing I was glad to see, and that is that security has changed. If there should be another uprising, or a riot, it seems clear to me that one person cannot leave one block and go to another and start a fire because each block is self-contained behind sturdy wire.

But I was unhappy to see the waste of young Caymanian lives. It was not a happy experience to realise the millions of dollars we are spending to keep a facility of that size to incarcerate our people. I am glad to see that the judges are finding reason to give sentences that do not include incarceration. I am told that there are too many people sentenced to hold in that prison, and that there are persons in the George Town Lock-up which is over filled beyond its capacity.

The majority of cases of persons imprisoned are related to drugs. Much of it is the use of drugs. The person using drugs is really damaging himself. They call it a victimless crime, although they are the victims themselves. They are killing themselves and I believe that we have to get to a point where we understand that smoking a stick of ganja is not something to put a young person in prison for. If anyone says that cures him—show me the proof!

I am not talking about persons who have 800 pounds of ganja selling to people, the suppliers and peddlers. I am talking about those who use a bit of ganja who are taken to court. The police tell them to give a urine sample so a case can be proved against them. We have moved into an era that is beyond the 1970s when people used to get sentenced for finding one ganja seed in their possession, or, I can see it now in the papers, .004 of a gram. That is an amount so small you can hardly see it.

If we have not gotten past that state of mind yet, we better get over it now and learn that we have to educate our people to the harm it does to them, and to society. But we need relief in the prison and that is one way I think we can do it.

Other countries cope with it and deal with it in different fashion. I am not advocating any way whatsoever people importing or attempting to supply, or those people who steal someone's VCR to get drugs that has nothing to do with use that is burglary. Let him pay the price a burglar pays. We seriously need to look at our situation and make some changes.

I would now like to speak about the Legislative Assembly, a place I respect and love. It was built in 1972 or 1974, almost one generation ago. We still have this place specially built by our forefathers where we can meet to debate and arrive at conclusions to make laws. I think that we need to seriously realise that the work of legislators now has increased immensely over that of others in the past, both at ministerial level and at ordinary MLA level. The demands and expectations of the country have increased and the public makes greater demands on us, and rightly so.

The salaries paid to legislators are indeed among the highest in the land. Therefore, they have the right to expect us to work for our money.

I think that the Government ought to take a look at this physical facility which is no longer coping with the amount of work, storage, or actual operational work. Something has to be done about the Legislative Assembly in terms of creating space real soon. It is becoming more difficult for the staff. Sometimes committees will come here having not called ahead, and there may be another committee meeting going on. There is a definite need for space. The need for parking has increased and the general aesthetics of this building need to be dealt with real soon.

I think we need to update our library facilities where MLAs can have greater access to information on a particular motion or subject they are debating. As you would know, Mr. Speaker, that is certainly the case in the House of Commons and other parliaments where they have librarians who can produce the information for you. The public would not understand that when we bring a subject to the House that affects them, or when Government bring a matter that we have to debate, we have to research it. If we are going to make a counter proposal or something we have to have information to back that up. While I am not saying that we should not do that, we need some assistance. We need persons who know how to find it in the library which is very limited.

I also think it is necessary for us to put in electronic format the history of this Legislative Assembly, its laws, minutes and everything else. It is on its way, and here I think it is fair to say that the Hansard Officers do a magnificent job of responding to us when we ask for a transcript of what was said, and in producing the Hansard. Nevertheless the Legislative Assembly needs to have attention. I think in the overall process, we need to look at staff.

We have heard that the Clerk is leaving her post effective in June. I would like to thank her for her assistance over the years that she has given me in her capacity as Clerk. I wish her the best in her future endeavours. However, there will be a question about filling that post and I am sure there are other needs here. In arriving at what the needs are, I would suggest that we try to get someone who is well versed in the business of parliament. I am quite sure we could get it through the CPA in London to advise us, which would be of benefit to us in reaching a conclusion.

The civil service is—

The Speaker: May I interrupt you?

We have reached the hour that we normally take our luncheon break. If you are going into a new subject, this would probably be an appropriate time.

We shall suspend proceedings until 2.15.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.47 PM*PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.31 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing his debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: When we took the suspension, I was talking on matters relating to the civil service—something I feel very close to having been a civil servant for most of my working career. The civil service is an extremely large group of employees. In fact, the civil service has the largest number of employees.

I commented that there seems as if there is a definite effort to separate the permanent pensionable establishment from the group employees who are also paid from the public purse and under the same regulations. I think that the situation with the civil service requires a complete objective review by experts in the field who we should recruit to do that exercise.

In the past, there have been persons within the civil service who have done various reviews, particularly those related to salaries. While I do not doubt they acted in good faith making recommendations that were implemented and are ongoing, the last time I heard of an independent review from the outside would be close to nine or ten years ago. I know there was one since Ralph Waller but I do not recall a complete review of the civil service.

We know that personal emoluments and salaries, are taking 53% of the Budget. That being the case is one of the best reasons we should look at this situation to see what may be done in terms of holding it at its present level or if there is a possibility for reduction where there may be duplication of work. I think that a complete review is necessary.

Speaking of salaries, I believe a major unfairness has been ongoing in the civil service for some time. And that is the contracted officers' supplement. I raised this issue in the first Finance Committee held by this Parliament and I intend to raise it again and again. I believe it is unfair. I think the majority of civil servants would make the choice, if so given to receive in addition to their basic pay another 15% every month. As it is now, it is only contracted persons. Among those a small number are Caymanian, I am told. They receive this 15% of their salary, which is not paid to pension like the rest of us. It cannot be fair.

It certainly represents a cost to the Government that is separate and apart from what is paid in the case of all other civil servants. I believe that needs to change. It cannot be right to create two separate types of people, particularly when it comes to salary.

I understand that training is ongoing in the civil service. But I believe it needs to be intensified and greater opportunity given to individual civil servants' improving their skills and knowledge within the job they occupy. We depend heavily upon non-Caymanians in the civil service and it is time that we went back to the mindset of the early 1970s when Caymanianisation was a real thing. From that time sprung most of our older managers who are now in the civil service. This can be accomplished with some effort, and does not take a considerable amount of money for we have in place a training unit. If it means enhancing it with one or two more trainers, I believe it needs to be done.

This leads me to a point that has existed for decades where supposedly in the civil service a person is only paid for his first degree. In the case of teachers, there are many that have a bachelor's degree and a master's degree giving them more knowledge overall and creates a better mind, when they return here they are told they cannot get an increment for that. It is absolutely ridiculous and irrational. It makes no sense. It is like somebody getting certification in book-keeping and that person is employed within an accounting process and you get a CPA who has spent 3 to 5 years then you tell them that this person has this qualification and we cannot pay you for your higher qualification. I think that is something very unfair and I believe it needs to be addressed.

I am presently involved in a process that is looking into reasons why more people are not finding the teaching profession attractive. I am discoursing with various teachers. I say now that that is one of the things that have come up time and again—not from one, but from many. What is the use? What sort of respect is that for someone who went on to improve himself? He cannot get one more increment let alone two.

I want to speak briefly about the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority. I believe there should be a Monetary Authority with full autonomy. I have seen the recommendations made by the auditing firm KPMG. While there are a few things that I may disagree with, in general I think the adoption of those recommendations would make a whole lot of difference. It would give it the authority it needs and make it a better functioning body. I cannot subscribe to the view that Executive Council made up of Ministers and Elected Representatives, can be the best judge in determining whether banks should exist, whether they meet the various criteria or whether should be closed. I think that we have to have a specialised body doing that.

In 1995 and 1996, when I had opportunity to go to the UK and meet with officials of the FCO, they were specific that they wanted to see a body that was exercising authority, similar to a mini Bank of England, to regulate, supervise and even now there is ground that has not been covered in that regard. I think it is unfortunate that we should linger on this exercise giving those people who work against us in the OECD, the FATF and all the rest of them, reasons to criticise us because of doing something that good management sense demands. I definitely support the idea of the Monetary Authority becoming an auto-mous body supervising and regulating the banking industry.

I do not agree that the biggest role should be reporting on people's accounts to external forces, particularly when requests could amount to fishing expeditions.

I also believe that they should have an inspection duty and responsibility rather than only reporting. Let me say that the people of this country should not be taxed any further in penny ante form to find money to pay for inspectors. The banks and the companies that have to be inspected will have to be charged to pay for any increase of staff necessary to carry out the exercise that is being required.

I have heard statements like, 'Oh, we have to be careful how we raise fees on the banks. They will pick up and go.' Well, to where will they go when it looks like the OECD is standing by with a big cannon pointed at everybody who attempt to set up shop as we have here in the Cayman Islands offering financial services. If they go back to these countries, I am sure they would love that. So, it makes no sense whatsoever.

I think that bringing the Monetary Authority in line with the things happening around us makes a whole lot of sense. If we move the situation from where Ministers of Government are also directors of banks (as has happened in the past) making decisions about banks . . . therein lies a major problem and opportunity for all sorts of grief as we have seen in the past.

We will undoubtedly have to recruit a number of overseas people in various specialisations to work at the Monetary Authority. And that brings me to the point of immigration a never-ending story for us in the Cayman Islands.

I will not try to go into it in any great detail but I would like to make a few points as I see and understand them to be. Immigration, in its truest sense, is a deliberate action by someone leaving his or her place of domicile to go to another country to live indefinitely. That is real immigration. When we go to the United States, we have to show our intentions if we want to go there to become a resident or a citizen because it carries certain requirements including paying US taxes.

The majority of people in the Cayman Islands that we hear so much about related to immigration, have come here and worked for many years, some 15, 18, 20 years. They, by long and unbroken residence, and by the fact they have come to see this country of ours as home—some of whom have had children here—feel more at home here, and consider this their home, although that was not their intention when they started out.

We have to deal with that situation so that persons who have been with us for a very long period can indeed get the legal right to do so. Those who have had children here must also be given consideration. However, unless we have enough sense to put in place what existed before and hurt no one, but helped many including employer and employee to plan, that is a rollover period, we are not going to solve the problem.

Since I have been in the House again, I have seen some of the recommendations that came from the business sector about the rollover idea. As I read that, I was astonished to see what would be committed to paper by a self-interest group as to why they should have persons come to the Cayman Islands indefinitely to work for them. I have seen ridiculous suggestions as to why there should never be a rollover concept in this country.

That would suggest a few things. Every time a labourer, the best labourer that ever was, the best teacher, the best doctor, the best lawyer, the best accountant, and the best everything . . . and we all know that cannot be so. Persons recruited to come to the Cayman Islands are chosen with whatever information is available on that person at the time. And they should come with the knowledge that they are coming for a specific period of time. That way, the employee can plan his future, or he can refuse to come and the employer can plan the succession of his employees and plan to train during that period.

The recommendation of a five-year rollover was made in 1991/1992. This matter was raised in the Common Room with the visiting FCO officials and the Governor on 13 February. When I raised the question, they promptly said that five years was the timeframe used in England. If they see the sense of it—and anyone can see the sense of it, except us it seems—then why can't we as legislators, a new House, see this and realise that the only way we can put an end to people always being here ten years and fifteen years, feeling this is their home, is by putting in place a rollover period? I think it has to be done or we will forever be dealing with the situation over and over again.

The Immigration Board has a difficult task. While it has to deal with people coming in and going out, it is also required to act as a labour board and the two functions are really different. I am pleased to know that some effort is being made by the Minister assigned with the responsibility for labour to have that part of things functioning in a different manner than Immigration. That Immigration does not have to be labour officer and that the labour office does not have to try to be Immigration.

The question of labour, human resources as it is now called, is one that relates to finding and employment of a human resource. If a person is suited to a job that we want to fill, then, and only then, is it necessary to involve Immigration. In fact, it is a matter of advising Immigration that Tom Stokes will be coming in to do such and such a job and is travelling with the necessary documentation.

Most of us make the situation more difficult for ourselves and the board entrusted to deal with the many complicated matters that naturally result when dealing with human beings, and handling them in the best form, but not understanding a lot of the true dynamics of the situation. That is why there is mounting resentment and criticism from our own people, many times unfairly, where generalised statements are made that are not true and not fair. But my duty is to find that which is fair to all concerned and to verbalise what I hear from the people who elected me.

I do not want to know that Government is attempting any situation where Executive Council is going to sit down to try to determine how many people and who should have residence or Caymanian status. I believe the only way we can reach some conclusion, if the courage is there to do it, is for us to meet as a Select Committee of the whole House where every Member has input into what happens. I know there was a select committee that fell away without making a report. I think that needs to happen again. I hope there is the will to bring it to a conclusion and to act upon the recommendations.

I believe that the people who have been with us over long periods of time should be given the opportunity to apply. If the requirements are met, if they have been good citizens, if there is cause to believe that they are not falling as charges on the state they have a right to be given approval to remain. But we have to come to a point where we are going to count time from that point forward and put in place requirements that the same situation cannot keep reoccurring. As in the past the rollover did not prohibit anyone from returning to these Islands, but there was a break. They had the choice to return or not, and the employer had the opportunity to find someone as perfect as the one they had.

Immigration has impacted heavily on Social Services. I remember in 1991/1992 when we were dealing with the Select Committee on immigration, we were astonished at the number of people receiving money here in Cayman because they could not supply themselves with sufficient earnings and children getting in trouble had some quasi-connection with the persons living here. I understand similar still exists. From the perspective of social services, I think we need to look for some solutions. I do not believe the solution is setting up a welfare state to give handouts to anybody and everybody.

We should not do anything to snatch the pride of a very proud people that we are, particularly our older folks. Many of them want opportunity, many are ready and willing to work but cannot find employment simply because of age, not that they are lame and dying. There are other instances that I have heard where persons find all sorts of excuses, throw up their hands and say Government needs to help them. I think Government can help by creating opportunity and where there is genuine need, help. But it is something where we have to reach a point where we can courageously say to our people 'Listen John, listen Jane you can work. Get out there. You've got to work. You can't live each day to get rum to drink and just give up on life.' We need to do that because it seems to me to be a growing situation. Every year in the estimates more people are coming to Social Services and the country has to find more money to fund it. It has become a problem that we need to address as a matter of priority.

The Governor also spoke about Cayman Brac. I will forever have a warm spot in my soul for those two Islands. I would like to assure the two Members who represent Cayman Brac and Little Cayman that I will support them in any way that I can in their efforts towards getting a piece of the budget pie and needed services in the future.

I referred to Cayman Brac and I will now refer to Little Cayman. I had the honour of getting the reference to those two Islands as "the Lesser Islands" removed from all the law books of the Cayman Islands, and having their names recognised. I must say that I find it rather distressing, having done that, that someone has tagged them "the Sister Islands" and everyone is supposed to figure out who that is. A foreigner might have difficulty. I encourage us to refer to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman as Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I would not want to walk around this earth with someone who just keeps calling me "brother" without having a name. I see it happening in the same way if we do not.

The two Islands of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman have come a long way in their physical development and from what I understand, it now needs some business. Things are in place for them to move forward, but of course, jobs and employment continue to be a problem. I trust that Government will have plans in place or be formulating plans to assist the situation.

One of the items needed everywhere is money and one of our chief areas to raise money for Government is through Customs duty. I suggest that Government look at having a flat tax, be it 15 per cent, 18 per cent or 20 per cent. Choose one level of Custom duty and let it remain there. You might say that does not make sense because suppose someone brings in watches and jewellery. I know for a fact that the taxes levied on those were not on the high side. It has increased over the years, but I think it is possible to take an average out of what is charged, make it easier on the Customs officers who have to go through these schedules of 10 per cent, 15 per cent 20 per cent every time a trailer load of something comes in. Why not come up with a realistic flat tax amount that will allow us to make the same amount we are making now with all the variations so that it can be easier for everybody?

Obviously, the Customs Department is doing a good job because they keep on collecting the taxes. That is fortunate for us because from that comes most of the Government's revenue.

Hand in hand with Customs goes statistics So that we are in a better position to know all the items coming into our country. We can know if the majority is foodstuff or building materials and we can separate it. We know how to manage and plan. I think the Statistics Department needs to be used more than it is presently being used. My idea of a Statistics Office is one where every Member of Government should be able to get statistics about the particular subject they are dealing with. The Americans turn everything into statistics. If someone gets a homerun they can tell you it is the ten-thousandth-homerun hit across such and such a field, hit by such and such on whatever day. It gives them a management capability that I think we need to work towards.

I think like me, other Members are also waiting to get the statistics related to the census. We have heard varying reviews of whether those statistics are true in relation to population. I have my own views as well.

Education cannot be overemphasised. Most of our troubles socially and economically can be traced back to certain lack of education. We spend large amounts paying for education and seriously, I wonder if we are getting value for money. If we take the money we spend in this small population to educate 4,000 or so students and translate that into what is spent by some of the other islands in the Caribbean, we would seriously wonder if we are getting value for money.

I think there are many problems within the education system. I have recently heard from people who know, and they are all fixable. It takes the will to do it. It takes breaking the mode we have been working in where I gather to a large extent the main thrust is to contain criticism and keep denying such and such a thing happening. That has to be changed. We know there are problems. We know what the problems are. We have to resolve to fix them.

The new Minister of Education has a major challenge on his hands. He has taken certain steps to find out the facts and the figures on it and in concert with another Minister he has appointed a commission to deal with matters relating to youth. We know that most of the youth who do not make it and get into trouble are those who do not get the opportunity of education to get technical skills or academic skills. It is not that they do not go to school; they go to school but do not come away with the necessary skills needed to make it in life. Thus, one of the reasons they turn to crime and mischief.

Youth has to be an area that we pay greater attention to because when we have moved off planet earth, they will be the ones who come to fill the spaces and if we do not prepare them, sad will be our fate and theirs. One thing we can do to help those who tend to fall by the wayside, or the wayward ones, is to use the achievement of those who succeed in a good and positive way. I hear so much about those who are in gangs. Fortunately it is 10:1—ten being those who achieve and are law abiding people. I think we need to give them more praise and use them as examples. In fact, utilise them as best we can to help the others who do not succeed or those who take the wrong pathway in life.

In life, we have to make choices. Certainly, this Government, like those of the past, is faced with the choices relating to Cayman Airways. I hear from some quarters that the best thing we can do is to sell it, get rid of it and cast our fate into the hands of the foreign carriers. I do not subscribe to that view and until I am shown good cause to believe that Cayman Airways is bad for us, I will continue to believe it is good for us.

I had the privilege of being involved with it in its early years, when it was made into an entity by the late James Manoah Bodden. It became a company that no longer leased from LACSA. While tens of millions of dollars spent on Cayman Airways, it has certainly assisted in bringing tens of millions to the Cayman Islands. It is my belief that we are still the smallest country in the world to have an airline that succeeds as well as it does. By making that statement I am not saying it does not have problems.

I look forward to the report that I understand has been commissioned by the Minister responsible for the airline and I will look with interest to see what the recommendations are.

On the matter of us giving up our route and selling the company to a foreign entity, I would draw attention to something a former attorney general said to me in his office years back when I used to be in the Portfolio that was responsible for the airline. It was his last evening in office and we were talking about certain contracts so he called me and said "I would just like you to know that a contract can always be broken for cause." The big deal at that time was that we could not change certain contracts and those were his parting words to me. At that time I was the corporate secretary.

I do not know what contracts need to be made, or what contracts need to be broken, but I do know that if we hand over contractual agreements to foreign carriers, they will have the right if they are not making any money to break them and leave us sitting down here with no means to get out of here. Of course, the money they have to fight their cause would outgun us 1000:1. I would advise the Government and persons involved to tread very carefully in any move from pundits who say that the best thing is for us to have no airline.

Mr. Speaker, another area that I feel very strongly about is health services. I believe that if we have an educated and healthy population we have two of the major things in life going for us. In fact, getting education helps one understand more about his health and the likelihood of taking better care of oneself comes through being educated.

I am distraught to know what has happened in recent times to the health insurance which Government subscribed to to cover civil servants. I know that by that no longer existing millions of dollars have been added to the Budget that Government is going to have to find. I believe it was right to hand this matter over to the legal department. I trust that one of the top priorities of the legal department is going to have the matters resolved in relation to this insurance. I am one who does not want to hear any flimsy excuses about this, that and the other.

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts: No pyaw-pyaw.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: No pyaw-pyaw. That is right.

I do not want to hear that. We have to get away from that. How is it that the Government, the entity which licenses all insurance companies is going to do a deal with an insurance company and that insurance company is going to leave it stuck with millions of dollars? For one thing I think Government should be looking at closing it down. I do not know if you close it down if you can still sue it, but if you cannot then I guess you would have to make that decision to leave it running so you can get the money.

I think it is deadly serious. Legislation in this country mandates that every person has to have health insurance coverage and what is happening now is absolutely incredibly unbelievable. Every one of us is paying—including the Government. When we call upon that insurance coverage, in too many instances the hospital says pay up and then you must go collect from them. The doctors are saying, no I do not take that card you pay me and go collect from them. I am wondering if anything is going to be done about it.

I would suggest without hesitation that the Minister (who is not here today) that he should seriously look at suspending that requirement in the law or suspend that law so that is not a requirement until the matter can be fixed, unless there is going to be positive action taken now to correct it. And for those companies that are not paying . . . do not licence them. Put them out of business.

Another matter where I see letters in the paper is the registration of doctors. I do not understand what is trying to be achieved. I heard of an instance of a doctor on the Brac two or three years ago. But I really want to find out about this registration business. I hope the Minister of Health will make some statement about that because as a representative in this country I will not support any action to put doctors who have been here saving lives, helping people, who have become good citizens of this society, from practising medicine for some flimsy excuse about registering.

I do not understand exactly what is being attempted. I have been told that qualifications are in question, so forth, and so on. But if I do not know I guess the wider public does not know. I would just make a statement that I do not intend to sit quietly by and watch any such thing happen. I cannot believe that these persons who have been here are not qualified to practise medicine. If it is a case of different specialisation, I can understand that. I understand that credentials has to do with specialisation, a surgeon, an orthopaedic, whatever. But to lose the right to practise general medicine . . . I could never agree nor accept that that would be right and proper. This is of major importance and needs to be addressed.

Of course, our hospital, which we thought was large, but now I understand is proving quite small . . . I guess the stress of living is just making us all sick.

So, we find a greater demand on our hospital than we estimated. If I recall correctly, it was a ten-year projection that it would be adequate to provide for our needs. It is obviously not. We need to expand our service in that area. But before we do that, I say to all and sundry that we need to put our health services back into a health authority prescribing what it can and cannot do, allowing it to function like our other statutory authorities. I think that gives it a certain vitality to go on and do what it has to do, leaving it largely in the hands of professionals.

If we allow it to continue as it is, under the direction of a health ministry, there will always be a situation where persons who are our supporters and friends of ours will beat a pathway to the door and say, 'Look, I cannot pay for this. I have to get time for this, I should not be charged for this' and so on. Let the health services function as it should. Let us find a means through health insurance whether or not the Government sets up a captive insurance and handles it. We have to find a solution. I am convinced that a solution can be found. But we have to work at it post haste.

It is has been said to me that we have about six Caymanian doctors who have qualified and are ready and able to come back to Cayman to work. There is a question of whether or not there are jobs available for them. If that is the case, I hope Government will look into this and address it immediately. Such is too hard to believe. Indeed, it has been said to me more than once, by more than one person.

It is inconceivable. I have heard that they have their MDs and they have to work under doctors in England or the United States before they can come back here. How nonsensical can it get if that is the case? When they have completed there is only one place for them to come to and that's back home here because we need them. I understand there are those who have had assistance from Government scholarships.

Under the Ministry of Health falls Cable & Wireless. The latest thing—

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for one minute? Maybe before you go into Information Technology we can take the afternoon break?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3:33 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4:01 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing his debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Address.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Backtracking a little, I wish to comment on the matter of the environment and the Environmental Ministry. There is growing concern worldwide about the damage that mankind is doing to the environment.

Last night I was watching CNN Headline News and I saw there is growing concern about acid rain, that even though much is being done and money is being spent in the area of improving the environment in the US, they still have problems.

From our perspective, we have concerns here. I represent a district that is seriously impacted by certain views and beliefs related to the environment, namely the wetlands. The largest piece of wetlands left fall within the North Sound area into Pease Bay. Recommendations have been made to make this land area an environmentally safe area.

A few weeks ago, a meeting was held in Bodden Town where the Acting Director of Planning and other Planning officers came to hold a public meeting. During the meeting, the question of this zoning came up again. In recent years I have given greater thought to what I have heard for many years (talk about the environment) and the necessity of saving the environment and how saving the environment is a holistic concept that when you touch one side it affects another and so on. I suppose I did not pay much attention or accept the theory I heard espoused. However, at this stage I do give considerable credence to all of it.

In this area, I strongly believe that what is being suggested is indeed too much to be taken in and zoned the way it is proposed. The representations made to me last year when a group of landowners in that area made representation to Government, it was that the buffer zone of 1,000 feet, which is the deepest of any other area left in the North Sound should be retained and the landowners should have the opportunity to use the land, including passing it on to the next generation as it was passed on to them.

Up until now I agree with that concept. I believe it is possible to develop land in that area to an extent that can be agreed by all and accepted that it is possible, including, at some point having access to the North Sound where a place like Bodden Town could reach the North Sound by taking that particular road. I understand a committee has been set up and that various landowners have been invited to be a part of the committee. One thing that I strongly believe is that the people who profited immensely on the West Bay peninsula, Red Bay, Prospect and other areas that the people who own property in the Bodden Town district and adjacent areas including into North Side, should have the same opportunity to do so.

We saw what happened on the West Bay peninsula, and we need not repeat the mistakes done there. We can learn from it. In this regard there is an ongoing study CH2MHILL where Members have seen the part relating to dredging and aggregate and building material. Before someone should come down with a sledgehammer from Planning or any of its associated departments on persons who own land on the eastern side, that Planning has suggested should be made environmentally sensitive, serious thought should be given to stop the dredging in the North Sound. If that is the ecosystem we hear it is, and if that is the place where the juvenile fish are born and travel to other areas, I think that is a much more compelling reason to intervene and see that dredging stops in the North Sound.

This has been a subject for many years. Since I was here before, I know that a Motion has been brought to the House regarding this matter. One only has to look at the time of a nor'wester to see what happens in the North Sound when it is blowing. The sea is churned up it turns the colour of milk and the study we have before us supports the view that further dredging there really will create damage to the extent where it is irreparable.

That study did not say you cannot do it. They put forth the proposition that says if you do, you can get X amount out of it and you will create X amount of damage so we can make up our minds if we really want to do that.

The thing we need to avoid even the appearance of is that anything can be had if the money is there backing it. If certain people own the wetlands on the Seven Mile Beach area, then this, that and the other can be done, whereas the persons in the district that I represent and the adjacent area do not have the same resources. They are land-rich, as such, but they cannot use their land to the maximum benefit. There is a growing feeling in that regard with the way some development goes in this country.

That brings me to the question of planning.

I think it is very important that the Planning Department does as it is presently doing, get a head start prior to next year when it is required to review our development plan. I found the meeting in Bodden Town very relaxed and open. No one from the Planning Department made any attempt to hedge or work around a question they answered forthrightly when questions were put to them. I think that when we are looking at our development and utilising the environment, particularly the land in the eastern districts, we need to bear in mind that we have land there other than agricultural land. We need and want, particularly the district of Bodden Town, which is the biggest land mass; opportunity for development there for hotels and tourism related development. The people on the eastern side of the Island should not be given less of a chance to benefit from having a particular type of zoning applied there and elsewhere there is commercial land and otherwise.

If one looks at the map, it is clear there is disparity in terms of zoning in this particular area. Why we could not have industrialised zoning I am not clear, since we have so much land. We have industrialised zoning here to the north of us in the middle of George Town. So there is no good cause why we should not be able to do that. I trust the Government will take this into account including for roads, as all roads lead to George Town, and as they lead into George Town we need not go into the congestion it causes.

It is also necessary to look carefully at the Planning Law. I believe it is better to prescribe clearly parameters that the Planning Authority needs to deal with rather than leaving areas open to discretion by that board. Certain changes were made in 1998 where it is implied that the Planning Board may determine which part of your subdivision they want designated as open space. That has been a significant change. I think it was slipped in because in speaking with some surveyors . . . it was a requirement for larger lot sizes on which to build apartments. We recall that at the time there was an outcry in that it limited the poorer person who had less land to build on.

I believe that a person must be left to determine how best their land can serve them to maximise their profit. And simply because someone on the Board thinks it should be lot A or lot B, which could be the prime lots you are attempting to sell . . . there needs to be some serious thought given to that one. I look forward to that getting closer to that time and making representation in that particular regard.

I have more to say. I want to go back to the Budget side of this. I am having a bit of difficulty with my throat. I do not know if the House would be minded to miss the next seven minutes or so and take the adjournment.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 AM Wednesday.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 AM Wednesday. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.20 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED
UNTIL 10 AM WEDNESDAY, 28 MARCH 2001.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
WEDNESDAY
28 MARCH 2001
10.16 AM
Tenth Sitting

[Prayers read by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Statements by Ministers and Members of the Government.

Before calling on the Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology, I would ask for the suspension of Standing Order 14(1)(f) and (g) in order for Statements to precede Question Time.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14(1) (F) AND (G)

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I move the suspension of Standing Order 14(1)(f) and (g) in order for Statements to precede Question Time.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that Standing Order 14(1)(f) and (g) be suspended in order for Statements to precede Question Time. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 14(1) SUSPENDED TO ALLOW STATEMENTS TO PRECEDE QUESTIONS.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

STATEMENTS BY MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

RECENT SURGERY IN MIAMI

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, Honourable Members this is the first opportunity I have had to speak in this honourable House since my recent surgery in Miami.

Thank you for allowing me to make a few personal remarks. I wish to take this opportunity to firstly thank Almighty God for taking me safely through and for His continuing care and protection of me, and to also express my thanks to all my colleagues and indeed members of the listening public who offered a prayer for my successful recovery. Though the doctors attributed my rapid recovery to the physical conditioning of my body, I strongly believe that it was mainly the power of prayer that was responsible, and that all the praise must go to God.

Secondly, Mr. Speaker, I wish to thank His Excellency the Governor for his kind remarks in his Throne Speech for my speedy recovery, and you, Mr. Speaker, and all of my friends inside and outside of this Honourable House who telephoned and through cards, flowers, and otherwise expressed their kind wishes for my good health.

I am not completely out of the woods yet, and have received strict instructions from my doctor to take it easy at least for the next few weeks. I am only now running on six cylinders, but will hopefully be running on an eight very soon. It is certainly good to be back with you all.

Before I close, Mr. Speaker, may I also take this opportunity to encourage my male friends and colleagues within this House, and indeed all of my male friends in the wider community, especially those 45 years or older, to have a regular PSA check done. It is a very simple and painless procedure and, Mr. Speaker, it was through my regular PSA check that I discovered I had a problem. Prostate cancer is very deceptive. It did not give me any warning—I did not feel an ache, and had I not picked it up in the early stages through my regular check-up, it could have been much worse.

Again, thank you, Mr. Speaker, for allowing me the opportunity to say these few words.

The Speaker: Moving on to Item 3, Questions to Honourable Ministers and Members. Question 37 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
 MINISTERS AND MEMBERS

QUESTION NO. 37

No. 37: Capt. Eugene Ebanks asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports if there is any networking between the Education, Labour and Social Services Departments with regard to finding employment for persons receiving aid from Social Services.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: The Social Workers from the Department of Social Services and the Labour Department work very closely together to find employment for employable persons who receive aid from Social Services Department. All aid to such persons is temporary in nature. Once a person becomes a client, the Labour Department is contacted immediately. Referrals are made to Labour Officers and a job search begins. In addition to this, clients are supplied with job search forms which they are required to take to places of business after they and the Social Workers have perused the classified advertisements. These forms must be signed by employers as a means of verifying that the client has visited the place of business. Social workers also accompany clients to interviews when necessary.

Networking with the Education Department usually takes place at the Community College level. It is a policy of the Department to pay fees for clients to attend the Community College to pursue courses in order to improve their skill level or to acquire new skills to make them employable.

Every effort is made to return teenage mothers who attend the Department's Young Parents Programme who are below the school leaving age to mainstream education. If students in the programme are studying for external examinations, arrangements are made by the programme staff to collect work from the John Gray High School for the student and to return completed assignments.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we move on to question 38 standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 38

No. 38: Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr. asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Culture what is the status of the Cayman Brac playing field in regard to the proposed completion time and budgeted cost versus actual.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

MOTION TO DEFER QUESTION 38 Standing Order 23(5)

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I beg to move a motion that the answer to Question 38 be deferred to a later sitting, as we are still in the process of getting information from the District Administrator's Office.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that Question No. 38 be deferred until a later sitting. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTION 16 DEFERRED TO A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: Question 39 is standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 39

No. 39: Mr. Rolston M. Anglin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health and Information Technology if for each staff member in the Computer Services Department, there is –

- (a) job title;
- (b) nationality;
- (c) qualifications; and
- (d) number of days spent in training during 2000.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: The answers for questions (a) to (d) above are listed (See Appendix I). In the interest of time, I do not propose to read out this lengthy list unless you direct me to do so. There are about 56 individuals in the computer department and I have provided (a) job title; (b) nationality; (c) qualifications; and (d) number of days spent in training during 2000 in the answer being passed out.

The Speaker: I think it is sufficient to circulate it. I will just give Members a few minutes to look it over.

Supplementaries? The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable Minister say what is being done to get Caymanians into the more senior posts in the Department? For example, there are five applications project managers—none of whom are Caymanian. Again, there are six analyst/programmer positions—none of which are Caymanian.

Can the Honourable Minister say what efforts are being made to get Caymanians into those positions, especially in light of the fact that the Director and both Deputy Directors are Caymanian? It seems as though we do have Caymanians in this field who have the capability to rise through the ranks to the more senior positions.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: The process in place to ensure that Caymanians can be sure of upward advancement in the department is as follows: The standard practice is to promote or advance Caymanian staff before hiring non-Caymanian staff. Not only is it cost effective, but it is also better for the department and indeed the Cayman Islands.

It is also our practice to look at our existing staff for in-house promotion before seeking to hire new staff. Upon every vacancy and renewal of contract the relevant deputy director and director review the training, performance and interest of staff against the needs of the position, including years of experience and related job skill and qualification of Caymanian staff, along with feedback given by the employees' manager over the last performance period.

Further, performance appraisals are used to highlight individuals and training required by the job. On the job training and short-staff job rotations are used to highlight the best individuals for the job.

The Manager and Deputy Director would then discuss who is the best-suited employee for immediate promotion. The Deputy Director or Manager gives feedback to the Staff on decisions and additional experience and training needed for advancement at each performance level.

It is quite clear that Caymanian staff are given the first choice.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Can we get some kind of explanation for the qualifications required for some of the positions? For example, I see the fourth down 'applications project manager' the nationality is British, and the qualifications are 'post high school certificate in computer programming.' Then another applications project manager has a MBE.

There seems to be quite a discrepancy in the qualification requirement from post high school to an MBE. I wonder if there is some criteria.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Staff are hired not just on qualification alone, but also on their relevant years of experience or expertise in the subject. In the first case, the individuals have over four years of Oracle development experience and are on local contract as they are on the Island. This reduces the need and associated cost to hire from overseas.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable Minister say, other than different hiring dates, why would there be what appears to be wide disparities in the number of training days for certain individuals at the same level? For example, on page 2 of the answer, "Support Administrator grade 2." All three posts are filled by Caymanians, however, one person had two days training and another had 55, and one had 29. I just want to find out why. Is it in relation to people having time off to go to school, or what?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: We do not seem to have the full details for that supplementary. But, with your permission, I will give the undertaking to provide it in writing.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say whether all this training was done locally or overseas?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: It is my understanding that it was really a combination, depending upon the need at the time. Both local and overseas training is carried out in that department.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say whether this training was specific for application training or was it in the interest of succession planning?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: It is my understanding that it is training required for individuals on the job and also for succession planning.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Can the Honourable Minister state the makeup of Caymanian versus non-Caymanian employees in the department? I see the listing of nationalities, but I am not sure if it is a complete listing of all employees. If so, I can go through and do the math, but I just wondered.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: I believe that the details of nationality as already listed in the answer covers permanent employees, temporary and group employees. If you wish I can go down this list, but it is already in the answer.

The Speaker: That is not necessary. Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we move on to question 40, standing in the name of the Elected Member for East End.

QUESTION NO. 40

No. 40: Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health and Information Technology to explain what measures have been, or will be, taken to ascertain the possible causes of the extremely high degree of cancers in these Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: My Ministry, through the Health Services Department, will be pleased to conduct and report to the Legislative Assembly a study on the incidence of cancer in these Islands and seek to determine the possible cause. The results of the study will, hopefully, enable the Ministry and other Departments/Agencies of the Government to introduce any remedial action which may be necessary.

The Health Services Department is now working on a project proposal that will set out what needs to be done and how we will go about it. We hope to get started later this year, and I shall be requesting Finance Committee, during consideration of the 2001 Budget, to provide me with some funds to enable this to happen.

I think it might be of interest to Honourable Members if I provided them briefly with some deaths from cancer from statistics.

Our death rates from all causes in the Cayman Islands have been static at around 3.5 per 1,000 population for the last six years, with an average of 3.9 over the last ten years. The corresponding figures from some of our neighbours are United States—8.5, Canada—7.3, Barbados—8.1 and the Bahamas 5 per thousand population [Source: Health Situation in the Americas—Basic Indicators 2000. Pan American Health Organisation (PAHO)].

On average, 20 per cent of our annual total deaths over the last nine years are due to cancer. In the year 2000, 26 per cent of our deaths were due to cancer (these figures do not include a very few residents dying overseas).

This suggests that the incidence of cancer in the Cayman Islands is not dissimilar to that of some of our neighbours.

Nonetheless, I respect the fact that there are concerns in the community that there has been an increase in the incidence of cancer in the Cayman Islands and, as reported above, my Ministry, through the Health Services Department, will be reporting to the Legislative Assembly on a study to be done on the incidence of cancer and possible causes.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. v. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say when this study is expected to be completed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: At this early stage we are in the process of identifying competent authorities that can define the scope of the project to our satisfaction, and who can carry out the necessary research. We shall be seeking the advice of bodies such as PAHO, Caribbean Epidemiology Centre (CAREC), the Commonwealth Fund for Technical Cooperation (CFTC), and others to assist us in identifying the appropriate body to carry out this scientific study.

This study will be a wide-ranging one that will take some time to put together and complete. It is difficult to estimate the cost in financial terms, but I think everyone will agree that the results, whatever they are, will have justified the expenditure.

I just want to further say that some time ago Mr. Roy Bodden, MLA (the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town at the time), brought a Motion [on 14 June 2000] along these same lines. It covered a wide area including a request for the Government to consider commissioning a scientific study on what effects, if any, long term aerial spraying has on the flora, fauna, environment, and people of these Islands.

The second resolve section of that was, “Whether there is any scientific evidence to support the notion that there is an abnormal cancer rate in the Cayman Islands which emanates from aerial spraying, hazardous leaks from the George Town landfill site or any other environmental cause.

The purpose for including this information is to indicate that the study will have to be a wide-ranging one when it is undertaken, and that it might take quite a few months for completion.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: That’s why I asked this question. Am I to understand that the Motion that the present Minister of Education brought in June of 2000 will be encompassed in this study?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: That is the Ministry’s intention, to include the Resolve section of that Motion in the study.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we move on to question 41 standing in the name of the Elected Member for East End.

QUESTION NO. 41

No. 41: Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health and Information Technology why regular ambulance service for the eastern districts has not been available in recent times.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: The ambulance in question, registration number 70 016, is stationed in North Side. No major repairs or breakdown resulting in interruption of service was recorded for the month of January.

In February and March, however, the ambulance experienced some operational difficulties as follows: -

19 February - The vehicle experienced a loss of power while transporting someone to the hospital. It was out of service from 19 to 21 February.

5 March - The vehicle was out of service for most of the day due to problems with the horn, speedometer and steering. These were partially repaired and the ambulance was in service for the night shift and the repairs were completed the following day, 6 March. The ambulance was out of service on 6 March until 17:00 hours.

7 March - A temporary failure of power was experienced, but this was restored and the vehicle was not out of service.

8 March - The vehicle was out of service for two hours while batteries were being charged.

14 March - The brakes were found to be defective so the vehicle was taken to the Department of Vehicle and Equipment Services (DVES). DVES sent it to a non-government garage for repairs and it was out of service from 14 to 16 March.

Although regular ambulance response on these occasions was delayed, it has always been available. In such situations, the Fire Service allows the Emergency Medical Services crew to operate out of Frank Sound Fire Station using their emergency vehicle. This reduces the response time of medical personnel to the scene of an emergency and they can stabilise the patient until the responding ambulance can arrive.

We need two new ambulances and I am pleased to say that one has already been provided for and the other has been requested in the 2001 Budget.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: I would first like to thank the honourable minister for his very informative and detailed response, and to merely ask if he is in a position to say where the two new ambulances will be placed.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: I am informed that they will be placed on the longest runs, that is perhaps from the North Side and the next one is to the George Town Hospital.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: One of my questions was to ensure that one went to the eastern districts.

My interest in this has been sparked because of the amount of time the Fire Service has used its ambulance. Can the Honourable Minister say what is the current status with the ambulance? Is it stationed at the North Side Police Station or at the clinic in North Side? And is there any intention of reviewing that to see if it is necessary to keep all the emergency vehicles in that area under one roof?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: I can give an answer in regard to the ambulance. It is stationed at the clinic in North Side.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if the ambulance is operating on a regular basis now?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: It is my understanding that there are still some problems with the old vehicles. Hopefully we will get the new ones in place as soon as possible to rectify that. But at no time are our people in any danger. There are always alternative methods to assist these individuals.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I want to make it abundantly clear that I did not think at any time that any lives were at risk.

Can the Honourable Minister say when the ambulance will arrive, and will that be used for the eastern districts?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: The new ambulance is being ordered this week. Delivery is expected in four months. It will be stationed at the North Side Clinic. There is provision in the 2001 budget for a second ambulance, which will be ordered once approval is given by Finance Committee.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say, since there has been so much trouble with the one that currently takes up the East End route, what provision is being made in the event we have problems with the one currently there?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: In the event of one of the ambulances being out of operation, then we would use the fire service or make other suitable arrangements. I would also mention to the Member that I have been informed that the new system being put in place now by the Health Services Department will establish a rolling maintenance and replacement programme so that we can keep the state of the ambulances under review and be proactive about replacing them when the time comes rather than being reactive when a problem occurs.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I thank the Honourable Minister for that response.

Can the Honourable Minister say how old these ambulances are and when are they taken out of service?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: There are five ambulances, and I will give the information as follows: Medic I, which is registration 70016 (the one we were referring to earlier) is a 1995 Chevrolet. The mileage is 149,119.

The principal concerns about the status of the vehicle and frequency of being off the road with unplanned maintenance is that the body is rusting, there is problem with the transmission, steering, brakes, electrical, and it leaks in the rain, and the doors are unable to close properly.

We can see the need for the replacement of this ambulance.

Medic II, registration 18782, 1990 Chevrolet, it has 55,954 miles. It was taken out of service one year ago as it was no longer considered economical to repair by DVES. It is now being used for parts.

Medic III, registration 69956, 1998 Ford Powerstroke Diesel 350. It has 39,100 miles. It requires routine maintenance only.

Medic IV, registration 69957, 1998 Ford Powerstroke 350 Diesel, with 42,049 miles. Requires only routine maintenance.

Medic V, registration 40960, 1993 Chevrolet, with 71,173 miles. It was involved in an accident and really not considered economical to repair.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I thank the minister again for that detailed answer, but I wonder if he can say if there is a rule of thumb in the industry as to when ambulances must be taken out of service? Or is there anything in place to rollover vehicles? What is the life of these vehicles based on? Is it mileage? Is it based on physical needs?

The Speaker: Before asking you to answer the question, would you move the suspension of Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) in order for Question Time to continue?

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) AND (8)

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: I beg to move the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) & (8) to allow Question Time to continue.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that we suspend Standing Order 23(7) & (8) to allow Question Time to continue beyond the hour of 11 o'clock. Those in favour please say Aye, those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question Time will continue.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ALLOW QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11.00 AM.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: There is really no government policy in place, as such. But I understand that the system in the private sector is that emergency vehicles should not exceed anywhere over 80,000 to 100,000 miles. After that they should be taken off the road.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End. I will allow two additional supplementaries.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Based on the Honourable Minister's previous answer on the condition of the vehicles, it appears there are a few that have reached that 100,000 mile limit, certainly two of them. Can the Honourable Minister say what the plans are to replace the others?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: There is at least one vehicle that exceeds that, but that is why we are looking into the forward planning I suggested earlier so that we will ensure that this will not occur in the future.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: There is at least one vehicle that exceeds that, but that is why we are looking into the forward planning I suggested earlier so that we will ensure that this will not occur in the future.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Is the Honourable Minister telling this House that 100,000 miles on the odometer is going to be the new policy or rule of thumb to remove ambulances from service?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: That is the information we have received. But we will be looking at developing our own policy within the Health Services Department which will not be at a lesser level than what now exists.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, that concludes Question Time for today.

Moving on to item 4, Statement by Ministers and Members of Government. Statement by the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MINISTERS AND MEMBERS

CLARIFICATION AND CORRECTION TO BUDGET 2001

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I wish to take this opportunity to provide two clarifications and one correction in respect of the 2001 Budget.

The correction relates specifically to the section entitled "General Reserves, Accumulated Surplus/Deficit, and Other Funds, 1991- 2000." In the third paragraph of that section, the following corrections should be made:

- Replace 15.5% with 10.5%
- Replace negative 4.6% with positive 2.2%
- Replace 10.9% with 10.6%
- Remove the phrase "only a year before", and
- Replace 1999 with 1998.

Mr. Speaker, the first of the two clarifications relate to the proposed increase in total government spending over the years 2000 and 2001.

The total expenditure for 2000 as set out in the un-audited accounts of the Government was $341.4m as compared to the total 2001 budgeted expenditure of $360.3m. This represents an expected increase of 5.6% in total expenditure between the years 2000 and 2001.

Mr. Speaker, the second clarification relates to the proposed revenue measures set out in the 2001 Budget. There are no retroactive taxes or fees proposed in the 2001 Budget. I hope that these three points will assist the debate. Thank You.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

SHORT QUESTIONS

Standing Order 30(2)

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Just a short question as to whether we will be able to get a copy of what he just said so that we can make accurate amendments to his Budget Speech.

The Speaker: Certainly, it will be circulated.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We move on to Government Business, Bills, Second Reading. The Appropriation Bill 2001.

Continuation of Debate on the Throne Speech, delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday 9 March 2001, together with the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member on Wednesday 21 March 2001. The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION BILL, 2001

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR ON FRIDAY 9 MARCH 2001

TOGETHER WITH

THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON WEDNESDAY 21 MARCH 2001

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you.

Madam Speaker, when we took the adjournment on Monday, it left me to speak on a few other subjects. At this time, I would like to comment on the utility companies in the Cayman Islands.

First of all, I wish to comment on the situation that affects us all, that of the cost of electricity. As we know Caribbean Utilities Company (CUC) is the only company in the Cayman Islands providing electricity.

services. The cost of electricity affects everything in any country in this modern world. I seriously believe that as a priority, Government needs to change that clause in the licence with that company.

I am not suggesting that it be done with the stroke of a pen, but I believe that as a national priority, negotiations should be started in the Cayman Islands in regard to renegotiating that particular licence.

The Cayman Islands, Grand Cayman in particular, cannot continue to guarantee CUC 15 per cent profit. Just like every other business in this country, it must take its natural course of sometimes making an appreciable profit and at other times making less. I stated that I would advocate during my campaign in this most recent election. I stated that I would advocate this and I am now doing so.

I think a motion was accepted to set up a utility commission and I believe that in this meeting there has been an answer in that regard. I believe this is something that needs to be done immediately. Recommendations were made for this as far back as 1978 by a power utilities consultant who came to the Islands and looked at both CUC and Cable and Wireless (C&W). In my opinion this needs to be given power by law to investigate, supervise and approve increases in fees within these two utilities. It needs to be able to audit, inspect, and analyse the conditions that exist.

The Minister responsible for utilities has said that there is to be an audit of CUC. I trust that it will be most comprehensive and will ensure that the books are open, that they look carefully into all its operations and perhaps from that point will be a good first step towards making a difference in this matter. Again I say that Government guaranteeing a 15 per cent profit to this company or any company is unrealistic with life in the modern world.

Cable and Wireless is another monopoly that has been created by governments of the past and continues on into the present. There have been major revolutionary changes in the world of telecommunications. It is my opinion that we in the Cayman Islands are not benefiting as we should from these modern technologies via our telephone provided. If our telephone provider is providing these services, then we are undoubtedly being charged too much for that service. Businesses and individuals keep complaining about the cost of telephone service in the Cayman Islands.

We know that the Government is looking toward creating e-commerce in Cayman because that is the modern thing in trading. However, it has been pointed out time and time again that the cost to customers does not make the Cayman Islands competitive with other jurisdictions. That is another reason why we need to see changes in our rates.

I was at a luncheon where three persons made a presentation about ongoing businesses in Bermuda which made major changes in its telecommunication services. In that particular meeting, people in attendance were told some of the ways that wireless technology can work for the benefit of the consumer and businesses alike; and that by using these modern technologies the way costs can be reduced but yet the volume can increase keeping the provider in profits. Mr. Speaker, we have to move to this.

Let me say right now that if C&W wants to move to this, I believe they can. Certainly, it is not a penny company; it is a major multinational company. I see no reason why, since it is said that Cayman, compared to its size, has produced some of the largest revenue in its whole net worth, why we should not have the first and foremost opportunity to utilise the newest technology. It is my understanding that that technology can be found in other Caribbean islands which do not produce as much revenue for this particular company.

Terminating all the employees of C&W in Cayman must not be seen as the solution to this company providing newer technology and cheaper rates for this contract. What we have seen in the past week is an announcement that there are going to be major cut-backs in staff. This has happened in the past, and it is my understanding that some of the staff being laid off offer some of the services back to the company that they were providing while working there. But to, simply with the stroke of a pen, wipe out all the operators or other technical persons who are being laid off so that they can supposedly realise savings to reduce the cost is not really acceptable—particularly when I understand that the calls will be routed through other jurisdictions that supposedly have newer technology to deal with it. That does not say much about what has been happening in Cayman all these years that we have been paying through our noses.

I think this situation poses a great challenge to the Minister of Labour to look into and enquire into this situation. I know that worldwide, particularly in the United States, the buzzword is 'lay-offs.' Everybody is laying people off. I can understand that. But I must also look at that condition within the sphere of the Cayman Islands. I do not think we can afford such a trend.

Moving a bit from the question of C&W, I do know too there is a situation with the utility company in Cayman Brac, one where the opportunity should be taken to examine when the Minister looks into establishing a utility commission. I would think such a look would include the working conditions and the cost, and to see if anything can be done to reduce those prices be it by lessening the taxes on fuel or whatever. We are talking about savings where it is possible.

In looking at costs, we need to look at the department of Public Works, which carries out most of Government's operations. They are our technical advisors to a large extent and over and over we hear of situations where it is said that if the Government undertakes a particular project through its PWD there are always overruns, and always so much more than if it were contracted out to private enterprise. I am not saying this happens in every case, but I know there have been major overruns in various areas over the years. I think this has to be stopped by making a more accountable process, holding that department to the same measurements we would a private contractor.

I am aware that at certain times plans for buildings, et cetera, are fielded out to local companies where they are put out to bid. I am aware that PWD also draws a lot of the plans for government buildings. It is my understanding that any building can be made to cost more than necessary, depending on the aesthetics and other requirements. I believe we need to minimise the dressing and get close to coming up with buildings that take on a more Spartan-type of structure where we build for strength and not necessarily for beauty, because we can have a beautiful place that is not structurally sound (not to say that's the type of building PWD designs).

I want to say this morning that I think in the future any schools built in the Cayman Islands should be in multi-storeyed buildings that are self-contained, not planned and built and thrown all over a piece of land to give it a supposed tropical look. One problem right now that I believe is causing some of the problems with the schools is the inability of teachers to control and visually see the children because the buildings in which they teach are thrown all over a piece of land. I know that to be the case.

I believe that if the Minister of Education and other authorities are going to deal with some of the behaviour problems that education is having, we had better start a reconstruction process to take down some of the buildings that are existing and replace them by phases in such fashion where teachers can realistically hope to control the movement of children. And they need to begin at the two high schools by removing some of those buildings and building multi-storey buildings to prevent children from running around corners to do whatever mischief. I think that this is something that needs to be addressed immediately, Mr. Speaker.

The matter of labour continues to be a serious problem. We cannot afford any more disasters such as the one which happened at the Hyatt Hotel in respect of gratuities and the Colony Beach Club where employees are not getting their due pay from gratuities, where their terms of employment are not fair and just.

We cannot have any more cases going to court and being systematically lost because of technicalities in the law. If we have to change the law, then we must change the law quickly. And we cannot have any more a situation with our legal people where they are bringing cases outside of time and losing them in major fashion.

We cannot go on making appeals that are being lost. It is costing us money.

One of the latest I heard of is that there may be an appeal on the definition of 'cocaine' in a particular case. I would think that what we need to do is move to change the law rather than appeals in Privy Council. We do not have the money, or if we have it, then what we are hearing from the Financial Secretary cannot be so. I tend to believe more the figures that I see than to believe that we need to be going to court losing cases one after the other. It has proved to be an embarrassment to the country, not just the Government; and it has become harmful and grossly unfair to the employees who suffer the fate they have in these Islands.

We cannot go on creating minimal requirements and conditions of service in these Islands, because we have over-employment. We should use this opportunity to upgrade those conditions of service. We cannot continue to allow employers to flaunt our laws, laugh in our face, and make mockery of us, which brings doubts to the minds of all working persons fearing for the safety of their jobs in terms of losing them or not being fairly paid.

I want to comment again on the matter of the OECD on a point that I did not make on Monday. I believe it makes sense for the Cayman Islands, and I urge the Elected Government (certainly the Financial Secretary) to look at becoming members of the CARICOM group of countries. We have the benefit of countries like Barbados now, which is going out of its way and certainly taking an admirable stance to challenge the legality of what is happening by the OECD. And playing to be 'Goliath' when we are not 'David' does not set well for us.

We need to get along with our neighbours in the Caribbean and help them fight the fight in this regard. We are fighting for our survival. If we do not survive the onslaught of the OECD, we are going to pay the price of not having a financial centre because no one has been able to convince me that they just want us to fix laws. They want to fix us out of existence.

I certainly suggest that to the Government and hope they will look into it. I understand that BVI is a member, and that Bermuda has applied to become a member. So, there is little reason—except, apparently, the political will—to keep us from getting into that particular body.

Regarding tourism, I hear about a combination of the Cayman Islands Condo and Hotel Association and the Cayman Tourism Association, and that that is supposed to happen by the end of this month. My view on that is that it is but a move of the big hoteliers and the bigger restaurants to have their way to control what is happening in the Cayman Islands in regard to tourism.

I am personally aware that when the first spilt came about it was at a point back in the latter part of 1998 when a Caymanian (and I will not bother to call his name, he is a well known Caymanian businessman) was voted to the Board of the Cayman Islands Hotel and Condo Association. It brought a flare-up among other foreign managers who just did not want that man there. As far as I can determine, his greatest fault was that he did not go along with everything that was said by the others. He questioned and challenged things. I think he had a problem too because he was tagged as a Caymanian who reached that level working in that industry.

I had a clear feeling that the foreign people who owned most of the restaurants and hotels also have the right to own the Cayman Islands Hotel Association. That is a body that has been in existence for 35 years. The fact that that should run with its tail between its legs to join a new body that is coming about made up largely of managers of the big hotels and restaurants is questionable to me.

I draw reference to it also because its present head, Mr. Rod McDowel, was invited to Government House to lunch with the head of the FCO when we, the Members of the Legislative Assembly, did not even have the opportunity to see him. I am wondering what is really going on. Did that head of that organisation have some special privilege or does he perform some special function on behalf of the British Government or what?

I did not hear that by the by, it was on all of the country's media that he was dining with the Governor at Governor's House. I would assume that those funds are provided by revenue. We have to get some things in perspective because they are way out of perspective right now.

This brings me to the observation of protocol. All of the members elected in November were elected by the people of the Cayman Islands. Certainly, I believe the Governor understands that. I know that the FCO recognises that. I know that is the way that this country legally functions. And we must get certain respect because we are the ones charged by the people to speak on their behalf. So, I could not let that pass without commenting on it.

Another concern I have is bills or matters that we hear Government is dealing with. We hear that the Law Society might have a copy of it in draft, the Bar Association, the Chamber of Commerce, the whatever society, and it is not until it comes here before us that we are privileged to look at it. Why should it be so hard for Government to allow us to see it? Are our ideas any worse in the initial stages than they are when it comes to the House where we have to pass it? It does not make sense.

Two other incidents I can cite are: 1) a checklist regarding the Constitution which we were told by His Excellency the Governor on the 13th of last month had been made available to him and that he was going to make it available to us. I have not seen a copy of it until now, but I have seen the papers printing what are supposed to be extracts from it. I have heard that the FCO sent a paper here regarding a guideline for environmental development and planning. I see it in the newspapers, but we have not been privileged to it. I think something really has to be done to get things straight as right now they are rather crooked.

One of the things the Governor spoke about, and we know will happen, is the review of the Constitution. I believe that is necessary. I thought so from ten years ago. When it comes about, I hope the usual propaganda that has gone with that process since 1972 will not come to the forefront. The thing about 'if you have a chief minister who he is going to become the national thief, because he will have all the power, and his deputy and everyone else— (pause)

And unfortunately by not accepting the Constitution we could have had in 1991/92, the very authority and power Ministers now need to be responsible for what happens in their Ministries does not exist and we are paying the price for it ten years later. And I have heard Ministers talk about it, and it's a fact.

I hope we are going to seriously get down to modernising the Constitution to create what posts need to be there and that the usual propaganda will not immediately come out in the forefront.

I look to the new members of this House who have to make their way and blaze the trail to be the antidote for the old political pollution of the past that has hindered our progress. I hope their input and participation will be such to drive away those duppies.

I want to refer to expand a bit on what I said about our public finance and that of raising revenue. We cannot continue to tax our own people the way we are doing. The average citizen is being taxed while those who have the most among us—both local and foreign—pay the least, or what is a little amount to them, which makes a most enjoyable ride where they are concerned. It is really a contrast. When we look at the number of our people who are poor, who have difficulty each day of their lives making it just to live each day, another truth is (and this is in every society) the poorest in any given society tend to have the largest numbers of mouths to feed.

We have to take these things into consideration. If it is okay for the wealthy to come here to buy land to develop, to live in gated societies, but they too make use of our roads, of our utilities, of our hospital, of our schools. They are in a better position to pay for that particular service by living in a society where they feel freer and more comfortable and safer than in the country from which they came. We have to find a means of revenue collection that is fair and reasonable, getting more from those sources than we are now.

It is good that we have one or two billionaires. We do not want too many of them because they can literally buy the whole country. If it was up for sale, they could buy it for a billion or two. We would not want to sell, of course, but I am just drawing an illustration of the magnitude of their money. But for heaven sake, let them participate by contributing to the society that they have chosen to live in. When that does not happen it is like we are a candy machine loaded with candy and bubble gum and everybody comes, but nobody is putting in a quarter. They are just taking the candy out! If they do not put in the quarters, it means there will be no money to refill the candy machine. We cannot afford to let them have it for free.

Mr. Speaker, because of the situation I will not vote for the budget that has been put before the House. I do not believe that we should tax the average citizen. As that particular Bill will form part of the budget, I will not support that particular Bill.

Having reached that point, I think it is well for me to say that it is very clear to me by the outcome of the election that took place in November and the formation of the Government as it is, that it places me in the role of an opposition member. I so accept that position.

However, I understand what the role of an Opposition Member is. Those in the country who believe it is only to stand here and say 'no' are wrong. I know better than that. In fact, I said 'yes' to everything the Government has done since November to now. I do not recall one instance where I voted No. But I am in this particular instance. And there will be other times when I will say 'no.'

In this country an opposition politician does not get a lot of credit or respect because there is propaganda put out about opposition legislators that, 'All they do is say no—they vote against everything' which is a lie. For those who may be critical of me in this regard, I would ask them to get together and do a circular, write a letter to the press and put their names to it, saying they wish to be taxed for the $20 million to see how their courage stands on this particular issue. If they like the idea of paying these additional taxes, then what can I say? I do not believe it is in the best interest so I will not vote for that.

Having made that point, I wish to say to you and to this House that being aware of the role required of opposition legislators, I will do all that is required of me to the best of my ability to ensure that this parliamentary process continues to be democratic and be like what my colleagues from West Bay call 'balanced.'

In closing, I think that some of the priorities of Government should be to see to it that interest rates in the banks of this country are adjusted downward. I believe that health insurance overall in this country needs to be examined quickly and dealt with to stop the way it is presently performing. I think that the Government should, as a priority, look to making changes in regard to the Caribbean Utilities Company and the cost of electricity. I believe that Cable and Wireless needs to be examined with the view to saving our people who are there as employees and to have their charges lowered.

Also, I believe we need to find new revenue measures. I believe we need to have experts in this area from outside come in and look from a distance at what is happening to us and make recommendations for us.

Labour in the country needs to be cherished, nurtured, trained and have its rights upheld and honoured.

Education is virtually the medicine for all ills. It needs to be pursued with great intensity in all areas and at all levels.

And we had better deal with that entity outside of our shores called the OECD as soon as possible to guarantee our financial survival in the marketplace.

Needless to say, we had better rescue fast our tourism product that is not seeing the best of times.

Mr. Speaker, Honourable Members, I thank you.

The Speaker: Do members wish to take the morning break? Or shall we continue. I am in your hands.

We shall suspend for 15 minutes, and please be back in that time.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.53 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.22 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Continuation of Debate on the Throne Speech, and Budget Address.

The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to begin by saying what an honour it truly is to have been sent here to this Honourable House to represent the people of the district of West Bay, those who voted for me, and those who did not. It is even more of an honour to be the youngest Member of this House, after all, only I can say that because I am the youngest person here.

And yes, I do not forget to remind Members of that. I am quite proud of it. And I can promise the people of these Islands that as with most things, the harder I work the younger I feel. So I may be getting older day by day like everyone, but I am invigorated by the fact that what we do here is meaningful and in my view the noblest of callings, that is to serve the people of one's community.

Having said all that, I must say how disappointed I am at the way in which certain business is carried out in our little Island. After all, we were sent here as of 8 November 2000, and to date (I cannot speak for the rest of the Members here) I have never been officially introduced to the Governor of our Islands.

[Interjection by a Member: Hear, hear!]

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Never been introduced!

I would also like to echo the words of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, to say how disappointed I am that a senior FCO official could be sent to these Islands, and it is my understanding that he is in charge of all Overseas Territories, and not have him introduced to the Members of Parliament.

Nevertheless, that only gives me more energy. These things will no longer go unnoticed. These things cannot just be accepted as the way things are done. This is a new era. His Excellency has called for a Constitutional review, and so we must mature as a society, as a government, and as a legislative body.

I begin my contribution by concentrating on the Throne Speech as delivered by His Excellency the Governor on the 9 March 2001. When I look at all the topics covered and I think of all the major issues facing the people of these Islands, it is difficult to pick a starting point. It seems that everything I look at, uncover and investigate, are not just problems, because that is just life. There will always be problems. But there seems to be serious problems in all major areas of life in these Islands—education, training, women's issues, youth, immigration, our constitutional status, the police, international initiatives, such as the OECD and FATF, Cayman Airways, the Civil Service, the Monetary Authority, Social Services, Agriculture. There is an old saying, 'If you cannot say anything good, do not say anything at all.' Fortunately in this case, we have certain things to build on, certain positives. However, we have to talk about these ills. We have been sent here to come up with solutions to work together as legislators to come up with new creative solutions.

I would first like to speak on education and training. Anyone who came to any of our political meetings in West Bay will know that I spoke at length and often on this topic. If memory serves me correct, I may have been the only member of our team who spoke in depth on education. It is my view that we have some serious systemic problems in education and training.

We have Caymanians, school age and adult, who quickly become disillusioned in life, even if they were otherwise optimistic and had high self-esteem. It is my view that when our people go into the labour market, they often encounter people from other countries who have what I consider a comprehensive education system. What do I mean by that? I mean a system that puts the child first, that puts the student first in the case of the training of adults; one that seeks to develop the whole child, for example, the focus would be learning, sports, art, music, community service; one that ensures that the unique talents of each individual are played upon and enhanced.

In fact, adults often say, 'Find what it is you really enjoy in life, and do it for a living. If you like taking radios apart, you would probably be a good technician, or engineer. If you like cooking, you would probably be a good chef.' Somewhere along the way we seem to think that if our children are not in what is considered the academic realm, then their lives may as well not be lived.

I am of the view that each person is put here on this earth in a family situation that allows them, in a lot of instances, to be predisposed to certain things. I also believe that each person has within him certain born traits and skills so that we do not have a world of all doctors, or all lawyers or mechanical engineers, or accountants; life must be balanced. We cannot foster any mentality that looks down at a person who is making the most of his God-given talents and is earning an honest living.

I believe that early on our children must be exposed to the vocation and technical areas of life, not just in a passing fashion. They must be exposed to them. So educators and parents alike can determine at an early age as best they can where the interest lies within each child. Not all children want to grow up to be accountants. What is wrong with a child wanting to be an electrician or a plumber?

I have heard the view that if this is done too early one could bias the child. I am of the complete opposite view. If you do this early, you allow the whole child to develop. In fact, the child will become better at what it is God intended him to be by being exposed to all these different facets of life. I believe we must have enhanced life skills programmes within our school system.

All we need to do is look at the statistics on things like teenage pregnancy to see the reason why we must expose our children within the system on how to deal with a lot of life's problems and challenges. I know the home is the foundation. However, I think we have gone long enough, and given ample opportunity for the home to be the training ground for all these issues. In my view, we have failed miserably. Teenage pregnancy is ever on the increase; juvenile violence is at the forefront of all our thoughts. We must have things like sex education and family planning within the curriculum. We must have it. The other system we relied on has failed, so the education system now has to do the best it can to help our young citizens in this area.

I am not saying that this will be the solution and will provide an absolute safety net, but if we have these programmes in our schools, they will be of some help. If they save one child from going down the road of motherhood or fatherhood in their early teens, when they are nothing but children themselves, it will be worthwhile.

We must have a proper comprehensive way in which to re-train adults in our society. I am of the view that we have a lot of talented people within our community. There are those who would like us to feel otherwise. And I suppose a less confident person would start to believe that Cayman does not have talented people, so we need to bring people in to do everything. That is not my view. I have great faith in my fellow Caymanian.

However, we have to recognise that in life and in an economy things change. We may get a certain number of people wanting to go into one area, let us say construction. And as time changes, there may be a shift in demand in the labour market, and more people may need to go into the hospitality area and become a Maitre de, waiter or bartender, night auditors, front desk managers. We must have proper training and re-training of our adult population.

It must be provided in ways that disrupt their family life as little as possible. After all, we have to be careful when we talk about these things because if all of a sudden all the adults are spending three or four evenings away from home, away from their children, then other problems sprout up. So, we must be comprehensive in the way in which we deal with the issues. Everything affects everything. There are no vacuums in life.

We also have to ensure that people, who have been or are incarcerated, are given every opportunity to lead productive lives upon release. I had the opportunity to go to Northward Prison a few weeks ago to see two West Bayers I have known since I was a little boy. They are both in prison for drug offences. Two weeks ago I saw one of them on the street. What was he doing? Nothing. No job. He was released from prison, has a problem with drugs and has no job. He was just riding up and down. It will not surprise me if he lands up in Northward again. I can assure this House that he has spent the better part of the last ten years (that I know about) in Northward.

Just yesterday, I saw another ex-prisoner. I asked the same question, 'Any job?'

'No, but if you could help me find one, I would appreciate it.'

Not only do we need to ensure that our education and training programme extends into the prison to build up a skill and feeling of self-esteem on many downtrodden citizens of this country. We have to ensure that upon release they are given the opportunity to get a job. After all, what usually happens is that they get out and make an application for a job. In those first two weeks, a prisoner really feels like making a change in his life. So, he looks for a job. He stays off drugs. He wants to utilise his time productively.

But what happens? If prison is on that application, you can be sure he is not going to get the job. If he does not state that he served time in prison and it is found out that he did, you can be sure he will not get the job because then he is a liar. That is a situation that scares me. It tells me that in our society ex-prisoners are so looked down upon and castigated that we may as well keep them in jail for life.

Why release them if we know they will not get a job. Most of them have families, and they have to live. Crime becomes inevitable in these situations. It is my view that we must provide more training and educational opportunities for our prisoners. And we have to have our departments work in tandem. We have a labour office, we have an immigration board, we have a prison. Is it so difficult to expect the three of them to work in tandem to try to ensure that our ex-prisoners are given an opportunity at life?

Most of our crimes are drug related, in particular drug use, or crimes that spring up because of drug use, such as robberies. We must have proper rehabilitation programmes and facilities in this country. I know there are those who say 'Yeah, but the prison only has two hundred and something people so why go spend all that money?' Deviant behaviour can sometimes graduate from smoking a little spliff to hitting crack cocaine, to stealing. Once people are involved with hard drugs, who knows what else will come about?

Just from a safety standpoint in our community it is worthwhile to do this. For the hardhearted that should be enough reason. But for those who truly care about each individual in society, it is simply the right thing to do. We must ensure that our citizens have every opportunity to make a decent living, to have a productive life.

What about early childhood development?

The Speaker: Could I interrupt you for a moment? If you are going on to a different subject, maybe this would be a convenient time to take the luncheon break.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Mr. Speaker, I am halfway through education, so I feel I can give way for the break.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.48 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.28 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Continuation of Debate on the Throne Speech, and Budget Address. The Second Elected Member for West Bay, continuing.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I will pick up where I left off before the break. I was speaking about education and training. I was just about to make the point on how critical it is to have early childhood development programmes in place.

These are the formative years. We recognise that in our society not everyone starts off from the same point. Not everyone has the privilege to have both parents in the home to provide a high degree of stability. It is good to note that government at present does provide funding for pre-school for any individuals who qualify in terms of financial need. I think it is critical that in the schools we ensure that all the students that come through Year 1 are availed the necessary early building blocks to serve them for the rest of their school life.

I remember very early on in my school career students (and I can remember them by name) who showed definite signs as to what would happen to them. I am a firm believer that our present system caters to the academically inclined. I went through the system. I think it is an excellent one in regard to people who will go on to do a formal tertiary education.

Looking back, I can easily identify the students who struggled in this area. I say this in the context that in my time in school (not very long ago) there was not what I would term proper vocational and technical training embedded in the education system.

I now turn to the digital age in which we live and its impact on the education system. It gives me great joy to hear about schools that have computer labs where five- and six-year-old children are being exposed to computers. It is also heartening to hear the Minister of Education recognise the need for computers in schools and the need to have computer equipment similar to what people will experience once they enter the work force. It is very important in my opinion, that we have equipment and programmes in our schools identical to what will be experienced in the workplace.

These days, when we look at word processors, spreadsheet tools, database programmes, you will find that only two or three dominate the market. For example, Microsoft Word and WordPerfect dominate the word processing market. It is very important that our children get exposed to one of those two products. Again that is insight that is paying attention to the small details.

I believe there should be a mandatory minimum amount of computer study time required for every year in school in every school in this country—government and private. It is critical that we equip our students to be able to succeed and excel in this digital age we have now reached.

I believe that we have some work to do in regard to our scholarship programme. I clearly remember going to university, speaking to a young lady and gentleman from Trinidad. The first thing we asked each other was how we were in university. I explained the system as it worked in Cayman. Of course, I had a private sector scholarship, so they quickly asked me about the government school scholarship programme.

They were amazed that once you had five 'O' levels that you were pretty much guaranteed a scholarship. If you had three 'A' levels you were absolutely guaranteed a scholarship unless there was something extraordinary within your record. Of course, I am not crying that down. I think it is very important that we provide as many scholarships in this country as possible. Of course, we have to find ways to work with our private sector partners to ensure that they keep up their end of the bargain.

The thing that struck me about this conversation was the fact that they revealed to me that to get a full scholarship from the government of Trinidad you had to have five 'O' levels and also three 'A' levels at an average grade of B. On the academic side it was forcing people to be the best they could possibly be. I knew that once I passed my three 'A' levels, I would get a scholarship. Therefore, what incentive was there for me to average a B? There was none!

I studied exceptionally hard for accounting because that was my true love and I wanted to go into the accounting field. So, it was no surprise that I got an A in 'A' level accounting. The grades in my other two subjects were far lower. I still passed, but with a D and an E. Just for the record, those are passes at 'A' level, because of the difficulty level of that course. I always use myself as an example, because I know I will not offend myself.

I think it has come time that we stagger the dollar amount of scholarships to correspond to the grades of the students. After all, in my view it is a disincentive to do as good as you can do when everyone is going to get the same scholarship award. In my view, if a student passes 8 'O' levels, or CXC's, and averages a certain grade, this should be required for a certain dollar amount. If you average another grade, that also would be eligible for a lower dollar amount.

Of course, I think the current standards are the base from which you build. I would use the current system and build on top of that and use that for people who have the equivalent of a C grade average for their 'O' levels and CXC's and then increase the amount incrementally just so you award those students who do much better.

The same thing should happen when we have our vocational and technical training in full stream. For those students who excel there should be opportunities to go overseas to train. They should be afforded the best possible experience once they excel above and beyond the norm. We should find ways to send them, in the case of one studying to be a chef, to work in the finest restaurants in other countries to broaden their minds, to make them the best they can be. We must build good people. It is good, educated people that build a good society. And when I say 'educated' I do not just mean academics, I also mean vocational and technical areas.

I am a strong advocate of the 'A' level programme. I am extremely disappointed that it is no longer a part of our high school system. I thought it was an ideal complement to the academic side of that system. It provided persons who went on to double as prefects, to assist teachers within the schools. It built leadership within those individuals.

It also allowed the younger children on that high school campus to want to wear blue pants, or skirt. It gave them something right in front of their eyes to work towards. Education and training are critical. We must enhance both of these areas.

I will now turn to Women's Affairs. I am encouraged to hear that a national policy on gender equality will be coming soon. I think it is greatly needed in this country.

It is also encouraging to see the advent of a family protection unit and a place of safety. I believe that there must be equal pay for equal work. I know there are those who would say that is the case. But in many instances, I would beg to differ. It has been my experience that that is not necessarily the case and I have lived and worked in two countries. I have worked in two others for short stints.

This has always been an area of interest to me. Wherever I go, I always probe in this area. I find it to be extremely gross injustice, that women with the same qualifications, doing the same job as a man, will bump their heads into the glass ceiling so many times until they are left disillusioned and frustrated. We have to ensure that entrepreneurship is available equally to women and men.

There is no rule in nature that says men are going to be better business people than women. Yet, the very systems that dominate in most societies, dictate that men move up the ladder quicker in the corporate world, they get paid more and they dominate the entrepreneurial ranks. This is not right and we cannot allow it to happen in our small island.

The issue of child maintenance is a touchy one. But so far, touchy issues have not stopped me from speaking what I feel is right. We must find ways to ensure that the fathers of children contribute financially to raising them. The ideal (getting back to education) is to have life skills as a predominant part of the educational system to help equip our people. However, there will inevitably be those who wind up on their own; and when a woman winds up on her own, there would have been a father.

We must ensure that we instil in our males the fundamental responsibility of taking care of their children, of raising them and being good fathers. But at the least, they must support them financially. This is cause for a large strain on the Social Services Department in this country. We have males who go around this community and they father children, and expect all of us to pick up the tab.

This cannot continue. It must be stopped. There are things like garnishment of wages that can happen. But once it is proven that one is the father, the judicial system has to be user friendly to the single mother to ensure she at least gets financial help with the children she is raising. After all, it did not take just her to bring those children into the world. So, I feel there are numerous issues regarding women. The ones I outline are by no means comprehensive.

I am very confident that we have a Minister in charge of this area who will do her best—and then some!—to ensure that the rights and freedoms of women are enhanced in this community.

I now turn to our youth. Last Friday I spoke for well over one hour on this topic. So, I do not intend to go into this in any great depth today. A lot of the people in the community heard my views on young people. But, I would like to share a prayer that I got at a CASA (Cayman Against Substance Abuse) graduation ceremony last Thursday night. Eleven young people all under the age of 13 graduated from an eight-week class geared toward a wholesome drug free life. It reads: "A Prayer for the Young and Lovely."

*"Dear God I keep praying for the things I desire.
You tell me I'm selfish and playing with fire.
It's hard to believe I am selfish and vain,
My desire seems so real and my needs seem so sane.*

*"And yet you are wiser and your vision is wide.
And you look down on me and you see deep inside.
You know it's so easy to change and distort,
And things that are evil seem so harmless a sport.*

*"Oh, teach me dear God to not rush ahead,
But to pray for your guidance and trust you instead.
For you know what I need; that I am only a slave
To the things that I want, and desire and crave.*

*"Oh God, in your mercy look down on me now,
To see in my heart that I love you somehow.
Although in my rashness, impatience and greed
I pray for the things that I want and don't need.*

"Instead of a crown, please send me a cross

*And teach me to know that all gain is but loss.
And show me the way to joy without end,
With you as my Father, Redeemer, and Friend.*

*"And send me the things that are hardest to bear
And keep me forever safe in thy care."*

Mr. Speaker, the youth are our future, and our future is our youth. We must address the inadequacies in the education system. We must offer parenting classes and workshops. We must encourage two-parent homes. We must encourage discipline. It is at home that generations are strengthened or lost, so we must address the issue of teenage pregnancy. We must ensure that we turn some of the staggering statistics around.

I read from the National Youth Policy, "In the study of the family in Caymanian society in 1997, it was approximated that only 58% of households have both parents, which means an excess of four out of every ten children come from single-parent families."

I now move on to the topic of Immigration, an area that needs much addressing. We cannot bury our heads in the sand. We must deal with this issue in a fair manner. It is my view that the Vision 2008 Immigration Roundtable did a commendable job. If that vision is the wish and desire of Caymanian society, I think it is a decent place for us to start in terms of grappling with our immigration nightmare.

We must deal with people with deep Caymanian connections. We have citizens in this country who have two and three grandparents (four in some instances) who are all Caymanian. But under the law as it stands, other things being equal, my understanding is that they do not qualify for the grant of Caymanian status. What often happens is that those of us who do not have to deal with this issue at all, sometimes do not become aware of the hardship this can cause on Caymanian families.

I will give you an example: I spoke to this young man, and he was happy that I would use him as an example. For anyone who does not know his situation, they would look at him and think 'He is one of us.' People do not think of Mr. Ricky Bodden (that is Mullie Bodden's son) from Northwest Point in West Bay—who has been here for 30 years, and yet was told some two or three months ago that he had to get a work permit. Everyone considers Ricky one of us.

Yet, as the present law stands, there is no way he can get Caymanian status. This is a travesty. A person can live here from the time he was a baby, have deep rooted Caymanian connections, grow up to look, to talk, to act, to dance, to feel like one of us. After all he is one of us! He is a Caymanian! And to be told a few short months that he has to get a work permit . . . because he has been here so long, he talks like a Caymanian, and everybody knows him as a Caymanian, they never thought otherwise.

This situation came about because he moved his child from private school to government school at which point he had to produce evidence that he was Caymanian. People in this category—and there are a lot of people on this Island like Ricky—have to pay school fees for their children because they are not Caymanian. Says who? Says the law!

I beg to say that I can safely assume that there would not be any Caymanians who would look around at people like Ricky Bodden (Mullie's son) and say he is anything other than a Caymanian. So, when we deal with the people in our community who fall into this category (and I understand there are quite a few), this would shift the balance. And what an ideal way to do it—with people who are Caymanian for all intent and purposes.

I will give you the example of Dalvin Ebanks. Dalvin has been running barefoot in Cayman longer than I have probably been alive. Same situation.

We must address this situation. It cries out for addressing, and it is incumbent upon the government of the day and all of us to ensure that this happens in short order.

There is also the issue of long-term residents. I think it is safe to say that on this issue our community becomes a bit more divided. There are those who say if a person has been here X number of years (whatever that is—20 or 30 years) that they deserve some rights within Cayman.

In my dealings with people in the community I have found that most people feel that we have to deal with that situation and that there are certain rights that accrue to people who have been resident, living and working in this Island, for over a certain period of time. Of course, the caveat most people use is 'once they are desirous.' These can be very subjective things.

I have heard people talk about a test, that people would have to pass a test, it would not be carte blanche issuance of residency or Caymanian status, whichever route the government chose to deal with long term residents. While I agree that we have to come up with some form of measuring stick or criteria we all have to recognise this area will always be inherently biased through the eyes of someone. We will not get it perfect, but we must deal with the situation. We must address it in a fair and comprehensive manner.

Once we have gone through the exercise of trying to sort out our immigration mess, we then have to ensure that the immigration process becomes transparent. Everyone likes to talk about transparency, but transparency does not only relate to MLAs; transparency relates to everything in life. We must have a transparent immigration system. That is, when people move here to live and work, they know what the expectations are and they know the rules of the game so that there is no built in desire and wish that is not that of the people of the Cayman Islands. We have been told that we will be our own gatekeepers, and every country has some form of immigration policy. Most countries have a rollover period.

I know there was a lot of kicking against the report of the select committee of this Honourable House in regard to a rollover period. There now seems to be fighting as to how long it should be. We have to come up with what we feel is a right and justifiable number of years. But we have to have a system in place. If we do not do it, 20 years from now we will have legislators in this country talking about the same issues. We have to deal with it now. The time is at hand.

I can tell anyone who wants to argue with me about this rollover and whether or not it is needed, they are barking up the wrong tree. As I said earlier, I have lived and worked in two countries. I am at home in Cayman, but when I was in the US, I was an expatriate. I know what it feels like to be an expat. I can tell you that I had three years. After that, I had to go. I had to leave the country for at least six months and reapply if I wanted to return there to work. And obviously, they clearly tell you upon reapplication that it becomes more difficult to come back and work after your first stint.

We had the privilege to sit down with representatives from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office later in the year (not the one I referred to earlier in my speech). I thank His Excellency for letting us have a forum with them. When we brought this issue up, the gentleman looked at us and said, 'What is the issue of a rollover? We have it in the UK.' He revealed that they have a five-year rollover policy. But there are certain interests in this country that want to run things.

I am not going to get carried away, Mr. Speaker. I will refrain. Being young, one can often become excitable.

It is critical that the Immigration Board moves forward with its business plan model. This has to be part and parcel of the new immigration regime, one which is transparent, one where people who come into the system know the rules by which they can apply, and exactly how long they can stay; but also, from Government's standpoint, we have to see a clear demonstration of effort on the part of employers to Caymanianise themselves. We cannot allow this Island to be used by large or small employers and Caymanians be pushed aside and marginalised even though they have the skills and talents required for the job. That cannot happen.

After all, what I am talking about is not radical. This is what every country does for its own citizens. So, anyone who wants to argue this point, I will simply say to them, 'Look where you come from. I think you will quickly see that I as a Caymanian cannot go to your country and dictate policy to their government.'

We must have legacy plans. We must ensure proper legacy planning and that Caymanians are given every opportunity towards upward mobility. The model has to be that if there are two equal candidates for a job, equal in terms of qualifications and experience, the preference has to be given to a Caymanian for that post. But, as it stands, Immigration is one big abyss. No one seems to know exactly what's going on. And matters don't come to light until there is a complaint. We must ensure that we are able to manage our immigration process.

One of the travesties of late (the last decade in particular) is the fact that government (that is, the civil service and elected officials) have told the private sector it has to Caymanianise, it has to give Caymanians an opportunity. Yet, we hear of instances of injustice within the civil service that are far greater than those occurring in the private sector. This legacy planning I am talking about not only applies to the private sector it also applies to the government. After all, we have to practise what we preach.

Mr. Speaker, I now turn to the constitutional review. I will begin with a quote, “Let us resolve to be masters not the victims of our history, controlling our own destiny without giving way to blind suspicions and emotions.” John F. Kennedy.

I know there is one part of that quote that will never apply to the Cayman Islands, that is, unless the people of these islands wish to go independent—which is not my view. So, we must resolve to be masters and not the victims of our history. We cannot give way to blind suspicions and emotions. We must be rational. This is an area that a lot of our people become very irrational about.

They feel that the Constitution is a document that is to be feared, leave it alone. It is taboo. Do not touch that! Do not talk about it! If you talk about it in some circles, you might not see another day. The Constitution has to be a living document. It has to be one that evolves with people.

As society evolves, the Constitution must evolve to meet their desires. This must be a reality. I can tell anyone that I support the constitutional review wholeheartedly.

I would like to touch on political advancement. I feel that we must have transparency in our political system. We can no longer expect our citizens to vote for candidates in any district without knowing who those candidates are going to support for Executive Council. We cannot expect our people to vote blindly.

I am under no disillusion. I know what happened last November. We all lived through it. And I was right at the middle of the storm. I know that people in my district will look at the current government and say, ‘Had I known Rolston would support these candidates for Executive Council, I would have given him a vote.’ And, on the other hand, there would be those who would say, ‘Had I known Rolston would support this current Executive Council, I would NOT have given him a vote.’ It goes both ways but Caymanians deserve the best, and this is what they deserve. After all, do you think people in the US would go to the polls and vote Democrat or Republican without having a name to put to that title? I do not think so. That is what our people did—they voted on district levels without knowing who would be the Executive Council, the policymakers. There must be transparency in the political process. That leads me to my next point.

Our people may wish to have a chief minister. I feel like the constitutional review must involve broad public consultation. But at the end of the day, it has to be taken to the people by referenda for them to choose. I do not think that 15 people can make this choice alone.

There may be those who look at the system now and say they want more accountability, so they want a chief minister. As I told the Governor and the two colleagues from the FCO, I could not support any move toward having a chief minister if there was no transparency in the political system. The people of these Islands must know who each candidate they vote for is going to support for that position. They must! We cannot expect our people to blindly vote and not know who the Chief Minister is and come out the other end. We have to have transparency in the political process. This must be part and parcel of our constitutional development and modernisation.

I also feel that it is time in this country that we had a minister of finance. I think it is high time that be a reality. I know this one is a bit less controversial and that most Caymanians would agree with that. The people I have spoken to, in terms of the Constitution, desire to have a minister of finance. But we must have increased accountability in our country.

I know there are lots of people out there who like the bottom line, so let me just state the bottom line from my point of view. I, in no way, shape, or form, seek or desire these Islands to be independent. I am just saying that for the record. I do not advocate independence. But I am saying that it is time as a community that we look at our Constitution and ensure that it meets our needs, desires, and aspirations as a people.

I also feel, as my team’s manifesto said on page 12, that we must have a Bill of Rights in this country. That too, is something that you find a lot of Caymanians supporting. They believe they would be gaining by having a Bill of Rights.

It is clear that we have reached a stage in our development where we need to have a statement of fundamental rights and freedoms that are agreed upon by going through the constitutional review process and having a referendum, where the people will have input into their Constitution.

There is a price to pay for everything. And, as legislators, we must endeavour to educate our people about the prices they pay along the way. I know that there are a lot of Caymanians enjoying the lifestyle that development has brought. But there are other parts of it that they want nothing to do with. However, that is not how life works. There is no free lunch in this life. And with everything comes a price and a consequence. One has to look at the pros and cons and make an informed decision. So too, we need to ensure that our people recognise everything that goes along with a new Constitution and things like a Bill of Rights.

I want to share something I received by e-mail on Monday. I thought it was quite interesting. It’s titled “The New School Prayer” and it’s written by a teenager in Arizona, USA. I read:

“Now I sit me down in school,

*Where praying is against the rule.
For this great nation under God,
Finds mention of Him very odd.*

*"If scripture now the class recites
It violates the Bill of Rights.
And any time my head I bow,
Becomes a federal matter now.*

*"Our hair can be purple, orange or green,
That's no offense, it's a freedom scene.
The law is specific; the law is precise,
Prayers spoken aloud are a serious vice.*

*"For praying in public hall
Might offend someone with no faith at all.
In silence alone we must meditate.
God's name is prohibited by the State.*

*"We're allowed to cuss and dress like freaks
And pierce our noses, tongues and cheeks
They've outlawed guns but first the Bible
To quote the good book makes me liable.*

*"We can elect a pregnant senior queen,
And the unwed daddy our senior king.
It's inappropriate to teach right from wrong,
We're taught that such judgments do not belong.*

*"We can get our condoms and birth control,
Study witchcraft, vampire, and totem poles
But the Ten Commandments are not allowed,
Not a word of God must reach this crowd.*

*"It's scary here, I must confess,
When chaos reigns and the school's a mess.
So, Lord, this silent plea I make:
Should I be shot, my soul please take.
Amen."*

The e-mail said, 'If you are not ashamed of this, please pass it on.'

As I said, we must ensure that our people know what it is they are asking for. As legislators, we cannot campaign, and push concepts only showing the positive, glitzy part—without demonstrating all the ramifications, and then let the Caymanian people choose. Once you have done a thorough job of explaining exactly where we are headed, and the people make a conscious decision, then we have done it as a society. And that is how I feel this constitutional review process must go. If that is what the people want, that is, a modernised constitution, then it has to be.

As I said earlier, I support the constitutional review. I think it is high time. I think it is greatly needed. We must not be scared of our Constitution. Everyone in this country must look at it as a live document, something that has to progress as we progress as a people.

I now turn to the Royal Cayman Islands Police.

The Speaker: If you are going on to a different subject, maybe this would be a convenient time to take the afternoon break. We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.22 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.59 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Continuation of Debate on the Throne Speech, and Budget Address. The Second Elected Member for West Bay, continuing.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Before we took the break, I was about to address the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force. Let me make it abundantly clear that I support the police officers of this country 110%. They are trying their best to combat and investigate crime.

There is something that is relatively disturbing in my view. That has to do with policing and teaching. I always question our society in terms of its ability to police itself and to teach itself. I know the Minister of Education has a committee looking into the matter of Caymanian teachers within the system. It is an area I feel confident in saying that there will be positive developments over the coming years. And it is greatly needed. It was needed a long time ago.

We as a people must have the ability to police ourselves and to teach ourselves. When we think of national security, that is not just securing one's borders. After all, countries like the US give aid to farmers. Why? Because they see the need to be able to feed themselves. They consider it a matter of national security. I say here today in this House that all Honourable Members must recognise as a matter of national security that in short order we be able to police and teach ourselves.

Mr. Speaker, I am not a policeman, I know quite a few, so I am not going to claim to know everything there is to know about policing. However, there are some matters that disturb me greatly. I represent the district of West Bay, the second largest district on the Island. While there were great boasts of crime reduction islandwide last year, and in 1999, (if my memory is correct) crime was up in the district of West Bay. That is a matter of great concern to me and to my constituents.

I am a firm believer that it is not in increasing the numbers of police necessarily that addresses the issue of policing, but the matter of police presence.

Mayor Rudolph Giuliani of New York, although very much disliked on a personal level in the City of New York, he has been successful because New York City has become one of the safest places in this world. He ensured that policemen and policewomen were on the street in tandem. That was the main strategy employed—to have a police presence. If you have police on the streets it goes naturally that you decrease the likelihood that a potential criminal will commit an act there.

I feel confident in saying that every West Bayer is frustrated at the lack of police presence in our district. You can drive around that district 20 times in a week and if you see a police car once, you are lucky. You can drive around that district and know where the drug spots are, see people who you know are drug addicts coming and going free as birds. One has to wonder where are the police.

I know it seems as though the police have done a good job on the international drug interdiction scene. There seems to be major operations. That is good because that can decrease potential drugs coming into our society so I applaud that effort. However, we must clean up the streets of these Islands. We must chase away the drug pushers in these Islands. I can think of one particular piece of land in West Bay where the owners do not have any structure on it. But every couple of years they hire a bulldozer to go in there and push it down because they know that drugs are dealt on their property.

The residents of West Bay know where drugs are pushed. They call the police, and tell them. Nothing seems to happen. As a representative from the district of West Bay, I can say that we are very unhappy with the policing in our district and are greatly disturbed that while crime is down, it is up in our district.

West Bayers are not any more likely to commit crime than any other place on this Island. And I beg anyone to show me evidence to the contrary. However, the lack of a police presence is, in my view, one of the main causes of the increasing criminal activity in our district.

Another thing that disturbs me . . . and I am no police commissioner, so I cannot tell anyone how to do his job, but I can certainly tell people when the job, in my view, is not being done adequately.

I see the beat officers. And I think that is a great concept. I applaud the police for that. Having them ride around on bicycles and walk the street is a great way for them to mix and mingle in the community and get to know people, bridge that gap, humanise them so that when they need evidence people will be forthcoming and will feel at ease to call the police. This is critical to policing, in my view.

However, what greatly disturbs me is when I see the police in West Bay who ride their bicycles around by themselves like the Lone Ranger. I would like to remind Honourable Members of this House and the community that even the Lone Ranger had a partner—his name was Tonto. I am sick and tired of seeing these 'Lone Rangers' riding the streets. Which drug area will either of them go into by himself? I can tell you which—None! In my view, that is why crime is up in that district.

Another thing: I am all for women's rights, but I see female officers in police cars patrolling by themselves. The resident beat officer is a man, he is by himself, and I am calling for him to have a partner, so I am not being sexist. I am calling for all police in this Island when on patrol to have a partner. We do not have any Robot cops. That is just in the movies. If that is what people think our cops are made of they are greatly mistaken.

No more 'Lone Rangers' in West Bay or any district of these Islands. We must have police officers working in tandem so that if something arises and they need to investigate it, they have backup there with them. How are they going to go into the scene of a drug house, which I can guarantee you will have more than one individual there? You do not see any of these homes that we know of in our communities where you only see one person in the yard. They have their backup, the police must have their backup as well.

I can tell you today, I find it difficult to vote for anything involving police knowing the facts as I have outlined them so far. Crime is down in the Cayman Islands, but up in the district of West Bay. It is inexcusable and it is not going to be stood for any longer.

Turning to drugs and white-collar crime. We hear of an asset confiscation account in this country. I have a few questions about it. I cannot make any comments because I do not have any knowledge of it. I beg to say that most Members of this House do not either. Who accounts to the public for this money? How much money is in the account? Who knows how much should be in the account?

We are not asking the police to reveal their drug interdiction methodologies and tactics. We are asking for transparency in all sectors of Government. God knows this Government needs as much money as it can get. We hear about all these cases . . . this one is being convicted under this law, and under that law, and we are out there in the Caribbean Sea and we are part of "Operation Riptide" and operation this and that . . . where is the money going? The last time I checked, when we have drug busts, the teams split the funds up.

(Pardon the pun), where is the pot?

I turn to the issue of Cayman Airways. I, like most Caymanians, have a sense of pride when it comes to the national airline. I do not think there are many people who can honestly say that they do not have some sense of pride in Cayman Airways.

Mr. Speaker, my view on the future of the airline is middle-of-the-road. We must be afforded the details of the ongoing audit. We must also ensure that the findings of that audit are consistent with the audited financial statements over the last ten years so that we as legislators can make informed decisions. We need to get the details of this report and we need to sit down, look at it, and be rational. We must have all available alternatives presented to us. We must be able to look at those alternatives and realistically say whether they are viable and strategies that we feel are in the best interest of every Caymanian.

I am of the view that with the amount of money we have spent on Cayman Airways just in the last decade, and with the increased competitiveness in the airline industry, that we must look at Cayman Airways critically and ensure that the road we take is in the best interest of all Caymanians.

We have a small economy and when we look at annual recurrent expenditure and revenue we will quickly see that in the last ten years . . . if we added up how much money government has given Cayman Airways by way of direct and indirect subsidies, we have spent a lot of money on the national airline. I am not convinced that we have a lot to show for it. We have to be comprehensive in our review. We have to look at the benefits. We have to look at tourism realistically and try to analyse and assess the impact the national flag carrier has on our local economy.

It is not all bad. We do not just put money into the airline. The airline also brings people here and people spend money. But that argument can almost be defeated immediately because there are many people who will automatically ask who benefits when tourists come here. But we will not go that far. We know we are a tourist destination and that we need to enhance our tourism product. It could very well be that Cayman Airways is an integral part of the future. But, we cannot just assume that.

Every person here campaigned on tough unpopular decisions. Anything we do with Cayman Airways is going to be unpopular. If the Government says it is going to keep Cayman Airways and get a new fleet, it will be unpopular. If Government says it is going to shut it down, that would be unpopular. Whatever happens is going to be unpopular. Therefore, we have to make a proper assessment and we have to make an informed decision.

I often hear people ask what will happen when a hurricane is coming. There are many companies in this country that already have evacuation procedures. They are not going to rely on Cayman Airways. They have contracts that will evacuate every staff member and their families in the case of a hurricane. Let us face it, hurricanes are not tornadoes. They do not whisk across the ocean. We see them as they come. There would be time for those who want to go, to go. I can remember in 1988, people battening up their houses and flying out to Miami when hurricane Gilbert approached. So do not tell me it cannot be done.

We cannot have fears stirred up in people, and then politicians being forced to make irrational decisions. Those days have to be past. Anyone who looks at this budget will realise the serious times this country is in, and in for, unless we make tough decisions.

There are numerous alternatives for Cayman Airways that would not involve shutting it down. There are joint ventures with other airlines, with private partner citizens. There is the possibility of having a subsidiary structure with another airline, that is, selling Cayman Airways and having it as a subsidiary of another carrier. It would be a separate company operating under the laws of the Cayman Islands. Its staff would not be a part of any airline union, so there would not be that fear. For example, if we had a subsidiary structure with a major US airline that if their staff go on strike then Cayman Airways staff would have to go on strike. We have to find ways. We have to investigate all possible avenues.

I cannot tell you which one it is. I am saying that as legislators we have to look at this issue and use common sense, use a bit of intelligence and most of all get accurate information and make an informed decision and do it as soon as possible.

Of course, there is always the alternative of a local private sale. Some might ask who would buy Cayman Airways. I do not know. I do not think any of us know. If you remove the political aspect of Cayman Airways and let it operate as a private company, who knows what could happen with that airline. We have to investigate the possibilities. We cannot do as was done in the past, and use scare tactics to evade the issue or convince our people otherwise, saying things like, 'Oh, the staff will lose their jobs'; or, 'Oh, if a hurricane comes we need the airline.' Saying things like, 'Oh, if the US carriers go on strike no tourists will be able to get here.' Those are excuses. There is nothing I hate more than excuses. We are being paid to do a job; let us do it to the best of our ability.

One thing that strikes me as a bit of a concern is that there seems to be a feeling of late from some of the discussions and materials made available to us, like the Throne Speech, that almost seem to imply that a decision has already been made on Cayman Airways. It seems the decision has been made that we are going to keep it and just look at ways to make it more profitable. We have to ensure that if Cayman Airways is going to be kept, whether or not it is reasonable to expect it can be profitable as long as it is a political animal.

I now turn to the OECD and FATF matters. This is another area where we have found that numerous people conveniently try to scare people about. I listened in horror about one week ago to one of the talk shows, when I heard a guest of the talk show say that the Cayman Islands should go independent so that we can protect our financial industry and be able to fight these larger nations. Let me reiterate this is what I heard on a talk show—Rolston Anglin did not say that!

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Was it a Caymanian?

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Yes, it was a Caymanian who said that.

These thought processes are dangerous in my view. Do we not realise that there would be people in our community who would listen to this sort of nonsense and actually believe it? Okay, let us go on a hypothetical situation and say 'Right. That's the road that needs to be taken.' What in the world can the little Cayman Islands do to industrial nations? As a colleague of mine quite rightly said, it will be like a flea fighting an elephant!

I agree with what the Honourable Third Official Member has continually said on this matter: That the Cayman Islands cannot afford to go down the road in terms of Know Your Customer regulations, on site inspections of banks, trust companies, mutual fund administrators, et cetera, and be more aggressive and be a pioneer in this area, be ahead of all the territories and as a result make ourselves uncompetitive. We must be diligent.

I am sure that most people in this country do not want any part of the criminal element. However, we must not be overly aggressive and try to be a Christopher Columbus, going into uncharted territory and lead the way. There is no need for that. If these big industrialised countries want to do that, let them. Let them be the leaders in this area, then have the smaller jurisdictions follow.

I think it is so hypocritical that countries like the US can demand us to have the Know Your Customer regulations. Yet the very bill got shot down in their House of Representatives, if it got that far. So, while we are small, we must act with intelligence.

We have had a change in the presidential administration in the United States. I do not think it was any coincidence that within weeks of the election, the Majority Leader of the US House of Representatives, or the Senate, wrote a letter to the Secretary of the US Treasury telling him of his personal displeasure of the activities of such organisations as the OECD and FATF. The US is not going to give up its tax sovereignty to anyone.

When we look at organisations like the OECD, they talk about 'market distortions.' Now, if the US gives aid to its farmers, what bigger market distortion can you possibly get than a subsidy? Where a government directly intervenes with the free workings of a market, subsidises an industry and, therefore, people who would not be productive enough to compete in that industry are made competitive simply because of the subsidy. So, Mr. Speaker, these larger countries have to get off their high horses and clean up their own backyards.

Having said all of that, we must be diligent in Cayman. We must do what is right. Yes, the operational independence of the Monetary Authority is going to cost money, but we have a financial sector that seemingly continues to grow day after day, so we have to ensure that the industry pays its own way. And, yes, we must have operational independence of the Monetary Authority.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of 4.30, I will entertain a motion for the adjournment.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.31 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED
UNTIL 10 AM THURSDAY, 29 MARCH 2001.

PARLIAMENTARY QUESTION ASKED BY THE SECOND ELECTED MEMBER FOR WEST BAY

TO

THE HONOURABLE MINISTER RESPONSIBLE FOR THE MINISTRY OF HEALTH AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

QUESTION: For each staff member in the Computer Services Department what is the:

- (a) job title;
- (b) nationality;
- (c) qualifications; and
- (d) number of days spent in training during 2000.

ANSWER: Mr. Speaker, the answers for questions (a) to (d) above are listed below. In the interest of time, Mr. Speaker, I do not propose to read out this lengthy list unless you direct me to do so.

| JOB TITLE                    | NATIONALITY | QUALIFICATIONS                                                       | # OF DAYS TRAINING |
|------------------------------|-------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------|
| Director, Computer Services  | Caymanian   | MBA in Information Systems, BSc. Computer Science, and BSc Chemistry | 6                  |
| Deputy Director              | Caymanian   | Management Information Systems Diploma First Class Pass              | 6                  |
| Deputy Director              | Caymanian   | BSc. Computer Science                                                | 4                  |
| Applications Project Manager | British     | Post High School: Certificate Computer Programming                   | 12                 |
| Applications Project Manager | Canadian    | BSc. Engineering                                                     | 0                  |
| Applications Project Manager | British     | National Computing Centre Data Processing Threshold Scheme           | 12                 |
| Applications Project Manager | Canadian    | MBA in Finance, BSc. Computing Science                               | 15                 |
| Applications Project Manager | British     | Higher National Diploma Physics                                      | 11.5               |
| Support Project Manager      | British     | City Guilds Programming                                              | 12                 |
| Support Project Manager      | Caymanian   | BSc. Management Information Systems                                  | 20                 |
| Support Project Manager      | Caymanian   | Associate Degree, Computer Engineering Technology                    | 2                  |
| Systems Manager              | Caymanian   | Post High School: Systems Management and Customer Service Courses    | 7                  |
| Systems Manager              | British     | Ordinary National Certificate Computer Studies                       | 19                 |

| Senior Analyst/Programmer    | British     | Post High School: Programming and Customer Service Courses                                                        | 7                  |
|------------------------------|-------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------|
| Senior Analyst/Programmer    | Canadian    | Management Information Systems Diploma                                                                            | 18.5               |
| Senior Analyst/Programmer    | British     | MSc. Digital Systems, BSc. Physics                                                                                | 12                 |
| JOB TITLE                    | NATIONALITY | QUALIFICATIONS                                                                                                    | # OF DAYS TRAINING |
| Analyst/Programmer           | British     | BSc. Electronic & Electrical Engineering                                                                          | 12                 |
| Analyst/Programmer           | British     | Post High School: Programming and Customer Service Courses                                                        | 23                 |
| Analyst/Programmer           | Turkish     | BSc. Control Computer Engineering                                                                                 | 18                 |
| Analyst/Programmer           | Canadian    | BSc. Computing Science                                                                                            | 19                 |
| Analyst/Programmer           | Canadian    | Master of Computer Engineering                                                                                    | 7.9                |
| Senior Network Administrator | Pakistani   | BSc. Mathematics                                                                                                  | 0                  |
| Senior Support Administrator | British     | Post High School: MCP Certification and Customer Service Course                                                   | 0.5                |
| Senior Support Administrator | Caymanian   | Associate Degree, Computer Engineering Technology                                                                 | 12                 |
| Senior Support Administrator | Caymanian   | BSc. Computer Based Information Systems                                                                           | 7                  |
| Senior Systems Administrator | British     | BSc. Information Technology                                                                                       | 2                  |
| Programmer I                 | Turkish     | BSc. Physics                                                                                                      | 9                  |
| Programmer I                 | Caymanian   | BSc. Production & Decision Sciences                                                                               | 66                 |
| Programmer I                 | British     | B.A. Equine Studies                                                                                               | 0                  |
| Programmer I                 | Indian      | BSc. Mathematics                                                                                                  | 28                 |
| Support Administrator I      | Caymanian   | BSc. Information Science                                                                                          | 12                 |
| Support Administrator I      | Caymanian   | BSc. Information Systems                                                                                          | 32                 |
| Support Administrator I      | Caymanian   | Associate Degree, Computer Engineering Technology                                                                 | 10                 |
| Support Administrator I      | Caymanian   | BSc. Computer Science/Information Systems                                                                         | 12                 |
| Support Administrator I      | Caymanian   | Post High School: Bookkeeping & Typing, Electronics & Circuitry, Printers Management and Customer Service courses | 2                  |
| Administration Manager       | Caymanian   | Post High School: Short Hand, Typing, Accounting and Customer Service Courses                                     | 2                  |
| Central Services Manager     | Caymanian   | Post High School: Clerical, Office Administration, Supervisory, Accounting and Customer Service Courses           | 13                 |
| Support Administrator II     | Caymanian   | Associate Degree, Computer Engineering Technology                                                                 | 2                  |
| Support Administrator II     | Caymanian   | Post High School: Systems Management and Customer Service Courses                                                 | 55                 |
| Support Administrator II     | Caymanian   | Associate Degree, Electronic Data Communications                                                                  | 29                 |
| Accounts Officer I           | Caymanian   | Post High School: Accounting and Customer Service Courses                                                         | 10                 |
| Higher Executive Officer     | Bahamian    | BSc. Management Information Systems                                                                               | 5                  |
| Central Services Supervisor  | Caymanian   | Post High School: Clerical & Typing Courses                                                                       | 2                  |
| JOB TITLE                    | NATIONALITY | QUALIFICATIONS                                                                                                    | # OF DAYS TRAINING |
| Central Services Supervisor  | Caymanian   | Post High School: Customer Service, Secretarial & Supervisory Courses                                             | 2                  |
| Junior Support Administrator | Caymanian   | Post High School: A+ Certification and Customer Service Course                                                    | 12                 |
| Junior Support Administrator | Jamaican    | Post High School: PC Repair, Mass Communications and Customer Service Course                                      | 2                  |

|                              |           |                                                                                            |    |
|------------------------------|-----------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Junior Support Administrator | Caymanian | Post High School: Practical Nursing, Customer Service, Clerical and Administration Courses | 2  |
| Executive Officer (Temp)     | American  | Post High School: Real Estate Appraising and Customer Service Courses                      | 0  |
| Central Services Officer     | Caymanian | Post High School: General Office Diploma and Customer Service Course                       | 2  |
| Central Services Assistant   | Caymanian | High School Certificate: Customer Service Course                                           | 2  |
| Senior Computer Assistant    | British   | Post High School: Technical Support and Customer Service Course                            | 0  |
| Senior Computer Assistant    | British   | City Guilds Electronic Servicing                                                           | 21 |
| Warehouse Clerk II           | Caymanian | Post High School: Hotel Vocational Certificate and Customer Service Course                 | 2  |
| Supply Clerk                 | Caymanian | High School Certificate: Customer Service Course                                           | 2  |
| Student Intern               | Caymanian | High School Diploma                                                                        | 0  |

Additionally, there were four (4) staff who left Computer Services in 2000.

|                              |          |                         |      |
|------------------------------|----------|-------------------------|------|
| Applications Project Manager | British  | HND Computer Science    | 6    |
| Applications Project Manager | Scottish | BSc.                    | 3.4  |
| Senior Systems Administrator | Scottish | HND Accounting, 2 MCP's | 4    |
| Jr. Computer Programmer      | Belize   | BSc. Math               | 49.5 |

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
THURSDAY
29 MARCH 2001
10.31 AM
Eleventh Sitting

[Prayers read by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Honourable Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE
SPEAKER OF MESSAGES
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

HOUSE VISITORS

The Speaker: I would like to recognize John Gray High School, Class 11DS who is in the gallery. We welcome you here this morning and thank you for attending.

Moving on to item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Presentation of Papers and Reports, Review of the Cayman Islands Education Department - The Millett Report, to be laid on the Table by the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

REVIEW OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS EDUCATION DEPARTMENT

(THE MILLETT REPORT)

Hon. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, as promised by my predecessor, I would crave the Chair to lay the review of the Cayman Islands Education Department, popularly called the Millett Report on the Table of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Do you wish to speak to it? The Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture.

Hon. Roy Bodden: The Education Department is that entity which holds responsibility for implementing educational policy which flows from the Ministry. It is the Education Department which holds responsibility for the day to day operation of the schools, as well as for the teachers and students well being.

The Department's work relates to three major aspects of the educational product namely:

1. Leadership, direction and vision offered to schools and including planning and policy interpretation and development; identification and rank ordering of priorities; the establishment and achievement of high standards and the setting and delivery of objectives.
2. The delivery of services and functions to schools: including student placement, transport and school meals, staffing and support services, provision of books and learning materials, student support services, for example, counselling and careers advice, early childhood programmes, professional development of teachers, advisory services, extra-curricular activities, co-operation and liaison with the private schools, testing and assessment, et cetera.
3. The Education Department also holds responsibility for the evaluation of services and policies currently in practice. These include the extent to which the department monitors and evaluates its own existence, acts upon these findings to diagnose strengths and weaknesses, set targets to improve both school and student performance and employs evidence and information collected from the school inspection process as a basis for school improvement.

Additionally, it is an important and essential responsibility of the Education Department to promote the highest quality education throughout the public schools of the Cayman Islands, to secure compliance with the Education Law and Regulations and to ensure that government receives the best value for money spent on education.

The Review of the Cayman Islands Education Department by Anthea Millett offers the first real opportunity in recent times to establish a modern, efficient and functional education department.

It is unfortunate and regrettable that the report which was completed in April 2000 is just being tabled at this time, approximately one year later. Honourable Members will note however that the full report has been laid on the table. This is in keeping with the political directorate's pledge to be open and transparent, and also because it is the desire of the Ministry and Department itself to publicly acknowledge the necessity of streamlining the bureaucracy, so that education can be more effective.

The Education Department is pleased to accept the findings of the Millett Report. This Report will provide a way forward for the Department to build on its strengths as well as to proactively seek to address its weaknesses.

In the same way that schools are encouraged to present a realistic self-assessment prior to inspection, the Education Department prepared a comprehensive self-assessment report, which provided some of the terms of reference for the Review.

This Review will have far reaching effects in respect of how the Department serves the schools and provides a service to the public. One of its main recommendations is to examine a more effective organisational structure. Along with this and other issues raised by the Report, the Department will begin a series of in-house action planning workshops to enable its staff to address key issues for action.

Inherent in any review is the need to examine aspects such as post titles to ensure that these fall in line with acceptable practice in this region. To this end, the Education Department will be working with the Ministry of Education and other government departments to ensure the best policy for recommended changes.

Policy development is an important part of this review. The Education Department is pleased that the Ministry of Education will support the formulation of written policy guidelines to support its work.

This wide-ranging Report is comprehensive. Its recommendations for the Education Department are made within the context of proposed changes for the entire education system. It presents advice on refining the roles, responsibilities and ways of working of the Ministry, the Education Council, the Education Department, and by direct reference and implication, the Schools' Inspectorate.

The Report, therefore, provides an important strategic thrust for the Cayman Islands Education system.

Its release is timely and auspicious at the start of this twenty-first century.

In conclusion, I apologise that the report was not laid in time for all Honourable Members to read and digest and to use in their debate on the Throne Speech and Budget Debate. I hope Honourable Members find the reading interesting and challenging, and bear with us as we adopt those recommendations which are applicable and relevant so that we may effect the necessary improvements to the Education Department and by inference the education establishment in the Cayman Islands.

I wish Honourable Members happy and informative reading. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Moving on to Item number 4 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Ministers/Members of Government.

Deferred Question number 22 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 22

(Deferred on 19 March 2001)

No. 22: Mr. Rolston M. Anglin asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs what was the complement of Police Officers and total crimes committed during 1998, 1999 and 2000, broken down by district.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, the answer:

The complement of Police Officers in the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service for the years 1998, 1999 and 2000 was 269, 269 and 293 respectively.

Appendix A shows the breakdown by district. (See Attached)

The total crimes committed in 1998, 1999 and 2000 were 3,170, 2,877 and 3254.

Appendix B shows the breakdown of crime for each of those years by district. (See Attached)

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the First Official Member give an indication if the staff complement in the Police Force has changed significantly for 2001?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I assume that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is talking about the total staff complement for RCIP for 2001. Yes, that has increased by twenty-four.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the First Official Member give the current staff complement for the Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Police Force for 2001?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The staff complement for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman for 2001 will remain the same, at ten.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Just as a follow-up, can the Member confirm that when we talk of staff complement those are positions but are they currently filled?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The establishment for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is ten and it is my understanding that we are up to full strength there.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: If there is a projected and desirable total amount of police officers, what is it this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, I do not think the Commissioner and a lot of people in this country would be satisfied with the current establishment for the Royal Cayman Islands Police (RCIP). As we think of trying to more efficiently and effectively police the territory, it is a matter of trying to weigh up the services required by police against the budgetary constraints in terms of additional police officers. I do not know if that answers the question but it is very difficult to try to give a definitive figure on what the wish list, as it were, would be.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Member say if there is any ratio that is used according to population that might guide the determination of what would be a desirable total number for the force? And, if there are any areas at this time within the force that are particularly lacking where officers are necessary?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is difficult to use a ratio in determining the needs of the country for police officers. If we did a comparison with the United Kingdom, for argument sake, there is about one police officer for every five hundred persons in that country. In Cayman, it is one police officer for every 260.

With police officers carrying out the full range of functions it is, again, difficult because for argument sake in recent times there has been an increase in commercial crimes and the Commercial Crime Branch could certainly do with more staff.

If we look at say the West Bay district in terms of the number of staff there and the crime compared with, say, George Town, the percentage staff compared to the overall percentage of crime in West Bay is not as favourably as George Town.

It is a very difficult thing to try to use percentages and increase staff on that basis. At North Side, it is a very small district as you will appreciate and the percentage crime is fairly high based on the number of police officers. It is difficult to say justify putting additional staff based on the percentage. The actual number of crimes may not be very high but when you use percentages sometimes reality is not there, if the Member understands what I mean.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, at a recent meeting in East End the Commissioner said that he had a complement of 16 staff in the Bodden Town Police Station inclusive of East End and North Side. Could the Honourable First Official Member say what caused the decrease since there is a report for 2000 with 21 officers listed in that year?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.
Do you want it to be repeated?

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, if I understood the actual figure given by the Member it would be an increase based on the figures here. Perhaps he could just repeat that.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: At a meeting held a few weeks ago, my understanding was that to have full 24-hour coverage in East End, Bodden Town and North Side, required 23 officers. At that time (2001) the complement was only 16.

The reported figure here for the year 2000 is 17 in Bodden Town, 2 in East End and 2 in North Side. It appears as if there has been a decrease. I am just wondering what caused that decrease in officers.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The difference is that one member from Bodden Town has actually left and has not yet been replaced. So the actual establishment is 17 but on that particular night or week, only 16. That is only a temporary thing that will be corrected as soon as possible.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I appreciate the comment made by the Honourable First Official Member in regards to looking at percentages but then having to look back at the reality of the situation . . . However, I wonder if the Member could say if there is any planned change either in the number of police or strategy for the district of West Bay. Yes, we can look at percentages however the fact remains that West Bay is the second biggest district in this Island. So the point is taken in terms of North Side because it is small, but West Bay is the second largest district.

We have consistently had 10 per cent of the police complement but consistently 25 per cent of the crimes committed in the Island. So, one in ten police, but we have one in four crimes.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: As I mentioned earlier, the establishment for the RCIP has been increased this year by 24 and three of those officers have gone to West Bay. So the percentages should change there but also there should be better coverage in the West Bay district with the additional officers.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: I understand as well and appreciate the explanation given for the statistics and the percentages.

Mr. Speaker, looking at Appendix A and looking at the NB note, it states that “OTHER” INCLUDES HEADQUARTERS, COURTS AND TWELVE OFFICERS SECONDED TO THE FINANCIAL REPORTING UNIT (FRU).” Since we do not have specifics as to what the increase was and the crime that would be investigated by the FRU, what justification was there for increasing that by some 12 officers when the increase in the areas like West Bay has shown a marked increase?

In 1998, we had 803 crimes committed and we had 25 officers. We recognised that there was a problem and we added two more officers in 1999 and it appears the crimes dropped to 772 but even though the crimes increased again in 2000 we have increased it by three officers.

I am wondering if we could get some information and the statistics for the FRU, the crimes that fall under that area, and to justify the fact that 12 officers were needed to increase that area.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, there will be a question following very soon, specifically on the FRU. I would accordingly ask if the Member could just hold his question until that is asked so the details could be given at that time.

The Speaker: Two additional supplementaries, the Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I hate to go back to my original question but there is something that I am not understanding.

I thought the police officers in East End and North Side were attached to the Bodden Town Station. In so doing, it was my understanding to cover East End, North Side and Bodden Town for 24 hours a day, we need to have a complement of around 23 officers. Recently, there have been 16 inclusive of Bodden Town, East End and North Side. Is that a fact?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member. [pause]

Hon. James M. Ryan: I will try to clarify for that Member the situation as best I can.

There are 16 officers at Bodden Town, 2 for East End and 2 for North Side but in addition to that there are 2 community officers who make up all but one of the total establishment. We are down one and when that person is employed we will be back up to the full establishment. The two community officers – I think that is where the difference in the calculation comes in.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can I then take it from the First Official Member and the Commissioner that we will soon see 24-hour police service in the Eastern districts?

The Speaker: Before asking the Honourable Member to answer the question I would appreciate a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) in order that Question Time can continue beyond the hour of 11.00 a.m.

The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I move the suspension of the relevant Standing Order to allow Question Time to go beyond the hour of 11.00 a.m.

The Speaker: The question is that we suspend Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) in order that Question Time can continue beyond the hour of 11.00 a.m. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question Time continuing.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8) SUSPENDED TO ALLOW QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND THE HOUR OF 11.00 AM.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, for about a year now there has been 24-hour coverage of the eastern districts but that coverage comes from Bodden Town. In the foreseeable future there will not be 24-hour coverage from East End Police Station nor will there be from the North Side Police Station. The coverage comes from Bodden Town and covers the three eastern districts.

The Speaker: The last supplementary.
The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, I do apologise if I may seem a little pushy this morning but there have been instances reported to me that—

The Speaker: You will turn this into a question?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I will.

There have been instances reported to me where residents in East End have called the Police Station and it was forwarded to George Town and many hours later the police responded and in some instances the next day.

I wonder if the Official First Member or the Commissioner can tell this Honourable House if that has ever been reported to either of them and what has been done about it?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.
[pause]

Hon. James M. Ryan: Calls will occasionally be routed from the eastern districts to the Central Police Station. While we are offering 24-hours coverage per day for the eastern districts, the Bodden Town Police Station is not open or manned 24 hours a day.

There are officers who would be on patrol or out dealing with matters around the clock but there would not be an officer physically there for the full 24 hours. Yes, the Commissioner has had the matter brought to his attention at community meetings about police officers not responding until say the following day. When a call comes in the police officer who receives the call or if responsible for that area, will try to assess the urgency of the situation. If the matter is urgent, it will be responded to as quickly as possible. The most urgent matters are dealt with first and the non-urgent matters will be dealt with perhaps the next day. The officers try to assess the urgency from the caller in responding when there are a number of responses to be answered and there are limited resources to deal with those responses.

The Speaker: Moving on to question No. 42 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 42

No. 42: Mr. Rolston M. Anglin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health and Information Technology if with the pace of rapid change in technology, all Support Administrators in the Computer Services Department are sent on training courses for all future technology, for example, changes from Windows NT to Windows 2000, operating systems or purchase of new peripheral equipment.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Training for all support administrators' functions are provided as funds permit and where training can be done close to implementation date so as to maximise the training benefit for all core/primary functions.

The Computer Services Department has managed to secure funds in the 2001 Budget to fund training for Windows 2000 Workstation for all support administrators as well as system administrators.

Mr. Speaker, it might be helpful if I also supplied Honourable Members with some additional information, which might assist them with any supplementaries they may have.

On the question of core and primary functions for support administrators, this would include general personnel computer support, PC hardware diagnostic, provision of telephone support, installation and support of standard office automation, PC operating system software, installation and support of modems and network cards, et cetera, for PCs, installation and support of data communication cables within buildings.

Training and computer services consist of four main types:

1. Overseas employees travel to a trainee site to receive training;
2. Local - employees are trained on the Island;
3. Computer based training or CBT. Employees typically work at their own pace to complete study and test using specifically designed computer programmes; and
4. On the job, employees are trained by an expert co-worker while performing required work task.

The type of training that an employee receives depends on the equipment and new technology being implemented, availability of funds, complexity of the area of study, availability of staff experts, co-workers, availability of local experts, employee's job responsibility, employee's aptitude for learning.

Mr. Speaker, many members of staff in Computer Services are experts in their fields and it is normal procedure for these members of staff to provide on-the-job training and mentorship to more junior and less experienced members of staff.

Training before implementation of new technology is not only a wise business decision, in that it keeps overall costs down, but it is also an effective morale booster as staff have the skills and knowledge necessary for them to perform their jobs most effectively.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say where complaints by end-users within the Civil Service in regards to Computer Services Department personnel would be lodged.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, such complaints would be forwarded to the Director, who is Mr. Gilbert McLaughlin.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Minister say what happens if an end-user complains that personnel from the department seemingly feel their way around in response to a complaint? I might note, it may not be that they do not know what they are doing as a result of any lack of talent, but it could be an issue of not knowing thoroughly the software or hardware that they are investigating.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I am reliably informed that there has not been a problem similar to the one being described by the Honourable Member. And, whenever any problems arise they are dealt with internally.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: In the Minister's follow-up information he mentioned the technical staff in the training in telephone assistance and electrically, I think. Could he say whether the department actually has hired its own electrician or whether it used the electricians that are available through the Public Service?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I am informed that mainly it is outsourced to the private sector but occasionally the work is done by the Public Works Department.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: In his reply to my last question the Minister said that any such instances would be dealt with internally. I wonder if the Minister could say whether he meant by that, that the person would receive either internal coaching or some formalised training, if it is an instance where to no fault of their own they don't understand and have a detailed knowledge of the hardware or software in which they are asking to be fixed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I had in fact covered this in the supplementary information I gave, but I will read it again for the benefit of the Honourable Member.

I will first state that the type of training an employee receives depends on the equipment and the new technology being implemented, complexity of the area, et cetera. But to answer his question directly, many members of staff in Computer Services are experts in their fields and it is normal procedure for these members of staff to provide on-the-job training and mentorship to more junior and less experienced members of staff.

Training before implementation of new technology is not only a wise business decision in that it keeps overall costs down, but it is also an effective morale booster that staff have the skills and knowledge necessary for them to perform efficiently.

So, Mr. Speaker, this training is provided internally by people that are qualified to do so.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Minister say whether or not Government has a training lab such as the wave of the technological world. If there is one, do ordinary staff members in Government use it and if there is not one, will there be one in the future?

The Speaker: I think this is somewhat outside the ambit of this substantive question but if the Member wishes to answer he may.

The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: The answer to the Honourable Member's supplementary is, yes, we do in fact have a training lab within the Computer Services Department mainly for the training of staff internally but it is also available to staff from other government departments.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?

No further supplementaries, moving on to Question number 43 standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 43

No. 43: Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr. asked the Honourable Member responsible for the Ministry of Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Culture what are the total amounts of grants that the Sports Ministry made relating to sports during the years 1998, 1999 and 2000 broken down by recipient and sport.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: The answer: The total amounts of grants that the Sports' Ministry made relating to sports during the following years are:

| YEAR                | AMOUNT                |
|---------------------|-----------------------|
| 1998                | $398,216.64          |
| 1999                | $505,136.00          |
| 2000 (Paid)         | $339,752.99          |
| 2000 (Paid in 2001) | $136,740.00          |
| TOTAL        | $1,379,845.63 |

A spreadsheet is attached with the grants broken down according to recipient and sport for 1998, 1999 and 2000. (See Attachment)

The Speaker: Are there any supplementaries?

There appears to be no supplementaries, we will move on to Question number 44 standing in the name of the Elected Member for East End.

The Elected Member for East End.

QUESTION NO. 44

No. 44: Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport what are the current and future development plans for the Queen Elizabeth II Botanic Park in relation to, or since, its opening in 1996.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: The current plans are as follows:

- Final beautification in the area of the ticket booth entrance to the Park grounds is due to begin shortly.
- Arrangements have been concluded for spot lighting for the main road turnoff to the Park, for the ticket booth, and for the main building. This work is due to be completed by the end of March.

- Work has begun on a full-colour, 120-page "coffee table" book on the Park. Local gardeners and school children will be featured in the photographs in the book, which will be on sale by October.
- The Cayman "Caboose" kitchen has deteriorated badly and is being rebuilt.
- The preparation of a comprehensive Marketing Plan for short, medium and long term implementation as an integral part of the overall responsibilities and functions of the Tourism Attractions Board.

The future plans are as follows:-

For the Short Term:

- PARKING - A separate parking area for tour buses will be provided to ease current congestion and to meet projected demand.
- NURSERY - A major upgrade will begin shortly on the Nursery to improve the working and growing facilities. All of the shade on the shade houses need to be replaced as the current shade cloth, now six years old, is torn and is giving inadequate coverage. The shade houses need to be expanded, as the area under shade is inadequate for the growing needs of the Park. A new shade house, specifically for plant sales, will also be constructed to enhance the revenue earning potential of the Nursery. The potting shed will be upgraded into a proper building, using the existing roof, to include a nursery office, a proper storage room and a small micro-propagation lab. (The Park already has the equipment needed to outfit this lab, but no place to put it.)
- MARKETING - By early April a marketing programme will be launched, in conjunction with the Department of Tourism, promoting the Park overseas and on-island to cruise-ship and stay-over visitors. The marketing programme will aim to generate more visits from residents and visitors and one component will be to better educate residents about the Park. Local media will be used to raise residents' awareness of the high standard attraction the Botanic Park is.
- SPECIAL ATTRACTION - From January to March next year, the Park will be hosting an internationally acclaimed American exhibit of large artistic representations of insects called "The Big Bugs". The exhibit will consist of 12 pieces, some of them 20 feet long. It will run for three months, will be advertised to visitors and residents, and is expected to produce a significant increase of patronage. This exhibit is especially appealing to families and school children.

For the Long Term:

- LIGHTING - Efforts will be made to increase the Park's evening use for selected social functions or fund-raising events. Improved lighting for the roadway and for areas of the Park will have to be provided for this purpose.

- ROADWAY - Chip-and-spray surfacing is needed for the roadway between the ticket booth and the Park's main building and parking lot.
- RAINFOREST GARDEN - A board walk is proposed to be built through the woodland opposite the Visitors' Centre where many types of orchids, bromeliads, ferns, anthuriums, and other shade-loving plants will be attached to the trees and planted in pockets of soil. The concept is to give the impression of walking through a lush tropical forest. This garden will be an added feature as an enhancement to the Botanic Park experience.
- CACTUS GARDEN - This display will feature cactus and other plants that require very little water and will be designed in a very pleasing manner. The purpose is to showcase those plants that are ornamental and that can survive on very little care.
- CHILDREN'S EDUCATIONAL GARDEN - This section of the Park will be a living laboratory where school children and families can come and learn about plants, animals, natural history and the environment in an enjoyable but educational manner.
- PALM GARDEN - This garden will feature many of the beautiful palms that can grow in Grand Cayman with a special emphasis on those palms that are native to the West Indies. This garden will also feature other ornamental plants that are native to the region.
- THE UPPER POND - The upper pond in the Floral Garden was never designed properly and is very unsightly. This area needs to be addressed as it detracts from the otherwise beautiful Floral Garden. The remedy is to use artificial rockwork with planting pockets to hide the existing liner and to add a waterfall to circulate the water which is now stagnant.
- IRRIGATION - Efforts will be made to have piped water brought to the Park as soon as possible. Current irrigation needs are a significant strain on the budget, and will clearly increase as more facilities are developed.
- EQUIPMENT - As patronage increases, it is planned to acquire small electric-powered trolleys for use on the Walking Trail. For a nominal fee, patrons who are not up to the walk can enjoy the facility in comfort.
- PROMOTION - Funds permitting, a 3-minute video will be produced on the Park using local talent. The video will be distributed to the travel trade and will serve as a brief but comprehensive introduction to the Park and its facilities.
- CAFÉ - The Park's present café, located behind the main building, is a small open-air structure which is extremely hot and rather confined. It is the eventual aim to build a spacious air-conditioned café, in the same area, where visitors can relax and enjoy refreshments and light snacks in comfort.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I would like to thank the Minister for that long and comprehensive answer.

I wonder if he can tell us what short-term and long-term means. What timeframe are we talking about?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Short-term should mean this year and perhaps overlapping into next year and long-term is for three to five years.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: If that is so then why do we have the paving of the roadway in 3 - 5 years?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Which one?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: The second one for the long-term, the roadway, chip and spray surfacing between the ticket booth and the Park. Mr. Speaker, if it is needed I think the roadway should be paved immediately.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: This roadway is not the full length of the road to the Park and it is a very costly construction and a very costly piece of road to be built. Hopefully, we will get it done in 2003, it will not take the five years to get it done but it cannot be done this year or next year unless things vastly improve for us.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Can the Honourable Member give us an undertaking that something will be done to try and slow down the speeders along that road?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I will make attempts or have the Ministry write to the Police Department on the matter.

I should say anytime we put in a new road it is a problem throughout the country with people speeding on it. Sometime ago I talked about putting in speed bumps. I tried to get an amendment to the Law. It is one thing when we look at transport in general that I am going to ask the Government to seriously consider.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say under the current plan section, bullet 3, there is mention of a full-colour 120 page book. I was wondering whether he could say when the idea for that book was born. How much is projected in terms of cost to produce, and has any business plan been done in terms of the production of the book to have a good cage of what demand was there in terms of visitors coming through the Park for such an item?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

[pause]

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, the plan started last year. The cost was funded by corporate donations, and the Business Plan production was based on demand from patrons coming through the Park.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?

If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning. I am in the hands of Members. Would you want to take the morning break at this time prior to going into debate?

Hon. Roy Bodden: Yes Sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.32 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.56 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 5 on today's Order Paper, Government Business.

Before moving into Government Business I would appreciate a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 14(2) in order that we can proceed with Government Business on a Thursday.

The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I move that the relevant Standing Order be suspended so that business can continue, as suggested by you.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that we suspend Standing Order 14(2) in order that Government Business may be taken before Private Member's Motion on a Thursday. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Order 14(2) has been suspended.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 14(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Moving on to Government Business, Bills, Second Reading, the Appropriation Bill, 2001. Continuation of the Debate on the Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday, 9 March 2001, together with the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member on Wednesday, 21 March 2001.

The Second Elected Member for West Bay continuing the debate.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION BILL, 2001

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR ON FRIDAY 9 MARCH 2001

TOGETHER WITH

THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON WEDNESDAY 21 MARCH 2001

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Yesterday when we adjourned I was discussing the matter of the OECD (Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development) and FATF (Financial Action Task Force) initiatives. However, before I get started I would like to point out one quick thing from the manifesto on which I ran in the district of West Bay and was elected. On page 12 when we discussed legislative affairs, one of the things we proposed is that in order to improve the efficiency of debate within this Honourable House that we amend the relevant Standing Orders to allow speaking time per item to two hours per member.

Now, based on the time that I have received from the Chair, yesterday, I was at 1 hour 50 minutes.

The one thing that I just wanted to point out, is that, this year being an election year is different. In that, in an ordinary year we would have two hours for the Throne Speech in January and come November we would have two hours for the Budget Address. Therefore, obviously when we looked at this item and proposed it in our manifesto, we were looking at all years other than an election year. Obviously, Mr. Speaker, it is common sense that if you are going to debate two items at once that you would have four hours.

So, the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town rightly used four hours because he had two items to debate. Also, the press picked up on this and the Caymanian Compass, and I would like to assure the Editor that Members of this House are committed to efficiency and effectiveness. I think if you look back at the debate so far there have been numerous Motions brought where people did not get up just to say something, they refrained because what they had to say had been said, and they voted on the matter and the business moved on.

So, I think, there is good cause for having hope for the future in this regard. But I just wanted the public to recognise that every election year it is quite unique, in that, we would have the Budget and Throne Speech coming together. So debating them as one, naturally, members may need a bit more time.

And so having said all of that I hope that that will allay and clarify things for my fellow colleagues in this Honourable House and members of the community at large.

Picking up where I left off, Mr. Speaker, when it comes to the international initiatives there are those who would seek to paint them as these mystical negotiations. They almost make it seem as if it is as complex as splitting an atom or coming up with some new formula in physics that has never been known to man before.

I feel that it would serve us well to follow closely what is happening in the United States. After all the United States is, in my view, the world economic leader and now that we have a change in the presidency and the Republicans are in the majority in the House and the Senate, you find that there is now a shift in their view.

You see, Mr. Lawrence Sumners, the former Secretariat to the Treasury was a democrat (and I am not going to state any opinion on US politicians) but now that Mr. Paul O'Neil has taken over you find that the message coming out of the United States is quite different.

In fact, there have been instances of late where prominent Congressmen, such as, the House Majority Leader, Mr. Dick Armey has asked in writing, public documents, Mr. Paul O'Neil, to disassociate the US from the OECD's Harmful Taxation Programme.

You see, there is a changing of the guard. I understand that the President, Mr. George W. Bush, has not addressed this issue directly as yet simply because he found it more prudent to deal with other international matters such as peace in the Middle East.

However, I would just like to quickly indulge Honourable Members in a quick excerpt of some of what was said by a letter that was sent to the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Paul O'Neil from eight prominent Congressmen. Twenty-six congressional black caucus members have sent a similar letter and Charles Rangel, who is the ranking democrat on the House Tax Writing Committee, has also sent a similar letter to Mr. O'Neil stating that, this initiative threatens to undermine the fragile economies of some of our closest neighbours and allies as well as the US Virgin Islands. These countries are already grappling with reduced tariffs and declining preferences for their industrial and agricultural products.

Wealthy OECD nations should not have the right to re-write the rules of international commerce on taxation simply because they are upset that investors and entrepreneurs are seeking higher after tax returns. . .

US tax pressure on the OECD has now built up a substantial head of steam in the Congress and it is beginning to seem unlikely that the administration would want to antagonise so many leading members of Congress when it needs their support for its domestic agenda, and that is even if the natural inclination of the administration weren't already in the same direction.

I think history tells us that the Republicans' approach in this area is significantly different than that of the Democrats. I would like to state that it is my view that the change in the guard in the United States is one that is good for the Cayman Islands.

Also, Mr. Speaker, another leading Congressman, Sam Johnson, a Republican from Texas, also aired concerns directly to the OECD Secretary General. He sent a letter that contained six salient points on the issue and in the response none of these matters were directly addressed because they could not be addressed. The United States is not going to give up its tax sovereignty. They critique their fellow OECD member states and chide them for being some of the biggest tax havens in the world themselves, yet, talking about harmful taxation practices. In fact, any Republican, or informed American Legislator, or tax practitioner would know this quite well.

Canada is one of the biggest tax havens in the world despite the fact that on the domestic front their taxation rates are some of the highest. They offer numerous sections within their tax regime that allow foreign investors, entrepreneurs and the like, to take up Canadian citizenship for tax purposes that would allow them to save substantially. For example, an American citizen who is wealthy enough could take up Canadian citizenship and live for 66 2/3 per cent of the cost simply on a tax basis and not have to move to Canada—that is the sweet part of the deal.

America also realises that on the borders numerous of their citizens fly and drive to Canada and shop for clothes, medical supplies because they are cheaper. And also because of the way their taxation system is structured you save a lot of money—I witnessed it for myself when I was in New York. Numerous staff including myself, would go to Canada for six weeks at a time on audits and we looked like Caymanians when we go to Miami. You come back with the suitcases bursting at the seams, almost overweight to go on the aircraft. Why? You want to save a dollar.

Mr. Speaker, a senior Republican went on to say that the OECD will not bamboozle Republicans into supporting an initiative that runs counter to America's economic interest. I repeat that: The OECD will not bamboozle Republicans into supporting an initiative that runs counter to America's economic interest.

My advice is, that our government seek to step up their efforts not in going to and fro, being jerked here and there, to meetings all over the globe but to start utilising our relationship in the United States more and more effectively. There is such a thing called lobbying and I can say safely that from everything that I know about this issue and everything I have read and seen on the television and the media, the time is right. We must utilise our relationship in Washington D.C. It is those relationships that will allow us to make it through these choppy waters.

On another Website there was a discussion forum on the topic, that is, the OECD Harmful Tax Competition, and there were approximately 17 pages worth of contributions on this topic. Actually the matter also covered money laundering. There were certain editors of reputable offshore investment and international finance magazines that made contributions and then there were contributions that one would not know the source, simply because there is a username and you would not know who that person would be. But it is very interesting to see some of the insight.

One of the things that struck me was that I could not find one contribution, [and a few of them were purported to be from United States' citizens.] that went on the side of the OECD. They all honoured and demanded that their country maintain its own sovereignty in relation to tax matters. Every one of them chided the OECD and this initiative. One of them made a short but enlightening comment. In fact, he said that even today more money is laundered through London, New York, et cetera, than the offshore jurisdiction. Just look at the OECD own statistics in this matter.

Another contribution also said that, as for the OECD remedy putting pressure on tax havens many thousands of miles away it is ridiculous. Europe does not run or own the world and should keep their business and tax ideas to themselves. The US Treasury Department officials should be ashamed that they are jumping on this bandwagon. Wars have been fought to rid places from taxes including the American Revolutionary way.

Mr. Speaker, I think all practitioners and citizens of this territory want to ensure as far as possible—

- 1) that we stay competitive in the financial industry,
- 2) that we seek to do business with the best of clients, with the cleanest of clients.

There is no one here and no one that I have encountered personally who seeks out criminals to do business with. But you see they have us tainted. They have us tainted as a bunch of gunrunners and drug runners down here in the Caribbean. We take all their money and we hide it for them and we do not let their home countries have access to records. My view, is that it is just another 'Pinky and the Brain' seeking to rule the world when the world is not theirs to rule.

I must say that we have to continually ensure that our lawyers in the United States represent us well and give us access to the highest-ranking Republican Congressman in the land. We need to move this process forward. We need to get them to push the agenda to ensure that these organisations . . . it is mainly made of third and fourth tier bureaucrats, who their own country wanted to get out of the system so there is not so much glut in their own Civil Services by putting them somewhere else and giving them these projects.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is clear that we have a lot going for us in this area if we utilise our connections well and we identify who our friends are.

I want to touch on expansion of the [Cayman Islands] Monetary Authority. It is my view that as far as possible we must recruit locally for these staff increases. We have a lot of people in the private sector, Caymanians that is, who have intimate knowledge of these areas and could be valuable resources for the Monetary Authority.

I said yesterday that a nation that cannot teach itself and police itself has to question itself because I see a direct relationship with the growth in our Monetary Authority. We must ensure that our people are given every opportunity in this front. This is going to be an independent and critical organisation to the proper functioning of our financial services industry.

We have to get our Caymanians in positions of seniority. I know there are a lot already. But with these expansions we must focus our efforts along with students who are currently on scholarships, and ensure that some of the people that the Honourable Third Official Member spoke of a few weeks ago about Government not necessarily having positions in Central Government for them and some of them potentially being released from their bond.

We have to funnel these people toward an agency like the Monetary Authority where we know there is going to be growth. We have projected the growth. We have a spreadsheet. We see how much staff it is going to take. Well, we have funnel resources toward filling those spots with Caymanians. It may not be reasonable to expect that we will get everyone with experience from the financial industry currently so we have to ensure that scholarships are granted in this area so that we have the groundwork, the foundation of proper legacy planning.

We cannot be wandering like nomads. We have to have a plan for everything and I feel this is a critical area. This is going to be the regulatory agency and one of the two pillars of our economy.

Mr. Speaker, I read with interest the matter of growth management in the Throne Speech. While I think most of us here and most of the citizens of this country feel strongly in regards to the need of growth management, one of the things that I would like to add is that it is a lofty concept. It is one that would allow us to better manage ourselves in theory but like in all things, anytime you are talking about an economy and the workings of what is supposed to be a free economy, we have to be extremely careful anytime you are going to try to manage it in terms of its growth.

Mr. Speaker, you cannot just turn on and off the economy like the tap of a sink. Yes, I firmly believe we need a growth management plan but it cannot be a plan that only takes into account some or almost all of the areas that affect our economy. It has to be 110% comprehensive. Education, training, immigration, development, tourism, we have to line everything up and have a national agenda if we are going to ever think about succeeding and having a growth management plan.

If we do not do that we could take our economy and cause it to contract. We could cause a depression, a recession in our economy. I think we will quickly note that if you look around at other more developed countries than us, countries like the United States, the UK and you look at how they try to manage their economy, they mainly do it through interest rates and their taxation policy.

They have what I call a real economy with the hallmarks of a real economy. You have production, local wealth, labour and capital. You have them mixing together and having economic growth. Cayman is very unique. We are mainly built on what is known as flight capital. The Financial Services industry does not have to stay in Cayman. Tourists do not have to come to Cayman. So we have to recognise our limitations as a society and keep that at the back of our minds at all times when we go down the road of growth management.

We have to do something that I have never seen done in the history of the Cayman Islands, that is, having a comprehensive economic plan. So before we can even start getting to the stage that we have been thinking seriously about—growth management—we must have a comprehensive economic plan. It must be one that is derived on sound economic principles, sound business principles. It cannot be one that is wrought with politics.

There is a reason most countries have independent bodies administering the key components of their economies. The United States has a Federal Reserve. The President does not set interest rates; the Federal Reserve does it. We have to learn from others mistakes and in my opinion, politicians are not economists. Politicians are not economists. Whether trained or by title when you get into this round this is a completely different game and that is why we need an independent Monetary Authority. We need to start putting in place the proper infrastructure to ensure that we can manage ourselves and we can manage our economy before we can dream about growth management principles. But again that has to be our ultimate goal.

I would now like to outline my approach to my contribution to the Budget Address. Firstly, we are going to look at the political aspect as it relates to the Cayman context. Secondly, we are going to look at the fiscal strategy that has been laid before this Honourable House by the present government. Thirdly, we are going to look at a brief, historical standpoint that allows us to more appreciate where we are at. Fourthly, we are going to look at medium term and long-term financial strategies as I see them. Finally, we will look at the domestic economy.

Mr. Speaker, one of the things that has happened over the years in our Island is that we have not had, in my view, transparency within the halls of government. In fact, there have been issues of dubious governance often involving secrecy of actions. Secrecy makes comment upon actions difficult and government accountability impossible. So, what is at the heart of the issue, commentary can only be made at the facts that are known while you highlight the information deficit.

Firstly, I would like to comment that no candidate in the last General Election ran with an economic plan for these Islands. There was none. We spoke in general terms, —in terms of prudence of fiscal management, reduction of waste, no deficit spending. We had a lot of buzz words being bantered but there was no one that had an economic plan.

It is also my opinion that because of the secrecy in which Cayman operates no one other than the current Government at an election time can reasonable be expected to come up with an economic plan for they are the ones who know all the decisions that came behind the economic programme that they put in place. We see the end result. We see two inches of paper called a Draft Budget.

It is also my observation that I have never seen in our Islands' history, let alone last year, anyone run on a specific economic plan detailed with the numbers as to how they were going to effect that plan. Again, we have talked about fiscal responsibility, accountability, reduction of waste—all these things that we know voters want to hear.

To make matters worse, last year this Honourable House was abruptly shut down and so you had a redistribution of funding that the legislators at the time did not have an opportunity to debate and vote on. We had to come back as a new government and rubberstamp actions that were taken. So, again, even if there was someone last year who was in the General Election that had an economic plan, until you are in the seat across the way and sit in Executive Council and you have privy to everything that went on, your plan would have been a stab in the dark at best.

These sorts of shenanigans of shutting Houses down and then doing what you please afterward must end if there is going to be any semblance of sanity in the running of this country.

I purposely left out balance of budgets. Everyone talked about balance of budgets. I talked about truly balanced budgets. The reason I said 'truly' is because I know that you can pull anyone off the street and have him balance a budget. Balancing a budget, Mr. Speaker, is not a difficult exercise if you are not going to be honest in your revenue projections. So, I could easily say the country needs $360 million and look at projections from prior years and certain areas and beef them up a bit, and balance a budget. This can be done.

So, whilst truly balanced budgets have to be the order of the day, until one goes down the road and takes the tough stance that you are not going to play around with the revenue projections of the Government, you will not get a balanced budget.

Now, Mr. Speaker, in my view the Government has spoken loud and clear. The Honourable Third Official Member has presented to us what the policy will be for the next year. Before I get started, the one thing that I want to know that was missing from all this is, what is the strategy going to be for the medium term and for the long-term? I have not seen that. So I can only comment on what has been presented before us.

I would like to start off by saying that we did not have any group in the last General Elections – I want to reiterate, no one ran on an economic plan. Secondly, I want to reiterate, the House was shut down early and there was shifting of resources. Then I want to say that on 8 November [2001] we had a new government elected. This new government went into a situation where they had to analyse it and they had to then depend on controlling officers to give them reasonable expenditure projections for the areas over which they managed. They had to learn and get acquainted with their new Ministries and staff and areas of responsibility. They had to represent their constituents. And, in all that they had to come up with a fiscal policy. All this happened, in what I term five very short months.

We will note that on the electorate side of the Executive Council there was not continuity so they did not have the benefit of that either. So I hear a lot of talk amongst Honourable Members in this House, in our Common Room, about 'Well, the difficulties faced could have been dealt with rather easily - cut services'. I beg to say, Mr. Speaker, to just simply say, sit on this side of the fence and say you can cut services. In such a short period of time it is easy to do. It is always easy to look and to criticise. Very easy!

What I would challenge, is to show where and what would be cut. I am not saying that there is not waste in Government and there should not have been things that should have been cut. What I am saying is that with the way we govern ourselves which is so arcane, it makes this exercise extremely difficult irrespective of how hard one tries.

I also want to note that the country has to go on. The Government must run. We cannot just say, 'Well, we are going to close down for a couple of weeks and evaluate our situation and then we will come up with some solutions and come back in six months time'. The Government has to continue. It is my understanding that the first draft of the budget had a deficit that was substantially more than the draft that we have tabled before us.

I can only say that we have an Executive Council that has come to this Honourable House and told us as Members, that with all the constraints in terms of time, revenue, this was the best they could do in terms of a budget for this country.

So I have to take that with value in terms of alternatives. I was not there so I do not know of any other alternative and it is my view that what we have before us is the best position possible at this time.

So let me just say categorically that as a new legislator in this House, I myself, have not had time to properly assess and glean knowledge as to all the details of the financial position of this country, of all government departments, the costs to run them, the revenue they bring in and whether they are revenue generating. Without having knowledge of all these important details I have to go on what my colleagues on the Government Bench have presented to us at this point in time. So I am willing to support the Budget.

In my travels around the community the one thing that I have heard over and over from constituents and citizens, is that they realise that the country was not in the best of positions financially. So, when they look at the policy in terms of the new tax package they were willing to accept it at this point because they felt that no better could be done. However, a lot did caveat it by saying they forward to people delivering on their promise of tough decisions and coming up with new ways of running the government. I have not heard any massive public outcry against the current tax package.

Mr. Speaker, let me speak briefly about some immediate history that directly impacts this budget and this tax package that we have to deliberate on. First of all I do not see any trickery or playing of words. I see a budget that seems to say, 'Here are the facts, here is what we have to do in the short term'.

I would like to go into the Financial Secretary's presentation and you will find on page 7 an analysis of recurrent revenue, and recurrent and statutory expenditure for the past decade. Numerous items jump out at you and are pertinent to the debate of the current budget. After all the current budget cannot be looked at in isolation. No government starts at zero and then you work, for there you have inherited a situation so you must talk about what has been inherited so as to properly make informed decisions and contributions to what is.

I see that in 1991 through 2000, recurrent revenue had an average annual growth rate of 10.5%. Recurrent and statutory expenditure had an average annual growth rate of 10.9%. Let me state that again: 1991 through 2000 recurrent revenue grew on average annually 10.5%, and recurrent and statutory expenditure averaged an annual growth rate of 10.9%. However, the decade was a tale of two halves according to the information provided by the Honourable Third Official Member.

From 1991 to 1995, recurrent revenue grew at an average annual rate of 11.4%. Recurrent and statutory expenditure grew at an average annual rate of 9.2%. This was the earlier half of the decade that a lot of people talk about as an economic boom. You see Government taking in on average more than it is spending on the recurrent and statutory expenditure side.

Most countries that have an economic plan and one that is guided predominantly by economists not politicians would have had two things happen in those times:

- 1) A building up of reserves; and
- 2) A reduction of national debt.

After all that is what the United States is currently trying to do. They built up over the decade and now they are seeking to utilise what was built up to pay off some of its national debt, which directly contributes to statutory expenditure.

I move now to the second half of the decade. From 1996 to 2000, recurrent revenue grew but at a reduced rate from that of the earlier half. It grew at an average annual rate of 9.4% as compared to the 11.4% that it grew from 1991 to 1995. So we see a slowing on the revenue side of Government.

On the recurrent and statutory expenditure side we see that it grew at an increasing pace—an average annual growth rate of 13.4%. Compare that to the average annual growth rate of recurrent revenue of 9.4%! Now, you tell me, or I challenge any Member to tell me and show this House and this country that was not deficit spending.

You see, Mr. Speaker, you have to look at what got you to where you are. You cannot simply come here and say, 'Oh, this is a new government. Let's look at their policy. Let's not talk about the history. Let's talk about their budget'. You see there is something called 'politricks' and there are those who have become very good at 'politricks' and they will follow me with their 'politricks'. The people of these Islands deserve to know the facts. I am presenting the facts as they have been presented to me.

Before the lunch break I want to just reiterate the facts. Recurrent revenue for the entire decade: 1991 to 2000 had an average annual growth rate of 10.5%. For the entire decade there was an average annual growth rate in recurrent and statutory expenditure of 10.9%—deficit spending.

A tale of two halves! We had a decade that was a tale of two halves. From 1991 to 1995 recurrent revenue grew at an average annual rate of 11.4%. Recurrent and statutory expenditure grew at an average annual growth rate of 9.2%.

However, in 1996 to 2000 recurrent revenue grew at an average annual rate of 9.4%, but was outpaced by recurrent and statutory expenditure, which grew at an average annual rate of 13.4%. It was outgrowing the revenue of this country for half a decade at an average annual rate of 4%—that is a significant number when you look at the base numbers that are hundreds of millions of dollars.

We are not talking about $100. Yes, it would be immaterial then, but it is material with the numbers we are talking about.

Mr. Speaker, I will now give way to the lunch break. I think this a good place to break.

The Speaker: We shall now suspend proceedings until 2.15 p.m. for lunch.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.49 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.35 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continuing on the Throne Speech and the Budget Debate, The Appropriation Bill, 2001.

The Second Elected Member for West Bay, continuing.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Continuing after the break I now want to move away from the point of detailing the growth patterns in the recurrent revenue and recurrent statutory expenditures over the decade 1991 to 2000.

I would like to now move into another matter that directly impacts the Budget and Revenue Enhancement Policy that is before us. That is the matter of debt within the Central Government. Again, I refer to the Honourable Third Official Member presentation to this Honourable House and I note that in 1991 Central Government debt was at $17 million and by the year 2000 it was at $93.7 million. An increase of some 451% and while, yes, I do recognise the need of a government to borrow to fund capital projects, one has to wonder what happened to the positive aspect of the 1991 to 2000 decade in relation to the recurrent revenue, and recurrent and statutory expenditure.

In other words, from 1991 to 1995, recurrent revenue grew at a pace of 11.4% annually. Recurrent and statutory expenditure grew at a rate of 9.2%. Yet, for the entire decade we had Central Government debt increase 451%. I think the answer lies in a number of things that I will now cover.

Firstly, from 1996 to 2000, recurrent revenue grew at an average annual rate of 9.4% and recurrent and statutory expenditure grew at an average annual rate of 13.4%. So, because we had deficit spending, the money had to come from somewhere. You cannot spend what you do not have! Money does not fall out of the clear blue sky! It has to come from somewhere—you either earn or borrow it.

So, in the last half of the decade, 1996 to 2000, we had a 4% difference, that is, we were (as they would say) 4% in the red in regards to recurrent and statutory expenditure, and recurrent revenue. So the monies had to come from somewhere.

In a decade when we should have been building up surpluses, paying down debts, avoiding interest payments, just the opposite happened in Cayman. Within Government we had recurrent and statutory expenditure far outstripping the recurrent revenue and we had debt on the continual increase. We had projects being started, some of which were needed but, Mr. Speaker, some of which obviously, in my view were not needed. I will come to that in a minute.

What happened was, we increased our debt and so this served to feed the recurrent and statutory expenditure amount because let us remember the interest repayment on the debt forms a part of statutory expenditure. It is a legal obligation of Government. You sign a legal document called a promissory note and a loan agreement so you have to repay it to the lenders.

Another thing also happened directly connected to this: Not only are we now repaying the interest on the debt, we also have certain capital projects, which themselves were not self-sufficient. So we have what I call a highbred travesty, that is, we are not bringing enough money into the Government's coffers but instead of reining in expenditure we continued to spend at our free will and then on top of that we borrow to fund it. We borrow to feed the spending frenzy.

So we have a lot of projects that go down in the country and some of these projects were needed. However, instead of being forthright with the citizens of this country and saying, if we are going to build a new hospital here is the true cost, therefore here are the fees that will have to be charged in order that Government, at least, breaks even. We do not have a revenue base in this country that can allow us to subsidise every service or what seems to be every service within our government.

I have been told by a reliable source that at the Hospital the current fee structure only serves to fund two-thirds of the cost of running the Hospital. So here what is now happening: not only are we in a deficit spending mode and borrowing to feed it and paying the interest on that borrowing but we are also borrowing, for capital expenditure, paying interest on that, and then charging fees that are so small that we then have a shortfall in terms of being able to pay for the capital project for which we have built.

By way of a simple example so that this point is driven home for those who are not necessarily financial-minded, Mr. Speaker, please indulge. It would be like someone going out tomorrow, borrowing $1 million to build a restaurant. Let us assume in a perfect world, you had a 12% fixed mortgage. So, your repayment is $120,000 in interest during the first year. Then let us assume your operating costs were $200,000 making your cost for that project, $320,000—a very simplistic view. But you only charge enough for your food and beverage that you collect $200,000 for that year.

If your total costs are $320,000 and your revenue is $200,000 then your $120,000 is going to have to be found somewhere. It has to be paid. And so the vicious cycle continues. Well, we have to pay it. Where are we going to get the money? How are we going to raise the revenue to get the money? Are we going to the people and say, 'well, we increased this and that willy nilly are going to borrow'. What is it we are going to do?

I think it is obvious that we had a lot of borrowing. 451% increase in Central Government debt over the decade 1991 to 2000—that does not even include the statutory authorities. We can go on and on in terms of services that this Government of the Cayman Islands offer, for which they are not collecting fees sufficient to pay for the service. Garbage is yet another one.

Mr. Speaker, I think there are those in our community and we know who they are, we know where they live. We see the mansions. We see the expensive developments. Why is it that the government of the Cayman Islands would be satisfied to subsidise services offered to people who can afford to pay more. I am not talking about the man and woman who have a 1,000 square foot house, whose average annual salary combined is somewhere in the region of $36,000 to $48,000 combined for the entire year. I am not talking about people within that society status.

Not only did we have projects and services for which the fees were not sufficient, but then we also had what I would term harebrained projects, like the Pedro St. James, where as usual, Government says it is going to cost $4 million and it ends up costing $9 million. And then on top of that you get annual subsidy somewhere in the region of $600,000. To compound matters even more we had borrowing for that project so you are also paying back interest. As I have pointed out, I would hope quite clearly 1996 to 2000 was not a good one in the history of these Islands.

So, that brings us to the year 2000: In November we get a completely new Government and so what is the situation faced by the new Government? We came here and increased an overdraft facility to some $14 million, which was used, if you refer to page 10 of the Honourable Third Official Member's report. You also have $5.6 million in outstanding bills. You have the January to October 2000 portion of the retroactive pay due to Civil Servants. When you add all that up you come to $25.6 million.

Then another thing happened in the year 2000—it is safe to say now after the results of the Election—you had Members of Executive Council in the year 2000 before the Election who shut the House down early and then came up with programmes (if you can call them that) where the benevolent Caymanian Government gave away money with no revenue stream to support it. That is the former Government that I am talking about being so benevolent, Mr. Speaker.

So the impact of the seaman's grant on this year's budget is some $4.1 million. So if you add up the situation from which this budget is based you have an overdraft of $14 million, outstanding bills of $5.6 million, civil servants cost of living adjustment of $6 million, seamen's grant for which no funding has been earmarked by the previous Government but now being honoured of $4.1 million, coming up to a total of $29.7 million.

Mr. Speaker, this is exactly what I was driving at when I said you had to look at the history in order to appreciate the situation as it was, from which this budget is derived. So 'right off the bat' if you have to try and make up $29.7 million without, in my view, having the adequate time to critique government [and] government services, and see exactly where the country is and whether or not certain services could be cut back, streamlined, or what have you. Then we have the situation as it is, where we see a budget coming to us where some $26 million of general revenue is being funded by borrowing.

I accept the position which we inherited because I have no choice. I accept the Budget that has been presented by the Government. In my view it is a good faith attempt. You see that one of their overriding guiding policies was to as far as possible keep expenditures to the levels that they were in the year 2000. However, the other key factor about the year 2000 is the fact that revenue under performed. So we had a projection in the Budget and we did not meet the target.

Our Government has to function. It has to go on. The country has to go on and again I accept the Budget as a good faith, and the revenue enhancement package is a good faith attempt to ensure that we carry on the business at hand. However, this is the short-term. This is one year. I can accept this position for one year. What I cannot accept and be any part of is a continuation of this trend. I campaigned to the contrary. My conscience leads me to the contrary and I will not do it.

We must come up with a medium term and long-term financial strategy in this country. I will now share some of my views on those two things.

Of utmost importance is for us to ensure that we take to our people a revenue base that is broad—one that taxes people in a fair manner. Mr. Speaker, one of the travesties in the history of Cayman is our form of taxation. So long our people have been told, 'Do not worry hidden taxes are the good ones for you. That is what is really good for you. You cannot see it so do not worry about it. What you do not see will not hurt you,' they say.

Mr. Speaker, we cannot continue this trend and I have all confidence that this Government will employ a medium term financial strategy that seeks to broaden the revenue base of this country and we seek and find ways to have those that are better able to pay contribute more to this country and this society. After all, Mr. Speaker, we all benefit from the relative social harmony and the relatively low level of crime that we enjoy.

Let me use an example: if a person who makes $1,000 . . . before I go there let me share with fellow colleagues and the citizens of these Islands some of the things that I have heard popping up of recent. I have heard ideas come forward like road taxes. There are a lot of concepts that are cute and sound good. They probably sounded just as cute as import duties did in the early days in this country. I am not going to stand here and do something to the people of this country who are less able to pay. That is not right!

Let me say why I say this, Mr. Speaker. Let us say that there was to be something in my view as short-sighted as a road tax, what would happen? The man or woman who makes $1,000 a month is going to have to use the road just as much as the man that makes $10,000 a month. Let us say for argument sake that you wound up using the road to the effect that you had to pay $100 a month in such a tax.

For the man who is making $1,000 that is 10 per cent taxes paid. For the person that is making $5,000 that is 2 per cent taxes and for the person who is making $10,000 a month, that is 1 per cent tax. Everyone paying the same tax dollar but look at the unequal distribution; the person who is less able to pay, paying ten times as much taxes, as the man or woman who is making the $10,000—five times as much as the person that is making $5,000.

These sorts of tactics cannot be employed, and I am not implying that the current Government would employ them but these are things that I have heard recently. I wanted to expose them immediately and tell the people of this country that there is no way that I could accept or be a part of any government or anyone who would expect to tax people in this same old way. 'Flogging the same old dead horse' and leaving the one that is able to pay all alone to enjoy the same benefits in the society without having to carry the weight that he should have to make because of his earning power.

We look at most other countries and we see a taxation system that is quite different. We see people who are earning more, paying more in taxes and the net result is they still make more money after taxes than the other person –than the small man, as I have heard them called so recently.

In this country we must operate in a fair manner. Our taxation system must be fair. This is a good society that we live in, relatively speaking. Let us not forget that. But the more 'well to do', and when I say citizens I also mean corporate citizens, have to realise that there is a price that comes along with the lifestyle we enjoy.

We must also ensure that we have proper expenditure management in the medium term that has to be a reality. We must be prudent in our fiscal affairs. We must be realistic when we look at the services being offered and ensure that we are delivering them at the best possible price to the consumer, which is the taxpayer in this instance.

In the long-term we must ensure that once we institute a proper medium term financial strategy and we do have truly balanced budgets or even better, which is what we need with the amount of debt that we have now built up, surplus budgets to pay the debt down, we must build up our surpluses. We must reduce statutory debt.

We have to get rid of the unfair distribution of the tax burden in this country and if we do not do it will be to all our peril because you can only push a man so far for so long. The small man in this country has been pushed too far for too long and it is now time for the citizens in this country who are better able to pay to stop shirking their responsibility and act like reasonable citizens.

Mr. Speaker, I turn now to the domestic economy. Cost of living in this country . . . let me take a step back. Employers create jobs, jobs pay salaries but it is the interplay and the correlation between salaries and the cost of goods and services that determine how better off or how bad off individual citizens are. So because of the inflationary pressures that the Central Government put on this economy during the last decade by deficit spending, and also because providers of goods and services are going to come to the market and demand as much as the market can bear and have acted unconscionable in a lot of instances we have what is termed high cost of living in the Cayman Islands.

We must deal with Cable and Wireless situation. This cannot be shirked. We must look at fuel cost. We must look at the contract that Caribbean Utilities Company has and the guaranteed return. We must look at the size of the Civil Service and the services they provide. We must look at interest rates in this country. Interest rates are the cost of money.

Most people are not small business owners but most people want to own a home, therefore, at some point in time most citizens in this country are going to have to pay for the cost of money. They are going to have to pay interest rates. So, when we look at what is employed in Cayman it is a downright shame.

We have banks that apply the overnight lending rate to mortgages and then mark it up. Currently the US federal overnight funds rate is 8.5 per cent and the best deal most people in this country can get is that plus an additional 3 per cent, coming up to 11.5 per cent. Of course, that can rise or fall with the movement of the overnight funds rate in the United States. What no one has been able to explain to me, to date, is what correlation the overnight fund rates have to the cost of money of banks in the Cayman Islands.

Just this morning I went on to Bankrate.com and currently in the United States the average 30-year fixed mortgage rate, that is fixed, the most expensive type of mortgage you are going to get, is 6.7 per cent. Add into that the fact that our dollar is some 20 per cent - 25 per cent stronger than the US dollar and then you would equate that to our interest rate being somewhere in the order of 15 per cent. Yet, in the United States a 30-year fixed year mortgage is 6.7 per cent. Then we look at what the banks in the United States are paying their customers on overnight money market accounts, 3.76 per cent.

If you invest over $10,000 you get 4.27 per cent. So you see in that market not only are banks earning a reasonable spread to provide a healthy return to their investors but their government a few years ago had enough insight to realise that they had to institute usury laws. I think it is high time that we go down that road in the Cayman Islands.

The banks in these Islands have truly gotten away with murder over the years as they have operated in Cayman. They have been allowed to utilise their clout and bully around the people and anyone else who wants to borrow some money and use their strong-arm tactics and keep interest rates at absolutely exorbitant levels. There is no justification in my view to the amount that the banks in these islands charge their consumers. It has little to nothing to do with their cost of money. It is just as I said earlier—they are going to the market and they are charging what they think the market can bare but they also know that they have the capital and they act like a cartel. Where else do you see all the banks banding together and advertising the floating portion of their mortgages? Whenever the US funds rate change they advertise together just as a cartel operates.

It is high time that we sit down with the banks and make them realise that they can make a healthy profit in the Cayman Islands, extremely healthy profits, but they have to give the consumer a better deal. This is just unacceptable in this day and age.

The last point that I would like to touch on is the matter of controlling expenditure within Government. It is high time that the citizens of this country recognise there is no free lunch. When you think you are getting something for free, a price is attached. So, when we have citizens who refuse, and we know this is the case, to take care of their elderly parents in some cases, and say, 'Oh, that is the Government's responsibility', what they do not realise is that all that is doing is driving up the cost of living in the Cayman Islands. All it does is increase the size of Government. It increases the amount Government has to raise in taxes and at the end of the day they are worse off because they would be a lot more efficient at spending the money to take care of their elderly parents where they can, than the Government is able to. That is a fact.

Now, we have a lot of elderly citizens in family situations where help has to be given and I do not think there is anyone in this Honourable House who has any problem recognising that. We cannot make our people go destitute. We can never make our people go destitute.

Moving on to younger recipients of aid from our Government, I saw a word in the Honourable Third Official Member's contribution, that is, a word that we should seek to ban in this country. It is welfare—social welfare programmes. We cannot have a welfare state mentality in the Cayman Islands especially when it comes to our younger citizens. It has to be an approach of workfare. Yes, people will get in situations where they need help. That happens in every country. That will happen from now until the end of time and the Government has to provide a safety net.

We cannot make our families go destitute in Cayman. But the system has to have built in it the incentive for people to provide for themselves and not just kick back and say Government will provide.

I had the horror of having someone tell me a few days ago that there is no need for him to get a job because when his child goes to primary school Government is going to have to pay because he cannot find the job that he wants. He has quit three jobs that I know of in the past year. Why? He does not want to do that!

This business of not talking about the real issues that drive at the core of Caymanian society, disgusts me. It is time that we talk about the real issues that affect us. It is time we move on them and deal with them in an effective and comprehensive manner, otherwise it will be to everyone's peril, and we will continue down the same road where we are compromising the future of our children and grand children.

Our spending patterns: we just need to look at what we have just inherited—$29.7 million! That is a good leaving gift! We cannot have this redistribution of wealth from our generation, away from future generations. We cannot spend their money. That is what deficit spending is; we are spending the future.

How can we talk about education, vocational and technical training if we are not going to have the money to be able to provide these much needed services to our children and grandchildren? We must provide a legacy that is worthwhile passing on.

In summary I can say that I recognise the situation that this current Government was put in. I accept the Budget as a good faith attempt to address it and I have every confidence that we will move forward and not try to beat the same old dead horse for more taxes; we will broaden the tax base in this country, and alleviate the tax burden that is unequally distributed to the poorer sectors of our community; we will control expenditure by managing wisely and will not get into any of these projects that have haunted us, that have come back and bitten us, such as the Pedro St. James project.

With the situation that persists none of us supporting this Budget feels good about the road we have had to take in the short run. What has to happen is a change of policy, a change of direction in the medium to long-term to ensure the sustainability and viability of the Cayman Islands' Government as an institution.

I thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Debate continues on the Throne Speech.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I am heartened and pleased by the level of debate made by my colleague, the Second Elected Member from West Bay, who just sat down. I am pleased that after the General Elections that this House has in its Members, persons who are capable, able, ready and willing to contribute to the affairs of our country and in such an intelligent manner.

I believe that this must be a time for optimism. We do have tremendous challenges as a country but we are not a dead country.

In relation to the Budget, I have served on Executive Council before and had some challenging times but this is the worst that I have had to face. No one needs believe that this budget was arrived at just so. Many nights were spent, till late hours of night and in the morning, dealing with what was $170 million deficit. I am pleased that I work with Members who are capable and have an interest in the affairs of the country to the extent that we did not wish to just put a budget together, bring it here and say this is the best we could do. I say this in all respect and in all seriousness to the new Leader of Government Business, that through his driving force at times we could get the Budget to the position we are in. Of course, we could have presented a much more cloudy and rainy budget.

As a government we took the position that we can no longer continue doing the same old things but we must say to the country, 'this is the position'. This is what we can afford and this is what we cannot afford to do. However, with all those challenges we are not a dead country. This is the time to put in place our medium and long-term plans and strategies.

Separate and apart from our local and internal problems we are being monitored by an outside world. We have more pressure from the United Kingdom in regards to finances. As a country, in finances, through the financial industry and the tourism industry we have to focus on remaining competitive. We must also closely watch developments in the national economy and our national life in general.

I believe taking all things into consideration these Islands can expect to continue to enjoy some growth if we focus our efforts on staying competitive, prioritising local policies and projects, and remaining responsive to the external environment.

In order for us to have and enjoy some growth we can no longer 'browbeat' investments in these Islands. If we believe that there are not other places for tourists to go or for investment to find then we are sadly mistaken. We have always said that there must be a balance and that is what I campaigned on and I feel that is what we have a mandate for, to find a balance. Some people in this country expect to have their cake and eat it too. They want to have business but they do not want numbers of people. Development brings people and to have a business it demands that we must have people.

I believe that when we look at the width and breadth of our country we find out that we are in a downturn in the economy. People's businesses are not doing well. In fact, in many instances it is very shabby in terms of small local businesses. But, again, we cannot have our cake and eat it too. It drives away investment. Talk about no more construction. Talk about no more foreigners and we will see where we are at.

I find that there are complaints from our people. There are people looking for work. There are people talking about how bad it is. This Government has a tremendous load upon its shoulders but I believe that we are up to the challenge.

My vision for these Islands in the 21st century is for us to be a home for our people, and those who legally live and work amongst us, are well behaved. A home where we feel comfortable with ourselves and we look after one another, whereby everyone making the country succeed by doing his part and shouldering his responsibilities. I am not speaking of a house of blocks and cement but our home with hearts and dreams of people who feel confident and secure, people who believe in the Cayman Islands and its future.

So, I am saying to Members let us work together to make these Islands our best home for all of us. As for me, "the woods are lovely, deep and dark but I have promises to keep and many miles to go before I sleep."

In the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport there is a tremendous challenge as tourism is charged and has the responsibility to help keep Cayman's economy on course and making it work for all the people of these Islands.

Since taking over responsibility for tourism approximately 4½ months ago, I have met with representatives from all sectors of the local tourism industry and with a large cross-section of international business partners/associates. Additionally, I have received an extensive briefing from the Department of Tourism and that information process is continuing. Despite the relatively short time I can share with this Honourable House a number of critical areas which we will have to deal with as a government and as a country.

1.) Increasing competition from other Caribbean destinations and other destinations in the global arena.

No longer should we believe that our competitors are some Islands of the Caribbean but we should believe all of them are. Beyond that, we must understand that our interest in learning about business growth in the wider global area is simply put, urgent and necessary.

2.) Growth of online travel and web marketing as an aggressive tool to communicate with consumers.

A travel web site and an aggressive web marketing programme is not a luxury rather a simple fact of life in today's marketplace.

Again, it is about staying in the game and in front of your customers. This is an area that is exploding. It is important that we do not see this as simply having a website that has pretty pictures and which talks about our Islands.

Travel websites to be bookmarked as favourites must be user friendly, service directed and able to talk with the user rapidly, personally and, ideally, close a sale.

The changing rate of technology is such that we cannot simply develop a tourism site and then rest. Constant updating, improvements, monitoring and partnerships with other brands online to drive business to our site are not just necessary but critical to stay fresh and interesting to the consumer.

3.) The changing customer profile is an area that must also be regularly monitored.

The role of research in its various forms is a mainstay requirement of tourism efforts today. We have to look at the product from the customer's view—are we delivering the style and type of service which appeals to these visitors? Is our product (hotel attraction and activities) offering such value that our visitors feel that their time spent with us was worth the cost?

What is the nature of service and development taking place within the competition? What are the trends in travel and how might they influence decisions to travel to the Caribbean and, of course, specifically to our Islands? These concerns I do not bring to this Honourable House lightly; they are all around us out there making it harder and harder for the Cayman Islands to maintain its position as a top of mind, upscale, warm weather destination.

We must stay abreast of the changing profile of our customers and what are the primary expectations which will attract them to our Islands, and which will make them want to come back here, again and again. One satisfied visitor to our shores will tell at least ten other persons how pleased they were with the Cay-man Islands vacation experience. One unhappy visitor and they will tell, at least, 30 people of their negative experiences.

Efforts must, therefore, not simply be about getting first hand visitors but about ensuring that the total experience that we offer our visitors is such that they become our repeat guests. In the longer term it is less costly to keep connected with a returning guest than it is to attract a new one. We have to do more now just to stay in the same place.

The marketing of travel is changing rapidly and the marketing approach and the activities that the Department of Tourism historically employed are in many cases yielding lower and lower returns for each dollar spent. Simply put, some of those activities no longer work for us.

As a Government we are determined to change this. My mandate is to bring about a more efficient, accountable and productive Department of Tourism. These efforts will incorporate the relationship which the department has with its local tourism industry partners. Critical to this relationship is a commonly shared understanding of the needs from a destination perspective as well as from the industry's perspective. Within that relationship, an area that has to be addressed is the funding process for the destination's marketing activities.

The current view of the Department and indeed the Government being seen as singularly an endless money pot for the tourism industry must change. Indeed this budget just presented, I believe, speaks volumes to that reality. Successful interventions in tourism for these Islands now require that all stakeholders see the way we pool financial resources to develop and market Cayman Islands' tourism differently. Our efforts will be to bring about a true financial partnership between all players who have a vested interest in tourism in the Cayman Islands.

Mr. Speaker, tourism is not a standalone activity or industry. It is woven throughout almost every aspect of our economy, therefore, tourism planning must be fundamentally integrated into national planning efforts. My Ministry intends to ensure that the tourism strategy of Vision 2008 is reviewed and considered in the planning process for the future development of tourism in these Islands.

It is very important for us to be clear on what tourism is. One definition is that tourism is the temporary movement to destinations outside the normal home and workplace, the activities undertaken during the stay and the facilities created to cater for the needs of tourists. It follows, therefore, that tourism as an industry has a direct and indirect impact of every segment of the Cayman Islands' economy, culture and our social structure. It is vitally important to all residents of these Islands, whether directly involved in a tourism activity or not . . . and so ensuring sustainability of tourism for this and a future generation is a high priority of the national agenda of this Government.

I have spent considerably time with the Director and staff of the Department getting clarity between the Ministry and the Department on what the Government's vision is, and as a result, what the mission of the Department must therefore be.

The vision of this Government for tourism is captured in this position: The Government sees its responsibility within this sector to lead sustainable tourism development, which supports a lasting high quality of life for all who live in the Cayman Islands.

The Department's mission as a result of this vision position of the Government must, therefore, be to act as the following: The Department of Tourism is the National Tourism Marketing Organisation that seeks to optimise the benefits of sustainable tourism for the people of the Cayman Islands. I am very proud to report this level of clarity, as no longer can it be said that there is a lack of clarity and focus on the perceptive within which the Government is managing tourism, but rather that each activity undertaken by the Department from this day forth must truly be reflected within its mission. Or such activity, whatever it is they are doing, should not be carried out by the Department.

In keeping with the stated vision of the Government, the Department of Tourism has been charged to develop and implement an integrated strategy for sustainable diversified tourism, which will, 1) deliver better results for all sectors of the local tourism industry.

It is a fact that the larger entities underpin our tourism efforts, that is, the larger hotels and condos, the larger diving organisations and so on. However, we must create opportunities for and work with the smaller businesses to make sure they also benefit from tourism. That is why when I was approached by the small operators operating from the dock, the taxis and watersports operators, I encouraged them to form the Caymanian Land and Sea Co-operative Society. That has been formed and has its membership, and the Co-operative objectives are as follows:

- To promote economic prosperity among its members by affording them the opportunity to accumulate their savings.
- To seek and obtain reduced rates of cost of equipment, material and marketing.
- To promote, maintain and enhance safety standards among its members and association with other corporate societies and associations.
- To promote unity and corporate principles among its members.
- To promote fair trading and good business practices among its membership and entities involved in land and sea related activities, and the removal of unfair competition.

The Government has seen fit to assist them. One of the main problems that they have had in not obtaining business from the cruise sector is that they had no representations, first of all, and some of them had no insurance.

The cruise ship operators require insurance and this is being worked on. I have had meetings after meetings with the Florida Caribbean Cruise Association (FCCA) and they in turn have had meetings with the leadership of the Co-operative. They are well on their way to starting business. This is not an easy matter to deal with and there are those who operate at the dock, and every Minister of Tourism, since I have been here, have had that problem but it intensified in the last eight years and nothing was done about it.

A policy of assisting a few was carried out and the tourism product must be for everyone who can operate a business successfully but they must be given an opportunity. So, Mr. Speaker, the Government supports the Land and Sea Co-operative Society, and, we are helping them with funds to get their equipment up to par, to be insured so that they operate with the cruise ship operators. I am happy that I have had the support and guidance at times of my three colleagues who are on the Backbench, the Second, Third and Fourth Elected Members for West Bay.

Mr. Speaker, of course, we are experiencing some resistance from a few out there on the dock who believe that the dock belongs to them, who believe that they can control the Government because that is what they did in the past. The past is the past, and I say to them that either they get on board and behave themselves or regulations will be used against them. I am not going to allow the disruptions that have gone on at the Port; the misbehaviour, the bad language—I am not going to allow it. If they cannot operate a business, which they have spent money on to buy their car, to buy their boat, if they cannot do this like business people then they will not operate from the ports of the Cayman Islands.

Some of them are proving to be quite disruptive and we have to spend a lot of time explaining and re-explaining simply because there are a few who have had the ears of the Government before and control things at the Port. I have had a memorandum sent to those and, as I said, either they are going to get on board and make this thing work which is for their own benefit, or they will not operate at the Port Authority in George Town.

There are far too many good operators, small business people, out there who have their buses, taxis and small boats who want to operate in the North Sound, and who are good to tourists, who behave themselves and operate in a human and dignified manner, to allow the few rebels to carry on to disrupt the orderly progress of this Co-operative. This, as I told them, is not for me. I am not in the business; this is for their good.

So, we are going to work for sustainable tourism but they have to play their part to make it help them.

They have to play their part to make sure they benefit more from our tourism product.

The second objective of that vision is to lead a new partnership between public and private sector. And, 3) lead the training and education of those directly involved in tourism activities. This is an area that is very near and dear to me. My colleague, the Minister for Education and I have spoken on ways to work together to effectively ensure that vocational and academic opportunities are available which will support the entry of more of our people into the tourism sector.

A training facility is needed, dedicated solely to tourism services and that is high on my agenda. I believe that there must be education from a primary level concerning tourism—to make them understand better how it works, how it profits and how it helps them so that they can want to be involved in what is a lucrative business and what should be a lucrative career. But I will be back to this Honourable House as this planning progress.

4) Implement and manage the education and awareness process for the entire community on the role and value of tourism especially those people who may not be directly involved in tourism.

5) Provide input to and be guided by the country's growth management strategy.

Mr. Speaker, I do not know if I am boring them or it is late in the day but it does not seem like we have a quorum.

The Speaker: Serjeant, please summon the Members to the Chamber.

Please be seated and wait until their arrival. While we are waiting I would like to call to Honourable Members attention that due to a lack of a quorum I have not been able to call for the usual afternoon break as the will of the House could not be expressed. So we are going to continue until the Interruption period.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport, please continue.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Sir, for getting the quorum.

I am satisfied that in our Director we have a very capable and committed person, and a person who has some tourism development experience. I am pleased to note that our Director of Tourism is Chairperson of the Directors of Tourism for the Caribbean Tourism Organisation, a 32-member organisation of the region and has been so for the past three years. She is well-known within the region and internationally and this has, and will continue, to open doors for Cayman Islands' tourism to gain opportunities for development.

We have for the first time placed a Caymanian as head of our US Operations and I am very pleased to report this. I must also recognise the other members of the senior management team at the department's corporate office here in Grand Cayman and the other members of staff there who I have observed are very committed to Cayman Islands tourism and are doing great work in support of our Islands. I believe they are hardworking and we must give praise where praise is due. When we have civil servants as dedicated as I see some of them, then I am pleased to be able to stand here and recognise them.

Mr. Speaker, going forward, it is necessary for two major pieces of work to be initiated, positioning the Government to be more assured of us once again becoming highly competitive within the marketplace and thereby regaining our lost market share.

The first major piece of work is that of providing the country with a Tourism Management Policy. The previous government made no effort to update the last policy. Indeed, it could be said that the last government obviously did not see any value in having such a fundamental document. For all the reasons, which I have brought before this House as my concerns, we cannot run this major aspect of our economy in an unplanned manner. These Islands have been operating since 1999 without a policy framework for its most labour intensive industry and one that we must continue to develop.

To acknowledge this, is to say that it is apparent that the past government did not have much of an understanding of the tremendous changes which took place during the past four years in the Tourism industry, nor the critical need to put in place the tool to support the sustainable operation of this vital aspect of our economy. Our Government intends to remedy this situation.

An implementation plan will be drawn up which will outline the processes to carry out a complete review of the Cayman Islands' Tourism industry and prepare a Tourism Management Policy for the next five years. The goal of this undertaking is to have a developed strategic vision for the Tourism industry ensuring that tourism is providing optimal benefits to all economic sectors of our society, improving the quality of life for the people of these Islands.

This policy document will not be one that is simply developed in a vacuum: it will be the product of numerous interventions with all stakeholders, both those within the sector and the wider community who will be affected by any developments within tourism in our small Islands' community. To complete this review it will take a considerable amount of time and I am generally of the view at this time that it could not be presented before the Budget Session in 2002.

Mr. Speaker, out of this Tourism Management Policy will emerge a clear direction of where this country, Government and primary sector, need to be heading. In effect, infusing the people of these Islands with a sense of purpose, providing long-term direction and establishing a clear mission of what needs to be accomplished in the next three to five years to ensure sustainable tourism efforts are undertaken for the quality of life for future generations.

The Tourism Management Policy will specifically address the following areas:

1. Infrastructure and product, that is, accommodation, airlines, cruise, roads and ports;
2. Global marketing, that is, promotion, public relations, marketing and sales;
3. Attractions, entertainment and services;
4. Human resource development;
5. Financial management;
6. Education and awareness;
7. Natural resources and entertainment.

In reviewing this list I must point out that while information technology is not named as a specific topic, it is a critical necessity and enabling technology for all categories which have been listed. We must never minimise the importance of information technology to our further efforts in all sectors, and especially within this sector of tourism. Later on I will share a number of initiatives, which will show directly the current efforts of the Department of Tourism and the early returns on those investments.

The second major effort will be to complete a review of the Department of Tourism. The Department of Tourism will be reviewed both from an organisation and marketing perspective over 2001 and 2002. We will assess all resources, people, funds, facilities and programmes rapidly, hopefully making realistic changes where necessary to ensure that the department is capable of delivering the required results for the industry.

Within this review process we will take a look at the market diversification efforts of the department where representation agencies have worked for us over the years and assessed the return on the investments made within these various markets, that is, Argentina, France, Italy, Germany, Spain and Canada. Where necessary, changes will be made to ensure a [better] return on the public sector investments in pursuit of sustainable tourism from all markets within which we operate.

This process, Mr. Speaker, will also take into consideration the changing behaviours of the visitors we seek to address so as to ensure that all aspects of our product and our marketing efforts are focused to deliver the right visitors.

While these efforts within this review process speak to an ongoing process over 2001-2002 we are immediately in the process of developing results, focused marketing initiatives to ensure the flow of visitors over the four quarters of 2001.

Since assuming office I have been involved with the Department of Tourism in a number of activities aimed at maintaining brand awareness for these Islands, and creating strong reasons for consumers to buy Cayman Islands' vacations.

My first official trade activity was my attendance at both the Caribbean Hotel Association Marketplace and Diving/Equipment Marketing Association (DEMA) in January [2000]. This year's Caribbean Hotel Association Marketplace was a very busy and productive one for us. The primary objective for being at the show was to facilitate discussion between wholesalers and our industry partners as well as to network with potential new travel trade partners.

In partnership with the private sector, the Department once again had a major presence at this year's Diving/Equipment Marketing Association show, that is, DEMA.

The purpose for being at the show was to maintain high awareness of the Cayman Islands as a premiere Caribbean dive destination while supporting some 50 private sector booths for DEMA participants to visit and learn more about the dive-related products and services available on all three Islands. The show was definitely a success as our private sector has related to us that there were good contracting activities, which relate to more tourists coming to these Islands.

Significant public relations were garnered for the Islands by Jean Michael Costeau participating in a satellite media tour talking about the Cayman Islands, which was picked up by seventeen stations around the US and Canada. Major broadcast networks included CBS, FOX, ABC, NBC, news channels and other affiliates.

In early March, I visited London for the purpose of paying my first official visit to our office in London. During this visit I was briefed by the Regional Manager for the United Kingdom and Europe under opportunities and challenges, which face us in those markets. I can say that I believe we have in that person a capable man, who has these Islands interest at heart and not just a job. He has good experience and I believe is the right man for the job.

I also had opportunity to meet with British Airways and to gain insight into their future planning for the Northern Caribbean route and how a renewed partnership with us could support growth of seats out of Europe and the Cayman sector. I came away from all these meetings with positive feelings about the opportunities—opportunities which we can fully develop to grow business from those markets.

Immediately after London I attended the World's largest travel trade show which was held in Berlin and that was really an eye-opener for me. This show had 7,600 exhibitors from 189 countries around the world. In 2000, it attracted 112,000 attendees and of this number 60,000 were travel trade specialists looking to contract with the exhibitors and some 6,000 journalists from 87 countries.

The show was a busy one for us but one serious concern for me was, while there was strong interest from tour operators throughout Europe there were no Cayman Islands industry partners out there with the Department to be able to complete the sale. What I saw was opportunity with no one to take advantage of it. It is important for the tourism partners within our Islands to be fully aware that we can no longer believe that business will just come to us.

My impression is that there is keen interest throughout Europe in our destination, however, while the Department of Tourism can create the awareness about the product within the destination, only the private sector can complete the sale. So, it is imperative that the private sector becomes involved in such trade shows.

I would like to comment briefly on conditions in our major markets to give this Honourable House a sense of the volatility of doing business within the tourism sector internationally. Within these short comments on each market, I will also report some of the activities, which the Department has in progress.

I do not know if you want to adjourn at this point or—

The Speaker: We can go on for another six minutes if you are able to.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: In the US the market, as you know, seems to be tottering on the edge of a possible and likely recession. It is our experience that within such an environment, consumers become wary about spending and travel is one of the first areas where a slowdown is experienced.

In an attempt to drive business during the slower summer season, the Department and the private sector here in Cayman, and the Sister Islands, to some degree, have been working on the development of several strategic marketing promotions that will be sold by the travel trade and will deliver great value to consumers who visit the Cayman Islands during the summer months, May - September.

As the House will recall, I have already spoken on those promotions in details. Right on the heels of these efforts, the Department is readying itself to initiate further discussions with the private sector on other opportunities to secure the winter season and into 2002, God willing.

The transition of the two tourism associations into one continues and I believe that they are nearly to the end. I see that as fundamental to the ordered progress of the Government and the private sector in being able to be successful in efforts to maintain market share for these Islands. I am pleased to report that I took an active part in making the transition scenario come about and I am waiting to hear from the transition committee of two associations on the final efforts to become one association in the next two weeks.

They chose a new name yesterday, the Cayman Islands Tourism Association. That is good. As I said, at the annual awards for the Cayman Islands Hotel and Condo Association on Saturday there is a dictum somewhere that says a house divided against itself cannot stand. So we could not have two associations bickering among themselves while efforts slowed down.

I am glad that they have been able to get together and form this new Cayman Islands Tourism Association for the betterment of their businesses and for the betterment of all businesses in the Cayman Islands.

Mr. Speaker, may I take it that it is that time?

The Speaker: Yes, you may move the Motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 a.m. tomorrow.

The Speaker: Before putting the question that this Honourable House do now adjourn, I would like to say to Honourable Members that I have received a letter from the Ministry of Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports, advising that the closing event honouring Women's Month will be the Women's Resource Centre Third Annual 5K Walk/Run on Saturday, 31 March 2001 at 7.30 a.m. This will commence and finish at the Public Beach and all Honourable Members are invited to attend.

I shall now put the question that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 am tomorrow. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.20 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED
UNTIL 10 AM FRIDAY, 30 MARCH 2001.

CAYMAN ISLANDS

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

PARLIAMENTARY QUESTION

TO THE HONOURABLE FIRST OFFICIAL MEMBER FROM THE SECOND ELECTED MEMBER FOR THE CONSTITUENCY OF WEST BAY

---

QUESTION:           WHAT WAS THE COMPLEMENT OF POLICE OFFICERS AND TOTAL CRIMES COMMITTED DURING 1998, 1999 AND 2000 (BROKEN DOWN BY DISTRICT)?

ANSWER:           MR. SPEAKER, THE COMPLEMENT OF POLICE OFFICERS IN THE ROYAL CAYMAN ISLANDS POLICE SERVICE FOR
THE YEARS 1998, 1999 AND 2000 WAS 269, 269 AND 293 RESPECTIVELY.

APPENDIX A SHOWS THE BREAKDOWN BY DISTRICT.

MR. SPEAKER, THE TOTAL CRIMES COMMITTED IN 1998, 1999 AND 2000 WERE 3170, 2877 AND 3254.

APPENDIX B SHOWS THE BREAKDOWN OF CRIME FOR EACH OF THOSE YEARS BY DISTRICT.

APPENDIX A

DISPOSITION OF STAFF BY DISTRICT

|      | GT | WB | BT | EE | NS | CB/LC | TRAFF | DOGS | USG | CCB | SP BR | DTF | OTHER | ESTAB. | STRENGTH | VACANCIES |
|------|----|----|----|----|----|-------|-------|------|-----|-----|-------|-----|-------|--------|----------|-----------|
| 1998 | 90 | 25 | 14 | 2  | 2  | 10    | 19    | 2    | 12  | 9   | 3     | 29  | 33    | 269    | 250      | 19        |
| 1999 | 96 | 27 | 17 | 2  | 2  | 10    | 18    | 2    | 13  | 9   | 3     | 29  | 34    | 269    | 262      | 7         |
| 2000 | 79 | 27 | 17 | 2  | 2  | 10    | 20    | 2    | 13  | 12  | 3     | 29  | 44    | 293    | 260      | 33        |

THE YEAR 2000 INCREASE IN AUTHORISED ESTABLISHMENT WAS CREATED BY GOVERNMENT IN JANUARY, 2000, BUT RECRUITING HAD NOT BEEN POSSIBLE IN THAT YEAR, HENCE THE LARGE VACANCY FIGURE.

NB "OTHER" INCLUDES HEADQUARTERS, COURTS AND 12 OFFICERS SECONDED TO THE FINANCIAL REPORTING UNIT (FRU).

TOTAL RECORDED CRIMES IN 1998, 1999 AND 2000

BROKEN DOWN BY DISTRICT

|             | GT    | BT  | WB  | EE | NS  | CB/LC | TOTAL |
|-------------|--------------|------------|------------|-----------|------------|--------------|--------------|
| 1998 | 1,825 | 268 | 803 | 99 | 66  | 109   | 3,170 |
| 1999 | 1,590 | 270 | 772 | 95 | 76  | 74    | 2,877 |
| 2000 | 1,786 | 383 | 795 | 68 | 112 | 110   | 3,254 |

MINISTRY OF SPORTS - SPORTS GRANTS

| ASSOCIATION                       | $ GRANTED 98     | $ GRANTED 99     | $ GRANTED 2000   | 2000 GRANTS PAID IN 2001 | AD HOC & OTHER GRANTS | DETAILS                                                                                                         |
|-----------------------------------|-------------------|-------------------|-------------------|--------------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Autocross                         |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Badminton                         |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Basketball (focus sport)          |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| -Annual grant                     | 30,000.00         | 30,000.00         | 30,000.00         |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| -Overseas/hosting                 |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Body Building Federation          | 1,000.00          |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Boxing                            | 6,000.00          | 15,000.00         |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| -Charles Whittaker                | 5,000.00          | 5,000.00          | 5,000.00          |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| CI Amateur Athletic (focus sport) |                   | 1,146.00          | 10,000.00         |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| -Overseas/hosting                 | 50,500.00         |                   |                   |                          |                       | (ANNUAL) 99 $27,300; 2000 $50050 (Professional Fees) 98$3167.52; 99$4318; 00$10,709. (Scholarships & Burs) |
| Kareem Sireete-Thompson - GA      |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Cydonie Mothersill Trust Fund     |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Cayman Brac                       | 4,600.00          | 19,000.00         | 13,500.00         |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Cricknet (focus sport)            |                   | 30,000.00         | 30,000.00         |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| -Britcay Cavillars                |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Cricknet National Pavilion - WB   |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Cycling                           |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Darts                             |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Dominoes                          |                   |                   | 1,000.00          |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Fire Service                      |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Football - CIFA (focus sport)     | 86,000.00         | 66,623.00         | 65,098.00         |                          |                       | Annual $58000; Coach salary $7098                                                                             |
| - Districts                       |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| - Shell/Carib. Cup/hosting        | 35,000.00         |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Golf                              |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Netball (focus sport)             |                   | 30,000.00         | 30,000.00         |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Olympics - General                |                   |                   |                   | 10,000.00                |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| - overseas games                  | 75,000.00         | 62,000.00         |                   | 70,000.00                |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Sailing                           |                   | 10,000.00         |                   | 10,000.00                |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Softball                          |                   |                   | 10,000.00         |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| - Little League                   | 50,000.00         | 50,000.00         | 50,000.00         |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Special Olympics                  | 15,000.00         |                   |                   |                          |                       | Granted 1999                                                                                                    |
| Squash                            |                   | 2,000.00          |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Swimming (focus sport)            | 10,000.00         | 10,000.00         |                   | 6,740.00                 |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Martial Art Association           |                   | 3,000.00          | 5,250.00          | 10,000.00                |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Tennis                            |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Volleyball                        | 800.00            | 30,000.00         |                   | 30,000.00                |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Misc. Sporting Organisations      | 1,000.00          | 2,000.00          | 700.00            |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| Scholarships - Full & Partial     |                   |                   |                   |                          |                       | 98 - $24727.28; 99 $14028.00; 2000 $28403                                                                    |
| Sports Awards & Sports School     | 421.89            | 3,721.00          | 42.99             |                          |                       |                                                                                                                 |
| TOTAL GRANTED:             | 370,321.89 | 369,490.00 | 250,590.99 | 136,740.00        |                       |                                                                                                                 |

**Payments for 2000 end of year were paid in 2001

(P.Q. 43, 29 MARCH 2001)

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
FRIDAY
30 MARCH 2001
10.19 AM
Twelfth Sitting

[Prayers read by the Third Elected Member for West Bay]

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. There are no announcements or messages this morning.

Moving on to item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Ministers and Members of Government.

Deferred question number 21 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MINISTERS AND MEMBERS

QUESTION NO. 21

(Deferred on 19th and 26th March 2001)

No. 21: Dr. Frank S. McField asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Legal Administration why it was necessary to have a Queen's Counsel, instructed by the Attorney General acting for Government, in the Quarry Products case in 2000 but not in the Hyatt Regency Hotel gratuity case in 2001.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: The general rule relating to the conduct of prosecutions by the Attorney-General's Portfolio is that all cases are prosecuted by lawyers within the Department.

There are, however, instances where it is considered necessary, or desirable I may add, to instruct outside counsel to conduct prosecutions on behalf of the Crown. However, such instances are extremely rare.

One such instance had to do with the recently concluded Quarry Products prosecution. It was necessary to instruct outside counsel for at least three reasons:

1. Because of the inextricable civil aspect to the case where it was considered necessary that not only was it in the public interest to mount a criminal prosecution, but also it was necessary for Government to be compensated civilly by way of royalties for previous mining operations. This latter course requires long and tedious legal negotiations and, therefore, perhaps best handled by someone outside who could give it undivided and impartial attention.

2. By the time the matter reached a stage where it appears that prosecution was imminent, several senior officers in the Portfolio had been at some stage involved with the matter. It was, therefore, considered necessary to have someone from outside taking conduct of the matter.

3. Similarly, as far as the criminal prosecution is concerned, if the matter was to proceed to a trial it would have posed serious conflicts because at least one senior officer in the Portfolio would have been a potential witness in the matter as a result of advice that he had previously given together with a former Governor, both of whom the defence intended to summon.

It would, therefore, be inadvisable and inappropriate to have someone from the Portfolio prosecuting a matter in which a colleague would be testifying.

None of the above-mentioned considerations were present in the Hyatt prosecution and accordingly, it was in order to have the matter prosecuted from within the Portfolio.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Could the Honourable Second Official Member say if there were any considerations in the Hyatt prosecution?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: The supplementary question seems to be whether there were any considerations. I am not entirely clear but I will try to answer to the best of my ability. Perhaps, the Honourable Member might clarify if he wishes and I will try to give a more focused answer.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Would the Second Official Member agree that the considerations which he has pointed out with regards to the Quarry Products case are not the only considerations that are made when the Government is considering the strategy with regards prosecution?

If so, what were the considerations that were made with regards to the Hyatt case that would have suggested it was not necessary to hire someone from outside the island?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: In an earlier answer, I referred to the additional issues in relation to the Quarry Products matter: namely, the civil aspects — namely the involvement of senior personnel from within the Government. The following, indicate the basis upon which these matters are considered.

First of all, the basic premise is whether there is sufficient evidence to persuade the prosecuting authorities, who are not the Government, (if I may be permitted to say), that there is a reasonable prospect of a conviction and secondly, whether it is in the public interest to bring a prosecution. These are matters which the Laws of the land impose upon ultimately myself in respect of Section 16(a) of the Constitution as to whether to bring or undertake prosecutions.

I may say of course that in the ordinary course of events many of these matters are delegated as the Constitution permits. Indeed that is why the advice of the Solicitor General on these issues, who is as you will readily understand an experienced prosecutor, relied upon considerably by me. Jointly, we take these decisions.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: I guess the Second Official Member understands that I am suggesting that the Hyatt Regency prosecution case was not high on the priority list. I am now going to ask if the Legal Department was in the position to provide the expertise necessary in this case.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, yes.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: If so, what went so terribly wrong?

The Speaker: I think he is asking for an opinion. You may give it if you wish, Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David Ballantyne: I would prefer, if I may, to answer that part in the best way I can by seeking permission to Table the ruling of the Court in relation to the matter which sets out the Courts reasons for declining to deal with the balance of the charges.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: I am obliged. If appropriate I can and will make reference to the content of that ruling.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: I know we are dealing with labour because no other Member will get up and ask questions. Mr. Speaker, perhaps the Second Official Member, since he is being so helpful here, would say if possible at this time what the Government intends to do in regard to the court's decision.

The Speaker: Again, this is outside the ambit of the original question, but if you wish to answer, you may.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Insofar as I am able to speak for Government on the matter, I believe the Government has already accepted a motion to review the provisions of the Labour Law. If I am right in saying that, it would be my view that the issues that are raised in the ruling should form part of the review of the Labour Law. There are certain views that my colleagues and I within the Legal Portfolio have about the operation of it, and some of the practical difficulties that have been encountered. It would be my view that the positive way forward in relation to the whole matter would be to input these views into that review process in order to provide a more effective scheme for the administration of such issues.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Boddin Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, as best as I can understand, for the various reports done on this case the court ruled that the case was brought due to time. Can the Honourable Member say how is it that no one seemed to realise that that would have been an impediment in this case prior to taking it to court at the time it was taken?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: The ruling of the Court was indeed to the effect that these charges were considered to have been brought at a point in time considerably after the time at which evidence sufficient to justify the bringing of charges was available.

I can give you the opinion which I formed myself, if it will assist understanding this: namely, that the issue of the sufficiency of evidence, when it arose, was not questioned until the matter came before the Court. It was brought on the basis that the interpretation put on the relevant provision of the Labour Law was to the effect, both by the Director of Labour and those advising, that all relevant evidence in terms of reports concerning the payment of gratuities were required to be in before there was a complete picture which would justify the foundation of charges. Among the documents which have been produced (it may be of interest to Members of the House) is a schedule of the date of reports and the date at which they were received. I believe that might make interesting reading.

I will give you an example, if I may, just to illustrate my point: Gratuity reports relating to the period 19 December 1994 to 12 February 1995 were received on 25 October 1999, according to the information provided by the Director of Labour. Reports relating to 1996 were received on 13 March 2000. I think you can begin to see some of the practical difficulties that arise here.

We do have one or two suggestions as to how to alleviate that difficulty, but it is very clearly caused by the six-month rule and the fact that the Law talks about requiring all gratuities to be paid. In order to be sure that you know about all gratuities, you have to have comprehensive information in the form of reports so that my colleagues and I ... the Solicitor General and I, are of the view that perhaps this House may want to consider extending the period of time in which reports may be adduced before the Court, perhaps having a five-year limitation period in which reports would be admissible as a basis for bringing proceedings.

The danger is that if you simply adduce evidence relating to one finite period of time, it is quite possible that gratuities might subsequently be paid quite properly, therefore, you cannot really tell. There is a real conundrum in all of this because of the scheme of the Law. You cannot really tell without having full information. I believe that is the basis upon which the Director of Labour and those advising him were proceeding.

That is one suggestion. We also would perhaps be of the view that the ordinary kind of prosecution comes to us in the form of a file for a ruling. In this instance, the Labour Department is able to institute proceedings itself. It proceeded rather differently. We would prefer to have the matter dealt with in the way the Legal Department is used to dealing with these issues so that we can see all the information at one time in one file and can give a view and advise on the issue. That is not the complete answer, however. I believe the law itself has to be examined to see how in practice these matters can be successfully enforced without running into this kind of difficulty.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Member can say if at this stage there is any way at all that a prosecution could be brought, seeing that it appears the hotel did not even try to say that this large sum of money (over $1 million) was owed in gratuities? That is such a terrible loss to the persons who should have received it. Is there some way that a prosecution might be brought at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: I believe that it is possible to learn from all of this and that it is feasible that prosecutions may be brought. However, I believe it would be preferable, that as the Law states, we are proceeding at the moment on the basis of regulations made under the Labour Law as to who is entitled and who is not entitled to receipt of gratuities. I am aware that there is a difference in the interpretation of those regulations as between certain employers and the Department of Labour. I think a good way forward might be (the law provides for this) for the Department of Labour to approve schemes for distribution of gratuities, which is the alternative to doing it by means of regulations. If that were done, it would be more readily established whether or not that scheme was being followed.

I believe there has been contact by correspondence between certain employers and the Department. I believe the Department would follow that up. So, it would put things on a much clearer footing if that were to occur, rather than having the uncertainty of different interpretations of regulations.

I do not pretend that there are any easy answers in this. I do think, however, that in the interest of good relationships between employer and employee, government and employers and the community in general, if I may say, that the forum in which these matters are dealt with might be reconsidered. Given that those claiming entitlement to gratuities are looking to be compensated as appropriate. If a scheme is approved then they themselves will be able to tell more readily.

Another issue is whether there is a case for having these matters ventilated not necessarily before a court in the first instance, but perhaps before some kind of labour or industrial tribunal where individuals would have the ability to deal with these issues or be represented.

There are a number of ways forward. I think what I am trying to suggest is that there are areas of uncertainty that need to be clarified. One way in which to do that is to have schemes approved by the Department of Labour which can then be monitored.

The Speaker: Two additional supplementaries.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: I would like to thank the Honourable Second Official Member for his clarity.

Can he say if Government will initiate the move to bring amendments to the relevant Laws in order to have a correction in the situation, or will that wait for the review process?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Government's position would be determined I think by the Minister responsible, to whom I will defer on the matter. We will act on any appropriate instructions from the Minister as to timing. It would be a judgment as to whether it should be done as part of the overall review. If there are certain things that can be done to clear up any ambiguity in regulations, they could be dealt with earlier.

The primary point needs no amendment to regulations or to the Law. That is to use the existing law to approve schemes under that Law and to allow the Department of Labour to determine whether those schemes are being complied with and to deal with any issues from employees.

The Speaker: Final supplementary, the Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Thank you. I would like to get a little more clarity on that point. The Second Official Member is saying that the Labour Department needs to approve the schemes in order to have more control in regard to the paying out of gratuities. Has he made that recommendation to the Labour Department or the Minister yet?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, I do not think I am required to make that recommendation because I think the Director of Labour is aware of this by virtue of correspondence on behalf of various employers. It is a live issue right now.

The Speaker: Moving on to question 45, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 45

No. 45: Dr. Frank S. McField asked the Honourable Second Official Member, responsible for the Portfolio of Legal Administration, if the Legal Department was at any time asked by the Honourable Minister for Human Resources, or the Director, to hire an experienced Queen's Counsel to represent the Labour Department in the recent case before the Courts with Hyatt Regency Hotel.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: The Portfolio was requested by the Honourable Minister of Education, Human Resources and Culture to be assured that the Human Resources or Labour Department will be represented by experienced, capable and "robust" counsel in the Hyatt Britannia Corporation Ltd. prosecution.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: I am just asking if the Second Official Member might be able to help me with some of these definitions: "robust" counsel. What would his interpretation have been at that time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, I have confidence in all the members of my portfolio that they fit the definition contained here. We take care in who we hire. We take care to ensure they have the requisite qualities. We take care to ensure that they are assigned to cases appropriately. So that I will try to answer all three parts of the definition, if I may be permitted, by saying that our view is that this definition was fulfilled.

We are also of the view that the issue decided by the Magistrate with whose findings we do not necessarily accept in total but in general, we do. The scheme under this Law is a difficult one and we believe that the representation was appropriate to the case and indeed not just up to, but on top of it.

I would only add, if I may, that the Crown's job is not to win every case. Our job is to present the evidence. It was factual matter that was determined at the end of the day by the Magistrate as to when there was a sufficiency of evidence to bring charges and to justify them. So, it was not an issue of Law or competence. It was a matter of fact for the Magistrate and we respect the finding and we will work with that.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, I know this question may be outside the scope but I guess I will have to ask it anyway. It is based on the Second Official Member's reply to that supplementary where he tried to explain "robust" regarding the members of his staff. He said he had confidence in them. If that is so, then I would like to know why do we see the Attorney General representing the Government in court?

The Speaker: I think this is somewhat outside but if you wish to answer you may.

The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Why do we see the Attorney-General, Mr. Speaker, or why do we not?

Well, let me try and deal with that one in a “robust” and, hopefully, capable way. The Attorney General has the right of audience in all the courts. He relies substantially on his colleagues, in particular the Solicitor General and those in the Legal Department. I hope it will help to understand we are a team and I am a member of that team—not some arcane figure sitting on the fourth floor of the Glass House. Occasionally, I have been known to enter the courts and I am a court practitioner by training and by discipline.

I entered into the Quarry Products issue personally. I appeared at the culmination of that issue in order to explain personally to the court because I had taken that matter forward albeit with the assistance of outside counsel, for reasons I have explained.

I also appeared lately in a matter concerning the interpretation of Section 16(A) of the Constitution, which directly affects the powers exercisable by the person holding this position. So, we try to take a view. To my knowledge, I do not think I am excluded from the courts and of course my other responsibilities would prevent me from engaging in lengthy proceedings. I am going to do it as and when I think it is both appropriate and necessary. I can assure you, if assurances were needed, it implies no lack of confidence in my colleagues, in fact, quite the reverse.

Thank you very much.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move on to Question 46 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 46

No. 46: Dr. Frank S. McField asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Legal Administration if the Legal Department advised the Labour Department at any time in 1996, that it would be difficult, if not impossible, to prosecute under Section 32(2) of the Labour Law due to the fact that documents listing gratuity payments were not by themselves admissible as evidence, and, if so, is this the reason that charges against the Hyatt Regency were not brought before February 2001.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The answer to this question is in two parts:

Part I: It is correct that in October 1996, the Director of Labour was advised by Crown Counsel in the Legal Department that: “It would be difficult, if not impossible, to successfully prosecute under Section 37(2) of the Labour Law due to the fact that the documents, by themselves, are not admissible as evidence under the Evidence Law, or at Common Law for that matter.

In fact, as a matter of law, the documents are admissible as evidence pursuant to the provisions of the Labour Law itself, see Section 81 of the Labour Law (2000 Revision).

Unfortunately, this is a fact that was overlooked at that time by the Crown Counsel concerned. However, I would say, as the answer does, that Crown Counsel did not, however, advise that the matter should not be proceeded with. In fact, he further advised the Director that: “I understand from our recent meeting” . . . “that there is an ex-employee of the Company” . . . “who has knowledge of the unlawful distribution and would be willing to testify in court, but there is no statement recorded from that person at present.”

“In the circumstances, I would advise that you refer the matter to the Commercial Crime Branch of the Royal Cayman Islands Police (RCIP) for investigation since they would have all the necessary resources to gather evidence.”

“Your documents are returned herewith.”

It follows, therefore, Mr. Speaker, that the Director of Labour was expressly advised by the Legal Department to refer the matter to the RCIP Commercial Branch for them to investigate and gather the evidence.

The Legal Department is unable to say why he did not immediately seek the assistance of the police as advised. However, we do know that it was not until May 2000 that he eventually enlisted the assistance of the RCIP, an Inspector from the Commercial Crime Branch.

I would like to add at this point that I believe that is not intended to be a criticism of the Director of Labour but it is based on the premise that all of the documents were needed. As I have indicated to you, not all had been received until the early part of 2000.

Part II: The Legal Department is unable to say whether or not the advice from Crown Counsel was the reason for charges not brought before February 2001 by the Director of Labour.

The Director of Labour, his Deputy or Labour Inspector, has the power under the Labour Law to institute criminal proceedings for any offence and may appear before the Summary Court to conduct the prosecution in respect of any such offence. See section 71(2). Accordingly, the Labour Department does not have to rely on the Legal Department to institute proceedings.

On the question of timing, the Director of Labour in a written statement to the police dated 7 June 2000 for the Court proceedings stated that: “As a result of numerous allegations by the service employees of Hyatt Regency Grand Cayman, I initiated a Department of Labour audit of Hyatt’s gratuity records in or about June 1999. Preliminary investigation revealed not only that a significant number of monthly reports had not been submitted by Hyatt, but that most of those reports submitted were not in the approved format.

“Furthermore, it was apparent that a large number of employees of managerial level were sharing in the distribution of gratuities. I, therefore, took advice from the Legal Department and wrote to the operator of the Hyatt Regency on 23 June 1999 concerning the matter of employees at managerial level sharing in gratuities and invited comments and/or evidence to the contrary by 1 July 1999.”

The Legal Department is unable to say why no audit was initiated between 1992 and 1999 as the evidence tendered in Court by the defence shows that as far back as February 1992 the Director said that he had received complaints that management staff were being paid gratuities. When the Director of Labour sought the assistance of the Legal Department in drafting the charges, Crown Counsel enquired from him the reason for the allegations dating so far back. The Director explained to Crown Counsel that he had only received the gratuity records from Hyatt in March 2000.

The Legal Department has no reason to question the accuracy of this representation by the Director of Labour. The Legal Portfolio is a prosecuting agency for some criminal matters. It does not investigate offences. We act on instructions from the referring department, be they Police, Customs, Labour or Immigration.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, I guess you realise there should not be a supplementary here because he has been so thorough in his answer. Anyway, I would just like to briefly say that I thank the Second Official Member for his answers here. In his view can anything be done at this particular point and if it is an opinion then he does not have to answer it but he can seek to rectify some of these situations that we have here.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: I approach this with a little diffidence because it is not really for me to enter into areas of policy. However, my experience would suggest that perhaps the relationship between employers and the Department of Labour would benefit from some of the matters that I have referred to before by approval of schemes. I believe we would all be a lot clearer on all sides, if fact in the arrangements that were in operation were fully understood by all concerned because it is quite plain and I do not mean to be wise after the event. Like everybody else it is easy to look back with 20/20 hindsight.

Just to say that clarity is at the centre of all of this: clarity about what the Law means. Clarity about what arrangements are in place for payment of gratuities and anything that would help towards that, I believe, would be positive. We will be happy to contribute either in conjunction with the Director of Labour, or with the Minister concerned and with interested parties to try to produce a reasonable way forward here to avoid the necessity for coming into an adversarial position on these issues, if that is possible. I believe that litigation should be a last resort but it should be available, if necessary, to ensure that the rights of individuals are protected.

These are the only comments that I would be able to attend at this point in time.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Second Official Member has given a very comprehensive reply which I think works to the benefit of Members in this particular case. In his answer, it says that the Director of Labour, his Deputy or Labour Inspector has power under Labour Law to institute criminal proceedings for any offence and may appear in Summary Court to conduct the prosecution in respect of such offence.

The question is: Is this usual for someone who may not be a legal practitioner or have legal knowledge to take on such a role? Would it not be better if the Director of Labour thought there was a problem or a criminal offence to be prosecuted and that should be referred then to the Legal Department?

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) & (8)

The Speaker: Before asking the Honourable Second Official Member to answer the question I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) in order that Question Time can continue beyond the hour of 11 am.

The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I move that the relevant Standing Orders be suspended so that Question Time can continue beyond 11 am.

The Speaker: Thank you.

The question is that Standing Order 23(7) and (8) be suspended in order that Question Time can continue beyond the hour of 11 am. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Order 23(7) & (8) has been suspended. Question Time continuing.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ALLOW QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11.00 AM.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: It really is not for me to say whether it is prudent or otherwise to have the power there. It occurs in Customs: Customs can bring prosecution, Immigration may do so, and the Director of Labour has been so empowered.

All that I would say is that as the replies have done, the Legal Portfolio contains a prosecution agency and we are very willing to take these matters on. In fact, the Attorney General has the ability to do that where someone else institutes proceedings he may take them over.

I would point out that the Director of Labour has discretion as to whether he brings the proceedings. If he would prefer that they would be brought by the Crown then there is nothing to prevent that from happening. The fact that the Director of Labour has the power does not impinge on the ability of the Crown to undertake these proceedings so that if that were his preference and I have already indicated that we would prefer to have a file for a ruling when it comes to forming charges. Therefore, we would be more than willing to undertake these matters on his behalf.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Boddan Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: As a follow-up, the Member has said that similar power to prosecute is also given to Immigration and Customs. It is more for information for me and I dare say the House: Do officers of these departments actually prosecute or do they solicit the assistance of someone from the Legal Department to actually guide this in the Court for them? I am still at a loss, Mr. Speaker, to see why the people whose business it is to be in court and prosecute are not there. I am just wondering.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Well those whose business it is to prosecute, Mr. Speaker, are not "not there". Believe me, they are there all right—they are there at least five days a week. If we are referring to members of the Legal Department—

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I am thinking in relation to, for example, the case of Immigration, Customs or Labour.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Well, Mr. Speaker, many of the Customs and Immigration offences are statutory offences and are dealt with before the Summary Court. In fact, I think most of them are.

The position is that sometimes our advice is sought but sometimes not. For routine straightforward summary charges, it is not necessary. It would not be a good use of resources but we are a resource which is available for use in appropriate circumstances and we make ourselves available. We appear in the whole range of courts as you will understand—from the Grand Court, to the Court of Appeal, to the Summary Court, to the Youth Justice Court and we do not have unlimited numbers (about which you may hear more but this is not the occasion). Therefore, we have to allocate our resources to the cases that are referred to us. If there is a difficulty with a case or any unusual aspect of it, then that would be typically where it would be preferable but we really rely on the Department's concern to bring this to our attention if they have not already sought advice.

I genuinely am of the view that the preferred way to proceed is to assemble all the information and take advice at that point, at which time a decision may be made as to representation.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Would the Honourable Second Official Member say, notwithstanding the failure of the criminal prosecution in this matter, is it still possible for recovery of the unpaid gratuities to be pursued through civil proceedings before the Grand Court?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, I am not aware of any impediment to the recovery of gratuities to which employees are contractually entitled. Therefore, notwithstanding the fact that these prosecutions were deemed to have been brought out of time that should not prevent recovery being made.

I would also say, if I may, that although the prosecution themselves did not result in convictions, I think there has been a benefit in the bringing of proceedings because issues have been ventilated and perhaps some deficiencies in the Labour Law identified which will help to produce a more viable arrangement in due course. There are things that we can do immediately to improve the situation.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Boddan Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Member say if, the court in this case took any account of the fact given here in the answer on page 3, that there seems to be an incredible length of time before the defendants responded with information to the Director of Labour? Is it the case that when an authority such as the Director of Labour asks for information, that persons from whom he requires it, can simply ignore it indefinitely? Is there no recourse in that particular regard?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: In answer to the first part of the supplementary I do not think that this specific issue of the difficulty of obtaining information was a primary focus of the ruling by the Honourable Magistrate. I can say to the Honourable Member that the Law itself contains the mechanism for enforcing the production of such report but it is by means of a criminal sanction. Criminal proceedings were instituted in this matter by virtue of failure to produce reports. They were taken to a point where the reports were forthcoming and they were discontinued because they had served their purpose at that point in time.

Unfortunately, the long day in the production of some of the information had the consequence that we now know of. So, there are mechanisms for ensuring compliance—they were utilised in this case but unfortunately at the end of the day, the period of time over which information became available was to the detriment of the Department of Labour.

I think like every other situation, if the experience is used positively it can be beneficial and I believe that is how one should look at this. I would preferably acknowledge that we all learn in these processes. It is important, however, that we have co-operation in this matter and that we try to avoid unnecessary confrontation. But the Law does allow enforcement should that prove to be required.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Second Official Member can tell this Honourable House, now that that case is behind us and we lost miserably, if the Legal Department has given the Labour Department a legal advice on how they can proceed in the future, to prevent any of the other institutions doing this and prevent the delay so that they can be prosecuted if they do not distribute the gratuity properly?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, naturally, on the occurrence of an event such as this, I caused enquiry to be made and I have a report available to me which details some of the chronology and some of the reasons why the Magistrate in fact made her finding.

I appreciate the view that may be taken of this due to the words that were used. I do not share that position, in the sense that I do not believe that this was wasted. On the other hand, I believe that, as I said earlier, the Crown's task is to present the evidence and if it should have been presented earlier so be it.

I believe, however, that everyone will have learned something about the Labour Law. I would invite Members here to look at that Law and to find a relatively speedy way in which to try to make it more workable, if that means amending it as I believe it may do. The difficulty is—if I can just try and capture it for you—with the six-month rule, it means that the circumstances coming to your attention justifying the bringing of proceedings have to be within six months of that information coming to your attention.

If you take only a snapshot of the gratuities that are paid and do not have the full picture, you do not necessarily have sufficient information upon which to base proceedings. However, I am not saying to you and I want it clearly understood, if I may put it as strongly as this, that I do not believe that there is an impediment to prosecutions. I think that in the light of the ruling that has been made we will give appropriate advice to the Department of Labour and if necessary, we will undertake it on their behalf.

So you should be assured as always that our intention is to uphold the Law. In fact, I am advised that the view that has been expressed by the Legal Department through the Solicitor General to the Permanent Secretary together with the Director of Labour and preferably someone from within the hotel industry, is that they should get together and formulate some proposals. That is, to resolve the apparent conflicts in the regulations, to which I referred and also to put together an approved scheme.

So I am saying that there is room for collaboration in all of this. I am saying that yes, there is room for improvement but we have to deal with the Law as we find it. If in practice it is proving difficult as it has, to gain all the information and present it within a timeframe laid down by statute generally, I would just point this out, the six-month rule comes from the Criminal Procedure Code, it does not come from the Labour Law. The circumstances of the Labour Law perhaps, as those advising have suggested, might necessitate a slightly broader band of time within which to be able to gather information. If you do not have the facts upon which you can found your charge you are going to end up in difficulty of the other kind even if you do bring it in time.

However, I am not here to make any excuses on behalf of anyone. You are entitled to the information. I hope you have been given it and you can be assured that we will prosecute with vigour where it is necessary.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End, final supplementary.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I thank the Second Official Member for that explanation. However, now that we have reached this point is it the intention of this Legal Department to make representation to Government to bring amendments to the Labour Law to this Honourable House in the not too distant future?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Well, in our capacity as legal advisors to government, we can naturally be expected to do that. I fully intend that some of the issues that have been highlighted in the relatively recent report that I have received, will be drawn to the attention of the Government. Positive suggestions for a more viable arrangement will be made with a view to trying to produce a scheme that will be clear and workable in everyone's interest.

The Speaker: Moving on to Question number 47 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 47

No. 47: Mr. Rolston M. Anglin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health and Information Technology how many Caymanians have resigned from the Computer Services Department in the past three years.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Over the past three years up to 15 March 2001, 11 Caymanians have resigned from the Computer Services Department. Of this number, seven had completed tertiary level education.

- Four Permanent and Pensionable (P&P) Caymanians left for the private sector;
- One P&P Caymanian on probationary terms left for the private sector;
- Three P&P Caymanians transferred to another government agency;
- One P&P Caymanian took unpaid leave, left for overseas training and never returned;
- One local contracted Caymanian left for the private sector;
- One temporary contracted Caymanian left for the private sector.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable Minister say if there was any follow-up in regard to the seven Caymanians who completed tertiary level education as to why they were leaving? I want to remind the Minister of the answer from yesterday, which showed numerous senior level posts filled by non-Caymanians.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: I believe that the direct answer to that supplementary would be that the individuals in question left because of a higher remuneration in the private sector. This remuneration was significantly higher than what they were receiving in government. That was the main reason.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden Jr.: Can the Honourable Minister say at what level were those 11 Caymanians that left? Can he also state if they have been replaced by Caymanians?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: I believe that answer can be better given in question 49. I have made provision for the answer there. However, I would just like to say to the second part of his question that six of these individuals were replaced by Caymanians, one was replaced by a Jamaican married to a Caymanian; two have just recently left the service and have not yet been replaced and two were replaced by expatriates.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we will move on to question 48, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 48

No. 48: Mr. Rolston M. Anglin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health and Information Technology how many couples are working in the Computer Services Department and are there any instances where one mate is supervisor to his/her partner.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: There are four couples working in the Computer Services Department; no spouse or mate directly supervises his or her partner.

I believe it would be helpful if I also gave the following information to the Honourable Member. One couple works in the technical support group, one as a project manager and the other as junior administrator. However, they are on different teams and the junior administrator reports to a different supervisor, or manager. Employees sometimes work on crossed scheme projects, so it is possible that on rare occasions the junior administrator might rely on his spouse for advice and direction. However, no spouse is responsible for performance targets, reviews or assessments of their partner.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable Minister say what the formal policy is in regard to married, or otherwise, couples working within the same area?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: I believe I just gave that information, but I will repeat it. Employees sometimes work on crossed scheme projects, so it is possible that on rare occasions the junior administrator might rely on his spouse for advice and direction. However, no spouse is responsible for performance targets, reviews or assessments of their partner. That is the general policy within the computer services department.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I think I need to rephrase the question. I was talking about the hiring policy in regard to married couples, not after they get into a department, but before. What is the policy in regard to hiring couples within the same department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: My advice is that when interviews are being done that the Computer Services Department attempts to get the best qualified people available. It is on this basis that recruitment is made, not merely if individuals are married but to try to get the best qualified person.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Can the Honourable Minister say if during the interviews and hiring process the husband and wife teams were hired together? Or was it noticed afterwards that hiring the spouse of someone already hired was going along the path of getting the best people for the Department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: My understanding is that no, these individuals were not hired together initially.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I appreciate the answers given to my two previous questions; however, I still am not clear on what the policy is in regard to hiring spouses. There is an obvious conflict and the public needs to know the policy in regard to hiring spouses in the same department.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: My advice on this, as I said earlier, is that the policy for hiring, generally, is that the department attempts to find the best individual available for the job, be they single or married individuals. I think I previously mentioned that none of these couples were hired together, they were hired separately.

Since this is a matter for Personnel, I would ask the First Official Member to perhaps answer this matter in writing. I believe I have given as full an explanation on this as is available at present.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: While we await an answer from the Honourable First Official Member, I know the Minister just recently took over responsibility for that department, but I wonder if he can state whether it is good policy or practice to employ such a high percentage of spouses or mates in a department. I think there were some 40 or 50 members in that section, somewhere around 10 percent. That seems like a high percentage of mates in that department. Is that acceptable, or in their opinion good practice?

The Speaker: I believe that is outside ... and you are asking for an opinion. If the Honourable Member wishes to answer, he may.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: I was going to suggest that it would be expecting me to express an opinion as to whether it is a good policy or not. However, as I said earlier, our main concern is to equip the department with the very best talents available. This has been the policy of the Department, including the married couples in question.

The Speaker: Moving on to question 49, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 49

No. 49: Mr. Rolston M. Anglin asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Health and Information Technology how many Caymanians have been sent to obtain a tertiary education and returned to the Computer Services Department and what was the length of time each spent in the Department.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Before I answer this, I would like to say on the last question that I have been subsequently informed that three of those four couples were employed on a temporary basis by the Director of Computer Services himself, and that this did not go through the Personnel Department. It was done departmentally. So the question that I suggested would be submitted to the Honourable First Official Member would no longer be relevant.

I have no objection to the Member asking a question on that—

The Speaker: We are now dealing with question 49, please answer it.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: In answer to question 49, Computer Services was a section from the early 1980s and only a department as of 1 January 1998.

However, to the best of our knowledge, there were, over this timeframe, a total of 16 Caymanians sent by Government and one assisted by Government in the last year of college to obtain a tertiary education who returned to Computer Services. The length of time each spent in Computer Services up to 15 March 2001 is as follows:

| Staff Member | Length of time spent in Department                                      |
|---------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| A                   | 2 months (now in private sector)                                               |
| B                   | 1 year 6 months (overseas)                                                     |
| C                   | 1 year 7 months (to another gov. agency)                                       |
| D                   | 2 years 4 months (to another gov. agency)                                      |
| E                   | 2 years 11 months (still w/dept.)                                              |
| F                   | 2 years and 11 months (still w/dept)                                           |
| G                   | 2 years and 11 months (private sector)                                         |
| H                   | 3 years and 4 months (still w/dept)                                            |
| I                   | 3 years and 7 months (still w/dept)                                            |
| J                   | 6 years 3 months (still w/dept)                                                |
| K                   | 11 years 8 months (includes 2 years and 6 months study leave—still w/dept)     |
| L                   | 9 years 3 months (to another gov. agency)                                      |
| M                   | 12 years 1 month (includes 1 year 11 months study leave—still w/dept)          |
| N                   | 12 years 4 months (includes 1 year and 9 months study leave—to private sector) |
| O                   | 10 years 9 months (last year only assisted—still w/dept)                       |
| P                   | 13 years 9 months (includes 1 year and 11 months study leave—still w/dept)     |
| Q                   | 16 years 4 months (includes 2 years and 1 month study leave—still w/dept)      |

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: My question is, what was the level of the 11 Caymanians who left the department within the last three years?

The Speaker: Would you repeat that? I am not following you.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: The intention was to obtain what level the employees were at when they decided to leave the department. When I asked the question earlier the Minister indicated the answer was forthcoming.

The Speaker: My ruling was that we were on question 49, so that question fell away. Are there any further supplementaries?

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: For that particular question the Minister indicated that the answer was forthcoming in his answer to question 49.

The Speaker: We shall not discuss that further. I refer you to the Hansard. It was said that the Honourable First Official Member would not be called to answer as it was appointed directly by the Director.

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: With all due respect, Mr. Speaker, he is referring to a different question. You may want to take a pause and see. To the best of my knowledge I am sure the Minister will be able to refer to this . . . he was referring to a different subject altogether.

The Speaker: We shall continue with question 49. I ruled on that and I am not going back. There is no further discussion on that particular question. If there are no further supplementaries we shall conclude Question Time.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Honourable Minister advise the Members of this House if those Members of staff who transferred to other government agencies were transferred as support officers within the computer realm? Are they performing computer services for those other departments?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: My understanding is that these individuals are still involved in the IT field.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Honourable Minister say at what level the members of staff were when they left for the private sector?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: This information is not readily available, but I would be pleased to have it provided to the Member in writing.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Mr. Speaker, the Minister provided details as to where each of these people currently are—either with the Department or transferred, or gone on to the private sector—in his answer. Can the Honourable Minister say of the people who went on to the private sector how many left for career advancement such as a promotion outside in the private sector?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: It is my understanding that in all cases those individuals leaving the Computer Services Department left for higher remuneration. In one particular case that I can recall, one individual was being paid I think $30,000 per year in the Computer Services Department. He left for the private sector on an offer of $50,000 per year to perform the same services, an increase of 66 percent. So, you can see that we have an uphill battle in regard to keeping some of our very skilled individuals at that salary level when they are being offered such high salaries from the private sector.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Honourable Minister say indicate what portion of these employees who received tertiary education were sponsored by the Education Council and carrying out a government bond?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Although this information is not in the answer, I had read it in when I answered the question. A total of 16 Caymanians sent by Government on scholarships, one was assisted in the last year of college.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: In a previous answer the Minister mentioned certain ones leaving for career advancement. Looking at the information we received a few days ago about the various posts available in that section, can the Honourable Minister say whether it was investigated to see if there was any possibility for those individuals to obtain career advancement within the computer section? Since Government assisted them with their tertiary education at what I would consider to be a significant expense.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: My advice is that most of these individuals, who would normally have been upgraded, left before the period they could have received such promotion. They were offered positions in the private sector and left before that upgrading could have been done.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: From the information provided, it would appear that the Government Computer Services Department and the Education Council have been utilised as a training mechanism for the Private Sector.

Has the Minister reviewed the salary scales of the computer services, or is a process in place to ensure that not only the bond from the Education Council is used as a method of recruiting, but that the salary itself and other benefits would be the attracting feature?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: I believe, if I understand the Member correctly, he is asking what can be done to prevent Caymanians from leaving. The answer would be to increase funds for training within the Department, but mainly to increase the remuneration as the private sector offers a much higher remuneration for these same individuals than government is able to pay.

I should also say that this is not peculiar to the Computer Services Department. This is what obtains in relation to a number of professionals coming back with qualifications; they are attracted to the private sector for the same reason.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Minister confirm that the Computer Services Department was subject to the recent re-grading exercise that undertook to compare the government salary scale with that offered in the private sector?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: I believe the answer is that the re-grading applied generally to the Civil Service. Even at that, the private sector is in a position to offer significantly higher remuneration than the Civil Service. I do not really feel that the Civil Service will ever be in a position to offer the same level of remuneration as the private sector.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay: two additional supplementaries.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: The Minister mentioned a person getting some 66 percent increase in salary, which is a significant increase. However, one would think that other people in the department would be offered significant increases as well. Can the Honourable Minister say then why it is that despite the money being out there, there still seems to be quite a few staff members who have remained?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: This is again asking me to express an opinion. My opinion would be that it is through loyalty why many of the staff remain in many of the Government departments, especially the professionally qualified staff. When in fact in the private sector they could obtain significantly more than they receive in the government service.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: At the risk of going outside the ambit of this question, it appears that it is an expensive undertaking to educate and train computer technicians to only lose them. Have the Minister and the Department reviewed the possibility of outsourcing the computer services?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: I believe that the answer to that is that if the private sector is offering significantly more than the Government department, it would hardly be less expensive to outsource to the private sector. It would not, in our opinion, be less costly to outsource most of these positions. There are areas where this may be possible, but generally, this would not be advisable.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today.

Moving on to Government Business, Motions, in accordance with Standing Order 86, I would ask for a motion to suspend Standing Order 24(5) in order that this Motion may be brought forward without the customary five days' notice.

The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 24(5)

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I move the suspension of Standing Order 24(5) to allow the Government Motion to be taken without due notice.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that Standing Order 24(5) be suspended to allow the Government Motion to be taken without due notice. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 24(5) SUSPENDED TO ALLOW THE GOVERNMENT MOTION TO BE TAKEN WITHOUT DUE NOTICE.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 3/01 Advancement Expenditure prior to the Appropriation Bill 2001.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 3/01

ADVANCEMENT EXPENDITURE PRIOR TO THE APPROPRIATION BILL, 2001

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move Government Motion No. 3/01 Advancement Expenditure prior to the Appropriation Bill, 2001, which reads:

"WHEREAS Government Motion No. 3 (of 2000) advanced to the Government the sum of $69,521,439 and Motion No. 4 (of 2001) advanced a further sum of $18,780,993 to meet needs incurred by the Government prior to the passing of the Appropriation Law;

"AND WHEREAS a further sum of $62,177,839 is required to continue the operation of Government:

"BE IT RESOLVED that this Honourable House, acting in accordance with the provisions of section 8(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision), in advance of an Appropriation Law, authorises further expenditure of CI$62,177,839 for the services of the Government in respect of the 2001 financial year, the sum to be charged on revenue in accordance with the Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision) and to be used for the purposes detailed in the following schedule.”

The amount of CI$62,177,839 is broken down as follows:

| 2001 RECURRENT EXPENDITURE ADVANCE                                   |                                         |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------|
| EXPENDITURE HEADS                                                    | (2nd Quarter release) |
| H.E. THE GOVERNOR                                                    |                                         |
| H.E. The Governor                                                           | $ 138,962                              |
| C.I. Audit Office                                                           | 158,263                                 |
| Judicial                                                                    | 914,501                                 |
| PORTFOLIO OF INTERNAL &amp; EXTERNAL AFFAIRS                         |                                         |
| Portfolio of Internal & External Affairs                                    | 1,002,062                               |
| Immigration Department                                                      | 1,102,859                               |
| Police                                                                      | 3,454,743                               |
| Prison                                                                      | 1,630,439                               |
| Personnel                                                                   | 643,311                                 |
| Legislative                                                                 | 530,073                                 |
| Broadcasting                                                                | 219,481                                 |
| Cayman Brac & Little Cayman                                                 | 1,116,915                               |
| PORTFOLIO OF LEGAL AFFAIRS                                           |                                         |
| Portfolio of Legal Affairs                                                  | 735,821                                 |
| PORTFOLIO OF FINANCE &amp; ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT                      |                                         |
| Portfolio of Finance & Economic Development                                 | 5,945,456                               |
| Customs                                                                     | 1,140,716                               |
| General Registry and Shipping                                               | 533,764                                 |
| Statistics Office                                                           | 200,647                                 |
| Treasury                                                                    | 349,537                                 |
| MINISTRY OF COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT, WOMEN AFFAIRS, YOUTH &amp; SPORTS |                                         |
| Ministry of Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth & Sports            | 3,236,152                               |
| Youth and Sports                                                            | 343,900                                 |
| Social Services                                                             | 3,031,277                               |
| MINISTRY OF TOURISM, ENVIRONMENT &amp; TRANSPORT                     |                                         |
| Ministry of Tourism, Environment & Transport                                | 971,345                                 |
| Fire                                                                        | 1,499,589                               |
| Tourism Department                                                          | 4,938,836                               |
| Environment                                                                 | 291,457                                 |
| MINISTRY OF HEALTH AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY                        |                                         |
| Ministry of Health and Information Technology                               | 481,062                                 |
| Health Services                                                             | 9,776,292                               |
| Substance Abuse Services                                                    | 190,723                                 |
| Computer Services                                                           | 828,677                                 |
| MINISTRY OF PLANNING COMMUNICATIONS AND WORKS                        |                                         |
| Ministry of Planning Communications and Works                               | 311,177                                 |
| Public Works Department                                                     | 2,312,730                               |
| Vehicle & Equipment Services                                                | 473,689                                 |
| Agriculture                                                                 | 708,686                                 |
| Environmental Health                                                        | 1,365,494                               |
| Mosquito Research and Control Unit                                          | 586,764                                 |
| Lands & Survey                                                              | 1,513,385                               |
| Postal                                                                      | 686,733                                 |
| Planning                                                                    | 451,872                                 |
| MINISTRY OF EDUCATION, HUMAN RESOURCES AND CULTURE                   |                                         |
| Education, Human Resources and Culture                                      | 2,174,853                               |
| Human Resources                                                             | 122,853                                 |
| Education                                                                   | 6,062,743                               |
| Total Recurrent Expenditure Advance                                         | $62,177,839                            |

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 3/01 has been duly moved. Do you wish to speak to it?

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As I mentioned earlier, Government Motion No. 3/2000 passed by this Honourable House on 15 November 2000, provided authorisation for expenditure to be incurred in respect of the first quarter of the financial year 2001 in advance of the Appropriation Law.

The authority, as provided by the Motion, will expire as at 31 of this Month. Therefore, as a Legislative Assembly is still in the process of debating the Appropriation Bill in front of this Honourable House, it is necessary to seek approval through this Motion for the continuation of expenditure on behalf of Government and to defray Government's ongoing operational costs. Hence, this Motion is being brought for consideration at this time.

As Members are aware, the sum of $62,177,839 will be subsumed in the Appropriation Bill when that Bill is referred to Finance Committee. As you will recall, in the past year following a general election when the Appropriation Bill is being debated, normally this would be carried over into the next year in question, or the year in which the Budget approval is being sought.

The way this would be addressed is by way of advances or contingency warrants under section 22(1)(b) of the Public Finance and Audit Law. I should mention that that provision could have been used in this instance, but as you and Honourable Members will note, the Government has taken a decision that it will not seek to use contingency warrants unless occasions for such use are definitely urgent and unavoidable.

Section 22(1)(b) reads: “Subject to subsections (2) to (4), where the Financial Secretary is satisfied that due to exceptional circumstances an urgent need has arisen for payment – (b) which cannot be deferred without detriment to the public interest, he may, by contingencies warrant under his hand, authorise the Accountant General to pay from public moneys an advance of moneys to meet that need.”

This means that the Financial Secretary could upon the expiration of this Motion give approval by way of such contingency warrants for payment to be made until the Appropriation Bill was dealt with through the process of Finance Committee and following which it would be considered by this Honourable House and ratified. However, the route of seeking further approval allowed for under section 8(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law by way of a resolution which is now being sought for under Government Motion—

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, Sir.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Under Standing Order 37(1) is it correct for a Member to be anticipating a proposed amendment in the substantive debate?

The Speaker: I did not understand that in his presentation, but we do not anticipate legislation.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I am aware that the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has an amending motion to this Government Motion now under consideration. I am mindful of that amending Motion. If the Member will consider carefully what I am doing; I am outlining an alternative procedure that could have been used other than bringing this further Motion to this Honourable House for approval, since we will be going into Finance Committee on the Budget.

I thought it would be useful for the benefit of this House to understand why the Government was now seeking to obtain further approval by way of this Motion rather than attempting to use other means as provided for under the Public Finance and Audit Law.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Floor is open for debate.

The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: I wonder if this would be an appropriate time for me to move my amendment?

The Speaker: A motion may be amended at any time. Please continue. I have also waived the two days' notice required for this amendment.

AMENDMENT TO GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 3/01

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you.

I rise to bring a proposed amendment to Government Motion No. 3/2001, which reads as follows:

"In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 25(1), (2) and (3), I, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, give notice of amendment to Government Motion No. 3/01 by - By adding at the end of the resolve the following words: 'and, notwithstanding section 8(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision), that the following schedule be referred forthwith to the Standing Finance Committee for its consideration.'"

The Speaker: Is there a Secunder?

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: I beg to second this Motion.

The Speaker: An amendment to Government Motion No. 3/01 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Mover wish to speak to it?

The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: I believe I am correct in saying that this request set out in Government Motion No. 3/01 is the third such request for advance expenditure. Out of an abundance of caution let me say from the outset that I am not against authorisation of the expenditure for the second quarter, but I feel justified in saying that I do not approve of the method being used at this stage. I will attempt to say why in my contribution.

I believe that I can safely support it in light of the fact that we only have one day and one half before the commencement of the second quarter. However, this method now proposed by the new Government to bring in the interest of open and good government and the infamous word "transparency" is this sum of $62+ million is being merely in my view rubber-stamped by this particular method; this will represent approximately one-half of the 2001 budget.

It is also my respectful view that this should not be the order of the day. This should only be used in very rare circumstances. It also represents a backdoor resurrection of Government Motion 3/90, which we all vividly remember, whereby it allowed the three Official Members to be placed in the untenable position of voting on the financial expenditure of this country.

When one takes into consideration that by virtue of our Constitution, the only Members in Parliament who have a direct responsibility, and indeed accountability to the electorate—who put us here to look after the public finances of the country—the new Government will have to decide whether or not they wish to use this method. Or if they wish to have the present situation of Official Members not being in a position to vote on such a substantial amount—50 percent of the 2001 Budget!

It is my view that if the new Government is of the view that this should happen, then bring the legislation to allow those Official Members to vote in Finance Committee. The irony this creates is that here we have the three Official Members voting on 50 percent of the Budget and I would assume that we would conclude the proceedings before we find ourselves with a fourth request for the third quarter. That would mean, in my view, that the three Official Members would then be barred under the present statutory arrangement from voting on the remainder of the Budget. That is, we all know that as the current position stands, they are not members of Finance Committee, save for the Financial Secretary who sits as the able chairman of that committee.

I therefore submit that they would be barred because of not having the requisite locus standi and also because of the other justification of two, perhaps three of them being controlling officers in their own right now being asked to vote for 50 percent of the budget—yet barred from the other 50 percent. This cannot be a precedent any government would wish to set.

I also submit, based on the various arguments that I and other members of the Cayman Islands have been exposed to particularly since the election in November, that it is the past government this, and the past government that . . . and I can appreciate that any new government has that as one of its justifications. I also appreciate that there is no real new birth without its pain. May I respectfully submit that using this method is taking a quantum leap from the natural birthing process to that of a caesarean section, hoping to avoid the economic birthing pains here in this country.

I should also wish to remind Members of a statement (which I can go on record as saying was a good statement) which was recorded on Thursday 7 December [2000] in the Caymanian Compass, credited to the Leader of Government Business. He said, and I quote, “... that he wanted to hold Finance Committee at least once a quarter on a regular basis so that it did not seem like expenditure for the country was simply being rubberstamped.”

I agree wholeheartedly! With this amendment, I am giving him the opportunity to keep that promise in that he has another one and a half days to keep it! I believe the figures as presented by the Honourable Third Official Member do present an aggregate amount. The perhaps irrefutable presumption would be that in order to arrive at that aggregate sum, surely the request and justification as well as the smaller amounts making up the aggregate sum must be readily available within his finance department, so it should not create an undue hardship to call Finance Committee.

You see, Mr. Speaker, when we bring it in such a fashion, we involve the Official Members in voting in the expenditure of this country without the necessary legislation to do it as an order of the day, would amount to three times. However, it also puts the rest of us who have been duly elected by the voters in this country in a position where we cannot ask questions. In particular where my colleague from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I do not have a direct Executive Council Member forming a member of Finance Committee. We cannot actually break it down to see what is going on. When one looks at the request, there is no request for capital expenditure. We are here having to take the word that there is sufficient capital expenditure for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to keep our men employed.

We, unlike most situations in Grand Cayman at PWD, depend upon our capital works because our men are paid from the wage salary. It would be reassuring to know that the Government is satisfied that there is sufficient capital already approved and existing to assist the situation in the Brac.

In requesting Finance Committee, I take full cognisance that time is of the essence. I should say for clarity that in calling for a meeting of Finance Committee I am not doing so to delay or put a hurdle but to ensure that when and necessary we will operate in a transparent government.

I know there will be criticism about the last government. Mr. Speaker, I was elected back in November with a mandate from my people to represent them and whether or not they cry “past government” until Jesus returns, I will not renege on that responsibility. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Floor is open for debate on the amendment to Government Motion No. 3/01.

The Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I never thought that I would hear a Member who just lost office get up and make that kind of plea in this Honourable House.

Listening to her, it seems she is touting financial prudence and what she calls the “right way” to do things. She says we are rubber-stamping; she has taken objection to the Official Members. We are not creating anything new.

POINT OF ORDER

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, Sir.

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: It is my respectful view that the Honourable Minister is misleading the House in saying that I objected to the Official Members. In fact, what I said was that the Government must make up its mind as to whether or not the Official Members should be voting on the expenditure of this country or if they should become members of Finance Committee. There is a difference.

The Speaker: That is an explanation, not a point of order.

Please continue, Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: You know, even though she just left office, she forgets that she is not the Government. Based on her explanation, I do not think I need to say any more, but she was saying, that we should not be using the Official Members. Mr. Speaker, from where I sit, we are not creating anything new. This has been done before. The Government has to continue while we are here debating and carrying on the work.

Now what they could do is shorten debate, stop politicking and get to Finance Committee and then we would not have to go this route. However, that is not their objective. What that Member seems to forget is that it is their management and she is part and parcel of the problem that we face. It was because of their management why this country is facing the financial position it is facing.

"Management" is not the right word. The right word for them is "mismanagement." While we are coming to the world saying this is what we need to spend to carry on the Government until the Budget is passed—and she knows that—what she did when she was in office with her partners at the time, was to use contingency warrants. Who did they use at that time to get those contingency warrants but the same three Official Members she is complaining about today—the First Official Member, the Second Official Member and the Third Official Member!

Now, what I would like to find out from them is whether or not they knew what those contingency warrants were for and whether or not they agreed. That is perhaps what they could tell this Honourable House. She should be ashamed of herself coming here and claiming financial prudence when they left such a mess. They used the same Members that they are complaining about, but to top it off, what I find about the undemocratic fashion of work of the Government of that time, especially with the two who are not here—

The Speaker: I would appreciate it if you would say that it is "your belief" that it was an undemocratic process.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I will say that, but from all indications ... I was a Member of the House. They closed the House down, knowing full well that they intended to have the kind of expenditure spending spree. Not one single elected Member of the House at that time knew anything about the expenditure; we just saw pouring and pouring and every one of them coming with their candidates, telling the world 'this is what we are doing for you.'

This is not anything new. I would urge Members to give the Government a chance. You are going to have a chance to deal with it in any event in Finance Committee. I see no reason, as far as I am concerned, to support that request.

I do not think they are being genuine, Mr. Speaker and you cautioned me earlier to say "I believe this or that." I do not believe they are being genuine—they are up to something. They are hot under the collar about something else and they are using that as a stepping stone to get up there and talk financial prudence when they were the ones who left the mess for us to clean up.

The Speaker: The Floor is open for debate; does any other Member wish to speak?

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Thank you.

I rise to endorse the comments articulated by my colleague from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

I have to say at the onset that I am disappointed that such an innocent and open Motion, so conducive to the political directorate will for openness and transparency, has been met with screaming and resistance from the Government spokesperson on this amendment.

I really hoped that we could have removed politics from this, but the Minister responsible for Tourism made a comment that "they" (referring to the Movers of this Motion, I assume) were part of the problem. I have to make this correction: I was not a part of the past Government—but he certainly was!

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Oh yeah? As a Backbencher!

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: I agree, as a Backbencher for one part of the term, but certainly a Minister for the other part.

The amendment simply requests that the approval of an advance of $62 million—that would bring the total amount approved on advance appropriation to 50.17 percent of the recurrent revenue of this country. This Motion simply puts it in Finance Committee. It does not in any way seek to delay the approval.

We have 35.5 hours left before the end of this quarter. As we are all well-paid representatives, I am here to give the commitment on my behalf and that of my colleague, that we are prepared to spend every minute of that 35.5 hours in hammering through this in Finance Committee to ensure that the good people that work in our civil service and the country relying on the services provided by Government are not delayed.

We are simply asking for an opportunity to sit in Finance Committee where we are not approving aggregates, we are given an opportunity to exercise the reason we are all here—to carry out and to care for the spending of the people's money. This would allow us to examine each figure to ensure these aggregates are in the interest of the country. This can only be achieved through Finance Committee.

The Minister of Tourism got up and said this was a problem brought about by the last Government. However, we are not talking about the last Government; we are talking about spending in the year 2001 that is related to expenditure for 2001. We are simply asking that we put politics aside and do what is right for this country and allow us to go into Finance Committee and examine these figures in depth.

I point out that this $62 million would bring the total advance appropriation up to $156.478 million. If we assume that that 50 percent would also be expended over the remainder of the year, it would mean that we are approving expenditure greater than the recurrent revenue of the country. We are assuming that a loan bill will be passed to pay for the balance. That loan bill has not been brought to this House and that money is not available. So, we are being asked to approve a sum that would put this country's expenditure above the recurrent revenue without having a loan bill before us and approved to ensure there is money to pay.

The people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman who elected the First and Second Elected Members for those Islands did not elect us to sit and warm our seats, and rubberstamp figures presented by Government. They elected us to represent their interests and to scrutinise expenditure of this country. That can only be achieved when Government Motion 3/01, requesting $62,177,839 is put to Finance Committee that we can properly examine it.

Mr. Speaker, the Opposition to this amendment will argue that they do not want to delay funds going to the Civil Service. They will make the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and me out as making an attempt to delay these payments. I remind the Members of Executive Council that we are in this position because the Budget of this country has come to this Honourable House two weeks late. If their Budget had come in time, it would be reasonable to expect that we would have been through the debate process and possibly have approved it.

The Minister for Tourism suggested that what we should do is reduce the length of time of our debates. I hope that advice is not only limited to the Members of the Opposition, but also to his fellow team players, especially the Second Elected Member of his district and that he himself will also respect that as he is currently on the Floor debating the Motion.

I want to reiterate my colleague's view: We are not suggesting in any way that these funds not be approved; we are simply asking to exercise financial prudence in allowing this Honourable House to go into Finance Committee so that we can examine these figures.

I hope that this House will find it acceptable to make a small amendment to the substantial Motion. I give this amendment my support, and I give the country my undertaking to always represent their views and interests to ensure that the monies of this country are spent in a prudent manner. The only way we can do that is if we know exactly what we are going to be spending. We cannot write an open cheque without knowing the details as to where this money will be spent and exactly how it will be spent.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As indicated by the Government through the Honourable Minister of Tourism, the Government is not able to support this amendment to Government Motion No. 3/01. The Government, however, is cognisant of the views expressed by the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman____

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for a moment? Would you address that this is the amendment to Government Motion 03/01.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I am speaking to the amendment, Mr. Speaker.

The Government is cognisant of the views expressed by the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. However, what needs to be borne in mind is that the procedure being followed, which allowed this Motion to be brought under section 8(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law, is the appropriate procedure in order to address this issue.

The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman pointed out that by approving this Motion, Government will have in place the authorisation to spend what amounts to one-half of the year's budget. That position has also been supported by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Mr. Speaker, that would be a correct position. However, it is anticipated that given the expediency with which the Appropriation Bill is now being debated, together with the Throne Speech, that definitely the Appropriation Bill should be approved before the 30 June this year.

In addition, what needs to be borne in mind (and this is a practical situation we have to address), is that the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said that it would not pose a problem for the Portfolio of Finance to provide the details in support for the items set out in the schedule of Government Motion No. 3/01. That is correct.

However, if we were to go into Finance Committee on is the way it is now being suggested, we could not take a fraction of the items, or what relates to the Budget and debate that. It would be the entire Budget—every item in the Budget would be subject to that detailed level of scrutiny. If this is going to take place, then having to come back into this Honourable House for debate on the Appropriation Bill to continue, would mean that this matter would be debated twice.

If this is going to be debated twice, which will mean having to go through every item in the Budget itself; this would create an inordinate delay in the process. I think that would anticipate the situation as outlined by the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, that there would be a likely need for a further motion to be brought to this House seeking approval. Obviously, under those circumstances, it is unlikely that the debate on the Appropriation Bill would be concluded prior to 30 June.

I also noted the concerns expressed by those two Honourable Members in terms of prudence of fiscal management. This is a situation being underscored by this Government and so far, as we have heard from the comments of Honourable Members... I know we are dealing with the amendment to the Motion, but from views expressed by Members that have spoken on the Appropriation Bill so far, everyone has endorsed the position of prudence in fiscal management.

I do understand the concerns that have been expressed by the two Honourable Members, but given the situation as now presented to us, by having this amendment in front of us and what needs to happen... I would recommend to Honourable Members that we go ahead and accept the Government Motion as presented. If it is a question of getting into Finance Committee on time in order to do a detailed examination of the items set out in the Budget document, the process of approving this Motion, continuing with debate on the Appropriation Bill will allow for that detailed review being sought by the First and Second Elected Members for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to be obtained.

When we get into Finance Committee we will be looking at all of the subheads and the items comprising the subheads, and also commenting once more on the policy decisions that have been enumerated by the Government in order to support the budget as presented to this Honourable House.

What we have in front of us is not seeking to usurp or distort the process. I will not comment in terms of the role of the Official Members because I do not think it would be appropriate for me to offer a comment in that regard. I am talking about the process itself in that if we do not have in place the necessary approval on Monday... and I have taken note that the two Honourable Members said they are not objecting to the necessary approval to allow for ongoing expenditure or for the provision of Government services. If the process is not complete in terms of what we are now seeking to achieve through this Motion, it will mean having to use the provision of section 22(1)(b). This would not be consistent with the thinking as expressed by the two Honourable Members for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Therefore, the Government is not in a position to—

(Pause)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, please allow me to pause for just a second.

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member, if necessary we can take the luncheon break. Could we come back at 2 pm instead? We shall suspend proceedings until 2 pm.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.35 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.18 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Debate continues on the amendment to Government Motion No. 3/01. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development, continuing his debate.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, when we took the luncheon break, I was about to summarise my thoughts on the amending Motion. Just to recap, if the amendment being proposed is accepted it would be a double exercise in terms of Finance Committee because the only section of the Budget that would not have to be gone into in detail would be the capital acquisitions and capital because these are two items that are excluded from the Motion in front of us.

Also, the substantive Motion to which the amendment refers is competently brought under section 8(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law because the Law allows for a motion to be brought. An observation I should make on the amendment is that when we look at Standing Order 63(1) and (3), and if you will just permit me, I will read it: “63. (1) Any Bill containing the estimated financial requirements for expenditure on all the services of the Government for the current or succeeding financial year shall be known as an Appropriation Bill. Estimates containing the details of those financial requirements shall be presented in accordance with Standing Order 18 (Presentation of Papers), immediately before the presentation and first reading of the Bill.”

Then 63 (3) continues “(3) On presentation to the House, the estimates shall stand referred to the Finance Committee, and on being read a second time the Appropriation Bill shall stand committed to that committee.”

So from the time the estimates have been Tabled, they stand referred, as such, to Finance Committee. Therefore, what is now being sought by way of this amendment is an interim arrangement, if it is looked at as such, because section 8(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law states “The Legislative Assembly may in advance of an Appropriation Law by resolution, authorise expenditure for the services of the Government in respect of the financial year to be charged on revenue in accordance with this law and subject to such limitation and conditions as may be specified in the resolution.”

Therefore, the substantive Motion to which the amendment refers is an interim arrangement, which will allow for the ongoing expenses of Government to be met while the Appropriation Bill is being debated and also while the accompanying estimates stand referred to Finance Committee.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment? Does any other Member wish to speak? Going, going, does any other Member wish to speak? If not, does the Mover wish to reply?

The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: Just briefly to express my gratitude for the professional way in which the Honourable Third Official Member responded – I take it on behalf of the Government. I also wish to say that I was in no way surprised with his gentlemanly way, as well as I was in no way surprised by the Minister of Tourism and his continued demeanour in this House.

Thank you.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on the amendment to Government Motion No. 3/01. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES and NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly: May we have a division please?

The Speaker: Certainly. Clerk, will you call a division please?

The Clerk:

DIVISION 3/01

Ayes: 4

Dr. Frank S. McField
Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
Mrs. J. O'Connor-Connolly
Mr. Lyndon L. Martin

Noes: 9

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts
Hon. Roy Bodden
Hon. Edna M. Moyle
Hon. Linford A. Pierson
Mr. Rolston Anglin
Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks
Mr. Cline A. Glidden Jr.
Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin
Mr. V. Arden McLean

Abstentions: 3

Hon. James M. Ryan
Hon. David F. Ballantyne
Hon. George A. McCarthy

Absent: 2

Hon. W. McKeever Bush
Mr. Anthony Eden:

The Speaker: The results of the Division are 4 Ayes, 9 Noes, 3 Abstentions and 2 Absent. The amendment to the Motion has failed.

AMENDMENT TO GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 3/01 NEGATED BY MAJORITY.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 3/01

(Debate continuing)

The Speaker: Debate continues on Government Motion No. 3/01 Advanced Expenditure prior to the Appropriation Bill 2001. The Floor is open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment? (Pause) If not, does the Mover wish to reply?

The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, just to thank Honourable Members. The reason the Motion has been brought has already been explained, so I do not think it would achieve much to attempt to add any further details. Only to mention as stated earlier, that this, as the preceding two Motions that formed part of the Budget for 2001, everything will be subsumed within the 2001 Budget and the estimates will be gone into in detail when we go into Finance Committee.

Thank you.

The Speaker: I shall put the question on Government Motion No. 3/01. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES and NOES and one audible Abstention.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, can we have a division?

The Speaker: Certainly, Madam Clerk please call a division.

The Clerk:

DIVISION 4/01

Ayes: 10

Hon. D. Kurt Tibbetts
Hon. W. McKeever Bush
Hon. Roy Bodden
Hon. Edna M. Moyle
Hon. Linford A. Pierson
Mr. Rolston M. Anglin
Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks
Mr. Cline A. Glidden Jr.
Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin
Mr. V. Arden McLean

Noes: 1

Dr. Frank S. McField

Abstentions: 6

Hon. James M. Ryan
Hon. David F. Ballantyne
Hon. George A. McCarthy

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
Mrs. Julianna Y. O'Connor-Connolly
Mr. Lyndon L. Martin

Absent: 1
Mr. Anthony S. Eden

The Speaker: The result of the Division: 10 Ayes, 1 No, 6 Abstentions, 1 Absent.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 3/01 PASSED BY MAJORITY.

The Speaker: Bills, Second Reading. The Appropriation Bill, 2001.

Continuation of Debate on the Throne Speech, delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday 9 March 2001, together with the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member on Wednesday 21 March 2001. The Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport, continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION BILL, 2001

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR ON FRIDAY 9 MARCH 2001

TOGETHER WITH

THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON WEDNESDAY 21 MARCH 2001

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you.

Mr. Speaker, before I begin my contribution I would like to say that in case there is anyone wondering why the Official Members abstained, it was because it was a finance matter. We asked for that abstention.

[Inaudible interjections]

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I do not know why the Backbench Members who abstained did so; perhaps those who were on the Government think they are Official Members now!

[Laughter]

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: When the House adjourned yesterday, I was dealing with tourism. I said that the two tourism associations had finally come together and instead of the Cayman Islands Hotel & Condo Association and the Cayman Tourism Association, we now have the Cayman Islands Tourism Association. I am very pleased that we have reached that point in time.

Tourism, as we all know, is very important to the economy of the country. I am pleased that we are offering a new way forward: 1) a review of the Department, its effectiveness and efficiency; and 2) a review to see how effective tourism is, where we need to trim, and where we need to add on.

E-business and Information Technology development: Further support to this market was evidenced with the development of a series of January special banner advertisements by our web marketing team. The response from the consumer was very positive as web traffic increased by 40 percent over last year and the number of room nights booked on line, as reported by our industry partners, has been growing steadily.

As a result, we are presently beginning development of a permanent 'vacation specials' designated area on our websites. We are committed to expanding our current e-business programme to facilitate online booking services. This will provide consumers with the convenience of purchasing the Cayman Islands tourism product through the Internet.

The new programme under development by the Department of Tourism (DOT) aims to achieve a level of mass distribution of the Cayman Islands tourism product throughout many of the major travel booking sites, such as travelocity.com; and expedia.com. Additionally, it will offer booking capability to the websites of the DOT and local industry members.

Change in office accommodation for the DOT national sales office in Miami: This move is being taken to reduce operational costs while securing new premises with an address reflecting the image and quality of the Cayman Islands. This new accommodation will reflect the current need of a national sales office, with all strategic development work for this market originating from the corporate office in Grand Cayman.

The UK and Europe: Activities in this market over the past quarter have been focused on increasing airlift opportunities out of Europe to Grand Cayman. Both our German and French offices see good potential in twin centre New York/Grand Cayman vacation packages. Currently, both offices are pursuing discussions with Continental and Delta which both fly out of New York and Newark, New Jersey.

Our London office is also in discussion with Virgin/Atlantic, looking at joint campaigns targeting the frequent flyer members with Cayman Islands special offers. This initiative is in line with the current interline agreement that Cayman Airways has with Virgin. As in the US market, the trend in the closure of retail travel agencies continues apace. Reasons cited are erosion of traditional sales through travel agencies going to the Internet and call centre operations.

In Canada, charter programmes from Canada to Grand Cayman commenced in November with the return of Signature Vacations and World of Vacations. The weekly service provided a designated carrier to Grand Cayman for the charter programmes. In December, however, unlike the 1999/2000 fall and winter season, the service was only provided weekly, not twice weekly. Christmas and New Year's sales met expectations.

Citing slow sales into January, the tour operators decided to reduce the programme and the air capacity to Grand Cayman. The designated flight would now also stop in Jamaica. Meanwhile, efforts have been in place to also promote the Air Canada vacations programme with its daily flights being offered by Air Canada connecting to Cayman Airways. Co-op advertising for their Air Canada vacation programme has been in place since January.

Overall, for this winter season, the English Caribbean has not done as well as expected, except those islands with their all-inclusive product. Added to this is the reality that by late January, early February, the possibility of a recession has become a large media issue citing especially the lay-offs involving large corporations such as Chrysler and Nortel and its subsequent impact on the stock market.

Cruise Tourism: Efforts within this sector have gone apace. The DOT and I, along with the Merchants Association and the three Backbench Members from West Bay, have held several meetings with representatives from the Florida Caribbean Cruise Association. These meetings focused on all aspects of the cruise visitors experience to these Islands and where improvements need to be made to enhance the quality of that experience.

Great strides have been made in support of the small water sports and transportation businesses with the lines that work in our area. That work is ongoing.

A marketing partnership with Cayman Airways: The Ministry and the DOT recognises the important and interdependent relationship between the suppliers and the local tourism industry and specifically the critical importance of airlift to the three Islands' success. This partnership agreement is a transparent, accountable and result-oriented joint marketing plan between the DOT and Cayman Airways—the airline providing the single largest share of flights to these Islands.

That plan has been developed to address joint marketing efforts in three main areas: sales promotions, public relations, and trade education and awareness programmes. While operational details and actual work plans will be finalised by the staff in each organisation, I am pleased that this formalised planning process is underway. Additionally, a further component of the programme is that efforts will be reviewed during third quarter and the programme components for the upcoming year ahead.

Sister Islands Marketing Planning: Within the wider efforts by the ministry and the DOT, special attention is being paid to the needs and concerns of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman's tourism product. The Department is carrying out these efforts with both district administration personnel and the Sister Islands Tourism Association membership. The focus of the process underway is to evolve a medium-term marketing plan, as well as a longer-term strategic approach to marketing Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Cayman Brac and Little Cayman offer a unique product that has great interest from both American and European visitors. Within the context of this planning process several pieces of work is ongoing. A 2001 Dive Co-op, that is viewed by the Sister Islands Tourism Association as the strongest ever; including in the summer programme "Get Re-energised in the Cayman Islands"; ongoing air exit surveys; support to the nature tourism market of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman with brochure production and media placement; strong publication public relations support through the visiting journalist programme; dedicated Sister Islands press material; and support to special events and inclusion in the calendar of events both locally and overseas.

It is important that we take this approach to support Cayman Brac and Little Cayman so that our potential visitors are aware of the choices they have when they plan to come to the Cayman Islands. In the wider context, these actions demonstrate our commitment towards tourism development for all three Islands.

I was privileged to pay an official visit with the Chief Secretary who is now responsible for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and I must say that I had a good visit in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I was able to meet with the Sister Islands Tourism Association at their marketing meeting, and offered the kind of support I just reported. I am pleased that we have a strong tourism association there—Mr. Moses Kirkconnell, being the president and a very capable leader. As Minister of Tourism, I intend to give Cayman Brac and Little Cayman my full attention. It has tremendous potential for development. The other thing that I found pleasant was that I believe there is now an acceptance that Cayman Brac must be developed by Cayman Brackers. I must say that is somewhat of a change because some years ago talking to business people and residents alike, while they wanted business, they wanted to go at their pace and now they are saying they need to develop.

I believe that Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, but more so Cayman Brac (that is the Island that can take quite a bit of development, because they have what I call a super infrastructure), I believe that we can add up to 1,000 rooms in Cayman Brac and I believe that tourism is the way to go for Cayman Brac.

I would like, in terms of development, to see those three rooms on the bluff; I have hope for a hotel to be built that offers wellness of life through a world class spa and a golf course. I believe the Buccaneer's Inn site also holds much potential for development. For quite some time it has been said that the pond next to the airport should be developed into a proper marina. I believe when that is done, Cayman Brac's development will take off and be supportive of the kind of vision that I have as Minister for the tourism product in Cayman Brac.

I believe that next to that pond, on the sea side (Mr. Speaker, I know that you and the Members from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman understand where I am talking about); I believe that holds good potential for a good hotel as well. Next month when I attend the tourism conference on investment, God willing, I intend to plug hard for the Brac and the projects I outlined there. I think it is timely, important and I believe the Brac is now willing and able to take such development.

I am happy to report that I had some talks with Tiara Beach Hotel. They are doing renovations and I hope that in the very near future (according to them, by May) they will be able to get the blessings from the Department they are awaiting.

Cayman Brac has always been special to me. I take personal pride in the commitments and accomplishments that I started there. While I am Minister and a Member of Executive Council, I am going to ensure that I do all within my power to see that they enjoy the level of development that turns them from a decreasing population to a population that can support the level of local business that they have. Efforts within the area of tourism are progressing rapidly. I am pleased with the turnaround efforts to get things back on track. I look forward to the two major projects that I spoke about being initiated. Going forward with these will only serve to move us forward towards greater clarity and focus on a vision that supports our lasting high quality of life for all residents of the Cayman Islands.

The last area connected to tourism is entertainment. Some people would like to believe that we can continue with tourism as we did in the past. However, as I said earlier, tourism is not a stand-alone, do-it-when-you-please business. When we have offerings for development, we have to grab it because there are far too many countries that are willing and have much to offer. We have to be careful of the competition.

I believe that entertainment in this country is needed and we have to have the right mix. Some people like to come and lie on the beach but they can only take so much of that. They need some clean decent nightlife. That is why I have been talking about turning George Town after 6 pm into what I call "Uptown at Night." Hopefully before the end of this year I can see that programme started. It will be for everybody, not a carnival but I want the shops to be open to do business. We would have some of Cayman culture and other entertaining aspects of the culture. I believe that the area here on Cardinal Avenue and the waterfront can be included. In fact, that is where I intend to launch, what I call, "Uptown at Night."

Some visitors come to do business but they want some R&R as well. The situation we have with the night-clubs: for instance the honeymoon couples who come to enjoy the Islands also need entertainment. At 12.45 am everyone in the night-clubs is turned out on the streets. We all recognise that Saturday nights will not change. I think we need to look at the hours of operation between Monday to Friday to see if we can make some changes in those hours so that everybody does not have to be dumped out at one time on the street. There are several ways to do it: Music could continue until 2 am, but cut off liquor at 1 am. That would give people time to not leave in a mad rush.

I know it is hard to change and we can find many excuses why we should not change. However, I believe that for the viability of businesses and as part of the tourism product, we need to encourage this extension. I believe we need to do something about it because there are many complaints from visitors about how the hours are set through the week. I am going to make that recommendation at some point to government and hopefully get support for it. I believe it needs to be done.

The Fire Service: During the year 2001, the department, subject to funding, intends to pursue several projects. The intention is to continue with an extensive training programme that will focus on key aspects of the Department's fire-fighting and rescue-tactics and techniques. Five officers will attend specialised training in the USA and the UK.

The new substation Bodden Town district project: We also intend to identify and provide a project definition for the placement of a substation in Bodden Town. At present, the response time to Bodden Town central from George Town and/or Frank Sound is approximately 11 to 15 minutes, if lucky. During rush-hour this time can be greatly increased. We consider the elapsed time to be unacceptable and wish to reduce it by 50 percent by constructing over the next three years a strategically located purpose built substation in the district.

We consider this project important for the following factors: (1) Bodden Town district is one of the fastest growing areas, developing rapidly;(2) the districts of George Town and West Bay enjoy a response time between 5 to 7 minutes (that is, the time when the call is received by the fire department and a fire vehicle arrives on the scene); (3) by reducing the response time intervention is quicker and property damage greatly reduced; (4) in a survey conducted during the reinvention of government, know your customer phase, 95 percent of persons contacted in that district (some 500) put as their number one priority for the department a substation. This is very important to protecting the Bodden Town citizens.

The sole existence of the CI Fire Service is to protect life and property at a highly professional level and this is achieved by responding to all calls for assistance in a rapid and proficient manner reducing the degree of danger caused by uncontrolled fires, the development of human skills through training and the acquisition of maintenance of state of the art equipment.

We have been blessed with a department that is staffed fully by Caymanians, one that is efficient and professional. I have always been a supporter of the department and will continue to do so in my role as Minister.

The Department of Environment (DOE) plays a vital role in the conservation and protection of the environment. There is much happening at the DOE that I can say is for the good of the country. The department has been assisting the ministry with the drafting of the amendments to the Marine Conservation Law and Regulations. I just received a resolution from the Brac district committee of the National Trust Council. It says that “The committee expresses the support of the initiative of the Government of the Cayman Islands in proposing stricter catch limits on dwindling fish species. The committee further requests the immediate appointment of a marine control officer for Cayman Brac because of the critical importance of enforcement after new regulations are promulgated.”

I would hope that we can meet that request, but I do not think we will be able to do so in this Budget.

These new regulations are important. I will be holding public meetings and the first one is on Thursday night at the West Bay Town Hall to kick off my district visits with this subject. I know there are some people who are unhappy with the regulations. However, the fact is that we are facing that situation and we have to take the matter in hand. I intend to also look at what we can do about the land crabs in Cayman. There needs to be some sort of protection for them. There needs to be some sort of protection for whelks. People may say these are not important matters, but they are. All those things are dwindling faster and faster. We cannot continue as we did years ago.

I have had callers tell me that the fish-pot limit is not sufficient. They would rather have two fish pots per person; I have to look at that. I do not mind having another look at it. However, if there are, for instance, two brothers in a family, that would be four to a family; or a father and a son, that would be four to one family. These are the matters that will take some working out. I am committed to sitting down to listen to the public and they can get this in their minds that there are going to be changes made. We have to conserve and preserve our marine life. It is being taken advantage of in far too many areas.

The pressure on the North Sound is growing. I believe that we can no longer do business as usual. The North Sound belongs to the people, but it is the Cayman Islands greatest national asset. The sandbar in the North Sound, for instance, takes a battering. I have been saying this for the past several years. I believe that as Minister of the environment I need to make some effort to offer protection to that site.

People have told me that it is not deteriorating, but I visited that site far too many times as a young man not to know it is smaller now than it was before. I am not saying the elements have not taken their toll, but I believe that the larger boats going up on that are doing some damage, eating away at the sandbar. It is more of a business today than an attraction for the general populace. I am going to offer to the general public that for every tourist taken there on a charter boat of some kind, they should pay $1 so that we can have funds to help protect the environment.

Some people have complained about the conch and lobster ban. Yes, people have to continue their recreational habits. I enjoy fishing when I get a chance. It is one of my main hobbies but I do not get to do it very often. I am glad for those who do, but they must consider that if we do not try to conserve and protect, we will soon have nothing to enjoy. Again, I have seen the changes in the North Sound and people tell me that there are changes in East End and in South Sound. They tell me there is change in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

We do not have a lot of shallow water. You go 50 feet from shore and you are off into the blue. All the reef fish are being beat up, taken up, chopped up for soup, that is, fish three inches long. We have to put a stop to it! I do not care whether they come from Jamaica, Timbuktu, the Philippines, or the Moon, I am going to put regulations in place to try to stop it.

Our marine system is fragile. I support development, but there has to be a balance. That in itself continues to take a toll on our system, simply because some people do not want to understand that tourism, while it is one of the main earners as far as our Gross National Product (GNP), it takes a toll on everything we have, but can we do without it? No. What do we have to do? We have to protect and conserve. We can no longer continue to do the things we have done.

I believe too that some of the dive sites need to be changed or closed so that they do not get overused. There is one particular site that is used to go fishing in West Bay, from Cemetery Reef to the Victoria House area. That has been there ever since we had the marine regulations. You cannot catch anything there, not even a ‘figgy’, not even a sand crab. To top it off, Cemetery Reef is one of the best offshore snorkelling attractions for tourists today. So, I believe that area should shift. I am willing to say to the Department of Environment (DOE) that they have to be reasonable and look at all these things. I repeat, ‘we can no longer do what we have done in the past because what we enjoy today we will not have in the future'.

Those persons who have five and six fish pots .I do not know if they are making a complete living or subsidising their salaries, but they have to give up a little today in order for them, their children and their grandchildren to enjoy in the future. We will hold some public meetings on the Marine Conservation Law and Regulations, but one and all can get it into their heads that there will be changes made. If it costs me my seat, so be it. I have been threatened.

I recognise that there needs to be change. I recall when we put those marine regulations and the Conservation Law reservations in place – the marine parks system in place that I had my doubts. One of the areas I talked about was fishing from a small boat. The truth is that the marine park system has worked. All we need to do is give it a chance and I repeat, 'One and all must get it their heads that it will not be the same as we have been doing. I do not care whether or not they come from Jamaica, the Philippines, America or wherever, when these regulations are put in place, one and all must adhere to them. We are going to make sure that the marine officers continue to do their jobs and they will be prosecuted.

Mr. Speaker, also, at the DOE new legislation is being drafted to implement the Convention on International Trade of Endangered Species of Flora and Fauna (CITES), as well as new comprehensive environmental legislation to give effect to the Specially Protected Areas of wildlife Protocol (SPA) to the Cartagena Convention which is a UN regional convention, but part of the UK international obligation.

The protocol is established for regional cooperation to protect ecosystems and threatened and endangered species and their habitats. It is hoped that the new legislation can be tabled at the September sitting of the Legislative Assembly after extensive public input.

Research activity is important, and there are quite a number of research programmes for 2001 going into the following years. There is an updating of certain parts of the Wickstead Report. There is a regional marine productivity programme that monitors sea-grass, mangroves and our reefs so that we have a better understanding of the areas to protect and also a monitoring for the long-term health of our coral reefs. These are all important research activities going on this year and into the following years.

The key objective for 2001 for the DOE is: (1) to complete preparation and submit to Executive Council for approval comprehensive environmental legislation as well as legislation to implement the Convention on International Trade and Endangered Species of flora and fauna by September 2001; (2) to equip the department to respond appropriately to aquaculture issues related to economic diversification and species conservation by October 2001; (3) to conduct a comprehensive review of the Cayman Islands Marine Parks system by December 2001 with public input; and (4) to continue ongoing projects and programmes aimed at facilitating sustainable management of the natural environment and resources of the Islands.

The Cayman Turtle Farm continues to have the distinction of being the only commercial sea turtle farm in the world. The operation of the Farm is centred on the production of turtle products for the local market, research, and tourism based programmes. The tourism aspect of the operation continues to be the main source of revenue for the Farm with annual combined sales of $2.6 million, which includes the sale of turtle products. The total number of visitors during 2000 was 334,000. The farm currently has a population of 22,340 green turtles; 60 kemps ridley, 5 hawksbill; and 1 loggerhead. The Farm needs tremendous maintenance.

Mr. Speaker, maybe it is a good time to take the break, since I am so short of a quorum and I could use some relief at this time.

[Laughter]

The Speaker: I need a quorum before I can call a break.

[Pause]

The Speaker: We are short one.

[Pause]

The Speaker: It must be understood by Honourable Members that the House breaks at the wish of the House. Without a quorum we do not have the wish of the House. One Member, please.

We shall now suspend proceedings for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.30 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.00 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Continuation of Debate on the Appropriation Bill, 2001, the Throne Speech, and the Budget Address. The Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: As I was saying, the Turtle Farm needs a tremendous amount of maintenance and we are undertaking a redevelopment project. The following capital projects will be undertaken over the next three years: reconstruction of the stock tanks; redevelopment of the breeding pond open area; construction of new hatching tanks; relocation of the hatchery and laboratory; construction of a new retail visitors centre that will include the administration block and storage area; construction of a new parking area; and as a new board we have, instructed management to review the contingency plans for the protection of the breeding herd with particular interest paid to the possible negative impact that could result from an act of nature. The findings of this review should be incorporated in the master development plan that we have ordered.

There are also a number of research projects involving academic institutions that are slated to be pursued in the coming year. This research involves the utilisation of the Farm's red turtles in a wide range of projects that will be beneficial to both the farm's turtle population and turtles in general. Association with these institutions will have a positive impact for the farm's image and credibility worldwide.

While the Farm is (and has served as) a useful tourist attraction, I believe that its potential for further eco-tourism must be utilised in the best interest of tourism development in the Cayman Islands. I believe that we have a viable and perhaps one of the best sites for a seaquarium in the region. A seaquarium would enhance entertainment, research, education and conservation. We do have a proposal for a seaquarium at the farm; a dolphin attraction is also in the offing. There is also sufficient property available for an eco-tourism park. I have instructed through the board for a master re-development plan to move forward which would encompass those entities. We will accept private sector partnership.

This morning I held a staff meeting. I want to publicly congratulate the management, Mr. Ken Hydes and Joe Parsons, and Mr. Chris Jackson—very good decent young men in charge there. The Farm has much potential and the management there is capable of moving it forward. There are many areas left unattended. The new board is very keen and has some good experience. I believe the Farm is in good hands. It is time for the re-development to bring it more in line with the times and to offer more attraction for tourists.

The Port Authority: Upon taking office and responsibility for the port, we have instructed the Port to review the plans for the expansion of the cargo and cruise facilities for George Town. This is presently being undertaken with the view to decrease the size and environmental impact of the project without compromising the need for additional cargo and cruise passenger landing area. It is anticipated that the revision of the plans will enable the Port Authority to achieve the desired effect of the previous plans as far as the cargo operation is concerned plus enhancing the much needed cruise passenger facility.

Preliminary plans and estimates indicate that this can be achieved at considerable savings over the previous plans. I have had extensive discussions with the Port Authority on this matter. The Authority has now completed this review in consultation with the George Town business community and has revised the George Town Port Development Plan. I have met privately with some George Town businessmen and I also held a public meeting at a George Town restaurant that was very well attended by the George Town business sector on the waterfront and others who had concerns.

The revised George Town Port Development Plan was presented at that meeting and there was wholehearted support for it from the business people there. On 23 March, we held a meeting of the board and formally approved the revised plan, which is referred to as "option C" on the conceptual plan for the development at Spotts. The key features for the revised George Town Port Development Plan are: no dredging will have to be done in front of Hog Sty Bay; the overall project cost is reduced from $14.3 million to $10.3 million; we do not have to move the existing Port Authority building as was planned in the first draft plan by the former government; relocation of the cargo handling area to the north of the existing site with significantly increased berthing space; enhanced cruise ship tendering and ground transportation facilities on the existing cargo handling site. This will relieve some of the traffic congestion by the roadside at the existing taxi and tour bus area. The new taxi and tour bus area will have significantly increased capacity allowing for a more orderly operation. The project will be carried out in two phases with no disruption to daily operations.

I have some copies of the plan available for Members perusal.

I also wish to bring to the attention of this Honourable House that I have had extensive discussions with the Florida Caribbean Cruise Association (FCCA) with respect to the development of our port facilities and they support the revised George Town Port Development Plan. The FCCA has also committed to making some financial contribution to both the George Town and Spotts development projects. I am very pleased. I believe that we can, working together hand in hand with them, get much assistance from the FCCA. In fact, they have further offered to provide assistance at the Spotts facility that also must be enhanced.

For some time I have been talking about cruise ships in the West Bay area. The FCCA has also advised that it intends to upgrade the facilities in the West Bay district public dock area to cruise ship specifications and have agreed to make a financial contribution to this project once it is approved and costed. This will take some public input and this matter will go to Executive Council in a short time, then I will move on to the public and to the board. I am happy to report this to the House as I know that there was much anxiety and worry over the first project as proposed by the former government. We are trying to minimise the environmental impact on the George Town Harbour and I believe this can be done successfully.

Government will be vesting the property in Little Cayman known as the Salt Rock Docks to the Port Authority. When it is finalised, the Authority will proceed to have proper facilities put in place for the efficient handling and storage of cargo in Little Cayman. This is badly needed as you yourself know, Mr. Speaker.

I also believe that it is in the best interest of the country to have one Port Authority with separate management boards—one for the Airport, and one for the Port—rather than having a Civil Aviation Authority and a Port Authority. This will streamline matters for the management of ports in the Cayman Islands and better serve the public. I view that as being important and it is high on my agenda. I take this opportunity to inform Members and they will see draft legislation hopefully later this year.

The Port is important to the development of Cayman for the continued good running of the country. Some people have asked why we do not move the port from where it is. We wish that could be the case. Unfortunately, the areas that would be best suited for a safe harbour port; nobody would ever agree for that to happen. However, we will have to continue to make do with what we have. We have to enhance it and see that it is working properly. I have asked the Port Authority director to investigate how we can work the Port at different times taking into consideration the resulting costs. However, I believe that we need to do that so that we can cut down on congestion and traffic and heavy moving equipment in George Town.

The reversal of the sites in taking the present cargo facility and moving it to the north will alleviate some heavy traffic on South Church Street in front of the harbour because trucks will not have to go all that way down. We have ownership of the Port building. We have some work to do, but I believe we can do it. We now have some costing and we can do it for much less. If I can be successful in getting the cruise industry to put their money where their talk is, then it will cost us that much less. We would have a fine up-to-date, more in keeping with Cayman's high quality, a cruise facility that works to the better interest of taxis, tour operators, and to the visitors themselves.

Mr. Speaker, at the Port the finger pier has not been in operation for some time. Some people have said that we should just renovate it. We would have to do quite a bit to that because when the former Minister responsible for ports bought the big crane, it was never able to go on the finger pier. We would need quite a substantial redevelopment of that finger pier. It will cost to redevelop that for a cruise landing, but not as much as if we had to redevelop it to handle that big crane.

The support I have gotten from the Director and from the business people bode well. I hope that we can continue this partnership, as a government informing them and keeping them in step with what we are doing.

The whole George Town waterfront needs to be developed into a place that people want to go. This is the first place that the vast majority of tourists see first. It does not even have a welcome sign. I intend to change the face of what exists into a place people want to go. Hopefully we can dress it so that it enhances not just the Port, but the entire George Town business centre. I do not intend to do this over one year. It has to be a long-term plan, but we have to start somewhere, so I intend to have a short-term and a long-term plan.

The dock in Cayman Brac needs some attention. We are looking at that with some interest and urgency. I do not think we need to do that immediately, but it has to be paid attention to. Later on we will get to the point where we can, hopefully, do necessary repairs.

In this new development there will be space for more buses and taxis, and space to take them off the road on the waterfront. Again that will enhance traffic movement. It will also have space for the operation of the Co-op which will play a major role in the small business operator's life at the George Town Port.

Mr. Speaker, is my watch wrong, or can I call it that time?

The Speaker: I say four minutes more, but I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 am Monday, 2 April, 2001

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 am Monday, 2 April 2001. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.25 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 AM MONDAY, 2 APRIL 2001.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
MONDAY
2 APRIL 2001
10.18 AM
Thirteenth Sitting

[Prayers read by the Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology]

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. There are no announcements or apologies.

Moving on to Item number 3 on today's Order Paper, the Administration of Oaths or Affirmations. Oath of Allegiance to Mr. Donovan W. Ebanks, MBE, to be the Acting Honourable First Official Member.

Mr. Ebanks please come forward to the Clerk's Table. Would all Honourable Members please stand?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS
OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr. Donovan W. Ebanks, MBE

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I, Donovan Ebanks, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to law, so help me God.

The Speaker: Mr. Ebanks, we welcome you to this Honourable House for the term of your service. Please take your seat as the Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Please be seated.

Item number 4 on today's Order Paper, Questions to the Honourable Ministers/Members of Government. Question No. 50 standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 50

Deferred

No. 50: Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr. asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Legal Administration how many confiscations of illegal goods, both locally and overseas, were made during the period November 1996 to December 2000 from which the Cayman Islands' Government would have received some compensation.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, as I advised the Clerk this morning, I was unaware that the question had been set down today, until the weekend. We had to require some clarification on the original question and that clarification was provided by my Honourable friend. The Legal Department is putting together the statistics to answer this question and I would be very grateful if the Honourable Member would permit me a few more days, until Friday, to give an appropriate answer to this question.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Would you move a motion for the suspension of Standing Order [23(5)] in order that we can defer the question?

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: I would, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that we suspend Standing Order in order that this question can be set down for a later Sitting.

Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question No. 50 has been set down to be answered at a later Sitting.

AGREED: QUESTION 50 TO BE ANSWERED AT A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: Moving on to Question No. 51 standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 51

No. 51: Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr. asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Culture to state:

- a) the plans for the Sunrise Centre in West Bay; and
- b) whether the facility is compliant with the current regulations, for example, fire and public safety.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Planning, Communications and Works.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: The answer:

- a) The plans for the Sunrise Centre in West Bay

The Sunrise Adult Training Centre in West Bay has recently been transferred from the Education Department to the Ministry of Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports. In the 15 years the Centre has been in operation there have been many planning initiatives undertaken to determine the best possible course of action to be taken to solve the many problems and limitations that the Centre is currently operating under.

As long ago as 1989 and as recently as 1999, internationally recognised consultants were hired to assist in this. Some of the Members will recall the Montebello Report that first addressed these issues.

Most recently, Ms Beverly Beckles came from Trinidad at the request of Government and through the recommendation of the International Labour Organisation to look at the situation of persons with disabilities in the Cayman Islands. Part of her mandate was to assess and make recommendations concerning the Sunrise Centre. Ms Beckles presented her report which contained recommendations for upgrading the Sunrise Centre and other matters relating to persons with disabilities to the Ministry of Education in September 1999. While her report has never been tabled in the Legislative Assembly or presented to Executive Council, some of her recommendations have been followed. It is my intention to present this report to Executive Council and the Legislative Assembly in the near future.

Honourable Members will recall that in the 2000 approved budget there were funds set aside for Project Development Document (PDD) for the Sunrise Centre. The Ministry has received this PDD along with recommendations from the Public Works Project Manager via the Education Department. The estimated cost of this facility is $1,283,744 plus an additional $500,000 for the purchase of land if it is a non-Government site.

The most major and immediate need is for a new facility. This has been recognised for years. The current building was a temporary choice 15 years ago and was to be replaced by a purpose-built facility within two years of its opening. It is too small for the existing programme, unsuited to its current use and impossible to expand to address the needs of the 12 people currently on the waiting list.

The Government will review these documents and recommendations and present our findings and/or decisions to Members of the Legislative Assembly.

b) Whether the facility is compliant with the current regulations, for example, fire and safety:

It is not possible for the Sunrise Centre to comply with current Fire and Safety Regulations. The Director requested an inspection of the building by the Fire Service in 1993. At that time, there were many things about the building that were judged unsafe by the Inspector. He verbally stated that there were insufficient fire exits. Of the three existing exits to the building, one passes through the storage area, one opens into an area surrounded by a high chain-link fence and the third is the main entrance and the only viable fire exit. In addition, the rooms and corridors are small and cluttered and the number of people too large given the limited mobility of most and the fact that two people use walkers which create continuous obstructions. The building itself is located too close to the Primary School building and the yard is too small (since the backyard was taken away) for the people to get away from the building easily. No written report was ever received.

As there has been no inspection to the Sunrise Centre since 1993, it would be difficult to say whether the facility is compliant with current regulations, for example, fire and safety. However, I will request the building be inspected to ensure that it is.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Minister indicate the current enrolment at the Sunrise Centre?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you.

There are 23 people registered in the programme.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Of the current enrolment could the Minister say approximately how many of those students are from the district of West Bay?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I will give the entire breakdown by district.

There are seventeen living in West Bay, one of them is from Cayman Brac but was sent to Grand Cayman to live with his sister when his mother died.

One comes from East End, one from Pease Bay, two from Lower Valley and two from George Town.

Until recently there was an additional person from George Town but he was withdrawn when his family left the island.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Minister provide this Honourable House with the programme offered at the Sunrise Centre? What is the nature of the programme are they academically oriented programmes?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Its vocational training, skills, life skills training and functional literacy.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: In the substantive answer, the Minister mentioned researching the feasibility of a purpose-built building. Can the Minister say what district is being currently investigated for this building?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: As I said at the start of my reply, this has just been passed to the ministry for which I hold responsibility so I have really not looked at any particular district or property for where this facility would be built.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I know the Minister has taken over responsibility for this area recently, but I am wondering if she can say what sort of legacy planning is going to be done to have a Caymanian run this centre in the new future?

The Speaker: That is a bit outside of the ambit of this question but if you wish to answer you may.

The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I think I agree with you completely but I have no authority to employ or fire persons that are employed by the Government.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Minister provide this House with any insight as to why the Sunrise Centre has been transferred from under the Ministry of Education to that of Social Services? And in her opinion, if it is a suitable mesh with the other areas that fall under her ministry?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: When I was elected to Executive Council and went to the Glass House, His Excellency the Governor gave me my responsibilities but I think the Sunrise Centre does [mesh] with the Social Services Section being under this ministry also.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr.: I am wondering if the Minister – in light of her answer with the breakdown and the high number of students in that centre from West Bay – could give a commitment that the new facility, the purpose built facility, will be built in the West Bay district to help address the needs of the many students who are in that centre now from West Bay. And, that if there is going to be another centre built it will be in addition to the one built in West Bay?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I know that Honourable Member is trying to put me on the spot, but I am not going to make any commitment. I think the Government will have to look at where the facility will be placed.

But I would just like to say to the Honourable House that eight of the ten people who go out to work from the district of West Bay travel to town each day for their jobs. Of the remaining seven, there are five that should be placed in jobs in the near future. Although the higher number comes from West Bay, they are leaving the district to go and look work. So whatever decision the Government takes on where the facility should be placed, it will not be my personal decision.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries?
The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr.: In light of that answer could the Minister say what district the twelve people, currently on the waiting list, are from?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Of the twelve, three are from the district of West Bay and the remaining nine are from the other districts.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?
No further supplementaries, we will move on to Question No. 52 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for George Town.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?
No further supplementaries, moving on to Question No. 52 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 52

No. 52: Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Portfolio of Legal Administration to state: (a) whether the Financial Reporting Unit and/or the Financial Investigation Unit is a unit of the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force; (b) for what purpose was it established; (c) who is in charge and to whom does he report; and (d) the number of staff currently employed at the Unit, their qualifications, job descriptions, nationalities and whether they are civilian or police officers.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: (a) The Financial Reporting Unit (FRU) is a multi-disciplinary free-standing financial investigation unit accountable to the Attorney-General for disclosure of suspicious activity reports and assistance with money laundering prosecutions. The Police Officers report to the Commissioner of Police for administrative and disciplinary purposes.

- (b) The FRU began in 1989 with the name of Drug Profit Confiscation Unit to receive disclosures under the Misuse of Drugs Law. With the enactment of the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law in 1996, the FRU became the reception point for all disclosures of suspicious transactions.
- (c) The Head of the FRU is Detective Chief Inspector Brian Gibbs. He is accountable and reports as described in paragraph (a) of this answer.
- (d) A list of staff currently employed at the FRU, including qualifications, job description, nationality and whether Police Officers or civilian is attached

| Rank                      | Position            | Nationality                    |
|---------------------------|---------------------|--------------------------------|
| Detective Chief Inspector | Head of FRU         | UK                             |
| Inspector                 | Deputy Head         | Caymanian                      |
| Inspector                 | C4T                 | UK/Caymanian                   |
| Sergeant                  | C4T                 | Caymanian                      |
| Sergeant                  | SARs                | UK                             |
| Constable                 | SARs                | Belizean                       |
| Constable                 | SARs                | Jamaican, married to Caymanian |
| Constable                 | C4T                 | UK                             |
| Constable                 | C4T                 | UK                             |
| Constable                 | C4T                 | UK                             |
| Constable                 | EB                  | UK                             |
| Constable                 | EB                  | UK                             |
| LAWYERS            |                     |                                |
| Crown Counsel             | EB Case Controller  | Jamaican                       |
| Crown Counsel             | C4T Case Controller | UK                             |
| Solicitor Support         | EB/C4T              | UK                             |
| ACCOUNTANT         |                     |                                |
| Chartered Accountants     | Forensic Accountant | International/Caymanian        |

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementary, the Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: In his answer to (a) of my question, the Honourable Member has stated that the Financial Reporting Unit is a multi-disciplinary free standing financial investigation unit. Would the Honourable Member please explain what that phrase means?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: The Unit was initially established in 1989 in relation to drug matters and subsequently expanded to all serious crimes under the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law.

The way in which the unit has been organised lately has followed the model recommended by Andrew Edwards in his report on the Crown Dependencies [Review of Financial Regulation in the Crown Dependencies—A Report—Part 1]. If it would assist the understanding of the House, I have the report here. I believe it is publicly available but I am quite happy with your permission to table it, to make it available to Members of the House. I will hand it over, if I may, once I have finished quoting from it.

But to try to answer the Honourable Member's question directly, at Paragraph 16.4.5 of this report which related to Guernsey, Jersey, and the Isle of Man, I should explain, the UK Crown Dependencies, Mr. Edwards said: "The Island authorities have been considering further reforms of structures. In my opinion, there is a strong case to be considered for self-standing "Financial Crime Unit" structures along the following lines:

- "Single, self-standing units. The activities of the present Fraud Units and Joint Financial Investigation and Intelligence Units (and possibly the Drug Trafficking Intelligence Bureau in Jersey) would be brought together into single, self-standing units, which might be known as Financial Crime Units.
- "Responsibilities. The Units would be responsible for policing the Islands' finance centres and supporting the Attorney Generals in their roles as public prosecutors for the finance centres.
- "Tasks. Specific tasks would include intelligence, handling of suspicion reports, maintenance of a comprehensive database, investigation of financial crimes including money laundering and tax evasion, obtaining of evidence, seizures, restraints and confiscations, relations with the finance, company and professional sectors and assistance to other jurisdictions.

- “Multidisciplinary units. The new units would preferably . . . be multi-disciplinary units, including Customs and direct tax staff as well as police officers, with policy, accountancy and information technology support. Professional assistance would continue to be bought in from outside as required.
- “Full-time Heads. The Directors of the units would be full-time. They would not have other responsibilities.
- “Reporting lines. The Units would be separate from the Police, Customs and Attorney General’s Offices. But the Director could report to the Attorney General, with dotted reporting lines to the Chief Constable and the Treasury or equivalent Committee.
- “Links with other agencies. The Units would work in close co-operation with the Attorney General’s office, the Police, Customs, the Tax departments and the financial regulators.
- “Dedicated financing. The Units would be financed separately from the Police and Customs. The Attorney Generals would be responsible for ensuring (or confirming) that budgets and staffing were adequate to provide effective policing of the finance centres and support for the prosecutors. The Chief Constables or the Police Committees would no longer have the difficult task of dividing resources between the policing of the finance centres and general policing.”

And then there is a paragraph on staff and training but I would, if I may, wish to quote one further paragraph 16.5.5 where Mr. Edwards said, “First, the Islands have options, because they are small, that the UK and other large jurisdictions do not have. One such option is that they can if they wish bring closely related functions together in one Unit. Such functions might ideally be brought together in all countries. This may not, however, be a realistic option in the major countries because the resulting units would be impossibly large.”

Just to complete my answer to the supplementary question: It is not intended to say that the FRU is necessarily modelled entirely on the contents of the Edwards’ Report but the thinking in it on this at this particular juncture in the history of the Cayman Islands. And, in the light of the various pressures in relation to FATF and the need to demonstrate a firm stance in relation to anti-money laundering this has come at an apposite time.

I would, however, mention a further report which I am happy to table also entitled Cabinet Office: Recovering the Proceeds of Crime—A Performance and Innovation Unit Report—June 2000, which is a UK Cabinet Office report.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Some of the thinking in this report has also been taken into account in these arrangements. But I would emphasize, if I may, that the core element of the FRU continues to be police officers and the use of police officers’ powers. There is no additional power available to the unit as such, for example, as a Fraud office in the United Kingdom has, where they have separate powers. There are no separate powers here and the police officers simply have the powers of police officers.

I would like to think that the continued role of the FRU is simply an extension of its former role as a reception and analysis point for suspicious activity reports but with the added factor that it is now providing support for current prosecution.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town, do you have a follow-up?

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: In his answer to his last supplementary, the Honourable Member referred to a report which emphasised the importance of the FRU being a free standing financial investigation unit.

May I ask the Honourable Member, given that criteria, whether the present situation whereby the uniformed members of the Financial Reporting Unit appear to still be members of the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force, whether that is a satisfactory arrangement?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: The arrangement is that although these gentlemen and lady are police officers they are on secondment to the FRU. It is my understanding, although I was not here at the time, that one of the reasons for having the FRU was to have as it were a point of reception for suspicious activity reports in which the financial services industry could have confidence. The FRU has to some extent always been slightly different in that regard.

As far as investigation of financial crime is concerned the broad rule of thumb that applies in relation to the FRU quite naturally is that its main function is to look into suspected cases of money laundering and cases of a similar kind. I do not see any difficulty with the fact that it has police officers. In fact, if it did not have police officers it might be difficult for it to operate without the powers for example, that the front office has. So that so far, apart from the inevitable possible rivalries that do exist within organisations, some of these can be healthy if they are put to positive effect. What I mean by that is that the FRU should work with other agencies of government, as it does, and other agencies of the RCIP in order to provide the most effective regulation and policing of the finance centre. I may also say that this kind of model has been adopted to my knowledge certainly in Trinidad and Tobago in a very similar kind of way for very similar sorts of reasons.

If I may add further, for the benefit of Members' information, one of the functions of the FRU is to share information with other financial reporting units or financial investigation units. And it is the intention with government approval to seek membership of the Edmond Group, which is an informal group that engages in such information sharing on a confidential basis so as to increase the capability of the Cayman Islands to co-operate internationally in an appropriate way.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: Would the Honourable Second Official Member say who is responsible for the assignment of pass and the deployment of personnel on various investigative duties? Is it the Honourable Second Official Member himself or is it the Commissioner of Police?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, in practice it is neither in the sense that the Head of the unit is responsible for the allocation of personnel according to the demands made on it. The exception to that is where a case is identified for prosecution in which case support is offered to the unit in the form of case controllers in relation to money laundering investigations in order to guide the direction and the evidence gathered necessary to support those prosecutions.

It is right to say that, again, subject to government approval and discussion some form of oversight by all relevant stakeholders is contemplated but I would be premature in advancing this since it is a matter that the Government requires to consider further.

I would simply say that the FRU is developing in order to meet the demands made on it. It has to be allowed to do its job and that means to some extent, as far as either myself as Attorney General, the Second Official Member, or indeed the Commissioner, that it be free to follow up those leads that it uncovers.

It should be of seamless transitions from analysis of suspicious activity reports through the investigation of those towards the identification of cases for possible prosecution. Prosecution is not the only raison d'être of the FRU. It also exists, as I said, to share information with other financial investigation units. Some of the steps that have been taken in the implementation of our FATF plan have to do with exactly that and with membership of the Edmond Group. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: The Honourable Second Official Member has not said whether he has responsibility for the allocation of personnel and the assignment of investigative duties or that the Commissioner does. I would be grateful if the Honourable Second Official Member could say in that case who does.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Operationally, in relation to the conduct of prosecutions, I think, that the Attorney General would have say, but in practice I have not found it necessary to intervene, leaving it to the Head of the unit, and the relationship between the Head of the unit and the Attorney General to deal with that. If there were concerns about the way in which matters were proceeding there is an understanding with the Commissioner that these concerns would be dealt with mutually.

It has to be understood that this is a multi-disciplinary unit. It consists of not just police officers but lawyers. There is no easy answer to that question, and I am not trying to avoid it either. It simply is the case that, as far as prosecutions are concerned, I have nominated the Case Controllers and identified those but I have not directly assumed responsibility and would prefer not to for the allocation of resources within the unit. I take it that that is the responsibility, as I said in my answer, of the Manager of the unit who is the Head of the FRU.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: Mr. Speaker, this is an unusual situation. I am seeking to ascertain who has ultimate responsibility for the actions of the FRU. I would be grateful if the Honourable Second Official Member could enlighten me.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: I think the ultimate responsibility is that of the Governor in the sense that he has responsibility for, the police, and for the Legal Portfolio. I can say that he does take an interest in it but like the rest of us he delegates as I do – it is not a case of sole ownership I am afraid. With a multidisciplinary unit that is not feasible and it will not function as intended if that were to be the case.

Obviously, the main component continues to be police officers and, therefore, at the present time it is led by a police officer with police officers' powers. The fact of the matter is, however, that much of the work of the unit at the present time is taken up with supporting prosecution which is of importance to the Islands and, therefore, that inevitably bears upon the responsibilities of the position which I hold. I hope that helps to explain where all of this is at.

I would simply say that the FRU like other institutions, for example, the Monetary Authority, is developing. It is not standing still it is enlarging to cope with the demands and it is doing so in a functional way, which perhaps is not the norm but nevertheless is not unknown as I have indicated from the reports to which I have made reference. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: I am grateful to Honourable Second Official Member. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, from the Second Official Member's answer it appears to me like the FRU operates for the most part on its own. I wonder if the Second Official Member can reply to that. Secondly, do we have that amount of activity here in the Cayman Islands requiring so many people, so many different officers, lawyers and accountants to make-up the FRU?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, in answer to the first question: the Head of the FRU requires to have a certain amount of operational discretion as to how the unit approaches its task. But the tasks of the unit are set down as I have indicated.

Its first task, if I may just rehearse this so that we are clear about what we are talking about, are the receipt, analysis and dissemination of suspicious activity reports. These reports, as the Honourable Member will know, are received from the financial services industry. Spontaneously they come from the financial services industry and they are then processed by the unit who analyses them and determines if there are any underlining problems.

They also have the capacity to share them with overseas law enforcement agencies and this is done, at present, under the law by sending the request to my office since the transmission of these requires the approval of the Attorney General, so there is an involvement by the Attorney General there. I will illustrate, if I may without touching too much on current term cases.

The fact that kind of activity can lead to suspicion of money laundering which in turn can lead to regulatory action against financial institutions, which in turn can lead to criminal prosecution. That, in fact, is the path down, which we have gone.

In the past, regulatory action was taken but no prosecutions appear to follow. At this stage in time it seems appropriate that there should be prosecutions where the circumstances warrant it. In order to support those prosecutions it is necessary to not only use the material obtained by the FRU but also to gather additional material and to make that material available for presentation to a court.

This has meant investment in equipment—scanning equipment; software; software called Super Tech Software used by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police which allows large quantities of documents to be analysed and then coded and ultimately presented on computer screen within a court. All of this happened recently in the context of one major prosecution. The courtroom at the preliminary enquiry stage was filled with computer screens and the information was so presented. These are large-scale undertakings, there is no doubt about that.

And the answer to the second question about how much is going on, well, I only know what I know, Mr. Speaker. I do not know everything that is going on. I do not have that kind of knowledge or ability but I do know what is involved in the current cases that are before us and we have two major prosecutions that are on the way. They are very substantial. One involves alleged money laundering of some $45 million—substantial amount of money—and allegedly using an institution within the Islands.

It is not often so much as what is going on within the Islands. It is the way in which institutions and entities within the Islands may be used by others outside of the Islands. This is where the international aspects of the FRU become important so that they can liaise with law enforcement outside of the Islands in order to maintain the creditability of the Islands as a place where international criminal activity is not only disapproved, but acted on.

As the Attorney General of England, [The Rt. Hon. The Lord Williams of Mostyn, QC] said in his opening of the conference last week, "It is important not to be passive in this. It is important to attack crime in an intelligent, determined way and that is part of the function of the FRU." I can elaborate further but there is a limit on what I can and should say about current cases for obvious reasons. It is not suggested that there is a large volume of criminal activity but the cases that are involved, involves a substantial amount of work in bringing to court. They are important to demonstrate the determination of the jurisdiction to crack down where appropriate on money laundering, which is a serious crime internationally. All of this is within the context of the attention of the FATF but even if that were not there, it would be the right thing to do, as I have said previously in this House. I hope that helps to answer the Honourable Member's question.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) & (8)

The Speaker: Before calling on another supplementary I would appreciate a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) in order that Question Time may continue beyond 11 am.

The Honourable Minister for Health and Information Technology.

Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I so move that Question Time can continue beyond 11 am. The question is that we suspend Standing Order 23(7) and (8) in order that Question Time can continue beyond the hour of 11 am. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question Time continuing.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ALLOW QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11 AM.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I appreciate the Second Official Member's explanation but I really did not need any justification for the creation of the FRU but I thank him for that. But I wonder if the Second Official Member can say if there is any special qualification required of constables to be in this unit. I notice that there are just five constables from the UK and I wonder if there are no Caymanian constables that could be a part of this unit. I then look at the Solicitor's report - another person from the UK. I wonder if Caymanians could not have been placed in this. Is there any particular reason why they had to come from the UK?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, there is no particular reason but I am not here to apologise for the fact that they are from the UK. We hire people according to their experience and their value. But let me assure the Honourable Member that the intention is that we bed down the experience locally. There is no point in bringing people in just to do a job and then they go away again.

In terms of qualifications, it depends on what you are expecting from the person. If it is a case of, for example, statement-taking, the Solicitor's support that we have got is a person who was engaged on money-laundering cases in the UK specialising in the taking of statements from professional persons such as chartered accountants and that is the way in which we have used that person.

The two Case Controllers (one happens to be from the UK) are both from the Legal Department. They are both Crown Counsels and anyone in the Legal Department who is on the criminal side or who has an interest in such matters would be eligible for such appointments. This is only the start and these are not permanent appointments. They are case specific if you understand me and available therefore to others in the event of future cases. But what we are trying to develop is the home grown expertise which will remain here and consistent with that it would be consistent to encourage Caymanian constables with the appropriate qualifications and experience to enter into this realm.

I would only add that you will have noticed that at the more senior levels Caymanians are well represented. The Deputy Head of the Unit is Caymanian. One of the inspectors is from UK but also of Caymanian Status. One of the two sergeants is Caymanians. So that it is certainly not a case of origin dictating who joins the unit, it so happens that there are people with experience of money-laundering cases but this unit in its present form is at an early stage.

I can certainly say that there is no intention to do anything other than have the best people in it. I say that there is always a danger if you do that but it is seen as élitist, different, UK bias, whatever. But my attitude to this is this is the Cayman Islands. These are Cayman Islands' institutions, like the Legal Department. I would encourage the involvement of Caymanians in all of these activities and they are there and available.

You may want to know that out of the four constables most recently recruited (I cannot speak for previously), two are Caymanian. That is my understanding at any rate. Therefore, at least, in recent times the balance to which he refers has been maintained if not improved. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Can the Second Official Member say to whom are asset seizures by the unit, or as a result of the work of the unit, reported to?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, I am not sure about 'reported to' but I know where the funds go and that is they are forfeited to the Cayman Islands' Government. As I understand it there is a separate seized asset fund which is not part of conventional government funding but is a separate asset seizure confiscation fund intended for use to assist law enforcement and in practice so used.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr: In his answer to one of my supplementary questions the Honourable Second Official Member stated that the Governor has ultimate responsibility for this unit. Could the Honourable Second Official Member say whether or not given that situation it is a requirement that this unit be headed up by a UK citizen?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, to the best of my knowledge and belief, no.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, do you have a question?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: It appears that the persons who comprise this FRU are presently attached to ongoing cases. Once these cases are resolved would the numbers change in this particular unit?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: I do not want to give any prediction that might prove not to be correct. On the other hand it is right to say that a number of personnel within the unit are devoted to supporting the current prosecutions but there will continue to be a need for ongoing investigation following receipt of suspicious activity reports. So there will be a certain level - they will not simply fall away once they have completed the task. For example, some of those on the first prosecution have moved on to working on the second prosecution. I would also refer you to those working on suspicious activity reports, which clearly is an ongoing and continuing activity.

Inevitably the size of the unit will reflect the workload that it has and it really depends what the future holds as to what the demands will be on the unit and, therefore, what its resources will ultimately be. But, I think, to be creditable and to carry out the functions that I indicated to you, to have greater involvement within the Edmond group, if that is what is to happen—it will be necessary to maintain a reasonable size of unit albeit that current prosecutions would involve the time as they are doing at the moment of some of its members.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, do you have a follow-up?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Mr. Speaker, thank you.

Could the Member say if there is a relationship between the FRU and the Monetary Authority, and if so, what is the relationship?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Yes, Mr. Speaker, there is a relationship. I have to say it is a developing relationship and there is an intention to work out protocols for co-operation between those agencies. Particularly with the advent of the independence of the Monetary Authority it would be necessary to set down what the understandings are about the means and methods of co-operation. But there is co-operation at the moment and I will give you one example, if I may: The Monetary Authority has responsibility under the amendments made to the law last year for ensuring compliance by financial institutions with the Money Laundering Regulations.

Of course, under the Money Laundering Regulations, part of those regulations are to ensure that there is a system for the reporting of suspicious activity reports and the FRU is the recipient of those reports. I believe that it is also right to say that the Monetary Authority and the FRU collaborate at present on the training of persons within the financial services industry, in particular, compliance officers. Some two hundred of such persons I understand have received training by virtue of collaboration between those agencies.

However, I am not here to say that this is by any means complete. This is as it were a developing area of regulation and co-operation, but the two things do overlap—the criminal aspects overlap with the regulatory aspects. For the kinds of reasons that I mentioned, very often criminal activity may come to light through regulatory oversight, or regulatory action may be triggered off by monitoring and supervision of suspicious activity reports so that an appropriate relationship is to be sought and desirable. I would only add, that in my opinion the oversight committee that I mentioned, would include the Monetary Authority and the other stakeholders in this, including the Financial Secretary.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can and does the FRU sue to collect costs which might be involved in its investigation considering that some of the work which it might undertake does not necessarily do very much for Cayman as such in resolving these matters but it might be a foreign jurisdiction on whose behalf it might be acting in the larger part?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, recovery of cost directly is not an issue which the FRU would pursue unless it were put to extraordinary costs. There is a cost attached to international co-operation.

But I can answer the question in another way and that is to say that the FRU is responsible through its officers for effecting court orders for production of documents and also for restraint of assets. The restraint of assets can in due course lead to confiscation of assets. The confiscation of assets can in due course be added to the Asset Seized Fund, and the Asset Seized Fund can be used for law enforcement purposes so indirectly there is a means.

Without appearing to take a contradictory position from the Honourable Member I would like to suggest that although it may not appear that there is direct benefit to the Islands, the benefit that is brought, in my opinion, is the benefit of reputation and the upholding of the good name of the Islands in the international community. A lot of times when that name is being pressurised in some quarters it is extremely important in my opinion to endeavour to demonstrate the commitment of government and the authorities to maintaining that international reputation.

So, unless I misunderstood the question I believe that there is a value although one could not put a dollar figure on it. It is an extremely important issue, particularly at the present time, but not just because of that.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: In a previous answer to my supplementary, the Second Official Member said that he was not going to apologise for these constables being from the UK. Well, I am not going to apologise to ask him why they were not from Cayman? What is going to be done to try and get some Caymanians in those positions such as training on money laundering and the likes?

The Speaker: In fairness I think the Honourable Second Official Member has answered that in saying why they were chosen in his answer to a previous supplementary but you may answer further, if you wish.

The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, I think, I did answer that to the best of my ability. I realise that we come at these questions from different positions not simply because I come from the UK, that is not an issue. I am working for the Cayman Islands government and attempting to fulfil the position of Attorney General here.

What I am saying is that the best is what we want, wherever they come from, and if Caymanians are there with the best then they will be in the unit. There is no other test than the effectiveness of the individual for the positions concerned. As far as I am concerned if I have anything to do with responsibility for recruitment of these positions . . . I think if you look down that list you would be hard put to say that there is not significant Caymanian involvement already. And, although there may be significant UK presence also, those officers generally are at a lower level, I have to say from my reading of this but that is not complacency. And, I will answer you straight out and say that if there are Caymanians who are willing and able and are prepared to acquire the expertise then there should be opportunities for them.

The Speaker: Do you have a follow-up, The Elected Member for East End?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

I appreciate the Second Official Member saying 'if Caymanians are qualified they will be given the opportunities'. My question is: Is there any effort being made to qualify other police constables in the force who are Caymanians to go into this unit?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, I want to get this answer right and having checked with the Head of the Unit he confirms to me that training does occur within the Unit and therefore training is available.

That is not the only training that is available, but let me just say what training opportunities will be pursued as we pursue them in other areas. I think there may be room within the Commercial Crime Branch as well as within the FRU for appropriate training.

It may be interested to note that transfers have occurred from commercial crime branch so that officers who are interested can either enter the FRU directly or view the Commercial Crime Branch if they have that kind of interest and aptitude. Certainly, in the time that I have been associated with the unit in terms of the current prosecutions, everyone has had to learn about the use of scanning equipment and coding—its all new. So, it is all available as well and, as I said, the skills that are being hired should become home grown in the longer term.

I emphasise that we are beginning a process that has not previously been undertaken in terms of the prosecutions and so there is a lot of new activity. I am happy to say that if the Honourable Member has any suggestions as to how we might improve or go about that I would be happy to refer that to the Commissioner, or to myself and the Commissioner for joint consideration.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for East End.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I really do not have any suggestions, as the Second Official Member asked, but it really bothers me that out of seven constables we could not find one Caymanian constable to be amongst them because this is a new thing these UK Constables also had to learn. It bothers me that we could not find one or two Caymanians and I do not believe that we cannot. Caymanian Constables are there!

The Speaker: I must remember that this is Question Time. Please turn it into a question.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: I would like a commitment from the Second Official Member to see if he can, that Caymanians be brought into this Unit and trained.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, I will not give that commitment because they are already in it. But I will give a commitment, insofar as I have an influence on it, that it will continue.

I would simply repeat just as the Honourable Member has repeated the reference to the number of UK Officers that the Inspector, who is the Deputy Head is Caymanian. The Inspector in charge of one of the cases is Caymanian by status. The Sergeant on that same case is Caymanian and one of the Constables is Jamaican married to a Caymanian.

However, its ultimate aim is to encourage and promote the interest of Caymanians. I am quite happy to associate myself with that and the continued efforts—not just in the senior ranks—but in the junior ranks also.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I appreciate the thorough answers that the Second Official Member has given. I would hope that in no way would influence the amount of time we have, because quite a few of us have questions on this area.

Mr. Speaker, in regards to the reporting of suspicious activity, I wonder if the Second Official Member could say at what point will those reports go to the Monetary Authority, as that is going to be the ultimate regulatory body in the financial services in Cayman, and therefore have the FRU as just a financial investigation unit of the Monetary Authority. So, I wondered what the timing was in regards to having all suspicious activity being reported to the Monetary Authority?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, I do not know if that necessarily will result but I have indicated that closer co-operation between the Monetary Authority and the FRU is desirable. But to say the FRU should be part of the Monetary Authority, I think, if that is what was meant it would be different from the way in which . . . I understand the Honourable Member did not mean that so I will not pursue.

I think what has to happen is that the various parties who have an interest in the working of the FRU have to work out with the FRU the protocols for the sharing of information. Not all suspicious activity reports are disclosed to outside law enforcement agencies and not all necessarily would be shared with the Monetary Authority. Otherwise, the Monetary Authority might well be the recipient of information which is in relation to a criminal inquiry and there might be a potential for the work of the FRU to be affected by that.

Having said that, there are many issues that come to the attention of the FRU that do affect the Monetary Authority and the working arrangement between the two should be capable of identifying what is appropriate to share and under what circumstances. As I stand here I am not able to indicate the nature of that, but it is on the agenda and it is to be addressed. Suitable protocols are needed, but suitable protocols are also needed with the RCIP and the commercial crime branch as well as the Monetary Authority.

This indicates if I may say, the position that the FRU holds. It is essentially concerned with money laundering. Not all aspects of the reports that come to it will be exclusively criminal. Many in fact will have regulatory consequences and those should certainly be brought to the attention of the Monetary Authority for appropriate regulatory action. This is not a case of one unit having set responsibilities. Each player in this scenario interacts with the other players to form an effective anti-money laundering system. That is in existence now and it is being developed. I think that what the Member is asking will come about as the protocols are settled between the Monetary Authority and the FRU.

If the oversight arrangement to which I have referred comes into operation, and hopefully that will happen soon, all those concerned will have the ability to make sure that these arrangements are working in the national interest.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline Glidden, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will turn this into a question.

I think the answers given by the Second Official Member, have enlightened us to what one of the fundamental problems we are having is: it is the opinion as to what indicates a significant amount of Caymanians. Because in a grouping of some seventeen staff members, having some three Caymanians and some ten members from the UK, with the statement being made that there were significant amounts of Caymanians there, I think, could be a fundamental difference of opinion because we are in the Cayman Islands.

In one of his responses that he gave he made reference to the Asset Forfeiture Fund. My question is, if the Second Official Member could explain to us who is the Controlling Officer for that fund because looking through the budgeting I have seen expenditure for that area but I cannot remember seeing any of the revenue aspect of that. I would just like some clarification as to how that funding is controlled.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, the fund itself is under the control, like other funds, of the Financial Secretary. I did not seek to say, if I may in answer, that having three Caymanians . . . In fact, there are more than three persons with Caymanian connection with great respect. I count four, at least, and five, if you include the accountants, the partners of which firm are all Caymanians. I accept the point that there is room for expanding the roles of Caymanians. I do not want it underestimated at the present time.

The fact of the matter regarding the Asset Seized Fund is that this fund is not accessible by myself or anybody else without the decision of Executive Council. Executive Council needs to take a decision and indeed did take a decision regarding the allocation of funds from that fund. They then have to enter, as I understand it, the recurrent budget process and come in as income but I want to take the opportunity to emphasise, as the Honourable Member has acknowledged, that there should not be an undue drain on the recurrent budgets of the Islands. Although it is coming in as recurrent expenditure it is also coming in as recurrent revenue from the Asset Forfeiture Fund. So, I hope that helps to explain. I do not know what the details of the financial arrangements are, but I think I have outlined them as I understand them.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay, two additional supplementaries?

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: I think one of the things that the Second Elected Member alluded to in one of his previous answers was the desire to have the FRU, a reputable and high-standing institution, internationally.

I would like to ask the Second Official Member whether there is any consideration being given to interview students returning to the Island whom the Honourable Third Official Member has said may not have positions in the Civil Service and may be relinquished from their bond. Whether there was any view to interviewing any of them that might have an interest in this area because obviously having well-educated Caymanians in this area would only go to increase our international reputation versus just having what seems to be mainly people of police background?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: In my answers so far I have only concentrated on the staff who are employed at the unit or in connection with it. It is a matter of record that the intention is to engage paralegal staff to support the unit and it may well be that there will be opportunities there.

We have already tried letting police officers do police work and make best use of their skills. The paralegal support that the Unit needs, which includes assistance with the scanning, analysing of documents, encoding and other work in support of the Unit, might well be of interest to young returning Caymanians. Given the cross-fertilisation between the different disciplines here—between the policing functions, the legal functions and the accountancy functions—I am sure there is a lot of scope for creative openings for younger persons who would like to specialise in this area.

If I can say, it is Edwards himself who referred to this in his report as saying, without detaining us on jury, that it was desirable, and this is the part that I did not read [Paragraph 16.4.5—Review of Financial Regulation in the Crown Dependencies—A Report—Part 1]: “Staff and training. Staff would be encouraged to make careers in this important but specialist area of work. They would no longer be required to move back and forth between this and other policing work. Special priority would be given to training programmes, including UK programmes.”

The UK, as I have indicated in the other report which has been tabled, intends to set up a National Confiscation Agency which will help to provide a pool of expertise that will guide these efforts. So, if I were standing here some few years down the track or whoever is, I hope they would be able to say to you that the Unit had developed in a way of which we could all be proud and that it would have assisted the reputation of the Islands. The unit already does have a reputation. I may share with the House that the Head of the Unit was asked to provide assistance to an independent Caribbean country within the last year, who are considering setting up a model. And as not uncommon for the Cayman Islands, it is in the forefront of these developments. They are new. They are challenging and they are exciting, and they ought to be of interest to Caymanians returning who want to engage in something perhaps that is new and will last.

I also believe that the financial services' skills that are available in the industry . . . and I am on record as saying they should be available to Caymanians too. In understanding these skills, together with working in a unit of this kind, would uniquely place young people for a very positive future and hopefully a long-term career.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Honourable Second Official Member said to his knowledge the often repeated view that the FRU is the local equivalent of the British MI5 or MI6 which eavesdrops and spies on the society as a whole and largely reports to the Governor information which he alone knows what happens with it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, that is not my experience of the Unit. Inevitably there will be some speculation as to the confidential nature of the work of the Unit but that is an important part of its function.

The Financial Services Industry needs to have confidence that when it discloses suspicious activity reports to the Unit that those reports will be held in confidence. If it were even known that the institution had made such a disclosure it could be difficult for the institution concerned. So, there is a need for confidentiality and indeed information that is already disclosed is subject to similar restriction on confidentiality.

I would only emphasise that it is not confidentiality for the sake of it. It is in order to preserve the confidence between financial institutions and its customers and that has been acknowledged by the OECD among others as being perfectly legitimate. So the role of the FRU as it is developing is intended to help to police the financial centre and in the course of that it has to monitor and detect the signs of criminal behaviour. That is its primary function. It also has to cooperate internationally and that is my understanding of its purpose.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Rolston M. Anglin: Could the Second Official Member say who evaluates the performance of the Head of the Unit and against which criteria is his performance evaluated? Also, could the Second Official Member say which firm of chartered accountants is listed here as being connected with the Unit?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: I believe that the evaluation of the Head of the Unit would, in the light of the explanations that I have given earlier, be required to be a mutual one, and by the Commissioner to some extent and by myself and possibly involving an assessment by the Governor for the reasons that I have given. It is not possible to say that any one person would have exclusive ability to make that evaluation and the evaluation would be against the criteria as to what the unit is expected to do and how effective it is in terms of doing that.

In relation to the last part of the question, the firm in question is Ernest and Young, which is why I have put the label of international and Caymanian because I am told that the partners locally of that firm are Caymanians. So, that is why I feel able to say, as I did, that should be taken into account also in terms of local input. Thank you.

The Speaker: This concludes Question Time for this morning. At this time we shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.37 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.02 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 5 on today's Order Paper, Government Business, Bills, Second Reading of the Appropriation Bill, 2001. Continuation of Debate on the Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday, 9 March 2001 together with the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member on Wednesday, 21st March 2001.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Transport.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION BILL, 2001

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH, DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR ON FRIDAY 9 MARCH 2001

TOGETHER WITH

THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON WEDNESDAY 21 MARCH 2001

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. On the adjournment on Friday last, I completed my report on the Port and also an overview of tourism and the Tourism Department.

In regards to transport there is need for quite a number of change in that section. And in keeping with putting licensing depots in the districts, we intend to have a licensing depot in Bodden Town in the short to medium-term. This was one of the areas that was recognised since it was such a growing area some-time ago but they did not get around to doing it.

Mr. Speaker, some people believe that dealing with transport only has to do with taxes, buses and licensing of vehicles. Transport is much more than that. It covers the whole transportation sector and we have several plans for this section of our ministry.

Sometime ago the present Minister of Health, Honourable Linford A. Pierson, did a plan—a George Town Beautification [Plan]—and we intend to review that plan to see how we can utilise its recommendation. One of the things we are looking at is how we can organise George Town to be more user-friendly for pedestrians. In that vein we hope to take Albert Panton Street and Cardinal Avenue and turn them into non-vehicular traffic. In the Albert Panton and Cardinal Avenue areas the question of parking will have to be reviewed by the Transport Section since there are businesses who park in that area. But that is one of the plans.

Mr. Speaker, the public must also be aware that more attention will be paid to emissions from vehicles to ensure that their vehicles are not emitting dangerous gases so that we can have a healthier environment for the public.

Also, we will be looking at the times of movement of large vehicles. I note that one report in the paper—when we first talked about our plans—talked about backhoes. We have to look at the whole matter of heavy equipment and big trucks—the way they move, the loads they carry in conjunction to the heavy populated and travelled areas and what times they travel. I have seen some dangerous loads. Sometimes the drivers of these heavy vehicles are very courteous and will slow down and get off the side of the road to make the traffic move on. But we have to take into consideration — for instance, I have taken the time to look at some vehicles coming through town. The big, heavy 10-wheel trucks come through town and they do not seem to be stopping anywhere in town but they are just coming through here, through Albert Panton Street, Cardinal Avenue and Fort Street. And, so without trying to put any pressure on anyone's business I think we need to look at the times they travel and where they travel.

It would be good if we could get our country using a well-run efficient transport service. It would be good if we could have one but this takes time [and] education but no one wants to do without a car and I do not know if you will ever get a government that is going to limit the number of vehicles we have. But, one thing I can assure the country is that the present outlook — while I say the country is not dead, we cannot continue just building roads. Traffic numbers have to be looked at. I am not saying that we must stop them but I do believe that people should be educated to become more — do things that can eliminate so much traffic on the road. Car pooling, as one Member just said to me, is a good example. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have a good scientific overview of the transportation business in the country and, therefore, I am going to ask for a review, a plan, for that section.

I want to turn now to the Tourism Attraction Board. We all know (those of us who have been here before and perhaps those Members who are new because they also paid attention to what was going on) that the Pedro Castle situation was one that most of us believed proper regulations were not followed — that there was just building, expenditure and no proper management. We will never really know the extent of the financial mess at Pedro Castle.

In mid-December [2000], we got the General Manager to put in an action plan for the Tourism Attraction Board, which includes Pedro Castle. I would have to say that Turtle Farm, Pirates Week, the Museum and those areas, while the Museum is not under my ministry but the Botanic Park is, are running well. The problem area has been and is Pedro Castle. It is an area that we have to put much attention on.

So, far we have made some achievements. I would like to note some of them at this time. There has been a reformatting, and inputting has been standardised in the accounting systems at the Botanic Park and at Pedro Castle by the Financial Controller. The standards established [were] the Auditor General's.

A new Site Manager has been appointed for Pedro Castle and an advertisement has been placed for an Assistant with historical site experience and management capability. There was nothing done to market the site to try to make it work, to make it financially feasible. So the management has produced a comprehensive marketing programme including cruise ships advertising for both Pedro Castle and the Botanic Park. This programme is now being reviewed by the Board and will go into effect from April 15th. I am working hard with the cruise ship industry to direct business to those areas.

Mr. Speaker, overall I should mention that the Caribbean Development Bank (CDB) has enquired about our development plans with regard to Pedro Castle, and has expressed approval for the new directions being taken. It is not going to be easy to put this on a sound financial footing and no one needs believe that it is going to be done overnight. It cannot! But we intend to put our efforts behind it to ensure that in a few short years it will be running as a proper business.

I move now to the National Trust of the Cayman Islands. If the National Trust does not become too confrontational it will be a valid, vital asset to the country. But if it gets bound up into squabbles then it will begin to lose its effectiveness. I am glad that there is a new direction.

The National Trust board members understand me although I have not had a lot of talk with them as yet, and I understand them. While they are concerned about conservation, they are not prepared to get into confrontations. Their time can be utilised better: for instance, they have a site acquisition programme and they have a programme in Bodden Town called Mission House. The Mission House Conservation Plan has been launched to the Bodden Town community and the plan is to restore the structure to its 1910 appearance using construction materials, where possible, that would have been present in the House during this time period. Doing so will capture the most historical significant attributes of the structure when it was home to the Presbyterian missionaries.

The central team guiding the restoration of that project. And the interpretation is the Mission House – remembering the Caymanian spirit. The site will be used as an interactive heritage centre. Start-up capital costs which includes the cost of restoration, interpretation, landscaping, and the first year operational costs are estimated at approximately $575,000.

Considerable sums have already been donated to the project and they continue to raise funds for it. This is in keeping with my view and plans to develop Bodden Town as a tourist attraction since there is so much of our country's history involved in Bodden Town.

In Miss Izzy's schoolhouse work is on the way to complete the conservation plan. In the meantime, the structure was secured for protection from the elements. Signage is now in place and documentation of the structure is on the way. The conservation plan is expected to be completed sometime this month or next month.

The Historic Building and Site Inventory (HBSI) is a comprehensive repository of Cayman's built heritage. Its pages contain listing of heritage structures throughout all three Islands and wherever possible a systematic examination and an analysis of individual historic schedule for demolition, alteration or relocation. Each list includes some combination of measured drawings, photographs and written reports. To date there are over 370 listings in the HBSI and there are more and more people who are concerned about heritage structures and are requesting to have a structure properly documented.

A written report was completed for the Caribbean Cultural Tourism Programme of the Slave Root Project for the Museums Association of the Caribbean. This is a UNESCO Project in partnership with the World Tourism Organisation. This is an important regional programme, whose main objective is to foster sustainable economic and human development through the identification, restoration and promotion of sites and places of memory linked with the slave trade and slavery throughout the wider Caribbean. This project was the result of a joint effort between the National Trust, the National Museum, the Tourism Attractions Board and the Cayman Islands Archive. I hope that work will steadily continue on this project.

The [National] Trust is still involved with environmental programmes and is continuing to work with Government on the protection of the Booby Pond Nature Reserve in Little Cayman, with funds raised by the Trust and with technical assistance from Lands and Survey. Two-thirds of nesting area of the Red-footed Boobies are still in private ownership and are being purchased for conservation. This means that later this year the entire colony will be in conservation ownership and protected in perpetuity for future generations.

As I said earlier, we are moving past the confrontational politics surrounding protection of the central mangrove wetlands, and working constructively with the Central Planning Authority and Central Mangrove Committee, which is now making good progress.

The [National] Trust will work closely with the Education Department and schools to provide locally relevant teachers' resources keyed to our national curriculum. So far we have established schools' resources on endangered species and extinction, mangroves and a recently released storybook and CD of children's tales linked to themes about our natural and historic heritage. And, I am going to work closely with the National Trust to help them achieve their objective in their new structure.

Mr. Speaker, it is critically important that any country such as others have airport facilities that are safe and user friendly. Attached to that are facilities that enhance civil aviation and keeps us in line with all international regulations. In this regard, the United Kingdom is conducting audits of all its territories' civil aviation facilities and we will be audited in the very near future.

In the meantime we must continue with current plans for upgrading our facilities. These plans are already known. However, I would like to say that the Gerard Smith International Airport runway resurfacing project is currently ongoing with schedule completion date on 30th [April] 2001. The contract, as we recall, was awarded to Island Paving with Lagan, a joint venture, for the sum of $4.5 million. Island Paving, as we all know, is a local company and Lagan is an Irish based company. Aggregate for this project is being supplied by Scott Development Corporation Limited which is a Cayman Brac company.

Mr. Speaker, in keeping with the requirements for the safety of aircraft operations and the continued development of tourism, it is identified that major developments of the airport infrastructure is needed to accommodate air transport requirements at the Owen Roberts International Airport. I have announced this already but it will include extension of the runway, the construction of a parallel taxiway and renovation of the departure terminal. Right now discussions are currently ongoing to determine designs, specifications and costs.

We now have Cayman Airways, Continental, Delta Airlines, Air Jamaica, Island Air, British Airways, US Airways and American Airlines. These are in addition to a number of private jets and charter operations, and so the airport is more and more busy. We have to do the renovations. They are necessary, and I intend to work in partnership with any of the airlines that can make a valuable contribution—they are now in their operation—but who can offer more valuable contributions as a partner. I will not walk away from any input that is positive and that is for the sake of the Cayman Islands.

The development of an airport in Little Cayman has drawn a lot of discussion but I am thankful for the support that I got when I received responsibility for Civil Aviation matters. I have held my public meeting there and out of the 52 people attending only three persons objected at that meeting. I am not saying there were not others, and we will take any objections into consideration, but the fact is we have to provide facilities that are meeting with safety regulations.

Mr. Speaker, I said in the beginning that Cayman could never stand still and no one should expect that whether they are Caymanians or foreign residents. We have to keep moving in the right direction. It is of paramount importance to meet the needs of safe transport for Little Cayman. We are not going to have that overdeveloped because I do not believe that is what the vast majority of people want and it is not good for the Cayman Islands. I think along the lines they have been developing is the way that we need to go in Little Cayman but we do need to have safe and reliable air transport. So, plans are in place to build an airport that will meet these requirements taking into consideration the sensitive environment of Little Cayman.

There have been some costings so far. Preliminary cost estimates for this project are in the region of $3 million and I believe that can be reduced. Land clearing for this development is scheduled to begin in another two weeks.

Mr. Speaker, the Agricultural & Industrial Board (AIDB) and the Housing Development Corporation, individually, have tremendous responsibilities in our changing economic scenario. The Agricultural, Industrial and Development Board, in particular, celebrates several years as a developmental financial institution.

During its years of coming of age the long discussed merger with the Housing Development Corporation (HDC) will take place this year, I hope. I have instructed the management of these institutions to finalise the merger within the next few months. More importantly, I have asked them to create a totally new and more dynamic development financial institution that will meet the challenges that have begun to face us in this millennium.

The new development institution will become a true development facility of the Cayman Islands and is to be called the Cayman Islands Development Bank (CIDB). The CIDB will continue to build on the foundations of the past and seek to achieve even greater impact within the Cayman Islands in facilitating greater economic development in agriculture, small industry, tourism, and housing, as well as in the promotion of human resource development through its loan portfolio for students. Over the coming months the mechanics of this new entity will be worked out and it is expected that the draft legislation for the establishment will be tabled in the Legislative Assembly sometime in the third quarter of this year.

Standards for projects and programmes that facilitates medium-term financial self sufficiency:

- Greater efficiency in the operations

- Greater sensitivity to measures of control in the face of possible audit queries
- Increased opportunities for staff retooling, at both the professional and technical levels, to improve general performance
- Enhanced delivery systems to improve customer service
- Constant upgrading of technology to improve transaction processing to be able to respond more quickly to clients
- A more focused marketing thrust to generate increased business in lending
- Enhanced financial products and services that can attract more clients; and
- Greater monitoring of the existing loan portfolio to keep contamination at a minimum.

The AIDB will develop a micro-entrepreneurship programme geared at young people from 18 to 35 years old, so as to encourage them to embark on their own businesses. That programme will encourage projects that produce indigenous goods and services that are both appealing and competitive.

Secondly, AIDB in these short-term strategic objectives will spearhead the holding of an agri-business week sometime in October this year. This is a strategy to raise the level of consciousness in the three-island chain with a view to strengthening the agricultural sector and at the same time properly raising the concepts of agri-business, agro-processing and agro-tourism.

Through this avenue also AIDB hopes to attract increased borrowers who are willing to explore new farming possibilities in agriculture, marketing and marine production. We are ready to provide funding in those areas in collaboration with the Ministry of Agriculture and the recently proposed Agricultural Development Committee from the Ministry of Agriculture, who provides technical assistance to interested parties.

Mr. Speaker, in an attempt to respond to the tremendous housing needs existing among low income earners in the country, the Government together with the AIDB, is working on the implementation of a mortgage programme to be called Home Ownership Made Equitable or HOME. This programme is to be implemented by the HDC, until the CIDB is in place.

The HOME Programme has been specifically designed to provide an equal opportunity platform for lower income Caymanians and Caymanian Status Holders to be able to either acquire their homes or upgrade their existing substandard homes—it is a two-tier programme. Also, in collaboration with the Department of Social Services, shelter for the indigent, the handicapped and the elderly will be made more accessible. This brand new concept in housing has been developed to deal with the obstacles of the past that limited certain groups and individuals from acquiring their own homes. It also fully recognises the social responsibility that the Government has in ad-dressings this inequity. For such persons, Mr. Speaker, who according to strict banking guidelines may never be able to own a property.

The HOME concept has taken into consideration the following factors in its design:

- Lending practices
- Expensive borrowing terms and high interest rates

The HOME Mortgage Programme has also acknowledged the following:

- High land acquisition cost
- High construction cost
- High stamp duties
- High closing cost.

To be able to implement this programme, funding will have to be sought at concessionary terms from international agencies such as the Caribbean Development Bank (CDB). And, of course, we have met as a group with the banks and we have talked to them. They have looked at how they can put some funds into such a programme through the AIDB. I want to thank the Leader of Government Business who helped to work on this, but no amount has yet been finalised nor exactly where they are going to have an input, but they are in discussions.

The Government will also need to institute relevant measures primarily to keep costs down under this programme. Some of those measures may include:

- Developing proper housing regulations
- Purchasing specific parcels of land from low to medium housing; and
- Making that land available in strategically zoned areas for the purpose of building.
- Approving the design concept of one roof or quadplexes as well as the add-on concept where clients will be provided with a starter unit and as their fortunes improve they have the ability to add on a room or two. That is not new to Cayman because we have done this over many years.
- Officially promoting the concept of self-help at the national level
- Waiving or reducing stamp duties
- Subsidising closing costs
- Lobbying to have lower hook-up costs for accessing utilities, that is, water, electricity and telephone.
- Encouraging financial institutions operating in the country to institute more equitable lending practices but are not prejudicial to any one target group.

Mr. Speaker, as I said, we have met with them and I think they are willing to work in partnership with us. But this is an area that the financial institutions need to recognise that they can help us and help this country tremendously if they acknowledge themselves as good corporate citizens. I am looking forward to Mr. Crutchley spearheading this matter and talking to with Mr. Daniel Scott, the partner in Ernest and Young, who is Chairman of the HDB.

Generally for a home loan, stable and continuous employment will be the first requirement. Ability to service one's mortgage will be the second, while a financial contribution towards the acquisition of the desired property will be the third.

Other terms that are expected to be used under this programme are as follows: For home acquisition loans the lending range will be between $60,000 and $95,000 while for home improvement loans, the lending range will be between $1,000 and $25,000.

Every effort will be made to keep the interest rate as low as possible but that depends on the cost of funds to be borrowed.

The repayment periods will vary from a maximum of fifteen years for home improvement loans to twenty-five years for home acquisitions.

There will be five options available to clients under the HOME programme as follows:

1. Ability to purchase a first time home
2. Ability to construct a first time home on land or leased land owned or leased to be built by an approved contractor
3. Ability to construct a first time home on owned or leased land utilising self-help labour under approved supervision.
4. Ability to purchase land together with an approved plan showing their desire to build either through options 2 and 3.
5. Ability to renovate an existing property to bring it up to acceptable and approved living standards.

The HOME Mortgage Programme is meant to be inclusive rather than exclusive and as such common-law partners can now qualify under this programme as well as divorced or separated individuals will be able to apply individually. As well as we will allow parents and children to apply.

Mr. Speaker, one of the worst disservices done in getting a home with some people was when they removed the common-law requirement or people who were in common-law partnerships. We know we have a lot of that to contend with and that will never change in my lifetime. So, Mr. Speaker, if they call me a sinner so be it, but we will allow common-law partners to get a home if they can qualify. I hope that we will not receive too much flack on that and I hope that after I sit down my colleagues will defend the position.

In an attempt to make the HOME Programme really equitable the ministry and HDC will do all in its power to advertise and promote through various mechanisms. That is, they will hold public meetings, advertise in the media and put brochures in public places and, of course, the HDC and the ministry can be contacted as well as members of the House.

There will be certain restrictions on the home loans and two examples are:

1. HDC will not advance loans for speculative purposes; and
2. Loans will not be given to clients already owning a home.

Government expects to work more closely with the new CIDB in developing this and other programmes.

And finally, the HOME Mortgage Programme is the first in several steps in addressing the critical issues of affordable housings for low income Caymanians.

At a later date the issue of a National Housing Strategic Plan will be brought before this Honourable Legislative Assembly for its consideration. I look forward to receiving the full support of Members of the Assembly as we seek funding as well as morale support to be able to address one of the critical social problems challenging our Islands' people at this time.

Mr. Speaker, I know that all Members of this Honourable House campaigned on this issue and I can say that already Members are taking a great interest in it. Some have gone with me to look at a system in Florida, which I believe we can get a three-bedroom home for around $60,000 if not less. That will not be a cement house although it will have some cement with it but as I have always said in this House, we cannot cure the housing problems by any one plan. We are going to have to help people who own a piece of land to build, give them opportunity. You might not have all cement houses and there are various building methods now available that we can employ to address this and I am committed to having plans and some programmes by the middle of June this year.

We ask people to be proud of our country and we try to educate them to that extent but there is no one prouder than a man who can have a shelter for the wife he loves and for the children he calls his own. Mr. Speaker, that must be one of the foundation stones of any government that talks about social policy.

We must put an all out effort and the financial institutions must, as I said, play their role in this area. I am looking forward for support from one and all on this. I am not saying that you cannot oppose. That is not what I am saying.

I am happy to hear from the Member from East End that I have his full and unstinting support and he is going to back me all the way in this programme.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that we are on to good times. I close as I open this speech: I am glad that I can work with members of Executive Council who know what they are doing in their own areas and who in their own areas have experience. We were not elected together but we found common ground. That is what is important in any system. We are not going to agree to everything any one of us may say but what we promise the country to do is to work together for the good of the people of these islands.

I am pleased to know too that our colleague, the Minister of Health is back and is doing well. We were concerned about his health but I am glad, I know as other Members do, that he is back with us. He certainly has a tough road to travel in the Ministry of Health and Information Technology but I know he is capable and is up to the challenge.

I too am proud of the calibre of people that I was elected with in West Bay—honest, hardworking young men. They have a commitment to do good without hurting people. I am proud that we have other capable men who are not in the opposition, in the form of the Elected Member from East End and the Second Elected Member from George Town, who in their own rights are qualified and capable and as we have all seen, making valid contribution to this country's challenges.

Mr. Speaker, we have an Opposition and no country nor government should go without an Opposition. I have worked with some of them and I can continue to work with them, and I will work in the best interest of the country with them. If we happen to disagree I hope that we can disagree and call it that.

If our country is to succeed it must have the goodwill of all its Members of this House and of its citizens and those who live legally among us. There are challenges but as I said it is not a dead country. Every father, mother, brother, sister, uncle, aunt, son and daughter can help us make these Islands the best place to live and work. And, for that to happen we must all shoulder our responsibility. In our homes, fathers must shoulder their responsibility, and we have some good fathers but we have some wayward ones too.

For those good ones we thank them and encourage them and for those wayward ones we say to them, 'get back to where you belong or I believe the Government should help them to get back there'.

Mr. Speaker, we must all shoulder our work because the country cannot carry on without the goodwill of its citizens. We must shoulder our responsibilities in the workplace. I encourage workers, as I have always done, to realise that they have to be to work on time and that there will always be a boss, someone, in charge—whether it is this House and that is you, Mr. Speaker, or whether it is in the school, it is the teachers, or in Sunday School. It is our Christian families who carry on and are the boss. We must work together. We must stand together. If we seek to divide, we must ponder what will be lost by division and what is to be gained if we worked towards a national unity and attempting to understand one another better.

There is no doubt where Cayman's best interest lies and we owe it to those who came before us—those who worked hard to build this country to the standards we enjoy, our elderly. And, while we are in tight financial straits, we should not forget who built this country and what we enjoy. We should believe that because we are educated that we know it all. We should not believe that we can look on a person's situation and tell what they go through in a home or what is their condition of life.

We owe it to our youngsters and those unborn to leave this country better than we found it. Sure, Mr. Speaker, the next few months and years will present great challenges but I believe the next few months and years will present just as great opportunities too. So, let no future historian ever write that Caymanians of this generation were content to witness objectively or in our case preside supremely over the demise of these Islands.

As I have said, I have always believed in teamwork. The new Government is moving forward together as a team and this is the only way this country can succeed.

I welcome the announced constitutional review and will work according to what my people will accept. I will work to help educate them in what they do not understand; there must be some changes. But we must be careful in what we accept as changes.

Certainly, I believe that the time has now come for political organisation. I believe that for leadership in the form of a person who is chosen by the people from an organisation which comes to the people with a clear agenda on how to move this country forward, while maintaining a standard of living leaves no one behind, at the least it provides equal opportunity to all.

From what I can gather from around this country, people want sensible change. It is up to us to inform and educate, as we cannot leave that to those persons who seem to know everything. When the timing is right the machinery will be put in place, in the not too distant future, which can assist us as an agent of positive change.

We also need to work immediately on our immigration policy. We have to make changes. We have to accept what we did not want to accept in the past. We cannot accept willy-nilly. We cannot endanger people forever. The outside world will not allow it and Cayman is no more the Islands that time forgot. So, I am looking forward to sitting down and dealing with the immigration problems we have.

Mr. Speaker, development is needed because one of the greatest challenges that this country has at this time is finding the revenue to do the things, not what we all want, but what is needed in this country. I am concerned about the downturn we now feel and hope that one and all will realise that we do not just snap our fingers and investors will jump and put in their funds and building starts. That is not how it is done.

I believe one of the most critical things in the process of development is a good immigration policy because Caymanians in the past have been worried about numbers that they see. So, while they have these numbers and are concerned; the people who live here and have no immigration status to make them feel safe are also worried. So what do you have then? You have an uneasiness that is not good for the future of the country. I want to see that settled so that Caymanians know where we are, where we are going and that those who live and work here and remain legally amongst us also know where they are, what to expect and where they are going. So we must be concerned, yes, but we must not just jump to everything that is put before us.

Mr. Speaker, as a country we must maintain our integrity with fiscal responsibility and accountability. Of course, there must be an ongoing balance that will continue to draw us into making difficult decisions. In regards to my district, the programmes that we plan will go ahead but I have to say here and now that we cannot start the planned Civic Centre/Hurricane Shelter this year. I took a decision that we just do not have the funds. And to show how reasonable we are, to show that we mean business about priority, we put West Bay Civic Centre back. The $3 million or the $4 million that we would have spent, which we did not have, will be spent hopefully by the year 2003 when it will be completed and when the Library, the present Town Hall, will be up and running.

Mr. Speaker, there is no greater joy than to serve one's country and serve it to the best of one's ability. I have been here for many Budgets and many Throne Speeches and I am back with a renewed energy—and I hope a vision is not blurred—and will work to the best of my ability as I have always done in the best interest of the people who elected me in the district of West Bay, and to the interest of the wider community of the people who live, moved and have their being in these Islands called the Cayman Islands.

Mr. Speaker, as for me, 'the woods are lonely, dark and deep; but I have promises to keep and miles to go before I sleep'. I thank you and I thank the House for its indulgence.

The Speaker: At this time we shall suspend proceedings until 2.30 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.07 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.44 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate continuing on the Throne Speech and the Budget Address. Does any Member wish to speak?

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I am more than proud to be a part of a Legislative Assembly which I believe represents a change in the intellectual condition of this country. Mr. Speaker, the human being is distinguished from other animals, in that, before we can produce something, in reality we would have created that something in our imagination.

The conception of what we have here today goes a long way back and it is not recorded in the Throne Speech, nor does the person who delivers the Throne Speech pay specific attention to the conception. And, the delivery of what we have here today in the Legislative Assembly, which is, of course, new minds with new ideals, new beliefs, new sentiments, new hopes, new dreams and new aspirations not just for ourselves but for the people of these Islands.

Mr. Speaker, the winds of change are strong and commanding. They are apparent to all those who did not take heed when we said long ago that society 'cannot live by bread alone'. We need ideals. We need to realise that society has to have structure. It has to have continuity. It has to have purpose. It has to have thinkers, philosophers—the same types of persons that we condemned in this Legislative Assembly in the last session. It was said that philosophy was dead, that it was useless and what was important was the material condition of the individuals that were the messengers for the New Jerusalem.

We are debating here today the budget because again we believe that what is important is the material condition of a country and not the condition that the country finds itself from a point of its collective consciousness. As I have said, the human being is different because long before he produces the budget he has conceived of it in his imagination. As a matter of fact all the things that the present government will try to achieve in this present budget exists in the budget to a certain extent as a part of their ideas.

Mr. Speaker, I am not sure that the Budget or the Throne Speech delivers to us a clear, cut sense of direction. But I am of the opinion, as Solomon was, that where there is no vision the people will perish. I also believe that if we do not know where we are going we are unlikely to get there and even if we manage to arrive there we will not know that we are there. Therefore, there is a need for that leadership that the Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture spoke about. We need to somehow create a partnership in this Legislative Assembly that will allow us to hold on to the change, to structure the change, to manage the change and to see that the change delivers to the people the conditions materially and ideologically that are necessary for good Christian living.

Mr. Speaker, I would prefer to be a member of the present Government and be able thereby to influence the direction in which the country would develop from a policy direction on a day-to-day basis. But as my destiny has been, I find myself being on the Backbench again and I am hoping that I can be even more useful on the Backbench than I would have ever been in Government because my desire, like that of most of my honourable colleagues, is to serve my country well regardless of whether I am on the Backbench or a member of the Government.

We have come far enough and it is now necessary for us to examine where we are at in this country. We need to use the intelligence and the knowledge of the Minister of Education, for example, to chart out a new ideological direction for this country.

Without ideals, people will be unable to follow. There will be a lack of structure and we will find that government in this country will continue to be that institution which argues about budgets and pays very little attention to the state of the collective consciousness of its people. While we have concerned ourselves over the years with prudent spending, our children have gone to the devil. Our families are being disrupted and destroyed, Mr. Speaker, by the kind of new social and economic relationships that they have had to enter into.

Mr. Speaker, I think an analysis of our condition is necessary because there are those who would like to find solutions and apply solutions without even understanding the essence of the problems which we are dealing with. The problems are deep-rooted when a country finds itself at the point where it must define itself if it is to continue to exist as an entity but is incapable of defining itself since it can find very little evidence in the past of its collective existence. What I am saying here, is that we need to imagine ourselves as a nation and then begin to build ourselves into a nation.

The nation will not exist simply by us bringing in new reform measures, which are part of the bureaucracy of a nation, but is not the soul of the nation. The soul of the nation, which has to do with the beliefs, values, sentiments of its people and its collective consciousness, is in fact what I am in search of. I am happy to know that the Governor could report the progress being made with regards the writing of a history for the Cayman Islands.

It is again unfortunate that when we talk about nation-building and recognising the importance of recognising ourselves as a unique entity—not just geographical but social, mental, moral—we are still waiting for history that has not been written by one of us. Yet we are talking about how many Caymanians are employed here and there, and this and that about Cayman. But when it comes to an important intellectual function like that of creating a dialogue with the present, we are talking about a product that will be completed and delivered to us by someone who has not lived among us. We will be satisfied somehow that it will give us an idea of who we are, what we are, where we are coming from and where we will be going.

Why, Mr. Speaker, is it necessary for us to only recognise Caymanians when that Caymanian is one of us, meaning us. When it is me that I say is a Caymanian, then it is me that should be respected. It is me that should be promoted and rewarded. But when it is you then I turn around and say it is not as important in your case as it is in my case. Or if the Caymanian happened to be from my family it is important. But when it happens to be from your family it is not that important. Or the Caymanian happens to be from my district it is important, but when he goes from your district it is not as important.

That kind of division that we see is still existing and has existed in the past even more critically. We need to talk about Caymanianness from one perspective. Not talk about Caymanians and Caymanian status holders either, because that is a part of the continuation of the confusion which we are entering into. We need to shape the past in such a way that it will serve to give the present more meaning and more clarity, and to give directions to us for the future.

The writing of a history seems unimportant to many because what is history going to do to feed us. We need to know where we are at and where we are going rather than where we come from, you will hear a lot of people say. Some people will even say that it is probably best to forget where we came from because it might not have been too pleasant. And why does he remind me about how poor I used to be, or who my Mama was, because that only brings back the role that I played socially and confuses it with the role I hope to play today. So there are a lot of us in small communities that have no desire to see the past revisit us. There are a lot of us that have spent so much time trying to rush away and run away from a past that we all must have thought somehow hid dark secrets that we did not want to deal with.

So, to choose someone to write a history of our past that you, yourself, cannot be sure of because what is this past? You choose someone to write this history for you who is not of you and then the problem continues. When the person writes you are not satisfied with the way he interprets certain issues in your past. You are not sure that he is not trying to put you down, make you look like the others, not make you look special as you think you are or would like to be. So your dialogue becomes stagnated and you find yourself in the position where you cannot accept that particular interpretation of your past. The same position that we have found ourselves in, in hiring someone to write our history is the same position that we find ourselves in, in hiring someone to govern us.

We have a Governor from England. We have a constitution from England. We have a lot of civil servants from England. We have a lot from England—but at the same time we have a problem with England. So what do we do?

Hon. Roy Bodden: Imperialism!

Dr. Frank S. McField: What kind of state do we find ourselves in collectively. How do we begin to seriously select what is useful and what is not useful with regards the opinions which people are giving us? How do we know what to believe and what not to believe?

The nation is set in a state of confusion. The lack of structure. The lack of ideals. The lack of beliefs in anything and anyone that has set our nation in a state of confusion. Kids, Mr. Speaker, what can I say! They find more unity, more consistency, more surety, more pride more dignity in some of the things that are, yes, told to them on the Black Entertainment Network than they find in the things that we have to say to them. What we forget is that man cannot live by bread alone and people need to believe in heroes. People need to believe in progress. People need to have trust. People need to feel the familiar feelings and warmth of community. People need to have social bonds. People need to be able to presume that others think as they do. People need to belong to social groups. People need an identity. People need a heritage. People need a history. All that people do, the Caymanian people do as well.

So we have spent the last twenty years denying the fact that history as it is written, as it is interpreted, is as important to those today as the things that the people in history were doing at the time in which they were doing was to them. When we, what I would consider, the new Caymanian intellectuals, came back to Cayman in the seventies and started talking about the need for people to have ideas, understanding, principles and identity, everyone said we were dissatisfied with the way things were and we wanted to overthrow the status quo.

I must say that this is my first opportunity to compliment the present Minister for Education for having made that long journey from the streets of Cayman to, I would say, one of the highest offices in Cayman—to have made that journey with all the obstacles placed in his path, to have made that journey from there to here . . . I am saying this because I would also like for some of the younger Members of the Legislative Assembly to understand that the change they will now inherit is not something that happened by accident. It was conceived in the imagination of members of our society who knew long ago that philosophy was not dead. Philosophy was the beginning of the need to make into reality, the desire to make into reality and the intention to make into reality certain dreams that we had for our country—that people could be better educated, more capable of living together with dignity and pride and not live in a state where we cannot truly speak out to one another, where we have to play these patronising games with each other, where we do not know what and how to please.

So the change that we now accept as ours started to happen in this country sometime ago. I recall many times as I went into the galleries here and looked down and thought how incredible this place was down here. How far removed somehow. The only way you could come in contact with people in this Legislative Assembly was if you came down here and tried to look them up somehow. The reality was that the relationships we had were not genuine relationships that people should have with their people simply because we found ourselves in a position where we recognised that there was a difference but we would not show that recognition in the way in which we acted towards one another.

Many people recognised, for instance, that I am a black Caymanian. When I came back in 1977 I had ideas, of course, that many, without even knowing those ideas, condemned. So I share a part of the pride in seeing the Minister for Education in the position that he is in. So regardless of how critical I might become of the government, Mr. Speaker, I still owe a certain amount of support to that Minister because of the history that I am conscious of, that he is conscious of and that we participated in making. Not only the two of us, Mr. Speaker, but I would say that at this particular point that is something that is very pointing to me.

We talked about colonialism. We tried to explain to people what that meant back then. Today, there is no urgency that I have from an individual perspective at my age, but nevertheless there seems to be a need for us to see that history and what it means. If we begin to look at the problems which we have today – the problem of the distribution of resources in our society – we will see why it is so difficult today to decide who to collect the funds from and who to distribute the funds from. The partnership that started, for instance, when Cayman was made more commercialised, brought into what I would term the capitalist orbit by virtue of the fact that the hotels and the banks were established here. We interpreted this as meaning that they were altruistic, that they were doing this for to help us because we were such nice people. We were the nicest people, the greatest people in the Caribbean and everything was happening for us. It was all for us they were doing this. So some thirty years later to find out that it was not for us but it was for them that they were doing it upsets a lot of people but it does not upset me, Mr. Speaker, because I never thought that they were doing it for us. I always thought that they were doing it for themselves.

So I am not going to get over anxious in terms of trying to change the balance with regards the relationships. I am not going to spend time criticising the OECD, the British White Paper or the monopoly which the banks and tourist sector have over the Cayman Islands. I want to try to put that in some perspective and show why we are in the financial situation that we are in with regards the budget.

Mr. Speaker, from the very beginning that we started this new modern Cayman it was expected that those that came here to invest would benefit, otherwise they would not have come here in the first place. The fact that we saw that we could benefit as well was, of course, true but twenty years ago I knew that the Caymanian people as a whole would be fragmented. That their social bonds and relationships would be stressed and torn apart. We would have social decay, social crises and then at the end of the day that could not be considered to be beneficial to our Caymanian people.

So, obviously what we were talking about, in my understanding from the very beginning, is that special interest would benefit. Special groups of people, special individuals were to benefit from the development of this Cayman at the pace in which it was being developed.

The sale of our land, Mr. Speaker. What do we do? We sell our land to get revenue to turn around and build roads for the cars that are coming in from other countries fuelling the industries of other countries. That is what we do. We tax in order to improve infrastructure so that business can be more efficient. So in being more efficient it has less need for our own Caymanian people.

Business like the banks that seem only to have turned valuable positions into menial positions, where we see our young women being poorly paid cashiers. We see in the hotels the development of jobs that are low paid that no one wants. In order to get these people to come here to create these jobs we have to give tax concessions to them to import and then we have to turn around and put duties on the foodstuff that the people that are working in these lowly paid jobs are eating. This is the way we have developed over the years.

So in trying to find a political direction in this country, the new government is going to have to pay attention to the way in which these contradictions have developed because you cannot have your cake and eat it too. It is necessary for them to call a spade a spade. And to say that the relationships that have developed have done so to a point where they are very unfair relationships and that they cannot correct these relationships by taxing the poor people in order to create more social programmes to try to deal with the social damage—which has been created in this country over the last thirty years—because the social damage will increase at a pace that their taxation will not be able to increase.

Even if we are going to use the question of Caymanian ownership of business, we have to see somehow that what we are going to try to get ownership of is a small insignificant business. We are not trying to get control of larger business, because it is incredible how the development has been in this country. It has been a peculiar kind of colonial development that has not emphasised any other portion of the economy besides tourism and banking – both sides that could easily slip away and go some place thereby creating a fear in the hearts of people who say, 'We cannot do anything. We are stuck with this relationship. Although we are unhappy we cannot do anything because they can always get up and go some place else'. That kind of fear and pessimism we have in our midst.

But they develop these sectors and what goes along with banking? Big law firms and big accounting firms who occupy these positions. [Did] these firms develop at a rate that would have taken into account the training of Caymanians to take those jobs? No! The establishment of those firms had nothing to do with Caymanian human resources in the first place. So they were allowed to develop in such a way that they have then impact on the social relationships which exist between us in these Islands.

The managers of the hotels have also become a part of that new class of imported labour, the skilled labour, the managerial class, that have become more powerful and more dictatorial than any other group that we have had in this society. So every time you try to get a little bit more from them with regards trying to mend some of the social fences and the decay, they are able to shout us down and put us down and make us seem like we are a bunch of chumps.

If we are going to have a new kind of government, then that government is going to have to have backbone to stand up and not just analyse the problem, but come with some solutions to the problems. The solution, again, must have something to do with Caymanians or Cayman getting its part of the pie—not the one in the sky but the one right here. That is only going to happen if we have a government that can say, 'look we cannot run this partnership this way anymore because let me tell you what is happening'.

While you think everything is okay, it is not okay. Simply because the impact which the presence of capital has had in this country over the last thirty years has created so much social decay. In order to be able to restructure and to put the country back in a position where harmony would exist and be guaranteed, we have to do this amount of spending because we never spent in these areas properly before. We have to get money for these programmes and we cannot get money by continually taking it from poor people, making them poorer and making them more a part of the problem that we are trying to solve.

We have to deal with the contradictions. This is the change that I want to see and that I would have like to be a part of. This is a change that from this side of the House I will support. I am not asking anyone to be Robin Hood. But let me say, I will support a move to create some type of cohesiveness, solidarity and togetherness in this country. I believe that the only way that can be done, the only class that is capable of allowing that to happen, is the political class in this country – those of us in this Legislative Assembly.

It is our job to take that collective consciousness and elevate it to a level that it has never been elevated to before in this country. Simply because people felt that as long as you could stagnate and stifle the collective consciousness you could control the country [as] there was no one they were answerable to. They could come in here and make and dictate the terms but not if you have a conscious political group in this country. I am not necessarily advocating the political party system at the moment. I am talking about those of us in here beginning to act as a political elite, defending a specific political national consciousness in this country—not the consciousness of petty nationalism but a greater consciousness.

There is that need for us to have leaders. There is that need for us to follow. Mr. Speaker, I will have no hesitation in following those persons who have committed themselves to this development, to the development of a national political consciousness in this country that will stress the fact that Caymanians need to control what is important in this country. In doing that, I am also emphasising that we have to expand the whole concept of what is Caymanian and who is Caymanian. That has been stagnant for too long, too undynamic a concept for too long.

A new government will handle the issue of immigration not just as a plague but also as something that has positively impacted the ideas of our country as well as the material conditions of our country. But even in integrating and assimilating the different cultures and nationalities in this country, we are still moving forward. We are still insisting upon reaching the New Jerusalem – that new conscious level in this country. A country that will be a sharing caring country again but it will not just be those who were the original settlers that will share and care; it will be those new persons who can dedicate their lives to this new concept of this New Jerusalem.

There comes a time when we must allow men to choose ideas and not just 'houseware and kitchenware'. When I say 'choose ideas', Mr. Speaker, I mean choose a belief system that goes beyond the national strategic plan because that is telling us ideally what people want, but it is not telling us how people will sacrifice to get what they want. It is only when people learn that to get what you want you have to give up something, you have to sacrifice something, you have to become committed to something, will we be going someplace.

We want to find people to motivate a government to get commitments, to empower them over there to be able to say, 'We speak for the Legislative Assembly'. The Legislative Assembly speaks for the people of the Cayman Islands because with regards to certain principles we are united behind the beliefs that in finding these new values we can somehow find new commitment, re-establish destroyed social bonds and create the basis for solidarity and re-enact our society again.

The Speaker: May I interrupt you a minute.

Once I get a quorum, it would be a convenient time to take the afternoon break.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.32 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.00 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate continuing on the Throne Speech and Budget Address. The Third Elected Member for George Town continuing.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As I was saying we need a new national collective consciousness and I do believe that people have underestimated the tremendous role that political ideology plays in any society in maintaining structure and cohesiveness. Especially a society that has so rapidly increased its human numbers and its material productivity like ours, the need for some kind of thread to run through the entire process to connect everyone is of absolute importance. It is underestimated by those, of course, who would prefer to see weak government in order to be able to hold the wishes of the people at random. And at the same time lose when, in fact, the weakness of our government, the lack of role models and the lack of anything that is concrete with regards to identification causes our young people, in particular, to begin to disassociate with us and associate themselves with what they might consider to be more potent cultural forms of existence.

So when we look at the question of modernisation or reform in our country we have to be asking the question about which do we do first, the political reform or the bureaucratic reform. The political reform, Mr. Speaker, as far as I am concerned should come first because only then will the bureaucracy be in a position to carry out the directorates of the political machinery. If the bureaucratic reform comes first, it means that there must be someone who has already developed and designed this perfect bureaucratic solution to the question of man's government. I do not believe that any country can claim to have done this.

So the first model that I would like to see is the constitutional reform. But the constitutional reform cannot be just mechanical. It cannot be called by the Governor and happen in any productive manner. As I have said to the persons from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) what is lacking in this relationship between us and Britain is the possibility for meaningful dialogue. I do not mean that this is their fault because it is mostly our fault as most of us are not outspoken and when we get before certain people we start assuming that we know what they want us to say and how they want us to act. We start acting and saying these things as if we have a premonition as to what they want from us. I believe one of our great weaknesses in this country in the political arena is that we tend to assume too much when we should explore and see what it is that they want because sometimes they do not know exactly what it is that they want since what they want has to do with other people.

So if they are talking about us how can they be sure what they want for us? There must be some degree of confusion. So we must challenge their ideologies, their principles to appoint where partnership becomes meaningful, because partnership is based upon exchange, openness and transparency. And that will result in a readjustment in the relationship that will benefit both parties if both parties consider this relationship to be something that should continue in the future.

Now, when you say that we should have a constitutional review, the whole question of a constitution is put before consciousness. I would like a review of our consciousness that will then act as the mechanism which then reviews the Constitution because the Constitution is the result of the conceptualisation of where it is that we want to go. As I said at the beginning, the difference between the man and the animal is that the man begins with idea and ends with the product—he separates himself from the product. There is a conceptual stage and then there is the implementation stage. The Constitution is a part of the implementation stage if not the conceptual part.

Now, how do you put three [persons] on a committee to conceptualise something that should involve this collective consciousness that I am speaking about? Obviously, they are not involved in anything more than a mechanical bureaucratic exercise. It is ordered by bureaucrats who only know bureaucracy and bureaucratic procedure. I am talking about how to produce relationships, bonds between people that will be lasting and that will create for us a national identity that will allow us the possibility to go through the stormy seas of change. This is only going to be necessary when the politicians that the people are paying become seriously involved in looking at what is necessary to make their country a part of this modern growth.

Now, we have a lot of young people in here who are full-time, and they have dedicated their time to their country. But they are going to find after a while that a lot of people are coming to them simply with complaints that they cannot do anything about. They are going to find that after a while they need to do something with their time and they will probably become like me—they will get involved in some kind of organisation that has something to do with motivating the grass root people of this country, to take more initiative in becoming a part of the solution to the problems they are complaining to us about.

When that day comes the whole mechanism which should drive the political machinery will be set in motion because there are those who believe that by ordering a constitutional review we will have solutions to the problems with regards to participatory democracy. When participatory democracy is not solely based on a constitution, it is based upon the people believing that somehow the persons who represent them know them and can act for them. They can only know them and act for them if they have the ability and the possibility to give those people the instructions to be able to accomplish this job.

So, why is it we are not discussing with England the difficulties which we have in creating a political environment which allows us the possibility to make government something that drives, that pulls them, rather than something that is driven by crises, by an individual person's problems.

When we make a law today we find that the law is wrong simply because we find someone tomorrow that was not covered by the law or who is somehow given some hardship as a result of the law and we want to all of a sudden break the law in order to deal with these kinds of problems. A government that is sometimes schizophrenic in its very being, simply because it is driven from all directions and we do not know what the centre of power is, what drives it, what motivates it. We need to know what drives and motivates the political machinery in this country. Then when we identify that we are being placed in a position to better perform in accordance with the rituals, the values and the beliefs of that political state.

The whole idea that politics destroy society, that politics destroyed the West Indies, that politics destroyed the so-called Third World countries, yet the First World countries are still so dependent upon politics . . . It goes to show that politics is necessary, whether or not it hinders sometimes or it assists. The fact is, in dealing with human beings we have to use politics—not politricks but politics. Politics being the involvement of the community in conceptualising where it is that they want to go. That particular process, I believe, some persons thought was accomplished with the strategic plan for this Island, the 1999 - 2000 Strategic Plan.

That is the type of ideology which you have today, those persons who believe that for every queh-he and every pain, you have a strategic study and plan for everything. But the Strategic Plan does not give us an answer on how to bind people together and how to get commitment from them, which is what we need at the end of the day if we are going to move from Point A to Point B. We need commitment and questionnaire sociology is not the answer to the problems that we have because we all know how to ask questions. We can all empower this questionnaire sociology methodology but it is not going to solve the problem of how to get your citizens involved in becoming a part of the solution to the problems or the challenges that they face. This will call for greater political activism.

When we try to talk to people about greater responsibility in our community, getting more involved in our community with regards to youth, seeing the poor in our community and trying to assist the poor rather than relying upon the government to give welfare cheques to the poor. When we think about how to get sons and daughters to pay more attention to their elderly parents. We have to do this, not by giving more welfare money. This is not why we would say that we need to raise more revenue to give more money because money is the root of the problem and money is not the solution of the problem. Therefore, to give a family more money is not the solution. The solution must come by giving the family the values, the beliefs and the ideas to be able to work through the difficulties, which they have, and to be able to find the solutions. Why is it that you should take care of your parents? Why should you take care of your children?

The fact you are given $600 a month to take care of them would that make you take care of them?

Will you take care of them? Probably not! But love, trust, lack of fear, that whole idea that these people are special—these are the ideals and the values that we need to get across and reinforce to people in our society. Not by telling that this is so but by demonstrating to them that this is so and this is the only way that we at the end of the day can live in harmony and in peace when we have fulfilled our social responsibilities.

If the people who are better off in the society are not willing to fulfil their responsibilities when they believe that money is more important [as] they have a belief in money super-ideological structure that people should not pay taxes, dues and should not have corporate responsibilities, then why should someone leave the United States where they do not want to have corporate responsibility and come to the Cayman Islands and have corporate responsibility? It does not make any sense. If the man who is investing the money in the banks does not have corporate responsibility why should the lawyer who is assisting him in being able to accomplish this have corporate responsibility? It begins to spread down and no one does anything unless you pay them. In a society that operated without cash 30 - 40 years ago we now need cash to accomplish everything. No one will barter anymore. No one will do anything anymore unless it is motivated by money. You need, therefore, ideas, values, beliefs to change that.

The only people who can push these ideals, values, or beliefs are people in the institutions—either the churches or the government. The churches have their domain and they do their part, and now we must have the political machinery also to do their part. Government should not just exist as an institution to deliver services to people. Government should also exist as an ideological institution—as an institution of ideas, values and beliefs about how best to live together in communion with one another.

That is what government's role is all about and has always been: to structure the society; to make sure that structure continues to be able to exert influence whether or not it is cohesive influence, or gentle persuasion. However it is achieved, that social control in the society has to be exerted by government. But if government does not know who it is, what it is, what its interest is, who it represents, it is confused about its own identity, then obviously government cannot accomplish that.

When we say government, we are talking about government from a point of the institution of government not as individuals in particular roles. So we see just how a mechanical review of a constitution would not accomplish what we need to accomplish today. And it might not necessarily be the best thing for this Island because it might send us back into a panic of disagreement when our people are not prepared to understand the role in which politics play in every society, and the role in which politics must play in their society in giving them a feeling of importance.

Every human being must die but that is not what is important. What is important is that we can die for something that we believe in. What it is that we can die for, or that we can live for, or that we can sacrifice for by committing for. We have been deprived in this country of that and that is the colonialism that we need to talk about. The fact that people can assume that human beings can exist in a benevolent way in society without any head or tail or direction but they can exist in a vacuum. That is where the problem is because as long as we believe that is so we will never be able to create that nationality, that idea of this New Jerusalem which we need to create.

Mr. Speaker, I think about relationships—individual relationship, institutional relationships. Relationships help to preserve the activities or stimulate the activities, therefore, it is important that if we are going to have constitutional review and constitutional modernisation, that all the politicians understand that they are going to have to work even harder because there will be people on the outside who will be preaching, 'they are trying to change the Constitution'.

That is one reason I understand that the most important thing that we have to do is not necessarily change the Constitution, but to change the consciousness because once the consciousness is changed the Constitution will also be changed. I could change the Constitution any day from my point of view because what is it telling me anyway? All the Constitution is doing is telling us what the hierarchy is with regards to the decision-making process. The Constitution that we have put the people on the bottom and put someone who is not elected on the top. That is not a democratic constitution. I am democrat in that sense. I believe in democracy. I believe in people's participation. It is no wonder therefore that the people ask what is the point of voting because once you vote, all they want is your vote. Nothing is going to happen.

A lot of the people believe that they should not vote for me for nothing because I am getting something out of it. That means that we have failed to convince the people that they are the motor that drives the car. They believe it is for someone else and 'let us go and complain to someone else and let someone else do it'. But you know what happens? That turns around and the people come and say, 'Well, when something is needed then someone else has to provide it too because if you want to be King then you will have to pay a price for that'.

So they expect a welfare government and that is not what I advocate. Although I believe we should have a sharing, caring, government according to our culture and our heritage of sharing and caring in the past. Those core principles, I believe, we can agree upon that will be useful in creating this collective consciousness—the principle of caring and sharing. But sharing should only come after caring, so if you cannot care you cannot share.

In other words, if you have not contributed something there should be nothing there for you. You should not be able to just go and say, 'Well, I am a Caymanian and therefore I deserve this'. The new consciousness, the new government should be saying you have to be involved in putting in before you can take out. There will be those who will say, 'Well, I have already put in and therefore I should be taking out'. This is the job that government has also, to be in the position where it has to continue to structure how favours are done and according to what basis favours are done. When I say favours, I do not mean that you are doing some kind of privilege things to certain persons.

So the issue of how we mature politically is an interesting question — not only politically but sociologically because it will help us to replace those social bonds that were destroyed during that period of rapid economic development, and commercialisation of relationships in the Cayman Islands. So when we are going to be critical of England, as I have heard many members suggest not just in this House but outside this House, we are still acting, as far as I am concerned, immature.

When we become critical of ourselves we are acting like big men who start criticising ourselves for the state in which our 'House' is in. If we are going to put our 'House in order, we have to start to put ourselves in order first. We have to stop saying bad things about one another and say some positive things about [each] other. We have to stop pulling one another down and start pushing each other up.

When we look at the total failure of our social bonds and our social relationships, we do not just jump over to find an opponent to fight because we have to repair too much damage that has been done in our society over the last thirty years before we look for any kind of conflict or confrontation. We have enough conflict and confrontation among our ranks in this country. No one seems to like the other person. Everyone seems jealous of the other. Everyone is fearful of the other. No one trusts.

And why do you think that condition has been allowed to exist? Is it fear? We are all fearful because of the fact that so much stress has come as a result of the commercialisation of our relationship over the last thirty years. I believe that he only wants this because he wants these things for himself and if he gets a chance he is going to take every penny I get, so I am not going to lend Mama nothing because when she has something she is not going to lend me and I do not know the day I am going to need. We are all fearful of our existence. That is the problem — we cannot trust one another anymore and we cannot say anything nice about one another anymore.

Once we understand this, we no longer treat it as a permanent problem but as a temporary imposition that we can move away from as soon as we understand the positive role that political development can now play in our society. There are those, again, who will say 'be careful they are talking about politics. They are talking about putting ideas in people's heads,' but if you do not put some ideas in people's heads somebody else will come and put ideas in their head.

When we were saying that it would be better for us to put some political ideas and ideals in the heads of young people, they said, 'no because it would be bad. You guys are black power people. You guys are communist people. You guys are bad for the Island.' But now when the gangsters are putting ideas in their heads and the kids are out there killing one another and the kids are out there doing things, Mr. Speaker, will it stop? I do not know. But what I am saying is, someone is putting ideas in their heads and it goes to show that every head needs ideas and every head will welcome ideas.

So let us rally and get to the point – to the cause of creating new ideas, new values and new beliefs for the new Caymanian. A Cayman that will not be exclusive but a Cayman that will be critical of those and those things that it includes. Before it does include and say that these are a part of the core parts of the Cayman Islands, that we go through a thorough examination of the kinds of effects or roles that these parts will play.

In all, I believe, Mr. Speaker, that the question of what is a Caymanian and who is a Caymanian is essential. I noticed this morning that the Minister of Tourism was talking about housing and he said, 'Caymanians and people of Caymanian status—a new nation, a dynamic nation that understands the role of immigration, integration and assimilation will begin to talk about Caymanians and not Caymanian status, whether or not they were born here.'

So we have to begin to learn how to 'talk the talk' and 'walk the walk' in creating this new Cayman that will be made up of the positive results of the last thirty years of rapid economic development that has brought us not only capital, but it has also brought us human capital. We have to learn now how to mould both the human capital and the material capital in such a way that we can create a new Cayman Islands out of what we have now.

Mr. Speaker, this will be enough for this evening, I think.

HOUR OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of interruption, 4.30 pm.

I would entertain a motion under Standing Order 10(2) for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday morning at 10 am.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 am, April 4. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. This Honourable House stands adjourned until 10 am. April 4.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 AM FRIDAY, 4 APRIL 2001.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
WEDNESDAY
4 APRIL 2001
10.04 AM
Fourteenth Sitting

[Prayers read by the Third Elected Member for George Town.]

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies from the Honourable First Official Member who is presently overseas.

Moving on to item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Ministers and Members of Government. Deferred Question No. 38 standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 38

(Deferred Wednesday 28 March 2001)

No. 38: Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr. asked the Honourable Minister responsible for the Ministry of Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports what is the status of the Cayman Brac playing field in regard to the proposed completion time and budgeted cost versus actual.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: The Cayman Brac playing field had an estimated project cost of $675,000 and was to be completed in 2000. The Public Works Department, prior to the approval of the 2000 Budget, provided this estimate.

The total cost of this project, as estimated by Cayman Engineering Ltd, in January 2000 was: $1,778,798 if the field is grassed; $1,947,162 if the Field Turf is used instead of grass.

Total expenditure to date on field, access road, track and covered bleachers is $572,018. This figure does not include $89,000 for the purchase of land.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: I see an estimate in the Hansard for $675,000 and then I see some other estimates. I am not exactly sure. I also see that we have spent $572,000.

Could the Minister state which one of these estimates we are working on? Also, if she could state what was to be included in this project when it was initially started, whether it was a playing field or what was involved in the project.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: The figure of $675,000, I understand, was put in by Public Works. As to how they arrived at that costing we are not sure. The other figures are costings done by Cayman Engineering Limited.

To the other part of his question as to what was included in the original briefing note, Mr. Speaker, I will not make mention of the irrigation, or the area topography access.

Phase 1 of the project would consist of site preparation to accommodate a maximum international size football field, 120 yards X 80 yards, with a walking/running 8 lane 400 metre track. Initially, it is proposed to have a grass surface for the track.

Future phases will include, but are not limited to, the following:

- The 400 metre 8 lane athletic track with Mondo surface, changing rooms, storage rooms, office, conference/lecture room, canteen and public toilet facilities
- Covered seating to accommodate 1,000 to 1,500 spectators
- Additional lighting
- Two hard courts
- Cricket pitch wickets
- Softball and/or baseball pitches
- Proper parking facilities; and
- Proper fencing

I think then, Mr. Speaker, later on this was changed, and if you give me a moment I will read:

"Future phases will include but not limited to the following: hurricane shelter similar in construction to the East End and North Side Shelter to accommodate approximately 250 - 350 persons; the 400-metre 8 lane athletic track; changing rooms; office; covered seating; additional lighting and; proper parking facilities.”

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: From the year 2001 Budget it would suggest that the $1.9 million figure is being used for the estimate. Can the Minister confirm whether the field will be re-turfed rather than grassed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: It is my understanding that the previous Minister preferred the turf rather than grass because of the cost to water the grass, therefore, it is based upon using the turf.

The Speaker: Any other supplementaries?
The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: Like the Minister said, she does not know where Public Works got this $675,000. I find that disheartening and of grave concern since we have a budget right now that we are going through. I am sure a lot of the capital projects are based on Public Works Estimates, and if they are overextended we have a grave potential problem.

Can the Minister state whether the field, upon completion, will be completed to an international grade facility that can be used for international sporting events?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: The Cayman Islands' Football Association has replied yes, but we are still seeking permission from FIFA as to whether it will be.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Would the Honourable Minister give this House an indication as to the expected completion date for the entire project?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Unfortunately, I cannot give this commitment or give you a date of the completion of the entire project. It depends on funds being available.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: I do appreciate the position taken by the Minister.

Can the Minister indicate if the proposed design and format of the project will remain the same under her directorship, or will there be changes to the design?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I will have to get a costing of the entire project, if we are going to put a hurricane shelter, a 400 metre running track and basketball court before I can commit this country to that kind of expenditure. We must get value for money expended.

The Speaker: Supplementary, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman do you have a follow-up?

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: Can the Minister confirm that the project of the Cayman Brac Football Field is inclusive of the hurricane shelter? I see in the 2001 Budget there are two separate items and the $1.9 million stated for the football field is separate and apart from the $2.1 million estimate for the hurricane shelter. Are these projects to be viewed as one project or two separate, individual projects?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: These two projects have appeared in the budget of these islands over the last couple of years as two separate projects: one is under government public buildings, and the other is under sports.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: I understand that the Minister has taken over responsibility for ongoing projects and I am not sure that she will be able to answer this. In one of her previous answers she mentioned a facility that could accommodate somewhere between 1,000 to 1,500 people. I wonder if the Minister has any access to the reasoning behind providing a facility that can seat 1,500 people on an island that has a population of somewhere around 2,000 people. If we take the ones in Grand Cayman, for example, they are usually based around one-tenth of the population size or less. To go to 100 percent of the population, I just wonder the reasoning for that.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I will research this and get the answer to the Honourable Member in writing, however, I do not have a clue as to why this decision was taken. I do believe the covered bleachers have already been erected.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. Cline A. Glidden, Jr.: On an earlier answer as well, the Minister stated that the previous Minister preferred turf instead of grass. Now, on a recent visit to Cayman Brac, we looked at the proposed location and saw that there are difficulties with doing grass because of the water supply on the Bluff. It is of grave concern if we are spending this amount of money on a project, and we put grass because water is a problem, but then we are not allowed to use it for international competition. It would be a major disservice, especially when we talk about value for money.

Although the Minister stated the previous preference was turf, can she say now what kind of surfacing will be used on the facility?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, this paper from Public Works has given us a breakdown of the yearly maintenance fees of a traditional grass field versus a turf field, which I think must have been why the decision was made to go with the turf.

After 15 years of maintenance for a grass field, the running total would cost this country $1,561,450, whereas with the turf it would cost the country $765,813. If I am to understand the Member, does that mean we cannot use the turf for international football games? I am not sure. Is that the reason?

The Government will have to look at the position, Mr. Speaker, and make a decision which direction we will go.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Lyndon L. Martin: The football field at the High School is the only field in the Brac that is now accessible to the youth and adults who participate in soccer, softball, baseball and cricket. In the event that this field is not completed in the year 2001, as it is not budgeted for, has the Minister put in place any provisions to have some temporary measure to isolate this field from the High School itself in the form of fencing?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I will undertake to discuss this with the Honourable Member, because I think prior to going to this football field that we are now building there were two other sites identified in Cayman Brac but they were not chosen. We went to the piece on the Bluff. We will discuss later, along with the Minister of Education, how we can do something with the High School football field to assist the youth in Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?
No further supplementaries. Moving on to Question number 53 standing in the name of the Elected Member for East End.

DEFERRED OF QUESTION NO.53

Standing Order 23(5)

No. 53: Mr. V. Arden McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Internal and External affairs to explain the protocols of General Orders, Financial and Stores Regulations and the Public Finance and Audit Law and Regulations that govern the responsibilities of public service employees in relation to the performance of their duties with respect to financial accountability.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I had anticipated and had conveyed to the Business Committee the expectation that this answer would have been ready for today. Unfortunately, that is not the case. I humbly beg leave of the House under Standing Order 23(5) to have the question deferred until Friday, 6 April 2001.

The Speaker: I shall put the motion that Standing Order 23 (5) be suspended in order that this question be deferred to a later sitting. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question number 53 has been deferred to a later sitting.

AGREED: QUESTION 53 DEFERRED TO A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. Moving on to item number 4 on today's Order Paper, Government Business, Bills, Second Reading, the Appropriation Bill 2001, Continuation of the Debate on the Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday, 9 March 2001, together with a Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member on Wednesday, 21st March 2001.

The Third Elected Member for George Town continuing his debate.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION BILL, 2001

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR ON FRIDAY 9 MARCH 2001

TOGETHER WITH

THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON WEDNESDAY 21 MARCH 2001

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, thank you.

When I broke last evening I had reached a part in my debate that had allowed for me to develop a framework, a perspective, within which we can better understand the dreams of the people and how those dreams are mapped out in the Throne Speech and budgetary process, which is a necessary part of completing these projects. I also paid specific attention to the lack of ideological development in the Cayman Islands and showed that, in fact, society is held together by the ideas, by the creative and imaginative processes of the individuals involved.

I tried to show that before you can have a chair, you must have the idea of the chair. In other words, before we could have this Cayman Islands today, we needed some idea at the conception stage in order to work towards building what it is we have.

I showed that the dominant players in the game have always been non-Caymanians. The whole capital that has been used to develop our country, and too many of the human resources employed have come from elsewhere. This creates a peculiar type of environment condition.

Today we see the degeneration of what we consider to be Caymanian culture; Caymanian heritage and a Caymanian way of life fall by the wayside and make room for the more powerful forces of commercial development. We begin to understand that not only did our traditional economic institutions become weak in the face of a much more modern and rapid commercial development, but our social institutions were weakened as well by this particular situation.

If we are talking about the decay in our society—the social problems which come from the destruction of social bonds, from the change in the moral and mental orientation of the people—we have to see that this is the result of the rapid economic development which has impacted our traditional Caymanian environment in such a way that it has, in a sense, created traumatic experiences for institutions and individuals. This has been recognised by most persons who have researched the Cayman Islands and have passed judgement as to the cause of the moral decay.

We are in crisis. We see that government is in crisis. Government rules by crisis and has been for a very long time. People are in crisis. People are managing their individual problems on a crisis-management basis, the same basis as the individual we find on the social level.

So once we have the ability to understand our environment, we then begin to conceptualise plans to create meaningful changes. I have said already I believe that the political processes which have been introduced by way of the White Paper, for instance, are interesting. They bring the idea, the moral outlook or superstructure into Caymanian realities.

Before, a lot of us would say, 'Well, what is all that talk about? They are only talking nonsense. Oh, that old fool should shut up. He talks too much anyway' because talk is cheap. We were encouraging a more common-sense type of approach to all the problems.

I understand what people mean by "common-sense approach". What we need is a much broader outlook. We need a much more informed outlook. We have to go beyond the common-sense approach and have the social intelligence at the end of the day that will allow us to manage our society in such a way to create efficiency, preserve harmony and enrich development—culturally, spiritually, socially and so forth.

We find that there is no one focus. We have, for instance, the Department of Culture talking about culture. We have the Department of Education talking about Education. We have the Social Services Department talking about social services. We have all kinds of divisions in our society with regards to who should be responsible for which aspect of the community's development.

Some of our Members say—and have been for a long time—that everything is related. If we cannot see the inter-connection between all the different human aspects—the economic with the political, the political with the social, the social with the cultural—then we cannot understand the miracle of human existence. If we cannot understand the human condition, it is impossible to preserve, promote or improve it simply because we do not understand the dynamics.

The institution we now must rely upon in order to gain this understanding and have these improvements in our society is obviously government. Government has to play a more important role in this society for the following reasons:

There is no class of Caymanians that have the capital, intelligence or the self-expertise to maintain control. Therefore, if we were to have a continuous lassiez-faire approach as we had in the past we would find that the country would not belong to Caymanians. Caymanians would not recognise their country and their country would not recognise them.

So, for this particular reason, there are those who understand the dynamics in existence over the last thirty years—the economic, social and cultural forces that have removed these islands and the environment in these islands further away from those things that we call Caymanian. Those who understand the positive principle of that which is Caymanian—a caring and sharing communal type of existence—those who want to preserve that and to improve upon that must now become involved as the catalyst, as the agents, for this new approach.

We are content to say we can no longer have traditional divisions in the Legislative Assembly as before. The tool for improvement of the people is not a type of mechanical definition of political structure or some kind of Westminster mode. It is a consciousness, a responsibility that we all have as members of this society to ensure that the people become a part of the New Jerusalem.

In incorporating this type of analysis, I hope that people will not think it is pointless because the last government was one without ideas. They did not have any thinkers. They did not think it was possible or necessary. Those are the same people who talk about prudent spending, which is a merchant-class particular way of thinking, governing and running society. Bookkeeping management rather than societal management! People who think about pennies rather than the energies that create the pennies. People who believe that money is the beginning and the end rather than a means, and who are no way involved in the creation process or the implementation process.

There was a need for a change in this country and I believe I participated in helping that change to come about. When we addressed the breakdown of the family some 25 to 30 years ago we focused on: the need for pre-school education for a head start; the need to get involved in training families to teach their children; offering families the hook and line to catch the fish rather than just giving them the fish; and the need to get with the grass-root community to help them along the road to progress—social, educational and economical progress.

There were individuals who stood in the way of this change. They laughed and ridiculed us. Many of us were excluded from the decision-making process of our society.

Now the time has come when people have seen that it is necessary to involve us again, but it is late in the day. If we are not involved in the decision-making process of the society in a meaningful way, we will have no effect on the crises which the country faces. We can talk about the social problems, the need for a lock-up for the kids, the need for secure-remand faci-ties like those at the Marine Institute and the need to improve them.

When we recognise all the various stages of development of the human personality which we must take into account and all the different levels where we must intervene, it is frightening the type of human and monetary resources that will bear on these problems.

So, because of the way in which the country went forward so rapidly, it created trauma in the process of dislocating. Now we have to find the splinters of the accidents and put them together again, which is a very expensive process.

When the people are asked to be socially responsible and to contribute something towards this process, they say, 'No, not us. Without us you all are dead. Go and tax the poor who are working in the low paying jobs that we have created as a result of all the tax concessions that you have given us.' So we offer tax concessions to create low paying jobs for our people who, in turn, we tax in order to pay for the infrastructure that these companies—multinationals like the hotels, banks, trust companies and law firms—can benefit from.

So, all the people are using us in this country to create an environment that can produce the type of profits that they are looking for, and no one is telling them that they must think about social costs as well. That is why a new type of government, a stronger kind of government, is necessary in this country.

To say now that the Cayman Islands population as a whole would have been weakened by this development, and that is okay because that is what they like; there is no class of Caymanian, no group of Caymanian, no individual Caymanian with any kind of dedication to what is Caymanian who would stand up to any of these companies that are demanding they continue to operate in this country without being responsible for the social infrastructure. No one!

Those of us Caymanians who have been successful have been successful as a result of them approving of us. Those of us who they do not approve of are not supposed to have a voice, nor be able to have any kind of material conditions to affect any kind of change.

There is a need for the government to move away from the types of Throne Speeches that are delivered here to us which are so mechanical, which copy from one year to the next the same old thing and give us an approach, a concept, a new vision.

I was delighted when the Minister for Tourism got up and, at least, started to offer some creative thinking in terms of what he was going to do with regards to his Tourism Ministry and how he was thinking about getting people more involved in the tourism product and benefiting from it.

At the end of the day there are a lot of people who do not like us to talk about the haves and have-nots, but it is always back to talking about the haves and have-nots. Unless people learn how to share and care, there will always be the haves and have-nots. The haves will always distrust the have-nots and the have-nots will always distrust the haves. What is new? It is as old as history. It is as old as the history that says individuals should be concerned about themselves and their children than they are about mine.

We are no longer our brothers' keepers, and as long as we fail to be our brothers' keepers that is what will happen. The Israelites found that out a long time ago, the year of the Jubilee. They knew that if one group of individuals were always successful and the other ones were not, at the end of the day it would cause resentment and strife in the society and there would be a lack of harmony.

How is there supposed to be harmony in our society when every time I go to South Sound I see places that I could never be? Never! I am talking about me. What about those kids who see these things and know that they could never have them? Every time you drive through there you see people talking and acting in ways in which you know there is a certain kind of cohesiveness and solidarity between them that we do not have in our local communities. We understand, therefore, that as long as that picture is there—and in central George Town or parts of West Bay—there will be conditions created for conflict rather than conditions being created for harmony.

All I ask the present Government to be aware of is the fact that they cannot continue to advocate a policy of financing government that will depend on taxing the poor. Each time we come up with an idea of how to get funds to run anything in this country, we almost stagnate.

It is not that there are not a lot of people who are anxious to get involved with community activities; but at the end of the day you get involved with those community activities and the first thing you find is that there are no funds to do anything. There are no resources. Then when there are resources they have to come from the government. We have to continue begging the government for these resources which causes people to become more and more dependent upon government.

When government plays this role, there are persons in the private sector who turn around and say to us that government should not be so big, so involved or employ that amount of people.

When we look at the budget and the amount of money we spend on recurrent expenditure—the amount of money that past and present governments have spent on grants, subsidies and contributions—that is a big part of it.

There are those of us, of course, who say that we do not want a welfare state because there is a negative part. Yet, those of us who say this (and I am one) say, 'I don't want the welfare state' because we do not want people not to be a part of the solution to their own problem.

One thing that I must recognise and say is that welfare was not created because people were nice and the government was altruistic. The welfare state was created as a way of developing a buffer between the haves and the have-nots. If those people did not get welfare they would have got some other kind of 'fare'. They would have taken what they needed because that is human nature.

The welfare in America, the dole in England, and whatever they have in Germany and Switzerland, that was not all there. That was there to create a social buffer, to create a stabilising factor in the society so people would not fall below a level where it would be impossible to influence them with the positive norms of our society.

If you push people totally out of the mainstream they will create subcultures and they will begin to challenge the dominant values, firstly, by their own pattern of behaviour and, secondly, by more direct kinds of confrontation.

We do not want the welfare state, but we have to understand that we must apply certain types of social policies in this country in order to maintain a certain amount of social balance. There must be money for this.

I believe that the most effective programmes will be ones which involve the people in being a part of the decision-making process. It is not as important to give people the fish as it is to give people the line and teach them how to catch the fish. Of course, if they have the line and they do not know what to do with it, there are going to be problems, too.

So our country has to have a social outlook that is necessary—especially with the kind of economics that we have today.

We look at many of the jobs advertised in the paper and, in most cases, they are being re-advertised. Companies are only doing it because of the necessity for the work permit and the red tape they have to go through in order to get work permits for these jobs. The experience and education that is required means that there are a lot of our people who would not qualify for these jobs in any case.

The economic institutions we have are specialised to the point where they ask for an impossible educational and work-experience background. There are institutions that did not grow up naturally among us. Those are institutions which are exported from the developed countries into the under developed countries and, therefore, help to under develop the country even more.

There are those of us who say we are not a Third World country. We are worse off than a Third World country because most, at least, have an economy other than one imposed upon them by monopoly capitalism.

Those of us who boast see what happens when the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) comes down on us or when the people in the tourism sector do not get their way. When everyone cannot use us, we see that it does not belong to us but belongs to someone else.

So, we must watch how we continue to stress the infrastructural development of our country to accommodate these First World economies who think that somehow the Third World economy—like agriculture and other areas manufacturing small cottage industry as the Minister for Education and Human Resources always speak about—are no longer necessary. We have bypassed those stages and they are not needed as filler to really round out our society and make our society more wholesome.

So where do people seek employment? How do people feel they are not being marginalised and trapped in the sense that they cannot move up? How do you move up from the bottom to even the middle? How do you progress?

Not everyone necessarily wants to go to what is known as the top. Not everyone wants to be lawyers and doctors. So not only do we not have educational facilities for people who do not want to be academics and in those kinds of First World industries, but we also have no industries for those people as well. There is no training and then there is no industry. As long as there is no industry, probably there will be no training. As long as there is no training there will be no industry.

So, at the end of the day we are pushing out a particular class of people with a particular mental orientation. However, society was not built that way. Society was not built for just one type of people because God realised more types were needed. That is why he made a woman after he made a man, just to make sure we all understood we are all not the same.

We have to accept differences and we have to accept the benefits of differences, not just in cultures but in mental orientation. We have an educational system that has traditionally been run by two people.

This is the third Education Minister that I can remember. The last two have been in and out and we have had no change in the educational orientation. This whole idea that we are all the same, this pretence that we are all the same and we have always been the same is what is killing our country. We are not all the same and we were never all the same. It is about time we recognise that lie is doing part of the damage to the educational system in this country.

I do not understand why the philosophies of Booker T. Washington—the person who came up from slavery and created an educational institute that became a model for Negro progress in America—could not catch on in this country. After all, it is better to be a carpenter, a bricklayer or a mechanic, if we are going to get into the position of arguing professions. I do not believe that any profession is better than the other. What is significant is the character of the person.

We can have lawyers who, as far as I am concerned, say nothing from the point of view of their character, their contribution and wholeness. Yet, we can have mechanics and different people like that who make positive contributions and hold their communities together.

There is this whole idea that we do not want to accept there are classes in society. We want to pretend that they do not exist. This one goes and has his cocktail party and does not invite the others. Everyone knows the class and the cleavages in our society exist, but when we meet up we all pretend by joking and patronising one another in such a childish manner so the differences do not show. Then we go back to our individual homes and talk about one another in such a hypocritical manner.

Differences exist, Mr. Speaker. If differences exist in the society because of the place that people find themselves economically and socially, we must employ industry in such a way as to give those differences the possibility to integrate into the whole and be productive.

We have known families for generations who produce people who just seem to be more in love with physical work.

First of all, I come from a working class family, and I use the words “working class” because I believe my parents were a class of workers. In other words, they sold their labour and they were proud to sell their labour in order to earn what was necessary to support their family. It is true.

You know, one of the things that we liked in our boys’ club was to look physically good. We did not like to look like the boys across the other side who looked a bit slumpy, slumpy. I mean, in today’s world it is a little bit different because everybody goes to the gym. The gym used to be: pulling the grass; raking the sand and doing those things. We used to love to do things that would develop our muscles. Young boys were looking to develop. How come people forget about that?

If your father was taking you fishing in the North Sound and you rowed the catboat a little bit, it would help your muscles. Boys would be looking at them and checked to see if the girls were looking at them, too. It is all part of nature.

You did not want to be sitting down, reading books and writing little papers because that was what the little sissies would do. The real boys were out there with their dads, working and getting a little bit of muscle and different things like that. It had its usefulness later on when the young ladies came into the picture. Of course, the guys who are little and feeble I do not find as attractive. I mean, that is just a mental orientation.

The point that I am making is that if you look at a lot of the young boys in our society today, they have not forgotten about the good looks. You might look at them and say, ‘Hey, look they are not too cute’ but they think they are because of the way they look to themselves, the way they feel about themselves and the contact that they have with their body.

A lot of people say, ‘Okay, if that is so, let us make them play football and let’s get a little basketball’ facility for them. Let them be kicking balls around'. If we are inclined to create sporting programmes because of the physical orientations of certain people, why are we not creating vocational training? Why do we not have them using their muscles to saw and hammer nails like I used to do when I was in Teacher McField's School? It takes a certain amount of strength to hammer nails. Do not think now that you do not have to get used to certain things. It is a useful function because before people start building houses for their mothers government might not necessarily be involved.

We recognise the differences in orientation because there are people in our country who came here to labour in the first place. I can trace my father's ancestry back to 1840, at least, when they were complaining in Bodden Town that a particular teacher was not able to remain in this country to teach their children. I know that my ancestors came from Africa and they never came over here to sit and command anyone who came over here to be commanded. They did not come here as voluntary labour; they came here involuntary to labour. However, they were labourers, and when emancipation came in 1834 they began to labour for themselves.

No one was ever ashamed of that fact. Since they had laboured for the people, why not labour for themselves? That was their whole point and they brought that to the generation, at least, that my father was in. He was proud to labour. He was proud to be able to paint and to be a good carpenter and bricklayer.

The school was the apprenticeship system because my grandfather could work for Ray Bodden and the Arches. These people were teaching one another and so they were able to learn and teach others. So, although there were no formal educational institutions for the vocational trades to develop, there were the persons who had the trades and they were able to impart.

When I was in school back in the 1950's they had woodwork and things being done in the school. I suppose they must still have that today.

That is what I am talking about. I am talking about a culture of work, a vocational training that is different. If you put a few of these things in an academic environment, where the academic students come from the nice neighbourhood, that is where the government gives scholarships. Every time there is something nice done it is those types of kids who get the reward.

Then the kids are not going to take to the trades in an academic environment because it is assumed that the academic is better than the vocational. In a way, that is not just the policy of the school. That is also the policy of the society. The society rewards the academic child more so than it is going to reward the vocational child, but not everyone is after money. A lot of people want to be contented, too.

I remember back in the 1970's the people who were accountants and lawyers were always fatter by the time they were 30 and 40 years old. The more physical people who were working out when they were 40 and 50 years old were still looking good. As well, their relationships with their wives were not going bad like the others were. I mean, there were signs of that. At least in America that was the truth. So, it is six of one and half a dozen of the other. However, you have to encourage people to know this because people feel it. People sense it.

The other thing that we need to do in terms of the educational programmes of this country is look at the way people live. The programmes should change and be totally dominated by this new economic demand.

A lot of our people live in communities and communal types of families—what we call the “extended family”. To talk about the extended family is to talk about the communal kinds of social units which we have in the Cayman Islands.

Now, the thing about the extended family is that if you go out and work as a lawyer you will have conflicts. There is no way that one lawyer could make so much money to support an extended family. Once he goes out as a lawyer, then no one in the extended family is going to work because there is one person working and he is supposed to come back and share everything.

We do have these communal elements in our society. If we have people who can do things, then there is a possibility to share the different tasks that we have.

The distribution of functions and responsibilities in the communal type of atmosphere, what we call the “extended family”, is different today. Today what we find is, although the functions might be distributed, no one has any kind of skills to perform those functions and it seems like it is a question of money.

In order to build new grass roots social unites, we need to go back into our communities with our educational and social programmes to teach people basic living skills to use their communal heritage and mental orientation which they still have.

Now, this is probably getting away from the topic, but I would like to bring this up while we are talking about the question of youth.

Tania Nelson, a student from the Social Services Department, wrote a great thesis with regards to a concept of restorative justice which, as far as I am concerned, would restore the community back to the kind of help that it needs.

Apparently, what we have been doing in this country is this: each time we have a problem we take it to the police. Firstly, we show the problem in the school. If the school cannot deal with it we give it to the courts. The courts pass it on to the police or the police to the courts. Eventually it goes to a lock-up situation. In every stage of the problem, the parents and the community are cut-off from being involved.

Now, I am not saying that we do not hold them responsible, but what we do not do is show them how they can become involved in being a part of the solution to the types of crises which we have in those particular units.

If we assume that we have the mental orientation for an extended family for this type of communal unit, then it would mean that if something happened to a youth it would not just be the mother who would be responsible. It would also be the father; and it would not just be the father but also the uncle; and not just the uncle but also the aunt; and not just the aunt but somebody in the community. This type of restorative rather than punitive way of dealing with problems in the youth would be an incredible way of assisting in re-establishing Caymanian social systems.

Our social system has been attacked and has been, to a certain extent, badly beaten up. It is suffering from the traumatic effects of the rapid growth of this new kind of concept of social responsibility that we have today.

When somebody gets a job and comes downtown to work, the first thing that we feel when this happens is that that person no longer belongs to our community. We feel that they are no longer loyal to our community. We are suspicious of them.

Once we become suspicious of that one who has, so-called, made the progress, that person serves very little use to our grass-roots community because he or she are viewed with suspicion. If we do not find a way to integrate the progress with what we have that has not made the progress, then obviously it looks like the division will be even greater and the conflicts more severe.

I think the fact that we have a Minister of Education and Human Resources and a Minister responsible for Youth and Social Services who can work together, along with a government that is willing to employ ideas and young people with ideas, could really mean that we could have the first change to begin putting some of these problems right. We have in this country gotten to this point because of lack of attention to the problem, lack of knowledge of the problem and denial of the problem. The government that was in power between 1992 and 2000 must also take part of the blame.

The last Minister of Education was also the Minister of Education for eight years before he was Minister of Education for these last eight years. In total, he was Minister of Education for sixteen years. If he had any understanding about what I am talking about, if he had any inclination to employ my social intelligence in analysing and trying to find solutions to these problems, we might not be here today.

Do gangs exist in our society? He is still not interested in that. He is interested in the deficit. What does he think is most dangerous to this country—the deficit? He better think again because it is not true.

What happens when we find that we are still in the crisis? As a matter of fact, the crisis is worse because it has been built over these years and now it has been given to a new government. Although I might not have elected them, I worked hard for the Government from the Back Bench for the last four years, ensuring, at least, there was a change. The only thing I never accomplished was making myself a part of the Government. Everything else I was pretty successful in doing or being a part of.

So, there is no way that I want the ghost of the past to come back to haunt me. No Sah! As a matter of fact, I speak very frank here because I am happy that the people had enough trust in me to give me two terms in this Legislative Assembly. If I do not get another term I would not feel offended because I believe that there is a great job to be done in here. However, there is a greater job also to be done outside. If I am outside, at least I know the people have been nice enough to me, so I will get my little pension and I will not shut up.

I do not want that particular mental orientation to come back in this Legislative Assembly ever again. It is abolished and we have to keep it out.

Now, we realise that we are going to have differences in here. I want to say that being in opposition to the government I am only going to be in opposition to government policies. So, when policies come that I do not agree with, I will criticise them if they do not go in the direction that I say they should go in—the direction to save the country, to re-integrate the country and to heal the country. All of this, of course, is only going to be possible when we look at ourselves and admit the fact that we have problems. I will criticise them when they do not go in the direction they promised.

I was very surprised when I turned my television on yesterday and saw the past Minister for Education with that grin on his face, talking about the deficit. When I saw the past Minister for Tourism with that grin on his face, talking about deficit—it must be the Hyatt gratuity that is so much of a deficit! All of those things that transpired in the last eight years in the country should not have transpired.

The fact that Caymanians have lost their footing in the tourism industry happened over the last eight years. The fact that we are considered not good enough to even be concierges in the hotel, no one really paid attention to that. You see!

So, the watersports industry pushed them out. All of these things happened and they talk to us about deficit. They come to scare the people. They come to tell the people that this new Government is going to bring a recession on the country. Ha! Ha! Who believes them! If they had kept their mouths quiet and had stayed out of the picture, maybe I would not be saying too many nice things to the present Government.

The problem that I have is that these same persons that we banished—my cousin, the Elected Member from East End, I supported. What am I supposed to do now? Say the past Minister who represented East End can do a better job! Why? I do not have anything personal against the past Minister, but the mental orientation is different. The new Member for East End can relate to his community.

We have to learn how to give up and how to give it to a new generation to carry on. We cannot make all those changes in our one life. Just like how our bodies begin to tell us that it is time go, our minds begin to tell us too, not just because we are less intelligent but we cannot run with them anymore.

There is no point in my pretending somehow that I can go out there and run with some younger people and understand and feel comfortable. Politically, there comes a point when we no longer, as politicians, feel comfortable with running with our constituents because we are out of touch with their mental orientation.

Allow the change to happen and support the change in going forward. These gentlemen could play different roles in the society. To say now that, all of a sudden, they have organised themselves in this political party (I would call it) their job is to ensure that this Government is disciplined because I guess they do not even trust those of us who call ourselves Opposition here. It is funny that they are now going to do that when they had the opportunity to come forward with some progressive ideas.

Professor Rex Nettleford lectured at the Harquail Theatre a few nights ago. What was nice about the lecture was that it spoke to the question of the needs for people to be creative, to use their imagination and their minds in terms of doing whatever it is.

The professor gave the example of Bob Marley and how he came from a poor family and, I guess, vocational education. He was a welder in Kingston. He started playing music and he became world popular. The man died and left so much money that the people who are left behind do not even know what to do with all of it. He was showing that the man's thoughts and imagination were what created his wealth.

You do not have to have wealth in order to create wealth. You can create wealth by using your imagination. You do not have to have an academic education to use your mind because it is almost natural that man employs his mind. This is what I started with when I first said the difference between us and the animal is that the animals do not think about what they are going to create before creating it.

When we work we think about it. Before we make a chair, we actually conceptualise it. We have it in the idea form and the ideas are important in terms of doing this.

Professor Rex Nettleford, who is a Caribbean intellectual, has not been driven out of Jamaica or out of the Caribbean simply because he has been involved in the trade union or dance movement, or because he is an academic at the university. He is an extremely diversified Caribbean person, and many of our people have those similar qualities in terms of their abilities.

What have we fostered in the country? We have said that the present Minister of Education (who I now have to support against the past Minister of Education) is funny simply because he thinks and he talks or someone like me, who has been actively involved in the quest for what is Caymanian.

What is Caymanian culture? What is Caymanian art? How can we lend ourselves to the further development of Caymanian culture and art by employing ourselves in the dramatic development in the Cayman Islands?

I spent so much time at the theatre in the early days, trying to dedicate myself to drama and writing plays. It is not easy to write plays in the first place. Do you know why? It is not because they are hard to write but because they are stupid to write. It sounds pretty stupid. You sit down and say this and that. You have to get over it to believe in it because you are not going to do anything if you are not committed. You have to believe.

So, how do you get from the point of saying, "Well, I would like to do something for my country" to the point of committing yourself to doing something for your country? Then commitment always has a price. That is where we have the problem.

All those who are going around and talking about having Caymanian culture today, the question started back in the 1970s when we started the In-Theatre Company that became the National Theatre Company, which then became the Cayman National Foundation. There is a root. There is a basis. There is a foundation that was there. So, why is it that in all this people have not paid more attention? Why is it that the Education Department has not housed my work in the schools? Why is it that with all of the things we are bringing the kids in to do we still do not recognise what little we have produced?

It is a real problem how we talk about all these things and someone who is around and has done something is still not good enough. I want to find out—and maybe the present Minister of Education will tell me at some particular point—what is wrong with what I do. What is wrong with it?

When I heard Professor Rex Nettleford speak, I said, 'Well, hey'. I have done an interview with him on television. I have heard him speak. He gave me, at least, the possibility to say, 'Hey, look Frank your ideas are not all that crazy'. It is not all that weird. It is not really all that strange. The only problem is that you keep talking to people who do not think. That is what is crazy! You talk to people who do and will not think because that is not common. It is not sensible for people to think. If you think, you change things and then you start questioning. You do not want people in this country, of course, to question. God forbid should they question!

The point is we are all complaining about things not being right, about the dominance of this culture against our culture.

Why should children be looking towards Black Entertainment Network? Why should they be looking towards dancehall? Because some of them see that there might be a future in that for them. They might be able to come out and make some money. It is not just because they want to look at it to be bad, but they want to look at it to learn some things that other people think may be worth paying for, whether or not we agree with that. They are looking at ways to improve themselves, whether or not we think that is happening. People are not that way—when they do something they are not looking at self-interest. It is all part of trying to find and discover you.

Now, when we were talking about culture back in those days we were talking about identity. We were talking about the role in which race plays in also creating for us a social cultural identity. All of those things were looked down upon. We were considered to be black power radicals in the Cayman Islands back then. That is really strange considering I am so black anyway. I have got to somehow believe in black power because I got to believe, at least, in my own power, if nothing else. That just goes to show that what we have had in this country for such a long time is that denigration of everything that is African, everything that is black.

I listened to some kids from Jamaica play the drums yesterday and I went out there and danced because they pulled me up. When I was finished I gave the little girl $25. As a matter of fact, if they were around here, I think I would probably pay them as much as I could to get them to entertain me, to cool my soul. That music was so great to me. It was so profound. It was the greatest philosophy I have ever heard in the Cayman Islands. It was much better than anything that I had written.

I believe that my journey in life was to meet that musical base somehow and be able to talk about that. A man without a culture is a man without a soul.

I believe it was a good move in terms of Cayfest because when the Minister for Tourism brought that here I said, 'Well, oh boy'. It started in a funny way, but at the end of the day I see what the Minister is saying and it is not that you always have to say Caymanian culture.

You have to say human culture. If we allow our children to see those drums and the way those kids were organised in that band, they were just like a gang. They were like a gang. Do you know why? They were solidly together. They were bonded together. They were brought together by a common identity, a common purpose.

They had uniforms, they had symbols, they had everything that any organised unit would have—a cadet corps would have. Anything! Do you know the difference? They were creative. They were using their imaginations. They were entertaining us. They were making us feel that we were a part of something and that they were a part of something greater.

There you go when you talk about culture. These are the things that we need to look at in culture. These are the things that we have to examine. This is the new start that this new Government needs to encourage. It is wonderful to see that we are coming to the point where we are getting back to ourselves, that we understand that man cannot live by bread.

I will not criticise the church, Mr. Speaker, but church is not the beginning and the end to people's lives. There are people who have other desires and we have to cater to them as well, as long as those desires are within the realm of our laws. We cannot say to people that somehow they are not going to be able to enjoy themselves and feel good and feel free. Any society that begins to stifle that need that people have will find itself with problems. Even in slave society, when people had to work so hard and did not have any freedom, one of the great ways to preserve that regime was to allow people to enjoy themselves and play their drums and dance, and feel somehow that they had this humanness—to get in touch with this humanness and discover it in this communal kind of feeling in which they had.

So, I want us to understand that we are never going to find a true Caymanian culture unless we understand that Caymanian culture is a part of African culture. Until we come to the point of understanding that our identity is very much informed by that, we will find difficulties in accepting things that Frank McField does because when I do it they will think it is something else.

What is Caymanian about anything? We take it and, as individuals who have been influenced by the Cayman Islands, we work upon it and we create something that is there and that is Caymanian. We do not have to say that this is the way Tom Jones and others thought back then, because then we become stifling. We stagnate. We lose the dynamics which we need to have in order to be creative. Politics is art. Art is politics. We have to see the inter-connection between the two.

Mr. Speaker, would you like to have a break now?

The Speaker: We shall now suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.28 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.05 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continuing on the Throne Speech and the Budget Address.

The Third Elected Member for George Town continuing.

Dr. Frank S. McField: The attempt that I have been making is to create an overview, a picture. I know that we do not all seem the same. There are differences. However, if we can come to some kind of understanding as to what the real conditions are in this country, as to what the real social problems are in this country, then we might be able to debate on the possible solutions and where we will get the funds to implement those solutions.

I am 52, almost 53. I was born in this country and raised here until I was 15½. I went over to the United States, then to England and then to Germany and back here. I almost did that circle again, Mr. Speaker, I feel that I am a person who believes that variety is the spice of life—that differences are creative and positive. They do not always have to lead to conflicts and confrontations. I have been able to find many things in many other countries that I believe we can use in this country usefully.

What is important is that we, as Caymanians, work on moulding these things in such a way that will shake them to benefit us in the Cayman Islands. It is as though the human being has been working on his natural environment for generations, moulding it in such a way that it benefits him. It is the same that we must do with that international environment that has impacted our society. We must use it, shape it, manage and control it in such a way that it benefits us, not solely destroys us.

We have to know our history. We have to know our social history. We have to know the strength of our personalities. We have to know that, without a strong feeling of who we are and what we are, we will have difficulties when we come up against other people. We will be more confrontational. We will be more defensive if we do not have a good feeling of what we are and who we are.

First of all, it is important and necessary that an individual be pleased with him or herself because then you do not see what someone else is because they are different from you and threatening to you. As a matter of fact, it can compliment you. That is so with a man and woman's relationship—the mere fact there is a difference attracts people. So, differences do not always repel, they can also be useful and attract.

We have to understand that the shoemaker and the carpenter are attracted to one another because of their differences in profession. Because of those differences, each can rely upon the other for what it is that he does. Whereas, they were the same, the shoemaker and the carpenter might not have any grounds for any kind of social solidarity.

So, differences from the very beginning can be okay. This is why I believe that I am not against foreigners. I am not against rich people. I am not against someone who has something that I do not. I believe that I am okay, and as a result there are things that I might want and there may be ways that I need to improve myself. At this particular age, I am also willing to exhibit a certain amount of patience in getting where it is that I want to go. I do not have to have the laws removed, types of positions others may have or contributions they may have made in order for me to come to the forefront of a situation. I do not believe this is what the Caymanian people are asking for.

I think that if our people are not grounded with a good idea of who they are they are going to be more resentful of other people. They will be more propelled to create conflicts and confrontations with other people in order to prove that they are as good or better. It is a bad syndrome to get involved in, yet we have seen it in many other countries. It is really a result of that kind of inferior way of thinking.

When we begin to think of ourselves as inferior yet we say to other people, 'I am not inferior. I am better than he in this and that', it becomes very confrontational because we then start to look for something wrong in everything that other people do and that is not good. So, I think we have to give our people a good idea of who they are. The arts and social development programmes can assist in encouraging the development of an identity that is dynamic and not static, that sees differences as useful and not stifling.

I have great hopes for the future of this country once we get people to a point where we become analytical and we stop ridiculing ideas and saying that because a person always talks they are not useful individuals.

There are those people who are still talking to me about how I never did a decent day's work in my life. I never had a job in my life. I was never really productive, according to them, at a point in life when I should have been. These are things that are thrown at me by Members of the present Legislative Assembly, as well as Members of the past Legislative Assembly. Yet, these are the same people who talk about Beethoven, Shakespeare and Bach, and how important culture is and all of this.

I am the one who is the published playwright. I am the one who went to London back in the 1980's and practically starved in order to learn a little bit about the art of playwriting and to try to see if I could get some of my plays performed while the theatre movement was ongoing here. Yet, at the same time, as many sacrifices as I have made for the arts, I am still looked down upon as someone who never made any contribution to this country, which is ridiculous. I am not saying this just to make a point from my position as an individual. There are many people who realise that had I been a different colour there would be no problem in recognising me and saying that what I had done in this country was useful.

So, we need to understand that race is an important consideration in this country, and not only what Frank McField thinks about the social importance of class and colour. Other people think about it, but they apply it when they deprive people of the possibility for recognition.

It is in all of us regardless of our racial background to want to be recognised for what it is that we have done that is useful. If we do not recognise people who do useful things they will look to get recognised in other ways and we see this in a lot of our communities today.

For instance, in George Town there are a lot of our people who have not been recognised. A lot of people have seen my plight, for instance, and have said, 'Hmm, education makes you crazy'. I remember when we were growing up, there was one thing that we were always told: if you learn too much you will go crazy because your mind can only take so much.

So, there was a built-in fear in our society to cause us not to think, not to challenge and not to want to become educated because we did not want to go mad. It is true. Do not learn too much because books will send you crazy, or you are a real sissy because you are feminine if you have books under your arms. There was also that fear, which is still dominant in many of our communities.

If we become more competitive, if we look to educate more of our people, to go deeper we have to recognise that there are a lot of things acting against a culture of learning. There are a lot of obstacles in the establishment of a culture of learning, but there would be no improvement in this country without it.

Now, many people think that we have a social problem and that we can identify the causes and change this and that. However, we are not going to the root of the problem and not getting the entire community involved in the problem on a psychological and sociological level.

We need to see that our task is before us. That is what human society is all about. It is about work. Whether or not that work is in terms of shaping the natural products like bricks or moulding social products like people and social institutions, we work to improve so that the life of the individual in the society, and the society as a whole, can be improved.

We have to understand this when kids in our country feel that because of the colour of their skin they are ugly or that they are not useful. The point is: tradition has continued so harshly in this country. It is not that it used to be if you had African features that that was somehow a crime. It still is.

A lot of parents still complain about the fact that their kids are taunted in school by other children with different complexions, as if there is a competition to see which child is better; the one with the lighter complexion is better.

There was a situation I was told of by an Art Teacher who went to one of the Sister Islands. There was an art mural or something like that which was done. One of the kids painted a picture depicting another child with a darker picture than how she saw her own. The girl was unhappy with the picture and she cried. She complained to her parent, who went to the teacher, and eventually they had to take away that picture.

So, when we see that there are gangs in our schools and there are kids who seem to be marginalised, who seem to not belong and as though their value is not as important as the value of other children, we have to also admit that has been caused by the way in which we have regarded the race issue in our country. It is something that we do not talk about because to do so is to want to make problems, according to most. However, we know people talk about it anyway.

So, let us see whether or not we can help those persons that feel that because of their complexion or race somehow they are socially less valuable to us in society. We need to look at that problem. Teachers need to be aware of those problems. Of course, if you bring teachers from the United Kingdom or Canada, those teachers are not going to be as sensitive about those problems as are teachers from the Caribbean, who teach these kids about having pride in their African heritage.

Of course, we also see this problem in the prison, where a lot of people are there simply because they are dealing with identity deficits. They use drugs to create some kind of communal feel again, an identity for themselves to create some kind of social bonding with other individuals in a society based upon some other aspect which could be drug taking and the philosophy related to that.

If we do not recognise the role in which this has played in weakening a lot of the personalities in our society, we look superficially at many of the problems we have that have transported themselves into the workplace as well, where day-to-day confrontations between the European Manager and the Caymanian clerical staff begin to have the appearance not just of a labour issue but a race issue as well.

Those persons who are not aware that these things happen in a society where people say, 'the reason why they are treating us like this is because we are Caymanians', still say, "we are Caymanians". They do not say, "we are non-white". Basically, what they mean to say is there is a colour distinction in those industries and a discrimination based upon colour or race.

We need to understand what is happening in the workplace, in the schools and other areas with regard to how this particular issue is impacting on our wider society and, subsequently, the politics of our country.

All of this is new and enlightening, and government will not hesitate to consider it and enforce it when it chooses people to work here. If we are supposed to extend the dominance of a particular racial group in this country by the employment tactics at present, all we are doing is exacerbating the problem.

Recently, I learned of a young lady from Trinidad who was performing drama at the prison. I volunteered and became involved as well. I was invited to a programme they held at Fairbanks Prison, which incorporated drama to assist people with their self-esteem and enable them discover that there was something within them they could develop to make them human and give them social human worth. The young woman was eventually replaced from that job by a lady from England who came to join her husband who was already here.

Now, it goes to show, again, how we decide upon the worth of individuals and the contributions which they can make to our society. A lot of times the contribution that we feel they can make is based upon neither their qualifications, nor their ability to fit into a social/cultural system. Often, the contribution is racially decided because they are from there, they are better and, therefore, we will be more improved by employing them among us.

We have to be aware of the way in which discrimination has worked adversely against us and how we have discriminated against our own merely out of a lack of knowledge of who we are. Some of us today are very upset because those very same people come and tell those who have given them the job that they are not like them, that those persons who have given them the job are more like me.

We have to understand that the importation of persons into our society, in order to complete this colonial stratification system, is no light task in terms of trying to change it because those persons come here and eventually acquire their own peculiar interest. They form their own groups. They create their own cohesiveness and their own solidarity and they maintain their own interest.

So, although the Cayman Islands might not have started as a society that was stratified along racial and class lines, it has thirty years after economic development. The grass-root Caymanian can see this and talks about it at home and their kids listen. Then we wonder what is happening to them, what is in their minds and what motivates them. They are different, and they know they are. Yet, no one gives them the impression that their differences have a social value and are precious and useful to us or that they have a cultural heritage and should be allowed to discover it, to activate it and to act like they are useful regardless.

We have to look at history. We have to look at our ideas. We have to look at what is deep inside of our psychology and our sociology.

I have made the journey towards looking at myself and I am not always sure there are things that I would not like to improve in terms of the way I view the world. However, I did not create myself. All I can hope to do is make whatever changes within me that are possible and make adjustments in order to improve me as a human being so my journey will be about discovering truth and not hiding it.

I hope that this new Government will give us the freedom to explore ourselves, to find ourselves and to be able to talk about ourselves publicly, without any degree of condemnation. What happens often is as soon as we begin conversations, they must be in the back room or the kitchen or different places like that.

I am happy, again, that the history of these islands will soon be published. I hope that those who read the history will understand that it is their history. It does not necessarily mean that their history must inform what their limitless future can be, but they should not condemn and reject the history simply because there are things that show, in fact, our society was not necessarily founded upon equality.

There were those who had and those who did not from the very beginning; therefore, it is not a new concept. It was not, as many tried to prove, as though it was a society without differences or without conflicts. The fact that conflicts never manifested in ways they do in other countries was due to factors which are important to consider, not because there was equality from the very beginning. People were told what they could and could not do.

I am pleased I have made the journey as a Caymanian through this initiation process here in the Legislative Assembly, reaching a point where I can speak about national consciousness on this particular level. I know I speak for many people out there who have wanted people to speak as honestly as they can for a long time.

We do not always do what we should. We are not always right. However, we have a feeling somehow that our country would be better off if we freed ourselves from certain types of fear. We tell ourselves what we need to take into consideration in order to be good, productive people and creative people.

We are a country that cannot entertain its kids in dance troupes because they do not want to go to the dance classes. The Government gave some $352,000 this year to the Cultural Foundation, yet we find kids who are not willing to act in plays or become members of dance companies. We find that primary schools flourish with kids wanting to dance, sing and paint and be creative, but they do not want to do these creative things anymore by the time they get to high school. Those who do are considered to be outcasts merely because others cannot identify with those things as being a part of their culture.

However, it is a part of their culture because, although most groups might not have formal theatre, there were storytellers in this country a long time ago who were extremely dramatic. We had "village idiots" we called them, who always entertained us. We laughed and enjoyed ourselves. We had people who performed what we can now consider to be art. So, all society needs art and the artist in order to have that mirror to look into not only to laugh but to cry.

Everyone on this island attends funerals at one time or another. We are brought together at a particular time in our lives when people are grieving in such a way that we often never experience. Yet, theatre is like that as well. It brings us together on an emotional level. Good drama. Good tragedy. It brings us together in the theatre much like we are brought together at funerals as well.

Theatre brings the society's soul together. It creates that special moment where we do not notice the divisions but we see the closeness and the emotions, the ideals and our dreams. We realise that the dream is not individual but collective. It is that collective dream, that collective consciousness that art helps to maintain. Therefore, every well-developed society must develop its art and artists in order to accomplish just that.

We are at a point where government must lead by ideals, not by pushing paper. We must have a government that is willing to always speak to the people about all issues. The people are not only interested in the budgets or day-to-day management affairs; the people are interested in the ideological management of its society as well.

I would hope we get to a point where we develop our society in such a way—ideologically, sociologically, economically and politically—that maturity will lead to Caymanians wanting more control over their lives and the sovereignty of this country becomes a question of life and death that we do not compromise at any time because it is sacred. Although, what is that sovereignty without the soul of the nation discovered?

The only time that sovereignty really and truly can exist is when we understand the spirituality of a nation—the spirituality of our communal existence together. So, when we talk about sovereignty, we have to understand the principles and feelings behind it.

The Ministers' Association and others talk about the moral orientation of this country and the fact that we seem out of sync. The boat called "Great Britain" that is pulling us along morally is pulling us too fast and we, as the little catboat behind, are going under because of the disregard to any special sovereignty. If we cannot accept the moral government of a country then it is time that we begin to look elsewhere. A country that allows itself to be ruled by a country it thinks morally incapable of offering direction is worse than the country directing.

People believe that the legalisation of homosexuality in private is wrong and ministers and churches preach that it is wrong as well. Yet, at the same time they hold up and say that those who preach that the Cayman Islands' Constitution should be advanced and they wish to bring this country into independence and so on, they find this imposition and want to complain to Great Britain. They want to complain to us about it without understanding the role the churches have played in this country in ensuring that politics be politics as usual; mainstream and conservative.

There are no heroes stepping forward to fight this battle, but it is a worthwhile cause to be considered in any case. Although I might not necessarily say that what Great Britain is asking is wrong, I believe the way they went about doing it is terribly wrong. They are treating us like kids.

I at 52 years old in my stage of development am no boy to anybody. I will not have anyone tell me how

I should regard my God or anything else I believe to be sacred.

This is where we part company, when people have no respect. The reason they do not have this kind of respect is because we had for so long the kind of political directorate that just sat down and said 'Um hum, yes, Sir,' pretending the whole time like they are a bunch of boys.

[Members' interjections & laughter]

Dr. Frank S. McField: I believe the Leader of Government Business knows that I am a good enough actor to be able to act out that previous person's role without calling his name.

When I came into the Legislative Assembly and was able to get into some of the meetings we had with some of the people from England, from the FCO, I understood right away the mentality of our people in positions of power.

I lived in England. I went to school there. I worked on a playground in Nottinghill Gate with young kids. I interacted with persons in the society. I supported the miners when they were on strike in the 1970s. I have a feeling that somehow people who have gone to war, like the English, have so many times to fight for things they believe, have to be talked to like you are willing to fight for something too. They will treat you like a nobody if you are not willing to talk to them like you are ready to fight for something. The only people that are of any worth are, like Martin Luther King said, persons who are willing to trade something for their ideals.

We have people who want their cake and eat it too. We want to be governed by Britain because they are the best governors, always been the best for us. Nobody has looked at how we have been retarded in terms of a mental, social, political and philosophical development. We are at a point where we need a concept of our nation, because if we do not get one soon we are going to completely sink. We are being pulled along too fast by the destroyer carrying this little catboat.

When we speak of the realm where they are at, they have a history which got them there. There is nothing wrong with them being there, and I do not pass judgment on their moral outlook. People who have been at war and revolutions have had famines and plagues and have gone through the cold winter conditions. They come to a point where they have some agreement among the nation as to what is permissible and what is not. The mere fact that we in these small Islands must somehow adhere to whatever it is that they can, that takes no count for the kind of organisation process all these countries have gone through.

Totally different communities!

Totally different relationships with God!

Totally different relationships with whatever!

So, we realise differences are important. Rulers can only govern from a moral perspective and there is no other way. How can Great Britain rule us from any other angle other than from their moral perspective? If their moral perspective is incorrect, then their rule must be as well. In addition, if the rule is incorrect, then it can no longer be tolerated. I will no longer tolerate that rule if it is incorrect.

Now, this does not necessarily mean that we enter into any period of disobedience to the laws of Mother Country. What it means is that those persons who say that there should not be constitutional advancement or a political hierarchy in this country based upon a Chief Minister and other ministers in this country, attempt to destroy that absolutely necessary move at present to create difficulties.

I see that you are moving to your microphone.

The Speaker: At this time we shall suspend proceedings until 2.15 pm for lunch.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.44 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.23 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continuing on the Throne Speech and the Budget Address.

The Third Elected Member for George Town continuing.

Dr. Frank S. McField: I have almost completed my contribution. According to your clock, I am one hour and four minutes from the mandatory shutdown, and I am confident there are those who are quite content with that. However, I believe my contribution at present should seek to outline the points that would provide us a better understanding of our current predicament which is not only financial but ideological.

I said that the relationship between Great Britain and its Overseas Territories—the Cayman Islands in particular—has entered an age where there are not only ideological differences, but differences with regard to economic pursuit as well.

We find our economic interest on the side of those that seek to develop a global economic system including possibilities for taxes in different areas being spared. The United Kingdom and other jurisdictions form the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) and are in pursuit of what they consider to be tax havens. They not only, from a practical viewpoint, see us as an obstacle, they also see the whole concept of people evading taxes conflicting with their lassiez-faire idea of social, corporate responsibility.

So, the two necessary conditions for the recognition of the differences are in place: the ideological moral—or, as some people like to say, the religious differences—and now the economic differences. People in this country have come to recognise that that is a fact. How would you reverse it? There is no possibility to reverse the moral or ideological differences between us and the United Kingdom since our heritage dictates that, although we are a sharing and caring community, it is humanistic that our humanism does not afford us the luxury of disobeying the commandments of the Lord.

We can see, therefore, that for politicians today to enquire about how this relationship will be possible in the future is no longer a subversive attitude anymore. Years ago, the very churches that were for the passive approach to these types of issues have now had to become more active in terms of being the ones out there to protect the moral order of the society.

Regardless of whether or not those believe that you cannot legislate morality, there is a relationship between morality and law. The moral consciousness of the people is what should inform the laws because when the laws are broken, it is the moral indignation that people feel motivates them to create certain types of penalties for the offenders.

We must not go too far in believing that we can clearly distinguish between moral conduct and legal conduct. The relationship between the two is important. If our laws are to represent the moral consciousness of the Cayman Islands people, they must take into account what it is our culture can or cannot tolerate. It is at this particular point that some leaders in the Christian community have said that this particular homosexual law will just be the beginning. It will just be the framework for a series of legal, cultural and moral changes that will force us to tolerate behaviour in our society which we oppose, not just privately but publicly.

Now, regardless of what side we find ourselves on, we understand, therefore, that in the future we will have ideological conflict and, perhaps, a crisis in terms of an ideology and morality with the United Kingdom. Therefore, I will continue to say that until we come to a point where we can become more accepted and people can acknowledge the idea of a Constitutional review—the Cayman Islands not only reviewing its Constitution but learning how to structure its own decision-making process in such a way that it has its own indigenous leadership system.

We depend upon the Governor, who is a representative of the Crown, to be more than he should in this day and age. We put the Governor in a Rolls Royce and we have someone driving him up and down, from work to home. We put a British flag on it and we wonder how our people cannot learn how to love what is Caymanian.

We go there and we see he is being served. If any of our politicians were to ever ask for a favour (like when they show up at Customs or Immigration, to be put through a little bit more speedily than our normal citizen) our citizens would eat our heads off.

From the very beginning we appreciate this image of what is good, perfect and better. We cannot play the role of being good or perfect. If we are not allowed to play those roles then there will be some kind of leadership deficit in this Island. If we did have an ideological crisis that could be produced by virtue of what is happening in Europe, then we would fall apart because we would not even have our local authority to rely upon.

We can develop, if anything, a parallel leadership system in this country. I am not saying we want to replace the colonial leadership system, but it should be a parallel leadership system where we Caymanians are involved in the decision-making process and are treated as equals not only in the Executive Council room but also publicly in the wider society.

There are those who have noticed that some of the ceremonial functions that have taken place—for instance, on the Queen's Birthday where awards were given out to persons—are now taking place at the Governor's Mansion without any explanation given to us at the Legislative Assembly as to why this very important ritual they still have control over does not happen among us any longer.

As a man coming from theatre tradition, I can say that rituals are important. We see that. We know that. We have experienced it. We know the role they play in building the concept of a nation. If all the rituals we have were based upon colonial authorities we must be part of in order for a sense of leadership structure, this governmental hierarchy in the country we do not know, then that is not only defeating us, it is defeating the very reason why we are here. We are here to share in the power and the decision-making process.

Government is what government is: a hierarchical system without any distinctions between the amount of authority which the people and their representatives have, or the people put in place to rule over those who are not elected.

We need to get involved in encouraging our people to see the usefulness of nation building at this time and the usefulness of knitting the grass-root communities together by organising not only in trade unions but in other kinds of fraternities and organisations that will lead to the re-establishment of social bonds. This will lead to the establishment of a new cohesive and collective solidarity among the people that will give us the possibility to rule our country in a democratic manner and ensure that anarchy does not take advantage of the retrogressive type of political leadership which we have had in this country over the last twenty-something years.

I recall specifically some of the things that the late Honourable Jim Bodden tried to do. He is our National Hero. Why is he a hero? Do we ever think about why he is our hero? He is because we could identify with him and it is more positive and more rewarding to identify with someone that is among your own rather than from some other place.

The great thing about Mr. Thomas Russell is that he never stood in the way of that happening. After late Honourable Jim Bodden departed from the halls of this Parliament it was as though new people who came made sure that we took the Island back to a point where it did not have any local political hero or leader. In not having a leader, the people are without voice. The people are without direction. The people are without a vision because a leader is a vision. The leader is visionary. The leader is pointing in the direction.

The group of persons who came to power between 1984 and 1992 served specifically to take this country back politically so that we were still not at the point where we could, from among us, chose a Leader, a Chief Minister, because that somehow would threaten the entire society. We do not believe in ourselves. We do not believe in each other. We do not believe that we could be fair to one another. Well, maybe we need to try to see what would happen.

So, there are reasons, therefore, why I am saying that the constitutional advancement is necessary. A maturity in the way we think is necessary. The development of a national consciousness is necessary. A feeling of self-reliance is necessary. A feeling of self-importance and greater self-esteem among Caymanians is necessary. That should be fostered, motivated and moved by government as well.

The present Government cannot survive without supporting these things I am talking about, and one of the reasons why is because people want them. People understand that there must be a greater feeling of self-reliance, sovereignty, self-determination and being Caymanian. We realise that people want that. I realise that if this Government was not filling that vacuum it would mean that it was trying to take the country back into the dark ages, as far as I am concerned. I would be one of the first people that would start to criticise Government for doing so.

If Government accepts the recommendations I have been making over these few hours with regards to improving our consciousness level, our value of self, our value of each other and our working together; if they recognise the sense of looking at society in this way and employing their resources such as to activate this type of mechanism, the Government can have my support. The Government will have my support because I realise that once they begin to change society in this fashion, the reactionary forces out there will come and cry, 'Wolf, wolf, wolf. Fire, fire, fire. They are going to take you down the drain,' and this and that. Things I have been hearing for years!

I want to make it clear to those forces who have been self-serving over the years and have found themselves in the government of this country between 1992–2000, that did nothing to improve upon the state of government in this country but to learn how to spend money in order to pacify people and get them to continue voting for them during that period. Even by using the country's resources in such a misguided way as to create all of these social favours, they still could not maintain power simply because, ideologically, emotionally and otherwise, they did not have the best interest of the people at heart. They did not feel the pulse of the people. They were not a part of the rhythm of the time. Their rhythm was out of tap. They had no rhythm. They had no soul. They had lost the ability to co-ordinate and to co-operate. That is why they are not here.

I can defend my position today when I say I will work to ensure that that kind of misguided leadership does not return to the halls of this country. If I must do it on the outside I will. If I must do it in here I will.

I understand that man is more than bread. Man has a soul and that soul is not just the one we talk about that goes to heaven. That soul is the one that allows Shakespeare, Bach and Beethoven. If they can love those people who are special to them, I know there are those of us who realise that our soul must also have things that are special to us.

The fruits that cause that soul to sing great music of harmony are what we need. We need a renaissance in this country. We need a new beginning.

I believe the young men that we have elected to the Legislative Assembly will help us see to it that the Cayman Islands become a place we are eager to participate in. How empty it is sometimes for those of us who are caught in these new jobs, who go home and have nothing to look towards. Even when you look on television you do not see anything about yourself or your community, really.

I would like to conclude my debate by going into the issue of labour a little bit. I spared getting into the question of labour simply because we had discussed the need for the modernisation of the Trade Union Law and the government did accept that Motion. I would also like to speak to Immigration, but I will leave that because I have an Immigration Motion that is coming up in this House and I will be able to speak to that.

I have used this opportunity to briefly, in certain cases, speak on issues that I think will help us to gain a conceptual framework for the advancement of our country.

We know in the area of labour in America, for instance, they say that a growing body of American research indicates that work problems increase. As the problems increase there may be a consequent decline in physical and mental health. We see in our country's hospitals that the beds that we thought would be sufficient are no longer and the hospitals are filled with people. The mental and physical health of our people has been partly impacted by the work problems.

Family stability; community participation; cohesiveness; balance; social and political attitudes; increases in drug and alcohol addiction; aggression and delinquency. All of these things we see in our country. They must be researched in order to see work issues or work problems, as they increase for citizens, can impact. Now they think everything is wrong because of irresponsible parents not work problems.

Many of our workers at all occupational levels feel locked in, their mobility blocked, and the opportunity to grow lacking. These are all what we call social problems. These are all social and political problems people feel. If there was a political directorate that was dedicated to the improvement and the uplifting of the Caymanian people, that political directorate would make sure that the Caymanian people had more say in the workplace.

Caymanian people are not going to have more to say in the workplace simply by us, as a Government, creating a Labour Law which talks about minimum standards to protect those people. The people in the workplace will only be protected if they learn how to work together as a unit in order to improve their working conditions and maintain those improvements which have been gained.

No government seems to be willing to want to support the concept of people organising. Yet governments are talking about constitutional advancements. Governments know that to have constitutional advancements—at least advancement in the leadership structure—we would likely have to have the existence of political parties.

What are these political parties going to be? Will they be elite or embedded in the grass-roots community in the workplace? How will they extend themselves into these domains if there is not some kind of organisation in the workplace? It is easier to organise people around the pursuit of work issues that affect them on a day-to-day level and that have to do with income and the distribution of income than to organise people around their political ideology and rhetoric.

That is the reason why labour unions have played significant roles in the establishment of political organisations and movements in other parts of the Caribbean and the world. It makes more sense to the working people to join an organisation that can have an impact on their day-to-day lives rather than joining an organisation like a political organisation that is talking about democracy and the exercise of power in a very abstract manner.

Yet, we have these new generations of politicians in here who seem not to agree with that and seem to believe somehow that we are going to have our political maturity simply because they are politically mature. We are going to have our change simply because, in their minds, they have change.

Change has to be a collective process. It cannot just be individual. It cannot just be a process involving fifteen Elected Members. It has to be a process that involves all the people of the Cayman Islands, including those who are here as extended residents or persons who have been on work permits for a long time, say 15 to 30 years. These people must also be involved in change. Therefore, the question of immigration is going to be very important in terms of developing a political ideology and a strategy for this country.

We have to have a political ideology that talks about nation building and the importance of national consciousness. We must not fall into the pitfalls of petty nationalism where differences between people become more important than the contributions different people can make to our blessed social order. We must have a political philosophy that makes it possible for us to see the usefulness and the creativeness of involving those persons who have been here for long periods of time.

Even some people whom we might think are not on our side or for us but against us may merely be waiting for the framework for some kind of collective concept to become a part of, some kind of movement to integrate themselves into. They may be waiting for this whole concept of this new 'Caymanianness' to become a part of.

That new 'Caymanianness' must be one of the future and not of the past; it must be limitless in its potential. To be limitless it has to be fair. It has to create trust. It has to create openness and accountability truly, not just in passing papers from one government department to another or from one person to the next person.

The openness is what we are talking about here today. We must be free to talk about ourselves and how we feel, whether or not that is correct. We must be open with how we perceive things because only then can we change our perception should it be wrong.

The role that immigrants have played in this society is significant. The role that foreign capital has played in this society is significant. I am not against the role that either capital or immigrant labour has played, but in parts it has helped to structure our society that is no longer equitable. We, therefore, need to look at the way we have to alter this in order that the original Caymanian people can become a part of that new Cayman as well.

I think the time will come for us to recognise that we will not go forward by trying to have an economy the size of this one controlled by 25,000 or 30,000 people. Our expectations are too broad. Our needs are too great. What have we become used to? What have we become addicted to from all these goods, services and strange things? We see ourselves as having more access to materialism than people in the countries making these materials.

So, there is a price that we will have to pay, and I do not even think that we have a choice anymore in paying that price. I think the choice was made a long time ago, whether or not we want to be bound to that. The choice was made when we opened our country up without any kinds of restrictions and when we opened up a country that had weak, social institutions in the first place—weak in that the norms were not permanent enough to repel other norms that were being imported.

In a lot of countries when you go with your money, people realise that you are coming in with your way of life and say, 'No, we do not want your way of life. We want our way of life, so we have to reject the money simply because we don't want to change our way of life'. We invite all of these things because most of us want to change our life anyway!

Many of us are hypocritical today when we talk about getting back to the old days because no one wants to go back to the old days. They do not even want to come to see a play about the old days.

I think we have to admit who we are and where we are. The point is: we have a partnership with other nationalities and other cultures in this country. I can see the usefulness of employing those nationalities and those cultures to shape a new Caymanian culture. Culture is dynamic anyway, not static. All societies, all civilisations have benefited from others. There has been no such thing as a pure culture, no such thing as a pure race. There is no such thing as a pure religion. All systems borrow from each other, which I think is good.

So, with that we should not have to feel awkward about the fact that Cayman is using kids from some place else. Some were not even born here but grew up here to run, to play football and cricket.

Do you know what people used to do? All people borrow. The reason why I am here in the Cayman Islands is because a long time ago my forefathers were borrowed or stolen and brought here. So, if people will steal people and bring them into the country because they need more, what is the problem when people are volunteering to come? It is because we do not know history.

Most countries went off and conquered other countries in order to get people to be in their armies. As an immigrant to the United States I had to register with the Draft Board when I turned eighteen. I was from the Cayman Islands and the Selective Service was selecting me, too. As a matter of fact, it was a part of my obligation to make sure that I made myself available.

So, the United States has been successful in wars not necessarily by using Native Americans or indigenous Americans, but by using people who want to become a part of America. That is not any different than Rome was at one time. Although Roman citizens were restricted, Rome found itself in a situation where it had to extend citizenship in order to maintain Roman domination. How can you have an empire when only the citizens are the core group because they become smaller than the extended group?

So, growth presents a real problem for anyone who has to manage it. If you are not able to have that metamorphosis, that transformation of that ruling group, then you are going to stagnate.

We have a similar situation whereby people who have been here for a while have learned our culture. I do not necessarily mean the pure Caymanian culture. I mean the Caymanian culture that is being created everyday by the interaction between people in this country. So, you do not say, 'Well, he was born there and he should not participate and run for us'.

Runners that we have as our 'star' athletes today are Cydonie Mothersill and Kareem Streete-Thompson. I remember Kareem as a little boy coming to the theatre with his mother. I think his mother was from Jamaica and he was born in the United States. Cydonie's mother is probably from Jamaica.

What is important is that we say we are the same. If someone says, 'Well, that person from the Cayman Islands is really a Jamaican' because a Jamaican living in Jamaica will probably look at us and say, 'Oh, well he is from Jamaica'. That is what they tell America. They say, 'No, he is not American. Einstein, he is German'. We know that one.

It is important what we think, not what they think. If we say they are Caymanians, they are Caymanians. If they say they are Caymanians, they are Caymanians. Let the other people say what they will because most will try to own anything good. As long as they are successful everyone will try to own them, but we want to own them too because they want us to own them and they want to own us. We need to develop that relationship.

We will find people in a lot of areas where we will feel that they are not necessarily what we consider to be those original Caymanians, but those original Caymanians will eventually become involved in part of that process, too. It keeps the process alive as we see in sports today. When the original Caymanians want to become involved, of course, they have a possibility to become involved.

I actually have a confession to make, and I think it is about time that I make it.

[Interjection by Member: Oh-oh!]

Dr. Frank S. McField: I know that everyone knows that I am a Caymanian. However, my mother was born in the Isle of Pines, Cuba. My mother was raised in Cuba. My mother's father was a Jamaican. However, being a McField, no one will ever challenge the fact that anybody carrying that name could be anything else but Caymanian.

It goes to show that a lot of us are from mixed parents in any case. It is the mixing in the Cayman Islands that makes it exactly different from other cases, whether it is nationality, racial or religious mixes. That is what makes us different. So, we are not unlike America in the sense that we must come to find a new usefulness in immigration, assimilation and integration.

Immigration, assimilation and integration are different than this whole system of work and work permits. I think we need to make a distinction between that when someone has been in a country that is not developed but in growth, and where even the original people have not been here all that long—not to the extent where we have definitively forever moulded our social, economic and other institutions.

We were a territory settled by persons with the great work of changing the natural resources and shaping them in such a way that we could identify what it is we want and what we say is a process that we consciously started, as far as I am concerned, not too long ago. The conscious building of a Caymanian society where we felt that we were exercising consciousness and control is not a process that is very long and it gives us the possibility to be able to assimilate and integrate new arrivals who are willing to be a part of our blessed social order.

The question is, therefore, if the numbers of Caymanians are getting fewer in relationship to the numbers of persons who are here actively working and living, it is simply because we have failed to understand the dynamic ways in which we can use those persons who have been among us long enough and who have proven their ability to make them a part of our numbers.

If every time we count out the people who have been here 30 years and the children that were born here and have been here 21 to 22 years after their birth, of course our numbers are always going to look smaller in relationship to the numbers of people who continue to come in.

Now, I do not think that the fact that we want to integrate persons who have proven themselves to us will make us weaker as a group because they will become a part of that group. They are a part anyway. The only thing that is confirming that fact is the legalities. To say that they are still a little different from us, well, each person is different from the other. Each district has a little different accent, if you check it out in Cayman. Even in little areas in Cayman they have a little different way of speaking from one another. Human beings will always be different, so this should not be a problem.

I hope that the question of immigration will be amply answered by this present Government and that they will be proactive in terms of making the decisions to integrate long, deserving immigrants into the ranks of this country.

With regards to work permits, I think we have to tighten this up. I think we have to recognise somehow that many employers do not have anything in common with us other than the fact that they use this territory as an area to exploit labour. From their point of view of having our social, cultural and political interest at heart, they may as well be in Timbuktu. They do not really care where they are; they only care about what they have and what they can achieve.

We cannot leave the importation of labour up to people who have no sense of social responsibility. The lassiez-faire theory must give way to a government-interventionist type of philosophy with regards to the importation and employment of labour. I do not see that we can continue to have in this country the idea that people will come here and work for years.

Although I had a little bit of a problem with the rollover concept in the beginning—not from a moral, political point of view, but I was trying to understand certain business people and reflect their interest within the context of my position—as I move along I do not see how it can be reconciled.

I think at the end of the day we need to do two things: we need to integrate those long-term residents—the children who were born here and plan to produce children and also make those children Stateless; and we have to ensure that the numbers coming here are not staying so long that they create in our country some type of roots and that we ourselves do not feel so morally obligated to them that we cannot ask them to leave at the end of a particular time. Human beings are like that. We grow on people and people grow on us. It is not easy to say, 'look, you must go'.

I believe I will support that concept of the rollover system, which was obviously one of the areas that the Leader of Government Business was talking about and where he felt it would be a compromise in terms of the whole question of integrating and then bringing in a rollover. That would be the only way the integration would be possible.

The integration is so important to me that I am willing to go along with that particular idea. So, I am going to be encouraging Government to do whatever it is that they can do to get this going.

I am not sure how much time I have left, but if I do have some time I would like to go—

The Speaker: Seventeen minutes.

Dr. Frank S. McField: The Second Elected Member from George Town is giving me some time, but I think I have had enough time.

Before I finish, so that no one believes I am ignorant to the fact that there is a budget, I will make a few comments about that.

Without going into the budget, I heard the Second Elected Member from West Bay talk about it and I was very impressed by the thorough job he did. I had conceptualised similar opinions about the budget and the borrowing patterns and habits of the previous government.

I cannot support the tax measure of this present Government. However, it would be wrong for me to know that, although they must tax, somehow I should be saying that the taxation is a result of their actions. I am in disagreement with the taxation, but I must point out to the people that the taxation is the result of the actions of the past government.

If there is a shortfall in expected revenue and if there is a move on the part of the past government to remove taxes from certain foodstuff we will have to get the money some place else. Mr. Speaker, you know that was a reaction to the Motion I was bringing to take taxes off food. I am sorry but I do not believe there should be any taxes on food. I do not support taxes on food. I am not going back on that position.

If you remove taxes from food (which I would see as something like $8 million - $9 million that you are losing, plus a slowdown in the economy from the point of revenue) you will have a deficit anyway.

You see, when we start picking about figures as if liars cannot figure, we forget that these figures are understood by the people out there, not like how certain people try to bring it to them. What I call it is Trumanomics, which is the method of using a deficit and creating a surplus. We did all the time with Cayman Airways.

[Laughter]

He did it all the time with Cayman Airways, and I was always shocked that this man could get up in here and show us how the airline was making a profit. Everything around him makes profit because of subsidies. You start off giving this person a subsidy and all of a sudden the person has made a profit. You know, it is very misleading.

Let me tell you how the people out there feel about the budget. The people believe that the country is in a difficult situation. They are concerned. However, they know they did not have the possibility to remove the government before November. If the people had, things would not be the way they are now. However, because of the kind of country that we live in, we had to wait until the full four-year term was completed, and it was only after the election that this could happen.

Now, I will not hide the fact that I felt there was something wrong with a country where you can shut down the Parliament and where the Parliamentarians are no longer needed do not even have offices. Up there in the Glass House the same people we elected to be accountable to us and are no longer here, who are they accountable to? There is something wrong with that system.

Of course, the people were able to go up to the Glass House and do certain things. I watched the roads being filled up with asphalt and these thick things that would make you think you were driving off some mountains if you drove off them. As a matter of fact, some of the roads were so high that I thought they were trying to build mountains in Cayman because we were so in need of them.

The money was being wasted. People were hired at Public Works that never had jobs. There were all kinds of things that were going on in the country in order to create the impression that the government had the interest of the people at heart.

I was always against the last government. Regardless of any respect I have for the First Elected Member from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, they knew that when I campaigned I was campaigning against Mr. Truman Bodden and Trumanomics. They knew I would campaign against Mr. John McLean in East End. They knew how I felt about the land deal that caused us to bring a Motion against the Minister that was the Member for East End at the time. They knew there was no way I could possibly trust anything that he was telling people at that time because none of them told the truth when it dealt with the Land-Deal Motion. We were short by one vote to remove that Minister, the same Minister that I saw on television last night talking about the amount of problems we have that are created by this present Government.

The problems were created by the lack of honesty and transparency in the last government, and it's a true ting, dat.

The Speaker: I would ask that you inject that this is your opinion, please.

Dr. Frank S. McField: Mr. Speaker, a very strong opinion of mine that is.

Before we get to the point of going into the Finance Committee and looking item-by-item, my problem with the Budget, as the Financial Secretary has presented this to me, is that we are in a very peculiar position. However, I believe that we can get out of this position and it is also part of my responsibility to make sure that we do.

The last government policy, which started back in 1992 of building civic centres, district clinics and a major hospital, committed the present Government to the spending it must make. For instance, look at the recurrent expenditure for the hospital which is what, $45 million? As the Second Elected Member from West Bay said, when you borrow money to build rather than save money, you are committing yourself. In every sense they committed them because they built and they thought that was what people wanted. They thought it was right.

If you have created the commitment, then you cannot run away. People cannot move away from that and blame them for the fact that they must be committed to the commitment that you have made for them. That is the way government is in any case. Government is not a few elected people, it is a continuous institution. All that happens is that the political directorate changes so the government that we had last year is the same government. The only thing is that there are different political decision-makers in those seats. There have been no other changes and people need to understand that.

It is nonsense for the past persons who occupied those seats to accuse the present people occupying those seats as the reason why the Budget is the way it is. I am not saying that there could not have been neater cuts and other things, but the present Government never invited me to the Glass House to give them any suggestions about anything or to ask my opinion about anything.

When the present Government went to divide their committees up and so forth, they never put me on any board. As a matter of fact, I was on the Civil Aviation Board and they took me off that. So, you see, I was not a favourite of the present Government either.

We understand why however, and it is because we had a little disagreement about a specific problem. However, let us keep it to this specific disagreement, the choosing of the Executive Committee, and not about how the past government ran the country. We never disagreed about that. We agreed that the past government ran the country terribly. Let us be clear about that. Let my constituents be clear about that. I will not get into that point.

We know that they are talking about taxes on children and so on, but who brought the taxes on the school fees? Who upped the school fees? It is not the present Government. They voted against it. So, we need to bear these things in mind because it is so easy to try to pretend somehow that people have not been following politics in this country.

Why do you think that we had such a change in the district of George Town? Although only one Member changed, it was a significant change. The Leader of Government Business was removed from his seat. Do you need any clearer message other than people were dissatisfied with the government? Gee!

If I had stayed too close to him, they were going to take me out, too. The Minister for Health, he was gone, too. He had to get down on his knees and pray.

[Laughter]

Dr. Frank S. McField: So, there was a change. The people intended for there to be a change because they were not satisfied with the management of the country.

They come back so soon after the nightmare to frighten us again. They should have waited a little longer before rushing out here to crucify them with the problems they left, the cross they put on their backs. It is one thing to put a cross on someone's back, but after you do then you push him down rather than help him carry it! That is really low down. That is low down. That is not fair.

Cayman Airways!

I was on the Civil Aviation Board, and we kept telling the Minister at that time that he needed to do something about the debts that Cayman Airways had accumulated with the Civil Aviation. The way they ran the situation was as though there were no differences, you see, so they passed these things around in such a way that anything would look good, as long as they had the manoeuvring room. I suspect they also knew that things were looking pretty bad.

The economy of the world is changing and we have to have faith that we will get through in a favourable way. Those of us who understand economics understand that it is important to keep people's faith high so that confidence in our economy is secured. When they come out and do what they do they are the ones who put the economy and the faith of the economy in jeopardy by the way they try to benefit from the kind of situation in which we are in. They are the ones who are politicising this situation.

I am glad that the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town is not associated with this particular movement because it is out of order.

Having a recurrent expenditure that is high is a result of progress building. If you do not have money to build these buildings, to pay for the utilities and for the staff, your recurrent expenditure would probably not be high. Because of the tremendous growth which we had between 1992 and 2000 we find that this is the time when everything grows. If there had been a different kind of management, if people had said to themselves, 'Look, what is going to happen now is that world economics is like this: You will have about eight years of boom and then a little recession/depression again, and then you have your boom and your little recession', that is predictable. That is what they should have predicted. Because they had predicted that, then they would say, 'Well, rather than borrowing to buy, although we can afford to borrow because we are below that 10.3% of our recurrent that would go towards paying of the loans, let us still not borrow'. 'Do you know why I am saying don't borrow', Mr. Truman Bodden should have said, 'If we borrow and build, do you know what's going to happen?' We are going to have to support what we borrowed and built. That is going to cost money and then you know we should be thinking about tomorrow. Although we are not here we still have to think about our country.'

For the remaining three minutes, let me say this: that would have been prudent management. Prudent management is not spending all you have and then when it is someone else's turn they have to borrow because you have spent all the savings. You spent all the savings, turned around and started making fun of them because they had to borrow.

I feel that what they have done is they have spent all that was made in the golden years between 1992 and 2000. They expended themselves in order to look good among the people because somehow that government was a failure earlier on, as it had a mandate to "Caymanise" and it never did. It had a mandate to develop a collective consciousness that it never worked with. It had a mandate to politically move this country forward and never did.

In other words, the last government tried to buy its way through and it succeeded in doing so for four years. Even though it had some very popular people with it to help it along, there were some very unpopular people.

So, at the end of the day the reason why we have this type of budget is because we must now borrow to pay recurrent expenditure. Those persons who should have been responsible for keeping down the growth of recurrent expenditure did the complete opposite.

I hope that my contribution to this Throne Speech and Budget Address for the year 2001 takes its place among what I might consider to be some of the more analytical ones. I hope that one day when students come to look at it, they will remember that I thought of those in the future when I did what I did today.

Thank you.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.25 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.48 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Debate continues on the Appropriation Bill, 2001, Throne Speech and Budget Address. The floor is open to debate.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Capt. A. Eugene Ebanks: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Before I begin my debate, I would like to take this opportunity to thank and congratulate His Excellency the Governor on his second Throne Speech delivered the 9th March 2001. His Excellency outlined many important issues affecting the Cayman Islands and I look forward to working with other Honourable Members of this House in addressing these issues.

It is encouraging to see that the Department of Tourism is exploring opportunities to diversify our tourist accommodation offerings. It is even more encouraging to see that the Ministry of Tourism will be leading the development of a co-operative to help the small independent operators improve their reach into the tourist market.

I have personally experienced some of the difficulties the small operators are facing today.

Back in 1986 I, along with some other small watersports operators, went to the Minister of Tourism at the time to ask if there was any way he could assist us in retaining some of the tourism market. We were being pushed out of business, one-by-one, by the major foreign control watersports operators. We were told by the Minister that there was nothing he could do unless the laws were changed because we were operating in a free enterprise system.

So, you can see that the small businessmen have been struggling for at least fifteen years, but the struggle has been going on much longer. Unfortunately, the struggle is getting harder and harder with each passing day.

The laws have not changed in this respect, however, there has been a Land and Sea Co-operative put in place so that all the small operators who could not get a piece of the pie before can get their share like everyone else.

I commend the Honourable Minister for Tourism for this bold initiative he has taken because it is through this effort the little man will be able to put food on the table and send his children to school.

In my opinion, the Cayman Islands are still the best place in the whole wide world to live. The warmth and tranquillity that is found here can be found nowhere else. Our beaches and crystal clear waters are second to none. We must do whatever we can to preserve that peace and tranquillity. However, we do not have the mountains, the rivers and the waterfalls or the eco-tourism to offer as a tourist attraction like some other destinations.

On 6 March 2001, the Cayman Net News carried the headline, "Dolphin at Turtle Farm".

Swimming with the dolphins has proven to be a very successful and safe tourist attraction in such destinations as Florida, Mexico, Cuba, the Bahamas, Anguilla, Tortola, Jamaica, the Bay Islands and Honduras. I feel that this is a much needed attraction for the Cayman Tourism Product, and I will welcome this facility in the hope that it will take some of the overcrowding away from Stingray City, especially during the peak cruise ship days when it is not uncommon to have 400 or 500 people there at one time.

Some of these facilities are used as research institutes to study the dolphins. Students from all over the world utilise these facilities during their studies while they are in university. I would hope that this could also be added to the local schools' curriculum, as I am sure that any of our students who are interested in marine biology would appreciate an opportunity such as this.

The Turtle Farm is already one of our biggest tourist attractions. I would think that adding the dolphin facility could only enhance our tourism product, and I for one would support such a proposal if it were brought to this Government.

It is also truly encouraging to see that the Department of Environment has plans to carry out a review of the marine parks. Over the last 14 years the marine parks have worked well and have proven to be very successful.

Before the marine parks were introduced I remember quite vividly we could sometimes search the North Sound for two hours and hardly get enough conchs to fish with. Since the introduction of the marine park system, thousands and thousands of conchs inhabit the marine park simply because they are protected.

There were other areas where there was no conch, which had been totally annihilated and overfished to the point where you could not find any. The marine parks were introduced in those areas and now conch is very much in abundance.

I feel the time has come to make some changes in the marine park system to make it even more effective. However, before the changes are made I think it would be especially helpful if the Department of Environment consulted with the Marine Conservation Board and other focused groups, as well as the public, in order that they can get as much feedback as possible to help improve on what we already have.

In addition, the time has come for legislation which includes all reef fish having a size and quantity limit in effect. As it stands right now, our reef fish are at the mercy of the public. Unfortunately, the public is having no mercy on our marine life.

In addition to all reef fish being protected by size and quantity limits, I feel that all of our ornamental reef fish should be protected regardless of the size by-law.

In days gone by, the local fishermen would draw their fish trap, take what they wanted to eat or which was good and edible and release the rest. Today, any fish from 2½ inches on up is being kept as food.

If you go to the tackle stores the clerks will tell you that sales on their bigger hooks are not moving, but the smaller the hook the better they sell. They have already caught most of the big fish and now they have to catch all the little ones. These are very serious issues that have to be addressed, and the time is long overdue when we should be addressing them.

I will support additional legislation in regards to our conservation laws. However, I do feel that it is imperative that Government get input from the public, and other focused groups as well, before these restrictions are put into legislation. While it is the Government's responsibility to protect our environment, we also have to be very careful not to create any undue hardships for the little guy.

In the Cayman Net News on 16th March and 30th March 2001 there were two very interesting articles on commercial conch farming in the Turks and Caicos Islands. I think this could be a viable opportunity for us to take advantage of our huge demand for conch and the very limited supply.

It appears, from all that I have heard, that the Cayman Islands have ideal conditions for conch farming. I would hope that in the near future Government will have an opportunity to look into the possibility of conch farming. In addition to supplying the local demand, it would also create a new industry and provide employment for local people.

With the Cayman Islands being the high-end tourist destination that we are, I feel that it is very important we make our visitors feel as if that is where they are.

When tourists get into a taxi at the airport, dock or hotel, or onto a bus at the bus stop at the side of the road it is important that they have a good impression of the driver taking them around the island. Unfortunately, this is not always the case.

I feel it is time that we introduce a standardised dress code for ground transportation operators. If independent transportation companies want to have their own uniform that is fine, as long as it is acceptable by the Traffic Department.

While I can think of nothing more frustrating than being stuck behind a slow moving vehicle, driving 15 miles an hour in a 40-mile hour zone, moving from district to district, it is unfair to expect the owner of a piece of heavy equipment who must move his equipment just a mile or so to another job to lose 4-6 hours of work because he cannot move his equipment at certain hours. I feel that there has to be some compromise between the operators and the Traffic Department on moving the equipment with certain guidelines.

Road rage is a major issue now in the United States and in other parts of the world and it is due to frustrations. We have to do whatever we can to avoid that kind of situation on our roads. We already have enough problems and we do not need to add to them.

The Port Authority. While I agree that the George Town facilities need some repairs and upgrading to be more efficient in the way of handling cargo, I think that the Port Authority needs to look at the hours of operation more closely in order to have the most efficient use of their time.

I too, like most Cayman men, have been a merchant seaman. In practically every port I have been to throughout the world the pilot would meet the ship at the sea-buoy and take the ship to the dock unless fog or some other weather condition would not allow it. Once the ship was secured to the dock, the mate on duty made arrangements for either loading or discharging, whatever the ship intended to do. I am confident that with your background you would know more about that than I could ever know.

The point I am trying to make is that it did not matter whether it was 2 in the afternoon or 2 in the morning; these ships were kept on schedule whenever possible. It made no difference. Day or night they were working around the clock.

As it stands now, the George Town port facility, in my opinion, is being utilised to approximately one-third of its capacity simply because they do not operate at night. If the dock was utilised, I think it would be a more efficient operation with regards to moving the cargo. In addition, it would also help to alleviate some of the major traffic congestion that we have in the heart of George Town, especially on cruise ship days.

On the other side of the coin, I think more emphasis should be put on the cruise ships tendering facilities which are now very much inadequate to handle the amount of cruise ship passengers visiting our islands.

For years the cruise lines have been complaining about the long delays in getting their passengers on and off the island because of the docking facility being too small, too overcrowded and tenders having to wait in line for unreasonable periods of time. The money that we propose to spend on the dock, I feel, could be better used in providing a better facility for the cruise ship tenders in view of the fact that tourism plays such a vital role in our economy. In addition, we want our visitors to have a pleasant and enjoyable experience whenever they visit our Islands by having a proper facility for them.

Civil Aviation Authority. The Owen Roberts International Airport has served the country well for many years now. However, I feel that with the tremendous increase in visitors through our airport, the much larger aircrafts and increased number of aircrafts coming to our Islands, the time has come to expand the Passenger Terminal. It should accommodate the peak traffic periods, especially in the arrival area when there are 3 or 4 flights arriving just about the same time.

As it is now, sometimes passengers are standing outside waiting in lines because there is not enough space within the arrival area. This is a problem that could be very uncomfortable for the passengers if it is a rainy day or night, and I feel we need to address that problem.

I can remember as far back as the late 1970s and early 1980s when I was a pilot for Cayman Airways. All of the pilots kept wishing and hoping for a parallel taxiway. Without one sometimes you would taxi away from the terminal and hold short of the active runway. Sometimes you were there for 10 - 15 minutes, waiting for either departing traffic or landing traffic. If there was a parallel taxiway in place, those timely delays could have been avoided. In addition to that, it would also greatly enhance the movement of aircraft on the ground by not having to wait for the runway to be cleared in order to taxi.

Additionally, I feel if we are going to cater to the European tourism market we have to extend the runway to accommodate the long haul flights, meaning the direct flights to and from Europe. At present, the flights that come have to go through the Bahamas because they are restricted by the length of the runway. In order for them to get back to Europe, they must go through the Bahamas, refuel and then head across. If we had a long enough runway they could do the direct flight with no problem. Many other Caribbean destinations have such facilities. I feel it is time to extend the runway if we are going to be competitive as well.

Even though the nav aids (navigation aids) at the Owen Roberts Airport are fairly modern, there is always room for improvement. I can remember when I was flying. On several occasions, especially in the summer months, if there was bad weather we had to divert either to Montego Bay or to Kingston, Jamaica because we could not land here. If we were approaching Miami, Houston or Atlanta where they have the best of nav aids, in similar weather conditions we could have safely landed.

All I am saying is that the addition of more modern nav aids would be a great asset to the Owen Roberts Airport and it would make landing, arriving and taking off in Grand Cayman a safer operation, not to mention how much the pilots would appreciate it.

Under Housing, I am encouraged to see that the proposed merger of the AIDB and the HDC financing arrangements would be more conducive to the small local entrepreneurs, as well as the low income borrowers trying to own their own home. Addressing our housing needs has to be one of the top priorities of this Government, especially for the lower income families.

Some of our people are living in substandard conditions simply because they cannot afford a decent apartment or to rent a house. This is one of the reasons why there are so many shanty towns springing up all over Cayman. Many of these sheds are being built without planning permission and some have no running water, bathroom facilities or electricity. Yet, they are being built and rented just as fast because so many of our people cannot afford anything else. They have to have a roof over their head, so they take what they can to stay out of the weather.

I look forward to the day of a mortgage where the low-income owner can repay $500 or $600 a month. I feel it is desperately needed. Hopefully, with this new merge it can be achieved in order to relieve some of the financial pressures off the little guy.

Every family wants to own their own home, and it gives the family a great feeling of accomplishment when the children have a place to call home instead of being relocated to another apartment every year or so.

The editorial in the Caymanian Compass, Friday, 23rd March 2001, was entitled "Making Ends Meet". It went on to say, "It was costing the Cayman government more to operate than it was taking in".

That is exactly the same position that many of our people are finding themselves in today. It is costing them more to live than they are making and a great percentage of that cost is due to the high price of housing.

The Editor ended by saying that this is a task that can no longer be regulated to the backburner. The need is acute and the time is now. The housing need is also acute and we must address this problem now.

For many years there has been talk about Cayman having its own mental health and geriatrics facility. This is something that has been needed for a long time. It is hard enough taking care of sick family on the island, but to send them overseas is even more difficult. This will be a welcome addition to our health services, and I hope it will become a reality in the very near future. I certainly welcome such a facility.

The Second Elected Member in his debate spoke of attending the Cayman Against Substance Abuse (CASA) Graduation Ceremony on Thursday, 22nd March 2001 at the Boatswain Bay Presbyterian Church. I too attended that ceremony and I must say I thoroughly enjoyed the entire evening. The young ladies sang and performed their special items exceptionally well.

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank and congratulate CASA and the West Bay Community Development Action Committee (CO-DAC) for piloting such a much needed, worthwhile programme. I also to thank all the parents who attended the graduation and I urge them to continue working with their children and getting them involved in programmes like this.

There were eleven students enrolled in that programme: eight girls; three boys. All the girls attended the graduation ceremony and received their certificates. However, I was troubled to see that not one of the boys attended the ceremony. What is even more disturbing is, after speaking with one of the coordinators of the programme, I was told that the boys seemed to have lost interest in the programme. It is imperative that we, as parents, get involved with our children in such programmes in an effort to keep them away from the major problems that we are faced with on the drug scene in our Islands today.

His Excellency the Governor also spoke of the National Drug Council (NDC) establishing the first community intervention programme at the Scranton site, then West Bay, North Side and Cayman Brac. I would like to see such a programme throughout the entire Cayman Islands and all districts, in an effort to combat the drug problem, which is rapidly getting out of hand.

I would like to touch very briefly on the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member on Wednesday, 21st March 2001. In the Financial and Business Services' sector the future looks bright for the Cayman Islands.

For example, the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange experienced strong growth, with an increase listing by 83.3 percent and a market capitalisation by 66.2 percent. The number of banks and trust companies increased from 570 in 1999 to 580 in 2000. Mutual funds and the insurance industry remain robust, with the mutual funds experiencing the largest annual increase in its history.

Growth in insurance licences was a modest 3 percent. However, growth assets increased significantly from US$12 billion to US$14.9 billion, or 24.2 percent. Company registration increased by 17.6 percent over 1999. In the area of shipping, gross tonnage increased by 37.8 percent during 2000.

The figures were very impressive for 2000. However, let us look at the sector that truly affects the little guy.

In the Tourism sector, we are aware that the cruise ship arrival declined, and there is also a question of the true number of air arrivals.

Activity in the Construction sector showed a significant decline in 2000. Planning approvals fell 20.9 percent.

In addition, Unemployment is at 4 percent even though there are approximately 14,000 work permits issued at this time.

To add insult to injury, Consumer Prices are up 2.3 percent. However, I did not see a cost of living increase mentioned.

In closing, it seems as though in these beautiful Islands of ours the rich are getting richer, the poor are getting poorer and survival is getting harder with every passing day. I thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: I shall await a quorum.

(Pause)

The Speaker: I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Women Affairs, Youth and Sports.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 am tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 am tomorrow. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. This Honourable House stands adjourned until 10 am tomorrow.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 AM THURSDAY, 5 APRIL 2001.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
THURSDAY
5 APRIL 2001
10.17 AM
Fifteenth Sitting

[Prayers read by the Hon. Minister responsible for the Ministry of Planning, Communications and Works]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE HONOURABLE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Apologies

The Speaker: I have apologies for absence from the Honourable First Official Member who is presently off the Island, from the Honourable Minister for Education, Human Resources and Culture who is off the Island on official business, and from the Third Elected Member for West Bay who is off the Island on Government business.

Moving on to item 3 on today's Order Paper, Statements by Honourable Ministers and Members of Government. Statement by the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Legal Administration.

The Honourable Second Official Member.

STATEMENTS BY MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

INDEPENDENCE AND INTEGRITY OF THE JUDICIARY OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: Mr. Speaker, recently concerns have been expressed in various ways by the judiciary and through public media, touching on the independence and possibly the integrity of the judiciary of the Cayman Islands. It was questioned in one case whether the absence of security of tenure, of senior members of the judiciary may contribute to what were seen by the questioner as conservative rulings.

In response, representatives of the legal profession refuted any such suggestion, pointing out that the judges do have security of tenure and are not on contracts subject to annual renewal. That is also my understanding, namely that instruments of appointment of the currently serving judges are unlimited in time. There are additionally constitutional safeguards protecting the terms and conditions of judges during their tenure, and laying down strict conditions for determining whether and how a judge may be removed from office. All of these provisions exist in order to preserve and maintain the impartiality and independence of the judiciary. Their emoluments and allowances are required by law and the Constitution to be a charge on the revenue of the Islands, and not liable to reduction during a judge's term of office.

From time to time dissatisfaction may be expressed by members of the public with the outcome of a particular case, or the way in which a particular manner was handled. In a country which respects freedom of speech, it is to be expected that no one is beyond criticism or comment. This is right and proper in a democratic society. Occasionally, however, the criticism goes beyond fair comment and may amount to contempt of court in the form of scandalising the court.

The Grand Court, as a superior court of record, has the inherent jurisdiction and power at common law to deal with persons guilty of contempt of court. This is specifically preserved by the rules of court. It is right for the court to deal itself with what is known as contempt in the face of the court. An example of such contempt would be wilfully insulting a judge or wilfully interrupting the proceedings of the court. In such a case, the court adopts a summary procedure but principles have been developed by case law to provide time for reflection by the judge as to the best course to take to consider whether the contemnor, that is, the party alleged to have made the contempt, should have access to legal advice and most importantly an opportunity to apologise.

In R v Hill [1986] CLR 457 CA, the appellant had been held to be in contempt after shouting from the public gallery that the judge was biased and a racist. His appeal was dismissed on the ground that the insult deliberately directed at the judge, was of a gross and scandalous kind and was a classic example of contempt, palpably calculated to interfere with the administration of justice.

There are other instances where comments are written in the press or said on the radio and television which refer to court proceedings. Such matters, may, if the occasion concerns the judiciary, be referred by them to the Attorney General for consideration as to whether proceedings should be brought for committal for contempt of court. Until of late, the most recent were two such matters referred in mid 1999. In one case, for good reason and on advice, it was considered prudent not to bring proceedings, partially due to the party concerned being out of the jurisdiction, and partially due to the need to establish in proving the contempt of scandalising the court that there is a real risk that public confidence in the judicial system will be undermined. This is not easy to establish to the criminal standard of proof. This position appeared to be accepted by the judiciary, despite understandable sensitivities to the kind of criticism.

In the other case referred to, a relative of a person convicted of serious offences wrote the same letter to many persons in public life claiming that the judge was “racist and a prejudiced man who was obviously demented, evil and wicked.” In such circumstances, the consequences of proceedings have to be weighed up as opposed to alternative action. After consulting with others, including the Solicitor General, I decided to deal with this case by means of a warning. In that written warning it was made clear that the allegations in the letter were without foundation and considered extremely serious. The allegations were plainly intended to diminish the authority of the Grand Court and so constituted a contempt of that court.

The signatory of the letter was advised that the allegations rendered her liable to legal proceedings brought by the Attorney General, and in the event that contempt was established would expose the person to a fine or imprisonment.

It was recognised that the relative was likely to have written the letter while distressed following the conviction of her relative for serious offences. For that reason only, I decided not to bring proceedings, but any repetition would not be tolerated and would result in proceedings. No further action was required as the allegations were not perpetuated.

The public interest that I seek to protect and uphold is the public confidence in the legal system, including the judiciary, to maintain their reputation for fairness and integrity. The power of courts, of record, to punish contempts is part of their inherent jurisdiction to enable justice to be administered in a regular and orderly way.

Returning to the recent past, there have been expressed by the judiciary concerns about what are seen as an increase in quantity and intensity of unwarranted attacks on the honesty and partiality and integrity of members of the bench, by members of the public. Three such instances have been cited, including that to which I referred earlier regarding the alleged but inaccurate reference to the lack of security of tenure and its possible consequences. The other two episodes concern remarks alleged to have been made on radio phone-in programmes, in one case alleging that bias by a magistrate had been reflected not only in the decision, but also in the choice of magistrate to hear the case. In the other case it was apparently alleged that preferential treatment was accorded to a potential accused on grounds of race of colour.

The Cayman Islands is known to be a tolerant society. This should not extend, however, to conduct calculated to undermine the judiciary. While it will not be necessary or desirable to bring proceedings in every case, as judgment must be exercised, if as the judges perceive there is, in recent events, the emergence of a trend capable of lowering the judiciary in the eyes of the public, I will utilise the power at my disposal. It may be noted that the case of Ahnee vs DPP [1999] 2WLR 1305, illustrates the modern ambit of the offence of scandalising the court, and why the jurisdiction to invoke proceedings for this type of offence is rarely invoked, and I quote from the case: “The offence (scandalising the court) is narrowly defined. It does not extend to comment on the conduct of a judge unrelated to his performance on the bench. It exists solely to protect the administration of justice rather than the feelings of judges. There must be a real risk of undermining public confidence in the administration of justice. The field of application of the offence is also narrowed by the need in a democratic society for public scrutiny of the conduct of judges, and for the right of citizens to comment on matters of public concern. There is available to a defendant a defence based on the ‘right of criticising, in good faith, in private or public, the public act done in the seat of justice.’ See Reg v Gray [1900] 2QB 36, 40; Ambard v Attorney-General for Trinidad and Tobago [1936] AC 322, 335, and Badry c Director of Public Prosecutions [1983] 2AC 297. The classic illustration of such an offence is the implication of improper motives to a judge. But, so far as Ambard’s case [1936] AC 322 may suggest that such conduct must invariably be an offence their Lordships consider that such an absolute statement is not nowadays acceptable. For example, if a judge descends into the arena and embarks on extensive and plainly biased questioning of a defendant in a criminal trial, a criticism of bias may not be an offence. The exposure and criticism of such judicial misconduct would be in the public interest. On this point their Lordships prefer the view of the Australian courts that such conduct is not necessarily an offence. Rex v Nicholls [1911] 12 CLR 280.”

In concluding, let there be no doubt that as Attorney General, I have acted both here and in previous jurisdictions as Attorney General to uphold public confidence in the judiciary, including successfully prosecuting for contempt two attorneys attempting to undermine and remove the chief justice in a neighbouring jurisdiction; and that I will continue to act to uphold the independence and integrity of the judiciary. It is, of course, always open to the judiciary to act in the same interests; sometimes all that may be required is an explanation of the true position to allay any public criticism or concern, as occurred recently in relation to a issue regarding the liberty of a subject. Such a public statement may be made by the judiciary, or the Attorney General, if consulted. It may also be added that the media has a responsibility to ensure as far as possible the accuracy of reported facts.

I will, in attempting to fulfill the responsibilities of the office I hold, continue to monitor events and if matters are referred to me, I will give them proper consideration. Thank you.

The Speaker: Moving on to item 4, Government Business, Bills. Second Reading of the Appropriation Bill, 2001. Continuation of Debate on the Throne Speech, delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday 9 March 2001, together with the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member on Wednesday 21 March 2001.

The Floor is open to debate. Does any Member wish to speak? (Pause) The floor is open to debate. Does any Member wish to speak? The Elected Member for East End.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION BILL, 2001

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR ON FRIDAY 9 MARCH 2001

TOGETHER WITH

THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON WEDNESDAY 21 MARCH 2001

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker

As I rise to make my first contribution to the Throne Speech and Budget Address, I am honoured to be a part of this Honourable House. I must first of all thank the people of East End for placing such confidence in me. While I am honoured, I am also disappointed in the protocols of this country.

As a new Member, I thought protocol would dictate shortly after the elections how the Governor would have wanted to personally meet with the 15 elected Members, giving them the position he, as leader of this country, has in regards to Members' expectations and what expectations Members could look forward to from him. This was mentioned before, but I am disappointed because up until this day I have not been introduced to the Governor—particularly as a rookie.

To add insult to injury, yesterday I received a note from one of my colleagues, with a few dates on it saying when the Governor could meet the new Members for lunch or dinner, with or without spouse. In any democratic society where democratic elections are held, the one phrase voiced as soon as the elections are over, is “the people have spoken.” More importantly, the people must be heard; and to be heard, the people of this country sent 15 Members of their society to this Honourable House on November 8. Some respect must be afforded to those 15 Members.

I understand the separation of powers. The people of this country sent 15 of their peers to represent them and to govern them. The Governor of this country falls in the ambit of governing the country, therefore, in my view there should be a relationship between those two bodies. Since November 8 when I was elected, I have seen very little relationship between those two bodies. I am disappointed first as a legislator and then as a citizen of this country; that has to change. I do not need to meet the Governor now. I trust that my position on it will change the protocol in this country, in the future.

My other disappointment has been with the former ministers of this country. I have a very good memory—particularly concerning politics! I can recall when the 1992 Government lost the election by a sweeping mandate and the former Government took power. To everybody's surprise when it happened, there was a commission of enquiry into the conduct of the former Minister of health.

I have seen much in the last eight years. We have heard of mismanagement of public funds, but nevertheless, the more recent former government was given the opportunity to govern without too much abuse. I understand people have to defend themselves but it has gone a little bit too far now. If we were to look at the manner in which the previous Government mismanaged the public funds, there is reason to bring a commission of enquiry into their conduct too. It is time that those three former Ministers set about dealing with the law firm, the fast food, and the agriculture and leave the running of the country in the hands of the present Government.

Every few weeks we hear of another press release by the former Government. We would like to know if these were the same people the country entrusted with the responsibility of governing who are now scaring the people and potential investors of this country. The Third Elected Member for George Town spoke about ‘Trumanomics’ a few days ago. I wonder if they realise we, the 14 Members and I, did not put ourselves here? The people of this country got rid of them and duly elected us on November 8. Do they not understand that they were not listened to on November 8? How are they going to be listened to now? They must wait and take a backseat and if they want to return in 2004, then they can. The people may reelect them. However, right now they need to take a backseat and give this Government a chance to run the country. Believe me, there is sufficient intelligence and ability on this Backbench to keep this Government from running astray. We do not need the former Ministers to tell the Government—we can deal with them!

The country must know that no one in here is going to tell Arden McLean what he must do because I have a mind of my own. I do not need any former Ministers to calculate any budget for me. They must also understand that my life has been what I call a spade a spade, even if it digs my grave in the next minute. Give the country a chance!

I needed to get those two things off my chest—about the Governor and the former Ministers. They all need to behave themselves and have some respect for the people of this country because in both instances there is no respect shown for the people of this country. I will move on now to the Throne Speech.

Over the many years that I have followed politics, I have seen many Governors come to this Honourable House and deliver the Throne Speech. Each year it seems to repeat itself: what we are going to do for our people in the coming year; and in a lot of instances, it is paying lip service because a lot of the things are never completed. I trust that this Government will live by the Throne Speech.

I noticed that the Governor started off his Throne Speech with Information Technology; that is the new buzzword in the whole world, "IT", and it should be no less in this country. However, when I sit on the Public Accounts Committee and hear public servants say that their system is obsolete, I trust—

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for just one moment? I would ask you not to bring matters of the Public Accounts Committee into your debate. Be careful of what you say. Please continue.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Mr. Speaker, thank you, but that was a re-broadcast on Radio Cayman.

The Speaker: Maybe I should inject further: That does not become a public document until it is tabled in this Honourable House.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will need your guidance as I go along because as I already said, I am a rookie.

Information Technology is good for everyone in this country. It makes no sense to get all the new technology in the world and not use it; we have to train our people to use it. Training is the second order of the day, as soon as we have completed installing all of the necessary programmes needed. I would like to ensure that there is training available for our people, particularly in the public sector, when installing new technology.

The Governor went on to speak about the Judiciary and that a drugs court is being looked at. I welcome that! However, we also have to look at alternative sentencing. I do not support the sale or use of illicit drugs. By the same token, if we condemn every young person who gets involved in drugs to prison, we will never rehabilitate them. We need to find alternative sentencing for young people in this country.

I recently visited the prison and it was my understanding that there were 27 prisoners under 21 years of age in there for different reasons, not only for drugs. But we hear horror stories about our young adults who we hope, will be the future of this country, and who we constantly incarcerate. Every crime must have its punishment, but we, as legislators, need to play our part in the rehabilitation process. New and alternative means of sentencing is used elsewhere in the world such as Global Positioning Systems (GPS), where offenders have to wear a band around their legs and are monitored. They go from their homes, to work and back, and have to be there within a certain time. They are constantly monitored.

I believe the objective of any punishment is to take away one's freedom. You may be at home, but your freedom can still be taken away. Those are the kinds of alternative sentences that we need to rehabilitate the young people in our country. One mistake does not deserve years and years in prison. We have all made mistakes and are glad that most of us have learned from them. I look forward to new alternative sentencing for young people.

I would like to see, and invite the judiciary to start a small claims court in this country. I know two of my colleagues should understand what I am speaking about. There are so many businesses in this country complaining about small amounts owed to them and lawyer fees are higher than what is owed; Therefore, It makes no sense to pay a lawyer to go to court. I challenge the judiciary to start looking at a small claims court.

I will now discuss the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force which I support; it is our only means of protection and defence. However, there is much to be desired in the form of policing our country. In the eastern districts there is an insufficient amount of policemen to police. I hear over and over about how it takes 6.4 police officers to cover any area for 24 hours. Well, if they need 6.5, then we will have to find those six and then that half too!

Crime in this country (as we heard in a recent reply to a parliamentary question) is on the increase. There is no excuse why the police force cannot be fully complemented. My view on this is that if you provide the tools the employee has no excuse for not doing the job. If the Commissioner of Police has a proper complement of police officers then he will have no excuse.

I noticed where the Governor said that the Drug Abuse Resistance Awareness programme (DARE), will be extended from three to six schools this coming year. From three! Mr. Speaker, I wonder why this has not been in all schools? Maybe the Government will reply on this. We need to cut the use of drugs in this country at the bottom. If the demand is reduced, the supply obviously has to dry up also. If we start with our young, I am sure the demand will be reduced. I would like to see DARE extended to all schools in this country because it is necessary. We spend so much on drugs, and then we leave our kids out in the process.

I notice that the Drugs Task Force makes very few trips to the eastern districts. They concentrate on George Town and West Bay, as if they are the only districts drugs are coming in and being used. If it means we need another 6.5 police officers, then we will have to get them.

In December, Finance Committee approved monies for the police force to replace the engines in the patrol boat called Protector. I think it is still on the dock, so we are not being protected; I stand to be corrected on that, but I certainly do not see it out on the water anymore. The time has come for us to look at improving the interdiction, importation, the manner in which we try to stop the importation of drugs. We need to improve the facilities available to the police force. Cayman is no different from anywhere else.

We hear rumours of how drugs reach our shores, nevertheless, as a result of insufficient equipment to carry out the job is the reason why we do not see enough patrolling. We need to give the police force the proper tools and equipment, maybe some type of aircraft and certainly a different boat other than the Protector. The name does not suit that boat because it takes hours to get to East End from George Town where it is docked. I do not know who gave it that name, but we need to think about renaming it.

The police force is our only means of protection and defense locally because by the time England sends its troops anything could happen. Therefore, we need to support our police force and give them the necessary tools and equipment.

I now move on to the Prison Department, another aspect which needs attention. On a recent visit to the prison, it was extremely obvious that we have neglected the prison. I witnessed the Inspector of the prisons who is from England, condemning the West Bay lockup, recommending that it be closed because we house not only our young adults but children. We hold children there at the Governor's pleasure awaiting trial.

He went on to say that the manner in which our children are incarcerated is inhumane at the West Bay lockup. It is necessary that every one of the politicians go and visit this place to see exactly what conditions he is speaking about because while he dramatised it, it is still necessary for us to look at it.

We hear that there are proposals in for a youth remand centre which has been on the table for quite some time. Maybe the Government can now come forward and say when they intend to build this remand centre. I am sure the Lady Minister who has this responsibility will get up and let the country know when we will have a remand centre in the Cayman Islands. I am sure that the Leader of Government Business will support her in this endeavour, and so will I.

While I believe the punishment must fit the crime, I also believe that we must put provisions in place to rehabilitate our prisoners. Certainly, it is the responsibility of the Governor and this country is anxiously awaiting his comments, or his position on how we are going to rehabilitate through a parole system our long term prisoners and those who are in there for life.

The idea of a halfway house has been around for a very long time and no one seems to be paying much attention to it. I cannot blame that on the new Government, but since they are in position to look into it, I trust they will do that.

Anywhere else in the world there is a... and if I may use the words of the Second Official Member, a ROBUST programme in place to rehabilitate citizens who have been incarcerated for long periods of time. We cannot have them stay there, being fed forever and we are not trying to somehow put a programme in place to rehabilitate them. The excuse of saying it was done for one and he committed a crime, or that too much crime is being committed, is not good enough. That is no reason not to have a programme in place. I am not saying what this programme should be, because it is the Governor's responsibility to look at this. I trust he will look after it consulting with Executive Council and the Leader of Government Business so that they can decide, and possibly circulate some proposals.

The conditions at Northward Prison are not that good either. On a recent visit there I saw a visitor's centre being erected which is being paid for by the general public through donations to the prison. It is a serious matter in this country if we cannot build a visitor's centre for the prison. Why have we neglected the prison service for so long? No one has paid attention to the needs of the prison; the same way they have not paid attention to the needs of the police force. Whoever is responsible need to start paying attention because as I said earlier, I am gifted with a very good memory and I have four years in here to remind everyone.

If I may go back and touch on the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service, there is a very important issue I think the country needs to be reminded of also. On November 8, during the general elections in East End and being a candidate in that particular election I saw a situation which, in my opinion, brought a dark cloud over the political process in this country. One of the candidates in that election was allowed to have an armed police officer within the polling station for his protection. The responsibility for that lies squarely on the powers that be, but I consider it a serious affront to the people of this country.

I am a first-timer in this Honourable House, and the day that I have to have an armed guard escort me through East End, that is the day I will leave this country.

For many years we have said we do not want to repeat the mistakes of our neighbouring countries, politically or otherwise. I am convinced we have only paid lip service to that all these years because on 8 November I realised that was the beginning. I trust it will never happen again in this country. I wonder how the populace would have gotten to that particular person if elected. Would it be through armed guards?

This country has not reached that point yet. Whoever was responsible for sending that police officer to East End with a gun under his arm I implore them to never let it happen again. We are not the place which time forgot, and we certainly have not reached the point where candidates are being threatened in this country. I was shocked!

Another area I would like to touch on is that of Government Information Services (GIS), in particular Radio Cayman. I recently received a letter from the Music Association which said that they were not being given equal time for their music on Radio Cayman. I have not paid much attention to that area, but after receiving the letter, I started paying attention; and they are correct. It appears that we do not want anything which is Caymanian; we want the American stuff and the rest of the Caribbean, but we do not want to listen to local musicians. I do not know if it is because we do not captivate the kind of audience we would like, but I am challenging GIS to give our musicians equal time; I think it is fair. This is a government radio. We cannot dictate to the others, but I think we should play local entertainment because if we do not promote our own, they will lose. I throw that challenge out to GIS.

I know there was a new song in November something to the effect of "You will not get my X on Election" I guess because it is after the election that is the reason why it is not being played now, but it is nicely put together. We hear of the Barefoot Man, Andy Martin, and MOJ - these are our local musicians and we should promote them.

We have a situation where Caymanians are becoming disillusioned. They have to because these are the things that are not happening for them; they do not play a part in their own country, and until we start embracing our own, we will never be a nation of unity. All we ever do is talk about what we are going to do for our own people and turn our backs on them. That is why those three former ministers are in private life now.

As I turn to the Personnel Department, I notice where the Governor said that Personnel will soon start utilising the new individual performance management process which was introduced in January. This is a very good thing, but it must be used the way it was intended in order for employer and employee to know exactly what their responsibilities are and what is expected of them. If we do an appraisal and leave it on the backburner or put it on the shelf, it is no good; that is not the purpose of an appraisal programme.

I am sure that in time the public service will understand and get to enjoy the process because it lays out exactly where they are going, how they get there; it is needed in the public sector. They need to know exactly what their future is instead of being stuck behind one desk with no idea of how they can promote themselves and what kind of succession programme is in place. A good appraisal system will give them that and it is all for the betterment of the civil service.

Under the Portfolio of Legal Affairs, in my opinion, the Law School should be removed from under this portfolio and put under the education system; that is my humble submission. I believe that any education programme needs to be under education and I am going to support the Law School being put under the education ministry. I am sure the prosecutor's office cannot go under the Ministry of Education or that of Works. I do not think that any learning institution in this country should be anywhere other than under the Ministry of Education.

The Financial Reporting Unit (FRU), which was the subject of much questioning in this Honourable House on Monday, still has a lot of unanswered questions. Someone needs to give the Legislators in this country the answers to those questions. I cannot speak for anyone else, but I was not satisfied with the replies forthcoming.

I understand the need for the FRU and I understand the need for confidentiality in the FRU. However, I am still convinced that the head of the FRU reports to no one, therefore, the FRU seems to be an entity onto itself. You cannot have one man and then three different heads having one-third responsibility for this individual; there must be a clear line of authority and responsibility. Therefore, from that perspective the answers will be forthcoming. When the Second Official Member has maybe one-third or a little more, and the Governor has a little share; then the Commissioner has a little share of the responsibility . . . we cannot expect the Second Official Member, with all due respect to him, to come to this Honourable House and answer all the questions.

He is placed in a quandary where he cannot answer for the Governor; he cannot answer for the Commissioner of Police, he can only answer on his little piece of the responsibility. I am sure it is as frustrating for the Second Official Member as it is for some of us on this side of the House. It is for me. I am sure it is for the Commissioner of Police because he has administrative responsibility, yet the budget for this falls elsewhere. This needs to be straightened out. I will move on to another area.

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for a moment?

If you are moving to another subject, it may be a convenient time to take the morning break. We shall suspend for 15 minutes. I ask Honourable Members to please be back in 15 minutes, we have a long road ahead.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.32 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.56 AM

The Speaker: Continuation of Debate on the Throne Speech together with the Budget Address.

The Elected Member for East End continuing.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you again, Mr. Speaker.

I was moving on to a different subject when we took the break. I would like to briefly touch on the Statistics Office. The census conducted in 1998 is yet to reach us. We have seen much about press releases, in recent times, since the new Government took office. Nevertheless, I have yet to receive a copy of the census. It would have been in the best interests of this country for its Legislators to debate the census during this time. I trust that it is forthcoming in the not-too-distant future. Unfortunately, those of us who have already debated the Throne Speech will not have the opportunity to discuss the census.

There is much discussion on the streets concerning the census. I believe it is a good yardstick to see where this country must go and where it came from over the previous ten years. Nevertheless, we do not have it and I would appreciate if a copy of the census could be made available, even though I shall not be able to debate it.

Under the area of Shipping Registry, I notice where the Governor said it is planned to introduce a new Marine Pollution Law. After spending four years on the Planning Authority and years as a marine engineer, one of my big concerns was all those little live-aboards that occupy our canals. Mr. Speaker, you were also a member of that Board and I am sure you will recall my grave concerns about pollution in our canals because of waste from these little boats.

It appears that since that time, it has gotten even worse. Boat owners come to this country and park their boats in the canals by their little lots and there are no holding tanks. There are no provisions to pump those tanks out, and beside that, they live rent free. It is, in my opinion, fast polluting our waters, and waters where I have seen children fishing in these canals. We need to put legislation in place to prevent people from doing that—not from living on their boats, but certainly, while in this country they must have holding tanks for all waste. It must be pumped on-shore and processed at the government's sewerage system.

It is polluting our waters and I trust that the new Marine Conservation Board will look into this as soon as possible. It appears that everybody comes to this country to live big while destroying what we have to leave to our future generations, and we do nothing about it. If the White Paper speaks about the environment, then we know we have neglected it. We are caretakers of our environment for future generations and I will touch on that when I come to marine conservation.

I also noticed recently, through the courts, when a boat captain was charged for destroying marine life along West Bay Road. I wonder who is responsible for monitoring the passenger liners that anchor in our harbours every day. My experience tells me (and I am sure you too, as a former captain, Mr. Speaker) that they are not allowed to dump anything in any territorial waters. During my former profession, whenever a ship enters territorial waters, it is monitored constantly. If it is believed that one plastic bag or if smoke comes from the stack of a particular ship, they are charged. Nevertheless, I drive on the waterfront every day, and on most days I see exhaust smoke billowing from the passenger liners.

I am not trying to throw a monkey wrench into the gears to prevent passenger liners from coming here because they provide a good source of revenue for this country and its people. But by the same token, they know the rules of the road; they know the rules of the sea; they know the rules of any country—with the exception of Cayman with no rules.

It is all well and good to charge one little yacht for knocking over two little shelves along West Bay Road, but what about what is being dumped into our harbours?

What about the freight ships which tie up alongside the dock for days? Are they being monitored? What about the luxury yachts sitting right out in our harbours? Is the Shipping Registry monitoring these boats? We talk about the fishermen going out there and throwing their anchor over and destroying the marine life, but what about the fish being polluted right here in our harbours? Nobody is concerned about that.

I was of the impression that the head of Shipping Registry would be monitoring all these things, including smaller boats being surveyed and required to pay for a licence, making sure all safety equipment would be on board. If our marine life plays such an important role in tourism, we need to protect it. It is not about taking the conchs and the whelks and the lobsters, it goes further than that. Every person who comes here on a boat must be monitored because we cannot allow them to dump everything in the sea around this country and no one is concerned about it. It destroys and pollutes the marine life and our waters. We also have to think about the tourist and residents swimming in these waters. It does not mean because we are in the Caribbean sea, which is limit less, that we should ignore these important issues. It creates a problem and government needs to look at preventing this problem.

Every little fishing boat that comes to this country must be monitored. They stay in our harbours for five, six, ten days and nobody except customs and immigration clears them on arrival; then they can do as they please. We have to stop the pollution of our territorial waters. If we are going to rely on tourism, and we are going to utilise tourism to get revenue to run our country, we must protect our waters. I am asking for boats in this country to be monitored more closely.

I now move on to the Ministry of Education, Human Resources and Culture. I note where the “Ministry will liaise with the Chamber of Commerce on a public/private partnership to include a National Mentoring Programme, the development of a National Youth Service, and the E-business partnership with schools.” I applaud the government for getting the Chamber of Commerce involved with education.

During the election, I was invited to forums conducted by the Chamber of Commerce. They said that there were ten topics they would be asking all candidates for their position on. Those ten topics came from a list of some 60 topics circulated to their membership who were asked to prioritise the top ten the new Government needed to address. There were concerns about the White Paper, questions about the OECD, and we had questions about long-term residency—an important issue, but surprisingly there was not one question on education—a more important issue.

The membership of the Chamber of Commerce did not, in my opinion, consider education a top priority in this country. That is an affront to the people of this country because we hear all the time about how our children coming out of the schools, cannot be hired by the businesses because they are not literate. Nevertheless, it was not a priority to the Chamber. I applaud the government for bringing them on board to help with education. It was very disappointing, Mr. Speaker.

I spoke to the Manager of the Chamber of Commerce about my concern of education not being questioned, and I think, it was mentioned in West Bay, which was the next site for one of the forums. Mr. Speaker, I am telling you, this Honourable House, and this country that education is more important than long-term residency. There is no maybe or perhaps about it. Education of our people, our children, takes priority over long-term residency. We will get to long-term residency today too, but in the main time we are on education and that is what I will discuss.

I am glad for the Minister of Education. This country has waited for 25 years on the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, to head Education. He has proven himself in other areas. He has been a very good teacher in this country and he is well suited to be the Minister of Education. He must not disappoint this country. He must bring reform and establish partnerships with the business society. The business society must put money into our education system—money, time, resources. It is time we stopped playing hopscotch with our children’s education.

For too long, Ministers have played against one another with the education system to gain favours in elections. That must stop! This goes for all of the past Education Ministers or Members of Executive Council; we have to stop playing hopscotch with education. I expect the present Minister will understand the needs of our children, especially since he is a former teacher. But he also needs to be sensitive to our teachers.

Teaching is a profession. We are constantly losing the Caymanian teachers. Why? It is because we do not give them any incentives to remain in the system. We constantly abuse them and when they go out into the private sector, we start to complain.

I am glad the Minister has asked his long time friend, the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, to head up an enquiry as to why Caymanian teachers are leaving the service. The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town also is an educator. I am sure he understands why he left. It is no different today because they are still being pushed out of the system.

In truth, the same teachers who taught me should now be teaching my son, but we change them so often because they come from overseas. The Caymanians are not given an opportunity for long-term service in the teaching profession because former Governments have put pressure on them. Everybody who went to MICO College came back here armed to teach the children. Of course, the powers that be, called them “black power.” As soon as somebody stands up for their rights in this country, they are ostracised. We noticed the Minister of Education was ostracised and so was the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town many years ago. From an honourable profession, they had to go out and mix cement. This is what is happening today also.

My question asked in this Honourable House, a few weeks ago was how many teachers’ aides were in the East End School and the answer to that was there was none. Nevertheless, there are nine in Savannah. I am not blaming the Minister because the information came via the department, but I would like to know, was that a deliberate attempt to mislead this Honourable House?

It is unfair that we treat some schools in this country completely different from others. East End School has been neglected for too long. Fortunately, the Minister of Education and the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town were both principals at East End School. East End is no less because it is remote; just as Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are no less. Everybody must understand that I am here to ensure that East End is remembered and education is going to be at the forefront of my goals during my tenure in this Honourable House.

East End School was built about 20 years ago. At that time it was built to accommodate 10 to 12 children per classroom. It accommodated those children and it did well. But in recent times there are more children going to the school and it accommodates 23 per classroom now, twice what it was intended to do. We hear the former Government talking about how much they did for East End. They did not do anything for East End School. I hope this Government does not fall into that, because I will remind them.

When the other schools in the country had computers, East End School was left behind. The same technology available to schools in George Town, West Bay, Bodden Town, or wherever, is going to go to East End also.

I am awaiting the Minister's [of Education] policy on how politicians can visit the schools too. I believe that if I am the representative for East End, I should have access to the school. I should be able to go there and assist the teachers. It is needed! It is necessary! My responsibility lies in liaison between the teachers and the parents, and we are going to come up with a policy. I do not expect to go there and disturb the school, but I support the school and the schools need all the support they can get.

I have asked the other five newly Elected Members, or rookies of this Honourable House to support me in going to the schools and visiting with all the children. We need to make sure that children in this country understand we are not above them—we are a part of them and they are a part of us. I would like to know what the policy is going to be on that because I am making it known for the record that we want to visit the school and interact with the children. I trust the policy which is expected to come soon will not deter that. I am not prepared to apply one year in advance because I do not have much time in here.

On the Alternative Education Centre, the Governor's Throne Speech said that it needs more secure accommodation. I really think it needs more secure accommodation or, alternatively, it needs teachers who can keep the children in the alternative centre. These kids leave when they want and come when they please. In any country, there is going to be troubled youth. We need to deal with them accordingly. I know of kids going to this Alternative Education Centre—they check in and then they leave. How can we have an Alternative Education Centre . . . well, maybe the kids are using their own alternatives. We need to control these children.

It is said that it may be accomplished by moving to the old Lighthouse School when the new school in Red Bay is completed. That makes the situation even worse because that is not secured. Somehow, the Minister of Education has a big battle on his hands. He has given me confidence in more recent times because he laid on the Table of this House the Review of the Cayman Islands Education Department which was unknowing to the people because the past government did not publicise it in the year 2000 when it was completed. The people of this country deserve to know.

There is nothing wrong with making this public. We all have strengths and weaknesses. But the problem with the former Minister of Education is that he believed he had no weaknesses. Perfection was the order of the day! And his colonial attitude was that you only let them know a little bit. That is wrong! There must be transparency in the governance of the people.

The education review had a number of things in it where we need to see improvement in the Education Department. There were a number of recommendations to get those in effect. One section said, "Many of the strengths and inadequacies of the department are well understood by senior staff in the department, the ministry and by some school principals." This is the reason why our education system has been in shambles for so long; because everybody goes off on their own little tangent—

The Speaker: I would ask that you inject that it is your opinion that the "education system has been in a shambles for so long."

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Yes, Mr. Speaker, it is my opinion, it is not a fact. But over the years, no one took the bull by the horns. I said earlier that we were playing hopscotch with it and that is exactly what we have been doing with education, in my opinion.

The fact that the Minister made this document public shows his intent for the future of education in this country, from his perspective. I trust that the ministry and the department will support his efforts and he will do likewise for the department and the ministry also.

On the issue of human resources, we still do not know what is going on with the Labour Department. But that is an issue which has to be dealt with. We can say what we like about the Third Elected Member for George Town, but during his first four years he brought to the forefront the inadequacies in the law and in this country with employers in this country. Regardless of how he did it, he seems to have gotten rid of a couple of managers at these hotels.

Our people are crying out for equality. We just saw the Labour Department lose two cases as a result of the inadequacies in our law. We need to bring our Labour Law in line with current practices in other countries in particular, what we think is in the best interest of our people. We hear of the Cayman Islands having one of the highest per capita incomes in the Western Hemisphere. I am not convinced that that high per capita income is shared by all Caymanians. If you are going to lump it together, divide it and get the average, it is not Caymanians who are sharing in that.

The foreign labour throws that way out of proportion, and that is one of the reasons why I support a minimum wage. Lest this country misunderstood me when I made a contribution to that, I am going to support a minimum wage in this country, not only for Caymanians, but for the foreign labour that has been exploited for too long. Every time the subject about minimum wage comes up we get these big red flags from employers talking about the cost of living going up. If we are one of the richest countries in the Western Hemisphere, why are some of our working people being paid less than $3 per hour? It is impossible for me to accept that this country cannot pay our people more.

The Labour Department cannot enforce anything on these people. The inadequacies of the law are preventing them from doing anything about it. The Second Official Member said that recommendations to Government from his portfolio would be made on how to strengthen the law. I am all for that and I will support that.

Each time we hear of horror stories concerning labour it comes to the forefront and then it dies a natural death and nobody picks it up again. The Third Elected Member for George Town shouted yesterday how he supported me in the general election. This is not payback, but I am going to support him with the efforts on streamlining and reforming the Labour Law which he has been dealing with for many years. I believe this new Government will listen to him and hear, and will understand the need to streamline and enforce it.

Caymanians and foreigners on the lower end of the income scale have been exploited for too long. I do not expect any Caymanian to want more than good pay for a hard day's work. I will support anything that puts that in place.

I also see where the ministry intends to liaise with the Chamber of Commerce to ensure stable and progressive labour relations. That's good! I am glad the Chamber is going to play its part in these labour relations. But I warn them that we must not allow employers to dictate what must happen. They must play their part, but government must ensure that employees have an equal part and protection.

It is not government's responsibility to take care of all residents of this country, or any country for that matter. But it is government's responsibility to ensure that it creates an environment where every resident of this country can reach his full potential. It need not turn this country into a welfare state (which is fast becoming), but government needs to ensure that all residents are protected, particularly in labour. If it does not, then it will have to support them and we certainly do not need any more recurrent expenditure in welfare.

The Speaker: Are you moving on to another subject?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: This would be a convenient time to take the luncheon suspension. Proceedings will be suspended until 2.15.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.29 PM

The Speaker: Continuation of Debate on the Throne Speech together with the Budget Address.

The Elected Member for East End continuing.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

When we took the break, I was about to move on to the Ministry of Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports. But before doing that, I would like to apologise to the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman because I mentioned about former teachers being pushed out of the teaching profession, and she too is a former teacher. I just wanted to mention that I had overlooked her. It appears that all the teachers are coming into this Honourable House.

On Community Development, Women's Affairs, Youth and Sports—I have a lot of respect for the Minister and I look forward to good things from her, particularly in East End and North Side. There are a number of areas in sports, in particular, in East End that we are lacking. Very few sports personnel travel to East End to train and one of the reasons for that is probably because it is too far to travel. We have talent in that district and I expect the Minister to be sending us a few sports personnel shortly. She has given an undertaking recently that we will see some in the not-too-distant future.

On the Department of Social Services, this department has done a lot for this country, but there is still much to be done. As I said earlier, I do not believe the government is here to create a welfare state. But, by the same token, we have situations, particularly in East End, that nobody from the Social Services Department visits. If there is a referral, those individuals have to come all the way into George Town. Again, the Minister has given an undertaking that someone will occupy an office in that district for one half day each week. I look forward to that.

The reason some of our people look to government for benefits all ties into what this country has done for the lower income bracket, the indigent, and children. Somehow we have to start teaching our people how to fish instead of giving them a fish to eat. If we do not provide the environment for them to be able to fish, then we can expect no less than them holding out their hands.

Each day we see our people falling through the cracks, and they continue to hold out their hands to government. The crack gets wider and wider and only our people fall in; they become disillusioned with the system.

There are Caymanians who go out and make a decent living by holding more than one job preventing them from having to rely on government and social services. I recently had a young man tint my car. He works five days a week at an institution in this country, and seven days a week (part-time in the evenings and weekends) in his own little business. We need to somehow promote this cottage industry where Caymanians are given opportunities so that the country does not have to raise them and feed their children.

We complain about the amounts of money that government has to dole out, constantly paying out to people who ask for it. If opportunities were available to our people we would not have to make provisions for recurrent expenditure to help support these people. The banks and lending institutions in this country need to ease up on some of the requirements, and the Housing Development Corporation, which are the kind of institutions that need to give Caymanians opportunities in their own country.

We look at education. Most of the time, when people apply for scholarships, they have to put up all kinds of collateral. Most parents do not have the collateral. That is why it is said that education is for the select few. There are many children in this country that are very capable. Nevertheless, because their parents do not have the required collateral to get them scholarships, they fall through the cracks. They then turn to the social services and government has to support them. We have to go back to the root of the problem. We have to make our people understand the value of getting an education and give them the opportunity to get tertiary education.

Vocational training, technical training . . . and, yes, the Minister has committed himself to developing that area in education. In most instances, that is where the problem begins. If people are not educated and capable of getting a job, they fall right back on government. Government is not a bottomless financial pit!

During my campaign, I talked about socialised education. Let me explain what that means, in my terms. We need to support education by paying into it and if it requires that each person in this country has to pay $300, $400 per year in new taxes for tertiary education for our children, then it has to be done. Institutions that come here and make big profits need to pay into it also. The result of not doing it is that government is going to have to pick up the slack as soon as these people are non-functional in our society.

People are very capable in this country. If given the opportunity they will succeed. If we do not make the provisions for them we cannot expect them to get out there and do it for themselves, with no provisions are in place. They cannot do it! That is what we have always relied on, for everyone to do it. Housing is another subject I will intend to elaborate on.

We are forever calling Caymanians lazy. Caymanians are not lazy! I am going to show that Caymanians are not lazy and why they can go as far as anybody else can. This country is a very young country, in terms of education in particular.

Many years ago when I was in third grade, we used slates in those days (I think you are familiar with this also, Mr. Speaker). After wiping off the slate between classes, we had to retain it in our heads. Nevertheless, we had people in this country, such as you, Mr. Speaker, who went on to university level. We had many, many Caymanians who wrote on slates, retained it, and went to sea to become captains and chief engineers. But those were the days when opportunities were overseas and we grasped those opportunities and went there to better ourselves.

Now, those opportunities are not available. Therefore, it must be this country. We must make those same opportunities available in this country. If we do not, the amount of money we give out in welfare will worsen in years to come. Caymanians must share in the opportunities in this country.

No one wants to take up the fight for the lesser Caymanians. We are satisfied with going about our lives and leaving those behind and we have always done that. We have had Throne Speeches on top of Throne Speeches and lip service paid to uplifting the Caymanians who do not have the means to get up there. This country is going to pay for Social Services. We are paying enough as it is, but it will be ten times worse.

I noted that the Water Authority under the ministry is continuing its work in East End. I look forward to piped water going to the Tortuga Club and beyond in the not-too-distant future. I do not want to hear what was said about electricity, that East End people cannot afford it—they can well afford it. Cayman Brac has said that their economy is down and they have plenty of water. They can afford it and so can the people of East End. It is expected that the water will be up in that area by December 2001 and I welcome that.

I see under Women's Affairs that the ministry will complete a draft national policy on gender, equity and equality sometime in March 2002. I look forward to that national policy being tabled in this Honourable House. I know that the Minister has been a driving force behind that ever since she was elected in 1992. I am sure that she will continue that.

On Youth, there was a point in my life when I thought that between my generation and my children there were very few we could leave this country to. I am here to say that was a mistake on my part. I witnessed the Youth Parliament here a few weeks ago. It made me happy to see young people discussing the affairs of this country in a very professional manner, and obviously with opinions of their own. This country will be in good hands if we have some of those as legislators and leaders in years to come.

I know it was my generation that was responsible for destroying the village concept. It is no longer available in this country. Most of us, including the baby boomers, grew up under the village concept. The "it took a village to raise" concept was very alive in this country until the almighty dollar destroyed it, by those of that age group chasing the almighty dollar. I do not know if we will ever get back there. It is a challenge for the Minister of Youth and I am sure she will address it. I look forward to her addressing it.

I hope we can get back to some semblance of a village concept in this country because that's where the social problems are coming from that involve our youth. If I may turn to the commission that is soon to come in youth violence, I think that it was timely of the two Ministers. Unfortunately, we are looking at the problem and not what caused that problem. It is this country that has caused that problem. We owe an apology to our youth for not paying attention to them. We have failed in our responsibility as adults in this society.

The Third Elected Member for George Town who will head up that commission is a most suitable person to do that. Indeed, he is the person who spearheaded many such enquiries. I can assure him that I will support him in his endeavours to see what we can do to curb some of the problems we are having with our youth.

I too have seen the decay of the fabric of our society. I have seen people mourn. I have seen the papers strike out at society about our youth and what they get into, but they too have a responsibility. Each member of the media has a responsibility to ensure positive reinforcement of our youth. Our culture is being eroded. These subcultures coming in are destroying everything we were. The media has a responsibility too. They must not always beat on the government, ridicule government for not doing something or for making mistakes; they must respond with positive publication and with cultural publications as well.

The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town mentioned the responsibility of the TV recently and he was taken to task. It is unfortunate that we all think that we are unto ourselves and that no one should mention us. I was somewhat disappointed that his remarks brought such comments from the TV station. They must be responsible also.

As I said, I look forward to the survey of our youth to see what can be done, in order to get them to go in a different direction other than where they are going now. At one time, I was prepared to call for a curfew. It is still my opinion that curfews work. They have worked in other places. There is no reason why anyone under the age of 18 should be on the streets after 10 pm without a parent or guardian. If they are, then their parents should be responsible.

It is very simple to enforce. I know that the Commissioner of Police has said that it is almost impossible. But, Mr. Speaker, the age of maturity in this country is 18 and at 18, they are issued a national ID in the form of the elector's registration card. Those who do not have it are under 18 and those who are 18 or older and do not have it should be penalised for not having it. Any foreigners who are here, have a work permit ID card. Those who do not are underage.

The Governor mentioned 12 and 14 year olds hanging around bars. There was a time in this country when that was possible, but not any longer. There was a time when the proprietors of these properties could claim that they asked the age and were told they were 18. That is no longer the case. The advent of the voter's registration card removed all that. It is simple: if you are 18 you have a voter's registration card. Therefore, the proprietors must ask to see proper identification. If the police find anyone under 18 in a liquor-licensed premise, the proprietors must now be responsible. There is no excuse! Everyone must play his part in curbing the problem we have with our youth in this country. We must not leave this up to the committee that will be chaired by the Third Elected Member for George Town. We cannot leave it up to him alone. That has been the problem all these years—leaving it up to government and doing nothing in the community.

Parents must be responsible too. I hear of 11 and 12 year olds in this country who are out of control and their parents are looking to pass them over to the government to control. The parents have failed in their responsibilities if that is the case, and the community has failed. We are all in this together, and it does not only affect the youth; it will eventually affect every living soul in this country.

No one is immune from what is on the horizon. I trust that every legislator in this Honourable Chamber will give full support to the Third Elected Member for George Town. We have created this; we have allowed our youth to do what they want to do. I am not saying we have to put children under lock and key, but we have to spend time with them and show them we love them. The new legislators here have all agreed to go to the schools and interact with the children.

Vision 2008 talks about our youth, giving solutions to the problems. I hope that will be implemented. It will assist the Third Elected Member for George Town. I also see the Young Parents' Programme, another worthwhile programme that will assist in this area.

Alternative sentencing has to be put in place to assist the youth of this country. The businesses must step forward also. I am not saying to the detriment of their businesses, but they must contribute to resolve the problems this country is having. They will be the recipients of some of the problems too if they do not try to help resolve them.

Under the Ministry of Planning, Communications and Works, I see where the ministry has seven main focus areas in 2001. One is the construction of new government office accommodations. I trust it is construction and not rental or purchase because we pay too much money now in rental when government should build its own offices.

Cayman Airways is another one. Now, that is one that needs close attention. The Leader of Government Business, who is responsible, has engaged the services of a well-known accountant to audit Cayman Airways. It is expected that the interim report will be tabled soon. I look forward to that.

There is a lot of talk in the community about Cayman Airways. One opinion high on the agenda is that we should shut it down. I know that is going to get a lot of attention. I cannot support the shutting down of Cayman Airways without further study. But I know that the country wants value for money, and the country is not satisfied anymore with subsidising Cayman Airways without doing something about streamlining it.

We have hidden the cost of Cayman Airways for too long. It appears that Cayman Airways has been the political football for too long. This argument of having Cayman Airways because when a hurricane comes we will need it to take residents and tourists off the island cannot be supported any longer. That argument died a long time ago. Cayman Airways must be managed properly. We must stop using it for a political football and using it to dump our cronies in.

The Leader of Government Business recently stood in here and said that subsidy this year looks to be in the region of $7m. I do not think we can afford to be putting $7m into Cayman Airways every year. The mistake made with Cayman Airways has been to buy too many aeroplanes that were useless. They are uneconomical to run and then we forever dump in more and more money into maintenance on these aircrafts. We need to review it urgently and decide what is going to be the most economical way to run Cayman Airways. What is the preferred equipment to run Cayman Airways with?

I recently travelled from here to Miami on the latest aircraft which was acquired, and thank God that the flight was not any longer, because I would have been stuck in that position for the rest of my life! There is insufficient space! But the previous government—in their infinite wisdom—decided the more seats they could get in, the better. That is not the way to provide service to the travelling public.

God knows that I do not want to see anyone lose his livelihood. But, by the same token, they cannot expect Caymanians to be taxed continually in order to keep others alive. There must be alternative methods of running Cayman Airways to make it break even, or at least run with subsidy less than $4m per year. I trust that Mr. Bodden will soon be coming with his interim report and it will be tabled in this Honourable House.

The Speaker: Are you referring to the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Human Resources and Culture?

Mr. V. Arden McLean: No, I was referring to Mr. Naul Bodden, whom I mentioned earlier.

On the issue of petroleum storage and handling operation, the overall review done late in 2000, I am glad to see that the ministry is committed to assessing the liquefied petroleum operation in this country, because it is an accident waiting to happen. It has been for many years.

What is worse is that it is amongst every school in this country. No one wants to address moving it because of having it ideally located next to the unloading berth off South Sound. There are alternatives because there are other places around the island that are safer areas for the storage of this petroleum.

The time has come to get a dock other than the one in George Town for importation of diesel and gasoline, propane, cement, right through the middle of George Town. There are other places for that as well.

I want to turn to the Planning Department. Having been a member of the Planning Department for quite some time, I recall the many issues I had with the 1977 Development Plan, which is woefully inadequate at this time. We do have a 1997 plan which is expected to be completed in the first six months of this year, and should be tabled during the September sitting.

The Development Plan made very little provision for lower income people in this country. That is an issue which needs to be addressed. For instance, under agricultural/residential zoning there is one house per acre. But if we get a designating order, it reduces it to three houses per acre. It goes without saying that in the agricultural/residential area this is where most of the land is left. Therefore, it does not make sense to bring it down to only three lots per acre; we need to go lower to make provision for lower income housing.

I stand to be corrected on this but as far as I can recall, there are very few places in this country with high-density residential zoning, and George Town is one of those places. There are some places in the other districts, but not a lot. It was all well and good in 1977, when most families had large tracts of property and they split it up amongst their children. We can see the direction the country is going in which it has been going in for the past ten to 15 years. We are creating more and more people in the lower income bracket, yet we make no provision for them.

There is nothing wrong with those people. They work for an honest living and there is no greater feeling in a man's life than when he walks into his home. It is far beyond many Caymanians' reach to own a home. The 1977 Development Plan made provisions for Caymanians who were overseas when a certificate of occupancy was needed. The little money they made, they would send home, build one piece and then continue building on every year. We made provisions for the situation then, so why is it we cannot do that the same now?

Everybody wants to talk about creating slums. We are not creating slums; it can be done well. It can be done in a proper manner where the people can feel that they are living in an environment amongst friends and family. I put the Leader of Government

Business on caution: Do not bring anything here that is not going to make a provision for the lower income bracket, because I will not support it.

I congratulate the acting Director of Planning. It is good to see another Caymanian in that area. I wonder if it is not time to separate planning away from building control because planning approves the structure, the development and building control controls how it is built. I am just wondering if that is not an area which needs to be looked at to see if there is a need for separation.

Before continuing on to Public Works I will touch on the Postal Department. I recall asking a question previously about the postal zip code was misunderstood somehow. I was really speaking about an international zip code—not in Cayman because once it reaches here it is fine. We know exactly where it goes, whether it is East End or Savannah Post Office, or any other post office. Reaching the Cayman Islands is the big problem and that is where the delay is. I wondered if there was any international zip coding done so that mail can be routed properly to the Cayman Islands without so many delays. I discussed that with the Leader of Government Business on a prior occasion.

It may appear that I have been on the subject of Public Works (PWD) for a long time. I have asked more questions on Public Works (PWD) during this sitting than anyone else, but it is not that I have a problem with the Leader of Government Business, but you usually ask questions on what you know about. I believe PWD is doing a fairly decent job. I had questions about the renaming of the Harquail Bypass, but I was by there recently and saw that it was renamed to Esterley Tibbetts Highway. That is very nice! At least we can identify who Mr. Tibbetts is.

I noticed where government is trying to acquire the land and extend it down to the SafeHaven area. I may be mistaken, but there was a point where I thought we said that the Harquail Bypass would not have any inlets or outlets. If we look at the first phase we will see that is the case. All of a sudden, behind the Galleria Plaza, there are many inlets and outlets. I would like to know who is benefiting from that and why it was done.

If we are going to make rules in this country, they must apply to everybody regardless of financial status. I also want to know who is maintaining the extension of the Esterley Tibbetts Highway. Does PWD go down there and water the plants and mow the grass? When we become obligated to anyone, we have lost the central piece of the puzzle and lost our ability to govern. I hope government is maintaining it. If not, by the next sitting of this Honourable House somebody better have some answers because I will be asking questions.

I am of the firm opinion that we need a national roads plan in this country. Yes, there is a proposed national roads plan. I have not heard what the time frame is for the completion of that plan and I look forward to hearing when that will be completed. The PWD is by no means perfect, and I do not think it is expected that every department should be perfect. I am sure the Director and his Deputy are working towards that.

There are many roads in this country in need of urgent repairs, particularly in the eastern districts. These are inland roads, to a greater extent. The last government came to East End and put in this rough asphalt unlike the rest of the country where it is nicely laid. I will not allow anyone to forget that I am expecting the road to be completed.

Besides that, the roads into Gun Bay and Colliers are by far the worse in this country right now. Those roads are used as much as anyplace else in this country. We have two major tourist establishments on that end of the island with hundreds of condominiums, which equates hundreds of visitors, and the roads need to be addressed. Not only the visitors, but also the residents need these roads fixed. We have many residents living up that way and it has been many years that these roads were not addressed. We need to look into these roads, and I am asking the Member to do this.

I now turn to the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Transport to touch on the marine parks and the upcoming proposals on marine conservation. I believe the two electoral districts in this country with the most to lose are East End, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. East End is still considered one of the best areas to dive, to fish, to enjoy the marine life. When this Conservation Law came into effect many years ago it was ridiculed and opposed by many people. Today, I can safely say it was one of the better pieces of legislation that came through this Honourable House.

I believe that there were shortcomings in that legislation. One in particular was the lack of enforcement. Even with little or no enforcement over those years, we have seen the comeback of our marine life, yet we still have problems because people take above the limit allowed by law. If we ban the taking of any marine life, it will not change if we do not enforce it. So, I do not support the total ban, but I do support total enforcement.

Many times when I have been out fishing, particularly in East End, I have seen people taking advantage of the shallow areas along Colliers and Gun Bay, where there is no replenishment zone. If I can have my way, I intend to stop that by extending that replenishment zone. If we do not preserve, we will not be able to allow generations coming behind us to experience the life that we had. I want my grandchildren and their grandchildren to live that experience too. I, being the caretaker of that now, will put whatever is necessary in place so that generations can enjoy the marine life in this country.

I will not question when the Minister of Tourism bans Z-pots in this country because they are raping our marine life. We are going to ban them! Then we are going to reduce the number of pots that people can have. I cannot support going down to one, but I will certainly support two pots per person.

We have to put enforcement in place. My proposal, in that regard, is to attach an enforcement arm of the Marine Department to the police station in East End and North Side. East End and North Side is where it is all left. The North Sound has been raped—it is all gone—because we allow all the tour boats 20 conchs per day. I do not think they can get any more than 20 per day, but when you have 200 or 300 boats, that is a lot of conch to be consumed in one day. Those who make a living off our marine life are going to have to understand that we have to slow down, we have to preserve for future generations.

I do not want to shut down any small business in this country because a lot of Caymanians fall into this category. We need to try and stop other people opening up these small businesses who are not from this country. That is where we are going to have problems because we run the risk of getting these people to come in here and work for us, then after four or five years they go and start their own companies. We are going to have to stop that. [Mr. Speaker, I would ask permission to pause a minute to speak to the Third Official Member]

I was speaking about the ability of foreigners coming into this country and opening their own businesses, particularly in the tourist sector which is affecting our marine life. We need to let them know that must be preserved for Caymanians who know the business of the sea. They may work for Caymanians, but they cannot start any business in the tourist industry/diver operation. We have to stop that!

When the review of Caymanian owned businesses comes along, which was recently approved through a motion, there is going to be a lot of wailing from a lot of people in this country, but the wailing will have to stop sometime because crying has never killed anyone yet. For too long we have allowed everybody else to do what they want—except Caymanians.

I was placed here by the people of this country and it is at their pleasure for four years. My mandate I understand is to govern in their best interest and to represent in their best interest. The way I look at life is that if the country has, I have. If I have and the country does not have, it does not make any sense for me to have; therefore, the country is what we have to look at. We have to stop looking at ourselves. We have to stop using our position for personal gain and look at the overall gain that this country is going to have as a result of our decisions.

I spoke about an attachment to the police station in East End and North Side to control that area. I must say, that in recent times, we have had quite a bit of enforcement and we have seen quite a number of marine enforcement personnel up and around East End and North Side. But it might very well be a little too late. I hope not. At the end of the day, whatever we pay for enforcement now will be a small price. Future generations will thank us for preserving marine life in this country.

I support whatever is required to get more officers in place to enforce it. There are many people in North Side and in East End who are capable of enforcing it. They do not necessarily have to be hired as Marine Park Officers in George Town; we can identify people in East End and North Side who can do the job. If we do not want it attached to the police station, we can buy a boat, keep it at the person's house, and they can make their rounds every hour. The mere fact that the presence of an enforcement officer is there, deters people from taking marine life.

My other proposal is to extend the replenishment park straight across Tortuga Club because we have 300 to 400 tourists at that establishment on a daily basis and there is no replenishment park. They go out, pick up the conch, come ashore with it, and leave it on their porch. That is a waste. But, if there were replenishment parks where the establishment could enforce that you cannot take anything, then it would not happen. They cannot stop them as it is right now. This is a serious matter, particularly in East End, North Side and in Cayman Brac. But it is more serious in the North Sound. We need to try to replenish it; that place should be banned—period! Nothing should be taken from the North Sound for the next four years. I know the West Bayers are going to beat me for that one.

On the issue of the Port Authority, under that same ministry, the time has come for us to have an alternative facility for unloading bulk cargo. We unload cement in town, we unload all the fuel . . . I wonder if people understand the dangers of unloading this fuel so close to the populated areas. In my experiences of going to sea, when I was on board tankers as an engineer, there are no houses to be seen for miles. In most instances, we were so far offshore that we could not see land. However, we are right in the middle of the capital of this country unloading propane, gasoline, diesel, cement—everything that comes into this country is unloaded right in the middle of the capital. There is a safety issue and the longer we leave it, the more potentially dangerous it becomes. We have to find an alternative facility for unloading.

Regardless of what the importers of these bulk cargoes say, we have to remove it from George Town and we have to remove it from amongst our children. Every major school in this country is housed around the propane. It is ready to destroy every child of any age in this country. There has to be at least 2,000 children within a half-mile radius of those propane tanks. I do not want to hear the excuse that they have been there for a long time—which is what makes it worse! It was all right when the installation was new. I do not want to hear that it is tested because I know the dangers of it.

I see all these pressure vessels being driven around the streets in this country, which is another danger. It is then brought and unloaded at our public beach. Tell them to make good with what they are doing now, because in the not-too-distant future I am personally bringing a motion here to stop it. If one of those things exploded on West Bay beach, it would kill everyone within the vicinity of the public beach. It needs to be removed. These are the dangers we are talking about with this fuel and compressed air.

We just recently had an incident with it. There is too much risk taken and we are exposing our people to too many risks. When something happens, then we try to crucify the owners. Government has a responsibility to protect its citizens.

I went to the public beach just the other day and there is a sign up that reads "No Commercial Activity." Nevertheless, we have boats coming in right there and the compressed air suppliers are running the hoses across our beach and filling up tanks on the boats. There is danger in it! I do not even want to think what will happen on our public beach when any one of those hoses burst. They have to be removed! I am not trying to close down any small businesses, but I am not going to allow them to operate at the disadvantage of my family or any resident who goes to the public beach for enjoyment.

I would like to know how they got a business licence anyway. I would also like to know if on the application they said their place of operating business would be on the Public Beach, and who issued the licence.

I get a bit animated over these things, because it is exposing our people to potentially dangerous situations. The number of children that enjoy the West Bay Public Beach is countless. Nevertheless, for many years government has allowed the dive operating business to operate right on that beach amongst our children. I am challenging the government of today to stop it! We have to protect our residents.

I now turn to the Agricultural Industrial Development Board (AIDB) and the Housing Development Corporation (HDC). I really do not know if either of those have been effective since coming into being. They have done very little to assist, and the requirements are so far out of line with what is needed in this country. They need to be streamlined. I thought that the AIDB and the HDC were there to assist not only the middle class, but also the lower income bracket. It has not done that. For many years it has done nothing. And when I say "nothing" . . . someone will have to show me what development they have done because I cannot see it. They may have put up one or two little homes someplace, but that is not in the interest of the overall population. I do not recall seeing any development done by the AIDB or HDC did since their inception in this country. Until someone shows me, I will stay of that same opinion.

I recently travelled to Miami with the Minister of Tourism to look at lower income housing. That is why he can jump up here and say that I support him on housing. Yes! I am supporting housing in this country because for too long too many people have not been able to have a little home. A lot of it has to do with all the big contractors. I recall many years ago when we started talking about "pre-fab." Now it has gone to "pre-engineered" homes. There was a big outcry from the contractors about what it was going to do to their business. That is well understood.

In recent times, I have noticed the big five storey buildings made from pre-engineered material going up here. They put up the steel frame and slam, slap, slap, the panels together. Well, if that does not affect them, it should not affect them when we start helping the lower income bracket people in this country. I implore them to come forward and try to get some of the work because there will be plenty of work, and if they want a share of it, this is the way to do it while learning a new method of building so that the cost to this country is not so high.

Mr. Speaker, I believe we were going to break at 4 pm I do not have a watch, and I wonder what time it is.

The Speaker: Five minutes to go.

Mr. V. Arden McLean: Thank you, Sir. With respect to all businesses in this country, it is too far out of reach for the people who need the homes and government needs to step in and purchase the property. Fill it in and then use contractors to build the little homes. What causes it to be cost prohibitive is purchase of property. The cost of these homes must be between $40,000 and $60,000. The homes we speak about for $150,000 are in another bracket and we can leave those in place, but we are talking about lower income people.

Those people are not really starving to death, they are making it; but they just cannot afford a home to call their own because they cannot save the money necessary to qualify at the bank. Government should step in and deal with assisting its people; make them have a sense of belonging in their own country.

Is it any wonder Caymanians become disillusioned? They see everybody else come to this country and make it, while they are not making it. It goes right back to the root of the problem with our youth. Give them an opportunity, let them see that their parents can own something in this country and then they will have something to strive for too. Right now, they have nothing to strive for, nothing to look forward to. 'If you are doing it to my mom and dad, you will do worse to me.'

Government needs to put capital investment in getting homes for the people of our country and forgetting about the payback on it. We do it on roads to get elected! Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: It is my understanding that it is the wish of the government that we adjourn at 4.00. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, before I move the adjournment I am sure that when the Elected Member of East End said "thank you Mr. Speaker" he had not finished his debate. He was just finished for this afternoon, right?

The Speaker: I understood that.

Hon. Edna M. Moyle: I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 am tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 am tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. This Honourable House stands adjourned until 10 am tomorrow.

AT 4 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 AM FRIDAY, 6 APRIL 2001.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
FRIDAY
6 APRIL, 2001
10.18 AM
Sixteenth Sitting

[Prayers read by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman]

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Legislative Assembly is in session.

Item number 2 on today's order paper, Administration of Oaths or Affirmations. Oath of Allegiance to be administered to Mr. A. Joel Walton, JP to be the Honourable Temporary Acting Third Official Member.

Mr. Walton would you come forward to the Clerk's table? Would all Members please stand?

