EDITED SATURDAY
26 FEBRUARY 1994
9.30 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Minister to say the Prayers.

PRAYERS

Rev. Godfrey Meghoo: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Ministers of Executive Council and Ministers of the Legislative Assembly that they may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of their high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake. Amen.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. I will ask the Clerk to read the Proclamation summoning the Legislative Assembly.

PROCLAMATION NO. 3 OF 1994

Clerk: Proclamation No. 3 of 1994. By His Excellency Michael Edward John Gore, Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor of the Cayman Islands.

“WHEREAS, by sub-section (1) of section 46 of Schedule 2 of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order, 1972, it is provided that the Sessions of the Legislative Assembly shall be held at such time and place as the Governor may, from time to time, by Proclamation appoint;

“NOW THEREFORE, under and by virtue of the powers vested in me by the aforesaid Order, I, Michael Edward John Gore, Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor of the Cayman Islands, do hereby proclaim and make known that a Session of the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands shall be held in the Legislative Assembly Building in George Town, Island of Grand Cayman, at 9:30 a.m., on Saturday the 26th day of February, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Ninety-four.

“Given under my hand and the Public Seal of the Cayman Islands at George Town in the Island of Grand Cayman, this 21st day of February in the Forty-first year of the Reign of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II. God Save the Queen.”

The Speaker: The Assembly is in Session.

Honourable Members, I have to inform you that Her Majesty the Queen is desirous of addressing the Legislative Assembly. Accordingly, I will suspend proceedings and the House will resume immediately after the Investiture Ceremony. Proceedings are accordingly suspended.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 9.34 AM

DELIVERED BY
HER MAJESTY QUEEN ELIZABETH II

Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II: Pray be seated.

Prince Philip and I are delighted to make this return visit to these beautiful Islands. I am especially pleased to be present today to open the Legislative Assembly and to deliver my speech in person.

The Privy Council recently approved an amended Constitution, updating the 1972 Constitution, to take account of developments on the Islands. Next week you will elect a fifth Member of the Executive Council, thereby easing the burden on other Ministers, which has been increasing with the remarkable developments which have taken place in recent years, notably since our last visit in 1983.

The Financial Sector remains the key to a successful future for these Islands. My Government is determined to maintain a financial services industry of high quality and integrity, through strict adherence to prudent policies, augmented by the introduction of the new Mutual Funds Legislation.

This year the public and private sectors will launch a major promotional programme to increase the awareness overseas of the high quality financial services, and company and shipping registration, offered by these Islands. Of particular note is the planned hosting of the Red Ensign Shipping Register's Annual Conference in April, for the first time in the Islands' history.

Cayman Airways Limited saw its fleet of aircraft reduced in 1993 as the company streamlined its operations. In so doing it considerably eased its debt burden, and can concentrate this year on improving its cost effectiveness and its service to customers. My Government will strive to maintain Cayman Airways' share of the air traffic market through the Bermuda Two negotiations.

The tourism sector registered a significant increase in air passenger arrivals on the Islands in 1993, thereby providing much needed stimulation of the economy. Plans are now in place to put more emphasis on advertising for the lucrative European market. In this context my Government will lay particular emphasis on the need to protect the natural environment and wildlife of the Islands. I much look forward to opening the National Botanic Park tomorrow.

A long range strategic plan for the education system will be embarked upon, with the full participation of administrators, teachers, parents, students and the community.

The promotion of health in the country will receive high priority this year, and my Government propose to put in place a National Health Insurance Scheme by the end of the year. Phase One of the upgrading of George Town Hospital will be carried out this year and new health care centres are planned for the districts of West Bay and Bodden Town.

This year, celebrated as the International Year of the Family, my Government will continue to place much emphasis on programmes which enhance the family unit, and address the needs of children and young people who require special attention and support in the face of many stresses.

A local residential drug rehabilitation centre will soon open, and it is hoped that this facility will prove an alternative to sending drug offenders overseas for treatment.

The development of sporting facilities for the young remains an important objective, and in this respect I look forward to opening Phase One of the West Bay Sports Complex this afternoon. A national sports stadium is also planned, and work will start on it later in the year.

An increase in civil work has necessitated a move to new offices by the Legal Department. The move will be completed this year.

In 1994, the Cayman Islands Law School will see its students graduate for the first time under the Honours Degree Programme of the University of Liverpool.

The Royal Cayman Islands Police continues to function efficiently and effectively. The reduction in burglaries in 1993 indicates that increased patrols and other preventative measures have been successful. The Crime Stoppers programme continues to be a major factor in solving crimes.

The Prison Service operates at a high standard. Rehabilitation programmes will continue under its newly appointed director.

Agriculture will continue to facilitate and direct the expansion of crop and livestock production in the Islands. New livestock slaughtering facilities will be built in Lower Valley, and further upgrading of the Farmers' Market in George Town will be carried out.

The Public Works Department will continue its programme of maintaining public buildings and roads. The construction of a new road from the West Bay peninsula to Owen Roberts Airport will alleviate the traffic congestion on West Bay Road.

The implementation of the twenty year Postal Development Plan will continue this year. Construction will begin on the new mail processing centre to be located near the airport, and the Central Post Office will be re-developed as a modern retail outlet.

The Sister Islands of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman continue to rely on Grand Cayman for economic assistance. Capital projects will be carried out on both Islands this year.

Madam Speaker and Members of this Honourable House, Prince Philip and I were touched by the welcome we received this morning and we look forward to our visits to the Island today and tomorrow. I pray that Almighty God will continue to bless the Government and people of these Islands.

DEPARTURE OF HER MAJESTY
QUEEN ELIZABETH II

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.04 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

MOTION TO DEFER THE DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH
DELIVERED BY
HER MAJESTY QUEEN ELIZABETH II

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I beg to move that the Speech from the Throne, delivered by Her Majesty the Queen, be taken as read, and that consideration thereof be set down for Wednesday the 2nd of March, 1994.

The Speaker: The question is that the Speech delivered from the Throne, by Her Majesty the Queen, be taken as read, and that consideration thereof be set down for Wednesday the 2nd of March, 1994. If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE SPEECH FROM THE THRONE DELIVERED BY HER MAJESTY QUEEN ELIZABETH II TAKEN AS READ AND CONSIDERATION THEREOF BE SET DOWN FOR WEDNESDAY, 2ND MARCH, 1994.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker: I will now ask for the motion for the adjournment. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning the 2nd of March, 1994.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning the 2nd of March.

AT 11.05 AM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 2ND MARCH, 1994.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
2 MARCH 1994
10.04 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, The Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, the Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Order. The Legislative Assembly proceedings are resumed.

The affirmation of allegiance to Mr. James Montgomery Ryan, MBE., JP, to be the Temporary First Official Member. This will be administered by the Clerk.

Mr. Ryan, will you come forward?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

Mr. James Montgomery Ryan, MBE, JP

Hon. James M. Ryan: I, James Montgomery Ryan, do solemnly and sincerely affirm and declare that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to law.

The Speaker: Mr. Ryan, will you take your seat? I have pleasure in welcoming you.

ELECTION OF FIFTH MINISTER TO EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

The Speaker: The next item is the election of Fifth Minister of Executive Council.

Nominations will be called for as provided by section 5 of the Constitution. The procedure for this, as Members know, is laid down in Standing Order 5 of the Standing Orders of the Cayman Islands Legislature.

The Chair proposes, subject to there being no objections from Members, to appoint the Temporary First Official Member and Third Official Member as scrutineers for the election, following balloting.

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE HONOURABLE TEMPORARY FIRST AND THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBERS APPOINTED SCRUTINEERS FOR THE ELECTION.

The Speaker: Nominations for the Fifth Minister to Executive Council will be by voice and to be valid there must be a seconder. Names of members so being nominated will be used, rather than districts. After each nomination and seconding I will ask the Member so nominated if he or she is willing to accept the nomination.

We shall now proceed, and I will call for a nomination.

NOMINATIONS

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, it is my privilege to nominate the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, Mr. Anthony Eden.

The Speaker: Secunder?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I beg to second.

The Speaker: Mr. Eden, are you willing to accept the nomination?

Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you.

The nomination is duly moved and seconded and has been accepted by the Member.

Mr. Gilbert McLean.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I have great pleasure in moving the nomination of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, Mr. Roy Bodden.

Madam Speaker, in moving this nomination, I note the fact that this is an historic moment in this Legislature. I know that history will mark today, that for the first time in the history of this Legislature there will be a Fifth Member, who is now styled Minister of Executive Council.

It is something that may have been done prior to today when four Members were chosen in November 1992, but that did not occur. So, today it has been found necessary to fill this vacancy. I believe that at the end of the day whomever is chosen will not necessarily leave the Government Executive, nor the Legislative Assembly, nor perhaps the country, absolutely satisfied...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden : Madam Speaker...

The Speaker: Are you rising on a Point of Order Honourable Minister for Aviation?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker. Has that motion been seconded in accordance with Standing Order 5?

The Speaker: It has not been seconded, but I think the Member has every right in moving a motion to speak to it, even before it is seconded. There is no problem with that. Thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Without it being seconded?

The Speaker: Yes, there is no problem about that.

Would you proceed, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As I was about to say, I believe that the end result today will not necessarily leave the country absolutely happy and that whomever may be chosen, there may be those who would prefer to see someone else so chosen.

I note, Madam Speaker, that in the Constitution recently approved by Her Majesty's Government, that the principle of collective responsibility is not therein legislated in that it is possible to remove a single Member from the Executive Council through a vote of no confidence, whereas, if collective responsibility were legislated, it would be the case that the whole Government would stand subjected to such a vote of no confidence and would cease to exist if such passed.

Adversely, the Member who then is chosen today does not necessarily have to be affiliated with any present majority group, presently in the Executive or forming the majority of the House. A single Member, any Elected Member, as is provided for in section 5, may be nominated by another Elected Member.

I believe it is absolutely essential in choosing a Member to fill the fifth seat as a Minister, that the person merits such nomination and election, in that the person should possess certain educational qualities, certain experience, and certain broader view of understanding the implications of filling a ministerial seat in the Cayman Islands—what it means, what is expected of them.

The Member I have nominated possesses qualifications in all these areas. He is experienced in the House, having served one term, he is well-known, well-regarded as an educator in these Islands, has the experience of administration, in the field of education particularly, and I think is generally approved by public view and thought in these Islands.

He was nominated prior to this in 1992 and then he graciously stepped aside to allow others to ascend to that lofty position on the Executive Council. I well recall that the very Government of the day clearly indicated that he would, indeed, be considered again when the fifth seat came into existence. Today, Madam Speaker, this Member of the Legislative Assembly has the opportunity of being so chosen.

I further believe that we have reached a position in this country where the people elected as Ministers, who go abroad must be in a position to deal with the international community, who can stand upright and speak without being coached or speaking from notes prepared for them...

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden : Madam Speaker, I am rising on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I would like to refer you to Standing Order 24(10), (11) and (12) and, if I may just read that, it says: "24 (10) The question upon a motion or an amendment shall not be proposed by the Presiding Officer unless such motion or amendment has been seconded; if it is not so seconded, no re- cord of proceedings upon the motion or amendment shall be entered in the minutes of proceedings but

(a) a motion or amendment moved by a member of the Government shall not require seconding; and (b) in committee a seconder shall not be required.

"(11) If a Member does not move a motion or amendment which stands in his name...." Well, that goes on to deal with a question of members. Standing Order 24(12):

"24 (12) On a motion made and when necessary seconded, the Presiding Officer shall propose a question to the House, and after debate, if any, shall then put the question for the decision of the House."

I will submit that, as has been usual, that a motion that requires a seconder in accordance with these must be seconded before the Member speaks, failing which, if there is no seconder, there can be no records of proceedings entered into the minutes of the House, therefore it means that he has no right to speak.

Indeed, Madam Speaker, in the past, when a motion is put, there must be a seconder and you then state that the motion is there and invite the Member to speak. This is the point that I would just like to take at this stage.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Member. I understand what you have said. But you will bear in mind that there are going to be further nominations. There have been two nominations and I am following the procedure of the House of Commons on the election of the Speaker and other officers, when those proposing a person had every right to make a presentation of the reasons for putting forward a name. This is why this debate has been allowed. Any other Member wishing to do so can also debate the question.

Would the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman please continue? The debate will not be unnecessarily long.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Member whom I have nominated, Mr. Roy Bodden, of the district of Bodden Town, possesses the quality of being able to represent this county in foreign forums, and is widely read to understand the wider implications when he may be called upon to do so.

Madam Speaker, taking into account that we would wish to have the best among ourselves, full well realising that any Member in this Legislature, free of any affiliation with party or majority groupings, may be nominated and elected for the fifth seat on Executive Council, I therefore have the greatest pleasure in recommending Mr. Roy Bodden as a candidate for such a seat.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Mr. Kurt Tibbetts.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to second that nomination and I crave your indulgence to speak.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I would just like to say Madam Speaker, that on the 25th of November, 1992, after the General Elections took place and the elections for Executive Council were to take place, I examined, to the best of my ability, all of the individuals who were nominated and at that point in time, I found it fit to support Mr. Roy Bodden for a seat in Council.

Fortunately, or unfortunately, I have not had to weigh other factors which certain Members who are here today have had to weigh. I have been known to be a lone wolf at times. That is not something to be proud of, that is just something that happens.

With all of those things in mind, and considering the situation that exists presently, it is my view on a personal level, that Mr. Bodden is still the leading candidate for the fifth seat on Executive Council. I would just like to put on the record that I am confident that the democratic process will prevail, and if it is the wish of the majority of the Elected Members in this Honourable House that another individual be elected the Fifth Minister of Executive Council, then the ballots will prove the issue.

At the end of the day, when it is all over, I will still be the representative that I am from the District of George Town, and I will still do, to the best of my ability, what I think is best for this country. I hold no brief for any individual, and when it is all over I am sure we will move on.

However, I say again, that I feel Mr. Roy Bodden, of the 11 Members on the Backbench, is the most qualified candidate.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Mr. Roy Bodden, will you accept the nomination?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, in rising to accept this nomination, it seems reasonable and sensible that I say something regarding my own position, and I crave the Chair's indulgence in so doing.

It is unfortunate that political expediency, political opportunism, and political incest has led us to this point. Whatever the outcome, let me say that I will continue to be the representative that I have always been since my election to this Honourable House, that I will work with whomever is successful in this election to become Minister, and I certainly will support them where their efforts are in the best interest of constituency and country. But, as I have always done, I will reserve the right to speak out when I think events and directions are against the country and conscience. I shall always attempt to maintain the principle of honour and reciprocity as I have tried to do, and in so saying, would like to thank the two Members who moved and seconded me for this election and to assure them that I shall continue to live up to the high expectations they have of me.

Madam Speaker, if I have committed one sin, with regard to the relationship with my former colleagues, I suppose it has been that I am one who has never been comfortable sitting around in that grey area made comfortable by men with timid souls and feeble minds. I have always spoken out where events and circumstances were against my conscience and I do not need to go into any elaborate detail of the relationship that did not exist long.

I assure this House that I will continue, whether I am successful or not, to work in the best interest of country and constituency, and to be gracious enough to congratulate the victor, and to wish him well.

If it is my colleague, as I suspect, because he has the support of the National Team, then he can be reassured that as far as I am concerned we shall continue to have an amicable relationship and I will continue to fulfill my obligations in helping him represent our country and constituency.

Thank you.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, are you rising to debate?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Ma'am.

The Speaker: Please do so.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, indeed, today is a great day for the Cayman Islands, an important day for the Government. It is very important for me, as all will realise, that the Ministry of Health and Human Services encompassed, as the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman once said, "all services". Therefore the fifth Minister will have a share of the Ministry of Health and Human Services. And I can tell these Cayman Islands, that that needed to have been done. It is a large Ministry and one of greatest importance to these Islands, in that we have health and drug rehabilitation and education, and we have community development. That particular Ministry is one that calls for much development.

I am happy today that I could propose the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town because I believe that he holds two of the greatest attributes required in a public official—three. One, he is willing to work, he is not afraid of work. He does not talk very much, but he represents his people and is willing to work. Two, his trustworthiness. When Members of this House can stand here and say that a Member coming into Executive Council under our system, where we have representative Government under collective responsibility, does not have to be affiliated with any group, Madam Speaker, it is sadly misleading the country. I believe they know better. No Government can operate without collective responsibility, and we are a part of the Westminster System and that is what our Constitution calls for. The Members of Executive Council have to be able to work together for the good of the country. We have to be able to trust one another, and while we do not see eye-to-eye on everything, we have to come to a decision and vote under collective responsibility. By the very nature of the other Member who has been proposed, this could not happen.

Yes, it is true to say that the Government of the day promised the seat to the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. But he could not wait, he went on the platform and said that he was going to work under the leadership of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. It is only a fool that would poke a fox in the hen house. I have no intention of doing that. I have supported the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. Ever since I have been involved in politics, he has been involved, and the Cayman Islands know that. But I, at this point in time, cannot trust him because he has proven that he is just that, he will not work and he cannot be trusted.

Therefore, I will be doing as my conscience dictates and I ask this Honourable House, those of us that have the power to vote, to cast it for the Second Elected Member of Bodden Town, who has shown to the Cayman Islands that he not only is a team player, but he can be trusted. If he says he is going to work with you, he is going to work with you, not that he agrees with everything that we do. Perhaps, with his coming into Executive Council we may not agree with everything that he wants to do. But, by God, we need to be able to trust one another.

I am sorry that I cannot cast my vote for the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, as that was my honourable intention on the day that we told him just after the elections that we would support him. But he went out and said that he could not support the Government so how can we support him? How can he work with us?

Madam Speaker, it is not true to say that he graciously accepted to stand back, he came into the House at the time of nomination and he accepted nomination from somebody who was, I believe, not even part of the group. So that is not graciously accepting to stand aside.

You know, Madam Speaker, I might not have the education that some of my other colleagues have. Thank God, I am honest and I stand by my word. Whether they want to say that is gracious, as far as I am concerned, sometimes this House does not call for graciousness, it calls for other things. At this time it calls for common sense all of us should vote for common sense.

Thank you very much, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Mr. Haig Bodden, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, we received lectures this morning from the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town on the qualifications for a Member of Executive Council or the attributes which they think such a Member should hold.

Thank goodness, this is just their opinion because the Constitution as it stands lays down only two criteria for Members of Executive Council. One, the Members of Executive Council must be Elected Members of this House, and two, the Members of Executive Council must be elected by a majority of the Elected Members.

There is no doubt in my mind that Mr. Roy Bodden holds all the attributes which were pointed out and, in my opinion, the other nominee would also qualify. But all this falls away because we are not asked to decide who will be an Executive Council Member on the strength of these qualifications. We are asked to abide by the Constitution and elect from amongst ourselves an Elected Member whom the majority of Members feel will work as a complete unit in the Executive Council, and this is all the Constitution requires, this is all the country needs.

If a person is smart enough, or good enough, or qualified enough to become an Elected Member of the House, that Member should be given a chance, if his colleagues feel he is worthy of it, to be nominated and accepted into the Executive Council, if the chance arises.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Are there further nominations from the floor?

If there are no further nominations, the names which will be voted on are: Mr. Anthony Eden, moved by the Honourable McKeeva Bush, seconded by the Honourable Thomas Jefferson; Mr. Roy Bodden, moved by Mr. Gilbert McLean, seconded by Mr. Kurt Tibbetts.

At this time I will suspend proceedings for 10 minutes in order that the Clerks may prepare the ballot paper. Proceedings are accordingly suspended.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 10.38 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 10.55 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

I will ask the First and Third Official Members to take their places at the Clerk's table. While they are doing so, I will ask the Serjeant-at-Arms to take the ballot box around so that every Member may see that it is empty.

The scrutineers will also look at the ballot papers to see that they are in order before they are distributed to Members. The Serjeant-at-Arms will then give each Member a paper, and Members may then vote for the Member of their choice. After they have voted, would they fold their papers?

Only Elected Members of the House will be voting for a Member from amongst them to be the Fifth Minister.

When all Members have voted the Serjeant-at-Arms will collect the ballots in the ballot box and the scrutineers will then commence to do the counting.

If Members are finished, will the Serjeant-at-Arms please collect the ballots in the ballot box?
[pause]

The Speaker: On this occasion when the scrutineers would have seen what each ballot contains, I will ask the Honourable Temporary First Official Member to say aloud who has received which vote.

In the meantime, and at the result of the balloting, I would ask members of the general public to be very quiet.

I will ask the Honourable Temporary First Official Member to read each vote as it is received.

BALLOT RESULTS

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Anthony Eden: 12 votes; Mr. Roy Bodden: 3 votes.

The Speaker: The result of the balloting, Mr. Anthony Eden—12 votes. Mr. Roy Bodden—3 votes. I therefore declare that Mr. Anthony Eden has been duly elected as the Fifth Minister of Executive Council for the remainder of the life of this Legislative Assembly, and the Ministry is the Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse, Prevention and Rehabilitation.

I congratulate you, Mr. Eden, and will you now take your place on the Executive Council as the Fifth Member of Executive Council.

[Pause as the Honourable Anthony Eden took his place on the Government Bench]

ELECTION OF AN ELECTED MEMBER TO BE DEPUTY SPEAKER

The Speaker: We will now proceed to the election of an Elected Member to be Deputy Speaker as provided in the recent amendment to the Constitution.

The election will be, as I have said before, from the Elected Members and not from Ministers. The same procedure will obtain as that for the election of a Fifth Minister to Executive Council.

May I seek the concurrence, again, of the House of having the First and Third Official Members to be the scrutineers? I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Honourable Temporary First and Third Official Members appointed scrutineers for the election.

AGREED: THE HONOURABLE TEMPORARY FIRST AND THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBERS APPOINTED SCRUTINEERS FOR THE ELECTION.

The Speaker: We will now proceed with nominations for a Member to be a Deputy Speaker.

NOMINATIONS

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, it gives me great pleasure in nominating Mr. G. Haig Bodden, to be the Deputy Speaker of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: Thank you. Secunder please.
The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the nomination.

The Speaker: Mr. G. Haig Bodden, you have been duly moved and seconded to be the Deputy Speaker of the House. Do you accept the nomination?

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, I will accept the nomination.

The Speaker: Is there a further nomination?
If there is no further nomination, I declare that Mr. G. Haig Bodden has been duly elected as the Deputy Speaker of this Honourable House, and I extend my congratulations to him. I am pleased that in the event that I may not be feeling well someone is ready to step into my shoes.

At this time I will suspend proceedings for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.06 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.28 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.
The next item on today's Order Paper is Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS.

The Speaker: Question No. 1, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town to ask the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, if I may, on a Point of Order.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) AND (8)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: On a point of trying to be doubly cautious, I propose that we suspend under Standing Order 83, Standing Order 23(7) & (8) to allow the questions to be taken.

The Speaker: Thank you. The question is that Standing Order 23(7) & (8) be suspended in order to allow questions to be taken after 11.00 a.m. I shall put the question.

Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTIONS UPON THE ORDER PAPER TO BE TAKEN AFTER 11.00 A.M.

The Speaker: Question No. 1, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 1

No. 1: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture to state: (a) Whether the contract extended to the Cayman Islands Marine Institute was submitted to Public Tender; (b) What are the terms and conditions as well as the sums involved in the contract between the Cayman Islands Government and the Cayman Islands Marine Institute; and (c) What is the relationship between Associated Marine Institutes, Inc. and the Cayman Islands Marine Institute?

DEFERMENT OF QUESTIONS 1, 2 AND 3

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, under Standing Order 23(5), I beg to defer questions 1, 2, and 3 until a future date in this meeting.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister has requested that questions 1, 2, and 3, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town be deferred until a later period in the sitting of this House.

I shall put the question...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could we ask the Honourable Minister why? Is it a case that the information is not available or what?

The Speaker: I am afraid that there is no leeway for the Honourable Minister to say that. If he wishes to do so. . .

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: It is just, Madam Speaker, that the departments have not had time to put the answer together.

The Speaker: Good, that is acceptable. I shall put the question that the Minister be allowed to defer the answering of these questions. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Questions 1, 2, and 3 are deferred.

AGREED: QUESTIONS 1, 2, AND 3 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: Question No. 4, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 4

No. 4: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, how many dredging permits are presently valid and if royalties are payable to Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, there is one dredging permit which is presently valid. All dredging licences stipulate royalties.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Minister say which licence is presently valid?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, the licence that is presently valid is the licence issued to the Shores Development.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Minister say if Government has in the past received any royalties from persons who have held licences, and if all, in fact, have complied with paying royalties?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I do not have with me this morning the details of the specifics that The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has asked for. But if he so wishes, I can undertake to provide it in writing.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I am pleased to accept if the Honourable Minister would so produce the information.

The Speaker: Thank you.

The next question is No. 5, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 5

No. 5: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, what are the total number of Tourism Offices for the Cayman Islands, giving the location, the number of staff and the names of the persons in charge?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, the Department of Tourism maintains fully staffed offices in Grand Cayman, Miami, New York, Houston, Chicago, Los Angeles and London, England. Additionally, we have retained, on a contractual basis, representative offices in Toronto, Canada; Tokyo, Japan; Frankfurt, Germany; Luxembourg and Milan, Italy.

A detailed breakdown of locations, staff and persons in charge is as follows:

LOCATION	STAFF COMPLEMENT	PERSON IN CHARGE
North American HQ	9	Mr. W. Hendricks
Miami (Regional Office)	5	Mr. P. Shields

Chicago	4	Miss B. Reimers
New York	4.	Mrs C. Moore
Houston	5	Mrs. M. Fair
Los Angeles	5	Ms. C. Leong
London, England	5	Miss. C. Leech

In the United States, regional sales representatives are also employed as follows:

Dallas	1	Miss J. Mitchell
Atlanta	1	Mrs. J. Christopher
Baltimore	1	Mrs. L. Randal
Boston	1	Mrs. J. Akerman
Tampa	1	Miss C. Bertoluzzi

That gives a total of 42 persons. Just to round out the question, the persons in charge of the representative offices are as follows:

Canada	Mr. E. Smith
Italy	Mr. M. Martinengo
Frankfurt	Mr. W. Stohrer
London	Miss C. Leech
Japan	Mr. Y. Yotsumoto
Luxembourg	Mr. A. Dean

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Minister say if the North American Headquarters is in Miami? It is shown separately here.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, the answer to the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is, the North American Headquarters is located in the same office as the Regional Office, and that is in Miami. We thought it appropriate to break it down in order to give further details to the Member asking the question.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I noted in the Honourable Minister's reply that there are regional sales representatives in various sections or parts of North America. Do these fall under the management of any particular offices or are these persons who are contracted directly from the Department of Tourism in Grand Cayman?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, they fall under one of the regional sales offices. For example, Miss J. Mitchell, who is in Dallas, reports to Mrs. M. Fair in Houston, where the regional office is. The same is true for Atlanta, reporting to the regional sales manager in Miami. In Baltimore, the regional sales representative is reporting to the regional office in New York, which is manned by a Mr. C. Moore. The regional sales representative in Boston is also reporting to the regional sales manager located in New York, and Tampa is reporting to the regional office in Miami.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Minister say if these representatives are paid a basic salary, or is there a percentage from the persons whom they direct to the Cayman Islands as visitors? Just how is the financial arrangement worked out for their compensation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, they are paid a salary.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 6, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 6 (Deferred)

No. 6 : Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation whether the recent extension work on the terminal building at Owen Roberts Airport was put out to public tender and if so, when was this done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I ask that this question be deferred please, since it has not been completed at this stage.

The Speaker: Thank you. The question is that the answer to this question be deferred. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question No. 6 is deferred.

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 6 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: On the Order paper there were questions 7, 8, and 9 by the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town who has now taken his seat as the Minister for Health, etcetera. I will ask him to withdraw these questions.

QUESTIONS 7, 8, AND 9 WITHDRAWN

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I beg to have these... (inaudible, microphone not turned on)

The Speaker: Thank you. The question is that the questions be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Questions 7, 8 and 9 have been withdrawn.

AGREED: QUESTIONS 7, 8, AND 9 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: We move now to item 6, Debate on the Throne Speech delivered by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, on Saturday, 26th February, 1994.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HER MAJESTY
QUEEN ELIZABETH II,
ON SATURDAY, 26 FEBRUARY, 1994

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Let me be the first to offer my congratulations to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, on the delivery of Her Throne Speech in person on her very recent visit to Grand Cayman. As a legislator I count it as a real honour to have had Her Majesty grace us with Her presence on this very auspicious occasion.

Madam Speaker, it was evident to all that Her Majesty and the Duke of Edinburgh were warmly received by the people of these Islands and I firmly believe that the Royal Couple thoroughly enjoyed Their visit to these Islands.

In Her speech, Her Majesty outlined Government's planned areas of emphasis for 1994, and I would like to briefly now address some of these areas raised in the Throne Speech.

The first area that was mentioned was the new Constitution and I am pleased to see that the new amendment to the 1972 Constitution, as put forward by the National Team and its Government, has been approved by the Privy Council. This morning we had the honour of electing Mr. Anthony Eden as the fifth Minister to sit on Executive Council. I have every confidence that Mr. Eden will do a good job and I feel that the people of the District of Bodden Town can feel justly proud to have a representative of the calibre of Mr. Eden to sit in Executive Council from their district.

Mr. Eden, you have my heartfelt congratulations on your election, and may God bless you in your new position.

Madam Speaker, the next area that I would like to touch on is the financial sector. It is my opinion that the Cayman Islands can be justly proud of the reputation and the calibre of services that are offered by our financial community.

Madam Speaker, the financial community also continues to offer employment to a large number of our people. What is encouraging is that the number of qualified Caymanians continues to grow and as a Government, we must continue to ensure that our qualified Caymanians find employment in their respective chosen fields. Also, Madam Speaker, to encourage the financial sector to accelerate the pace of training of our Caymanians employed in that area to qualify them as bankers, accountants and in the other professions which are in such high demand in these Islands.

Madam Speaker, it is our responsibility as leaders to ensure that Caymanians do share fairly in the financial success we enjoy in these Islands. To ensure that this happens, with respect to the financial community, I feel that it is important that the labour needs and opportunities of the community are closely monitored by Government and, where possible, Caymanians have the opportunity of taking some of the positions which become available.

The financial community has done much in the area of training, in the area of providing scholarships to young Caymanians who are ambitious enough to pursue a qualification in various fields, and I want to say thanks to them for doing that. But, I would also encourage them to make more scholarships available for this purpose because I believe it is in everyone's best interest to give many of our people an opportunity to earn a qualification in this country.

Cayman Airways: I am pleased with the financial turnaround of our national airline that has been brought about by our Government. The airline has now been put in a financial position where it has a fighting chance to survive. In my opinion, despite the views of others, I believe that there will always be a role and a need for Cayman Airways, as far as the servicing of the Cayman Islands is concerned. This was very evident, not as far as the national airline was concerned, but during the recent visit of Her Majesty the Queen, our local radio station did an excellent job covering that visit. The other radio station continued programming as normal. So, your national services do have a role to play.

I want to offer my congratulations to the Minister of Aviation for the fantastic job he has done with respect to the financial survival of our airline. I have not seen the accounts as yet for 1994, I think they are due sometime after June 30th, but I am optimistic that this year the national airline will even show a small profit.

Tourism: The year 1993 has been a record year for tourist air arrivals to the Cayman Islands. And I must also offer my congratulations to the Minister for Tourism for the outstanding job he has done with tourism, by just saying to him, "Continue to do what you are doing, because it has worked."

Tourism affects every sector of our economy. It is important that we emphasise to our people the importance of continuing to do those things which have made us different as a people and which also allows us to continue to attract visitors to our shores. Characteristics such as friendliness, honesty and respect for each other and for our visitors to this country.

Health Services: I am pleased that our Government plans to move ahead this year with the National Health Insurance Scheme. In my opinion this is badly needed. But what is important is that the scheme must be affordable, must offer the right coverage, and must also be supported by the local insurance industry. I am also pleased to hear that Phase I of the upgrading of the George Town Hospital will also be carried out this year, and that new health care centres are planned for the district of West Bay and Bodden Town. Madam Speaker, it is important to provide our people with a high quality of health care services, and our Government, I am proud to say, is prepared to do just that.

Madam Speaker, this year one of the political ambitions of mine will be realised with the opening of the locally established drug rehabilitation centre. This was an issue that I campaigned for from 1988. I realised that it made more sense for us to have a local centre where our young men, young women and others who are unfortunate enough to become addicted to drugs, could be treated for that illness.

The former Minister for Health, in the 1988 to 1992 Government, had a different view. His attitude was to provide the services overseas, which was very costly, and the reality of it was that only the favoured few had an opportunity to take advantage of those services. But here, we have a local facility and everyone who needs attention and treatment will have it available to them.

Madam Speaker, if we are to continue to move forward as a people, every effort must be made to rid this country of the scourge of drug abuse. We must help our people who are drug addicts to get back on their feet and once again be in a position to be productive citizens of our community. Otherwise, as Caymanians, we run the risk of becoming an endangered species. It is my firm opinion that the problem of drug abuse can be whipped in this country and we must pool our efforts and resources to ensure that this is done.

The development of sporting facilities: I am pleased that the emphasis of our Government has been sports for all, and much is being done by this Government to provide proper sporting facilities for the youth of this country.

Madam Speaker, on Saturday last week we had the honour of having Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II open our new Ed Bush Sports Complex in West Bay. Let me say that that was a very proud moment for the representatives and the people of the district of West Bay, and also, a proud moment for the people of this country to be able to boast of a sporting complex of that calibre. Now our football players have a facility that can be used, not only for local competition but it puts them in a position where they can now be proud to host international games and tournaments.

I must offer my congratulations to my colleague, the Minister of Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, on a job well done.

Madam Speaker, I am pleased to hear of the continued success of the Cayman Islands Law School in training young Caymanians as Lawyers, and I am also pleased to hear that students may now graduate for the first time under the Honours Degree Programme from the University of Liverpool.

I want to say thanks to those legislators who had the foresight of establishing our Law School because it has provided an opportunity for many young Caymanians to acquire the qualifications as a lawyer, who would normally not have that privilege because it is established right here in these Islands. Madam Speaker, what I am proud of is that graduates from that school are recognised very highly in the legal community.

Madam Speaker, with regards to the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force, I want to say that I was very pleased to hear of the promotions recently of some young Caymanians to senior positions. It is my belief and conviction that the more Caymanians we have of this calibre just promoted, rising in the ranks of the force, the more attractive the service will become to other young Caymanians choosing a career opportunity in this area.

As far as the Police Force is concerned, I would just like to see better coverage in regards to the outer districts. This is an issue that has been raised by all Members who live in the outer districts, such as North Side, West Bay, East End and Bodden Town. I believe it is very important to decentralise the services, that is, put police in the districts where we have criminal activities other than George Town.

I recall as a legislator, Madam Speaker, calling the Police Station in my district on a number of occasions to report a criminal activity or to request assistance of one sort or the other, was told by the officer answering the telephone, "Well at the present time I am the only one here, the other policemen are out on patrol." Now, I believe that it is important and whatever is necessary for us to ensure that it is done, that our outer districts have a 24 hour coverage as far as the police presence is concerned.

Madam Speaker, I recall on another occasion getting a call saying that some lady in my district had just collapsed in her yard—the lady actually died. But it took the police such a long time to arrive, and when they did the excuse was, "the district of West Bay Police Station did not have a vehicle available to them." Now, with a force that boasts of a budget, I think in the region of $9 million, this is totally unacceptable. As representatives we are concerned with regard to criminal activities, and one way of minimising this activity is to ensure that we have an adequate presence as far as the police is concerned.

The other thing that I would also like to see in my district is police on foot patrol walking around the district, meeting the people and just walking around so people can see that they are there. Most times I only see the police when they go by in an air-conditioned car driving at 40 or 50 miles per hour. So I believe that the Police Force needs to be better deployed in order to ensure that these Islands get the kind of police coverage that they deserve.

The Prison system: As a Legislator I continue to be concerned with the reports I have heard concerning the existence of drug trafficking and drug consumption in our Prison. According to the statistics available, a large majority of the prisoners at Northward Prison are there for some drug-related conviction. But it does not make sense for us to convict someone of drug trafficking or drug abuse and stick him in Northward Prison if he has access to these substances there as well. So something has to be done in this area.

As a Legislator, I am also concerned with the increase in the incidents of serious crime in this country. Just a few months ago, I think it was, to have heard that two of our visitors were held up at gun point and robbed by someone in these Islands, and also, to hear of another bank robbery which took place in the middle of the day around 10 o'clock or 11 o'clock in the morning, is totally unacceptable as far as I am concerned. We must do whatever is necessary to send a very strong and loud message to the criminal element—that we will not stand by and continue to accept this type of activity in this country.

I feel that as a Government we must get tough on the criminals and we must see to it that they are severely punished if they take it upon themselves to carry out crimes in this country. What is alarming and what concerns me, is that a large percentage of our prisoners are repeat offenders. Madam Speaker, this tells me that Northward Prison is not acting as the deterrent it should be.

Madam Speaker, because of this, as a Government and as a Legislature, we must look at other ways and means to punish the criminals for their activity in this country. I recall, before we had Northward Prison, when anyone was convicted of a crime and if his term exceeded six months he was required to serve the prison term in Jamaica. I do not recall many repeat offenders. I remember on probably one or two occasions being at the airport when those prisoners were being escorted off by plane to Jamaica to serve their terms.

I have been told that there is nothing to prevent us from doing that, that is, sending the hardened criminals or people who commit serious crimes to serve their prison term in Jamaica, provided that we get the acceptance from the Jamaican Government. And I do not believe that that will be too difficult because as a country we would be prepared to pay them for housing those prisoners.

Madam Speaker, I am one of those legislators who does not support the idea that you have to get the consent of the prisoner to determine where he spends his prison term. Did you have his consent when you locked him up? I believe those kind of rules and philosophies have to be changed in this country if we have a fighting chance to survive.

I am prepared to say to our Government, and hopefully the message will get down to the Courts where people are convicted of serious crimes, such as, drug trafficking (I am not talking about the little boy on the street peddling one or two ganja-cigarettes, I am talking about big ones we have in this country and people who take it upon themselves to take another person's life, or someone who commits a crime with the use of a firearm), I am prepared as a legislator to support having those prisoners being sent someplace like Jamaica, to serve their term.

Madam Speaker, I heard a very amusing story sometime ago where, at Northward Prison, it was supertime or dinnertime and the prisoners all formed a line. When they found out what they were going to have for dinner (I think it was stew) they went on strike because that was not good enough for them. They said that they wanted steak. Let me tell you, Madam Speaker, I have not visited the prisons in Jamaica, but steak, stew, that is a luxury meal, Madam Speaker. I believe that prison has to serve as a deterrent to crime in this country. Otherwise, we will go the same route as so many of our Caribbean neighbours.

So, Madam Speaker, they referred to me in the last sitting as "hangman John" because I brought the Motion calling for the reestablishment of capital punishment. But I believe as a legislator you have to be responsible enough to take some very unpopular decisions that are in the best interest of the country and your people.

I spend quite a bit of time visiting inmates at Northward Prison, and there are many of them in there whom I know from my district. But I believe that this Government is doing a little more as far as utilising prisoners for very positive services. I think it was the Governor's residence: his gates were all made by inmates of the Prison. Also, I am aware that some work was done for the National Trust, with regard to painting and other services in that area. There is no reason why there cannot be established in Northward Prison a proper work programme where prisoners are required to keep our beaches clean, our streets clean as far as litter and the rest of it. They would be glad to do it because it gives them an opportunity to be on the outside and to enjoy some fresh air and scenery.

Many of the inmates at Northward Prison are very skilled craftsmen, they are painters, masons, carpenters, and some of the other areas, Madam Speaker, there is no reason why they could not also be used for maintaining public buildings, be it painting them or repairing them. I am aware that in the state of North Carolina the Governor's mansion is staffed with inmates—that is, you have inmates there who serve as cooks, butlers, gardeners, and all of the other areas of service required.

Madam Speaker, it gives these inmates an opportunity to display some of the skills that they have and also to be taught a skill. I understand that some of the inmates who serve, for example, as chefs to the Governor, upon being released are quickly taken up and provided employment by some of the major hotels in that area. So there is no reason why better services could not be utilised by our inmates to provide some of these services. Madam Speaker, these are badly needed services because our Government pays a lot of money for maintaining roads, maintaining beaches, and maintaining public buildings in this country.

Sometime ago, I brought a motion that was accepted by the previous Government, calling for the establishment of a proper academic programme in the Prison where inmates who have an academic deficiency or a certain level of education have the opportunity to further their education. Many of those prisoners, as a result, have been able to pass the GED (General Education Diploma) examination which means that they come out of prison as High School graduates. And this is good! I believe that more emphasis has to be placed in this area and also to see that those inmates, for example, who do not have a trade or a skill, have an opportunity to learn some trade while they are in prison—be it mechanics, carpentry, masonry, plumbing or any of the other services that are in such high demand in this country.

How the programme should work is that when these inmates come to the end of their prison term there should be some prison coordinator that goes up and attempts to find a position for that inmate upon being released, as far as a job is concerned.

One of the problems that we have is that when inmates come out of prison, because we live in a very small community where everybody knows everybody and potential employers are aware that they have just been released from prison, some of them have a very difficult time, Madam Speaker, finding jobs to support themselves and put themselves in a position where they can also support themselves legally. As a result, many of them go right back to prison because they fall right back in the trap that got them in prison in the first place.

I have not looked at the recent statistics, but I would daresay that a large percentage of our inmate population is made up of foreign nationals, foreign prisoners, people who have visited these Islands, committed a crime and gone to prison. Now, Madam Speaker, I feel that every effort should be made to see to it that once foreign prisoners are convicted and sentenced by our courts, that arrangements should be made for those prisoners to serve the term in their respective countries. Again, I understand the argument that is going to be put forward is that you cannot do it without the agreement of the prisoner. Madam Speaker, who is in charge, the prisoner or the Government?

Madam Speaker, it is unfortunate that we are caught up in so many international conventions or agreements, or whatever you want to call them. For example, one of the most powerful international bodies is Amnesty International, and it appears that they tell you when a prisoner can go to the bathroom. This is ridiculous!

I am not saying that there is not an issue of human rights and abuse of human rights, and I believe, in all honesty, that regardless of whether you are a prisoner or a free person that there are certain rights and dignities that the human being is entitled to. But I believe that we are going overboard in trying to protect the criminal element in a lot of instances.

It is my firm conviction that if you have a country, and you have an elected Government in place to run that country, then they should do it to the best of their ability. Madam Speaker, if it means that we have to go against certain conventions in order to see to it that this country survives, then so be it.

Madam Speaker, overall I feel that the Throne Speech was very positive. It outlined some very ambitious plans as far as our present Government is concerned. Despite all the criticisms that we have heard—and we have only been in office some 15 or 18 months—I believe that this Government has done a fantastic job in turning around this country. Unfortunately, the position we find ourselves in is that for so long, under the past administration, things were allowed to slide and deteriorate and that all of a sudden some people, that is, those who do not know any better, expect miracles. We are not miracle workers, but I am pleased to say that I am proud of the accomplishments that have been made by the present Government.

All I would urge is that the people continue to support this Legislative Assembly and our Government. I can assure them that we will continue to endeavour to provide the services which are so badly needed in this country.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: At this time proceedings will be suspended until 2.00 p.m.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Continuation of the debate on the Speech from the Throne. [pause] May I ask the Honourable Members to continue with the business of the House, which is the debate on the Speech delivered by Her Majesty the Queen? [pause]

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, we, the people of the Cayman Islands, and particularly those on Grand Cayman, were privileged and honoured to have the Royal Couple visit us on the 26th and 27th of February, and to have the Speech from the Throne delivered by Her Majesty in person. The Speech gave an indication of the hopes, aspirations and achievements of the Government. It also, Madam Speaker, leaves us with much food for thought and, quite significantly, not a few questions which beg answers.

Regarding the Constitution we now have in place, with the election of the fifth Member of Executive Council, the complement of Ministers as per the amendment to the Constitution submitted by the National Team Government and accepted by the Privy Council. However, Madam Speaker, conspicuous from the amendment is a Bill of Rights. I am concerned that there does not now seem to be an interest to proceed with the matter of incorporating a Bill of Rights into our Constitution. Let me say again, most modern documents of this nature are prefaced by a specific Bill of Rights.

Madam Speaker, if one were to follow the news, it is becoming increasingly clear that we in these Islands, need such a written document, if for no more than as a reminder to ourselves that we should be respectful and mindful of certain things.

I consider myself eminently equipped to sound this alarm because on two occasions I fought, without success, to have a Bill of Rights incorporated in our Constitution. Just when it seemed that it was going to be incorporated—it so happened that it was contained in a document with other elements which were deemed to be more important—it consequently got relegated to a "not important" status. I note that although we agreed to a Select Committee, we did not choose a Chairman of that Select Committee.

The Financial Sector: I am convinced that Cayman's future lies in its ability to project itself as an international financial centre of scrupulously clean reputation, of meticulous preparation and of an availability and determination to offer the best service in this field—the best service in the world. To this extent I wish to suggest that it is time for the Cayman Islands to take a different view and to embark on a more sophisticated and higher plane, and to prepare itself for the competition it is going to get from any "Johnny-come-lately" in this field, and to use as our models of further development the countries of Andorra, Liechtenstein and Monaco.

Madam Speaker, simple logic explains it. These states, like us, are small by comparison to the other states—small in terms of physical size, and small in terms of population. Yet, these three states which I have proposed that we should study with a view to improving, adding to our international financial centre status and repertoire, have each in their own right been unquestionably successful.

Monaco, is an example that strikes me. Its streets are scrupulously clean, its population well educated, well fed and content. Its reputation as an international financial centre is beyond question. It is so sophisticated, and so organised, that in the recent past there was an incident where a lady was robbed on one of the main streets of Monaco, robbed of a valuable ring which she was wearing. She was held up at knife-point. The Commissioner of Police, as we would call him, head of the Gendarmerie, felt such a sense of obligation that that had happened under his command, tendered his resignation because he saw that as a failure of himself and his department to offer protection to decent citizens. Would that the people we have in our jurisdiction be so honourable, or so moved!

But there are developments in these countries which we, in the Cayman Islands, could benefit from in ways other than that, because the European Community is putting a lot of pressure on these financial centres and it is my information that they are in the process of reviewing and making some changes by way of exploring the possibilities of limited taxation in some areas and on some financial transitions.

I think that there is much we can learn. There is much benefit to us in the Cayman Islands to keep abreast of these developments because finance is international and usually it moves from centre to centre with a snowballing effect. It is also my contention that people with big money and large investments like to spread their investments rather than keeping them all in one place.

Then too, Madam Speaker, purely as a matter of our own internal development, I think that the time has now come for some joint venture projects in the Cayman Islands between the Government and certain elements of the private sector. Indeed, it may well be possible that exploration has already been made in some of these areas.

A good example is in the area of housing, where the Government, to ensure that affordable housing is available to those people needing help, could enter into a joint venture project with the private sector. Similarly, in some countries the government likes to encourage small and medium sized businesses. They make provision for loans to be disbursed to entrepreneurs and businesses who would like to get into these ventures but who would otherwise not be able to afford to borrow money at the commercial interest rate. So a deal is struck where provision is made for monies to be borrowed to finance certain businesses at favourable interest rates—soft loans, as they are called.

It is almost a nation-wide contention among Caymanians that the Government needs to be watchful, indeed, the Financial Secretary gave us a commitment that they were going to look into the matter and I believe he went as far as appointing some Committee to study this—the business of insurance and insurance rates. As one moves about the community, one hears of the difficulties that people experience, particularly as regards property insurance and, to a lesser extent, motor vehicle insurance. So I see the role of Government in this case as being one of trying to temper or blunt, without necessarily imposing strict and stringent controls. If insurance rates, particularly property insurance rates, become prohibitively expensive, that, in its turn is going to have a stunting effect on the development of new housing which, in its turn is going to tax an expanding population base and, indeed, make some people's dream of owning their own shelter remote, if not well nigh impossible. It is a proven fact that the most stable societies are those whose population is made up of a large number of business owners. So it is among other things, a challenge for the Government to try to find some way of alleviating what is rapidly becoming an onerous expense while at the same time making it worthwhile for those investors in the insurance business to realise returns on their investments.

My area of expertise does not lie in finance, but it may well be worthwhile for the Government to explore the possibility in this field again for some kind of joint venture project which would serve to ease Caymanians of some of the steep rates of which they complain they have to pay now, and which seem, in many instances, unjustified by virtue of the fact that, while we may be in the danger zone, we have not been hit either by a hurricane or an earthquake in the recent past that would justify our having to pay exorbitant rises every year.

Madam Speaker, in the Speech from the Throne, it was read that Cayman Airways saw its fleet of aircraft reduced in 1993 and the company and its operations have been streamlined. Indeed, on the surface of things the company seems to be doing well. The country reacted not unfavourably to the adjustments which had to be made even though some of those adjustments meant that Caymanian people who had tenure at Cayman Airways were displaced. Credit should go to those people. Although I understand that some incentive, some compensation was offered, it is always difficult when people are tenured in positions, for them to give up those positions, even under the most ideal circumstance, let alone if they were just given the option. So let me at once recognise the apparent willingness of those people to make a sacrifice in the long term interest of the company and the country.

I hope that Cayman Airways will continue to grow stronger, although I read in the paper recently about some concerns, particularly a concern emanating from the grant of a licence by a company in Texas called 'Adventure Tours' to operate a charter out of Houston which, as I understand it, is a source of boon for the Cayman Islands as far as summer tourism is concerned. I hope that if that project matures it does not detrimentally affect the existence of Cayman Airways and, indeed, it seems that the only way of ensuring that Cayman Airways will survive is for Cayman Airways itself, without relying on external forces, to make the necessary adjustment to be as competitive as it needs to be so that it may, in the short term, at least, beat off the competition, so to speak.

Now that the Airline has been streamlined, I would hope that we are able to maintain those Caymanian pilots who, in all candour, served—sometimes under difficult circumstances—diligently, efficiently and well. Certainly I expect that as the Airline strengthens itself and grows that these officers and staff members will be given every opportunity open to them so that we will not have to revert to a situation where they are pitted, to their great disadvantage, against elements brought in from the outside.

Madam Speaker, I would hope that the Bermuda II negotiations would be favourable, but I realise that we are but a small pawn in these kinds of international negotiations and being still a dependency of Great Britain, the matter will be negotiated between Great Britain and the United States' carriers and, indeed, we can consider ourselves lucky if we are consulted and if our advice and position is taken. That is the situation in which we find ourselves and, while I am concerned, I am not so forlorn that we may be able to come out of it with some iota of encouragement and moral support. I have every confidence now that Cayman Airways stands a reasonable chance of doing well.

While I am on the subject I cannot resist the urge to give them a little plug to say that since I have committed myself to being faithful, whenever I fly I am a faithful patron. I cannot complain about the service that I receive when I fly, although, Madam Speaker, I am an infrequent flyer compared to some people. But I am still proud to fly the Airline and, up until the last time I flew, I came away satisfied that the service was efficient and it gives me great pride to stand here to say that I shall endeavour to support them. While I realise that we have an uphill struggle, I wish them well and, like Joshua said, "As for me and my household..." whenever we travel, they can count on our support. It would be unpatriotic at this time if I took a different position.

The Tourism sector. There was a time when I thought that we would not have to worry about competition as far as development of our tourism goes. But I have changed my mind, and, I think, with good reason. I was reading a few weeks ago, about the development of tourism in the Caribbean. I was struck to learn that tourism in the Caribbean really did not take off until after the United States embargo on Cuba. At this time, there is a growing debate and, indeed, the move for the United States to relinquish this embargo on Cuba is growing daily.

In August of 1992 I had the opportunity to travel to Cuba in an official capacity as the Leader of the Cayman Islands Under-16 Football Squad that went to play in the Caribbean and Central American competition, and I spent 10 days in the second largest city. What I saw, as far as infrastructure was concerned, left me with knowledge that, at that time, Cayman had the advantage. And I believe we still have. However, all of the elements are in place for Cuba to take off again as a major tourist resort. All that is left to be done is for the United States to lift its embargo.

The forces of the capitalist system are at work, and if that is going to be done, I would say before the year 2000, when that embargo is lifted, tourism, not only in the Cayman Islands (although I am only concerned with tourism in the Cayman Islands), is going to be affected, perhaps detrimentally. Even as I speak, hotels are being built in Cuba and joint ventures are being encouraged between the Cuban Government and various other countries—Spain, for example, Italy, even some tourist elements in Jamaica are going into joint ventures. We are going to revert back to the situation as it was in the pre-1959 years where Americans, in droves, went there for no other reason other than it was a novelty. So we in the Cayman Islands must begin to diversify our product.

We do not have to worry about them as far as international finance is concerned. That is why I say we should polish, expand and improve our status as an international financial centre because we will have to fall most heavily upon this element of our development when Cuba opens up as a competing tourist resort. We are going to be affected, and we are going to have to put ourselves in the position where, for 10 years at least, we are able to still remain attractive to tourists while, at the same time, we move ahead with development as an international financial centre. I believe that we are on the right track.

Certainly we are increasingly aware of ecotourism, which is a growing worldwide phenomenon. One of Her Majesty's official duties was the opening of the Botanic Gardens. The development of St. James' Castle in my own constituency will help. We have other things. We must seek to improve upon these and it is the role and the duty of the Government to encourage and to work with the various elements, be they private, or be they statutory boards set up by the Government to develop these areas so that when the crunch time comes, we are in a position where we can at least survive as a resort of some desirability.

While I am going to deal with this in a subsequent section, I want also to mention it now because it is, if for no other reason, peripherally important to tourism. We must take care that we contain the crime situation in our country because I think, perhaps, the greatest threat we have right now to the destruction of our reputation as a safe society is the possibility that crime may spiral to such an extent that it becomes threatening to the tourism sector. Certainly, if the events of the past few weeks are any indication in a country where we have an armed bank robbery in the middle of the morning, I would say that we are now waltzing on glass where that kind of thing is concerned.

I go no further than to refer to the relationship between the United States State Department and Jamaica some time ago, when the crime wave in Jamaica was so high that the United States State Department issued warning bulletins to United States' citizens, telling them if they travel to Jamaica as tourists they were to exercise great care and caution. Well, the Jamaican government raised such a furore that the United States State Department changed its tactics because the Jamaican government accused them of 'smear' tactics and promoting paranoia. Now what is done, is that the State Department does not, of itself, issue the bulletins but rather causes the bulletins and reminders to be issued through the various travel agencies and tour companies so that what has happened is that the mode and method of warning has changed, but the effects have not been lessened.

All it takes for that to happen is what happened in the case of Jamaica where some American tourists were robbed at gunpoint and one was killed. That is all. So, we have a problem which we need to come to grips with as far as the development of our tourism is concerned, that is, we need to exercise greater control and we need to alleviate what is apparently a spiralling crime wave.

I believe that we can continue to be a prosperous tourist resort if we are flexible and if we pay attention to competition. I believe that there are new markets to explore and, given our political stability, tolerance of outsiders, and our reasonably well off society, we can be a contender for many years if we are careful.

I certainly have reservations, however, about exploring new markets such as Spain, because I do not believe that Spain has much to offer the Cayman Islands by way of growth in tourism. Spain itself is one of the poorest countries in Europe. Secondly, Spain is also a tourist resort—Spain itself is in the market of being a tourist resort. I think our future in tourism lies in places like Germany, particularly that section of Germany that was known, prior to the end of the cold war, as West Germany and, certainly, Madam Speaker, although they are far away, with the development of air travel and communications the East, particularly Japan, is still among the most affluent countries in the world.

I read in a travel magazine some months ago that the Japanese people are becoming increasingly interested in scuba diving and take junkets as far down as this side of the world, especially in Mexican resorts such as Cancun. I would support any efforts in moving in that direction and concentrating on these kinds of upscale and lucrative markets, rather than worrying about countries like Spain which have limited, if any, appeal.

For years I have been saying that as far as education goes, we have been measuring our progress on a faulty report card. Nobody has taken me seriously. But, Madam Speaker, I was taught that the true analysis of success does not lie only in how many people graduate at every graduation, nor does it lie in how many people receive scholarships at the beginning of every school year, but lies as much in the fact that all of the young people can be constructively involved and can benefit from the economic development of the society.

In this area we have failed dismally. We have failed because in our Prison we have a spiralling population of young people who left school with no marketable skills. Therefore, they were unable to benefit from the development of the Cayman Islands. We are still faced with a disenchanted and alienated youth. It should be no consolation that this is not only a Caymanian phenomenon, but indeed, is worldwide. However, that does not exonerate us. I do not know where the failure lies because I have not had the opportunity to do a thorough assessment. But I know there is a failure somewhere, because just yesterday at 11.00 in the morning, at the back of the compound at which I work, I heard one of the guard dogs making a big fuss. When I proceeded to move from that section of the compound, closer to where the dog was positioned, I saw two youngsters whom I took to be teenagers, trying to scale the cyclone fence and they were in the process of throwing their bags over when the dog put them up. I do not know whether it was bravado, or lack of sense, but it seemed that those two youngsters were insistent on taking on that dog. When I shouted at them and they saw me walking towards them, they took their bags and proceeded to run to another section of the fence and run towards the front. I could not get closer than 20 yards to them because there was a fence between them and me and they disappeared and I did not see them again. I only said to myself how this is 11.00 in the morning (because I specifically took note of the time), and these youngsters are running away from school. Something is wrong. What is wrong? Is it that the youngsters are bad, and by inference cannot be helped? Is it that school is not interesting? What is it? We have to find that out because I would hazard a guess that these youngsters were not older than 14 years old.

When I drew [this to] the attention of some of the workers, they told me that is indeed not a remote happening. We have to find out how we can interest these youngsters. We have to find out how we can impart in them skills that will build their self-esteem, skills that will give them the appeal that is necessary for employers to take them on. I do not envy the school and the school authorities, because now the school has to take on an added role, that is, the school has to be a parent, or parents, also. That compounds the situation.

But it does not end there, because, as a professional, it strikes me that part of the problem has to be with the kind of changes that we wish to put in place so rapidly from year to year. I have always said, from years ago, that one of the failures of the system is a failure to attract a greater level of students to vocational and technical areas where they can realise very quickly that the skills which they develop can be marketable and can be productive and, at the same time, give them a sense of self-esteem necessary to make them fit into the developing society that the Cayman Islands is.

I spoke some weeks ago with a constituent of mine who operates a small venture in woodcarving. I will never forget the meeting. I met him right at the Post Office in Bodden Town. He came to me lamenting the fact that he was trying to get the museum to stock some of the items which he makes from indigenous wood, only to be told that they were not interested because they could not be sure that his supply could be guaranteed—even after he assured them that he had a significant amount and variety of items at that time. What was striking however, was that the young man told me that while he was being turned away, they were making a deal with some foreign people to import some items made from plastic and whatever else.

It begins like that, Madam Speaker, but unfortunately, it does not end like that. So the young man came away discouraged and frustrated because here he is with a skill which he was able to develop and build upon but yet could not find a market for his work because we prefer, instead, to buy some things made outside of Cayman.

So it is that our education system has to improve upon its ability to turn out youngsters with marketable skills. While it is good for people to aspire to go to college and university, the very size of our society suggests that we can reasonably expect to accommodate a limited number of such people, and one of the failings that we have is that being the tourist resort that we are, there is a lack of locally made products that would appeal to tourists. Even the woodwork that I see in some of the stores is imported from other countries. So this is an avenue of our education system that we should strive to improve.

I want to say too, as regards education, that one of the things as an educator I have to be concerned about is that there is not such a wide disparity between what happens in the public sector and what happens in the private sector at various levels. We do not want to get into a system where the private sector is obviously superior to the public sector. So one of the roles of the Government is to ensure that its system of education is as good as, if not better than, what is offered in the private sector. By so ensuring, the private sector can voluntarily join the system which the Government has implemented and instituted and that would be a good yardstick, and a means of comparison and of monitoring the development of the Government system to see how it measures up against the private sector at various levels.

As far as post-secondary education is concerned, I am still puzzled at the fact that the International College of the Cayman Islands does not appear to be, shall I say, the beneficiary of any overt Government attention and encouragement. I believe that the strength of the system in the Cayman Islands is such that we have at that level the benefit of the British system in the Community College and the American System in the International College of the Cayman Islands. I have said in this Honourable House before that it is my view that both are complementary and inter-dependent and that we should encourage them to so develop, so that I would hope, the Government would see it fit to offer some incentives so that they could develop inter-dependently and that they could share some common resources, even to the point of, in some disciplines, sharing the student pool. I believe that there is great merit in that and I believe it would be advantageous to so do. I feel certain that any Government that pioneers such a development will earn the respect, not only of the students, and of the Principals of those institutions and also of the Caymanian populace at large because it is expensive to duplicate resources, particularly in such a small community. So the essence of learning, in any case, is largely based in shared experiences.

I have said before that the future of education lies in the exploration of computer assisted instruction. Perhaps if there is a weakness in our system on what is being embarked on currently, in terms of the strategic planning and implementation, it is the fact that there is no obvious link between this and computer assisted instruction.

I was reading an issue of "International Business Week" magazine of a week ago, and the feature article was an article entitled "The Learning Revolution". That article was based upon the fact that computers and the dissemination of information, particularly information as it relates to learning and the school setting, is so changing the face of education that schools as we now know them will be obsolete in 10 years. People are talking about networking, distance learning. Indeed, libraries, as we now know them with thousands and millions of books, are not going to be the wave of the future. One will simply plug into a computer, hit the keyboard and be immediately accessed to the information you are seeking, whether its ultimate source was the Encyclopaedia Britannica, or Encyclopedia Americana, I am saying that that is the wave of the future and that is the wave that we, in Cayman, should be looking to explore. I would hope that the Minister may see fit to spread some of his manpower and resources in this area.

I was just researching a school system in Missouri, in the United States, where they spent $2 billion equipping a high school, which is an experiment, and the base of that is that the classrooms are fully computerised so that the students do not have to go into a special computer room. They are taught their reading by computers, their mathematics, their social studies, everything. It immediately lessens the need for the traditional classroom as we know it. Individual students are better able to progress at their own pace with the aid of computer-assisted instruction. Not the least point of which is that whenever those students leave school, they have acquired the skills of being able to use a keyboard and it can be transported across from a typewriter to a computer to find information for themselves and to progress at their individual rates.

So these are some of the strengths and certainly, closer to home, at the University of the West Indies, they have the distance learning project, albeit at the adult level. In the United States where the field is more fertile they have it from primary school level right up to high school. Indeed, Madam Speaker, some computer companies which specialise in educational computers sell the units for as little as a couple of hundred dollars. There are many, many good programmes.

So I believe, as far as our educational programme is concerned, that this is an area which we should begin to be moving forward with and exploring, with a view to gradually improving our school system and making the traditional classroom more likeable and more user-friendly by enhancing it with these kinds of modern learning instruments.

The promotion of health in any country has to be high on the list of priorities and developments for the people. I note that we were just handed the report of the sole enquirer into the Hospital Project. We still need a hospital and a health system and infrastructure. I stand here full well believing that we are going to get one. What I regret is that it is going to be so time consuming, so expensive and so divisive, that it is going to rend the country and, it is not an exaggeration to say, it might even sunder it.

It is always easier in afterthought and in hindsight. The notion of providing adequate health care for the citizens of a country is one that is shared by many leaders. Indeed, it is one of the challenges with which the President of the United States, Bill Clinton, is faced. There has been, and there will always be, acrimony as to whether health care is best and most effectively provided by Government agencies or whether it is best provided by private sector and regulated by Government. As far as I am concerned, I do not believe that there is necessarily a hard and fast rule. I believe that situations and circumstance should dictate the method. Certainly in a country like Cayman, where the size and the inability of the population to afford certain elements of health care, I think that the Government should play a prominent role, if not being the provider, because that is one way of ensuring, really, that no one is left out. So, we have lost much time and there is a need to make up some ground rather rapidly.

I note with some gratitude that in the Throne Speech there was the announced intention to put a health centre in Bodden Town. We discussed this cursorily with the Member at that time. I feel even more enthusiasm and a greater sense of fulfillment now that my colleague has assumed the responsibilities of the Health Ministry, because for many years we recognised that there was a need to upgrade our clinic in Bodden Town. I feel glad in saying that it could be done by no better person than a Bodden Towner—one who has talked and walked with the people and who is, indeed, familiar with the situation. I would also like to take this opportunity to publicly congratulate him, and to wish him well and to assure him that, certainly, he has my prayers and support for what I am sure will be a challenge for him.

The United Nations has declared this year to be the International Year of the Family. All Members of this Honourable House realise the precariousness, the vulnerability of the Caymanian family. I remember when I was studying Sociology, I read several of the works of the famous German Sociologist, Max Weber. I recall in one of his works he had a telling observation which was that the cloak of material prosperity may well become an iron cage.

At the time I first encountered that observation I knew what he meant, but because I was not in a position to see the result of that material prosperity, I somehow could not grasp the seriousness of what he was saying until recently. I realised that Max Weber could well have been speaking or writing about Caymanian society because we are now beginning to pay the price for wearing that cloak of material prosperity. So we have broken families—families where the single parent (often the mother) has to work two jobs just to make ends meet. A society in which manhood has taken on a totally new context from what it was in old Cayman, where fathers never shied away from their obligations and responsibilities, and where the level of machismo in this society dictated that a father exercise his parental responsibility, and did, for his children.

Now, however, the rules have changed. Largely because of wealth and television, we have a society where manhood and its significance is changed. Not by straw issues like washing dishes after dinner, or even sitting rocking the son, or telling him a story for an hour while mother does something else, but by the mere desire to be dominant, to be forceful, to be important, where the notion of loyalty and fidelity takes on a different context because it is unpopular to be faithful, and it is difficult to be loyal in some societies where peer pressure dictates that, while women must be chaste and faithful, men are free to roam. As a result of this we have an inordinate breakdown, high divorce rates, rebellion among children, juvenile delinquency, lack of attention problems at school. We need to work at this. Not only do we need to work as a Parliament and as legislators, we need to work as parents, as guardians and as protectors of this society.

I am convinced that it cannot be done by any one element. There must be a great and almost moral awakening and a moral rearmament, so that the church, the school, the state, the individual—all of us—join hands, merge forces to stem this tide. It makes little sense, for those of us who are responsible—irrespective of our political position in this House, whether we be on this side arguing from the point I am arguing, or whether we be the Government—to work to build a society where it is going to be torn down by people who do not understand, who have been left behind, who have not experienced love, who have not experienced affection and who have no respect for themselves and, certainly, no respect for anyone else, whose only notion of catching up is by using a gun to blow somebody away, or to stick up some bank in broad daylight.

So all of us have a responsibility not only towards our own immediate families, but to the wider society as a whole. We are busy people, but we need to find the time to help. So we need to set aside some time to counsel, to volunteer, to guide. Maybe, if we feel charitable, be a big brother or big sister. We do not have to go far. In my community there are many cases. Just a little advice, soft words spoken, just a reassurance that we are familiar with somebody's struggle and to encourage them not to cave in, not to go down to peer pressure.

I marvel, Madam Speaker, at the lateness and the laxity that I see, the lack of control, young people on the street at all hours of the night. I do not necessarily subscribe to the notion of a curfew, that might create greater problems than it solves. I think there is a need for a re-education for a re-awakening of the responsibilities of parents and a kindling of new respect lines and a need to develop a sense of self-esteem and self-importance in these youngsters by making available to them new avenues and areas in which they can achieve success, whether it be in sports, the field of arts and crafts, or in the field of music.

You know, I like to follow up what is happening in Jamaica because, while they have a host of problems, they have to be commended for trying. They have trade training centres, they have centres where people who dropped out of school, for whatever reason, can go and learn crafts, dressmaking, sewing. We need to get into things like this for some of our students. They should not be written off at Northward. Certainly I do not subscribe to them being written off for some offences. Even when they have committed one or two strikes, we should see if we can salvage them, because after all, we are few in number and we cannot afford to even lose one. It is an uphill struggle and I do not expect, nor am I advocating that the Government do it alone. Certainly I am willing to do my share as I have been doing, volunteering time. But I notice that only the good, or the half-decent gets help. Nobody tries to help the real goner.

Madam Speaker, I was touched a few weeks ago. I had two young men come to my office just from prison. You know, I am not often moved to tears, but it moved me because one of these young men told me that he had been trying to get a job, wanted to do well and nobody was willing to give him a chance because he had been to prison. I could hardly contain myself because here is someone professing that he wanted to do well, did not wish to go back to jail, yet he could not get a job, not even raking leaves in somebody's yard. That is tough, it really is tough.

Sometimes it takes more than a prayer to help people. A prayer is good, but it takes effort. I am still in touch with the young man, he is still searching for a job. Thank heavens he has not re-committed himself and I hope and pray every day that he can remain strong. But that is difficult, and for once in a long time, I felt a sense of helplessness, hopelessness and frustration on my own part because I was not in a position to help. He did not come to me asking for $25. He never asked me for any money, he just asked me to help him find a job—call up somebody, beg for a chance. That is what struck me because he realised that the $25 (that he knew if he had wanted it, I would have willingly given) would not help him in the long term. You know what? My respect for that young man grew and I am hoping and praying that he can continue because I know, I have been trying, and I am still going to try some more. Unfortunately, I am not in a position now where I have too many favours to call in that I could get him a job. But I feel confident that if he stays straight he will get one.

These are the kinds of problems that our families and our young people face. Sometimes the saying is true, "He who feels it, knows it". I would not have realised that if that young man had not come to my office. I would not have realised that the situation was so tragic, was so hopeless that I could feel so helpless. Imagine, me, a big Member of Parliament, and I was struck by the fact that he did not come asking me for $25 or $50, he asked me to help him get a job. He told me he was frustrated. He could not understand how he wanted to do well and no one took him on.

We have much work to do and in this declared International Year of the Family, we should get together, put our shoulders to the wheel and see after it. These are cases that we do not see in the halls of Social Service, that you are not likely to see at the Cayman Islands Marine Institute. These are cases that are, nevertheless, on the street that need our help. So I repeat, I do not see the panacea in having a legislated curfew, or in having a stint at Northward Prison. I see the solution in our society in realising that these are the kinds of problems with which we are confronted and then casting aside differences, be they political, be they economic, be they spiritual, and working seriously towards solving them so that we can salvage our young people.

Drugs have been a scourge in many places for many years. They are now a scourge in Cayman, particularly Crack cocaine. Even in the constituency of Bodden Town we have our problem. Sometimes I wish that it could be easier. Sometimes I wish the peer pressure would not be so great. In a little soccer programme that I have been running, it becomes [more] difficult each year to contain the guys, to keep them in. It seems when they reach a certain age, they feel that they can take off, that they do not need the advice of the older people, they no longer need to listen to the leaders. Now it has reached the point that for every good one [we keep], we lose one. I lament the fact that people with so many raw physical talents can have such a disregard for themselves and what they could achieve, and waste their lives.

As I grew up, particularly when I lived abroad, I always was an astute observer. Certainly, it is compulsory for anyone who studies the discipline of sociology to cultivate a knowledge of the streets and street behaviour. So, while not claiming to be an expert, I am a pretty good judge, and sometimes I have to wonder what level of conspiracy and collusion exists because there is no way that some people can get away with some things were they not protected, as they say in some other circles. It is a tough struggle and it must be a tough struggle for teachers and social workers and parents. Sometimes I ask myself why am I doing this—because I am giving my time and my effort, and I do not have to do this because it seems like I am not getting any place. But I cannot give up—if for the mere fact that I consider it my moral obligation to continue. But the young people need help. They need a lot of help. Thank heavens that many of them are interested in basketball and football. So, as far as our little programme in Bodden Town goes, we are able to continue amid the difficulties.

I look forward to the announced development of improved sports centres and I hope that we soon get the primary school field lighted in Bodden Town. I understand that we are on the verge of getting a new play field in the vicinity of the civic centre where at present there is a lighted hard court where some youngsters play basketball. I believe that one of the easiest avenues for young people to experience a sense of achievement and self-esteem and self-importance, is in the field of sports. If we are organised, we can build upon that.

Soccer has always been a popular sport in Cayman and now basketball is growing by leaps and bounds. Certainly, the Minister who is in charge, is a proclaimed supporter of these kinds of programmes and I look forward to his providing for our youngsters opportunities for their further development. I would recommend that we try to reach a stage where we can have sports at a district level, leading to sports at a national level. I believe that was his announced intention to have a district sports council. Perhaps he himself should consider giving some of his time moving around, getting it organised, spending an evening in Bodden Town. All he would have to do is tell me and I would get the youngsters out and he can give them a pep talk, because I have no doubt that he could be a source of influence. Certainly, I believe that when the youngsters understand that their efforts have the support of the Minister, then that is a good beginning.

I am here to say that I will certainly do my part, if called upon. And I would encourage him to so co-opt my services in any way that they can be used and, certainly, I can put him on notice that from time to time he can expect requests from me as far as facilities and help for sports projects in Bodden Town. So if we all work together, perhaps we can reverse the tide and the trend.

It is necessary to be successful in these ventures because we have to decide whether our prison system is going to be a penal system (meaning, whether its sole function is going to be punitive), or whether it is going to be rehabilitative, or whether it is going to be a combination of both. I think that the Prison system should offer both elements. I firmly believe a part of every sentence, should be punitive—should involve the deprivation, however limited, of certain rights and freedoms from any individual who knowingly breaks the rules of the society. But I also believe, that to be successful, the greater part of that sentence must be rehabilitative. In order to be effective, part of that sentence must offer some opportunity and scope for the person serving the sentence to acquire new skills, to acquire a sense of self-esteem.

The Chinese, I understand, use the euphemism called re-education, where the sanctions include a self criticism of the individual and before that individual is set free, he or she must be prepared to sit down before a panel and criticise himself or herself to the point where the panel is convinced that not only have they learned a lesson, but they understand the workings of the individual so that they are not likely to go out and lightly commit themselves again.

Maybe it is worth our while to try something like this because the rate of recidivism in our prison system is alarming, which means that either the system is too easy or that nothing of value is imparted upon the charges so that when they come out they are no better off than when they went in. Hence, they revert to recidivism.

The Royal Cayman Islands Police is not without its problems, and I hasten to add that there are many good officers and I believe that basically the corps of the force is sound. However, I will not let the opportunity pass without saying that I have always contended that the major problem must lie with the leadership, if for no other reason than that the manager of the store must be in the store. The manager of the store cannot be across town and be an effective manager. He cannot be two blocks away and be an effective manager. Also, the manager of the store must be a leader, to be seen as one who is willing, and able, to lead under all circumstances, be they favourable or unfavourable. One who has the ability to inspire and uplift his charges. I am not sure that situation exists.

I was told that one of the qualities of a good leader has to be superior powers of discernment. A good leader must be able to see not only the obvious, but the not so obvious. I think that the time has come to take a different approach towards policing in the Cayman Islands, and I welcome the move towards the establishment of neighbourhood watches. It is a move that I myself have been greatly involved with in my constituency of Bodden Town. Community policing seems to be a move to add to the effectiveness of the police force.

I make the observation that we need to change in the Cayman Islands too. I think in so doing we can learn many lessons. One of the things that I noticed when I was in Japan in 1984, is that they have a system of policing where in between the precincts they have little mini stations that they call Kabookas, with a sergeant and three constables and a motorbike. Almost inconspicuous. One would be walking up on a block and just off the sidewalk would be this cubicle just large enough to hold a desk and a couple of chairs, equipped with radios and phones to the precinct, and a bike, manned by a sergeant and three constables—often a lady and two men being the complement.

In addition to being a deterrent, these Kabookas are also a source of information for tourists who wish to find their way, or help for the elderly or strangers asking directions. I believe the time has come for us to consider the establishment of something like this in between George Town and West Bay, somewhere along the Seven Mile Beach Road, which is heavily populated, particularly out of one of the shopping centres. Certainly it would be in addition to an exercise in police public relations. It would be a deterrent and it would lend a discouraging presence to anyone who operated with ill intentions along that area, not to mention the fact that anything happening within that two or three mile radius, the police would at least be able to have a quick presence.

I also believe that the leader of our police force must be a younger, more energetic young man, willing to work long and hard, sometimes under adverse circumstances. I take note that we are getting 37 new constables. I would hope that the drug squad, which I believe plays a pivotal role, could receive their complement of officers since it seems to me that they bear the brunt of the work by virtue of the fact that drug control and drug interdiction is one of the major areas that our police are involved in.

There is also the problem that young Caymanians are discouraged from joining the police force. From time to time Members ask questions as to why the complement of Caymanian officers cannot be improved, and we are given all kinds of excuses. Recently I met three young people, two of whom came to my office and told me of problems that they experienced even after passing the exam that the police set—one young lady, and two young men. I am still in communication with one of the young men and he recently brought me two letters—one which he had written to the Commissioner, and the reply he received from the person whom the Commissioner had referred the letter to. I am puzzled and I am not satisfied that the Commissioner and his recruiting staff are forthright with these young Caymanians. It is a brief I hold against them.

I have come to realise that for every bad Caymanian young person, there is at least one good one. I am puzzled and mystified as to why seemingly good Cay-manian young people, with dedication, ability and a desire to go into this type of public service are spurned, discouraged and turned away. It does not enhance my respect for the people who are in charge of our police force.

I would hope that there can be a more genuine spirit of acceptance and forthrightness and candour in dealing with these kinds of applications because something is radically wrong. Why is it that the Fire Service has a waiting list as long as the list for visas at the United States Embassy in Kingston, and we cannot get enough young Caymanians into the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force when they are similar organisations? Is it because the one is headed by a Caymanian and the other is not? They involve the same kind of commitment, same kind of discipline, it is a similarly uniformed organisation, they similarly work on shifts, they similarly face life-threatening circumstances and can be called upon any hour of the night to put their lives on the line. Why is it, when the Fire Service announces they are recruiting, the chief wishes he could take all of the applicants who are suitable, and the Police Force goes begging? Even when people as these young people that I have mentioned go to the precinct in George Town and beg to be accepted.

Madam Speaker, I regard myself as a good judge of character and I cannot believe that young people of this calibre of are turned away and discouraged from joining the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force. It is a sad indictment and sometimes I wish that our Parliament had the power that the United States Congress and Senate have so that we could subpoena those members here and put them before a sub-committee and grill them and get to the bottom of this situation.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, would you take a suspension at this time?

Mr. Roy Boddén: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 10 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.56 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.11 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The First Elected Member for Boddén Town, continuing.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the adjournment, I was embarking on the observation that there is a need for greater encouragement and more candour if we are to build the morale of the Police Force.

Madam Speaker, it is my understanding that within the Force there are elements who are discouraged because officers who have, for some time, passed promotion exams have not been able to realise their aspirations to become promoted.

I do not know what kind of Force we are trying to create, whether it is strictly a Colonial Police Force, or whether we should strive to create an effective Force. To my mind, it is best for us to develop a Force which has a mixture—some officers with experience in other jurisdictions, but which allows and enables Caymanian officers to move forward in greater numbers. I am aware that recently three Caymanian officers were promoted. But what about the others, some of who have passed the exams and have not been promoted who continue to labour under frustrating circumstances?

The oversight must lie with the Commissioner and it is his responsibility to see that the morale is always high and that the people under his charge work under the best circumstances. We hold him to this, because we, in this Honourable House, are always understanding and quick to give him support when he needs support. But certainly, as a Member, I am not convinced that he is creating an organisation that is able and equipped to deal with the problems we have in a changing and growing Cayman.

By inference, much the same could be said about the Prison system where there is a need for a change of direction. I will not rehash the events of the recent past, only to say that the Prison system too is one of those systems which exists, it seems, to frustrate Caymanians from seeking employment in the system. I have, many times, asked questions concerning the complement of officers. I see people (it is no exaggeration) from many parts of the world, and a minority of Caymanians. We are told that Caymanians are not suitable. They are not recruited, and those that are successful in being recruited are soon frustrated and leave. It is as if some conspiracy [exists]. Yet a great number of the prisoners are Caymanian. I do not believe for one moment that Caymanians are incapable of mastering the techniques to be good custodians and good wardens in the Prison. Something is wrong, and that is why I take the opportunity to say that I welcome the Government's announced inspection.

The complaints which come to me as a representative of the people are not complaints that bolster my confidence in the administration of the Prison. During my tenure as Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee I raised many questions about many practices (and I especially note points raised in the last Public Accounts Committee, which was tabled under the Chairmanship of the Third Elected Member for West Bay), concerning some of the practices, particularly as it regards overtime. It is frustrating, annoying and, as a representative, I am most displeased with the fact that Caymanian people are spurned in their application to enter the Prison service while it seems a cadre of outsiders are taken in, to the point where I wonder, sometimes, just how much the rules have been stretched and bent to make them eligible. It is a situation which I, as a legislator, am not prepared to tolerate. I say it is no wonder that the rate of recidivism is as high as it is. It is no wonder that the institution as an agent of rehabilitation has failed dismally and continues to fail. Sometimes I wonder if the roles, in some cases, should not be reversed, and that some of the officers should not be in prison.

Madam Speaker, this situation of the reputed availability of contraband substances, including drugs, at that institution is one which cannot but call into question the role of many people and the effectiveness of the administration. I have people who tell me that it is easier on the inside than it is on the outside—because on the inside they do not have to evade the police! We are talking about big smoke-ups at Christmas! I cannot, as a legislator, stand in these hallowed halls and feel good about that. I have no faith in the administration. It is no wonder that we are frustrated with the high rate of recidivism. I say that our Caymanian people must be given a greater chance to run the system now because the other people have been failing and have failed too long.

I have to say this, many of the people who spent time there come and tell me that it was better when we had an all English staff. I asked them why and they proceeded to elaborate—the whole relationship, the lack of understanding, the laxness, it seems that the system is run much like Boss Hog ran the town in the Dukes of Hazard. I hope that we can get to the bottom of that soon because there is not much time to lose.

Regarding Agriculture, there is an increased awareness in the land and its importance as a source of food in these Islands. While many contend that Agriculture will never rise to be an economically viable product, beginning with the last Government there has been an increased awareness and an encouragement of agriculture. I notice that the trend pretty much continues and I have an observation or two which I would like to offer.

I think one of the problems hampering the development of agriculture, particularly on the scale of small farmers, is that we need to explore to see if we can find greater sources of capital which we can make available to the farmers and the potential farmers at soft interest rates. Agriculture is one of those callings where much is left to the elements of nature and to risks. Sometimes a farmer goes to work and plants a whole field. Drought, or bad weather, abundance of rain or a storm comes and wipes everything out. If the monies were borrowed at commercial interest rates, and the farmer's resources were so exhausted that he did not have a back-up supply, then the farmer is at great risk of losing, not only his investment, but some personal loss as well, if he had his venture tied to his personal property. In cases where these kinds of ventures have been most successful, it has been the practice that certain funds have been available as soft loans.

Everywhere one travels in Cayman, particularly if one moves from George Town heading east, one sees that there is a sense of increasing awareness now, a sense of pride, people planting things—some people just as hobbies, but a greater number as commercial ventures. Certainly in the district of Bodden Town, where I live, there is a substantial development owned by a farmer, and I understand in North Side and East End, which it has always been—Bodden Town, North Side and East End—have always been, traditionally, the breadbasket of Cayman.

It is my understanding from older folks that in days gone by it was even more prolific than it is now, to the point where at one stage, believe it or not, we exported to Jamaica and sometimes to Honduras. So I would encourage these kinds of efforts and would only say to the Minister that he should continue his efforts and his dialogue, keep in close contact and his efforts can best come to fruition by exploring to see if we can find a source of finance that we can let out to farmers at preferential rates of interest so that they can have time and there can be some allowances when they have set backs due to drought, flood or hurricane.

Cattle rearing is, perhaps, in a way of speaking, a little easier than crop husbandry because cattle rearing is fairly cut-and-dried in that one only has to ensure that the breeding stock is kept up to a high calibre, and the risk is not so great for destruction by the elements, as crop husbandry is more exposed and more dependent on the elements of nature which, of course, are beyond our abilities to control. So, in crop husbandry, even more so than in cattle husbandry, there is a need. Perhaps the ideal situation is a situation I see already existing, and has existed for ages, is that most of the ventures are mixed ventures, where the people have cattle and/or goats and some crops. I think this is the ideal.

I also note with interest that many of the farmers are getting into some diversification by virtue of the fact that they are bringing in things like goats. Goats are naturally suited for Cayman, I think by virtue of the fact that they can graze on land which is not much use for anything else. Also not insignificant is the fact that by virtue of our culture and geographical location, we find ourselves in a market where mutton is in high demand, so that with the right mix and the right breed, a farmer who goes into goat rearing can realise a profit or a return on his investment within a short time.

One of the problems, as I understand it, that has always plagued the development of agriculture is the availability of good water. Speaking from experience in the area in which I live, and the farm, constant pumping of the wells, even though they are artesian wells, makes a change in the salinity of the water very precarious. So, a certain amount of trial and error has to be done before one can arrive at the best type of crops. But the produce I see coming to the Farmers Market, certainly the citrus, seems to be doing very well, and seasonal crops, such as pumpkin and watermelon, do extremely well, particularly watermelon, at certain times of the year. It would seem that we are on the right track.

I must make an observation that I believe some attention should be paid to, if the system is to improve significantly, and that is that the Farmers Market, as I understand it, exists as a co-op. The weakness in the system is that the farmers have to wait a little while before they get paid for the produce delivered to the market. I think that farming works best in those situations where immediately when the farmer delivers, he or she is paid, because that allows them to go and reinvest. This is particularly true where someone is just starting up, where they may have to, at the beginning, be much more labour intensive than they would need to be at a latter stage and have to hire outside labour. So we should work towards the kind of system at the Farmers Market, and I am cognisant of the competition that we have from the supermarkets and the other outlets, but we should work towards the situation where even to begin with on a limited basis, the farmer is compensated immediately when the crops are delivered.

In some cases where farmers use items like fertilisers, plant helpers, etcetera, a system is derived where the cost of the produce delivered is offset by the farmers taking fertiliser, etcetera. I do not know how applicable that would be in our situation because I do not know the volume of these kinds of things that are being used. Certainly, anything that is being done to give the farmer a more immediate cash flow upon the delivery of his/her goods to the Market would certainly improve the situation. I must say that I favour the development of the Farmers Market as their co-op. But at the same time I also encourage the flexibility to sell, particularly to the large supermarkets. Not only does this give exposure to what is available locally, but it also gives a sense of achievement and a sense of pride to the person who walks into Foster's or Kirk Supermarket knowing that his goods are being made available there.

Recently I had occasion to hear quite a few visitors express pleasant surprise at the fact that there are available in the Cayman Islands crops that are locally grown, particularly the fact that the crops are fresh. For the most part the quality can be guaranteed. I think this is something to encourage.

I want to throw something out to—

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30
Standing Order 10(2)

The Speaker: Honourable Member, please excuse me, it is now 4.30. Will you be finished shortly, or ...

Mr. Roy Bodden: No, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: May we ask for the adjournment at this time, please? The Honourable Minister of Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until 10 o'clock Thursday morning the 3rd of March.

AT 4.34 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 3 MARCH 1994.

EDITED
THURSDAY
3 MARCH 1994
10.00 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Temporary First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. James M. Ryan: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

Before commencement of the business for this morning, I would like to draw Members' attention to the fact that the quorum of the House is eight Members. I would ask Members if they would ensure, before going out of the Chamber, that there are eight Members remaining. I understand that there may be certain circumstances that require Members to go out either on business or other matters, but the business of the House must go on. If the Serjeant-at-Arms goes around trying to make up a quorum he is doing so on the instruction of the Chair or the Clerk to make sure that there is always a quorum in the House. Thank you very much.

We will now proceed to Questions to Honourable

Members. Question No. 10, is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 10

No: 10: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works when the trench work done by Petroservicios Limited in Bodden Town be brought up to Public Works Department's standards.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Water Authority trenches in Bodden Town will be brought up to the standard specified by the Public Works Department by 15 April 1994.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say by whom this work will be done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, this will be done by Petroservicios and whomever they choose to subcontract. However it will be monitored and it has to be up to the standard of the Public Works Department.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 11, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 11

No. 11: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member what is the limit on the number of taxis allowed by the Government to be in operation in these Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The agreed limit by Government on the number of taxis allowed to be in operation in these Islands is 250.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say what is the number of taxis operating currently?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is not possible to say the actual number of taxis operating because situations arise from time to time where the number of licences issued do not equate the number of taxis actually operating.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, if the Honourable Member can answer, what is the control system to ensure that the number of licences do not exceed a certain limit; and what controls are in place to ensure that licences are suspended for taxis that are off the road for significant periods of time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The licensing of taxis is controlled by the Police Department. We understand there are instances where valid licences are in effect, but for one reason or another holders of these licences are not necessarily operating. A licence, of course, would expire in due course and it would have to be renewed. This is why I said earlier that the number of licences do not equate with the number of taxi operators operating.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, can the Honourable Member say how the Government arrived at this figure of 250 as the limit?

The Speaker: Honourable Temporary First Official Member, I think you answered that previously.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, Madam Speaker, I thought I did.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It is a follow up to the last question asked. I think the Member asked "how." I would like to ask the Honourable Member if he could say what is the rationale for arriving at 250 taxis as being the ideal number for the Island. How do the police arrive at that?

The Speaker: Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The rationale for arriving at it is difficult to explain. The number has been 250. I do not know the circumstances surrounding the rationale. If the Honourable Member wishes, I could enquire into it.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would appreciate that. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Member could say if there have been any changes in policy in regard to renewal of taxi licences since January 1994?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

No, I am not in a position to say if there are any changes in policy.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say if it is a fact that a large number of taxi operators in the Cayman Islands are non-Caymanian, or is that purely a question of propaganda and opinion?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I do not have the information by nationality, so I am not in a position to say whether this is correct or not.

If I could come back to the earlier question that the Member asked in regard to the rationale: It is my understanding that the new Traffic Law, which actually has not come into effect yet, will give the figure. However, as Honourable Members know, that has not yet been brought into operation.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 12, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 12

No. 12: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member how the new visitors' extension policy at the Immigration Department differs from the policy it replaced?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The new guidelines for visitors' extensions which were introduced at the beginning of the year, differ to the following extent: 1) Visitors applying for an extension of stay must now complete a form and pay a $10 administrative fee; 2) the applicant must appear personally, unless incapacitated and, therefore, with good cause is unable to appear; and 3) an extension, if approved, has to be authorised by an officer of or above the rank of Assistant Chief Immigration Officer, or the Chief Immigration Officer if the visitor does not attend personally.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Although the Honourable Member did not mention this in his answer, I wonder if he could say whether the time frame for extensions has been varied?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I do not know if it is correct to say that the time frame has been varied. What has been done is that perhaps the policy is being enforced a little more rigidly now. If a visitor arrives on an excursion ticket and the limit is for "X" numbers of days, that time is being adhered to more carefully than perhaps in the past.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Honourable Member state what officer in the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman would be authorised, as there is no one of that rank assigned in Cayman Brac?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Honourable Member is certainly on the ball this morning. That is, indeed, a very good question. The Island of Cayman Brac does not have an Assistant Chief Immigration Officer. It is my understanding that it has been put into effect there and I would expect that either the District Commissioner, who would be representing the Chief Immigration Officer, would have to deal with it, or else by telephone from Grand Cayman.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Member could say who is authorised to grant extensions if these people appear in person?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I think that answer was given in number 3.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Number 3 says, if they are not able to attend personally.

The Speaker: It is the Chief Immigration Officer who would give that if the visitor does not attend personally.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: But, I am asking, if the visitor attends personally, who grants the extension?

The Speaker: Well I think that is clear too. It would either be the Assistant Chief Immigration Officer, an officer above that rank and if that officer is absent I would assume it would be the Chief Immigration Officer. I think that would be the understanding.

If the Honourable Temporary First Official Member wishes to clarify it further, please do so.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Just to clarify, if someone goes in for an extension it has to be dealt with by an officer at the level of Assistant Chief Immigration Officer or above. So no one below the level of Chief Immigration Officer would authorise an extension.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Are there any nationalities, persons, or categories exempt from this extension policy? If so what are they?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. To my knowledge no nationality or persons are exempt from this.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In the case of a Caymanian husband whose wife is not a Caymanian and where his wife would need to get the normal immigration extension—six months, three months as the case may be—would that spouse also have to fill out a form and pay the $10 fee, as in the ordinary case of affairs? If so, is that not a bit unreasonable? Would the Honourable Member give an undertaking to look at that if that is the case?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Perhaps there may be cases of this where a spouse is led to believe that he or she would have to do this. In fact, I might say that a case was referred to me and I passed it directly to the Chief Immigration Officer. The spouse did not in fact have to go through that procedure as if the spouse had no Caymanian connection. It was just that in that particular case the person thought so.

To answer the question, there are exceptions to any rule or guideline.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Bearing in mind the answers to the various supplementaries that have been asked, I wonder if the Honourable Member is in a position to say what the case would be for someone who is here on a work permit having had a child born in the Cayman Islands. Would the Immigration Department have problems with extensions in regard to that infant?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I would prefer not to attempt to answer that question. If the Member wishes I will supply the answer in writing.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Madam Speaker. I would be very happy, because I have that in front of me now and I do not know how to deal with it.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 13, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Before the Member rises to ask the question, it will be noted that this is on the Order Paper directed to the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation. The Honourable Minister has just taken over the Ministry and the subsequent holder (the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture) will answer the question.

QUESTION NO. 13

No. 13: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture what is the present organisational structure of the Medical and Health Services Department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The present organisational structure of the Health Services Department is as follows: The Director of Health Services is the Officer responsible for coordinating and directing the department's activities. This officer reports directly to the Permanent Secretary for Health. There are five senior officers who have responsibilities for ancillary and support services, nursing services, physician services, financial services and public health services.

In addition, there is a Medical Officer in charge of the Faith Hospital who reports to the Director of Health Services via the Medical Director.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Director of Health Services equate to Chief Medical Officer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: No, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Minister then explain who fits the position of Director of Health Services? Is it a manager, a person who is not a doctor? Is it a doctor? What is the present situation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Communication Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, as everyone knows, Mr. Mervyn Conolly is the Director of the Health Services Department.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I do not know if everyone knew who the Director of the Health Services was, but it has been answered.

I would like, then, to ask whether the ancillary and support services, nursing services, physician services, financial services and so on, are headed by managers, non-doctors or non-medical people. What is the situation there?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, to answer the question, Mr. Mervyn Conolly is the Director of the Health Services. We all know that he is not a doctor. Mrs. Eloise Reid is the Chief Nursing Officer responsible for nursing services. It is very obvious what she does. Dr. Shakar is the Medical Director responsible for physician services and it should also be obvious to the Member what he does and who he is. Dr. Kumar is the Medical Officer for Health responsible for the public health services and, likewise, the Member should understand that he is a doctor. And the financial services are under the responsibility of a chartered public accountant.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Minister say if there is a chief doctor among the doctors, as that whole explanation of the structure is absolutely confusing as far as I am concerned. Could he say if there is a chief doctor among the doctors there, or does the Director of Health Services—who is not a doctor—also play the role of a doctor?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I am sorry if the Member cannot understand, but that is not my fault.

I have said already that the Medical Director is Dr. Shakar responsible for physician services. I do not know what else he wants, but that is all I can tell him.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 14, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 14 (Deferred)

No. 14: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation how many full-time and part-time doctors are employed at the George Town and Cayman Brac Hospitals giving a breakdown by specialisation, nationality and length of service?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, we are still waiting on that answer. It is quite a lengthy document, but the Member could ask the following question.

The Speaker: We will proceed to the following question, No. 15, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 15

No. 15: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation will the Honourable Minister say when a decision will be made to select a Hospital in Florida to offer tertiary health care to which persons will be referred by the Cayman Islands Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The Health Services Departmental Tendering Committee has submitted a report and recommendations to the Central Tenders Committee for the provision of overseas medical services. The Central Tenders Committee is scheduled to meet on Friday, 11th March, 1994, to discuss the recommendations.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Minister say if there is any such facility in Florida which now serves tertiary service as offered by the Cleveland Clinic since the contract with them has been broken or severed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, my understanding is that the Cleveland Clinic is continuing to service the Cayman Islands in the capacity it has been doing for several years until a decision is made by the Central Tenders Committee.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, would the Honourable Minister say that Government has not advised the Cleveland Clinic that the contract between them for that service has ended?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, it is quite obvious that Government cannot take that step until the Central Tenders Committee has finished its process. I think the House understands the procedure of the Central Tenders Committee and its purpose.

QUESTION NO. 14 DEFERRED

The Speaker: It appears that the answer to question No. 14 has not yet arrived. I would ask that it be put down on tomorrow's Order Paper. Question No. 14 will therefore be answered at the Sitting tomorrow.

That concludes Question Time for this morning. We proceed to Government Business. I would ask for the suspension of Standing Order 14(2) since today is Private Members' Motion day, and this will be moved by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14(2)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, it is the recommendation of the Business Committee that in accordance with the provision of Standing Order 83, I move the suspension of Standing Order 14(2) to enable Government Business to take precedence over Other Business until the conclusion of the debate on the Throne Speech.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 14(2) be suspended in order that the House may proceed with the continuation of the Debate on the Throne Speech by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 14(2) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE GOVERNMENT BUSINESS TO TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER OTHER BUSINESS UNTIL THE CONCLUSION OF THE DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH.

The Speaker: The Standing Order is accordingly suspended and there is the continuation of the Debate. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town continuing.

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HER MAJESTY QUEEN ELIZABETH II ON SATURDAY, 26 FEBRUARY 1994

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

At the adjournment yesterday, I was on the verge of offering some comments on the Public Works Department.

The Public Works Department continues to play a pivotal importance in the maintenance and development of Government's physical infrastructure in these Islands and, therefore, it is necessary for it to be able to function at the highest possible level of efficiency. This is a great challenge. From time to time, the Public Works Department is singled out for some very hard doses of opprobrium and disgust. I believe that one of the reasons why the public perception is sometimes that the Public Works Department could do better is the fact that there seems to be a great deal of dissatisfaction with the performance in some areas.

Some months ago, I noticed that a young Caymanian architect working with the Public Works Department had resigned from the Government Service and went into private practice. It is difficult in many cases to retain young people, but it is even more difficult in those cases where young people with ability and qualifications feel frustrated because they think they should be upwardly mobile.

While we have to depend upon foreign expertise in many areas, it is incumbent upon us to be able to strike so delicate a balance when we have qualified Caymanians returning who prove themselves in their respective posts. We must operate under the understanding that if anyone is going to be displaced it will have to be the foreign national. And we would hope that that can be done with the least possible disruption or bad blood. But, certainly, that is the pretext under which foreign nationals in any country must operate because the obligation of a country has, firstly, to be to its citizens.

One of the complaints that I have heard is that there are some people at the Public Works Department who are standing in the way of qualified Caymanians to the point that some of these people have been frustrated and have left the service. There are others who have not yet left. I do not necessarily subscribe to the notion that once a person is qualified he has to remain in a position for 30 years before he can get the necessary experience to move on. I mean, that seems to be unfair. I am wondering if in certain departments of Government the deck is not stacked to the disfavour of Caymanians.

While I am speaking about the Public Works Department in this instance, I do not think that the situation is unique to them. Perhaps what the Government needs to do is to take a closer examination to ensure that where qualified and capable Caymanians are concerned they are not stymied because someone is interested in maintaining the status quo—especially when that status quo means keeping a foreign national who has been on contract for several years.

It is a situation which needs addressing. Otherwise we are forever going to have to play catch-up and we are constantly going to be faced with the problem dealing with young, qualified, Caymanians who are frustrated because they thought that they should have been given greater opportunities to develop their skills and for upward mobility in the Government service. Certainly, in the Public Works Department there is a particular vulnerability in this area.

The Department of Vehicle Services offers a good service. But I have received some complaints, particularly from the police officers that man the precinct in my constituency regarding the standard of service for their vehicles. Quite often these vehicles have to be off the road. It is not solely the fault of the Department of Vehicles. Perhaps the major fault is that the vehicles are old. The older the vehicle gets, quite obviously, the more maintenance it is likely to need.

There was a case recently where a young officer from the precinct of Bodden Town went to pick up a vehicle. He got into some trouble because the Director of the Department reported to his boss that he had taken the vehicle without permission. What is also unfortunate about it is that the officer, upon retrieving the vehicle, was driving back to his station in Bodden Town.

I think that there is a need for improvement in the system of communication, as well as a need for improvement in the service of this Department. The incident was entirely unnecessary, and the young officer, whom I know very well—he is diligent, conscientious and a Caymanian I might add—could have gotten into serious trouble. It could have cost him his police career. The upshot of all of that was that the vehicle eventually burnt up in front of the Police Station.

This, Madam Speaker, underscores the need for improvement in the services that are being rendered. What would have happened if the vehicle had burnt up when the officer was escorting someone to prison, or to court, or to the Police Station to be charged, and the person in his possession got injured or died as a result? So, there is a need for improvement in this area. And I might say that I will be watching, and I shall be in touch with the people to see that the system improves, particularly the public relations between the police who are patrons and customers of the Department of Vehicles.

I do not know of an easier way to express this, Madam Speaker, but I am alarmed at what is an apparent outgrowth of prejudice in this country. I noted with interest that at our recent Parliamentary Prayer Breakfast the Reverend Christopher Bailey went into some detail speaking about prejudice in its myriad forms. I am led to believe that this upsurge of prejudice may have its roots in a misguided sense of nationalism. But I want to say that there is a difference between nationalism and national pride—indeed, Madam Speaker, a significant difference.

I argue that nationalism, as it was known in the 19th century, and as it is known even in the early 20th Century, is fast becoming an irrelevant, if not an absurd notion, because the world is shrinking. I am sure that Marshall McLuhan, who termed the world a "global village" some decades ago, had understood how communication and travel would shrink the world he would have realised how prophetic he was. So physical borders, nationalities, colour, ethnic origins . . . all of these are becoming less relevant and less important than the notion of banding together to survive; not only to survive, but to make the best of the opportunities that we have.

That is why, for all its faults I admire the great United States of America. Their motto is "E Pluribus Unum." And their great symbol, the Statue of Liberty says, "Give me your tired, your poor, Your huddled masses, . . ." and they took them in, and they still continue to take them in. Sometimes I have reservations because I believe they, too, show prejudice in some instances. However, we in the Cayman Islands have to be very careful how we express this. It is a good starting point to mention this in Parliament to the Legislators who make policies and take these kinds of important decisions.

We in the Cayman Islands were not always this fortunate. Madam Speaker, I and many others here had to go abroad for our education because at the time when we were ready, Cayman had no such facilities. As I move about in my constituency of Bodden Town, I hear reports. And I do not know if it is more real than perceived, but I am concerned.

Madam Speaker, I was talking to a pastor a few days ago and he told me about an incident that greatly disturbed me. He had posted the banns of a couple—a Caymanian and a non-Caymanian—on his church door. He received a call from the Immigration Office saying that he was not to proceed with the wedding ceremony because they thought it was a marriage of convenience. However, the pastor informed me that he had had two counselling sessions with the couple and he was satisfied that they were aware of their responsibilities and commitment.

On the morning of the wedding, a car pulled up into the rectory of the Church, with three Immigration Officers. The pastor asked, "Can I help you?" to which they replied, "Yes. We understand that a marriage is supposed to take place and we believe it to be a marriage of convenience and we have come to stop it."

Madam Speaker, are we in Nazi Germany? Are we in totalitarian Russia? Are we in communist China? Or, are we in the Cayman Islands—supposedly a free and democratic society? I am alarmed, Madam Speaker! I wonder what those officers would have done if they had proceeded up the aisle of the Church. Would they have physically accosted those people? I think that we have taken leave of our senses, if this is what we are going to do. Have we come to this? Even in South Africa people are breaking down these barriers.

You know what, Madam Speaker, if we do not pull up the reins we are going to get into trouble. We are not even a sovereign nation. We are going to get embarrassed and isolated because that kind of incident is spreading. Madam Speaker, it has already gone to Jamaica.

The onus is upon us as Legislators. It is all well and good to promote national pride. I have been doing that, and there have been many others in here doing that—respect and love for country. But we also have to promote respect and love for other people. Are we who claim to be good Christian Caymanians in a good Christian society promoting racism? Let me ask who in Cayman, that is Caymanian, is racially pure? Let me see him or her.

I am frightened because these things are like Frankenstein—once they are created they eat up their creators. If we want a divisive society, we can continue to promote that kind of prejudice—be it based on colour, be it based on ethnic origin, or be it based on religion. We will soon not have any society to boast about.

Madam Speaker, yesterday during their contribution, I heard one Member say that Jamaica would be glad to take prisoners from Cayman—we would pay them and they need the money. Madam Speaker, that is a rather reckless statement. I would not encourage people to say that because Jamaica has its own problems. We cannot transport prisoners like that. I am left to wonder if it is not these kinds of statements that make us believe that we are superior and that others are inferior.

We have Caymanian prisoners who have committed offences in Cayman and we have to deal with them here; and we should deal with them. If we think that the Jamaican Government would not be insulted . . . let them get wind of that kind of statement.

I think that we, in this country, have much work to do, Madam Speaker. I would like to see us develop a sense of national pride and respect for one another. But be careful how we cultivate sentiments of nationalism. It was those kinds of sentiments that created Nazi Germany and eventually brought it to its knees. It was those kinds of sentiments that created Imperial Japan and brought it to its knees, and we do not want any more than to witness what is happening in the former Yugoslavia now as a result of prejudice grown out of hand.

Madam Speaker, in the 6th Century B.C. Confucius, who was a private teacher, had as his charge young men and grown persons who were interested in three things: right conduct, good government, and learning. It so happened that in the state where they were, there was a revolution. So it was necessary for Confucius and his disciples to flee from that state and go to another. While they were travelling up the Thai Mountain, they met a woman who was weeping. Confucius asked her, "Lady, why are you weeping?"

She answered, "Oh, Confucius, I am weeping because there is a man-eating tiger in this place. First he ate my husband, then he ate my father, and now my son."

So Confucius asked the woman, "Well, if this is such a dangerous place and you have to confront a man-eating tiger, why do you not leave from here?"

Her answer was, "Here there is good government, I do not want to leave."

One of Confucius' disciples asked him to define good government, and he said; "Good government obtains when those who are near are made happy, and those who are far off are attracted. Three elements make up good government. Firstly, people should be fed; secondly, they should have confidence in their leaders; and thirdly, they should have weapons." And, he said, that of these three, one must last sacrifice the confidence in the leadership. Madam Speaker, leadership that is confident does not have to fear because they are doing what is right.

I listened yesterday to what was said prior to the election. I have always viewed my role as a representative of my constituency and my country. And in carrying out that role I try to be pragmatic, reasonable, and fair. But my pragmatism has its limits and I refuse to sacrifice my principles to obtain a result. I will never do that! And so my duty is to put forward a position that is clear in my conscience, that is fair to my people; and I have no apologies to anyone who does not like that. As far as being un-trustworthy is concerned, my constituents will be the ultimate judges.

Certainly, on the last two occasions there were no signs of anything of that nature. Many of them called me last evening because they were concerned. But I have a standard to maintain and a code by which I live, and I will not easily depart from them, Madam Speaker, if for no other reason than I do not want to make your job any tougher. I only want to say that if there is any Member, loud-mouthed or otherwise, who knows of any reason why I should not sit in this Assembly let him come forward and say it. Failing that, let him stick to the rules of the Westminster system of debate.

I shall continue to do my job in the best light as I see it, being a good representative for the people of Bodden Town, and I will be the first to support the Government when their policies warrant my support. But, Madam Speaker, the converse is also true: I will be the first to speak out against any policy that I think is against conscience, country and constituency—the three C's.

I wish that I were in the position to help some people benefit, particularly now that we are called Ministers. I think that there is a need to brush ourselves up on the protocols of that office and to always be careful, polite and respectful of other people; to refrain from using the privileges in parliament to destroy people, particularly those who do not have access to the same avenue to defend themselves.

So, Madam Speaker, I believe that I have laid my position clearly on the table. I hope with God's help to continue to be a good representative and to be a constructive Member of Parliament. I take pride in my association with certain Members, close and lasting association. What makes this Member so different from many others is that I cherish friendship, and political expediency or anything else will not let me sever lasting friendships as it will not let me abnegate nor take leave of my conscience.

I thank you, Madam Speaker.

[3 minute 20 second pause]

The Speaker: Honourable Members, debate will continue on the Throne Speech delivered by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II. (Pause)

If no one wishes to continue the debate, I would ask the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works if he would like to move the Motion that Her Majesty the Queen's speech be taken as read, and that will conclude the debate.

MOTION THAT HER MAJESTY'S SPEECH BE TAKEN AS READ, AND THAT THE DEBATE BE BROUGHT TO AN END

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I move that Her Majesty's speech be taken as read, and that the debate be brought to an end. I would further add that the reply I presented on the day of Her Majesty's visit form a part of the minutes of this House of Assembly.

“Your Majesty,

“The people of the Cayman Islands are most grateful to you for including us on this tour of the Caribbean.

“We reaffirm our loyalty to the United Kingdom and your Government which was borne out by the election in November, 1992. Once again we reiterate our satisfaction with being your Crown Colony. Under this status of Government we have enjoyed peace and the people of these Islands have prospered. Such prosperity we attribute to your able reign and guidance as our Queen.

“Although many miles separate us we pray to God that Your Majesty will sometime in the future bestow upon us the privilege of another visit.

“It is our hope that the good Lord will continue to bless, guide, guard and protect you, as you continue to perform the duties which you have so ably carried out during the 42 years of your reign.

“We, your people, the people of the Cayman Islands, solemnly pray that your visit to these Islands will be enjoyable, that your tour will be a rewarding one and that the guiding hand of the good Lord will return you safely to your homeland.

“Your Majesty, the people of the Cayman Islands would be most honoured if you would accept this gift, a sculpture of the symbol of our national heritage, carved from indigenous Caymanite Stone, as a token of our respect, appreciation and love for you.

“May God Bless you and the Royal Family.”

The Speaker: The question is that the speech delivered by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, be taken as read and in view of the reluctance of other Members to continue that the debate be brought to a conclusion.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HER MAJESTY, QUEEN ELIZABETH II, ON SATURDAY, 26TH FEBRUARY, 1994, TAKEN AS READ; AND FURTHER, THAT THE REPLY BY THE HONOURABLE MINISTER FOR AGRICULTURE TO HER MAJESTY AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE INVESTITURE BE INCLUDED IN THE RECORDS OF THE HOUSE.

The Speaker: The House will accordingly be suspended for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.11 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.50 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Proceedings are resumed. Bills, First Reading.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

FIRST READING

THE PARLIAMENTARY PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

Clerk: The Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

SECOND READING

THE PARLIAMENTARY PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

Clerk: The Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I move the Second Reading of a bill entitled, A Bill for a Law to Amend the Parliamentary Pensions Law, 1994.

The Object of the Bill is to amend the Parliamentary Pensions Law, 1984, to authorise the payment of a pension under that Law to former Elected Members of the Legislative Assembly who served as members for any period between the 1st October 1959, and the 22nd August 1972.

The existing Law provides for the payment of pensions to Elected Members who served for any length of time on or before the 1st October 1959. This Bill would give the same entitlement to Elected Members who served between the 1st October 1959, and the 22nd August 1972.

The amount and entitlement to pensions, widow's pensions and children's pensions payable to and in respect of the services of former Elected Members affected by this Bill will be the same as that of former Elected Members who served on or before the 1st October 1959.

Madam Speaker, I have also requested the legal draftsman to look carefully as to whether the definition of a “Member” under this Law should not also be amended, and I am sure I will hear from him this afternoon.

The proposal here endeavours to bring some amount of equity where in 1985, I think it was, Government amended the Parliamentary Pensions Law to give a flat pension to Justices of the Peace and Vestrymen who served prior to October 1959, a sum of about $4,800. Some of these people who served may not have served for more than a year; some may have served for longer periods.

When we looked at the number of people who served between 1959 and 1972, we found that there were four. I am not going to name them today, but I indicate the number to give an assurance to all Members of the Legislative Assembly that the approval of this amendment will not be a significant drain on the Treasury of this country. I believe that those people who served as Elected and Nominated Members should be treated in the same way as we treated the Vestrymen and the Justices of the Peace in the 1985 amendment.

I believe that some of the former Members who served this Legislature between 1959 and 1972 made a significant contribution to these Islands. It was in that period of time that the Companies Law was passed in this House. It was in that same period of time that the banking legislation was passed in this House. Among other things, it was in that period of time that Cable and Wireless came to this country and established the service that we have today, which is second to none. It was in that period of time that the Caribbean Utilities Company Limited came to this country and took over the electricity production. And, God knows that without those two utilities Cayman would not be where it is today.

So these Honourable Members who served between 1959 and 1972, in all fairness to them and to their wives, should be accorded the same generosity as that when we amended the 1984 Pensions Law in 1985, to accord a flat pension for Justices of the Peace and Vestrymen.

Madam Speaker, I will take my flak if I have to take it, but I believe that what we are doing today is morally right and I recommend this amendment to Members of the House. I indicated to them that the legal draftsman will tell us before we get to Committee stage whether we need an amendment to the definition of "Member," which is an Elected Member of this Legislative Assembly. So, there may be a need to amend that as well.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Second Reading. The Motion is open for debate.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Contrary to what the Honourable Minister might be thinking precisely at this moment, I do not rise to give him any flak. I simply wish to make a comment or two with regard to this Bill.

The most important thing that I think we need to consider at Committee stage or wherever it is appropriate is whether these four individuals and their spouses, who would be immediately affected on the passage of this Bill, should be receiving the pension according to the way other Legislators have been, or will be receiving in the future. Should they be receiving this pension retroactively? I am not necessarily here to say how it should be done, but I think we need to give consideration to that aspect before the final passage of this Bill.

I would also like to just say that it seems to me that it is only fair, given the circumstances that surround these four individuals, that they too should be included in whatever pensions are realised by past Legislators. So, without dragging on, I simply wished to voice my support for this Bill.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I rise to give my full support to a Bill for a Law to amend the Parliamentary Pensions Law, 1984.

When I was elected to this honourable House, I came in at a very low salary with no pension provision envisaged. We did it to dedicate our services to the country. As the Honourable Mover has said, the period that we are talking about today, 1959 to 1972, was a very historical period. Much happened. We came under the 1972 Constitution, which we have just recently found so good and which simply needed to be upgraded and amended in 1994. That speaks very highly of the calibre of representative that we had at that stage.

As the Honourable Mover has said, I strongly support that Nominated Members were full Members of this House and served without remuneration, or for a very small sum, without figuring that they would every get any type of pension. However, since the country has developed at such a rapid pace and became financially able in 1984 to vote a Parliamentary Pension and a different wage structure for its Legislators, I feel that those who helped to lay the foundation are justly entitled to benefit from this pension as well.

So, with these few words, Madam Speaker, I give this Bill my full support and look forward that the Nominated Members' amendment will be included.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, I will ask the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning if he would like to reply.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, my reply would only be my gracious thanks to Honourable Members for their support.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Second Reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Second Reading.

AGREED: THE PARLIAMENTARY PENSIONS

(AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: The House will now go into Committee to consider the Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE—12.04 PMCOMMITTEE ON BILL

The Chairman: Please be seated.

The House is in Committee. The Clerk will read the clauses of the Bill.

THE PARLIAMENTARY PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

Clerk: Clause 1—Short title.
Clause 2—Amendment to the Parliamentary Pensions Law, 1994.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 1 and 2 do stand part of the Bill.

Honourable Second Official Member, do you wish to answer the question that was brought up by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Chairman. I had it brought to my attention that Members would like to include in this amendment not just Elected Members of the Assembly, but also Nominated Members. I do not believe that the amendment as presently drafted would so include Nominated Members. I think it will require further amendment.

I spoke with the legal draftsman when we took the break earlier this morning, and I have explained to him what I think needs to be done. But I think that in order to achieve that amendment we shall need to consider this, probably after lunch.

The Chairman: Accordingly, you would propose that after lunch a further amendment would be brought to the House?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, I would, Madam Chairman.

The Chairman: Well, accordingly, proceedings in Committee will resume after lunch. When we resume the House will suspend proceedings at that time.

The Chairman: Proceedings are suspended until 1:15 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.06 PMPROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 1.21 PM

The Speaker: The House will go into Committee to consider the Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE—1.21 PM

The Chairman: Please be seated.

The House is in Committee. The Clauses to the Bill were already called and the Second Official Member will now proceed.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Chairman.

During the time when the House was suspended I hoped we would have managed to deal with the amendment and, perhaps, if I could propose an amendment to...

The Chairman: Excuse me, have copies been circulated?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: No, they have not, Madam Chairman. If we are to deal with it in Committee now, then I would have to read out the proposed amendments. Some are merely consequential renumbering, but there is one substantial amendment in Clause 2.

There would be an amendment...

The Chairman: Honourable Official Member, I think it would be better if we waited for a second or two to get copies available, as it would be impossible for me to call them out. I have nothing in front of me. Neither does the Clerk.

Would you ask the Serjeant-at-Arms if he would have copies quickly made for everybody please?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: That would be fine, Madam Chairman.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Chairman.

The Chairman: Yes, Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I would suggest, since there is no great rush to do this, that we take it tomorrow morning and that would give enough time for all the Members to see this amendment. I am a little leery to put it through in this way.

The Chairman: If that is the motion?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: That is the motion, Madam Chairman.

The Chairman: I would put the motion, therefore, that proceedings in Committee on a Bill entitled the Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be deferred until tomorrow, when copies have been made available to Members.

I shall put that question.

AGREED: COMMITTEE STAGE ON THE PARLIAM-ENTARY PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994,
DEFERRED UNTIL FRIDAY, 4 MARCH 1994.

The Chairman: That is approved, and the House will resume. When the House resumes, Honourable Minister, you would then explain what proceedings have taken place and what progress has been made in the Committee.

HOUSE RESUMED AT 1:25 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Honourable Minister for Tourism, will you report progress in Committee?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I am pleased to report that the Second Official Member, the Honourable Attorney General, and the legal draftsman have provided for us an amendment to the Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Bill 1994, presently before the House which will give and ensure that pension benefits would accrue to Nominated Members as well as Elected Members. In due regard to all Members we believe that it is fair and proper that the amendment be distributed to all Honourable Members this evening, and that it be considered tomorrow morning. I think that should be adequate time for all Members to see exactly what the proposed amendment seeks to accomplish.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister.

With that, proceedings in the House are concluded for today. I will now ask for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, may I also say my grateful thanks to the legal draftsman and the Honourable Second Official Member, the Attorney General, for their professional and expeditious treatment of our request before I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning?

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until 10 o'clock Friday morning the 4th of March.

AT 1.27 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 4 MARCH 1994.

EDITED
FRIDAY
4 MARCH, 1994
10.05 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Third Elected Member for George Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

Presentation of Papers and Reports: Housing Development Corporation Report for the year ended 30th June 1993. The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

HOUSING DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION REPORT FOR THE YEAR ENDED 30TH JUNE, 1993

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House the Housing Development Corporation Report for the year ending 30th June 1993, to which I will make a further statement later on during the course of this Meeting.

The Speaker: So ordered.

We continue with Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 16, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MINISTERS/MEMBERS

QUESTION NO. 16

No. 16: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member what sanction exists for dealing with prisoners who breach the regulations while at Northward Prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James. M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Sanctions for dealing with prisoners who breach the regulations while at Northward Prison are found in Regulation 39(1)(a) through (h) of the Prison Rules, 1981.

“39. (1) Where an offence against discipline has been proved, any one or more of the following disciplinary awards may be made by an officer nominated by the Director --

- (a) caution;
- (b) forfeiture of any privilege for a period not exceeding twenty-eight days;
- (c) exclusion from associated work for a period not exceeding fourteen days;
- (d) stoppage of earnings for a period not exceeding twenty-eight days;
- (e) cellular confinement for a period not exceeding three days, subject to the approval of the CMO;
- (f) forfeiture of remission, or in the case of a prisoner not then sentenced, of prospective remission, for a period not exceeding twenty-eight days;
- (g) forfeiture for any period, in the case of a prisoner entitled thereto under the Law or these Rules, of --
 - (i) the right to be supplied with meals from outside prison; and
 - (ii) the right to have articles in his possession;
 - (iii) in addition to any of the above awards, payment by the prisoner towards the repair or replacement of anything he has damaged or destroyed.”

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Honourable Member say if any of the listed sanctions were applied against the two prisoners who barricaded themselves at Northward Prison in the recent incident there?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James. M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The matter has been turned over to the Police and they are investigating the matter. I am not in a position to say whether any prison sanctions are being used in this instance.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Member then say, in light of his reply, whether there is a possibility that these two prisoners have not had any sanctions applied against them pending the completion of the Police investigation?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I think that he has already answered that—there have been none. And this would be consequent on the result of the investigation by the Police.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I understood that he did not necessarily know if there were any sanctions applied against them.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James. M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As I said earlier, I am not in a position to say if any of these sanctions were, in fact, applied or not.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to ask the Honourable Member who decides what level of sanction is to be applied in a particular occasion.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I think the answer for that is in the attachment, which says it may be made by an officer nominated by the Director.

If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 17, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 17

NO. 17: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member what course of action is taken when prison authorities become aware of agitation, unrest, or conspiracy among the prison population.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James. M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The course of action taken when prison authorities become aware of agitation, unrest, or conspiracy among the prison population is to get the facts, monitor and deal with the situation in accordance with emergency procedures, which are now being upgraded and re-written.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say if this procedure was followed during the recent incident when the two prisoners barricaded themselves in their cells?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James. M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, Madam Speaker, it is my understanding that this course of action was followed, as I mentioned in the substantive answer. But the emergency procedures are now being upgraded and re-written, and will be substantially improved over what the emergency procedures were at the time of the incident.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say at what point under these circumstances the prison authorities would alert the person responsible for the Prison, namely, that person who holds responsibility for Internal and External Affairs?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James. M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I think if I could refer to them as the former emergency procedures . . . they were a bit unclear and that is why they are now being upgraded. I have been informed that the draft is about ready and I am accordingly not able to say at what point, under the old regulations, the Member responsible for the Prison should have been informed.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is the Honourable Member saying that the revision or the upgrading of these protocols or procedures emanated from the recent tragic incident at Northward Prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member Responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James. M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I believe it is true to say in part that that is the case. When an incident happens it is necessary to take a look at procedures in place and improve on them if possible. I think that we should bear in mind that the officer in charge of the Prison had just recently taken over and I think there were two factors there to be considered.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 18, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 18

No. 18: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member what conditions necessitate requests for police assistance in dealing with situations at Northward Prison.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James. M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Prison Director may request police assistance as he sees fit, and to be deployed as he sees fit. If the Director cannot cope with a riotous situation, he shall hand over the prison to the Commissioner of Police.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is the Honourable Member saying that the matter is purely at the discretion of the Prison Director, or are we to understand that there are clear-cut, written guidelines and procedures to be followed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James. M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I believe I will have to answer that by saying both. The guidelines state this. Hence, the Director would deal accordingly.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say, in the case where the police are called in to the prison on a matter and the prison situation is not handed over to the Commissioner, if police directives supersede what action can be taken by the Prison Director in applying sanctions on prisoners?

The Speaker: I do not think I can allow that because it envisages a hypothetical situation. I think it would be very difficult for the Temporary First Official Member to know what the Police Regulations would contain at this time. If he is able to provide something in writing to the Member at a later time, if he would do so I would allow that.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James. M. Ryan: Yes, Madam Speaker, I will endeavour to make a reply to that in writing.

The Speaker: Thank you.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Do the abnormal occurrences at Northward Prison, for example, persons barricading themselves in their cells and these kinds of abnormal behaviours, warrant the Prison Director to routinely inform the police department that their assistance might be requested?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James. M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I think that is a matter at the discretion of the Prison Director.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 19, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 19

No. 19: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture if all the staff necessary for the Drug Rehabilitation Centre are presently employed by Government, and if not, have such staff been identified for recruitment or training?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, additional staff are presently being recruited to work within this programme.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, can the Honourable Minister give this House an indication of how many persons this staffing would require and an estimate of the costs in terms of the salaries that may be paid?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the substantive question did not ask anything about cost and therefore I do not have that information at hand. It could be provided in writing.

The Speaker: Thank you.
The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister give the House any information as to the areas of speciality or expertise of this additional staff?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the staff would have to be certified addiction counsellors or licensed family therapists.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, would the Honourable Minister say how that staff are being recruited for the drug rehabilitation centre, in that no salary ranges have been applied to such advertisement which, I understand (it certainly used to be the case), is one of the requirements when Government is advertising for staff? Or will this be outside the ambit of Government salary scales?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, as we all know, Ministers do not do advertisements for staff. We do not do hiring for staff and if Members of the House will recall, all salaries were placed in the 1994 Estimates.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, as everyone in the House knows, the Minister answers for the actions of his Ministry and Department. If the salaries are set out, there must be someone in the Department of Social Services who chose the particular salaries for the particular jobs. The question still remains, how does he, or anyone in his department, know what the costs will be?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the Member claims to have knowledge of administrative affairs in Government. He should well know that the Chief Secretary is the person responsible for the hiring of staff. I do not have that information and if he wanted that, that should have been the substantive question.

QUESTION NO. 20

No. 20: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture when will the furniture for the Drug Rehabilitation Centre be tendered?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, furniture will be tendered in accordance with regulations and in due course when the site is ready to accommodate same.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Minister give any indication as to any items that this furniture might entail?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, it will be furniture.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 21, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 21

No. 21: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture if the construction of the Drug Rehabilitation Centre has been tendered as yet?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the Drug Rehabilitation Centre is not being built because there is already a building which is being renovated. This work will be carried out by the Public Works Department by way of direct labour, although a number of sub-trades will be tendered.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if the sub-trades will be tendered through the Public Works Department internal tendering process, or will it be external?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, all of us who know Government business know that the regulations have to be followed in connection with tendering and that is what will happen.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister speak to what regulations he refers to in this case, and could he say if indeed any work has started on this centre, or when will it be started, so that it can be completed in July as is the claim?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, to answer the part concerning the completion of the renovations, that is public knowledge. We have already said that the completion date is July. That is all I can tell him. The Public Works Department has assured us completion is July.

The second part of the question dealing with what regulations I am talking about, the public and the Member should well know that the tendering process is done through the Financial and Stores Regulations that sets up the Central Tenders Committee.

The Speaker: That completes Question Time for this morning. The House will proceed to Committee for further consideration of the Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

COMMITTEE ON BILL

PARLIAMENTARY PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL,

1994

The Chairman: Please be seated.

The House is in Committee to consider amendments to the Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1994. Members have been circulated with copies of the proposed amendments, and I will now ask the Honourable Second Official Member to carry these through.

AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 2

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Chairman.

The Committee stage amendments, which have been moved by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, relate to an addition to the amendment to include "Nominated Members" of the Legislative Assembly as well as "Elected Members." That has been achieved by amending the definition of the word "Member" in the principal Law so that between the relevant period, which is the 1st October 1959, and the 22nd August 1972, the word "Member" shall include not only Elected Members, but also Nominated Members; but, for any other period the word shall still be restricted to Elected Member.

There have been consequential amendments to the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons to include Nominated Members.

The Chairman: The question before Honourable Members is an amendment to Clause 2 of the present amending Bill by the insertion of a new sub-paragraph (a) to read: "(a) by repealing the definition of Member in section 2 of the principal Law and substituting the following definition: 'Member' means: (a) in respect of the period between the 1st day of October, 1959, and the 22nd day of August, 1972, an Elected or Nominated Member of the Legislative Assembly; and (b) in respect of any other period, an Elected Member of the Legislative Assembly."

Amendments were made to the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, which are just for clarification and not part of the Bill.

If Members have had time to study this, I shall put the question that Clause 2 of the proposed amending Bill be further amended as set out in the paper. The matter is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question that Clause 2 be amended as proposed. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 2 PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 1 and 2, with Clause 2 as amended, do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 1 AND CLAUSE 2 AS AMENDED PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for a Law to Amend the Parliamentary Pensions Law, 1994.

The Chairman: The question is that the Title do stand part of the Bill.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. TITLE PASSED.

The Chairman: The Bill has accordingly been dealt with in Committee. The question now is that the Bill be reported to the House. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THAT THE PARLIAMENTARY PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994, BE REPORTED TO THE HOUSE.

The Chairman: The House will resume.

HOUSE RESUMED AT 10:33 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

REPORT ON BILL

THE PARLIAMENTARY PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994,

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I am pleased to report that a Bill entitled the Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1994, was considered by a Committee of the whole House and passed with an amendment. That amendment is to change the definition of Member, and it reads:

“‘Member’ means (a) in respect of the period between the 1st day of October, 1959, and the 22nd day of August, 1972, an elected or nominated member of the Legislative Assembly; and (b) in respect of any other period, an elected member of the Legislative Assembly.”

The Speaker: The Bill is accordingly set down for Third Reading.

THIRD READING

THE PARLIAMENTARY PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994,

Clerk: The Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I beg to move that a Bill entitled the Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Third Reading and Passed.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Third Reading and passed. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a third reading and passed.

AGREED: THE PARLIAMENTARY PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994, GIVEN A THIRD READING AND PASSED.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 2/94

REAPPOINTMENT OF SELECT COMMITTEE OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY TO REVIEW THE PENAL CODE

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move Government Motion No. 2/94, Reappointment of Select Committee of the Legislative Assembly to review the Penal Code, which reads as follows:

“WHEREAS the effect of prorogation is at once to terminate all the current business of Parliament;

“AND WHEREAS the Select Committee, established in 1993 to review the Penal Code, tabled in the Legislative Assembly an Interim Report prior to the prorogation of the 1993 Session;

“BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the Select Committee established to review the Penal Code be re-appointed for the 1994 Session of the Legislature;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT any Minutes of Meetings, verbatim transcriptions, Interim Reports, Bills, and any other papers or evidence taken by the Select Committee during the 1993 Session of the Legislature, be referred to it."

Madam Speaker, perhaps I can just add to this that the Select Committee, which I Chair, has met eight times during the 1993 Session and it is intended to have at least one further meeting to hear from persons invited to appear before the Select Committee. Thereafter, the meetings will be to deal with the real work of the Committee, which is to get down to any changes that are necessary to the Penal Code. I certainly anticipate and hope that the work of the Select Committee and its final report will be available during the 1994 Session of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Government Motion No. 2/94, Re-appointment of Select Committee of the Legislative Assembly to Review the Penal Code, is open for debate. If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 2/94, RE-APPOINTMENT OF SELECT COMMITTEE OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY TO REVIEW THE PENAL CODE PASSED.

The Speaker: Proceeding to Other Business, Private Member's Motion No. 1/94, Support for Government's Announced Inspection of Northward Prison.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 1/94

SUPPORT FOR GOVERNMENT'S ANNOUNCED INSPECTION OF NORTHWARD PRISON

The Speaker: The First Elected Member of Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 1/94, Support for Government's Announced Inspection of Northward Prison, which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS the Caymanian Compass of Monday, January 31st, 1994, carried the headline 'Prison inspection ordered';

"AND WHEREAS this article described Government's intention to carry out a full inspection of Northward Prison in March;

"AND WHEREAS many Members of the Legislative Assembly have on various occasions expressed their concerns over the administration of Northward Prison;

"AND WHEREAS two inmates barricaded themselves into their cell at Northward Prison on Friday, January 2nd, 1994, (Caymanian Compass, Tuesday, 11th January, 1994);

"AND WHEREAS this incident resulted in the tragic death of a prison employee as reported in the Caymanian Compass of Wednesday, January 12th, 1994;

"AND WHEREAS the Caymanian Compass of Friday, February 11th, 1994, carried an article on page 8 entitled, 'Defendant Fails to appear: Legal Department to make inquiries';

"AND WHEREAS this article describes the inability of the prison authorities to properly deal with a prisoner in their system;

"AND WHEREAS it is expedient and democratic that Government's intention to hold an inspection of Northward Prison be discussed and debated in the Legislative Assembly;

"BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House take note of the said intention to inspect Northward Prison;

"AND BE IT THEREFORE FURTHER RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House record its support of the Government's stated intention to inspect Northward Prison."

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Member may speak to the Motion.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It should come as no surprise that we have seen fit to move this Motion in order that we may record in the Hansards of this House our support for the Government's stated intention to carry out a review of Northward Prison. Certainly, since my arrival in this Honourable House, I have taken an active interest in the affairs of Northward Prison, predicated in part because the Prison lies in my constituency. But also because from time to time I come in contact with many people who are touched by Northward Prison—both former inmates of the prison and also staff members who work there.

During my tenure as Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee, the Committee had at every session of their meetings some serious concerns regarding matters at Northward Prison. Sometimes we were frustrated in our attempt to recommend improvements to some of the practices and procedures. However, the Public Accounts Committee Reports from 1988 to 1992 will bear out the efforts made by the Committee in recording its concern over some of these practices, and also in making what we considered sensible and timely recommendations to remedy the more damaging and glaring of these practices.

Then, too, Madam Speaker, the questions asked in this Honourable House will show that Members (not exclusively myself but other Members) have borne a keen interest in events at Northward Prison. Many times our efforts have been met with a characteristic obstinacy on the part of the Government, perhaps motivated by prison administrators who resent the prying eyes of Legislators. It is indeed unfortunate that all of the efforts made by Honourable Members of this House, and by interested parties outside of this House, were not heeded until events degenerated into a tragic incident earlier this year.

Madam Speaker, I remain to be convinced that the prison authorities have learned the lesson they should have learned from that incident, because it is my understanding that the administration is still characterised by obstinacy, arrogance, and a downright disrespect and disregard for Legislators and anyone who tries to penetrate the veil of secrecy under which they administer the prison.

It is also my understanding that this Honourable Member has been singled out for expressions of resentment and opprobrium to the point where I received a message from one of the staff members. Madam Speaker, I did not see fit to reply at that point because I did not wish in any way to involve the messenger in something which may have spiralled beyond his control. I only say this: Everybody knows where I live. And anyone who is stupid enough to believe that I only studied sociology, can try whatever he wants to try; he might get a pleasant surprise. Madam Speaker, I have made it my duty to speak out, to pry, to peer, and to investigate. In so doing, I have cultivated the respect of many people. It is no secret.

Just about two weeks ago, I received a visit at my office from a prisoner. I am in the process now of arranging for an affidavit to be sworn. Unfortunately I will not get it in time for this debate, but it was my intention to lay it on the Table of this House, because that affidavit coming from someone would be the final chapter in a number of damning incidents that would sink the administration of Northward Prison.

I do not hide, nor do I apologise for my interest and my concern; nor for my crusade to see that Northward Prison is run as a Prison should be run. If I anger anyone, be it prison administrators, prisoners or otherwise, who feel so threatened that they wish to take me on personally, then I would say to them, as a law abiding citizen, let them try. I am prepared to let the law take its course.

I will not stand or sit idly by, as a responsible Legislator and citizen of this country, with the knowledge that I have of some of the things that are happening at that Prison and hope that it will go away. I know that it is not going away—it will only get worse.

So, Madam Speaker, in my introduction, let me say that I support the Government's announced intention, and I am relieved to see that there is such a move. I am living with the hope and the expectation that as a result of that we can get matters at Northward Prison running the way they should be run. It has never been my desire, or my intention to personally castigate anyone to lead any inquisition. I, Madam Speaker, only wish to be the catalyst to set right in motion.

In closing this opening presentation, I am reminded of an observation written by the eminent parliamentarian and historian Edmond Burke, who said, "The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing." Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion No. 1/94, which has been duly moved and seconded. It is now open for debate.

The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to speak on behalf of Government to Private Member's Motion No. 1/94, supporting Government's announced inspection of Northward Prison.

Shortly after the unfortunate incident at Northward Prison on the 7th of January, 1994, the Chief Secretary announced a departmental inspection of the Prison's operations. Following the completion of that, His Excellency the Governor announced a full inspection by Judge Stephen Tumin. Judge Tumin is a highly respected person on matters of prison operations and is, perhaps, one of the best, if not the best in the United Kingdom for carrying out such inspections.

Judge Tumin will arrive in Grand Cayman on March 31st. He will be spending Easter here and he will then carry out the inspection during the week of the 5th of April.

Madam Speaker, perhaps I may digress just a bit on this to comment on one matter in the Motion, the section referring to the 11th February, 1994, issue of the Caymanian Compass—the article on page 8, entitled "Defendant Fails to Appear—Legal Department to Make Enquiries." The Motion goes on to say, "AND WHEREAS this article describes the inability of the Prison authorities to properly deal with a prisoner in their system . . ." I would like to clarify that by saying that the defendant was not produced by the Prison to appear in Court because the defendant was not, at that time, an inmate at Northward Prison. He had already been discharged from Prison and the Prison had no control over him. It was, therefore, not their fault that he was not produced at Court.

Be that as it may, I believe that the country as a whole, and certainly this Honourable House, is relieved to hear that His Excellency has ordered the investigation of Northward Prison. I have every confidence that Judge Tumin will carry out a very full and fair investigation. I believe that this House can rest assured that he will call a spade a spade.

Madam Speaker, I would like to thank the Honourable Mover and Seconder of the Motion for their keen interest in the matter and for taking the time to move this Motion offering their support. Accordingly, on behalf of Government, I wish to accept the Motion.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, as the Sec-order of this Motion, I believe in its intention and, where the Government acts in what is clearly a responsible manner, it should receive the support of those persons in the Legislature and the members of the public.

This matter deals with Northward Prison. Prisons, on a whole, are hardly a place where one thinks of pleasantries. They are places where citizens of any community, society, or country are locked away when they have breached the laws of that country or have committed acts against the people.

Northward Prison is relatively new. It came about, to the best of my knowledge and belief because we were in breach of International Convention by sending citizens or residents of the Cayman Islands to other countries to serve penal servitude.

In fact, I was a very young man (in my teens as I recall) when on one occasion in the Town Hall there was a meeting. I do not recall who held it, but it had to do with officials. Mr. Carl Rattray pointed out then that the Cayman Islands were technically and legally in breach of the Convention on the matter of where prisoners served penal servitude. Of course, many, many years after that, something was done about it in establishing Northward Prison.

Madam Speaker, human decency, common sense, and International Convention say that when a person offends against his community he must serve the punishment in the community or the country in which he has offended. Therefore, I would not even want to think about taking citizens of the Cayman Islands, our people, our residents ...

POINT OF ORDER (Relevance)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, on a point of relevance.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Development, Youth Affairs and Culture, please proceed. Are you speaking on a Point of Order?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: On a Point of Order, and the matter of relevance. The Resolution before us states that the House should take note of the intention to inspect Northward Prison and that the House records the support of the Government's stated intention to inspect Northward Prison. It does not say anything about any proposition of sending any prisoners to any foreign jurisdiction. Therefore, I do not see the relevance before the House.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister. The point of order is a valid one. I was just giving the Member a chance to explain a little further and I would have ruled that it was out of order.

Please proceed, and confine your remarks, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, to the contents of Private Member's Motion No. 1/94. Thank you.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I was attempting to show that the Cayman Islands have a prison because a prison is necessary, and that the prison should be an ongoing institution in this country to deal with matters where citizens of the Cayman Islands are incarcerated. It, being the case that Northward Prison exists for such purpose, must continue to do so without any change of policy to that.

It is possible that in the review that is to be made by Judge Tumin, consideration of alternatives may come into play in terms of size, in terms of place, or whatever, if it is going to be a full review. It might even be the case that it is recommended to build a prison in West Bay—just so long as it is in the Cayman Islands. So, Madam Speaker, the question of the institution and where it is does have relevance.

Since Northward Prison has been in existence, there have always been questions about how well it is being run. It started out being run almost completely by British Prison Officers who were contracted by the Government of the Cayman Islands. It had its problems then, as it has its problems now.

I think it was the understanding of Legislators at that time, and indeed the public, that these officers who originally set up the management of Northward Prison (and I think some of them are experts in this field) and who also guided the drafting of the Imprisonment Law, were to train and to give us a modern system for incarcerating prisoners. The management changed and various Caymanians moved into positions of higher management within the system, as well as many persons being recruited from within the Caribbean region and Central America. There has been ongoing concern and expressions of criticism about the type of management.

It had been pointed out prior to this, by the Prison Inspector who will be coming to the Cayman Islands, Judge Tumin, that the Prison in the Cayman Islands is unique in that every type of person who is required to go to prison—from men who may not be paying maintenance for their children, to murderers, to any type of person whatsoever—are all incarcerated in the same prison system. Nothing to date, to the best of my knowledge, has been done to change that particular position. I would imagine that when the good Judge comes he will make some note of that.

It is possible, perhaps, that recommendations would be made to change that position, that we should expend money to make it possible that prisoners of a different type are housed or imprisoned in a different area or type of prison. So these are considerations I believe would be taken into account.

Why the question of a Prison, and Northward Prison, and prisoners is so important to the Cayman Islands is that the same Judge noted that the Cayman Islands has the largest prison population in the world compared to its population. Most are there with some connection to drug offences—from teenagers being found with some type of drug present through tests to show that they had a drug in their body, to dealers in drugs, to people who have committed murder in relation to drugs.

I would hope that the physical facility of Northward Prison would be seriously examined in terms of the type of accommodation. I would hope that there would be some recommendation that stainless steel toilets and basins, and so on, be put into the cells instead of ceramic ones which can be smashed and broken.

I would hope that the actual space per prisoner would be examined. Are there too many prisoners in a cell? Could there be more to a cell? Could more be housed in a particular block? Or is what is happening unlawful and/or unhygienic as the case may be? These are certainly things that I hope will be taken into account in this particular inspection in terms of the physical facility.

I also trust that some consideration will be given to the real purpose or mission of Northward Prison, whether it is the place that is going to continue to attempt to do everything that presently is to be done, including the retention of prisoners who have not yet had their cases heard before the Court in all the various areas of offences; whether the facility to teach some sort of life skills by which prisoners may earn a living is to be improved; or whether the extent to which this is being done now is sufficient and no further effort will be made in that direction.

I trust that a determination is going to be clearly made whether that is purely the place of penal servitude, or whether it is going to cater to a lesser or greater degree of rehabilitation. Right now I do not believe that is very clear. I am told that some workshops amount to nothing more than a stand under a mango tree. I am told some attempts are being made with automotive repair, and so on, but with very limited tools and facility to do so.

I understand that many of the prisoners in Northward Prison are our unemployed and are perhaps some of those people whom the Minister for Social Services speaks about—the unemployable. Is it necessary that they should learn some skill to be employed, or is all of that being taken care of elsewhere? If they go to prison, can they come out to have these skills taught to them elsewhere?

Madam Speaker, in recent months a school of thought emanated from the Courts of Law, that our great penchant for putting everybody in prison may not be the best course of action. Just a short while ago we heard the Attorney General speak about a motion to reinstate a Committee on the Penal Code. It would seem that things are generally falling in place for some sensible discussion with regard to imprisonment of the citizens of this country.

To the management of the Prison, Madam Speaker, I trust that the inspection will find someone therein responsible and accountable for what happens on a day-to-day basis—be it the Director, or whoever else on his staff, or for that matter, in the Ministry, that is responsible for it. I trust that the clear lines of responsibility and authority will be set down in writing so there will no longer be any doubt in the mind of any Director of the Prison, or any officer in management, when there is a problem inside the prison, as to how that person should apprise the Minister responsible to answer in this Parliament for the tragic incident that occurred there some weeks ago. This clearly shows that there is an extremely great need for communication clearly set down as to how it should function, so that the management in the Prison should know when they should report to their superior officers and what they should report to them.

The most recent incident clearly shows that that position is not clear.

It is my understanding that in incidents of prisoners barricading themselves in any prison, it is a serious breach of prison security and a loss of security over the prison. In this particular incident, I am aware that the Chief Secretary—who is responsible—was unaware for three or four days that there was an ongoing situation of prisoners having breached the security by barricading themselves in. I would trust that Judge Tumin will set down regulations or guidelines, or whatever they are called, which clearly tell the officers and management how they should act and with what extent of force so that the prisoners in Northward Prison will be handled and managed in the proper fashion.

In any instance, in any prison where a Director may say that prisoners are barricaded into one of management's cells and are being fed by sympathisers to their cause and that that is not something of concern, there is indeed a real problem. That has been reported in our press, and I personally heard those very similar remarks made by the Prison Director to the Chief Secretary on the day that the Chief Secretary became aware of what was happening in Northward Prison.

On the question of security at Northward Prison, I understand from various persons that it is virtually impossible to stop illicit drugs from going into a prison compound. However, I stand here believing that the extent to which I hear illicit drugs are available in Northward Prison is beyond any level of acceptability in any prison anywhere in the world. Something is obviously wrong with the security system.

I have been told by prisoners who have been there for drug offences (some I have known from the time they were infants) how easy it is to get drugs in the prison. And they jokingly talk about it. They actually laugh about it and they jive me and ask, "What are you sending us there for?" They can get more drugs there than they can on the outside! And in there nothing happens to them.

I assure this House that there are many, many instances where prisoners have told me that ganja and cocaine in its various forms are available. I understand you can buy a shot of whiskey in there. I trust that this inspection will look carefully into the reasons why that can be happening in Northward Prison. Are visitors getting those drugs through to the prisoners? Are prison staff getting it in there? Is it being thrown over the fence? Is it being dropped from the sky? Is it being tunnelled under the Prison? Something is really wrong.

I personally believe that the Prison is not serving the purpose it is supposed to serve—to punish the people who use or consume drugs—if they can go in there and get the very same substance they are supposedly being punished for. I can easily take the point of view, as expressed by various officers of the court, that imprisoning the average addict or drug user does not make a whole lot of sense. I can easily believe that.

The other question, Madam Speaker, is the security. There has to be some system of checks. When persons, be they prisoners or be they Prison officers, are found in the illicit use and trade of drugs at that prison, they face the shame of public opinion. It is not good to have a system that takes an addict or a drug abuser to court and puts their name in the paper and sentences them for it, and then find that some member of staff, some worker in the Prison who also does that, is quietly let go or dismissed from his job.

One of the problems in this country at this time is the question of fairness to all. The public on a whole is reacting because there is so much unfairness in this society. Some people get the full sanction of the law and others do not. I say if citizens of the country can go to prison for drugs, and it is something that is condemned and unacceptable, then someone has to be held responsible for the alleged illicit drug trade which goes on in Northward Prison. That should be one of the key areas for inspection.

The matter of religious ministry that goes on there, I think serves the good purpose of getting the assessment of some of those persons who minister at the Prison, to solicit some ideas from them as to what they gather or glean from prisoners as they have contact with them. Do they have some idea of how Christian principles can best be gotten across to inmates there that might prevail on their minds so that they may change their attitudes? I would suspect that those persons do have some ideas. How much of that is taken into account, or solicited by the Governmental authorities who handle the prison, I do not know; but I would suspect not enough.

I am also told that there are persons who tend to the day-to-day health care within the Prison—a public health nurse, or a Prison nurse attendant, or whatever the case may be. How well is that developed? How well is that serving? What are the ideas of those persons about how it could be improved? I am told that at certain times prisoners very cleverly know how to claim to be feeling ill, simply to get out and to get some freedom.

Again, I have been told (and I do not state this as a fact because no facts have been given) that there are instances when three, four, or five prisoners may be taken to the hospital. Their friends have knowledge that they are going on a particular day and through that means they get drugs to them. Those friends go into the bathroom at the hospital in the outpatient area and place the drugs in a certain place. Then the prisoner goes in the bathroom and gets the drugs.

I have also been told that friends of prisoners know when prisoners will be on their work details and where they will be. They put drugs along the road in particular areas where their friends can get them, simply because they believe it will cheer them up to be able to get a little smoke or a little snort. I have been told that.

I think these are areas that should be addressed by an inspection. Is there a need to have more guards or wardens with the prisoners when they go out in a certain number? Is there some correct ratio? These are things to be considered.

Madam Speaker, I believe this exercise is so great that the Members I have seen giggling and smirking since I have been talking should be holding their heads and pondering the seriousness of it. For if the number of persons in this community who go to prison keeps growing, by the year 2000 all of our population from 25 down to 15 or 16 may have prison records.

It has perhaps reached the point when one needs to decide where the Northward Prison stands, its mission in respect of all of the people who live in this Islands. Does it need more cells? Does it need specialised areas? If it needs workshops, then those workshops should be provided. Just as there is no hesitation in coming to this House to get $100,000 to buy a car for the Governor's use, the Government should come to this House and say we need $100,000, $200,000, $300,000 for a workshop.

Or is it just the usual thing—what catches the headlines and what gets across to the public—'we are doing so and so, and such and such' for purely political effect?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, have you reached a convenient time where we might suspend?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED 11.36 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.57 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continuing.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, when we took the suspension, I was calling attention to certain areas that I believe the inspection should include.

These areas the inspection should include means of discovering whether prison property is being inappropriately used by these inmates, money, crops, eggs? I have heard various stories about what happens in regard to those items from various persons. I do not know whether I would be allowed to, but I would like the opportunity when the Inspector comes to this Island, to speak with him on a one-to-one basis to express to him certain concerns I will not make any mention of in here, as it would be inappropriate. Certainly I would pass on to him for his information, and he might choose to look into some of these matters

The question of prisons and imprisonment is perhaps the most unique type of situation in which human beings interact. The only thing prisoners can truthfully claim is the loss of their freedom. I would hope that some effort will be made to examine, as far as can be determined, the interpersonal relationship between management, officers, and prisoners in a general way.

I trust that this inspection will inquire into whether all of these officers are properly informed as to how to deal with prisoners, to what extent they can allow familiarity, if any. And, if it is found that officers of whatever nationality are insufficiently informed of these things, that something be done to arrange for some training—whether it be a one day, two day, one hour seminar or training in this type of thing over a period of time.

I have heard stories that allege improper relationships—staff member with staff member, staff member with inmate. I do not make any accusation because I do not know how true it is, but I have heard of many. I certainly believe it is an area that needs inspection and examination. I am not sure how much training of prison officers takes place, but I think that generally the world trend is that a prison officer is not necessarily someone who beats an inmate's head in with a baton. They have to have a practical understanding of psychology. I trust that there will be some serious examination in this area.

Prisoners by the hundreds are fed three meals a day in prison. How adequate are the facilities there? How well is the food managed, prepared, stored and accounted for? I think these are areas that need to be examined. I have also heard tales that supposedly all the food items which are allegedly going into the feeding of prison population do not really do so.

As I listened to the reply from the Honourable Member responsible for Prisons, the Honourable Temporary First Official Member, I got the distinct impression at question time that the inspection of, and the direct detail as to what is required of an officer in a particular situation is very grey. Thus, because of that, the whole condition is now being reviewed.

I would suggest to this Honourable House that it would be a good thing if inspections of staff and the prison were done regularly during the course of the year. No one should know that an inspection is going to be called except, I would say, the Chief Secretary or his administrative nominee. That way, I believe the management could be kept on their toes as they need to be because one cannot lose sight of the fact that if we talk about a closed community, it has to be inside of a prison. Many horror stories, worldwide, are told about that particular environmental condition.

Madam Speaker, security and the use of force to enforce discipline within the prison has to be given, I believe, serious consideration. I am told that batons and shields are kept locked up in a particular area and things such as tear gas do not even exist on the compound at Northward Prison. I think that an examination of that condition, if that is the case, should be carried out.

Whilst I have spoken to someone who told me that the matter of enforcement and the use of tear gas, and so on, is the business of the Police, and that Prison Wardens or Officers have no business with that, I do not necessarily share that point of view. The reason why I do not share that point of view is that if there is a deliberate effort by prisoners to riot, for example, and if there are only six, eight, 10, even 15 Prison Wardens there with batons, and during whatever times prisoners are out—lunchtime, playtime—how could they possibly resist the 50 or 100 men coming down on them at one time? Their lives are in jeopardy.

I believe that within the system of containment there, some provision has to be made for some select few to have access to an area with sufficient equipment to quell such a condition. If there is only one policeman in the Bodden Town Police Station—and he sometimes is not there—and the majority in George Town who have to be called with the equipment to go to Northward Prison to put down a riot, I do not know how it strikes other people, but to me it is rather frightening. There could be a lot of dead people in that time. So I believe that ought to be looked at.

I make this very clear, for I have had relatives and friends who have been in the prison, that when one goes through those gates, one is not going to a picnic. One goes to prison where other people tell him what to do from day to day and minute to minute. The inmates have to understand that their protectors and their keepers are authorised to use such force, as necessary, to contain them. That is the way the game is played. I am not sure if that is presently the case.

I have every sympathy, understanding and consideration of inmates having their basic rights and privileges kept in tact and being treated in a proper manner. There are ways of doing that. But they must understand that, really and truly, the freedoms that they had outside of those gates they do not have inside there; that nobody is sitting down joking about it; and that it is serious business. It has to be serious business. So I hope that this is an area in which there will be some examination.

Madam Speaker, in most organisations there is a chain of command—except in the Executive Council of the Cayman Islands as it has no leader, no head. However, there would be a normal chain of command in most organisations on earth. I have heard of incidents (again, I am not sure how true they are) where the formal organisation is overcome by the informal organisation and rather than commands going down in the correct fashion, they are circumvented. And some of the people who get into the chain along the way are not even officers, as such, but administrative and office personnel. Again, I will not swear to these things, but I simply state them as they have been told to me and for whatever use such information can be to other Members of this House.

There are also claims of personal use of prison property and of personal services being done within the Prison. All of this needs to be examined. It is not the people involved with these alleged things who tell me that this that and the other is happening, or who ask me why we are not doing anything about it (as if I could do more than I am doing right now). Rather it is the prisoners and people from within the prison population who tell me these things.

Many of the Caymanian staff I know from far back. One or two I went to school with in the early years. In conversation, I get the impression that there is not a very clear cut system of promotion. There are feelings among the staff at Northward Prison that particular persons should achieve particular ranks as they have certain qualifications, years of experience and so on, but that they are being superseded by non-nationals who come in who, they claim, are not as qualified or experienced as they are.

I am quite familiar with the "them and us syndrome" in this country, which is real. However, I believe that it is necessary in Northward Prison, just as it is necessary in the Civil Service, that there should be such a clear-cut organisational structure that the newspapers, or any media, or any man on the street, would know that there are ten persons in a particular grade who would be natural candidates to succeed "X" or "Y" position. I think that should be in the Civil Service and I think that should be in the Prison. I really do not know that it is that way because of the amount of speculation, generally, that there is when it comes to promotion. I believe that needs to be looked at clearly.

If something could be done where officers in particular grades or ranks must achieve some sort of proficiency test within that system, I believe that could cut out a lot of the complaints that I have heard over a long period of time.

Security has to be the watchword. Again, if what I have heard in instances of how tools or different implements are used, and even keys I would say (if those things are so), that generally the population at Northward tends to be teenagers and kids who are really not violent. They may be drug heads, but generally they are not violent, because there would be opportunities for breaching security.

The last item that I wish to mention is the use of the houses built several years ago on the general compound which, it was my understanding, were for the use of officers in higher command. I hear stories of these houses not being used as accommodation in every instance for such persons, but rather as general accommodation for friends and family (extended family, that is), and supposedly many instances of improper use.

Madam Speaker, I am sure that those in this House who know much better than I, and who are generally inclined to criticise what I say, will say that most of what I have said here is irrelevant. But what I say is that in a prison situation the things that affect people, and the interacting and interpersonal relationships between people, is what decides how well a prison functions. If there are disciplined staff, if there are no-nonsense persons there running the prison who go by the books, all prisoners then know what to expect. If there are breaches of that, then there is a problem, particularly in a situation where all types of prisoners are housed. Just from its physical appearance and layout it seems to need improvement. One can easily see where many difficulties and problems could lurk. Surely, when it comes to furniture (I guess, for a prison, toilets and basins may be termed furniture) having ceramic furniture really does not seem to be very smart at all. What it would take to replace them, and how much, I do not know.

I am glad to know that after a deafening silence following the death at Northward Prison, with no response from Government as to what was happening and would be happening—except that someone came to the Island (and in one hour did a report). After I and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town held a meeting about it, the Government decided that they would have an inspection of the Prison. I certainly support that and I hope it will be full and complete and as comprehensive as is alleged by the Government. I would believe that my good friend and colleague who is presently in charge of the subject here in this House, would pass on to the Inspector when he arrives that I would like to be a witness and pass on to him a few things which of necessity I will not say in my debate.

Madam Speaker, this Motion and the action of the Government to have a complete review and inspection of the Northward Prison, I do support most fully.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I have listened to the two promoters of the resolution and, in my opinion, they should have asked for a general debate on the prison, rather than to say that they are in support of what Government is already doing.

Nevertheless, it is Government that has called for this investigation. It was not anything prompted by the two Members who pushed us into this and, therefore, the resolution, as far as I am concerned, is neither here nor there, except for the sake of discussion.

Madam Speaker, what the Governor has announced is a comprehensive review of the Prison system—all areas of it. That is what is going to happen.

There was a general discussion on what a prison should be. A long list of what the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman wants was trotted out. We are on all fours with them concerning several things. The whole matter has given us many headaches although the prison is one of those matters under the Constitution for which no Elected Member has responsibility.

We have made our concerns known to the Governor and, Madam Speaker, that is why we are going to get a comprehensive investigation. When the report was brought to Government, we as Elected Members told His Excellency the Governor that we were not satisfied with the report as it stood and that we wanted a full comprehensive report done by an independent body. The Governor has agreed!

Now, before I move on I should say that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman cannot take any credit for having this investigation done, neither he nor his colleague. We can only hope that when that person comes to do the investigation, Members will have a chance to make their wishes or their observations known to him.

In regard to what the prison should be, more space and the building of separate facilities, I do not know who in this House is an authority on what a prison facility should be. It sounds to me as though we have many authorities here—people who know all about everything. Let me say that this Member will not be supporting any more funds for the building of facilities at Northward Prison.

The drift of the contribution of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman (one side of it) was that we need this glorified home environment with them being locked up. In my opinion, a prison is a prison and as long as I have any authority to vote funds, that is what it is going to remain and that is what I want to see it turned more into. For far too long in this country, for far too long, and upon the wishes of do-gooders and people who belong to organisations such as Amnesty International, we have been soft on crime. For too long the criminal has been looked upon as that poor soul that cannot do any better.

We know that people get into situations in life. We have to wonder sometimes why a good person who we grew up with and went to school with, who had good chances and a good family, goes on the scrap heap of life. Talking does not do any good. People talk, preachers pray, family members cry, people try to educate in their own way—still, they go astray.

But, Madam Speaker, as far as Northward Prison is concerned, my advice to His Excellency the Governor is that it has to be a place where nobody wants to go rather than a place where they can get all the good meals they want—better than you and I—where they have all the freedoms. They can get free false teeth, free medical; yes, if they are sick we have to tend to them. I do not even know if a good doctor can tell me I feel bad; so, if somebody went to a Prison Officer and said “I feel bad,” the only way they could know would be to take him to a doctor. I do not think a doctor could tell me, “No, McKeeva, you do not feel bad, you know.”

Anyway, as I said, I will leave all those matters to those professionals who know so much about everything.

Northward Prison, Honourable Members, must from here on in be a prison. It must not be a home environment. It must not be a school. I am prepared, as one of the Ministers of Executive Council, to vote money to think up programmes and to put them in place, but those things cannot be done overnight. I am prepared to do all that. But I am not going to invest the few funds of this country into Northward Prison to make it a glowing institution for the sake of Amnesty International. Why I am calling on Amnesty International here today is because I know that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has had connections with Amnesty International.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

POINT OF ORDER (Relevance)

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I do not know where the question of Amnesty International comes in on the discussion of an inspection of Northward Prison. I do not know what he is talking about regarding myself and Amnesty International. If he can show that, I would like him to table it before this House and this world.

I have a great regard for Amnesty International.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, would you refrain from connecting the Member with Amnesty International, unless you can prove that he has connections with that body? Thank you.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, is the Member denying that he has had connections with them—that he has written them on matters in connection with it?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I have made a ruling, would you continue with your debate, please?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the question is whether he has connections with Amnesty International. I am not saying that that is a bad thing if that is what he wants to do, but is he denying it?

I will move on, Madam Speaker, but I think that if you search the Hansards in regard to the debate on Capital—

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, would you please proceed with your debate? Please.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I am, Madam Speaker, I am.

The Speaker: Go on with that, please.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I knew that this is what I would get.

Anyway, just let me get my papers together. However, if the Hansards are checked on the debate on Capital Punishment, we would see who had connections with Amnesty International. Nevertheless, they can belong to any organisation.

What is wrong with the world today, is that too many of those organisations are interfering with internal affairs that should be the sole responsibility of a country.

I can hear the First Elected Member for Bodden Town saying that I cannot stop them. As long as I have the authority as a Minister here, I am not going to vote any funds to make them happy.

POINT OF ORDER (Relevance)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would like to draw the Chair's attention to the Standing Order on relevance, and Amnesty International versus Northward Prison.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, would you continue with the debate on Private Member's Motion 1/94? Thank you.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I will continue and I am going to be very brief because I think I have put Government's position across.

The debate by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman—who seems to be an authority on prisons—was very wide. I have made notes and that is what I am speaking on. However, I just want to say that in the opinion of Ministers of Executive Council, and I believe a majority of the Members of this House, criminals are going to be treated as criminals. I repeat that the building of more space at Northward cannot help. Of course, on the one hand it was asked for and in another breath something else was said.

Anyway, the fact is that Government has ordered an investigation. Let me just say for all to understand that I am not here defending what has gone on in the Prison. The records will show that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town said that I am responsible for what happened at Northward Prison. I am responsible? Is that what he is saying?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, please continue, do not—

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Just let me say to this Honourable House, that if anybody is responsible it is those Members who pushed the affair to where it got as far as it did. When the investigation is complete, records will show who the prisoners were saying was coming to help them.

The other thing that I hope that Elected Members of this Honourable House will do is to keep away from Northward Prison. Let the prisoners who are there talk to their lawyers and their families who have occasion to visit them. I have always been one who tried to stay away from the prison. I have gone there on prison services through the church and on another occasions, but I have made up my mind that when they go to prison they must understand that they are prisoners and that they have lost their right from society.

The country, in my opinion, has become too soft over the years listening to these yah-yah stories from these do-gooders in regard to how well we should treat them. We have treated them too good in the past and this Minister is not going to vote any more funds.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: At this time, proceedings will be suspended until 2:15 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.38 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.17 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 1/94. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I rise to support Private Member's Motion No. 1/94. It strikes me that even when we all seem to want to agree, we cannot.

The two areas that I would like to touch on in the whereas sections of the Motion are the two which read: “AND WHEREAS this article describes the inability of the prison authorities to properly deal with a prisoner in their system; AND WHEREAS it is expedient and democratic that Government's intention to hold an inspection of Northward Prison be discussed and debated in the Legislative Assembly. . .”

Madam Speaker, my understanding of the 'Whereas' sections in this Motion is that this was an opportunity because of the importance of the issue for Members in this Honourable House to air their views in the hope that salient points would reach the correct ears and at least be passed on to the gentleman who is supposed to be doing the inspection.

I listened earlier to the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and he will make what I have to say somewhat shorter, because he delved into areas that I intended to touch on.

Madam Speaker, the main cry from me this afternoon with regard to the Northward Prison is training. Based on some recent happenings at the prison and on discussions with various individuals, it is very apparent to me that training—or the lack thereof—is an area that is vital in making any significant improvements at Northward Prison. The training that I am talking about covers both the staff at the prison and the inmates.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman made a point that in the case of any insurgence or possible riot at the prison there is not sufficient manpower or equipment to deal with it. Madam Speaker, I would just like to expand a little bit on that point because it seems to me that as times have changed, on the one hand when it comes to criminal activity in these Islands, the various authorities seemingly have a hard time coming to grips with those changes.

There is another point I would also like to make. It seems to me that whenever anything goes wrong we have this wonderful knack of pointing fingers at people when in many instances the finger needs to be pointed at the system much more so than at the individual involved. I say that because if when something goes wrong—as things have gone wrong—our aim is to always find someone that we can lay a hand on and say that that person caused the end result, it is all well and good after that exercise is completed. However, the truth is, if we leave it there it does not for one minute say that it will not happen again if we do not address the inadequacies of the system.

It is my belief (and here I am speaking specifically about the Prison and I take nothing away from the individuals who operate the Prison) that many of these individuals who hold certain responsible positions have not been trained properly in those positions. It is only when something goes wrong that this shows up, which means we take reactive measures and we never allow ourselves to get to the point of being pro-active. If we think back, we will always find that when anything went wrong we did something about it. However, it is very rare that we can look back and say, 'Well we did something and as a result of that we prevented so and so from happening.'

I speak in a slightly generic fashion, Madam Speaker, so that it will not appear as though we are pointing fingers at individuals. To be more specific would be improper. However, I contend that in this review or inspection of the Prison system much attention needs to be paid to the type of training that has been afforded in the past to the wardens and the officers, and the type of training that they need immediately to bring them to the level they should be.

There are many individuals who have made careers out of being prison officers and for that I can only praise them. However, I am very confident that many of these individuals have not had proper training. In fact, I remember years ago being a prison officer involved several weeks of training before actually going on the job. It then involved a couple of months of on-the-job training and after that was completed there were several weeks of review and upgrading of these individuals to ensure that they were at certain levels before they were physically given any responsibilities at the Prison.

Those days were quite different from now. In those days the chances of things happening as they do now were much less, simply because of the nature of the beast that we were dealing with in those days. Nowadays, I understand in a few short weeks everything is over. Officers are on the job and move on into their various shifts. That, in itself, speaks of inadequacies.

Madam Speaker, if we have to correct things as we go along by reacting, it must cost us more in the long run than if we did what should have been done from the beginning. Whatever that training costs, it cannot be any more. It can bring much better results than having to react when things go wrong.

Regard the inmates, I have heard some of the previous speakers take issue with others. I have heard mention of Amnesty International. I have heard all kinds of things. I agree totally with the point that a prison should be a prison. If the system that we operate is one where at the end of the day there is some semblance of hope in our minds that it will be conducive to less repeat offenders then, while a prison is a prison, there are certain areas that we must address.

If we are not concerned about repeat offenders if certain things are not done, if we use tactics to deter persons from wanting to go there, and if we run the risk of knowing the way society is nowadays, then we should come right out and say that and employ that system and not address anything else. However, it is my understanding that the system we have in place is intended to deter criminal activity by people not wishing to be in the prison, but at the same time, there is some movement toward rehabilitation. If that is the case, then that also needs to be addressed.

Madam Speaker, this is not a situation where any of us in this Honourable House should be hell-bent on deciding who gets glory. There is no glory in a prison system as far as I am concerned, and there can be no glory in whatever happens about it. It is something we all wish did not have to exist, but it is here. Necessity is the mother of invention.

So with those few thoughts, Madam Speaker, I would ask the individuals involved who have direct access and authority in these matters, to address the points that have been brought out today when the inspection is being done. I would also ask, if it is considered a reasonable request, that any and all Members of this Legislative Assembly who wish to partake in any discussion with the people conducting the inspection, be allowed to do so either in unison or on an individual basis—it matters not to me.

Madam Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to let the Third Elected Member for West Bay know that I take directions from one person in this House—namely, you. I was elected here and I take direction from no one else. Thank you.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, I will ask the Mover of the Motion if he would like to exercise his right to reply.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Motion was clear enough to be understood, and I note with appreciation that the Honourable Temporary First Official Member replying on behalf of the Government, understood what the Motion was calling for and made Government's position explicitly clear, which, by the way Madam Speaker, was not in any way different from what the Motion was calling for, namely, that support be recorded. I was therefore puzzled when a second Member rose to speak—seemingly on Government's behalf—taking a radical departure from the position taken by the Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

I heard that Minister on one or two occasions make reference to some report. I want to say to that Honourable Minister that if he wants to read or table a report in this House, he should bring the report of his association with the convicted drug dealers and money launderers—the Caballero brothers—in which he was a lackey director of their company here in the Cayman Islands—

POINT OF ORDER
(Slander)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: On a Point of Order, Madam Speaker. I take objection to this, and I hope you are going to rule on it.

The Speaker: Honourable First Elected Member for Bodden Town, I take a dim view of such departures. Please withdraw those remarks and continue with your debate. Thank you.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I bow to the wishes of the Chair. But I would like that Honourable Minister to understand that this First Elected Member for Bodden Town is prepared to deal with him at whatever level his ignorance leads him to deal with me.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, is the Member withdrawing, or is that remark still on the—

The Speaker: The Member has bowed to the ruling of the Chair. He has withdrawn the remarks otherwise I would have taken note of that. Please proceed with the winding up remarks on Private Member's Motion No. 1/94.

Thank you.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I shall continue with my usual graciousness and respect toward the Chair.

Madam Speaker, I think that the country as a whole will be relieved at the Government's announced intention to hold this review. The Government, in its wisdom, has seen fit to make that timely announcement.

There are those of us who have been concerned about matters at the Northward Prison for many years, and I go no further than the circumstances leading up to the recent tragic incident. Madam Speaker, it was a shock and a surprise to learn that prior to a visit by my colleague, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and I to the Chief Secretary's Office, the Chief Secretary was not aware that a problem had existed at Northward Prison where two prisoners had barricaded themselves in their cell for some three days.

Madam Speaker, it was in our presence that the Chief Secretary called the Prison, put on the microphone and proceeded to ask the Acting Director if indeed there was a problem at Northward Prison within the parameters of what the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I had informed him existed. The reply was something to the effect of, Yes, there was a case where two prisoners had barricaded themselves in their cell. But the Acting Director thought the matter so slight that he did not wish to disturb the Chief Secretary with the news and proceeded to assure him that steps would be taken to bring the matter to an apt and speedy conclusion.

The Chief Secretary went further. He called the Deputy Commissioner and asked him—

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, I rise on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: The Honourable Attorney General, the Second Official Member, Point of Order.

POINT OF ORDER
(Sub judice)

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am a little concerned that the Honourable Member is getting a little specific about this particular incident at Northward Prison. I have listened closely to the debate that has taken place, and I have seen that Members have been very general in their comments. But this matter is under Police investigation at the moment. I think that I would be asking you, Madam Speaker, to rule that this matter is sub judice, and perhaps the Honourable Member could confine himself to more generalities.

The Speaker: Thank you.

First Elected Member for Bodden Town, in view of the comments from the Honourable Second Official Member, would you discontinue the specifics of the case, as you are about to do, and continue in general terms of debate in your closing remarks?

Thank you.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I will condense my comments by saying that it is clear that one of the things which needs examining is the communication breakdown and the recognition of a clear and distinct line of hierarchy, and chain of command at the Prison.

Madam Speaker, on many occasions I have asked questions specifically relating to practices at Northward Prison—which can be deemed, at best, questionable and ill advised. There was a question raised about the ordering and subsequent disappearance of some floor model television sets. There was also the question of the diet of prisoners, where this Honourable House was told that prisoners have the privilege of boneless steak—a luxury, Madam Speaker, many of us on the outside would like to partake of more often.

But perhaps the gravest indictment has to do with the relationship between the authorities at Northward Prison and a company run by a former prisoner, and I asked questions about that also.

I would like now to cite two sections of the Prisons Law (Law 14 of 1975) Prison Rules, 1981; and the Prisons (Discipline for Prison Officers) Regulations, 1984.

The Prisons Law (Law 14 of 1975) Prison Rules, 1981, section 50 (1) states: “50 (1) No officer shall take part in any business or financial transaction with or on behalf of a prisoner or a relative of a prisoner, without the permission of the Director."

The Prisons Law (Law 14 of 1975) Prisons (Discipline for Prison Officers) Regulations, 1984, section 2 states: "2. An officer to whom these Regulations applies commits an offence against discipline if he is guilty of—..." [and I will turn now to section 2 (i):] "carries out any pecuniary or business transaction with or on behalf of any prisoner or ex-prisoner. . ."

Now, Madam Speaker, I would like to lay on the Table of this Honourable House a document in which the administration of the Prison dealt with a company—the principal of which was an ex-prisoner—called "Keys on Wheels."

Madam Speaker, the ex-prisoner, as I understand, was a gentleman convicted of official corruption. I wonder what that is? What charge can be made? I would hope, Madam Speaker, that when the Honourable Judge comes to inspect the Prison he will delve into these matters.

Madam Speaker, there is also the question of the purchasing and inventory practices at Northward Prison. It is my contention that the system lacks sufficient checks and balances so as to ensure that it is not exploited. This, too, is another area in which I hope the Inspector can delve.

As recently as the tabling of the last Public Accounts Committee Report, and as recently as the last Finance Committee Meeting, there was the question of the inordinate sums of money paid to officers for overtime duties at the Prison. This, too, is another area that I hope can be explored.

Madam Speaker, the events which led to the tragedy at Northward Prison did not just happen. I now wish to lay on the Table of this Honourable House a series of documents detailing charges of disrespect, assault, and harassment of civilian staff by certain members of the Prison staff. And also a document detailing explicitly the charge of prisoners working outside the Prison without the relevant authority being given. A question that I might add was raised before by this Member.

The system as it exists needs a thorough overhaul. I support and look forward to the Government's announced inspection. We in this Honourable House and in these Cayman Islands will have to decide whether Northward Prison is going to be a prison in which those of us with sense and some knowledge of our commitments and obligations to society realise that the prisoners, when they go there, must suffer serious sanctions and deprivation; or whether it is going to be run on a laissez-faire basis—lax, seemingly without any rules and regulations—or with the rules and regulations solely and purely for the convenience of some.

For the record, I want to say loud and clear that I am not soft on crime. I have always believed that people who break the rules, taboos, and mores of society must be punished, and punished severely. Those people who are soft on crime must be those who have brought Motions here to get their family and friends released from prison on compassionate or other grounds. That, Madam Speaker, was certainly not this Member, nor was it the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman (the Seconder of this Motion) nor was it the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Madam Speaker, I look forward to this investigation. I commend the Government for the steps taken and offer them my continued support.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is, that Private Member's Motion No. 1/94—Support for Government's Announced Inspection of Northward Prison be approved. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 1/94—SUPPORT FOR GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED INSPECTION OF NORTHWARD PRISON PASSED

The Speaker: We proceed now to Private Member's Motion No. 2/94. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/94
(Withdrawn)

ESTABLISHMENT OF A TRANSPORTATION LICENSING BOARD

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Madam Speaker, it has been agreed that Private Member's Motion No. 2/94, entitled Establishment of a Transportation Licensing Board, moved by myself and seconded by the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, be withdrawn. It has been brought to my attention by the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Communications and Works that the provisions called for in this Motion are covered under the Traffic Law, 1991.

Madam Speaker, specifically, section 41 of that law reads "Public Transportation Board," and under that there is a provision for the establishment of the Board that will be solely responsible for the licensing and discipline of persons employed in the transportation area. So I would just urge the Honourable Minister (and I am aware that he has been trying to get the regulations which must accompany this Law completed by the Attorney-General's office) so that these provisions can be brought in, because, Madam Speaker—

The Speaker: Excuse me Honourable Member. You asked if you could give an explanation as to the reason for the withdrawal of the Motion. You have now given that reason and there is no room for you to debate anything further. Thank you.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder for the withdrawal of the Motion? The Honourable Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: (inaudible)

The Speaker: The question is that Private Member's Motion No. 2/94 be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/94, ESTABLISHMENT OF A TRANSPORTATION LICENSING BOARD WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: We proceed next to Private Member's Motion No. 3/94, entitled Prayers in Public Schools. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 3/94

PRAYERS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 3/94, entitled Prayers in Public Schools, which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS the Cayman Islands have been founded on strong Christian principles which are now being threatened;

"AND WHEREAS at present in certain schools prayer is no longer a required part of the students' daily curriculum;

"AND WHEREAS it is considered essential that the principles of right and wrong, decency and respect for God and our fellowmen be enforced;

"NOW BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House considers recommending to the Ministry of Education that a policy be established requiring the reinstatement of prayers in all public schools in the Cayman Islands."

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wish to second the Motion.

The Speaker: The question is Private Member's Motion No. 3/94—Prayers in Public Schools. The Motion is now open for debate.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Prayer in our public schools has long been a tradition in these Islands. I had the opportunity and privilege of being educated through the public school system in these Islands. I recall my first day at school when at the beginning of the day the Principal, or whoever was in charge, read a scripture and give a little exhortation. We said our prayers and then we went to class. Not only that, but when we took the break for lunch, we would also say Grace; and upon returning from lunch, I think, we said Grace again to start our class. At the end of the day, when school was over, one of the last activities was a closing prayer.

Madam Speaker, this went hand in hand with discipline—it taught one right and wrong. It also taught one the importance of being honest, the importance of respecting God and one's fellowman, and it had a profound impact on the students who attended school during that period of time. When I was in what is now named the John Gray High School, the student population was much less than it is today. But even at the High School, we went through the same ritual on a daily basis. At the beginning of the day we came together as a student body for general assembly. Mr. Gray, our Principal, would read the scripture, give an exhortation, say a prayer and then the students went to their classes.

I realise that that might not be practical on a daily basis now because of the size of the student body at the John Gray High School, and maybe even at the George Hicks High School. But there is no reason why, on a class basis, that this practice cannot be continued.

I did my research, Madam Speaker. I called the different public schools, that is, the Primary Schools, and also the two High Schools, to determine exactly what the practices were. I learned that at the Primary Schools this practice is still rigorously enforced and continues. I think at most schools at the primary level, they still come together as a general body about twice a week. But on a daily basis at the class level, students are still obligated to participate in daily religious or Christian devotion.

What was somewhat surprising in a very positive way, is that even at the George Hicks High School, where in the past we have heard of so many incidents of problems existing, it appears that on a daily basis, even though the student body does not come together every-day as a whole, prayers are still being said at the classroom level.

But, I also called the John Gray High School. I was told that there is a policy in place that religious devotion is supposed to be carried out on a daily basis by the teacher/tutor of the classroom, or whomever is in charge of the group of students on that particular day. The problem is that they have not been consistent in seeing to it that it is being done at this level.

I thought about the situation. In my mind, the reason for this is because we have not been very careful in regard to our recruitment process. It appears that when we look for teachers we look almost specifically at their qualifications rather than questioning them in regard to their religious beliefs, their moral convictions, and other areas that are so important. We are placing our children in the hands of these individuals to mould them for life-time careers.

I also heard horror stories to the effect that there was one teacher at the John Gray High School . . . and the only conclusion I have come to is that he must have been an atheist, because on at least one occasion he saw a student walking down the hall with his Bible in his hand. He took the Bible from the student and threw it in the garbage. I must add that it was a foreign teacher not a Caymanian teacher. Now that, to me, is totally unacceptable.

I believe, Madam Speaker, that the disciplinary problems we have had in the schools in the past have been caused to a great extent by those in charge not adhering to the traditions that we have made a part of our society for so long—traditions such as daily devotions in our schools. The other problem that our schools are faced with is that there is such a variety of students from all geographic backgrounds and cultures whom we are accepting at our schools.

It is the same thing with teachers. It appears that we allow anybody to be a part of our system rather than saying here are our requirements, if you want to be a part of our system, this is what is expected of you, and then we must see to it that this takes place. That has not been the case and as a result we have a situation now which has reached a crisis level.

Madam Speaker, I am aware that section 27 of the Education Law, 1983, reads: “Non-denominational religious worship and instruction shall be given in every government school.” The only thing that I would like to say to that is that it does not say how often. Maybe the present Minister can take note of this and see to it that as a policy this religious worship or devotional period is done on a daily basis.

I believe that this situation has to be addressed. My proposal for addressing this would be as follows: I recommend that greater care and scrutiny in recruitment of teachers be exercised, and before a decision for a contract that it be understood exactly where they stand with regard to their religious convictions or belief.

Madam Speaker, I am not sure that everybody is going to agree with this, but I would recommend that recruitment of teachers be done more from within the region of the Caribbean because, as a general rule, West Indians are a very religious group of people. I believe that research would show that the problems we have had in the schools with regard to inconsistency of the daily devotion is the non-involvement our West Indian teachers and rather the involvement of teachers from other jurisdictions.

I would also recommend that closer monitoring be done on a daily basis to see to it that teachers/tutors are carrying out daily devotions with their students.

Madam Speaker, the only thing that is positive about this situation is that I am aware that the present Minister for Education, the Honourable Truman Boddan, has a very keen interest in education and has taken a hands-on approach to this subject. By that, I mean that he gets out there and visits the schools. He sits down and talks to the teachers and the students to determine what they need and what is going on. He has a very conservative religious background, like me.

I am confident that since this issue has been highlighted, he will address it and correct this very serious inconsistency with respect to the lack of daily religious devotions in our public schools which is so essential to the spiritual welfare of our students and in turn the welfare of this country.

Madam Speaker, I recommend this Motion to Honourable Members. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Government is happy to support this Motion. However, I would like to explain (and I think the Mover has gone a long way in saying) that it is really more the monitoring of prayers in schools rather than the question of reinstatement of prayers.

Many years ago, when we passed the 1983 Education Law, section 27 provided that non-denominational religious worship and instruction shall be given in every Government school, and that is very clear. I agree that the question of closer monitoring, perhaps in some of the schools is something that could always improve the situation. At present, as I understand, all Government Primary Schools conduct prayers on a daily basis. General religious assemblies are held on Mondays and Fridays, and these are occasions when visiting Ministers of Religion address the students and members of the staff.

Class religious assemblies are held on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, at the beginning of the morning sessions. These assemblies are arranged and conducted by the class teachers. Religious education is taught as a curricula subject at least twice weekly in all classes. That was all relating to the primary schools.

In the secondary schools, class devotions are held during tutorials on a daily basis and are conducted by tutors. The Year assemblies are held twice weekly and full school assemblies are held at the beginning and the end of each term. Once again, Ministers of Religion are usually invited as guest speakers.

So, that is not only in the Law, but it is also the written policy at the school, that the tutor groups should start the day with prayer. It is also a part of the accepted policy by the policy committee, which was attended by the Heads of Year, the Senior Heads of Department, and the five Senior Management staff at the John Gray High School.

Also, the School Handbook provides written guidance to tutors on the point. So, I believe that as far as making provision for it goes, and I realise that the Honourable Member who moved it is not getting at this aspect, but I just wanted to make clear that the policy in place was a policy that I instituted many years ago. It probably was in there prior to 1976, I would have thought as well. I am sure it was in there, but it is one that is now in as firm a policy and as firm in the law as we can go.

As the Member mentioned, I feel sure that perhaps there are times when there needs to be further enforcement of this, or perhaps a teacher or a tutor may be a bit lax on this. I will give the undertaking to follow up on this. I will also ask that when the planning exercise is going on, if the planning team feels that it is necessary to further look at it, that this could be taken into one of the action teams and further dealt with. In fact, I am fairly sure that it will be dealt with because we will have Ministers of Religion, amongst other people, on those committees.

In relation to the teaching of religious education, I do not think necessarily that where the teacher comes from is the turning point as to whether religious education is taught, or whether daily worship or prayers are enforced. Actually, the Honourable Member moving the Motion mentioned that perhaps more of the regional input of teachers might be better. I would just like to remind this Honourable House that the GCSE in religious knowledge has a much more Christian content in it and a lot less of the non-Christian religions, and this is the reason why they have chosen to follow the GCSE rather than getting into religions that are non-Christian. And within this community the vast number of people are obviously Christians.

Many of the teachers from within ... and I am not saying that this has any effect on the teachers. But I think that where they came from they were probably taught religious education when they were in school, and it is really a matter of the upbringing. So, we try to have teachers from different parts of the world—the Caribbean, the United Kingdom, Canada, the United States—so that there is some variety and some spread of teachers within the schools. I would hope that the vast majority of teachers, no matter where they are from, would look at this as a very important aspect of school life. I know that within the private schools definitely, there is also a very high content of religious knowledge, worship and teaching of religion within it.

The Motion is a good Motion. I would merely say that in accepting it, I would be accepting that one may need to monitor more closely that aspect of it, but it does go on and the policy is very clearly there, and the Law is there for all public schools. I know that it does go on, as I said earlier, in the Private Schools.

So I am happy to accept this Motion on that basis, and I would give an undertaking that the concerns of this Honourable House will be passed on to the schools that the Honourable Mover has mentioned.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.26 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.45 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 3/94. The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I am a firm believer in prayer. I was raised with it in my home, and in all my school days we had prayers every day. I am sure that that is why the children of those days had better behaviour as they grew up than the children of these modern days.

Prayers should be something that we have at all times—especially in schools for the youth. If you notice, ever since the Bible and prayer has been moved out of school the behaviour of the youth has been sliding. With that, I am very glad to know that we are continuing here with it and whatever can be done to improve it, I hope it will be done.

I firmly support this Motion. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, I will ask the Mover of the Motion if he would like to exercise his right of reply.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I would just like to say thanks to my fellow colleagues who spoke in support of the Motion, and also to those who gave their silent support. I look forward to the policy of prayers, daily devotions, in public schools being more closely monitored.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: I shall put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 3/94, Prayer in Public Schools. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion has been duly passed.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 3/94 PASSED.

The Speaker: At this time the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture will make a personal explanation.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

REGARDING REMARKS MADE BY THE FIRST ELECTED MEMBER FOR BODDEN TOWN

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, thank you very much.

I rise to make an explanation to this Honourable House in regard to remarks made by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, remarks that are already public knowledge.

Some years ago, a former Member of this House, in an attempt to smear my name, tried to associate my name with persons with who I had never met. Nor had I anything to do with a company in which I had briefly (just a couple of months) been a director. I was asked by a very reputable law firm to be that director.

When that company was called into question, the law firm advised me to withdraw my name. This was done and I, myself, made this matter public. I voluntarily informed the Cayman Islands Police immediately of the situation.

I am happy that each time an attempt is made by politicians, or other detractors, to smear me I only grow stronger because the people can trust me.

I would hope, Madam Speaker, that when any Member has an allegation against me or any Minister of Government, they would put it on the Table of this House, and not hide behind the Standing Orders where they have the last say. That shows their dishonesty.

Perhaps, Madam Speaker, that particular Member, who is always so gracious, would explain to this House the many times his name has been called into question with drugs in this country.

The Speaker: The next item is Private Member's Motion No. 4/94, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/94
(Withdrawn)

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Madam Speaker, I wish to withdraw the Motion.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder for the withdrawal of the Motion?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I second that motion.

The Speaker: The question is that Private Member's Motion No. 4/94 be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The motion is accordingly withdrawn.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/94 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: The next item is Private Member's Motion 5/94, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 5/94

REVIEW OF THE PENAL SYSTEM IN THE CAYMAN ISLANDS
(Withdrawn)

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, I beg to withdraw Private Member's Motion No. 5/94, entitled A Review of the Penal System in the Cayman Islands, because it has been determined that what I am seeking in this Motion can easily be achieved under the review of the Penal Code.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder?
The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Yes, Madam Speaker, I wish to second it.

The Speaker: The question is that Private Member's Motion No. 5/94 be withdrawn. The Motion has been duly moved and seconded. If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The motion is accordingly withdrawn.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 5/94 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 6/94, Weights and Measures Law. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I beg your pardon...

The Speaker: I am sorry, this was incorrectly stated on the Order Paper. It is to be moved by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I do apologise for that.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 6/94

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES LAW
(Withdrawn)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I seek leave of the House to withdraw the Motion entitled Weights and Measures Law. When it was prepared, I was unaware of certain information in relation to this subject and the Motion, as it was originally submitted, would not be correct. It would require amendments that I have not been able to make nor circulate in time. Therefore, I would like to withdraw the Motion, which I could bring at another time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I wish to second the motion.

The Speaker: The question is that Private Member's Motion 6/94 be withdrawn. It has been moved and seconded, if there is no debate I shall put the question.

Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Private Member's Motion 6/94 has been withdrawn.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 6/94 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 7/94, Fair Competition Law. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I am sorry, Madam Speaker, there seems to be a mix up.

The Speaker: I am sorry, I am reading the Order Paper which was apparently incorrectly stated. I do apologise.

This is to be moved by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/94

FAIR COMPETITION LAW

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I wish to move Private Member's Motion No. 7/94, standing in my name, entitled, Fair Competition Law. It reads as follows:

"WHEREAS Caymanians in some businesses have been complaining about unfair competition from non-Caymanians;

"AND WHEREAS there is growing concern among many Caymanians providing tourist related services that unfair competition from non-Caymanian elements is detrimental to Caymanians;

"AND WHEREAS some Legislative Assembly Members received at least one written complaint dated 6th March, 1992 dealing with 'unethical business practices' by one non-Caymanian;

"AND WHEREAS there is a need for some form of legislation which protects consumers from misleading advertising and other un-competitive practices;

"AND WHEREAS such an act will promote active vigilance among consumers;

"AND WHEREAS a Fair Competition Law will encourage businesses to exercise more care and responsibility in how they promote and sell their goods and services;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT Government explore the possibility of establishing a Fair Competition Law;

"AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Government consider setting up a Fair Trade Commission to complement such a Fair Competition Law."

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, in the absence of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, I would like to second that Motion.

The Speaker: The Motion has been duly moved and seconded, and is now open for debate.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Motion is duly and adequately explained by the various clauses. It is a recognised fact in most developed countries, and certainly in many developing countries, that such instruments as a Fair Competition Law and a Fair Trading Commission serve not only to regulate fair and ethical practices, but also to encourage and to protect those persons on both sides of the business, that is, the merchant as well as the consumer.

Here in the Cayman Islands, we have been brought shockingly face-to-face with some needs and desires to come to a more organised and sensible system in dealing with businesses, particularly which have to do with providing goods and services in tourist related areas.

In my research, I was able to obtain the Fair Competition Acts and Laws of three countries from Commonwealth jurisdictions, namely, Canada, Australia, and Jamaica. While in many respects these instruments are perhaps a little more elaborate and far reaching than we in the Cayman Islands would require at this time, they are no doubt good sources of guidance and good models for us to use if we are serious in the development of such an instrument, or in the development of such a commission in these Islands.

I believe that many Honourable Members will realise the necessity and importance of having this kind of instrument and protection and I would ask that Honourable Members see fit to support this request.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna Thompson-Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This month will see 30 years of existence for the Chamber of Commerce. During the last two years the Chamber of Commerce has established a Better Business Bureau. This was established in order to prevent unfair practices, false advertising, complaints, and other problems of business practices. This has been in existence for less than two years, and I feel that we should give the Better Business Bureau an opportunity to continue hearing complaints, trying to settle these complaints without having to go into legislation. I believe that when this was being established the previous Government said that they would support the Better Business Council. Our present Government is certainly supporting it.

I do not see the need for this Motion because I believe that fair competition exists now. If a customer has a problem with a certain business, I feel that they should work it out. If they are not satisfied, then they should go to the Chamber of Commerce. There are over 500 members in the Chamber. In addition to that, the Better Business Council also has members. I think that this could be worked out without legislation. Therefore, Madam Speaker, I cannot support this Motion.

Thank you.

[1 minute 8 second pause]

The Speaker: If no other Member wishes to debate the Motion, I will ask the Mover if he would like to—

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I certainly support this Motion—while I observe the Elected Government Members sit on the other side and giggle. I suppose the situation has changed, whereby Government responds to whether they accept or reject a Motion.

Madam Speaker, all progressive Motions brought to this House do not go very far with the Government of the day. We boast that we have so much business in this country—all types, particularly in the financial industry—and we are aware that businesses in this country on a daily basis practice the business of trading. It is a question of whether that trading is fair and competitive.

There are many instances of complaints among businesses about competition from which they suffer, such as from the briefcase merchants, as they are termed, who come to these Islands. There are instances when they come here without work permits and go from door to door soliciting business for certain goods and commodities for which they take orders. Persons or businesses on the Islands do not benefit from those purchases, and it has been cited in many instances that such is unfair competition.

On the question of advertising, it was established during a Session of this House that there is clearly unfair advertisement on board cruise ships. There have been various instances of it. In one case, it was cited that the Governor of the day was given a tape, which had advertising on it. The peculiar thing about that was that there were certain allegations with regard to the Monarch receiving a gift designed and prepared by a certain business here on this Island. We know that under the Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly it is even forbidden to use the Monarch's name in attempting to make any point. That is but one instance of unfair advertising to the detriment of others.

There was also one instance where a foreign employee of the proprietor of what was once a very large business trading in certain goods and services, set about gaining the franchises (whilst allegedly doing the business of his employer) for the various products which he was selling on behalf of his employer. When the employer discovered what was happening, he had to buy the goods from the person he had employed for so many years, as he was the sole representative.

That particular person left the employment of this local employer and actually went into business with another Caymanian, now selling his own goods through this company. It was obviously permitted by our Trade and Business Licensing Board for how else did he get a work permit and how else did the company get such a licence?

As it ended up, it is my understanding that the very same individual buried the next Caymanian in the process of this type of dealing, and I am told that he still extends his hands into the Cayman Islands through other business places here. He advertises his offices here in the Cayman Islands in various businesses.

Madam Speaker, the business of ensuring that businesses fairly compete with one another can hardly be left to the businesses themselves to enforce. I have in my possession a copy of a letter sent to the Mover of this Motion from the Chamber of Commerce. It is in regard to what the Chamber of Commerce has done in this direction (as referred to by the speaker immediately before me) that can hardly be sufficient in terms of enforcing a particular way of doing business. The Chamber of Commerce itself must fall within the ambit of some particular law in its functioning here. Worldwide, regulatory activity is vested in the Government through laws and regulations.

In a Fair Competition Law, many things are covered. In our neighbouring Island of Jamaica, which is close to us and under similar British Jurisdiction, they have a law as recent as 1993 covering a multitude of areas where the public, business people and consumers, are encouraged in familiarising themselves with the Fair Competition Law.

For example, misleading advertising and practice, or oral representation, is forbidden under the law. People are not allowed to make any false price claims. They can be called to prove what the prices are. It covers the sale of harmful or defective products and services, without making adequate disclosure. To the best of my knowledge we have no such thing in these Islands and for us to be such an intense, consumer-oriented society, it would very much be in order.

A Fair Competition Law would also see to it that businesses selling certain products that should be passing on warranties as given by manufacturers, must stay by those warranties. I would not for one minute say that in this country that is the case as far as all businesses go. Some do, others do not. If there was a Fair Competition Law then, indeed, such a clause would undoubtedly be a part of it.

It places the authority for enforcement of such areas in the hands of a Commissioner or a Commission. It provides that a business that is aggrieved, or feels that it is in a position where it is receiving unfair competition, may go to the Commission to be heard and it also allows the individual to seek redress when they feel they have a case to answer. Any proper fair competition act would prohibit both price fixing too low, where the person places the prices so low simply to undercut another business. It would also cover price fixing in terms of fixing prices that are way above those which are realistic, proper, and legal. It would, of course apply similarly where services are concerned.

Madam Speaker, this Motion is asking for legislation that would clearly set down parameters in which businesses in the Cayman Islands can, and should, be carried on. There are various pieces of legislation that are available in the Commonwealth on this, and most of the progressive jurisdictions have a fair competition law.

Where a business carries on activity, where competition is not allowed in the normal fashion, or action is taken to hinder competition in a fair way, consumer and country pay the price. One unfair act creates another and on and on it goes.

I do not know how much one sees accurate bargain or sale prices and, indeed, whether the prices are lower than the ones before, or, indeed, if the claims made—both in the percentage and the value of the goods—truly reflect accurately the price being offered. One could not advertise a particular product at a low price to attract and get a big rush of customers knowing full well that there are not sufficient goods to be sold at that price—simply to lure customers and then to raise the prices.

I am not saying that these things do occur in these Islands now. But these are some of the things that do occur in the world in terms of the sale of goods and services. So by clearly legislating what would be acceptable for businesses in these Islands, a Fair Competition Law would guard against these things. It would also see to it that there could be no bid rigging.

I would just like to quote from the Fair Competition Act, 1993, of Jamaica, where it speaks of bid rigging. It reads: “36 (1) Subject to subsection (2), it is unlawful for two or more persons to enter into an agreement whereby - (a) one or more of them agree or undertake not to submit a bid in response to a call or request for bids or tenders; or (b) as bidders or tenderers they submit, in response to a call or request, bids or tenders that are arrived at by agreement between or among themselves.”

Section 36(2) reads: “36 (2) This section shall not apply in respect of any agreement that is entered into or a submission that is arrived at only by companies each of which is in respect of one of the others, an affiliate.”

So, a Fair Competition Act clearly sets down guidelines, laws, legislation that clearly guides businesses in the conducting of their affairs.

Madam Speaker, there are many other areas where it is possible for the market to be restricted in a certain manner to force prices to raise, what is also termed “dumping,” to drive down prices to send someone out of business. There is tide selling where businesses buy from suppliers and have to sell those products at the prices dictated by the suppliers. This brings gain to the supplier because otherwise one is not able to trade.

There are so many other various things which occur in business—and have occurred over years, generations, and so on—so that businesses and responsible governments realise that there is a need for legislation. Regrettably, that is not the case where this Government is concerned.

We have two monopolies in this country. Our electricity and telephone companies. Without doubt, they have dominant positions in this country, which, through their actions or in-actions touch the lives of every individual and certainly every business. While they have their franchise or license—and they generally, in my opinion, operate within the realm of straightforward business dealings—who knows if there are not instances where (not necessarily deliberate) some things are done that if examined by a Fair Trade Commission could be found not to be in the best interest of the consumer, and therefore not of the public.

So, there are so many areas that are covered by a Fair Competition Law. This Government could wisely accept such a proposal to examine it and indeed come up with something that is acceptable for the Cayman Islands.

Madam Speaker, I would have said nothing really had it not been that I hoped that someone somewhere would grasp a little of what I have been able to find out about fair trading legislation. It could be recognised that such a thing is desirable, and that it is found in most progressive societies; that it could be understood that we do not have in this country such legislation or such protection and so on. Really, as a people we are at the mercy of what businesses may or may not do in these Islands.

As the Elected Members of Government continue in merriment and mirth, perhaps they will find a means of explaining to the public in due course the need for or against such legislation.

Madam Speaker, I support this Motion which is before the House.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 Standing Order 10(2)

The Speaker: It is now 4:30 and I doubt that we will conclude. I will ask for the Motion for the adjournment by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock Monday morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do adjourn until 10 o'clock Monday Morning. If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES

The Speaker: The ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday morning, the 7th of March.

AT 4.32 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 7 MARCH 1994.

EDITED
MONDAY
7 MARCH 1994
10.11 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Second Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

I have granted the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture permission to make a statement.

STATEMENT BY HONOURABLE MINISTER

MOMENTOUS VICTORY OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS FOOTBALL TEAM

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I thank you, as well as the Members of this Honourable House, for allowing me space on the Order Paper to speak on a previously unscheduled subject: The momentous victory of the Cayman Islands Football Team last night, thus qualifying Cayman to participate in the final round of the Shell Caribbean Cup for only the second time ever. This was also the first time that our senior National Team defeated their Jamaican counterparts.

As everyone knows, Phase I of the Ed Bush Sports Centre was declared open by Her Majesty the Queen on 26th February. In a happy coincidence, just four days later kick-off took place there in our zone of the Shell Caribbean Cup as we hosted the British Virgin Islands, St. Maarten, and Jamaica.

As the week went on, some of the high scores recorded did not reflect the high calibre of play shown on all sides. It became apparent, however, that we were headed for a showdown with our old rivals, the Jamaica National Team, as only one team could qualify from this group. That final and decisive game of the tournament took place last night.

It has often been remarked at Cayman-Jamaica clashes that it seems from the supporters that there are more Jamaicans than Caymanians living here; and even if their numbers at a game are smaller, their support for their team is more evident. I am happy to report that this was certainly not the case last night. Caymanians were out in force to support our National Team, and they certainly made themselves heard. I am even happier to report that this could well be called a tremendous exhibition of civic pride, as, in spite of the obviously high emotions, last night's game and the tournament in general, went off without incident.

In this vein, I am proud to be able to report that not only did Cayman win the tournament, but they also won the fair play award for lowest number of bookings of players. This is the standard of discipline that our young people are capable of achieving.

I should say, Madam Speaker, it is obvious that the money on the coach was well spent by Government and the Cayman Islands Football Association, who co-sponsored the coach.

The achievements of the National Football Team are achievements for Cayman. As such, they illustrate one of the primary reasons why sports have great significance for my Ministry, and why this Government has committed itself to the development of sports programmes and sports facilities. The victory of our team has provided a lift in the mood of the people and has spurred feelings of pride to a degree perhaps only fully comprehensible to those present for the games, but which has also spilled over to some degree into the society generally.

To the visiting teams, we say thanks for the keen competition. We shall no doubt meet again. As they say in football "the ball is round." For now, however, we look forward to the finals in Trinidad and Tobago in April, and hope that the community and the corporate sponsors will continue to support our team as generously as they have done so far. With such support, they are bound to do well.

I would like to take this opportunity to say a big thank you to Shell, the main sponsor of this competition, as well as the local corporate and individual sponsors. I must also acknowledge employers, both Government and the private sector, who allowed our team members time off to prepare for and participate in this tournament so far. I am sure that the players' family support and that of many friends also provided a big boost to them.

The game officials must be commended for their overall high standard of officiating. The Cayman Islands Football Association Executive, its many voluntary assistants, and its coaching and management groups for the team, must also be highly commended for their extremely hard work and attention to detail.

All of these efforts would, however, be to little avail were it not for the consistent effort of the team—their spirit of fair play and, most importantly, their high standard of football over the past week. May God continue to bless all concerned and especially the players for whom I wish continued health and strength and sharpness of insight, that they may continue to play well and do the whole country proud once more in April in Trinidad.

Madam Speaker, little David put a stone in his little sling and it went around and the giant fell. This year marks 40 years of football in my district—1954 to 1994. Sports, I believe is on the rebound and we as a Government are going to do all that is in our power to continue the advancement.

Thank you very much, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Presentation of Papers and Report. The Report of the Doctor Hortor Memorial Hospital Commission of Inquiry by Sir Peter Allen. The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

THE REPORT OF THE DOCTOR HORTOR MEMORIAL HOSPITAL COMMISSION OF INQUIRY BY SIR PETER ALLEN

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House the Report of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital Commission of Inquiry, by Sir Peter Allen.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, before I speak to the Report, I have often commented on attitudes of reporters and the responsibility of the news media in this country to acknowledge and understand the principles of Parliament. They should well understand that when a Report has been promised to the nation by His Excellency the Governor, the Government and His Excellency will keep their word and that Report will be laid on the Table. When it is laid on the Table it is a public document.

I take a dim view of the media's abhorrence of the principles of Parliament, making public a report that sat on a Member's desk in this House, well knowing that it is to be tabled early during in the meeting.

It is not only when a Member of this House gets hot under the collar and clashes with another Member that it is an abhorrence of Parliamentary decency, but these actions—which I term dirty espionage—are continuing in the Government in regard to reports which are being made public before they reach the Speaker's desk. I take a grim view and I am going to urge this Parliament to put sanctions in our Standing Orders for such actions. The press must understand and uphold their responsibilities to principles of Parliament.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, before you proceed with your presentation of the Report, I just wish to say that the Chair has observed the publication of portions of this report prior to its being laid on the Table, and the matter will be taken up with the publishers of the newspaper.

Please continue.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I am pleased to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Report of the Commission of Inquiry.

Honourable Members will note that the Commissioner seems to have gone far afield of his terms of reference as prescribed to him by His Excellency the Governor in his appointment of 18th February, 1993.

It is also obvious and strange that the Commissioner chose to comment at length upon some matters after examination, whilst on other very important matters—which were crucial to his terms of reference—did not seem to attract the same level of scrutiny and comment. Nevertheless, his report did confirm this Government's initial concerns about the events and circumstances relating to the awarding and signing of the contract of this project.

Lest anyone, including the previous Member, feel any false sense of security, I wish to make it absolutely clear that this report highlights a number of grave inconsistencies which most definitely caused a breach in public trust and a breach of standard Government practices.

Madam Speaker and Honourable Members, before going into these inconsistencies, I would first like to reiterate the Government's, and the National Team's, initial concerns on existing convictions on the proposed Dr.

Hortor Memorial Hospital. The House will know, however, that the inquiry was completed without the benefit of any aid of the Chief Executive Officer who had promised to be the Government's chief witness, but who suddenly died the same week he was to give Government much evidence, and records only he had possession of, and of which he would not surrender without his presence. Strange indeed.

This, of course, weakened Government's position. Of course, Madam Speaker, with no Dr. Martin Smith there was no real evidence.

Initial Concerns With The Project: There was doubt in the minds of Government and the people about the efficiency of the split-site model as proposed by the previous Government. This concern was also shared by many in the medical profession and the public at large. We were not convinced that the figure of $16.5 million was totally reliable, as it was not representative of all the costs of the project, such as the access road as well as possible contract variations for unforeseen developments during later stages of the project.

This was confirmed by the Chief Engineer of the Public Works Department, and is contained on page 15 of the Report. There was significant concern about the economic justification for this project, both from the standpoint of the capital, that is, the loan funding costs for the construction, as well as the annual recurrent expenditure required to operate this modern facility. This concern arose from the fact that much of the forecasting, that is, the utilisation figures and cash flow projections, were kept secret from public and independent scrutiny. These were mentioned by the Commissioner on page 8 of his Report.

From a costing perspective, there was concern about the staffing numbers used for the new Hospital, as well as the inadequacy of the information on building and equipment maintenance and other operating costs, as carried on pages 15 and 17 of the Report.

From a revenue forecasting perspective, the Report also confirms our initial concerns in a number of important areas. For example, the number of beds to be utilised was based on an inflated and unrealistic population prediction for these Islands. In determining the health care requirements, the Hospital consultants (International Health Care Corporation) forecasted a population of 38,000 by the year 2000, whereas the Chief Statistician had projected 31,000 for the year 2000—a significant variance indeed.

Further, the Hospital consultants did not recognise the impact which competition would have had on their projections.

As reported on page 17 of his report, the Commissioner listed some of the very sensible criticisms which the economic unit of Government had made on the project—unrealistic population growth; exaggerated demand or utilisation of the facilities and services; significant increase to our national debt and the level of inflation; and possibly insufficient revenue being generated for the Hospital to pay for itself.

Important Inconsistencies and/or Irregularities: I now move to the core of my contribution dealing with the actions, events and circumstances which resulted in breaches of Government practices, as well as a breach in the trust of the Caymanian public.

Tendering Process: It is a well known fact that the tenders from the contractors for this project were not handled through the Central Tenders Committee, but were handled by the Health Services Authority Board and/or its subcommittee. While there are arguments concerning the technical nature of the works and the technical advice and/or analysis needed, this could have been provided to the Central Tenders Committee just as it was provided to the Health Services Authority at that time.

Due to a technicality, the previous Executive Council ruled that even though the Government was to be guaranteeing the loan, the tenders for the project did not have to go through the Central Tenders Committee. Despite these technicalities, it would have been prudent and proper for the tenders to be handled in accordance with the Financial and Stores Regulations, especially in view of the size and scope of the project, the amount of the Government guarantee and the uncertainty regarding the project. The absence of following these generally accepted procedures resulted in a breach of Government practices as well as public trust.

Payment For Five Full-page Print Advertisements for the New Hospital: There still seems to be some uncertainty as to who paid for these five meaningless advertisements and why they were initiated. The previous Member indicated in this House by way of an answer to a question put to him, that he paid for the advertisements himself. However, in his and Mr. Hurlstone's (the contractor) testimony before the Commissioner, there was some selective memory and it now seems that both shared in the cost for the advertisements, even though the bills say the contractor paid all the costs. This type of cooperation between the Chairman of the Health Services Authority and a principal of one of the firms bidding for the contract—whom he has admitted was his close political ally and a close personal friend—will obviously cause the reasonable man to draw inferences which can erode public trust.

Mobilisation Payment of $1 Million to Hurlstone Construction Limited: Madam Speaker, the report confirms that Hurlstone Construction Ltd requested this payment after their tender, whereas two other companies requested it in writing at the time of submitting their tender. Hurlstone Construction was paid the $1 million mobilisation fee on the 11th of August, 1992, despite the fact that they did not start working on the site until at least two months later. At the same time, no contract had been signed and there were still many disputes and unresolved details. Hurlstone Construction Ltd had use of these funds for a long period. Government was paying interest on this money. Government's interest was not protected and this practice was contrary to standard Government procedures.

Delays in Securing Performance Bond: The section of the Commissioner's Report on the Performance Bond (contained on pages 54 to 59) is certainly revealing. For various reasons the Contractor, Hurlstone Construction Ltd, was having repeated delays in obtaining a performance bond for this contract. As an interim measure (or at least that was what they said), they proposed to pledge some of the principal shares in Anderson Holdings. This was eventually accepted by the Health Services Authority Board, which indicated that they had no choice at this late stage. But, nevertheless, it was without the advice of the Health Services Authority's lawyers or the Legal Department of the Government.

In fact, commenting on the arrangement the legal draftsman "expressed concern in court that the shares represented a beneficial interest in the holding company rather than a direct interest in the development company which holds the real assets; nor did they provide a lien over the realty (a building in GT [George Town]) which thus was not encumbered in favour of the HSA [Health Services Authority]." (page 58, paragraph 2 of the Commissioner's Report)

Madam Speaker, why the rush to be so creative in trying to push this project through without ensuring that Government's interests were well protected? Was this all for political expedience? Ego? Or were there other motives? These are the types of inconsistencies which the Commissioner should have taken more time with and pried into, rather than going far afield with minor issues.

Lack of Legal Advice: As pointed out on page 58 of the Commissioner's Report, much ground had been covered with regard to the tender, the letter of intent and contract negotiations, without the advice of the Health Services Authority's attorneys (Charles Adams, Ritchie and Duckworth), or the Legal Department of Government, until problems arose with the purported resignation of the Chief Executive Officer of the Health Services Authority—the late Dr. Martin-Smith.

The present Governor, upon learning that the contract had not been signed earlier and that the documents were not reviewed by the Legal Department, directed that this be done before the signing. Therefore, both the Legal Department and the Health Services Authority lawyers got involved in reviewing the contract documents in the 11th hour when it was hardly possible to make any meaningful changes in light of the previous Member's unrealistic timetable for the project.

The section of the Report on legal advice (pages 72 to 75) shows little regard for the legal resources available to the Health Services Authority, underscores the rushed nature of the Health Services Authority and the previous Member's dealings, and highlights the results of their collective ill-advised actions. Had it not been for the Governor's intervention, the entire matter would not have received any legal advice at all.

Planning Problems: Pages 59 to 65 highlight the concern of the Planning Department and the Building Control Unit with this project and sheds some light on the debate between bureaucrats and the project architects on major structural issues. Despite the genuine concern by the Planning officials, the previous Member intervened. The bureaucrats were pushed into submission and obtained a letter of confirmation on the 30th of October—the day of the groundbreaking ceremony.

Madam Speaker—all of this in the name of pushing through a project which was already rushed, and for which there was much public concern.

Removal of Termination Clause 14.4: Pages 67 and 68 reflect the manoeuvring which had now become commonplace with this project. Despite expert advice from attorneys, project managers, etcetera, indicating that it was not necessary to remove this clause, it was removed by the insistence of the Member, the Health Services Authority's Board and the contractor. Again, another cause for concern.

Madam Speaker, it should now be clear, even to the unbeliever, that there were serious breaches in the events and circumstances surrounding the tendering and awarding of the contract for this project. These breaches are serious enough to cause a breach in standard Government practices and public trust.

Honourable Members, anyone who takes the time to read this report will conclude that not everything is all above board, as the Caymanian Compass headline of today seems to suggest. I trust that Members and the public will take time to carefully review this important report.

Madam Speaker, under Standing Order 9(i) I now move that the House do take note of the Report, and that the Report do lie on the Table.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, you drew attention to Standing Order 9(i)? I am afraid that deals with Special Meetings.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Sorry, Madam Speaker, Standing Order 24(9)(i).

The Speaker: Well, the Chair had already ordered that the Report lie on the Table and there is no necessity then for anything else to be moved, Honourable Minister.

We will now proceed to Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 22 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MINISTERS /MEMBERS

QUESTION NO. 22

No. 22: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member under what circumstances are riot and crowd control gear issued to Prison Officers at Northward Prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Riot and crowd control gear is only issued to staff at Northward Prison for defensive and protective purposes.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say what kind of training and how often these members undergo this training for these types of events?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The training has been done once per month.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Member is in a position to state what kind of equipment is available on occasions like these.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It is my understanding that the riot gear consists of batons, helmets, shields, and bullet-proof vests.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say if any of this riot and crowd control training is done jointly with the police, or is it exclusively for the unit at the Northward Prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It is my understanding that it is done exclusively by the prison staff.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Member could tell us who conducts the training sessions, which are done annually and what are the qualifications deemed necessary.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Member could clarify that. I mentioned earlier that the training was done monthly. Is he speaking of some other kind of training?

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am sorry if I misunderstood, Madam Speaker. What I am trying to find out is whether those persons who conduct this training—and, if it is done monthly, then maybe I misunderstood—are qualified persons from within the prison staff, or if it is something like picking up a football and just playing.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The trainers are actually trained by a team from Quebec. They are members of the prison staff, but they are trained.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I notice from the list of protective gear and items issued to these officers that conspicuous by its absence was a gas mask. I wonder if this was an omission due to error, or if there are no gas masks in the equipment issued.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It is my understanding that the inventory of equipment does not include gas masks.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. May I ask what the reason or rationale is for this exclusion?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer is that no gas is used, therefore gas masks are not considered necessary.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 23, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 23

No. 23: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member by what ranks is Northward Prison administered on weekends and public holidays?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Northward Prison is administered on weekends and public holidays by a shift Commander who is a Lead Officer in charge of a division of junior rank officers. A Principal Officer is on call. The Principal Officer Security, the Deputy Director, and the Director are available by phone and beeper.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Beyond what the Honourable Member has outlined, is there a system in place where the Director or Deputy Director makes spot checks during weekends and public holidays?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It is my understanding that, yes, random checks are made on weekends and public holidays.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 24, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 24

No. 24: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member whether the members of the maintenance department at Northward Prison are offered the same training as regular prison officers.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Yes, the members of the maintenance department are offered the same training as regular prison officers.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say since when has this practice been instituted?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It is my understanding that although maintenance staff are often recruited at separate times from regular prison officers, they are given training—sometimes individually or in small groups. But they do get training and have been getting training for some time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say if the maintenance staff at Northward Prison fall in the same category as the regular prison officers by virtue of the fact that they receive the same type of training?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It is my understanding that once you are employed by the Prison, even if not in the capacity of a prison officer, even maintenance staff are considered under the rules prison officers.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Member would be in a position to describe what type of training is involved.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I am afraid I cannot give the specifics as to the type of training, but I am told that a basic prison officer's training course is done. Some specialised training is also done as well.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Member say if there have been any applications by members of the maintenance department to be transferred into the regular Prison Officer Corps? And how are these applications processed and dealt with?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. That question sounds a little way out, but since I have the Acting Prison Director present, he tells me that these applications are considered along with any other applications that they receive.

QUESTION NO. 25

No. 25: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation if anyone is being held responsible for the losses of Cayman Airways Limited accruing from the Guinness Peat Lease, including legal costs, etcetera, and, if not, why not?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker. This matter may be relevant to a civil case filed in the Grand Court [captioned] Kel Thompson vs. Cayman Airways Limited, and is therefore sub judice.

The Speaker: It is now 11 o'clock, if we wish to complete the remaining questions it is necessary for a suspension of Standing Orders.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: In accordance with Standing Order 83, I move the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) to allow the other questions to be taken this morning.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23(7) and (8) be suspended to allow the remaining questions on today's Order Paper. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it. The Standing Order is accordingly suspended.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE REMAINING QUESTIONS ON THE ORDER PAPER TO BE TAKEN.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 26, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 26

No. 26: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation what has happened to the executive committee which existed in Cayman Airways Limited during the recent past?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker. This executive committee became defunct and last met in mid 1991.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if that committee has been replaced by other persons who are doing the same type of activity in the company Cayman Airways Limited?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer is, no.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 27, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 27

No. 27: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation what is the length of the lease agreement between Cayman Airways Limited and International Leasing Finance Corporation for the 737-200 aircraft?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Presumably, the question refers to the termination dates of the aircraft leases. CNN terminates 28th February, 1995; CYB terminates 31st May, 1995.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Minister say if there are any break clauses in this agreement, and, if it is initiated by Cayman Airways Limited or by the company, are there any penalties?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, without looking at the details of those leases I would not be able to answer that.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister—like no one in this House—has spoken time and again about contracts that cannot be broken. Is he saying that there is no break clause in these leases? He must know that because I would assume that he had dealings in writing them.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, while I accept that I have a reasonably good memory, unless I look at those leases I cannot tell the Honourable Member whether there are termination clauses. But what I would undertake, Madam Speaker, is to look at them and give him the answer at a later stage if he so wished, in writing or whatever.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I would certainly be happy to see the answer in writing as I imagine other Members of the House would. I would like to ask if it is possible for Cayman Airways Limited to lease aircraft from any other company other than International Leasing Finance Corporation, or is the company now in a locked position with International Leasing Finance Corporation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, unless there is a termination clause, or unless there is an agreement by the lessor (which is International Leasing Finance Corporation), then the contract would remain until it terminated. Once again it depends on this clause.

And it is unfortunate, if the Member wanted to ask that, that he did not do so specifically, in which case I could have looked it up.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. The next item is Government Business, Bills; the suspension of Standing Order 46(1) to be moved by the Honourable Minister for Tourism.

In the absence of the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business, would one of the Honourable Ministers move the Suspension of Standing Order 46(1)?

The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 46(1)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I move the suspension of Standing Order 46(1).

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 46(1) be suspended in order to deal with Bills which have not been in the hands of Members for the specified time. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it—

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I was wondering if it were possible to speak on the matter of the suspension of Standing Orders?

The Speaker: The question has already been put. I am sorry about that, Honourable Member.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 46(1) SUSPENDED.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS BILLS FIRST READINGS

THE COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

Clerk: The Companies (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for a Second Reading.

THE SUPPLEMENTARY APPROPRIATION (1992) BILL, 1994

Clerk: The Supplementary Appropriation (1992) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for a Second Reading.

THE IMMIGRATION (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994.

Clerk: The Immigration (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for a Second Reading.

SECOND READINGS

THE COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

Clerk: The Companies (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the second reading of a Bill for a Law to Amend the Companies Law (Revised).

Madam Speaker, Her Majesty the Queen, in her Throne Speech delivered recently to this honourable House, stated that the financial sector remains the key to a successful future of these Islands. She went on further to say that her Government is determined to maintain a financial services industry of high quality and integrity through strict adherence to prudent policies.

We are very pleased that Her Majesty has acknowledged the importance of our financial sector. This honourable House, and the people of these Islands, can always be sure that this sector will continue to receive the due care and attention required to keep the Cayman Islands in the forefront of the world's financial communities as a premiere financial jurisdiction. This will involve the ongoing review and amendment of laws and policies, as these become necessary in a changing financial environment.

To this end, there is a growing concern that the Cayman Islands is increasingly gaining a reputation of being a costly financial centre. With the growing number of locations offering offshore services, the level of competition has increased substantially in recent years. In an attempt to reposition the Cayman Islands as a pre-emptive financial centre, a review of the Government's company fee structure was carried out by the Private Sector Consultative Committee, with Mr. Michael Austin spearheading the review.

The process involved wide consultation with domestic and international financial industries. A Washington, D. C., law firm, Sidley & Austin, carried out a survey in an attempt to gather information on the perception of the Cayman Islands as compared to other offshore alternatives. There was a consensus by those interviewed that the Cayman Islands was perceived as extremely costly.

From the findings of this review, it is evident that there is a need for a reduction in Government fees and a matched reduction in private sector fees to remain competitive as a financial centre. A firm commitment has been expressed by a wide cross-section of the financial industry to also cut their fees.

The major elements of recommendations contained in Mr. Austin's report are, firstly, that we should retain the existing corporate vehicles of exempt companies, ordinary companies and non-resident companies. Second, that Government incorporation and annual fees on all companies be reduced. Third, that the incorporation and annual fees be set at the same level. And, fourth, that a lower fee of $410 be charged both for incorporation and annual fees for exempt companies that have share capital of under $42,000.

Madam Speaker, I should mention that the first of the recommendations, whereby we should retain the existing corporate vehicles of exempt companies, in particular, there was a suggestion that the Government may consider the introduction of what is now popularly known as the International Business Company (IBC). The general view was taken that this would not be to the advantage of the Cayman Islands because at this time the Cayman Islands' exempt company is highly regarded and looked upon. It has come to our attention that to dilute this could be to our detriment.

We have been made to understand that an IBC is not accepted for registration on some of the exchanges such as Hong Kong and probably elsewhere in the world's financial communities. Therefore, we wanted to retain the exempt company as a premier company for which it has become renowned.

Madam Speaker, we go on further to say that the report prepared by Mr. Austin recommends that registration and annual fees for non-resident companies be reduced from $500 to $350 for companies with no share capital, or a share capital not exceeding $42,000. This $42,000 Cayman Islands' figure is not arbitrary. It is the equivalent of US $50,000.

For non-resident companies with a share capital of more than $42,000, it is recommended that a registration and an annual fee of $492 be required. Consequently, non-resident companies pay a fixed registration fee of $500 together with an additional fee of 1/20th of 1 percent of the amount by which authorised share capital exceeds $800,000, subject to a maximum registration fee of $1,300. The current annual fee ranges from $350 to $750. That represents a significant reduction right across the board.

The report recommends that registration and annual fees for exempt companies with no share capital, or a share capital not exceeding $42,000, be reduced from $850 to $410. For exempt companies with a share capital of more than $42,000, but not exceeding $1.7 million, a registration and annual fee of $574 is recommended. For exempt companies with a share capital exceeding $1.7 million, a registration and annual fee of $1,435 is recommended.

Currently exempt companies pay a fixed fee of $850, together with an additional fee of 1/20th of 1 percent of the value of any authorised share capital in excess of $750,000, subject to a maximum fee of $1,900. The current annual fee ranges from $575 to $1,400.

The report further recommends that all other companies, namely, all ordinary resident companies, be required to pay a registration fee of $205. However, in consultation with Honourable Ministers subsequent to the report and the Bill being brought to the House, it has been agreed that as a stimulus to the local economy, instead of an increase of $5 over the $200 that was previously charged, there should be a reduction of 25 percent, thus reducing the fee to $150 per annum. Therefore, the annual fee will be $150 if the share capital is less than $42,000, and $250 if the share capital is greater than $42,000.

Currently, the registration fee for these companies is fixed at a fee of $200 together with an additional fee of 1/20th of 1 percent of the amount by which the authorised share capital exceeds $300,000. The annual fee for these companies currently ranges between $200 and $725.

Therefore, Madam Speaker, it can be seen that this is a significant effort by the Government to reduce the local incorporation and annual fee as a stimulus to businesses within our local community and, hopefully, this should be quite satisfying to the local public.

I should further point out that the reduction in the Local Companies Fee was spearheaded by the Honourable Elected Member for North Side. She had significant input into this, to which the Government acquiesced.

Madam Speaker, I should point out that the year 1993 was quite a robust year for registration activities on our local registry. We did exceedingly well. To underscore this I will read the preface of Mr. Austin's Report: "The accompanying report presents the results of a comprehensive review of the Company Fee structure and has been carried out at the request of the Cayman Islands Government/Private Sector Consultative Committee . . ."

Sorry, Madam Speaker, I started with the wrong section. "The Current Position," and I quote: "In the year ended December 31, 1993, the Cayman Islands experienced a record number of new company incorporations, up 14% from the previous year. The total number of companies on the Register at the end of 1993 was 27,428 (Schedule 1). Government revenue generated from company registration in 1993 was in excess of CI$14 million—a successful year by any standard. Indications are that our new registrations in January and February 1994 continue at record pace."

It goes on further to say: "Projected at levels of growth based on recent averages, the number of companies on the Register by the end of 1995 should exceed 31,000 (Schedules 2 and 3) producing a Government revenue in excess of CI$16.5 million."

This suggests, Madam Speaker, that if nothing at all is done, and we continue to experience the growth rate that we are now experiencing, we could have a significant increase by the end of 1995. However, the report further goes on to make some startling revelations.

We are living in a world community where information is immediate and accessible to the investing public without much difficulty. We have seen that there has been a continuing increase in the number of companies that are going elsewhere, particularly in one jurisdiction that registered 5,000 companies in November 1993. In that year, our registration on an average did not exceed, I would say, 10 percent of that figure.

There are also management companies in the Cayman Islands that are forming companies in the British Virgin Islands at the request of clients. There is one local company with a branch in the British Virgin Islands that said that for every 14.9 companies that are registered in the British Virgin Islands, only one company is registered in the Cayman Islands. It further goes on to say that the sum that is paid out to the British Virgin Islands amounts to $4,500, in comparison to $1,000 that is payable to our Government.

What is also very interesting is that we have found that there are quite a number of publications that are now developing information on the various international financial centres. I will just quote some of the figures. This is from a report by Mr. Robert Drysdale, of International Companies Services Limited at Sovereign House, St. Johns, Isle of Man. These are the figures that are given for the annual formation of companies.

Belize	£150
U.K.	£150
Ireland	£195
Gibraltar	£250
Jersey	£450
Guernsey	£500
Vanuatu	£500
Hong Kong	$350
Turks	$450
Bahamas	$600
British Virgin Islands	$750
Antigua	$750
Panama	$750
Cayman Islands	$2200

Again, this is from a publication entitled, "The World's Leading Offshore Company Specialists." It goes on, again:

UK Ltd.	£95
UK PLC	£185
Bahamas	$500

Belize	$500
British Virgin Islands	$500
Cayman	$1,750
Cyprus	£850
Delaware	$295
Gibraltar	£250

So we can see that, although there seems to be some variation in the figures given for the various jurisdictions based on the different publications, the Cayman Islands is now singled out as one of the most expensive of the jurisdictions.

The question is, Why would the investing public continue to choose the Cayman Islands? We know the stability of the governmental structure that we have here and the level of professionalism available. Mr. Austin's report also points out that it is unlikely that such professionalism can be found in any of the other jurisdictions. However, the level of activity taking place in other jurisdictions would suggest that with the amount of revenue that is flowing into those jurisdictions, in time it is natural that the level of expertise available in the Cayman Islands will also be developed in those territories.

We have an edge. We have worked very hard in putting our legislation in place. We pioneered the Mutual Funds Legislation that we have on our books, and we have seen that this piece of legislation has been copied and introduced elsewhere. It is unfortunate that legislation such as we have developed cannot be patented to give us the benefit, or where we could obtain some royalty from it. We cannot control this. What we will have to do, in line with what has been said by Her Majesty, is to see that the offshore financial centre continues to be regarded as an essential industry within these Islands. I go on further to say that it will be given the attention that is due.

It is in this regard that every effort is now being made to reposition the Cayman Islands as a pre-emptive international financial centre where the international investing community can continue to look to the Cayman Islands for the high quality of services that we are providing. We have seen that it is not a question that we are experiencing a decline in revenue, although it should be pointed out that this may be likely in the short run with the measures that are now being introduced. However, it seems to me that it is much better for this to be done and for us to reposition ourselves.

This, combined with a very good marketing policy which will be followed (because the Government has voted a sum of $.5 million in the budget for 1994 to achieve this) should reposition the Cayman Islands. So with the likely reduction in revenue that will come about, just taking the nominal reduction in the annual fees and registration fees, if we were not to experience any growth as such in 1995 (which is unlikely), we are hoping that the loss that would have occurred will be compensated for by a heightened promotional activity. It is likely that we will be in an equal or better position.

If we do not do anything at this stage, not only will we continue to see a decline in the business that is coming to the Cayman Islands, it is likely that some of what we have here may begin to take flight elsewhere, and we would not want to see this.

I should point out that since the middle of 1993, quite a lot of initiatives have been taken by the Government in terms of repositioning the Cayman Islands. These have not been mentioned, but where it was taking previously as long as four days, the registration of a company can now be done in less than a day. The normal turn-around from the time that the documentation is submitted to the final signing by the Registrar General is now, on an average, taking less than two days. We are hoping to continue this.

We have also gone ahead and introduced significant enhancements to the computer system we have in place and we are hoping eventually to introduce an on-line system to achieve the reservation of names, name checks, and to carry through certain basic activities which were previously time consuming. So all of these enhancements are entrain.

I will quote the concluding recommendations from Mr. Austin's report. I should mention that the arduous task that has been carried out by Mr. Austin has been done free of charge. I understand that his wife also assisted very much with the typing. In his research, he visited practically every trust company and some of the legal firms. He spoke with many people and he drew very heavily on the report as supplied by Sidley & Austin.

Less than a month ago a Mr. Joe Thompkins visited the Islands (this was probably coincidental but very useful, that he came at that time because Sidley & Austin is a firm that the Government uses in Washington, D. C.) in order to examine legal matters that occur overseas and for which the Government needed to obtain advice on. This is normally done through the Chambers of the Honourable Attorney General. So he, coming here at this time, I think, was a God sent messenger who collaborated the findings of Mr. Austin up to that time.

The conclusions and recommendations: “Taking into account the many factors discussed in this report, it is considered imperative that the reputation of Cayman as being too expensive a jurisdiction in which to conduct offshore business be addressed head-on.

“Many of the views held in the offshore marketplace are not just based on perception but are based on reality—Cayman is expensive. If, say, our company fees are compared with fees charged in the BVI or Bahamas. The fact is that not only is Cayman losing current business to low cost jurisdictions, but its existing offshore company business is in danger of future erosion if steps are not taken soon to address the issue of cost.

“Cayman must position itself in the offshore marketplace at a level where it becomes competitive thereby significantly increasing its future business share of company incorporations.”

To this end recommendations are as follows:

- Retain the existing corporate vehicles (exempted company, ordinary company, non-resident company).
- Reduce Government incorporation fees (Schedule 5) for all companies incorporated after the appropriate amending legislation is enacted, which could be as soon as the first quarter of 1994.
- Reduce Government annual fees (Schedule 5) for all companies, commencing in 1995. Incorporation and annual fees to be at the same level.
- Encourage private sector participation in an overall ‘cost reduction drive’ relating to company incorporation and maintenance charges.
- Utilise the fee and cost reductions as a marketing tool for the Cayman Islands with the object of significantly increasing future company incorporations.
- Inform the business public that the fee reductions follow in the wake of Cayman's most successful year (1993).

Madam Speaker, as I read out earlier from the figures, we had a very robust year in 1993. The average since 1989 has been a growth of approximately 5 percent to 6 percent. Overall, in 1993 we saw an increase of 14 percent. It is this 14 percent margin and great increases that we want to retain into the future and also to stimulate. That is why these recommendations for a review of the companies fee are now being brought to this Honourable House.

Accordingly, Madam Speaker, I commend this Bill to this House.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Companies (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Second Reading. Before the debate commences, proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.34 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.55 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate on the Second Reading of the Companies (Amendment) Bill, 1994. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I listened very carefully to the Honourable Financial Secretary as he introduced this Bill, and I rise to give my support. I have long thought along the same lines, and I have spoken in this forum about fee structures before.

It is important to note that there may be some people who rightly have fears regarding loss of revenue for Government. I hold the view that based upon circumstances which surround us, that is, the competition that we face, it is important when things are running fairly smoothly, that we do what I term the ‘Chinaman Act’ in order to remain competitive and not only hold but increase our market shares with the company formation business.

As the Honourable Member pointed out, the Registrar General's Office is now much better equipped to deal with companies and their formation. As he quoted his statistics for 1993, which showed a rise of 14% in this area, I think that it is very prudent for Government to be looking to not get caught again with its pants down.

I only wonder, simply because of lack of knowledge, whether all and sundry in the corporate sector in the Cayman Islands are fully apprised of the situation and whether or not these savings from Government fees will be passed on accordingly to our potential clients. I suspect that this will be done. I just want to take this opportunity to encourage all of those in the corporate sector to fall in line with Government's train of thought. I think that it will have a very positive net end result.

I believe that the sector we are discussing has all of the necessary credentials and expertise to continue to offer services to these people at a level that is equal to any other territory. If I might add, without seemingly speaking too highly of them, I believe that the services that are offered in the Cayman Islands are over and above most other territories. So, we do not have a problem in that area. We simply have to get the people to us first.

It is only natural, when people are examining prices and looking around, that if we are not in the ballpark we are going to get left at some point in time. I would expect that the Honourable Member, in his winding up, might give a few more details. I am sure that he saved some of the best for last. I would be totally satisfied if I knew that the corporate sector was in sync with Government's thought process in regard to this.

I am happy to support this Bill and I would encourage Government and the corporate sector to examine any other areas where we can take these innovative steps to continue to progress in this area.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the proposal to reduce the registration and the annual fees payable by registered companies in the Cayman Island has long been mooted.

There are various schools of thought. One is that the fees should remain as they are because they are reflective of the services given by the professionals involved in this field and the environment in which these companies operate. The other is that we are way above the fees charged by other places that offer similar financial services.

I have no contention with the move by the Government and the Financial Secretary to reduce the fees as is herein proposed. I imagine that the statistics quoted by the Financial Secretary, as well as other statistics available within Government, show that this reduction can take place without any severe damage to the revenue of the country. My only concern is the effect that it will have on the revenue. If the fees are to be reduced then it means that to offset what we may have collected this year or last year as the case may be, we will need an increase to make up that particular revenue item.

Again, as I read generally the financial centre in many quarters is not necessarily considered the entity that is something of the future. There are many predictions as to what will happen as the world grows closer together, Europe, the United States, their trade bloc and so on. It is all a question of money and finances and how it flows internationally around the world.

I get the impression from various articles that I read that these various economic trading blocs will want money to stay within those borders or areas. So, it is a calculated position, I daresay, that we might move from where we are presently to meet a challenge posed to us by other Islands in the Caribbean alone.

I understand that in one Island there is some computerised system that virtually gives access to people who wish to register companies in that particular Island and it does not necessarily mean there has to be a hands-on condition within the Government and I do not know how much. It is, I understand, the British Virgin Islands. I am wondering if any thought has been given to adopting something similar or improved in that regard. If we are going to change the fees and so on, we should certainly look at changing the efficiency, as I understand part of the success of the British Virgin Islands is how quickly someone can get a company registered.

Of course, I would imagine that in order to do such a thing there would need to be certain safeguards put in place and the Government here, I am sure, would look at such a thing if it chose to move in that particular direction.

I believe the Cayman Islands have often received unfair criticism because of the fact that it is a financial centre and it offers certain services to the money world. We are some of the closest neighbours to the United States particularly, that has a completely different economic system based on taxes, whereas we have none. They tend to be a bit critical from time to time of our financial centre here. So, in any move that we make I would simply encourage those responsible to be ever vigilant to keep our quality. Sacrifice nothing whatsoever for quantity, so that we are always in a position where we can rebut any unfair criticism levelled in our direction.

While we are reducing the fees for company registration, I wonder if the Government has given any indication to the law and accounting firms, the banks, or whoever manages companies. I understand that there are a variety of organisations that manage companies here in this Island. Perhaps it is only fair and reasonable that they look at reducing their fees, which, I have been told in many instances, are extremely high.

It would seem defeatist if the Government reduced its fees and these other entities which offer services in this area would not do so themselves. Government would hardly be the one who could best afford it, so I would certainly encourage the Financial Secretary to look in that direction and have some discourse in respect of the reduction of fees in those instances.

As mentioned by the previous speaker, I think there is also a necessity for us to get all the publicity that we possibly can so that persons who like to deal with the Cayman Islands would be aware that we have entered a competitive position by having lower registration fees. I would again encourage the Financial Secretary to tap whatever sources, through whatever media to get that word across internationally.

Madam Speaker, I support this amendment to the Companies Law.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I rise to offer my support to the proposed amendments to the Companies Law in respect of the reduction in company fees. This is in keeping with the position established by the present Government, which is very aggressively looking at all the areas for which it is responsible to see whether or not improvements can be made.

I think that for too long Government sat on its laurels and felt that because it had such a good reputation as a stable government and environment, people would want to do business with it. It is amazing what little the outside world knows about the Cayman Islands compared to the Caribbean as a whole. It has to be a very sophisticated investor or businessperson that would register a company in the Cayman Islands—even though it would cost them three times that which it would elsewhere—just because of the reputation of the place.

I believe that we can no longer afford the luxury of sitting back and allowing that kind of thinking to exist. The fact remains that we have a new competitor—the British Virgin Islands—that probably incorporates as many companies in one month as we do on an annual basis. We would only be burying our heads in the sand if we did not recognise this fact and react to it in a very positive manner.

Government is taking a very aggressive approach to this matter. I did some quick calculations. For a non-resident company it looks like the fees are being reduced by some 30 percent. For an exempt company, which is probably the most popular company used here by foreign investors, the reduction is in the region of about 52 percent.

I, for one, do not share the concern that a reduction in fees will automatically result in a loss of revenue. I think we will experience the opposite because people would all of a sudden be in a position to look very objectively at comparing what the Cayman Islands offers by way of fees, quality of services and environment, to other jurisdictions with which we compete for those services.

I am also pleased to see that we are not only looking at the foreign investor, as far as giving them a break in fees and trying to attract them to do business with us here in the Cayman Islands. But steps are also being taken to reduce the local company fees, that is, the fee that Caymanians pay when they incorporate a company here.

For example, I remember about a year or so ago the local company fee was $100 and it was moved, I think by the previous Government, up 100 percent to where it stands now at $200. What this amendment proposes is to reduce the registration and annual fee to $150 per annum. I think that this is significant. It proves to our people that we are always conscious that they also have needs. I believe that this is a very positive move that will result in various positive benefits as far as the Cayman Islands is concerned.

I offer my congratulations to Government, through the Financial Secretary, for this measure.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I support this Bill. I think it is very important that the Honourable Financial Secretary take the steps that he has taken now, in conjunction with the private sector, to look at areas of the finance community structure and Government's relation to it, to maximise the benefits that we can get from it.

We are now in a very competitive world as far as providing services goes. We do have very high quality service within the Cayman Islands and it is a service which provides its benefits, sometimes not in the mass formation of companies, but in the high quality of banking, insurance, company management and mutual funds, trusts and partnership fees that come into Government.

In doing this, I think that he has quite rightly pointed out that it is important that that quality of service remain if we are to ensure that we keep our competitive position in the offshore business. We have undoubtedly been the leaders in this, especially in the area of banking, for many years now. This has come about and remained because of the vigilance of the Financial Secretary and his Supervisor of Financial Services to ensure that these Islands' reputation and high quality remain.

I fully support this and I believe that while the benefits might not be seen in the very short term, in the medium and long term they will be there. The decision is a right one for the Financial Secretary to have put forward and for this Honourable House to accept.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony Eden: I, too, rise to support this Bill brought forward by the Honourable Financial Secretary. It shows the dedication of this Government and the forward-looking way in which we are approaching different areas to make things better for the Cayman Islands.

I feel that this approach, which is typically based on an American approach, will in pay off in the long term with the volume of companies and show a dramatic increase in revenue.

I would also like to pay tribute to the Elected Member for North Side for her continued, active and diligent manner in bringing to the notice of the Financial Secretary the importance of also helping the Cayman company. As we know, charity begins at home.

I am once again glad to support this Bill and I know it will be of great benefit down the line for this country.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, may I mention as a person who has served in the Government for several years and perhaps a decade as Financial Secretary, that I am pleased to see this amending piece of legislation before this House?. I sincerely believe that the Cayman Islands' offshore financial centre operations and attractiveness for the future has to be something which this Government looks at and takes decisions about for the long term benefit of the people of this country.

We have heard on many occasions that Cayman is expensive. We have heard it from investors. We have heard it from tourists who visit our Islands. We have heard it from members of the financial community. I am glad to know that this Government, although the critics badmouth the National Team, has had the boldness and cohesiveness to take steps (and I would categorise them as bold steps) for the future development of the Cayman Islands.

[Some Members—Applause—Hear, hear!]

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: It was not many years ago, Madam Speaker, that the Euromoney Magazine, published in the United Kingdom, did a survey of the financial centres in the Caribbean. It was of no surprise to me to know that the Cayman Islands was the premier financial destination in this hemisphere at that time. What did surprise me a bit, because I never focused on it, was an article that looked at the world banking centres. It listed them. I am talking off the top of my head, but I am sure what I will say is accurate if not close to being accurate.

The first country in the world as far as having deposits on the books' of banks was the United Kingdom. I believe the second was the United States, the third was Japan, and the fourth was France. Even if I have them switched around, the top four were those countries. Hong Kong was number five.

The comparison they used was a particular year, I think it was 1987. And the position of deposits on the books of the banks in Cayman in 1987 (or it might have been 1988) was not available as a true comparison to all the other figures, especially the one with Hong Kong. When we compared the two, we found that the fifth position as the world banking centre was not really Hong Kong, but it was the Cayman Islands.

I make mention of that to underscore one particular point: The company, as a vehicle in the operation of the financial centre of the Cayman Islands, is the cornerstone of all its activity. So, if we begin to lose our market share in the number of companies that are registered in the Cayman Islands, we can see pretty accurately the damage that can possibly be done to the other areas of our operation.

While there may be some risk in reducing the registration and annual fees, it is something we have to do in order to ensure that the Cayman Islands remain attractive as a centre in the world's financial operations.

I am going to cast my vote for reducing the fees. There is, in my mind, a bigger risk. That risk is doing nothing about the present position. If we look around at our competitors, we can find every reason in the world if we wanted to why the Cayman Islands will never be affected in the long term and leave the fees the way they are. We can say that certain countries in the eastern Caribbean will never be able to compete with the Cayman Islands in terms of the professional infrastructure which operates in the Cayman Islands and which, at least one Member on the other side of the floor has said, is equal to any financial services provided in any country of the world. And with that statement, I agree wholeheartedly.

When one has competitors which are registering and gaining momentum in the registration process, attracting financial vehicles to their country, we can visualise the tremendous revenue that is being earned in this area of that country's operation. It does not take too long for the country to decide to issue any concession that needs to be issued to attract the professionals to come in. When that happens, in my view the Cayman Islands will really have a competitor—if we do nothing and remain with the fees as they are.

The Financial Secretary is to be congratulated by all of us for his efforts in bringing about this agreement, an agreement which I believe it is right to say the majority of persons operating in the financial community are willing to reduce their fees as well. I believe that unless we have a reduction on both sides—the public sector and the private sector—we have nothing to promote in New York.

The Financial Secretary has also indicated that within the 1994 budget there is $.5 million for promotion of the financial services to the outside world. I am sure that he can speak on this in more detail. And I believe that may be the wish of Honourable Members. I think it is right for me to leave that for him to say.

As I understand this amendment before the House, the reduction (which is going to take place in 1994 on the 1st of April) will be in the registration fees. The reduction in the annual fees will not take place, as I understand, until January 1995. So, I think if we structure it in this way, the reduction in the amount of revenue earned by company registration will not be seriously affected over two or three years.

In my humble view, if we register 4,000 companies a year at the present fee and reduce those fees to even two-thirds of what they are today, I cannot see that we would get less companies. I can only see that we would receive more companies per registration process, thereby offsetting by volume the reduction in the fees that are presently being charged. However, more importantly, in the long term it will cause the Cayman Islands to be competitive and to maintain—if not improve . . . I think I should put it the other way around—to improve their market share so that in years to come, the amount of revenue being earned through this process will be significantly enhanced.

When a person is on top of the pile, everyone tries to pull the rug from under his feet. One has to take that as being so and do something about it. That is exactly why the amending bill is presently before the House—doing something about staying at the top of the offshore financial industry, to ensure that the people who work in this area and the contributions that come to this country as a result of the operations of the financial industry are improved and that greater benefits flow to our people now and in the future. I think that is the wish and obligation of the Members of this Honourable House, to try to ensure, and, by God, I think this amending Bill is speaking to that obligation.

I do not have a worry about the volume of business that may come, or whether the registration process will be in a position to deal with it. I remember hearing this morning from the Honourable Financial Secretary that there has been considerable enhancement of the computer programme in the Registrar's office, where the private sector has access to it. But, I think he should speak a little bit more on this so that it is clear not only to the Honourable Members of this House, but it is also clear to every member of our society.

The system that is in place is that the banks, the trust companies, the accountants, and the lawyers are usually the first people who are contacted by an investor. Their system is one of screening to ensure they know the customer with whom they are dealing. That system is going to remain in place for everybody's benefit, including theirs. I believe that Honourable Members will be able to look back on this day and see it as a step with which they agreed that will pay handsome benefits to the Cayman Islands as a whole.

I have great pleasure in supporting this Bill.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: I rise to give my support to a Bill to Amend the Companies Law (Revised), and I want to congratulate the Honourable Financial Secretary, the mover of this amendment. I think it is a timely and very important amendment, which, as previous speakers have very eloquently explained, will certainly be beneficial for this country.

I note that it is not only a move on the part of Government, but also a combined effort of the private financial sector. I hope this will go beyond the financial community and send a message to all involved in the tourist industry that we need to encourage our visitors, our clients coming to the Cayman Islands. This could be a very momentous day in our history, a day when the Cayman Islands could certainly make a turnaround.

Instead of hearing of increasing fees, we are trying to reduce the cost and make it more attractive. We have the expertise in place in most areas, and certainly, we need additional business.

So, I feel that Government and the Financial Secretary in particular deserve much appreciation by the people of these Islands for leading this amendment here today. I look forward to it being the beginning of the entire country taking a look at giving more value for the dollar in order that we can become the cherished destination that we should rightly be.

With these words, I give my full support to this amendment. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I rise to support the Companies Amendment Bill. This comes as no surprise to members of the public as the Honourable Financial Secretary mentioned this in his Budget Address some time last year.

I believe that the success of our financial industry here has been the twinning of the private and public sector in that they have worked hand-in-hand. I believe that, again, they have worked together with this and it will be very successful.

I believe other members have touched on the increase in volume because the cost of registering companies will be reduced, and this will enhance our tourism, increase it as a matter of fact. The foreign investor, especially from North America, will find that travel here is a lot closer. We will increase our tourism in this way with reduced cost of registering the companies. They will be able to come and register them because of the closeness to their home.

For a long time, we have maintained that Government must operate like a business in cutting out the red tape and being very efficient. With this bill, I believe that this is a very good example of this taking place. Competition is good. It makes us pull our socks up and take a look at what we need to review and improve on. I believe that with this Bill we are saying to the people of these Islands, as well as to the outside world, that we can do it with reducing the cost of registration and that there is still service to be given for the reduction in the fees.

Therefore, I support this amendment.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Activities and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I will be very brief. Although members from all sides have spoken, I do not think that this is an occasion that should go down without saying something.

There have been things said in the public such as whether or not enough thought has been given to the matter at hand. From all that has been said by both the Minister of Education, the Minister of Tourism, the Financial Secretary and other Members as well, no one needs to be concerned about the thought process of this exercise. My colleague, the Minister for Health, has made his contribution and his thoughts known as well.

This Bill has had the kind of investigatory process indicative, in my opinion, of a knowledgeable but cautious Financial Secretary with the good assistance of the Executive Council and the financial industry. The National Team Government catches hell from its critics, but no one can say that this matter at hand is not a move in the right direction. It shows that we are thinking about the long-term future of this country.

There have been many instances in the past where the previous government put the country in jeopardy—Cayman Airways being a very relevant one—and damaged us to the extent that millions of dollars were in the red. We have found since taking over as a Government, that the financial industry has grown. It means that confidence of the outside world has increased, perhaps even been restored in the country, and confidence put in the National Team Government.

So, while it can be said that the Bill has been well covered, it is good for all of us to make our thoughts known and to add our confidence publicly to the Financial Secretary who is doing a good job.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I too rise to offer my support on the Bill before us which is another step in the right direction by the National Team Government.

The reduction in the company fees in this country, in my humble opinion, is a must for us to survive in the race in this area. Our competitors are reducing their fees and they are increasing the number of companies formed. The Cayman Islands, in my opinion, must follow suit in order to increase its volume.

I have the confidence in the Honourable Financial Secretary. However, I must stress that we must not give up quality for quantity. We must continue to keep our high standards in the formation of companies in the Cayman Islands.

In coming here this morning to discuss this Bill, I had two concerns. One was, Is the answer in Government reducing its costs without the people involved in this type of business reducing their cost? The Honourable Financial Secretary has led me to understand this has been discussed with the private sector, which has given an undertaking to reduce its costs in incorporating companies in the Cayman Islands. I have every confidence that the Honourable Financial Secretary will promote this and meet with these people to ensure that this is carried out.

My other concern is that the only companies for which fees are being increased are local companies, even though only by $5. I discussed this with the Honourable Financial Secretary and Government's Executive Council because I felt that we are reducing fees to bring people in from overseas, but we cannot forget our own people who find it hard at times to pay that $200 to incorporate a company. I would like to thank the Honourable Financial Secretary and the Executive Council for looking into this and decreasing it to $150.

I would like to compliment the Registrar of Companies Department for its improvement in the registering of companies in the Cayman Islands. At one time, it took hours to get a name approved. I have been in company management for almost 20 years and no one can call the Registrar of Companies and get a name cleared whilst you remain on the telephone right there and then. With this Law coming into effect and with the numbers of companies wanting to come to the 'gem of the Caribbean,' the Honourable Financial Secretary will see that the Registrar of Companies Department is constantly upgraded to assist and accommodate those numbers.

I have every trust that when these fees are reduced the volume will increase, revenue will increase, and the Financial Secretary will be on top of it at all times.

Madam Speaker, I do not hesitate to support the Bill before us.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Bill before the House not only reduces the fees on companies, but also simplifies the process of paying the fees. This is important to those who work in this business. There are now fewer categories of fees and the annual fees payable are the same as the registration fees. Of course, the other benefit (as mentioned by the Honourable Minister for Tourism) is that this Bill is a part of the Government's commitment to the people of the Cayman Islands to reserve the pre-eminence of the financial services.

We can rest assured that the benefits offered to the public by the Cayman Islands will still remain. For example, we speak English here. More than one half of the business transactions are now conducted in English. We are in a good locality. We are only one hour away from our biggest market—the United States. We can reach Europe and the United Kingdom in less than a day. Travel is made easy when one comes to the Cayman Islands. With the amount of flights we have, it is possible to arrive or leave at almost any hour of the day.

We have, apart from the airline services, the best communications in any part of the Caribbean—the telephone services and fax services are equal to none.

As has been mentioned, we have here not only the expertise in the financial services but in all the fiduciary services—banking, trust work, a high level of civil servants, accountants, people specialising in company management. These are all pluses, which cannot be bought by money, cannot be bought by a cheap registration fee as charged in some other localities.

According to the Financial Secretary, we have removed much of the red tape that encumbered the process of registration. It is now possible to register a company in one day or less. As mentioned by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, the reduction in the annual fees will not come into effect until 1st January 1995. So this year's revenue will not be affected by that. For the new registration, this will only affect those companies registered after the 1st April, 1994.

We have an example from our past. In 1977, this country, this Government, saw fit to reduce the taxes on motor vehicles from 33.3 percent to 27.5 percent. This resulted in an influx of new motor vehicles and a massive increase to Government's revenue.

This gesture today shows that the Government is in a position to reduce taxes. Some people may think we are crazy. But I think it is a novelty because it is not often that a Government reduces taxes. I believe that this Bill will enhance our position and encourage people in the financial world to do more business with us. They have received a good service in the past and if they can receive that same good service, which is promised to them for a smaller fee, I believe they will be happy to accept it.

I support the Bill fully.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.15 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.58 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.21 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on the Second Reading of the Companies (Amendment) Bill, 1994. If there is no debate I will ask the Honourable Third Official Member if he would exercise his right to reply.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to commence by thanking all Honourable Members for their overwhelming support of the Bill. The common theme which ran through Members' comments was whether there were any commitments by the financial industry to reduce their corporate fees in tandem with the Government's fees. I would like to say that the moving of this amending Bill today is as a result of that undertaking being given by all major segments of our financial industry.

Madam Speaker, some of these firms have already commenced their reduction in fees, with one of our leading legal firms having already reduced its fees by two-thirds which meant a reduction from $1,500 to $500. It should also be pointed out that there will be market forces at work. For those firms that would not want to make any changes in their annual fees or their corporate fees, it will mean that the business will move to where it is more economically prudent for savings to be achieved. But overall, there has been a wide and across-the-board commitment by the financial industry.

There was also wide consultation with the financial community. The Private Sector Consultative Committee is comprised of the various representatives of the various segments of our financial industry. For example, the president of the Local Insurers Association, the president of the International Insurance Association, the president of the Cayman Islands Law Society, the president of the Caymanian Bar Association, the president of the Accounting Association, and also the permanent members who are there. These are persons who represent quite a wide cross-section of activities within the community.

We held several meetings on this amending legislation before taking it to the Legislative Assembly, and the views from the group have been communicated to the Government. Basically, what we have today is a culmination of the recommendations and the consultations that have taken place. Consultations have also been held with the local management firms, and as recent as less than a fortnight ago consultations or discussions were going on with the representatives of these firms in order to apprise them of Government's initiatives.

The main concern of these firms is that with the anticipated influx of business they are hoping that the Government will commit the necessary resources required in order to make sure that there is no decline in the quality of services that are presently being rendered. As I mentioned earlier, this will not be so because initiatives have already been taken to enhance our computerised system in anticipation of this.

Further, in enhancing of our Company's Registry, Government has been apprised of innovations in other territories such as those mentioned by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Fortunately for us, our central registry review with the financial industry's vigilance were combined to ensure that the quality of business coming onto our Register has always been, and will continue to be, of the highest level. While we have commenced and will continue to upgrade our computer assisted processes as mentioned earlier, professionalism will be the hallmark of the services provided to the local and international community.

We have heard, Madam Speaker, that in some jurisdictions (as the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman pointed out) investors need not make a presence in order to have a company formed or registered. We have also heard—and this has come to the Government's attention from its research—that in one of the other major jurisdictions there is a 24-hour facility. All of these, Madam Speaker, have been taken on board and all these desires and needs of the international community have been factored into the enhancements that are now taking place within our Central Registry System.

While the Government would want to move ahead in the most expeditious manner, the private sector has also been asking our financial industry to have its input. Both the Government and the financial industry want to ensure that any enhancements made are conducive to the high quality of business presently being generated within the Cayman Islands. Within the next 18 months, I would say much earlier than that, Madam Speaker, we will have all of the desirable features.

I should say that what we are aiming for is not a matter of matching the quality of services that we are providing here with elsewhere. We are going for the optimum as to what is desirable to continue to maintain the most efficient financial industry and the services that are being provided by the Government.

Madam Speaker, during the course of last week, invitations were sent out to members of the Consultative Committee to put forward their views in anticipation of this Bill being approved by this Honourable House, to commence our marketing strategies and how this can best be achieved. What is entrain now are efforts to commence immediately with the assistance of the financial industry to develop relevant information covering the full spectrum of our financial industry and its various services. This information will be used as source material for placing articles in news publications of major newspapers overseas as was done recently in the Financial Times. This, Madam Speaker, gave a very good comprehensive and widespread coverage to the tourism and financial sectors of these Islands.

We are also hoping to prepare a comprehensive magazine on the Cayman Islands covering, as mentioned earlier, the full gambit of our financial services to be circulated to the international financial community prior to the promotional tour that is being planned to be held in New York as a first stop later on this year. We were hoping to have this conference some time around June. However, it has been pointed out by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, based on his experience in holding a similar conference in New York in 1990, that the best time to target this is when most of the executives are back at work, and this would be around early September.

In this area we have already commenced talks with Sidley & Austin, who assisted my predecessor in organising the conference that was held in 1990, and we are drawing on the resources that they can make available to us. They have sent us copies of the materials that were used and published in 1990, and have indicated their willingness to commence getting in touch with the major international firms that would want to be presented at this conference to apprise them of what we are doing by way of the reduction in companies fees, the Mutual Funds legislation, the scaling up of activities in the Cayman Islands, and to also put forward their thoughts to the Government between now and that time as to how best to achieve the highest level of effectiveness in regard to this promotional activity. This will be seen as a drive by the Cayman Islands Government so that the Cayman Islands Government will be in the forefront.

In this regard (and depending on how successful we are in the planning of this conference in New York, and how well we think we will be able to carry it off) we may consider another leg immediately following that conference in Europe, particularly in the United Kingdom. We are on the cutting edge, so to speak, of technology with our product and our services, and we want to maintain our position of not following fashion, but leading.

Madam Speaker, the Cayman Islands is a success story and will continue to remain so. The amending legislation now being proposed is intended to continue the reinforcement of our success story. As noted by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, the reduction in registration fees will commence in April 1994, while the reduction in annual fees will not commence until January 1995. This is in order to maintain a lead-time between now and then, for us to advertise and promote all of the innovations that would be produced through to the end of the year, inclusive of the reduction in fees.

By that time it is anticipated that we should have the volume of business coming on to our Register to compensate for the decline in revenue that would otherwise be experienced as a result of the reduction in fees.

Overall, we can expect that what we are doing today will achieve major successes for these Islands. We have introduced the Mutual Funds legislation, and we have seen from the applications for Mutual Funds Administrators' licences that that has taken off. We have also taken off and are doing exceedingly well, and the Government has evidence of this from the several applications that are coming forward to Executive Council weekly for such licences to be granted. Following this, Madam Speaker, will be the registration of the Funds themselves, or the flow of revenue that will be coming in as a result of that.

Madam Speaker, what we have here today has taken us to the stage that we have reached. I would say that the Government has been going at a very great, but cautious, speed in this regard, in terms of revamping our financial industry. Government is not necessarily reacting to the events that are taking place around us, but being pre-emptive and pro-active making sure that we maintain our number one lead position.

Now, the question may be raised as to why all of these innovations are now being pursued. Is it because we are losing business? This, Madam Speaker, would not be the correct way of interpreting the initiative. I think the correct way of interpreting this would be to give credit to the alertness of Government's concern of market forces—the things that are taking place, or the requirements of the international financial community—and recognising those needs and putting ourselves in a position to cater to them.

Madam Speaker, once more, I would like to say thank you to Honourable Members for the endorsement of this Bill.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Companies (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Second Reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Second Reading.

AGREED: THE COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Second Readings, continuing.

SECOND READINGS.

THE SUPPLEMENTARY APPROPRIATION (1992) BILL, 1994

Clerk: The Supplementary Appropriation (1992) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: . . Madam Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of a Bill entitled the Supplementary Appropriation (1992) Bill, 1994.

Madam Speaker, section 9 of the Public Finance and Audit Law provides that if at the close of accounts for any Financial Year it is found that Expenditure carried to any Head is in excess of the sum appropriated for that Head by an Appropriation Law, the excess shall be included in a Supplementary Appropriation Bill which shall be introduced to the Legislative Assembly as soon as practicable after the close of the Financial Year to which that excess expenditure relates.

Madam Speaker, it is in accordance with that provision that this Bill is being introduced to confirm excess expenditures against various Heads of estimates amounting to $16,416,854 for the year ended 31st December, 1992. In accordance with Standing Order 68, the excess expenditures were approved at various Meetings of the Finance Committee during the course of the year under Standing Order 67(2). This however, excluded a marginal sum of $96,670 broken down as follows:

Head 15—Internal and External Affairs Administration	$31,703.00
Head 36—Postal Department	$64,967.00

Madam Speaker, a breakdown of the sum of $16,416,854 is as set out in the Schedule to the Bill is as follows:

His Excellency the Governor	$. 28,963.00
Finance & Development	861,372.00
Customs	280,998.00
Insurance	35,917.00
Registrar General	6,474.00
Treasury	21,833.00
Judicial	3,849.00
Administration—Internal & External Affairs	179,497.00
Immigration	658,304.00.00
Administration—Health & Human Services	9,429,690.00
Social Services	12,187.00
Postal	119,967.00
Capital Acquisition	446,792.00
Capital Development:
Head 51, 52 and 53	4,331,011.00
Total	$16,416,854.00

Madam Speaker, as I said earlier, this sum, with the exception of $96,670, was approved during the course of 1992 at various meetings of the Finance Committee in accordance with the relevant Standing Orders.

Accordingly, I commend this Bill to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Supplementary Appropriation (1992) Bill, 1994, be given a Second Reading. The Motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I will ask the Honourable Third Official Member if he has any additional remarks that he would like to add to this Bill?

Hon. George A. McCarthy : Thank you, Madam Speaker.. At this stage I do not wish to make any additional remarks. Thank you.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that a Bill entitled the Supplementary Appropriation (1992) Bill, 1994, be given a Second Reading. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it.

AGREED. THE SUPPLEMENTARY APPROPRIATION (1992) BILL, 1994, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Second Readings continuing.

THE IMMIGRATION (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

Clerk: The Immigration (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan:. Madam Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of a Bill entitled, A Bill to Amend the Immigration Law.

The Memorandum of Objects and Reasons reads as follows: “This Bill amends the Immigration Law requirement that all travellers leaving or disembarking in the Islands complete and hand to an Immigration Officer an embarkation or disembarkation card. The amendments will permit Regulations to be made, exempting categories of persons from the requirement to complete embarkation and disembarkation cards. It is proposed the Regulations should exempt Caymanians passport holders from these requirements.”

Madam Speaker, accordingly I commend the Bill to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Immigration (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Second Reading. The Motion is open for debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean:. Madam Speaker, in trying to determine what position I should take on this particular amendment to the Immigration Law, I looked at section 47(1) of the Immigration Law, which is the section that the proposed amendment would change. I would like to read the three brief subsections dealing with the disembarkation and embarkation cards, it reads: “47 (1) Whoever disembarking or leaving the Islands fails to complete and hand to an Immigration Officer immediately on arrival or departure a disembarkation card or embarkation card, as the case may be, in the prescribed form is guilty of an offence.

“(2) It is the duty of the Chief Immigration Officer to cause records to be kept and maintained of the entry of all persons into these Islands and of the departure of all persons from the Islands.

“(3) Without prejudice to anything in the Evidence Law, 1978, any such record shall be received in evidence in any court or in any tribunal whatsoever in the Islands as evidence, prima facie, of any entry or particular entered therein.”

Madam Speaker, this House has been subjected to various short amending bills of this nature in recent times. It was a short amending bill that took the power from the Customs Law and placed it into the hands of the Elected Members of the Executive Council to decide what should be prohibited from coming into the Islands. In that simple short amending bill, the first act by the Government was to use that retroactively to prohibit goods that were already in the Islands.

Now as I read section 47, and I believe as any person reads section 47 it would very clearly seem that the drafters of the Law wanted to have legal means by which we would know who came into these Islands. So, there would be a legal record of who left these Islands.

Why in 1994, with the world turning upside down in various ways, and many people today with intentions of anything but good, would we not want to know about every person who comes into and goes out of the Cayman Islands, including Caymanians? Regrettably, it has been proven by the court, and otherwise, that many of my own people move in and out of these Islands for reasons that are sometimes not legal. Why would we want to lose track of those people or not be able to prove that those people entered or left the Islands at any particular time?

I recall that there was a major case between the Cayman Islands and the United States Government regarding a certain citizen of these Islands, and it was the immigration records that proved beyond a shadow of doubt the whereabouts of the individual at the time. Why would we want to lose that particular position? is my question.

This Law also proposes to weaken the Law, which now has in place a clear system of identification, of movement of people in and out of the Islands, and place in the hands of the Executive Council once again the authority of exempting categories of persons. What categories of persons does the Government want to exempt? Why do they not state it? If the category of persons are Caymanian passport holders then amend the Law to say that the Immigration Officer can let people in who hold Caymanian passports without the Immigration Card. Be specific, for this is not specific.

I believe it can only be for a reason that is questionable and sinister the way it is written. Who falls into the ‘category of persons’? Who would fall into that? Would we find people who are in the protective witness services and so on in other countries coming in here being exempted without any note or record that they were in the Islands or when they left? Who would be in this category of persons?

Madam Speaker, from the point of view of management statistics, the reason we know or can tell how many people come to these Islands from England, the United States, Canada, from Jamaica, or whatever country is because there are records which are filed into a computer (to the best of my knowledge) and we have record of it. We know the number of movements in any given year and are able to identify the persons. Are we going to hinder those valuable statistics from being kept? It is not of any use to be able to say that 50,000 Caymanians went back and forth in any given year? Is that of no value? And is it of no value to know overall who travelled in and out of these Islands?

Madam Speaker, I am one who believes that democracy can best be maintained by having laws which specifically state what they are supposed to do. I am absolutely opposed to what I see happening in this country at this time, where laws are being amended to put the power of major decision-making—which should be in laws that can only be changed by bringing amending legislation to this Legislative Assembly—into the hands of Elected Members of Executive Council, which factually could be altered on a day to day basis.

Madam Speaker, there was no explanation for this other than the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons. Certainly, I believe that the reasons given here cannot be good reasons. ‘Categories of persons’ can mean any persons. If the intention is for Caymanian passport holders to be exempted, then it should state that in the Law. This bill to amend the Protection Law, in my opinion cannot be a good one.

The Government of the day seems to regularly be fooling around with immigration, always immigration—who can get Caymanian status, who cannot; who can get Permanent Residency and what changes they have to make to that. I have heard many complaints about changes which were never promulgated, about persons entering this country having to have $200 per day for each day that they are to stay in this country. I have been reliably told that persons who did not know of this requirement arrived at the Airport and were sent back to their countries of origin. Now this, without explanation?

The requirement of $200 per day for people entering here I do not criticise as being something wrong. Any country can put in force any requirement. The United States recently did, but that was all over the news of what the latest requirements were. They do not place the civil servants, namely, the Immigration Officers, into that kind of confrontation at the point of entry—unless they are people who cannot think. What good can that bring the country? So I see this in a similar light, and it certainly will not pass with my vote.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, this amendment is very clear. It is specifically stated in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons that the amendments will permit regulations to be made exempting categories of persons from the requirement to complete the embarkation and disembarkation cards. It is proposed that the Regulation should exempt Caymanian passport holders from these requirements. That is very clear.

Madam Speaker, if this had been in place for some time and had been abused (as all laws can be abused), then it might be a different thing. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, in his role as Opposition, really is trying to stir up a storm in a teacup. I will go on to show that what has been done here has been done in a Law that he passed somewhat earlier in his career when he was floating in between Opposition and a pure Backbencher at the time.

In the section 26 of the Immigration Law (Law 13 of 1992), one will find exactly the same provisions. They are set out at section 26(1)(e) where it says: “This part shall have no application to—(e) such other class or classes of persons as may from time to time be prescribed.” “Prescribed” means prescribed by Executive Council. I would like to point out here that this does not put it in the hands of the Elected Members, it puts it in the hands of the full Executive Council.

It is misleading to stand up and say that the Law gives the power of exemption only to Elected Members. The Executive Council, as the Member well knows, is comprised of the Elected Members, the Official Members, and His Excellency the Governor. So to express Executive Council in any other form is misleading, and it is misleading under this Law because the Governor is the Governor in Council.

Madam Speaker, even further than that, there is a whole part of the Law here, not just a little section of it, the whole part relating to Gainful Occupation Licences, Work Permits, etcetera. It even goes further than that in section 26(1)(b) to state: “This part shall have no application to—(b) such persons as may from time to time be declared by the Governor to be exempt for any purpose either unconditionally or subject to such conditions as may be prescribed.”

Once again, this goes even further, because to prescribe you do not need to have classes of persons. It can be a person. Perhaps, to go even further than that in the present Law (to show that this is not an unusual clause but follows a trend of this Law) in section 13(d) says: “A person shall, for purposes of this Law, possess Caymanian status if such person has any of the following qualifications—(d) if the Governor, in his opinion finding special reason for so doing, grants such status to him.” There is nothing unusual in Immigration Laws to give the powers to exempt classes of persons or a person.

All through the present Law this is the whole trend. So to now try to say that the whole trend of the Immigration Law itself must be radically changed because of some misconception that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has is in my opinion unfounded. It is dangerous for the public to accept an argument such as he has put forward in this instance.

Madam Speaker, many Caymanians have asked, Why do we have to fill out an Immigration Card, or a pink slip, when we leave and enter the country? People going into the United States do not fill out those forms. People going into the United Kingdom do not fill out those forms—because they are nationals of the country. This is the whole idea behind the situation here. It is one thing to keep check of the immigration in and out, relating to non-nationals of a country, but when it come to nationals of a country, in most countries now they do not fill these forms out. It is really a nuisance to have to fill this out.

When I am going out and when I come back in as a Caymanian, why should I have to fill these forms out? What is done with them? This is another aspect of the problem. They are put into a computer where time, money, and effort could be better spent putting in foreigners coming into the country. We do not need to produce a lot of information that has no relevance to anything within the country.

Madam Speaker, the immigration problems in this country, such as they may be, are not going to be affected by having people who are Caymanians not fill out pink slips (as they are referred to) when they go in and out of the country. They still have to fill out the customs form. As you know, for sometime now the Immigration Department has stopped stamping passports of Caymanians when they leave if they request that it not be stamped, and there is no evidence of entry either. This has been done a long time.

But this is the difference with nationals of a country. You can go into most other foreign countries without even a passport, but on the basis of a Birth Certificate or perhaps a type of voter's registration or some type of acceptable identification. Indeed, for people coming into the Cayman Islands as visitors from other countries, provided they are not going to work, they do not need a passport. For example, people from the United States can come in with other accepted documents of identify.

I do not quite understand why the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman would like to leave this problem on his fellow Caymanians. I do not understand why it is deemed unusual because all through the Law the Executive Council has the power to exempt classes of persons, or a person from different sections. As I have said, Madam Speaker, this is a Law that was passed on 13th July, 1992, and spent a very long time, some three years, in a Select Committee.

The only other mention that I would like to make is that it is somewhat unfortunate, I think, when a destructive rather than a constructive approach is taken to what seems to be something very much to the advantage of Caymanians here, and to avoid their filling in a form that has no intrinsic value in relation to anything else at this stage under the Immigration Law.

I would submit that this is one amendment that is on all fours with other sections of the Law. I think to have done it otherwise would have been to go a more unusual way. Secondly, it is in the interest of Caymanians that the Immigration Form not be filled out and used.

I also endorse the past practice where instead of stamping a passport every time a Cayman national leaves, it is not stamped if they so request. After a while, say 10 years down the line, the passport expires and people face other problems in trying to transfer visas or whatever. So this, Madam Speaker, is a Bill that I am happy to support. I think people here want it, and I believe that it will be good for the country and good for Caymanians.

Thank you.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate... The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: . . Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, even if it does not appear so at times, I come here with an open mind. I listened carefully to the Temporary First Official Member as he presented this Bill. I listened to the opinions of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and, truthfully, I listened even more intently to the Minister for Education and Aviation as he dealt with Government's position on this Bill.

I know that the Good Book says, "Judge not lest ye be judged." So, I will not judge. However, having listened to all concerned, I still do not fully understand the entire purpose of this Bill. I understand what has been said, but to me, if that is all that is concerned then, first of all (and I am sure that the Temporary First Official Member will deal with this if somebody else from the Government bench does not jump up to do so) I wonder what the problem would be if the whole purpose of this exercise was to exempt Caymanians from filling out the so-called entry declaration card, why not just have an amendment to the Law, end of story?

Secondly, Madam Speaker, if people who hold Caymanian passports think and feel that it is a nuisance then, in my opinion, what we have to go back and look at is what has been the entire purpose of the exercise of Caymanians filling out these forms in the past. Has it just been a nuisance that was put in place to be a nuisance? Has it served a purpose for the sake of records, or are those records by no means necessary to have?

I understand that the computer system which takes in all of the information of foreign nationals going to and fro within the Cayman Islands, does that in any case. I am sure the numbers that travel and have to fill out the forms by far surpass Caymanians who travel. I personally do not see the big deal with the strain on the system if it is being done in any case. I ask these questions so that I may fully understand if there is any depth to the Bill.

It somehow strikes me, and even if I am not in a position to put my finger exactly on it, that there must be valid reasons to keep these records. I am not satisfied with anything that I have heard as to why the records are a waste of time.

So that I am not misunderstood, let me say that if it is made clear to me exactly why this Bill is being presented to this Honourable House in this way, then I do not have a problem with it. However, I have to say that at this point in time I do not see, for lack of a better word, the almighty sense of incorporating this in such a way that regulations have to be passed in order to exempt Caymanians, or Caymanian passport holders, from the requirement which is the whole purpose of this Bill.

Let me say one more thing, Madam Speaker: I see the point that the Minister for Education and Aviation made in regard to section 26 of the Immigration Law, that is, making comparisons with exemptions of such persons. However, section 26 to me clearly talks about Gainful Occupation Licences. While I took his point about exemptions, I personally do not see the great parallel with exemptions of people from Gainful Occupation Licences to people coming in and out of the country not filling out their immigration cards.

Madam Speaker, let me not continue to repeat myself, but finally let me say that having read the Bill and having listened to what I would term opposing sides for and against it, it has not disclosed me that this is exactly the best way to deal with this matter. I see other simpler ways in which to achieve the same thing. Maybe I can be proven wrong.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Youth Affairs, Sports and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: . . Madam Speaker, I only rise because of certain issues that have been brought into this debate. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman likes to throw around statements without foundation, as if he has a handle on all that is good for this country.

I think my colleague, the Minister for Education and Aviation, has very clearly put forward the purpose of the Bill and what the Bill does. I think it is crystal clear, and anybody who does not admit that, really only wants something to bicker about.

per day for persons coming in here. The truth is, Madam Speaker, that with the amount of burglaries and other crimes existing in this country at this time of our development, we have had too many people running around this country without making contributions—people who do not hold a work permits who come in and live in shacks, sometimes five to ten persons in one little room with no means of an income.

Madam Speaker, until the Executive Council put those regulations in place, where one has to apply in person for an extension to be able to overstay one's time, there had been at times approximately 1,100 extensions given in a week. In our effort to keep out the undesirable persons we have cut this to approximately 40 per week. The truth is that there are and were too many undesirable persons running around this country without any attachment. They come and go as they please. They do as they please. We as an Executive Council were given a mandate to turn this country around from its path of destruction.

Somehow, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, who seems to know everything about everything, does not want this Executive Council to attack the problems that the people are concerned about.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order?

POINT OF ORDER
(Imputation of unavowed motive)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Erskine May, page 381, "The imputation of false or unavowed motives." Madam Speaker, he is arriving at a conclusion and giving me a motive that I do not want the conditions of the country to be corrected.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, will you please continue with your debate and please avoid any implications of anything that is not genuine in your debate. Please continue.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I will bow to your ruling, but I still do not know what the Member is complaining about—except that I said that he has complained about every effort that we have tried to make from the complaints that we have had—

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I understand that. Would you continue, please? I do not need an explanation.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Well, I think the matter needs to be much clearer than that, because I really do not understand what he is complaining about. I have said that he has opposed us and that is the truth.

I have seen, Madam Speaker, attempt after attempt by that Member trying to discredit the Executive Council knowing full well that matters which come before the House are for the full consideration of all Members of Executive Council. One such as Immigration is not even an elected responsibility.

Madam Speaker, the truth is that we have taken actions on many issues, including this immigration matter which, for years, has been the cause of complaint upon complaint from the Caymanian people, business people and the ordinary man on the street—matters of immigration, the run-away immigration, matters of persons here who seem to have no attachment, people who just walk up and down doing as they please.

Mention was made of the Customs Bill. Madam Speaker and Honourable Members, how many times in the past did we not hear about persons in the heavy equipment business complaining about companies from overseas doing business here bringing in their own heavy equipment? At one time there was a public demonstration on this Island by the heavy equipment operators. And as soon as Government took steps to try and arrest that problem, we heard this big noise about being able to put a handle and get a grip on what is imported into these Islands.

The truth about it is—they might not like it but it is the truth—they have no positive contribution to make other than to criticise the National Team Government for the attempts it has made.

This attempt, the Bill before the House, as far as I am concerned, I cannot see what the problem is with it. As I have said, I would not take up the time of the House to go through it because the Minister for Education and Aviation has done a good job in making the parameters of it crystal clear.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, there are a few points of concern which I would like to raise concerning the Bill before the House.

The first observation is that I, too, would feel more comfortable, if this is simply a gesture to relieve Caymanians from certain inconveniences, if the Law had been amended rather than it being left to these regulations, which I see can be far reaching and open ended.

The Second point is that some Ministers speaking on behalf of the Government said that it is not in the hands of the Elected Member of Executive Council, but rather the whole Executive Council. If my understanding of the operation of that body is accurate, then the majority of the Members of that body are Elected Members.. So, by inference, they can influence the decision, or steer the course of the decisions made on the Council.

I think, Madam Speaker, that there is a glaring weakness and inconsistency in this Bill because it allows for exemption of individuals. What proof, what satisfaction do I have that as the system exists, it is not open to influence or exploitation? I think that there is a need to be careful how we implement these kinds of things. For while I agree that the inconvenience of having Caymanians register their entry and exit every time is something to avoid, I am not satisfied that this method is the most ideal to alleviate that inconvenience and inconsistency.

Thank you.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, I would ask the Honourable Temporary First Official Member to reply.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I would first like to thank Honourable Members for their contributions. Secondly, I thought that the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons was clear and I did not elaborate on it. Perhaps I should have elaborated a bit more. However, two Honourable Ministers have spoken at some length and have made elaborate comments.

Madam Speaker, I believe it is timely that Caymanians be treated as first class in their own country. If I might cite a personal incident, Madam Speaker, my two children were born in the United States of America and whenever we travel as a family to Miami they, travelling with their American passports, simply go through the line for Americans—present their passports and go through. My wife and I have to join a line and wait 45 minutes before we can be processed.

I believe that when Caymanians leave this country, or when they return, they should enjoy the right of coming through a line for Caymanians—and there is a line for Caymanians. I believe that when they get up to the Immigration counter and produce their passports, the Immigration Officer should simply examine it and the person should then be able to move through. Non-Caymanians will stand in a line with their entry declaration cards and other documents and will wait their turn.

I simply feel that it is timely for this amendment to be made. Comments have been made regarding the way this has been done. It is my understanding that the amendment has been treated the way that it has, simply for simplicity. There is no sinister motive behind this. It is clearly a method to permit Caymanian passport holders to enjoy the exemption to complete entry declaration cards when they leave or return to the country. I honestly do not think a big issue needs to be made over this.

Madam Speaker, I daresay the matter could have been treated by an amendment to the Law instead of it being dealt with by a regulation. However, as I have said, it was considered simply for a matter of simplicity and it is not intended to give any wrong impression or to give any impression that there is something not right about it. I think the intention is right, and I think it is going to benefit all Caymanians.

I have travelled many times from the United Kingdom across the Atlantic and on to Cayman, sometimes travelling for 18 or 20 hours. I really do not feel like standing in line for half an hour or 45 minutes before finally getting through. I believe that Caymanians on a whole will appreciate this amendment and appreciate this opportunity to enjoy something that I consider would be first class in their own country.

Madam Speaker, I again commend this Bill.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Immigration (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Second Reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES [AND ONE AUDIBLE NO]

The Speaker: The ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Second Reading.

AGREED: THE IMMIGRATION (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: The House will go into Committee to consider two Bills: The Companies (Amendment) Bill, 1994, and The Immigration (Amendment) Bill, 1994. Under Standing Order 68, the Supplementary Appropriation Bill is not committed to Committee.

COMMITTEE ON BILLS

The Chairman: Please be seated.

The House is in Committee to deal with the Companies (Amendment) Bill, 1994. The Clerk will read the Clauses of the Bill.

THE COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994.

Clerk: Clause 1—Short title and commencement.
Clause 2—Company registration fees.
Clause 3—Annual fees.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 1 through 3 do stand part of the Bill. If there is no debate, I shall put the question.

The Third Official Member for Finance and Development?

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO CLAUSES 2 (AMENDMENTS TO CLAUSES 2. AND 3)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, in keeping with the suggestions this morning that an amendment be made to the annual fees for Local Resident Companies, I would like to propose an amendment to the company registration fees, clause 2(c)(i), that the fee of "$205" appearing in the last line be amended to read "$150", and, in order to keep the annual fees in line with the registration fees, I would like to propose an amendment to clause 3(1)(b)(i) by amending the fee of "$205" to read "$150."

The Chairman: The question is that the figure "$205" in the last line of clause 2(c)(i) be deleted, with the figure "$150" being substituted therefore; and that in section 3(1)(b)(i) the figure "$205" be deleted and the figure of "$150" be substituted therefore. The question is open for debate.

If there is no debate I shall put the question that the proposed amendments to clauses 2 and 3 be approved. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman:. The Ayes have it.

AGREED. AMENDMENTS TO CLAUSES 2 AND 3 PASSED.

The Chairman: The question therefore is that clauses 2 and 3 as amended do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. CLAUSES 2 AND 3 AS AMENDED PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill to Amend the Companies Law (Revised).

The Chairman: The question is that the Title do stand part of the Bill. If there is no debate I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman:. The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE TITLE PASSED.

THE IMMIGRATION (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994.

The Chairman: The next Bill is The Immigration (Amendment) Bill, 1994. The Clerk will read the clauses.

Clerk: Clause 1—Short title.
Clause 2—Amendment to the Immigration Law (Law 13 of 1992).

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 1 and 2 do stand part of the Bill. If there is no debate I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

CINEMATOGRAPHIC AUTHORITY

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 3/94. The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: . Thank you, Madam Speaker. Madam Speaker, I beg to move Government Motion No. 3/94, entitled Cinematographic Authority. It reads as follows:

“WHEREAS section 2 of the Cinematograph Law, Cap. 18, provision is made for the establishment of an Authority consisting of the Governor, three Elected Members of the Legislative Assembly and one member nominated annually by the Governor to carry out the stipulation of the above-cited Law and Rules made thereunder;

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT the following Elected Members be appointed by the Legislative Assembly to the Cinematographic Authority for a period of one year as from the 1st January, 1994: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts, MLA; Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy, MBE, MLA; Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks, MLA.”

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

APOLOGY

The Speaker: Before I put the question, I should have apologised this morning for Mr. Dalmain. Ebanks, who sent an apology for his absence.

The question is Government Motion No. 3/94, Cinematographic Authority. The matter is open for debate. If there is no debate, I shall put the question that Government Motion No. 3/94 be passed.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Motion has accordingly been passed.

AGREED: GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 3/94—CINEMATOGRAPHIC AUTHORITY PASSED.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 4/94,. The Development and Planning Law (Revised) Regulations. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 4/94

THE DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING LAW (REVISED) REGULATIONS

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I am pleased to move Government Motion No. 4/94, entitled the Development and Planning Law (Revised), Development and Planning (Amendment) Regulations, 1994, which reads:

“WHEREAS by section 35(3) of the Development and Planning Law (Revised) it is provided that no regulations shall be made pursuant to the provisions of the said Law unless a draft thereof has been laid before the Legislative Assembly and a resolution approving the draft has been passed by the said Assembly;

“AND WHEREAS pursuant to the said section 35(3) a draft of the Development and Planning (Amendment) Regulations, 1994, has been laid before the Legislative Assembly;

“BE IT RESOLVED by the Legislative Assembly that the Development and Planning (Amendment) Regulations, 1994, be approved.”

Madam Speaker, the objective of the Draft Regulation before the House is to create more flexibility within the zoning of Beach Resort/Residential.

In the early days of the Planning Regulations, the objective was to have the Beach Resort/Residential zone as a transition zone between the Hotel/Tourism zone and the Low Density/Residential zone. However, in 1977, amendments to these regulations of 1972 caused the regulations for Low Density/Residential Zoning to be equally applied to Beach Resort/Residential. Regulation 8(7) of the Development and Planning Regulations, 1977, speaks to that matter.

The Draft Regulation (ref. clause 2, new proposed regulation 13(2)) which is presently before the House seeks to permit the following development in the Beach Resort/Residential Zone—“(a) detached and semi-detached houses; (b) duplexes; (c) beach resorts; and (d) in locations considered by the Authority to be suitable, guest houses, apartments, cottages, colonies and tourist related development.”

The new proposed regulation 13(3) provides: “(a) The maximum density for houses or duplexes is four detached or semi-detached houses, or four three bedroom duplexes per acre.” This is a change from the present three detached houses or two, three-bedroom duplexes per acre. The maximum density for guesthouses is presently 16 per acre. The new proposed regulation 13(3)(b) seeks to change that to 30 bedrooms per acre.

The maximum density for apartments is presently 15 per acre. The new proposed regulation 13(3)(c) seeks to allow 20 per acre, with a maximum of 30 bedrooms compared to the present 24; “(d) The maximum density for beach resorts is 30 bedrooms per acre;” and under (e) “The maximum number of cottages is eight per acre.”

The new proposed regulation 13(4) states: “All development shall meet the following minimum requirements prior to approval by the Authority:

(a) Lot sizes -

- (i) The minimum lot size for detached and semi-detached houses is 10,000 square feet and 8,000 square feet respectively;
- (ii) The minimum lot size for duplexes is 10,000 square feet;
- (iii) The minimum lot size for apartments, cottage colonies, beach resorts, guesthouses or tourist related development is one half of an acre.

(b) Setbacks -

- (i) Setbacks shall be at least 75 feet from the low water mark to any building or structure other than ancillary structures, except that the Authority may determine a setback to be no less than 50 feet from high water mark having regard to the elevation of the property and its environs, the geology of the property, the storm/belt ridge, the existence of a protective reef adjacent to the proposed development, the location of adjacent development, any other material consideration which the Authority considers will affect the proposal.
- (ii) Side setbacks shall be half the height of the buildings as measured at the eaves adjacent to the setback, with a minimum of 15 feet.
- (iii) Rear setbacks shall be 20 feet minimum from the road edge, or lot boundary as the case may be, except for buildings over one storey for which the rear setbacks shall be 25 feet minimum; and
- (iv) setbacks to ancillary structures may be determined by the Authority at its discretion.”

The new proposed regulation 13(5) states: “Where an application for planning permission is made for development in a Beach Resort/Residential Zone the Authority shall ensure that the development would provide:

- (a) A high standard of accommodation, amenity and open space; and
- (b) Outdoor facilities, including swimming pools, gardens and sun decks/patios/terraces with a substantial amount of landscaping; and incorporates sufficient screening to provide privacy from adjacent properties.”

The new proposed regulation 13(6) states: “Where planning permission is granted for a development in a Beach Resort/Residential Zone which has a frontage of 200 feet or more, the Authority shall ensure that a public right of way to the sea is set aside and dedicated; such a right of way shall be a minimum of six feet wide for every 200 feet of frontage or part thereof, and may be within an area set aside for setbacks.”

Madam Speaker, slowly we are coming to grips with the Planning Regulations and the Law in an attempt to firstly reduce bureaucracy—which was the amendment put forward to the Law in September last year to cause certain applications to go directly before the Chairman of the Central Planning Authority, and the Director of Planning and which applications are normally approved on a seven day basis. This Draft Regulation presently before the House seeks to give flexibility in the development of a Beach Resort/Residential Zone which is to the benefit of the developers as well as to the benefit of the Cayman Islands on a whole.

There are at the moment two developments that I am aware of which would immediately come into play. Certainly, one of them would almost immediately begin. And we need these regulations to be in place to afford some amount of the flexibility and some discretion on the part of the Central Planning Authority. I believe these regulations, Madam Speaker, are in the best interest of this country and our people, and I recommend it to Honourable Members.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Government Motion No. 4/94, the Development and Planning Law (Revised), Development and Planning (Amendment) Regulations, 1994. The matter is open for debate.

The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I rise to give my support to Government Motion No. 4/94, the Development and Planning Law (Revised), Development and Planning (Amendment) Regulations, 1994. I would like to congratulate the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning for bringing the Motion to this Honourable House with the amendment to the Regulations of the Development and Planning Law. I think it is very much needed.

The Beach Resort/Residential Zone was in a zone that has almost been kept from development because of restrictions that were placed on it. I think it will certainly cause that property to be more useful to its owners and, in turn a revenue earner for this country.

Madam Speaker, in addition to amendments that we have passed in recent times to the Development and Planning Law, and what we are dealing with here today, there are others that are very important. I feel confident that the Honourable Minister will be bringing those to us in a timely fashion.

I think it is appropriate that I pay tribute to the Director of the Planning Department for his efforts to improve this. He is a hard working young man—a Caymanian—and I had the opportunity of working with him for several years. I know that his desire is to get the Development and Planning Law to where it can be beneficial to the owners of the properties and, at the same time, to develop it to where it will be the best for the Cayman Islands as a whole.

One thing in particular that I would like to call to the attention of the Honourable Minister is the setback now allocated for swimming right-of-way—which is a six foot minimum. This has on many occasions become part of gardens or hallways down the middle of buildings and inaccessible to the public. I would strongly recommend that where possible, if there is 400 feet that the right-of-way be 12 feet so as to allow it to be kept properly, and also to create a certain amount of parking. This is creating a very serious problem along the West Bay Road. The accesses to the beaches are almost useless if one cannot find a place to park an automobile. The days of our walking seem to have left us.

So, Madam Speaker, with these few remarks I again want to congratulate the Honourable Minister for his forward planning and I give this Motion my full support.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

These Draft Development and Planning (Amendment) Regulations, 1994, which have been brought before us are very timely. I had occasion to sit on the Central Planning Authority for several years, and I have had much trouble with situations that now seem to be addressed. I think that in general the regulations will make life for all concerned and those directly affected (meaning the property owners) much easier with regard to development. I have a few observations, nonetheless, and I would just like to point these out. Maybe someone might see fit to share the view.

Since the previous speaker mentioned the six-foot right-of-way, I will quickly address that. The proposed regulations regarding that setback read: “Where planning permission is granted for a development in a Beach Resort/Residential Zone which has a frontage of 200 feet or more, the Authority shall ensure that a public right-of-way to the sea is set aside and dedicated; such a right-of-way shall be a minimum of six feet wide for every 200 feet of frontage or part thereof, and may be within an area set aside for setbacks.”

The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman drew a few illustrations to describe the drawback of the wording in this section, and I would just like to add a few more. On occasion I have known developers to use this six foot right-of-way as a part of a general area for emergency vehicles to have access to the property, and on a few occasions I have known this to be an afterthought to accommodate other encumbrances after structures were already erected. I contend that the way in which this right-of-way should be done is for it to be at either boundary of the property, whichever is more advantageous, bearing in mind the size of the adjacent property.

For example, if there are two adjacent properties in excess of 200 feet frontage, it means that if the six foot right-of-way per 200 feet were put on the boundaries that butt and bind those two properties, there could be a right-of-way that you could probably drive through, or something of that nature. I think that common sense should prevail when deciding on where that right-of-way should be.

I have a problem where it says it "may be within an area set aside for setbacks," because there are many instances which would almost prove that six feet is inaccessible to the public. So, I ask that that be considered. Also, and maybe this is just for clarification—maybe last night's football game still has me up on cloud nine—new proposed clause 4(a)(iii) states: "Rear setbacks shall be 20 feet minimum from the road edge or lot boundary as the case may be, except for buildings over one storey for which the rear setbacks shall be 25 feet minimum," and I am trying to picture what is being termed as rear setbacks. I do not know whether we are looking at the front of the building to be for instance on the seaside, or whether we are looking at the building to be facing the road. I am not clear on this. I am not passing an opinion here. It is simply not clear to me. I would just like the Honourable Minister to clarify that when he speaks again on the proposed regulations.

The section above it, sub-paragraph (ii) states: "Side setbacks shall be half the height of the buildings as measured at the eaves adjacent to the setback, with a minimum of 15 feet." I am also not 100 percent sure what the maximum height of these buildings is. I think the maximum height might have a bearing on the way the side setbacks are calculated. It might not. But I am not 100 percent sure of what that height is. So, would the Honourable Minister will clarify that.

Finally, Madam Speaker, the minimum lot size for detached and semi-detached houses is 10,000 square feet and 8,000 square feet, respectively. I may not be envisaging these types of developments properly, but my immediate thought is whether these lot sizes are not a bit small. Maybe the Honourable Minister could address that in detail to clarify.

I only bring these points to get a better understanding and to put a slightly different view forward in regard to some of the wording. I do support these Draft Regulations in general, and I look forward to them being put into effect.

Thank you.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, I will ask the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning if he would reply.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: . . Madam Speaker, I realise the hour is getting on, so I will be brief with my comments.

First, I wish to thank Honourable Members for their support of the Draft Regulations and to say to the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town that I am in complete agreement in respect of six foot public paths along the Seven Mile Beach or anywhere else. It seems to me that if there are two pieces of property, as described by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, which butt and bind each other, then it would make sense to ensure that the six feet are on that same side, thus providing a 12 foot access to the sea.

I am not quite sure what the Honourable Member is asking in regard to rear setbacks. In reading the regulations (and I did not speak specifically with the Director of Planning on this particular item), we have to assume that it is a one storey building. As in one case it goes on to say "except for buildings over one storey," when it talks about the rear setbacks, and the side setbacks. However, I will undertake to speak to the Honourable Member personally on the matter, and to feed him back information that, hopefully, will satisfy him.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that Government Motion No. 4/94, the Development and Planning Law (Revised) Draft Development and Planning (Amendment) Regulations, 1994, be passed. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it. Government Motion No. 4/94 has been passed.

AGREED: GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 4/94, DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING LAW (REVISED) DRAFT DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING (AMENDMENT) REGULATIONS, 1994, PASSED.

The Speaker: I will now ask for the Motion for the Adjournment by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock, Wednesday morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Wednesday morning the 9th of March at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 9 MARCH 1994.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
9 MARCH 1994
10.05 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Elected Member for North Side to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, the Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY SPEAKER

STUDENTS FROM THE CAYMAN ISLANDS MARINE INSTITUTE

The Speaker: It is my pleasure to welcome students from the Cayman Islands Marine Institute who are present in the Gallery to observe proceedings.

APOLOGY

The Speaker: An apology has been received from the Second Elected Member for George Town who might possibly be late in his attendance this morning.

Presentation of Papers and of Reports. The 1993 Report of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs. The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

THE 1993 REPORT OF THE ADVISORY COUNCIL ON THE MISUSE OF DRUGS

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the 1993 Report of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Honourable Minister will make a brief statement.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, this report was publicised through what I call the espionage that takes place in this country—the media. That, as I said, was carried in a report by The New Caymanian and was made public before this morning. I will be making further statements on this matter.

The Speaker: Thank you.

The Government Minute on the Public Accounts Committee Report on the Auditor General's Report on the Audited Accounts of the Cayman Islands Government for the year ended 31 December 1992. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

GOVERNMENT MINUTE ON THE PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE REPORT ON THE AUDITOR GENERAL'S REPORT ON THE AUDITED ACCOUNTS OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31 DECEMBER 1992

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Government Minute on the Public Accounts Committee Report on the Auditor General's Report on the Accounts of the Cayman Islands Government for the year ended 31 December 1992.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: So ordered.

We proceed to Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 28 is standing the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 28

No. 28: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member what ranks are responsible for planning strategies to deal with any abnormal situation (for example, hostage taking, barricading in cells) occurring at Northward Prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The ranks responsible for planning strategies to deal with any abnormal situation occurring at Northward prison are the Director, Deputy Director, Principal Officers, the Lead Officer on duty at the time, or any other Lead Officers may be called and from the junior rank or civilian staff if they have a desired skill.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Are the ranks limited exclusively to the staff at Northward Prison or is there any inclusion of outside sources of a similar nature to prison service?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It is my understanding that if it is found necessary outside sources will be tapped.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say if there is a situation where planning is regularly scheduled, or it is a situation where planning only goes into process once a situation has arisen?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Prison has a set of emergency orders and these are followed in that respect.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 29, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 29

No. 29: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member under what circumstances searches of prisoners' cells are carried out at Northward Prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Some of the circumstances under which prisoners' cells are searched at Northward Prison are: (i) on the information received of contraband or other illegal activities; and (ii) suspicion of contraband or other illegal activities.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member explain the procedure when a cell block is being searched?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I am informed that it is unusual to search a single cell block. Instead, sections of blocks are searched at a particular time.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if there are any routine inspection of cells, let us say on a weekly or biweekly basis?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Yes, there are routine searches carried out, I understand every Sunday morning.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In the event of a cell or a group of cells being searched, can the Member say what would be the complement of Prison Officers in the search party, and what is the ratio of Prison Officers to prisoners in a particular cell or cells being searched?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. There are two prisoners to a cell and three persons in a search team, so the ratio would be 3:2 in favour of the Prison Officers.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say whether a record of these searches is kept?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Yes, a record of these searches is kept.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, can the Member say if, when searches are being carried out, all of the blocks are searched on that particular day, or is it only certain blocks? Clever prisoners might be able to hide some contraband in another block if they knew that would not be searched on a particular day.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. There are only certain sections searched on a particular day. It is apparently not possible to search the entire prison on one particular occasion.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 30, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 30

No. 30: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member how many incidences of drugs being found at Northward Prison were there in 1993?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. There were 20 incidences of drugs being found at Northward Prison in 1993.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say how this compares to incidences of drugs found in the prison in 1992?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The comparison of those figures is not readily available.

The Speaker: Honourable Temporary First Official Member, will you undertake to supply these figures to the Member?

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, Madam Speaker, I will.

The Speaker: That normally would have been a follow up on the substantive question. Thank you.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker can the Honourable Member say if in these 20 instances persons were punished in whatever form, and was it possible for the prison authorities to get information as to where these drugs may have come from, to improve the security of the prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In instances where drugs are found, the matter is reported to the police. The police will then deal with it, no doubt through the Courts as far as punishment is concerned. The police also deal with the follow-up on this, as far as the second part of the question is concerned, in an effort to determine where the drugs may have come from.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, for clarification, could the Honourable Member inform the House whether there is any particular direction or responsibility with the Prison for its own internal security to investigate these matters? How does the role of the police actually enter into the prison system, whereby it is easier for them to determine this than the prison authorities?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The police would be the authority and would have the necessary power to interrogate and to follow through on matters with the Court as far as attempting to have punishment carried out. The prison authorities are really not the body to do the investigation.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say what is the normal occurrence when drugs have been discovered in the cell of a prisoner, adjacent to that cell or anywhere on the prison compound?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. When drugs are found in a cell or near a cell (certainly, in a cell), the prisoner or prisoners suspected would be isolated. The drugs would be seized, the police would be called, and the prisoner, or prisoners, would be brought to George Town to be interrogated.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Would that interrogation lead to the taking of a urine specimen, or some other way of ascertaining if there were any traces of drugs in the prisoner's system?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It is my understanding that yes, usually this is done. But I would expect that this would be decided by the police.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. This will be the last supplementary on this question.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In light of the Honourable Member's reply prior to the last one, it would seem that there may be a weakness in terms of the authority given to the prison in solving matters such as the discovery of contraband. Would the Honourable Member perhaps undertake to bring this to the attention of the Commissioner who will be doing the study there, and to have him look after this aspect of it and see if there is not something lacking in the prison itself?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Yes, I will give an undertaking that the matter of perhaps a lack of authority could be missing and certainly, it would be a matter for the investigating officer to determine.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 31, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 31

No. 31: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture which government agency, authority, individual or department is responsible for the licensing of counsellors in the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The Health Practitioners' Board is charged with the registration and discipline of Health Practitioners practising in the Cayman Islands. The schedule to the Health Practitioners' Law includes 'Psychology' as a health profession. Thus, psychologists who are also counsellors, would also be covered under the Health Practitioners' Law, 1974.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, can the Honourable Minister say, in the event of a person not being so termed or qualified as a psychologist, yet practising as a counsellor, if such a person would be licensed by the Health Practitioner's Board?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: He is correct, Madam Speaker. They would not be licensed under the Health Practitioner's Board.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if there are not persons in the country who are in various positions of counselling who indeed would need to be licensed by some authority? Or is it the case that such counsellors do not require a counselling licence to practice in the Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Maybe, Madam Speaker, the Member could enlighten the House as to who he is referring to?

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I am rather adverse to the calling of names in the Legislature unless actually forced to. However, I am thinking of marriage counsellor, or counsellors in any level or environment in which such person would presume to be in a position to advise other persons in the society—other than being psychologists.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: There are proposals for revision of the Health Practitioner's Law, and in order to enable the registration of counsellors, consideration is being given for the inclusion of counsellors in the category of allied health profession. Those persons who perhaps just call themselves counsellors will be caught under that aspect of the Law.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 32, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 32

No. 32: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture when the new section will be added to the old Hospital in George Town?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: In December 1993, a directive was provided to the Public Works Department to proceed with development of a Master Plan of Facilities at the present site. The review will be carried out with the Health Services Department Facilities Review Committee. In addition, the Planning Department and its advising Departments (Fire, Environment, etcetera), will work closely with the Review Team. The Master Plan is to cover the 10-year period from 1994 to 2004, and will project the physical needs of the George Town Hospital.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Minister confirm, then, that at this time no time has been scheduled for this addition to be done at the Hospital?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the Member would be correct because we are just proceeding on the Master Facilities plan. However, the Government has said that it hopes to have some facilities completed by the end of the year.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In using resource documentation, will the Committee the Honourable Minister has referred to make use of a previous plan done and submitted to Government at great expense by International Health Care Corporation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the Member asking that question opposed that plan. I opposed it, but the Committee has said that it will look at all materials produced in the past several years in connection with the George Town Hospital.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister give any indication as to the statistical data that may now be available, pointing to the demand for Health Services which would necessitate the addition to the George Town Hospital?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I think that falls quite a distance away from the original question and unless the Honourable Minister has figures to that effect, he may be able to supply them at a later date.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I bow to your decision on the matter. I would like to ask if there is any indication of what might come first. What might be aimed at as a first reality as an addition to the Hospital by the end of the year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, that particular question was asked, I believe during the last meeting, and I do not have the information right at hand. That would be contained in Hansards.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 33, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 33

No. 33: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture how will the amount of C$790,000.00 that was voted in the 1994 Budget be allocated for Cayman Islands Marine Institute, giving a breakdown thereof?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: The payment scheduled for the 12 month period will be in equal monthly installments, paid at the first of each month. All expenses of the programme will be met by the Cayman Islands Marine Institute from the contract sum.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I would like clarification. Is the Minister telling the House that $790,000 would be divided equally into 12 parts and paid to an entity called Cayman Islands Marine Institute, which would then allocate these monies for whatever services being given?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, that is what the substantive answer said.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, can the Minister say then, if the Government has details as to where these 12 sums of money will go, and to pay for what?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, very much, Madam Speaker. Maybe the Member could repeat that supplementary question. Would he please?

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, what I am asking the Honourable Minister is if the Government has details as to what these 12 sums of money will go to pay for in the provision of these services, and what are these details?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Yes, Madam Speaker, the Government does have a contract with that institution and that contract provides full details of the services provided.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House what some of these details are? Will it be food, clothing, electricity, payment of salaries for the people who are involved there, or what is the situation to which this money is being applied? It is a large sum of money and no doubt will increase.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, all of us have known the amount for quite some time. To answer his last supplementary, all expenses of the programme will be met by the Institute. That would cover all those things he talked about, and more. The substantive answer says "All expenses."

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. This will be the last supplementary.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker, I am sorry to hear that. I would like to ask if the Cayman Islands Marine Institute is a local company or organisation formed similarly to the company formed by International Health Care Corporation years ago, when the Hospital was being done? Is this a local version of American Marine Institute in Tampa, formed here in the Cayman Islands specifically for the purpose of this contract?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, surely the Member must be joking. He should well understand that this Government is not doing, has not done, and will not be doing any business with Health Care Corporation.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. We proceed to Government Business, Bills, Third Readings.

The Speaker: Government Motions. Government Motion No. 5/94, the Development and Planning Law (Revised) (Amendment to the Development Plan, 1977). I understand that the Honourable Minister of Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture will move this Motion.

GOVERNMENT MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 5/94

DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING LAW (REVISED) (AMENDMENT TO THE DEVELOPMENT PLAN, 1977)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, in the absence of the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business, I will move this Motion.

“BE IT RESOLVED by the Legislative Assembly, pursuant to the powers conferred on it by section 8 of the Development and Planning Law (Revised), that the Development Plan 1977 (being the plan referred to in subsection (5) of section 6 of the Law) be this day altered by the amendment of the map incorporated with and forming part of the plan as follows:-

Madam Speaker, this Motion is a companion to Government Motion No. 4/94, which was dealt with earlier in the week. That Motion created more flexibility in terms of the number of beds, set-backs and so on, which a zone allowed.

The Motion before the House has been through the process of the Central Planning Authority with the required advertising period. Members will note that Exhibit A, attached to the Motion, explains very clearly what the Government is doing. The matter itself is dealt with in the Motion before us, which is that we are rezoning from Agriculture/Residential to Beach Resort/Residential. The District Development Committee made recommendations in line with the procedure before the House for the re-zoning of that area.

Plans are afoot for development in that area and this is in keeping with Government's policy of encouraging development in the eastern districts, rather than just concentrating on the Seven Mile Beach area. This is also one more sensible effort by Government to assure investors that Government is serious about good development and will accommodate such development whenever possible. We ask the House to agree accordingly.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Government Motion No. 5/94, and the matter is open for debate. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I have no problem in supporting this recommendation from Government, but I simply rise to make a query in regard to Exhibit A, reference number (1) "Scenic Coastline (1977)." I wonder if there are building restrictions in areas zoned "Scenic Coastline"?

In regard to reference number (2) it is being sought that the four parcels, which are the four parcels at hand, be rezoned from Agriculture/Residential to Beach/Resort Residential. I am just wondering whether we need to deal with that matter to ensure that all is taken care of, because if the property is rezoned to Beach Resort/Residential, and the area is still scenic coastline, there may be problems when plans are brought forward for construction on those four parcels.

However, I do support the concept.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate I would ask the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture if he would like to reply.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, just to thank Members for their support.

The Speaker: The question is that Government Motion No. 5/94 be passed. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it. The Motion has duly been passed.

AGREED: GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 5/94 PASSED.

The Speaker: Proceeding to Other Business. Private Member's Motion No. 7/94—Fair Competition Law, continuation of the debate thereon. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/94

FAIR COMPETITION LAW

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Private Member's Motion No. 7/94, Fair Competition Law, is one which in my estimation is very valid in these times. My first statement is that I would ask the Government bench to take a very serious look at the Motion and not allow it to be one that is dealt with as if it did not exist.

In the Whereas section of this Motion, I find the key areas to be: “AND WHEREAS there is a need for some form of legislation which protects consumers from misleading advertising and other anti-competitive practices;

“AND WHEREAS such an act will promote active vigilance among consumers;

“AND WHEREAS a Fair Competition Law will encourage businesses to exercise more care and responsibility in how they promote and sell their goods and services.”

The resolve section simply states, “BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT Government explore the possibility of establishing a Fair Competition Law;

“AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Government consider setting up a Fair Trading Commission to complement such a Fair Competition Law.”

In the two resolve sections, I want to point out two key words before I get into the meat of my contribution. The first is the word "explore" in the first resolve section, "that Government explore the possibility of establishing" The second is "consider". . . "that the Government consider setting up a Fair Trading Commission...." While this may seem foreign to many of us, the fact of the matter is that during the process of growth and economic development in our Islands, we have reached the stage where we are being exposed to many types of business practices to which we need not have given any consideration to in years gone by.

Inevitably in my opinion, it is because of this exposure that we will have problems for which there is no present legislation that one can call on to deal with them when it comes to businesses, business practices, and competition on a whole.

An excerpt which basically outlines this concept is: "This Act is founded on the conviction that allowing full play to competition in the market will result in the widest range of benefits for all concerned. For consumers these should include quality products and services, an increased range of choices and the best possible prices. The Act, if accepted as a Motion and dealt with in legislation, could prohibit advertisers from making claims that are false or misleading about the nature, character or performance of any product. These would include warranties, statements of guarantees which are not based on adequate and proper tests."

I just read that in trying to illustrate the problems I see ensuing as we go along, and as businesses continue to thrive and the economy continues to expand. More than ever, therefore, and as a result of a Fair Competition Law, consumers would be in a position not only to protect their interests, but to bring about a more viable and productive marketplace.

A quick excerpt from the Fair Competition Act 1993, which is now legislation in Jamaica, the interpretation section says: "AN ACT to Provide for the maintenance and encouragement of competition in the conduct of trade, business and in the supply of services with a view to providing consumers with competitive prices and product choices" In essence, this Fair Competition Law is not one that either the provider of the goods and services or the consumer should have any fear about. It is simply one which would be used as an umbrella to cover both the provider and the receiver of goods and services and that fair play exists on both parts.

There is another similar Act from Western Australia. I will draw quick references with a view to simply outline some of the parameters under which such a law in these Islands could operate to the benefit of all concerned.

In the Interpretation section of the Fair Trading Act of 1987, for Western Australia, the Act is described as one to "regulate the supply, advertising and description of goods and services and in certain respects the disposal of interest in land and to make provision with respect to certain unfair or undesirable trade practices as to the conditions and warranties to be applicable in consumer transactions and as to the establishment of codes of practice as between certain classes of suppliers and consumers and for any other related purposes."

That interpretation goes a little bit further than the first one, and it seems that there is great relevance in the Whereas section of this Motion as compared to the interpretation of such an Act which exists in Western Australia.

This Act addresses topics such as harassment and coercion, just to name a few here, Madam Speaker. It deals with regulations; codes of practice; warnings and notices to the public, which I daresay are lacking tremendously in these Islands. It deals with the recall of defective goods. In speaking about the recall of defective goods, I have known of instances here, albeit not on a regular basis, where it is public knowledge that goods on shelves are recalls or are way behind time. In my opinion, it is not a question of blaming someone for it, it is simply that at this point in time there is no one ultimately responsible for it.

In matters such as these (goods on the supermarket shelves, vehicles or appliances), whilst we do not have to deal with problems on a daily basis, it is my opinion that legislation put in place to take care of these matters must be better for all concerned, rather than to have individuals face these problems and not have a clue as to where to turn to in order to correct them. We can no longer live by the code that we, being the people we are, will live up to our responsibilities and take care of whatever goes amiss or awry.

We are no longer in the merchant scene when things came few and far between. We find more and more popping up on a daily basis. So, using those few illustrations, Madam Speaker, I submit that legislation is the only correct way to deal with these situations.

I heard the Third Elected Member for George Town highlight the existence of the Better Business Bureau, or the Better Business Committee, or something (I think we all understand what it is) which operates within the Chamber of Commerce. While someone else might take a different view, I quite appreciate the Chamber of Commerce having the vision, so to speak, to attempt to operate in such a fashion and try to curb these problems which might crop up from time to time.

However, it is my view that the Chamber and its Better Business Bureau, or Committee, can do as much as they try to do, but they would never ever be able to accomplish as much as they should without the existing legislation. So, contrary to what others may feel, it is my opinion that that Committee could operate in a much more efficient fashion if legislation were in place. They would not have to write their own laws at that point in time and neither would they have to be their own judge on what is right and wrong. It would be in black and white at a national level. That is my opinion, Madam Speaker.

I am not for a second saying that what they are doing is not a noble and just cause, that is not the point that I make. I simply say that legislation in tandem with their efforts would achieve much more. That is my view.

So, having brought these few illustrations, I personally give my support to this Motion and reiterate to the Government bench that the resolve sections are asking for Government to explore the possibility of establishing a Fair Competition Law and for them to consider setting up a Fair Trading Commission.

The Motion is worded in such a way that Government will have ample opportunity to make sure that enough research is done so that if such a law and such a commission became a reality it would be done in such a way that it would be beneficial to all. Members here have access to other existing Laws and Acts and I am sure that everyone would be happy to pass on whatever literature is available so that Government may examine the situation. It is my view that Government would be doing a noble act for the business community and consumers in these Islands if they were to consider this Motion with a view to accepting it for what I term a better Cayman Islands.

I thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This Motion will create far more problems than it is going to prove good. I know that in other countries, with other systems of government, these laws exist and there are anti-trust laws which are in some ways similar to this. However, when we look at the situation as it now is, we realise that sometimes, or many times I would say, it is better for Government not to get too much further into the bureaucracy and the controlling of the fair trade areas of these Islands.

At present, under the Trade and Business Licensing Law and the Local Companies (Control) Law, there is a considerable amount of power and legislation that deals with fronting and can deal with practices which may be against those laws. When problems do arise—and we had it for example with the taxi and the bus business recently—I believe that it is better to try to sort those out as they arise. To try to put in place a Fair Trading Commission now is in my view going to cut right across the democratic and the freedom of competitiveness, especially between Caymanians, at present.

Under the present laws Caymanians have the right to enter into any trade, with a few exceptions where there are specific laws for qualifications such as, for example, lawyers, or a plumber or electrician, where you need a licence. So, in some areas, a certain standard of competency is needed.

I believe to get into a situation where there is a commission that has to look at every allegation of unfair trading is going to be setting up another piece of bureaucracy. As the Members who are promoting this (the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman), have often said, they keep objecting to more power going into Government appointed bodies, or whatever. I think that if we get to a stage where we are going to introduce rules in relation to trying to deal with what a code of ethics within each business should do, we are legislating into an area that is fraught with many, many problems.

If you just look, for example, at the problems under the Labour Law now, which deals with some of this, you will see the mammoth task that would face this commission. The less Government gets involved in private sector business, the better off the country is. This is why I have always felt that as much as the private sector can deal with, we should allow them to do. With all due respect, in most instances they do a much better job than Government can do because there is a lot less bureaucracy and they are subject to different pressures than politicians and Legislative Assembly Members are.

At present, we have the Chamber of Commerce, through its Better Business Bureau that it operates, and the principle there is a sound one, I believe. This type of problem is not something that you can just legislate for and it works. It has to be developed over a period of time, taken in stages, and it normally arises out of a well organised, private body that deals effectively with the unethical business problems as they arise.

In fact, one of the most difficult things is to legislate ethics or morals. In fact, it is perhaps the one area that democracies have never come to grips with by dealing with it through legislation. Normally businesses and professions are left to provide their own rule of ethics and their own fair trading rules.

Once we begin to try to legislate what is fair and what is unfair, we are in a position where someone loses. It is an adversarial position. It is one where we should be very careful to what extent we go, because what is fair for one person may be deemed to be unfair by another person. So, we are bringing in a subjective test with a law that will have objective principles. I think this is very important because we are now trying to impose standards as to what is fair and what is unfair, what is ethical and what is unethical, as certain people feel. It is in that area that I see this would be a can of worms.

I am all for seeing the Government support certain private aspects, such as the Chamber of Commerce's Better Business Council, and to have that developed and looked at over a period before any thought is given to attempting to put in rigid legislation—rules that have, of necessity, to remain flexible and grow with the community and even to grow with the economy as it is at the time. If the economy is up and booming, what is fair trade then and what is unfair trade, would differ considerably if we are in a recession.

I think Members of this Honourable House realise how difficult it is to deal with fronting, for example. One of the things is that every Government has legislated and amended legislation and done everything in the world, but in the final analysis it is just is not simple to legislate rigidly for ethics and for what is fair and what is unfair.

I believe that we should be extremely careful to not confuse what is unethical with what may be illegal. We had examples given of what I would refer to as the travelling salesman. There are very clear laws—Trade and Business Licensing Law, Immigration Law, and the Local Companies (Control) Law—which deal with this. If we have people coming into this country without the necessary Trade and Business Licence, or a work permit, and doing business, that is illegal; but that is different from trying to enforce by law what is unethical or what is unfair.

The Immigration Board—and I point this out because we are cutting across a principle here of democracy and we have to be very careful how we do it—regulates the extent to a person, such as a travelling salesman, can have a permit. As to whether they feel that there are people here who can ably deal with this as Caymanians, or whether they should issue a permit, and that in my view is already over legislated. I believe we have nearly over legislated the fronting situation and I do not believe that we should attempt to regulate, to any further extent, the position relating to trade.

The Immigration Law clearly deals with the competition between non-Caymanians and Caymanians. So, that is properly legislated. A large part of what is in here is already provided for under the law. For example, the first recital says that some businesses are complaining about unfair competition from non-Caymanians. There is legislation for that. It goes on to say that there is growing concern about unfair competition from non-Caymanian elements that is detrimental to the Caymanian. There is legislation for that.

I am not too certain about what this written complaint is. It would perhaps have been better if that had been annexed because this has been a year or two ago. But we cannot act on the basis of one letter dated 6 March 1992, and legislate for people generally. There are always going to be people in society who complain. The minority of complainers are here, and we live with them, and many of them are good people. But, I do not believe that legislation this important should be dealt with that way.

Perhaps the one area where something may need to be done (and perhaps this is not as fully covered under the Immigration Law as it could possibly be) is where we have non-Caymanians doing misleading advertising and that sort of thing. That is an area that has been of some concern. But if it is a non-Caymanian then the Immigration Law should be able to deal with it when that person's work permit comes up. This type of advertising would be looked at. Under the provisions of that Law they look at most things that relate to their doing business in the Islands.

A lot of the areas where I have heard complaints about this advertising is that it may be done on the high seas, over which we have no jurisdiction. This is a problem, for example, with cruise ships. How that is approached and dealt with effectively when it is outside the jurisdiction is not a simple one either, because we cannot really legislate extraterritorially.

I believe the promotion of vigilance among consumers is something that the different bodies themselves, along with the consumers, can well look at from the private sector's point of view.

No matter what we do, the solution to this particular problem is not simple. It is not one that is going to go away even after legislation is put through, if it even reaches that stage, which I do not think we should reach. It is one that has to be subject to the checks and balances in a normal democratic and free trade community—free trade between Caymanians. I keep stressing this because not only are you going to see this trade commission having to look at foreigners and Caymanians, which overlaps the Immigration Law anyhow, but sooner or later . . . we know how legislation is. It is going to be extended into dealing with free trade between Caymanians. Then we are really going to get into an area of difficulty to which I do not think we should even dare venture into.

I believe that everyone must make a decent living, and everyone must live and they should be given a fair opportunity. However, it is very hard to legislate that because the legislation that we are attempting to put through will be an objective one, and many times the problem is subjective and peculiar to that specific person in his or her specific trade.

Finally, I believe that the present immigration laws are sufficiently effective as legislation to deal with the problems that are there. Perhaps there needs to be some tightening up in certain areas. What I do know is that this House has strengthened the provisions for the calling of information and requiring details of transactions to be given to avoid fronting. I believe that the Immigration Board has been able to deal with a lot of funny instances.

I would rather leave any area of the question of ethical practices because that is about the only area where I see there is no legislation. I would like to make that clear. There is now detailed legislation, the last of which was looked at for three years by a Select Committee of this Honourable House. We heard from just about everybody in the world who had any interest in being heard. It was looked at in depth and a total Immigration Law, amended Trade and Business Local Companies (Control) Law was put out and that deals with the question of competition and the many other principles that are involved—not just competition amongst non-Caymanians and Caymanians. But it does not provide for anything other than free competition between Caymanians. That is a principle that before there is any attempt to change we would really be getting into an area that I would not support.

So, the only area where I really see this Motion may be attempting to seek a law, would be in relation to things like misleading advertising or certain things which are unethical within the profession or the business. Like I said, just about all professions have to regulate themselves. Society itself cannot regulate. For example, in the legal profession we have our own ethical rules. I believe that if Government ever tried to intervene and legislate those—firstly, they could not be enforced, and secondly, they could not get the cooperation that would be necessary to go with it. I think that should be left to the private sector to deal with.

The question of the advertising (of which I believe the complaint that I received a few years ago was in relation to the cruise ships), is one that is not very simple to deal with; and one that is perhaps nearly impossible to legislate for because it is outside of the jurisdiction of our Courts.

So, I would say that we should leave the private sector to deal with private sector business. We should remain with the Immigration Law and other laws relating to it that we now have and assist the different associations, whatever they may be—whether they be retail traders, or the Hotel Association, or whatever—to try to deal and regulate their own ethics within their own trades and professions and not have to introduce any further bureaucracy into these Islands by creating any type of commission or passing any laws that would attempt to deal with something which I do not think can be properly legislated in relation to.

I do not support the Motion at all. I believe there is already sufficient legislation. I think we just need the will and the enforcement to deal with the one or two complaints that have been mentioned in this.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.34 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.55 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 7/94. (Pause) If there is no further debate I shall ask the Mover of the Motion if he would like to exercise his right to reply. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, the Minister replying on behalf of the Government demonstrated a shallow ignorance of the Motion and what it is seeking, and of a Fair Competition Act and Fair Trading Commission that is uncharacteristic for someone of his tenure in this Parliament.

In none of its clauses does the Motion seek to regulate or establish any moral or ethical code, nor, for that matter, does a Fair Competition Act or a Fair Trading Commission—certainly not those I used as models. That Minister, Madam Speaker, succeeded in dragging in all sorts of irrelevancies and in dragging the Motion in all forms of unwarranted debate and direction.

Madam Speaker, I shall attempt to deal with some of his criticism. Thereafter, I shall revert to debating the essence of the Motion and the reasons why I think that we in the Cayman Islands need a Fair Competition Act and need to consider the establishment of a Fair Trading Commission at this time.

The Minister spoke about a need to stay away from stiff legislation. I believe his words were “we have to be extremely careful about stiff legislation.” I would like to ask that Minister if it is out of this kind of caution and extreme care he is advocating, that he did not see fit to introduce legislation guaranteeing a Bill of Rights in this Country?

The Minister also spoke about how he was worried about encumbering bureaucracies. Well, if that Minister was so worried about encumbering bureaucracies, I wonder why he and his cabinet colleagues chose to change the Customs Law and the Traffic Law to give them almost inordinate powers of decision into what can be imported into this Island in certain categories.

The Minister also spoke about his concern that these types of practices should be regulated by the private sector and private entities. Madam Speaker, anyone with a modicum of intelligence, and anyone who is abreast of current affairs realises that in the United States of America—that bastion of capitalism and democracy, which has not only Chapters of a Chamber of Commerce but representatives of all those Chapters forming a single Chamber of Commerce—there are regulations by the Federal Government.

I have to wonder if that Minister speaking on behalf of Government is ignorant of the Federal Communications Commission—the FCC. Is that Member ignorant of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) which regulates bankers and banking practices in the United States? And is that Member ignorant of the Federal Deposit Insurance Commission (FDIC) in the United State? Madam Speaker, I could go on and on.

The reason these checks and balances are put in place is not that the Federal Government is relying wholly and solely on these various aspects of the private sector to police and regulate themselves. Rather, the Federal Government is seeking to ensure that it regulates and retains control because it realises that there are sectors in the society that would not be otherwise protected.

So, Madam Speaker, it is folly to argue that the Better Business Bureau set up by the Chamber of Commerce (and I tip my hat to the organisation and to the functioning of their Better Business Bureau) is going to operate to the benefit of everyone. For, by its own admission and inception, the Chamber of Commerce is a special interest group. I wonder what happens in the case where a complaint is made by someone who is not a member against someone, or an organisation, which is a member. Whose side is the Chamber of Commerce obligated to take in that instance?

We need look no further than next door in Jamaica. They have a Chamber of Commerce, yet Jamaica has a Fair Competition Act. Indeed, it is one of these Acts that we used as a model. I want to establish early that the Chamber of Commerce itself is interested in this kind of legislation, for in the process of preparing this, my colleague and I were in communication with them. Indeed, they invited us to explain and elaborate on where we see this kind of legislation going.

It is unfortunate that through prior commitments (and also by virtue of the fact that the Motion was, at that time before the House) we were unable to keep our appointment with them. But, certainly, we shall be willing, if their interest is still in having us appear before their Executive Committee, to go and explain the functions of a Fair Trading Commission and of what we see a Fair Competition Act doing.

So, it is folly to speak about this Motion seeking to legislate morals or ethics. An example of some of the things that are dealt with in a Fair Competition Act there is false representations, bait advertising, referral selling, pyramid selling, recall of defective goods, prerequisites for making a recall order. And, from the Fair Trade Practices Act, 1974, of Australia, exclusive dealing; resale price maintenance; actions in respect of unsuitable goods; actions in respect of false descriptions; action in respect of goods of unmerchantable quality; meaning of goods having defect; liability for defective goods causing injuries or loss to the person. These are the kinds of things we are talking about. There is no need for any Government Minister to try to mislead and drag irrelevancies into the argument.

I contend, Madam Speaker, that if the Immigration Law and the Companies (Control) Law, to which that Minister referred, were so effective, why is it that we have daily complaints by Caymanians about fronting? Why is it we still have daily complaints by Caymanians about unfair competition from foreign business persons? And why is it that the Executive Council just had to take the extraordinary step of amending the Customs Law and the Traffic Law to protect Caymanians from non-Caymanian competitive elements? The arguments led by that Minister are, at best, spurious.

Madam Speaker, one of the problems with the Government is that It is unfamiliar with this whole notion since It had to borrow one of the copies of the Law or Act that we had. I did not expect them to come here and say that they were unprepared. However, the intelligent person can glean that from the argument laid down by the person speaking on behalf of the Government. Might

I add, it is of no surprise to me coming from that Minister!

Madam Speaker, a Fair Competition Act, at its most basic and simplistic form seeks to protect not only the merchant, the trader, or the person providing goods and services, but also seeks to protect the consumer. Contrary to what the Minister speaking on behalf of Government said, it does not always have to be an adversarial relationship. As I understand, the Act and the Commission in Jamaica is predicated upon the fact that consumers will be educated, that the users of services will be educated as much as the providers of these goods and services.

Anyone in his right mind must understand that it is impossible for the Immigration Law, or for the Local Companies (Control) Law, to contain legislation which is so wide-sweeping and so far-reaching as to cover acts having to deal with the purchase and supply of goods and services. That would be legislation that would be so wide and so far-reaching that it would have to be so watered-down as to be ineffective.

Now, I see a Fair Competition Act and a Fair Trading Commission as complementary to the Immigration Law, and as complementary to the Local Companies (Control) Law by virtue of the fact that it introduces new elements and new aspects not now covered in these Laws, but relevant by virtue of certain facts and factors.

In the Jamaican Act, we deal with such things as price fixing, conspiracy, bid rigging, misleading advertising. I have cross-checked some of these aspects and categories against what is contained in the Canadian Competition Act, as they call it, and against what is contained in the Fair Trade Practices Act, 1974, of Australia. I checked it against what is contained in the Fair Trade Act, 1987, of Western Australia. There are many areas of similarity and overlap.

I am saying that when I made the comparison, there was no such coverage in our Local Companies (Control) Law or in our Immigration Law. I have carefully documented a few blatant cases where I received complaints from Caymanians about unfair competition, about insider trading and about misleading advertising against Caymanians by non-Caymanian elements.

A clear case in point . . . and I hope the Minister—wherever he is—is listening. I received a complaint a few days ago from a Caymanian in the heavy equipment business complaining about a foreign company that was granted a conditional licence to operate in these Islands—the licence being conditioned upon that company doing one job, a major undertaking for one of the large development companies along the Seven Mile Beach Road. The Caymanian complained to me that this particular company was now engaged in doing small jobs normally not covered in the licence.

When I assured the complainant that I would investigate the matter, having called the Immigration Department, I was told that that was not the first complaint received about that company doing that kind of work, but the licence had been varied to allow them to do so.

I would like to ask that Minister, who varied the licence. Was it his Executive Council? It is no wonder that Caymanians are complaining. That is a clear case of unfair competition. This company is a large multinational corporation and here it is taking bread away from a small Caymanian enterprise. And then the Government dare stand up here and tell us there is no need for a Fair Competition Act or a Fair Trading Commission?

Another case in point: I received a dossier this morning from a well-known and well-respected young Caymanian lady, in the magazine business—

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: On a Point of Order, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order, Honourable Minister?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, the Member has accused the Executive Council of amending some licence and I think that the Member should either clarify, or further on in the meeting we get a chance to clarify—

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, if I understood what the Honourable Member said, he just wondered if this had been done by Executive Council. I do not think you could assume or determine that to be an accusation. It was just a question that was raised, and I cannot accept that as a Point of Order. I think the records will show that.

Would you please continue First Elected Member for Bodden Town?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As I was saying, Madam Speaker, just this morning I received a dossier from a well-respected, and well-known young Caymanian lady in the publishing business documenting the case of how someone who had a contract and, indeed, was in the employ of companies of publications which she owned . . . the party, after having secured her client list and other vital information was given a licence to go into the same kind of business.

If that is not unfair competition, and if that is not insider trading; if that is not unconscionable conduct, then, please, somebody tell this Member. And the Government dares to stand up here and tell this House that nothing needs to be done because Caymanians are ultimately protected now?

Madam Speaker, with all due respect, as for the matter of complaining to the Immigration Board in these kinds of cases, you might as well throw the complaint in a crab hole—you will get a better response. I have present in my file two letters that I wrote on behalf of my constituent in the furniture business complaining about unfair competition from outsiders. To this day, I have never received a response. Nor have my constituents. Shame on that Government Minister who dared to have the audacity to get up here and say there is no need for a Fair Competition Act because the all-being and all-knowing 'National Saviours' have put matters into place to handle these kinds of situations.

Madam Speaker, I want to make it crystal clear to Caymanian people that they need specific legislation dealing with these kinds of practices. You know what conclusion I have come to Madam Speaker? There are too many conflicts of interests in here to have certain types of legislation drafted and enacted. What we need is more sincerity and more discernment, and less conflict of interests.

What about those people who draft straw-man agreements and who cover fronting agreements? I wonder about those people. It is no wonder that the people continue to cry out. It is no wonder that when this kind of legislation is brought before this House, the Government, in their usual and practised way, introduces all kinds of irrelevancies, misleading and inconsistent paradigms into the debate.

It is clear as day, that there is a need in this country, at this time, for this kind of legislation. We are not the first and only country adopting this. As I have said, countries as diverse as the United States and Jamaica. At last count there were (and this is not by any means exhaustive) 20 Commonwealth countries which have this kind of specific protective legislation.

Madam Speaker, I expected that the Government's response would be as it was. However, as far as I, the Mover, am concerned—and I believe in this, I speak for the persons on this side who spoke in favour of the Motion—I am satisfied that we have done our best to bring to the attention of the Government the glaring need in this country. I firmly believe that if it is not done this time, it will fall in the category that the Bill of Rights has fallen into, and it will be implemented by a sensible government at some subsequent stage.

However, the Caymanian people and this Honourable House can rest assured that the matter will not die with this effort. We will continue to bring it forward until some government, at some time, takes note and is determined, brave enough, candid enough, and interested enough to fill the gap.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is Private Member's Motion No. 7/94. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The noes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May we have a division, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: You certainly may.
Madam Clerk.

Clerk:

The Speaker: The result of the division is five Ayes, ten Noes. Private Member's Motion No. 7/94 has not been passed.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/94 NEGATIVED BY MAJORITY.

The Speaker: This concludes business for today.

I believe the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture would like to speak on something which the Government wishes to bring forward.

STATEMENT BY HONOURABLE MINISTER

BILL TO AMEND THE JUVENILES LAW

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, tomorrow morning, I will bring a Bill to amend the Juveniles Law. That Bill will be circulated to Members today. I have already made Members aware of the urgent nature of the matter and I will bring the Bill tomorrow after giving them some time to examine the Bill.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I would have assumed that copies would have been available before the House adjourned.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I have just said that they will have the copy available before long.

The Speaker: Well, how much longer is long? I do not have a copy, and if we adjourn now, I assume—

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: (interrupting) Well, Madam Speaker—

The Speaker: Just one minute. If we adjourn now I assume that Members will not be remaining in the building to receive copies.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I just said, Madam Speaker, that Members would be getting a copy before long. Therefore, Madam Speaker, you would also get a copy, which is natural. The House would get a copy.

The Speaker: Well, with the understanding that Members will receive copies before the day is past, I will ask for a Motion for the adjournment of the meeting until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I accordingly move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

AT 12.27 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 10 MARCH, 1994.

EDITED
THURSDAY
10 MARCH, 1994
10.05 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Third Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

APOLOGY

The Speaker: Yesterday, the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business, was absent. It was just this morning that I received official notification. So, let the records show that an apology has been extended for absence yesterday. I am glad to see that he has taken his place this morning.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town, Question No. 34.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MINISTERS/MEMBERS

QUESTION NO. 34

No. 34: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member what arrangements exist for the purchase of uniforms for prisoners and prison officers at the Northward Prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The arrangements for the purchase of uniforms for the prisoners and Prison Officers at Northward Prison are done by the storekeeper who keeps records of purchases and issues.

He makes a requisition to his Principal Officer for the quantity of uniform items needed. The requisition is then agreed by the storekeeper and his Principal Officer and taken to the Director or, in his absence, the Deputy, for authorisation of purchase. The Higher Executive Officer then prepares the order which is usually dispatched (by facsimile) to the supplier as approved by the Director.

Uniforms for staff and prisoners are purchased yearly from the same suppliers. Sometimes items urgently required are purchased locally.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say from what country these uniforms are imported?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Most of the items are imported from the United States. I believe a few items are also imported from the United Kingdom.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is the Honourable Member in a position to tell the House how much money is spent per annum on the importation of these uniforms?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, for 1993, Officers' uniforms cost slightly under $40,000, and prisoners' clothing cost a little over $26,000.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is the Honourable Member in a position to say whether any thoughts have been given, or examinations made into the matter of having the prisoners make the uniforms for both the Prison Officers and themselves, as is the custom of most other prisons?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am not in a position to say whether or not any thought has been given to this matter.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Will the Honourable Member give the House an undertaking that some investigation can be carried out into the feasibility and practicability of this venture, as it would provide some work and some skill training for prisoners?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, Madam Speaker. I will give an undertaking that the matter will be looked into, to determine whether it is practical and feasible to have this done.

The Speaker: The next question is, Question No. 35 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 35

No. 35: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member what procedures exist to ensure that the purchasing system at Northward Prison is not abused?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

All items purchased by the Prison must first be requisitioned and authorised by the Principal Officer in charge of the Department requesting the item. Requisitions state the place of purchase as well as the cost of each item.

Once authorised, the requisition is then taken to the Higher Executive Officer who checks it and verifies the vote from which it will be paid. The Higher Executive Officer can authorise payments in amounts of C1$200.00 or under. Any items over C1$200.00 must be authorised by the Director or the Deputy Director. Goods received are checked against invoices. Payments are made by the process of submission of payment vouchers and relevant original invoices to the Treasury Department.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Member is in a position to actually say how many people, whether it is one person, namely, a messenger or a courier, or various persons, who can take these vouchers or requisition forms to do the purchasing?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I am not certain if more than one person can carry out the actual purchases.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Regarding items which are kept in the stores' facility, is the Honourable Member in a position to say how often a check or an inventory of these stores is undertaken and by whom are such checks and inventories undertaken?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

There is a register, and items kept in stores are registered with the Storekeeper. I am not sure of the frequency of inventory taking of the stores.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

Madam Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Member can say if the Department is subject to internal audit and scrutiny similar to other Government Departments?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, the Department would be subjected to internal audit and scrutiny as is any other Government Department.

The Speaker: The next Question is No. 36, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 36
(Withdrawn)

No. 36: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member what were circumstances under which the Government was first informed of the situation at Northward Prison which ended in the tragedy?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I wish the Chair's permission to withdraw this question. I noticed the other day when in my debate I mentioned a similar incident and the Honourable Second Official Member got up on a Point of Order and said that the matter may be sub judice. So, out of deference and consideration I would demur if it meets the wishes of the Chair and the House.

The Speaker: Would Honourable Members wish to approve that the question be withdrawn due to the circumstances given? But I think that it would be left for the Member to whom the question is asked to say whether he wishes to reply to it or not. So I call upon the Honourable Temporary First Official Member to respond.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, as the Second Official Member mentioned a few days ago, the matter is sub judice and perhaps supplementaries may lead to matters that would best be left unsaid at this point in time. I would suggest that since the Honourable Member has requested a withdrawal of the question that this be the best course of action.

The Speaker: The question, therefore, is that, as requested by the First Official Member for Bodden Town, Question No. 36 be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it. The question is withdrawn.

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 36 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: Question No. 37 is standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 37

No. 37: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture what, exactly, does the programme of the Cayman Marine Institute consist of, and how was the sum of CI$315,896.00, which was approved by the Finance Committee on December 15th, 1993, allocated?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, an outline of the Cayman Islands Marine Institute programme was provided in a previous statement to this Honourable House, and it is, therefore, already a matter of public record.

The sum of $315,896 approved by the Finance Committee on 15th December, 1993, was allocated to cover the usual start up costs for such a programme; hiring of personnel, acquisition of equipment and supplies, utility hook-ups, and so on.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Does the Honourable Minister have a breakdown of any amounts, whatsoever, as to how this large sum of money was applied?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Yes, Madam Speaker, we do, but, of course, we would not have it with us this morning. That is contained in the budget for the Institute.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister can inform the House as to the enrolment in this programme at the present time and, also, if he could give the House an indication of what is an anticipated or expected maximum enrolment in the programme?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I believe this information was already made public, but the maximum is 25 for the day programme and six residential. At present there are six in place and four to go shortly.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, would the Honourable Minister tell the House, in light of the fact that the substantive question asked how the $315,896 was allocated, why he does not have some information with regard to details of how it is allocated, and is there any effort being made not to give details on this particular undertaking by Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, of course, Members will certainly think what they want to think and spread the kind of propaganda that they want to spread. However, as I understand this question asked, "What exactly does the programme of the Cayman Marine Institute consist of?" And we answered that.

The next part was, "how was the sum of $315,896, which was approved by Finance Committee allocated?" The answer gave an indication of the sort of matters that it covered.

If the Member wanted more details he should have said, "in detail." However, I think this has given a good indication of the start-up part of the programme.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, in the substantive answer given by the Honourable Minister, his answer said: "An outline of the Cayman Islands Marine Institute programme provided in a previous statement." What I would like to ask the Minister is what the substantive question asked, "What exactly does the programme ...consist of ...," and is it the case that there is really no programme, syllabus, guidelines or timetable as to what the Institute does?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the Member knows that the Institute has a well-recognised programme, and would have that sort of information. If the Member wanted that sort of information why did he not ask for it in a substantive question instead of making the sort of accusation that is coming across? If he wants that kind of information it can be given.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say whether or not, at the present time, there are juveniles in Approved Schools overseas, and what is the cost of that programme?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, that is not a part of the original question, which dealt with the Cayman Marine Institute, the programme and the financial implication thereof and I cannot allow that. If you wish to ask another question concerning the Cayman Marine Institute and the finances thereof, you may, sir.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, the only reason why I asked that question is because the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman raised the issue of cost—

The Speaker: Well excuse me, sir, that question cannot be allowed irrespective of cost or anything else. We are considering the Cayman Islands Marine Institute.

If there are no further questions, then the next question is No. 38 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 38

No. 38: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture what management improvements have been effected by reverting the Health Authority to a Government Department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the answer.

Health Services Authority Board:- During 1993, for the first time, the Senior Management Committee was invited to be in attendance at all meetings of the Board. This gesture was well received and helped to improve the confidence and relationship between the Board and Senior Management Committee. This was a more direct and workable arrangement than the previous top-heavy system of sub-committees operating under the Board. It has also flowed quite easily into the present management arrangement in which the Acting Director of the Health Services Department (HSD), consults regularly with the Senior Management Committee on the operation of the Department. No longer is there a Board to add another layer between Management and the Ministry.

Organizational Chart/Job Descriptions:- The Organizational Chart was reviewed in great detail with the aim of reducing the matrix and consolidating where possible. This exercise was carried out in conjunction with a review of Job Descriptions for each post in the Department, and a revision of the Health Services Management Policy Standards and Procedure.

Review of 1993:- In-service training to keep staff abreast of these changes, is ongoing. In keeping with Government's directive to downsize the number of established posts, a total of 18 posts were eliminated at the Health Services.

Equipment:- With the decision to stop construction of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital, the Health Services Authority (HSA), with the support of the Portfolio, decided to review the various requests for new equipment which had been put 'on hold' during 1992. Over $500,000 worth of equipment was purchased in 1993 including a Suction Unit, Pneumatic Drill, Ohmeda Excell 110 Anaesthesia System, TEC Vaporizer, Double Canister Absorber, Electric Anaesthesia Ventilator, AMSCO Sterilizer, Pulse Oximeter, Ultra Sound Imaging System, Autoclave, Dialysis Machine and Laproscopic equipment.

Master facilities plan:- In December, 1993, the directive was provided to proceed with the Master Plan of Facilities at the present site. The Health Services' senior staff held several meetings throughout the year to review short and long-term needs of the facilities and services. The recommendations were submitted to the Portfolio and to the Public Works Department. The 10-year Plan for the country's health facilities is well on its way.

Health Practitioners' Board (HPB):- During 1993, the Government, through the Health Practitioners' Board, received requests for approval to operate health care facilities and approval to provide certain treatment modalities which had not been fully approved in North America and the United Kingdom. Amendments had to be made to the Health Practitioners' Law to address these new issues and to ensure that high standards of safe health care is delivered in the Cayman Islands. The Health Practitioners' Law is to be reviewed in the very near future.

The Pharmacy Law is also under review, which will provide a much more practical law for the Cayman Islands.

Other achievements:- The completion of the Faith Hospital extension in September 1993 marked a significant improvement in the health care delivery system for Cayman Brac.

The Lions' Eye Clinic is now equipped with over $200,000 worth of equipment, and is providing ophthalmic services to our community. There are plans to expand the service, including the visits of specialists from the Bascom Palmer Eye Centre in Miami.

The provision of overseas Tertiary Level Medical Services was put out to tender with the aim of determining what other arrangements were possible, while maintaining high quality health care. It is anticipated that Government will realise significant savings from this exercise.

I should add, Madam Speaker, before completing the answer, that I have just received word that the Central Tender's Committee has completed its deliberations and has chosen the Baptist Memorial Hospital in Miami, with several other hospitals along with them, to give service to the Cayman Islands.

To conclude the answer, in 1993 we improved the collection of revenue by some 25 per cent over 1992. In addition, the department was able to reduce inefficiencies and streamline expenditure, resulting in a year-end return to Government Treasury of approximately $500,000.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, would the Honourable Minister say if the long list of activities and occurrences could not have been achieved under the Health Services Authority and, indeed, if these were accomplished only because of, and since, the Health Services Authority reverted to a Department of Government?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, that is a question which is soliciting an expression of opinion, and I will not allow that.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I would have been very happy to answer it, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: A further supplementary, please. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister has said that a job description exercise of each post in the Department has been done. Is this, in fact, actually the case that all posts now in the Health Services Department, nurses, ancillary staff, and all the rest, have job descriptions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: That is correct, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say, as a result of the decision for the Health Authority to come back in as a Government Department, if any posts were eliminated and, if the answer is in the affirmative, what were those posts and estimated savings?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, part of the question was answered on page 2, a total of 18 posts.

The Honourable Minister for Community Development can now explain what posts these were to the Member.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The answer to that supplementary would be that the Human Resources Department (that was the Personnel section of the Health Services Authority), House-keeping, Dietary, Maintenance and Security, with no negative effect on services. No medical staff were cut. As for savings, we will have to supply that to the Member in writing.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, can the Honourable Minister say what type of in-service training is going on, what type of courses, and with what frequency are these being carried out?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Yes, there are still, and there will always be, in-service training in areas such as medicine, management and nursing.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 39, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 39

No. 39: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture what was the criteria used for selection of the Hospitals which could qualify to provide tertiary health care to patients referred to them by Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The criteria listed as follows were utilised in the process of pre-qualifying hospitals as potential providers of tertiary health care services:

1. Membership in the American Hospital Association (AHA).
2. Current licence and permit including certification from Joint Commission and Accreditation of Health Care Organizations (JCAHO).
3. Availability of data and statistics to show that the Organization was able to provide a high quality of tertiary level health care, including number of beds by speciality, number of annual admissions by speciality, average length of patient stay by procedure, number of physicians and registered nurses by speciality.
4. Availability of full tertiary level services in the areas of Trauma, Orthopaedics, Paediatrics, Obstetrics, Coronary Care, Oncology and Transplantation.
5. Availability of main medical facilities including In-patient hospitalization, Intensive Care Units, Operating Rooms, Radiological (CT, MRI etc.) services, Laboratory services, Physical Therapy Rehabilitation services, Chemical Abuse and Psychiatric services.

6. Availability of appropriate medical ground transportation, on arrival at Airport and upon patient discharge.

7. Availability of appropriate staff who will be available 24 hours a day, seven days per week, to coordinate the required services.

8. Availability of transportation and accommodation for at least two (2) relatives for the duration of the patient's hospitalization.

9. Availability of group purchasing services and continuing medical educational facilities.

10. Availability of services at the same location.

11. Accessibility to the services.

12. Availability of any other services necessary for the comfort and well-being of patients and any accompanying individuals.

These criteria were developed with reference to the document "Guide to Selection and Use of Consultants".

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Minister confirm that the Cleveland Clinic, which has been used as the tertiary care referral institution, does not meet these requirements?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, may I say to the House, in answering that question, that 61 health care organisations in the South Florida area were invited to submit expressions of interest in providing diagnostic emergency and non-emergency treatment at the tertiary level for the Cayman Islands Government. We had 19 responses. Government decided to seek competitive tenders because they were of the view that the services could be acquired at less cost than what we were paying Cleveland Clinic.

For instance, at the Cleveland Clinic, a triple bypass surgery would cost in the region of $43,000, whereas in other places one could get it done for US$16,000. Cleveland Clinic did not rate high enough in the pre-qualification exercise to be invited to submit a bid.

Madam Speaker, I would like to say to the House that the Central Tender's Committee and the Health Care Management Personnel were the persons who put all this together and who did all the pre-qualifications and carried out the work of the tendering process.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Minister told the House a few minutes ago that the award of the tendering had gone to Baptist Memorial Hospital and other hospitals along with it. Is it the case that the tendering for tertiary care in the United States, or overseas, for the Cayman Islands' Government is now being handled by a conglomerate of hospitals, or is it one that has been selected out of this list here?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I think that in answering that supplementary the House should be aware that regardless of which institution provides tertiary level care to this country, certain care has to be taken in certain areas. For instance, child care would be done at Miami Children's Hospital, and burnt patients would be treated at Jackson Memorial Hospital.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Member say if there is any one hospital that the Government would be dealing directly with and whether that hospital, in turn, would seek those services; or will there be a multiple number of services available at various hospitals that the Government here must make arrangements with? If that is the case would it not be excessively more expensive, time consuming, and a strain on management?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I did not catch the last part, but as to the first part of the supplementary, the Baptist Memorial Hospital would be the coordinating hospital. Maybe he could repeat the latter part of his supplementary.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I have heard the answer from the Honourable Minister that Baptist Hospital would be the coordinator for arrangements with other hospitals. Will that not mean that it will be excessively more expensive for Government to have such an arrangement in place whereby this hospital will be acting as an agent on behalf of others, and that a number of hospitals, would in itself, be more expensive?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, to answer that supplementary, what does the Member believe was happening under the Cleveland Clinic, except that the Cleveland Clinic is in Fort Lauderdale? We (the patients in the Cayman Islands) had no provision of transportation. Jackson Memorial is situated right in Miami, and so is Baptist Hospital, and they are making provisions within the cost limits of the contract to pick up people or provide transportation. Those people who believe that they know so much about health care should well understand the arrangement that the country had through the Cleveland Clinic. It was an unreasonable arrangement for sick people.

The Speaker: The last supplementary, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Minister say if Baptist Hospital, as is given number 7 of the substantive answer, has staff available 24 hours per day, 7 days per week to coordinate the services on behalf of the Cayman Islands, and is there any particular or additional cost for that? Where can the guide to the selection and the use of consultants be found?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, the question has been answered in 7. The Minister can add to the other supplementary which you have included, but this is quite clear, so he need not refer to that.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I was willing to answer that to tell the Member that they do have staff – nice looking ones at that! As to the next part of the question, the guide to selection and use of consultants is a guide provided by the Finance Department which this Government adheres to—after the mess left behind by consultants with the previous government.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 46 (1)

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 83, I beg to move the suspension of Standing Order 46(1).

The Speaker: Would you please give the reason for your request to suspend Standing Orders, Honourable Minister?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The reason, Madam Speaker, is to take an amendment to the Juveniles Law.

The Speaker: Thank you. The question is that Standing Order 46(1) be suspended in order that an amendment to the Juveniles Law, 1990, be taken. I shall put the question if there is no debate. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it. Standing Order 46(1) has accordingly been suspended.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 46(1) SUSPENDED.

FIRST READING

THE JUVENILES (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

The Clerk: The Juveniles (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

SECOND READING

THE JUVENILES (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

The Clerk: The Juveniles (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sport, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I crave the indulgence of the House to move the Second Reading of the Juveniles (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

Madam Speaker, let me express much gratitude to all Members of this Honourable House who so willingly agreed to review and deliberate on these amendments to the 1990 Juveniles Law which is now before the House.

This Bill amends the Juveniles Law, 1990, to provide a wider range of powers to a court sentencing juveniles. These amendments are necessary to allow efficient use of the various resources now available to us and to also provide an ability to work with young persons who are beyond control, an aspect that was removed from the Law when the 1990 revision took place.

To get a proper perspective on this matter it is important that Honourable Members realise that any work done on the Juveniles Law in 1990 was really an updating of a piece of legislation that originated before the time of the separation of these Islands from the Judiciary of Jamaica.

At that time in 1990, when changes were made to the 1975 Juveniles Law, a decision was taken to remove the section which dealt with young persons who are beyond control. This, then, left only Fit Person Orders for those in need of care and protection with Approved School Orders only for young persons convicted of criminal offences. No attention was paid in that revision to the matter of orders for youth who were in need of rehabilitation of one sort or another.

Of real concern at this time also is the matter of the cut-off age for Approved School Orders which severely hampers young persons who may be placed on orders on or about their 16th birthday. These amendments before the House today largely seek to resolve the immediate ability of the Juvenile Court to be able to make placements at the Cayman Islands Marine Institute by way of a Juvenile Rehabilitation Order; to allow the Court to deal appropriately with young persons deemed to be beyond control, and to extend the age beyond 17 to that of 19 years for all such orders.

These amendments to the 1990 Law do not replace the more pressing need for a comprehensive review of the existing legislation. I would hasten to inform the House that at present work is being carried out to effectively look at the best approaches and to bring before this Honourable House appropriate legislation which looks at civil and criminal matters in relation to juveniles as two distinct entities.

It is my intention to complete this Law review process sometime this year, hopefully before the September Sitting, and hopefully no later than the September Sitting. This proposed amendment to the Juveniles Law, 1990, primarily addresses practical issues that were not acknowledged at the time of the enactment of the 1990 Law. The amendment proposes to establish a new order, the Juvenile Rehabilitation Order, that is to be used by the Juvenile Court when sentencing young people to attend Juvenile Rehabilitation facilities such as the Marine Institute here in Cayman.

It would also be used to access those resources for juveniles who have not committed criminal offences, but whose actions prove them to be beyond parental control and in need of a rehabilitation programme.

Social Workers and others working with these young people have been frustrated by the absence of such a resource as they currently have no authority by law to enforce attendance at the Marine Institute, or anywhere else for that matter, for these troubled and sometimes troublesome young people.

A singular major problem found in the application of the 1990 Juveniles Law is that, at present, Approved School Orders expire at age 17, whether or not the young person has successfully completed his programme and can be said to be rehabilitated. These amendments would allow for a reasonable period of work to be done with the young person, followed by a period of intense supervision. Currently, the establishments used as approved schools are reluctant to take young people over the age of 16 years as they do not feel that they have a chance of completing meaningful work in such a short period of time.; hence the proposed amendments to allow approved school orders to run up to age 19 in certain cases.

Madam Speaker, difficulties have been found in securing the admittance of certain young people to the United States, despite their being subject to Approved School Orders. Certain convictions preclude entry to the United States and leave the Courts and responsible officers in a quandary as to how to respond to these kinds of situations. Following these amendments then, the Attorney General's Chambers will be required to certify that any necessary immigration requirements have been met before an Approved School Order can be effected.

These amendments, Honourable Members, will also allow the Juvenile Court, rather than by His Excellency the Governor in Council, to vary, suspend, discharge or review orders, as deemed appropriate. This change gives the Juvenile Court the ability to respond to changing circumstances and to see these treatment plans through to their conclusion.

Therefore, I appreciate Members' indulgence and their support of these proposed amendments which will allow the Juvenile Court and the Department of Social Services to respond appropriately to the needs of our young people at this time.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question before the House is the Second Reading of the Juveniles (Amendment) Bill, 1994. This is open for debate.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, I welcome the amendment to the Juveniles Law and the steps which have been taken to set up the Marine Institute which will be the first facility here for juvenile rehabilitation.

The Francis Bodden Girls' Home and the Boneventure House have both done a good service in helping some juveniles. The new amendment, as the Honourable Minister has mentioned, brings back into the Law certain classes of juveniles who can be dealt with by the Courts—classes that have been removed in the 1990 law. However, I feel that the Social Workers and the Courts must realise that there is a type of juvenile who is nothing but a hardened criminal. It was David Fyle who said, "It is dangerous to confuse children with angels".

I feel that juveniles who commit crimes involving excessive force, the use of guns and other weapons of destruction, should be treated for these adult crimes as adult criminals. I am hoping that the further amendments, or review, which will come to the Juveniles Law, will take this into account. It is all right to try to rehabilitate a child from its very first offence, but we must realise that when we get into repeat offenders and recidivists who go back to the same institution, that there are some, maybe a small minority, who cannot be helped by conventional methods. These people should be punished.

There are many reasons for juvenile delinquency, amongst them the physical and biological reasons, the home environment, the neglect of parents and the influence of bad companions. I believe that in many instances parents neglect their children. Some even do it under the pretence of love. But it is a mistake to believe that you love a child when you refuse to correct that child when it is wrong. If you refuse to punish that child when he has done wrong, you do not love the child. This needs to be brought home to parents. Of course there are many parents who try very hard and who are not successful in helping the child.

I notice this amendment has come down very hard on what is an increasing offence amongst teenagers, that is, the attempted use of a motor vehicle—probably stealing the vehicle or driving it without the consent of the owner—driving it without a licence. This makes provision for the court to deprive the juvenile of a licence for up to seven years, it also makes provision for the confiscation of property used in connection with this offence. It is my contention, as I have said earlier, that the Law must also look at other offences which are, perhaps, more heinous, more of a felony than the use of an automobile. While I congratulate the Minister on the amendments that have been brought forward, I look ahead to another review.

Also, while on this subject of juveniles, the attitude of the courts, the police and teachers, will either help or destroy the programme which the Government is trying to initiate. There will need to be full cooperation from both sides. The amendment extends, in one instance, the age at which a juvenile can be punished to 19 years. The Minister explained that this has become necessary, as it is felt that if a juvenile is admitted at a late age, say at 16, very little could be accomplished before that child reaches the age of 17 – which is the final age of determination of a juvenile. The amendment gives the court more flexibility with the type of orders that can be made and the different orders that can be handed out to the different classes of juveniles. It also takes into account that these orders, in the case of rehabilitation, are not so much for punishment of the offender, but for the benefit of the juvenile and society as a whole.

This is a very commendable Bill. My only regret is that it has come at such short notice that I did not have time to give it the full treatment that I would have liked. I understand fully well that it was very necessary to have this as the institution is on line. The reasons for having the facility of suspending Standing Orders is so that the Government can function when it is necessary and do a more effective job.

I find no fault with the Bill and I am happy to say that I support it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to speak briefly on this Bill, and I am going to offer the Minister my support at this time. However, there are a few important points which I would like to make.

It is unfortunate, but I realise that these things sometimes happen, that we have had such short notice that I am unable to give the full treatment as I would normally have. Nevertheless, I have been able to go over the Bill and I would like to suggest to the Honourable Minister that perhaps some consideration should be given to the fact that it may be timely, from a purely managerial perspective, to set in process some form of documentation centre whereby we can categorise these juveniles, who commit offences. They could be categorised into at least two types: namely, those who commit serious offences, such as I have read in today's paper—rape, firearms offences, crimes against the person involving grievous bodily harm—as against those who commit crimes against property—childish pranks, and some such occurrences and events of this nature.

I believe that from a rehabilitative and treatment point of view, it would make little sense to place hardened juvenile criminals—those who commit serious assault, be they physical assault, be they sexual, and who commit firearms offences—with juveniles who are mainly brought into rehabilitation because they have committed childish pranks, or because they have removed something without the owner's permission, or because they have entered a property. It would be, perhaps, a weakness in the system if we put these two categories of juveniles together to try to rehabilitate them.

I do not know to what extent this is being done now. Certainly, I believe that it is not covered in this amendment, and I cannot remember, since we did the Juveniles Law, if adequate facilities were made in this Law to cover this. I believe that it should be a practice for categorisation and for management and for effective rehabilitation that every juvenile who commits a serious offence: for example, an assault upon a person, wounding—be it felonious or otherwise, a firearms offence, sexual assault, et cetera. I believe that those persons should be given some form of psychiatric assessment or a battery of such assessment. If the juvenile is sociopathic, or if the juvenile has a tendency for psychopathic or serious pathological behaviour, the rehabilitation exercise will be futile if we do not know. Indeed, some types of antisocial behaviour may recommend that some of these juveniles be placed in situations where they may need to take additional means, be it drugs or ongoing counselling in addition to the regular rehabilitation offered at the Cayman Islands Marine Institute and other such institutions.

So, I would like the Minister to take note of these requests and, in his reply, if he could tell the Honourable House what his plans are in regard to this kind of categorisation and how he would propose to deal with these kinds of things. I have a reservation about enforcing any kind of treatment and rehabilitation. However, I realise that it may not be possible to do it any other way. I would only say to the Minister that he may well have to adopt a carrot-and-stick approach, particularly if he wishes to take the treatment up to the age of 19 which, of course, as we all know, is well past the age of responsibility here by one year. So he needs to pay some special attention to this.

Perhaps one should consider counselling to the point where the charges are made to understand that while the treatment is taken beyond the age of responsibility, it is entirely for their rehabilitation and to enable them to fit into society as productive, responsible persons. Rather than the approach that it is the directive of the Court, or it is in the Law, so they must abide by what the Law says. It should be a situation where it is partly, if not wholly, voluntary or acceptable by the charges.

One other matter that I have, Madam Speaker—and I believe this could better be dealt with at the Committee Stage, but I am going to mention it for what it is worth now: I notice that the drafting in the amendment is, what is now termed, "sexist". In some instances it refers to a juvenile, and in other instances it refers to "him". I just merely wish to make the point, for whatever it is worth, that it could be a "her" also. So for uniformity and clarity we should stick with "a juvenile" or "the juvenile", rather than "a juvenile" or "the juveniles" sometimes, and other times "him".

Events in the community at this time in the Cayman Islands certainly would lead to the conclusion that something needs to be done if we are to curb this problem of juvenile crime and juvenile delinquency in our society. While this amendment may not be the "be all" and the "end all", in all fairness, I am going to give it a chance to succeed and, as usual, I will be monitoring it.

I wish the Minister, in his reply would inform the House of his disposition regarding the suggestions and observations which I made earlier.

Continuation of the debate on the Second Reading of the Juveniles (Amendment) Bill, 1994. (Pause)

If there is no further debate, I would ask the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture if he would reply.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, the problem with young people (juveniles) is something that plagues the world today. Every nation is struggling to come to grips with ways of dealing with young persons in trouble, whether it is civil or criminal. These troubles sometimes cost the country in more ways than dollars and cents. As a Government, I would like to promise this Honourable House that we are going to do everything we can. We are leaving no stones unturned to effect, in a positive manner, programmes that deal with our young people.

Madam Speaker, when we look at the cost of young people—and we know that we had several questions about the cost of the Marine Institute—the sum of $790,000 is just for one youth programme of approximately 31 young persons at an average cost of $2,123.00 per month, per young person. But Cayman is doing well, regardless of what others might say. I think that in the last year we have come a long way. as the Virginia Slim advertisement says: "You have come a long way, Baby!" If Members of the House believe otherwise, they can examine the present day cost for youth in facilities overseas.

To give the House some background on cost, there are four facilities which are approved for use. Three are being used at this time and the cost could range from anywhere as high as $6,588.00 per month, per child, with an average of all three facilities at $4,235.00. So this cost is clearly more expensive than the existing contract to care for an even greater number of our young people locally where parents can, and should help with their children. Members and the people can figure out for themselves this matter of cost overseas—a high of $6,500 and an average of $4,200.00 compared to $2,100.00.

Yes, we have come a long way and we are going further because I am going to break the back of our youth problem in this country. All I am asking the House to do is to assist—jump on the bandwagon and ride along with us. We are going to break the back of the problems and issues that face the young people in this country. I am not saying, that we are going to get it all done at one time, that cannot be done, but we are travelling now on a good road—still rocky, and we have a good bulldozer that will clear the rocks.

The central reason for bringing these amendments at this time is to allow the Juveniles Court to respond immediately to the various issues which face the Court in relation to young persons who fall into two categories; those who commit criminal offences and those who are deemed to be beyond control. That is all the amendments to the Law are doing at this time.

The resources at present, I agree, do not cover the entire spectrum of the needs our young people are faced with. However, I believe that the opening of the Marine Institute and the bringing of these amendments are attempts to decrease the gap in services and arrangements for young persons.

Clearly, the next step is to respond to a programme of secure treatment care, locally, which (and Members ought to bear in mind) would eliminate the problems we now faced with immigration issues and the high cost of sending some young people to the United States. I want to repeat that, Madam Speaker: The next step is to respond to a programme of secured treatment care done locally which would eliminate the problems now faced with immigration issues and costs in sending some young people to the United States.

In dealing with cost, if we are going to take care of our youth problems we are going to have to spend money. There was a big debate here the other day concerning the Prison about how much we need to improve on things that are needed there. Well, what do you think is going to happen with young persons when we start to put our programmes in place? I have always believed that we must effect our own treatment so that our people can grow with these institutions and later on, over the years, be capable of handling these institutions rather than having to import outside expertise to deal with our youth problem. It is going to take time to do all of this and it will cost money.

The proposals from the Department of Social Services contained in the comprehensive draft instructions, on youth problems—the new law that I have talked about several times in the House—cover many of the issues raised time and time again by The First and Third Elected Members for Bodden Town. These instructions philosophically put the question of adherence to the view that children have rights and parents have obligations.

So this approach seeks to place firmly the position that problems for young persons should first be dealt with by parents. And we come back to that: it is the parents. Our people are going to have to understand this even if it costs me my seat, so be it. But parents under my administration are going to understand that they have a responsibility to their children—their own children.

In fact, Madam Speaker, I have made a national call that we should not only be responsible for our own children but we should, again, take up the old Caymanian habit of being responsible for somebody else's child. When I say that, I mean that if you see somebody's child doing something wrong, let the parent know, or perhaps, take it upon yourself to chastise that child by letting him know that he is doing wrong. In the old days that did not hurt us.

We are going to have to put aside the political cloak and all the nice talk if we are going to get things better in this country, and we are going to have to stand side by side as politicians, as representatives of the people, and say, "Ladies and Gentlemen, you are the sole person ultimately responsible for your child. There is no getting around it". If parents are unable to do this, then legislation which looks at civil and criminal matters separately, would seek to ensure appropriate responses are in place. This is what we are doing in the review.

I agree with the debate by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town that there needs to be a differentiation between juveniles who commit serious crimes as against those who are just troublesome. We go one step further to take in those whose crimes have been committed against young children who are, and have been, abused in one manner—sexually or otherwise. This is precisely what we are doing in the review, that is, to ensure proper process for civil/criminal matters. As I have said, we have two pieces of legislation – one dealing with civil matters and the other dealing with criminal matters.

Madam Speaker, we have begun our meeting on the review and I have already taken care of my stand on punishment for juveniles who commit serious crimes, as well as the matter of the responsibility of the parents. This piece of legislation today covers, for instance, all offences that are committed by a juvenile. A court may confiscate any property the juvenile used in connection with the commission of the offence. I agree with the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town that we need to look at punishment, and that is what will happen in the review.

Madam Speaker, I would like to thank the House again for allowing this Bill to come through to this stage, and we hope that the review will be finished in time for the Revised Law to be brought back, hopefully, by September. I want to thank Members for their support, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Juveniles (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Second Reading. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Second Reading.

AGREED: THE JUVENILES (AMENDMENT) BILLS, 1994 GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: The House will go into Committee to consider the Juveniles (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE—12.06 PM

COMMITTEE ON BILL

THE JUVENILES (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

The Chairman: Please be seated.

The House is in Committee to consider the Juveniles (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Clerk will read the clauses.

The Clerk: Clause 1—Short title and Interpretation.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 1 do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 1 PASSED.

AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 2(3)(c)

The Clerk: Clause 2—Amendment of the principal Law—Court Orders.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 2 do stand part of the Bill. There is an amendment. Would the Honourable Minister wish to speak to the amendment to Clause 2? The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Chairman, this amendment in Clause 2, subsection (3), paragraph (c), is to alter the word "shall" to "may". The reason there, is that the order would not in all instances deal with the conditions that the person be within the rehabilitation school, and they would like to make it discretionary in the court rather than mandatory.

It is (c) at the bottom of page 4, for the benefit of Members.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 2(3) sub paragraph (c) be amended by substituting the word "may" for the word "shall". The question is open for debate. If there is no debate I shall put the question that the amendment be made.

The Chairman: The ayes have it.

AGREED: THE BILL TO BE REPORTED TO THE HOUSE.

HOUSE RESUMED—12.11 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The House is resumed. Report. The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

REPORT ON BILL

THE JUVENILES (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I have to report that a Bill entitled the Juveniles (Amendment) Bill, 1994, was considered by a Committee of the whole House and passed with the following amendments: in Clause 2(3) sub paragraph (c) the word "shall" was deleted and the word "may" inserted therefor.

The Speaker: Suspension of Standing Order 47, Bills to be read three times. The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 47

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, under Standing Order 83 I beg to move the suspension of Standing Order 47 to take the Bill through its latter stage.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 47 be suspended in order that the Juveniles (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be taken through its final stages at this Meeting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it. Standing Order 47 has accordingly been suspended.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 47 SUSPENDED.

The Clerk: The Juveniles (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I move that a Bill entitled the Juveniles (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Third Reading and passed.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Juveniles (Amendment) Bill, 1994 be given a Third Reading and passed. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Third Reading and passed.

AGREED: THE JUVENILES (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994 GIVEN A THIRD READING AND PASSED.

The Speaker: That concludes the Business of the House for this Meeting. Before I call for the adjournment, I would like to thank Honourable Members for their diligence to the Business of the House. I thank the Clerks also for their work and the Serjeant-at-Arms for his attention, and wish Members everything that is good until the next Meeting.

I will ask the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business, to move the adjournment of the House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I believe it is appropriate also that on behalf of the Members of this Honourable House we express our appreciation to you for the way in which you have conducted the affairs of the House, and to the Clerk and her staff for the able way in which they have dealt with us, both in terms of papers and other requests which we have made, as well as the delicious refreshments which have been served during our sojourn here.

May I place on record our grateful thanks to Her Majesty the Queen and His Royal Highness the Duke for visiting the Cayman Islands and bringing us closer to the Mother country. I think the visit was one of sheer excellence and I am sure it is a time that all residents of the Cayman Islands will remember with cherished memories.

With that, Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until the 1st of June, 1994.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until the 1st of June, 1994. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until the 1st of June, 1994.

AT 12.14 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 1 JUNE 1994.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
1 JUNE, 1994
10.02 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Assembly is in Session.

Questions to Honourable Ministers/Members. Question No. 40 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MINISTERS/MEMBERS

QUESTION NO. 40

No. 40: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what stage has the investigation into the missing funds at Northward Prison reached at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: The Legal Department has advised that a number of charges have been laid and a preliminary inquiry has commenced in the Summary Court.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say what exactly is the amount of these funds?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: No, Madam Speaker, I cannot.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 41, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 41

No. 41: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what companies or individuals are supplying or have supplied or purchased materials, etcetera, in the United States for the authorities at Northward Prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: The Prison has purchased supplies or materials currently and in the past from the following companies or individuals:

Martins Uniforms	Econo-Chem
Pride of Florida	International Environmental Products
Kilgore Seed Company	American Correctional Association
Spectrum Chemicals	Herald and Banner Press
Momar	Applied Research
Keys on Wheels	Superior Surgical
Bob Barker Co	Oak Park Heights
Kane Vantage Wall	Ideals Publishing
Poultry Health Services	Glenco-MacMillan
Gavco	CR Crafts
Cadet Manufacturing	Carolee Creations
Uni-Chem Corporation	Eastern Craft Supplies

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Member in a position to say if any investigation is done into the background of these companies to ascertain the ethical and proper standing of these companies?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, only if the circumstances suggest that such an investigation would be appropriate.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Then I wonder if the Honourable Member could explain the reason for the authority's dealing with one of these companies, "Keys on Wheels," when it was in contravention of the Prisons Law?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, I am unaware of the circumstances to which the Honourable Member is making reference, therefore I am unable to answer the supplementary.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Member saying that he is unaware that the principal of this company was a former prisoner at Her Majesty's Prison, Northward?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: That is correct, Madam Speaker, that is exactly what I am saying.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Member then saying that he is unaware that certain documents were laid on the Table of this House purporting that that was the case?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: That is correct, Madam Speaker. I seem to recall certain documents being laid on the table, but I am not certain that I was present in the House at the time; neither am I familiar with the background of the particular matter.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 42, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 42

No. 42: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member to state: (1) how much money was saved in 1993 by amalgamating several departments; and (2) what were these departments in which money was saved.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: (1) According to the unaudited 1993 figures, the savings of annual salaries and wages resulting from the down-sizing and amalgamations are so interlinked that the savings quoted are related to both exercises. The estimated net saving for 1993, after deducting severance and gratuity payments, was $1,331,637. The savings achieved in rental and janitorial costs for 1993 by moving the Legal Department from the British American Tower to the Tower Building is $13,800. Moving departments out of the Harbour Centre and the subsequent relocation is still ongoing and further savings are anticipated in 1994.

(2) It is estimated that the following departments will realise the following net savings for 1993:

Environment	$ 66,123
Agriculture	$ 18,900
Education	380,704
Lands/Survey	14,345
Personnel	243,066
Immigration	1,529
Department Vehicle	7,930
Public Service Commission	5,986
Finance	105,096
Customs	47,179
Broadcasting	31,414
Fire	14,307
Legislative	24,480
Judicial	111,888
Prison	84,408
Treasury	39,108
Economic/Statistics	25,784
Marine	41,570
Social Services	67,817
Total Saving	$1,331,637.00

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In one section of his answer the Honourable Member stated that "moving departments out of the Harbour Centre and the subsequent relocation is still ongoing." I wonder if the Honourable Member is in a position to state when these moves will be completed, and he will be able to arrive at a definitive figure of savings?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the three departments that remain in outside premises are the Financial Services Supervision Department, the Department of Tourism and the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board. The original expenditure for rental of premises in the Harbour Centre, for example, was $332,640. The moving of departments out, such as the Audit Department and others, has so far yielded a savings of $168,120.

As soon as the refurbishing of the Tower Building can be carried out to a satisfactory level in order to maintain or project the image that is required to house the front line departments, such as the Tourism Department and Financial Supervision Department, we are hoping that the Government will take a decision to get those departments out of the Harbour Centre along with the Agriculture and Industrial Development Board.

The present lease at the Harbour Centre will expire in January 1995, so in the interim the Government will be required to investigate the possibility of relocating these departments to existing Government buildings.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, will the Honourable Member say if these savings are reflected in the 1994 Budget, and what will happen to these savings? Will they be spent on other items or will it be a true savings at the end of the year?

The Speaker: The Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the limit for 1994 expenditures has already been set in accordance with the budgetary guidelines. Because the unaudited figures at this time suggest that the surplus at the end of the year which was initially estimated to be $0.3 million will turn out to be $2.3 million, a meeting of Finance Committee will be held later on during this meeting.

The Government is proposing to give a 5 percent salary award to the Civil Service. This will consume approximately $1.5 million of that. However, the Government will still be better off by a further $.5 million in excess of the $.3 million, or $300,000, that was estimated at the time the Budget was presented to this House. I do not think that the money will be used up unnecessarily.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 43, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 43

No. 43: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable

Minister for Tourism, Development and Planning, Leader of Government Business when was the last complete test done on water being provided by the Water Authority in Cayman Brac?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Samples for the last complete test on water provided by the Water Authority in Cayman Brac were collected on 17 February, 1994, sent by courier to Grand Cayman on that day and completed by 23 February, 1994.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Minister say if any tests have been done since that time and what span of time was there prior to the February testing?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, there is a combination of the Water Authority being responsible for the quality of the water and the Department of the Environment being responsible for the testing of water, but the answer to the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is that a complete analysis is scheduled to be carried out every six months.

In addition to the twice yearly detailed analyses, routine monitoring of the Cayman Brac water supply includes daily analysis for total dissolved solids (TDS), pH, chlorine level and zinc content; weekly biological analysis for faecal and total chloroforms; quarterly analysis for chlorine bicarbonate, alkalinity and hardness. The samples are sent by courier to Grand Cayman and tested the same day in the Water Authority.

All tests to date show that the Cayman Brac water supply is of excellent quality. All parameters are well below the guideline values suggested by the World Health Organisation.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if in the last test any high degree of rust content was found such as those that would cause discoloration of tanks and/or cisterns, or any higher than usual salt content although within the accepted limits?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, the salt content was high, but it was still below the World Health Organisation required number. No rust was found.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if there are any plans afoot or consideration being given to reducing the level of salinity in the water which would make it softer? I have personally heard some complaints about the taste of it.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, sorry for taking so long, but I had to refer to technical advice. The answer is yes. There will be as the Member put it "moves afoot" to reduce the salt content in order to bring it lower than it is presently, although at present it is still below the level of the World Health Organisation. We hope to also bring certain guidelines within the Department and perhaps even legislation to cause this to happen.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 44, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 44

No. 44: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Development and Planning, Leader of Government Business if any tests have been done recently on the ground water in Cayman Brac, particularly within a half mile radius of the electrical power plant.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Yes, ground water samples were taken from existing wells within a 2,000 foot radius of the Cayman Brac Power Station on 29 October, 1993. These were tested for organic compounds and heavy metals by a laboratory in the United States of America on 2 and 3 November, 1993.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Minister say what the findings were, and did they show any signs of having petroleum contamination of any kind?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, all organic and heavy metals tested were below the method detection limit, or the guideline values of the World Health Organisation. The result suggests that the ground water is not contaminated by organic compound or heavy metals which are commonly associated with power plant operations.

Biological analysis showed that two of the samples had positive faecal and chloroform bacteria count, which indicated pollution from warm-blooded animals. The hydro-geological investigation appears to suggest that the alleged contaminants may have entered the individual wells because of inadequate well head protection. This situation is particularly critical if the well is close to the main road and obviously below the road level.

The alleged contaminants, which at the time of the testing were not found to be present, may come from vehicle exhaust or spills deposited on the road surface which were removed and carried to the wells by surface run-off during heavy rains. This conclusion is in agreement with the irregular occurrence of the alleged smell and that the alleged smell was most evident after heavy rains.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: When the Minister refers to testing for organic content, would he include what we call lube oil and diesel?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The answer is yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Having tested the water in some of the wells in this area, would it be safe for persons within this parameter to use the water from the wells for any purposes at all? If so, has there been any advice given to the people living in that area?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: My understanding is that households in the area were advised of the quality of the water in the wells and no suggestion was given that that water should be used for potable reasons.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 45, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 45

No. 45: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if a national health insurance scheme will be instituted to replace the previous scheme which was abandoned by Government.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I will preface my answer by saying that the previous scheme was suspended, instead of abandoned.

It is the intention of the Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to recommend to the Government that a national health insurance scheme be instituted. Escalating costs of health care, particularly tertiary health care requiring referral to overseas providers, is a matter for serious concern both to the Government and citizens of the Cayman Islands.

The Ministry has given this matter the highest priority in its projected plans and, accordingly, has already initiated discussions at several levels. The previous Minister also had meetings and some discussions with the insurance people and these discussions are now being correlated.

The Ministry is not ready to make an announcement at this time of when it will be brought. Hopefully, it will be by the end of the year.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Minister give an indication as to what extent the discussions have gone—are there any working papers, any drafts of a possible scheme, or anything that will be coming to Members of the Legislative Assembly or the public any time soon?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, not at this time. We are still meeting with people, getting some basic background information, gathering figures to make a decision as to what route to take.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In light of the ever rising medical costs, tertiary and otherwise, is there any chance that there will be a scheme in place by the end of this year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, it is my intention to do my utmost to see that this is brought to the floor of this House. I have seen the amount of money that is being spent by this Government and it cannot continue if we are to survive financially. We must take the necessary steps to have this brought as quickly as possible, and I will assure the honourable member that I will do my utmost to work at this.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister said that the previous scheme had been suspended. Suspended is a milder word than abandoned, but I would like to ask if the previous scheme had gone into operation to where people had been paying premiums and collecting benefits?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, I am not quite sure about this, but I think there was a date when it was due to come into effect, and that date had not been set to the best of my knowledge.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 46, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 46

No. 46: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is Government's present policy regarding the processing of applications for permanent residence.

The Speaker: The Temporary Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, in accordance with the provision of Standing Order 23(5), I have to beg leave of the House to defer answering question number 46 to another sitting. The answer is not presently with me.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTION NO. 46 STANDING ORDER 23(5)

The Speaker: The question is that the answer to question No. 46 be deferred to another Sitting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question No. 46 is deferred until another sitting.

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 46 DEFERRED TO ANOTHER SITTING.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 47, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 47

No. 47: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Development and Planning, Leader of Government Business to give an update on what action has been taken on Private Member's Motion No. 12/93, passed by the Legislative Assembly on the 3 December, 1993, concerning a review of Marine Zoning.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The Northern portion of the new Replenishment Zone as proposed in Private Member's Motion No. 12/93 fell within a Cable and Wireless restricted cable area where anchoring and fishing are prohibited. In order to resolve this conflict the Ministry first had to work with the Port Authority, the Department of Environment and Cable & Wireless.

Following successful resolution of the issue in February 1994, the Department of Environment requested the Lands and Survey Department to provide assistance with:

(i) providing the geographical coordinates for the boundaries of the new Replenishment Zone extending from the Treasure Island Resort southward to the old Pageant Beach Hotel; and (ii) amending the illustrative plan for the Grand Cayman Marine Parks (i.e., the Fourth Schedule to the Marine Conservation (Marine Parks) Regulations 1986). This information is necessary in order for Regulations to be enacted to formally Gazette the new zone.

On 25 May, the Lands and Survey Department confirmed that the field survey work had been completed and they are now in the process of generating the geographical coordinates. Once this is done the illustrative plan can be amended. The work has been placed in the Lands and Survey work programme and is scheduled for completion in six weeks' time.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say (having said in part of his answer that the Lands and Survey Work Programme is scheduled for completion in six weeks' time) if that is on schedule, or, if that happens on schedule, when will the Motion that was passed become a reality?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I could be funny and say in six weeks' time, but I do not think that that is the answer that the Member is asking for. I would say shortly after the information is provided to the Ministry.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Assuming my ignorance, Madam Speaker, would the Honourable Minister be in a position to outline to me exactly what the procedure is to complete this exercise?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I do not count the Member as ignorant, Madam Speaker. The procedure would be, as I understand it, that once the coordinates have been given to the Ministry there needs to be a paper to Executive Council for regulations to be made, or for amendments to schedule 4 to be made. Once that happens (and that can be done within two weeks, possibly one week) then it needs to be Gazetted before it really comes into effect.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 48, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 48

No. 48: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture Following the recent announcement that the Cayman Islands will be hosting the 1995 Carifta Games and the 1995 Shell Cup Finals, will the Minister outline what plans are being formulated for the upgrading of sporting facilities in George Town.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: The National Team Government is committed to the promise made in its Manifesto to develop facilities throughout the Cayman Islands by improving the district facilities and where these are non-existent to establish them.

Since the Cayman Islands has committed to hosting two major regional sporting events in April and July 1995, namely, the Carifta (Track and Field) Games and the Shell Caribbean Cup Finals, we are moving forward by upgrading the George Town Sports Complex to supplement the West Bay Sports Complex for hosting these Games.

In February 1994, the first phase of the proposed development was completed at the Ed Bush Football Complex in West Bay. This facility now comprises a permanent seating facility for approximately 1,300 persons, including VIP seating. In addition, there are two team changing rooms, an officials' changing room, toilet and shower facilities, a small conference room and a concession stand. This complex also includes an international size football field that was used for the Shell Cup elimination matches in February, as well as a practice pitch.

The George Town Sports Complex will continue to be developed in phases. The priority for the next phase will be preparation for these games and will include: provision of another 100 meter running strip on the west side of the track; re-surfacing of the entire track; expansion of the existing football field; the building of grandstands on both the western and eastern sides of the track; re-paving, where necessary, of the existing hard courts; proper drainage; landscaping and paving of the carpark.

The grandstands are to have a seating capacity of 3,000 with at least 1,000 seats covered. They will also provide a variety of standard offerings and amenities including: concession areas; toilets; a VIP area; media facilities; a general purpose office; a conference room and a first aid/rehabilitation facility. These will complement those in West Bay and together will meet the requirements of these Games.

My Ministry and the Sports Office continue to work closely with the Public Works Department, building upon the experience gained from the Ed Bush Football Complex Project.

Work on this phase of the George Town Sports Complex must be completed by April 1995.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 49, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 49

No. 49: Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs when will the coastal surveillance boat be put in operation and will its crew be Caymanian.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: The new patrol vessel, a 48 foot launch, is currently under construction by Sea Ark Marine Inc., and is expected to be operational mid to late July, subject to inspections at various stages of its construction proving satisfactory.

The Commissioner of Police and Collector of Customs are liaising on crew selection.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Could the Honourable Member say whether there are any plans for obtaining another boat?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Not at the present time, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Honourable Member stated in part of his answer that the Commissioner of Police was liaising regarding crewing of the vessel. The question was asked, will its crew be Caymanian? Can the Honourable Member expand on how this liaison will be completed and if it is leaning in the way that the question has been asked?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, insofar as it is possible the crew will be Caymanian. Where it is not possible non-Caymanians may have to be part of the crew.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Member be in a position to say if the possibility exists for training of Caymanians who may not be qualified at this time to fill any of these positions?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Yes, Madam Speaker, the departments, particularly the Police Department are very aggressively seeking to fill vacancies with qualified Caymanians. Training will be provided, as is now the case, and intensified efforts are going to be placed in the area of strengthening the Marine Division. Some external assistance has been offered in order to undertake a certain amount of training for Caymanians as well.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is the Honourable Member in a position to say, since this vessel is not presently ready, if there are any positions which may not be filled by Caymanians where training could be started now so that it would lessen the necessity of having to get non-Caymanians?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, there is a certain amount of training ongoing within the Marine section at the moment. Training has to be tailored to the practical usefulness of the vessels that are going to be crewed. Therefore crewing, or training, for this particular vessel cannot commence in earnest until the vessel itself is available. However, such training as can be undertaken has commenced.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 50, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 50

No. 50: Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture when will the facilities for indoor sports be commenced and where will they be located.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, it is Government's intention to provide facilities for indoor sports subsequent to Phase I of the National Sports Complex. It is envisaged that an indoor facility for basketball, netball, volleyball, boxing, badminton and martial arts will be provided in later phases. These facilities could be utilised for training on a controlled basis as well as for competition as needed.

Provisions of indoor sports facilities in regional and/or district facilities will be in accordance with available resources as public funds allow, but also depending on the support of the private sector in funding these projects, or in providing similar facilities themselves.

The Ministry's Sports Facilities Plan envisages that the second order of priority for provision of indoor facilities would be the Regional Facilities at West Bay, George Town, Frank Sound, and Cayman Brac.

Aside from catering for competitive activities, indoor facilities are seen to include weight training and physical rehabilitation facilities as appropriate. Indoor facilities will be located at the George Town and eastern district complexes in Phase II and Phase III, respectively.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 51, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 51

No. 51: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture to outline plans for the provision of similar sporting facilities in other districts as those in West Bay.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the plan presented by this Ministry, and accepted by the Government, is to work to provide three tiers of facilities. One tier will consist of a national complex; the second, of a series of regional complexes to serve population centres in West Bay, George Town, Frank Sound and Cayman Brac. The third tier will consist of facilities in individual districts, which will be devised and implemented as the population grows, as demand of users increases, and as facilities can be afforded. These amenities will be on a smaller scale and may be distributed in different areas of a district.

The West Bay Sports Complex is to be developed as a regional facility. The Ed Bush Football Complex is the first phase of this. The facilities, which will be similar in scope, are to be located in George Town, Frank Sound, and Cayman Brac.

The facilities at the George Town Sports Complex will mirror closely what is now available in West Bay. The grandstand for George Town will, however, have seating capacity for 3,000, compared to approximately 1,300 plus in West Bay.

The eastern district (regional) facility in Frank Sound will be provided with an international size football field in Phase I. Phase II will include the construction of a grandstand with a seating capacity of 1,500. Both will have changing rooms for players and officials, showers and toilets, a small conference room and first-aid, rehabilitation, weight training facilities (the latter will also be added to West Bay). All Regional Facilities will have these amenities and will also have indoor competitive facilities, running, walking and cycling tracks, as well as teaching pools and public parks.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, a certain amount of money has been provided in the 1994 Budget for a smaller amount of work at the sports fields in Bodden Town and Breakers. The year is about half gone, I would like to ask the Honourable Minister what are the chances of getting this work started and completed? This goes in keeping with the question about providing facilities in the rest of the Island.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The Bodden Town playing field, or the rehabilitation of the field at the Primary School, is continuing to be developed. It is to the extent where it will soon have its lighting commissioned. In fact, I believe that event will take place on the 6th at around 6.30 p.m.

Work is ongoing on the construction of the East End playing field and there are minor improvements to be made to the North Side playing field. That is as far as I can take it at the moment, but work is being done on the Bodden Town Primary School playing field.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: As a follow up to that supplementary, I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say, in considering the regional facilities he spoke of for Cayman Brac, if the purchase of the present teaching pool would be considered?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Certainly, Government has been in discussion through efforts made by the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman in regard to that pool. I trust that shortly we would come to some conclusion on that pool. I should also say to the House, regarding the Breaker's field, the Public Works Department is still doing some planning on that field.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: This supplementary may seem to be a bit premature, but nevertheless I will make the attempt. I wonder if the Honourable Minister is in a position to give any comments regarding what type of mechanism will be in place as to method of operation.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, perhaps the Member could clarify what he means by method of operation?

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: What type of management is going to be put in place for the facility with regard to personnel and how people will be able to use it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, presently there are no rules, as such, for management except that Government is responsible for public facilities. These rules will be developed and in the process Sports Office staff will be enhanced. But Government is calling on the private sector, sporting organisations in general, to assist us in the management of facilities. Government can spend money to build, but there will be a lot of maintenance in future years. That is what we will be asking the public to assist us with.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. The next item is Government Business, Motions.

Government Motion No. 1/94—Amendment to the Development Plan 1977. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 1/94

THE DEVELOPMENT PLANNING LAW (REVISED) (AMENDMENT TO THE DEVELOPMENT PLAN 1977)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I beg to move Government Motion No. 1/94 entitled, The Development Planning Law (Revised) (Amendment to the Development Plan 1977). The Motion reads:

“BE IT RESOLVED by the Legislative Assembly, pursuant to the powers conferred on it by section 8 of the Development and Planning Law (Revised), that the Development Plan 1977 (being the plan referred to in subsection (5) of section 6 of the Law) be this day altered by the amendment of the map incorporated with and forming part of the Plan as follows:

“1. Block 33E Parcel 83 (coastal portion) at Cayman Kai, to be rezoned from Public Open Space to Low Density residential, as shown on the attached map, marked A; and

“2. A 7,000 square foot portion of Block 33M Parcel 39, at Cayman Kai, adjacent to the western boundary of 33M 37 and immediately to the North of the existing Public Open Space Section 33M 39) Residential to Public Open Space, as shown on the attached map, marked B.”

Madam Speaker, the proposal is really to rectify a matter that went wrong in the past where a parcel of land was sold to a gentleman who built a house on a portion of it. When he made a move to extend his house towards the sea, he was told by the Planning Department that it could not be done because the portion between his house and the sea was Public Open Space. The developers have moved to assist him to correct the difficulty by offering another parcel of land equivalent to the present parcel adjacent to the gentleman's property in the Cayman Kai area, and adjacent to an already public open space which is identified on the map attached to the Motion in Registration; Rum Point—Block 33E and 33M.

I recommend the Motion to Honourable Members.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 1/94 is accordingly open for debate.

The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I rise to support Government Motion No. 1/94 entitled the Development and Planning Law (Revised) (Amendment to the Development Plan 1977). As the Honourable Minister moving the Motion has explained, somewhere along the way there was some confusion when a section of this lot referred to was declared Public Open Space.

I have met with the developers of the Cayman Kai area and they assured me that they were not aware of the situation when they sold the lot. They subsequently applied to the Planning Department to build a house for the person purchasing that lot and they were not told that half of the lot towards the sea, without any public access to it, was public open space. They have generously offered to give to the people as public open space the half of another lot that was in the same situation.

I have dealt with these developers on a personal basis and as businessmen, and have found them to be persons of their word. I have also discussed the possibility of another piece of property somewhere in that area on the clearer waterside of the Cayman Kai area. I have been assured that if certain things do not take place they will be more than happy to put this piece of property as public open space for the people of the district.

I would like to clarify, while standing on the floor of this House, a rumour that is existing in my district that I am returning the Kaibo Beach area to the developers of Cayman Kai. I would like to make it very clear to the listening public that this was never thought of either by the developers or myself.

Madam Speaker, I support the Motion.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, would the Honourable Minister wish to reply?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I think it is always courteous to say thanks for your support.

The Speaker: The question is that Government Motion No. 1/94 be approved. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye, those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion is duly passed.

AGREED: GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 1/94 PASSED.

The Speaker: At this time proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.11 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.32 AM

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 8/94

COMPULSORY PHOTOGRAPH IDENTIFICATION CARDS IN THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Madam Speaker, it gives me great pleasure to move Private Member's Motion No. 8/94 dealing with compulsory photograph identification cards. I believe each of us here can remember the time when the Cayman Islands was a place where we all felt very, very safe. It was quiet, and it was a place of tranquillity.

This Motion deals with compulsory photo identification cards. In the recitals it says:

"WHEREAS at a recent meeting of the Anti-Crime Committee, which was formed by the Mover of this Motion and other concerned citizens of the Cayman Islands, it was generally aired that many of the crimes now committed are by juveniles who lack parental control;

"AND WHEREAS it has been noted that many young people who are below the legal age limit are found in and around bars consuming alcohol;

"AND WHEREAS it is known that young people below the legal age limit appear to be of the legal age and above;

"AND WHEREAS there are problems with undesirable persons, young and old, gaining access, through the back entrances and under the fences, to the Government Schools, some of whom peddle drugs and some even impersonate individuals to gain access;

"AND WHEREAS there is no Voters Registration Card system in the Cayman Islands;

"AND WHEREAS some school children are seduced by nefarious intruding adults to engage in sexual activities;

"BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT Government consider implementing the introduction of a compulsory photo identification system whereby everyone resident in the Cayman Islands who presently have no means of identification shall be required to have a photo identification card."

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I beg to second Private Member's Motion No.

8/94.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 8/94 having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate.
The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: I started by saying that I believe every Member of this Legislative Assembly can remember the time when the Cayman Islands was a very quiet and very tranquil place. We know that much has changed here in the Cayman Islands, including incidences of crimes. We are still known worldwide as a place with a relatively low crime rate. I believe that it is very important that we do all that is within our powers to ensure that crime does not increase in these lovely islands. I believe that what is needed in the Cayman Islands is an all out combat against crime. We need to wage a war against crime if we are going to make the impact needed to lower the crime rate here in the Cayman Islands.

I have been involved in the formation of an Anti-Crime Committee and I appreciate the effort of every member of that committee. The Committee has held three meetings so far, one each in March, April and May. I am happy to say that each member is extremely enthusiastic and hard working because they realise that perhaps one of the most threatening things to the Cayman Islands at the moment is crime. If we allow crime to increase in our Islands, whether committed by juveniles or adults, it will destroy us eventually. It will negatively impact on our morals of course, and it will affect our economy.

The Anti-Crime Committee has formed a steering committee comprised of leading citizens in this community with each person representing an organisation that is already involved in the combating of crime. We have the United Council of Churches represented, all the service organisations, the Police, and we have the Social Services Department represented on this steering committee. We are about to form a central coordinating organisation known as "ACTION," and we have already decided what our functions are going to be. This is a citizens' initiative to fight crime.

We all realise that the Government alone cannot solve the problem of crime here in the Cayman Islands. We have to assist the Government, including the Police, as much as we can. We feel it is important for us to form an organisation that will be responsible for coordinating crime information; an organisation that will ensure that there is no duplication of efforts and waste of human resources in this very important battle against crime. It will know exactly what the Rotary Club is doing, what is going on in the Police Force, what the Churches are doing and will assist the Police where necessary or the Churches as they try to reach out to families with problems. We see ourselves organising things such as a civilian patrols, etcetera, looking after ourselves in our respective districts.

It was at one of these meetings that a member suggested that juveniles are responsible for a significant proportion of the crimes committed here in the Cayman Islands. One of the problems is that many of these juveniles get into trouble because of having access to bars, to places of entertainment and when they are asked if they are of the legal age limit, often they say they are. Sometimes they cannot be contradicted because many of them do appear to be over the legal age limit.

Once they gain access to bars they often get high on alcohol and sometimes other drugs, then they are liable to do anything. It is not uncommon here in the Cayman Islands, especially in the George Town area, to see very young people on the streets after midnight unaccompanied.

I feel that this Motion will serve many purposes, but I would like to stress from the very beginning that I am trying to target those juveniles who are getting into trouble because of the various habits that they have adopted. For instance, the Police can easily ask youths for identification when they get into trouble and they cannot fool the Police. The owners of bars can ask for identification, and the onus and the responsibility should then fall on the proprietors if they do not ask for identification. We know that there is already a legal age limit here in Cayman under which juveniles should not be sold alcohol. I see where this will only enforce that legal requirement and will be more effective.

We also know that at present there is no voters registration card system here in the Cayman Islands and up until now most of the people who are officiating during election times know the various voters. But I think that the way in which we are growing that this, too, will be helpful. If we do not plan to put a voters registration card system in place this could also serve the purpose.

As mentioned in the fourth Resolve of the Motion, many times there are people who should not be on the premises of Government Schools. This has been brought to my attention by Security Guards, Teachers, and some students who are very interested in making sure that their school environment stays safe. They complained that sometimes there are people on the grounds who gain access by a number of ways.

Some are children who should not be there who go in and cause trouble. Some are adults who claim or pretend that they are there for legitimate reasons, but are troublemakers. If everybody has an identification card at least it could be confirmed that they are the person they purport to be, then the proper action can be taken.

I want to state from the beginning that I do not believe it is necessary for everyone in the Cayman Islands to have the photo identification card. I am suggesting if they already, for instance, have a driver's licence or a valid passport because that can act as their identification. Someone suggested that perhaps I should have put in the resolve "have no means of photo identification," and I certainly would go along with that.

It is very important, I think, for a photograph to be on the identification card. I do not believe that it will be necessary for us to go the further step of having the thumbprint on the card. But to start with, a photograph identification card would be sufficient.

One of the problems that one could envisage right away is false photograph identification. I understand that even in Grand Cayman at the moment people can sometimes get false identification cards, and I am pretty sure that when this is implemented we will make sure that this cannot happen. The card that the person is given would be an authentic card.

I would be very interested to see where this Motion goes and how it is finally put into legislation with all the regulations, etcetera. One might say that there are many other things that we could do instead of putting into effect a photograph identification system in the fight against crime. But every little bit helps. I know, for instance, that Government implemented a number of initiatives against crime last year. We know that the Chamber of Commerce has been busy with their Crime Stoppers, and the various other organisations have all been playing a part in trying to combat crime. I believe that each of us realises the seriousness of crime and we will do all that we can to make sure that we wage this war against crime that is becoming ever more necessary. We realise that criminals have an underground intelligence and we have to combat that intelligence—we have to be smarter than they are and we have to be one step ahead.

Like I have said, it gives me pleasure in introducing this Motion and I look forward to the debate. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, it gives me great pleasure to say that the Government is happy to accept Private Member's Motion No. 8/94, to consider implementing the introduction of a compulsory photograph identification system whereby everyone resident in the Islands with no means of identification would be required to have one.

The Mover and the Seconder of the Motion are to be commended for the laudable objectives of this Motion. The House will be aware that under the provisions contained in the Elections Law, and based upon recommendations arising out of the last Supervisor of Elections Report, that certain recommendations are still to be looked at, vis a vis Voter's Registration Cards. However, this initiative, which we have been told is largely a citizens' initiative, is to be encouraged because crime affects everyone and every effort, be it ever so humble, has to be applauded once it is an effort in the correct direction.

Presently, under the Liquor Licensing Law, managers of licensed establishments are obligated to make their best effort to ensure that persons who are being served alcohol are persons who are old enough to legally purchase it. That is easier said than done when someone is approaching the age when one could be 18, or one could be 17. I can put myself into the position of the managers of such premises using judgment fairly and still, with the best will in the world, occasionally getting it wrong.

There are also many other occasions where time is of the essence, pressure is on the person dispensing to dispense quickly and at times if one is to stop and check identification one would be losing a fair amount of business. There are also public occasions when street dances are held and very large public events take place where bars stretch for yards along roadsides. I have attended one or two of these functions where people are standing three or four deep in an effort to purchase a drink. Where that kind of pressure is on it is very difficult—if not impossible—to expect persons, some of whom are working in a voluntary capacity, to stop and check everyone for photograph identification.

The requirement of this Motion is for the Government to consider ways and means of implementing such a scheme, not so much to make it inconvenient for the public, but to make it inconvenient for those who would seek to do what is not correct. Providing that the photograph identification mechanism is enforced in that manner where the emphasis is placed on targeting those persons who are at risk and not those who are innocent, then it seems to me that the objective will have been well met.

I am pleased to note that the Motion does not go as far as to exclude some acceptable forms of existing identification, such as passports and drivers licences, because where there are acceptable photograph identification documents one should not be compelled to duplicate it. It is also important to ensure that whatever mechanism is put in place is enforceable and not easily violated.

The Mover mentioned that all too often fake, counterfeit, or inauthentic documentation could be substituted. Naturally, any sensible photograph identification system will have to have some level of security protection in order for it not to be readily tampered with or easily falsified. Of course, we know that there are very many clever people who turn their energies to wrongful projects, and there are many examples existing where security features have to be improved in order to try and avoid tampering. So that, in itself, is an area that is going to require careful and ongoing scrutiny because once it is made by a system someone will find a way to try and get around it.

Madam Speaker, at the end of the day the obligation rests with all reasonable and law abiding residents of these Islands to use their conscience to do what they know is right and to cooperate with all appointed law enforcement agencies in such a manner as to uphold the law and to bring those persons to account who choose to violate the law. It has always been said that we are all free under the law, we all have responsibilities under the Law. This is a good example of an initiative that must be emulated. It is a citizens' initiative. It is one that does not seek to make it too onerous to implement and if it is implemented, and administered with the spirit with which it has been presented, it will have the desirable improved effect.

The Government is pleased to accept this Motion, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, with the permission of the Chair I would like to draw the attention of the House to Private Member's Motion No. 7/89 entitled, National Identification. This Motion read:

"WHEREAS the population of the Cayman Islands is increasing rapidly;

"AND WHEREAS an increasing number of people from outside these Islands are legally taking up gainful occupation or residence in these Islands;

"AND WHEREAS the increase of crime, especially drug related crime, is a matter of increasing concern;

"BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT Government investigate instituting a system of personal identification for all persons resident in the Cayman Islands, which would assist the law enforcement agencies." (1989 Official Hansard Report—Vol. I, page 516)

This Motion was passed on the 25th day of May, 1989. It seems to me that there may be some duplication and some overlap between this Motion and what is currently being called for.

I believe that the system of a National Identification by photograph is an almost universal system, a modern system. I believe it is a system which we in this country should adopt, hence I was the Mover of such a Motion in 1989.

As I recall the Honourable First Official Member at that time [Hon. Thomas Jefferson], explained in his contribution that it was the opinion of the Commissioner of Police that the matter was unnecessary and somewhat impractical to implement at that time. I suppose that may be the reason for the Motion being accepted but to this date, nothing has been done on the matter. Nevertheless, I would like to commend the Mover and Seconder of this Motion and to also say that the effort is in the right direction.

Madam Speaker, many people see the necessity of having some form of identification as called for in this Motion, and as was recommended in 1989. A recent case in point: While I was preparing for the Session of the Assembly in the recent past, I had occasion to go to the Post Office to register a letter. While I was there a young man turned up to claim a registered letter. The clerk, very correctly and professionally, asked for proof of identification. The young man in question could not produce any and the clerk very politely refused to give him the letter he had come to claim.

Madam Speaker that is but one case which establishes the need for identification on a national scale in this country. I would go so far as to suggest that when such an identification comes about, each person having that identification should be encouraged to carry it on his persons at all time, otherwise it will make little sense to have it. I would like to see the kind of system entrenched that if a policeman has reason to ask someone for identification, that that person need only to go into his wallet or pocket and produce that identification. It will eliminate some of the cases we sometimes read about of people trying to give the police false names and false addresses.

Some years ago I had the opportunity of going to Japan for six weeks on a training course. One of the things that struck me about their society was that it is mandatory for every Japanese citizen to carry identification with them at all times. Certainly every foreign person, other than tourists coming into the country, is also issued with a photograph identification. It was mandatory that they carry their identification with them at all times—that official identification, not other forms of identification, not the passport, which I was made to understand at that time is not an identification document but is merely a travel document.

We sometimes think of the passport as a document for identification. It is dangerous to take one's passport as an identification document, particularly the Caymanian passport, which is desirable and in popular demand by thieves and people who are up to illegal and illicit businesses.

Madam Speaker, I would suggest that when this scheme is implemented the authorities encourage the holders to carry this identification at all times. I note too, that we already have a semblance of this in place, namely, work permit holders. They are issued with these forms of identification. We already have the beginning of this scheme in place. While it is bringing a certain expense on the Government, I believe that an investigation could be made where the people would pay for the IDs themselves. Certainly, I see no reason why the Government should go to this expense—and I am assuming here, Madam Speaker, that it would not be an enormous expense. It could be a consideration of the Government to have the holders of these identifications pay for the IDs themselves. I am assuming that it will cost in the region of $10 to $15.

The point was also made that these could serve as a form of voter's registration document. I advocate that we go the ultimate step of having the thumbprint embossed on the ID as well. If we do that, it will mean that we have a comprehensive system of identification and whenever we move to electronic voters registration we would not have to bother about seeking a thumbprint again. Having done that, we could satisfy ourselves that we have in place a comprehensive system of identification and would not need to have to recall or add anything in the future.

It is a modern system. It is a sensible system. It is a system that will enable the authorities to maintain proper social control, and I encourage the Government. I am heartened by the fact that the Member speaking on behalf of Government has indicated Government's willingness. I only hope that it is not placed on the back burner and that we can get some reasonable speed into the exercise, because this has been long overdue.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. You mean the Third Elected Member for George Town.

The Speaker: I am sorry, the Third.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: That is all right.

All Honourable Members of this House are aware of the rapid growth, development, and changes that have taken place in Cayman over the past several decades. Gone are the days when we all knew each other, knew each other's children and knew all the youths in particular, in the Cayman Islands. Extended families no longer exist, where we have grandparents, or an aunt or uncle living with the family in helping to raise our youth. With these extended families came good teachings and moral upbringing for our youth. With this being more or less diminished, we have problems. Because of this we saw the need to bring this Motion in that our youth in particular are not easily identified and most of them appear to be older than their actual age.

I would like to share an incident that I experienced with my own son. As the Honourable First Official Member mentioned, when our youth go to bars they are not always questioned for some sort of identification. I took my nephew to lunch. He is the same age as my son, and they happen to be 16 years old. I asked him to perform a little deed for me, and he ordered a beer. He happens to be about six foot one inch, and my nephew is about five foot six inches. Even though he is a month older than my son, he was asked to produce some sort of identification.

I explained to the server that we really did not want the beer, I was just testing to see what she was going to say and do. My son, who is actually younger than my nephew—but appears older than he actually is—did not take the beer.

I continued to talk to the waitress and she said that she is not always able to question people for their identification because most of the youth do not have a means of photo identification and they are actually younger than they appear. Because of this, and the problems that we have learned from the youth themselves, of being approached at school by individuals to engage in illegal activities, I think it is very important that this be implemented and it could easily be done.

Many of our youth do not have passports. I do not walk around with my passport, and most other people do not carry passports with them because of the fact that they are cumbersome and there is the possibility of it being stolen, or being lost. Therefore, I think it is very important that this compulsory photo ID be implemented.

The previous speaker spoke about having to produce photo identification for registered letters and also for cashing cheques at the bank. Many times I have seen a teller ask to see a photo ID. It is now also asked for upon collection of packages and also for courier items. Not only will it help our youth, it will also help in the workplace and I strongly recommend this to the other Members of this House and ask for their support.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I support this Motion and I would like to commend the Mover and the Seconder for bringing it.

It is very important that persons, especially young persons, have a proper identification. An example was given by the Third Elected Member for George Town, who stated an instance where a young person appeared to be older than he really was. I also think that it would be good because many of them are not old enough to have a driver's licence. In fact, there are people who do not have a driver's licence so they do not have that identification.

This would really assist in bars, clubs, wherever age is important. I believe that laws relating to drinking or selling of liquor to persons who are under age should be strictly enforced. Many times it is difficult where you have a teenager who appears to be much older than they really are.

Hopefully we will get the voter's registration card system in due course, hopefully for the next election. This is a subject that is really for the Honourable Chief Secretary and is dealt with by the Official Members, but I think that would also be good.

The worry that I think all of us have is where teenagers are exposed to drugs, alcohol, cigarettes, or whatever, and we have to do whatever we can to prevent it. The driver's licence is primarily one of a licence under the Motor Vehicles Law, but it is secondarily an identification document, as is a Passport, which is primarily a travel document. There are people who do not have these and it is important that we look at this and try to come up with something that is not going to be onerous on members of the public but, on the other hand, will fill this gap that exist.

I always find it very interesting when the Opposition jumps on the bandwagon and tries to take credit for something from several years ago. It sometimes reminds me that when one jumps the fence, one has to remember what was on the other side of the fence and to constantly remind oneself that there are other Members who can come up with these ideas and effectively get them through the House.

So, I commend the Mover and the Seconder for bringing this, and I fully support it. I will do everything possible to assist in getting the photo identification system in such a way that it does not create any hardship, but is an assistance to ensure that there is further protection to young people and anyone who does not have this type of card.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As I rise to speak, I am reminded how time changes things and, indeed, how the two sides of this Chamber change people. The last speaker spoke of Oppositions jumping on the bandwagon and trying to get credit for things that happened in the past. My mind was pricked to recall what that particular Minister (who was then a Member) said when that Motion of 1989 was debated. Looking at the transcript, and reading from the transcript, I quote that Member as saying: "Having said that, sir, what I am totally against is that it be made mandatory that people in the Cayman Islands have to carry a national identification." (1989 Official Hansard Report Vol. I page 522)

The Motion before us deals with a mandatory identification for all people in the Cayman Islands. It goes to show how much the society really does change, and how peoples' views change. My good friend—who was Opposition with me in 1989 when we spoke on this, who is now the Third Elected Member for West Bay—had this to say: "Numbered societies gives me some concern. Being a Bible man myself, the first thought that came to my mind was the prophecy in Revelation which specifically spells out that in the last days when the anti-Christ takes over you will be required to assume some type of identification for a number of reasons." (Mr. John Jefferson Jr.—1989 Official Hansard Report, Vol. I, page 517)

Now, Madam Speaker, I trust that we have not reached that time, but it goes to show the changing views of people based upon where they sit.

I think that this Motion again brings forward a matter that needs attention. When the Motion, similar to the one before us, was brought it virtually cited the very same reasons for it. Certainly, in the area of crime, these conditions have worsened and increased. I would see this identification for persons in the Cayman Islands as being of particular use to the Police Force, or law enforcement agencies.

Often the Police, in the course of performing their duties, stop people who might be suspects and require their name. The person will normally give them his name, but that in turn does not have to be his real name. But to give no name at all could cause them to be detained. With an identification, be it a young person, a middle-aged person, or an older person, they could immediately identify themselves to the Police—name, date of birth, I would imagine would be primary on it, and such other information as might be considered valuable.

I also believe that there is a serious problem in this country with determining legal age. This has been cited by some of the other speakers, in terms of young people entering liquor licensed premises. It could certainly serve in those instances.

Also, there is the question crime, which is on the upswing. The juvenile age is between 8 and 17, as I recall. I think the Police or such probationary people that may be working with young people, could easily identify whether that person has reached the legal age of 18 or whether they were persons under 17 years of age in instances where there may be breaches of the law.

Crime seems to be increasing in all areas, and among the areas is that of forgery. I think the legal people call it 'uttering,' where people write cheques, or try to forge another person's signature to get money. Many supermarkets will not cash cheques now unless the persons are known to the proprietors or unless they have some form of suitable identification. Indeed, supermarkets themselves, in tightening up their management, have issued cheque-cashing identification. So, we are in modern times when we must move to deal with situations as they can most effectively be dealt with.

The Post Office has also been having some problems with people receiving mail be it registered or otherwise. I am aware that the Post Offices in these Islands are very strict now, demanding identification before persons can receive mail or whatever might be at the Post Office that they are claiming.

Of course, the people who are in this country on work permits have a distinct advantage, one might say, over those who are Caymanians or who have Caymanian status and so on, because they possess identification cards with their photo on it. It makes life rather simple for them to identify themselves to anybody. I would think that as Caymanians we would want no less for ourselves.

I do not view getting an identification card as some punishment being inflicted; rather I view it as something that would be useful to have. One thing that I believe the Government will need to take into account when looking at this is at what point would a person be eligible to receive an identification card. Here, I believe at some point in school age, perhaps at the age when a person becomes recognised as a juvenile under the law at age 8, one might consider issuing it at that point because of the question of juvenile delinquency. While the child may not be the most responsible person in the world, it would certainly be something that parents or guardians could keep safely for them and give them at such time as they may be away from home or otherwise.

There has also been talk about curfews in recent times. If we are to believe the figures published by the Chamber of Commerce, it seems a high percentage of people believe that some curfew should be in place for people below the age of responsibility. I think it is necessary myself to prescribe some particular hours in the night or in the early morning where persons who are not adults should not be on the streets or in public places unless they are properly accompanied. So, from a point of view of enforcing any type of curfew requirement—

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I am afraid that that is not a part of Private Member's Motion No. 8/94, and I think you should keep within the confines of the Motion. A curfew is not a part of the identification that is being proposed.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I take your ruling. Basically, all I was attempting to say is if that were brought in, that card would serve as an identification of such persons.

The point has been made on voting and I think that recommendations have been made by other speakers. But perhaps, rather than the Election Officers going to the immense effort they must every four years to make sure that persons are registered and properly identified, it would be much easier. Perhaps citizens would be encouraged to register, because they could be easily identified without birth certificates.

Altogether, this Motion gives an opportunity for this country to take a progressive step forward in dealing with many of the various situations which have been identified, or stated here in the recitals of the Motion, and which other speakers have spoken about. It is clear that we are not talking about any voluntary situation as was in the first instance. What we are talking about is mandatory identification, and I can but remark again that time does change, and so do the views of people.

I do support this Motion for the resolve that it seeks.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, I would ask the Mover of the Motion if he would like to exercise his right to reply.

Dr. Stephenson Tomlinson: Madam Speaker, I wish to thank all those who supported the Motion during the debate, and I would like to make a few points as I sum up.

Obviously, motions very similar to this one have been brought before the House. We heard the First Elected Member for Bodden Town mention that he had made a similar attempt back in 1989. I believe back in 1987 there was Motion No. 7/87 brought by the present Minister for Community Development, Sports and Youth Affairs, which was also similar—Mandatory Personal Identification. But I believe those two Members can feel a sense of gratification as they at least see identification being given to the immigrants in the country. At least something was done in that regard.

We know that times have changed and it is very important that we change with the times. Crime is on the upswing. Situations are more serious now than they were back in 1987 and 1989. Therefore, it is an even more pressing matter now, I believe, to have some form of photo identification.

I also noticed in the debate of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, there was a previous Member of the Legislative Assembly who was very much against making it compulsory that persons carry these identification cards. I would like to point out that this Motion does not make it mandatory. I am not suggesting that it be made mandatory that they carry the identification card. However, in my firm opinion, that is the only way that it is going to be practical. I will leave it for those who are going to work out the details to decide on all of these points.

We realise that many details have to be worked out. For example, who pays for the card? What is the minimum age requirement? Should the private sector be allowed to produce the cards and a Government stamp be required to authenticate the cards? All of these things have to be worked out.

Then there is the question of some adolescents being allowed into places of entertainment to dance. I see absolutely no reason why they should not be allowed into some places of entertainment to dance, but they should not be allowed to purchase alcohol. All of these various things have to be worked out when the legal minds get behind this issue.

Again, I would like to thank each one who supported the Motion. Despite all of Government's work and the pressures, I look forward to this being implemented as soon as possible. Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is that Private Member's Motion No. 8/94 be approved. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES .

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion has been passed.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 8/94 PASSED.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 9/94. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 9/94

ESTABLISHMENT OF A SELECT COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE TO REVIEW, INTER ALIA, A GOVERNMENT BLANKET GUARANTEE FOR LOWER INCOME HOUSING

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 9/94, Establishment of a Select Committee of the whole House to Review, Inter Alia, a Government Blanket Guarantee for Lower Income Housing, which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS on Monday, 19th July, 1993, the Standing Finance Committee approved, by a majority, a blanket guarantee of between 10 percent and 35 percent to First Home Banking, the Bank of Butterfield, First Cayman Bank and a private company, Cayman Affordable Housing, for the purpose of these organisations providing mortgage financing to lower income Caymanians;

"AND WHEREAS this type of guarantee is the first of its kind ever undertaken by Government;

"AND WHEREAS the sum representative of a 35 percent guarantee is large and the results considerably speculative over which Government has no control;

"AND WHEREAS the details of this venture are minuscule and continue to be in comparison to the statement regarding the size of the envisaged project;

“AND WHEREAS the Legislative Assembly in Session has not to date been informed in comprehensive written legal form of exactly how the liability on public funds is to be applied and what safeguards of the people's money are provided;

“AND WHEREAS the Government guarantee for the purpose stated will allow expenditure to be incurred which will financially affect the lives of citizens of the Cayman Islands;

“AND WHEREAS the guarantee in its present form includes only three banking institutions and one private company on the Island, with no indication that any other such similar organisations would be included or were approached to participate in the proposed venture;

“AND WHEREAS no definite requirements or standards for the project, nor legal protection for the individuals who might become borrowers, have been published by Government;

“AND WHEREAS subsequent to a press conference held by the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture on Wednesday, 4th May, 1994, it has been revealed that certain official information stated in Finance Committee and the Legislative Assembly seriously conflicts with official information most recently stated;

“BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT Government take no further action to commit public funds or incur public liability with any entity in relation to any low income housing scheme until the discrepancies in the present situation have been reviewed by the Office of the Auditor General and a report made to the Legislative Assembly;

“AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the matter of a blanket guarantee by Government aforementioned be referred to a Select Committee of the whole House for consideration and examination, and for it to formulate certain standards, requirements and guidelines for a lower income housing scheme for which Government will provide a blanket guarantee and which will invite all financial institutions and housing construction entities, which meet specified qualifications, to participate in and bid for such business on a competitive basis;

“AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT in considering the matter, the Select Committee seek input from relevant financial and legal entities as well as members of the public.”

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I beg to second Private Member's Motion No. 9/94.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 9/94, having been duly moved and seconded, is now open for debate. Perhaps it would be an opportunity to take the luncheon suspension at this time, as it is now quarter to one. Proceedings will be suspended until 2.15 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.18 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate on Private Member's Motion No. 9/94. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I think I should say from the very beginning of my debate that I consider this Motion to be one of the most serious things that I have done in the Legislative Assembly since I have been privileged to be here. This is because of the serious financial implications with Government's involvement under a blanket guarantee scheme, and the fact that up until this moment in time there is no clear indication whatsoever available in writing or in contract form that has been made available to Members of this Legislative Assembly or the public, that the facts and details that are necessary for this to work properly are in place. Also, I think it is serious because what I term official falsehood has been told to this Legislative Assembly in this particular matter.

The matter of providing housing for lower income citizens of this country is, I believe, an idea shared by all Members of the Legislative Assembly to whatever lesser or greater degree. Around the world, countries strive to provide housing for their citizens, particularly those who need it most and who have the least to pay for it. There is always the problem of how we provide this housing. There have been numerous schemes tried around the world by different countries, different governments, and none are perfect. Some work to some extent, others create more problems than they correct.

This particular scheme came into being in Finance Committee last July, when the Member (now Minister) responsible brought a request to this House for the Finance Committee to approve a guarantee of between 10 percent to 35 percent to cover lower income housing, chiefly and mainly to an entity called Cayman Affordable Housing.

I am not singular in my concerns about the matters involved with this particular action of Government, for the Motion which I moved today is almost identical to the one that was moved last year by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, except for a variation in one of the resolves which asked that if Government had any intention, or was in the process of committing public funds it should cease doing such a thing until this matter could be examined by the Auditor General. To the best of my knowledge he is the Officer who is supposed to investigate questions involving Government money, how it is or is not handled and whether it is being done in a proper manner or not.

When the Motion came to Finance Committee, first of all Members then present, the country as a whole and the media, believed that there was a scheme in place and that the Government had arrived at a position with an entity called Cayman Affordable Housing, as a company (as the Motion was in the Finance Committee), First Home Banking, First Cayman Bank and the Bank of Butterfield, to provide a considerable sum of money over a maximum period of five years.

The company, Cayman Affordable Housing, allegedly had provided and had available $17 million for lower income housing. We now know that that is not the case and that if the company, if there was one, had that amount of money it is certainly not available to build houses for lower income Caymanians.

This Motion said that Caymanians would be given 100 percent financing for their homes, either to build or to purchase, and the maximum level available to persons was set at a ceiling of $80,000. Assistance with stamp duty and transfer fees would be considered in special circumstances so as to make it possible for 100 percent financing.

The peculiar thing about it was that for something so different and so unique (and happening for the first time), there was virtually no documentation available—nothing that could show that there was an entity called Cayman Affordable Housing that had made an offer to Government which had been accepted. There was no written documentation that the three banks named on that occasion had made any offer or had any contractual agreement with Government.

The Finance Committee—all of the Members of this Legislative Assembly except the Official Members—was simply required to believe all that was said was so. Some of us, namely the Fourth Elected Member for George Town and I, questioned certain things at the time of the presentation because it was not clear and it was necessary for it to be clear. I believe that any Legislator who wanted to act responsibly would have asked similar questions for details. I did. Others did.

It is worthy to note that the Member—a Backbench Member of Government, and now the Minister for Health—asked the first question after the Member for Housing presented the request. The question was, and I quote from the Minutes of the Finance Committee: “I wonder if the Honourable Member is in a position to tell us a little about the Cayman Affordable Housing, otherwise known as ‘the Company,’ if he is in a position to do that.” (Mr. Anthony S. Eden: Finance Committee Meeting—19th July, 1993)

The simple reply from the Minister putting forward the request was: “This is a company headed by Mr. Heber Arch.” (Hon. W. McKeeva Bush—Finance Committee 19th July, 1993)

Now, was that sufficient to know about the Company? I do not believe so. It was not sufficient then, and it is not sufficient now.

Another Member of the National Team group, when he spoke about the matter said, and I quote: “Once again, we are fulfilling one of our campaign promises. I remember quite vividly saying that this was one area we would certainly be working on to provide appropriate housing for people.” (Dr. Stephen son A. Tomlinson—Finance Committee 19th July, 1993)

The greater the attempt to find out the facts and the details of this very grand proposal, the least was factually available or presented as documented fact.

This matter goes further than simply its dealings here in this Legislative Assembly. Before a matter comes to the Finance Committee it is supposed to follow a process. Unless that process has drastically changed (it would be of no great surprise to me if I heard it had changed) if any Ministry or Portfolio decides that a certain amount of money is needed for whatever reason, the Permanent Secretary confers with the Minister and finds out if it is his wish that this matter be put forward and go on to the Executive Council. The Minister responsible would take it to the Executive Council and the Executive Council would give its approval that it be brought before the Finance Committee.

What I wonder about, in terms of the Government administration at this time, is how much is required of anyone, any Ministry, any Permanent Secretary, any Minister, to show in support of something that he wishes to do before the Executive Council approves it. The Financial Secretary, to the best of my knowledge and belief, has to be satisfied and has to see the documentation before such requests were put forward. I wonder if they were made available to the Financial Secretary and indeed if he has in his possession such documentation. If that is the case, [it should] be made available to Members of this Legislative Assembly who all form part of the Finance Committee.

At this juncture I wonder if any thought was given to the legal ramifications of this. Was there in anyone's possession legal documentation—letters, contracts, whatever—that First Cayman Bank, Bank of Butterfield and First Home Bank were indeed entering into this situation with Government? Or is it possible for any Minister to come into the Finance Committee of this House and name any bank as being a part of something that Minister is putting forward? Was any legal advice sought from the Legal Department, from the Attorney General or otherwise? These are all significant and integral parts of this whole process, and one that I will show the significance of more vividly a little later on. I think that most people would accept that that would be standard procedure.

Right now in the United States there is a group of persons who say that things must be done or said in a particular way because that is “politically correct.” Of course, the American Civil Liberties Union is saying that such stereotyping or rigid condition goes against the whole situation of speech and all the rest of it. But this matter of finding ways and means of providing housing for lower income people in this country is something that is exceptionally politically nice to be involved with.

If one reads the Minutes of the Finance Committee meeting, one will clearly see how many went overboard to state their commitment, their belief in this, and all the rest of it. Members went to the point of saying that they knew Cayman Affordable Housing did a lot of business in Cayman. I now wonder how that could be possible when the media—namely the Caymanian Compass—found out and has let the public know that there is no such entity existing in this country.

I asked a question on it. The Minister of Education felt it necessary to say that I was trying to stop this great creation and that I should have followed the way of my fellow elected member from the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. It was all politically charged—and it remains that way.

The Minister of Education, however made a very insightful statement when he said, and I quote: “I can tell you, Mr. Chairman, you cannot just walk into a bank and say, ‘Look, I want 90 percent, or I want 80 percent financing,’ in many instances, unless you can show quite a substantial income.” (Hon. Truman M. Bodden—Finance Committee 19th July 1993)

That is a fact. And that point, I submit to this Honourable House, has not been developed, has not been clarified, and thus cannot be in existence—where Caymanian people, whose hopes have been raised so very high, have the financing available to them to acquire a house or to be in a position to pay a mortgage which they can afford.

When the vote was taken a division was called. There were nine people who voted Aye. There were two abstentions (the Fourth Elected Member for George Town and me). Mr. Truman M. Bodden, Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr., Mr. Roy Bodden, and Mr. Haig Bodden were absent. So, the Finance Committee was not absolutely complete.

When the motion to discuss this matter came to the House some months ago, it was repeated and presented again to this House and to the people of this country (because it was broadcast on the radio) that a company called Cayman Affordable Housing had available $17 million to build houses for Caymanians. The story was that Cayman Affordable Housing had $17 million, the Bank of Butterfield would provide $3 million over three years, First Cayman Bank would provide $.25 million over three years and First Home Bank would provide $1 million over three years for a total of $3 million. The maximum lending would be $80,000 and the Member presenting this information went on to say that there were certain criteria—the applicant must be Caymanian, including holders of Caymanian status; the applicant must be the prospective owner or occupier of the property; and the applicant must have no more than $50,000 nor less than $18,000 per year combined household income.

Those matters were presented as fact. Still no documentation on this scheme was made available to Members showing any agreement between Government and these banking institutions or Cayman Affordable Housing. It became clear, as it does even now, that this whole scheme was geared to one entity—Cayman Affordable Housing. Although the Member and some of his colleagues would say otherwise—that it was open to any construction company—there is no proof whatsoever that that is the case even now.

In the latest information available there is only one entity and that entity is not, as was falsely said, Cayman Affordable Housing. That entity, by metamorphoses or otherwise, is the Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited. So, there is but one entity to gain, whatever that gain may be, by this country offering a blanket guarantee for between 10 percent to 35 percent.

There were various attempts made to show that we (the Fourth Elected Member for George Town and I) were attempting to stop progress because we dared question this. We dared ask for more information and we were attempting to prevent the poor people of this country from getting houses they so badly needed—as if two votes against 13 would have any more significance than being on the paper. Anyone knows that two against 13 is the minority and therefore could not carry any vote. But again, it was politically correct.

The Motion that was put before the House was debated and there was much said by some Members of the National Team Party who used this to show that they had made great strides in achieving something for the country which no one else had even come near to doing.

Now everyone knows that this is not true and it is just a pie in the sky. Some of those persons have come to me and told me of instances where they have paid monies in excess of $2,000 for a house through the Frank Hall scheme but have arrived at no point up until this time.

This Motion asks Government to set parameters, requirements and standards, and to give all entities the opportunity to competitively bid. It was not done then, I doubt that it will be done any time in the very near future.

This matter may have drifted on and have been lost in the usual way that the things go in the Cayman Islands—as the old folks used to talk about, a nine-day wonder. But what really brought this situation to the forefront was when the Minister for Housing called a press conference in the George Town Town Hall, ready to let the sparks fly, and announced that it was now ready to go. There were certain changes because the maximum (being $80,000) had grown to $125,000, and to be eligible for the scheme the ceiling which was $50,000, had now grown to $60,000.

In the debate the Minister for Housing said that the Housing Development Corporation would play an integral role in this. They would examine each application and, I quote: “The lenders would nominate the clients to Government whose appointed agency, the Housing Development Corporation, will examine each application and confirm to Government whether the case merits the application of a Government guarantee.” (Hon. McKeever Bush—1993 Official Hansard Report, Vol. II, page 633)

To me, there were merits that made sense, because the Housing Development Corporation has been in existence now for 13 years. It is the only entity in Government that has the experience with banking and lending and which, I think, has performed extremely well over those years. So, it would be natural that Government would use the expertise of the Housing Development Corporation. However, the Housing Development Corporation did not come into play on Wednesday 4th of May. No mention was made of that whatsoever.

The world suddenly learned that it would be dealing with Cayman Affordable Housing. Another bank also entered the picture—the one, it was said in the debate prior, that was reluctant to lend money in some instances, the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. That would now also be an entity working hand-in-hand with Cayman Affordable Housing.

One got the impression that Cayman Affordable Housing was a company that, indeed, was a local company. Mr. Heber Arch, being named as heading it, is well known. I think there was a bit of sell in that idea, but at this point in time that has soured immensely.

Cayman Affordable Housing, according to the report of Monday 9th May, does not exist as a legal entity. It was always a company called Frank Hall Homes (Cayman), Limited being given the exclusive opportunity, over all the other development companies in this country, to be granted Government's guarantee of from 10 percent to 35 percent of the people's money.

I do not know Mr. Frank Hall. I have no cause to know him other than because the Government of my country is involved in a situation that involves his company. The people's money is at risk. Why is it exclusively Mr. Frank Hall, who must have access to this privileged position?

It is not true that this company has $17 million available to it to spend. That was clarified when he said, and I quote from the newspaper: “The $17 million over a five year period’ referred to by Mr. Bush, meant that they were prepared to do up to $17 million of construction within the Government guarantee scheme over the next five years.” (Quote by Mr. Frank Hall—Caymanian Compass 9th May, 1994)

They might be interested in doing $20 million over the next five years. Here I would ask: Why? Why was Budget Homes, or Mr. Antonio Hawkins, who to the best of my knowledge was one of the first persons in Cayman who was involved with CDB (Caribbean Development Bank) monies back in the 80s and, to some extent with the blessing of the cooperation from Government, in Budget Homes . . . would he not be interested in doing $17, or $20 million worth of business under a Government guarantee such as Frank Hall Homes? He is a developer, one of the first known to us. He pioneered it and took the risks. What about Mr. Kent Rankine? He is a Caymanian developer who has developed a large housing area behind Halfway Pond and various other areas. Would he not be interested? What was the magic with Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Ltd.—which was called by the nom de plume Cayman Affordable Housing?

What we also learned was that the only thing that Cayman Affordable Housing (I should not use that term, I mean Frank Hall Homes) wanted to do, and was doing, and did not hesitate to say—they had housing units for sale in Silver Oaks, opposite Tropical Gardens, two places in Newlands, and one to begin West Bay—was to sell their units. Plain, straightforward business transactions. I have no difficulty with that whatsoever.

What I have a problem with is that Government, through the Minister for Housing, deliberately came to this Legislative Assembly and the Finance Committee and misled this House and the Finance Committee talking about Cayman Affordable Housing when they were talking about Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Ltd.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I do not like the word “deliberately.” I think it is very mischievous and I would ask you to withdraw that term. I do not believe that any Member would deliberately come to this Assembly and confuse us or tell us something that was not true. Would you please withdraw that remark?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I bow to your request. I withdraw that statement.

The Member came to the Legislative Assembly on behalf of the Government and said that they were doing business with Cayman Affordable Homes Ltd., and it has since been discovered that that does not exist—according to the media, and Government's making no attempt to prove otherwise.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order. Standing Order 35, suborder (4). In spite of your ruling, the Member is constantly referring to this thing as being misleading or “official falsehood,” as he has termed it. There is a company called Frank Hall Homes, trading as Cayman Affordable Homes Limited.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, would you do that in your address, please? That is not a Point of Order.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, please continue.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, Government is supposed to act in a manner that keeps its credibility intact. If it was the case that Cayman Affordable Homes Ltd., did exist, it should have been put forward to this Legislative Assembly and to the Finance Committee that it was Frank Hall (Cayman) Homes Ltd. The whole truth, all of the details about Silver Oaks and the subdivision in Newlands and West Bay, should have been made known to this country.

When the situation was exposed as it was on Monday 9 May, many people were baffled and wondered about it. Again, what was said there by the contractor himself contradicted what the Minister was telling the country and the Members of the Legislative Assembly.

Mr. Arch, whose name was mentioned from the time of the Finance Committee, said, “...under the Government guarantee scheme, they hoped the customer would make a nominal down payment [of] between $2,000 and $4,000.” (Caymanian Compass—9th May, 1994) Of course, the story being put forward by the Minister on behalf of Government was that it was 100 percent covered by a Government guarantee.

It had its effect. A lady who had been to Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Ltd., came to me and gave me a copy of a financing application. I have that copy here today. Attached to this were drawings of a two bedroom house to which was attached the financial scheme as it was supposed to be. She has a large family, she has a number of children working, and to her great disbelief, she found out that for a small house, as contained in this financial schedule, the monthly mortgage would be $1,174.19. That was a small house.

For the medium house, the monthly mortgage would be $1,217.72. Madam Speaker, that type of mortgage is certainly not for the lower income bracket of people.

This lady is paying something like $800 per month in rent and she, comparable to many like her, believed what she had heard—that what they are paying in rent could be converted to a mortgage payment, which would make sense. Instead of paying it out in rent, which is dead money, it would go towards buying a home.

So, the public has been misled in this respect. Two other persons have contacted me to say that they had paid some $2,000 into this deal here. They are now told that they have to go to the bank. Which bank? They do not know. They came to me to find out. I could not tell them because I do not know. I do not believe anybody knows. I certainly do not believe that Government knows. Is it the Housing Development Corporation Bank? Is it CIBC? Is it one of the other three banks that we have heard about? This situation is absolutely confusing and ridiculous.

Madam Speaker, the people who need houses are those who are least able to afford them. When a person is paying $1,200 per month just for his mortgage, it means that fuel for his car, food for the family, the telephone bill, the electric bill, a little for entertainment, and all the other day-to-day living expenses is not included in that. That is purely for mortgage.

This scheme is no different than what is in place in just about every bank in this country that gives a home mortgage, because the people who can qualify for home mortgages are the people who would have the ability to pay that type of mortgage. We must remember that we are talking about a 20-year period. The banks usually loan for 10, 15, or 7 years, as the case may be—if it was any less, it would be shockingly higher.

In an attempt to come up with some figures, some details that made sense, something concrete to try and rationalise what was being said or what could be done, I went to the Compendium of Statistics, which is the Government's statistics on a number of things. I found under table 404: Unemployment and Earnings by Occupation that in 1992 the labour force survey showed there were 15,220 people working in the Cayman Islands. Of course, a large percentage of that would be people on work permits—at least 50 percent. The average monthly salaries in Cayman Islands dollars earned by those 15,220 people was $1,476.

The highest income brackets, which include senior officials and managers, of which there were 1,275, was $3,400. So, if we were to look at a mortgage, even with those 1,200 people, and they had a mortgage of $1,200, we would be looking at almost 50% of their average salary.

Professionals, Technicians and Associate Professionals, which in 1992 was the largest group, numbered 3,620. Their average salary was $2,150. When we look at another group, which is quite large, and comprised a significant number of Caymanians—Service Shops and Sales—their average monthly salary was $1,040. So how could it be truthful to say that this scheme being put forward by the Government is for lower income housing for people who are in the lower income brackets?

The Labourers and Unskilled Category, of which there were 2,330, made an average of $724 per month. I wonder if the Government took the time to look at its statistics to see how sadly far afield they were in even suggesting that such would be for lower income housing.

Why would the Government, having a statutory body called the Housing Development Corporation—which was created specifically for the purpose of dealing with mortgages—not extend its blanket guarantee to that entity that is doing such a good job helping so many lower income Caymanians? Why is the Government reluctant to extend this guarantee to other developers in this country who would no doubt be more than interested, particularly with construction down, to build houses for lower income Caymanians?

I have a brochure from the Housing Development Corporation. I can think of at least three occasions when I asked the Minister for Housing if he had something that sets down this scheme of his. One must conclude that he does not, or if he does, he will not make it available. But, the Housing Development Corporation does.

The brochure is in a question and answer format. The first question is, “What is the Housing Development Corporation?” The answer is, “The Housing Development Corporation (HDC) is a statutory organisation set up in 1981 by the Government of the Cayman Islands to provide mortgage loans to assist borrowers in the low to middle income group in owning their own homes.” Does charity not begin at home?

If the Government wanted to revolutionise the situation for housing for low to middle income people in this country, should they not have started where it would be necessary to make the guarantee available because they have all the expertise in house? Why Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Ltd.? They do not have any $17 million to spend. They will spend however much is required if a bank will finance them based on Government's giving a blanket guarantee for the number of applicants who might want a house and who could qualify.

It is interesting, in the question that asks, “Who is eligible?” the answer is, “Born Caymanians and those granted status are eligible to apply for HDC loans if their combined family income is less than $40,000 per year, and provided that the income of no individual member exceeds $30,000. Single applicant with annual income of less than $30,000 may also be considered.”

The ceiling that we first heard put before the House by the Minister was $50,000, now that has escalated to $60,000. I wonder which would be representative of lower income earners in this country—a $60,000 or a $30,000 ceiling? The answer is very clear indeed.

The HDC works on certain banking principles and there is a question in the brochure that asks, "What is the borrower's minimum contribution towards the cost of a home?" The answer, "Borrowers are expected to contribute a minimum of 10 percent towards the total cost of a home, that is house and land. This means that the HDC will finance up to 90 percent of the cost of the house, up to a maximum of $60,000."

We are hearing now that the Government will guarantee 100 percent—no payment by anyone. The houses can go to a maximum of $125,000. Is that for lower income earners? The HDC does not seem to think so. They put the ceiling at $60,000. There are some beautiful smaller homes built in this country with that amount of money. Why Frank Hall (Cayman) Homes, Ltd.? What is the magic?

Madam Speaker, using the statistics from the Compendium of Statistics on Employment and Earnings by Occupation, I asked someone whose business is developing (and they are quite able in the field of mortgaging, etcetera) to work up a computer model as to what the housing would realistically cost. I asked the person to use the figures in the 1989 census. I got them to add a 5 percent increase over the five-year period to arrive at the average salary of a senior official at this time. That came to $3,833.95. This was done to each category in the statistics. The professionals, which would be the next category, was $2,844.01; the clerical and executive was $1,582.59, on average up through 1994.

Then, using a combined salary as Mr. Heber Arch of Frank Hall says they used as their formula—three times the amount of the biggest earner and one time the amount of the smaller—I combined the salary of the senior official, which would be $36,048, with one time the salary of the clerical, which was $14,880, which came to a grand total of $50,928. That would make the person, over a 20 year period (at 9.75% on the average going rate today) eligible for a mortgage of only $123,024, and the mortgage payment would be $1,166. If there was a combined salary of $38,280, which would make that person eligible for $89,880 maximum mortgage over 20 years, they would pay $852.53.

Using these tables and combining these salaries and tripling them in the one instance and adding one time more on the lower earner, the lowest amount that could be accommodated would be $34,752, and that person would pay $329.62. I submit that the majority of people in this country fall between the $852.53 and $329.63. The majority falls within that category because immediately above that we are talking top executive. And this is over a 20-year period.

So, where does one get off saying that the Government is undertaking a lower income housing scheme where the people are being told, 'Look, you can be offered one of the homes, or apartments in Silver Oaks or Newlands, but you are looking at $1,174.19, or $1,217.72'? Who can afford that? The lower income bracket? Not a chance! So, the disappointment grows.

The Government, once again, has been reactive rather than proactive and the people who really need and who really want cannot be helped under this scheme between the Government and Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Ltd.

One does not know how far the Government has gone to commit the funds of this country. One does not know if there has been any commitment or if it has been properly and legally done. One can guess and speculate.

What is sure is that whatever is in the works, and whatever has happened to date under this absolutely uncertain, changing day-by-day situation, should not go any further until it can be properly examined by the proper Government authority. Once again, it is necessary for all those elected by the people of this country to sit down and collectively look at what the Government has or has not done. Take advice from the people who know about these things, such as the HDC, which is in-house expertise and arrive at a proper, practical and sensible situation.

I stand here and say again that the Cayman Islands Government should not enter any exclusive situation with Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Ltd. to the exclusion of the other developers and contractors in this country, or any banks or financial institutions in this country that wish to participate in providing financing and housing in the Cayman Islands.

The questions about this grow daily and the number of people who are disappointed and confused grows daily. Therefore, this Motion calls for full participation of the peoples' representatives—all of them—to work out clear terms, requirements, and standards, not leaving it to individuals. Set the standards and let those who will, come. Those who qualify may.

Make this money available to whomsoever may qualify, and not exclusively, as has been the case up to now, to one entity which is trying to sell its homes—which they have a right to do, and which they openly and honestly say they are attempting to do. That is the call today on this Government in this particular scheme.

I therefore recommend this to all Members of this House.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.34 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.00 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 9/94. The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I oppose this Motion.

In the Manifesto the National Team stated, and I quote: "We believe that all Caymanians should have a fair opportunity for adequate and affordable housing to enhance our standard of living (e.g., piped potable water and flush toilets). We will support all reasonable efforts by the Housing Development Corporation on its own or in conjunction with the private sector, to arrange necessary financing (for middle and low income persons) for home improvement as well as property acquisition.”

Madam Speaker, we have carried this out. We find that as we are getting nearer to seeing fruition to what I regard one of the most important aspects of the private sector of this country, we are finding opposition to it, confusion and obstacles being put in its way.

What this scheme is all about is lending money to persons in the middle and lower income brackets—which they cannot get at present—for a period of 20 years, to put young couples and young persons in their own homes.

Madam Speaker, one of the most accepted principles of stability in any country, including countries that are not necessarily capitalist countries, is having homeowners. A person who has a home is not going to do anything to destroy the country because he will destroy his home. A man's home is sacrosanct and from the legal point of view, it is often referred to as his castle. This scheme of lending is one which is going to help many, many Caymanians and it will hurt the Opposition, which is one of the reasons why there is so much objection to this mortgage lending scheme.

Madam Speaker, it is a myth that only one private company is going to be lending money to the public. It is a myth that homes will only come from whatever Cayman Affordable Housing or whatever company is holding it and trading as Frank Hall Homes. The Motion that there is now a move to stop is going to help people in Cayman Brac, I want to make that clear: Many, many people in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are going to be assisted by this scheme. It is not as if it is just a Grand Cayman scheme.

The first recital of the Motion, states: “WHEREAS on Monday, 19th July, 1993, the Standing Finance Committee approved, by a majority, a blanket guarantee of between 10 percent and 35 percent” and this is what makes the whole argument that the Member has put forward as to exclusivity null and void “to First Home Banking, the Bank of Butterfield, First Cayman Bank and a private company, Cayman Affordable Housing . . .”

Madam Speaker, anybody reading this immediately realises that it is not exclusive to Cayman Affordable Housing. There are already three banks, and he knows that there is a fourth bank. Any bank that has money to lend can lend it. But when this went out, as I understand it, these four banks came forward.

If it was as simple as a young couple borrowing $100,000 or $80,000 for a home and they could all get it, then I could see where their argument may have some credibility. But a young couple cannot go to commercial banks in this country when they are without a sufficient down payment or deposit of 20 percent to 30 percent. It is normally a one third rule that is applied—you put one-third down in land or money, then you can borrow the rest. But many of the banks are commercial banks, they borrow short and they lend short. In other words, saving deposits or current accounts are money short, so they cannot lend large sums for 20 years.

We are just lucky that we have found banks or companies that will risk lending this type of money. If it were not a risk, you would be able to get it very easily out there now over a period of 20 years. In other words, we are now getting long-term money, which has to be the way that money is lent when dealing with purchasing a home.

The first section of the Honourable Member's Motion destroys his argument. This is not exclusive to one bank. There are four banks involved. And I am sure if other banks come up with money they want to go ahead and lend out, then why not?

The other thing I would like to point out is that this Motion refers to “Cayman Affordable Housing.” The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has been talking about Cayman Affordable Housing, Limited. Now he has to decide which way he is going to go. Because his own Motion does not support what he is referring to as a limited liability company because “limited” is not in his Motion.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker. I would refer the Chair to the fact that in the Minutes of the Finance Committee it says that “separate undertakings have been given by Cayman Affordable Housing (the Company), First Home Banking, First Cayman Bank and the Bank of Butterfield (the Banks)” and I quoted from the newspaper which...

The Speaker: Honourable Member, that is not a Point of Order. You can clear this up in your winding up debate please. You are now entering into a debate. Thank you.

Would you continue Honourable Member for Education and Aviation?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. What I am saying is that the first part of the Motion clearly refers to Cayman Affordable Housing,—on many occasions the Member talked about “Cayman Affordable Housing, Limited.” I would just like to point out, once again, what I see as an error, the same as this first paragraph which shows that there is no exclusivity in relation to who wants to lend the money.

Madam Speaker, the second Whereas clause says: “AND WHEREAS this type of guarantee is the first of its kind ever undertaken by Government . . .” Government has given guarantees prior to this for many, many things, including schemes for the lending of money on mortgages. In 1988, for example, under Note 10 on page 46 of the Report of the Accountant General and Accounts of the Government for the Year Ending 31st December, 1988: "4. Guarantee for Loans of $5 million for Housing Development Corporation." This is nothing that has not happened in the past. But I will tell you where the difference is: That was money that was 100 percent lent and 100 percent guaranteed by Government.

I will show where in the next recital there is a further error. This money is 35 percent maximum of the upper part of the loan. In other words, Government is not as much at risk now as when it lent money through the Housing Development Corporation. It is more than 65 percent better off because we are only guaranteeing the upper layer of the loans. So, say the loan is $100,000—once the first 35 percent of that ($35,000) is paid, Government's guarantee ceases. Then the bank or the lender, whoever it may be, has the balance of the liability. That has to be a much better position than guaranteeing the whole loan.

So, what we have here is a combination of Government lending some assistance on a limited basis to private banking institutions (and all of the lending will be from private banking institutions, as I understand it), and Commercial Banks as they are stated here—First Home Banking, Bank of Butterfield, and First Cayman Bank. We are now being told that this is the first time we have given guarantees.

Madam Speaker, if you look at the Report of the Accountant General, for example, in that year alone there was a guarantee of $2.5 million for Caribbean Utilities Company; $14 million for Cayman Airways 727s; $350,000 to the Port Authority [page 46]. So Government has been guaranteeing loans, including loans where the money is lent for housing, in the past.

We are at a stage where the Government itself does not have the amount of mortgage money to lend that this country needs. Government should not, in fact, have to be in any large scale lending business as the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is trying to make out. Those guarantees extend to Cayman Brac Power and Light. There are many that have benefited in the Sister Islands.

The next recital says, "AND WHEREAS the sum representative of a 35 percent guarantee is large and the results considerably speculative over which Government has no control. . ." Now the $5 million guarantee for the Housing Development Corporation was much larger, it was 100 percent. The results are no different from the results that could now be, except Government is better off. This time we know, at least I know as a person involved with banks that lend money, that normally people pay money in the beginning, that is why we put the guarantee on the upper layer. So Government is much better off because when the defaults occur (normally much further down the line), the property gets run-down and that sort of thing.

I come back to show that the way the Motion has started out, in itself, does not support some of the arguments that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is putting forward. He has stated that, "the details of the venture are minuscule and continue to be in comparison to the statement regarding the size of the envisaged project." Well this is a lot of words, once again, merely set up to be destructive.

I would like to see either Member opposing this venture go out there to 100 or 150 young people who are applying for these loans . . . and loans can be given whether they have land or not, in other words, a person can have their house built on their land or, I would think, even if a foundation is up and they want to borrow some money, they can go ahead and borrow it. I would like to see them stand there and tell them that they are coming here to try to bog this venture down in a Select Committee for another two years in an effort to try to, perhaps, increase their votes at the next election by saying the Government has not carried out what it had stated in its Manifesto.

Madam Speaker, there are several safeguards on the public's funds with the guarantee, and that is what the next recital says. I quote: "AND WHEREAS the Legislative Assembly in Session has not to date been informed in comprehensive written legal form of exactly how the liability on public funds is to be applied and what safeguards of the people's money are provided."

With the amount of confusion that the Mover of this Motion has created, at least in my mind, and probably the public's at this stage, I do not think comprehensive and obviously complicated written legal opinion is really going to help the situation at this stage. But the thing about this is that these are loans that are being lent under usual borrowing arrangements and borrowing guidelines with some amendments to them. This is a loan that is being done by a bank that has a considerable risk also in the lending of the money. It is not as it was with the Housing Development Corporation when Government stood the only risk.

There will be far better guidelines in my view, relating to the lending, to ensure that people are in a position to pay it back. Let us make that very clear. The loans are being lent on the basis that people will be in a position to pay them back. It is not as if money is being handed out with no hope of getting it back.

The fifth recital was perhaps meant to be negative, and I quote, "AND WHEREAS the Government guarantee for the purpose stated will allow expenditure to be incurred which will financially affect the lives of citizens of the Cayman Islands." Of course it will. The people who are borrowing the money will be much better off. They will be safe in their homes and we will have a much happier society.

By the way, Madam Speaker, if the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman believes that, notwithstanding when the Housing Development Corporation was set up, there was a lot of hope for that to fill this gap. But if that Honourable Member asks around he will see that it has not adequately filled this gap and there are a lot of people out there who need to borrow these funds to get a home for themselves and their children.

As I understand the situation the recital that states that, and I quote: “AND WHEREAS no definite requirements or standards for the project, nor legal protection for the individuals who might become borrowers, have been published by Government. . .” Obviously, Madam Speaker, one of the requirements will be that they have planning. So that is one standard which the banks will have to ensure that they look at the credit risk that is involved with each homeowner.

The loans will be guaranteed as to the upper layer only, as I mentioned before. That is one of the requirements. We have to remember that the banks have 65 percent of the risk, Government has the other 35 percent. Therefore, the banks are going to look out for themselves and ensure that they protect the people in that they do not let them borrow sums from the beginning that they are not capable of paying back.

Now, let me say this, Madam Speaker, not everyone in the Cayman Islands will qualify for loan. Let us not be in any way misled by that. There are people whose income may be so low that they may not be able to repay some of the smaller loans. And those are instances where, in due course (and it is a much smaller amount of people than people in the bracket that we are now talking about, it is a much smaller percentage of it), they will have to be catered for in another way. So this is really aimed at a very large section of people in Grand Cayman, many of them young couples (with maybe one child) who cannot get a loan, and Government is going to assist them in getting it.

But I do not think that the approach that has been put out by the Mover of this Motion—that many people are going to be a bad risk to Government—is the case. I think that many of these people are very hard working but they need some help to get beyond having to put up that first one-third deposit or down-payment so that they can get the loan put in place. The banks will scrutinise, naturally, what the loan is going to purchase or build. So I think that you will find that they are not going to lend $80,000, for example, and find out that the home that is going to be purchased is only worth $50,000, because that is a loss to them. That is not only Government that is at a risk, that is not the way banks operates.

I think you have to assume that these are reputable clearing banks in the business of lending money and they are going to do things properly. You cannot assume that they are going to allow anything which otherwise they would not normally do. If you go to borrow money now for anything the bank is going to make sure that you are getting value for the money because it is their security—it is their money that is buying the property or building the house. So they would have to be stupid (and I know they are not) not to ensure that what is being done is sufficient and all the necessary protections are built in there.

The banks will ensure, for example, that the property, when purchased or built on, would be unencumbered, would have no lien or mortgages on it, and they would also ensure that the registered owner has an absolute title to it. So everything that would normally be done with a banking loan, I think would be done in this case to protect the purchaser which would also protect the bank. I have just been reminded that there would also be insurance on the property. It would be insured against fire, perils, hurricane, etcetera.

I believe, subject to looking at this closer, that there is also life insurance to the extent of the loan. And that is many times standard so that if a purchaser dies there is a fund that would pay off the loan. So it is a standard banking transaction with all of the built-in checks and balances that are necessary. Also, the guarantee would normally have that, as a last resort, pursuit would be against the borrower—there is a public auction or a sale of the property in the event of default.

This transaction is a complicated one, and obviously has been made to appear even more complicated by this lengthy Motion and the lengthy opening by the Mover. Let me say there will have to be adjustments to different areas of it, like any other transaction. There may be some things that need to be amended or tightened down by the banks, but this will have to be look at I am sure.

So it is not as if we can just come here and say here is an eternity of details, it will never change. Minor areas of it may have to be changed or they may have to look at a borrower in certain circumstances from a subjective, rather than an objective, one. There may be an instance where they may feel that perhaps a guarantee of 20 percent may be all that is needed because the person may have a nice piece of land that can be thrown in to lessen the amount of the loan, but would increase the value of the security. There may be an instance where somebody is a bit financially stretched and they may have to say to them, ‘Look, you are buying a piece of land and we will lend you 3.5 percent of the 7.5 percent,’ whatever.

What I would also like to point out is if you have a guarantee by Government that is, say, 35 percent and someone is buying a home or a piece a land, Government immediately gets back 7.5 percent. Also, Government gets back one percent on the mortgage. So the guarantee is immediately reduced by 8.5 percent. A guarantee of 20 percent, in effect, is 12.5 percent. These are advantages that have to be looked at carefully. I hope that when the Mover of this Motion searches deep down, and he has sympathetic feelings for the people out there who would like to get these loans.

There is an area that I would like to move on to—

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: Honourable Member, it is now 4.30 will you be finished shortly?

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: No, Madam Speaker. I was going to go on to the provision for bad debts, etcetera.

The Speaker: Thank you. May I ask for a Motion for the adjournment of the House? The Honourable Member for Communications and Works.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.32 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 2 JUNE 1994.

EDITED
THURSDAY
2 JUNE, 1994
10.09 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable First Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly. Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town, question No. 52.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 52

No. 52. Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development what are the recommendations of the Legal Department regarding the non-payment of Customs duty by Cayman Cement Distributors Ltd.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Legal Department has recommended that for Customs valuation purposes the Customs Department should levy the standard freight charges applicable to container loads of dry cargo from Costa Rica to Grand Cayman.

The basic ocean freight rates (excluding handling and other charges) are now as follows: $850 for a 20 foot container, and $1,125 for a 40 foot container. The Managing Director of Cayman Cement Distributors Ltd. has been notified of this change which became effective on 1st March, 1994.

The Legal Department has further advised that the matter concerning freight rates requires further investigation and recommends that the situation be carefully monitored to ensure that tariffs provided by shipping companies are strictly observed.

Madam Speaker, because of the ongoing review of this matter, I would like to crave the indulgence of this Honourable House and, in particular the Honourable Member responsible for this question, not to ask me to disclose any further information on this subject at this time.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 53, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 53

No. 53. Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation if he would make a statement on "Strategic Planning" along the following lines: (i) Government's reasons for adopting this concept; (ii) its improvement of the present school system; (iii) its implications for the continuation of the Five Year Education Plan; and (iv) its affect on the development of the National Curriculum.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Government adopted the concept of Strategic Planning using the model developed by Cambridge Management Group because it allows the concentration of all efforts, resources, and energies towards a goal, as defined by the Mission of the Government School System, expressed through its objectives and carried out through accepted strategies which are developed into action plans.

The strategic Plan which has been embarked on and its attendant action plans will improve the present school system because a wide cross-section of educators and community members will be working to reach consensus on the kind of education system we want for our children, how this can be achieved, what resources are necessary to reach our goals, and who is responsible to see that the specific results necessary for our strategies to be implemented have been achieved.

The 1990 Education Review and the Draft 1991 Five Year Development Plan for Education as well as the report on the First National Education Conference are part of the data considered by the Education Planning Team in formulating the Mission objectives and strategies for the Government School System, and these documents will also be considered by the action teams in formulating the specific actions necessary for the strategies to be implemented.

It is Government's policy that a national curriculum for the school system will be developed. In March 1994, the Education Planning Team also selected the Development of a National Curriculum as one of its nine recommended strategies. There is a forty-member action team meeting at present to discuss how this strategy should be implemented.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say at what point in the Strategic Planning process will the development of the National Curriculum take place?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would just like to repeat the last part of the answer to the above question. The Education Planning team, in March 1994, selected the Development of a National Curriculum as one of its nine recommended strategies. There is a forty member action team meeting at present to discuss how this strategy should be implemented.

When that discussion is completed in the latter part of this year, possibly by August or September, then we will look at the question of implementation.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Minister say who comprises this Education Planning Team, are they teachers or educators or what?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, roughly speaking it is about a 50/50 split between the professionals, that is, practising teachers (not just teachers with Teacher's Certificates) and persons from the private sector such as, people drawn from the tourism industry, the building industry, the banking industry, the financial offshore section. It is a cross-section that should represent all of the strata and cross section of Cayman's society.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Minister say if this group of people is going to write this curriculum or will they simply gather the information and the writing of it will be in-house, or what is the situation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No, Madam Speaker. This is a planning period. The Action Teams will come up with a plan. The writing of the curriculum will be on the implementation side that the Honourable First Elected Member for Bodden Town referred to and it will come after the planning. Once the plan is in place we move on to implementation.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what the procedure will be in the instance where the findings of the Strategic Development Team differs from what the Five Year Education Plan calls for?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, that is an expression of opinion that I would rather not opine on at this stage.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 54, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 54

No. 54: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation what was the cost to Government of bringing in the facilitator (Dr. Cook) to hold the awareness sessions for the "Strategic Planning" exercise.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The cost to Government for bringing in Dr. Bill Cook to facilitate three Awareness Sessions for the Strategic Planning Exercise, January 12th through to the 14th, 1993, was $1,503.12.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is this an ongoing expense or does it mean that the facilitator probably will not have to return until later on in the exercise?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I guess the cheapness of this exercise probably surprised the Member. Dr. Cook will not come back until about October of this year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Certainly, any kind of advice that is only worth $1,000 does not surprise me. I wonder about the quality of the advice. I would like to ask the Honourable Minister who, in the absence of Dr. Cook, is responsible for the guidance of the exercise?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, we have five internal facilitators.

I would like to point out, however, that I am a Fellow of the British Institute of Management, and I understand management. That is one of the reasons why we do not have to spend very large sums of money importing people from abroad to advise this Government the way they did in the past.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Minister say if the implementation of the Strategic Planning Exercise is a patented exercise, and if the use of it here in the Cayman Islands is costing the Cayman Islands Government, and if it is involved with this Dr. Cook?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, whether it is patented or not I do not have the slightest clue. All I can say is that it is a very good, basic planning system. It is one that is participatory in its approach, that is, it allows the people who are involved, such as those in the private sector and the professional teachers to partake in the exercise. It is one, which in my view is very good, in that these policies are going to be coming from a group of some 300 people, which is a full cross-section of the society.

The principles are very sound and we are not paying anything to develop these principles, they have been used in other places. Anyone who understands management realises that participatory management is a sound principle.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: As a follow up, because I did not get the reply to the supplementary that I was trying to elicit. To use the term Strategic Planning and to set up that process or procedure, did it require approval by anybody such as Dr. Cook, or any other organisation, for the use of that particular terminology, process or whatever, in Cayman?

The Speaker: I am not going to allow any further questions on the planning exercise because the questions before us concern cost, and these questions should have been asked in question No. 53.

May we now move on to question No. 55, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

QUESTION NO. 55

No. 55. Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation if monthly charges have been instituted on taxis operating from the Gerrard Smith Airport.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I think the Honourable Member was really referring to the Gerrard Smith International Airport. We would not like the Brac residents to think that they do not have an international Airport. The answer is yes. Monthly charges at the rate of $30 per month have been instituted by the Civil Aviation Authority since February 1 1994.

The application of charges has been authorised for many years now, coincident with those at the Owen Roberts International Airport but were postponed because of the relatively low volume of traffic.

Traffic has increased by over 100 percent since 1980 while the number of cabs have remained the same.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Member say if the $30 charged in Cayman Brac is the same amount that is charged in Grand Cayman, noting that if the number of cabs in the Brac (which is a grand total of three) remained the same, if applying the same $30 there was considered just by the Aviation Authority?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, it is the same as in Grand Cayman and I will not express any opinion to what he has requested.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In many Laws in the Cayman Islands there is a prorated charge for the costs or fees in Cayman Brac. Would the Honourable Minister give any consideration, as Minister and as Chairman of the Civil Aviation Authority, to prorating the charges in Cayman Brac?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I am happy to refer any relevant matter back to the Civil Aviation Authority. In this instance, if the Member wishes, I will refer it there.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, may I ask the Honourable Minister if he will undertake a complete review not only of the charges, but also the manner in which the small amount of traffic is parcelled out since there have been so many complaints from Cayman Brac over the last nine years concerning this matter.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker, I am very happy to do that and I think the Member has a point and we should look at this. I would also like to say that the Civil Aviation Authority meets from time to time with the taxis and tour buses [operators] and reviews the ongoing relationship relating to the picking up of passengers at the Airport. It is an area that is very controversial and I think, constant review is needed and we do attempt to do so as far as possible.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 56 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 56

No. 56. Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation if Government, through the Treasury or otherwise, offers any accounting assistance to Cayman Airways Limited.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There is no formal structure through which the Government involves itself in the financial accounting process within Cayman Airways. However, as part of the re-capitalisation of the Airline, the Treasury seconded a qualified accountant to the National Carrier. In addition, the Financial Reports of Cayman Airways are submitted to the Airline Board for scrutiny on a monthly basis. These monthly Financial Reports are also copied to the Minister for Education and Aviation and also to the Honourable Financial Secretary.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Minister say whether the Government is paying this qualified accountant, who has been seconded to Cayman Airways, or is Cayman Airways paying the individual, and if he has any special qualifications in the business of airline accounts and financing?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, he is paid by Cayman Airways. He is a qualified accountant and that is all I can really say.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 57, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 57

No. 57. Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation if Government paid for air transportation for Dr. Pat Tillotson, guest speaker at the Teachers' Seminar held in the latter part of 1993.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Government did pay the transportation costs for Dr. Pat Tillotson, the Keynote Speaker at the National Education Conference in November. However, because of the circumstances which made it necessary for Dr. Tillotson to be flown to the Cayman Islands by private jet on the morning of November 16th, her employer, Dr. Bill Cook of Cambridge Management Group, waived Dr. Tillotson's speaking fee of $3,000. The cost of the jet was US$3,955.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Just for the sake of clarity, is the Minister saying that the guest speaker was flown in by jet for $3,955 for that opening occasion?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, what I am saying is that her coming by jet did not cost us any more, because her fee for speaking was waived. We paid no more money, notwithstanding the problems she had in getting here.

I would like to point out, Madam Speaker, that I was highly commended by one of the Opposition Members in relation to the seminar.

[Members' laughter]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I seem to have touched a sore spot—it was a very successful seminar that did not cost us, in my view, any more than it would have cost if she had flown in by a normal flight.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if the cost of Dr. Tillotson arriving on a regular commercial flight would have been less than being flown in by private jet, even if the $3,000 speaker's fee was charged?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the cost of paying her fee and bringing her in by the commercial flight plus hotel bills (if she had come the following day), could possibly have been more than we paid in this instance. Yes, it cost more to bring her by jet than it did to bring her in by commercial airline. But because we did not pay for hotel accommodation, and because she waived a fee of $3,000, I think we probably came out better financially than we would have had she come the next day.

Once again, Madam Speaker, this is a very small amount of money compared to the large amounts spent in the past for specialists.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Minister tell the House whether with this arrangement with the private jet she was then flown in and flown out the same day and did not occupy any hotel or stay around after her speech?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No, Madam Speaker, she went back out on the normal airline flight, it was not by private jet.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 58, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 58

No. 58. Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning if the Government presently has in place a mechanism by which water sold to the public is tested on a regular basis.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Yes, the Department of Environment conducts Island-wide surveillance of all piped water supplies. An average of 30 samples are collected weekly from restaurants, schools, day-care centres and public buildings. Additionally, samples are taken from various points along the pipelines, and reservoirs of both suppliers are checked regularly.

All samples are analysed for bacteria and basic chemical contaminants.

The Speaker: The next question is 59, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 59

No. 59. Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture whether Government has considered implementing a uniform rate structure for the suppliers of potable water to the public.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Government considers it to be a reasonable goal to have a uniform rate structure. However, reaching this goal is complicated by the fact that there are no local water quality standards regulated, therefore, the production costs for each supplier is different, with those suppliers producing to a higher standard experiencing higher costs.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Minister, having just said that there are no standards, would give an undertaking to develop these standards, bearing in mind that the rates for the West Bay Road area are the highest rates, and they were the first on the Island to be supplied. The rates for the George Town area and Bodden Town areas (supplied by the Water Authority) are the second highest, and the very last area to receive water supply, West Bay, is the lowest rate.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the rates for West Bay Road and West Bay are determined by a licence which was all cut and dried by the former administration. When the Honourable Member says "no quality," I think he needs to put in the words that I used—"no local standard,"—because water quality is presently regulated to the World Health Organisation's Standards, which have an upper limit of 500 parts per million of total dissolved solids.

The Cayman Water Company operates near this limit and their water is an acceptable potable quality according to the World Health Organisation, although at times we find that the water quality is poor. However, the Water Authority produces water at less than 200 parts per million and, therefore, this is better quality water and costs more to produce.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: A two tier supplementary, Madam Speaker. Is the Honourable Minister saying that the licences to distribute water on the West Bay Road and in the West Bay area encompass these individuals making their own rate structure, since it was cut and dry by the last administration? Secondly, is it really not amazing that the Water Authority produces a much better quality of water compared to the other private company, and that other private company is operating in such an inefficient manner that they have to charge higher rates?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I think the last part of the supplementary calls for an opinion, and I will not allow that. Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, in regard to the first part, yes it is a fact that the licence controls the price. What happens is that if they want to move forward or upward with their price/cost charged to the consumer, they must apply to Executive Council. The Executive Council has not yet allowed any increase.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: A final supplementary, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could give an undertaking to examine this situation with a view, wherever possible down the line, to having these rates organised in such a way that they are uniform? Simply because, notwithstanding what the Honourable Minister has explained, it does cast the wrong impression to the consumer that certain people in certain areas have to pay more and it is basically the same water that they are drinking.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I agree that the cost is high. But the licence, which as I said determines the cost, has a set price in it for 25 years, which was put in place by the former administration.

This Government can only refuse an increase and, in that regard, Cayman Water Company did receive a CPI increase in 1991, and 1992. The Water Authority rates have not increased since 1991, and we have not allowed them to increase since we took Office. We have not allowed the Cayman Water Company thus far to increase their rates either. So, as far as I am concerned, that is good stewardship on the part of this Administration.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 60, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 60

No. 60. Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture what security is in place at the Water Authority's reservoir at Red Gate.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The Authority has a duty operator on 24-hour call who regularly checks the Red Gate site in the evenings and over the weekends. In addition, all buildings and access points to the reservoirs are secured with locks. Streetlights and special floodlights have been installed to illuminate the compound after dark.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Following up on the answer the Honourable Minister just gave, the fact that the reservoirs are open directly to public access in some areas, might this not be considered dangerous? And should some kind of security not be in place at all times while operations are not going on, on the regular day-to-day basis?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I suppose that is reasonable to ask. However, he cannot complain about cost on one hand and then come and tell me that I must put more costs in place. If you improve the infrastructure what will happen then is rates will increase.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I well understand the Honourable Minister's dilemma. But I still wonder if the Minister does not consider safety over and above the increase that he is talking about?

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. The next Item is Other Business, Private Member's Motion No. 9/94. The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation continuing the debate.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 9/94

ESTABLISHMENT OF A SELECT COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE TO REVIEW, INTER ALIA, A GOVERNMENT BLANKET GUARANTEE FOR LOWER INCOME HOUSING

(Continuation of the debate thereon)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Private Member's Motion, which is geared at stopping the lending of mortgage money to people who would like to have their own homes for their families, is one which in my view cannot be supported by Government. I believe that the public wants this mortgage money to be lent.

The last section of the operative part is very clear: "THAT Government take no further action to commit public funds or incur public liabilities with any entity in relation to any low cost housing scheme until the discrepancies in the present situation have been reviewed by the Office of the Auditor General and a report made to the Legislative Assembly."

That, in effect, means that there will be no housing scheme, because by the time this matter gets into the Auditor's Report for next year and is dealt with, and by the time the Select Committee, which is very slow and usually very detailed, especially where the power to call for, as it states here, "input from relevant financial, legal entities and members of the public" rolls on, we are looking at several years. In the meantime there are young families out there who are suffering because of the Opposition's approach to stop what has to be one of the best things that has happened to young persons who are now renting and/or without homes.

Madam Speaker, the Government will make a provision for any liability under this guarantee as does a bank for bad and doubtful debts. This is not unusual. There will be some failures but it puts Government under practically no liability, as compared to actually lending the full 100 percent from Government's funds, or through the Housing Development Corporation guaranteed by Government.

We know the public is dissatisfied with the Housing Development Corporation because they were not able to get sufficient funds from them. Whether that reason could have included the fact that they did not have sufficient funds is, in my view, only the more justification why we should wherever possible let the private sector do private sector work rather than get Government involved in the process of lending funds to persons who can receive these loans from the private sector. The Housing Development Corporation is a Government body and the funds lent, as I showed yesterday, $500 million was guaranteed by Government.

The other aspect of it is where these four large reputable clearing banks will lend money to the public and we can get a substantial part to people who need homes under this scheme. That has got to be the best way to go. Anyone who does not understand that it is better to do a 35 percent guarantee of the upper layer of a loan rather than to directly lend that full amount of money is being blinded by their own opposition for the sake of opposition.

Madam Speaker, the scheme here will help many, many people. There are people out there with land suitable for a house to be built on. The scheme covers that. If there is a foundation or money is needed to substantially complete a house, money can be provided for that. But the criteria that will be laid down is that these persons will not be encouraged to borrow beyond their means. Which is what the Opposition seems to be trying to say—that because the scheme does not cover everyone, then it should be stopped and nobody should get any help. That is like the dog in the manger where he is not prepared to have the milk but does not want anyone else to get it. So it remains out there.

People will hurt, and hurt badly. The people that will hurt are mainly the young couples in this country. Not necessarily young couples, young people, because it can be lent to single people who would become much more financially stable, more satisfied, and be much better citizens able to be in their own home with the help of the Government.

I cannot over stress that, from the Government's point of view, once the first payment is made on the mortgage, Government's guarantee begins to reduce. For example as soon as 35 percent of the principal is repaid Government's guarantee ceases. Then the bank has the full liability for the loan. But at that stage they are fully secured. If, for example, the financing is 100 percent where the person could not make a deposit but they have a good job—which many young people do, they may not have savings but they are good stable citizens—then 100 percent would be lent. On a $100,000 loan, after the first $10,000 is paid Government's guarantee is only $25,000. When they pay $35,000 Government's guarantee falls away.

As I pointed out yesterday, this Motion is so erroneous in so many of the Whereas clauses. I can see why the Opposition Mover of this Motion had to be confused. What is put out here is, in my view, going to further confuse the public and perhaps may even attempt to confuse Members of the House.

This scheme is a simple one. It is going to allow persons who can afford to repay a loan to get a house within the means their income can support. It is not going to encourage them to live beyond their means. That, therefore, means that it will not cover everyone out there. There are people out there that the Government will have to look at in a different way but it is a much smaller group of people. So it is better to get the larger group granted loans now, than to stop everything and hurt the majority of people out there in an effort to gain votes and to bog this venture down in a Select Committee of the whole House with a full hearing mechanism as has been set up in the Motion.

The thing that I do not understand is that if the Opposition with this Motion is saying stop this, where is their alternative to help the people who are going to benefit under this scheme? They say that it is exclusive to one company. That is nonsense! The Motion itself has set out that there are four large reputable Commercial Banks involved and they will deal with whomever they wish to deal with.

The position as I see it, is that the Opposition has put forward nothing. In fact, no Government in the past, including the time when I was in Government, has been able to get funding for persons in the middle and upper-lower income bracket (depending upon how that is defined) from institutions who would lend that money for a period of 20 years as a long-term loan at a reasonable rate of interest, who would do so up to the extent of 100 percent in certain instances. This has been the ideal of every Government and I commend the Honourable Minister who has put this forward.

To be very frank, it is something that I did not expect to see achieved to this extent, because some $20 million I understand will be committed for this scheme. The normal commercial bank borrows short and therefore cannot lend long. There must be a matching of funds. If people put in their deposits for one year, they cannot lend the money out for 20 years except on a very limited basis. We are indeed very lucky to have the banks that are participating in this venture to this extent.

Several of them have substantial funds abroad where they will be able to draw long-term funds, perhaps from savings and loans that they have over there. But the important aspect of this is that this has never been put together except on a very limited basis. All banks, and there are some mortgage companies now, will lend funds but we are looking at small amounts of money that they had to commit in total.

This is the first time that we have seen a substantial commitment to ease the housing problems that this country is seeing and to make safe and secure the youth of this country both in Cayman Brac as well as Grand Cayman. I want to point that out, this is very much a scheme for Cayman Brac, despite the fact that there may be attempts to make it out to be otherwise. The people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will be hurt if this scheme is stopped, and they will be hurt badly.

Madam Speaker, many people are out there paying rent who could be in their own homes making payments in much better circumstances than they are at present. It is like the stupidity of spending your life renting a house, or a car, and never owning it. That does not make for stable citizens—the family is kicked from pillar to post in and out of rental facilities, and this, in my view, will be one of the most stabilising situation that this country has seen.

My challenge to the Opposition Members (I guess it will be three persons) is this: When you stop this scheme, what do you have as a better alternative? The Members who are opposing this better think very hard because if this is foiled up at this stage there are going to be a lot of very unhappy voters out there and many of them in the younger generation that we are in here trying to say we must help.

My plea to the Members is be reasonable. Forget politics. Forget about hurting the youth of this country. Try to help the Government put forward positive measures such as this that will stabilise the country and put people in homes, making them the most stable persons any society can have. It will stop the misery of persons who are paying rent, many times as high as they would pay under this mortgage scheme, because the funds are just not available without the Government's guarantee.

If they have no alternative, then they should not be destructive for the sake of politics and hurt the youths and people of this country who would like to have a home.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden : Madam Speaker, the Motion before the Legislative Assembly contains fears which are non-existent. Fears are lurking in the Motion which do not exist in the scheme. For example, the greatest fear in the Motion is that there will be no requirements or standards for the scheme. If this were true, this would be a genuine reason for concern. Fortunately, this is not so.

There are standards by which these loans will be governed. The standards will be set by the banks or other lending institutions. These standards will be the same standards that have been applied to mortgages for more than 100 years—tested and proven over the years.

The way that I understand this scheme is that the Government will guarantee a certain portion of the mortgage if the bank has agreed to lend the money. The bank would have checked on the credit worthiness of the client—his financial ability to repay. The banks or the lending institutions would have made certain that insurance is in place in case the home is destroyed before the mortgage is complete, and perhaps even that life insurance is in place in case the borrower should die during the 20 year period of the loan.

These standards will be stringent because we know the policy of the banks operating in these islands. They do not like to lend money to local people. They prefer to lend money to those who step off the plane, as I have said many times before, wearing a necktie and carrying a cardboard briefcase. These are their preferred customers. I understand that they have recently added the criterion of being a crook. But they do lend some money to local people as a last resort so that they can say, "So-and-so has a loan from us." Although I do not know the figures, I believe it is only one in 10, or maybe even less, local young people who qualify for loans that actually receive loans from the banks. So, under this scheme, it is my belief that even where the banks pre-qualify people for loans, not all of them will receive the mortgages.

The second largest fear which—I like to use the word "lurks"—lurks in this Motion is that there is no legal protection for the individual. This has to be nonsense. There is legal protection for the individual once the mortgage deed is signed. The mortgage document protects not only the lender, but the borrower. For example, the lender is forced under the mortgage, to lend the money because the borrower is holding a contract, a legal contract, upon which he can sue. So, the lender is forced to lend the money, there are clauses in the document under which the lender cannot call for the money as he likes, providing the borrower keeps up his side of the bargain. The lender is protected in that the borrower must make his payments on time, must keep up his insurance, and so on. But there is in that document, contrary to what the Motion says, legal protection for the borrower.

So, despite the fact that the Government itself may not have published (and I do not know that they have not published it) legal protection for the individual, the individual would be protected by his individual mortgage contract.

I believe this Motion has given the scheme a black eye. Even if the Motion is defeated, the scheme will suffer. I say this primarily because 11 years ago, when the Housing Authority Law was passed, there were two former members of the House (one from West Bay and one from George Town) who voted against the Housing Authority Law for very flimsy excuses. They managed to convey to the public that this Housing Authority was such an evil monster. They succeeded in giving the Housing Authority a black eye.

I am convinced that the better approach to this matter would have been for Members to have gone to the Honourable Minister and pointed out to him the weaknesses in this scheme. Try to help him find remedies for them and at the same time try to sell the project on the merits of what it would do for those in need.

I do not believe that the Select Committee, which is proposed in the Motion, is the proper route to go. It is true that I believe all the Private Member's Motions here, or the majority of them, are asking for matters to be referred to Select Committees. But, those matters, and those other Motions (and I am not anticipating them) do not have the urgency that this particular housing Motion has.

This housing scheme is something that should not be delayed, if possible. It should be dealt with as quickly as possible. The very fact that a few banks, and I say a few because there are many banks here, are willing to participate, Government should move forward to take advantage of their generosity before some of the other banks try to influence them otherwise.

Anyone reading this Motion and listening to some of the debate would have second thoughts before entering into this scheme. This is the reason why I say this Motion will succeed in giving the scheme a black eye.

There is concern that the Minister has changed, or has indicated that some of the original proposals would be enhanced or upgraded. Why should anyone be afraid of that? This is a new scheme and it is being evolved, it is a process that is being tried, and if it is necessary to change any of the original ideas, I do not see anything evil in that. I agree with some of the changes. For example, a person cannot build a fairly good-sized three-bedroom house for less than $100,000. It just cannot be done with the cost of labour and the cost of materials here today. So it is only reasonable to expect that the Minister will, from time to time, have to change some of the original proposals. In fact, I would not be surprised if he comes with additional changes.

Yesterday the Minister for Education mentioned Government's involvement with the Housing Authority and how Government had put $5 million into it, but there are other schemes as well. For example, every year for many years now, we have set aside money in the Budget for civil servants to borrow for housing—either to build houses or to improve their existing houses. It is my understanding that the civil servants have taken advantage of it and it has worked well. Also, under the Social Services there is a small vote where poor people can get money for toilet facilities and other necessary improvements to their homes. So Government has been actively involved in housing over the last 11 years, starting with the Housing Authority and the Civil Service Scheme and the Social Services Improvements.

But, what Government can do under those schemes is limited by the constraints of the Budget. Here is a project where Government can do more by a contingent liability than it can actually do by finding the cash. According to the scheme, the Government will guarantee anything from 10 percent to 35 percent of the mortgage. It is very important (although this has been mentioned before) that we emphasise that the Government's guarantee is the first 10 percent or the first 35 percent, whatever percentage there is in between. In other words, the Government is better off than the banks if there is default on the loan.

What would happen if a person borrowed $100,000 and the Government had guaranteed 15 percent? It means that once 15 percent of the liability guaranteed by the Government has been repaid, the Government would be off the hook and the banks would then have to worry about the other 85 percent.

We know from experience that very few people get into trouble with repayments in the early months or the early years of a loan. People go out, get mortgages and loans when things are rosy, when it looks as if things are going well for them and it looks like they will be able to comfortably repay the money. Of course, it sometimes happens that certain contingencies catch up with them. They run into bad luck. One of the spouses, whose income had been available, becomes sick or maybe leaves the matrimonial home. There may be unexpected expenses with children (there is no end to the things that can happen), and the person who started out in a pretty sound financial position well able to pay a mortgage, may find himself a few months or years down the line in very strained circumstances.

This happens all the time. I believe that under the scheme there will be times when there will be bad debts, there will be occasions when the Government will be called upon to put its money where we are now putting our mouths. There will be times when the Government will have to fork up a part of the guarantee that it has made.

But, do not forget that we are dealing with a mortgage where there is always something to salvage. The person has built a home and, five or six years down the line, they find themselves unable to continue the payment, the home is there. The mortgage document said that the Government or the bank could foreclose on that home and recover their money.

Although we do have a small percentage of foreclosures here, I am a firm believer, and I know that Caymanians take pride in owning their homes. I still have faith that the majority of them believe in owning a home, particularly during the first few years when it is beautiful and shiny and clean, they will go all out to find the money to keep that home.

So, where is the risk that we are so concerned about? Everybody knows the story of real estate in the Cayman Islands. How many properties, how much land has depreciated here over the last 30 years? In all probability, at the end of the 20-year period, when the mortgage has been exhausted, the property as it stands will probably be worth much more than the person paid for it. Of course, there are instances where the property might be worth less.

The Mover expressed concern over a certain company and the Minister who introduced the scheme has been taken to task for dealing with, or talking about, Cayman Affordable Homes. In the article to which the Mover referred, Mr. Heber Arch seemed to have cleared up this matter once and for all. And I would like to quote the entire paragraph from the Caymanian Compass of 9 May 1994, so that there may be a full understanding of what is meant by Cayman Affordable Homes.

“In the same interview, Mr. Heber Arch said that Cayman Affordable Homes Ltd., the company mentioned by Mr. Bush, does not exist as a legal entity. ‘The agreement will be with Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Ltd,’ he said. He explained the apparent mistake by saying that Frank Hall Homes would trade under the name Cayman Affordable Homes for the purpose of the scheme.”

I want to make two comments on that. One is that the Minister has indicated that the agreement will not be with Frank Hall Homes as mentioned in this, and will, rather, be with the individual banks. The other matter is that Cayman Affordable Homes is the trade name applied to this particular project by Frank Hall Homes. In other words, if they do any business at all under this scheme, it would be done under that name to keep it, I would imagine, separate from their other business. But in his opening, the Minister did a pretty good job in clearing up any fears that may be lurking in the Motion about that.

The Mover of the Motion seemed to have made a lot of the fact that the Finance Committee was not complete at the time that they dealt with the guarantee. That is true, because I was absent, my colleague from Bodden Town, Mr. Roy Bodden, was absent, and two other members were absent. But, for business purposes, the Finance Committee was complete. Once a quorum was present (and the quorum was nine and there were 11 Members present) the Finance Committee was complete. They had a full quorum.

There is also this fact: No business is void simply because a Member is absent. If you have your quorum (and your Finance Committee is properly constituted when it has a quorum) all the business done is legitimate. I cannot think of many meetings where every Member has been present for every item of business. It is never intended that it should be, that is why we have a quorum—so that the House and the Finance Committee can function despite the fact that a particular Member, or Members, may be absent.

The Mover did make one valid point when he said that the scheme is not a low-income scheme. If you are going to get this kind of mortgage, you would not be able to repay if you found yourself in the very bottom of the scale and perhaps even higher up you may not be able to comfortably meet the payments which would be required. But I cannot really subscribe to the fact that low income is a misnomer. The person needs help and if the person were wealthy, the person would not need help for this type of mortgage.

What this scheme is doing is removing the biggest stumbling block to mortgages in this country. What prevents a young couple, say in their early 20s, from getting a mortgage is the fact that they cannot come up with the down payment—the $30,000 or $40,000. The banks know they cannot raise that and they ask them to find if they want the bank to lend them the rest of the money.

So, if I did not congratulate the Honourable Minister on any other part of this wonderful scheme that he is putting forward, I would certainly congratulate him on removing the stumbling block of that initial down payment.

Many times I have seen friends of mine, and other people not so well known, with land running out of their ears, with collateral so vast that it runs into the millions, unable to get a loan from the bank. Why? Because they do not have cash. In business, cash is king. Credit may be the queen, but cash is king. If you do not have it, you need not go looking to the banks. If you have it, then you can go and get $9 million to go and buy a hotel or whatever else you need. But, if you do not have a certain amount of cash, you cannot do business.

While my friend, the Minister for Housing, and I may not have a degree in economics or banking, or any other fiduciary institution, we do understand the practicality of getting a mortgage and doing business. That means that you must have cash. The old people used to talk about “cash on the barrelhead.” You have to put it up or you cannot do business.

So, this scheme has much to commend it. If I wanted to find fault with it, I could talk until tomorrow because no scheme is perfect. Also, if I wanted to praise it I could talk until tomorrow too. But, be that as it may, I believe the Government has started out on the right foot.

It is true that the Housing Authority fills a different need. I believe that once this scheme goes into operation we will find that other banks will be anxious to participate in it and, as far as I am concerned, I would welcome their help.

I think it is time that I take a look at the Motion. The last resolve in the Motion asks that: “the Select Committee seek input from relevant financial and legal entities as well as members of the public.”

Now, if we want to kill this scheme, put it into a Select Committee. This House has been dealing with the Penal Code for more than a year. I remember the Select Committee that dealt with the Immigration Law. They were dealing with that for almost four years and hardly finished it in that time. I do not see any need for a Select Committee to tell us what everybody in the Cayman Islands knows—banks will not easily lend money to local people who are just coming up in the world. I am talking about young people (25 to 30) that have fairly decent jobs, who could well afford to pay $500 to $1,000 per month for a mortgage if the bank would give them one year's relief. With a little innovation like that, a lot of people could get their homes. But these things are never considered and a hard line is drawn.

But now, where the banks are willing to cooperate with the Government it may be possible for the individual to benefit and I feel that the Legislative Assembly, with all due respect to its Select Committees, should not retard the progress of this scheme. Perhaps if it goes to a Select Committee we may come up with a super scheme. Maybe five years down the line, the next Government will discard the project altogether.

One of the resolutions says, and I quote: “AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED that the matter of a blanket guarantee by Government aforementioned be referred to a Select Committee of the whole House for consideration and examination, and for it to formulate certain standards, requirements and guidelines for a lower income housing scheme for which Government will provide a blanket guarantee and which will invite all financial institutions and housing construction entities, which meet specified qualification, to participate in and bid for such business on a competitive basis . . .”

That resolution is well put together, but it has one flaw. I am asking what standards for mortgages—because this is what we are dealing with—can be formulated by a Select Committee of this House to equal the standards known to the banks or the trust companies for generations? So, how are we going to improve the mechanics of this process by putting it into a Select Committee?

I notice the Movers were careful not to say that they do not agree with the idea or with the concept. They seem to find fault only with the procedure.

The first resolution, which I have left until last to deal with, is really the worst of all because it asks that: “Government take no further action to commit public funds or incur public liability with any entity in relation to any low income housing scheme until the discrepancies in the present situation have been reviewed by the Office of the Auditor General and a report made to the Legislative Assembly.”

I know that the Minister for Education dealt at great length with this, and I do not intend to repeat what he said or go into much detail, but that is a killer clause. That would put an end to this scheme, because after the Select Committee has completed its sitting, and after the matter has been reviewed by the office of the Auditor General, and after the report to the Legislative Assembly, I wonder where we would be time-wise. Would it be 1996? Or 1998? What guarantees are there that this review by Members of the Assembly (because they will make up the Select Committee, although they may call witnesses) will produce anything that can in any way make it easier or safer or better for any person out there to procure a mortgage?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, if you will not be finished in a few minutes, may we take the suspension at this time?

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: I will be glad to finish my speech at this time, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Please do.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: I would like to say that I feel this scheme has been needed for a long time and I would like to congratulate the Minister for Housing who put it forward, because I believe the Housing Scheme is a worthy one. I cannot support the Motion that is before the House.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED 11.45 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.11 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.
The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is an established fact that all Members in this Honourable House, including those of us whom the Government associates with opposing much of what they bring, would like to see a scheme of affordable housing realised in this country. That hope has been stated at one time or another by each and every Member of this Honourable House.

It is my understanding that the primary reason this Motion is before the House at this time is to bring to the Government's attention the fact that there are two many inconsistencies. There is too much in the proposal that needs to be further ironed out.

There can be no more convincing evidence of that than the fact that certainly in my case since Monday, four young persons came up to me expressing confusion, including two young persons who claimed they had paid a deposit of $2,500, and were at a loss as to what to do next. They had gone to persons representing Frank Hall Homes Limited and were spun around in circles. They went to the bank only to be told that they should not have paid a deposit as yet because there were still things to be ironed out.

Madam Speaker, such is the level of confusion and mystification that surrounds this proposal. So the Motion, contrary to what the Minister for Education and Aviation in his inimitable and mesmerising style was trying to say, is not designed to stop any Caymanian from benefiting but is designed to protect those deserving persons who would patronise the scheme, and also to protect the Government.

Madam Speaker, let me avail myself of this opportunity to say that it is the job of those of us who set ourselves up as monitors, whether we want to be called "Opposition" or "Backbenchers" or whatever, to ensure that when the Government comes with policies, particularly policies which are going to affect our constituents, that they are sound and clearly thought out. Let me say that our job is to be the buffer between the Government and the people.

In this case we are saying that this scheme, for all of its good intentions, is not sufficiently clear or thought-out so as to provide the benefit that the Minister and the Government is purporting that it is going to provide. Madam Speaker, if nothing is done, it is going to wind up in a mess that is going to need a Hercules to clear up.

The Minister for Education and Aviation remarked that the public was dissatisfied with the Housing Development Corporation. That is true. But he did not say why the public was dissatisfied with the Housing Development Corporation. There were many frustrations and, to my mind, there were many improvements that could have been made to the functioning of the Housing Development Corporation had the Government been interested. It seems to me that it was the design of the Government to strangle the Housing Development Corporation in order to promote this new scheme.

The Minister also remarked that Government would make provision for liabilities in the case of bad loans—and there will be, no matter how good the scheme. But what the Government has not said to this point is what those provisions are. Are we now going to have a system that when the people believe they have a glimmer of hope in achieving a house or an apartment, when they run into difficulties they lose that glimmer of hope and the property is foreclosed and the dream vanishes? I cautioned, as I cautioned previously, the worst thing that can happen is for the Government to allow itself to be placed in a position where it has to displace people—where the Government has to throw people out of houses and apartments.

Hence, Madam Speaker, I am not comfortable with the proposal as it is. I say, for all those people who claim to have membership in the British Institute of Management and in all those other highfalutin institutes, the concept was not sufficiently clear. I would certainly expect someone who professes to have such immaculate qualifications in banking, and so many years' experience, to have drawn on what I understand to be the principles of commercial lending institutions and apply those to this system. I find the suggestion that the Opposition does not want to see young Caymanians in their own homes, ludicrous.

Regarding the threat that there are a lot of young people who stand to benefit from this scheme and many votes could be lost to the Opposition, the truth has to be spoken whether it cost votes or not. I believe this Motion was based on the principle that there are persons here who are convinced that this scheme, if allowed to go ahead, is going to be more detrimental than it would be beneficial.

Madam Speaker, one need look no further for proof of that than in the positions taken from the inception—from the announcement at the Finance Committee, to the press conference, and up until this present point. What started out as an announcement by the Minister that clients will be provided with 100 percent financing with a maximum level of $80,000 (including Stamp Duty and transfer fees being dealt with in exceptional circumstances), has now moved to the point where the upper layer is now $125,000—a clear 56 percent higher than what was mentioned at the beginning. That, in itself, tells me that there is no precise plan by the Government as to how this thing will function.

There is another significant point, one which I think bears emphasis. Sometimes we hear of Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, as being the provider of the mortgages. Other times we hear that Cayman Affordable Homes Limited, is trading under that name. While I am not a lawyer, if you are giving guarantees and if you are lending mortgages it seems to me that you cannot be Roy Bodden and John Bodden. You must either be Roy Bodden or John Bodden. So it cannot be that in one instance it is Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, and in the other instance it is Cayman Affordable Homes. Which is it? This is adding to the confusion.

I have learned from prospective clients that they have gone to these people purporting to offer these mortgage schemes and in their application stated that they already had a lot of land, only to be told that they must go and sell their land and come and buy an apartment at Silver Oaks, or buy a house in Newlands. So, Madam Speaker, we need to get this business cleared up. Is Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, or Cayman Affordable Homes, or whatever name it is trading under, in the business of first divesting itself of apartments and houses currently on line before helping those persons who currently have land? That, Madam Speaker, is the situation as I have been reliably informed.

I am saying if this is the case then if our people are not being misled, they are being sent around in circles and being made fools of and we have to hold the Minister responsible and accountable. The principals need to elaborate, explain and express it once and for all. Is it the aim of this entity to divest itself of these properties before going on to help those people who already have their land? Madam Speaker, if that is the case, then I have to ask, was this scheme concocted because this entity had houses and apartments which they could not otherwise divest themselves of? Is that the reason why this scheme was not put out for tender so that other people who, as I have heard the Mover of the Motion say, were and are engaged in providing this type of housing? Why were these people not invited to tender?

On the way home every day, Madam Speaker, in the middle of what is called the Spotts Road, I see a sign by a developer announcing 100 percent mortgage financing. Why were these kinds of people not encouraged to tender?

Madam Speaker, this whole business reminds me of one of Aesop's Fables that goes: "A mountain was in labour. All the world stood agog. At long last it produced a mouse." I hope, Madam Speaker, this is not the case.

I heard the Minister for Education and Aviation emphasising and re-emphasising in his chiding of the Mover of the Motion, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac, that Cayman Brac is going to benefit. Well, if Cayman Brac is going to benefit when will the development start in the Brac? I did not hear of any plans to start one of these schemes in the Brac. Certainly, Cayman Bracers will benefit by buying apartments and houses here. But I got the distinct impression from the Minister of Education that there were plans to put up one of these developments in Cayman Brac. I look forward to hearing of the development in Cayman Brac.

Madam Speaker, at the press conference held in May, when the whole question of interest rates arose, the Minister was asked why the interest rates were not fixed and what was going to happen when interest rates rise, as we know they invariably do. The Minister gave a reply, something to the effect that the banks would not dare raise the interest rate. I wonder if the Minister has read page 2 of today's Caymanian Compass.

Madam Speaker, I believe that the Minister meant well in his attempt to provide housing to fill a need. But I believe that he is misguided and I have to wonder if he is not being used. I am asking the Honourable Minister to bear the time, while I can appreciate his enthusiasm and his need and urgency to be seen as meaning well and doing well, I ask him to please, in the interest of the country and the very persons whom he is purporting to help, take the time to do what this Motion asks so that we can get this scheme off on a proper and sound footing. What is there to be lost if we have to spend one year in a Select Committee? It is better to spend that year in a Select Committee and have all the parameters clearly ironed out so that there is no misunderstanding so that everyone—borrower and lender—is protected.

I would think that is a far better proposition than for us to be rushing head long into this thing and trying to solve the problems as we encounter them.

To the charge that the Opposition is trying to get political mileage by holding the scheme up, saying the plan did not go through . . . the Government should realise that if the plan goes through and it is not well thought out and many people lose their investment, they stand to lose more than any Opposition could by trying to sensibly suggest that the matter be deliberated before a Select Committee.

Madam Speaker, if all was Kosher, why were there no representatives from the banks they claimed are involved at that press conference? I have to say that I was rather surprised to see the Minister call a press conference to announce a big earth-shattering national housing scheme and the only resource person up there was the Minister who could not answer any of the questions that were asked.

Madam Speaker, if we had an unkind press, that Minister would be running for cover. That told me that there were some missing links to the puzzle. Those were not questions asked by Members of the Legislative Assembly. Those were questions asked by prospective borrowers that came away frustrated, confused, disappointed and let down.

Madam Speaker, history is the best teacher and while the role of Government in guaranteeing this money is commendable and to be touted, I have to draw from an experience in this country previously that had to do with Government and its relation with the people. Once upon a time, Madam Speaker, Government owned the Utility Company. It is interesting to note that one of the reasons why Government had to divest itself of the utility company was because people would not pay their utility bills. They said, this belongs to the Government, we are the Government so why should we pay the bill.

I wonder if any consideration has been given that the same situation might obtain in this case with the guarantee? The suggestion that any commercial banks would let the Government get an advantage over them by holding the top end of the guarantee and getting their money first, leaving the bank in a lurch, that is whistling in the dark. As sharp as the Government may be these banks are sharper and you can bet your bottom dollar they are not going into any agreement with Government, or any other entity, where they are seriously going to be disadvantaged. That is the reason why I believe to this point we only have mention of participating banks but nothing more concrete; no paper showing what the agreement is; no statement outlining what the agreement is. This is the reason why I believe that, conspicuous by their absence on the afternoon of the press conference, no bankers were there.

Madam Speaker, I suspect that if there are no obvious proper guidelines available, this system is going to operate on political patronage. That is dangerous. It is ill advised and will bring this country to no good. I do not care what is said by the Government. As a responsible person, I am prepared to support this Motion, because this Motion protects both ends of the deal—the investor and the Government, the top end and the people at the other end. It is the Government's responsibility to this country to see that this plan is properly developed before bringing it to the House.

I wonder what is going to happen, in spite of all the statistics and experiences that we have about people not running into trouble with their mortgages in the first few years, I wonder what would be the Government's position when they get a number of persons unable to meet their commitments. What will be their position when they cannot get their money? Are they going to write it off and let the people continue to occupy the premises? Will they throw them out with cold and callous disregard? The Government is not insulated in the way it should be in this scheme.

It strikes me that the developer is reaping an almost unfair advantage by not having to put up much, or any, risk. What is perhaps the greatest shortcoming is that this system which purports to be a low cost housing scheme is far from that and many people are disappointed because they cannot qualify, they cannot now meet the required payments.

If the Government is unable or incapable of putting together a system to deal with the middle income people, then how much greater is their failure when it comes to providing for those in the lower echelon. I say that the Minister should heed the Resolution in the Motion at hand. He should take this scheme back to the drawing board, he should harness the knowledge of the people who have experience in this kind of development. He should seize the opportunity to work in tandem with all Members of the Legislative Assembly and should throw political expediency out the window and come to the country with a plan that is not only saleable, but that is workable.

Madam Speaker, true to my stance, I am going to vote with the Motion in full cognisance that the people whom I represent are sensible enough to know that it is my responsibility, primarily, to buffer them against schemes like this, against hair-brained schemes that are not thought out, that will cost the country and the constituency and that are designed primarily to reap political expediency and political mileage. I shall vote against it and, Madam Speaker, the fears and threats of the Government do not move Roy Bodden, because the result of the last election showed that they needed me. I did not need them.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.15 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.17 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 9/94. [Pause] In view of the reluctance of Members to continue the debate I shall call on the Mover of the Motion... The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, thank you very much for your indulgence in this waiting game.

I have listened to what the Members supporting this resolution had to say. I must say that they certainly went to work with some vigour. It is a pity it was not positive. At times I had to wonder what they wanted and what were they talking about because, save for your guidance, Members (particularly the Mover) were bordering on serious contempt.

Before I get into the meat of the Motion and my reply to it, I want to deal with a few statements that were made. The Mover of the Motion started off his debate by attacking what he claimed was official falsehood, saying that there was no written documentation on the companies or proposed banks.

Madam Speaker, let me deal with, what I will be kind and call, the mischievousness on their part. Certainly, those institutions gave us documentation and we have that documentation. When the time is right, if, within the laws of this country that documentation can be made more public, I will do so. But for now, they will have to accept that they are dealing with a Government who is dealing with at least four other legal entities in this country—at least five, because there are four banks, and the company, Frank Hall Homes, who has used the trade name of Cayman Affordable Housing.

As I said, they gave us documentation before the matter could be taken to Executive Council, much less Finance Committee, because that is the process of Government. A matter is put to the Ministry, the Ministry deals with it, it takes it to Executive Council, and where there is spending concerned Executive Council must take it to Finance Committee.

The Mover asked the question whether the Financial Secretary or the Honourable Attorney General knew. Of course they knew—from day one. It is sad that their state of mind has taken them to such depths to believe that people who have been entrusted to lead the country at this level were coming to Finance Committee with a matter that was so vital, as they claim it is, for this country, without the involvement of the Attorney General or the Financial Secretary.

Of course they knew about it. The matter was taken to Executive Council as the procedure of Government requires. The matter could not, and I emphasise this, could not be taken to Finance Committee without going to Executive Council. It had to have the acknowledgement of the Honourable Financial Secretary and the Attorney General.

As to the name Frank Hall Homes, other Members have done a good job in clarifying that issue. But I said in the press conference that Cayman Affordable Homes was a trading name for Frank Hall Homes. All of us quite well understand that it is legal to use a trade name.

Now, Madam Speaker, they refer to the publication of the so-called interview mentioned by the Mover, and the truth is that my Permanent Secretary and I took the time to call the reporter and invite him to our office and explained to him what the relevant sections of the draft agreement said in regard to Frank Hall Homes, Cayman Affordable Homes.

It is nothing but downright dirty politics for those Members to come and try to put forward the position that all of this was happening without the knowledge of senior officials.

In their effort to belittle this Member, they have gone to that depth, in fact, to belittle Finance Committee because the matter was dealt with by Finance Committee. It is a pity that they, who claim they know so much, did not put all their expertise to good use when they had the opportunity to do so. Then, perhaps, this country would have been better off. But their actions here only highlight the bitter campaign of hate and spite they have been on since this Government took over.

Reference was made by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town regarding the press conference. In his usual style he belittled what I had to say at the press conference and he went on to say that I could not answer any of the questions that were put to me. He went on to further say that if we had an unkind press in the country I would have to run for cover.

I was there. What I was not prepared for were the kind of political questions that were asked by the Opposition in that conference. My Permanent Secretary was there and I had to refer to him many times, and most of the time for some of the other questions that were posed. But, in his usual style, he made little of what I was saying in the conference.

Madam Speaker, I do not have a copy of the press conference, or a copy of the report of the press conference with me, but I do not recall the newspapers paying so much credence to what they had to say. If what they had to say was so credible, why did the newspaper not carry it? Instead, the newspaper gave a pretty fair and accurate report of the press conference and, in turn, carried an editorial—a very positive editorial—about the press conference. We never heard anything about that. Oh no!

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town—who seems to have a dictionary under his tongue—likes to get up and play Dr. Einstein. Oh, if we could only tell what we believe some of them are worth, then all liabilities could be taken away from this country.

I am happy that the newspaper carried a fair report of my press conference.

[Inaudible interjection]

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: You hush! You will have your time, Mr. Mover of the Motion. You will have your time to answer. But when you are called upon to answer, you too—

The Speaker: Honourable Minister—

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: —will be found—

The Speaker: Honourable Minister—

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: —wanting in the balance.

The Speaker: Please address the Chair.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Yes, Madam Speaker, but...

The Speaker: No buts, please.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: No, no. I am only saying that they are the people who like to talk about other people interfering with them. They will have their chance.

I do not claim to be an Einstein. I do not claim to have a university education. How I got here was on the peoples' belief in my honesty. That is what I got here on, and the peoples' belief that what I do is in their best interest and having the backbone to get it done—to dare to stand out when others preferred to hide their light under a bushel.

They do not have to talk about hair-brain schemes. There were many hair-brain schemes in this country that they supported that have come to naught. I do not think that providing housing for the people that we are sent here to represent can be called a hair-brained scheme. No matter if that man is from Jamaica, from New York or the Cayman Islands, if that entity is legal and has the wherewithal to offer this country, then we can deal with them. I do not let politics, likes, or dislikes, hide my light under any kind of bushel.

Madam Speaker, that same Member for Bodden Town said that the scheme was concocted so that houses or apartments owned by Frank Hall Homes could be sold. I will get into more details later on, but if a person needs a home or an apartment and they qualify, what is wrong with dealing with that entity? They will have to make their arrangements with the bank. The bank is going to see that it is a sound proposition.

Now, he made this statement that Government had set upon a design to strangle the Housing Development Corporation. I am wondering what is so fabulous about that now when in 1981, or 1980, the Member criticised the administration at the time for not doing anything about it when they brought the Law in 1981. He was part and parcel with the group (maybe I was at the time too) [Members' Laughter] criticising the Housing Development Corporation. But I have not shifted my position about what they could or could not do. That is the difference.

If they want something to laugh about, let them laugh about that.

The position I held then, I hold today—that the Housing Development Corporation has not been equipped to deal with housing in this country the way it is needed because the Government cannot afford to put the millions of dollars into the Housing Development Corporation.

That was my problem then, and it is today. What is theirs? Politics? I know their politics, Madam Speaker. They cannot bore holes too small that I cannot see through it.

Upon looking at the tenure of their whole debate, not only in this resolution, but in the other one in September that they raised, they are hell-bent on destroying, or derailing the scheme. That is what they want. They do not want to help the poor persons who cannot help themselves. If that was so, those that are in housing today would have been prepared a long time ago, when they were selling houses for larger sums than is being proposed today. They would have done something about it. But they are not looking to help the little man on the street. They are looking at their pockets and how much can be made from it.

The truth is that I have nothing against any of the three persons that were named by them, that is, Mr. Hawkins, Mr. Rankine, or Mr. Hugo Zeiderent, who was named by virtue of his company by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. But none of those gentlemen have approached this Government to do anything about housing.

We have constantly said (and I do not know why they cannot get it through their heads) that this scheme is wide open for Tom, Dick and Harry, once they are credible people, once they qualify through the bank. We will look at them and deal with them accordingly. This is what we have constantly said. But they choose, in their efforts to castigate the Government, to say otherwise.

They do not want the scheme to go through. They do not want to see the type of people that we are trying to assist, whether it is middle or lower income groups, to get housing in this country. The tenure of their debate says so, and I will go back to the debate of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, who said, last September, and I quote:

“Permit me to digress for a moment, Madam Speaker. Banks, by their very nature, are conservative in these kinds of approaches. You know why they are conservative? Because they wish to protect not only their interests, but the interests of all parties because, as I understand it, no lending institution wishes the bad publicity of having to foreclose or having to take clients and customers to court. That is why they take almost a hard-line conservative approach.” (1993 Official Hansard Report, Vol. II, page 658)

He criticised me for not being able to say in my press conference that I had a firm fixed interest rate. He claimed that I did not know that the interest rates had risen recently. He would like to believe that sort of thing. But I am just as much aware of what goes on in this country, perhaps more than he is. The good thing about it is that in some of the things I am able to do something about it. What has he done so far?

He went on to erroneously quote me by saying that I said that the banks would not dare foreclose, or raise their interest rates to the point where people had to foreclose. That is correct. What I said was that they were not going to raise it so high as to damage their clients to whom they had loaned funds. That is what I said at the press conference. He must have believed that too, when he made that statement there last year. Now he talks about what they are going to do, like it is a foregone conclusion that all the people are not going to pay their loans.

Let me get to the point: The whole tenure of their approach to this scheme is to derail it, to hold it up as long as possible for whatever reasons they have. They use politics, and I will come to that in a few minutes.

I want to continue to quote the First Elected Member for Bodden Town to prove my point that they are on a mission to destroy the scheme and, to use the words of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, to give it a black eye, to make it look bad to the people so that they will get discouraged. That is what their effort is.

He said: “Another important point I wish to underscore is that lending institutions like to talk about the borrower's equity and interest in the project. That is why they stipulate that the borrower must participate to the extent of putting something into the project. Not only is this economically sound, it is psychologically sound. Here is why. If someone goes to the bank to borrow $80,000 to build a house, but they have to come up with $20,000 and they get into a problem, if they are logical and clear thinking, as most Caymanians are, they are going to say, ‘Hey, I am going to have to make some sacrifices here, I only had $20,000. If the bank takes this house or this property, my little $20,000 will have gone down the drain. You know Bobo, I can't make that happen.’ So they are going to work that much harder to meet their obligations. It is my argument that in a situation where the borrower has not a vested interest, the same kind of philosophy does not obtain. ‘I don't care if they take the house, I ain't got nothing in it. If I have to go out and pay rent, I will go out and pay rent. I will try to get myself in a position where I can try again.’ So, Madam Speaker, I am wondering and I am asking, will the borrower be required to invest their own toil and sweat in this project?" (IBID)

What does that say to this Honourable House, Madam Speaker? It says that that Honourable Member and his colleagues do not want a scheme where the person does not have to put up a single penny. But that is the problem today. People have not saved. They do not have the down payment. This is where Government must come in to protect our country.

What is wrong with that? What is fundamentally wrong with a Government that says it is going to help the small man if he cannot find his down payment; that it will guarantee it, that it has faith in its people; that it believes the people are honest; that it will do the right thing and assist them? What is wrong with that, ladies and gentlemen? What is wrong with that, Madam Speaker?

They do not want the scheme to happen. They do not want the scheme to succeed. To top it all off, they are bitterly complaining and making all kinds of remarks, all kinds of assumptions without any facts, that someone was asked to pay $2,000, or $2,500.

Tell me what do they want? What is it they want? On the one hand they say that the person must put in something and then when the person is asked whether he can put something up, they say that that is bad, the company is doing something wrong. How can it be wrong? If the person has $1,000, let him put it into it. That is what we have said from the beginning. What we have said is, if a person can make a down payment they should do so. The scheme provides this. That is as it should be.

Again, they are complaining about the liability. Well, would this not make the liability that much less? What is it they want? They believe that because they can write a Motion so they can have the last say and tear McKeeva to bits, that is it. Far from it, Madam Speaker, far from it.

They do not have any plans for this country. Let the country hear what their plans are for making things better for the people, other than what this Government is trying to do now and has accomplished since being elected. What have they done for housing? What has the First Elected Member for Bodden Town done for housing? What has the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman done for housing? What has his Secunder, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, done for housing? Have they put a scheme forward where the little man could help himself, or the Government could help the little man? They have not.

No, I agree. The Member says that I have not done anything. But I am trying to do it. The difference is that they had a chance because they went into the business, and they did not do it. I am trying. This Government is trying to help the people.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town says that this whole scheme is dictated by politics, designed to reap political mileage. Madam Speaker, that is how they see it. I cannot help if they see through a dark glass.

All I am trying to accomplish, and it will take some time to iron out the ends, is to assist our people in getting a shelter for themselves. That is all I am trying to do.

They went on a tangent asking why the Government is reluctant to admit other developers into the scheme. I ask them, where are these people? We have constantly said come forward. We have said this. Why have the people whom they have mentioned not done exactly that? Certainly, we did not tell anyone that Affordable Homes had an exclusive contract. We have not told anyone that. We have said that we are willing to guarantee mortgages if people can qualify for their homes. But we also said that other persons could come forward.

Their point about not doing the scheme through the Housing Development Corporation (which they claim is for political reasons), on the one hand the Members complain about the liability of the scheme, this great liability to the country. Yet, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman say, "Why do you not go through the Housing Development Corporation?" The answer is very simple and very clear for one and all to see, and for those that can understand.

If, under the present scheme (according to them), 35 percent is too much of a liability, do they not understand that if we had to put $15 million through the Housing Development Corporation that it would be a liability of $15 million, whereas it could only go up to 35 percent under the present scheme?

Why do we not sit down with the Housing Development Corporation? The Housing Development Corporation is under my Ministry and we have done that. The Chairman of the Housing Development Corporation has been in on the discussions concerning the scheme.

They talk about liability. They do not want to point out that the Government is going to get direct revenue from the sale of land. Do they not understand that? Do they not understand that the Government is going to get direct stamp duty from the sale of land and from mortgages? Do they not understand that the country is going to get direct revenue on the importation of building materials through this scheme?

Of course, Madam Speaker, you do not hear the know-it-alls on that side talk about the positiveness of the scheme. We do not hear that there will be sale of more local material such as blocks and other building materials, such as the various kinds of aggregate, crushed rock, sand and so on. Oh no, we do not hear that. Why? This is all positive. But we cannot get positiveness from the Opposition because they are all negative. You cannot get positives out of negatives no matter how hard you try.

They talk about confusion. The confusion exists with them because they are not in this seat to run the country the way that they want it to run. I keep saying the Opposition must put, if they have anything credible, alternatives on the table whenever they criticise Government proposals.

I hear the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman muttering over there about the Opposition taking over. I do not have the knowledge of the Lord Almighty, but I trust Him. I trust Him to keep all of them out of Executive Council, or God help us all.

Yes, Madam Speaker, they carry on saying that there are no facts on this scheme. They claim there are no facts, yet they throw out all sorts of wild, unfounded allegations. They say that one of the developers that would be in the scheme Cayman Affordable Homes, does not have any money. That was the categorical statement made by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. They want facts, they say. Where are their facts? Where is their proof that Cayman Affordable Homes does not have money? Where are their facts?

The truth is that Government has been guaranteed by the bankers or Cayman Affordable Homes, or Frank Hall Homes, that funds are available. If they want to find out how much and whether it is a fact that they have the money, let them go to Ansbacher House, because that is where we got our proof from. As I said earlier on, one of these days in the not-too-far-distant future, those that are blind will see. The Opposition is certainly blind, and if they are not blind, they are making a serious pretence that they are.

Despite the debate in the Finance Committee and in this House, despite media publicity such as articles and editorials and the press conference, which provided anyone who wanted to attend ample opportunity to ask questions, we still find ourselves in this Honourable House, again debating Government's tireless efforts to provide decent housing for middle and lower income Caymanians.

As agreed by this Government and the National Team, and mentioned previously in this House, the most stable residents in a community are its homeowners. An important tool in assessing a community's character and condition is through its housing stock. This Government sees the need to address the housing conditions in the community and we see it as an essential element to this country's social and economic development. As our population grows it is inevitable that the demand for housing will increase. Homes for the middle to lower income families are very important as it gives all of our citizens a feeling of belonging in the community with a stake in the economic growth of the country.

I looked at the recitals of this Motion and there are several points that I wish to address. These are: the guarantee scheme is unprecedented; the 35 percent guarantee is too high, and is speculative; the details on how the Government's liability is to be applied and what safeguards have to be in place; that there appears (according to them) to be exclusivity provided to the three banks and the developer; conflicting information in the Finance Committee submission of 19th July, 1993, and the press conference of 4th May this year; information on the requirements of the scheme and legal protection for the borrowers; and need for an independent review of the arrangements of the scheme.

While this particular guarantee scheme for housing is a first of its kind, Members are aware that Governments in the past have guaranteed less important projects in this country. We feel that the provision of housing for this sector of our populous is so important that it should not be further delayed, and if Government's guarantee is a catalyst towards eliminating some of the unacceptable housing problems in this country, then all Members of this Honourable House must not fail in their duty in this important initiative.

Instead of the Opposition being the prophets of doom and gloom, they should do their part to bring this scheme to the successful fruition which it deserves and, in so doing, try to balance their desire for information with their demands for all the "i"s to be dotted and "t"s crossed—when they want it and how they want it.

They claim that the guarantee is too high and speculative. The Finance Committee held on the 19th of July last year, granted approval for Government to issue individual guarantees to those four institutions named—First Home, Bank of Butterfield, First Cayman and Cayman Affordable Housing, a trading name for Frank Hall Homes. The fact is that Finance Committee created a mechanism for Government to use in applying guarantees to qualified persons or families on an individual basis. Perhaps this fundamental misunderstanding may be the root of the erroneous perception that Government has no control, as expressed by the Mover.

The Mover, and the public at large, are aware that the banks who would be lending these funds would be expected and committed under agreement to exercise their normal due diligence in vetting applications from persons who are desirous of participating in this scheme. Not only for our good, or the good of the borrower, but for the good of their clients. For it is their clients' money, so they have to exercise due diligence. Commercial banks will not wish, nor do I desire as Minister, to remove the initial credit decision away from the banks. Further control will be exercised by Government in that the prospective borrower has to meet certain criteria in order to be eligible for the guarantee from Government.

The criteria, which has been publicly stated before, follows: Borrowers must be Caymanian, or a Caymanian with a non-Caymanian spouse; Combined annual income at the time of application does not exceed $60,000 per annum (this was initially envisaged to be $50,000, but has been adjusted upwards, on which I will later make some comments); Payments on the mortgage must not exceed 33% of the family's or applicant's gross income; and Overall debt servicing ratio, including the mortgage and all other debt obligations, must not exceed 40% of the family's or the applicant's gross income.

A sensible and conservative debt service ratio and one that does not indicate speculation to most reasonable people. It does not indicate speculation, but it is sound banking financial principles. Of course, the Opposition is not reasonable.

Another criterion is that only the primary job income will be considered, except in unusual circumstances. The bank will take a first charge in the property and Government a second charge in respect to its guarantee. The property will be required to have and maintain an approved fire and all-perils insurance to cover replacement and the primary borrower will be required to assign a life insurance policy in an amount sufficient to cover the outstanding balance of the mortgage at all times. In exercising due diligence, the banks will need to receive satisfactory written credit references as well as employment and income verification letters.

Obviously, upon receiving an application from any of the banks in this scheme for a guarantee, a small committee of Government will individually assess each case and respond to the bank within five days of receiving an accurate and complete application for a guarantee.

Against this background it becomes very evident that the use of language by the Opposition, such as "the results are considerably speculative", in the recitals of the Motion, can, with justification, be called inflammatory and politically misleading.

The process and procedure just outlined also responds to the expression "safeguards of the people's money," and the other expression "expenditure...which will financially affect the lives of the citizens of the Cayman Islands," used by the Mover in the recitals of the Motion, and by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

The Mover also wrongly says that there is no definite requirement or standard for the project. They know better than that. Why are they being so negative? Because, contrary to this assertion, Government has publicly stated that any construction to take place under the scheme must be done by an approved contractor or developer to the standards required by the Central Planning Authority and other agencies which have to deal with building, such as quantity surveyors and so on.

All reasonable Members of this House see that there are very sensible safeguards for the operation of this scheme and the application of Government's guarantee. These are not onerous to the borrower, as it also allows the borrower to do a self-analysis of his financial situation and his aspirations for a home before committing to his mortgage.

The guarantee at its lowest level (10%), or at its ceiling (35%), provides flexibility for Government to help qualified borrowers. Contrary to the view expressed some time ago by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, this is not meant to be (will not be and cannot be) a free ride for anyone. This scheme is meant to help citizens of this country who for various reasons are not able to accumulate sufficient funds to make a down payment for a mortgage for their home, or meet the closing costs when purchasing a home. It is, therefore, not too much for Government to guarantee a maximum of 35 percent for what I believe is a noble socio-economic objective.

As pointed out, all prudent safeguards are in place. So, the speculative suggestion made by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and his seconder and their colleague, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, equates to naught.

Details of Government's guarantee. As reflected in the minutes of the Finance Committee of the 19th of July, 1993, and the debate on Private Member's Motion No. 4/93 on 4th September, 1993, Government's guarantee of between 10 percent and 35 percent of the upper layer of the loan will cease. It will stop after the first payment which aggregates the sum guaranteed of the sum loan in lieu of prospective clients providing their own down payment. In other words, an increment of the monthly payment will have a factor that goes towards amortising the guarantee. In this way, Government's liability would be adjusted with the decreasing amount of the mortgages, rather than the original amount.

As payments are made on the loan, Government's guarantee will decrease. To protect its guarantee, Government will take a second charge on the borrower's property. The banking institution, who will have the first charge, will not be allowed to modify or vary its first charge without the consent of the Government.

Another precaution is that the banking institution will provide the Government with regular, at least quarterly, reports on the status of any delinquent loan account and, of course, annually on all loan accounts in this scheme.

Executive Council has also indicated that a reserve account will be established to cushion the impact of any payment by Government in the event of a default loan.

Over the five-year period, it will be necessary to budget a sum of approximately $400,000—$500,000 annually in order to accumulate the desired reserve. But this is good management, nothing is wrong with this. But this will be a matter to be brought to Finance Committee later in this meeting.

Now to deal with the perceived exclusivity that they ranted and raved on so much in their debate. It was publicly stated, very early in the day, that Government was having dealings with these three institutions and the development company referred to. This initial list was mentioned because no other participants had come forward despite being encouraged to.

It has also been publicly stated that the Government would encourage and promote for as wide a participation as possible by building contractors and/or developers providing that they are reputable, with a good track record and would add to the credibility of the scheme. Throughout every district of this country, including Cayman Brac, this is what we said from the very onset. Government does not intend to enter into any exclusive agreement with any developer, contractor or financial institution.

The three banks, First Home, Bank of Butterfield, and First Cayman, and the development company referred to, Cayman Affordable Homes, are very keen to become involved and Government is appreciative and grateful for their interest and concern. But Government has not yet signed an agreement with Cayman Affordable Homes, or any of the banks mentioned. Some details of the scheme are still being finalised with the financial institutions. But no agreements have been signed as yet.

In fact, interest is so keen among the public to get a home, that now other developers of suitably priced land or subdivisions are being approached by the public. We expect that they will come forward in due course to participate in the scheme.

Additionally, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce has recently come forward and pledged up to $3 million per year for five years. This will be dealt with later on in Finance Committee, which is to be held sometime during this meeting.

Basically, the conditions for developers, landowners or contractors to participate in this scheme must include: ownership by a majority of Caymanians; possession of a valid business licence; reputable good track record; suitably priced land for this type of scheme which meets the standard of the Central Planning Authority.

For instance, if they are going to develop a piece of swampland, that has to be settled down properly before I am going to agree to enter or promote any developer's name to the banks or otherwise. They must be prepared to produce or provide the bridge financing for each home to be constructed until it is taken possession of by the owner, that is, the developers will build the houses with their own funds, or with loan funds secured by a contract to sell to the home owner. Upon completion and acquisition of a Certificate of Occupancy, the homeowner would make the lump sum, or final payment, to the developer or contractor and take possession of the home.

The benefit of this arrangement is that the homeowner will be getting a finished product at a fixed contract price. The contractor's stake would be to honour his contract and avoid over-runs. Provisions are also made to allow for individuals who wish to build their own homes under the scheme.

Yet, the Opposition continues to say otherwise. Why? Simply because they do not want the scheme to succeed. They do not want the person out there, who might have a little difficulty in understanding, know that they are able to qualify, or are able to get a home under this scheme. Individuals who might have a piece of land, or who might have a piece of land and a foundation, or a piece of land and a house up to the belting, for instance, are the scenarios that are possible within the scheme.

So, there is no exclusive arrangement with any development company or contractor. Any approved contractor or developer in any district within these islands may be eligible to participate in this scheme. We have been saying this from the beginning.

As for requirements for participation by financial institutions, they should have a Class A licence and be prepared to afford the competitive terms, which the scheme requires. The Opposition has taken the position that the scheme is already cut and dry. As already stated, no agreements have yet been signed.

What I said publicly was that an agreement in principle had been reached, and anyone familiar with this kind of negotiation would understand that in dealing with such a complex matter it is usual to reach agreement on the broad frame work of the matter. This is what is referred to as agreement in principle. However, I should say that there are very few details left to be agreed to with the banks and Government should soon be in a position to execute the agreement.

In wrapping up this section, let me point out that although there has been much talk about low cost housing monies by various institutions in Cayman—banks, insurance companies, building societies and the Housing Development Corporation itself—there has not been anywhere near the ground swell of activity which is imperative to satisfy the needs which exist. It is therefore incumbent upon Government to jump-start this effort, and this we are going to do, while allowing freedom of choice and maximum participation within prudent and stringent guidelines for all who are a part of the scheme.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time for you to take a pause?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you very much, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.40 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.56 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, continuing.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I want to move on to touch on what they termed conflicting information of Finance Committee, versus the press conference.

Madam Speaker and Honourable Members, there have been two instances in the evolution of the scheme where two fundamental parameters had to be modified. As noted at the press conference, one had to do with the extension of the upper level of the proposed mortgage loans—from $80,000 up to a maximum of $125,000. The increase was proposed when it was realised that in order to provide a house with land, bank, and Government fees, etcetera, $80,000 would not be sufficient to allow the borrower enough flexibility.

This also allows recent college graduates or young couples who may be earning a decent salary but who do not have the cash to make a down payment, to also have the guarantee afforded by the scheme. This increase will also go into Finance Committee later on in this meeting.

The next modification that will be going to Finance Committee is increasing the upper level of the combined household income. A maximum sum of $50,000 had been mentioned in the discussions at the Finance Committee on the 19th July, 1993. This modification also benefits the same group of Caymanians who may be earning a decent combined salary, but due to various circumstances are unable to accumulate the necessary required down payment. Without extending the combined income level, these individuals would not be able to participate in the scheme.

Government is aware that these go beyond the terms of the Finance Committee's approval. Accordingly, the Financial Secretary will be asked to ratify these two proposed alterations to the terms of its 19th July, 1993, authorisations in the June Meeting of the Finance Committee.

The Opposition made a big hullabaloo about this being raised. I do not see the problem with it. It is intended to, and will help more people. I do not know what the Mover of the Motion is grumbling about, but I believe that all of this will only do the scheme better and allow the people a better change of getting a home.

Madam Speaker, now to look at participation procedures and legal protection of borrowers. As previously mentioned in my reply, each individual applicant or household will be required to meet specific criteria. Once a prospective homeowner has agreed on the location of his house, the size and cost of construction and other costs, he will approach one of the banks participating in the scheme in order to apply for the financing of the home after being presented with a Certificate of Occupancy by the developer or the contractor, whichever. Simultaneously, the developer or the contractor will obtain construction or bridge financing from his banker on the strength of the sale of contract with the prospective homeowner.

Madam Speaker, since Government's guarantee is only in respect to the commitment of the homeowner, Government would assess each application before approving the guarantee.

Regarding management of the scheme, it is proposed that the lenders would assess prospective borrowers and recommend eligible cases to have the Government guarantee applied. It is further proposed that a Committee of two, being nominees of the Honourable Financial Secretary and the Permanent Secretary for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture (the Ministry responsible for Housing), would view these cases and ascertain whether they meet all relevant criteria. The form of guarantee would then be completed subject to registration of the necessary second charge against the property.

Madam Speaker, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, went on about not having the Housing Development Corporation involved. According to the Permanent Secretary, the person who is to be appointed, along with someone from the Financial Secretary's Portfolio, will be someone from the Housing Development Corporation. But this is as we have said time and time again. That is what the Housing Development Corporation will do. That is the part they will play. They will look at the applications. I have said that, time and time again in answers to questions in the press conference and, in fact, to a question from the same Honourable Member, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, when he asked me "What part will the Housing Development Corporation play?" I told him that. Yet he comes into the House with a halo saying otherwise.

Why, Madam Speaker, do they not want the scheme to succeed? That is simply it. The more bad things that they can say about it, the more they might convince somebody that it is a bad thing and they should not get involved.

But the people are going to fool them, because there are virtually hundreds of people who are going to join in this scheme. They are not worrying about who is going to get the political mileage, and I am not concerned with that...I hear somebody over there grunting...but, nevertheless, Madam Speaker, it is the truth. That is what they are concerned with.

This is really what irks me in this whole situation, Madam Speaker. They are concerned about politics. So what if somebody gets some political mileage out of it? Somebody gets a shelter for their children and themselves. What is wrong with that? That is what is supposed to happen. That is what Government is. That is Government by the people and for the people!

Madam Speaker, I thought that the Opposition would support us. But, nevertheless, they shall not have their way. Government is doing the right thing that is why Government is having its way.

The good Members of this House are by no means—let me say this quickly, Madam Speaker—extension cords. They tear things apart and look at details, but they are practical and sensible enough to know when something is good. Just because they are not ranting and raving and on the television every minute does not mean the Honourable Members who support the Government are not involved. They are very much involved, and they care about what is going on and do voice their opinions.

Madam Speaker, let me say at this point that while borrowers in the scheme are not immune from the fluctuation of interest rates, the spread of 3 percent above prime rate is fixed for the duration of the loan. I heard the First Elected Member from Bodden Town, like he had parted the Red Sea, exclaimed about this new increase in interest rates. Well, I will say now what I have said in the past: I have confidence that the banks are not going to increase rates (he even said that sometime back) to the extent that the people to whom they lend $30,000, paying $300 per month will have their payment doubled to $600. They could not. Why? It is simple: because then the whole scheme would fall in their lap.

It is their money, clients from throughout the Cayman Islands, or worldwide have placed money in their banks and it is that money that is being loaned out. How do you think that they are going to throw down interest rates to the point that it becomes unbearable. Madam Speaker, why do these people not get realistic? Why do they not get realistic?

They also went on this spell about the protection of the borrower. But the Mover should be aware—all three of them should be aware—that all borrowers who are committed to a mortgage loan are protected by section 72 of the Registered Land Law, which affords a considerable degree of protection to the borrower through detailed stages towards foreclosure to the extent that this is one of the things that is being extensively discussed. But we have held out that that remains. That is the Law. They cannot go and foreclose on somebody immediately. It takes months, if not years, for that to happen when it comes to mortgages.

I do not know where those who set themselves up as experts in this House get their information, but they talk about everything as if it is a foregone conclusion. All they have to do is say it, and it is correct. They better go back to school. It is very obvious, as I have said, that the lending institutions will be required to adhere to the procedures in the event of default in payments by any borrower.

Madam Speaker, I do not know if any Member has said so to you, but we have an Executive Council Meeting shortly. I am wondering if we could take a break at this time.

The Speaker: I was not aware of that, Honourable Member. But if that is the case, is there a Motion to move the adjournment of the House at this time?

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House, until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say aye, those against no.

AYES AND ONE AUDIBLE NO

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.16 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 3 JUNE 1994.

EDITED
FRIDAY
3 JUNE, 1994
10.02 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Fourth Elected Member for Gorge Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly. Questions to Honourable Members. Question No. 61 is standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 61

No. 61. Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development what Government aims to achieve by the recent amendment to the Customs Law and Regulations prohibiting the importation of certain goods except with permission from Executive Council.

The Speaker: The Honourable Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Honourable Members will recall that at the time this amendment was brought to this Honourable House there were mounting concerns among Caymanian-owned and operated tourism transport businesses and heavy equipment operators over the importation of large buses, water taxis and heavy equipment by alleged fronting operations.

This amendment was considered at that time to be the most practical and expeditious means of averting confrontation amongst the various parties and also to provide some degree of protection to Caymanian-owned and operated tourist transport businesses and heavy equipment operators. The Government also intends to bring replacement legislation that is presently being developed.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Member say if changes are expected any time within this year, or new legislation, to the present state of determining the question of buses and the like that this provision affected?

The Speaker: The Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, as I mentioned earlier, amending legislation is under review and the public has already been circulated with a draft of the amending legislation. They have submitted their concerns and they are now being considered. It is likely that the concerns as expressed could influence the draft legislation and what will be brought to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Member say if every time someone wants a bus with over nine seats they have to make a formal application? Does that go each time to the Executive Council to be determined, or has Executive Council approved one of its members to review some particular application form and make a determination?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the Executive Council has vested delegated authority in the Honourable Minister for Communication, Works and Agriculture to review the applications that are submitted for the importation of buses, water taxis and heavy equipment.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Is the information that is submitted to the Minister on a particular form that has been developed, and does the Minister have the approval to grant this, or does he review this and then it goes on further to Executive Council?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, there are no specific forms that have been developed. A letter is normally submitted setting out the intent or request by the prospective importer. Once it has been deemed reasonable and within the context of the amended legislation the Honourable Minister is authorised, on behalf of Executive Council, to assent to the request.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: I wonder if the Member could say if, for heavy equipment, it then goes to the Department of Agriculture so that they are informed that a person has a licence to import heavy equipment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister normally consults with the representatives of the Heavy Equipment Association, and I would imagine that in the case of Agricultural Equipment that would be the only instance he would consult with the Agriculture Department.

On a whole he normally consults with the Association to make sure that what is being proposed to be imported is not presently on the Island.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Member confirm that what appears to be one of the chief questions in these applications, that of fronting, if a determination is made as to whether applicants are in that position or not at the time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I do not imagine that that could be established at the point of the application being made.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say how those applications from persons who are not members of the Agricultural Society, or the Heavy Equipment Operators, are dealt with and how we can be assured that they are given the same or similar treatment as members of these two organisations?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, at best we will have to rely on the objectivity and the judgment of the Honourable Minister that has been vested with the delegated authority of dealing with the requests from the prospective importers to allow for equipment to be brought into the Islands.

As I mentioned earlier, it is not a question that these prospective importers should be, or necessarily have to be members of the Heavy Equipment Association. Only that what equipment proposed to be imported does not exist on the Island and would not create a conflict with Heavy Equipment Operators if such were to be brought in.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 62, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 62

No. 62: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development whether any travel agency is engaged to book Government travel and, if so, which one.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: There is no travel agency engaged to handle the Government's travel.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if, with Government's travel being booked, there are any instances where it is done through a travel agency, and if it is not done through a travel agency, through whom is official travel booked?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, there could be the unusual and infrequent occasions where travel agencies may be used. This is only done in instances where it would not be appropriate and most cost effective to make the travel arrangements through Cayman Airways. In such instances, it is normally done with the approval of the Financial Secretary.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Does this also apply to statutory boards, such as the Authorities and so forth, or is this just for Government Departments?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mainly for Central Government Departments.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: I wonder if the Honourable Member would make an undertaking to make sure that the statutory boards be given a circular requesting that they book through Cayman Airways and not use a travel agency because I know that this is the practice of some statutory boards, having served on one, that they do use the travel agencies and Cayman Airways is losing the revenue.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I will give that undertaking, but all of the statutory authorities are aware of the Government's policy in a preference for the use of Cayman Airways.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 63, standing in the name of The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 63

No. 63: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development what are the total outstanding loans and guarantees for which the Cayman Islands Government is obligated for central Government and any authorities, with a breakdown by original amount, currency, duration and interest rates.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The total loans and guarantees outstanding of the Government and Statutory bodies as at 31st December, 1993, is as follows:

a) Central Government Public Debt	$ 27.59 million
b) Self-financing Loans (Statutory Authorities)	26.53 million
i) Contingent Liabilities (Guarantees)	63.41 million
ii) Other Loans (without Guarantee)	1.32 million
Port Authority	0.94 million
Water Authority
Total (unaudited)	$ 120.0 million

The breakdown showing original amount, currency, duration, and interest rates is attached.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Member have any comparative figures readily available as to how much these amounts may have risen during the past year from what it was to the year prior?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, for the year 1992, the figures indicate a decrease of $3.4 million.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 64, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 64

No. 64: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what are the reasons for the choice of the former Head of the Uniform Branch of the Royal Cayman Islands Police to be the head of the project team overseeing the extension of the Central Police Headquarters.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: The appointment of ex-Chief Superintendent Neville J. Smith to head a project team to oversee/manage the extension of Central Police Station, the commissioning of a new Police/Customs launch and other projects was approved for the following reasons: 1. The projects are complicated and time consuming and to appoint an operational officer would have removed that officer from primary police function.

2. Mr. Smith is well qualified from his knowledge of the Force and of the various Government departments with which liaison is necessary. Mr. Smith's extension to contract, due to expire 3rd October, was granted specifically to assist the Force and minimise any diminishment of its operational efficiency.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Was any consideration given to advertising beyond the ranks of the Police Force, seeing that this seems to be a matter of management and administration rather than pure police matter?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, the decision was taken to select someone who was available, qualified and knowledgeable by experience of the task to be undertaken and Mr. Smith was available and considered qualified to undertake the work.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Are we then to understand that at the conclusion of these announced projects that there will be no further contract extension to the officer involved?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, that is my understanding, it is a specific project-based assignment and once the various projects have been completed that is the end of the assignment. I think the substantive answer gives a date by which these projects should be completed.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 65, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 65

No. 65: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs why are the applications for the recently advertised post of Commissioner of Police to be sent to the present holder of that post and not to the Secretary of the Public Service Commission or to the Chief Secretary.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: The appointments of personnel to the Royal Cayman Islands Police does not come within the purview of the Public Service Commission.

Appointment of the Commissioner of Police is the responsibility of His Excellency the Governor, as it is with all Gazetted Officers. Applications in response to the recent advertisement are forwarded to the current Commissioner of Police who collates those applications, offers his professional advice on the qualities and experience of the candidates and forwards all applications, plus the aforementioned advice, to His Excellency the Governor.

Interviews are then conducted in London by the Governor, assisted by the Inspector General of Dependent Territories Police Forces and the Cayman Islands Representative in London, Mr. Thomas Russell, from which an offer of contract is made to the candidate considered most suitable and qualified for the post.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: To what extent does the present holder of the post influence the recommendation of who may be short listed for interview?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, the responsibility of the incumbent, as stated, is merely to offer an appraisal and to summarise the professional qualifications and experience in such a manner as to enable the Governor and the panel to do its work effectively. The panel need not be influenced to any degree whatsoever. This is a professional matter.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if the holder of the present post is also a member of the interview panel?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, he is not a member of the panel.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, may I ask the Honourable First Official Member if it has been the normal practice in the past to have the applications for this particular post sent to the incumbent Commissioner?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Yes, Madam Speaker, this is following exactly what has happened in the past.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 66, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 66

No. 66: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to provide a breakdown of the numbers of Permanent Residency granted in the last two years by the following: (i) nationality; and (ii) period of residence.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: The breakdown of the numbers of permanent residency granted in the last two years is attached at Appendix I and II.

Madam Speaker I do have to apologise because in looking at the appendices I see that the information that I have been supplied with is, in fact, the data in respect of the past 16 months and not the past two years. For that, I do apologise.

For the benefit of those listening, the total number of permanent residence granted during the past 16 months, that is during the period January 1993 to April 1994, totals 183 persons of which 103 were Permanent Residency with the right to work and 80 without the right to work.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Are there any systems by which quotas based on country of origin are used as a criterion for the granting of some of these residencies?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: No, Madam Speaker, there is no quota of nationality applicable to these matters.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Honourable Member in a position to say whether applications from persons with permanent residency with no right to work, who now wish to have the right to work have been recorded to any significant degree?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, based on my knowledge of the matter there are few. The number of cases of persons fitting the description cited are the minority. There are few persons who, having applied for residency, subsequently seek to have that amended with the right to work. There are exceptions in that there are a category of persons who, having qualified under fairly recent directives of having lived in the country for 15 years or more, may now be seeking to make such application. But in the main, those applications, traditionally, were in the minority.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In the cases of permanent residency with the right to work, can the Honourable Member say if there are any sanctions or any parameters which mitigate against persons applying several times if they are not successful in the first instance, and what is the elapsed time before a second application can be considered.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, to the best of my knowledge, there is a provision in the Law, or the Directives issued under the Law, which spells out the time that should normally elapse between applications. The applicant is usually notified of this period of time in writing when the decisions are being conveyed.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today. Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion 9/94, continuation of the debate. The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 9/94

ESTABLISHMENT OF A SELECT COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE TO REVIEW, INTER ALIA, GOVERNMENT'S BLANKET GUARANTEE FOR LOWER INCOME HOUSING

(Continuation of the debate thereon)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I wish to continue my debate in answer to the wild allegations made thus far by the speakers of the Opposition in the Motion they have dreamt up.

Some of the remarks made by the Mover of the resolution, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, appear in the Caymanian Compass of today. On the front page, in the fifth paragraph it says, and I quote, "Last year Mr. Bush said that the scheme would provide 100% financing for Caymanian homes, the maximum loan available being $80,000, now the maximum loan was $125,000."

That is a statement of fact, Madam Speaker. If you look at the Caymanian Compass, up until that point they did not put that in quotation marks. But, within the same paragraph, or continuing thereon . . . in fact there was no full stop, it just goes on to say “now the maximum loan was $125,000, (comma) and people were expected to produce a $2,000 to [$4,000] deposit,” in fact what they have there is a $40,000 deposit! That has to be a typographical error.

What further compounds the problem . . . certainly, the beginning of the paragraph down to the wording “now the maximum loan was $125,000” can be attributed to me. That is a matter of fact. But when they go on to say now people were expected to produce a $2,000—and they say $40,000—deposit, that cannot be attributed to this Member because I certainly did not say that. I have never said so.

Madam Speaker, for some reason, and I believe it is deliberate, the Opposition has continuously taken things out of context with the scheme. They talk about confusion, however it is evident that they are confused and refuse to even believe what we are saying. I am sorry, but I cannot force them to believe the Government. As I said earlier, in due course when all matters are to the satisfaction of the Government and the banks involved, things can be made much clearer.

This Government recognises the need for people to be able to get a home for their families. I am dealing with this matter of the deposit because it highlights the inconsistency of the Opposition who claim to be expert in everything. In recognising the need we acted prudently and sought the assistance of the private sector because the Government had no money of its own to put into the Housing Development Corporation, which was the body handling housing loans at the time (and still is) for Government.

At no time did we publicly or privately say to anybody that Government was preparing housing for everybody through the proposed scheme. That is one falsehood on their part. We said from the very beginning that the scheme would cater to people who would be able to keep up a mortgage, whether that mortgage was $30,000, or $125,000. We went on to say how we would deal with indigents. We would deal with them in another manner. In fact, Madam Speaker, we have all along provided indigent housing and more will be provided this year, that is, for the poor people that cannot afford a loan at all. But we have never told anyone, and it is deliberately wrong for the Opposition to portray that we were asking people to put up $2,000 to $4,000. What we did say was that if a person could afford a down payment, whatever it is, they should do so, whether it is $2,000, $5,000 or $500, if they have it they must put it up. That is what we have been saying all along.

The inconsistency in the Opposition is that they claim the whole scheme carries too much liability for the Government. They then complain that people are being asked to put up a deposit.

If a person puts up $5,000, $10,000, whatever they can afford to put up, it would be that much less liability for the Government and it would mean that the person would have put something into their house. It would mean that the liability of the country would be that much less. Yet they complain about persons being asked to put up $2,000 to $4,000. We did not say that, but whatever they have (let us make it plain) whatever they have to put up, they should do so.

Madam Speaker, the Caymanian Compass also said, and I will read what it says on page 2, paragraphs 6 and 7: “Mr. McLean wondered why the Housing Development Corporation was not involved in the scheme. When the scheme was debated in the House Mr. Bush had said the Corporation would play an important role. But it was now apparent that the Housing Development Corporation was not involved. The world suddenly learned that it would be dealing with Cayman Affordable Homes, not the Housing Development Corporation.”

Where are his facts, Madam Speaker, that the Housing Development Corporation is not involved? Where are their facts? Pure assumption. Pure political rhetoric to discredit the scheme.

We said from the beginning, as he quoted, that the Housing Development Corporation would be involved and I say again, it will be a very important involvement in that my Permanent Secretary of my Ministry will be appointing a person from the Housing Development Corporation to vet the application that will come from the bank to Government for Government's guarantee. If that is not an important role, I do not know what it is that the Opposition wants.

It is a most important role, as far as I am concerned, when it comes to Government, because it is based upon their recommendation that Government's guarantee will be applied. Yet, they mislead the country as if they have the facts. Pure assumption and political rhetoric. Spite. Nothing but pure unadulterated spite, to make the Government look bad. Not that they are trying to assist the scheme, every bad thing in the world that they can say about it, they have said.

Continuing in the Caymanian Compass, Madam Speaker, and I quote, “Moving on to the subject of the scheme's feasibility, Mr. McLean said the scheme failed to do what it set out to do—provide housing for lower income Caymanians.”

Madam Speaker, where are his facts?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: One hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars for poor people?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: The Member now asks whether $125,000 is for poor people. Depends on what he calls poor people. But remember this, in their arguments against it from the very outset, they said that $80,000 was too much. Go back and see.

Madam Speaker, I can deal with their muttering. One thing about political rhetoric, it cannot stand up to facts. One thing about rumour and gossip on the street and malicious statements is that they cannot stand up to the facts. That is where they are hurting now and that is where they will continue to be hurt when the people that need housing in this country are living in good homes, whether they be $125,000 or $30,000, it will be what a person can afford. That is what this Government is making sure of.

Poor people will be able to be assisted within this scheme. We have said that from the very outset, because in dealing with the banks we said that the banks agreed everybody would be involved. The person going to First Home Bank (now British American Bank) or going to the Bank of Butterfield, or going to First Cayman Bank, or now CIBC, would apply for something within their salary range, whether they wished to build a $30,000 home, a $68,000 home or a $93,000 home. Simply put, Madam Speaker, a home that they can afford to pay for.

We have said this from the beginning, this is not something new. They are attempting to let the public believe that I am just saying this today, but it is in the records from day one. Our position has been that a person will build within their means.

The scheme will assist the person who has a piece of land with a house foundation. Or a piece of land with a house up to the belting point. That person, once they qualify, will be able to get a house.

The scheme will assist a person who has no land, that is where the 100% financing will come in. It will come to a person who does not have anything.

Certainly, they should have understood. If they wanted to understand, if they wanted to be genuine, the Opposition would have understood that a person who has a house started, would have had some equity and would, therefore, not need 100%. They should have understood this.

When people who want to discredit something get up and say the things that they have said, they are likely to say anything they are after. I have no control on what the Opposition says. We have said from the beginning that the scheme was open for people to become involved without all of the matters or issues that can come up in such an intricate proposition as what this Government is proposing. You cannot have all the information at your fingertips.

Why should we tie ourselves down to such a tight spot that we would have to come to Finance Committee or the House every time some little thing needs to be changed? There needed to be flexibility.

I hear the Fourth Elected Member for George Town saying we should have thought of that first. Madam Speaker, I will get to that later on, because that seems to be his sole point, that I did not have a cut and dry contract when I made my public announcement. I will get to that a little later on. They seem to be good and vexed about that. It is a pity that...well, Madam Speaker, let me not get into that.

But the Fourth Elected Member should SHUT UP!, until he has a chance to speak.

Well, do not learn from me.

So far, only four banks and one private company have come forward. They have asked me, like it is something sinister, why only Frank Hall Homes. They never mentioned the banks, you know. Why only Frank Hall Homes or Cayman Affordable Housing? Now, they named three people, Mr. Kent Rankine, Mr. Antonio

Hawkins and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town named Mr. Hugo Zeiderent, through his company.

They are asking what the magic is with Frank Hall Homes. Frank Hall Homes, through their bankers, guaranteed Government that they have the money through Ansbacher Bank. Where would the other people get the money and why would they not come forward? They (the Opposition) said that these people have the experience in housing. Oh yes they do. Oh yes they do have experience, and the country has had that experience.

Madam Speaker, I am not going to get into the belittling of anybody's development. If the First Elected Member for Bodden Town wants to deal with Hugo Zeiderent, let him deal, that is his business. If Mr. Hugo Zeiderent puts forward a scheme to the bank, when the bank submits that scheme to the Government, the Government will then make its decision.

I am not going to get up here and do what the Opposition does and criticise the developments. But the public knows about all the developers that they mentioned and what their developments have been thus far in this country.

So, when the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and his Colleagues ask why Frank Hall Homes, I ask them why Hugo Zeiderent? Government has not signed any agreement with any one of those four entities as yet. Although, as time evolves we reach agreement in principle and within the next week I am hoping that the documents will be finalised by the Legal Department and the Banks.

Those four banks offered various sums of money for housing development. First Cayman Bank—$250,000 a year for three years; British American Bank—$1 million per year for three years; Bank of Butterfield—$1 million per year for three years; Frank Hall Homes, or Cayman Affordable Homes, has offered $17 million over five years. That offering, as far as I am concerned, still stands but they will offer it through their bank. I said that we will come to Finance Committee, and I hope the Opposition listens so that when they reply they will not use wrong statements. When Finance Committee is called Frank Hall Homes will be substituted by CIBC Bank.

Now, they can say that is why it is so confusing. What do they want? Do they want the scheme to succeed? Or do they want to get up, criticise me and criticise the scheme and turn people off from it? What do they want? Are they genuine?

All the developers who want to get into the scheme will have to deal directly with the banks. Government will say who is to join the scheme—which contractor will join the scheme and which developer is to join. Government is dealing with the banks.

They went on to question the repayment of mortgages saying that mortgage payments were in the range of $1,000—$1,200. I believe that was the range they used. They were referring at the time to Frank Hall Homes because even though we said that the banks were open and that Government would guarantee through Frank Hall Homes, nobody approached the banks. No other developer approached the banks, nor did they approach Government.

But the kind of information that they gave, which tried to belittle the scheme used by Cayman Affordable Homes, the public should understand that these figures include a three bedroom house for $1,000 per month—1200 square feet—on a piece of property 100 x 125 feet. That is house and land at that price per month. It includes city water and it includes asphalt/concrete roads. A good development. The $1,200 monthly payment (I believe it is $1,260) is for a three-bedroom house—1350 square feet—with a lot of land 100 x 125 feet. These also include the insurance on the house, which has to be, they must have insurance. This particular cost would relate to a house with all appliances—stove, refrigerator, washer and dryer.

This sounds to be a good house for that size to me. Those homes would be there for those persons who want them and who can afford that type of home. But no one could be forced, in any way at all, to purchase one of them.

While they criticise the houses and they talk about Hugo Zeiderent and the other persons they mentioned, Mr. Kent Rankine and Mr. Antonio Hawkins, what Government is concerned about is that there is no good in building a house so cheap that within two years' time they are dropping down with no resale value. This is the sort of thing that Government is determined to keep away from.

We understood that there are projects to go anywhere in the country once the developer qualifies. The Ministry has been looking at a scheme in the district of West Bay.

Here is another scenario. A three-bedroom house—1600 square feet—will be sold for $93,000.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Made of cardboard?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: They say this could be made out of cardboard.

You see, Madam Speaker, what did I say just now? No matter what we try to do to please them, we cannot please them. When people believe they know it all, no matter how long I talk, I would not convince them. Yet we have checked the figures and this is a cement block house that can be done, the bank gave us the figures. Yet, he is doubting that.

You know what is wrong with the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman? Not much has been accomplished by him, and he thinks that everybody is in his bracket. Not so, Madam Speaker, not so.

They can criticise McKeeva. I am no contractor. But I guarantee the public that when this scheme is finalised the people of this country will be happy—those that wanted a home and were able to get one.

There is an old saying, Madam Speaker, the proof of the pudding... or, as they say in West Bay, the proof of the pudding is when you eat it. I am satisfied that we are on the right track.

That is a three-bedroom house, a smaller house and I should say $93,000 with insurance and land.

A two bedroom house, these are big bedrooms, 12 x 12 feet or there about. This, as I understand it from the banks, can be done for $68,000 inclusive of insurance and property. These are for people who do not have property.

They cannot believe it, they say. That is the Opposition. They ask why I did not say all of that in the press conference. I know what they said in the newspapers and what they are grumbling about—crossing the “t”s and dotting the “i”s—the language used by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Now, regarding this press conference, they are making a big thing about dotting the “i”s and crossing the “t”s, as the Member for George Town said, which I take to mean that we should have had a signed agreement before making any public statement about the nature of the scheme. The purpose of the press conference was to update the public, which was making continuous inquiries since last July, when Finance Committee authorised the guarantee. But this press conference also served the purpose of allowing the public the opportunity to comment on the scheme and to provide input.

Based on the genuine response the Ministry has received, as a result of the press conference, the scheme will meet the needs of people, their hopes and aspirations.

The scheme is accessible, that is, there is no stipulated down payment, although if they have a down payment they will be expected to make it. The scheme will be affordable, that is, it is designed to meet the ability of the borrower to repay the mortgage, whether that person is making the $60,000 or the combined $25,000, they will have to build within their means.

Furthermore, participants will have a choice of using any developer or contractor who is approved by Government. That is worth repeating.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town, who is in hiding this morning, made the allegation of political patronage in his attempt to discredit the Ministry and the Government, that Government's approval of contractors and developers, borrowers and banks will be used for political patronage.

Madam Speaker, Government's approval of the developers, contractors and banks is a condition which Government sees as prudent to ensure good quality. If this is not good control, then I do not know what it is. But I say it is good control. And I say it is good management. But you know Madam Speaker, the good Bible says “As a man thinketh, so is he.” This is what they would do, perhaps, if they were in charge. God help us if they ever get to that point.

I have no political favours to repay, Madam Speaker, except my bound duty to the people who elected me in West Bay, and to the country at large by my representation on Executive Council, As far as our needing him at the election (I believe those were his words), he is whistling in the dark. I do not think that anybody who received the amount of votes that we did needed the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Certainly, he did not have to do anything for McKeeva Bush in West Bay. I do not think he had to do anything for those people in George Town who received over 2,000 votes. And I would like to crow a little bit about that, because it is not often that this little boy, as they like to say, who does not have their education can go to the public and get over 80% of the votes. Madam Speaker, I can hold my head high because it means that the people trust me. And it means that they have the confidence in me to do as I promised.

That is what we are doing, Madam Speaker. We operate on the basis of our Manifesto. I do not know who else needed him, but I did not need him to win. But, again Madam Speaker, the proof of the pudding will be in the tasting thereof, at another juncture in our life, to see who needed whom.

Madam Speaker, if a person is working as a store clerk or a restaurant employee and they can only afford to build a small Texture-111 house for $40,000, then that is what they should borrow. That is what we have urged them to do—borrow within their means. But do not expect to live in a $200,000 home. Do not expect to borrow $125,000. They have to be realistic.

If a person wants a three bedroom concrete house for $93,000, then they should be in the position to pay the required monthly repayments for that size house. If they want the two bedroom house for $68,000, they should be in a position to pay the required monthly repayment for that size house, and I quoted that earlier, and I believe it runs around $700 inclusive of insurance, land, and legal fees.

Madam Speaker, the scheme has enough flexibility if a person wanted to build a small Texture-111 house, they would be able to do that under the scheme, even if they do not have the land. They will get 100% financing.

I am convinced that the scheme will help our people to get homes and I do not know why the Opposition is trying so hard to discredit the issue and discredit the scheme. It is my opinion that their statements here and gossip on the outside has done nothing to help the situation. Certainly, they have not offered any sensible alternatives. All they do is give a few scenarios about who cannot afford to pay what. Talk is cheap Madam Speaker, and one thing that I give the Opposition 100% marks on is their ability to talk in flowery language. I give them 100% marks for that.

Madam Speaker, I want to touch on the aspect of the need for an independent review. In Government's opinion, the need for any intervention by the Auditor General at this time has not been demonstrated. No evidence of discrepancies has been presented, because there are none.

This scheme is being developed properly and with caution, as I have pointed out, while striking a balance between protecting, as far as possible, the interest of all parties; the lenders, that is, the banks; the borrowers; the public and its Government.

Madam Speaker, there is no need for any Select Committee, because what would a Select Committee do? To carry this scheme to a Select Committee would only delay it much further. I am too close to giving the people of this country a house, which they could not afford before because of not having the down payment, to allow the Opposition to delay it in a Select Committee and further compound the situation. They mean no good by what they are attempting to do.

Madam Speaker, in addition to injecting a considerable amount of capital into the economy—not Government's money but that of the private financial institutions—together with the multiplier effect (and estimates have put the multiplier effect at four times for the Cayman Islands) this Government is achieving many objectives with this scheme. What the Opposition is trying to do is derail the scheme, tie it up in a Select Committee so that nothing gets done. I will not allow this to happen. People need homes and we are going to see that they get them.

I well know that there are those people who oppose this Government, and they will do anything in their attempts to destroy us. The Opposition has not offered anything credible to better the position of the people. If we follow their line of thinking the country would be worse off and the poor people who need a house will not get one. That is what the Opposition wants.

Why do they not think about the positiveness of the scheme? I know what it is to be poor, Madam Speaker. I know what it means to need good shelter. I have been down that road. I say again, if they mean well, they would not be so contradictory to themselves. One time they say the liability is too much for the country, then they say use the Housing Development Corporation.

If Government went to the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce (CIBC) and said we want $15 million to borrow to put into the Housing Development Corporation. Government could get it because this Government has the credibility to get it.

Madam Speaker, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac made his interjection about the guarantee for the Hospital. I will leave that one alone, but suffice it to say that the country was saved when that happened. Let us recall, Honourable Members, that this same Government raised $20 million to pay off Cayman Airways Limited, which their friends, the former Government, could not do although they passed the Law.

If this Government wants to get $15 million from Barclays Bank, the Financial Secretary could do it, because we have the credibility and we have turned things around here in this country. But look at what it will do to the liability—the same thing that they claimed is too much—by borrowing $15 million to put into the Housing Development Corporation. It would be a total liability of $15 million. Then they say they have the interest of the people at heart. Not so, Madam Speaker! They are seeking to destroy and obstruct, not to assist. That is what they want—to slow things down so that we do not get anything done.

Does it make any sense, I ask, to talk about the liability as they spoke about it in the Resolution, being too large? But they say I, as Minister, must make a proposal to Government to use the Housing Development Corporation where we would have to fund it completely. I say their kind of management is not needed. The country would sink under their leadership if we left them alone. I am determined to give them as good a fight as they are prepared to give me and as they have been giving me, because it is this Minister that has been under constant attack from them. I hear their nasty slurs, but, thank God, I can take it—it is like water on a duck's back. When I go to bed at night, I can sleep good.

But what the Opposition is saying concerning this liability makes no sense. You know, some of them should be the last ones to dare use the word "liability." When, for instance, Cayman Airways was used for all it could give, why did they not think about the liability then? What did we get for it? Peanuts! Why do we not hear anything about that kind of liability?

To sum up, I do not believe that the Motion is genuine at all. It has wild allegations with nothing of substance, except for those things that are in quotes from the Finance Committee. Everything else is allegations and pure assumptions. Therefore, I can only adduce that the Opposition does not want the scheme to succeed because they do not care about the poor people that will be assisted under this scheme.

They care about people who can get homes for $200,000...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order, Honourable Member.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, Erskine May, page 381, "The imputation of false or unavowed motives." I think the Honourable Minister has been doing that for the past several minutes. So I ask for your ruling on it.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, would you please avoid any allegations or imputations against another Member which cannot be proven?

Would you please continue your debate?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, thank you very much. I am dealing with their allegation of official falsehood. They were the first ones to make that in here, on the first page of the Caymanian Compass. If there is any falsehood it is their erroneous statements, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I dealt with that yesterday and I made a ruling about official allegations. That cannot be brought in again this time, please.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. What I would further ask you to do, when there is a ruling which shows that a Member should not have done it, is to make the newspapers understand that that is struck out. Instead, here it is carried on the front page of the Caymanian Compass.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I have no control over the media.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, you have treated me kindly in this debate, and I do not want to get into any hot water with the Speaker. But we do control the House, and what is carried from it should be fair and factual.

In any event, Madam Speaker, the Opposition is the opposition. And if they cannot take the heat, they should get out of the kitchen. They make wild allegations, and the Resolution in itself is erroneous and full of assumptions. If it is not downright misleading, then it is dirty politics. That is my accusation to them. They do not want to help the poor people of this country.

I say to them, get off your campaign of hate, spite and obstruction and produce something constructive. Not for self-aggrandisement, not for supporters and friends, but for the general public, because that is what William McKeeva Bush is doing, and that is what the Government is doing.

If someone chooses to support us because they got a home, well that would be their business. But certainly, Madam Speaker, it cannot be pointed and blamed on the Government that we are using it for political patronage, by saying that they will get a house if they vote for the Government or they will get into the scheme if they vote for Government. Far be that from the truth. We are assisting the entire country regardless of where their political allegiance lies. All we say, when it comes to the lenders, is that they must be a Class A Bank. All we say when it comes to the borrowers is that they must borrow within their limits, have a job and be able to qualify. All we say about the developers, is that they must stand the test of credibility.

Madam Speaker, to sum up finally, let me quote again some of the basic conditions for the developers, land owners, or contractors to participate in the scheme:

1. The majority must be Caymanian ownership.
2. They must have possession of a valid business licence.
3. They must be reputable with a good track record.
4. They must have suitably priced land for the type of scheme which meets the standard of the Central Planning Authority.
5. They must be prepared to provide the bridge financing for each home to be constructed until it is taken possession of by the owner.

Madam Speaker, those are some of the main requirements for developers, landowners, or contractors to participate in this scheme. They must be able to qualify through one of the Banks that Government will be dealing with

When it comes to the borrowers:

1. They must be Caymanians or a Caymanian and a non-Caymanian spouse.
2. They must have a combined annual income from the time of application which does not exceed $60,000 per annum.
3. Payments on the mortgage must be what they can afford within their income bracket; and
4. Only the primary job income will be considered, except in an unusual circumstance.

This is another plus, because most of the banks regularly only apply the primary job. We say there could be other circumstances where we need to help a poor person.

The bank will take a first charge on the property and Government will take a second charge in respect to its guarantee and the property owner will be required to have and maintain an approved fire and all perils insurance to cover replacement. The primary borrower will be required to have a life insurance policy to cover the mortgage.

In exercising due diligence, the banks will need to receive satisfactory written credit references, as well as employment and income verification letters.

Obviously upon receipt of an application for a guarantee from any of the banks in this scheme a small Committee of Government will assess each case individually and respond to the bank within five days of receiving an accurate and completed application. Providing all things are (using the words of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town) Kosher, then they should have their mortgage within two to three weeks at the most.

Madam Speaker, the people in this country who need a house can call my Ministry, the Ministry for Community Development, Youth Affairs, Sports and Culture. When all of the little loose ends are tied up I will be making a further announcement giving all of the final details. There will be a press conference for the signing of the agreement between the banks and us.

Madam Speaker, the prospective borrowers can safeguard their future themselves by building homes within their means. I have known persons to be unrealistic and try to do too much, go beyond their financial means and get into trouble. I have seen that many times and I have been called upon to assist in one way or the other. I am urging our people to build according their means.

It should be very obvious that the Government is trying to address the needs of the population in the area of housing beginning with this initiative. Such undertaking can only hope to succeed if all parties concerned are prepared to do their part—that is, the lenders, the borrowers, the developers, the contractors and the Opposition. If they are not prepared to act responsibly then no matter how much Government, or the banks, the developers or the contractors do, the scheme cannot succeed.

Through the careful assessment of the lending institutions, a very prudent debt-ratio, ongoing financial counselling, and a good working relationship amongst all parties, hundreds of Caymanians will soon be able to realise their long term dream of owning their own homes. We are confident that their enhanced pride, as a result of this ownership, will prevent the prophecy of defaults or foreclosures that was made by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, and his colleagues, which will result in a stronger social fabric for these Islands—Grand Cayman and our Sister Islands, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

I do not worry about these foreclosures, because if somebody got into a little problem I believe there would be sufficient to help them. I have faith in my Caymanian people. I believe that they trust me, and I have faith in them that if they qualify for a loan and get a shelter whether it is a small one or one that is for $125,000, they will be honourable. I have faith in my Caymanian people. The Government is doing everything we can to assist them.

Madam Speaker, I know that the Opposition will have the last say on this Motion, and I have taken much personal criticism when they have had the last say. I hope Madam Speaker, that the Opposition will be truthful. When they do that all else will follow. I have been truthful to them and to the country. If they try, in any way, to smear my name I have the prerogative of making a statement, and I will do it as I have done in the past.

Thank you very much, Madam Speaker, for your indulgence and I thank Honourable Members for theirs. I hope now that we can move forward, that they will give it time to succeed rather than to be purveyors of doom and gloom.

Thank you very much.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.49 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.09 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues. [PAUSE] The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I have listened very keenly to various speakers making their contributions to the Motion that we are now debating, and I wish to take this opportunity to comment on a few points that were raised before I go into my contribution.

Madam Speaker, there are a few areas that I wish to make some comments on in the contribution made by the Minister for Education and Aviation. In part of his contribution, the Minister for Education and Aviation said, and I quote: “That, in effect, means that there will be no housing scheme, because by the time this matter gets into the Auditor's Report for next year and is dealt with, and by the time the Select Committee, which is very slow and usually detailed, especially where the power to call for, as it states here 'input from relevant financial, legal entities and members of the public' rolls on, we are looking at several years. In the meantime there are young families out there who are suffering because of the Opposition's approach to stop what has to be one of the best things that has happened to the young persons who are now renting and/or without homes."

He has the right to hold any opinion. But I wish to make him know that since I have been classed as the Opposition, having seconded the Motion, I have no reason to want to bog anything down for the years that he is talking about. A Select Committee is as effective and timely as its members allow it to be. If he is used to Select Committees lasting for years, maybe I (the inexperienced fledgling that I am) am not very sure if that is the way it should be.

It is my opinion that a Select Committee on a matter such as the one we are debating today, could easily be dealt with in two or three sittings and, although everyone has other responsibilities, I do not subscribe to the position that this has to take years.

The fact is, if we had gone into a Select Committee when the original Motion was brought in September, then we would probably (and very likely) be well on our way with all the facts in front of us without anyone having to feel their way through. That is my opinion.

The Honourable Minister has also said, "There are people out there that the Government will look at in a different way, but it is a much smaller group of people. So it is better to get a larger group granted loans than to stop everything and hurt the majority of people out there in an effort to gain votes and to bog this venture down in a Select Committee of the whole House with a full hearing mechanism as has been set up in the Motion." Again, opinions are opinions, and I have mine.

Madam Speaker, it is my considered opinion that the larger group of people that exists out there are not the ones who will be able to be granted these loans we are talking about at present. I believe that it is the exact converse to what the Government bench is holding to be true, and that is part of what I might call my beef.

I believe that the structure which has been dribbled out to us information-wise, is not geared to middle and lower income families, but to middle and (if there is such a word) "upper-middle level" families. I have to interject here to make it very clear. I have no problem with these people getting assistance once the proper mechanisms are set up.

It has been ranted and raved that people like myself do not want to see these people get homes. And just like each individual who spoke made their case, I too, make mine. Madam Speaker, nothing could be further from the truth with this individual. It just amazes me to hear everyone who is part and parcel of being proponents of the scheme continually talk about the poor people, the poor people, and the poor people.

The Minister responsible for Housing has said that the proof will be in the eating. I accept that, and I also know that. If this thing is done the way in which it appears, from what information I can get at this point in time, if it is done in that fashion then the proof will be in the eating of what level people get these homes.

It is all concept, Madam Speaker. If what was said from the very beginning, that the Government at present is not in a position to deal with certain levels, and it was made clear that what can be done speedily will only be geared towards a certain level—which in my considered opinion is the middle and upper-middle level income families or single parents—then there would have been no question about where the whole scheme was leaning. Just like the Minister (I will not say of all services, I will say the Minister responsible for Government) told me to shut up while he was speaking. I tell him now, you had your turn, will you leave me alone?

As I was saying, Madam Speaker. If the concept was laid out from the very first time it came into the Finance Committee Meeting and it was very clear exactly who the scheme was being geared towards, there would not have been any problem. But the mass confusion that the Government bench is saying is caused by things such as this Motion, I daresay has been caused by ineffective distribution of information from day one.

If they say that because I question the scheme it means that I would like to see the youth of this country get hurt, then all and sundry can go and fly a kite, because I stand here not to get the votes that I have been told about, but because I believe that I must fulfill the responsibility that has been given to me until such time it no longer exists. I believe that is what I am doing today.

The Minister for Education and Aviation said, and I quote: "My plea to the Members is to be reasonable, forget politics, forget about stopping and hurting the youth of this country. If they have no alternative, then they should not be destructive for the sake of politics and hurt the youth and people of this country who would like to have a home."

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Hear, hear!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I can only speak at this point in time for myself.

Madam Speaker, if this scheme was brought about in a timely fashion without a thousand ifs and without a million "don't know yet," then it is very likely I would not be standing here today with all these questions in my mind.

I must say right now that if nothing else has been achieved by what the Government terms this "wanton attempt" to bog the scheme down, then at least, finally, some information is being disseminated. At least we are beginning to understand—after they have changed about five horses—exactly which one it is that is going to the finishing line.

The very last speaker, in his contribution, talked about "this bitter campaign of hatred and spite..." I only wish sometimes that he could see in the mirror when he gets how he gets. I can assure him that I am on no bitter campaign and I have no hatred, nor any spite. While he speaks and says, what he calls, his truth, he has that right, but so do I.

The Minister talked about this scheme, that it will take some time to iron out the ends. The only thought that came to my mind when I heard him say that was that I would think you would iron out the ends of the shirt before you put it on, because it is very difficult to iron it out after you are wearing it. We should try that some time. That may seem to be in jest, but I think that exactly epitomises what has happened. It is simply, at this point in time, a case of the cart before the horse.

When the Minister is asking "Where are the alternatives?" and asks "What do you want?" all I want is to be able to see a full picture of exactly how something is going to happen, if it is something that is going to be dealt with at a national level. Even now, in his debate, there are still bits and pieces that are trickling down and if the question that I am raising is simply to the point where it only relates to the way in which something is done, then I think that bears enough relevance for us to think twice.

What kind of message are we sending to this country as a Government when the ordinary man on the street cannot understand what the Government is doing?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: (interjecting) You did not tell the truth.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I trust the Minister is not accusing me of lying.

In his last press conference regarding the Housing Scheme, the Minister had various announcements about various parts of the scheme. In his debate, he alluded that information received while being questioned at that press conference actually caused more amendments to the scheme when certain things were brought to light. But very early in his debate the Minister said that proper documentation was received (this is a sequence of events) before being passed on to Executive Council, being dealt with by the civil service arm of the Government, then passed on to Executive Council, then the resolution was brought to the Finance Committee.

But in the very last part of his debate, he is still telling us that very shortly negotiations will be completed and agreements will be drafted up. Which documentation is he talking about that was brought to Executive Council?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order, for clarification, if the Member will give way.

The Honourable Member stated that I had nothing from anybody to show that they had funds available and that sort of thing, he even injected that nothing had gone to the Financial Secretary or the Attorney General. I said that proper documentation had to come from those entities concerned before the matter could be taken to Executive Council. Therefore, the involvement of those persons mentioned, the Attorney General and the Financial Secretary. That is the documentation I referred to, not a legal contract by Government. But interest shown, as I have also said in the debate, from the banks and the company involved.

Thank you, very much.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, the Member kindly gave way. Otherwise I would not have allowed that statement. Please proceed Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, the Minister has explained what he was saying. I will go on.

In his explanation less than a minute ago he said that he had some type of communication from the banks and the company involved. I am assuming that he means all of the banks and the company involved, those that were mentioned in the Resolution.

Madam Speaker, the Resolution was brought to the Finance Committee Meeting in the month of July 1993. There was a Motion brought in the September Sitting of the House to go to a Select Committee because of so many unknowns regarding the scheme. The Minister had a press conference just over a month ago in May 1994, and I know that at least one of the banks involved—I K-N-O-W at least one of the banks involved—had no communication since July 1993 regarding any commitment for any funds for this housing scheme.

Then, I am told that I do not give enough time for things to be done and that I only want to bog down the system, that I do not want people to get houses. If I know things of that nature and do not ask questions, then I am not doing what I am supposed to be doing. That is all of my so-called beef about what is happening.

The very day after the press conference there was a Government Information Service Press release dated May 5, 1994, which reads (this press release is not confidential because it is a Government Information Services press release), and I quote: "For Immediate Release (MAY 5, 1994) New Government Housing Scheme'—The Ministry for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture has announced that persons interested in participating in the new Government Housing Scheme may obtain application forms from the manager of Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, Mr. Tony Conolly. Mr. Conolly will be available at his office in the United Paint Store at Paddington Place, off Eastern Avenue between 9.00 and 12 noon or at the model home of Silver Oaks between 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. The office number is...[so and so and so and]."

But still no agreement has been signed.

Now they can call me whatever they wish. They could tell me that I am a bog and I wish to bog down everything. They cannot tell me that this is done in the right fashion. I know that I am an idiot and if I weigh a little bit more than the Minister does, then that is why I am a bigger one. I know that!

[Member's laughter]

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, if truth be known—the same truth that I keep hearing about from everyone on that side—if it was done properly I would have no beef. But because there are inherent risks to all concerned, I have questions to ask. And because questions come, I hear that I want to bog it down. Instead of taking the time out to try and understand what I am asking and why I am asking, even if I am not eloquent and clear in my thought process, maybe it would be done the right way.

(sigh) Madam Speaker, it is going to be a long day, I promise.

I would like to paint a very hypothetical picture here and it will not take long. I am going to presuppose that there is a developer who has started a scheme in these Islands. Certain basic infrastructures are completed and the aim is to develop certain parcels of land so that at a juncture as it is seen fit, the developer says, 'It is time to make an announcement. Let me let the public know what I have for sale. Let me invite the public to make applications to see whether they are able to purchase what I have for sale.'

The developer goes about, all correct. The point in this instance, Madam Speaker, casts no reflection on whether things are done above board or not. There is no question about being done above board. No question of that!

The developer then advertises and within a matter of days (again, this is all hypothetical) there are 60 applications from individuals, or families, who wish to purchase a house or an apartment as the case may be, depending on their choice and what they can afford. The response is not overwhelming, but good.

At the end of the day, there is a problem because by the time they are processed and dealt with at the level the bank requires, out of the 60 applications only four qualified. So the developer finds himself in a quandary.

There is the thought of 'How can I get this to work?' These people are decent people, they have steady jobs, but they do not have the equity. 'I wish I knew what I could do.' Somewhere behind every cloud there is a silver lining. 'I am sure that if I could get the people going they would be able to manage the payments. So I must find a way.' Time passes by. We understand that Government is looking to assist the people of this country by way of housing but they, too, are searching for something that is feasible and practical.

Suddenly, the answer appears. We have the right product, we have a reasonable price and if Government is prepared to assist those people who can qualify by way of filling the void that exists because of lack of equity, then we are home. There is nothing wrong with that. But then somebody starts to wonder, 'Is it not going to look a bit lopsided? Might fingers not be pointed? Let us re-examine this situation. Let us see if we cannot find a way in which there will not be too much flak and what the intention is will appear, which is to help the people of the country.' So we go about trying to deal with ways and means of putting a proper package together.

In the meantime Government has to organise that guarantee, otherwise it makes no sense to go any further with it. But, the wheels are turning, the minds are working and the show goes on.

One or two of us poor plebes who know nothing of this are asked to agree to a blanket guarantee for this scheme that is being put together. There are just a few of us who simply by lack of knowledge for whatever reason (I will not even suggest isolation for a second), simply ask 'Can we find out a little bit more about this scheme?'

'No, you cannot find out anything more because there is nothing more to tell at this time. We are planning this thing.'

'Can you at least give us some insight into how it is going to work?'

'No, that information is not forthcoming because those details have not yet been ironed out.'

Madam Speaker, I venture to say that, while that is a very hypothetical situation, just as the old time people say, "If it is not so, it is not far from being so." The question is not the scheme, it is the method.

I wish to quote from the debate on Private Member's Motion No. 4/93 in the September Sitting, some short excerpts regarding statements that were made about the development of a Low Income Housing Programme. I quote: "At this stage, the principal concept being explored is one of Central Government providing a 10 to 20 percent guarantee to back a percentage of the loan funds in these cases in place of initial equity..." (1993 Official Hansard Report, Vol. II, September 24th, 1993)

Madam Speaker, if it seems repetitious, I beg your indulgence, and the indulgence of the House, because my point is different from any that was made before. The request in the July Sitting of the Finance Committee Meeting reads: "Separate undertakings have been given by Cayman Affordable Housing (the Company), First Home Banking, First Cayman Bank and the Bank of Butterfield (the Banks), to provide sums of money for the purposes of mortgage financing to lower income Caymanians." (F.C. MINUTES, July 19th, 1993)

I have to keep stopping in order to make my points. The first two words in this request are "separate undertakings." The four entities involved, in my understanding of this, have given separate undertakings. I sat in this chair as a Member of Finance Committee and got this request and the separate undertakings had not been given. All rights to the scheme but the separate undertakings had not been given.

It goes on to say: "The Company would provide $17 million over a five year period, and two of the three banks..." The company, which in this instance is Cayman Affordable Housing. I am not going to start chiming in about Cayman Affordable Housing not existing, I understand all of that. What I do know is that the correction of the anomaly here has been given as Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, trading as Cayman Affordable Housing. If that is so it should be put on the Trade and Business Licence. It is not on the Trade and Business Licence. Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited has a Trade and Business Licence, so there is nothing about Cayman Affordable Housing. But even with all of that, if it is something that came up during the course of events, it is okay. I do not mind that.

The point that I continue to make—and the Minister responsible for Housing chides me for expecting the “i”s to be dotted and the “t”s to be crossed—this is a Government, this is not a small privately run business. This is not any of the businesses that any of us here may be involved with. This is the Government of this country. Do not tell me the “i”s should not be dotted and the “t”s should not be crossed. If I lose my little company, it is I. But if the Government loses something it is the country! Do not give me that.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Hear, hear!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If the “i”s need not to be dotted and the “t”s need not be crossed, why are we here?

Why are we on this side? Supposedly to be the check and balance. And why does the Government bench exist? The policy makers who are to ensure that the confidence they talk about which has been bestowed on them is kept vibrant.

The request goes on to say: “Clients would be provided with 100 percent financing for their home, building or purchasing costs, the maximum level of which would be set at about $80,000. Assistance with stamp duty and transfer fees would be considered in exceptional circumstances. [All right] In order to make the 100 percent financing possible, thus avoiding the need for the client to find the usual down payment, Government would provide a guarantee of between 10 and 35 percent, depending on the circumstances.” (1993 Official Hansard Report, VOL. II, 24th September 1993)

In the press conference that was held in the Town Hall, the Minister, as he explained earlier today, having given it due consideration has raised the maximum level of these mortgages from $80,000 to $125,000. In tandem, and out of necessity surely, the ceiling for annual income has been raised from $50,000 to $60,000 to accommodate the increase in the mortgage. Fine!

But then, Madam Speaker, the Minister is going to stand up and tell poor little me, God willing, that will be a part of the next Finance Committee Meeting, that there is good reason for all of that so when it is time for Finance Committee to meet again he is going to take poor old Mr. F.S. to bring it through to us to get us to rubber stamp it. Is that good Government?

That is the whole point that I made here today.

They can say what they want. They can do what they want. They cannot tell me this is good Government. Bring it to the Finance Committee and call us at 12 o'clock in the night to come. Then go and announce it. Then it is right. That is my point.

[Interruption from the Gallery]

The Speaker: There should be no interruptions from the public gallery. I will ask the Serjeant-at-Arms to remove any person who makes a noise.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, I have simply used those few points and if there was a Bible and it was not wrong, I would swear on that today.

No matter how it sounds or what it seems like, this attempt is simply to show all of us why we should do certain things in the right way. There are 99 times when all will go well and the one time that something goes wrong, none of us here today knows how wrong that wrong will be. That is my point.

I wish everybody could get a house. I wish we could find ways and means to satisfy all needs. But I am practical too, and I know that with limited resources there are only certain things that will happen within certain given periods of time. That is not my beef.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, it is now one o'clock, the usual time when we take the luncheon suspension.

Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.58 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.32 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Continuing from when we took the luncheon break, and having had lunch and thought some more, I begin to wonder if there are those who might still hold the view that people like myself do not wish to see any type of national housing scheme to assist our locals in home acquisitions. Suffice it to say that when this is all over I do not believe the issue will be whether or not we should assist our people, but I believe the issue will be how best we can achieve this.

I keep hearing that some people simply wish to bog the scheme down and those who wish to do so offer no alternatives. Let me first of all draw a few comparisons to prove the distinction between the housing scheme and the low cost housing scheme which has been mentioned throughout the scheme from its inception.

The Minister who is responsible for housing has stated categorically during his contribution to this debate that the concept is one which, simply put, caters to individuals in such a way that they acquire and own what they can afford. If it were as simple as that, believe me, I would have no problems with it. To me, what that means is that the scheme is developed in such a way that each and everyone has an opportunity to put a roof over their head.

The way a bank usually operates (and I am confident that they are not going to operate in a different way this time) is that whatever the total cost is, the onus falls on the proposed borrower to come into that lending institution to outline the costs that will be incurred to either purchase or build the home that is desired, and in so doing that individual must display to the lending institution that the monthly cost of repayment for whatever the set period of time is, that they are in a position to make those payments.

My contention is that there are many, many people in this country, and here I wish to interject, to make another quotation. During the September sitting, when Motion No. 4/93 was being debated, the Minister stated: “Madam Speaker, each prospective borrower will be carefully screened by each lending institution as independent agents. The lenders will nominate the clients to Government whose appointed agency, the Housing Development Corporation, will examine each application and confirm to Government whether the case merits the application of a Government guarantee.”

“If we are going to build up this country we are going to have to lift our people out of the slums that some of them are in. We are going to have to help those who cannot come up with their down payment.” (1993 Official Hansard Report—Vol. II, page 633)

I stand here this afternoon in total agreement with the statement insofar as it says, “If we are going to build up this country we are going to have to lift our people out of the slums...” Many of these people that were referred to during this contribution, the way the proposed scheme is set up, not only many of those people, the majority of those people the way the scheme is set up, I daresay, will not be able to qualify.

What has happened, and this is not the dream that I dreamt, this is what I have heard out of some of their own mouths, is that insofar as the scheme exists today, having announced it and having told people to go and make these applications, there is nothing in outline or in detail which allows any chance of these people getting their own homes, at any level whatsoever, because, simply put, the scheme is not geared for these people.

The point that I make with this, Madam Speaker, is they should have been made to understand that from day one. I do not think that I err in saying that the majority of these people have gathered the opinion from the onset that there is hope, this is it, it is my turn now. Madam Speaker, it will not happen.

I know and I accept that it is not an easy task for us to sit down and come up with a scheme that is safe and practical that will cater to these people. But I want every one of us here this evening to understand that, unlike what some of us might believe, there are many more of these people that really exist than we seem to think.

So, if we can find the correct way to clarify this situation, to let everyone know where they stand, I have no problem. But I suggest today, we have not done that. I think that they deserve to know where they stand.

My saying that they have not done it does not mean that I am trying to say that these people have deliberately been misled. I am not saying that, and I am not trying to infer that. I am saying that for whatever reasons, the way information has come out there are many of these people that are living in hope and we are not going to have anything to offer them.

Going back to the September sitting when debate ensued on Private Member's Motion No. 4/93. During his contribution, the Minister responsible for housing said: “The Construction Industry and other connected businesses will see a boost by this programme. The individual will be able to get a mortgage at 9 percent interest for up to 20 years, and I am hoping that we can go longer without putting up a down payment if he cannot put up that down payment, and Government will monitor the programme.” (1993 Official Hansard Report—Vol. II, page 636)

I have aired the fear on more than one occasion that in schemes of this nature many of the individuals who participate, or who attempt to participate, are what I would term (for lack of a better word) borderline when it comes to eligibility. That is only natural, because if they were not borderline, they would not need a scheme of this nature. These repayment schedules, and at this juncture I have to deal with the four sets of dwellings referred to by Frank Hall Homes, Ltd., because the repayment schedules for some of these is public knowledge.

For a three-bedroom house, with a total cost of $112,250, which includes mortgage costs, bank fees, etcetera, the monthly mortgage payment is $1,043.38. I just picked that one out because that was the first one that came to mind—there are some that are lower—but, just to use that one, the repayment schedule is worked out at 9%. Since this repayment schedule was calculated, prime rate has gone up by 1.25% in a matter of a maximum of three months. I am not a prophet, I cannot be safe in any forecast, but historically, when there is an upward trend in interest rates, they tend to continue upwards for some time, just as when there is a downward trend, we notice the same sequence of events.

A payment of $1,043 today, calculated at 9%, if history proves itself to be correct and three years from now interest rates are 15%, and here again I am not fabricating these figures I will not go to the set, but anyone can go and check it out. The difference in the regular monthly payment, which is $1,043 today, and three years down the line, having been making these payments, if that interest rate goes up to 15%, the difference can be as close as $375, so much so that you can say $375. That puts the payment in excess of $1,400 per month. Are we saying that these borderline people will not have a problem with these payments? I do not know who is prepared to say that, but I certainly will not. These are the inherent questions that we need to sit down and work out.

Someone will come back and say, ‘Well, you know the market forces exist at all times and you cannot dictate what rates are going to be.’ I know that. That is why I am making the point. So, the person who is only interested . . . and you cannot blame these people. Their only interest at this time is to acquire a home and they have every right for that to be the first and foremost thought. Having gotten the home they have no leeway whatsoever and things can happen to them in a short time. These people can be in a lot of problems.

What I have just pointed out may not seem to be very important. Maybe I am old fashioned. Maybe I am too conservative at some points in time. But it is my humble belief that if we are going to be leading our people down the path of righteousness must we not at least ensure that we have thought the whole process through so that we can minimise the chances of their falling into a rut?

I raised the question before about fixed interest rates and I fully understand that the Minister for Education brought out in his contribution the point about not being able to fix interest rates at the banks because the banks are taking other peoples' money, and over long term periods there would be difficulties in fixing interest rates. I totally understand that. But I have been made to understand that $17 million out of the total $23-odd million dollars that will be available over this five year period will be made available through a private entity. It is my opinion that if a private entity is prepared to invest $17 million into a housing scheme, which Government is prepared to guarantee up to 35% of that lending, then if the risk is spread by Government, as far as 35% of that total lending, Government must have some leverage with regards to the interest rates.

I am sure that one of the very reasons for this lending to occur is that the returns from such business ventures are greater than one would get if one were simply storing the money in a bank. So, if the rate were even fixed at 10% with a five year review, then I think we are doing much better off for our people. I brought that case scenario assuming what I have read and heard—that $17 million is being made available by a private company. If that is not really the case, then my argument goes down the tubes. But if that is not the case, I care not to bring that argument. I only bring that because that is the way I have been told that a part of the scheme will work.

The other problem with the scheme that immediately comes to my mind is that if the individuals participating are in the majority of cases borderline, some of them, in fact, not being able to come up with a down payment (and that has been hit home hard throughout the debate), the whole idea is to be able to assist a lot of people who are able to make payments but because of continual commitments with rent, and such the like, cannot save a down payment. If that is the case, that means to me that many of these individuals do not have any money to offer because they have just not been able to save. I understand that, I have been there.

They get a mortgage, they get a house usually that comes with hard appliances. Madam Speaker, where are these people going to get furniture from to live in their house? If they do not have any funds to offer down payments, to me it means that they are going to have to find some other institution to engage in some other borrowing to be able to acquire furniture. If they are stretched, equity wise, to the limit, then I see them having big problems getting a loan for their furniture.

Again, I simply make this point, not to bog it down, as some might think, but I make the point that if we are going through with this scheme, then we have to think of these things. I honestly believe that there are going to be many individuals who are going to fall into that category. It might well be a sensible school of thought to sit down and try to work out a package that includes everything. For if someone acquires a home and they can cook and bathe and wash their clothes, but have nothing to sleep on, I do not really see that working.

That point, again, is simply to try to be realistic with the way that this scheme will have to work—if it is going to be a realistic one for the people. I now come to the agreements that the lending institutions might come up with. I think earlier on the Minister said that they might be in the final stages of that, hopefully within the week they should have those agreements pretty well sewn up satisfactorily to both parties.

I wish to paint another very small picture. It is my humble opinion that these lending institutions are not going to put themselves into any precarious position in their offer. I think it is a fair assumption that what it is going to boil down to is simply that whatever criteria they use to engage in lending on their day-to-day basis, they will literally do just about the same, with the exception that the equity which they require normally (and it varies from institution to institution, but to take a mid-range, let us say if they required a 20% equity—I think that is fair), in the proposed home would include the land value and the home value on completion. Then the only difference that would probably occur is that they will say that they will interview the individuals. Based on Government's filling the void equity-wise with a guarantee, once they can satisfy themselves that these individuals can make the repayment schedule, then everything would be all right and we would process these individuals through. Once Government is satisfied, they will offer the guarantee and the banks will, in turn, offer the lending. I do not think that that is an unreasonable assumption.

If that is the case, it is my belief that just about every commercial bank in town that handles mortgages will not have a problem with operating in this fashion. I say that to make the point that while the Minister says that there were only the named institutions that were interested, I believe that other institutions probably did not know anything about it. So, as he stated later on in his contribution, if others want to join in so to speak, they are free to do so.

I am only saying that I believe that any agreement made with any commercial lending institution is an agreement that will basically suit one and all. I, for one, do not believe that it has to be limited to the commercial banks that have been named. Where I have a problem—I do not know if anyone else has a problem with it—and I honestly do not know what has been signed and what has not been signed, but in a proposed agreement where in section 3 the guarantor's obligation (and in this instance the guarantor would be the Government), there is a subsection which reads: "The guarantor shall not enter into any other scheme during the term [the term as I heard it is five years] with any other developer for the provision of guarantees for the construction or purchase of unit."

I sincerely hope it has not been signed yet. What I just read is not for me to make any accusations, but I bring out the point again, that when there are problems of this nature, all I am saying with the greatest of respect is, let us sit and talk about it, thrash it out properly before we get caught with our pants down.

I did not shout and go on about that a while ago because I sincerely do not want people to get the wrong impression. But, when I see something of that nature, and it comes to my mind that there is some remote possibility that we might get caught in something like that, I think we should talk about it.

Madam Speaker, I truly wish not to end on a note of negativity, which is how some people think that the thought process is, but, I will quickly summarise by saying that if the Government intends to make sure that whatever they engage in, agreement-wise or contract-wise, with any private entity is done in the proper manner (as I believe they do), then whatever might be thought of me is irrelevant. I trust they have understood what I have said.

But it goes a bit further, Madam Speaker. Bad habits are acquired easily. If we do not stop and check ourselves now with procedure, we might find ourselves not noticing how things are being done and might end up not being able to cover ground that we should have covered before, after the fact.

Madam Speaker, this Motion that I have seconded on this occasion is simply a repeat attempt, in my mind, to ensure that all questions that can be raised are raised, and not just answered, but dealt with before we, at a national level, engage ourselves into any housing scheme.

For those who are not convinced of my intentions, they will have to stick with their beliefs. I still say to them, whatever you think of me, try to make sense out of what I have said. I only wish the end result to be what is best for all concerned. I certainly hope that if the thought is to really help those people who need it most in this country, there will be a reassessment as to how it is structured. If we have to divide the scheme into phases, I certainly do not have a problem with that. But, what I have not been able to accept is to hear that this is a middle to low income scheme and the hundreds of people who would not otherwise be able to be helped, that will be helped, I have really tried my best to examine what information I have been able to gather, Madam Speaker, and I do not see us achieving that as this scheme is.

Therefore, the Government will have to do as it sees fit. But, again, I hope that they might take stock of all the various positions.

Before I close, Madam Speaker, let me make a personal admission. I know that it is very difficult for me to admit, especially in a public forum, that the way I have dealt with a certain matter was not really the right way—I really could have dealt with it in a different manner and gotten some better results. So, with that in mind, I am not asking for anything to be said. I am asking for it to be done. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, after hearing such an incredulous attack on Government, I cannot just sit down here and warm my seat. In local parlance, I simply cannot "sit down heh."

Madam Speaker, I have listened to the seconder of the Motion and all I have heard since he started is absolutely nothing but ballyhoo. I have long detected the difference between a voice and noise. I have heard nothing, absolutely nothing, that makes me feel that it is worth taking this suggestion of taking the Housing Scheme to a Select Committee.

The Government has a well thought out agenda and I believe that the public is fast becoming aware of that. The Government has an agenda and we intend to stick to it. If we realise that the best thing to do is to fulfill our campaign promises, to do what we promised the people, then this is one thing that we should do. We have promised the people that we will provide them with housing, and housing they will get. This is what this whole scheme is about, the provision of housing for many, many people, and believe you me there is a long queue waiting.

Ever since this was announced back in July 1993, I have been swamped with callers asking when will this be ready. Now, the public hears that this is going to be referred to a Select Committee, and perhaps nothing is going to come of this for quite a considerable time, as we heard from the Minister for Education. I believe him, because I am fast learning since being elected to this House, that if you want to slow up anything, just refer it to Select Committee. I believe that the urgency of this situation is such that we cannot give in to the Opposition who basically do not understand what is going on in Government, it seems.

Now, I do not believe it is always the fault of Government, why they do not understand. I believe that they could get the facts if they really wanted to. But, unfortunately, for some reason they do not understand all the facts. Perhaps they do not have access to the facts, I do not know. But, because of ignorance they have decided to bring this Motion to the House which will only affect our people adversely.

Any good Government will remain sensitive and responsive to the wishes of their people and, moreover, to the needs of their people. That is what good Government is all about. I believe that in this instance that is exactly what we are doing. The days of roughshod Government, in my mind, are over in Cayman. I do not believe the public will allow that anymore in Cayman. I do not believe you have seen Opposition yet in this House like you will see if this Government sours or flounders on us, because I can guarantee the public there will be real, real forcible Opposition in this House.

Madam Speaker, from an early age I learned that what binds people together and what makes groups work together is not so much common objectives and goals, but it is common values. I believe that one of the reasons why there is so much cohesion, and why it is so hard to touch the integrity of the National Team, is that so many of us share very common values.

Ours is not the kind of "crazy glue" cohesion that exists in some sectors. Ours is a comfortable camaraderie based on mutual respect and the realisation that this country depends on us and that every hand is needed on deck. What I see is a Government that has been working steadily through sometimes unfavourable circumstances, working hard, sometimes into the late hours of the night trying to make sure that sensible policies are implemented.

Moreover, I do not believe that the public can say that there has ever been a Government that believed in so much public participation as this one. The public, because they are part of the planning process, for instance in health, education, and so on, often the plan and the decision that we arrive at is what they want. The Governments will come and go, but the public is here to stay.

Madam Speaker, I believe this Motion appears here simply because of ignorance of the facts. I watched the seconder of the Motion, and in his kind of Perry Mason style, he tried to convince us and the listening public that this whole thing is something contrived. Step by step he tried to hypothesise and he tried to show us that these were perhaps the things that led up to Government's decision to become involved with Frank Hall Homes, or whoever.

The fact is, if Frank Hall Homes wants to provide housing for people in the Cayman Islands, especially at such terms over a 20 year period, is it sensible for Government not to accept it? I wish to God that other people would join forces with Frank Hall Homes and provide even more housing for people in the Cayman Islands. That is what we need, people who will put their money where their mouth is.

As I listened, the seconder also said that to his surprise one of the banks has not even been contacted since July last year. I decided that I would make a call to the Principal Secretary of the Ministry and he has confirmed that not on one occasion, but on many occasions, Government has met with all of those banks. This has been talked about and they are trying to thrash things out and get things organised so that everybody can benefit—every person looking for a home could eventually get a home.

Why should he come inside this House and try to give the impression that Government has not been doing their work correctly and has not even contacted the banks? If I really thought that Government was working in this way, I would not even want to be associated with a Government like that. But the Government is obviously working in a systematic fashion to bring this thing to a head where people can benefit and I think it is very wrong for him to come in here and carry on the way he has.

The next thing, Madam Speaker, is that I thought he was really coming out with some profound statement when he said, "this is the point that I want to make..." and what was the point? It is such bad government for Government to take something to the public in a press conference before they get approval in Finance Committee. I never heard anything so ridiculous in all my life.

Government realises that they have a strong Backbench and a Backbench that will agree with them and push as hard as they can to get things done when it is necessary to do so, and they hear the other side of us when we do not agree.

Up until this point in time, there have been virtually no instances where the Backbench of the Government, those of us who really have supported the Government, had to come in this House and make a hullabaloo because we had no reason to do so. But, like I said before, whenever the occasion arises and it is in the interest of the public, this is not a Government or a Backbench that is solidly glued together because of any other reason than goodwill and interest of the public and we are going to protect the public's interest in every way that we can.

Government, as I said, has a very strong Backbench. They meet on a regular basis with the Backbench and discuss all of these things with the Backbench. They hear our opinions on it long before it comes to this House. I have lots of questions for them at times, even about this Housing Scheme. I have had lots of questions and I am glad to say that the information was provided and I am perfectly satisfied that if it goes ahead there are many people to benefit and that it is a good thing and that for once and for all, we will try to get something off the ground without it taking years and years and nothing comes of it.

If there is anything in this debate that I can consider as being of any benefit, it is that, perhaps, there are some people in the public that may be listening and they will perhaps be a little better informed at the end of the day.

But the Minister had a press conference and he will have even more, and attempts will be made to inform the public—I am sure not just on one occasion but on other occasions, the public will be kept informed.

Things will be developed and fine-tuned to the point that we will have brochures similar to the Housing Development Corporation. But everything cannot be done at once. And, by the way, this Housing Scheme is not the only thing that Government is working on. There are lots of things that the Government has to consider. But given a little bit more time, I believe that anybody interested in getting a home will easily have access to all of the information and the steps that they have to take in order to get the mortgage money to get that home.

We understand from what the Minister said that there is a pool of money that has been created because of the interest of various organisations, the banks and, in this instance, Frank Hall Homes and, hopefully, more will be provided. This money is available for the people for mortgages and if they are interested in getting a mortgage and, like most of us know, there are many, many people crying out for mortgages because they do not have the down payment, they will either call the Ministry itself, or they will get in touch with the banks that are involved and they will be correctly directed.

Now, why is it that we have to bog this thing down by talking about minutia and lots of detail that we believe might go against the whole venture?

You know, Madam Speaker, the more I speak to some people, I see where there are those kinds of people who constantly find ways and means that will make a project not work, but there are other people who try to find ways to make it work and that is the difference.

What we have to do is try to find ways to make what is available to us work. We do not even have to try very hard in this instance because, as far as I can see and from what the Minister and other people who have been more intimately involved with this planning have told us, it is almost ready to go. So let us not try to hold it back. Let us get behind it and get it going in the interest of our people.

Sometimes, I am forced to wonder why there is such a negative reaction about the project. I have never met Mr. Frank Hall. I do not even know who he is. But you know I have respect for people like this, whether they come from abroad or are Caymanians who have that kind of interest. I personally could not even think of lending money out for 20 years. Even if I had it, I am not so sure that I would want to do it. So we have to give credit where credit is due. I think that Frank Hall and the banks need to be applauded by this Government rather than trying to imply that there is something going on that may not be in the best interest of everybody concerned.

I do not see where it is necessary to cast any form of doubt on this whole venture. We need to be very positive about it and ensure that it is the biggest success ever.

Madam Speaker, I remember some evenings in my home many years ago listening to the radio broadcast from this House. I would hear some things that I could not believe were coming from the Legislative Assembly. I remember things that Members of the former Government said, the positions that they took regarding housing and even regarding some other Members of this House. I found it despicable.

I remember one of those previous Members, in fact he was on Executive Council, how he tried to insinuate that a certain organisation was just out for gain, and that what the Opposition wanted to get done was only in their own self interest, all kinds of insinuations.

I could tell you a little story. You know it is common knowledge that we have a medical organisation on the Island that recently sold out almost 60% shares to this former Minister and to the notorious Bill Conti. I was told by two representatives from the South Miami Hospital how they were called into a little back room and these two people (namely, Mr. Conti and his local associate) said to them, "You know, if you are going to get us to do any business with you, we want to know what we are going to get up front. If we are going to refer patients over to South Miami Hospital, we want to know what we are going to get up front." That was the mentality of the former Minister when he was in here, and he still has that mentality.

We do not want that type of mentality to be perpetuated here and I do not think we have any fear of that—

The Speaker: Honourable Member, that does not have any bearing on Private Member's Motion No. 9/94, dealing with Low Cost Housing. Please get back to the contents of the Motion.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Madam Speaker, what I would like would be to see the scheme that we are discussing expedited, not retarded. In this respect, I must say that I would like to see Bills and Motions and everything being presented to this House or being given to Members of this House long before they are given.

I want to see the Legal Department working even harder than they are doing now so that we can have the kind of time that is necessary to peruse these various things that are going to come to the House. We first heard about this in July of 1993 and now it is almost July of 1994—almost a year—and it is time that this thing gets started.

I cannot agree with a Motion that is going to do anything to retard it. If anything, I want to see the work speeded up in the interest of our people, Madam Speaker. It was said before that one of the most beautiful things about this scheme is that there is no necessity for the prospective buyer to come up with a down payment because that is the crux of the problem at present—they can get monies from the banks, but they must come up with some down payment. This is how Government is helping with the whole thing. Because of that very fact that people who at present cannot buy their homes because they do not have the down payment will be able to get it. I am sure that the public appreciates that and I am sure that the public understands more what the Government is doing than some of the Members of the Opposition.

The Minister has told us that there have been some slight alterations with regards to the various specifications—instead of there being a ceiling of $50,000 on combined income, it is now $60,000. Houses can, in fact, cost up to $125,000. I have a feeling that there is a Member of the Opposition that would have liked it to be $200,000, because it would, perhaps, suit him better.

Madam Speaker, if a person can afford to pay for a $125,000 house, I would much prefer to see a person in a house like that than one of $50,000. The banks are going to make sure that the people do not borrow more money than they can pay back, and I do not believe that there are going to be all these foreclosures that these men of doom are predicting.

I believe that it will start on the right foot, and that it will continue on the right foot. There will be a few hitches but I do not think that they will be insurmountable. In the end, the majority of the people will be better off.

I would like to stress again, that the Government is the kind of Government (and I believe it will continue to be the kind of Government) that makes sure that the various things are thought out in a reasonable way. It is the kind of Government that believes in getting things done. That is what I have seen so far.

I want to put my energies to do what I can to assist the Government in accomplishing such things as this Housing Scheme. This goes very deep. This is something that I spoke to many people about long before I thought about running for office here. As we campaigned, and after getting in, there were many people who come to us and told us about the problems they are having with housing.

I believe that the goal and the objective of the Opposition is the same as the Government in terms of getting the houses for the people. But, if they want the houses, let them do something to get them, not refer it to Select Committee. Have an open talk with the Government Minister and say what you think is wrong with it, or what is right with it, and the little things that perhaps need to be ironed out, just tell them about it. You do not have to come into the Legislative Assembly and waste precious time here talking about those kinds of things. There are more important things. And rather than me waste any more time here, Madam Speaker, I will shut up.

I will be supporting this Motion. It is a very badly needed scheme, long overdue. They can say anything they want about the Housing Development Corporation, that has served a purpose but it has not served the needs of everybody in this country.

This will not serve the needs of everybody either, but it is a step in the right direction. Those people who do not qualify for a loan, I believe that the Government is going to be innovative enough to come up with ways and means of assisting those poorer ones.

I am not a man of a lot of words, Madam Speaker. I believe the public and that you understand the angle I am coming from and I sincerely hope that such Motions will never be brought to the House again in the future.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.47 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.09 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 9/94. The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I know we are almost to the end of the day. In order for the Opposition to have prime time in the media, I will try to end the debate today so that they can have their prime time early Monday morning.

In looking at this Motion, I am not sure what the discrepancies are that are spoken about in the first resolve. I did not hear what the discrepancies were in the present situation in the debate by the Mover and the Seconder, but I can only assume that they are questions and rumours that the public is faced with—mostly coming from them.

When the Minister for Housing had his press conference in the Town Hall back in May, the room was filled with interested people who would like to have housing. Questions were asked, but only negative questions came from the Mover and the Seconder.

I do not object to questions, Madam Speaker. If one has questions and needs some answers, there is no problem with that. But negative questions just putting down the whole scheme was what took place at this press conference.

Their argument was that the interest rate should be negotiated; it should be fixed; it should be less than 3%. I think that they fail to realise that Frank Hall, trading as Cayman Affordable Homes, is putting up his money for 20 years. Government is not going to have to spend the $17.5 million that he is putting up. Frank Hall is putting this money up so that the Caymanian public can benefit from this. I think that we should all be thankful and grateful for this.

The Mover mentioned that we, the Backbenchers and the Government, were committing public funds for falsehood. I take offence to that, Madam Speaker. We are responsible representatives, we were elected as being responsible representatives. We are not going to commit public funds for falsehood. I do not believe that we intended to do this, and maybe he is not sure of all the questions, but, like the previous speaker mentioned, if he has questions, why not sit down with the Minister responsible for Housing and try to have some of these questions answered.

In the beginning, I too had questions and concerns. But over the past two weeks or so, I have been able to walk some of my constituents through the process. I have been to two banks. I have been to Frank Hall Homes and spoke with the manager there on two occasions on the telephone in addition to visiting him. The questions and concerns that I had, I think have been answered as well.

First of all, Government is not entering an agreement with Frank Hall Homes. The Government is entering an agreement with the banks that are involved. They call it a Blanket Guarantee. To me a blanket is something that covers one. It usually covers one up to their head. When one wraps up when they are cold, the blanket covers them. Government is only guaranteeing 35% of the loan. Therefore, it is not a complete blanket guarantee that they are referring to, it is only 35% of the loan.

The way I understand this is if Joe Ebanks, let us say, wanted to have a loan, he will go into one of the four banks that are mentioned (sorry, it is three here, and then we are also informed about Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce). He will go in, make an application. This, in turn, will go back to the Housing Development Corporation in order for him to obtain Government's guarantee. Now, the question was posed: Why do these funds that Frank Hall is putting up not go directly to the Housing Development Corporation instead of having to go to these banks?

I think a lot was said about the Housing Development Corporation, but it has really not filled the needs of the public because the funds were not available. I can understand why, because about two and a half years ago I was invited to a luncheon by the Housing Development Corporation at the Radisson, with about 15 other people. Needless to say, only about four or five people from the private sector showed up—with the Member responsible for Housing, people from the Housing Development Corporation and the Chairman, complete with video explanations and brochures, trying to solicit funds for the Housing Development Corporation. Of the other people from the private sector who were there, after the luncheon and the presentation, we were all reluctant to invest money into this Housing Development Corporation because of the Member in charge and knowing that it was going to be politically used.

If the Housing Development Corporation is kept out of this, with the funds, they are only going to review and make a recommendation and that is a statutory board. There is no way that politics can come into it and should not come into it if the Housing Development Corporation is handling and reviewing the applicants for Government.

I think the Mover and the Seconder have to realise that when people apply for a mortgage they probably already have a house plan that they would like to build, they will have some idea of what it is going to cost, who they would like to have build it and where they are going to build it. All of this will have been taken into consideration so that when they go to the bank these questions will be answered to the banker who, I am sure, will share these same concerns.

This is very important. The borrower will have a choice. They can build it anywhere in this Island, as well as Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, because it will be just like a regular loan. The only difference is that Government is guaranteeing the first 35% of the loan, without a down payment.

Maybe this is one of the discrepancies that the Mover and the Seconder do not understand. They can build it in an ongoing development, provided the developer meets the criteria that will be required by Government via the Housing Development Corporation. They can select the contractor provided, again, that that contractor is qualified and meets the requirements and has a Trade and Business Licence. All the requirements that are required by Planning to build a home, electrician and all the other contractors, and the applicant will have a choice of whom they would like to build their house.

This is one of the discrepancies (let us call, it since they used this term in the first resolve) that has been expressed—that you can only use Frank Hall Homes Ltd., to build your house. This is not correct. Whomever the borrower wants to build their home, and if they are qualified and have a Trade and Business Licence, they will be able to use. They do not have to purchase a home just from Frank Hall Homes or an apartment from Silver Oaks.

They can go and purchase a home if there is a home in Logwood Estates that a borrower would like to purchase, then they apply for the mortgage, once it is approved and they have the means to pay back that mortgage, then they will be granted a mortgage and they can purchase the home. Not only from Frank Hall, or Cayman Affordable Home, whatever you want to refer to it as, but the mortgage is available to the individual form any developer once it is in there. Three other developers, all reputable developers, apparently, and they have developed some nice homes. The borrowers will be able to get homes through those same developers.

The two homes that the Minister for housing mentioned that are going to be built for $62,000 and $93,000, they sound like they are affordable and the people that we are trying to help with getting a home should fall within that category. So, whoever those developers are, I am sure that the Caymanian public will be able to contract and get a home from them as well.

This is the whole idea behind the housing scheme. That we are hoping to provide homes for the Caymanian public. I must say that maybe lower income housing might have been the wrong term to use there, perhaps. According to some of the public it would have been better if we had said housing mortgages, or mortgages for a housing scheme. That might have been better than low income housing. However, some of those figures that were used were figures only from Frank Hall Homes that are available in Savannah Acres and for Silver Oaks Apartments.

Naturally, Frank Hall Homes would only have figures for their projects. It is up to the bank to help the applicant in coming up with a price that they are going to pay if they do not have a contractor to give them some idea. Therefore, those figures that were presented here in this House are correct, I have taken a look at them, but they are only for Frank Hall Homes. It is not only Frank Hall Homes that will be developing and building the Homes.

One of the things that I would like to share, which a previous speaker (I believe it was the Minister of Education) mentioned about young people being able to afford a home of their own, is that not only is it going to be our young people—he mentioned a couple as well. But out of the eight to ten people that I have been able to help and talk to, about half of them are single mothers. Some of them can meet the criteria for repaying the loan, unfortunately, some of them cannot meet the criteria.

But, as the Mover said, in the lower income housing, no scheme is perfect. Therefore, this is not a perfect scheme in meeting all the needs of the Caymanian public. Out of those constituents that I have been able to work with and answer some questions for, many of them have combined salaries. There was one with merely a $5,000 income, which means the husband and wife, the daughter and husband, and another sister were all going to put together and purchase a home. So, a lot of our people will be able to benefit in obtaining a home with combined salaries.

I believe, like the other Honourable Members of this House, that putting this to a Select Committee is only going to push back the availability of this scheme becoming a reality. I do not know what other standards, requirements and guidelines are needed, I think everything has been explained fully. As representatives we are certainly not going to require that the public will have to pay for all of this without contingency fees being put in place as the Minister mentioned.

One last thing. What I understand with Government being the guarantor of the first 35%, in the event that there is a foreclosure—and apparently there are going to be lots of foreclosures, according to the Movers of this Motion—how Government fits into this scheme if they are the guarantors and have to be called upon to pay back the loan, Government will not allow the house to be sold for just what is outstanding.

It only makes sense, ethically and morally, that Government meets and sees that the criteria is carried out, that the house is sold for the value of the house and property in order for the borrower, if there are funds that perhaps they will be able to get some of those funds back if the house is sold for the value.

Therefore, if it does foreclose I do not see that Government will have to come up with any funds if this is the situation. The house will be sold and I am sure that there are other people who will be eager to find a house that is already built. The house will be sold for the value, then the individual, more or less, will be able to get out of the mortgage and, so what if they have to start all over again? Certain things come up, no one wants to lose their house. That is their pride and joy. But if certain events take place and they are not able to come up with their mortgage payment, that is not the end of the world if they have to sell that house and meet the loan payment.

But I believe that all of this is there into the scheme and if these are some of the concerns that the two Members have, perhaps they could then sit down with the Minister for Housing and go over some of these concerns and try to get them answered. But with all of these resolves here, I find it hard to support this Motion because this is not in the best interests of the Caymanian public.

The previous speaker mentioned that we are fulfilling our promise to see that a housing scheme is put in place. If we stop this now, we will probably be put out of office before this goes through the Select Committee. As you know, Select Committees have a way of getting bogged down and if it has to go to the Auditor General and a report coming back to the House and then we have to invite housing construction entities and financial institutions and go out on a competitive basis, Madam

Speaker, then the people in Cayman will never get houses and this would not be a realistic scheme if we sat down and waited for all of this.

Therefore, I cannot support this Motion. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: It is now 4.30, can I ask for the Motion for the Adjournment? The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I move the Adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock Monday morning.

The Speaker: Before I put the question, I have been notified by the Honourable Third Official Member of an official visit he will be making to the United Kingdom from tomorrow, the 4th, until the 11th of June. Therefore, he will be absent until the 13th. So on behalf of the House I wish him bon voyage and look forward to his return.

The question is that the House do now adjourn until Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday, 6 June 1994.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 6 JUNE, 1994.

EDITED
MONDAY
6 JUNE, 1994
10.04 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Second Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

In the absence of the Third Official Member, the Oath of Affirmation will be given to Mr. Arthur Joel Walton to be the Temporary Honourable Third Official Member.

Mr. Walton will you come to the Clerk's table?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

(Mr. Arthur Joel Walton)

Hon. Joel Walton: I, Arthur Joel Walton, do solemnly and sincerely affirm that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to law.

The Speaker: Will you take your seat, Honourable Member? We welcome you to the Legislative Assembly. Presentation of Papers and Reports. Report of the Standing Business Committee to be laid on the Table by the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

REPORT OF THE STANDING BUSINESS COMMITTEE

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Report of the Standing Business Committee meetings held 24th of February and the 3rd of March, 1994.

The Speaker: So ordered. Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, the Committee held two meetings; one on Thursday the 24th of February, 1994, where it dealt with the Order of Business for the State Opening of this Honourable House among other questions and business set down during that meeting for the proceedings of the Legislative Assembly.

The other, on Thursday the 3rd of March, dealt similarly with the business circulated on Business Papers one and two, which included papers to be laid on the Table, questions to be answered and this Report is the report of the Standing Business Committee.

The Speaker: The Royal Cayman Islands Police Annual Report 1993. The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

THE ROYAL CAYMAN ISLANDS POLICE ANNUAL REPORT 1993

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Royal Cayman Islands Police Annual Report for the year 1993.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Deferred question No. 46, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 46

No. 46: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs for Government's policy regarding the processing of applications for Permanent Residence.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: The Board meets to deal with applications for permanent residency from time-to-time, as and when required, at the instigation of the Chairman. There have been four such meetings within the last five months.

Condensed details of applicants are circulated by way of agendas prior to meetings. The applications are administratively processed prior to such meetings to ensure compliance with legislation and directives. The applicant's file is on hand at the meeting in order for members to review it in detail.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable Member can say if there is a backlog of these applications which have not been dealt with up to this point in time?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Yes, Madam Speaker. The Board currently has nine applications that have been deferred for various reasons. There are 41 applications awaiting hearing, and there are 98 applications still at various stages of being processed.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The fact that this is the case, I wonder if the Government will consider dealing with these applications in a more expeditious manner?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: I am afraid that the administrative machinery to process them is working as efficiently as it presently can. However, every effort will continue to be made to try to strengthen the capabilities and the system that enables this to be done even more efficiently.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable Member can state if the policy directives have changed in the recent past regarding how the applications are dealt with—the policy directives being from the Government to the Immigration Board?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: No, Madam Speaker, there have been no changes in policy in recent times.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable Member could say if there is any review going on regarding these policy directives?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, perhaps I should clarify what I just said. In saying that there have been no new policy initiatives, I should have said that there was one modification of a policy, whereby a directive that had been issued previously, which required the Board to entertain applications for permanent residency in respect of those persons who had been resident in the Islands for 15 years or more, was modified to make the approval at the Board's absolute discretion. That is the only change that has been introduced recently.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 67, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 67

No. 67: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Internal and External Affairs whether any arrangements exist between Government and the last Prison Director, Mr. Dennis Marsden, for providing consultation on the management of Northward Prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: No arrangements exist between Government and the last Prison Director, Mr. Dennis Marsden, for providing consultation on the management of Northward Prison.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if he has been contacted for consultation since he has left the substantive post of Prison Director?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, he has not been consulted by my Ministry, and I am not aware of consultation by anyone else.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 68, standing in the name of The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 68

No. 68: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Internal and External Affairs how did the Prison Advisor, Mr. Chris Gibbard, collect data for examination which comprised his Report on the Northward Prison enquiry?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Mr. Christopher Gibbard collected the data for examination which comprised his Report on the Northward Prison enquiry by reviewing all written reports; interviewing staff involved; and incident briefing of all staff involved.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say who was asked to give written reports, and how long did it take him to acquire this information to arrive at his report?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, Mr. Gibbard conducted this inquiry at Government's request at very short notice. He began by reviewing all written statements, which is a requirement under General Orders. After any major incident, every Officer involved is required to produce for the Head of the Department a written statement giving an account of the recollection of events. Mr. Gibbard therefore began by reviewing those departmental statements.

He followed up by interviewing all of the staff who were involved, and all of those who gave statements, and he concluded by having a joint staff incident briefing with all the staff involved.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman

Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if stemming from the recommendation of his report the follow up examination of the complete Prison system was carried out, and did he make any specific recommendations?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, although not directly connected, indeed, arising out of Government's concern for the effective management of the institution, the Government, independently of Mr. Gibbard's report, took the decision that a comprehensive inspection and review of the Prison was, perhaps, timely and due, given the circumstances.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if the written reports requested by Mr. Gibbard passed through any other persons, or were they collected by Mr. Gibbard from the persons who submitted them?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, my understanding is that the reports were given by the staff, collected by the Head of the Department and handed to Mr. Gibbard by the Head of the Department.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say what provisions, if any, were taken to ensure that the reports were not altered, tampered with, or otherwise changed from their original state when handed in to the Head of the Department by the persons who submitted them?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, Mr. Gibbard would have satisfied himself in that regard during the second phase of his work, that is, during the phase where he individually interviewed every member of staff involved.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 69, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 69

No. 69: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable

Minister responsible for Internal and External Affairs if there are any former Heads of Departments still employed in that salary grade following the amalgamation of departments who no longer perform such duties and, if so, what plans are contemplated to remove this anomaly?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: There were three former Heads of Departments still employed in the same salary grade following the amalgamation of Departments. One post was abolished with effect from 1st May, 1994. These grades are now personal-to-holder, and expire at the end of the existing contracts.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member give any indication as to how such officers fit in the overall structure—in terms of the hierarchy—and would he have any idea what the average time left for these Heads that he has referred to would be?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, I am sorry I do not have the contract expiry dates. However, these Heads of Departments, or former Heads of Departments, have merged professionally within the enlarged and amalgamated organisations to which they belong and are continuing to discharge such technical and professional advice as their duties presently require until the end of their existing contracts.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In the light of the reply by the Honourable Member, could he say if in discharging these duties they head specialist sections within the department, or is it just the general run of work activity within the department?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, in the one case it is a highly technical Head of Department, and in the other it is a specialised professional Head of Department. Therefore, in both instances that continue to presently exist, the new Head of Department would rely on these officers to ensure the continued efficient discharge of those duties calling upon their technical and professional expertise as is required.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 70, standing in the name of The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 70

No. 70: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what steps have been taken to reduce the risk of Prison Officers bringing contraband and drugs into Northward Prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: The following steps are being taken: 1) Falling in routine for inspection and briefing prior to dispatch to post; 2) Random searches of all staff reporting for duty; 3) On-going training on con games inmates play for all staff; 4) Staff encouragement to speak to Senior Management if they encounter or are encountering such problems.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I wonder if the Honourable Member can say what procedure currently exists when prison officers change shifts?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, I am afraid I do not know the details of how the shifts are changed and, for various reasons of security, if I did know, I would have to be very guarded in the way in which I answered that question.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if there exists any kind of internal security system which ensures that when an Officer reports for duty that he or she carries nothing into the cell which is not a part of his or her uniform or equipment?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Yes, Madam Speaker, I can confirm that that is indeed the objective and, hence, the reason for the random searches to ensure conformity.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable Member can say if there is any random drug testing done for staff of Northward Prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Yes, Madam Speaker, I can confirm that there is an ongoing programme of random urine testing of all members of staff at Northward Prison and at other Government departments as well.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if the Prison is equipped with a closed circuit television system so that all areas of the Prison and all persons in the Prison can be monitored by closed circuit television from a control room?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: No, Madam Speaker, that is not the case at the moment.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if any consideration has been given to the installation of such a system and, if not, would he undertake to have the feasibility of setting up such a system investigated and report on those findings to this Honourable House at some subsequent time?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, studies have been carried out in the past on the feasibility of installing closed circuit television for security purposes. The conclusion arrived at is that the cost of installation, ongoing maintenance, and the operation of such a system is such that it is not considered appropriate in all of the cell blocs presently managed by the Prison.

On an experimental basis, a small portion of the institution has been arranged for the operation of this facility. The result of this pilot project will be considered in future reviews.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: I wonder if the Member could say if the random search of all staff is done once a week, once a month, and how do they arrive at the random searches with the staff?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, the random searches are conducted at the instruction of Supervisors, and supervisors are given guidance by the Head of the Department as to the frequency of random searches. It has to remain random, otherwise its effectiveness would be minimised.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 71 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 71

No. 71: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to explain the circumstances surrounding the incident at Northward Prison in which a juvenile in remand at the Prison received serious injury to his face.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: There were no juveniles at Northward Prison on remand. However, a young prisoner on remand did receive injury to his face. The Royal Cayman Islands Police are conducting an investigation into this matter that is presently sub judice.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if that person is currently in the hands of the authorities, or exactly what is the status of the person at this point?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: To the best of my knowledge and belief, Madam Speaker, the young person involved is presently on bail.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 72, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 72

No. 72: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if there was an incident involving a number of newly recruited English Police Officers at the Holiday Inn on the evening of Friday 13th May, 1994?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, a complaint has been received by an individual employed by the Holiday Inn, alleging that a number of newly arrived seconded Police Officers from the United Kingdom misconducted themselves during the Comedy Club and Karaoke performances at the Holiday Inn on the evening of Friday, 13th May, 1994.

A statement has been recorded and the matter is under investigation by the Complaints and Discipline Branch of the Royal Cayman Islands Police [Force]. The officers were off duty and in civilian clothes at the time that the alleged misconduct is said to have occurred.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if the fact that the officers were off duty at the time of the report of the incident means that it will be taken that the discipline, if any, will be different than if they were on duty at the time of the incident?

The Speaker: It think that calls for an expression of opinion and I will not allow it.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if this complaint came from the House Security at the Holiday Inn or did it come from the management of the Holiday Inn, and was there any substantiation given by patrons of the establishment at the time of the incident?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I think the last part of the supplementary is being disallowed, because the Honourable Member has said that a statement is being recorded. Therefore, I will not ask him to answer that.

If you can answer the first part of the question, please do so Honourable Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, I am not aware from whom the statement of complaint was taken. I am simply reporting that a statement is forming the basis of the investigation.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say if the complaints and disciplinary section of the Police Force deals with members of the Force in the same manner whether on or off duty?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, that seems to have been what the First Elected Member for Bodden Town was getting at. I disallowed that question.

That concludes Question Time for this morning. Other business, Private Member's Motion No. 9/94, continuation of the debate thereon. The Honourable Member for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 9/94

ESTABLISHMENT OF A SELECT COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE TO REVIEW, INTER ALIA, A GOVERNMENT BLANKET GUARANTEE FOR LOWER INCOME HOUSING

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I guess I will be another one of those big guns that the Caymanian Compass talks about in its editorial. But I have a right to speak no matter who likes or dislikes it.

The Motion presently before the House, in my view is not necessary. And, while every Member across the floor has a right to put private members' motions to this Honourable House, there is also a responsibility to do what is in the best interest of the people of these Islands.

While the Members who moved, seconded, and supported this Motion may have good intentions, it is still very hard for me to understand it. In all of my time serving as Financial Secretary of this country I have been searching my mind to recall resolutions before the Legislative Assembly or before other Finance Committees where as one Member put it, every "i" is dotted and every "t" is crossed. It is good if that is the case, but what we are coming here for is approval to move on with that exercise.

To my mind, it is the responsibility of the Government to ensure that before such an agreement is implemented that the "i"s are dotted, and the "t"s are crossed. Madam Speaker, that is the reason why we have a Legal Department to make sure that agreements, loan agreements, or guarantee agreements, are legally sound and the Government is secured in the way in which these documents are framed.

To my mind, it is the responsibility of the Finance Department to ensure that adequate financial provisions are made within these loan agreements, or without these loan agreements, to ensure that when Government give guarantees there is some reserve system that deals with it, should it ever get called on. I believe much, if not all, of this is pretty much in place.

Madam Speaker, the original intention of this motion, which this present Motion wishes to put into a Select Committee, is to deal with the serious housing needs of the community of the Cayman Islands. It is not common today that you would hear of parents and grandparents, aunts or uncles, giving a portion of land to their son, nephew, or grandson in order to meet the banking requirement of 20 percent or 35 percent, or whatever the percentage may be so that the individual can go into the bank and get a mortgage.

That is the reason why the guarantee is provided, agreed by this Honourable House some time ago—which this Motion seeks to put before a Select Committee and, in my mind, bog it down. I believe that there are many persons in Cayman, many young people and many older people, that are not in the old traditional position of having some family member being able to give them a portion of land in order to meet the banking requirement of the 20 percent down or whatever the percentage may be. That is why the guarantee is structured in a way that will allow them to obtain the Government guarantee of 10 percent if that is what is needed or 20 or 35 percent.

I do not think that there are too many other serious needs by the community in this country than the need for housing. It is one of the basic needs of any community. And I do not believe the Motion presently before the House causes this exercise to move forward quickly. If anything, it does the opposite.

Some people give much stick to the banking arena for not providing adequate finances for mortgages, and some of what they say is correct. But there is also a need to explain why that is so. The bank should not take, using proper banking principles, money that is on a certificate of deposit whether it is for 30 days or five years and lend that out for a mortgage for 15 or 20 years. If they do that, we are going to have a banking problem one day when that depositor comes in and decides to withdraw the funds. That is generally how banks get into trouble, Madam Speaker. We understand this, and it is the reason why the Government has moved forward to provide a guarantee to the banks for people of our community who are unable to find that first 20, 35 or 10 percent down payment.

I will say that the Caymanian Compass got it right, the Motion before the House is a lot of politics. I believe that in situations like this, if we wanted additional information there is Question Time in this House. If we wanted additional information there is an effective telephone system in this country. There is access to the Glass House, although maybe not through the parking area. And I do not think that any of us have said to any of the Members of this Legislative Assembly, do not come to my office because I will not talk to you. The Government has continued to try to be an open Government, sometimes we give so much information that some people have a tendency to use it against us.

I agree with this morning's Caymanian Compass when it says, there is no need to have everything in place before you make an announcement of that particular project. If we say we are going to be guided by the people, then I think that we need to inform them as much as we can about various matters that the Government is working on. But we need to have sufficient information to give them some general idea of what it is we are working on.

These agreements, as I understand them Madam Speaker, are going to be between this Government and the banks. I believe that is a more effective system than involving any Statutory Body, whether it is the Housing Development Corporation or not. When you have to police a mortgage system of financing that reaches the magnitude that is suggested and approved by this Legislative Assembly, it is better done by organisations that are already established and have track records of dealing with these matters, than to try to improve some Statutory Authority to deal with it. I think it must be kept in a professional and banking operation.

I am sure that at the end of the day those who, perhaps, are against the scheme will come to learn that the position they took was not the correct position to take.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Madam Speaker, I rise to offer my contribution on Private Member's Motion No. 9/94, entitled Establishment of a Select Committee of the whole House to Review, Inter Alia, a Government Blanket Guarantee for Lower Income Housing.

The concern with respect to housing is not a new thing. Over the years there has been a genuine concern by past Government and the present Government to find a solution to the housing problem in this country for young adults, single parents, and those in our society who have a genuine desire to own a home but have been unable to do so because of their limited income.

I recall back in the 1970s that there was a low cost housing scheme started in George Town. I cannot remember who the developers were at the time, but the houses were all located in a certain area. They all looked alike, and the scheme did not do very well at all—because Caymanians are very proud and independent people, and they want the flexibility to be able to choose what their homes should look like and where they live in this country. That scheme did not do very well.

Then back in the 1980s, I recall the Government of the day establishing the Housing Development Corporation, also in an attempt to address the problem of housing. The Corporation has, from the start, found it difficult to attract funding from the banks, because the banks are also in the housing business and, therefore, were reluctant to invest money in the Housing Development Corporation—a competitor.

The Housing Development Corporation over the years has provided some mortgages and they have benefited some Caymanians, but the demand for more housing in this country, especially among our average Caymanian, is still a very strong demand. Because of the lack of funding, the Housing Development Corporation was unable to meet the demand.

I recall when the Housing Development Corporation was established, hearing comments from members of the financial community that they did not feel it was going to work, and the solution to the housing problem in this country would be addressed only if there was a partnership between Government and the banks who are in the business of lending money. Over the years some banks have not been as helpful as they could have been, with respect to requests or applications for mortgage funding, and have probably made it very difficult indeed to find financing for this purpose.

I recall when I was looking for mortgage funding back in the early 1970s, at that time banks were only prepared to loan two-thirds of the estimated cost of the house which meant, for example, if one were looking to borrow $60,000 from the bank for the purpose of a mortgage, the bank basically said come up with $20,000 of that $60,000. Madam Speaker, that eliminated a lot of potential borrowers, because not many people among us, especially among the average population, can come up with $20,000 in cash to invest in a home.

Over the years, the banks have raised their lending limits, and the availability of funds for mortgages today has also been increased. Some banks probably loan as much as 80 percent to 85 percent of the amount needed for a mortgage. But the problem is that over the years the cost of housing has increased as well. So a house that cost $30,000 to build in 1974, would easily cost today over $100,000. If the banks are still only willing to loan 80 percent of that $100,000, it still means that you have to come up with $20,000 in cash or in property on your own.

I would daresay that it is as difficult today to find $20,000 in cash for that purpose, as it was back in 1974—some 20 years ago. Our people are no better off even though there are more funds available for the purpose of mortgages, because the amount that the borrower is required to come up with is still a substantial amount of money.

I feel that the Honourable Minister for Housing, and this Government, must be commended for coming up with a scheme to bridge the gap by covering the required down payment in offering a Government guarantee. I would also like to point out at this stage, that our people must be prepared to borrow and build only what their income is able to support, rather than attempting to hang one's hat higher than one is able to reach.

It is impossible to walk into a bank and request a $100,000 loan for the purpose of a mortgage if you are only making $1,000 a month. Madam Speaker, at $1,000 per month you are unable to support the repayments on that amount. If your income only allows you to borrow $50,000, then you should be prepared to say, I will build a home for $50,000. I have seen many of our people get into trouble because they want to "keep up with the Jones" rather than live within their means.

This Government housing scheme is a very simple one, and it works like this: If you are interested in borrowing money to build a home you have to call one of the banks who have agreed to participate in the programme and make an appointment with one of the Loan Officers. You go into the banks and present your request and provide them with the relevant information they need in regard to your income, your source of employment, and any other relevant information that they need in order to be able to consider your request.

Madam Speaker, if the bank at that stage is happy to have you as a customer, they say, 'You want to borrow $80,000? We are only prepared to loan you $60,000.' Then the required $20,000 that one is supposed to come up with, Government has said to the banks if you are happy with the customer we will guarantee you the repayment of that $20,000 that you are asking him to come up with at this stage to come up with.

So, Madam Speaker, when you walk out of the bank after Government has submitted its guarantee, you walk out with a check for $80,000. And being the responsible people that Caymanians are, once they have started their repayment programme on that loan and it is reduced below the required amount Government has guaranteed the bank then releases Government of its guarantee for that loan. Very simple, Madam Speaker.

There is a lot of interest out there among our people for this scheme. Many of them have come to me and asked when are they going to be able to go to the banks to borrow money for this purpose? So there is a lot of interest out there, Madam Speaker.

The other point that I would like to make is that this scheme is not intended to address the issue of indigent housing. If one does not have a job, and no income to support repayments on a loan, then they are wasting their time going into a bank for funding for that purpose. Those requests will be dealt with as they have been dealt with in the past; by Government through their Social Services Department, on a priority basis with the availability of funds.

Madam Speaker, this programme is a good one from the standpoint of the customer, as well as Government. From the customer's standpoint, when he goes to borrow money for mortgage purposes, he will no longer have to come up with the required down payment if he cannot afford it. Government will guarantee that portion of the loan to the banks. In effect, what that means is that he gets 100 percent financing for his home.

This is also a good deal for Government in that it provides a solution to its housing problem without Government having to fund housing itself. There is no cash involved and the banks are glad to deal with Government, especially this Government, because since taking Office in November 1992 we have worked hard and have turned the financial position of Government around. So banks are very happy and comfortable dealing with Government by way of a guarantee.

I would like to urge the Members of this House, as well as the listening audience, to be patient, give the Government and the banks an opportunity to sit down and work out the details. Once those details are worked out, then they will have available to themselves the mortgage financing that they need.

Turning to the Opposition—led by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town—I would just like to say that they can show their concern for housing and the housing needs of this country by supporting Government and urging our people to be patient. Give the programme a chance to work. If it works, and it will—in my mind the programme is on a very sound basis, so it will work—the beneficiaries will be our people who will have the joy of owning their own homes. There is no greater thrill than being able to say, "This is my home, I own it."

In light of all that has been said in support of this scheme, in all honesty I cannot agree to tie up the programme in a Select Committee that could last for years. I am convinced that the Opposition does not want the programme to work and they know full well that if they can get us to agree to put this issue on hold while we discuss it over the next two or three years in a Select Committee, then the programme will not work. They will then be in a position to come back and accuse Government of not doing anything about addressing the critical issue of housing in this country.

Madam Speaker, I cannot support this Motion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to briefly speak on this Motion, and I would like to address the third Whereas: "AND WHEREAS the sum representative of a 35 percent guarantee is large and the results considerably speculative over which Government has no control."

I would like to project forward the idea of how much financial involvement this Government would be in by accepting the responsibility to repay [loans] if it was a total failure.

Let us use the figure of $10 million that is made available in the first few years. Government's total liability would be approximately $3.5 million over the first, say, five years. But, Madam Speaker, in talking to some of the bankers with regard to mortgage schemes in which money and funds are made available to the public, their approximate failure or write-off rate is less than 2 percent.

Using these figures, and the historic patterns of the writing off of bad debts in a banking institution (less than 2%), if this is projected over the five year period the way I see it is that Government's liability for the $10 million (covering the total failure and being liable to cover the 35%), would be less than $100,000 over a five year period. I think this is a chance that is worth taking for this segment of our population to have the opportunity to purchase a home.

The second Whereas that I would like to look at is: "AND WHEREAS the guarantee in its present form includes only three banking institutions and one private company on the Island, with no indication that any other such similar organisations would be included or were approached to be participate in the proposed venture."

Madam Speaker, I, too, had some concerns when it first appeared that the company Cayman Affordable Homes would be involved in the scheme. But after talking with the Honourable Minister, I was given assurance that all of this paper work and the funding would be handled through the banks. This took away my biggest concern.

I firmly believe that if this is handled through the banks, with the prudence that has been exhibited by them in the past, there will be sufficient controls out there and they will not take unnecessary chances in lending out these funds to people who would not eventually pay them back.

Therefore, just looking briefly at these two sections, I support the Honourable Minister in his attempt to bring this forward.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Madam Speaker, each one of the issues that are being debated here has its own merit. The housing scheme, to me, is the greatest. The scheme that is put forward by the Minister responsible for it has a great effect on the people of these Islands. The effect that this scheme has is that it is offering the people who need and want their own home the chance to get one.

A home is something that everyone at some time or another has had hopes of obtaining. This scheme is offering them a chance to get one, once they can qualify for it. I feel that this scheme is one of the best things that this, or any other Government has put together for helping the people of these Islands. We should congratulate the Minister for it, and give him all the help that we can to put it into effect so that the people who are waiting and wanting to get a home can get it.

Madam Speaker, although there is Opposition—and they have their merits too—they have no plan or scheme to put forward. They do not have a chance of winning their argument. When criticising one should have an alternative to offer and they have not produced one as yet. To put up an argument without a plan does not make good sense to me.

When criticising let us be constructive and have plans to back it up with. The Opposition does not have that. What they should have done was gone to the Minister with their ideas and tried to work together with him. Maybe that would have helped obtain something much greater.

There is no plan or scheme that is perfect. We always have to be correcting something in it. That is where the Opposition could have helped, but that is not the way they see it. Madam Speaker, going before the public and airing grievances is not the way to help with anything. That only creates a bad image, and a bad image does not help anything to develop the way it should.

I feel that this scheme is a genuine one. The reason why the Opposition is fighting it so hard is really to slow it down. I hate to say this, but that is my feeling. With that, I will say, I cannot support this Motion.

Thank you, very much.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: I rise to offer my contribution in the establishment of a Select Committee of the whole House to Review Inter Alia a Government Blanket Guarantee for Lower Income Housing.

Providing housing for individuals within our country who have not in the past been able to secure financing for themselves under the terms of the local lending institutions is to be complimented. I would like at this time to compliment the Honourable Minister responsible for Housing for looking into this.

I remember very clearly when at the Aston Rutty Centre in Cayman Brac in 1981 we debated the institution of the Housing Development Corporation. I said then that I thought this scheme of providing housing for those who needed it was a must, but the questions that I wanted answered were: Where were the funds coming from? Where was the Government going to get the money from?

It takes a lot of money to provide housing for the needs of our country, albeit our population is not that great. But today—some 13 years later—the cost of construction is much higher. The answer could not be given then, and I said the United States of America under the able leadership of Franklin Delano Roosevelt had established the Federal Housing Administration, similar to the terms and conditions of what the Honourable Minister is proposing here today.

They did not set up a corporation that would go in and approve loans and the Government would loan the Federal Government money. They simply guaranteed the loan to the banks. The banks were able to give a better interest rate to the people who needed it and, therefore, people were able to get homes.

The facilities of our country, certainly not reaching up even to what the United States was after the Great Depression, cannot provide a full guarantee. But, having investigated the needs, it has been proven that the 35 percent is where all of our potential homeowners fall short. Whether it is 10%, 15%, 25%, 30% or 35% . . . certainly if it is more than that, they need to go into another programme.

So, looking at all of this, I feel today that we are at a crossroads in our history where we do not want to see homeless people in the Cayman Islands. We do not want to see substandard housing. We do not want to discourage our young people, not being able to live in beautiful homes. I think it is the charm and the aesthetics of our country that has helped us to develop, along with our financial industry and our tourism. It is important that we look to housing.

An aspect that I have not heard mentioned on the floor of this House during this debate is that there is nothing that helps to generate more employment within the community than housing. When money is provided for housing, all different categories of people get employment. Today we find that many of the unemployed, if they really want to get work, they will be able to get work if the people who need homes in the three islands are afforded that opportunity.

Over the weekend five different young persons came to me saying, "We need a home, do you think this will help us?" I said that it certainly can, and it will. Also, it will probably help to keep them all employed.

So, Madam Speaker, I have not been charged with executive responsibility within this Government, but as has been said here before I have confidence in our Legal and Financial Departments and certainly in the Minister. I, today, want to say to all of us here let us endeavour to get this programme going in order to be able to look to those who are less fortunate than the group that we are trying to provide for that will need, not 35 percent, but maybe more like 90 percent [guarantee].

The United States has addressed that phase of their community by providing public housing and the rent, or the payment is determined by their ability to pay. That is how they addressed that problem. I think our Minister is looking at a scheme similar to this that will address the needs of the less fortunate.

If we can get the middle class helping to pay the labour, generating revenue in our economy, the Port Authority will be earning money on the material coming in, Government will be earning import duty on the material, the roll-over effect within our economy will help us to help those who need it more. Having said this, I cannot support the Motion as it is written, but I promise that I will support the Honourable Minister in any way that I can in helping to see that the people who need housing are provided with it at the most reasonable cost.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.25 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.48 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 9/94. [Pause] If there is no further debate, would the Mover of the Motion exercise his right to reply?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I am pleased to reply to the debate, which I have heard much of on this particular Motion.

I believe that the intention of the Motion has been missed—either on purpose or otherwise—by the Government who would have had to give its acceptance. I notice that in today's newspaper there is an editorial comment about what has been said so far on the Motion. I also observed that just about every Member of the House has spoken on this matter. That is an indication to me that the question of low-income housing is of importance to all Members of the Legislative Assembly. I think it is of extreme interest to that part of our population who could be helped if indeed there was a scheme in place for low-income housing.

In my presentation my contention was not that this scheme was an awful one, but that it was not serving or will not serve that category of persons that it claims it will. It is also clear to me that although it has evolved and gone through stages as to who is going to be providing this housing, this scheme still limits itself to one entity. And if I understand correctly at this stage, it has reached the point where it will be a bank, a bank that has not been mentioned before in the two instances that the matter has been discussed in this Chamber—that is, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Although much has also been said about the fact that any contractor can be involved in it, if they are qualified, there is truly no clear indication as to what will qualify them. I will say that I have heard the Minister say that he will determine or his Ministry will determine which developer or contractor gets in on the act. There are many, many points that are still unclear and, try as the various speakers may they have not proven at all that this scheme is going to help lower income housing.

Madam Speaker, the papers noted it, and I noted it—because I have to sit here and hear shouted obliquely at me “Opposition, Opposition, Opposition.” Everything is “Opposition.” I feel it is necessary for me to state where I find myself as Opposition and how I see Opposition and what it is supposed to be to the best of my understanding and research.

The newspaper today noted that “the Opposition is so small in this Legislative Assembly that all of the attack and haranguing that has gone on is really not necessary and is, perhaps, like using a cannon to shoot at an ant.” Indeed, a Member who spoke this morning referred to that article where the newspaper referred to the “big guns.” However, Madam Speaker, I believe that certain information has come out of this debate in the House that heretofore was absolutely unknown and would not have come out had not this occasion arisen where this matter could be debated.

I will not for one minute say that the information was categorised and itemised where the Government and the Minister responsible could have tabled the complete outline proposal. But information did come out and the public and I think we ourselves are better informed because of it. I submit, Madam Speaker, that is one of the vital roles of Opposition in this Legislature and indeed under the Westminster System.

Madam Speaker, in March of 1993, before God, all the people, and the large House assembled—who were clearly more in sync with one grouping and direction—I stood up in this House and I made it clear that I intended to fulfil the role of being a member of the Opposition, whether it was singularly or not. The newspaper of the day carried that on the front page and it quoted me as saying, “MLA for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, Mr. Gilbert McLean, declared himself a Member of the Opposition. [I am quoted as saying] ‘I see that as my role,’ he said, opening the debate on both the Throne Speech and the Budget Address in the Legislative Assembly on Wednesday, 10th March.” (Caymanian Compass—11 March, 1993)

I did not wait for anybody else to get up so I could figure to walk among the minefields that might be set up through the debate. I stated my position at the outset. That position I stated then, until this moment I am very happy to maintain.

I would just like to quote one other sentence from the newspaper where it says: “This should not be misconstrued as someone who opposes for the sake of opposition. There would be lots of things which Government would bring with which he would agree.”

Since the House has begun, a Motion has been brought by the Government side (by one of their Backbench Members, in a private member's motion) and I supported that. However, if one listens to all of the castigation and (Madam Speaker, the Chair sustained the point of order moved because it was ongoing about Opposition) suggesting all sorts of ludicrous and unseemly things as reasons and motives for this Motion being here.

So, rather than informing me and all of the other Members of this Legislative Assembly, Government got on the defence. So, may I, Madam Speaker, in defence of the Opposition, read from an article which presents the ruling of Her Majesty's Privy Council regarding Opposition? I quote this from an article from the Caribbean Contact of February 1990: “After years and years of harassment and torment, Antiguan newspaper editor, Mr. Leonard ‘Tim’ Hector might enjoy a period of peace. If he does, it will be due to the Privy Council.”

“In an historic judgment handed down by the Privy Council on the 22nd of January, the five Law Lords in the case of Leonard Hector vs. the Attorney General and the Commissioner of the Police of Antigua, declared the amendment made by the V.C. Bird government to the 1972 Public Order Act to be unconstitutional.”

This, Madam Speaker, for those of us who keep any track of what is happening, know that Mr. Hector was constantly under attack for he dared to criticise the Government. I would like to read a direct quote from what the Law Lords said: “In a free democratic society it is almost too obvious to need stating that those who hold office in Government and who are responsible for public administration must always be open to criticism. Any attempt to stifle or fetter such criticism amounts to political censorship of the most insidious and objectionable kind. At the same time, it is no less obvious that the very purpose of criticism levelled at those who have the conduct of public affairs, by their political opponents is to undermined public confidence in their stewardship and to persuade the electorate that the proponents would make a better job of it than those presently holding office.”

“In light of these considerations, their Lordships cannot help viewing statutory provisions which criminalises statements likely to undermined public confidence in the conduct of public affairs with the utmost suspicion.” Madam Speaker, that should say something to those of us with a legal bend. Among those who were every second word talked about “the Opposition,” were those who should know of this particular situation.

If one reads Erskine May, it also speaks of that role, and may I also say that I believe the Opposition in this House at this time serves an extremely vital role. If there was no Opposition, I daresay the House might not even convene. And, if it did convene, I would posture that any amount of business would be done in a matter of one day—simply because the Government of the day claims that they have already decided what they will do—all of them prior to coming here. So it would be a matter of calling the motions, or the amendments, or whatever and everyone would say “Aye.”

So, I think the role played in this House by the Opposition is vital. I wear that name most happily, and I intend to continue to do the duty of any Opposition person who performs that duty reasonably.

The Government should understand that I am not a civil servant and, therefore, neither the Governor nor anyone else can ask me to take retirement or leave the service, or whatever, as might be done to civil servants. I serve the people. I am here at the will of the people. Unless I do a misconduct or my health fails me, I will continue.

Madam Speaker, before I go directly to the gist of the Motion, I would like to reply to some of the things said by some Members who spent their time indirectly talking about me and what I did and did not want. The Minister for Education said that the scheme that the Government proposes is about the lending of money to low and middle income brackets of people. That simply cannot be the case. That is what was stated when it came to the Finance Committee, but, indeed, that cannot be the case. If we watch or observe the progress of the amount of monies talked about, it went from a scheme making money available for people with a maximum level of $50,000 per annum. And a low-income end of $1,500 per month combined to where it has now moved to $60,000 and the houses have moved upward from $80,000 to $125,000.

Madam Speaker, lower income people in this country cannot pay the mortgage for a $125,000 house. Young couples, as claimed by the Minister for Education, certainly want to own their own homes, but certainly, if they own their own homes, they must be making some large amounts of money to be able to afford the mortgage.

If we take the mortgage as being what was said by the Minister for Housing, and also from the man associated with Cayman Affordable Housing, as being one-third of the salary—and the mortgages in that bracket are approximately $1,300 at today's rates—then we are talking about people who are earning at least $3,000 and over per month. Madam Speaker, the success of the Housing scheme which is before the House will surely not hurt me, for I am only too glad to know that the people whom I know need housing badly would have the opportunity of getting a house. These people are those who, according to the Compendium of Statistics of the Cayman Islands 1992, fall into the large majority.

The table on page 21 shows that if we add the number of persons who earn $1,200 and below that comes up to 10,307—people who earn from $1,200 down, on average, according to the monthly salaries in Cayman Islands dollars. They are indeed the majority, for there are only 3,620 of those who earn $2,250 per month average; and there are 1,275 who earn $3,000.

I would like for the Government to tell this House and the people of this country how, if a mortgage on a house is going to cost $1,200 each month, how is a person who is only earning $1,200 going to afford that? It is impossible. It is quite impossible!

Madam Speaker, the success of this scheme will not hurt me, but I would hope that some scheme would be put in place that would help the people. This is one that offers limited help even if it succeeds, because it is geared towards people in the higher income brackets, and the average salary of the highest earners in this country, according to Government's statistics, is $3,000 average.

Now the Minister for Education, who simply cannot miss an opportunity of picking at me, talks about the scheme helping Cayman Brac. There is always that ludicrous argument. Each one that sang that song never did reach the pitch to where it was explained as to how, where and when—for we have only heard about this scheme being talked about in Grand Cayman. And, at best, the locations were Newlands, Crewe Road and West Bay. That same Minister claims it is not exclusive to Cayman Affordable Housing—there are really four banks and it must really include all.

Madam Speaker, I believe what raised the most concern in this whole affair, from day one, was the fact that we were hearing about a company, “the company” called (and I read, Madam Speaker, from the Minutes of Finance Committee of 19th July, 1993), it says: “Separate undertakings have been given by Cayman Affordable Housing (‘the Company’), First Home Banking, First Cayman Bank and the Bank of Butterfield (‘the Banks’), to provide sums of money for the purposes of mortgage financing to lower income Caymanians. The Company would provide $17 million over a five year period, and two of the three banks named above would each provide $1 million each year for a three year period, with First Cayman Bank providing $250,000 per year for three years.”

Madam Speaker, from the time a person hears about a company that is saying they have $17 million they can put in housing in Cayman, and the banks say they only have $1 million, any intelligent thinking person is going to say that that is really some special kind of a company. What is this company all about? Where did it come from? How did it suddenly spring out of the earth when we never heard about it before?

Also at the Finance Committee, in this same request for authorisation to issue a Government guarantee, it was stated, and I would like to quote: “Clients would be provided with 100 percent financing for their home building or purchasing costs, the maximum level of which would be set at about $80,000. Assistance with stamp duty and transfer fees would be considered in exceptional circumstances. In or- der to make the 100 percent financing possible, thus avoiding the need for the client to find the usual down payment, Government would provide a guarantee of between 10 and 35 percent, depending on the circumstances.

"Finance Committee is hereby requested to pass the following resolution." [F.C. 19th July 1993]

Madam Speaker, that is clear. The key rider in all of that was something called, Cayman Affordable Housing. But, of course, the Minister for Education tried to twist that around—that Cayman Affordable Housing was really Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, trading as Cayman Affordable Housing.

If that was true, Madam Speaker, why did it take the Caymanian Compass from July 1993 through a debate in this House in September 1993 to May of 1994 to say (after a press conference held by the Minister for Housing), that, in fact, Cayman Affordable Housing did not exist and the entity was really Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited? There is only one reason: Because that was the first occasion that the public and Members of this Legislative Assembly, at least in this Sitting, had ever heard of an entity called Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, as being in any way connected with Cayman Affordable Housing.

Madam Speaker, some real unusual things occurred in this Meeting of the Finance Committee. For if one looks at the Minutes one will see a lot of politically correct things being said. It is the thing of the day—everybody wants to get on board this ship which says, 'We are going to solve the housing problems in the Cayman Islands forever.' Certainly, I want to get on board it too, but surely I want to know that there is a Captain, and that it is on the right course and is not going up on Collier's Reef.

Other people, beside myself, wondered about this Cayman Affordable Housing because the first question that was asked in that meeting was by the now Minister for Health, when he asked: "I wonder if the Honourable Minister is in a position to tell us a little about Cayman Affordable Housing, otherwise known as 'the Company,' if he is in a position to do that?"

So it is not what I say, Madam Speaker, it is what was put before this House. What could possibly be the reason, if the Minister for Housing knew then that it was Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, he was dealing with, why did he not say so? I suppose he would say that was his way of informing the public.

Madam Speaker, I listed 31 points made by the Minister for Education beating on the Opposition. Starting off from that day I would like to show something.

I quote Capt. Mabry Kirkconnell, from the F.C. Minutes [F.C. July 19th, 1993]: "Mr. Chairman, I am glad to see a proposal such as this and I would like to ask the Honourable Member, I know Mr. Heber Arch quite well, and I know that the Cayman Affordable Housing does business here in Grand Cayman, so most likely their funds that they loan will be for houses built in Grand Cayman. I would presume that the banks would look favourably on loaning the Sis- ter Islands and I certainly agree with the guarantee of the down payment because that is where everyone that I have dealt with in my constituency, trying to get loans through the Housing Development Corporation, have not been able to purchase land or get sufficient money for a down payment."

Madam Speaker, that is quite remarkable. For we only heard in May 1994, that there was Cayman Affordable Housing, a trade name for Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited. Allegedly, it was set up specifically to deal with this particular venture. There has been so much said about this by the Minister for Education, and the Minister for Housing, that in a while I wish to pass on to this Legislative Assembly what I have been able to discover about that.

The Minister for Education began at that point in time, at me when he said, and I quote: "But, surely, Mr. Gilbert McLean realises that when you go to a bank that there are bank officers who set certain parameters as to the amount of salary for repayment, the extent of one's joint income, and this sort of thing. These are matters that are dealt with in that respect. It would have been so much more constructive if the approach that the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac, Captain Mabry, is taking, of really asking if some of these funds could be freed up and made available for Cayman Brac rather than trying to stop this."

Madam Speaker, it is impossible for any one Member to stop the will of 17 Members in this House. He again fires the big gun. I quote: "I can tell you, Mr. Chairman, you cannot just walk into a bank and say, 'Look, I want 90 percent, or I want 80 percent financing,' in many instances, unless you can show quite a substantial income. So Captain Mabry is quite right. This is going to assist and hopefully it can be spread throughout the three Islands and I take my hat off to him for at least looking out for the Sister Islands and taking that approach rather than being an obstacle like Mr. McLean has been in relation to it."

Madam Speaker, I was not being an obstacle. I could not stop it. And here it goes on and on. What I find rather resentful is if the Minister cannot find ways of helping the Islands which I represent, I wish that he would stop attempting to play what he perceives as my attitude or what I do, against that of the First Elected Member for that district. We are two separate individuals, separately elected. But I believe we cooperate quite well. He must understand that this constant haranguing and picking at me, as he did on the occasion of his speech on this Motion, does not go anywhere.

Madam Speaker, I believe that it is necessary that I should remind him of something. This was published in The New Caymanian in November 1992, and these are the verbatim words spoken by the Minister on Friday, 23rd October, 1992, at a public meeting at Juliann's Restaurant, Spot Bay, Cayman Brac. I would like to quote: "Lastly, I want to say that..., please remember that without a team behind your candidates they are not going to be able to achieve anything, they can sit on that Backbench as a lone voice and cry for four years, but they are not going to get anywhere. Remember that the support of this National Team, and it is 13 of us, and God willing we are going to make the next Government because we are going to get the majority. We support Julianna all the way and we will see that what she wants for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman she will get within the means of what can be afforded.

"We are also prepared to work with Mr. Parker Tibbetts and we are asking you to support Mr. Parker Tibbetts, but we are not with the balance of those candidates out there and do not let them kid you." (The New Caymanian—November 20-26, 1992)

Madam Speaker, he has delivered that position perfectly, so he should be satisfied. The people of Cayman Brac understand very well what they are getting from this present Government. Indeed, they cannot forget that gentleman because everyone there, if one engages in a political conversation with them, remembers that. If he is so worried about Cayman Brac and attempts to show that I am not fulfilling my duties, I say to him: Remember!

Madam Speaker, so much for political correctness.

There are, of course, many instances where Government guaranteed monies on behalf of Statutory Authorities; Cayman Brac Power and Light; Government has even done it for Caribbean Utilities Company which is, I suppose, the biggest corporation that exists in the Cayman Islands. It certainly has at its victim every man, woman and child in the country. Strange enough, no one wants to escape except, perhaps, to have a bit of relief in costs. So it is nothing new that Government has, indeed, guaranteed monies for Statutory Authorities, et cetera.

But this is not a statutory authority, it is, as the recital says: "...the first such guarantee of its kind." It is the first, and Members who think and who wish to be informed so that they can inform the people who elected them need to know the facts of the situation.

Madam Speaker, I believe, unlike what the Minister for Education has said, that if a complete and comprehensive legal statement came to this House setting down who one applies to, how one would know whether they qualified or not, the process by which their application will go, and who will loan them the money, a statement on how one really determines who will build their house for them—whether it is confined to Arch and Godfrey or to the houses that Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, has—it would have provided the facts of the matter for the public, for the press and for the Legislators.

But the outstanding situation is that the Government has blown off a lot of steam about this scheme—salvation to the people—and they do not have it worked out. On Friday, the Minister had to admit that there is nothing signed. The details have not been worked out. I take the point of the Minister for Tourism that, of course, there are many instances when matters are brought before Finance Committee that every single detail has not been worked out. But I certainly suggest that one, as major as this, involving three major banks, involving a mysterious company, involving the finances of the Government through a guarantee, that should have been worked out beyond what it is at this stage. For, at this stage, from July of last year to almost July of 1994, it has not been worked out. One year. Something is strange, something is wrong.

Madam Speaker, the Minister for Education does not want to help young people or young couples with one child more than I do. One time that terminology could have applied to me. I believe everybody, most Caymanians—I think it is something of a trait—the cultural trait of Caymanians is to want to own their house. No one has to preach to me about it, for I can remember when I was a young boy, many men under 20 years of age went to sea and sent home money to their mothers, mostly (because often times the fathers would be at sea as well). The mothers took that money and started the building of a house—so much so, that when the men came home they would finish a part, then add to it. But by the age of 19 years or 20 years of age, Caymanians in those days (as seaman) owned a house. So no one has to preach to me about it. Nobody has to make any ridiculous and absurd suggestions that I do not want to see those people get houses. I want to see them get housing. I want to see as many as can get housing, not limit it to a special category which is in the higher earning brackets in this country.

Madam Speaker, as I have said, this matter has gone from Cayman Affordable Housing, from the three banks initially named, down to one now whom the Minister said is CIBC (Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce). At this point, I think, perhaps, because if I was to reply to it I would have to reply to each instance that each Member of Government got up to speak, how they are putting this thing of Cayman Affordable Housing through a metamorphosis which first came to notice when the Caymanian Compass brought to light that this business of Cayman Affordable Housing really did not exist.

In their newspaper of Monday, 9th May, 1994, and I will quote a brief section. I quote: "In the same interview, Mr. Heber Arch said that Cayman Affordable Homes Limited, the company mentioned by Mr. Bush, does not exist as a legal entity. 'The agreement will be with Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Ltd,' he said. He explained the apparent mistake by saying that Frank Hall Homes would trade under the name Cayman Affordable Homes for the purpose of the scheme."

Madam Speaker, although the Minister for Housing continues to accuse me, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, of every unacceptable and unkind criticism, and one if it was true, would put us in a serious state of affairs. He often misses the point when he accuses, for on Friday, he said that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town—and I quote: "...who is in hiding this morning..." I just want to clarify the position that the Member was not in hiding. I will tell him where the Member was. The Member had gone to the corporate office of Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, to collect a copy of their Trade and Business Licence.

I must say, Madam Speaker, that he has had full cooperation from that company in producing to him the registry of directors and shareholders and also, the copy of their business licence. It is quite remarkable, I think, that they did not hesitate to make their position straight.

Madam Speaker, I would like to read the business licence which was issued on 23rd March, 1994, and it reads: "It is hereby certified that Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited of George Town, Grand Cayman, is licensed under the above Law, to carry on the trade or business of Real Estate until the 31st December, 1994, and the fee of CI$400.00 has been paid."

Madam Speaker, anyone who has a Trade and Business Licence in the Cayman Islands and is not trading by his/her personal name or their company's name, and is trading with a trade name, they have to make that known at the time they submit their application. Everyone knows that the name of the person or the company is written or typed, and then there is a "T/A" which means "trading as" such and such. Now, indeed, if the stories that we have heard from the Minister for Education and the Minister for Housing, are true then it seems that they have yet to do that, or at least have it on their business licence.

Madam Speaker, I would ask the Serjeant-at-Arms to please table this copy, including their complimentary card, in the Legislative Assembly.

Let them try to explain away Cayman Affordable Housing, or let them try to get the intelligent people in this country to believe that they simply have to accept their word without any proof or evidence of it. Let them try.

The Speaker: At this time proceedings will be suspended until 2.15 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.46 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.17 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continuing.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, before we took the adjournment I laid on the Table a copy of the Business Licence of Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, which my colleague, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, requested and was provided with by the corporate office.

Madam Speaker, as I think of the quickness with which the corporate office for this company responded to both requests—obviously with nothing in their business dealings to hide—I thought how good it would be if the Government could be as forthcoming with what it is doing, or planning to do. For, most surely, there is cause for doubt and suspicion as to why the Government and the Minister for Housing and his colleagues, were reluctant to say to this country, "You know we are dealing with Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, whom we have talked to about trading as such and such", or whatever.

Obviously, this company is doing business. And I noticed that its principals did not hesitate to talk to the news media as to what their business was about, and where they were doing their development. Indeed, I do know that they have not hesitated in giving persons who have talked to me schedules of their scheme costs.

The Minister for Education did his best to make it appear that from day one the people of this country knew about that, which is absolutely not so. It was only on the 9th of May of this year (last month) that the newspaper uncovered that information.

The position taken by the Government was that there was some mysterious company with all of this money that it had suddenly decided to spend on housing because they had such great faith in the Government of the day—particularly since the Minister for Housing made great claims about the belief in the Government and why this was so.

Madam Speaker, I think that I should try to show why there were such concerns regarding this entity that does not exist. As I mentioned earlier, for one thing it was showing that it had $17 million to spend. Whereas the banks were saying they had $3 million. There was no more about this company to explain why, how, why would they want to do that, than what had been said in the Finance Committee.

Here, in very brief form, I would just like to follow the sequence of questions that were mostly asked in that Committee by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, when the now Minister for Health asked his question the reply of the Minister for Housing was: "This company is a company headed by Mr. Heber Arch." That was it. But the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, asked a number of similar questions. I have now, perhaps, a bit more clarity as to their answers. I suggest it showed a certain sequence and condition.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts said, and I quote: "Mr. Chairman, this concept seems to be very commendable, but I would like to raise a couple of questions just for clarification." He asked about the eligibility process, and how stringent the guidelines were going to be with regard to people who are going to be eligible for the specific funds that the company was allegedly going to lend.

He asked another question, and I quote: "I know where they are geared but what proposals are there going to be within these institutions to say that you, Mr. Chairman, would not be eligible to build an $80,000 with access to these funds, if I may just use you as an example?" There was the query throughout, Madam Speaker, where no one knew what was the proposal.

The Minister for Housing asked him to state it in two parts. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, asked again, and I quote: "What I am trying to say is, will there be a system in place, for instance, whereby only individuals at a certain level of income are eligible for assistance?" The Minister answered: "Yes, to take that part first. We, in dealing with Cayman Affordable Housing, discussed an income level maximum of $50,000 per annum and a low-end income at $1,500 per month combined. These are combined income."

Now, the Minister for Education said that we knew about this thing of Cayman Affordable Housing being the trade name of Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, which is not so and which, indeed, the term as used in the Motion is "Cayman Affordable Housing" and that indeed is the term used by the Minister.

The Fourth Elected Member continued: "As we go along here, we have three recognised lending institutions and Cayman Affordable Housing. Will it be that these institutions will be handling the mortgages in which Cayman Affordable Housing is involving itself with and these people, or does Cayman Affordable Housing have its own entity set up to be able to function?" Still there are doubts as to what this is about and how it would function.

We are talking about going into Finance Committee and having some of the information and not all. At least there should have been this much as the questions were attempting to elicit.

The Minister for Housing, the Honourable W. McKeeva Bush, said: "In discussing with the banks and the private company, there are two separate programmes. You are talking about the private company and the banks. The private company will work their own thing but they are prepared to work with the banks if necessary."

Now at this point in time the country is being asked to believe that from day one the Government was saying that there was something called, "Cayman Affordable Housing", which would be working through the banks. Even further afield from what was originally stated—that it was the banks from the very first instance. They dare say that there is no cause for concern and confusion?

Another question that was posed in trying to get to the root of this Cayman Affordable Housing. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town continued to press. I quote: "Maybe I was not very clear. What I was trying to ask is, as recognised lending institutions, I do not have any questions to ask with regards to the methods these institutions use to process borrowers. I am asking what does Cayman Affordable Housing have in place to process mortgages on an ongoing basis and accept payments?"

What did the Minister say, Madam Speaker? I quote: "In regard to that question, Mr. Chairman, the private company has their own administrative staff but, the Member would recognise that they would be dealing with a recognised banking institution when it comes to actual money. In fact, what I have said to them and what we have agreed on is that they would deal with the three banks that have been open to Government for these funds."

The more one reads this the more one becomes clear that nothing was in place. Names were being shunted around, but as for how any of these would function and coordinate their effort was absolutely unclear. Certainly, there was only one supposed company that the blanket guarantee was going to cover, and that was Cayman Affordable Housing.

Madam Speaker, another question was posed. I quote: "That is what I was trying to ask. So recognised lending institutions will be administering the mortgages and collecting funds as to records and such?" The Minister replied: "That is what I have said. They will have staff available. If you want a loan, you would go to them and you would talk to them about their part of it if you are applying through them. You would have a recognised bank, one of those three banks for instance, where you would actually go and make application to. For instance, they could put $1 million in each one of those banks or they could split their $3.4 million for the year into three and spread it around the three banks that are dealing with Government."

Still in focus and in the forefront is this entity, Cayman Affordable Housing—having the funds they would split it up and put it into banks—but one was clearly supposed to be dealing with Cayman Affordable Housing.

Madam Speaker, I would like to quote another question that was put. I quote: "All right, I will come to the crux of the matter here. I think it is important, while the concept is laudable and it is something that is needed, that from the onset that it is set up in such a way that the people who are getting involved are protected in every way by checks and balances with regards to their mortgages and stuff like that. Again, not wanting to create any waves here, but, in my opinion, it is very important that political overtones do not get involved with this kind of stuff."

The Minister for Housing replied: "Mr. Chairman, I very well understand where the Member is coming from. Let me deal with the last matter first. I do not care what people have to say politically. I think this is a good thing for the country and, naturally, I will never stop people from talking. This is a private company.

"Everyone knows Mr. Heber Arch, he is a very reputable person and there is not going to be any Member from my Portfolio or any politician involved in this. The Legal Department will set up each guarantee for each individual loan and the company itself has, as I said, administrative staff."

Madam Speaker, all that I have quoted was in an attempt to show where it all began and that it all largely evolved around an entity called Cayman Affordable Housing.

Banks were separate. The Motion said separate undertakings were given. And we must wonder logically at this stage, how separate are they? Are there such undertakings in place? Does Government have such an undertaking in place, in writing—signed, sealed and delivered? The Minister says that Government does not. We are talking about a time period in July of last year, and it is almost July 1994.

A question was asked regarding the political condition, which there has been so much talk about by all of the Government Members, almost in totality in their debates, about what is political as far as the Motion goes and the people who support the Motion. The only mention that was made of the Housing Development Corporation by the Minister for Housing was that it would help people complete the application. But neither he, nor any politician, was going to have anything to do with it.

Madam Speaker, on Friday, the Minister for Housing said that people could apply to his Ministry if they wanted to seek about loans. Some might think that is an arm's length situation. There are many who think otherwise, including myself. The Housing Development Corporation, without any fuss, since that is set up under Law to function for loans and mortgages for lower income housing, is ideally the entity, in my opinion, that should be dealing with this situation in its entirety.

Once the legal people had drawn up contracts which would set out what Government guaranteed, how it guaranteed it and so on, it should be moved totally away from any political Ministry so that you would not have to call the Minister's Ministry or his office, for him to do whatever in regards to an application. It should be totally separate and apart.

I question what the criterion is, and what will it be in deciding which construction company will be approved to build houses. Indeed, if the banks are dealing with the matters of loaning funds now, as the Minister claims is the case, do the banks, in their everyday functioning when they loan their money, not agree with the person who is getting the loan as to whether they find the contractor acceptable or not? What are the grounds on which anyone can be assured that the construction company of their choice will be approved as an entity to do construction?

Madam Speaker, when I tried to ask a question on this point as to whether it would be handled in a manner which would be more consistent with the fulfillment of the Manifesto of the National Team—and a promise, as one Member had said it was—the reply I received was: "Ah, Mr. Chairman! What are you talking about political response? You should be glad that you are getting something, man!"

All that I was trying to get was some information, and I never got that in the way and the extent that I would have liked. Therefore, up until now, I am in no position where I could really tell anyone who enquires of me just what is required; what it is they must do to get in on this scheme of the Government.

There is one thing, Madam Speaker, that I would agree with, and I had occasion this morning before I came to the Legislature to go into a certain business place were four members of staff who all, apparently, had made attempts or approaches to find out how they would go about getting these loans. They believe, like most of the people are led to believe, that the loans are now available—just apply. All four of those persons were telling some rather disheartening tails.

After I made a comment and another statement in the Finance Committee in response to the Minister for Education, who simply would not leave me alone, what came out from the Minister for Housing then, and only then, when he shouted; "What more information do you want? Do you really want information? You want to be an obstructionist when you see us getting something done and you know as an Opposition you might be in deep trouble, right!" Here is what he blurted out after that, "I can tell the Honourable Committee, that the company [again we are going back to that company] is talking about 9 percent interest over a 20 year period, a 20 year mortgage. The banks are talking about 9 percent interest with 15, 20 years mortgages." But the crux of it all is in what the Minister said next: "But the whole scheme hinges on a Government guarantee and this is what we are asking this committee to do at this particular time."

Madam Speaker, if this scheme can work, I am glad. If it can really work from the bits and pieces that I have heard—with nothing finally worked out in detail—that is still fine. But my argument was, and has been, that there needs to be details so that hopes and expectations are not raised in anyone who does not qualify, so that they will not even apply because the description of the requirement does not fit them. It is not that way now.

Madam Speaker, the people that I believe most desperately need housing are not those that are going to be able to pay the mortgage and pay the maximum ceiling of $125,000. I would like to quote the debate of Minister for Housing when this Motion was brought last year. I quote: "One of the major reasons for the need for housing was borne out in a recent study completed in June by the Planning Department and members of Environmental Health where it was concluded that the demand for housing stock would require an increase of 1,932 dwelling units by 1997, and a further increase of 1,943 by the year 2002. [not a long way off] According to the Housing Development Corporation, 50% of this requirement will be for middle to lower income families." (1993 Official Hansard Report, 24th September, 1993)

Now I ask the Government and the Minister, what is this threshold for lower income, or middle income for that matter? He further said: "This study points out that there are an estimated 300 homes in these Cayman Islands which have no toilet facilities at all. Three Hundred homes, Madam Speaker, which have no flushing toilets, no pit latrine, and which have no toilet facility at all."

Those are the people whom I believe need some assistance with housing—instantly, immediately—and then work on up into the middle income levels. What has been done in this regard, I am not here to say. I do not know. But, surely, that should have been a major thing to have been addressed.

Of course, I think the clincher was when the Minister said: "I am sorry, Madam Speaker, that I have not been able to have that press conference because all of the details have not been worked out and I am not going to go further public without having all the details completed." (1993 Official Hansard Report 24th September 1993) That was a press conference which he said he was going to hold prior to the debate on this, and in May 1994, all the details are still not worked out. They are his words, they are not my words, nor the words of the seconder of this Motion, they are his words. All that is being noted, on one of the recitals, is that the details are still lacking for just about one year.

Madam Speaker, the Minister for Education and the Minister for Housing spoke about the Housing Development Corporation, that it did not meet the expectations, and so on, of the people because it did not have the money to do this. It is all a question that it did not have the funds to loan, because as far as I can understand (with all the inquiry that I make), the Housing Development Corporation is managed very well, it has met the needs of many to the extent that it had the funds available. So, if the Government wanted an alternative, I would suggest one to them: Take the million dollars that they spent on travel last year and the million that they will spend this year, and put it in the Housing Development Corporation and give it opportunity to lend that money. For by the interest coming back it will generate money. I believe that any lending institution lends a certain amount of capital, but the capital generates capital and at some point the Housing Development Corporation could serve a greater good, help a wider amount of people than it has been able to because of a lack of capital.

If the Government wants, why could it not extend the guarantee to the borrower who comes to the Housing Development Corporation to borrow money? For one thing is very significant. As it stands now, to all appearances, to the best of my understanding and according to what has been written and approved, the Government is saying to people within a certain category of higher and middle income, "You can get a house, we are prepared to give a blanket guarantee to cover you up to 35 percent where you would normally be required to find it yourself."

Madam Speaker, this scheme, if it could be called that, is not changing anything for those in the lower income bracket. It is simply providing a blanket guarantee for those persons who would be earning a level of money which could service a loan of up to $125,000 in any event.

Certainly, the bank would require equity as it does in each and every instances where they make a mortgage. And the person borrowing the money would have to find that. I have heard it stated time and again, by persons associated with banking and mortgage funds, that they know and believe and find out if an individual has any equity. If they have to put in $10,000 or $15,000 as the case may be, or $5,000, they have something of their own invested in it and they will be more attentive as to not lose what they have put into the scheme.

Madam Speaker, Government is Government. And it is the way in other Caribbean Territories as well, that the population generally looks to the Government to provide and if Government provides it Government cannot just take someone to court because it will create a politically unacceptable or unhappy situation. That is one of the reasons why Government set up statutory authorities such as the Housing Development Corporation who can certainly take a borrower to court—like the Port Authority, the Civil Aviation Authority, the Water Authority as the case may be—Government is at arm's length from it. It ultimately owns it and so on, but it functions as a business and people have to deal with it similarly as a business in the private sector.

I wonder if anyone has given thought to the fact that if persons borrow money, and have Government guarantee it, if they are going to be so mindful if times get tough, about paying the government. The Minister for Housing did not say that Government's part of it was going to be handed over to the Housing Development Corporation, as such, to bring it into their Portfolio and deal with it as Government's entity. Oh no. It has to be routed through his Ministry. One way or another it has a connection there. I wonder if thought has been given to that?

It seems like the Minister for Housing made a major discovery—that people should borrow within their means and that banks, in their way of doing business as far as they are concerned, see to it that people borrow within their means. It is very simple. If you do not qualify after they put you under an analysis, or a scrutiny or when they check off the requirements, then you simply do not get their money. Nice and simple.

But the thing that is absolutely mind boggling and which further shows that the Government is out of touch, at least the Minister of Housing, is that he said "the banks would never raise the interest rates so high that the people they had loaned money to could not pay." Madam Speaker, I do not think there was any statement made (and there were many) that is further afield from reality than that, for the banks, in raising interest, do not raise its interest with a view of how much it is going to help or hurt a borrower. When the financial conditions are such that interest rates rise, those who can rise with it, and those who cannot fall and are buried. It takes a while for the banks to go through the process of auctioning the house and so forth and so on, but that is the hard cold fact of the situation when one borrows.

Now I would definitely not believe that because there might be a loan granted by a bank in this country, because the Government had given a guarantee for one, two, 10, 15, however many houses, that it was going to stop that bank from raising its interest rates when the interest rates had to be raised. That is a joke! It is a bad joke, too. I hope that borrowers, or would-be borrowers, would never be persuaded by that illogical suggestion.

There are no fixed rates, it seems, now in this scheme, although prior, the Minister said that the company was talking about 9 percent, and the banks were talking about 9 percent. I understand that rates are now approximately 9.25% for lending, it has gone up. If one looks at the situation and listens to the news, it seems like interest rates are going up in the states and elsewhere which will affect us as a banking centre and which means, unfortunately, that our interest rates will go up. Someone just said to me that it is actually 10.25% not 9.25% now.

Madam Speaker, the situation as it now presents itself, to the best of my understanding of this scheme, and according to what the Minister for Housing had to say on Friday, he is now saying that the Government has moved right along without the approval of the Finance Committee to work towards making commitments to increase the ceiling that had first been stated. He also stated that the Finance Committee that we keep hearing about, as stated by himself and other Government Members and supporters in here, will be to get a scheme which a guarantee will now be given to Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. It is one of the largest banks in the country. I have no problem with that. But as one looks more and more, there is that vein of uncertainty.

We only heard that the three banks prior had given certain commitments. He says, as far as he is concerned, those commitments still stand. I wonder if, as far as the banks are concerned, it still stands.

Madam Speaker, one of the things that has been of particular concern to me is the fact that it became quite clear that this is an exclusive deal with Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited (although at this point he protests otherwise), and that other entities did not come forward and make any offers. People are not foolish. Who else was going to come forward and make offers when it was clear from day one that this was a deal that was between four entities, three banks named and a company. The Member made great hay about the fact that any companies that want to participate can come forward and so on, but he also said that they would apply to him and Government would decide if they qualified or not.

As the Minister for Housing went on and on, and particularly following the comment where he alleged that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town had said he wished to see Government dealing with a developer, Mr. Hugo Zeiderent—but he did not say that. The Member said that as he drives home in the evenings, he sees a sign that states there is 100% guaranteed financing available. But the Minister for Housing must have been very familiar with that sign, because no person's name or company's name was mentioned. So, that was repeated over, and over, and over again by him, and if the First Elected Member for Bodden Town wanted to deal with him on housing, let him go ahead. Well, he could not because he does not have that power. He is not on the Government Executive.

I wondered why he was so certain of this person. So I asked around and I was told by persons whom I consider credible, that the Minister would know about this developer, Mr. Hugo Zeiderent, for he is a developer that the Minister is having discussions with regarding land and a site for his new stadium. I do not know if he got himself and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town misplaced or displaced, but I wondered about that particular aspect of things.

Madam Speaker, I believe that the situation with this guarantee is an exclusive one and until the Government can prove otherwise—by publishing criteria for construction companies, or developers and banks, and by these entities applying to the Government and being granted approval to become part of this scheme—I will continue to believe that it is an exclusive situation.

I believe the Fourth Elected Member for George Town when he said that he had certain information that suggested just that. But I can assure the Minister for Housing that I shall pass on to as many development entities as I can, the fact that he says there is open space for those persons who want to participate, and I will implore them to help increase those calls which he says are coming into his Ministry.

I will also encourage them to apply by letter, since I guess there is no form, to become parties to this. There are many, who have asked me how can they get in on the deal. I cannot give them any answers, but I will certainly encourage them to call the Ministry of Housing to find out.

One of the main central things that the Motion is asking for is that a Select Committee would be set up which would set out requirements as Government saw it (as all the Elected Members of Government saw it), for people, or developers, or construction companies, or banks, or whomever, to take part and participate in this scheme.

Competition is a great thing to keep prices as low as possible. Even though the Chamber of Commerce, which is the government of this Government, says that fair competition is socialistic, I would like to see some fair competition in this act for the only persons that could benefit would be the people that need to benefit, and they are the borrowers.

Madam Speaker, I believe that every bank in this country that meets certain qualifications, as could be set down, should have an opportunity of participating. One bank might offer a better deal than another. One developer might offer a better deal than another. One construction company could offer a better deal than another. I am aware that there are certain smaller construction companies that do a mighty fine job on behalf of borrowers from the Housing Development Corporation and I would like to know that persons like that have an opportunity of doing business as well, and that this opportunity would be provided for them without them having to be subcontractors of Arch and Godfrey or Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited. Fairness, Madam Speaker, fair competition, and invite them.

I have not seen a formal invitation go out to the developers or the construction companies, the banks in this country. I know Members of Government say that (oh yes, when they said they wanted to do this) no one came forward. It is the old thing about going to someone's house; you do not really go where you feel sure you are not invited. But, I am certainly going to do my best to invite some people to apply to that Ministry of Everything and make offers and see what answers they come up with. We will find out whether it is exclusive or not, or whether there are any other mysterious corporate ghosts in there.

As for the Motion, where it asks that the Government take no further action to commit public funds in this venture, it is simply a wise and prudent thing to do until the Auditor General has an opportunity to review it. The Auditor General does not have to take years to do a review, and he does not have to wait until next year to make a report. He can make a report and circulate that to every Member of this Legislative Assembly and, just as it is done in so many instances, a copy of that can be tabled when the next session of the House comes along.

As for trying to kill it in a Select Committee, as is claimed by both the Minister for Education and the Minister for Housing, they must know what they are talking about killing things in a Select Committee. Certainly, anything will die in a Select Committee if the attitude of the Government with the Housing Scheme, or anything else, is what it is towards the Penal Code when the Select Committee could not be held because enough Government Members would not show up for a quorum— indefinitely. It could die, it certainly could. Another thing which everyone needs to bear in mind, is that the ordinary Members on the floor of this House do not call Select Committee meetings, the Government calls them. And the least the Government could do with such, as one puts it, a vast majority, is turn up in sufficient number so that a meeting could be held. There are various meetings that have been cancelled where Select Committee should meet on the Penal Code, and it could not because those that are not gallivanting around the world had other things to do, apparently.

Oh yes, it could certainly die in Select Committee with the attitude of a Government like that.

At this time, Madam Speaker, the only concrete thing that we have seems to be that Government has not signed any agreements with any of these institutions or entities. As for the houses which the Minister for Housing is talking about, the four bedroom and the three bedroom houses that could be built and so on, we heard that some of those were in West Bay. But where are those plans, those huge pieces of blue paper that the Minister was holding up here on Friday? Where does the public go to get a look at them? Who do they see about them? We do not know that either. I certainly could not tell anyone, for I do not know. We hear the ever-constant theories about this four bedroom house that includes insurance and land and so on, that could be built for $93,000.

That is his story. Maybe that is so. But, certainly, if someone is going to buy such a house, that house costs approximately $929 per month in mortgage. That is where it all boils down to. People who want houses, who need houses, but can they afford them?

It does not seem to be so very good if, let us say, young professional couples (as has been said by the Minister for Housing) who are making a good salary but does not have a certain amount of cash, for them not to really have to work to earn and be able to put some equity into a house. Let us say they are earning $60,000 per year. Let us say they are accountants, certainly in their profession they will, in the natural course of events, be able to elevate themselves and improve themselves financially.

If it is so good that Government is undertaking on behalf of its people who can qualify, or who can pay up to $1,200 and more per month in mortgage, should they not strive to have some equity, when by the mere fact that this scheme caters to that upper-middle level of earning, those below that definitely do not qualify? Madam Speaker, I think that this would be a situation that defeats the purpose that it alleges to fulfill.

What more can be said at this time, than to say that the Government has arrived at a position where it is obviously confused, it has the public confused and it is not able to allay the reasonable and pertinent questions as to what it is doing by hard evidence in any sphere whatsoever? What do Legislators say to people who ask about this scheme, as I am sure many are asked? I am asked, others are asked? Do we tell them call the Ministry for Housing, they will tell you about it there? Is that the way it is supposed to be? The Minister of Housing is a political office, why should they be expected to have the answer? If it is a matter of handling a mortgage, there is already an entity in place, if this Government chose to use it for nothing else, it could use it as handling agency. Why does it not let it do that?

Why does the Government not consider giving a helping hand to the Housing Development Corporation which specifically caters to low income housing, and has catered to it for the past 13 years? Why does it not help it with finance? If the mystic company has $17 million that it would be lending at a certain amount, why does it not see if it would be interested in lending that money which the Government could guarantee it to the Housing Development Corporation in the same way? Why is that not done?

Madam Speaker, as for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the political district for which I am a representative, I do not fool myself into believing that would not be the last place to be considered. All I can say to the people of those two Islands is that if I have to continue to be a lone voice crying from the Backbench, I am going to keep crying. The only thing that I can promise the Government is that the voice is not going to get weaker, it is going to get louder and louder, crying out against any and all unfairness.

But that is a very good question: Where do Cayman Brac and Little Cayman figure in on this? I would assure any Member of Government that no one need attempt to pat me on the head and tell me not to worry, hopefully it will be extended over there. That does not cut it as far as I am concerned. Show me your scheme, show me your deal and show me how the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman would be able to participate.

There is one peculiar thing in the condition as it relates to Cayman Brac. There are many people who had to leave that Island because there was no employment—they could not live, they could not feed their families. Whole families have moved here. They have a first house in many instances.

Let us say their condition is such that they really do not see how they can go back for a long time. Would they be refused the opportunity of getting a mortgage because they have a first house? That is a question that the Minister and his colleagues might want to think about. Surely the declared position against the Brac is that it should not expect to get anything. And, as I noted this morning, that has been very well carried out. But I really resent any of them making these feyah-feyah remarks because they believe someone is going to believe the story that, "we are going to take care of Cayman Brac."

The Speaker: Honourable Member, would you define that last remark, I think it is important for the Hansard Reporters. Using English.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, it is a colloquialism I have heard which means puny or nothing-type of remark.

The Speaker: Are you about to finish, or...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes.

Madam Speaker, it is a condition which really concerns me in regard to what has happened with this housing scheme, which we really do not have sufficient details about. The only way I believe that it can really be discussed by everyone is in a Select Committee. That Select Committee can be as long or as short as the Government wishes it to be.

The Auditor General can now examine what has happened so far with speed—he does not have to wait a year to make a report.

I believe there deserves to be a fair opportunity for all banks, all lending institutions, all developers, all construction companies to benefit from the proposed venture. It cannot be fair to exclude them by giving any particular and discriminate consideration to any one entity.

In closing, I believe, as the Mover of this Motion, that something has been achieved in that the House has now heard more information, if I may venture that term, about what is being done or being proposed to be done. So I believe that I have fulfilled my duty in that regard and so has the seconder and the other one supporter of this Motion.

Madam Speaker, I believe democracy has been served to some extent and my most fervent wish is that should this scheme be set up and work, some chance will be given to those persons who cannot afford to pay $1,200 per month in mortgage money, but who could pay maybe half of that, and that those persons are catered to. If it takes re-injecting some light and some trust in the Housing Development Corporation, which I hope does not die the death that is planned for it, then I hope that will be done.

This Motion is the only fair and reasonable way that there can be full participation in what is now going on in the Government. So, I leave it to the will of the majority as to what comes of it.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion No. 9/94:

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT Government take no further action to commit public funds or incur public liability with any entity in relation to any low income housing scheme until the discrepancies in the present situation have been reviewed by the Office of the Auditor General and a report made to the Legislative Assembly;

"AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the matter of a blanket guarantee by Government aforementioned be referred to a Select Committee of the whole House for consideration and examination, and for it to formulate certain standards, requirements and guidelines for a lower income housing scheme for which Government will provide a blanket guarantee and which will invite all financial institutions and housing construction entities, which meet specified qualification, to participate in and bid for such business on a competitive basis;

"AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT in considering the matter, the Select Committee seek input from relevant financial and legal entities as well as members of the public."

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye... Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could we have a division?

The Speaker: You certainly may.
Madam Clerk.

Clerk: Division No. 2/94
(Private Member's Motion No. 9/94)

NOES: 14

Hon. Lemuel Hurlston
Hon. Joel Walton
Hon. W. McKeeva Bush
Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson
Hon. John B. McLean
Hon. Truman M. Bodden
Hon. Anthony S. Eden
Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.
Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks
Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson
Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy

AYES: 3

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts
Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
Mr. Roy Bodden

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell
Mr. G. Haig Bodden
Mrs. Edna M. Moyle

ABSENT:
Hon. Richard H. Coles

Clerk: Three Ayes, 14 Noes.

The Speaker: The result of the division is 3 Ayes, 14 Noes, the Motion has therefore been rejected.

NEGATIVED BY MAJORITY: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 9/94.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended at this time—

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I was wondering Ma'am, if... I was going to take a point of order on the next Motion. However, I have to read an obituary at a funeral at 4 o'clock, which I had requested your permission to leave. I was wondering if I may be able to take that point of order maybe before you break if you will indulge me to that extent, or if you wish to break still.

The Speaker: I think we could take your point of order, since you have to leave, Honourable Minister.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you for your indulgence, Ma'am.

The next motion that is on the agenda is the same in substance as a motion that was passed back on the 25th November, 1993, and Standing Order 24(8) has relevance to it.

Secondly, there is now a Select Committee that has been appointed by the motion that was passed on the 25th November, 1993, and if I may just read that part of it, it says: "...Part IV A be referred to a Select Committee of the Elected Members of this Honourable House for further study and that recommendations be made to Her Majesty's Government at the earliest possible date." (1993 Official Hansard Report Vol. II page 952)

It is exactly the same Motion that that has already been passed. What needs to really happen now is that the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works, who is the senior Member of the House, to call a meeting and then that meeting would appoint a chairman. It is exactly the same committee—the composition is the same, it is all the elected Members. This is the point that I wish to make.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I do not have the benefit of having that motion before me and, therefore, at this time I cannot make a ruling on it. If I am supplied with a copy of that motion I will make a ruling at that time, before this motion comes up.

Thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will accordingly be suspended.

PROCEEDING SUSPENDED AT 3.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.05 PM

The Speaker: I have reviewed the point of order raised by the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation, with regard to the contents of Private Member's Motion 10/94.

In Standing Order 24(8) it is provided that, "no Motion may be proposed which is the same in substance as any motion which during the previous six months has been resolved." I am to say that this is a valid point of order.

It is left for the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works, being the longest-serving Elected Member, under Standing Order 70(7), to appoint the time for the Committee to have its first meeting and at which time it will appoint its Chairman.

I am constrained to express the hope that this will not take six months to be done, that it will be done as expeditiously as possible, Honourable Members. The Committee will meet accordingly Private Member's Motion No. 10/94 would fall away.

The Speaker: The next item...

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

POINT OF CLARIFICATION

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Clarification. The Resolve section of Private Member's Motion No. 10/94, asks that we consider the Fundamental Rights and Freedoms of the individual as contained in the Draft Constitution, and that the opinions of the Members of the House then be made known to the Select Committee. Is that the same as what was passed in the Motion of 1993?

The Speaker: The Motion in 1993, and again I do not have the annexures which were a part of that in front of me, recommended to Her Majesty's Government that the changes set forth in Government Motion No. 4/93, excluding Part IV (A)—and that goes on to say: being the Fundamental Rights and duties of the individual. So that is the same in substance, Honourable Member.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I graciously accept your decision.

The Speaker: The next item is Private Member's Motion No. 11/94. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would like to refer to Standing Orders. I just had a motion on the floor and I have been talking for an extremely long time. We are nearing the hour of 4.30 p.m., and in the past few days in the House meetings have been suspended before 4.30 p.m. I was wondering whether I could move the suspension under the appropriate Standing Orders with your approval and that of the House, if the Meeting could be adjourned at this time because my voice is rather used at this point.

Under Standing Order 83, Madam Speaker (and I seek your assistance in the appropriate Standing Order, to the time of the House), I would so move the suspension of the Standing Order that adjournment could take place.

The Speaker: I think this could be allowed, but it will have to be for the decision of the House. The House has to make the decision, if it is desired that the proceedings be adjourned. Are you moving the Motion that the proceedings be adjourned until Wednesday?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would ask that the House would adjourn at this time by suspending Standing Order 10(2).

The Speaker: The Motion by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, has not been seconded.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would respectfully like to second the Motion.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker: The Motion is that at this time (which is 4.12 p.m.), the House do now adjourn until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The Motion is before the House.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, there are a lot of Private Member's Motions before us and, as we see it, there is a lot of Government Business to do next week. We should try to get in as much time as possible. Therefore, we cannot support the Motion.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I heard the Minister who just replied on behalf of Government. I think that it shows the attitude which presently exists in this House when on two occasions in recent times, including suspending the House for the Minister to supposedly call a Meeting of Executive Council, which we had no knowledge of other than his saying so...Everyone knows that I have been talking for the past four hours. However, I would ask that you put the question on the matter, please.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that the House be adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye, those against No.

AYES AND NOES

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could I have a division please?

The Speaker: I have not yet declared whether the Ayes or Noes have it. I will say that the Noes have it.

May we have a division, Madam Clerk?

CLERK:

DIVISION NO. 3/94 (On the Adjournment)

AYES: 9

Dr. S. A. Tomlinson
Mrs. Berna Murphy
Mr. Kurt Tibbetts
Capt. Mabry Kirkconnell
Mr. Gilbert McLean
Mr. Roy Bodden
Mr. Haig Bodden
Mrs. Edna Moyle
Mr. Dalmain Ebanks

NOES: 8

Hon. Lemuel Hurlston
Hon. Richard Coles
Hon. Joel Walton
Hon. McKeeva Bush
Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson
Hon. John McLean
Hon. Anthony Eden
Mr. John Jefferson, Jr.

ABSENT: 1

Hon. Truman M. Bodden

The Speaker: The result of the division is nine Ayes and eight Noes. The Motion has, therefore been carried. Accordingly, the House will be adjourned until Wednesday morning, 8th June, 1994, at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.16 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 8 JUNE 1994

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
8 JUNE, 1994
10.06 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Third Elected Member for George Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 73 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 73

No. 73: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state the number of Caymanians on suspension from the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, there are currently three Caymanian Officers suspended from duty in the Royal Cayman Islands Police. The suspensions are as a result of allegations of serious misconduct on the part of the officers against Police Regulations, 1976. One of these officers has resigned with effect from 1st June, 1994. Another was due to appear before a disciplinary hearing on the 2nd of June, 1994. Disciplinary charges are being prepared in respect of a third officer.

A further two officers who are not Caymanian and who do not have Caymanian status are on suspension pending their trials on criminal charges.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say what the normal span of time is between an officer's being placed on suspension and charges either being brought or dropped against that officer?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, the time varies depending upon a number of factors including factors relating to gathering of evidence, preparation of charges, providing a reasonable opportunity for disciplinary defence to be prepared. There are a number of factors which dictate the length of time that each case may require.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say what provision is made regarding pay for officers that are on suspension during the period of the suspension?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, the question of salary and the amount of salary, if any, to be paid to an officer during the period of suspension is at the discretion of the Commissioner of Police. That discretion is exercised dependent upon the seriousness of the charge which the officer is being called upon to answer.

Generally speaking, if the charge is sufficiently serious so that if convicted it would warrant dismissal from the force, the suspension is without pay.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In those cases where, upon hearing the charges, they have either been dropped or there was insufficient evidence to continue, is the officer reimbursed retroactively for the suspension?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 74, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 74

No. 74: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to outline the orientation course given to the newly recruited English Officers in the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, the newly seconded United Kingdom Officers are given a two-week induction course commencing one week after their arrival in the Cayman Islands. The first week is spent on administrative matters, familiarisation, issuing of uniforms, finding accommodation, attestation, issuing driving licences, identity cards, etcetera.

The two-week induction course is designated to familiarise the new officers with local laws and procedures and the following subjects are covered:

- Organisation of the Royal Cayman Islands Police
- Organisation of local Government
- Judges Rules
- Force Standing Orders
- Traffic Law and Regulations
- Role of Commercial Crime Branch
- Firearms—Range Assessment
- Police Station Procedures
- Firearms Law (Revised)
- Crime reporting and recording procedures
- Collators Department and Records
- Foot and Arms Drill
- Penal Code
- Criminal Procedure Code
- Music and Dancing Law
- Gambling Law
- Police Law and Regulations
- Role of Immigration Department and Immigration Law
- Misuse of Drugs Law (Revised)
- Drugs offences—procedures
- Liquor Licensing Law
- Public Order and Offensive Weapons
- Force vehicle driver testing

- Force communications
- Role of Computer Services Department
- Complaints and Discipline Department
- Scenes of Crime Department
- Role of Social Services Department
- Marine Conservation Law
- Role of Customs Department
- Bail Law
- Juvenile Law
- Police Welfare Fund and Police Association

The course programme also includes visits to important buildings, including the Legislative Assembly Building. Handouts are also issued on the following subjects: The Election Law, The Animal Law, The Airport Regulations, The Port Authority Law, The Mental Health Law.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if, strictly speaking, the orientation ends abruptly at the end of the two week period?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, I am not quite sure what the Honourable Member means by "ending abruptly." Could he clarify it please?

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, I certainly will. It seems that the list given here is quite comprehensive and, therefore, I am left to wonder just how much can be absorbed over the two week period. Is any provision made, for example, if an officer requests further orientation or enlightenment, in cases where all of these things were not covered to a sufficient level as to familiarise the officers with them?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, I thank the Honourable Member for that clarification.

The fact is that officers who complete the familiarisation and orientation course are then gradually given responsibilities under the close supervision of officers of a superior rank and of considerably more experience. It is during that period that the officer is introduced to the world of work in Cayman.

The Force is divided in such a rank structure that no one is allowed to work without the appropriate level of supervision and during that time the new recruit has the opportunity of making comparisons between what was learned during the induction period and what is required of him during the application of that knowledge.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if familiarisation, as mentioned in his answer, means familiarisation with different areas of the district or constituency in which the officers are serving?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Most certainly, Madam Speaker. It is a prerequisite that one is familiar with the geography of any area when called upon to be a Policeman.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 75, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 75

No. 75: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to report on Government's initiatives to attempt to alleviate the financial burden of soaring property insurance.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel Walton: Government established a Task Force in October 1993 to investigate the Insurance market and establish the reasons for the current high property insurance rates and terms.

An interim report was submitted in February 1994. A second interim report is currently being finalised. The final report is expected once ongoing research is completed. The Government will at that time implement those recommendations considered appropriate.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member offer this House any information on how the research was conducted?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel Walton: Madam Speaker, the Committee, through its various members, assisted in the research. In addition, we are in the process of contracting a specialist firm to do a study on the possible maximum loss in the event of a major catastrophe. It is a combination of committee work and internal government work of an external objective research body.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if, in the course of the research, any comparative analysis is done with rates in our jurisdiction as against rates in other areas, even including rates outside of the Caribbean region?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel Walton: The research itself is ongoing. However, the first report that was produced took a look specifically at the local market and how it fits in with the international reinsurance market as a part of that study. It is my understanding that work was done to compare the rates in our national boundaries to rates in the region and how that relates to the international reinsurance market.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Member enlighten us as to what areas were chosen for members of the committee? Is it from the public sector, or were they taken from the private sector, or was it a mixture of both?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel Walton: The Membership of the Committee is actually comprised of public sector persons, also persons from the local domestic insurance market as well as persons operating in Cayman, but in the reinsurance captive market. So it is a combination of three different types of people.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member give the House some idea of when some conclusions from the ongoing study might be reached, and if that study comprises of foreign consultants who are specialists in this field of insurance who can, indeed, have an objective view on the situation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel Walton: I gather that there are at least two questions. One is when could I give an undertaking to actually advise the House of the outcome: We expect that we could produce the outcome of that study by the September Session.

The other question is one of the reasons why we use the combination of public domestic insurers and people operating in Cayman within the captive reinsurance market: This is to try to get a blend of different sides of the picture. We, in turn, then will be recruiting (we are actually in the process of it right now) an outside objective firm to look at the possible maximum loss in the event of a major catastrophe. So it is basically a four way combination. I think we have done our best to try to get all sides of the picture.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 76, standing in the name of The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 76

No. 76: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if there are in place any official restrictions on Caymanians visiting Cuba or relatives of Caymanians living there visiting their relatives in the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: There are no restrictions on Caymanians visiting Cuba that I am aware of. Caymanians living in Cuba who possess British (Caymanian) passports have no travel restrictions. If they possess Cuban passports, however, they are processed the same as a Cuban visitor, requiring a visa to enter the Cayman Islands.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Member say if persons who might be direct relatives of Caymanians are given any special consideration in terms of making life easier for them to visit a relative here in the Cayman Islands and, if so, what might that procedure be?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker perhaps if I outline the normal procedure that may help to answer the supplementary question.

The normal procedure is that a person normally resident in Cuba who wishes to visit a relative in Cayman would make an application at the British Embassy in Havana. That application would be forwarded to the Cayman Islands. The original application usually comes by Diplomatic Bag and the signal in the form of a telegram is usually sent in advance indicating the applications dispatch.

Upon receiving the application, the sponsor, or relative in the Cayman Islands, is then contacted to verify the authenticity of the visit to confirm that arrangements are acceptable and agreeable for housing, etcetera, during the visit. Thereafter, the application is sent to the Executive Council for the issuing of the necessary visa. Once that has been done, the British Embassy in Havana is then advised of the decision and the necessary travel arrangements can then be made.

It is true to say that in looking at applications, the highest preference and priority is always given to those with the closest Caymanian connections.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Member confirm if it is the case that a relative of a Caymanian (but who might be considered a Cuban by the Cuban government) who might visit these Islands and does not return within a specified term, or the time given in that visa, is it the case that they cannot be allowed entry back into Cuba and such persons would, in effect, then fall to the Cayman Islands for being taken care of?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, one of the internal requirements of persons exiting Cuba is that they must obtain from the relevant Ministry (the Ministry of the Interior) permission of the local Cuban Immigration Authorities to make an exit. If the person is exiting for a visit they are normally given an exit permit which is valid for the duration of the intended visit abroad.

If someone does not return and that visit stamp expires, there are some consequences which is a matter for the Ministry of Internal Security in Cuba to determine.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if he, or his Ministry, has any applications at this time from persons who are living in Cuba who might like to visit the Cayman Islands, relatives or otherwise?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Yes, Madam Speaker. I can confirm that my office generally will always have some applications for persons who wish to visit, as well as persons who wish to take up residence. My office is generally quite busy with those matters.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 77, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 77

No. 77: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is the normal process of appointing officers to the Civil Service from the level of Assistant Secretary up to Permanent Secretary?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Appointments to the Administrative Service below the level of Permanent Secretary are made by the Governor on the advice of the Public Service Commission.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Member say if the appointment in the administrative level of Government is normally done externally or through promotion within the Civil Service?

The Speaker: The First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, in accordance with the provision of Regulation 18 of the Public Service Regulations, and sub-regulation 4, priority is normally given to the appointment of public officers who are serving officers within the Public Service before considering other persons.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Member say if there have been any appointments in recent times into the senior assistant secretary level, or above, within the service from persons external and not working in the civil service?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Yes, Madam Speaker, I can confirm that. But I can also confirm that that was done competitively and serving officers were also considered along with other applicants.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say in how many instances in the past has this occurred—where persons from outside of the service have been appointed directly into Government at that level?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, it is not the norm. It is, rather, the exception. But where positions have been advertised both internally and locally, all candidates serving and not serving are short listed by the Head of the Department. Interviews are conducted by a panel and the selection is based on the person who is considered most suited for the appointment.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if it has come to his official attention at any time, that there is any political move to cause appointments of persons in the administrative level of Government in the Cayman Islands Civil Service to come about, and not to allow promotion from within—thus favouring a particular type of person, or quality of person, whatever?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Not to my knowledge, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 78, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 78

No. 78: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs how Government arrived at the figure of 5% for salary increase for Civil Servants.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: The proposed salary award of 5%, effective 1st June, 1994, was determined by Government based upon costs and affordability.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if any effort or action was taken to determine what would be the actual percentage which should be payable to civil servants, taking into account factors other than affordability?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, the Government is aware of the increases in the consumer price index, as well as other factors that would historically be taken into consideration affecting salaries. This particular award was exclusively based on the question of cost and affordability, nothing else.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Bearing in mind that the salaries in the civil service could possibly go back to where they were in 1989, far, far below what was realistic and justifiable, is the Government intending to make any attempt to have a study or an analysis done to determine what would really be the correct quantum, taking into account all factors?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, what I could, perhaps, explain to the House is that there is an ongoing exercise, which Government has commissioned for some time now, known as a Job Evaluation Exercise, which is designed to place an economic value on every job in the civil service based on the existing scales. It is hoped that that exercise will be completed for implementation in January of next year.

Allied to that is the Government's opportunity to consider if it wants to restructure any of its existing grades. That is a process that is currently ongoing.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 79, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 79

No. 79: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister Responsible for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what is being done about creating a facility for mentally disabled citizens of the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: At present, one room at the George Town Hospital has been identified for in-patient use in the treatment of acute cases of mentally handicapped persons.

To further address this situation, priority will be given to offering improved healthcare to this segment of the population in plans for the revision of the hospital facilities which are currently going on. This provision is expected to include a day care centre and residential service for the chronically mentally ill.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say if any consideration is being given to those individuals who, through being mentally handicapped, are homeless?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes. At this time it is being assessed by going into the community and trying to find out what is happening. I am also made aware that the public health nurses do regularly go out into the communities where these people, who are less fortunate, and unable to come to the Hospital, are being helped by the public health nurse.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, the homeless individuals that I referred to in the previous question, with the greatest of respect, are homeless. What I am trying to accomplish by the question is to find out if anything is being done as regards finding shelter for these individuals?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This is being looked at through the Social Services Department at this time and we are willing, through the Health Services, to render any assistance that may be supplementary to what is being developed through the Social Services.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say how many of these mentally disabled persons are there throughout the Islands? What is the number?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: There are approximately 100 persons. We are looking at this in more detail and trying to go into the communities and find out exactly the numbers that are there.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The previous Minister of Health made some announcement or representation that Government was considering using the cottages known as the Tim Thompson Cottages for some kind of shelter or homes for this type of person. Is this still a plan of the Government, or is the Government in a process of making alternate plans?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I am aware of what the First Elected Member for Bodden Town is talking about, but I think we also are looking more in detail on the facilities review at the present hospital.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Can the Honourable Minister tell us what is happening with the Rehabilitation Centre in Breakers? What is the status?

The Speaker: Honourable Member that is not part of this question. This concerns mentally disabled and the rehabilitation was for drug abuse.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Excuse me, Madam Speaker, but these people are mentally ill on account of drug addiction.

The Speaker: Can the Honourable Minister answer that?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: That question is set down to come later on. I would be able to deal with it at that time.

The Speaker: Thank you.

The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would state whether a priority would be given also to the mentally afflicted in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, as I know that he is aware that we do have a problem similar to Grand Cayman, although in a smaller number.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac can rest assured that this Ministry will certainly include Cayman Brac in any work that is done for the mentally handicapped.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Recognising the fact that the Minister is still new in the position, and there will certainly need to be some time for assessments and such the like, would the Honourable Minister be in a position at this time to say if the old George Town Police lock up is being used on a temporary basis for housing some of these individuals?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I am not aware of that at this time, but I will certainly make an undertaking to check into it further, Honourable Member.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Having given that undertaking, would the Honourable Minister also give an undertaking to investigate if this is being done, whether properly qualified individuals could be seconded to that location when this occurs rather than policemen having to deal with it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, I will certainly look into this.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 80, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 80

No. 80: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister Responsible for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what steps are being taken to alleviate the shortage of hospital beds at the George Town Hospital?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: On 1st March, 1994, an agreement was made between the Cayman Islands Government and Chalmers Gibbs Martin Joseph (Architects) in association with APEC Consultants Incorporated to provide a master facilities development plan for the existing George Town Hospital site.

The Master Facilities Development Plan is to cover the projected out-patient and in-patient health facility needs of the Cayman Islands through the year 2004. The Master Facilities Development Plan will also provide the following: 1. A survey of existing facilities to determine their structural and architectural condition; 2. An assessment of existing external services main water, electricity, air-conditioning, gases to determine their condition and code compliance.

The Master Facilities Development Plan will indicate the number of beds required by the George Town Hospital, having taken into account the perceived and expressed needs of the staff for effectively providing the necessary services to patients.

Equally important, it will assist the Government in determining whether the present site can accommodate the planned physical improvement which is expected to include construction of new buildings and renovation of those present buildings that are still functional, while allowing room for future expansion over the next 20 to 25 years.

The contracting firm will present its final report to medical and other key persons within days, to be followed by a written report to the Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation. Following this, the Ministry will be in a position to make its recommendations to the Government for the upgrading and overall improvement of the physical plant.

In the meantime, immediate attention is being given to those areas of physical improvement that are most urgently required and, at the same time, can be accomplished without undue delay and disruption to present services.

Specifically, to address the beds: In the event that all the beds are occupied and a new patient needs to be admitted, that patient is held in casualty while arrangements are made for the discharge of another patient.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I know that the answer to the question indicates that within days the report is expected to be given, but does the Honourable Minister have any idea, from any discussions which might have ensued, as to the projected cost of these improvements?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, I am not prepared to release that information at this time.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister confirm that some of the consultancies used were the same that were used on the Dr. Hortor Hospital, and what is the cost for paying these people for carrying out this study?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, they are the same people. I do not have the figure here with me, but I will undertake to get it to the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Madam Speaker, would the Honourable Minister tell us whether there is a true shortage of beds at the George Town Hospital?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I have been made to understand that there is a small shortage in the surgical area, but overall they seem to be able to accommodate as necessary.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: I wonder if the Honourable Minister could tell us who determines the patient that would have to leave, what is the order and how do they go about this?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This is done through the consultation with the admitting physician and the Director of Health Services.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: A part of the answer to the original question as stated by the Minister reads “equally important, it will assist the Government if the present site can accommodate the planned physical improvement which is expected to include construction of new buildings, etcetera.” Can the Honourable Minister state that if the findings indicate that the present site cannot accommodate the planned physical development what might be the alternate?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Madam Speaker, we have not made an alternate decision if we cannot go there.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Seeing that the very consultants and others have made determination already in regards to space and physical facilities, in regard to the now stopped Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital, has any thought been given that that site might be suitable for the purpose of putting the facilities which the Minister and the Ministry envisages?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. The next item is Statements by Ministers of the Government under Standing Order 30(1): "A Member of the Government who intends to make a statement on a public matter for which the Government is responsible shall inform the Presiding Officer of his intention before the beginning of the Sitting at which he wishes to make the statement."

On the Order Paper, there are five statements listed. The first is the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

STATEMENTS BY MINISTERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

CAYMAN ISLANDS CONSTRUCTION INDUSTRY

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Madam Speaker and Honourable Members, I deem it timely to inform you, and the listening public, that the Cayman Islands construction industry is recovering rapidly and all economic and statistical indicators are showing positive growth.

As a result of development approvals in 1993, and so far in 1994, work has commenced on a number of significant projects valued at $32,500,000. This figure does not include the value of single family dwellings presently under construction.

Although, traditionally, the first quarter of any year has always been the slowest, the value of approvals during the first quarter of 1994 is some 33% above the same period in 1993. It should also be noted that there were no Government projects approved during the period, although Government's 1994 capital budget is $20 million.

Significant increases were also experienced during the first quarter of 1994 in the single family residential category with the value of approvals increasing by 51%, compared to the same period in 1993, from $6.1 million to $9.2 million.

The most significant increase, however, was in the commercial category, which leaped in the first quarter from $100,000 to $5.2 million.

Madam Speaker, it is clear from these figures, and others that are available to us, that these Islands are about to enter another economically buoyant cycle which undoubtedly has been effected by the return of investor confidence in the current Government. We have achieved strong growth in tourism and the offshore financial centre. The only sector which has taken much thought and hard work to stimulate activity is the construction industry, and we are already beginning to see the fruit of our labour.

This Government would like to ensure the public that we will continue to support their best interests and, by providing equal employment for our people, all may continue, once again, to maintain the standard and quality of life to which we have, by hard work, become accustomed.

Madam Speaker and Honourable Members, this is only the beginning of the good news.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, under Standing Order 30(2), I would like to ask the Honourable Minister for clarification. How much of the $20 million Government projects will be started this year? He mentioned in his statement that there are no planning approvals so far for the $20 million Government projects.

The Speaker: I have given the Honourable Member permission to ask the short question, although he did not wait for permission. Honourable Minister, you may now reply.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I think the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town will be happy to know that the Government, understanding the wishes of the populace and the Members across the floor, is hoping that all of the $20 million will be spent by the end of December 1994, and that the proper department within Government has been instructed to put to public tender the work set out in the capital programme of the Government in order to expedite and cause the total sum, or as near to the total sum as possible, to be spent by December 1994.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, may I ask a brief question, also under Standing Order 30(2), of the Honourable Minister and the statement which he just made?

The Speaker: You may, Honourable Member.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Without the benefit of a copy of his statement, I recall the Minister saying that there has been a considerable amount of construction approved so far this year. Can the Minister indicate whether it is the case that this amount will happen, or is that basically a guiding figure as to approvals?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The answer to the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is that that amount of work, or more, will happen.

The Speaker: The next Statement is by the Honourable Minister for Agriculture Communications and Works.

POSTAL SERVICES IN THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. As I promised the Members of this Honourable House, I would like to keep them informed of the Postal Services in the Cayman Islands.

Some renovations have begun at the General Post Office: the re-tiling and painting of the lobby. Plans are being finalised with the Public Works Department for the installation of 400 additional post boxes at the General Post Office, together with the addition of counter space to accommodate express mail services, receipt and mailing of parcels and fee collections. More parking will also be provided next to the Post Office.

A campaign to rent boxes at the Seven Mile Beach Post Office has been most successful with over 600 boxes being rented between September 1993 and May 1994. Outstanding rental fees have also been collected.

With the procurement of personal computers the process of renting boxes and collecting fees will be computerised, thus eliminating the outmoded exercise of record-keeping by hand. Staff development has progressed with members of staff attending customer service training courses, performance appraisals, and supervisory training and computer courses.

A concerted effort has been made in the area of public relations and public service. The public is now routinely informed on how to make the best of the Post Office. Counter service at the General Post Office and several of the sub Post Offices has been extended from 3.00 p.m. to 5.00 p.m. in order to accommodate public demand.

A Post Office Logo has been adopted to provide a business identity and will be used on, among other things, uniforms, stationery, and mail drops.

Mail drop boxes are on order and are scheduled to be delivered early this summer. They will be installed around George Town in heavily populated locations. This will not only be more convenient to customers but will divert traffic from the General Post Office. Express mail service to the United States and certain Caribbean countries is due to come on line by the end of the year.

Air Parcels are now being dispatched on a daily basis and through more cost effective routes. Daily international dispatches from the Seven Mile Beach Post Office have reduced the volume of outward mail in the main sorting area by up to 35%, freeing up space and staff hours.

SISTER ISLANDS: Plans to upgrade facilities and services in the sister islands are also in train. In Little Cayman mail runs have now been introduced on a daily basis and it is proposed to construct a purpose-built facility to house the operation and serve the developing community for years to come.

Cayman Brac is also on the agenda and direct international dispatching has already been instituted, thereby enhancing service by 24-48 hours. Physical improvements will include the replacement of old boxes, the purchase of a mail van and operational improvements throughout.

It has been proven that these improved measures will not only update services to the public, but will also improve Government's revenue.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The next Statement is another by the Honourable Minister for Tourism Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

CAYMAN TURTLE FARM

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker and Honourable Members, I am pleased to report to this Honourable House that at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Cayman Turtle Farm 1983, Limited, held on the 10th of March, 1994, it was agreed that effective 1st August, 1994, production would be increased by 56% above the current level (760 pounds of stew meat per week), to 1,190 pounds per week. It was also further decided that this increase in stew meat will be made available to the public on a first-come, first-served basis at the premises of the Turtle Farm.

During the 1993/1994 fiscal year, which ended 31st March, 1994, the Farm processed 100,297 pounds live weight of turtle which produced 36,691 pounds of stew meat; 8,782.5 of steak; and 3,313 pounds of other edible products, that is fin, skin and minavolin.

During the current fiscal year, April 1994 to March 1995, some 2,295 turtles will be processed, weighing 141,183 pounds. The livestock herd, excluding breeding stock, will increase during the fiscal year, from 313,211 pounds live weight, to an estimated 382,518 pounds live weight.

Anticipated production for the 1995/1996 fiscal year is estimated to be some 3,800 turtles with a live weight of 237,000 pounds. This would produce at current production yield, 97,000 pounds of stew meat; 20,400 pounds of steak; and 13,750 pounds of other edible products. This level of production would be approximately 2.4 times that being produced currently.

Obviously, acts of nature, such as severe storm, or a major disease problem could have a significant detrimental effect on future production goals.

Based on 1993/1994 costs, one pound of live turtle weight, including processing, costs $3.32. The sale of one pound of live turtle resulted in an income of $2.82, or a loss of 50 cents per pound. Accordingly, it has become necessary to increase the price of turtle products as of 1st July 1994, as follows:

ITEM PER POUND	From:	To:
Stew beef	4.50	5.00
Steak	8.50	9.00
Edible products	2.50	2.80

With the price increase scheduled to be implemented on the 1st of July, income then rises to $3.10 per pound reducing the loss to 20 cents per pound.

Madam Speaker, based on these production estimates, it appears that the local demand for turtle meat will be met and the additional amount of turtle meat available for sale from the 1st of August, 1994, until 31st March, 1996—which is the projection period from which I am reading—will be sold to the public on a first-come, first-served basis, at the premises of the Turtle Farm.

The exact procedure to collect the turtle meat ordered will be publicly announced.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Another statement by the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

SAFEGUARDING THE MARINE ENVIRONMENT OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am, again, pleased to report to this Honourable House that Government has embarked upon a far-reaching initiative in that of safeguarding the Marine Environment of the Cayman Islands.

Following detailed discussions between representatives of the Holland American Cruise Line and the representatives of the Department of the Environment, Holland American Line has agreed that all six of its luxury cruise ships will adhere to a new "zero discharge" policy while in the Cayman Islands' waters. The "zero discharge" policy will mean that these ships will hold on board all waste effluents and treated sewage whenever they are within 12 nautical miles of the Cayman Islands.

The ships involved are: SS Rotterdam, MS Nieuw Amsterdam, MS Noordam, MS Westerdam, MS Statendam, MS Maasdam.

The ban on discharge includes, ballast water, water generated from the ships' laundry and kitchen, "grey water" from passengers' accommodations. The only exception to the ban would arise in the event of an emergency which threatens the safety or stability of the ship.

This agreement with Holland American Lines represents an important step towards a working partnership between Government and the cruise lines, the aim of which is to preserve the reefs and the waters of the Cayman Islands which attract hundreds of thousands of visitors every year.

Madam Speaker, I would also like to add that discussions are also underway with Carnival Cruise Lines aiming at a similar voluntary agreement to protect the Marine Environment.

This Government is of the view that this new initiative will ensure that the Cayman Islands remain the leader in Marine Conservation in the Caribbean.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The next statement is by The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

RESIGNATION OF DIRECTOR OF THE WATER AUTHORITY, MR. RICHARD BESWICK

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: The Director of the Water Authority, Mr. Richard Beswick, has submitted his resignation, effective 31st May, 1994, and it has been accepted by the Board of the Authority. The resignation arose out of a number of unauthorised actions by the Director which are indicative of a lack of judgment and discretion.

A special audit by the Office of the Auditor General into certain aspects of the Water Authority's operation is ongoing. Any action to be taken by the Board in addressing problems or issues identified, will be decided on at the completion of that study, and a further statement will be made at that time.

The Speaker: Although not on the Orders of the day, I have granted leave for the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture to make a personal explanation under Standing Order 31.

PERSONAL STATEMENT

RE: CAYMAN AFFORDABLE HOUSING

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, in the debate on the motion to put the housing scheme into a Select Committee, many erroneous statements and wild allegations were made—allegations that could never, ever be said to be truthful at any time.

Allegations were made that the developer, Cayman Affordable Housing, never existed, that I, inter alia, had led the Finance Committee to believe that the company Cayman Affordable Housing had the necessary funds to back up the guarantee which the Finance Committee was asked to give. The Opposition alleged, in fact, there never was any guarantee of such funds.

The country must understand that the three Opposition Members presenting and supporting the Motion misled the House and, thus, the country. The Opposition could present no facts to substantiate their allegations and only relied on hypothetical cases, even when I informed the House of the facts surrounding the issue.

I am pleased to read to this Honourable House three letters which prove that the Opposition is wrong, once again, in their attempt to discredit Government. Letters, which are attached to this statement read, and I quote this letter from Cayman Affordable Housing, Division of Frank Hall Homes (Cayman Limited) PO Box 887 GT: "18 June 1993 The Hon. McKeever Bush; Cayman Islands Government; Grand Cayman;

"Dear Sir: To answer your two main questions:

"1. The share holders of Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, Trading under Cayman Affordable Housing for this scheme are: Heber G. Arch (40%) John A. Collins (20%), Pelican Securities Limited (20%), Beach Realty Company Limited (20%).

"2. For the execution of an agreement Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited shall provide Government with a guarantee that it is able to procure the required funds to the satisfaction of the Government. As discussed with you, CIBC will be the local mortgage bank that we will be dealing with initially.

"Please note that the responsibility of procuring the required funds is that of Frank Hall Homes (Cayman) Limited, and we hereby give you our full assurance that this shall be done.

"Should you have any suggestions or require any additional information, please contact the writer. Yours respectfully [signed] Heber G. Arch, Director."

The second letter, Madam Speaker, comes from Cayman International Bank and Trust Company Limited, PO Box 887, Grand Cayman BWI, (809)949-8655; Telex: 4305, Fax: (809)949-5267: "International Trust Group; 7th June, 1994 ; Hon. McKeeva Bush; Minister Responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture; Government Administration Building; George Town, Grand Cayman;

"Dear Sir: We confirm that as of 25th March, 1994, and as advised to you at that time, two trusts under our administration have committed to Frank Hall Homes, Limited to make available to them the funds to meet Frank Hall Homes, Limited's requirements under an agreement as proposed by the Cayman Islands Government to provide financing for housing subject to successful conclusion of that agreement.

"Yours faithfully [signed] John A. Furs."

Another misleading statement made by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman was that I was dealing with Hugo Zeiderent for purchase of lands.

The following is a communication which proves that the Opposition is absolutely wrong, and I quote: "MEMORANDUM TO: Permanent Secretary Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture; FROM: Permanent Secretary Agriculture, Communications and Works; DATE: June 7, 1994; SUBJECT: Purchase of lands, National Stadium

"On a point of clarification, I should like to note for the record that the controlling officer responsible and accountable for all land purchase schemes in the three islands is the Director of Lands and Surveys. The land purchase guidelines state that the Director of Lands and Survey shall be directly responsible for all land transactions and negotiations with participation of other officers subject to his consent and direction. The Lands Officers, who form part of the staff complement of Lands and Surveys, are qualified general practice surveyors, specialising in land acquisition, sale lease and valuation. These are officers who the Director assigns the responsibility to for all land purchase schemes.

"In the case of the National Stadium, your Ministry, as the client, has instructed the Director to negotiate the acquisition of a site within the Spotts registration section to accommodate such a sporting facility, including parking and landscaped areas.

"The lands officers have been actively pursuing the acquisition and have progressed quite satisfactorily. The property being acquired is owned by Messrs. Rex Creighton and Hugo Zeiderent.

"Although the principals involved may have contacted the Ministry of Agriculture Communication and Works, and the Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, concerned about the progress of the acquisition and the terms proposed, I should stress, unequivocally and categorically, that at no time has the client Ministry been assigned the responsibility to negotiate the acquisition of this property, nor has that Ministry usurped the powers vested in the Director of Lands and Surveys. [Signed] The Permanent Secretary for Agriculture, Communication and Works."

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town alleged, among other things, that one of the banks named in the Finance Committee authorisation of 19th July, 1993, had not been involved in any discussions since that date with regard to the implementation of this scheme. In fact, the files will show, the banks themselves, my Permanent Secretary and representatives of the Legal Department can vouch for the fact that there is no truth in this allegation. All the banks named in July 1993 were involved in a number of discussions and had written correspondence with my Ministry since that date.

This should say to the Opposition that on such an important matter they should have contacted the Permanent Secretary for my Ministry and not have depended upon hearsay.

The Government takes its responsibility seriously and the Opposition needs to be factual and should not be dependent on assumption, hearsay and hypothetical cases. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: There is another personal explanation...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, under Standing Order 30(2), may I ask a short question of the Honourable Minister?

The Speaker: This is giving a personal explanation under Standing Order 31. It is a personal explanation and no debate may arise thereon.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I thought this was a Government statement, but this is a personal statement.

The Speaker: I very clearly said it was a personal statement under Standing Order 31.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would like at this time to give notice that I would like to reserve the right to make a personal statement myself, later on.

The Speaker: Thank you.

There is a second personal explanation under Standing Order 31 by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture. Sorry, this was just a copy of that one. Thank you for that.

Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.29 AM

Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 11/94. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTION

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 11/94

ESTABLISHMENT OF A SELECT COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE TO REVIEW A REGISTER OF INTEREST FOR THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 11/94, entitled Establishment of a Select Committee of the Whole House to Review a Register of Interests for the Legislative Assembly. The Motion reads:

"WHEREAS the matter of a Register of Interests for these Islands has been mooted in various circles and debated in the Legislative Assembly;

"AND WHEREAS the Select Committee appointed by the Legislative Assembly on the 12th day of September, 1989, to review a "Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators", fell away without reaching a conclusion;

"AND WHEREAS a Register of Interests is considered a mechanism by which a record is created showing a Legislator's personal financial and pecuniary interests against which information his or her actions, speeches or votes in the Legislature may be judged;

"AND WHEREAS there may be questions of conflicts of interest which could be resolved quickly by reference to a Register of Interests;

"AND WHEREAS it is a growing international trend that countries are requiring greater scrutiny of the relationships between the personal and official dealings of elected representatives;

"AND WHEREAS new section 53A of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) (Amendment) Order, 1993, provides that there shall be a Register of Interests for the Islands;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this

Honourable House appoint a Select Committee of the whole House to consider matters relating to a Register of Interests and the drafting of enabling legislation making reference to legislation of other jurisdictions as may be considered appropriate and invite persons and organisations to make written submissions to or appear before the Select Committee;

"AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Select Committee, with all reasonable haste, lay its Report for the creation of a Register of Interests on the table of this Honourable House and thereafter a Law and a Register of Interests be created forthwith."

The Speaker: The first Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I respectfully beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 11/94, having been duly moved and seconded, is now open for debate. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I believe what this Motion asks for is action—law, or legislation, which would most intimately impact on the lives and conduct of Legislators in this country. It is a matter on which I would assume every Legislator in this Legislative Assembly would have an opinion, and would certainly wish to voice it.

The Motion seeks to create a situation whereby Members of the Legislative Assembly can be monitored by the public in their personal and legislative dealings and where Members of the Legislative Assembly can monitor themselves.

This Motion ask for a condition which sets out guidelines and appropriate legislation which, ideally, should have long ago been in place. However, conditions and events in the world and conditions and events in the Cayman Islands make it extremely necessary at this time to do something about the situation.

In the amendments to the Constitution, which was written by the present Government, there is provision in section 53A for a Register of Interests for the Cayman Islands. Madam Speaker, I would like to quote this short, but important, section in its entirety. I quote: "53A. (1) There shall be a Register of Interests for the Islands which shall be open to the public. The register shall be maintained by a Registrar who shall be appointed, and may be removed from office, by the Governor acting in his discretion.

"(2) It shall be the duty of any person to whom this section applies to declare to the Registrar for entry in the Register of Interests such interests, assets, income and liabilities of that person, and of such other person or persons connected with him, as may be prescribed by law.

“(3) A person shall make a declaration under subsection (2) of this section upon assuming the functions of his office and at such intervals (being no longer than twelve months) as may be prescribed by law.

“(4) This section applies to all members of the Legislative Assembly and the holders of such other offices (except that of Governor) as may be prescribed by law.

“(5) A law may make provision for giving effect to this section, including the sanctions which may be imposed for a failure to comply with subsection (2) or (3) and, notwithstanding any provision of Part III of this Constitution, the sanctions which may be imposed may include the suspension of a member of the Legislative Assembly from sitting therein for such period as may be prescribed by law.”

Madam Speaker, that new section in the Constitution states a very strong condition or state of affairs. I observe, in several instances, where it does not say “may” it says “shall.”

This Motion requests the Government to accept that a Select Committee should be set up straightaway to deal with this particular condition. The only fair way that I believe the views of all Members of the Legislative Assembly could be known on this issue would be in a Select Committee.

I would trust that the Government would not believe it possible that they, in their wisdom, should attempt to write such a Law without the full participation of all Legislators, seeing that this matter affects all Legislators individually and, indeed, other officers connected with the business of the Legislative Assembly—all persons. The only person excluded in this Constitution amendment is the Governor, and we know that in true Colonial fashion Colonial Governors are excluded from most things in the country and given almost supernatural powers.

Madam Speaker, the section that I have just read also points to some extremely detailed facts which, according to this amendment, may be included in a law. A law has not yet been written which would enable this to come into effect, but it does touch on various aspects that are part of the daily lives of those who find themselves elected as Members of the Legislative Assembly.

It is so very easy for people on the outside, in organisations such as the Chamber of Commerce, to criticise and to say what should be the conduct or the procedure as it relates to Legislators. These organisations who criticise in many instances, certainly do not put in place similar laws or stringent conditions to circumscribe their particular dealings.

At the onset, let me say that I believe there are organisations in the private sector which are as guilty, or have been as guilty, of breaching the condition one talks about—being in a position of conflict of interest—as any Legislator that has been, or may be, in this country.

In fact, Madam Speaker, the whole world, and if we reduce that down to mean this whole country, the whole society, has an inherent right to put its elected representatives under a microscope to pry into their most personal affairs, where the Legislators, in many instances, dare not even think similar claims about some of those who would wish to know about their Legislators.

For various reasons many, who, I am sure, would criticise Legislators and claim various anomalies about what they do, would most likely threaten that Legislator if the Legislator said, ‘Well, you know, you are accusing me but I want to see your bank account and how much you owe,’ and so forth and so on. Most likely such a person in society would threaten them, ‘listen, that is my business you must want me not to vote for you next time,’ or something of the sort. So this is an extremely hairy situation.

Madam Speaker, in moving this Motion I have taken the time to look at legislation affecting various countries. In section 2 of our amendment it says that: “...any person to whom this section applies [might be required] to declare to the Registrar for entry in the Register of Interests such interest, assets, income and liabilities of that person, ...as may be prescribed in the law.” So it appears to me that the extent to which Legislators must bare themselves and their most intimate dealings needs to be clearly and carefully scrutinised.

One country that comes to mind, which has an extremely detailed requirement for its legislators, is the country of Jamaica—where the amount of details required of legislators in that country to declare once they have become a Member of Parliament is quite astonishing.

I would believe that while it is necessary, it is desirable, and it has been long coming, that as Legislators of this Assembly we should look carefully to what extent we put requirements into any such law.

On the other hand, the requirement that I have seen that appears to me to be more reasonable, or which strikes some sort of middle ground, is that which is in place for the Register of Interest of the British House of Commons. If we are going to follow some, any, or all of the various legislation available to us here in the Legislative Assembly for guidance on the law, I would certainly recommend that Members take careful note of what the House of Commons has in place. Their legislation, and this situation, has been updated as recently as last year.

Speaking of the form which is used in the House of Parliament in Jamaica, which requires statutory declaration of assets, liabilities and income, under their law—the Parliamentary Integrity of Members Act, 1973—I would cite but a few points which are set out in it. It requires:

1. The name of the MP (Member of Parliament), his wife, the maiden name of his wife;
2. Address;
3. Particulars of his/her children, names and date of birth;
4. Bank accounts, names and address of bankers, in whose name the account is in, the account number; and balance of the account.

In another section it requires:

1. To know cash in excess of $200 held other than in a bank by the MP, his spouse or children;
2. Where it is held and whose name it is held in;
3. Stocks, bonds, shares and similar investments, including any such property over which a Right of Disposition resides in the MP, his spouse or his children;
4. Information on immovable property, house, land, farm buildings held by him; description in the Register, purchase price, estimated cost/market value.

Madam Speaker, this particular form, which has been enacted under the Jamaica Law, is extremely far reaching and it is, as far as I can determine, one of the most detailed.

From another Committee that was appointed in 1989, another Select Committee which was appointed on the Code of Ethic and Conduct for Legislators, the Clerk of the Committee was able to get many, many pieces of legislation. Available to this House is the legislation from Jamaica, Bermuda, Trinidad and Tobago, Barbados, Canada, United Kingdom, and the United States of America. There is a vast amount of information which is available to legislators which could guide in the recommendations for requirements to be inserted in the law.

Madam Speaker, what a Register of Interest is, as far as I am able to determine, I will speak about in a short while, but at this time I would like to express my understanding as to what it is supposed to do.

What it is supposed to do is help legislators—in all the other countries I have spoken about and in this country—avoid conditions that lead to a conflict of interest. We hear people in this country talk about conflict of interest, but I have said before, and in this House, that I believe we are one of those countries, or perhaps the only country in the world, where there is no such thing, if one looks at certain conditions which exist in these Islands.

Madam Speaker, to avoid a conflict of interests is one of the balancing acts that legislators everywhere have to deal with. They are called upon in so many instances to respond to so many situations that it is possible many times, when something is done, something is said, something might be said by another person or a member of the public, it might be a conflict of interest.

If I might just read from the Register of Members' Financial Interest which is the form used in the House of Commons, I read: "The main purpose of the Register of Members' Interests is to provide information of any pecuniary interest or other material benefit which a member receives which might reasonably be thought by others to influence his/her actions; speeches or votes in Parliament or actions taken in his/her capacity as a Member of Parliament."

So, very clearly set down in the very beginning in the form used by the House of Commons, is the clear definition and expression of what it is supposed to do. As I have said, Madam Speaker, it is possible and conceivable that others may think a situation is a conflict of interest when, if it was fully determined and analysed, it might prove not to be.

Madam Speaker, I would like to refer to the meaning for the word conflict. From the Oxford Dictionary. It means: "(a) to fight, struggle, a collision; clashing of opposed principles, etcetera, (d) discrepancy; [verb] struggle with, clash; be incompatible."

The word interest means: "(a) legal concern, title, right, pecuniary stake, (b) advantage; profit; thing in which one is concerned, (c) principle in which a party is concerned, party having a common, (d) self-ish pursuit of one's own welfare; bring personal to bear with person, (e) concern; curiosity, (f) money paid for use of money lent, or for the forbearance of debt."

So, Madam Speaker, I think between the two definitions we can advise ourselves as to what conflict of interest may amount to—a clash or struggle, conflict between what legislators may do personally from their own financial perspective, and the clash that may exist between their duty as a Legislator which, as is stated in the House of Commons Register of Financial Interest, may affect, or be thought to affect, a legislator's actions, speeches or his votes in Parliament, or actions that he might take as a legislator.

Madam Speaker, this condition of conflicts of interest runs in practical ways. It may be cited by many in different ways, and in this society of ours which, might be described, to at least a very significant extent as "name withheld by request", there are numerous stories and accusations regarding possible conflicts of interest of Officials and otherwise.

Ways that I would see it conflicting would be, for example, if Members of the Legislative Assembly owned shipping companies—they would be put at conflict if they had to decide on what their competition would be from other shipping companies, or the business that they carry on in a competitive basis.

It could be a conflict of interest where Members of the Legislative Assembly owned Travel Agencies that booked Government's business where it might be claimed that there is a direct advantage to such a person over someone in the private sector.

There are numerous ways in which a conflict of interest condition may arise. By extension, a conflict of interest can arise for a Minister of Government/Member of the Legislative Assembly, if that Minister, for example, is the point of last resort or appeal, and that Minister is the Chairman of a Committee or a Statutory Body which would have to make a decision that would ultimately be referred back to the Minister. There is a slew of such conditions now in the Cayman Islands where Ministers are Chairmen of such Statutory Boards.

There is potential for a conflict of interest which would create a struggle as to the Minister's position as the Court of Appeals, I would so term, and his Executive position when a decision was taken on the Statutory Board. A conflict of interest can obtain where people are appointed by the Government to Statutory Boards to conduct the business of these Boards as prescribed under Law.

Let us take the example of a Board which deals with approvals, or which has an effect on the construction industry. Would there be a conflict of interest if persons on that board were people who directly benefited from the construction industry as contractors, welders, architects, quantity surveyors or whatever, to be on this board making certain determinations about business which is before them, and also being in the business themselves, to vie for the very business they have approved? Is it a conflict of interest? I think that is one that has some connotations here in the Cayman Islands.

Statutory Boards, Madam Speaker, by extension are a part of Government, be it whichever Government of the day, for the Government of the day is the Government that appoints members to these boards or recommends their appointment.

Conflict of interest and unfair advantage could stem from situations where there are Statutory Authorities that make decisions about professionals, and if professionals themselves are there competing with those who are not on the board, then how do they avoid a conflict in such a situation? For, on the one hand, they sit in judgment, and on the other they are professionals and others competing for the business which the professionals do.

If we look at a situation where labour, manpower or employment is concerned, would there be a conflict of interest in a Statutory Board that makes the determination as to employment (in our case work permits), where the members are members who have some of the greatest needs for such things, and where it can directly affect their competitors should their competitors not get the same advantage of such persons?

Madam Speaker, these are real situations and what I have cited are possible examples. There are many more. I personally believe that, in this country, not just Legislators need to come under a scrutiny regarding conflict of interest, but that it spreads throughout the private sector as well in such manners.

It does no good for the people of this country wanting to say something—and they do sometimes in the newspaper, where their names become "name withheld by request"—it is not sufficient to say, "Oh, but you know Cayman is so small, everybody knows everyone else."

Are we going to take the position, as individuals, or in our dealings, that we can do wrong because we are so small? There has to be a point of decision and a point of reckoning. I believe, in proposing this Motion, that now is the time for some clear thinking as to our position in this country where conflicts of interest can be a live, living condition—there are too many of them. It affects business, it affects Government, it affects everybody, including the consumers or the person who is getting service in many instances.

We need to have a law? Yes! That sets the ground for legislators. But we need to direct our thinking along the pathway of possible and potential areas of conflicts of interest overall in the country. One thing that I think lends greatly to the environment, which is conducive to conflicts of interest, stems from the fact that we have gone to great extent to create a situation of secrecy for doing business, particularly in the private sector, commonly called observing confidentiality. Government, being the entity that created this condition through legislation, in effect, encumbers itself to act similarly with a degree of secrecy, or what is commonly termed confidentiality, over and beyond (far over and beyond) what it would be in five dozen other countries, due to some of our Laws for doing business in these Islands. So, it becomes more incumbent upon us in this country in that regard.

Madam Speaker, we are not whistling in the dark when we talk about setting up a Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators, or when we talk about Conflict of Interests. For among the papers which I have been able to consult, is one from the Ministry for External Affairs in Canada, a handbook—Code of Conduct and Conflict of Interest Guidelines. There is another one also from Canada, Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code for the Public Service. So in other countries of the world, many developed countries and, indeed, many Third World countries, it has been recognised that it is necessary, it is desirable and it is in the best interest of the public, to have guidelines set down by which, for example, a Legislator or a public officer may be guided. They know the guidelines, they will know if they breach them and they know the consequences.

I would just like to read two brief sentences from the Canadian Handbook, Code of Conduct and Conflict of Interest Guidelines. It says: "This Code of Conduct is based on the premise that Canadians have a right to expect from all public servants, whether serving in Canada or abroad, a wholehearted and scrupulous commitment to the highest standards of personal honesty and responsibility."

It says also: "Public servants are not in the same professional position as persons, whether they be employees or self-employed, in the private sector."

There is a difference, and I have spoken of that difference between private and public sector on various occasions. Even where on many occasions, up until the present time, the Chamber of Commerce keeps saying that Government must be run like the private sector—like private business—it cannot be and serve the objectives which it is to serve.

In Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code for the Public Service, under the section "Application", it reads: "In keeping with the principles described below, each employee is responsible for taking such action as is necessary to prevent real, potential or apparent conflicts of interest."

In recent times it has been stated time and again, in the arena of Name Withheld by Request, not necessarily in letters, but in verbal communication, that Members of this Assembly and, indeed, some Members of Government have interests and supposedly newly acquired interests which they believe have potential conflicts of interest. The only way open to us in this Assembly, as elsewhere, is to set down the means by which a Legislator can set down his or her interests, and that means be available as a guide or a judgment call as to what the public or a fellow legislator might say is indeed the case, and can be determined with ready, easy reference and access.

Madam Speaker, in the form I quoted from earlier, which has been produced by the House of Commons and is used by Members of Parliament there, a section covers gifts, benefits, and hospitality. I would like to read the question that is posed at this particular heading. It asks: "Have you or your spouse received any gift of a value greater than 125 Pounds Sterling or any material advantage of a value greater than .5 per cent of the current Parliamentary salary from any company, organisation or person within the United Kingdom which in any way relates to your membership of the House?"

Gifts, Madam Speaker—

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I think that you are talking about a Code of Ethics. This Motion really refers to Interests, Assets, Income and Liabilities of Members. Code of Ethics is another piece of legislation that some Parliaments have on their books, The Code of Ethics.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I take your intervention, but I am reading from the Register of Members' Financial Interest from the House of Commons.

The Speaker: But I think that is also included in the legislation of the Code of Ethics, if I understand correctly.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I think it is only what the United Kingdom has as the Select Committee on the Members' Interest and Declaration which is set down by the House of Commons in Governing itself. I do have it here, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: I really think that while you have quoted to some extent extensively from other Parliaments, we must confine to what is down here as a Register of Interest, which would include assets, income and liabilities of Members, and not include what type of gifts they would be receiving. I do not think that comes under the purview of our discussions here.

Perhaps at this time we might take a suspension for the luncheon break.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker, that would be fine.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.15 p.m.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman continuing.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, when we took the lunch suspension, I was referring to the form which Members of the House of Commons are required to fill out to hand in to the Registrar of Interests to put in the Register of Interests in the House of Commons.

I take the intervention of the Chair in that there have been moments when I have referred to the Code of Conduct in my debate so far. I tried to project what might be contained in the law which the Constitution says would need be enacted to set up a Register of Interest, and, in so doing, it strikes me that that legislation, when it comes to be enacted by this Legislature, would have to, in my mind, include something more than simply just stating what the Register would contain.

I think, to some extent, it would have to reflect some provisions regarding the conduct of Members in supplying certain information and also in seeing to the performance of certain actions.

What the Resolution is asking for, however, is that by way of a Select Committee all Members have the opportunity of participating in the discussions and deliberations as to what such a law should contain.

Much of the information which we have relates to, and stems from, the information gathered at the time there was a Select Committee in force on a Code of Conduct.

There also seems to be a difference as to what is expected in our Constitution, in that it says that we must enact a law. Whereas, as far as I can determine, in the House of Commons the setting up of a Register of Interest really comes under the Standing Orders of the House of Commons, although one might term that a law. But it seems to be much more closely confined to the conditions that prevail in the House, and the House has more influence over it and officers of the House of Commons.

If we look at the other legislation, like, for example, the Jamaican Legislation, we see that their Act, as such, is called the Members' Integrity Act. They have a requirement within it to record certain information which, I would think, equates to a Register of Interest.

If we take a narrower look for it to mean specifically that, we could well be guided by the nine points, which are nine specific classes of pecuniary interest, or other benefits which are set down under the Register of Interest in the House of Commons, and they are clearly set out in the form which requires the information.

The section of our Constitution which states that there shall be a Register of Interest, also provides that there shall be a Registrar who shall be appointed by the Governor. In the case of the House of Commons, that person is one of the Clerks, or a senior officer in the Department of the Clerks of the House to whom the Registrar is directly responsible.

I would imagine that that would be a point that we as legislators would want to take into account for, in my opinion, the person best suited to performing this duty would be someone in this House, an officer in this House—be it the Clerk, or whomever else might be appointed—but that an external person, outside of this Legislative Assembly would not at all necessarily be suited to be appointed as Registrar.

Again, access to the Register is prescribed in the House of Commons, and the Register, as set out in the Constitution, envisages that it would be available to the public. But, certainly, I believe (taking the attitude as has been taken in the House of Commons) that there be certain times for the public to view the Register; that it should be in writing to the Registrar of interests, and the information contained in that application should be clear; and that the Registrar should have the right to question further a member of the public as to what they wish to inquire into and about; and should also inform such persons (as is the practice in the House of Commons), that any member of the public who wishes to make a complaint would have to be held responsible for the accuracy of the allegations of their statement and there would be no question of privilege to such member of the public. Access to the Register, as far as other Members of the House goes, I imagine would be similar to that which is approved in the House of Commons, where it is open to Members during Meetings or during the normal course of events in any given week, or business of the House.

Madam Speaker, this Register of Interests was stated by the Government of the day as something which it wanted to see enacted—one of the things in its Manifesto. The opportunity is now available for something to be done for the setting up of such a register.

The Motion does not presume to say what should be in the law, but according to the Constitution there needs to be a law setting out what the Register would contain. As the Register affects every single member of this House (from the Speaker right down is my understanding), then it is something where there should be the fullest participation by all Members in arriving at the contents of this legislation.

Having made those observations, I leave the Motion now before the Members of this House, for each and every one so choosing to make their position known and, indeed, for the Government to make its position known on the Motion.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, I support the Motion before the House. The Constitution makes provision for a Register of Interest, and it is only a matter of time when the Register is prepared.

The opener, in this usual fashion, covered most of the details contained in the Constitution and in the legislation of some countries. In fact, the legislation from Jamaica appears to me to be extravagant in its details and, perhaps, there is a reason for that extravagance in Jamaica. However, I do not think there is any need for us to copy that word for word.

I prefer the English version, as the Commonwealth Parliaments are modelled on the English system. It appears to me that in the United Kingdom they set up a Select Committee which made certain recommendations for a registry and these recommendations have been adopted as rules of the Parliament which have the same force as law.

I believe that whenever we come to drafting the legislation, the Committee should invite the Legal Draftsman to all of its hearings so that he may have first-hand knowledge of the feelings of all the Members.

The Constitution itself does not require that a Member declare all of his pecuniary interests but, rather, that he declare such interests as are prescribed by the legislation. If we follow the English system, we will see that the Members do not really disclose all of their pecuniary interests, but only such interests as are relevant to their actions in Parliament.

This was made clear by the Mover of the Motion. In fact, the word "relevant" is very important and appears many times throughout Erskine May. For example, on page 384, under the section dealing with Disclosure and Registration of Personal Pecuniary Interests (about the middle of the page—the 21st Edition), it says: “...he [that is the Member] shall disclose any relevant pecuniary interest or benefit of whatever nature, whether direct or indirect, that he may have had, may have or may be expecting to have.”

Again, on page 385, in dealing with the scope of the interest, the second paragraph says, and I quote: “The extent to which details of the relevant interest are disclosed is also a matter for the Member; in certain cases, if the interest is recorded in the Register of Members' Interests, ...it may be sufficient simply to draw attention to this.”

Throughout the remainder of the chapter dealing with it, we see the same trend. For example, page 386, although the word relevant is not used, it is implied in this section dealing with classes of interest to be registered, and I quote: “to provide information of any pecuniary interest or other material benefit which a Member of Parliament may receive which might be thought to affect his conduct as a Member of Parliament or influence his actions, speeches or vote in Parliament.”

I could continue with other instances, but it is clear that what this register is intended to do is to record any instances of any interest a Member may have, any outside interest, which may affect his work in the Parliament.

The way I see it, if a Member of this Parliament owned shares in General Motors, which he had inherited from an uncle in the United States who had died, there is no need at all to enter this upon the register. But if the Member owned shares in CUC, which has a franchise with this Government, and where questions may often be raised, it would be compulsory, in my mind, for the Member to declare such an interest.

The Mover of the Motion mentioned nine classes of interest which are disclosed. If one looks at them, one will see that these are interests that would be relevant to any work that the Member may do in the Parliament. I will not go into them, but just to start with the first one: "1) remunerated directorships of companies, public or private;” In other words, if a Member is a director of a company whose business may be to receive contracts from the Government, it would be necessary for the Member to show that relationship.

Also, it appears to be from the English system that it is necessary only that the Member indicates that he has an interest. It is not necessary to spell out the details of his salary, or his paid vacation from the company.

In our existing structure, there is already some form of disclosure. For example, in our Standing Orders, it is necessary under Standing Order 80(1) for the Member, in debate or before voting, to declare any interest he may have in any Motion or Bill before the House. Also, under the Constitution, and in keeping with the Election Law, a Member standing for election must disclose any contracts he may have with the Government, any directorships or management posts that he may hold in a company that does business with the Government.

Of course, Members who are elected to Executive Council must make a private declaration to the Governor of all their assets. This is a very detailed declaration, but it is not made public and only goes to the Governor and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

The declaration of interests in the United Kingdom Parliament, and perhaps in ours as well, is not confined just to debates in the House but would be confined to debates in Committee, and in the United Kingdom it is spelled out that the Member asking questions of witnesses before a Select Committee must declare any interest that the Member has in the matter before the Committee.

In the United Kingdom, there are other people besides the Members who fall under the spell of the registration system. The Mover touched lightly upon this.

One class of people mentioned on page 390 of Erskine May, is journalists, who cover the reports of the Parliament and who sit in the Gallery, those who have press passes to the Parliament. If these journalists have an interest in the matter, they can play around with the debate. I do not know if our Select Committee will want to go so far as to include the journalists, but, certainly, they too, in some instances in the far distant past, have been guilty of using their influence in reports from the House.

Those registers in the United Kingdom are not open to public inspection, that is, the journalists and people outside of the Parliament, but it would be open to the Members who probably would be able to deal with the journalists if they found that through some pecuniary interest in the matter involved, the report had been a little slanted. So, the law dealing with the interests should not be interpreted loosely.

While assets and income and liability of persons may have to be disclosed, I certainly believe that the law should prescribe in detail what should be disclosed so that the Member, or person upon whom the disclosure is made, also has some protection from unwarranted disclosure.

There have been instances in the past when some have felt that Members of past legislatures may have had interests in certain businesses that received benefits from the Government. With a register of this kind, and with the disclosures that would be made under it, all the Members would feel more comfortable if they knew where each Member stood with regard to any outside business.

The Motion asks, in the last resolution, that it be done with all reasonable haste. I must say that I am not in total agreement with that. I remember the case of Henry Ford III, who gave his engineers the charge to build a car that would lift the Ford Company out of the dumps, and he gave them a time limit by which they should do it. Those engineers, in their haste, produced the Edsele—which was a lemon. A few years later the new President, Lee Iacocca, gave his engineers the same charge, but told them to take their time and do it properly. They produced the Mustang, which has been the wonder of the automobile world in number of sales, perhaps even topping the original Ford.

What I am trying to say is that we are embarking upon a new era of legislation and I think the Committee should work diligently, but should take all the time that is necessary so that they may produce, not a perfect law, but the best that they are able to do considering all of the circumstances that they will have to take into account.

I commend this Motion to the House and would like to congratulate the Mover and the Seconder for bringing this forward, and ask them not to put on due pressure to have this done with reasonable haste.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, in 1989 I brought Private Member's Motion 19/89, which was seconded by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, with regard to a written Code of Ethics and Conduct of Members of this Honourable House. That resolution said: "BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT a Select Committee of the whole House be established to examine these matters and to recommend an appropriate written code of ethics and conduct for Members of this honourable House." [1989 Official Hansard Report, Vol. 2 page 755]

We see the present resolution as a mirror of the one the House accepted back in 1989.

In speaking on this resolution, I wish to make it clear from the onset that our position on this matter is to approach this in an entirely non-partisan spirit, purely from the point of view of seeking to explore those things which may contribute to the national interest on the one hand, the preservation—indeed, the extension—of public confidence in our democratic system. Having made that absolutely clear, I hope it will become increasingly clearer as I carry on my debate that this is being approached in a non-partisan way.

I would like to state quite clearly that I am not concerned myself, and I do not think this Honourable House should be overly concerned, with any question of what other countries may or may not have done in this regard. I think in a matter of this sort each country has to judge its problems for itself and must evolve solutions to those problems—as we ourselves perceive the problems and, with God's help, find the wisdom to see our way to solving those problems and contribute to the solutions.

From 1989, until the debate on the Draft Constitution, nothing was done. The Motion was accepted in 1989, but nothing has been done. This Government saw it fit to include the provision for the Register of Interest in the Amendment to the Constitution put forward by the National Team Government. We fought an election based on the fact, stated within our Manifesto, that we would put that into the Constitution and do the necessary mechanics to have it enforced.

It is not an accident that the whole of our history has laid an attitude, as it were, towards power particularly. I think we would be naive to deny at this time that there is a waning in public confidence in the political systems of the world, as such. Those of us who compromise, so to speak, the guts of our political system should take great care about the ethics, the integrity and effectiveness of our political system.

The last thing that we should want is for our young people to become cynical about the political system in our country. I say that because, after all, the young people are the future, and we would not want them to have any wrong impression about the system we operate; so, we are here, all of us, to try to do something collectively as a parliament to cement confidence in our system, particularly the attitude of the young towards the system.

In a country that has, from the day I can remember, been bereft with rumours about what obtains in the halls of Government, I believe that in Cayman, as in any other developing country in the world, we now have an opportunity to demonstrate that our system—the democratic system that we have—can work and be viable, can succeed and survive in a country of this sort. We should strive to do the necessary things to ensure this.

This is not only important for us, it is obviously of tremendous importance to the outside world. But it should be of pre-eminent importance to us that it succeeds—it is up to us to see that it succeeds—and the extent to which it succeeds will depend upon the rate at which we tackle our different problems and the extent to which we preserve the integrity of the political system.

There are many contributory factors which, when positively present may lead to success and, which, when legally absent can lead to failure. The Member Moving the resolution mentioned several factors. To make a democratic experience succeed we, as Members, must be zealous to see that we leave no stone unturned to contribute to the success and minimise the danger of failure.

Obviously, if we are to succeed, we must be willing, at some stage, to put national interests above the partisan concerns. There must be some stage at which we are willing to come out of those things that sometimes separate us.

Obviously, there are two fundamental requirements of the integrity of the system itself, that is to say, the integrity of the machinery of Government, and the integrity by which all of us come to be part of Government. It is one of the fundamentals of a democratic system, the legislation of a peaceful operation of a system.

The other requirement is, obviously, to jealously guard that those persons who operate the system as individuals are, in fact, persons of the very highest order of integrity. The system must have integrity and the people within the system must have integrity and both must appear to operate with integrity.

If we want this integrity and we want our system to continue, we want the appearance of integrity, then it leaves me to conclude that one of the actions this House could do—which would contribute enormously to the fact of integrity and the appearance of integrity, whether we hold a level of power or not—would be to direct our minds towards the question of this declaration of assets, this Register of Interest, whether in parliament or otherwise, and to have those reviewed on an annual basis so as to ensure that they present to the world a clear picture of the personal financial operations of the people within a parliament such as we have.

The Members speaking before have made it clear that there can be no question that it would be very important to the debate that the set up of a specially selected committee for the purpose of considering ways and means of devising legislation and regulation to give effect to this purpose could only contribute to public confidence.

What then could be the possible objections which one could perceive? Immediately we could come to the objection which arises from a consideration of private versus public interest. Obviously, the factor of the invasion of privacy must, to some extent, be invoked by a suggestion of this sort. It may be that a person at first may think of weighing the question of the right of privacy versus the question of the public interest that would be involved in such a measure. He may feel the invasion of privacy involved might be so great as to outweigh the obvious advantages to the public interests. I suggest that it is necessary that we look at it in a slightly larger context.

Let me say, first of all, my position and my attitude over the 10 years of being elected to this Honourable House, I have always had the belief that he who enters politics, by that very fact, has turned his back on his private person, and has made himself a public servant.

I suggest that we who sit here with an open mind try and see what is relevant, right and proper. It may be that people who enter politics really do not regard their entry into politics as part of an act of private surrender to the public. They are not entitled then, in my opinion, to retain their private personality, at the same time as their public duty, even if those are in conflict. When I say that, Madam Speaker, I do not just mean Elected Members, I mean the Civil Servants who sit in the House, because the Constitution talks about Members of the House.

The Constitution, in fact, says in section 53A(4): "This section applies to all members of the Legislative Assembly and the holders of such other offices (except that of Governor) as may be prescribed by law." So, Madam Speaker, we could well be talking about all persons within the confines of this Legislature.

As I see it, the Members of this House, by their own actions, have imposed upon themselves to declare their assets and income and all the rest of it, because to do so, I believe, would only be confirming the nature of the acts that we perform when we enter the political life of public service to the country. The act must imply the surrender of privacy to whatever extent it may infringe upon the public interests.

So, as I said, I would never be impressed with any objection that says that, "I was elected, but that does not mean that I have to bare myself to the world." I have always felt that once you enter this Chamber, you have a duty to the public at large that we serve.

The other source of objection that could always come up is the possibility of enforcement, the difficulty of enforcement. We have to concede that there is a considerable range of devices through which a person who might be acting improperly while a public servant, by taking advantage of the public service to make money by one means or another for instance, which he really should not be making to put it crudely, however, one has to accept that we cannot refuse to do something simply because there are those kinds of persons who can find the mechanisms to hide his/her actions.

Madam Speaker, I have always believed that we cannot dwell on the evils every time we are faced with a difficulty. Even if we cannot devise a perfect system of enforcement, or whatever it is we may want, the very fact that there is an attempt that is presumed to be subject to review from time to time, to be more refined and more sophisticated techniques, the very fact that we are making an attempt makes, on the one hand, improper behaviour more difficult. Even if there is improper behaviour, at least you can retain the technique of detection and make it more and more difficult. Therefore, at the very least we can achieve, if not a perfect deterrent against improper dealings, a deterrent against the very temptation some might fear to enter into improper dealings at some time in the future.

The very knowledge that a man dealing improperly would have to declare by sworn affidavit annually that he was not engaged in such dealings might be a deterrent to he who might otherwise be tempted. It might reduce the scale of impropriety for others who might go on some joy ride. If one that was not in favour of the system was deterred, then we will have to wait to see what will happen in the future.

I do not think there is anyone so ruthless and smart as to not be deterred at all. If he is faced with the fact that he is not only guilty of wrongdoing, but guilty in the face of an accepted system of investigation and proceedings from time to time at the direction of the House, and if in this position he faces such penalties as this House might determine to impose upon him, to say nothing of the public disgrace that will be visited on him.

I am not so naive to believe that he can devise a perfect system, but I do feel that there can be a substantial deterrent if we really direct our minds to working out a set of rules, a system of investigation under the control of this House which would be designed to stop wrongdoing and detect it where one has failed to stop it.

If you had a permissive Government at any one point in time, those who are left unscrupulous in their dealings would always be faced with the fact that under the workings of our Democratic System that permissive Government—if there ever was one—would be replaced with a less permissive Government which would not oppose retroactive investigation. All of us, Madam Speaker, and all potential politicians should bear that in mind.

So I say, quite seriously, I think there are a number of grounds—even with the problems of enforcement that we might hear about—which outweigh the obvious facts that we could not have a perfect system.

What we invite this House to do is not to think that one could establish in debates any perfect system which is implied by the intention of the Constitution, but to accept that a Committee, if established, and having available to it all the expertise, legal advice and all the other kinds of advice which it would choose to put at its disposal, could begin to devote itself to the business of considering when this could be made effective.

Madam Speaker, the Register of Interest is important, as I have said, to public confidence, because in this country we hear from time to time rumour upon rumour which has destroyed many good reputations in this country without facts. I have always said that I support and can bare myself to any situation, any kind of investigation (and I use myself as an example in this House), because at the end of the day you know what you stand for.

A number of hypothetical or possible cases were given by the Mover (and he gave many), but there are a lot of other possible cases. For instance, a case could exist where a legislator owns a business which advises the public on Immigration matters, or even worse, makes applications to the Immigration Department for Trade and Business Licences, Work Permits, application for Permanent Residency or Status and their spouse might be employed in that Department. What is even worse, the spouse is involved in the processing of the applications made by that legislator. The worst hypothetical case would be that legislator to bring any kind of resolutions to the House, to say that Government must give one of the things that his business is involved with, which would have the effect of a flood of applications to, let us say, the Immigration Department—that same legislator benefiting from the proceeds of the applications made to the Immigration Department. These are the kind of hypothetical cases that we could continue to build upon in the House, because there are all sort of scenarios regarding the work of Legislators and potential legislators

A Register of Interest would mean, for instance, that the contract I have had for years with the Civil Aviation Authority has to be open on that Register even though I have had to make it public before. And, I am one Legislator who has always believed that that is as it should be. For years, even before I entered Government, I have seen these things exist.

We have seen time and time again contracts (large contracts) with the National Airline, and those sort of things would be made public in that Register.

Madam Speaker, this is the sort of thing that I have said, if you care to stand here and look at it, because the type of country we are in, the type of system we operate under, there are dozens of scenarios that exist. What we should not do is attempt to destroy honest people when something was done honestly. That is why I feel that this Register of Interest is a good thing. That is why I felt that way in 1989, and I do not know why the Government of the day did not do something about it.

We see this exercise as nonpartisan. The Government invites the House to consider this as a combined act to do something which ensures the maximisation of integrity of its own operation, and the maximisation of the appearance to the world of that integrity.

As a consequence, I suggest to the House, that if we are to take a step, I believe we would have made a massive contribution to the preservation of the integrity of our system. We would make a massive contribution to the confidence that Caymanians generally and, in particular, young Caymanians (who might tend to feel badly towards the political system). That we all support and commit ourselves to combined actions to wipe away any sort of doubt which would threaten the successful operation of our system.

Madam Speaker, while there are already rules for Executive Council, when we enter Executive Council we are bound by rules and the Constitution, I believe that anything we do or any system we devise can only strengthen what Executive Council already has to abide by, and tighten it so as to further help those Members who might go on Executive Council in some distant future. Further, that the Caymanian public will say, 'Yes we believe that our Government, our Members of the Legislature are people of integrity and our system is working successfully.'

Accordingly, Madam Speaker, we support the resolution as we campaigned for its inclusion in the amendments to the Constitution, and as we have kept our promise by including it in the Constitution where it now exists, and where it says: "There shall be a Register of Interest..." there are no if's, and's or but's about it, Madam Speaker, it says: "There shall be a Register of Interest..."

Thank you, very much.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.31 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.48 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion 11/94. [Pause]

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The move to put in place a mechanism for the establishment of a Register of Interest is a move which is necessary at this time, and the move which bodes well for the future of democracy and for the impression which the public has in its representatives.

The Minister replying for the Government made mention of, and I quote him, "the public waning of confidence." He also mentioned the fact that we should try to avoid leaving young people with a cynicism in their leaders and in the political system.

It is true to say that throughout the world at this time there seems to be a growing cynicism and a disenchantment by people towards their representatives. Much of this cynicism and disenchantment stems from the action of those who have been entrusted with power. So it is safe to assume that we in these Cayman Islands would be affected by this and, indeed, if one reads the newspapers, and certainly I can vividly recall some outspoken columns, particularly expressed in The New Caymanian concerning some of these insinuations that are quite poignant and blatant.

So this move by legislators to set up for themselves some parameters is definitely a good move because all fraternities which expect to survive, and not only survive but to perpetuate themselves, set rules of operation, precedents, traditions, boundaries by which their members are expected to operate within.

I especially took note of the Minister's echoing plea for unity in this exercise and for cooperation and for a close liaison between all Members of the House. I hope that the plea was a sincere one, because on the one hand I noticed the plea was given, and on the other hand some rather pointed, hypothetical arrangements.

I say that to say that we have to be sincere. We cannot call for complete non-partisanship and complete impartiality on the one hand and, on the other, when it suits us, takes swipes and gibes. For it is incumbent upon us, those Members of us that are sitting here are present, to do something about this because it is a matter which needs addressing.

I recall reading a book called, Who Will Tell the People? about the betrayal of the confidence of the American people. The author of this book, William Greider, suggested that one of the problems with the American Federal Government was that the representatives of the people have become enamoured with the trappings of office and there has been no clear evolution, even in such a sophisticated system, and there is no regular self-policing of happenings such as conflicts of interests, etcetera.

Indeed, at this very point in time, one of the most respected power brokers in Washington, one of the most senior figures in the Washington power establishment, none other than Democrat Dan Rostenkowski, the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, has been indicted. Not only has he been indicted, but after 20 years in Congress, if he is found guilty he will have to go to jail and may even lose his right to a pension because of conduct unbecoming, emanating out of the very things which the Motion presently on the floor of this House is designed to protect Caymanian Legislators and Parliamentarians from.

If we move further afield, how many Governments in Italy, since the last World War, have not fallen? The respected Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti is still running for his life trying to escape. In Japan, the very first Prime Minister to go to jail since the end of the World War some years ago, over what came to be called the Lockheed Scandal. So, we can use all these examples to build up, to strengthen the case of our having a register.

It is true that provisions for the register are expressed in no uncertain terms in our Constitution, and mention was made of that by the Honourable Minister in his speech. He suggested that the mere fact that that had been a platform in the National Team's Manifesto, that they had the intention of putting this into effect, as much as to say that, really, it was not entirely necessary to bring the Motion at this time. But, may I remind that Honourable Minister, and other Honourable Members of the House, that the provision for the Speaker of our Assembly lay in our Constitution for 20 years before it was enacted, so that we have a professional Speaker, as is occupied by the current person holding the Chair.

So, it is not enough to say that because a provision is in the Constitution that it is going to be acted upon post haste, for the provision in the Constitution, or any other document, merely indicates an intention. See the difference between what this Motion is calling for and the provision as it exists in the Constitution.

I agree with the Mover, and those persons who subscribe to the notion that we are doing this because we want to give the impression that those of us who find ourselves in the fraternity of politicians or parliamentarians are sufficiently concerned, are sufficiently bold and up front as to set for ourselves some rules and some conduct so that outside elements can know and understand, "Here, this is what we are supposed to be, this is what we are supposed to do, you be the judge."

Permit me to say that mention has been made of a code of ethics and conduct, which I would term a companion and complementary to this Register of Interest, and I believe that we should seek to have such a code and I would be, since that legislation that was introduced some years ago (as we were reminded by the Minister of Community Affairs) has fallen away, happy at some subsequent stage to reintroduce that.

Madam Speaker, by the request for a Select Committee of the whole House to review this Register of Interest, we are on the right track. I have said in this House before, if one walks the streets with one's ears to the ground, one does not, in many instances, hear good things about politicians—all of us.

I worry because it seems like the fraternity is, sometimes justifiably so, coming under undue pressure. So by setting up a Register of Interest or setting in motion mechanisms to review events leading up to this Register of Interest, we will be sending a message. It is a good and positive way, perhaps the most ideal way, in that we set in motion the mechanism for a self examination, rather than for us to procrastinate and to take things for granted until something more severe happens and we have to be left for the forces which are greater and perhaps less understanding than what our old fraternity would be told to be.

I take the point, too, that when we step into the arena we have implicitly suggested that we are public servants and, by inference, our conduct, our dealings—be they the most private and intimate form, or be they the most public and open form—become fair game and fair play for examination.

I would hope that none of us, when we are challenged, are so fool-hardy as to behave like Gary Hart—tell people they can follow us because we have nothing to hide and then wind up on the Monkey Business disgraced.

So, in taking this step, we are merely acknowledging the fact that we have a responsibility, and it is not too far-fetched to describe it as a sacred responsibility, to maintain the trust and the confidence that has been placed in us. In recognising this responsibility we shall try not to use the trappings—the opportunities and the privileges of our office, our exposure and our contacts—to blatantly and selfishly promote personal interests, family interests, or the interests of our group of friends or whatever, but foremost, to strive to promote the interests of the country.

If, in so doing, we benefit, then no one can point a finger. No one can scream conflict, no one can scream that we are stacking the deck.

I also believe, as has been expressed quite correctly by some Members who spoke prior to me, that having draconian laws or regulations will not necessarily mean that the register will be defective.

To cite an example from the Jamaican case, they have to have the most stringent of all (certainly of the few of those Commonwealth countries that I have examined), and yet, we still have reports of advantages being taken, of conflicts of interest in the actions of Ministers and Members of the Government, of ongoing examinations and accusations to and fro. So what is needed is not something stamped or etched, or made in the force of the Medes and the Persians, but, rather, something which is practical, reasonable and which, as the Minister for the Government suggested, has been arrived at by all of us.

In such an arrival might I say that we should try to be open, we should try to bury differences—be they political differences, economic—whatever kind of differences there are—we should try to shed those and try to arrive at a point where we can be sincere because it cannot be over emphasised that we who occupy these hallowed halls are judged every day by our constituents for whom we hold these seats entrust. If we fail for selfish or political reasons, then we are going to have to pay a hard price.

So, we should be sincere when we embark upon this venture, and I look forward with great relief to the fact that we should be able to sit down and arrive at sensible reasons and wind up with a sensible document covering the Register of Interest.

Unfortunately, the Caymanian experience does not allow us to do that without drawing on similar experiences, similar documents and similar conduct from other jurisdictions. While it is true to say that we should be careful to adopt only what is relevant to our situation, if we use these examples sensibly it eliminates much pain and sorrow by helping us to avoid what is strictly a trial and error experience, and it will prevent our having to come back every five or ten minutes, to make amendments upon amendments. We should use these available documents and these available resources to craft for ourselves a Register of Interests which will be so sound, so all-encompassing and so comprehensive that it will allow us, when we have arrived at the document, to set it in motion without having to examine it for any inadequacies.

Then too, we have to remember that success in proper conduct emanates from the behaviour of the individuals who inhabit these hallowed halls, not from the legislation. Were that the case, then we would not have happening now what is happening to Dan Rostenkowski, Julio Andriati and the Japanese case, and all of these other cases, the celebrated President of Brazil, Collor De Mello. All these other cases, if the legislation guaranteed that the power brokers would be straight, then all of these people would not have had to face the disgrace.

So, I emphasise that point: that the success in the proper conduct emanates from the behaviour and the attitude and the disposition of the Members, rather than the obverse. So, that strengthens the argument for perusing, examining ourselves and also using as models legislation from other jurisdictions.

Madam Speaker, I would like to make one final point prior to moving on to something else. From earliest times, people were concerned with this whole business of conduct among leaders. In the sixth century BC the great private teacher Confucius, who had as his students young men, and old men as well, who were primarily interested in three things: learning, right conduct, and good government.

In the 13th chapter of The Confucian Analects, Confucius tells his students about "T'ai", which is the Chinese expression for moral conduct and he told them that it is easier for a leader to lead by example. If the ruler himself is upright all will go well, even though he does not give orders. But if he is not upright, even though he gives orders, his command will not be obeyed.

So, if the leaders are upright we can expect that the followers will be the same way. What is interesting about that is that it is from the Eastern philosophy. The Bible, perhaps, is the greatest source of these kinds of tenants, teachings and dictates, and we in the West are very familiar with those.

The suggestion has been made about interests, public as against private interests. I revert to the point that when we have taken the step we have taken, we have made an open declaration that we are fair game for examination.

I look forward to the work of this Select Committee. I look forward with enthusiasm to the contributions I shall try to make, and I look forward to the exchange and banter—some pleasant, some witty, some serious and thought provoking and, maybe, some even angry—of Members. I look forward to the exchange of ideas and the seriousness of this whole exercise and I certainly look forward to the end result being a document that we can leave for our progeny and for posterity which says that, for all of the shortcomings, we have tried, we have recognised that it is necessary.

Madam Speaker, one-upmanship notwithstanding, I hope that by the time the exercise is over that the unity and the cooperativeness that was called for by the Minister speaking on behalf of Government can find some ground on which to sincerely flourish.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, and I am sure that you will not complete your debate in five minutes, but you can begin. Please do so.

adjourned until 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In cricket terms I would be called again, the night watchman.

Madam Speaker, the importance of the Motion before us cannot be over emphasised. The Mover and other speakers before me have raised fairly wide-reaching stances on the Motion and I am pleased right now to see that there are some issues where we can find common ground, even if at some times the ground is a bit shaky. I think that if we all work on it we can let it happen.

This Private Member's Motion to establish a Select Committee of the whole House to review a Register of Interest for the Legislative Assembly is, in my opinion, one most important to the continuity of good government in that (as Members have said before) there is always some talk, at some point in time, regarding government and the manner in which it operates. There is always some individual or group prepared to cast doubt or aspersions on other individuals, and in many instances these are simply vain attempts because there is no other ammunition to fire.

So, a Register of Interest, to my mind, would in many instances not only disprove accusations that might come, but, also, the mere existence of such a Register might well give people some food for thought before engaging in this type of activity, because certain things could be made very obvious and innuendoes probably would not abound.

In the "Whereas" sections of the Motion, as I referred to earlier, the section that says, "there may be questions of conflicts of interest which could be resolved quickly by reference to a Register of Interests", there is also another Whereas section which refers to the fact that, "a Register of Interests is considered a mechanism by which a record is created showing a Legislator's personal financial and pecuniary interests against which information his or her actions, speeches or votes in the Legislature may be judged;".

Madam Speaker, in my short experience here within these hallowed halls, I have seen occasions when Members themselves have used their existence in these halls to infer certain inappropriate statements, which on many occasions, in my belief, Members who said what they said actually knew better. But they choose moments such as I refer to, to get in, what you might call, a little plug to cast some doubt in the public's minds regarding the integrity of other people.

MOTION OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: It is now 4.30, Honourable Member, the moment of interruption. Will the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business, will move the adjournment of the House?

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that the House be adjourned until, Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. I shall put the question, those in favour please say Aye, those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 9 JUNE 1994

EDITED
THURSDAY
9 JUNE, 1994
10.01 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

PRAYERS

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 81 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 81

No. 81: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development why both Elected Members for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are not granted travel allowance.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel A. Walton: Madam Speaker, it is my understanding that the method of dealing with the official travel and subsistence expenses of the Elected Members for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is as follows:

1. All travel and subsistence expenses of the First Elected Member related to trips from the Sister Islands to Grand Cayman to attend Meetings of the Legislative Assembly, Finance and Select Committees, are paid as agreed by the Finance Committee of this Honourable House.

2. The payment for travel and subsistence expenses of the Second Elected Member for trips from Grand Cayman to the Sister Islands on official business, at the invitation of a particular Portfolio or Ministry is the responsibility of the Portfolio or Ministry that extends the invitation.

I am aware of the specific case of the Second Elected Member accompanying either the Honourable Chief Secretary or Deputy Chief Secretary on regular official visits to the Sister Islands. In these instances, the return airfare and subsistence expenses are paid by the Portfolio of Finance and Development on behalf of the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say when such an arrangement came into play?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel A. Walton: Madam Speaker, it is my recollection that during the 1994 Budget preparation process last November, this particular issue was discussed and at that time Finance Committee agreed on that arrangement, in terms of what is to be paid by the Legislative Assembly, and what would be paid by other Portfolios and Ministries.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if he is aware that an undertaking was given by the Financial Secretary at a Meeting of Finance Committee to address this anomaly, especially in light of the fact that previously both Members had been paid travel allowances?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel A. Walton: Madam Speaker, as far as I understand this was the reason why the approach was taken; that the Legislative Assembly vote itself to be responsible for the particular First Elected Member for the Sister Islands whilst the vote of the other Ministries and Portfolios would be responsible for the expenses related to the Second Elected Member on visits to the Sister Islands from Grand Cayman.

That is my understanding and I was able to quote the specific case of the Portfolio of Finance and Development which we actually did on behalf of the Portfolio for Internal and External Affairs.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I wonder if the Honourable Member would give an undertaking to have the matter further investigated since at the time when the matter was raised at the Finance Committee, the Financial Secretary undertook to look into the matter, suggesting that he would prefer that the Department look into the arrangement and how it should be varied.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel A. Walton: Madam Speaker, the particular point that the Member has raised, I could certainly discuss it with the Member during the margins of the Meeting today with a view that some new understanding can be reached to bring it back to Finance Committee for their review and approval. I could undertake to do that, if that would be all right.

QUESTION NO. 82

The Speaker: The next question is No. 82, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

No. 82: Mr. Roy Bodden asked, the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business, to provide a breakdown of the official travel expenses of Ministers of Government since their election in 1992 until May 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The official travel expenses of Ministers of Government since their election in 1992 until May, 1994, totals $76,519.58 and are broken down as follows:

Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning	$31,043.79
Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works	18,571.01
Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture	16,608.05
Minister for Education and Aviation	9,677.50
Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation	619.23

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I have a supplementary question, but in all fairness I do not think that the question can be answered by the Minister to whom the substantive question was addressed. However, with the Chair's permission, I will ask the question anyway in the hope that the Chair will allow the Member for Finance and Development to answer the question.

The question is: How do these figures compare with figures for the previous Government?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I do not think that question should be asked because one would have had to have required notice of this to go into research. I do not know if the Honourable Temporary Third Official Member has all these figures at his fingertips. If not, I will ask if he wishes to supply that in writing at a future time.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I think the originality of the question was addressed to the Honourable Member with responsibility for Finance and Development.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I believe that the question being asked by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, whatever answer is given in writing should also take into account the amount of money spent in travelling by Ministers who were connected with statutory authorities such as the Port Authority.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 83, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 83

No. 83: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning to provide a report on the work of the Economic Advisory Council to date.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, and Honourable Members, I am pleased to report that the Economic Council has reviewed a variety of subjects within the Islands macroeconomic system.

Firstly, the Economic Council, in majority, is made up of private sector representatives who possess specialist skills and investor contacts which can be drawn on to stimulate the economy and preserve the good quality of life for the Caymanian people. The Council is charged with the duty of advising the Executive Council on measures which it should consider implementing to stimulate and maintain a buoyant economy. Its terms of reference are as follows:

- To advise on additional services which the Cayman Islands should consider implementing to broaden the base of the financial industry and to raise the quality of services as a tourist destination.
- To advise on steps, if any, which should be implemented to ensure a sound financial Government now and in the future.
- To advise on how light, clean industries, arts, crafts, electronics and cottage industries catering to locals and export markets can be attracted.
- To advise on how an offshore medical industry can be developed locally.
- To advise on incentives which Executive Council should consider to attract the film industry to the Cayman Islands.
- To advise on any matter which will bring economic benefit to the people of the Cayman Islands.

The work of the Council is, therefore, of an ongoing advisory nature and is not intended to become executive.

Considerable discussions have taken place concerning the financial and insurance industries, their strengths and weaknesses, the quality of services provided, their competitiveness in the market place and their role as a major employer of Caymanians.

The many positive and negative factors impacting on the tourism industry are also under review. Matters varying from traffic congestion to additional activities have been discussed.

The work of the Economic Council continues and, undoubtedly, will contribute substantially to the continued well being of the country.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what, if any, suggestions and recommendations made by the Council have thus far been implemented?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I can think of one that the Honourable Member should be aware of, although I would not say that the Economic Council can take full claim to all of it, but, it is the reduction of Companies Fees in order to cause the country to be more competitive in the market place as an offshore financial centre.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 84, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 84

No. 84: Mr. Gilbert McLean asked the Honourable Temporary Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development whether any buses with over nine seats have been imported into Grand Cayman since November 1993, to date.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel A. Walton: Since November of 1993, to date, a total of 19 buses with over nine seats have been imported into Grand Cayman.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Member say if these have all received approval from the Minister of Agriculture, Communications and Works since they would be in the restricted seat capacity, and have they have been allowed for use by people with tour/taxi operations?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel A. Walton: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Since November 1993, when the new legislation came into effect all buses that were imported were approved prior to importation. As to the mix of the buses, nine were for public transportation, and this could have been for replacement of existing public transport vehicles or it would have been new ones. But in total: nine were for public transport; three were for Churches; four, for Schools; and three for Hotel Dive Shops, making it 19.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 85, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 85

No. 85: Mr. Gilbert McLean asked the Honourable Temporary Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to state the process followed for the reinstatement of a company that has been removed from the Register of Companies.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel A. Walton: Madam Speaker, the reinstatement of a company is dealt with under section 177 of the Companies Law (Revised). The process followed for the reinstatement of a company which has been struck off is as follows:

1. A letter is sent to the Registrar of Companies by the company member(s) or creditor(s), or by someone on their behalf, advising that they wish to reinstate the company—asking if the Registrar has any objection—and requesting the determination of the total reinstatement fee.
2. The information requested is supplied by the Registrar by letter.
3. If the company has been struck off for more than two years, permission must be obtained from the Governor in Council before application is made to the Grand Court. The Governor in Council may allow the reinstatement to proceed provided the company is not struck off for more than ten years. After ten years, the company may not be reinstated.
4. The Judge of the Grand Court, if satisfied with the application, will order that the name of the company be restored to the Registrar on payment of the reinstatement fee and on such terms and conditions as the Court may deem just.
5. On receipt of the Judge of the Grand Court Order for reinstatement the Registrar will take the necessary action to reinstate the company.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Member give the House any indication as to the number of companies for which application for reinstatement has been received on an annual basis, or are there any?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel A. Walton: If the House would allow me to do a basic estimate, since I do not have the figures on hand, we do receive requests for restatement throughout the year, and I would say probably in the amount of between approximately 25 to 50 each year.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Member could explain if a company is struck off the Register, can they continue operating as a registered company, or as a company (because it is no longer registered), and perform the normal duties as they were before?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel A. Walton: Madam Speaker, if a company is struck from the Register by the Registrar General, acting as the Registrar of Companies, that information is published in the Gazette. The assets of the company, by Law, are then turned over to the Financial Secretary.

The company then by Law should not continue to operate, and even if they were to attempt it, it would be in contravention of the Law by the owner's admission because the owners would have been advised as well.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: You are saying that if a company is no longer registered enforcement should be placed with the owners if they are still operating? The reason why I am asking the question, Madam Speaker, is because recently my company signed an agreement with another company and discovered they had not been registered since 1989. Is there anything in the Law whereby this company can be prosecuted, or how is this handled?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel A. Walton: I cannot refer specifically to the particular section of the Companies Law at the moment, but the Companies Law does provide for prosecution of companies knowingly operating while being struck off.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Member say if a company is struck off and it has assets—under the Companies Law those assets, I think, are passed on to the Financial Secretary for the people of this country—if that company then applies to be reinstated what happens to those assets after it has been reinstated?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel A. Walton: Thank you. It is my understanding that up to the ten year period those assets, while they are held by the Financial Secretary, may be called upon during that period. Once that period expires, then it is not possible for those assets to be called upon by any party who owned those assets initially and is seeking to restore the company.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 86, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 86

No. 86: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation if any consideration is being given to closing the West Shore office of Cayman Airways Limited.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the answer is no.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Minister give us any indication as to how the amount of business being done by Cayman Airways from that Office equates, or stacks up against the rent paid?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the answer is no. It was not something that I saw could follow directly from it. I do not have the information.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if he, or the management of Cayman Airways, keeps track of the financial position of Cayman Airways in regards to the offices from which it sells tickets or does business?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would think that that is done. I would like to point out, however, that I do not personally get involved with the day-to-day working of Cayman Airways. It is in the hands of the Managing Director and the Senior Managers who deals with it.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today. Other Business, Private Member's Motion No. 11/94. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, continuing the debate.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 11/94

SELECT COMMITTEE TO REVIEW A REGISTER OF INTERESTS

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, at the close of play yesterday, I was getting into one of recitals of the Motion and the Whereas section reads: "AND WHEREAS a Registrar of Interests is considered a mechanism by which a record is created showing a Legislator's personal financial and pecuniary interests against which information his or her actions, speeches or votes in the Legislature may be judged."

While it reads as it does, I would like to point out that it will also have its values in that certain times—let us call it in the heat of the moment—wild accusations are made while Members are speaking, and the existence of this Register would, in my estimation, tend to let people stop and think before they sling their stuff as they would have done otherwise. So, in that respect, I believe the Register of Interest will have its value there also.

Previous speakers have dealt in-depth with this Register, and for the most part I am in agreement with the views stated. I will not waste the time of the House by repeating many of these issues. But there is one point that I would like to make which is in the Resolve section of the Motion.

The first Resolve section states: "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House appoint a Select Committee of the whole House to consider matters relating to a Register of Interest and the drafting of enabling legislation making reference to legislation of other jurisdictions as may be considered appropriate and invite persons and organisations to make written submissions to or appear before the Select Committee."

In my estimation this Resolve section simply puts forward a sequence of events which will bring about the correct end result.

One or two speakers before held the view that we need not, necessarily, call on the advice of the existing legislation from other territories. I would just wish to make the point, Madam Speaker, that I see no reason for us to go through this process should this Honourable House allow passage of this Motion. I see no reason for us to go through trial and error, and have to deal with this legislation in many instances before we get it right. So I wish to say that I think, that it is totally in order for us to use the experiences of other territories who have passed this way before, and I am quite sure that there is much we can glean on a positive note from similar legislation from these other territories.

In essence, I commend the Mover and the Secorder of this Motion. I think the word used most of the time is that it is very timely, and I give it my full support.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I support having a Register of Interests. Madam Speaker, it is something that the National Team put into the Constitution and one thing that I believe the public has accepted.

I would, however, like to comment on some of the things that have been said here. I think it is important that there be a clear understanding of what a Register of Interest really is.

Madam Speaker, the Motion itself states in the Third Recital, which reads: “AND WHEREAS a Register of Interests is considered a mechanism by which a record is created showing a Legislator's personal financial and pecuniary interests against which information his or her actions, speeches or votes in the Legislature may be judged.” In effect, I think, that a clearer statement of that should be to say that “it is to provide information of any pecuniary interest or other material benefit which a Member of the Legislature may receive which might be thought to affect the conduct as a Member of Parliament or to influence his actions or speeches.”

There is a very clear line between this, and it was set out extremely clearly by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, whom I regard as one of the best elocutionists, or public speakers, that this country has seen, when he made it very clear that this is not a Register in which we are merely going to declare all of our pecuniary interests. It is those interests that are relevant to our actions and votes in the Legislative Assembly.

I do not believe that the sections of the Constitution which now deal with this were read in any depth. I would propose to read them (and they are very short), unless Madam Speaker feels otherwise. They are very short sections, but they go a long way in really showing what now exists. Let me say this, Madam Speaker, that is very clearly built into our Constitution, and has been for the past 20-odd years in this Constitution, and in previous Constitutions.

In section 19(1)(g) that: “(1) No person shall be qualified to be elected as a member of the Assembly who-- (g) is party to, or a partner in a firm or a director or manager of a company which is a party to, any contract with the Government of the Islands for or on account of the public service and has not, in the case of a contested election, caused to be published, at least one month before the day of the poll, a Government Notice setting out the nature of such contract and his interest, or the interest of any such firm or company, therein.” [Draft Constitution 1972] And that is to give the public notice prior to an Election that here is a person that has a contract with Government and on which they can decide whether they wish to vote for him or not.

Madam Speaker, that is the standard Constitutional section which exists, and it goes beyond that in section 20, subsection (3)(f), it repeats the same thing, and it says: “(3) The seat of an elected member of the Assembly shall become vacant (f) if he becomes a party to any contract . . .” [it goes on to say] “Provided that, if in the circumstances it appears to him to be just to do so, the Governor may exempt any elected member from vacating his seat under the provisions of this paragraph, if the member, before or as soon as practicable after becoming a party to the contract, or before or as soon as practicable af- ter becoming otherwise interested in the contract (whether as a partner in a firm or as a director or manager of a company), discloses to the Governor the nature of the contract and his interest or the interest of the firm or company therein.”

Madam Speaker, that is also repeated in the Standing Orders to that effect and... another Member has read it so I will not do so... I would like to point out that at present there is a mechanism, a very traditional and effective mechanism that deals with interests that may be in conflict before this Honourable House.

Madam Speaker, in the Executive Council there is a Declaration that has to be made to the Governor. It is given to him in secret because the Executive Council sits in secret, so that is not a public register. It is very important that the purpose of the Register of Interest is properly understood by the public.

While on the Constitution, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town stated that because the Motion for the Speaker in the old Constitution (which is now being repealed) had remained there for many years (I think nearly 20 years) and no Speaker was appointed, he felt that this section on the Register of Interests could also remain there and that is one of the reasons why the Motion was brought.

I would like to point out that there is quite a difference between the Motion that related to the President and the Speaker, and I would just like to show where the difference is. Obviously the Honourable Member missed the point or did not read it fully. The fact that the old section 32 of the Constitution was one which was triggered by a Resolution of this Honourable House, was discretionary, therefore, nothing needed to be done; whereas, for a Register of Interests, the Constitution says: “There shall be a Register of Interests for the Islands.”

Section 32 said, “Provided that [the section appointing a Speaker] shall not come into force until the Legislative Assembly has passed the resolution that there shall be an office of Speaker.” So the difference between this and the Register of Interest section (which says that there “shall be a Register of Interest for the Islands”), is that one is discretionary—naturally the one I have just referred to on the Speaker, and which is no longer discretionary, I should say, Madam Speaker, because we know that has been amended—whereas, the Register of Interests, is now mandatory.

While on this, there was criticism by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, of the Minister for Youth Affairs, and it was because he gave a hypothetical case. But everybody seems to be giving hypothetical cases in here. Indeed, I think the Mover and, at least, some of the other speakers raised this.

Madam Speaker, another important aspect of this is that the Register of Interests must be one that, when it becomes operational, it will ensure that there is proper disclosure of assets or interests which could cause a conflict of interest to a Member who is speaking or voting in this Honourable House. But it should not be to such an extent that it is merely aimed at putting out the pecuniary interest and income, etcetera, of every Member, because what we have to remember is that unless there is some preservation of confidentiality in relation to aspects of a person's income or interests which does not affect this House (the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town gave a very clear example between General Motors or Ford's shares compared to the Caribbean Utilities shares) you will find that people who may have both the qualification, as well as the experience, also have assets and income, and those who would sit in this House may be turned off by it.

Madam Speaker, this is very important because we have seen on other Islands in the Caribbean (some of them) where countries have been totally destroyed by people who have no assets, who are normally unemployed, or have been unemployed before going into the House of Parliament and it is important that for the stability of this country people who make decisions here have something to lose if the country is ruined.

Every now and then the winds of change have put people in other countries (and thank the good Lord, not in Cayman) who have the charisma, the gift to the glib, and they have told the people and promised them what they can do and what they are going to change. They have nothing to lose and those people have been the people who have destroyed countries elsewhere.

So what is very important therefore, is that the Register of Interest remains within what is traditional in other countries, and it remains so that it is effective to give disclosure in this Honourable House in relation to matters where there may be conflicts.

That ranges not only to Motions or Bills that comes before this House, but also to Members who ask questions. Do they have an interest that should be declared? The section in the Constitution is so drafted that it may extend beyond Members of this Honourable House.

The principle behind this Motion is a very sound one, and I believe that when the Select Committee sits, it will ensure that fine balance between what is necessary to declare and what is necessary to preserve one's confidentiality and privacy on income and assets which have no relevance to this Honourable House. It will be properly looked at and the forthcoming legislation will be one which is effective and which will serve the purpose for which it is put in.

Madam Speaker, the National Team accepted this in the Constitution (and I think all Members of this House probably did) and it is a good principle. Other than saying that areas of the recitals, perhaps, could have been worded a bit differently, I am happy with the resolution, the first operative part. I would give the caution, as did the wise Third Elected Member for Bodden Town when he said that we should not rush in and do something very quickly that may not be correct, do it within a reasonable time, but spend sufficient time to ensure that what is done is right and effective.

I think, Madam Speaker, this is also a very clear indication that when the Opposition brings Motions that are good for the public, the Government and other Members of this Honourable House are very happy to support them, as we do in this case.

Thank you.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, would the Mover wish to exercise his right of reply?

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, will reply to the Motion, and that will close the debate thereon.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am happy to see, in one of its very rare acts, that the Government has decided to accept the Motion calling for a Register of Interest for the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands, as has been set down in the amendments to our Constitution.

I particularly would like to thank Members for their comments on this Motion which is before the House, particularly the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, who, with his outstanding ability as an orator and a Legislator leaves a record of outstanding debate in this House, helped to explain factually what this Register of Interest should entail using the bible of Parliament, Erskine May, in some instances, to fortify his position.

I believe, Madam Speaker, that should be the purpose of all of us in determining what it is about, how it should function, and what it should contain; also, how it will be maintained and by whom it will be maintained, right down to the penalties which will be applied should Members of the Legislative Assembly at any time when it is in effect not comply with its requirements.

I do believe that it was his position of acceptance, and his firm accepting debate, that inspired the gentleman on the west side of the building of the Chamber into showing certain enthusiasm for it.

The last speaker, the Minister for Education, spoke about what the First Elected Member for Bodden Town had said, regarding the provision for a Speaker in the Constitution that has laid there for 20 years without being activated, when he expressed his opinion of thought that the Register of Interest may have suffered a similar fate.

The Minister for Education said that there was a difference in that one was discretionary, and the section dealing with the Register of Interest, said "shall." Well, there was no move by the Government up until the time that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and I brought this Motion to get this process underway to come up with a law. If the Government wishes to be so cognisant of matters which are set down in the Amendments to the Constitution at this stage, maybe they could begin to scamper at getting an Ombudsman appointed in this country. That is a post or an office that in my opinion is very much needed.

Madam Speaker, I noticed the Minister for Education talked about a Register of Interest and people who come into the Legislature not being employed prior to that, and also that in other Caribbean countries people have destroyed those countries, supposedly, and it was implied that they were not millionaires, not lawyers who owned law firms or banks, or real estate companies, or construction companies and the like. I would trust that it would not be festering in his mind to think of creating any qualification in this country where democracy might in any way be thwarted, where anyone who qualifies under the present qualifications (as set down in the Election Law and the Constitution) has a right to stand for election, if the people of this country so choose them, the peoples' voice has been heard. At this time one could easily get the impression that times are more skewed to big business and high rollers, and the same people who may not be millionaires are not adequately getting the attention that they deserve.

Madam Speaker, the Minister for Education also went into great fine tuning about what should go into the Register, and it is only those pecuniary interests of Legislators which might affect their votes, their actions and speeches. That is so, but the crucial and critical question to be answered is: What are these things? I still maintain that one of the best examples we might follow is the form which requires certain information from the Members of Parliament in the House of Commons in England.

Again, I would like to read what it says on the front page for the guidance of those members of Parliament. I think it would set down in a general statement as well what we would be looking at or need to be considering in this regard. It says, and I quote: "The main purpose of the Register of Members Interests is to provide information of any pecuniary interest or other material benefit which a member receives which might reasonably be thought to influence his or her actions, speeches or votes in Parliament or actions taken in his or her capacity as a member of Parliament."

So, Madam Speaker, I think that could lend us some insight into the thinking of the British Government in that regard.

These questions, set down here, probe for information on various aspects of personal financial existence, and dealings of Members of Parliament which should illicit the type of information whereby speeches, votes and actions could be judged.

Now, there is one point, made by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, which I would like to comment on where he noted in one of the Resolve sections, that the Motion asked to proceed in getting this job done with reasonable haste. Madam Speaker, I believe that is a necessary thing to do. And I take the point of what happened in the case of the Edsel versus the Mustang, and I think there is wisdom in that. However, various speakers on the Motion regarding lower income housing, which was dealt with over the past few days, spoke about a Select Committee being the means of killing actions. I do trust that the Government will not use the Select Committee to kill the establishment of a Register of Interest and the determination of a law which is required to put that Register in place. I have to be reminding myself constantly of what has happened with the Select Committee on the Penal Code. I trust this one will not go the similar way.

Madam Speaker, one of the things that I think a Register of Interest (showing Members' financial interests, pecuniary interests, as it is termed, and other relevant information) would do, is lessen the innuendo and the slurs that one hears in the Legislature from time to time by some Members imputing unavowed motives or conditions to others. Certainly, as I listened to the Minister for Youth Affairs yesterday, he did not fall short on being such a person who does that from time to time—many a time Points of Order are moved because of that. But, suddenly, he took on a great lament regarding the need for this Register, how and what he had done to procure this, and so forth and so on—even then, attempting to infer certain wrongdoings to a Member of this Legislative Assembly.

Madam Speaker, on most occasions I choose not to reply to things which he has said, and that is well, because it means that I would become similar to him if I did—and I would not want to do that. But certain things require some rebuttal, I think. One of them, the great claim made by him on behalf of the National Team Government that that Government brought this section into the Constitution and that they stand by this Register of Interest in a great way, is actually unfounded. For, in the Constitution sent to the Cayman Islands by the British Government (Draft Constitution for the Cayman Islands, July 1992), section 94 is where it was contained, and from where they pulled it and stuck it in with the amendment which they told the British Government they wanted, and which the British Government gave this country without the full participation of the people. This certainly was a clause with which I had no problems with then, nor do I now. Regrettably all of this Constitution was not taken into account which, in my opinion, would have made for a more mature and formal structure of Government in the Cayman Islands.

As the Member talked yesterday and went on about this, that and the other—what we must do and how we must behave as Legislators—he made me think of one of the Aesop's Fables, where it was an old custom among sailors to take with them on their voyages monkeys or other pets to amuse them and keep them company when they went to sea. It happened, on a certain voyage, where a sailor took with him a monkey to be his companion on board the ship. While off the coast of Senium, the famous promontory of Attica, the ship was caught in a violent storm and was wrecked, and all on board were thrown into the sea. Among them, of course, was the monkey. There he was struggling in the water when a dolphin saw him and, taking him to be a man, he went and took him up on his back and was swimming along with the monkey. When they were nearing the shore, just opposite to Varracus, the harbour of Athens, the dolphin spoke to the monkey and said, "Are you an Athenian?"

The monkey said, "Yes indeed. I belong to one of the first families of the city."

Then the dolphin said, "Then, of course, you know Piraeus."

"Oh yes," said the monkey, who thought Piraeus must be the name of some distinguished citizen. "He is one of my dearest friends."

Disgusted at so obvious a falsehood, the dolphin dove to the bottom of the sea and left the monkey to his fate.

The moral is: Those who pretend to be what they are not, sooner or later find themselves in deep water.

Madam Speaker, this Motion has been accepted by the Government. I believe it marks a milestone in that this Legislature is taking on a more responsible position, calling upon Members to take on more responsibility, and allowing the public the opportunity of being in a position to see what its Members are doing with regard to their personal pecuniary interests, and their interest as representatives.

I sincerely hope that this Select Committee will be called at a very early date and that the available legislation from various jurisdictions regarding this matter will be used as guidelines, and we take from them that which we might need to arrive at a law creating a Register of Interest. It does appear that even though there may be a Register of Interest, there could also be the need for a Code of Conduct for Legislators and, certainly, that is something which can come about in the near future as well, and I believe should come about.

So, the situation is that we have the opportunity today of accepting that the Cayman Islands shall have a Register of Interest. I do thank the Members of the House for their support and agreement on this, and I look forward to working in the Committee with Members in arriving at a consensus as to what we will do.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion No. 11/94: "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House appoint a Select Committee of the whole House to consider matters relating to a Register of Interests and the drafting of enabling legislation making reference to legislation of other jurisdictions as may be considered appropriate and invite persons and organisations to make written submissions to or appear before the Select Committee;

"AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Select Committee, with all reasonable haste, lay its Report for the creation of a Register of Interests on the table of this Honourable House and thereafter a Law and a Register of Interests be created forthwith."

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say aye, those against no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion has been passed.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 11/94 PASSED.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could we have a division.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I heard no Noes, there were all Ayes, and a division is not now necessary. We proceed to Private Member's Motion No. 12/94. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 12/94

REPORT OF H. M. PRISON INSPECTOR NORTHWARD PRISON

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 12/94 entitled Report of H.M. Prison Inspector—Northward Prison, standing in my name and which reads...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would just like to make a Point of Order, which I had understood the Second Official Member was going to take. I know it is not very good to interrupt the Member, and I apologise, but he is now going to read the Motion, as I...

The Speaker: Please make your Point of Order, Honourable Minister.

POINT OF ORDER (Sub Judice Rule)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As I understand it this Motion is sub judice as it relates to Reports which may or may not become relevant, or probably will become relevant, in a criminal matter, a serious criminal charge which has been laid before the Court, therefore, it would be unwise and may prejudice that serious criminal case that is pending.

If you wish, I could get the specific charges, I believe they are extremely serious charges. I do not have them specifically, but I could get these from the Attorney General, if required, and would undertake to do so for you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, the Attorney General, the Honourable Second Official Member spoke to me about this last week, and we discussed it. I brought to his attention that the expressed part to this Private Member's Motion dealt with administration of Northward Prison. I think, all Honourable Members are aware that the final decision rests with the Chair in this matter.

I would like to read what I have investigated on this matter: "CRIMINAL MATTER—sub judice from the time charge laid to passing of sentence and from date of filing Notice of Appeal to date decision given by Appellate Court. Between sentence and filing notice of appeal matter is not SUB JUDICE, subject always to the discretion of the Chair.

"CIVIL MATTER—from the time the matter set down for trial (or Notice of Motion filed as in an injunction proceeding) until judgment (oral or written). Likewise from filing Notice of Appeal until Judgment by Appellate Court. It is normally the practice to consider the matter sub judice once a writ has been issued.

"It is to be noted that matters may be referred to before the dates mentioned unless it appears to the Chair there is a real and substantial danger of prejudice to the trial of a case (May 19th Ed., p.427, 18th Ed., p.416, 17th Ed., p.454., 21st Ed., pages 326, 377-399)

"In the United Kingdom, the Sub Judice Rule is embodied in Resolution of the House, dated 23rd July, 1963. The resolution reads: 'RESOLVED THAT subject always to the discretion of the Chair and to the right of the House to legislate any matter:

'1) Matters awaiting or under adjudication in all courts exercising a criminal jurisdiction and in courts martial should not be referred to --

'a) in any motion (including a motion for leave to bring in a bill), or

'b) in debate, or

'c) in any question to a Minister including a supplementary question;

'2) Matters awaiting or under adjudication in a civil court should not be referred to --

'a) in any motion (including a motion for leave to bring in a bill), or

'b) in debate, or

'c) in any question to a minister including a supplementary question from the time that the case has been set down for trial or otherwise brought before the courts, as for example by notice of motion for an injunctions; such matters may be referred to the before such date unless it appears to the Chair that there is a real and substantial danger of prejudice to the trial of the case.

'3) Paragraphs 1) and 2) of this Resolution should have effect --

'a) in the case of a criminal case in courts of law, including courts martial, from the moment the law is set in motion by a charge being made;

'b) in the case of a civil case in courts of law, from the time that the case has been set down for trial or otherwise brought before the court, as for example by notice of motion for an injunction;

'c) in the case of any judicial body to which the House has expressly referred a specific matter for decision and report, from the time when the resolution of the House is passed.

'4) Paragraphs 1) and 2) of this Resolution should cease to have effect --

'a) in the case of courts of law, when the verdict and sentence have been announced or judgment given, but resumed when notice of appeal is given until the appeal has been decided;

'b) in the case of courts martial, when the sentence of the court has been confirmed and promulgated, but resumed when the convicted man petitions the Army Council, the Air Council or the Board of Admiralty;

'c) in the case of any judicial body to which the House has expressly referred a specific matter for decision and report, as soon as the report is laid before the House.'"

Successive speakers have exercised their discretion to allow matters to be discussed although they fall within the strict terms of the sub judice rule they have considered that no substantial risk of prejudicing proceedings will arise.

The whole basis of the ruling is that the House must be extremely careful not to discuss any matter when the discussion as reported in the public press might prejudice anyone's right to a fair hearing.

As regards to Private Member's Motion No. 12/94, Report of H.M. Prison Inspector—Northward Prison, I have been informed that the charges have been laid and this has been committed to the Grand Court for the 6th July, 1994. Having gone through the contents of Private Member's Motion No. 12/94 which says, "that the House should debate its concern over the administration at Northward Prison", I have decided that the matter can be discussed if the Honourable Member is prepared to take upon himself the responsibility as to the statements he makes, which could cover only the points raised in the Motion before the House.

I have taken the position that I shall rule him in Order, but I reserve the right to listen to what he and other Members have to say. Then, in what Honourable Members are about to say, if I think that there is definitely something in what they are saying that will prejudice the trial or the merits of the case, I shall stop or interrupt them at that time, and ask them to desist from making any further remarks.

Further, I will draw Members' attention that on the 28th June, 1972, the House of Commons made a further resolution which reads as follows: "RESOLVED, That: 1) notwithstanding the Resolution of 23rd July, 1963 and subject to the discretion of the Chair reference may be made in Questions, Motions or debate to matters awaiting or under adjudication in all civil courts, including the National Industrial Relations Courts, in so far as such matters relate to a Ministerial decision which cannot be challenged in court except on grounds of direction or bad faith, or concern issues of national importance such as the national economy, public order or the essentials of life.

"2) In exercising its discretion the Chair should not allow reference to such matters if it appears that there is a real and substantial danger of prejudice to the proceedings, and should have regard to the consideration set out in Paragraphs 25 to 28 of the Fourth Report or from the Select Committee on [Proceedings]."

Accordingly, as I said before, if the Honourable Member and other Members are prepared to take upon themselves the responsibility for the statements they make which will not reflect on any case before the Court and which will concern only the administration of Northward Prison, the Private Member's Motion may be presented to the House.

Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I accept your ruling, and I am sure you have considered the fact that once the statement is made the damage is done and retraction does not negative the statement that is made.

The Speaker: I am quite aware of that, Honourable Minister. But I am also aware that I hold all Members in this House as responsible Members, and I have asked the Honourable Member who will be presenting the Motion if he will be responsible enough to be very careful of the statements he makes, that there should be no reference to any case which is now before the Court, or will come before the Court on the 6th of July, 1994.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Before I resume reading the Motion, may I give the Chair my undertaking that no such matter(s) will be raised by myself, the Mover of this Motion, and I thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, may I suggest that proceedings be suspended at this time? But before I do so, I should have at the conclusion of Private Member's Motion No. 11/94, appointed a Chairman. I had intended to appoint a Chairman and would not wish this to be left, as in most other cases.

NOMINATION OF CHAIRMAN

Standing Order 69(2)

RE: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 11/94 (SELECT COMMITTEE TO REVIEW A REGISTER OF INTERESTS)

The Speaker: Under Standing Order 69(2) I appoint the Elected Member for North Side to be the Chairman of the Select Committee of the whole House to review a Register of Interests for the Legislative Assembly.

Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.30 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.53 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

May I now read the Motion, Madam Speaker? I read: "WHEREAS the report to His Excellency the Governor of an inspection of H. M. Prison, Northward, Grand Cayman—April 1994 by H.M. Chief Inspector of Prisons was made public on May 10, 1994;

"AND WHEREAS many Members of the Legislative Assembly have, on various occasions, expressed their concerns over the administration of Northward Prison;

"AND WHEREAS certain documents pertaining to the administration of Northward Prison were tabled in the Legislative Assembly in March, 1994;

"AND WHEREAS there is no mention of the grave implications of these documents in the above mentioned Report;

"AND WHEREAS there seems to be continued public concern over the administration at Northward Prison;

"AND WHEREAS in a Special Report which was published in the Friday, May 13th, and Thursday, May 19th, 1994 issues of The New Caymanian newspaper, one journalist suggested: 'The results of the Chamber of Commerce crime survey released last month reflects a widespread belief in the community that current conditions at Northward Prison don't serve as a deterrent to crime and that greater emphasis should be placed on rehabilitation programmes.'

"AND WHEREAS the above mentioned article describes in some detail the results of a survey undertaken by the Chamber of Commerce as well as concerns of the wider public;

"AND WHEREAS it is timely, democratic and conducive to meeting the expectations of the Caymanian society to have this Report of H. M. Prison Inspector discussed and debated in the Legislative Assembly;

"NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House take note and debate the findings of the said Report of the Inspection of H.M. Prison, Northward, Grand Cayman;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House records its concerns and opinions on matters raised in the report."

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 12/94, has been moved and seconded and is now open for debate. I would remind Honourable Members of my statement made when a Point of Order was raised, thank you.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is apparent by the objection raised by the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation, that his reading and comprehension skills are weak and borderline. Although my schedule does not permit much time now, if the Honourable Minister is interested in improving these skills, political differences aside, I shall be only too willing to help him should he request it. It is apparent to anyone who has read either the report of H.M. Prison Inspector, or who has read this Motion, that neither mentioned anything about any tragedy which occurred.

Let me say at the beginning that I am one who has always respected the Chair and, again, I give you my undertaking that it is not my intention, nor my desire, nor will I raise any matter in my contribution which will be sub judice.

Having established that, let me begin by saying that this Member has been an unrepentant and an inveterate campaigner of Prison Reform at Northward Prison. I am concerned because I believe that in this small country of ours, our Prison must serve as something more than a holding tank or a recycling station for our prisoners. I believe that many of the prisoners who find themselves in Northward Prison do so because of a lack of self-esteem, because of a lack of self-importance and self-worth and, most certainly, because of a lack of marketable skills so they can apply themselves productively and legally as citizens and residents in our community.

While those are my concerns and observations, those are the observations of many of the people with whom I come into daily contact. That this is so is borne out is the fact that various people from time to time write columns in the newspaper, write letters to the editor, and expresses their concerns in media other than the written media saying something needs to be done. Many people refer to Northward Prison as Her Majesty's Hotel because of this seeming failure by the administration to impose a structured and rigorous programme.

My position is that I am not calling for any kind of draconian or slavish programme, as much as I am calling for a realisation of the sense of the Mission Statement of Northward Prison and an attempt by the administration of Northward Prison to arrive at a sensible, workable and accepted format for dealing with the prisoners in their charge.

So, the report dwells on these failures and inconsistencies, and that is borne out on the very first page. Northward Prison is populated by a myriad of different people, some of whom are not supposed to be at Northward Prison.

On page 1, "Description of the Establishment", paragraph 1.4: "INMATES 1.4...There appears to be one prisoner who was mentally disturbed to the effect of being unfit to plead, and there was one profoundly deaf and disturbed woman whose location at Northward appears unsatisfactory."

So, what I am saying is that the reflection of the failure of the administration at Northward Prison is but a reflection of the failure of the Government to address the wider problem leading up to the placement of some of these persons in Northward Prison.

Tell me where in this civilised world—and if the International Human Rights Authorities would get a hold of this kind of information, someone would suffer serious embarrassment—is someone who is profoundly deaf and disturbed kept with prisoners, including prisoners who are serving life for capital offences? Then, someone who is so mentally disturbed that they are unfit to plead?

Madam Speaker, it is time for us to pay attention to these things because it is no good to say that we are the most progressive society in the Caribbean on the one hand, and having these kinds of inconsistencies and this insidious kind of practice which is detracting from what we are struggling to build up. These are the kinds of things that this Member and the Motion is trying to draw to the attention of the Government, the Prison Authorities and the wider society. People who are not supposed to be at Northward Prison should not be at Northward Prison. Her Majesty's Prison Inspector clearly said that.

The report goes on to page 3 to mention in the second paragraph the things that Her Majesty's Prison Inspector proposed. I would like to concentrate on that section which deals with the philosophy of the Prison Administrator, or his management style. In the middle of the second paragraph, the report says, speaking about the former Prison Director Mr. Marsden: "2.2 In Cayman he chose to concentrate on improving relations between prisoners and staff, and resolving informally the grievances of prisoners. He created an atmosphere in which prisoners were encouraged to speak out to him. ...as a consequence prison rules and discipline became relaxed to the concern of some of the staff. In the eyes of the prisoners, his was a hard act to follow."

In the next paragraph the report mentions "a criticism made of them [them being Mr. Marsden and his top administrators] that they [the top administrators] were too loyal to Mr. Marsden and should have objected to his lack of severity in relation to prisoners."

So, it is obvious that what was, in fact, the management style and philosophy of the former Director was not understood, or was deemed to be incompatible to the notion of how the Prison should have been run by many of the other officers. So the first point which I would like to make is that this apparent break down does not bode well for effective running and the effective rehabilitation, and even for the effective containment of prisoners at Northward. If there is a difference of philosophy, style and objectives between the management—who set the rules, the regulations and the policies—and the rank and file—who have to interpret these regulations and rules and policies and carry them out—then the task at hand is clearly in a state of flux. So there is a break down.

What should have been done, and the report does not say if it was done, is that the administrator hold some kind of orientation session where his views, based upon his experience and his philosophy were well promoted among members of his staff.

An analogy comes to mind. A coach (in any sport)—and this kind of situation is especially relevant at the professional level—takes over a team. His responsibility is to mold that team into championship material. Before the season he has one or more orientation sessions with the players, depending upon the necessity. It is at that time that the coach will hear of objections, differences of opinions, unwillingness on the part of the players to follow that particular style. It is also at that time that the decision is made—the coach stays, or the players go. But the situation cannot obtain where the coach is of one philosophical mind, or of one method, and the players have no intention of following that method, or the course of instruction. That augurs for nothing better than a topsy-turvy, quarrelsome and unproductive season.

So, it seems to me that there was a breakdown at the very beginning, and that even now, according to this Report, there is still an undercurrent, still some dissatisfaction among the rank and file members, with the Acting Prison Director and his style. It seems to me, and, indeed, at a later section Her Majesty's Inspector makes a specific report, that in the interim what needs to be done is that the Acting Director needs to let his staff clearly and unequivocally realise what his position is, what his style is, what his objectives are for the workings of Northward Prison, then give them the opportunity to say, yes, we are going to work along with you, or, no, we are not interested in working along with you. If we stay here we are going to sabotage and we are going to undermine, or we are going to request that we be transferred out of this department into some other department of the Government service. Unless and until that is done, we will never have Northward Prison operating to its optimum, we will always have bickering, we will always have the administration up against the wall, we will always have the staff claiming that they do not understand or are unwilling to do certain things.

So, it is time for the Government to put pressure to bear, if that is necessary, on the authorities at Northward Prison to mould the staff and the administrators together as a cohesive unit if Northward Prison is to achieve the objective of dealing constructively with the prisoners who come to their institute.

On the other hand, if Northward Prison is to serve mainly as a holding tank, a recycling station, a training ground, a warehouse, then the Government needs to do nothing but keep their hands off and let the situation perpetuate itself. But the Government must then realise that by so doing they are placing the whole society at risk because all we will be doing is recycling these prisoners, compounding the problem and we cannot expect, nor should we be surprised when we hear, as I heard this morning, of an incident of shooting just two blocks away from the Police Station.

The very persons whom we should be trying to save or contain or to change will be doing nothing more than passing through the station like ships passing through the Panama Canal, or the Suez Canal for that matter.

Another indication of the lack of coordination and lack of effectiveness of the management of the prison has to do with this whole business of the elimination of drugs from the prison. Permit me to remark that many people in the wider society seem to think that drugs are commonplace in any prison system. Nothing could be further from the truth. While it is true that prison authorities everywhere are challenged, and sometimes stretched to the limit, to prevent illicit drugs penetrating the prison system and while in most prisons, especially large prisons, there is an underground among the prisoners and many contraband things are available, drugs are not readily available in any effective prison system, especially those prison systems that I have read about.

So many people who think that nothing can be done to keep drugs out of prison are wrong. If that were the case there would be no sense of us having a prison. If we sent them away to get them away from drugs, and drugs were readily available in the prison it would make no sense to send them there.

But in the case of Northward Prison it seems there is a weakness. I do not know, because it does not say if any specific study has been made to find out why Northward Prison is so susceptible to an influx of drugs. If one were to study the prison population one would observe very quickly that many of the prisoners, if not a majority of them, are at Northward Prison for drug related offences. That, in itself, is reason to believe that it would be difficult to stem the flow of drugs in Northward Prison.

The report on page 5, paragraph 2.10 says: "2.10 Although there were serious attempts by management to eliminate drugs, those attempts had largely failed and a proportion of inmates, perhaps about two thirds, took marijuana in prison regularly."

We can get some insight into the problem when we read the following paragraph: "2.11 There is an embargo on foreign prisoners working outside. As a result foreign prisoners tended to get the best jobs inside and this led to resentment and ill-will."

The resentment and ill-will aside, the problem seems to be strictly local. Since foreign prisoners are not allowed to work outside, one must logically assume this business of drugs coming into the prison has its bearing in the local element of Northward Prison. Therefore, it seems that the screening process for visitors has to be stricter.

This whole business of whenever the prisoners come out, and I see local prisoners out from time to time, this whole business of their affinity, and the seeming ease of availability to drugs has to be more closely supervised. It may mean that we have to up the ratio of Prison Officers per prisoner. So instead of having it one to five, make it two to five.

It may also mean that the perimeter of the prison, since I understand that it is commonplace for people to throw packets of drugs over the perimeter fence, it may mean that this perimeter has to be patrolled more regularly and more efficiently. It may also mean that we have to invest in some sophisticated system of surveillance, and earlier in this Sitting I asked a question about electronic surveillance.

It is true that Northward Prison is not located in the middle of a city, but at the same time it is located in an area that is populated to a reasonable level. The problem is not from the people within the environs of the prison, but rather from those persons who drive in to visit their relative in prison. In some cases drugs and other contraband are trafficked in by people working in the prison. So it seems to me that to combat this business of illicit drugs in the prison effectively, greater efforts have to be made in screening, including screening of Prison Officers.

Greater attention must be paid to people who visit the prison, particularly people who visit the prison often, because I have heard on the street that prisoners boast how there is no lack of availability of drugs in the prison and that they feel better doing drugs at prison because then they do not have to worry about the police as they would if they were on the outside.

It is a serious problem which leads me to say that certain categories of people do not belong at Northward Prison. The person who is a drug addict and is sent to Northward Prison with no possibility of drug counselling and with no opportunity for drug rehabilitation is only marking time at Northward Prison until he or she comes out again, goes home, meets up with old cronies, and the cycle of recidivism continues.

Madam Speaker, allied to this availability of drugs is the observation that there was inadequate drug counselling, particularly for a prison whose majority of inmates have been involved with drugs. That has been my beef from day one. We must make drug counselling readily available in Northward Prison to prisoners. It must not be an optional deal. I would like to see it mandatory for prisoners serving sentences of three months or longer, irrespective of what grounds they were convicted upon.

I would like to see the system so structured that once a prisoner is sent to Northward Prison for a sentence of three months or longer, that prisoner has to go to mandatory drug counselling. Failure to do so would mean that some other sanction is invoked. It is high time we get serious. We cannot afford to approach this matter half hearted any longer.

Further, I advocate that the Government consider some system of half-way housing for prisoners who have been sentenced for long periods—long periods being three years and up—so that upon their release from Northward Prison, rather than coming out after three years and being faced with the shock of having to fend for themselves, so to speak, they can be gradually introduced back into the society.

Many countries, and many jurisdictions, have realised that this is the way to go now for prisoners who wind up in prison on long term. These prisoners have no skills, no sense of utilising their skills, talents, acumen, other than for involvement of criminal activities for which they were caught and sentenced in the first place. So it is recognised that what has to be done is not to put these people back “cold turkey”, as the expression goes, into the society and say, “Here, you are out, you are free”, but to gradually wean them from the structured environment, make certain reasonable demands on them. In some cases they have curfews, they have to report to the authorities.

I have read about the system in California where they have bracelets and anklets which are hooked up to a computer monitor because they are not supposed to go beyond a certain jurisdiction. I am not advocating any such sophisticated and expensive ventures here, but I am merely using that as an example to show that, rather than just placing these people into an environment for which they are not equipped to deal—they do not know anything to do but get into trouble again—they are gradually eased back into society.

The report goes on to say that “there was a lack of exercise. One hour a day was inadequate.” (para 2.14) I have been reading about the change in the disposition of prison authorities in the United States now who are shying away from this whole business of letting prisoners pump iron. They say that when they give prisoners facilities and time to spend doing that, what happens is that they are in better physical shape than the Prison Officers. So, in the event of a confrontation, they are better equipped and better able than the prison officers.

I would advocate that we view this one with caution because if we build a sophisticated gym, as some of these prisons have hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of equipment and you should see some of those prisoners, they look like they are hewn out of stone in comparison to the prison officers who rarely get time to exercise and train regularly, particularly in hand-to-hand combat. We would have to have an army of gladiators on the inside.

Madam Speaker, you only have to look at some of our Prison Officers who are of the frailty of body of the Member speaking. Can you imagine putting them up against someone who can afford to spend six and eight hours a day pumping iron to develop biceps and triceps the size of Hercules? I would say that we can allow them to do some structured exercises, but not for them to develop narcissistic cults; not for them to hone themselves into gladiators to the point where in a stand-off or a confrontation they have all the physical advantage on their side as against the Prison Officers—especially seeing that our Prison Officers at H.M. Prison Northward are not armed.

Rather, I would like to see the system set up where these prisoners are exposed to other things. The report, in the next chapter, mentions some of them. There was a need for music, for craft courses, and the teaching of vocational skills which could help prisoners after they are discharged. So, rather than allowing them the unrestricted use of body building equipment, we encourage them to get into things that are going to be productive when they come out, and will enhance their sense of self-worth and self-esteem, that will increase their marketability, that will make them attractive to employers and that will lead the members of the wider society to view them differently.

This is a good point to interject, for any prison reform to be effective or any prison rehabilitation to be able to achieve the optimum, the attitudes of the wider community must also change. So let me say that it has to be projected and portrayed in such a way that the wider society and community realises that when a prisoner has served his/her time as required by the Court, that the person comes back out to the society as having paid, and so should enter the society with a clean slate.

We should be prepared to give that person a chance, for if we turn our backs on them and deny them employment opportunities and insinuate and castigate we are merely reinforcing their antisocial behaviour because it is going to strike them that they do not belong among us and that we are not prepared to take them back. Hence, they will have no sense of identify among us, no reasonable grounds to act socially, responsibly and productively as we do. And we can expect that they will revert back to their own ways.

I say this because on many occasions I have been approached by some of these people who have served their time and paid their dues and who have told me, after heart-to-heart and soul searching conversations, that they are prepared to do well. Some have come to me broken, with tears in their eyes, that no one is prepared to give them a chance. "What are we going to do? I really do not want to go back to using dope, I do not want to go back to burglarising, but no one wants to give me a job, not even raking the yard."

So I am saying that while the prison administration and the Government has an obligation for the better running and more effective administration of Northward Prison, we in the wider society, must also realise that we have an obligation that when these people come out, if we can help them, to so do.

I am not saying, and I do not want to give anyone the impression, that I am all bleeding heart. I am saying that it makes sense for us to be careful, to be wary in some instances. Of course, any sensible person would not open themselves up completely to someone. The trust and respect on the part of the prisoners has to be earned and they should understand that. But that should be a part of the rehabilitation programme. That should be a part of this whole business of rehabilitation, a part of the orientation that they are given prior to coming back out into society. They should be made to understand that when they leave that they are not just going out next week, they have to spend three months in this house, they have to be home by 9.00 every evening, they have to find a job and report to work at 8.00 in the morning before they are moved back, because they have lost respect and they have to learn that society is not going to welcome them the same way they welcome me now. They have to re-live and re-earn the trust and respect which they have breached.

That is why I am saying it is high time that we have available a counselling psychologist so that these kinds of prisoners can be prepared. I was just reading about the parole hearing of James Earl Ray, the man who shot the Reverend Martin Luther King. These Parole Board Members are some of the most astute, critical-thinking people that one could ever find because they have to interview these persons to find out if they are ready. Sometimes they trip them up by the simplest of questions. Parole denied. James Earl Ray will not be eligible for parole again until the next 15 years.

So, our system needs to bear these things in mind. Usually, the board has available the services of a psychologist or someone that has studied behaviour, who is conversant with criminal behaviour and attitudes of people, because certain people can feign rehabilitation. We can learn from all of these occurrences outside of our jurisdiction.

I must say that I have reservations about the availability of television to prisoners unless that availability is strictly monitored. Her Majesty's Inspector says: "21.6 Television, though welcome, appears to be too much confined to violence..."

Imagine, these people are in prison and they are exposed to all the violence of television. Marry that with the availability of body building equipment and you will soon understand the reservation I mentioned earlier. Television for prisoners must be strictly monitored and there should be absolutely no violence, no exposure to violent programmes. While I am not in any way suggesting that the television be confined to educational programmes, because I think that we should offer some kind of recreational television, I say violent programmes should be an absolute no-no. Indeed, I would go so far as to advocate that the exposure to television be so tightly monitored and so strictly controlled by the prison administration that recreational television is only offered at certain times.

The Inspector goes on to say, "Television was turned off at 8.15 pm, which was too early," and suggests that "a VCR could be acquired to supplement or partly replace television." That, I think, is a good suggestion. I would advocate that. I do not know what the lights-out time is, or the lock down time is for the prisoners, but I certainly would suggest that no television watching go on past 10.00 at night because part of being in prison has to do with the deprivation of certain rights and privileges. So, while 8.15 may be too early for termination, I would certainly advocate that by 10.00 prisoners should be dispersed from wherever they watch television and made to go to their cells for the night.

The business of long-term prisoners is a challenge in any prison system and according to the observation of H.M. Prison Inspector, it seems to be a major inadequacy in our prison system. From time to time in our society there have been requests and inquires made about the possibility of hard labour, of structured labour. I can remember raising this question, formally and informally, with the Government authorities. In a system where hard labour is not allowed, it is difficult to find constructive activities and to arrange them in such a way that the lives of long term prisoners will be fruitfully passed. In our system, it is even more difficult because we have our long term prisoners in the same prison compound as we have people who are there for short duration of time, for offences which are not offences against the person, or who are there for what the sociologists call victimless crimes. Our situation is compounded because in other jurisdictions long-term prisoners are usually kept to themselves, segregated in a separate institution.

But this whole business of taking a humanitarian approach necessitates that we have to find some constructive activities for this type of prisoner. Some time ago I read in the paper where some prisoners were artistically orientated and that there was some display of the pictures that they had painted. It may be that we have to encourage these kinds of activities. What is favourable about this system is that our long-term prisoners are not faced with certain sanctions which are in place in other systems.

It seems to me that it is a good time for the prison authorities to think about making available for long-term prisoners certain tools that they can use to develop themselves, their skills, even innate skills that they had no idea were there.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the luncheon break?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.15.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.50 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.20 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 12/94. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Prior to taking the suspension I was about to pass comment on the observation by H.M. Prison Inspector that three staff members have been on light duties for many months, which clearly presents management difficulties.

That observation is significant in light of the fact that elsewhere in the report H.M. Prison Inspector made the note on page 2, under the heading "Staff": "1.7 At present the majority of the staff complain of staff shortages..." It strikes me that these staff shortages are compounded by these three members being on light duties for many months. No explanation or description was given as to what these light duties may be. One can only presume that they have little or nothing to do with the customary routine of supervision of prisoners.

I hope that this matter will receive urgent attention and scrutiny by the Government so that we can move as quickly as is possible to correct this kind of anomaly in light of the fact that the observation has been made that there is a shortage of staff.

On this matter of staff, I have been disappointed for a long time that we cannot get more young Caymanians interested in working in our prison. It is a failure that no one seems to take seriously enough, as to try to redress it properly. I have to mention that charges have been made regarding the fact that Caymanian applicants have not been treated fairly and it seems that there is a lack of interest in having Caymanian staff members as against having staff members from outside this jurisdiction. What is the Government doing about things like this? Have any attempts been made to discover the underlying reasons, or has any assessment been made as to what might be necessary to encourage Caymanians? Has there been a design campaign specifically to attract Caymanians? The onus has to be on the Government because they are the persons who set the policies, who determine the direction that events take, and who spend the monies and can organise and ensure that monies are channelled towards a certain direction. So the Government can now easily advocate its responsibility in seeing that these glaring inconsistencies are addressed.

I would now like to turn to the matter of education because the Inspector, in his Report, on page 10, goes into great detail to explain the role of the Prison Education Coordinator and to say that the inspection team was most impressed with his work. It is in this area that the Government has failed most obviously. What is the role of the Education Coordinator and the Education Programme at the Prison? Certainly, it is not expected that the prison can become a college or a university. However, there is a genuine need to expose many of the prisoners to skills which are best had through some sort of an education programme. I have said before that the business of education and the education programme at the Prison should fall strictly under the ambit of the person responsible for the Prison, the person who answers to the external and internal affairs of the country, rather than under the Education Department.

In other jurisdictions, education systems in Prisons fall under the Ministry of the Interior or the Ministry of Corrections, not under the Education Department, or the Minister of Education, per se.

That being the case, all the Minister for Education has to be concerned with is the fact that the people who teach and administer the courses are qualified. All of the other items fall under a different Ministry. One reason for that is, if that is the case, there can be no conflicts, no rivalry and the education programme of the Prison is allowed to blossom and to function as it should.

I have a great respect for the people involved in the Prison Education Programme. I read from time to time what they are doing with their limited resources and I commend them. I say that this is the one step, albeit a small one, in the right direction. I believe that if more resources were available, that if the coordinator had access to greater educational resources, it does not necessarily at this point need any more staff, but better educational resources by way of audio-visual materials, books, experiences, he can expose his charges to, then the success would be of an even greater magnitude. It seems to me from what I have read in the Inspector's Report and what I have read elsewhere regarding this exercise, is that many of the prisoners avail themselves of the opportunity to learn to read and write, and to obtain High School equivalency and to go on to take courses in GCE.

I recently viewed a programme about the Boston, Massachusetts Prison System, their long term prisoners have earned Ph.D. Degrees through prison study. So, this is an area and an avenue that Government should focus more attention on, to channel and make more resources available to Mr. McIntyre and his staff, because if we are successful in inculcating in the prisoners a sense of self-esteem, self-worth and self-importance, and, adding to that, giving them tools which are marketable, which employers could seek to utilise, then we are assuring upon their release from prison, that they at least have a 50/50 chance of going straight and doing something for themselves.

So, I look forward to hearing the Government's disposition and hearing the Government's plans on how they intend to meet this growing need and to address this anomaly. The Prison Inspector himself said that he believed "greater encouragement should be given to adult prisoners attending classes." (page 10) "3.9 We believe that education has not been given the prominence it deserves in the regime."

Could it be that there is a conspiracy? Could it be that the very existence of the Prison is to justify, in the minds of some people, that there is a criminal element and that this criminal element needs to be treated like animals and deprived of opportunities? Could there be a conspiracy that says that persons from a certain socio-economic background do not deserve any better than this? When I hear people stand up in this Honourable House and make insinuations like the Minister for Education and Aviation made in his contribution in a most recent debate, about people entering politics and not having jobs, and seeming to suggest that the people who should lead this country and be responsible for having political and administrative charge in this country are those people who are millionaires by birth or who are born into privilege and status. To that Minister, and anyone like him, I say, show me the clause in Adam's Will that says he, or anyone else, has any special privilege to rule or to lead. Certainly, if he claims this is a democratic society, that we are proponents of a democratic society and that we hail from true Christian backgrounds, then these are the types of things we should address.

I think that it is incumbent upon us to provide these kinds of opportunities, for in so doing, what we will be achieving is removing the possibility, and lessening the destructive element in our society by enabling and equipping them to use legal marketable and wanted skills and knowledge so that they may acquire a certain human dignity. That is away and apart from the farm work, away and apart from the kitchen, the laundry. That is all well and good, but what I am speaking about is education and an exposure that goes beyond that, that would allow those prisoners who are so disposed and who have the aptitude to participate in some local vocational training that would lead them to acquire trades—plumbers, electricians, other types of crafts.

Lastly, two matters. One has to do with this whole business of remand. It is my information that the remand system as it exists needs urgent examination. It is unsatisfactory, ill advised and it does not serve the purpose it should serve. The Prison inspector suggests that it needs legal changes and he comments as follows: "3.14 At present prisoner on remand have to be brought in every 7 days under escort to the Magistrate Court for what is normally a formality. We propose that a Magistrate should sit for this purpose at the prison."

I have to agree with that because it is less dangerous, less risky and, certainly, more convenient to have the Magistrate appear at the Prison, rather than risk trucking the prisoners from Northward down town to the Magistrate's Court—a Court which we are already screaming is full to its very seams and ready to burst.

I would hope that the Government takes it upon themselves to address this pressing matter urgently.

Finally, Her Majesty's Inspector comments that; "3.18 There is not a clear system for the searching of the Prison. The security officer should prepare a searching programme which ensures that all areas are searched every 28 days and that staff are held accountable for their work."

A prison, as I understand it, is only effective and functional when the authorities have such control that they know, not everything, but almost everything and everyone that is in that prison. They must have an intelligence network, be that formal or informal, where they know what is going on amongst the prisoners—what they are thinking, why they are acting in such a way, how they are behaving. Certainly, when it comes to possessions of prisoners, the prison authorities and administrators must know absolutely and without doubt at all times what is in each prisoner's cell, what is under the bed, and what are their possessions. The only way to ensure that is to have such an effective security system where proper searches are made. The most effective searches are not the scheduled searches, but the searches called on the spur of the moment. That method must be handled by an officer so competent that he can have his cadre and his team so trained that they have it down to a science.

According to the Prison Inspector's Report, that is not the case now, and has not been for quite some time. It is a weakness which probably accounts in some way for the availability of drugs in Northward Prison. Let me say that I am not a sponsor of a campaign of terror on the part of the Prison Authorities, however, I am an advocate that the prisoners should understand that the administration and the management runs the prison. The rules and regulations are laid down by the management and the prisoners have no choice, and there is no question, if they break the rules, they are going to come under further sanction.

So, it is the responsibility of the Government because it is the Government that decides policies and spends the money. It is the Government who arrives at the priority. It is the responsibility of the Government now to say what is going to be done as regards the recommendations made in this Report.

I thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, Members will be aware that I am not the Member with responsibility for the Prison Service, that is the responsibility of the Honourable First Official Member. But, as the Government's chief legal advisor and officer, had I not been unavoidably absent from this House earlier today, I would have raised the Point of Order myself, perhaps, that the Honourable Minister for Aviation raised.

I can say that I greatly appreciate your ruling, Madam Speaker, and the advice that you gave to Members who intended to participate in this debate. I wish to commend the First Elected Member for Bodden Town in his successful moving of this Motion without any reference or allusion to the tragic incident at Northward Prison earlier this year.

Nevertheless, Government feels that it would be imprudent for Members of Government to take a part in this debate, in view of the serious murder charges that are pending out of the tragic incident at Northward Prison earlier this year.

As a consequence of that decision, no further Members of the Government Bench will be speaking on this Motion.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Commissioner who reviewed the establishment of the Prison Service at Her Majesty's Prison at Northward noted in his very first sentence that "Northward Prison, Grand Cayman, is the sole and all purpose prison of the Cayman Islands." That is a very significant statement, for it is true that that prison serves all purposes where a person's freedom of movement is taken away for whatever reason and for whatever period of time.

It is something which was noted by this same Commissioner years ago—that it is absolutely not 100% satisfactory, but this is the case.

In his Report, under the heading of 'Inmates', he notes that 19 were young prisoners; 22 were on remand; and 10 were women, out of a total of 147 at the time. Sadly, he also noted that there appeared to be one prisoner "mentally disturbed to the extent of being unfit to plead, and one profoundly deaf and disturbed woman whose location at Northward appears unsatisfactory."

As we look at this Report, the Administration of Northward Prison, and the social conditions which exist in our country, we see that something needs to be done with regard to placing different categories of people in different locations for the purposes of holding or containing them—temporarily or indefinitely taking their freedom of movement.

Surely, as we discuss this report, this is not purely confined to what happens in the Prison, but it is like a light signalling that something needs to be done, for example, to provide a place where we can properly deal with people who need attention and suffer problems with mental health.

Very young prisoners. Again, attempts are normally made, in most parts of the world, to have them in institutions not even termed prisons, as such, where they are kept away from older prisoners and these older prisoners are sometimes hardened criminals. It keeps the younger prisoners away from them and gives them a better condition or environment in which to exist.

I note also in the report under the heading of 'Staffing' that: "1.7 The present number of staff is 89 of which a majority are not Caymanian but come from other parts of the Caribbean."

I am not saying that we can make Caymanians, who might not be available, to fill the position in the Prison, but I do believe, as a citizen and as a Legislator, that every attempt has to be made to find Caymanians to take up positions as wardens or officers in the Prison.

I do believe that is an essential goal to strive towards in the administration of the Prison. I know that there are insufficient numbers of indigenous people in these Islands, and this is shown in all areas of employment in this country. But I do believe that with the right effort and direction, and with the right attempts, the situation, in terms of staffing where Caymanians are concerned, can be improved.

There has to be more than strictly lip service paid to this situation in all areas throughout the Government service and not necessarily limited only to the prison; but this, specifically in this case, does need attention.

I find it interesting that, in the findings of the Commissioner, there are some shortages and that another expert in the business of the Prison Service, Mr. Gibbard, would be carrying out an examination of this. I heard the view that if it is clearly known what is required of a Prison Officer—and that should be no great secret, it can be understood clearly enough as to what is required of one, when one takes that position up—what their duties and responsibilities are; how they are supervised, if it is a chain of command within the Prison; clearly what the hours of work are; what might be the extra duties; it gives a better opportunity for an indigenous person who might be interested to make up their minds if they might wish to take up such employment. I think that this report, in general, takes into account most, if not all, of the areas that one would look at and examine in the management or administration review.

There are some recommendations and findings which I would like to comment on briefly.

Many of the Commissioner's recommendations cannot be implemented if money is not made available. I would see that availability as being now, to bring about those corrections. Of course, this is completely contingent upon the political will of the Government of the day. If they set their priorities in other areas, giving less attention to the conditions which exist in the prison—which will continue to exist, if not worsen—then the recommendations here cannot come about.

I think that these recommendations are so specific, and it has been made so clear why these should take place, I believe the Government should take a serious look at reassessing its priorities where the Prison Services of the Cayman Islands is concerned.

The Prison service cannot be viewed as a place for only some people of our society; for, most regrettably, some of the people (particularly in more recent times) who become prisoners are mostly young people from homes where there is no question whether they were taught to obey the Laws and to do the right thing, but they have fallen victim to the scourge of drugs in this country. And that touches one and all. So, I would hope that that factor, for one, would reach the minds of the Government of the day.

The Commissioner notes that within the Prison population, and says: “(3.2) I am not convinced that the work actually is available for all, nor am I convinced that prisoner's lives are sufficiently structured.”

That is a very serious statement. I believe that most people believe (or would like to believe) that persons who go to prison are, in effect, from the time that they are there, forced to live a structured life. If one ever looks at the people who normally go there, it is people who do not live structured lives. The fact that they are forced to be there, if the life there is properly structured, the mere fact that prisoners live in such a condition should have some degree of lasting effect upon them.

The Commissioner also noted that, in this regard, there is really no adequate space for exercise or games—mostly football where it is played the ball is damaged on the wire. It is my understanding that the property owned by Government, which the Prison is located on, is quite large, and if it is not large enough and there is no idea of moving the prison from where it is because the old thing applies, “not in my backyard”, then it might be necessary to acquire lands around the prison to provide the space which is needed.

What I think is necessary, is that the Government take these recommendations seriously. Even now, I would believe that there should be in place some action group with specific duties to look after ways and means of getting these corrections put in place with all haste.

Certainly, we hear enough about action committees that are supposedly actioning education out of existence in the country, so there should be no shortage of people to action this particular exercise.

Another observation that I think could catch the attention of the public (people who have relatives or friends in prison) is a finding by the Commissioner when he says on page 16: “3. Another impression at once made on an observer is the lack of supervised work in the prison. A prison must not degenerate into a warehouse: it should be an active and constructive place.”

Madam Speaker, I do not believe the Commissioner could be any more concise in that statement. If steps have not been taken to improve this situation since this has been published, then, up until now, the Government is failing in its duty; this matter having come to its attention for some time now.

Many legislators have said that to help prisoners in prison what they need is to be taught skills; for many that are there are unskilled persons. If persons are taught skills in prison, when they get out of prison, their chances are greater to be able to apply those skills to earn an honest living.

The Commissioner says the same thing, and I hope that since he has said it, the Government will now believe—having noted that far too much time is spent: “...chattering or watching TV in the spurs. More craft work, more educational work, more industrial work needs to be found and brought in, so that prisoners can be accustomed to doing, as far as possible, a full day's work.”

Many prisoners there do not do a full day's work, for various reasons; some do not have the skills, some are just lazy and do not want to do it. But within the prison environment this condition can be created and enforced.

I would now like to refer to some of the recommendations which the Commissioner made in summary for the improvement of the administration of Northward Prison. I gather that Mr. Gibbard is somewhat associated with Prison services who, in effect, supervise the operations in the various Dependent Territories left to the United Kingdom and that it is recommended that he should do certain training of staff, and otherwise, so there are various mentions of where Mr. Gibbard could be used.

Within the actual structure of the Prison itself, the Commissioner speaks of making some improvements in insulating the ceiling to reduce the heat at night. Certainly, one would believe it would be proper administration to make life as comfortable as life might be for someone in a cell day in, day out—night in, night out. So, this is something which I think, could be addressed quickly. It would mean money and it would mean Government deciding that something should be done about it.

I know that there are members of Government here who have screamed and hollered that prison must not be a vacation. But it is also known in certain circles that the way one deals with the situation and treats someone, normally in turn, the reaction is similar as the treatment by the first person. I agree with the Commissioner when he says that there must be an increase in drug counselling. We hear of the situation of drugs and drug abusers to the point where, in many instances, I dare say, people say, “not again, no more, I do not want to hear it”, but it is there. It is life, it is real.

If that means taking on another counsellor at the Counselling Centre, or taking on an additional person at the Prison, it needs to be done. If it is not done, there will not be the benefit derived that counselling might bring, and it is one way of guaranteeing that the prison population will keep on the rise, or at least maintain its present proportions, by drug offenders repeating their crime.

Something that anyone who has been to Northward Prison has seen is the very awkward situation one goes through at the main gate. At visiting time there are dozens of chairs, members of the public inside with prison officers to the left attempting to do their duties. It is cramped and not really well thought out in my opinion, the way it presently exists. The Commissioner makes a recommendation that there should be a provision of a visiting area other than the main gate.

He also says that maximum-security prisoners should not be handcuffed when there are visits. I must say that I do not quite understand that part of it, because if these are persons that are in maximum security, one would believe that they have a tendency towards violence and escape, or any such thing, so being handcuffed might be the way of restraint. However, the Commissioner seems to think that is not appropriate and he has made such a recommendation. I daresay what could be done, or should be done is for Government in accepting these recommendations, to consult with the prison authorities and decide whether or not the people who are being held in maximum security need to be handcuffed at the time of the visits.

“Suitable regimes for long-term prisoners should be devised.” I agree with that. If you are going to keep someone in there for an inordinately long period of time—or for life, as life means life in the Cayman Islands—there should be some suitable regime for them, be it doing handicrafts, studying or whatever.

It is also noted here that work that is more suitable should be provided especially for women prisoners. Years ago in these Islands, one simply never heard of such a thing as women going to prison. That was a man's domain. You heard of men going to prison, but not women. It is a sign of the changing times and, unfortunately, we now have a considerable number of female prisoners.

It is my understanding from the report that foreign prisoners are not normally allowed to work outside of the prison. He is recommending a modification of the rule governing foreigners working outside of the prison where “a Committee consisting of a senior civil servant, a senior police officer and the Director of Prisons should approve those foreigners who work out.” I will say again on the question of foreign prisoners, that I believe if a foreign person comes to these shores and is convicted of a crime and sent to prison they should spend a minimum of time in the Cayman Islands' Prison. We surely have no need of them. As long as they are there they are costing the people of the Cayman Islands monies that could be spent otherwise. If keeping them in prison is going to make them good, they are not being good for us they are being good for wherever else they came from. Thus, the responsibility and the cost should be for that foreign country.

This syndrome that some Members of the present Government Bench seem to have—that you have to punish them—I do not subscribe to. If there is a conviction, I think time should be limited and these persons should be sent away after a period of time to their own countries and made to be prohibited immigrants so that they do not return to ours. As for their working, I see no reason why they should not work outside in properly controlled conditions.

It is interesting, I think, for I certainly did not know that was the arrangement. But there is something called a Visiting Committee responsible to the Governor. The Commissioner has included the section of the Prison Law, the rule which states that: “42.(1) [the] Prison shall be inspected monthly by two or more persons selected by the Member of Executive Council responsible for prison matters from a panel appointed by the Governor consisting of a) Justices of the Peace volunteering for such service; b) Magistrates; and c) other suitable persons, and shall be spot inspected once in every quarter by the Judge of the Grand Court, and once in every year by the Governor in person.”

I find that a very interesting requirement. I do not know if it has been going on with the regularity that it is supposed to. I would hope so. But if it has not, now is the time to do something about it.

The finding of the Commissioner is that a list of 36 people has been appointed to carry out this duty. In his view, instead of just two people, there should be a committee of six or eight to visit the prisons. And they would carry out monthly inspections of the prison, meet the Prison Director on a regular basis to discuss the recommendation for inspections, giving him support and encouragement when necessary.

Very progressive thinking on the part of the Commissioner, for it is one thing to come here in this Legislative Assembly and criticise what exists in the Prison . . . and that criticism could be 100% and I believe it is in almost every instance 100% criticism that is considered constructive. But to get them to actually go out there and give support and encouragement to the Prison officials seems, to me, very progressive thinking. I hope that the Government could be infected.

“The Visiting Committee,” the Commissioner goes on to say, “should discuss their report with the prison director and submit them to HE the Governor. The visiting Committee,” he suggests, “should be seen as watch dogs for the Governor and the public. We also hope that senior officials and members of the community should visit the prison more regularly.”

Very, very interesting thoughts as to the Northward Prison. I read these suggestions with considerable interest.

Madam Speaker, I have seen prisoners getting out of protected vans, armored vans, whatever is the correct term for them, at the courts. I have seen persons of the public attempting to mingle with them, or even at some distance calling to them and talking to one another. The Commissioner had taken some note of that and recommended steps which should correct that condition.

He also seems to have looked at the situation of defining the role of the Police and Prison Wardens as far as the Prison Service goes. He states that the Prison Service should be limited to delivery and collecting prisoners to and from Court whilst the Police should be in charge of the cells and the dock. So he is making recommendations to define the role of the Police and the Prison Wardens.

There is one thing which the Commissioner, and again it is one thing for Backbench representatives of the people to say that education is vital to the rehabilitation process of prisoners, but perhaps the Government may take a serious look at it now, seeing that such heavy stress has been laid on that by the Commissioner in this Report. There is one thing with which I totally agree, and since I have been in this Legislative Assembly there have been various discussions related to the Prison and there is always an attitude, it seems, from the Government that providing a budget for education was not really necessary, education was helping with the process and so on. It is as if someone is hoping that the Prison and prisoners would just go away. But, I do not believe that they will go away any time too soon.

The only way that the prisoners can be educated in any meaningful way is to have money to work with, to buy materials, teaching aids, to pay teachers. And these teachers certainly do not just undergo the normal stress of dealing with students, like in the John Gray High School and the Primary School. These teachers undergo conditions in a very different environment.

But, I totally support the idea of budgeting for education. My call to the Government today would be to direct some of those vast sums of money which allegedly are in the process of being borrowed, to immediate needs that will directly help people of this country and some of the more unfortunate—you might even say some of the outcasts.

Vocational training was highly recommended, for, indeed, if one looks at our labour force one will find the largest number of people employed in this country on work permits are those in the vocationally skilled areas. So, if we could produce some of our own with those skills while they are in Prison, the society as a whole will be better off economically, and those persons, should be better off personally.

I find another recommendation here by the Commissioner somewhat strange, and that is that Magistrates should be asked to remand prisoners in Prison. Alternatively, the seven-day period needs to be extended to 28 days. I understand that in some places the Magistrates do go to prison where they deal with cases like that. But I would have certain concerns about prisoners simply being sent to Prison, being told, "You are remanded for 28 days." I do not believe that is serving the idea of freedom when persons are automatically remanded for 28 days. I think that the seven-day period as it presently exists is to be the more desirable position.

He did note, however, that the latter may have constitutional problems. So it is not that the Commissioner did not give that any particular thought, apparently.

Madam Speaker, I think it was as recent as the last Session of the House where there were questions. I asked a question regarding the relationship between the Police and the Prison Officers: Where does the Prison Officer's responsibility end and where does the responsibility of the Police begin if there is a major problem or misconduct on the premises of the Prison? And I did some weeks later receive notice saying that if there was a problem that would be a breach of the Law. It is the Police who must take charge of it.

Well, I have noticed that the Commissioner has given some thought to the powers of the Prison authorities. He noted that under section 40 of the Prisons Law, the Director is required to refer to the Police the doing of grievous bodily harm, or the possession of drugs or an unauthorised article in the Prison. "This has often been far too minor to require attention by the police. We propose that this section should be amended to allow the Director to use his discretion in what he refers." (3.15)

Madam Speaker, again, I think that this is a progressive attitude. It is still my belief, and I think it is a practical consideration, that the people who are in charge of that Prison—Prison Officers, the Warden, the Principal Officer—if something serious is happening at the Prison, any kind of rebellion among prisoners or any kind of attempts by prisoners to cause harm to anyone, the Prison authorities need to be placed in a position where they have the legal authority and the means to handle the situation, at least to some reasonable level. I cannot believe that if there was a major reaction, disturbance or condition in the Prison that the officers who would be attempting to keep control of the situation as their duty requires, would find themselves subjected to serious conditions where they were not in the position to do something about.

The response time, if we are thinking of enough Police in the country being at the Central Station to go out there, then the distance alone does not give a practical solution to my mind. I am glad to see that there is a recommendation to give some discretion and authority to the Prison Director in that regard.

If the cell doors are modified to open both ways it should help the situation, with certain draw-backs which we have heard about in the past with doors on cells.

The training for the Acting Director, I most surely agree with. I believe training of all persons in service, and externally, whatever will give the best result is the thing to be desired. Unfortunately, that was not the recommendation of the Commissioner when he first studied the administration of the Northward Prison when two other Officers were in the position of Director and Deputy Director.

But, I suppose, as it is said often, it is never too late to do good. So I do support the idea of training and I trust that Mr. Gibbard (who is, again, mentioned in the recommendation section) will put in place training capability that the higher officers, whoever is selected, can carry this on. For, indeed, having officers who are better informed and who feel more sure of themselves as to what to do would surely seem to be the better course of action.

Madam Speaker, I must also say at this time, as did the Mover of this Motion, that I was particularly happy that you ruled as you did this morning to allow this report to be debated so that Legislators could have the opportunity to express their views on the recommendations for the administration of Northward Prison. Of course, at the broadcast the public will have some knowledge of things which were contained in this report which otherwise would be dependent upon the press, to whatever extent it carried the information.

I think, there is no better note to end on than the second to the last note the Commissioner ended on. In paragraph 10, "Relationships with the Press and Public" . . . and I would like to read that section because, again, it is very progressive, and, Madam Speaker, I believe that if adopted we could see good positive results from it. It says: "We have sensed anxiety amongst senior staff in their dealings with members of the press. In our view, the Director would do well to start building a positive relationship with the local press by inviting them into the prison from time to time. In due course, we would also recommend that the prison management consider a prison open day when selected guests should be invited into the prison and should be encouraged to talk to staff and inmates and to learn about what actually happens inside. Public misconceptions always abound about prisons, and the more that is done to allay these, the better. A well run prison should have nothing to hide."

I end, Madam Speaker, by saying a well run Government should have nothing to hide.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minute.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.30 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.51 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues, Private Member's Motion No. 12/94. If no other Member wishes to debate, I would ask the Mover of the Motion if he would exercise his right to reply.

Mr. Roy Borden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, in the special Report carried in The New Caymanian, on Friday, 13th May to Thursday, 19th May, 1994, under the caption: "Why isn't our Prison System Working?" reads, and I quote: "The majority of persons who completed the questionnaire [questionnaire being the Chamber of Commerce] believe strengthening rehabilitation programmes such as drug and counselling services is the answer...."

The public, as much as Members of this Honourable House, have been waiting for some time now to find out what is the Government's position regarding this Report. And, notwithstanding the reason given by the Honourable Second Official Member, the Government cannot escape the responsibility of having to say what their intention is regarding the recommendations made in this Report.

Are they saying that they are willing at this time to state what their disposition is? Are they saying that they are incapable or unable to arrive at a position with respect to the recommendations made in the Prison Report by Her Majesty's Inspector? Or, are they saying that this Prison Report is so unimportant and has such a low priority in their scheme of things that for them it does not even exist?

The report carries a few thought-provoking sections. One that comes to mind has to do with the appointment of the current Acting Prison Director, where Her Majesty's Inspector says, on page 15, entitled 'Summary', I quote: "...he still needs to see prison work as it is done in other prisons. As appears elsewhere in this report, I am recommending a series of working placements for him in prisons in England over a period of perhaps three months. [And it goes on to say that] . . . all other prison staff, there is an urgent need for proper training."

Madam Speaker, I would like to remind them that on a subsequent occasion when there was serious incidents at Northward Prison, the Caymanian Director and Acting Director were sacked as a result of an inspection and an investigation. The inconsistency on this occasion is that it is recommended that the Acting Director go on secondment, and seek further training.

Is it the policy of the Government to punish and sanction a Caymanian, but to let other people continue? Well, it must be because they have not said anything as yet as to their disposition towards the recommendations. Madam Speaker, it would not surprise me if that is the stance.

I would like to spend some time on the matter of rehabilitation, because it seems to me that that is the crux of the matter, that is the essence of the existence of the matter.

In the report of The New Caymanian newspaper, as previously quoted, there is a section which says, and I quote: "Few Chamber members recognise the importance of teaching prisoners basic life and educational skills to ensure that they will become productive citizens when they return to society."

Few recognise that. Madam Speaker, modern approaches to prison rehabilitation dictates that prisoners be given the opportunity to learn and acquire productive skills and useful knowledge which they can make use of when they are released from prison and have returned to the outside world.

In The New York Times of Sunday, 20th March, 1994, in the "Viewpoint" section there is a column entitled, "Conversations: 'In the New Ball Game, These Two Would have Struck Out,'" by Gerald Miller and Frank Schweickert. Madam Speaker, this is important because many people, including many people in the Caymanian society, would like to see the system so draconian that prisoners be given hard labour, punitive sanctions, treated slavishly, but be offered an opportunity to rescue or to reprieve some of their self esteem or, even, to cultivate a new sense of self and a new sense of self worth.

In the United States, particularly in California, there is now a move on—three strikes and you are out—which, in essence, suggests that three felonies and you are locked away for life. There are many who are jumping on that bandwagon, saying that this is the solution to crime and to criminals.

Madam Speaker, they have their reasons. That approach, I believe, originated from the father of a 12 year old in Fresno, California, who was brutally gunned down by someone who had been convicted of two serious felonies. Surprisingly, his campaign to have the Three Strikes and You Are Out Law evoked in California caught on and it met with wide-spread, popular appeal. But there is a downside to that, and that downside is that there are more inmates, more prisons. The measure is expected to double the number of prisoners in California by the end of the decade and to force the construction of 20 new prisons, in addition to the 28 now in use, and the 12 already on the drawing board. So we are getting into a situation where we are on a tread mill and we will not be able to get off.

If that is the kind of system we are going to have, Three Strikes and You are out, we are going to have to have more prisons and we are definitely going to have more prisoners.

Madam Speaker, that is one of the downsides of the coin. There are others. A prisoner has this to say about that kind of system. I quote: “This new law Mr. Schweickert predicted ...would make repeat felons more violent when eluding the police. Mr. Miller worried, too, about the felons sentenced to 25 years under California’s three-strikes law who then are paroled after 20 years. ‘I would not want to meet them then,’ he said. ‘I know what prison does to people. It turns you into an animal. Anyone who goes to prison loses a certain part of himself, loses concern for other human beings, and loses feelings. Once you lose those, they are very hard to get back. He is going to be nasty, [and] vicious. He is not going to care what he does and who he does it to.” [The New York Times, March 20, 1994]

Madam Speaker, this is coming from a prisoner, 28 years old, himself a felon. The difference between his attitudes, his insight and his understanding at present, as recorded in this column, and those of the people he is describing is that he is enrolled in a program called, “Delancey Street”, a program for serious felons. Delancey Street is a 25 year old, group programme, that teaches murderers, burglars, junkies and prostitutes to read and write, to program computers and fix cars, even to say please, and thank you. It also teaches them things so mundane, for example, as being able to order from a menu when they go to restaurants.

The article Madam Speaker, goes on to say: “Despite the fashionable contempt for such creative and, some critics would complain, lenient sentencing, some of the results show that many defendants do not squander their opportunities and do not go on to commit more crimes.”

Madam Speaker, there is a picture of Mr. Miller and Mr. Schweickert and the way in which they are dressed, if one did not know better, one could be convinced to believe that they were Wall Street executives or were occupiers of the walls of power in Washington, D.C., or anywhere else for they are adorned and decked out in full suites; shirts and ties, hair grooming which speaks of an accepted conservative attitude.

This programme, Madam Speaker, has 1,000 such prisoners enrolled throughout the United States. These people live in special residences where they have to abide by certain rules and a certain code. They spend their time there until the supervisors of the programmes are convinced that they are ready, fit, and have the necessary attitude changes to move on into the society from which they came.

But it does not end there. Figuratively speaking, their hands are held until they find jobs, until they find suitable living quarters and until they have demonstrated that they are ready to be monitored only on a periodical basis.

So, Madam Speaker, if 1,000 of these prisoners at a time can be enrolled in such a programme, it strikes me that there is merit to believe that there should be hope, and an opportunity should be given to others of a similar bent.

Indeed, in the conversation these two model prisoners suggested that they have the same tastes and aspirations as any other aspiring normal person; they want to find a good job, want to have a house, want to get married and raise two or three kids, they want to drive a decent car and find time to play with their children, watch television, go for picnic on the weekends, and all of the regular stuff. All of that is meant to say that often these people, contrary to what bigots and rightists and racists may think, do not deserve cages and do not deserve to be maniacal like wild animals, but deserve to be understood, to be treated decently and to be given a chance.

In our very own system, some attempt should be made to introduce these kinds of programmes and, indeed, while not in as many words, the Prisoner Inspector is saying that we should offer some serious rehabilitation. But you see, for the political directorate these are not the kinds of programmes that are going to get ready attention because these are not the kind of programmes that you can bring to the electorates. These are not the kind of programmes that the electorates will pledge you mass votes for. These are not the kind of programmes that you can get up and say you have helped 100 people or 1,000 people. These are not the kind of programmes that are going to affect the families of the high and the powerful. These are the programmes that, according to our Prison population, have to do with the lowly and the meek, the people from, what we call in sociology, the ethnic areas. The people from those areas not on the main highways, the people from families whom many people do not care about or would not care about except to help to have them rake their yards and wash their pots.

But, Madam Speaker, I offer a sobering note. If the system continues the way it is, we have created a Frankenstein, and the Frankenstein is going to come back irrespective of how the powerful and the mighty think they are insulated now, and they will not be able to sleep, and will not be able to drive or walk because they are going to be molested, they are going to be besieged, and they are going to be attacked, and even be destroyed by these same persons whom they caged and would not seek to properly rehabilitate.

Madam Speaker, the writing is on the wall. The writing is in the report of Her Majesty's Prison Inspector. The writing is in the hands of all of us, and we can pretend, if we are so fool-hearted, that there is nothing wrong with the system—Northward Prison is doing just fine. We can leave it and let it fester, because it is not going to give us the glory that certain politicians seem to thrive on. We can leave it, if we believe the inconsistencies mentioned are not worth addressing and let it destroy us in the end.

Madam Speaker, a report was made concerning some weaknesses in the administration concerning a contravention, by the administration of Northward Prison, of the Prisons Law (Law 14 of 1975) and the Prisons Law (Discipline for Prison Officers) Regulations, 1984, section 2 says: “An officer to whom these Regulations applies commits an offence against discipline if he is guilty of . . .” and it goes on to name various things, and I go to section 50 [of the Prisons Law (Law 14 of 1975) Prisons Rules, 1981], which says: “No officer shall take part in any business or financial transaction with or on behalf of a prisoner or a relative of a prisoner, without the permission of the Director and is guilty if he carries out any pecuniary or business transaction with or on behalf of any prisoners or ex-prisoners.”

Yet, Madam Speaker, we had a situation brought to this House where in Parliamentary Question 15 of March 1993, it is a fact that in November 1991, four television VCR Units and water flow meters were purchased from a Miami firm, Keys-on-Wheels, and with whom the principal of that firm was an ex-prisoner. So, I am saying that if we are to have a more effective prison—more effective for prisoners, more effective for the society in that the products of this prison have a lower rate of recidivism when they come out—we have firstly, to clear up these kinds of inconsistencies. We have to clear up the kind of inconsistencies which allow Caymanians to be sacrificed, where breaches have been committed but other people are allowed to stay in their post and be recommended for higher training.

Madam Speaker, it is plain to see that if we wish to reform, if one might use that term, Northward Prison we have a difficult task and, indeed, Machiavelli must have had similar tasks in mind when he wrote, in 1515, that there was nothing more difficult to carry out or more doubtful of success, nor more dangerous to handle than to initiate a new order of things. It is necessary for us to initiate that new order. Why? Because we have all the evidence and all the suggestions: the Chamber of Commerce's Crime Survey; the newspaper reports; the attitudes and dispositions of the people on the street, the ordinary law abiding citizens; the fact that we have a high rate of recidivism among our prisoners, especially our young prisoners; the fact that crime seems to be on the increase in our society.

Madam Speaker, the time is now for the Government to take a position as regards the recommendations in this Report. Because as the clock winds down the situation is becoming more grave and the results, according to The New Caymanian, of the Chamber of Commerce's Crime Survey reflects a widespread belief in the community that the Prison does not serve as a deterrent. Implicit in that, Madam Speaker, is the expectation by the people that the Government do something to make Northward Prison, not only a deterrent to crime, but to make it a place which does more than warehouse prisoners. And the Government should insist that Northward Prison be made a rehabilitative centre.

Firstly, the Government should insist that Northward Prison be run according to its Mission Statement, and if that means mass retraining and recruitment of new and more able personnel, then so be it. And if that means a closer monitoring of the Prison, then so be it. And if that means that there has to be an increase in the Prison vote, the Government is in a position to do that. These are but small prices to pay for peace of mind, for stability in the society, and for the fact that the Prison will be turning out people who have had a chance to regain some loss of sense of self and self esteem.

Madam Speaker, it may well be that we have to emulate or set in place some similar rehabilitative programmes, some similar innovative programmes, particularly for our young offenders who seem to be caught up in a trap of committing crimes that lead to self-destruction. And I encourage the Government to view seriously the recommendations and the suggestion that drug counselling be made mandatory for all inhabitants of Northward Prison who have to serve sentences of three months and beyond.

I encourage the authorities to set in place such educational programmes that will leave the prisoners with skills and knowledge which can help them when they are released. Then, Madam Speaker, I will encourage the setting up of a system where these prisoners can be monitored, where, if it is necessary, their hands can be held (figuratively speaking) until their legs are strong enough that they can stand on their own, until they are strong enough and have regained such a sense of self esteem and worth that they can be left to fend for themselves and, that they be encouraged to continue on this track.

But that does not go without some obligation from the society at large, who then has to be called upon to give these people a second chance; to take them into their confidence, to encourage them by providing employment opportunities for them, and to help foster this sense of self esteem.

To be successful, the whole physical facility of Northward Prison has to be re-examined because there are many things that have to be done, and it will probably be necessary to redesign some buildings. Certainly, if we are talking about improving the educational programme, it will be necessary to design some buildings or some classrooms specifically with that in mind. It may be necessary to redesign the whole administrative block so that we have proper accommodation for counselling and for exercise.

The Inspector certainly brought a glaring inadequacy: that of the situation as regards to visitors.

So it seems to me that some examination and re-designing has to be done. There needs to be a new approach, new programmes, and new money set in place. The Government is in a position to have that done and they should do so, or say what their intentions are or their disposition is.

Madam Speaker, in conclusion the resolve section of the Motions says: “NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that this Honourable House take note and debate the findings of the said Report of the Inspection of H.M. Prison, Northward, Grand Cayman;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House records its concerns and opinions on matters raised in the report.”

Madam Speaker, the persons speaking to this Motion have done just that. What is necessary is for the Government to say what their intentions are. I would hope that some effort is made to address the recommendations with a view to improving the situation at Northward Prison before it is too late. Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is Private Member's Motion No. 12/94: “NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House take note and debate the findings of the said Report of the Inspection of H.M. Prison, northward, Grand Cayman; And be it further resolved that this Honourable House records its concerns and opinions on matters raised in the report.”

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye, those against—

(The Hon. Minister of Education rose)

The Speaker: Are you rising on a Point of Order Honourable Member?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I was just wondering since it is a Motion to take note, and it is one in which, as I understand it from Erskine May, it says that the formula enables the House to debate a situation or document without coming to any positive decision, I am wondering whether it is a situation where there must be a vote on this Motion, as such, or not?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I cannot do otherwise than put the question that is presented in Private Member's Motion No. 12/94. So Members are free then to vote either way they wish.

The Motion is as I have read out, and I will now put the question. Those in favour please say aye, those against no.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, may I have a division please?

The Speaker: You certainly may. Madam Clerk.

The Speaker: I will ask the Elected Member for North Side to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly. Question No. 87, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MINISTERS/MEMBERS

QUESTION NO. 87

No. 87: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture to state the Ministry's plans for the development of a remand centre for young offenders.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The Ministry intends to provide a facility for use in the types of cases where young offenders require to be remanded as soon as plans can be finalised and necessary resources identified.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if there is any idea of where this facility might be situated?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Not yet, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 88, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 88

No. 88: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture what is the role of the Housing Development Corporation under the new Home Loan Scheme recently announced by Government.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, this question has been answered time and time again, but I will do so once again at this time. Under the home mortgage guarantee scheme, it is intended that a committee of two persons, namely, the Financial Secretary or his nominee and the Permanent Secretary for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture or his nominee, will review applications for the Government guarantee from prospective borrowers. It is intended that the Housing Development Corporation will provide a staff member to function as the nominee of the Permanent Secretary.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister explain how the review of these persons will work, and also, if this review is in addition to the screening which will be done by the banks or the institution making the decision for the mortgage?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: To the first part of the question, how it would work, I think it is going to work good. For the next part of the question, it would be obvious that those persons lending the money would have to send the matter up to Government for the guarantee and these people then take the applications and review them. That is most obvious.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Minister say whether the review by persons from the HDC and its recommendations would decide whether Government extended its guarantee, or would it have any influence at all?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, what then would be the purpose of having the Committee review the applications? Obviously that is the purpose and ... That is as far as I am going with that, unless there is another supplementary.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, in the event that a recommendation is made by the HDC not to give a loan, would the Minister say if the Government reserves authority to override that in deciding whether a loan be given, and who in his Ministry would make that decision?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Let us not confuse the issue—too much of that has already been done. This Committee is a Committee, as stated in the substantive answer, nominated by the Financial Secretary and the Permanent Secretary in my Ministry. For the last part of the question, it would be obvious to all that Government should have some reserved say in the matter.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Minister did not answer the question as to who would make the decision in Government, or perhaps he could define what he means by 'Government.'

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, to answer a facetious question I will give a facetious answer—Government is Government. As I said, the Committee was appointed by the Financial Secretary and my Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Community Development.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Presumably the review and the screening carried out by the bank would be to determine the availability and the affordability of the persons applying for the mortgage and their capabilities to pay. What is the purpose then of the review or the screening done by the Housing Development Corporation and/or its nominees?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, obviously, Government has to determine the criteria to see whether we are going to give a guarantee. That, therefore, is the purpose.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 89, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 89

No. 89: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation what facilities exist at the Red Bay Primary School for the provision of hot lunches for the students.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There is no purpose-built canteen facility at the Red Bay Primary School at the present time. The small kitchen area in the maintenance building is used for the preparation of drinks and snacks that are served at break time.

Hot lunches are not prepared on site. Arrangements are made with three well-established restaurants, including two holders of well-known franchises, to provide hot lunches and sandwiches that are delivered, already packaged, and are then distributed to each class by the canteen assistant. The children eat their lunches in the covered pavilion under the supervision of their teachers.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if there are any plans for the establishment of an area suitable for the provision of hot lunches and, also, at what time might this facility come on line?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the next phase calls for extra classrooms and that, hopefully, will be beginning this year. As soon as that is cleared, then the next stage will be a purpose-built canteen, maybe within another year or so, I guess.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 90, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 90

No. 90: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation why were Cayman Airways Ltd. pilots excluded from consideration for a salary increase.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Board of Cayman Airways Ltd. determined that the company was not yet in a sufficiently strong enough position to pay increases across the board to all staff. The recent pay award did not apply to the higher paid staff, which included senior managers and pilots.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could the Minister tell the House whether consideration has been given to looking at or examining these salaries for higher paid employees any time in the near future?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: All salaries are looked at, at times, or will be looked at in the future.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: I wonder if the Minister could tell us how the salaries of the pilots compare to other regions, say, perhaps, to the United States and other Caribbean areas?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The pilots at Cayman Airways are very well paid. Most pilots' salaries exceed US$100,000 per year.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Minister say if it is correct that under previous management Cayman Airways pilots had agreed to certain contract concessions and were working longer hours for the same pay, and that this was actually changed under the present management?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: In the answer that I gave to the Lady Member, I meant Captains, for over $100,000, not all pilots. The answer, the pilots' contracts, as I understand it, have not been changed.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 91, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 91

No. 91: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation if certain staff members of Cayman Airways Ltd. were given pay increases prior to the increase recently announced and, if so, how many persons received this benefit.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Sixty-three local staff members received pay raises in December 1993. These were mainly the lowest paid staff in the airline as well as a small number of staff who had been promoted as result of the downsizing of the airline. Some of the pay increases were extremely small and were more in the line of adjustments.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Minister say if these 63 persons also benefited from the announced salary increases as well?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Minister say if the prior increases, and the most recently announced increases, have kept within a reasonable ratio of the salaries of the lower paid employees now, as compared to middle and upper management?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is an opinion, but the best I can give on it (because I do not know what the Member is comparing it to and I do not know what he calls the normal rate), is that the lower paid staff got a larger percentage increase as a result of the two raises than the higher paid staff.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 92, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 92

No. 92: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation whether Cayman Airways Ltd. is contemplating replacing either, or both aircraft, within the next twelve months, and if so, with what type of aircraft, and at what monthly rental.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The present leases for Cayman Airways Ltd. aircraft expire on (1) 28th February, 1995; and (2) 31st May, 1995. Since both aircraft will be prohibited by noise restriction regulations from operating to the United States of America after 1996, it has been decided by the Board of Cayman Airways Limited to replace the aircraft when the leases expire, or earlier if the opportunity arises. The most likely replacement will be B737-300 aircraft. It is too early to say what sort of lease cost can be negotiated.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Minister say if it is the case (should the company terminate the lease on the present two planes prior to the date set down in the contract) that it would have to lease again from the same company, ILFC, and that this is actually written into the contract of these present planes?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Cayman Airways has no intention of breaking any leases. That was the last Government that did that. If he is referring to breaking the leases and going and buying other aircraft, I think the Board would be ill-advised to break any lease.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, in his substantive answer the Minister said when the leases expire, or earlier if the opportunity arises. What I am trying to establish is if there is any penalty involved if it is earlier, or if the contract is tied to a situation with the present company that is leasing the aircraft to Cayman Airways?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, obviously there is a penalty when you break any contract, and we know the massive penalties paid to GPA, we paid $1.3 million (the last Government $5.6 million). If anything were to... We are getting into a lot of opinion. My better course is to say that Cayman Airways, in its stabilised position, is not going to break—hopefully not—I am sure the Board would not recommend breaking leases. There are only two leases now, thank the Lord for that, the rest have been terminated.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. Government Business, Government Motion No. 6/94. The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 6/94

AMENDMENT TO THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY STANDING ORDERS (REVISED)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I beg to move Government Motion No. 6/94, entitled Amendment to Standing Order 23(8), which reads:

“WHEREAS it is desirable that there be amendments to the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders (Revised);

“AND WHEREAS in accordance with the provision of Standing Order 84, Notice of Motion is hereby given to amend the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders (Revised);

“AND WHEREAS in the past it has been the practice that questions which remained unanswered during a meeting of the House would be answered in writing whether or not they were placed on the Order Paper;

“AND WHEREAS there has been a ruling that questions on the Business Paper which were not listed on the Order Paper would automatically be deferred until the next meeting within the Session;

“BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that the proviso of Standing Order 23(8) be repealed and replaced by the following: ‘PROVIDED that if all other business for the meeting has been disposed of that such postponed questions and all other questions listed on a Business Paper but not placed on the Order Paper shall be answered in writing by the Minister/Member to whom that question was addressed and copies of the answer shall be sent immediately thereafter to the Clerk, who shall send a copy to the Member in whose name the question stood.’”

The Speaker: The question before the House is that the Motion be referred to the Standing Order Committee. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

The Speaker: The result of the division is twelve Ayes, four Noes. The Motion to refer this proposed amendment to the Standing Orders Committee has been passed.

AGREED BY MAJORITY: GOVERNMENT MOTION

NO. 3/94 REFERRED TO THE STANDING ORDERS COMMITTEE.

The Speaker: Other Business. Private Member's Motion No. 13/94. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Two Members are standing on their feet. The First one to rise (Mr. Gilbert A. McLean) yields to the Honourable Second Official Member.

POINT OF ORDER (Content of speech)

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, I have a Point of Order on Private Member's Motion No. 13/94, under Standing Order 35(1), which deals with the question of reference not being made to any matter on which judicial decision is pending.

This Private Member's Motion is seeking to debate the construction of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital that is the subject of a civil claim in the Grand Court of the Cayman Islands. Whilst I accept that this particular Standing Order principally deals with criminal proceedings, it is now accepted in Ersine May's that this particular point also refers to civil proceedings and I would ask that you consider whether this Motion, as it is drafted, and the way it is likely to be debated, would prejudice the civil proceedings which are presently before the Grand Court.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Member.

As I said yesterday, the Honourable Second Official Member had discussed both the Private Member's Motion dealing with Northward Prison Reports and Private Member's Motion No. 13/94, proposing a Referendum to Determine the Public's wish on the completion of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital. I have given this Motion, like the other Private Member's Motion, my deep consideration. I wish to read, similarly, what I read at the other Private Member's Motion:

“CRIMINAL MATTER—sub judice from the time charge laid to passing of sentence and from date of filing Notice of Appeal to date decision given by Appellate Court. Between sentence and filing notice of appeal matter is not SUB JUDICE, subject always to the discretion of the Chair.

“CIVIL MATTER—from the time the matter set down for trial (or Notice of Motion filed as in an injunction proceeding) until judgment (oral or written). Likewise from filing Notice of Appeal until Judgment by Appellate Court. It is normally the practice to consider the matter sub judice once a writ has been issued."

It is to be noted that matters may be referred to before the dates mentioned unless it appears to the Chair there is a real and substantial danger of prejudice to the trial of a case (Erskine May 19th Ed., p.427, 18th Ed., p.416, 17th Ed., p.454, 21st Ed., pages 326, 377-399)

In the United Kingdom, the Sub Judice Rule is embodied in Resolution of the House, dated 23rd July, 1963. The resolution reads as [follows]:

"RESOLVED: That subject always to the discretion of the Chair and to the right of the House to legislate any matter:

"1) matters awaiting or under adjudication in all courts exercising a criminal jurisdiction and in courts martial should not be referred to – in any motion (including a motion for leave to bring in a bill), or in debate, or in any question to a Minister including a supplementary question;

"2) matters awaiting or under adjudication in a civil court should not be referred to – in any motion (including a motion for leave to bring in a bill), or in debate, or in any question to a minister including a supplementary question from the time that the case has been set down for trial or otherwise brought before the courts, as for example by notice of motion for an injunction; such matters may be referred to the before such date unless it appears to the Chair that there is a real and substantial danger of prejudice to the trial of the case.

"3) Paragraphs 1) and 2) of this Resolution should have effect—

"a) in the case of a criminal case in courts of law, including courts martial, from the moment the law is set in motion by a charge being made:

"b) in the case of a civil case in courts of law, from the time that the case has been set down for trial or otherwise brought before the court, as for example by notice of motion for an injunction;

"c) in the case of any judicial body to which the House has expressly referred a specific matter for decision and report, from the time when the resolution of the House is passed.

"4) Paragraphs 1) and 2) of this Resolution should cease to have effect—in the case of courts of law, when the verdict and sentence have been announced or judgment given, but resumed when notice of appeal is given until the appeal has been decided;

in the case of courts martial, when the sentence of the court has been confirmed and promulgated, but resumed when the convicted man petitions the Army Council, the Air Council or the Board of Admiralty;

in the case of any judicial body to which the House has expressly referred a specific matter for decision and report, as soon as the report is laid before the House.

"On the 28th of June, 1972 the House of Commons came to a further resolution which reads as follows:-

"RESOLVED, That—

"1) notwithstanding the Resolution of 23rd July, 1963 and subject to the discretion of the Chair reference may be made in Questions, Motions or debate to matters awaiting or under adjudication in all civil courts, including the National Industrial Relations Courts, in so far as such matters relate to a Ministerial decision which cannot be challenged in court except on grounds of misdirection or bad faith, or concern issues of national importance such as the national economy, public order or the essentials of life.

"2) In exercising its discretion the Chair should not allow reference to such matters if it appears that there is a real and substantial danger of prejudice to the proceedings, and should have regard to the consideration set out in Paragraphs 25 to 28 of the Fourth Report or from the Select Committee on [Proceedings]."

I am to say that successive speakers have exercised their discretion to allow matters to be discussed. Although they fall within the strict terms of the Sub Judice Rule they have considered that no substantial risk of prejudicing proceedings would arise.

The whole basis of the Rule is that the House is extremely careful not to discuss any matter when the discussion as reported in the public press might prejudice anyone's right to a fair hearing.

As regards Private Member's Motion No. 13/94, Referendum for Completion of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital, I am to say that if the Honourable Members moving and seconding the Motion are prepared to take upon themselves the responsibility as to the statements they make, which could cover only the points raised in the Motion before the House, I have taken the position that I should rule them in order.

But I reserve the right to listen to what they and other Members have to say. Then, in what Honourable Members are about to say, if I think that there are definitely some things in what Members are saying that might prejudice the trial or the merits of the case, I shall stop them, or interrupt them, at that time and ask them to desist from making any further remarks.

Regarding the civil case that is before the Court, the Writ of Summons was filed on 8th February, 1993. Nothing has happened at all since that time except that Government entered a Memorandum of Appearance on 9th May, 1994. Therefore, Private Member's Motion No. 13/94 can be presented to the House.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, on a further Point of Order. I want to raise a matter in connection with the first Resolve section, which reads, "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House take note and debate the report of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital Commission of Enquiry by Sir Peter Allen and any matters relating thereto."

I would not dare question your judgment while you are in the Chair, but I do not see how any case is going to operate without all these matters relating to it. The point that I want to make, Madam Speaker, is that at the laying of that report, back on the 7th of March, 1994, at the end of my presentation of the report I said, "Madam Speaker, I now under Standing Order [24(9)(i)], move that the House do take note of the report and that the report do lay on the Table." (1994 Official Hansard Report, page 70)

Madam Speaker, the Chair made a reply that that had already been ordered (that the report lie on the Table) and "there is no necessity then for anything else to be moved about that." Standing Order 24 (9)(i) says "(9) The following motions may be made without notice (i) a motion that a petition or other paper do lie on the Table or be printed or be rejected. . ."

Further, Erskine May, on page 425, section (c) captioned "Motions 'To take note'" says, "Debate may also take place on the Motion 'To take note.' This formula enables the House to debate a situation or a document without coming to any positive decision."

Madam Speaker, I, as the Minister laying the report, having moved that motion, fail to see how that motion can be taken today in this Resolution. I ask you to rule accordingly.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, when the report was presented the usual format was carried through. The Honourable Minister said, "I beg to lay on the Table of the Honourable House the report of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital commission of Enquiry by Sir Peter Allen." This was so ordered.

After the debate you moved the motion that note be taken of in accordance with Standing Orders 24 9(i). Standing Order 24 9(i) said: "...that a petition or other paper do lie on the Table or be printed or be rejected. . ." Now, in cases in our Standing Orders where there is not a reference to a particular matter we deal with Erskine May. The report was a government report, asked for by His Excellency the Governor. It was not a report of this House, and presentation of reports is normally dealt with under Standing Orders 18 and 19.

It was not a report from a Select Committee, it was a government report, and Standing Orders 19(i) says "At any time after the presentation of a paper under Standing Order 18(i), the Member of the Government who presented the [report] may give notice of a motion that the House resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House to consider the [matter]. Debate upon that motion shall be confined to the principles set forth therein."

It goes on to say: "(2)...no question shall be put [...or] proposed, to any part of the paper...." As I have said, this was not a report of any Select Committee of the House, which required a resolution of the House. It was matter for consideration and the motion that you moved at that time is completely different from the motion that is now before the House, which says "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House take note and debate the report of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital..." Therefore, the Point of Order is not a valid one.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, if the Chair would allow me, Standing Order 24(9)(i)...

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I have made my ruling, and if you object to the ruling you are at liberty, with due notice to be given, to bring a substantive motion to overrule that ruling—which you have every right to do. I have made the ruling and it will stand for the time being.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I will bow to your ruling, and I understand what you said in your last sentence, and I would like you to know that after I have had a look at this, as a matter of principle, I may be doing just what you suggested.

The Speaker: [Addressing the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.] There is no further debate on any issue before the House, unless you are rising on a Point of Order, Honourable Member. [The Second Elected Member for George Town rose]

The Speaker: Honourable Member, are you rising on a Point of Order?

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Madam Speaker, I wanted to bring something to your attention.

The Speaker: I am asking if it is a Point of Order.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: No, it is not.

The Speaker: Well, is it an important issue?

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: It is a very relevant point.

The Speaker: I am afraid if it is not a Point of Order, there is no further debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 13/94

REFERENDUM TO DETERMINE THE PUBLIC'S WISH ON THE COMPLETION OF THE DR. HORTOR MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 13/94, captioned Referendum to Determine the Public's wish on the Completion of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital.

"WHEREAS construction of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital was the largest single capital project ever undertaken by Government to date;

"AND WHEREAS this project was, by deliberate action of the present Government, stopped;

"AND WHEREAS as a result of the stoppage the Cayman Islands have been denied, to date, a new physical facility from which health services may be delivered;

"AND WHEREAS there is great continuing need for a new and modern medical facility to adequately meet the need of the Cayman Islands' community and tourist population;

"AND WHEREAS a Commission of Enquiry was appointed by the Governor to enquire into the matter of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital which has submitted a report that in part concluded, 'Clearly a great deal of effort, thought, planning and expertise by many people went into this project and it could fairly be said that it deserved to succeed';

"AND WHEREAS this important report dealing with a matter of national significance has not been debated in the Legislative Assembly;

"AND WHEREAS the Legal Department in December, 1992, estimated a total outlay on the project to date as $4,050,000;

"AND WHEREAS various other monies have been paid out in connection with the hospital project with no completed hospital building for such money;

"AND WHEREAS the public has had no input into the decision to stop the hospital nor has the public been allowed to express its view on whether the hospital should be completed;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House take note and debate the report of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital Commission of Enquiry by Sir Peter Allen and any matters relating thereto;

"AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT Government consider holding a referendum (in accordance with the provision of section 14 of the (Constitution) (Amendment) Order, 1993) to allow the public to vote on whether the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital should be completed or not."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 13/94 having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, before I proceed with my debate on this Private Member's Motion, I wish to express sincere appreciation for the ruling of the Chair in allowing this matter to be discussed in this House by the elected representatives of the people. It is a matter of great national significance and even now, as has been noted in the Recitals of the Motion neither is concerned with any legal proceeding that may be in Court. I certainly give my undertaking to refer to the significance nationally, economically, socially and otherwise, that the stopping of the hospital, in my opinion, has caused. Whether it was right or wrong, I leave it strictly to the Court, and should I make any mention of any materials which would prejudice this case before the Court, I do ask that the Chair intervene, as it said it would.

Madam Speaker, I believe the undertaking of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital was, out of any project that the Government has ever undertaken over the years, under any administration prior to the one that indeed undertook this, the most controversial project of the Government the Cayman Islands. It also constituted, in terms of money, the largest outlay to achieve what was the desire: that is, to build a purpose-built modern building specifically to deliver health services for the people of the Cayman Island, and visitors who might use it.

One of the greatest objections to the undertaking of building this hospital was the fact that most people noted the large amount of money that was being spent to do so. The general consensus, or view, expressed by persons with names, and persons who had no names (who wrote to the press as "Name Withheld by Request,") was always concern about the cost. So I believe it is true to say that, generally, the public wondered about the cost and the possible financial viability of this undertaking.

Madam Speaker, be that as it may, the construction of a building called the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital was started. It started under protests, including protests by marchers—among whom were business people, the average man on the street and persons who, it might have been said, had particular interest in the completion or the stopping of this project.

The project started in the latter part of 1992, when the heat of the last General Election was on. In fact, it was a very hotly debated topical issue. From various spectrums of the political environment of that time, various ideas were offered as to the why's and the wherefore's of this project.

Madam Speaker, to the best of my knowledge no person, or group, was bold enough to state or to put in writing that they intended to stop the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital construction. I believe had that been done that would have indeed struck a sovereign thought in the minds of the population that would not have turned out too favourably at the polls for them. For while the general public expressed concerns about its cost, I never, at any time, Madam Speaker, personally had the impression that there was any recklessness of thought among the population that they would want to see that project stopped.

The project was ongoing and on Christmas Eve, 24th December, 1992, by Executive actions of the Government of the day, the construction on the hospital was stopped. The Government, of course, gave its reasons and all of the population in turn stated their reasons whether they agreed or whether they expressed grave concern by such happening.

Madam Speaker, I believe that the result of that project being stopped has been a major denial to the people of the Cayman Islands to have a modern building or facility where they can go to receive medical attention on the scale that was planned for that project. This denial to the population continues right up to the present time, for all that this country has in Grand Cayman is what we call the old George Town Hospital. Anyone who attends there, and knows it like all of us do, knows that on the compound there are many buildings—scattered, one might say—from which various medical services are given.

It is overcrowded, in terms of availability of beds to in-patients, it is hard pressed where the demand from the public is so great for all the various services that are sought for the various ailments. The whole physical facility is not geared or designed suitably (in a modern context) to deliver the services which it is called upon to do.

Here, I must say that I am grateful that even under the extreme harsh and adverse circumstances at that facility, doctors, nurses and all of the staff involved with health services are delivering to this country services which still rate among the best in the Caribbean and the Central American scene. But (and it is a credit to the people who are delivering these services), it does not for one moment in time address the fact that there is an ongoing and pressing need in this country for a proper facility. No talks by the former Minister for Health—who by deliberate executive decision and policy decision stopped it—nor by the present Minister for Health, who inherited this disastrous situation, can help unless there is a proper facility in this country.

Many people said—and I was one—that it was possible using modern technology and construction methods, to build a modern facility on the same site if one should build upwards and over the buildings that presently exist at one storey level. But counter to that was that the construction work could affect the services going on in the facility. There was a certain danger of people going there and being harmed as construction work went on, and there was a question of getting insurance to cover such conditions. Also there was the argument that it was not properly located as it was in the pathway of approaching aircraft to our runway here in Grand Cayman. Thus, there was a noise factor plus the danger of an aircraft crash in the area.

I think that most arguments that were laid down at the time were valid on one side of the spectrum or the other. To what extent is something that could be mooted.

The Government is saying that it is going through the same laborious process of finding architects, quantity surveyors and specialists in hospital design, and I suppose, accountants, doctors, nurses and all ancillary staff at the hospital. To once again go over what has been done, with full participation of these people as noted in the Commissioner's Report, is a waste in my opinion of manpower resources, time and money.

For us to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars, or perhaps millions—I do not know how much the Government is paying the people whom they say are supposedly going over the process again—is a situation where the people's money is not being spent to the best advantage. Even knocking down the MRC building, demolishing it, putting it somewhere else, cannot justify the time, the expense, the wasted manpower and all the rest of it; not at this point in time.

How far it has reached, we do not know. What will be the estimated cost? We do not know. But we can be absolutely sure that it will run into the millions. This is bound to be so, particularly from the point of view that within the present government, and among some of its supporters within the Government of this House, it was said that the hospital could not be built for the amount that it was contracted for in the first instance and that it would cost like $30 million, $35 million, $40 million, all amounts that were thrown around at the time.

So, business people and professionals, being the intelligent people that they are, would look to finding the factual costing and also, providing a certain percentage for profit, taking into account that there are people in this very House who are most interested in seeing the hospital cost more than what the experts said it could be built for.

One of the chief considerations at this point in time about the completion of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital is one of money. If we should believe for a moment the cries of the present Government and their concerns about money and the fact that the country does not have any, and their frugality with money and expenditure in the country, then one would expect that they would seriously be guided by this factor.

Madam Speaker, the hospital was stopped, and it makes no difference to me for whatever reason, but I would like to look at some of the things that automatically happened to the people. There was immediate unemployment—people lost jobs, as there was no more construction work going on. Among those people were masons, steel benders, carpenters, electricians, air-conditioning people—every area of the construction industry was touched, right down to suppliers of material.

Could it be said that was good for the country at that point in time? I do not believe so, for the shock waves that were sent by the stopping then, that affected and touched the people, are still vibrating. The people are still feeling it, because the construction industry took a downswing at that time and is still down. Irrespective of whether the Minister for Planning says that there have been lots of approvals for buildings, those buildings are not buildings until they are completed, nor the monies estimated for them spent, until it is spent.

Madam Speaker, the economic effects of the stopping of the Dr. Hortor Hospital went even further afield than the actual employment, the construction workers' employment and all the different categories of workers. It affected suppliers of medical equipment; suppliers of furniture (and the furniture supplier was a local entity); it affected those who supply the kitchen equipment. So one could find various persons or entities or providers of goods and services who were affected.

The Commissioner's Report shows us that there was at least an injection through the furniture supplier—a deposit of $131,453—and there was also some benefit locally when the roads to the hospital were given out to contract for $50,350. There was also some cash injection into the economy when $1,114,109 went into the preparation of the site. So, the project, by being ongoing for the time it was, did have economic benefit, and when it ceased to be ongoing it had economic downturn.

The company which had the contract to build the hospital was the lowest of all those who had bid, and we will never know whether it would have accomplished it or not.

The actual expenditure that we know of is $4,045,000, which we can only believe as being factual, for that is the amount shown in the report of the Commissioner who had the benefit of seeing all the various papers which were made available.

The Commissioner, on page 88, says that in December 1992 the Member, “had asked the Legal Department to review the hospital contractual arrangements and advise on the ramifications of costs should the Authority decide to abandon the project. The legal review estimated a total outlay on the project to date as CI$4,045,000...” So that is all we are really privileged to know as being factual in it.

Madam Speaker, my question is, With that kind of payment of the people's money could the Government not see the benefit that would be derived by the population from that project going on? And consider that if that should cease, any monies that would come after that would not be available to the public, nor would the country get the benefit of it—the project would languish in the state that it presently exists?

Madam Speaker, the Caymanian Compass carried a short article a few months ago stating that up to four subcontractors had been paid certain monies. The amounts were not disclosed: someone in the Financial Secretary's office said they had to be audited and then it would be made known. I do not know what auditing has to do with the fact that if four cheques are issued that someone could not take a calculator and add those four amounts and say it was "X" or "Y" amounts that were paid.

But I believe that the Government of the day now knows that it severely erred in its judgment and in its policy decision, and there is a strong reluctance to let the public know how much it paid in those subcontracts.

There are those of us that could take that amount and add it to $4,045,000 and know how much of the people's money has so far been wasted. I have spoken to different people about what they estimate would be the average amount paid and spent to date. I have been told by people who are in this business that they estimate that it could easily be approximately $6.5 million. It could well be more.

As one looks at that kind of expenditure of the people's money and for the people to have nothing as a result of it, and the people not having the opportunity of directly saying to the Government, 'You have done what we believe we want you to do,' or 'You have not done,' it becomes a serious problem. There is nothing to show for the expenditure of money that the Government has spent except approximately 110,000 square feet of slab. A building that in some sections was up to the belting and the fact that (as if to give the ultimate insult to what was to be a health facility) it serves as the floor for a refugee camp with the roof being a canvas shed!

Madam Speaker, the Government can truthfully claim that they have taken the people's money and spent it in large and staggering amounts to show nothing for it. What has it done to the country as a whole? The Minister's and the Government's hasty, reckless and far-reaching decision has brought into question the credibility of this country.

The Government's credibility has long been in question as to its ability to manage effectively, but for the first time in our history it has brought into question the credibility of the Cayman Islands; the credibility of generations of people who displayed good sense in terms of money.

There have been more serious economic hardships than there are now. Successive governments have never had a loan from a bank, or any consortium of banks, where they have told those banks that they are withdrawing the guarantee that the Government—for and on behalf of the people—extended to the banks who agreed to give the money to build the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital. The Government of the day is understanding (if it did not understand before) that banks are the toughest customers on earth—that being the absolute nature of banks—when it comes to dealing with money. Those of us who know anything about anything, understand that very clearly. So, when we look at the facts these banks satisfied their hardhearted financial selves. They believed their money could be spent on this project. It says something about the faith and the credibility in the people and in the country. The Government of the day did not see that similarly.

I believe that the stopping of the hospital affected the financial community who wondered: What next? No other Government before did such things. What can they expect out of this Government? I believe also that it puts the Cayman Islands into that position that so many legislators like to bandy about "Banana Republic." It took millions of dollars to earn us that categorisation.

I believe that investors in this country (since that time to now) feel a certain uncertainty about what has happened and have developed certain inhibitions about whether they will spend their money here in projects locally. They are not certain whether their money will be put at risk when they see that three major lending institutions had a Government guarantee withdrawn from them.

Madam Speaker, those things being the case affects the welfare and the livelihood of the people of this country. Those are the ripple effects. That is why we have an economy, particularly in the construction industry, that is hurting. Where does it leave the people of this country, seeing that to this point in time there have been no new facilities from which the people can receive medical services as delivered at the hospital?

We know that the present Government has entered into agreement with a hospital in the United States that was reported in The Miami Herald, as saying that it earns up to $3.5 million per annum. We must wonder if that huge expenditure could not have been reduced if there were a proper medical facility in the Cayman Islands. Could not specialists from the United States come to a new modern facility that had proper medical equipment and do the job here, where the cost per day would be hundreds less than sending persons to the United States with all the cost that incurs? Could that not have been done? Most surely it could have.

My question is not far-fetched. It is not unrealistic. In fact, it is down right factual. The Commissioner of the Enquiry into the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital noted the predicament that the country was in at this time, when he said on page 92 of the report, and I quote: "Improved up-to-date health facilities accessible to all inhabitants of the [Cayman] Islands would obviously be advantageous since the general welfare and health of the people is of primary importance. It is self-evident that a healthier working population is generally happier, more vigorous, dynamic and productive. The state of their health affects the children and their ability to learn and so live better lives. The elderly benefit by a more comfortable and enjoyable retirement."

Madam Speaker, I could certainly not add anything to that because here is an outsider capable of doing this job, hired by the Government to do the job, and that is what he chose to put in his report as his view on the situation. He was not guided by me (nor in my opinion, anyone else), but by his findings—his shocking findings—of the present predicament of the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: Honourable Member would this be a convenient time to take the suspension?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.38 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.59 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continuing.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the suspension, I had just referred to a statement by the Commissioner who carried out the enquiry into the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital. I said that the way he had put his thoughts on where it left the country and the effect and impact it would have on the country could hardly be better stated.

One other brief statement that he made in his report said, and I quote: "Such a project is better viewed as essentially an investment in society rather than a profit-making business." (page 92) Madam Speaker, that is the point I believe the Government of the day should have taken into account before it took the decision that it did which has put the country into a tailspin.

The need for a facility continues daily. There are insufficient beds. There are cases of insufficient beds in the George Town Hospital, even though it has been denied in this Honourable House by the former Minister for Health. There are shortages in many areas of the functioning of the present George Town Hospital.

The remedy which the Government at this time finds for the country is again what the Commissioner analysed the situation would be upon the stoppage of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital. I quote on page 93, where the Commissioner said: "Consequent upon discarding this project the present GT [George Town] Hospital will no doubt need to be enlarged and provided with additional in-patient, out-patient and administrative facilities and accommodation with better fire and hurricane safety provisions and up-to-date medical equipment."

Attempts by the Government to do this at the present George Town Hospital at this time (while a designed hospital and one that is up to the belting, as we talk about, with plans in place, with floor process in place, with designated areas for these very things that are spoken about here), is a waste of the people's money.

Most outstanding is the fact that the people of this country, have not been given their right to say whether they want to see their half-finished hospital completed or not. The Government has presumed to know best in this regard. This is so fundamental to making us what is commonly termed "The Banana Republic"—where we go in certain countries and see half-finished buildings and ask, 'Why is that building that way?' 'Oh, that was done by the Reds. Then the Blues got in and they stopped it'—we should not have that in these Cayman Islands! That should not be!

The only way the Government of the day can legitimately claim it should remain in the present state it is would be to let the people directly vote on it through a referendum. There was so much said about referendum in this House during 1990. And so much said during the election in 1992 by the present group of politicians who now have the majority in the House that I seriously wonder how they will attempt to deny the people the right of resolving this matter by referendum. They stated throughout that the only way the people can have their say is through a referendum, and that is the most desirable and democratic means of polling the opinion of the people. On and on it went and, of course, they said that they have it in their Manifesto.

Madam Speaker, most unusual in the constitutions of Dependent Territories, indeed of most countries of the Commonwealth who are not really inclined towards referendum, is the fact that in the Constitution of the Cayman Islands a referendum can be called. The [referendum] can be called by this House in the majority, or by a majority vote, saying it wishes to give the public the opportunity of voting on a particular matter of national importance.

There are various arguments against that, and one would be the cost. But cost of doing such a thing in this case would be minuscule, for the people who are eligible to vote in this country have their names on a voters' list that was used as recently as 1992. There will hardly be any need to revise the voters' list to get the opinion of the population—that population which was eligible and of legal age or are on that voter list.

All it would take, would be simply to designate a day when the people of this country would be invited to go to certain locations in each district of the Island and tick a paper that would have one simple question: Do you wish to see the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital completed? Yes or no? It is so simple. Anything else would be an absolute denial of the people to decide on their hospital—which has been stopped—and to have a voice on the millions of dollars that have been put into it without any hospital. Indeed, it would be the singular guidance to the Government of the day whether they should continue on this new thing they are on, to revolutionise the situation at the George Town Hospital, while one simply sits half completed waiting to be completed.

The amendment to our Constitution which allows a referendum says: “29(2) Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (1), a law may make provision for the holding of a referendum amongst persons qualified as electors in elections to the Assembly on a question declared by resolution, adopted by a majority of the Elected Members of the Assembly, to be a matter of national importance and specified in such law.”

Madam Speaker, there can be no doubt that this is a matter of national importance, one that has been ongoing, and one I believe the Government would like if it would just go away and disappear into space. But it will not, and it cannot. The least that can be done at this stage, is to allow the people of this country their right to express their opinions through a referendum.

They have the benefit now of the findings of the Commissioner appointed by the Government. His findings say; “Clearly a great deal of effort, thought, planning and expertise by many people went into this project and it could fairly be said that it deserved to succeed.” (page 92).

This Government has a way of redeeming itself from where it has placed itself in this country, by allowing the people the chance to exercise their right by a referendum to decide whether the half-finished hospital should be completed or not. It is immaterial until after that decision is taken what company would complete it, if completing it were the decision. Certainly, the people have that right and it is provided for in the Constitution and the National Team claims, of course, that it is there because they wanted it so badly. This is a great opportunity to prove to this country that that is so.

So, having now presented the Motion and having presented the case for this, and having stayed away from slander and otherwise, I leave it to the Government to take its position on the Resolve of this Motion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I rise to speak on Private Member's Motion No. 13/94 before this Honourable House.

Before I entered into politics, I was against the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital going in the swamp. Having been in this Honourable House for about 15 or 16 months, and having had the opportunity to go into more detail in regard to this facility, my view is still the same.

I think one of the biggest hoaxes ever played in this country is to have called the facility a hospital. Out of curiosity, last night I went home and looked up the meaning of the word “hospital.” The Encyclopaedia Britannica says: “A hospital is an institution that is built, staffed and equipped for the identification and diagnoses of disease and the treatment, both medical and surgical, of the sick and injured; for their housing during this process and for certain other procedures. The medical staff is organised into such departments as surgery, medicine, obstetrics, pediatrics, etcetera.”

Madam Speaker, my understanding of what I have seen of the facility that would have been built under the auspices of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital, was an inpatient facility thus not qualifying under what I would have judged to be a hospital.

The first Whereas that I would like to speak to is: “AND WHEREAS the public has had no input into the decision to stop the hospital nor has the public been allowed to express its view on whether the hospital should be completed.” I think this message was sent loud and clear at the elections on the 18th of November, 1992.

[Members' interjections: Hear, hear!]

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: As a matter of fact, the National Team Member who ran in the district of North Side had one of the largest election majority decisions in the district of North Side against the former Member at that time. I think this in itself has been well spoken by the people of this country.

[Members' interjections: Hear, hear!]

Hon. Anthony Eden: Madam Speaker, the next thing I would like to touch on is the first Resolve: "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House take note and debate the report of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital Commission of Enquiry by Sir Peter Allen and any matters relating thereto."

With all due respect to the author of this report, if I had committed a serious crime and needed someone to put forward a case to defend me, after reading this report, I would have grave reservations about using this person.

With your permission, Madam Speaker, I would like to touch on some of the things that are in the report as read by the Mover of the Motion, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The first thing is on page 16, when the project was brought to the Public Service Investment Committee, and it says that the "main concern of the PSIC expressed in this review was financial. The cash flow analysis provided did not furnish adequate information concerning the new hospital total annual incremental staffing costs and building and equipment maintenance and other operating costs."

"In their conclusions the economists [or the people of the Public Service Investment Committee] criticised the project for having no clear development policy or social investment goals; for being based on unrealistic population growth assumptions; an exaggerated future demand from residents and tourists; for having a potential to increase the public debt and the level of inflation; and probably insufficiently revenue-generating to repay the loan on time."

These are some of the same fears that the National Team campaigned on in the election—the grave concerns as to how this could be a financially viable effort.

Going on further in the report, page 21: "In April 1992, the former CITV organised a televised discussion of the project during which Mr. Miller caused some controversy when he categorised three factions whom he alleged were opposing the building of the new hospital. He said that the first group was against it for economic reasons; the second group were professionals in the twilight of their careers who were concerned that they were not able 'to cut the mustard' in a new technological environment. The third group were professionals whose incompetence was presently masked by somewhat inadequate facilities which could be blamed instead. This understandably caused a certain amount of un- friendly comment from the CIMDS [the Cayman Islands Medical and Dental Society] and some of the hospital staff."

Having recent dealings and affiliations with some of the medical and dental staff, I think this was a slap in the face to these professional people to have referred to them in this manner. As we can well remember, two of these medical people were literally chastised and humiliated. To get their rights back some of these people, specifically two of these doctors had to go through the Court where they were eventually vindicated from these accusations.

Another area in which the writer of this report touched on is found on page 22: "On 7 July some of the politicians, with other objectors from the public, organised a protest march through GT [George Town] opposing the project. This caused a certain amount of inconvenience to the public because of an insufficient number of police officers on duty and the disobedience of the marchers to police instructions..."

Madam Speaker, I took part in that march, as did many of the other Elected Members in this Honourable House, and I do not recall any problems being experienced by the Police or anyone at that time. What vividly sticks in my mind is that as the march crossed this Honourable Legislative Assembly building the past Member for Health, Mr. Miller, was standing on the steps of this Legislative Assembly in his cowboy boots and hat with his foot propped up on his briefcase—literally looking down at us out in that hot sun making fun of us. But, the Lord works in mysterious ways, and that is now history.

As a matter of fact, the writer of this report says, on page 26: "The General Elections in the Cayman Islands took place on 18 November and Mr. Miller was one of those who lost his seat in the LA [Legislative Assembly] and consequently in ExCo [Executive Council]."

Madam Speaker, on page 40 of the report the writer says: "On 10 October 1991, in a debate on the HSA [Health Services Authority] Mr. G. McLean, MLA expressed the view that all the money in the Treasury would be needed simply to fill 'that piece of morass, black-mangroved swamp.' Following this from time to time in the local press were published letters... variously objecting to the chosen site as being too swampy, under water, out of the way and generally unsuitable for the project."

I do not think anything has changed since those days. The same land is there, a lot of money was spent just to bring it up to a suitable stage. In fact, I believe the entire old Kirk Supermarket Plaza was dumped in one area and it has completely disappeared. On page 76 of this same report: "The Member for Health, Mr. Miller, was also Chairman of the HSA Board from 1 January to 30 June 1992. During that period tenders for the hospital construction contract were received, opened and reviewed and the contract was awarded. Hansard Reports that in the Legislative Assembly debate on the bank loan guarantee on 29 June 1992, Mr. Roy Bodden MLA, referring to Mr. Miller, said, 'Why did the Chairman (of HSA) wait until this contract was successfully tendered by a company, some of whose principals he has fraternised with, before he resigned as Chairman...that begs a question that cannot be good! And it violates the Caymanian sense of propriety.'

The last section in the report that I want to touch on starts on page 72, and from here we can gather the concerns that our Legal Department had. I quote: "Some time in June 1992 the then acting Attorney General, Mr. Smellie, suggested to Mr. Miller that the hospital contract was of such magnitude that it ought to be looked over by the Legal Department. The matter came up in ExCo and Mr. Miller agreed in principle though in fact, nothing seems to have been done about it."

Going further into this report, on page 73: "On the afternoon of Friday, 13th November 1992, while the acting Attorney General was discussing the purported resignation of Dr. Martin-Smith with the Governor, the fact that the hospital building contract had not yet been signed came up and the Governor sent instructions to Mr. Miller that it was not to be signed until it had been reviewed by the Legal Department. The elections were to take place on the 18 November and Mr. Miller wanted to be sure that the contract was signed by 17 November at the latest. He therefore handed over the relevant documents and stated that he needed the Department's report by Monday, 16 November. Accordingly, the acting Attorney General and the Legal Draftsman, Mr. Borrowman, split the task between them and worked over the weekend to produce a combined report and advice which was delivered to Mr. Miller on the Monday morning. This included advice against signing the contract without a performance bond being in place."

Regarding the contract itself, there was a meeting held by the Health Services Authority Board, and the Chairman referred to the view of the Legal Department. But from the Minutes of this meeting of the Health Services Authority Board, "It was also mentioned that the Attorney General and Legal Draftsman were satisfied with everything, including opinions given to us by our attorneys."

Madam Speaker, as we read on, this was inaccurate because the Acting Attorney General "Mr. Smellie, later pointed out that this was not so as both the Legal Department and the HSA attorneys had considered the Anderson Arrangement ill-advised and that the contract ought not to be signed without a proper performance bond in place."

The Attorney General added "that the HSA Board might have been misled into believing that the Legal Department had endorsed the contractual arrangements whereas they had only considered the Government's position in relation to the contract."

This seems to have been a deliberate attempt to mislead the Board members of the HSA into believing that our Legal Department had given assent to this contract. I think that this should have been checked in more detail to find out who put this view forward. With due respect to this report, I feel that this is an affront to the people of these islands and not worth the paper it is published on.

[Members' interjections: Hear, hear!]

Hon. Anthony Eden: Before going on to the other resolves, Madam Speaker, I would like to briefly touch on a couple of points raised by the Honourable Mover of the Motion when he said that this was a controversial issue. Without a doubt this was very controversial, as the public was gravely concerned. And, as we know, when the Motion came to this House for approval it was passed by a minority of Elected Members of this House with the support of the Official Members.

Without a doubt, it was certainly hotly debated in the last election. But the results of that last election—and everyone knows what the National Team said in their Manifesto: "We are against the building of the new hospital; We believe that the building of the new hospital at this time is extravagant and against the wishes of the majority of the people." I will go into a little bit more detail on this later on. Without a doubt, everyone who knew about the 1992 elections knew that this was one of the highest things in our Manifesto. We went to different platforms throughout the districts of the Islands sharing this same theme with all the people that we spoke to. As we all know, the results of that election, the plurality with which the Members were elected, to me, sent a loud signal as to what the majority of the people of this country wanted and what they supported.

The Mover also mentioned the high restriction in the present hospital site. I recently spoke with the architects and they said that the Central Planning Authority allows in this area a maximum of 90 feet. So this area is still well within the requirements and the necessities of the Central Planning Authority.

The Mover also mentioned the loss of jobs for some of the people because of the stoppage of the hospital contract. Without a doubt, this is true. But, can we expect the Government and the people of this country—the people who knew the far reaching effects of what would happen if this facility was allowed to go through—to carry the tremendous recurrent expenditure that would be a burden on the finances of this country. This is the way I look at this, Madam Speaker.

In regard to the Baptist Hospital Contract which is now being negotiated, I remember in a recent sitting of the House when the then Minister for Health, the Honourable McKeever Bush, mentioned that on one procedure alone, as compared between Baptist and Cleveland Clinic, we stood to save approximately $25,000. This is projected over a period of months or years. I think the public can see the amount of savings that can be realised with this association.

As a matter of fact, I recently visited the facility (Baptist Hospital) for my own observations. I was extremely pleased with the facilities and what I saw. As a matter of fact, there is documentary evidence, and it is said that Baptist Hospital is the highest rated hospital in South Florida. So I think that being able to negotiate with an institution of this calibre says a lot for the past Ministry which Health was under.

One of the main selling points of Baptist Hospital is its proximity to the Miami International Airport. It is extremely convenient. I note this was one of the concerns of people when they went to the facility in Fort Lauderdale—they had to go to Miami, then take a shuttle up there and it was quite an inconvenience having to make these two stops, unless you went there by Air Ambulance. So these are just a few of the benefits that I see realised by using Baptist Hospital.

I now go to the last resolve, and I read: "AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT Government consider holding a referendum (in accordance with the provision of section 14 of the (Constitution) (Amendment) Order, 1993) to allow the public to vote on whether the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital should be completed or not."

Madam Speaker, during the 1992 Election campaign, as I mentioned before, the Honourable First Elected Member for Bodden Town, the Seconder of the Motion, was a Member of the National Team at that time.

We know what was published in the Manifesto and, as I mentioned earlier, we believed that our people should have the best medical care possible and feasible. The Team's conclusion was: "We believe the building of the new hospital at this time is extravagant and against the wishes of the majority of Caymanians. It was certainly against the wishes of the majority of the elected Members of the Legislative Assembly."

"We believe that Government cannot afford this project and is now mortgaging the incomes of future generations."

It could be said that the National Team's mandates could not clearly show through the polls what the public's view on the matter was. The Honourable Member's view was presumably in keeping with the National Team's Manifesto. Perhaps the Honourable First Elected Member for Bodden Town would be prepared to say why he has now changed the position he took during the 1992 election campaign.

If Government's position, in having decided to stop the construction of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital facility, is that it would be too costly to maintain (we speak of this not only in terms of capital expenditure for the actual hospital, but in terms of recurrent expenditure, staffing and maintenance) perhaps what has not been made sufficiently clear to the public is that this Dr. Hortor Hospital would not solve existing problems. The truth is that it would have been an inpatient facility only, with out-patient facilities remaining at the present George Town Hospital site.

Physicians would have had to provide coverage at both facilities. Just one example: If there was a paediatric clinic going on at the outpatient facility at the present hospital site, and that doctor was required to leave to attend to an emergency in the other facility, this would result in a great deal of inconvenience with patients' time being wasted. The obvious solution would be for the Government to employ another paediatrician so that both sites would be covered when, in fact, the number of patients would only justify one—not two.

The Dr. Hortor facility would not have any of the following amenities: Laundry; Kitchen; Training facilities for staff; Provision for medical records was minimal (less than 1,000 square feet); We would have had to rely on transportation for meals at least three times per day and this would have to be done with appropriate carriages, with insulation and other things needed to keep the meals hot or cold; The linens, sterile gowns and most sterilised small instruments.

The main thing with this situation is that there would have been a number of duplications of services, materials, facilities and staff, as in Physiotherapy, the Laboratory, Materials Management, Warehouse, Pharmacy, Radiology, Security, Maintenance of the grounds and equipment, Large instruments, Training facilities for the staff, Utilities, such as sewerage treatment plant, Emergency generator—all would have to be duplicated on both sites, and Patient registration which would involve more staff and computers. This arrangement would have resulted in much duplication of services and significant increases in staff and operational costs.

As we know, the Health Services Budget for 1994 was approximately $13 million for annual recurrent. To operate both sites, in my modest guess, would probably be around $30 million or more per year.

Madam Speaker, added to this would be the upgrading of the present hospital site to meet building and fire safety codes, and providing other necessary services to patients and staff. This upgrading would include: Outpatient consultations, including paediatric; Replacement of sewerage treatment plants; Diagnostic services; Physio Therapy; Mental Health; Geriatric Services; Hospice Services (for the terminally ill); More Administrative Offices.

No mention was made in the proposal of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital facility for the costs of upgrading the electrical system, fire prevention and fire fighting capabilities, plumbing and other renovations at the George Town Hospital which, in my estimation would run between $8 million to $10 million.

The next area I would like to look at—

The Speaker: Would you be prepared to take the luncheon suspension at this time?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.51 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.32 PM

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: Please be seated.

I have received apologies from the Elected Member for North Side, and the Honourable First Official Member, who will both be absent from this afternoon's sitting.

The Honourable Minister for Health, continuing.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the break, I was about to address some more of the difficulties and inconveniences that would have to be faced in regards to the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital facility and the George Town Hospital.

One can well understand the inconvenience that would be experienced by patients and staff under the split site arrangement, going back and forth. To use an example, having a maternity unit at the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital facility and an antenatal unit at the George Town Hospital, medical information on patients would not be easily available in an emergency situation where the patient may go into labour. This is just one of many problems that I see which could have developed in this split site idea.

It has been abundantly clear to me that the split site arrangement was not supported by the health practitioners who were professionally and ethically bound to speak out against the proposal, even in the face of threats and intimidation. I have touched on this before and it is a shame that something like this had to transpire against our professionals and specialist leaders in the field of medicine. Amendments to the proposal were not taken sufficiently into account, leaving a state of general dissatisfaction with what was being proposed.

I would just like for us to take a quick look at the overall cost to capital development for the two projects that would have been involved.

The Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital, as we have seen, was estimated at approximately $16 million. The upgrading of some existing buildings and construction of new buildings of the George Town site was estimated at $10 million. This brings us a total of $26 million. This is the true picture that should have been told to the public, not the hoax about the inpatient hospital facility in the swamp being a hospital and costing only about $16 million. This facility was only the tip of the iceberg. There is no telling how much more would have been needed to bring it up to what is provided at the George Town Hospital facility.

These are some scenarios that could have occurred if the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital had been allowed to continue. For example, the manpower: Inpatient facilities at the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital site, and outpatient facility on the present site, would result in physicians having to provide coverage at both facilities. At best, this would have been a logistics nightmare. I just cannot comprehend how this was going to be handled—physicians running, and it is not so easy getting around some of those corners. I took the opportunity yesterday to go up there and look at the site. In case of an emergency it would have been where more emergency situations could have been perpetrated.

Patients would have been confused as to which facility to go to for treatment because it was intended to offer some clinics and casualty services at the present George Town Hospital site. The present George Town Hospital site is centrally located and easily accessible for people using public transportation. I think this is one of the greatest selling factors in regards to the site. Let us face it, whether we realise it or not, there are some people from the outer districts who still have to use public transportation coming in to George Town at the Kirk Plaza parking area and walking up there. They would have had to walk a further mile or so and this would have been a great inconvenience.

The Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital facility did not have the following facilities: Meals: Meals would have to be transported to the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital facility at least three times daily. In addition, there was no cafeteria on site. Visitors, staff and some patients would not be able to have easy access to drinks, snacks and other meals. Additional transport would have to be purchased and more staff employed to transport the food.

Laundry: The Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital linen, towels and other laundry supplies would have to be transported from the George Town Hospital site once again requiring more transportation which would have to be separate from that used to transport the food and additional staff would have to be brought in to provide the transportation.

Medical Records: According to the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital facility plan all records would be kept at the present George Town Hospital site. This would result in medical records having to be transported backwards and forwards and I am sure that for those of us who now use the present facility, we know the difficulties encountered in finding the records sometimes, even having the records at one location. To have them stored at two would be extremely difficult, especially at night and on weekends, not to mention the nightmare of keeping track of where medical records are at any given time. I do not know if we can really comprehend getting these records, especially in the case of emergencies, it would be extremely difficult.

There was no training facilities planned for the Dr. Hortor Hospital facility which would have resulted in a great inconvenience for the staff of the hospital.

The Laboratory, Radiology, Pharmacy, Physiotherapy would have to be duplicated at both facilities resulting in increased cost for treatment, staffing and all overhead cost.

Another aspect that would have to be looked at is computerisation. Costly computers and communication linkage would have to be provided between the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital site and the George Town Hospital site. We know the cost, specifically of computer equipment, and the kind of sophistication that is now used with that, would almost be prohibitive.

The Materials Management Warehouse. It was in the plan to have the Materials Management Warehouse at the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital site. This would have resulted in either transporting all medical, surgical, pharmaceutical, housekeeping supplies to the present George Town Hospital location or, once again, build another facility.

Upgrading of the George Town Hospital site. As I have hinted at before, despite the building of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital facility, we still would have had to upgrade the present George Town Hospital facilities to accommodate what was envisaged by the past Member, Mr. Ezzard Miller, as an out-patient facility.

One of the key things that I looked at in assessing this was the non-support of the professional medical people in regards to their opinion and ideas on the hospital plan, that is, the Cayman Islands Medical and Dental Society. They have continuously expressed their objections to the proposed split site hospital.

As this document has been widely read and looked at, I will just beg your tolerance to look at a couple of items. It is prepared by the Council of the Cayman Islands Medical and Dental Society, dated 22 May 1992: "It was concluded that too much emphasis was being placed on expansion and too little on technological advancement necessary to diagnose and treat patients more efficiently. Fact and figures indicated that the likely occupants at the new hospital would make the venture financially unsound.

"An analysis of the forecast statement revealed that they were unrealistic and unreliable."

Some of the opinions expressed here were referred to Dr. Clarence James. Dr. James is a surgeon in Bermuda. He was at that time President of the Bermuda Medical and Dental Society, and was also at one time the Health Minister of Finance. In his response he mentioned certain observations in regard to the split site facility and the proposals put forward. He responded to the President of the Cayman Islands Medical and Dental Society, and I quote: "It is my hope that I have assisted you in achieving your goals for the development of a successful health care system in the Cayman Islands. I have had the opportunity to review the material [which was the Cayman Islands Health Services Authority forecast in which they made their financial projection] which you sent me earlier this month by courier.

"In my view, such detailed forecasted projections of receipts and expenditures are practically worthless. They are usually produced as a public relations exercise in an effort to promote a specific project, which in this case is the Health Services Authority's new hospital. Beyond a year or two it is impractical to develop any real accuracy in future predictions in health matters, and to expand such projections for 10 years is laughable."

This is coming from a person who has had the experience and the opportunity to look at other projections, and right away this doctor was able to spot the many flaws in it.

It appears that, at a minimum, the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital plan would have cost $16 million, plus another $10 million to renovate the present George Town Hospital site, which comes to a total of $26 million. In addition there was going to be much duplication of services and staff. It would have been a significant increase in staff and cost, as we know the Health Services Budget was $13 million for this year. I wonder where this amount of money would have come from to support the idea. Once the money got short, how were we going to support it and keep it going?

With regards to insurance coverage that was proposed by the last Government, the projections that were made for fees to be collected from patients under a National Health Care Plan scheme were to be put towards the annual cost of operating the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital facility.

Madam Speaker, I have been reliably informed that the proposed minimum premium of $45 per month at inception would have been increased by the insurance companies at a later date. There was no guarantee that this would not be done. In fact, it was very likely that the insurance companies would have increased the premium, as the $45 per month was unrealistic to begin with.

I recently found out that the approximate cost of the consultation fee which has been agreed to with the consultants for the review of the facilities going on over the past few months, was less than $50,000, not hundreds of thousands of dollars.

I could have supported this Motion if we had been talking about apples and apples. But what we are looking at here is apples and oranges. We are talking about an outpatient facility as opposed to a hospital (as we are used to by the term) and what we now have with the present George Town Hospital site.

I would like to also inform this House that a tentative decision has been reached that any development for the new facilities will take place at the present George Town Hospital site.

We have approximately 12 acres of land and MRCU will be vacated from there giving us that much more space. Ironically enough, the very consultants that did the review for the past administration in regards to the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital site at the new location have agreed with me that these facilities can be placed on the present site. This, in their review and revision, can take care of these Islands for the next 20 to 25 years.

So, in closing I would ask all of my colleagues to think of where we came from. What has changed since December 1992? Really, there has been no physical change. It is the same area, the same proposed inpatient facility, and I ask that when the vote is taken we know what people have said—how the public feels, how they have expressed their concern—that they vote against this Motion.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: I rise to offer my input on Private Member's Motion No. 13/94, calling for a referendum to determine the public's wish regarding the completion of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital.

I am not going into great detail on the review by Sir Peter Allen, but I would like to go over some of the things mentioned by the Mover of this Motion in his presenting the Motion before us today.

This is, perhaps, the most controversial subject in these Islands over the last year of its development, in that more people have felt frustrated and unhappy in that they were not listened to in the stopping of the building this hospital.

The second Whereas of this Motion says: "AND WHEREAS this project was, by deliberate action of the present Government, stopped." I would ask the Mover if in responding he could maybe clarify what he means by deliberate. When I think of deliberate, I think of on purpose. This is nothing more than what we promised the people we were going to represent during the election. We campaigned openly, at least the three George Town Members, the A-Team as we were known, that we intended to stop the building of the hospital, if at all possible, and if it was legal. We did not hide that, so I am not sure what the Member is talking about that no one openly campaigned on stopping the hospital.

I feel this was probably one of the most important things in our Manifesto and it was given to us by the people to carry out. If we are to have true representation, then we must carry out the wishes of the people that we are representing.

Going down to another Whereas, it says: "AND WHEREAS various other monies have been paid out in connection with the hospital project with no completed hospital building for such money." If the previous Government had listened to the people of these Islands this would not have come about.

Early in June 1992, the Chamber of Commerce conducted a survey. I am amazed that these two Members (the Mover and the Seconder) are always blasting the Chamber, but when it is convenient, they somehow seem to use their surveys for their Motions. They did not mention the survey of June 1992, where 80% of the people in that survey did not want the hospital to be built. Therefore, I feel this is partly (I am not saying wholly) indicative of the wishes of the public. This is a large percentage, a large number of the public that they should not have ignored.

Further to that, a former George Town Member did a survey at just about the same time, at random, over the telephone with various people, to see if the public was in favour of the construction of this hospital. According to the results of that survey, over 65% of the people, from George Town in particular, were against the building of the hospital: Yet, they did not listen to the people.

This is the point that I would like to draw the Mover's and the Seconder's attention to. For not listening to the people, we have this mess of that existing building which the Mover is talking about today. The building is standing there unfinished. I am not sure if he has had an opportunity to look at that building, but I suggest that he should go and take a look at that foundation and see the cracks that are there. In filling that site and all that took place, we read in the report (and the former speaker mentioned), how the Kirk Plaza was dumped there and still could not fill it and more fill had to be dumped in there. Of course, in their haste to have it constructed, they did not wait for the land to settle. Because of this we have cracks. I am not saying that the whole foundation is cracked, but there are cracks as a result of their haste.

The former speaker, the Minister for Health, explained to us that the present site, where the old hospital is now, has over 12 acres. I feel that with the plans that are being looked at, and the projections for building this in phases, a proper facility will be provided for the people of these Islands.

The Mover made a comment about going over what is done as no full participation by people to use it, was sought. That according to the former Member, he claims, so much input was sought by the people who would be using the facility, that this was just a perfect plan.

I remember the evening he came to the South Sound Community Centre. He told the public that all the people participating and using this facility – doctors, nurses, workers, even patients, had some input into the design of this building and this was just what we needed. However, some of the inefficiencies that were brought out in that meeting, such as records—and the Minister of Health also touched on this—that he could not tell us which one of these sites, the old site that we are using today, or this proposed new building, would house the records.

Again, when we talk about computers and software and the amount of money that all of this would cost, that was not a drop in the bucket for some of the inefficiencies that this building would have.

Only today the seconder of this Motion asked the question about hot lunches for the Red Bay School. The point I am trying to make is that he is questioning the school not having the proper facilities to provide hot lunches (and this was all done by the previous Government). You can imagine the problem with a hospital not having a canteen and being unable to provide hot food, having to transport it from one site to another. To me that is not a very good facility. As a matter of fact, this building was referred to as the doughnut building with birds' wings by the Third Elected Member of Bodden Town on page 23 of the report. A lot has been said about it, but I must say that I find that rather amusing, and very well put, because when we looked at the design in great detail, it did look like a doughnut with birds' wings. I feel that is, perhaps, what we would have been getting, in addition to all the inefficiencies.

We are all aware that the present site is not meeting all of the needs, but we are working towards providing facilities where the present Minister has input from all the people, and I feel that they are comfortable. I have heard good comments from people working at the hospital who will be using these facilities. They feel that they have had some input into the efficiency and the design of this facility and have not been told this is the way it is going to be, as was done with the former Member.

In speaking of costs, with the views of the public and with the view of the National Team, it was not the cost of the construction of this building, but the cost to operate this facility. The report says that the cost of operation was over $25 million on an annual basis.

We know that even with health insurance policies in place for the work force, this was still not going to be sufficient in meeting the operational cost of the hospital. I feel that even though we have proper facilities (like the Mover spoke about), and specialists coming and investing here (he said that $3.5 million per annum is a lot less than $25 million), that is still not going to meet the needs of our people because no matter what facility is provided, the people of these Islands still prefer, if at all possible, to go overseas for health care. Therefore, I do not feel that that is a valid point, that $3.5 million would come from specialists coming here as opposed to $25 million. That I cannot accept.

As to Government making errors in stopping the hospital ... this is a good example of not carrying out the people's wishes. This was one of the highlights of the election and of our campaign. This was one of the things that people repeatedly asked us to make sure, if at all possible, that this be corrected. If this is wrong, and we are not doing what the people want, then in the 1996 election they will have their chance to correct it. But I feel that we have done the right thing in that we carried out the people's wishes. I do not mean to harp on carrying out the people's wishes, but that is good representation. We must do what they want us to do not what we want to do. We must at all times try to listen and represent them.

Another point that the Mover mentioned was that the construction economy is badly hurting. It is not hurting because of the stoppage of the hospital; there are other factors. I feel this is misleading the people, making them wonder if perhaps this is possible. This is not the reason why the construction economy is hurting and that should not have come into question here. We have one large construction company, a handful of subcontractors, and that construction company has about four other projects which they are presently working on since the stoppage of the hospital. I cannot attest to those subcontractors what their work load is like, but in the report it says that Hurlstones did not seem to have a financial problem, and I do not believe that stopping this hospital has hurt that company in that construction is down and they do not have any work per se.

On pages 78 and 79 of the report it explains that in going over the contract there was only one company and they had other projects. But there are some concerns, and I would just like to read from pages 78 and 79: "It was pointed out that this exercise took place only a few weeks before the construction contract was awarded and both of them were aware at the time that Hurlstones was tendering for it." Here we are talking about the contract and the politics that are involved in awarding that contract. "Obvious inferences could be drawn from this."

In other words, the Member and the Director of Hurlstones were paying for advertisements and using the Health Services Authority logo, even though it was approved by the Health Services Board. The final sentence on page 79 says: "No matter how useful and helpful they may have thought the idea to be at the time it clearly would have been much more sensible to have avoided being so involved."

It does not matter how many times a Commission of Enquiry took place regarding all of this for the hospital; there are still questions and opinions by the public and by the people of these Islands that things we are still not right. And even though I have read this report, I still have questions in my mind.

In the last Resolve, this Motion asks for a referendum. Before the vote was taken in this House in July 1992, regarding the construction and the passing of the hospital, we had protest. I think the Minister mentioned this. Many of us were involved in that protest as well, but the fact was that the people were trying to tell the previous Member, and their representatives, that they did not want the construction of the Hospital. It was not a referendum per se, but it was a way of getting across to the representatives not that it was not needed, but that they did not want it on that site, nor the construction at the time.

As to the cost of a referendum, we campaigned for a referendum. That is good democracy. I have no problem with that. And the cost of a referendum, if we felt it were necessary, then we are truly representing the people to get their input, that [the cost of the referendum] would not be expensive at all. If I felt that the public were unhappy with the decision to stop this then I think all of us, Backbenchers and Members of the Government, should be happy regardless of the cost of the referendum to make sure that it was taken.

To not have a referendum is not a denial of the people. That was perhaps so when they were denied a voice when the hospital was started. I feel that going to the people for a referendum now is not necessary. We have heard and listened to the people of these Islands, and a referendum is not needed at this time. Therefore, I feel that would be a waste of money because we know how they feel. We have had protests, we have had surveys and we have had representation—groups, individuals, coming to us who were very pleased when the construction of this hospital was stopped in December of 1992.

Therefore, I do not see the necessity of a referendum for the hospital at this time. When we needed the referendum it was not taken, and it is not needed at this point. Therefore, I cannot support this Motion.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I now rise to offer my contribution to this debate regarding Private Member's Motion No. 13/94. To begin with I would like us to look at the first resolve: "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House take note and debate the report of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital Commission of Enquiry by Sir Peter Allen and any matters relating thereto;"

The first point that I would like to make is that I find it extremely difficult to debate the report made by Sir Peter Allen, since that report concerns many of the substantial matters that will be dealt with in the upcoming court case. That report refers to the contract. It refers to the clause that Government used in deciding to break the contract. It refers to financial matters relating to the stoppage of the hospital and to grants of the contract, etcetera.

I find that it will be very difficult for me to discuss this comprehensively, and I ask you to stop me if, for any reason, I am on the verge of prejudicing the court case that is coming up. I give you that responsibility.

A similar thing happened yesterday with regard to the Northward Motion. In my opinion, if that report were to be discussed objectively it would no doubt have some bearing on the murder that took place at Northward Prison. If I got up in this House and started talking about all that was good and all that was bad about the Prison system that could certainly, in my opinion, affect the outcome of that murder trial.

There is no question that the entire medical fraternity objected, and I believe rightly objected, and were extremely opposed to the building of the new hospital, the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital, especially since, as we have already heard in this debate, it would mean that we would have a split site hospital. It would mean that inpatient and emergency services would be at the new hospital and outpatient and related services would be at the present site.

As a physician and surgeon, I would like to now begin to point out some of the problems that would arise as a result of working in a system like that.

Most people realise that one of the main reasons for expenditure in any health care systems is salary. A health care system, like the Fire Service and other 24 hour services, has to be staffed around the clock, therefore, in any one month, three months' of salaries have to be paid.

For the system to function efficiently it means that one has to ensure that only the staff needed to run the service is provided. Because of this, we at the George Town Hospital find ourselves in a very tricky position. We find, for instance, that while the workload sometimes can only justify a specialist in one area, you cannot expect that person to work 24 hours a day. Therefore, sometimes one can justify the requirement for another physician. Quite often two physicians are not employed full time.

If one looks at the number of cases and the amount of work those physicians have to do, one could be justified in saying that there is not sufficient work for two professionals. But because of the system we have and the situation we find ourselves in, we end up having to pay for those two professionals.

This situation would not be alleviated by having a split site hospital. What would happen is that a physician who is involved, for instance, in taking care of patients in the ward could not easily be utilised in taking care of patients in the outpatient department, and certainly not in emergency service.

I remember when I was employed full time at the George Town Hospital, it was a regular thing for me to be in the operating room and my services needed in the emergency department. As soon as I could get through with the case, then I would have to find myself in the emergency department to render the necessary service. Because of the proximity of the two places, I could easily do so.

I think the Minister mentioned too, and quite rightly so, the problem with the Paediatrician, for instance, doing an outpatient clinic at the present George Town Hospital and an emergency arising in the Paediatric or Neonatal Ward back in the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital. We do not have to spell it out, we can see the inconvenience that this would cause and the risk to human life.

This goes straight across the board when it comes to staffing of the hospital. There is no way that the split site hospital could be staffed with the same number of personnel as if everything is on one site. I believe that anyone thinking in his right mind could easily see why this could not be possible.

The Minister already told us about the duplication of materials, the duplication of such facilities as the sewerage processing plant, oxygen supplies. We know that whenever we can centralise a service, whenever we can use one to accomplish the functions of many, that there is a considerable savings, rather than having to build a service in two different facilities.

One of the things that made me disagree with the proposition of building a new hospital in the way that it was being planned, was that I kept asking what new services are going to be provided (that we are presently not providing) after such an expenditure? I do not believe people in the public are fully aware of the services that are now provided at our local hospital, and which were provided when these plans were entrained. I do not believe that they know of the services that are available.

We have a hospital that functions extremely well which offers an excellent service despite public opinion. We have a hospital where there are many trained professionals who work to provide this care. We find that, for instance, in the Department of Surgery, we are capable of doing all the usual general surgical procedures. We find that we can take care of all abdominal surgery—be they operations on the bowels, the liver, the kidney, the gall bladder, the prostate, the uterus, the ovaries—all of those operations are being done at the George Town Hospital, and being done successfully.

We find that even operations on the chest have been done successfully. Bullets have been removed from people's chests. Serious trauma has been managed successfully at the hospital. Then we have an Orthopaedic service there where all fractures can be treated, with, perhaps, the exception of some spinal injuries. But the common fractures of the long bones, of ribs, of the majority of bones, are treated successfully at the George Town Hospital.

Hip replacements, operations on the knees—I am talking about high-tech, modern procedures such as arthroscopy, where very, very small instruments known as arthroscopes are inserted into the knee joint through an incision of only half an inch, and with the help of video and camera one can do operations that would normally require a large incision. The hospital is at a level that is very up against the standards that are offered at major hospitals in Florida.

In the department of Radiology, we have a trained radiologist who can read X-rays. All conventional X-rays are done—ultrasound of the majority of organs; of the pelvic organs, the liver, spleen, pancreas, the gall bladder, the thyroid—all of these can be done right there in that little George Town Hospital.

We have come so far in our laboratory services. Only a few specimens now have to be sent abroad. What I have been very happy about in recent times is the presence of a pathologist. The pathologist is able to read specimens, pieces of tissue that are taken from various diseased organs. He can give you a report in little or no time. A decision can be taken as to what should be done with the patient.

Pap smears that had to go abroad are processed right here in the George Town Hospital. We have a neonatal unit that is constantly growing; it has the capability of life support, but because of certain restrictions (most of them relate to human resources), if that child is going to be on life support for too long, it is often advisable to send the child abroad to a neonatal unit. We know in a case like that one needs one-on-one nursing care, and it becomes very expensive to allocate one nurse to one child.

The maternity unit is extremely well equipped, and in this regard I must say that people would perhaps like to know that as far as perinatal mortality is concerned, we rank 6th in the world, with our great neighbour to the north rating 21st in the world. With regard to maternal mortality, we rank 7th in the world, the great United States ranks 16th.

Something has got to be right in the Cayman Islands about the health care system. These things are often ignored by the general public, mainly because of a lack of knowledge.

Public Health is always a very important part of medical care. If I had spoken yesterday, I would have said that I would be happier speaking about crime prevention. Similarly, what many energies are being concentrated on at the moment in the health care system is public health. It is much better to have many healthy people than many surgeons or doctors. There is an increased effort in providing excellent public health for our people. Right now, I think the incidents of communicable diseases are extremely low in this country because of what has been done in the field of immunisation and general sanitation and other things that have been implemented by the Public Health Department.

Then what cannot be dealt with at the George Town Hospital? Ninety-five percent of the conditions occurring in the Cayman Islands can be dealt with at George Town Hospital. There is a small percentage that has to go abroad. Why do these patients have to go abroad? Simply because it is not economical to provide such elaborate facilities for so few people. That will be the case for a long time yet. That would have been the case if this beautiful Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital had been built.

What I am in fact saying is that the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital would not have provided any new services to this country. That is something that is very, very significant. If it were not going to provide any new services, all it would be providing is a more aesthetic building and a more palatable, pleasant ambience.

It was very important for the Government to decide whether we should have given people a facility, or a building, at this particular time in our development, that they would be more comfortable in but perhaps have a twisted confidence in. It was more important for us to decide if we should spend our resources on that or should we, when we were so strapped for cash, try to solve so many of the more pressing financial problems that the Government was faced with immediately after its election.

I leave it to the public to decide if we have made the right choice. I believe without a doubt that the public in general supports the choice that the Government made.

It goes without saying that there was great objection to the hospital being placed on the proposed site. This was an opinion expressed far and wide in every corner of this Island. Some people felt that it was foolhardy to reclaim land and to try to put the hospital on reclaimed land. This is very expensive. Anyone in the business can tell you that reclaimed land is not cheap.

Then, we all know that reclaimed land tends to sink; it takes a long time to settle, and yet the Government of the day in their hurry to implement their ideas, seemed to be like a moth attracted to a flame—in a hurry to build a hospital. So much so, that a signing of the contract took place only a day before the National Elections. Something was wrong.

Sir Peter Allen has his opinions, but we have ours. Something was wrong. He himself pointed out the many irregularities and inconsistencies. He tried to draw the public's attention to this. And while he said there was not outright fraud, the transactions were not kosher. I learned that word since being in the House (Members' laughter).

Madam Speaker, another problem was that the hospital was off the beaten track. It was not on a main road. This would mean the expending of so much money on the road system. Imagine an ambulance trying to rush through Fern Gardens to the Hospital. We could not allow that. We would have to spend lots and lots of money on highways so that people could be transported there expeditiously in cases of emergency.

The other thing is that one has to make room for expansion. Every time in the future it would mean reclaiming more land at great expense to Government. There must be some dry land in this beautiful Island of Grand Cayman where the hospital could be built and where there is room for future expansion.

I think, the majority of speakers so far have concentrated on the economic reasons why this project was not feasible, but I would like to touch on a few.

Everything that we use in the medical field is imported. This seems to be the situation in almost every area of life in Grand Cayman. Salaries in the Cayman Islands (I think I am correct in saying—certainly for nurses, maybe not for doctors) is no lower than in the state of Florida. Salaries are high in the Cayman Islands. If we had gone ahead and built this hospital (whatever it was going to cost), and especially if this money was borrowed (which I believe it was going to be), then it would mean that that loan would have to be serviced. The Health Services Authority was thought to be the cure-all in this situation and we saw how much that did. It just confounded the whole situation and things were going from bad to worse.

What would have eventually happened is instead of paying $250 per day for a room, the cost of a room at the new hospital would have to be at least what it is in Florida. It is true that the Health Services, as it is now under Government, does not pay duty, but the Health Services Authority would have to pay duty and, therefore, the cost of materials would be more than in the United States, salaries would be similar—all-in-all, we would find that rates and fees and schedules would be no different from the State of Florida.

This would be the kind of burden that we would be bringing to bear on our people—escalating health care cost. It would get so burdensome that I believe we would see a greater number of people going to Florida for medical care than even what we now have.

In fact, recently I had to deal with a case where a local surgeon told a patient that to do a certain operation he would have to charge $5,000. That patient came to me and asked, "What can I do about this situation? I have insurance and I believe it would pay in the United States if I can get two doctors to refer me". When I contacted this local practitioner, he justified the fee of $5,000 to me, and I have no reason to doubt him. This is because of the great cost that he is finding to operate his own private practice in Grand Cayman. Then, why am I to believe that a privately run facility, run by the Health Service Authority, would be much different?

What the Member for Health in the last administration failed to do, was to implement a national health insurance and get that working and ensuring that it was functioning and serving its purpose before even contemplating a hospital. With that in place, perhaps we could have started to make plans for a new facility.

It is for this reason that I am constantly urging the Government of the day to work out all the details that need to be worked out so that we can have a national health insurance in place. I believe that before long the public will not have to worry about whether they have the money for medical care. I look forward to the day in Grand Cayman when any patient, irrespective of his medical condition, can get the medical care that he needs.

Presently it is not too far removed from that situation because of the Government's policies—the Government coming to the rescue and providing the necessary funds for such people to get medical care. But I believe a better system would be that of having a national health insurance and, as a result, the Government not being burdened by the high medical fees that often have to be coughed up to help people that cannot help themselves.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Member take an interruption at this time?

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: I will, thank you.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.05 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Thank you, Madam Speaker. We have to be extremely careful that we do not build a health service that becomes completely unaffordable to the residents of this Island. The Health Service has to remain affordable. Earlier on in my debate, I mentioned the risk of Health Care costs becoming so expensive that they are beyond the reach of the consumer here in Grand Cayman.

I think, I mentioned about a case that was going to cost $5,000 for a certain operation. I believe I said that the physician surgeon justified the cost. A similar operation in the Dade County area, at a respectable hospital, would have cost in the region of US$3,000. This is a dangerous situation because if this is an example of what could easily occur here, we would have an exodus of people going to the United States for surgery and all the health care facilities that we provide would come to naught, except for the emergency services.

What kind of cases are we now referring abroad? One is multiple trauma cases, these cases require intensive care treatment, quite often life support, and they are often best managed in a facility that provides this kind of service. Open heart surgery; brain and spinal cord surgery; these kinds of cases require not just the physicians and surgeons to manage them, but also require a massive investment in equipment. One of the most expensive things to run in a hospital is the Intensive Care Unit and the Emergency Department. Few people utilise it, comparatively speaking.

I think the Mover of the Motion mentioned that had the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital been built, then we could bring specialists from abroad and they could deliver the services at that hospital. The problem with that argument is that the Health Services Authority, at that point in time, was unable to make the major investment in providing the equipment necessary for these very elaborate procedures. Therefore, bringing the specialists here would not serve the purpose.

This is not to say that we should not be working to provide more advanced care, but there is a limit. The point that I am making is that it becomes completely ineffective, cost wise, impossible I should say, cost wise.

There are a number of persons who have to be abroad also for investigations that are unavailable in the Islands. We do not have, for instance, an MRI Scanner or a CAT Scanner, and there are instances where this sort of equipment would be very helpful to medical personnel. Up until this present time no one, including the Government, has been able to come up with the finances to provide such equipment.

An MRI Scanner costs approximately $1.2 million, and then it has to be serviced on a regular basis and, furthermore, a technician has to be employed, one who is capable of doing the scan, and also, people capable of reading it, there is an ongoing investment.

It is a similar thing with the CAT Scanner. We are talking about a major capital outlay, and since we happen to be fortunate enough to be in the strategic position that we are in, namely, one hour away from where these facilities are available, I believe any sensible Government would not invest in many of these pieces of equipment, etcetera, since it is not cost effective.

We are a population of 30,000, just a village in terms of large countries. It is true that we are insular, therefore we need to provide for ourselves better than, perhaps, a small village in Florida, an hour away from a major metropolitan area. But there is a limit to the amount that one can expend, and there is a point where it becomes nonsensical to make the investment when the facilities are just an hour away and when sound arrangements can be put in place to ensure that our people get the necessary care.

I am convinced that the decision made by the Government of the day is proper, a result of sound thinking. History will prove us right and I believe what is important now is that we continue in the right direction and we do not make errors such as the past administration has made.

Health Care planning is a very complex thing and I would like to congratulate the Ministry of Health in developing the strategic planning scheme which has been launched. This will enable so many different people, from so many different walks of life interested in the provision of health care, to give their input. As a result we are bound to come up with a health care system that will suit the majority of people in this country, those that we serve.

There is a difference in opinion, even among some of us in the Government, or those of us who support the Government, regarding all of the various steps that should be taken in upgrading the health service. But I am convinced, because of the Members of the Team, that we will come up with the right answer in the end, as far as the way forward is concerned.

I believe it will take a lot of cooperation on the part of all to ensure that we provide something that future generations will be proud of, which will serve us and our children.

Sometimes as I debate these issues I find that I become hopeless at politics. This subject is very near to my own heart because I am a physician who is extremely interested in people's welfare, and this is no place to play politics. I want to join forces with all of those who can make a difference in the Island to ensure proper medical care for our people.

Thank you very much.

The Speaker: No one else wishes to debate this Private Member's Motion? Would the Honourable Mover wish to reply?

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, in replying to this Motion, the first point that I would like to make is that the whole point of this Motion has been missed by almost all of the speakers who have spoken to it.

The chief point to be understood is that there is no attempt to make any determination or to arrive at any position of whether it was right or wrong, legally, that the construction of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital was stopped. The fact is, it was stopped. The fact is that thousands of square feet of a potential building sits under the burning sun in Grand Cayman and the only utilisation that is made of part of it is that of a Refugee Camp.

That building, in its outline and to the extent that it has been constructed, was purpose built. In other words it was built for the specific purpose of delivering health services to the people of these Islands.

Cayman Brac got lucky, in one instance that I can think of, and it has a beautiful small hospital which came as a result of this whole package which gives that island certain capabilities. But the cases that could not be handled there, if the staff and equipment were not available, could be referred to this new facility.

All of us can exaggerate at times and that is something that everyone understands. It is necessary sometimes to be funny, or whatever, so exaggerations are in order. But on some occasions it is not necessarily desirable or acceptable, in my opinion.

In the report of the Commissioner, under one of the sections that deals with contracts, is Kitchen Equipment Contract, and I would just like to read this as it is brief, and it refers to something that the present Minister for Health and at least one other speaker, said about the kitchen and meals and so on. The Commissioner has stated here: "Tenders for this equipment were reviewed by Mr Larry Kimbro, a senior associate of Systems Design International Inc. in Washington, who recommended to HSA that Baring Industries be awarded the contract for $258,344.” (page 33)

Now I wonder if this was for pudding pans that they were going to put in the present George Town site?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order. Standing Order 35, Clarification. The matter the Member is talking about was going to be equipment for the present George Town Hospital kitchen.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman please continue, that was a point of clarification. Since you gave way, the Honourable Minister was able to score a debating point.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, had I known it was not a Point of Order I would never have taken my seat. The $258,344 could not have been equipment to go into the present George Town site, for all speakers have said that that has to be taken down and changes have to be made.

It most certainly could not be such a thing for the mere fact that the present Minister for Health, and the one prior who destroyed the chances of having a good hospital, have both said that the site on which the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital sits was to be an inpatient facility. So, a straight forward question would then be; if that is going to be an inpatient facility, why would a kitchen be put down in the old George Town site that was supposed to be for outpatients? Whom does one feed in a hospital—those that go to have a bandage changed, or those who lie in a hospital bed?

That statement about this being put in the old George Town Hospital site is as erroneous, I believe, as any that I have heard in this house on the numerous occasions that I have heard them.

However, one thing is certain: The industry in the United States that supplies hospital kitchen equipment must have been sent quite a message by what happened in Grand Cayman for as I continue to read from this section, it says: “The CEO of the HSA signed a letter of intent with Mr Charles Sperry, Executive Vice-President of Baring Industries, on 17 July 1992 and a contract was signed on 10 September. A letter of credit for that amount was prepared but was stopped before it could be issued.” (page 33)

I wonder if one of the amounts was paid to this particular company because the Government did not live up to its agreement? I wonder what effect that has had on the people of the Cayman Island's Government?

I no more believe—

POINT OF ORDER

(Misleading)

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Madam Speaker, just for a Point of Clarification, please, may I interrupt?

The Speaker: If the Member will give way.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you.

On page 32 of the report, in dealing with equipment contracts that the Member just referred to, it clearly states: “...when the project was terminated, letters of credit were also stopped before any had actually been issued.” (Page 32, paragraph 3) Therefore, nothing in any way can discredit the Government by claiming that the suppliers received irrevocable letters of credit that the Health Services had initiated. This says that they had actually not been issued. Therefore, that is not correct, what the Member just stated.

The Speaker: You have made your point, Honourable Member.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, please continue.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, it is actually 4.30...

The Speaker: I think I have the privilege of calling the House to order at 4.30—and it is just about that time. If you will not be terminating your reply within a very short time.

..

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: No, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: At this time I shall ask the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business to move the Motion for the adjournment of the House.

Honourable Minister, please.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock, Wednesday morning, the 15th of June.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye, those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until 10 o'clock, Wednesday, 15th June, 1994.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 15 JUNE 1994.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
15 JUNE 1994
10.08 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: Apologies have been received from the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning, and from the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Questions to Honourable Ministers. Question 93, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 93

No. 93: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member to provide a report on the recent exercise to recruit teachers from overseas.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: A team consisting of the Permanent Secretary (Personnel), the Acting Chief Education Officer, the Senior Assistant Secretary (Personnel) and the Principal of the George Hicks High School interviewed 48 teachers in England, between 2nd and 13th May 1994. Of the 48, 19 successful candidates were offered posts teaching in the following areas in: George Hicks High School: Music; General Sciences; Geography; Information Technology; Mathematics; Physics; General; Sciences/Mathematics; English; Language and Literature; Home Economics; Technical Studies; Music Peripatetic (shared). John Gray High School: Information Technology. Cayman Brac High School: Music Peripatetic. Education Department: Education Psychologist.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say whether any teachers were recruited from other jurisdictions, but, was this the complement of the recruit?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, to the best of my knowledge this was the entire recruitment for the forthcoming school year.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 94, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 94

No. 94: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation how many scholarships does Government expect to award over the next two years.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Over the past year Government has awarded approximately 30 scholarships per year for study overseas. It is reasonable to expect that this trend will continue over the next two years.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden

Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if there are preferential areas for scholarships, and if so, can he give the House some of these areas?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, this question will not be allowed because I think this was published in the newspapers quite recently.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if there is any reason why the number of scholarships may be increased over the next two years?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I answered this question to begin with, even though it is an expression of opinion. I am not prepared to delve any further into opinions other than saying what I have said in this question.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would take the responsibility to see if Government would consider students going to the United States and Canada for medical scholarships. I believe no consideration is given to students seeking to study in the medical field in the United States due to the difficulty of being accepted by the medical schools. I would kindly ask that you give an undertaking—

The Speaker: Excuse me. Excuse me. The Honourable Minister, please . . . you are speaking through the Chair. Thank you.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I will give that undertaking. The Education Council is looking at this. The problem we have had giving scholarships for pre-med to universities in the United States, for persons who are not citizens of the United States (and I want to stress that), if you are not a citizen of the United States, it is extremely difficult, nearly impossible, to get into the medical schools.

What had been happening is that those students would go through three or four years of pre-med, they then could not get entered into a medical school and became very frustrated and upset. It was on that basis, I understand, that what we now attempt to do is to get them into a university where they will stand a reasonable chance of going on to medicine, such as in the United Kingdom or the University of the West Indies or one of the British places who normally do not have a citizenship bar.

It is a real problem and it is being looked at again, and I give an undertaking to the Honourable Member that I will review it, and I will further discuss it with her. It is a very good point and one that I think needs looking at again.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say, in light of the limited resources, whether or not there is any preference given to born Caymanians as far as scholarships?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Law which embodies the regulations in the schedule has only Caymanian Status as one of the criteria, and that remains what now guides the Education Council.

But I would like to mention that everyone who qualified under the criteria, at least since the National Team Government got in, have, to the best of my knowledge, gotten scholarships. So we have not had to reach a stage where we are choosing within persons of Caymanian Status. But it is a lot of money that Government puts out on this.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if, in light of the apparent competitiveness and the increasing numbers of applicants, any areas of scholarships other than the traditional ones, that is, Government and Private Sector have been explored?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There are other areas of scholarships, such as the Commonwealth Scholarships and scholarships that are given, for example, from the World College. Any area that we can find that will give scholarships then, naturally we pursue these.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 95, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 95

No. 95: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation to provide an annual breakdown of money paid to Cayman Airways Limited by Government over the past ten years.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Government paid a total of CI$40,467,661 to Cayman Airways Limited from 1983 to June 1994, broken down as in the schedule hereto:

Year	Subsidy	Recapitalisation
1983	-	-
1984	-	-
1985	-	$6,050,920
1986	$ 2,500,074	-
1987	$ 1,050,000	-
1988	$ 1,050,000	-
1989	$ 1,050,000	-
1990	$ 1,050,000	-
1991	$ 1,050,000	-
1992	$ 4,000,000	-

I would like to point out that the years 1983 and 1984 were the years when I was in Government prior to that.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I would like to ask the Honourable Minister if based on this schedule, there are likely to be any areas in the operation of Cayman Airways which would necessitate an increase in the subsidy over the next year or two, that is, during the time in which Cayman Airways Limited is expected to change or upgrade its equipment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is an expression of opinion that I dare not delve into. All I can really say is that Cayman Airways has been full of economic surprises and I would really have to be nearly a magician to try to figure out what will be the next surprise.

I do not think it would be fair for me to try to give that opinion other than to say that Cayman Airways is stabilised. Anything that does arise will hopefully be in the normal course of business.

I did mention, like in relation to the cost of those jets, when they are up to be replaced, I really would not like to say how much it would cost to lease them because the market is very volatile in the aviation business.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 96, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman who is not present and the questions, therefore, fall away.

QUESTIONS 96, 97 AND 98 FALL AWAY

[No. 96: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation if Cayman Airways Limited is studying the feasibility of exercising its option to purchase in November 1996 the two 727 aircraft from Alaska Air which were purchased from Cayman Airways

Limited and returning them to service on its routes.]

[No. 97: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation if the Civil Aviation Authority has long term plans for the terminal facilities, runway extension, and taxi-ways.]

[No. 98: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation what percentage of passengers to and from Jamaica to Cayman were carried by Cayman Airways Limited during 1992 and 1993 and during the past four months of 1994.]

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: I would like to welcome back the Honourable Third Official Member from his tour of official duty, to his duty in the House.

Statements by Members of Government. The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Communications and Works.

STATEMENTS BY MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

UPDATE ON 1994 AGRICULTURE SHOW

Hon. John B. McLean: The Department of Agriculture is currently assisting the Cayman Islands Agricultural Society with extensive preparation for this year's Agricultural Show which will be held for the first time at the Society's New Agricultural Pavilion in Lower Valley. Show Day will be July 4th, 1994, and will offer the public a whole new environment with many added attractions for the whole family. To say the least, it will be alcohol free with no alcohol allowed.

The building was completed on 15th January, 1994, at a cost of $372,632.00. One major area of activity that has been ongoing since January 1994, is the preparation of the grounds surrounding the Pavilion. Filling and levelling of the site continues to date. A considerable portion of this material has been donated and equipment services have been provided by various society members and well-wishers.

The site works will cease on June 30th, and it is planned that some acceptable landscaping should be completed for this year's show to be held. Further work will be carried out during the remainder of the period until next year's show.

Organisational plans are in place with the appointment of the various committees that will bear the duties and responsibilities for a successful show day. Official invitations to this year's show have been extended to colleagues and interested parties from Jamaica, Florida and Costa Rica.

For the first time, the Society and, indeed, the farming community will have a purpose built facility which will not only cater to their annual show, but to their monthly meetings. For this the Cayman Islands' Agricultural Society is most grateful to my Government.

Government continues to support farming in the Cayman Islands and this was borne out by a very recent workshop which was put on by the Ministry and the Department of Agriculture.

REPORT ON THE RECENT SOIL AND WATER MANAGEMENT WORKSHOP GRAND CAYMAN,
APRIL 13-19, 1994

Hon. John B. McLean: The Department of Agriculture, in conjunction with the Continuing Education Programme in Agricultural Technology (CEPAT) of the University of the West Indies, recently held a workshop on the Management of the soil and water resources of the Cayman Islands in the pursuit of agricultural development.

This Workshop was held with the objective of training our local farmers in the proper use of soil and water on their farms, in order to minimise any possible harmful impacts on the environment whilst maximising the productivity of their operations.

This training programme represents an important aspect of the approach to agricultural development that Government is pursuing, whereby the conservation of the environment is given priority, as this is so vital to the overall economic well being of these Islands.

The Department of Agriculture was assisted in coordinating the course by Professor Nazeer Ahmad, who represented CEPAT, and is also Professor of Soil Science at the University of the West Indies, St. Augustine, Trinidad. He was ably assisted by other Caribbean experts in irrigation technology, as well as specialists from our own Department of Agriculture.

Presentations were made to the farmers in attendance on areas such as conservative exploitation of ground water to avoid problems such as salinisation, the careful use of pesticides to avoid pollution of our environment, and practical methods of storing and treating water to enhance irrigation systems.

A pleasing aspect of the Workshop was the fact that various Departments of the Cayman Islands Government made significant contributions to its success by assisting with presentations and providing other forms of support. These included the Water Authority, the Department of the Environment, the Public Works Department, the Personnel Training Unit and the Ministry of Sports.

A total of 44 persons participated in the Workshop, representing a cross section of farmers and other members of the public. This Workshop was the first of its kind in the Cayman Islands and the first event to be held at the new Agricultural Pavilion in Lower Valley. The Cayman Islands Agricultural Society played a significant role in ensuring the full participation of the farming community, and for this, they should be given credit.

As is customary with workshops of this nature, feedback was sought from the participants to determine whether they felt they had benefited from attendance. The vast majority expressed satisfaction with both the content and organisation of the Workshop. They felt confident that the new techniques and skills in soil and water management that they had learned could be applied to their farms and should improve their operations significantly. Effort will be made by CEPAT and the Department of Agriculture, during the course of 1995, to gain further feedback from participants to verify that these improvements had been made to their farms.

The Ministry of Agriculture, Communications and Works and the Department of Agriculture are extremely pleased with the outcome of this Workshop and will continue to pursue meaningful training programmes to upgrade the skills of our local farmers. In continuation of this approach, the Department will be focusing next on the upgrading of skills in the small scale food processing sector, as this is seen as having the potential to diversify agricultural production in the Cayman Islands.

I would again thank all members for their support in Finance Committee of my proposal for the funds to make the Agricultural Pavilion a reality. An open invitation is extended to all members to attend the official opening on the 4th of July at a time to be announced and also the annual Agricultural Show on the same day.

GOVERNMENT'S REASONS FOR NOT DEBATING
PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 12/94

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: The Honourable Second Official Member has expressed the reasons why Members of the Government opted not to debate Private Member's Motion No. 12/94 on the report of the Prison Inspector—Northward Prison. The Government had earlier considered the report, accepted all but one of its recommendations and made the report public. All Honourable Members of the House were provided with copies of the report in advance of it being made public. In making the report public, the Government issued a press statement summarising the main features of the report.

The following is the text of the statement issued on 12 May 1994:

"His Excellency the Governor has released in full the report of Judge Stephen Tumin, Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Prisons, following a review of the Prison's management, administration and security.

"The Key recommendations in Judge Tumin's report are for an extensive programme of staff training and a development of a fuller regime of activities and related facilities for prisoners. `Except for one secondary recommendation, the report has been accepted in its entirety', said Chief Secretary Lemuel Hurlston. `Government is now undertaking its implementation with particular regard to staff training and an enhanced programme of activities for inmates', he said.

"The one week inspection which took place in April involved interviews with both staff and inmates. Judge Tumin also benefited from input from Mr. Christopher Gibbard, Prison Reform Coordinator for the British Dependent Territories in the Caribbean. Mr. Gibbard had visited the prison in January at the request of the Governor to examine management and administrative ramifications of the incident which led to the death of Mr. James Powell.

"Mr. Gibbard's recommendations have been endorsed and incorporated in Judge Tumin's report. Mr. Gibbard identified the need for full emergency plans, inmate categorisation, the introduction of a personal officer scheme, control and restraint training, middle management training, hostage management, a review of the Prison Rules and segregation of prisoners who cannot cope within the prison community.

"He also made recommendations in respect of press relations.

"A number of these recommendations have already been implemented including a proposal for a basic training course for prison officers. Mr. Hurlston said that the three-week course that will be taught by Mr. Gibbard is scheduled to commence shortly. Other courses have been arranged to take place during the course of this year.

"These and other aspects of training will eventually become the full responsibility of the Prison Training Officer who was recently appointed.

"Further to this training programme, the facility's Senior Management Team had been introduced to the principles of the Personal Officer Scheme. This recommendation aims to train staff in the importance of individuals' activities and relationships in prison, with each officer responsible for the care of a group of inmates.

"As a result of another recommendation, Acting Director of Prisons, Mr. Eric Smith will be departing in early June for a three month secondment to Her Majesty's Prison Service, the Chief Secretary disclosed.

"The Deputy Superintendent of Prisons in the British Virgin Islands will be appointed to serve as interim director during Mr. Smith's absence. 'There will be a suitable handing over period', Mr. Hurlston said.

"Equally expeditious treatment will be applied to recommendations in respect of development of an appropriate scheme of supervised work, leisure and educational activities for inmates', Mr. Hurlston said.

"Judge Tumin noted that this more intensive programme was necessary in order for prisoners to become accustomed, as far as possible, to a full day's work. Long term women prisoners need to be more suitable provided for in this regime, the report said, and identifies certain needs such as, better exercise space, an additional classroom, an education grant in the prison budget and an increase in the level of facilities for work activities and vocational training.

"Judge Tumin has proposed modification to the rule barring foreign inmates from working outside the prison. This has contributed to a preponderance of jobs within the prison being undertaken by foreign inmates.

"The work of the Prison Education Coordinator, Mr. Adam McIntyre drew positive comments with Judge Tumin reporting that he was impressed by the work now being done by about 45 of the inmates. However, Judge Tumin said that generally, education had not been given the prominence it deserved and pointed to the need for music, crafts courses and more vocational skills training. Medical facilities and provisions also came in for praise.

"Although the prison population had declined to 1988 levels, the report noted that there had been complaints of staff shortages. Judge Tumin recommended a manpower study before decisions on additional staff were made, but noted that the demand for escorts for prisoners may be a big factor.

"With the majority of prisoners incarcerated on drug related charges, Judge Tumin called for an increase in drug counselling and fuller searching programmes for drugs and weapons. He noted that drugs are apparently being thrown over the fence into the prison by members of the public and reflected reports that in spite of serious attempts on the part of management a high proportion of inmates took marijuana regularly.

"At the same time the Prison Director should be given wider discretion to deal with matters too minor to require attention of the Police.

"Aspects of movements of inmates for court appearances were also a matter of concern. Judge Tumin proposed that the prison service be limited to delivering and collecting of prisoners to and from the court with the police otherwise responsible. This would substantially reduce the heavy call on the prison service to provide escorts. He called for screens to cover the movement of inmates in and out of court and provision of a sound proof door or doors in the court and the area where prisoners wait to be called into court.

"He also recommended that Magistrates either conduct remand hearings within the prison or, alternatively, extend the mandate for a 7 day remand period to 28 days. Mr. Hurlston said that Government was inclined to adopt the option of conducting remand hearings at the prison instead of the latter.

"Other recommendations pertained to provision of a proper visiting area other than the main gate and that prisoners not be handcuffed for visits.

"Further security recommendations included modification of cell doors to enable them to open both ways and the availability of a door jack.

"Key chains should also be worn by Prison Officers in possession of security keys. The only recommendation that failed to be accepted was for the reduction of the panel of 36 persons appointed by the Governor in Council to conduct inspections of the prison on a regular basis. This panel comprises Justices of the Peace, Magistrates and other suitable persons. Judge Tumin recommended that this panel be reduced to 6 or 8 who would perform the same functions and meet with the director in a regular basis.

“Mr. Hurlston said that the recommendation was not accepted because it was believed that the voluntary services of a visiting panel should be shared by a larger number of suitable persons. In a preface to his recommendations, Mr. Tumin expressed general satisfaction with the staff/prisoner relations and with the new acting Director's efforts adjusting the prison regime to achieving better discipline and control. ‘We were satisfied in general that relations between staff and prisoners were appropriate’, the report said.

“Over all he recommended the adoption of the United Kingdom Prison Services Mission Statement as a guiding principle to the for the Prison's operation and development. That statement places and emphasis on looking after inmates with humanity and generally helping them to lead law abiding and useful lives in custody and after release.

“Government is committed to implementing these recommendations and, indeed, as noted in the editorial of the Caymanian Compass newspaper of Tuesday, 14th June 1994, some recommendations have already been acted upon very speedily.

“With appropriate training and enhanced confidence the management of the Prison will (with increased openness) develop a positive relationship with the general public, dispelling misconceptions whenever possible.”

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 24(5)

The Speaker: Other Business, Private Members' Motions, Suspension of Standing Order 24(5). The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In accordance with the Provisions of Standing Order 83, I, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, move the suspension of Standing Order 24(5), to enable a Private Member's Motion without due notice, to be moved.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to second that Motion.

The Speaker: The question before the House is the suspension of Standing Order 24(5) for the purpose as stated. The question is open for debate.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: A situation has arisen and it is a situation where, politics aside, I think a common courtesy is being requested. I would hope that all Honourable Members would see it fit to vote so that we can have this business effected and that the end result can be a reflection of the gentlemanly behaviour with which the Westminster System has come to be associated and with which the Westminster System has come to be synonymous. I appeal to all Honourable Members to support the Motion and express premature thanks to them for doing so.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, we sympathise with the Opposition, but we feel that the business of this House cannot be disrupted in such a fashion. There are numerous other Motions on the Order Paper to be taken, and we feel that the business of the House has to go on.

This Meeting has been drawn out and we believe that the Opposition has not been curtailed in their debate in any fashion. They have had full say, in fact, they have had more say than anybody else, and we do not think we are doing anyone an injustice by not accepting this type of adjournment of a debate. The House well knows, as far as the Westminster System is concerned (the Member referred to the Westminster System), when a Member has risen to speak, and the House adjourns and reconvenes and that Member is not in his place, another Member is called upon to speak, and another item of business is moved. We have not heard any reasons, in the Member's explanation, why this matter should be adjourned in this fashion.

I heard some talk on the outside of the Chamber that there was a graduation ceremony taking place, and I can sympathise with that in a humanly manner, but, surely, graduations do not happen on the spur of the moment or on a few day's notice. These matters are very timely and well planned. Therefore, the Government feels that we cannot disrupt the business of this House when we have several other motions to deal with, such as the Coastal Surveillance and the Judicial Review and the Assistance for Volunteer Servicemen and their Spouses. As far as I am concerned, these are all very important national matters that need to be taken and if we can do it, the House should finish today.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: It seems like the Government has taken their position. I would just like to make a few comments. First of all, let me say that personally I see no logic in what is said to be a disruption. The other Motions that are before us, which I do agree are very important, will still be dealt with if this suspension of Standing Orders is allowed, in fact they will be dealt with more expeditiously.

There is no attempt to delay anything in this Honourable House. It is simply an attempt, because of a peculiar circumstance, to shift the goings on of the Honourable Legislative Assembly around.

Suffice it to say that if the Government takes the position that by way of number they are not going to allow the suspension of the Standing Order, it cannot be justifified that the reasoning is because to allow the suspension is disruption. In my opinion, it is simply that instead of hearing something today, it will be heard tomorrow. All else will be heard, there will be nothing less done.

So, on a very personal level, I see no reason for the logic that has been put forth as the Government's reasoning. I therefore support it.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, would the mover of the Motion wish to exercise his right to reply?

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: When I was a youngster growing up, my mother was given to admonishing me sometimes by explaining that there were some things called common courtesies. I believe that this is one of them.

This is a matter that does not have to do with any collective vote, so I would appeal to Members to exercise their conscience.

The Honourable Member who would have been on the floor at this time was called away. That Honourable Member, certainly his conduct in this House suggests that he is a responsible Member and through force of circumstances beyond his control, he had to be absent.

The House will not be severely inconvenienced since it is my information that the Honourable Member will be back on the Island this evening and is prepared to continue his debate tomorrow, should that be the wish of the Honourable House.

The Government is, no doubt, in a position of strength, but being in a position of strength does not mean that one should not exercise compassion and understanding when such is requested. There is but little I can say to add to the request which has been put forward by my colleague, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, and myself, other than to say that it may be that at some stage down the line we may be in a position to return the favour to the Government.

I end on the note that all Honourable Members have a chance to exercise their conscience and good judgment. I do not see this as any political motion, and they will not be castigated or severely affected if they vote in support of the Motion and I indulge their support.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question before the House is suspension of Standing Orders 24(5). I shall put the question.

Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES AND NOES

The Speaker: The noes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May we have a division?

The Speaker: You certainly may.
Madam Clerk.

MOTION TO SUSPEND STANDING ORDER 24(5) NEGATED BY MAJORITY

The Speaker: Continuing with the Orders of the day, Private Member's Motion 14/94. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 14/94

IMPORTATION OF TURTLES (WITHDRAWAL OF MOTION) (Standing Order 24 (14))

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, in light of the recent statement by the Honourable Minister of Tourism (whose responsibility includes the Cayman Islands Turtle Farm), of the Farm's intention to increase its production of turtle meat by 56 per cent by the 1st of August 1994, and increased annually thereafter, it is also intended that the increase in production will be made available to local residents and not restaurants, it appears that this increase in turtle meat production will eventually be sufficient to satisfy the local demand.

I have also been made aware that the Turtle Farm is now conducting negotiations with the CITES body with regard to the Farm once again being able to trade commercially on the international market. It appears that this is a good possibility and any attempt to approach CITES with regard to consideration of trading in wild greed turtle at this time may jeopardise the Turtle Farm negotiations and favourable consideration.

In light of the above mentioned factors, and in accordance with Standing Order 24(14), I beg to withdraw Private Member's Motion 14/94 entitled Importation of Turtles.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: I rise in support.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that in accordance with Standing Order 24(14), Private Member's Motion 14/94 be withdrawn. If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 14/94 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion 15/94.
The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 15/94

ASSISTANCE FOR VOLUNTEER SERVICEMEN AND THEIR SPOUSES

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, I beg to move Private Member's Motion 15/94, Assistance for Volunteer Servicemen and their Spouses.

"WHEREAS during the Second World War some Caymanian men volunteered for service in the Trinidad Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve;

"AND WHEREAS the Trinidad Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve was an adjunct of the British Royal Navy;

"AND WHEREAS most of these volunteers gave commendable service and received honourable discharges, service medals and ribbons at the end of their service;

"AND WHEREAS these kinds of servicemen are held in high esteem among many countries;

"AND WHEREAS many of these Caymanian volunteers are now in their senior years;

"AND WHEREAS some of these volunteers have died leaving spouses with no fixed income or dependable means of livelihood;

"AND WHEREAS some of these volunteers and the surviving spouses have expressed a desire for consideration;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the Government investigate the possibility of providing some form of financial assistance to the deserving cases of these people."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion 15/94 is now before the House and is open for debate. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, this Motion seeks for some financial consideration to be given to those men from these Islands who volunteered more than 50 years ago to serve in what was then the Trinidad Naval Volunteer Reserve.

In 1941, 200 volunteer left these Islands to go to Trinidad. Very little has been thought about the matter since, but these men played a crucial part in the democracy of the entire world because they went to Trinidad to replace trained soldiers and naval personnel who had to be withdrawn from Trinidad to man the ships of the British Navy.

This was at the most important period of the war, the time when Great Britain stood alone. The year 1941 was the year when Hitler had overrun all of Europe, the United States had not yet entered into the war and did not do so until 7th December when Pearl Harbour was attacked.

The importance of Trinidad was vital to the survival of Britain because Trinidad at that time was the only British possession that had a supply of oil—the most important and vital ingredient needed for fighting a war. It is true that at the time Britain had some oil interests in Iraq and Iran but it was not possible to bring that oil because of the German submarines and because of the distance. These men left here at a time when very little was known about the evils of the outside world, some of the young ones did not know what they were going to go through. But they gave their services and it turned out to be a Yeoman's service that resulted in great benefits, not only for these Islands, but for the British Commonwealth and the world as a whole.

Of those men who left here, three of them died in Trinidad. I do not believe any of them saw service on the battle front, but they performed what is known as back up services in that they were instrumental in fuelling the ships which carried the troops and the ammunition, even the great liner the Queen Mary had been refuelled in Trinidad prior to taking a load of men into the North African Campaign. They also dealt with mine sweeping and many other important tasks.

The job that these men did cannot be measured in dollars and cents and they were paid very little, their wages were small, indeed, even compared to the standards of 1940. As a result of that, very few of them were able to save any money and I doubt if any one of them today can show any personal benefits from the sacrifices that they made.

The Motion has only one resolve section, which asks the Government to investigate the possibility of providing some form of financial assistance to the deserving cases of these people.

You will note that this Motion does not ask for a Select Committee to be set up. I am not casting any aspersions to Committees of the House, but, generally speaking, a Committee is only a group of people who individually can do nothing, but collectively they get together and decide that nothing can be done (Members' laughter). So this Motion does not ask for a Committee it simply asks that Government investigate the matter.

It is my hope that the Third Official Member, that is, the Honourable Financial Secretary, will examine this case and, perhaps with the help of Executive Council, make a recommendation for the finance Committee so that some assistance may be given. I do not want to put words in their mouths, nor deeds in their hands, but perhaps it would be good if some form of pension, however small could be provided for those who remain.

If one examines the resolve section closely, one will notice that it says, "financial assistance to the deserving cases of these people," which means that the Government is not compelled to help every individual. If there happens to be some people who are well off and who have no need of the assistance, and, perhaps, there are some of these original 200 who have left these Islands and never returned and are doing well in some foreign land and may not apply for any assistance under the scheme.

I would like to commend this Motion to the House and ask that the Members give it favourable treatment, and I would like to close by saying that quite recently (I think it was last week), the whole world celebrated the D-Day Landing in Europe. An event like that would never have been possible if it had not been for the action of the group like the 200 who left here in 1941.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, this is a worthy request and one that Government can support. Government feels that this is a matter deserving of examination, and quite rightly, as the Member says, veterans are deserving of some type of assistance.

Veterans in other countries get all sorts of benefits—hospital benefits, pensions—and I believe that while the British veterans do get a pension, even those here who are not so connected as our veterans, we believe that we can accede to this request.

Many of these TRNVR Boys, as they used to call them in those days, have passed on to higher rewards. They had the joy of believing that they made a contribution to their country and fellow man. In my district, many of these now elderly gentlemen still talk about it, and it is very interesting when they tell about their experiences during that time. My own colleague, the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, Mr. Dalmain Ebanks, was one of those who went to Trinidad to do his part for his country, and I must say that many of them go as unsung heroes. Many of them are in need. I know. I have been in contact with them.

So, this is a worthwhile cause and I am glad to see that the Member is not calling for a Committee, because, like he rightly said, you get tied up a long time when you set up a Committee. This does not need long time investigation, as I do not believe that it will be any pressure on the finances of this country as there should not be a lot of these gentlemen around today. It may be that if there are widows in need that the Government can not only look at the veterans themselves, but those widows who would be in need today. This is one of the areas that I am concerned about.

I should say to the House, talking about any kind of pension, that my Ministry is now looking into the matter of a pension for the country and will soon announce a Committee, some of whom I hope will be members of this House. Government supports the resolution.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: There is little one can add to a Motion so ably moved by my colleague, and which was so readily accepted by the Government, except to say that it evokes the old Caymanian sense of pride to think that in 1941 there were 200 young Caymanian men who were so committed that they volunteered and the emphasis should be on volunteered for service in what could have well been a theatre for war.

Mention was made by my colleague of the 50th anniversary of D-Day. Anyone watching those celebrations would know that as great as the sacrifices were of those who lost their lives on the beaches of France, there were also those in the supporting cast who, while not exactly in the line of fire or on the Battle field, made, comparatively speaking, no smaller sacrifices. Those who were responsible for the logistics, for refuelling the ships, for stacking the ammunition and so forth.

So, it is with this realisation in mind and the result of an approach by some of these surviving volunteers, and the widowed spouses of others, that this Motion is brought to the floor of this House. I am glad that the Government has seen fit to accept the undertaking requested, and can only hope that the matter is dealt with as expeditiously as possible, as this is one way of letting our senior citizens, especially those who made sacrifices, know that although at that time it was inconceivable, as some of us were not around, we still appreciate what they did. By their gesture and by their volunteering, they made the world a safer and better place for those of us who have survived and come of age at this time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: I rise to give my full support to this Motion now before the House, and I wish to congratulate the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town for bringing this Motion at this time.

I have terrific respect for these gentlemen who volunteered their service in time of war and helped defend not only us, but the people around the free world. We also must realise that in addition to those who volunteered to go to Trinidad many men of that generation volunteered their services in the Merchant Marine. Many of the younger people of today may not realise that the Caribbean was also a war zone at that time, as German submarines were sinking ships right in sight of Grand Cayman, Little Cayman and Cayman Brac. So we were not removed from the hostilities of World War II, like we were in later conflicts which the younger people are more familiar with.

I, myself, had some military training and realise that the organised training is absolutely necessary, the discipline you learn sticks with you forever. But you cannot do it alone. The support services are very essential. If the front line troops do not have ammunition, they cannot fight, if they do not have food they cannot survive, so it takes the combined efforts of all to make it possible to win a war and the peace that we all enjoy.

So, I would like to ask the Honourable Minister if, when they look at this, they will go a little bit further than just the 200 Volunteers that went to Trinidad, but look to see if there are any elderly spouses surviving their husbands who fought in the Merchant Navy or any other service during the war. It could be extended not only to supply their needs, but as a position of gratitude for the services which they rendered to this country and the world.

So, with these few words, I give this Motion my full support.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This Motion brought before this House for consideration gives me great satisfaction. I remember during the campaign leading up to the election a visit to some of these people. There are a handful of them in our district, and this was one of the things that the survivors, especially the widows in the districts, when we saw the conditions in which they live, the assistance that they needed to just barely survive, what we take for granted. I must commend the Mover and the Seconder for bringing this Motion to this House.

I was a veteran of the United States Army and I know the recognition that is given within the United States for veterans. I, as a Caymanian, benefited under the G.I. Bill and was able to go to college. When I look around and see the sacrifices that have been made by our old-time Caymanians that are now living to guarantee freedom not only to these Islands but throughout the world, I think that the survivors deserve no less than some credit in the form of financial remuneration so that in their elderly age they will be able to get some relief.

I fully support this Motion.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate I would ask the Mover of the Motion if he would like to exercise his right of reply. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, my reply will be brief and if it were not for the importance I attach to this Motion I could condense it to one word, and that would be "Thanks."

I would like to add to the men who went to Trinidad. The Cayman Islands sent them by far the largest contingent. There were men from other British Dependencies in the Caribbean, but the Cayman Contingency was far larger than any other Island. It is also my understanding that most of these other territories have provided some post war monetary compensation. We would just be following what they had done.

Two Ministers mentioned that veterans have received, in some instances, not only monetary compensation, but educational benefit and medical benefits. So, there is nothing extraordinary about our move. One Member mentioned that most of these men, who were young at the time, are now in their declining years and are suffering hardships, particularly where there are surviving spouses there may even be abject poverty.

The Minister for Health mentioned that during the election campaign we had been solicited by two or three individuals about doing something for these people.

To close, this action would show the country's appreciation for those who served in the war and would also be a mark of respect for those who served so valiantly. Again, I would like to thank the entire House for its support.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion 15/94, Assistance for Volunteer Servicemen and their spouses. "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the Government investigate the possibility of providing some form of financial assistance to the deserving cases of these people." I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion has accordingly been passed.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 15/94 PASSED UNANIMOUSLY.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 16/94

COASTAL SURVEILLANCE

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I beg to move Private Member's Motion 16/94, entitled Coastal Surveillance, which reads as follows:

“WHEREAS illegal drugs and firearms are becoming a serious problem in the Cayman Islands;

“AND WHEREAS it is suspected that the majority of these illegal drugs and firearms are being brought in by sea;

“AND WHEREAS as a result of the abundance of illegal drugs and firearms serious crime is now on the rise in these Islands;

“BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED that Government look into ways of stemming the flow of illegal drugs and firearms into the Cayman Islands by sea by looking at the possibility of establishing a proper coastal surveillance system.”

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: I rise to support this Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion 16/94, having been moved and seconded is now open for debate.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: To set the stage for the necessity of bringing this Motion, I think we have to come to grips with the situation as it now exists in these Islands, as far as serious crime is concerned.

There is no question that serious crime is on the increase in this country. The majority of these crimes are drug related and involve people who are engaged in the drug trafficking business. What is also alarming is the fact that the majority of crimes that we hear about today, that is, the serious crimes, involve the use of firearms, and illegal firearm.

I recall being told by someone who seems to know what he is talking about that at the present time one is able to find any type of firearm one desires in this country. These are not licensed firearms in the hands of responsible citizens in this country, they are firearms which have been brought in mainly by sea, through the use of the craft commonly referred to as the Jamaican Canoe. There are also some drugs and firearms being brought in by some fishing boats I have been told, but the majority arrive here by the use of the Jamaican Canoe.

These vessels are constructed of wood or fibreglass and sit very low in the water thus visible observation can be very difficult indeed. They vary in length from 25 to 32 feet and seldom have a beam width greater than five feet. They have no running lights or electronics of any description on board. These boats are extremely sea worthy and they are fast. They usually carry two large out-board motors of at least 150 to 200 hp (horsepower) each, resulting in a running speed of 30 knots or more.

These boats can land virtually anywhere. Because of the low draft that they have, many can come straight over the barrier reefs that surround this country. The only navigational tool that they have on board is a radio receiver. Most of them come out of Jamaica and they turn on this radio, either Radio Cayman or Z-99, one of the Powerful Stations here and they just home in on that beam, that signal, straight to the Cayman Islands. They usually arrive under the cover of darkness at a predetermined location. They know what they are doing, they know where they want to land.

It is now estimated by the authorities that as many as three deliveries occur every week in these Islands. They are responsible for supplying this country, mainly, with illegal drugs and illegal firearms, which goes hand-in-hand with the criminal activity that we have been bombarded with recently in this country.

I must commend my Government for some of the initiatives that they have taken in attempting to combat the rise of serious crime in this country. The previous administration had done away with the sniffer dog programme and this Government saw the necessity and value of re-instituting this programme. So, once again, we have sniffer dogs and handlers that patrol our main ports of entry, that is, the airport and docks. I think this is commendable.

I recall on a number of occasions travelling from here to Atlanta and when the luggage comes off there is an officer with a dog and before one can touch one piece of their luggage, that dog is allowed to sniff through that luggage in an effort to see whether or not any illegal drugs are being brought in. I imagine they also have dogs that are capable of sifting out and identifying illegal firearms as well.

I do not believe that this legislation in our legislature can be blamed for its efforts in attempting to fight the crime problem in this country, and I am not only talking about our administration, but previous administrations have been responsible for bringing legislation in an attempt to deal with this very serious issue.

An example of legislation which has been brought to deal with this problem or crime, has been the amendment to the Misuse of Drugs Law some years back, where if one is convicted in court and it is suspected that one's home or car or boat, or other personal possession that one may have, was purchased from proceeds of drug trafficking, then the Courts have the authority to issue an order to confiscate that property. This has been used on a number of occasions and it sends a very strong message to criminals—that if they do engage in this activity in the Cayman Islands, and they are caught, they will be dealt with severely, even to the extent of confiscating personal assets. Not only physical property, as far as homes, or boats or cars, but even bank accounts that have been accumulated from this trade.

In 1993, we brought some amendments to the Firearms Law, increasing the penalties for persons convicted of the possession of illegal firearms. Today, if one is convicted of possession of a firearm, one can be fined by the Courts for up to $100,000, and they can also order a term of imprisonment of up to 20 years. These efforts are commendable, and will have an impact on the illegal activity in this country.

But, I am convinced that we will never be in a position to win the war against illegal drugs and firearms in this country unless we take steps and put in place a programme of guarding our coastlines. I must also commend this Government for taking the initiative in securing a vessel for patrol purposes. This vessel will soon be commissioned and will be fully equipped and armed with the latest equipment and will be responsible for patrolling our waters to intercept vessels engaged in the trade of illegal drug trafficking and firearms.

The system that I am recommending will not replace the patrol boat service, but will complement this service, because what I am recommending is a radar system that will be strategically positioned on shore which can be monitored by a central location. The whole objective is to identify these crafts or boats which are engaged in the drug trade and hopefully identify them early enough that the authorities are able to respond to the location and will hopefully be in a position to sit there and wait for them, so that when they do come in with their illegal cargo, they are in a position to intercept them and deal with them accordingly.

Much has been done by the Drug Squad headed by Trevor Cutts to affect this trade of the importation of illegal drugs and firearms in this country. But they are in a war with one hand tied behind them, it seems, because the only system that they presently have is that they go on tips, someone will alert them that a boat is arriving at a certain time at a certain place and Mr. Cutts will dispatch some of his men and they will sit there and wait. Many times it is a false tip and they spend all night waiting and nothing happens. On other occasions they will sit there and hope that something happens.

So there is a lot of uncertainty. If we are going to be in a position where we have a chance of making a difference as far as the importation of illegal drugs by sea, we have to have a better system in place.

Other Motions of this nature have been brought by Members of this Honourable House. I recall during my first term as a Member of this House, that a Motion brought by two of my colleagues at the time on the Back-bench, called for a similar service. But the administration of the day did not see the wisdom of the request and the Motion was defeated.

What concerns me is that everyday, it seems, there is a new report of a drive-by shooting, a burglary that takes place with the use of a firearm. We are a financial community and a tourist destination and I believe that we have been very fortunate that we have not had a very serious incident in this country involving the death of one of our visitors by someone in an attempt to support their drug habit actually taking a life by the use of a firearm.

I recall (I think it was last year) that two visitors were held up at gun point and robbed of their possessions: So, I do not think we can sit idly by, bury our heads in the sand and say that we do not have a drug problem, that we do not have a problem with illegal firearms, as far as crime in this country, and continue to go on as if things are alright.

This is not a concern that we as Members of this Legislature share, but if we take a survey of a community today, it is probably the most important issue, the one issue that concerns our people the most. I think we have a responsibility to do what we can as legislators in addressing this problem.

We have to get tough and equip ourselves with equipment and know-how in an effort to win this war against crime in this country. I believe that if we can put in place a proper radar system for the purpose of patrolling or surveillance our coast line, and also equipping our agencies which are involved and responsible for combating this type of activity with the kind of equipment they need, by way of boats, cars and whatever else they may need. This war is winnable.

I recall talking to a young man from my district some time ago, about the supply of illegal drugs in this country. He said that six months ago a rock of cocaine cost $20. Today a rock costs something like $3. So there is an oversupply of this harmful drug in our society today and it is fast threatening our very survival. The more of our young people that become hooked on this drug, the more serious crime we are going to have because they have to be in a position to support this very expensive habit. Someone who is addicted will resort to any means in an effort to support their habit.

The other thing that we have to address is the presence of illegal aliens, illegal in the terms that they did not come through our airport or our docks. Many of those we find in this country (and it would probably frighten you who we have here illegally), are passengers on these boats and they are dropped off on the beaches near shore and they find themselves to shore and then are in a position to pursue all kinds of activity in this country, including crime. So I think we have to do whatever we can at this stage to address this very serious problem in this country.

In order for this programme to work, I believe that there is a need for coordination. At the present time Customs has a Drug Squad, Immigration has a contingency and the Police have a contingency that are all in the business of trying to stamp out this very serious illegal activity in this country. But I believe that in order for it to be effective these bodies should be merged and one Head put in charge. By doing so, we will probably save money in that we will only have one agency to fund which will have a common goal and objective because they are all working under one umbrella, under one Head, and under the same conditions of service.

To go hand-in-hand with this, once this system is put in place, if it is accepted, I believe that the Courts will then be in a position where they send a very serious message by throwing harsher sentences on persons who may be convicted of serious crime in this country, drug trafficking or the possession of an illegal firearm.

I believe that this system is practical, it is affordable, and I believe that the future of our country depends on our addressing the issue to a large extent, the issue of putting in place a system for proper coastal surveillance.

Madam Speaker, I commend this Motion to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Madam Speaker, I rise to give my full support to the Motion brought before this House at this time.

It is safe to say, as has been echoed by many people before, that the war against drugs and drug-related crimes has to be a multi-fronted war. I full well realise that there are some circumstances which are, perhaps, beyond our control in requesting this coastal surveillance, for I vividly recall on at least two occasions when I travelled abroad, as a member of a Commonwealth Parliamentary Delegation from this territory, another Member of this Honourable House and a colleague of mine approached Baroness Chalker and some members of the British Delegation regarding the provision of some assistance in this regard. I vividly recall the lack of support expressed by those members of the British Delegation at that time.

I have to say that it seemed like there was a callous disregard and disinclination to be interested, even after the case was very persuasively put forward by the Member arguing at that time. Being a newcomer, as I was, I failed to understand how these people could take so inflexible a position when they certainly had no first-hand knowledge of the circumstances which the Member was so ably putting forward. Even though it was in an unofficial capacity, it was as a result of the Member's concern and it was as a result of the Member's knowledge that advantage was being taken because of an absence of coastal surveillance.

The Honourable Member moving the Motion seems to be emphasising some sort of radar surveillance. I do not know because he did not go into great detail about the extent or the sophistication of this surveillance. But, I would like to suggest that in tandem with this surveillance, and as a corollary, that we seek some kind of patrol system to complement this radar surveillance, because I believe that if we have such a system in addition to the radar surveillance we will indeed have an effective system.

In this regard, I was surprised to learn on a visit to the Portsmouth Naval Station some years ago, of the number of British Patrol Ships moth-balled as a result of the end of the Cold War. There were patrol crafts of all sizes and descriptions, laying, as the expression goes, in moth balls. I wondered aloud to some members if it was possible for us in the Cayman Islands, coming from a maritime tradition such as we have, if it would be possible for us to lay our hands on one or two of these patrol boats seeing that they were staying there rotting. Certainly, if we were able to get them we would probably find a Caymanian complement who with little or no training would be able to man the craft and we, the Caymanian people, may be able to find enough fuel to outfit and equip them.

It is still beyond my comprehension how we are unable, even after all the cries that have been made, to get some assistance in this regard. Is somebody waiting until we are overrun and completely helpless? The Honourable Mover made mention of the work being done by the Drug Squad and other arms of the police and the social control forces. But we must recognise that these elements are largely incapable of any interdiction other than what takes place on land, so it compounds their work when they have to rely on contraband and arms being landed before they can apprehend or interdict.

It would make an easier defence system if we had as a complement to the Drug Squad and the Police Force, Customs and Immigration, some form of coastal surveillance which could at least make it more difficult for illegal persons and illegal cargo to be landed on our shores.

What the Motion and the Honourable Member moving the Motion is arguing and requesting is not far fetched. I vividly recall some years ago, when I lived out at Beach Bay, returning home in the middle of a Saturday afternoon to find two young male persons who had supposedly come ashore. There was a group of Public Works men working on the road and the drifters, or stowaways as they claimed they were, had wandered into the presence of the Public Works crew. Some of the men told me that they were watching them as they attempted to navigate the swells in the reef. When I arrived on the scene, the foreman asked me if I would take the men to George Town. I said no, I would not take those men to George Town because I did not wish to get into trouble. I said that we should alert the Police and they could alert Immigration, and I proceeded to caution the other members of the work gang that it was a rather delicate manner and that they had better be sure they alert the authorities because if anyone attempted to take the men into town and the men had overpowered them and escaped, it certainly appeared to me that the person taking them would have to answer to the authorities.

Well, the Police came within a reasonable time and took the men into custody. But before the Police came, out of curiosity, I attempted to elicit from the men exactly how they got there. They told a story that was unbelievable because they said they were stowaways, yet they could not give the name of the vessel or the vessel's registration. They said that the captain had come within a few hundred yards of the reef and put them off, yet no one in the work gang heard any vessel or had seen anything.

I was satisfied that they were not stowaways and that they were not put off against their will by any captain or any crew member from any vessel. It seemed to me that they knew exactly what they were doing and, not only that, it was frightening to know that they knew exactly where they were going because they mentioned to me a certain part of Cayman.

Now, if that kind of thing happens in broad daylight, who is to say what is happening under cover of darkness? The particular experience ended for me on a satisfactory note, because I followed up the circumstances and was relieved to know that the men were prosecuted for entering the country illegally, taken to court, found guilty and were deported and shipped back within a few days.

So, although this is an isolated case, it cannot easily be dismissed. I wonder, again, if this could happen by day, what is happening at night. These kinds of problems are compounded by the fact that now we have not only the drugs, but reports of illegal firearms being off-loaded.

I wanted to say that one of the limitations of radar is its inability to detect wooden hulled ships because, as I understand it, radar operates by the waves bouncing off metal. So, that is why the wooden hulled ships, commonly known as the Jamaican Canoe, are so effective. They are so low on the water and not easily detected by certain radar systems. That is also why I am advocating that we complement this coastal surveillance, if it is going to be radar, with some sort of patrol. Ideally, the best system would be to have a patrol boat and some sort of aircraft, like a helicopter. It is not for me to say what can be afforded; I am only suggesting that that is an ideal combination.

It is reasonable for us to request this at this time because everyone in this country is aware of the problems that we have with crime which has its genesis in illegal drugs and, most alarmingly, now the presence of illegal firearms. It has to come to a head sooner or later. We have to come to grips. The time is long past for tokenism. The time has long past for relying exclusively on the Police or exclusively on Customs. The time has come for the development of a sophisticated and multi-fronted approach to this. Certainly, we can have no better chance than what is requested in this Motion that calls for the establishment of some form of coastal surveillance.

I give my wholehearted support to this Motion and can only request that the Government view it with the seriousness and the sincerity, which I think is shared by all Members of this House. This is one of those Motions that cuts across the spectrum of political differences. This is a Motion which all of us, as responsible legislators in this Parliament, feel a certain compulsion and association and empathy with because this kind of Motion holds in its grasp the very future of a stable, orderly and progressive Caymanian society.

I commend the Mover and the Seconder, and I am glad to lend my support and would wish that the Government might see fit to accept the Motion as is requested.

Thank you.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12:40 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.18 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion 16/94.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I am rising in this case, not that I am responsible for answering the Motion, but I am rising to add my thought to the debate.

I well remember getting into this House back in 1984, and observing what had happened and was happening to the country at that time. I remember pleading with the Government of the day to do something with our coastal surveillance.

I like to research the records, and I can remember going through the minutes of Finance Committee and seeing where the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay now had pled several times in his time for some sort of coastal surveillance. Some efforts were made. Well, my pleas fell on deaf ears and the situation kept getting worse.

As Members have correctly said, this country is now seeing the effects of a "don't care" attitude about these matters. What is the result today? The result is that we are seeing an increase in crime that worries not only local legislators here, but the United Kingdom Government is very much concerned about this territory and the upsurge in the different crimes.

While this Government has done many things to effect the better management of this country (I believe it is safe to say that we have turned around the economy), we are attacking the social problems as fast as financial and human resources can deal with them. One of the most worrying matters for this Government is the issue of crime.

We well realise, as the Member for Bodden Town put it, that there must be a multi-fronted approach to this whole issue. This is not just left for Government. Government has to spearhead it, the community has to recognise that we are not dealing with an easy task for just Government.

Taking the situations we found, there is no wonder that we are seeing an increase in crime. What we have to deal with is a poor Immigration policy and there was an absence of proper coastal surveillance. The one boat that Government had was run aground on the reef. The dog programme which was used for the detection of contraband was disbanded, and we had an Immigration policy where all and sundry came and went and did as they pleased.

The simple truth is, as the country should now recognise, that for too long we have been lax in these areas. For too long we have been too kind, and with an Immigration policy that allowed everybody to do as they pleased, we must find trouble. It has caused trouble in every country, much less this little small island.

We have tried to come to grips with what has been going on, but when you have 4,000 persons being able to go and get extensions time and again—not knowing what they are doing, not knowing who they are working with (well, they should not be working in the first place), not knowing what kind of income they have, if any—no wonder we found an increase in drugs and illegal weapons, such as guns.

However, we realised, having been faced with such a problem, that we needed to take some action. This is not easy, because in this small community what we find is that as soon as we attempt to deal with one issue, that impacts upon somebody's child and we find legislators who will run and say we cannot do this because their constituents are knocking their doors down. That is the sort of situation that obtains. One and all will have to recognise the fact that it does not rest upon the shoulders of Government alone, but everybody. That means this side of the House, it means those of the Opposition, it means the general public.

It is a situation that has to be brought under control. While we are no worse than other areas and internationally we still have a good name, it does not say anything for what our people feel. So the Government has been hard and fast trying to attend to this issue on the importation of drugs and other illegal contraband.

We instituted a dog programme that is working well. I think we are going to have to get more and deal more with that issue in the ports, that is, the Airport and the Docks. But that does not say how we are going to deal with the wider issue of what is happening on our open shores.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town referred to an effort by myself in 1989 with the Baroness Chalker. That was at a CPA Conference in Barbados, and it was not the first time. In my very first CPA meeting in 1986, I also approached the Baroness Young who was in the position of the Baroness Chalker now. At that time my cries, and his as well, fell on deaf ears. He mentioned that there seemed to be a disregard by the British for our situation. My effort certainly went nowhere then. However, since the National Team took Government in 1992, that disregard, if that is what it was, certainly disappeared.

I can say that our efforts in obtaining some kind of coastal surveillance has been fruitful. His Excellency the Governor, responsible for External and Internal Affairs especially security, was instrumental in obtaining a boat, given to us by the British Government. We will have to stand some cost. You can say that it is a good partnership. The British are giving us 80% and we have to stand 20%. This is a good beginning. I do not think that we can say there is no concern now by the British Government. Remember, one and all, that this is what we have been asking for, for years, and hopefully in the next month this boat will arrive. So, to that extent we are better off than we were before.

Then, His Excellency the Governor is setting up a special unit with certain personnel and equipment from Customs and Immigration and Police, all to be under some kind of control of Superintendent Cutts. This is an effort to promote a much higher degree of cooperation and coordination. I remember in the public meeting held by the CoDAC in my constituency, this is one of the things that Mr. Cutts made mention of. He needs a few smaller boats than the larger one that we are getting so that he can give chase and have use for shallow waters. So, in addition to the new boat from the British Government the existing Customs boat will be utilised.

These are but some of the efforts being made by the Government. We all know that as far as criminal activity is concerned, there is a new unit set up with the coming of the new Police. I hope that they will go in the right areas, because what obtained before, searches had practically gone out of style. So, naturally, contraband such as guns would be prevalent. I am hoping this new unit will attend the place where criminal elements hang out, or else it will not do any good. But new vehicles in addition to manpower and other equipment are on line.

I want to sound a warning bell in this House. When the new Unit acts, I do not want to hear any fuss from the Opposition about heavy handedness. I might as well say to the general public that I do not want to hear any racket from them either. Once they are acting judiciously, it must be done. We cannot allow the criminal elements to walk up and down our country believing that they own it. Neither am I, as a legislator, overly concerned about after we put them in prison. We intend to treat them as humanly as possible, but I maintain that this country cannot take the few resources that we have and treat these criminal elements like they are should live in a palace. What I am more concerned about, as a legislator and as the Minister responsible, is that money should be spent on young people and children, for presentation. Not to spend millions of dollars on the prison after we have to go out and spend money to get them in prison. So, I would hope, if the action is going to be as I think it will, I do not hear any hollering about high-handedness from police.

Time and time again, we criticise the police about their activities. In truth and fact we must not expect the police to cure the criminal element. I think we should all get up and say to the general public that the Police have been doing well because if a crime happens today, by tomorrow they have the criminal element. So while all is not all well in the Force, and there is something lacking in certain areas, I think we need to give credit where it is due.

That does not say anything about the problem that we have. It is a matter which all of us have to take into consideration. All of us, as legislators, the general public, business people, as well as parents. I know that is becoming a singsong in the country about the responsibility of parents, but it is the truth. What the good people in this country have to do, and they have a very great responsibility, is they have to stop talking about everything that somebody tells them because the criminal elements out there will do more talking and more blaming than anybody else. So, the good people in this country should be careful and listen to who is talking because too many out there are willing to run down to draw attention away from themselves.

While I am not happy with what obtains in the Force in certain sections, let us give credit where credit is due. Some years ago there were 13 unsolved murders. When this happens today, within a short period the Police Force acts. So we have come a long way.

With the advent of Mr. Cutts there have been, I guess by now, tons of dope seized. We are going to give him more personnel, which he has asked for. On a whole, I believe that this coordinated effort is going to work well for the country. I think all of us have to realise our responsibility. That cannot be over stressed.

The Government, I believe, is doing everything we can on this Motion. We will certainly accept any ideas. I certainly want to thank the two Members for bringing it and we will continue to do what is necessary. I, too, hope to see a slackening in this criminal activity, but it is going to take some time. The position that the country was in, the situation that obtained cannot be handled over night. But, the country can rest assured that the Government is not sitting idly by, wringing its hands in frustration and wondering what are they going to do. We are acting.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: As the seconder of this Motion I am very proud to be associated with it because we have come to the crossroads now where it means that we have to take the bull by the horns and stop its charge. That charge is the trafficking of drugs and firearms into our country.

We need surveillance, and we need it bad. What we first have to look at is land surveillance. We should be setting up patrols on the coastal areas to deter the boats with their drugs and firearms. The Police and Customs are doing their part, as best they can, but I think we can now call on our local citizens for help and get them involved also. Some of them have already spoken to me saying that they are willing to come out and work at night on patrols to help fight this drug disease that we have coming in here.

As the Minister said, this is something that I was seeking from 1976, when I first entered this House. We need coastal patrols, we need good boats and, believe me, if we had gone forward then and placed a radar station in this country, we would have broken the backbone early. It is never too late to do good or right. I still say this is the step that should be taken. We need a radar station with a range of probably 60 miles or so, but radar that can detect objects on the water. With a radar system and a few patrol boats we can then fight the devil out there because the radar can pick up the objects and we can send the boats out to intercept them. It means that we can be saving on fuel and that our boats will not have to be running up and down all the time. This is what we need.

It is becoming shocking and frightening to our citizens here. It is getting to the point now where they wonder what is going to happen next. We have to fight, and fight hard. If we need more boats, let us get them. I have to agree, one boat cannot set up a patrol, we need more than one boat. I feel that the British Government should be able to supply us with another boat or so, because they have a lot of them up there, rotting along the river banks. The United States has some. I think if we were to approach them, we could even get some help from them. So, this is steps that we have to take and try to take the proper ones at the right time.

Our country is now getting in the hands of the evil ones and we have to take it out. We cannot prolong this matter any longer, we have to get out there and fight, and be drastic. We have to put pressure where pressure is needed. That goes for the criminals, which we catch and send to prison—punish them, rightly too.

I wholeheartedly support this Motion and I hope that things will work out better for us.

Thank you very much.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, I wish to make a very brief contribution to the debate on Private Member's Motion 16/94. The Government has already indicated through my colleague that it will be accepting the Motion.

The Motion is a specific one, headed Coastal Surveillance. But, of course, the debate has had to be more broadly based in order to make the point. I do not think that the point needs to be re-emphasised because everyone is convinced that we collectively have tolerated the incidence of growing crime. We have built larger prisons, we have locked away and incarcerated greater proportions of our population than most countries of the western world, we have locked up ten times the population that Europe locks up. We have even concluded that we have possibly been locking up the wrong people. The Government recently took the view that perhaps the time had come to conduct a study in criminology to see who could determine what really are the principal causes why so many of our citizens appear to be turning to crime. So, all of that is generally well known and well documented.

The specific resolve of the Motion is to invite the Government to consider ways and means of strengthening what is now an almost non-existent coastal surveillance capability. Countries that have large amounts of coastline have this inevitable problem. How does one patrol the coast and be effective? Larger countries have tried it in a variety of fashions and have deployed large amounts of resources towards it, and I can only draw on the experience of those who have done it before. The experience of those who have invested large amounts of resources in strictly coastal surveillance types of activities have found that the return on that investment over a long period of time does not appear to pay handsome dividends.

For example, one of the problems with radar is that the technology is very sophisticated, it is very accurate. But if you have a radar that covers a radius of, say, 100 miles, and you happen to be in a geographical location where there is heavy maritime traffic passing within that radius, your radar could, at any one point in time, be pinpointing 200, 300, 400 objects within the scope. The problem that the operators of radar have is that, with all the modern technology in the world, there is no way of differentiating which one of those 200 bleeps on the radar are the good guys, and which ones are the bad guys. Experience has shown that no number of boats in the world is capable of going out and checking by examining who is good and who is bad. Therefore, the long-term effectiveness of radar in those kinds of situations becomes questionable.

Larger countries have, therefore, changed their approach and have relied instead on good reliable sources of intelligence and, in some instances, counter intelligence as a means of narrowing down the focus so that resources can be targeted in a more effective manner.

One such effort is currently being deployed in Cayman, and that is the utilisation of the Caribbean Basin Radar Network of which Cayman has one. That radar operates on a fixed radar basis, it zooms around detecting low flying aircraft and it produces the kind of intelligence that enables those who are experienced in air traffic to be able to narrow down the number of good guys and spot, in some instances, the potential number of bad guys. They have found from experience that that system works a little bit more effectively than the radar that is intended to pick up every moving object floating on the water. In this day and age there are so many objects on the water that it becomes a difficult task, indeed, to fulfil.

As I understand it, Cayman is geographically situated in one of those areas where there is a fairly heavy incidence of traffic on the water. So, one would have to immediately set up a system whereby you do not harass a very large proportion of that traffic in the surveillance procedures, but rather find some way of narrowing down the potential bad guys and making sure that they are the ones who get harassed.

Of course, cooperation and coordination have been commented on and those are essential components to any kind of surveillance capability. A few years ago the British Government commissioned a Maritime Capability Survey in all of the Dependent Territories in the Caribbean. As a result of the recommendations of that team, they recommended that in small territories, like Cayman, that we should begin to move towards establishing a sort of an embryo for what could eventually become a mini coast guard, developing the capability of surveying our inner coastal waters and using some larger boats to patrol, in an inter Island basis, and in International waters, with a specific type of an agenda, crewed jointly by personnel who are qualified in both Police and Custom work with a high reliance on intelligence. Again, all aimed at focusing the resources where you get the biggest bang for the buck because money can be invested and operationally you can invest a lot of money in doing nothing but patrolling. What is important are the results that you get from that patrol. It is not just a question of simply patrolling, it is a question of maximising the return that one gets from that patrol.

It has also been recognised that one, two, three, or even ten boats is only that. Therefore, one has to accept that wherever there is a potential for someone to make a profit, and where there is someone willing to take the risk of making that profit illegally, one can only simply set up a mechanism to deter in the first instance, to detect in the final analysis, and to prosecute. But one can never put up a blockade, which will be 100% effective against those who appear to be determined to break through it.

I say all of that simply to say that there has to be a pragmatic approach to the allocation of scarce resources when trying to tackle these growing complex problems. This is an important issue that the Government does not take lightly. It has to be recognised in the context of a series of initiatives that are being considered. The study of the causes of crime is one such initiative; the enhancement of the human resources in anti-drug activities is another initiative; the investments in prevention through education is another initiative. There are all kinds of initiatives, which collectively, one hopes will make an effective and positive impact on this problem.

Touching specifically for a moment on the item of firearms, this Honourable House recently increased the penalties on the Firearms Law, and I believe the courts have begun to make that effective in the sentencing policies of the courts. So I think that the message is clear and well known that firearm offences attract large effective penalties.

The one deterrent, the most effective deterrent against any illegal item, be it firearms or others, is the knowledge that someone else may know about it and, by having that knowledge, may pass it on to the authorities. This is where the authorities have to rely on the cooperation of the public. If it is as is being claimed, that large numbers of firearms are entering the country, somebody has to have some information about some of these items—where they are coming from, how they are getting in, what happens to them after they get in, who is disposing of them, how they are being traded internally—somebody has to have some information about that type of activity. Therefore the Police will have to rely upon those honest persons in the community who have any access to such information, to come forward with that information with the confidence that the Police will accept it, regard it as confidential, and get on quietly in doing what they have to do to apprehend.

The Police cannot police all by themselves: They have to rely upon the cooperation of the public. It is because of that need for better community policing that the Government recently commissioned a review of the Police Department and during that process conducted a number of district meetings in order to determine from the district level populations what kind of policing the community wishes to have at this present time. The report of the Inspector who conducted that review is going to be considered by the Executive Council very soon and further announcements about it will be made in the near future.

But, we are on the threshold of conducting necessary reviews, implementing the accepted recommendations contained in these reviews, and moving forward with a certain amount of confidence that, scarce though our resources may be, if we target them effectively, we can have some positive results. We have to guard against just putting resources after resources and after resources, because you can out resource a situation. We have to put our resources in such a way as to be able to evaluate the effectiveness of those resources and then, if more is needed, put more in after you have evaluated the effectiveness of what you have put in so far.

The recommendation, therefore, is that we develop this surveillance capability on a progressive basis, evaluating the results of it at each stage and making certain that we do not waste our investment. That seems to be the key to the thrust of the Motion.

The Government is happy to accept the challenge to undertake to do whatever it can to tackle this coastal surveillance problem.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: To me, the Honourable Member responsible who just replied on behalf of the Government has brought out some very, very important points in offering the Government's support of this Motion. It shows me that the Honourable First Official Member is well informed and up to date. It is a pity that he has said he is not going to be with us much longer.

However, getting back to the Motion, it was very good to hear all of the previous speakers and heartening to know that there are instances where there is a unified approach to a problem of national significance. Not grudgingly, I wish to congratulate the Mover and the seconder.

As has been displayed by other Members before, to drive home relevant points which surround the actual resolve section of the Motion, it is necessary to spread our wings a little bit because there are so many, what may be termed, ancillary issues which are interrelated with this specific issue which we are now debating. The possibility of establishing a proper coastal surveillance system, which is being asked for in the Motion, in my interpretation, is simply a pointed attempt to direct a certain movement to basically get the ball rolling. As has also been mentioned before, there have been previous attempts in the past by other Members, and whatever transpired then, frankly, does not warrant discussion. I think we all recognised the problem here and it is good to know that real attempts are going to be made to address it.

One point that I consider very salient was made a few minutes ago by the Honourable First Official Member when he pointed out that, given limited resources, it is the Government's view that implementation of any coastal surveillance should be done in a timely fashion so as to minimise any wastage of those resources—of the manpower and equipment involved, and of the time spent. I think many of us would want to say that we need, ideally, six, eight or 10 vessels so that we might be almost able to patrol the entire coastline of all three islands simultaneously, to have a sure way of being effective.

But I am sure that while we do not know all the facts, a little bit of imagination can bring to light the real possibility of how people who engage in these illegal activities operate. Examples have been brought about happenings in broad daylight, but I think it is safe to say that the majority of the activity is expected in the dark of night.

I personally wish to support that line of thinking, as this is how the Government intends to deal with it. I fully support that. The risk that is run in operating in this fashion is that some of us might chose to say at times that the Government is not acting as expeditiously as they should. But it is still better to face that criticism knowing that you will not get the criticism of how much money has been wasted with no results. So, from that point of view, I subscribe to that thought process.

There is an area that has not been dealt with in any detail, but I would like to make small mention of it. Whatever is decided by way of a course of action, I think that one of the most important aspects of the action is the proper training of the individuals who are going to be involved in the action. I have no doubt that at whatever stage the Government is at, that there is something being done about training. But, I believe that from every angle that we can look at today, where there has been any failure in any one of our enforcement agencies with regards to interdiction or prevention or case solving, whatever, the one common denominator is lack of training.

The point I make here, is that it is obvious that what is happening with regards to any new action is in its infant stage and I just wish to emphasise to all of us the importance of proper training for our own Caymanians. I subscribe to the belief that there is no one individual or group who is better suited to deal with our own problems than our own. If that person, or that group of people, is trained properly, it is my belief that on their home turf, regardless of the down sides that one may be able to point out, I think that we have the ability to get better results from the home boys if they are properly equipped. That is not a statement that I make to cast any aspersions, but I am convinced that there have been many occasions when our own have found themselves falling short. If we were big enough to examine the situation in its entirety, we would find that that individual who may have fallen short, had to fall short, because of the circumstances that he or she was put in.

So, if, as the Government said, there is a boat being commissioned, that is good to hear. I remember earlier on during this sitting a few questions being asked and answered regarding training in this area. I just have to say, again, because words fail me to say how important I believe training is. While this Motion deals primarily with establishing a proper coastal surveillance system, as the First Official Member stated not too long ago, there is an entire process that one has to examine when one is looking at the big picture of prevention and interdiction of crimes related to drugs, illegal firearms.

I trust that the expressions that I have heard from both Members who have spoken from the Government bench will not fall on deaf ears to the listening public. The Honourable Minister mentioned public cooperation. The seconder of this Motion mentioned public cooperation. We do not have to think too long and hard to realise that the life we save may be our own. The public has to come to grips with the fact that there may well be occasions that some of us, as private citizens, may not only find ourselves with a responsibility to say what we saw or heard, but if that attitude continues to prevail, I am afraid that if we ask the Lord Jesus to be our Police Commissioner that two months later we would be hollering that the Commissioner must go.

So, even though it supposedly strays from the point, the truth is that I believe very often people see things that they know do not look right—sometimes you will be sitting in a bar having a social drink and you will hear a person (and just by the expression on that person's face you know that the person is telling the truth) relating an incident when he or she was out fishing somewhere and they noticed this or they noticed that. Someone will ask if they notified anybody, and they will say no. Asked, why not?, they say they do not want to get involved. It is such a pity.

I know that takes a little extra measure from the individual, but the truth is that if we are going to be effective and if we are going to do any better that is exactly the measure that we need. I say this: if we, the legislators, as the Minister might say, 'the Opposition, the Government Bench, the public on a whole,' if we do not accept that there is a natural responsibility which we face when it comes to the evil that has crept in amongst us, and those individuals whom we have publicly charged with the responsibility to do something about it, we will get no where.

A vast majority of all crimes solved in this world—and I repeat, a vast majority—statistics prove the vast majority of crimes are solved with information received from the public to the relevant law enforcement agencies. It is no different in Cayman. Unfortunately, we do not have super heroes doing the job. So, we must play our part. We must also say what we see, or we will not see any positive results.

That little discourse was meant simply, no matter what system is put in place, there will be many occasions when public input will get the right results, which will not be had without it.

The last point that I would like to touch on regarding this Motion is in dealing with accepting the Motion, as it is obvious that Government intends to do. I think that a very opportune time will come shortly after this sitting with our continued review of the Penal Code, for us to take an even more in-depth view of certain areas of existing laws with a view to coming up with any changes that we might deem necessary for matters such as this to be more effective.

Finally, the Minister for Community Development mentioned that during the next few months the special arm that is going to be put together with the intermingling of the different agencies, he said that he wanted to issue a warning regarding the way that matters would be dealt with and he wished not to hear any outcry of heavy handedness. I just wish to place on record that, as the Minister said, once the actions are taken judiciously in the most effective manner, I certainly will have no problem with it. Many instances long before now required a little bit of heavy handedness, for in my opinion there has been blatant disregard for authority by many in our community.

I support this Motion and I would hope that from time to time we will be getting progress reports, as I am sure we will be. I trust that we can continue to deal with matters as important nationally as these in total unanimity.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, I support this Motion. I think it is very important and very timely and I commend the Mover and the seconder for bringing this.

The recitals to this clause have stated in the third recital that "as a result of the abundance of illegal drugs and firearms serious crime is now on the rise in these Islands," and, indeed the other recitals point to drugs, firearms and crime generally. I am going to try to set out in about 11 or 12 areas, briefly, some of the things that are being dealt with towards reducing illegal drugs and crime.

As previous Members mentioned, there is now going to be a patrol boat, which we thank the United Kingdom for contributing about three-quarters of the money for. That, I think, will be a deterrent and will have an interdiction effect, which we have not had previously. That, together with the Customs Boat, Derry's Pride, which is a very fast and long range interception boat of about 30 feet, and a smaller boat, which looks to me to be in the 20 foot area, that also can be used.

I believe that Members of this House, especially Executive Council, have spent more time looking at how we can assist the Governor and the Chief Secretary in dealing with crime because we too are very worried about it. But I would like to state very clearly here that the responsibility for the Police, the Judiciary, the Prison, Internal Security, External Defence, rests squarely with the Governor and the Chief Secretary and we can merely assist them in areas that they wish to pursue. It is not a responsibility of either of the five Elected Ministers of Government who sit in Executive Council. So the duty of this Honourable House and our duty has been to assist the Governor and the Chief Secretary as far as we can in giving them what they need to deal with the rising crime that we have seen. But if we look back three years ago, crime has not really risen that much compared to what it was three years ago.

Along with the boat we have the four drug-sniffing dogs the Police asked for. We now understand that a special task force to go into areas, which have hard crime, is being set up. The Chief Secretary asked for more Police, and we know this Honourable House has approved the funds for more police. I take the point that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town has made. He was implying that more Caymanians need to be on the Police Force, and the Government, this Legislature I should say, has a policy of Caymanisation—as many Caymanians as we can get in the Force, I believe the Chief Secretary and the Governor do employ them. But there does come a time, as I am sure that Member knows, with one's business, if there are no people here, there is no alternative but to get them from abroad.

The Minister for Agriculture and Works has improved the lighting in George Town and most of the districts. This has been extremely important, especially in George Town. I thank him for this. It has had to reduce the incidence of drugs and crime that this Motion mentions is on the rise. More and more of that will be done because criminals are worried about identification of themselves.

More money has been given by this Legislature for undercover work by the Police. There is a brand new drug policy within the schools, which was brought out about six months ago. It is very comprehensive and the syllabi relating to drugs in the schools is being looked at by the present Strategic Planning Action Committee that is dealing with that. So we are very aware on the prevention side for young children. We have the Select Committee on Crime and one of the things that I have asked them for is to make it twice the penalty—double the penalty—where drug crimes are committed by adults within 1,000 feet or within the precincts of schools. This is usual in other places.

We have CASA, which does a very good job on prevention. We have the service clubs and the churches. There is a lot being done out there and looking at, for example, the prison, I believe that compulsory counselling to people who are in there for drugs is something that can prevent further repetition of illegal drugs and illegal firearm crimes that may arise.

Education and drug counselling should be compulsory in prison. Those people who were put in there for drug offences should have to take counselling they should have to go and get more education. However, that is only my view. It is the Honourable Chief Secretary's and the Governor's Portfolio.

The other areas that are very important are relating to the present importance placed, perhaps, most important, by Government and this Legislature, on drugs when a Ministry itself has been created to specifically deal with coordination and areas of it which, I should point out, are not under the Chief Secretary and the Governor. This has now come under a very able and energetic Minister and he has already begun the strategic planning which is so crucial to dealing with this in a organised and effective way, because we can spend a lot of time making waves and really not achieving anything unless proper planning is put in place. He has taken that first step towards it, and if we are going to get very good results it will come within that area as a result of the detailed planning that is now being undertaken.

It clearly shows, when I list these different things that we have looked at and tried to assist the First Official Member with, who has quite a difficult task, when dealing with this area of firearms and crime.

Another question was raised about informants. It is a problem in any small society. It is hard to get people to give information on their friends and family. I am a former prosecutor, I know the difficulty it has been. That difficulty continues, but, once again, we had the Chamber of Commerce intervention and now one can dial a number that goes into the United States and comes back to the Police here and that is working very effectively. I know that was quite heavily criticised by the Opposition, but it is working.

The only other areas, and I am trying to be brief on this because it is such a wide subject, is, maybe, cheap radar could be established, maybe one on either end of the Island with maybe a 20 or 30 mile range, I do not know, which could be monitored from a central place which would also assist the boats.

What we are very lucky with is that the Drug Department, the Drug Force of the Police has been very effective and I think we have to give credit where credit is due. That has been a very effective arm of the police. This Legislature supports it. We, as a Government and a National Team, and I believe all Members of this House are committed to doing everything we can to assist the Chief Secretary and the Governor in this fight against crime. We have also put our full support behind the new Minister who is dealing with the drug planning and abuse. Also, I should mention that we are moving towards the rehabilitation centre, which will be added to the counselling centre.

I would welcome anyone who could come up with further suggestions that we may be able to implement to deal with the problems of drugs and guns. I believe it takes a full community effort, it is something that affects all of us. It affects our children, our families, and we have to give it our total and unlimited dedication to bring under control and to support the new Ministry as well as the First official Member's Portfolio. We have to give them the tools to fight this cancer within our society.

Also, that support has to go into CASA, the service clubs the churches and all of the organisations and people individually. Many people put in a lot of effort to try to make this society free from the evils of crime and especially drugs.

In conclusion, I think the debate here today is very positive and one that I believe we will find positive results coming as a result of. I commend the Mover and the seconder, once again, and really, this whole Legislature which has supported the Government and the approval of funds which are necessary in this fight. The duty of us all has to be to make Cayman a better place. That is what I can assure this Honourable House that I strive towards, and I believe that everyone here does.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.42 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.09 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion 16/94. If there is no further debate I will ask the Mover of the Motion if he would like to exercise his right to reply which will close the debate.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I also want to thank all Honourable Members for their contribution to the debate.

We were handed a copy of the Royal Cayman Islands Police Report of 1993, and it has some very interesting statistics. Drugs: On page 28 it says a total of 4,341 pounds of ganja was recovered plus 52 pounds of cocaine. It says it is clear that Cayman is being used as a staging post for the onward transmission of drugs to the United States.

So we see from these statistics that there are quite a bit of drugs being seized by the Police and the other drug enforcement agencies. But, what is of concern to me is that they seized 4,000 pounds, which is probably a reflection of just the tip of the iceberg. In other words, they found 4,000 pounds, how much came here and was successfully transferred to the United States or other markets?

We have a problem here in this country and I think that we should recognise that we do and take whatever actions are necessary to deal with the problem.

In my effort to gain information on this subject, I was able, through a friend of mine, to contact the company who does sell the equipment and they came down and did a presentation for us of the capability of the equipment. This equipment can be very expensive, so you have to take into consideration your limited resources. The system that they were recommending had the capability of identifying these small craft some eight to 10 miles off the coast which would give us some time to respond as far as interdiction is concerned. But, we can spend as much money as we want on a system, it depends on what is available for that purpose.

The First Official Member made a good point, if we are able to survey too large of an area, it becomes meaningless because there is so much traffic out there, so many objects going back and forth that it would probably not be the object you were looking for and probably not even headed for the Cayman Islands. So, I think if we have the ability to patrol or survey our 12 mile limit, that would probably be sufficient for our purposes.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town made a good contribution, and he made some good points in regard to training and this is very important. He was specifically referring to training as far as the officers on the patrol boat that the Government is in the process of commissioning. From speaking to people who know what is going on, I find it kind of strange to accept the fact, I cannot remember exactly how much we have paid for this boat, but we are now in the process of getting it fully equipped and armed but the police have a very strange policy in that officers only of a certain rank are able to man the boat. So you might have a constable that has 40 years of experience as a captain or a seaman but because of his rank he is not able to go on as captain. I think this is very unfortunate because what is important is that we are in a position where we have qualified people who man that boat to ensure that the same thing that happened with the other boat happens with this boat where somebody ran in on the reef. Also, training with regard to the use of the equipment that we have in mind.

These are aspects that would be discussed. Any supplier would provide training they send somebody down to help you install it, show you how it works and train you for a period of time to ensure that you know what you are doing and you are in a position to make the best use of the equipment.

I am very pleased with the support and the concern and the urgency that all Members of this House have expressed. I feel that every Member of this House has a genuine concern with combating the issue of crime in this country. If we put our efforts together and we have the support of the general public as far as keeping their eyes open and informing the respective agencies as to what they see going on, I believe that we can lick this problem.

What is important is for us not to accept the fact that we cannot do anything about the issue. The Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, myself and another colleague of ours were taking a walk this morning, and that was the issue that we were talking about. We have no place to run—this is home. Even when things are bad and a lot of our friends and neighbours were migrating to the United States—and I have nothing against what they did, many of them moved for the right reasons, to educate their families and provide support, I have no problem with that. As a young boy I had a hard time dealing with the idea that everybody was leaving. But my family decided to stay. So I am here to stay. Like, I am sure, all the other Members of this House, this is home. As legislators we need to do whatever is necessary to ensure that the Cayman Islands continues to be a place where people can come and enjoy our hospitality where they do not have to be overly concerned about their personal safety. Not only visitors, but our own people can continue to enjoy the quality of life that we have been known to enjoy in this country.

So I support and appreciate all that has been said, and I look forward to Government moving on, taking the respective steps that are necessary to ensure that this system is put in place as quickly as possible.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion 16/94: "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED that Government look into ways of stemming the flow of illegal drugs and firearms into the Cayman Islands by sea by looking at the possibility of establishing a proper coastal surveillance system." I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Private Member's Motion 16/94 has been duly passed.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION 16/94 PASSED.

The Speaker: The next item is Private Member's Motion 17/94 Judicial Review. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/94

JUDICIAL REVIEW

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I beg to Move Private Member's Motion 17/94 entitled Judicial Review, which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS the continued success of the Cayman Islands is dependent upon political, economical, as well as judicial stability;

"AND WHEREAS there is an apparent lack of coordination between the Judiciary, Police and the Legal Department;

"AND WHEREAS, in view of the rapid progress of these Islands, it is important to continue to ensure that justice is not only done, but appears to be done in all cases;

"AND WHEREAS it is also important to ensure that the conditions of service and remuneration are such that would continue to attract the highest calibre of Justices for the administration of justice in these Islands;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT appropriate steps be taken by His Excellency the Governor, in consultation with the Honourable Chief Justice, to appoint an appropriate person or team of persons to carry out a full review of the judicial system in the Cayman Islands;

"AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT a summary of the findings of the review, with appropriate recommendations for improvement, if any are deemed necessary, be tabled in this Honourable House in due course."

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: I beg to second Private Member's Motion 17/94.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion 17/94, having been duly moved and seconded is now before the House for debate. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, I have a question at this stage. There is an amendment to this Motion, should that amendment be brought at this stage?

The Speaker: Yes, you can bring that. The Motion has been proposed, you can now present your amendment.

AMENDMENT TO
PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/94
JUDICIAL REVIEW

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 25(1) and (2), I, the Third Elected Member for West Bay, move the following amendment to this Motion: (1) that the title "Judicial Review" be changed to "Courts Office Review"; and (2) that the words "judicial system in the Cayman Islands" in the first operative be deleted and replaced with the following: "Courts office, Police and Legal Department in relation to cases coming before the Courts to advise on the implementation of improvements and changes to the Courts Office, Police and Legal Department to enhance the administration of cases (both Civil and Criminal) coming before the Courts"; and (3) that the last paragraph of the motion be deleted.

The Speaker: The amendment of a Motion has to be seconded. The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: I would like to second that amendment.

The Speaker: There is a proposed amendment, as has been read by the Member, and it has been duly seconded and is now before the House for debate.

Would you wish to start your debate at this time, because there are just about four minutes left? Would you defer the debate then, until tomorrow?

May I ask for the adjournment of the House at this time? The Honourable Minister for Agriculture Communication and Works.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until 10 o'clock, Thursday morning, the 16th of June.

AT 4.27 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 THURSDAY, 16 JUNE 1994.

THURSDAY
16 JUNE, 1994
10.04 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

Questions to Honourable Ministers. Number 99 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MINISTERS/MEMBERS

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, this question is addressed to the Minister with responsibility for Education and Aviation, and that Minister is not in the Chamber at this time.

The Speaker: I think he is coming, if you could just give him one second, please. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town, question 99.

QUESTION NO. 99

No. 99: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation how many passengers have been transported by Cayman Airways Limited over the past ten years.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I am sorry for being a few minutes late Ma'am. Cayman Airways Limited has transported 2,732,658 passengers over the past ten years.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say which route is the most prosperous, that is, which route does Cayman Airways transport most passengers on?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I can only give an assumption here, and I would like to point out, Madam Speaker, that this question, asking for ten years of passengers, has wasted a lot of good time of Cayman Airways' staff and money to do so. Obviously, it is in Miami because we run there more often than anywhere else.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Is the Honourable Minister in a position to say if this route, in the last year or so, is still the route by which most passengers are transported?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker. I think it is common knowledge that we run more trips, more flights to Miami and we always have, and I believe we always will.

The Speaker: The next question is 100, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 100

No. 100: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Communications and Works to state Government's interest in the road from the office of Caribbean Utilities Company Limited to the Barcadere.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer, the section of road from the office of Caribbean Utilities Company Ltd. to the Barcadere is a gazetted public road. The gazettal took place on the 25th August, 1980, with a Boundary Plan No. 56.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say if work on this road is now completed, and can he also tell the House by whom this work was done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Communications.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Road work from Caribbean Utilities to the Barcadere is completed and it was a joint project between Cable and Wireless, Caribbean Utilities Company and Government.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 101, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 101

No. 101. Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation how many people have completed the Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation programme at the Counselling Centre since 1993.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer, there were 98 new users in 1993, with a total of 104 repeat clients, giving a total of 202 clients.

Services offered in 1993 for chemically dependent clients were the Intensive Out-Patient Programme that met two times per week. It consisted of group therapy as well as direct instruction and ran for 10 consecutive weeks. Following the 10-week Intensive Out-Patient Programme, the clients attended the Aftercare Programme once per week. In certain cases, clients were referred to Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous support groups in the community for ongoing support.

All clients at Cayman Counselling Centre were seen on an individual basis.

Twenty-nine per cent of the clients seen at Cayman Counselling Centre in 1993, successfully completed. Had they been admitted to an In-patient facility the predicted rate of success would have been higher. However, the out-patient success rate compares favourably with the national average in the United States of America.

In 1994, services have been offered to 84 chemically dependent clients up to 30th April. Statistics for May are being compiled.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say if the programme for repeat clients is the same as that for new clients?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, I would beg that I pass this over in writing as the lady who is responsible for this went off the Island and I was not aware of this until this morning.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 102, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 102

No. 102: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation if Cayman Airways Ltd. is making a loss on its Inter-Island service and, if so, how much.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the answer: In 1992, on a fully allocated cost basis, the Inter-Island Service made a loss of $2.0 million before subsidy. For the first nine months of 1993, the comparable figure was $1.18 million which suggests a year end loss of $1.58 million, approximately.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, thank you. Could the Honourable Minister say if this route is now being separated for purposes of management and to determine its viability one way or the other, or is it taken as part of the overall losses or profits of Cayman Airways?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, it is not being separated in the way that I understand the Member to be asking. This is a service which the Government provides for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman residents and, notwithstanding the heavy subsidy of it, we will continue to do so.

I should point out that perhaps in this year with Island Air now intervening, losses will increase.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if it is a fact that there is active consideration being given to Cayman Airways not operating this route anymore and handing it over to Island Air exclusively?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, this is something that has been raised by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and his colleague the District Commissioner for Cayman Brac. These are rumours that are being spread and are totally untrue and I wish that they would now stop this and let Cayman Airways...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

POINT OF ORDER
(Misleading)

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order, Honourable Member?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am not giving way.

The Speaker: You have to give way, he is rising on a Point of Order which is required. May I hear the Point of Order Honourable Member?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Minister would have to be deliberately misleading this House when he talks about my colleague, the District Commissioner for Cayman Brac, and me. Everyone knows that he is a civil servant and he is no colleague of mine. I am a Member of the Legislative Assembly. It is his political invective, I think, Madam Speaker.

[Inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Aviation, the question has been asked. If you would just give a yes or no, please.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, may I finish the other part? We are adding a mid-day (or around that time), flight to Cayman Brac by the jet from the United States on Saturdays which is one of the other things that was requested.

I am doing everything I can, and we are now flying far more flights than we did before, notwithstanding that we are carrying somewhat less passengers because Island Air is flying there. But I have done everything possible to help Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. And that, I wish to have this Legislature clearly understand, notwithstanding the opposition that I continuously get on it.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 103, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 103

No. 103: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation what is the current mission statement of Cayman Airways Ltd.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It is, to support the National economy by ensuring continuity of access to the Islands through the provision of a safe, reliable, efficient and high quality air transportation product to the public, the tourism industry and to commerce; to provide an Inter-Island air-bridge as part of the National infrastructure to facilitate the movement of Caymanians and visitors; to provide good quality employment using Caymanian human resources, where possible, and to develop and train such resources in order to meet the high demands of the aviation industry.

Cayman Airways Ltd. should be operated as profitably as possible, or at least to maximise its efficiency, so that dependence on the financial support of the Government is minimised.

Be committed to a policy of managed growth in order to develop a critical mass and achieve economies of scale and initially to downsize to a least cost operation.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister state when this mission statement was arrived at, and if the employees of Cayman Airways have in any way seen or heard of it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I am told that a mission statement similar to this came in 1991, and that staff have known of this.

The question of the downsizing is, naturally, a more recent aspect of it over the last year and a half.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 104, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 104

No. 104: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation if any consideration is being given by Government to the privatisation or partial privatisation of Cayman Airways Ltd.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer: Government is not considering the privatisation or partial privatisation of Cayman Airways Limited at the present time.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. Other Business, Private Members' Motion. Private Member's Motion No. 17/94, debate continues with the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/94

AS AMENDED

COURTS OFFICE REVIEW (FORMERLY SET DOWN AS JUDICIAL REVIEW)

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, just prior to the adjournment yesterday, the Motion was moved and seconded and the proposed amendment to the Motion was also moved and seconded. This morning I would like to give my thoughts on the subject of the Judicial Review.

It is no secret that we in the Cayman Islands have, fortunately, over the past 25 or 30 years, experienced amazing success, especially economically, in these Islands. Today, the Cayman Islands are the envy of the Caribbean and, to a large extent, the envy of the world because here we can boast of one of the highest standards of living in any place of the world. This did not just happen, Madam Speaker. It happened for some very important reasons.

The first reason I would like to mention is the issue of political stability. Being a British Crown Colony and being designed along the Westminster style of Government over the years has served us well. Legislators also, down through the years, have been responsible and have held in high regard the welfare of these Islands.

We do not have any history in these Islands of coups or military overthrows. Our Government, if it is going to be changed, does so every four years as a result of the General Elections through the voices and wishes of our people. This has fared us well because people from the outside, especially, when they are looking for a place to live or to invest or even a place to visit, one of their main concerns is that it is a stable environment.

The Cayman Islands is also a very unique social community. We have always enjoyed and promoted social harmony in these Islands. By that I mean one is accepted for what one is, regardless of financial status, race, sex or creed. And that is unique, Madam Speaker, because not many places in the world can boast of that kind of social harmony. This has been to our advantage. People coming here can relax, they can be themselves, at least for a little while and they can forget about some of the social ills that they experience on a daily basis in many of the countries that they come from.

Caymanians have always been known to be friendly people, and, by nature, they go out of their way to make you feel welcome. We have also been able to boast of a safe community: that is, you can come here to visit, considering that you take precautions because even as a resident or a citizen of this country I do not put myself in the position where I can be harmed physically at places I go to, and the time of the night that I go to those places. Regardless of where you go, Madam Speaker, you have to exercise some degree of caution. But the Cayman Islands are a very safe environment and this has bode well for us over the years.

Many efforts have been made in order for the Cayman Islands to continue to experience and enjoy the success that we have had over the years. The thing that we always have to keep in mind is that there are always people and countries out there attempting to duplicate our [successful image] in order to attract some of the business and success that we have here. So we always have to be mindful of the fact that there are various competitors out there who do not have our best interest at heart.

The financial community over the years has been very conscious of this and they have put forward, mainly through the Financial Secretary, legislation that would safeguard the financial community here. For example, I think it was back in 1986, that the Mutual Legal Assistant Treaty and Law was introduced and the main objective of that legislation was to discourage the use of the Cayman Islands by entities or persons who had funds from illegal means—mainly from drug trafficking activities, prostitution and other activities of that nature.

Basically, what they said as well is that if a criminal was brought before the courts, be it the United States or wherever, and charged with possession of funds that are from illegal means, the Cayman Islands would cooperate with the conviction. That has gone a long way in cleaning up that type of activity here in the Cayman Islands. As a result, at the present time, any cash deposits in excess of $10,000, firstly most banks will not accept it, and if they do, they are required to report those deposits to the Financial Services Department.

Recently the Financial Secretary moved legislation to reduce company fees in order to keep us competitive with jurisdictions such as the U.S. Virgin Islands, who have very successfully mirrored our legislation and the other things that we have done well over the years. As a result, they can boast today of a large percentage of the business that would have normally come to the Cayman Islands. So, we are conscious of what we have to do and the competitors that we have out there as far as the financial community is concerned.

On the political front, over the years legislation has been brought to amend the Elections Law, for example, prescribing qualifications for membership as far as the House is concerned. Today, in order for one to sit as a Member of this House he has to be a Caymanian. We have also made efforts in upgrading our Constitution, increasing the membership of the House, especially our membership on Executive Council, to help eliminate the position the previous governments found themselves in—with the overload as far as responsibilities are concerned. Now those responsibilities are shared between five Ministers of the Executive Council plus our three Official Members, rather than four Ministers and three Official Members. And it has helped. The Ministers are now in a position where they can pay a little more attention to each area rather than just doing an overview of those areas.

Madam Speaker, hopefully by 1996, which is when the next General Election is scheduled to be held, we will be in a position where every eligible voter in this country is issued with a voter's registration card which will eliminate a lot of the problems that have been experienced around election time with regard to registration. Many people show up at the polls thinking that they are on the list only to be told that is not the case and it is very upsetting, Madam Speaker. But if you put in place a system, and that is the plan, where every voter is issued with a card, and every young person once they have reached the age of 18 is issued with a voter's registration card, when it comes election time, there should not be any problem of that nature.

The other thing that I am looking forward to is the introduction of the new system as far as voting is concerned and I am hoping that by then, we will have in place a system where the voter goes in and pulls the slot on a machine and records his vote. Shortly thereafter, once the polls are closed, those results will be made known, (rather than sitting in a building for 12 hours or 16 hours before you know the result).

Politically, we are moving forward and continuing to stay abreast of the developments that we have experienced in this country. The reason for this Motion is that it is the opinion that the judicial side now has to do the same. I think it is time for the courts to look at its administration, see to it that their staff are properly trained, and that those who are trained and are doing a good job be promoted; that they are given an opportunity to take on additional responsibilities and be paid for those responsibilities.

Also look at a proper distribution of the Court's workload and seeing to it that there are sufficient numbers of staff; seeing to it that they are all occupied and that they share in carrying out the responsibilities at the Courts Office.

One area of improvement that I believe needs urgent attention is the record system of the courts. I hear quite often of cases that have to be postponed because a file cannot be found; there is no record of the case and this wastes the time of the court. A person charged has to be coming back and forth to the court until his records can be found. I also believe that it is time for the court to move into the computer-age. There is no reason why, when charges are being filed against an individual, that information cannot be put on the computer. A terminal could be put into the courtroom where the Magistrate has access to the information when he needs it immediately. So I believe that this is an area that definitely needs some urgent attention.

Then there seems to be a lack of proper coordination and communication between the Court Office and the Police. Many times a defendant will show up and appear before the Magistrate, the Magistrate calls for a file only to be told, "No, your Honour, we do not have that information as yet from the police." Again, it wastes the time of the court and it is not a good reflection as far as the whole operation is concerned.

I believe – and this is an issue that has been talked about for many, many years – that we need to address the issue of physical space for the court. Right now I think they occupy two or three rooms in the Courts Office. They are also housed in the George Town Town Hall and on occasion, cases have to be deferred because there is not enough room available where those hearings can take place. But I do not want us to embark on a construction programme without some thought as to the needs of the Court.

Madam Speaker, I believe that it is time for this country to look at establishing a proper Family Court where matters affecting the family can be dealt with efficiently and in a confidential manner. It is difficult enough to go to court and it is intimidating. I have a lot of sympathy for people in that position. But I believe it would be much more humane if issues of divorce, child maintenance and other family matters could be dealt with in a court designed specifically for that purpose.

I believe that the Court's principles are like any other business in that the court has to be in a position where they continue to attract the highest calibre of persons available. And we will only achieve that if we review salaries and benefits that we offer to persons who come here to serve as justices to ensure that when we have a vacancy and we advertise, we have the right calibre of persons saying, 'Yes, well, I think for the next three years I will consider the Cayman Islands' as far as the courts are concerned. That is very important, Madam Speaker.

We have done a lot of talking about the issue of criminal activity in this country. The police are now geared to addressing that issue. They have additional personnel, they have a specific task force. Just yesterday we approved the matter of coastal surveillance which means that we will be in a position shortly to properly monitor our coastlines in regard to illegal activity. So there is a multi-faceted approach and effort that is going on at the present time.

But, it is very frustrating, if the police go out there and through their efforts they are able to pull in someone, successfully lay charges against them, get them to court with the proper evidence and then, for the court, it depends on the nature of the charges and I believe that sentences have to be in line with the crime committed. But it is frustrating for the police (and I have spoken to many of them) to bring a case before the Court only to have it maybe slap the defendant on the wrist and say, "Go and do not do it again." I think that does send the wrong message.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I am going to have to ask you to refrain from that type of remark which is raising or imputing the conduct of Judges and Magistrates in the court. I think I have mentioned this to you before when you brought the Motion and I would ask you, please, do not continue in that vein. That is not permissible under Standing Orders 35(7).

Thank you.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The message that I want to leave, Madam Speaker, is that I feel the court has to continue to carry out its responsibilities. Because it is very important for our community—and I am not saying that is not the case, I believe it is the case—to still have faith in our judicial system. People still feel that if they go before the court they are going to be treated fairly. I believe that is important, and what my concern is, Madam Speaker, is that this continues to be the case—I am not imputing that that is not the case. In order for that to continue to be the case, I think, we need to be conscious of the environment in which we live at the present time and ensure that this happens.

I am requesting that this Review be done by some qualified person or team of persons who are brought in from the outside. Someone who is qualified to, first of all, carry out the review in an objective and professional manner. The review that I am calling for does not say that there is something wrong, that is not the message I want to send. My request is that we do it as a review at this stage to ensure that everything is in order. Maybe there are areas that we can improve on and we can address those issues at this stage, rather than waiting Madam Speaker, not facing the responsibility or recognising that we have a potential problem in that area and one of these days it blows up in our faces.

I think, there is too much at stake here as far as we are concerned. The survival of our country depends on political, social and judicial stability and I believe a review, just to ensure that the judicial side continues to stay abreast of our development and will be in order at this stage.

Madam Speaker, I commend the Motion to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I rise to make my contribution on Private Member's Motion No. 17/94, as amended, which is presently before the House. I would like to say that the Government and I welcome the Motion in its amended form. It would be foolish and untrue to say that any organisation could not be improved, and of course that could be said of the Court's administration, the administration of my own Legal Department and the Police. Sometimes to effect the improvements that are desired, it is necessary to bring in persons from outside, who are not so closely involved with the day-to-day running of that department or organisation, to give an overview and to suggest practical and worthwhile improvements. The amended Motion suggests exactly that and I am hesitatingly supporting it.

I think it is worth pointing out at this stage that I mentioned the amendments to the Motion because I think the Motion in its original form was somewhat ambiguous. It is worth pointing out the very real importance of the separation of judicial and executive powers in any democracy, and particularly in the Cayman Islands, and it would be wrong—indeed, Madam Speaker, you have referred to this already in raising the Standing Order—for this House to debate or impugn any actions against members of the judiciary. That is why I say I welcome the amended Motion in the way it addresses the very real issue of improvements of the administration.

One of the reasons for the difficulties that needs to be addressed is the increase in cases coming before the court. And when I say cases, I am by no means exclusively referring to criminal cases, in fact, in my experience and, I believe, the experience of the justices, the real increase in cases now is on the civil side. That does not mean that there is anything wrong, in fact that is a natural consequence of the success of the Cayman Islands in the last few years in attracting commercial and financial businesses to these Islands. It is a commercial reality that as commercial and financial activities increase, there will inevitably be disputes that sometimes cannot be resolved otherwise than through court actions. This is why the civil side of our jurisdiction here in the Cayman Islands has increased over the years.

In fact, the Chief Justice in his address at the opening of the Grand Court earlier this year, referred to this very fact, and he gave the statistic that in 1992, the number of civil actions filed in the Grand Court was 467, and that number has increased by 100 in 1993, to 567. Quite a substantial percentage increase, and I have no reason to suppose that figure will not increase again in 1994. Not only are the number of civil cases increasing, but so is the complexity of the cases that come before the court. Because as this jurisdiction (and as this country's financial services) becomes more and more sophisticated, as it will, and as it has to, to compete with those other jurisdictions throughout the world, so the cases that come before the courts will be ever more complex. That imposes a great strain not just on the judiciary itself, but of course on the administration that backs it up—the administration in my own Department where those cases involve the Legal Department and when it comes to the criminal cases, then, for the Police as well.

But, I am specifically trying to direct my remarks to the Court Office in this particular context. So it is hardly surprising that the court's administration is feeling the strain of this increase. The Mover of the Motion, the Third Elected Member for West Bay, has, himself, talked about the need for training for the court staff. Indeed, I think he mentioned the Judges as well as Magistrates be properly paid, of course, and for promotion to be offered where it is due. All those are important.

The training I think is especially important because we are getting into areas now with civil cases that this jurisdiction had not had to deal with before. As I have said, these complex cases are going to increase more and more over the years. In fact, it is true to say that the Chief Justice and myself have been put on notice of how these cases are likely, and, indeed, inevitably going to increase over the years.

One factor that has been mentioned by the Mover is the question of computerisation. Well, of course, if you want to improve the administration of records, computerisation is without a doubt the way to go. But, computers themselves do not solve the problem. The data that is put into them – the software that is used to run them all have to be specifically for the task at hand if you are to derive benefits from them. So, I would not like anyone to be under the illusion that by merely spending a lot of money on expensive computer equipment is going to suddenly solve these problems at a stroke, because it is certainly more complex than that.

I think computers do have their part to play, however. The Chief Justice has considered, (and is considering this). We shall be (and he will be) asking for advice from outside this jurisdiction of other court systems who have and are using computers to aide them with court records and the experience they have had using these systems. I am sure that they will then be evaluated and, hopefully, the right system can be installed here. Madam Speaker, it is easy to spend considerable sums on computer equipment and achieve nothing other than a lot of computer screens and hardware, and we have no intention of going down that road.

The other thing I would like to mention is that one of the problems that over-stretched administration creates, is that it imposes upon, in this case, the Judges and the Magistrates administrative tasks that they should be free from. And because their time is taken up with these administrative tasks, they have less time to deal with what they are appointed to do, which is to exercise their judicial powers and deal with cases both in Court and in Chambers. Of course, these administrative functions are vital and if they have to be done and if it falls to the Judges or to the Magistrates to do them then they cannot be left undone. So judicial time is wasted.

One of the benefits of improving the administrative efficiency would be, in my opinion, to free up more judicial time. This particular comment has much relevance to the Legal Department as well, where far too much time of qualified attorneys is spent on administrative matters, which do not require their qualifications, to be dealt with. Whilst they are dealing with those, of course, they are unable to give their time and attention to their caseloads.

So I suppose what I am saying is that the necessary backup to the professionals, if I can put it like that (I do not mean it in any derogatory manner), is absolutely vital. Anything that will help to improve the efficiency of that administration backup is extremely welcomed by the Government, by the Chief Justice and me.

I have spoken with the Chief Justice on this topic on many occasions in the past, and I am also aware that the Chief Justice has spoken with His Excellency the Governor. There is support for achieving these ends and I am grateful to the Mover of the Motion for bringing these problems to the attention of the House so that they can be debated in this way. I would not like Members to think that nothing has been done concerning the administration, or the co-ordination between the various Departments. This has been a problem for some considerable time and I believe that we are well aware of what the problem is and where the problem lies. That is not so difficult to ascertain; what is far more difficult to deal with are the improvements that we can carry out to relieve that problem. That is why I say that sometimes it helps considerably if you bring in individuals who can stand back and give impartial advice as to how best these improvements can be implemented.

I accept that when there are considerable quantities of paperwork—and cases do generate considerable quantities of paperwork—then there are files of papers passing around from one Department to another which includes the Courts Office and, of course, through my own Department. Such an arrangement is tailor made for things to go astray—files to be in the wrong place when they are required elsewhere.

Madam Speaker, that is by no means peculiar to this jurisdiction. There is not one jurisdiction that is free from these problems. It is the problem with paper work, but we can improve it. We can certainly try to improve it and we can welcome outside advice and assistance in this process.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay has mentioned the question of accommodation. Well, of course, this is another topic that has been under discussion for some considerable time. I believe that it considerably predates my arriving on this Island to take up my post here. Of course, if there was to be an increase in the number of persons in the Courts building, whether Judges, Magistrates or administrative staff, then there would have to be some alteration or increase in the accommodation that is there. I am not saying that there will be an increase in staff; I am saying that there is no room in that building, as it stands at the moment, for any increase in staff without alterations being made.

This is a topic that has been discussed for quite some time. Naturally there are budgetary constraints on any major projects to be carried out in the country which have to be decided in the light of those constraints. This is a matter that is under discussion.

So, Madam Speaker, I can finish my contribution by saying that the Motion and the resolution to assist and advise on the implementation of improvements is welcomed and is a matter that is under active consideration at present. I hope that we shall be able to see the improvements taking place in the not-too-distant future. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am delighted with what the Second Elected Member has shared with us regarding this Motion and I am pleased to learn that the improvements will come in due course.

Private Member's Motion No. 17/94 is very timely in asking for the review of the Court's Office and to see how improvements and changes can be made to enhance the administration of both the civil and criminal cases. I believe that separation of powers between the judicial and executive have been mentioned and in no way did the Mover or myself intend to interfere with the separation of powers in presenting this Motion.

Back in 1991, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office was reviewing all Dependent Territories Judicial Systems. But, for some reason, I understand the former Governor advised that it was not necessary for the review to take place in Cayman. Times have changed, and a lot has taken place in our society since 1991. Therefore, I believe this is quite necessary to take a look at, at this time.

Often times we learn of negative things through the media, and I am sure a lot of good things do take place, but we have learned of the negative things that take place at the court as well. The staff list published in 1991, listed three higher executive posts and to date these positions are still vacant. With the increase of the work load I wonder why these positions have still not been filled. Are there qualified Caymanians or non-Caymanians that perhaps could fill these positions and, if not, why are people not being trained to fill them?

The Law School was instituted several years ago and I feel that perhaps advantage is not being taken of the Law School by the Government in trying to encourage people to go to the school in order to fill the positions of higher executive officers in the Court.

In the editorial of the Caymanian Compass of April 15, 1994 it was titled "Summary Justice" and it deals with the swiftness of justice. Madam Speaker, with your indulgence I would just like to share some of those points that were made in the editorial with one of the problems that is faced in the court system. I quote "Ideally, justice should be swift but as with most ideals, this one is often difficult to attain.

"The delays experienced in Cayman's summary court this past week, however, took matters exceptionally far away from the ideal of swift justice..."

"The delays this week were at least partly due to the absence of one of the magistrates who is on leave without a substitute. Matters usually heard in two courts all had to be dealt with in one, leading to scores of postponements.

"Many defendants, witnesses, prosecutors, attorneys, spent inordinate amounts of time in court simply waiting for their cases to be called, often only to see their matter postponed..."

"Most of the matters on the Summary Court's list were not particularly complicated. There were just too many of them.

[The final paragraph states] "For those innocently accused, undue delays in the resolution of a matter is patently unfair. For those who are guilty, immediate punishment is often much more effective than delayed penalty. There is the other tenet—justice delayed is justice denied."

Having just heard the Second Official Member's comments, this is not what he and other Members from the Judicial Department would like to have take place because all of us would like to see justice take place.

Madam Speaker, also to be made further aware of the problems, Chief Justice Harre responded to this Editorial in the June 19th 1994, Caymanian Compass, titled "Overload in court." He explained the reason for the Magistrate's absence – she was attending a study tour and also interviewing candidates to act as magistrates in the absence of a qualified person. He said, and I quote "...I have on several occasions in the recent past asked practising members of the legal profession to act during the absence of a magistrate and they have responded willingly and effectively." But for some reason he felt that he did not want to impose on practising members to substitute here for the magistrate.

There is another letter following his [Chief Justice Harre] with one of the famous names "withheld by request" entitled "Saving Court Time." It is a very lengthy letter. Apparently the person experienced this delay – he stayed in court all day and the case was not called, even though it was listed, because of the heavy work load and the number of hearings they did for the day.

I mentioned these, Madam Speaker, because the public is aware of some of the problems and the apparent lack of understudy taking place by people involved in the civil registry. If illness or vacation arises, then the entire legal machinery experiences long and unnecessary delays and/or problems.

I am no expert, but some of the possible solutions I see, that, perhaps, could take place, might be the need to complete a job description for each staff member and to adhere to these as far as possible and practicable. Apparently, certain staff members are not carrying their weight even though there is an overload and poor public relations are evolving.

In the Motion we mentioned the coordination and communication in the different Departments (and I am sure staff are affected by this) so that when staff are scheduled to take their vacation, as seen here from the Chief Justice's letter, that proper replacement should be in place before they are allowed to go.

Madam Speaker, this causes frustration, undue delay and, when human beings are involved, mistakes are made both technically and financially, losses occur, especially with the court's fees. Apparently a body is used as a replacement with no prior experience, and the Chief Justice does say that he appeals through the legal profession to assist as a magistrate, but does not want to impose on them. Often times Justices of the Peace are called in with no prior experience.

Ongoing internal training of the staff and rotation of the staff would account for more flexibility. One of the problems that we so often hear from the public, in having to get their documents sworn by a Justice of the Peace is that the administration of oaths is presently done by the Clerk of Courts and her two Deputies who are Justices of the Peace. But often times they are in the Court and the public is not able to have their documents sworn, that is, from the courthouse.

I think overcrowded facilities have been mentioned. One of the other problems I would like to mention is the need for proper security at the Courts Building. Madam Speaker, a former Magistrate found a hook in his chair, and this is appalling. Ganja was found on the Court's steps. A smoke ball was thrown into the Court's lobby and just last week the Court Reporter left her desk, returned shortly, and her purse had disappeared. Fortunately, Madam Speaker, she was able to run after the individual with the purse and it was recovered. But for the Courts Building in any other part of the world it is not as easily accessible and very little accountability seems to take place.

Often times in the media we read of files not being found, and it appears that no organised filing system is in place. When the files are removed from the room no record is kept of this file leaving the room and, as a result, they are often impossible to locate and most times are lost. Again, more accountability should be in place at this point. Most of us are aware of a recent edition of the Caymanian Compass where an advertisement was placed soliciting tenders to bid for the addition and renovation of the Court Building. Hopefully, Madam Speaker, some of these problems will be eliminated and addressed through the renovations due to take place in the physical upgrade of the Court Office.

In sentencing, and I do not want to imply that the sentences are not fair or consistent, but they need to reflect...

The Speaker: Excuse me, Honourable Member, I think I am going to have to ask you to desist from making any statement about sentences in the Court, please.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: I will abide by that.

In the newspaper often times we learn of suspended sentences and usually that is for the first offence and for the reasons of overcrowding Northward Prison.

But, Madam Speaker, here again justice should be done and appear to be done.

In reviewing the Courts Department, the Legal Department and the Police Department, often times Justices of the Peace will be used. Hopefully, Madam Speaker, training will be considered which will help them to deal with juvenile cases.

There seems to be a lack of communication and coordination between the Police, the Legal Department and the Court. Again, we have learned through the media of one department not being prepared for the case that was set down to be heard. Just recently, in the newspaper there was a report of the Superintendent of Police, who appeared before the Chief Justice to apologise for the police not appearing in presenting a case and undue delay was carried out causing inconvenience and time lost. I am sure the Second Official Member will take all of this into consideration when the review is being made.

One of the matters that will be considered in the review, hopefully, will be the matter of legal aid. This seems to be taking place on an ad hoc basis and the public is getting financial assistance by way of legal aid to get lawyers to represent them. This needs to be properly vetted so that this is not abused.

These Islands are relatively safe and we do have some problems but, again, we need to maintain that safety and try to do all that we can to make sure that we live in peace and security. Again, only as a representative of the people, with no interference in the judicial system I humbly ask all Honourable Members of this House to vote for this Motion so that the Courts Office can function efficiently and effectively and justice can continue to be carried out. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.34 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.56 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues. Private Member's Motion No. 17/94 [Pause] If no other Member wishes to debate the Motion... the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I am very pleased to see this Motion which is before the House at this time for I believe it is something which needs to be addressed in this country. I observe that the Motion has been amended and changed to the extent that instead of calling for a judicial review, the review is for a Court's Office Review. One of the amendments requests a review of the Courts Office, Police and Legal Departments, in relation to cases coming before the Courts to advise on the implementation of improvements and changes to the Courts Offices; Police and Legal Departments to enhance the administration of cases, both Civil and Criminal, coming before the courts.

Madam Speaker, management, as a dynamic process, requires a review at certain intervals to be able to evaluate how management is performing and to take any kind of corrective measures which might be necessary. This idea of a review is not necessarily a new one, because I moved a motion very similar to this, Private Member's Motion No. 11/91, which was seconded by the present Mover of this Motion asking for a review of the Legal System. I am very happy to see that the Government at this time sees the need for such a practical approach in resolving some of the problems and difficulties that seem to clearly exist within the Court's legal process in the country in its practices and procedures.

It is certainly a change of position, as far as the present Attorney General is concerned, in that his predecessors felt that to have done a review that was requested at that time might send the wrong signal. So the approach at this time, I think, is one that is much more realistic and progressive in taking the approach as has been done by the country's chief law officer. I quote from the Hansard what the former Attorney General said on the question at the time. He said he thought it can send wrong signals in respect of the Cayman Islands and, with respect, I do not think it would achieve very much. (Official Hansard Report, 5 July 1991)

I believe that a review, such as the one being asked for here, can achieve a considerable amount of good. I trust that the person or persons who will undertake this task of reviewing, what I term, the practices and procedures, will be someone who has a far enough arm's length from the whole process here to be able to look at it objectively. Ideally, I would hope it would be someone versed in British Law Practice and Procedures who could be brought here for whatever period of time to carry out an objective review and to examine all the various areas where there appears to be difficulties within our legal process and within the Courts.

Madam Speaker, I wish to say also at this point, that I think we could look at many jurisdictions and we might not find many that equate to the level at which the law is given in terms of handling matters before the Courts are handled. I believe we operate at a very high degree in this country. This, even in the face of much criticism levelled at the judiciary from time to time in the process of dealing with various cases which come before it—criminal cases and otherwise.

I can think of certain criticisms: Earlier this year or last year, a certain murder case was tried and the persons accused were acquitted. I heard many people saying that criminals had been let off. I think a bit of education is needed because anyone can be accused and anyone can go before a court, but that does not mean that that person before the court is guilty. Indeed, the process of going before the court is for evidence to be heard from both sides and decide whether that person is guilty or not.

That brings me to the old and fundamental thought on the British Law—that a person is presumed innocent until proven guilty. Surely, it would not be good in this society if without any evidence the Court should find someone guilty. So for the public on a whole, I think, there is room to get across the whole concept of law and its practices in the Court and the way it functions.

Madam Speaker, there are some points I would like to raise as areas where, I believe, consideration could be given in making some corrections, as I believe there is a need for some. One very obvious and practical area where I think any person doing a review needs to look at is that in the area of court stenographers/court reporters, whichever they may be called. I believe we ought to strive towards having sufficient court reporters that can take verbatim records of what is said in any given court as soon as is possible.

It is my understanding that when there is a court reporter present to take what is being said verbatim, it frees the Judge to be better able to sit and listen to what is going on, rather than having to take notes laboriously. Where a Judge may require a call-back of something that was said for clarification and, I dare say, the defence or prosecution would be in a similar position, I think it is something that is very desirable. Although in our Law it says that the record of the Court shall be the Judge's notes, or some words to that effect, we need to get to a point where we have verbatim records and that those records be the records of the Court. If I remember correctly, several months back there was a situation where a case was affected because the particular verbatim record was not present. I think this is one of the things that can be looked at for the efficiency of the Courts in this country.

Madam Speaker, the Motion also asks for the review to include looking at how the Police relate to, or interact with the judicial process. I think that is very necessary, and it has been for some time. I am made to understand that the Police, as far as the Courts go if it was absolutely and fully defined, catch people who break the law—arrest them and bring them to the Court. Then the whole function of the Court trips in where the bailiffs and the ushers of the Court take over and such persons who might be arrested and brought to the court would then be dealt with within the process of the court.

In the past I know there have been police officers who were also doing prosecutions. Again, if what I am told is correct by persons who are legal practitioners, that is not the ideal situation, for there should be clear lines between the role played by the police and that played by the officers of the Courts. Again, (I made this point back in 1991), I do not know if it still is the case, but with jurors, there were some instances when they retired to consider a matter where the police officer was in attendance in the Jurors' Room. Madam Speaker, I believe that if there is to be separation of these functions, or if it is clearly the correct thing to do, we should see to it that these separations are made and put in place.

The Records System of the court really seems to be in trouble. I hope that this would not necessarily be the work of a legal person because there are persons in records management who might be better to consult with, or to have in charge of record-keeping system both with indexing of files and all the rest of it. But having occasions now and then to go to the Court House, and glancing at the room where records are kept, there appears to simply be thousands and thousands of records. So the changes of files that are active and files that are inactive or might not be relevant to a particular case, getting it all fouled up, I think, is very real. It might be that more staff is needed to work in the courthouse. If that is necessary—and I believe that the administration of justice is important—there should not be a moment of hesitation for hiring more staff for the Courts.

There have been various instances in the Courts where cases have had to be adjourned and judges have been very displeased at the fact that records were not present when they should have been or the judges had records and the defence lawyers did not have records.

The Caymanian Compass of April 28th, 1994, in a story headlined "For What it's Worth", by a reporter named Carol Winker, under the heading "Who is to blame for court delays?" listed a large number of problems, difficulties, and hiccups that she has noted over a period of time. This gave practical and clear indication of some of the problems and it would be an excellent place to start by just taking this particular article and going to the actual working situation within the Court House and see what can be done. Some of it may not need the expertise of a legal professional, it might need more the expertise of an O & M (Operations and Management) Officer, somebody who has knowledge of records management as I have stated.

Another thing which seems to me to be a problem with communication and, again, with basic management is where there are difficulties arising through witnesses being present or not being present. We know that there are cases where sometimes witnesses have to come from overseas and, again the article I mentioned earlier referred to one such instance where United States Agents from Miami actually came to the Island, but the case was not properly completed through our Court process so undoubtedly it cost the Government money and the case could not go on because, apparently, the communication was not in place. The prosecuting attorneys were not aware that these agents were coming so there was such difficulties. Madam Speaker, they do not really seem to me to be legal problems they seem, clearly, to be management matters which can be readily addressed.

There has been a need for more space, for years. When it was built, it seemed to be a very large Court House and now has become a very small Court House. I do not know how good the design of that building is for expansion, be it upward or whatever, but I do have some recollection, during the time of the last Member responsible for Communication, he said that it would be extremely expensive to add to that building due to its particular design and that it would be better to build to the side of it, or in some other fashion other than to go another storey or stores.

I would like to suggest that in the review, whoever does it, or all the persons involved with the process of the Courts and seeing that it has adequate physical space, that they look at building a building over what is presently the car park. And certainly, without losing any car parking space whatsoever, it is possible to go up with a steel structure there would remain parking, taking however much space above it that is necessary to build offices for whatever specific purposes that are needed.

But certainly, if one goes to the Court House at any given time it becomes immediately apparent—even to the average citizen—that there is an extremely urgent need for space in that building. I do hope that if and when space is provided someone will look a little at the layout so as to design the building that people who simply do not need to go into the belly of the building can have their business attended to at a desk or in a different section; that something be done in terms of laying out the building properly for the work which has to be done by any given unit or section of the Courts.

Madam Speaker, the business of the judiciary relates to other areas as well, that of being able to test for drugs in the country. And to the best of my knowledge we do not have facilities here where drug tests can be done for cocaine or such other drugs. I believe the time has come where we need to have a lab and persons who are properly qualified to deal with this condition so that this can help in speeding up the process in cases before the Courts. I need not belabour the point that everyone makes, that most of the cases appearing nowadays stem from drug abuse in whatever way or the other it has some relationship to drugs.

It does seem that there are more arrests being made where drugs are concerned and it should give greater dispatch to the business of the Court if the substances taken by the police could be tested locally.

Madam Speaker, another area that seems to me to relate to management and a matter for improved communication is one that had been cited in the local press where a person was taken before the Court, sentenced to prison and was released. He came out, then again committed another offence and the Immigration Department came into play where the person was simply taken and sent of the Island. When the Court was called to deal with this individual it was found that another arm of the Government, that is the Immigration Department, had sent this person away. In such cases it would hardly make sense to try to bring that person back unless it was some very serious offence. But it goes to show that there can be better coordination and better communication between the Court and, for example, the Immigration Department.

Perhaps it is well too, that a close look be taken—where the question of a person being sent away from the Island, or made a prohibited immigrant comes into play—between the Court and the Immigration Department that is executing that particular action. I think all these are practical areas where there have been difficulties and one that would not necessarily require a legal professional. There are, I would say, however, various instances as to the processing of papers, etcetera, which would need guidance or advice from a legal professional to see that the whole process of the judiciary works as it should.

Madam Speaker, in the article I referred to earlier in the Caymanian Compass of the April 28, 1994, there was also an instance where it noted that things are sometimes slowed down in the Court process because the Legal Department has not completed fulfilling its role and that has not been conveyed to the Courts. Madam Speaker, these things should not be because they can be corrected. They can be corrected and they should be corrected.

Throughout the whole process of persons appearing before the Courts one has to take into account the many instances of people who are too poor to afford a lawyer, or are too lazy to work to have enough money to afford one, or who really just do not care—not having the sense or otherwise—to have someone defend them. But for justice to appear to be done there are cases where persons should be represented by a lawyer. Again, I understand that legal aid is not provided for persons who appear before the Courts on drug related offences. This is one of the areas where more and more people seem to be ending up in the Courts because of drug related offences. That is an area that I think seriously needs to be looked at. If it requires enhancement in the amount of money that is paid to legal practitioners to appear for such persons, I think that should be done.

I would also like to say that I do not believe that any practitioner in this country should be immune from being called upon at sometime to appear in Court on these types of cases. I have heard suggestions from time to time that it might be well if some of the bigger firms paid a certain amount of money into the Government or into the specially managed account where that would go towards hiring those lawyers who would wish to do it. I do not think that any one should be excluded, for after all this is the community and the environment in which all lawyers practise and make their money.

In some jurisdictions it is my understanding that this is one of the demands made by the justice system—they must give and allot a certain amount of their time for this purpose. Of course, there are persons who could apply for legal aid under the Poor Persons Legal Aid Law, but they do not know how to go about it. In such instances, I believe there should be someone designated within the Court system to guide such persons in the right direction, be it through the Social Services Department, into making such arrangements.

Madam Speaker, during the term of the last Legislature there was a Motion brought to this House which dealt with matters relating to speeding. Traffic offences where someone breaks the speed limit, it would simply mean paying a fine. It is my understanding that it has not been accepted as it was recommended in that Motion.

There is such a great deal made in this country about someone doing two miles per hour over the speed limit — it is pathetic. Such persons could even be judges themselves who, in the course of coming to work, simply were not watching the speedometer and could be doing a mile or two over the speed limit. Does that make them offenders against the people in this country, or does that simply make them human like all the rest of us? Sometimes we all go over the speed limit. If that is not something of major consequence, where a person is driving a 100 miles per hour and has had an accident and all the rest of it, should we not sensibly legislate regulations where persons can be fined using some formula or the other if indeed they are in breach of the speed limit?

Madam Speaker, I think too much time is wasted in the Court dealing with people driving a few miles over the speed limit. The role of lawyers or legal practitioners, I think, is well defined in legislation of this country. I for one, however, believe that the two associations: the Law Society and the Caymanian Islands Bar Association need to play a greater role in the development and the economy of jurisprudence in this country than they presently do. I believe that their role has to become something more than just looking at a law which might affect the Companies Law, et cetera and giving comments. I think they need to be involved to the point where they see and make recommendations and give input on matters such as, what we are discussing here in this House now, where the Courts, the Police and the Legal Department are concerned.

Who else in this country must the rest of the country look to for ideas and guidance and advice when things are not going in the best or most desirable way? It has to be the legal profession. And I really do hope that these two associations and the persons therein would look to becoming more involved, have more to say, have more to suggest than is presently being done. I think there is room for an increase in their participation.

Madam Speaker, under Review is the Penal Code for the Cayman Islands and if, and when, that is completed I think there will be some recommendations there as far as penalties for crimes et cetera. I would hope, as I understand it is in the United Kingdom, that there are certain legislation which form a guideline for judges depending on what the cases are as to how sentencing and the length of sentences go. Many laws carry penalties as the maximum or minimum both in terms of fines and imprisonment. But I think this is an area, and it is my understanding that it is an area where the Courts always need to be vigilant about.

I note that in the Islands in recent times there are many suspended sentences. I do not know to what extent it is a consideration that there may not be space to sentence someone to go to Prison or whatever, but I believe there is a place for suspended sentences particularly where persons are young and it is their first offence. If judges believe that it would help then, indeed that should be done as it is often done in many cases.

Madam Speaker, the average citizen cannot presume to know the intricacies of the Law, or that of the functioning of the Police, or of the Courts and the Legal Department. However, the public at large has the right to expect to require and demand that those persons who are associated with the proper management and administration of these organisations do what is required of them in each and every instance. When it becomes necessary to review and evaluate what is happening in these three areas then, this should be done.

I trust that in any review which is done of this Court's Office Review it will be something meaningful. I hope it will be something practical. I hope it will be something significant enough that the public can see, feel and know that a difference has been made. I think everyone generally wants that, because each and everyone is aware that there are some problems. Some are directly affected by it; others only read about it in the newspaper. So I give my support to this Motion fully and I trust that something will be done about it quite speedily.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, this Motion as amended in the operative part, I would just like to read what the Motion would now say, and it is headed "Courts Office Review" instead of "Judicial Review," I read:

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT appropriate steps be taken by His Excellency the Governor, in consultation with the Honourable Chief Justice, to appoint an appropriate person or team of persons to carry out a full review of the Courts office, Police and Legal Department in relation to cases coming before the Courts to advise on the implementation of improvements and changes to the Courts Office, Police and Legal Department to enhance the administration of cases (both Civil and Criminal) coming before the Courts;"

I would like to commend the Mover and the Seconder for bringing that Motion, as amended, because it brings to the forefront an area of some problems within the delicate system of the Courts and the administration of justice through the Legal Department and the Police. This, I believe, will cause considerable improvements to be made within this area.

I would like to make it very clear that the legal profession and, indeed, myself, have full faith and are very satisfied with the ability of the judges and their functions as judges within the Court system. This aspect dealing with the administration is one that has been with the Court for many years and that is why I have said it is very timely and good that this Motion has now come to this Honourable House. The Seconder, the Third Elected Member for George Town, and the Mover have very clearly set out important aspects of areas of concern that have arisen in relation to the administration. Matters such as the proper security of the Court's Building is very important and crucial because courts must sit in an atmosphere of impartiality and without fear or favour to anyone and that cannot happen unless there is proper security at the building.

Areas such as proper job descriptions on the administration side, as were mentioned, are very important and everyone in this Honourable House accepts that the separation of powers – that is, the separation of the executive and the legislature from the judiciary – is fundamental to our system of Government and system of freedom to ensure impartiality. The courts cannot operate otherwise. This is well preserved and is by no means affected in any way by this Motion.

The Court has suffered for many years because the building was built, I would say some 20 or 25 years ago to take a High Court with an area for empanelling a jury of up to 12, which is necessary for murder cases and the Magistrate's Court. Since that time the only extension that has been done is the enclosure of the walkways on the sides; the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works is looking now at further enclosures downstairs to give more space. In those days there was possibly only one Judge who also acted as Magistrate; to date we have three High Court Judges, two Stipendiary Magistrates and a Juveniles Court that sits. We have a Court of Appeal. So at any one time there can be a demand for up to six court rooms that do not exist.

We are now seeing that the Courts are using a room downstairs. At times they have used the Library. Magistrates Court is held over in the Town Hall. Quite frankly, the Juveniles Court should be nowhere within that building. It should be into a separate building away from uniformed police and that would be the ideal situation. So something has to be done.

I believe this Honourable House will support the necessary extensions to it and I know that the Honourable Minister for Works is now looking at what can be done there. I believe along with organisation of the staff there has to be sufficient space to go along with it for the appropriate functioning of the administration in the Court system.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has mentioned the legal aid and indeed there was a select committee at one stage looking at this. I think this is an area that needs continual looking at because it has problems within it, part of which he has pointed out, that need some correction.

I believe, Madam Speaker, that the present system operates fairly. Anyone falling within the categories under the Law, who requires a lawyer, the Courts (after looking at the different aspects including their ability to pay and the type of offence they are charged with), will see that they are given a lawyer. That, too, is one of the fundamentals of our system of justice; how they will be carried out; the necessary liaison between the Courts Office, the Police and the Legal Department. I should also add the Prison because occasionally persons at the Prison do not show up in time for Court. In fact where prisoners are kept below in the holding cells, that area needs to be looked at as well; it is directly underneath the Court House, a small stairway comes straight up into the Court House. I understand from the Minister for Works that that is also being looked at.

I think this Motion is very good. I believe it is going a long way towards what the Second Official Member, the Honourable Attorney General, who is responsible for the Court system, has very ably pointed out. Because of the ever increasing number of court cases, the complexity of the present court cases, trials can last on civil matters sometimes two months, three months. We are also administering the Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty through a Judge of the Grand Court and this has put tremendous pressure on the administration itself and on the facilities that are there.

As he quite rightly pointed out, it has gotten to the stage where something needs to be done, hopefully within a reasonable period of time in the future to ensure that we get the Courts administration up to the standard that is needed. Especially the pulling together of the Police, the Courts and the Legal Department and the Prison as a team which will ensure that one does not detrimentally affect the administration of the other. That is a sizeable task but I think it can be accomplished and it will help the public tremendously – those who have to go before the Court, whether for criminal or civil matters.

In ending I would like to state once again that I, as a practising private lawyer have full faith in the ability and the high standards of our Courts and Judges. This Motion looks merely at the administration which will assist in keeping those standards high. Thus keeping our Courts as the cornerstone of democracy – freedom within our country – up to the highest standards that are demanded in our society on both criminal and civil cases that go before those Honourable Courts. Thank you.

The Speaker: If there is no other debate would the Honourable Mover wish to exercise his right of reply?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I want to say that I am pleased with Government's decision to accept this Motion and I want to thank the Second Official Member who spoke on behalf of Government for his contribution to this debate. I also want to say thanks to my two colleagues, the Third Elected Member for George Town, who did a very good job in her presentation, and the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation. I appreciate the contribution of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, who mentioned that a Motion of this nature was brought to this Legislative Assembly in 1989, moved by him and seconded by me. Unfortunately, the Government of the day did not see the need and the value of supporting the request at that time.

Madam Speaker, I would also like to mention, that the Motion that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman referred to in regard to traffic offences was brought by me back in 1989 or 1990, and it simply requested that the police be in a position to issue a speeding ticket for traffic offences of that nature. I recall having to visit the Courts on a number of occasions and a large majority of cases that are handled by the Court are traffic offences of this nature. I believe if the police were in a position to issue those tickets the person could then go to the Courts Office, pay that fine, get a receipt and go about his/her business. It would be an improvement to the system itself.

I have inquired about that amendment to the Traffic Law and when it will be coming into effect. Madam Speaker, this has been from back in 1989 or 1990. The problem has been the shortage of staff as far as the Legal Department is concerned. I understand that the Government has now addressed that issue and the Legal Department can get on with dealing with very vital legislation needed to be put in place affects a number of areas in our country.

Madam Speaker, I look forward to the things that have been recommended being put into place in order to improve the administrative functions of the system because the majority of them are administrative in nature. I believe that if we move ahead and put these things in place to ensure that the Courts have proper, adequate accommodation, for many years in the future we will continue to boast of the very stable political, judicial and economic environment. Madam Speaker, this is of paramount concern to all of us here in this House.

So I do appreciate the support of those who spoke as well as those who did not, and I look forward to the requests in this Motion being put in place. Thank you.

The Speaker: The first question before the House is the amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 17/94 and the question is, that the amendment be made.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye; those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/94 PASSED.

The Speaker: The question is that Private Member's Motion No. 17/94 as amended be approved. I shall put that question. Those in favour please say Aye; those against, No.

AYES

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion has duly been passed.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/94, AS AMENDED, PASSED UNANIMOUSLY.

The Speaker: There is just one other remaining item. I have been asked by the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works to allow him to make a statement and I now call upon him at this time.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I believe also that we needed to do something on the Standing Orders Committee. So I do not know if you want to take that first or after my statement.

The Speaker: I am afraid I do not understand anything about the Standing Orders Committee.

Hon. John B. McLean: I think it was the Motion that was passed earlier on the Standing Orders Committee which I thought was going to be referred to a Committee of the whole House.

The Speaker: The Motion was put to the House that it stands referred to the Standing Orders Committee and, in accordance with Standing Order 84, that was put at the time. So it therefore now stands referred to the Standing Orders Committee and the Committee should meet.

Is there anything further on that?

Hon. John B. McLean: We were hoping that we could come back this afternoon and try to deal with it, if it was in order with the Chair.

The Speaker: Well, it is up to what Members wish. But are you now saying that it is proposed that the Standing Orders Committee should meet this afternoon?

Hon. John B. McLean: That is correct, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Chairman of the Standing Orders Committee is the Honourable First Official Member.

Honourable Member do you wish to say anything on this?

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, if the Standing Orders Committee wishes to meet this afternoon it would have to convene under the Chairmanship of the Acting Chief Secretary, and I am not certain that he is prepared for that at such short notice.

The Speaker: I think, Members should be aware that His Excellency the Governor is due to depart this afternoon and in that case the Honourable First Official Member will be the Acting Governor and the now Deputy Chief Secretary would be the Honourable Temporary First Official Member. It does not appear that he is aware of the proposal to hold a meeting of the Standing Orders Committee.

I can be advised by the House or any Member who wishes to make a proposal. Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker, I am wondering if we could hold the meeting immediately after the suspension — prior to the Honourable First Official Member becoming Acting Governor—and then report immediately back afterwards, because we are nearly now at a stage for breaking, in any event. I do not believe it would be very long. It is a very short amendment.

The Speaker: So you are proposing to meet immediately after the suspension of the House? Would you give me a time for the resumption?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I would think that we could report back when we resume at 2.15 pm, unless Members intended to speak extremely long.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, I have an appointment starting at 2 o'clock. Therefore, if we are to meet and I am to be in the Chair it will have to be now, because when I leave now I will not be returning.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, if he does not return, by all means the Second Official Member, the Third Official Member or one of the Ministers could report back to the House.

The Speaker: Well, I do not see any reason why you could not meet now and finish by 2 o'clock. It seems to be very straightforward.

So as soon as the Minister has delivered his statement we will then suspend until 2 o'clock. Please Honourable Minister, your statement.

STATEMENT BY MINISTER OF THE GOVERNMENT

RELOCATION OF THE REGIONAL OFFICE OF CABLE AND WIRELESS (W.I.) LTD.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, after several months of negotiating with Cable and Wireless (West Indies) Limited, the decision to relocate their Regional Headquarters to Grand Cayman has been decided.

This is indeed a very positive move for the Cayman Islands and will be a positive boost to our economy.

The General Manager, Mr. Tony Hart, has advised that:

“(i) The Regional Office is likely to comprise approximately 40 staff of which it is believed some 30 would come from London and other locations within the Region; the balance would be locally recruited Secretarial/Clerical support. The Regional Office would be led by the Regional Director and his first line functional Directors. Unlike the local operating Unit which has 264 employees, 259 of which are Caymanian, the Company does not intend for the Regional Office to be ‘localised.’

“Progressively, over time their intention is for a portion of the Regional Office to be staffed by nationals from the countries of the region and that it will be used as a developmental posting where executives from their businesses from as far south as Trinidad to as far north as Bermuda and as far west as Cayman will be transferred to the Regional Office for two to three years and then back to their operating unit.

“(ii) The Regional Office will be quite separate from the existing local operating Unit and will function in much the same way as the London office does now. It is estimated that the annual operating budget for the Regional Office in Grand Cayman will be in excess of CI$6 million and it is our intention [referring to Mr. Hart] that it becomes a permanent establishment here in Grand Cayman.

“(iii) The Regional Office will be an integral part of Cable and Wireless (West Indies) Limited, which comprises 19 operating units in 18 territories of which the existing Cayman operation is a part. The Cayman Office will be fully established by the end of this year.”

Finally, once again Cable and Wireless clearly demonstrates the Company's long term commitment and belief in the future of the Cayman Islands and for this the Government of the Cayman Islands is most grateful.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: At this time proceedings will be suspended. At 1.50 pm the House will resume. Thank you.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.05 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 1.45 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings in the Legislative Assembly are resumed.

The House was suspended in order that the Standing Select Committee on Standing Orders could meet to consider, in Committee, Government Motion No. 6/94 which was referred to it on the 9th of June.

It is therefore necessary for the suspension of Standing Orders in order that the Report of the Committee which was not on the Order Paper may be presented.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER Standing Order 14

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 83, I move the suspension of Standing Order 14 in order that the Report of the Standing Select Committee on Standing Orders may be presented.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 14 be suspended in order that the Report of the Standing Select Committee on Standing Orders may be presented. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED BY MAJORITY: STANDING ORDER 14 SUSPENDED.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

REPORT OF THE STANDING ORDERS COMMITTEE

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Report of the Standing Select Committee on Standing Orders.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, the Committee met in accordance with Standing Order 70 to consider Government Motion No. 6/94 entitled, Amendment to Standing Order 23(8), which was referred to the Committee on the 9th [sic] of June, 1994.

The Motion reads as follows: “WHEREAS it is desirable that there be amendments to the Legislative Standing Order;

“AND WHEREAS in accordance with the provision of Standing Order 84, notice of a Motion is hereby given to amend the Legislative Assembly Standing Order (Revised);

“AND WHEREAS in the past it has been the practice that questions which remained unanswered during a meeting of the House would be answered in writing whether or not they were placed on the Order Paper;

“AND WHEREAS there has been a ruling that questions on the Business Paper which were not listed on the Order Paper would automatically be deferred until the next meeting within the Session;

“BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that the Proviso of Standing Order 23(8) be repealed and replaced by the following: ‘Provided that if all other business of the meeting has been disposed of that such postponed questions and all other questions listed on a Business Paper but not placed on the Order Paper shall be answered in writing by the Minister/Member to whom that question was addressed and copies of the answer shall be sent immediately thereafter to the Clerk, who shall send a copy to the Member in whose name the question stood.’”

In order to save the time of the House, the Committee has agreed that the Report be made orally and that the Minutes of the Committee be presented at a later date.

The Resolution of the Motion was considered and it was agreed that the words "and to all other Members" be added immediately following the word "stood." So the new Proviso of Standing Order 23(8) should now read “Provided that if all other business of the meeting has been disposed of that such postponed questions and all other questions listed on a Business Paper but not placed on the Order Paper shall be answered in writing by the Minister/Member to whom that question was addressed and copies of the answer shall be sent immediately thereafter to the Clerk, who shall send a copy to the Member in whose name the question stood and to all other Members."

The Committee listened to reservations and objections from the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, whose reservations and objections will be duly recorded in the Minutes of the Meeting.

Consequent to those discussions the Committee, by a majority, agreed to the passage of the resolution proposing the amendment to the Standing Orders.

I propose, Madam Speaker, that this be the Report of the Standing Orders Committee in accordance with Standing Order 75.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I think you would also need to suspend Standing Order 72(5) so that the Report and the Minutes thereof, an unwritten report—a verbal report is being presented—and that the minutes of proceedings would not be available at the same time to the House.

If you would do that Honourable First Official Member.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER Standing Order 72(5)

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am pleased to ask for the suspension of Standing Order 72(5) to enable this Report to be taken without the Minutes of the meeting now being available.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 72(5) be suspended in order that a verbal Report of the Standing Orders Committee be presented without the Minutes of proceedings.

I will put that question...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order...

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would like to move a Motion under Standing Order 72(6), would it be in order that I could do this after you have taken the vote on this, or would I have to move it at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member would have to make a further Motion that the recommendations of the Committee be adopted and at that time, if you wish to make a Motion, you can do so.

The question now is that Standing Order 72(5) be suspended in order that a verbal Report of the Standing Orders Committee be presented without the Minutes of proceedings.

I will put that question. Those in favour please say Aye; Those against, No.

AYES

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE VERBAL REPORT OF THE STANDING ORDERS COMMITTEE PRESENTED WITHOUT THE MINUTES OF PROCEEDINGS.

The Speaker: The Report has accordingly been presented as a verbal one without the Minutes of the proceedings.

Honourable First Official Member, you would now have to move that the recommendations be adopted.

MOTION TO ADOPT REPORT (Standing Order 72(5))

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, I am not proposing to move a motion for the adoption of the Report, I am simply asking the House to accept that as a Report of the Standing Orders Committee.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, if the Committee has made a report with recommendations that amendments be made to the Standing Orders, nothing can be done unless the Report and the recommendations are adopted. And you would have to move a motion to that effect, Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, I was interpreting the Standing Orders to say that there was an option that said that we may move a Motion for the adoption. I did not understand that we were being obliged to move such a Motion.

The Speaker: Well, the point is, Honourable Member, if the Committee has made a recommendation for an amendment and there is not a motion to say that the recommendation of the Committee is adopted, no further action can be taken on that Committee's Report. So, therefore, it is in order for that Motion to be made.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: As a member of the Standing Orders Committee, I do hereby move that under Standing Order 72(5) the House adopt the recommendations as made by the Chairman.

The Speaker: The question is that the report of the Standing Orders Committee containing the recommendations therein, be adopted. I shall put that question...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

MOTION THAT THE STANDING ORDERS COMMITTEE'S RECOMMENDATIONS NOT BE ACCEPTED

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, under Standing Order 72(6) I wish to move a Motion that the recommendations of the Standing Orders Committee not be accepted and be opposed in its acceptance before the House.

The Speaker: Is there a Seconder?
The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to second that Motion.

The Speaker: The question before the House is one which is deemed to have been received with due notice that the recommendations not be adopted.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: On a Point of Order, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
I moved the Motion under Standing Order 72(5) that the recommendations contained in the Report of the Chairman be adopted.

The Speaker: You did.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes. I think the Standing Order continues to say what happens then.

The Speaker: The Standing Order is quite clear, it says, "72(6) A motion moved and seconded under paragraph (5) [it does not need to be seconded since a Member of the Government has moved it] shall, where it is opposed, be deemed to be an original motion of which notice has been duly given."

This has been opposed, so the matter is now before the House and I will be putting that shortly. It is opposed and there will have to be a debate followed by a vote on the matter.

The question before the House is that the Report of the Standing Orders Committee be adopted, the recommendations therein, and an amendment to that has been that it is opposed and the second motion has been duly moved and seconded, as it is done by a private Member, and the matter is now open for debate.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, on a point of procedure. I am not following the Chair. Are you saying that his Motion stands or that my Motion stands, which one?

The Speaker: The two Motions are before the House, an original Motion and a proposed amendment. Therefore, it is open for debate.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Maybe the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman can clear himself up, but I do not think he amended mine, he used Standing Order 72(6), which says, "72(6) A motion moved and seconded under paragraph (5) shall, where it is opposed, be deemed to be an original motion of which notice has been duly given."

I submit to the House that if any debate is going to take place it will have to take place on my Motion for adoption.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I do not think that anyone said that could not be the case. I am saying that the case is now that the Motion that the House accepts the recommendations of the Standing Orders Committee—there has been an amendment to that, there is an opposition to it—and the whole matter is now subject to debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
I rise to oppose the acceptance of the Report of the Standing Orders Committee which changes Standing Order 23(8).

Madam Speaker, I would like to read Standing Order 23(8), "Any question which has not received an oral answer by 11:00 a.m. shall be postponed and placed upon the Order Paper for reply at some later sitting within the same meeting: PROVIDED that if all other business for the meeting has been disposed of that such postponed questions shall be in writing by the Member to whom the question was addressed and copies of the answer shall be sent immediately thereafter to the Clerk, who shall send a copy to the Member in whose name the question stood upon the Order Paper."

As all Members of this House know, the Order Paper is prescribed in Standing Orders and it is the agenda, if one will, of what is dealt with in the House on any given day. In fact, only what appears on the Order Paper is what is dealt with unless the Standing Orders are suspended to allow other things to happen.

This I have seen happen repeatedly, time and again, in this Legislative Assembly during the time of this present Government. I think it is something that is not desirable and there needs to be a departure from this particular practice.

What the amendment at this time is asking for, is the replacement of Standing Order 23(8), which specifically deals with questions which appear upon the Order Paper. What the Government is proposing to be done is, and I quote "PROVIDED that if all other business for the meeting has been disposed of that such postponed questions and all other questions listed on a Business Paper but not placed on the Order Paper shall be answered in writing by the Minister/Member to whom that question was addressed and copies of the answer shall be sent immediately thereafter to the Clerk, who shall send a copy to the Member in whose name the question stood and to all other Members."

This is completely altering what has stood throughout time since we have had Standing Orders here in this Legislative Assembly, to usher in something which is, in my opinion, most undesirable and objectionable.

In the House of Commons, if I remember correctly, there are about 620 Members of Parliament who in the vast majority have the right to—and do—submit hundreds of questions, as I have seen the pamphlet of questions from the House of Commons. It is quite impossible in the House of Commons for the hundreds of questions to be answered by Ministers during an oral session.

However, in the Cayman Islands Legislature we have but 15 Members and until recently there have only been two Members submitting questions to Government for answers. Again, our Standing Orders restrict a Member to asking only three questions per person per day.

On various occasions I have written to the Business Committee asking them to increase the numbers, since there are only one or two Members asking questions, since the hour allotted for questions could be taken up and it would not infringe on the business of the House as set down in Standing Orders. In a few instances, this has been done.

What is being done by this amendment to the Standing Orders is to say that once any question has come into the House and has gone to the Business Committee and stands only on the Business Committee's paper, and has not come to the Order Paper of the House in any sitting, that these questions be answered in writing.

I believe that is creating an impedance of what is one of the most important times in a Parliament under the Westminster system—that of oral Question Time. It is on these occasions when, and if we look at Erskine May the substantive question basically leads the question and normally the information that is being elicited comes through supplementary questions.

If it is the case, as is possible, because of the number of questions placed before our Parliament and the Business Committee, such as those by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and myself ... the number can be large, 30, 40, 50 questions and there are only three questions per day. If the meeting of the House is extremely short, important questions cannot be asked orally.

I believe it is unreasonable, it is unfair, it is unjust for the questions not to be answered orally when in the past, and rightly so, if the questions did not reach the Order Paper for the day, they could be deferred to a subsequent meeting. The Government of the day deliberately does not want that to happen anymore, they say they want it answered in writing.

Madam Speaker, the people of this country cannot have the same opportunity of knowing the information which is elicited through questions at Question Time if it is done that way. The media cannot know, unless the person asking the question mails out copies of these answers or takes an ad in the newspaper to show what an answer to a particular question would be. It is the suppression of one of the most vital parts of our legislative process. It should not be done. It is wrong. I state that I believe it is a direct response by the Government against, at most, a three-person minority asking questions. It cannot be reasonable and it cannot speak well for the democratic process.

This is the third amendment to the Standing Orders, one of the first acts of the present Government was to amend two other sections, one relating to questions, giving it a longer time to be asked. I have no problem with that. But the other one, which again suppressed the rights of the minority, was where a motion, once the House is in session...

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The Member is not being relevant he is dealing with something that is not presently before the House. The matter before the House is the Report on this particular matter.

The Speaker: The substance of his debate is also the substance of what is before the House at this time.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, please continue.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I was bringing a reference as to how no longer can a minority Member, or Members, bring a motion to the House once the House is in meeting unless it suspends Standing Orders. Anyone knows that three Members, if you take that many of the House, cannot suspend the Standing Orders if the other 15 say no. Consistently the Government has overwhelmingly simply taken an opposing view against any attempts or actions by the minority.

This amendment here is wrong. It is basically wrong for this to be done. There is no need to do it. Past Governments and past administrations, including the last Government that was pounded incessantly with questions from seven people, three of whom now sit on the Executive Council, never resorted to any such thing.

I can but say, for again I am but one voice, and a minority, that this is wrong. It is wrong in principle and it suppresses the opportunity for the opposition or the minority Members of this House to ask questions so that the answers can be heard orally and it cuts off the public's opportunity of hearing the Members and Ministers of Government, who handle the day-to-day affairs of this country, reply to their stewardship and to information which might be elicited through the asking of questions.

I oppose this Motion and the acceptance of this Report on those grounds.

Thank you very much, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, this Motion preserves what has been the practice of this House for the past 20 or 30 years. It is no change from what has been going on in past years. I want to make that point abundantly clear. The amendment to the Standing Orders now preserves what has been customary, and customary as he mentioned, when we were Oppositions to the last Government. So nothing is changing. This is what we are trying to do to get continuity in the House.

Madam Speaker, it goes even wider because the Motion itself has been amended to include what had, once again, been the practice in the past and that is, that all questions that are answered in writing are sent out to all Members. Now the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman mentioned that this is going to stop these questions going to the press. Any answer that is given in writing goes to the press. It is given out to the 18 Members and, as we know, it goes to the press; that is no different from the past. So this, in reality, is preserving the status quo.

This question about suspending Standing Orders, Madam Speaker, that Honourable Member should have his 'tongue in his cheek' when he talks about that because yesterday he left his one follower, the First Elected Member for Boddin Town, to move a Motion to suspend Standing Orders by giving no reason. So they use it, or have tried to use it when it suits them. The only time that Standing Orders are suspended are in instances when it is fair and reasonable to do so and, more than that, every morning, nearly, because of the length and sometimes the time that is taken to give these answers in this House there are requests that the Standing Orders be [suspended] so that they can ask their questions beyond 11.00 o'clock.

I would expect that for the benefit of this House every time that there have been answers that are going to go beyond 11 a.m.—and they know what I am saying is true—we have suspended the Standing Orders of this House in order to accommodate them. So it is untrue that Standing Orders are only suspended to accommodate the majority of Members in the House. Time and time again you, Madam Speaker, have called on the Government to suspend Standing Orders beyond a level so that the two Opposition Members can ask questions.

We accommodate them. We have never (in my time that I know about) ever refused that. So let it not appear to be that what was stated by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac, is affecting minority rights. In my view it is totally incorrect. They have been over-accommodated in this House by the suspension of Standing Orders and to give them a right to ask the rest of their questions.

The problem they have is that they have asked so many questions on so many things that are so long, for example, a question on ten years of passengers by Cayman Airways, in my view—and I submit, in my view—this has wasted a lot of Cayman Airways precious time and little money to put together, and I can see no reason whatsoever in what good that does other than to have an answer given and nothing can be done with it. What does it matter?

But the real importance here, is that questions should be brief, they should be relevant and they should not be asked in such a number that they cannot be accommodated within one meeting. When we get 70, 80 or 90 questions coming sometimes from two Members then, obviously, some of those are going to have to be answered in writing unless the House sits forever and ever. The House is here to carry out the business of this country and not to accommodate the two Opposition Members only.

Madam Speaker, it is very clear from the Standing Orders that under Standing Order 70(5) the Select Committee: "Subject to any order of the House or resolution of the Committee, the sittings of a select committee shall be held in private."

And that has always been the same way. Now we find that the two Opposition Members are trying to change that too. They must understand that they must operate under the Standing Orders of this Honourable House.

This constant reference to Erskine May's Parliamentary Practice is now seeming to be one that is resorted to when Members get upset with the Standing Orders. I would like to point out that in Standing Order 85 you cannot use that good book in relation to restrictions which the House has introduced by Standing Orders after the making of these Orders.

Madam Speaker, the Standing Order that we have an amendment to, which is before this Honourable House, is one that takes away no rights at all from the minority. Looking at it from their point of view, to have a question answered orally on a current topic three months later has got to be a worse position than having it answered in writing at the present time. So what does it matter to the public if there is something now current and they are getting an oral answer in three months' time?

So the reason why for the last 20 years or 30 years the practice of this House has been that when a question cannot be answered orally it is answered in writing, is that when there is reference to the House of Commons in the United Kingdom and all of the rights there ... I just want to read a few things that will perhaps let the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman sit and think. We have here a Business Committee, in the United Kingdom, Erskine May's Parliamentary Practice on page 283: "The order in which Ministers and other Members answer oral questions is decided by the Government."

The other matter Madam Speaker, is that there is a fixed time and when the House of Commons starts, this is made clear on page 81, "No questions are taken when a Royal Commission is expected to summon the House to attend the Lords for prorogation and no questions may be taken after half-past three o'clock even when interrupted."

About 500 or 600 Members of that House sit there and they get to Question Time in the afternoon. At the end of it they do not get as much time and, therefore, as many questions asked in the House of Commons each day as the Members here are entitled to ask because we suspend Standing Orders each day for them to ask questions beyond 11 o'clock.

Madam Speaker, worse than that, on Fridays questions for oral answer have been asked but Ministers are under no obligations to be present to answer them. So let us not believe that the 500 or 600 Members in the House of Commons have far more rights than the Backbenchers over here do. On Fridays the House meets at half-past nine, on days other than a Friday it is usually provided by resolution that questions can be taken up until half-past ten o'clock—one hour.

Madam Speaker, they have provisions in there for written answers and, as we know, in the House of Commons nearly every answer given is written. Those answered orally are a very small amount of the questions that are asked, because they too have one hour to answer them and there are hundreds of Members who are asking many questions.

So it is a myth: firstly, it is wrong under the Standing Orders to say that the Standing Orders Committee sits in public because it does not. That is what the Standing Orders say and it is also not correct to say that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and his colleague, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, are having any rights affected or suppressed. We are continuing what has been the practice in this House for the last 20-odd years. The Government and the other Members of this House have been bending backwards to accommodate those two Members in asking their multitude (and I say multitude because I have never seen so many questions during my whole time in Government as those that have come out from those two Members) and we have always accommodated and suspended the Standing Orders whenever they needed more time to do so.

Therefore, I would submit that the opposition to this Motion is one which is ill-founded and that I would ask Members to please—as they have done in the Committee—approve this Motion and preserve the status quo of this House. Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I rise to express my objection to the attempt to amend Standing Orders to curtail Question Time and to deny the minority their right to have their questions properly aired and asked.

Madam Speaker, I would not have expected the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation to have taken any line other than the line which he expressed, because in the recent past I have heard that Honourable Minister describe question time as a waste of time. Indeed, just this morning he drew reference in his answer to one question posed by this Member, that it was wasting the time of Cayman Airways and, by inference, his time.

Regarding that question, let me just tell the Honourable Minister that there is a method to the madness. And if he does not understand the logic of it, I can assure him that in the next Sitting he will see what I am driving after when I bring the next set of questions.

Madam Speaker, this move has to be interpreted as a move by a vast majority to deprive the minority of a fundamental and almost inviolable right to have our questions answered publicly. That Honourable Minister was given to quoting from Erskine May.

I will now draw a brief reference from an edition entitled, How Parliament Works, authored by Paul Silk. Chapter eight: "What are questions? Erskine May tells us that the purpose of a question is to obtain information or to press for action as has been made clear the people who have the information and the ability to act on it are Government Ministers and, it is they who have to answer questions. Questions then are part of the process by which the Government is held to account. They are one of the best known but misunderstood features of the House of Commons."

"Ministers are responsible to Parliament only for justifying their own policy not for attacking the policy and the ability of the Opposition to ask questions."

Madam Speaker, my colleague the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, told me when we first came into Parliament, that during his tenure as a Member of Executive Council, he utilised question time to inform the asking Members and the public as to what his Department, Portfolio and Ministry was doing.

I understood it then, and it is crystal clear to me coming from one who is so experienced and wise as he. Consequently, I cannot now understand the move to curtail the business of questions. I only want to say that, in regard to the comments made by the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation—that Standing Orders have to be suspended every day for my colleague, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I to finish our questions—when he leaves this Honourable Chamber he should check the story of Ananias and Sapphira in the Acts of the Apostles and, maybe, he will be more judicious in those kinds of comments.

I object to what I see is an undemocratic practice; to what I see is an attempt to erode parliamentary democracy; to what I see is a scourge of the Westminster system and my objection is just beginning here. Thank you.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, I will put the question.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I believe that my colleague the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation did a very good job in replying to the bitter speech that was given by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. There is not much left for me to add to it, except to say that the Standing Orders are not in any way impeding the rights of any Member to ask his or her allotted number of questions given under Standing Orders dealing with questions.

I have heard this said by both Opposition Members speaking. This Standing Order is in no way or fashion impeding their rights to ask questions. Under Standing Order 23(6) which is not being dealt with at all, they have the right to ask three questions and the Government has suspended Standing Orders several times to allow them more questions. In light of some of the questions, when a suspension warrants it, I think the House should. But there are many times that questions are asked seeking information about matters that are already public and are only wasting the time of Government.

While it is the Opposition's right to ask questions and they should try to inform the public, it is not their right to hamper Government in Government's work. This is what most of their questions do.

Madam Speaker, as far as I am concerned, what is happening is that Members now will be able to ask a question and have that question, if not answered orally in the House, they will get that answer quicker. The House normally meets four times for the year so at least three months or four months before the House convenes, if they had a question that was not answered they would have to wait that period of time before getting an answer, while they could get an answer immediately as the Standing Orders now amended say.

They do not have to talk about the press, we know those two are in the practice of running to their friend in the media to help them along in publicising what they think can damage the Government. That is all they do, Madam Speaker. They are not seeking to inform: they are trying to find something to damage Government in some form or fashion.

As far as what obtained under the previous Government, it is no different than what will obtain under this situation and what has obtained. The Standing Orders being changed, in my opinion, are made clearer. This simply does not do anything to their rights. We hear them talk about their right as a minority. The minority has a right, but they do not have the right to impede the work of the Government. And the sooner those two Members understand that the better off the House will be.

Madam Speaker, perhaps what probably needs to take place now—since there are references made to Erskine May, so often, is to convene the Standing Orders Committee to have an in-depth look at what the Standing Orders say and what it allows. I find that many times my understanding from my ten years in the House of what obtains in the Standing Orders takes a different pitch altogether. Given what has been obtained in the country, such as the development of the country, I believe it is a good time to have an in-depth look at what the Standing Orders allow.

So, Madam Speaker, I do not agree that the Opposition Members, who have vented their spite, have any right at all to say the verbiage that I have heard.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question that the recommendation contained in the verbal report of the Standing Orders Committee be adopted.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could we have a division please?

The Speaker: You certainly may.
Madam Clerk.

The Clerk:

DIVISION 7/94

Motion to Adopt the Verbal Report of the Standing Select Committee

AYES: 13

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston
Hon. Richard Coles
Hon. George A. McCarthy
Hon. W. McKeever Bush
Hon. John B. McLean
Hon. Truman M. Bodden
Hon. Anthony S. Eden
Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.

NOES: 2

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
Mr. Roy Bodden

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks
Mrs. Berna L. Murphy
Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell
Mr. G. Haig Bodden
Mrs. Edna M. Moyle

ABSENT: 3

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson
Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson
Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts

The Speaker: The result of the division is 13 Ayes, and two Noes. The Motion has, therefore, been passed.

AGREED BY MAJORITY: THE RECOMMENDATION CONTAINED IN THE VERBAL REPORT OF THE STANDING ORDERS COMMITTEE ADOPTED.

The Speaker: This concludes the business for this Meeting. But before I ask for the Motion for the Adjournment, I would like to say that I trust that in the future there will be no such recurrence of what has happened this afternoon, with the calling of a Standing Committee without prior notice, particularly with the Chairman not being notified that there would be a meeting of the Standing Orders Committee.

Now I do appreciate that Members of the House are anxious to get through with their business, but in this particular case, this was not down on the Orders of the day and it should have been. Since the Motion was passed there was ample time, in the opinion of the Chair, for action to have been taken. I am concerned that in the future there will be smooth running and smooth conduct of all the business of the House as set out in the Order Paper.

I will ask for a Motion for the adjournment of the House until 5th September, 1994. The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communication and Works.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, with the business of the House now being completed, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until, 5th September, 1994.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House adjourn until 10.00 AM 5th September, 1994.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until 10.00 AM 5th September, 1994.

AT 2.35 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 5 SEPTEMBER 1994.

EDITED
MONDAY
12 SEPTEMBER, 1994
10.04 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to say Prayers.

PRAYERS

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. The Assembly is now in session.

MESSAGE FROM THE SPEAKER OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

APPLICATION AND INTERPRETATION OF STANDING ORDER NO. 23

(Manner of asking and answering questions)

The Speaker: I should like in the comments I now propose to make, to clarify, and indeed to settle finally, the matter of the interpretation and application of Standing Order 23 of this Honourable House. That provision deals with the "Manner of asking and answering questions."

It is appropriate here to quote in full Standing Order No. 23 of the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders, 1976, which dealt with the same subject matter, as follows:

"Manner of asking and answering questions."

"23. (1) At question time the Presiding Officer shall call in turn upon each Member in whose name a question stands upon the Order Paper, in the order in which the questions are printed. Each Member so called shall rise in his place and ask the question [by reference to its number] on the Order Paper and the Member of the Government questioned shall reply.

"(2) After the answer to a question has been given supplementary questions may, at the discretion of the Presiding Officer, be put for the purpose of elucidating the answer given orally, but the Presiding Officer may refuse any question which in his opinion introduces matter not relevant to the original question, or which infringes Standing Order 22 (Contents of Questions).

"(3) When all questions for which an oral answer is required have been called, the Presiding Officer, if time permits, shall call again any question which has not been asked by reason of the absence of the Member in whose name it stands; in which case another Member may, if deputed by the absent Member on his behalf either ask the question or request its postponement. The Presiding Officer shall also call again any questions which have not been answered by reasons of the absence of the Member to whom it is addressed.

"(4) A Member of the Government may decline to answer a question, if an answer would, in his opinion, be contrary to the public interest.

"(5) A Member of the Government may, with the leave of the House, defer answering a question.

"(6) Not more than three questions requiring an oral answer shall appear on the Order Paper in the name of the same Member for the same day and any question in excess of this number shall not be called by the Presiding Officer but shall be answered as provided in paragraph 8 save that no postponement shall be allowed.

"(7) No question shall be asked after 11 a.m. except any question which the Presiding Officer has allowed to be asked without notice under paragraph (1) of Standing Order 21 (Notice of Questions).

"(8) Any question which has not received an oral answer by 11:00 a.m. shall be answered in writing by the Member to whom the question is addressed and copies of the answer shall be sent immediately thereafter to the Clerk, who shall send a copy to the Member in whose name the question stood upon the Order Paper and cause the answer to be circulated with the minutes of Proceedings unless, before the end of question time, a Member having a question on the Order Paper which has not yet been called by the Presiding Officer, signifies his desire to postpone the question to a later sitting or to withdraw it."

Paragraph (6) stipulated that questions by any Member of the limit of three for oral answer on any day should be answered in writing under paragraph (8). Where a Member's questions on the day exceeded that number, they could not be postponed to a later sitting. In actual fact, there has been no occasion during the 25 years I served as Clerk of the Legislative Assembly, and the period where I have occupied the post of Speaker, when more than the stated 3 questions per Member were entered on the Order Paper. The effect of paragraph (7) was that only questions allowed to be asked without notice could be asked after 11 a.m. That still applies. To my knowledge no questions without notice have been put forward.

Paragraph (8), apart from its effect on paragraph (6), provided that any other questions not answered orally by 11 a.m. should be answered in writing unless, before the end of question time, the Member sought postponement of the question—inapplicable to paragraph (6)—or withdraw it. That postponement was to a "later sitting," not limited to the same sitting, and would have been valid at any time within the same session.

Here I wish to say that the 1976 Standing Orders were drafted by me during my period of secondment to the House of Commons, London, April to July, 1966, with the assistance of the then Clerk of the Overseas Office, Sir Charles Gordon. In 1966, a Select Committee of the House had been established to consider constitutional changes. This did not come about until 1971 and in 1976, following a Conference in Bermuda, the then Clerk of the Overseas Office, Mr. Kenneth Bradshaw, travelled back to Grand Cayman with me. Following meetings with Members of the Legislature, the 1976 Standing Orders were brought into effect.

Standing Order 23 was amended in 1985 by the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders (Revised) of that year: 1) in paragraph (1) by the deletion of the words "by reference to its number" appearing before the words "on the Order Paper", and 2) by the deletion of paragraph (8) and by the substitution therefor of the following as the new paragraph (8) and the proviso thereto:

"(8) Any question which has not received an oral answer by 11 a.m. shall be postponed and placed upon the Order Paper for reply at some later sitting within the same meeting.

"PROVIDED that if all other business for the meeting has been disposed of that such postponed questions shall be answered in writing by the Member to whom the question was addressed and copies of the answer shall be sent immediately thereafter to the Clerk, who shall send a copy to the Member in whose name the question stood upon the Order Paper."

The amendment of 1985 represented a fundamental change from the 1976 position. As we shall see, the paragraph (8) which was added in 1985 remains unchanged.

The consequence of this new paragraph (8) and proviso were:

- 1) To postpone to a later sitting at the same meeting any question for oral answer which had not been reached by 11 a.m., unless
- 2) All other business of the meeting had been disposed of before questions for oral answer were reached at 11 a.m. on that later sitting day of the same meeting, in which event
- 3) Postponed questions would be answered in writing.

I reiterate that before the 1985 amendment, a Member with more than three questions for oral answers on a sitting day could seek a postponement to a later sitting, before the end of question time, for any such questions as were then unanswered, or could withdraw the questions. Under the 1985 amendment, such a member DID NOT and DOES NOT seek a postponement.

The question 'shall be', that is MUST BE, postponed. The postponement is automatic. That is the mandate of the Interpretation Act. And since paragraph (8) now states that it "shall be placed upon the Order Paper for reply at some later sitting within the same meeting", the Business Committee must apparently find a place for the question. The Standing Order is pellucidly clear on the matter. The 1976 provision for written replies to oral questions in Standing Order 23(8), as repealed in 1985, has been replaced by a totally new and different statutory—for such is its nature Standing Orders—provision.

In 1986, two further amendments were made to Standing Order 23 as follows:

- 1) The words "In his opinion" were deleted from paragraph (4) and the words "In the opinion of the government" were substituted therefor, and

- 2) The words "save that no postponement shall be allowed" were deleted from paragraph (6).

Paragraph (8) as amended in 1985 meant that a member with more than three (as with a member with not more than three) oral questions on any day would have the excess over three questions, if unanswered, placed on the Order Paper on a later day, while paragraph (6) would have prevented a postponement of the excess. There was an irreconcilable conflict between paragraphs (6) and (8) after the 1985 amendment, hence the 1986 amendment.

In June 1994, the 1985 proviso to paragraph (8) was amended to read:

"PROVIDED that if all other business for the meeting has been disposed of that such postponed questions and all other questions listed on the Business Paper but not placed on the Order Paper shall be answered in writing by the Minister/Member to whom that question was addressed and copies of the answer shall be sent immediately thereafter to the Clerk, who shall send a copy to the Member in whose name the question stood and to all other Members."

But the meaning and terms of paragraph (8) remain unchanged. While the new amendment to the proviso is clear in its implications, it equally, clearly does not further qualify paragraph (8) which does not apply to the wider range of questions, that is, those not on the Order Paper, which are mentioned in the words: "and all other questions listed on a business paper but not placed on the Order Paper".

According to Standing Order 23(1) only those questions which are on the Order Paper are before the House. That is the universal rule, unless questions ordinarily require no notice, as in Ottawa.

It appears to be the contention that answers to questions on the Business Paper, as set out in the proviso to Standing Order 23(8), effectively dispose of the questions, there is no support for that view in any of the authorities on Parliamentary Practice and Procedure. If such a question is not on the Order Paper or has not been allowed with the leave of the Presiding Officer under Standing Order 21(1), the Presiding Officer can properly take no cognisance of an answer which, as is contended, is given "In writing after the end of the meeting." Consequently, the Member cannot be barred from placing the question on the Business Paper for the next meeting, if he so wishes, the question not having been answered orally or in writing during the proceedings of the House.

I must stress that the Business Paper is before the Business Committee. It is not before the House. The Order Paper is before the House. The Order Book is not before the House. If one is not au fait, or does not have a thorough and fundamental understanding of Parliamentary Procedure as adopted from the Mother of Parliaments, it is then that these discrepancies and misrepresentations creep in.

It is important not to neglect the crucial element that to dispose of a matter which is not and has not been before the House does not affect the House. The House remains able to entertain it. The legal interpretation and construction of the proviso to Standing Order 23(8) leaves the bizarre and incongruous situation that no regard has been paid to the analysis to the circumstances and limitations of its application; a narrow canvass indeed which effectively negates the point of the reference.

While it may be said that the arguments for this amendment are purely in legal terms, this can be appreciated, but the practical Parliamentary position must not be eschewed. The Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands have provided in terms of Standing Order 7 for the following Business Documents:-

- 1) An Order Book which contains all Business of the House;
- 2) Business Papers containing all the Business for a meeting which will extend over several days; and
- 3) An Order Paper showing the Orders of Sitting Days.

In many Commonwealth Parliaments it is unusual to have provision both for an Order Book and for a Business Paper. The Order Book normally satisfies the function which is complimented for any sitting day or any meeting by the Order Paper, which in some countries is called the Notice Paper. The functions of an Order Book, a Business Paper and an Order Paper are separate and distinct. It is the fundamental failure to apply the distinction between a Business Paper and an Order Paper which has formed the basic misconceptions inherent as being the reasons for the proviso to Standing Order 23(8).

It has been stated that the purpose and object to which the Legislative Assembly's intention in passing the amendment was addressed, was the perceived mischief of having questions answered months after the dispersal of the heat of the issue about which they had been asked. If there was any ambiguity in the verbal formula of the third substantive enactment, that ambiguity must be interpreted in accordance with this legislative intention. It is unclear whether the last sentence ultimately means only what it says, or represents again a clear misunderstanding of its application to the procedures involved. Whatever interpretation is adopted it is the consequences, not the interpretation, that is being ignored.

The relevant canon of interpretation in Parliamentary Practice and Procedure is to give all assistance to facilitate both oral answers to starred questions and written answers, as required, when they are due to be provided. The will of the House is all of its Members, not that of the majority or of the minority. If Members are not distressed by delay in response, that is their privilege. A Member may opt for a long delayed oral answer for the opportunity of asking supplementary questions. That is a perfectly common experience in many legislatures, including all Parliaments in the Commonwealth Caribbean.

Bennion says also, on p.494: "In the case of a proviso, the usual rule applies that an act is to be construed as a whole, a section containing the proviso is also to be construed as a whole, within the act." That is the preferred course, in looking at Standing Orders as a whole.

With regard to the "perceived mischief of having questions answered months after dispersal of the heat of the issue about which they have been asked," that statement, again, represents a grave misconstruction of the total meaning of questions. The source of its content would be difficult to divine. The mischief may lie in the suggestion of interpreting an ambiguity to accommodate a Business Paper which is not before the House.

In circumstances where Legislatures have periodic meetings lasting several days rather than meetings on a weekly basis with occasional recesses, issues for questions need to be kept in store until the opportunity to relieve 'perceived mischief'. Rarely is a questioner unaware of the likely reply to a question. When he seeks an oral answer his thrust will often be in supplementary questions in which he obtains the responses he ultimately seeks. The opportunity of asking oral questions in the heat of the issue in several Caribbean Parliaments will arise only in the event of an occasional coincidence between the genesis of the question and the timing of a meeting.

The final point of major relevance is the right of a Member to withdraw his question, as May's says at pg. 284, "At any time before it is due to be asked." That is an inherent right. The proviso does not affect or qualify that right.

Having said all this, as I believe it is my duty to state the facts as they are seen by me, I wish to say that there appears to be a need for further consideration of this last amendment because if Bills and Resolutions not on the Order Paper cannot be disposed of thus, it is difficult to discern how Other Business which is not business of the day can be concluded thus, summarily and in writing, questions or otherwise.

It seems to me that while the procedure set out in 1976 under Standing Order 23 was substantially changed in 1985, in material respects, the imperatives of the changes—very clear though they have always been—were not embraced in their application in the way that they should long before now have been discontinued in 1985. It is not that I have changed the procedures, I have steadfastly followed them to the letter.

Where any matter arises relating to the proceedings, business or procedure during a Meeting, it is appropriate for any Member to rise on a Point of Order to have the issue determined by the Presiding Officer.

Standing Order 40 provides for this. This means that if a Member has made an erroneous statement or irresponsible remark, has misquoted another Member, any Member may rise on a Point of Order.

Standing Order No. 40 does not apply only to misconduct of Members or a Member of the general public. Under Standing Order 40, "The Presiding Officer is responsible for the observance of the rules of Order in the House and in Committees of the whole House respectively and his decision upon any point of order shall not be open to appeal and shall not be reviewed by the House save upon a substantive motion made after notice."

If, therefore, there is a difficulty with any ruling by the Presiding Officer on a Point of Order, positive and precise procedures are laid down for challenging it. But, above all, issues arising concerning the observance of our Rules of Order as set out from time to time in the Standing Orders of our Legislative Assembly should be settled by and in the House.

With the greatest respect to alternative views of any Honourable Member or Ministers, to canvass the matter in the public domain—in this instance on CITN Television—especially in the absence of a full debate in the House, is a challenge to the very basis on which this House exists. An apology is therefore due to the House by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

It may be worthwhile pointing out that a Legislature, which is a principal source of Law, is founded on law and the inheritance from Westminster in terms of Parliamentary Practice and Procedure is an enormous compendium of knowledge and experience which complements the application of Standing Orders, facilitates interpretation of statutes and Constitutions alike, and remains a useful guide, never to be ignored. That is the Common Law of Parliament.

Those who apply it see endless variety and an increasing store of learning. As an example, Germany's Post Second World War Constitution and the Rules governing their Parliament were structured on the precise parameters of Westminster and, without any suggestion here that Westminster lacks imperfections, German institutions were never before so well planned and managed, up to then and now, since Charlemagne took office almost 1200 years ago. The unification of Germany was facilitated by the Constitutional muniments of West Germany; see the Parliamentarian, October 1982, on the Bundersrat.

It is hardly sensible to ignore the legacy of Westminster or to cast aside the generous inheritance which it has given simply through failure to apply its principles.

I would hope that in the future Members would refrain from the piecemeal amendments to Standing Orders if a ruling does not sit well with them. It would be more mature, in my opinion, for early consideration to be given to a comprehensive re-draft of the present Standing Orders. If this is contemplated, it would be my hope that the services of learned parliamentarians, who have made the study of Parliamentary Practice and Procedure their profession, would be sought, as was done in 1976.

I am in the very fortunate position of being able to obtain, within an extremely short period—many times within hours—valuable advice from my counterparts within the Caribbean, the United Kingdom, Canada and other areas. I avail myself of this privilege quite often and what I have put forward this morning is a result of their expertise and advice.

CONSIDERATION OF OTHER MATTERS: In accordance with Standing Order 67, the Committee considered and approved the following requests:

RECURRENT EXPENDITURE VIREMENTS BETWEEN DIFFERENT SUBHEADS: The Committee ratified virements totalling $184,075 made between different subheads as were approved by the Financial Secretary in accordance with paragraph 2.70 of the Financial and Stores Regulations.

VARIATION OF FUNDS WITHIN THE SAME CLASSIFICATION UNDER CAPITAL EXPENDITURE: The Committee ratified variations of funds made between different subheads in the same classification of Capital Expenditure totalling $123,420, in accordance with paragraph 2.70 of the Financial and Stores Regulations.

CAPITAL EXPENDITURE VIREMENTS BETWEEN DIFFERENT CLASSIFICATIONS: The Committee ratified movement of funds totalling $354,099 between different classifications under Capital Expenditure which results in a change of purpose of the original funds as approved by Finance Committee in the 1993 Budget.

AUTHORISATION FOR WRITE OFF OF FUNDS: The approval of the Committee was sought for the writing off of a sum of $25,712 arising out of the misappropriation of revenue collections during 1989 to 1990 by a former cashier in the Treasury Department. The Cashier was charged with various offences and was convicted on three charges of theft and three charges of false accounts. A sum of $24,439 was paid back in restitution. The balance of the loss of $25,712 was reported in the 1992 accounts.

The Attorney General has advised that this account is unlikely to be recovered, however, it was agreed by a majority of the members of the Committee that the matter be referred back to the Attorney General for further action.

Again, the approval of the Committee was sought for the writing off of a sum of $400. In 1991 and 1992 cash paid for overseas medical expenses was stolen from the Portfolio of Health and Social Services' 1993 Budget, totalling $400 ($200 on each occasion). With the police investigation being inconclusive, it was recommended that this amount be written off.

It was agreed by a majority of the members of the Committee that the matter be referred back to the Attorney General for further action.

AMALGAMATIONS: The Committee took note of the phased amalgamation of a number of Government services as approved by His Excellency the Governor and ratified the transfer of balances into the 1993 Budget for these departments.

Madam Speaker, the Committee agrees that this report be the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the meeting held 15th December, 1993, to be laid on the Table of this Honourable House at this meeting.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Member.

Proceeding with item 4 on the Orders for today's Sitting, Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers.

May I ask the indulgence of the House? It has been brought to my attention that there are two other Reports of the Standing Finance Committee. I had assumed from the long debate that the Honourable Member's remarks covered these two reports.

With the indulgence of the House, would you continue with the Errata to the Standing Finance Committee, is that what you are dealing with Honourable Member?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Ma'am.

The Speaker: The Errata to the Report of the Standing Finance Committee, 15th December, 1993, and 19th July, 1993. Please deal with them now, Honourable Third Official Member.

ERRATA TO THE REPORT OF THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE

(Meeting held 15th December, 1993)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Errata of the Standing Finance Committee Report, of a Committee Meeting held on Wednesday, 15th December, 1993.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, at a meeting of the Standing Finance Committee, held on Wednesday, 15th December, 1993, the Committee approved a sum of $146,500 for HEAD 34—PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, Subhead 51-119—Public Buildings. The sum, however, was incorrectly submitted in the Finance Committee's agenda. The actual figure for the submission should have been $145,800. Accordingly, item 24.3 of the Committee's Report for this meeting, having been tabled a short while ago, should be amended to read as follows:

HEAD-34 PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT
Subhead 51-119—Public Buildings $145,800.

Further, the total supplementary expenditure approved at this meeting totalled $5,878,104. As a result of the reduction in this subhead, the total supplementary expenditure approved will also be reduced by $700. The Report should accordingly be amended to read: Total Supplementary Expenditure Approved $5,877,404.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: You have embraced both Erratas—15th December and 19th July?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: No, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Please do combine both, Honourable Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

ERRATA TO THE REPORT OF THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE

(Meeting held 19th July, 1993)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House an Errata to the Finance Committee Report of a meeting held on Monday, 19th July, 1993.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the following supplementary expenditure was approved by the Standing Finance Committee at a meeting held on Monday, 19th July, 1993, but was erroneously omitted from the Report tabled in the House on the 23rd September, 1993. The Minutes do, however, contain this item and the Report of the Committee should accordingly be amended to read as follows: HEAD 09—PERSONNEL: 08-055—Specialist Training $6,104.

As a result of this omission, the total supplementary expenditure approved by the Committee on 19th July, 1993, in the sum of $725,321, should be increased by $6,104. Accordingly, the report should be amended to read: Total Supplementary Expenditure Approved $731,425.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: I would suggest that in the future, corrections to any report should also form a part of the Report, rather than being set down as an independent presentation of papers.

Thank you.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

The Speaker: The Honourable First Elected Member for Bodden Town, Question No. 105.

QUESTION NO. 105

No. 105: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation to state what date he has set for the commencing of the Select Committee to review the Bill of Rights.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I do not have authority to set a date to commence the Select Committee to review the Bill of Rights.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is the Minister saying that he misunderstood, or that he chose to ignore the directions of the Chair when, at the conclusion of his Motion to have my Motion disallowed, the Chair requested that he ensure that all speed be taken to set the Committee in motion?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I repeat, I do not have the authority to set the date to commence the Select Committee. It must be that the Member misunderstands, or has not read the Standing Orders.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Would the Minister tell the House then, who does he perceive as having such authority; is he not part of the Executive Council which will decide what time the Select Committee convenes, or is that for the minority of the House?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, if the Member cannot answer that question from his Standing Orders, then I really cannot help him. He must read his Standing Orders.

The Speaker: Honourable Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, I think if you will recall the debate on this issue, the Chair advised that the Committee could be called, as is provided in Standing Orders, by the senior Elected Member and, thereafter, the Committee would then select a Chairman.

I think, perhaps, we need not have any further supplementary questions on this matter.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I do recall the instance that you refer to, and I would just like to confirm that at that time we were told the Elected Member for East End is the senior in the House and that he would have to set a date for this meeting for the Select Committee on a Bill of Rights. The reason I ask, Madam Speaker, is that for a year and a half, the Government has consistently taken steps towards...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I take a Point of Order...

The Speaker: I cannot have two Members speaking at the same time. Are you rising on a Point of Order, Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Member is making a statement, which he is not entitled to do. He can ask supplementary questions...

The Speaker: I am aware of that, Honourable Minister, I had hoped he was getting to his question.

[Addressing the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman] If you do not have a question, then I will have to close off supplementaries on question No. 105.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I simply wanted to ask if it is the policy of the Government of the day, for whatever unknown reason, that they do not wish the Select Committee on the Bill of Rights to be convened?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, that question is an argumentative one and I will not allow it.

We will go on to question No. 106, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 106

No. 106: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation to provide a list of outstanding accounts owed to Cayman Airways (other than for tickets sold by Travel Agencies).

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Cayman Airways Limited does business with thousands of legitimate businesses. It would be bad business practice and, therefore, undesirable, and a breach of confidentiality, to make public the names of these companies.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Minister say what percentage of this business results in delinquent accounts to this point?

The Speaker: I am not certain that the Honourable Minister can answer that since that was not a part of the substantive question and, in view of his statement, he would not have had the necessity to go into this matter. So I think this will have to be omitted.

If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 107, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 107

No. 107: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation whether the Government has granted Isleña Airlines a monopoly on the Cayman/Honduras route.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No. Government has not granted Isleña Airlines a monopoly on the Cayman/Honduras route.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
Can the Honourable Minister say if this matter of a monopoly on the Cayman/Honduras route came up as an application to the Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I have stated that Isleña Airlines does not have a monopoly. I am confused as to what the Member is seeking to achieve. No Application. No grant. And that is it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
Can the Honourable Minister then say what is Government's disposition, and if Government had any decision in the matter where a member of the National Team and this Legislative Assembly, namely, Mr. John Jefferson, on the 4th of June, 1994, claimed to have gotten a monopoly for the airline on the La Ceiba to Grand Cayman Route? And, Madam Speaker, I would like to table a document.

The Speaker: The first part of your question is seeking an expression of opinion, which the Honourable Minister cannot give...

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I beg your pardon, I also asked if the Government had any knowledge.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Member is asking me if I have knowledge of something that he has over there with him. If I were a magician I would not be able to answer that. I do not know what document he has.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I have tabled the document.

The Speaker: Before you are allowed to table a document, you should say what the contents are for the House.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, the document referred to is a document addressed to Mr. Arturo Alvarado Wood of Isleña Airline, written by Mr. John D. Jefferson, MLA, on the 4th of June, 1994.

The Speaker: Please, I think the House is entitled to know the contents of the document.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, would you prefer that I read the document?

The Speaker: Yes.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
The document is entitled, "Termination of Agency Agreement."

"Dear Mr. Wood,

"I refer to your letter of 3rd June, 1994, advising of the decision to terminate the agreement of me acting as the local agent of Isleña Airline.

"Our records indicate that all revenue from ticket sales and excess baggage has been accounted for and reported, with the exception of three weeks in May and the one flight in June, 1994.

"While serving as your Agent we have accomplished the following on behalf of Isleña Airline:

"1. Improved the service and reputation of the airline locally among passengers, and

"2. Have gotten a monopoly for the airline on the LaCeiba to Grand Cayman route;

"Our plan of action was to give adequate notice and resign as agent with effect from the 31st August, 1994, because we have not made any money as agents and I refuse to work with unprofessionals like yourself. I have witnesses that have overheard you make remarks accusing my sister Norma Jean Bennett and myself of stealing from you when there is no evidence to indicate that this is true.

"We both have good reputations locally and I am not prepared to let you or anybody else tarnish our reputations by irresponsible and careless remarks.

"As you are aware our Agency Agreement called for notice with respect to termination by either party. I am prepared to accept an early termination of our Agreement under the following conditions:

"1. We are given U.S. $30,000.00 in cash or credit against funds owed to Isleña Airline;

"2. U.S. $50,000.00 and a written letter of apology concerning remarks made by yourself with respect to the honesty/reputation of my sister Norma Jean Bennett and myself;

"3. We are allowed to retain all assets acquired for office purposes since September, 1990, when we took over as your agents.

"If you consider to insist on the early termination of our Agreement and fail to agree to the conditions as set out above, then I will have no alternative but to write the Airport Transport Licensing Authority Requesting Termination of the Licence Granted to Islena Airline which permits the Airline to fly into the Cayman Islands, on the grounds of yourself as an undesirable person for doing business in these Islands. I will also bring a case against you in the courts on slander charges with respect to recent remarks concerning the honesty, integrity and reputation of my Sister Norma Jean Bennett and myself.

"Please advise me as soon as possible of your decision on these matters.

"Yours sincerely,

John D. Jefferson Jr. MLA,
Jefferson Travel Services Ltd.,
President and Chairman."

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, the document which the Honourable Member has read makes it very clear that Mr. Jefferson is not saying that Government has granted Isleña Airlines a monopoly: So, he is very confused.

There are two countries involved with this. But it is very clear, I will read it: "have gotten a monopoly for the airline on the La Ceiba to Grand Cayman route." I would just like to point out that the Member who produces a document has a duty to understand it before he lays it on the Table and to also not produce a document which he cannot support the truth of. He has now taken a private letter and laid it on the Table of this House. I repeat, this document does not say that the Cayman Islands Government has granted a monopoly to anybody, therefore, this is totally irrelevant to the question.

The Speaker: Honourable members, I think that I find the whole matter distasteful and unsavoury—

[Members: Hear, hear!]

The Speaker: —and I will say that there should be no further supplementaries on this question.

(Interjections by some Members: Hear, hear!)

The Speaker: It is past 11.00, the normal time when questions end.

The Honourable Member for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 83, I move the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) to allow the remaining questions to be taken this morning.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that the provisions of Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended in order for the remaining questions to be dealt with today.

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye... Those against, No. The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23 (7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE THE REMAINING QUESTIONS UPON THE ORDER PAPER TO BE TAKEN.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 108, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 108

No. 108: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration to state whether Government has any intentions of contracting with Senior Prosecutors locally for the purpose of assisting with their increasingly complex court cases.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The Government considers that the present level of staffing in the Legal Department provides for an adequate number of qualified attorneys to conduct criminal prosecutions. There may be certain cases which, due to their extreme complexity, high degree of specialisation or time constraint, would be suitable for independent practitioners. In these cases I would first ascertain if local senior counsel was available before instructing someone outside the Islands.

Madam Speaker, perhaps I could also apologise to the Third Elected Member, because the written answer that I submitted refers to her erroneously as the Second Elected Member.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Member could state if in the recent cases that are being brought against Government, if senior counsel will be called in to assist with this, or is this only in certain instances that they will be called in?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Member, I think, is referring to civil cases being brought against Government, as opposed to prosecutions. My answer dealt specifically with prosecutions, but I am happy to try to answer the Member.

The same criteria applies. If a civil case, in my opinion, requires the assistance of an independent attorney, then we would seek one. In the past this has happened, and has been due to the fact that we have been deficient in the Legal Department in experienced Civil Crown Counsel. That deficiency has now been remedied.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 109, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 109

No. 109: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration to state what progress has been made in respect of the revised Regulations for the Traffic Law, 1991.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

DEFERRAL OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 109

STANDING ORDER 23(5)

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, I will ask the leave of the House to defer the answer to this question until later in this meeting. I returned from official business overseas on Friday, and I am afraid that I have not had an opportunity to prepare a detailed answer to this question.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that, in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 23(5), the answering of the question be deferred for the circumstances outlined by the Honourable Second Official Member.

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye... Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 109 DEFERRED FOR ORAL ANSWER LATER IN THE MEETING.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 110, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 110

No. 110: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works to state whether there are any scheduled road improvements for the district of George Town within the next six months and, if so, to provide a schedule for such improvements.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Work is underway on the Middle School road sidewalk.

For the remaining four months of 1994, road construction is scheduled for three main projects in George Town. These are the Middle School Dyke Road Phase I; the relocation of Crewe Road and new sidewalks at the Post Office. Three other projects scheduled to be worked on are: land purchase for the Community College access road; junction improvements at Eastern Avenue/Nixon Road; and, junction improvements for North Sound Way/Crewe Road. Depending upon the progress of the land purchase, construction may start on these projects.

Work for January/February 1995 will depend upon 1995 Budget approval.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Could the Honourable Member say if the junction [improvements] then will take place in 1994, or will this move ahead to 1995?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: We hope to complete those outlined in my answer in 1994, and the others mentioned we hope to go on to 1995. However, I would like to point out that the Public Works Department has been spread very thin, and more so now with the influx of Cuban refugees. We have completed many projects in George Town and I will name them for the benefit of the House:

- The alley off West Bay Road by Tropicana carpark

- South Sound shoulders
- Lyndhurst Road
- Palm Heights
- North Church Street shoulders
- Belaire Gardens, patching
- Middle School Dyke Road, marl and patching
- Alamo Drive
- North Sound Road, CUC to the sea
- South Sound (removal of portion of road that had some dips in it) was completely done over.

We have scheduled for this month:

- The road in the Crewe Road area by Mr. MacDonald's
- Shoulder repairs on Elgin Avenue (which is 50% done)
- Work going on at the Port Container Road (50% done)
- Section of Crewe Road which has been started and it is hoped to be finished this month
- The carpark at the George Hicks School, completed
- New carpark and drains at the George Town Primary School
- Resurfacing of carpark, John Gray High School, completed

As I pointed out, we are trying to do as much as possible of what has been allocated in the 1994 Budget by the end of the year.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister would be able to elaborate on exactly what Phase I of the Dyke Road to the Middle School will entail?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker. The road that I mentioned earlier, the Middle School Dyke Road, was marled and patched earlier—but we had to do a quick job to try to facilitate the buses and other users of the road. It was impossible for us to just go in and seal the road because there are certain areas in the road that need to be dug out because it was initially only a dyke road. So we are hoping to finish that stretch of road from Bob Thompson down to the school with a few alignments.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 111, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 111

No. 111: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation how many Dental Officers, by nationality, are there at the Government Dental Clinic and how are services scheduled.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. There are three Dental Officers: Senior Dental Officer (British); Dental Officer (American); Dental Officer (Jamaican). Services are scheduled as follows:

8.30 AM to 10. AM: Emergency Clinic daily (including Saturday) for patients with dental pain.

10.00 AM to 12 Noon and 1.00 PM to 4.30 PM: Booked appointments.

In addition:

- 1) One Dental Officer deploys to Cayman Brac for three days per month.
- 2) Northward Prison is visited one afternoon per week.
- 3) Clinics are held by arrangement with District Nurses at Health Centres/homes of the elderly, et cetera.
- 4) General anaesthetic sessions weekly.
- 5) Ante-natal and health education sessions on an ad hoc basis.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In view of the fact that there are three dentists at the Dental Clinic, is it not reasonable to expect that appointments can be given to persons quickly, and that follow up appointments could be scheduled earlier than is presently done? Has the Minister had any complaints about the long schedule of appointments at the Dental Clinic?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, we have had some complaints about the long wait in between appointments. I have taken the opportunity to discuss this with the Director of Health Services and my Permanent Secretary to see what can be done to improve this. I do hear the concern expressed here, and we will do something about this.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I notice in the reply from the Minister that three days per month a dentist spends time in Cayman Brac. Does the present availability of persons on that Island allow the clinic to be opened when the resident quasi dentist is away on leave? Could the dentist fill in, or someone from the Grand Cayman Clinic, other than closing the clinic as happens now?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

There are attempts to schedule someone to take this place when the person goes away.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Minister say if the policy at the Dental Clinic is that when a patient has been dealt with by the British dentist, that follow up visits must be by the same dentist; or could the patient see whomever is available at that time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, normally, whoever the dentist is, he tries to schedule for continuity, but there is no policy to say that it must be the same dentist.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 112, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 112

No. 112: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if any consideration is being given to hiring a consultant to examine the Health Services Department similar to that done with the Prison and Police Departments

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

No consideration is being given to hiring such a consultant. During the last Government, hundreds of thousands of dollars were spent on consultants which, in my humble opinion, did not benefit the Health Services Department.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I think the House is aware that there is an ongoing process, where the Health Services are concerned, regarding strategic planning. I would like to ask the Minister if there is not some need at this time, due to the pressure on the Health Services, and due to what must be increased pressure with so many Cuban nationals being here, for quicker assessment, that the ongoing study would warrant hiring a consultant for whatever period of time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I understand the concerns, but in a few days' time I will be able to make an announcement (I do not want to make it at this time) for action which we will be taking to bridge this gap.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 113, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 113

No. 113: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation who is the head of Public Health Services in these Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Medical Officer for Health is the Head of Public Health Services in the Cayman Islands.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would like to ask the Minister if he could explain, as I am a bit confused here—When he says the Medical Officer for Health, are we speaking about a Chief Medical Officer as it was known, or is it a Medical Officer for Public Health? What are we saying?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, it is the Medical Officer of Public Health under the Health Services Department. The way it is broken down is: Manager Ancillary Support Services; Chief Nursing Officer; Medical Director, who is responsible for Physician Services; then the Medical Officer for Health, who is responsible for Public Health Services.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could the Minister say if the individual who is responsible for Public Health Services is also responsible for other services within Government departments and, if so, which would they be?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

There are a number of areas which the Chief Medical Officer of Health is responsible for, and I will read them out from the chart: Public Health Administration; District Health Centres; Health Statistics; Health Promotion; Primary Health Care Programmes; International Health Programmes; Community Health Programmes; Public Health Inspection; Disease Control; Food Safety Programme; Health Laws and Regulations; Chairman of the Health Practitioners Board; Reports to International Agencies in regard to disbursements of drugs.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, it seems like a large number of subjects. Could some of these duties be rescheduled to other persons, or is the one individual capable of dealing with all of these presently to a satisfactory level within the Health Services?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, there is some assistance given to him in these duties. There is also another doctor who now works in the districts who assists him.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 114, standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTION NO. 114

NO. 114: Mrs. Edna M. Moyle asked the Honourable Member for Tourism, Environment and Planning whether the brochure (established in 1983) relating to a dress code cover up and other information for tourists is still being distributed by the Department of Tourism to all places used for tourist accommodation.

The Speaker: The Honourable Member for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, the brochure in question is now called "Words of Welcome", and continues to be printed and distributed by the Department of Tourism. These brochures are distributed locally to hotels, shops and Information Centres of the Department of Tourism at the Harbour Centre and the Airport. Unfortunately, not all tourist accommodations display them at their front offices. The Department of Tourism also distributes an insert entitled "Please keep your shell on!" which is very specific about the subject of the Dress Code.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Honourable Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, in the Honourable Minister's answer, he stated that some tourist-related accommodations do not display these. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could assure this House, because of the disgusting state of dress on our public beaches and in the Town of George Town, that something will be done—that our tourists will be aware of the dress code required in the Cayman Islands, and our residents as well.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I think there is much awareness at the present time, as far as the Department of Tourism distributing information is concerned. The accommodations which at the moment do not display them at their front office is what the Honourable Member for North Side was getting at. We certainly will take that on board, as well as any other influence we can use, to deal with the concern which she and other Members of the House have.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 115, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 115

NO. 115: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development what stamp duty is collected when time share properties are sold.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, there is no stamp duty collected when time-share properties are sold as this is not currently provided for under the Stamp Duty Law.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Third Official Member is in a position to say if it is Government's intention to deal with this, or whether it is a policy that this will remain as is?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I can say at this time that a consolidation exercise of the Stamp Duty Law is taking place and it has been dealt with by the Legislative Draftsman. It is with me at this time to be reviewed. It takes on board a number of provisions which are not presently made, or are not in the existing legislation.

At this time a statement cannot be made regarding Government's policy because this would constitute an additional tax measure, as such, and the public would have to be canvassed significantly before a determination can be made by the Government as to whether to proceed with this as an additional revenue source.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 116, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 116

No. 116: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to provide a list of amounts and the names of persons with outstanding Customs Government duties as of 31st August, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Customs Department has produced a list of importers with outstanding customs duties as at 31st August, 1994, which is attached.

This list indicates that all amounts outstanding are secured by either bonds or cash deposits or a combination of both. It should also be noted that all importers listed are classified as major importers and under existing arrangements are normally allowed up to 21 days to submit their completed import entry forms to the Customs Department. During this period, import duty is estimated and secured by a bond and/or a cash deposit. (See Appendix)

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

I wonder if the Honourable Third Official Member is in a position to say if on an annual basis there are any amounts outstanding which are deemed uncollectable and, if so, are they written off by the Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, it is likely that this could possibly occur, but at this time I cannot recall any specific cases where outstanding duties have had to be written off.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

OBITUARY

Nurse Annie

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, on behalf of the House, may I offer condolences on the recent passing of your Aunt, known to us as Nurse Annie. May Almighty God be with you and members of your family, especially during this period of bereavement.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister, for your words on behalf of the Members. My family and I much appreciate these expressions of sympathy.

SECOND READINGS

THE TOURISM (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

Clerk: The Tourism (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of a Bill entitled, A Bill for a Law to Amend the Tourism Law, 1974, and the Tourism Regulations 1974.

This Bill amends the Tourism Law, 1974, to provide a more efficient annual timetable for the licensing and inspection of tourist accommodations, and it adds an offence where operators of licensed tourist accommodations fail to take reasonable security precautions for the checking in of guests.

Clause 1 provides that the amendment comes into force on the 1st of January, 1995. So, there is a period of getting to know what this amendment before the House calls for.

Clause 2 amends the definition of tourist accommodation to include all overnight, or day to day accommodation available to tourists which is provided in the course of a business regardless of the number of tourists catered to by the accommodation. The existing definition includes only accommodation catering for more than six persons a night.

Clause 3 changes the annual licensing timetable, which at present requires all operators of tourist accommodation to apply for a licence on or before the 1st day of September of each year. Beginning in 1995, it is proposed that operators of all tourist accommodations other than hotels, be required to apply for their licence on or before the 1st of August each year. Operators of hotels will be required to apply for their licences on or before the 1st of October of each year. To prepare for this new timetable, existing licences for existing accommodation other than hotels, will expire on the 31st of August 1995, and existing licences for hotels will expire on the 31st of October 1995.

The Hotels Licensing Board will now be required to issue licenses in accordance with the law to operators of all tourist accommodations, other than hotels, on or before the 1st of September in each year. Licence to operators of hotels will have to be issued on or before the 1st of November of each year.

Clause 4 makes consequential changes to the timetable for the annual inspection of tourist accommodation. These annual inspections will now be required to be carried out for hotels on or before the 1st of September, and for all other tourist accommodations, on or before the 1st of July.

Clause 5 adds a new section 9A to the Tourism Law, 1974. It will now be a criminal offence for operators of licensed tourist accommodation to fail to take all reasonable security precautions for the checking in of a tourist at the tourist accommodation the operator is licensed to operate.

Examples of failure to take all reasonable security precautions include leaving the keys to a guest's accommodation taped to the door, unattended, for later collection, or not properly supervising the checking in of the guest. It will be a defence for an operator to show that he/she has taken all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to avoid the commission of this offence. The penalty is the same as for other offences under the Law: up to a $1,000 fine and/or 6 months in prison.

Clause 6 amends section 12(1) of the Tourism Law, 1974, to increase the fine for offences under that provision to $1,000.

Clause 7 amends the Tourism Regulations to confirm that the prescribed minimum requirements include reasonable security precautions for the checking in of guests at all licensed tourist accommodations. Under section 9(2) of the Tourism Law, 1974, the Board may withhold, revoke, suspend or refuse to renew an operator's licence where the operator has, in the opinion of the Board, failed to comply with the prescribed minimum requirements.

Madam Speaker, if I had brought the Facts and Rate Sheet this morning (which the Department of Tourism produces) and if Members would take a few minutes to look through that rate sheet they would find many accommodations provided to visitors which have not paid tourist accommodation tax. I would venture to say that we are talking about probably millions of dollars over a period of time, so I believe that there is justification for moving the amendment as set out in Clause 2 to bring these within the arm of the Tourism Law both for purposes of licensing, as well as to ensure that standards in these accommodations are what we are pleased with.

One needs only one exercise, and that is to be present at a Hotel Licensing Board and to realise that the exercise takes us almost the entire day, no matter how prepared the documentation. If you back that up with the inspections which are carried out by the Fire Service, the Environmental Health, by the Tourism Department, you tie up a significant number of Government staff trying to comply with the present deadline which hotels and all other tourist accommodations must meet.

I believe it is timely to separate these accommodations. I also believe that for many decades, when one looks at the tourism graph as to the number of visitors who come to our shores on a monthly basis, one will find the valley in that graph being in the month of September. It appears no matter what the previous Governments did, or what we did last year, that valley (although maybe now not as deep) remains. If your hotels are running 80%–90% occupancy for the entire year, you need some period of slowness of arrival of visitors in order for those accommodations to have adequate time to refurbish.

bish their facilities in order to maintain the standard of accommodation that we all wish to see them offer to visitors. So we have tried diligently with this separation to continue to allow them this month of September for that purpose.

I believe also that in the Cayman Islands of yesterday, one could go to sleep and leave his door open. Many of us would say it is a little bit unwise to continue that trend, and we adjust accordingly. I think it is now time for us to adjust the security precautions for visitors checking into accommodation other than hotels—because we all know that hotels are open 24 hours a day and they utilise the front desk persons to supervise the checking in of guests. But, there are other facilities being used by visitors which are not so manned.

I believe it is incumbent upon us to cause what we call reasonable security precautions to be taken. Certainly, leaving a key taped to a door for the guest to let himself in is not safe, and is not to my liking when I see what goes on, on a daily basis, in the Cayman Islands. Why allow your visitor to be at risk? That is primarily the reason why we are moving to call attention to this amendment which is presently before the House. It has been discussed on many occasions with the Hotel and Condo Association, so we are not bringing anything that they do not know about. I think we have cleared this with them. Obviously we dream of having 100%, and although we may not have 100% on this amendment, the majority of those who are employed in the tourism industry and who provide accommodation are in agreement with this amendment.

I recommend this amendment to Members of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The question is that the Tourism (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Second Reading. The motion is open for debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to speak on the Bill for a Law to Amend the Tourism Law, 1974, and the Tourism Regulations 1974. In so doing, I wish to state that I support any act of any Government whereby existing legislation can be amended to create more efficient services by Government, so that specific or general conditions may be improved.

I think the 1st of January, 1995, would seem reasonable enough to implement the changes which these amendments would bring about, for it begins a new year and it is about this time that one sees the largest number of tourists coming to the Cayman Islands.

In the section which deals with changes to the definition of tourism accommodations, it brings about a significant inclusion of accommodations that were not in the law before. The present definition provides that a tourist accommodation includes only accommodations providing for more than six persons a night. I would not say that six was any magic figure to be included in the present definition, but I think that what having a number of some size accomplished was to try to direct inspections and licensing to businesses which carried on some reasonable amount of tourist accommodation. The change which is proposed would include accommodation if there was only one room to be rented. It also seems to me that it includes places which only amount to dwelling houses, where, in some instances I am told, there are householders who rent a room in their house—usually an attached room to their house. It is my understanding that there is a type of tourist who likes to come to the Islands and live within a family environment. To the best of my knowledge, in these instances a very small amount of money is charged by the homeowner, or the householder. It occurs in various districts of these Islands, and now, if I am understanding this provision correctly, these rooms will be subjected to licensing and to inspection.

The type of accommodation I have referred to is the type where both the person offering the room and the person accepting to stay in the room are aware that the most exclusive amenities are not there. Of course, there are the basic beds, lights, bathroom and so on, but there may be other fixtures which may not be present which may not necessarily jeopardise the safety of a person staying there, and the person could be happy and satisfied. So, I do have some concern that the proposed amendment of the definition will bring in some units of accommodation which will require licensing, which will require more provision and, I daresay, with the small earnings that come from this business, may put the person out of business. I do not believe that would be the intention of this Bill. Certainly, I raise the point because I have had at least one instance of someone raising this particular point to me.

From my past knowledge of inspections of hotels and tourist accommodations, I am aware that there is an immense amount of work on the hotel inspectorate—there always has been over the years. Many of the larger properties create more problems and difficulties for the inspectorate, in some instances, than the smaller properties. I suppose it is even present in the corporate world: If you are big enough you can resist more of what you feel does not fall in line with your particular thinking. So, the fact that there is an amendment which will be scheduling inspections and licensing into two categories or two periods, I believe should have useful management significance in the annual licensing of these properties. Again, the time which has been selected and set down in the Bill is more consistent with times when people are familiar with inspections as it presently stands.

I do not know how much the Government, the Department or Ministry can do to review the actual operations or activity which goes along with the inspections. I hope that there has been an increase in the number of inspectors, as it would seem to me that that is very necessary. I hope that the co-ordination among the various departments which are required to do inspections is functioning at a level that is satisfactory to all concerned. If it is not, perhaps now is the time to make any corrections or improvements.

I am aware of at least a few complaints regarding the checking in at condominiums, in particular. I have heard specifically of instances where the keys have been attached to the door for persons who are coming in on a very late flight, where the manager of a particular condominium may have gone to bed or may have actually left the premises. While it sounds like a very unusual practice, or very open to breaches of security, I am told it happens. In some instances, the persons coming in to be checked into the condominium are owners of the unit—they are familiar with the territory and well aware where their unit is—it is just a matter of picking up the key for their own room. However, there is the chance for instances other than that particular type of instance, and in that regard I think it is reasonable that management make such provision as is necessary to accommodate persons checking in.

It brings about quite a bit of activity, for I daresay that the condominium manager would have to know, if someone did not turn up on a particular flight, what had happened to that person—will that person really be coming? One has to consider that if the person arrives late he may not call the manager to let him know that they will be coming on another flight, or later. It is not the same type of situation as in a hotel, where staff would be employed and working 24 hours per day. So, it does put a greater onus on the management of a condominium which, according to my understanding, is not designed to function similarly to a hotel in that regard.

That would bring me to the point of the definition of all reasonable security precautions, and the fact that the penalty for not providing that is quite steep—$1,000, or six months in prison. If, for a person not being there for the checking in of a guest, that person can be charged for a breach that he/she has not taken reasonable security precautions—in my thinking it does present a somewhat considerable severity on such a person. Again, I understand that the management of some of these condominiums are husband and wife, so there are not a lot of persons to be called upon to do this job if one or the other, or both, cannot be there. Madam Speaker, I would think that this particular section here would need some degree of consideration by the Government as to its implications.

If the property is considered not to provide reasonable security precautions for the checking in of guests, then the Board "may withhold, revoke, suspend or refuse to renew an operator's licence where the operator has, in the opinion of the Board, failed to comply with the prescribed minimum requirements." It seems to me that the Board, in this case, sits in somewhat of a judicial position, and, I would imagine, if any action by the Board were taken, the operator, or manager, would at least have recourse to the Courts of Law which could decide on the particular case.

Madam Speaker, the onus is increased on the operator by the section where that person must write to the Board giving details of those who are authorised to check guests in. These persons must be authorised in writing by the principal authorising officer. So it does bring about certain changes which are greater and more onerous. I daresay that is making it a bit extreme, since at any tourist accommodation or condominium the person who is checking someone in could be simply identified by an identification card, as is the case in most instances, and there would not be a need for such information to be sent to the Board in writing as this Bill presently calls for.

Madam Speaker, other than the points which I have raised, I think that the amendments which are proposed in this Bill are practical and generally positive and useful in improving the administration of tourism under the Tourism Law.

Thank you.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, would the Honourable Mover of the Motion wish to reply?

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I was taught at a very early age to say, if nothing else, thanks to the Honourable Members for their support.

The Speaker: The question is that the Tourism (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Second Reading.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Second Reading.

AGREED: THE TOURISM (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

THE STRATA TITLES REGISTRATION (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

Clerk: The Strata Titles Registration (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works.

MOTION TO DEFER SECOND READING

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I seek the permission of the Chair to defer the second reading of the Strata Titles Registration (Amendment) Bill, 1994, until a later date in this Meeting.

The Speaker: The question is, as proposed by the Honourable Minister, that the second reading of the Strata Titles Registration (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be deferred until a later date during the Meeting.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Accordingly, the Bill is deferred until a later date during this Meeting.

AGREED: SECOND READING OF THE STRATA TITLES REGISTRATION (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994, DEFERRED UNTIL A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: The House will go into Committee to consider the Tourism (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE—11.36 AM

COMMITTEE ON BILL

THE TOURISM (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

The Chairman: Please be seated.

The House is in Committee. The Clerk will now read the clauses of the Bill.

Clerk: Clause 1—Short title and commencement.
 Clause 2—Tourist accommodation.
 Clause 3—Licence.
 Clause 4—Inspections of tourist accommodation.
 Clause 5—Security at checking in.
 Clause 6—Fine.
 Clause 7—Prescribed minimum requirements.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 1 through 7 do stand part of the Bill.

If there is no debate I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... The Fourth Elected Member for George Town wishes to speak on this.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Chairman.

I need some guidance here. While I did not debate this Government Bill, do I have the right to suggest any amendments at this stage?

The Chairman: You can suggest amendments, but normally you would have been asked to give two days' notice of proposed amendments. But you can still make comments if you wish and see what the responses will be from the Honourable Ministers and Members.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I would just like to make two comments.

While it is not a very important amendment, I notice in the various sections of the Tourism Law, 1974, the word "Member" is mentioned in several sections. So I am just wondering if this would not be an opportune time to change that word from "Member" to "Minister".

Secondly, I would ask the Honourable Minister if some more consideration could be given to the proposed amendment for clause 2, which reads: "The definition of 'tourist accommodation' in section 2 of the Tourism Law, 1974 (the principal Law) is amended by repealing the words 'and catering for more than six persons per night' and substituting the words 'which is provided in the course of a business and is'... which means the section, if the Bill is passed as it is, will read: "tourist accommodation' means overnight or day-to-day accommodation available to tourists which is provided in the course of a business and is the management of an operator and includes a guest house, a cottage colony, a group of apartments and a hotel."

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman pointed out in his contribution that there may be some individuals offering this type of accommodation, who might find themselves in some problems. While there may not be that many of them, I do think that there should be some consideration for them. The question at hand would be whether those people should have to go through the same procedures as the larger operators.

Thank you.

The Chairman: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Chairman, I believe it is important for us to understand who is providing these types of services. Whether it is a large operation or a small one, I think the Law should capture everyone. As to whether the Law will cause some amount of burden to the small operators, I think we will be prepared to look at it to see if Government can give consideration to the smaller operators when we know exactly what sort of burden, if any, the Law will bring to them.

The Chairman: I shall now put the question, that clauses 1 through 7 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clauses 1 through 7 stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 1 THROUGH 7 PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for a Law to Amend the Tourism Law, 1974 and the Tourism Regulations, 1974.

The Chairman: The question is that the Title do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against, No.

Ayes.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE TITLE PASSED.

The Chairman: That concludes proceedings in Committee on a Bill entitled, The Tourism (Amendment) Law, 1994.

The question is that the Committee do agree that the Bill be reported to the House. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE TOURISM (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994, BE REPORTED TO THE HOUSE.

HOUSE RESUMED

The Speaker: Please be seated. The House has resumed.

Report, the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

REPORT ON BILL

TOURISM (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994,

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I have to report that a Bill shortly entitled, the Tourism (Amendment) Bill, 1994, was considered by a Committee of the whole House and passed without amendment.

The Speaker: The Bill is accordingly set down for Third Reading.

At this time proceedings will be suspended until 2 o'clock.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.42 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.10 PM

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 7/94, Appointment of a Standing Select Committee to Review the Sunday Trading Law.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

GOVERNMENT MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 7/94

APPOINTMENT OF A STANDING SELECT COMMITTEE TO REVIEW THE SUNDAY TRADING LAW

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move Government Motion 7/94, entitled Appointment of a Standing Select Committee to Review the Sunday Trading Law, which reads:

"WHEREAS the Sunday Trading Law, enacted in 1960, provides that Sunday trading is prohibited in the Cayman Islands except as prescribed in the Schedule of the Law or by Orders made in Executive Council from time to time;

"AND WHEREAS the provisions of the said Law could not envisage the present trend of development within the Islands;

"AND WHEREAS there have been various concerns expressed and it has been implied that the Law requires revision;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT, in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 76, this Honourable House appoint a Standing Select Committee of the whole House to review the provisions of the said Law and in so doing that the Committee should solicit the views of the general public and, based on the input received, table a Report in this Honourable House of its findings and recommendations."

Madam Speaker, it is no surprise to anyone living in the Cayman Islands that there has been some concern about the Sunday Trading Law, and it is my belief, as well as the belief of other Members of the National Team, that it is important to get it right if we are to put forward any amendments. I believe to get it right, we must take public input on the subject.

We know that there are views to allow more trading. We also know that a large percentage of the population believes that Sunday is the Sabbath, and that we should uphold it as such. I do not want to give any personal view about this, for I believe it will come in the Select Committee, but it is not easy for any Government to assess the majority of the public's view on a piece of legislation of this kind. I believe that what we are doing here today is the proper way forward—to solicit the view of the public as to what amendment, if any, we should make.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Government Motion No. 7/94, the Appointment of a Standing Select Committee to Review the Sunday Trading Law. The Motion is now open for debate.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am pleased to see Government Motion No. 7/94, before the House at this time. Earlier this year we had representation from constituents in George Town who were closed down and arrested by the Police. Names of individuals granting the police permission to close down these places of operation because they were trading on Sunday were not given.

According to the Sunday Trading Law, 1963, the second schedule says: "Milk, bread, ice, newspapers, motor fuel or oils, drugs and medicine, daily means, refreshments, cigarettes, cigars and tobacco, funeral caskets and flowers..." These are just a few items that can be sold in a store and, according to the Law, the other items would have to be covered and not allowed to be purchased. This seems unfair. If someone walks into a store, he cannot purchase a cake mix, for instance; he can only purchase those items there. This is inconsistent, and if we are looking at the Sunday Trading Law—and I am not saying that businesses should be allowed to trade or not to trade, this will be the findings of the Select Committee with input from the public and a general consensus for us as representatives to arrive at—there are inconsistencies.

The gasoline stations are allowed to sell any and everything. Yet, it is inconsistent if someone on the corner store cannot sell a box of cake mix as this same item is being sold in the service stations. Therefore, if one is allowed to sell, the other one should also be allowed to sell.

Madam Speaker, what I am saying is that the Law is inconsistent and our backs are being turned to the service stations yet the small individual is being harassed. I am pleased to see this Motion before the House where it can go before the Select Committee and we will all have an opportunity to hear from our constituents in order to come back and make amendments to the Law. Therefore, I support this Motion at this time.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, I support the Motion to Review the Sunday Trading Law. I notice that the Minister putting it forward acted in a peculiar manner in that he handled the subject very delicately. I do not know whether he was afraid of bringing down the wrath of God or the wrath of his constituents upon him, but he certainly did not have very much to say on it.

I agree with the Lady Member for George Town who spoke on this Motion. One of the points she raised is that it is totally unfair for the Police, in their usual biased fashion, to harass the little corner stores while they allow the gas stations to flourish. We know that originally the gas stations were given a licence to sell gasoline and other automobile products. While a few other items were added, it has come to the public's notice that the reason why the gas stations were forced into the grocery business was because the giants of the industry, that is, Texaco and Esso, do not allow their dealers a decent profit on gasoline. No service station can stay in operation and pay its expenses by the sale of gasoline—even if they sell a million gallons a year—because these gas companies, the suppliers of the gasoline, take all the profit for themselves and give nothing to the dealer. I believe that this is one area that the Government should discuss with Texaco and Esso. I am not by any means suggesting that they fix the price, but they should certainly bring to their attention that they have run a very mean business over the years. These dealers have not been able to stay in business and make a profit, they have been forced to enter into groceries, such as toilet paper and detergents, et cetera, whatever they can pack into a service station.

I do not know what the answer is, and what approach will be taken—whether it will be from a religious or commercial view point—but I am one that has great admiration for the Seventh-Day Adventists because if every grocery store in this Island should be opened on a Saturday, you will not find one Seventh-Day Adventist purchasing one article. Yet there are some professed Sunday-keepers who need specific laws to keep them out of the stores on Sunday. And it has always been this way—some of them need laws to keep them out of the bars on Sundays—so this is a question that has to be examined on a wide scale.

The Law, as it stands, is antiquated. I personally do not believe it is a sin to buy groceries on a Sunday, but if the Law forbids it, it is an offence for a person to purchase it. On the other hand we have—and I did not want to criticise the Police—but, my God, we have an enforcement body that enforces Laws according to their own feelings with no regard for the statute as it stands. I shall look forward to the Select Committee's deliberations on this Motion and the changes that will come to the Trading Law.

The exemptions to the Sunday Trading Law came about originally to accommodate the tourist trade, and I know there is a provision in the Law whereby Executive Council can give permission for shops catering to the tourist trade to be open on Sunday. I do not believe this exemption is right. The matter of competition which the small stores face is something that this Assembly should examine, because the small corner store has been devoured by the 24-hour gas stations and the large supermarkets. As far as the little store down in Rock Hole, or down in Dog City is concerned, it is my belief that these stores do a very good trade when their big competitors are closed—perhaps not only do a good trade, which is vital to their very existence, but also provide a service to people who may have forgotten to make a purchase that they should have made during the week, and, perhaps, even in cases of emergency where the person may need some article for medicinal purposes.

The Minister must be congratulated on presenting this Motion, although I cannot say I am happy that he handled it with kid gloves. I trust that the Select Committee will have the courage to do whatever it has to do, and produce a Bill that is equitable and fair to all.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The call for a Select Committee to Review the Sunday Trading Law allows for widespread consultation of and by concerned persons, and it also affords the position of arriving at a fair, simple and, one would hope, readily enforceable law.

Madam Speaker, from the information given in the Government Motion it seems timely that some form of review be made of this Law, as the Law was enacted in 1960. Since that time there has been significant development in these Islands which leads us to realise that some examination is necessary with a view, not only to modernising the Law, but, also, to making it more effective and more equitable.

As I understand it, restrictions on the Sunday Trading Law stem from the general Sunday observance in this country in which many people hold Sunday to be a special day—a day of worship, a day to serve God, and a day of rest. So the restrictions reflect the concern of people to ensure a day of worship, a day of rest for employees, but, also, to protect the interests of small traders in an effort to maintain a separate and traditional character.

I would like to raise a point which was made by my colleague, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, when he suggested that in any examination we not lose sight of the fact that a significant number of people in these Islands are adherents of the Seventh-Day Adventist faith. To them, Sunday is the first day of the week. Madam Speaker, added to that, the international nature of the Cayman Islands at this time would lead me to suggest that we probably have people who are followers of Islam and the Islamic cultures, to whom Friday is a holy day. So any restrictions we put on would, I hope, take into consideration the beliefs of these two categories of religious persons.

In many countries, this business of Sunday trading was handled in one of two ways; 1) by de-regulations; or 2) by regulation—meaning restrictions were put on and by "de-regulation" meaning that the system was for the most part allowed to operate wide open. I believe that the Select Committee will afford the opportunity for us to hear from people and, certainly, from the letters which appeared in the press when this matter was a topical issue, there is much merit and much justification to an examination of this Sunday Trading Law.

I hope that we will avail ourselves of the opportunity for the widest possible cross-section of dispositions and feelings on this matter, and when we are ready to prepare our findings we must also bear in mind that we are now a tourist resort with some significance. We cannot forget that. If we are continuing to be serious about tourism and its development, we also have to make some provision for those persons who may not be moved from a religious standpoint, as we are, and who in times of limited vacation—when every day counts—will need to make the best opportunity of Sunday as can be made.

So, with this in mind, I hope that the Select Committee can produce a constructive document so that when we present it to the public, all and sundry can be satisfied that it is the fairest, simplest, and most readily enforceable document that we could have come up with.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, this Government Motion No. 7/94, which is attempting to address problems that have come to light recently with the Sunday Trading Law, calls for a Standing Select Committee of the whole House to review the provisions of the said Law. It strikes me as being a bit funny to hear today how well a proposed Select Committee could operate when in times gone by (not too long ago) I heard that a Select Committee was not worth the paper it was written on, and such the like. Nevertheless, I believe that a Select Committee can prove to be useful and effective, so I will not stand here to deny the process. (The truth is, I could not resist what I just said awhile ago to remind some of us how we choose to debate certain issues).

Madam Speaker, most people, whether retailers, church goers, shop workers or consumers, agree that the Laws governing Sunday Trading are in urgent need of reform. In the years since the Laws were passed (which is almost 25 years now), and even with the subsequent amendments to the original Law, trading practices and consumers' habits have certainly changed. To my mind the anomalies in the Law have become increasingly obvious.

Before going into the anomalies which I see as existing, let me state here and now that in order to see the Sunday Trading Law brought in line with the times—while my little vote does not necessarily count—I will support the Motion with the very strong hope that this is not a motion that is brought simply to put something aside until the fire cools. I say this for the purposes of the "Hansards": I would like to see any revisions deemed necessary by this Honourable House (after consultation with constituents) done in an expeditious fashion—not to be left alone for years and years.

To my mind, the most meaningful amendment to the Sunday Trading Law of 1960, was Law 2 of 1986. Still, the existing Law does not address the realities of everyday life in our community. Previous speakers have either dodged the controversy, skirted on the periphery, or have mentioned it just to have it on record that it was mentioned. I think all of us, at this point in time, have the privilege to couch our words seeing as how we will go into Select Committee to deal with this. I guess there will not be any very strong suggestions being brought at this time—this being recognised as a risky situation—but in the recent past (as has been alluded to by the Lady Member for George Town), we have seen certain instances which I would venture to say, had those situations not occurred, we would probably have left the Sunday Trading Law in its dormant state, simply to be ignored; and the Law itself, as it exists, to be abused by people, even though to their minds justifiably so. So, these happenings have suddenly made us all aware that the Sunday Trading Law, as it exists, needs looking at.

There have been comparisons with various types of retail businesses, like the gas stations (known as "C" stores nowadays), and the advantages that these outlets have. And may I quickly point out one of the striking discrepancies that I find in the Law? Section 7(2) of the principal Law reads: "(2) In any premises as respects which subsection (1) applies such trade or business as is referred to in paragraph (b) thereof may lawfully be carried on on a prohibited day if but not unless any part of the premises not wholly used for the purposes of that trade or business is properly partitioned or screened off from the public and from public view while trade or business is being carried on."

This reads very nicely, but I use that section to show the impractical way in which this law would have to be adhered to by shopkeepers, even though there is a limited list of items they can sell on a Sunday. The smaller shops are, to say the least, utilised to the maximum with display shelves, and there is just enough space (in fact hardly enough for people like myself) for people to walk between the shelves to pick up the items. To my mind, it is very impractical for lawmakers, or those who have to carry out the law, to expect shopkeepers to have certain sections partitioned off and not displayed when they open for trade on a Sunday. To my mind, the only practical way for them to operate, if they are to adhere to this law, would be to restock their shelves on a Saturday night in a fashion so prescribed and, when all is over on a Sunday to restock their shelves again properly to be open on Monday morning.

Other people may differ on these views, but I have gone to at least two of these outlets and physically looked things over to see how this would work. It may not seem to be a very important point, but I make the point to show that this is impractical. When these people open up on a Sunday, the mere fact that they are open means that they are breaking the Sunday Trading Law because items that are deemed not to be displayed, are displayed. While they may not have any great desire to sell these products during the course of business, it is difficult to be able to say to a customer that he can have the ice cream but not the other item because it cannot be sold on Sunday. It really becomes almost untenable for these people. I just use that section as a small example.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I am afraid I must ask you to discontinue your discourse on that subject because what we have before us is the appointment of a Select Committee to consider and review the Sunday Trading Law. If you are going to do the review here, then the appointment of a Committee will fall apart.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker, I had ended at that point.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So, having just used that example (and this may not have been the best forum to explain it), I wish to say to this Honourable House that in supporting the Motion—I just have to repeat one more time—I trust that action will be speedy and the process will not be one that will go on and on like some other Committees which, from time to time, seem to drag on.

Bearing in mind the reminder that you gave me, I wish to extend my support for the Motion. We shall deal with the necessities once the Motion is passed and the Committee is formed.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Madam Speaker, I rise to support the Motion to form a Select Committee to review the Sunday Trading Law.

We are all aware that there are many people in our business community who are discontent and feel that something should be done about the Sunday Trading Law, and I believe this is the best forum to do it in. We realise that the law is fairly old. From time to time things have to be renewed in order to keep pace with the changes that occur in our society.

I look forward to being part of this Committee.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, it seems like today we are making history in the Legislative Assembly, by what the Motion before the House is asking for.

I have looked at the Standing Orders, and under the section referred to in the Motion, I see that this House has three Standing Select Committees, namely, the Finance Committee; the Public Accounts Committee; and the Standing Orders Committee. To the best of my knowledge this is the way it has been from the time that there has been Standing Select Committees in this House. Section 76 does provide that "The House may appoint other standing select committees as required from among its Members.". My understanding of a Standing Select Committee is that such a committee does just that—it is standing—it continues on for the life of the term of the House. I wonder about this: It being a Standing Select Committee, just when would its conclusions be reached? Would it be reached at the end of the life of this particular House in 1996? When might the conclusions, or the report of such a Committee be tabled?

I observe that, generally speaking, in my opinion, the Government of the day finds Select Committees on a whole not very desirable—except if they bring them. We have heard that Select Committees are supposedly used to kill matters before the House. That was certainly said about a Select Committee for the Low Income Housing Scheme, and now, it is asking for a Standing Select Committee of the whole House to review the provisions of the Sunday Trading Law.

This Law is extremely short and full of contradictions and discriminations. What has brought it into focus in recent times is the fact that some hard working, law-abiding citizens have been arrested and perhaps jailed (I am not certain) over this question of the Sunday Trading Law. This Motion which the Government has before the House is doing nothing to correct that situation. It means that Mr. Solomon, Mr. Russell and some of the other persons who have been arrested, the Farm Soldier, and so on, can continue to be arrested for trading on Sunday. Surely, Madam Speaker, if the Government wished to deal with this matter of the Sunday Trading Law, it would seem that it would have brought an amendment to allow these small shopkeepers to do the same thing that the gas stations are doing: Graham's Esso, the Texaco Station at Crewe Road, the Texaco Station down by Pizza Hut—carrying on the business of selling goods and so forth, which seems to be all right there.

I believe that what should rightly be done is for the Government to correct this situation that exists. If the House will (and I am sure it will in a few minutes) pass this, it leaves the situation wide open to those citizens who are trading illegally. What kind of action is this by the Government and the representatives of the people?

This short law has numerous amendments, some of which have the names of cruise ships coming into the Cayman Islands, and the Executive Council meets and approves those under this Law. We know that this is done. It seems as if any given Executive Council has some special power to allow some particular sector of the country to break the law.

I would like to refer to the First Schedule of the Law that this Motion is referring to, when it first listed those businesses who were above the Law.

"FIRST SCHEDULE

1. Druggist shops and dispensaries in relation to the sale of medical stores only. [In this form Pampers would apparently be out]
2. Restaurants, hotels and lodging houses.
3. Establishments for the sale of motor fuel or oils.
4. Motor vehicle repair shops or service stations.
5. Establishments for the sale of bread or ice. [No milk.]
6. Establishments governed by any Law for the time being in force in the Islands regulating the sale of intoxicating liquor. [It's o.k. to sell liquor, but other household items are restricted]
7. Clubs established under any Law for the time being in force in the Islands."

Madam Speaker, the presenter of this Motion spoke about the change in times, and the reality of the times in which we live. I am wondering if, indeed, we are living in a time where we understand that 1960 and 1994 (34 years later) are different times, and that persons living now did not have the ease of existence of those days. Now both parents in the house, and perhaps children, work Monday through Friday and some Saturdays. The opportunity for shopping and the necessity for certain items, which were not really necessary in those times, direct us to live with the times.

There have been different amendments to this Law since the items were printed in the First Schedule, but I do not believe that this Motion is addressing, for one minute, the immediate need in this country. From the very beginning the Law discriminated against the people of the country. We chose to draft a law that catered to the tourists—and tourist is defined as foreign persons, non-nationals of the Cayman Islands. It catered to them and it excluded its own people. I believe this situation could be corrected forthwith, and quickly, if we simply extended the same rights that are given to duty free shops and hotel boutiques and the like in this country, to the other categories. If it is sin that we are avoiding, then I fail to see how we can let one sector sin and the other one, supposedly, must be law abiding.

Madam Speaker, I cannot, in all truth and honesty, believe that this Motion does anything to address the situation that brought it about, except to provide an escape valve for the Government who does not wish to deal with the situation, and this is how it goes about it—set up a Standing Select Committee to supposedly look at and examine this Law, while leaving the Law in place so some citizens of this country some who carry on some types of business continue to break the Law, while others who are fortunate enough to own gas stations and the like can carry on merrily. Those who sell cigarettes, alcohol and so on, can carry on merrily while items that could be day-to-day necessities (that are not in this Law) are restricted from the people.

I do not support this Motion for setting up this Standing Select Committee and I shall so vote when the time comes.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, ever since the Opposition, or the group who term themselves Opposition, were elected, they seem to oppose everything—even the things that they say the Government should do.

I believe that the Minister of Tourism who has responsibility for Trade is doing the correct thing here today. What we in this House have to remember is that the matter of Sunday Trading not only affects one side, or one person, or one group of people, it affects this country. There are many people out there, thousands, perhaps in the majority, who hold a different view from the three Opposition Members.

First of all, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town could not resist taking a swipe at their whipping horse—the Housing issue. The Government rejected his Motion because it was not worth the paper it was written on; because it was aimed as a stone wall against Government policy; it was aimed at disruption; it was aimed at stopping the issue from going forward. Thank God they did not do that. There was no need for a Select Committee because the matter was already well in hand. Thank God the issue is coming to fruition against the wishes of the Opposition. This Motion is quite different from the Motion brought to this House by the Opposition Members when they tried to put the Housing situation in a Select Committee.

I agree that over the years this country has seen much progress and change and, while I am not the best Christian, we should not forget our Christian heritage. One thing that has not changed with the passing of years, Madam Speaker, is what has been taught by the Good Book—that even Almighty God, Himself, after He had created the world, took a day of rest. As for me, there has to be some time to contemplate on that.

Business must go on, I agree. Emergencies arise, I agree. But there is no cause for the doing of wholesale business in this country by anybody on a day that we have known to keep holy. Of course, the Black Muslims, or the Islamic Faith, as referred to by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, might not recognise the same God that we recognise, but this Legislature would have a hard time legislating for all religions that might be in this country. It is a preposterous idea to even suggest it. Of course, they are academics.

I support the creation of this Select Committee. It is proper that we review the Law and give the public the opportunity to have their say on it. The Opposition is doing nothing but trying to make political hay out of an issue which they say is so important. They are the ones that we saw on the front page of the newspaper, talking about how Government must do something, and if Government did not do something in this meeting, they were going to do it. Well, this is what we are doing. We are doing something about it. But, of course, when Government does not do what they want it to do we will hear that Government has not done anything.

It is true that there are Standing Select committees in the House. I had to wonder about that too. However, it is the Speaker's prerogative to say how the Motion goes forward, and that won't pass the Speaker's desk. But tell me what is wrong with it, Madam Speaker? The Committee will begin its work; it will finish its work and then make a report. The House will act upon the Committee's report. The Committee can still exist. If the issue is as serious as those Members are purporting it to be, then I suggest it warrants that we let it exist for some time to look at every loop-hole that could exist. Mind you, Madam Speaker, we are dealing with a tricky issue, that thing called BUSINESS—something that you can please nobody in.

According to the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, we should not do that. We must bring an amendment today to make everybody sell on Sunday! They can do that, they have that right, they are Members of this Honourable House. But I will not be doing it that way, and I will not be supporting any issue or resolution for it to go in the way in which he is suggesting. The Motion says that we will sit in Committee and look at the pros and cons of the issue with the public in attendance. Hopefully, those businesses which are affected will come in and talk to the Committee, and those people who hold opposing views will also come in.

Well, the Member says there is discrimination. According to them nothing in this country is right, everything is discrimination. But, if there is discrimination in this issue, is it not right and proper for Members to sit down with the public, whom they say this affects so seriously, to discuss it—rather than come in here with so many know-it-alls to say what must go into a Bill? As sure as Government brought a Bill here, you would hear that it was not the right thing!

I think the Minister for Tourism is on the right track. Government is on the right track. The only thing wrong with this is that it has foiled the Opposition's plans because they thought that Government was not going to act. But let me tell them: they play their politics and disrupt the workings of this country, but it cannot run forever. One of these days, the bottom of that bucket with the three of those Members over there is going to fall out, Madam Speaker. I hear some grumbling from the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman... If he has something to say he should be standing up and saying it. Nevertheless, I can deal with the grumblers and the grunters and all that exists in that category.

This problem does not just concern one side in this country, it concerns the whole country. It concerns the whole way of living that we have been used to in this country. To open up the flood gates and let every business in this country open up on Sunday is not what we want. I do not want that. There must be a day of rest, of contemplation. The almighty dollar is not the only thing to worry about. As far as I am concerned, everybody should seek to get a little rest.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to give my support to Government Motion 7/94, Appointment of a Standing Select Committee to Review the Sunday Trading Law.

I see the need for addressing this subject. I read the reports in the "Caymanian Compass" with interest, and I also listened to what Members have referred to here today about arrests of small business people. Therefore, I feel it is fitting that we sit and get the public's input into this situation.

I want to call to the attention of Members that all businesses operate to make a profit. If businesses are now going to operate seven days per week, their overhead will increase. Everybody is buying as much food as they need in six days, therefore the cost of doing business is reduced for all except the gas stations, in general, which are opened seven days per week. Therefore, what we will be doing, if we eliminate the Sunday Trading Law completely, is escalating the cost of living within the Cayman Islands. It only means that it will cost the merchants more to pay their employees to work the extra day, and extra electrical bills.

Therefore, I do see where this Sunday Trading Law, with minor amendments to protect those whom we feel are being discriminated against, will be necessary. I feel that in keeping with the Christian heritage that our Islands were built upon (Sunday has always been a day of rest) we should try to preserve that as far as possible.

So, with these few words, I look forward to hearing the input from the public in order to further discuss it in Select Committee.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: If there is no other speaker, may I call upon the Leader of Government Business, the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, to close the debate?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

May I begin by answering the question: What kind of action? I hope the Member is awake. The kind of action is to solicit the views of the public, rather than come in here with an amendment and railroad something through this House that, perhaps, the public would not, in majority, agree with.

Whether the Bill is 34 years old, or 104 years old, I believe the proper procedure today, in dealing with the Sunday Trading Law, is to establish a Select Committee to ensure that the public has access to give us their views as to what they want the amendment to cover. After all, it was the public who put us here, and we are not acting off our own back, we are acting on their behalf. The only way which I believe we can safely act on their behalf, is to hear their views before taking any action.

Madam Speaker, I am sure that we could argue about this from now until the day when you would agree that this Standing Select Committee will be no more, but that is not the issue before us. The issue before us is to find the public's view as to what the amendment should be. Since the Member said it is a short Bill, the review should not take all that long, given that the public's view is on very few clauses that the Bill has. I hope that this Standing Select Committee could report as quickly as possible, but we must take sufficient time to hear all of the views before we make up our minds.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Government Motion 7/94: "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT, in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 76, this Honourable House appoints a Standing Select Committee of the whole House to review the provisions of the said Law and in so doing that the Committee should solicit the views of the general public and, based on the input received, table a Report in this Honourable House of its findings and recommendations."

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye... Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Can we have a division, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: Madam Clerk, please call a division.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 19/94

NO SMOKING

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to Move Private Member's Motion 19/94, No Smoking. The Motion reads:

"WHEREAS it has been proven that smoking is one of the most deadly habits practised by man and that it damages the lungs causing cancer, bronchitis, emphysema and many other illnesses, such as, cardiovascular diseases and ulcers;

"AND WHEREAS it is well known that nicotine is extremely addictive and that persons trying to kick the habit experience severe withdrawal symptoms both of a psychological and physical nature;

"AND WHEREAS it is known that there are at least some 4,000 other harmful chemicals in cigarette smoke which adversely affect the body:

"(a) making it more difficult for peptic ulcers to heal;

"(b) increasing the incidence of cardiovascular diseases, making persons more prone to heart attacks;

"(c) accelerating atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries);

"(d) causing the loss of digits by aggravating Buerger's disease, particularly in men;

"(e) increasing the incidence of dysmature and congenital abnormalities in babies born to women who smoke;

"AND WHEREAS there is a great concern about second-hand smoke in that it has been proven that many innocent persons (non-smokers) suffer because they are exposed and are victims to virtually the same risks as smokers;

"AND WHEREAS it is the practice that juveniles under the legal age limit who are often uneducated to the risks of smoking and incompetent of making an informed decision, and who often succumb to the habit as a result of peer pressure, are allowed to purchase tobacco products;

"BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT:

"(a) designated smoking areas are provided in all public places, such as offices and enclosed work places, restaurants, cinemas, bars, nightclubs and;

"(b) the sale of tobacco products to persons under the legal age limit be prohibited;

"(c) the promotion and advertisement of tobacco products be made a criminal offence."

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Madam Speaker, I rise to second Private Member's Motion 19/94.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion 19/94, having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate.
The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Madam Speaker, smoking, the use of tobacco products, particularly the inhalation of tobacco smoke, is regarded, as stated in this Motion, as perhaps one of the most deadly of habits practiced by mankind.

We realise that this issue of smoking involves many different sectors of our community but, in particular, it involves the supplier and the consumer. We realise that it is very important to ensure from a medical perspective that people remain as healthy as possible. It is well known in all medical circles how deadly this practice of cigarette smoking is.

Some of the things that are associated with cigarette smoking are clearly stated in this Motion, but I would like to point out from the very beginning that these are just some. There are many other conditions not mentioned here that are known to be aggravated or caused by cigarette smoking.

The World Health Organisation at one time had as its objective health for all by the year 2000. I understand that objective has been scrapped and another objective has been put in its place, notwithstanding that it is important for us to try to achieve a healthy population, realising that this is only in our best interest, economically, socially and otherwise.

The number of days that are missed on account of the very, very deleterious side effects of cigarette smoking is amazing. The number of days spent in hospital, the number of days spent even at home, and the result of this on our economic performance has got to be very important. Most important is the human suffering that goes along with cigarette smoking.

Madam Speaker, the issue of second-hand smoke is very, very important in my mind. While this Motion does not limit freedom, as far as who wants to smoke and who does not want to smoke, it does make an effort to protect the persons exposed to the smoke exhaled by cigarette smokers. We know that second-hand smoke is extremely dangerous, and it is thought that the second-hand smoker is as much at risk as the smoker himself. I believe that most of us would agree that although it might be considered fine if someone chooses to smoke, it is not all right for other people to be harmed as a result of their decision. Therefore, the Motion asks that there be designated smoking areas provided in all places where people assemble in public, and it names some of those places. Maybe some of the places are not named here, and I would ask that in further considering this Motion that all public places be considered.

I understand that this has a wide cross-section of support. I was contacted by a number of organisations who said that they were in the process of trying to come up with some anti-smoking recommendations for Government in order to legislate. Certainly, the Cayman Islands Medical and Dental Society supports this 100%, and I am also told that the Chamber of Commerce and many other such organisations do also. Of course, the Cancer Society is enthused about this being brought to the House, and I thank Mrs. Tennent for asking if there was any way that she could show the Cancer Society's support. I believe that this evening there is going to be an Open Line programme on this very subject aired on Radio Cayman.

In Resolve (b), the banning of cigarette and cigarette products to people under the legal age limit is mentioned. This might be difficult to achieve in practice, but I do believe that we should definitely have this enshrined in law because of the various reasons given in the Motion, and perhaps, some other ones that have not been considered. Certainly, I do not believe that many of the juveniles whom we see smoking are informed enough about the dangers of cigarette smoke to make an informed decision. I believe that peer pressure plays a very important part in their making that wrong decision to smoke.

I hope that the (c) part of the Resolve, that "the promotion and advertisement of tobacco products be made a criminal offence" will be accepted by all Members here. By so doing I believe that we can achieve, or come close to achieving, the desired effect.

Madam Speaker, bringing this Motion to the House brings me pleasure. I brought a Motion here earlier this year asking for identification cards, and I believe that once that is put in place it will be easier to follow through on this because it might be difficult to decide who is below the legal age limit and who is not.

I ask other Members of this Honourable House to consider this, and I look forward to the debate.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise, as the Minister for Health, to support the Motion before the House at this time. I think this has arisen out of a grave concern by the Second Elected Member for George Town who, as a medical doctor, has had firsthand experience with the damaging effects cigarette smoking has on the human body. Without a doubt, there is concerted effort in the civilised world to dramatically reduce cigarette use.

Some time last year, I saw an ad for a cigarette on the front of the Caymanian Compass. Lo and behold, a few days later it was there again. I think that these Islands are among the few countries in the world that still permit advertisements for cigarettes, specifically, without stating the dangers and prequalifications, as we have seen in the United States, where it states the toxic results and harm that can come to a person if they smoke the cigarette are written. I think this should be a prerequisite on the cigarettes imported here. I think that on international sales it is not required, but I think that we should look at this.

Throughout the world, and specifically on airlines, the message continues to go out that cigarette-smoking is socially unacceptable. I do feel that people who smoke cigarettes have their rights, so the mention of allowing areas where cigarette smoking is permissible should be looked at. But on the whole, I think that this is a good thing to come to this House and I support it.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Member introducing the Motion has outlined some of the ill effects of smoking. Most of them are well known and there is no doubt that cigarette smoking is the cause of 85% of lung cancer, chronic bronchitis, emphysema, heart disease and many other ailments. It has been condemned by the highest medical authorities in the United States and Great Britain, by organisations such as the British Royal College of Physicians in London. People, like the United States Surgeon General, have spoken out against it and we know even in the Cayman Islands it has caused suffering and shortened lives. Every year many people die as a result of smoking.

The ill effects have been known for many years and in 1982, Dr. C. Everett Koop, the United States Surgeon General at the time, said that cigarette smoking is the single most avoidable cause of death in our society, and that it is the single most important public health issue of our times. One wonders why it is, with such strong medical evidence against smoking, that so many people continue to smoke. The industry itself has a lot to do with it: Cigarettes are cheap to make, they are addictive and they are recession proof.

While today, and this is perhaps a recent phenomenon, social pressures are now added to medical pressures for people to quit smoking, we still find that people continue to smoke. The simple answer is that nicotine is a powerful drug. One drop of pure nicotine placed on a person's tongue would kill him instantly, but smokers are lucky in that the nicotine which they receive is absorbed throughout the system and does not kill instantly, for the body handles it in the same way as it does other poisons which we take in.

So the Motion before the House is a good one and the medical doctor who introduced this Motion mentioned that there are about 4,000 chemicals contained in a cigarette, and most of them cause cancer. These substances were discovered as far back as 1950, and the industry is so smart that it introduced the filtered cigarettes at about that time, not so much to help the smoker, but because they knew it would be popular with females as it would help their vanity in giving them a cigarette whose butt would not go soggy in their mouths.

I believe the education of our youth is the only way that we are going to help the new generation to smoke less, to give it up altogether, or not take it up at all. Some time ago I saw a bumper sticker, and I hope you do not think that I am working for the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, but it had been sponsored by the Seventh-Day Adventist Church in Cayman, and it said: "NO BUTTS TOBACCO KILLS". That, together with education in the schools, will be the only salvation for the new generation of smokers.

Now the Motion before the House seeks to do several things: One is to designate smoking areas in public places, such as offices and enclosed work places, restaurants, cinemas, bars and nightclubs. I support the Resolution. The Motion seeks to forbid the sale of tobacco products to persons under the legal age limit.

There is one problem with this, as mentioned by the Second Elected Member for George Town, when he introduced the Motion, and that is the need for positive identification. It is difficult sometimes for the merchants to determine off-hand whether a young person is under the age of 18 or over the age of 18. So I would urge the Government to speed up the process of the identification card which can be used for this purpose.

The third Resolution of the Motion is seeking to ban the advertisement of tobacco products and to make it a criminal offence to advertise them. I fully support this, but the tobacco industry in the United States, Great Britain and Australia and other industrialised countries has gotten around this ban by sponsoring sporting events. For example, the Tobacco Industry is the biggest sponsor of motor car racing, and the Marlboro Cigarette Company is a common feature of the Indianapolis Speed-Way races. Also, for a long time in the United Kingdom, Cricket Test Matches were sponsored (to the tune of some 6 million pounds sterling) by the tobacco industry, just so they could get their names not only before the audience watching the match but on television around the world. So the powerful industry always comes—like the Greeks when they bring gifts—and seeks to circumvent any ban that is placed on them.

It is estimated today that, globally, the tobacco industry spends in excess of $2 billion a year to ensure that cigarettes are associated with glamour, success and sophistication—instead of lung cancer, bronchitis and heart diseases. So they continue to spend large sums to perpetuate the false image in order to counter the evidence that cigarettes are dangerous instead of desirable.

So this is a bold Motion, but one that has been needed for a long time. I personally would like to see smoking banned in all public buildings. This Motion does not go that far, because the cigarette smoker is a lucky person, he gets his nicotine and his tar and his 4,000 chemicals through the filtered end of the cigarette while he puffs the undiluted smoke on his innocent victims from the more dangerous end of the cigarette. While I believe that people have a right to smoke if they want to shorten their lives, I believe the nonsmokers have a right not to be victimised.

I could spend all evening talking on the statistics that have been published over the years on this matter, but it is estimated that if 25% of the people smoking would stop, there would be a savings of 250,000 lives in the United States, alone, per year. These are not comforting figures, and I must close because there is no need to talk to the converted here, as I believe all Members will support this Motion—I certainly do.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Recently, the United States Congress held an investigation into the effects of cigarette smoking and brought some serious indictments against Tobacco Companies. Madam Speaker, anyone who had an opportunity to witness those hearings in the Congress of the United States must have been struck, as I was, by the depth of destruction and deception visited upon us by cigarette and tobacco Companies.

One of the charges which was laid down was that the tobacco companies deliberately spike the cigarettes so that smokers become addicted to nicotine—"hooked" on the nicotine—and, therefore, cannot easily kick the habit. I was educated, and I was shocked. I was repulsed by the extent these companies go to in order to market their products and to kill people, because that, in essence, is what the Congress was charging them of doing. Need I say that they had the best lobbyists, including doctors, that money could buy, to argue that their product was not doing what the Congress said it was doing?

I also learned from those hearings that while the United States Congress and Senate had brought many of the tobacco companies, if not most of them, under heavy manner in terms of their advertising distribution of products in the United States, these companies are so organised and smart that they have now turned to the Third World as their major market for these destructive products. So to countries like Indonesia, and the countries of Africa and, by virtue of the fact that we are not as developed and as sophisticated as the United States, countries like the Cayman Islands have now become the primary dumping grounds for these products where they can be sold, dumped or displayed with the minimum of warnings concerning the harmful effect of cigarette smoking.

Madam Speaker, we in the Cayman Islands must be concerned, and the last speaker mentioned the brilliance of the tobacco companies in sponsoring sporting events. It is of interest to know that one of the premiere sponsors of cultural events like art exhibitions and museums exhibitions in the United States, is none other than the Phillip Morris Company. And what is the Phillip Morris Company? One of the largest cigarette manufacturing companies in the world. So these people have found a way to disguise the dangerousness and the death and destruction of their products by becoming involved in important sporting and cultural events as sponsors.

Madam Speaker, fortunately for me, when I was growing up I spent many years with my paternal grandmother, who was a Seventh-Day Adventist. And it was from the meetings and the slide shows held at the Adventist Church in Bodden Town that from a very early age I learned of the harmful effects and results of cigarette smoke. There were numerous slide shows and presentations about the destructiveness of tobacco on the lungs which eventually leads to lung cancer. So, thankfully, I never developed that habit as a result of that educational awareness.

But I also had the opportunity to live in two of the heaviest smoking areas (according to World Health Statistics) per capita-wise: Japan and the Province of Quebec, Canada. It is interesting to note that in both jurisdictions the primary and greatest cause of death by far is cardiovascular disease and lung cancer. It is sickening to have to work in an office where everyone around you is lighting up and you are the only person not smoking.

I hope that we in the Cayman Islands will realise the disastrous effects and stop the consequences before they become that far reaching. I welcome the idea of "No Smoking" areas and, indeed, I advocate that buildings and businesses dealing with the public should, if not be exclusively non-smoking, have clearly designated smoking areas, and smokers should not be allowed to mix and meddle with the general public when they are lighting up, or after they have lit up, because it poses a danger to those people who do not smoke. Madam Speaker, as far as the effects of smoking are concerned, anyone who has witnessed a person suffering from emphysema would be hard pressed to continue smoking after observing the pain in which that person exists from day to day.

I support this Motion where the Resolve calls for designated smoking areas in public places, such as restaurants, cinemas, bars and nightclubs. Like the Mover, and many others, I hope that the sale of tobacco to persons under the legal age limit can be quickly, easily and practically prohibited. As far as the promotion and advertising of tobacco and tobacco products is concerned, I believe that there should be some serious sanctions placed on them—if not a criminal offence because that is rather harsh, there should be no obvious public promotion or advertisement of tobacco and their related products.

I noticed recently in the United States that the sale of cigarettes has become like the sale of some magazines, like Playboy and Penthouse and all those; they are under the counter, rather than being displayed in obvious places. Madam Speaker, that is juxtaposed against what happens in Central America and some other Third World countries. Having gone to the United States from a visit to Central America recently, where cigarettes were sold openly, I noticed the difference immediately upon reaching the United States. In the United States, you had to make a specific request for the cigarettes in the stores, whereas, in Central American countries they were obvious and the advertisements were obvious.

I believe that this is a timely Motion. I believe it is one in which Parliament has to move towards, not only protecting, but educating the populace of this country as to the harmful effects of tobacco and its related products. I also believe that we should do whatever is necessary to protect the young and malleable from the harmful effects of tobacco and its related products by having some form of educational awareness programme in the schools.

Madam Speaker, this Motion is especially timely, as we are celebrating Drug Awareness Week and talking about being drug free. Tobacco, while not viewed with the same seriousness as cocaine and marijuana and other drugs, probably does more damage by virtue of the fact that more people use tobacco and its related products because they are so easily available and, strictly speaking, they are not illegal substances. The Motion should do well towards promoting a healthy life-style in these Islands. The Motion should do well towards promoting an awareness that certain products, although readily available, have disastrous consequences and certainly should increase the appreciation and awareness of those of us who do not indulge, that we should protect ourselves. Not only should we protect ourselves, but we should demand from those who indulge in these destructive habits that we wish to be free from the disastrous consequences of this. I support the Motion and hope that it is the beginning of an awareness of a healthy life-style in these Islands.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 10 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 4.12 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.25 PM

The Speaker: Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 19/94.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I rise to offer my support to Private Member's Motion No. 19/94, entitled, No Smoking. Much has been said about the medical evidence on the harm of smoking. There are many sad cases that could be mentioned here with respect to this particular problem, that is, the problem caused to the health of individuals by smoking.

Madam Speaker, I support the idea of designating areas for smokers and, if I had my preference, I would ban smoking completely in all public places. I do not think it is fair to those persons who choose not to smoke to have to contend with persons who smoke, especially in their office environment.

I recall a personal experience, when I shared an office with a chain-smoker. By the end of the day I would have a headache and my eyes would run water. I finally had to tell the young man to please take a walk whenever he wished to smoke. It was really uncomfortable. It was irritating and, being a non-smoker I felt it was unfair to put my health in danger because he took it upon himself to be a smoker.

I also support the idea that more care has to be taken by establishments which make cigarettes available for sale to ensure that persons under the legal age not be allowed to purchase them. It is still very fashionable for teenagers to pick up the practice of smoking. They feel that it makes them more macho because they do not know all the facts. I believe that we have to take whatever measures are available to ensure that they, at least, are not in a position to purchase cigarettes from establishments that make them available for sale. I also support the resolve in the Motion that calls for a ban on the promotion and the advertisement of tobacco products and that if anyone is found guilty of such an act that it be made a criminal offence.

Madam Speaker, I believe that we have to be tough on issues of this nature, and I was very pleased—I recall thinking about the idea of bringing a motion myself along the lines of banning smoking on, for example, airlines—when Cayman Airways established the policy of no smoking on their flights. I believe that for at least an hour or so, a smoker should be in a position where he can refrain from that habit when there is such evidence to suggest that it is harmful not only to him, but to persons around them.

I support the idea of banning the advertisement of tobacco products in any fashion in this country. I want to commend the Mover and Seconder of the Motion and I believe it is very timely.

This Motion has my full support. Thank you.

MOTION OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM
Standing Order 10(2)

The Speaker: It is now 4.30. I do not know whether it is the wish of the House to reach a conclusion on this Private Member's Motion, or do we take the adjournment?

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

WEDNESDAY
14 SEPTEMBER 1994
10.04 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning to say Prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: First of all, I have apologies for absence from the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works, who is unable to be present at this morning's sitting, but will attend in the afternoon. Also the Second Honourable Official Member will be late.

I would also like, on behalf of the House, to extend congratulations to the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning on his election as Second Vice Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Caribbean Tourism Organisation. This top executive post is a first CTO appointment, I understand, ever held by a Member of the Cayman Islands Government.

The second item was to have been the Civil Aviation Annual Report for 1993, but I understand the Honourable Minister is unable, or not ready at this time, to present the Report. It will, therefore, be put down on the Orders of the Day for another suitable day.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town, question No. 117.

QUESTION NO. 117

No. 117: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation to make a statement concerning the report in the "Caymanian Compass" of Thursday, 4th August, 1994, (page 12) in which a six-year-old youngster was seriously injured at the Red Bay Primary School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Principal of the Red Bay School has made a report on the alleged incident in which a six-year old student was injured. The Attorney General has been instructed by the Chief Education Officer. The School admits no liability in this incident.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say if any attempt has been made with the parents of this youngster, to reach an amicable understanding regarding the position of the school?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, there have been discussions with the parent in relation to her child. There is nothing to discuss about the school, as such. I do not understand why the Member is so worried about the school, rather than the child. Discussions have taken place with the parent in relation to the child.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I base my question on the fact that in the report one of the parents is quoted as saying that the system of supervising the children at the school is unsatisfactory. I am asking the Member if the parent was called in and it was explained that under the circumstances there was no negligence on the part of the school as far as proper supervision is concerned?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the press makes many, many statements, like many Members of this House make statements at times. He has read a statement, and I do not know if he knows whether there is voracity and truth to it or not. I do not. It is merely a statement in the press, and I really do not wish to comment any further on it. All I can say is that there was sympathy with the parent in relation to her child, and the school admits no liability.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 118, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 118

No. 118: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister of Education and Aviation to make a statement on the matter of Government's compromise on the Crewe Road diversion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Following many meetings with the public, and with the support and input of the pilots, it was decided to realign the road at the end of the runway to allow the use of an additional 600 feet of built runway. The traffic flow from the Eastern districts will remain the same as it is now, that is, traffic coming from the Eastern districts can proceed directly on to Crewe Road without stopping.

The decision to utilise the additional 600 feet of runway is in accordance with United Kingdom requirements to satisfy the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO) Standards and Recommended Practices, and it is intended to increase the safety margin for all present and future aircraft landing at Owen Roberts International Airport. In addition, realignment of this road-strip will eliminate the difficult junction of Smith Road, Crewe Road and Lyndhurst Avenue and the use of stop-lights when aircraft are approaching.

Government appreciates that this matter has been of great concern to the businesses in the area, and for this reason, many meetings were held and the matter was exhaustively discussed by the press before this compromise was reached.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister state what circumstances led to the seeking of a compromise, when in the "Caymanian Compass" of Friday, 27th May, 1994, he was quoted as saying that the road would only be closed for 10 minutes to allow for landing and take off?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I have always tried to reach an agreement between the public and the Government on all matters. My position, therefore, shifted from a situation where we were dealing with closing the road for 10 minutes when one aircraft was landing, to a position where the members of the public with whom I was dealing agreed that it was in the interest of the Cayman Islands for all aircraft to use 600 feet of built runway for purposes of landing. The reason for my shifting in that position is because if that 600 feet of built runway was there, and the aircraft went 100 feet into the North Sound and was not allowed to use the 600 feet, and lives were lost, then it would be a national disaster.

There were a series of meetings (many meetings, in fact) and yes, I compromised—as I am always willing to do when the public is there—to see that an agreement was reached, and, in fact, an agreed press release was issued.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Since that Minister is such a great proponent of public consultation, can the Minister say why no attempt was made to canvass or to inform the road users from the Eastern Districts as to the effect the closing of this road and the rerouting would have on their traffic pattern?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, as the Member seems to read the press, and knows far more about it than me, he should have read the many press reports that went out. But, if you are going to reach a compromise, as I did on a very controversial issue, you cannot be running to the press every five minutes. If the press had been involved in this, or Members such as he, who like to create controversy, I never would have reached an agreement. Therefore, there was a period of time when both sides agreed we would not go to the press—which means that Member, obviously, did not get the controversy that he would have liked.

What is very important is that an agreement was reached, and I think that was quite an achievement on such a controversial matter, which Members like him had stirred up.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: I wonder if the Minister could tell us if the British Aviation Authority has recommended using the existing 600 feet over the past three years?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker, this is a recommendation that has been made for safety purposes and previous Governments had attempted to shift the road to use this. We have to remember that this 600 feet of runway is already built, and it is our children's lives that are at risk if it is not used. It is not as if we are building anything—this exists.

I think the previous Minister had tried to get it through, but because of Opposition (like I get from the First Elected Member for Bodden Town), they stopped it and endangered people's lives for politics.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would like to ask the Minister if among the two sides that he was dealing with, were there representatives of the thousands of users of the eastern road, or were they, specifically, as has been stated in the paper, merchants in the Airport Industrial Park area?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation, and this will be the last supplementary on this question.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, it was a wide-ranging group of people who appointed six representatives. I directly involved some of the George Town Elected Members who were here at the time, and other Members who represented other districts were aware of what was happening. But, for a period, in an effort to reach a settlement, we agreed not to go to the press because one cannot easily reach an agreement when one has both sides running to the press trying to fix their position.

Thank you.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, do you have a question? I did say that that was the last supplementary.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker, I have a question of the Chair...

The Speaker: We will have to go on to the next question, please. The next question is No. 119, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

No. 119: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation to state what library facilities exist at the Red Bay Primary School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The purpose-built Library block at Red Bay Primary School presently functions as a temporary multi-purpose unit housing the Principal's office, receptionist area, staff room, sick bay and music room, in addition to a reduced library space.

Computer software to effect library automation has been secured and awaits set up when the necessary hardware becomes available. All books have been bar-coded and shelved in preparation for computerisation. Library book orders, funded by the 1994 School Library Vote, have been processed and shipment is expected to arrive sometime later this term.

It is expected that the above mentioned resources should allow for the immediate implementation of a student-lending programme in September 1994. With funding released for the December 1994 orders, including the computers, the entire school should be able to be included in the lending programme by January 1995.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister say what interim arrangements are made to cater to the interest and desires of those children who have to use the Library to complete class assignments, or who wish to borrow books from the Library to take home?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, they use the Library.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Minister could tell us if it was an oversight, or how it came about that the Red Bay Primary School Library facility has to now be used as the office, sick bay and other staff room facilities?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the reason for this is that the previous Member for Education, Mr. Benson Ebanks, was trying to move at such a rapid pace that he never got around to building these other things that should have gone where the Library now is. I presently have an extensive programme going at Red Bay Primary School, and extra classrooms are now in the process of being built. This is a problem I inherited from the last Government.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 120 standing in the name of Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 120

No. 120: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning if Government has given any consideration to forming a Committee to consider recycling for these Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Government recognises the need for community involvement to ensure the success of environmental programmes. Toward this end, an Environmental Advisory Committee has been created. This Committee will consider the issue of recycling along with other critical environment issues.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Could the Minister please state if, in giving their terms of reference, the Committee would be able to report back this year or next year? How long will the Committee be meeting before recommendations are made and put in place?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The terms of reference for the Committee is: to review and advise on all coastal work development applications; consultation with the Department of the Environment to examine the current environmental concerns in the Cayman Islands and advise the Ministry on possible solutions; to take appropriate steps where necessary to solicit community input on environmental issues and report findings to the Ministry; to consider and provide advice to the Ministry on any issue of national importance which may adversely affect the environment of the Cayman Islands, and to provide advice on the development and formulation of environmental policies for consideration by the Ministry.

The Advisory Committee will be in existence as long as I am in office and it will report on an interim basis as the need arises to propose recommendations or solutions to environmental matters, or to advise the Ministry which will take the matter in some cases to Executive Council on issues of environmental concern.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 121, standing in the name of Third Elected Member for George Town.

1 QUESTION NO. 121

No. 121: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable First Official Member if any action has been taken by the Public Service Commission and the Governor with regard to the letter published in the "Caymanian Compass" in early July by the then Acting Chief Secretary concerning the Road to the Agricultural Pavilion.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: No breach of Civil Service Regulations was committed, therefore no action was warranted.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: I wonder if the First Official Member could tell us if it is not correct, according to Regulations, that a member of the Civil Service has to have special permission in order to speak or to write to the media?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: Madam Speaker, the Civil Service Regulations clearly provide for opportunities for Civil Servants, acting in their capacity as citizens, to make representations publicly. In this instance, that regulation was complied with.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Member say if it is a fact that the Elected Members of Executive Council, along with a considerable number of their Backbenchers, demanded of the Governor that the particular Civil Servant in question be terminated because of that letter?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I will not allow that question. That far exceeds what was originally asked, and the reply thereto. We will now move to question No. 122, standing in the name of Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 122

No. 122: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked The Honourable First Official Member what action is taken, if any, when a Police Officer fails to appear in Court, without just reason, on behalf of the Crown.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: If it becomes known, either by complaint from the Court, the Prosecutor or Defence Counsel, or by any other means, that a Police Officer has failed to appear in Court, having been duly warned or summoned to appear as a witness for the Crown, an immediate investigation is carried out.

The enquiry is conducted by the Police Complaints and Discipline Branch under the supervision of the Deputy Commissioner of Police in the same manner as all other complaints against Police, or reports of disciplinary misconduct.

The Officer complained about is served with discipline papers advising him of the nature of the allegation and is interviewed, or invited to make a statement, after all witnesses have been interviewed and statements recorded from them.

The final report is then submitted to the Deputy Commissioner for a decision to be taken whether to convene a formal discipline hearing or what other action should be taken.

Failure to attend Court after being properly warned or summoned without proper cause, constitutes an offence of neglect of duty contrary to Regulation 6(ii) of the Police Regulations, 1976. Where a summons has been properly served on a Police Officer, the court has powers to issue a bench warrant for the Officer's arrest.

There is currently an investigation in progress, following a complaint by Crown Counsel that two Officers failed to appear in Court on 9th of August this year to give evidence for the Crown.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is there any consideration given in their disciplinary actions to compensation for the loss of time and effort by the Court?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. J. Lemuel Hurlston: The Police Regulations provide for penalties for breaches of those regulations and appropriate punishment is spelled out for the authorities to impose of persons convicted after due trial.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 123, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 123

No. 123: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation if Cayman Airways Limited has any long outstanding fees for handling Islena Airlines and, if so, how much.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Islena Airlines has never had an account with Cayman Airways Limited. Their handling agent owes Cayman Airways Limited US$13,000.00 for handling charges for Islena and has agreed a scale of payments to eliminate the balance.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Minister say if the agency owing Cayman Airways is the present agency or the former agency?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: If I can know the name of the present agent and the former agent that the Member is referring to, then I can be a bit more precise. Changes have been made there I understand.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I imagine the Minister would know who the present agency dealing with Islena Airline is, in that he is the Minister for Aviation, but I understand that it is Mr. Graham Thompson. This has only recently changed, and I am asking is it Mr. Thompson's agency, or the agency prior under which this occurred?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It is the prior agency that owes it, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 124, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 124

No. 124: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation whether there have been any unusual conditions at Gerrard Smith Airport in Cayman Brac with the handling of baggage carts and the use of a private vehicle as a tug for Cayman Airways Ltd.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Cayman Airways Limited

may use any vehicle which it considers suitable for baggage carts. From time to time the Airline finds it necessary to hire a private jeep for this purpose in Cayman Brac. This is not an unusual practice, and meets the legal and insurance requirements of such a purpose.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if in very recent times there has been a private jeep of the Airport Traffic Officer in Cayman Brac hired to pull the baggage carts for Cayman Airways?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: The answer, Madam Speaker, is yes.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if there has been an accident with the use of this particular vehicle when a member of staff of Cayman Airways was dismissed because he refused to drive what was the private vehicle of the Airport Traffic Officer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Madam Speaker, there was a minor accident at the Airport as the Member has mentioned. It was minor and the aircraft flew from there again, but the person who was driving the vehicle, as I understand it, was not dismissed.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Minister say if it is a fact that, in truth, the person who was dismissed was an employee—the one who said that he could not drive the private vehicle—and the person who was actually driving it and who hit the plane still continues to work?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Madam Speaker, from what I can understand, when the accident occurred the driver of the vehicle continued in employment. There was apparently another person who tried to get all the other employees to stop driving the vehicle and he refused to drive it and, as I understand it, he was dismissed.

Madam Speaker, I do not want to get too much further into this because it is obviously an internal matter. I hope that will satisfy the Member.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 125...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker...

The Speaker: That will conclude supplementaries on this question. The next question is No. 125, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 125

No. 125: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Aviation when does Government propose to rectify the overall situation of aviation services in Little Cayman, including runway, terminal building, etcetera, to meet approved aviation requirements.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: The Airport in Little Cayman is on private property and, as such, Government has neither responsibility nor liability for it. However, the Civil Aviation Authority includes Little Cayman in its development plan for the Islands' Airports. The Public Works Department has been requested to advise the Civil Aviation Authority on the suitability and cost of several sites, including the present site. Once this report has been received, the Civil Aviation Authority will make a decision as to how an airport for Little Cayman will be developed.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Minister say if there has been any word from the British Civil Aviation Authority or ICAO (International Civil Aviation Organisation), or the Civil Aviation Authority in Cayman regarding the fact that the Little Cayman runway does not meet certain safety standards?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Madam Speaker, I would have to get the actual details of that from the Director of Civil Aviation. I did not expect that type of supplementary. But what I will say to the Member is that for many years different Governments have been looking at this and I will undertake, depending on cost, to try to deal with the problem as expeditiously as I can because there needs to be, as the question asked, some improvement there.

I hope, God willing, during my time in Government that I can get a solution to this long outstanding situation.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if there is any insurance coverage in place on aircraft landing in Little Cayman, including any that Cayman Airways may have, or otherwise, or do these planes simply land at their own risk? Has this been made clear to them by our Civil Aviation Authority?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation, I do not know if you can reply to that since you did not have notice of it.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Not really, Ma'am. I could not answer that.

The Speaker: You could supply it in writing at a later time.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Sure, Ma'am, I can do that.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 126, standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTION NO. 126

No. 126: Mrs. Edna Moyle asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to state who are the present and past shareholders of the company offering the "Do It Yourself Kit".

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

DEFERRAL OF QUESTION NO. 126

Standing Order 23(4)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, in accordance with the provision of Standing Order 23(4) I would like to ask leave of this Honourable House to decline in providing an answer to this question, since to do so would not be in the public's interest.

I should point out, Madam Speaker, that in reviewing the Companies Law there is no provision that would preclude the providing of this answer, only that there are certain sensitivities within the financial industry to the divulging of such information as beneficial ownership in a public forum such as the Legislative Assembly. Therefore, Madam Speaker, in observing that sensitivity, I am asking this Honourable House to exercise that tolerance.

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member, the House is not required to come to a conclusion on that. You, as a Member of the Government, may decline to answer—which you have done—so that is accepted.

The next question is No. 127, standing in the name of Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 127

No. 127: Mr. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to make a statement on the developments taking place since the agreement made on March 1st, 1994, for a Master Facilities Development Plan to be provided for the existing George Town Hospital site.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Edén: The Master Planning Study for Health Care Facilities on the George Town Hospital site will be completed shortly. It will provide a detailed report on the electrical, water and sanitary services; the functions, condition and floor space of existing facilities. In addition, it will provide a Master Plan Programme Development by phases and the estimated cost.

I would like to add that by building in phases, which are prioritised by medical staff, it is hoped to fund these improvements by Government revenue without having to do major borrowing.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister (although I have read the answer) could expand a little more by way of giving us a bit of specifics with time, bearing in mind he was fairly generic in the time span.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Edén: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This response was supposed to be finalised from over a month ago, but when the proposals were looked at in more detail, the Fire Department had some concerns—which meant that they had to go back and sort out certain areas and situations to the acceptance of, not only the Fire Department, but the Planning Department, to make sure that everything was in order.

I will add that there have been many hours put in by the Facilities Review Committee in regards to this, and there has been quite a bit of involvement in this.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: One final supplementary on this question, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister would advise the House if the plans, when they are completed, will be available for public inspection?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, I think the procedure is that the proposal will first go to the Executive Council, and if it meets with their approval it will then be made public. I will undertake that once these steps are taken that it will be done.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 128, standing in the name of Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 128

No. 128: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development what is the total amount of tourist accommodation tax owed to the Government by properties as of 31st August, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The total estimated amount of Tourist Accommodation Tax as at 31st August, 1994, was $573,522.56. Excluded from the amount of $573,522.56 are the following amounts, totalling $661,326.00, which are unlikely to be recovered. The amounts are: (1) $586,726—Past owners of Ramada Treasure Island Resort; and (2) $74,600—Cayman Kai Resorts.

In addition, there was also $24,143.05 in Tourist Accommodation Tax Surcharges outstanding. Schedules showing the properties and the amounts of Tourist Accommodation Tax and Surcharges are attached for information. (See Appendix I—page 401)

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Member is in a position to outline quickly what steps, if any, have been taken to try to recover the two amounts which have been excluded from his original answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Madam Speaker. Dealing with the first item, the sum owing by the Ramada Treasure Island Resort's previous owners goes back in time. In April 1990, the Government secured a judgment through the Courts by consent against Ramada Cayman Islands Limited, and the individual partners, for a sum of $636,853. Of this sum only $50,127 of the judgment has been settled, leaving a balance of $586,726 owed by the owners. The Legal Department was instructed to take whatever action is available to enforce a payment of the judgment debt.

A number of options to effect recovery of the debt have been considered including legal action in the United States. The debtors have intimated their agreement to settle the debt when it becomes commercially possible to do so, but this will not be until the sale of the hotel takes place.

Madam Speaker, it is known that the hotel has since changed ownership—it has been sold, and at this time the Legal Department is unable to make any further headway in terms of proceeding against the owners because the Portfolio of Finance and Development have been made to understand that the past owners are not in a position with sufficient assets to be reached in order for settlement of the indebtedness to be made.

Madam Speaker, in regards to Cayman Kai, if you will permit me, I will read a memorandum from the Acting Accountant General to the Financial Secretary. I think this best outlines what took place. I read: "Memorandum; File note 12/09/94; To: The Financial Secretary; From: The Acting Accountant General; Subject: Cayman Kai Resort

"The outstanding balance of $78,801.23 is derived from various balances being estimated amounts for Tourist Accommodation Tax. Surcharges on the estimated tax as well as Cayman Islands Reservation Services Fees for the period February 1991 to June 1993.

"Shortly after the Treasury wrote Cayman Kai concerning the debt, word was received that the company had been placed into receivership. Treasury was further advised that all correspondences should be directed to Mr. Ian White and Richard Douglas of Deloitte and Touche by letter dated 10th June, 1993.

"On 1st July, 1993, the Accountant General wrote to the Solicitor General requesting that a claim be lodged with the Liquidators of Cayman Kai Resort and to take whatever action it would require to recover the debt.

"Communication from Cayman Kai Resort dated 24th January, 1994, indicated that the company was placed in receivership in June of that year and that the new owners were not liable for the debts incurred by the previous owners.

"Treasury once again wrote to the Liquidators, Deloitte and Touche, pertaining to the outstanding taxes in a letter dated 2nd February, 1994. This was met with a response from the Liquidators dated 18th March, 1994, saying that they had been discharged of the receivership, and that after realisation of the assets there were insufficient funds to settle outstanding debts due to the secured creditor which was the Cayman National Bank and other creditors."

Madam Speaker, the reason I mentioned earlier that it is necessary for these items to be excluded is that at the next meeting, or at any meeting of Finance Committee, these amounts will have to be put on the agenda to be dealt with by this House—the reason being that these properties acted in a fiduciary capacity by collecting funds on behalf of the Government. It is known that these funds owed by these properties in question have not been accounted for. Because of these funds having been collected and not accounted for, the Financial and Stores Regulations make it a requirement that the permission of the House be sought for these amounts to be written off.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, may I ask the Honourable Member, what steps can be taken to put these tourist accommodation facilities on a current basis so that they pay the tax to Government at the end of each month?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, at this time the Government has taken the decision to increase the number of persons within the Treasury Department assigned to deal with this specific activity to two individuals.

Most of the outstanding amounts that are now showing relate to amounts going back to when the Department of Tourism had responsibility for the collection of outstanding taxes. So it can be seen that the Treasury on a whole is on top of what is happening. However, in reviewing the files it is not to be imputed that the Tourism Department did not do a good job in following up on the outstanding amounts because we have seen evidence where they have consulted in many instances with the Legal Department and have obtained judgments.

I should point out that I think the best way of dealing with this, and it will be done shortly, is for an amendment to be made to the Tourist Accommodation Tax Law because the penalties are frivolous. I think the amount set out as penalty in the Law is a sum of $100 and amounts to be determined. I think given the nature and the volume of business now taking place in Cayman, these penalties need to be significantly increased.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, far be it from my intention to be critical, but I notice under the section with the list of the Tourist Accommodation Tax—Hotel, Condominiums and Guest Houses—the amount outstanding as of the 31st August, 1994, there are several properties that are still operating and have outstanding amounts. For example, outstanding amounts that go from September 1987, through to July 1994. That is something like seven years. I am just wondering how these places are allowed to continue to operate with these amounts continuing to increase? If the Honourable Third Official Member could comment on that.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, if we were to look at the first item on the list—Hospitality World Limited—we see that although the period has been stated September 1987 to July 1994, this sum of $410,780 is broken down on the basis of an estimate derived by the past Accountant General, whereby he estimated that the sum owed by the previous management amounts to approximately $350,000 and under current management $50,000 which basically would cover 1993 and 1994.

I have spoken to the Solicitor General on this matter and he will be taking appropriate action within a short while. He is asking for the Department to provide him with the most up-to-date position on the matter. The records indicate the ongoing discussions with the existing owners and the Treasury Department. I should say this is going to make the situation even sound much worse than it is, but, for example, following a meeting between the previous Accountant General and the current management, two cheques were issued; one on the 27th May, 1994, for a sum of $9,781.94, and the cheque was returned "Refer to Drawer"; the second one was issued on this date for $8,082.

So the situation is not an easy one, but the Treasury Department is remaining on top of these outstanding amounts. Every effort is being made to collect these outstanding sums because the Government recognises that it is imperative that all of these establishments are up to date in terms of the sums that are due to the Government.

In regard to some of the other items that are on the list, showing for six or seven months, the Honourable Members will notice that these are sums that show amounts owing down to the last cent. These are amounts that have been provided by the establishments in question and they have indicated an interest that they will be coming in to make settlement with the Government within a short period of time.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. Government Business. Bills, Third Reading.

BILLS

THIRD READING

THE TOURISM (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

The Clerk: The Tourism (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I beg to move that a Bill shortly entitled, the Tourism (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Third Reading and passed.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Tourism (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Third Reading and passed. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Third Reading and passed.

AGREED. THE TOURISM (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994, GIVEN A THIRD READING AND PASSED.

The Speaker: Other Business, Private Members' Motion No. 19/94—No Smoking. Debate continues. Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing. The Honourable Member seems to be absent. (Pause) It appears as if Third Elected Member for West Bay is not present to continue his debate of yesterday afternoon.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 19/94

NO SMOKING

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I had completed my debate on Monday, Ma'am.

The Speaker: You had concluded?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Yes, Ma'am.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Madam Speaker, I just want to give this Motion my support because it is very badly needed. I have to commend the Honourable Member for bringing it, and I feel sure that this Honourable House will support it. Everyone knows that smoking is a danger to one's health and I think whatever can be done to control it, we should all support.

Thank you, very much.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, Private Member's Motion No. 19/94, No Smoking, is what I would have to term a Motion with the best interest of the public at heart. From that level, having read it as carefully as I could, and having done a little bit of research, I have to take the point of view that in theory the Motion is a good one. The resolve sections in the Motion, which are the most critical sections in any motion, deserve some comments.

Let me hasten to explain that I do recognise that this is a ticklish Motion—being one of the few smokers in the world, myself—and the problems that I do wish to point out this morning are simply based on the fact that as representatives in this Honourable House, it is always necessary to point out all sides to ensure that whatever final decision is made, that all matters have been considered.

The very first Resolve section says: "designated smoking areas are provided in all public places, such as offices and enclosed work places, restaurants, cinemas, bars nightclubs." Madam Speaker, I know for a fact that there are many people in this Island who hold the view, and quite rightly so, that cigarettes and other tobacco products, cigars and tobacco smoked through a pipe, should never have been invented, should not have existed and should not exist today.

The fact is, these products do exist and some people indulge by choice. This section is calling for designated smoking areas which brings to mind several locations which have been operating for many years that I envisage will have tremendous problems from a practical point of view. At this point in time I am going to ask the Mover of the Motion if he would take note of the problems that I am going to point out with a view to maybe accomplishing as much as can be accomplished, bearing in mind the practical side of the situation.

For designated smoking areas to be effective in the pursuit of this Motion, they would have to be areas which are enclosed. To my mind if there is an open area of 20 x 30, for instance, and there is a section 10 x 20 which is designated as a smoking area but the place is still open, then it makes no difference whether that specific area is a designated smoking area because as people smoke the smoke will move throughout the whole area. My interpretation of a designated smoking area means that the place will have to be enclosed. I can think of several locations which, from one side of the coin it would be easy to say, "Well, they will have to do their next best," but the fact of the matter is that these places do exist.

I would hasten to say that because a person smokes a cigarette does not make that person a bad person, nevertheless, let me use a few examples to point out the problems that I see in this area. Firstly, there are a few night clubs which are operating on the Island now that provide live entertainment, and without wasting the time of this Honourable House by calling all the names and citing how they are situated inside, I can visualise in my mind that the proprietors of these places will face a serious problem. They are providing live entertainment and there is a section cordoned off physically to provide that entertainment in such a way that all the patrons are able to enjoy the entertainment.

The second problem I envisage is with what we call the local bars (and some people look down on these places, but there are real people who patronise these places and the fact is that those people are represented by us also). There are places like MacDonald's, Blue Marlin, the Country and Western Bar, just to name a few. They do not have large bar areas, and I honestly do not see how these people are physically going to be able to have separate areas for smokers and non-smokers. I am simply pointing out the problems. I am not here to decide who should exist and who should not.

The third point that I would like to bring is that at present there are many locations which have taken it upon themselves to deal with this problem—and I accept it as a problem because I think that people should be conscious and respectful of other peoples' feelings regarding smoking around them. But there are people who have basically taken it into their own hands already. I know of many restaurants that have the bar separated from the restaurant area within the same building, and in the restaurant you see the sign saying 'No Smoking'. So people who frequent these restaurants to have breakfast, lunch or dinner are not exposed to people sitting down and smoking. But under the same roof there is the very small bar which has already been separated from the restaurant area where I see problems for that section.

The places that I have mentioned are just a few, and I could name more, but I just named a few to illustrate that point with regards to section (a). God forbid that I should stand here today and say that we should not be respectful of everyone's existence with regards to those who smoke and those who do not. I just felt a need to point out some of the problems that I envisage if it is dealt with in the fashion called for in the Motion.

Section (b) of the resolve reads: "BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the sale of tobacco products to person under the legal age limit be prohibited." I am in total agreement with that. But, again, looking around I see one problem that I think is staring us in the face. I do not have the answer for it, but I feel the need to point the problem out. I know of at least one individual who has vending machines on the Island. These vending machines are at various locations and the machines have health warnings on them regarding the cigarettes for sale. The mere fact that there is no one monitoring those machines makes it possible for people under the legal age limit to purchase cigarettes from those machines. I am saying that, maybe the way this resolve is, the person who owns those machines might be liable by law, I am not sure, but I wanted to point that out.

The last resolve section of the Motion which asked that "the promotion and advertisement of tobacco products be made a criminal offence." Here, again, I fully understand the intention, and I basically do not have a problem with the intention of doing as much as is physically possible to ensure that people understand the risks that they involve themselves with by smoking. But, again, from a practical point of view, I have to point out a few areas.

The Tobacco Products and Intoxicating Liquor Advertising Law, 1986, states in section 3(1) that: "Subject to subsection (2), a health-warning shall be prominently displayed in all advertisement in the Islands concerning tobacco products."

Section (2) reads: "Subsection (1) does not apply to advertisements appearing in any written document published outside and imported into the Islands."

I read those two sections to point out that if we are to look at the Resolve section which asks that the promotion and advertisement of tobacco products be made a criminal offence, there are publications which are not imported for the purpose of advertising tobacco products, but because they are imported (and local people have no control over that), those publications have advertisements in them regarding tobacco products.

Some of those publications are publications which every single one of us in this Honourable House looks forward to reading because they are informative; such as, Time Magazine, Newsweek, et cetera. I wonder, if this Motion is passed with this wording, where would it put the importation of those publications from a legal standpoint? Would they have to be banned? There are other ways and means of these publications arriving in the Island—people may go to Miami or somewhere else, and whilst waiting on their flight, stop in a book store and pick up one of those publication. In any case, I am asking if someone would then be liable for prosecution (if the Motion is passed the way it is worded), if they are part and parcel of the importation of these publications that advertises tobacco products?

Similarly, there are hundreds of give-away items which people physically use all the time and are really happy that these items are being given away. There are hats, shirts, coasters, drink-stirrers, etcetera. Would we then be saying that the importation of all those items will have to stop and all that are being used now will have to be thrown away? Because in actual fact this would be, to my mind, promotion of these products.

I suspect that the tobacco industry, as they are used to the wars that have been waged against them, probably will find some smart ways to indicate their products without coming out and using a name. But that is certainly another matter. I just wanted to point out these areas, not to cause a problem with the intention of the Motion, but I think in order to achieve what is best in a practical fashion, and that these areas must be addressed.

If we are going to take the view that the things that I have just pointed out do not matter, then we are better off seeking to put to vote whether smoking should be allowed or not—simple as that. If an individual will retain the choice by knowledge whether he/she wants to smoke or not, then there are some physical problems which we have to wade through in order to make whatever is put into law practical to operate and to enforce. And that is basically what I have pointed out in my short delivery.

I trust that the Honourable Mover and others will not misinterpret my intentions here, but I think it is better for us to deal with it now, rather than having to deal with it later, by way of a myriad of complaints, then having to come back to the drawing board to reword legislation.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.27 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.44 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues, Private Member's Motion 19/94. The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I rise to give support to Private Member's Motion 19/94, No Smoking.

The concerns that I had about this Motion have been very well expressed by Fourth Elected Member for George Town, in that there are certain night clubs that we could possibly bring a burden upon if they have to provide enclosed places for smoking. If extractor fans are found that can do the job, then I feel that this would be much better.

In the Resolve section where we are asking for designated smoking areas, I feel cinemas should be completely deleted from this list and considered a completely non-smoking area. In a cinema it is quite impossible to provide an additional place for smokers. Even though I am a smoker, I am a considerate smoker, and I would never consider smoking in a cinema.

Listening to debate on this Motion, such as by Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, I guess that by the end of the debate we who are smokers will consider giving up this habit completely.

I would just like to commend the Mover and the Seconder for bringing a long overdue Motion to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to give my full support to Private Member's Motion 19/94, No Smoking, and I would like to congratulate the Mover and the Seconder for bringing this Motion to the House. I think all Honourable Members appreciate that the Mover, with his professional medical experience, has given this Motion from his heart and we should certainly all heed our Doctor's advice.

Our country is suffering from a severe amount of cancer, emphysema, and other diseases which are caused by smoking. Our children are being exposed to the second-hand smoke which, I understand, is equally as dangerous.

I listened carefully to what Fourth Elected Member for George Town had to say about the possible inconveniences that it may have, and I am sure that Government will take cognisance of these things before bringing it into effect. But I fully support that no cigarettes or tobacco products should be sold to anyone under the legal age. I have often felt that this has been a cause for smoking at such a young age.

So, with these words, I support the Motion and think it is very timely and I look forward to its implementation. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.
