We have taken this position conscious of the rising cost of living, but even more so, conscious of the contributions made by our older people, who are the principal beneficiaries of this assistance. There are some instances where the persons who receive such assistance have close relatives, often younger, who can afford to help and do not; though in most cases such persons do help. The Government's position is that while we try to get able relatives to help in cases of need, we do not intend to see old people in this community suffer for some basic necessity.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would ask the Honourable Minister if with this assistance comes any recommendation, or if the Government is in a position to see when this assistance is received, that the persons who receive the assistance still do not suffer? For example, in some cases what is recommended is some kind of dietary instructions to see that those persons, particularly the elderly ones at least meet the minimum monthly requirements of vitamins and calories that they need. So, I would like to ask the Honourable Minister if the Government is in a position to provide any of that kind of information.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, for many years now that kind of information has been available to older citizens. The Social Workers counsel any citizen with any particular needs and also they give them general counsel, dietary counsel.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In the answer given by the Honourable Minister he says that there are some instances where persons who receive such assistance have close relatives, often younger, who can afford to help and do not. I am wondering if there is a prevailing attitude which is very apparent if the minister might consider legislation to correct this situation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, in today's economy many reasons can be given why those who officials might say can afford to help parents or grandparents, but that is officials saying that—no one really knows the inner workings of a family. No I have not given any thought to any form of legislation but maybe the Opposition could bring a motion if they so suggest.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Minister say if in recent times there has been communication from the Department of Social Services to various persons who receive assistance querying whether they do, in fact, need it and, is it not a fact that in many instances in recent times assistance in very small amounts – $25, $50, and the like – has actually been stopped?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I understand from the Department that they sent out communication asking whether the recipients were still in need, asking that recipient to come forward for a re-evaluation.

This was not a policy of mine, neither did I know anything about the communication which went out until afterwards. I have given instructions that no further communications are to go out unless I first know about it.

Madam Speaker, I do understand when he asks about $25: whether the $25 assistance has been stopped. Various different sums are given for specific terms. A person might be working, have children, but does not make enough to cover their budgets. It might take $40 or it might take $25 for a period of time from the Social Services to assist such families. I understand that that runs for a period and then there is a re-evaluation process.

I understand, and I have had many complaints about this. In fact I have taken steps to inform the department that before any more persons are cut off, that the Ministry be notified before hand.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Minister, if I understand correctly, is saying that he is having re-evaluations done on this matter and it is possible then that some of these persons may again get the assistance that they were getting before. Is that correct?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Yes, Madam Speaker. As I said, the communication that went out was unknown to me and I have asked that re-evaluations be performed on these clients.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 171, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

(Deferred)

No. 171: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture to state: (a) how many applications have been received to date under the Government Low Income Housing Scheme; (b) how many have been approved; and (c) what percentage of guarantee has been required in each case.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

STANDING ORDER 23 (5)
DEFERMENT OF QUESTIONS NO. 171 & NO. 201

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I have to ask the House to, under the Standing Orders defer this question. I hope that I will have all the required information by Friday. In conjunction with the deferring of this question, also question 201 will be ready for tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: You are moving a bit too fast here, but under the circumstances I shall put the question that the answers to questions 171 and 201 be deferred until a later day in this sitting.

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. QUESTIONS NO. 171 AND NO. 201 DEFERRED TO A LATER SITTING.

QUESTION NO. 181

No. 181: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for External and Internal Affairs to state: (a) what is the present average daily cost to the country for upkeep of the Cuban refugees at Tent City; and (b) what has been the total cost since the influx of these people began a few months ago.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The present average daily cost per person to the country for the upkeep of the Cubans at Tent City is CI$6.14. This is based on expenditure from 1st August, to the 31st October, 1994. Total expenditure for the same period has been CI$1,401,472.62. This figure includes capital costs at the facility.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Member can state if the ancillary costs including transportation inter-island and outside security costs are factored into this daily cost as he has referred to in his answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, that figure has been factored in.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The time frame that has been covered here is from the 1st of August to the 31st October, 1994. The question I would like to ask the Member is if there were not costs prior to the August date and if these have been included, because as I recall, the great influx of Cuban nationals began in July, prior to August.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The influx of Cubans actually began around about the 1st of August and that was why that bench mark was chosen. But the costs from the first of January to 31st July were relatively small to the country and for information that figure was only $29,014.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, I hate to sound repetitious, but just for clarification, I wonder if the figures that the Honourable Member has given us, especially the larger figure, if he could say if that figure includes all costs or not?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, the figure I have given of $1,401,472.62 is the figure from the 1st of August to the 31st of October. If you add in the figure that I gave in the supplementary of $29,000, we come to a figure of $1,430,486.62.

But I would like to make this clear, this is to the 31st of October so November's figures are not yet included.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Member say exactly how many of the refugees there are on the Island?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
The figure that is normally used as the official figure is 1,174.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
Can the Honourable Member explain what he means when he said the figure that is normally used? Is this a definitive figure, an guesstimate or what is it?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
The number rose during the height of the influx to 1,183. Of that number nine were voluntarily repatriated to Cuba and that gave the figure of 1,174.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
Can the Honourable Member say whether these 1,174 are at this time present in the camp at Tent City?

The Speaker: We seem to have strayed somewhat from the cost of Cuban refugees and if the Honourable First Official Member—I think most people are concerned—wishes to make a statement and to answer that question he may do so.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
One cannot definitively say that there are 1,174 persons in Tent City at the moment. On any given day there will be a few who are at the hospital or may be out of the camp for some other reason. But that is the figure that is used for records.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. We will proceed to Other Business, the Report on the Appropriation (1995) Bill, 1994.
The Honourable Third Official Member.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

REPORT ON BILL

THE APPROPRIATION (1995) BILL, 1994

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I am to report that the Appropriation (1995) Bill, 1994 was considered by the Finance Committee of this honourable House and was passed without amendment.

The Speaker: I expect you want to move the Third Reading of the Bill, Third Official Member?

THIRD READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1995) BILL, 1994

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to move that the Appropriation (1995) Bill, 1994, be given a Third Reading and passed.

The Speaker: The question is that the Appropriation (1995) Bill, 1994, be given a Third Reading and Passed.
I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Third Reading and passed.

AGREED. THE APPROPRIATION (1995) BILL, 1994, PASSED.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 27/94

FAIR COMPETITION ACT/LAW

The Speaker: Other Business. Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 27/94, Fair Competition Act/Law...

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam speaker, on a matter of procedure.

Today is Wednesday and not Private Members' Motion day. Government does have Business, including a very much related matter of a tax bill. I am wondering why the diversion from what is set down in Standing Orders to have Government's Business dealt with and why the Private Members' Motions are put on today which is a complete change of procedure and no Minister of Government seems minded to move the suspension of Standing Orders to allow it to be done.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I am afraid you will have to ask the Chairman of the Business Committee, whom I believe is absent. The Business Committee has set the business of the Orders of Today.

However, if someone would like to move the suspension of Standing Orders...

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I move the suspension in order for Private Members' Business to take precedence over Government Business as the Bills are not yet ready for circulation.

The Speaker: I expect that the Honourable Minister means that the Bills, although they have been published have not come within the time frame for presentation.

The question is that Standing Order 14 be suspended in order that Private Members' Business be taken today, Wednesday, rather than Thursday.

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Orders are accordingly suspended.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 14 SUSPENDED TO ALLOW PRIVATE MEMBERS' BUSINESS.

The Speaker: We will proceed with Private Member's Motion No. 27/94.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town—

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: On a point of order. Since we have begun Private Members' Business, if this has cut the Opposition short, then they could proceed on any one that they are ready to move, if that will help them.

The Speaker: I am afraid that will have to be for the House to decide. But I have called on the First Elected Member for Bodden Town to move Private Member's Motion 27/94.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 27/94, standing in my name, entitled Fair Competition Act/Law which reads as follows:

“WHEREAS Caymanians in some businesses have been complaining about unfair competition from non-Caymanian elements;

“AND WHEREAS there is growing concern among many Caymanians providing tourist related services that unfair competition from non-Caymanian elements is detrimental to Caymanians;

“AND WHEREAS there is a need for some form of legislation which protects consumers from misleading advertising and anti-competition practices;

“AND WHEREAS a Fair Competition Law will encourage businesses to exercise care and responsibility in how they promote and sell goods and services;

“BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that government explore the possibility of establishing some form of legislation which promotes Fair Competition;

“AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED that the government consider setting up a Fair Trading Commission to complement such Fair Competition legislation.”

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 27/94, having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As I rise to speak to this request before this Honourable House, I am reminded of a quotation given by the late Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, Professor Emeritus and Head of Morehouse College and also for many years Chairman of the Atlanta Board of Education when he said: "If you are ignorant the world is going to cheat you; if you are weak the world is going to kick you; and if you are a coward the world is going to keep you running."

There is more than a little relevance in the appropriateness of that comment to this motion and the efforts taken by those of us who see the need for the Government to establish what we are asking for.

On the first occasion when this request was made, listening to the debate and judging by the fact that the Government at that time borrowed the information which we had, on what we were asking about, the establishment of a Fair Trade Commission and a Fair Competition Act, it seems reasonable to remark that those persons who spoke against the motion spoke from the disadvantage of not being knowledgeable about what we were requesting.

Permit me to go a little into the history of our efforts. When we decided that we were going to bring this motion to Parliament, the Seconder and I wrote to the Chamber of Commerce on the 12th of January, 1994, explaining to them what we were trying to do and in general expressed our willingness to discuss with them our motion and the differences our motion had with the Better Business Council which is an adjunct of the Chamber.

At that time we received communication from the Chamber of Commerce dated 21st January, 1994, in which they explained the position of their Better Business Council and offered, and I quote: "We offer our wholehearted support for your interest in maintaining business and integrity and would very much encourage you to discuss with us the matter."

Subsequent to that, we received invitation by telephone to sit down with the Chamber of Commerce, but had to demur because we wrote to the Chamber of Commerce informing that we were not in a position since the Speaker had not approved our motion and protocol, and respect being what it is, we were reluctant to publicly discuss a matter which was awaiting the Chair's decision regarding its acceptance or nonacceptance. Consequently we were unable to discuss with the Chamber of Commerce the merits of what we were seeking prior to the motion coming to the Parliament.

I am sure I speak for other Members supporting the Motion. Therefore I am very surprised that after the Motion came to Parliament and was debated, that I should read in a subsequent issue of the Caymanian Compass in a column entitled 'Views from the Chamber', that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, and I (who supported the motion), were castigated by the insinuations that we were trying to introduce socialistic legislation. The column went on to suggest that there was no such legislation in the United Kingdom, even although in support of the Motion I had drawn reference to the Jamaican Fair Trade Commission and to the Fair Competition Act of Canada and to the Australian Fair Trade Practices Act, and I said that I knew of the existence in the United Kingdom of the Fair Trade Practices Act and some complementary legislation.

Be that as it may, I did not wish to enter into any open quarrel with the Chamber of Commerce as I respect the President and I also respect the work that the Chamber of Commerce is trying to do. I put down the column to a misunderstanding which I shall attempt to clear up in the course of today's debate.

That, in a nutshell, is the history of the difficulty that we had. So, the question can be asked: What is a Fair Competition Act, and what does a Fair Trading Commission do?

A Fair Competition Act has as its essence the provision of fair, reasonable, amicable and well-accepted trade practices and behaviours regarding the sale, disposition, return of goods, warranties, contracts, provision of services, et cetera.

In some industrialised countries, such as the United States, there is no single act which is so broad that it covers all of the practices, trades and services offered. Consequently, in the United States, we have the Federal Communications Commission, which seeks to regulate what goes on in the media (radio, television, advertising industry). We have the Securities and Exchange Commissions which seek to regulate what goes on in banking, trust and saving and loan associations. We have the Federal Deposit Insurance Commission (FDIC) which seeks to regulate what goes on in the Insurance Industry and – I could go on. Suffice it to say that those are examples rather than an exhaustive list.

Now, what is Government's role? Government's role is that of being the regulatory agency – of seeing that generally those participating are protected – the seller as much as the buyer.

The United Kingdom (to cite a reference to that since that is usually the jurisdiction which sets our precedents), like the United States, has myriads of organisations which cover these kinds of practices and acts. With the Chair's permission, I would just like to briefly refer to a text called The Company Administration Handbook, the seventh edition, edited by Derrick Beatty. I would like to read what it says in chapter 14, which deals with fair trading, under the subtitle 'Restrictive Trade Practices' authored by Simon Lofthaus: "Before the war, monopolies and other restrictive trade practices were not just tolerated but often encouraged as a means of protecting industry and consequently employment. Later a different philosophy developed to the effect that an economy is stimulated better by competition than by protectionism. Parliament, therefore, has taken action to prohibit a wide range of restrictive or collusive practices and to curtail monopolies and mergers."

Later it goes on to list the relevant legislation available in the United Kingdom in the promotion of Fair Trade and Fair Competition including the setting up of a Fair Trade Commission.

Some of these I will pass over. Permit me to list what I consider the most relevant and appropriate ones to our motion at this time: The Fair Trading Act of 1973. I will invite the Serjeant to lay it on the Table.

Then we have the Restrictive Trade Practices Act of 1976; and the Competition Act of 1980. Of special interest is the section dealing with civil law statutes, the Misrepresentation Act of 1967; the Sale of Goods Act of 1979; the Supply of Goods and Services Act of 1982; the Unfair Contract Terms Act of 1977.

Before I leave this reference, let me say that it was under Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, and "Thatcherism," that these kinds of restrictive trade practices were obliterated. In promoting "Thatcherism," Margaret Thatcher saw fit to launch a concerted assault on these kinds of restrictive and unfair acts of competition so as to promote not only the sale of British goods internationally, but so as to promote the sale of British goods locally and to educate and protect both consumer and supplier.

We are not advocating a myriad of such acts or laws at this time. Indeed, our jurisdiction is sufficiently small as to be covered by a single act or law. Let us then return to what we would like to see this act or law covering.

First of all, why is it necessary? It is necessary because there has to be some form of legal mechanism which spells out the parameters, brings realisation to the expectation of both consumers and suppliers and states categorically and unequivocally the steps which are to be taken by a disgruntled consumer against someone who supplies shoddily, or who persists in false advertising, misleading advertising or who does not provide the services for which an agreement and contract was made.

Any fool on a galloping horse would understand that the Better Business Council of the Chamber of Commerce does not constitute the legal entity which would offer the necessary protection to disgruntled parties in that case.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Hear, hear!

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would shatter that entity by posing this question: What can the Better Business Council do against an individual member of the Chamber of Commerce complaining against a business, company or corporation who is also a member, short of holding their hands and praying?

What we are seeking is legislation or directives which state, "Mr. "X", we have investigated and examined your complaints and believe there are grounds for you to take this matter to the next stage which is to the courts to have them finally rule as to what is the position." So, this idea is commonsensical and practical and, indeed not farfetched or some pipe dream as some people would make it out to be.

The act would be founded upon the conviction that allowing full play to competition in the market will result in the widest range of benefits for all concerned. For consumers these should include the knowledge that they can buy and deal in quality products and services and give them an increased range of choices and the best possible prices. Let me say in all candour that this request is coming to the parliament not out of any complaints received against the providers of goods. When I deal with the providers of services, I am afraid that I cannot be as definitive.

However, it is a wise person who sees the need for something long before it reaches a crisis proportion. That is, we should not wait until we get a myriad of these complaints and deal with the matter in an ex post facto manner, but have in place ready and waiting as and when they arrive. If they never arrive, maybe that will be all the better, but we should not wait until we begin to get—and we are going to because as we look around there are more and more stores offering different goods opening by the day, the service industry is getting more sophisticated—and there is bound to be disgruntlement at some stage.

So, I should think that we would be better prepared if we consider this now. It would give us time to, at our leisure when there is no sense of urgency, to review the relevant legislation and set in place something which we think would be suitable to our jurisdiction.

This act or law would cover a number of business practices detrimental to consumers. Double ticketing: sometimes when we shop we see one item with two or more tickets. What is the correct price? Often the prices vary. What is the correct price? This act would ensure that we could not be charged the highest price on the tickets displayed.

Tie-selling: sometimes in order to purchase something that you need you have to purchase something which you do not want or in many cases do not even need. This is the kind of practice this legislation would cover.

Price fixing: People getting together and saying: "You and I are the only two people who have this, let us agree that we sell it at this price." These are the kinds of things that I am talking about.

Misleading advertising: "If you buy this toothpaste I guarantee that your teeth will be as white as the driven snow." Or, "If you use this deodorant, I guarantee you will not have any problems no matter how profusely you perspire", when probably it is no more than a solution of sodium dried out or dissolved in a little water. These are the kinds of things that we are talking about that the consumer will be protected against.

Then, on the other hand, the supplier will have clear cut guidelines as to his or her obligation so that when you return with a warranty someone cannot use seven-eighths of the product and then bring in back and tell you it was not any good, that you have to give them a new one or something else. Or they could not bring the product back when it says that the load capacity is so and so, and they used it doubling the capacity and ruining it.

I want to project that it is not by any means one-sided legislation. It protects the supplier as much as it protects the consumer. Above all, it would clearly and concisely lay out the exact procedure that one has to take in the event of a grouse or complaint.

I believe that it is worthwhile considering the establishment of this. To take the argument in a slightly different direction, as we travel around we are bombarded by complaints, by concerns expressed from Caymanian entrepreneurs and investors about the problems that they encounter, especially regarding competition from non-Caymanian elements. We have it in every walk of life – in the taxi business, the omnibus business, in the provision of services offered by the Watersports Operators, and water-sports in all of its forms.

Recently I was informed by a young entrepreneur in a water-sport business of some of the problems that he is experiencing in regard to what are unfair and monopolistic practices on the part of larger established entities that are not Caymanian owned. I understand that we are a free enterprise system, but there should be no reason why a young entrepreneur is run rough-shod out of something that he legitimately wants to get into by someone who has the ability to expand, and expand, and expand – spread their tentacles like an octopus all over the place. I say that it is incumbent upon the Government to set up some guidelines to regulate, to enable a young entrepreneur, a young Caymanian storekeeper to be able to get a little slice of the cake and not to be eaten up by some big guy on the block who bullies his way around.

Having the kind of legislation in place before we resort to litigation, the commission would be in a position to examine complaints, to examine the claims so that an individual company or corporation would come to an established commission which would have a director (or whatever we would wish to call it), and other members.

The Fair Trading Commission in the United Kingdom is set up in such a way that those persons who are members of the Commission have expertise in certain areas. Some of the members are people with a legal background, others are persons who come from business and industrial backgrounds who are knowledgeable of business and industrial practices.

This is done so that the decisions, investigations and examinations are carried out by thoroughly competent and experienced persons so that it eliminates the possibility of disgruntlement when a decision has been handed down. A person cannot easily say that he does not accept that decision because the problem was investigated by people who had no expertise in that area of business, industry or services, and cannot, therefore, tell him that he has no claim—or the obverse could be the case, they could not say they had a claim against him.

The Head of the commission in the United Kingdom (and in the Jamaican and Australian jurisdictions) is a person provided under statute and usually is the person who directly communicates and reports to the Minister in charge of trade, industry or whatever the particular service might be. The other members of the Board in the instances I have cited are not salaried members, but provide their time on a voluntary basis such as is done in the case of boards that we have set up now.

When a claim is investigated and found to be justified, in the Jamaican case it will seek to have the offending business or individual redress the practice in question. I want to stress that the main objective is not to flood the courts with litigation: what is usually recommended is that the perpetrator redresses what he/she or the company is doing wrong. If this is not done, the Commission will refer the case to a High Court which will impose a requisite penalty. Penalties are graduated in scales regarding whether it is an individual – which would be a lesser penalty. If it is a corporation, the penalty would be significantly higher.

For instance, if businesses agree to fix prices at a low level, this might well seem to serve the interests of the consumer. However, businesses which carry out these kinds of practices may benefit in the short term because of an increase in sales, or because after the prices of the goods at an artificially low level have been sold out, it then gives them the opportunity to introduce similar goods at a higher price thereby ensuring that they have captured the market.

Sometimes we see them advertise that they are selling a product at a certain price, which will 'just be sold out' when you inquire. They will then recommend something else, the only difference being that it costs about 50% more, but it is just as good. In these kinds of cases, what will happen is that the Fair Trading Commission, when they find justification, will say, "We order that you desist from these practices because we consider this to be an unfair business practice."

Similarly, the Commission will investigate cases of false or misleading advertising. Allow me to draw reference to a case that I think is current and relevant now. Those people who subscribe to the television station here were not told at the beginning, when they signed their initial contract, that when the licensed franchise from the Government came on line that a portion of their bill would have to go towards paying this franchise fee.

So, I am saying that we have a case of an unfair business practice right now, where subscribers to the television station here have to pay a portion of the franchise fee. The question was brought to this Parliament and the Minister under whom that falls, said that that is not a right practice: the television station should not maintain that. But I see it included in my current bill. If we had a Fair Trading Commission that would be an instance where the Commission would be requested to investigate and make a finding.

So, I say that to say that this is not any pie-in-the-sky legislation. This has real life, down to earth, practical consequences with how we live and conduct ourselves in this society as we go about buying and selling and providing goods and services.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, would you take a suspension at this time?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Certainly, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12 NOON

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.21 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing the debate.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the break I was outlining some functions of the Commission.

Now, I would like to continue by citing from the Jamaican Fair Competition Act, 1993, how their Commission is set up and briefly discuss its functions.

The Fair Competition Act 1993 says: "The functions of the Commission shall be –

“(a) to Carry out, on its own initiative or at the request of any person such investigations in relation to the conduct of business in Jamaica as will enable it to determine whether any enterprise is engaging in business practices in contravention of this Act and the extent of such practices;

“(b) to carry out such other investigations as may be requested by the Minister or as it may consider necessary or desirable in connection with matters falling within the provisions of this Act.”

And it goes on to say: “It shall be the duty of the Commission (a) to make available – (i) to persons engaged in business, general information with respect to their rights and obligations under this Act; (ii) for the guidance of consumers, general information with respect to the rights and obligations of persons under this Act affecting the interests of consumers;

“(b) to undertake studies and publish reports and information regarding matters affecting the interests of consumers;

“(c) to cooperate with and assist any association or body of persons in developing and promoting the observance of standards of conduct for the purpose of ensuring compliance with the provisions of this Act.”

Madam Speaker, permit me to interject at this point that all of these functions of the Commission are complementary to the work done by the Chamber of Commerce as there are Chambers of Commerce in Jamaica as there are in all of these other jurisdictions which I previously cited.

So, I emphasise that the Fair Competition Act and the establishment of a Fair Trading Commission does not in any way obviate the need for the establishment of a Chamber of Commerce. What it does is, it provides a legal channel with clearly spelled out steps as to the obligations and consequences for not abiding by those obligations.

Permit me to go on to section 7: “(1) For the purposes of carrying out its functions under this Act, the Commission is hereby empowered to –

- a) summon and examine witnesses;
- b) call for and examine documents;
- c) administer oaths;
- d) require that any document submitted to the Commission be verified by affidavit;
- e) adjourn any investigation from time to time.”

It goes on to say: “(2) The Commission may hear orally any person who, in its opinion will be affected by an investigation under this Act and shall so hear the person if the person has made a written request for hearing...”

“The Commission may also require a person engaged in business or trade or such other person as the Commission considers appropriate, to state such facts concerning goods manufactured, produced or supplied by him or services supplied by him as the Commission may think necessary to determine whether the conduct of the business in relation to the goods or services constitutes an uncompetitive practice.”

A significant point in my opinion.

“Hearings of the Commission shall take place in public but the Commission may, whenever the circumstances so warrant, conduct a hearing in private.”

Madam Speaker, having perused the legislation which I have quoted from the various jurisdictions, I have a preference for the Jamaican Act because it is simple and easy to follow in its approach and also because it is culturally relevant. It is also comparatively speaking, relatively new, having only been enacted in 1993.

On occasion I also called and spoke to the Director of the Fair Trading Commission as to some problems encountered and asked about some pitfalls experienced and how they might be alleviated. I was informed that the work of the Fair Trading Commission is especially important at this time of the year when people do a lot of shopping. I was informed that the complaints and experiences are routine enough and that there is no significant reason why such legislation could not be beneficial to a jurisdiction such as ours.

I believe that in the introduction I have made the point, I have clarified the position of those of us supporting the legislation. I have said and shown how and why we think it is relevant.

And so, Madam Speaker, at this juncture I can only rest my case. But before doing so, I would ask that Honourable Members, particularly the Government, consider the efficacy and the relevance of this kind of legislation.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, trade and commerce falls under the responsibility of the Minister for Tourism who is absent this morning because of a Tourism marketing meeting going on in Cayman. Therefore, I am answering on behalf of Government.

There are times when differences must be put aside for the national good and the Government needs no convincing as to the problems experienced by Caymanian entrepreneurs. The Government is on all fours with the Opposition on this matter.

[applause from across the floor]

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: I hope that all of us realise that the requirements put forward by the Mover for a Fair Trading Commission will no doubt create a bureaucracy in the country, and I do not know how we can limit such a bureaucracy. Nevertheless, it is something that needs to be dealt with.

Over my ten years in this House I have had to deal with many complaints from persons affected by unfair competition and bad business practices by the stronger in our country – sometimes unfair competition by our own local people, most times by outside persons.

Many times the unfair competition comes because of an outside person having the money and can put it in the hand of a Caymanian and he then gets into the business with foreign money and, of course, the person who has little resources gets swamped.

There is another unhealthy movement in this country – and I am speaking personally here now. What I see happening is: Certain persons have attained Cay-manian status lately who have millions [of dollars] and we do not know where they got it from; but they are moving hand over fist in business. If it was business that nobody was already in, it would be a healthy thing, but it is business that some Caymanians with very little resources, who work very hard together, sometimes as a family, are in and are getting trampled.

It is not an easy thing and I sympathise. In fact, if you go back in the Hansards you will find where many of my speeches in this House were centred round this same situation. This is not a new thing, creeping up here of late. It is a sad state of affairs when greed takes over to the extent that I see it taking over in this country. Some people just do not get satisfied with a little bit. They want the whole thing. They expect that they alone must be able to live.

I have a small business, Madam Speaker, and you would be surprised at the sort of garbage that has been put out in opposition to my business – all sorts of rumours. I thank God that my wife and I have good enough names that we can borrow [money] and I thank God that he is blessing my business and that we can expand. That is another problem. As soon as someone is seen expanding a business, one will hear that it is gotten in the wrong way.

People must be fair. Everybody needs to live. But it seems like, in this country, enough is not enough. We are not thankful to Almighty God for the blessings that he has bestowed upon this country.

Today, if one puts up a boutique, someone else must put up a boutique too. If one puts up a shoe shop, somebody has to put one up too. This little country can only service so many businesses. While we must remain a free enterprise country, there has to be some understanding out there that all those people who went to college and got their business degrees, that only so many people can service so much business. As far as I am concerned, personally, it is an unhealthy state of affairs.

The Mover mentioned the North Sound business – he did not specifically mention the North Sound, but he mentioned the water sports business. What comes to my mind is the North Sound business. That is a business that I believe I can say that I grew up with because my stepfather was in that business from the time that I can remember.

What is happening to many of the small boat operators in West Bay? Big business is coming in, finding somebody to grab hold of. That is one instance. The other instance is that the previous Protection Board gave them status or permanent residency with the right to work. They are the ones perpetrating in this country much of the unhealthy situations that we have.

If anybody thinks that McKeeva sits on any board, and is getting anything from anybody who recently came into this country overnight, they are making a big mistake. The only thing I ever got free in life was when mission boxes were sent from the United States to the church to Reverend Ruth Bowman. I was about 10 years old then – that is about 30 years ago. I was one of those who benefited from those mission boxes. Since that time

I have had to work. Everything we have, we (my wife and I) have worked for and pay back [money] to the bank.

I believe that we are in the same situation as many other Caymanian entrepreneurs. We work hard for what we have, but we find that some of our people are led astray. I do not want to call them fools, because they are making some money out of it. You can hardly blame them to an extent, but that is why we have to put mechanisms in place. In many instances they only own paper. Any business I have, I am the majority shareholder and the bank knows where the money comes from. That is why I support a Register of Interests. That is why I asked in 1989 for a Code of Ethics because the first ones to get blamed are the legislators and I believe that we should be open to the world. If we have nothing to hide, then what is public should be public.

As I said, I was on all fours with the Opposition on this Motion. For too long we have sat back and allowed certain people to come in and grab a hold of this country to the detriment of our small business operators. There is no reason for this to continue. I believe that Government, with as little bureaucracy as possible, should set up this legislation for fair competition. As far as a Fair Trading Commission, I believe that that is an onerous mechanism, but I believe that it is something that is worthwhile looking at even if we do it on a very small scale.

I saw some legislation – I do not know whether it was Jamaican, European, or Australian legislation, but certainly it was a large piece of legal work. I am one of those people who likes to get things done quickly, and where things should be said in two lines – and I am probably not the one to say it because I take 10 minutes sometimes to say what I should say in five – but one line sometimes is better understood by the public than large written documents that no one understands.

So I would hope that when Government gets to the point where this can be looked at, something that will suit the Cayman Islands can be put together.

I agree with the Opposition on this: there is too much unfairness out there, sometimes created by our own people and a lot of times created by outside money and therefore, a vast number of Caymanians suffer as in the North Sound business.

We, on this side, support the resolution.

The Speaker: Perhaps this would be an opportune time to suspend for lunch. Proceedings will be suspended until 2.15.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.25 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion 27/94.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As the seconder of this Motion, I am pleased to rise in support of it. I am also very happy to see that the Government in this instance has accepted one of many of the good, sound, well-considered motions that have been brought to this House by the Opposition.

I certainly hope, in so doing, that they will not be accused by the Chamber of Commerce as taking a socialistic approach or that the country is becoming socialist by undertaking to deal with this matter of fair competition through legislation and within the legislation the appropriate body with which to manage it.

I think my colleague, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, did a very scholarly job at explaining what a Fair Competition Act is about and also in showing how it can, and does apply to the Cayman Islands situation. I would certainly not attempt to add to the areas, which he has covered so well. However, there are some points that I would like to speak on.

Unlike what appears to have been the case in the past, where persons seem to have been misguided into believing that this legislation was something, which would hinder the free enterprise system. It is something that supports that and in effect sees to it by legislation that one of the most vital elements of the free enterprise system, that is competition, is present in proper form. In fact, a Fair Competition Law, in its fundamental purpose, is to guarantee competition—perhaps in some instances even created through aspects of such legislation.

In legislation such as this, both the consumer and the business sector are covered and are given guidelines and parameters in which to operate. I submit that competition is the best possible condition for both consumers and businesses. When there is competition, fair competition, prices are affected and in the process of competing one with the other—those persons who sell goods or services—one tends to find the best price emerging. So, the consumer is helped.

Where there is fair competition, businesses tend to look at providing or creating better products from the point of view that the better product or service will attract the consumer to them rather than to their competition. So, in any real life scenario, those of us who believe in the free enterprise system know that it works best where there is competition and, indeed, strong competition. Where there is a lot of competition, one is not likely to find large numbers of monopolies, though monopolies can exist in societies and commercial communities where there is competition.

Some areas of goods and services naturally lend themselves to such a situation. On the Caymanian scene we have the telephone service and the electricity service. These, for all practical purposes are monopolies.

In the other areas of business in this community, competition does have a role to play. I would venture a guess that if there were alternate means for telephone and electrical services in these Islands, one would immediately see certain adjustments in prices.

If there is a case of no competition, consumers immediately are at a disadvantage. Monopolies which can sprout up hinder growth often times, quality development.

As has been said by the Mover of this Motion, this can only really come about through law. Within this law there has to be someone appointed under the law to oversee the carrying out of the various provisions of the law. This is through a commission, as in the case cited.

The Minister replying on behalf of Government pointed out that in accepting this, one had to become aware that there is bound to be a bureaucracy set up. One could easily get the impression that he was thinking of this being something large and un-wieldy.

However, this need not be the case for, surely, there are instances in this country where an inspectorate is really vested in one individual. So it is not necessarily inconceivable that we could not have the terminology "commission", but to start off it could be so vested in one individual until such time as one would increase that number. I would personally think of it as being two to three persons who, I believe, would clearly have enough business to attend to, to occupy their time.

Which of the portfolios this would be set up under is to be decided. I can think of the Ministry for Finance and Development as one that is related to it and would certainly be the portfolio that deals with trade. So that would be a matter to be decided. I think it could be handled in a manner so that with a minimum of personnel this business of monitoring fair competition in the islands could be undertaken.

I think it would be vested with the power to investigate, to advise, to undertake certain studies and publish reports. This would be some of the natural functions expected of such a commission. Of course it would need to have powers with which it they could carry out the business as might be provided for it to do.

We should not believe that within the Cayman Islands there are not many instances of non-competitive practices in everyday businesses, for, indeed, there are. I also believe that many of us as legislators hear of these instances from time to time and really, except where one in an informal way might try to negotiate a situation on behalf of someone or some business, there is no law which gives the means by which this can be done.

So, it is necessary and it has been long coming. I am heartened to believe that now the time has actually arrived when something will be done about it.

Where fair competition is not in place, one can find fixing of prices, both in purchasing and in selling. It is possible that persons can control the goods they sell, or the production of what they make, or, for that matter, their technical expertise where they can unreasonably cause prices to rise.

We know that there are certain technical fields here in the Cayman Islands where there is little competition. And although people would say that the Cayman Islands is a very small society not doing a lot of business, there are certain areas we can think – the field of architecture, surveying, quantity surveying – where (and I am not for one moment saying that this is being done) it is conceivable that having a limited amount of persons they could make the price of their services over and above what is a reasonable price. So, where there is competition, even in areas like this, the consumer ultimately gets the benefit of that.

Another area where I think a law guaranteeing fair competition should cover is that of tendering. The tendering would be an area that needs to be looked at very carefully – tendering in the private sector and tendering with Government, alike, although I believe that, generally speaking, Government does go the extra steps to see that the jobs are properly tendered and that those persons who would qualify are given the opportunity of doing so.

In this particular area in this community, I would like to see instituted, in Government at least (and I can see nothing wrong with extending it through a fair competition law to the private sector), where the public has knowledge of the bids of each bidder on a particular job. I see nothing wrong with shedding that sort of light on situations where bids are handled, particularly in Government, where accusations are ever present about how things are being handled. It would make a whole lot of difference and it would not allow a bidder to come to the public and say that my bid was this, or that there were only a few thousand dollars difference, et cetera; it would all be there for everyone to see. So, I think this is one area where this law could, and should, touch to make sure that everyone plays on an even playing field.

This law would hinder wholesalers from selling the same goods to people who are in the same resale business at different prices for whatever reasons. It is an area where a wholesaler could affect the prices of goods. Certainly, if you have companies A, B, and C buying from wholesaler X, it is possible that by varying the prices of goods (the same goods that the three are selling) it could cause the company that is getting the best price at the wholesale point to outsell, or give a better advantage over the one who did not. This type of legislation looks at those types of conditions.

I have heard various stories about suppliers here on the Island where by an informal, unwritten contract they get together to sell a particular type of goods or service and they agree to sell at a particular price. I have often wondered why is it, in this country, particularly in the food supply enterprises, one can go to one, two, three or four, and see prices on a particular item almost identical (and in many instances identical) for different prices. It surely cannot be, even if they bought from the same suppliers in the United States, that they have to sell that item for the very same price to make the same amount of profit and meet the same overhead and all the other factors that go into pricing. It could not possibly be that in these Islands.

I have wondered how close an arrangement do many businesses in this country have to reflect almost the same price. Certainly, where a consumer believes this might be the case, the Commission would be able to investigate and make a report on such areas. It is possible where there is no legislation in place to regulate it that businesses can get together and say, "Look, I need to sell my particular goods at this price. Why don't we all make this arrangement that we sell at the same price and we will all make money?"

It is conceivable, and it should not be, because competition is being restricted and prevented. It is affecting the supply of goods and services, thus affecting the consumer being able to get a better deal.

We have various businesses in this country, some larger than others, and certain areas where one can hardly afford. We have building materials, including cement, which is a vital product in this country. We have food supply in all its various shapes and forms, and the fact that we do not produce most (if not all) of these items ourselves (locally), makes the need for control even greater.

Surely, where we can in any way help to minimise the amount of hard currency which leaves this country to purchase goods abroad, and where we can have goods coming back to this Island being sold by the merchants of this country, to benefit themselves and to benefit the consumers of those goods, then that is surely something to be desired.

I think, as was mentioned by the Minister answering for Government, there are many instances of unfair competition in this country from persons overseas – persons having access to large capital that is not available to the local person who is struggling to make it in the business world. It is possible that there is unfair competition there – whether it should be that the person with access to large amounts of capital can buy quantities of goods to the extent that the suppliers overseas may not want to deal with the smaller man, or whether he can buy such quantities and even if it spoils he can outsell the other person. All of these are real life situations and I have heard some stories about this.

One of the areas that has been cited is one of the Aqua Sports industry. If one thinks of that, while I think in this country we offer one of the best services in this field, the number of Caymanian people who are really the beneficiaries of this are very limited in number. The statistics will show us that that is one of the areas of commerce in this country that realises some of the largest amounts of business.

So, with the right law in hand, the Government would be in a position, would be empowered to look at these various situations about which I am sure they have complaints as well.

This law, while it may be covered in other areas as well, such a law would not allow, for example, a shipping company operating in this country to charge a given business say $3,000 for bringing a container to Cayman. Where it might be bringing a container for itself, it may charge $1,000. Right away one would see that Customs must be losing money that way and it is unfair since the person who is paying $3,000 has to immediately have a higher overhead than the other person who is charging himself $1,000.

There are so many areas that one could look at under this particular law to see where problems may exist in reality and be able to correct them.

I believe that we have made a positive step forward today in the Government's acceptance of this Motion asking for legislation for a Fair Competition Law, thereby setting up a commission to carry out the provisions of the law. I believe that when the community on a whole knows that this has happened, and realises fully the good that this can do, they will be pleased about it and we should see some positive changes in correcting certain negative conditions which now exist.

I am pleased to give this Motion my full support.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson-Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I guess I will be termed the 'pin to break the balloon' in that I am not going to support this Law. Perhaps you will hear it is because I have a building supply business. Personally, I have a few concerns. I took some time during lunch and spoke to business people, mostly members of the Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon that they were holding, to know how to vote for this law because I was not sure. When I cast my vote here in this honourable House, I am not casting how I feel, but I try to wear the cap for my constituents and carry out their wishes.

Most of the people against this feel that we are creating another bureaucracy. When we were campaigning, the National Team said that we would cut back on bureaucracy and here, if this passes, we are creating more bureaucracy. It is talking about setting up a commission. Does this mean that we will have something comparable to the Trade and Labour Office, which already exists? That costs almost $1 million a year to operate? Or does this mean that we will have to hire more people?

It was not explained by the Mover how this commission would operate. I would like if he would outline this in great detail because on the proposal it says that Government consider setting up a Fair Trading Commission. If we vote for this, then we are considering it and will set it up. But, I am not sure how this would work, with five or six people.

The Mover mentioned that it would do studies and reports. We have an Economic and Statistics Unit and I feel that they should be conducting studies and reports if necessary.

He also spoke about fixing prices and about prices to rise and that this should be considered. I believe that Cayman is now very competitive. We have a business community that I would like to think is a pioneering community developed around capitalism and when I look at this law, I can only consider it a socialist law.

Now, you will hear that that is what the Chamber of Commerce says, but only one person mentioned that today. I, personally, can see that this is what is being created. I would like to ask, Where do we draw the line, if this happens?

When we talk about the increase in the costs of doing business in these Islands, with the Pension Law coming in place, with the Health Insurance Law and with Immigration and Labour to move in and to inspect books in the private sector in businesses; does this mean that we will have to hire someone just to deal with deductions for pensions and health insurance, to answer questions, to share prices? Where do we draw the line?

We hear about free enterprise. People can price their goods. At least in our business we have never gone from competitor to competitor to see what they are selling their goods for. We purchase the goods that we think our customers would like to have and we price them according to what it costs to purchase them including freight and duty and all the other costs, with a reasonable profit involved

I feel very grateful to the public for the support that they have given to our family business for the last 44 years. If we had not been pricing our goods according to what it costs, I do not think that we would have been in business for 44 years.

About Government going in and fixing prices, this is very dangerous.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson-Murphy: [addressing voice across the floor] Yes, Madam Speaker, I think I heard the gentleman talk about fixing prices...

We have a small population and I go to a lot of trade shows, but when we go to purchase something, sometimes we may have to overextend ourselves because of the small volume that we are purchasing. If we have a commission that considers fixing prices, if I buy it for $6.00 and my competitor buys it for $8.00, does that mean that my competitor has to sell it for $6.00, if the prices are fixed. These are things that we need to look at.

Two Members who spoke previously spoke about the little man. I agree that we have a lot of small businesses and they need help. They are undercapitalised. Many of them do not realise what it takes to operate a business. I believe there is help, there is an arm of the Chamber of Commerce set up where they have seminars to help with bookkeeping and projections and to help them generally in doing business here in Cayman.

When other Members talk about large amounts of capital that come from certain individuals overseas and put the little man out of business, I understand and I am sympathetic to those people. However, it is a reality of life. We could talk about people being hungry, not everybody has enough to eat. We try to help them and we have compassion, but that is life. About the little man not competing with the big man, again, that is a reality.

I feel that if the Better Business Bureau that is set up by the Chamber of Commerce—and this was set up about four years ago when Mr. Norman Bodden's Portfolio was in charge of Trade—and I was President of the Chamber of Commerce), we talked about some of the practices and false advertising and so forth that was taking place and there was representation to Mr. Bodden about having some type of consumer protection put in place. He felt that the Bureau should have a chance to be set up to see if it would work, but he did not feel that legislation was necessary. I still feel so today. I believe that more bureaucracy is going to be put forward. We have the Trade and Business Licence Law. Maybe this should be revised. We also have the Immigration Law, our Immigration Department.

Let us take one of the complaints, for instance, that I hear very often from some of the smaller merchants in town. On a Saturday morning you drive along Shedden Road by George Town proper, and you see individuals under a piece of canopy with sheets, towels, clothes—all new items, not used—with a sign saying "Garage Sale". These are individuals with no Trade and Business Licence, no employees, no overhead and yet people in the enforcement section of the Immigration Department just drive by and do nothing about it.

We have Laws at present which can prevent this type of activity, as well as the activity of travelling salesmen who we hear of so often, where sales people come from the United States, go from door to door without a Trade and Business Licence and sell items to people in the hotel/restaurant business. They take orders, leave with the orders and that money leaves and yet when these people come in the Immigration Department does not try to determine if they are salespeople. Government is losing revenue.

The laws are in place. All they need to do is to carry out those laws and here we are creating more laws that are not going to be enforced.

I think we should go back and take a look at the Trade and Business Licence Law. We hear about fronting. Let us determine what the fronting is, try to come to some agreement to see how this can be avoided and put it into the law.

I cannot see how this Fair Trading Commission would not create more problems such as more bureaucracy, more laws, and then the laws are not being enforced. There is no point in us having laws if they are not enforced. We as legislators pass laws, and it does not make sense if they are not carried out.

I asked members of the Better Business Bureau if they need legal help from Government in dealing with their complaints. There might have been one instance where they felt that they needed more teeth in the law, but they also felt that for most of the businesses that belong to the Chamber of Commerce they can take these complaints to the Complaints Committee which tries to hear both sides and come to an amicable agreement where both parties involved are satisfied.

One case was mentioned by the Mover of the television station adding an extra charge for cable services and blaming the Government for granting the licence. This licence falls under the Honourable Chief Secretary and I believe that a question was brought here addressed to him in that regard and I feel he is responsible enough to contact the cable company explaining to them that that charge should have been included when they were preparing their bills or their costing, but do not just collect $3.00 or $4.00. I have not seen a bill for this added charge, I have only heard it mentioned here on the floor of this House.

I believe that it is his duty to contact them and protect the individuals who have been charged. If they want to increase their charge perhaps they can do it at the beginning of the new year, but do not try to put the blame on the Government. I believe that the Member responsible will take care of this.

If the present laws are enforced then this law is not needed, further bureaucracy will not be created. We have a legal system that is open to all people living in these islands and if the individual affected by the false advertising does not feel that it is being addressed by the Chamber of Commerce, or that he is not getting help from his representatives, then let it go to court. That is why we have a legal system.

I cannot support setting up a Trade commission and passing fair competition legislation because I do not believe it is in the best interests of these islands.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Private Member's Motion No. 27/94, the Fair Competition Act or Law is the Motion that we are now debating. I rise to give my full support to this motion and in so doing to categorically deny to all and sundry that I am by no means a socialist.

I remember when this motion was originally brought – and let me say before I go any further, everyone has a right to his own opinion, so do I – to this House there were those who were for it and those who were against it. For the love of me, and I am certainly not a genius, but I believe that I can listen and understand, I still to this day cannot fathom where any socialist tendencies relate to the motion at hand.

I believe in the free enterprise system and I believe that like everything else – we used to have to pull the levers on those old cash registers, now we use our fingertips; we used to have to make ledger entries by hand, now we have computers – this motion is an attempt to bring in line the other things that have been happening in our lives since business has gone on in these islands.

There was a time when no one in his right senses would even have to think of a fair competition act. Our lives were simply much gentler. There was respect for one another's existence and I firmly believe that some of the people who have problems with this motion still have that way about them, which is the best thing in the world, but that is not the way that everybody is today. I beg for us to understand that.

It would be so nice and kosher if our everyday lives consisted of what they used to, but they do not any more. There was a time when one could borrow from the other quite readily to keep one going until they could replace it. No one had problems with that. I would like for us to try that today. It is the exception nowadays, not the rule.

With that very small introduction, let me try to add my two bits for the rationale behind this motion. There is not much more that I can say without being repetitious and running the risk of falling sour with the Chair, so I will try to be careful.

Madam Speaker, the first word I heard which I take a different view with, is "bureaucracy". It is my opinion that bureaucracy can be created willfully, unwittingly, inadvertently or any other way. But conscious decision-making, and conscious process of legislation, can easily outdo any thought about bureaucracy.

If we had to worry, as responsible legislators in this honourable House, about the word bureaucracy, then we had better all go home. The truth of the matter is, if we understand what bureaucracy means we can avoid it. We simply need to know what we have to achieve and we simply have to devise the means to achieve it without getting into trouble with a pile of stepping stones before we reach the end result. That is all it is.

If we find within our system that bureaucracy prevails beyond the normal measure, then it is up to us to be innovative to achieve the same end results and cut the bureaucracy out. So, I cannot see the relationship between not wanting a Fair Trade Competition Act because it is going to create bureaucracy. I am sorry I do not hold that view.

Many examples have been used to show problems that have been created in the world of commerce simply by man's existence, and by man's natural tendency to outdo his fellow man in one form or the other. When we look at the free enterprise system, to the best of my knowledge the general view over the years has been that the free enterprise system is one which you leave to the participants in that system and nature will prevail; the strong will survive, the weak will be weeded out, quality will be assured, life will go on.

I say today, that that is how it used to be. The animals that we have to deal with today are totally different. It is my view that without interfering with anyone, legislation is the only answer.

Let me make a very small comparison. Those of us who are strong components of the police foot patrols, the whole reasoning behind that is not the number of thieves the foot patrol are going to catch, it is the number of robberies their existence is going to prevent. That is the whole and entire principle.

Therefore, the two Resolve sections in this Motion will be 90% served simply by the existence of those two things. The mere fact that one knows if one delves into the area where one might have to be called on, one is not going to do it. Only a few idiots will do that. The fact that this does not exist, we can take a chance any time. I hold to that view because I have seen it operate in everything else in life.

I wish to bring two specific examples which are literally outside of the purview of what has been discussed before, but I will bring them in an attempt to show that fair competition legislation goes beyond where it is the private sector squabbling within itself. There are many things which we have not simply paid a lot of attention to in this country because there is always something else that we have to deal with.

Let me bring one little example. For almost light years, we have been preaching that we need to diversify this economy. If we go back through the Hansards, we will see in every Budget Address or Throne Speech the words used or alluded to. Let me show an example:

The Customs Tariff Law of 1990 says that the importation of bottled water is duty free. I just saw it five minutes ago, so I am not imagining it. If you import bottled water it is duty free. The Caymanian who wishes to involve himself in a light industry to install a small plant that would make the containers and bottle the water, has to pay 20% for the plant to make the containers, and the materials that he imports to make the containers to hold that water. But it is all right for him to bring in the water in the bottles and not pay anything. If that is not an anomaly, then tell me.

I bring that example to show that the Fair Competition Act goes over and above, and we simply need to be looking at things. It is not a question of holding somebody down, but these are the things that we have not looked into.

There used to be a thing called 'Pioneer Status', or something like that. I think that is out of the window, because I have not heard of it for quite sometime. I was almost in a quandary wondering if I should use an example which one would literally say applied to me, personally, but I can prove the same point by letting it apply elsewhere.

There is a local magazine which is produced every month in this Island. There is equipment here that can produce that magazine, but it is cheaper for the publishers of the magazine to send it abroad to get it produced there because when it lands back in these islands it is duty free. If they were to produce the magazine here, because of the materials they have to constantly bring in here, they would have to pay 20% on it which means (by the multiplier effect) that every time that magazine is sent abroad to be produced there has to be a US dollar draft accompanying it which is not coming back here.

So, those two examples that I brought are simply to show the things that we can be looking at. I am not suggesting that the material being brought in to do this magazine should be duty free; I am saying that whichever way it goes it should apply in both instances, and it is not happening now.

Those examples show another twist to fair competition because, in essence, the Fair Trading Commission, to my view, would be looking into matters such as that to make recommendations to the necessary parties involved to regularise the situation. That is how I view the second resolved section of this Motion.

There are other things that the commission would be looking into, but for those examples that were cited to be regularised would undoubtedly enhance the economy in some way—it has to. There would be more employment created, there would be the multiplier effect locally because money would be spent locally. So, it must be for the better.

Every faction or group has its value. Let me be very fair by first of all stating that the Chamber of Commerce serves a specific positive purpose in this Island. I am not questioning that. I think it is the Better Business Bureau within the Chamber which deals with certain matters to try to solve problems by arbitration between its members and/or outside business people.

My view is that no private organisation is properly equipped to deal as a check and balance with certain matters simply because it exists in the same area that is has to be the judge of. I may not have said it right, but I think you understand what I am saying here. If there is no recognised national level where arbitration can take place without, even if it is unfounded, fear of bias, it will never be seen to be done properly.

I believe once this motion is dealt with and it is to serve the best interests of its intentions, it will certainly, undoubtedly, enhance business operations in these islands. I am sure that insofar as there may be some philosophical differences today, the Chamber of Commerce will be able to say that it was really not so bad after all. I am sure that they will even find that it is not socialist and they will all be relieved.

So, Madam Speaker, let me say once again that I give my full support to Private Member's Motion 27/94 and once the Government gets around to putting the two Resolve sections in place, it will make life a lot better for the business community. It will not for a second create any more bureaucracy and I believe that we will be the better for it.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stevenson Tomlinson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I have read the Motion and I will begin by saying that there is no doubt that many people and many businesses, especially small businesses, experience difficulty because of other businesses in the community giving them so much competition.

What I would also like to say is that this often occurs in the community because of various individuals getting financial aid from abroad. Local people end up fronting for these people from abroad. I believe that the issue here in many instances is to try to prevent fronting in the community.

Therefore, I maintain that the way to do that is to ensure that the Trade and Business Licence is not issued to anyone that you can ascertain is fronting. A greater effort has to be made to ensure that the business being established is a legitimate business.

We know in the water sports and ground transportation sectors that many small operators have a very difficult time making it because of the competition – and sometimes it is unfair competition – because the capital is not coming from the persons who say that the businesses are theirs, but rather that they are fronting for other individuals.

What is so serious at times is that money that could very well stay in the country goes out of the country while Caymanians themselves own virtually nothing. Perhaps they get paid something, but they do not get what others believe they are getting out of these kinds of businesses.

I believe then that we can do a lot, even with what we have in place now, to stop this unfair competition and we have to tighten up the issuing of Trade and Business Licences. The Immigration Department can be abetted in this process. We have to give them whatever aid they need and if it means legislating, or giving new regulations, new directives, then let us do it.

There are many instances where individuals open up businesses and claim that due to unfair competition it closes. I would never like to say that I would support – because I do not – a system where we are going to restrict the hard worker who achieves and excels in the community.

I believe that any hard worker, any company that strives hard towards excellence needs to be commended and if because of hard work, people excel, then I believe that is the free enterprise system at work and it should be encouraged, especially in a country like ours. It has worked through the years and I do not believe we should in any way try to stealthify this process. We could easily get to the point where we regulate things to the extent that it goes the other way and we do not see the progress that we all desire in the country.

When it comes to advertising, I have said for a long time that we definitely need a code of advertising that covers not only certain industries, but is comprehensive and covers all industries in the island. I believe it is very important to have standards for advertising. We need to be ethical when we advertise.

We know that there are certain professions where their ethics govern advertising, but I believe that advertising is something we should definitely look at. I do not think it is necessary to have this Fair Competition Law, or this Fair Trading Commission to have a look at advertising. I think this can be done without having to create yet another bureaucracy.

As I see it, it appears that the problem that we are experiencing in the community has to do with fronting. I believe that that is what we should be looking at because most of the problems that I have heard about, in some way or the other relate to fronting. If it is fronting that we are trying to address, then I think it is a bit far-fetched and we are overdoing it here to establish Fair Competition Law, Legislation and Commissions.

I will not support this Bill. I would rather tighten up the Immigration policies and seek to make sure that we endeavour to find out who is fronting when they apply for a Trade and Business Licence and simply not issue that licence.

Thank you, very much.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.43 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.06 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion 27/94.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Let me say from the beginning that I believe the main reason why the Cayman Islands have been so unique over the years is because Caymanians have always had an opportunity to share in the prosperity of this country.

With the progress that we have experienced here, and with the advent of some foreign investors, it appears that there is an attitude now not among Caymanians but among foreign operators of foreign-owned businesses, that they must have it all for themselves.

I do not believe that any Caymanian is asking us to promote his business at the expense of somebody else's (business). I think the issue is that we must at least provide a playing field for all players on the same level. By that I mean everyone should be in a position where he can compete on an equal basis. There is nothing wrong with competition. Competition is very healthy and if we have a proper active competition going, it regulates that particular industry.

What concerns me is that there are some large operators in this country at the present time, the majority of which are foreigners, and their attitude is that they must have it all. What this is creating is resentment in our community against foreign investors and that is very risky indeed.

Caymanians have always been a very warm, welcoming people. They have always extended an invitation to people from the outside coming to enjoy our country, to visit or to live amongst us. But we must be careful that our people have an opportunity to continue to benefit in the prosperity of this country.

One area where I believe this unfair competition is very evident is in the water sports business. We have people like Captain Marvin Ebanks, Captain Crosby Ebanks, among many other Caymanians, Captain Ertis Ebanks, who are Caymanian pioneers in that industry. They are the ones who went out there and created and promoted Stingray City and all of the other attractions that we have here. And what happens? We get the foreign investor coming in, seeing the potential of making lots of money, not being prepared to continue sharing that with those persons who depend on that particular industry for their livelihood.

I get complaints, and I am sure other Members of this House get complaints, almost on a daily basis about this type of attitude. If the foreign investor were thinking in the long term, he would have the attitude that he is very privileged to come in here to carry on business in a tax free environment – one of the very few of its kind – and able to earn a decent living. So, he must feel an obligation to the people of this country to at least allow those who are in the industry that he is competing in to continue to pick up some of the business. But that attitude is changing.

Another area is the transportation business. On a daily basis we hear complaints about unfair competition in this area. The major tour operators who have the contacts are able to fly up to Miami, sit down with the representatives of the cruise ships and say, "If you come to the Cayman Islands I have five buses. I can provide a tour for your passengers for $15 and I can guarantee you that I can accommodate 25, 30, or 300-350." The cruise ships then sign an agreement with them because they can sell that tour for $30. When their passengers arrive the tour operator gets his cut which is $10 to $15 per person, the cruise ship gets theirs and both parties are happy, while the small independent taxi driver, or bus operator who does not have the resources or, many times, the know how to go and negotiate on that basis, is left to fend for himself out there. Many of these people, who are our people, who depend on a livelihood in this industry are literally starving to death.

There is greed on the part of the foreign tour operators here, and then there is greed on the part of the cruise ship operators. They want it all for themselves.

If competition does not allow a balance on the playing field for all parties involved, then Government has to play a limited role in seeing to it that that balance is maintained. I do not know about any other Member, but I for one, chose to come back to the Cayman Islands (which is home) to live. I had options – I could have stayed in the United States and made a decent living. But I chose to come back home because of the special atmosphere and environment we have in the Cayman Islands.

We must do whatever is necessary to safeguard that environment. If our people are unhappy, then they are going to ruin it for everybody, including myself. So, we have to be vigilant as a Government to ensure that we are not introducing any socialist policies. There is nobody in this House more capitalistic than I am, and I think I have done pretty well at holding my own in my respective fields.

It is important for us to see to it that our people continue to earn a decent living in this country; continue to have the attitude of friendliness towards people from the outside, which we depend upon so heavily for our continued prosperity. But there must be a maintained balance.

I only mentioned two areas, Madam Speaker—watersports and transportation. There are many other areas where some type of control must be put in place. I believe that one of the reasons for the problems we are having in transportation is because previous governments did not choose to say that there is only room for 100 taxi licences to be issued in this country. I think at the present time we have close to 300 licences. What that does is create chaos because there is a limited amount of business to be shared. It is much better if you can share that business between 100 taxi operators as compared to 250.

We do it in all other areas: the retail side of things... In every corner of this country we have boutiques that are competing with one another. No one is making any money. So, I think it is time for Government to look at putting certain limited controls in place.

Let me be swift to add that I still do not want to create the kind of business environment – regulatory environment – which probably exists in the United States of America, where there is so much red tape that as far as free enterprise is concerned, it is very limited. It has gotten to the point where there is little or no incentive for private enterprise to operate in that kind of environment because of the regulatory authorities and the bodies that have been set up for one reason or another. All it does is add costs to the price of doing business. It adds to the cost of the product and creates inefficiencies in a lot of cases.

I am not even sure if we need a Fair Trade Commission, or whatever it is. I think maybe one way of controlling – and I am one of those Members who does not necessarily think there is any particular way of controlling it, my only interest is that there is some control put in place. One of the ways that I think this could be done is by looking at the aspect of Trade and Business Licensing.

I recommend pulling it from the Immigration Department and putting it under the Financial Services Unit or the Registrar of Companies Unit, where there is much more professional expertise available with regard to analysing and evaluating applications with the recommendations going forward to the Executive Council, or whatever body is created to approve those applications.

I also agree with the Third Elected Member for George Town, who basically said that we have to be careful with regard to the regulatory environment we create. I believe in fair competition. I am not afraid of competition and I do not believe that any Caymanian is, to a certain extent. There is the recognition of the value of competition, but that competition must be fair.

The point that I want to make with regard to what the Third Elected Member for George Town said is that we do not necessarily need more laws in this country. What we need is for the laws on our books to be implemented and carried out. Not only in the area of business, but in many other areas where we have complaints on an almost daily basis. It is not for lack of legislation, it is a matter of the will and the ability to carry out the provisions of those laws.

So, I support this Motion. I leave it up to the Government to determine exactly how this unfair competition is regulated, but I believe it has to be regulated.

I recall one incident that was told to me by a Caymanian who was attempting to survive in the water sports business. He had spent money to have some brochures printed and he was walking from hotel to hotel placing the brochures on racks in order for the visitors to have knowledge about his services. One of his competitors saw him and told him he could not do that, then walked to the rack, picked up the brochures and put them in the garbage. That cannot be right. I believe that every man has the right to the opportunity of earning a decent living in this country. I believe that the sooner we address this issue (before it really gets out of hand) the better off we are going to be as a people and as a country.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: If no other Member wishes to debate, would the Mover wish to utilise the remaining few minutes to commence his winding up?

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I certainly do wish to utilise the remaining time to commence.

I thought that I had made myself crystal clear in what a Fair Competition Act or Law would seek to do, as well as the work of the Commission. I drew reference to various legislation from several jurisdictions to further bolster and complement the arguments laid.

This whole deal of being branded a socialist or socialistic is, as far as I am concerned, nothing new. Let me once again say that I am not now, nor have I ever been a socialist or a member of any socialist organisation for that matter. I challenge any Member in this House, or outside of this House, to bring proof or substantiation to the contrary of my position. If they cannot so produce it, then I say to them desist!

Socialists...

[Inaudible interjection]

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Madam Speaker, on a point of order, please.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Member?

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Madam Speaker, the Member is inferring that I am the one who mentioned socialist. I did not say that he was socialist, I said this was a socialist's idea, if I remember correctly. I did not call him a socialist.

The Speaker: When you say this is a socialist idea, do you mean that the Private Member's Motion is a socialist idea?

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Yes, Madam Speaker, about the commission and the fair commission...

The Speaker: Well, I think, Honourable Member, that that is quite out of order. So, the Honourable Member for Bodden Town has a point of order.

Please continue First Elected Member for Bodden Town, you have one minute left.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

My understanding of socialist and socialism is that of a political and economic theory which advocates state ownership and state control of the means of production. To the best of my knowledge, and I am entering my second term in this House, I have never come across any socialist sitting in this House at this time or in the parliament proceeding. In spite of the differences existing among us, we have been staunch capitalists.

I do not own my own business, but I work in a business where I have been employed for 14 years, and I certainly am not a socialist, nor have I ever advocated any socialistic legislation.

I hope that matter will now be put to rest once and for all.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30

The Speaker: It is now 4.30. May I ask for the Motion for the adjournment?

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I was hoping that the Member would finish, but I am happy to move the adjournment of this Honourable House.

Madam Speaker, I have not prepared the Members for this, and I apologise, but we are having a first Annual Tourism Conference tomorrow. I think all of the Members have been invited. Hopefully they have received their invitations. I would be happy if the House would agree to convene tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock – instead of 10 o'clock – which would allow some Members to be present for the opening ceremony.

The Speaker: The question is that the House should adjourn and convene tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

If there is no debate I shall put the question that the House do now adjourn until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 11.00 AM THURSDAY, 1 DECEMBER 1994.

THURSDAY
1 DECEMBER 1994
11.37 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable First Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. James M. Ryan: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. I apologise to Members for the late start of this morning's sitting.

Presentation of Papers and Reports. Actuarial Valuation of the Public Service Pensions as at 1st January, 1993; and the Public Service Pensions Board Annual Trustee Report for the year ended 31st December, 1993. I understand it is the wish of the Honourable Third Official Member that these should be taken together and that his statement will cover both.

The Honourable Third Official Member.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE PENSIONS BOARD ANNUAL TRUSTEE REPORT FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31ST
DECEMBER, 1993

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Actuarial Valuation of the Public Service Pensions as at 1st January, 1993; and the Public Service Pensions Board Annual Trustee Report for the year ended 31st December, 1993.

The Speaker: So ordered.
Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the Public Service Pensions Board, 1993, Annual Trustee Report and the Actuarial Report as of 1st January, 1993, are being tabled in this Honourable House in accordance with section 3D subsection 6, and section 31 subsection 3 of the 1991 Pensions Amendment Law, respectively.

The Pensions Board Report will show that as at 31st December, 1993, the pension funds stood at $9,335,940, inclusive of accrued interest.

In 1993 a total of $2,721,496 in employer-employee contributions was paid over to the fund while investment income amounted to $369,888. Administrative expenses over the course of the year were borne by central Government. There were no payments of benefits and refunds to participants as the fund has not yet been qualified by the Actuaries as self-sustaining.

The contingent liability for the Public Service Pensions of $32,445,624, as established by the Actuarial Valuation as at 31st January, 1989, has been increased to $65,001,000 to reflect the valuation in respect of past service liability as at 1st January, 1993.

In accordance with the Pensions Amendment Law, 1991, the Actuarial Firm of the Wyatt Company, based in Washington, D. C. , was commissioned to conduct an actuarial review of the assets and liabilities of the Public Service Pensions Fund as at 1st January, 1993, in order to determine if the fund is capable of meeting its projected liabilities at the current rate of contribution. If not so capable, to determine the date at which benefits can start to be made from the fund and determine a contribution rate at which the fund would be capable of meeting its liabilities.

The valuation was carried out on the basis of two interest rates—6% to reflect the short-term nature of the current investment held, and 7% to reflect a more appropriate long-term investment policy. As it is envisaged that the investment policy of the fund will be modified in the very near future in order to include more long-term investment—the results are shown on the 7% basis.

The finding of the review is that the pension fund is incapable of being self-sustaining at the current rate of contribution. It is to be noted that as at 1st January, 1993, the Fund's assets amounted to $6.3 million, while the assessed liabilities, that is, the past service costs with projection, amounted to $99.4 million resulting in a deficiency of $93.1 million. A review of Exhibit 1, as shown on page 12 of the Actuarial Report will show that the liabilities of $99.4 million is arrived at by recognising the past service pension costs of $65 million as at 1st January, 1993, and the projected liability of $34.4 million by which the fund will need to be increased in order to meet the pension obligations of existing civil servants upon their retirement.

Item G of Exhibit 1, as shown on page 12 of the report, establishes the ongoing cost of accruing benefits each year at some 15% of payroll. In addition to this, the cost of amortising the past service liability over 20 years is some $8.8 million, bringing the total cost to 39% of annual salary.

Future new entrants are expected to lower the cost since they will not be bringing with them past service liabilities. According to the Actuary, in order to adequately finance this fund a contribution of 25% of payroll would be necessary allowing for future new entrants.

Due to the escalating costs of pensions and the likely adverse impact on future revenue, the Public Service Pensions Board requested a number of supplemental studies which are expected to provide the Government and the Board with viable options from which to address this deficiency of the fund, as well as the pre-1990 past service liability which exists prior to the establishment of the fund.

Discussions are currently taking place between the Government and the Staff Association. A likely decision will be based on the need to move from the present 8% contribution to 15%, with an interim move to 11% by 1st January, 1993, and an increase to 15% by 1st January, 1996.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The second is the Final Report of the Select Committee to Review the Penal Code (Law 12 of 1975).

The Honourable Second Official Member.

FINAL REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE TO REVIEW THE PENAL CODE (LAW 12 OF 1975)

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Second and Final Report of the Select Committee to Review the Penal Code (Law 12 of 1975).

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, the Select Committee of the whole House established to review the Penal Code, was appointed by the Legislative Assembly on the 25th March, 1993, upon the passing of Private Member's Motion 1/93.

The Motion moved by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and seconded by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman read:

"WHEREAS there has been an alarming increase in juveniles committing crime;

"AND WHEREAS the Caymanian community is concerned over the increase in criminal activity generally;

"AND WHEREAS there is concern that our sentencing policy based upon the Penal Code and related laws is not sufficiently harsh as to serve as discouragement or a deterrent;

"AND WHEREAS many of these criminals are repeat offenders;

"AND WHEREAS the present Police Commissioner has stated that 'Cayman's policy for dealing with juvenile offenders is not very good,' and 'the policy for dealing with those in custody is worthless.' (Caymanian Compass, February 18, 1993);

"AND WHEREAS many Caymanians are not convinced that the policy of sentencing juvenile offenders to approved schools in the United States is in the best interest of this country;

"AND WHEREAS the long term financial commitment may be better spent on the provision of a local facility;

"AND WHEREAS the police complain that apprehended criminals are returned to the streets too quickly and too easily;

"AND WHEREAS many Caymanians feel that parents should be held more accountable and responsible for crimes committed by their juveniles;

"AND WHEREAS the sentiments expressed by many people in the recently held Police/Community meetings on Grand Cayman suggest that the authorities should adopt a "get tough" and "no nonsense" approach to crime and criminal activity;

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT a Select Committee of the whole House be appointed to review the Penal Code, with the usual powers to send for persons and papers."

The Motion set the Committee to comprise all Members of the Legislative Assembly and in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 69(2), Madam Speaker, you nominated me – the Attorney-General responsible for the Portfolio of Legal Administration – to be the Chairman.

During the 20 months in which the Committee was active, a number of 13 meetings were held, and in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 72(1), the Committee tabled an interim report on the 29th November, 1993. The Minutes of proceedings of meetings, together with the interim report form a part of this second and final report.

In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 71(1), the Committee invited selected government official and officers, and private sector professionals (some of whom were unable to appear) to meet it, as well as inviting members of the public, and of organisations, to present orally or in writing their views upon the existing Penal Code.

The Committee benefitted in its review from hearing evidence from the following: The Hon. Mr. George Harre, Chief Justice; Mr. Alan Ratcliffe, Commissioner of Police; Detective Superintendent, Mr. Ken Hall; Mr. Denis Marsden, the (former) Director of Prisons; Miss Adora Bodden, Head Mistress George Hicks High School; Mr. Ivor Archie, Senior Crown Counsel; Mr. Roger Bicknell, (former) Accountant General; Mr. Colin Powery, Collector of Customs; Mr. Orett Conner, Deputy Chief Immigration Officer (appearing on behalf of the Chief Immigration Officer) together with Mr. Franz Manderson the Senior Immigration Officer; Mrs. Maureen Brooks, Social Service Worker, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman; Mr. Oswald Rankine, District Commissioner; representatives from the Justices of the Peace Association of the Cayman Islands, Mr. Anthony Connolly; His Honour Magistrate Peter Jackson; Mrs. Mary Lawrence; Mr. Kirkland Nixon and Mr. Leonard Ebanks.

Mr. Carson Ebanks, Director of Planning; Mr. Walling Whitaker, Chief Environmental Health Officer; Miss Lucille Seymour, Education Officer Primary, appearing on behalf of Mrs. Andrea Bryan (former) Chief Education Officer; the Honourable Justice Derek Schofield; the Honourable Justice Anthony Smellie, QC; representatives from Cayman Crime Stoppers: Mrs. Jennifer Kaufman, Mrs. Gailya Hall and Mr. Nick Duggan.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Sr; Mrs. Angela Martins, formerly Director of Social Services; Mr. David Jarman, Headmaster, John Gray High School; Mrs. Julene Banks, Crown Counsel; His Honour Magistrate Peter Jackson; Mr. Neville Smith (former) Chief Superintendent of the Uniformed Branch.

The Committee also benefitted from written evidence and papers from the Young Caymanian Businessmen Association; His Honour Justice Anthony Smellie, QC; the Justices of the Peace Association of the Cayman Islands; Mr. N. J. Smith; and the Honourable Chief Justice.

The Committee wishes to express its gratitude to all who gave evidence which provided the Committee with an in-depth knowledge of some of the profound criminal and drug related activities being committed within the Islands, not only amongst adults but also that of young children, as well as concerns of the Judiciary, the Government agencies and the community.

Madam Speaker, having regard for the confidentiality of matters brought to the attention of the Committee during hearings and in writing, it is recommended that the proceedings of evidence together with written submissions not be published with this report, and that they remain confidential.

For the Committee's use, legislation was requested from the parliaments of many other countries and the Committee wishes to express its thanks to the Parliaments of Australia, Belize, Bermuda, Canada, Cyprus, India and New Zealand for providing legislation and other papers for the Committee's benefit.

The Penal Code in force in the Cayman Islands was enacted in 1975. Since its enactment over 19 years ago, there have been no less than 12 amending laws rendering the Law cumbersome and outmoded to deal with the growing concerns expressed in the Motion.

The Committee's approach to the review has been to endeavour to ensure that both penalties and offences are brought up to date. Whilst the terms of reference confined the review to the Penal Code only, the Committee is cognizant of the fact that a number of Laws are inter-related and that the Criminal Procedure Code, the Juveniles Law, the Misuse of Drugs Law, the Judicature Law, the Rehabilitation of Offenders Law, the Traffic Law, the Summary Jurisdiction Law and the Poor Persons Legal Aid Law (some of which are currently being reviewed by Government) will require consequential amendments and/or review.

The Select Committee recommends that amending legislation to the Penal Code drafted in accordance with its recommendations be brought to this honourable House at the earliest possible time.

The Select Committee wishes to report that it has concluded its work of reviewing the Penal Code and agrees that this report be the second and final report of the Select Committee to this honourable House.

Madam Speaker, before I formally move the motion to adopt these recommendations, I would like to point out to Members of the House that while the business of the Select Committee may be finished, the work involved in presenting amending legislation to this House to deal with the Penal Code has certainly not finished. There is considerably more work to be done, not just by the legal drafting section of my department. The Committee has highlighted the changes and alterations that need to be made to the Penal Code and there now remains considerable work to be undertaken to make sure that these changes are reflected consistently – not only over the Penal Code, but over other inter-related laws. By that I am particularly referring to where penalties are suggested to be altered, it is absolutely essential that the correlation of those penalties with penalties for other offences are kept similar. So there is considerable work to be done.

I certainly have in mind the Committee's desire that this amending legislation be brought to the House as soon as possible, and I will certainly do my best to ensure that happens.

So, Madam Speaker, I formally move that the recommendations contained in the final report of the Select Committee be adopted by the House.

The Speaker: The question is that the proposals as set out in the second and final report of the Select Committee to review the Penal Code be adopted.

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. . . Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The proposals have accordingly been adopted.

AGREED. PROPOSALS AS SET OUT IN THE SECOND AND FINAL REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE TO REVIEW THE PENAL CODE ADOPTED.

The Speaker: Draft Guidelines: Guaranteed Student Loan Scheme Financial Sector Cayman Islands Government.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

DRAFT GUIDELINES—PROPOSED GUARANTEED STUDENT LOAN SCHEME

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay upon the Table of this honourable House the Draft Guidelines of the Guaranteed Student Loan Scheme Financial Sector of the Cayman Islands Government: General guidelines for participation in the scheme.

The Speaker: So ordered. Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: In considering the end of year report of the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board in June, the Executive Council discussed the future of the existing student loan scheme. Particularly due to a decision by the Caribbean Development Bank to increase the interest rate for its line of credit to Cayman for Human Resource Development from 4% to 7 3/4%, we decided that local loan facilities for this purpose should be explored. Based on the resolution to pursue this matter my Ministry established a review committee.

The Student Loan Scheme Review Committee was established in June and consisted of the following members: My Permanent Secretary, Mr. Leonard Dilbert and I; Mr. Mario Ebanks, Assistant Secretary and Chairman; Mrs. Joy Basdeo and Mrs. Jennifer Smith of the Education Ministry and Council; Mr. Leonard Ebanks (British American Bank); Mr. Daniel Scott (Ernst and Young); Mrs. Marjorie Ebanks (Triple C School); and Mrs. Angella Miller (AIDB) as secretary. The Committee met on 24th June, 6th July, 20th July, 2nd August and 7th September.

The Committee's Report, in the form of draft guidelines for a Guaranteed Student Loan Scheme, is hereby laid on the Table of this honourable House. These proposed guidelines will, in effect, revamp the student loan scheme by liberalising the procedures, maintaining prudent safeguards, and transferring the funding source from the Caribbean Development Bank to Cayman's financial sector.

The proposed initiative to establish a working partnership with local class "A" commercial banks with a government guarantee will be similar to the new guaranteed home mortgage scheme where government will guarantee the loan for a student to obtain further education. The new initiative should result in more funding being available for human resource development, less onerous terms and procedures, better accessibility for the wider population, responsibility for monitoring and administration being transferred to the financial institutions, and interest rates which are as low as possible.

In formulating these guidelines the Committee referred to existing AIDB Student Loan Scheme Guidelines, the Education Council Scholarship Guidelines and other local scholarship and loan scheme guidelines. The Committee also reviewed information on loan schemes for Jamaica, Barbados, Bermuda, USA/Federal Guaranteed, as well as information provided through the Education Ministry from the International Institute for Educational Planning. The Committee and the Ministry are satisfied that these proposed guidelines are in line with prudent safeguards and also meet the aspirations of potential borrowers and lenders.

The proposed guaranteed student loan scheme is based on a partnership between Government and commercial lending institutions. This scheme is to formalise manpower development and a training super-fund which is meant to supplement existing scholarship or grant schemes within the public and private sectors, as well as existing private sector loan schemes.

The purpose of the scheme is designed to provide students with the opportunity to pursue higher education including academic, technical and vocational training at local or overseas institutions including junior colleges.

This loan facility will cover tuition, books, room and board, and one return economy air passage per year up to a maximum of CI$10,000 per annum, with provisions for adjustments due to reasonable escalation of tuition and fees. This initiative was approved by Executive Council on 18th October.

On Thursday, 20th October my staff and I held a meeting with the managers from seven class "A" (commercial) banks. The attendance and interest shown by Mr. Alex Wood (Barclays Bank), Mr. Harry Chisholm (Royal Bank of Canada), Mr. Eric Crutchley (Cayman National Bank), Mr. Tom Crawford representing Mr. Peter Larder (Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce), Mr. Colin McKie (Bank of Nova Scotia), Mr. Nicholas Duggan (Bank of Butterfield) and Mr. Leonard Ebanks (British American Bank) continues to be a very positive development.

I have indicated to these representatives that in order to substitute for the AIDB Student Loan Scheme, the banking community would be requested to initially allocate CI$1.5 million per year for 5 years, indexed by 10% per annum, in order for the guaranteed scheme to provide the funds needed for the revised student loan scheme.

At the meeting it was agreed that: (1) The guidelines were generally acceptable and could form the basis of an agreement between the Government as the guarantor and the participating banks as the source of funding. (2) A relevant government agency such as the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board (AIDB) could retain the general administrative role, that is, processing applications, monitoring grades, verifying receipts, coordinating documentation for guarantees, and so on. Each participating bank would be responsible for administering the credit functions such as disbursements and collections. (3) Provisions should be made for funding of interest during the course of study, if necessary, as well as reducing the term of the loan in cases where the amount is small or the length of study is short. (4) It was also agreed that in the spirit of investing in Cayman's Manpower Development, each bank would consider offering interest free or fixed rate loans for all or part of its portfolio in this initiative.

The level of enthusiasm from the banks has been quite good to date. Government is expecting to receive a formal response from the banking community very shortly. It is expected that this initiative will be formalised and officially launched by January 1995.

Over the years, the AIDB Student Loan Scheme has played an important part in Cayman's Manpower Development. But since the National Team's election, our policy emphasis on manpower development and the training of our population, has more than doubled the value of student loans compared to the years before.

Cumulative, up to 31st December, 1992, the AIDB had 103 student loans with a value of CI$1.4 million as compared to a cumulative 189 loans valued at CI$2.7 million as of the 28th [November, 1994.]

When this Government came into office, we were inundated with complaints from students regarding their treatment. They felt as if they were begging from the Agricultural Industrial Development Board. New policy directives were given which reduced the friction. The management of AIDB was advised that in no way whatsoever should students be made to feel uncomfortable.

This increased demand, due to improved service and greater sensitivity by the AIDB staff (students now know that they are cared for), together with more emphasis on training by the Government and the Board, has resulted in excess demand upon the financial resources of the student loan scheme. This, amongst other things, was the catalyst for Government's new initiative on student loans.

The AIDB's loan commitments to students are presently being met from the repayments of loans to graduates, supplemented with a grant and a combined interest free loan of CI$370,000 per annum from Government. Meanwhile, the role of the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board (AIDB) is also undergoing reassessment.

As can be seen from the departmental plans in the 1995 Budget Document, the AIDB has a number of very challenging and important objectives for 1995 and beyond. There will be a transition of AIDB from being a direct lender to playing a support role in the area of human resource (Manpower Development) funding, and also continue in their funding in Agricultural, Industrial and Commercial Project Funding.

Let me take this opportunity to stress again the attention we are paying to the subject of Manpower Development.

No sensible person accepts that in the workplace the nationality 'Caymanian' ought to be placed on one's resume under the heading of 'qualifications'. By the same token, however, neither ought it to be the case that any other nationality can adopt this practice. Where Caymanians have relevant qualifications, however, there must be opportunities available, given the number and range of jobs in Cayman, for them to prove what they can do. The whole point about Manpower Development is that it seeks to address that first step—the acquisition of relevant qualifications.

I should say, however, that neither the student loan scheme, nor any other initiative taken towards the objective of manpower development and training, will be of much benefit without employers who are receptive and prepared to commit themselves to the development of the Caymanian work-force. Some employers seem to fall into this category, others seem to be rather passive, and others still seem to have a blatant disregard to the claim of the Caymanian work-force for priority attention in terms of their knowledge and skills development. To put it bluntly, this latter category seems to actively discourage their Caymanian employees — if they have any — from progressing. This, Madam Speaker and Honourable Members, bodes no one any good in the long run, and I would hope that such employers would begin to facilitate their employees in taking advantage of the revised student loan scheme, or any similar training mechanism which may be available.

It is hoped that in legislation to come to the Honourable House in the new year, a form of apprenticeship or understudy guidelines can be included. To my mind, there is a need for the means to be in place whereby in our main industries of finance and tourism, and other large established companies conducting business in this country, that there is an understudy who is given every opportunity for career advancement, and genuinely assisted so that they can look forward to the day when that person will be filling top and middle management positions in their company. This should be seen as a two-way street.

In any event, it is my opinion that an understudy or apprenticeship scheme is timely, necessary, and important to the welfare of our young people and critical to the future of our developing country. I strongly believe that effective mechanisms must be found to comprehensively address training and upward mobility for all willing Caymanians in our work force.

It must, of course, be fully recognised that a country as small as ours produces professionals at a rather slow rate, simply because of the availability of manpower in smaller numbers, comparatively speaking, and also because it takes an individual many years of study and hard work in order to qualify in his chosen field.

However, while these are some of the hard facts, it must also be borne in mind that what has so far accounted for the harmony in our small country is also due to the fact that Caymanians, at many levels, have been able to benefit and prosper from the growth and development of their own country, as we all rightly should.

Surely, it is not expecting too much, nor can it be considered unreasonable for a young, energetic and qualified Caymanian, after he or she has gained a certain amount of experience, to eventually replace the person to whom he or she is the second-in-command and who is, naturally, a work permit holder.

This is, and must be, the natural course of events in any small developing country, and the Cayman Islands should be no different. This, certainly, is the way that I feel that it should be within our islands.

Now I know that there are some companies doing business here which have given many workers every opportunity to move up the career ladder. In fact, some companies have expended large sums of money in training Caymanians to fill responsible positions in their organisations, and I sincerely take this opportunity to commend those companies for so doing. One such company that readily comes to mind is Cable and Wireless (WI) Ltd. , and, of course, a few banks and trust companies.

I am also aware that provision is made for the Caymanian Immigration Board to ask for and examine the training programmes of companies before approving work permits. And today, in spite of the many criticisms aimed at the Caymanian Immigration Board, I am aware of several instances where Caymanians now hold prominent positions in some companies because of the Board's insistence that when there are local persons who prove themselves and who are good training material they must be given the opportunity before those companies are allowed to bring in outside workers.

So, while it is correct that this policy has helped in some instances, like everything else it is not fool proof. It is not as effective as it could be. Some companies have only paid lip service to this requirement and have not, in my opinion, made a genuine attempt to train Caymanians for responsible positions. Perhaps in some instances this is because they feel very strongly, and hold a preference for workers from their own respective countries to be brought in and allowed to work side by side with them.

Madam Speaker and Honourable Members, one area which my Ministry or the Elected Government has no control over is the Civil Service. But I must say that those in the Civil Service who are responsible for training and promotion in the Civil Service will have to set the example. If we want the private sector to set up training programmes and succession plans to ensure that Caymanians are given the opportunity for upward mobility, then the management of the Civil Service must do the same without any kind of bias—political or otherwise.

In examining the whole proposal realistically, all employers in the Cayman Islands should view the training and promotion of Caymanians as a very sound investment in the secured future of their business and, accordingly, a wise contribution to the continuing stability which makes the Cayman Islands a shining example in a sea of unrest, uncertainty and insecurity.

Government feels that our initiatives in this area, particularly student loan funding, manpower development and labour reform, will be of great assistance in realising these objectives.

Thank you, very much, for your indulgence, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister.

As it is now past 11 o'clock, may I ask for a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) to enable the questions to be taken?

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7)

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I move the suspension of the relevant Standing Order to allow questions to be taken.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23(7) be suspended in order that questions may be taken after 11 o'clock.

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. . . Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Standing Order has accordingly been suspended.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) SUSPENDED.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

The Speaker: Question No. 201, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 201

No. 201: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture how does Government proposes to reinstate "Free Medical" to Caymanian Seamen as recently announced by the Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, recognising the contribution made to these Islands by the vast majority of seamen, and following in-depth discussions between myself, the Minister for Health, and the Seamen's Association, agreement was reached to provide free medical to seamen aged 55 or older, and their spouses, on the recommendation of the Association to the Ministry of Health.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Minister say under what law or regulation was the decision taken to do this?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, section 9 of the law covers what Government intends to do and we are still discussing it with the Cayman Brac Seamen's Association.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Minister say if the Law he is referring to is the Health Services Fees Law, 1993, Law 9 of 1993, under section 9 which covers, as noted in the marginal note, "Poor people"?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Yes, Madam Speaker, but it does not say that Government cannot treat any person the way we are recommending. Under that provision the procedure is that if a person applies to the Social Services, they direct them to the Health Services. If they apply to the Health Services they are treated accordingly.

In this instance, this will not be the case, as the answer to the question says that the association will make the recommendation to the Ministry of Health.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Is the Ministry giving any thought to including in the list of persons for free treatment the Cayman Islands Seamen's Association, as it is not there now; and, in all fairness, it only came into being earlier this year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, we are discussing, as I said earlier, with the Cayman Brac branch of the Seamen's Association and the agreement that we have now come to has been reached with those in Cayman.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In section 10, there is included here in (b) the Veteran's Association of the Cayman Islands and the Seamen's and Veteran's Association of Cayman Brac. But there is a third—the Cayman Islands Seamen's Association—which was recently incorporated, I think in June. The question I am asking is if there is any intention of including that, because it is my understanding that they themselves made specific representation to the two Ministers. I think the president is Mr. Walsham Connolly.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I have already said that that is the association that we have come to agreement with; the association—to make it explicitly clear to the Member—headed up by Mr. Walsham Connolly.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

RAISING OF MATTER OF URGENT PUBLIC IMPORTANCECUBANS PLAN PEACEFUL MARCH

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Under Standing Order 12, I would like to move a motion to ask for the adjournment of the House for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance.

Under Standing Order 12(2) I have given the written notice, as is prescribed, to the presiding officer, which is the Speaker in this case, for a decision of the Chair in regards to an approval from the presiding officer.

Madam Speaker, the matter which I would like to raise relates to the matter as shown on the front page headline in the Caymanian Compass dated 1st December, 1994, under the heading "Cubans Plan Peaceful March." I read in this article only this morning that approximately 300 Cubans will be allowed to leave Tent City to march to the Government Building in protest of their situation here, and to attract international attention to their need for visas. I believe that this is something of unquestionable concern to the country, and that it would warrant some expression by Members of this House. So, Madam Speaker, I would ask, if it meets the approval of the Chair and the consent of the House, that a time be set for this in due course.

The Speaker: May I ask the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman whether the march is to be to the Government Administration Building or Government House?

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: It is my understanding that it is the Government Administration Building on Elgin Avenue.

The Speaker: Thank you. I have considered this matter as the Member had previously presented this to me, and I am satisfied that it is an urgent matter which the House can discuss. In the circumstances I have set the time for this discussion at 4 o'clock this afternoon before the House takes its adjournment.

May I ask the House if Members are in favour? I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. . . Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The matter will accordingly be discussed at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

AGREED BY THE HOUSE FOR MATTER TO BE DISCUSSED AT 4 O'CLOCK.

The Speaker: Continuing with Other Business, Private Member's Motion No. 27/94.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town, concluding the debate.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 27/94

FAIR COMPETITION ACT/LAW

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

At the point of adjournment yesterday afternoon, I concluded in making known my concerns at the malignant and unmerited aspersion to this Motion being socialistic, and myself being a socialist.

I shall now address some remarks to the comments made by the Third Elected Member for George Town.

I was struck by the admission of that Honourable Member that she did not understand the position to make regarding this request for a Fair Competition Act, and for the Government to establish a Fair Trading Commission. I quote her words from the unedited draft of the Hansard Report of 30th November, 1994: "I have a few concerns here personally, but not so much personally, as that I took some time during lunch and spoke to business people, mostly members of the Chamber of Commerce, at a luncheon that they were holding, to know how to vote for this Law because I was not sure."

Madam Speaker, I must say that this strikes me as rather peculiar and I can only wonder whether that Honourable Member has lost her sense of direction and her sense of mission by admitting that she sought direction from the Chamber of Commerce on how to vote. I did not know that our Constitution permitted the Chamber of Commerce to have a member representing that body in our Parliament. I thought we all came from various constituencies and, to the best of my knowledge, I thought that Honourable Member represented the constituency of George Town. I wonder what her constituents would say about her not seeking their advice, but seeking the advice of the Chamber of Commerce in how to vote on such an issue? I shall look forward to the future in this regard.

I would also like to say that notice of this Motion was recorded in the Caymanian Compass about four weeks ago. It strikes one as being rather peculiar—if the Chamber of Commerce was so concerned about this Motion, they had all that time to express their concerns yet they remain mum up until this point.

Madam Speaker, I want to say something else which I think is serious, and I crave the Chair's indulgence to draw reference to Erskine May, page 385, "Declaration of Interests in Debate", and I shall read: "So far as debates are concerned, it is now a rule of the House, rather than a convention as was previously the case, for every Member to declare any relevant pecuniary interest or benefit of whatever nature, whether direct or indirect, that he may have had, may have or may be expecting to have."

It goes on: "A Member will normally declare his interest at the beginning of his remarks. This rule applies not only to debates in the House, but to almost all proceedings of the House..."

Madam Speaker, it seems like the Honourable Third Elected Member for George Town forgot to declare her interest in this debate.

Unfair competition affects Caymanians in all walks of life. There is no need to rehash the arguments given. I would just like to crave the Chair's indulgence, because it seems that the Honourable Third Elected Member for George Town would have been better advised yesterday to remain in this Assembly and partake of the scrumptious bread provided by Miss Mary, because it seems as if the lunch she had, left her devoid of understanding simple and straightforward debate – I am sure Miss Mary's lunch would not have left her that way.

The Fair Trading Commission does not necessarily have to be an overburdening bureaucracy, and I quoted from The Australian Trade Practices Act of 1974, and I would like the Chair's indulgence to just repeat briefly: "In this case the Commission shall consist of a Chairman and such number of other members as are from time to time appointed in accordance with this act."

I think that one Honourable Member suggested that the Commission can quite effectively be limited to three members—a Chairman and two other members. The Australian Trade Practices Act, 1974, goes on to say: "The members of the Commission shall be appointed by the Governor General." (i.e. the Australian case)

In the Jamaican case it says by "the Minister under whose Ministry the Commission falls."

In the Australian Act it specifies: “A person shall not be appointed as a member of the Commission unless he appears to the Governor General to be qualified for appointment by virtue of his knowledge of, or experience in industry, commerce, economics, law or public administration.”

There is no need to rehash what went on yesterday, and I certainly am not in a position to challenge the indulgence of the Chair by repeating what was said, I think quite well and quite lucidly, yesterday.

I will only say in conclusion that I recommend those in opposition to this Motion to consider their position carefully regarding callous disregard for people who are described as individuals under a piece of canopy selling "sheets, towels, clothes—all new items, not used—with a sign saying 'Garage Sale.' ”

I think those comments by the Third Elected Member for George Town were most reckless and ill-conceived. I would not go so far as to suggest that those people do not have Trade and Business Licences, because if those are the same people who I see from time to time, I am sure that their conscientiousness, their honesty, and the mere fact that they are law-abiding citizens of this country and community allow me to suggest that they have the relevant licences and the relevant approval to participate in what they are doing.

Let me also say that any small merchant, and individual who demonstrates industriousness and the ambition to set themselves up, is a citizen who is not likely to be a burden on our Social Services and, indeed, Madam Speaker, they should be encouraged.

I might also say that some of the best services in this country today are provided by those persons who operate what I call 'Mom and Pop' style businesses. They are personable, approachable, they know their clients on a personal basis and if one were to move around and speak to people who deal with these types of merchants, one would get the impression that there is a certain preference among many Caymanian people to deal with these people.

I welcome entrepreneurs, particularly people who start small. As I move around I see that a little plaza has opened up in the centre of town, very convenient. The stores are clean, well lit and the merchandise is attractive. I wish those people well, and I say that these are the kinds of businesses, and these are the kinds of individuals, that our country needs because they are catering to a special clientele, they are filling a gap and I hope that God blesses them. I cannot take the position of callous disregard towards these people and say that I do not care if they are run rough-shod out of business by big merchants.

Madam Speaker, price-fixing: The Third Elected Member for George Town made some request that that be explained. It is most simple and basic. It means the collusion by one or more merchants to set a price either artificially high or artificially low for the sole purpose of their benefit to the disregard of anyone else in competition with them, or to the disregard of their clients and customers. Because of its clarity and lucidity and its cultural relevance, I would recommend that the Third Elected Member for George Town, and anyone who opposes this Bill familiarize themselves with the Jamaican Fair Competition Act of 1993.

Madam Speaker, you know something? when I wanted to get information on fair competition and a fair trade commission, I came to the Clerk and (God bless her), made my request and she, in her usual efficiency, got me all the information that I could use. So those Members in opposition to this Motion could have availed themselves of the same privilege so that they would not have to come here and debate in ignorance.

I thank the Government for its support. I must say that I was pleasantly surprised. The only thing I would add is to say that had the Government accepted the Motion in the first place we would probably by now have had the legislation in place.

I thank you for your indulgence. I thank all Honourable Members who spoke, including those who spoke against the Motion. Madam Speaker, my case is closed.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion 27/94: "BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that government explore the possibility of establishing some form of legislation which promotes Fair Competition;

“AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED that the government consider setting up a Fair Trading Commission to complement such Fair Competition legislation.”

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. . . Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, may we have a division please?

The Speaker: You certainly may.

AGREED BY MAJORITY: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION 27/94 PASSED.

The Speaker: We proceed next to Private Member's Motion 28/94 – Request for Government to consider erecting school bus shelters at clearly demarcated school bus stops.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION 28/94

REQUEST FOR GOVERNMENT TO CONSIDER ERECTING SCHOOL BUS SHELTERS AT CLEARLY DEMARCATED SCHOOL BUS STOPS

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 28/94, entitled Request For Government To Consider Erecting School Bus Shelters At Clearly Demarcated School Bus Stops, standing in my name and reading as follows:

“WHEREAS children waiting for school buses should be protected from the elements;

“AND WHEREAS those bus stops erected by the Rotary Club of Grand Cayman Central are useful and efficient;

“AND WHEREAS it is recognized that there is an insufficient number of these stops in areas used by school children;

“BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that Government examine the feasibility of providing adequate bus stops and shelters throughout the Islands.”

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 28/94, having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In my estimation this Motion will find favour among all Honourable Members. I believe that all Honourable Members are of the opinion, and are desirous of our school children who wait for buses to be protected from the elements. Not only that, but to be assembled at clearly demarcated, visible and known areas so that not only will they be safe from the elements of nature, to a certain extent, but that they will also be able to congregate in some safety and security as they stand on the side of the road.

I have had numerous requests (and I am sure that my colleagues and other Honourable Members of this House can say the same) from concerned parents and citizens who would wish to see more school bus shelters established.

The history of those bus stops and bus shelters is very well known, as is also the case that we in this House mentioned this need on numerous occasions. I noted that in the Estimates there is provision made for the sum of $50,000 towards the erecting of some of these shelters.

I have been so concerned with this that at several meetings with my colleagues, the other representatives from Bodden Town, we discussed how we might more effectively provide shelters especially for the children in our constituency as we were often petitioned by parents and guardians about this need. So much so that with the support and agreement of my two colleagues I wrote a letter on the 17th of May to the Rotary Club Central of Grand Cayman inquiring as to how we could be of assistance in getting more of these school bus shelters erected.

Madam Speaker, the secretary, Mr. Fred Speirs, in his reply gave us an insight into the problem. They, the Rotary Club Central of Grand Cayman, had hoped to raise more funds towards the erection of additional bus shelters by realising funds from the advertisements placed in those bus shelters presently. However, he said, failure of a now defunct advertising agency owned by a famous real estate developer to forward revenues to the Rotary Club Central of Grand Cayman prohibited them from going any further so that it seems that the Rotary Club Central of Grand Cayman ran into a problem.

He has offered little hope in this in that he said recently, thanks to the renewed efforts of Rotarian Mario Ebanks, the advertisements have begun to produce some funds, but not yet on the scale hoped to enable us to purchase additional shelters. It is at this point that I wish to acknowledge Government's intention, as witnessed by the provision of $50,000 in the Budget, to help with the erection of more of these shelters.

I commend the Motion to Honourable Members, and I am sure that in their concern for the safety of our school children the Motion will be supported.

Thank you.

The Speaker: At this time proceedings will be suspended until 2. 30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.52 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.35 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 28/94. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town continuing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, I had concluded my introductory statement.

The Speaker: Thank you.

The debate is now open. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to support Private Member's Motion No. 28/94, The Request for the Government to consider erecting School Bus Shelters at clearly demarcated School Bus Stops.

In supporting this Motion, I think of the conditions which prevail in our country at this time, and liken the necessity for bus stops to the necessity for having all of our roads named and houses and buildings and all such parcels in the country numbered.

I think that now is the time for the country to be seriously looking at the question of public transportation. School bussing, when we think of it, is public transportation which is, in most cases, paid for by Government. If we are going to have any decrease in numbers of vehicles in the country, it will only come via the use of more public transportation.

This Motion is asking specifically about school bus stops and school bus shelters. I would like to suggest that within the scope of that description one would have to take into account those bus stops also serving the public in general. Surely, a bus stop which was established to offer shelter to school children would also serve as a bus stop or pick up point for public transportation. I believe that when we think of the usage of school bus shelters, school bus stops, we need to think of it in a wider realm.

Like the mover of the motion, I have been approached about Government assisting with the erection of shelters for school bus stops in Cayman Brac as well. The occasions when attention is focused to this matter is greater during the rainy season when school children must stand on the side of the road to be picked up by the school bus.

However, it serves another purpose as well, it shelters them from the sun on days when it is not raining. It also provides a specific location, where buses may not stop at every single turn in the road. I think in any exercise of establishing these bus stops, it would be necessary to look carefully at how any given district or community is laid out and try to space them at intervals where they would serve the purpose of the most children – certainly, the most people in a particular community or neighbourhood or district as well. I reflect on what I said earlier, in that I can hardly believe that the Government would say that this is a bus stop shelter purely for school children and that no one else could use it.

I am aware that the Rotary Club Central of Grand Cayman did make the first move in providing these in the Islands. I was a member of the Club at the time and I recall very well that it was the intention (of the Club) to sell advertisements within the bus stop shelters. Indeed, they did sell quite a number which were placed on the panels on the sides. In other parts of the world that is standard practice to advertise various goods and services or businesses. We heard that this fell awry and did not proceed any further.

I believe that the information which would be available from the Rotary Club would be information which the Government could well make use of. As I recall, these were designed to certain specifications. Most of them were metal, and after the slab was poured it was quite easy to erect. The integrity of the structure seems to be extremely strong and they should last for a long time. For those that have been erected, I think they speak for themselves, except where vandalism might have occurred.

I think it is good that the Government has responded to what I understand is also a request directly to the Government, and that they have placed some money in the Budget for purchasing and establishing bus stops on the Islands. As I recall the cost at that time was about $5,000, or thereabouts, so I do not think that one could have a huge number of bus shelters provided for this amount, but, certainly, it is a start and it is on Government's own initiative.

I, personally, believe that the Government could readily accept this Motion which has been put forward, which would simply strengthen their hand in that it would have the approval of the Legislature for them to continue what they have already initiated by providing funds.

This is something which I believe is necessary, something which we have grown into in this country. Long gone are the days when school children would be safe walking the roads with their bags on their backs as it was in the past. Some school children nowadays start school much earlier, and if one cannot take those children to school in individual cars then one has to hope that they can ride on the bus. So, from a safety point of view, this situation of a need being created by changing times, and, indeed present times, makes the provision of bus stops a considerable necessity.

I think this Motion is timely and it simply asks for the Government to examine the feasibility of providing adequate bus stops and shelters throughout the islands. Here I would certainly hope that in Government's effort they would not forget the need in Cayman Brac as well, for such shelters.

Since Government has obviously already examined the feasibility and decided to do so, this Motion is very relevant indeed and simply would, if accepted, give the approval of all Members of the House to this particular effort.

Madam Speaker, I support the Motion presently before the House.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to speak on behalf of the Government on Private Member's Motion No. 28/94, which is presently before the House.

A few days ago, this Legislative Assembly gave the Government the go ahead, full approval, to establish bus stops throughout the Island. Under Item 35-280-1, on page 364 of the Budget, one would see a figure of $50,000 for this purpose. Therefore, we cannot see the reason why a Motion is necessary at this time for the facility.

Just to touch on a few points made by the last speaker: I would like to point out that quite early this year I too spoke to members of the Rotary Club, because I am a Rotarian, and encouraged them to once again bring on line the project of establishing bus stops throughout these islands. I assured them at that time that my support as a Rotarian, and as a Minister of Government—and I felt certain that I could speak on behalf of the Government—was there and that we could work together to have these facilities established for the betterment of the people of this country.

Whatever we do will have to be a multi-purpose facility. We cannot cater to the school children only because nowadays there are a lot of individuals who still do not have automobiles and have to use buses to travel throughout the Island. A feasibility study was done, and for this reason Government saw fit to include in the 1995 Budget a sum to have the project started.

We know that $50,000 cannot complete the project but it will give us a start. Established already in certain areas of Grand Cayman are the concrete slabs from the time that the Rotary Club started the project many years ago, so it may not be as costly as we believe.

I believe that as a joint project of the Rotary Club and the Government, we can do exactly what is necessary. On this side of the House, and, indeed, I am sure all Members of the Legislative Assembly, have received similar complaints and requests for the facilities which this Motion is speaking of.

So, as I pointed out earlier, we have the approval of Government already because the Budget was voted on a few days ago. We have already taken it on as a project and, God willing, we are going to take it on first of the year and move on this as speedily as possible. So, at this time, the Government does not see the need for this Motion.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, I rise to give my support to Private Member's Motion No. 28/94.

The Motion reads: "Request for Government to consider erecting school bus shelters at clearly demarcated school bus stops." Madam Speaker, in chronological order, I am sure that the Motion was put through its process, seeking to be put on an Order Paper in this sitting, for some time before the Mover and the Seconder were aware of the $50,000 proposed in the Estimates for this same purpose. It is certainly not an intended duplicated effort.

Having established that and having listened to Government's position on the Motion, I just wish to make a few short comments regarding the Motion as it seems that at this point in time they are not minded to support it.

I understand what the Minister said, it is not a question of being in sync with the Motion; my understanding of what he said is that Government is already dealing with the matter so this Motion is unnecessary. Nevertheless, to each his own, with justifications.

It is my view that having approved the Appropriation Bill which was recently before us, only has said to the Government: 'Yes, we agree with your spending of $50,000 on bus shelters' and there is really no other signal at this point in time. With that in mind, there is no assurance, literally speaking, for continuity of the project because the truth of the matter is that none of us are able to say today exactly what would be priorities down line. I do not think that is an unfair statement because I think in my short tenure here, I have seen variations in priorities.

My view is that if the Motion were to be accepted and given approval, since it is the view of most of us that all Honourable Members wish to see this become a reality, then what the Government has at that point in time by way of this Motion is the political will being accepted by one and all to continue with this project. And regardless of what happens down line, I think anyone would be hard pressed to say it should not be continued.

The point that I make with that is, basically, that if the entire House gave its blessings by way of this Motion, it would simply strengthen the case.

I believe if we look in the Estimates we will see the $50,000 projected to be used during this fiscal spending year, and without having the benefit of looking at it right now, there are probably funds in the projected columns for down line. But, if we are to compare previous Budgets with projected amounts to be used down line, very often when the time comes those amounts change. As I said earlier, we find changes in priority.

So I only say that to reiterate my point that acceptance of this Motion is simply strengthening the Government's position and its commitment to seeing these bus shelters become a reality throughout the Islands.

Going to the physical aspects of the Motion, there are a few points I do not think have been fully raised and I wish to air those.

The safety factor is one that has been talked about and alluded to; it is one we need to ensure everyone realises the importance of. Those of us travelling within the districts (including right here in George Town), if we are on the road during the pick-up or drop-off hours we notice that while it is now law that the buses have doors opening on the left hand side so that no one has to walk around the bus when he exits, the fact is that on many occasions where the buses stop, there are no real (what I would term) pull-off lanes for them to get directly away from the traffic. Common courtesy is extended on most occasions: people going in both directions in vehicles literally wait until the children cross the roads. But the truth is, that it is very risky to be dealing with the matter in that fashion because sometimes one's concentration will not be where it should be and one might not even realise what is happening until there is an accident.

So, my view – whether Government accepts this Motion or not – is that whenever this is being done, wherever physically possible, these shelters need to be placed where buses can pull off the road to do the drop-off or the pick-up. This, to me, is a very important point.

The types of shelters that we have seen around here are fairly durable, but they are certainly not vandal-proof. If advertising is going to be considered as a means of revenue to support the idea, there are ways and means of doing it without making the sides of these shelters from any type of material (glass or something similar) that can be broken.

So, whatever is being thought of along this line, I think it is important that the Government, in tandem with whomever they are working with, will try to acquire a type of shelter that is vandal-proof.

If we look at the main purpose of the Motion regarding school buses, I think both the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the Minister responsible for Communications and Works said in their contributions that the bus shelters need to be used for a wider purpose than just for serving school children. I agree with that, because there is no sense in duplicating the effort. But in the light of the way the shelters need to be done, I think (while not going into a lot of detail of the differences that would have to be required if thinking along the line of children rather than adults) we need to ensure that whatever is done is done for the best interest, and the best safety factors involved for the children. I am sure the adults who may use these shelters afterwards will certainly fall in line with whatever way it is being done.

I sincerely hope that, while this is not a situation that often occurs, the Government will see fit to accept the intentions of the Motion and simply take this opportunity to strengthen their position for continuity by allowing all Honourable Members in this House to support this Motion; work together with regards to the intention of the Motion so that there is no room for doubt in anyone's mind regarding seeing this project to completion. I take this opportunity to beseech them to reconsider the position that we have heard, not for any other reason—because I am sure that we all agree with the principles that need to be applied—for the simple reason of adding strength to any argument that might come up down-the-line so that no one can say that they were not around to deal with this or that. Let us all share the responsibility of making sure that this project, while it is slated to start, will be continued right to the end.

I support this Motion, and I humbly ask the Government to support it also. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, we have heard the reasoning of the Opposition, and I am not going to say they are not genuine in their attempts to get these bus shelters, but the Opposition must accept that when Government says it is going to do something when it has money that it has every good intention to do so.

Their main argument is. . . and we do not need to hear talk about the reasons for the bus shelters, I think the Mover did a good job on that. It is something that previous governments talked about in previous years, and I know that a resolution was brought to this House sometime back, I believe in 1990. Government well understands the reason; that is why money is in the Budget to begin the bus shelters.

So my purpose for rising is to address some matters that the last two speakers spoke about. Madam Speaker, only to kindly remind the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman that the money is in the Budget—the same Budget he did not vote for.

One point raised was that the Motion was tabled before the proposers knew about the provision in the Budget. Well, that might be true, but it was certainly not tabled before our Budget Document was put together and they certainly had sufficient time to withdraw the Motion if they cared to.

I think the one major point that I want to address is the point raised by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town about continuity and priority. I do not think that his point holds any water whatsoever, because we, as the same Government who would support the Motion, as he said, had the political will to put the provision for expenditure in the Budget and we have every intention to carry it through to completion. When I say we as a Government, a majority of this House.

I think what Members need to realise is that this Motion, or any other motion passed by this House, can give no authority to spend unless otherwise signified by the Governor. Finance Committee is the only body and only authority to give permission to spend money. In connection with this matter, we did that in Finance Committee a few days ago when we voted on subhead 35-280. That was a specific Head put by the Financial Secretary which Members voted on to provide the bus shelters.

All Members here have already given their permission for the expenditure, except the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman who did not vote for the Budget.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I was not supporting your tax package.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Well, Madam Speaker, he says the tax package. The tax package is not contained in this Budget, that is a Bill to come later. I thought that the Member had sufficient understanding to know that what is contained here are such things like the $50,000 and other monies for education, health services, all the expenditure that the country needs. He voted against it. He should have saved his vote against for the specific bill when it comes—not to vote against the Budget.

The Budget contains some good expenditure like the one we have now. We have already voted on it.

A good matter raised by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town is the size of the road and the location of the bus shelters. That is the reason why a feasibility study was done which revealed shelters needed to be put a safe distance off the shoulder of the road. In certain districts we may even have to purchase property to ensure that the shelters are safe enough off the road.

They will be properly demarcated in all the districts including the Sister Islands of Cayman Brac. I do not think that there needs to be any big fuss on this, as I said we all agree with the reasoning put forward by the Mover. We have already passed it in Finance Committee and it is a beginning. It is much more than was done by the previous Government who promised that they would do something about it but really did nothing.

So we are on all fours again with the Opposition on the provision, but we do not see the need to support any resolution and, the reasoning put forward by the supporters so far is not sound.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to make my contribution to the debate on Private Member's Motion No. 28/94: Request for Government to consider erecting school bus shelters at clearly demarcated school bus stops.

Madam Speaker, this question has been around for as long as I have been in this House and there is more to it than we have heard here today. The erection of bus shelters along the road necessitates compliance with the Development and Planning Law, it requires the consent of the property owners. I know one previous Government was given a design by a local company which, at that time, was prepared to donate 50 shelters to be erected along the school routes here in Grand Cayman if the design was approved. Unfortunately, it could not get through Planning as Government did not own the property on which they were to be erected. So there is a lot of technicality in this.

The need is definitely there; there is no question in any Member's mind, or anyone in the Cayman Islands, that it is an absolute necessity. Further, I would like to say that I am grateful for the step that Rotary Club took, but I said at that time that I did not think it was a design that was conducive to keeping the children or anyone sitting there out of the elements. It may have prevented them from being in the sun, but we would like to protect students who are prepared to go to school, from getting wet by the rain or splashed by passing vehicles. That is a concern that I have for children waiting to go to school—that they arrive at school in proper attire and in proper condition to attend classes.

So I think this is truly a project that is going to get the co-operation of Government and the Private Sector; the individual landowners will have to give permission. It is something that the Government must naturally be involved in. I am very grateful that they have $50,000 in the Budget today (the 1995 Budget) which will certainly go a considerable way. But I feel we should once again appeal to the private sector to donate these shelters. They are to protect our children and it is certainly a worthy cause.

I think a design should be one that would be symmetrical throughout the two islands that have school buses. If every shelter has a different design it will detract from the road instead of serving a purpose.

First of all, I think that the Director of Planning will have to be brought into this discussion in order that he concurs that these can be built, and if Government does not have property in the area which they would demarcate, then the proper arrangements are made with the landowners. I might also add that it is very important that the Traffic Department be brought in so that these shelters do not in any way affect the visibility along the road.

I feel today that it is time that this country shoulders its responsibilities and that the private sector join with Government in setting up the design and establishing where the shelters be erected and that the private sector supply the funds to have it done.

I do not feel that we should wait for another Government. This is the fourth Government that I have had the privilege of serving under in this Honourable House. Each and every one made attempts to provide bus shelters, but to date, very few have been erected.

Madam Speaker, with these few words I ask, whether this Motion passes or not, let us endeavour to work together to get bus shelters for our people who need them.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I rise to give this Motion my full support because it is calling for something that is very much needed—protection from the elements for our children going to school.

I do not intend to make any long speech, but for any objections which come in the way, I trust that the private sector along with Government will get it straightened out.

There is one other point that I want to make here. While we are waiting on the shelters I would like to see buses get the order to drop the children near their homes or at home whenever they can.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, would the Mover of the Motion wish to exercise his right of reply, thus closing the debate?

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, kindly, Madam Speaker.

In bringing this Motion to the House, the Honourable Members in support of the Motion, certainly, the seconder and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town with whom I discussed it, realised that the Motion for the putting in place of properly erected school bus shelters at clearly demarcated school bus stops, could not be easily done. Certainly, when we saw the $50,000 in the Budget which was allocated by the Government, we realised that that has to be but the beginning: which brings me to explain that that is the reason why we realised that we had to ask the Government to examine the feasibility of providing these shelters.

I think the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman just skirted the points that we took into consideration. I am grateful to him for raising them because it makes it easier for me to explain our position for why we asked the Government to examine the feasibility.

We realised that we cannot just place the bus stops along even strategic junctions in the road. What has to be done has to be a co-ordinated effort on the part of the Lands and Survey Department, on the part of the Planning Department, and also on the part of the Public Works Department.

Ideally, we will see this as an effort which takes some time to lay out. Once the plans have been laid out, then perhaps, it would be a wise idea to circulate and show the routes where the bus stops will be placed before any finalisation or any construction actually begins.

Let me strengthen my argument by providing some statistics which may or may not be known. There are currently some 63 pick-up points for children going to school in Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac—61 on Grand Cayman and, to the best of my knowledge, at least two on Cayman Brac (two that I know of, there may be one more). That makes a total of at least 63 pick-up points. There are 12 in West Bay; 10 in George Town; 20 in Bodden Town; and between East End and North Side there are 11.

This led us, the Opposition, to realise that in order to cover these 63 points there has to be pin-point accuracy and co-ordination. What we are concerned about is that some of these pick-up points can be amalgamated thus reducing the pick-up points and enabling the buses to arrive at school at an earlier time.

A significant point of concern to us also has been the delay in traffic caused by automobiles caught behind school buses making numerous pick-ups. This is especially so coming from the Eastern Districts where throughout the constituency of Bodden Town we have some 20 pick up points. No one can actually cross the school bus at any of those points, therefore, any drivers caught behind the school bus are captive until they reach the turn off point by Red Bay. We contend that that is a major reason for the long snaking line and traffic delays that all who drive that road speak about.

We have estimated the number of children travelling on these buses at over 1,200: about 500 are in George Town; 300 from West Bay; about 250 in Bodden Town; and about 150 from East End and North Side.

We are also of the opinion that if the bus stops and bus shelters were more properly co-ordinated, people who now bring their children to school from these districts, because of the inconvenience of where the bus stop is platooned, will cease and let their children off and let them take the buses to school, thus further easing up traffic congestion in some areas.

I also agree with the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman when he says that we have to pay specific attention to the design of the bus shelters. We would like to pin point that the three of us who planned the Motion realised that, as much as we appreciate the present bus shelters, that they are not as effective as they can be because they do not effectively protect those users from the rain. They are fine for protection from the sun, but they offer little or no protection from the rain, which is another reason why the Motion is asking the Government to examine the feasibility, because we believe the bus shelters can be more effectively constructed or designed.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town brought up another important point which we discussed. We are not convinced that the present bus shelters are vandal proof in a changing Cayman, or that they are as vandal proof as we would like them to be. That is another consideration which led us to say that we would like to see a further examination of this whole system of school bus shelters.

We can not very well withdraw the Motion when we realised that provision was put in the Estimates for some work on school bus shelters, for the reasons which I have just outlined. Also, we see this Motion as further stressing the importance of not only erecting bus shelters which can be used by school children, but by erecting bus shelters which can fit into the well-coordinated traffic flow system which all Honourable Members in this House would like to see and which we are all prepared to work towards.

Let me tell you, Madam Speaker, of a practice that I have noticed is becoming all too familiar. Buses which carry adult passengers are now refusing to pull off onto the shoulders of the road for passengers to embark or disembark—especially where there is a queue of traffic. The bus drivers refuse because they do not want to lose their place in traffic. I am contending that that is going to cause problems, not only by causing someone to run into the back of the bus, but by causing fights and wars. I have, on occasion, seen where people pull up to the side of the bus, roll down their window and proceed to curse and tell off the bus driver. It is the most frustrating experience that one can have and it is the height of inconsiderateness. So that is another reason why we need to have clearly demarcated bus shelters.

I have to say, regrettably, that the drivers I have noticed in this practice are not Caymanian. As bad as some of us Caymanians may be, we have not grown to that point of inconsiderateness as yet. That, in itself, compounds the issue because one Caymanian is likely to be a little forgiving towards the other Caymanian, but when he sees that it is not a brother the same tolerance is not there. It is for this reason also that we, who brought the Motion, did not see fit to withdraw it.

As one Minister said, we are on all fours with the Government that the problem needs to be solved and it can be solved by erecting these bus shelters. We felt that had we withdrawn the Motion we would not have been able to elaborate and get these points and concerns across because the avenue for debate would not have been there.

Now, Madam Speaker, I have to defend my colleague, the Leader of the Opposition. I do not believe that his not voting for the Budget means that he has no regard for seeing these kinds of improvements in the country. On the contrary, I believe that he has made his point quite lucidly.

I know that it is not easy for the Government to retract once it has publicly stated its position. But in consideration of these points just elaborated upon, I ask that it reconsiders its position taking into consideration that we are all together and allow the Motion to carry. The Government then has the mandate to decide what approach to take and how it will be done.

The Minister of Community Affairs is a good spokesman. Let him come back and tell us what Government plans to do and when it plans to do it, but vote yes with us at this time.

Thank you.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: We can tell you that we have done it.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion 28/94: "BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that Government examine the feasibility of providing adequate bus stops and shelters throughout the Islands."

I shall now put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. . . Those against No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can we have a division please, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: You certainly may. Madam Clerk, please take the Division.

The Clerk: Division No. 22/94

AYES: 4

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts
Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell
Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
Mr. Roy Bodden

NOES: 9

Hon. James M. Ryan
Hon. Richard H. Coles
Hon. George A. McCarthy
Hon. W. McKeever Bush*
Hon. John B. McLean
Hon. Anthony S. Eden
Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr
Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks
Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy

ABSENT: 5

Hon. Thomas C Jefferson

Hon. Truman M Bodden
Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson
Mr. G Haig Bodden
Mrs. Edna Moyle

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: We are voting 'No' because it is already in the Budget – the funds are already there.

The Speaker: The result of the Division, four Ayes, nine Noes. The Motion, therefore, has not been carried.

Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 28/94 NEGATIVED BY MAJORITY.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.38 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.59 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

It is now one minute before 4 o'clock. And as was agreed this morning, this would be the time allowed to discuss the matters raised by The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Perhaps I might ask the Honourable Member. . . I hope that he will not go beyond 4. 30, otherwise we will not be able to get out of town today.

RAISING OF MATTERS

MATTER OF THE DEMONSTRATION BY THE CUBAN REFUGEES IN THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, this afternoon I wish to express my appreciation to you in giving your approval that this matter of the demonstration by the Cuban Refugees in the Cayman Islands be discussed, and for the maturity of the House in recognising the great importance that this matter creates.

Madam Speaker, on this occasion I am moved by the fact that I believe as an Elected Representative of the people I should speak to put forward some views on what is happening in our country at this time with the Cuban Refugee situation.

When I got the paper late last night, I simply could not believe what I read on the front page. It is relatively short. I would like to read it, and then express my thoughts on various aspects of it.

It reads: "Cubans at Tent City have been given official permission for women and children to undertake a peaceful march Thursday afternoon to bring international attention on their need for humanitarian visas to the United States."

"According to a Government Information Services press release the Cubans want to attract international attention to their need for visas for families with minor children and the elderly, said Mr. Omar Lorenzo Aguero Garcia, a leader of the camp's re- cently formed Commission. At the same time, he said, the Cubans want to express 'how grateful they are to the people and Government of this country because they have received great hospitality and help from the Cayman Community.'

"The group undertaking the walk will comprise some 300 women and children and will be led by members of the Commission who have been holding discussions with Government on behalf of the camp.

"The march will be from 4:45 pm to 6:00 pm from Tent City across Smith Road to Thomas Russell Way and to Elgin Avenue. In George Town they will assemble at the Government Administration Building where 11 year old Yonsy Gimenez Rodriguez will read the poem, 'Gentle Cayman.' The poem was composed by Mr. Aguero, a clinical psychologist, following his arrival in Cayman.

"Mr. Aguero and other members of the commission will also speak to the press on their need for visas and the gratitude they have for the Cayman community.

"A police escort will be provided and motorists travelling these routes between 4:45 and 6:00 pm are advised to expect some delay and diversion.

"Commissioner of Police, Alan Ratcliffe, who met with members of the Commission to discuss the event, said that the commission had assured the police and Government that the march and assembly at the Government Administration Building would be orderly." We see that this is a GIS (Government Information Services) report.

Madam Speaker, in all sincerity and in truth, before God, my fellow legislators and you, I think that for the first time in the history of the Cayman Islands we are in a state of madness.

It has been quite impossible, since last night to now, for me to truly reconcile in my mind that we could possibly imagine letting out illegal immigrants, aliens in our society, allowing them onto our streets to march on our seat of Government. I cannot really imagine that that is in this paper. I cannot.

We are talking about persons who came to these shores illegally. I am not here to try to say what their conditions were in the country of their birth, that is, Cuba. I have heard many stories. My general impression is that it is not good. But they came of their own will and volition. Upon reaching the shores of this country they have said they are going to stay here and not go back from whence they came.

I know of no instance from the time that these Islands existed where a similar condition occurred where Caymanians are concerned.

I think that among these people there are those who, if we had knowledge of their past, we would not want them in Cayman.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True enough!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: It is absolutely frightening. Among those persons there have to be some criminals. We do not know, and we will never know.

The Law says that any such country as the Cayman Islands found in this situation has the right to arrest and detain such persons until steps are taken to send them back to the country they came from, or for them to be repatriated elsewhere or arrangements made for them to stay here.

This country has given the Cuban nationals here every consideration beyond any situation I think obtained for Cubans leaving Cuba since that has been re-occurring. But how do we arrive at a situation where they can apply to our Governor and our Commissioner of Police for approval to leave the place of detention to go to march on the Governor? It would be similar to us letting the prisoners at Northward march on the Court House or on the Judge who sentenced them to prison.

It is not the Government of my country that can give them visas, it is the United States that can give these persons visas to travel there. I am told that the Government of my country is attempting to negotiate with the United States for them to get such visas. So what are they marching on the Government of my country about? Why are they being let out of the camp to march and protest to the Government of my country? For being treated too well?

Yesterday, the First Elected Member of Government told this House that for 90 days the cost to our country, our people and our treasury, for having these persons here was $1,431,472. That did not take into account the 30 days in November. If we take one-third of that and add it to that sum, at the end of this month we should have spent $1,908,630—approximately $2 million in 120 days.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, may I just say that while provision is made in our Standing Orders for a matter of urgent public importance to be debated on a Motion for the adjournment, and for a time to be set—which is now—this is something which each person, I am sure, would like to say a bit on. The Honourable First Official Member is responsible for this subject and he naturally would give Government's statement on the issue.

As I said, our Standing Orders are silent on the procedure but in other places half an hour is allowed for such a matter. So, I just wish you to take that in mind and not go too far on any other subject except the specifics of the demonstration and the peaceful march this afternoon.

Thank you.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, just to make sure I am understanding your advice, the whole discussion should take half an hour, or do I have half an hour?

The Speaker: No, the whole discussion should take half an hour, at 4. 30 there will be the interruption of business.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I have grave concern with this situation because as I look at the eminent economic disaster that is facing this country with Cubans being here and us paying for them, I consider the fact that we have heard that Government has in some instances stopped monies as small as $25 or $50 for our own people. We know that with the ongoing presence of these persons, there is a major dislocation in the Government services: in Immigration, the Police, Customs, Social Services, Hospital Services, Education. Madam Speaker, it is never ending. This evening these persons are being allowed onto our streets with the assurance from themselves that they are going to be peaceful.

I really cannot comprehend it. Only today, and yesterday, certain Members expressed concerns about having a commission set up to deal with the matter on the Law to come, and there is a Commission set up in the camp.

These persons, 300 of them (women and children) are supposed to be taking to our streets shortly. I wonder if any thought was given to the fact that when all of the women and children are out of the camp what will happen there with the men who are left behind? Is that for some particular happening or occurrence?

I seriously wonder if such concerns were taken into account; if such concerns were thought out as to what they might do back in the Camp, from a safety perspective of this country. I am also told that other than these persons who are supposedly going to be let out of that detention camp legally, there are assumed to be about 60 people loose in the country and no one really knows where they are.

In the same newspaper today, we see where 55 police have been brought in from the United Kingdom. I wish it were 555, if we could afford it, for I believe that we have a serious need for security in this country. This, again, is an additional expense. Can we possibly conceive bringing the officers here to guarantee a march to bring international attention to the visas which they say they want?

I really wonder about and ponder this situation. The question of security should have been thought about. Last week these same people, who have been given access to walk our streets and demonstrate before our seat of Government, broke down the fences which had them contained while we hear the Chief Immigration Officer say that it was watched and no one tried to stop them as they came out for a walk in the evening sun.

Something is wrong. It has to be stopped. This country is in grave danger economically and from a security perspective. I do not believe it is possible to state what is happening now too strongly.

How is it that our religious persons are talking about us treating them properly, as we are doing—and by treating them and entertaining them properly we might be entertaining angels—how can this be consistent with what is happening today? I do not know, but I am concerned and I believe that the Government – and I speak specifically to the elected representatives of this country. For while the Official Members have clear responsibility, and have clear duties prescribed to them under the Constitution and by the Governor, the people of this country did not elect those particular Members. They elected the others. And what will happen is that other Members and I will hear concerns expressed to us about those Honourable gentlemen who are supposed to not allow these things to happen – or, finding the solutions to these situations.

Madam Speaker. . .

The Speaker: You are not leaving much time for the Honourable First Official Member, or any other Member. I am going to propose the adjournment at 4. 30.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, if you will just allow me another minute, I will try to summarise. I was not aware of the time limitation, but I do appreciate your guidance on this.

There is so much that comes into play in this particular matter that the time simply does not allow me to go further. All that I propose is that I could summarily say at this time is that I believe it is wrong; it is a mistake that this demonstration should be allowed in this country; it can serve the people of this country no good; it will serve the people of this country no good; it should not happen.

I say again to the Honourable Ministers of Government, and I implore you, conditions have to be handled otherwise, irrespective of the opinions that may vary from your own. I dare say we hear opinions similar to what I have expressed here. And I do state my gravest concern for what is happening to this country with regard to the Cuban Refugees being here, the demonstration this evening, and the results afterwards.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to make a statement on the matter that is now before the House, the matter of the peaceful march planned by the Cubans, women and children, later this afternoon. With your indulgence, I would like to read a short statement on this.

“As reported in today's Caymanian Compass [Thursday 1st December, 1994] Government has agreed to allow the women and children of Tent City to undertake a march culminating in a peaceful demonstration and the reading of a Poem by one of the children in front of the Government Administration Building at approximately 1700 hours today.

“This has been discussed and agreed with the Commissioner of Police and the Chief Immigration Officer, and police officers will be in attendance.”

“I would like to make it abundantly clear that the object of the demonstration and the reason for it ending at the Government Administration Building is only because this is a focal point to bring to the attention of the international media [and it is my understanding that reporters from the Miami Herald and TV Marti and others are due in this afternoon] in particular the United States, the plight of the Cuban migrants in the Cayman Islands and the difficulty of their situation.

"In this way it is hoped that the United States Government might look sympathetically at the possibility of families with children, the old and infirm, being allowed direct entry into the United States as we understand is being done quietly from at least one of the other safe havens that the United States now operates.

"This possibility and other options are also being explored through diplomatic channels. The demonstration is not intended [let me emphasise not intended] to be aimed at the Government or the people of the Cayman Islands. Action by the Cubans has come as a result of constructive discussions between Government and the recently formed Cuban Committee." [There is a 14-man committee at Tent City that speaks for the Cubans and this is the Committee to which I refer.]

Madam Speaker, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has pointed out the eminent economic disaster facing this country by the upkeep of Cubans and I am the first to state that it is costing this country a great deal of money—I gave that information yesterday. However, this is one way of us trying to reduce the numbers of Cubans here, thereby reducing the cost. I should like to say that the Government has been exploring all avenues, all possibilities. Wherever suggestions are made they are considered and explored in an effort to bring the situation to a successful conclusion.

I can understand the concern of the public in this matter, but I should like to assure this Honourable House and the listening public that the Government has looked very carefully at this matter and security is a top priority; security at the tented facility while the march is going on and security around the marchers.

I trust that the march will be what it is intended to be—a peaceful one. I can only say that all efforts have been taken by Government, the matter has not been dealt with lightly, it has been taken with a great deal of discussion and a great deal of input from all concerned. We hope that we will have a peaceful demonstration.

I was a little surprised, perhaps on a lighter note, to hear the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman state that it is a frightening situation. He looks to me like a pretty powerful fellow and I would not have thought that he would have been afraid of women and children. But we hope that there will be no confrontation.

Madam Speaker, I thank you for your indulgence.

MOTION TO SUSPEND STANDING ORDER 10(2)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I note your message to the House awhile ago, but I am going to ask that under Standing Order 83 we suspend the adjournment—Standing Order 10(2)—until 5. 00 p. m. , and ask Members to be brief because I know that people have commitments on a Thursday afternoon.

The Speaker: The question is that the moment for the adjournment should be suspended until 5. 00 p. m. to allow other Members who may wish to debate this matter to do so.

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. . . Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Orders are accordingly suspended and we shall adjourn at 5 o'clock.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 10(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: It is hard to get up in the Legislature to say that a matter is not under our control. I know that people may not understand that but the simple truth is, to an extent, our hands are tied.

I must confess to this honourable House that these have been six trying months – probably the worst in my life – when I've felt so helpless because we are a small territory, we have no real defence and we are a gullible people.

This Government has done everything possible to accommodate the Cubans. I do not think anybody would deny that statement. We have an obligation to these Cuban nationals under international regulations, under the United Nations; it is something that we cannot get out of. We are no longer the Islands that time forgot; we are part of the world and international problems affect these Cayman Islands. This is probably one of the worst yet to have hit us. It is a problem that we are bound to under international regulations.

Now, Madam Speaker, that is not to say that we should throw up our hands in despair, and that has not been the case. As I said, we have bent over backwards, we have spent monies that could rightly have been spent in other areas. I should mention, since it was referred to, that monies that may have been stopped by the Social Services Department was not a decision by the Government; the Department took it upon itself to do this after it claimed that it had made some re-evaluation. This has since been rectified, and I think I stated earlier that I have given policy decision that this is not to be done again unless it passes my desk.

As a Government we have gone to Washington at least twice and have had discussions with the States Department, the Immigration and the Defense Department at the very highest level. This matter is not one which the United States Government has acted on quickly: it has dragged its feet. It has sympathy in certain areas, but I believe that in the majority, at least in one of the main departments—the Defense Department—we have received no sympathy.

The United Kingdom politicians have no sympathy whatsoever to the situation here. While from our information a good many of the officials – not elected, but civil servants in higher office – seem to have been trying to help us, there has not been anything tangible forthcoming.

When I went to Canada for the CPA Meeting, the new Minister in charge of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, Mr. Baldry, arranged for me to have an audience with him. We had a good discussion and, again, what happened is that he claims he understands our problem, but there was no offer for any assistance. Mr. Baldry, I understand, is coming to this country shortly—in fact this month.

One of the problems there ... the Cubans are bad enough, but our own people, some Caymanians, are too passive and simply too gullible – too willing to be kind even to people who in the majority do not appreciate it. Time and time again I have said to the constituents throughout this country do not ask us to do something about visiting because I think that is a camp and that should remain a camp. They are not here under our blessings—they are only here under United Nations Regulations and we have to abide by that. Everybody understands what it could mean to the Cayman Islands if we were stopped from flying into the United States, if the international community took a stand against us. Everybody understands what would happen to our little country. That is our position.

At the same time, we cannot allow the Cubans to run this country. It is going to be difficult, and I will probably have to explain this to the Governor, but I am an Elected Member by the people of this country and from the beginning, I have put it in writing, I do not appreciate how things have been handled at that camp. I have said this to the Governor and in this instance I did not agree for this march to take place. I do not see the reason for it. The United Nations, the United States, the United Kingdom—everybody knows their plight.

Now I think the Officials in Government who took the step to do this took it upon themselves to try to diffuse the growing friction at the camp. I cannot say that I blame them. But I must tell this House that I was not in agreement with the planned march. I think I speak on behalf of my two colleagues who I hope will mention something themselves.

The Government is elected, but we all know the Constitution and especially in this matter, His Excellency the Governor has the say. We can tell him how we feel, but he does have the say. In this instance he planned and agreed with the Commissioner of Police and the Chief Immigration Officer.

I do not agree with it. I hope it goes well. I know that precautions have been taken. I know that we have police from the United Kingdom coming, and the very thing that was mentioned by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman concerning what would happen at the camp, all precautions have been taken. We have stated in no uncertain terms to them that it had better be taken because this is our country.

Madam Speaker, we can say no more. I think we have administered our office faithfully in this matter. As Elected Members we have told the public as much information as could be given out. Maybe I will be reprimanded this afternoon, but I do not care. Enough is enough, and I have had enough of these Cubans. I will abide by the United Nations Regulations, but I have had enough of being soft and taking a soft action locally, towards them. I have said this before too, and I will say it again, that is what we have a Police Force for; that is our only protection.

I will say that everybody concerned has been doing a fantastic job. My staff has gotten to the point where tears are now flowing. We have said this to the international community. We have said this to the United Kingdom, we have said this to the United States—manpower-wise we are strapped. We are suffering under extreme circumstances. I cannot put it any clearer to the Honourable Members of this House. I hope they understand the situation.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, there are certain times in this House when someone wishes he were on the other side, because once in Government you are tied by collective responsibility. But I have to say that I, too, share the concerns that I have heard here this evening. For a long time I have been concerned. I believe I have been exposed to this thing more than most Members and what is here today is something that I saw coming for some time.

I support my colleague in saying that I in no way will ever support such a demonstration, because while those people are going to read a poem called 'Gentle Cayman', they do not know the word gentle. It is unfortunate to say, but as far as I am concerned this is the only rock that I know, and if they come to it (and Caymanians being the individuals they are received them with open arms), I believe that this behaviour is far from being good.

Like my colleague said, I do not care if someone wants to knock me on the knuckles for what I am saying here, but I have my rights and my first respect must be shown to the people of this country. If I support somebody coming here who cannot be here as a refugee, then as far as I am concerned their status as a refugee has changed and it is either refugee or criminal. I am very concerned where this thing will end, and I trust that as of today the United Kingdom Government will realise that all that the Elected Members have been doing, and trying to do and pleading with, I trust that our voices will be heard and they will come forward before this thing gets out of hand.

We can see the determination of these people. We have tried in every way and, while I must say that I understand what the Commissioner of Police and the Governor are trying to do, I really wonder if we can continue to handle these people with kid-gloves. I believe the time has come when we will have to take a stand in this country—it is costing us anyway. As far as I am concerned with this kind of behaviour this evening, we may have a lot of bad publicity abroad. In my own way of seeing it, it seems foolish when foreign nationals are going to come here and demonstrate against the people's representative of this country and against the Queen's representative — coming to us from a communist land where they could not do it. This is ridiculous. I am very concerned about this matter, being a representative of the people of this country, and a Minister, and also being in this House for many moons.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I will not be very long.

I also oppose the action that has been allowed in this country with regard to a demonstration and a march. My position from the beginning has not changed. My position has always been that the United Kingdom, which is supposed to be responsible for external affairs, is responsible for the situation that we have at the present time. I must say that, as an Elected Member, I am deeply disappointed with the lack of action or interest from the United Kingdom. I believe that as far as we are concerned, we can go to the United States, but the United States has no responsibility whatsoever to us—no obligation to us whatsoever. The United Kingdom is responsible for that situation and I believe they should not only address the situation, but they should have volunteered and told the Cayman Islands that they are prepared to give us $2 million, $3 million, to assist with this situation until it can be resolved one way or the other.

I am deeply disappointed with the attitude of the United Kingdom. It is my firm opinion that we are going to have these people around for a very long time. It is up to us, because I do not believe the United States is going to do anything, and I do not think the United Kingdom Government is going to do anything, and it is costing us. We need to take whatever action is necessary in order to resolve the situation in our best interest.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I, too, rise to speak on this tragic situation that has literally been slammed down on the people of this country.

To follow up on what the previous speaker just said, I tend to support that 100%. I think it is a disgrace that the Mother Country being responsible for us will sit down and let this go on. They can send troops and ships to Haiti and other countries; they can send 50 million pounds/dollars to Vietnam, and here we are being penalised for success. I think what is happening to us is unbelievable.

I must say that. . . and thank God that my poor dead mother did not treat me the way the Mother Country is now treating the Cayman Islands.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Hear, hear!

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: We are being penalised for success just because we have a balanced budget, because we can handle our own affairs. Why must we be left to fend for ourselves? Are we not going to get this help until we are down on our knees and are crumbling? It is a disgrace.

I share the concern of all the Members here regarding what is happening in our peaceful country that has risen to the top of any economic thing that we can get. Here we are being humiliated as we go along. I think it is a shame. Despite the situation and the problems that the Cubans are now having, they must learn to realise that they came here and must work with us and be patient.

His Excellency the Governor has spent hours and hours on the telephone, our representatives went to the United States and wherever possible. Here we are this evening faced with a crisis that never before in the history of these Islands have we had. I hope we can all stick together on this issue.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Madam Speaker, I want to say something on this matter too.

I am very concerned over this issue. The Cuban refugees are offered more here than most of our Caymanian people are getting. The thing about it is that they are illegal immigrants in our country. They should be abiding by our laws, not demanding to have demonstrations. I have never heard of refugees having demonstrations in any other country.

I have witnessed camps in other places, and these people are blessed; Cayman took them in with open arms and this is what spoiled it. We gave them the break from the beginning that they have never had, some have never known anything about good treatment, and now they are overdoing it.

These are people who you cannot trust—you are not talking about Caymanians, you are talking about Latin people. How many Latin countries today are good? Let us face facts. Something has to be done, and done quickly.

I think that instead of letting them demonstrate here we should be putting pressure on the Mother Country to relieve us of this burden that we are carrying. I am going to say this now: if nothing more comes out of this demonstrator I will be surprised. When you talk about security, what security do we have? They are sending in more police. You can take police and fight guerrillas? Do we know what is in that bunch there? We do not know.

So with that, I say let us try to put a stop to it some way or another. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: From the time that I made my contribution to the Budget Address, I mentioned how I personally felt about the Cuban situation in the Island. From the time they started arriving on our shores I could foresee that problems would take place.

We know that the Government has done so much to contain the problem, to address the problem, to seek for a solution and it seems like there is no immediate solution to the problem.

I remember meeting with the Governor and I suggested at that time that it would be in our interest—and considering that it was the United Kingdom that signed the international treaty making us obligated to honour this treaty, the United Kingdom is a large country with over 55 million people, it is much better able to cope with over 1,000 refugees than we are—I suggested that it would be a lot cheaper for everyone concerned to send them to the United Kingdom and let them deal with the problem.

Evidently people thought that I was joking at the time. I still feel that these people should be sent to the United Kingdom. The United Kingdom will say that it is not their problem. That is like saying that we can just stay and suffer it out and find our own solution the best way that we can. I do not think that the United Kingdom is honouring their obligation. I believe that we have been left high and dry, stranded to fend for ourselves and at the same time we are not given the liberty to make decisions in our own interest.

If it were left to many Caymanians, they would have offered these Cubans food and petrol and asked them to continue on their journey and wish them God's blessings. But we were not allowed to do that and we started on this humanitarian course doing as much as we can and now we are obligated, it appears, to continue giving all the care we started to give.

I still believe that the best thing to do with the Cubans is to try to negotiate with the United Kingdom. I know that the Governor has said that this has already been attempted, but perhaps it should be put to the United Kingdom Government again. If they are not going to assist any more than they are doing, then at least free us from the international obligations and let us do what we think is best in our own interest. I believe we are quite capable of solving the problem, but if our hands are going to be tied that is what limits us here.

Like other Members, I am extremely disappointed (and I said this previously) with the actions of the United Kingdom Government and that will not change unless I have reason to. I hope that a solution to the problem is found, I certainly do not support this demonstration. We have been told that it is going to be a peaceful demonstration, we have been told that they are going to say a lot of good things about Cayman and try to attract international attention so that something can be done. Believe you me, the international community will perceive it in the way that they want to.

I do not support the demonstrations, I do not even support them being in our midst and I feel that it should be us demonstrating.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Unfortunately, I have been away for the last four days due to a very serious illness in my family and I just arrived back on the island; I have come here straight from the airport.

However, I am very surprised to understand that the Cubans, who are illegal immigrants, not refugees with any rights, are now beginning to demonstrate. This is going to hurt this country. It may be good for them, but it is bad for us. We have managed in the last two years to have our people remain peaceful with the exception of one small instance, and now we have people here, illegal immigrants, who are going to hurt the tourism of this country.

Basically, as I see it, they are biting the hand that feeds them and there could not be a more direct statement than that—they are biting the hand that feeds them. This thing has to stop. When they are gone and tourism is hurt, repairing it is not going to be an easy thing. Damage once done is not easily rectified.

We have done everything we can to be humane and to assist them. The time that we spent with the British and in the United States in Washington, we have done everything we can from that point of view. But we have a situation where this is costing this country a lot of money. While the European Economic Community is prepared to stand some costs on this, it is a small amount. As I understand it, it is only in the vicinity of one-seventh or one-sixth of the cost. Therefore, this country, if the Cubans remain here, will have to pay several million dollars per annum. If that is $2 million or $3 million, whatever it costs to keep them, then the people of this country are going to have to pay it through higher taxes. There is no way around it at this stage if we have to take on a burden of several million dollars. I do not think that is right for our people.

It is costing us twice as much to keep one Cuban as we are paying to our poor. That situation cannot go on. It is bound to cause civil commotion. As I see it, this is very worrying because the next approach is that Caymanians are going to get very upset because as soon as they are told how much this is going to cost them, then a lot of the sympathy that is out there is going to disappear.

Along with this, Madam Speaker, we do not know who those 1,200 people are; we do not know if they are out of prisons. Have they been screened? We do not know whether they are good or bad. There are obviously good and bad amongst them. But this is now the beginning of them exerting rights, which legally they do not have. This is what is worrying at this stage because the 12 who are refugees (I think it is 12 or 14) under the International Convention on Refugees with the United Nations will have to be resettled here. But there is no legal obligation to do the same thing for people who are only economic migrants.

I do not know what the answer is going to be, but at this stage I see it as a very serious matter. I do not know how much the House knew in relation to this, specifically, but presumably it was known. The House has to pull together, regardless of whether we are Government or Opposition, and try to solve this problem because it is going to affect all of us.

The situation is very worrying. I see this demonstration as 'biting the hand that feeds them', because if the tourist dollar has to be cut and this country is going to suffer as a result of people who are here and we are giving them $3 million or $4 million a year to keep them, that we are not giving to our own poor or putting into our schools, then I see that as a serious matter.

The other thing, integrating 1,200 people who are Spanish-speaking in a country this small is, in my view, impossible. A small amount we can take, but if this demonstration is aimed at integrating that full amount, there is no way we can deal with it. Our schools cannot deal with it, our economy cannot deal with it, and that aspect is out.

So what I would say is that we, as Members of this House, are going to have to sit down and see what we can find as a possible way out. I do not understand why they are not prepared voluntarily to go across to Panama or some place else or try to solve the problem themselves. They are not going to solve it by hurting the economy of this country.

I appreciate you are going to suspend shortly, Madam Speaker, but it does worry me. I think it worries all of us in here and I think the whole Cayman Islands need to get together and try to figure out a solution to this problem before we get carried down and we are in a similar plight as Cuba now is, in the respect of not having the sufficient economy within us to cope with the expense that is there. That is the only way I mean it.

In other words, it is going to hurt us economically. They are hurting economically. We did not bring them here; the Americans assisted in enforcing this situation and they have not helped us. The British have done practically nothing and agreed that the European people are going to help us but it is a very small amount. So the burden of this has to be carried by the people of this country and to carry it means raising duty or taxes or fees or something if we are going to keep this country on a steady footing.

Thank you.

The Speaker: It is now after 5 o'clock, and this has just been a debate; there is no motion to be put. If eventually Members get together and put together a motion for the consideration of the House, that will be well and good, but at this time I will ask for the motion for the adjournment of the House.

The Honourable Minister for Communications and Works.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I call for the adjournment of this Honourable House until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. . . Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 5.04 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 2 DECEMBER 1994.

FRIDAY
2 DECEMBER, 1994
10.13 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to say prayers.

the Standing Business Committee of meetings held on 2nd and 14th September, 1994.

PRAYERS

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Order. Proceedings are resumed. Presentation of Papers and Reports. Report of the Standing Business Committee. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

REPORT OF THE STANDING BUSINESS COMMITTEE MEETINGS HELD 2ND AND 14TH SEPTEMBER, 1994

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House the Report of

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, the Committee met on two occasions – Friday, the 2nd September, and Wednesday, the 14th September, 1994. There were a total of eight (8) Business Papers that set out the Business for the Third Meeting of the Legislative Assembly, and those are appended to the Report. The Committee agrees that this Report be the report of the Committee to be laid on the Table of this honourable House.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

The Speaker: Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 171, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member of George Town.

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 171

No. 171: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture to state: (a) how many applications have been received to date under the Government Low Income Housing Scheme; (b) how many have been approved; and (c) what percentage of guarantee has been required in each case.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the answer is: (a) Sixty-eight applications have been received by Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce as of today (2nd December); (b) The Financial Secretary's Guarantee Committee has received 14 applications from the Bank. Of these, ten have been approved and four deferred. The four deferred have various problems such as total debt service ratio. The Bank and the client are presently working together to address these problems. I understand they will be dealt with at a meeting today.

It is expected that another 15 applications will be received from the Bank shortly. This will bring the total value of the mortgages over the $3 Million allocated for the first year of the Scheme under the Agreement.

(c) In all cases to date, the maximum amount of the Government Guarantee (being up to 35% of the upper layer of the principal) have been requested.

It is expected that as all parties become fully familiar with the practicalities of the Agreement and clarify operational issues that the proportion of deferrals will be much reduced.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Although it might seem to be straying just a bit, I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say, in the light of recent developments, if he expects in short order applications through other institutions or is it going to be CIBC for quite sometime?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I think that is a fair question. The agreement, as we all know, three different banks have pending agreements and should be signed shortly. In fact, the House has been given a date of 31st December for them to comply with this agreement. If not those funds will be allowed to be used for other institutions which now want to come into the scheme.

CIBC, as I have said to make it absolutely clear, has used up thus far their $3 million. They have sufficient applications to satisfy that amount of money.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, just a quick follow up to ensure that I totally understand. Assuming CIBC would have completed their quota in short order and the timing, namely, 31st December for the remaining institutions, is it that if they do not sign the agreement within that time Government would be actively seeking other institutions to participate so that it will not be stymied by way of the quota?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In fact the Government has already received enquiries from other institutions to come into the scheme. I am ready and now have approval from the Finance Committee to do so, that is, to allow them to come in.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. We now proceed to Government Business, Bills. First, the suspension of Standing Order 46.

Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 46

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I believe whether we take the Bill this morning or on Monday, we will still have to probably suspend Standing Orders.

So in accordance with Standing Order 83, I move the suspension of Standing Order 46 to allow the Port Authority (Licensing of Vehicles) Bill, 1994, to be taken this morning.

The Speaker: Perhaps you could also include the other bill because it is outside the time frame and the suspension would apply to both of them.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In accordance with Standing Order 83, I move the suspension of Standing Order 46 to allow the Port Authority (Licensing of Vehicles) Bill, 1994, and the Tourist Accommodation (Taxation) (Amendment), Bill 1994, to be taken this morning.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Orders be suspended to allow the Bills to be dealt with at this Sitting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Orders are accordingly suspended. First Reading.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 46 SUSPENDED TO ALLOW BILLS TO BE TAKEN.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

FIRST READING

THE PORT AUTHORITY (LICENSING OF VEHICLES) BILL, 1994

Clerk: The Port Authority (Licensing of Vehicles) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and set down for Second Reading. [Discusses which Bills should be done – Tourist Accommodation, and/or Port Authority] The Port Authority needs to be done first, we cannot do first readings without second. Let us do the second reading of the Port Authority.

SECOND READING

THE PORT AUTHORITY (LICENSING OF VEHICLES) BILL, 1994

Clerk: The Port Authority (Licensing of Vehicles) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, the Bill which is now before the House, a Bill for a Law to confirm and make provisions for the Port Authority's Licensing of certain vehicles and persons to apply outside and in a Port or Port area is a result of guidelines which we advertised, to the best of my memory, from about August of last year until the early days of January. We advertised those guidelines to cover tour buses and taxis that operate at the Port in order to acquaint them and give them adequate time to become familiar with the contents of the guidelines.

Those guidelines were brought into force in January of this year. As a result of bringing those guidelines into force, we then took legal advice and discovered that we needed some more legal authority in order for those guidelines to be administered and control of taxis and tour bus operations at the Port to be under legal authority.

This Bill basically speaks to the contents of those guidelines. As a matter of fact, in clause 8 of this Bill it talks about bylaws. These bylaws are going to be the guidelines that are already in place which all of the people who operate at the Port have signed in agreement with its content.

The Bill is really to strengthen (if I could go over this ground once more) the powers of the Port Authority in respect of the recently introduced arrangement, meaning the guidelines for taxis and tour buses operating from the Port at George Town. These arrangements are proving to be a great benefit for the enhancement of the tourism industry which is of considerable importance to the livelihood of the taxi drivers and operators.

This Bill will enable the Authority to have more effective control over enforcing the arrangements with drivers and operators of taxis licenced by the Port Authority.

In clause 3 of the Bill, it speaks to the functions of the Port Authority and those functions are listed. Maybe I should read them: "3. (1) In addition to the functions conferred on the Port Authority by or under the Port Authority Law, the functions of the Port Authority shall... include, and shall be deemed always to have included—

“(a) the licensing of vehicles used or proposed to be used—(i) for standing or plying of hire; (ii) for the carriage of passengers for hire or reward; and (b) the licensing of persons to act as operators or drivers of vehicles used or proposed to be used— (i) for standing or plying for hire; or (ii) for the carriage of passengers for hire or reward.

“(2) Any licence granted by the Port Authority in exercise of the functions conferred under paragraphs (a) and (b) of subsection (1) above shall apply (and may contain conditions that apply) outside as well as inside a port or port area; and any such licence which applies outside a port or port area shall be without prejudice to any requirement relating to the vehicle or person so licensed which is imposed by or under the Traffic Law (Revised) or the Traffic Law, 1991.”

Madam Speaker, I think all Honourable Members and the majority of the public if not all, are aware that the authority for licensing taxi drivers and buses or cars rests with the Police under the Traffic Law. This legislation is causing them to have a licence if they are to operate from the Port (and that is presently the case). All taxi drivers and their vehicles operating from the Port have been examined by the Port Authority and as a result of that, it has been agreed that those persons and those vehicles are capable and should be allowed to operate from the Port.

This licensing of vehicles, as far as this Law is concerned, shall be done; the Port Authority shall grant a licence under this section unless the Authority is satisfied that the vehicle is suitable in type and design to be used as a bus, or as the case may be, a taxi that is in suitable mechanical condition, it is safe, and it is comfortable.

The Bill also deals with the licensing of drivers under clause 6 which basically says that: "6. (1) The Port Authority shall [not] grant a bus or taxi driver's licence under this section— (a) unless the Authority is satisfied that the applicant is a fit and proper person to hold such a licence; or (b) to any person who has not for at least twelve months been, and is not at the date of the application for a licence, the holder of— (i) a valid bus licence; or (ii) a valid taxi driver's licence granted under the Traffic Law (Revised) or the Traffic Law, 1991.”

This Law also gives anyone who is aggrieved by the non-approval of a licence of a vehicle, or maybe a suspension from the Port operation, 21 days to appeal the decision of the Port Authority to a summary court.

The Law also speaks to offences in clause 9 of the Bill, and I believe that is really in line with the operating procedures now at the Port — the guidelines I referred to earlier. It gives a penalty: "A person guilty of an offence under this section shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding $2,000, and to a further fine not exceeding $250 for every day on which the offence continues after a person has been convicted of that offence.”

But more appropriately the legislation is being put in place to ensure that taxi drivers or tour bus operators operating from the Port, taking visitors from one point to another, behave responsibly; that they appear sober; that their cars are suitable for that kind of service; that they present themselves properly; that they charge the correct rates.

We know that taxi drivers in any country are some of the first people visitors come in contact with. We want to ensure that the service at the Port is put at the proper level and while we are committed to assisting taxi drivers and tour bus operators who operate from the Port, we are also going to insist on the quality of service that they give to the visitors to this country. It is too easy to charge the wrong rate. It is too easy to just run up and down and drop people off and not tell them anything. It is a time to deliver the services and allow the visitors to get value for money for the services they are provided.

As Chairman of the Port Authority it is going to be my wish and intention to deal with everyone who operates at the Port in a fair way, but likewise, I am going to insist that there are proper standards for taxi drivers and proper behaviour either in the Port or in the car or bus they are driving. Otherwise, I can tell all Honourable Members now that there are going to be suspensions: you will have to take me to task if you wish, but it will happen.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Port Authority (Licensing of Vehicles) Bill, 1994, be given a Second Reading. The Motion is open for debate.
[Pause]

If there is no debate, then perhaps the Honourable Minister would make any concluding remarks he has to make. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I think it is good that this Bill has been brought to the House to regulate what has been a long outstanding need at the Port Authority where the operation of taxis and buses is concerned.

I understand, from what the Minister responsible has said, that he intends to enforce this Law to its fullest and I think that is quite commendable.

I, personally, believe that much of the slackness we hear about involving vehicles for hire in the country on a whole, is because laws or regulations are not firmly enforced, and surely it is now time. This is so, particularly in view of the fact that there are such increasing numbers of visitors to these islands, and there will be more and more persons who come in contact with taxi operators.

In most countries of the world the first person that a visitor meets after the Immigration and Customs Officer is the taxi driver. It is also from taxi drivers that visitors worldwide generally enquire about places, directions and costs of reaching there. Taxi drivers do play a vital role in the tourism business.

In Cayman it has been that way for many years. I have known of visitors to these islands who have struck up personal relationships with taxi drivers that when they come here they particularly request that person to drive them, and indeed, they recommend their friends to those persons. Relationships grow to the extent that we find good public relations between different nationalities stemming out of good service that customers have found available to them in some instances in the Cayman Islands.

I notice that a lot of the day-to-day operations will be covered by bylaws, which amount to regulations (I think in this particular case), and perhaps this is the best way of handling it because conditions do change and it might be necessary to vary, amend or add to the particular regulations. If it were set down in the Law it would have to come of course to the Legislative Assembly for changes.

I see under offences that in section 9(1) except as authorised by the Port Authority no bus or taxi will be allowed for standing or plying for hire; or for the carriage of passengers for hire or reward. One of the things I have observed, and one of the complaints that has been made to me is that there is quite a bit of hawking by private taxis near to the Port area – that is, going and hassling passengers to say: 'Look I will take you so and so for such and such an amount,' which might not necessarily be the going rate applied by the Port Authority. I think that is something which the properly authorised persons at the Port Authority would need to give some consideration to.

Cost of fares is always a contentious point. I would imagine that there are certain fares already in place and I would assume that those would be used, at least initially. However, I would say to the Minister responsible that if indeed there are sufficient complaints about rates of fares it might be a good time to bring in all those parties concerned and see if their complaints might be genuine and agree on particular rates at this time.

There is also provision in the Law for prescribing the hours of operation. This is something that is very necessary, for I understand that at least in some instances where the Airport is concerned, from time to time there have not been sufficient taxis to carry passengers who were seeking their services. In prescribing these regulations I would think that they would be worded in such a manner as to make it a penalty if persons simply believe they could 'chip in and chip out' when it suited them best for performing their duties as taxi [operators] at the Port.

Madam Speaker, again I think that to have something which sets down the conduct that is expected of operators is very important, because on many occasions I have heard of very unseemly behaviour by persons who operated at the Port Authority in the capacity of vehicles for hire. I would not say that on occasions they may not be provoked by wrangling with a visitor who might want to be taken somewhere for less than they know is the prescribed amount. But herein comes the opportunity for some degree of training for these persons. And I really do believe – and perhaps it is being done, I am not sure. There should be a few sessions or hours of seminars from time to time during the course of a year to teach these persons ways of handling situations which might arise where it will not be confrontational or, indeed, insulting.

Madam Speaker, dress is important and there is nothing more depressing... and I would not say that I have seen it to any great extent in the Cayman Islands among taxi drivers, but I have certainly seen it in other countries of the world where taxi drivers are in old flip-flops and dirty shirts, and so on. It leaves a bad image. I certainly think that to hinder it here would be in the best interest of these islands for its tourism product and I see that there are also provisions for prescribing dress.

The regulations for setting down the number of persons to be carried by vehicles licensed under this Law is a matter which could raise some argument, I think. Several times I have heard persons operating say: 'Well, I can only get four [passengers] when the bus ahead of me took on 25.' This is, and has always been, an argument of taxi drivers from the time I had association with the taxi operations at the Airport, when I was in Government as Principal Secretary for the Department of Tourism. It was always claimed that the bigger buses took away the larger number of passengers and none/very few would be left for the smaller cabs.

So I think it will be necessary – and this would need to be scrutinised quite carefully as to how to allocate. For it seems nowadays that people tend towards using mini vans which take like seven or nine persons or the 15 seaters as the case may be. Perhaps the way of dealing with it might be to set up certain categories – perhaps it is already in place. If so, I think that is good; certainly it is something which needs to be clearly specified. And again, I would say to the Minister when his dispatch officer (whatever he or she might be termed) tells the cab driver: 'You have your numbers move out.' They must do just that.

Madam Speaker, I do see something here in the Law that I do not think really exists as it says it does, and that is the word "Caymanian." In the Immigration Law section 13 deals with Caymanian status. Now, from a legal perspective I do not know how this would be argued in Court or how one would really define a person applying for a licence, but the section it refers to in the Immigration Law refers to Caymanian status. I wish there was a definition for Caymanian in this Law similar to what was being proposed at one time by the Caymanian Bar Association, I think it was, which distinguished the two conditions. But this is something I simply draw to the attention, and I dare say the Minister will be able to answer to this or take advice from the Government's legal authority on this. I simply wondered about the term "Caymanian" versus that of "Caymanian status" or "Caymanian status holder."

I particularly commend the section of the Law where it states that if a person is aggrieved by a refusal of a licence they have the right to resort to the Court. I think that is a very smart move, for there will ever be persons present who know their elected representatives or, for that matter, know who the Minister responsible for the particular area of service in the country is, and may go to seek personal favours or assistance. It is a natural occurrence with elected persons. I think that this gives the Minister who has the responsibility under this Law more than an arm's length where he is in the position to say to anyone approaching him in his ministerial capacity or as an elected representative: "Well you know, old boy, you have to go and see a lawyer and have him apply to the Court for you, and, of course, I will stand and must abide by the decision of the Court just like you would have to." It is not putting an appeal situation to Executive Council. I think it is a very good clause here in this Bill in terms of appeals.

I wondered Madam Speaker, about clause 6, sub-clause (4) which says: "Every licence granted under this section shall remain in force for such period as the Port Authority may specify in the licence." I am not sure how long a licence is given, if it is annually or how. But certainly from the point of view of revenue if it is on an annual basis then, it would give the Port Authority the ability to earn revenue more regularly. However the situation is handled, the greater frequency of fees collection, the better opportunity of revenue for the Port.

I think this Law covers a wide ambit of operations for the operation of certain vehicles and persons in the Port Authority. I commend the move and effort by the Government and by the Minister in bringing this here and I am greatly assured by his statement that it is going to be enforced. I do hope that it will bring about some immediate and desired improvements in the operations of vehicles and taxis from the Port Authority.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am pleased to see that this Bill is being presented today. It has taken some time, but the Minister has assured us that the guidelines have been operating from August of last year, until January of this year. So I think the people who are operating under these guidelines have a fair idea of what is expected from the Objects and Reasons of this Bill.

The complaints that we have had... and the four Elected Members for George Town held meetings with a number of taxi and tour operators in the George Town, Town Hall, and I think this is what they were looking for. A lot of our people are anticipating making a decent living, and I am pleased to hear that some of the evils will be weeded out. If they cannot comply with these guidelines then they will have to look elsewhere in order to make a living. I strongly hope that this will be enforced to that extent.

I know that we will have constituents coming to us, representatives, but I hope that these individuals will understand that these provisions will only be assisting them and that a law is a law and that they must abide by these provisions as this covers a wide area of requirements.

On the licensing of the vehicles in section 4(b), it says that the requirements of the Motor Vehicles Insurance, which requires a third party insurance ... I wonder if an accident should occur with a cab driver hitting another vehicle and a passenger in the cab is injured, would that person be covered with that (Third party) type of insurance? Maybe full comprehensive (insurance) should be carried instead of the basic. Perhaps the regulations could be looked at again.

Section 6: the licensing of drivers. I know that some taxi drivers have work permits, and I was hoping that under section 2, it would require someone to be resident for at least 12 months. If taxi licences are going to be granted to people on work permits, mainly spouses of Caymanians I believe, if they are granted I feel that they should be resident for at least 12 months in order to know where Cayman Kai is, and maybe not end up in West Bay looking for the Villas of the Kai – which I know has happened. But if they were here for 12 months, they would at least know the physical layout of the island.

Under the bylaws of 8(2)(g), I am pleased to see the securing and safe custody and re-delivery of any property accidentally left in such vehicles. Madam Speaker, most of the people are honest, but the days of trusting individuals are slowly going out of the window. I am pleased to see that licences can be suspended and penalties awarded if an offence of dishonesty does take place.

I believe even though this Bill has taken some time in coming to this honourable House, that it is a good Bill. Individuals following the provisions of this Bill will be able to make a decent living and be happy.

For sometime now I have been concerned about the traffic regulations and I wonder when they will come to this honourable House. But I am pleased to see that this has come here today and I support the Bill.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I too rise to support this piece of worthy legislation. Once again, I think the National Team Government has demonstrated its ability to see problems that have existed for many years; problems that affect this country in many ways. As has been said before, the first people that visitors see when they come to these islands are the taxi drivers. They have to be the ambassadors for our country.

These problems have existed for many years but previous Governments did not have the ability, it seems, to address these problems. Here we are, finally trying to bring this forward to regulate and to alleviate these long existing problems.

The Bill specifies that there should be suitable types of vehicles designed for use as a bus or (as the case may be) a taxi, and in suitable mechanical condition. I know that I have been in other countries and as a visitor when you sit in some of the vehicles, it leaves a lot to be desired. It is certainly good to see that these guidelines are now put in place and that there will be teeth in the Law. As the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said, when people come to us now they will have an alternative. If they are not satisfied with what happens at the Port, they can appeal to the Summary Court.

So I would like to commend the Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning for this bold move.

I attended the opening ceremony of a Tourism Conference yesterday and I really feel that these islands are on a roll as far as tourism is concerned. We are without a doubt becoming a destination of choice. This kind of legislation will cement our position in regards to making sure that everything is in place so that when visitors come here they will be well treated and they will feel at home in the Cayman Islands.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I, too, rise to give my support to this Bill, and to say that its relevance, comprehensiveness and timeliness is striking. For years we have known that the business of taxis has been controversial and fraught with problems. Short of the taxi drivers themselves sorting these things out by regulating themselves and forming co-ops or whatever means they would form, this is the best thing because it affords them regulations and guidelines which are simple enough for all and sundry to follow. It clearly sets out processes to which they have access if they are dissatisfied or disgruntled.

I would just like to add my emphasis to the suggestion that I believe, if it is not cumbersome and if it can be affordable, it would be a good idea for the Honourable Minister to consider some form of training, particularly so in the case of new applicants. I am wondering if an arrangement could be worked out where part of the fee which the taxi drivers pay could go towards defraying the cost of this training: simple training. Probably something of the order that is carried out by the Government Training Officer in interpersonal relations, courtesy and politeness.

As a corollary I notice that one group of taxi drivers has organised themselves into an association where they are uniformly dressed. I know some of these drivers, for example: Mr. Isaac Lewis, and Mr. Andrew Carter and others from the constituency of Bodden Town. I am [impressed] by their neatness and uniformity. I believe from personal experience that anyone taking cabs organised in this way – with the drivers dressed in this fashion – is immediately relieved of any apprehension that they may have. It all begins with a look. If the people look professional, if they look trustworthy, if they look honest, we are sometimes prone to overlook small discrepancies or small mistakes. So, I think that is a step in the right direction.

I am especially pleased to see the Honourable Minister include section 11 – Power to Require Applicants to Submit Information. I believe without going into any detailed elaboration that the provision of this section will completely remove the possibility of us getting into some of the problems that the Minister and those of us who sit in this honourable House are now familiar with – a big bone of contention which I believe will have to be ultimately settled before the Court as to ownership, or sponsorship of some of these vessels of transportation.

I would like to say as a corollary to this that one of the problems I believe – indeed, one of the reasons I hear that so much contention exists – in the taxi business is that we have a myriad of different type vehicles. We have the regular 4 and 5-seater passenger cars, then we have the 6, 7, 9, 15 and 30-seaters. This Bill is going to separate all the animals according to their sizes. I do not believe that it is fair, it is certainly not logical, for a 30-seater to be described as a taxi. So I am happy to see that this Bill will allow us to differentiate and separate the big boys from the not so big boys because that was a point of contention.

Also, to come back to section 11, because it says that the Port Authority may require an applicant to submit such information which will allow them to determine whether the applicant is legitimate, or if he or she is in partnership, allow them to find out the details thus eliminating some of the controversy that we are witnessing now.

Also, section 13(2) where the Port Authority suspends, revokes or refuses to renew any licence under this section the Authority shall give the proprietor of the vehicle notice of the reason for that decision. Madam Speaker, this is commendable.

I would also like through the Chair, to request of the Minister if as a further improvement he would consider laying out some conditions for reinstatement where a licence has been suspended. If he would consider laying out some provisions perhaps in the regulations as to what steps should be taken in the event of a suspension for reconsideration of reinstatement. It might be that the Minister has already thought this out and was going to include it in the regulations. Perhaps when he gets up to reply he can say what his disposition is towards this. But certainly the fact that the proposal has been made to give reasons for the decision is a marked improvement over what has existed in the past.

I want now to touch on an area that all of us in here are familiar with, that is: the position of Caymanians vis-à-vis non-Caymanians in this business. Madam Speaker, it is true to say that at the stage we are at now in the development of our tourism and the development of these islands it is nigh impossible for us to prohibit non-Caymanian people from entering the taxi business. However, we can try to control their numbers so that the Caymanian element does not feel threatened as they do now. I have to commend this Bill again in that regard because it takes the bold step of trying to bring some sense, some order, to this whole business.

Caymanians feel threatened because they claim that they are being overrun sometimes by people whose first language is not even English. I have seen a few of those people and I am surprised to see that we have a few Africans in the business. I think I met at least one Nigerian in the business. So this Bill is again excellent in that regard, in that it is going to ease the concerns of the Caymanians.

I am pleased to give my support to this Bill, and as the Government and the Honourable Minister realise, this certainly will bring order to our tourism and will enhance our already excellent reputation. I feel confident that if we get this taxi business sorted out, we will not have to worry too much about competitors in whatever region, as far as providing a good product and giving value for money is concerned, because we would be well on the way to maintaining our excellence as a tourist destination. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This Bill is very important. I believe that it will go a long way towards settling the problems that we have had in the area of taxis and buses. It is one that will set out an orderly and regular way of dealing with the business of the buses and taxis. I think it is important, as some of the speakers have said. For example, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, mentioned that there should be as far as is possible some unity and pulling together in relation to upgrading the standards. Naturally, I think that will mean that the taxi operators and buses operators will in due course find it more lucrative.

The Bill itself is very commendable. I commend the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning for bringing it. It is very important because the taxi drivers and the bus operators are normally the first persons that tourists see when they come to the island. It is important that that first impression is good. This I think can only upgrade and enhance the tourism industry which is going at a very good pace.

One thing I think we can say is that the National Team has lived up to its promises. It has seen very good increases and progress in the area of tourism. This is another one for solidifying and continuing that.

I fully support the Bill. I believe that it will bring order and progress, and it will bring a feeling of giving better service to the taxi drivers and bus operators. In due course I think that regulations, as a whole, not only at the Port or the Airport, but overall, is one that is important and necessary. So, I fully support the Bill and I commend the Honourable Minister for Tourism for bringing this important Bill.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Madam Speaker, I too want to give my support to this Bill. This Bill has been long overdue, but it is here now and its intentions are very appropriate. I am very pleased for the regulations that have been placed there by the Honourable Minister and the way that it will be run. Discipline is something that is needed there at the Port. I have been there sometimes and felt very ashamed of the way the taxi drivers were carrying on among the tourists.

It is known that taxi drivers are ambassadors to any country and we want people here who can represent our islands in the right way. We need people who know the island so that when questioned they can give the right answers. I am sure the Honourable Minister has also seen to that.

I give this Bill my full support and commend the Honourable Minister for bringing it to the House. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This Bill entitled, A Bill for a Law to Confirm and Make Provision For the Port Authority's Licensing of Certain Vehicles and Persons to Apply Outside and in a Port or Port Area, comes at a time when there are many conflicts in the particular industry that it addresses. There are continuing problems in the area that is being addressed, and also in other areas. It is heartening to know that, even though it is one step at a time, steps are being taken.

Madam Speaker, the purpose of the Bill under the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, is simply to strengthen the powers of the Port Authority in respect of the recently introduced arrangements for taxis operating from the Port at George Town.

Now, before I go into several sections which I think may warrant a few comments, even though much of the content of my contribution has been covered by other speakers (that is the price you pay for waiting), just looking at the taxi industry it was obvious to one and all that some type of regulations were needed throughout the entire operation of these taxis in the country.

I will give an example to show how it can really be detrimental to the industry when regulations such as these do not exist. Some persons I know, came (by air) to visit our island and were staying in the Cayman Kai area. They came at night without making any reservation for renting a vehicle, so they had to take a taxi. As is normal, no questions were asked at the time of entering into a contract with that taxi driver how much the fare was going to be from the Airport to Cayman Kai. On arrival at Cayman Kai the person was told that the fee was $50. I do not know today whether that is normal fare from the Airport or not. The point I am trying to make is that that is literally two days' rental for a vehicle. So with that in mind, I come to some of the points that this fairly thorough Bill has addressed.

The Honourable Minister in his opening remarks mentioned bylaws which were to be produced, or have been (I am not sure). But the Port Authority will have bylaws under which these taxis will have to operate. And I see in the proposal the Port Authority has the right to structure fares, and such the like. I am sure it will be done in a manner that is f-a-i-r, not f-a-r-e.

I think that is very important because I am sure that in considering how to structure rates, that cost will be considered to come up with reasonable rates. But what is important here is that there will be a Law, as I am sure this Bill will take its passage today, there will be a Law which covers these rates so that there can be no chance for abuse.

There is a suggestion that I have to make, which may seem to be not only cumbersome, but costly. I hold a view that, maybe not immediately but not far down line, consideration should be given to taxis being metered. With these rates being structured the way they will be, if taxis are metered, synchronised along with these rates (and I am sure that can easily be done – there are meters that one cannot tamper with), then there is no chance of dissatisfaction with the tourists.

For that matter, the taxi driver should be happy if he is looking in the long term to be dealing with the situation in that light because there is no chance of any error on either side with the final fee that has to be paid. And there is hardly any chance of arguments as I am sure there are some which happen now because of discrepancies.

We all know about meters: we have seen them elsewhere. And, while we may have thought awhile back that it is not something we need to consider, I think that it is not too far-fetched to do so; it is something that can enhance the entire operation.

Madam Speaker, the Third Elected Member for George Town mentioned the question of insurance and I have not been able to get the facts as they are. But I think it is very important in this Bill when it does become Law, that proper insurance is part of the requirements so that there is coverage for any liabilities to passengers. I am not sure: I will not go as far as to say that provision should be made for a full comprehensive policy. But at least that every type of insurance being used – that is acceptable to the Port Authority – must ensure that there is coverage for the people who will be plying as passengers. I am sure that was the point she [the Third Elected Member for George Town] intended to make.

In several sections the word "Caymanian" is mentioned. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman touched on the topic, and I know that if we are truthful within ourselves the topic is very ticklish. On many occasions I have had complaints, and I am sure others in this House have had too, of Caymanians not being able to get taxi licences while foreigners can. In their view, foreigners should not have licences while they as Caymanians are not being given the opportunity. In this day and age if we look at the structure of the Caymanian society it is different from how it used to be.

Madam Speaker, again if we are to be honest with ourselves, I do not believe we are doing the people of this country justice if the hard line is taken regarding the way some people feel. I say this because in my opinion, just about every family today, especially in Grand Cayman, if you check the family tree (and you do not have to go very far) there is a foreigner who has become a part of that family. Many of these people have lived here for years and do not have Caymanian status. But because of the way the country is, we have told the Caymanians that we certainly cannot choose their spouses for them. As it is, we have told them that they can remain here and work by not telling them that they cannot remain on the island.

So it does create a problem. I really do not have the precise answer for that problem, but I believe it is one that is very sensitive. And I do not know whether we draw the line from here on in, or whether we make it retroactive, or whether we find some medium through which each individual case can be looked at.

I made the point to say that we should be careful in that area so that while these are the Cayman Islands, and Caymanians must come first, the truth is that our own Caymanians have made other people by their own volition a part of their lives, and it is something that we have to be careful with.

I remember not too long ago in my contribution to the Budget Address I referred to "us" and "them", and this is part of the problem that I was talking about. We simply have to be careful and deal with it the best way we know how. Not every situation is going to be one which warrants that it be dealt with in the same manner as the other. I do not know exactly how that is going to be dealt with, but in my opinion it is something that we have to consider.

There are several sections here referring to suspensions, and for the most part the Bill is very clear as to the authority of the Port Authority in this matter. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town questioned recourse at certain levels when suspensions took place. To my mind, out of the ordinary that is expressed here, there may be occasions when an individual is suspended and the reasons for suspension are not those which allow him to use the law of the land as recourse.

I notice that section 14(3) reads: "Where the Port Authority suspends, revokes or refuses to renew any licence under this section the Authority shall give to the driver or operator concerned notice of the reason for that decision." And it goes on to say that if the driver or operator is aggrieved by the decision, they "may within 21 days after notice of the decision was given to him, appeal to the Summary Court."

I am saying that there are some areas where appeals can be made to the Summary Court, but I believe that there will be certain times, and I think it would apply mostly to behaviour as reason for suspension of that individual, that if there could be some clear definition whereby if the person is suspended for that reason two times, then the licence would not be renewed. I am not suggesting that; I am only using it as an example to say that in some cases it could be made a little clearer.

The problem I have with the choice of words is that if it is left too generic then people like us will forever have problems. I, along with others, will have to go to other people and say: "But it does not say so, it does not say so", begging and pleading and so on. I am not suggesting that this has to be dealt with at all in this Bill; I am simply making the point because I do not know exactly what the bylaws or the regulations will entail. I am asking that when it occurs it is looked at in that vein.

Madam Speaker, the final and very important point that I wish to make about the Bill has to do with section 11. While it is worded (if I may say) in very clear English terms, I wish to expand on it a little bit. I think it is important that this section is in this Bill. Section 11, subsection (2) reads: "Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (1) above, the Port Authority may require an applicant for an operator's licence to submit to the Authority— (a) if the applicant is or has been a director or secretary of a company, information as to any convictions recorded against that company at any relevant time; and any trade or business activities carried on by the company (b) if the applicant is... a company, information as to any convictions recorded against a director or secretary of that company; and any trade or businesses activities carried on by any such director or secretary; (c) if the applicant proposes to operate the vehicle in partnership with any other person, information as to any convictions recorded against that person; and any trade or business activities carried on by that person."

Of course it goes on to say that: "If any person knowingly or recklessly makes a false statement... he shall be guilty of an offence..."

Madam Speaker, the important thing with these sections is to ensure that they are enforced. I think we have had several instances where problems have arisen and people outside of this country have been seen to be taking advantage of certain situations and being able to entice other people, namely, Caymanians, to deal with matters in certain ways that we do not condone.

I am sure that the sections I just mentioned would have to work alongside the Immigration Laws and the other applicable laws such as the Trade and Business Licences. I think that the main point here is that we need to ensure that our own people understand that even if it takes us a little longer to reach the point in life we wish to reach, it is better to do so once we do it the right way. Being able to take advantage of certain situations and at the end of the day cause trouble for our fellow Caymanians is certainly not the right way to go about it.

I will speak briefly on this, not condemning anyone but with a hope that in the future those of us who have the opportunity to partake in certain types of businesses (this one is public transport), should really take the long-term view. I think as one person put it: "If I do my best to make my country a better place, then I will be a better person in that place. If I simply look to make myself better all the time, I might be better and the country might be worse. Sooner or later what is better for me will disappear."

So as a good captain, as the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman would say, with those few words I give this Bill my full support and I am sure the Honourable Members on this side of the House will do the same.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.40 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.13 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on the Second Reading of the Port Authority (Licensing of Vehicles) Bill, 1994.

The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I am glad that at long last some form of legislation has come before this House to regularise the operation of taxi service at the Port, because it has long been needed. As far back as 1986, this matter was addressed in this honourable House.

The chaos and unrest among taxi drivers in these islands has long been a festering sore, and our image has often been tarnished by incidents with taxi drivers at the Airport and the Dock.

When a situation threatens the stability of something as important as our tourism industry, it is my opinion that it is our duty as a Government to look into that particular situation. This whole problem is not something which only affects the economic welfare of a handful of taxi drivers, as important as it is to them. It is well-known that most of the cabs in the country are privately owned and those owners have perhaps put themselves deeply in debt to get their vehicles in order to provide not only a living for their families, but also a badly needed service within the tourism industry.

One of the problems as I see it, is this matter where the taxis have not been organised. From as far back as 1986 this resolution was moved in the House by the past Member, Mr. Linford Pierson a Backbencher at the time. He moved on to have the responsibility in 1989 for transportation, but did nothing about the situation. Now, what that motion said was, I read: "WHEREAS there is growing unrest amongst the group of taxi drivers operating within the Cayman Islands, over what they regard as an unfair split of transportation revenue between themselves and other transportation businesses;

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government appoint a special committee consisting of five Elected Members to investigate these reported inequities and report back to this House with their recommendations as soon as possible."

Madam Speaker, I well remember the issue before it got to debate because I was the seconder of that resolution.

As I have said, a lot of good people in the taxi business, have put themselves in debt, mortgaged their houses and lands to get good automobiles and are trying to make a decent living. And, rightly so, they should be given every opportunity to do so.

One of the problems, Madam Speaker, is that they are not organised; they will not stick together. In 1986, I told them that and it seems to be a problem again today. It seems that they will not learn from the people who come into this country how to stick together; they build homes and do whatever they please, but they stick together; Caymanians will not stick together. Many times they are listening to people who want to stir up trouble, just to have trouble. They need to be organised. This Bill will see to it that they are, I would hope.

One of the problems we are having today, existed in 1986 where businesses organised with the cruise ships before coming to the country, and certain persons got all the business.

I will read a copy of a letter which Mr. Linford Pierson and I received in 1986 when we moved the resolution. It says: "Dear Sir: We the undersigned are all taxi operators who, after considerable investment in our vehicles, are seeking, and have sought, to make an honest living for our families in the island while, hopefully, trying to be good ambassadors for our country to the visitors coming here, both by air and sea. Each day, however, the prospect of us being able to continue this and survive economically becomes slimmer."

"We are therefore moved to ask each of you as legislators, both individually and collectively, to look into the chaotic situation which has developed and is now worsening in the taxi industry in this country.

"We believe that it is unfair for this industry to fall into the effective control of outsiders to the disadvantage of the majority of local drivers."

They went on, Madam Speaker, to talk about locals who are used as a front and to complain and point out the problem where certain tour operators were getting all the business through agents from aboard the cruise ships. It went on to say that: "all of this business is arranged aboard the cruise ships, we suspect with the taxi drivers' consents, if not outright approval of the Department of Tourism.

"We do not believe that travel agents or so-called tour guides aboard the visiting cruise ships should have the privilege of diverting this large amount of business from the local taxi drivers who are then forced to sit long hours waiting to catch any little crumb that might accidentally slip through their hands."

The letter went on to point out, and I quote: "We also have a similar situation at the Airport where certain hotels are allowed to pick up and return guests to the Airport as a courtesy service." Madam Speaker, as I said, that letter was read by Mr. Linford Pierson, who collected one letter (as I believe most Members of the House did at the time). Certainly, I did, as I was seconder of the Motion.

I see where Mr. Pierson is giving a lot of talk about what the National Team should be doing. If this problem had been taken in hand from 1986, or at least 1989 when he got into Executive Council, then we would not have this problem today. He should have done something about it. Instead of criticising the National Team Government, who he had left hundreds of problems on, and talking about what we did not do in our two years, he should first tell the country what he did. The only thing that I can see substantial that he did, is one Traffic Law for which the regulations have not yet come before this honourable House.

I am saying here today, I hope that those responsible will bring those Traffic Regulations to the next meeting because it is time that those Traffic Regulations come before the House. They are not only dealing with taxis on the whole, but they deal with buses as well. And it is time that we deal with these regulations. I know that the Department is swamped with work, but this is very important and I believe, as I understand from my colleagues, it will come before the House in March.

Madam Speaker, we found a problem; we knew of the problem (at least I did, being involved in the House for so long) where the cruise ships were sending business to certain operators to the detriment of the ordinary taxi man. Well, what has the National Team Government done? The Minister for Tourism and other Members of Executive Council, including other Members of the House, have had several meetings with taxi operators since we got elected and have gone on to organise with the cruise ships to find out what can be done to help the local taxi drivers. In about two weeks' time a meeting will be held in Miami, led by the Minister for Tourism and representatives of the taxis and cruise ships officials. I hope that this, although it is a long time coming, that meeting will bear fruition where the taxi drivers will get their fair share of business.

It really gets to me when a former Member of Executive Council talks about this Government not doing anything, when we have a situation that has caused at least one demonstration – and he knew about it. He moved the resolution but did nothing when he had the opportunity to do it. That is exactly what they have been doing on the outside all this while: they blame us; they talk about us getting large homes. Not one of these Executive Council [Members] has a new home. But everyone who was on the former Executive Council has one, including the Member who had the press conference. He should be ashamed of himself.

As far as his not being involved in politics, he should tell the truth: he has been involved constantly, except that other people were doing his work. Now he comes out and declares himself a candidate. I hope the same people who trounced him properly in George Town, will do so again.

It is ridiculous when Government is not given credit for getting something done: Problems that 'they' have helped to create and left on us. Then you hear: "The National Team Government is no good." How much more can you expect to be done in two years? I would like to know.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, could we now take the suspension? I understand that His Excellency the Governor is arriving at 12.30 pm to have discussions with Members.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Yes, Ma'am.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.15 pm.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.28 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.19 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture continuing.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, as I was saying, the problem which is told to us about the situation with the taxi drivers at the Dock and at the Airport, is that instead of having the tourism transportation dollar spread out among all the vehicles, the vast majority of it is being diverted to a handful of vehicles. While some work has been done to straighten out the situation at the Airport, we must make sure that those taxi operators can make a decent living.

These taxis are under constant inspection by the security force at the Airport, so they are paying to operate there and we have to make certain that they are making something back out of it.

Madam Speaker, by and large we have many good people who operate taxis. I know that there is some undesirable behaviour and I urge the Minister, when he has the mechanism in place, to make sure that those people who cannot act like human [beings], those people who are actually a disgrace to the taxi business, be kicked out and licences refused for them to operate.

The majority of taxi operators in this country are honest men and women seeking to make an honest living in their own country. They can, and in the majority, contribute a lot to the good image which we must at all times present to each visitor to this country.

So, Madam Speaker, I am satisfied that the Government is at long last taking the right steps. I have confidence in the Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, that when he and the representatives of the taxi business and cruise ship operators get together in Miami, they will find a mechanism where taxi operators can more easily get business out of the cruise ships.

In closing, I hope I will not hear Mr. Pierson or anyone on the outside in the opposition, saying that the Law is draconian in any way, shape or form – since, when Mr. Pierson had his chance he did nothing about it.

A while ago, I heard one Member saying that in a recent newspaper there was a headline which said: "Opposition and Government Agree." The headline should now be: "Opposition Praises National Team."

Mr. Roy Boddén: No man! It cannot be that! It would not be correct!

[Members' laughter]

The Speaker: If there is no other debate would the Honourable Minister wish to reply?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I think today may be called a 'Red Letter Day', given all of the agreements by the Opposition on this Bill. I do not know if they will allow us to stretch it as far as to say 'the Opposition praises the National Team', but they actually sang praises about the Bill before the House. So that is getting close.

I want to say, Madam Speaker, that I certainly appreciate all the support that has been given to this Bill. I think it stands a good chance of having unanimous support. I agree too that the Bill has taken some time to come here before the House. I apologise to Members for having to suspend Standing Orders, but it is a promise I made to the taxi drivers when they had the demonstration down at the Port, that we needed legal authority to deal with that problem and that is one of the main reasons why this is here.

As I said in my presentation, Madam Speaker, this Bill is mainly dealing in the majority of cases with the guidelines which are presently in place and have been agreed by taxi and tour bus operators who are servicing cruise ship passengers from the Dock.

I believe this is a good start. I look forward to supporting the Traffic Regulation when it comes, because I think that is the national picture we are talking about as far as transportation is concerned; I believe there is an urgent need for that legislation to come before this honourable House.

Madam Speaker, I believe it is right to say thanks to every Member for the support of this Bill.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that a Bill entitled, The Port Authority (Licensing of Vehicles) Bill, 1994, be given a Second Reading. I shall put the question: Those in favour please say Aye, those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Second Reading.

AGREED: THE PORT AUTHORITY (LICENSING OF VEHICLES) BILL, 1994, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: I understand that it is the wish of Members to adjourn the House at 2.30 pm, until Monday morning. I will therefore ask the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, the Leader of Government Business, to move the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I think it is an understanding among Members that we would close early this afternoon. I therefore move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock, Monday morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Monday morning. I shall put the question: Those in favour please say Aye, those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 2.29 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 5 DECEMBER, 1994.

5 DECEMBER, 1994
10.07 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order! Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY SPEAKER

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: It is my great pleasure to welcome the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, the Deputy Speaker, to the Chamber.

An apology has been received from the Second Elected Member for George Town, who is off the island on an emergency.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

TOURISM MANAGEMENT POLICY IMPLEMENTATION PLAN

The Speaker: Presentation of Papers and Reports: Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I am pleased to lay on the Table of this House the Tourism Management Policy for 1995 to 1999.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you.

On several occasions we have answered questions in this honourable House while this Ten-Year Tourism Policy document has been under review. I am pleased this morning to say to Honourable Members and the general public that the period of review has come to an end.

We have before us, laid on the Table of this honourable House this morning, the Cayman Islands Tourism Management Policy affecting the years 1995 to 1999.

The fundamental purpose of the Tourism Management policy is to provide a macro perspective of the direction needed in order to manage the tourism industry in the Cayman Islands over the next five years. It is designed to do a variety of things. I will name them: (1) To provide a framework for raising the living standard for Caymanians through the economic benefits of tourism; (2) Provide an approach to tourism development, including related infrastructure and recreation facilities and services for visitors and residents that are appropriate to the purposes and the land capability of the areas in which they are located; (3) Establish the framework for tourism policies and programmes consistent with the cultural, social, environmental and economic philosophy and means of the Government and the people of the Cayman Islands; (4) Provide the direction whereby the competitiveness of the tourism industry is sustained; and (5) Establish a sustainable development framework ensuring that the social, cultural and environmental resources that the residents depend on, and tourists are attracted to, are maintained.

It is fully recognised that a balance between all five points must be achieved and that the co-operation of many individuals and organisations, both within Government and the private sector, including some outside the direct domain of the Ministry of Tourism will be required in order to be successful in this endeavour.

In 1992, Coopers & Lybrand Consulting undertook an extensive investigation of tourism in the Cayman Islands, and prepared a Ten-Year Development Plan. The Plan was designed to aid Government and the people of these islands to fine-tune strategies to remain successful in the increasingly competitive global tourism environment. The policies presented in the following document are, for the most part based upon the findings and recommendations made by the consulting group. Where necessary, revisions have been made in order to reflect today's existing reality.

The tourism industry has a powerful influence on the daily lives and economic fortunes of Caymanians. Directly, it contributes about CI$330 million (gross) to the country's foreign currency; indirectly, the industry probably contributes in the order of 50% of Gross Domestic Product. Even when public service jobs are excluded, nearly 3,000 individuals (2,965) were employed directly in tourism in 1993, making tourism the most important industry in terms of jobs created. The total impact of tourism is even greater when jobs such as construction and agriculture which support the tourism industry are factored in.

There can be no doubt, Madam Speaker, that the tourism industry also creates social costs, for example, traffic congestion. If properly managed, these should have minimal adverse impacts on the lives of Caymanians.

Globally, the tourism industry has grown about 4% per annum over the past decade. Today, it represents an industry of over $3 trillion and is projected to grow to over $4 trillion by the year 2000.

Growth in stayover visitors to the Cayman Islands averaged about 8% per annum from 1980 to 1990. The first few years of the 1990's, when economies around the world slipped into sharp recession, tourism to the Cayman Islands showed no growth and even a very modest decline. Sharp increases in stayover arrivals in the range of 20% have been experienced in both 1993 and 1994. This growth rate, Madam Speaker, has been larger than the total Caribbean growth rate yielding a progressive increase in market share for the Cayman Islands.

Historically it has been shown that uncontrolled growth typically results in a degeneration of product and service. For the Cayman Islands to continue its fine performance, it will have to adopt a state-of-the-art approach to tourism management and development and to insure that the resources which motivate tourists to come to the Cayman Islands are maintained at a high level of quality.

The Cayman Islands have reached a crossroads. It is imperative that the direction taken be one of managing to achieve long-term steady growth, so that tourism benefits that accrue to Cayman are maximised and the products and services that draw tourists are continually improved upon.

Continued development of the Cayman Islands product is important to the continued success of the tourism industry. Offering fun and relaxing attractions to both residents and visitors will help maintain the quality of life and provide additional reasons for vacationers to come and return to these islands. Key attractions to be developed and/or expanded upon include:

- 1) Pedro St. James Castle
- 2) Turtle Farm
- 3) Stingray City
- 4) Queen Elizabeth II Botanic Park
- 5) Salinas National Park

From a strategic perspective, it is believed that the potential more than doubles the level of tourism development currently existing. The East End of Grand Cayman holds the most promise for future development.

In total, eight distinct zones have been identified:

- 1) Seven Mile Beach: which caters more for sun, beach, water, restaurants, accommodation, more high intensive tourism, and traditional "sun destination" image.
- 2) George Town: historic human scale downtown core, and focus for tourism retail theme.
- 3) West Bay (Barkers area): More rugged shoreline with limited development, and isolated but close to the action theme.
- 4) The Eastern Area of Grand Cayman: Uplands tourism resort destination theme with some beach, sun and water.
- 5) Scenic Coastal Drive: Coastal attractions scenic roadway for day outing.
- 6) Cayman Kai: Quiet, scenic, family-oriented theme.
- 7) Cayman Brac: Rugged explorer oriented theme with conveniences but less intensive development.
- 8) Little Cayman: Strong eco-tourism theme.

Although these eight areas offer different experiences to tourists, they are to be developed and marketed as several experiences in one destination

It should be noted that the Cayman Islands has done a good job over the past number of years in its effort to take advantage of the tourism industry.

The new global competitive environment and the need to sustain growth require that the Cayman Islands further enhance its marketing and market research capabilities. In order to compete effectively, a higher degree of sophistication will be required than has proved successful in the past.

The major tourism marketing approaches which the Cayman Islands will follow include:

- Refinement of long-term goals and short-term quantitative objectives;
- Tracking progress toward achieving objectives and goals;
- Increasing the research base, fine tune and prioritise target markets based on geographic, socio economic and special interest criteria;
- Allocation of overall and regional office resources, according to this prioritisation;
- Continued diversification of product aimed at opening up and attracting new niche markets;
- Fine tuning the message to be communicated to target markets;
- Researching the effectiveness of advertisements, different media and promotional efforts;
- Improving access to information on-island;
- Improving product quality, diversity and price-value delivered; and
- Continuing to search for new, lucrative markets.

A primary reason for pursuing the economic development that results from the tourism industry is to provide Caymanians with job opportunities.

Today the supply of labour is tight and competition for Caymanians staff is high. Since growth is recommended and turnover is ongoing, the future labour supply of Caymanians is I believe, at risk. The Policy will strengthen the capability of Caymanians to participate productively in the tourism industry work force.

The human resource strategy includes eight individual items:

- A strengthening of the collaboration between stakeholders, including public and private sector.
- An expansion of the recently launched "Caymanians in Tourism" communications and education campaign.
- Co-ordination of recruitment efforts.
- Refinement of career pathing.
- Development of performance standards for all jobs in the industry.
- Creation of data gathering models and methodologies unique to the industry.
- Addressing the socio-cultural aspects of tourism.

In an ever increasing environmentally conscious world, it is essential to recognise that protecting and enhancing the marine and terrestrial environment of the Cayman Islands is critical to the long-term success of the tourism industry and quality of life for residents.

The environmental policies relating to the tourism industry for the Cayman Islands include:

- An environmental protection and enhancement leadership role as it relates to tourism management, including:
- A method of placing a reasonable value on the environment. Since at the individual level no one really owns the environment, it has not been given true market value. People care more about the environment they own than the environment that is collectively "everyone's".
- An increase in understanding of how development is fully linked to the environment. For example, it will be necessary to link tourism growth and development to the carrying capacity of dive sites.
- Comprehensive environmental legislation;
- Environmental policies;
- Environmental assessment;
- Carrying capacity guidelines;
- Environmental awareness; and
- Eco-tourism.

Madam Speaker, in a little more than five years, the world will step across the threshold of a new century. How will the Cayman Islands have changed? What kind of society, economy and environment will Caymanian children inherit? These are questions that must be answered as new directions are formulated to take the Cayman Islands' tourism industry into the 21st Century.

Most futurists believe more change will be witnessed in the last decade of this century than over the past ninety years. One only has to look back at how much the Cayman Islands has changed since 1989 to realise that these futurists are perhaps understating the degree of change that will actually take place.

Against this background, Madam Speaker, it is important for Caymanians to develop a realistic vision of where the tourism industry could, and should, be in the year 2000 and beyond. With a shared vision, Caymanians will achieve the goals set for the future.

A strong economy will provide the Cayman Islands with the financial resources to take action in areas considered important, and to fund the programmes and services that will enhance quality of life. Such programmes and services will be based on the values that Caymanians hold, and should be incorporated within the vision of the future.

Understanding and taking advantage of these forces as they relate to the tourism industry and the Cayman Islands will be important to the implementation of the tourism management policies designed to guide the Cayman Islands into the future.

In light of the major global forces, competition, tourism industry outlook, the current tourism position of the Cayman Islands and importance of tourism receipts to the Cayman Islands, it is important to prepare a long-term plan for managing tourism.

When we start thinking about ten years, it gets pretty cloudy and our crystal ball, I think, does not focus clearly at all. It seems to me that it is better to do a five-year plan and at the end of the five years you roll it over for another five. That way we can build in the reality of life and the economic situation around this world.

The overall purpose of the Tourism policy, Madam Speaker, is to provide a clear set of policies, strategies and implementation guidelines for the management of tourism in the Cayman Islands which will continue to stimulate the economy for the benefit of the Caymanian people, while preserving the heritage, culture and environment of the islands.

The Tourism Management Policy for the Cayman Islands is consistent with the stated purpose detailed earlier and takes into consideration the differences between the three islands. It also provides specific strategies that will assist in obtaining fulfilling that purpose for the betterment of all Caymanians. In addition to providing an overall strategy, specific attention is focused on the following: Environment; Product and Infrastructure; Marketing; and Human Resources.

The document, Madam Speaker, is laid out in several chapters. There are chapters dealing with: Tourism Management Strategies; Environmental Strategy; Tourism Product Strategy; the Marketing Strategy; and the Human Resource Strategy.

I would only point out that on page 19 of the document it also sets down specific goals in dealing with tourism growth. And that begins by recognising that in 1993 we experienced a 19% increase and it appears that we are going to end up in 1994 with a 15% increase. We project for 1995 a 5% increase above that. In 1996, 1997, 1998 and 1999 it is projected that the increase will be 10%, 7%, 5% and 5% respectively.

Looking quickly at the environmental strategy, our hope is to achieve the objectives of protecting resources, to maintain growth tourism and lay the basis for eco-tourism legislation is going to be required. The comprehensive legislation currently under development will include, but not be limited to, statement of philosophy and need; define sustainable development for Cayman; detail the requirements for environmental assessments methodologies and when they are to be applied: recycling; chemicals and hazardous wastes; air quality; water quality; ground water; marine life and habitat; terrestrial life and habitat; visual quality; land reclamation; litter; enforcement; public involvement and funding of interventions; penalties; institutional strength; financial/economic aspects; and advisory and appeal bodies.

I believe that there is a real opportunity for the Cayman Islands to take a leadership role in blending tourism development and the environment. It will only help to protect the tourism resource that tourists are coming to experience to remain special and not become ordinary, but also lay the needed foundation for the eco-tourism programme.

There are a number of initiatives in other parts of this Plan that support environmental protection and enhancement.

On page 28 of the Document it speaks to the privatisation of attractions and development and it lists five sites which I think I have named earlier: Queen Elizabeth II Botanic Park, Pedro St. James Castle, Stingray City, Turtle Farm and Aquarium, and the Salinas National Park. And there are 23 second priority attractions as well. The Document also speaks to the cruise ships strategy and on page 31, it mentions permanent deep water mooring for cruise ships will be installed to prevent further damage to the reef, which is the lifeblood of the dive industry, a premier tourist attraction of the Cayman Islands.

Under Human Resource Strategy which is the last chapter of the document, it lists a number of tactics should I say, and there are eight that are presented as the human resource strategy. I think they are in keeping with the quality service component that we have mentioned earlier. They are:

- The strengthening and collaboration of all stakeholders;
- Launching a major communication and education programme;
- The co-ordination of recruitment efforts;
- Introduction of career pathing;
- Development of performance standards for all jobs in the industry;
- Equipping people to reach a high level of performance through training;
- The creation of data gathering models and methodologies unique to the industry; and
- Addressing the socio-cultural impacts of tourism.

Madam Speaker, I wish to publicly thank the team who carried out the review, the Permanent Secretary for Tourism, the Director of Tourism, the Director of Tourism (Designate), the Assistant Secretary in the Ministry of Tourism—and I am not going to thank myself, Madam Speaker, that is not necessary. I also want to mention that I believe later on in the week (I say this basically to forewarn Members), I will move a Motion for the adoption of this document.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

SECOND READING

THE TOURIST ACCOMMODATION (TAXATION) (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

Clerk: The Tourist Accommodation (Taxation) (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of a Bill entitled a Bill For a Law to Amend the Tourist Accommodation Law (Revised).

As set out in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, this Bill seeks to amend the Tourist Accommodation Tax from 6% to 10%. Other amendments which are urgently and desperately needed are also being made to improve the effectiveness of the administration and the enforcement of the tax levied under the Law.

It should be noted that while this increase of 4% translates into a 66 2/3% increase over the existing rate, it is the first increase since 1981.

A survey of 27 Caribbean countries reveals that occupancy taxes in the regions range from a low of 4% in the Bahamas to a high of 23% in the Dominican Republic. It was further noted that while the Bahamas occupancy rate was 4%, there was also a further 4% being charged as a resort tax. To use one other country as an example, it was found that in the British Virgin Islands they charged an occupancy tax of 7% with a further additional 7% being charged as a resort tax. This brings the total of levies on the hotel bills of tourists visiting that country to 14%.

These examples clearly demonstrate and refute any argument that would suggest that the proposed increase in the rate from 6% to 10% could cause the Cayman Islands to be perceived as an overpriced destination. I should also point out that the accommodation tax that is levied in the Cayman Islands is strictly on the accommodation element of the bill and does not include a tax on the other charges. For example, food, and other services provided or contracted for with the hotel establishments whereby, in the other jurisdictions, or quite a number of them, the tax that is levied is levied on the total bill.

It is also well-known to every Honourable Member in this House that offences committed under the existing Law are numerous and the penalties for such offences are very much inadequate. In order to demonstrate the inadequacies of the existing provision of enforcement and penalties under the existing Law, I will now read from section 3 through 6 and section 8 of the Law. Section 3 deals with taxation of tourist accommodation and it reads:

"3. The proprietor of any accommodation shall pay to the Government a tax equal to six per centum of the amount of the charges made by him in respect of each tourist accommodated therein.

"4. (1) Every proprietor of accommodation shall keep or cause to be kept records in such form as the Governor in Council may from time to time direct.

"(2) Every proprietor of accommodation shall on the departure therefrom of any tourist deliver or cause to be delivered to that tourist a statement setting forth clearly—

"a) particulars of the accommodation and services provided for that tourist;

"b) the amount payable under this Law for tax in respect thereof."

Section 5 deals with the powers of the Collector of taxes. "5. (1) The Collector of Taxes may at his absolute discretion inspect all records kept under this Law at any time.

"(2) The proprietor or person in charge of any accommodation shall at all reasonable times during the hours of daylight produce to the Collector of Taxes any such records required by him, and shall afford such officer all such reasonable assistance as will enable him to calculate the amount of tax payable by such proprietor.

"(3) Every proprietor of accommodation, shall, no later than twenty-eight days after the end of each month for which tax is due, submit to the Collector of Taxes a copy of each statement delivered by him to tourists under section 4 during that month and shall pay to the Collector of Taxes the amount of tax due in respect thereof. In default, the proprietor shall pay to the Collector of Taxes as a surcharge a sum equal to twenty per centum of the tax so chargeable in addition to the tax and all such surcharge shall be deemed to be tax for the purposes of this Law."

Penalty for making false entry, section 6. It reads: "6. Whoever wilfully and with intent to defraud makes any false entry in, or alters any word or figure in, or destroys or conceals any of the records required to be kept under this Law is guilty of an offence and on summary conviction thereof liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars."

Section 8 deals with the punishment of offences not otherwise provided for and it reads: "8. Whoever contravenes any of the provisions of this Law in respect of which no special penalty is provided is liable on summary conviction in respect of each such contravention to a penalty not exceeding forty dollars and in default of payment thereof to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two months and on a second or subsequent conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars and in default of payment thereof to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months."

Madam Speaker, reverting to section 6 which sets out the penalty for making false entry: It can be seen that a simple way of defrauding the Government and receiving a lenient punishment would be for a proprietor to submit the records of tax collected to the Treasury without making any remittance of the amounts collected. Under section 8 this person could be charged $40 on the first occasion and an amount not exceeding $100 on a second or subsequent conviction.

This morning in checking the records of the Treasury Department for some of those establishments that are in arrears, it was quite interesting to note that one proprietor has done exactly that: he submitted the records for the months May through August, to the Government. The records clearly showed the amounts collected by way of Tourist Accommodation Tax, but a cheque has not been submitted. Also the returns for the month of September and October have been submitted, but the Accountant General is now in a state of uncertainty as to whether those cheques will be cleared by the bank. There are several instances when cheques for substantial sums have been paid in to the Government—for this establishment in particular—and have been returned by the bank.

In view of these deficiencies I am now happy to report that the inadequacies in the enforcement and penalties in the existing legislation will be addressed upon this Bill being enacted into Law.

Madam Speaker, the substantive changes to the sections dealing with enforcement and penalties are to be found in sections 2, 3, and 10 in the Schedule of the Bill which I read:

"2. Subsections (2) and (3) of section 5 of the principal Law shall be repealed and the following subsections substituted—

"(2) The Collector of Taxes or an authorised officer of the Collector of Taxes shall, on producing, if so required, some duly authenticated document showing his authority, have a right at all reasonable hours to enter any business premises for the purposes of—

"(a) inspecting any records; and

"(b) ascertaining (whether by such inspection or otherwise) any amount or amounts of tax payable by a proprietor of accommodation on those or any other premises; and

"(c) ascertaining whether there is or has been on those premises any contravention of the provisions of this Law or any evidence of such contravention; and

"(d) the performance by the Collector of Taxes of any of his other functions under this Law."

It goes on further in subsection (3), to read:

"(3) If a judge of the Grand Court, on sworn information in writing, is satisfied that there is reasonable ground for entry into any premises for any such purpose as is mentioned in subsection (2) above and either—

"(a) that admission to the premises has been refused, or a refusal is apprehended, and that notice of the intention to apply for the warrant has been given to the occupier; or

"(b) that an application for admission, or the giving of such a notice, would defeat the object of the entry, or that the case is one of urgency the judge may by warrant signed by him authorise the Collector of Taxes and any other person named in the warrant to enter the premises, if need be by reasonable force."

This, Madam Speaker, makes it quite specific in terms of the authority of the Collector of Taxes. The authority upon which the Collector will be acting as contrasted to what I have read earlier under section 5, which says that the proprietor or persons in charge of any accommodation shall at all reasonable times during daylight hours produce to the Collector of Taxes any such records required by him and shall afford such officer or such reasonable assistance as will enable him to calculate the amount of tax payable by such proprietor.

While this is very plausible and appears to be quite understandable, it is not specific in terms of what specific level of assistance should be. Now all of that has been corrected in the new amendment and hopefully, when these amendments are enacted into Law, should define specifically what the authority of the Collector of Taxes is under the Law.

Going on to section 3, which reads:

"Sections 6, 7, 8, and 9 of the principal Law shall be repealed and the following sections substituted—

Obstruction etc. of officers.

"6(1) Any person who—

"(a) intentionally obstructs any person acting in the execution of this Law; or

"(b) without reasonable cause, fails to give to any person acting in the execution of this Law any assistance or information which that person may reasonably require of him for the performance of his functions under this Law, shall be guilty of an offence.

"(2) Any person who in purported compliance with any such requirement as is mentioned in subsection (1)(b) above—

"(a) furnishes information which he knows to be false or misleading in a material particular; or

"(b) recklessly furnishes information which he knows is false or misleading in a material particular, shall be guilty of an offence.

"(3) A person guilty of an offence under subsection (1) above shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding $5,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to both.

"(4) A person guilty of an offence under subsection (2) above shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding $50,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to both."

Madam Speaker, subsection (2) makes it quite clear as to what the offences and the penalties are under the Law.

Madam Speaker, section 10 which sets out further penalties reads:

"If any person is knowingly concerned in, or in the taking of steps with a view to the fraudulent evasion of tax by him or any other person, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a penalty of $50,000 or of three times the amount of the tax, whichever is the greater, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 6 months or to both."

"(2) If any person—

(a) with intent to deceive produces or submits for the purposes of this Law (or otherwise makes use of, for those purposes) any document which is false in a material particular; or

"(b) in submitting any statement or information for the purposes of this Law makes any statement which knows to be false in a material particular or recklessly makes a statement which is false in a material particular, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a penalty of $50,000 or of three times the amount of the tax, whichever is the greater, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 6 months or to both."

Madam Speaker, these amounts may seem to be quite onerous in relationship to what the existing penalties are. But just taking two establishments (two of the big hotels) on the islands: the returns for January showed that one of them paid $120,000; the other, $81,000. For February one paid $110,000; the other, $81,000. June—which is not a peak period—$59,000 for one; $46,000 for the other. September $38,000 for one, and $32,000 for the other. This clearly demonstrates that for the penalties to remain as they are: $40 and $100, while these would have been appropriate 15 years or 20 years ago, they do not reflect current circumstances.

Madam Speaker, although quite a lot of attention has been given to the offences and penalties provisions of this Bill, Honourable Members will recall from answers to previous Parliamentary Questions that although the offences are quite numerous, they are being committed by just a few establishments. Further it is my view that those establishments which are defrauding the Government by not remitting the tax collected, but diverting it for their own purposes, are also likely to be dishonest in their dealings with the tourists to these islands who are using the services of those establishments.

If the operations of these establishments are not reformed, it is likely that in time they could bring into question the reputation of the tourism industry of these islands thus negating the benefits that would otherwise accrue from the efforts of the present and past governments in the building up of this industry. An example of these efforts is the Tourism Conference which was held here recently—in fact last week—under the direction of the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

There are some Honourable Members of this House who are unhappy that the Bill was not presented in tandem with the Budget Address. As I pointed out during my winding up on the Budget Address, the only reason this was not done was that the consultation with the hotel industry had not taken place at the time of presenting the Budget Address. The Government could have opted not to consult with the representatives of the hotel and condominium industry and introduce the increases with immediate effect.

The result would have been confusion and frustration to the industry as it was brought to light during the meeting between the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning and the industry, that the rates for the remainder of 1994, through part of 1995 have already been fixed and contracted for, with various overseas travel agencies based on the existing 6% Occupancy Tax. Based on this process of consultation the date agreed upon for the Law to come into effect is 1st June, 1995.

Madam Speaker, this explanation is not intended as an overt plea to those Honourable Members, as individually and collectively I know they are very committed to the smooth functioning of every segment of our economy and would, I am sure, be very unhappy with any action by the Government that would disrupt the smooth operations of such an important sector as the tourism industry.

Madam Speaker, with these remarks, I commend this Bill to this honourable House.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Tourist Accommodation (Taxation) (Amendment) Bill, 1994, be given a Second Reading. The motion is open for debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Just to make sure there is a debate on this, I feel a certain compulsion to rise and speak on the Bill for the increase in tourist accommodation tax.

Madam Speaker, as I look at this Bill, I see what I consider some worthy sections that deal with the administration in Government of the collection of tourism tax.

In saying that, one should really take into account that there are many—and some of them are very large—tourism properties in this country that treat Government somewhat like a joke. Properties in this country have collected millions of dollars from visitors to these shores—money they have kept and have simply ignored the fact that of the sums collected, they should have paid 6% to Government. The last time a question was asked in this House about the accumulated amount, we heard that it was in the millions. If I remember it was close to about $2 million; some had been collected and we heard that there was a great possibility from a legal stand point that one of the largest sums would not be collectable from one of the major hotels here in this island.

I think, Madam Speaker, that if one is not going to enforce the Law there is no need to pass the Law, and if a law is passed which is fair, reasonable and equitable with the intention of bringing about a particular action, or causing a particular thing to happen, then the law should be treated with the seriousness that it deserves from the time it is enacted by this Legislative Assembly.

Obviously, one of the biggest sectors of business in the Cayman Islands chooses to ignore the Tourism Accommodation Tax Law in a big way and successive governments have not really come down on them in the way they should have. I have heard some strange tales to the extent that if the Government were to really come down too hard on some of the properties, tourism might be affected, or they might have to go out of business.

One thing the public and everyone concerned needs to understand and bear in mind about this particular tax business is, that a visitor to these shores staying at a hospitality accommodation in these islands, pays a certain amount for the time he stays there. And on to that is added 10% which the hotel collects at the same time it collects its own money. But the hotels or condominiums (as the case may be) where they have gone in default simply keep the money and do not pay it to the Government. So I would hope that with this amending legislation the Government would send a clear message to the defaulters that it is not prepared to allow tourism accommodations anymore to make a mockery of the Government of the people of this country.

I think it was a sensible move when the Law was amended to change the onus of collection from the Director of Tourism, to the Collector of Taxes. The objective now should be for the Collector of Taxes to collect his taxes.

In the administration section of this Law, the Collector is given considerable authority that he may inspect the records; he may discover whether there are those premises which are in contravention of the Law, and generally I think, this amending Bill gives much more authority and ability for the Collector of Taxes to collect taxes due.

I am not absolutely certain at this time who is the Collector of Taxes in the Cayman Islands. I would suspect that it would be the Accountant General, and in Cayman Brac I would dare say it would be the District Commissioner. But I think for this particular exercise and this particular part of the Collector's duty one or two persons should be designated within the Treasury Department where those persons are on to this particular important area of Government's revenue collection daily.

It should not be something that every 28 days it comes about and then someone takes another 28 days to discover that taxes have not been received from the various properties. We do have considerable capital investment in computers. I would certainly hope that hand in hand with this Bill, the computer programmers, the Government, the Treasury Department, the Financial Secretary, whomever, will see to it that there is a programme in place on the computer system where every 28 days or before (make it 20 days) they get a call to tell what the situation is. So immediately the system shows what the situation is on any particular property that should be paying taxes.

In my opinion, if a person is not going to be specifically designated, this Law will not have the effect that it is supposed to have. I see provisions are being made for the Collector of Taxes to be properly identified. That is important, because any business owner has the right to challenge anyone coming onto their property or business claiming to be the person to collect taxes if he cannot show proper identification. I would assume that this identification would be extended to anyone else whom the Collector of Taxes may appoint to do so, since the Law does provide for it.

Seeing the attitude of some tourism accommodation property managers in regard to tardiness and their total ignoring of payment of taxes, I could believe that even if a tax collector is identified there would be those who would be feisty enough to not allow entry to their premises, or play around and not give sufficient information or documentation. Judging from past actions I would think that is a possibility.

So the fact that in section 3 of the Law, the Collector of Taxes can go to the Judge of the Grand Court and give sworn information in writing and ask for a warrant is, I believe, something that needs to be in this Law.

Something did catch my attention and that is, in subsection (4) which reads: "Every warrant granted under this section shall continue in force for a period of one month." I am not quite sure what the general principle is in relating to Warrant of Entry and Search. I do know that police may get warrants to enter and search premises. But I have always had the impression that it was of a limited nature. If they did go in, it would be a one-time exercise and if they went back they would have a warrant issued again. I am not certain on this and I have never really had the opportunity prior to speaking now, to check this point although it did raise a query in my mind. However, this is something I trust the Financial Secretary and the legal authority will take note of. This is a period of one month and I have tried to reconcile in my mind why it would be that way. I dare say that it is possible that in an investigation it could be a process that would be as ongoing as a 30-day period where such persons may need access to go back to check on certain things within such a property. However, I would like to believe that it is consistent with the general principles relating to warrants of entry and search.

The Law also provides that the Collector of Taxes may take with him/her such other persons as may be necessary. This would cover other accountants or persons who have some specialist knowledge in perhaps computers as how to quickly retrieve information which might be necessary. Also the fact, that I believe most properties in these islands are now computerised. There is also a clause which allows the information in the computers to be checked to see whether there is any information there that is relevant to the Collector of Taxes in carrying out his/her duties.

Certainly I think seizure of the records would be necessary and there is also a section that provides for that—where records are not forthcoming in a search the Collector may seize these records so that they can be examined and he may take away these records in the course and performance of his duty. When it is in a computer, a copy can be demanded and information can be taken away.

Madam Speaker, these clauses give strength to the performance of the Collector of Taxes that is needed. For this was obviously lacking in the past and apparently, tourism accommodations take a very light attitude towards Government enforcement.

This is also the case evidenced in another area—the payment of gratuities. There have been cases of large sums of money that have not been paid and again, these sums are to be paid out. But again there are many instances where they have simply ignored it, treating it with no great seriousness.

It is further strengthened in that there are penalties for any attempts in the obstruction of officers carrying out their duties. In the instances of furnishing false or misleading information there is a penalty of $50,000 or imprisonment for six months, or both. For recklessly doing so, I think that it is a fairly emotion-catching amount in that penalty, that of $50,000. It is said that to really get someone's attention you hurt them in the pocket book and surely, $50,000 is a sizeable sum.

This Law sets down a time frame in which Government should receive its taxes which is right and proper. Hotels should not collect money from visitors whom they have had for years, and never paid Government. There should be specific time frames and if it is not paid they should pay the extra price for keeping it.

There is an accounting section stating that within a 28-day period there must be a statement sent to Government. The same type of statement that they collect from each person that Government gets which records precisely the amount collected from John Doe, this is the amount due to myself and that the payment as well is received.

Only a short while ago the Financial Secretary in presenting this Bill spoke of a situation where the copy of the accommodation sheet was sent to the Treasury Department but without any payment. What particularly caught my attention was the fact that on top of not paying, some properties obviously have the audacity of writing cheques that bounce to the Government. It is most incredible! I mean this has to stop and I would say to the Financial Secretary (Government as a whole) not to allow this to happen. It is wrong. Imagine a business that is earning money daily due to collecting moneys from travellers and collecting Government's money having the audacity to send a bounce cheque to the Government.

Madam Speaker, I think that this Law strengthens this situation and it is something which needs to be done. Also this Law now gives the Collector of Taxes the authority that if these persons fool around and do not send the money to the Government, they can be surcharged up to 20% for the time over which the Government should have received its money which is a period of one month. So these are all attention-grabbing actions that I think the Government can take. And again I would say to the Mover of this Bill, the Financial Secretary, that I think it is important for him to designate officers specifically to this matter and deal with it straight away and outright so that nobody has the time to monkey around when their taxes are due.

There can also be a rate of interest charged on monies not received on time. I see that "prescribed rate" means any rate as may be prescribed by the Governor in Council. I would imagine that this would come into regulation but I would rather have seen that it was a 10% or whatever the case may be as is reasonable for collection.

Again, there are strong penalties for offences where there is fraudulent evasion of taxes by properties and where persons associated with tourism accommodation intentionally try to deceive or produce figures or statements that are inaccurate. This amending Bill goes very far in addressing the administration of the tourism accommodation tax collection.

Having said that, I will state again my position of not voting for the increase in taxes, which is the other part of this particular Bill. In the local newspaper, The Caymanian Compass, it was noted that I was the only one who did not vote for the Appropriation Bill. That is true. That is what I said I would not do, and I did not do.

I would just like to make the point that when one votes for the Appropriation Bill, one votes for the whole bill inclusive of all of its parts and segments, head and subheads and so forth and so on. For example, one could not have had the Financial Secretary take out the $50,000 that was voted for bus stops for me or the next person to vote for or not vote for. It was all part of that Head, so you either voted for the Head or you did not.

So when one does not vote as I did not, and will not . . . I made it clear that I do not believe that taxes of $4.6 million were in order and should be brought. It was brought: it was an integral part of the 1995 Budget and I did not support that, therefore, I would have been foolish to vote for the Appropriation Bill.

The increase from 6% to 10% is approximately 67% increase. I heard the Financial Secretary say that other destinations charge much higher amounts and I can believe that this is true. That does not mean that we have to charge the very same. Already in most instances here, our hotel charges are on the high side, except for the cheap packages which have been ushered in recently. The Minister for Tourism does not really like to hear me say this, and gallantly does a good job of trying to deny it.

I think on the other hand that our accommodation here is generally above average and in some instances on the very high side of conditions. This tax will impact directly on tourism in this country. It means that whereas before this time, a person paid 6% in addition to his bill he will now pay 10%. At this time when we are seeing arrivals at the highest it has ever been—and I understand that there are projections that this will continue—this is hardly a logical time to increase the rates. For by share numbers the 6% would be generating a greater increase in revenue. But I am also of the opinion that by the inclusion of this, it was the only way the Budget for 1995 could show a balanced picture.

I think that there is strong argument for leaving the taxes where they are in the face of the increased numbers of tourists coming to the islands.

I must also note that the National Team Government greatly criticised the former Government when tourism was affected due to the increasing taxes on alcohol and tobacco. I argue that while that did have some effect and still does, that not all tourists drink and smoke. So it absolutely affects some in one way or another. However, by increasing the room tax all parties will be affected.

I also note that this comes into effect on the 1st of June, 1994 (sic) [1995] which means that the Government can only hope to collect about seven-twelfth of that $4.6 million. Of course, if the Government really wants to raise money it should come in every time taxes are increased in this country; it should come into effect on the 1st of January, the fiscal year of Government, because after June the high season as it is termed, is over. So therefore, it will also reduce the amount that is hoped to be collected.

So when the tax comes in on the 1st June, I can only imagine that sufficient thought was not given to the idea of bringing this tax in time so that the properties could have been informed that there is a possibility of an impending increase. And so we find this tax bill which is directly associated with the Budget coming long after the Budget has gained approval. This tax would also have impacted on the cheap package fares by 10% on the hotel element of the packages. And I see this as accommodating that.

The tourists in the higher spending brackets might offer comment and so on, but it would not be as significant to them as it would to those in the lower package areas. So I do think that if the Government seriously wants to attract some revenue it should bring this Bill in January when it would have the benefit of a larger number of persons coming here. Surely, if in some destinations it is already 10% and 14% and so on, we should not have given any greater shock to the persons coming here paying the 10% if indeed, that is the will of the Government to bring this into play.

Madam Speaker, I have stated my support for this Bill in the areas where I see it is indeed taking some bold and very necessary steps to assist the administration of Government in tax collection. However, I do not support this Bill because included in it there is the increase in taxes which I have said during the Budget [debate] I found objectionable and would not support.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.36 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.02 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on the Second Reading of the Tourist Accommodation (Taxation (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to offer my support for a Bill for a Law to Amend the Tourist Accommodation (Taxation) Law (Revised). I am very pleased that this piece of legislation has been brought before this House at this time. I recall that the Public Accounts Committee in its Report for 1994, had recommended that the Tourist Accommodation Law, be looked at with a view of strengthening the penalties under the existing Law, and that has certainly been done in this piece of legislation.

First of all, let me say that I approve the increase of the tourist accommodation tax from 6% to 10%. And in keeping with the normal procedure where the Financial Secretary and probably the Minister for Tourism, converse with those persons who are involved, that is, the hoteliers, the condominium managers, etcetera in getting their support.

I think what has to be kept in mind is that it takes a lot of money to run a country and a Government. We have heard this morning from the Minister for Tourism, that the tourist industry provides the largest amount of employment in this country. But it also has a lot of demands. For example, the need for roads, the need for first class health services, communication services and all those things that go along with making a destination very attractive. They all cost money, Madam Speaker, and I believe that tourism has to carry its fair share of that cost.

It has been said that we are probably one of the lowest as far as the Tourist Accommodation Tax in the region [is concerned]; that is good to know. But I do not see a person deciding not to come to the Cayman Islands because rather than $6.00 a day on their hotel room in tax, they are now required to pay $10.00. I do not see this being a big problem.

I am also pleased to see that the Law has been strengthened to the extent where the Collector of Taxes, who in this case has to be the Financial Secretary, or somebody designated by him can visit these properties with a request to inspect records to ensure that the returns for tourist accommodation tax submitted are correct. And it goes on a little further from the existing Law in that if a property manager or owner refuses entry to the Collector of Taxes, or his designate, the Collector then has the recourse of going to the Court with a request for permission to issue a warrant to enable him to do so legally. I think that it is very important for them to have that type of authority.

I am also pleased because the tourist accommodation tax has been a big problem for a number of years. What amazes me is how lightly those who collect taxes on behalf of the Government treat their responsibility of submitting those taxes to the Government in a timely fashion—or submitting them period! Up until last year there was still close to $2 million outstanding in tourist accommodation tax from some of the major players in the tourist industry.

I think it is time for us to get tough on them to the point where in keeping with the recommendations of the Public Accounts Committee's Report for last year, those particular properties Trade and Business Licences are suspended if the Collector of Taxes is unable to sit down with them and work out a reasonable repayment schedule for back taxes.

To leave them in business only perpetuates the situation. They go on and rather than [owing] $200,000 within the next year it is probably $400,000. So it gets worse. And I believe that the Government has to send a very strong message that "you are obligated to collect the taxes on behalf of Government and it has to be submitted in a timely fashion". If you do not, then you must bear the penalties that go along with that.

I also notice that the penalty for false information in this Bill has been increased to $5,000 from $100. That is good, because I think Government has to get serious about this tax. If we had the outstanding taxes that the Government is now due, the Financial Secretary would probably have $2 million more which he could use to balance his Budget and for the Elected Members to be in a position to provide many more services to their people because there are a lot of needs among us.

What I am suggesting is that if it has not already been done, Financial Secretary does employ someone with the necessary accounting qualification and background who has the ability to go in and inspect some of these properties if the need arises. I think it could be a joint exercise because we have also had many complaints and problems with the issue of proper distribution of gratuities. While they are in there conducting their inspection of the books they could also determine what is due by way of gratuities.

Madam Speaker, once this exercise is undertaken they do not have to conduct too many of them before those persons involved get the message that the Government is serious about collecting its tourist accommodation taxes, and also seeing to it that gratuities upon which so many of our people who are employed in the tourist industry depend, are also distributed in a fair and equitable manner.

I am also pleased to see that if anyone falsely furnishes information on the tourist accommodation tax, there is a penalty of up to $50,000 which can be imposed by the Financial Secretary's department, or an imprisonment of at least up to six months, or both. I think that is good because the Financial Secretary has to be in a position where he has some authority and he has some means by which to get these properties attention.

I also hope that clause 8, subclause (2) of the Bill is enforced: that is where properties are late in submitting their returns and the cheque in settlement of tourist accommodation tax, the 20% surcharge on the outstanding balance will be enforced for as long as that tax is outstanding.

So, I want to congratulate the Honourable Financial Secretary on bringing this Bill. I think it is a good one. If it has not already been done, somebody needs to be employed specifically for dealing with the enforcement of this Law—someone who has the necessary accounting background and qualification to ensure that the Law is administered properly. Everyone needs to get the message that the Government is serious about collecting taxes that are due.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, one of the aims of this Bill is to improve the effectiveness of the administration of this Law and to guarantee the enforcement of the collection of the taxes due to Government.

The two speakers before me eloquently agreed that the Bill does exactly what the Honourable Financial Secretary said the Bill is intended to do. In fact, both of them—the Third Elected Member for West Bay and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman—did the job so well that there is very little anyone can add to it. Certainly, with my limited vocabulary I cannot really improve upon their debate. But the situation as I see it is that those proprietors who withhold the taxes they have collected for the Government are really dishonest people and must be dealt with as common thieves.

I can understand a property being in trouble and saying [to the Government] we cannot afford to pay the hotel licence fee or the garbage fees. But I cannot understand them not being able to hand over the cash they have collected for the Government. In business they have broken a very sacred trust because they act as agents for the Government. When you violate the relationship between the agent and his principal, you have sunk very low indeed.

So it is correct that this Law should be amended; that the penalties should be increased for those who keep the money which belongs to the Government. I am happy to learn that there are not many properties involved in this type of embezzlement because it is not common thievery, it is some sophisticated felony that they are committing.

The action of these proprietors can do no good as mentioned by the Honourable Financial Secretary, to the reputation of these Islands and to the welfare of the tourist industry. We have long enjoyed here a high reputation for honesty, and if the Government allows this to continue, it would be condoning the acts of these people. So we have to put a stop to it.

We know that this Law has been on the books for a long time and perhaps there has been some laxity on the part of Government or on previous governments in not collecting the taxes on time. Perhaps this is because we have depended too much on the matter of trusting individuals and depending on their honesty. But a new generation has arisen which knows not 'Joseph' and we have to be prepared to deal with these types of individuals.

It has been suggested—and perhaps the Honourable Financial Secretary has already put into place an individual who will have direct responsibility for the collection of these taxes. It was a good move when the collection of taxes was taken away from the Department of Tourism, which is not geared to collect taxes, and put into the hands of the Collector of Taxes. I commend this Bill.

The other part of it increases the tourist accommodation tax to 10% and according to the Financial Secretary, we are still in line with most of the other destinations in the Caribbean. I would have preferred to see the tax remain at 6%, but as has been pointed out by previous speakers, tourism itself puts a tremendous burden on the Government. It is Government who has to supply the infrastructure to properly accommodate the large number of tourists coming here. For example, one needs only to look at Harbour Drive on the waterfront and see how much money has been spent there in recent years to provide landing facilities for the tourists.

I believe it was Mr. David Ritch who, sometime ago, wrote about a tax that had been increased by a previous Government. The essence of his letter was that when the tax had been at 7.5% it was not so easy for people to figure out what they were paying. But when it had been put to 10% anybody could calculate it quite easily. So psychologically it might be easier now for the tourist to realise what he is paying. But in the matter of actual dollars collected, the sum is not that much.

I commend the Honourable Financial Secretary for bringing forward the Bill and I would trust that another 13 years will elapse before we will need to increase this tax again. We do not want to overburden the trade and make it costly so that people will say it is good, but too expensive.

So, Madam Speaker, I commend the Bill to the House.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I want to publicly lend my support to this Bill. It has been a long time since we have raised the Tourism Accommodation Tax. But more importantly, the revenue side of the Bill proposes to raise the mechanisms for collection. I do not need to belabour that point because other Members have.

The people who are concerned with the Bill (the hoteliers) are in agreement. I do not know if you would say that all of them like their tax increased. But I believe that the Minister has reached agreement with them on it. Certainly we would like not to have to resort to this Bill but there needs to be a tightening up of the whole procedure of collection.

Madam Speaker, I note that the Opposition member who spoke so far, raised some valuable points, but would not support the Bill because he says it was creating a tax in the Budget. All of us know that this will not create any tax on the general public. It is a tax on the tourist, one that is and has been acceptable in this country. But I do note that at least one of the Opposition who is now on the outside, the former member for Health, said in his public meeting that the Budget revealed that Government would increase tax on motor vehicles, import duty, diesel, and alcoholic beverages. I think he must be disappointed or dumbfounded by now. The article said: "Former Ex-Co Member lambastes Government", as its title. It could have well been "Ezard Miller Lies Again". He has no compunction about telling a lie and it shows you the depths that he will go in spreading rumours and how far out of touch he is with reality.

Madam Speaker, this country spends something in the region of $10 million, if not more, on advertisements. All hotels, condominiums and everything else gain from this $10 million. They do not have to spend this kind of money, the Government spends it. Therefore, it is proper and right that we should get some money back.

But my purpose for rising is to highlight the need for new areas of revenue to be collected. And I do this because the Member speaking in opposition made mention of it. I believe that this is something—and I know that the Financial Secretary has talked about the need before for new areas to be tapped. I believe that the Government needs now to look at Cayman Brac which I would say bluntly, is dying on its feet. I believe that a lot can be done for this country through Cayman Brac. When I say that, Madam Speaker, Cayman Brac has some 1,500 people (I believe) and it has an infrastructure comparable to Grand Cayman. I believe if there is an area where the Government can generate new revenue it is the development of Cayman Brac.

I have been in the real estate business for some time and have been talking to developers and they agree that a resort such as the Hyatt development, with all of its facilities—golf course, apartments, condominiums and private homes—is very feasible for Cayman Brac over a phased period. It would need an investment (direct) in the region of approximately $150,000 for the first phase. Of course, incentives need to be given, such as the importation of material. And if we link such a development with that of residency with a travel document with an investment of $500,000 (half million) where an annual cost is attached to that, I believe we could raise anywhere from 300 to 500 persons for the Brac. We could raise quite a large sum of revenue per annum, plus from the stamp duty on each condominium or home. This would yield quite a bit of investment and revenue for the country. Cayman Brac's economy would of course take off.

Madam Speaker, the very nature of this kind of development (since I cannot give all the detail this morning) is possible, it is feasible and we are now charging $300 for permanent residency. And I am not talking about the ordinary 'little' man to put it plainly, I am talking about investors who can invest in a condominium. That is the kind of person that we need to reach. I believe we can attract these kinds of people to Cayman Brac with such a development.

In the past I have made specific recommendations for the development of free zones and I believe that Cayman Brac also offers some scope for that development. These are my personal thoughts. I believe that other Members might have mentioned in recent times the free zone. It is something we put forward in a resolution sometime ago. It offers much scope for new revenue to be touched. We cannot go much further in raising revenue without hurting our people or without damaging our competitive position. We know this because we had to clean up our act and had to cut down on cost in the Financial Services.

Madam Speaker, these are my personal thoughts and I believe it is feasible with the homework I have done on such a development. I will be talking to Government further about it. I believe in the new year with the promotional trips, we need to have Cayman Brac included to a large extent.

The Bill is not a draconian bill in anyway and we are still below other destinations (in tax). I have confidence in the Financial Secretary and my colleague, the Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning that they do have support from the hoteliers on this. As I have said, I do not think anyone should listen to the opposition especially when they make bold statements that the Budget contains all these taxes. Their faces must have dropped in consternation to see that no such thing had been done. Who do you believe, Madam Speaker, the shadow or the person?

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to give my support to a Bill for a Law to Amend the Tourist Accommodation (Taxation) Law, (Revised). Speakers before me have fully explained the points that I had planned to address. But I am very glad to see that steps are being taken to ensure the collection of this tax.

When I was a Member of the Public Accounts Committee it was always a concern. And as a Member of this House, it has continued to be the same. So much revenue remains uncollected that could be spent to a good advantage within the three islands!

I am very grateful to the Honourable Third Official Member, for bringing such a Bill which I feel will address the need for collecting. And I would like to emphasise, as previous Members have stressed, that an individual be given responsibility so that we will know exactly who is responsible for collecting these taxes: someone who will endeavour to collect it as the Law prescribes. I think when someone collects a fee from a person that is destined for another, it is embezzlement when he does not deliver it to the person who it is intended for as the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town ably addressed. All of us at times may have financial difficulties, but we only get into additional difficulties if we spend money that is not ours.

I do have some concern that the tax will endeavour to make our travellers pay a little more. But I fully realise that I continually ask for more for my district, and other Members as well, and in order that we get revenue we must seek tax measures of some nature. I am grateful to see that tax measure this year does not directly affect the Caymanian residents. It is an indirect taxation.

The Garbage Fees as my colleague, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town said...Certainly when garbage is picked up three times a week, 52 weeks per year for $50, and it is now going to $100—that is still the cheapest garbage fee in the world. I lived in an area where I paid $50 a month and was grateful when they picked up the garbage twice a week. So, as I said, I will support this Bill.

Before taking my seat, however, I would like to express my gratitude to the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, for his interest in the district which I represent. I have had discussions with him in the past as with many other Members, and while debating the Budget I raised my concerns about what is happening in Cayman Brac. I feel that we need an increase in our population; we need development. If we continue the route we are going with no opportunities for our young people to remain in the island, then there is really no future. I think I have made that very clear in the debate on the Budget.

I am grateful to the Minister for what he has said and I wish him great success in putting this together and pledge to him my support in anything that I can do in giving local information or sharing my knowledge with him. So with these words, Madam Speaker, I support the Bill.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This Bill involves several areas and sometimes we will hear people say to us: Which do you want first, the good news or the bad news? I think most of us like to hear the good news first so maybe it is best that I proceed in that vein.

Madam Speaker, certain areas of this Bill seem to be very timely. What I will not do is to go over the points raised by other speakers. Suffice it to say that when anyone, or group of persons, treats the machinery of Government with utter disdain, we need to take heed and certainly corrective steps so that those persons involved will understand that the business of Government is not one that should be taken lightly.

I am certainly in agreement that it does not appear, from all the facts that are available, that there are many of these places offering tourism accommodation dealing with the [collection of] taxes in such a way that there is any impropriety. But for those few, I think this piece of legislation sends a clear message that it is not going to be allowed to continue.

I wish to make just a few comments on couple of the sections and what I am going to be speaking about now, is mostly to do with the type of punishment to be meted out by way of this Bill on passage into Law.

Section 3 of the Schedule in the Bill referred to section 6, 7, 8, and 9 of the principal Law and makes for substitution in these sections. I noticed what I might call a disparity where—

“A person guilty of an offence under subsection (1) shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding $5,000 or to imprison—ment for a term not exceeding six months or to both.”

While it is obvious that the punishments that were in the original Law are certainly not in keeping with the times, I think that if the term of imprisonment for both of the fines is a maximum of six months then I am not so sure that the corollary is right in that there is a maximum fine of $5,000 for one and $50,000 for the other. Perhaps one should be six months and the other should be 60 months, I am not suggesting that really. I am just drawing inference to the point. So one might want to have a look at that with a view to the intonation of changing the term of imprisonment accordingly.

Section 10 has a similar mode whereby the penalty is a maximum of $50,000 or three times the amount of the tax, whichever is the greater, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to both. There is another section also which refers to the same.

Without going into the already mentioned details of the Bill, the point that I make here is: While I accept that the level of these crimes vary and as a result the financial penalty should vary, if that is the case, then it is my view that the prison term should vary also. I am certainly not suggesting that any one of them be any less. So with those areas regarding the penalties involved in the Bill, I think it is worth considering. I am not sure what the Government's position will be on making any changes in that area.

Madam Speaker, the Schedule of the Bill, the first amendment reads: “Section 3 of the Tourist Accommodation (Taxation) Law (Revised), in this Schedule referred to as ‘the principal Law,’ shall be amended by repealing the words ‘six per centum’ and substituting the words ‘ten per cent.’”

At the very beginning of the Bill it reads: “This Law shall come into force on 1st June, 1995.”

This history as outlined by the Honourable Financial Secretary, tells us that the last time there was any increase in this area was in 1981. I think the fact is that it was raised from 5% to 6% in that year. So timing-wise there will be a 14-year gap before any other such increase takes place.

Sometimes it is good that we can hear varying views. Sometimes it is not looked upon kindly, but maybe if we were able to look at whatever is being said objectively, we might be able to see some merit. I hold the view—and it certainly does not refer to the Government of the day. It is a general thought that I have because I have seen it done in the past—that revenue measures should be examined on a regular basis and enacted on a timely basis in whatever area we choose, rather than ever so often seeing high increases pop up out of the woodwork because they are not being addressed for long periods of time.

I remember several years ago when there was an increase in the licensing fee for vehicles. It had not been addressed for many years and there was a very high increase in the hundred percentage range. There was the usual outcry. The point at hand here is not whether the action is justified by way of the revenue that is needed by the Government to provide the services that are being cried out for: it is a matter of timing. So that one is able to continually enjoy the meals rather than getting choked.

I bring that point to draw parallel to this occasion whereby there is a 66 2/3% increase on the tourist accommodation tax which is charged by the providers of accommodation on behalf of Government. At no time does anyone like to hear about taxes. My line of argument at this time is not whether the amount it has been increased to is warranted or justified by the many demands that are called on from central Government for the provision of facilities for the tourists and the comfort they require. It is simply to say that whenever we have revenue measures and they are of this magnitude it is always taken with a bad taste.

So, when we (as we will continually have to) look at revenue measures we might want to choose a different perspective on an ongoing basis so that at no point in time does any segment of the society become scared and rebellious towards the enactment of these revenue measures.

A very similar example is when there is insurance which is a necessary (should I call it commodity—perhaps that is not the right word)... But it is necessary for most, if not all of us, to have insurance today whether it is for life or health. If we look at the way the premiums are collected it is a very minor percent of who makes annual payment premiums. The vast majority of premiums are paid on a monthly basis. That is just another parallel.

I note the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, read my mind regarding the garbage fees. Although this has nothing to do with the Bill at hand, it is the same point that I make regarding these measures. While the service being provided may well be worthy of the fees that are charged, the fact is, it is not easy to sell 100% increase to your constituents and justify it. I will say no more on that issue.

The Speaker: Could we take the luncheon suspension at this time? Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.00 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.40 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town continuing the debate.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the lunch break I was resting my case on the topic. But having had a little time to think about that aspect of it, I wish to make a few more comments.

The increase in the garbage fees I note will be done by regulations not through passage of a Bill in this honourable House. I want to say that although it is difficult for the public to accept percentage-wise such a large increase, in discussions with the Head of the Department, it has been proven to me that the service is worth it. So I cannot truthfully stand here this afternoon and say with regards to the garbage fees that the fees are exorbitant. I can only go back to my original point and say that in matters such as these which have an immediate effect on the pocket of the public, we need to look at being able to incorporate revenue measures, even if more regularly, on a more timely basis so that the effects and the impacts do not seem to be great at any one time.

Now, my only bone of contention with this Bill is where I mentioned earlier the increase from 6% to 10% on the Tourist Accommodation Tax. Let me clearly state that immediately after seeing this I spoke to some of the individuals who are directly involved. I cannot say that the reaction was one of great negativity, but there were some reservations. As I was saying before—they too would have preferred for the increase in tax to be done on a staged basis rather than so much at one time. The Government has now taken that position. I simply draw reference once again to what I said earlier that in the future if through the offices of the Honourable Third Official Member there could be an ongoing process whereby necessary revenue measures are taken into consideration, then there would be no large increase in any one area at any given time.

Madam Speaker, when we were presented with the Budget and I listened to the Address of the Honourable Third Official Member, that was when I knew about these intended revenue measures. A little later on during the course of various Members' contributions to the Budget Address, I saw the white paper for a Bill for a Law to Amend the Tourist Accommodation (Taxation) Law, (Revised).

The Honourable Third Official Member has eloquently explained the reasoning why the Bill was not brought either before, or together, with the Budget. But let me clearly state my position... By the way the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman was wrong when he said he was the only one who would not vote for the Budget because of the intended revenue measures not being discussed and passed either before or along with the Budget. It only happened that a division was not taken.

Madam Speaker, as one of the 15 Elected Members in this honourable House, for me to truthfully and sensibly assess a situation I am faced with, I need to be informed. I certainly believe I needed to know about the revenue measures. I needed to hear the rationale behind the revenue measures beforehand rather than after the fact.

Let me try to go through a sequence of events here slowly. Firstly, I am not suggesting that at the end of the day the revenue measure itself is not in line and necessary. I am not going to beef about that situation. What I feel is a bit unfair (although I speak only for myself) is to be expected to make sensible contributions to vote on a Budget which includes $23 million worth of capital expenditure and includes from a balanced position projected income of $4.6 million from revenue measures which I know nothing about. For a matter of course of events nothing may change, but from a personal point of view, I cannot stand here and say that is the way I understand the process should be and agree with it. It has nothing to do with the net end position, it is a matter of a sequence of events.

If, indeed as the Honourable Financial Secretary stated, the people directly involved had to be consulted, quite rightly so. And it was a blessing that they were, because the timing was changed from the initial thoughts and they will now have time to clear up their bookings and make sure future bookings are in line with the new fees that will have to be paid.

That is all well and good. But it still does not change the position that I as an Elected representative have been asked to understand regarding the merits of the Budget and accept whatever the $4.6 million of revenue measures are and say yes. Whether that little vote matters or not, to me that is a matter of principle. In the big picture others may not see it that way but I am forced to look at it from where I sit. There may well have been others who were well-informed of the position and I do not have a problem with that. The fact is I was not.

The other thing that comes to mind at present is... And we are not talking about a huge difference at the end of the day because it might well pan out. But the other thing is that when the Budget was initially presented—and this bears relevance to this tax bill, I feel—the projected budget was a balanced one. That was based on the fact at the time that the revenue measures would have started 1st January, given the position which the Honourable Third Official Member explained, and the Minister involved, taking the time out to discuss the matter with all persons concerned. I am sure it was for the best end result whereby the position is changed from 1st January, to 1st June. But that in itself creates a totally different position from the initial position because the revenue will be that much less.

So in effect if we want to get technical we no longer have a balanced Budget whether or not at the end of the day it works out, and whether there is overage (as it is loosely called) coming in to make everything work. Again, I am not suggesting that it will not happen, but to me it does not bode well for a way of operation.

The remaining parts of this Bill I think, are good for the Government to have taken this position to ensure that what has to be done by way of collection of this tax is done properly and people are made to understand that the Government is serious, and will collect it one way or the other. I am glad that when this is over there will be teeth in the Law to deal with those who think they can get away with not handling the situation properly.

I believe that the Government should have taken a different line in bringing the Budget and in bringing these revenue measures. As I said earlier, it might not matter at the end of the day and the results may end up being the same. But I feel very disadvantaged when I sit here and try to make sense of everything and as one would have it said, 'All the ducks are lined up'. To me they were not. It might be a situation where because of numbers everybody knows well this is how it is going to happen. No big deal.

My principle in that is that while this may have no effect at the end of the day on the sums we are talking about and what the net result for the country will be, I find where people do not pay attention to certain things and certain things can become a habit. That is where I basically have the problem with this Bill.

I am asked outside of this House what position I am going to take on the Bill because I keep talking about it and will not make my position clear. Let me close by saying what my position is. I am in total agreement with all other parts of the Bill that have been brought forward. As a matter of principle for me the increase of 6% to 10%...because of how I have been forced to deal with it as an individual in this Honourable House I cannot agree with. Not based on the 10% but based on the way it was dealt with as a matter of procedure. Therefore, if I have to vote yes to this Bill, while it might not matter and there is no way for me to separate that last concern, then I cannot do it.

Madam Speaker, there is one last aspect that I wish to address. I understand my responsibility as a representative to be one whereby whatever I feel is reasonable to expect within the ambit of Government's operation for the constituencies whom I represent then I should ask for them. While I have to employ a certain amount of rationalism when it comes to how much I can expect, that is really not the biggest part of my problem. That is why I am sitting where I sit. My job is to represent the people and there are others who have to put the package together the right way to make sure we survive.

The last bit that I wish to touch on is a part of the delivery by the Honourable Third Official Member, when he introduced this Bill. I wish to read from the unedited Hansard so that we may have it fresh in our minds. The Honourable Third Official Member said:

"There are some Honourable Members of this House who are unhappy that the Bill was not presented in tandem with the Budget Address. As I pointed out during my winding up [reply] on the Budget Address the only reason this was not done was that the consultation with the hotel industry had not taken place at the time of presenting the Budget Address. The Government could have opted not to consult with the representatives of the hotel and condominium industry and introduce the increases with immediate effect.

"The result would have been confusion and frustration to the industry as it was brought to light during the meeting between the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning and the industry, that the rates for the remainder of 1994, through part of 1995, have already been fixed and contracted for with various overseas travel agencies based on the existing 6% occupancy tax. Based on this process of consultation the date agreed upon for the Law to come into effect is June 1st, 1995."

Madam Speaker, this is not to my mind out of line. And I understand what the Honourable Third Official Member has said, and I think I understand what he means. But he knows by now that my point is way beyond what he is addressing here. I wish not to have to repeat myself but I am sure he understands what I am saying.

He also said: "...this explanation is not intended as an overt plea to those Honourable Members, as individually and collectively I know they are very committed to the smooth functioning of every segment of our economy and would, I am sure, be very unhappy with any action by the Government that would disrupt the smooth operations of such an important sector as the tourism industry."

Let me just quickly explain: Again I understand exactly what the Honourable Third Official Member is saying. I am not suggesting that these people should not have been consulted. That is why I am saying that this Bill should have been brought either before, or during, the Budget debate. I am suggesting that for us to be able to sensibly make contributions to any Budget that includes revenue measures we have to know what they are. We as individual representatives have the rights and the obligation to be able to vote one way or the other on these revenue measures regardless of what the end result may be. We have to be able to discuss this with constituents and be able to come back being informed and take a position knowing what we are dealing with.

So if the consultation had not taken place before hand and rightly so it was necessary to do so, then I believe the Government's machinery should have been able to find another method to bring this Bill. It is not coming into effect until June 1995, which means that as a part of Government's revenue from now until May 31st, 1995, it really means nothing.

The point that I am making with that is that the Bill could have been brought at any later stage after being allowed to be dealt with in its usual course. And whether or not it affected the position of the Budget being balanced that is another matter. That may be part of it for the position taken by the Government, but certainly it is not for me in looking at the Bill as an individual item.

So after all is said and done, I trust that what I have said is not misunderstood, but is clear enough—the position I hold when it comes to dealing with matters like this.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I rise to support the Bill presently before the House. I believe the only reason why the Opposition is having some difficulty with the Bill, might be because they wanted two bites at the cherry; they wanted to debate it during the Budget Address and debate it as we are doing today.

The Bill presently before the House is a good one. It is a Bill that has been agreed to with the stakeholders (if I could use that word) of the tourism industry. And we have looked, and the Honourable Third Official Member, the Financial Secretary, has indicated that the increase from 6% to 10% is not out of line with some of the other Caribbean countries. For example, in Jamaica they charge 12.5% and if we want to go a little further south, the Dominican Republic (according to my information) charges 23%.

Some other countries, such as those that the Third Official Member mentioned, the Bahamas and the British Virgin Islands, leave the Tourist Accommodation tax at a particular figure but then they add another item called "resort tax", which, in essence, puts the British Virgin Island's position at 14% or the Bahamas' position at 8%. The difference really is 10% that we are charging. On what? We are proposing that 10% be charged effective 1st June, 1995, basically on the cost of the room. Some of the other countries charge whatever rate they charge on everything: your room cost, your laundry cost, food cost, drink cost, whatever cost, whatever the total bill is!

We spend many millions [of dollars], Madam Speaker, promoting the Cayman Islands as a tourist destination. I believe from some of the information this morning, that we are improving our market share of those visitors coming to the Caribbean. I heard the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman mention this morning that they are package deals. I have never said that they are package deals. There have been package deals in this country from the day that Benson Greenall was here, that is back in the 1950s. And there will be package deals no matter who the Minister for Tourism is, as long as we are catering to tourists.

But the point is, Madam Speaker, talk to any hotelier or any condominium manager or owner and ask him what his profit was in 1993 versus 1992, and 1991. I bet you he has got a good story to tell you; he might even tell the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman too. We got it right, Madam Speaker! It is right! and we are moving to keep it right.

If you go to a hotel and they charge you $100 a day, you pay 4% on it, it is still only $4.00; or 6% on it, it is still only $6.00; or 10% it is only $10.00. They are making this mammoth exaggeration that because it is moving from 6% to 10% the whole world is coming to an end. They are almost trying to give that impression—particularly the last speaker.

I am satisfied that the percentage increase, given that we have not increased it in 13 years, is a reasonable one. I believe that when all of the doves are home, we will have more money to utilise to promote tourism and provide more services to our people which I think is the Government's responsibility. I recommend this Bill to Members, as did the Honourable Third Official Member.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to support this Bill for a Law to Amend the Tourism Accommodation (Taxation) Law, (Revised). I would like to commend the Minister for Tourism and the Honourable Third Official Member for their consultation with the members of the Hotel and Condominium Association in seeking their input before bringing this Bill to this honourable House for consideration.

Madam Speaker, to me this is good government and as the leader of the Opposition, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said, that successive governments did not come down on members of the hotel industry for not paying the taxes due to Government. I think this Bill speaks well for the present Government, in that we realise the importance of collecting dues that are owed to Government.

Having served (and still serving), on the Public Accounts Committee, I was surprised to learn of the number of establishments that collect funds on behalf of Government, then withhold them I guess, using them to their benefit and not passing the amounts on to Government in the manner they are supposed to.

In our recommendations from the Public Accounts Committee (those were tabled last year) we recommended that this Law be reviewed because of the amount of funds that were being withheld from Government by hoteliers and condominium owners in the industry. But with this Bill there are penalties for these offences.

Previous Members mentioned the penalties for these offences and I am pleased to see that it is a considerable amount to deter the people from withholding these funds and that this will be strictly enforced. There is an imprisonment term as well and, that it will be on demand and will not be given time to pay these funds if they withheld it.

The Public Accounts Committee recommended that all efforts be made in collecting the accommodation tax. One of the recommendations that was made on behalf of the Government was that a person (or persons) be hired to collect these revenues that are due to Government because of the large amount of money. I believe, Madam Speaker, that this is in place. Someone has been transferred from the Tourism Department to the Treasury Department on a full-time basis to collect these funds. I think that the Honourable Third Official Member is on the right track in collecting the funds that are due the Government and I support this Bill and commend the Mover for presenting it at this time.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to give my support to this Bill for a Law to Amend the Tourist Accommodation (Taxation) Law, (Revised). I was really surprised to hear the quantity of money that is owed to Government by some establishments. It is quite time now that Government puts its feet down, tighten up its stirrups, and start to collect this money. These people are collecting this money that should be the Government's and are using it. There is no excuse for them, and again, to learn that some of them have even passed on cheques that bounced, they should be brought to justice for that. That is a criminal act. With that I say the Bill is good, and I give it my full support. Thank you.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, would the Honourable Third Official Member, the Mover, wish to exercise his right of reply?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I rise to thank all Honourable Members who have indicated their support for this Bill, and also to thank those who have indicated that they will not support it. From all of the arguments that have been put forward, I think that some very good and valid suggestions have come from both sides.

Madam Speaker, the Second Elected Member for the Sister Islands in the question dealing with the penalties and the enforcement issues said that it would be futile to go ahead and introduce changes unless measures would be put in place to ensure the effective administration and follow through with the collection of moneys that are due to Government. He is quite right in this regard and at this time in the Treasury Department there are two persons who form a unit (a Debt Collection Unit) with the specific focus at this time being on the arrears of hotel accommodation tax.

We are hoping to add a third individual to this core unit and this person will be brought in at the AP 1-3 level, a relatively senior position. This will mean that the person will be tasked with the responsibility of keeping abreast of the arrears and will be reporting to the Accountant General on an ongoing basis regarding the arrears of hotel accommodation tax—not only with the hotel accommodation tax but all arrears of revenue. We will need to build up reinforcement in that area because we have found that it is not the only sector where the Government at this time is sustaining significant decline in revenue. All areas will need to be looked at.

Previously it meant the Accountant General assigning one or two staff members to these areas on an ad hoc basis, but this will be corrected because we have seen that the level of revenue has continued to increase and the potential for mischief is also on the increase as well. That will be corrected. In fact that post (AP1-3) was approved under the New Services section of the Budget. The suggestion also came from the Third Elected Member for West Bay, that the manpower commitment to dealing with the arrears of revenue should be reinforced.

The question was also put as to the likely decline in revenue by changing the implementation date from the 1st of January to the 1st of June, and the likely impact that would have on the Budget. It will have an impact, Madam Speaker, because if we were to take it on a straight line basis, a loss of 5/12 of the potential revenue that could be collected would mean that the Government is likely to sustain a loss of approximately $1.6 million. But since that change has come about it will also mean (and this will be done), that overall likely decline in revenue will have to be looked at and a position paper put to Executive Council.

It is necessary for the Government to operate on a balanced budget concept. And any set of circumstances that brings about any changes to that concept, will mean that the other side—the expenditure side—will have to be looked at. And if it needs looking at, the range of projects under the Capital section to determine what project can be deferred or areas where expenditures can be cut back or restrained in order to achieve a balancing effect. So that will not be lost, Madam Speaker.

The Ministers and Members of Executive Council are very much cognizant of this. But looking at the benefits that have accrued through the consultation, that in effect is what has resulted in a postponement of the effective date of the Bill, from the 1st of January to the 1st of June. On the other side it is much better to have met with those people and address this issue rather than for the Government to have gone ahead and put the measures in place in order to achieve the collection of these moneys as of 1st of January, and yet breathing ill-will within the industry.

Madam Speaker, although the balancing effect of the Budget has been impacted on, it will have a more positive effect in terms of seeking to address the likely shortfall than to have maintained the position of inflexibility and at the end of the day the hotel industry would be up in arms against Government.

I have also spoken to the Honourable Attorney-General on the question of the penalties as highlighted by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, and we are both in agreement that there are certain anomalies that should be addressed. Where an imprisonment term of six months is matched against a sum of $5,000, it should not be the same for an offence that would result in a charge of $50,000. The Attorney-General has pointed out however, that this should be looked at very carefully because the Magistrate's Court is empowered to only introduce a fine or a [prison term] not in excess of two years.

What I would suggest, Madam Speaker, and I am going to move this during the Committee stage of the Bill, is that the imprisonment term in clause 3(4) of the Bill, where it says "$50,000 or an imprisonment term not exceeding six months", be increased to "two years". I will also be making a further amendment to clause 10(1) where it says: "$50,000 ... or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months..." that the time be changed to two years. Also in clause 10(2)(b), that again the time of "six months" be changed to a period of "two years".

If we were to look at the $1.6 million that is likely to be a loss because of postponing the implementation date of this increase, we will see that it amounts to less than 1% of the Budget. Now, we know that in any given situation nothing is carved in stone and it is unfortunate that a situation like this arises. But, given the time in which we live, as I pointed out earlier, it is much better to go this route and seek to address it by other means, than not to go through with the consultation process. I think a variance of one per cent is one that we can live with, adjust to, and reconcile the position towards that end.

So, overall, the Bill at the end of the day will introduce those measures that are necessary to effectively police this segment of the industry. And, also as pointed out by one Honourable Member, in terms of the examination that will be carried out into the activities of the hotel industry, not only will breaches made by establishments to remit to the Government amounts of moneys collected by them be looked into, but also the way gratuities are handled.

Madam Speaker, as I pointed out when the Bill was being introduced, this is not being done by a large number of establishments. And where we find breaches in one area it is likely that this is pervasive and that these are individuals who quite likely could be misappropriating the gratuities as well. Because of this and the overall macro impact on the community—especially those individuals who are employed within that segment of the industry and very much dependent on the gratuities to supplement their weekly or monthly wages—this needs looking into and will be addressed.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Tourist Accommodation (Taxation) (Amendment) Bill, 1994 be given a Second Reading. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could we have a division?

The Speaker: You certainly may.
Madam Clerk.

Clerk: DIVISION NO. 23/94

AYES: 11

Hon. James M. Ryan
Hon. George A. McCarthy
Hon. W. McKeever Bush
Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson
Hon. John B. McLean
Hon. Truman M. Bodden
Hon. Anthony S. Eden
Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.
Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks
Mrs. Berna Murphy Thompson
Mr. G. Haig Bodden

NOES: 2

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
Mr. Roy Bodden

ABSENT: 5

Hon. Richard Coles
Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson
Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts
Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell
Mrs. Edna Moyle

The Speaker: The result of the Division is 11 Ayes, and 2 Noes. The Bill has accordingly, by majority, been given a Second Reading.

AGREED: THE BILL GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: The House will now go into Committee to consider the Tourist Accommodation (Taxation) (Amendment) Bill, 1994 and the Port Authority (Licensing of Vehicles) Bill, 1994.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE 3.30 pm

COMMITTEE ON BILLS

The Chairman: Please be seated. The House is now in Committee.

THE PORT AUTHORITY (LICENSING OF VEHICLES) BILL, 1994

The Chairman: The first Bill is The Port Authority (Licensing of Vehicles) Bill, 1994. The Clerk will read the clauses.

Clerk: Clause 1—Short title and commencement.
 Clause 2—Interpretation.
 Clause 3—Function of the Port Authority.
 Clause 4—Licensing of vehicles.
 Clause 5—Inspection of vehicles.
 Clause 6—Licensing of drivers.
 Clause 7—Licensing of operators.
 Clause 8—Bylaws.
 Clause 9—Offences.
 Clause 10—Fees for licences.
 Clause 11—Power to require applicants to submit information.
 Clause 12—Obstruction of authorised officers.
 Clause 13—Suspension and revocation of vehicle licences.
 Clause 14—Suspension and revocation of other licences.
 Clause 15—Saving and transitional.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 1 through 15 stand part of the Bill.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I was not quite sure whether to interrupt as the clauses were being called or wait until the question was put, as it is now.

Madam Chairman, the question I wish to ask is one that I raised during the debate, the word "Caymanian" has the same meaning as in the Immigration Law. What in effect does this mean? It is not absolutely clear to me. When you say Caymanian are you speaking of someone who has Caymanian status?

The Chairman: The Honourable Minister would you reply or would you prefer the Honourable Second Official Member to do that?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Chairman, I would prefer the Second Official Member to reply.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Chairman, unfortunately I do not have a copy of the Immigration Law in front of me. But it means that the definition of "Caymanian" contained within the Immigration Law would apply to this particular Bill and the Law as well. So there is no separate definition.

If indeed that definition encompasses Caymanian status, and I believe it does, then that would apply to this as well. Rather than repeating the definition that is in the Immigration Law it really refers to that. It is a device that is used quite often in drafting laws rather than repeating a definition in another substantive law, it just refers to it.

The Chairman: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Chairman, I heard what the Attorney-General said on this and still my only query would be the word "Caymanian", it having the same meaning as in the Immigration Law, and in the Immigration Law there is no such term as Caymanian. It is Caymanian status holder.

The Chairman: Perhaps the Second Official Member would like a copy of that for clarity. Thank you.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Chairman, my point of concern has (as I raised in my debate) to do with clause 13(2) where we talk about suspension. I wonder if the Honourable Minister is so disposed as to comment on the point.

Let me refresh the memory of [Members] of the Committee. I read:

"13 (2) Where the Port Authority suspends, revokes or refuses to renew any licence under this section the Authority shall give to the proprietor of the vehicle notice of the reason for that decision."

I mentioned that perhaps the Honourable Minister, if it is his intention to consider reinstating in such cases (maybe it is coming in the regulations) I said my position is that I would like to see some provisions for reinstatement, because a suspension would imply a limited time. Whereas I understand a revocation could be permanent. A suspension could be three months, six months, what then would be an established procedure? Is there any probationary period? What other conditions and stipulations exist?

The Chairman: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Chairman, the point raised by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town is a good one. Our view as far as the Port Authority is concerned is, if a person's permission is revoked, it means then that he is free. After that period of revocation whether or not it is for an indefinite period of time. He could then reapply at some future time to be readmitted and the Authority would consider that application.

The Chairman: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Chairman, under clause 3(2), which reads:

"Any licence granted by the Port Authority in exercise of the functions conferred under paragraphs (a) and (b) of subsection (1) above shall apply and may contain conditions that apply outside as well as inside a port or port area; and any such licence which applies outside a port or port area shall be without prejudice to any requirement relating to the vehicle or person so licensed which is imposed by or under the Traffic Law (Revised) or the Traffic Law, 1991."

I wonder if the Minister could elaborate on exactly what he is hoping to achieve there. One of the problems that we have at the Port is, that you get these taxi operators who are complying with the law and do line up, but you have those who are on the outside basically pirating, as far as pulling passengers from the buses in line as well as others. It has always been a contention because the police cannot do anything about it. I wonder if he could elaborate a bit on that.

The Chairman: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Chairman, once we grant an operator a licence from the Port, the regulation is seeking to control that individual whether they are operating inside the Port or making that journey from the Port to the destination (whatever it may be).

The Member is speaking about clause 3, sub-clause (2). Would the Member repeat because I did not have the copy of the Bill in front of me at the time.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Chairman, the problem that we have always had at the Port is: There are those drivers who do comply with the Regulations and line up to make their trips, while you have those on the outside who are not interested (first of all being licensed by the Port Authority to operate at the Port), and what they do is, they cause a lot of problems for those people who do comply with the rules, by pulling passengers away from them, by parking across the street and that type of thing.

I would urge the Honourable Minister to maybe seek the co-operation of the police. Otherwise it will be a very difficult position for him to control, because these people have no desire whatsoever to abide by the rules.

And there are quite a few of them.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Chairman, I think the Member is actually touching on the crux of the problem, that is, the people who are not licensed at the Port but who are seeking to attract passengers away from the Port area in order to have a trip to some place. I believe they will probably get caught up under the Traffic Regulations that are coming forward.

The authority under this Bill really only allows us to control individuals licensed by the Port Authority within the Port's property or licensed even outside the Port's property. But if persons are not licensed at all by the Port Authority, the Authority really has no jurisdiction over those persons unless they come onto Port property. If they do come onto the Port's property I think we do have the authority to deal with them.

The Chairman: Going back to the first question that was raised about Caymanian, this is contained in the 1984 amendment of the Constitution where it says: "Caymanian' status means Caymanian status as provided under the Caymanian Protection Law (which is now the Immigration Law) as amended or repealed."

Second Official Member have you found anything in the Immigration Law?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: No, Madam Chairman. The Immigration Law has a definition of Caymanian status.

I take the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman's point, that the way to put this beyond any doubt would be to amend the definition in this Bill before the Committee. To say that "Caymanian" shall include holders of Caymanian status as defined in the Immigration Law. Perhaps that would be a way of making it absolutely crystal clear.

The Chairman: Why not say the Constitution on the Immigration Law? The Constitution, is the one that gives the overriding power.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The Constitution defines "Caymanian" as . . .

The Chairman: It has Caymanian status you see—

Hon. Richard H. Coles: . . . as being Caymanian as well.

The Chairman: No, it does not say that.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, I have a copy of the Constitution—I do not know whether I have it . . .

The Chairman: It just says, "Caymanian status" means Caymanian status as provided under the Caymanian Protection Law, which is now the Immigration Law.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, either way would do.

The Chairman: Can we have a proposed amendment then, which could be considered?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Chairman, I will propose then that we amend it in the way I have just outlined so that it will read: “‘Caymanian’ shall include holders of Caymanian status as defined in the Immigration Law;”

The Chairman: The proposed amendment would be “‘Caymanian’ shall include holders of Caymanian status as defined in the Immigration Law;” I shall put the question that an amendment be made to clause 2, the definition of "Caymanian", and the words be: "shall include holders of Caymanian status as defined in the Immigration Law;".

I shall put the question—Is there any debate? May I put the question that the amendment be made? Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 2 PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that clause 2 as amended do stand part of the Bill.

Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 2 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 1, and 3 through 15 stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 1 AND 3 THROUGH 15 PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for A Law to Confirm and Make Provision For The Port Authority's Licensing of Certain Vehicles and Persons to Apply Outside and in a Port or Port Area.

The Chairman: The question is that the Title do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question, those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. THE TITLE PASSED.

THE TOURIST ACCOMMODATION (TAXATION) (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1994

The Chairman: The next Bill is the Tourist Accommodation (Taxation) (Amendment) Bill, 1994.

Clerk: Clause 1—Short title and commencement.

Clause 2—Amendment of the Tourist Accommodation (Taxation) Law (revised).

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 1 and 2 do stand part of the Bill.

The Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Chairman, I would like to make an amendment to clause 1, subclause (2) of the Bill, the commencement provision. It seems from the debate that took place on this Bill, that the enforcement provisions met with the favour of all Members of this House and I have spoken with the Honourable Third Official Member, who has concurred with bringing the Law itself into force in the normal way when it is gazetted, but the additional revenue measures being postponed until the 1st of June, 1995.

This would have the effect of allowing the enforcement procedures in respect of arrears of taxes to be dealt with in the manner outlined in this amending Law which I think would be very desirable in not having to wait until the 1st of June, 1995.

Would you like me to propose the wording for that?

The Chairman: Please.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Chairman, I am afraid it's a little lengthy, but I will read it slowly. In place of subclause (2), there would be two subclauses (2) & (3). Subclause (2) would read as follows:

"(2) Subject to subsection (3) below, this Law shall come into force on the 1st of January, 1995.

"(3) The amendment to the Tourist Accommodation (Taxation) Law (Revised) made by paragraph 1 of The Schedule to this Law shall come into force on the 1st of June, 1995."

Hopefully, Madam Chairman, that will make it very clear to everybody that this particular amendment comes into force on two different dates depending on which section you are looking at.

The Chairman: The proposed amendment in clause 1, subclause (2) now reads:

"(2) Subject to subsection (3) below, this Law shall come into force on the 1st of January, 1995.

"(3) The amendment to the Tourist Accommodation (Taxation) Law (Revised) made by paragraph 1 of The Schedule to this Law shall come into force on the 1st of June, 1995."

The amendment as proposed is now open to debate. If there is no debate I shall put the question, that clause 1 be amended as set out.

Clause 1 as set out, do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 1 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Chairman: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Chairman, I would like to propose an amendment to clause 3, subclause (4) of the Schedule, the last line, that the words "six months", be changed to "two years".

The Chairman: The amendment is in the new clause 3, of the Schedule. Clause 3, subclause (4), that the words "six months" be changed to "two years".

The question is that the proposed amendment be made. The item is open to debate.

If there is no debate I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 3 SUB-CLAUSE (4) PASSED.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The next amendment is, clause 10, subclause (1), that the word "six months" be changed to "two years".

The Chairman: The further amendment is clause 10, subclause (1) the word "six months" be deleted and the words "two years" substituted. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 10, SUB-CLAUSE (1) PASSED.

The Chairman: The Honourable Financial Secretary.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The next proposed amendment is clause 10, subclause (2), the very last line where the words, "six months" be deleted and "two years" substituted. (The very back page).

The Chairman: The further amendment is to clause 10, subclause (2) the words "six months" be deleted and the words "two years" substituted. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

The Speaker: I will ask the Third Elected Member for George Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that /trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly. Government Business, Bills, Third Reading.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 29/94

CODE OF ETHICS AND CONDUCT FOR LEGISLATORS

The Speaker: Other Business, Private Member's Motion 29/94. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move Private Member's Motion 29/94, Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators, which reads:

"WHEREAS by Private Member's Motion No. 19 of 1989, passed unanimously on the 12th day of September, a select committee on the Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators was established and recommended, in its interim Report, that appropriate written guidelines for such a Code be provided; the Committee did not, however, continue to function;

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT this honourable House refers the matter of legislation for a Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators to the Select Committee now reviewing a Register of Interests for consideration as 'companion' legislation."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 29/94, having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, this Motion in its recitals takes note of the fact that as far back as 1989 a Motion was moved in this honourable House that a select committee of the whole House should be set up to look into the matter of creating a Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators which would have come by way of an appropriate form of legislation.

This Motion was unanimously passed by the House at that time, however, regretfully, at no time did that select committee meet to go into the details of what should be included in a Code of Conduct and Ethics for Legislators. In fact, other than give a few reports at the end of each year, the select committee did not function as such. So, this particular Motion fell away.

The Motion fell away, but surely not the need for legislation which would provide a Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators.

This Code of Conduct and Ethics would be legislation that deals with situations of conflict of interests and would prescribe, as far as is reasonably possible, certain parameters within which legislators should operate.

It would, if done properly, look at the question of how a legislator's personal interest may conflict with the performance of his or her duties. If anything, the need for such a Code has grown greater and has intensified.

Throughout the world, we read in newspapers and magazines, and we see on television, instances where persons engaged in the legislative process run afoul of what is considered proper conduct and ethics. They get in trouble in instances where the courts and the machinery that keep tabs on these situations find them behaving improperly.

If we use a dictionary definition, a code is any system or body of rules or laws relating to one subject. So the subject in this case would be the way legislators perform—what they could and could not do, or what they should or should not do—with the attendant penalties, if indeed this happened.

Conduct relates to the management of one's personal behaviour and the mode of carrying on or conducting one's business and affairs.

Of course, when we think of ethical behaviour, we think of behaviour which would fall within the ambits of that relating to morals and the treating of morality and containing precepts of morality—moral obligation, moral philosophy which teaches men their duty and the reasons for it.

So, this is what this Motion envisages that would be some of the elements discussed. I feel quite certain that as far back as 1989 there was a very similar situation in view when this Motion, which is identified in the recitals was passed.

We have come some way in addressing this matter, for we are now in the process of dealing with a Register of Interests for legislators. This goes a long way in setting out for the knowledge of all concerned—legislators and members of the public, in proper instances—just what the interests of legislators in this country are. In this regard, if I were to refer to the form that is used by the House of Commons, and just read one sentence from it, I think it sums up the gist of what the Register of Interests should be, and what it should hope to achieve, very nicely.

I quote, and I note that this form was issued in accordance with the resolution of the House of Commons on the 22nd May, 1974, and the 28th June, 1993: "The main purpose of the Register of Members' Interests is to provide information of any pecuniary interests or other material benefit which a member receives which might reasonably be thought by others to influence his/her actions, speeches or votes in Parliament or actions taken in his/her capacity as a member of Parliament."

I think that sets out very succinctly the concept behind the whole situation. Rather than at this time, considering setting up another select committee, it would be most appropriate that the select committee on the Register of Interests for the Cayman Islands legislators should also look at a Code of Ethics and Conduct for the legislators in tandem with what is now being undertaken.

This committee has met and discussed to some extent matters which are to come before it and, of course, members of the public have been invited to comment on it. There have been certain comments and certain indications that persons are interested in appearing before that committee to give their opinions about the matter of a Register of Interests and, I dare say, a Code of Conduct and behaviour of legislators generally.

At this point I would just like to interject that I am very mindful of the need for legislators to behave in the right and proper manner and I think that all legislators in the House generally are. But, I do not, for one minute, accept the numerous accusations and statements that I have heard repeated in good colloquial fashion about 'unna a do dis, or unna a do dat,' or what legislators are doing or not doing. Everyone has an opinion about it. There is a correct way to do whatever is done.

Surely, when examining the situation where legislators are concerned, businesses in this country and people in this country should also be minded that there are certain ethical and moral ways for all of us dealing in this country. I think it is commendable that legislators do think it sufficiently necessary that as legislators we would seek to put in place legislation which governs the way we operate. That is indeed commendable.

There are instances I dare say where, unknowingly, legislators may act in a manner which if it were under review by a proper authority, that authority might say, "We do not find that in this particular instance you acted in a wise manner and you should have done so and so." These things do happen. I think that any legislation in this area would not attempt to nit-pick or be down on every single petty situation where it might have arisen in the mind of someone that there may have been an ethical question, but, rather, in instances where there are clear cut and major discrepancies in this regard.

As I mentioned, there are questions internationally about the conflict of interests, and legislators around the world seem to be falling afoul of what is required in behaviour and what is required in terms of acting in their best interests, but also acting in a proper manner as be-speaks their public office.

In the Economist magazine of the 5th November,

1994, I quote one brief section, which reads: "All over Europe, politicians are facing judicial investigation of public criticism of corruption cases and conflict of interests between public responsibilities and private business concerns. Some critics say their representatives should be required to make fuller disclosure of their business interests. Others argue that they should not be allowed to have second jobs at all. Some say parliamentary pay should go up, others think it should go down. Still others, including President Francois Mitterand think the solution is to ban business donation to political parties."

In that brief paragraph embodied therein is the multiplicity of public opinion—in this case the reference is made to the European situation, but about the various views including the presidents of some countries.

The situation where legislators must, as citizens and people, have personal business interests, undoubtedly will continue and there will always be the opportunity of conflict in how they address their personal interests and keep in line with what is expected of them by the public.

This article makes mention also of Britain, and it says: "Even in Britain, one of the most intrusive, the Register of Members' Interests, does not require MP's to disclose the amounts they receive from extra-curricular work."

So, while acknowledging that there is not a Register of Interests, there seems to also be a school of thought that every penny spent should be disclosed.

I think it is a great and balancing act where people who choose to run for public office should be considered first as people, understanding that they have certain personal obligations, family business and otherwise, and they also have obligations as legislators. But I hope that any effort that we might take in this country would not be so severe that it knocks that necessary balance out of place, but takes careful consideration of both.

Madam Speaker, having read that particular article, it goes to show that there are situations where legislators do run into trouble. It is not unthinkable that it can happen in these Islands. Perhaps there are instances where a proper authority might look at a situation and be in a position to clearly advise legislators here now that it would be best if a particular course of action was not pursued or, indeed, pursuing a personal or professional course of action, in their considered opinion, conflicts with the performance of their official duty.

What such legislation in this country would mean, it would be that there is something to guide legislators here so one could be ever mindful, by reference to a particular code, what might be seen as right or wrong, or improper.

One thing that needs to be borne in mind is the perception of the public where legislators are concerned. Legislators are chosen by the public. They owe an obligation to the public and they owe accountability to the public. Legislators do not have the same freedom as do every other citizen in the country simply by the fact that they hold a public office. They have greater restrictions on their time, behaviour and expectation of them. As long as a legislator can maintain a position where it is clear to the public that he/she is behaving in an acceptable manner, the greater will be the confidence of the public in those legislators and the Government. That is a very key and central thought in this whole process. I believe the public is ever mindful of this situation and it behoves legislators to be similarly mindful.

On the matter of public confidence, I would like to refer to an article that was prepared for the 23rd Regional Conference of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, by the research branch of the Library of Parliament in Ottawa. I will read a few excerpts from this. This paper was written specifically to provide an "Oversight for Rules for Federal Legislators and Regulation of Conflict of Interests of Members of Provincial Legislative Assemblies."

It reads in one section on the issues: "The debate on Conflict of Interest Regulation is really a debate about the role and function of Government and about the character of public employment. A limited topic with broad implications, it has been stated that there are five main policy objectives underlying conflict of interest regulations: 1) Government efficiency; 2) Equal treatment of equal claims; 3) Public confidence; 4) Preventing the use of public office for private gain; and 5) preserving the integrity of Government policy making institutions."

"In an attempt to rank these policy objectives in order of importance, the New York Bar Association study concluded that the major issue involved in the debate on conflict of interest was public confidence which was described as, 'the single most important goal at stake in the field of government ethics.'"

Obviously we are not onto something new or something to be feared, but, indeed, something to be understood and for something to be done about it as is within our ability to do by providing such a code.

The article that I am quoting from is but one of over a dozen pieces of legislation on this which the Clerk's office of this Legislature was able to acquire during the time we should have been dealing with the Code of Ethics when the select committee was first set up. So, this legislation is available and has been circulated to all Members. While they may not have it here, I dare say it is in the possession of all Honourable Members of this House, most of whom were here in the House at that time.

There are various types of conflicts of interest. On a daily basis, one can be genuinely carrying on their business as they have done for years and simply because they are a legislator that way of doing business is in conflict with what might be expected of persons now in public office.

I would like to refer again to a few excerpts from the same paper I just read from. It says:

"There are a number of different types of conflict situations. An inherent conflict arises out of the position of the parliamentarian as an individual in society which puts him in such categories as homeowner, parent, and consumer. Parliament continually deals with legislation affecting these interests. However, the Member shares them with many others and there is a low potential of an adverse consequence from such conflict.

"Another unavoidable conflict is the representative interest which results from Members sharing personal interests with the constituency electing them, such as an interest in farming, fishing and resource development." I daresay there is less of that on our local island scene.

"Personally necessary conflicts arise as a result of the need for Members to pursue outside interests, including financial ones to lead an adequate and satisfying life. Personal investments, family businesses and professional interests are included in this category. Since Members return to private life, perhaps as soon as the next election, it is necessary that they do not divest themselves of all their income producing assets, otherwise they will face undue financial instability."

"There are avoidable interests which are personal economic interests not fitting into the above categories and which substantially affect the independence of the legislator. Conflict of interest legislation is ostensibly aimed at this last category."

One last sentence here says: "To what extent should a parliamentarian be able to retain personal economic interests? The dilemma is that the rules must not be so stringent as to discourage persons of ability from entering public life, yet strict enough to deter unethical practices and maintain the reputation of parliament and its members among the public."

Madam Speaker, I share the view of what I just read from that authoritative research paper, and that is certainly what I would advocate as a concept in this House for Legislators looking at such legislation.

There are instances where Members, particularly Ministers of Government, need to be alert in the performance of their duties. This is so because these are persons within the Governmental system who are in charge of the day-to-day affairs of the country, who have certain authority and power, not vested in the ordinary legislator. It is in these circumstances where greatest conflicts would naturally lie in the performance of their duties and in the carrying out of their duties with the public on a day-to-day basis.

In the United Kingdom, there was a Royal Commission on Standards of Conduct in Public Life and there is a paper (from what I can read and understand), issued to any Minister in the British Government upon their taking office. Within the Memorandum by the Secretary of the Cabinet, I read, in section 3 of the principles that are summed up in this whole matter:

"Ministers should so order their affairs that no conflict arises, or appears to arise, between their private interests and their public duties."

In section 5 it says: "It is a well established and recognised rule that no Minister or public servant should accept gifts for services which would place him under an obligation to a commercial undertak-

There are so many areas in the normal course of one's duty that can lead to a conflict, or a conflict may arise, including gifts as is noted here in this particular paper from which I have read. This is also available to Members of the House and is in their possession.

To see that we are not alone in such possibilities and what this Motion is saying is that it is recognised that there are certain conditions that let us as legislators initiate parameters for ourselves, I would like to quote from a letter dated 3rd December, 1986, which was written to the then Right Honourable Margaret Thatcher, MP, Prime Minister of England, by Ann Clwyde, who is MP for Sinon Valley. It is addressed to the Prime Minister, it says:

"Dear Prime Minister,

"I am increasingly concerned about the nature of the family interests which have come to light since your government has come to power. I wonder whether you would support a suggestion that Ministers should make public a declaration of family interests which relate to the work of their departments? Would you also agree that these interests should be recorded in the Members' Register of Interests? You will, of course, recall the difficulties which you, yourself experienced with the Oman affair and I am sure that you would want this matter clarified to everyone's satisfaction."

Madam Speaker, with your permission, I would like to Table a copy of this letter and also a copy of the reply from the Prime Minister to this Member of Parliament, as I think it has some historical value. Certainly, we see that these things occur even in the Mother of Parliament, which sees the business of Parliamentary Democracy over many centuries.

The Prime Minister wrote on the 2nd of January, 1987, to Mrs. Ann Clwyde, MP. It says: "Thank you for your letter of the 3rd of December. A Memorandum by the then Secretary of the Cabinet describing the guidance given to Ministers on this matter was submitted in evidence to the Royal Commission on Standards of Conduct in Public Life in 1975. There are copies of it in the Library of the House of Commons. The current guidance to all intents and purposes is the same. [I quoted from that a little while ago.]"

As to the recording of private interests in the Members' Register of Interests, the requirement of what should be registered is a matter for the House of Commons as a whole and not for Ministers to decide. Any proposal to extend the present requirement should, accordingly in the first instance be for the consideration of the select committee on Members' Interests. [signed] Mrs. Margaret Thatcher, Prime Minister."

I read those letters to illustrate the fact that even in the Parliament, often called the Mother of Parliaments, which has developed over centuries, there is the ever present need and concern that more needs to be done to guarantee the highest level of avoidance of conflict of interests which falls into the ambit of conduct and ethics in public life.

In the United States, as reference, there is a man who is supposedly going to be charged soon with misconduct in public office who was an advisor to the President. There have been various instances of this in the past. At this point I would like to say that while no one likes to hear of these things and, indeed, ideally, these things should not happen, they do happen in this world of ours. What is important is that there is legislation that can deal with it when these things do happen. That is what I think should guide us as legislators in this country.

In other areas there are rules set down in the Memorandum by the Secretary of the Cabinet in the United Kingdom about persons in directorships and so on. I would like to quote one section from this, in section 7, which reads: "On the 10th of June, 1937, in replying to a question about Ministers both inside and outside the cabinet who are solicitors in private practice, Mr. Chamberlain said; 'The rule laid down by Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman in 1906, has since been followed by successive Prime Ministers and will be followed by myself.' The rule, however, only applies to directorships and the Honourable Member's questions refer to solicitors in private practice. It would be unreasonable to require that a solicitor on becoming a member of government should dissolve his partnership or be obliged to allow his annual practicing certificate to lapse.

" On the other hand, he should, in accordance with the principle underlying Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's rule, cease to carry on the daily routine work of the firm or to take any active part in its ordinary business, although he should not be precluded from continuing to advise in matters of family trusts, guardianship and similar cases. A certain amount of discretion must be allowed since it is impossible to cover every conceivable case in any rule. But, I am satisfied that under the conditions that I have laid down every reasonable requirement of propriety will be fulfilled."

The conflict of interest can come in persons in directorships, trusteeships, and in numerous areas of one's daily endeavours. But, in the extract I just read, I think the Prime Minister is also showing balance that one has to understand that a person has a right to survive and carry on certain business, but that efforts have to be made so that there is no clash in this particular area.

I believe that in the Cayman Islands, where we boast of so much business and persons owning businesses in various capacities, we need legislation that would cover legislators.

As one looks at some of the areas covered in the Register of Interests, there would not necessarily be the need for dealing with them in the legislation unless it is felt that it is necessary to spell out what should be done in practice. I dare say that there may be instances of that, because if we are going to prescribe a code, we should spell out as far as is necessary and reasonable, the way it should be done.

I would point out that in one of the areas of the Register of Interests of the British Parliament which legislators have largely decided to be guided by in preparing a Register of Interests for the Cayman Islands, is the question of directorships and whether a legislator has remunerated directorships in a public or private company.

It also deals with whether legislators have employment in office trade, profession or vocation apart from the membership of the House, or in a Ministerial Office for which they receive pay. Again, it is possible that Members may do this, but within certain guidelines. The Register of Interests requires persons to register there, saying yes or no, but, a Code of Conduct might well prescribe to what extent a legislator may be involved in this.

There is the question of whether there is paid employment in provision to clients of professional services which arise as a result of a person being a Member of Parliament. It takes into account sponsorships, and contributions, any type of financial support and these are areas where conflicts can arise. These are areas that would need to be addressed by legislation.

Gifts are also covered and what these gifts may entail or not entail. Overseas visits: there are instances where (not in our country, but certainly in other countries) legislators have had their passages paid by persons, who by so doing placed the legislator in a position of compromise where that legislator, in a question of a vote, or whatever the case may be, would owe certain obligations to someone who was generous enough to do that. These are some of the areas that legislators worldwide, need be mindful of. And I think these are some which need to be looked at in a select committee or by legislators in this country.

Benefits overseas, be they whatever, that might impact on a legislator's life, land, property, dealing in property and shareholdings in various businesses. So, there is an unending number of areas where one should be mindful of and which should be covered by a proper Code of Conduct and Ethics legislation for legislators in the Cayman Islands.

For example, if this were set up in the United Kingdom—and they do not have any particular legislation in place as far as I can discover—but even its Register of Interests, unlike ours (which has to be specified in law according to the Constitution), is largely managed by the House itself. But we are talking about 651 Members of Parliament and we are talking about people who are professionals in just about every conceivable field there is. So, they have the capability within themselves, similar to the United States, where they have a committee set up to try such cases where a senator or a representative in the United States may fall into a questionable situation.

In the United Kingdom, I dare say, they would handle it to what extent they need to, in-house. Again, it is a well-established convention in the United Kingdom that when a Member of Parliament finds himself in a situation that can embarrass the Government, or the country, the automatic thing done in almost every instance is that they resign. That is not necessarily the case in other territories in the Commonwealth.

If we were to have a Code of Ethics and Conduct legislation, I think we would need a body that would be able to make a determination in this particular matter, or in any given matter. I would advocate something as is the case in Jamaica, where they have what is called the Integrity Commission. This is a commission that is set up in that country to deal with the registration of Members' interests and any other matters that might arise. I think, too, that if we are to find a practical route for ourselves in the Cayman Islands, we would not want to attempt to set up a committee among ourselves—15 or 18 of us—to try to put one or two (if ever such an occasion came about) on a breach of conduct or conflict of interest.

I would think that if we were to look at setting up a commission, similar to what is in Jamaica under the Parliament Integrity of Members Act, we would be going in the right direction. I would like to quote, to show how serious they think the matter is, and to show how they themselves give an arm's length who they appoint to the commission dealing in such a matter. In the first Schedule it reads: "The Commission shall consist of a) the Auditor General; b) four other members hereinafter referred to as appointed members, appointed by the Governor-General upon the recommendation of the Prime Minister after consultation with the leader of the Opposition from among the following categories of persons: 1) Members of the Privy Counsel [they could hardly reach much higher than that in the legal ambit]; 2) the President or any past President of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Jamaica; 3) Retired Judges of Appeal, or retired Judges of the Supreme Court; 4) Persons who have held the post of Commissioner of Income Tax, Financial Secretary or Auditor General."

My thought on the matter is, should we take this Motion (and I think we should) on board while we are dealing with a Register of Interests for completeness and practical application we too should look at persons similar, in the Island to appoint as a commission.

I would say that we would not, for one minute, envisage that every second week someone would be before the Commission of Integrity. It would simply be a commission that is there to carry out its functions when it may be called upon to do so.

I hear allegations virtually every day about corruption in this country. Regrettably, I believe that our social nervous system in this country has become considerably corrupted over the years. In so many ways, disregard for proper practices in business, instances where persons will attempt to gain favour through bribes or by becoming good friends with anyone they believe has influence which could help them, by virtue of being someone who can offer the best cocktail parties with regularity, food and drink. I think that when we look at the situation in the Cayman Islands and while we as legislators can undertake to do something to set down guidance for ourselves, this country on a whole, needs to rethink its mental state where it is not driven to the extent that it is by greed. And that as long as you make money how you make it, and who gets stepped on, or circumvented, it is fine. We need to change that concept.

While I speak specifically of something that us as legislators have the ability to do, it has to go much wider in this country because, as I have said in this House many times before, I am convinced that in too many areas, right is wrong and wrong is right. I think there is a general attitude in the Cayman Islands at this time that; 'Well, yes, that is wrong, but don't cause any waves, it will be okay, it will go away.' That is the general [attitude] in the country at this time. It is a wonderful opportunity for the leaders of this country to lead the way, as they should at this time by setting up rules for ourselves that we can then more strongly say to all of the other individuals; 'That is not right; I am not prepared to see that happen; I could never agree with you there; forget it; I cannot do as you are asking me to do and I will not do what you are asking me to do.'

I think this Motion, at this time, is very relevant and timely in that we are in the business right now of looking at things like this and we should seize this opportunity to do so before things become glaringly wrong or (and heaven forbid), anyone of us as legislators should really fall afoul of the law in any which way or form.

We all have a lot of material to guide us. We have the Code of Conduct and Conflict of Interest Guidelines from Canada, a small booklet; the Conflict of Interest and Post Employment Code for the Public Service of Canada (valuable information written for Civil Servants); We have the American Guide for Federal Civil Servants, 'How to keep out of Trouble', which is a small booklet with illustrations and simple language. There are many courses open to us and so I recommend this Motion to the House. I trust that all Honourable Members will see fit to accept this Motion.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman intimated that there were two documents that he wished to lay on the Table. It is ordered that these may now be laid on the Table.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I have them here.

The Speaker: Thank you.

At this time it is proposed to suspend proceedings. I understand that three select committees are due to consider their Interim Reports during this time. Proceedings are suspended until 12.05 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.08 PM

The Speaker: Debate continues on Private Member's Motion 29/94.

The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, this Motion is being approached in a bipartisan spirit. We do so purely from the point of seeking to explore those things that may contribute to the national interest on the one hand, and the extension of the public's confidence in the system of government we operate.

As the resolution says, this matter of a Code of Ethics and Conduct for legislators was a matter raised in this House by a Private Member's Motion in 1989, by me. It was one that should have been taken into hand a long time ago.

To place it now, together with the select committee that is doing the work on the Register of Interests as a companion document, or legislation, is a good idea, and one that we support.

In a matter of this sort, each country has to judge its own problems and evolve solutions to those problems, as they are perceived. With God's help we will find a way to solve those problems and contribute to the solutions.

In considering this matter we have to consider the type of system we operate and our history of that political system. I would say briefly that it is the essence of democratic system that it rests on the whole idea of Government by consent. We get our consent to govern, and when I say we, I do not just mean Executive Council, but this legislature, from the public's confidence in us as men and women, and we must be seen as being willing to impose legal sanctions on ourselves.

In the end it is necessary for democracy, that we present an image to the country of integrity on the part of those who wield power. Not only those in the Executive Council, but all Members of the House.

We must help to build confidence in our political system, not only for ourselves, but we must present an image to the young people of this country of operating a clean system. If we fail to do this, then what can arise... and perhaps this has happened already. I hope not. I will get to that a few minutes later. We must do what we can as a parliament to cement confidence in the system, particularly the attitude of the young towards our system.

There are many contributory factors which positively present, may lead to success and which legally absent, can lead to failure. To make our system continue, we must be vigilant and zealous to leave no stone unturned to contribute to the success and minimise the danger of failure. Obviously, if we are to succeed, we must be willing at some stage, to put the national interest above the partisan concerns. There must be a stage where we are all willing to come out of those things which sometimes separate us, because it is not only a cabinet or high government official that can bear the name of wrongdoing, but all members of the House, especially in a small community like ours.

If we accept the importance of the fact that the appearance of integrity must be preserved, that leads us to conclude that this action contemplated could do well, could contribute enormously to the fact of integrity and the appearance of integrity of all of us who operate within this House, whether we be in power in Executive Council or on the Opposition, or on the Backbench. We have already set our minds on the declaration of assets, other than income, and what we are doing here will contribute. Nevertheless, we well know that we cannot legislate for someone's morals: they will do as they please.

One thing this country is not short of is rumour. Ever since I can remember, from the day I began going to school, I heard about people in power (politicians) who were not conducting themselves in the right manner. Rumour is always rife and there are people who thrive on it. While I was on the Backbench for eight years, I heard rumours about Executive Council Members and about Backbenchers—from their personal lives to professional conduct. Today you can believe the same thing is happening again.

Rumour is consistent in this country. You cannot always say 'where there is smoke there is fire'. That is an old adage that we like to throw around, but I throw out no aspersions on anybody. I am not afraid to talk about the things they have spread about me, because my life has always been an open book. The only thing that they can say about me is that I did not go to a college or that I am willing to open my mouth. Thank God that 1,954 people in West Bay knew that about me in the last election beforehand.

So, I am not scared when we hear the type of rumour that is spread. I am concerned that we have people in our society who seem to love nothing better than to spread dirty rumours, not giving any care whatsoever to a person's family. I challenge anybody, the day that I sit on Executive Council or sit in this legislature, to find one iota of wrong doing against me and to bring it forward.

For instance, what is being thrown around is that we are all building these large, big fancy homes, these members of Executive Council. Not one ounce of it is true. When you consider, just to show you how things can become muddled, the last Executive Council Members—everyone of them—bought an apartment or built big fancy homes; another one renovated his, and it was being called the Chief Minister's residence. Whether that came from their personal income or whatever, rumour was spread on it, but that actually happened. Nothing like that is happening on this Executive Council.

One of the things that is most detrimental to our system, whether it be us on Executive Council or those Backbenchers, including Opposition is, when we ourselves perpetuate those rumours, when we stand in the Legislature and say things in debate. Maybe I have done so in the past, I do not recall, but when we ourselves perpetuate rumours at this high level, it is no wonder that the ordinary man on the street will pick it up and say there is something to it. But I am not scared of rumour. I live my life and I believe that I can speak for the entire Executive Council as closely as we can to the Good Book and of course, the Backbench.

I know that at times we may all get to the point where we feel we can make mileage by at least casting some doubt on our opponents' integrity, but mind, the finger that is pointing, the others are pointing back.

This resolution is good and I saw the need for it since 1989.

What we should do in these two pieces of legislation, guidelines or whatever the committee determines, is to put it across the board. I said that in 1989, as well.

What I said in 1989, I want to quote: "I would like to see this expanded to include all assets held at the time of entering the political field. I would like to see this extended to include all Members of our Legislative Assembly, not just Executive Council Members.

"A matter which is sometimes raised, especially at election time, is the matter of conflict of interests. I know this was the case during the last election and will, undoubtedly, come up again in the future. So, I believe that anyone who stands for election in our country should know and understand quite clearly what does in fact constitute a conflict of interest.

"I believe it is true to say that all Members hold outside businesses and business interests other than their job as a politician. The composition of future assemblies will probably be no different so once a person knows what can rightly be constituted a conflict of interest, they are then in a position to make the decision of whether they want to be involved in politics or not at all at any level, either as a Member of the Legislative Assembly, or a Member of Executive Council." [Hansard 11 September, 1989]

I still feel that way because while the Government, or any government, gets accused of being close to certain people who have businesses or vast resources, that person's job might require that there be some connection. What is left to do by the individual who is representing the people, is to leave no doubt in the people's minds. That can only be done by a declaration of some sort of interests.

I believe that we should consider extending it to the public and would-be politicians. For instance, they can stand on the outside in a democratic system which we love and protect, and batter the Government by saying all manner of evil and I hope Members understand that it is not only Executive Council Members who have rumours spread about them, it is all Members of this House.

Those on the outside who envy and want your position can stand and say all sorts of evil without anybody saying anything or any requirement to him except if he becomes libellous and says it in the right place, you can proceed through the courts.

But when you see who is having the connections on the outside. . . rich men who could be anybody with a doubtful character could be connected and could employ those politicians, or would-be political candidates. They could have them employed and constantly fund their campaigns against the Government. All we need to do is look to see who got status in the country, who got permanent residency with a right to work, and we will find out who their connections are.

I am not saying anything here that I did not already say on the public platform. Why I think this needs to be carried through for candidates as well as elected Members is the good example I hold in my hand, the 'Health Delivery System Plan and Health Facilities Plan for the Cayman Islands, BWI, December 1989'.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman what was popularly called the "Book of Ezzard". This was prepared by International Health Care Corporation, or the one Mr. Jim Conti. The corporate office is P.O. Box 383, West Bay, Grand Cayman Islands, BWI. The Post Office Box of a one time Member of the House and a former candidate who lost in the 1988 elections (the lady candidate from West Bay), and who was a candidate again in 1992. These are the people who would dare go out and say all manner of evil about our lives.

It is a joke sometimes, and I do not want to take it to this level, but I will tell the House, they say that I am getting divorced and getting a new wife. It is ridiculous. But these are the people who do it. All I am saying is that they should be careful, and I am saying that it applies to the candidates as well as to Members of the House. I make no aspersions, but when we see these kinds of things it is clear why this is needed.

The other instance is the Master Ground Transportation Plan, and I alluded to that when I said that connections as a Minister or Member with people on the outside, can lead people to feel that you are getting something out of whatever business is going on. Here was a grand scheme for this country which proposed an expenditure of over $250 million. There was the old Jennett Street situation, which involved the former Member. It was a big thing: a man had to move his house. We heard that the business paid the former Member [for Communications and Works] so that he could get a grand avenue so that they would not have to come out on the short end of the street up here. That is the sort of thing that I am talking about.

That might not have been necessarily so; I do not know. I can only give account of what I know obtains in our Executive Council. But, can they like Pilate wash their hands and say that they are not part of it? Yet, now that they are on the outside promulgate nasty mischief, malicious rumours against the present Executive Council? As I said, they drove Mercedes Benz, Cadillac, BMW other fancy cars, Corvettes. They lived in new homes . . . I think that this attempt which I started in 1989, along with the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, backed by the whole government, is a good idea. Let us bear in mind one thing: It does not stop at Executive Council; all of our families can be attacked. Our children come home crying from school because of malicious statements made by children, promulgated by parents. So it is not just us on this side who are affected: all of us are.

So, Honourable Members, the Government supports this—we think it is necessary. We have nothing whatsoever to hide. All of our business can be out in the open. All of us have legitimate business interests. We can make mistakes, mistakes are reasonably made and when we make them people can easily say that we are doing something to better ourselves. My only interest is to see this country go ahead so that when we leave here we will have a safe system leaving a system of integrity intact for the next ones to come in.

I hope no one today thinks that I am being personal. I am not being personal, I am just showing what can, and what has taken place. I do not think that we can build a country on rumours. When we get to the Motion for Standing Orders, I hope we have a chance to debate that too because I want to say that we can include even the reporters who come here and push an issue, because could they not be getting something on the side for pushing an issue? Take it to whatever levels you want, those are the levels that it can go to.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: There is but little one could add to the eloquent opening given by the Mover of this Motion. I take note that the person speaking on behalf of the Government made it clear that the Government is accepting this Motion as well as elaborating some areas of concern that I think are relevant.

I would like to take in the realm and dimension of accountability and the notion of why we as a fraternity should set about some mechanism to regulate ourselves.

Honourable Members who were here when I came will recollect that I have always said that I am an organisation man and as such we are a fraternity and we should act and behave as a fraternity. By that I mean that when it comes down purely and simply to certain matters, we should forget about political posturing and sides and work together for the benefit of the fraternity or the profession, if we want to call politics a profession. This is one of those occasions and I certainly welcome the acceptance and the willingness of the Government to work with those of us in Opposition and those of us on the Backbench.

Believe me, there is a crucial need for us to do this because rightly or wrongly the notion exists in the public that politicians are too well paid. That gives them a reason to pound, and pound and pound on the politicians with reckless abandon and disregard.

From time to time I read letters and columns in the newspaper that give me concern, not because I object to the person's right to say something, but because I question what they are saying. I say that as a fraternity, those of us who make sacrifices (because we do make sacrifices in spite of what some people may think), should buffer ourselves to the point where we set the tone and the standard of accountability and say to all and sundry; 'Look, we are so serious about our position; we are so open that this is what we are prepared to do; these are the parameters we set and through which we encourage others to examine us.'

The problem, as pointed out by the Mover, is a universal problem. I will come back to the universality of the problem in a moment. But permit me, since I was mentioning the home front, to give an example of what I am talking about which happens in our own environment, by quoting from a column in The New Caymanian of the week of 29th July to 4th August, 1994, a commentary subtitled 'Everybody's Business', with the headline being "If it was a Tamed Lion". In one paragraph the writer says: "Now we arrive at the really heavy issue: community leaders' ethical standards. After all, we can hardly condemn greed and corrupt values in young burglars, muggers and drug dealers while failing to condemn it in their betters. Coming at it from the other angle: if we (each of us, individually) shrug off greed in some politicians, corrupt values in some Statutory Board appointees, contempt for the public in some Civil Servants, irresponsibility in some Policemen, and so on—if we shrug off all of these as unavoidable aspects of modern life, how can we dare to expect better behaviour from unemployable layabouts?

"Cayman's corruption is not so much cash corruption (bribes etc.) as a corrupt mind-set among some of those at certain levels of officialdom. It's okay for me to take advantage of my position to steer money-making opportunities my way."

Finally, the writer goes on to say: "One can't have one set of ethics for the low-life and one for the high-lives. If we in this community fail to withdraw respect from high profile greedy and corrupt people, we have no chance of seeing off their less respectable clones."

Madam Speaker, I suppose that in a democratic country one is entitled to one's ideas. But, I make the point again, I do not believe it is necessary, nor do I see it befitting of a profession where people sacrifice their personal time, their family time, sometimes their business time, their church time, their corporation time to serve the public out of altruism. I do not necessarily believe that these people should be stoned by everyone who can fling a stone. That is why I am happy that we have arrived at a point where we are setting up this Code of Ethics, because anyone having a grouse will have something to go by and if they do not have anything to go by, they can put the cover on their pen and throw their pen away and burn up the paper.

While I have my differences of opinion with the Government and other politicians, I am part of a fraternity and as a loyal member of that fraternity, I cannot, and I will not succumb my fellows to what I class as malignant, unmerited and unjust accusations which not only bring them discomfort, but visit discomfort upon their family members.

I am saying that when we set this in motion, anyone having a grouse will have a mechanism to go by. If they have no grouse then please desist from the insinuations and aspersions and rumours.

I would like to draw reference to an article which I heard the Mover mention, appearing in the Economist of 5th November, 1994. The writer says: "The real issue is not whether to ban MPs from doing other work, but how to ensure the public is properly informed if they do."

Who holds that responsibility? It lies, not insignificantly, with the press as much as it lies with Members of Parliament or members of the public to see that they are above board. It lies with the press, whenever they are reporting or have cause to question, to be responsible. So, it is not a one way street by any means. On the one hand we as parliamentarians, and as public servants, have to uphold our integrity and our dignity, professionalism and honesty. But, on the other hand, those people who make a profession of scrutinising and reporting have the responsibility to do so fairly, which is not to say that they cannot question, or ask that we be held to account. It is to say that they must not pass judgment until there is some trial. So, the responsibility is at both ends.

Now, coming back to the universality of the problem. I would like to lay on the Table of this honourable House, with the Chair's permission, and I have a copy for the Chair as well, the final report of the first Inter-American Conference on the Problems of Fraud and Corruption in Government, held in Miami, Florida, December the 4th to the 6th, 1989. With the Chair's permission I would like to read four paragraphs from the general conclusion of that conference. Thank you.

"Effective control of corruption has to start with leadership positions. When a leader does not understand the concept of honesty, or the difference between his own benefit and the benefit of society there is little hope for success in the rest of the government structure. In these circumstances corruption will continue to pervert the entire system from the highest levels to the lowest. Public officials will create superfluous needs for the sole purpose of self benefit without considering the common good. In addition to demanding honest leadership, control of corruption requires high standards of ethical and moral conduct on the part of all public servants so as to demonstrate the political will of the Government. All public servants should be required to publicly accept their responsibility to effectively and efficiently manage the resources at their charge and to be fully accountable to them. They should be able to provide an explanation for their actions that may be verified at any time."

I believe that this is what we are attempting to do. I am reminded that this mission which we, as a Parliament, are about to launch ourselves onto today, is not new. From the very founders of democracy this was a problem and people had to wrestle with these problems of accountability of ethics and high moral standards.

I was reading of the experience and account of Pericles of Athens, the founder of democracy, how because of his popularity, Pericles had to deal with ungrateful elements of his constituents who, when they could really find no fault with his style of government, turned to criticise and castigate members of his family and almost destroyed his wife.

If we go to the Orient, in the XIII Analect of Confucius, when his students asked him what were the three outstanding elements involved in the happiness of a nation, Confucius replied that the three outstanding elements were: a content populous, a loyal standing army and the confidence of the people. He went on to say that of these three, the one he would jettison last was the confidence of the people.

Any parliament, any government, any opposition that has the confidence of the people is a government, parliament or opposition that will long be standing. It is with the effort of this Motion to set some ethical and moral standards that we have formally embarked on a course to maintain—and I say maintain because by virtue of the fact that we have been elected we already hold the confidence of the people—by setting in place a mechanism that all and sundry can see.

In conclusion, I would like to take the Motion a step further, with the Chair's permission, to say that we in Opposition have been saying that complementary to this and as a corollary to this Register of Interests, Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators, is some form of legislation to regulate political campaign financing.

What I suppose would be an ideal situation is one that would prevent interference by both foreign and domestic entities who would have ulterior motives. Each individual could be required to file at least with the Supervisor of Elections, published financial statements accompanied by the opinions of independent auditors. I believe that if we could effect something like that, along with the Register of Interests and a Code of Ethics and Conduct, perhaps that will incorporate that element that the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture talked about on the part of persons on the outside who currently seem to operate outside of the parameters of those of us.

If we could do something like that, we would be professionalising and setting clearly beyond the shadow of a doubt, mechanisms in place by which all and sundry who aspire to public office in these Islands—be they sitting Members of Parliament or political aspirants—would have as guidelines whereby the public could check up on them.

In conclusion, this business of accountability cuts across the grain. It holds no brief with regard to seniority, exalted positions or positions of humility. One need go no further than with the case of Dan Rostenkowski, the United States Senator of 18 terms, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, indicted—albeit, the United States system is a little bit different from what we are trying to set up in that their parliament is a court unto itself and they can try each other. But that is an indication of the seriousness of the intent of the accountability process. We, in this parliament, propose no less serious legislation.

Having said that, when we have concluded we will have sent the message to our constituents and the wider community that we take the business of public service seriously and that we as a fraternity realise the necessity to regulate and set standards for the behaviour of our members and those persons who aspire to be members of our fraternity.

It gives me great pleasure, especially knowing that I was associated with this movement since its inception in 1989, to lend my support to it now. It is heartening to know that it has bipartisan support because I cannot emphasise too much, that in these kinds of issues there is no government and no opposition, there is just one fraternity of people who set themselves up to be public servants.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.57 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.49 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion 29/94. The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I support this Motion and I have a few views that I would like to express in relation to parts of it.

I believe that the question of a Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators is already in the House under the Standing Orders and where they are silent, then through Erskine May's Parliamentary Practice.

Codes of ethics or etiquette are very much apart from the very ancient days of the professions. They are, by nature, rules that are self imposed and they have to be respected as such. To the best of my knowledge they have never been put into legislation.

The legal profession, for example, has its code of etiquette and conduct and these are not in legislation as such and not made under legislation, but are adhered to by members of the profession.

This Motion, as the Mover, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman mentioned, was passed in 1989. That Government did not see fit to implement anything and I think it is a very clear indictment on that Government that they refused to even look at providing some Code of Ethics for Legislators. Yet, these days we hear them saying many things. And one would believe that they just dropped out of the sky, they make themselves look so pure.

This is perhaps one of the best indictments. I am very happy that it has been brought by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman because he knows them better than any of the rest of us. He has clearly pointed out in the first recital of his Motion that Private Member's Motion of 1989 was unanimously passed—that is very important; it was unanimously passed—and nothing was really done to provide for it.

The Register of Interests that this is going to be a companion to, is one which I feel is very important and it has to be a balance between preservation of privacy and a sufficient declaration of interests so that the public can ensure that politicians are being honest and without serious conflicts of interest.

The Constitution and our Standing Orders provide for one aspect of the conduct now, that is that where there is a conflict of interests, there has to be disclosure to you, Madam Speaker, and normally not voting or speaking on it.

This Motion has really nothing to do with the Constitution and indeed it is total and separate from any aspect of that. So, it was not necessary for it to be dealt with at a later stage after the Constitution was amended.

The aspect of the Executive Council's declaration to the Governor is a matter of practice, it does not arise under the Constitution. It is one that we all have had to do and fully declare our interests so that in the Executive Council, if there is a conflict, it is known to the Governor. That declaration is kept private but is a very full declaration.

It is important to strike a balance when deciding on conduct or, even more so, what has to be declared under a Register of Interests because we all know that a person who has nothing can make a declaration and it means nothing. Privacy is important and a proper balance has to be reached to ensure that the declaration is sufficient for the public and, on the other hand, provides some degree of privacy.

One of the things I think has been prevalent in this House and is very important, is that the House has kept out of purely personal matters that relate to Members. I think that is outstanding. Indeed, I feel the conduct in this House is exemplary, even when compared to the Mother Parliament in the United Kingdom and other Parliaments regarded as older and more mature in the Commonwealth. What is being done here is only a matter of continuity of the conduct and the etiquette that have been carried on by politicians.

It is interesting to note that the United Kingdom requires reporters in parliament to come under the Register of Interests, perhaps that is something that should be looked into here as well, because it is obvious that the pen is a very dangerous weapon in the hand of someone who is biased or unduly persuaded in a specific direction.

Another area of conduct that I think is important is, despite what we may do or say in this honourable House, when we walk through that door we should be big enough men and ladies to sit down together and talk to each other. This is an area of conduct that is well understood by attorneys, despite whatever we might have to do in a courtroom. When we go into the robing room we have to talk to each other and be civil with each other. I just throw that out because I see a trend arising which was prevalent with the last legislature where some Honourable Members—in that instance the Government Members—attempted to isolate and stay clear of other members.

The importance of a Code of Ethics and Conduct is perhaps best seen by the fact that Mr. Ronald Reagan, as Governor of California, once stated that he regarded politics as the second oldest profession, which has certain similarities with the first oldest profession. So, it is important that there be proper rules.

What was most blatant in areas of breaches of ethics where we saw instances of very clear breaches of the rules that relate to the public tenders, when public money is being spent for Government purposes, the very large consultancy contract, such as the Conti contracts that were given out and very clearly in breach of rules that existed under the Finance and Stores Regulations.

The 'Book of Ezzard', as the Members referred to, was one of the largest wastes of public funds on consultants that this country could ever see. How in the world the money was ever appropriated for it, I do not know. These are the things that no matter how many rules, or codes we produce, if people are corrupt, unruly or unethical by nature they will not correct it. Ethics has to come from within. Like morality, it cannot be legislated and it behoves all of us to act and to speak in such a way that we uphold the high esteem of this honourable House.

The question of allegations (not that I know of any, in relation to myself as an Executive Council Member, or while I was in the House), is not something that worries me very much. I know myself, I live a life that I clearly understand and accept and I endeavour within the best of my ability to remain within what I regard as a good code of ethics for myself. I drive a 1985 car, I have repainted it three or four times. I fly Cayman Airways, but I am probably one of the few Members of this House who has had responsibility for it who has paid for every flight that I have flown on it personally, despite the fact that I can get free tickets on Cayman Airways if I wish. I also pay for my children. So, I do not have a problem with either the Register of Interests or the Code of Ethics.

Many years ago, a gentleman who I held in very high esteem and regarded as a very wise man, Mr. Ormand Panton, said to me before I went into politics: "Truman, politics finally ruins your business, your family and your health." It may not have been in that specific order. I have found that to be one of the wisest statements that I have ever heard relating to politics. However, someone has to do it. If not, our family and our businesses can also be ruined if we have the type of unethical conduct that we have seen in the past where vast sums of money—some $56 million in losses in three years (that the Government had) and in two-and-one half years $34.5 million US dollars in losses for Cayman Airways. These are not only unethical, but they are blatantly spending—squandering public funds with no accountability.

While this Code of Ethics will go some ways, if we have politicians who do not intend to abide by these, then we are only paying lip service.

Some years ago when we were dealing with the question of, should there be a Prime Minister and should the Constitution be advanced, I remember very clearly when I stated that there were several Prime Ministers who had remained in the job until they died, who had been subject to corruption. I was told by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman that it was wrong to presume that Prime Ministers may be corrupt. But here we have him putting forward a Code of Ethics and Conduct which is being brought in presumably on the basis that there may be politicians who are corrupt. So, he and I agree with this. I agree fully with the Code of Ethics and Conduct.

We have to realise that politicians are also human beings and many times under a lot of pressure. Perhaps most importantly when dealing with matters like this, especially a register of interests, candidates running for an election should be made subject to a declaration of interests. If they do not declare these, they will be voted in. After they get in office they become subject to a Code of Ethics and Conduct and a Register of Interests, but then it is too late. Once they are there, they are there for four years.

I would like to see the Register of Interests and, as far as possible, some understanding where one has declared, at least candidates for an election, what they are going to have to do immediately after the election and say what they own, and even more important than that, how many people and how many foreign people are supporting them who at a later stage will be getting, as one Member mentioned, Caymanian status, or permanent residence and then go on to financially rape the country and its people.

This is important and I believe that candidates for an election are no different. In fact it is even more important that we know who is coming in this House and what they have, before they are put here, because the Legislative Assembly is very much like the Civil Service: once you are in, you stay unless you choose otherwise. I support this Motion.

I know the First Elected Member for Bodden Town read an article that (it seemed) came from Mr. Gordon Barlow's, I would say, warped scripts in The New Caymanian . . . Indeed there should be as much of a Code of Conduct and Ethics for writers and publishers of the media as there is for the Members of the House because we have seen the way the press which is far more powerful whether we like it or not than any other weapon in this country, has taken and warped things . . . especially some of the articles that I have seen him write in his attempts to attack and destroy the pilots of Cayman Airways with allegations relating to drugs. Out there, there is no one who, like you, Madam Speaker, can say you can do this or you can do that, it is right or it is wrong. So, they should begin at home: Charity begins at home. Where is their Code of Ethics and Conduct? We are doing ours, where is theirs?

While people who write do not call themselves 'a profession' (at least not that I know of), Madam Speaker there is no reason why, with such a powerful pen as most of them have, why they should not be subject to some Code of Ethics or etiquette and conduct themselves.

So, I support this Motion, I commend the Mover, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman for bringing it and I will give it my support. I will undertake to abide by any reasonable code that this honourable House accepts from the Select Committee. I think it is good.

I would like to end by saying ethics, etiquette, morality and a lot of the more abstract terminologies has to come from the person. The codes and rules mean nothing if people are not prepared to honestly accept and abide by them, avoiding ways of getting around and beating the code at every opportunity that they get. It would be interesting to hear the Honourable Mover on his views as to whether the candidates for elections should or should not also make these declarations—as they will have to do immediately after they come into the House—of their assets, their interests, etcetera.

I fully support it and it is good that after five years, with the previous Government doing nothing about it, he has seen fit to raise it again. With the good Government that he knows he has, he will get it through and he will get his code.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: If no one else wishes to debate... The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In rising to make a very short contribution regarding this Motion, let me first of all say that I am in full support of the Motion. Fortunately, or unfortunately, depending on how we look at it, I was not here when the Motion came to the House in 1989. But having followed to the best of my ability the political happenings in the country, I believe it was timely then and, not going the distance, I think it is timely now.

I am very pleased to hear that Government intends to support the Motion; I work on the assumption that its full passage will take place, and that we will in short order have legislation to deal with.

The Mover and the Seconder of this Motion and other Honourable Members in this House have expounded in eloquent fashion on just about all the parameters that one might care to address when thinking about a Code of Conduct and Ethics for Legislators. I think we have to examine a step further because after bringing about such a code that there will have to be a method determined by which complaints or instances of any allegations may be dealt with.

I think that we might want to examine the possibility of appointing what I might term (and I base this on reading what others who have passed this way before have said), a commission. It is very important that we bear this in mind in all of our deliberations simply because while a Code of Ethics and Conduct in itself may act as a preventive measure. The truth is we must be able to deal with it the full length whenever legislation takes place.

I wish to point out that there needs to be a body formed in order for all persons who may have to deal with this Code of Ethics and Conduct understand the method that will be used in order for any arbitration of judgment to take place.

In the Parliament Integrity of Members Act of 1973, Jamaica, it discusses the functions of such a commission. I use the word commission simply because it is a familiar term, but the name that would be applied matters not to me.

In this Act—and I will just quote a couple of areas so that we can become familiar with it. I quote: "The functions of the Commission shall be to receive and keep on record statutory declarations furnished by parliamentarians pursuant to this Act. To examine such statutory declarations and to request from a parliamentarian any information relevant to statutory declarations made by him. [In their opinion this would assist them in their examination] To make such independent inquiries and investigations relating to statutory declarations as they think necessary. The Commission shall have power to summon witnesses, require the production of documents and to do all such things as it considers necessary or expedient for the purpose of carrying out its functions."

There we have it laid out and as we apply it to ourselves. We may not necessarily deal with the matter in the exact fashion as pointed out in the Integrity Act of Jamaica. I simply quoted those sections to give Members an idea of what I think we should be thinking about when we deliberate on this issue.

I go on a bit further, where it tells how the commission shall be constituted. There are terms used here which will not apply to us, but I will simply use them just so that we may get a grasp:

"The Commission will consist of (a) the Auditor General; (b) four other persons hereinafter referred to as 'appointed members', appointed by the Governor General upon the recommendation of the Prime Minister after consultation with the Leader of Opposition. These four other persons will be appointed from the following categories of persons: members of the Privy Council, the President or any past President of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Jamaica, retired Judges of Appeal or retired Judges of the Supreme Court, or persons who have held the position of Commissioner of Income Tax, Financial Secretary or Auditor General."

Some of these terms do not apply in our jurisdiction but we have similar posts and/or other posts which I am sure we could use. Of course, we could determine the length of appointment on such matters.

I wish to re-emphasise to this Honourable House that while we seem to be on all fours regarding the Motion, it is important for us to also be looking in that area. It has been mentioned that the Code of Ethics and Conduct should be extended beyond these hallowed halls, beyond the executive body to include all Elected Members. I subscribe to that.

In thinking about it, I must admit I had not paid too much attention to the thought before, but I wish to say that I agree that people who vie for seats in the various electoral districts should be made to do the same. I think the Honourable Minister for Education brought the point out about 'closing the gate' after the 'horse' got away regarding these individuals. With that point I just wish to say that I agree.

If we examine most any fraternal organisation (as the term is commonly used) we will find a Code of Ethics. I know there is one member of the Rotary Club who sits in front of me regularly, he has his four-way test. I, as a member of the Lion's Club have my Code of Ethics. While these do not necessarily encompass all that we have to discuss regarding the Motion at hand, the same principles apply.

It is totally in order for any organised group to have such a Code of Ethics and Conduct simply ensuring that we are kept in line. It is certainly better for us to have guidelines to live by, than for us to be trying to judge daily the rights and wrongs of others' activities. Who am I to judge? Madam Speaker with the greatest of respect, who are you—without some guidelines—to follow?

It is an easier task if such guidelines are created and I believe in the simple philosophy that if you know there is a certain punishment for a certain deed, the fact that the punishment exists acts as a [deterrent.] Therefore it must be for the betterment of all concerned.

We subscribe to the thought that we are the leaders of this country in one form or fashion. It is incumbent on us to take the lead in such an action and not be scared to be held accountable by way of having this Code of Ethics and Conduct to guide us as we go about the daily affairs of the country.

There is more that I could repeat, but most of the areas have been covered. I find myself giving this Motion my full support and I trust that all other Members of this House will find themselves in the same position.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, would the Mover of the Motion wish to exercise his right of reply, thus closing the debate?

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is always very refreshing when a Motion brought to the House by the Opposition is accepted by Government. This is one of those occasions.

It would have been truly difficult or politically suicidal, for the Government or anyone in the House to see something wrong with the House examining the possibilities of creating legislation which would cover a Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators. Particularly in view of world conditions as far as legislators are concerned; our changing times politically, socially and otherwise in these Islands; and the greater demands of the public and the greater accusations by the public—everything. A Code of Ethics and Conduct has been found to be acceptable by Government and the Opposition and I believe by all persons in the House.

I also believe that this will be dealt with efficiently and expeditiously. For we do have an abundance of legislation that we can consult. The lady Member, who is the chairman of the existing select committee on the Register of Interests, deals with matters with considerable dispatch for which I am grateful. While each Member has an opportunity to say his piece, she guides him along at a reasonably fast rate.

I would like to comment on a few points raised by the Minister for Education and Aviation and clarify or offer a few thoughts thereon. I agree with him that there is room (and indeed, I said that when I presented the Motion) for this country to look at its present mind-set about things which are right and wrong. I do not necessarily seclude that to mean things from a religious perspective; things from an ethical perspective, a moral perspective, the whole spectrum. It is necessary for everyone in this country, including the man on the street, businesses, certainly the media—writers, reporters—everybody.

I am certain that there is no one in this House who has been stung by the reporting of the media on different occasions more than myself. There have been some things which had to be corrected because they reported things that I never said. So when it comes to knowing what the media can sometimes do, I am very familiar with that. However, I do know that in the process of keeping a society alert about ethics and conduct of its political leaders, the media has to play a vital role and it should play that role. I, too, have seen various articles relating to elected representatives that I think are unfairly stated: particularly the generalisations tend not to tell the truth about everybody. Whereas, if the media would deal with specifics it would be much more accurate. While something may be true in a specific case, it is not that way with all persons in the world of politics or otherwise.

One thing that I would not advocate, now or ever, is hindering writers, reporters, the media and television from playing the role they are supposed to play. If they do not create untrue situations about persons, I am definitely not an enemy of the media.

The Member also spoke about the long time it took for this matter to be dealt with and he blamed that on the last Government. I dare say if blame is to be laid, it would have to be laid on the Government in its last term of office. I do not claim to know the Members of that last Government any better than does the Minister for Education and Aviation, for there were a number of persons in that Government (two so far) who claimed that they will again contest these elections, those are Mr. Linford Pierson and Mr. Ezzard Miller. I think the Minister knows Mr. Pierson as well as I do because on a personal basis he was the gentleman who taught the Minister for Education and Aviation about bodybuilding [Members' laughter] and he was also his principal secretary. So I do not claim to know him any better than he does.

And of course, Mr. Ezzard Miller was the pharmacist at the Health Services when he was Minister for Health and Social Services. So I think he stands to know him as well as I do.

Mr. Benson Ebanks, of the past Government, is a business partner of his. So I do not claim to know these persons any better than does the Minister for Education. I just want to make that point.

On the matter of consultancies and the payments of large sums of money by Government, is something which I think governments—this one and the one past and any to come—need to be very careful with. I disagreed with many, if not most, of the instances when large sums of money were spent. In the report which has been familiarly termed the Book of Ezzard, I, for one, said that I thought that was a large report. But it lacked depth and detail. Members will recall that the same group that developed that particular report had to provide details of operation and implementation on all ten of the areas that were mentioned in the report. So I do not have any varying opinion in that regard.

I think it is necessary that we should hire certain expertise not for exorbitant prices, for we do not have the personal expertise in all areas as we should. So hiring certain consultants is in order. I think that can be done by the Government in a number of areas now.

I would remind the Minister for Education and Aviation that when it comes to things not getting done and matters not being attended to, like the Code of Ethics during the last Government, he should take into serious account the fact that it has been two years and a Bill of Rights is not in place in this country. I think if I were to give an edge to importance that would be an immediate step. I trust that by the folly of the Government of the past, he and his colleagues (and he has been appointed as Chairman of that Committee) will, with all haste see to it that we conclude this matter on a Bill of Rights which ultimately will be placed in the Constitution. A Code of Ethics would not be placed in the Constitution because it would have to be amended from time to time and, would require the flexibility under a specific law.

When considering the past, the follies of past Governments, and creation of indebtedness on the country, unethical spending and squandering, we have to think of present times. We have a case where no one has reconciled the amount paid for the property at Spotts for a stadium with what it was originally purchased for. So there are always conditions where one can reflect on the past and what went wrong, but there are also situations at present. Perhaps it is like I have heard my mother say over the years, "There is so much good in the worst of us, and so much bad in the best of us that it behoves us all to not judge or lay blame".

The Constitution is a matter that this particular Code of Ethics is not concerned with. The Minister for Education spoke about the occasion when the Select Committee was dealing with the Constitution. He spoke about Prime Ministers and so on as being open to corruption. I did take exception with him on that for as I recall the statement was made so that it could have implied that every Prime Minister in the Commonwealth was such a person. Again, I think that generalisations in statements, where one is talking about persons being corrupt, should be specific and to the point. The fact that a person is a Prime Minister does not mean that that person is corrupt by any means or that he/she, by being a Prime Minister would think of themselves as an object to be corrupted.

This business of corruption is personal to holder, so to speak, as in the Civil Service. Certain persons allow themselves to be corrupted, or may choose to take corrupt actions. But it is always personal to the individual. I would not stand here and say that there is some syndrome among the politicians, past or present, in this country that is like a beacon saying 'here I am, a corrupt object', or 'corrupt me'. The purpose of this Code of Ethics is to set up guidelines so that any such thing could be avoided.

As for candidates running for office being subjected to the Register of Interests, I dare say that is something which needs to be looked at by that Select Committee. I know it has been raised before, it was raised by Members with the Constitutional Commissioners who themselves did not think it was necessary to apply it prior to someone being elected to office. I, personally, do not have any strong feelings whether it must be applied to candidates. I think it is a bit un-British, certainly, if not un-American. It will be something which will be decided by the Select Committee and not by me.

I think that the House has achieved something good today, and that Members are in unison wishing to do something in this particular area. I think that it does more for the public than it does for us. It says to the public, 'There you are with your views, your opinions, the way you would have things'. But we, the legislators of this present House are prepared to hear what you are saying: your rumblings, your grumbings, your accusations, recommendations and suggestions. And we are prepared to initiate something that will make the situation acceptable to all concerned.' It places us as legislators in a position to say to the others, 'Go ye forth and do likewise.'

I think that overall in this country it could do with some moderation and change, getting back to the old ethics and old Caymanian morals where we clearly understood that 'we do not do that because it will hurt so and so', or 'I will not do that because it is not something of integrity and I have too much honour for that type of thing.'

I think this occasion sends that type of message and I think for us as legislators it is quite a remarkable occasion. I hope that when the Select Committee is over, we will come out of it with a Register of Interests having all it needs to have and that we will all have a clear understanding and recommendations for legislation which will give us a practical, reasonable and sound Code of Ethics and Conduct.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question before this Honourable House is Private Member's Motion 29/94: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House refers the matter of legislation for a Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators to the Select Committee now reviewing a Register of Interests for consideration as "companion" legislation." I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Private Member's Motion 29/94 has, therefore, been duly passed.

AGREED. PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 29/94 PASSED UNANIMOUSLY.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: Before proceeding to the next item, I wish to take note that in the Gallery we have Mr. Terry Jones, the Deputy High Commissioner of the Canadian High Commission in Kingston, Jamaica who is on his first official visit to the Islands.

Private Member's Motion No. 30/94. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 30/94

REVIEW OF THE STANDING ORDERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move Private Member's Motion 30/94, Review of the Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly, which reads:

"WHEREAS there have been eight amendments to the Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly since the 1993 Session to date;

"AND WHEREAS proposed amendments have been referred to the Standing Orders Committee during the life of the last House which were not considered or reported thereon;

"AND WHEREAS recent constitutional changes have necessitated appropriate changes in the Standing Orders;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House approves a review of the Standing Orders for the purpose of updating them as necessary and in light of modern practices and procedures of the House of Commons and other Commonwealth parliaments and seek the advice and assistance of an experienced Parliamentarian as was done in the past."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion 30/94. The Motion is open for debate.

Notice of Amendment (Standing Order 25)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I have circulated an amendment and what I wish to do at this stage is to move a suspension of Standing Order 25(2) so that the amendment comes forward right at the beginning and be dealt with by all Members who speak.

The Speaker: I think we can move the suspension of Standing Orders. Actually it is not the moving of the suspension, the Speaker gives the authority to waive the two days' notice. Accordingly I will waive the two days' notice for the amendment to be brought forward at this time.

Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
Could I just get clear whether we would be speaking on both the amendment and the Motion, because the Mover of the substantive Motion would probably wish to open on it.

The Speaker: Yes, I think we should in this case.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I will give way to him, because I know he has the right to go first.

The Speaker: Good.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Just to understand exactly what has been said so far with regard to the amendment to the Motion, do I understand correctly that comments may be made on the proposed amendment as well as the substantive Motion together?

The Speaker: Yes.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly are the rules by which we run the business of this House. Under the British Parliamentary system it is my understanding that the rules of the various parliaments in the various countries are called Standing Orders. This to my mind serves a vital purpose. There are rules which govern each and every Member in debate when Motions and Questions are brought, or they set down how the House should generally function. These are the rules which the Speaker or the Presiding Officer enforces. Naturally they breathe fairness to all—even when, like in the case of this House, the Opposition is in the very smallest number. But under the rules of the House, the Opposition knows it can have equality in presenting its views because these rules are in place.

These rules, to the best of my knowledge and research, have been developed by the British Parliament through time-tested incidents. They came about when people became wise enough to know that rather than opposing forces, sitting with their swords on their sides and disagreements being settled by duels, it was better to set down rules and set a referee in the person of the Speaker to guide both sides. They could fight as hard as they wished to, verbally, but they did not have to resort to physical fighting.

I understand that the present Standing Orders of our Legislature were drafted in their full embodiment as they are now, except for some amendments in 1976 when we had the benefit of having the guidance of the person who was then Clerk of this Assembly (who is now the Honourable Speaker). We also had guidance from the person who was most able to do so at the time from the House of Commons in the United Kingdom.

So, I think that we have Standing Orders here now which are comprehensive in their own right. But as time has moved along, there needs to be some changes to update them, not only in keeping with our needs, but that they should reflect some uniformity with what is generally found and seen to be useful and necessary from the functioning of the various Commonwealth Parliaments.

As noted in the recitals in the Motion there have been various instances where Motions were brought to change the Standing Orders. During the time of the last Government I can think of one brought by Mr. Franklin Smith, which was a motion proposing that the House should have a bill presented at one meeting, read a first time and dealt with in debate the following meeting of the House (which gave approximately a 90-day time frame for members of the public to see the bill and deal with it and for legislators to gather their thoughts and take advice from various constituents).

This was highly touted at the time by the Chamber of Commerce and various groups that bills were coming to the House in a rush and there was not sufficient time for the public to have access to these bills which gave everyone an opportunity to make up their minds and see the merits of it. That was referred to the Standing Orders Committee, but to the best of my knowledge it has never been dealt with (and I was here during the last Government and now this one).

The other matter which I recall coming to the House was a motion by the Government to introduce television into the House. Again, at about that time, the British Parliament was looking at that situation and was on the brink of allowing it to be done. Now, if anyone wants to stay up until the wee hours of the morning he can see Question Time in the British House of Parliament on C-Span on television. As for us, this has fallen away because there was an election since that time and a new House is in place.

I think, however, that both of these matters do warrant some consideration. The time for bills, even now in our Standing Orders, requires 21 days. Time and time again we see bills reaching the House after the meeting of the House has started; Standing Orders having to be suspended so that these bills can be dealt with. That is an area that I have serious concern with. I think that the Government and all Members of the Legislative Assembly should think very seriously about the practice of suspending Standing Orders right, left and centre.

It is my understanding that that was never the intention of Standing Orders. It should be the exception and not the rule. It is my opinion that during the past year it has become more of the rule. This creates an undesirable situation leaving it in the hands of the Government who has the majority to basically do whatever they want to do suspending Standing Orders.

We are in the electronic age of which television is certainly a part. I seriously believe that we should look at the possibility of allowing television coverage in the House—whether it should be as it is in the House of Commons where the person speaking is under scrutiny, or whether the camera would be turned on the House generally, are detailed aspects which could be worked out. But I think it is another means by which the public has the opportunity of seeing their elected representatives performing their duties—expressing their views. I said before in more than one debate, that I think this is something that the Government should look into doing in the form of public broadcasting. Where Government through a public broadcast means on television would provide this service. It may be the case that businesses would find it attractive enough to pay for the air time for their advertisements. That is something which one would need to look at. But I think these are two areas which seriously needs to be considered.

There have been eight amendments to the Standing Orders since 1993, which goes to show that times have changed; things have happened which have warranted certain changes. At least in the minds of the Government there has been need for changes.

In 1993, there was an amendment which dealt with the quorum of the House and of committees. This came about directly as a result of the Constitutional changes which increased the number of elected members from 12 to 15. There was also the amendment which changed the time of notice of questions from five to 10 days.

Then there was the amendment to the Standing Orders dealing with the content and notice of motions and the procedure thereof. This is one amendment where I think it was retrograde and we need to look at it. This change made it impossible for a motion to be brought to the House unless notice has been given prior to the beginning of meeting of the House. Before that, once the five-day notice had been given, a motion could come about during the meeting of the House.

What that particular change to Standing Orders effectively did was to make it impossible for the Opposition to bring a motion at anytime while the House was meeting, no matter how important the matter might be, unless it got a majority (which is the Government), to agree to it. And we know how very happy the Government is to accommodate the Opposition. This is one instance where this was serious retrograde. It should be changed back to the way it was for the sake of democracy and for the sake that it gave the Opposition (the minority) the opportunity during the course of a meeting to put a motion before the House.

Of course there was also the amendment that changed the Finance Committee back to the way it was before—one which I totally agreed with made up of all Elected Members with the Financial Secretary as Chairman. I think the country on a whole was pleased with that reversal.

The situation when it came to the matter of dealing with asking and answering questions was also changed this year, that is questions being answered in writing instead of orally. I am pleased to see that it appears that there has been some reversal in the thinking of Government on this, in that all questions now reach the Order Paper. Whereas before there was the proposition that questions would be answered in writing even if they were on the Order Paper. I know that there was a comment on this by the Speaker. But I think this is something which needs to be resolved once and for all with proper guidance from people with the right expertise, over and above what we have here locally among ourselves as legislators and, certainly using as guidance the comments of the Chair. This is an area that needs to be set right.

The other amendment was the question of duration of select committees. It has been so amended that once a select committee has been set up it will run for the term of the House and not be required each session to be renewed. I think there is something to be said for the thinking behind this as it does mean a lot of paper work. But again, I also get the impression that it might fall out of place with the principles of the concepts of prorogation of the House. This is an area that I think needs to be looked at very carefully.

Overall, in a situation these Standing Orders (as we so term them) are of the most vital significance to the existence of the Legislature, past, present and future and they are not to be treated lightly. If that is the case the parliamentary process and democracy must suffer.

On the question of the amendment put forward by the Minister for Education and Aviation to delete the section of the Resolve which says that we must "seek the advice and assistance of an experienced Parliamentarian as was done in the past", I disagree with this amendment.

I disagree with this amendment on the grounds that other than the Speaker of this Legislature, few persons can claim any great experience in this field. Indeed, the Speaker and the Clerk (the Deputy Clerk in some instances) have had opportunities of attending various conferences and seminars which deal with it. But within the Commonwealth there are persons who are recognised as experts in this field. It becomes a thing of interest to them; they have studied it and through their long years of experience they have become experts in this area.

I do not think it would be in our best interests for the 18 of us to sit down (even though we do have a lawyer among us) and say that we are experts in this field and we will do it a certain way. I submit that one could have a half dozen lawyers reviewing these and they may speak directly to points of law as it is interpreted, specifically precisely and 'painfully' legally. But the whole process of Parliament has a greater fullness which includes the legal side. Also, certain parts which embody the thought process and actual functioning of parliaments that are not necessarily set down in the Standing Orders. That type of expertise is needed.

It is my understanding that for example, Mr. George Brancker, who is the Clerk of the Parliament of Barbados and Secretary to the Caribbean Regional Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, has a vast experience and is highly recognised by his peers and parliamentarians. Inviting someone like him to assist us in this exercise would be of the greatest benefit. I also believe that in this regard, rather than the Elected Members and the Official Members of this House, this is an instance where it is proper that the Speaker be invited to chair a Committee of this House in this particular regard.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I put that view forward to all of the Members of this House. I read in Erskine May that normally, whenever the rules of the House come into play, it is always the Speaker who officiates as chairman of such a committee or someone appointed by the Speaker. But I do not think it would be good for us to delete this section. We should have such advice. I do not believe that we as 18 legislators can sit down and properly review the Standing Orders in their totality and get the widest benefit without certain expertise available to us. That is why it was placed in the Resolve.

I also understand that in conferences of Clerks and Speakers attempts are being made (at least within the Caribbean Region) to gather as much information as possible on the Standing Orders of all Caribbean countries in the Commonwealth. And, to see how far it is possible to create a generalised Standing Orders.

Of course with variations depending upon the Constitutional advancement of the country, which would apply to things like how Motions are handled or questions, etcetera. It is necessary to seek advice and assistance of experienced parliamentarians (as has been done in the past) and not simply confine it to ourselves to sit and posture that we are experts in this field. I think that I have presented the views of the Opposition, the Mover and Seconder on this Motion. The House is invited to review the Standing Orders in their totality and I certainly would envisage this being done in a select committee. I would like to give notice under Standing Order 9 that I would like to move a Motion after the vote is taken that it be referred to a select committee if it is accepted. I recommend this Motion to the Honourable Members of this House.

The Speaker: Honourable Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, you said Standing Order 9? Which one is that, please?

NOTICE OF MOTION

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I am sorry, it is under Standing Order 24, suborder (9) which reads: "The following Motions may be made without notice." It would be (9)(ii).

The Speaker: There are four minutes left before the Moment of Interruption. The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, this Motion is one which I support subject to a very minor amendment that I have moved. The Motion itself will be putting the full Standing Orders into a select committee for study. The Motion as drafted, did not mention that this had been done several times in the past and obviously reviews from time to time will have to be dealt with.

The Motion itself probably does not come under the 24(9) rule, but I will address that tomorrow morning because there is a specific procedure on amendments to Standing Orders and it may or may not come under that.

The Motion itself is sound in its context. After quite a few years the review was published back in 1985 in a revised form. They have therefore been subject to several amendments by different legislators from time to time. It is also a time when we can consolidate the Standing Orders as well and get one complete document at the end of the day which will obviously be much more readable and understandable.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: It is now 4.30. May I ask for the Motion for the Adjournment. Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 8TH DECEMBER, 1994.

THURSDAY
8 DECEMBER, 1994
10.22 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

Presentation of Papers and Reports. The first interim Report of the Select Committee (of the whole House) to Review the Gambling Law. The Honourable Second Official Member.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

THE FIRST INTERIM REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE (OF THE WHOLE HOUSE) TO REVIEW THE GAMBLING LAW

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House the First Interim Report of the Select Committee (of the whole House) to Review the Gambling Law.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, the Select Committee comprised of the whole House, met once to consider Private Member's Motion No. 25/94 concerning the Gambling Law and has not finished its business, and presents its interim Report.

The Speaker: The first interim Report of the Select Committee (of the whole House) to Review the Sunday Trading Law (Cap 161).

The Honourable Second Official Member.

THE FIRST INTERIM REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE (OF THE WHOLE HOUSE) TO REVIEW
THE SUNDAY TRADING LAW (CAP 161)

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House the First Interim Report of the Select Committee (of the whole House) to Review the Sunday Trading Law (Cap 161).

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, this Select Committee has met twice. It has publicised its request in the newspaper for information and comments from the general public. Many letters of representation have been received either by myself or the Clerk to the Committee. A number of persons also wish to come and speak with the Committee. That will be facilitated in due course.

The Committee has not finished its deliberations and presents this interim Report and will meet again shortly after this Session of the House.

The Speaker: The First Interim Report of the Select Committee (of the whole House) to Review a Register of Interests for the Legislative Assembly.

The Elected Member for North Side.

THE FIRST INTERIM REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE (OF THE WHOLE HOUSE) TO REVIEW

A REGISTER OF INTERESTS FOR THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the first interim Report of the Select Committee to Review a Register of Interests of the Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: This Committee met on three occasions, namely, the 20th of July, 25th of August, and the 7th of December, 1994.

The Committee has not completed its deliberations and will meet early in the new year. We have received written representation and oral hearings. The Select Committee agrees that this Report be the interim report of the Select Committee of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture has intimated that the Report which is the next item has not been finalised. This will be dealt with at a later stage during today's sitting or, if not, tomorrow.

STATEMENTS BY MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

The Speaker: Statements by Members of the Government. The Honourable First Official Member.

ROYAL CAYMAN ISLANDS POLICE FORCE CURRENTLY ENROLLED AT THE LAW SCHOOL

¹Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Madam Speaker, during the current sitting of the Legislative Assembly in answer to a Parliamentary Question on the list of members of the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force who are currently enrolled at the Law School, I responded to a supplementary question to the effect that Government is sponsoring these officers.

For the avoidance of doubt, I would like to set the record straight by stating that police officers currently enrolled in the Law School who are pursuing the Bachelor of Laws (Honours) Degree course are not funded by the Government. All these officers are paying for their own expenses. This applies to both Caymanian and non-Caymanian Officers.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, would you allow a brief question on the statement just made?

The Speaker: Yes, you may.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would like to ask the Honourable First Official Member if thought is being given not to allow contracted police officers time off to attend the studies as is presently being done. I understand there would be a difference for Caymanian police officers.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I am advised by the Commissioner of Police that officers who get time off to attend the Law School work shifts (as most officers do) and they are, in fact, working their normal shifts outside of the time when they are attending the Law School. So it might seem a little unfair not to allow an officer to attend Law School, particularly if he is doing it on his own time and at his own expense.

The Speaker: The next statement is by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

SMALL CRUISE SHIP TO CAYMAN BRAC

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I rise to inform Honourable Members and the listening public that the Minister of Tourism, Environment and Planning and the Department of Tourism have been working for sometime to bring a small cruise ship to Cayman Brac and, with God's help, I feel we have succeeded.

The ship's name is Kazakhstan II with between 450 to 520 passengers (who are mainly Germans) on board. It is due to arrive at 8 a.m. on Monday, 9th January, 1995, and depart at 1 p.m. on the same day.

This agreement to visit Cayman Brac will be another breakthrough in this Government's effort to assist the stimulation of the Cayman Brac economy and allow the people of the Brac to showcase their island to cruise ship passengers.

We pray that the weather on the day of arrival will be favourable and that the day's activities will be comfortable and enjoyed by the visitors and the people of the Cayman Brac alike. May Almighty God continue to bless the Government and people of the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, may I be allowed one question?

The Speaker: You may.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: I would like to ask the Honourable Minister if it is expected that these visits will be on a monthly basis?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, as I understand it, this ship is on a round-the-world charter and it was due to come into George Town Harbour. Unfortunately, we were unable to allow the ship into the Harbour because we had too many ships in on that day. So I guess the answer to the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town on this occasion is no. Certainly we will continue to work on it in the hope that it will be on a weekly basis by another ship.

The Speaker: Continuing with Other Business. Private Member's Motion No. 30/94, Review of the Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly. The debate continues, the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTION

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 30/94

REVIEW OF THE STANDING ORDERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, the amendment that I have put to this Motion to delete the words, "and seek the advice and assistance of an experienced Parliamentarian as was done in the past", has been moved merely to give the Committee the right to call on the assistance of an experienced parliamentarian if it so wishes. But not to be bound to do so in the event that it is the wish of the Committee that it does not need that advice.

In other words, I am trying to conserve some of the public's money, if that is possible, and remove it from being a mandatory part of the motion. But if it becomes necessary for us to seek the advice of several parliamentarians, then, by all means, we would do so. That is basically the reason for the amendment. I also mentioned to the Mover that I would be moving the amendment and this is the reasoning behind it.

Madam Speaker, it seems that one of the main areas for criticism of the Government on this Motion is that Government has been waiving the Standing Orders of this honourable House too much. This was forcefully put forward by the Mover, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Yes, the Standing Orders of the House are suspended. In fact, they are suspended on a daily basis when questions are here. But it has to be a state of hypocrisy when the persons who benefit from the waiving of the Standing Orders take a point because somebody assisted in allowing them to get rights that they do not have. They turn around and slap us in the face and say we are waiving Standing Orders too often.

It has been said that a hypocrite can never repent because his repentance is, in effect, hypocrisy. So we have no hope for a Member who takes a point which assisted that Member in asking questions after 11 o'clock (and the only people it assists are the Opposition Members of this House).

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning stood up and very piously and gently waived the Standing Orders so that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman could continue asking questions, many of which, by the waiving of those Standing Orders, have wasted public's funds and Government's time.

One such example is asking how many passengers Cayman Airways carried in ten years? What I am really saying is that it has to be hypocrisy to take a point that we are waiving Standing Orders too often, when every day of our lives the Government waives Standing Orders for the benefit of the two Opposition Members whom I just referred to. I am really amazed because we rarely ever waive Standing Orders for our purpose.

Since this has now come up, Madam Speaker, why should we continue to waive the Standing Orders every day at 11 o'clock when there are questions here to assist the two Members who do not have the ability to pass that Motion. Then they turn around and slap us in the face because we are doing so. Yes, I will agree, Standing Orders are waived. But, Madam Speaker, from now on instead of calling on Government to waive Standing Orders, perhaps you should be calling on those who need the Standing Orders waived. We do not need it waived to have further questions asked of us. I hope the point that I am making here is coming through clearly.

I think that it is biting the hand that feeds you, so to speak—slapping somebody in the face for doing something that is helping you. I am really getting to a very tired state with this. I agree that Standing Orders need to be amended. I do not take the main point, however, that they are going to be amended so that we do not waive Standing Orders when the people putting this Motion are the people whom we waive Standing Orders for.

There are times when the Standing Orders obviously have to be waived. Nobody tries to do that from the Government side for the benefit of the Government unless it is necessary. I can assure you there is a very minute number of the times Standing Orders have been waived for the benefit of the Government.

Madam Speaker, the Standing Orders, like everything else, needs to be reviewed from time to time. I agree and I agree with the Motion. I think we need to review it and we need to look in-depth at sections of it and see what is good and what is bad. I believe that perhaps the better way of doing that is for the Committee to look at it, perhaps produce drafts and then make a decision at that stage as to whether we need help in relation to any specific areas that may be erased, either for Members within the Committee or from you, Madam Speaker, or the Clerk of this Honourable House.

There are areas that I believe will come up for change and I am not going to take that point. But whenever the Standing Order is subject to change it normally follows a procedure under the Standing Orders of the House. This is not a specific change, it is a review which may not result in changes. So debate on it here is perhaps good.

I support the Motion. I would, however, call on the two Opposition Members who require Standing Orders to be waived on a daily basis to really try and look at something else to criticise the Government for. Rather than what the Government does to help them in their inability under these Standing Orders to perform their duties within the House.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, I want to add my support to this Motion. The Standing Orders under which the House now labours have been in force for a long time. In fact, it was after the 1972 Constitution that the Legislative Assembly set about writing these orders. Although I do not want to reveal my age, I was a part of that Committee (as I believe you, yourself, Madam Speaker had been a party to it). We had the help from the then Clerk of the House of Commons, Mr. Benson, and the late Mr. Willie Farrington was also on that Committee. The Standing Orders have served us well over a 20-year period.

There was a major revision in 1985, and of course, from time to time there have been some other consequential amendments. But with the passing of time it is necessary to review, revise and to put the Standing Orders into one document that will be easy for Members to work with.

I do not think it is necessary to go into the changes that need to be made as the Mover of the Motion, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, in his own eloquent manner detailed some of the problems that we are facing. Other speakers have highlighted some of them and as the Review will examine in great detail each Order, I am certain that with the questions Members now have every Order will be explored, if not changed and perhaps either cast aside or endorsed and kept as a memorial as it has been over the years.

The new Constitution that came into effect posed certain problems with the Standing Orders. You, Madam Speaker, have made certain statements about specific Standing Orders which show that there is need for improvements. In fact, only quite recently, although I was not present, the House dealt with a motion for an adjournment and the Standing Orders do not really cover the motion for adjournment in any specific detail. It is true that the Standing Orders say that when a matter is not covered we can refer to Erskine May. But I think it is time that the Standing Orders be widened to cover such eventualities.

For example, the adjournment motion should say what time can be allowed, as that motion usually comes at the close of the day when everybody is tired. I believe the adjournment motion should specify who should speak and how much time should be allowed (maximum time). These are matters which have suddenly come to light. The adjournment motion is very important. When that matter came up it last week (or, whenever it was) it was really a matter of national importance. These are the reasons for the review. It is not a matter of changing for the sake of change.

I look forward to, if I am allowed to join this august body sitting in on these meetings, perhaps taking part in adding my small bit to the 'reconstruction' (if I may call it that) of this valuable document which is the 'bible' upon which law and order is founded in this Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Private Member's Motion No. 30/94, Review of the Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly. Based on the short time that I have been here I find this Motion not only timely, but one that is very important. I am pleased to hear that the Government has the will to accept the Motion.

I have found that Standing Orders are to this honourable Legislative Assembly what fuel is to a vehicle; it is what a dictionary is to a student and like a Bible to a preacher. The fact that there have been eight amendments (as mentioned in the Motion) to the Standing Orders since 1993, clearly display to me a need for a complete review in order to bring these Orders in line with the times.

If we take a quick look at Standing Order 75, which refers to a Standing Orders Committee, it reads: "There shall be a standing select committee, to be styled the Standing Orders Committee, to consider from time to time generally what changes to Standing Orders are necessary and desirable and par- ticularly to consider any proposed amendments to Standing Orders which are referred to it in accordance with paragraph (3) of Standing Order 84." I mention Standing Order 75 simply to say that the review this Motion is calling for, to my understanding, is over and above what Standing Order 75 calls for. It is my hope that the other Members view the purpose of the Motion in a similar light so that we may be able to deal with such a Committee in a different fashion.

The way that it normally runs is that the Standing Orders Committee will consist of all Elected Members of the House and is usually chaired by the First Official Member. My point has nothing to do with the First Official Member, but I believe that the review that is being called for here is not piece-meal, which is what Standing Order 75 refers to. I simply started off by making that point in the hope that we can deal with this to bring about the proper end result.

There is another point that I wish to make regarding the Motion, if it is carried. Prior to this we debated another Motion whereby we were seeking to establish a Code of Ethics and Conduct as companion legislation to the Register of Interests. Again, I wish to point out that while we are examining all three of these matters there is a sequence in my mind that we need to follow. I think the ideal situation would be when the Review of the Standing Orders is completed we are able to have one complete document that we can go by which will encompass all of the previous amendments that have been made along with whatever results from the Review.

In saying that, I think we must bear in mind that both a Register of Interests and a Code of Ethics and Conduct may well have bearing on possible changes to these Standing Orders. If we look at Standing Orders 79 and 80, under the heading of "Pecuniary and Professional Interests," it is obvious that there may be changes at that point in time. So I just wish for us to follow a sequence of events in the Committees so that we do not end up with a new set of Standing Orders having to be amended after a Code of Ethics and Conduct and a Register of Interests are established.

Madam Speaker, the importance of these Standing Orders is not something to be taken lightly. We need to bear in mind that our way of dealing with matters in this honourable House is not only influenced, but determined by these Standing Orders. I think it is also very important for us to bear in mind that the Chair in which you sit, Madam Speaker, is one that is of vital importance to the running of this Legislative Assembly. It is only fitting that you have the right tools to work with: modern tools which suit the times.

Suffice it to say, regarding the matter, this is a very important step that we seem to be embarking upon. I trust that the committees that are being formed, with the other matters that I mentioned previously, will also be expedited—so that we do not find ourselves

'downline' with the House being prorogued and these Committees not having concluded.

There is also another matter I wish to address. I have noticed on the odd occasion (it matters not who the individuals are, it could be me, I dare say I do not think it is, but it does not matter) that the interpretations by the Chair of certain Standing Orders is questioned by Members and there are disagreements with these interpretations. It might be that the way the Standing Orders were originally written created the possibility of ambiguity. I quickly mention this for us to bear in mind that in the process of review it is important that we all be very open; whatever disagreements there are with interpretations can be cleared up so that there is no question about these matters. There might be more that will arise between now and then. I just hope that we are able to get the new document as straightforward as possible, under the circumstances, where there is as little chance as possible of question of interpretation.

I certainly commend this Motion. The amendment that has been brought to the Motion puts me in a dilemma to be very honest. I heard the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation this morning as he explained his reasoning behind the amendment; I have to admit that there is merit to what he has said. In looking at it from the other point of view, it is my opinion that it is rather impossible to pin too much importance to the Standing Orders of this honourable Legislative Assembly. With that in mind, I think that we should ensure that we have the resources as far as possible to ensure that the end document is the one that is correct and proper for this House. By no means should we try to curtail our review simply by not having access to certain things.

The question that I have not been able to answer is: If outside assistance is sought what type of cost will this incur? It is my feeling that the cost may not be prohibitive. I certainly suggest that if the cost is not prohibitive we may wish to get some input. But nevertheless, I will have to place my judgment to put a certain amount of trust in the Government where restrictions are not placed on the process simply because there may be varying views on the matter. I am saying to the Government at this point that I hear what it is saying. But please, for God's sake, make it no different when the time comes.

There is much more that can be repeated about these Standing Orders and I dare say that Honourable Members who have preceded me in the debate have qualified their contributions in the various areas. Repetition need not be made. I therefore give this Motion my full support. I look forward to working with all the Members of this honourable House and whoever else is deemed necessary to be a part of the process to bring about the right end result.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, again this is a matter that the Government can support—this matter of doing a Review of the Standing Orders. I guess each one of us in this honourable House will have reasons as to why the Resolution needs to be passed. Certainly, the Opposition cannot expect that the only reasons for reviewing of the Standing Orders are those which they claim to want.

I support the Review of the Standing Orders because in March 1985 I moved a resolution to get some changes in the way this House performed its business. It was one asking for a Committee to consider a proposal and any consequential amendments to the present Standing Orders. What arrived out of that (and I was in the minority at the time) was not something I believe should have happened. In fact, they did not do anything along the lines of what the Resolution asked for. For instance, I have always held the belief that this Legislature should begin its work at 2.30 in the afternoon, or there about, and carry on until about 7 o'clock or 7.30 pm. Of course, at the end of that time arrangements could be made for business to continue as Members see fit. I still hold that belief today because the country's affairs are not diminishing; the importance of legislation, the importance of work needing to be done within Government, itself, is not diminishing. Ministers, Madam Speaker . . .

And there could be many reasons why certain things happen. For instance, the Order Paper this morning shows that I was expected to lay a Status report on the Table. But, because there is so much work in the Ministry, it could not be completed in time for 10 o'clock. It is here now, but I had to be allowed extra time for it to be completed. If we had begun at 2 or 2.30 p.m. then the paper would have been laid in its rightful place.

There are many reasons why I believe we should meet at that hour instead of this ungodly hour of 10 o'clock in the morning when everybody is fighting the traffic to get here. Being a small community, our constituents show up at our homes—not our offices—which cause us to be late. These are all reasons why we should change. I remember one of the Members (as they were called then) saying: "I do not want to meet at 2 o'clock because I am at my best at 10 o'clock in the morning."

Madam Speaker, what came out of those changes that I asked for in 1985, was a change in the way we voted for Executive Council. For instance they could not agree among themselves who would be called the First Elected Member, and since some had gotten First Elected Member and others had not, the picture was changed completely. No more are the words The Member/the Minister (for whatever Ministry), First Elected Member of Council used in the House. Maybe it was a good thing because it was a very wordy Standing Order for the Speaker to call on that particular Member at the time. That was one of the changes.

But looking at Standing Order 5(1) which gives the House the right to elect Members to Executive Council, the words "Member of Executive Council" are still used while we are now called "Ministers" and "Official Members". So there is some cleaning up to be done and I can appreciate the Motion this morning.

Madam Speaker, first of all I would say that I do not support bringing anyone into the Committee. For one thing, having just passed the Budget, there is no money appropriated to bring in anyone from overseas. And while there are people [locally] who are qualified in this sort of thing who could be of assistance, I believe that sitting down together as Members where we can refer to the Speaker for some guidance [is sufficient]. I do not see the need.

The last experience I had with an outside person coming in to do work along the line of such an important matter was on the Constitution. I rightly recall what went on with that, Madam Speaker. They came here with a mind-set regardless of who supported what position for constitutional changes. Those Constitutional Commissioners came here with a mind-set. I remember making a recommendation (although I was in the minority), for a change to a committee system of Government. I think all Members here know what a committee system of Government is: Instead of having Government and Opposition in a formal setting like this, we would have a committee system where we have committees, whether it would be the Committee for Finance or a Committee for Tourism. That would have taken away all the fighting that goes on between Members. All Members of the House would sit on a particular Ministry and could make their wishes known. They could have a President or call the person a Minister if they would like. It could be done.

The Constitutional Commissioner did not even make the recommendation. Nowhere is it to be found in the Constitutional Report. He would not even consider it. He was pushing a ministerial form of Government, which we now have: in fact he was going further. But that is not the debate here this morning.

Sometimes we are lucky to get people who understand the system our Government operates under, but at times we get others who push their views and sometimes their views are taken above the sensible propositions. So I am not going to support [bringing in someone from the outside].

Madam Speaker, the Opposition's issue seems to be that they are hampered in the way they do business. I do not agree with that and I will get to that later on. The Mover, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, gave an example of motions that the Opposition could move for urgent matters. The present Standing Orders give many areas that could be used by the Opposition. Of course, we have to study our Standing Orders and that comes over a period of years when we learn what is there and what can be done. But if we look at Standing Order 11(1) which says: "When for any reason it is not desired to formulate a motion in express terms for the purposes of debating a matter or matters, a motion 'That the House do now adjourn' may be moved for the purpose of such a debate." First of all it is not the Government who has any say on that; it is the Presiding Officer, the Speaker, to whom the application is made for such a matter.

We experienced that a few days ago when the Speaker allowed the same Member moving this Motion to raise a matter of urgent public business which was not on the Order Paper. It was set down for a later time in the day and as the Presiding Officer rightly saw fit to do, it was debated. Now maybe what can be said is that a longer time could be allowed for Members to air their complaints. But it is not a general debate: it is to draw to the attention of the Members of the House matters of urgent public business and for some sort of redress. One of the reasons why the Presiding Officer should give a later time, instead of at that moment, is to allow the Government to formulate an answer to what is being questioned. Standing Order 12 can be used similarly.

Another area which the Opposition can use is Standing Order 24(9)(viii) which says: "a motion arising out of any item of business made immediately after that item is disposed of and before the next item is entered upon;". But this Standing Order 24 (9) gives a whole list of motions which may be made without notice once it is not a motion that is the same in substance as the one that was passed or had been put to the House during the previous six months: Order 24 (9)(i): "a motion that a petition or other paper do lie on the Table...; (ii) a motion to refer a bill or any other matter to a Select Committee;". While people may not think that these are important, it gives them the chance, if they are successful, to be able to further their thoughts on a matter that they probably had finished speaking on. Standing Order 24(9)(viii) is a substantial motion and can be used by Members who wish to raise a matter.

Madam Speaker, that is not inclusive of the substantive Standing Orders to deal with motions—which gives the time frame when a Member must submit a motion. With the many complex issues that are raised, time has to be given for the Government to be able to do research on any particular matter raised by anyone. Therefore, we should not be able to come into the House and bring a matter that is urgent without the Government being able to answer back properly.

Bills seems to be one of the long-standing issues. I believe the Chamber of Commerce first raised this issue of bills having 90 days. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman complained about this matter. I agree wholeheartedly that all bills should be given the longest time possible for public scrutiny before passage in the House. But there are, and must be, exceptions to that rule. As has been said, this Government has only suspended Standing Orders where it became absolutely necessary. Certainly, we have not done so at every meeting, only in exceptional matters.

As we all know, bills are not written by the Ministers in Government. We have a Legal Department that performs this task and sometimes when some segment of the public asks for a matter to be urgently addressed, this must be done quickly through the means available to the Government, especially if that matter is raised when the House is in session. Why should we not? The Opposition might not agree, but the Government is in the majority and we need to have the ways and means available to us to address problems.

Now I would not say that we must bring in draconian legislation at the whims and fancy—or at the drop of a hat, as we would say. At no time in our stewardship of this House have the Standing Orders been suspended for a major piece of legislation to be passed.

Madam Speaker, the late Mr. Ormond L. Panton sent me a copy of the Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly of Justices and Vestry of the Cayman Islands, and these were (I believe) adopted by the Justices and Vestry in the session of September 1920. If we look at what they did with motions, we can see that we have come a long way with motions, questions and resolutions. In those days motions had to be given seven days' notice before they were presented to the House. So I do not think that we are so bad off today. Maybe I should give Members a copy of this. If the Sergeant-at-Arms would lay it on the Table, Members could get a copy if they wish.

I do not think that the Opposition has a right to complain—bitterly in some instances—about suspension of Standing Orders. Yes, there are Standing Orders that can be made clearer. But the Opposition is opposition and they must understand this: while they are a minority and must be protected in a democratic country, they are not the Government. They cannot expect that a government is not going to carry on its business in the way it sees fit, prudent and fair to the vast majority of the population. While we might not be in tandem with what they want, we have been given a mandate (a very large mandate) to carry forward our policies and we are going to find the ways and means of doing it. Sometimes it is done in a rush because as I said before, it is an urgent matter, and in no way, shape or form can the Opposition show where the suspension of Standing Orders has been to the detriment of the public's business.

Now he [Opposition member] chose to highlight the amendment affecting Question Time—one that generally comes to mind. However, there has been sufficient time, and I believe in this Session there have been some 171 questions about any and everything, so the Opposition cannot say that the Government is using its majority to stop them in any way, shape or form.

Of course, when they do not get their way in here, they can go to the press and we know how the press loves the Opposition. He chose to highlight that one because there was an amendment affecting the issue which was not clear, and I believe we can make it much clearer in this review. But he only glossed over the amendment that is most important to the country—the amendment to Standing Orders to put the Finance Committee back in the hands of the elected representatives.

Madam Speaker, as far as I am concerned, this was one [amendment] that the country—remember this—demonstrated on, a very large demonstration took place. People walked through this town and went to the Government House to address the Governor on this matter. We felt as representatives, and the country felt, that the matters of spending money and deciding where money should be spent should not be in the hands of people who do not face the public. This was taken away from us, those of us who sat in the House at the time, including the two Elected Members of the Opposition.

We all recall that the Magna Carter is a document which came into being because the people's representatives were not given the right to spend money. We were a majority of Elected Members, but we did not have the right to say where money should be spent; simply because people who were not elected combined with the Government to outnumber those of us in the majority on the elected side.

So I would have thought that the Member would have highlighted that amending Standing Order, rather than gloss over it to highlight one of questions which is so often answered in this Honourable legislature.

Madam Speaker, there are areas that I want to see changed. I do not agree with allowing television in this honourable Legislative Assembly, unless it would be for ceremonial occasions and such. But, generally, I would not agree with television being in this House. We are not losing anything by it not being here. All of our debates, every matter, inclusive of prayers, are now aired on Radio Cayman. I cannot see what television could add to this honourable House except that some of us might dress a little better, put on our Sunday best at all times, and perhaps we might extend the debate time from four hours to eight hours. Look at the fun that we could have in front of the television camera. I do not agree with this.

The influence of the media (that is radio, television and newspaper) has already had a profound effect on the culture of our small country. Yes, it can lead to enrichment. But what we now see on television does not lead to enrichment. It is to the detriment...and I say it often in this House that from the day we started getting American television full bloom in this country we saw a deterioration of morals and attitudes of young people, with all the crime and everything else that is broadcast. I do not agree with it.

One change I want to see is that of the admission of the press to this House. I could give many examples, but the one that stands out in my mind is of the reports which come from this House. We must understand and the press must understand, that the reports of this honourable Legislature must be a fair representation of what was said—not may, but must be a fair representation of what was said. I am certainly appreciative of most of the coverage they give this House, but there are times when they challenge the Members of this House by not reporting correctly and not reporting fairly.

One issue comes to mind, Madam Speaker, and that was the report on the debate of where the Drug Rehabilitation Centre should go. They reported that I said that it was going on the property that Government bought for it regardless of who liked it. What they did not report was that I continued by saying that whether it had to be by my house or in the front of my mother's home, the country needed it; it had demanded it. The Government had agreed to purchase the property and we were going ahead. They would not report that, simply because they wanted to portray me as being somebody who did not care about what the public was saying. If that is not nasty reporting, if that is not biased reporting, then you tell me what it is.

These reporters live here and they know what could cause a Member grave problem with the public. They notice, especially if they do not like a particular Member, what issues the public needs to know about, and if they are political, they are not going to report anything, no matter how relevant the point made, that would draw attention to their friends and make them look bad. And because we are a small country we know who associates with whom. We know that a reporter could be partial with someone when they march up to North Side to hear a former Member tell more lies about this honourable House than have ever been told by any other Member, but would not come to report a public meeting held by two Ministers giving an account of their Ministries. I know that those coming behind me can say: "Well they choose to do what they please." That is true. But what I am saying is that we know how political they can be. That is the issue that I am dealing with.

Madam Speaker, on the matter of the Port Authority Licensing of Vehicles Bill, the previous Member who was in charge raised the issue when he was but an ordinary member on the Backbench with myself. He complained about the inaction of this Government on the issue after the people had voted him out. Yet he has spent four years dealing with the matter and did nothing to correct it. In fact, it was infested with problems because of politics (and this is my opinion), they did not raise that issue in the newspaper. They raised the issue as I said regarding the motion brought to address the problem in 1986 (to give a date). But would not say that he did nothing about it in 1989 when he had the constitutional ability to do something about it. If that is good or fair reporting then Members coming after me can show me how.

The press is important. But they have to be fair (and I am not going to put any halo on them). I know that some reporters are very personal and often times do things deliberately to hurt Members who they do not like. I can tell the House that they will attend public meetings and will say things that are said which should not be brought in the newspapers but leave out other important things that were said.

I know that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town had a meeting and I know that he raised some very important matters. The only thing that I think they could put in the [newspaper] was that he said that I had no (I guess) college education. Is that good or is that trying to do something for the public? No, it is not! I do not care who comes behind me and says otherwise. It is not!

While I have fought in the past for freedom of the press (and I will continue to do so), with that freedom comes responsibility and that responsibility is to be fair. It does not mean that (and I hope that Members in this House understands this) freedom of the press gives reporters the right to write as they please. It does not! It means, Madam Speaker, that a reporter must be fair and that with this freedom comes much responsibility. It cannot be over emphasised that the greatest responsibility is for the reporter to be fair and impartial. When that fairness and that impartiality are not evident, then the integrity of the press must be called into question.

Why be so eager to print bad news? To put on the front page news about crime? Yes, the public needs to know, but it must be tempered, Madam Speaker. Why be so eager to blow up that sort of thing? Why not print the truth about great national figures and policies? For instance, why not print what was said at the dedication of the First National Hero's statue—rather than just gloss over it?

These are things that build character. These are things that should interest our children. These are things we should read in the newspaper: things that should be [recorded/preserved] for posterity, not about who got what education and so on. Not about the petty crimes that happen in the country—blown up to make it look as if we are overcome by these events. Why not go through the length and breadth of this country and show where our women have come from and what they are doing in the work place? Why not these kinds of stories? Is it the business of the press to make money, or to be the bearer of good tidings of general knowledge that can uplift our community?

The press has my support and always will. But you can bet that I am not going to put a halo on them and say, "Oh because of freedom of the press we need to let them say what they want; let them do what they want and be what they want." Often times there are editorials and articles written by reporters about Members trying to damage the reputation of not just that particular Member. But sometimes the writing is where it involves doubt about the whole House. Some of them, Madam Speaker, do not have the character of a toad—enough said! But we have to put sanctions in our Standing Orders for when reports are deliberately manipulated to show someone in a bad light. I am not saying that this should be to the point where it disallows them from reporting, but the Speaker who is in charge of the orders of the House must have some power to address these issues.

I have brought matters to the attention of the Presiding Officer before, but there are no powers in the Standing Orders: except that the Presiding Officer can only beg the press to be fairer and more careful when they report. I think we need to go beyond that. The Presiding Officer should have the authority to deal with it.

Madam Speaker, I certainly support this Resolution. As I have said, there are many matters which need to be addressed and we should at all times give the Opposition (if that is what they are complaining about) the opportunity to represent their constituency in the best manner possible. Already too much doubt has been cast on the House and we should not do anything that will not allow Members to be able to make representation.

Too often we get blamed, cursed, and all manner of evil said about us when we try to do things and cannot get it done. We then fall into disrepute with our constituents. This is not the purpose of the Government. We shall see that the Opposition, whether they are small in number or large in number, is given every opportunity. I say this now, that under the Standing Orders as it is, they can and knowing the Opposition, they do, take every opportunity to let the public know their feelings. Not that they are right at all times. I would hope that they do not think that they are right on every issue.

Madam Speaker, this Resolution has my support. It has the support of the Government, except the one area of bringing in someone from overseas. I cannot support that, but I give the Motion my full support.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.51 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.18 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 30/94. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker. This Motion to which I have given my support as Seconder, also has my voting support. I believe, like most Honourable Members who have spoken, that we have approached the time when we need to review our Standing Orders. I cannot, however, support the amendment brought by the Minister for Education and Aviation on behalf of the Government. In some instances, and this is clearly one of them, we cannot be wholly motivated and guided by monetary costs. Advice of this nature, I believe, transcends the boundaries of a couple of thousand dollars. Certainly, I do not think that the country or the Parliament would be worse off if we had to expend a reasonable amount of money to procure the services of an expert.

What we are talking about here in having a set of Standing Orders which is sensible, lucid and agreeable, is a matter which is not only going to serve the present Members of this honourable House, but future members inasmuch as the present Standing Orders that we have which go back to the 1970s and beyond.

So I think that this is a clear case where we have to set aside the financial costs and look at efficiency and expediency. While I am on that I might draw reference to our Standing Order 70(1) which allows the Committee to send for these kinds of people who we need to provide expert advice.

There are a few points that I would like to mention before I introduce a new dimension into the debate. I would like to pick up on a couple of comments made by the Minister of Education and Aviation.

I got the impression from his debate that he was concerned with the business of the rights of the Opposition. From the tone of his argument I would have to ask if he is advocating curtailing these rights. He dwelt upon (as he has frequently when the occasion presents itself) the notion that the Opposition takes an inordinate amount of Government's time asking unnecessary questions. Well, I might point out that it is only in the mind of the Minister for Education and Aviation.

I believe that those of us who term ourselves "Opposition" (the two of us), for the most part are performing a vitally important role in the Parliament. In the Westminster system we are an absolute necessity. I could not understand what inference the Minister was drawing when he spoke about hypocrisy. I might remind him, Madam Speaker, that when we were seven in the last Parliament we constantly bombarded a government which sometimes had a majority of only one (and I say sometimes) with at least three questions—substantive questions—every day. Multiply that by seven then add the number of supplementary questions and one would see that the situation faced by the Government now is far more conducive, as compared to the government operating then.

Madam Speaker, I want to say this because we so often talk about the past Government. The past Government never complained. They sat day after day and took that, when they could have changed the Standing Orders too! So I want to highlight, that if the Minister for Education and Aviation thinks his Government is in a bad position, reflect on the past and see what kind of predicament they were in. They just wanted to handle the money, but they were not concerned about the questions so much.

Madam Speaker, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town touched on a good point and I would like to take that a little farther. We need to get into the Review of the Standing Orders if, for no other reason... and I noticed that from time to time recently, some Honourable Members have taken to challenging the rulings of the Chair. It is my understanding that the rulings of the Chair are sacred and sacrosanct. So I am glad that Members have accepted this Review because if for no other reason, we can get an understanding of the position of the Speaker and we can develop a decorum and the respect for this position that sometimes escapes us now on some occasions.

Madam Speaker, there was much in what the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture said which I can agree with. I do not need to elaborate on that except to mention some points he raised to do with the position of the press which give me concern. It is my understanding that the press is not bound to be fair as they are bound to be accurate. I contend that fairness is a relative condition; for what is fair to you might not be fair to me and what is fair to me might not be fair to you. Responsibility has to do with accuracy and if they report what is accurate that is all we can demand of them.

I would also bring to the attention of Honourable Members of the House that over 200 years ago an editor for the Times remarked that the role of the press is not to influence the people on behalf of the Government, but to influence the Government on behalf of the people. So it is my contention that we will always, irrespective of which side we are on because the Opposition does not necessarily have any more friends, powerful friends in the press than the Government has. So the role of the press is to call it...

Mr. Roy Boddén: Madam Speaker, I might really call on the assistance of the Chair to check the Government. It seems the Government is spying on the Opposition. [Members' laughter]

As I was saying, Madam Speaker, I believe that the press must be accurate. But it is my contention that to expect them to be fair is a relative term. Fair according to whom? I notice that when the press is favourable to the Government, the Government says that the press is a darling, but when the press takes a line that looks a little bit like the Opposition is doing a good job the Government is quick to cry foul. In any case the new dimension that I want to bring in is this: While we are reviewing the Standing Orders we might also consider reviewing the Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law. There are some sections of this Law that I believe are antiquated. For example, under the section `Offences relating to admittance of the Assembly. It talks about a penalty not exceeding $50. I think that we need to review that. On other offences it mentions in section 18(1)(a) whoever disobeys an order made by the Assembly or a committee... it talks about a penalty not exceeding $100. I think it would be wise if at all practical, legal and constitutional when we are reviewing the Standing Orders, to also review the Immunities, Powers and Privileges Law. I believe that is all that I need to add since the Leader of the Opposition made his point when he spoke. The Government now with their new tactic of jokes neutralised whatever else I was going to say. I will take my seat.

[Laughter]

The Speaker: If no one else wishes to debate, I will ask the Mover of the Motion if he would like to exercise his right of reply. I will indicate that I will call for the luncheon suspension at 12.45 p.m.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

First of all I would like to say that I am pleased to see that the Government supports this Motion for a review of the Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly. I think in the overall debate of Members it has been recognised that the Standing Orders have been standing long enough to be reviewed.

It has also been recognised that the many amendments which have been made to the Standing Orders show that it is necessary to bring them in line with the times. Indeed, in some instances, with the thinking of the Government of the day.

The seriousness of Standing Orders cannot be over-emphasised. Without the Standing Orders this Legislature (and any legislature), would be in a state of chaos. It is because there are Standing Orders, such as ours we are able to conduct the business of Government from a legislative point of view within reason and with good order and temper.

I wish to reply to points raised by the Minister for Education and Aviation. The first is that I think we are absolutely thinking incorrectly that we should not want to have someone with expertise in the business of parliamentary democracy on Standing Orders advise us. We should not propose to be capable of simply sitting down by ourselves to review the Standing Orders, as seems to be the view of the Government by what was said by the Minister for Education and Aviation.

I am not suggesting that it is not possible for us to know of various things under the Standing Orders that need changing, such as quorums (which need to be changed), and even reference to Speaker versus Presiding Officer or President. These are all standard things, but there are undoubtedly new thoughts and concepts involved regarding Standing Orders within the Commonwealth parliaments where we will need the advice of someone with the expertise in that field. I am certainly not about to recognise the Minister for Education and Aviation (although he is a whiz kid in law, so he tells me) as being the ultimate authority when it comes to examining these Standing Orders.

Madam Speaker, we do need the advice of persons who are capable of doing so. The person who I suggested from Barbados, is the Clerk of the Barbados Parliament, Mr. George Brancker. He is recognised in this region as someone with great expertise. I understand he has been called in to advise the governments of various countries, including Africa. He is not just limited to the views here on the Caribbean scene. I understand also (as was reported by the Speaker of this parliament in a report) that he was quite instrumental in coming up with draft Standing Orders for the Caribbean region which was presented at the Clerks and Speakers Conference in Dominica—where an attempt is being made for uniformity within certain areas such as debates, motions and questions.

What is hoped for is that various parliaments in the Caribbean will send forward their recommendations so that there could be a generalisation on particular areas of the Standing Orders. It is very important, Madam Speaker. Again, we could look for assistance from the House of Commons if needs be. But, certainly, we should have the ability to have advisors who are up-to-date with current thoughts and practices on Standing Orders within Commonwealth Parliaments open to us.

The Minister for Education and Aviation spoke about criticism by me, regarding the suspension of Standing Orders. I must criticise it, for it has become the order of the day during the time of the present Government. We had Standing Orders suspended here the other day during the time of debate on the Budget: In three minutes the Government railroaded through [the House] by an amendment, the Marriage Law which makes it now possible for a couple from Timbuktu to walk off a cruise ship on to the terra firma of the Cayman Islands and be married because they hold cards that were given to them by our immigration.

The Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture also spoke about the Government not suspending Standing Orders on any important issues. Madam Speaker, towards the end of last year, the Government in three minutes suspended the Standing Orders to make major amendments to the Traffic Law (as to what changes should be made; also to the Customs Law (to give Executive Council the power to decide what should be imported into the Cayman Islands). This was in the Law prior to that.

And they spoke about not suspending the Standing Orders and suspending them to deal with major things? That has to be a joke! Certainly, when one speaks of hypocrisy, Madam Speaker, that is really quite incredible, because no one jumps to criticise another person of being a hypocrite quicker than someone who is a hypocrite.

Madam Speaker, we always hear the Minister for Education and Aviation speaking about defending the rights of people; he particularly likes to think about defending the rights of children. There is no country on the face of this earth greater at defending the rights of people than a country which gives them their rights through a Bill of Rights. That Member, Madam Speaker, is the one who took out from the new Draft Constitution the section dealing with the Right of Conscience. The United Kingdom would not accept that, they could not accept that. It would have been something utterly objectionable from the world's point of view. He took the whole Bill of Rights out of the Constitution. And he talks about defending the rights of people?

Madam Speaker, one's actions speak [louder] than words. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." We know the Father wants us to treat each other properly and a Bill of Rights will see to that.

The Speaker: On that note may we now have a suspension until 2.30 p.m.?

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.33 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, when we took the suspension I was replying to comments made by the Minister for Education and Aviation. He was making much of the fact that in presenting the Motion, I commented on the Government suspending the Standing Orders too frequently. I showed that on major matters, such as the amendment to the Customs Law and the Traffic Law which took away the authority from the Law and gave it to the Members of Executive Council (under regulations) they suspended the Standing Orders.

Madam Speaker, for a long time the Minister for Education and Aviation has been harping on the point of Opposition Members asking questions in this House. Under the British parliamentary system this is an integral and vital part of the parliamentary process. In fact, it is quite unique, for it does not obtain similarly in other jurisdictions, I am reliably told—except those of the Commonwealth that have adopted the British style of parliamentary process.

I would like to quote from a book called: How Parliament Works by Paul Silk. On page 181 under the caption "What Are Questions", it reads: "ERSKINE MAY tells us that the purpose of a question is to obtain information or to press for action. As has already been clear, the people who have the information and the ability to act on it are Government ministers, and it is they who have to answer questions."

It goes on to say, and I quote: "Many government supporters might like to ask questions of the leaders of opposition parties, but they cannot do so by means of the parliamentary question system. Questions then are part of the process by which the Government is held to account. They are one of the best known, but misunderstood features of the House of Commons and it is on procedures of this House that we will concentrate."

Madam Speaker, this is text which is specially written on how parliament works and that is what it says in the very beginning of the chapter dealing with questions. On page 182 it reads: "Ministers are responsible to parliament only for justifying their own policy, not for attacking the policy of the Opposition."

That is quite natural for it is the government executive who has control of the business of Government on a day-to-day basis. I seriously wonder if the Minister for Education and Aviation would rather see no questions whatsoever asked in the House. If that is the case then I challenge him to bring a Motion to this House that questions should not be a part of the process. [Members' laughter] He should be bold enough to do that. Who is he? And how dare him talk about wasting the time of the House during Question Time? During the past several weeks since we have been in this meeting, if we look at the reports in the newspapers we will see (and the public at large would see) information that we did not know and would never have known had no questions been asked.

I do not apologise in any way for the fact that there has been, according to the Minister for the for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, something like 171 questions asked in the House in the past year. The answers that were given were vital information and the public should have known. Time is not wasted when Ministers must take time to answer them.

The Minister for Education and Aviation said that every day the Government suspends the Standing Orders to allow questions to be asked. That is an untruth! There has been no questions for the past week or more. On the average there are about nine questions per day, and those nine questions do not take the one hour that is dedicated to Question Time each morning.

On the occasions when the Standing Orders are suspended to allow questions that are on the Order Paper to be completed, it is because of Government Ministers making numerous statements that take up the time during that particular hour. That is the main cause of it.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Are we not supposed to make statements or what?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, there are rules of this House and there is an [established] process in this House. If we fail to recognise that process which has evolved over centuries under this system, then we fail in giving full recognition to parliamentary democracy under the British system that we claim to have.

Slapping the Government in the face is what the Minister for Education and Aviation termed asking questions. Well the Government often needs to be slapped in the face because of some of its policies and some of its actions. Through questions we can discover what Government is doing, or let it stand to defend its policies and the public hears the deeper reasoning behind what has been done.

The Government's hand is not feeding any of us who asks questions. The Minister for Education and Aviation should try and understand that. The Government's hand is not feeding us. We are performing a vital duty under the system of this House by being the opposition.

Madam Speaker, I posture the suggestion that if it were not for me, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, and (to a lesser extent) the Fourth Elected Member for George Town—if it were not for us asking questions or rising to debate, the business of this House would be finished in one day flat.

The Government has an overwhelming majority and they never fail to remind the minuscule Opposition about that. But would it be good democracy if that majority simply did everything they want to do—the way they want to—and in the time they want to do it? I say no.

The Minister for Education and Aviation is quite right on one thing, however, and that is the point I made when I moved this Motion for the review of the Standing Orders: A two-man Opposition cannot waive the Standing Orders for it takes the majority to do it. The Government that has such a large majority is quite right when its Minister says it is not within the ability of two members to do so. At best we can hope to move a Motion and have it seconded. The majority does not lie with the Opposition, but opposition in a democracy is vital. It seems a pity that the Minister for Education and Aviation could not take a broader look at the whole process of which he is a part.

The Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture spoke about the Opposition having certain privileges under Standing Orders 11 and 12. Now anyone hearing this debate might agree with him, not even knowing what he is speaking about and believe what he has said to be so. However, these two Standing Orders deal with special instances which might arise in the House and these are not the Standing Orders which relate to motions as the general concept goes—the five days' notice to which I referred earlier. Reference was also made to the fact that the Opposition can use Standing Order 24(9) subsection (viii) or the Government to have its say. But the Government must be given the opportunity of answering properly.

The Opposition has not attempted in any way to see the Government not answer questions properly. There was a motion for the adjournment to discuss a matter of urgent public interest last week and, indeed, the Chair ruled (although it was raised in the morning) that it would be at 4 o'clock when the Government would be called upon to speak. Indeed, the Chair also guillotined the time that was allowed for it—as is the practice within the British system. So those persons who wished to speak had the opportunity of doing so and the Government had the opportunity also of replying in proper time.

Madam Speaker, I do not hope for one minute for the Standing Orders to fall victim to what the Minister for Community Development called the large mandate given to the Government of the day to carry forward Government's policy. The Review of the Standing Orders should be given all the time necessary to properly examine the orders and to get the proper advice available to the Committee.

The Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture also spoke about Motion No. 3/90 and that I merely glossed over it—mentioned it in passing. He took the opportunity to pat the Government on the back for having brought back the Finance Committee to what it was before. I was one of the chief persons in this Legislature between 1990 and 1992 who fought tooth and nail, the issue on the change of the Finance Committee. I demonstrated with the people on it. I made representation to the Governor who was also the President. I wrote to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. And I was one of the Legislators who went to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office to make representation on it. So for the Minister to attempt to give any impression that he championed that cause any further than I, is absolutely inaccurate. He was talking about fairness that was absolutely unfair.

Madam Speaker, in the confirmed Minutes of the Constitutional Order (the Select Committee thereon), on page 5 it reads: "Mr. Gilbert McLean advocated that the Finance Committee comprised only of Elected Members of the Legislative Assembly with the Financial Secretary as Chairman, who shall have a casting vote; and that it be entrenched in the Constitution. He noted that it was his opinion that it is the majority of the view of the public that the Committee be so comprised." [Report of the S.C. on the (Constitutional) Order, 1972]

On the next page, I also read: "Mr. Gilbert McLean noted the issue related to the fundamental principle of freedom, and that the issues of the "right to vote" and the "right to speak" should not be abridged. The finances of the country, he suggested, should only be spent by the Elected Members. The issue should not be addressed to "who likes who", he intimated. Civil Servants should not be involved in the decision-making of expenditure because they spend the money. Elected Members of Executive Council, he pointed out, do not sign payment vouchers as do Official Members."

Madam Speaker, I think that is sufficient to show that on the question of Motion No. 3/90 I was very much in favour of seeing that reinstated in the Standing Orders the way it was, also it to be entrenched in the Constitution which we were reviewing at the time.

The press keeps getting the hottest end of the stick and the Member for Community Development suggested that the Standing Orders should be virtually written around reporters and what they report. Well he should know (and I am sure he does) that reporters will report. But the rules of the House are the rules of the House and the Standing Orders of the House only extend to reporters to the extent of how they conduct themselves within the House or whether they can be required by the Chair to leave the premises of the House. But if he wishes to somehow bring the reporters who visit here closer into, or under, the Standing Orders of the House, perhaps he might choose to do what is done in the House of Commons as is shown in Erskine May, on page 390, under the caption 'Other Registers' which reads: "Following appropriate recommendations from the Select Committee on Members' Interests, the House resolved on 17 December 1985, that: (1) those holding permanent passes as lobby journalists, as journalists accredited to the Parliamentary Press Gallery or for parliamentary broadcasting be required to register not only the employment for which they had received their pass, but also any other paid occupation or employment where their privileged access to parliament is relevant;"

If he had taken the time to research Erskine May he might have found that that particular section would have met with what he was talking about. I will say, I would try to limit what he said to that time of consideration rather than any kind of censorship of the press. The only thing that is required of persons who report on what is said and done in parliament is that they report it accurately.

There was an instance in 1990, if I remember correctly, when one newspaper had to pay a former Minister of Government $19,000. They did not hesitate to pay him because it had inaccurately reported what had been said. So once the press reports accurately what is said here, then they are free to report on the business of the Legislative Assembly. We all hope, being politicians, that they would tend to give us a good, fair coverage. But that is something we all hope for. There is no obligation on the part of the press and, certainly, I have yet to call any reporter in this country and lambast them, as I understand does happen in some instances from one Elected Member of this House.

The press, perhaps, might be said by some (certainly I think that is the case myself), publishes too much of the bad news. It should publish more of the good news. But that is not necessarily the way the press functions. Here, and elsewhere, catchy headlines and bad news seem to grab the attention of the public more than the good news. Since we live in a world of good and bad, I guess the best we can hope for is that a balance is struck by the press.

I do not know of any power to sanction being given to the Speaker, except to clear the gallery, remove the press when it is felt necessary, and to deal with leaks of information that should not have been released at a particular time from a committee of the House or otherwise. I certainly would not want to see the post of the Speaker encumbered to the extent of sanctioning the press where any government might think it has not been fairly written on in the press.

Madam Speaker, I have replied to the points which I noted were raised by the two Ministers of Government. I would say that I am very happy that the Government has chosen to accept the Motion to Review the Standing Orders. Obviously it is something that needs to be done and we should have the information which is available to us from experts in the field. Experts who can advise us on the most current thoughts and changes in Standing Orders under our system.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town referred to what he understood as the concept behind the Motion for dealing with this matter. He said that it was his understanding that it was not solely a matter for the Standing Orders Committee which is set down under section 75. He is quite right. I, as the Mover—and certainly I speak for the Seconder—see this particular exercise as more than just the involvement of what is known as the Standing Orders Committee. The Standing Orders Committee consists of the whole House with the First Official Member as Chairman. In this particular instance the select committee [recommended] by this Motion is one which would allow the involvement of all Members of this House in the process. But as I intimated earlier in presenting the Motion, I believe the House should invite the Speaker to preside in this case as Chairman.

Madam Speaker, as I indicated earlier, when the question had been put on this matter, I would like to move a Motion under Standing Order 24(9)(ii). I would so crave the indulgence of the Chair on this particular matter. The Government has accepted the Motion and the Motion is now before the House.

I wish to thank the Government for so doing and I trust that we can update the Standing Orders of this House to the extent they need to be updated which will carry us forward for another several years before change might be necessary again. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: First of all I should put the question on the amendment as moved by the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation. In accordance with Standing Orders 25(1) and (2), he proposed the following amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 30/94, by the deletion of the words "and seek the advice and assistance of an experienced parliamentarian as was done in the past." Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 30/94 PASSED.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question that Private Member's Motion No. 30/94, which will now read: "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House approves a review of the Standing ..."

Honourable Members, I am standing to put the question, please.

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House approves a review of the Standing Orders for the purpose of updating them as necessary and in light of modern practices and procedures of the House of Commons and other Commonwealth parliaments." Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion as amended has been duly passed.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 30/94, AS AMENDED PASSED BY MAJORITY.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

MOTION WITHOUT NOTICE
Standing Order 24(9)(ii)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wish to move a Motion under Standing Order 24(9)(ii) which reads: "... motions may be made without notice" — and in this case I would like to move that: This matter be referred to a special select committee comprised of all Members of the House and to invite the Speaker to chair the Committee.

The Speaker: Is that Motion seconded?

Mr. Roy Boddén: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Under Standing Order 24(9)(ii), the Motion is made by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman that a special Select Committee be appointed comprising all Members of the House and that the Speaker be invited to chair this Committee. It has been duly moved and seconded and is now open for debate.

The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, as I understand... I am sorry.

The Speaker: If the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has moved a Motion, he has the right to speak to it.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Yes. He did not appear to be getting up.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I moved this Motion as I believe it is an occasion when this House should seek to have the guidance and the chairmanship of the Speaker. This is not uncommon in many territories and I note that in Trinidad and Tobago, Barbados, Jamaica, St. Lucia, among others, the Speaker does indeed chair the Standing Orders Committee. Particularly, in this case when we are reviewing all of the Standing Orders, Madam Speaker, it is very necessary.

It does not exclude any Member of this House from being a Member thereof, but it does include the Speaker—you, Madam Speaker. As you are well-versed with the Standing Orders of this parliament having been a moving figure in their creation, your personal interest and your knowledge of the Standing Orders could be well used.

Madam Speaker, that is my recommendation to this House. It could never hurt the process. In fact, I believe it would greatly help and it would still leave the opportunity of inviting other persons. There is a Standing Order which allows committees to invite persons who might have particular expertise to appear before it if it is considered necessary.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Before the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture speaks, I would ask the Deputy Speaker to take the Chair.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would not refuse to take it, but I was about to say—and I failed to catch your eye—that since the main Motion has been amended to delete the section whereby we would invite a knowledgeable person to be a part of this Committee (that is, a knowledgeable person from outside), I think it is absolutely necessary that we include the Speaker of this House as a Member of the Committee.

If you do not care to take the Chair and it is the will of the House, I will do it. But I would certainly like to see your presence as part of the Committee.

The Speaker: I may say that the Speaker is never a member of a Committee. It is a custom that the Speaker is never a member of a Committee. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, if you have finished your debate would you please take the Chair while this matter is being discussed?

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: I would take the Chair, if you...do you mean now?

The Speaker: Yes. Thank you.

(3.12 PM)

[(Mr. G. Haig Bodden, Deputy Speaker, in the Chair)]

The Deputy Speaker: Please be seated.

The question we are deciding upon is whether the Speaker should be invited to chair the committee to deal with the review of the Standing Orders and also whether the Standing Orders should be referred to a Select Committee.

The matter is open for debate. I recognise the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I am happy to see you in the Chair. I wish, however, that you had come under other circumstances. I cannot agree with the Resolution before the House. First of all, Standing Orders are specific as to who chairs that committee. Standing Order 75(2) says: "The Standing Orders Committee shall consist of the whole House with the First Official Member as Chairman."

I do not believe that we should tie down... I agree, Mr. Speaker, with the Third Member for Bodden Town who said that since we have all agreed not to invite anyone from the outside, we should leave the Speaker so that she can be called in to give assistance to the Committee rather than tying her down as a chairman. The Standing Orders dealing with select committees gives us authority to invite witnesses and I believe she would be the most appropriate witness. Not to say that she could not do the job, but I believe if we tie her down as the chairman it would not work well.

I am not going to agree to it, because certainly when I said in my debate on the substantive Motion that I did not agree with bringing someone in from outside, I certainly had in mind that we could invite the Speaker to come and give directions and assist us with what can be done as far as the Committee is concerned. That is where I stand and I believe that is the best thing for the House to do.

The Deputy Speaker: The Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I reiterate what the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture said earlier. It is very good to see you in the seat and also to be able to address you on this matter.

I think there is a legal difficulty with what the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has attempted to put forward. It seems clear to me from section 32(2) of the Constitution that we can have a Speaker who is a Member of the House and a Speaker who is not a Member of the House. Indeed, if one looks at section 20 it will be seen that the tenure of office of Members is dealt with totally separate from the tenure of office of Speaker. The Constitution is geared so that we can have a Member like yourself, who is the Deputy Speaker of the House and a person who is not a member of the House as a Speaker. Madam Speaker, I think, falls into the category of not being a member of the House.

Having said that, Mr. Speaker, and throughout I think it is clear on that. If we look at Standing Order 69(1) it states: "The House may appoint any of its Members to be Members of a select committee..." and it goes on to say: "(2) The Presiding Officer may nominate the Chairman of a select committee from among its own members...."

I think there is wisdom in these provisions of the Constitution and of the Standing Orders because it would indeed be strange if a Presiding Officer, as Madam Speaker mentioned a bit earlier, suddenly found herself as a member of a committee. If the Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman's interpretation is correct, she would have to be a member to be a chairman of the committee. Obviously, because Standing Order 69(2) says that: "The Presiding Officer may nominate the Chairman of a select committee from among its own Members;". So she would have to be a member before she became a Chairman of the committee. Obviously, anyone as a Chairman has to be a member under the Standing Orders.

I believe that the Standing Orders are wise in this respect because it could cause a Speaker to be in a compromising position at times. Therefore, a Speaker is never a member of a select committee: and thus if never a member, can never be a chairman of a select committee. We cannot have a Chairman of a select committee who is not a member of a select committee. Otherwise, we could really bring in anybody from the outside to chair the meetings of the committees.

I think the way for the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to achieve this, would be to, at a later stage, ask the Honourable Speaker for her input, and whatever discussion needs to be taken in an informal manner. Indeed, this has to be the way that we would go. Otherwise, Madam Speaker would come back here and sit as Chairman of this House on what could be a motion to debate the Standing Orders over which she is presiding.

I think there is wisdom in the Standing Orders. What I am saying is that I think the way to achieve this, Mr. Speaker, is for this matter to be dealt with informally. It will avoid any conflict as we now see here today, for example, or any compromise, and it will preserve the independence of the speakership in the House.

What I am offering to the Honourable Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is that the way, I think, to achieve what he wishes to achieve is through informal discussions. He should not put Madam Speaker in the precarious position such as the one she just found herself in.

For the first time since I have been in the House (which is now 14 years), a Presiding Officer has had to vacate the Chair and hand it over to a Deputy Speaker because a matter that has come before the House is a matter upon which she should not preside. I think what the Honourable Member should do is withdraw the part of his Motion which relates to Madam Speaker being a committee member and Chairman and we can deal with it in another way.

I have no problem in supporting the Motion going into a select committee. It would go in the committee and I think we can achieve everything in this way. So I offer as a solution to getting the very valuable input (and I point that out) the very valuable and knowledgeable input from Madam Speaker, but ensuring that he does not create history again as he has just done by having Madam Speaker vacate the Chair and having to put the Deputy therein.

If he would do that, then I believe that--- At least the motion would have my support to go into a select committee to have full consultation in an informal way with Madam Speaker. Once again, Mr. Speaker, it is good to see you in the Chair and I assure you that my aim will always be, as with all Speakers and Presiding Officers of this House over the past 14 years, has been to assist the Chair. I appreciate having the right to address you on what is really a technical point, sir. Thank you.

The Deputy Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I was first exposed to the role of a Speaker during my visit to Ottawa back in 1989 or 1990. As a matter of fact while I was there, I spoke to the Speaker of the House as to what the role of the Speaker should be. It is a little different from the way it is here in that our Speaker is appointed; their Speaker is elected. But the Speaker's position is a very important one. It is one that has to remain mutual at all times regardless of party affiliation. I think we should go ahead, according to the rules of the Standing Orders, which says the Chairman of a Select Committee on Standing Orders should be the First Official Member.

I also support the idea of bringing in Madam Speaker as a witness or inviting her to offer whatever comments she might have regarding the necessary changes, because she was very instrumental while serving as Clerk of the Legislative Assembly, in helping to create the Standing Orders we now have. So, Mr. Speaker, I believe that the best course to go would be to follow the existing Standing Orders rather than moving in the direction as proposed by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Deputy Speaker: If no other Member wishes to debate, I call upon the Mover of the Motion to close the debate.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I listened to the argument put forward by the Minister for Education and Aviation and I must say that I do not agree with his reasoning. In section 31A(1) of the Constitution it says: "(1) At the first sitting of the Legislative Assembly after a general election and as soon as practical after a vacancy occurs in the relevant office otherwise than on a dissolution of the Assembly, the Elected Members of the Assembly shall elect— (a) a Speaker from among the Elected Members of the Assembly, or persons qualified to be Elected Members of the Assembly, other than members of the Executive Council;"

In 1992, the House did the latter where it elected a Speaker from among persons qualified to be elected a Member of the Legislative Assembly. So we have a Speaker. There is also a provision in (b) that "a Deputy Speaker from among the Elected Members of the Assembly other than Ministers." It is only in subsection (b) that it is specific that the election must be of Elected Members.

Mr. Speaker, as we have a Speaker, the Speaker presides over the Legislative Assembly and is not excluded in the Standing Orders or the Constitution from being the Presiding Officer over a Select Committee. A Select Committee set up to specially deal with a particular matter, I see nothing which precludes the Speaker.

I also note that under Standing Order 69(2) it says: "The Presiding Officer may nominate the Chairman of a select committee from among its own Members;..." It does not say that the Speaker shall and if the Speaker does not then the committee or the committees will elect one of its members to be chairman. Under Standing Order 24(9)(ii) I moved that the matter of the Review of the Standing Orders be referred to a special Select Committee for that purpose and invites the Speaker to be the chairman thereof.

Mr. Speaker, I see nothing legally that bars the Speaker, if the Speaker so accepts. I do not for one minute think that we would be creating any illegality. I think all Members have admitted that considerable expertise lies within the Speaker. But it would be quite incorrect, in my opinion, to invite the Speaker to be a member of the committee. I can really see no reason why the Motion that has been put is so earth-shattering that it affects the business of the House to invite the Speaker so to preside. Mr. Speaker, we would also have to take into account, clearly, her independence in the position of Chairman as well. So I stand by the Motion I have so moved as before. Thank you, sir.

The Deputy Speaker: The question before the House appears to be in two parts: (1) that the matter of the review go into a Committee (that is a review of the Standing Orders); and (2) that the Speaker be appointed Chairman of that Committee. So I shall have to put the question in two parts.

The first part of the question is that this House approves a review of the Standing Orders for the purpose of updating them as necessary and in light of modern practices and procedures of the House of Commons and other Commonwealth Parliaments. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Deputy Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THAT THE STANDING ORDERS BE UPDATED AS NECESSARY TO PRACTICES AND PROCEDURES OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS AND OTHER COMMONWEALTH PARLIAMENTS.

The Deputy Speaker: The second part of the question is that the Speaker of the House be the Chairman of the Committee to deal with the Standing Orders. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Mr. Speaker, could we have a division?

The Deputy Speaker: Madam Clerk, please.

Clerk:

DIVISION NO. 24/94

NOES: 11

Hon. James M. Ryan
Hon. George A. McCarthy
Hon. W. McKeever Bush
Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson
Hon. John B. McLean
Hon. Truman M. Bodden
Hon. Anthony S. Eden
Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.
Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks
Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy
Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell

AYES: 4

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts
Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
Mr. Roy Bodden
Mrs. Edna M. Moyle

Absent:

Hon. Richard Coles
Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson

The Deputy Speaker: The result of the Division is 11 Noes and 4 Ayes. That means the question that the Speaker be a Chairman of the Standing Orders Committee has failed.

NEGATIVED BY MAJORITY: THAT THE SPEAKER BE APPOINTED CHAIRMAN OF THE COMMITTEE TO REVIEW STANDING ORDERS.

The Deputy Speaker: Therefore, I would like to confirm that the First Official Member of Government will be the Chairman of that Committee and, while I do not seek to influence the Chairman, it appears to me that the will of the House is that the Chairman be free to invite the Speaker's advice and comments.

I will suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.36 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.22 PM

(Honourable Speaker in the Chair)

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDERS
Standing Order 14(3)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, the last Private Member's Motion is certainly one which I think all of us agree will take up some time in this honourable House. And there is another small item under Government Business—the nomination of a Member to the Public Accounts Committee. I am just wondering if at this time [Members] would agree—and whether or not they agree—I would like to under Standing Order 83 move the suspension of Standing Order 14(3) so that based on the time of the afternoon we might dispose of the Government Business and start fresh in the morning.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder of the Motion?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that under Standing Order 83, Standing Order 14(3) be suspended in order that Government Business—Nomination of a Member of the Public Accounts Committee—be taken at this time. I shall put the question, those in favour please say Aye...

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker before you put the question...

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I do not mind doing business this way. It is now just about 4.28 PM...

The Speaker: Excuse me, Honourable Minister, would you allow me to put the motion and then it can be open for debate (which normally does not happen but you would have to debate the motion. That is what you are going to do. I am going to put the question.

The question is that under Standing Order 83, Standing Order 14(3) be suspended in order that Government Business, the nomination of a member to the Public Accounts Committee be taken today, Thursday, which is Private Members' Business day. The motion is open for debate.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, it seems like some manoeuvring is going on, but, as far as I am concerned, I do not mind doing it. However, it is a pleasure to see that the Opposition wants to suspend when they were just complaining about the suspension of Standing Orders. I see their manoeuvring, I have been here long enough.

The Speaker: Is there any other debate? If not I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 14(3) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE GOVERNMENT BUSINESS TO BE TAKEN ON PRIVATE MEMBERS' DAY.

NOMINATION OF A MEMBER TO THE STANDING PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE
Standing Order 69(4)

The Speaker: We now proceed to Government Business, nomination of a Member to the Public Accounts Committee, under Standing Order 69(4).

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I am pleased to move the nomination of Capt. Mabry Kirkconnell to replace the Honourable Anthony Eden on the Public Accounts Committee.

The Speaker: Is there any other nomination? [Pause] If there is no other nomination, I shall put the question that the First Elected member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman be nominated to replace the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, who tendered his resignation to the Speaker.

Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is now the new Member for the Public Accounts Committee.

AGREED: THE FIRST ELECTED MEMBER FOR CAYMAN BRAC AND LITTLE CAYMAN NOMINATED TO FILL THE VACANCY ON THE STANDING PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: It is now 4.30 PM. I understand the Honourable Minister wanted to go on until later on. Do you wish to move a motion for that? I think I indicated that I have an appointment shortly afterwards.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I believe there is nothing but confusion at this hour. I think it may be wiser to play into the hands of the Opposition and move the adjournment of this honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. I shall put the question, those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 9 DECEMBER, 1994.

FRIDAY
9 DECEMBER 1994
10.39 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Third Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

I wish to apologise to Members for the delay in calling the House to order. There were matters of procedure which had to be dealt with. We will now proceed with the Orders. Presentation of Papers and Reports, 1994 Year End Status Report on Community Development, Youth Affairs, and Culture Programmes.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

THE 1994 YEAR END STATUS REPORT FOR NEW AND ONGOING PROGRAMMES OF THE MINISTRY OF COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT YOUTH AFFAIRS AND CULTURE

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay upon the Table of this honourable House the 1994 Year End Status Report for new and ongoing programmes of Community Development, Youth Affairs and Culture.

The Speaker: So ordered. Does the Honourable Minister wish to speak thereon?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, a few weeks ago, His Excellency the Governor asked that reports of this kind be made to Executive Council. We decided that we could lay it on the Table of this honourable House. I thank you for your indulgence.

I spoke last week on the subject of sports, taking the position that sports contribute to the knitting together of the social fabric. What I hinted at, at that time was what makes this fabric to start with. What are the threads that bind? I would submit that relationships among people and most fundamentally within families and between people and their God are among the strongest of these threads. Of course, I am conscious of the fact that one of the complexities of Cayman at this point in time derives from the side-by-side existence of the very modern and high tradition.

Many could therefore say that family life is very important to society and will often follow this by saying that we have lost ground in this area. We need to recover some of what we once had. Others will argue that family can mean many things and we are past the days when the extended and even the nuclear family structure ought to be promoted; that in some respects they are in themselves unable to cope with the pressures of modern living. We must therefore expect that some persons will find their family a most intimate support network and others sometimes more professional settings.

I acknowledge that there is some truth in both positions. Yet I am bound to say that while there are necessary support networks to hold up those who fall out of the support system of the biological family, the former ought not to be seen as substitutes for the latter. No way has yet been devised to satisfactorily replace the biological role or the socialisation of human families. As far as I can see, the natural family is still best suited to do the job of properly raising a child. Children who are raised in institutions seem to do well to the extent that the institution can model itself after the family.

Much of what I have to say on programmes and projects touches on the family. We have joined this year in the international celebration of the Year of the Family. Arising out of this, we have extended the scope of the proposed UNDP study on the status of women and children in Cayman to the status of the family in the Caymanian society. I will say more about this in a little while, but I mention it now because in a way it forms the centrepiece of our planned programme efforts for 1995 and is likely to have wide repercussions in terms of future actions in the area of Community Development.

I say again the health of family life is central to the health of the community. The intended reform of the Juveniles Law, the Young Parents Programme, the Cayman Islands Marine Institute are initiatives all intimately associated with the family, either seeking simultaneously to rehabilitate situations where the family structure has failed (at least temporarily) and to build up the capacity within the affected families to better manage such situations. Again, more details on each of these areas will be presented later on in this statement.

I should also mention here the After School Programme which is intended to assist families, ensuring that their children have proper supervision and a healthy environment to go to especially in cases where private arrangements cannot be made by the families themselves. We are really promoting the management of these programmes under the auspices of the churches just as we have continued and broadened the ambit of grants to the churches to support their youth programmes. We take this approach in full conviction that the church provides the surest foundation for ethical guidance and sound character development. It is part of our larger effort to work more closely with the churches and to encourage their outreach to the community and involvement in public affairs.

A strong Christian tradition is a proud part of our heritage. But in the strictest theological sense there are other more secular aspects of our heritage of which we are justly proud. In this area of culture we find scope for activities which will help us to gain insight into ourselves and each other and to better understand and communicate our innermost feelings, thus assisting the relationships between people. In this regard the work of the National Museum, National Archives, especially the Memory Bank Project and the National Cultural Foundation may be cited.

In addition to all the positive research, displays, interactive events, workshops and so on which are already an established part of the annual calendar of cultural activities, the Cultural Foundation is in the process of developing a proposed district outreach programme in order to involve and commit more persons to educate them in the value of our heritage.

It is important that we extend the effort to better integrate our past and present in the minds of our people. This role of securing the integrity of our understanding of these matters is among the principal educational benefits of cultural activities. We also must aspire to encourage among our people the attributes of proper self expression and a heightened appreciation of truth and beauty which are all among the greatest attainments any society can hope for.

I am not able at this time to do justice to the wide range of good works being undertaken daily through our churches, our social and cultural agencies, both private and public. I am able to say a huge thank you to all those who contribute to these works, both paid and unpaid.

Much more will be left unmentioned than will be named in this status report. This is because it is exactly that. It is certainly not my intention to slight any positive contribution, but at this stage merely to report to the public on a few undertakings initiated by this Ministry and this Government. The Status Report is as follows:

After School Programme: The purpose of this programme is to promote dignity, integrity and self respect to increase cultural awareness and community spirit to provide tutoring to increase academic levels, promotion of positive peer interaction, activities involved in sharing co-operation and social communication. Activities include: academics, sports, debates, arts and crafts, performing arts, field trips and culinary skills. So far five churches have come forward to run such a programme. The breakdown is as follows:

- ◆ West Bay: 1 programme at John Gray Memorial Church, and another one should start shortly at the Boatswain Bay Presbyterian Church.
- ◆ George Town: 3 programmes—Elmslie United, New Rehoboth and Faith Pentecostal Church.
- ◆ Cayman Brac: 1 programme—Cotton Tree Bay Church of God.

It is intended that there will initially be two programmes in West Bay, two in George Town, one in each of the other districts and two in Cayman Brac giving a total of nine programmes. Pre-school activities are also offered by a number of primary schools and a couple of pre-schools. There has been one programme specifically set up for this purpose which is now being supported. We will intensify our efforts to get more programmes started and seek more volunteers under the time release programme as we believe these programmes are crucial for the welfare of our youth.

The hours between 3.00 and 6.00 p.m. are the times when children are left unsupervised in most instances. It is during this time that wholesome activities are provided under the auspices of these programmes. Generally the benefits are dual. They develop better care of young people and assist parents by assuring that their children are properly cared for in their absence when children are prone to get into problems. Ten persons, including civil servants, volunteered for the time release programme and, as I said, this programme has started.

Community Workers: Job descriptions have been reviewed and advertisements will take place before the end of the year. These persons will be based in the districts and part of the duties will be to act as a liaison between the Social Service Department and the residents and CODACS and other voluntary agencies in the social sector. There will be three officers: one each for West Bay and George Town, and one to service Bodden Town, East End and North Side, which will be employed early in the new year. Budgetary measures for 1996 will hopefully include provision for two more officers to further supplement the coverage of these officers' work.

In addition to local training and orientation, the Department of Social Services hopes to enlist the services of a Social Welfare Department in the region with experience in community development work which could help to train the officers and also provide some relevant orientation for the other staff of the Social Services Department.

The Community Development Action Committees, or CODACS as they are known, are set up through a district co-ordinator who is paid from the Ministry. There are currently CODACS in every district except George Town. These groups are quite active and in July were instrumental in a successful district night focusing on the year of the family and most recently participated in Drug Free Week activities and special district functions.

In the coming year the Ministry, through the Social Services Department, intends to use the CODAC Committees to assist with the promotion of Neighbourhood Awareness and Outreach programmes, for example: Best District and/or Community in each district. We intend to have a Youth Week and a National Youth Day, Family Week, similar to the one held this year and continue to promote the After School Programmes. I hope that within the coming year we will have more activities with Cayman Brac through their CODAC Committee.

I must give high praise to the CODAC groups that have been doing tremendous work in their respective districts. I believe they see the way toward pulling our communities and Islands back together and I encourage everyone to support their efforts and encourage the residents of George Town to become much more involved in their community by starting a CODAC. I hope to be able to do that later next year.

Family Court and Youth Parliament: We are currently seeking information through the Social Services Departments from other regional countries regarding the Family Court. We also hope to get this and the Youth Parliament started in the coming year, depending on the case on the former, the finding of the UNDP study on the status of the family.

Culture: The statue of the first National Hero. In August 1994, the Government, through this Ministry unveiled the Statue for Cayman's first National Hero, the Honourable James Manoah Bodden, in National Hero's Circle, formerly the Courts Building Park. This followed the declaration of the Honourable James Manoah Bodden as a National Hero and was the conclusion of a fitting ceremony to mark the occasion. There are other Caymanians who are worthy of this declaration and in the future will be considered for this prestigious award.

In early 1995, one of these identified persons will be declared, with the permission of Government. But to digress for just a moment, Madam Speaker, we know that we have a lot of good Caymanians still living, and some who have passed on, for example, Mr. Desmond Watler, Capt. Theo Bodden, who have been outstanding stalwart citizens of our community.

The Children's Choir: This Ministry is in the process of creating a National Children's Choir. It has been said that singing gives a child the opportunity to use his/her voice as an expressive instrument and is therefore a significant area of and fundamental to any nation's music and culture programme.

Through the exploration of music of their own and other people's cultures, children may gain an understanding of themselves and other people for the multicultural approach to music which enriches knowledge of the world, their own heritage and the artistic traditions of other cultures.

The National Children's Choir will be officially commissioned by His Excellency the Governor and myself on December 15th at the Harquail Theater. This event, a Christmas Concert, will mark the first official event for the National Children's Choir.

The Choir is made up of approximately 100 children from private and public schools ages 8—12. The Choir was organised by a committee. This committee consists of: Miss Stephanie Williams, Director; Mr. Courtney Perrin, Assistant Director/Conductor; Mrs. C. Bramwell, Assistant Conductor; Miss Yvonne Law, Assistant Conductor; Miss Norma Ferriman, Costumes; Mrs. Zeta May Bodden, Parent; Miss Lorna Reid, Choreography; Mrs. Fran McConvey, Music; A representative of the Ministry for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture; and a representative of the Ministry of Education and Aviation.

On October 28th, the Cayman National Cultural Foundation, in conjunction with the Jamaican Folk Singers organised a choral singing work shop for the members of the Children's National Choir. This workshop involved movement and projection. It also taught differences between various projections from the different types of cultural music.

Carib Art: In January the Cayman National Cultural Foundation will be hosting the highly regarded UNESCO "Carib Art Exhibition". This exhibition will feature 137 pieces of work, of which, five will be by local artists.

This Ministry is not only responsible, through the Cayman National Cultural Foundation, for hosting the exhibition, but will also contribute substantially in financial terms. It is hoped this activity will generate further interest in our own heritage, and the power and efficacy of art as a teaching and learning tool.

This exhibition is also given financial assistance by the Ministry of Education and Aviation and the Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Planning.

The Archives: The Archives recent accomplishment, the release of the book, "32 Storm", was met with an enthusiastic response, especially from the people of Cayman Brac. In 1995, the Archives will be extending its storage facilities to accommodate its vast amount of material especially the growing store of Government records.

It is hoped that during 1995 significant strides will be made towards the writing of an updated and more comprehensive history of the Cayman Islands, which I have promoted for the past several years.

The Library: The rotary club of Cayman Brac recently donated to this Ministry, a new building for the establishment of the Public Library which will be fully on stream by December, that is, the Rotary Club of Cayman Brac. The East End Branch will also undergo a face lift and expansion as it will be transferred to its new home the East End Town Hall. Plans are also underway to facilitate the expansion of the George Town public Library. In other districts, for instance, North Side, when their new Civic Centre comes on stream, we hope to expand the Town Hall there to the District Library.

The Museum: The Museum's major project for 1995 will be the acquisition of a new laboratory and artifacts storage and workshop facilities. It will continue to research and promote Caymanian Heritage through its exhibitions and other special events. It expects in 1995 to be host to the Museum Association of the Caribbean Executive Annual General Meeting.

Social Services: The review of the Juveniles Law, 1990, Bill for Children's Law, 1995 and new Justice Law, 1995. The Legal Draftsman has drafted two Bills in response to the Ministers, and to my instructions for a reform of the Civil and Criminal Law pertaining to children. Instructions for these were contained in the Juveniles Law review prepared by the Department of Social Services. Much input was also obtained during meetings with the Department of Social Services, my Ministry and, of course, input from other areas such as the Justices' Association.

The Bill for the Children's Law, 1995, reforms the Civil Law relating to children. It gives effect to the Government's commitment to undertake a fundamental reform of the civil law relating to children. It is the result of a comprehensive review of the need for legislation to protect children and to promote their welfare. The Bill is the partner of the Youth Justice Bill which implements a reform of the Criminal Law relating to young persons. It is influenced by legislation in the United Kingdom and a number of the Commonwealth and American jurisdictions.

The latter Bill is based on the relevant parts of the Juveniles Law, 1990, 1975 and 1964, and the Joint Trials Law of 1976. It is intended to solve the problems with the trial and sentencing of young persons under the 1990 Law. These Bills which relate to children are of great importance to these Islands.

It is the view of the Minister, the Department of Social Services and the Legal Draftsman that they must be studied by those in Government and the Courts who will be responsible for interpreting and administering the proposed new laws. This study is currently underway.

The Legal Draftsman on the request of the Department of Social Services and the Ministry will compile a Cayman's Guide to the Bills which can be used during public consultation. After their passage through the Legislative Assembly, social workers, crown counsels, justices of the peace and all those who will administer the law, the need to undergo training with respect to their implementation these Bills are intended to be presented to the Legislative Assembly at its February sitting.

The Young Parents Programme: The Young Parents' Programme was started on July 11th of this year. It will be officially opened in January 1995, and the centre, which is located on North Church Street, will be named after Mrs. Joyce Hilton. It will be called the Joyce Hilton Centre. Mrs. Hilton was a veteran—and perhaps still is—in the field of Social Work who throughout her distinguished career was an advocate for parents and children and a stable family life.

The need for such a programme grew out of an awareness that the incidence of unplanned pregnancies among many teenage girls and young adult women in the Cayman Islands continues to leave them and their children trapped in poverty and all its accompanying problems.

The programme will cater to teens between the ages of 14 and 16 and young adults between the ages of 17 to 24. Single fathers requiring parenting skills will eventually become a part of the programme's clientele.

The main objectives of the programme are to provide the young parents who have not completed their secondary education with a chance to do so; to promote responsible parenthood; to promote financial independence within the family unit; and to reduce the incidence of teenage and unplanned pregnancies. The programme hopes to have its final product—young persons who are self-sufficient—functional members of the Caymanian society who will help to discourage other young persons who are going down this difficult road.

The Young Parents programme was developed jointly by the Department of Social Services, the Education Department, the Community College and the Public Health Section of the Public Health Services Department. Staff from all these departments contribute to the programme by teaching, lecturing or organising activities. It is solely funded by the Department of Social Services.

Social Services Office, Cayman Brac. Due to the fact that Social Services in Cayman Brac is currently housed in a cramped office building, District Administration and Social Services Department Grand Cayman agreed to convert the covered car park of the District Administration Building into offices for the Cayman Brac staff of the Social Services Department. Renovations have been completed and staff expect to occupy their new offices by early December. Efforts continue towards a closer integration with the Social Services Department in Grand Cayman.

Cayman Islands Marine Institute: In January of this year, the Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture contracted the services of an independent company, the Associated Marine Institutes of Tampa, Florida, to provide rehabilitative services to young people at Bonaventure House.

A local non-profit company, the Cayman Islands Marine Institute was established under the auspices of the parent organisation to meet the needs of Caymanian youth with severe behavioural problems. These young people were exhibiting these behavioural problems at home and in school as well as in some cases by the commission of crime. Concern had been expressed for sometime for the well-being of these individuals and their families, as well as the community at large, and the importance of the Cayman Islands remaining a relatively crime-free society and tourist destination.

The Cayman Islands Marine Institute provides 25 daytime (from 8:00 PM to 9:30 PM) places and also can offer a full residential service to six more students. The programme uses a combination of educational and vocational courses tailored to meet the needs of the individual student.

Central to the programmes approach is the emphasis on the maritime tradition of the Cayman Islands and the opportunities provided by the marine environment for employment in modern-day Cayman. Each student is expected, and often court-ordered, to follow the programme until successful completion with a three-year follow up period ensuring successful re-integration into Caymanian society.

Although this programme is new and is expected to take several years to achieve all of its targets, there are many encouraging signs coming from the first months of operation. The first students are nearing successful completion of the programme and so far every student has made measurable progress during the lifetime of the programme. Services have been offered beyond the contractual obligation to provide relevant programmes to those students referred.

The Cayman Islands Marine Institute students are active in community projects throughout the island and are frequently seen participating in community events. The CIMI Students have been involved in clean up campaigns organised by the National Trust and other groups. They have been active in after school programmes for younger children and in joint enterprises with sports clubs and churches. Advice and guidance have been rendered outside of the Institute itself to individual young people, their parents and community groups on how to manage adolescence, drug and alcohol abuse and criminal activity. Only occasionally has this led to referral to the programme itself, but when necessary this has been achieved.

Students placed in overseas programmes have received guidance from the institute as part of their rehabilitation either by the provision of counselling, or by entry into the programme.

In 1993, the crime statistics attributable to juveniles showed a considerable improvement over the previous year of 1992. This trend has continued into 1994, and is expected at year end that these statistics will start to reflect what the professionals involved have been expressing for sometime—that something can be done, and has been done, to reverse the decline in standards of behaviour.

While it may be too early to attribute these improvements to the presence of the Institute, it is clear that this positive intervention in the lives of young Caymanians will assist parents in assuming responsibility for the successful development of Cayman's greatest natural resource—its young people.

Since the establishment of the institute no delinquent young person has been sent overseas who could be adequately dealt with in the Cayman Islands. In fact, the resources previously used in the treatment of delinquent youth have been utilised for therapeutic intervention with the victims of crimes and abuse—a far more positive approach.

There are currently six individuals placed overseas. Three of them are in the category already referred to, that is, those receiving therapy as a result of their personal problems. Of the three others, it is expected that each one of them will be brought home and re-integrated into Caymanian society through the Institute, when appropriate, during the course of 1994 (the balance of this year) and 1995.

This will mean that the juveniles placed overseas in 1995 are those with specific treatment needs for whom services cannot be found in the Cayman Islands, and for those whose crimes are so serious that they warrant detention and treatment in a totally secure environment.

Although the provision of services in the Cayman Islands Marine Institute is not cheap, it does measure up as value for money when compared to the alternatives. If no services were provided to these groups, or if the previously overloaded and inadequate services were allowed to continue, the cost to the economy of the Cayman Islands in the growth of delinquent behaviour would be immense.

The cost of providing even 20 places in the United States for the worst of our youth (even if the United States would accept them, and it was felt that these services were relevant to our Caymanian youth), it would be over $2 million per year—more than twice the total cost of all the services provided by the Cayman Islands Marine Institute.

The Status of the Family in the Caymanian Society: Arising out of intensive consideration of the family during this year, the DSS will conduct a study starting in January 1995 on the status of the family in the Caymanian Society. The Department feels compelled to conduct such a survey as over the past 30 years the Islands have undergone rapid economic growth and changes which have a tremendous impact on the society as a whole.

In the absence of well-grounded analysis, the Department and the Ministry feel that it is difficult to truly know if its proposed projects and existing programmes are really addressing the cause of the problems which exist within families. Like many other Government departments, the DSS has operated for years on gut instinct. At present the concern is that in the absence of research to corroborate its feelings, the department runs the risk of not identifying or addressing the real problems. The view shared by the professional staff of the department is that in this time of increasing social ills, and demands for something to be done, it must carry out through social research and surveys which will address the true picture of the situation within the family in the Caymanian society.

Such research would need to look at the problems impacting on the family including single parent homes, caring for the elderly and disabled, financial difficulties, poor or inadequate housing, substance abuse and mental illness. This will hopefully provide the department with a more accurate picture of the family in these Islands which will lead to more informed planning and greater effectiveness in dealing with problems such as those enumerated. The survey is being sponsored by the United Nations Development Programme and a sum of $40,000 has already been approved to carry it out. The DSS has budgeted $10,000 to cover local expenses. A draft project profile has been submitted to the United Nations Development Programme.

All the Departments established 1994 programmes will continue. The DSS hopes that it will be able to move its Adult Special Needs Programme to its own facility which can also function as a home for the aged. Each day it is proving more difficult to continue using the John Gray Memorial Church Hall to accommodate the programme.

The review of the Caring Homes embarked upon in 1994 by the department to determine the proper usage of these facilities and to lay down criteria for their use will continue. Findings will be reported to the Ministry and decisions taken on future plans.

In conclusion, I should mention one last initiative, that is, the intention to employ Community Development Officers. It is our hope that these persons will assist in co-ordinating some of the now often conflicting efforts of social organizations, as well as promote greater efforts within communities to help ourselves.

With all that I have said, this is still not an exhaustive list of all the things we have worked on, which are in progress, or which are planned. Even so, I think looking at this and at previous statements made recently, it can be said that we have given a reasonable account of ourselves. But let me stress again, that the matter of Community Development, the matter of bringing our young people up to be good citizens, the matter of promoting our cultural development, are not undertakings for the Government alone. Government cannot, should not, and is not trying to do it all. People should do for themselves and for each other. We claim to be a friendly and caring society. Let us really live up to that.

Madam Speaker, I thank you for your indulgence.

- (11) Miss Hannah Carter, Accountant, Education Department (formerly Accountant for the Water Authority)

INTRODUCTION

9. The Committee offers its congratulations to the present Government for its efforts in turning around the financial position of the Cayman Islands Government for the year 1993. To appreciate the results of this financial year, it is necessary to compare these results with the financial position as was highlighted in the Public Accounts Committee's Report in 1993 as follows:

1993

Budget Surplus/Deficit	$2.395M
Realised Revenue (11.8%)	$135.3M
Recurrent Expenditure (10.6% of which CI$16.666M was for CAL)	$130.7M
Statutory	$10.151M
Capital Expenditure (all local Revenue)	$8.782M

1992

Budget Surplus/Deficit	($14.910M)
Realised Revenue	$121.019M (8%)
Recurrent Expenditure	$116.752M (14.5%)
Statutory	$7.891M
Capital Expenditure	$13.253M
(consisted of mostly borrowed funds)

OBSERVATIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

10. The Committee wishes to report and make recommendations on the following areas of the Auditor General's Report for 1993:

- (a) Overtime payments at H.M. Northward Prison (Paragraphs 6-8);
- (b) The Customs Department (Paragraphs 9—23);
- (c) Audit of Statutory Authorities and other Public Sector Bodies;
- (d) The Health Services Authority (Paragraphs 50—70); and
- (e) Staffing of the Auditor General's Office.

11. DELIBERATIONS:(a) Overtime payments at H.M. Northward Prison;

Overtime costs began to increase considerably commencing in 1989 and peaked in 1992 when $269,006 was spent. Overtime payments for 1993 amounted to $220,247. Overtime to Executive and Clerical grades has absorbed 13.5% of the Prison's annual overtime expenditure since 1989. From May 1989 to April 1994, $167,188 was paid in respect of four administrative grades. Overtime payments were noted to be concentrated on two of the four Administrative Officers who received 92.5% of the amount paid to Administrative Officers.

The Director, or his Deputy, is responsible for authorising overtime for most Senior Administrative Officers who in turn authorise overtime for junior grade staff. The Director confirmed that he was reasonably satisfied that overtime paid to those grades was actually and necessarily worked. He also acknowledged that heavy levels of overtime is not a desirable working practice.

General Orders provides that overtime should be worked in exceptional circumstances but the Director has advised that it is not operationally feasible to make more than minimal use of time in light of the present Prison situation.

The Auditor General also commented that "regular overtime working of the magnitude described in this report represents uneconomical use of resources. In addition it is doubtful whether Officers can maintain a reasonable standard of Work Performance over such prolonged periods of excessive overtime."

It is the conclusion of the Public Accounts Committee that the problem has been caused by non-adherence to proper staff schedules and has been abused especially by Administrative Staff who are aware that overtime is available and can be incurred easily.

The Committee recommends: 1) that better scheduling and deployment of staff is necessary; 2) that overtime must be kept to a minimum and incurred only in exceptional circumstances; 3) all overtime incurred must be approved by the Director. Customs Department:

(i) Container Inspections

The Collector of Customs has a long-term goal of examining 15—20% of all containers coming into the country. For 1993, container inspections amounted to approximately 6% of all containers imported from the Miami/Tampa region. The Audit Office noted that no annual performance targets for container inspection are set by the Department. It was also noted that there is no system of formal reporting by the Head of the Task Force to Customs Headquarters but that regular verbal reports are made to the Deputy Collector. No summary data of the numbers of inspections carried out by these sections are available.

The Committee notes that a number of cases of duty evasion have been highlighted in the Auditor General's Report.

It is the opinion of the Committee that the problem of duty evasions may be more widespread than the number of cases uncovered by the Customs Task Force. The Committee recognises that skilled and experienced investigators are needed to combat the problem of duty evasion and fraud and that there is a need for the training of existing staff in the area of commercial fraud.

The Committee recommends:

1. that the Customs Department be staffed with appropriate personnel to the level required to carry out the Department's objective of inspection of containers imported and to thoroughly investigate the suspected cases of duty evasion and fraud;
2. that all inspections are properly documented and these reports lodged with the Collector of Customs;
3. that a system of regular reporting sessions are scheduled between the Head of the Task Force and the Collector of Customs in an effort to assist the Collector in monitoring the Department's objectives of the number of containers to be inspected for the year and to report on the findings of such inspections;
4. that penalties under the Customs Law be reviewed;
5. that the time limitation imposed for the prosecution of evasion of duty under section 54 of the Customs Law, 1990, should be extended;

6. that every effort be made, including legal action, to collect all outstanding funds in those cases where duty evasions have been un-covered; and
7. 7)that in the cases of duty evasion the Collector of Customs should enforce the compromised penalty of three times the duty evaded and payable on demand in an attempt to discourage this type of activity continuing in the future.

(ii) Related Party Transactions

The Audit Office has estimated that $293,623 in duty was suspected to have been evaded over an 18 months period in 1990 and 1991 by one Importer. Efforts to collect this outstanding amount in the past have been unsuccessful.

The Committee has been advised that this matter has been forwarded to the Legal Department for its guidance and advice on the necessary actions to be taken.

The Public Accounts Committee supports the actions of the Collector of Customs in this matter and strongly recommends that every effort be made to recover the outstanding revenue due to Government in this case.

(c) Audits of Statutory Authorities and Other Public Sector Bodies:

The Water Authority: (i) Overseas Medical Expenses

The Public Accounts Committee notes with concern that in 1991 the former Managing Director, Mr. Richard Beswick, took upon himself to commit the Water Authority to a liability of $106,632 to cover overseas medical expenses incurred by a cyclist who sustained serious injuries while participating in a local sporting event.

The Committee is aware that there is in place a Government policy of referral of patients for overseas medical and no one is denied the right to be referred for medical attention if it is warranted.

The Committee is also of the view that the former Managing Director exceeded his authority having committed the Water Authority for expenditure of this nature without the prior authority of the Water Authority Board.

The Committee notes and is pleased that the present Board has taken steps to put in place a health insurance plan for its employees. Under this Scheme the Authority pays the full cost of the employees' premium and 50% of the premium for employee's dependents. With this plan in place there should not be a recurrence of the incident as mentioned above.

In the opinion of the Legal Department, the Water Authority has no statutory power or authority to authorise private or overseas medical treatment. The action was taken outside the Water Authority's statutory powers and was therefore "ultra vires". The ratification of Managing Director's action by the Board of Directors was immaterial as was the Board's resolution in accepting the liability of $106,632 for overseas medical expenses in May 1993.

(ii) Sports Sponsorship

In three years, 1991—1993, a total of $43,666 has been paid to various National sports and Club organizations. Sports sponsorship was not specifically included or itemized in any of the budgets of the Authority which were approved by the Water Authority Board.

Once again the former Director exceeded his authority by granting funds to sporting organizations without the Board's authority.

It is the opinion of the Legal Department that these propositions apply with equal force to the Board assuming the liability of the overseas medical expenses and the sponsoring of sporting organizations, however worthy the intentions.

(iii) Under-Billing of Water Charges

Prior to the commencement of the Special Audit, the former Director of the Water Authority disclosed to the Board and the Auditor General the existence of systematic under-billing on two accounts. This disclosure was of considerable concern to the Audit Office since it posed the possibility of other unrecorded revenues, a situation which could lead to a qualified audit opinion on the Water Authority's 1993 Financial Statements.

The Audit Office examined records of approximately 40 customers of the Water Authority covering the three year period January 1991 to December 1993.

The result of this exercise confirmed under-billing of $2,634 on two accounts, plus under-billing of $1,880 on one other account. These irregularities occurred during August 1991 to January 1993 and were attributable to the deliberate manipulation of water meter readings by the former Director. This practice appears to have ceased completely with effect from January 1993.

What was most disturbing was for the Committee to learn that the first two accounts in the sum of $2,634 involved the former Managing Director's personal account and that of a staff member's mother. The other account for $1,880 was the water account of the former Member for Communications, Works and Agriculture, Mr. Linford Pierson. With the exception of the former Director's account, the Committee was not able to uncover any evidence to establish that the manipulation of meter readings were done with the clients' knowledge and approval.

(iv) Extension of Water Distribution System to New Sub-divisions

No formal policy has been developed to regulate financial liability for the costs of connecting new private residential developments to the water distribution system.

It was drawn to the Audit Office's attention that in one case payment of an invoice for $17,400 was waived. The developer paid $3,750 for materials by way of a deposit and an invoice for $17,400 was issued in July 1993 for the cost of installation by the contractor, Petro Servicios Limited. This invoice was subsequently cancelled in October 1993 by the former Managing Director of the Water Authority and the cost was financed from the Authority's long term borrowings. The action was not referred to the Water Authority Board.

The Audit Office noted that the justification for cancelling this invoice was said, and it is quoted, "to assist the developer to keep the cost of housing lots to a minimum in order to meet the needs of Caymanians in the middle and low income bracket". This statement however does not reflect the official policy of the Water Authority Board.

The Committee recommends:

- 1) that all Statutory Authorities should put in place specific policies regarding the commitment of such Authority to any liability or to make any donations to any charitable or social organizations without being budgeted for and approved by the Board of that Authority;
- 2) that every effort be made to recover the outstanding amounts due to the Water Authority arising from under-billings by the former Manager Director;
- 3) that every effort be made to recover the sum of $17,400 owed to the Water Authority for Water Extension fees written off by the former Managing Director;
- 4) that on conclusion of investigation and an audit being carried out by the Audit Office, the matter should be referred to the Legal Department for advice in order to recover any amounts determined as owing to the Authority and if criminal charges should be pursued;
- 5) that any future writing off of accounts be made only with the authority of the Water Authority Board;
- 6) that Statutory Authorities should discharge their duties and responsibilities to the same high standard as requested of Government Departments particularly regarding tendering of contracts.

(d) Health Services Authority:

(i) Employment of Consultants:

No formal needs assessments appear to have been developed by Management prior to initiating discussions with the Consultants, the total cost of which was established to be $534,478. In five of seven consultancies studied, no Term of Reference was ever formalised between Client and Consultant.

(ii) Authority

In only one of the seven consultancies (Software Supply) was the Board of the Health Services Authority provided with a summary of costs and a proposed work plan as part of the Authority's computerization project. In three other cases (Personnel, Materials Management and Project Management) the Board was informed that the Consultancy was underway but was not invited to approve the engagement of any of these six consultants in question.

No information concerning the Terms of Employment of any of these six consultants appear to have been provided to the Board. No provision was included in either the 1991 or the 1992 Recurrent Budgets of the Health Services Authority for any of the Consultants fees and expenses or the computerization project all of which contributed to the deficit to be reported in the 1992 Financial Statements. Consultants estimated to cost $100,000 or more should have been considered and approved by the Central Tenders Committee of Government.

However, the Committee was disturbed to note that during the Health Services Authority's two years of existence it did not develop or institute any formal Financial Regulations to ensure the regular and proper conduct of its business by management and employees, nor did it adopt Government's existing Financial Regulations framework which requires competitive tendering of all contracts of $10,000 and over. The Committee was also concerned to learn that several of these Consultants appeared to be personal acquaintances of the former Chief Medical Officer.

There was no evidence available to indicate the particular qualifications, expertise and experience of individual consultants.

(iii) Terms and conditions of Employment

Six of seven Consultants were based on hourly or daily consulting fees. Only one of these Consultants was covered by a proper contract which was based on Government's Standard Service Agreement for Overseas Officers. The Audit Office could determine no clear rationale for the consulting rates awarded. In terms of prevailing Civil Service Salaries, the rates and associated benefits may be viewed as generous.

(iv) Project Manager

Remuneration was said to be based on the Health Services Authority Consultant Rate of $331 per working day with an expected 242 paid days per annum, equating to a basic salary of $80,102 per annum. The Project Manager would in addition receive $1,500 per month Rent Allowance plus a fully expensed motor car.

The Audit Office assessed the value of salary, allowances and other benefits, but excluding the cost of overseas travel, relocation and incidental costs to be in the region of $105,000 per annum. This individual's contract was terminated after approximately five months of its two-year term. This action led to substantial termination costs and other liabilities. The Project Manager's Consultancy Agreement included that any changes to the anticipated period of work (2 years) would result in payment of either six months' salary or the remaining term of the Contract, whichever is the shorter. Normally, overseas Civil Servants on contract terms are entitled to only one month's salary in lieu of notice. This Consultancy Agreement was terminated at the end of December, 1992, following the cancellation of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital project. Termination payments totalled $48,864 including six months salary plus vacation in lieu of notice. Had the Consultant been engaged on the normal terms of one month's salary in lieu of notice, the Health Services Authority would have saved $39,058 in termination costs.

For reasons unknown to the Audit Office, the basis for payment of the Project Manager's allowance was altered so that the Health Services Authority assumed responsibility for providing accommodation at a monthly cost of up to $1,500 per month on his behalf. This Consultant also enjoyed payment of all utility bills plus deposits although his contract contained no such provisions for these benefits.

(v) Outstanding Debts

The Committee notes that the new computer system has not operated satisfactorily. A significant amount of fees for medical services were not recorded in 1992 and 1993. The Committee is concerned that over $1 Million of 1992 fee income is considered to be irrecoverable, despite efforts to issue bills on a regular basis. One major problem is that medical bills sent to General Delivery at Post Offices are not being collected by the individuals to whom they are addressed.

The Committee recommends:

- (1) that in future all contracts for works and services in excess of $100,000 should be considered and awarded by the Central Tenders Committee in keeping with the provisions of the Financial and Stores Regulations;
- (2) that the Health Department should consider employing a debt collector on a part-time basis in an effort to collect as much of these outstanding debts; and
- (3) a review of the facilities in place regarding medical records and that management takes steps to ensure that all revenue occurrences are completely and accurately recorded and clients are billed accordingly.

(e) Staffing of the Auditor General's Office

The Committee is pleased to note that the staffing deficiencies in the Audit Office has now been addressed. Three senior posts have been re-established and arrangements are in hand to have all vacant posts filled by February 1995.

OTHER MATTERS ARISING

12. The Committee wishes to comment on certain matters reported in its previous Reports or considered at previous meetings of the Committee. These matters are as follows:

(a) Purchase of the Campbell Building (24 -31)

The Committee is pleased to note that the Audit Office reviewed the acquisition and subsequent use of this facility which was purchased in February, 1992, at a total cost of $1,582,500. The total purchase price, including interest, was $222,500 in excess of the maximum price recommended by the Lands Officer.

The Ministry of Agriculture, Communication and Works has confirmed that the purchase of this building was negotiated personally by the former Member responsible, Mr. Linford Pierson, and not the Lands Officer or the Director of Lands and Survey. This is indeed contrary to the authorised policy and procedures prescribed in the "Lands Valuation, Acquisition, disposal and Exchange Guidelines".

The former Member for Communications, Works and Agriculture, Mr. Linford Pierson and the former Member responsible for Education, Mr. Benson Ebanks recommended the acquisition of the building and use by the Education Department and this recommendation was approved by the Executive Council. The Lands Officer concluded in his recommendations that the property was not suitable for use as Government offices.

At the time of the valuation in 1992, the Lands Officer reported that no Certificate of Occupancy had been issued by the Planning Department, although the building had been built for over a year. In addition, no structural or other survey was carried out prior to concluding the Purchase Agreement. It was subsequently established by Public Works Department that the building appeared to be missing two ground floor columns and two steel columns were subsequently erected by the Public Works Department to correct the omission, including other modifications at a cost of $164,987.

The Auditor General was informed by the Planning Department that this type of defect should normally have been detected during construction. However, no inspections of the building were carried out during construction. The Committee was surprised to note that a Final Certificate of Occupancy has still not been issued.

The total project cost is calculated to be $1,860,897, inclusive of land, buildings, repairs, modifications and computer communications equipment and this equates to $200 per square foot. The imputed rental values range from $24.21 to $28.47 per square foot.

The Public Accounts Committee concludes that Government did not get good value for money in the purchase of the Campbell Building.

The Committee recommends that in future-

- (a) The authorised policy and procedures as prescribed in the "Lands Valuation, Acquisition, Disposal and Exchange Guidelines" should be strictly adhered to with respect to the purchase of any property on behalf of Government; and
- (b) Government should ensure that all buildings purchased for government use have been issued the relevant Final Certificate of Occupancy by the Planning Department.

(b) Outstanding Accommodation Tax owed to Government

The Committee was advised of the efforts made by the Financial Secretary in recovering outstanding accommodation tax due to the Government and the problems that had been encountered in this exercise. The Committee expects the Auditor General to maintain a watching brief on this important area of Government Revenue.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

13. The Committee wishes to place on record its sincere thanks to the Honourable Anthony S. Eden for his invaluable services and interest shown as a Member of the Public Accounts Committee prior to his resignation and extends its best wishes for a successful term of office as a Minister of the Executive Council.

The Committee also wishes to record its appreciation to Mr. Nigel Esdaile, Auditor General, and his staff, for their thorough and honest assessments of the various operations of the Government, its departments and Statutory Authorities; to Mr. Joel Walton, Deputy Financial Secretary, and Mrs. Sonia McLaughlin, the Acting Accountant General for their assistance and advice to the Committee; to the persons invited to appear before the Committee for their cooperation and valuable information offered; and to the Clerk and her staff for their assistance to the Committee.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE

14. The Committee agrees that this Report be the Report of the Standing Public Accounts Committee on the Report of the Auditor General on the Audited Accounts of the Cayman Islands Government for the year ended 31st December, 1993, and laid on the Table of this honourable House in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 74(5).

STANDING ORDER 74(9)

The Speaker: In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 74(9) the Report of the Public Accounts Committee is deemed to have been agreed to.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

STANDING ORDER 24(9)(viii) MOTION TO DEBATE PAC REPORT

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: In accordance with Standing Order 24(9)(viii) I would like to move the Motion that the Public Accounts Committee Report be debated.

The Speaker: The question is that in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 24(9)(viii) the Report of the Standing Public Accounts Committee be debated. Before I put the question, I propose that proceedings be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.10 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.33 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

There was a motion moved by the Third Elected Member for West Bay concerning the debate on the Public Accounts Committee Report which has to be seconded.

The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: The Motion is that there should be a debate on the Public Accounts Committee's Report. The Motion is open for debate.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In all fairness to the Members, I would recommend that we defer the debate until Monday in order to give Members a chance to read their report and be in a position to debate in an informed fashion.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder for that?

The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: The question is that the debate on the Report of the Public Accounts Committee be deferred until Monday. The Motion has been duly moved and seconded.

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against No.

The Ayes have it. The debate is accordingly deferred until Monday.

AGREED. DEBATE ON THE REPORT OF THE PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE DEFERRED UNTIL MONDAY, 12TH DECEMBER, 1994.

The Speaker: The next item: Report of the Standing House Committee.

The Member for North Side.

REPORT OF THE STANDING HOUSE COMMITTEE

(Meetings held during 1993 and 1994)

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, the Report of the Standing House Committee has to be gone into further by the Committee and I would ask that it be deferred until a later date during the sitting.

The Speaker: Is that Motion seconded?

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Madam Speaker, I beg to second that Motion.

The Speaker: The question is that the Report of the Standing House Committee be deferred, I shall hope until Monday? Until Monday.

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against No.

The Ayes have it. The Report is accordingly deferred until Monday.

AGREED. REPORT OF THE STANDING HOUSE COMMITTEE DEFERRED FOR TABLING UNTIL MONDAY, 12TH DECEMBER, 1994.

The Speaker: Report of the Select Committee (of all Elected Members) to Study the Fundamental Rights Clause of the Cayman Islands (constitution) Order.

The Honourable Minister for Agriculture.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE (OF ALL ELECTED MEMBERS) TO STUDY THE FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS CLAUSE OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS (CONSTITUTION) ORDER

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay upon the Table of this honourable House a very, very short report of a Standing Select Committee to study the Fundamental Rights Clause of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. John B. McLean: As I mentioned, this was a very short meeting. The purpose of the Meeting was to establish who would be the Chairman of the Committee. A Motion was made by me to Honourable Members and it was unanimous that my colleague, the Honourable Truman M. Bodden, be the Chairman. Thereafter, there being no further business, the meeting was adjourned.

The Speaker: Proceeding next to Government business. Motions, Government Motion 9/94, Adoption of the Tourism Management Policy 1995—1999.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 9/94

ADOPTION OF THE TOURISM MANAGEMENT POLICY 1995-1999

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I move Government Motion 9/94, Adoption of the Tourism Management Policy 1995—1999, which reads:

"WHEREAS the Tourism Management Policy document was laid on the Table of this honourable House on the 5th day December, 1994;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the House adopts the Tourism Management Policy 1995 to 1999."

It would be appropriate to highlight what the document which was laid on the Table of this honourable House includes. The purpose of the document is that it presents the key recommendations endorsed by the Government for a five-year tourism management plan. It is based on the contents of the 1992 Tourism Development Plan, but spans the years 1995 to 1999 instead of the 10 years originally proposed.

I feel that forecasting for a 10-year period is not so practical in this era of radical and rapid changes which take place. I think beyond the five-year period the future becomes rather cloudy and the crystal ball becomes even fuzzier.

Some of the recommendations will require legislation to bring them in to effect, while others can be accomplished by administrative action. I believe also that the Government at the moment is preparing a major piece of environmental legislation to address many of the strategic points outlined in the document under the chapter on Environmental Strategy.

Summarising the goals of the document:

- (1) Quality must be the number one characteristic of the Tourism Industry;

- (2) Tourism must represent positive price value to the visitor;
- (3) Caymanians must thoroughly understand the importance of the tourism industry;
- (4) Environmental resources are to be protected and enhanced;
- (5) Cultural protection and enhancement are essential;
- (6) A moderate level of growth is to be targeted;
- (7) A uniformed tourism industry identity and strategy is required using all three Islands and their resources;
- (8) The international market base should be expanded to decrease reliance on the US market (and we know that is going to happen this afternoon when Caledonia arrives at 4.15 or 4.10);
- (9) The product in the Cayman Islands should be diversified.

We come to the management strategies, and this is just a highlight of what is in the document: "Regardless of growth guidelines set, it will be important for tourism development to be managed in a number of areas, such as:

- (1) Increasing the number of Caymanians in tourism jobs;
- (2) Increasing the awareness of the value of tourism to the Caymanian resident;
- (3) Improving upon research necessary to make 'growth' decisions;
- (4) Improving upon the quality of the product as well as the range of products available to tourists and residents;
- (5) Improving on customer satisfaction;
- (6) Improving on, and maintaining a global competitiveness;
- (7) Improving on environmental monitoring and control mechanisms to ensure that the natural products that tourists come to enjoy, and the environment upon which Caymanians depend, is not unduly derogated."

The highlights of the strategies under the Environmental chapter: "There is a real opportunity for the Cayman Islands to take a leadership role in blending tourism development and the environment." There is a need to improve upon both resident and visitor awareness/education on the importance of the environment."

The Government will take initiatives to protect the marine and terrestrial environment as well as educate residents and visitors about the environment. Eco-tourism is one form of education. Several specific initiatives include: Limiting the number of cruise ship passengers per day to 5,500 or 6,000; the installation of permanent cruise ship moorings instead of development of a cruise ship pier and terminal at this time because the document which we have suggests that the cost is in the $50 million range (I do not believe that we are really ready to find that kind of money); Protection of additional terrestrial sites through legislation; Determining an environmental protection programme for Little Cayman; Developing an Eco-tourism programme.

The Government will consider limiting the number of tourists allowed onto marine and terrestrial sites to protect the ecology of the area.

Recycling has already been introduced in preliminary projects and will be expanded.

An Eco-tourism programme should be developed and resources should be identified and developed. Information throughout the Cayman Islands will be compiled. In addition, as many as 60 or more sites accessible for Eco-tourism experiences will be identified. Collateral material detailing these sites will be developed.

In looking quickly at the strategies for the Tourism Product:-

"Product development will improve and enhance existing settlements, the historic streetscape character and cultural heritage features."

"There are eight different land based development themes in the Cayman Islands" each with its own atmosphere and qualities."

Cayman should be marketed for a variety of product and experiences in one destination. More attention must be paid to promoting the Sister Islands and their unique attractions. New development should reinforce the historic or tropical character of the Island, its nautical or marine heritage and its natural characteristics.

"Little Cayman should not be opened up to large numbers of tourists or cruise ships..."

"The average visitor has no idea of the number and diversity of existing and potential attractions of the Cayman Islands. Attractions will be identified, inventoried, analysed, and properly developed marketed and monitored."

Continued development of the Cayman Islands product is important to the continued success of the tourism industry. Key attractions to be developed or expanded include five first priority sites and 23 second priority sites. Those first five I mentioned while laying the document on the table, but I do not think it would hurt to quickly go over what they are:

- St. James Castle at Pedro
- Turtle Farm and Aquarium
- Sting Ray City
- Queen Elizabeth II Botanic Park
- Salinas National Park

Dive sites: To protect Cayman's long term basis as a key dive destination, the following initiatives are proposed:

- 1) A comprehensive reef management programme.
- 2) Increasing the number of permanent moorings for dive boats and spreading out dive sites to other less dived areas. Those areas will require permanent moorings to be installed to protect the environment from the anchors of the dive boats.
- 3) Determining the carrying capacity of each dive site and monitoring diver impact.
- 4) Legislation to set basic standards for all water sport operators.

Snorkeling will be more intensively promoted and new safe locations identified.

Cruise Ship strategies: Permanent deep water moorings for cruise ships will be installed.

Speaking quickly on the strategies for marketing, of key importance is the goal of increasing the number of stay-over-visitor arrivals to 382 [sic] in 1996, and I do not think that is too far-fetched to obtain, given that we are going to be well over 300 [sic] by the end of this year.

A higher degree of sophistication in marketing and market research is required if the Cayman Islands are to remain competitive in the global travel market-place. The major tourism marketing approaches which the Cayman Islands will follow include:

- 1) Refinement of long term goals and short term quantitative objectives.
- 2) Increasing the research base, fine tune and prioritise target markets based on geographic, socioeconomic and special interest criteria. Allocation of overall and regional office resources according to this prioritisation.
- 3) Continued diversification of product aimed at opening up and attracting new niche markets.
- 4) Fine-tuning the message to be communicated to target markets.
- 5) Researching the effectiveness of advertisement, different media and promotional efforts.
- 6) Improving access to information on Island, improving product quality, diversity and price value delivered.
- 7) Continuing to search for new lucrative markets.

Under Human Resource Strategy, the key goals of this section are: Information; Education and Promotion, both of the importance of quality in tourism and of the economic importance of tourism. These must be accomplished to create a greater understanding overall of the tourism industry in the Cayman Islands. The plan includes launching a major communication and education campaign about the importance of quality service in tourism; educating the public about the economic importance of tourism; making a concerted effort to attract Caymanians to jobs in tourism.

Overall, the document stressed the importance of diversifying the market base and the product itself. Cayman can take a leadership role in blending tourism and the environment. There is a need for greater awareness of protecting the environment.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.52 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.34 PM

The Speaker: Before continuing with the proceedings of the House, there is a procedural matter which I need to bring before Members so that it can be rectified.

First of all I would like to thank the Deputy Speaker for stepping in and taking the Chair so quickly yesterday. I apologise for putting him at a disadvantage because there was no prior notice for the matter which was to be discussed.

Yesterday afternoon when the Deputy Speaker took the Chair, the Motion before the House was one that had been moved by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, seconded by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and it reads as follows: "THAT this matter be referred to a special Select Committee comprised of all Members of the House; and that the Speaker be invited to chair the Committee."

The Motion was made under Standing Orders 24(9)(ii), a Motion which could be made without notice. This as Members will recall followed to vote on Private Member's Motion No. 30/94. The question having been put by the Chair in the following manner:

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this honourable House approves a review of the Standing Orders for the purpose of updating them as necessary and in light of modern practices and procedures of the House of Commons and other Commonwealth parliaments..."

This Motion was in the amended form as a Motion made by the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation to delete the words "and seek the advice and assistance of an experienced Parliamentarian as was done in the past," was passed.

On the question being put, there were Ayes and Noes. There were no requests for a division and the Chair declared that "the Ayes have it". The Motion was duly passed.

On the Motion made under Standing Orders 24(9)(ii) being proposed for debate, the mover spoke to it. The Chair caught the eye of the Honourable Minister responsible for Communication Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, but requested that before the Honourable Minister spoke, the Deputy Speaker take the Chair. It is always an accepted procedure that the Speaker does not occupy the Chair when there are discussions on that person.

The Deputy Speaker, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, rose and indicated that he would take the Chair. He also said that the Speaker of the House should be included as a member of the Committee.

The Speaker indicated that a Speaker is never a member of any committee of the House. I could elaborate on that to also say, or be co-opted to any committee of any parliament in which that person is the Presiding Officer. The premise is that the Speaker does not sit on any parliamentary committee unless chairing that committee. While dealing with this matter I would like to draw to Members' attention Standing Orders 49(3) on Bills, where the Presiding Officer (in this case the Speaker) chairs committees of the whole House on bills. The one exception is the Appropriation Bill. In the past, before the amendment to revert the position of the Finance Committee, the Speaker was chairman of that Committee.

The question that was put at the end of the debate when the Deputy Speaker was in the Chair was: "That this House approves a Review of the Standing Orders for the purpose of updating them as necessary and in light of modern practices and procedures of the House of commons, and other Commonwealth parliaments"—the exact wording of the substantive amended [Private Member's] Motion No. 30/94 which had been resolved by the House just a short time prior. This was passed again.

Thus the Motion was put and passed, that is, resolved for the second time, on Thursday, 8th December, 1994, contrary to Standing Orders 24(8) which states: "No motion may be proposed which is the same in substance as any motion which during the previous six months has been resolved." To correct this procedural irregularity it will now be necessary for the House to resolve and move that [such] part of the proceedings be expunged.

I am asking Honourable Members if someone would move the motion that that particular part be expunged from the proceedings.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can you just read what you are recommending?

The Speaker: What I have said is that the question that was put at the end of the debate when the Deputy Speaker was in the Chair, was that "this House approves a Review of the Standing Orders for the purpose of updating them as necessary and in light of modern practices and procedures of the House of Commons, and other Commonwealth parliaments" — which was the exact wording of the substantive amended [Private Member's] Motion No. 30/94 that had been resolved by the House—that had been put and passed by the House.

So it appeared that the question was put a second time in the House and that is contrary to Standing Orders 24(8) which states: "No motion may be proposed which is the same in substance as any motion which during the previous six months has been resolved." So it is just a matter of irregularity and all that is needed is that it should be expunged from the Minutes.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: But do we need to expunge it? Would it not naturally fall away, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: Not if you are contravening Standing Order 24(8) because that is specific. It says: No motion may be proposed which is the same in substance as any motion which during the previous six months has been resolved.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Would it not be easier, Madam Speaker, for you then to put the correct Motion?

The Speaker: Not for a third time. The Motion was passed already. It was passed. There is the extract of the question that was put by the [Deputy] Speaker: "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this honourable House approves a review of the Standing Orders for the purpose of updating them as necessary and in light of modern practices and procedures of the House of Commons and other Commonwealth parliaments..." The Question was put by the [Deputy] Speaker who declared that "the Ayes have it; the Motion has duly been passed." It was put again for the second time.

The Honourable Minister for Communications, Works and Agriculture.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, am I to understand that if we are to take out of the Minutes, as you have suggested, it would mean that the first Motion would stand and the Motion would be committed to a Select Committee of which the First Official Member...

The Speaker: I have not come to that part as yet. This is just about the Review. There was a second motion.

Hon. John B. McLean: Okay.

The Speaker: Do I have a motion then, that just this part of the Minutes be expunged—the second Motion which was put for the second time?

Would someone move that motion? The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, would it be permissible for a non-Government bench Member to so move a motion? For I would...

The Speaker: There is no objection because the motion was put by a non-Government Member.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, having only just heard what you have said, and having just received a copy of the Hansard, I am reluctant to move forward until I read it. But if Members want to move ahead with it, it is up to the House.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Communications, Works and Agriculture.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I think this is important enough. If we could have a copy of the Hansard to look at for a few minutes, then we could deal with it if the Chair sees fit.

The Speaker: Well there is no problem with me there, except for the fact that you cannot change that the Motion was put twice and resolved twice contrary to Standing Orders 24(8). I am only concerned with the procedure of the House and I am responsible for the procedures of the House.

Hon. John B. McLean: I bow to your ruling, Madam Speaker, but I just think that most Members are not fully aware of this. So if you could give us a few moments we would appreciate it.

The Speaker: The Honourable Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I think there is nothing wrong with expunging the second approval of a Motion that was previously done before you vacated the Chair. If we read it, you put the question and then the Deputy Speaker took the Chair and put the same question. And that is all you are asking to be taken out of the Minutes.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

MOTION TO EXPUNGE IRREGULAR PROCEEDINGS

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to move a Motion, that the question which was put twice on the same Private Member's Motion No. 30/94 which reads: "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this honourable House approves a review of the Standing Orders for the purpose of updating them as necessary and in light of modern practices and procedures of the House of Commons and other Commonwealth Parliaments be expunged from the records because it is twice appearing."

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: There is a motion which has been proposed and seconded.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I think the request from the Minister of Communications, Agriculture and Works deserves some attention. I think the House understands that the Deputy Speaker was involved and I think we need to sit together and get it cleared away, then come back and take your suggestion.

Madam Speaker, in due deference to you, certainly we would pay some attention to him because he was in the Chair at the time.

The Speaker: Well, I do not think it is a matter that the Deputy Speaker was here. It is a matter where a motion was put which was the same as one that had been resolved, which is against Standing Orders 24(8). It is as simple as that.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, since the Motion just made seems to be open to debate, I would like to say that it is quite doubtful as to whether the motion put by me [acting as Deputy Speaker] was, de facto, a repeat of the original motion. If one looks at the entire Minutes surrounding the Motion, one will get an entirely different message, and I quote from the Minutes, these are the words: "The Deputy Speaker: The question before the House appears to be in two parts: (1) that the matter of the Review go into a Committee, that is, a Review of the Standing Orders; and (2) is that the Speaker be appointed Chairman of that Committee. So I shall have to put the question in two parts."

With such an introduction before the question was put, it was quite clear to all the Members present that the question that was being put was whether the review would go to a committee, not whether the Standing Orders would be reviewed.

So the question that followed, although it does not include the words "go to a Committee", by implication clearly included the review by a Committee. The question actually put was, and I read: "The first part of the question is that this House approves a Review of the Standing Orders for the purpose of updating them as necessary and in light of modern practices and procedures of the House of Commons, and other Commonwealth Parliaments. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No."

It is perhaps a bit unusual that the words "the review be done by a Committee," those words "be done by a Committee," had not been included in the question. Had they been, the question put would have read: "The first part of the question is that this House approves a Review of the Standing Orders by a Committee...."

But if there is to be a review there has to be some method for the review; the review cannot just dangle in the air. The entire debate which preceded the putting of the question clearly indicated that all Members who spoke, including the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, understood clearly that the review was to have been done by a Committee. And the other three Members—I think, the Third Elected Member for West Bay, and the two Ministers of Executive Council—also pointed out that this review would be done. They expected it to be done, and the will of the House was that the review be done by a Committee.

When the question was put that the Review be approved, it was axiomatic that the review be done by the Committee which the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman had moved in a Motion under Standing Orders 24(9)(ii).

Now if the House is going to quibble over semantics—because I feel that is what is happening with the movement of this Motion now—where are we going to end up? The substance of the question put, clearly reflects the substance of the Motion and the question put just encapsulates the thoughts expressed by the Members—that the matter would be referred to a Select Committee. But, perhaps it is as I said earlier, that the words "by a Committee" were not included in the question as they had been definitely included in the preamble.

So, my personal opinion is—and I give this for whatever it is worth—that the question of whether the House voted for the review to be done by a Committee is absolutely clear and yesterday afternoon [it] was clear in the minds of all the Members who voted, and the House voted unanimously for the Review to be done. Although the wording of the question may be interpreted by some minds to mean that a review is going to be carried on the Standing Orders, it could also be understood in a much broader view that the Standing Orders would be reviewed and reviewed as asked for and as agreed by a Committee.

The second part of the question seems not to have raised any doubts as yet, and I will not go into that. But my contention is that there is absolutely no reason to endeavour to change yesterday's proceedings. And although I do not have the authority to order it, I certainly for my own edification would like to hear the views of the Attorney General, although I do not want to put him on the spot. But it is now clear in my mind that the question put and the question understood by the Members was that the Standing Orders would be reviewed by a Committee.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I find this an extremely strange situation, as it appears to me a Motion has been put under Standing Order 40 to challenge the then Presiding Officer in relation to a ruling that he has made. And if that is the case, Madam Speaker, this is the first time in this House that I know about that such a very serious and grave situation has arisen.

No notice, as I understand, has been given. I am wondering how the Motion has come to the floor of this House without notice, and, really, do we have a motion to challenge the Presiding Officer's decision at this time. Or do we have a motion that is on the floor of the House without any notice? As I understand it, Madam Speaker, the motion has been put and no notice has been given.

A motion as grave as this has to be subject to notice and it is very clear. Standing Order 40 says: "The Presiding Officer is responsible for the observance of the rules of order in the House and in Committees of the whole House respectively and his decision upon any point of order shall not be open to appeal and shall not be reviewed by the House save upon a substantive motion made after notice". In any event regardless of what section it falls under, notice must be given or waived.

Having said that, Madam Speaker, I will go on to deal with this, but I do find this a very serious matter because it is the first time that we are having a substantive motion here to challenge the procedures of this House on the rare occasion when the Deputy Speaker was in the Chair. I hope that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman realises that he is setting a very serious precedent. If this becomes prevalent in this House and we begin to challenge the rulings of—

[Inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: Order, order!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: —the Speaker in this House on substantive motions, then it is indeed going to be very uncomfortable. I would strongly recommend that that Elected Member withdraw this Motion before I begin to speak on it. [Pause]

Notwithstanding, that, Madam Speaker, I submit that there is no motion on the floor of this House because no notice has been given and no notice has been waived, as I understand it. The Motion that is asking for the expunging of the procedure of this House is a challenge to the Chair and the Presiding Officer at that time.

I would now like to go into this and show that what has been done is correct. Therefore, I will not support this motion and I ask other Members of this House not to because it is beginning to set an extremely bad precedent.

The Motion itself was brought, and then at the end of the motion, a motion was put without notice (under what I think is Standing Orders 24(9)(ii)). After that the Presiding Officer (you, Madam Speaker) left the Chair on the basis that it was not right for you to sit there, and I think that was the correct procedure—I have no problem with that.

Secondly, I think you also mentioned that you could not be a member when there was some mention of you being a member of the Committee. That I accept; that is correct. After that the Deputy Speaker went into the Chair, and after the debate he put this question (found on the second page of the minutes): "The motion before the House appears to be in two parts; (1) that the matter of the Review go into a Committee, that is, a Review of the Standing Orders, and (2) is that the Speaker be appointed Chairman of that Committee. So I shall have to put the question in two parts."

So the questions before the House were those two questions and it is abundantly clear what they were and that is what was subsequently in the minds [of Members] of this House when they made their votes and the divisions were taken.

The [Deputy] Speaker then went on to say, as an explanation of what was a question before the House, and I submit his subsidiary to it: "The first part of the question is that this House approves a Review of the Standing Orders for the purpose of updating them as necessary and in light of modern practices and procedures of the House of Commons and other Commonwealth parliaments. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No." And he declared that the Ayes have it.

Now there was no doubt in my mind. I believe that there was no doubt in the minds of Members of this House as to what they were voting on. A motion had been passed, a motion that was ill-conceived and badly defined which would not have achieved anything unless a subsequent motion had been put to put it into a Committee. The Motion as it stood had to carry a subsequent motion and that was done without notice and it was debated on by the Mover.

The Deputy Speaker, who has all the powers of the Speaker when he sits in that Chair, put the question, and that was voted Aye unanimously. He then went on to put the second part of the question, and that was the one stating whether the Speaker be appointed Chairman of that Committee. There were submissions, as the records will show, and that went to a division again, and the Motion was defeated.

So I cannot understand why at this stage such a serious motion—and I point out, the motion is serious... The matter before this House may appear trivial to Members but it is a challenge to the Chair upon a substantive motion. It is the first time in the 14 years that I have been in this House that I have seen it. We then had at that stage the finalisation of the three votes on this Motion.

The Motion should really have come in the correct form to have avoided all the confusion that subsequently went on in having to put the motions.

I submit that the [Deputy] Speaker was quite right when he divided the Motion in two. He has the power to do it under Standing Orders, and no Member of this House, in my view, voted on anything other than the two questions which he said were before the House and he made it clear.

I will read it again: "The question before the House appears to be in two parts; (1) that the matter of the Review go into a Committee, that is a Review of the Standing Orders, and (2) is that the Speaker be appointed Chairman of that Committee."

So there is no doubt in my mind, and I believe there is no doubt in other Members' minds, as to what we were voting on and in any event, even if this is taken to its extreme, to raise a substantive motion to challenge the Chair upon the repetition of a Motion, it is, indeed, trying to have a storm in a tea cup.

I do not understand why there is this move in an attempt to embarrass the Chair—the [Deputy] Speaker at that time. I submit and I urge Members of this honourable House to uphold the rulings that the Deputy Speaker has made. There have been other rulings here that at times...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker the Minister has been going in all directions completely different from what was proposed by the Chair. We are not talking here of any rulings made by the Deputy Speaker while he was in the Chair. We are talking about a situation of expunging one of the two votes that was taken on the same thing.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, there is a point because the fact is there is no attempt to challenge anything except that there was a procedural irregularity.

Standing Orders 24(8) says: "No motion may be moved which is the same in substance as one which has been passed within the last six months..." because you have to go by the wording which is put. The wording that was put for Members to vote on is the same wording which Members had voted on previously. All that is being asked for is that the procedure be regularised by expunging that particular portion.

The other point which I had not yet reached (while I am interjecting here, is that the motion that was moved by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman was that this matter (that is, the matter of the review of Standing Orders) be referred to a special Select Committee comprised of all Members of the House. Now that has not been voted on, and that was a question which I proposed before I left the Chair. That has not been voted on at all.

We are dealing with the part about the Speaker, I am not concerned about what happened—that the Speaker is not Chairman of the Committee. All I am concerned about is that the correct procedure should be put in the records and that something is done that refers the Review of the Standing Orders to a Committee.

That was not put—that it be referred to the Standing Orders Committee—that was not put anywhere here at all. It was just an assumption. A lot of Members spoke on it, but that Motion has not been put. I would like to see that Motion put.

This is what I am trying to get around to, that a Motion is put so that the Committee to which this should be referred to, can take action. Honourable Member, if you would like to continue, please do so.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Yes, Madam Speaker.

Quite frankly, if we want to look at irregularities, this whole Motion that we have now is irregular. I repeat that. This Motion which is on the floor of the House cannot be here because no notice has been waived or has been given.

If we look at Standing Orders 25(4)...and I submit that anytime a Speaker sits in that Chair, the practice and procedures of what he has done cannot be challenged by another Speaker who comes after him, because Standing Order 40 is very clear. But in any event we had a Motion put by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, we had an amendment, and if we look at Stand Orders 25(4) it specifically states: "An amendment to a motion may be moved and seconded at any time after the question upon the motion has been proposed by the Presiding Officer and before it has been put by him at the conclusion of the debate thereon. When every such amendment has been disposed of, the Presiding Officer shall either again propose the question upon the motion or shall propose the question upon the motion as amended, as the case may require and, after any further debate which may arise thereon, shall put the question to the House or Committee for its decision."

There is a motion, when an amendment is put the question has to be put on the amendment, then you have a right to speak on the substantive motion.

If the House really wants to look at irregularities, this is it: a motion and an amendment went through before the Deputy Speaker went into the Chair and both were debated at one time and both were voted on. You cannot have two questions on the floor of the House.

So, I am submitting that this is a challenge, in any event not to any question of irregularity of procedure.

But as you, Madam Speaker, many times referred us to Standing Order 40, when the ruling is made by a Speaker, it is not questionable. What should happen prior to that, is that Members should be given a right to address the Chair.

So, whatever practice that Member has carried on while sitting as Speaker can only be questioned on a substantive motion. If there is any allegation of irregularity of procedures before this House, that is what a substantive motion to question the Chair is all about. And that, I submit is what is now happening before this House in an attempt to embarrass the Deputy Speaker, who sat in that Chair for a brief period when he sat with the full powers of the Speaker of this House.

I submit, therefore, Madam Speaker, that what he has done and what we have voted on is clear. He has appointed the Chairman who would normally sit as chairman of the Standing Orders Committee under which the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman chose not to follow because quite rightly, there was no specific amendment being put forward.

I submit that the question that was before the House was very clearly stated at the beginning by the Speaker and this is what he stated (and I submit that this is what I voted on): "The question before the House appears to be in two parts; (1) that the matter of the review go into a Committee, that is a Review of the Standing Orders," and that is correct!

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman wanted the Standing Orders review to be done in a select committee, because he was not proposing specific amendments to it which would have gone to the Standing Select Committee of the Standing Orders.

And secondly, the question he says (2) "...that the Speaker be appointed Chairman of that Committee. So I will put the question in two parts." I submit that it was voted on: that the Motion has been passed, another Motion has been passed to send it into a Committee and another Motion has been passed by which the third Motion was defeated and then the Speaker (the Deputy Speaker at the time) quite rightly appointed the person who normally is the Chairman of the Standing Orders Committee and who is a Member of this House, the First Official Member, the Honourable Chief Secretary.

So I find no problem with this, and I will not be supporting a Motion that is challenging what the Speaker did yesterday on this. I am satisfied that the Motions are passed and that there is no need whatsoever, to go to this very grave and serious stage in an attempt to (in my view), embarrass the Deputy Speaker.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I am at a loss as to what all of this debate is about when a simple question is being asked to expunge a question that was already asked and passed. I am certain that I am not standing here on the floor of this House to challenge the ability of the Deputy Speaker in one way or the other. Having sat in this Parliament for a number of years as Deputy Clerk and having understood in my small way, the Standing Orders of this Parliament, I cannot see where the Deputy Speaker is being challenged in any way when the simple question is that we expunge where it was agreed that the Standing Orders be updated as necessary, to practices and procedures of the House of Commons and other Commonwealth Parliaments. That question was proposed by you, Madam Speaker, prior to you vacating the Chair before the debate as to whether you would be Chairman of that Committee.

The Speaker said: "I shall now put the question that Private Member's Motion No. 30/94 which will now read: 'BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this honourable House approves a review of the Standing Orders for the purposes of updating them as necessary and in light of modern practices and procedures of the House of Commons and other Commonwealth parliaments.'" This is after you put the question on the amendment which was brought and approved. Then the Motion was proposed that this matter be referred to a special Select Committee comprised of all Members of the House and to invite the Speaker to chair the Committee.

Madam Speaker, Mr. Speaker did say "The question before us appears to be in two parts and rightly so, (1) that the matter of the Review go into a Committee, that is a Review of the Standing Orders; and (2) is that the Speaker be appointed Chairman of that Committee. So I shall put the question in two parts." I am certain that no one in this building believes that the Deputy Speaker, acting as Speaker, deliberately put the same question. It was an oversight and all I find being asked this afternoon is to let us expunge where the question was put the second time and update the proceedings whereby the Motion for it to go to a Select Committee is either passed or denied.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Since Members are reluctant to say anything, I think what needs to be brought to the attention of the House is that the Motion which was moved by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has not been resolved. That question was never put because he moved that the review be done by a special Select Committee. That question was never put, although Members talked in their debates about the Standing Orders Committee etcetera, etcetera, the Motion, although it had been proposed by me before I vacated the Chair, has not been put.

I think there is no doubt about that at all and this is absolutely necessary; that a question which has been put, debated on, should be finally decided on. When that is decided on whether it is negated, then there will have to be a motion to refer this review to a body whether it is the Standing Orders Committee or not. The Deputy Speaker did say that the results of the Division.... That means that the question that the Speaker be a Chairman of the Standing Orders Committee has failed.

Then he said: "Therefore, I would like to confirm that the First Official Member of Government will be the Chairman of that Committee..." Which Committee? The question was never put on a special Select Committee. The motion for it had been moved and seconded and proposed from the Chair. That is an irregularity. One does not assume anything in the House; one has to be specific. If a motion is put then you get your vote on it—your Ayes, Noes and your majority, or a division approving or disapproving.

But as I pointed out Standing Order 24(8) says: "No motion which is the same in substance..." irrespective of what may have gone before. The question that was put was the same one which had been resolved in the affirmative just sometime prior. That is not challenging anybody, because there was no ruling. It was just a matter of putting a motion which had already been put. This is not challenging any Speaker's ruling. Far from it.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I do not rise to debate the Motion, but on a matter of procedure and to ask for clarification. If I understand you correctly, you have said that the Deputy Speaker in the Chair did not put the question as to whether the Motion went to a Committee. I understand what is said by the Deputy Speaker in the Hansard, and I quote: "The question before the House appears to be in two parts; (1) that the matter of the Review goes into a Committee, that is a Review of the Standing Orders; and (2) that the Speaker be appointed Chairman of that Committee. So I shall have to put the question in two parts. The first part of the question is that this House approves a Review of the Standing Orders for the purpose of updating them as necessary and as in light of modern practices and procedures of the House of Commons, and other Commonwealth Parliaments." Am I to understand that you are saying that he should have said that it goes to a Select Committee?

The Speaker: The question before the House, Honourable Member, which was moved by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman (and these are his words): "that the matter [i.e. the matter of the review of Standing Orders] be referred to a special Select Committee, comprised of the whole House." That is out. I am not dealing with the other part because that has definitely been decided on, that the Speaker would not be Chairman of any Committee. I am not involved in that part at all because that is the decision of the House. But the matter of it being referred to a special Select Committee—which is what he proposed—which is a committee other than the regular Standing Orders Committee really needs to be decided on by the House and once that decision is made then the House will know where to go from there to get some action for the review of the Standing Orders.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, there is an old saying that muddy water unwisely stirred gets darker still: left alone it clears itself. Perhaps in the light of the existing situation we might take a short suspension and be in a better frame of mind (all of us) to come back and bring what is at hand to a resolution.

MOTION FOR SUSPENSION

The Speaker: Is there a seconder for that Motion?

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Madam Speaker, I beg to second that Motion.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I cannot understand here this afternoon...

The Speaker: Just one second, please. There is a motion before the House that we should suspend.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Please, let me put the question because I have to do that; that is my duty.

The question is that the House suspend for some time. Now that motion is open for debate if Members agree to it or not.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I believe that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town correctly put it when he made that little quotation about stirring muddy water and if it is left alone it clears itself. That is true! I do not understand why we are going into all of this now. I do not understand why this motion has to be put. Why do you not simply adjourn the House and allow Honourable Members to get together? Take a break, it is just about that time, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Actually, that is the motion the Member has put, which I am now asking Members to vote on, that there should be a short suspension.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I do not follow the reasoning why we should have a motion to adjourn. I think you should suspend.

The Speaker: He is moving a motion for the suspension. It was not in my mind to suspend the proceedings at this time because we have not been here an hour.

If Members so wish, I will now put the question. The question is that the House should suspend for 15 minutes. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

[Members' laughter]

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.29 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.02 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I would like to state (and in this I speak on behalf of the Opposition), that far be it from our minds to have any motive which brings embarrassment or which would cast the Deputy Speaker in a bad light on this Motion. The House will no doubt realise that both in his capacity as a sitting Member and colleague we have accorded him all the respect and courtesy due. We would have no reason on this or any other occasion to bring him into embarrassment and disrepute.

I want to say, because I saw this matter coming from yesterday, this whole confusion or irregularity or whatever it is described as by the Government, has its genesis in four words: Keep the Speaker Out! Out, that is, as Chairman of this Standing Select Committee. Madam Speaker, there is no reason for us to pretend, and anyone who suggests otherwise regarding embarrassment on anybody's part must only be speaking for himself as a performer of such tactics.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs, and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, it is a pity that we have come to this stage because if advice had been taken from the beginning we could have solved a lot of misunderstanding when we suggested that we adjourn.

It is absolutely rubbish to suggest or to say as the First Elected Member for Bodden Town said: that we want to keep the Speaker out. Keep the Speaker out of what? Everyone of us had said in this House publicly that the Speaker would be involved in the Committee and certainly, when I debated the Motion that was what I had in mind. When I suggested it the second time it was the Speaker.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The Speaker will... Chairman.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Well why should she be chairman? I want to find out. It is absolute nonsense! No one here has said that the Speaker was not going to be invited. We could find ways and means to bring her in. But she cannot be chairman in any event as has already been said. So what is the noise? And to come here to say that the Government does not want the Speaker—four words: "Keep the Speaker out." They should not have drawn the Speaker into the debate in that manner as far as I am concerned. That is not the question. That has never been the question. But now we see where the Opposition is leading and you see what they mean by all of this confusion that is created.

Madam Speaker, if there is no question, no motion, then can we move on to another aspect of business?

The Speaker: I believe we did have a Motion moved by the Honourable Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Was that Motion seconded? It was seconded by the First Elected Member...

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I do not agree that there is a Motion. But if there is one, I move that the question be put.

The Speaker: The question is that the Motion which was put for the second time, which is contrary to Standing Orders 24(8), be expunged that was the Motion that was moved and that is all that is being asked to correct irregularities.

In doing so there was nothing, and I want to make that very clear, there was nothing said or indicated against the Honourable Deputy Speaker. It is just a matter of procedural irregularity.

The other point is that the question on a special Select Committee has not yet been put and decided on. The House needs to decide on that.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Are you putting a Motion now Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: Well if nobody wishes to say anything.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I move that the question be put.

The Speaker: Certainly. The question is that the section where the substantive amended to Private Member's Motion No. 30/94 having been put for the second time contrary to Standing Order 24(8) the motion having already been resolved within six months of the House, that that particular section be expunged. That is the Motion before the House.

I trust all Members understand that. Is there anyone who does not understand what the question is before the House. I shall now put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could we have a division?

The Speaker: You certainly may. Madam Clerk.

Clerk: DIVISION NO. 25/94

ABSTENTION: 1

Mr. G. Haig Bodden

ABSENT: 1

Hon. James M. Ryan

The Speaker: The result of the Division is 4 Ayes, 12 Noes and one abstention. The Motion has therefore not been passed.

NEGATED BY MAJORITY: THAT THE PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE QUESTION HAVING BEEN PUT A SECOND TIME (AT YESTERDAY'S SITTING) BE EXPUNGED.

The Speaker: The other matter which needs attention is a decision on the Motion made by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, that the Standing Orders be reviewed by a special Select Committee comprised of all Members of the House.

That was the Motion which was moved, proposed and which had not been put to the House and, on which the House had not reached a decision.

The Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, would you just read specifically the Motion that you are now saying is before the House, please.

The Speaker: This is the Motion that was moved by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman on the 8th December, 1994, under Standing Order 24(9)(ii). I wish to move a Motion under Standing Orders 24(9)(ii) which reads: "A motion may be made without notice and in this case I would like to move that this matter be referred to a special Select Committee comprised of all Members of the House and to invite the Speaker to chair the committee." Now the last part of the Motion has been resolved. It is the first part that needs to be put to the House that the matter of a review of the Standing Orders be referred to a special Select Committee.

Are Members prepared to vote on this now?

If there is no debate I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye; those against, No.

AYES and NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, may we have a division?

The Speaker: The result of the Division is 4 Ayes, 13 Noes. The Motion has duly not been passed.

NEGATIVED BY MAJORITY: THE REVIEW OF THE STANDING ORDERS BE REFERRED TO A SPECIAL SELECT COMMITTEE NEGATIVED.

The Speaker: What is required now is a motion to refer the Review of the Standing Orders to a Standing Order's Committee.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Do we need notice for that?

The Speaker: It can be done without notice.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I wonder if this can be done without notice. When I challenged your decision on Standing Orders for questioning, you said I had to have a substantive motion and had to give sufficient time.

The Speaker: When was that Honourable Minister?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: When I sent it down here and you made me change it, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Well, I would like to know what occasion that was, I am not aware of that. But under Standing Orders the Presiding Officer can waive the notice and we want to get this done so that we know where the Review is going to be and the Committee.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I suggest you put the Motion.

The Speaker: That is not in my place, Honourable Minister. I think you know that. Does any Member wish to move the Motion that the Review of the Standing Orders be referred to the Standing Orders Committee?

Honourable Members, will you please listen to the question that was put? The first question was on a special Select Committee and I thought I made that very clear, which was the Motion that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman had [proposed] and which has not been put.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I do not want to get into any quarrel with the Chair, but the truth is that the Chair is to be blamed today for this confusion, because if the Chair had accepted a request for Members to get together we would not have come to this stage. And I do not know where...

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I am not going to sit here and say that I am to be blamed for something which eventually occurred. There was a recess and I am not going to have an argument with any Member on that point. The point now is that we want a decision so that we know where the Review of the Standing Orders is going to take place and what Committee it has to go to. Would someone please move a motion to that effect?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, it appears that nobody wants to do anything. So I would move the adjournment of this honourable House until 10 o'clock, Monday morning.

The Speaker: I do not think that I would accept that as an adjournment because we have a matter before the House which has not been properly resolved.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, with due respect the Leader of Government Business has moved the motion for the adjournment. I do not see where the Chair can say that the House cannot adjourn. Whatever happens to the piece of business, whether it falls away, it falls away, or we come back to it when minds are much clearer. However, the Motion is that the House do now adjourn by the Leader of Government Business.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker: Well, if no one wants to have anything taken on the Motion for the Review of the Standing Orders the matter will probably just sit there ad infinitum. If the Motion is that the House do now adjourn, I will put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House has accordingly adjourned until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.10 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 12 DECEMBER 1994.

MONDAY
12 DECEMBER 1994
10.36 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Fourth Elected Member for George Town to say prayers.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: First of all I would like to apologise to Honourable Members for the delay in commencing today's sitting. Secondly, an apology has been received from the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration, who is off the Island. In his place will be Mr. Michael Marsden, who will now take the oath before the Clerk.

Mr. Marsden.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATH OR AFFIRMATION

OATH OF AFFIRMATION by Mr. Michael Marsden

Hon. Michael Marsden: I Michael Marsden, do solemnly and sincerely affirm and declare that I will be faithful and serve true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to law.

The Speaker: Please take your seat Mr. Marsden. On behalf of the House I welcome you as the Honourable Temporary Second Official Member.

Presentation of Papers and Reports. The Report of the Standing House Committee. The Elected Member for North Side.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

REPORT OF THE STANDING HOUSE COMMITTEE (Meetings held during 1993 and 1994)

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 72(5), I beg to present to this honourable House the Reports of the Standing House Committee for the years 1993 and 1994. Before reading the report I would like to extend by apologies to this honourable House for the late presentation of the 1993 Report of this Committee.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: There is no Motion, she has just laid a paper on the Table. She will move the Motion afterwards.

Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Report of the Standing House Committee of the Cayman Islands Legislative Assembly.

APPOINTMENT OF MEMBERS

In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 76 which reads: "76. The House may appoint other standing select committees as required from among its Members." At the First Meeting (following the 1992 General Election) held on the 25th of November, 1992, Government Motion No. 2 appointing the Standing House Committee and setting out its terms of reference was moved by the Hon J Lemuel Hurlston, MBE, JP, First Official Member and passed unanimously by the Legislative Assembly. The Motion reads:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT, in accordance with Standing Order 76, the House appoints a Standing House Committee charged with the duty to make recommendations to the House Committee in respect of -

(a) matters affecting the working conditions, comfort and facilities for Members during meetings of the House;

(b) matters affecting the working condition, comfort and facilities for the staff of the House;

(c) the operation and maintenance of the library of the House, and the provision of research facilities;

(d) the maintenance, upkeep, furnishing and equipment of the Legislative Assembly Building:

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Standing House Committee shall comprise five elected Members one of whom will be elected by the Members of the Committee as Chairman and one as Deputy Chairman;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the quorum for the Committee shall be three Members of the Committee including the Chairman or Deputy Chairman."

ELECTION OF STANDING HOUSE COMMITTEE

In accordance with the provision of Government Motion No. 2, the following Members of the Legislative Assembly were duly elected on the 25th of November, 1992, to be the Members of the Standing House Committee:

Mrs. Edna Moyle
Mrs. Berna Murphy, MBE
Mr. G Haig Bodden
Capt. Mabry S Kirkconnell, MBE, JP
Mr. Gilbert A. McLean.

APPOINTMENT OF CHAIRMAN AND DEPUTY CHAIRMAN

On the 6th of January, 1993, in accordance with Standing Order 70(7), Hon. John B. McLean, JP, being the longest continuous serving Member of the House, called a meeting of the Committee for the first time and acted as Chairman.

At that Meeting, on a motion moved by Mrs. Berna Murphy and seconded by Capt. Mabry Kirkconnell, Mrs. Edna M. Moyle was nominated and duly appointed as Chairman.

On a motion moved by Mrs. Edna Moyle and seconded by Hon. John B. McLean, Capt. Mabry Kirkconnell, MBE, JP, was nominated and duly appointed as Deputy Chairman.

MEETINGS OF THE COMMITTEE

The Committee held five meetings: (i) Wednesday, 6th January, 1993; (ii) Friday, 13th August, 1993; (iii) Thursday, 2nd June, 1994; (iv) Thursday, 25th August, 1994; and (v) 8th December, 1994 (when the Committee considered and approved its Report).

ATTENDANCE AT MEETINGS

The attendance of Members is as recorded in the attached Minutes of Proceedings.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE

The Committee made the following recommendations:

- (a) that a small office for use by Members be provided;
- (b) that better security of the Building be provided;
- (c) that entry to the building by members of the public be restricted to entry through the front entrance only where they can be closely monitored;
- (d) that there be a very strict vigilance of persons entering the Building and that the Rules regarding the admission of the public be strictly adhered to;
- (e) that security checks be installed at the two entrances and that the following features should be included:
 - (i) two 35" metal walk through detectors at the front entrance;
 - (ii) installation of a card system for the rear entrance which will be used by the Honourable Speaker, Members of the Legislative Assembly and staff;
 - (iii) two video camera systems, one covering each entrance with 24-hour surveillance capabilities;
 - (iv) two hand-held scanner; and

- (v) one battery back-up system.
- (f) that a storeroom be converted to a second male restroom;
- (g) that post boxes for Members be installed in the staff front offices;
- (h) that daily newspapers be put in the Common Room for Members particularly during meetings of the House and of Committees;
- (l) that the Committee Room be equipped with a small desk-top recorder to facilitate Committees requiring verbatim report;
- (j) that photographs of present and past Members of the Legislative Assembly be mounted on the wall with appropriate plates with the relevant information of the Member and that where a Member has deceased that they be recognised with a small black bow placed inside the frame;
- (k) that a back-up emergency lighting facility be installed throughout the Building;
- (l) that chairs in the Committee Room be replaced and new furnishings for Hansard staff be provided;
- (m) that reading materials be constantly updated;
- (n) that the Department be provided with a Microfiche Reader for the use of Members and that copies of all Hansard Reports be put on microfilm;
- (o) that a plaque with the names of all Justices and Vestry Members and Members of the Legislative Assembly be commissioned and that this be installed at a suitable place within the building;
- (p) that papers for Members are distributed with a minimum of delay;
- (q) that a cabinet, which will replace the existing table, be built in the Common Room as storage for sodas;
- (r) that the Ficus tree at the eastern end of the building be cut back to a size that it can be better and regularly maintained;
- (s) that efforts be made for the swift delivery of the Parliamentarian Magazine from the CPA Headquarters in London;
- (t) that an extension to the front entrance be erected and that the Public Works Department be requested to prepare a draft plan which should be reviewed by the Committee before submission to the Central Planning Board;
- (u) that provisions be made in the 1995 Budget for the purchase of 4 filing cabinets and replacement chairs for staff;
- (v) that the Computer system in the Department be replaced with a more efficient and adequate system that meets the needs of the Department.
- (w) that a set of encyclopaedia, a large dictionary and a legal dictionary be purchased for Members' library; and
- (x) that if the Government installs a backup generator for the Courts and the Tower Building, that the Legislative Building be included.

ACHIEVEMENTS

The Committee is pleased to report that the following improvements to the Legislative Assembly Building and working conditions of staff have been put in place to date:

- (a) replacement of staff furniture in the Hansard Office;
- (b) the conversion of a storage room to that of an additional male restroom.
- (c) the purchase and installation of a microfiche reader the result of which one can now review copies of the Cayman Islands Blue Book and the Caymanian Compass for the years 1992 and 1993;
- (d) the installation of emergency lights throughout the building;
- (e) the installation of lockers for Members;
- (f) all available Members' photographs are on the West wall of the Building and are now labeled;
- (g) the tree to the east of the Building has been cut back in order that it will be more manageable and can be properly maintained;
- (h) the security system is presently on order and;

(i) newspapers are now available for Members.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE

The Committee agrees that this Report be the Report of the Standing House Committee to this Honourable Legislative Assembly.

Madam Speaker, under the same Standing Order 72(5), I move that the recommendations contained therein be adopted by this honourable House.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I now wish to second the Motion.

The Speaker: The question is that the Report of the Standing House Committee and the recommendations contained therein be adopted. If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Report and recommendations of the Standing House Committee have been adopted.

AGREED. RECOMMENDATIONS CONTAINED IN THE REPORT OF THE STANDING HOUSE COMMITTEE ADOPTED.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 9/94

ADOPTION OF THE TOURISM MANAGEMENT POLICY 1995—1999

The Speaker: Government Business, Government Motion 9/94. I observe that the Mover of that Motion, the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning is absent. Perhaps we will deal with this...

The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: The Minister was off the Island over the weekend. I have asked his office to attempt to reach him so we could perhaps put this further down on the agenda for when he arrives.

The Speaker: That certainly can be done when the Minister arrives.

The next business is the debate on the Report of the Public Accounts Committee. It was resolved that the commencement of the debate would be today, Monday. The debate can now commence.

OTHER BUSINESS

MOTION MOVED UNDER STANDING ORDER 24(9)(II) TO DEBATE THE REPORT OF STANDING PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE (ON THE REPORT OF THE AUDITOR GENERAL ON THE AUDITED ACCOUNTS OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31ST DECEMBER, 1993)

The Speaker: The Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee, the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

On Friday when I, as Chairman, Tabled the Report of the Public Accounts Committee, there seemed to be quite a lot of interest in having an opportunity to debate this particular report. That was the reason I asked your permission to move the Motion to allow the debate on the report. So I will just wait to hear what Members have to say.

The Speaker: The debate is open for any Member who wishes to take part. [pause]

The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This important report deals with several matters that have been highlighted by the Auditor General. We see several serious irregularities that have arisen. The report itself is the report on the Accounts for the year ended 1993. Firstly, one of the things that appears is that there has to be in accordance with the recommendations of the Committee, a stepping up of the inspection of containers by Customs as well as the enforcement of the evasion of Customs duties.

It seems that the spot checks need to be increased so that much more than what was found can be picked up. At page 5, the Audit Office estimated that "$293,623 in duty was suspected to have been evaded over an 18 month period in 1990 and 1991 by one importer." That is an important area.

Going on from there, we come to some of the most serious of the problems (on page 5) dealing with the Water Authority. What is important here to note is that the Authority itself did a considerable amount of very irregular matters: some of these may be subject to the Legal Department or the Police. So I will not go into detail in some areas even though I am not certain what is and what is not.

We had an instance where the Authority acted ultra vires. While what was done was possibly morally justified, there is the view of the Legal Department that sums that were paid for certain overseas medical expense were ultra vires, that is $106,632 were wrongly paid out and paid out without authority. Other than this, the sports sponsorships for some $43,666 were, once again, ultra vires, in the view of the Auditor General and the Legal Department and beyond the authority of the Water Authority and it was therefore unlawfully paid out.

The Auditor General also found that on a spot check of some 40 customers (which is really a small spot check compared to the number of customers there) he confirmed, and I will just read this:

"The result of this exercise confirmed under-billing of $2,634 on two accounts, plus under-billing of $1,880 on one other account. These irregularities occurred during August 1991 to January 1993." [This stopped immediately after the new Government got in.]

"What was most disturbing was for the Committee to learn that the first two accounts in the sum of $2,634 involved the former Managing Director's personal account and that of a staff member's mother. The other account for $1,880 was the water account of the former Member for Communications, Works and Agriculture, Mr. Linford Pierson." [I want to repeat that:] "The other account for $1,880 was the water account of the former Member for Communications, Works and Agriculture, Mr. Linford Pierson."

It goes on to say: "With the exception of the former Director's account, the Committee was not able to uncover any evidence to establish that the manipulation of meter readings were done with the clients' knowledge and approval."

But what is abundantly clear in this is that a benefit was received by that former Member. It was wrongly received. It goes a long way towards showing what could be a system of dishonesty by the Managing Director of the Water Authority where he was underbilling his account, a staff member's mother's account and we find that Mr. Linford was also one of the people whose account was underbilled (and not a small sum either, $1,880 over a period of time).

They said the irregularities occurred during 1991 down to January 1993. So I guess they got afraid once the new Minister came in for all of the underbillings stopped. With all of the attacks that we have had on this Government by Mr. Linford Pierson, perhaps he or one of his lady writers in the press will explain how he came to have his water account underbilled by $1,880. A serious matter, Madam Speaker. It is a small amount but the principle is very serious.

The next section of this deals with the extension of the water distribution to new sub-divisions:

"iv) Extension of Water Distribution System to New Sub-divisions: 'No formal policy has been developed to regulate financial liability for the costs of connecting new private residential developments to the water distribution system.'

'It was drawn to the Audit Office's attention that in one case payment of an invoice for $17,400 was waived. The developer paid $3,750 for materials by way of a deposit and an invoice for $17,400 was issued in July 1993 for the cost of installation by the contractor, Petroservicios Limited. This invoice was subsequently cancelled in October 1993 by the former Managing Director of the Water Authority and the cost was financed from the Authority's long term borrowings. The action was not referred to the Water Authority Board.'

'The Audit Office noted that the justification for cancelling this invoice was said, and it is quoted, "to assist the developer to keep the cost of housing lots to a minimum in order to meet the needs of Caymanians in the middle and low income bracket." This statement however does not reflect the official policy of the Water Authority Board.'

The Public Accounts Committee recommends: "(1) ...that specific policies regarding the commitment of such Authority to any liability or to make any donations to any charitable or social obligations should be put in place without being budgeted..." I presume that policies must go in subject to budget I think is what is meant there.

"(2) that every effort be made to recover the outstanding amounts due to the Water Authority arising from under-billings by the former Manager Director;

"(3) that every effort be made to recover the sum of $17,400 owed to the Water Authority for Water Extension fees written off by the former Managing Director;

"(4) that on conclusion of investigation and an audit being carried out by the Audit Office, the matter should be referred to the Legal Department for advice in order to recover any amounts determined as owing to the Authority and if criminal charges should be pursued.

"(5) that any future writing off of accounts be made only with the authority of the Water Authority Board; and

"(6) that Statutory Authorities should discharge their duties and responsibilities to the same high standard as requested of Government Departments particularly regarding tendering of contracts."

Madam Speaker, for years now I have preached that a statutory authority in the hands of either an irresponsible or corrupt person is something in which millions on top of millions of the public's dollars can be wasted, diverted, or can go into the pockets of politicians. This is why I believe that all statutory authorities should be made subject—as far as it is practically possible—to the same guidelines used by the Government; especially in relation to the Finance and Stores Regulations; in relation to money that is given out. Especially where there is a relationship with the Member

(in this instance the Minister for Communications and Works) over those four years, or for example with the Health Services Authority (the then Minister, Mr. Miller, who was in charge of that—I will come to that right after this). What we have seen here is a waste of public funds: a blatant waste of public funds diverted for the benefit of individuals. And that is wrong.

There are no checks and balances in some of these statutory authorities to avoid this. I think more and more that we must now move to a stage where there is an omnibus law that covers all statutory authorities and subjects them to matters such as the Legal Department's rulings, as we saw with the Health Services Authority. We saw the way the Member for Health at that time picked and chose what he wished from the advice given and many times went against the advice that was given.

I believe that we should have the government auditor impose on the statutory authorities substantially more auditing procedures. There has been a system of diversion of public funds to public people over a period of time; this is not a one-of situation. As first stated in here by the Auditor General these irregularities occurred during August 1991 to January 1993. They obviously panicked when the last Member for Communication and Works, Mr. Linford Pierson went out and they suddenly got back to being regular and honest again. But it has been uncovered.

I think that one cannot put too much emphasis on the fact that when people are put here as Members or Ministers, they must act within proper guidelines the same as anyone else. We are not looking at small amounts here: these are substantial amounts. The write-offs were not large, but the sports sponsorships and the other fees that were ultra vires are probably some quarter million dollars. The sums that were paid, for example, the water distribution system to the new sub-divisions appears to me to be very substantial as well.

One may sometimes hear that somebody does not know that they are getting this money or this benefit, but the public is not stupid. We all know when things are benefiting us or not benefiting us over a period of time. I submit that it is something that will have to be borne clearly in mind (especially in this upcoming election) to ensure that the people who are running to come into this honourable House remain honourable. We come in here and we talk about "honourable this one" and "honourable that one", yet we find this sort of irregularity which occurred under the last Government.

The Health Services Authority: Under the chairmanship of Mr. Ezzard Miller which I opposed—in fact, a lot of that legislation and [a number of] motions were opposed not only by me, but also by the Honourable Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, the Third Elected Member for West Bay and my colleague the Minister now for Communications and Works. We opposed because we saw that his sitting as Chairman of the Health Services Authority. . . And also out of that seven when we were altogether as Opposition was the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, Honourable McKeeva Bush. But we opposed this because we saw at the time the danger in putting too much power in the hands of one person. And, Madam Speaker, it is now pact in a very resounding way—the way that Mr. Ezzard Miller took and manipulated that authority to the benefit of his friends. Here it is: Employment of Consultants page 6 number (d): "No formal Needs Assessments appear to have been developed by Management prior to initiating discussions with the Consultants, the total cost of which was established to be $534,478. In five out of seven Consultancies studied, no Terms of Reference were ever formalised between Client and Consultant."

That is absolutely amazing. To employ consultants for half a million dollars and five out of seven of them had no terms of reference? The money was just paid out (and I submit, wrongly paid out; people beyond the consultants benefited from it). That is why it could not go through the proper process.

Speaking generally, matters like this cause corruption in other countries and destroy them; destroy their governments; and ultimately hurt the people. We find it time after time in many of the islands surrounding us. The absolute power which this Member was literally given in the Health Services Authority was used for the benefit of his friends and himself. We are not here talking about even having a system within the Health Services Authority through which it went. The money was simply paid out on the whims and fancies or the persuasion of the chairman, Mr. Ezzard Miller, to put this in the hands of Mr. Conti's company and others.

The paragraph goes on to say: "Consultants estimated to cost $100,000 or more should have been considered and approved by the Central Tenders Committee of Government. However, the Committee was disturbed to note that during the Health Services Authority's two years of existence it did not develop or institute any formal Financial Regulations to ensure the regular and proper conduct of its business by management and employees, nor did it adopt Government's existing Financial Regulations framework which requires competitive tendering of all contracts of $100,000 and over."

Further, "there was no evidence available to indicate the particular qualifications, expertise and experience of individual consultants." That is absolutely amazing. Half a million dollars paid out and we do not even know if the consultants were qualified. At least there is no evidence on file that they were qualified to do what they were employed to do. In other words, the public's money was given away at the persuasion of Mr. Ezzard Miller to consultants who did not go through a bidding process and of which there was no evidence (as was stated here) to indicate that they even had the qualifications or the experience to do so. I understand that one of them was a former car salesman or something.

This sometimes is what happens if the public in good faith puts members in here who have had a track record like this. I hope with Mr. Linford Pierson and Mr. Ezzard Miller the public will bear this in mind very clearly with the upcoming election since they have now announced their intentions to run.

We go on to find that under paragraph (iii) headed "Terms and conditions of employment": "Six of seven Consultants were based on hourly or daily consulting fees. Only one of these Consultants was covered by a proper contract which was based on Government's Standard Service Agreement for Overseas Officers. The Audit Office could determine no clear rationale for the consulting rates awarded. In terms of prevailing Civil Service salaries, the rates and associated benefits may be viewed as generous."

Basically, the chairman of the Health Services Authority did as he wished. There was not even a clear basis on which this load of money was paid out to these consultants. And look at the mess it finally got us into. There is no wonder it says there was no evidence of their qualifications on file. Here we have an example under project manager: "Remuneration was said to be based on the Health Services Authority Consultant Rate of $331 per working day with an expected 242 paid days per annum equating to a basic salary of $80,102 per annum." In addition to that he received $1,500 per month rent allowance plus a fully expensed motor car. "The Audit Office assessed the value of salary, allowances and other benefits, but excluding the cost of overseas travel, relocation and incidental costs to be in the region of $105,000 per annum. This individual's contract was terminated after approximately five months of its two year term."

Further down it says: "Termination payments totalled $48,864 including six months salary plus vacation in lieu of notice had to be paid. Had the Consultant been engaged on the normal terms of one month's salary in lieu of notice, the Health Services Authority would have saved $39,058 in termination costs." Once again, $39,000 of the public's money not accounted for, but instead paid out to one individual person. I do not think there could have been a much more generous contract because it goes on to say: "For reasons unknown to the Audit Office, the basis for payment of the Project Manager's allowance was altered so that the Health Services Authority assumed responsibility for providing accommodation at a monthly cost of up to $1,500 per month on his behalf. This Consultant also enjoyed payment of all utility bills plus deposits although his contract contained no such provisions for these benefits."

They even paid him beyond the cost of the generous contract that they had given him. This was all money that was unauthorised under the contract. I submit that is misappropriating the funds of the Authority (and I am speaking in a civil matter here) for the purposes of that individual.

They go on to deal with outstanding debts saying: "The Committee is concerned that over $1 Million of 1992 fee income is considered to be irrecoverable, despite efforts to issue bills on a regular basis."

The Committee recommends: "(1) that in future all contracts for works and services in excess of $100,000 should be considered and awarded by the Central Tenders Committee in keeping with the provisions of the Financial and Stores Regulations;

"(2) that the Health Department should consider employing a debt collector on a part-time basis...

"(3) a review of the facilities in place regarding medical records."

So when we find these two Members (Mr. Linford Pierson and Mr. Ezzard Miller) out there talking, I think the public needs to ask them one simple question: Why did you divert this large amount of the public funds which could have been used for many benefits? Give it to the needy; put it on education; give it to sports; put it on health; put it on something besides into the pockets of friends. The water bill for Mr. Linford was underbilled by $1,880 and we see that the managing director of the Water Authority was also helping himself.

The combination (this is what I want to come back to) of a statutory authority which is independent of Government's Audit and Finance and Stores Regulations; independent of the Legal Department and all the other services within Government, leads ultimately to corruption in some cases, and in some areas. I want to stress this: This honourable House this coming year must bring as much of the statutory authorities as relates to the regular and normal procedures of government back under it, while preserving their legal liability autonomy. While they are very good and very workable, if the people in them are going to play the rules right and remain honest, the day that we get irregularity creeping in, the result is economic disaster for that authority or that statutory body.

It is no wonder that in three years the Government lost $57 million under the government that existed prior to us for the last four years. When you look at this, money was going everywhere: to themselves, their friends, their friends' consultants and then the money was simply wasted in other areas.

I will move on now to page 8 "Purchase of the Campbell Building". If the instances were just one-off one could say that maybe there was a mistake. But here is another example that we have where Mr. Linford Pierson took over and dealt with the transaction. The Auditor General has clearly pointed out that Mr. Pierson went against the rules and that Government did not get good value for money in the purchase of that building.

The gist of this is that the building was "purchased in February 1992 at a total cost of $1,582,500. The total purchase price, including interest, was $222,500 in excess of the maximum price recommended by the Lands Officer."

This is perhaps the important part: "The Ministry of Agriculture, Communication and Works has confirmed that the purchase of this building was negotiated personally by the former Member responsible: Mr. Linford Pierson and not the Lands Officer or the Director of Lands and Survey."

Once again he is coming in with a hands-on approach and what we have is another irregular transaction that Mr. Linford has personally taken over the responsibility and the negotiation for. This obviously goes clearly against the policy of the Government. It goes on and I will read it: "The former Member for Communications, Works and Agriculture (Mr. Linford Pierson) and the former Member responsible for Education (Mr. Benson Ebanks) recommended the acquisition of the building and use by the Education Department and this recommendation was approved by the Executive Council. The Lands Officer concluded in his recommendations that the property was not suitable for use as Government offices."

It would be bad enough if they were buying a building that was suitable for use as Government offices and they paid some more rather than go through compulsory acquisition. But this in itself, had to be subjected to very extensive and costly renovations. It goes on in the next paragraph to say: "In addition, no structural or other survey was carried out prior to concluding the Purchase Agreement." They were so anxious to get it through that the building was not even inspected. I continue to read: "It was subsequently established by Public Works Department that the building appeared to be missing two ground floor columns and two steel columns were subsequently erected by the Public Works Department to correct the omission, including other modifications at a cost of $164,987."

So in their anxiety to pay this money out, and presumably, if it went through a real estate agency pay the commissions that had to go with that, that nobody even bothered checking it.

"The total project cost is calculated to be $1,860,897, inclusive of land, buildings, repairs, modifications and computer communications equipment and this equates to $200 per square foot."

Two hundred dollars per square foot. With all due respect, somebody got some of Government's money for the value that Government did not get because it is absolutely ridiculous to pay that sum out. So we find here that the situation with those irregularities is really a matter that I hope the public does not forget in two years' time.

The other thing is that those who keep company with them must expect to catch a tinge from the company they keep. I know that the seven Opposition Members at that time especially regarding the Health Services Authority, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the Third Elected Member for West Bay, and the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, the Honourable Minister for Communications and myself, opposed that Health Services Authority because we could see that putting it in the authority of a chairman such as that Member would lead to exactly what has come about. Incidentally, it is unfortunate that they did not listen to us regarding Cayman Airways or the country might have been another $36 million better off.

When we look at page 3, we find that the situation that I referred to there is clearly brought out in this. In paragraph 9: "The Committee offers its congratulations to the present Government for its efforts in turning around the financial position of the Cayman Islands Government for the year 1993. To appreciate the results of this financial year, it is necessary to compare these results with the financial position as was highlighted in the Public Accounts Committee's Report in 1993 as follows."

This is what needs to be stressed. In 1992, the deficit was $14,910,000. The last government's losses in 1992 were $14.9 million just for that year. Remember there was a $57 million total loss during the time that that government was in. In 1993, we showed a surplus of $2,395,000. The difference between those two is that the country was $17.4 million better off under only one year of our government than the 1992 government where they lost $14.9 million. We know where some of it went and we know who got the lower water bills and other things that contributed to this waste of money.

Perhaps most importantly is that the Capital Expenditure in 1992 was all borrowed money—all loans. In other words, the last government was not even making enough money to pay the recurrent revenue—the salaries, et cetera—and they had no money for capital. They were borrowing that money. That is why we are stuck between the Statutory Authorities and the Government and the contingent liabilities of about $140 million. That from Government's side alone, as is borne out, is now some $12 million per year which have to be paid for interest and loan repayments on money we did not borrow. But money which was wasted and blown away by the last government.

I want to correct one thing Mr. Ezzard Miller misled the public on (which appears clearly in the Reports). He is trying to add the $16 million loan we borrowed for Cayman Airways. But that is money that they had spent and the banks would not lend to them despite the fact that the loan was authorised some six or nine months before that government went out in the middle of the March or June session of 1992. They had already spent this money and the $20 million (US) or $16.5 million (CI) that was borrowed went to pay off the last government's losses in Cayman Airways of some $34.7 million in 2.5 years. They took the $12.5 million that they got from the sale of the 727-200s and they also blew that in the first year.

I think it is important that the public realises that in 1993 we turned this country around and in 1994 that turn around is continuing. Can you imagine where this country would have been if the last Government had remained and put through deficits of $14.9 million every year? That is equal to every working person in this country contributing thousands of dollars per annum, which they will have to contribute in order to pay back these losses. What do we have for it? We have nothing as is shown in the accounts. We had to borrow the money for Cayman Airways to continue operation. They had bankrupted that. They could not borrow the money through Government, which means they had bankrupted the Government.

In fact the banks would not lend us that money until they saw the first budget and they saw that we had put in place the proper measures to ensure that the country would be turned around. I cannot understand how the country was left to get in such a financial mess. A loss of $14.9 million a year is a national economic disaster in this country. Mr. Linford Pierson, with all his accounting and other abilities had to know better. So the responsibility falls clearly on the shoulders of people like him and Mr. Benson Ebanks who had financing experience and who should know better. We should not expect much better from Mr. Ezzard Miller because his background really does not give him much knowledge of anything. But Mr. Linford is an accountant. He had to know what deficits of $14.9 million were all about. Now they are out there trying to tell the public that they are going to come back and run the country.

They are confused they have left the "i" out of the word "ruin"—they are going to come back and ruin the country. What we are dealing with now, losses in 1990, 1991 as well as 1992 in the area of $15 million a year could not have gone on much further before the country would have been into a full state of bankruptcy. They had no solution to the problem.

I know that I have been criticised because I am too conservative; I look at things too carefully. I am not prepared to spend money sometimes when other people think it should be spent. I look at the public's money even more closely when it comes to spending than I do my own. I live a conservative life. I do not waste money therefore I am not going to waste the public's money. I drive a 1985 car by choice—I own it. Why should I come in this House and take any other move to have to waste large amounts of public funds? To purchase things that can be purchased at a much lesser cost?

I know that especially with Cayman Airways there gets to be some frustration when we say we cannot have new jets or new routes. I believe that we should take and refine something over and over until we get it fully right. That has worked with this Government because we are back into a surplus position and it has worked with Cayman Airways. And I have no apologies for my very careful and conservative approach toward money.

This Report clearly sets out the way that the last Government paid out funds wrongly to their consultants—their friends; they never accounted for it and the result was economic disaster. So I hope that we will now find some explanations in the long letters that are coming out from Mr. Linford and Mr. Ezzard as to why they have wasted the public funds the way they have.

There remain very few areas that I need to touch on in this report—other than to say that I believe that the public can see the results of what good government and what careful spending is all about. The National Team remains strongly together. It remains staunchly towards good economic policy and this legislature is not prepared to allow the squandering of funds that went on under the last government.

It would not have been so bad if they had had the ability to make the money they were spending, but they were borrowing it. Perhaps this is the worse thing: when you get into deficit budgeting, where you are borrowing. And by the way, when you borrow to balance the budget it is not balanced. Any idiot can go out there and borrow one-third or 10 per cent of a budget and say they have balanced it. That is not balancing a budget.

I know that I do not need to go any further into this because I have preached this for years. When they came up with these budgets that they said were balanced, they actually had deficits. In this case of $14.9 million. That is an economic disaster. Some of their recurrent expenditure were being borrowed and none of their capital expenditure was coming out of recurrent revenue. All of their capital expenditure was being borrowed. There is no Member in this House or member of the public who can stand up and say that it is good government when it is borrowing every year to deal with capital expenditure. So what I would ask of the public is to realise the economic mess that this country was in; the bankruptcy of the government then—not anymore; the bankruptcy of Cayman Airways then—but not anymore; and in the two short years how far we have come in dealing with getting Cayman and Cayman Airways and the other statutory bodies back on the proper course.

I would like to see more tightening up on the guidelines of the statutory authorities as I mentioned earlier. I think all of them should be made subject to one overall law which deals with certain areas of expenditure and finance control and accountability to the public.

So I ask the public to continue to support us. While we do not have the large expenditures that we can put out as the last governments did, on the other hand we are not committing this country and future generations to very large amounts of debt that can only mean more and more increases in revenue which would come from the public. All of the money that has been wasted has to be repaid at sometime. It does not go away. It comes out of the pockets of each and every one of us in due course.

This Government is committed to good expenditure, good budgeting, to accountability for funds that are spent. We come back to Finance Committee and sit in an open House each time and look at matters and deal with them from there. So I ask for the public's continued support. I believe in another few years we will see the economic boom that we have striven over the last two years to get in place. I think there are good times ahead for us. And when they hear persons like Mr. Linford or Mr. Ezzard out there making noises, ask them what they did with that $57 million in the last three years and the $34.5 million in Cayman Airways which is separate from that amount, and why did these funds go out to their friends here, there and everywhere? I believe their answers will be that they need to be left where they are because they are a danger to the public when they have their hands on substantial amounts of money.

Thank you.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.15 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to offer my contribution to the Standing Public Accounts Committee Report and to say that I am pleased that I was able to serve on this Committee. I would like to offer thanks to the Auditor General and his Department for their assistance in helping the Committee compile this Report.

Accountability is something I believe in. As children we were raised to be accountable for our actions. Earlier, in October this year, the Congress of the Caribbean Organisation of Supreme Audit Institutions held a conference here and its theme was "Towards Greater Accountability". I would like to think that our present Government could say that this is its theme and has been for the past two years since we were elected.

Public money should be used wisely and spent more carefully than if it were our own money.

Looking over the Auditor General's Report, I wonder why Government has policies and budgets in place if they are not going to be followed and adhered to by Members of Executive Council. As we see happened in two statutory authorities, namely the Health Services Authority and the Ministry of Communications and Works in their dealings in that they ignored policies and budgets.

On page 3 in the Introduction, I would like to reiterate the performance of the Government in turning around the financial position of these Islands in 1993. I think the previous speaker did a good job in pointing out some of these, but if Honourable Members will bear with me I would like to touch on some of these figures as well. In the Budget Surplus and Deficit in 1992, there was a deficit of $14.910 million; in 1993 (one year later) we had a surplus of $2.395 million. If we were to look at the turn around, that is over $17 million that we would have in surplus. We are coming from a loss position and we have a surplus.

In the realised revenue in 1992 it was $121 million and in 1993 it was $135.3 million. In other words, in 1992 funds were not being collected to the extent that they should have been. In 1993 that is over $14 million or an increase of 11.8% compared to 1992.

In the recurrent expenditure for 1992—$116.752 million and in 1993, $130.7 million; $16.66 million was for Cayman Airways. If we were to take out the $16.66 million that we used to subsidise Cayman Airways that would leave around $114 million. Again that is still $2 million less than 1992.

The Statutory Boards: Capital expenditure in 1992 was $13.253 million and $8.782 million for 1993. This capital expenditure was all local revenue. I think this speaks well for the Government—and its 'walking softly' one might say—to make sure that public funds are used wisely.

Looking over some of the highlights of this report, I would like to start with Northward Prison and note the amount of $220,247 that was paid out in overtime. From May 1989 to April 1994, the sum of $167,188 was paid in respect of four administrative grades. Now 92.5 per cent of this went to two of the four administrative officers. I feel this needs to be corrected. How can two individuals earn most of the overtime—92.5 per cent? The Director, however, assured the Committee that it was justifiable. But you will note from our recommendations that better scheduling and deployment of staff is necessary and that all overtime incurred must be approved by the Director. Overtime is something which I think most Members of this House have questioned in Finance Committee over the past two years and are reluctant to spend funds when deployment of staff could be done better.

Concern is raised over container inspections and the amount of duty evasion that took place in the Customs Department by certain individuals. I do not understand why when they are given time to pay duty evasion they still do not pay. If Customs Duty is evaded it should be payable upon demand in order to discourage this type of activity. There was $293,623 worth of Customs Duty suspected to have been evaded. That is a lot of money which could go towards a lot of things, for example: our school system and our roads. This needs to be addressed.

We recommended that the penalties of the Customs Law should be reviewed and that limited time imposed for the prosecution of evasion of duty should be extended. I believe that it is now six months and that within that time prosecution must take place. However, if it is not discovered for 12 months then prosecution cannot take place. This should be reviewed. I hope that the Customs Law will be reviewed in the early sittings of this honourable House next year. Customs Duty is one of our main areas of revenue and this cannot be taken lightly. The public should not be trying to cheat the Government out of duty when it knows that we have no other means of income. This is wrong and will hopefully be addressed.

The Water Authority: This was a "shock of surpri-sation"—as one gentleman used to say—in that the managing director blatantly exceeded his authority. It appears that he was a law unto himself. He did not bring anything to the Water Authority Board prior to committing large sums of money—$106,632—for medical expenses for an individual who had worked at the Authority. That did not come before the board for two years—1991-93. I am not quite sure how these funds (as well as funds for sports scholarship of $43,666 that were paid to various sports clubs and organisation) were hidden from the Board of Directors. Maybe the idea of supporting the clubs and organisations was well meant. But he had no authority to use these public funds on any organisation without authority from the Board. Not only did he spend money, but he had underbilled two accounts: one happened to be his own—$2,634 on two bills, plus $1,880 on another account which happened to be for the Member in charge of the Water Authority.

I was surprised when the Water Authority accountant shared with us that the former manager did the billing of these water charges. No one questioned how he arrived at these charges. So if he felt that someone should pay $2,000 on his water bill, it was passed on to the accountant and that is the way it was done. No policy was put in place. Then to write off $1,880 on the water account of the former Member responsible for the Water Authority, is very disturbing.

Several weeks ago that same former Member, Mr. Linford Pierson, held a meeting and announced that he was going to be running. He ran down this Government saying that we have no policies in place and here he was the former Member responsible for the Water Authority Board under his Portfolio. We see all of these things which took place.

There is one other area where $17,400 was waived in the case of payment for putting water into a sub-division. Here, again, the former director of the Water Authority took it upon himself to waive the amount without the Water Authority Board's knowledge or agreement to this.

Madam Speaker, you will notice that we recommended that an audit be carried out. And if the sum of money owed to the Water Authority can be determined, that it should be referred to the Legal Department so that it can be recovered and criminal charges be pursued against the former director. It is unbelievable that one individual can take public funds and misappropriate them and use them in the manner in which he has.

I think the previous speaker also explained that the specific policies concerning authorities should be in place. It is very important to avoid things like this from taking place again. They should fall under the same procedure as Government departments do and not allow the chairman or the director of a statutory authority to have the power to misappropriate and misuse public funds.

The Health Services Authority: It was disturbing to learn that the amount of $534,478 was spent on seven consultants who were given no terms of reference and no formalised agreement and no proposed work-plan.

Looking through the Auditor General's report on page 41 we see that computers were also not budgeted for: $33,000 for training, $18,000 for licence fees, $13,000 for equipment rental, $10,000 for software development and $9,000 for miscellaneous expenses. So we have the Health Services Authority spending funds and we have to wonder: why have a budget? This is why there is such a heavy deficit for the Health Services Authority, because all these funds were not included. How in the world can they spend funds if they are not budgeted and put in place for the Authority? Then Members of past Executive Council blast the Government for not having policies in place? That is unbelievable, Madam Speaker.

The terms and conditions of employment were not covered by a proper contract and there was only one based on Government's standard service agreement for overseas officers.

The project manager who was hired for the Health Services Authority to oversee the building of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital was the highest paid civil servant as stated in the Report. Here he was receiving $331 per working day and in addition $1,500 per month rent allowance, plus a fully expensed motor car. This amounted to over $105,000 per annum.

Then what was surprising was that the former Member for the Health Services Authority must have known that he was not going to be re-elected. And that in writing this contract, the agreement included that any changes to the anticipated work period of approximately two years would result in payment of either six months' salary, or the remaining term of the contract, whichever was shorter. Normally overseas civil servants on contract terms are entitled to only one month's salary in lieu of notice.

This question of honesty has to be raised when the public learns about this. Here we learned that the Health Services Authority would have saved $39,058 in termination costs if this term of contract had not been given to the project manager. This is very, very serious and I hope that the former Member will come down to this Legislative Assembly, get a copy of this report, read it and see the things that he has done in case he has forgotten—all the public money used with nothing to show for it.

Outstanding debt: Over $1 million for 1992 in fee collection, is considered to be unrecoverable. This is sad because the attitude 'because it is Government I do not have to pay', exists here. Through you, Madam Speaker, I would appeal to the listening public that from a moral point of view if they know that the funds are owned, make every effort to pay them on a weekly or monthly basis.

The Committee recommends that in the future all contracts for works and services in excess of $100,000 be considered and awarded by the Central Tenders Committee in keeping with the provisions of the Financial and Stores Regulations. And again, not because it is a statutory authority should that mean that it can bypass this. It is still the public's funds and should be accounted for very closely.

I believe a debt collector is now in place to try to collect some of the outstanding debts. We also recommended "a review of the facilities in place regarding medical records and that management takes steps to ensure that all revenue occurrences are completely and accurately recorded and clients are billed accordingly."

Turning now to the purchase of the Campbell Building: this was a big issue in the last sitting of the Legislative Assembly leading up to the election. Here we learned that this purchase amounted to $200 per square foot. Now I believe that the average cost to build is between $70 and maybe the maximum of $150 per square foot.

Again, the former Member (the Minister of Agriculture), informed the Auditor General that this was personally negotiated by the former Member, Mr. Linford Pierson and not the Lands Officer or the Director of Lands and Surveys. This is not in keeping with the Lands Valuation Acquisition Disposal and Exchange Guidelines. This is the same individual who continues to state that the present Government has no policy. He had a policy and he ignored that policy. The result is a building that the public should not have to pay for. The Lands Officer recommended that it was not suitable for use as Government offices. Yet the former Member was very defiant and insisted without a certificate of occupancy. That certificate has still not been issued by the Planning Department even though Government is still paying for this building.

In early 1993, the four Members for George Town were graciously granted an office in this building to meet our constituents and in the rest room in that office there is a leak. It is still leaking because the only way to fix this leak is to break into the wall and try to stop the leak from there. The Public Works Department had to go in and put in two steel columns. This cost $164,987, in addition to the purchase price of this building.

This is very serious because again, this is public funds. The Lands Officer recommended that the building not be bought. Here we are paying for a building that has no final certificate of occupancy. The Committee feels that good value for money was not arrived at in the purchase of this building. Again, when an individual such as the former Member for Communication and Works, Mr. Pierson, can go ahead and do what he feels like doing, is not good accountability. This is the reason why he is not sitting in this House today. I hope that the people of George Town will not even consider putting him in that position again because this is not accountability.

The Committee recommends that: "the authorised policy and procedures as prescribed in the 'Lands Valuation, Acquisition, Disposal and Exchange Guidelines' should be strictly adhered to with respect to the purchase of any property on behalf of Government; and that "the relevant final certificate of occupancy by the Planning Department" be issued before Government considers purchasing a building for its use.

Concern was expressed in the outstanding accommodation tax owed to Government. In the passing of the Accommodation Tax Bill last week, the present Government (in order to tighten up this collection and to make sure that all funds are collected for the Treasury), learned that three persons are now in the Treasury Department for this purpose. Taxes owed to Government by hotels and guest houses will not be withheld but turned in and stiff penalties will be imposed. There were a lot of funds that were not collected. Money was spent which was not authorised by the Board or by the proper authority by the two former Members of Executive Council, Hon. Linford Pierson and Hon. Ezzard Miller. The misappropriation of these funds (which they misappropriated) was not good accountability. If they are allowed to return to run this country I think we will probably all have to leave and be refugees. There is no way that these Islands can sustain the heavy deficits that they placed us in just one year: over $14 million.

I am sorry to see the Honourable Anthony Eden leave the Committee, but as the Jeffersons say on television, 'he has moved on up to higher places'. I appreciate the input he gave the Committee and I look forward to working with the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman as a member of this Committee. I believe that all Members of this House will take into consideration the belief of accountability when spending public funds and that we will continue to be accountable for all these funds.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, I have not come to bury Caesar, because I think he has already been deposed. Rather, I would like to praise the present Government. The Third Elected Member for George Town and the Minister for Education and Aviation both spoke about the efforts of this Government in turning around the financial position of the Cayman Islands Government during 1993 continuing into this year. Of course, they barely scratched the surface. This has been the economic miracle of the century. When we see, as pointed out in the Report, years of deficit being reversed as it were overnight—the 1992 deficit alone of nearly $15 million being converted into a surplus in one year—this truly is a miracle.

This is not a statement written only by the Members of the Public Accounts Committee who, we may say, would be partial towards the Government. The statement actually comes almost mutatis mutandis from the audited accounts. On page 2, I read: "It will be observed from Table 1 that for fiscal year 1993, Government reversed the recent trend of Budget deficits with a small Budget surplus of $2.395 million." Not simply wiping out one year's deficit but a trend which had developed, a trend which the previous Government seemed not to have cared about and certainly were incapable of stemming the outward flow of cash from the Treasury.

This did not come about by chance. It came about by prudent financial planning. As we see from the statement on page 3 of this Report, the revenue for 1993 had been a healthy one with an increase of 11.8 per cent over 1992. Please note, if the increase had been 12 per cent, instead of 11.8 per cent (and it was 12 per cent to the nearest whole number) it would have been an increase of exactly 50 per cent above the increase which had occurred from 1991 to 1992. So something must have happened to bring about this increase. Here, again, this is not a wild statement. It is clearly set out in the Auditor General's Report on page 4: "Local revenue increased by $14.282 million, from $121.019 million to $135.301 million."

This was not a shot in the dark, revenue increases were achieved in most departments. The whole Government performed well with the largest increases occurring in duty and land transfer tax. Somewhere else in the Report congratulations are offered to Customs for bringing in the mammoth sum of over $55 million. Something happened in that period to increase the economic activity which this country needed so that people would transfer land and would import commodities. I maintain that it was the timely change of Government.

Another feature of this marvel of economics is that the recurrent expenditure, although above the previous year, had only increased by 10.6 per cent, while the previous year the increase had been 14.5 per cent. The significant point here is that the recurrent expenditure increased by less than the revenue and this is a healthy state. You can spend all the money in the world when you have the income.

So the recurrent expenditure for that year was and is maintained in good shape. It would have been a lot better if it had not been for the $16.666 million, which the Government borrowed for Cayman Airways. The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation explained that that was not a loan of this Government, it was a loan which the previous Government tried to obtain from the bank to cover some of their losses prior to the last election.

Although they had come to the Legislative Assembly in the early part of 1992 and had obtained the necessary guarantee from the Legislative Assembly, all the major banks in the country refused to lend that government the money because of the way the Airline had been run then and because of the sorry state of the country's finances. So the result would have been even better than it actually was if it had not been for this figure. In fact, if you take that figure of $16 million from the Recurrent Expenditure, we are left with an expenditure of $114.034 million which is more than $2.5 million below the 1992 figure.

One point not raised by the previous two speakers and a point that I consider very important is the Capital Expenditure for 1993. That capital expenditure was $8.782 million, a smaller sum than the previous year. The significant point about it is that it all came from local revenue. We never heard of anything like that for years. Not since the 1970s and early 1980s did we have all capital expenditure come from local revenue. So this is a marvellous turn around.

What it means is that there were no borrowings in 1993, except the one I mentioned for Cayman Airways. Not even for capital works. The Government had its finances in hand. In fact, I believe that if one looks at page 4 of the Auditor General's Report he will see that this is not a statement made up by Members of the National Team. It actually comes word-for-word from the Report. The last paragraph on page 4 reads: "The small capital programme of $8.782 million (excluding projects financed for Statutory Authorities) was fully funded from local Revenue."

Now in the Summary of Economic Recovery there is one figure that has increased and that is the statutory debt—the debt required by law where the Government has to pay pensions and pay loans which are already in place. Those debts are unavoidable. But here again, on page 4, the Auditor General paints a rosy picture of the Statutory expenditure when compared to the overall finances of the Government. This is the third paragraph on page 4 of the Auditor General's Report:

"Statutory expenditure increased by $2.260 million from $7.891 million to $10.151 million. Most of the increase was attributable to debt servicing costs ($1.790 million) plus increased pension costs of $473,000."

One might ask what is so beautiful about this and the answer is found in the following paragraph: "Debt servicing costs increased from $5.125 million (4.2% of revenue) to $6.915 million (5.1% of revenue)." What the Auditor General has actually stated here is that the cost of servicing the long-term debt of the Government was only 5 per cent of the revenue. This is, indeed, remarkable. I recently attended a conference where one of the subjects was what can small countries—small islands, do to service their debt. I heard about two countries where it now takes 80 per cent of total revenue to service their debts and pay for their armed forces. Only 20 per cent of the revenue remains to pay for hospitals, schools, civil servants, et cetera. In fact, I believe that years ago a former Financial Secretary said that once we did not exceed 10 per cent of our revenue to service our debt the country could handle its debt.

I am pleased to announce that the present Government through its prudent management—when I say prudent, I mean not borrowing all they can borrow, not doing all the projects they can dream up, not wasting all the money they can waste, but by prudent planning in the "George McCarthy" style and by enforcement of the Financial and Stores Regulations has kept this matter of debt under control so that the country can continue to prosper.

Of course, another feature not mentioned by the previous two speakers who spoke about the healthy financial situation, is found on page 5 of the Auditor General's Report, the second paragraph: "Government net assets increased from $3.160 million to $5.959 million at year end 1993." When the Government's assets almost doubled, because it is only about $200,000 short of doubling, this is, indeed, a good picture. One of the Islands' most successful businessmen, Dr. Roy, told me years ago (probably 40 years ago) that he did not keep any fancy books, but if at the end of the year he had more cash in the bank than he had at the beginning he knew he had a good year. I believe this must be the same policy that this Government is using. If they see an increase in their assets, and if they see an increase in their cash, they know that things are going well.

I will finish in maybe another five minutes if you will permit me. Other Members have spoken on some of the irregularities that have been found by the Auditors. I would like to say that many of them were expected, particularly those concerning the Health Services Authority.

As a Member of the seven-member Backbenchers, along with the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and others, I fought tooth and nail not only against the setting up of this Authority, but against making the Member responsible for Health the chairman of that Health Services Authority. We also fought (as the whole country knows), against the change of Finance Committee which removed all the checks and balances and took away the restraining power of the elected members of Government. It gave free reign to an unbridled and spendthrift Executive Council. So I am not surprised that the Auditor General has come up with the type of findings that he has come up with. In fact, I would not be surprised if more is lurking somewhere in some disguise unknown to him.

I do not feel that it is necessary for me to restate what the Report has so clearly set out, but only to say that I congratulate the members of the Committee for their report and I would like to congratulate the Government including the Honourable Financial Secretary for the fine performance which is the subject of this Public Accounts Committee Report.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 9/94

ADOPTION OF THE TOURISM MANAGEMENT POLICY 1995—1999

The Speaker: The next item to be brought in at this time is Government Motion 9/94, where the Motion was moved by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning. The adoption of the Tourism Management Policy. The question has been proposed and the matter is open for debate if anyone wishes to debate.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Borden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is accurate to remark that the Opposition shares the view of the Government that Tourism is an important area which lends itself well to the economic development of this country. Not only to the economic development: it can be taken a step further to include the aspect of human resource development in our country. So we encourage the Government to continue to explore ways in which we in this country can use the development of tourism to maintain the high standard of living which we now have.

There are, however, some concerns that we have and which we think were not addressed in the detail which they deserve by the plan put forward by the Government.

From my own position, I prefer the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan presented by Coopers & Lybrand consulting group because that plan affords us the opportunity of some long-term tourism development vision as the period of ten years, in my estimation, is a good framework to set out a plan as sensitive and as important to our development as is tourism. It also affords the opportunity of an assessment after five years. I see a ten-year plan as having a distinct advantage over a five-year plan, because in one can argue that a five-year plan is merely the life-span of a Government as our elected governments are usually for four years.

So, having a ten-year plan would allow us the opportunity of setting certain things in motion. Then at the mid point have an assessment or perhaps more accurately, a continuous assessment for the first four years then make the adjustments as and when we see the necessity arising. It also lends for a certain amount of continuity. For if we have a series of five-year plans it is a little more problematic to develop a system of continuity which is appropriate, effective without any disjoints in the system.

When saying that, I realised that the weakness in our system is that it may not be politically expedient because one political directorate who favours emphasising certain aspects might be replaced by another political directorate who does not see the urgency or the necessity. Nevertheless, the plan to be effective should be drawn up in such a manner that it offers some scope over whatever political directorate occupies the seat of Government to carry on certain policies which are of national interest. That leads me conveniently to make some obvious statements regarding the development of tourism. One of the things that we have to come to grips with is that tourism is one of those industries where, unfortunately, the countries which go into this development do not have all of the factors in their control. There are certain characteristic disadvantages as well as there are advantages.

We all know the advantages, especially as they relate to the case of the Cayman Islands. But just to briefly enumerate these: We have an attractive climate, a unique culture, we are geographically located where we are a short travel time away from most United States and Canadian destinations, we speak the same language (even if our accents are different), and we are steeped in the politically stable British Government tradition (which is a selling point many people use). So much so that our reputation is spreading beyond the traditional market places of the United States and Canada to Continental Europe and to the Orient.

In spite of some crime and the necessity to adjust some habits, we are still, comparatively speaking, relatively crime free. We have a high standard of living, people who are hospitable, people who are well-travelled and therefore not averse to entertaining outsiders.

The disadvantages are that an industry like tourism often has to suffer seasonal fluctuations. These seasonal fluctuations in themselves are not bad because we can plan for these. It is the irregular fluctuations due to world political or economical conditions that are more disturbing. A good case in point is a few years ago, with the Gulf War and the threat of world terrorism by Iraq, which brought the result for that year our tourism declined significantly. When that happened it threw many things out of economic kilter. We have to realise that there are bound to be (even in a world free of cold war) periodic, irregular fluctuations over which we have no control and which, unlike the seasonal fluctuations, we cannot easily plan for or easily contain.

Then too is the point well articulated in the Coopers & Lybrand Report on page III, where they speak of the hazards of over-development. This is perhaps the point at which many people will agree we are now. The question can be asked: For whom are we now developing if we have to import labour to man some of the institutions which we are developing to cater to our guests? Over capacity also means a strain on the ecology; it puts more pressure on us to conserve and to preserve our natural environment.

Some years ago someone likened our development position to being on a treadmill: once you get on a treadmill it becomes difficult to get off. What has happened is that we are in a development position where it is difficult for us to slow down. Certainly, no one would think of stopping, but we have now to pause long enough or to so pace ourselves so that we do not burn out in a short time. When we consider the reason why people come here is because we have a good environment, a hospitable population and the fact that our natural resources are so attractive.

The Coopers & Lybrand Report in the Executive Summary section takes these matters in greater detail than does the Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan laid on the Table by the Honourable Minister for Tourism. It suggests two other areas which I think are significant and which I note were not developed as extensively in the Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan as they were in the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan.

One has to do with the fact that a substantial outlay for infrastructure is required for any large scale development. We certainly see the hotel being proposed for the old Galleon Beach site is going to be one of the larger hotels. We know that the roads are already straining, bursting at the seams, in a manner of speaking, along that particular stretch. Certainly a hotel of that size must add a significant amount of strain for what is already an overburdened transportation system. There are water and sanitation needs.

In the Coopers & Lybrand Report again, point 5 on page viii, the point was made that approximately 30 per cent of all employment opportunities are filled by expatriates. In the Tourism Management Implementation Plan, it is a weakness that there is an absence of any proposal to deal with this. This is a question that has been begging an answer for years. I want to reiterate that we are not speaking now of a position where we just have guests to contend with. We are talking about 30 per cent of all employment opportunities being filled by people from outside the country.

A point I would like to make, which is not often made in this kind of argument, is that while we are developing in this fashion, we are also losing valuable foreign exchange. When we employ people from outside of the region it means these people are presumably sending remittances to their country of origin. That is valuable foreign exchange that the Cayman Islands is losing, when we consider that in catering to tourists we already lose a significant amount of foreign exchange because of the fact that we have to import most of the food stuffs (the liquor, et cetera). So there comes a time when one can quite logically ask: What sense does it make to develop beyond this point, if we are losing foreign exchange not only through the importation of goods, but also from the remittances sent abroad by foreign workers?

I think that the Government needs to address the matter of employment urgently. That is why I found favour with the idea of the moratorium on hotel development along the Seven Mile Beach. This would have allowed us time according to the Coopers & Lybrand Report to have a cooling off period; a period where we could assess, where we could come to terms with what is described in the Report on page two as "Hard Choices". It is suggested that we take a state-of-the-art approach to tourism management and development. This is defined in the Coopers & Lybrand Consulting Report as approaching both the product and the service from a customer, as opposed to an operator, perspective.

I also believe that one of the hard choices that we have to make must be towards putting a ceiling on the number of visitors we can capably cater to in the run of a year. Is this 500,000 stay-over, visitors? Is it 350,000? 400,000? We should also set a target date so that for example, by the year 2000 we are going to level off at 500,000 stay-over visitors per year.

We must begin to bear in mind that our ecology, our human resource element, the mere geographical size, place constraints on how many people we can respectively, comfortably and efficiently cater to in the run of a year. Above all we must, as was mentioned in the Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan, and again, in the Coopers & Lybrand Consulting Group Plan, emphasise quality tourism. I would think that if we are going after quality tourism that in itself is a reminder that we have to set certain ceilings and limitations.

So one of these hard choices must be how many people, what is the optimum number of stay-over visitors can we efficiently cater to in the run of a year? If we do not have that optimum number now, if we are not up to that optimum number, how do we plan to get to that optimum number? If we have 350,000 now, how many years are we going to give ourselves if we think that 500,000 is an optimum number? How are we going to get there? Are we going to do that in two years? In one year? How great are the leaps going to be? It is not an easy decision.

The plan laid on the Table by the Honourable Minister does not say how we are going to do that. Or if, indeed, that is a focus of some importance. Not only do we have to decide when and how we are going to get there. But we also have to decide how we are going to incorporate our Caymanian people who are going to be working in these industries. What kind of training programmes are we going to put in place? What kind of requirements are we going to make on the developers of these institutions? Are we going to go for an under-study programme?

Again, one of the significant points that immediately bounces in one's face is the fact that mention is made that Caymanians are really not occupying the middle and high echelon of the tourism industry. Sure we have bartenders and housekeepers and bellboys, et cetera, but there are few, if any (and I would certainly say that there is not a significant number of young Caymanians) in line to become food and beverage managers and general managers. So we need to have some kind of programme to get this in place.

I know that in some of the schools we now teach Tourism as a subject. But it may be wise to consider making the subject of tourism an integral part of the curriculum. So that even from the primary school stage our children are introduced to the idea of tourism and can be encouraged to go into that field. It is in comparison to the financial sector, a wide open field. One of those fields that lends itself very well for progression through the ranks.

It is significant to mention that the plan laid on the Table by the Government does not say how we are going to deal with this aspect. We have to be careful too that Caymanian people do not become defeatists by getting the notion that their only value is to provide the services at the lower end and hence they become resentful when we have to import as many as 30 per cent of the work force from overseas.

Since we are at the stage where we can do some hard bargaining, particularly with new developers, once we get able and qualified Caymanians who can take advantage of advanced training. I think we should work towards placing them because of the fact that the business of hotels is so competitive here and because we are such a desirable destination. We can extract consideration from future developers which will allow our Caymanian people to be trained to occupy positions at all levels in the development of the hospitality industry.

There is a point which both reports are concerned with, namely, the image. I mentioned that we have a very good image. However, the Cayman Islands is viewed as an expensive destination. The Coopers & Lybrand Report places special emphasis on this. But this is not necessarily a detraction. We can use it to our advantage if we promote that high priced image into an image which leaves the visitor with the sense that they have received the best value for the money spent. I think in all fairness to successive political directorate the present Government not excluded, we are on the way towards doing that. We are concerned about that.

But one has to bear in mind that we have just added some fuel to the high-priced image notion by the fact that we have just raised the room tax. However, all is not lost because many of the people who come here come because they are safe—not bothered by hawkers and peddlers as they are in some destinations. Also, because the society enables them to operate with a certain amount of comfort and familiarity, particularly those people from North America and those people who are familiar with the English language.

There is another aspect which I think should have been dealt with in greater detail and that has to do with the opportunities for entrepreneurship in the tourism business. A few days ago my colleagues and I were reminded that along the Seven Mile Beach Road, for example, there is but one restaurant which is Caymanian owned—fully Caymanian owned. In the business of hotels, there is only one hotel which is fully Caymanian-owned. So we also have to find a way to make it more attractive for Caymanians and Caymanian entrepreneurship to get into the business of catering to visitors.

I suppose that one could rationalise this by saying that if one were to travel throughout the Caribbean and check the history of the development of tourism we are not in a unique position. I think it is safe to say that when tourism first developed in Jamaica there were few, if any, wholly and solely Jamaican-owned hotels. Now we have Jamaican hoteliers on a grand scale. So much so that they can compete with international chains. They have broadened their entrepreneurship from Jamaica into the Caribbean.

According to information, Cuba is one of the places where many of them have gone to develop. I think some years ago one or more of them expressed some interest in developing here. So if that could be used as a point of solace and comfort to say that we are still young in the business, it may well be that more Caymanian entrepreneurship will evolve as we become more experienced in the business. It may well be that the way to go in the beginning is to hope for some kind of joint venture operation between Caymanians and foreign based capital. I do not think that it would be most beneficial if there were no Caymanian input at a significant level in this industry. It would be a pity. It would also be one of those kinds of situations which could lead Caymanians to become disinterested by virtue of the fact that they do not have a vested interest.

So I hope to see at some stage more Caymanian participation, particularly in hotels and the larger restaurants which cater to tourists. This in itself would be positive in more ways than one because it would ensure that Caymanians are reaping some of the attractive economic returns. It would also put these people in a position where they could plough some of the profits made back into related investments or in any case it would be monies which stayed in the country. If the entrepreneurs did not wish to expand into tourist related areas, it would be money which could still be used to develop other areas of our economy.

I have a growing interest in this whole notion of cruise versus stay-over visitors. I notice from the readings that there is an interesting debate brewing about the benefits of one versus the other.

Some years ago the Caribbean government had some serious concerns with the FCCA, which is the cruise association which operates out of Florida. They employed as one of their consultants the Right Honourable Michael Manley, former Prime Minister of Jamaica as one of their consultants and advisors. They had a big debate and I suppose that they did not realise that Michael Manley had softened his attitude because in the 1970s, when he was at the height of his political power, he was rather controversial and was rather irreverent towards the whole notion of tourism and tourist development.

However, suffice it to say that he changed his position. But their concerns were that there is a significant difference between the benefits emanating from the cruise ship industry and the benefits which emanate from the stay-over visitors, or, as I prefer to term them—the land-based tourists. I notice that neither report highlights this significance.

I think (and I am not the originator of this idea, nor am I alone with it) that one of the weaknesses of Caribbean tourism is that we fail to see cruise ship business and stay-over tourist business as one and the same. I will go on to explain what I mean by that in a few minutes. Suffice it to say that over the past ten years there has been a more significant increase in the cruise ship business (the number of cruise ship visitors coming to the Caribbean) than there has been the number of stay-over tourists. Why is that? I will get to that in a minute.

There is also an absence of any calibration of the contributions of the cruise ship visitors as against the stay-over visitors. It may be because it is not so easy to calibrate the contributions of the cruise ship visitors because for the most part they may stay in port a day, maybe 18 hours, 24 hours, 36 hours. Whereas the stay-over visitors are here for either three, five or seven days. So it is easier, even from the point of view of Immigration records, to make certain calibrations.

Back to the question of why there has been a more significant growth in cruise ship visitors than stay-over tourist visitors. The answer lies in several factors. The first one has to do with the availability of financing. I read that it is easier to get favourable financing for the building of cruise liners than it is to get favourable financing for the building and developing of hotels.

Countries like Japan, Italy, Norway and the other Scandinavian countries which are traditional ship builders, recognised that the ship building industry was a dying industry. So these countries are eager to give soft term financing for the building of cruise ships. That is why recently there has been a trend to build larger and larger cruise ships to the point where we now have some mega-liners launched and some currently being built.

Financing for hotels, according to a journal that I was reading, comes mostly from commercial banks at commercial bank rates with minimum ten-year periods. In these cases the entrepreneurs have to negotiate at commercial bank rates. Ten years, according to the information that I have, is the minimum time that it takes to realise the return on the significant investment into the hotel. In many instances, if one is not careful, by the time he reaches the point where he has just begun to make it, that is the point at which most of the obligations are forthcoming.

So, it is easier and more attractive in that sense to go for the availability of the finance to build a cruise liner as against a hotel.

Then there are other factors: Import duty. After the hotel is built one has to pay import duties on most of the food stuff, liquor, etcetera. That is certainly the case in the Cayman Islands. Cruise ships do not have the same expenses because supplies for the cruise liner, particularly when it comes to wines, spirits and condiments are usually bought duty-free in bulk. So there is a significant difference as far as the land-based operation is concerned.

Another factor: Employment. In the land-based hotel industry, certainly in the Caribbean, we have the same employment needs as the cruise industry. But note the difference: the difference is that in the land-based industry often we have to go through a lengthy and costly work permit process. We have to wait until the work permit applications are processed. Cruise ships have no such requirements, even though many of them operate exclusively in these waters. Many of them use crews of convenience—Filipinos, people from the Canary Islands, Spanish people, Portuguese people, people who they hire for considerably less wage than they could hire from the region or from North America.

The result is that land-based hotels have to charge a much higher room rate so as to create the cash flow to amortise the bank debt in comparison to what the cruise ships have to charge. Then the whole notion of who does the booking is growing in significance. It is documented that travel agents do 70 per cent of the sales, as far as the Caribbean is concerned. Cruise lines use their non-taxed profits to pay travel agents commissions at the rate of 15% to 20% of the entire package, which hotels cannot afford to do. Here, again, is another area where the cruise lines have a distinct advantage over on-shore facilities.

Then, of course, this one we are all familiar with—the Shore Excursions. Whereas hotels offer small percentages for selling certain land-based entertainment packages, cruise ships demand as much as 50% commission on tours that they sell. We know from complaints that we hear as we move around that some of them go so far as to discourage shopping in some complexes which are reluctant to pay the substantial commission that they demand.

So what I am saying is that in the Caribbean we have inadvertently given the cruise lines a distinct advantage over land-based tourism because we are not in a position, or let me put it this way, we have not demanded from the cruise lines the kinds of concessions that we are able to get from land-based tourism.

There is a point which we should bear in mind. We should not lay the emphasis on going after the head tax of the cruise ship lines. I believe that we could get away with that, but that would still not be bringing us the yield that we could get from other areas if we do a comparison of what we get from the land-based tourism and we try to apply some of these charges to the cruise ships. The final point I wish to make on this is that land-based operations now realise the advantage that the cruise liners have which is the reason why more and more of them are going into the all inclusive packages. They see this as a way of competing with the cruise lines and reducing the advantages that the cruise lines have. I am suggesting that this whole business of land-based tourism versus the cruise lines is an area which is fertile for further investigation as to how we may be able to arrive at more revenue from tourism.

Let me hasten to say that by no means am I saying that we should discourage the cruise liners. I am not saying that. I am saying that we should examine it to see if it is possible to make it a more equitable system in terms of being able to draw off from the cruise lines as much as, or from as many areas as we can now draw off from the land-based tourism ventures.

There is another point which has special significance to us in this business of land-based versus cruise lines. We are now at a point where we are considering expanding the mooring facilities. We have to ask ourselves a question: If we are going this route, is this an undertaking to be done exclusively by the Government? Will this be a joint venture between the Government and some of the cruise lines? If it is an undertaking which is going to be done exclusively by the Government, or even if it is a joint venture, then, the Government must be in a position where it can realise through direct means some, if not all, of the monies invested in the infrastructure. I am saying that in a land-based operation we would not have that kind of dilemma because much of the mechanisms are already in place. We know that there are import duties, planning permit fees, work permit fees, et cetera. These are things that we would not necessarily be able to draw from in an operation that we were putting down to cater to the cruise lines.

So to repeat: Caribbean governments (and I am not so concerned with Caribbean governments as I am with our own Government) must come to grips with this, particularly so, as we are at the point where the growth between the two types of tourism is significant. It would also be interesting to realise how many people from the cruise lines return as stay over visitors. This is an area where we probably reap an advantage without having to expend large sums on advertising. Persons who come to visit for a couple of hours and see enough of the Island or meet enough of our people, probably are so impressed that they will return at some stage as a stay over visitor.

Let me make my position unequivocally clear: While I am saying that there is a difference, I am by no means advocating that we cut out or that we even discourage the cruise lines. I am saying that what we have to do in light of the fact that we already have an image of a high price destination, is to try to find a way so that we can equalise the playing field. So that all the strain on the revenue collection and monies received by the Government for tourism is not inordinately placed on land-based tourism, thus giving the cruise lines an obvious and inordinate advantage. We have to get to the point where we see land-based tourism and cruise ship tourism as one and the same entity.

One of the things that the Coopers & Lybrand Consulting Group made mention of that I do not recall seeing in the Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan, is that there should be a special designated beach for cruise ship passengers. I wholeheartedly support this. I am going to suggest that we should think quite seriously about this, if for no other reason that it is becoming increasingly more difficult, and beach facilities becoming increasingly more congested. If we get another cruise line, we would be hard-pressed to comfortably accommodate more people along the Seven Mile Beach without opening a new beach access.

With the development of the new hotel, I believe it will be timely for us to think of what the Government is going to do with what is now the Government House. If a four or five storey hotel goes up adjacent to the Government House, the privacy is pretty much gone.

One could also argue that the security factor is pretty much gone too. We may have to realistically think of developing a new Government House. I would not mind that. Many people say now, in a strictly dollar and cents term, that the beach is too valuable to have the Government House down there. Indeed, they say that the Government House should be in an area where it is landscaped and well planted with Royal Poinciana and all the tropical trees, like the houses of these types of officials in many Caribbean countries, Kings House in Jamaica is a good example. So there is a school of thought which says that we should remove it completely from the beach and put it somewhere where it is more conducive to surrounding it with the natural flora and fauna of our Islands; that, in itself, could be an area of interest for our tourists.

I am saying that now with the development of the new hotel, it may be timely to think about that and if we follow this idea of an additional beach, a specially designated beach for cruise ship passengers, we may want to develop that site. One could also argue that it would not be too expensive for the Government since they could probably use much of the infrastructure that is there now. We could make it into a modern bath house. This would provide some spoken opportunity for more Caymanian entrepreneurship as I mentioned earlier. Maybe we could sell franchises for refreshment stands or whatever. It would certainly be in keeping with the development of the area since it would be adjacent to a large hotel and on a prime piece of the Seven Mile Beach. That is food-for-thought for the Government or for a future government. I think certainly with the hotel going up there, the security and privacy factors have to be taken into consideration.

There is a need and if there is a short coming in the Tourism Management Implementation Plan, it is this: There is a need for us to develop and embark on a special programme which will ensure that the people of the Cayman Islands never lose their sense of appreciation because of the fact that our economy is based on tourism to such a degree that it is intertwined with economy. I make this point especially in view of the fact that we are reaching (we have not quite gotten to the summit yet) the point where the trickle-down and the spin-offs are becoming more widespread in our community.

As a result of that, we are able to maintain a high standard of living; our standard of housing is generally good; the cars the people drive are of an excellent standard, and although I take issue with the expression of our per capita income, we are living reasonably well, comparatively speaking. It is at this point that people who are not knowledgeable of the vital role which tourism plays, are likely to become disaffected and upset because tourism impacts upon certain things—society and the community which in many cases are not always positive.

I want to read from a text called, The Dialectics of Third World Development. This is not unique to the Cayman Islands. The author of this article said: "Soaring land values, moreover, have made ownership of land on many Islands prohibitive for all but small national elites and foreigners. In the Bahama Islands, for example, land values have doubled and tripled in the last decade. Tourism has resulted in the alienation of national property by and/or for foreigners. Beaches and coasts have become the patrimony of tourists. The local population, in search of cheaper land, is pushed further into the mountainous interior, away from the coast. Increasingly, beaches are withdrawn from public use by hotels and resorts. Underdeveloped ones are held for speculation or with plans for future hotel and resort sites.

"The best beach frontage in St. Vincent, Antigua, Montserrat and Barbados, for example, is privately owned and denied to the public."

"Nor has tourism stimulated to any significant extent the local artisan economy. Expectations that tourism would promote native handicrafts have not materialised."

So there is a need for us always to hold before the public's eye the notion that for all of the grievances that we have (and there are in the Cayman Islands situations existing as described by this author) tourism contributes much more positively than it does negatively. So we have to find a way, be it through programmes in the school, through a continuous community education (and I know we have Tourism Awareness Week) to get across to the public at large, particularly those people who do not work in the industry that as bad as it may seem, our standards of living and our economy would be much worse off if it were not for tourism.

The challenge for the Government is to find a way to make it palatable. And this is not always easy. While sometimes we in the Cayman Islands hear of Caymanians being discouraged from making use of certain facilities; it is not a completely unknown factor. But it is not as bad as it is in some areas. If one travels along the Seven Mile Beach, one will see that there are public access ways so that people who are not guests of certain properties can find their way to the beach. Once on the beach, the high water mark becomes public so anyone can swim.

Younger Caymanians will especially find it hard to understand why they cannot afford certain land or why it is not available. I would think that in all but the rarest of cases beach land in any part of these Islands is out of the financial accessibility of all but the most wealthy of us Caymanians. Even in some of the more desirable interior locations we find that outside elements are moving in and acquiring this. So this is one thing that is going to put pressure on Caymanians. If we are not careful to educate them and maintain an awareness, they probably will not easily understand and it could possibly degenerate into something that would breed resentment.

Some years ago I read that there was a big problem in the Bahamas and in Jamaica there is a continuous exercise. In the Bahamas the major problem was resentment of the Bahamians towards the tourists. Resentment to the extent that tourism fell off significantly. They had to go through a whole re-education campaign and spend a lot of money on public relations, new advertising and all that to try to convince people that the Bahamians were still friendly to the foreign visitor. In Jamaica it is a source of continuous assessment by the Government and the Ministry of Tourism who are conscious that these things can happen.

I was struck by the absence of any plan to deal with these sorts of things which must occur. One of the surest ways to handle these kinds of occurrences effectively is to ensure that from the earliest possible level we educate Caymanians to the fact that tourism is now an integral part of our culture—much like going to sea was years ago before the economy changed. We should consider not only a Tourism Awareness Week, but a continuous programme maybe two or three times a year—it does not have to be so elaborate—whatever is necessary so as to ensure that our people realise the importance of it.

In some countries there is a definite move to maintain the proper attitudes. There is a definite move on the part of the Government to encourage not only stay-over visitors to stay in the commercial establishments, but to encourage the kind of cottage industry where certain people's homes are licensed so they can take in guests. This is one way of sharing the cake so that all those people who are desirous of participating can benefit. What that also does is allow more people to benefit from the spin offs.

Perhaps some attention should have been given to these kinds of ideas in both of the plans because once we are at the level at which we are presently, it becomes very challenging to maintain the interest and the momentum. Human nature being what it is—when people are content, they are less likely if they feel that they can make it, to be as tolerant and open as they are. One only has to hear certain remarks now. These are the things that we should work at before they reach a point where they can negatively impact upon the industry.

In summary, we are on the same plateau with the Government as far as development of tourism is concerned. I think both the Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan and the Coopers & Lybrand Consulting Group's Plan stress that this is a positive facet of our economic development. I would have appreciated seeing more detail in the Plan laid recently upon the Table by the Honourable Minister—particularly some expression of the Government's philosophy as regards cruise ships—cruise based tourism, and where the Government sees that as developing. And what, if any, number does the Government see as optimum for stay-over visitors that we can cater for in a year?

With the Chair's permission I would like to repeat, because I do not believe the Honourable Minister was in the Chamber. I said that I prefer to see a maximum set, whether it is going to be at 500,000 per year. . . . And we could probably decide at this point in time where we are; how many we get; and set our goals because beyond a certain number, I think the danger and the strain on the infrastructure, the ecology and society are too great and it will then become counterproductive. Bearing in mind that we are already importing 30 per cent labour, development beyond a certain point begs the question of, For whom are we developing? We have to consider managing the resources in a way that we can maintain our appeal.

There is another point I neglected to mention, which is why I favour development to go the land-based way as against the cruise ship way, is because the absence of cruise ship berthing facilities taxes the ecology, even if we put down permanent moorings. To a greater extent then, for example, do the number of land-based people who dive at the sites. Even if we take the argument that every day each individual who dives a certain site leaves an ounce of suntan lotion in the water. I think that the argument can be made that that is less damaging than the damage which can be caused over a year from cruise ships breaking off the coral. It will take longer time for that to take a toll to the point where it becomes obvious and visible.

So given the option of an expansion I would go the land-based way. It is my argument as far as Grand Cayman is concerned, that we are soon reaching the optimum for the cruise ships. I know that we have been trying and governments in the past have tried to find some lines which would be interested in calling at Cayman Brac.

Madam Speaker, the future is ours for the taking. But we have, as the Coopers & Lybrand Consulting Group laid it out, some hard choices to make. It will be interesting to hear the Government's position on these hard choices, particularly the expatriate problem. How are we going to deal with that? How are we going to rationalise that? How are we going to balance that? How are we going to deal with leakage, because the more we develop beyond a certain point, the more foreign exchange controls we lose so that development beyond a certain point is not economically beneficial to us. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I rise to offer some comments on the Tourism Management Implementation Plan as presented by the Minister for Tourism. I think that this is too important a matter to be treated very lightly. What is decided in this report will affect this country seriously, if one takes the length of this plan for at least another five years.

The first thing that I note in this document is that it does not contain details which I think are necessary in a proper implementation policy. Various sections included in this plan which has been presented to this House under captions and titles are as included in the Coopers & Lybrand Ten Year study. That study, to say the least, is much more comprehensive. In fact, in all the years I spent as a civil servant, and in all the studies I saw over the years, I have never seen one more comprehensive, or with greater details of the most vital significance, which delves into such depths into the analysis of the situation.

This particular study could well be adopted as an overall National Development Plan for this country. I would not say that it would not require more information, like under certain Ministries other than Tourism. But surely, that plan has done a magnificent job of showing the inter-relationship of every single Government agency. It shows how tourism impacts on every single area of human endeavour in this country, tied in with the financial industry and everything else.

I do not think that the Plan presented by the Minister is truly a condensation of that Ten-Year Plan as I have heard suggested by one speaker earlier in a debate on another subject. I think that there are certain generalisations in the plan which is before the House.

Right at this time I would like to speak on one particular aspect of what is contained in the Plan presented by the Minister and relate that back to what has been recommended in terms of the Coopers & Lybrand study.

The Implementation Plan speaks of the situation regarding Caymanians and non-Caymanians. On page 11 under section 8: A Segment of the Population is Concerned About the Foreign Presence. This largely quotes from what is contained in the Coopers & Lybrand Study, at least a paragraph or so. I would like to read what is contained in that:

"At the present time approximately 30% of all employment opportunities in the tourism industry are filled by non-Caymanians. Additionally, the positions that are filled not only include front desk people, bell boys, housekeeping staff, etc., but also senior management of major tourism establishments."

"Furthermore, to complicate the matter, many of the major establishments are foreign owned and controlled."

"There is concern by some Caymanians about foreign presence; not the tourists who come to enjoy the resources and the products that are made available to them, but rather those who have employment in and manage the industry." [Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan]

That is a central theme throughout the study that was done by Coopers & Lybrand. If this Implementation Plan does not contain specifics and details as to how the Government proposes to deal with this specific matter, then it glosses over or does not pay enough attention to the most vital aspect of it all. Every single additional room that is built in this country, be it condominium or be it hotel, brings this into play: more people and a greater increase in the number of non-Caymanians in the country. According to the study and to the Implementation Plan, 30 people out of every 100 people in the tourism industry are foreign people. It could be more, for these were the findings in 1991/1992 and the situation has undoubtedly changed for we are now aware (according to the statistics given by Government in this House in recent times) that the highest level of work permits ever is presently in place and it still continues to be some of the largest in the hospitality industry.

I would like to quote something from the Coopers & Lybrand study under a similar caption as is in the Implementation Plan the Minister has presented: Macro Level Existing Reality, where it says under number 3, (page 10):

"As presented earlier in this report there are only 28,000 people living in the Cayman Islands, of whom about 18,000 are Caymanians."

We know that has changed because the population figure released a month or two ago is 30,500, so there right away we see the increase. "The unemployment rate in 1989 was 6.2% (The advisory Committee for this study has indicated that the current unemployment rate is even lower). The birth rate has been declining over the past number of years. These factors suggest that the absolute population size of the Cayman Islands is probably insufficient to support tourism development. Simply put, there are not enough people for the jobs that can be created."

That situation has not improved. As we develop—and, indeed, one of the policy statements in this is that this plan is prepared for the future development over the next five years. This plan needs to be tempered in the same manner as the preachings of the Coopers & Lybrand study which was constant (in almost every single chapter), putting forth this point about the creation of numbers and the inadequacy of the country to produce Caymanians to fill the jobs that can be, and are being created.

In this House I have said before on this issue, that the startling truth is that if every Caymanian man, woman and child were to be employed (and one could imagine that they would be capable of handling some of the jobs that are available in this country) there would still be an inadequacy of thousands of jobs that there would not be bodies to fill. Until that point is taken, and until this Government or any future government understands this and plans for it, there is a problem on our hands.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: Honourable Member, it is now 4.30 PM. I doubt you will be finished this afternoon?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: No, Madam Speaker, I have a fair amount of notes for debate on it.

The Speaker: May I ask for a motion for the adjournment of the House?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this House until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock, Wednesday morning.

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 14TH DECEMBER 1994.

WEDNESDAY
14 DECEMBER, 1994
10.06 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the First Elected Member for Bodden Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. Roy Bodden: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

APOLOGY

The Speaker: An apology for absence has been received from the Honourable Minister for Tourism Environment and Planning, Leader of Government Business, who is off the Island.

Government Business. Debate continues on Government Motion 9/94, Adoption of the Tourism Management Policy 1995—1999. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

MOTION

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 9/94

ADOPTION OF THE TOURISM MANAGEMENT
POLICY 1995—1999

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When the House took the adjournment on Monday evening, I was directing comments to the question of population in these islands and the matter of the number of non-Caymanians versus Caymanians in the work force as far as the hospitality industry is concerned. I had also commented on the fact that this very small document which has been presented as a Five-year Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan, does not contain, nor capture, nor show, the many detailed recommendations as are contained in the Ten-year Tourism Development Plan prepared by Coopers & Lybrand. Various sections are extrapolated from this document but many of the recommendations are not contained herein. I do not know if it is the intention of the Minister or the Government that this will be the views in brief and the Ten-Year plan will be used as a reference, although this is a five-year implementation plan versus the ten-year plan. So again, there is a conflict.

The particular section that I referred to at that time was section 8 as contained on page 11 regarding Caymanians and expatriates working in this country. In the caption there it says: "A Segment of the Population is Concerned About the Foreign Presence." This section noted that: "At the present time approximately 30% of all employment opportunities in the tourism industry are filled by non-Caymanians." It also noted the fact that it included all categories or a wide number of categories including "front desk people, bell boys, housekeeping staff, etc., and senior management." In the last sentence it reads: "There is concern by some Caymanians about foreign presence; not the tourists who come to enjoy the resources and the products that are made available to them, but rather those who have employment in and manage the industry."

The central theme of the Coopers & Lybrand Report in contrast is directing one's attention to the impact that tourism (which is people's business) has had on the people of these islands, and that everything is affected and will be affected if that situation is not examined and corrected—brought out in the open so that everyone knows where everyone stands.

I made the point that the Coopers & Lybrand Report made the point, as they state on page 10: "Simply put, there are not enough people for the jobs that can be created." This is a particular area that I would like to look at in more detail and comment on. I stated many times (and it is something which the Coopers & Lybrand Ten-Year Study is pointing out) that it is a statistical truth—it is a fact that there are not enough of us Caymanians alive, willing and able to fill all the jobs that presently exist in this country.

In fact, this Report notes that at that time (1992) the population was approximately 28,000. About two months ago a release from the Statistics Office put that number at 30,500. So one can see the immense growth. That is not through a population increase by birth of indigenous people; it is through persons who are coming to our shores to fill jobs that have been created. This matter is one where I, along with other clear-thinking persons, must understand that there lies a problem, and unless it is corrected there is going to be a problem.

In the Coopers & Lybrand Report on page 98, under the section "A Human Resource Strategy" (and in the Government's Plan study it is section 7, page 37), the strategies that are reiterated in the Implementation Plan are almost the same. There are eight of them, but I will read the statements as are in the Coopers & Lybrand Report and then what is in the Government's Plan. The Coopers & Lybrand Report says:

"The following eight tactics are presented as the human resource strategy and are in keeping with the quality service components described above:

1. Strengthen the collaboration between all stakeholders;
2. Launch a major communication and education campaign;
3. Resolve the expatriate issue; . . ."

The Implementation Plan has the first two [tactics], but the third reads: "3. Coordination of recruitment efforts." Nowhere in the Implementation Plan does it say it will resolve the expatriate issue. The closest it gets to it is number 8 where it speaks of addressing the sociocultural impact of tourism.

The Coopers & Lybrand Report makes their position clear. On page 99 it reads: "The importance of tourism to the country has been signalled several times throughout this report. It is an industry which has a high demand for labour in order to function. The human resources to deliver services and sell products to tourists must be available from some source of supply. Ideally, the population of a country should be the source of that supply." However, it notes that this is not the case and that there is a problem in the country at this time if something is not done about this situation.

This Report (that is the Coopers & Lybrand Report), further states on page 107: "Each of the four sociocultural issues described to this point are impor- tant and need to be addressed in the tourism strategy. However, none of them are more important than the issue of the relationship between Caymanians and expatriates."

Madam Speaker, I am reading what was found to be the case by a group of consultants who came to this Island and examined our situation. I have spoken about this on many occasions. I know that there has been a motion here to resolve this situation where consideration might be given under the Immigration Law to persons who are in this country (and who will be here for a long time) because of the need for labour some comfort or satisfaction in terms of residency. It has not been accepted.

In this Implementation Plan there is actually nothing in terms of the recommendations made by Coopers & Lybrand to address this situation. Right now there is another brand new hotel being built and we hear there is approval for a second one. Who is going to fill the jobs? It cannot be Caymanians. So what is the Government going to do in recognition of this situation?

I further note on the same page of the Coopers & Lybrand Report: "The issue of the role and place of expatriates in Caymanian society has been to date a 'covert' issue. It is an issue that is 'below the water line!' It is time that this issue is brought above the water line. If it is not, it has the potential to become a significant barrier to the achievement of the 'willed future.'"

I do not think it is possible for it to be much clearer. In fact, one might say that this Report even has a Caymanian nationalistic tone. But it is not advocating a disparity or a wall between. It is advocating the recognition of the true situation and the Government making a willed future to see the expatriate population as a resource and not a problem, as is also stated in this Report.

In this country there is no question that if there is a complaint among the people who work in the tourism industry (or generally), it is about expatriates being here. The whole truth is, people—Caymanians like ourselves—need to recognise and get that point of view across to the people who we represent, that conflicts will ever exist if we do not understand and recognise the inter-dependency.

What is the alternative? The alternative is very simple: If the jobs filled by Caymanians will be the only jobs existing in the country, then 30% of the jobs, in the tourism industry alone are going to be shut down which will certainly affect more than 30% of the tourism businesses.

There is a whole section given to this matter by Coopers & Lybrand. And in this Implementation Plan which claims it will bring about these changes in five years (whereas the Coopers & Lybrand Study recommended a ten-year period for getting it all right), it becomes even more serious.

This study of Coopers & Lybrand—really the people's report because this was comprehensively done taking into account the views of association, of organisation, of individuals and so on, on this particular issue of the Caymanian versus the expatriate. We have quotes that were taken directly from people and put into this study highlighting its importance.

I quote one from the Caymanian side of the looking glass, as it is sub-captioned, where an individual said: "We cannot be blamed for worrying about becoming a minority in our own country. I do not know whether it is real or not, but I am becoming convinced that expatriates wield far too much influence on the Islands."

Another quote: "I believe that expatriates are deliberately preventing Caymanians from getting ahead in the tourism sector."

Another quote: "Why should our people take orders from expatriates?"

Another quote from the Caymanian side: "Those who want to severely restrict expatriates forget that we invited them here."

Now, in balance, from the expatriate side of the looking glass, I read a quote: "It is not a whole lot of fun to be reminded in subtle in not so subtle ways that you are being tolerated on the Islands." Another quote: "There are some expatriates who are very insensitive in the way they treat Caymanians. There are an equal number of Caymanians who are very insensitive in the way they treat people they invited to take jobs here."

Another quote: "The feeling I get is that we are looked upon as pure opportunists who came to Cayman to rip off the locals." One last quote: "It gets tiresome feeling as though you are being held to ransom every time your permit is up, and being ignored in-between times."

This study went to the point where it listed the same number of quotes side-by-side to give the perspective of the two peoples' conditions that exist in this country. Within this same section the Ten-Year Report notes: "Once again, it is a matter of 'choices.' Caymanians and their government must choose between continued prosperity and a reduction of expatriate employment. In one of the conferences held the following question was posed to tourism industry employers, Caymanians and expatriates alike: 'If you cannot employ expatriates after 1993, what will be the impact on your business cash flow?' With few exceptions the response was to the effect that 'It will diminish or disappear!' Some simply said 'For sale!'"

I have quoted the various sections from the Ten-Year Plan to make the point that these people, whom we paid close to $300,000 to come to this country, did one of the most comprehensive reports that has been done for the Cayman Islands Government and, certainly for tourism. If we do not recognise that in this Implementation Plan and do as it tells us we should—resolve it—we are going to have a problem.

It is not sufficient as in the Implementation Plan where under the caption 'Strengthening the Collaboration Between all Stakeholders' it notes that it intends the monitoring of the socio-cultural impacts of tourism. Monitoring it is not the answer. Correcting it is the answer. In so doing, we have a complete blueprint by people who took the views of Caymanian people who put their own professional analysis into it and made certain recommendations.

One cannot say too much about this issue, because in the minds of so many people it is the main issue. Until this Government or any government to come, tackles this situation to reassure the Caymanian people that their position is here now and forevermore; that they can understand and feel the comfort level that they want to feel, there is going to be a problem.

On the other hand, in this country the expatriate workforce (which is fast making the larger part of the population) needs to be given clear assurance of who they are. They need to know what to expect and feel assured that they have the same right under law as a Caymanian. And that they can treat the Caymanian just like they would treat one of their own expecting to have that returned. If not, there are going to be problems: I suggest today that there is a problem.

In fact, for this report to be accepted by this House to be the road to travel for the next five years without this input, sorely lacks the main ingredient. I personally believe that would have been a wise idea. Rather than the Government seeking to have this accepted now, all Members should have had an opportunity to examine this. going back to their study of the Ten-year Plan (because it is comprehensive), to come back at a later date or the next sitting to look at this situation where such a matter could be dealt with. This was given to us last week. It is not as if there was nothing else to do from that time until now.

The Ten-Year Report makes other recommendations along this line. It recommends finding out factually, and not emotionally, what the population knows and thinks about these issues. The ten-year study recommended that the Government go into this matter to find out the work attitudes and expectations of Caymanians and expatriates in all relevant age groups.

We all have expectations—Caymanians and expatriates. They each have a right to their expectations. By finding out clearly what these expectations are, it can be gelled so that there is a clear understanding on both sides.

The Ten-Year Report makes recommendations as to how the situation can be handled even from an Immigration prospective—what is the practical means within Immigration for dealing with this matter. The fact that the Government could practically decide by categories what percentage of Caymanians it wanted to see by a particular period of time in whatever category of employment. The Caymanians would know what to look forward to and the expatriates would know what is available to them. There would be a monitoring system whereby Government could measure its progress. These things are spelled out in this Ten-Year Report, but they are certainly not spelled out in this Implementation Plan.

The numbers in terms of visitor arrivals in this country are spread over a ten-year period to arrive at what can be considered, according to the Coopers & Lybrand report, numbers that are manageable. Numbers which will impact as minimally as possible on the socio-economic situation, the environmental situation, the infra-structural situation. In fact, in the accommodation strategy in the Ten-year Plan, on page 66, says:

"A moratorium on seven-mile-beach should be placed on all tourist accommodation development (hotels, apartments/condominiums) until occupancy rates begin to approach effective operating capacity levels (about 80%). Based on detailed calculations shown earlier, it is expected that an annual growth rate of 5% over the next five years will result in hotel occupancies reaching these levels in 1998."

The Implementation Plan is saying let us get that right now. But there are no more roads to accommodate this larger number of people; there is no more infrastructural development; I have not heard of any more restaurants coming on line and Ten-Year Plans as are recognised in this study. This Implementation Plan is surely not a plan of making haste slowly. This is a plan of making haste right now—do not worry about the impacts—we will monitor what is happening in the socioeconomic situation.

There is no recognition in the Implementation Plan of using triggers, as it is termed in the Ten-Year Plan, where it says: "When the occupancy 'trigger' suggests new accommodation is needed, a hotel development should be allowed before a condominium/apartment development, since hotels include or stimulate the introduction of shops, restaurants, bars and recreation services which condominium/apartments also require. The truth is, according to the report done by the experts that went into great detail, it recommends a breather, which would have taken us right into this year.

The Honourable First Elected Member for Bodden Town spoke about the cruise ship industry. He eloquently presented an argument showing the comparison between the cruise ship industry and the land based accommodations. The land based operation, naturally, has more commitment within the country than does the cruise ship industry and this too, is recognised in the Ten-Year plan. In fact, the cruise ship industry is used as a case study. Recommendations are made in this particular section of the ten-year plan as to how there can be greater commitment by the cruise ship industry and how partnerships can be developed to the benefit of the cruise ship industry and to the benefit of the country.

The Ten-Year Plan also leaves out no particular sector. In fact, there are strong recommendations for including the private sector, strengthening the private sector involvement in the whole tourism effort and placing Government as the final in what ultimately occurs after having the benefit of all views. It recommends setting up a task force to look at the Caymanian versus the expatriate issue. It recommends setting up a National Tourism Committee made up of three Ministers of Government and below that another committee which would advise it to bring about the kind of involvement which it envisages which surely must be a more sensible approach with everybody involved. There are certainly no such details set down in this Implementation Plan. I wonder what has happened to them.

There is one section that I would also like to take specific note of, that is, the one in the Implementation Plan that deals with Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. For the life of me I do not know when the name changed from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to "Sister Islands", for I do know that I moved a Motion in this House about three years ago to have the catch-all term of "Lesser Islands" changed to recognise the names of the two Islands. It was changed in all the laws of the Cayman Islands but now someone has created another one—"Sister Islands". I do not know why they did not call it "Brother Islands", or "Uncle Islands". But to the matter of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman: In the Implementation Plan it says, under the caption "The Sister Islands do not feel their needs are being fully met", it reads: "A 'we/they' relationship exists between residents of the Sister Islands and residents of Grand Cayman . . ."

"At the present time the people on the Sister Islands do not believe their needs are being fully met, their specific frustrations include the following:

- 1. An unsatisfactory level of tourism service; frequency, Ten-Year Plan of aircraft and scheduling are unsatisfactory;
- 2. Inadequate representation of the Sister Islands in tourism marketing programs and investment; A feeling that they are just not listened to, nor given adequate information."

I think those are true statements for I can testify to that very situation as one of the representatives of these Islands. I do not see any detailed plan here for following under this section to correct this situation. Certainly, if I go to the Ten-Year Plan there is a complete section where the addition of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is dealt with. Specific recommendations for Cayman Brac's future development for Little Cayman's tourism product and strategies—even with inclusive maps setting out the details.

I am not surprised that this is not in the Implementation Plan for it is a sworn position of the Government of the day to keep the representatives of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman as "lone voices crying" for four years, and so are the people of these Islands crying for four years. I wish it were not that way for clear recommendations are made in the Ten-year Plan that the Cayman Islands is in such a fortunate situation they can offer three separate vacations within a vacation.

It sets out clearly the fact that people who initially come to Grand Cayman could have within their six or seven day stay one or two days which they could spend in Cayman Brac and/or Little Cayman. The Coopers & Lybrand study found distinct and attractive features which cater to tourists and visitors. It is all set down.

I regret the fact that this is not included in the same detail, and that I have had no role, and to the best of my knowledge neither has my colleague, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, in creating this plan which is supposed to be implemented in five years, two of which have already passed.

This Ten-Year Plan has been in the hands of this Government for two years. But why I think this has not found acceptability with the Government is that some of the major recommendations here are surely not in keeping with the policies of the Government—build more hotels, create more traffic congestion, do not resolve the Caymanian/expatriate issue, just monitor it. If they have been monitoring it they would, surely at this stage, want to take a hands-on situation and do what the Ten-Year Plan said—'bring it above the water line'. Coming from nautical backgrounds, we understand what 'above and below' the water line means. We are trying to 'drown' it below the water line but it is not going to drown; the heads keep bobbing up. It needs to be addressed.

I could not cover all of the comprehensive areas and details as set out in the Ten-Year Plan versus the Government's Plan, which they intend to implement. The Ten-Year Plan is so comprehensive that the Government could have over the past two years done as was recommended. Specific implementation actions are set out—time frames, options as to how it would be guided or who would be responsible for it. It suggested it could be done by the Department of Tourism, or one could hire a manager specifically for managing this plan on a national basis who would give information directly to the Minister for Tourism. It suggested an option for employing experts as the ones who did the study. But that has not been done.

I am convinced that if this ten-year plan were accepted, by this time revenue would have increased because of a more managed condition. And we would not really be looking to find ways of earning revenue because in a properly managed national plan through tourism—which touches every single person in this country, and every single Ministry and Portfolio—there would be the opportunity for revenue earnings that are not present now.

I think that we are not doing ourselves or the country any service to have skeleton views as are set down in the Government's Implementation Plan. We need a more comprehensive situation and if we do not have it, there are the attendant negative problems which are not going away.

The Opposition intends to vote for this Plan, purely on the basis that it is better to have something which the Government calls a plan that might perhaps guide it somewhat, than to have nothing at all—with the hope that it would not attempt to do what it says here in five years, two of which have already passed. And in the progress of things, they will refer to the immense guidance that is referred to in the Ten-Year Development Plan. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, to say that this document before us is important is to say the least. As one of the main pillars of our economy, tourism has made a solid impact by improving the standard of living of our people. The economic value of tourism from the spending of money by those people who come here on vacation and/or business cannot be underestimated. Therefore, I think that the Minister for Tourism has made a laudable start by putting forward this policy.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman went to great lengths to talk about the Ten-Year study versus the Five-year Policy statement—what he terms an implementation statement. What is before us is really the Government's Tourism Management Policy. This is the Minister's statement on what he intends to do—broad statements—to address the problems that have been pointed out in the Coopers & Lybrand study. If we look through it we see the different headings—the Environmental Strategy. The different strategies in this document have an impact upon what is put forward by the Coopers & Lybrand study.

But to deal immediately with the speech by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, let me say that the Government is concerned about the number of outside workers in the country. The Member for Cayman Brac said that nowhere in the statement does it resolve the expatriate issue (he must mean the workers), because that is what the tourism study is dealing with—tourism—not any issue other than tourism. He says that the expatriate issue needs to be addressed in the statement.

If he examines the relevant section, Section VII, it deals with Human Resources Strategy. That points out what the Government intends to do. It broadly says that "people require training to equip them to reach the high level of performance a competitive industry demands, specifically developed and coordinated training programmes will be supported and encouraged by educational institutions, employers associations and other training organisations."

The Minister has outlined here broadly what he intends to do. There are eight tactics that follow under the Human Resource Strategy. Number six is: "Equipping people to reach a high level of performance through training." I know that the Minister has already set up a committee of people in the industry to address this matter.

I think if an indictment of past performers where not enough emphasis was placed on training... What was happening was an emphasis on the amount of people brought here and other infrastructural development to go along with it, but not nearly enough. In fact, very poor indeed, has been any attempt to train people in the tourism industry. It is an indictment that we have no Caymanians as managers of major hotels.

In the condo sector there are some Caymanians, or spouses of Caymanians in those fields. But traditionally, in the hotel industry there has been a lack in the ability to train their workers. They will tell you that they have a training programme. But when you get down to it, you find out it will probably be a 15-minute lecture in the morning and that is the extent of the training.

During the administration of the late Honourable James Bodden, a credible effort was made to start a hotel training school. Sad to say, not enough emphasis was put by succeeding administrations on that very fundamental issue. In fact, they let it slump. In recent years, the Community College has a small hotel training school.

However, because of the tendencies of career-parting, we have very few people entering the school. This problem needs to be addressed from the school level to show them the benefits of the tourism industry. We are putting emphasis on training. If Members recall, I laid out quite a plan and they know that we are headed in that direction. Unfortunately, we can only do so much at one time. But to say that it is not being addressed is not telling the truth.

To get back to this matter of the amount of people in the country who are on work permits or otherwise, I do not know how the Member who spoke about this expected that the residency problem could better the situation. He said that there was nothing in the Implementation Policy to address their Motion. I believe that if we examine the Coopers & Lybrand Report, it's not dealing with residency as such. And those people are already here. So if you give them residency in large numbers it is not going to be any different with the problems in the Hotel industry.

What we need to ask our people is, How did we get to this point of imbalance? How can we get to the point where Caymanians are in the majority in the work place? This is not going to be done in a short period of time. In fact, the question that should be asked is whether we have enough Caymanians to man the jobs that are created by our booming economy. The answer has to be no, we do not. We need to state at what point this will take place. Can we answer that? The only thing they can say is that we have not given these people the residency that they wanted. But can we really answer this problem of this imbalance, bearing in mind what is carrying this country in terms of expenditure—which our people need?

I think he touched on the point, but he did not explore it enough when he said 'if you cut the 30% out, it means you are cutting 30% of the service, which means we are damaging our tourism product.' He asked, Can we do that? This country has taken the path of asking our people to pay as little as possible for the services that the country needs.

When we examine the Budget, we find the expenditure that people are requiring—in fact, demanding. Members here in the House are demanding these expenditures. They talk about roads, streetlights—'let us see if we can get along without them'. But certainly, we cannot get along without educating our people. We cannot get along without providing proper health service for them.

In the Budget the recurrent expenditure of this country is well over $100 million, probably more in the region of . . . To run the Country, and to give the services to continue this development, requires $138 million plus $15 million in statutory expenditure—more than $150 million. This amount is required to run the country, to give the services and to continue this development—more than $150 million.

What I am saying is that it would be good if we only had Caymanians in the work force. It would have been good if over the years those in charge had taken the time to train them. Let us be frank with ourselves in this country. What we have to do is to go all out and train the Caymanians we do have in the industry. But to go in the direction that the Member was talking about—it simply serves all of us well to get up on the floor and recognise these problems, but we cannot 'have our cake and eat it too.'

I suppose people coming behind me can say some of the other things that need to be done. We all know that something needs to be done and that is what I heard coming across from the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. But what can be done easily, or quickly, except that we go all out to train, to make certain that our Caymanians have their rightful places in the industries.

After we provide that, it is up to them to ensure that they are doing their jobs. It is no good running to the Minister of Labour if you have a shoddy work attitude—if you should be at work at 7 o'clock and you do not get there until 9 o'clock every morning. I am saying to employers—as I have said publicly in the past and will also say today when I address the Chamber of Commerce—'that they need to pay careful attention to who is coming in because we have enough cantankerous people of our own.' Problems come when those forces clash and that is what is happening a lot in the workplace and that is why Caymanians are saying that they are not moving up. They always find people who have dirty attitudes, along with the Caymanian who believes that the job is his because of that nationality alone—which we know is not possible.

That is one of the reasons why our manpower development strategy—our training strategy—will include what I term a Labour Budget. If a business knows that they need ten people for the year, they must come up front and say they need ten people and here is what we are going to do to see that Caymanians move up. So that in the next two years those ten people become five, or at least less.

That is one of the strategies and that is why I am attempting to do more (and when I say 'me', I mean as the Minister of Labour and the Ministry) in line with the apprenticeship and understudy scheme. We 'cannot have our cake and eat it too'. We have built up this country demanding the best in life and I will move away from this point for a minute to get to the point of development.

We ask, For whom are we developing? We are developing for our own people. We can talk as long and as much as we want to about the hotels, but the fact remains that we have 300 children coming out of school. We plan to move them by highlighting the career opportunities within this industry and this is to be done from the Junior High School level. Those students can be moved into the industry when they find out the opportunity and the money that can be made in the hospitality industry.

What we have to do is to try and strike a balance between our economic growth and the environmental human resource and other interests of the Island. We have heard much sing-song over the years about Caymanians not getting the job from the development. I am now talking about construction. I had to talk to some of the contractors and they tell me that one of the problems is that one who used to be a mason years ago, is now in his own business. One who used to be a carpenter years ago is now in his own business. It is not so much (as I understand it from them) of the small contractor not getting into the development, as it is that we go along building with the kind of material we use. The larger contractors—Hadsphaltic and the other ones—bring in their people instead of putting more of the work out for sub-contract.

That is one of the problems that we have. But to say stop development, or why are we developing, I think the people can best answer that themselves. How much do we need? I think that we have a set of people in this country who will do anything to stop development because their immediate jobs do not depend on it. They can sit as a public servant, or with one of the larger companies—Cable and Wireless, Caribbean Utilities, et cetera, "It is better the economy goes down. I can look out for myself. I will make it. The country will have to pay me because these are services that it will need." But what happens to the rest who depend upon development?

While we must strike a balance, we have to be careful that we are not batting out what we need. The day that we stop it, who suffers? Everybody—the small businessman, the taxi man, people with T-shirt shops, boutiques, grocery stores—you name it. We saw what happened when it slowed down before. There was a definite move to slow down, coupled with the world's problems and bad management at home as well. We had over 1,100 Caymanians registered as being out of work. So, those persons who would like to stop all building can quite easily say it is all right with them—they have a job.

We have to watch the overall development and you cannot separate that and tourism. I have asked the Governor to set up a Committee, at Executive Council level, to monitor development—a Development Committee. And while I may not be the Minister for Tourism, my responsibility is for the social welfare of this country. We certainly cannot separate the two—the need that arises out of development or the impact on our social infrastructure. We know that there are advantages and disadvantages, but we do know that the advantages far outweigh the disadvantages if managed properly. I heard the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman saying that we had left out Cayman Brac. I do not think that that is a true statement in regards to what the Government is now attempting to do. He might have said that is what obtained in the past. But when you consider that the first cruise ship will take passengers to Cayman Brac, he cannot say that there was not an effort made. He should have heard, what we said about how we now look at Cayman Brac. He is correct in saying that it offers good development for the future of tourism. There is a plan afoot to take more developers, more business into Cayman Brac. He should well know that money is in the Budget for Government's promotional tours to New York, London and Hong Kong, and that more emphasis will be put on the Sister Islands.

So something is being done. We recognise that the state of the economy in the Brac does not bode well for its future. It is dying on its feet. What it needs is at least one large development, something along the line of the Hyatt, where there is a golf course and all the other amenities to go with it. I am not just whistling in the wind. I know what I am talking about and it can be done. We are going to see that it takes place.

We have two years left and after that another four and after that another four. So if the Opposition would bear with us, we will get something done. There is no use in trying to scrap what is positively being done.

I see my good friend has recommended that we move the Governor's House. That was a 'storm in a tea cup' already. It is certainly a prime piece of property located in my constituency. In itself it is a good attraction for tourists. I believe that everyone who comes here gets a little peek at the Governor's residence. We have to bear in mind that moving it and getting something built to compare with it will probably cost $2 million or more. For all it is worth, I will not try to take the suggestion to task, but I will simply tell the Member that I cannot agree with it now.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Our Government will do that.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: I hear the Member saying that when the Opposition gets in power their Government will do it. All I ask the Opposition is, Where are they going to get all the money to do all the things they want to do? Then they say we must slow development down; that we have too many expatriates on the Island. One impacts on the other. Where is the money going to come from?

I know that some people see cruise ships as not being too desirable. The truth is that the cruise ship industry is growing by leaps and bounds and more and more tourists are travelling that way. One good thing is that those people who go by cruise ship get just a little taste, just a whetting of the appetite for them to return for a longer stay of a week or more, or to get involved in some business, or just to invest their money in the banks.

For a long time I have advocated the use of the West Bay harbour for cruise ships. This is something that the Chamber of Commerce has taken up as one of its pet subjects to say that a certain percentage does not want it. Why? I wonder. I do not know. What I proposed will not do anymore damage to the marine environment than what thirty divers do per trip at any one of those dive sites. What they need to ask themselves is: How many times do divers go to one site per day? I believe when this thing is properly studied it will do well to put a small jetty in some of the bigger districts so that more cruise ships can be spread out around the country rather than congesting George Town. That is not saying that George Town will not have the cruise ships. No business will be affected in the Capital, as far as the cruise ships are concerned.

The Speaker: Would this be an opportune time to take the suspension?

Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.42 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.07 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, continuing the debate.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, this Management Policy document is welcomed by us. I would say to the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman that this is not an implementation plan: this is a management policy document. The policies presented in the document are for the most part based upon the findings and recommendations made by the consulting group. Revisions have been made where necessary in order to reflect today's existing reality.

While I agree with most parts of the Coopers & Lybrand plan, certainly all of it is not realistic. After Government has accepted this document, the obvious next step is to develop implementation plans within the five areas of the tourism management strategy, the environment strategy, the tourism product strategy, the marketing strategy and the human resource strategy. Work in a number of areas has already begun.

This management document has as its guiding principles the need to ensure that present and future Caymanians are very knowledgeable about the industry by providing a framework for raising the standard of living for Caymanians. This can be done through the economic benefits of tourism; by providing an approach for tourism development including related infrastructure, recreational facilities and services for visitors and residents that are appropriate for the purposes and the land capabilities of the areas in which they are located; and to establish the framework for tourism policies and programmes consistent with the cultural, social, environmental and economic philosophy and means of the Government and the people of the Cayman Islands. It will also provide the direction whereby the competitiveness of the tourism industry sustains the development framework ensuring that the social, cultural and environmental resources which residents depend on and which tourists are attracted to, are maintained.

It must be fully recognised that a balance between all five points must be achieved and that the co-operation of many individuals and organisations, both within Government and the private sector, including some outside of the direct domain of the Ministry of Tourism will be required in order to be successful in this endeavour. I will again point out that this is not the implementation policy, it is the management policy. When we get to that stage, (which is the obvious next stage) the Opposition can make the Minister aware of any concerns for the next major step, that is, implementation.

Thank you, Madam Speaker. [pause]

[Inaudible comments]

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I can assure you that was not a time-wasting tactic.

The Speaker: I could see it was not, Honourable Member.

[Members' laughter]

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let me start my relatively short contribution to this debate by saying that as I read somewhere in this pile of documents I have here, it has been historically shown that uncontrolled and unbridled growth typically results in a degeneration of product and service. I think whatever we might talk about on this Government Motion stems around that simple, but very meaningful statement: 'historically it has been shown that uncontrolled and unbridled growth typically results in a degeneration of product and service.'

What I read in the latest document is, in my view, fairly generic. I do not know exactly where the misunderstanding is, but I just heard a few minutes ago that the document that was passed out to us was a Tourism Management Policy and the plans for implementation would follow. Unless there is something wrong with what I have in front of me, this document reads: "Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan". If we are not talking about implementation, then I really do not have much to speak about. But I will have to follow the course of the document as I have received it. As I said, it tells me that it is an implementation plan, not a policy document, but a plan.

The obvious comparison which has been made during various contributions to this debate and which I firmly believe is very relevant, is a comparison of this document to the document prepared in 1992 called a Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan. It was prepared by the Coopers & Lybrand Consulting group, and, if memory serves me correctly, it was over a period of weeks that in excess of 300 individuals who were either Caymanians or residents on this Island directly involved with the tourism industry knocked heads together, brainstormed and compiled data, thought things through and the Coopers & Lybrand consulting group put all of this together and came up with the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan. It is fair to call that plan, as has been stated before, the people's plan.

Let me say that in my examination of both documents I truly do not wish to cast any aspersions on the Government of the day or previous governments. That really does not matter to me; I am simply here to do a job, to make my best contribution as to what I see we can better do for ourselves in the future. So the players in the game will come and go, but it is very important that the game is played for all of us. The 'now' document (I will term it), the Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan, is not a document that one has no desire to read after reaching the second or third page. It is not a document that does not contain relevant information. In my view, it is not a document that is totally out of line. Suffice it to say, if in bringing this plan to this honourable House the Government had said, "Fellows, this Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan is simply an overview of the goals we would like to achieve in tourism. And what we are going to do is to pay very close attention to the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan and act on the recommendations and methodologies perceived in that plan while we go about the country's business of making tourism the better product that it should be." I have not heard that. So I am left with doubt in my mind as to how much credence is paid to the 1992 plan as compared to the new one which is, supposedly, a five-year plan. With that in mind, I am forced to make some comparisons.

First of all, I think it would make all the sense in the world to briefly outline some existing realities that are with us today. There are some headings in the 'now' plan and one of them deals with the Cayman Islands doing well in taking advantage of the tourism industry. I daresay that is a fact. It outlines the "Growth in the stayover visitors to the Cayman Islands between the years 1980 and 1990 averaging about 8%. In the first few years of the 1990s, when many economies around the world slipped into a sharp recession, tourism actually showed a decline in the Cayman Islands. However, sharp increases in stayover arrivals in the range of 20% have been experienced in both 1993 and 1994. The growth rate has been larger than the total Caribbean growth rate yielding a progressive increase in market share for the Cayman Islands."

So that it is not misunderstood or twisted in any way, in its short-term realities one has to say that this is very good. I think that all the players in the game, all of the stakeholders (as they are termed in this document) are very pleased with what is happening around us. Occupancy rates—and the providers of accommodations have increased tremendously which must positively affect the balance sheet and that is fine. But while certain areas have been addressed on the surface, I think that what we must recognise and put the right importance to is the inherent problems that this growth has and will continue to have on all of us.

The document goes on to say that today the Cayman Islands are at a crossroads. It says: "The Cayman Islands have reached a crossroads and it is imperative that the direction taken is one of managing to achieve the long term steady growth so that tourism benefits that accrue to Cayman are maximised and the products and services that draw tourists are continually improved upon." Very true words. A potent statement, I would call it.

As we move on into the document (and it comes back to just about where I started) there are many goals which I will go into which are to be achieved. But the only place where I have a problem is that I do not see the many methods that we will need to employ to achieve these goals.

As I said earlier, if I knew that the many methods contained in the 1992 Ten-Year Tourism Plan were being looked at, then I dare say I might not have any problem at all. However, the fact is that I do not know that this is being done. If we have to look at it from the political angle maybe we would all be better off forgetting about that side of it and concentrating on the realities of the situation.

I also said earlier that should the tables be reversed and it was this Government who had prepared the Ten-Year Tourism Plan in 1992, and the former Government dealing with it now, I would be left to wonder the same thing that I am wondering now. It matters not to me who it is.

I hear some mumbling from the Chief Whip, Madam Speaker, but he can hold his own opinion about anything I might say. The truth of the matter is, with the greatest of respect to him, if he would listen a little more, his brain might not be as tired as it seems to be today. Getting back to the issue. I wish to make a quick comparison between the Ten-Year Tourism Plan and the present plan with regards to goals. The overall product strategy in the present plan is, in summary: "To manage the tourism development of the three islands consistent with the distinct tourism products they can best support, within the land and water carrying capacity, in keeping with residents' needs and their culture (values)." The Ten-Year Tourism Plan which deals with more of an itemised goal, makes a comparison to the existing reality and what is termed in that document as the 'willed future'.

I will not go through all of these, but I have picked out a few important items so as to compare the depth of the document. The existing reality is, expatriates are a problem. The 'willed future' wishes for us to look at expatriates as a resource. The existing reality is that there is a high reliance on the United States market. The 'willed future' is the broadening of the market base so that that reliance on the United States market lessens. The harsh existing reality is that we have a very strained infrastructure and the 'willed future' is a well-equipped infrastructure.

Another existing reality is that there is poor human resource management and what is hoped for in the future is that there will be greater human resource management. Another existing reality is that the Cayman Islands has a high-priced image and the 'willed future' is value-for-money image.

The Ten-Year (people's) Plan told us how to put on our socks, how to shine our shoes, how to shave. This new document simply tells us we must get dressed. In making those comparisons I am not trying to say that the document has no value. I am simply asking the Government in its overview of this document what are the ways and means by which the goals that are outlined will be achieved. The Ten-Year Tourism Plan has almost everything outlined.

I will go as far as to agree that three years hence, there may well be the need to make a few mid-stream changes. But the base concept is certainly no different. In fact, I dare say that two and one-half years hence, the base concept of that document is much more obvious if we look at it carefully as things that we envisaged two years ago are on us; we see them happening.

Madam Speaker, may I take a minute to go through certain aspects of the 1992 document? In 1992 it was recognised that the tourism industry contributes directly $275 million to the foreign currency of this country. Indirectly, the industry probably contributed about 50% of the gross national product. Today, that figure is said to be more like $330 million and at least within the same 50% range of the GNP, if not a little bit more. So there is no question as to the importance of the industry. The present document does have areas where it points out that it is important for us to ensure that our people understand the importance of the industry. But I keep coming back to the fact that we need to know how we are going to do it.

The Minister for Sports mentioned some very valid points. He mentioned training and I am on all fours with anything that he can say about training for the people of this country because that is where our future lies, regardless of how many tourists come here or how many banks we have. Beyond all worldly goods, what is in the mind by way of training and education cannot be extracted and sold like everything else. That is where everything we do in this country must be pointed: for our people.

Regarding training, I have a few ideas. The present document in its address on training has a few subheadings, one of them being 'Co-ordination of recruitment efforts'. Let me read quickly what it says: "There is a critical need for greater co-ordination of recruitment efforts between and within the public and private sectors. Therefore, mechanisms will be established to increase communications between all interested parties and refocus mandates so that the goal for each group is similar and [in big highlights] TO ENSURE THE RIGHT PERSON IS IN THE RIGHT JOB AT THE RIGHT TIME. The increased levels of communication among the various players will also lead to a sense of blending the talents of all involved and lead to greater co-operation among all parties in furthering tourism to the Cayman Islands."

Flowery language, as one Member termed it. If we get to the point that this section wants us to get to, that is exactly what we want. But I do not see how we are going to achieve it. That is where I find the gap. If we look at this document and simply say that the document outlines all the relevant goals to blend the growth of the industry with all other impacts that it must have on the people of this country and get the best results, I can understand that. But the document tells me that it is an implementation plan and I do not see the implementation plan. That is where I have a question mark. There may be plans, I really do not know about them. For me to simply say that the plans will come, does not suffice when those questions come to me.

In reading this I am immediately asking: how are we going to do it? Never let it be said that that is not where each and every Honourable Member of this House plays his part. The principle as I know it in the art of debate to make a positive contribution is to give your ideas and wherever they meet and are pooled together, the best end result will come through the chain of command. The document has the 'Introduction of Career Pathing'.

It says: "To make a career in tourism more attractive, coordinated career pathing within the industry will be encouraged and supported. To develop career pathing in the industry, a two step approach will be undertaken: 1) Develop acceptable career paths for the various professions within the industry, and 2) Encourage employers to implement career pathing within their businesses and between businesses."

What kind of career paths are we talking about? The other one is "Development of Performance Standards for all jobs in the Industry": "Providing an outstanding tourism experience and having a competitive advantage are not attained haphazardly, but through deliberate steps which begin with the development and implementation of performance standards for all jobs in the industry."

What are the deliberate steps?

The other subheading is "Equipping People to Reach a High Level of Performance Through Training." This one is kind of heavy: "Performance standards are not transmitted solely through the communication of expectations. People require training to equip them to reach the high level of performance a competitive industry demands. Specifically developed and co-ordinated training programs will be supported and encouraged by educational institutions, employers, associations and other training organisations."

What type of training are we talking about?

Let me cite an example: I will simply state it the way that I know it and see it in my country. If buildings are erected, teachers are employed, a curriculum is developed and all the infrastructure is there, if we do not have the bodies participating in the process it is to no avail. I am saying that while the concept is exactly right, because all that I have just read is exactly what we wish to achieve. That is fine. But where we are going to get results is when we find out and do something about how we are going to achieve it.

In the tourism industry it is said and accepted that at least 30% of the employees are expatriates. It is also said and accepted that as long as we have any semblance of the growth that has continued for many years in these islands in the tourism industry, we as a people will never be able to supply the number of bodies required to service that industry. We understand that.

It is also accepted and known that throughout the years the indigenous populations, for more reasons than one, have not found themselves in sync with the industry. And being placed, either by their own volition or by others, in their rightful position they have taken part in the progress of the industry by finding decent jobs, by the natural upward mobility that should take place. And by recognising the fact that while we will always need people from outside to service that industry, our best benefit will be for us to take advantage of our people who should be able to participate by way of work. Here we are talking about training.

Let me make sure that I am not misunderstood. I am not talking about what has not been done. That is not going to help me. That is not going to help the man behind me. It is not going to help the lady next to me. It is not going to help any one of us. The only help that can be to us is to help us understand where we went wrong. I do not care who is involved and I do not care who will be involved down the line, we must always deal with whatever is at hand the best way we know how, in order to benefit the people of this country, especially with training.

What we have not done as a country is to grab up those young ones who give us sleepless nights and develop the means to make them understand that they must produce. This industry outside of the civil service is probably the largest employer of Caymanians in this society. I have a few ideas about training, but what is important for us to recognise before we even go onto the physical aspects of that training, is that whether we think it is the correct attitude or not (and I daresay it is not) we cannot expect to provide the basic facilities and expect our people to participate on their own volition. It is not going to happen.

There are too many inherent problems caused by other situations. Whatever we may call our people, I do know that basically they are not a bad people—they can be had. If it means that we have to stop debating in this House, go out there and live with them to get them in the right position and deliver them until they realise exactly which way they have to go to be somebody in this land, I think we would be better off. We must have a hands-on approach.

There are two suggestions that I have when it comes to training within this industry. I know that at the Community College (on a limited basis) they have some programmes that are for people coming into the industry. But the number of people reached by those programmes is not sufficient for what we need in order to produce. That is my view.

I mentioned in an earlier debate about the Hotel Training School. The Minister for Sports mentioned that what went on previously was a half attempt to have a school of that nature, which disappeared. I am not concerned with what went on then, except to learn from those experiences about what we should not do. I believe that the employers in the tourism industry are not of a basic will to simply hire foreigners. I think experience has taught them that the more foreigners they can hire, the better they can handpick their employees and their establishments can be run at a better level of efficiency.

What we have to do is prove to them that we can provide them with the right people so that they are not inclined to go elsewhere. They can achieve the same level of efficiency by hiring our own Caymanians. This, to me, is where we have the problem. I dare say that if a marriage were proposed between the public sector (namely the Government) and the private sector (namely the hoteliers), to provide a specific scheme to keep churning out our own Caymanians to fill these posts, these people would welcome the idea. They would not have to provide accommodations, they would not have the hassle of work permits, they would not have the large gaps between employment while waiting for work permits, and the myriad of problems they encounter daily in operating their establishments.

One might say if we have less work permits, then the Government earns less money from work permit fees. But my view is that the $15 or $20 million we have to budget every year for corrective services in this country would very well show lessening bottom line figures if we had all our people employed—being somebody in their own country—instead of joining Mr. Kickstone and Walker.

Madam Speaker, when the Honourable Minister presented this plan, he made mention of some on-the-job training. In my thoughts, the way the industry is today, I think the employers find it very difficult to do any in-depth on-the-job training because everything is at full speed all the time. It is difficult for them to operate in an efficient manner doing this type of training on the job. There are some areas where it can be done, but many times it is very difficult to start from scratch with an individual—to build them up while they are working on the job. It calls for a lot more numbers to be employed, whereas if everybody was able to do what he was employed to do there would be no need for as many people. So it is really not that economically viable.

If all those individuals and the Government pool resources together, I feel sure that the end results would be very gratifying for both parties. We at Government level would be providing the means by which our people could be trained and the hoteliers would be able to have access to quality employees without having to go outside [the territory] to look for them.

There is a new hotel being built. The good side of that is that there will be certain levels of construction employment for a year or a year and a half. When it is all over, there will probably be at least 1,000 people employed. They will probably need a couple of hundred work permits. The question is not whether that is right or wrong: Are we preparing ourselves so that the necessity for that does not arise? That is the question. What we have to think about is when we have our Caymanian people coming back to us complaining and asking, 'How can you allow this foreigner to get this job and I am here? I have to feed my children. I go religiously to fill out applications and apply for the job but I cannot get it; I see a foreigner working there. There is no justification to that person whatsoever.

If we try to look at the situation objectively, we will realise very early that nine times out of ten there is no prejudice towards that Caymanian who was not hired: the person was simply not equipped to do the job that the employer needs to have done. That is where the disparity lies. That is what is causing the 'us and them'. There is only one answer for it and that is for the Caymanian to have the ability to do that job when he or she makes that application. That is where the entire problem is.

It does not end there. When the Minister for Sports made his contribution, he spoke about work ethics. Again, I am on all fours with him. Many of our people actually do not know how to conduct themselves. They simply do not know. The question is not that they are illiterate or ignorant, it is simply a fact that the pace of this world has come upon us. Everything else has moved in leaps and bounds and here we are with the majority in our society who are still where they were 30 years ago.

There are many reasons for that: lack of opportunity, lack of initiative—a whole pile of reasons. While we could sit all day and identify those reasons, just identifying the reasons is not going to help us. We must do something about it. When I say we must do something about it, if it takes the greater education on a one-to-one basis, it is worth it because once we set a trend and once we bring about results the ball will just keep on rolling. Everyone is going to realise that that is the way for us to go. Here I can only provide lip service, but I can assure you that at every given opportunity when I can do more than lip service, I will do it. That is the attitude we all must have. To sit and talk about it is good, but we must do something about it.

Where I stand on training has no bearing on what should have been done and what has not been done. I simply make the point to make sure that we are all deeply conscious of the importance of training. It so happens that we are talking about tourism, because training is for everything else that we talked about. We are talking about the tourism industry, which is one of the largest employers of the indigenous population in this country.

From that fact alone, it is obvious that it is worth us enhancing the whole situation by a hands-on approach of ensuring that the training is provided. And that is the 'marriage' I am talking about with the hoteliers. Let the hoteliers provide for us a list of what they want and let us have them stand side-by-side with us to help us provide them with what is on that list. This is what is going to happen with the new hotel: We are going to have individuals displaced from existing properties to fill those posts. But the holes are still going to be there, they are just going to be spread wider. That is what is going to happen.

Other people do not take kindly to my view that there are hundreds of people out there still to fill these holes, but they do not know how to do it. I do not live in my house 24 hours a day and I do not see the same faces all the time. If there are not hundreds of them, then I cannot count to ten—and that I can do! And I mean that.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, will you finish shortly or can we take the luncheon suspension?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The luncheon suspension, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.05 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.34 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town continuing the debate.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, if the Honourable Member would give way so that I can bring a point of explanation—

The Speaker: Would you give way Honourable Member? The Member for North Side.

POINT OF EXPLANATION

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, when we look at the Tourism Management Policy document that is before us it says on the front page, Implementation Plan. When we look at the Motion, it is asking for the adoption of the Tourism Management Policy for the years 1995—1999.

I spoke with the Director of Tourism (Elect), Mrs. Martins, and apparently, this stemmed from some computer error and consequently the front page should not be included in the document. I think if we can accept this it would save a lot of time whereby we would be debating the adoption of the policy for the years 1995—1999.

The Speaker: Thank you for that information, Honourable Member.

Would the Fourth Elected Member for George Town continue the debate?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

While I just heard the explanation, it goes back to what I said earlier on: If we were talking about a policy document, it would be a different kettle of fish from an implementation plan. Even if it becomes a simple policy document there are still many relevant issues which hold charge in this discussion.

Against the backdrop of what might seem to be an economy that is bursting at the seams, and against an ever-increasing social awareness in this country, I feel that we should shed all inhibitions. I was speaking about training before we took the break and when I said that we should shed all inhibitions, I mean in that respect.

There is no one solution to all of the problems that face us. And while there may be various schools of thought on the matter, I wish to refer to the old document briefly, so that I might finish the point I was making before on the issue of training. The present document, based on the explanation just given (and I take that to be the Government's position also) of the Tourism Management Policy, when it refers to training and simply outlines the goals to be achieved, I think it still calls for rationalisation of how these goals are going to be achieved. I dare say that whoever replies from the Government Bench (I understand that the Minister is not here and I do not know if he will be here today), but if the situation is clarified I have no problem with it, however, I wish to mention just a few items that were in the 1992 plan.

The plan calls for the introduction of 'career pathing' and it says that we must equip our people to reach a high level of performance through training. It says that training should be implemented as follows: "1) Basic training. This would be mandatory training for any person directly involved in the tourism industry." This is what I alluded to earlier on. "If expertise is not available within the Departments of Education and Tourism, they should hire external consultants to design the material necessary which will bode well for this training."

It suggests that the programme should be delivered by the College. I assume that to be the Community College. As I mentioned earlier, there are some programmes going on now. Here we are going into not only a deeper style, but also a more meaningful fashion to achieving the goals. It reads: "The programme should be open for all organisations as well as sole business operators." It outlines the content of the programme: "people-handling skills, being a professional host, being hospitable, courteous and friendly."

It also goes on to talk about specific job training: "Where jobs are available in sufficient numbers to warrant centralised, institutionally delivered programmes, job specific training should be developed by either Government staff or external consultants and supplied through the College. Job specific training should ultimately become mandatory immediately upon appointment to the job."

"Examples of jobs which may have sufficient numbers are: Waiters/waitresses; Housekeepers; Cashiers; Short order cooks; Secretaries; Book-keepers; Guides; Hostesses/Hosts; Bartenders." A myriad of different occupations which our people can fill. It goes further up the ladder where it has 'Management/Leadership Training', and it paints the picture for the entire society.

Madam Speaker, while we seem to be discussing in the middle of the debate policy, nevertheless whether it is a divided situation or encompassed in one unit, implementation has to take place and it is has to be addressed. Maybe when the time comes, some of what has been said in the debate on this issue may be taken and used for the benefit of the people.

In the Tourism Management Policy (TMP) that has been put forward to this House (the one that we are debating now), there is a section on Dive Sites. If we are just looking at policies now, I wish to extract a few sentences from the policy document. It reads: "There are currently well in excess of two hundred recognised dive sites around the Cayman Islands. The use of the Grand Cayman sites in approximately 70% concentrated in the west, 20% concentrated in the north and 10% on the east and south sides of this island. The accessibility of the dive sites depends on the type of diving boat utilised by the operators. The waters are generally rougher on all but the west end of the island, therefore smaller boats are kept to that end. This concentration is also related to the locations of the dive operations in terms of where people are loaded. Since most dive operations are located in the Seven Mile Beach and George Town areas, due to travel time restrictions most diving is concentrated in the waters off the western reefs. Initiatives to manage this area are: 1) To commence a comprehensive reef management program; 2) To try to disperse use to other locations to reduce concentration in the west. This will require permanent moorings at some of the more remote sites and improvement of the dive boat fleet by operators; 3) To increase the number of mooring buoys where needed; 4) Development of carrying capacity estimates for each dive site, based on its physical capabilities and diver experiences. Monitoring of the impact of diving on the sites will be treated as critical; 5) Legislation to set basic standards for all water sport operators."

We have been hearing for some time about the possibility of permanent mooring in locations other than what seems to be obvious to most of us and there are varying views on this topic. There is the question of whether there should be permanent moorings located on the West Bay peninsula, commonly known as the Northwest Point area. The information I have tells me this is where the best dive sites on the island are located. While I have not heard any official position, I wish to make a few comments on it.

In the 1992 document there is a section called 'Cruise Strategy'. In this section it reads: "Permanent deep water moorings for cruise ships should be constructed immediately to prevent further damage to the reef which is the lifeblood of the dive industry, a premier tourist attraction to the Cayman Islands." It has a little note there which reads: "A permanent docking facility is rejected at this time since there appears to be little advantage to the Cayman Islands in terms of number of cruise passengers, their length of stay and expenditures on the islands."

I have been told by dive masters who ply these waters on a regular basis that what we commonly know as the George Town Harbour has a section that is approximately one mile long. The only description that I could get which was vivid enough for me to understand was that they asked me to pretend that a big D-6 was underwater and was going back and forth for that mile 24 hours a day for about a year if I wanted to get an understanding of the kind of damage that has been done.

I am told that especially with the larger cruise ships the links in the anchor chains weigh in excess of 100 pounds—just one link. If I am to imagine the movement of a hammock as one lies in it, there is that back and forth movement when the ship is anchored. Understanding it like that gives one a good idea of the damage that is continually done.

The other place that is used is the Spotts' site. What has become obvious over the years is that there is no returning to the vibrant coral reefs that were once there. So the opinion is that it is already dead, there is no sense in seeking to let another area die from the same causes.

If any permanent moorings are to be placed, they should be placed in these locations, George Town and Spotts. Spotts is used less, but I think there is much scope for the enhancement of that facility. I think Government now owns the land directly in front of what we know as the Spotts dock and there is much scope in that area for creating facilities for these cruise ships.

The thought (by some) that the weather is rough 364 days per year in that area is simply not true, because I travel there daily and there are many days it looks as though one could walk on the water. So the point in hand with this policy is while it is not specific as to location for these permanent moorings, I trust that the Government will take the point of the existing locations.

The moorings that I am talking about, the key word in their description is 'permanent'. Let us not get away from the fact that where they are put they will be permanently.

Getting back to the thought about placing them elsewhere—for instance, amidst these prime dive sites—I think Government and all of us have to understand for that matter, that the dive industry, while it does not take off the top part of the tourism industry. Statistics show that 30% of the tourists who come here come to dive. So it is not a false conclusion to draw that if the tourism industry contributes $330 million to the economy, if the dive industry is not managed properly we stand to lose $100 million per year out of those tourist dollars.

There are special interest groups who wish to protect their own interests in the positions that they take on where permanent moorings should go. I am not a diver and I do not have any business connections in that area, but I think we need to look at it objectively. With whatever policy is going to be followed, it should not be achieved by cutting off the hand that feeds us. We have to be very careful how we look at where those permanent moorings are to be placed. It is important for us to get input from all sides and to ensure that whatever the decision-making process is, it includes everyone's knowledge so that the end result is the one that is best for all of us.

I dare say that if we are looking at being environmentally sensitive it certainly makes no sense to be looking at new areas to mash up the reef. I hope that that is borne in mind. The Spotts area is already being used as an alternate whenever there is bad weather in town. I think that in all of its programmes, Government could well come up with a viable proposition for that area which would be self-sufficient once a little bit of innovation is used.

There is another issue in this policy document that I would like to touch on. It is the issue of the expatriates in the work force. As it stands now we do have some problems. When I spoke on the issue of training, I pointed out some existing problems which are very relevant to this society. But it is very important for us to understand and accept a few things which are very real to us.

The issue of expatriate labour becomes sensitive when our own people feel that their earning power, their self-esteem and their worthiness to coexist in this society are being threatened. What we as a people have to understand is that the inherent problems that are created are done so by ourselves. Here is what we have done: We have created an economy that has to grow to survive because when we take one step in one direction, it fuels a need for something else in another direction. We have created an ambience for flexibility and the inducement of large investment to continue. We say, quite rightly so, that we need to encourage this in order to keep the economy at a growing rate and it is only natural that labour demands will increase. If we examine our indigenous population we understand that while more people are being born, the truth is that the birth rate is decreasing. We are not creating Caymanians fast enough (and I am not suggesting that we should be doing otherwise) in this society to have the bodies that are required to fill the jobs that are being created. So naturally, we have to look elsewhere for labour.

In so doing we have caused the strain on the indigenous population, especially with the lack of training that exists and we end up with a back and forth situation. We want the economy to continue to grow which means that we have to call in more labour. As we call in more labour it creates a problem with the indigenous population and we have lost the balance which I do not believe we ever had. This is where it is incumbent on the leaders of this country to ensure that while growth is to be expected and sought after, that growth has to be managed in such a way that it is for the benefit of all concerned, not only the indigenous population but the others who remain with us for some time. That is a big problem.

The indigenous population naturally have a fear of being out numbered and over run. The thought comes to mind: 'My God! Here I am in my own land and I have nothing. I see no hope of getting anything. Somebody can walk in, jump on a bicycle and ride around as he pleases, change his style as he wishes, and be happy while he is doing it.'

It is not wrong for the people who come to our shores to be able to do that. But if we do not do something to dispel the thought process in a certain segment of our society, they are going to continually perceive it as wrong and say that we are not doing them justice. The only way that we can achieve that goal is for them to have the equipment to go out and deal with the society to make their role one that is plastered with self-esteem, self worth and, all-in-all, wanting to be someone within their own society.

There are a few areas in the 1992 document which deal with the problem I just pointed out and I just wish to make a few quotations here. The document reads: "While many indicators point to a lack of interest by Caymanians, there is no substantive evidence to support these indicators." It goes on to say: "If Caymanians only want to participate in a small percentage of the jobs in the industry, such as management positions, expatriates will be required for its survival."

We are now in the last days of 1994. What I just read is not going on in the minds of our people today. They understand that not all of us have wide career choices. In fact, the reality is that many of us have to be guided to the one that fits our acumen the best. So on the issue of the expatriate problem, it must not be a problem to us. We have to find a way to coexist in the society in such a way that we do not sit on the corner and talk about 'us and them', and who is taking advantage of whom.

We have a constant habit among us of not talking about what is good, and only talking about what is bad and it spreads—only too fast. We must develop the ways and means to let those who come among us feel appreciated and we must find the means to let our own people understand that they too have their places in this society.

One of the last points that I have not seen in the Policy Document (and I trust I am not erring in saying that I have not seen it) is something that we call safety. I venture to say that one of the first descriptions the tourists give of these islands is the fact that it is safe for them to come here. Whether they are short stayovers or they come and stay three months out of the year, they are pleased to know that they can leave where they come from and have somewhere that is as safe or safer to relax.

We would want to say that tourism has nothing to do with police. We might want to say that is someone else's responsibility. The truth of the matter is that just about everything that involves itself in our society today overlaps into some other issue. They intertwine to form exactly what we know as a way of life. The document that was produced in 1992 says that: "if they are not already in place, consideration could be given to prevention and detection strategies such as neighbourhood watch, crime stoppers." I know that there have been serious attempts to implement these strategies.

I know that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town has been involved with neighbourhood watch in his district. We do have the Crime Stoppers. They also go on to recommend; "A special police tourism awareness training programme to ensure that law and order officials have the necessary training to be ambassadors for crime prevention and law and order as well as apprehenders of criminals. Consider deployment strategies for the police force that makes them highly visible in areas where there is potential for high incidence of crime—Seven Mile strip—where most of the tourists romp and play."

Is our force highly visible there? I know we have other worrying problems at hand right now, but the point in hand is that even if we change midstream that it is not an implementation plan but simply a policy. Policies of this nature need to be in place also. That is my view.

"Safety and public order are a prime concern of tourists, and Cayman must retain its image as a stable and safe tourism destination." There were some sound recommendations regarding the same expatriate issues I talked about a few minutes ago. In the position of what the document of 1992 termed as the 'Willed Future', which is basically what we would like to see happen, they recommended that a task force be created with appropriate representation empowered to approach this issue from a problem-solving perspective. "The terms of reference would require careful consideration, of course. They might include providing a well articulated definition of the problem, an in-depth analysis of the symptoms and causes of the problems and recommendations for solving the problems."

When we talk about conflicts with the 'us' and 'them' syndrome and the expatriates, we look at the three basic ways outlined in the 1992 document to handle conflict. You could avoid it, you could fire and reload and you could problem-solve. It is said that presently too many of the key stakeholders are either in the avoid, or the fire and reload modes. This is clearly not productive. So we must be looking at our policies to be solving the problems that are continually being created by the growth that we experience and wish to continue experiencing.

I hope I say it right—the Tourism Management Policy (and I think we will avoid the use of the term 'implementation plan' as it has been explained that is what it is not) has many goals that are in line with my way of thinking. It is certainly not a document that should not be supported, but whether we are off on implementation plans or not, the truth of the matter is, the management policy I trust will be accompanied in short order by an implementation plan. If the Government is saying that the policy must be developed and then how we implement the policies must come afterwards, so be it. I believe the exercise that has been carried on today proves the worthiness of the 1992 document—the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan. I hope that the many issues that have been discussed today and the many more that might have well been discussed if it had not been for the good timing of the Member for North Side who pointed out that this was not an implementation plan, I trust those issues will be used when the time comes for developing the implementation plan.

The document that we are voting on is one that is acceptable as a TMP, but I wish to reiterate that the implementation of these various policies could be handled totally if the people's plan of 1992 were heeded. Let us not think about the year it came into existence, and who was the man of the hour then. Let us not think about how many brownie points we are going to get depending on which way we go and how we are going to do it. Let us look at what is best for us all. Frankly, I do not care who the players are, the game must be played for all of us. There are those of us here today who wish that we did not have to look in depth at the people's plan, but I think this was a good opportunity to point out the soundness of that plan. I genuinely hope that its worth will not go down the tubes.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This Motion is one that, for the avoidance of the earlier confusion over the front page, I would just like to read it: "Adoption of the Tourism Management Policy 1995-1999."

"WHEREAS the Tourism Management Policy document was laid on the Table of this honourable House on the 5th day December, 1994;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the House adopts the Tourism Management Policy 1995 to 1999."

This document is not an implementation plan at all; indeed, the only thing that refers to this is the title on the front of the document which incidentally was not on the document when it passed through the Government. That seems to have been bound subsequently. So, I will ask Members to ignore that one sheet of paper on the front. We have to look at this as purely a policy document. Tourism has moved forward by leaps and bounds. Tourism is good in the Cayman Islands. It has increased and developed far in excess of what has been the case in many of the islands of the Caribbean and around the world.

A lot of criticism was levelled at this by the two opposition Members, but they must admit that the Minister, in his development of tourism has shown sound policies and sound increases in both quality and amount. The increases are not alarming increases, they are increases that the country can deal with. In my view, they are reasonable having regard to the circumstances.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town mentioned that with tourism the economy of it is such that it has to grow to survive. That is true of any business, you either stand still or you go backwards. If you stand still too long, you go backwards. Like any other business, it must grow and it is Government's duty to see that it grows at a reasonable pace. That is what the Minister for Tourism has done.

I would summarise the two opposition Members, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town as putting forward a lot of criticism and no solutions. The world is full of critics. Anyone can stand up and criticise, but it takes someone with ability and drive and sense to solve the problems. Much debate went on by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town criticising areas of this. While he took a more constructive approach to it, he too spent most of his time criticising.

Criticism is all well and good, Madam Speaker, if it is constructive. But the duty of Members of this House and the duty of those three Members, as Caymanians, should be to try to assist so the economy can be in a better position. We are doing well. We are moving upwards. Tourism is doing well, and to be frank most of the criticism that I hear is in this House because on the outside people are happy with the National Team. They are happy with the Government and they see us as putting forward policies that are reachable, economically feasible, and of which we are not prepared to borrow the $57 million or $36 million that was borrowed on Cayman Airways for money that was squandered. In fact, we are paying that money back now. Tourism is one of the main pillars of the economy that is paying it.

It is all well and good, and with a document of this size you can stand up and criticise anything. But the 'test' of the pudding is with the eating and they must admit that tourism in this country is good. It is moving upwards; the economy is buoyant and the only people who are trying to tear it down are those two opposition members. They brought a question to this House asking what is the Government's policy on tourism. Now they have it and they are complaining, but that is the nature of those two Honourable Members.

The lengthy parts which were read from the 1992 plan by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman which was, to me, only aimed at creating strife and civil and racial problems between foreigners and Caymanians. Surely the duty of this House is...

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Member?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Member is imputing that I read from the Coopers & Lybrand document to create racial strife in this country. That is a very serious charge. He is the only person who could truly be charged with that today.

The Speaker: I am afraid, Honourable Minister, that the Member has a point because what is contained in the document and read could certainly not be termed anything but what the document contained.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I accept your ruling.

The Speaker: Continue please, Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Sure. As you rule.

What was read were statements regarding expatriates and Caymanians that showed friction and targeting of those specific persons against whom it was made. Speaking generally, not referring to that document, if I stood up here as a Caymanian and I targeted foreigners and called them different names and said that they should not be in the country and that sort of thing. Where does it lead? It leads to friction between Caymanians and foreigners. So speaking generally, statements of that sort are, in my view, going to create friction and problems within the population. Speaking generally again, there are people in this country who would like to see nothing better than that. That is why debates of this sort should try to take a constructive approach to bringing in harmony between the multi-racial and the multi-national industry of tourism—not to divide and be divisive and damaging to the industry.

This policy has had wide exposure within the industry. The industry itself is made up of a multi-national work force. The aim of Government has to be to create harmony between the different members of that work force who work out there. That is what I believe the Minister for Tourism and the director of that department have sought to do. There are areas of problems in this industry, as in every other industry. But I have found no solutions coming from the critics of this plan. I submit that when there is only criticism and nothing constructive, that is aimed at destroying the country and destroying the main pillar of the economy—tourism. After all, what was said by the Opposition Members criticising strategic planning . . . yet this plan that was brought in by the last Government in 1992 states specifically at page II; "This plan is a strategic management plan."

So it is all right when it is a strategic plan for tourism brought in by the last government, but if it is a strategic plan that is brought in by the Minister for Health or myself for Education, it is not good. That sort of argument is speaking out of both sides of one's mouth. It is not constructive.

I am only going to deal with the main area of criticism levelled by the two Opposition Members and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. I am going to deal with that in some detail. But since we are dealing here with a policy and not with an implementation plan, I do not propose to attempt to deal with some of the vague and damaging statements which have been made by some of those Members in relation to this.

They are saying that there is not sufficient training in the area of tourism and the hospitality industry. There are people who only see what they want to see because they intend to say what they wish and not what is a fact. This question was asked of me in this House and I gave an answer at that stage. I would like to go beyond that answer now to show that tourism is being taught, despite the fact that the last government destroyed the Hotel Training School, the Building School and the Marine Training Institute. They really destroyed the remnants of what could have been, in my view, a very beneficial (and had been) training scheme.

By the way, Madam Speaker, this massive document, the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan on the Table of this honourable House, was commissioned by the previous government. Like every other document they did it was a massive expense of public funds—sometimes half a million dollars at a time to consultants. Nothing was done by the last government: now we are trying to salvage some of that. This tourism management policy is based on that document in many respects.

The training of our people: At the John Gray High School there are 100 plus students in Year 11 CXC Examination group who are studying Tourism as part of their social studies syllabus. In Year 11 there are 60 plus students on a Work Skills course. They attend work experience which includes hotel training and hospitality on a weekly basis.

All students in Life Skills do a unit on tourism and the hospitality industry. Mrs. Alma McKenzie, from the Tourism Department, and members of the Restaurant Association visit the schools to give speeches. This is an important part of the Careers Guidance given to Year 11 students. So it is not correct. It is unfair to say that nothing is being done towards training in the tourism industry. That is at the school level. The Community College has a series of courses and a diploma course. The Certified Hotel Administrator Programme—and I will just read what this is: "This is a part time programme which offers the candidate professional certification within the accommodation sector of the hospitality industry. The programme caters to the needs of senior members within the hotel industry." There is another programme—The Certified Food Service Manager Programme. It is a part-time programme which offers the candidate professional certification within the food service sector of the hospitality industry. This programme caters to the need of senior members within the food service industry. If the two Opposition Members and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town would have taken the time to come to the Community College Graduation they would have seen the amount of certificates given out to Caymanians in those areas. But nobody takes an interest in this; they just come here and criticise.

There are two other major forces. (1) The Certificate of Hospitality Studies. This is a one-year, full-time programme, designed to prepare the graduate to successfully secure an entry-level position within the hospitality industry. This programme can serve as a prerequisite for prospective students to gain admission into the diploma programme. Entrance requirements include the successful completion of high school level Mathematics and English. If the prospective student is deficient in this requirement, he or she may write the College Entrance Examination. All prospective students are also required to be interviewed prior to admission. All students enrolled in the certificate programme will be required to successfully complete the following course subjects: (and I would like them to listen carefully to this so that they can get a grasp of the width and the breadth of this course) 1) Business Communication; 2) Business Mathematics; 3) Food and Beverage Production; 4) Food and Beverage Service; 5) Front Office Administration; 6) Housekeeping; 7) Introduction to Computers; 8) Tourism Studies; 9) Safety; 10) Sanitation. It is not as if the opportunities are not out there, but what has to happen is that the two Opposition Members and the criticism that we hear in here, if that effort goes towards encouraging Caymanians to attend the Community College, that would be a constructive approach and the tourism industry and Caymanians would benefit.

(2) The College also gives a diploma in Hospitality Management. This programme is two academic years in length and is designed to provide the student with exposure to critical and major areas of hospitality management. The students will develop technical skills in the area of accounting, computers, food and beverage management, marketing and rooms division administration.

Successful completion of the programme will allow the student to be awarded the following credentials from the Educational Institute of American Hotel and Motel Administration: 1) Two Certificates of Specialisation; 2) A Certificate in Operations Management; 3) A Diploma in Hospitality Management. It has the external accreditation of the educational institute of the American Hotel and Motel Association.

The opportunities are there. Over and above this, the Department of Tourism provides training, working with the American Express Company and the Caribbean Tourism Organisation in relation to teachers, both at the primary and secondary levels to enhance the understanding of tourism. They do workshops for students to sensitize them to what tourism is and there is also scholarship funding support from American Express to provide tertiary level training for young persons who wish to enter the industry in professional capacities.

Over and above this, many of the activities launched locally, such as the 'Theirs and Yours' campaign are there to make the industry aware of what exists.

The two Opposition Members very carefully avoided looking at the tourism objectives. In the Budget, at page 193, under Objectives, in the following paragraphs: 3) "To establish three units within the de- partment in the areas of statistics research, training and development."

4) "To carry out promotional and training initiatives to enhance partnerships with the private sector and raise the image of tourism locally by February 1995."

5) "To increase efforts with regional partners, for example, American Express, to enhance middle management training opportunities for Caymanians in the tourism industry. 6) To develop a work plan within the unit of tourism development services, specifically, which will focus on increased awareness locally of opportunities within tourism and the significance of tourism to these islands by February 1995."

The two Opposition Members voted $170,000 for these programmes. It is not as if this is just a lot of talk, the money is in there for us to move on with these programmes. Under Performance Targets and Indicators: "The training of 200 persons locally, and five persons overseas in a tourism related area."

In the same way that we have seen attempts to criticise and state that nothing is being done in training (I have shown, very clearly, the wide and comprehensive training courses that are open to persons in this industry)—in the same way I would ask the public and the Members of this honourable House to ignore the other areas of criticism, which, when you add the near four hours of each of the three Members who criticised, would take me well in excess of my four hours to deal with.

I give one crucial example—that of training—and submit that the balance of their criticism is very superficial. It is because they are upset that tourism is moving along well. They are upset that the problems are being dealt with by Government. There will always be problems in any industry: As they arise they are being dealt with in a comprehensive way and in a way that our people are getting the best opportunity possible in this very important industry.

I know the three Members who criticised the plan have stated that they are going to vote for it, which goes a long way toward showing the superficial aspect of their criticism. Since this is such an important industry, if they genuinely want to help Caymanians and the people of this country, then join hands with the Government in promoting tourism. While we are trying to build it up, those Honourable Members are trying to tear it down. This cannot be the way forward for this very important industry.

I say to them, get out of this negative approach to life. Try to look at things from a positive point of view. Try to help rather than destroy; try to join hands and move forward on what is the main pillar of this country's economy. People who take a positive approach—who are optimistic—are much happier because they do not spend their lives trying to see what is wrong in others.

I would like to end on that positive approach, Madam Speaker. The Tourism Industry is going well. We are doing as much as we can in the area of training and dealing with the problems that arise. But we could do much more if the three Members of this House who have taken such a critical approach on this policy would join hands with us and try to do something constructive for the people of this country, rather than taking a destructive approach.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.49 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.10 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.
The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to offer my contribution on the Government Motion entitled Adoption of the Tourism Management Policy 1995—1999. I believe that the Opposition is confused on this issue because I heard all three of them, that is the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, get up and take the same approach comparing the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan with the Five Year TMP introduced by the Honourable Minister for Tourism just a few days ago.

It was my understanding (and this is borne out in the executive summary of the TMP) that all this policy is is a mechanism by which provisions of the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan will be implemented over a period of time. Not this particular plan replacing the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan. That is total nonsense, because that is not my understanding of the issue. That is borne out in the executive summary of the document laid by the Minister for Tourism.

With your permission, I would just like to read an excerpt to support my argument. It says here: "In 1992, Coopers & Lybrand Consulting undertook an extensive investigation of tourism in the Cayman Islands and prepared a Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan." That is a fact. "The plan was designed to aid Government and the people of these islands to fine tune strategies to remain successful in the increasingly competitive global tourism environment."

"The policies [that's what we are talking about now] presented in the following document are [and here he is referring to the TMP 1995—1999] for the most part based on the findings and recommendations made by the consulting group." Which consulting group? Coopers & Lybrand Consulting Group, 1992, who did the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan. "Where necessary, revisions have been made in order to reflect today's existing reality."

Regardless of how well a plan is designed one can always find room for improvement and that is all that the Minister is saying here. They look at the Ten-Year Development Plan, which is going to act as a guide for tourism over the next five years. Then when we get close to the five years, we will review our accomplishments according to the outline as laid down in the plan and we move on from there for another five years.

I, personally, believe that that is the sensible approach to tourism or anything. One has to have a plan. There is a little saying that goes: "Damned if you don't and damned if you do." That is the position the Government finds itself in. A year ago, when things were flat in the economy, unemployment was at an all time high, do you know what the message of the Opposition was? We have to get the economy moving; we have to create jobs for Caymanians; people need something to survive on. Now, Government takes steps to put policies in place which create the stimulation the economy needs, and over the last two years we have had an average of a 20% increase in tourism. Now the Opposition says, 'For whom are we developing?' We cannot say on the one hand that we need expansion, then when we start to see it happening we ask, 'For whom are we doing it?'

I have discovered that the Opposition has the ability in a very professional manner to speak out of both sides of their mouths. I believe that the approach to tourism (and I support this approach), has to be a managed approach. One can spend $10 million a year on tourism as far as promotion and the numbers could be three or four times what we have experienced as far as overnight visitors are concerned. But at the end of the day what could we have done? We could have probably created more problems than benefits as a result of that mass approach to tourism.

I am not taking anything away from the former Member for Tourism. He did a good job as far as seeing to it that a plan, a ten-year plan for tourism was formulated and developed. The present Minister has taken that plan and he is seeing how we can implement that plan in the best interests of these Islands. It is complimentary, not an opposition. It complements the policies recommended in the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan. Great emphasis was placed on training. That was harped on by the Opposition. That was something that the present Government campaigned on in 1992. We are going to see to it that proper training programmes are put in place including tourism-training programmes. It is my opinion that we need a specific training unit or entity to deal with tourism.

I remind the Opposition who abolished the Hotel Training Programme that we had in place prior to this Government taking over. It was the last government. When they came into office rather than seeing which programmes were worthwhile they took the attitude to abolish it all because it was established by the previous government.

We have the same problem in tourism that we now have in sports. For over 20 years they were neglected and now it is the catching up period that we have to go through. It is my firm belief that what has to be put in place (and I am aware that the Minister is working on this), is for one of the major hotels to make its facilities available for a sit-down classroom setting, as well as offering practical experience to those students who are enrolled in the hotel industry.

That is the approach that we need to take. It has to be intense, it has to have proper incentives put in place so that these Caymanian persons who are interested in this area are paid a salary. They will be paid to go to classes, to get the practical experience on the job and, not only that, their training and progress must be so monitored and the exposure so wide that when they do finish they would have a position already identified in the industry to fill.

That is very easily done because the major hotels that we have in this country, the Hyatt, the Radisson, even the Holiday Inn, have multiple units around the world where students could transfer for experience in training to get the feel for the different destinations. It would also broaden their experience.

I, for one (and I have fought for this ever since I was elected in 1988), want to see more Caymanians have an opportunity in middle and upper management in the hotel industry. What I see out there at the present time are just token Caymanians, people who the establishments have put in place so they can say we cannot accuse them of not hiring Caymanians. But they are so controlled that they are not making a positive contribution. They are not seeing to it that Caymanians are exposed to training opportunities in the hotel industry.

I believe a very serious, well-founded partnership must be established between Government and the hotel industry. They must work together. I am as concerned as any Member of this House in regards to the number of work permits that we require at the present time to fill positions in this country. In my opinion, many times they are unjustified. Why? Just because those establishments know that permits are available if they want them. Work permits should be a last resort.

I am not saying that we have enough Caymanians to fill all the positions that are available in that industry. But there are positions that could be filled by Caymanians that are presently filled by a work permit holder. So there must be a genuine interest, as far as the employers are concerned, and Government, to see to it that Caymanians have a fair opportunity to make a decent living in that industry.

If one were to look in an objective manner at where the opportunities are at the present time in the Cayman Islands, one would have to look at tourist related services. Banking will always occupy a major role of importance in this country and we continue to support banking. But there are only so many opportunities available in that industry.

The other main pillar in our economy is tourism. In order for our people to be successful in this area, there has to be a very definite and positive change of attitude. Some of us are so proud that we want to start at the top. In many cases we do not have the qualifications or the experience to start at that level. But like banking, one has to get in somewhere near the ground floor level. One has to be willing to learn every aspect of the operation. One must know something about housekeeping, the front desk, and the tour services. This only goes with the territory. At the end of the day, if one is willing to expose oneself to that Ten-Year Plan of training and exposure, when one does get to the top he is a better person, as far as knowing what he is responsible for and how it all works. A basic understanding of the industry is essential.

I disagree with the Opposition in that I do not believe that Caymanians resent foreigners. This is one of the reasons why the Cayman Islands have always been so different from all the other destinations as far as visitors are concerned. Caymanians have always been a very hospitable, friendly group of people and that continues to be the attitude.

What concerns me. . .and this is where Caymanians have a gripe. Caymanians have always had an opportunity to share in the success of this country. It makes me proud when I see Caymanians from all walks of life, be it the construction industry; the hotel industry; banking—regardless of where they make their living—able to build decent homes, drive decent cars, have money in their pockets, able to support their families and take care of the educational needs of their children.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: Honourable Member, it is now 4.30 PM, will you be finished in a short time?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: No, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: I will ask for the adjournment. The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the adjournment of this honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye...Those against No.

The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 15 DECEMBER, 1994.

THURSDAY
15 DECEMBER 1994
10.10 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Member for North Side to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, The Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Order! Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SPEAKER

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: First of all, I did not apologise for the absence yesterday of the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

This morning apologies for absence have been tendered by the Honourable Minister for Communications and Works, the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 31/94

CENSURE MOTION FOR THE MISAPPROPRIATION OF FUNDS

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 31/94, Censure Motion for the Misappropriation of Funds.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move Private Member's Motion 31/94, Censure Motion for the Misappropriation of Funds, which reads:

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Legislative Assembly, being made aware of an article in the Caymanian Compass of the 27th of October, 1994, of the action taken by Government of the expending of funds not provided for in the 1994 Budget for the paving of private roadways and driveways in the district of West Bay, censures such action and requests that a full investigation be immediately carried out by the Auditor General.”

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion 31/94. The Motion is open for debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Private Member's Motion that is before the House this morning is about a scandal. It is about the use of public money for use on private driveways in the Cayman Islands. It is the first time that such blatant action has ever been taken by any Government using public funds that I am aware of. The use of public funds in such a manner is against the Law and it is also against convention. Anyone knows, even those who might not really be expected to know, that public money is to be used for public purpose.

I think it is well that I should read a few excerpts from the newspaper which the Motion referred to, that is the Caymanian Compass, Thursday, 27th October, 1994. The caption on the front page is "Government pays for Private Road Surfacing". It says in the article: "The Cayman Islands Government is in the midst of paving 41 private roadways and driveways in the district of West Bay at a cost of nearly $300,000. According to documents obtained by the Caymanian Compass there are 41 separate jobs on the list of work. The first job, a private road off Willie Farrington Drive, began on the 8th of September. Other jobs were scheduled to begin in September and October, while some had no start date listed.

"The documents show that there are six separate contracts called schedules by Government split among three contracting firms; East End Aggregate, Island Paving and Rollin Ebanks.

"The money is reportedly coming from the $713,000 CI dollars already budgeted for general improvement to gazetted roads. "

That quotation from the article referred to in the Motion has brought the focus of public attention upon what has happened in Government in this regard. Since this article has been printed various Government ministers on different occasions have been subtly, and not so subtly, attempting to justify its actions. It has been said that people who have narrow lanes to their homes need to have them made bigger [to accommodate] fire service—apparently at Government's expense. There have also been statements to the fact that Elected Ministers of Government do not sign any pay vouchers; it is the civil servants who do so. Therefore, the Elected Government Ministers are not to blame.

I have had certain discontentment with actions of the present Government from way back in 1992 when its first major act, announced on Christmas Eve was that for the first time ever in the history of the Cayman Islands, Government was withdrawing a guarantee given to a consortium of three banks with regard to the stopping of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital.

This time there is another first. I think that the action I referred to in 1992, and different actions which have gone on under this Government, have ushered us into what is commonly called the realm of the "Banana Republic", where one Government will undo what the previous one does. Surely, in this case it is most blatant. No attempts by the Ministers of Government can make this appear like normal Government policy. If this is, indeed, a policy, it is a new one and the country has to be told that the Government is now on the road to using Government money to fix private driveways for citizens of this country. If that is to be a policy, then the decision being left to the five Elected Ministers of Executive Council to decide whose driveways are fixed, is in itself, questionable.

Madam Speaker, the process of the Estimates is something that is ongoing throughout any year. It is a process where the persons involved in the finances of this country—more particularly, the Portfolio of Finance and Development—monitor the way Government expenditure is going during the course of a year; how closely the estimates are accurate to money spent, how well the revenues of Government are coming in according to what was calculated.

The process of arriving at a Budget is where there is a multiplicity of requests from the Departments for new services, new staff, new furniture, new things to be done. It also includes requests from ordinary Members of the Legislature who would write in and ask if certain monies could be included because they would like to see some improvements in their districts, be that in whatever area.

Perhaps this happens with some of the other ordinary Members of this House, I certainly was not among that lot, for normally it is signalled to Members that Budget time is on and if they have some requests to send them in. I knew nothing about what was being done in terms of including any information.

In fact, in the past, since I have been a Member of this Legislature, the former Chief Secretary, Mr. Lemuel Hurlston, always did make available to the Members from Cayman Brac a copy of what was being requested and we did have an opportunity of discussing it with the Chief Secretary and the District Commissioner and whomever else in District Administration that he may have considered necessary to be there, usually the Superintendent of Works. It did not happen this time, therefore, I cannot factually say what was submitted was determined by the Government after cuts and whatever changes were made and whatever priorities they decided.

Just about everyone in this country knows—surely, civil servants know, I have been a civil servant so I know—that out of the numerous requests (and the Financial Secretary told us in Finance Committee that there were millions of dollars of things requested) they have to be cut back: priorities have to be set so that the funds can be adjusted to a realistic level.

It is at Budget time that the question of taxes is decided and any increases that there may be in the Civil Service. There have been both this year - taxes and increases in the Civil Service. But always, when a budget is prepared, the items that are provided for, are items of costs that are legitimate public expenditures. I will repeat that, Madam Speaker—'legitimate public expenditures'. Any other costs that may be included in a Budget are therefore illegitimate, illegal, or it would be a case of misappropriating funds.

Now, one needs to examine this process a bit further and determine what it means to appropriate so that we can best understand what it means to 'misappropriate'. Webster's Dictionary gives a meaning: "To set apart for or assign to a particular purpose; set apart for a particular use, a particular person, hence belonging particularly. Particular; suitable; fit; proper." From the time that the Cayman Islands Government was functioning, this has been the underlying principle on which estimates and provision of monies has been prepared.

It goes without saying that nothing can be misappropriated if it has not been appropriated. Of course we know that the Bill which is passed each year, and which was passed this year whereby Government has funds to run the Government and the country, is called the Appropriations Law.

The Government brings and proposes to the Legislative Assembly the annual Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure. It is not the business of any one Member of Executive Council, or any one Civil Servant, or few individuals except the Governor under the Constitution in special cases who can order expenditure which is not approved by Finance Committee.

Who, or what, is the Finance Committee? The Finance Committee is a standing committee of the House. It does not in truth have to be set up each year because the Finance Committee is set down in Standing Orders as being a standing committee of the House. Who are its members? Its members are all of the Members of this Legislature who are Elected Members. A famous Motion called Motion 3/90 changed that in 1990 and since the coming in of the amendments to the Revised Constitution it was changed back to the way it was. In fact it was given power and recognition under the constitution so that Finance Committee is all of the Members, that is the Elected Members of the Legislature in a meeting called the Finance Committee Meeting.

Madam Speaker, in Standing Order 73, it reads under Standing Select Committees: "(1) There shall be a standing select committee to be styled the Finance Committee, for the consideration of the estimates of expenditure, financial bills and other business referred to it by the House or by the Governor.

"(2) The Finance Committee shall consist of the Financial Secretary as Chairman and all the elected Members."

Therefore, no one should presume, Minister of Government or otherwise, that any one Minister or Ministers can appropriate monies for expenditure that has not been approved by all Elected Members of this Legislature.

It is one of the checks and balances. It is recognised that expenditure is uppermost in conducting the business of Government for, really, nothing can happen if there is no money. And it is the public's money; it is not the money of any one Member or a few individuals in this society. It goes to the point in the Finance Committee where there has to be a certain number forming a quorum which would be the largest number of Elected Members or the business cannot even be conducted.

In fact, it is the nearest that ordinary Members of the Legislative Assembly get to participating in what the finances of the country should be and how they should be spent. So, all of the people's representatives have this opportunity in this particular instance.

When matters have been approved in Finance Committee, then they are passed on to the Executive and their Ministers can carry on the day-to-day duties of the House through their Permanent Secretaries in spending the money for what it has been appropriated for. It has to be spent in line with the authorised approvals.

There is a balance between Ministers directing the Permanent Secretaries or the civil servants, and the civil servants being the controlling officers - the person who must answer for it as it is prescribed under law.

The annual estimates are described in the Public Finance and Audit Law. I note the word Public. It does not say the Private Finance and Audit Law. It is the Public. I read in the Public Finance and Audit Law, section 5: "(1)

The Financial Secretary shall cause to be prepared in each financial year estimates of the revenue and expenditure of the Government for the next following financial year, and shall cause such estimates to be laid before the Legislative Assembly before or as soon as practicable after the commencement of the financial year to which they relate.

"(2) Subject to subsection (3), the estimates of revenue and expenditure shall be in such form as the Financial Secretary may from time to time direct."

Subsection (3) says: "The estimates of expenditure shall (a) classify expenditure under heads and sub-heads with the ambit of each head described; (b) in respect of each head, show the estimated total expenditure, the provision sought in respect of each sub-head, the establishment of posts (if any) and the limit (if any) of the commitments which may be entered into in respect of expenditure which is not annually recurrent; and (c) specify the controlling officer so designated by the Financial Secretary in respect of each head and sub-head under section 12."

I submit that that is absolutely specific. This Law says that the Finance Committee, all of the Elected Members comprising the Finance Committee, may delegate to the Financial Secretary certain authority. I would like to read what it says in this regard, in section 8: "(1) Subject to this section, no changes shall be made to the approved estimates of expenditure except with the approval of the Finance Committee upon a proposal of the Financial Secretary."

No changes shall be made in the estimates except with the approval of the Finance Committee. Subsection (2): "Without limiting the generality of subsection (1) such changes may provide for all or any of the following matters—(a) the creation of new heads or sub-heads; (b) supplementary provision in approved or new sub-heads; (c) variations in the establishments of posts; (d) increases in the limit to the commitments"

And (3) says: "The Finance Committee may delegate to the Financial Secretary the power to approve changes subject to such conditions, exceptions and limitations as are specified in the delegation."

Madam Speaker, the question of the Estimates, the question of the monies provided or appropriated in the Estimates is specific. There are no grey areas about it; everyone knows and understands this.

I make the point that no money was designated by the Finance Committee in November 1993 Estimates to build 41 private roads and driveways in West Bay. If it had been, the Finance Committee, I submit, would have been doing something illegal because it is not public business. Certainly, the Financial Secretary, or any Minister of the Government, did not come to this Finance Committee and tell any Member or the Committee (they may have told a Member but they never told the Committee) that they had over $300 thousand, or over $400 thousand to build 41 private driveways. I know that a majority goes along with everything that the Government says or wants to do generally, but I know that I would have been one dissenting voice from that.

The country has been startled; it has been talking about this matter. I have heard many instances of disbelief being expressed. I have heard instances of it being so serious that people laugh about it and say, "I wonder who I have to see in Government to get to fix my private driveway?"

Public money has been used to provide private roads for some people. It is really quite unbelievable that this could happen in this country and in the way that it has happened and that Ministers of Government are trying to justify this happening.

Roads have been taken over by Government. Roads have been fixed which were once private when they are gazetted or when Government in some instances has done some repairs on roads that are in the process of being gazetted. But this particular blatant act is really something else.

Before the story appeared in the Caymanian Compass, certain documentation had been made available to me several weeks before that and when I looked at it my response was, 'This is a hoax', and that it could not be so. If there is one thing everyone knows you will get killed in Government for, is messing with public funds. I said to the individual who asked me if any money was provided in the estimates, no, there could not be. How can we provide money for people's private driveways? So, I took it no further.

The information which was given to me with the view that I would do something about it or bring it to public attention one way or the other, I simply kept it and did nothing about it because I just could not believe that this was the case. For in my career in the service, I did work in the Ministry of Communications and Works and I knew one strict rule that I learned from my superior officer there was that you made absolutely sure when dealing with roads that they were gazetted and had approval from Executive Council and all the rest of it before any work was done on them.

I would like to table a set of these documents which I have, as soon as I have referred to them, Madam Speaker.

One of the documents that I saw, which I could not believe reads "Form of Contract for Small Works Contract". It has a place for the contract number and the account number. It reads: "Agreement for the construction of West Bay Private Driveways" It goes on to say that the agreement is made this [blank] day of 1994, between the Government of the Cayman Islands, hereinafter called the Authority, on the one part, and [blank], PO Box, [blank], George Town Grand Cayman, hereinafter called the Contractor of the other part".

It reads on a little further: "Whereas the Authority [meaning the Government of the Cayman Islands] is desirous of completing under the direction of the Chief Engineer of the Public Works Department, including any person acting for him, appointed for the time being by the Authority for that purpose, hereinafter called the S.O., the construction of West Bay private driveways, hereinafter called the cite."

In section 3 of this contract it says: "The contractor shall commence the works on the 19th of August 1994, and complete the works not later than the 21st October 1994. Time is the essence of this agreement." In section 7 it says: "The contractor must leave the works clean and tidy upon completion to the satisfaction of the parcel owner or the S.O."

I am sure that any Member of this House who is thinking, and I would hope that all are, would really wonder about this. The private driveways must be done; the contractor must move with great speed; and he is to build private driveways and he has to leave it done to the satisfaction of the person who is having his private driveway done.

It did not even say we are building your private driveway for you, but we will build it to a standard that the Public Works Department knows is acceptable. It said that the person getting the driveway built had to approve the works for the Government.

In section 12 of this contract it says: "The proper law for this agreement shall be the Cayman Islands Law." Now that one really stumped me, Madam Speaker, because I did not know that there was any proper law in the Cayman Islands for building private driveways for people with public money.

Section 13 provides that "a retention fund equal to 8% of the contract sum will be withheld on each payment made to the contractor. This will be released at the end of the maintenance period. The maintenance period shall be 12 months." So after Government has built the driveways for these people, the Government now has an obligation to maintain them for 12 months. And it says that the contractor shall be allowed to request weekly payments, in section 14.

I think that any one who has been a civil servant, anyone who has been in Government and who knows Government's workings, anyone who has held responsible office, that of a controlling office, would have had to have been shocked by this matter.

I spoke to someone who was a former senior civil servant, two people in fact, and I asked them if they ever knew (and both of these former civil servants have been people working under Communications and Works Ministry) of Government undertaking in contract form building of private driveways by contract to subcontractor. They told me, "No it cannot be done—Gilbert, you know it cannot be done." I said, 'Well, I think I know it cannot be done, but I have certain information that it has been done.' Shortly after, the story appeared in the Caymanian Compass. I am very grateful that it did, for the newspaper was carrying out, undoubtedly, one of its duties to society.

There is another document within this bundle of documents. This is section 2 of it, "Special conditions for private driveway construction contract." The first section reads: “Owner Permission Letter: Before starting work on any driveway the contractor will secure from the parcel owner or resident a signature, telephone number and the address on the attached permission for the contractor to work on my parcel letter.”

Amazing! Permission for the contractor to work on my parcel. Now I wonder if there are not hundreds if not thousands of other citizens in this country who would just love to get such a letter if they could get the Government to build their driveway.

Section 1.1 says: “Contractor will give a copy to both PWD and to the Owner before starting work on any driveway.” Here, there is obviously a contract between the Government of the Cayman Islands and as it turns out three contractors in this country to build private driveways.

Section 2 really brings it home: "After completing work, the contractor will secure from the same parcel owner or resident a signature on section 2 of letter B, stating that the resident is satisfied that the job is finished." So, it seems that the private land owner has greater authority in deciding that it is finished than the Government itself has when it is constructing public roads, for the law says that it has to be done to the satisfaction of the Chief Engineer. In this case, the parcel owner is taking precedence over him.

Under section 2 it says: “The contractor will give the signed copy to PWD before requesting payment on any driveway.”

Who could have contrived this kind of disbelieving, devilish kind of work, I do not know. The letter B, that is referred to in the section which I just read, is captioned “Permission for Contractor to work on my parcel”, and it is addressed to “The Chief Engineer of the PWD, Box 505G Grand Cayman; reference: Private parcel blank; block blank. As the owner of this parcel I give permission for your contractor to construct a driveway on my parcel”. In the lower section, section 2 of it, is where the owner gives their permission that the work is done: “Further to the above, I hereby declare that the driveway on my parcel has been constructed to my satisfaction.”

If there is anything like irregularity at all, this documentation that I have read here which I am aware is similar to that received by the newspaper, then I would like to know what it is.

I understand that most of this work has already been done. It was certainly ongoing a few weeks ago and I went to West Bay on one weekend and a West Bay resident went with me and took me to see these roads. When one says private driveways, they are right. Private driveways they are - no question, no doubt.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [interjecting] Which ones?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I took pictures of those various roads. Unfortunately, I do not have the pictures here to table with the other documents. However, since that I have received something called a “Status Report of West Bay Private Roadways and Driveways”, report 27, “Status as of the 6th of September, 1994, road section Public Works, Contract A, Private roads batch 4. The cul-de-sac off Birch Tree Hill Road - $30,000; Willow Close (Garnell Rivers) $5,000; Road South of Powell Close - $44,000; Road off Willie Farrington Drive - $11,000.” It was estimated at $90,000 and it was given at $104,000 and what shows here is East End Aggregate.

There is Montgomery Road - $15,000; there is the Road off North West Point $21,000; Bernie Bush subdivision - $33,000; Road off North West Point #2 - $9,000. Given at a cost shown here of $84,790, Rollin Ebanks.

There is Driveway to 4E 430 - $2,000; Fredson and Touslin Ebanks - $8,500; Sonny Felner - $10,200; Driveway opposite Watercourse Road - $3,900; Road off East Park Road (Lily Ebanks) - $18,300. Total of $36,781 to Rollin Ebanks.

There is a driveway on 4B 237 - $17,400; Alfonso Ebanks Driveway - $1,500; Theresa Powery Driveway - $900; Richard Welds - $3,500; Roy Grant - $6,600; Track off Ash Road #2 - $3,300; Myers Driveway - $2,600; Road off Boatswain Bay Road - $6,600. Total $32,632 Rollin Ebanks, for a total of $154,203.

Lastly, Private Driveway job batch #3. Darvin Ebanks Road - $7,500; Ella Ebanks Driveway - $2,700; Ironie Ebanks Driveway - $2,100; Kivey Ebanks Driveway - $6,100; Raymond Welds Access - $3,500. Total of $32,492 to Island Paving.

I would like, with your permission, to table a complete set of these documents as I have read.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: What a wonderful thing it would be if in addition to all of these citizens of the Cayman Islands in the district of West Bay we could read out the names of every single citizen in this country who has a driveway and would like it paved, and had it paved.

The principle under which proper government operates is that the work which government undertakes with public money must be for the benefit of the public at large. It cannot be confined to one individual or two individuals or three individuals as the case may be. When there are instances where money is expended like that it is dealt with under the Ministry of health and the Minister of Social Services where individuals are personally being helped.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [Interjection] Nonsense!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I wonder how one associates a private driveway with one's personal welfare? Was an offence committed? I say, yes, Madam Speaker. Common sense has to say to anyone that an offence was committed. Why? Public money is not supposed to be spent on private driveways.

Madam Speaker, it has to be the case that a civil servant signed a voucher if these contractors were paid. Which civil servant? I do not know. I would certainly hope that that civil servant, that controlling officer, whoever signed those vouchers, or authorised those payments, had authority from some authority bigger than himself or herself, or was given authority of whatever kind, however arrived at, to do such a thing.

If a civil servant did indeed sign it, who authorised him? And how could it be authorised? Certainly not with the approval from the Finance Committee. Therefore, I say that monies were misappropriated.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [Interjection] Nonsense!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I do not for one minute believe that any civil servant had any interest in seeing private driveways done in West Bay. But I can think of a number of elected Members of the Legislature, indeed, Members of the Government Executive who might certainly have interest in seeing private driveways done.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [Interjection] Is it hurting you?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker...

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [Interrupting] It would be good, Madam Speaker, if he would explain...

The Speaker: Are you rising on a Point of Order, Honourable Minister?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Madam Speaker, the Member is making an accusation, and I am saying to the House that it would be good now if he would explain about Lazzari Road, and how that is going to be fixed.

The Speaker: Honourable Member that has nothing to do with what is being discussed at the moment. It is not a point of order because this is a substantive Motion and he has every right in presenting his Motion to put forward his information for consideration, and it has nothing... That is not a point of order...

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, what I drew... Madam Speaker—

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I am speaking, please. I am saying that what you have said about Lazzari Road has nothing to do with it.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I agree with that, but he understands what I am talking about. What I am drawing to your attention is his accusation that we could have pressured some civil servant into authorising expenditure for these private roads. He did mention it, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: I am quite aware of what he said, Honourable Minister, but he has every right to present his view and to get his point across. You can rebut it in your reply afterwards, but this is not a point of order that you have brought forward.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: He can present it without facts?

The Speaker: He has put some facts on the Table; I do not know what those facts are. I do not think he has completed his debate. Please allow him to complete his debate.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I will, Madam Speaker. I am only trying to draw to your attention that he named two Members; he should put that in writing if he has it. That is what I want before the House.

The Speaker: But that is not a point of order, I am telling you, Honourable Minister. Please continue, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I would just take note of one thing the Minister for Youth, the First Elected Member for West Bay, has said. I do not know if it is anything that he is aware of that I am not aware of, but there was no suggestion about any Minister pressuring civil servants into signing pay vouchers. Maybe there is much to be explored in that.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [Interjecting] What did you say? Explain what you said, or explain about Lazzari Road.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, in this situation, someone has to be held accountable because something has occurred which is absolutely unorthodox, irregular, and has not happened in this country before.

McKeeva Bush: [From across the floor] Nonsense! You know it.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: As I mentioned a few minutes ago, I do not believe that any civil servant really has an interest in seeing private driveways done in any part of this Island—certainly not West Bay.

I do not believe that the Financial Secretary who is responsible under the Public Finance and Audit Law - where in section 10, under the General Powers and Duties of the Financial Secretary it reads: “The Financial Secretary shall, subject to this and any other Law, have the management of the finances of the Government and the supervision, control and direction of all matters relating to the financial affairs of the Government”. [That he has any interest in seeing private driveways done in West Bay.]

But someone does. And we now have some indication, at least, that civil servants may have been pressured into doing this particular thing or taking this particular action.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [From across the floor] Tell them about Lazzari Road . . .

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: One needs to take into account who, under Law, and who, by appointment by the Gov-error, would naturally first be held or considered responsible for this matter of roads.

If I turn to Supplement No. 1 published in Gazette 25 of 1988, under "Assignment to Members of the Executive Council of Responsibility for Certain Business of the Government and for Certain Departments of Government", I see that at that time the Honourable Linford Pierson, who was then Member for the Portfolio for Communication, Works and Natural Resources, was assigned the subject of roads and bridges.

If I look under the same Gazette dealing with Assignment of Responsibility, and turning to the Gazette dated Wednesday, 2nd November, 1992, I see the subject of roads and bridges being assigned to the Portfolio of Agriculture, Communications and Works, and the Minister responsible is the Honourable John B. McLean, JP.

If I turn to Gazette No. 7, of 1994, to the Assignment for Ministers and Members of the Executive Council of Responsibilities by the Governor, I see that then, too, the subject of roads and bridges are assigned to the Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works, Honourable John McLean, Sr., JP.

So, as far as the Governor's assignments of responsibilities, it is clear that in the first instance the Minister responsible is the Honourable John B. McLean, Sr., JP, who is the Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works.

This question of roads, and the questionable way that roads are coming about these days really makes one wonder who is really responsible for them. When the closure of the road at the Airport came about, the first person to make statements about that road was the Minister for Tourism. What he said was contradicted by the Minister for Aviation—the road would not be closed as was said, and it would only be closed on Sunday when this plane from the United Kingdom was coming in.

Then the Minister who is responsible for roads, shortly after the Minister for Aviation, was on national television reading a statement from the Minister for Aviation about the road. And, lastly, the person ending up saying that the road would be closed and what would be done is the Minister for Aviation.

Something is seriously wrong with who is doing what. It is not wrong from the perspective of what has been stated in law or gazetted as to who is responsible, but it seems clear someone is playing rounders; unless if a plane flies over a certain piece of road that becomes the subject for the Minister of Aviation and the rest of it is for the Minister of Agriculture, I do not know. But it is clear that roads come about in some strange ways now, including the "accident loop" at the airport.

On Wednesday, 2nd November, the Minister for Communication and Works - the Minister for Roads - was on national television making it clear that no elected Members of Government signed vouchers, therefore Elected Ministers of Government could not have misappropriated funds. It was clear that this was a matter, in his opinion, that fell in the laps of a civil servant, or civil servants. All that I can say in that regard is, "poor civil servants", they have my sympathy for surely one of them will be figuratively beaten to a pulp by the Elected Ministers who, that Minister said, do not sign any pay vouchers. But, obviously, if there were payments made, someone did.

I state again: There are no civil servants who have any interest in fixing or building private driveways in West Bay.

There is a continuance of this situation that has been adopted. Why I say that, is because in Estimates for 1995, on page 340, under Construction of Roads, the sum of $2,880,000 has been provided - and I use, provided, to make it clear I am not talking about the money being appropriated - it is provided in blocks: $560,000 for the construction of the Harquail By-pass Road (which can not even be half of the cost); $400,000 for construction of repairs in West Bay; $400,000 for East End; $400,000 for George Town; $400,000 for Bdden Town; $400,000 for construction of various repair to roads in North Side; $320,000 for construction and repairs in Cayman Brac.

When this came up in the Estimates, I asked which roads had these block amounts been appropriated to. In other words, any time the Finance Committee meets, as it did to consider the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure, there are lists of these roads that were to be done and some were always known and selected. Therefore, when the Finance Committee voted money of that block amount it had been appropriated to certain road construction.

What I learned from that question was that a new thing had been ushered in, where the block amounts are put in and the Minister for Roads—and there are three, obviously, but I would say the Elected Ministers of Executive Council—would decide how the money was to be appropriated in consultation with the Members from the various districts.

I can speak very bluntly, and truthfully, and factually: After this the chances of my being able to speak to any of the Ministers has diminished considerably, I am sure—talking roads or otherwise. That is the way it is in this House. And, when I take the matter of the Minister for roads, that I will be able to go and consult him on this matter, I must judge it from his past performance. He does not even consider it necessary to instruct his secretary to call me on any occasion that he is going to the Brac to look at road work, or anything that comes under his Portfolio. He is down here in Grand Cayman too, so that is real easy, and just like how he goes up there, I go up there.

So, surely, whatever is assigned out of this $320,000 will be assigned as he sees fit. I cannot say that the privilege will be extended to my colleague the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to have a say in it, but I am sure that I will not hear anything about it.

I prefer, since we are doing Government's business, to talk about it publicly in the Finance Committee before God and all the people, so that when I say, "Yes, I agree with that one", or "No, I do not agree with that one for this reason", everybody knows my position. I do not have any road here that I would feel more compelled to discuss in private than I would in the Finance Committee. I make this point because by this being done this way, there is the chance of monies being spent on other private driveways.

In fact, I am of the opinion that this is the intention, for in the same 1995 Estimates on page 375, it reads: "33-452-1 1405 Plan and design new private access drives and roads in other districts." Government does not seem to be planning properly for the access ways to relieve the congestion in the country and the problematic traffic but they are planning and designing new private access drives and roads. I find it very, very questionable.

Madam Speaker, my contention is that the matter of the Estimates is a matter for the Finance Committee, and when monies are appropriated for certain works it must be done by the Finance Committee. The Finance Committee did not appropriate money to do 41 private driveways in West Bay, therefore, something irregular has occurred—something illegal.

As I look at this matter, and present it, there will be much said, no doubt, about it. And I suspect there will be excuses that this thing happened in the past, or whatever— whenever it happened, if, indeed, it did happen in the past, I am dealing with the present. It is incorrect, it is wrong, and it is a matter that funds were misappropriated. Irrespective of when this occurred, it was wrong.

Madam Speaker, I think as we attempt to bring about a situation in this country where elected representatives of the people are being called upon to show by word and deed that they are open to public scrutiny, with a Register of Interest on the way, and with a Code of Conduct to come and to be determined, I think this type of a situation cannot be allowed, and in this case I think this absolutely amounted to blatant vote buying in West Bay by those persons interested in seeing the road work done there.

If there are other private roads to be done with Government money, then I think that the Government should tell this country because there are lots of people who would like to put in their wish list—

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: [Interjection] Like you. You already got yours in.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The public should be told.

I have been speaking in the usual fashion amidst disrespect and misbehaviour in this House - there has been constant babbling from the Government Bench...

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: [Interjection] We only want to know about Lazzari.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: On page 329 of the 1995 Estimates, marked in the account centre - 14-248-1, perhaps this says it best of all: The sum of $1,700 is provided there, and I read the information: "to cover the cost of a shredder. Confidential material is now being taken out by Public Works for destruction and there is a concern for the potential of embarrassment to the Cayman Islands Government."

I think it is the duty of this House to censure this action which has been brought before it through this Motion and that the Auditor General be asked with all haste to look into the matter.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.36 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12 NOON

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I rise to offer my comments on Private Member's Motion 31/94.

Section 10 of the Public Finance and Audit Law sets out the responsibilities of the Financial Secretary as follows: "The Financial Secretary shall, subject to this and any other Law, have the management of the finances of the Government and the supervision, control and direction of all matters relating to the financial affairs of the Government."

Acting in accordance with this authority, I requested the Public Works Department to provide me with information on works carried out on private roads in West Bay, and the beneficiaries of such works. The response from the Chief Engineer, dated 12 November 1994. Madam Speaker I should point out that this memorandum is addressed to the Permanent Secretary Agriculture, Communications and Works and copied to the Financial Secretary. It reads:

"TO: Permanent Secretary AC& W; FROM: Acting Chief Engineer; SUBJECT: West Bay Private Roads

"The Honourable Financial Secretary has requested that Public Works Department provide information on the works recently carried out on West Bay private roads and on the benefits of such works.

"The works were identified by the West Bay Members of the Legislative Assembly at a district visit on 10th February, 1994. Public Works Department was requested to cost these works which were then prioritised by the West Bay Members of the L.A. On 26th August, 1994, Public Works Department received a written directive from the Ministry of Agriculture, Communications and Works advising that Members of Executive Council had approved a reallocation of funds and directing Public Works Department to proceed immediately with the West Bay road works.

"Public Works Department was instructed that these works must be completed in 1994. Consequently, it was necessary to contract out a large portion of these works to the private sector.

"Six projects were carried out directly by Public Works Department. Twenty-six projects were packaged into five contracts and were put out to tender to five contractors. Six projects were put on hold due to land acquisition requirements or right-of-way problems. Tenders were evaluated by Public Works Department Tenders Committee and contracts were awarded to the low bidder in each case.

"The successful contractors were: Rollin Ebanks - 3 contracts; East End Aggregates - 1 contract; Island Paving - 1 contract.

"Works started on the 29th of August, 1994, and were completed on 2nd November, 1994. The attached schedule provides details of works by project, including location, length and width of roads, number of residences served and the cost. In all of the above projects an existing road, or access, was upgraded and surfaced with a single application of spray and chip.

"The benefits accruing from such benefits are: Improved access for residents including access to land-locked parcels; improved conditions for residents, particularly the reduction in dust from dirt roads; and, improved access for emergency vehicles.

"The problems associated with dirt roads exist in all districts throughout the Cayman Islands.

"We trust that the foregoing supplied the necessary information. However, should the Honourable Financial Secretary require more, detailed information in the form of maps of each location is available."

Madam Speaker, with your permission, following this brief presentation, I will arrange for a clean copy of this Memorandum to be tabled.

In order to vouch the correctness of the information supplied by the Acting Chief Engineer, I requested the Chief Internal Auditor to review the Acting Chief Engineer's response and provide me with an independent opinion based on his findings.

I will now read selected sections from a confidential memorandum received from the Chief Internal Auditor setting out his findings. I have taken the decision not to read [certain] sections of his report due to the possibility that the conclusions arrived at by the Chief Internal Auditor could differ from those that will be drawn by the Auditor General following his review of expenditures in connection with these contracts.

The selected sections of this confidential memorandum read as follows:

TO: Mr. G. McCarthy Financial Secretary

FROM: Gordon Bird
Chief Internal Auditor

SUBJECT: West Bay Private Roads

"In accordance with your instructions yesterday, I have visited Public Works Department and discussed the above topic with Peter Multon and Ron Koehn. I have also examined the Public Works Department correspondence file. I consulted with Philip Tatum this morning.

"As far as I can determine, the contents of Mr. Jones' memorandum of 12 November are factually correct. A copy of the Permanent Secretary's instruction of 26th August, 1994, is attached.

"Time precluded a detailed examination of the tendering award of contracts processed, but I received assurances that for all five contracts awarded to private contractors, the normal procedures were followed. . .

"Sixteen of the twenty-five West Bay private roads are 12 feet wide or less. It was stated to me by Public Works Department officers that roads of this width have not been built in the last five years (or so) using public funds. Wider roads serving more people and providing public thoroughways have been built in this time scale. The dirt road behind the Middle School heading towards Thomas Russell Way will be in this category and will be gazetted.

A senior officer within the Ministry of Agriculture, Communications and Works "was emphatic that the principle of building private roads is well established. He took me to view roads in George Town which had been laid by Public Works Department in the past to serve private properties. Most of these roads were indeed narrow. He agreed that there had not previously been the same amount of expenditure at one time, and within one district, but is aware that the 1995 Budget reflects similar works to areas around the Island."

While conclusions could be drawn that roads were built in 1994 that previously would not have been constructed, further investigation which I made revealed that such roads were not built for political expediency but essentially for the purpose of providing road access to certain homes within the West Bay community that previously could not be reached by: 1) the fire truck, in the event of a fire; 2) the ambulance, in the event of illness; 3) the garbage truck, for providing refuse collection from these homes.

After examining all of the information provided the conclusion which I have reached is that if the expenditures are examined on the basis of previously stated established precedents, this will always lead to differing interpretation of events irrespective of the given circumstances. But, if looked at on the basis of providing essential road access to homes within West Bay that previously did not have such access, and the advantages which accrued from such access being provided, then the conclusion could be drawn that the decision to provide such private roads was quite rational.

On a personal note, it is my view that the greatest obligation of any government is to protect the life and welfare of its citizenry. Road access if not available in the event of a fire, or other life threatening emergencies, could certainly be viewed as detrimental to the well-being of the citizenry of any community within these Islands.

Finally, no evidence could be found to confirm or impute any dishonest dealings in the awarding of any of the contracts I described earlier in detail to Members of this Honourable House.

At this time I am going to provide details to the contracts which I have alluded to, but not yet in detail.

As I mentioned earlier, according to the Chief Engineer five contracts were awarded. Three were mentioned as having been awarded to Rollin Ebanks; 1 to East End Aggregate and 1 to Island Paving. I will start with the contract which is described as contract A, for a sum of $104,694, that was awarded to East End Aggregate.

A breakdown of the details is as follows:

“East End Aggregate: WB19, Willow Close (Garnell Rivers) approximate length of road – 320 feet, width 14 feet, approximate homes now served - 6, future homes – 8

WB34 Road off Willie Farrington Dr., approximate length 500 feet, width - 30 feet, approximate houses now served - 2, future - 9

WB9 Cul-de-sac off Birch Tree Hill Rd., approximate length - 650 feet, width - 30 feet, approximate houses now served - 7, future - 14

WB20 Road South of Powell Close, approximate length - 1100 feet, width - 18 feet, approximate houses now served - 7, future - 14.” That is the total of the roads awarded under Contract A to East End Aggregate.

Continuing with Contract B to Rollin Ebanks: “WB120 Bernie Bush Subdivision, approximate length - 1400 feet, width - 30 feet, approximate houses now served - 10, future -18

“WB103 Montgomery Road, approximate length -300 feet, width - 30 feet, approximate houses now served - 5, future – 6

“WB 117 Road off North West Point, approximate length - 480 feet, width - 24 feet, approximate houses now served - 4, future - 8

“WB121 Road off North West Point, approximate length - 200 feet, width- 30 feet, approximate houses now served - 0, future - 6.”

That is the total of Contract B.

Continuing with Contract D, to Rollin Ebanks: WB7 Driveway to 4E/430, approximate length - 270 feet, width - 11 feet, approximate houses now served - 4, future - 6

“WB14 Fredson and Touslin Ebanks, approximate length - 130 feet, width - 11 feet, approximate houses now served - 2, future - 3

“WB15 Sonny Felner, approximate length - 270 feet, width - 11 feet, approximate houses now served - 5, future - 5

“WB28 Driveway opposite Water Course Road, approximate length - 200 feet, width - 11 feet, approximate houses now served - 7, future - 7

“WB29 Road off East Park Road, (Lily) approximate length - 400 feet, width - 11 feet, approximate houses now served - 4, future - 5.”

Continuing with Contract E to Rollin Ebanks: “WB49 Driveway on 4B 237, approximate length - 400 feet, width - 16 feet, approximate houses now served - 3, future - 6

“WB51 Alfonso Ebanks, Driveway, approximate length - 110 feet, width - 11 feet, approximate houses now served - 2, future - 2

“WB53 Theresa Powery, Driveway, approximate length - 50 feet, width - 11 feet, approximate houses now served - 1, future - 1

“WB59, Richard Welds, approximate length - 400 feet, width - 11 feet, approximate houses now served - 7, future - 8

“WB61 Roy Grant, approximate length - 150 feet, width - 11 feet, approximate houses now served - 2, future - 3

“WB70 Track off Ash Road #2, approximate length - 130 feet, width - 11 feet, approximate houses now served - 2, future - 2

“WB73 Myers Driveway, approximate length - 150 feet, width - 10 feet, approximate houses now served - 1, future - 1

“WB89 Road off Boatswain Bay Rd., approximate length – 450 feet, width - 11 feet, approximate houses now served - 3, future - 6.”

Contract F to Island Paving ($32,492): “WB90 Darwin Ebanks Road, approximate length - 350 feet, width - 10 feet, approximate houses now served - 3, future - 4

“WB91 Ella Ebanks Driveway, approximate length - 250 feet, width - 11 feet, approximate houses now served - 1, future - 1

“WB92 Ironie Ebanks Driveway, approximate length - 150feet, width - 11 feet, approximate houses now served - 1, future - 1

“WB93 Kivey Ebanks Driveway, approximate length - 420 feet, width - 12 feet, approximate houses now served - 4, future - 7

“WB I 07 Raymond Welds Access (Deferred) but the approximate length - 150 feet, width - 6 feet, approximate houses now served - 2, future - 3.”

The remaining jobs are works carried out by Public Works Department.

What we have seen here is that in many of these instances, although these roads have been described as private roads, we have seen many instances where the number of homes being served range from 10 homes, 6, 7, 5, and in a few instances 2 and in some instances 1.

As pointed out, it is imperative that every home in Cayman can be accessed by Emergency Vehicles and there have been instances in the past where ambulances could not get to some of these homes to assist these individuals in the event of an illness and other instances of emergency.

Bearing in mind the obligation of any Government to protect the well-being and lives of its citizenry, it is very important that whatever convenience can be provided, which will not be detrimental to the society overall, to extend their lives in instances of emergency and life threatening situations, be provided.

As I said, the Auditor General has not as yet concluded his audit on the 1994 accounts as such which will quite likely be reviewing all areas of expenditure by the Government. He will be rendering an independent opinion on this, and this is why I have chosen to read only selected sections from the confidential memorandum that has been provided to me by the Chief Internal Auditor. It is likely that the views he has formulated will be in conflict with those that will be arrived at by the Auditor General.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: May I say to the Honourable... Have you finished?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, if you would permit me, just to make a few additional comments.

The Speaker: Certainly, Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I had mentioned to you that I would be arranging to table a copy of the memorandum from the Acting Chief Engineer of the Public Works Department. I can now detach it from this document, but to do so I have written all over it and that is why I will be asking the Serjeant-at-Arms to make a clean copy of this deleting the notes that I have made and then to table it.

The Speaker: Yes. I would also like to advise that as you have quoted certain paragraphs from the confidential memorandum from the Chief Internal Auditor, that the quoted paragraphs should also be laid on the Table. The matter is of sufficient importance as you did not make a summary of the whole letter.

So, will you arrange to have the paragraphs which you quoted laid on the Table of the House too?

Thank you.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Madam Speaker, I will do that.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Mr. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I must say that I find this Motion one of the strangest and one which borders on dishonesty, which I will go on to show, on the part of the Mover and the Sec-order.

The Motion is a censure Motion for misappropriation of funds in relation to the paving of private roadways. I have copies of this and I will be laying them on the Table to show that the people who have asked for more private property, marl, private roadways than anyone else is the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the Mover of this Motion, and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, the Sec-order of the Motion, including, in one instance, their own road.

I will be beginning, and I will lay these on the Table, with a letter dated 17th November, to the Honourable John McLean, Minister for Agriculture, Communication and Works: “Dear Sir: We write subsequent [and this is the 17th of November, Madam Speaker, after the Members had laid the Motion on the Table of this House in relation to this very matter] to our conversation, Kirkconnell, McLean and yourself, concerning the possibility of assisting Mr. and Mrs. Leon Lazzari to gain improved access to their land on the Bluff to tend their cattle.

“As you are aware, there has been a long standing contention concerning the question of access the face of the Bluff and over Crown Land along the foot of the Bluff which Mr. and Mrs. Lazzari have been walking for most of their lives but which has now been legally restricted by the Court. Both of these people are senior citizens and are gradually becoming less able to climb the cliff than before and because of age will, in the foreseeable future, have W cease altogether. If an agriculture access road could be created which can offer them an alternative route this would provide significant assistance to their lives. If you would designate an amount from the Agriculture Development vote, 52-109, or such other vote as deemed fit for this purpose, it would be appreciated and supported by ourselves. It would help to resolve a long and unhappy state of affairs for these two residents in the ongoing effort to earn a living and to play a part in the agricultural development in Cayman Brac. Yours faithfully, [signed] Capt. Mabry Kirkconnell; Gilbert A. McLean.”

Madam Speaker, I would like to lay that first one on the Table of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Mr. Truman M. Bodden: I am now going to proceed to comment on it.

This request for assistance to persons in need for private roads, in this instance, this letter confirms a substantive Motion brought to this House, which this House rejected, trying to get the Government to appropriate property so that this road could be done for one person's property. Here it is.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said to the Minister for Agriculture, whom he spent his whole morning pounding on this matter, "If you would designate an amount from the Agriculture Department..."

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order, please.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Minister for Aviation has just said that I brought a Motion to this House asking that private property be appropriated to give access to some individuals. Madam Speaker, such a motion has never been allowed in this House and he is obviously not just misleading, he is absolutely stating a falsehood to this House. I have certainly not brought any such Motion, nor do I think anyone ever has.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, can you give the terms of the Motion you are talking about which was brought to this House?

Mr. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I will get it and I will bring it here. It was a Motion in which the Member put that the face of the Bluff be deemed to be Crown Land - because it is now private land - and the reason for it was so that he could get exactly what he has set out in this letter, a road for Mr. Lazzari. I will get the Motion...

The Speaker: Please.

Mr. Truman M. Bodden: I will ask the Clerk if she will please get that Motion and the transcript that goes with it, please.

In any event, be that as it may, this is a letter dated 17th November, 1994. The Motion was laid on the Table of this House on the 27th of October, 1994. I am going on to show requests before the Motion, as well as after, to show the integrity of the Mover and the Seconder of this Motion. What they are here trying to condemn . . . they are signing letters asking the Minister of Agriculture (who they spent the whole morning pounding on) to do the same thing and to take it from the Agricultural vote. They were not even asking it to come from the roads' vote.

They went on to say, "any other vote as deemed fit." So they are saying to the Minister for Agriculture, "go out and try to find this money, take it from anywhere you want and go ahead and build a private road to a private piece of land for one person". It is not as if this is something that is only done by certain Members of this House.

I have it in writing where request after request has been made, but this letter requesting a road for one person's land to be taken out of a vote, regardless of where the vote is, not even a roads vote, is exactly what this Motion is for and the Mover and the Seconder are therefore bringing a Motion against themselves. This is the stupidity of this situation - they are condemning themselves with this Motion because they have been the biggest propagators of building private roads.

The next letter that I will lay on the Table of this Honourable House is headed "Roy Bodden", and it is to the Honourable John McLean, Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works, Government Administration Building, Grand Cayman, 24th October, 1994. The dates of these are very important because the date of the Motion is the 27th day of October, 1994, and on the 24th of October, 1994 when that Motion should have been considered by them, here is the request made on stationery headed "Roy Bodden". It reads:

"Please receive our requests for some work in the constituency which has been outstanding for some time. [And it goes on here with street lights, block & parcel numbers].

"Also the intersection of North and South Cayman Palms.

"There is also the request outstanding for many years now of additional lights on the main road of the constituency.

"Drain wells. We have received requests from property owners as follows: . . . [and we are going beyond roads now and into drain wells]. Also just below Daniel's Drive, Lower Valley (in the vicinity of Margaret Powell's residence), this shoulder was repaired some years ago but heavy rains cause the area to flood. Finally, major flooding occurs after heavy rains at the entrance to Jay Bodden's subdivision, [private subdivision] east of Corrine Eden's residence in Savannah. . . . [Another thing here on road shoulders.]

". . . especially persons living in the Gun Square area.

"Cumber Avenue. The road through Cumber Avenue continues to be a source of concern to us. Both entrances (the Gun Square and Adventist Church sections) are problematic to negotiate, especially for drivers coming from the Avenue. There is also the problem of speeding vehicles . . .

"There is also the matter of that section off Cumber Avenue leading to the residences of Norman Frederick, Tom Hill and Mrs. Doreen Wood. This section of road is a virtual "dust bowl" and has been in need of surface sealing for some years now.

There it is very clearly, a road "leading to the residences of Norman Frederick, Tom Hill and Mrs. Doreen Wood". I am going on to show that nearly three years previous to this the specific numbers of private properties and roads were set out in a letter by that Member. This is the section now that picks up on previous correspondence.

"We have received requests from residents in Plantation Heights, Arlene Avenue/Rackley Boulevard, Belford Estates and Pease Bay Colony as to the poor state of the roads.

"To the best of our knowledge some of these, for example, Belford Estates may not be gazetted roads".

Madam Speaker, what could be more clear? The First Elected Member for Bodden Town goes on to state:

"The general deterioration, however, necessitates Government to fill the numerous potholes since the residents and road users have no where else to turn".

That is quite a good justification for going and doing a road and as the Honourable Financial Secretary has said, if you cannot get an emergency vehicle to a house, such as an ambulance or a fire truck or you cannot get the garbage truck in, it is quite good justification for our helping the public. But do not come here as if you are lily white and try to blame the Government for something that you yourself are doing.

I submit, this must be the first time in the history of this House that Members have been so stupid that they have brought a Motion that condemns them, themselves. They have put their heads into the noose and they will pull the trigger when they put the Motion to the vote, and that is signed, "Roy Bodden, MLA and Roy Bodden for Haig Bodden". I find that very interesting, but I want to point that out, and I will read it again before I lay it on the Table, "To the best of our knowledge some of these, for example, Belford Estates may not be gazetted roads".

I am going on (since that Member is so uneasy and frustrated at what I am saying), to give him the parcel numbers of his private roads that he has asked for I am going to give him the prices so the public can see the calibre of those two members and what they are trying to do in wasting the time of this Honourable House.

The next one that I refer to is dated 5th November 1990. It is to the Honourable Linford Pierson and I hope that he understands what the two Opposition members are bringing upon him in this House, triggered by them.

"Honourable Linford Pierson,
Member for Communications, Works and Agriculture
Government Administration Building
Grand Cayman.

Sir,

"We wish to refer you to your letter of 18th September, 1990 as well as to bring to your attention some other outstanding projects which we hope can be addressed in the coming financial year.

"The following roads which appeared on the Bodden Town District Visit Summary Report - February - have yet to be worked on." [Here is where the truth of the matter comes out. These are all private block and parcel numbers listed by that Honourable Member]

"Job # / Blk & Pcl. # / Name / Description

"9 44B Cleveland Carter Construct Rd.

[Now we know who these people are and who they obviously favoured and supported at the time as the First Elected Member for Bodden Town is assisting me on.]

20 38B 379	Mary Woodward	Construct Rd.
28 44B 82	Josie Solomon	Construct Rd.
40 28C 112	Savannah Heights	Patch & 2nd app.
11 28D	Savannah Acres	2nd app.
[And this is a classic one, look at the number it has]
13 44B	Roy Bodden	Construct Rd."

Madam Speaker, if this had been a court case I would merely have tendered these, sat down and shut up because it has totally destroyed, in my view, the integrity of this Motion and of the Movers of it. And it goes on:

"32 38C 41 Ken Kelly Patch & 1/2 app
33 32C 162 Bob Watler Patch & 2nd app.

"In addition to these, there is a request from Edmond Terry of Pedro for a patching and 2nd application to the road leading to his house.

A recent visit to South Cayman Palms has brought a serious problem to our attention. At the lower end of this road where the residences of Woodward Terry, Verdon Terry, Francine Gardner, Alden Welcome and Moises Bonilla are situated, the road is so constructed that in an emergency the fire truck would find it difficult if not impossible to negotiate a series of acute corners." This is even a road that is wide enough to get it in, it just has bad corners.

"We bring these matters to your Portfolio's attention with the request that they be given early attention. We look forward to an early favourable reply and thank you for your prompt attention."

These are some of the roads that I understand from the Minister for Communication and Works, whom they attached this morning, that the Member up until recently in the last few weeks was doing a tour around Bodden Town asking that some of these private roads be fixed.

I would like to lay this on the floor (sic) of this House.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister is ordered to lay it on the Table of this House. Thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am sorry—on the Table of the House. I guess after six weeks in here . . . Madam Speaker, I apologise. [Members' laughter]

Here we have the attack on the Minister for Agriculture—well let me say the Minister for Works—because these are different. But, here is a letter to Mr. Linford Pierson who was then the Member for Communication and Works asking him to do exactly the same thing. I believe that he followed the course of action that that Government and previous Governments had followed. The rationale behind it is very simple, it is brought out in this letter - "emergency and fire trucks would find it difficult to negotiate the corners."

What is wrong with assisting in areas where roads need upgrading? Suppose someone dies because an ambulance cannot get there. Are a few dollars worth it? Suppose a house burns down and there is somebody in it and we cannot get the vehicle in when a few dollars could have paid for it? Surely, there has to be a line between what is necessary for the public and that which is just undue expense.

There is nothing, as I know it, where we have actually had a request for a road to be made direct to the MLA's house. I am going to show you how much that is: Job 13/44B (block & parcel #)/Roy Bodden/Construct Road.

What can be more clear, Madam Speaker? Self-interest? They are talking about or threatening about this Code of Ethics that we just passed. No Code of Ethics, Conduct or Etiquette, is going to stop dishonesty—I am speaking generally. Where that dishonesty exists, people will always get around it.

What, then, is the cost of these roads that the Second, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, has requested? Here is a memorandum dated 21st May, 1992, and it is to Mr. Phillip Tatum, Communications Works and Agriculture, and it is from the Executive Engineer. I want to show what the cost of these roads are. If we believe that the few that have been done recently, and we know, as I have just read, that it has not just been in West Bay that they have been done because the evidence is here in writing. This memorandum states:

"As you requested, we reviewed [and the subject is the Josie Solomon Driveway (Block 44B, Parcel 82) but it goes on to deal with a lot of other roads, even though this is the heading of it] the file for this driveway.

"HISTORY: As we noted in our 24th February, 1992 memo, the cost is $8,500 to build and chipseal this private driveway. In a later district visit, it was requested that some marl "be thrown in the deepest holes when crews are in the area."

I am going on to show about the marl as well, Madam Speaker, and perhaps there is a little joke of the Executive Council Member who ended up with the marl in the yard and the grass grew over it before they could find the marl—speaking generally, and as a joke.

"This driveway was first requested in a 1990 visit [The letter that I just read is a 1990 letter referring to that visit], and was one of 10 private driveways listed in the 21st January, 1992 letter of MLAs Mr. Roy Bodden and Mr. Haig Bodden.

"There are now a total of 19 private driveways that have been requested by the District Representative for Bodden Town. These will cost at least $210,000 to build.

"FUND AVAILABILITY: Currently, there are no funds allocated in the Roads maintenance budget for marl patching, and we have a backlog of marl patching requests on heavily used dike roads.

"We have no existing capital projects in the Bodden Town area that would have extra funds for this driveway. We note, however, that there are supplemental funding requests pending that may allow some marl to be released for this work."

Here, Madam Speaker, if the public listens carefully, they will see where the money is going and why we need a Code of Ethics.

"Date requested: 10th March; Project: Roy Bodden, H. Stephenson Farm Road; amount - $160,000. Capt. Shelby Subdivision Phase I - $63,000. Marl Road patching and repairs - $45,000." A total of $268,000.

It is the Roy Bodden Road, regardless of what it is called and what status it is, and it goes to his house. It goes on, Madam Speaker, to say "if these are approved, some assistance for private driveways might be provided. However, private driveways are difficult and expensive work due to the tight working room and intensive handwork involved."

Now we see the cost, of which the largest cost is the Roy Bodden, H. Stephenson Farm Road - $160,000. I would like to lay this on the Table of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Before going on further with the laying of these on the Table (because it is getting a bit monotonous—I have so many of them), I want to point out several things that were pointed out by the Honourable Financial Secretary and expand a bit on them.

People and Members come to this Honourable House and requests are made for funds to be appropriated. This Honourable House appropriates them. One of the things unanimously approved in last year's Budget, was the construction of roads in private subdivisions in West Bay - $192,000. But, I do not believe that you can find an equivalent of that for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman or Bodden Town.

Be that as it may, this House is not fooling the public when it comes to this because this course of action where there have been upgrading of private roadways - and I should point out that there are three categories of roads—there is a gazzetted Road, under the Law, Public Roads which have numbers to them and Private Roads. But where these are necessary to ensure as the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, who I am afraid, as a follower of his leader, has followed him straight into the fire on this Motion because I am going to further show that that Honourable Member did not stop at private roads, he got into the marl business for private residences.

I believe that the Honourable Second Elected

Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman does not think when he puts these in - especially questions. There has been a multiplicity of questions that have just been an embarrassment to them for a lack of thinking them through. This type of leadership in a country would spell disaster to the country. Actions, words that are not well thought through, can be damaging sometimes to one's self. Leadership requires a lot more than that, it requires one to be sensible, to have sound thinking and to not put forward questions or Motions for the sake of putting them forward. I think this is a very good example of it.

The vote control, as the Honourable Financial Secretary has mentioned under the Public Finance Law, and, indeed, in the Appropriation and Supplementary Appropriation Laws which we bring is one in which the Financial Secretary and his department ensure that votes are properly dealt with. Occasionally a matter of urgency has to be dealt with and is brought back to the floor of this House and we are asked to ratify it. This comes out many times. For example, if someone is ill and there are no funds, obviously one has to find the funds. But, at the end of the day, all that is done is properly appropriated and properly spent.

The Ministers themselves do not sign the cheques that go out, but the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, while attacking the Minister for Communications and Works unfairly, in my view, this morning, said to him, "Please fix a road to a piece of private land, and you find the funds." Sometimes that is done; what is wrong with that? He said take it from the Agricultural vote, or any other vote you deem fit.

So, that Honourable Member cannot come afterwards and talk about when that Member is requesting the Minister to do this, that it is wrong. In Law there is a clear rule that says, "He who comes to equity must come with clean hands." One cannot request a Minister to do something and then turn around and say it is wrong. That is bordering on dishonesty of opinion.

Now we are hearing that what was done on these private roads for the Mover and the Seconder of the Motion is wrong, that the funds are misappropriated. It should be very interesting to see how the Mover and the Seconder wiggle out of this trap that they have so blatantly walked into.

The references to "Banana Republic", if there is any history of Banana Republic, it is the leader of the Opposition within the Government of the Banana Republic. This is the type of Motion you find in the Banana Republic—Members bringing Motions which condemn them and voting for the condemnation. It is like walking to the guillotine, with your eyes open, putting your neck there and pulling the trigger on it yourself. If this is the type of leadership that is exhibited, it is a wonder that the leader only has one follower, part of the time.

I understand that mention was also made of the road around the Airport. Most of that road vests in the Civil Aviation Authority. As the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said in his letter, which he signed after the Motion, I asked the minister for Communication and works, in the same words he put in his letter—to please build a road and take it from whatever votes were appropriate for it to be taken from. He even went wider than that. I did not say to him take it from an Agricultural vote, as did the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman - who should be trying to promote agriculture in those Islands - in suggesting using up an Agricultural vote to build the road for the one private supporter he has bordering on the Bluff.

The Motion which I referred to earlier is Private Member's Motion 23/94 and it says:

"WHEREAS the Bluff is an outstanding geological feature of Cayman Brac and has had continuous significance to the people of Cayman Brac over generations with access to the Bluff being of most vital significance, particularly in times of hurricanes;

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government officially declare that the face of the Bluff, including the 'foothills' or 'keys', is deemed to be included as Crown land forming the face of the Bluff, unless individual landowners can positively establish that those 'foothills' or 'keys' are cultivated or otherwise used productively by them as part of their land."

Madam Speaker, I submit that Motion is one to declare private land public land. It is very clear. It says "declare that the face of the Bluff, including the 'foothills' or 'keys', is deemed to be included as Crown land . . ." If it is Crown Land, then we do not need to deem it Crown Land. There are only two types of land - Private Land and Crown Land. I submit that this would have benefited Mr. and Mrs. Lazzari, about whom this letter was written after the Motion failed. I do not think I need to lay this on the Table. I have just referred to it and I have it here if the Honourable Member wishes to see it.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the luncheon suspension?

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Yes, Ma'am.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.10 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.33 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation continuing the debate.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I have just received partial transcript of what the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said, and just to ensure that I am quoting correctly what I am going to comment on, I will read it. "Public money is not supposed to be spent on private driveways." Further in his speech the Honourable Member said this: "Madam

Speaker, in this situation someone has to be held accountable; for something has occurred which is absolutely unorthodox, irregular and has not happened in this country before."

Madam Speaker, how in the world could that Member make those statements, knowing very well that that Member has made requests, more so—and I will show the cost of the wish list of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town—when they, themselves, have asked for and had public money spent on private driveways. Their Motion condemns them.

Some of these roads in the West Bay project that are now going on are roads that were requested as far back as the 18th of April, 1990, by the then Members for West Bay, including Mr. Benson Ebanks and some of these are listed here. I do not want to have to lay too much more of this on the Table, but in summary, Madam Speaker, it lists job No. 12 - Kenneth Ebanks Road; Road through Capt. Shelby's property (to Buddy); Garnell Rivers Road; and Muriel Jackson's Road. It was to Mr. Linford Pierson who sent it on for action and attention. Some were done some have not been done.

Madam Speaker, this morning I showed one of the roads that was requested by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. But I am going to read out in summary quite a few other roads that were requested and done. And these I assumed were perhaps requested by both MLAs, because all Members of the Legislative Assembly from time to time in this House requested that private roads should be done for purposes of emergency vehicles, or whatever.

Let me just give a few of these—and these are not gazetted roads. But let me say this Madam Speaker, it matters not as I see it, if someone has been shrewd enough to get the Government to gazette a road when in effect it is doing the same thing. I know the First Elected Member for Bodden Town while I was speaking, stated that some road that leads somewhere near to his house was gazetted. If he has managed to get someone in Government to gazette it, does it really matter? "A rose by any name is just as sweet a rose". In substance there is no difference; the road serves that Member's house and it is named after him and it is his block and parcel that he put in his letter requesting it.

In Cayman Brac there are these non-gazetted roads that have been done and these are all Block 111 E; Silvennia Avenue, Brac Drive, Walton Drive, Scotts Avenue, Temples Road, Ryan's Road, Nitting Road, Martin Lane, and I could go on and on. There are some 22 roads here of which most of them are not gazetted. And those Members for those islands, I am sure must have asked for these to be done. There is the Charlotte Road, the Peter Bluff Road—and Madam Speaker, since I see a bit of consternation let me just refresh the memory of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman—and if necessary I will lay this on the Table. It is a letter dated the 14th April, 1992 to the Honourable Linford Pierson and whatever was wrong, then surely, their next-in-line leader (as he appears to be) was in this up to his ears because a lot was said about the present Member for Communications, Works and Agriculture. But Madam Speaker, I will surely hit on what misappropriation of funds really is, and why did the two Members who brought this Motion not get up and say something on that. I am going to show what misappropriation of funds is, but it affects their colleague so they had to keep their mouths shut.

This letter is dated 14th April, 1992:

"Re: Charlotte and Peter Bluff Roads

"We write concerning the above Bluff Roads which you have inspected on your most recent visit to Cayman Brac on the 8th to 10th April few days ago. On these two proposed projects we both support the requests by the concerned parties for work to be undertaken on these roads, and would recommend that efforts be made to commence work as soon as possible. Our reasons in the two instances are as follows:

Peter's Bluff Road

"a) This roadway already exists to a width defined by fence on both sides. . . . [and these are non-gazetted roads, these are private roads]

"b) Filling this road creates easy access to Peter's Cave for hurricane shelter for citizens who as a matter of course use this shelter in preference to buildings designated as hurricane shelters. At present it is only accessible by climbing the face of the Bluff or walking over the very uneven rocks on the Bluff which exits in this roadway.

Peter's cave is a popular tourist attract... and the other paragraphs; "d) The road would greatly assist the farmers who have cattle on land bordering the road. One such farmer is Mr. Silas Bodden whom you will recall Mr. Gus Joseph stated to be one of the farmers having the biggest herd of cattle..." Charlotte's Bluff Road, similar sort of things were said for it and that is signed by Gilbert A. McLean, MLA, and Capt. Mabry Kirkconnell, MLA.

POINT OF PROCEDURE

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of procedure.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Could I ask that the Honourable Minister lay a copy of the letter he is reading at this time?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, would you...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Sure! I am very happy to Madam Speaker. I have the authority of the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works, and

I will lay another one with it, Madam Speaker. I hate perhaps to get to this stage but the allegations against us have been very serious. I am merely going to read this letter and I am not going to comment on it, but I will lay it on the Table.

It is a letter:

"From: Communications and Works

"To: Mr. Erbin Adolphus Tibbetts
P.O. Box 27
Cayman Brac

"Dear Mr. Tibbetts,

"Re: Road Affecting Block 107A, Parcels 17, 18 & 32

"Pursuant to Section 3(1)(B) of the Roads Amendment Law, 1988, please find enclosed herewith a declaration for your information in respect of proposed road which affects Block 107A, Parcels 17, 18 and 32.

"I refer your attention to paragraph 3 of the declaration, which deals with the line and anticipated boundary of the proposed road, and refers to a Boundary Plan which may be inspected at the Lands and Survey Department.

"Section 9 of the Roads Law (Revised) details provisions by which persons affected may serve notice of intent and claims for compensation to the Governor..."

I lay both of those on the Table, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Mr. Truman M. Bodden: That road was obviously not a gazetted road because that is a notice dealing with the gazettement.

Madam Speaker, misappropriation of funds was raised some days ago. Misappropriation of funds is where a person gets a personal pecuniary advantage. In other words, he gets something for himself as a result of actions that are taken during the time that they are in the official office and which has not been approved. But when there was blatant misappropriation of funds on the floor of this House, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town stood speechless; they did not get up, they did not debate it because it was their colleague.

When the water-bills of an Executive Council Member had been understated or reduced by some $1,800 and not authorised by the Board—that is what those two Members should have been getting up and making allegations on. Vast sums of money; money in relation to sports, money in relation to hospital bills, money in relation to subdivisions that had been written off, but the Mover and the Seconder of this Motion did not have one thing to say about it. Madam Speaker, that shows the insincerity, and then we have them bringing a Motion against this Government for misappropriation of funds which those Honourable Members have requested in writing (and I have gone on to show this) and which has directly benefited the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and indirectly the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman under this Motion—under the Motion in which they are condemning themselves.

If those two Members had the interest of this country at heart, they would have said something about the funds that were never approved. They were ultra vires in fact, they were not approved by the Water Authority and very large sums of money. So if they wish to talk about misappropriation, Madam Speaker, they have enough of it in their camp. And anyone who joins that camp must understand the responsibility for matters such as that and the irresponsibility of a Motion, such as this, must rest on their shoulders.

So this Motion was never brought because the Members had the interest of the public at heart. It was an attempt, a very stupid attempt, to embarrass the Government and now it has blown up in their faces. We have seen the written evidence that they have requested these things for private purposes. Madam Speaker, I have a letter here dated 22nd October, 1990, from Messrs. Roy Bodden MLA and Haig Bodden MLA addressed to Mr. L. A. Pierson, Communications, Works and Agriculture, Government Administration Building, Grand Cayman. It reads:

"Dear Sir,

We write to request that you arrange for some PWD staff to place approximately two truck-loads of marl on Rosedean Jackson's Road."

Madam Speaker, what further evidence does one really need? Time and again, from 1990 there has been a pattern for [requests] for marl, paving of roads. I would like to lay this on the Table of the House. And what has been the cost of this wish list that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town had put forward? We know there have been other private roads and subdivision roads that have been done. Since all the blame for those matters seem to be attempted by the two Members, to fall on the Minister for Communications, Works and Agriculture, what about the subdivision up in Randyke Gardens? That was all done. That was private road and is still not gazetted and they continue to prepare it. Madam Speaker, they are the people who benefited. So it was not just the water where there were funny things done, but it was also with the marl and the paving.

Madam Speaker, the upgrading of roads has been done from day one. Successive Governments have shown here requests that were made. The last document that I have is the list of roads listed on the 3rd July, 1992 relating to the Bodden Town district. I do not want to bore the House by going through it all, so I will lay it on the Table for Members to use it as they see fit.

Madam Speaker, the total amount estimated by the Public Works Department is $3,838,691 and included in it is a private road for the First Elected Member for Bodden Town (I would assume), some of his marl-giving. The largest sums on this list I am going to read out because a whole string of subdivision roads are in here and are obviously private roads. I read: road to A.J. Miller's residence; road leading to Rhoda Forbes; road to Carlos Whittaker's residence, et cetera. Those only came to a total of $227,457 but job #12 that I referred to earlier and laid on the Table, road to Roy Bodden's residence - $353,000. It is the largest single private road costing on this list. The estimated cost of $353,000 for the road to Roy Bodden's residence. Road from Belford Estates to North, and we all know where that is, that is in the vicinity of this same area - $1,056,000. New construction of roads Madam Speaker, and there are a lot of others; road to Mary Woodward's residence and it goes on and on and on.

There are three pages of this and it lists an eternity of residences. It also lists them under private driveways; there are 12 private driveways in this alone. I do not want to go through all of this because some of these were listed in the previous ones. The total amount of the public roads and the private roads was $3.8 million with the development and the subdivision roads of $1.49 million; private driveways - $121,809. I would like to lay that on the Table of the House.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Mr. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I do not know what the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town intend to do with this Motion. I believe it was to embarrass this Government and to try to mislead the public into believing that this is the first time in West Bay that private driveways had been done. In fact, when we look - and I believe the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, is going to try to twist this somehow to attempt to get out of the dilemma that he has laid his only follower into - he said public money is not supposed to be spent on private driveways, yet he and his colleague have requested and have had public money spent on private driveways, going into private yards. Worst than that, Madam Speaker, the largest sum of money was the $353,000 (as stated in the Memo) to build the road to Roy Bodden's house.

Madam Speaker, this is not a question of even having 'tongue in cheek,' this is a very insincere and vicious attack that now has turned on the Mover and the Secunder of the Motion.

If there had been something unusual about this, I believe that the many Auditors General, Financial Secretaries, and everyone else that we have had over the many years, would have done something about it. It is a policy that has been followed, and it has been followed even more fervently by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

In all of this debate what perhaps is forgotten is the fact that there are people in the community who have need for getting the emergency vehicles - fire trucks, ambulance, garbage trucks to their houses - a need for getting their cars to their houses and some of these people are elderly people. I believe it has to be proper for the Government to assist these people whenever possible in this way.

I know that the upgrading of the Roy Bodden road was not to get an emergency vehicle into it because it was wide enough. Perhaps this is where the abuse of this has come in, where Members pave their own roads to their houses when it is not necessary.

I would submit that the overwhelming evidence that we have, and ironically some of it is damaging evidence - these letters - I think perhaps the two most damaging letters were the letter of the 17th November, 1994, signed by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman after the Motion was put, requesting the Minister for Communications, Works, and Agriculture, whom he attempted to destroy this morning, to create an access road to one person's land. To take the money as he said—"if you would designate an amount from the Agricultural Development vote"—he is asking the Minister, whom he has been beating on all morning, to take money out of his vote or such other votes as he deems fit for this purpose. And it would be appreciated and supported by us, after the Motion [has been brought] for a private road to a private owner's land.

Madam Speaker, I think that something seems to be cuckoo about this whole situation because having put a Motion - it is bad enough finding evidence before, but getting evidence after which caught up squarely by what the Motion before the House is trying to do - and calling it misappropriation of funds. This is like standing up and saying someone who commits a criminal offence should be punished, then going and committing it and saying, very piously, "I am clean, I can do it, but nobody else should"—And three days before the Motion.

The other time, I believe the First Elected Member for Bodden Town had to have this in his mind. He makes a request on 24th October, 1994 for sections of roads going into private residences that I have called out also, reminding the Minister that Belford Estate may not be a gazetted road—very clearly knowing that they are asking the Government to pave, to construct or to put marl on private driveways. And there is no doubt that the Members knew what they were doing, because the signed evidence is here. The last that I referred to was the letter dated the 5th November, 1990, signed by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town asking specifically to construct a road to the Block and Parcel 44B in the name of Roy Bodden. Madam Speaker, as we know the cost of that was estimated some years ago at $353,000 and we know that Belford Estate that is referred to just three days before the Motion, the cost of developing that road there is $1,056,000.

Madam Speaker, what more can be said other than the fact, that when Members find themselves in this type of difficult situation, it is unfortunate that they bring their ignorance - not really ignorance, there must have been knowledge of signing all of these letters over the period of time, but deviously bring to the floor of the House a Motion which when it is voted on will condemn the two Members who moved and seconded it.

I submit Madam Speaker, there has been no misappropriation of any funds. In fact the West Bay vote of which I referred to earlier - $182,000 was specifically passed for private roads. It is the only vote there that was passed for private roads. So there was not even a specific fund for what has been asked for by these two Elected Members who are bringing this Motion. It was not even coming from the roads vote in the case of the Lazzari Road. There were no funds appropriated for it but the request was in there - take it "from the Agricultural vote, or anywhere that the Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works deems appropriate."

So, there is no censorship against this Government. If there is any censorship Motion in this House it is against those two Members. It could possibly be the first time in history that we have two Members voting against themselves knowing full well that they are censuring themselves for a matter which is legal, appropriate and which has been authorised by this House. The procedures that were followed have been carried out by them for the last four years at least and I would believe that if we dug back years previous to that we would find many letters where Members have requested that certain roads be upgraded for purposes of emergency vehicles.

So, if there is anyone at fault in this, it is the Mover and the Secunder of this Motion. The Government is clean, the Government has nothing to hide and the Government says that what has been done has been done for many, many years and has continued to be done up until a few weeks ago - the latest request came from the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and the next latest request came from the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. At least none of the roads in West Bay go into an MLA's house, named after that MLA, as was the $353,000 appropriated for the Roy Bodden Road.

I would suggest that the Motion is unfounded and it does nothing more than to show the ignorance of the Opposition.

Thank you.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, I would ask the Mover if he would like to exercise his right of reply.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I thank you for the opportunity of replying to what I have heard here today, as a pitiful excuse for the Government of the day building 41 private driveways in West Bay with public money. I was hoping to get a copy of the papers which the Financial Secretary tabled, and I do not know if they are available, and there has been a press of time, so I have not been able to consult all of the letters which have been tabled here, in particular the document which he tabled.

I have observed (as is always the case in moments like these in this House when there are matters to deal with Government's inappropriate actions— in this case a misappropriation of public funds) that the Minister for Education, in particular, has attempted to show that using public funds to do private driveways is the most acceptable thing that there can be in the world. God save us, and save this country.

It totally alluded him that such could not be correct, even if it happened from the days of the Vestry—to say nothing about 1990 or 1992. It is inconsistent with the proper use of Government money. If all of the gibberish and vicious tearing at me who is answering him, (and I will answer him thoroughly before I am through), to say nothing of a former Member of Executive Council who does not have the ability to answer him on a level playing field from this House, has adopted the policy that henceforth this Government, and admits that this Government takes public money to use it for private driveways then this country ought to become afraid—very afraid.

These private driveways were not requested by any Member, as I am aware of, as it has been cited where I requested Government assistance, in some instances, to help people who needed help for agricultural roads and so forth.

This decision was taken, according to the Financial Secretary, in Executive Council by these Elected Members who chose those persons whose driveways they wished to fix and, moreover, fixed them. Executive Council did it, so it was done. The Ministry for roads instructed Public Works Department to fix these roads and to build these roads. Because, according to the Minister for Education, it is all right, that is what one is supposed to do.

We heard from the letter read by the Financial Secretary that the Chief Engineer was instructed by the Minister for Roads that he should proceed doing the roadways. It cannot be any great mystery unraveled, or de-mystified, when someone writes Public Works Department saying that one of the improvements brought about by paving these roads is the reduction of dust. Any school child would know that; they only have to stand on a paved road, and stand on a dirt road and see which one has more dust.

It provides access for people. The truth is, people for generations have made roads; some of them little tracks through the middle of pastures, which we call 'grass-pieces', to reach their houses. There must undoubtedly be hundreds of roads in this country that are there because they had to be built to reach a particular person's house that might have been far off the road or otherwise.

The question is: Is there an obligation on this Government, or any government in the world, because one of its citizens builds a particular road somewhere that, in modern day times, is considered too small, that the Government has to build a 30 foot road and pave it?

Now, it would take the mind of some of the Ministers of Executive Council to say yes to that. Particularly that they would say yes to using Government funds to do so. There are hundreds of houses in this Island, hundreds. And they are among some of the oldest, to which these humongous fire trucks and ambulances could never get through. What is the story? Government now has an obligation to build roads to these houses and pave them? I wonder.

On the question of the letter from the Chief Auditor as to how money was spent (I do not know who the Chief Auditor is and I really do not have any cause to know, except that it would be good to know in my capacity as a legislator). I will find out. But it seems that he did what would have been the normal thing—to have gone and examined the papers, and so on, in the Public Works Department, as was said he did by the Financial Secretary. I have no knowledge that there was anything strange about the way the awards of these contracts were done. That is not the point. The point is that public money was used to build 41 private driveways that were chosen by Members of the Executive Council, and I am sure more particularly the Members from West Bay and, of course led by the Minister for Education, who has expertise in everything.

There is one thing that really grabbed my attention in the statements made by the Chief Auditor that it did not appear that there were any political reasons as to why these roads were selected - and I am summarising here, Madam Speaker, because I do not have the document and I cannot quote directly, but I think that is what it was. All I can say in this instance is that while each point that was made and read by the Financial Secretary in that letter seemed very straight forward, I think that any Auditor would not really be in a position to determine whether it was politically influenced or not. In fact, one does not calculate that in figures, therefore I discount that political comment.

Yes, the Government, any proper government, must look to protect the life and welfare of its citizens. But, I say, in so doing it is doing less of a job protecting the welfare of the majority when it takes money that could have been spent to assist the majority to assist 41.

I do not like answering every insinuation, innuendo or accusation made by the Minister for Education. But I made a note of some, I might even attempt to answer those in his type of style.

He said this Motion is strange and in bringing it shows dishonesty. He has a warped sense of what dishonesty is. For this point, Madam Speaker, I would like to say that I received a note from the Serjeant that the remark concerning the expenditure on private roads was not done for political expediency was made by the Financial Secretary and not the Chief Internal Auditor, so I would just like to make that comment. I knew the point was made, but without the document I could not be absolutely sure.

Dishonesty is when one tries to deceive and, surely, 99.99 per cent of what the Minister for Education was saying was an attempt to deceive a population whom he believes is so silly that they can be so easily deceived. He is wrong! He is just as wrong as he was in 1984, when they buried his effigy by the Court House—quite an appropriate place. He knows how that went. He knows very well.

Let me refer to the letter of the 17th November, 1994, which he made so much ado about. This letter came about as a result of a conversation, of which I was a part, with the Minister for Agriculture. The Minister, having been previously approached by my colleague, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, if there was anything to be done to assist the case of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Lazzari which we both know the story of and it has been ongoing now for at least six years.

This good, hard working, Christian couple are two of the hardest-working people in these Islands. Honest? I have no doubt they are. They have been struggling for I do not know how many years, but for long before I knew them, to raise some cattle on the Bluff, to raise some chickens for eggs. They cultivate what we call grounds for provision. They are in their high 70s, one very close to 80. They have walked the face of this Bluff that, according to the Minister for Education, is private land. I would like him to go up there and claim it if it is private land, or try to go and buy it off somebody and see what happens. He no doubt has the money to do it. Go and try to buy a piece of the face of the bluff.

I did not believe that I would have to speak about this, but I can tell this House as an unquestionable fact, that the Governor of the Cayman Islands, the immediate past Governor, gave to this couple the right to walk along the strip of land that runs on the ground along most of the Bluff, certainly beginning way up in Spott Bay and coming westward, that is, between the sheer face of the Bluff where it meets the ground and the keys, or rocky area immediately opposite the sheer face, and the parcels which run through the foot of that rocky area from which every single parcel of land is measured back toward the road, except one.

In this one instance it could not be because there is a question of someone—and perhaps he was instigated by the Minister for Education—who went and nailed a spike about 20 feet up on the sheer face of the Bluff.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order. The Member is alleging something to me that I know nothing about. I do not even know what piece of the Bluff he is talking about.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I am afraid that that is not a Point of Order because that had been thoroughly discussed on the Motion which the Honourable Member brought to the attention of the House.

Mr. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, he said I nailed something...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I said no such thing.

Mr. Truman M. Bodden: ...on a spike on the Bluff, and I said I never did.

The Speaker: I am afraid, Honourable Minister, he did not say that. Let him repeat what he said, please.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I said, Madam Speaker, that one person went and nailed their mark at about 20 feet up on the shear face of the Bluff, and I wondered if it was instigated by the Minister for Education.

The Speaker: That is what he said Honourable Minister, so there is no Point of Order there.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, with respect, he is imputing something improper that I did not do.

The Speaker: I do not agree with that Honourable Minister. Please proceed, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This situation with the Lazzaries, they could not use the pathway they were using anymore. The person who nailed the spike 20 feet up on the face of the Bluff, got a court injunction and the court - never going to the site or seeing, or knowing what it was all about - said, "Yes, these people own 20 feet up on the shear face of the Bluff and you cannot walk across that strip that is Crown Land everywhere else, anymore."

To reach the face of the Bluff, they must walk far above where their home is and take another road that goes up the face of the Bluff westward. The people are old, Madam Speaker. My colleague and I, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, discussed it many times, for we get representation very often. All Members of this House, at one time or another, I believe, have gotten representation from this couple, asking if there is any way they could help.

My colleague first mentioned it to the Minister, asking if there was some way they could help because what they are trying to do is to carry on a little agricultural business - that is how they earn a living. They climb the Bluff, milk cows, bring it down, bottle it and sell it, for an amount, I am sure, much less than the Minister for Education sells a paradise plum in his shop.

So, we talked to the Minister for Agriculture and he said that he would like to have something in writing. I talked with my colleague and said let us try to put something in writing so that he can look at it, maybe there is something that he can do to help. And I want to read the letter. He read it, but he read it and I noticed that when he got to certain parts he began to mumble and it was not very clear. I have a big voice and I want to read it to emphasise the proper areas. It is written to the Honourable John B. McLean:

"Dear Sir:

"We write subsequent to our conversation, Kirkconnell, McLean and yourself, concerning the possibility of assisting Mr. and Mrs. Leon Lazzari to gain improved access to their land on the Bluff to tend their cattle.

"As you are aware, there has been a long standing contention concerning the question of access up the face of the Bluff and over Crown Land along the foot of the Bluff which Mr. and Mrs. Lazzari have been walking for most of their lives but which has now been legally restricted by the Court.

"Both of these people are senior citizens and are gradually becoming less able to climb the cliff than before and because of age will, in the foreseeable future, have to cease altogether. [That is going to happen one day to the Minister for Education, although he does not believe it.]

"If an agriculture access road could be created which can offer them an alternative route, this would provide significant assistance to their lives. [They tell me they have arthritis, they wake up with pain, but still they go. AN AGRICULTURE ACCESS ROAD, there are such things in this country in fact, in this year's Estimates there is such a vote that provides for this, as well as in last year's budget.]

"If you would designate an amount from the Agriculture Development vote, 52-109, or such other vote as deemed fit for this purpose, it would be appreciated and supported by ourselves."

Naturally, we want to. We are hearing now, from the time of the Finance Committee that it is going to be the Minister and the Elected Members of Executive Council who are going to decide from henceforth what is appropriated on the roads. So who do you write to? Not to ourselves, and not to the Finance Committee, it now becomes the Minister's prerogative. So we were banged on.

"It would help to resolve a long and unhappy state of affairs for these two residents in the ongoing effort to earn a living and to play a part in the agricultural development in Cayman Brac through cattle rearing."

That is the truth, Madam Speaker, and it is signed by the First Elected Member, Capt. Mabry Kirkconnell, and myself. That is the truth - simple, plain truth - and I do not have anything to hide from anybody that that was done. As for a Motion to censure what this Motion is doing wrong in relation to this, I never thought about it because the two are separate and apart.

Of course, it is left to the Minister for Roads if he decides that there will be an access road or not and where it will be put. The only point made by myself and my colleague was that if in putting an access road in that area, it could get them to their land a little bit easier and ideally it would be big enough (normally 12 feet) so that their son might be able to drive them there in a car and drop them off. This couple sleeps (at least one person does) on the Bluff because it is so hard to walk back and forth each day. I do not have any apologies to make for that and that has no relationship other than the twisted, deceptive attempt by the Minister for Education to try to make one.

Now, he talks about the letter from Roy Bodden, asking for certain roads in Bodden Town from as far back as November 1990 - about four years ago. There is no doubt in my mind that he will do anything, that is the Minister for Education, to try to misrepresent things when he would have a particular point of view put forward.

I have no knowledge, personally, about this letter that was written, but I see it here and I believe that it is a genuine copy of a letter that was written because I see it is signed by Roy Bodden and Haig Bodden, and at the time it was written to the Honourable Linford Pierson. I would not go into reading it again, but it was certainly asking for the patching of these various roads. It refers to the District Visit Summary Report for they may say anything they wish about the former Minister for Communications and Works, Mr. Linford Pierson, and I am not here to make any attempt to speak on his personal behalf, or, indeed, to attempt to refute some of the vicious allegations I have heard made by the Minister for Education.

But I will say this—and I know this to be the truth—I do not know of a time when that former Minister was doing anything in any district, that he did not write (if he did not write, he made his Permanent Secretary do it) inviting every single Member of this House to go to see whether it was a farm, cows, or whatever. I can personally say that many times I deliberately did not go because at that time I was among people that would accuse me of being too nice to him and we should not go along with that and that I should not turn up. Many times I deliberately did not go, but it was not that I was not invited. Sometimes when there were examinations of farms they would get a bus and everybody, from morning to night, stopped at each one so that everybody could see and everybody could hear. Visits to the districts? You bet your life that he made sure every MLA was there to show him what they believed should be done. I am not saying that he always did all that was requested. The point that I am talking about is the way the man managed the Ministry at that time. That is more than can be said now.

I can look at about three of these roads here in Bodden Town where no work has been done. I but make the point that four years ago, the now First Elected Member for Bodden Town (and he was also then) made a request on behalf of certain people who had obviously made requests to him.

The Executive Council, of which Mr. Linford Pierson was a part, did not sit down and by proclamation (or however they did it) say we are going to fix 41 private driveways - not even in George Town. I think there is much that could be said for that particular attitude towards things.

The Minister for Education then went on to trumpet about a request for a road to be called the Roy Bodden Road. Now, if it is not a deliberate perverted act to attempt to give the impression that there was $130,000 or $150,000 (whatever it was) requested by Roy Bodden to do his own road, I would like to know what is the truth. I happen to know this much about the road that Roy Bodden has his house on - it must be almost two miles down in an area known as 'Look-out', and he went there to live by himself when he went there many years ago. I happen to know that R. Selkirk Watler sold him the land and R. Selkirk Walter put that road down in there. I also know that he started driving a pick up truck then and he is still driving it because it had to take that type of vehicle to get over that road. But, he went to live there. I often asked him if he was crazy or what, was he quitting civilization or what? That is where he chose to go.

That road was tagged by that name by the PWD (because there is no such road) simply because the man had a house there. What caused the Minister for Agriculture to act to put some fill in that road was because Mr. Harvey Stephenson has one, as far as I know, of the biggest farms in the Cayman Islands on the other side of that road opposite it. It was a matter of getting access for trucks taking out produce, cows et cetera.

Mr. Roy Bodden: [interjecting] True.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: But, you know, people can be nasty, dirty and down right vicious. I have got to say that the Minister for Education is the 'Taskmaster'.

Mr. Roy Bodden: [interjecting] It is a good example. True!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: He spoke about me attacking the Minister for Roads, the present Minister, his colleague. I am sorry that he is not here today because anything that I have to say to any Minister of Government, I like saying it to his face. Anything that I have to say, I say. Surely, what I have to say on behalf of the people that I represent, I make sure that I say to their faces and more particularly, I like to say it here in this Legislature where the whole world is hearing it.

I would not try to go to pick and to impute to all of these good law-abiding citizens of Bodden Town by reading their names off here, and I would not try to raise the names again where it has been imputed as if they were in some kind of cahoots with their two Elected Members to get the Government to do something that it should not do.

I am sure that a number of those who are on that list listen to the radio and these broadcasts, and I will tell the Minister for Education one thing, they might not sport 10 degrees behind their names, but they are some of the sharpest people that he will ever meet in his lifetime. They will hear what he has to say and they will know why he is saying it, and what he is imputing about them, and I am going to make sure they listen to the radio because I am going to call them this evening and tell them to listen. I did not attack the Minister for Roads. I pointed out that the Minister for Roads has been dodging, considerably, making statements about roads. He leaves it to his other colleagues and it lies squarely on the person who has been assigned the subject of roads—the Honourable

John McLean, Minister for Agriculture, Communication and Works. He has to be the lead man, although it seems like the Minister for Education has taken that away.

Madam Speaker, whether Mr. Linford Pierson did the same thing, I do not know. If it is the case, I am certain of one thing: If he or any of his three colleagues had attempted to sit down and approve 41 private drive-ways in any one district, by God the political pressure that was on them between 1990 and 1992, they would have really had to resign on that one, even if Motion 3/90 did not get them, so it had to be less.

The Minister for Education said suppose someone dies because it is a bad road. How on this earth is the Government going to assume the liability for every citizen here in our country that has a road that the ambulance or fire truck cannot get to? What an insane piece of argument! Incredible!

I cannot speak about any marl either for Josie Solomon, or indeed, for Rosedean Jackson. There were more allegations about persons whose names were bantered around in here. Surely, one of them is well up in age and if a request was made from a humanitarian point of view, and I am aware that there are instances in Government (and it has been for many years from the 1970s) where if there is a humanitarian ground and it is half a truck of fill or something that will prevent an old person from breaking his leg in a hole, that PWD, particularly if they are working in that area, will be told to put a few shovelfuls in it. I know that. So, I would imagine that this was something similar.

They too, will make up their minds about what the Minister for Education has to say about them. He talks about roads—that there are three types of roads, and that I, along with my colleague the First Elected Member of Bodden Town, stupidly brought this question up here, when he imputed that we are basically dumb.

I want to tell the Minister for Education that his biggest problem with me and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town is that we are not dumb, that we do not sit down in this House like dumb-dumbs and swing out legs and swing in the chair and say nothing. We ask questions, we bring Motions, and challenge what they want to do when clearly it is wrong. We are not given to grinning like hyenas, like I see here in a certain sector speaking in the House on the other side. That is his problem. If I and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town were dumb, he would simply love that. He would love it if we were brainless dumb-dumbs that did not know and did not have the gumption to speak up on issues; did not have the guts to represent the silent majority who are out there afraid of what he and his colleagues are doing in many instances. Then he would think we were the greatest people in the world.

He still goes on in this matter of bringing questions and Motions to this House, the audacity of this Minister, about wasting the time of the House and that we bring stupid Motions and questions and so on here to the House that are not thought out. He would love if that were true. They are all thought out and they all irritate him just the way he would not like to be irritated for he seems to labour under the belief that he is someone divine among us - that he has it all. He sits here and tells me that he recommends that I withdraw the Motion, like a few days ago when I moved a Motion about expunging certain things from the record to make the record right. Me? He is talking to the wall when he is talking to me on issues where principles are involved and where right is involved over wrong.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I do not, for one minute, believe that the Financial Secretary does not look after the funds of this country. But I will say one thing to the Financial Secretary, and to all the people in the Finance Department: they have to look even harder with someone like the Minister for Education around because he will try to look around them for ways around them, it seems clear to me, and if he says it is so—it is so!

He went on to say that we were asking the Minister for Agriculture to take money from Agriculture when we should be trying to be promoting it. What a twisted, perverted statement! When the point we are making in the letter to the Minister for Agriculture . . . maybe we should have written to him; maybe he has taken that subject too is talking about the efforts being made by this older couple for agriculture.

He said that the requests for roads going on in West Bay went back as far as the 18th of April, 1990. Then he went on to impute that Mr. Roy Bodden was shrewd enough to get Mr. Linford Pierson to gazette this road that he is calling the Roy Bodden Road and, again, the implication was that he was trying to con someone into doing this for his (Roy Bodden's) own benefit. He is right about these requests, from far back in 1990 and 1991. In the minutes of the Finance Committee of 4th of November 1991, Mr. Linford Pierson was then Minister for Communications, the now Minister for Youth was asking questions of Mr. Pierson, where he says, and I quote:

“Mr. W. McKeewa Bush: Thank you, Madam Chairman.

“On Friday when I received this paper I asked Mr. Tatum of the Portfolio of Communications and Works to bring along some proof of gazetted rights-of-way making these roads public roads. I am wondering whether that has been done.”

Those people who requested and who have obviously seen that private roads have been done were questioning Mr. Linford Pierson about whether the roads were private or gazetted which then made them public roads.

Mr. Linford Pierson replied: “As regards to Goemer Drive, that is an existing public road that requires major repairs.” He spoke of various roads.

Then Mr. McKeewa Bush came back and said: “Madam Chairman, I believe the Member said that two were existing public roads. He might have men- tioned that Mary Reed and Annie Bonnie Crescent are existing. Are they all gazetted, is my question ?"

The reply from Mr. Pierson was: "Yes, Madam Chairman. All those referred to as public roads would be gazetted roads."

Mr. McKeeva Bush still oppresses the Minister: "You said Mary Reed. To get it absolutely clear, Mary Reed and Annie Bonnie have been gazetted?"

"Hon. Linford A. Pierson: Yes, Madam Chairman, that is my understanding."

"Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Chairman, why I am asking this and I note that at least two of them are old roads; here of late whenever we requested some of the roads which we submitted for West Bay, the excuse was that they were not public roads or were not gazetted and needed work done and "horse fat and cow dead" Madam Chairman, I have been requesting some roads that are existing roads that should have been fixed and I want to bring to the Member's attention again Willow Close Road, Captain Shelby Road, Buddy Parsons Road and Juniper Street."

Madam Speaker, it is right, they have been in the works for quite some while. But it is also clear that the Minister of the day was making it clear that these were private roads and that the roads where Government did repairs should have been public roads.

The now Minister (the then Mr. W. McKeeva Bush), went on to name some roads. They were: "Autry Powery Road, East Park Road, Irvin Rivers, Charley Welds, Kivy Ebanks, Mae Scott, Touslon Ebanks, Arnie Ebanks, Elford Ebanks, Birdell Ebanks, Gwen Bush, Madam Chairman, these are homes which at least five of them ..." Yes, these requests were in for a long time, but the then Minister would not take the public funds to put these driveways in. This Government did it. Mr. Pierson, on being further grilled said: "As regards the gazetting that is required, I am informed that this is now in the process and hopefully, depending of course on the budgetary constraints, we will be able to take care of as many of these roads as possible during 1992."

Madam Speaker, there was a Motion moved by the now Minister which has the long list of names of the very roads that have now been done with Government money. A Motion was moved to that effect for these roads to be done. It was Motion 6/92 - West Bay Road Work Programme. This is what is the result of it now. No other private driveways in this country, obviously, need to be done, but these need to be done.

The other requests from other districts are to be sanctioned or disapproved, but Executive Council can sit down and approve these for West Bay. You know, the Minister for Education has talked about me being hypocritical. He has said some of everything in regards to me in this House, but this matter of roads is something which a lot of gums have been beat up over. As early as the first meeting in 1993, let me read some of the comments from Members of the newly formed House on the 11th of March, 1993. Mr. Haig Bodden said: "I just used this illustration to show that the Government is looking at projects and doing them on their merits and is no longer paying somebody to vote." This is talking about roads. I wonder if there is any pay to anybody to vote, with what has occurred this time around.

On the 15th of March, the Elected Member for North Side made this statement: "The other matter I will mention here is that when I look through the Estimates for 1991 and 1992, and I see the amount of money that has been spent by the Government on roads to subdivisions. I hope that this money was not spent at the last minute during 1992, to obtain votes for the General Election. I hope these roads were in genuine need of repair and construction. I hope that these roads were public roads."

"I hope that in the future, when monies are being expended on roads of subdivisions, we will make certain that these roads are public roads and not just private roads."

"On a number of occasions I tried to get roads repaired in the district of North Side. Roads which were leading to someone's home, or three or four homes may have been on that road, but I was told that it was a private road and the Government does not upkeep private roads." [Official Hansard Report, 15 March, 1994]

That is a whole lot of cheers for the last Government who has been accused of everything on the earth. Obviously, doing private roads was not their bag, but it sure has changed at this time.

To shed a bit more light on this matter, there was a question asked by the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, also in 1991 (question 110): "Can the Honourable Member say at what stage does the Government assume the responsibility for roads and street lights in a subdivision which has been privately developed?"

Mr. Linford Pierson answers: "Government assumes road work maintenance for subdivision roads by letter to the developer when the road is constructed to suitable standards. Street lights are installed as the area develops and funds are available." That gives a little peek into the truth of the past.

I will read what was said by the now Minister for Youth when he was debating the Budget in 1992 where he actually got a suspension of Standing Orders so that he could go on for almost eight hours. He says:

"I have two minds before I am finished in this debate and I will make up my mind tomorrow morning whether I will move that Censure Motion that I have been talking about for so long. I might just move it. At least that would have them all here in the Chamber [most of them are absent today, too]. I will tell the world that if I move that Censure Motion tomorrow morning it will not be against Tom Jefferson, Richard Ground and Lem Hurlston." [Of course, I make it clear too that this Censure is not against the three Official Members, it is squarely on the Elected Members, just like the Minister did in 1992.] "It will be against Norman Bodden, Benson Ebanks, Linford

Pierson and Ezzard Miller and the Member for Cayman Brac because they are responsible for what is happening here. They have let this country run aground." [Official Hansard Report, 2 December, 1991]

Madam Speaker, he also says here: "It is time that this sort of rot be exposed in this country and I am not done with it yet. They can throw all of the red herrings in my path but one thing I have always been is strong on my legs and they are not going to stop me. We need to do something to clean up this country. Corruption in high offices, that is what we have."

I wonder if any of this is appropriate to these times. I wonder.

The Minister for Education talked about certain roads in Cayman Brac. I personally know that road works would have often been done in Cayman Brac, but the necessary gazetting was not in place and it seems that for one thing or another there was always some hold up in getting them gazetted. District Administration would send down the list as they were requested to do and there was always some hold up with it. I am not here to say that there may not have been some road there that was widened or that had fill put in, or it may even have been sprayed and chipped, and not gazetted. I cannot say, for that was not my duty.

My duty was to make a request where I saw a request was necessary to come here to support the voting of the funds and it was the business of the District Commissioner and the Minister of Communications and Works to see about that. So the names of the roads that he was reading I cannot answer to.

When he talks about the Peter Bluff Road, and Charlotte Bluff Road, he can mark it down that for years I have been attempting to get the Government to do something about them. And indeed, something was done in the last year of the last Government, as I recall—when those roads were widened and they went into the interior of the Bluff into grasslands and agricultural lands.

Peter Bluff Road was for various purposes—as was stated by the officials who were associated with agriculture (some of whom still are), and Charlotte Bluff Road is one of the main Bluff roads that goes from north to south and only the south side was done where the most flat lands are.

So, if he wants to sing a song about that he can feel free to do so. I certainly try not to deny anything about the effort I have made to have that road gazetted. Government undertook to do it and I dare say, not by myself alone for I could honestly say my colleague, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman also did his share in bringing this to the attention to the Government of the day.

To the best of my knowledge and belief, these are gazetted roads. I simply note, once again, that it seems the Minister for Education would now try to take them away from Cayman Brac, even though they have been fortunate enough to have them.

He brought up one letter here from October 14, 1992, which was written to Erbin Adolphus Tibbetts, of Box 27, Cayman Brac. According to him, he was not going to comment on this. Well, I do not know if in his state of deviousness that he brought this up with the belief that this has some bearing on me, since I am married to a Tibbetts, and he believes that this is supposed to show some wrong doing on my part. But this gentleman has passed on, unless it is his son that he is talking about. All that this letter refers to is that apparently his property would be one of the parcels affected by this road. There were maybe a dozen or so such persons and it was telling him what his rights were under the Law. But, I suspect that is what his devious action was about. I can tell him one thing: This has no bearing on me because this man is his own man, and I am my own man.

He said he was not going to comment on that. That is how he does it- weaselly! Well, I commented on it for him and I will pass on to them the information that this letter was tabled here in the House and I will surely invite them to listen for themselves tonight. I take note at how the files in the Portfolio of Communication and Works must have been rummaged to bring letters of those files in here to show whatever he hoped would be something to damage the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. and me.

The Charlotte Bluff Road: Again, in 1992, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I wrote to the then Minister urging him, if he could, to do something about these two roads, as I am pointing out they were agricultural lands, and I am grateful that the Government so responded.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town is asking me if I am sure these lands are not for my in-laws. I must tell you, not to the best of my knowledge. But, if you know they are, then you can make that statement public.

The misappropriation of funds is, according to the Minister for Education, where vast sums of money were wasted by Mr. Linford Pierson. It is my business whether I speak on any particular motion before the House, I speak on most and most people do not. But, they attempt to speak to me when I am speaking. So, the misappropriation of funds which he accused Mr. Linford Pierson, I cannot say if it is true. What I read in the PAC Report was that there were under-billings on three accounts: 1) supposedly by the former Member; 2) by the then Director; 3) the mother of an officer who worked in the Water Authority. Within that same report, there is a statement that there was no evidence found that any of the beneficiaries of that under-billing knew or agreed with that under-billing. They could only find the director of the Water Authority who knows, supposedly, and directed that it be done. I do not know if that is true either.

What I do know is true, is that as a Member of Executive Council—which the Minister for Education is, and he has been a former one too—when one alleges and makes statements as have been made here about the former Member, Mr. Linford Pierson, one would hope that it would be tempered to some extent since he cannot [come in here to reply]. I think there is a certain ethical situation there where one draws the line at a certain degree. But, as for his 'butchering' of him and Mr. Ezzard

Miller, he can go right ahead because, particularly with the latter, I do not think anyone can accuse him of not being bullish enough to respond. I dare say he will in due course, and so will Mr. Linford Pierson.

As for me, I still make no comment about the report other than what I have just made.

The Speaker: It is now 4.30, Honourable Member. Will you be finished shortly.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I have about another half an hour at least. But, I will take the adjournment if you so wish.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Minister for Education wish to move the adjournment of the House?

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. Truman M. Boddén: Yes, Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10.00 o'clock. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10.00 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 16 DECEMBER 1994.

FRIDAY
16 DECEMBER 1994
10.40 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Third Elected Member for George Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

APOLOGY

The Speaker: I have an apology from the Honourable Second Official Member who might be somewhat late in arriving at the sitting this morning.

Government Motion 9/94, Adoption of the Tourism Management Policy 1995 - 1999. The Third Elected Member for West Bay, continuing the debate.

GOVERNMENT MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION 9/94

ADOPTION OF THE TOURISM MANAGEMENT
POLICY 1995- 1999

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

On Wednesday before we adjourned, I was dealing with the confusion created by the Opposition. They were saying that the present Tourism Policy was replacing the long term Ten Year Tourism Plan which was laid on the Table of this Honourable House in 1992.

I also took time out to review the two documents and the conclusion that I have reached is that the TMP has been arrived at as a result of the TYTP.

Tourism in the Cayman Islands has done very well over the past 15 years. In the TYTP, it mentioned that between 1979 and 1989 tourism growth globally grew about 4% per annum. Over that same period of time tourism in the Cayman Islands has grown on an average of 8% per annum. So we can see that tourism in the Cayman Islands was double the global average.

If we add 1993 and 1994 to those figures, we have had an average increase of approximately 20 %. So, tourism in the Cayman Islands is doing very well and there are a number of reasons for that. They are all outlined in the plan. But one of the key reasons is that we have a good environment here, a very safe environment, despite the attempts by the opposition to say that crime is on the increase. If we were to listen to them, Madam Speaker, we would never come out of our homes after dark.

We have a relatively safe environment. Like any place, one has to be careful. I am a Caymanian and I still adhere to certain precautions, I do not go to sleep at night with my doors or windows wide open. But our visitors to these Islands can feel safe. Tourists can walk the strip at all hours of the night and the chances are that there is nothing to be feared and that is very important. When you compare the environment here with some of the other tourist destinations, where we see security guards with machine guns, it is a bit intimidating. When one goes on holiday it is important to go an environment where one can relax and feel safe.

What has also been a very positive contribution to our tourism industry here in Cayman is the quality of tourist facilities that we have. We have three diamond rated hotels, as well as first class accommodations offered by the condominiums in this country. This is very important. But the point that I want to make is that a year ago the Opposition, that is the two in the House, plus the extensions on the outside, have been criticising Government, talking about the unemployment situation.

During my contribution on the Budget Address debate, I was able to show that unemployment in Grand Cayman was down to a very minimal figure. When we took over in 1992, I recall Government asking the Labour Department to go out into the Districts and invite people who were unemployed to register. As a result of that exercise over 1,000 people, Caymanians were unemployed. As at the end of September, which was the period my latest figures covered, we had something like 148 people unemployed, of which 84 were Caymanians.

One of the objectives of the Tourism Plan here in this country is to cater to the upscale market as far as the calibre of visitors is concerned. But that creates a problem in that in order to attract this type of visitor to our Islands, we have to have the right facilities in place. We need another Hyatt-quality hotel in this country. That is the reason why the present Minister for Tourism has pushed so hard and has been successful in finding a group of investors who are prepared to build (and ground has already been broken for it) a Marriot Hotel, a four or five star facility.

This is very important because if we check out the occupancy rate at the Hyatt, they are probably ranging between 80% to 85% or 90% all year round. There are not many extra rooms there, regardless of what time of the year people come. So we need another first class facility.

But the Opposition had to jump on this too, including the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. The question they ask is. Who are we developing for? It is obvious. We need an additional first class hotel in this country if we are going to pursue the Tourism Plan objectives, which the Fourth Elected Member for George Town supports when he went on and on about this TYTP. That is exactly what it calls for.

As a matter of fact, one of the recommendations of the plan is that it recommends that we build at least three additional - three diamond calibre - hotels in this country. That is the plan that was established by Coopers & Lybrand. The same one that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town [support].

The present construction of the Marriott Hotel is in line with that. I also understand that Government has plans in place, and they already have a developer, to put in another first class hotel facility in one of the Eastern Districts - I think the district of East End, where my colleague controls.

So it goes along in keeping with the plan. That is why Government has recommended and assisted with the construction of another first class hotel in this country. The other thing that this does is take care of unemployment in the construction industry and it makes me feel good to drive by there in the morning and see Caymanians who were looking for jobs on that site now because they were able to find a job:

One of the things that I think we need to do as far as construction is concerned, is to weed out the number of foreign contractors who are out there competing with our Caymanians. They are making it very difficult indeed. That is, some of the larger contractors as well as what my Colleague from West Bay referred to as anybody with a wheel barrow and a shovel. We need to start putting in place, and this is where management comes in, controls with regard to licencing of contractors, especially in the construction industry.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town had a lot to say about training. He emphasised the present lack of training which is being made available to our people. But that is not as a result of the present Government. I recall during that the Government of 1976 - 1984 had put in place the Hotel Training School and I recall people who were interested in being employed in that industry attending those classes where they could be trained and qualified as bartenders, front desk officers and even in management. They even had a marine section also established where people could go and be trained in engineering and some of the other services that are water related. But one Government came in with the attitude to overturn everything that the previous Government had done and they squashed it. Now, the present Government is working towards putting in place a proper training programme for Caymanian in this country.

I know the Minister for Community Affairs is the Chairman for the Manpower Development Programme. That programme is geared towards the professions side of things, the banks and trust companies, the accounting firms and all the other businesses in the Financial Community. There is going to be an assessment of where Caymanians are, what the labour requirements are in this country and from that information we will be able to put in place a proper labour programme where maybe every two or three years we call the employers in and ask what are their requirements for labour over the next three years and get that information. We can ask how they intend to replace the officers we are presently issuing work permits for over the three year (or five year) period of time. There must be a programme in place. After the three years that those permits are granted, there must be monitored and a review over that period of time. So that at the end of that period we can assess where people are with regards to training to ensure that they can take over those positions once the work permits have expired.

I think we are going to have to take the same approach (and I am aware that the present Minister for Tourism is working on that) with regard to the Tourism industry. The Tourism Development Plan does emphasise partnership arrangements, for co-operation between Government and the private sector. The plan is that we will arrange with one of the large hotels whereby a classroom setting where people who are interested in being employed in that industry can attend classes and do part-time work at those facilities to get the necessary experience.

What is important for us to do, to ensure that we have Caymanians that we can train in that area, is to provide certain incentives. I recall the 1976 to 1984 Government again, when they had their training programme in place those persons who were enrolled got a stipend each month. They were paid to attend classes and get the necessary training from which they would be able to earn a decent living. We have to take the same approach.

One area that concerns me is the age group between 15 and 29. Every year we are invited as Members of this House to attend the graduations of the high schools in this country. Every year we probably have 400 to 500 students coming out of high school. Many of them are not coming out with the basic skills where they can go out there and find employment.

If we do not employ that group, of young people, we are going to have problems in this country in the future. All we have to do is drive down Eastern Avenue at 11 o'clock on a weekend and you will see exactly what I am talking about; people are congregating in that area just looking for trouble.

We have to find a mechanism by which we can attract them into these programmes and ensure that they get a qualification in order for them to earn a decent living in this country.

It is not going to be easy, but I believe with the Government and private sector working together it can be achieved. There is no doubt in my mind about that. That is very important because we depend so heavily on foreign resources, human resources, to fill many of the jobs in this country and if we have Caymanians who cannot find jobs and some of those who are not interested in finding a job. But they see people in this country walking around employed, making a decent living, that is bound to create resentment. And that is a problem that we have never had in this country and it is essential that Government and the private sector work together to ensure that that type of resentment or attitude, does not develop to any large extent in this country. It is the one thing that has set us apart from all the other tourist destinations that compete with us. Our people have always been warm and they have always welcomed people from the outside. With the continued dependence on tourism it is important for us to ensure that that attitude continues.

Some of the comments that we hear from visitors, and it is natural if I go to Jamaica to a tourist facility, I want to be served by Jamaicans. That is one of the comments I hear in the Cayman Islands: "We are in the Cayman Islands, but we do not see many Caymanians in the tourist industry."; "Not many Caymanians are waiting on us as waiters", or waitresses or bartenders or middle management or management." We have to ensure that this trend changes because there is no one who is able to promote the Cayman Islands like Caymanians.

So Government is moving ahead with regard to training to ensure that our Caymanians continue to benefit from the success that we enjoy in this country. I also believe that the hotels have to do more and have to have more of an interest, a genuine interest - not Government forcing them to do it (if Government has to force them to do so I guess it will). It would be much better if they had a genuine interest themselves and see to it that they go out there and find Caymanians who have the potential to be trained and expose them. We have a few multi-unit facilities in this country, like the Hyatt, the Radisson, the Holiday Inn, they have units all over the place. What is important for those facilities to do is identify certain Caymanians who have the potential to move up and take the initiative to see that these young people are exposed to every area of tourism. And also see that they get some outside exposure by transferring them to one of their other destinations where the young person can be exposed to another environment. They will then be in a position to really appreciate and enjoy the kind of environment we have here in the Cayman Islands.

What is also important, as far as tourism is concerned, and we are talking about managed tourism now - we could go out there and spend $12 million a year and take a shotgun approach to tourism and probably have twice what we have by way of stay over visitors, but that is not what we are after, is to attract the type of tourist that we are catering for, that is, upscale tourists.

I think we even have to make certain conscious decisions in the cruise ship industry. It is all right to say we have 70,000 or 80,000 cruise ship passengers visiting the islands. But the question has to be asked: How much do we benefit from those cruise ship passengers? There are many different cruise lines, different quality lines, and I think what the Cayman Islands should do is go after the premier tour category. The majority of the cruise ships that call presently at the Cayman Islands are the standard peanut butter tourists that come here.

I believe it is important to make conscious decisions in this area. Also we should limit the number of cruise ships that we allow to come here on a daily basis. Maybe we should also look at the possibility of spreading them out over the week, rather than concentrating them between Tuesday and Thursday each week, which causes a lot of congestion in downtown George Town.

The other thing that I want to add in regard to the Cruise Ship industry concerns what the Fourth Elected Member for George Town said about moorings. He raised the issue of permanent moorings in West Bay and it was his attitude that we have already destroyed Hog Sty Bay, and there is also some damage at the Spotts landing area. So if we are going to put down permanent moorings it should be in those areas. I support one area, that is the Spotts area, but I believe that we need to encourage, as much as possible, the cruise ships by developing other facilities like the Spotts landing and the West Bay landing. That is going to be done. The Member was a bit misled by saying that in West Bay we have the majority of the Dive sites. But he thought permanent moorings in that area would destroy the dive sites. That is total nonsense.

It is my understanding that these permanent moorings would be in about 1500 feet of water. We do not have too many people who go down to that depth, so we would not be destroying any dive sites at that depth.

The idea of tenders passing over these dive sites on their way to shore to off load cruise ship passengers, that is not going to cause any harm. What causes harm is the dive boats in those areas on a continuous, daily basis that carry hundreds and hundreds of tourists to those areas where they break off the coral and take some of the other natural resources that we have.

I do support the permanent moorings, I believe that is the way to go at the present time. The idea of docking facilities for cruise ships is a little expensive and I am not sure how much the benefits would be compared to the investment required for that kind of facility in this country.

I must also add that it is important for us to establish additional tourist attractions in this country. For about a year I was also employed in the transportation industry and I did a lot of tours. But the attractions that one can take visitors to see in this country are limited at the present time. I support the Government and I support the idea on the Ten Year Tourism Development Plan to invest some money to develop some additional tourist attractions, like the Queen Elizabeth II Botanical Park, the Pedro St. James Castle. We are presently looking at adding an aquarium at the Turtle Farm as an additional attraction. The Salinas National Park is also one of the other attractions that Government has in mind to develop. Also mentioned in here is Sting Ray City.

Let me make a few comments with regard to Sting Ray City. Sting Ray City is probably one of the major attractions that we have at the present time. What concerns me is the number of inexperienced operators who operate in the North Sound with regard to offering tours to Sting Ray City.

I recently heard a few horror stories. I am a 44 year old Caymanian, but let me tell you if there is one area that I have respect for as far as boating is concerned, it is the North Sound. In that area, unless you know exactly where you are going, one can run into a lot of problems. That is what is presently happening in the North Sound. There are foreign operators who do not know the waters and rather than trying to find a Caymanian to employ as a captain to ensure the passengers are safe, they are bringing in people on work permits who probably just arrived last Friday and they put them in the boat on Monday. They are running into shoals in that area.

I was told the other day that one boat, I think the outfit is named Big Mama, ran up on the coral with a boat load of visitors. This is one area where I believe Government really has to step in and put in place some controls for the safety of our visitors.

That is an important part of the whole tourist product or attraction - safety. Not only a crime free environment, but a safe environment as far as the divers and boat operators are concerned. I believe that we need to pay more attention as to what is going on in the North Sound.

One of the recommendations of the Tourism Development Plan was to also limit the number of water sports operators. I support that. From now on, only Caymanian, and I am talking about 100 % owned Caymanian companies should be allowed into this industry. I also believe that when we do facilities such as large hotels, we should not provide all inclusiveness where they are allowed to provide all the services; be it dive services, Sting Ray City Tours, you name it. That is the Position that we now find ourselves in. Most of the major hotels offer an all-inclusive service. What would be a better situation is where they have to contract with Caymanians who are employed in those areas to provide that service.

There is a definite need for additional tourist attractions in this country. For some time now we have been talking about diversifying our tourism market. At the present time 80% of our visitors to these Islands are from the United States. We do welcome visitors regardless of what destination they come from and we do appreciate those Americans who choose the Cayman Islands for their holiday destination.

The old saying goes that when the United States sneezes, the Cayman Islands catches a cold. I believe that it makes more sense for us to continue to promote that market, but to also look to promote visitors from other markets such as the European and Asian markets. I am aware that Government does have plans in place. It started its campaign of promotions in Europe and Japan in order to attract visitors from those areas.

I must congratulate the present Government once again for the achievements that they have been able to accomplish in this area because I think it was just last week when we, for the first time in the history of these Islands, had direct flights from the United Kingdom. This is very good because it puts us in a much better competitive position, not only tourist wise, but business wise, with some of the other destinations that we compete with. For example, in the Bahamas, they have direct flights to the major European cities and this is very convenient because a visitor or a businessperson can get on a flight and fly direct to the Cayman Islands.

I also understand that in May of next year, British Airways has plans of introducing weekly scheduled air service to the Cayman Islands. This is very positive.

Despite the comments that I heard this morning from the former Minister of Communication and Works who is sitting in our gallery, this Government has done a good job and has realised some very impressive accomplishments.

What is important is to not only diversify the market for our visitors, but to also diversify the tourist product by offering more attractions. We will then have people who are prepared to stay a little longer. The longer people stay, the more money they will spend. I understand the latest figure as far as tourist contribution to the Cayman Islands is around $300 million per annum. That is a lot of money.

It is also important for us to take care of our environment. I have been privileged to visit many of our Caribbean neighbours, and there are some very beautiful islands. I have not been to any that I would exchange for the Cayman Islands, be it the physical environment as far as that in which we live, but also the marine environment.

We have become know world wide as one of the premier dive destinations. It is important for us to continue to control and promote that side of the tourism industry because it brings in a lot of revenue to this country. It is important for us to ensure that our marine parks. The marine parks were established by one of the previous Governments, that I support and congratulate, when they established the Marine Parks Conservation Law. But, I believe that Government has to spend more money in this area as far as employing additional persons to properly and adequately patrol these marine parks - based on a 24-hour basis. I understand that we have poachers who go in there early in the morning and take out lobster, conch, fish and anything else they can find in those parks. If we are going to continue to allow this to happen then we are going to have problems in this area.

I also believe that we need to control the number of persons that we allow to visit any of our dive destinations on a daily basis. With all that activity and with visitors being as curious as they are, breaking off coral and all the other things, it will not be long if we are not careful before we lose the marine environment of which we presently are so proud.

In order to accomplish all of this, it is very important for us to have a proper marketing strategy. I must congratulate the present Minister for Tourism and the Government for the changes, which they have put in place over the past two years with regard to promoting the Cayman Islands.

Just a few months ago we were invited to the launching of a new tourism campaign entitled 'Ours and Yours'. The theme of that campaign is promoting more of our people through brochures, videos and whatever medium that can be used so that people get the right impression of our people when they visit these Islands. Prior to this time there were very few Caymanian faces displayed in brochures, on television and in other media used by the Cayman Islands. It is very positive. The display that they had at the Hyatt of the photographs that were taken of Caymanians was a very good cross section of these Islands.

One of the strategies of the present Government is niche marketing, gearing their marketing dollars to a specific calibre of persons. Like I said, the results for 1993 was over a 20% increase in tourism compared to the year before and this year is probably going to top the 20% mark compared to 1993.

I believe that tourism is in good hands, that the present Government must be congratulated for the accomplishments that we have seen in all areas, turning around the financial position of this country which is where it all had to start; addressing some of the social needs that we have in this country; addressing sports needs in this country which had been so neglected over the years; and also recognising the tourism increases which we have seen over the last two years.

I believe it is important for us, regardless of what side of the floor we are on (Government or Opposition) to ensure that we work together to promote the Cayman Islands as a safe and friendly destination. When the Opposition gets up and talks about crime being on a rampage, someone reading that headline will come up with the wrong conclusions. After all, regardless of what side of the floor we are on we are all Caymanians and our objective should be to promote those things that are in the best interest of our country and our people.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

MOTION TO ADJOURN THE HOUSE

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, under Standing Order 83, I move to suspend Standing Order 10(2) for the House to be adjourned for a date to be fixed.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Minister speak further to that Motion?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, we have been here quite a long time and I know that I am going to get some quarrel, but the Government has important matters that are being passed by. I think that we have spent sufficient time here doing what we are now doing, which is just talk. People are under duress, not only this Legislature, but all the Ministries including that of the Official Members.

I hope Members will agree, we are not leaving anybody out the Opposition can reply to their Motion in the New Year, as will the Government on their Motion.

The Speaker: I would like to draw the Honourable Minister's attention to Standing Order 83 which states: "Any of these Standing Orders may be suspended at any time with the leave of the House for a specific purpose ..."; and also we have Standing Orders which say that unfinished Motions (we have two which will not have been finished) which would have to be brought back de novo. That means that a period of six months would have to elapse before these Motions could be brought back.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, they would not have been completed. So the six-month qualification would not stand because they would not have been completed.

The Speaker: I think it does, Honourable Member, because the effect of prorogation of the House is that any business which has not been finished must be started over again, that is the effect of prorogation, and we have had no amendment to our Standing Orders to that effect.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: As you rule, Madam

Speaker.

I move for the suspension, as I stated earlier. That Motion stands, the House can vote on it if they please.

The Speaker: I will have to put the Motion if there is going to be a debate. The Motion is that, under Standing Order 83 (which provides for the suspension of Standing Orders at any time for a specific purpose) that Standing Order 10(2) be suspended so that the House can adjourn until a date in 1995.

The Motion is open for debate.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I cannot support that Motion for the following reasons:

We are the people's elected representatives sent here to discuss the business of the country and the people's business. Which is what we are doing. The Government [Ministers], often like to tell the Opposition that they are not successful because they have no business is now suffering as a result of their running mouths.

We have two important items of unfinished business. We should finish it and it is a pity that the Honourable Minister did not realise that what he has done now is carry the House into a direction where every Member is going to speak on this, further delaying the process. If he had allowed the Motions to continue we would have been well on our way to winding up.

I reiterate, Madam Speaker, the parliament takes precedence. It is from this point that we set the tone and make the policies for the Government to carry out. This is the most important institution in the country and we should not delay, postpone or cut short its business. I will not be supporting it. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to seek some guidance on the Motion as I hear what you said when it was initially moved. If what you are saying holds, then I think it would be wrong for us to take a vote. Maybe you could clarify that position for us before we go on any further.

The Speaker: I am not sure that I understand what the Member for George Town is getting at. I thought I made it quite clear when I read from the Standing Orders and said that under the principles of prorogation of the House any matters which have been left outstanding must be started afresh. I think that is what I said.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbett: So if I may - and I am sorry about it, but I just want to make sure that I fully understand - we are saying that the House is suspended now, both these Motions will have to start afresh? Is that correct?

The Speaker: That is correct. That is what I said.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I just wanted to make sure of that. That being the case, I certainly cannot support the Motion to suspend the House. I think from every indication it is very possible that the business of the House might be finished today. We are now at the hour of 11, and to suspend the sitting would have saved a mere matter of a few hours to reconvene again in January will certainly carry on for many days. So I do not see the validity of the point. I certainly will not be supporting the Motion.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brae and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I have long given up ever being surprised by what the Government does or what it suggests to be done. The suggestion from the Minister for Community Development in the middle of two Motions being debated in this House, at nine minutes past eleven in the morning (jumping up in this House) that we close the House down because Government has such pressing business, is ridiculous.

The way the Legislature of the Cayman Islands or the parliamentary process, is being treated by the Government is absurd. This is precedent-setting in a way - that is damaging and destructive.

There is a Censure Motion on the floor, one of the most serious kinds of motions that can be here. It is also at the end, since the winding up debate is now taking place. The Government Motion on Tourism, the subject that is considered by all to be so important, is being debated. I wonder how many others would be debating that? I guess none. So in the normal sequence of things the Question would be put. The Government is so hard pressed and that Minister has so much to do, and the country is going to fall on its face if this House is not suspended today until a day in 1995 (we may all be dead, there is a possibility of that). It is ridiculous and an absolute abuse of the Standing Orders of this House where he [the Minister] expects he will have this absurd proposition passed because the numbers are there to say "Aye" when he says so. It is ridiculous.

The business of this House has to be treated in the light of what is proper parliamentary practice and procedure. This is not proper parliamentary practice and procedure. Things cannot be done this way unless we are going to become a ridiculous little bunch of people in what is called the Legislature, and one person can just jump up and say that he has so much work to do and people are stressed out. I wonder if he is the only one stressed out? If he is stressed out, then he should seek aid for that. He cannot stop the business of the House because he is, supposedly, stressed out.

No time is being saved when only this week we have seen a circular sent around by the Speaker to look at dates and times for next year for the four meetings that would normally be. Why would we be having a fifth meeting to wind up two Motions that are on the floor and are almost at the point of taking the question on them?

Madam Speaker, it is mischief! I most surely would never vote to do what this Member has moved to be done. I will watch and see who will go along with this particular show.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I have listened carefully to what has been said. I do not know what the Executive Branch of Government has to do. I do know that there has been advertisement in the Caymanian Compass that it was planned that the Civil Service would close their offices at noon today, which would include the Legislative Department and the [Portfolios] of Official Members.

I would like to recommend, Madam Speaker, that you suspend the House for a matter of ten minutes so we could have an informal discussion in the Committee Room to see if we can resolve this issue.

I understand the parliamentary procedure, but if there is urgent business then I think we should be men enough to sit and discuss it and understand the situation before coming to a conclusion.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: There is a Motion before the House and if there are no other persons to debate, would the Mover of the Motion wish to reply?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I do not think that this is abuse of any rules of Parliament. This House has been sitting since the 4th of November.

The Opposition cannot say that they have not had their day in parliament. This House should have adjourned yesterday afternoon. Why the Opposition continues to carry on? I know I have been here long enough and I have heard them say that their ploy is to keep us here as long as possible. They have done that. They have had six motions - much more business than the Government - on the floor of this House and they have not been denied their business. They will not be denied by this bit of business. All we are going to do is adjourn the House. When the House meets next time their Motions can be carried over by a new Motion if that is the way you rule, Madam Speaker. Nevertheless, I think the country's business is suffering. The Opposition has nothing to do but talk. We have work to do - the country's business. The Member speaking, especially, does not even have a business.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Garbage!

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Garbage? The garbage is what I have heard going on here for the past several days. That is where the garbage lies.

[addressing the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman] Your business is your business and you love to talk and that is your business.

The Speaker: [Gavel] There shall be no talking between Members. I have already asked you not to do that. Please continue the correct procedure in this House.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker, for your protection.

Parliament takes precedence when Parliament is doing the country's business. All we have been doing...they have been moving Motions asking us to do things which we are already doing, to give them a change to run by the mouth.

Parliament does not mean Opposition's business, it means Opposition and Government. We have given them due time. I am hopeful for the day next year when we can amend these Standing Orders because what is happening is they can talk and that is what they have been doing. It is a good ploy to keep the Government's business down.

I have many [departments under my] Ministry, not only me (but I can speak for myself at this point), and this is the time of the year when we visit the old folks' home, when we visit the Social Services Department, all the Children's sections in Social Services. Nothing is able to be done because those Members have already said that their tactic is to keep the Government in as long as they can -and they have done that. Next week is Christmas.

There is no abuse of Standing Orders and there is no damage nor destruction to any parliamentary procedure. What is happening here is done under the Standing Orders, the only thing is that they did not believe that the Government had the gumption or the will, to do what we are doing.

For those who do not want to vote with the Government, fine, but I am going to keep the Motion on the House. The Motion is that under Standing Order 83, we suspend Standing Order 10(2) to adjourn until a date is fixed for the new year, and that is the ceremonial opening of Parliament.

I repeat: No Member will lose anything. If anything, the Opposition Member who proposes to speak would have had more time to put his Motion and speech back together. We know that they have no business, they only talk. That is what they are good for.

Madam Speaker, I have a very large Ministry, as does the Financial Secretary, the Chief Secretary, the Attorney General and my other colleagues. He is not the only one... Government has a Motion which will have to lay over, but so be it. The country's business - the businesses in the Glass House are suffering. I am not talking about any closure of Government offices as is normal at this time of the year to allow civil servants to get together. I am not talking about that. There are other major businesses yet to come and we cannot get them done. In fact, Finance Committee is going to meet here Wednesday and we have not even had the chance to put all the papers together.

[Addressing the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman] Oh, SHUT UPI You have nothing to do except talk in this Parliament.

The Speaker: [Gavel] Honourable Minister! [Gavel] Please, please. That is really out of order, and I cannot tolerate that. You are abusing the privilege of the House by shouting and that is not the correct procedure. Please bear that in mind.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, you can say what you like.

There is a Motion, I wish you would put it.

The Speaker: I will put the Motion, Honourable Minister, and I must advise you that I am not prepared to take any rudeness from any Member, Minister, or otherwise in this House because you are abusing the privileges of this House.

[Members: Applause. Hear, hear!]

The Speaker: [Gavel] Order!

The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac recommended suspension. But I am afraid that under the circumstances I cannot put a suspension, there is a Motion, which I must now put.

The question is that the House do now adjourn until the date for the meeting which is set for the 3rd of March, 1995; that under Standing Order 83, Standing Order 10(2) be suspended for the adjournment of the House until 3rd March, 1995.

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye-Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can we have a division, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: You certainly may. Madam Clerk.

The Clerk:

DIVISION NO. 27/94

AYES:8

Hon. James M. Ryan
Hon. Michael Marsden
Hon. George A. McCarthy
Hon. W. McKeever Bush
Hon. John B. McLean
Hon. Anthony S. Eden
Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr
Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks

NOES:3

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts
Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
Mr. Roy Bodden

ABSTAIN: 2

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell

ABSENT: 5

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson
Hon. Truman Bodden
Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson
Mr. G. Haig Bodden
Mrs. Edna M. Moyle

The Speaker: The result of the division is eight Ayes, three Noes, two Abstentions. The Motion has therefore been passed and the House will be adjourned until the 3rd of March, 1995. However, before the House adjourns, I think the Honourable First Official Member...

[Addressing the Honourable First Official Member] You are not making your statement?

The Honourable First Official Member had advised that he would be making a statement, but it is not being done now.

Before the House adjourns, I would just like to wish everyone a pleasant Christmas and a Happy New Year. I hope that during this season of Peace and Good Will that there will, indeed, be peace and good will among Members, their families and the whole community of the Cayman Islands - this is very sadly needed.

The House is now adjourned.

AT 11.25 AM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL FRIDAY, 3 MARCH 1995.
