We have heard about the benefits that would have been achieved, and over the years, this has come out in relation to the Master Ground Transportation Plan. One Member stated that by increasing commercial rates we are indirectly putting up the cost to persons who are subject to the residential rates. But a large amount of the electricity in this country for commercial purposes is taken up by banks, insurance companies, offshore industry, with their large offices and this does not go back to the man in the street. A large amount is also consumed by hotels. This is mainly passed on to persons from abroad. So it is not correct to say that by increasing the commercial electricity rates in order to reduce the residential rates that it is indirectly coming back to persons who are subject to the residential rates. This is passed on to the tourists and the large corporations from abroad, the banks, insurance companies, and persons in the offshore industry.

I would like to deal with a few of the comments that were raised. One Member stated that we had objected to when the 50 cents was put on diesel. That is correct. But we have been able to achieve the reduction in electricity without having to reduce the cost of the diesel. I think that is quite commendable. If electricity rate had not been reduced, then I think the position would have been different. But we have been able to achieve our Manifesto without having to reduce the rates.

Another Member mentioned the cost in relation to the Cuban migrants who are here. Within the negotiations that were carried out, a lot was achieved. In fact the total that was achieved was what could be achieved and that was that the United States would take 900 Cubans. It could have been a lot worse because if the government along with the United Kingdom Government had not shrewdly negotiated then we may have been in a position where we had nowhere for the Cubans to go. I believe that Member appreciates what the cost of keeping them here is, and he knows that the negotiations that went on were done from a position of the fact that the Cuban migrants were already here. It is never easy to negotiate yourself out of a situation that has already happened. It is far simpler if it can be headed off. Obviously, in this case, that could not be done.

The taxes that were mentioned that this government has put on, relating to the Tourist Accommodation Tax, the Opposition Members well know that is not something that is passed on to the Caymanian public. That goes directly to the tourists coming in, so it is incorrect to attempt to say that specific tax is one that affects people locally. It does not. That is why we have tried throughout to put on the tax increases in matters such as the hotel fees.

Some criticism was made that this was done through Executive Council, but it has always been done that way—government after government, after government. These are regulations. It is not under law that it has to come back to the Legislative Assembly. That was raised by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. As the public knows, the garbage fees in relation to the residential homes was not put on.

I am not too certain what was expected to be achieved by bringing in road commissions. At the end of the day you build roads with money and unless the Commission was going to attempt to do what Mr. Linford Pierson was trying to do with the Master Ground Transportation Plan, when he was trying to raise $200 million, and the Committee was sitting there trying to figure out how to raise it. I think that if some of the Members in the Opposition cast their minds back to that, they will see a horrifying situation of where we would have been today.

As they know, we objected fully to the Master Ground Transportation Plan, it was going to create a massive corridor of roads. As the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, who has a very sensible and pragmatic approach to things, mentioned earlier, the MGTP was creating corridors, not roads. If you spend all your money creating corridors and have no money left to build the road, that is a stupid situation. When this government came in it was estimated that it would take $10 million over five years to merely repair the present roads that are here. This is the stage that Mr. Linford, as Member for Communications and Works, had run this country down into. They built new roads and no one had bothered repairing them.

If any advice has to be given to anyone, then the two Opposition Members should go and tell Mr. Ezzard Miller and Mr. Linford Pierson the way that they messed up the roads in this country by letting them run down. They not only did that, the Government buildings were run down and they sold them off at little or nothing. No repairs went on because they were a government that only looked for big money. There was big money involved in a lot of consultants, and then the last government did not move.

I think we know where this Motion could have had part of its origination. That was also pointed out by the resident Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. We know that when the Master Ground Transportation Plan was being pushed by the last government (when we were all in opposition to it) they had two meetings that I know I saw minutes of in which they were going to tax just about everybody up to the hilt to try to produce $200 million to pay for this elaborate road that they were looking at doing at the time.

It is all well and good, I think anyone would agree, that some road corridors need to be put in, but the corridors have to be what is affordable. It is no good for us to sit here with our heads in the sand believing that we are going to go out there putting in corridors, putting it through people's land and pay them nothing. The law is very clear—if we put those corridors in we must pay for them. Where will the money come from?

It was obvious that the last government raised enough money to pay the consultants to produce the studies on things like the hospital and the Master Ground Transportation Plan but they had no money to build it.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman either has a very short memory, or lives in a world of confusion when it comes to the Government's position in 1992. At that stage in 1992, when this government took over, the position was that the annual deficit was $21.7 million. Yes, on top of that, the Surplus and Deficit Account was $7.0 million in deficit.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman knows where that $7.0 million that came out of reserves went because there is no good to have reserves built up when you are running a $21 million deficit. The $7.0 million that came out of reserves went to pay part of the $21 million that was the annual deficit for 1992. They are the ones that are now out there trying to talk about economics. Look at where the Government was. This was $21 million in deficit and Cayman Airways was running at $14 million—add them up, that is $40 million to split up amongst the population of this country, about $4,800 for every person here to pay for the mistakes of the last government.

People do not change. If they put Mr. Linford Pier-son and Mr. Ezzard Miller back, they will run a $40 million deficit between Cayman Airways and the government.

What the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, who very ably put this when he was in the Opposition, should have been telling them was that when they took over back in 1989, there was a build up during the previous Government's time to a stage where in 1988 there was a surplus of $13.7 million with a reserve of $11 million. That increased into the following year to where the two of them were $30 million—they had $30 million to their credit when they started out.

ings. They borrowed $14.1 million in 1991 because they had a deficit of $15.4 million. In fact, with the exception of the first year that the last government took over (1989) when they were still spending the $30 million in surplus and reserves that were there, in every other year they carried a deficit ranging from $14 million to $21 million. In 1990, Mr. Linford and Mr. Ezzard's government lost $14.9 million; in 1991 the annual deficit and loss was $15.4 million and, as I said, in 1992 it peaked at $21.7 million.

If anyone wants to find out how they could get into these problems, it is the same approach that they have now convinced others (whether or not the two Opposition Members were included in it) that they can just take money off (as in this case $4 million) without having to worry about where it is coming from. It is irresponsible management of the public's money.

We have tried, and we have seen for the first time this year, there are no major borrowings by the government with the exception of the carry-overs from the two schools that I was not able to get finished last year. So this year we are paying for the large part of our capital expenditure out of our recurrent revenue. It is like a person who works and takes money out of their salary to buy their house or car without taking a loan. It is a very hard thing to do, but the government is now back on the right track.

The principle that we have laid down of living within our means . . . the last government did everything first class and the public is now paying. Things like the corridors, for example, that could have been 60 or 70 feet wide were 120 feet wide with roads of 40 feet running beside them because you could not enter the main road except at maybe one mile instances, so you had to run another road beside it. It was totally stupid. The only thing that saved this country—but in another way hurt it—was that they could not raise the money to put it into effect.

Any idiot can spend money. We have seen a good example here, cut the taxes, give back the $4 million. Where is the money coming from? We do not need, in this day and age, people telling us how to spend money. They can see that a government such as the last one was quite capable of spending it. They spent everything—the $30 million surplus and reserve that the government of 1984 to 1988 had made. But there were men in that who understood business. We had people like Captain Charles and Sir Vassel, they understood what it was to make a dollar before you spend 50 cents.

The government that came afterwards spent a dollar and they could not even make 50 cents to cover it. Now we have coming along the theories of the last government that was an economic disaster to this country. No other government, in fact, all of the governments put together did not come up with the deficit that they came up with.

On top of that, we had to finance the US $20 million, and that is what the borrowing in 1993 for Cayman Airways was for. But I can assure the public that went to pay the debts of the last government. The talk about the sweetheart deals by Mr. Linford and his colleagues when they sold the 727s and got the 737, was a national eco-conomic disaster. Luckily for us, they got to a stage where they could not borrow anymore. But it is a sad state when a country gets to a bankrupt stage and it cannot borrow sufficient to carry on with the running of the country.

What do they have to show for it? Nothing! Absolutely nothing. They wrecked Cayman Airways. They wrecked the budget and the economics of this country. One is up in Hong Kong, I do not know what he is learning up there. I only went for three days and left, he has been up there and is still there, and I doubt if he is going to find the answers to the economy up there on the other side of the world.

What we have here, unfortunately, is a situation where Mr. Ezzard and Mr. Linford seem to have passed on their theories to their only two vocal persons in here the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. They are left to try to carry on this disastrous programme.

Every one in the Islands in the Caribbean has been wrecked by people with the mentality of the last government and the two Opposition Members. If they cannot see the disaster in the Islands around us... the preachers of these theories have finally had to admit that they were wrong. Look at the people who pushed these theories of over expenditure and not taking stock, not living within one's means—look at where they are now. They have had to admit that socialistic democracy—a form of communism—does not work. If you give $4 million out, it has to come from somewhere. It would not be this Member walking into one of those banks saying I want $4 million because of some bright idea coming up from two Opposition Members. It is not as simple as that.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Minister take a suspension?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.48 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.35 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation continuing.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Some of the arguments that I have heard are like ringing bells from the past Minister for Communication and Works. A lot of what is being put forward here were views and ideas of the past government.

They had a Road Committee called the Grand Cayman Improvement Plan, it is referred to as GRIPS. I may say, Madam Speaker, that if GRIPS has been allowed to go through they would have had a grip on the pockets of the people of this country and they would still be paying for it.

That committee sat in June in 1991 and October of 1991 that I know about and to support the large expenditure which we understood to be $200 million, they were looking at putting taxes on in seven areas. They were looking at development and impact fees. They were going to increase the garbage fees. They looked at putting import duty on petrol (not just diesel but gasoline as well). They were looking (the last government back in 1991) at increased import tax on luxury items, motorcycles, jet ski boats, television dishes, expensive cars. The 1991 GRIPS Committee was looking at even taxing the financial community where they referred to it, being over $350 billion flows through Cayman's financial institutions per year yet only $5 million is collected in fees. This could have actually destroyed the sector that was providing a very large amount of money to the revenue.

The 1991 GRIPS Committee also looked at the tourist sector—increasing cruise ship fees and passenger fees and they compared it: Cayman $6.25 a head, Bermuda $60. Another very interesting one because the mentality of the last government and some of the views put forward by the Opposition in this House are so similar, reduce the number of civil servants to save money. The last one is really amusing—the national lottery worth looking into.

You want to tell me that there are any road reserves in Cayman worth looking at dealing with a national lottery? They comment: "No hardship imposed on Caymanians could generate substantial funds." We know that the colleague of Mr. Linford Pierson has been talking about the horse racing in Hong Kong, Mrs. Bridget McPartland, and all of these are beginning to ring true because one of the members of the GRIPS Committee was Mr. Linford Pierson. It is all coming out.

Perhaps one other bit of insight into the way this rings of the last government that has been rejected by the public... and when you look at one of these things (the only one that we had anything to do with because I have heard some comments from across the floor) this was back in 1991, yet when we looked at a very fair, equitable and reasonable structure of the civil service, everyone started to scream.

What I found interesting is in 1991 (and this is where the $10 million in two years came in) . . . we have to remember that $10 million tax was put on in one year and left on in the second year. When you add another $10 million, as they did, it become $20 million in the second year. They referred to a discussion that government would have to seek ways to increase general revenue over all with the new proposed projects—$32 million over five years for the Education programme and new hospital. We know that was about $30 million (the hospital) that we believe was nearer to $45 million because everything was deflated to try to get it through. "The roads project is not the only project targeted by government which will need major funding." You had to believe that this was really economic suicide that the last government was getting into.

We have learned to cut our garment to suit our cloth. In other words, you have to be sensible. If you cut $4 million out, you have to find it from somewhere else. Any school child can tell you how to spend $4 million in this day and age, but at the end of the day it has to come from somewhere.

The last area that I want to deal with is this road commission that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman recommended. That is also referred to by the GRIPS Committee. But what they were thinking about was a statutory corporation similar to the Port Authority and the Water Authority being responsible for their own revenues, independent of the central government coffers.

The mess that this country is in now, financially, during the last Government's time, came about because we had two members of government who could not become Chief Ministers, who circumvented the Constitution by setting up statutory corporations such as the Water Authority and the Health Authority. They sat as chairmen of these Authorities, they hired and fired staff. No one in the last government should ever talk about staff and having any stability. They hired and fired staff without going through the Constitutional process of the Public Service Commission.

They also took and used those corporations such as the Water Authority to get their water bills reduced, they used the health services authority to give out contracts to their friends as the Auditor General said, they did not even define what it was for. This is the type of corporation that the Road Authority would have been. Under the Constitution you are not independent of the Finance and Stores Regulations when you are in the central government.

Their answer for what they could not do the right way, subject to the Auditor General under central government, they created a statutory corporation, put a lot of debt into it (and we must remember that this present government did $140 million worth of debt guarantees and contingent liabilities). I submit that they are trying to set up a road authority (which is another means for siphoning out money which was going to be wasted), where contracts were going to be given out for roads the same way they were given out for the communications from the past Minister for Communications—they were given out through the Health Services Authority to their friends.

Speaking generally, I would like to submit that the biggest danger for corruption in this country is where you have the central government being replaced by independent statutory corporations where you have a politician sitting as its head with full Ministerial power, including the power to spend as they so wish according to budgets that they produce and to hire and fire as they wish.

What the present Government has done is bring back the Finance and Stores Regulations to put the Auditor General back into the statutory corporations to disband it as far as we could, some totally, as we did with the Health Services Authority, other ones we have hopefully made sufficient corrections where there was abuse of power. I think that the less statutory authorities this country has the better off we are going to be because it is a source for power hungry people to hand out contracts to their friends and circumvent the checks and balances which has kept this country honest to this stage.

So, instead of the Opposition learning from the disasters of Mr. Ezzard and Mr. Linford's government—the economic disaster that they created—we have them now reviving the very thing that has caused this country to pay and to pay, and to pay.

It is an irresponsible fiscal policy to put forward a matter to cut the budget by $4 million and not have the sense to put forward where the $4 million is coming from. It is fiscally irresponsible, I submit.

I think what should be done with this Motion is that the Opposition should admit that the National Team has carried out literally everything in its Manifesto at this stage, but has especially reduced the householders' electricity bill by what would substantially be done if this diesel tax was removed.

Considering that the last government, at least with Mr. Linford Pierson as Member responsible for Caribbean Utilities, in its quest to help the little man, should have figured out how to get this reduction to help the little man. We have to remember that in 1991 they were not just looking at imposing tax on diesel, they were looking at imposing it on petrol, gasoline—the whole works.

So, I cannot support this Motion. I believe that what it is seeking to achieve has already been achieved; the cost of electricity to smaller consumers, residential consumers, has already been reduced. I think that the Motion is ill founded and irresponsible as it does not show where the money would be coming from to pay the $4 million. I will be voting against it.

Thank you.

The Speaker: If no one else wishes to continue the debate, would the mover of the Motion wish to conclude by replying thereto?

Mr. Roy Boddan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, very simply, this Motion is about political honesty, about keeping a political promise. This Motion is about political responsibility. It is not the duty of the Opposition to provide alternatives for the government because if the opposition gives the government the solutions to the problems at hand, what will the opposition do when it is their turn to form the government? It is the duty of the Opposition to bring to the parliament and the country the failings of the government.

This motion which very simply asks that: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government remove the twenty five cents per gallon tax increase levied on diesel fuel brought into effect by Government Motion No. 9/91; and BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the revenue from Motor gasoline, Diesel oil (Kerosene) other fuel oils and basic petroleum products be held in a special account to be used exclusively for road development and maintenance" only asks the government to do what they have listed on page four of their Manifesto, namely, "To seek to reduce the high cost of living, for example, by reducing import duty on diesel and thus reducing the cost of electricity."

The Government has suggested that the agreement they made with Caribbean Utilities regarding the restructuring of the rates whereby the first reduction is 2%, the second 2.35% and there is a final one of 2%, I contend, is not achieving the same objective, and here is why: The removal of a 25 cent tax on diesel has the immediate and specific objective of having electricity rates reduced at once across the board. One does not have to be an Adam Smith to realise that any reduction by the commercial establishment and the service industry is passed on to the consumer. Therefore, the 6.35% reduction which they claim they are achieving will not, cannot, have the same effect across the board that the 25 cent tax reduction would.

You know what, Madam Speaker? The Government is in a bind (and they will continue to be in a bind) because they made too many promises out of political expediency. It was popular at the time to write in the Manifesto that they were going to reduce the 25-cent tax because they knew that when Motion 9/91 came it was a most unpopular motion. And out of political expediency they decided to jump on the bandwagon. Now that they are called to account, they are backing up like a lobster. They can back up because they will be running into several more harpoons.

As I sat here and listened to some of the National Team Ministers I could not help but recall that Joseph Goebbels was successful in fooling the world for many years that Hitler was not doing wrong; that Hitler was not exterminating the Jews; that there were no pogroms of euthanasia being carried out in Germany until the allies decided to fight to find out the truth.

I am wondering how many Joseph Goebbels the National Team has on its side; how many ministers of propaganda they think they are going to need to try to fool the people because they do not see it fit now to keep a promise they made.

I have one or two points that I would like to make regarding the essence of this Motion, but before I do so, there are some comments that were made by persons speaking on behalf of the National Team which I think need to be cleared up. Indeed, I would say that they are of crucial importance and it is absolutely essential that they be cleared up.

First of all, let me state the position of the people bringing this Motion. We have no reason to defend the record of the last government because we are a separate entity from the last government. The fact that there are two of us sitting here now who class ourselves as Opposition and we are different, we do not have their strategy book because we do not need their strategy book.

Let me suggest that there is absolutely no connection—not even the faintest coincidental one. We brought this Motion because we see it as our duty to remind the “National Saviours” that they made this promise to the people of this country and they cannot save the country as they proposed and professed that they are doing unless and until they keep this promise.

There are none so blind as he who will not see. The Minister for Education reminds me of the old Greek proverb, which says: “Those whom the gods destroy they first make mad.” When he talks about corruption emanating from Statutory Boards and the control of Statutory Boards and these kinds of controls has the penchant for brining in corruption, may I remind the Honourable Minister that he is presently chairman of the Airport Authority, and that his colleague, the Minister for Tourism is Chairman of the Port Authority and that their colleague, the Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture is Chairman of the Water Authority. I wonder now if his comment is still relevant and applicable?

It is a pity that with the six senior qualifications common sense was not included.

I want to make another point: The greatest destruction and threat of destruction in the Caribbean and elsewhere...

That is typical of him, Madam Speaker, he cannot stand the heat so he is leaving the kitchen. Typical of him, Ma'am. He cannot stand the heat so he is leaving the kitchen.

The greatest destruction and threat of destruction in the Caribbean and elsewhere has not come from people who have exercised responsibility, political honesty and maturity, but have come from people who when placed in positions of trust and responsibility used those positions to victimise and carry out vendettas on people who have no access to the same forums to defend themselves. That is why we see someone passing out a flyer now announcing a meeting which says “Enough is enough, so let us stand up for our rights”, singling out Mr. Truman Bodden as becoming more and more consistent in regard to his insulting the people of these Islands. These people feel sufficiently concerned that they are holding a public meeting on Mary Street on Tuesday, 4 April at 8.00 PM. They realise that this Minister is betraying the trust that they put in him and using his privileged position in this House to victimise and intimidate and carry out vendettas on people who have no recourse to the same forum.

The two Opposition Members are significantly concerned with this point as to be brining a motion in the next Parliament which is asking for the removal of privilege when Members use this Chamber to castigate, pass derogatory remarks and libel other members who have no access to the same forum.

This Motion is not about taxing the people. It is about removing taxes on the people—what the National Team said they were going to do. So now why are they trying to back track and get out of it and say it is not possible, that it is political irresponsibility? Let me assure the Opposition that if the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I were in the position we would know what to do. When we are in the position where we are the government, we will do what is necessary and any promise to this extent that we make, we are going to keep because the National Team knew before they wrote this in their Manifesto that this 25 cents represented $10 million. They should have thought at that time, “If we remove this we have to get this $10 million from somewhere else. Therefore, let us remove this be- cause we know where we can get this make-up money from.

Madam Speaker, I contend that they did not know and they did not care to know. All they knew was that Government Motion No. 9/91 which imposed this tax on diesel was unpopular. So they, out of political expediency, decided: 'Ah-ha, we are going to capitalise on this', and they told the people what they wanted to hear—that they were going to remove this tax. That section 8 of the National Team's Manifesto, page four, is a typical National Team promise. Just like what the Caymanians talk about a July squall—not worth a button.

One Member speaking said that the proposal would create a financial nightmare. Perhaps that speaker needs to be reminded that modern day accounting and scientific management practices are not done to old tedious long-handed way. Computers do most of the work now and it is possible for more effective, efficient and accurate accounting to be done. So, to try to mislead and confuse the issue by saying that this is a financial and an accounting impossibility, is to demonstrate an ignorance of modern management practices and scientific concepts.

It is my understanding that the establishment and operation of separate accounts to deal with revenues derived from related products for specific purposes is common management policy and is encouraged and practised in many jurisdictions.

The Motion did not ask the government to set this process up immediately. Indeed, it gave no time line because we, being the reasonable persons we are on the position, could not expect that the government would be able to immediately effect what is being asked in the resolution, particularly when it comes to setting up a special account to deal with road development and road maintenance.

However, were the government honest in its intention, were the Ministers realistic in their outlook, they would use this as an opportunity to remind themselves of the urgency and address this whole business of infrastructural development as roads fit into the picture.

We are wont in this country to boast about our communications. We have more telephones, more telefaxes per capita than any country in the world. We have the best system. Roads too are a part of this communications network that we so badly need to maintain and to keep in a number one state. It does not make sense to have the most telephones and telefaxes per capita if you cannot get safely, quickly and efficiently from George Town to Bodden Town or East End, North Side or Newlands.

So the government, in its short-sightedness, should not be so quick to put down the efforts of the Opposition and to dismiss the efficacy of this Motion by calling it political irresponsibility. When they say political irresponsibility we in the opposition echo political dishonesty. They should use this as an opportunity to bring home to them the necessity and the urgency of effecting this business of road development and maintenance.

Of course, it is easy for them to knock GRIPS and the Master Ground Transportation Plan. The records show that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and myself (as then members of the so-called Backbenchers) expressed our reservations and voted against it because we were concerned that there was no amount given as to how much this would cost. But, we did not say that the principle of securing, making provision for future development for roads in this country was wrong.

Some people who are now knocking this business of the GRIPS and the MGTP most fervently were members of the Committee at that time. I wonder if they were big enough to voice their opposition so that they could have been recorded at that time, or did they dodge and duck as is customary, and only dealt with them when they were in a position where they could not be challenged.

No amount of argument, not even if I was as persuasive as I read that Charles James Hawkes, and Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton and all the other members of the Clapham Sect were when they addressed the House of Commons regarding the issue of abolition. No amount of persuasiveness would force the National Team to change their mind. Clearly, they have been caught in a bind and I am telling them this afternoon that these kinds of promises made out of political expediency are going to be their undoing like they claim taxes were the undoing of the previous political directorate. It is the duty of the Opposition to bring to the Parliament and to the people the failures of the Government.

I would like to make one more significant point before I go any further. The National Team likes to pride themselves on their fiscal policies and their fiscal management since they took over. They frequently remark that they inherited a bankrupt government. Well, I would like to know what financial magic wand have they been able to wave to put the country in the position that they claim it is in now—two years after they claim they inherited a bankrupt government. It is not the case that the National Team inherited a bankrupt government, for if they did, tell me how could they have taken $7 million from a $10 million reserve fund?

Let them cease from trying to fool the public. They have had their failures and the will continue to have them. I am not in the business of blaming the past political directorate or any other political directorate for the position that the country is in. When I am elected to a position of responsibility it is my duty to make the best of the circumstances and I am not one for wasting time blaming anyone in the past for what they have done. Now the baton is in my hand, I have to take it and do my best to run to win the race. So this business of blaming the past political directorate as far as I am concerned is like water off a duck's back—it rolls off.

I am not in the business of wondering what Mr. Linford Pierson did or about the fact that he is out of the jurisdiction. He must be a ghost haunting them how he can be in Hong Kong and overtime they get up to speak they have to wonder if he is still there. Well, I have a feeling that soon, one of these days, when we open that door to come into this Chamber, they are going to see his face looking down on them from the Gallery. I wonder what they are going to do then.

The Motion simply asks the Government to do what they promised—to set up a fund so that in the future we are able to address this problem effectively and from a scientific and modern management perspective as to how we can deal with roads. It is simple, Madam Speaker. If we collect $10 million per annum off the revenue from motor gasoline, diesel oil, kerosene and other fuel oils, then we know that in one financial year we have $10 million which we can spend on road works, maintenance and development. I even suggested in the opening arguments that they could lay down further criterion as to what types of roads these funds could be used to develop and maintain.

We have put forward our case. I certainly do not think it is the business of the Opposition to give the Government solutions. Certainly, the Government brings business here and they do not ask the Opposition for any input prior to bringing the business to the parliament. Sometimes they bring business on the most minimal of notice. They have been elected to provide the solutions.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I, as Opposition, have the role of ensuring that the Government keeps on tabs and to remind them of their obligations and responsibilities and pledges, and to accuse them (as in this case) of political dishonesty and political expediency. With that I rest my case, but not before I issue the warning that these things are like chickens, they are going to come home to roost.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion No. 2/95. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it. The Motion, therefore, has not been passed.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May we have a division, please, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: You certainly may. Madam Clerk.

Clerk:

DIVISION NO. 2/95

SECOND READING

THE JUDICATURE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Judicature (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of a Bill entitled a Bill for a Law to amend the Judicature Law (Revised).

The Judicature Law was enacted in 1975 when it was intended to make new provisions for the Grand Court jurisdiction and because of the fact that the Cayman Islands was no longer a dependency of Jamaica.

However, the 1975 Law in fact retained many provisions from the original Judicature Law passed in 1894. It is, therefore, hardly surprising that a number of those provisions are now out of date and in some cases wholly redundant.

Along with this Judicature Law runs the Grand Court Rules. In fact, the Grand Court Rules are predicated on the Judicature Law. The Grand Court Rules have been undergoing a review by the Grand Court Rules Committee for some considerable time. When I say some considerable time, I mean a number of years, not a number of months. The Grand Court Rules Committee is a committee comprising the Honourable Chief Justice, myself as Attorney General, and two legal practitioners from private practice in the Islands.

The Rules Committee has had considerable assistance from a sub-committee comprising one of the Grand Court Judges, a Crown Counsel from my Chambers, a number of other legal practitioners from private practices, and a senior counsel from the Cayman Islands Bar, all of whom have put in an enormous amount of time and effort in preparing a new set of Grand Court Rules which is ready for signature by the Grand Court Rules Committee immediately following the passing of this amending Bill.

To give Members some idea of the magnitude of this task, I should perhaps tell you that the new Grand Court Rules run to over 400 pages of typed script, together with a further 200 pages of court forms. They are a mammoth document and it has been an enormous task and we certainly owe a debt of gratitude to not just the Rules Committee, but the sub-committee which have put in so much hard work.

The consequence of the major piece of amending legislation and rules is that it is going to make quite a difference to the running of the Courts in the Cayman Islands and, indeed, the legal profession. It was felt that a reasonable period of time should be given so that Members of the legal profession, and indeed the Courts Office, would be able to familiarise themselves with the new rules and Judicature Law amendments.

For this reason, the Judicature Law itself was originally published as a white paper and distributed or made available under the auspices of the Government Information Services, on 12 January 1995. It is intended that within a number of weeks of the Grand Court Rules being signed off, so to speak, that they too will be published by way of Extraordinary Gazette and that a minimum of one month's notice will be given to members of the public of their coming into force.

The date Members will have seen in the Bill for the Law to come into force is 1 May 1995. From the time scale that I have just outlined to Members, it is clear that if that date were to be adhered to, the notice that I just said was highly desirable could not be given. So, it will be my intention that when this Bill comes to the Committee stage, I shall propose that the date that it comes into force be revised to 1 June. I think that is a sensible move. The original date was perhaps somewhat optimistic and based on an estimate of when the Bill might be reached during this meeting of the House. It proved to be somewhat optimistic and I am certain that the answer is to move the date back to 1 June. That is the reason for it.

A Member of my Chambers has already commenced giving some lectures to members of the Courts staff to try to familiarise them with the new Court Rules.

Let me hasten to say that although this is a very large document, it is not all entirely new rules that have been drafted specifically for the Cayman Islands. It is based, to a very large extent, on the Rules of the Supreme Court in England which most legal practitioners know of as the White Book. It is fair to say that any lawyer who is (and certainly should be) familiar with the White Book, will not find it too difficult to locate what they want in the new Grand Court Rules. But they have been custom made, so to speak, for the Cayman Islands.

There are many provisions of the Judicature Law that are being repealed by this amendment. I propose to go through some of those repealed sections before I deal with the new provisions in the amending law. I am not, I am sure you will be delighted to know, going to go through each section, but some of them do merit some explanation. I am afraid that this means some technical talk from me. I know that it is not the most interesting of subjects for Members, and Lawyers' Law tends to fall into that category. But I think it is important that Members should have an explanation of some of these areas that are being repealed before we deal with the new provisions in the amending Bill.

So, I will go through them and if Members have a copy of the existing Judicature Law, they will find it helpful to have that open. If not, I will do my best to take them through it without the benefit of the existing law in front of them.

Section 8 of the Law deals with interpleader summonses. They are a means by which a party can become involved in a civil action before the courts. This particular section and these provisions (along with many others I shall go through in the existing Law) are going to be dealt with in detail in the Grand Court Rules, not in the amending Bill. Nevertheless, they are being repealed by the amending Bill and they will be caught up in the new rules. There will still be provision for interpleader in the Grand Court Rules, but in a more modern format.

The same cannot be said of sections 10 and 11 of the Law, which deal with an antiquated topic called "Replevin," that has not been used for many years but is a relic from the old law. That is being repealed and it will not be replaced, as such. For those of you who do not know what this is (and I am sure that amounts to most of the Members of this House), replevin is a way of dealing with goods that are wrongly seized by a bailiff of the court, and that is a method of addressing that wrong. That can easily be dealt with by a new order in the Grand Court Rules, and will do so.

The other sections (I will skip over some of them), section 26, Preservation of property, that will be dealt with in the Grand Court Rules as will sums of money due to minors and patients (mental patients), which means those who cannot look after their own affairs, and the court administers for them.

Sections 34—56 deal with execution. Execution as far as civil process is concerned means enforcement of a judgment—how you actually get the money from your opponent or the other party to the action once you have won your case.

Section 57, Witness Summonses, they are the civil equivalent of a subpoena, which is perhaps more widely known. They will also be dealt with in a more modern format in the Grand Court Rules. The same with proceedings at trial, which are the following sections.

I think that is really all I need to say about the sections of the existing Law which are going to be repealed, but I will come back to the Schedules later.

The next topic I want to talk about is Court Funds, which is dealt with in the green Bill that Members have in front of them, in schedule 1. Court Funds deals with litigant's money, which for one reason or another is paid into the Courts Office and is administered by the Court for a certain length of time. At the moment, there are no provisions for the administration and investment of this money. So it is not surprising that the tactic of paying funds into court in a civil action is very rarely used in this jurisdiction. However, it is a very valuable means of sometimes bringing litigation to an end and concentrating both parties' minds on the amount of money involved. It is something that should be capable of being used in this jurisdiction and so this schedule has been drafted to deal with exactly that. It will be complemented by the Grand Court Rules. This merely provides for a framework that those rules will operate in.

It is useful to go through some of this to explain how it is going to work.

It can be seen from the schedule that reference is made to the Accountant General as being the controller of these funds and having responsibility for their accounting and investment. The Accountant General is described as the Accountant General of the Grand Court. In practice (and the rules will deal with this) the government Accountant General will be appointed as the Accountant General of the Grand Court as well. He will fulfill that function and the Treasury will deal with the monies paid into court. So, as soon as any money arrives at the Court Offices it will be dealt with by the Treasury and not by the Court Office. The Accountant General will have the responsibility for it. However, it is more desirable to have an Accountant General of the Grand Court designated as such rather than merely saying that it shall be the government's Accountant General because in the future the Honourable Financial Secretary might feel that another officer would be better equipped, or it would be more effective to have another officer perform this task, and then it can be dealt with. We do not need an amendment for that. For all intents and purposes where it says in this amending Bill "Accountant General", it actually means the government Accountant General in the accepted way.

So, he will have the responsibility for looking after funds. Sometimes those funds can be substantial. They can also be deposited for a considerable period of time. I am thinking particularly when we are dealing with trusts litigation and when we are dealing with litigants under disability, that is, children and patients as defined earlier, who cannot look after their own affairs. That can sometimes mean that money is in court being looked after on behalf of those people for quite a period of time. As I say, it can be quite substantial amounts of money as well, so it is only right that it is dealt with properly in the way that the Treasury is capable of doing.

I should also say that the Court funds will be entirely segregated from government funds. They will not be mixed with government funds at all and they will be held in completely separate accounts. I think the Accountant General has suggested that there will be a separate account for each fund, although it would be perfectly possible for it to be in just one account and then the accounts themselves could be divided up. But I believe that is the way it is going to be dealt with in actually separate bank accounts. It will have nothing to do with Government's revenue, nothing to do with Government funds at all—entirely separate.

The Grand Court Rules, which will elaborate on this, will then deal with the way that funds that are held in this way are paid out and the way they can be invested. Later in this Bill we will come on to the question of interest, but that really relates to interest on monies claimed in litigation, but of course there will be interest on this money that is deposited as Court Funds.

The next schedule, which is referred to in the green Bill is schedule 2. This deals with attachment of earnings orders, a topic that has been debated on more than one occasion in this House as a means of enforcing money judgments awarded in court.

At the present time there is no procedure available specifically designed to enforce Maintenance Orders which are perhaps the sort of judgment in most need for this type of order. There is nothing specifically designed to enforce maintenance orders, under the Matrimonial Causes Law, the Maintenance Law and the Affiliation Law. So, this provision has been drafted and designed to require employers in certain circumstances to make deductions from an employee's wages to pay these orders.

In looking at schedule 2, there are some restrictions to this. The judgment debt, if it is a sum of money owed, must be in excess of $500 for an attachment of earnings order to be made. In addition, as I already said, the other proviso is if it is a periodical payment to be made under the three Laws that I just mentioned. The order specifies the rate that is to be deducted by the employer and paid to the court (to the Accountant General), also what is called a protected earnings rate. That protected earnings rate is fixed by the court and takes into account the debtor's resources and his/her other obligations and the debtor's ability to pay. So a protected earnings rate is fixed and the deductions are made over and above those protected earnings rate. That could change from time to time if the order is over a long period of time and the debtor's circumstances change so the protected earnings rate can change and the deduction rate could also change. They are both flexible, but they mean that when the court makes an attachment of earnings order it has the power to take into account annual obligations of the debtor to ensure that other people do not suffer as a result of the attachment order.

The order is one that obliges the employer to make these deductions and inevitably that will give the employer some additional work and, to a certain extent, some additional expense because it is another process the employer will have to go through when dealing with an employee's wages. However, paragraph 5 of that schedule (page 12) allows the employer to deduct a sum "towards his clerical and administrative costs." That does not mean that the employer can calculate what he believes his expenses to be and take that out as well, there will be some prescribed rates for that in the Grand Court Rules. In compliance with those rules, he can at least recover something towards his administrative and clerical costs.

It is a very effective means of ensuring that a recalcitrant debtor who refuses to honour his obligations under a court order, particularly a maintenance order, can be forced to do so because that money is taken out of his or her pay packet or cheque before the employee gets their hands on it—it goes to the court office.

There are also some enforcement penalties for this attachment of earnings provision. If it is not complied with, if the employer fails to comply with it, or if the employer gives false information of the earnings, or whether an employee is still employed, then there are financial sanctions that can be imposed on the employer to make sure that it is complied with.

I think it is a provision that will be welcomed by Members of this House and by many persons in the community who are owed substantial amounts of money, particularly on maintenance orders, who had no prospect of having them paid.

I should also hasten to add that the attachment of earnings order applies just as much to those persons employed in government service as those employed in the private sector, so government would fulfill that same function of making the deductions.

The next schedule is schedule 3. This deals with Charging Orders. Charging Orders are a bit like a mortgage on a property—they are a way of putting an encumbrance on an asset (maybe a house or land, but it could be something else) saying that if that property, land or asset is sold, then before the owner gets the proceeds of the sale this has to be paid off first. Of course, there may already be mortgages on the property and if they were already in existence then they take priority. But a Charging Order could be placed on property by the court and it would then rank in priority to any charges or mortgages already on the property.

At the moment there is no such provision and the Grand Court cannot make such orders. The only thing the Grand Court can do at the moment is order an immediate sale of land. That is not always the best means of ensuring payment of a debt. Sometimes, having put a charging order on a property, it may be necessary to go to the next stage, which is to come back to the court and ask the court to enforce that charging order by ordering the sale of the property and the court, in certain circumstances, can do exactly that and the Grand Court Rules will make provision for that. But that is not necessarily the most effective way of dealing with that.

It can operate very effectively without necessarily ordering a sale because it means that the creditor, the successful party in litigation, now has his debt secured. He or she does not have to worry if they will ever get it paid, they know they will get it paid eventually from the property. Sometimes that can be helpful in persuading a debtor that he ought to re-mortgage the property to obtain some money to pay off this charge.

It is a very useful means of enforcing a debt. Very often you will find that a debtor appears and says that he has no liquid funds, no money, overdrawn at the bank, nothing with which to pay his creditor—he might well own property, but he does not want to deal with that. This is a way of ensuring that the debt is secured on that property for the benefit of the creditor. As I said, it can be any sort of property, but the most obvious is land and houses. This charge is then registered in the Land Register and so any person would have notice that the charge was in effect and in force.

Section 33D in the schedule deals with Committal Proceedings, that is when a debtor can be sent to prison for not paying a debt. The existing Committal Proceedings are repealed by this amending Bill and now a debtor can be sent to prison by the court for up to six weeks if the court is satisfied that he is in default, that he has the means to pay (perhaps by installments) and if he is willfully refusing or neglecting to satisfy the debt. In other words, he has the means to pay and he is refusing to do so. That debtor can redeem himself from prison by paying off the debt. So that provision is retained in the amending Bill, but in a slightly different form.

Section 33E goes on to say that it is an all embracing section that says that in addition to these powers contained in the amendment Bill and in the Law itself, that the Grand Court shall possess the same jurisdiction in enforcing judgments as the Civil Courts in England. That is the provision that wraps up anything that is not specifically mentioned here. Of course, all the main enforcement provisions are down here.

Then we come on to Interest on debts themselves. This is not interest on the funds paid into court (which I talked about already, that the Accountant General has control of), this is interest on debts for which proceedings have been brought in the court. So, if you are owed a sum of money and you issue a writ to recover that sum you are entitled to be paid interest on that overdue sum as well as the sum of money itself. That rate of interest will be fixed by the Grand Court Rules. The interest rates will no doubt be altered from time to time as interest rates alter in the commercial world, but they will be in line with the commercial rate applicable and, of course, because Cayman is very much an international jurisdiction, those rates will have to reflect the different interest rates that are attached to differing currencies throughout the world. So there will be different rates for different currencies, and they will be altered as, and when, necessary.

The Bill provides in section 1, subsection (2), that part of the law shall come into force on a date appointed by Order made in Council. I have tabled notice of an amendment which I intend to bring at the Committee stage of this Bill, that will alter the wording of that subsection. Instead of the Order in Council allowing the whole of paragraph 2 of the Schedule to come into effect at the same time, it will enable different parts to come into effect at different times. The reason for that is that the schedules in the original Judicature Law (Schedules A, B, and C) deal with different matters and it would not necessarily be appropriate to bring them into force at the same time.

They deal with Court Fees, and a new set of Court Fees has been drafted and passed by Executive Council and will be coming into effect with this Bill and the Grand Court Rules on the 1st June, 1995. But the schedules also deal with costs (by costs I mean the party's cost the litigant's cost). The way that costs are dealt with at the moment is highly unsatisfactory and there will be new rules formulated for the way the successful party can recover their costs from the unsuccessful party. This is a factor that very much has to be taken into account by every party who embarks on civil litigation or, indeed, defends civil litigation. The costs can sometimes be extremely high and extremely large amounts of money. So, the new costs rules will make provision for that.

The reason that they have not been drafted and not brought into effect on the 1st of June, is because the Grand Court Rules Committee felt that such a change needed consultation with members of the legal profession in the Cayman Islands and assistance from them in order to come up with an effective costs schedule. So, that will be the next project for the Grand Court Rules Committee to take. The rules involving costs will then be brought in as and when they are ready and when they have the approval of the local legal profession.

I think that Members will be pleased to hear that I have now dealt with all the matters in the green Bill that I intended to deal with. If there are any queries on matters that Members raise during the debate on this Bill, I will be pleased to try to deal with them to the best of my ability when I wind up the debate.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 4.03 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.22 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

I shall put the question that a Bill entitled the Judicature (Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a Second Reading. The question is open for debate.

The Speaker: If there is no debate, I assume the Honourable... The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, this Bill for a Law to Amend the Judicature Law (Revised), as explained by the Honourable Second Official Member, is a Bill that I believe is very timely. I believe that there are many parts where amendments are to take place that will prove to be the right decisions.

In his opening remarks the Honourable Second Official Member mentioned the area of the Bill which applies to payments being made, and the new methods which will be utilised to ensure that payments are made on judgments made in court. I think the new methods that will be employed once the Bill is passed will certainly make a lot of difference in the lives of many people. I think it is important that we have the machinery in place to ensure that, as he rightly said especially in the case of maintenance, that those who are in a position to be raising their children should be made to pay for such.

There are a few other areas which bear merit to talk about, but since the Honourable Second Official Member has so eloquently explained the various sections of the Bill, what I will simply do for a few minutes is ask a few questions about some pertinent areas that I do not quite understand, so that he will have the opportunity to explain and bring me a little bit closer to his legal brotherhood, so that I may be able to discuss matters about this Bill with a little bit more knowledge.

The first question that I have is under the proposed section 33D, where it says: "Subject to any rules, the Grand Court may commit a person to prison for a term not exceeding 6 weeks if it is satisfied—(a) that he is in default of payment of any sum due under a judgment debt; (b) that he has the means to pay the judgment debt, whether in full or by installments; and (c) that he is wilfully refusing or neglecting to satisfy the judgment debt in the manner in respect of which the court is satisfied he has the means." The question I have with this section is what kind of means test will be applied? What section or office of the court would be making this means test?

I suspect that if matters such as this are taken lightly many people who do have the means to make these payments will find a myriad of excuses and if the situations are not investigated thoroughly and properly, people will be made out to be paupers when they are really not. It may suite them at the time they are being questioned to appear not to be able to make these payments. I am certain that there is a thought which will be followed along this vein, but I am not able to grasp it from the amendments—maybe that is not supposed to be in the Bill, but I would like to understand exactly how this process is going to take place to come to the point where whoever is dealing with this is satisfied that the person is, or is not, in a position to make these payments.

The other section I have a question about is section 3 subsections (3) and (4) (page 6 of the Bill). It deals with interest and it says: "the defendant shall be liable to pay the plaintiff simple interest at such rate as the court thinks fit, not exceeding the rate prescribed by rules of court [which I am assuming will be the Grand Court Rules] on all or any part of the debt for all or any part of the period between the date when the cause of action arose and the date of payment. (3) Interest in respect of a debt shall not be awarded under this section for a period during which, for whatever reason, interest on the debt already runs." I can follow it so far, but then it says: "(4) Interest under this section may be calculated at different rates in respect of different periods."

In his initial delivery, the Honourable Second Official Member mentioned that (or my understanding was) the rates will vary due to different currencies which I quite understand. But it also alludes to different periods. Notwithstanding the currencies, I am wondering what kinds of periods we are talking about where the rates will vary. That I am not quite sure about.

Under Schedule 1, Court Funds, section 1 (6), "The Rules Committee of the Grand Court may make rules as to the payment of interest on funds in court and may make rules as to the administration and management of funds in court including the deposit, payment, delivery and transfer in, into and out of court of funds in court and regulating the evidence of such deposit, payment, delivery or transfer."

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: Honourable Member, excuse me, it is 4.30 now, will you need just a short time to finish your presentation?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Madam Speaker, just a short time.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As I was discussing regarding the administration and management of funds, it also has right after this a subsection dealing with the investment of funds in the court. I simply tie the two together because it says: "The Accountant-General, with the approval of the Governor in Council, shall designate a mutual fund ("designated mutual fund") for the purpose of investing funds in court. (2) A designated mutual fund shall be one or more of the mutual funds operated by a bank or banks designated under paragraph 1 of this Schedule." It goes on to talk about these mutual funds. I am certain that whoever is appointed to deal with these funds in court to administer these funds by way of investments into other funds to get as much return as possible on the investment, that person will certainly have to have certain skills and qualifications in order for the government to be fairly safe in the management of these funds. I assume that person will be paid by government.

What I am not quite sure of here is whatever interest is earned from these transactions who gets these payments. And if these payments are passed on to the owners of the funds and government has to pay someone for dealing with this matter, where is the parity in the situation? If government has to pay someone to do it, I want to make sure that the cost of doing this business is being taken care of so that it is not money out of Government's pocket.

That is what I would like to understand about that.

The truth is, Madam Speaker, while this is a ticklish topic here, like so many other places in the world where we have much business going on, people tend to take lightly their obligations of debt. There are some people who believe that because others appear to be fairly affluent that it is not important to be paying debts to other people because they can, supposedly, afford not to be paid. Especially in the world of commerce there are times when people who are able to pay their debts try to find every excuse in the world to get away from meeting their obligations.

I commend this Bill, generally speaking, because in many areas this will set the machinery in place where restitution can be made properly and justly for people who are trying to find ways and means of not meeting their obligations.

Apart from those two questions, I feel it is timely and I commend the Bill.

The Speaker: I will now ask for the Motion for the adjournment. The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House adjourn until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.35 P.M. THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 5 APRIL 1995.

WEDNESDAY
5 APRIL, 1995
10.08 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Fourth Elected Member for George Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Order. Proceedings are resumed.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SPEAKER

APOLOGY

The Speaker: I have an apology from the Honourable First Official Member who is the Acting Governor for a few days. Also an apology that the Deputy Chief Secretary is off the Island.

We continue the debate on the second reading of The Judicature (Amendment) Bill, 1995. The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

BILLS
SECOND READINGS

THE JUDICATURE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This Bill is, to a very large extent, a legal, technical Bill. It seeks to reform certain of the procedures in court that will be for the benefit of the public.

The Honourable Attorney General has very ably gone through the details of the different areas of the Bill and I do not propose to do so, but merely to say that I support the Bill. I believe that these reforms along with the other Court Rules that they follow are very much needed.

I would like to point out here that this Bill before the House is different from what is referred to as the Parliamentary White Paper. The Labour Draft Bill, which is only a draft bill, is different from this in that it has not been accepted by the Government. When the Government accepts a Bill, it becomes a green paper and a printed Bill. I think that distinction is important because we now have three pieces of legislation out there: one of them is a draft of the Immigration Directives; the other one is a draft that will be brought fairly shortly relating to confiscation of criminal proceeds. But these are draft Bills. They have not been approved by the Government or the Legislative Assembly, and they are merely out for public input. I cannot stress that too much—the Labour Bill is out for public input and it is what is referred to as a "White Paper" which is only a draft Bill.

This other Bill before the House is a green paper, The Judicature (Amendment) Bill, and I fully support this Madam Speaker, I congratulate the Second Official Member for bringing this because the rules that will be made under this for the court have been in draft for possibly 10 or 12 years—from the time when I was a member of the Rules Committee and actively practising in court, and that has been many years ago.

I fully support this green bill and would ask Members to do so.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I rise to support a Bill for a Law to Amend the Judicature Law.

I think that this will eliminate a lot of paper work for the Grand Court on civil cases in that sometimes judgment is given and then one has to go back to get orders enforced, especially maintenance orders, so that children will not suffer. This is a very good means for carrying out the maintenance orders and making sure that payment is received and that the children will benefit from these maintenance orders.

The Honourable Attorney General mentioned that this was put out to the public from 12 January. It appeared on the Order Paper and it had the First Reading on 3 April. I calculated that to be 81 days and the only input that I received from the public was when I did a random poll by telephoning some of the local lawyers in town to get their feedback. I was a bit disappointed that not one individual from the public took the time to offer any input.

We constantly hear that we are not giving enough time for bills. Then it is 81 days, as on this one, and we do not get a response. Maybe that is positive, maybe they are very pleased with it and happy to see it. But sometimes it is good to get a bit of encouragement and to know that when we vote we are voting with the public behind us.

It has some good points in that it has checks and balances so that the court will not be bombarded with civil cases for monetary values of less than $500.

One could argue with an individual that $500 might seem like a lot of money. However, it would prevent the courts from being bombarded with civil cases if it were less than $500. There is also protection for employees that earnings will be deducted once a court order is given in that the employer gets the order from the court and they will deduct according to what the judge orders to be paid in the maintenance orders, or other civil case, but it will have a judgment order to make sure that it is not abused.

I am happy to see that this will be coming into effect shortly and I give this Bill my full support. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, just a few comments on the Bill which is before the House, the Judicature (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

I support the revision of this Law. The Honourable Attorney General, in introducing the Bill mentioned that the existing Law contains many provisions that had come from the 1875 Jamaican Law. As so many things have happened here in the last 120 years, it certainly must be time to bring this law up to date.

Only a few days ago in the newspaper there was an article about the severe logjam of cases in the courts. Hopefully the changes in this Law, and the changes to the Grand Court Rules will go a long way in improving the procedure of court cases and will hopefully move them along much faster than has hitherto been the case.

There are a couple of novel provisions in the Bill that will not be accepted by those people who do not like to pay their bills. For example, the court will be able to attach the earnings where money is owed by a judgment debtor. It is perhaps a coincidence that the United States is dealing at the present time with a similar Bill because they have the same problem in collecting monies against judgment debtors. This will not affect the people who have been paying their bills or paying the fees imposed by a court.

There is a new section 33D to deal with the debtors who deliberately refuse to pay the judgment when they have the means to do so. I think this is a good provision and it will stop people from ignoring the provisions of the court.

As the former speaker mentioned, this is purely a technical bill and there is not much hope for debate on it. But I would like the House to know that I give the Bill my support.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, I would ask the Honourable Second Official Member if he would exercise his right of reply.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to thank the four Members who spoke in the debate on the second reading of this Bill. I will try to answer the small number of queries and comments that have been made on the provisions of the Bill.

There was a query raised by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town concerning section 33D of the Bill, which is the provision which relates to committal of a debtor to prison in certain circumstances. He asked where it refers to the means of a debtor, what sort of test would be applied to see whether or not a debtor had those means and who would make that decision.

Before a debtor can be committed to prison it has to be decided by the Judge. The Judge is the only person who can make that order and he will be the person who makes the decision whether or not the debtor does in fact have the means to pay the debt. That does not necessarily have to be the means to pay it in full, or all on one occasion, but it could be by regular instalments.

He will have to be satisfied that the debtor does have the means and the way that he can be satisfied, one way or the other, is by evidence presented before him. That is likely to be documentary evidence on oath by way of affidavit which will be put before him before the decision is taken. He will look at the responsibilities and obligations of the debtor and the income of the debtor and he will assess whether in his opinion he has the means to pay or not, and whether if in that case it satisfies one of the tests in this section. That evidence will be under oath.

The same Member asked about interest on debts, which is on page 6 of the Bill, section 62(3). He wondered what the different rates were that are referred to in those subsections, that is, subsection (3) and (4). Well, the rates of interest that can be charged on a debt, the rates set by the court, can be altered from time to time as commercial rates move up and down. I am not suggesting for one moment that the court rate is going to move with the same degree of fluctuation as market rates do, but if market rates have moved upwards over a period of time, then it is only right that the court rates should move up as well to reflect that.

The object of these interest rates is to see that the creditor (the person who is owed money) is correctly compensated for not receiving it. The idea is not to penalise the debtor by giving an excessive rate of interest, but so that the creditor is not out-of-pocket by not having the money to invest himself. So, as the interest rate varies, so the interest calculated on the debt will vary. If the debt is outstanding over a long period of time, there might be differing rates, so that is why differing rates would be used to calculate different periods of interest.

The final question that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town raised (according to my notes) was in respect of court funds, those funds which are being administered by the Accountant General and by the Treasury. It was in respect of the Mutual Fund which is contained in paragraph 3 of Schedule 1 of page 8 of the Bill. I think the specific question was who is going to pay for the expenses of administering this fund that is designated by the Accountant General.

The answer can be found in subparagraph (4) of that same paragraph 3 which says that any fees in respect of the Mutual Fund shall be charged out of those funds. In other words, the net income that is received out of the Mutual Fund will reflect the normal charges and fees that are levied so that the creditor will receive the same income from the Mutual Fund that he would have had he been a normal investor in the fund. So it is not an expense that is going to fall on government, it is an expense that is going to fall on the fund. It is the same principle, as I said before, of compensating the creditor.

We have also heard mentioned (from the Third Elected Member of George Town) about the minimum limit that is referred to in this Bill. For the purpose of clarification, I want to point out that this minimum limit of $500 only applies to attachment of earnings orders. In other words, below that we cannot apply for an attachment of earnings to enforce the judgment. It does not mean that you cannot pursue an action in the court for less than $500. If you feel it is worthwhile spending court fees and employing an attorney to recover $100, you can do so; what you cannot do is enforce it by an attachment of earnings order.

Finally, I would like to thank the four Members who spoke in support of the Bill and I hope that other Members, by not speaking, are giving their tacit support to the Bill, and I commend the Bill to the House.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that The Judicature (Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a Second Reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Second Reading.

AGREED: THE JUDICATURE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: The next Bill should have been the Water Authority (Amendment) Bill, but the Honourable Minister in charge of the Bill is not present.

We will proceed to the Misuse of Drugs (Amendment) Bill, 1995. The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, it has been decided that the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation will be presenting this Bill.

The Speaker: Thank you for telling me that. I had understood that Mr. Bush had asked if we could go on to the other Bill. I was not aware that someone else had been asked to take his place.

We will go back, then, to the Water Authority (Amendment) Bill, 1995. The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation. [Pause]

I think we will get back on the right course.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture will move the second reading of the Water Authority (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I am sorry I am late this morning. I am wondering if you would move to the next Bill because there are some matters connected to this one that I do not have on hand, if the Chair would indulge.

The Speaker: Under the circumstances, the third Bill, the Misuse of Drugs (Amendment) Bill, 1995, the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

THE MISUSE OF DRUGS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move the second reading of a Bill for a Law to Amend the Misuse of Drugs Law, 1995 (Revised).

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Minister speak thereto?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This is a brief amendment to the Law. It has come about by the emphasis now being placed on our efforts to address the serious problem of drug abuse. It is felt by most of the Members on the present Drug Advisory Council that to have a few more people on there would be beneficial.

At present, there are ten members and it is felt that because of the great involvement by community organisations and the need for other people like members from Customs and Immigration Departments would be beneficial. We do have the Principal Designate of the High School serving on the Council. It is really to have a number people on the Council.

At present, there is one representative from each district on this Council. Also, under the Law, section 3A, it is suggested that at least two persons appear to the Governor to have wide and recent experience in the respective health professions of medicine and pharmacy also two persons appearing to him to have wide and recent experience of social problems connected with the misuse of drugs and other substances.

Some of these people are covered, the Senior Magistrate, the medical side, the pharmacists, private doctor, a minister is on there, and also another person from the Counselling Centre.

So, this is just a very small amendment and I beg that the House give support to this to show that the intent of staying on top of this drug situation will make things better for the Cayman Islands as a whole.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Misuse of Drugs (Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a Second Reading. The Motion is open for debate.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Just a few brief comments as I rise to give my full support to this Bill.

As the Honourable Minister just pointed out, in the national attempt to make a positive impact on the problems that we face with drugs there are many individuals and organisations who now are very actively pursuing where they could best fit into making positive contributions in this area. Also, when a Council of this nature meets it is very good if there is access to information readily available rather than having to seek information outside and to come back and meet. If the right people are chosen, even though the number may seem to be a bit cumbersome, I think that once the right amount of people are chosen from the right areas we will have access to all the information we need when we are formulating plans and having discussions regarding a national drug situation.

It is obvious to me, being involved in a service club, that it is best whenever there are meetings to be able to tap into some useful information that is readily available from the persons directly involved in certain areas. Therefore, I give this Bill my fullest support.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, would the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation wish to reply thereto?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Just to say thanks to the Honourable Fourth Elected Member for George Town. I feel sure that the rest of my colleagues in this House will support the Bill, and I thank them for that support.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Misuse of Drugs (Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a second reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a second reading.

AGREED: THE MISUSE OF DRUGS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Is the Honourable Minister ready for the Bill? The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

THE WATER AUTHORITY (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, this Bill amends the Water Authority Law, 1982, which established the Water Authority. The amendment confers additional powers to the Water Authority to enable it to continue to function effectively for the benefit of the Islands.

Clause 2 amends the Law to clarify the Water Authority's powers to charge its water and sewerage customers. An owner of property is liable for payment of water supply and sewerage charges if no agreement has been made with the Authority as to the liability of the owner's tenants to pay the charges.

A new amendment, which has been tabled, to clause 3 which enables the Authority to implement and provide assistance to water and sewerage projects within the government and for non-profit organisations, but not to go out and generally do business. It was never the intention of the Authority to convey that and I think the amendment clearly sets out the parameters under which the Authority must work.

The new section 7C allows the Water Authority to continue its activities in sponsoring community projects or organisations as it had always been used to doing. I noticed it is one that has caused some stir, but the matter was raised and we went to the Public Accounts Committee and it was recommended that we amend the Law to clarify whenever the Authority sponsored any community organisation.

Clause 4 amends section 60 of the Water Authority Law, 1982. This provides a clearer authority for regulations to include provisions for the Water Authority to collect charges from unoccupied premises connected to the public water supply and sewerage system.

I commend the Bill to this honourable House.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Water Authority (Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a Second Reading. The Motion is open for debate.[pause]

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I had hoped, although I did not get a chance to discuss this with the Honourable Minister, in his presentation of the Bill that more light could have been shed on the new section 7C.

There is a bit of confusion in my mind, and I am not 100% sure of what is the Government's policy in general, regarding Authorities such as the Water Authority, involving itself in contributions to sporting organisations. I do know that it has been done in the past, but the question that comes to my mind with this Bill extends to the other Authorities. I do not know whether the Civil Aviation Authority or the Port Authority deals in the same manner.

It is not so much whether it should or should not be done, it is simply a point of clarification. I think the best route in matters such as this is to have a policy that will be dealt with in such a way that it applies to all of these Authorities.

So, in his reply regarding this Bill, I would like, if at all possible, the Honourable House could hear a bit more about the policy which has been applied so far and which will be applied down the line after passage of this Bill, with regards to contributions to sporting organisations.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In rising to offer my contribution on this Bill, I can see the nobleness of the intended effort and, certainly, it strikes me that what is supposed is to be commended. However, I, too, have some reservations and a few concerns which I will make.

The first is a general observation that comes from my own experience. That is that it is customary in organisations which make available funds such as this which they donate to charitable and sporting organisations is that in any given financial year, a ceiling is placed on the funds. A specified amount is given so that when that amount is expended, whether it be at the beginning of the financial year, or extended until the 11th month of the financial year, no more funds are available until they are voted again at the next financial year.

I would be happy to see some sort of arrangement like that, where a ceiling is placed on the amount given in any financial year. I would ask the Honourable Minister to state his disposition towards such an arrangement in his winding up.

I would also like to know if the dispensation of these funds will be left to the sole discretion of the Chairman of the Authority who is the Minister under whose Ministry the Water Authority falls and who is also the Minister for Sports. Or, if it will be a matter where the Minister in his capacity as Chairman takes the request to the Board and the directors vote the funds and the amount.

I would assume that there would have to be some kind of formal application and that the organisation or body would have to be an acknowledged, if not registered, a publicly acknowledged and accepted charitable organisation.

But, I see a greying of the area, so to speak, in that the Minister, who is the Chairman, if he is the sole person responsible, if it lies solely in his discretion, he is also the Minister with responsibility for Sports. So there is a greying in the area in the sense that he may be partial to sporting organisations where there is an application from a sporting organisation and a charitable organisation for limited funds. So, I would say for complete efficacy and impartiality in those cases, it might be better for decisions to be routed through the board and brought by the Minister as Chairman, rather than for him having to make the decision himself.

Also, I am suddenly struck by the fact that he is also the Minister for Community Affairs to whom most charitable organisations would make their application. So the Minister might insulate himself against any aspersions of partiality by having the Board deal with these applications.

Another reason why I would suggest that a ceiling be placed on the amount of money which is to be disbursed in a financial year is the fact that it allows the public to come to a realisation to know that this is not an unlimited kitty. The funds will be disbursed on the basis of the worthiness and the need and those organisations that ostensibly will have the most far-reaching community effect; in the cases of individuals, those individuals who fall into the most needs categories.

It must be this way than for no other reason that the Water Authority has its own commitments and liabilities in that it has debts to service to the Caribbean Development Bank and to CIBC and it is also expected to make contributions to the Government. So from its inception the message must be given that this is certainly not an unlimited fund and it will be disbursed on the basis of need-worthiness and the far-reaching effects it will have in the society.

I think that if it is done this way and if it is set up this way, and the public is educated as to these parameters, then I think it certainly will be effectively managed and handled.

If we check the financial statements of the Water Authority as contained in the 1993 Water Authority Report we will see that the Water Authority has a total long term debt of some CI$23,506,505. So we have to be careful that we do not convey the impression that the Water Authority is without its own liabilities and is in a position to give away this money.

I want to also state another point from my personal experience. It is customary when these kinds of commitments are given, or sponsorships, as we call them, that the donors require from the recipient certain commitments for maintaining a certain conduct, for example. If, for example, a team is sponsored, then the donor or the sponsor makes a requirement that a team play to a certain standard or discipline. Not necessarily to a certain standard of competition because sometimes wining is not the major objective. But, certainly, the recipient maintains a certain standard of discipline so that where the sponsor is publicly known the sponsor does not fall into ill repute.

It is also customary for the sponsor to require of the recipient an acknowledgement. In the even of team sports sometimes this is carried emblazoned on the jerseys or any kind of advertising material. They might say "Sponsored by such and such a company or individual." This is a form of public relations and advertising which serves to promote and to spread the name, the corporate logo or work of the sponsor.

I would ask the Honourable Minister to give his disposition regarding these things in his winding up.

Another reason why I suggest that we have some kind of limit on this is that sponsorship of team sports in most respects is more expensive than sponsorship of individuals, except when you get into exotic things like golf where you can buy $10,000 and $15,000 clubs. It is regarded and widely held that sponsoring teams would probably be a little more expensive than sponsoring individuals. But, it is recognised also that sponsoring teams has a more far-reaching effect than sponsoring individuals except for the most popular of sports. Some kind of ground rule needs to be laid out.

Having stated that, I see the nobility in this effort and I certainly think it is something needed in this society. From my perspective, the company for which I work is regularly approached by individuals and teams seeking sponsorship. So, I think that in so doing the Water Authority is continuing to be a good corporate citizen and I commend the effort in the continuation of this exercise. And I would only reiterate that the Minister would be wise to set out some parameters and to make these parameters widely known to the public so that there can be no confusion. There should be some criterion set as to the amount, the limits and the application procedures and so forth. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I support this Bill in its amended form. This is a green bill, unlike the draft bills I mentioned earlier, which go out to the public for comment prior to Government's taking a decision on them.

The amendment that has been brought limits the Water Authority's powers to only doing work outside of government when it relates to certain specific areas such as schools, the hospital or departments, or during a state of emergency. This, I understand after meetings by the Honourable Minister with persons concerned, has now put to rest the fact that there is any possibility of having the Water Authority competing in with private organisations that do this sort of work.

Madam Speaker, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town tried to impute, or should I say, ask question as to whether the Minister, as Chairman of the Authority, could make expenditure relating to sporting organisations. That Member...

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order, Honourable Member?

POINT OF ORDER
(Misleading)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker. The Honourable Minister is misleading the House because I did not ask any question as to whether the Honourable Minister, as Chairman of the Water Authority, could make any such disbursements. The Honourable Minister is being misleading as usual, and clouding the waters.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I am afraid I did not hear the First Elected Member for Bodden Town say words to that effect, so perhaps you may wish to correct what you understood, or misunderstood, or whatever, please.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, what I wrote down when he was speaking was that he said that he wondered "whether the making of grants was at the sole discretion of the Minister", or words to that effect. I am merely speaking around a statement then, if you do not want to call it a question.

The Speaker: Yes, but I gather then that you were saying that he actually said that the Minister could do this. This is not what he said, so we need to have that clearly put.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Perhaps the Member, since we do not have a transcript, I do not want...maybe he would just say what he said about...

The Speaker: I thought he did say what he said.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No, he said he did not put a question...but he did speak about whether the Minister could make contributions to sporting organisations. That is what I understood.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable First Elected Member for Bodden Town like to...

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, thank you for the opportunity, Ma'am. Only to say that I did not ask that question and I did not make that imputation.

The Honourable Minister was listening and taking notes while I was speaking. He claims that he is an educated lawyer, he should have accurately recorded what I said.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town, you are entering into a debate. Would you please, if you can remember what you actually said, let the House know what was said? If not, we will have to wait on the transcript.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: First Elected Member, please.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I suggested that it would be better if the Honourable Minister, as Chairman of the Board, bring matters to the board because he is also the Minister for Sports. By bringing them to the Board he would eliminate the possibility of anyone claiming that he may be partial to any sporting organisation.

The Speaker: I am afraid that I am going to rule that the proceedings should be suspended for 15 minutes while we get a transcript of what was actually said by the First Elected Member. Thank you.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.08 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.53 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

RULING BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: First of all I have a transcript of what actually transpired, and the words that were said by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. His words on that particular aspect were: "I should also like to know if the dispensation of these funds will be left to the sole discretion of the Chairman of the Authority who is the Minister under whose Ministry the Water Authority falls and who is also the Minister for Sports, or, if it will be a matter where the Minister, in his capacity as Chairman, brings the request to the Board and the Directors vote the funds and the amount?"

"I would assume that there would have to be some form of formal application and that the organisation or body would have to be an acknowledged one, if not registered, publicly acknowledged and accepted charitable organisation."

The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation said: "Madam Speaker, The First Elected Member for Bodden Town tried to impute, or asked the question, I should say, as to whether the Minister, as Chairman of the Authority, could make expenditure relating to sporting organisation."

The Point of Order raised by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town was that: "The Honourable Minister is misleading the House because I did not ask any question as to whether the Honourable Minister, as Chairman of the Water authority, could make any such disbursements. The Honourable Minister is being misleading..."

Thereafter the Point of Order was raised and I suspended the House in order that there could be a clearer understanding.

I think I need to say quite clearly that this is not a clear Point of Order. The Member raised a point of order which had to be considered and he did say that he would like to know if the dispensation of these funds would be left to the sole discretion... or if the Authority would be the body to which the request would be brought. The Honourable Minister did say he (the First Elected Member for Bodden Town) tried to impute, or ask the question (this is where he corrected himself)...and this was not a clear Point of Order.

The one thing that I think I need to say is that I am finding Members to be rather nit picking over small words or reading more into words than what is actually said. It was a matter of hair-splitting, faultfinding and I think we need to get away from this.

I have ruled that it was not a clear Point of Order and I would ask Members on both sides of the House, in making their statements and in replying thereto, to please deal with the issues and if something needs to be cleared up it should be done as clearly and concisely as possible without bringing in innuendoes, imputations or nit picking.

I have copies of the Transcript which can be passed to the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture (mover of the Bill).

I will now ask the Honourable Minister for Education to continue his debate on the Second Reading.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Bill, in section 7C is very clear. Anyone reading this, whether they are a lawyer or not, but who understands the English language, can see very clearly, when we look at it, what it says.

It says: "(1) The Authority may, subject to the provisions of this section, incur expenditure which in the opinion of the Authority is in the interests of the Islands or any or all of the residents of the Islands."

Section 7C(2) says: "The Authority may incur expenditure—(a) on contributions to the funds of any sporting organisation representing residents of the Islands to facilitate or enable the participation of the organisation or its members in sporting activities, whether the participation is in or outside the Islands . . ."

That is very clear. There is no way that a question can be asked that discretion is put in the Chairman of the Authority. This is the mischievous approach that we see arising from time to time. On a clear reading of the Bill there is no way that one cannot be fully aware that the Authority must incur the expenditure.

It is not a matter of the Minister being able to do that. But that is what happened in the past and that is what I think the First Elected Member for Bodden Town is casting his mind back to his present colleagues, where in the past the Minister had situations where he alone was making decisions: Mr. Linford Pierson as Minister. That was clearly borne out in the report of the Auditor General and subsequent report of the Public Accounts Committee where the Auditor General very clearly said that there was under-billing of $1,880 on one account—and we know that the Public Accounts Committee said that was Mr. Linford Pierson's. They also went on to say that a lot of what was done by the Authority back when Mr. Linford Pierson was the Chairman was ultra vires. In other words, what was happening then was that the Chairman and/or the Minister was acting outside of the law. It is really funny the way you catch a tinge off of the company that you keep.

There can be no way in this Bill that it can be imputed or questioned because the Bill is clear—the Authority and the Authority alone (that is, all of the people who make up the Authority) are the people who must incur this expenditure.

You know, Madam Speaker, there is a difference between being a Chairman of a Statutory Corporation now and being a Chairman of a Statutory Corporation under the last government because budgets are produced and whatever comes out in the sporting budget the Authority will stay within.

But more than that, this Government has made the Statutory Authorities subject to the Auditor General. We have made it subject to the Finance and Stores Regulations so a Chairman cannot go and sign as we saw contract after contract to his friends when the authority was not given.

So the two Opposition Member in keeping company with people who were Chairmen or Ministers, or Members as it was in those days, of the past government, must be questioning them because it is not a part of this Government.

More than that, the statutory corporations were made subject to legal advice from the Attorney General because we know what happened on one statutory corporation with Mr. Miller, where advice was rejected here, there and everywhere, when it came in. The Public Tenders Committee, under the Finance and Stores Regulations did not feature at all in those days.

This amendment to the Water Authority Law is a good one. It is going to allow the Authority, as it should function as an Authority, to do these things and it is not vesting in the Chairman of the Authority (the Minister) what authority vests in the Authority itself. There is no power under this law to delegate the authority.

The very clear maxim of delegatus non potest delegare, which says you cannot delegate that which has been delegated, would apply in any event. There would have to be expressed provisions to do so.

So the First Elected Member for Bodden Town has no fear because the Minister who sits on the Water Authority is totally different from the Minister who sat there before. You will never find his water bills being under billed and you will not find money being given out and hundreds of thousands of dollars of money that is still trying to be tracked down to see where it went.

If you go through the Auditor General's Report on this point we find that there were so many irregularities... we have to remember that they thought that the Auditor General had no right to come in. Perhaps he had no right to come in because we know they avoided the Stores and Finance Regulations. But it is like everything else, what is done in the dark one good day will come out.

This is what the opposition should be standing up and admitting, that what went on under the Water Authority in the past was wrong.

The Auditor General's report in just one sentence that I will read, which dealt with the under-billing of water charges, stated that: "...although the individual amounts involved were not significant, this matter was of considerable concern to the Audit Office since it posed the possibility of other unrecorded revenues—a situation which could lead to qualified audit opinion on the Authority's 1993 financial statements."

We may never know how many other bills were produced under what should have been charged.

We have gone a long way. I do not want to say anything on paragraph 49, other than to read it. Maybe the Opposition will take cognisance of this: "The Audit Office is presently engaged in a comprehensive audit of the Bodden Town Water Supply project which is focusing on material supply contracts with Propacs Industries Exports Limited." Maybe the Opposition can ask and find out who they are. "Contracts for the installation of water distribution systems and an extension of the water distribution system into the new subdivisions."

We know that the Opposition has specifically said they are in this House to oppose and that they are not here to find solutions. That is one of the most damaging statements that I have ever heard an Opposition admit to. They are here to oppose and not to find solutions.

I would submit that it is because they are not capable of finding solutions to problems and that the public should look at criticism such as this where there is some attempt to lash at the Minister for the Water Authority to take it with a grain of salt. It is basically two lone voices crying in the wilderness.

This Bill, in my view, has dealt with an amendment that is needed. I believe that the amendment to the Bill itself, which has been agreed, the persons who opposed it... and it goes to show the flexibility of the National Team Government. We are prepared to meet with anyone who has a problem on any of the legislation that is coming forward and our position is always that we amend it in accordance with the majority of the people.

More recently three Bills have gone out as white papers and these are merely draft laws, not laws that are accepted by the Government. They are out there to give the public plenty of notice. The public asked for notice on these. They are very important Bills: The Labour Law, the Immigration Directives and the one that will be coming out relating to confiscation of criminal proceeds.

So, to avoid any doubt, the draft laws that are out there, the same as with this law when it came out, if there are problems in them, then once the public tells us (and we will be getting feedback on all the other laws that are out there) then we will sit down and amend the law in accordance with the wishes of the people. There need be no fear, we are an open government and if the people express concern on any of these, be it the Immigration Directives or the Labour Law or the other then we will sit with them and correct it in accordance with the wishes of the people. This House is not going to put through any bill that is opposed by a majority of the people in this Islands. That is not our duty.

So, I believe that with the amendments to this Bill, knowing that the Authority itself will be making these decisions, it is a body of perhaps eight or ten people, there need be no fear that what happened in the past with the Minister taking a very high-handed approach (and, in fact circumvent the Constitution through these Statutory Corporations) will ever arise again.

I think we have now cleared that aspect of it. The general application of having the Auditor General and the Finance and Stores Regulations of the Financial Secretary in place, and in any event, what I always do with my Statutory Corporations is, for example, the Civil Aviation Authority, I have representatives of the Legal Department and Finance Department in it so that they are there (normally the Accountant General and one out of the Legal Department). No longer are these the days when things can be done in a very highhanded way.

I support this Bill. I wish the Minister all the best because this Authority is very important to the Cayman Islands. I believe that the necessary checks and balances have been put in place to ensure that what has been done as the Law very clearly states is "in the interest of the Islands or any or all of the residents of the islands." That is the over-riding, general statement in it.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate would the Honourable Minister wind up the Second Reading?
The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In the new section 7A that an owner of the property is liable for payment of water supply unless the owner's tenant has an agreement with the Authority to pay the charges is long overdue.

When I received a copy of the Bill, I contacted one of the members of the Water Authority Board and we discussed the extent of outstanding monies owed to the Water Authority by renters. He could not give me the exact amount, but he said it was in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. I believe with this new section added that a tenant will have the responsibility to take on the agreement in order to pay the water bills that is due to the Authority.

In looking at the schedule for a domestic premises, a person possessing Caymanian status who does not own the premises a deposit shall be paid of $100. A person not possessing Caymanian status, who does not own the premises, a deposit shall be paid of $200. I think this will help the owner of the property and the tenant will think twice before they will leave an outstanding bill because I am sure that the average cost for a household for water is roughly about $200. I am sure that tenants will not jump from property owner to property owner and leave outstanding Water Authority bills.

This is sad. For so long a perception by the public is that "Oh, it is government, and government can afford it." Not only with the Water Authority, but with other services that the Government provides. They believe that government has lots of money. Yet, we the people make up the government and we have to find the funds for government. Therefore, it is very dishonest when they leave outstanding bills with the authority. I am pleased to see that this will help and that owners of the property will not be out as well if there is an agreement between the tenants and the Authority.

In 7C, I at first had mixed feeling about contributing to sporting activities, but as a Member of the Public Accounts Committee, we recommended (and I would like to read section 1 in dealing with the Water Authority, taken from page 5 of the report) that "...all statutory authorities should put in place specific policies regarding the commitment of such authority to any liability or to make any donations to any charitable or social organisation without being budgeted for and approved by the Board for that Authority."

I believe that this is what the Authority is seeking, to put in place a policy in making donations to any charitable or social organisation. But, I hope that a ceiling will be put on the amount that they are prepared to contribute to any organisation or charitable association.

The Honourable Minister for the Water Authority, in explaining some of the questions that I had, mentioned that this was the Authority's was of advertising. I can see that. If you have someone running or kicking a ball or swimming and they advertise the Water Authority, that is the best publicity for anyone, better than putting an ad in the paper or in the media in any form. It will also help in sponsoring our youth in sports. Like I said, this policy is long overdue and I am glad to see this.

It is also good to see that it will go before the Board because as the previous speaker mentioned, there were a lot of discrepancies and a lot of power that were taken on by the director of the Water Authority without the knowledge of the Board. It is amazing from the report of the Auditor General how this individual could keep figures such as $106,632; $5,000; $1,880; $3,316; and then an account of US $12,000 was opened for a conference. There was a difference at the end of $1,483 after this conference. All of this took place during 1991 and this individual kept this from the Board, it was not brought to the Board for ratification until 27 May 1993.

If the Board can work and be aware of these things it will prevent the director of the Authority in taking upon himself this type of activity in sponsoring sports and charities in the manner previously done.

Clause 4, section 60 of the Water Authority Bill can only help as well. I would like to touch on section B of 7B(2) where it says: "The Authority shall have power to do anything including expenditure or borrowing of money which is calculated to facilitate, or is conducive or incidental to, those purposes." It is stressed here again that the Water Authority shall have the power to do anything including expenditure. I hope that nothing will be abused but that the Authority will do it as a Board and not as an individual.

In concluding, I would ask that the Honourable Mover give the House assurance that a strict policy will be put in place so that it will be with the entire Board of the Authority and not an individual and that there would be a certain amount of the budget set aside for contributing to charitable and social organisations.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: May I now call on the Honourable Mover of the Bill?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker, for your indulgence on this Bill. Matters raised here were not a surprise to me because they have been raised in a public meeting and by Members before.

To clarify certain areas that I was not able to do in introducing the Bill, let me say that the Authority has experienced legal problems collecting sewerage charges from unoccupied properties connected to the West Bay Beach Sewerage System, particularly when a property had been rented to someone. Although the Authority has always charged sewerage fees to properties connected to the public sewerage system, regardless of occupancy status, the Legal Department has advised the authority that the current wording of the Law only allows the Authority to charge properties for sewerage collection and treatment when the properties actually discharge waste into sewers.

Clause 2 of the Bill seeks to resolve this anomaly by allowing the Authority to charge sewerage fees to properties which are connected to the system regardless of what time period the waste is discharged. If you are hooked up, you pay, unless you make arrangements if you cannot pay.

The amendments also make the owner of the property liable to pay sewerage fees when no other contract for these services is in force. In this way the Authority can continue to legally charge the owner of the property should a new tenant take up residence in an apartment and not make an application for sewerage service within a specified period.

This has been abused before and I know that we have had complaints from people about this particular matter. But people should not expect to rent out an apartment and not take the time to get a contract for the services that it provides and then allow tenants to run electricity, or, in this case, to use our sewerage system and not pay for it. Because if we do not know, we cannot charge. We do not have the wherewithal to know when apartments are rented or not.

The Authority has experienced many instances where a water supply service was connected or re-connected to the public water supply system without authorisation and individuals have used water from this connection. As I said this is particularly prevalent in rental properties and in some cases several tenants have come and gone from the property before the illegal connection was discovered. The Bill seeks to allow the Authority to charge the owner of the property for water used when no other contract for the service was in force.

In clause 3 the Authority has historically been approached by various organisations to carry out small projects which typically involve resolving problems with existing sewerage treatment facilities or replacing failed plant and equipment. Many of these projects have required quick responses and urgent attention because of the possibility of catastrophic failure of plant and risks to public health.

It is the general perception of the public that the Authority possess expertise in the areas of water supply and sewerage treatment and the Authority does not solicit work of this nature and it generally tends (whenever they have to do it) to disrupt work on the Authority's own projects.

The Authority, however, in many instances agreed to provide technical services, which are not locally available, for the sake of ensuring that the problems affecting the public health are resolved quickly and in a competent manner. One example is the George Town Hospital Sewerage Treatment Plant.

It would especially behove government, I feel, to utilise the Authority's expertise in areas of water supply and sewerage treatment, since government has invested a significant amount of money to develop our local expertise. The Authority does not stand to benefit from work carried out on projects outside its ownership since this work is generally done at cost, as previously stated, limits the resources available for the Authority's own projects.

The Bill seeks to allow the Authority to carry out projects outside of its ownership of which are not comprised of part of a general water or sewerage scheme. The scope of this work is limited to government hospital, government clinic, government or private schools, charitable organisations or statutory bodies. The Bill requires that any such work is approved by Executive Council and that certain criteria must be met to secure this approval. These criteria include proof that the work will not adversely affect the development of competition for these services. In other words, we cannot go out there and compete with anyone in the private sector.

It seems that clause 4 has given rise for some concern, which should not really have not been mentioned in this House, at least the Fourth Elected Member for George Town and the Third Elected Member for George Town both have the Bill and I would not expect any inferences of dishonesty from them on the part of the Board, because one of them is independent and one is part of the National Team and they both well understand what the Bill is saying. I do not expect any mischievousness on their part. They both read very well and have the Bill.

In connection to clause 4 of the Bill on matters raised by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. As you have said, Madam Speaker, people need to be as clear and concise as they can when they are reading specific things into a Bill that is not there. They need to be clear. That is the problem of the Opposition. The Opposition knows when they are wrong and therefore have to cloud issues and make a big thing out of nothing; as you say, Madam Speaker, nit-picking. In the case of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, I expected that to be raised. I did not know how he was going to do it, but the matters he raised in the House today were matters raised at his recent public meeting where those same matters were raised as statements of fact. He was only being cute in asking the question, but left it to be read otherwise.

I agree that they are nit picking. I think as the Minister for Education says, he is getting me confused with previous administrations. What they could have very well done on the public platform was take the Auditor General's Report and read it concerning the issue. It would be an irresponsible government to have found these matters and left them unresolved. It would have been an irresponsible board to have found these matters and left them unresolved.

We have a very responsible Board and it does not take matters lightly and the members go through everything with great care. He, [the First Elected Member for Bodden Town] mentioned the long-term debt. This was a matter raised on the public platform by his colleague Mr. Ezzard Miller, who thinks he knows everything from being a pharmacist to being a registered nurse to a technician—which he is not.

for Bodden Town would raise those same concerns because he should know better. He knows that Mr. Miller cannot tell the truth, so why [have him] sit on the public platform. If you sleep with dogs, you are bound to get fleas. I well know that the political flea can bite harder than any other. I have been around long enough to know that.

From the beginning, the Authority has always had a budget each year for advertising and promotion that the Board approves. In that budget a specific amount is approved for promotion and advertising. This year, for instance, an amount of $15,000 was approved by the Board. The Water Authority Board has always felt that sponsoring sports is a very good means of advertising and promoting the Authority and that lending support to such activities is an act of good corporate citizenship.

In return for these donations the Authority has received recognition on T-shirts, sporting event programmes and banners. Donations were made only after specific approval from the board of directors and after it has been shown that the expenditure would not cause the Authority to exceed the yearly budget.

The Water Authority Board has always been understanding that they have the power under the Water Authority Law to spend money for this type of advertising and such expenditure has been in the past budgeted for under advertising and promotion.

During last year's annual audit of the Water Authority's financial records, it was disclosed that the Authority had contributed money to several local sports organisations over a number of years. That goes back to its inception in the 1980s. The Auditor General indicated in a report which was tabled in a meeting of the Public Accounts Committee in September 1994, that the Authority was not empowered by the Water Authority Law to make this type of expenditure. We felt that we were because we felt that promoting the Authority was part of running the Authority. We acceded to the request of the Public Accounts Committee to put it specifically in the law and this would clear all matters.

The matters raised about myself as the Minister and Chairman—Mr. Miller gets mixed up between the Health Authority which loaned out money for homes and schools. He gets that mixed up with us. The Water Authority is very well run. It is like any other corporate body in government—it has its problems, but they are not problems that keep us from doing our duty. Members can see from the Motion before the House how responsible the board members are.

For the First Elected Member for Bodden Town to get on a public platform with those matters and then come here and raise them as questions is nothing but political dishonesty, total dishonesty and nothing but political opportunism. The Opposition needs to stop and think—as he was just showed up in this House when he made a statement. He said he did not make and it had to be proved by the Hansard that it was made. He knows full well whom requests are made to. He knows full well when requests are given because he made a request to the former director in 1993, and not to the Minister. I had nothing to do with it except when it came to the board. He made a request for a donation for a National Football Club for $3,450. It was not made to me as Chairman, it was made to the past director and it came to the board and the board agreed, as they have always done.

If he knows that, why does he come into this House and raise a question? It was not a question. It was put to try to make me look bad as they said on the public platform on the Court steps. It is time for this political opportunism to stop.

It is not mere nit picking, Madam Speaker, it is pure dishonesty by those who say that they are opposition in this House. It is time that it stopped. Furthermore, when requests are made for water hook-up and when requests are made for water to be carried to his house, it was not done to me as the Chairman, or me as Minister, it was done to the director. It would have cost something like $125,000. The Member needs to stop playing politics with every matter that comes to this House. It seems that even when they are connected they believe that they can get up and say all sorts of things and it is all right because Roy Bodden says so, or Gilbert McLean has said so. It is absolutely and totally dishonest for them to do these things, knowing full well that they have been involved; knowing full well that they have made requests to the director of the Water Authority and that request is forwarded to the board.

The Water Authority is doing well today. You are not going to find this Minister's water bill wiped off as in the case of the previous Minister, Mr. Pierson. You are not going to find that. They can say all they want. They can say that I make noise and they can call me ignorant. One thing McKeever is—and I can say it because it is true—I am honest. When I bring a matter to this House, I abhor those who claim they have college education; those who claim they have so much intellect, I abhor them coming here and imputing things that are not true and things that they have at their hands to read from—they stand up and say something else. I abhor that sort of thing. And whether it is a member of the National Team or it is a member of the Opposition or the so-called independent, it is not right.

Do not think you can bamboozle McKeever Bush because you have a college education. Honesty, as far as I am concerned, is better than any education. In fact, it is an education in itself.

I am really tired of it. But I have two more years (just about 20 months to go) and they can put it to the public. If they do not want me back, fine. One thing I will tell them is that I am going to give them all a run for their money.

This Bill is a matter that just clarifies certain things that have been requested of us and I believe that it would behove all of us to support it. There is an amendment that has been circulated for several days and that will be dealt with at Committee stage.

I want to thank you again for your indulgence. I was late, but I had a constituency matter to deal with and it threw me off this morning. It was very urgent.

Thank you very much.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Water Authority (Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a Second Reading.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a second reading.

AGREED: THE WATER AUTHORITY (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.48 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.33 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The House will now go into Committee to consider the Bills.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE AT 2.33 PM

COMMITTEE ON BILLS

The Chairman: The House is in Committee to consider the Judicature (Amendment) Bill, 1995, the Water Authority (Amendment) Bill, 1995 and the Misuse of Drugs (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The first Bill is the Judicature (Amendment) Bill, 1995. The Clerk will now read the Clauses.

THE JUDICATURE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Clerk: Clause 1. Short Title and Commencement.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 1 do stand part of the Bill. I believe the Honourable Second Official Member has an amendment.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, Madam Chairman. I have an amendment which you will notice has been given and one which I have not given due notice which I referred to in my debate.

The second one which, in fact, comes first in the Bill, is that in subsection (1) of section 1 that the date 1 May 1995 be amended to 1 June 1995.

The second amendment, which I can read is that in subsection (2) that at the end of subsection (2) of Clause 1, immediately after the word "Council," to add the following words, "and different dates may be appointed for different purposes and different provisions."

The Chairman: First of all, in respect of the first amendment in subclause (1) with the date 1 May 1995 be changed to 1 June 1995. I accordingly give leave for this amendment, and Members have had notice of the second amendment to subclause (2) where the words, "and different dates may be appointed for different purposes and different provisions" are added.

The question is that Clause 1 do stand part of the Bill. It is open for debate. If there is no debate. I shall put the question. Those in favour of clause 1 as amended, please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENTS TO CLAUSE 1 PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that clause 1 as amended do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 1 AS AMENDED PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 2. Amendments to the Judicature Law.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 2 do stand part of the Bill. The question is open for debate.

If there is no debate I shall put the question that Clause 2 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 2 PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for a Law to Amend the Judicature Law (Revised).

The Chairman: The question is that the Title do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE TITLE PASSED.

The Chairman: The next Bill is the Water Authority (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

THE WATER AUTHORITY (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Clerk: Clause 1. Short Title.
Clause 2. Water and Sewerage Charges.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 1 and 2 do stand part of the Bill. The Motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 1 AND 2 PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 3. [no marginal note]

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 3 do stand part of the Bill.

There have been amendments circulated to clause 3. Before we proceed, Clause 3 does not have a marginal note, is that... [addressing the Clerk] would you just check on that please?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Chairman, I suspect that the marginal note is meant to be "Projects." It is just slightly in the wrong place.

The Chairman: We should insert there in the marginal note "Projects." That is in order.

The question is that Clause 3 should have a marginal note "Projects." I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: MARGINAL NOTE INSERTED AT CLAUSE 3, "PROJECTS".

The Chairman: Members would have had a copy of the proposed amendments to clause 3. The first amendment is 7B. (1) Projects, the Authority "shall have power to carry out" and deleting the word "may." That is in subclause (1). Immediately after subclause (2) on the following page after (b) new subclauses are added, (3), (4), (5) and (6).

The question is that the amendments to Clause 3 be made. The question is open to debate.

If there is no debate I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENTS TO CLAUSE 3 PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for a Law to Amend the Water Authority Law, 1982.

The Chairman: The question is that the Title do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE TITLE PASSED.

The Chairman: The next Bill is the Misuse of Drugs (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

THE MISUSE OF DRUGS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Clerk: Clause 1. Short Title.
Clause 2. Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 1 and 2 do stand part of the Bill.

If there is no debate I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 1 AND 2 PASSED.

The Chairman: That concludes Committee proceedings on three Bills: The Judicature (Amendment) Bill, 1995, The Water Authority (Amendment) Bill, 1995, and The Misuse of Drugs (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The House will resume.

HOUSE RESUMED AT 2.42 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Reports on Bills.

The Honourable Second Official Member.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 1/95

DEBATE ON PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 31/94—CENSURE MOTION FOR THE MISAPPROPRIATION OF FUNDS

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the following Motion:

"WHEREAS Private Member's Motion 31/94 entitled 'Censure Motion for the Misappropriation of Funds,' in the last meeting of this Honourable House, inter alia, accused Government of misappropriation of funds for road works;

"AND WHEREAS Private Member's Motion 31/94 stated that:

"BE IT RESOLVED that this Legislative Assembly, being made aware of an article in the Caymanian Compass of the 27th of October, 1994, of the action taken by Government of the expending of funds not provided for in the 1994 Budget for the paving of roadways and driveways in the district of West Bay, censures such action and requests that a full investigation be immediately carried out by the Auditor General.";

"AND WHEREAS the House was adjourned before the vote could be taken on Private Member's Motion No. 31/94;

"AND WHEREAS the Mover and the Seconder of Private Member's Motion No. 31/94 have continued publicly to wrongly accuse Government;

"BE IT RESOLVED that debate on Private Member's Motion No. 31/94 be reopened for any member to make their views known on it and that this Honourable House do reject the said Private Member's Motion 31/94."

The Speaker: The question is Government Motion No. 1/95. It is now open for debate. The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, this Motion is one which the government feels should be taken a vote on. Members will recall that in December 1994, the House was adjourned before a vote could be taken on this matter.

At that time the House was sitting for quite a long time (several weeks) and it was in the peak of a very busy time for government and I knew that this matter could be brought back and that everyone who wanted to say something on it would have that opportunity. To get Government's business done at that time, I suspended the House.

Following that, Opposition Members have been on television and public meetings continuously and erroneously accusing government of misappropriation. This Motion is here today for those members who in December thought it appropriate to accuse government to today bring the facts before the House and for Members of this Honourable House, one and all, to have their say on it.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I just want to say a few words in that Private Member's No. 31/94 that was brought to this Honourable House back in December, the government was accused of misappropriation of funds for the paving of roadways and driveways in the district of West Bay.

I think that everyone knows that we are a team, the National Team, and I for one would not sit back and allow any member [to do something] that would [cause them to] misappropriate funds.

During the Finance Committee in November when we were dealing with the Budget, I think the Fourth Elected Member for George Town questioned the allocation of funds—$400,000 for George Town. I have here a list of projects or requests for the George Town District.

Looking over these road works, I see that the majority of these roads are private. Does that mean then that we cannot go and fix them for the benefit of the people? In working with the street naming committee, I was provided with a list of all the street names that exist for the three Islands. Almost 90% of those streets are private. They have not been gazetted. Looking at this list that we have for the district of George Town, most of them are not gazetted roads, in other words, they are private.

For the Opposition to get up and say that we are paving private roads, does that mean then that we cannot pave any roads since most of the roads in the Cayman Islands are private and not gazetted?

To say that there has been misappropriation of funds is very, mischievous. When we have $400,000 and then we determine from there, as representatives of a district what we would like to have done, there can be no misappropriation of funds.

Therefore, I support this Motion, that we reject the previous Private Member's Motion No. 31/94 and that there has been no misappropriation of funds and I believe that in working on all the roads, they are private roads and that government has to take care of them and it is the right thing to do. Therefore, I support this Government Motion No. 1/95, that they reject Private Member's Motion No. 31/94. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Long debates took place on this Motion here in December. However, I would just like to highlight what the Member for George Town has just said. I think that she put forward some very valid points.

What she stated as being done in George Town is exactly what we did in West Bay. It is ridiculous for anyone to say that this Government misappropriated funds because we did not.

As I have said before, if the Members for the respective districts are not aware of the requests made by their constituents, God help us, who else would know?

The only thing that happened in this case was that the funds were voted under road works for West Bay, identified for two projects and on reconsideration by the Members and the various demands that were put upon them by the people of West Bay, they saw fit to distribute the funds on various other projects where it was helping a majority of people. I see nothing wrong with that.

I was accused of not defending this in December and I would just like to make it clear that the reason why I had nothing to say was because I was taken up with another department of my Ministry. We were holding an Agricultural Retreat and I was not here in George Town at the time when the Motion came to an end.

As far as defending the way that the funds were actually spent, I can defend it because as far as I am concerned nothing was done that was not right. I think the Financial Secretary also spoke on this in December and made it abundantly clear that there was nothing done that was not right.

The Motion which was brought here in December should have never come before this House because it was only a move to try to embarrass the Government. I think the sensible people out there know the government much better than that. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I, too, would like to take this opportunity to rise to speak to Government Motion No. 1/95.

It is hard to believe that this Motion was brought here because I honestly believe that in times passed, what has taken place in this situation is nothing more than what had been done before by other governments where the representatives of the people saw the need for roadwork to be done. They put it forward and the work was done to help our people, the Caymanian people.

It does not matter whether there is one, two or three persons living on these roads. As has been pointed out, these roads were needed. I have been made to understand that one of the people who benefited from these roads was a 92-year-old lady.

I have been made to understand that getting emergency vehicles, Ambulances and Fire Trucks, to these homes is extremely difficult. These people are paying taxes, they deserve to have these roads and as representatives of the people we have the right to determine and say where these roads should go.

It is public knowledge that Ministers of Government do not write the cheques for these things so it is inappropriate to put forward that there was misappropriation of funds.

I know that toward the end of last year we toured the district of Bodden Town looking at a number of private roads. I certainly hope that we are not again accused of fixing these private roads. I know that Public Works has started work on roads identified to be worked on.

So, I rise and give my full support that this not be accepted as a censure motion against this government. We are only doing what is good for our people in providing them rightful access to their homes.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I, too rise to give my support to Government Motion No. 1/95. I will be very short in my contribution because I find it insulting to the people of these Islands that Members of the opposition would bring a motion to this Honourable House to censure government for expending funds to repair private roads for people in this country who pay taxes.

This has been the norm, as far as I can see. When the last member (Mr. Ezzard Miller) represented North Side... and I have in my hand a list of roads from Mr. Ron Cain of the Public Works Department that were done in North Side. All roadwork that was done in our district from 1989 to 1992 consisted of private roads, roads that were not gazetted public. So it seems to me that this Government is doing nothing more than previous governments have done.

In North Side the McCoy Road (which two people live on) was done for $24,500; the Austin Ebanks Road (which one person lives on) $33,300; the Olsen Chisholm Road for $12,400 (with about six homes on it), and I understand that no repairs ever took place on that road.

We have the Frank Sound Estates Road for $27,442; the Bulrush Walk Road which was done for the farmers, $4,225; we have the Little Bluff Road, $34,066.

During that time the only public road work that was carried out in that district was in 1991: Craddock Drive has a second application at a cost of $16,044. Frank Sound Road had a second application at a cost of $28,500. So, in repairing (or whatever we have done) the roads in West Bay for these private individuals, is nothing more than previous governments have done.

I am wondering, if the Opposition's Motion had been passed, and someone was living on a road which the ambulance or fire truck could not get to, and they died in a fire or of a heart attack, how they would feel.

I, too, have given private roads in the district of North Side, private in the context that they have not been gazetted public roads, but they are roads that are serving our people—from the Boat Road of North Side. I see nothing wrong with this.

I see wrong when we have developers who do subdivisions and make millions and millions of dollars in profit and the government in turn will pave every road in the subdivision—which was done just before the 1992 election—at hundreds of thousands of dollars. As long as I am a representative in this House for the district of North Side, I see nothing wrong with this Government spending funds to repair roads that are used by a number of people to get access to their homes. They pay [taxes] and I feel it is only fair that the government of this country assist them.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

[pause]

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, there are several puzzling things about this Motion. The Motion which was originally brought to the floor of this Honourable House by the Opposition has now wound up being brought by a Minister of Government. It never ceases to mystify me.

As I understand it, requests have been made in the past to have private roads done, and, indeed, private roads were done. It is my further understanding that there is a procedure to follow in so doing, namely, that the matter of the request be taken through certain channels.

When government expends public money on private roads, it is my tacit understanding that the government is in a position to exercise certain options. They can gazette the road, a public road, they can inform the owners of the road that they wish it to continue in the title of the owners under certain condition and caveat as a result of the Government's expending public funds.

The Motion which was brought by the Opposition, in its essence, did not say that the government should not expend public funds to do private roads, the motion said in this case that the correct procedures were not followed, and indeed, that we could not be convinced that what was done was done in the best interests.

So, to my mind, there is nothing mischievous about what the Opposition brought, there was nothing untoward. Certainly, events of the past, since the National Team Government likes to talk about the government of Mr. Linford Pierson and Mr. Ezzard Miller, likely they will recall that requests were made for some of these roads (many of them) to be done and the then member in charge of road works rejected on the grounds that they were private roads.

In my own case, in my constituency, I made similar requests and was similarly turned down by the then member. But, certainly, I know, where private roads have been done, those roads were gazetted either while they were in the process of being done, or gazetted as public roads immediately after they were done. So what we were concerned with is that the proper procedures were not followed.

If the intention was to be so well meaning, then why is it that only roads in one constituency were done? If the intention was so well meaning why not distribute the work over the other districts which have private roads which need to be done?

I certainly would not expect National Team Members to vote against a Minister of their government, but I stand by the position that what we had is a departure from the proper procedure and there is principle to be followed.

I see no reason for the Opposition to be falling on our swords, and we certainly will not be falling on our swords, because we did not do anything wrong. I would also like to record that we have nothing against roads being fixed for people who live in areas which are difficult (if not impossible) for the ambulance or fire truck to negotiate. Certainly, there is an outstanding request now that I made for a certain area in Bodden Town—the South Cayman Palms area—where there are two acute corners. To the best of my knowledge that is a public road and the request is still outstanding up to yesterday afternoon when I was down there and some of the residents asked me if I was in a position to tell them when the matter would be addressed.

So, for the record, I would like to state that we do not begrudge, or would not stand in the way, of any road being repaired. What we say is that there is a procedure to follow. We are pragmatic, but we are not prepared to sacrifice a principle to gain a result.

I would have been prepared to fall on my sword and be castigated if the proper channels were taken, and I had voted against and rejected the overtures to have the roads done. But, certainly, I can see no wrong in bringing to the attention of the government that the usual channels were not followed and that the usual procedures were not adhered to.

I think this Motion had enough vitriolic and vociferous debate at its inconclusive stage, so I do not want to rehash anything that has transpired previously. But I want to make it abundantly clear that the Opposition does not regard itself as being mischievous and we stand by our original position.

We do not have enough votes to carry, so we will have to abide by the consequences. But, we remain committed to the original position and, in this regard, I can say that we are unrepentant because we see the motion that was brought by the Opposition as being adequate, appropriate and what should have been.

Thank you.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, would the mover wish to close the debate?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As I intimated in my opening remarks, there were several reasons why this motion was brought back. Specifically it was brought back because three Members went on national television on one instance to say that it would not be brought back. That was not the intention of the government, at least at the time of the adjournment of the House. I said then that it could be brought back in some form or another.

The Motion is no different from the one that the Opposition brought. The substance is the same, except that we are asking the Members of the House to reject the resolution.

The truth is, several things were said about it. One was that at the closure of debate which had gone on for an hour to an hour and a half, the Member who brought the Motion was winding up for that long, and could have well finished when 4.30 came. What happened? I will read from the Hansard.

The Speaker asked the Member "How long will you be?"

He said: "...about a half an hour..." And the House was adjourned. He later went on national television to say that he had over an hour left.

I had information that they were (and they had said so throughout the Chamber) going to keep us until Christmas. I knew that was the attempt. It was a stalling tactic. Therefore, we could not allow that to happen at that point in time—even if the government of the day was minded to give them some time—it was late in the year, a crucial time in the year. I have at that time to visit children's homes, I have to visit old peoples' homes, I have to visit the many areas that Social Services has under their jurisdiction. Nothing was getting done.

I was not scared of the resolution. But the First Elected Member for Bodden Town cannot come now and say that he sees no wrong in bringing it to the attention of the government. This Motion was not merely brought to bring that matter to the attention of government. It was a censure motion about misappropriation. That is a serious charge against any government, or individual. The Members have gone to great lengths to make it look like we... and, Madam Speaker, they talk about Parliamentary Procedure at Westminster, Parliamentary Procedure at Westminster says that if a government falls especially on a misappropriation censure, that government falls.

So, as far as I am concerned, that was an attempt by the Opposition within the Westminster System to destabilise the government to let the government fall.

They knew that we had young members in the House—when I say young, I mean to the rules of the House and Parliamentary Procedure—and they thought that they could shift their minds and make them believe that government was doing the wrong thing.

So, Madam Speaker, it is not a motion, as he now tries to make this House believe, merely to bring it to Government's attention. When you read the Hansards and when I listen to the debate, I could not be here for all of it (although it affected my district primarily) I had to attend the funeral of a grandaunt and I could not be here for the balance of the day. But, when I got the Hansard and read it, it was a deliberate attempt to accuse government and individuals of dishonesty and misappropriation carries a connotation of dishonesty because the Oxford Dictionary says: "Misappropriation means to appropriate to wrong uses, chiefly to apply dishonesty to one's own use."

He cannot now come and say...I know they have lost face on it and they had some help by newspapers that tried to read other things into it. I should say the Compass has stopped doing this, but it seems like that woman from George Town, Bridget McPartland, who seems to know everything about Parliamentary Procedure, is still talking about this misappropriation. It is ridiculous for people who should know better to be saying those sorts of things. If they do not know, then they should keep their mouths shut!

I do not hold the Opposition because as the First Elected Member for Bodden Town says, that is their duty to come in here and oppose and try to make government look bad. What I dislike is that person who deliberately took the documents from the Public Works Department (which are public documents) and carried it or showed it to the newspapers. That person knows who he is.

It is not true to say that the Opposition does not mind using funds to assist people because in opening the debate their chief critic, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, said that, "...the Private Member's Motion is about a scandal, about the use of public money on private driveways in the Cayman Islands."

If it is as the First Elected Member for Bodden Town just said, that they have no problem with assisting our old people, why then was it a scandal?

The Opposition likes to talk and they say so many different things, that they do not know what they have said until we get it back in the Hansards. But they say one thing yesterday and come back and say another thing today. That is typical of them. We know their destabilised condition as far as consistency is concerned. He cannot say one thing in the morning and then in the afternoon say a different thing.

To say as the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said, "It is a new one that the country has to be told that the country is now on the road to using government money to fix private driveways for citizens of this country." Yet, he says that it is a new thing. It is not new. He just admitted that it is not new. Furthermore, I am going to come to this matter of procedure that he hinges the motion on now. The motion cannot be hinged on procedure they hinged it on misappropriation.

If he wanted to bring a motion about procedure, then he should have brought a motion asking government to look into the procedure of how private roads are done. If we go back in the archives there are petitions from back in the early 1930s where people living on private roads petitioned the government. I had one such petition and I just cannot put my hand on it. But I got some work done because I was told about it by an elderly lady in West Bay.

This is not a new thing—from the early 1930s. I know this because I have been in here long enough, but to hear the First Elected Member for Bodden Town say that it was new for the last government, I wonder when is that Member really going to go back to the Hansards and cast his mind back to remember what the previous government did.

Why does he not tell the truth? Why does he not smite the Devil and tell the truth? He says there were no roads done because he had requested his road and the previous member, Mr. Linford Pierson, said he would not do it.

So, he said he was not fixing private roads? That is not true. Randyke Garden is a private subdivision. One road was done in 1992 and was not gazetted—and still not gazetted as yet. That one road cost about the same amount that the road work in West Bay cost and yet, those devils on the other side would say that we misappropriated funds by using it to pave roads in West Bay.

Randyke Gardens is in George Town, it is a new development. That does not surprise me, when we look at some of the things that were done in 1992. How can they come now and say one thing? I see the member has left the Chamber. That is the truth, Madam Speaker, if you cannot take the heat, get out of the kitchen.

It is imperative that every home in Cayman can be accessed by emergency vehicles, that is, ambulances, fire trucks, and sometimes the garbage truck can be classified as an emergency vehicle. Certainly, the roads should be brought up to standard where the garbage truck can access it.

I know that I have roads in West Bay where fire trucks have gotten stuck in between two poles because the roads were so small, and a house burns down in the mean time.

There are many situations like that on this Island. The truth is that the last government did not do anything about roadwork. I brought motion after motion. The Third Elected Member for West Bay did the same thing during 1988 and 1992 to get roads and not for heaven, would the members then in Executive Council, Mr. Ebanks, and Mr. Pierson, do anything about it.

But they were doing some things in their constituencies. We know that there were some things done for certain people in North Side and we know now that there were certain things done for certain people in George Town—depending upon whom they were supporting. These are not all our supporters (yes, I believe that some of them supported us, but some did not), that is beside the point. Whether they support me or not, if they need something and we can help, that is what we are there for as a government, and that is what we have been doing.

The problem is...that is probably why we are getting kicked in the face, but it is not true about this procedure, and I am going to come to that in a minute.

It would be misappropriation if we had taken funds from education, vote for schools and put it on roads without any kind of procedure. That could be considered misappropriation. But this is not what happened in this case. You could say it was a misuse of funds, but you certainly cannot say misappropriation of funds if you move from one roadwork to another roadwork. That is exactly what happened—in the same district.

The first thing in the procedure is to vote funds for roads in the Islands. That is the first thing that we do. I am outlining the procedure here that has been adhered to since 1984 and beyond. We had one former Executive Council Member during 1976 who went on television and said that was the procedure (Mr. Warren Conolly). The next thing we do is go out and identify the roads to be upgraded. That has been done in every district in this Island. Next, members prioritise the roads work in each district. That is what happened.

In the case of West Bay, we simply moved funds from one road to other roads. So, the Member talking about procedure, knows nothing about what he is talking because, ultimately, the Finance Committee gives the Financial Secretary the prerogative to vote or to agree for the moving of funds. If you look in the Financial and Stores Regulations, 1986, it says in Regulation 2(6) and (7) that: "The transfer of funds between subheads warrants by the Financial Secretary under his power of virement will be authorised by the issue of a virement warrant under his signature. Virement warrants will be numbered consecutively within the financial year to which they relate."

If anyone comes up and says that this is not clear, that the Financial and Stores Regulation is not clear, then they need to check it again and refer to regulation 1(6) which says: "On any question as to the correct interpretation of anything contained in these Financial and Stores Regulations, the decision of the Financial Secretary shall be final." So for anyone to now come and say that we do not have the power to do what we are doing is talking nonsense. Because where something is not clear, it says here that this Financial and Stores Regulation which authorises the use of moving of funds outside of the agreement of Finance Committee, this says that the Financial Secretary has the authority. Everyone should understand that from the Auditor General to his Accountant or the Internal Audit Office. They cannot refer to one section of this Finance and Stores Regulation without first coming to regulation 1(6), it gives the Financial Secretary the authority. I was in the House back in 1986 when these were done by the then Financial Secretary, who is now the Minister for Tourism. I remember.

Procedure has been followed. There has been no misappropriation of funds.

I do not think there is any more that I can add to this except to say that the National Team Government is going to continue to provide road works where we can. I am only sorry that it takes several thousand dollars to fix the roads leading to the house of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, because that is a lot of money to spend on one road. If I can be of assistance to him as the government, we are prepared to do it. But he should not come here and decry the use of funds for other people in much worse condition than himself, when he has made a request to fix his road and certain works have already been done on it and to do the rest of it would take that amount of money.

It is sheer hypocrisy for that member to do so. He should have told that to the residents of South Cayman Palms. We can only do so much.

West Bay is the district I represent and it has a wide network of roads. Government made a commitment not just in the Financial and Stores Regulation, but if we go back to the Economic Development Program, also produced in 1986, you will find that the policy is in that. I had that this morning, but in the rush, I left it at home. It is also contained in that for the fixing of roads.

The procedure is there. There is no misappropriation of funds, government simply moved funds from one road to many other roads, some small and some a bit larger.

The last thing that I would clarify is the remark made by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town when he said that he would not expect the National Team to vote against the Minister. I do not expect the National Team to vote against the Minister either, once the Minister is doing the correct thing.

So, for the newspapers, and for the columnists, who say that there is something wrong in this motion and that the procedures of this House were not followed, they have to understand that they do have people in government and the Legislature (Members and the Speaker) who know about the running of this Parliament and they should accept that. Mrs. McPartland should accept that there are people who have over 30 years of experience as a Clerk (that is, the Speaker), and several years as the Speaker. There are Members who have years of experience in this House and there is nothing wrong with this resolution presently before the House. The only thing wrong with it is that the Opposition is hopping mad because they did not get to table it first, but I was smart enough to put it.

It is no different from the way they had it, the only difference is that they do not have the last say on it. What they have to understand is that while they got university degrees, McKeeva Bush got common sense and he knows the rules of this Honourable House.

Madam Speaker, I leave this Motion for Members of this honourable House to do as they please. We felt that we should bring it back since we were challenged that they were not going to bring it back and Members can now vote as they feel.

Thanks very much.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 3/95

CAYMAN ISLANDS WATER AUTHORITY LOAN GUARANTEE

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I move the following Motion:

"WHEREAS on the 28th day of November, 1994, the Standing Finance Committee of the Legislative Assembly "RESOLVED THAT the current guarantee of US$5.83 million be increased to US$22.15 million on behalf of the Cayman Islands Water Authority in favour of Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce Bank and Trust Company (Cayman) Limited, which will provide a loan to clear the existing loan with Caribbean Development Bank and to provide additional funds to construct the proposed Lower Valley Reservoir, pumping station and other works;

"AND FURTHER THAT the Caribbean Development Bank loan of US$6.20 million be repaid."

"BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT in accordance with the provisions of Section 8(B)(2) of the Water Authority Law, 1982, this Honourable House do now approve the resolution as passed by the Standing Finance Committee."

The Speaker: The question before the House is Government Motion No. 3/95, Cayman Islands Water Authority Loan Guarantee. The Motion is open for debate.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, in 1986, the Cayman Islands Government entered into a loan agreement with the Caribbean Development Bank which provided approximately $7 million (US) to the Water Authority for the construction of the West Bay Beach Sewerage System.

The funds for the loan were repayable in several different currencies including a unit of accounts quotient which was based partially on Japanese Yen.

Over the past four years the Authority has repaid approximately $1,790,000 (US) in principal on the loan. However, due to currency fluctuations the outstanding principal was valued at $6,030,000 (US) at the end of 1994. This translates into a total currency loss of approximately $820,000 (US) over the life of the loan.

It was decided in early 1994 that the Authority would endeavour to refinance this loan as well as to secure additional capital for a pumping station and reservoir in the Lower Valley area. Several local banks were approached to provide this financing package and in September, 1994, the Water Authority Board resolved to accept a proposal submitted by Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce Bank and Trust Company. This package included a total of $22,150,000 which would be repaid over 10 years at an interest rate of 1% over LIBOR (Lowest Interest Borrowing Rate).

The interest rate could be fixed up to one year. The total package would provide funds to refinance the Caribbean Development Bank Loan, provide additional capital for the Lower Valley project and would extend the existing $16 million with Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce from a seven year repayment period to 10 years.

Under the terms of the loan agreement, government is required to guarantee that it would continue to repay any principal and interest due to the bank should the Water Authority be found in default of the terms of the loan.

Section 8(b) of the Water Authority Law states that any such guarantee for the Water Authority must be approved by this Legislative Assembly.

I believe that the Water Authority is doing the correct thing and no mention has been made before about our long-term debt, but we have good board members. I think the Water Authority is on sound footing. We have as board members a banker, Mr. Harry Chisholm; Mr. Bernard Watler, who is a very substantial businessman; Mr. Otto Watler; Mr. Richard Flowers; Mr. Phillip Hydes; and Mr. Jerry Wood, all of whom are very substantial people who know what they are doing. They have been on the Water Authority Board since its inception and they have seen this Water Authority grow from strength to strength. I have great confidence in them as members and they do provide a very laudable service for this country by serving on the board.

This is a good move and I want to extend my sincere appreciation to the Honourable Financial Secretary and to the Minister of Education who were both involved in the later part of the negotiation of the loan.

I ask the House to agree to this resolution.

The Speaker: If there is no debate on Government Motion No. 3/95...I do not know if the Honourable Minister would wish to add anything further before the question is put?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: No, Madam Speaker. As the old saying goes, silence gives consent.

The Speaker: I shall put the question, Government Motion No. 3/95, Cayman Islands Water Authority Guarantee. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion has accordingly been passed.

AGREED: GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 3/95 PASSED.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 2/95, Adoption of the Tourism Management Policy 1995-1999.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Development and Planning.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 2/95

ADOPTION OF THE TOURISM MANAGEMENT POLICY 1995—1999

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I move Government Motion No. 2/95, Adoption of the Tourism Management Policy 1995-1999, which reads:

"WHEREAS during the last Meeting of the Legislative Assembly the Tourism Management Policy was laid on the Table of this Honourable House and Government Motion No. 9/94 was moved for its adoption;

"AND WHEREAS the House adjourned prior to the completion of the debate thereon;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED that the House adopts the Tourism Management Policy 1995 to 1999."

The Speaker: The question before the House is Government Motion No. 2/95, Adoption of the Tourism Management Policy 1995 to 1999. The Motion is open for debate.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Development and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I realise that the hour is moving and that this Management Policy was spoken to at great length at the presentation and much debate ensued thereon. Some of the commentary that came across in the debate was somewhat misleading—some Members were trying to say that it was an implementation document when, in fact, when I laid it on the Table I did not say any such thing. But, I believe it is the first occasion that a government has laid on the Table of this Honourable House a Tourism Policy and sought for its adoption. I take great credit for the National Team's assistance in allowing me to accomplish this.

Thank you.

The Speaker: It would appear there is no debate, would the Honourable Minister wish to add anything before the question is put?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: No, Madam Speaker, I thank you for the opportunity.

The Speaker: The question is that Government Motion No. 2/95 Adoption of the Tourism Management Policy 1995 to 1999 be approved.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion has accordingly been passed.

AGREED: GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 2/95 PASSED.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: That appears to conclude the business of the House with the exception that the House will have to meet tomorrow morning for a brief period. The Water Authority (Amendment) Bill has to be recommitted to a Committee of the House. It should not take long but it will be necessary for the legal draftsman to come down and the Attorney General is arranging for that. We will have to take the adjournment until tomorrow morning at 10.00, and we should finish shortly after that.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Development and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, this is a little bit new to me, this Water Authority Bill having to be looked at a second time. I just wonder if it could be done this afternoon in the hope of finalising it, rather than having to come tomorrow morning. Just a thought.

The Speaker: I would have no objection, it just depends on what the Honourable Second Official Member would say, if this is possible for us to recommit this Bill and deal with it this evening, or would you prefer the Legal Draftsman to be here?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I think, Madam Speaker, if we are going to recommit it on the basis of section 4 to be dealt with in Committee, I would have no difficulty in dealing with it this evening.

If we need to discuss the side notes in Committee, then I think we need the Legal Draftsman here to do so. But I could try to get him down here this evening—of course, it does not give me a lot of notice.

The Speaker: One of the reasons for the recommitment was that apparently section 4 was not put to the House to agree on. There are some other minor amendments or corrections to get it in proper order, and I think we could do it now if you wish, with the exception that the Bill has already been read a third time and in order to have it recommitted requires the suspension of Standing Order 55 (Committal of Bills). Would an Honourable Minister move the suspension of Standing Order 55?

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Development and Planning.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am at a bit of a loss because I was busy talking rather than listening.

The Speaker: Well, I observed that, and I will excuse you. I will explain it to you. Standing Order 55, which covers committal of Bills, apparently covers Bills which have been reported to committee before the Third Reading. But this Bill has been given a Third Reading and in order for it to be recommitted we will have to ask for the suspension of Standing Order 55.

It is very simple. If you would do that, Honourable Minister.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 55

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In accordance with standing Order 83 I move the suspension of Standing Order 55.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 55 be suspended in order for the Water Authority (Amendment) Bill to be recommitted to a committee of the whole House. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Order 55 has accordingly been suspended and the House will now proceed to committee to consider the Water Authority (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

AGREED: STANDING 55 SUSPENDED TO ENABLE THE HOUSE TO RECOMMIT THE BILL.

RECOMMITTAL OF GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE AT 4.27 PM

WATER AUTHORITY (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Chairman: Clause 4—Regulations—was not put so the question could not have been decided on that before the conclusion of proceedings. Accordingly I would move that Clause 4 stand part of the Bill.

The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 4 PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for a Law to Amend the Water Authority Law, 1982.

The Chairman: The question is that the title do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: TITLE PASSED.

The Chairman: There were some other marginal notes and that it would be in order to leave it with the Honourable Attorney General to be put in the correct manner. Do I have the approval of the House for that?

Accordingly that concludes proceedings for recommittal of the Water Authority (Amendment) Bill, 1995. The House will resume.

HOUSE RESUMED AT 4.29 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

I think it will be necessary for The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture to move the report of this Bill and then we will go to the Third Reading.

REPORT

THE WATER AUTHORITY (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I beg to report that a Bill entitled a Bill for a Law to Amend the Water Authority Law, 1982, was recommitted and passed in Committee.

The Speaker: Third Reading.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

THIRD READING

THE WATER AUTHORITY (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I beg to move that a Bill for a Law to Amend the Water Authority Law, 1982, be give a Third Reading and passed.

The Speaker: The question is that the Bill be read a third time and passed. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been read a third time and passed.

AGREED: THE WATER AUTHORITY (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995 GIVEN A THIRD READING AND PASSED.

The Speaker: There is one other matter, I understand the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture would like to lay on the Table of the House two Bills, the Children's Bill and the Youth Justice Bill.

Honourable Minister.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND OF REPORTS

YOUTH JUSTICE (WHITE) BILL, 1995 AND THE CHILDREN (WHITE) BILL, 1995

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, government had given a commitment to revise the law regarding young people. That involved a large amount of work in relation to the Youth Justice Bill and the Children's Act. These are new Bills and we want to table them as white papers so that the public can make comments on them. We intend to go to speak to different entities in the country to associate the Bill with the affect in regards to young children. I ask that these Bills be laid on the Table of the Honourable House.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: I would like to offer my gratitude to the people in the country who made comments on the matter, that is the different legal entities, the Justices and the members of the bench. As I said, the Social Services will be talking to the various entities in regard to these Bills.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Minister.

I am also aware that the Honourable Second Official Member wishes to lay on the Table of the House a Bill that will be coming up at the next sitting. I will ask him to do that now, please.

DRAFT OF THE PROCEEDS OF CRIMINAL CONDUCT (WHITE) BILL

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Following a decision by Executive Council, I am pleased to be able to table today, as a white paper, the Draft of the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Bill.

This is part of the Government's continued commitment to promoting the quality and integrity of the Cayman Islands' financial system. The Bill will make three main areas of changes to the criminal law of the Islands and the enforcement power of the courts.

The courts will be able to make a confiscation order where a person has been found guilty of serious criminal offences. The effect of the confiscation order will require the offender to pay the court the financial proceeds or profits of the crime. This power to make a confiscation order is modelled on the existing powers of the courts conferred by the Misuse of Drugs Legislation for the courts to confiscate the proceeds in drug trafficking offences.

There are also provisions to help in the realisation of the proceeds of the criminal conduct and prevent its removal from the Islands.

There will be new criminal offences. Firstly, assisting in the retention of the benefit of criminal conduct an offence of acquiring, possessing or using the proceeds of criminal conduct and concealing or transferring the proceeds of criminal conduct.

It will also be an offence to tip-off someone about an investigation into those three offences.

The last area of change is proposed in clauses 23 and 24 of the bill. These will help the enforcement of orders made by courts in other countries in respect of serious criminal conduct in those countries the proceeds of which have been transferred to the Cayman Islands.

The legislation has been drafted in terms identical, where possible, to those included in the Misuse of Drugs Law and for that reason I believe we will find universal acceptance by both the legal and banking professions and the judiciary.

The Bill also reflects the Criminal Justice Act, 1993 and so can be supported on the grounds that similar legislation is already enforced in the United Kingdom and has been tested by a number of cases brought in that jurisdiction.

Criminal conduct covered by the Bill is set out in the schedule and this can be added to or amended at any time by Order in Council. Specifically excluded from this bill are the offences related to the laundering of proceeds from drug trafficking which continue to be dealt with under the Misuse of Drugs Law.

It is hoped that wide publicity will be given to this Bill and Government Information Services has been requested to make copies available to the public. Subject to any comments and suggestions received as a result of that publicity, it is anticipated that the green Bill will be brought to the House in June of this year.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: So ordered.

That appears to conclude the business for this Meeting, although with the presentation of the documents I am sure that Members will be kept quite busy reading all of these in preparation for the next meeting.

Before I ask for the motion for the adjournment of the House, I would like to thank Members for their efforts in bringing matters to a conclusion. They have worked very hard over the past eighteen days... I do not know whether I should use the late Miss Annie Bodden's term, "eighteen long, wicked, weary days" [laughter], but they have covered a lot of ground and they have said many words—so, they should be thanked for their attention.

I would also like to thank the Clerk, the Deputy Clerk, the Serjeant-at-Arms, the Hansard Reporters and the other members of staff in the office. We cannot forget Mary and her helper in providing not only light refreshments now, but things seem to have gotten very heavy—very heavy meals—and I think Members have all appreciated this.

But, I think I would also be failing in my duty if I did not ask Members in the future to try to avoid the many hostile and sharp attacks on each other and on members of the public who may write letters, or columns in newspapers. I think quite often one has to take a stand, but there is, in my opinion, a much better way to make a stand on anything with which you disagree and which a lot of people outside may not understand the workings of Parliament.

I have been rather perturbed, to say the least, as well as members of the public who listen, at the harsh words that many people pass against others. We need to bear in mind that Members have a great responsibility, they have a lot of work to do, but also, that we pass through this way once and we need to leave a good impression on what we do so that the others who follow will have role models to follow.

May I ask now for the motion for the adjournment of the House until 2 June 1995?

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am sure that it was not the intention of anyone of us on this side to castigate any particular person in the private sector, but, inevitably, there will be differences of opinion and I think we should be allowed to state them with great care but not to seem to be malicious in so doing.

I have pleasure in moving the adjournment of this Honourable House until 2 June 1995.

The Speaker: Equally, the Speaker has much pleasure in moving the motion for the adjournment. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

The House is accordingly adjourned until 2 June 1995, at 10 o'clock.

AT 4:40 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 2 JUNE 1995.

FRIDAY
2 JUNE, 1995
10.06 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable First Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. James M. Ryan: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed, the Legislative Assembly is in session.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I would like to offer apologies for the absence of two Members, the first is the lady Member for George Town, the Third Elected Member who is overseas receiving medical attention. The second is from the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman who is also overseas receiving medical attention. I understand that both Members are doing well. I know the Members of the House will be happy to hear this.

Continuing with the business of the day, questions to Honourable Members and Ministers.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town, question No. 76.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

No. 76: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, will Cable and Wireless (WI) Ltd. be providing subscribers in the Cayman Islands with access to the Internet.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer is yes.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say at what stage is the progress into the provision of this service at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Last month the General Manager of Cable and Wireless (W.I.) Limited wrote to my Ministry advising of the company's plan to launch a public access service to the Global Internet Network.

The terminal equipment has already been installed and the new service is being well received.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say what will be the charge for accessing such a service?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It will be twenty-five cents per minute.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 77, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 77

No. 77: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works what training will be provided for the 9-1-1 operators.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer is all 9-1-1 operators will have to undergo a basic telecommunicator's training course as well as an emergency medical dispatching course.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say what will be the duration of this course and which organisation will be offering such a course?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It will be offered by ABCO and the Red Cross and it will be a forty-hour basic telecommunicator's training course and 32 hours emergency medical dispatching course.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say what will be the costs of such a course and also who will be paying these costs?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, the costs will be paid by the Government.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Minister say if any persons have been identified by the Government for this particular training, and in what departments might they be located?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, someone has been identified and of course they would have to be in my Ministry, because I am responsible for communications.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say what will be the costs of this course?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

There is a cost to just about anything we do, but unfortunately I do not have the figures here with me.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister could tell us if the 9-1-1 number is operational now and if it is, how is it being manned?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, we are working right now on the system. I think the number is used but the system is not fully in place for it to operate the way it would, for example, in the United States of America.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, the Minister has said that a person was identified and is in his Ministry. If the 9-1-1 call is to be an emergency call similar to the United States of America, would the Ministry not think that more than one person is necessary for this? Should they not be in the Police Station or somewhere like that for a 24-hour coverage?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, the Police Department will have an area that can receive the 9-1-1 calls and also the Hospital. The main 9-1-1 station will be at the Fire Station.

What I was talking about is the actual controls and everything else is set up in my office and, as a matter of fact, when I left there awhile ago there was a gentleman down from ABCO who is working on putting the system in.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Minister elaborate as to how this equipment that will service the 9-1-1 calls can be set up in the Ministry? It seems like that would have to be some special communications room. Could he perhaps elaborate on that?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, the main brain of the operation, as I understand it, will be set up in my Ministry. The main control will be at the Fire Station and of course, the Police Department and the Hospital will have their part of the system in place as well because they are the areas that also receive the emergency calls.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 78, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 78

No. 78: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works what control does Government have on the capital investments made by Caribbean Utilities Company Limited.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The answer, there are no controls on the capital investments made by Caribbean Utilities Company Limited other than under the provision in section 8(2) of the 1986 licence in relation to the reserve generating capacity.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Are we then to understand that Government has to accept any proposals for capital investment made by Caribbean Utilities Company Limited?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I guess I am saying that, once it is in accordance with the present licence.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 79, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 79

No. 79: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs who pays for the cost of airline charters to repatriate Cubans to Cuba and what has been the cost to date.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The answer, the Cayman Islands' Government pays the cost of airline charters to repatriate Cubans to Cuba. As of 30th May, 1995, the total cost of air transportation to Cuba for this purpose amounted to $10,848.00.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The figure of $10,848 would appear to be relatively low considering the number of flights that have been made. Were there any special concession or any subsidies at all paid towards this overall figure by any other entity?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, perhaps I should clarify the question. As I understood, it was asking for the repatriation of Cubans to Cuba, which simply meant those that were repatriated to Havana.

Now the costs of sending persons to Guantanamo Bay is a different thing all together. I interpreted the question when it said repatriate as referring to those that have been repatriated to Havana as opposed to being sent to Guantanamo Bay.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I am sorry if the question was not clear in what was being asked for. What the question was attempting to discover in fact, is what had been the costs overall for sending back to Cuba the Cubans both to Havana and Guantanamo Bay.

I do not know if the Honourable Member has that, but if not Madam Speaker, I would be grateful if he could perhaps supply it otherwise.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, the cost of transfers to Guantanamo Bay has been a total of $138,357.00. However this does not include the last flight which took place on the 29th of May. That information I do not have. So what I am saying is that it was $138,357.00 to Guantanamo Bay and as in the substantive answer $10,848.00 to Havana, Cuba.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say how many persons were repatriated to bring the total up to $10,848?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, I am afraid I do not have that information available. If the Elected Member would like, I can supply that in writing.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. That is my request.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable First Official Member can tell us how many of these Cubans remain here and if there is an official position from Government regarding their repatriation?

The Speaker: The substantive question was who pays for the costs of airline charters to repatriate Cubans to Cuba and what has been the costs to date? I do not think that is part of the question.

If the Honourable Member can answer he may, but we need to keep within the confines of the original question.

The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I believe there is a latter question in this Sitting on that, but as I recall from memory the figure is 21. Certainly I will be able to give that answer when the question comes up.

The Speaker: Thank you.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Member say if there is any likelihood of any assistance to the Cayman Islands' Government for defraying any part of these costs that it has so far met?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I must honestly say that I do not think that there is any chance of financial assistance to defray this cost. Certainly, the chances of getting any financial assistance from the Cuban Government, I think, is virtually nil although it has not been explored. From other sources I do have my doubts.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town, last supplementary, please.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say whether any international organisation or country was approached with regards to defraying some of these expenses?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, Madam Speaker, approaches were made initially to the United Kingdom and the European Union. More recently to an organisation in Europe. We are still pursuing that but however, the perimeter for funding I do not think will include repatriation costs. It is hoped that we can recoup some of the costs of the actual running of the camp, but I doubt that it is going to extend to repatriation costs.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 80, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 80

No. 80: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is the total cost of water supply to Tent City to date including connection costs.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The answer, the total cost of water supply to Tent City to date, including connection costs, is $100,469.12.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

A short while ago the Honourable Member spoke to the fact that a certain entity in Europe was thinking of assisting the Cayman Islands with the refugee problem that we have been experiencing. Would this item perhaps have any chance of being included within the scope of monies which they offer in such cases, or is this also having to be met from Government's revenue without hope of any assistance?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, it is a little difficult to say whether this specific item will be met, but we are hoping to recoup some of the cost of the running of the camp. I would hope that would include some of the costs of water used.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Having arrived at this position now where most of the Cuban nationals seem to have left and we are arriving at figures, would the Honourable Member be able to say at this time if in the reasonably near future he would be in a position to tell the overall cost including water?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, Madam Speaker. In the near future I would expect that we can give the breakdown of the costs. In fact, I asked a few days ago for a revision of the projections because we had projected on a quarterly basis what it would probably cost. Now that the number of Cuban refugees have drastically reduced, and as Honourable Members would have heard in the media, Tent City has been officially closed.

I would expect that we can shortly supply information on the actual costs.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 81, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 81

No. 81: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is Government's policy concerning the licensing of additional television stations in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, there are no exclusive television licences currently in force. Government would be willing to consider any application for the establishment of additional local television services.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Member say if any thought is being given by Government, through the use of a statutory authority, Radio Cayman or otherwise, of extending its broadcasting service into television for public broadcasting services at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

No, not to my knowledge is there any plan afoot to have any statutory authority or Radio Cayman to extend into television broadcasting at this time.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Member say if he has knowledge of any recent applications by any parties for additional television services in the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

No, there are no applications to my knowledge currently pending with Government.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 82, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 82

No. 82: Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr. asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration to provide details of the reason why the former Registrar to the Court of Appeals and Deputy Clerk, Miss Wanda Ebanks, did not join the Attorney General's Office as planned.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The answer, the Deputy Clerk, Miss Ebanks requested a transfer to the Legal Department and on 12th January, 1995, an application was submitted by the Solicitor General to Personnel to transfer her to an unfunded vacant post.

On 20th March, 1995, the Legal Department heard from the Deputy Clerk, Miss Ebanks, that she had obtained another position outside of Government.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Member could give us the date of Miss Ebanks's original request to be transferred to the Legal Department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, the date that is relevant, as far as the request for transfer is concerned, is the date that the Head of Department authorises or consents to the transfer. I am not able to say the date that Miss Ebanks first expressed a wish to move. But I can say that the date when the Honourable Chief Justice confirmed that he was willing for her transfer to be considered was the 10th of January, 1995.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Member could say what position Miss Ebanks was scheduled to fill in the Legal Department.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The Deputy Clerk would have been transferred to the Legal Department and would have been employed as Crown Counsel II, which is the position for Crown Counsels who are recently qualified.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In the Honourable Member's answer he mentioned that she was to be transferred to the Legal Department to fill an unfunded vacant post. Can the Honourable Member confirm whether or not, as a result of Miss Ebanks not taking the position, it has been filled by someone else?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: No, the position has not been filled. The situation was that the post which this lady could have taken up when it was offered was available, but unfunded. The Personnel Department advised myself and the Legal Department that until funding had been obtained for the post, and that would be by bringing it before Finance Committee, that the post would not be offered. In fact, I spoke with the Honourable Financial Secretary who agreed that the matter could be dealt with somewhat more expeditiously and that funds already approved could be used. It was upon receipt of that information that the Deputy Clerk indicated then that she had accepted a post outside of Government. The post itself is still available, and it is my intention to try and recruit into it. In fact, after the Deputy Clerk said that she was moving elsewhere, I approached the Clerk of the Courts to see if any other attorney wished to take advantage of that post. But, I understand, and have received a letter from the Clerk of the Courts that she would not wish to see any other qualified attorney transferred at the present time. So, we will have to look elsewhere.

As far as the Legal Department is concerned, we would very much like to see another attorney in that post.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Member can say what kind of salary is being offered for this position?

The Speaker: If the Honourable Second Official Member can do that, and if not...

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I regret to say, Madam Speaker, that I do not have that information. I am not aware of what the salary scale is for that particular post. I certainly would not be able to say what particular salary would have been offered to this lady. I do not think that that particular decision had been taken when the post was offered. That would have been the next thing to have been decided. It never reached that stage.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Second Official Member would say if it is a fact that before Miss Ebanks received a reply regarding her application a year had elapsed, and this was the reason why she accepted employment outside of Government?

The Speaker: I am afraid that the Honourable Second Official Member replied to a question saying that he did not know the date of her application. I think that is what he said; so, he does not know. If he can find out and inform Members afterwards, that could be answered.

The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, the reply that the Honourable Member gave us was that the date that is relevant in this case, is the date that she received a reply from the Chief Justice which was the 12th of January. He did not say that he did not know.

The Speaker: But I said that he did say that. I remember hearing that. He knew the Chief Justice approved the transfer, and the answer does say that on the 12th the Solicitor General sent the request.

If you would like to further clarify that, Honourable Second Official Member...

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, Madam Speaker, you are quite correct. I do not know the answer to that question. I am not sure whether the request was a formal written request or whether it was merely an indication that this lady would like to move. I have to say that we do from time to time, of course, get people who telephone the department, or telephone myself and express an interest. But the Civil Service, in terms of actually making an official request to Personnel, needs the consent of the Head of Department. So, from my own Portfolio's point of view, nothing could be done on the request in any event until the Head of Department formally agreed to release the lady.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, it seems that there is an interest in filling this particular post which is unfunded. Is there any forthcoming request from Government or to Finance Committee for the appropriate funds that this post could be filled?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: As I have indicated, Madam Speaker, the Honourable Financial Secretary has said that the post could be filled and the matter then dealt with at the next meeting of Finance Committee. It would be my intention at that next meeting to deal with the funding of this post and in the meantime I will be actively trying to fill this post with a Caymanian attorney.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Second Official Member could say how many qualified Caymanian lawyers he has in the Legal Department.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, we have three qualified Caymanian attorneys in the Legal Department at the moment.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 83, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 83

No. 83: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning what is the policy regarding the selection of subjects and the type of examinations taken by students as their final examination on completion of High School studies.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: Students select five option subjects to provide a balanced curriculum to go with their four compulsory subjects for their final two years of study. This is done in consultation with parents and senior staff. An explanatory option booklet is circulated to students and parents to explain the subjects available.

Heads of Departments recommend the level at which a student should attempt a subject based on past performance both at examination and in attitude and approach to the subject.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister would be able to state what the four compulsory subjects are for their final two years of study?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, they are English, Mathematics, Physical Education and Life Skills, which includes Careers.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Minister be able to explain to this Honourable House the variation in the curriculum regarding the types of examinations, that is to say if it is CXC, or GSE or GCSE? Is there any policy dictating which of these examinations are taken by the students as guidelines? I am not quite sure from his answer if there is a specific guideline as to which type of examination is taken by the students—whether the level that he has indicated in his answer is indicative of which type of examination that is taken.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I think the answer to this was given some time ago. I do not have that precise information now, because it did not directly arise...only to say that some subjects would be by one examining Board, for example CXC and different subjects would be by the GCSE or Pitman's, or the other examining bodies.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister is in a position to say whether the fact that there are more curriculums than one dealt with at the level where students take their final exams, whether this causes any problems with teachers being able to do justice to the students. If I may just explain what I am trying to ask the Minister, because I am still not satisfied—maybe I have not asked the question so that he can give me the answer that I am seeking. It is my understanding that the Heads of Departments recommend whether it is a certain type of exam, and not that the student take it based on their past performance. My question is, having dealt in recent years with the CXC exam as the primary exam, does it affect the smooth running of the school because there are other types of examinations that are taken? Would it not be better if it were just one exam at whatever level it has to be taken, that would be dealt with in the curriculum?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I think I can best deal with this if I could speak to the Member after, because I do not follow from the question as it arises, but I am happy to speak to the Member and will endeavour to get the information he wishes.

The Speaker: I am sure that would be acceptable.

If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 84, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 84

No. 84: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to state: (a) the total amount paid by Cayman Airways Limited to other airlines for the use of their aircraft for the company's supplemental and additional air services from January, 1993 to the present; and (b) the name of the airlines, giving a breakdown of amounts paid to each airline.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the answer: (a) The total amount paid by Cayman Airways Limited for supplemental and additional air services from January 1993 to the present was $2,132,815; (b) The airlines used and the amounts paid to each are as follows:

Trans Air Link (freight)	$904,878.00
Carnival Airline	375,377.00
Miami Air	721,202.00
Island Air	2,323.00
Key Airlines	45,425.00
Turks & Caicos Airlines	1,350.00
Arrow Air	20,507.00
Viscount	61,753.00
Total	2,132,815.00

It is erroneous to consider these figures in isolation without regard for the revenues often associated with the hire-in costs. In various situations, the hire-in expenses are for services which not only are self-financing, but bring a profit to the Airline, e.g. the weekly hire-in of Trans Air Link for Freight Transport Facilities, a service which produces a net income (or profit), and which provides a much needed service to the local community.

In addition, Cayman Airways Limited takes marketing decisions to hire-in an extra jet during peak weekends to ensure that those tourists who wish to come to Cayman can be carried. A major portion of the hire-in is paid to cover the periods when Cayman Airways Limited has to withdraw its own aircraft from service in order to perform scheduled maintenance checks. Larger airlines with more aircraft set aside aircraft as a standby and this aircraft is normally used to cover checks on the remainder of the fleet. For Cayman Airways Limited, it is not cost effective to have a third aircraft to cover annual checks on the other two.

It is important to note that at present the lease cost of Cayman Airways Limited's two 737-220s is US$2,148,000 per annum with a total lease commitment of approximately US$8.5 million (and Cayman Airways Limited made a profit in 1994) while in 1991 the two 737-400s from GPA rented for $7,440,000 per annum, with a total lease commitment of $111,600, (and Cayman Airways Limited made a loss of US$23.5 million for the years 1991/1992).

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, can the Honourable Minister say approximately how many flights were made on these hired aircraft?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I do not have that information, but I will make it available to the Honourable Member is writing.

The Speaker: Thank you.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I express my gratitude for the very informative answer. Just one supplementary: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would be able to give any indication at all as to what portion of the fees that have been indicated in the answer would be allocated to when there were unforeseen breakdowns with the aircraft over and above the scheduled maintenance checks when other aircraft had to be hired.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I do not have that information, but I will be happy to provide it to the Honourable Member in writing.

The Speaker: Thank you.

The next question is No. 85, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 85

No. 85: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to state the differences in salary and responsibilities between the present Managing Director, and the newly appointed General Manager of Cayman Airways Limited.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the answer: Cayman Airways Limited. is a private company and matters such as salary and responsibilities are confidential to the Board of Directors.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Notwithstanding the confidentiality that has been indicated here, I wonder if the Honourable Minister is in a position to explain why the change in leadership of Cayman Airways is being termed as a General Manager, as opposed to the Managing Director which we have been used to for many years.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the term 'General Manager' is used here the same as it would be in any other private business. Managing Director is used the same way as it would be used in a private business. They are two different posts that are basically the same as you would find in any other private company.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder, then, if the Honourable Minister would be able to state whether it has been found that Cayman Airways no longer needs a Managing Director, and that a General Manager is sufficient?

The Speaker: I think you are asking for an expression of opinion, so I would not allow that.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister define the roles and responsibilities of a Managing Director, as against the General Manager as it applies in this case?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, if the Honourable Member had listened to my answer—which I will repeat—Cayman Airways is a private company and matters such as salary and responsibilities are confidential to the Board of Directors.

I do not want to get into that aspect of it, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Am I to understand that the Honourable Minister is saying that the job descriptions of these two posts are a matter of confidentiality which cannot be disclosed to the Members of this Honourable House?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No, Madam Speaker, the job descriptions, as he well knows, went public. I do not have that before me. By all means I am happy to supply to him... if he so wishes.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Minister say if the only difference in responsibilities and salary is a change of name, regarding this particular post?

The Speaker: I think that also requires an expression of opinion and will not be allowed.

STATEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

CHANGE IN HOUSE PROCEDURE RE: STANDING ORDER 23(8)

The Speaker: It is now 11 o'clock, and before we proceed to Other Business, I think it is appropriate here to say that in the future when dealing with Questions and the hour of 11.00 arrives, it has been agreed that the Member who is in the midst of asking the next question or supplementary would be the person who would ask for the suspension of Standing Orders to deal with the continuation and conclusion of Questions for that time. I just want Members to be aware of that in the future. Thank you.

We next proceed to Private Member's Motion 5/95—Vehicle Inspection, Licensing, Collection of Fees, Payments of Cable and Wireless (W.I.) Ltd. and Caribbean Utilities Co. Ltd., Bills.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 5/95

VEHICLE INSPECTION, LICENSING, COLLECTION OF FEES, PAYMENTS OF CABLE & WIRELESS (WI) LTD. AND CARIBBEAN UTILITIES CO. LTD. BILLS

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move Private Member's Motion 5/95 entitled, Vehicle Inspection, Licensing, Collection of Fees, Payments of Cable and Wireless (W.I.) Ltd. and Caribbean Utilities Co Ltd., Bills, which reads as follows:

WHEREAS most major services are located in Central George Town;

AND WHEREAS there is a considerable over crowding and lack of sufficient parking in George Town;

AND WHEREAS it poses a great deal of inconvenience and loss of time to the general public to have to travel to George Town to have vehicles inspected and licensed and to pay the various Government fees and to make payments also to Cable and Wireless Ltd. and Caribbean Utilities Co. Ltd.

BE IT RESOLVED that Government initiate a system of licensing and inspecting vehicles and collection of the various Government fees in as many districts as possible;

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that Government negotiate with Cable and Wireless Ltd. and Caribbean Utilities Company Ltd. about making arrangements to have fees collected in as many districts as possible.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker, I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion 5/95 which has been duly moved and seconded and is now open for debate.

POINT OF PROCEDURE

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Procedure.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, today is Friday and, according to Standing Orders, this is not a Private Members' day. In fact, the Business Paper which has just been circulated this morning shows that all of the business on the Order Paper is Private Member's Motions. I do not know if the Government Members moving the Private Member's Motions knew of this change; certainly, the Opposition Members did not know. I would suggest that it is necessary for the Government to move the suspension of Standing Orders if Private Members' Motions are to be dealt with all day today.

The Speaker: Perhaps the Chairman of the Business Committee, the Honourable Minister who is Leader of Government Business...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Ma'am. I would move the suspension of Standing Orders for the order as set out today to be taken in that form.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14(2)

The Speaker: The question before the House is that Standing Order 14(2) should be suspended in order for Private Member's Motions and Other Business to be dealt with today.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, if I may...

The Speaker: Are you rising on a Point of Order? I have not yet put the Motion.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I have a point. May I be able to speak on the Motion that has been put? I would appreciate that.

The Speaker: I need to put that. The Motion has been moved that Standing Order 14(2) be suspended in order that Private Members' Motions should be dealt with today.

I think, Honourable Minister, you might indicate the reason for this; this was not done before. Please.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker. Most of the business before the House is the many questions, and there are only two very short bills and one bill that is a bit longer. Time is still running on those at present, whereas these motions have had sufficient time run on them. This was the reason why the Business Committee set them down like this.

The Speaker: The question before the House is the suspension of Standing Order 14(2). The Motion is open for debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, this Motion to suspend Standing Orders that today should be given strictly to Private Members' Motions has not been justifiably reasoned by the Minister for Government who has moved the Motion.

I think it should be pointed out that the standard procedure for most Parliaments in the Commonwealth and, certainly, in the House of Commons, the Business Committee is comprised in a manner where both sides of the House are aware of what is happening and, indeed, how the Orders of the Day are prepared. In fact, the chief whips from the Government side and the Opposition side meet and discuss the business of the House for any given session and agree how it can best be dealt with.

Madam Speaker, there is no member representing the Opposition side of the House on the Business Committee and, unfortunately, in almost every instance that I am aware of, the Order Paper of the day is only circulated when one comes to the Chamber and sees it. Therefore, as much as one might be prepared, when something pops up, as it has today, it must take Members by surprise.

Today is Friday, and one would have thought that the least that would have happened is that Government would have put forward its business as it was supposed to and, indeed, it is true that they were not circulated in time, so it seems that in those instances, Private Members' Motions must then be taken according to the Government's policy.

I wonder whether all of these Motions that are on the Order Paper here have been put out in enough time so that they can be taken as well? Certainly, the only ones that I am aware of are those by the Third Elected Member of West Bay that were circulated early for this particular meeting.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, what happens in an independent country with whips... and, fortunately, this country still remains a dependent territory and has not gotten into the stages of independence that that Member seems to wish we had in this Chamber. If the Honourable Members looks at the Motions, he will see those which are there now, have numbers which are earlier than the numbers of the Motions that he has put. Therefore, they have had a much longer time than the Motions put by The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

There is no other Government business other than the three little Bills that are before the House. Therefore, the Business Committee felt that rather than adjourn today for some other time, we should go on and save your time and the Members' time within this House to just carry on with the business. Normally there is other Government business, but in this meeting there are only the three Bills and there are these seven Motions. All I was trying to do, for the sake of expediency, was that the Business Committee would just carry on and deal with the Motions.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It has always been the custom in this House that Private Members' Motions are scheduled and heard on Thursday. Being the Mover of three of the Motions that are listed on the Order Paper to be moved, I, personally, was not even aware that the Motions were going to be heard this morning. I was still gathering information and programming myself to deal with those Motions on Thursday, as is normally the custom.

So, I also would appreciate if Government would consider, if necessary, to adjourn the meeting, if we have dealt with all the other business that we should have dealt with today, and resume on Monday.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, contrary to what The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has said, I think the Business Committee is well balanced. The Business Committee was been appointed by this House. One of its Members is the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, who does not identify himself as a part of the National Team's government. So there is representation on the Committee of what I call a Member of the Opposition.

Furthermore, never in the history of this House have we stuck to the Standing Order that Private Members' business can only be done on Thursday: if that had happened, meetings would have run over many months. The position is that by allowing Private Members' to deal with their business on days other than Thursday, we are giving to them a greater flexibility, a greater scope and a greater opportunity to get their business finished expeditiously.

So the move today to allow all of this Private Member's business, which I predict will take a much longer time, perhaps four or five times as long as the Government's own business, is a golden opportunity which private Members should grasp.

It is true that the decision to fix the Orders of the Day in this matter may not have been conveyed to the movers of the motions, but when a Member submits a motion to the House, he knows that it will go on the Order Paper and he knows that he has five days before a meeting of the House to submit these motions. It therefore follows that the Member submitting the motion must be prepared to deal with it—even on the first day of the House.

What is here is a matter which I believe the House has the right to direct its own business and it is a golden opportunity for private Members to get at least some of their business before the House. So, I support the Motion that will allow the Private Members' Motions to be dealt with today.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Madam Speaker, as a Member of the House, and as a Member of the Business Committee, I want to make it clear that it was my understanding that not enough time had elapsed for the Government Bills to appear on today's Order Paper. That was the main reason why we decided that we should ask the Private Members to begin discussing their motions. But, if they are not prepared, then it seems the only thing to do is to adjourn the House.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I have been on the receiving end of this kind of situation before in my short tenure here and I know the discomfort that it can bring. And while it is not fair to say that this is an uncommon situation, the truth of the matter is that it has been expressed by the Mover of the first Motion that he was, as, his term is, 'gearing up', thinking that he would be starting his motion on Thursday coming. Personally, I hold the view that that should be respected as there are other Motions coming behind him.

I am sure that we are not in a position to decide now exactly how long each of the motions will take before they are completed.

The other point in hand is insofar as it may be more common, or more agreeable to the Government to suspend Standing Orders to allow for Private Member's Motions to occur on a Friday rather than on a Thursday, the truth of the matter is that while the Bills have not had sufficient time, as deemed by Standing Orders, that Standing Order can also be suspended, if they so desire, to deal with the Government Bills. So, as far as I am concerned, it is six of one, half a dozen of the other.

I therefore, support the move to adjourn the House to give the Movers and Seconders of the Private Members' Motions sufficient time to be able to present them properly.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

What has happened here this morning is nothing short of a fiasco which manifests itself in the leadership style of the current Leader of Government Business, as against the leadership style of the former Leader of Government Business. We began by not even moving the suspension of the relevant Standing Order. I can stand here believing the same to be true—that the former Leader of Government Business would not have allowed such a glaring occurrence overtake him. Certainly, if he had intended to carry on Private Members' Motions on a day set down for Government Business, he would have lobbied us informally before the Meeting began to find out our disposition with regards to that. I say the same believing the same to be true in my heart. If other Honourable Members are honest, they would know that that is what this Honourable Member did when he was Leader of Government Business on these kinds of occasions.

I wish to correct an insinuation made by the Leader of Government Business—when he insinuated in his usual way of making such snide remarks—that my colleague had suggested that our business here should be conducted the way Parliamentary business is conducted in independent countries, with the inference that there is an interest. The business of Government has nothing to do with independence or non-independence—it has to do with Procedure. What my colleague was saying was that the correct procedure was not being adhered to.

The Honourable Minister made mention of 'three little Bills', which the Government is bringing. Which three little Bills? The Assets Confiscation Bill is bound to provoke acrimonious debate, that is the same Bill that the Turks and Caicos Islands refused to accept because they realised that it would ruin them.

The Speaker: You will have to avoid anticipating something which is coming down. Please do not discuss the types of Bills which are coming before the House, just the matter of the Motion for the suspension of Standing Orders in order to deal with Private Members' Motions today which is not Private Members' [Motion] day.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I heed your advice.

Regarding the comment of the Business Committee being well balanced. I contend that the Business Committee is not well balanced for, while it is true that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town is an independent Member, he has no greater affiliation with those of us in the declared Opposition than he has to the Government. So the point is that those of us who hold a differing view from the Government have no representation on the Business Committee, therefore we cannot articulate what would be in our interest with regards to the agenda and the Order Papers.

We do not say we do not believe that Private Members' Motions should only be done on Thursdays, what we are asking for is that those of us who have Motions before the Honourable House be given sufficient notice to prepare ourselves.

Of course we embark on some form of preparation when we submit the Motions; the fact is, however, that we cannot be fully prepared when we come expecting our business to be handled on a Thursday, and the business is moved forward by almost one full week. We cannot be as prepared as we should be.

In an effort to avoid wasting the time of the Honourable House, we are asking now that this practice and procedure be adhered to. Certainly, if there was a change, common courtesy and common decency, as well as Parliamentary consideration, would have dictated that we, the Private Members with business on the agenda, should have been informed as to any impending or proposed change prior to this point.

This cannot make for orderly conduct and for good relations among the Members of the House.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, as to whether the House adjourns or moves on with business is a matter for the House. However, we do set a day to begin business and today was set to begin.

When I was not a member of the Business Committee, and on the Backbench, I used to call up the House and ask what business is coming to the House and what was the position of my business if I had any. But, I do not think that the two Opposition Members complaining are at any loss as to how the House conducts [business] because I know that they are constantly here. They are constantly in this House gathering information. I am sure that they would be informed by the Clerk or her Deputy.

As I said, whether the House goes on is left for the House. My desk is loaded with business and I shall conduct it. But, really, Members had set today to do this business.

The amount of business for this meeting stands at 84 questions, seven Private Member's Motions, and only three Government Bills. The Opposition has a preponderance of business before the House. For instance, with regard to my colleague, if they are not prepared, then, as I said we will do what is best for everybody. But, in regards to the Private Member's Motion just moved, this was mooted from the last meeting.

In regards to the third and second Private Members' Motions, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town announced that he would be bringing this Motion from the last Meeting. In fact, in their two public meetings they have been talking about the business that they now have before the House.

I do not really believe that they can say that they are not prepared. If they feel like they do not want to... well, it is a matter for the House. As far as I am concerned I can stay here or I can go back to the Glass House and conduct the country's business up there also. But, Madam Speaker, some of the business, in fact all of the Private Members' Motions by the Opposition, have been talked about months ago—announced in the House, and talked about in very wide terms in their public meetings. I do not believe that they can tell the House that they do not know what they want to say, because they have been saying it on a public platform.

The Speaker: Before I put the question, I have been informed by the Clerk that the day which is in accordance with the provision of Standing Orders to deal with the three bills is the 15th of June. That is the date on which they can, under Standing Orders, be brought to the House for First Reading.

Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, if I may just wind up on this before putting the Motion, and to just clarify a few things. The question whether Government puts business here or not, I think has been clearly set out by the Honourable Minister who last spoke, in that the House has before it substantially all private business. There are the 80-odd questions, and seven Private Members' Motions. This is all Private Members' business. When a Meeting is so filled up with this load of motions and questions, then the Members should come prepared.

What the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, in his long speech about leaders—and by himself, who has only been a follower, and who ever will be a follower . . . What I said in relation to independence - and I would like to clear it because the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman talked about Chief Whips—was because Chief Whips are only found in independent countries with organised parties who are independent with Chief Ministers.

I would have thought that the two Opposition Members would have had sufficient intelligence to pick up the phone and call the Clerk—as the last Minister said. They are always around the Legislative Assembly, they could have asked what is coming up. I have had to do that many times. You cannot expect that the Legislative Assembly staff are going to call around and try to get every Member when it is a simple thing for each Member to pick up the phone and call in and ask what is on the agenda. If they had any interest in what is before the House, I think they should do that.

I hear that that follower—which is all the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, who is attempting to interrupt me...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: [interjecting] just sit down and stop...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: ...will ever be—stating that the question of the Business Committee having the Fourth Elected Member for George Town on it, who sits by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman in here; the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, another Backbencher; it has the Second Elected Member for George Town and it has the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and myself. So, it cannot be said that there is not proper representation on the Business Committee.

Reference was also made by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town about common decency and common courtesy. But if people heard the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman trying to interrupt me in the background, they will find out where the common decency and the common courtesy is.

Madam Speaker, what I am prepared to do at this stage is to withdraw this Motion and then put a Motion to start the business on Monday, if you and the House feel that that would be prudent. If Members are not prepared, I do not really wish to go on in circumstances in which they are uncomfortable. So, I will move the withdrawal of this Motion.

The Speaker: The question is that the Motion previously put by the Honourable Minister for the suspension of Standing Orders be withdrawn.

Would Members be prepared to vote on that? Can I put the question that the Motion to suspend Standing Orders be withdrawn? I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion has accordingly been withdrawn.

AGREED: MOTION TO SUSPEND STANDING ORDER 14(2) WITHDRAWN.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker: The Motion is that the House will resume on Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

If there is no debate I shall put the question that the House will adjourn and resume on Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Before I do say that the House is now adjourned, I wish to correct an announcement I made as regards the day on which Government Bills could be properly dealt with. I understand that that date is now the 19th of June because the Bills were sent out to Members on the 26th of May—twenty-one clear days would make that the 19th of June. The House is accordingly adjourned until Monday at 10.00 A.M.

AT 11.35 A.M. THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 A.M. MONDAY, 5 JUNE 1995.

MONDAY
5 JUNE, 1995
10.07 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Forth Elected Member for George Town to say Prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed. Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Question No. 86, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 86
*Deferred

No. 86: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to state the number of new companies registered since the registration fees were changed in March 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 23(5), I would like to ask the leave of this Honourable House to defer answering that question. The information is currently being prepared and should be available to be answered during the course of this meeting.

The Speaker: The question is that the answer to question No. 86 be deferred until a future time during the meeting of this House. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The answer to the question is accordingly deferred.

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 86 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 87, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 87

No. 87: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development whether telephone charges have been incurred by the residents of Tent City for which the Cayman Islands Government is liable.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the Cayman Islands Government is not liable for any telephone charges incurred by the residents of Tent City.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say if, at any time during its operation, the Government was responsible for any of these fees, and can he categorically state that, now that Tent City is official closed, there are no outstanding bills to come to the Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Madam Speaker, I can safely state that the Government is not responsible for any of the telephone charges incurred by the residents of Tent City. It will be probably for the benefit of this Honourable House if I read a short statement in terms of how that aspect has been handled to date.

With your permission, Madam Speaker, I read: "The Administration of Tent City initially allowed telephone calls to be made by the residents of Tent City by allowing Cable and Wireless (W.I.), Limited to set up a mobile telephone truck at the camp.

"Accompanied trips to telephone boxes were subsequently allowed to also enable the residents to make telephone calls. Latterly, three card phone boxes have been erected by Cable and Wireless at Tent City."

So it is evident from this arrangement, Madam Speaker, that the burden of dealing with this costs has been through arrangements put in place between the residents of Tent City and Cable and Wireless.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 88, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 88

No. 88: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development whether any consideration is being given to removing customs duties from sugar free, salt free and cholesterol free foods.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, Government has no plans to remove customs duties from sugar free, salt free and cholesterol free foods.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say if any approach was made to the Government to have these duties removed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I am not aware of any approach being made to the office of the Financial Secretary. I cannot say if any other Ministries or departments have been approached.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 89, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 89

No. 89: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce which department is deciding the category or "Star" rating of hotels and what is the criteria being used.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, the answer: No department of Government decides the star rating for hotel properties.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Minister say if it is a fact that the new hotel, the Westin, is supposed to be a five star hotel and does Government play any role through a Portfolio, Ministry or Department regarding that claim by that hotel or any other hotel?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, the hotel being referred to by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and its rating, as I understand it, they have always said to Government it is "four stars". Those stars are a responsibility of the hotel to gain the acceptance of the American Automobile Association (commonly referred to as "AAA" which has its own guidelines for determining the ratings, whether they are stars or diamonds. We also look closely at those guidelines.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if it is the case where the Government really does not have in place any mechanism, through law or regulation, in determining ratings on hotels whether they are stars or diamonds in the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, the Member should know that there is no legislation governing this fact. Mainly 85% of our visitors are coming from the United States. Many of those visitors are members of the "AAA", and therefore they look to see what is the rating of the hotel prior to making reservations. I am not saying that that is the case for everyone, but, certainly, that is the case with many of them.

The Government accepted the proposal by the developers of the Westin Casuarina Resort Hotel that it would be a four star hotel and we have sufficient information to know what a four star facility should be. And we will hold them to that.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 90, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 90

No. 90: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce if any attempts are being made to negotiate cruise ship visits to Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Efforts are ongoing to identify medium sized ships which may favour the port of Cayman Brac.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if there has been any indication from any medium size ships which show an interest in visiting Cayman Brac, and if there is anything that its Elected Representatives, or the residents, can do to assist this process?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I can only say that there is interest, but as to what the elected Members and residents can do to assist, I believe there is much that can be done. Part of that is to identify areas of Cayman Brac that would be attractive to cruise ship passengers and see that those are put smartly in place which will cause those cruise ships to sell to tourists on board; whether it be diving, visiting Rebecca's Cave, visiting the Lighthouse on the Bluff, at the Lighthouse, or whatever the amenities are of the Brac that can be moulded into an attractive feature for cruise passengers. It would be helpful if the Members of the Legislative Assembly and the residents of Cayman Brac could come together and move those particular activities forward.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if there has been any specific indication given to his Ministry by cruise ships of a medium size with regards to what they would require, such as, landing facilities, depth of the water or any specifics be it ground transportations? Or have discussions or negotiations not reached that type of details at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, as I mentioned earlier there is interest, and the interest obviously will be displayed by officers of a cruise line or lines visiting the Brac to look at the facilities there as to what the appeal would be to cruise ship passengers.

What is becoming very clear is that there will be a need for an extension of the Cayman Brac dock in order to ensure the safety of passengers who depart or board the ship. The facilities which we utilise in George Town cannot be safe in the Brac, simply because of the layout of the land, and in a majority of cases the prevailing wind is blowing down both sides of Cayman Brac, thus making the tendering process at most times rather unsafe for people to move from the gangway of a ship onto a tender and vice versa.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 91, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 91

No. 91: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what is the average monthly occupancy rate of the George Town Hospital since January 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: The average monthly occupancy rate of the George Town Hospital since January 1994, has been 67 per cent.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Minister say if this percentage figure has been arrived at taking into account all of the rooms available in all the various specialisations in the hospital, and, if so, would he have any idea what would be the percentage in those which are in the General Ward?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer is yes for the entire bed occupancy of the Hospital. I would be willing to pass on in writing the figures of each different section of the hospital.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I thank the Minister for the information to the latter part of the question which he says he will send in writing.

Could I ask if anything at this time is being done to remedy the situation? It is my understanding that there are many instances where beds are not available in the General Ward?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In the instance when there are no beds in the General Ward, the person is held in the Casualty Ward until a bed becomes available. But as we know, we are now in the process of getting things underway for the new Hospital. I certainly hope that this will alleviate the problems we are now experiencing.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 92, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 92

No. 92: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what is the estimated cost of the proposed works to be undertaken in phases at the George Town Hospital site.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, Phase I and II of the new George Town Hospital project will be constructed concurrently. Combined, these phases will include all patient and medical related functions. Phase III will house administrative functions. Of the total budget of $21.7 million, $18.5 million is allocated to Phases I and II, and $3.2 million to Phase III.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, the answer states that $18.5 million is allocated to Phases I and II, and $3.2 million to Phase III. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say if it is estimated that Phase III will cost $3.2 million, or whether that is just what is left of the budget that will be put towards it.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, this is estimated and it is my understanding we should be on line with this projected amount.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister is in a position to give some sort of time frame, although it is in phases, regarding the completion?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

My understanding, Madam Speaker, is that, as projected at this time, Phase I will start in October and finish in August of next year. As I have said this will be done concurrently so the other buildings will be going on simultaneously.

I am not quite sure yet of the estimated time of completion of Phase II and III.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister will be able to say if in order to keep in line with budget, any major changes have had to be made with regards to what his Ministry would like to see as the end result?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Madam Speaker, we have not had to make any major changes.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 93, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 93

No. 93: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to give an estimated start up date of the proposed National Health Insurance Scheme.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

With the approval of Executive Council, a Health Insurance Advisory Committee was assembled and its Terms of Reference agreed. The Committee commenced meeting in January 1995. The Ministry anticipated that, acting upon the recommendations of the Committee, a National Health Insurance Scheme would be implemented by November 1995 after passage of enabling legislation.

Madam Speaker, this Ministry is still working towards that goal.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister would be able to say whether this scheme would be one simply regulated by Government, or whether it would be one operated by Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, the debate and the information gathering is still being done. I would not like at this time to commit to one or the other.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 94, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 94
Deferred

No. 94: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to provide an update on developments of the proposed national stadium project in Spotts.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, under standing Order 23(5), I would like this question to be deferred to a later date in this meeting because the information has not yet been provided on it.

The Speaker: The question is that Question No. 94, be deferred until a later sitting in during this meeting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The question is accordingly deferred.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 94 DEFERRED UNTIL A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: That concludes question time for today. Other Business, Private Member's Motion and Suspension of Standing Order 14(2).

The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14(2)

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I move the suspension of Standing Order 14(2), so that we may continue with Private Members' Motion today.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 14(2), be suspended in order to continue Private Members' business. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Accordingly Standing Order 14(2) is suspended.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 14(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: When we adjourned on Friday, the question on Private Member's Motion No. 5/95 had been proposed and commencement of the debate will begin.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 5/95

VEHICLE INSPECTION, LICENSING, COLLECTION OF FEES, PAYMENTS OF C & W (W.I.) LTD., AND CUC LIMITED BILLS

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Private Member's Motion No. 5/95, entitled: Vehicle Inspection, Licensing, Collection of Fees, Payments of Cable and Wireless and Caribbean Utilities Company Bills, was moved by myself on Friday [2nd June, 1995].

To start with, let me say that my colleague from West Bay brought a similar motion, the First Elected Member, when he was on the Backbench in 1989.

Madam Speaker, everyone is aware of the traffic difficulties that we presently experience in George Town. It is almost impossible at the present time to come into George Town and find a parking space to conduct business. We are also aware of the fact that a lot of our people who live in the outer districts do not have their own transportation and find it difficult to have to travel all the way to George Town to pay for any service that is rendered in this country—be it is garbage fee, licensing a bicycle, or inspecting and licensing of their vehicle.

I believe that the time has come for Government to look at decentralising these services and making as many as possible available on the district level for the convenience to our people and to help eliminate the requirement of having to come into George Town to take care of these essential services.

Madam Speaker, with regard to licensing and inspection of vehicles, I see no reason why... and I have seen it before, for example, in Washington, D.C., where certain garages are certified or authorised as inspection stations. If you need your car to be inspected, you would go to one of these certified garages where they have the required checklist. They inspect your car and if it passes the requirements you get a certificate saying that it has been passed. You then take it to the respective Police Station and pay the fees that are necessary there.

I believe that the Government could take the same approach with regard to the licencing and inspection of vehicles in this country because we have police stations available in all of our outer districts and with the modern technology it should not be very difficult to have a computer link from Central George Town into these outer districts where someone could be employed specifically for the purpose of collecting fees on behalf of Government for these services.

I believe that this move will be welcomed by the general public and I believe that it will eliminate some of the problems that we now experience with traffic congestion and I believe it is a convenience that we owe to our people.

I know the excuse may be brought forward that it means Government may have to hire additional people in order to ensure that these fees are collected and that the outer districts stations are manned. But I believe that the additional expense, if any, necessary would be outweighed by the convenience that this service in the outer districts would provide.

I honestly believe that if Government makes it more convenient for people to pay their taxes, that is, garbage fees, licencing of bicycles, licencing of dogs and that type of thing, as well as vehicles, that it would have a significant impact on the amount of revenue that is collected by Government because people will be more inclined to go to their respective district substations and pay these fees, who would otherwise be discouraged from traveling to George Town to deal with paying for these services.

The other problem that we have in George Town is that, depending on the fee that you are required to pay, you could probably go to three or four Government offices to pay these respective fees. For example, if you are required to pay a garbage fee you have to go to the Tower Building; if you are paying to licence your dog, I understand that you have to go to the Agricultural Department, which is down the road. If you took it upon yourself to licence and inspect your car at the same time, you would have to go to the Central Police Station for that purpose.

So, there is an inconvenience and I believe that by pooling these services in the districts that the convenience to the people would be improved and Government's collection of revenue would be improved as a result.

What I propose is that Government fees, such as garbage fees, maybe animal licencing fees, and fees of that nature, could all be paid and collected at the district Post Offices, as all districts have a Post Office. That could be used for this purpose. Once again, all it would mean is that someone in that office, maybe a member of staff, could be trained to write a receipt or operate a computer with regard to issuing a receipt and making a note of the payment.

I do not think that this would be a very difficult exercise if the Government has the interest in doing so.

This Motion also calls for Government to initiate negotiations with Cable & Wireless and Caribbean Utilities Company to also make payment of their fees possible at the district level. I have been advised since filing this Motion that this process is now in the works and that there are negotiations with Cable & Wireless and C.U.C. to this end. I am very pleased to hear that. I see no reason why these monopolies should not take the initiative or be willing to, if necessary, rent a little space in the outer districts for the convenience of the residents in that area so that they can pay their bills in the districts rather than having to come to George Town or to the West Shore Centre in order to make those payments.

Madam Speaker, in summary, the advantages would be an improved convenience to our people living in the outer districts, an increase in Government revenue as residents would be encouraged to pay fees due to the convenience being offered. It would drastically decrease the traffic congestion in Central George Town and it would also reduce the congestion at central Police Station in George Town because of the sheer magnitude of vehicles which are required to be licensed and inspected on an ongoing basis.

So, Madam Speaker, I believe that this will be a step in the right direction if Government accepts this Motion and agrees to offer these services at the district level.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As the seconder of this Motion, I definitely have to give it my whole-hearted support. I have to agree with what my colleague has said, that it will be more convenient for the people in the outer districts, and even to the Government. It will help eliminate some of the congestion here in town and I feel that this Motion is a good Motion. I once spoke of it myself. I hope that this Honourable House accepts it.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the substance of Motion 5/95 is consistent with the Government's position on the matter of seeking to decentralise the collection of Government fees within the various districts.

The Mover alluded to the fact that the providing of this service will result in additional costs being incurred. This additional cost may not necessarily result from having to employ additional persons, but essentially from having to improve the security of the various collection centres.

The Mover further mentioned that he is aware that negotiations are currently underway with Caribbean Utilities Company and Cable & Wireless to facilitate the collection of fees within the various districts. The Mover and Secunder also put forward a very good point that this would assist in alleviating the traffic congestion presently being experienced in terms of persons having to come into George Town from the various districts. This was brought up in a meeting of Executive Council less than a month ago, so there is a commitment.

However, with the inspection of vehicles, it is not a question that a date can be given in terms of when this will be achieved because the safety of vehicles on our roads is very important. The importance of that, the inspection side of that, cannot be diminished. So, this is a matter that will have to be addressed by the Ministry of Environment, Communications and Works in consultation with the Traffic Department.

Therefore, as mentioned earlier, the Government has no difficulty in supporting this Motion as put forward by the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I think Private Member's Motion 5/95, which is requesting Government to take certain action to bring about vehicle inspection, licencing collection of fees, payment of light bills and telephone bills in other districts, is very timely, practical and realistic.

If we look at the way businesses are located in the Cayman Islands, it seems like the only place that is considered proper, or suitable, would be in George Town or the adjacent Seven-Mile strip. So we find an extremely high amount of density of businesses, of people and of traffic in this area of the Cayman Islands.

In this day and age, and understanding that there are certain things such as overcrowding which is not conducive to the best environment of doing business, it does seem that it is more than practicable to look at extending businesses into other districts.

There is already limited government presence in each of the districts as far as sub-Post Offices go, and there are some districts that have good modern facilities which serve as Post Offices. To the best of my knowledge, the work in these is largely part-time. It should not necessarily be that way for I believe that it is possible for the Post Mistresses to do the additional duties of collecting government revenues other than from stamps. There is no good reason to think that a Post Mistress could not collect garbage fees, or fees for bicycle licencing or motor-car licencing fees and all the rest of it.

There is no good reason why there should only be one place in George Town where all the cars in the Cayman Islands—at least in the island of Grand Cayman—have to be inspected.

I recently saw a copy of a letter written by a lady who lives in Newlands, bringing to the Government's attention the situation over at the Licencing Department here in George Town where the service is, to say the least—and not by any design of the people who work there, but simply because of the limited space and the number of people who have to go there—ridiculous and atrocious. It is pure pain, discomfort and frustration for people to go there to try to licence their cars as they must.

We are supposed to have police in all of the various districts. There has been an ongoing question about the fact that we do not have enough policemen to have 24-hour coverage in the outer districts. I do not believe that. I can believe the fact that more than one Commissioner has said that there is a formula for deciding the number of police it takes to do the police duties in the various districts, but I believe that they can be so deployed that this can happen.

If I were to think of the police station in East End, it is a very large area. There is no question in my mind that inspection of vehicles could be done there and that certain things could be done by the police in that district. There are other districts where the situation is similar. There is limited space in Bodden Town, although that is the fastest growing district in the Islands. But, there are capabilities in these districts for improving conditions there.

If this is done, it immediately creates a growth factor in that some jobs will be created in these districts. I cannot believe that one needs to have a paranoia about places that collect Government's revenue will be robbed every night or every week. I have always heard quite a lot of concern expressed about how Government's revenue will be handled. Well, Government's revenue is already being handled to some extent in the Post Offices, so it is purely a matter of enhancing and improving on this.

It could create full-time jobs for some individuals. I believe that Government could enhance its revenue earning capabilities to some extent, if it offered to the light company and the telephone company the service of collecting their bills through the Post Offices and the sub-Post Offices for whatever percentage fee since there has to be hundreds of people, and in some districts thousands, who would be inclined to go there to pay in that it may be easier than going to Seven-Mile Beach or other such areas to pay the bills.

By developing this concept, I think the Cayman Islands Government would be developing government services to some degree within the Cayman Islands. It is no good just to say that it is being thought of, as is often the case, and the government at this time is looking at it and examining it—something needs to be done if it is to become a reality. Surely, it can only become a reality if the Government works to make it work.

The Mover of this Motion noted that the power company and the telephone company are both monopolies—that is so very true. I do not believe that to improve and to extend its services, or at least collection areas, into the districts would create such a burden on their overhead expenses that we should see any great rise or increase in the amounts which we now pay to these two entities.

The matter of vehicle inspections is becoming an ever-increasing problem in this country. It has to be addressed sooner or later overall and surely a good way of helping to improve the conditions so that there would not be so much traffic congestion, at least on some days, would be by setting up vehicle inspection and licencing [in the districts].

I trust that the Government will simply not accept this Motion (there was a similar one moved in 1989 that was not accepted) and have it fall on that heap where so many motions that are accepted seem to fall, with little to no effort being made to do anything about the motions which the Government undertakes to do something about, and that there will not be any major hold ups in getting whatever little legislation that might be necessary to be changed or put in place to make this possible. The problem is not that we do not see the problem, the problem is that the Government should do something about improving or correcting the problem.

Madam Speaker, I support the Motion that is before the House at this time.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, the part of the Motion dealing with the payment of fees for licencing vehicles seems by far to call for immediate attention.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman just mentioned a copy of a letter which he had received which was written by a constituent of the Bodden Town district imploring the Government to do something about the licencing and collection of fees for motor vehicles. She raises an important point in that letter. She said that if you go into a bank, there are usually 10 or 12 tellers to serve you. But there are so many banks that only a limited number of people will be clients of any particular bank.

On the other hand, the Licencing Department of Government caters to the entire population. Yet, when you go there to pay your licence fees in the morning there are only three tellers. Of course, at times one of them might be away, sick or on leave. It is impossible to go there for any business and get out of there in less than one or two hours, sometimes even longer. The plain fact is that the staff is inadequate in number, although I must admit that the girls who serve there, particularly Mrs. Mary Bodden, who has been there for a long time, seem very efficient and do try to speed up things. But the many little bits of paper that they have to deal with and the confined space in which they operate makes it very difficult for anybody to carry on an efficient business.

Those who have to go there to licence a motor vehicle find it extremely difficult to conduct their business. So, I am happy to support any move that will speed up this process.

Of course, like all things that we do, if you are going to get better service you are going to have to pay for it. There is bound to be additional expense to Government to provide other places and other means of collecting these fees. But you always get what you pay for and the expenditure would be justified.

There is also a hope in the Motion that Caribbean Utilities Company and Cable & Wireless will use some system, if Government can negotiate it with them, whereby fees can be paid in the districts. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman thought that the cost would be so insignificant that there would not be the burden of increased fees. I do not share that view. I know the way these companies have been run—they will take advantage of putting in elaborate schemes which can increase their basic rates, since any operational cost becomes a factor in the fixing of the rates. So, the burden will fall on the consumer.

Apart from the physical difficulties in paying these fees, we have to remember that these two companies, who operate a mafia-type of business with full autonomy, now make it very difficult for persons to pay their telephone or electricity bill on time.

When I receive my electricity bill, I see on it a certain date by which the bill must be paid. That date is usually 21 days from the time the bill had been made up. What makes it difficult for the person paying the bill is that it is never mailed out on the day it is made up. So when it says you have 21 days in which to pay the bill, you probably only have five days by the time you receive it.

The other organisation is even worse. Cable and Wireless has a date by which the bill must be paid, and it is usually under 14 or 15 days from the date printed on the bill as having been the date when it was made up.

So they make up a bill on the first of the month and ask you to pay it by the 15th, when they probably mail it out on the 16th sometimes, or the 12th. It is utterly impossible to pay the bill on time. This needs to be negotiated, although this is not a part of this Motion, but it has to do with the prompt payment of bills.

If the bills can be paid in the districts, the public may not have their utility services cut off as the companies so like to do. In fact, I do not believe part of the franchise is that they can use these high-handed tactics. I know that in Florida, the large Florida Power and Light Company gives its users 90 days in which to pay their bills—of course, they charge interest if the bill is not paid by the 30th day. But that is an arrangement that people can live with. It is utterly impossible for the consumers in this country to pay their bills every month on time, because people travel abroad, people are sick, people just fail to pick up their mail which is sometimes slow. Perhaps if this part of the Motion can be instituted it will go a long way in helping the consumer to not only pay his bills at his convenience, but also to pay them more promptly.

I support this Motion, Madam Speaker, and would like to thank the Movers for its introduction.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am quite sure that the Mover will be very pleasantly surprised this morning as I, too, rise to support his Motion.

There are various aspects of the Motion that have been mentioned thus far which are certainly going to have to be given serious consideration by Government regarding the viability of certain situations. Nevertheless, I think we all agree that the end result being sought is certainly one that we would like to see achieved.

Madam Speaker, in the first resolved section of the Motion, which says: "BE IT RESOLVED that Government initiate a system of licensing and inspecting vehicles and collection of various Government fees in as many districts as possible . . ." my comments will be based on the system which presently exists with the Government.

There are various ways in which the Government may be able to look at this situation and make assessments because I think one might safely say that at present there may well be less hassle getting a vehicle inspected as there is getting all the licenses and fees paid up to date.

The Government might have a problem in being able to put an inspection base in each of the districts. But even if, to start off, the Government is only in a position to do the paper work and have the inspection of the vehicles done at a location, it might still alleviate the given situation at present and it may be their starting point, thereafter working towards getting inspection base put in various locations.

The other way in which the Government might wish to look at it is, if there is a central location in George Town for inspection of vehicles based on the density of the population, to consider one or two more locations for the vehicle inspection and that might be able to satisfactorily service the entire island.

The other thing, which may seem a little bit far-fetched at present, but my view—and it is one which can be debated—is that even if where you have your vehicle inspected and where you pay for licensing the vehicle is in two separate locations, the whole situation may be better if it is decentralised. I think that is the consensus by the Mover and the Seconder and everyone that I have heard so far.

So, while I am not saying that having a location for inspection of vehicles should be different from where you pay the fees, I am saying that if it has to be that way we might still be better off than having it in the one location where it is now.

The other thing, while it has not been mentioned by the Honourable Third Official Member and the Mover I am sure they have thought about it, is how the computer network would have to be organised, because the system is computerised at present. There is also the question of renewing drivers' licences. I think the practicality of that would have to be thought out regarding the camera equipment and the other type of equipment that is needed when you are doing all of that, whether it is worth it to have one in each district. Those are matters which would have to be thought out, and may well have to be taken one step at a time to work out the kinks to see the various areas operate efficiently, to prove to Government that it is worth the effort to provide the service by ensuring that people utilise that service.

So those are some of the areas that I think we need to practically work out. But certainly, it would be a very valuable service to the general public if this department was decentralised and people, rather than having to wait for a long period of time in George Town in order to get their vehicles licensed, could use that time elsewhere.

Madam Speaker, there is also mention made in the Motion regarding Cable and Wireless and Caribbean Utilities Company in making arrangements to have these fees collected in as many districts as possible. At present I think there are several of the commercial banks who are able to collect these fees for both companies. I am not sure how the system works, but it is my view that the various locations which the Government may have collecting could well house a similar operation for the utilities companies and the internal framework and mechanisms to organise. They might have someone going to collect payments on a daily basis, or it may be part of a system operated by Government which are forward to them. All of those things can be certainly ironed out, I am confident. I do not see it being a tremendous hassle for either one of those two companies to be able to organise such service.

I am sure that the Government would take the view that they would assist both companies in being able to organise the collection for these fees once they are so inclined to provide the service for their own collection of fees in the districts.

So with these few points I would again like to say that I do support the Motion. And I trust that the Government, as it has indicated that it has accepted the Motion, will certainly look at the various avenues to carefully think the matter through and whatever the end result it will be the most cost effective and efficient service to the public

Thank you.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate would the Mover of the Motion like to exercise his right to reply?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, let me thank all Honourable Members who spoke in support of the Motion, and also those who supported the Motion silently.

The Honourable Third Official Member, speaking on behalf of Government, raised a valid point with regard to vehicle safety. Madam Speaker, I believe Government can certify certain garages. They would have to be very selective, and as long as they are satisfied that those institutions can provide the service, then there should not be a major concern to have them certified and they should have the confidence that they would do what they are required to do as far as inspection of vehicles. As I said, I saw this in Washington, D.C. and the system seemed to work very well and was convenient to the general public.

If the Government is not inclined to go in that direction, I would suggest that maybe they start with a district like West Bay which is the largest district, putting in place the necessary vehicle inspection ramp for this purpose near the Police Station.

Madam Speaker, I believe that all of the services that this Motion is calling for, vehicle inspection and licensing is probably the most critical service to be addressed. So, I trust that Government will not accept the Motion and wait two or three years from now to see that these services are implemented.

Madam Speaker, I believe that this Motion calls for things that are very essential in this country, and I trust that the Government will move ahead in addressing these issues.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion No. 5/95, entitled: Vehicle Inspection, Licensing, Collection of Fees, Payments of Cable and Wireless and Caribbean Utilities Company bills.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Private Member's Motion No. 5/95 has duly been passed.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 5/95 PASSED.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended at this time for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.24 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.50 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Private Member's Motion No. 7/95, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/95

AMENDMENT TO THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY STANDING ORDERS—NOTICE OF BILLS

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 7/95 entitled: Amendment to the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders—Notice of Bills which stands in my name and reads as follows:

"WHEREAS in many instances the provisions of Standing Order 46(1) (i.e. that copies of Bills reach every Member not less than 21 days before they are proposed to be read a first time) have not been observed;

"AND WHEREAS the public have made known their desire to have a reasonably long time to consider the implications of Bills coming before the Legislature;

"AND WHEREAS, in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 84, Notice of Motion is hereby given to amend the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders (Revised);

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT Standing Order 46(1) be amended as follows:

- (a) by replacing the word "twenty-one" with the word "sixty" where it appears in the fifth line; and
- (b) by inserting immediately after the said Order the following Proviso 'Provided that the Legislative Assembly shall, by majority vote, waive the prescribed sixty days notice of a bill, only in circumstances where the proposed Bill is deemed to be expedient and in the best interest of good government.'"

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 7/95 has been moved and seconded and I shall now put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Accordingly, the Motion is referred to the Standing Orders Committee.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/95 REFERRED TO THE STANDING ORDERS COMMITTEE.

The Speaker: The next item is Private Member's Motion No. 6/95. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 6/95

AMENDMENT TO THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY
(IMMUNITIES, POWERS AND PRIVILEGES) LAW
(REVISED)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to move Private Member's Motion 6/95, entitled: Amendment to the Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law (Revised), which reads:

"WHEREAS members of the general public have no recourse of action against defamatory words said of them by Honourable Ministers/Members during proceedings of the House and/or Committees of the House, nor against any written report, petition, bill, resolution, motion or otherwise;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable Legislative Assembly agree that section 3 of the Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law (Revised) be amended to provide that this immunity shall not extend to personal defamatory statements made by Members of the Legislative Assembly against members of the public who are not Members of the Legislative Assembly and that civil or criminal proceedings may be instituted by members of the public where this provision is breached."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
I respectfully beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion 6/95, having been duly moved and seconded, is now open for debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, this Motion which is now before the House contains considerably thought-provoking controversy, for it is drawing attention to the most fundamental principle under which the Westminster system of Parliamentary democracy works.

It touches on the question of immunities, powers and privileges of Parliament. I have taken time to look at various authorities on this particular matter. The reason why this Motion is before this House is the fact that in my opinion, and in the opinion of many people in this community, the privilege of the House is being misused and abused by Members of this House on various occasions to make personal attacks on citizens of this country who do not have recourse to the same forum as do the Members of this Legislature.

The principle of Parliamentary privilege has been established for hundreds of years. It is considered fundamental to the functioning of Parliament. If we look at Erskine May, it clearly sets out that: "Parliamentary privilege is the sum of peculiar rights enjoyed by each House collectively... and by Members of each House individually, without which they could not discharge their functions, and which exceed those possessed by other bodies and individuals." [Twenty-first Edition, page 69].

Another 18th Century authority, Hatsell, said about the privilege of Parliament and its rights, that these are "absolutely necessary for the due execution of its powers." [ibid., p. 84]

In the text Parliament Functions, Practice and Procedures, by J.A.G. Griffith and Michael Ryle, it states: "It should be emphasised that these privileges are essentially those of the House as a whole; individual Members can only claim privilege in so far as any denial of their rights, or threat made to them, would impede the functioning of the House." [page 86]

Madam Speaker, there can be little doubt that within the British Commonwealth of Nations, where the Westminster style of Parliamentary democracy is practised that immunity and privilege are paramount. For the proof of that I have consulted various authorities—the one I just named, another text called How Parliament Works, by Paul Silk; A Report of a Select Committee on Parliamentary Privilege in New South Wales, Constitutional Law, by E.C.S. Wade and A. W. Bradley; The Constitutional Law of Jamaica, by Lloyd G. Barnett: All of these are outstanding, eminent authorities on the question of Parliamentary Privilege.

Every text that I have consulted supports the concept of privilege in Parliament. All authorities, as well, take note that there is a chance of, and, indeed, actual abuse and misuse of privilege which takes place in Parliament. That is what this Motion addresses: not any question as to whether Parliamentary Privilege is necessary—which it is; nor any question as to whether it should be abandoned. It is not seeking such a thing.

It is requesting certain action where deliberate, calculated actions or words by Members of this House are used in a way to defame a member of the public, particularly where no proof is offered to substantiate the defamatory statements or when the statements made about a citizen are not related to the subject matter before the House.

There are various articles written about this matter. I would like to quote what it says about this matter of privilege from the The Parliamentarian of October 1993: "Parliament is one of the most important institutions in any democratic country, in that it is the body vested with the power to make laws, impose taxation, vote government expenditure, and control government activity. These are very important and delicate functions which can only be carried out with the very minimum of interference." [page 238]

It also says: "The principle of parliamentary privilege was extended to British colonial Legislators." That is why the Cayman Islands has an Immunity and Privileges Law.

One of the main things that is protected under privilege is freedom of speech. Protection of this freedom of speech is very fundamental because it has developed over centuries, so persons who are representing the people of any country which operates under our system of Parliamentary democracy, have the opportunity of speaking freely without fear of facing the courts for things which might be said.

However, there are certain limitations on this whole concept in that these privileges are given for particular reasons.

I would like to read from the book, Parliament Functions, Practice and Procedures, on page 90, where it says: "The parliamentary privilege of freedom of speech applies only to speech in the House and other proceedings of the House itself, but not to reports of proceedings or debates by newspaper or others outside Parliament (although such publication may attract 'qualified privilege' in a court action). Thus parliamentary privilege does not protect a Member publishing his own speech apart from the rest of a debate." This is an interesting thing I have learned since looking into this particular matter.

Madam Speaker, the reasons for the application of privileges today—again I would like to quote from the text I have just mentioned: "Parliamentary privilege has been developed over a very long period. Some matters are firmly established, especially the freedom of speech in debate and other proceedings; the central point has not been challenged since 1887 when, in Dillion vs. Balfour, the court declared that it had no jurisdiction in a matter involving words spoken in the House. This freedom is essential for the effective working of the House. Under it, every day, Members are able to make statements or allegations about outside bodies or persons—and sometimes in offensive language—which they would hesitate to make without the protection of privilege. This is often criticised and undoubtedly privilege may occasionally be abused."

The text further states: "However, the freedom to make allegations which the Member genuinely believes at the time to be true or at least worthy of investigation is fundamental." Madam Speaker, this text is making clear that there are situations which give way to conditions when a Member may make allegations to bring about certain actions. They list certain things here in the text: "Such allegations, for example, may relate to possible corruption by a policeman, or abuse of power by some powerful person or public body, or sale of dangerous toys, or fraud by financial businesses, or breaches of health and safety regulations in a factory, although the Member might not be able to present detailed evidence in support of his statements which would stand up in a court of law." [page 94].

Thus, there are conditions which might prevail in a society such as the Cayman Islands, when Members may make allegations such as those cited there—to bring about a change, to cause the government to act in a certain way. But, through all of the texts that I have looked at (and I have looked at a number) there is no provision made for members of any legislature to come to the Legislative Assembly to directly castigate citizens of the country who may have written a letter to the press which was critical of them; to speak of the letter writers in defamatory terms when it has nothing really to do about changing any particular damaging condition to the country. That is happening in our Legislative Assembly at this time, and all too often.

The Parliamentarian of October 1993, speaks about abuses of Privilege. It reads: "Parliamentary Privileges can, however, be abused. When we talk of the abuse of parliamentary privileges, we are referring to incidences and situations when Members of the House misuse the rights and powers conferred upon them by virtue of their office. Such cases arise when: Members choose to use their Parliamentary Privileges for purposes not related to functions of their office; Members choose to use their privileges outside the precincts of Parliament; and Members choose to take advantage of those privileges even inside Parliament, but commit libel on other people, taking it for granted that they are protected from any court suit as long as they are within the precincts of Parliament." So, other jurisdictions have these types of situations and this particular article was presented at a Parliamentary Seminar held in Kenya.

Madam Speaker, it has reached the point here in the Cayman Islands where it is justifiable for Members and Ministers, who come to this Parliament to castigate private citizens, to have to face them in court, as they would if they were not in the Chamber of this House. There is little doubt that within the Legislative Assembly (Immunities Powers and Privileges) Law (Law 24 of 1965), that the widest privilege is given to Legislators. In section 3, Immunity from Legal Proceedings, I read: "No civil or criminal proceedings may be instituted against any member for words spoken before, or written in a report to, the Assembly of which he is a member or to a committee thereof, or by reason of any matter of things brought by him therein by petition, bill, resolution, motion or otherwise."

There has been an amendment to this particular law to cover Legislators by immunity even when what is said here is broadcast in the Cayman Islands. Wide coverage is given to us as Legislators to do the business of this country on behalf of the people of this country, but never is it given to come here to abuse the citizens of this country who elected us as representatives.

This law was passed in 1965. Through the good offices of the Clerk, I was able to discover who were the members of the Legislative Assembly and of Executive Council at that time. I think it has historical worth and, indeed, any of us who know these people, I doubt very seriously that they could be accused of such actions and behaviours as is now the case.

On Executive Council there was Mr. Desmond V. Watler, Judge G. J. Horsfall, Mr. V. J. Johnson, Mr. Allan Berkeley Bush, Miss Annie H. Bodden, Mr. James A. Ryan. Elected Members being: Mr. Thomas William Farrington, Mr. Spurgeon A. Ebanks, Mr. Dalmain Ebanks from West Bay, Mr. William Wallace Bodden, Mr. Ormond Panton, Mr. Albert Colin Panton from George Town, Mr. Eldon E. Kirkconnell, Mr. G. Burns Ruddy from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, Mr. Anton Bodden, Mrs. Evelyn Wood of Bodden Town, Mr. Craddock Ebanks of North Side, and Mr. Warren Connolly of East End.

I did not have the opportunity of seeing whether the Hansard could be located to see what the debate may have been at that time, but, surely, I would believe that these past Legislators would have only wished to have acquired the privilege which is given by the Mother Country to have that entrenched here in the Cayman Islands.

I do not believe that these persons would be persons who would have indeed taken the advantage and on so many occasions castigated persons here in this Legislative Assembly.

The adoption of the principle of Parliamentary Privilege from the big city or from the Mother of Parliaments, the House of Commons, by the Cayman Islands does not mean that the same attitude of legislators in the former country were adopted accordingly.

I do not believe that past Legislators ever thought that what happens now, where some Members and Ministers take the opportunity to carry out character assassinations on citizens of this country, would have come about. Madam Speaker, there are so many instances of this type of situation.

I know that on various occasions the Chair intercedes in these matters and requests proof from Members for some of the things that are being alleged. Nine out of 10 times there is no proof—it is simply a matter of character assassination. There is not any truth to it to the extent that the Government could start an investigation and bring someone to justice for what the Member is saying. It is done purely as a matter of beating up on someone in a cowardly manner where that person has no right of reply.

In the Hansard Report of the 10th of November, 1994, the Honourable Truman M. Bodden, in debating the Budget, makes the remark: "Whenever one has to look and criticise, I believe that there is so much that was done in this area that was just a simple squandering of the public's money by the previous Government, specifically the two masterminds of it, Mr. Ezzard Miller and Mr. Linford Pierson. We do not now have instances of drugs missing from the pharmacy as existed in the days when Mr. Miller was a pharmacist in Government..." Madam Speaker, I need not elaborate what that statement imputes. If it was the case that the Minister for Education needed to make that statement because he knew that there was, indeed, something that was done which was a criminal activity and that Government could undertake an investigation into that allegation, so be it. But was it? The proof was never produced and we hear of no investigation—but the allegation was made about a person who was a former Minister of Executive Council and who now is a private citizen.

Another example: This statement was made in the debate of the Throne Speech, by the Honourable Thomas C. Jefferson, and I read: "I want the former Member of Executive Council responsible for Communication and Works to tell this country how much money he got out of it, for extending the lease agreement which had 40-odd years to run, back to 99 years. I heard a figure of $1 million, with another million over a 12 month period of time." [Official Hansard Report 17 November, 1994].

Again, Madam Speaker, I do not need to elaborate on that statement for it is clear what that statement is saying.

The point, as is made by all authorities, is: if these types of statements are necessary to bring about an action to have an investigation, where those allegations can be made to bring about justice and bring wrong-doing before the courts, then it is acceptable for privilege to cover Members in those regards. But has such action come about? Has the Minister proffered such evidence? Has it been treated to the extent that the police heard it and the police would choose to start an investigation? I do not know. Perhaps. Has it?

Madam Speaker, this House has become a Chamber, in many instances, where civil servants have had their careers destroyed. Poisonous words from this Chamber have been uttered on various occasions during the past year, particularly. Interestingly enough, the persons who have been attacked by Ministers and some Members of this House have simply disappeared off of the civil service scene under that condition of 'early retirement' in many instances.

I would like to cite another case from the unedited Official Hansard Report, of the 11th November, 1994, where the Honourable Truman M. Bodden says: "We have a situation where the Finance Committee appropriates money to be spent on the Sister Islands and we are finding that substantial parts of it are not being spent. Money that could go out to help the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is just not being used, it is not being spent, and perhaps between a quarter and one-third of the money in the Budget still remains there while the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are not getting the benefit of it.

"This seems to me that the vote control rests with the District Commissioner. The responsibility must therefore lie with him and his friends such as the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, to see that the people..."

At that point, Madam Speaker, I moved a point of order when I said: "The Minister is grossly misleading the House attempt to connect me with the expenditure of any amount of Government funds in Cayman Brac, as I am not authorised to do so by law." Madam Speaker, you did intervene and found it to be a valid point of order.

That is a good example of a matter, a subject, a pertinent topic before this House not being discussed directly on its own merits, but the District Commissioner—who is no longer the District Commissioner—being accused of something exceedingly serious. He supposedly was not spending the money that was allocated by Government to be spent. It was found to be untrue; it was found to be a lie when his Deputy came before the Finance Committee of this country and produced proof—unquestionable proof—that all of the money that was allocated had been spent and they were in dire need of more and what was not spent in any particular vote was simply to be spent a little further on when the job could be started.

Madam Speaker, the difference between myself and the District Commissioner is that I could move a point of order in the House at that moment and the Speaker could intervene and rule on it. But who rules on it for the civil servant? The civil servant simply leaves; or, in this case, this was the type of scenario that played around the person of the District Commissioner, Mr. Oswald Rankine, who has now left that job.

The dialogue goes on in this case by Hon. Truman M. Bodden: "I guess what I am saying is that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is a good friend of the District Commissioner, which I am sure he will not deny."

Madam Speaker, I do not come to this Legislative Assembly—and I do not believe that Members of this Legislative Assembly are sent here—to talk about who are good friends of whom. I do not believe that civil servants must have their careers destroyed by Members of this Legislative Assembly. Particularly where a person of this Legislature is a Minister, he has absolute access to the Governor to put his case before him. The Governor has the power to investigate and that civil servant has a way to be dealt with. It is done from a point of view, in my opinion, of malice and a deliberate act to destroy the character of a person.

It is all covered by immunity in here. Mr. Oswald Rankine has no recourse to the courts. Certainly not. So he takes the blistering.

There are questions regarding the media, and I have certainly had my day with the media for I am very appreciative when I get a good coverage, as I think most Members are. One hopes that that would be in the larger percentage than in the lesser one. However, I get the distinct feeling that we seem to want to deny the very privilege of freedom of speech, which we all enjoy and which we all want and will do everything in the world to have, to the citizens who are not in this House who might write a letter or who may have a critical opinion about us as Members; or the media, whose business it is to report the news, albeit in many instances not correct, or albeit in instances too where sometimes it appears that they make a particular point of not making the point a Legislator would wish to have made.

But, there has to be that coexistence between what happens in this Legislative Assembly, where 15 people are empowered through the vote every four years to act on behalf of the people—not against them... and acting on their behalf sometimes requires a legislator to make allegations because they are aware or they have certain information to a certain extent which can better the situation for that citizen, but not use it cowardly to attack that person.

Madam Speaker, anyone who comes to this Legislative Assembly learns pretty soon that you have to have a tough skin because there is always some Member who will make personal attacks, innuendos or allegations as the case may be. But in these cases there is recourse instantly through the officer presiding over the proceedings—not so with the citizens who come under such attack.

Madam Speaker, I have observed in recent times a general change in the tone of this Legislative Assembly where, in the larger part, Members seem to not be able to discuss the subject or the matter before the House in analytical, sensible, practical terms, offering their opinions. But, by golly, if someone gets up and offers their opinion, there are Members who are waiting to pounce upon that Member for having that opinion. Do not listen to the message, kill the messenger. That seems to be the general attitude.

In the question of privileges of the House extends to things that happen here against the House and its procedures and its Members also as contempt. A contempt, of course, can constitute speeches or writings reflecting on Members' conduct in the House—for example, accusing the Speaker of partiality in the Chair, as is noted in the book Parliament, by Michael Ryle.

Madam Speaker, that is not unfamiliar in the Legislature, or in our country at this time—it has happened. It was noted by the Speaker in a statement that a contempt of the House did occur. We have no Privileges Committee of the House. Was any apology made? No, Madam Speaker. We are in a rift in this Legislative Assembly where I believe the conditions and procedures, which are so revered in Parliaments under the Westminster system, are being eroded. Surely, many people in the public tend to label all of us, because of the action of some, as being disrespectful of their rights as citizens.

Madam Speaker, there are other persons who have in recent times been assaulted from this Chamber—Mrs. Bridget McPartland, Mrs. Ellen Peguero—their only sin is that they wrote a letter, or an article expressing opinions about what the Government was or was not doing. There is nothing wrong with a Minister or Member replying to an article in the paper to set the record straight. But why is it necessary to castigate persons, even making mockery of what their particular profession is. Whether or not one sells alcoholic beverages, or whether one sells candy, once it is an honest living they have a right to it and we should be proud that there are such persons who work in the various areas who do not become charges of the State.

Madam Speaker, there is no question in my mind that misuse and abuse of privilege in our Legislature has reached the point where if Members and Ministers who are responsible for misusing and abusing privilege cannot change their attitude and their ways, then one has to change the Legislation so that they can have their ways changed.

The resolution of this Motion asks the House to amend section 3 to provide that the immunities which Members enjoy does "not extend to personal defamatory statements made by Members of the Legislative Assembly against members of the public who are not Members of the Legislative Assembly and that these members of the public have recourse to the court of law through civil or criminal proceedings."

As life goes on things have to change. I believe that the time has come to change the situation with the wide coverage of privileges extended to this Legislative Assembly because these privileges are being abused to an extent that can hardly be seen as acceptable or reasonable. Therefore, Madam Speaker, I leave the Motion to the opinions of Members of the House and to the will of the majority.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.15.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.20 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion 6/95. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Motion before the House seeks to impose certain limitations on the freedom of speech which Members of Parliament have enjoyed from time immemorial. It would be totally wrong to interfere with the privilege which exists and which has existed for a long time. Such a motion cannot be allowed by this House and, in fact, it should not even be entertained.

A true understanding of privilege is not a mechanism that allows a member to make defamatory statements against people on the outside. We all know that parliamentary privilege exists solely because the House cannot perform its functions without the unimpeded use of the service of its members. Without privilege Members of Parliament could not discharge their functions to the public. They would become impotent and, as the Opener said, privilege is the fundamental right necessary for the exercise of constitutional functions.

As far back as 1675, that is, more than 300 years ago, the House asserted that privilege existed so that Members might freely attend to the public affairs of the House without disturbance or interruption.

The most important privilege given to a Member of Parliament is the freedom of speech in debate. By the latter part of the 15th Century, the House of Commons enjoyed an undefined right to freedom of speech as a tradition rather than what it now enjoys—and which this House now enjoys—as a privilege conferred by law.

It had been felt from ancient times that freedom of speech is so important that the Crown, the Government, ought not to act against a Member directly for something said in the House. If the Crown is not allowed to act against a Member, how can members of the public be given the right to act against a Member?

One of the reasons for the laws, and particularly the Bill of Rights passed in 1689 giving full freedom to Members of Parliament, was because the King himself sometimes interfered with Members and had them punished for statements made in the House.

Having said that and, although the Member enjoys freedom of speech, he does not have—and this is very important—an unbridled right to say anything he likes. It is just like on the outside, a person has the right to freedom of speech but if he goes too far and interferes with other people he may be sued under the law for libel and slander. In this House Members have the freedom of expression, but there is a constraint on it and that constraint is managed by the Speaker in the Chair. I need not tell Members of the many sanctions that may be imposed by the Chair.

Our Standing Order 35(7) forbids a Member to speak against "The conduct of Her Majesty, members of the Royal Family, the Governor, the Presiding Officer, Members, Judges and other persons engaged in the administration of justice or of Officers of the Crown..." Now, all of these people, with the exception of the Presiding Officer and the Members are on the outside. They are given full immunity from what a Member may say regarding the person's conduct.

Standing Order 36(1) states that the debate has to be relevant; the Chair is responsible for order in the House; the Chair may order a Member to discontinue a speech; Members may be suspended. So there are controls on how badly a Member can behave, or how far he can go.

This is not new. As far back as 1610, it was expressed in a Committee on a House of Commons petition that freedom of speech could not well be taken from us without shaking the foundation of the liberties of parliament. If a Member is not free to vote and to bring any question he likes, subject to the Standing Orders, the public cannot be properly represented—the public would suffer if Members were afraid to speak or to vote as their consciences direct.

The privilege of freedom of speech in Parliament, that is in the United Kingdom, was established in 1689 by the Bill of Rights. In article IX, Crown and Parliament concluded that "the freedom of speech in debates or proceedings of Parliament ought not to be impeached or questioned in any court [of law] or place out of Parliament." The privilege was clearly and widely established in both Houses and largely protected from outside interference, whether by the Crown intent on stifling political initiatives, or in decorous criticism, or by the courts. The privileges of Parliament are rights absolutely necessary for the due execution of its powers.

There is an interesting case in the book The Office of Speaker, a test case that took place in 1523. The King's man Wolsey had come to the House of Commons demanding the prodigious sum of 800,000 dollars [pounds] for the war with France. Although he tried to intimidate the Members and demanded an immediate answer, the Members remained silent. Wolsey then demanded an immediate answer from the Speaker. The Speaker of the House at that time was Sir Thomas Moore. He dealt with this in his classic reply, which influenced a similar case 100 years later during the reign of Charles I.

The Speaker, that is, Sir Thomas Moore, excused the silence of the Commons and then "reminded Wolsey that for the House to return an answer without an opportunity for unhindered debate, was neither expedient nor agreeable with the ancient liberty of the House' and as for himself 'except every one of them could put into his one head all their several wits, he alone in so weighty a matter was unmeet to make his Grace answer'."

In our own House, as well as in the British Parliament which we follow, freedom of speech, subject to the rules of order in debate, has been the corner stone of our democracy. A "Member may state whatever he thinks fit in a debate, however offensive it may be to the feelings, or injurious to the character, of individuals;". This we find in Erskine May, the Twenty-first Edition, on page 84. The Member is "protected by his privilege from any action for libel, as well as from any other question or molestation."

"At the same time, article IX preserves the authority of both Houses [that is, in the United Kingdom] to restrain and even punish their Members who, by their conduct, offend the House."

This is what I said earlier, that while we enjoy freedom of speech, we also have limits on where we can go.

While the Members enjoy freedom of speech, it becomes the duty of each Member to refrain from any course of action prejudicial to the privilege which he enjoys.

Although there may have been a few instances in the past where Members may have been a little out of line, I do not think there has ever been an exaggerated case where the Members have embarked upon any course of action which would have prejudiced the privilege which they have enjoyed.

This fight to preserve the freedom of speech has been an ongoing one for many centuries. Quite recently, "On the 15th of July, 1947, the House of Commons by resolution declared that 'it is inconsistent with the dignity of the House, with the duty of the Member to his constituents, and with the maintenance of the privilege of freedom of speech, for any Member of this House to enter into any contractual agreement with an outside body, controlling or limiting the Member's complete independence and freedom of action in Parliament or stipulating that he shall act in any way as a representative of such outside body in regard to any matters to be transacted in Parliament; the duty of the Member being to his constituents and to the country as a whole, rather than to any peculiar action or any misguided group of people [section thereof].'" [ibid. p. 85]

We may compare this freedom to the same freedom of speech that is given to witnesses and officers of the court. What would happen to justice in this country if witnesses were intimidated by the fear that their evidence in court might be a cause for a defamation action against somebody? It is my belief that if we allow this wedge to be put in today, at the next meeting we will have a motion asking to do away with the privilege which the witnesses and the officers of the court enjoy. Then may also come other requests for the removal of other privileges which are enjoyed by Parliament.

There are some people who believe it is funny to attack the Members of the House, and that the Members of the House have no right to reply.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Hear, hear!

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Some years ago they were in this country—and I am happy they have disappeared—with the idea that freedom of the press only belonged to the people in the press and did not extend to the individual on the street.

For me, this is a sad moment to know that I would have to stand up and defend for my constituents and the people of this country as a whole the right to have their Members uninhibited by any fear and to have them worry about their debates in Parliament bringing them into a court of law.

I am totally against this Motion, and I thank you, Madam Speaker and Members of the House, for listening to my few remarks. But while the remarks are few, I will let the whole world know that I am deeply concerned that there has been this threat to the freedom of speech in debate, which I believe would undermine all that we have fought for in all the years since we have enjoyed the privilege of representative government.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Article IX of the Bill of Rights of 1688 (some 300 years ago) provided as follows, and I quote: "That the freedom of speech in debates and proceedings of Parliament ought not to be impeached or questioned in any court or place out of Parliament."

I submit that this Motion is the first of several acts attempting to destroy the traits and principles of democracy in this country, as was quite eloquently put forward by the Honourable Member for Bodden Town who last spoke. It is a deliberate attack on one of the oldest and most important rights which exists in any country, and which continues to exist in all other countries throughout the Commonwealth with the exception of those that have been taken over by radicals and militants who not only destroyed freedom of speech in the House, but destroyed the countries which they sought deliberately to destroy.

Absolute privilege, as it is referred to in law, covers not only proceedings of you, Madam Speaker, and Members of this House, but it covers many other areas are critical and fundamental which in a democracy and to the continuation of the society that we live in.

Gatley on Libel and Slander, the Eighth Edition, at page 158, sets these out: "There are certain occasions on which public policy and convenience require that a man should be free from responsibility for the publication of defamatory statements [words]. The courts are unwilling to extend the number of the occasions on which no action will lie even though the defendant published the words with full knowledge of their falsity and with the express intention of injuring the plaintiff."

It sets out: "An absolute privilege attaches to the following statements:". I would like to show how far this ancient right, this ancient freedom, goes. I am reading now from Gatley on Libel and Slander.

1) Statements made in the course of judicial proceedings.

2) Statements made in the course of quasi-judicial proceedings.

3) Statements contained in documents made in judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings.

4) Statements made by one officer of state to another in the course of his official duty.

5) Statements made in the course of parliamentary proceedings.

6) Statements contained in reports published by order of either House of Parliament.

7) Statements contained in reports of the Parliamentary Commissioner and in communications between him and a member of the House of Commons for the purposes of the Parliamentary Commissioner Act 1967.

8) Fair and accurate reports in a 'newspaper' of proceedings publicly heard before a court exercising judicial authority within the United Kingdom."

This right which is entrenched in Article IX of the Bill of Rights of 1688 is the most ancient, the most important and the most fundamental right that any democratic country can have. The rights within the courts are equally important, and we well know that if one succeeds in destroying fundamental rights within the court system or the Parliamentary system then, ultimately, one can destroy the country and the society in which they existed. This trend is frightening; it really is frightening.

The law relating to this and the rights relating to it have been very eloquently and capably put forward by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. He has very adequately covered many of the areas pointing out that this right always has been, and will continue to be, one of the most important rights that exists in a free society.

Can you imagine, Madam Speaker, what it would be like in this Honourable House if one could not speak freely? What it would be like if one could not vote freely? If witnesses coming before this Honourable House could not have some protection—witnesses before a court could not have the protection which exists? And it goes even further than that, Madam Speaker, because the newspaper that publishes the proceedings of this Honourable House fairly accurately, will also be clothed in the immunity that exists here.

The allegations made from time to time in this Honourable House are fairly minor when you compare them to the United Kingdom's House of Parliament. Anyone that watches C-Span Television for an hour or two will realise how orderly this Honourable House is compared to larger parliaments such as that. So, there is nothing here that would cause any alarm—nothing that is any different now than it has been for the past 100 years in the Chambers of the Legislature, or the Vestry, or any of the other legislative bodies.

The importance of having the right to speak freely is because this Chamber deals with making laws which are the highest form of discipline in this country. The courts similarly deal with decisions that relate many times to very serious and long periods of imprisonment, and could go on to matters which now carry a life penalty, but prior to that carried the death penalty, such as murder. So, there must be preserved the rights that are necessary to ensure that a free democratic society continues.

Balanced against that, which the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town clearly pointed out, is not an unbridled right to say anything one wishes to say within the House. The Standing Orders, and the practice found in May's Parliamentary Practice, sets out clearly that there are limitations to that freedom within this House and the House of Parliament in the United Kingdom. What was said somewhat earlier, the references referred to which must have been 10... well, more than that, probably 12 years ago, relating to missing drugs in the Department which was under the then pharmacist, Mr. Ez-zard Miller, came from the Auditor General's Report at that time. It is not as if this is something, as the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has tried to impute, that was untrue.

I stood up in the House and read 'missing drugs, including hard drugs' that were missing according to the Auditor at that time. I have a right in this Honourable House, or anywhere else, to read or repeat that.

The section relating to other references to another member, Mr. Linford Pierson... Madam Speaker, I will just read here, once again, from the Public Accounts Committee and the Auditor General's Report. At page 34 of his report he states: "The results of this exercise [which related to underbilling of water charges] confirmed underbilling of $2,634 on two accounts, plus underbilling of $1,880 on one other account. These irregularities occurred during the period August 1991 to January 1993 and were attributable to the deliberate manipulation of water meter readings." This is nothing that I am making up, Madam Speaker. And at page 5 of the Public Accounts Committee's report it says: "The result of this exercise confirmed under-billings of $2,634 on two accounts, plus under-billing of $1,880 on one other account. These irregularities occurred during August 1991 to January 1993 and were attributable to the deliberate manipulation of water meter readings by the former Director."

So, Madam Speaker, I do not understand what the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is talking all about. He, himself has levelled very fierce attacks on Official Members, or on an Official Member, in this House. He has attacked other people. This is a part of the democratic process, provided it is within the procedures of this Honourable House.

But, you know what this is all adding up to is that if one succeeds in destroying the foundation of democracy, then one can push this country into independence and destroy it too; because these rights—which have been taken away in several of the other countries around us, where people who came into the legislature or into the courts stand in fear of speaking what they felt was the truth, speaking without having any worry of being put into prison or sued, those countries are now destroyed. They are in shambles because they have destroyed the right of freedom of speech within this Honourable House which has existed from the Bill of Rights of 1688. Very few rights can be followed back over 300 years. As the Honourable Third Elected Member for Bodden Town pointed out, there were places prior to that which established these rights.

Rights are only so good and no further. Suppose that these rights were removed, but the people who are making the libellous allegations are people of straw. Then you really have no rights against them. So, if somebody stands up... which I had to advise on one occasion about three elections ago, a person running for election stood up on the platform and libelled another person and I had to advise him that if he took that case against that man that he had nothing which he could get from him. Therefore, he would be throwing good money after bad. Should it not then be, to balance this out, and this is the extreme to which it could go, suppose this was removed and you take a case against a person who has no money to pay, that is as much as not having a right. Or should people then have to take out defamation insurance to ensure that the people of straw who get into politics with nothing and can stand on the floor and say anything with impunity and not worry because nobody would sue them because they have nothing. What I am saying is that this could be taken to extremes.

But those people in this Honourable House have the same rights as anyone else. I believe that we are going to find that over the next 18 months there is going to be an attempt to destroy this and several other of the privileges of this House. I believe that there is a concerted effort on the part of people to attack and destroy democracy in this country. I believe there is a move by the groups that are now forming out there... which the Good Lord help us if this is what they are going to begin putting forward.

I know that the attacks that have been made on me over my last 20 years in politics are mainly because I have been one of the people that has stood in the way of putting this country into independence and destroying it. I will continue to take that stand and to fight for what I believe is right and to preserve freedom of speech and the other rights that, over the past 300 and more years, have made this country what it is today.

What is perhaps sobering and good for the public to hear is a gentleman of the stature of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, a gentleman who has served in this Honourable House (although not continuously) for longer than any other sitting Member now, even though the Minister for Agriculture has the longest continuous sitting. He has probably seen many of these fly-by-night arguments put up and he has been able to see the wisdom in not letting them destroy the foundation upon which democracy survives.

If this passes this House now it will then be applied against the courts of this country. If you destroy... and it is very clear the communist approach was always to attack the foundations of democracy, it was to attack what has been in place for hundreds of years and worked. They knew if they destroyed that they could destroy the country.

Matters such as this should never even, in my view, have been put out to attempt to put fear in the people of this country that if they could destroy freedom of speech in this Honourable House and destroy it in the courts, then the country must of necessity suffer, and, I submit, be destroyed as well.

I think the Motion is ill founded. There is too much destruction around us where misguided members of other Houses have put forward this communistic approach and they have failed and been destroyed. So I would ask this Honourable House to protect freedom of speech here, protect freedom of speech in the courts of this country and protect democracy. I know that the people of this country can then sleep comfortably, knowing that we will continue as we have done in the past to have a free country. That is what it is all about—to continue to have a free country.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Confucius, the great Chinese sage and teacher, in his Analects, the 13th book, relates a story where he was travelling with his students and they came upon a village that appeared in total destruction and chaos. Sitting by a wall, he met a woman weeping with great travail and conviction. Confucius asked the woman why was she weeping so, to which she replied that there was a man-eating tiger running amuck and the tiger had on the first occasion eaten her brother, then her father and on the third and subsequent occasion, eaten her husband. To which Confucius asked, "But why, lady, do you not leave this place?"

To which she answered. "Because here there is good government. There is a government who respects the people, a government in whom people can put its trust and a government which, when it speaks, speaks for the people and of the people. If I leave, I will leave all that behind, so I prefer to stay and run the risk of being eaten by the tiger."

Confucius took the opportunity to tell his students what the woman meant by good government. He told them that three principles make up a state that is governed well: A well-drilled army, an adequate supply of food, and the confidence of the people. They asked him if he had to sacrifice these things which would he sacrifice and he told them the last quality that he would get rid of was the confidence of the people.

Madam Speaker, any government whose representatives come to Parliament, where they are protected by certain immunities and privileges, to castigate and defame and attempt to destroy the very constituents who put them in the positions of trust—for it is that we hold these positions in trust for our constituents—is not good government.

I do not care how many insinuations are made about radicals, about independence, as could be expected from the last speaker, this issue has nothing to do with radicalism or independence or destruction—it has plainly, Madam Speaker, to do with respect and an interpretation of the trust and faith which our constituents put in us.

I just want to take time to say that those references are like an old hat which will no longer fit. I would like to see how mischievous people are going to attempt to use them in the next 18 months to extend their tenure. For I guarantee you this time, they will not only be buried, but they will be cremated.

This Motion is nothing but an attempt to instil a sense of dignity, a sense of fair play and a sense of responsibility in us as legislators. While I concede that sometimes there is a tendency to be retaliatory, there is a tendency to strike out against people who say untruths, who write unflattering and unfounded allegations and make unwarranted comments against us, we, as legislators and as the trustees of the people must rise above that.

This is a good point to interject: that in every reference where I have come across this whole debate and where people have explained and expounded their positions with regard to privileges, there is absolutely no justification given for this abuse. This is the quintessential point being made by this Motion.

We are cognisant of the fact that privilege has its specific design and role. We are also cognisant that abuse of privilege is equally bad—if not worse—than having no privilege at all. I fail to see, it escapes me, how someone can justify that they are correct in perpetrating defamatory statements because they read them from a text offered by some other people.

You know what I find peculiar, Madam Speaker, perhaps it is so basic that it escapes many people. Each of us, and every one of us, is given to having public meetings from time to time. Why is it that those people who are so bold and so quick to make these kinds of statements inside here, why is it that they do not make them at the public meetings?

You know why, Madam Speaker; I know why and they know why. Because there is no privilege there, and they could be held to account. As to the suggestion that constraints are levied by the Chair, quite true in theory, but what a pity that the Member did not add that the Chair itself comes under some of this abuse from time to time and meets with some of these obnoxious challenges.

Freedom of speech means freedom with responsibility. It is a sad moment indeed when we as representatives and trustees for our constituents use our position to flog them, to castigate and to defame them.

Too often, much too often are the occurrences where Members of this Honourable House take off on civil servants, on members of the public who have no recourse and no right to the same forum—indeed, who are impotent to do anything other than write a letter to the editor, or privately raise a query. Is this democracy? Is this freedom as we would wish it to be? Or is this abuse of the exalted positions which we hold?

I am convinced that the ultimate decision as to the discretion or indiscretion of Honourable Members of this House when it comes to the abuse of privilege will be made by those for whom we hold these positions in trust.

It cannot be right, it cannot be ethical, it cannot be morally sound when the very people who send us here are on the receiving end of our wrath and our ire and vitriolic comments.

Madam Speaker, the disposition of Honourable Members on this Motion will speak for itself, and in spite of the insinuations and the attempts to link this, as has been the custom, to some non-existent imaginary plot, the people will know better. The people will understand that they would prefer circumstances to have not reached this point, but they realise that if some sobriety is not restored, they realise that if a halt is not put then the totalitarianism which was alluded to... and, by the way, the dictatorship does not always come from the masses. The dictatorship can come from the elite as well and it is equally as dangerous. The people understand that this too is a great danger. No one can argue that democracy in its truest form was meant to be bastardised, was meant to be polluted and contaminated by the representatives of the people turning piranhas on the people who put them there.

It does not matter who offered what report, the fact is that it is unsavory, it is wrong and it is not in the best interests of democracy to embark on this type of behaviour.

I will leave the Motion to the disposition of those Honourable Members who have consciences and who dare to exercise those consciences with the warning that what goes around comes around.

Like the Chinese say: "He who murders is murdered in his turn."

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I do not propose to be long because I think that the time taken on the Motion before the House could have been better used to debate some of the other resolutions on the Order Paper.

I have no doubt that the two Members who brought the Motion are well aware of the damage to the conventions of Parliament which have been entrenched since the Magna Carta, if we adhere to their Motion.

I think this exercise of debating this Motion is another way for the Opposition to try to put down the Ministers of Government and our supporters, while at the same time trying to vindicate their political allies.

It is true that we as Members of this House should not abuse the privileges which are the foundation of free speech in this Legislature. All of us, including the two Opposition Members and especially including the Member who just spoke, need to be more sensitive to the feelings of others. When I say all of us, including the Member who just spoke, I include myself, Madam Speaker, because I am not too big to say that at times we are rash with what is before us, or when Members attack us, or when the political would-be-candidates on the outside attack us.

Many times, Madam Speaker, as happened just awhile ago, Confucius is quoted. But Confucian thought, according to one writer, is characterised by a spirit of humanism, moralism and rationalism. It is concerned with human relations upholding humanity or love as its highest value.

Madam Speaker, the truth is that the Opposition should stop being hypocritical. They should shake off their cloak of hypocrisy! What I object to in this Motion... the Members want to protect their political allies, perhaps I would do the same—it is getting close to the elections and we see politics being thrown into everything that has been done in this country. I have never seen so much politics, Madam Speaker, such a far distance away from the General Election.

I really object to this accusation that the general populace is being lambasted or criticised, or their characters are being assassinated in this House to the extent that we now have to change the Law on Privilege in the Legislature. Nothing can be further from the truth. The Opposition is trying very hard to let the public believe that every meeting of this Legislature is characterised by the slandering of some citizen out there. It is so far from the truth that it is a pity that the resolution is before us.

Madam Speaker, it is true that some people write letters, or let us say there are many letters written—some signed and some unsigned. Speaking for myself, Madam Speaker, if I have mentioned any one or two persons—and I do not give some of them the credit of mentioning their names in this Legislature—but at times there are people who have the ability to write things very vicious to make Ministers look bad in the worst way. People say all sorts of things against the policies of Government, and there is no motion or law brought to this Legislative Assembly to attack anyone in particular when we are dealing with issues before the House when an opportunity arises to straighten out something that was said or put forward by one of these letter writers. And what makes it worse, Madam Speaker, is when we know that the letter writers are either political "has-been's" or political "would-be's", or candidates, in other words!

Must we allow them to trample all over us? Must we allow them to say all manner of evil against our policies, or when we debate the Budget, the Throne Speech or some other major piece of business before the House? Should we not rectify it?

I have not chosen to defy anyone's character. If I am attacked I defend myself at most times as vigorously as I can. I have never heard anyone's character defamed to the extent that evidence was not put before the House. The one time that I thought that something could have gone as far as defamation or libel was in the Auditor General's Report. And if they have an issue, then they should take it up with the Auditor General. Ask him where he gets his information? But it is not that Ministers of Government or Backbenchers of the National Team come here with any predetermined law or motion to wreck anyone's character.

Madam Speaker, I know the rules of the House as good as the next man, and better than many. I know when the rules are adhered to, and I know when I am being pushed. I have been here long enough to know when I am being pushed. But for all of that, sometimes I let it go and other times I do not.

Now, Madam Speaker, there have been many efforts to try to get the Speaker to be at odds. I have seen that in one of the letters written by one of the persons who this Motion is supposed to protect, when she questioned your authority. You never heard anything about that from the mover? You heard that some Member was questioning her business. You never heard that she on the outside was questioning the Speaker's authority and what was allowed to carry on. Oh No! That is all right.

But if Members defend themselves and perhaps if the Speaker had choose to defend herself against that particular letter they would have heard the same thing today, Madam Speaker. You would have heard the same thing.

They are going to be candidates in the election, there are no two ways about it. We know what is going on, but that is their business. I suppose, Madam Speaker, that when the time is called, when the bell has rung, the spotlight will be well shed on some of those would-be candidates. I do not think that the Members need to go as far as they are trying to go, because I do not think the situations that arise warrant it. Yes, people's names have been called, but they are people who attack Ministers and other Members of Government and attack people who cannot defend themselves. I challenge anyone on the Opposition to get up and read one part of any Hansard where they can say, McKeeva Bush maligned any civil servant.

If they want to bring an example where civil servants were maligned and they should not have to go back because they were Members of the House, they only have to see what Ezzard Miller used to do other members of the Civil Service, including doctors. Yet they bring this Motion purporting to defend Mr. Miller.

I recall how much the now Director of Tourism, Mrs. Martins, suffered in this House by Mr. Miller at that time, because I used to rise to her defence. I also recall, Madam Speaker, how the present Chief Secretary, the First Official Member, used to be challenged, and if he was not maligning him it was very close to it, the same Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the Mover of this resolution. They have the audacity and the temerity to come here and talk about the Government.

Madam Speaker, what is so bad about the whole thing is that they are trying to make the whole world believe that every citizen in this country has something to fear by this Legislature—except the two of them, of course. It is ridiculous! How about when the same Mr. Miller stood in this House, and others with him, and maligned the character of the Auditor General because of his investigations; when the First Elected Member for Bodden Town was the Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee and had to work closely, hand-in-hand, to get his information. Have they forgotten it? They believe that the people of this country have forgotten what when on from 1989 to 1992. That is why they believe that they can bring a censure motion and all these things to try to destabilise the Government.

Time could be well spent if they wanted to do something about the other problems that Government is having a hard time dealing with. In truth and in fact, we could use some of their expertise, if they have it, to assist us. I tell you, Madam Speaker, that I may be many things, and I know that I am called many things, but one thing that I am not is a hypocrite, because I know that hypocrisy is the greatest sin and I do not know if there is any redemption for those people who cloak themselves in the cloak of hypocrisy.

Madam Speaker, there are no personal attacks on the good people of this country, the citizens in general, there are none. Many times Members will get up, Government and Backbenchers and laud our people and talk about their problems, but the general populace is not maligned. There are only a few people's names that have been called or a few situations that have been mentioned. To suggest that democracy is being thrown out, that all of this bad work is going on in this Legislative Assembly is only putting down the good name of the Cayman Islands.

Madam Speaker, I do not have a lot of the Hansards with me, simply because I did not bring them today, but you can believe that I have in my records of when things were said in this Parliament. Let the House know this: there are avenues for those of us Ministers who will not be able to speak in closing to defend themselves by bringing in the Hansards to show what was said years ago about civil servants and other people.

Madam Speaker, I will close by repeating what I began with: All of us need to be more sensitive to the feelings of others. It is not a one sided thing. It is not just Government, it is the Opposition as well. I do not believe that any of us wants to see these laws that have been around for four, five, six or seven hundred years... which are really not causing the problems—it is not the law, it is Members, it is the people. And all I say to the Opposition is that they should adhere to the same things that they are trying to tell the Government to adhere to. I cannot support this Motion.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.37 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.09 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 6/95.

If no other Member wishes to continue the debate, would the...

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, as I listened to both sides of the debate on the Motion, I was sitting in my usual precarious position on the little four inch thick fence that I am said to be sitting on at all times. I was getting a bit uncomfortable, and every time I leaned one way or the other I felt as if I was going to fall off.

I suddenly realised that inasmuch as there are varying arguments for and against the Resolved section of this Motion, an astounding truth has come out this afternoon. It was stated by the Honourable Minister for Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, when he said the truth is all we need to be more sensitive to others whenever we are rebutting points, or are simply on the attack.

Madam Speaker, the truth of the whole matter is that whenever occasions occur, which might give rise to some individual's feelings that a motion like this needs to be brought to this House, it is always whenever anyone strays from the issue at hand that is being debated.

The first time that I sat in this Honourable House was on the 25th day of November 1992. When the oath was taken I felt a great sense of pride; simultaneously I felt a deep-seated humility. But what came after that was the scare of my life, because I suddenly understood the responsibility that went with the oath. I daresay that it is my personal view that when I sit on that very narrow fence it is because I hold that responsibility to the people of this country very dear to my heart.

Madam Speaker, there are those who have expounded, by way of history and otherwise, on what is termed to be the danger in allowing the passage of this Motion. The difference with me is that I have not had all the time in the world to develop many battle scars to form opinions about people and to think who may or may not be a communist. I simply deal with each issue as it comes to this House, and I think that it is really more than I should be doing. Should I try to pre-empt peoples' thoughts going beyond what I see here in the Legislature?

Now this Motion is calling for this Honourable Legislative Assembly to agree that section 3 of the Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law (Revised), be amended to provide that this immunity shall not extend to personal defamatory statements made by Members of the Legislative Assembly against members of the public who are not Members of the Legislative Assembly, and that civil or criminal proceedings may be instituted by members of the public where this provision is breached.

Madam Speaker, I, for one, will be able to coexist with the other Members in this Honourable Legislative Assembly whether section 3 of that Law remains as it is or is amended as is being asked for, simply because one of the things—even when people may think that I should be more forceful—that I pride myself with is that I do my best to stick to the issues. I do my best to deal with them from an informed position because I believe that is exactly what this job entails—nothing more, nothing less. Everybody wants to do a little bit of showboating sometimes, but there are limits to that.

Madam Speaker, if we look back historically, as the Minister for Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture quite rightly said earlier in his debate, and he said words to this effect: 'I daresay that had I been in the position that the Mover and the Seconder are in, I might have been doing the same thing.' Of course, I understand that his position is not that one, so he certainly cannot defend the Motion as it appears.

As I was saying, historically what really happens is whoever has the upper hand tends to fire a little bit more freely simply because there is always security in numbers. When the tables have turned, those in the minority tend to feel persecuted because they will naturally hear more voices going against them than they may produce going for them. That is fairly obvious. I come back to what was said for the Minister for Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture about being more sensitive towards other.

Madam Speaker, one of the very important things that has come out in the debate this evening—and I sincerely hope that all Members (myself and the other 14 included) take heed—is with regard to the words "being more sensitive". You see, while we try to be correct by way of statistics and we may choose to say that if we added up the different names of people who have been called names by other Members in the House compared to the entire population, they are certainly in the minority. The truth of the matter is that when this happens it has a domino effect on the public. Regardless of whether it is the Opposition who is throwing the punches, or whether it is the Government who feels justified by a letter in the newspaper, or some other comment made by someone to retaliate, people who are outside of this forum do get a distinct feeling that you cannot say this, or you cannot do that because they will climb all over you.

I say that by experience, not by anyone saying to me this is how you should think, because people have come to me and said, "I do not like what is happening but I am afraid to say anything."

I would say; "Well, what gives you that impression?" Then I hear, 'Well, you notice this one wrote a letter and this is what happened.'

While that is the way it has to be sometimes, I simply make the point that the truth of the matter is—even though by number it may well be able to be called isolated incidents—the truth is, coming from this forum it has more of an effect than ordinary street talk. This forum is the nucleus of where the Laws are made in this country. This forum, I daresay, actually tends to dictate behavioural patterns in the people of this country because they hear how we act and they hear what we do, and they take that for the norm.

So, Madam Speaker, we can be talking on either side of this issue that we may choose. It is obvious that the Government feels that the Motion is directed at some actions on their part which are wrong. Naturally, they are going to defend that and say that it is not the case, that the so-called Opposition who has brought the Motion is doing so because they feel that this is their only method to bring this out and they get a chance to debate their points. And it goes back and forth. But in all of that I would asks us all to remember that when it is all over we still have a job to do.

To retain a hold is not something that I could sensibly say does not matter to people or should not matter to people, that is really a pie-in-the-sky statement. It would also be pie-in-the-sky to say that one should not expect those who have aspirations not to make attempts to get a hold on them too. Unfortunately, I guess that is what we have to live with within the system we have, and it is sometimes very difficult for us to temper the balance between those aspirations or the given, along with what we know is right and best for all of us concerned.

Madam Speaker, if we are to really talk about this Motion in the political sense, we could line up all the ducks and find out that the arguments come from political opponents going at each other and questioning the other person's credibility or the ability to do his job, or sometimes their integrity.

I personally wish that we did not have to deal with it like that. I have slowly but surely learned to accept that it will not change, but I would sincerely like to believe that it is possible for us to be able to strike a balance where we can coexist.

Madam Speaker, I am not trying to be a peacemaker sitting on that little fence. But the truth of the matter is that even if numbers deny the passage of this Motion, there is merit to the Motion; not about justifying what one of us may say, and not about whether the Opposition is right and the Government is wrong or vice versa, but about the fact that we should learn not to take our politics the extra mile, as has been happening all around us, and learn to be able to do what we have to do within reason and still end up being able to do what is best for the country.

One might say that this is easy for me to say, but difficult for me to do. I accept that, and respect the thought because prior to being in here I was able to look at things in a very different light and felt a freer to speak on issues in different ways. Ever since I have been here, it seems like everyone wants you to take a position and you cannot stand and freely discuss the pros and cons of something and hope that by general consensus we can come up with the right decision—we seem to have to take a position. Likewise, with this Motion before us, I would have liked to have been able to discuss unencumbered—to be able to sit down and sensibly try to understand the basic reasoning behind either having it or not having it. But the truth is that even when the arguments come for it or against it, they are aligned with their own reasoning—and I can detect that even when it appears so. I really do not think that I am an idiot, I think I have the ability to assess what I hear.

Having said all of that about the Motion, Madam Speaker, purely as a matter of purpose because of the way that I believe we should be dealing in this House and having no thought towards who likes what or dislikes what about it, the fact of the matter is that I personally believe that what the Motion is aiming to achieve is how we should be operating (counting myself and the other 14 Members). And whether the incidents are deemed isolated or not, I have seen too many in my time here where I think people have gone overboard. That is not counting any one side of the House, that includes everybody including myself. I believe that, if nothing more, we should learn from this to be more tempered in our dissertations. Therefore, for what it is worth, whether it is liked or not, I support the Motion.

Thank you.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: It is nearly 4.30 pm. I doubt if any other Member would want to take one minute. I would ask for a motion for the adjournment at this time.

The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this House until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.29 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 7 JUNE 1995.

WEDNESDAY
7 JUNE, 1995
10.19 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Second Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.
Order. Proceedings are resumed.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have an apology from the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town for his absence. He is not well and we hope that he will improve.

Continuing with the Orders of the day, deferred question No. 94, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 94

No. 94: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture to provide an update on developments of the proposed national stadium project in Spotts.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, there is no national stadium project.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Minister would then be able to clarify the nature and name of the project in Spotts where Government recently purchased several acres of property?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the name of the project is the National Sports and Recreation Centre, that is public knowledge, and everything about it is public knowledge already.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, notwithstanding the answer the Honourable Minister just gave about everything being public knowledge, I wonder if he would be in a position to enlighten us somewhat regarding exactly where the project is now, and what the immediate and long-term plans for the project are?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: A response from the neighbouring properties was required. Polling was done by the Public Works Department on 23 January 1995, and they received 62 approvals, 11 objections and 47 were returned mail.

The Central Planning Authority required 89 approvals before the plans could be submitted. A door-to-door survey was then done. Outlined Planning approval was finally given on 17 May 1995.

Madam Speaker, the balance of the question is also public knowledge. I have no further information with me than what I have given this morning.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Minister could say when any physical construction may start with the project since there is outlined Planning permission given?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I have already said that everything else about this project—its phases, what we intend to do—is public knowledge. I do not have the information here. It has been given in statements, written in the newspapers, said on the radio, said on television, and Members have chosen to bandy it about as they please. I do not have any more information, Madam Speaker, that is all I have this morning.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I would just like to say that the reason for my question is simply because many things have changed due to factors that might have either not been taken into consideration or were not known about before. So, while the Minister's answer may be that it is public knowledge, I ask the question—and I ask it again, and I will rephrase it: Are there any changes to what has been publicly said regarding the immediate and long-term plans for the project?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I have told the Member that I have given him all the information I have. Everything else about the project remains the same. Its long-term and short-term plans are all public knowledge. I do not have any more information from what I have already given.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 95, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 95

No. 95: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development how much money has been repaid on the loans of US $5 million and US $2.117 million, respectively, borrowed by the Civil Aviation Authority.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTIONS NOS. 95 & 96

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 23(5), I would like to ask the leave of this Honourable House that the answer to Question No. 95 be deferred until a later sitting during this meeting. I would also like to ask that the same be done for question No. 96, which is asked by the same Elected Member.

The Speaker: The question is that the answer to questions 95 and 96 be deferred until a later sitting of this meeting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The answers to the two questions have accordingly been deferred.

AGREED: QUESTIONS 95 & 96 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 97, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 97 Deferred

No. 97: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture to provide a breakdown of the number of people by district receiving financial assistance from the Government.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 23(5), I ask the House to defer the answer to this question to a later sitting during this meeting. The information is not yet ready.

The Speaker: Accordingly, as moved by the Honourable Minister, the House is being asked to agree that the answer to question 97 be deferred until a later sitting during the meeting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The question is accordingly deferred.

AGREED: QUESTION 97 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 98, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 98

No. 98: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if any requirements are imposed in the licences granted for television in these Islands to date for television service for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In relation to broadcast television, which is available to the public at no cost, the requirement to service Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is not specifically stated in either of the two licences currently in force, but is implied by: 1) the 'licenced area' being defined as the Cayman Islands; and 2) the requirement that '... the licensee shall ensure that the transmission output of the telecommunication service shall at all times be no less than that required for a clear image and clearly audible signal to be available throughout the licenced area ...'

In relation to subscription television, which is available only to those persons who subscribe to it for a fee, the requirement to service Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is specifically stated in both of the licences currently in force in that the licensee is required to provide a minimum of five channels.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Member say if the clauses contained in these two licences are a direct deviation from the first licence which was granted to CITV, the ill-fated television station that went down when these two stations took precedence over it, in that supplying Cayman Brac was not a definite requirement of that licence?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, the licence for CITV was, in fact, executed before my time in the Portfolio and I do not have the specifics. But, as I recall there was a definite requirement for CITV's licence to supply television services to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. It may be that there is a deviation, but I am afraid I do not have that information.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Member say if, in fact, CITN is not really required to give service to Cayman Brac? And whether or not Cayman Brac and Little Cayman get television is if they are subscribers to their signal, be it for whatever and however many channels?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I wonder if the Elected Member could clarify that a little more. I am not really sure what he is trying to determine.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, in the substantive answer it says: "The requirement to service Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is not specifically stated in either of the two current licences in force. But it is implied by the licenced area being defined as the Cayman Islands."

My question is . . . in fact, it is implied according to the answer . . . but is it really in practice that the licensee is required to provide the service to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman? Or is it based on whether there are subscribers to their signal on the two islands of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman? Is it dependent on that?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I think if I could go back to the substantive answer that I gave, the requirement is only implied by the fact that the licensees are required to supply television services to the Cayman Islands.

The specifics of it come under the MMDS, the actual subscribed part of the television where subscribers have to actually subscribe. But it is my understanding that the matter of television to Cayman Brac is now moving ahead and that the broadcast television which is a free channel will be there and, of course, the MMDS, which does not really fall under my Portfolio, the cable television, will be offered to subscribers. I am not sure if I have answered the question, perhaps we will see.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, in the substantive answer it also says: "The licensee shall ensure that the transmission output of the telecommunication services shall at all times be no less than that required for a clear image and clearly audible signal to be available throughout the licensed area [which means the Cayman Islands]."

Madam Speaker, it is my understanding that the signal which emanates from the transmitting device here in Grand Cayman is not capable to cover Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. That being the case, that Government has overlooked being specific that Cayman Brac and Little Cayman should have television service, did they not in granting these licences give these two companies a better deal than they did the pioneering one who had to provide that service for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

My understanding is that in providing that service it went bankrupt.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. As I said earlier I do not have the information on the earlier television company (CITV, the original one), and it is difficult for me to compare without actually having the information on that.

But regarding television in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, it is my understanding that the free channel is available in some form in Cayman Brac, although I must confess that I have not actually seen it. The Honourable Member may be familiar with the signal that is received over there and have specifics on it, but I have not actually seen it. I have not actually had any complaints from the Sister Islands about it, or the lack of it, as the case may be.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I have certainly had complaints regarding the transmission of television from Grand Cayman to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

I would like to ask the Honourable Member if he would look into this matter to determine if Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are not being left out (as they should not be), and that Government will take a decision that these television companies must provide similar services to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman so they will be within the bounds of the contract and licence which Government has granted them.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 99, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, just before I ask the question could I ask the Honourable Member if he would give an undertaking to—

The Speaker: I am sure that he will, sir. That is why I did not press him to reply.

QUESTION NO. 99

No. 99: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is Government's policy on ensuring that competition exists in television service in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Government has no policy that ensures competition in television service or any other service in the Cayman Islands. The Government is appreciative of the benefits of competition, but does not consider it appropriate in a free market economy such as ours to actively promote the duplication of entrepreneurial initiatives to obtain a competitive environment. At the same time, the Government does not normally grant exclusive licences, and neither of the existing television licences is exclusive.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Member say if one company claims to be operating services for two separate licenses in the Cayman Islands at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Government has issued two licenses—one to CITN and the other to CTS, that is the extent of the information that I have on the matter.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Member say if, as far as Government's knowledge of this operation goes, these two companies are operating services separately in the Cayman Islands? I assume it would be stated in their licence granted by Government.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, I would assume that they are operating separate services. They each certainly have a licence to operate.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 100, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 100

No. 100: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if Government has issued any regulations or guidelines to television licensees in the Cayman Islands to ensure that political opinions put forward by Government officials are properly balanced by officially recognised opposition views.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, the broadcast licences issued to local television stations place on the licensees "an obligation to afford a reasonable opportunity for the discussion of conflicting views on issues of public importance.” There are no specific requirements for the licensee to ensure reciprocity of opportunity to holders of political office.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Member say if Government's interpretation and understanding of section 12 of the Broadcasting Law 1977, subsection (d), which says: “It shall be the duty of the licensee to ensure that the programmes broadcast by him (d) include no discussions or debates where persons taking part express opinions or put forward arguments of a political character which are not properly balanced by other opinions” takes the form of what obtains in the Legislative Assembly where the Speaker presiding ensures that there are balanced views and opportunities and that the whole concept of balanced political views relates to that from a legislative perspective?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I tend to think that I am being asked to give an opinion, and I do not know if I am in a position to do that.

The Speaker: I do not think it is an opinion, Honourable Member, since the licences are being issued by your Portfolio. I think that an answer is required. If you cannot give an answer at this time, perhaps later on you may do so. But if a licence is being issued under a specific Law and there are specific provisions laid there, and someone is asking if that has been brought to the attention of the licensee, then I do not think that there is a matter of opinion arising in an answer to be given to the Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In that case, I would undertake to give a written answer to the Member.

The Speaker: Thank you.

The next question is No. 101, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 101

No. 101: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works if Government has taken steps to restrict the use of public docking facilities by local watersports operators.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer to the question is yes.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister would be able, at this point in time, to give any reason for this restriction?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

A restriction was placed on the White Hall Bay facility for two reasons: 1) for repairs necessary from damages caused by the watersports operators; and 2) some restriction had to be placed on a certain area of West Bay next to the public beach because of operators who were driving down and causing a lot of beach erosion.

However, I would point out that Government is presently working along with the operators in an effort to upgrade the facility in the South Sound area that will be more or less to their disposal.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I am grateful to the Minister for advising us of that recent development. I wonder if the Minister is in a position to say if Government is investigating the possibility of working along with the operators to see if there is any other facility that might be provided in the other areas where the restrictions are, so that those people operating in that area may have something somewhere to use?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

There has been constant talk between these operators in question and the Government trying to come to a solution that will be favourable to themselves and indeed the general public. We also have to take into consideration that there are many fishermen, especially here in the White Hall area, and that there has been conflict with . . . as a matter of fact, the facility there was built for the public and mainly the fishermen in that area, who have suffered as a result of the watersports operators operating from there.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 102, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 102

No. 102: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works what is the policy of the Public Works Department regarding the purchasing of aggregate and fill.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The rock marl and chip materials are purchased from whoever can supply the proper material at the best price in the time allowed. Purchase Orders are issued using normal purchasing procedures.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Minister be able to tell us if, whenever any of this rock marl or chip materials are needed by the department, all the providers of those materials are advised, or is there a line of communication whereby everybody knows what is needed, when it is needed, so that everyone has a chance to bid?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

There is only a handful of individuals on the island who actually provide chip material or marl. It is my understanding that the Public Works Department is constantly in contact with these individuals and, as pointed out in the question, it is those who are able to deliver at the time of need and at the best price.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today.

We proceed to continuation of the debate on Private Member's Motion No. 6/95. [pause]

If there is no further debate, I would ask the Mover of the Motion, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, if he wishes to exercise his right of reply.

OTHER BUSINESS PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 6/95

AMENDMENT TO THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY (IMMUNITIES, POWERS AND PRIVILEGES) LAW (REVISED)

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker for the opportunity of being able to reply in respect of Private Member's Motion No. 6/95 entitled: Amendment to the Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law (Revised).

Madam Speaker, the first point that I would like to make is that this Motion is not asking that the privilege that the Parliament in the Cayman Islands enjoys be removed in any part of the resolve. It asks for a specific amendment to that privilege of the House where it would set a limitation on the immunity so it would not extend to personal defamatory statements made by Members of the Legislative Assembly against members of the public who are not Members of the Legislative Assembly, and that civil or criminal proceedings may be instituted by the members so defamed.

Madam Speaker, when I moved this motion I noted that I had researched this matter of privileges in Parliament from various authorities and authors of texts which offer the very best concepts on it. These all noted—without fail—that immunities and privileges are necessary under the Westminster style of government in Parliament so that legislators may speak without fear of persons who might threaten them, and so on.

They can speak with the knowledge that they are protected to best represent the views of the people whom they serve. In serving those people, it cannot be by attempting to defame them in the Chamber of this Legislative Assembly.

This Motion speaks of an amendment to deal specifically with what takes place all too often in this Legislative Assembly—that of castigating and defaming members of the public. What happens here, all too often now, has become like a syndrome for some Members in this House. The names of citizens are used in here like we would use the term “Erskine May,” which is largely looked upon as the bible of parliamentary procedure.

When we refer to one another, Madam Speaker, the Standing Orders require that we identify those persons by their office or by the district that they serve. We do not even use each others' names! In fact, Madam Speaker, if one of us uses the name of another Member in this House, the Chair intervenes in every case to remind Members that it is not permitted. That is to maintain good temper and, indeed, to remove ourselves as far as possible away from personal attacks, individual to individual. Even more so, the Members of this House should not use the names of citizens of this country, the way it happens here so often, to castigate and defame them.

Madam Speaker, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town expressed great concern that such a Motion would even be entertained in this House. Motions like this have been entertained in many Houses of Parliament, including the mother of Parliament, the House of Commons, where it has been referred to the Committee of Privileges and Select Committees to see whether it would be wise to amend these privileges.

There are reports of Select Committees on it because even there they have the type of situation (I am sure much less than we do here) where Members indeed castigate members of the public.

The Minister for Education and Planning says that those of us who see the House of Commons on C-SPAN would know that what happens here is very gentle and that we are not as vociferous. I do not believe for one minute, Madam Speaker, in the whole idea of being vociferous in the first instance, or having a need for vociferousness.

The idea that such a motion should not even be entertained is absurd to say the least. This question of privilege in the Legislative Assembly or in Parliaments in the Commonwealth often comes up for debate at seminars and otherwise. But still the authorities say that it is necessary.

This motion asks to deal with certain specific things: If a Member deliberately gets up to defame a member of the public, then that member of the public has the right to take legal action as he would if this was being said from a political platform.

My colleague, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, made that point yesterday, that what Members say in here about individuals they do not say at their political meetings because they know very well that they would have to face people in court.

The people who write letters to the press being critical of government or a particular Minister have no immunity. It is a criticism, but not one that defames their character. Is it so much to ask that a Minister or a Member write a letter in reply, or play on an even playing field where they respond to the person similarly? Why is it that the Government does not respond with the facts on the matter through the press or otherwise, to letters that may be critical of a Minister or of Government policies? [Rather], they come in this Legislative Assembly to attack the person here personally.

That is what the motion is asking for, Madam Speaker, to put an end to that.

Madam Speaker, it has become more pronounced since the time of this present Government—because the chief offenders are Ministers of this present Government (some of them) and some of their Backbench supporters. It includes civil servants that are simply carrying out their duties as they are instructed to, and it includes members of the public.

Madam Speaker, the Minister for Education and Planning, in his usual manner seems to be somewhere in space talking about things that are utterly and absolutely unrelated to this motion. For he started out... and I did not interrupt as I felt I could have, on a Point of Order, which I believe the Chair would have taken... he went on making innuendoes and all sorts of defamatory remarks regarding me the Mover, and the Seconder of the Motion. Other than that, what he does best is giggle and talk—as he is doing now—with his colleague.

He began by saying, and I read from the transcript, Madam Speaker: “I submit, the first of several acts which are attempting to destroy the traits and principles of democracy in this country. It is a deliberate attack on one of the oldest and most important rights that exists in any country, and which continues to exist in all other countries throughout the Commonwealth, with the exception of those that have been taken over by radicals and militants who not only destroyed freedom of speech in the House, but destroyed the countries which they sought deliberately to destroy.” [Official Hansard Report 5 June 1995]

That is the rambling of the Minister for Education and Planning.

Then, Madam Speaker, at another point he talked about the rights of speech: “This right, which is entrenched in Article IX of the Bill of Rights of 1688 is the most ancient, the most important and the most fundamental right that any democratic country can have. The rights within the courts are equally important, and we well know that if one succeeds in destroying fundamental rights within the court system or the parliamentary system then, ultimately, one can destroy the country and the society in which they existed. This trend is frightening; it really is frightening.”

I agree, this country should be frightened—of him!

He says: “The allegations made from time to time in this Honourable House are fairly minor when you compare them to the United Kingdom's House of Parliament.”

Madam Speaker, I am not here comparing anything with the United Kingdom's House of Parliament. I am speaking about what is happening in the Cayman Islands, and when he talks about Freedom of Speech, that Minister by his actions appears not to allow other persons the freedom of speech that he sings so loudly about here in this Legislative Assembly.

Madam Speaker, The New Caymanian, which has now gone out of business (for how long, I do not know) that he says only hired losers and which he criticised from beginning to end, had something to do with freedom of speech—it is the press, it is the newspaper, it was one of those in this country. He has castigated everyone who ever wrote for the company (and I have transcripts to prove it) including the Editor, the Assistant Editor, some of the journalists—all of them are losers and unemployable and they could have no other jobs except that, according to him.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: We can look in the Hansards.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: But, Madam Speaker, I think we can remember just last year when a citizen, Mr. David Wight, wrote a letter to The New Caymanian where he mistakenly referred to him [the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning] by the wrong title or subject. And we know it is possible even for Members in here because the subjects are shuffled so much. He had to write an apology because this Minister for Education and Planning was offended and told him that he could be sued for libel and defamation, and so on, because of his good character. So he had to apologise. His freedom of speech was attacked by the Minister for Education and Planning.

In the same paper, there was a cartoon of him [the Minister] with embellished ears, and the paper again had to succumb to his threat of action against them and they had to apologise for the cartoon showing him with his ears growing.

Madam Speaker, he talks about communistic trends in this country. He talks about that and he said, “I know that the attacks that have been made against me over my last 20 years in politics are mainly because I have been one of the people that has stood in the way of putting this country into independence and destroying it. I will continue to take that stand and to fight for what I believe is right and to preserve freedom of speech and the other rights that, over the past 300 and more years, have made this country what it is today.”

Madam Speaker, he has quite a record when it comes to the matter of freedom of speech. How tolerant is he of it?

Madam Speaker, I hold in my hand a clipping from the Caymanian Compass entitled, "Libel Case Decided," and I quote: "West Bay MLA, McKeeva Bush was ordered to pay damages and costs to four former members of Executive Council after Chief Justice John Sommerfield ruled yesterday that an article by Mr. Bush published in the Compass in 1983 contained libel. Mr. Haig Bodden was awarded $3,000 in damages; Mr. James M. Bodden, Truman Bodden and John McLean were awarded $5,000 each; and the other defendant, Mr. Brian Uzzell, publisher of the Caymanian Compass and Cayman Free Press Limited, which produced the newspaper, settled out of court earlier...."

Madam Speaker, we are talking about all Ministers of Government at this time. And, at the time, West Bay MLA, Mr. McKeeva Bush was speaking about freedom of speech and freedom of the press. "The article which appeared in The Caymanian Compass of Wednesday, 27 July 1983 was entitled, 'Freedom of the press is a must.' Its publication occurred before Mr. Bush was elected as a Member of the Legislative Assembly (November 1984) and while the four plaintiffs were the Elected Members of Executive Council.

"The article dealt with reports in which Mr. Haig was reported as having attacked the press during a public meeting and advanced his views about licensing journalists."

Madam Speaker, what is of importance here... and I will show how the very things that the Minister for Education and Planning and his present colleague sued someone (who is now their colleague on Executive Council) for is the very thing that he stands in this House and imputes about the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and me.

"Sir John found defamatory a paragraph in which Mr. Bush alleged that Mr. Haig and his colleagues were of the same mentality as 'the Manley's, the Castro's, the Forbes Burnham's, the Maurice Bishop's, the Papa Doc's, and the Sandinista's.'"

And the learned Judge said: "To say that of a public figure who plays a prominent part in the Government of this country, a democracy and part of the free world, must, in my view, tend to lower him in the esteem of the majority of inhabitants here."

Madam Speaker, was the Minister of Education and Planning imputing the same things about two Members of this House (the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and me) that he sued Mr. McKeeva Bush for? I say he was. What is good for the goose (with him) is definitely not good for the gander.

He said in yesterday's speech: "If this passes in this House now it will then be applied against courts of this country. If you destroy... and it is very clear the Communist approach was always to attack the foundations of democracy, it was to attack what has been in place for hundreds of years and worked."

It is true, Madam Speaker, one of the fundamental things in every Communist nation is to silence the populace.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The Minister knows that, so that is what he is trying to do.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: They put everyone who writes a letter that might be critical of the Government in the gulag. Or they come, like he does, to the Legislative Assembly and castigates their ability, their profession, their families and whatever.

Madam Speaker, I do not think that we live in a communist state, but it is certainly possible to adopt certain communistic principles.

Madam Speaker, he says: "What I am saying is that this could be taken to extremes." That Minister is a person of extremes. He is extremely against things like freedom of speech. In fact, freedoms generally. And, Madam Speaker, I offer as evidence what he moved in this Honourable Legislative Assembly on 25 November 1993—Motion 5/93, entitled: "Fundamental Rights Clause of the Constitution."

It reads: "WHEREAS:

"(1) Her Majesty's Government has raised concerns about the removal of the Fundamental Rights of Freedom of Conscience from the Constitution;

"(2) There was some public concern that all the provisions of the Bill of Rights were very complex and needed more in-depth study;

"(3) The United Kingdom's Fundamental Rights are the European Convention on Human Rights and the International Covenant on Human Rights which continue to apply to the Cayman Islands [which they do not, there has been a case to prove that with Mr. Barry Randall];

"BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House recommends to Her Majesty's Government that the changes set forth in Government Motion No. 4/93, excluding Part IV A of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order, 1972, as amended, (being the Fundamental Rights and duties of the individual), be brought into effect as soon as reasonably practicable by an amending United Kingdom Order in Council by Her Majesty and that the said Part IV A be referred to a Select Committee of the Elected Members of this Honourable House for further study..."

Madam Speaker, this Minister moved a Motion to take out of the Constitution (which he wrote in 1993) the Fundamental Rights and Freedoms Clause. For two and a half years he and his colleagues have played around with that particular part of the Constitution. He has now anointed himself as Chairman of that Committee, and that Committee still flounders on.

Prior to that, Madam Speaker, this same Minister moved a Motion in this House to remove the Freedom of Conscience clause of that Constitution.

He talks about his fight for freedom? That freedom must be solely his and his alone for he does not wish for freedom of speech to extend to other Members and people of this country. That seems clear to me. There is an ever-present threat of lawsuits, and people are intimidated and afraid of expressing themselves here in this country. Thus the reason for having so many letters signed "Name withheld by request."

He wishes to deny other people the right to speak freely—which he supposedly cherishes so much here—so that he can stand up and defame people with impunity.

Another good example was all that he had to say regarding the former newspaper writer of The New Caymanian, Mr. Wil Pineau, when he came out and issued a study done by the Chamber of Commerce. He accused him, and I read from the transcript: "Let me show you why the manager, Mr. Pineau, was able to take and manipulate the Chamber of Commerce to get the results they wanted, because we know they have pledged to bring down this Government." [Official Hansard Report 16 March 1995]

If he so pledged, and if he knows of such a thing, then it would seem that he would have taken more serious steps—like suing him—as he is so famous for doing. But those comments, of course, were not true.

Mr. Roy Bodden: He could not say that outside the House because he would have been sued.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Naturally, he could not make those accusations in a public forum. That is why he chose to do it in this House.

He went on in this instance talking about the survey by the Chamber of Commerce: "This is the most stupid thing that I have ever seen and the directors of the Chamber of Commerce had better come to grips with the Chamber of Commerce, or they are going to be led into the same disaster that Pineau has led The New Caymanian because it is now in serious financial trouble."

"The Chamber of Commerce will be in the same situation. He has no managerial capabilities, but very mischievous writing abilities."

He goes on to castigate this person: "Here we have a man (Pineau) who was in a job at The New Caymanian—which they had bankrupted—and he left just in time and went into this job. He could not have gone anywhere else."

Madam Speaker, the Minister for Education is the last person on earth that should speak about freedom of speech. He is an absolute proponent against such a thing, and there is a string of evidence to prove that, where he is concerned, where someone as close as one of his fellow Ministers can attest to with the lawsuit where he wrote to the local paper talking about freedom of the press and freedom of speech and he was sued and had to pay for so doing.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Member take a suspension at this time?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.28 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.52 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continuing the debate.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the suspension, I was replying to some of the wild, unrelated and, indeed, hypocritical statements made by the Minister for Education in his ramblings yesterday, and things he said regarding this particular Motion, relating it to the concept of freedom of speech and how freedom of speech is abused—that Minister being a living, and perhaps the best example of abuse of privilege in this House.

He said yesterday as well, that it is set out clearly in Erskine May that there are limitations to that freedom within this House and the House of Parliament in the United Kingdom—speaking here of freedom of speech. Madam Speaker, I certainly agree with that.

Then he went on to justify why he had attacked the former Minister for Health, Mr. Ezzard Miller, when he said: "What was said somewhat earlier, the references referred to, which must have been 10... well, more than that, probably 12 years ago, relating to missing drugs in the Department which was under the then pharmacist, Mr. Ezzard Miller, came from the Auditor's Report at that time. It is not as if this is something, as the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has tried to impute, that was untrue."

Madam Speaker, I made no such statement about something being untrue. I made reference to the fact that in November of last year he was willing and able to make character assassination references about Government's two masterminds—Mr. Ezzard Miller and Mr. Linford Pierson, about something that (according to him yesterday) occurred 12 years ago. He said: "We do not now have instances of drugs missing from the pharmacy as existed in the days when Mr. Miller was a pharmacist in Government."

Why was he saying this? If this happened 12 years ago, and he was indeed reading it from the Auditor General's Report, there are all sorts of things in the Auditor General's Report. And, as he also spoke about the situation relating to Mr. Linford Pierson, about water meters being deliberately tampered with, who in this country would really believe for one minute that that man would himself be checking out water meters or fixing water meters? Not the Mr. Linford Pierson that I know. Oh no, no, no. Definitely not. But to character assassinate!

My argument is that there are certain times when one has to bring to the attention of the nation, or this House, certain things one believes truly to be wrong. And the authorities say that this is what has to be done in these instances where privilege is used, or these things are said where privilege covers them. But not what happened here yesterday and what was said about this very important matter.

I quote from an article in The Parliamentarian, October 1993, on Privileges immunities and the powers of Parliament. It says: "Elected representatives are not placed above the law by way of parliamentary privileges, but are simply awarded certain basic exemptions of the law in order that the House may function independently and efficiently.

"This is in the interest of the nation as a whole. If anything, privileges are (and ought to be) designed in a way that would safeguard the rights of every elector. For example, the privilege of freedom of speech enjoyed by Members of Parliament is in truth the privilege of their constituents. It is secured to Members, not for their personal benefit, but to enable them to discharge the functions of their office without fear of civil and criminal prosecution." [page 233]

Madam Speaker, this Minister for Education is always talking about independence. Supposedly, he is always defending the world and the Cayman Islands from independence. I truly believe that there is only one person here who would fervently like to see independence in this country—and that is him. But he would want to make absolutely sure that he had the ultimate power, including the power to sanction anyone who was to exercise his right of speech.

Mr. Roy Boddén: He showed them rights by aspiring against his Leader of Government Business.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Referring once again to the landmark case here in this country, the libel case brought by that Minister for Education against his now colleague, who at that time was the West Bay MLA, McKeeva Bush...

The Speaker: Honourable Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, I think you have belaboured that point sufficiently. Could you go on to another point? I think you have talked extensively about that issue.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would like, with your permission, to note something that was said by the Judge in this particular matter, and it relates to: "Deemed defamatory to all four men and the most serious libel was another paragraph which began: 'Until relatively recently, Mr. Haig and his colleagues' antidemocratic activities were all the more effective because they were stealthy and insidiously, rather than frontal and challenging.'"

The Judge said: "To accuse the elected representatives in a democratic country of the free world of undemocratic activities by stealth and insidious means is undoubtedly calculated to injure their reputations by exposing them to contempt."

That is what I think the Minister for Education was attempting to do yesterday to me and the First Elected Member for Boddén Town.

I wish to refer to the section from the book Parliament, by Michael Ryle, just to reiterate one short paragraph. "This freedom [of speech] is essential for the effective working of the House. Under it, every day, Members are able to make statements or allegations about outside bodies of persons—and sometimes in offensive language—which they would hesitate to make without protection of privilege. This is often criticised and undoubtedly the privilege may occasionally be abused. However, the freedom to make allegations which the Member genuinely believes at the time to be true or at least worthy of investigation is fundamental."

And it gives examples when this can be used, Madam Speaker: "Such allegations, for example, might relate to possible corruption by a policeman or abuse of power by some powerful person or public body, or sale of dangerous toys, or fraud by financial businesses, or breaches of health and safety regulations in a factory, although the Member might not be able to present detailed evidence in support of his statements which would stand up in a court of law. Without this freedom parliamentary scrutiny of the executive would be muzzled and individual Members' defense of the interest of their constituents and others would be severely constrained."

To that I can add an example: Last night and this morning two different people from West Bay told me that there is a certain dredging operation going on in that district where permission was given sometime ago (perhaps a year or more, I understand) for a specific time. It is my understanding from another source that called me this morning that it has been extended to include a larger area of dredging. It is also my understanding that the licence set down certain prescribed ways of handling this dredging which was supposed to guard against a certain amount of silt.

Allegedly, no royalties have been paid to Government according to the licence, and where, also, the fill is to be supplied for Government to do roads. I have heard that from three separate people since last night.

I believe that deserves looking into and investigation.

I have also been told that someone has an aerial photograph of the area that shows immense milkiness in the sea. I wonder what Government is doing in that particular area?

Only this morning there was a situation here where a Member asked a question about fill, or materials used for roads. I think that deserves some investigation by Government. I am not a representative of West Bay, but three people since last night have called me about it. It would seem that something there is amiss. I state that because I think that is so.

There is another matter I have concern about that relates to me as a legislator, of which I have been aware of and of which there is a certain duty on me at this time, while everyone is talking about privileges of the House and so forth and so on—that it must not be amended, and it must not be denied and all the rest of it, particularly in relation to the Minister for Education.

For some time I have had a certain document, which I received by way of the mail. It was a flyer, and apparently it was put out during the time of the 1992 Election. The flyer states that "this paper is published by Messrs. W. McKeeva Bush, Thomas Jefferson, John Jefferson Jr., and printed by Economy Printers of George Town Grand Cayman in accordance with The Printing of Papers Law 1991."

It is headed "West Bayers—These are the facts." It lists five different—

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: ...items...

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: I am dealing with the Standing Order on relevance. I have listened to the Member talking about dredging, and something that he suspects might be going on, when this Motion deals with a specific matter. I know that nobody has raised those matters, so he cannot reply to them. I would like a ruling on the relevance of the particular matter he just finished, and the one I suspect he is about to go into.

The Speaker: I was just waiting to hear whether the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman could tell the House about the last document. He said it was issued in 1992 before the General Election. When did it come into your possession? Can the Honourable Member say?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker, it came into my possession earlier this year.

The Speaker: Can you tell the House the relevancy of that document to the matter before the House, which is dealing with an amendment to the Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law (Revised)?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker, it relates to an example of when the Immunities and Privileges Law applies when a legislator wishes to bring something before the House which he believes is of importance which relates to the public interest.

The Speaker: I think I would need to hear more on that. That does not really satisfy the issue at this time.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, this matter relates to statements of denial, issues regarding BCCI, the bank in liquidation and now out of operation.

The Speaker: I am afraid that I am going to have to rule that that would be inadmissible at this time unless there is a substantive motion dealing with BCCI.

Could you please continue without drawing relevance to any past documents or any other issues with the exception of what is really before the House as part of Private Member's Motion 6/95?

The Honourable Minister who raised the point of order has a valid point of order.

Continue Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Referring to the two matters as I did, was on the basis of the fact that such matters may be raised under privilege of the House and that in such instances the question of defamation, and so on, would not come into play. It also accorded with the sections I read from the book by Michael Ryle.

Madam Speaker, I would like your permission to table the article from the Caymanian Compass, which I quoted from extensively, regarding the libel case as a part of the record to show the points which I made regarding freedom of speech and the Minister of Education to whom I referred. The Hansards are the possession of the House and, therefore, they are with the House at this time.

Madam Speaker, on this matter of limiting immunity on the freedom of speech, I agree, as some Members have said, that it is necessary to be more sensitive to members of the public. That is what this Motion is about: It is about stopping Members of this House from defaming members of the public who cannot reply for themselves.

Madam Speaker, this Motion before the House brings into focus just how things are happening in this country at this time and, indeed, in our House of Parliament. It needs to be changed. It should change, and the only way that it can be effectively changed is by an amendment to the wide privilege which presently exists that can stop Members from saying the things which they say in this House about individuals.

It was never intended for abuse or misuse, and, Madam Speaker, in my opinion, those persons who do not support this amendment—specifically for the purpose as stated—would indeed be those who choose to leave this regulation as it is and go on with impunity castigating the people of this country.

Madam Speaker, I leave the Motion before this House for the will of Members.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion 6/95. I shall now put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Roy Boddin: May we have a division please, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: You certainly may.
Madam Clerk.

Clerk:

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson

The Speaker: I said that the vote had already been taken and there were Ayes and Noes. I declared it, then I was asked for a division and the Members who were not present when the vote was taken cannot now vote on that. Please.

Honourable Minister, do you have a point of order?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I sure do.

I would like to inquire of the Chair what the Chair means. This is the first time I am hearing it, and I would like to inquire of the Chair under what Standing Order you are ruling and how far does this extend, whether it is in our seats or in the door, as some Members were coming in, or in the precincts of the House.

The Speaker: I have already said, Honourable Minister, that those Members who were not present when the vote was taken—I called Ayes and Noes, and I heard more Noes than Ayes and I declared that the Noes have it...

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: And we did.

The Speaker:... and then I was asked for a division. Those Members who were not present in the Chamber when I called Ayes and Noes cannot now vote.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I understand that ruling, Madam Speaker. What I am inquiring from you is under what Standing Order are you making the ruling?

The Speaker: It does not have to be a specific Standing Order. It has to be something which is very simple and clear-cut. If I am not present in the room at a particular time, then my name cannot be listed as having been present when the vote was taken.

I have made my ruling on that.

Will you continue, Madam Clerk, taking the vote?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: I have made a ruling, Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I understand you have made your ruling. What I am inquiring from the Chair is how far it extends—to the Chamber, in your seat, or in the precincts?

The Speaker: It would be sitting in the House.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: In the seat?

The Speaker: In the seat, yes.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you.

The Speaker: Please, may we recommence the taking of the division?

I repeat that I have put the question for Ayes and Noes. I got more Noes and I made the declaration that the Noes have it. That would apply to those Members who were in the Chamber at that time.

May we recommence the taking of the division?

The Speaker: We continue with Private Member's Motion No 8/95. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO 8/95

CENSURE MOTION

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 8/95, Censure Motion, which reads:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House has no confidence in the Government whose economic and social policies and public pronouncements are causing unwarranted expenditure, social disharmony, fear and apprehension in the Cayman Islands."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I beg to Second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 8/95, having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, this Motion relates to the performance of the Government of the day as an expression of no confidence in their handling of public business during their term in office.

In 1992 the Government of the day came to power with a very large majority in the Legislative Assembly. It formed the Government Executive and had a large percentage in number of Backbench Members, which it continues to have at this time.

It came to power at a time when the people of this country were highly disgruntled over the actions of the Government it replaced, and there were high hopes that things would be improved. This has not happened, and the people of this country at this time are restless and regularly express dissatisfaction with the policies of the Government of the day.

Its general policy has been one of negativism. The first action under its authority was the stopping of various things that had been left by the Government they replaced. One of the largest expenditures that this country has ever made and which shows no value for money is when the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital was stopped. That has cost this country millions of dollars.

A Commission [of Inquiry] was undertaken and it was found that $4 million-odd dollars had been spent up to the time that the Hospital was stopped; and since that time they are nigh on to [spending] $5 million in paying off contracts which were broken. Madam Speaker, the Government has spent approximately $10 million since that time and the country does not have a hospital.

In addition to the stopping of the hospital the opportunity of having national health insurance, which was actually in place, was scrapped as well. The country has suffered because it has no opportunity as was planned under that particular law for health care.

There was also the disbanding of the Health Authority, which went hand in hand with the insurance and the new hospital. The country has reverted back to the old form of a department under a Ministry and this has caused undue expenses, it has caused displacement of some people in the Health Services and it has caused an unsettled situation with the Civil Service.

The Civil Service has been traumatised. One of the first statements made when the new Government took office was that it would be cutting back the civil service 7.5 percent. This exercise was undertaken and, at best, my understanding is that 20 persons were found to be of retirement age or necessary to be retired. But the whole of the Cayman Islands Civil Service has been put into a state of uncertainty.

Although it was the stated aim of the Government to reduce the Civil Service, they have since that time hired over 100 persons into the Civil Service, thus showing that they have not planned the whole exercise properly when they attempted to reduce the Civil Service.

There have been changes in the Civil Service, which are highly questionable. Top civil servants have been retired early, and it seems that whatever pronouncements are made by the Government of the day regarding any civil servant—including those here in this Legislative Assembly—these persons seem to have fallen into the number of those leaving the Service.

This has created an expense to the Government in that the persons who have retired early have had to be paid monies that they would not have been paid until a later date when they would have reached the normal age of retirement.

This matter continues until now when only last week there was a notice that there would be changes again in the Civil Service in one department, which was amalgamated. It has also been said (and it was in the news) that the Head of the particular super-department, that is, the Department of the Environment, would be changed with someone else being put in his place. The persons who were section heads would be, in effect, paid Head of Department scale because of the work they were undertaking.

That is obviously a waste of Government's money for if the responsibilities and the duties of those departments have been reduced, then the salaries which it should attract should be salaries of Section Heads and not Heads of Department. It is clear that the Government of the day does not have a clear policy where the Civil Service is concerned and the Civil Service is suffering as a result of this. The country is suffering as a result of this because the Civil Service is the machinery by which Government carries out its work.

The National Flight Carrier, Cayman Airways, has also had its share of this Government's policies. These policies have been such that it has caused great expense to the country. Millions of dollars have been paid to the company to pay off various breaches of contract; there is now less aircraft flown by the airlines and many persons have been displaced from their jobs—some retired, others terminated.

In actions taken, it is clear that these have not been sound in that in most recent times there has been notice in the local media that there has been a settlement with the former Managing Director who was dismissed very soon after this Government took office. It is my understanding that the settlement was in the region of $150,000. Obviously, the Government was not sound in making that decision, for if it was it would have fought the case in court and won; there would not have been a settlement out of court.

The Government's policy concerning the airline at this time, is that we have aircraft flying for which the Government has produced guarantees and these guarantees are to be met, irrespective of what should happen and there is no break clause in these contracts—something which the present Government claimed it would never tolerate or stand for. Obviously, the expectation of the public in this regard has not materialised. The country has not had the benefit of a sound Government correcting a problem—which was the main problem, supposedly, at the time and the reason why the Managing director was terminated.

This Government has utilised Government's funds in a way that is highly questionable in paving private driveways in one district of this island while others have not been paved or even slightly repaired. This is a change from the way Government's business is handled in that monies allocated by this Legislative Assembly have always been approved by the Finance Committee for specific purposes. Never before in this country has there been an instance where similar action has been taken by Government. It has created doubt about the fairness in the way Government's money is used, and thus creates doubt about the particular way that the people's money is being handled.

It has led to a situation now where block amounts of money are put in the Estimates with no specific works to be done, and it is left to the political discretion of the Government of the day.

A major change occurred with regard to the Turtle Farm—the only such farm in the world—where the production of meat has been increased and where we have lost touch with the scientific aspects of it in that we can no longer claim that the farm is offering scientific research to the extent that it was before. The Director has left, and at this time the Farm is without a Scientific Officer.

This has caused public concern in that the Director resigned because of the way Government managed the affairs of this Farm, which clearly indicates that there was the strongest political interference in its normal operation.

The Government has further shown that it does not handle money wisely in that there is on record an instance of a purchase of land in the Spotts area, which was allegedly being purchased for a stadium for the country. This land was purchased one day at a price of $140,000 and on the same day bought by Government for $880,000. No justifiable reason or excuse has been given for this transaction.

It has brought the country to wonder, it has caused major queries within the world of real estate which, even now, stand unanswered—money not wisely spent. No proof has been given that a stadium is needed in this country. Indeed, it has been found, and only today confirmed, that a stadium is not being built in this area, there has been a change. It goes to show that the Government is unfocused and it does not have a plan of action.

Priorities are not being set in a manner consistent with a collective way, but each Minister of Government seems to carry on in his own way and fashion.

Never before have there been so many terminations of civil servants, and never has there been such reshuffling in Government; never have subjects been reshuffled from Ministry to Ministry and civil servants from one place to the other, with changes in the affairs and management of Government. Subjects have been changed, and each time it changes there is little indication that the management of these subjects has improved.

Education in the country has been unsettled. Early in the day the plan of education for the Cayman Islands, which had been paid for and came about as a result of the studies done by five of the regions top educators along with one from Great Britain, from UNESCO, was scrapped and education was set back in the country—all over a question if we should adopt the Caribbean Examinations or carry on the GCSC or other such British examinations. Even now, there are a large number of subjects which are taken when the children of this country leave high school. There has been no national curriculum up until this time and thus, there has been money spent, where value for money has not been given and the situation with education now is not as focused as it should be and the education system, and the children it is supposed to educate, are the losers under the policies of this Government.

Under this Government there have been seven lawsuits since 1993. Again, it speaks to the poor management of the Government and to an ongoing situation where breaches of contract and actions by the Government takes them to court and takes the country's money to pay for these lawsuits.

In Immigration, which is one of the most important subjects in this country, the situation has been very similar to the blunders in other areas. In the early part of 1993 certain policies were issued by the Government of the day where certain sections of the Immigration Law relating to Caymanian status were suspended. Instructions were given to the Immigration Board to carry out certain actions. The Board did this, and then the Government at one stage accused the Board of not carrying out its policies and decided to investigate.

The Government Executive Council appointed itself to investigate the matters of Immigration and what they came up with was what was said in the first instance that there were problems in the Immigration Department. Those problems continue and worsen.

The Speaker: Would this be an opportune time to take the luncheon suspension?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceeding will be suspended until 2.15.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.44 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.26 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion 8/95.
The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continuing.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, when we took the adjournment for lunch, I was commenting on the subject of Immigration.

I seriously doubt that there has ever been a time in the history of this country when the people, the foreign residents in this country, have been more frightened when it comes to matters relating to Immigration.

Time and again, the business sector and business people will say they are afraid of being victimised if they speak. They are afraid of this expressing itself in denial of work permits for persons whom they need to employ. I do not believe it is the case that persons called upon to do their duties are not willing to do their duties, I believe that there is a general tendency towards fear and intimidation in regards to the situation with Immigration.

There are programmes on television about it and, of course, there are denials; but everyone in this country knows that there is a general atmosphere of fear of victimisation and intimidation.

As I mentioned earlier, the situation of Caymanian status has been suspended in some areas, such as for persons who have lived here for 10 years and more. They are no longer permitted to apply for Caymanian status—something which has been in effect from the 1970s. Generally, there are serious concerns relating to the matter of Immigration in this country at this time.

There are no indications that the Government of the day is living up to its claims, as expressed in the first Budget Address after it took office, that there would be no more supplementaries as a means of running the country, and that these were 'ticking time bombs' (as it was so expressed), and that such things as supplementary expenditure would no longer be. When one looks at the supplementaries that this country has resorted to over the past two years, one sees a completely different picture. In 1993 alone, there was upwards of $6 million, and in 1994 (if the information I have been able to gather is correct) it is something like $14 million in supplementary expenditure. There has already been supplementary expenditure this year and no doubt there will be more to come.

Among the negative things done, one cannot forget that as one of its first acts the Government decided to stop the benefits that were being given to Caymanian seamen and their spouses, something which those who needed it had benefited from. That was stopped and now, allegedly, it has come back in a manner where it is being better managed; but everyone affected by it knows much better than that.

The road by the airport in Grand Cayman has been changed. Allegedly it has been changed because the Ministry or the Department of Tourism wanted to encourage large aircraft to land here from long range flights. When this all came about, there were those of us, including myself, who spoke about it and said that it should not be done in the way that it was being proposed. But it was.

What was estimated by the Public Works Department to cost in the vicinity of $275,000 ended up costing (according to answers to questions given in this House) $1,178,114. That speaks of the type of financial stewardship that is going on in this country at this time. That money has been spent, and it certainly has not improved the road system in this area—as anyone who drives it well knows.

During the course of this Government's handling and management of the country we have seen an influx of Cuban nationals come to these shores illegally. They were here for almost a year. The last have now all gone back to Cuba. However, during that process, this Government was in negotiation with the United States Government and, I would assume, the British Government, where it has undertaken to pay $10 per day, per person—for Cubans to be taken back to Cuba, their country of birth. We take that as still being the case as I do not know if there is any change to it.

We would seem to owe the United States Government alone $4,321,600 for the 1184 people. The Government has been rather silent on that part of things in recent times. Prior to that we spent, during the time of their being here, several million dollars.

Madam Speaker, one of the things that concerns me perhaps most in this country is the fear, that is real at this time, of victimisation which has come about during the time that this Government has been in charge of this country. They have good cause for feeling that way—even our own people, 100 percent Caymanian, and certainly foreign residents—by the statements made by Members of the Government, and by the stories which are related to one if one takes the time to listen.

Among other things, the Government has undertaken to change the Customs Law. Where before times it was prescribed what was prohibited, now they (the Government in Executive Council) make that determination on a day-to-day basis as the case may be.

I was most amazed to know and, indeed, I was told by a businessman of a certain occurrence where this particular type of condition came into play. Anything that relates to heavy equipment, which could be a link or something for a backhoe, anything whatsoever in this country, now has to have the approval of Executive Council. It is my understanding that it has been assigned to the Portfolio of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. The Minister thereof makes the determination on behalf of the Executive Council.

The person who spoke to me about having been caught in this particular condition was John Hurlstone of Hurlstone Construction. I think the whole world knows that that company has not been allowed to tender for Government business since the Government broke its contract with that company almost two years ago. One wonders how far situations go where this company is concerned.

In fact, when the man told me about certain problems that he had with his importing a crane here to do the business of this company, I did not believe him. I told him that he would have to give me proof of what he was telling me before I would believe it.

He made an application to bring in a crane to use on a hotel construction project on West Bay Road, for which he had a contract in place. After various instances of correspondence with the Government he was allowed to bring in this crane to do business here.

Now, I have also tried to find out whether he claims Caymanian status by birth. I understand that he and his parents, and his parents' parents, do. I also understand that is one of the few fully Caymanian-owned companies. He has been allowed to bring this crane in and this was communicated to him in a letter dated 29th March, 1995. Madam Speaker, I hold it in my hand, and I would like to read it and tender it together with all of the correspondence relating to this matter. I would like to lay it on the Table, it will show how unrealistic and far out this Government is. It has to be personal because his operating a crane, where he stands to lose if he cannot get work, has to be his liability and his problem. But the letter which gave him permission reads as follows: "29th March, 1995; Dear Mr. Alberga: RE: THE IMPORTATION OF A 50 TON ROUGH TERRAIN CRANE.

"Following the receipt of your letter dated 17th March, 1995, Executive Council has reconsidered the application for Construction Equipment Services Ltd. to import a 50 ton rough terrain crane with a boom, swingway, block and overhaul ball. This permission is subject to the following conditions:

"1) The permission is restricted to the intended use by Construction Equipment Services Ltd. (the applicant) in the construction of the new Westin Casuarina Resort Hotel, adjoining Government House on Seven Mile Beach Road;

"2) The permission is personal to the applicant company; and

"3) Following the crane's use on the site mentioned in condition (1), the said crane and its ancillary equipment will be immediately removed by the applicant at its own expense from the Cayman Islands."

I would like to know in this case where the crane was supposed to be moved to. Does he not live in the Cayman Islands, or what? After his company has paid $160,000 (according to the invoices) for the unit, freight of $4,000 and the Government's duties and so forth and so on, how on earth can he—a Caymanian operating a company here—be told he cannot have a crane, he cannot bring it to his country, he cannot operate it?

Madam Speaker, this is rather stupefying. With your permission I would like to Table this document. I think it is something the country might be interested in reading.

The matter of fear and apprehension in this country is, I contend, throughout at this time. If people speak, they speak looking over their shoulder. They are worried it is going to be heard by 'them'—and we know who 'them' are. We know who is threatening about work permits, and I think the best example at this moment in time is what has recently been in the newspaper with regards to a report from a public meeting held in West Bay in very recent times where the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture was quoted as referring to professionals in the country as "cluttering up the infrastructure." That is derogatory and it is insulting to every professional in this country.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: You shut up now!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: His figures are wildly unrealistic, for he contended that there are 3,000 such people and that they pay at present $5,000 each for their work permits, which would mean that the Government collect $15 million. If the Government is going to double this (as he is quoted as saying would be the case) to $10,000, it means that $30 million would be realised from that source alone.

But, of the greatest interest is that in the 1995 Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure, for all work permits, all that is shown there as being collected for work permits is $10 million. I do not know how that can be explained.

That is just one thing that is wrong, but the greatest wrong lies with those remarks [being made] by a Minister. It has to be taken, unless there is a denial. That is the way it works in politics and in Government—when a Minister makes a statement such as that, it has to be taken that that is the position of the Government, particularly when it relates to things such as increases in revenue. That must be the policy.

Madam Speaker, most of my education was in the Island of Jamaica.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Yeah.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I was a student there and I went to University there to study to become a teacher.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: You should have stayed there.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In a country that had everything—EVERYTHING—I heard similar remarks and suggestions in the late 1970s: suggestions that the professionals should leave, suggestions that the investors could leave. They left! And we all know the unfortunate economic plight that that country has seen since those times.

I, for one, do not wish to see that happen here in the Cayman Islands. It can happen here, particularly with a Government whose Ministers say, "Look, you are being charged $5,000. We are going to charge you $10,000 because you all are cluttering up the infrastructure anyway."

Madam Speaker, that is why this Motion says: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House has no confidence in the Government whose economic and social policies and public pronouncements are causing unwarranted expenditure, social disharmony, fear and apprehension in the Cayman Islands." It is causing social disharmony because it is deepening the rift in this country between the foreign residents and the indigenous people.

The Coopers & Lybrand Report on Tourism—which this Government chose not to accept—dedicated two chapters to it, chapters 7 and 8. In the first chapter they said; "The expatriate problem has to be resolved." It also said that: "Expatriates, non-Caymanians, have to be seen as a resource rather than a problem." I am saying that this Government is creating a serious problem in this country that the country is going to suffer for and is beginning to suffer for because it is creating fear, anxiety, apprehension and uncertainty.

One of the biggest problems that we have to face in this country is the number of non-Caymanians who we have to have here to fill the number of jobs that we have allowed the country to develop to that require persons over and above Caymanians. Certainly, if those persons are going to be looked upon as clutter, then we are in for some surprises. This world is a big global village and no longer do people not have the option to go wherever they choose. Certainly, a lot of investments have come to this country because the people investing have believed they were welcomed. It is becoming very clear that that situation has drastically changed—particularly when a Government does not want to deal with the very situation which they make these wild and derogatory statements about.

The Coopers & Lybrand Report says that this matter needs to be brought above the waterline and dealt with. What a way this Government is dealing with it.

Madam Speaker, this Government has not managed the affairs of this country properly—economically or socially. The country is fearful of what is going to come next. The big boom that we hear the Government speak about is not evident to everybody, that is for sure. I have heard that the monies which Government supposedly is expecting to take in have not been that forthcoming, and that the revenue is in trouble. Naturally so. It is going to get worse, too, unless this Government leaves the landscape and gives the people of the Cayman Islands the opportunity of choosing another Government that will be more responsive to its people and the country on a whole.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush:... back-door movement...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: You and your BCCI, maybe. You heard what I said now, you and your BCCI.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: If I got anything out of BCCI, I paid for it. I want to know what you got out of it. Mine is recorded. Can you say where you got all of yours from?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I think this Motion is the first Motion I have seen that is so unfounded that it has no 'Whereas' clauses in it. It makes very serious allegations without any justification within the Motion and, surely, if the two Opposition Members (the Mover and the Seconder of this Motion) had been serious, then they should at least have had the ability to put together a Motion that set out in the usual way what justifies the operative or the resolve part of the Motion. It has absolutely no 'Whereas' clauses in it.

This is a type of Motion that is geared at putting fear into the people of this country. It is geared at destabilising the country and it is geared at disrupting business within this country because nothing could be more unfounded than a Censure Motion where the Movers, either deliberately or through inability to support what they have stated in it, have produced a Motion that is three lines on what is the most serious type of motion that can come before this House.

I believe that this is just another move by a very small, destructive Opposition in this House to attempt to bring down this country because they are frustrated by the fact that there is only two of them, occasionally others perhaps, but two out of 18 Members of this Honourable House who must know that putting a Censure Motion against the Government of 18 Members cannot succeed. So, it must be aimed at disrupting this country and destroying it, which is what I submit is the process of destabilisation which we have seen over the past 25 years in other Caribbean countries by socialistic and Communistic policies which were brought into those countries. We know that they were geared at attacking the fundamental principles of democracy, as we saw earlier in a Motion to abolish a 300 year old right in this House, and now we have wild allegations made in a Motion that cannot be expected to go anywhere and, therefore, must be aimed, in my view, at attempting to destroy the Cayman Islands. It is only in a destructive approach that people who are losers can ever expect to gain anything.

I believe the people of this country are smart enough to know that a destructive Opposition is one that has to be kept exactly as they are—a very small minority of individuals in this Honourable House. They must realise that is the reason why they are still in a very small minority of one leader and one follower.

To bring this Censure Motion after the extensive debate of an earlier Censure Motion in December, and to bring this on totally different grounds than what was brought then, goes to show the unstable train of thought of the Opposition. It goes beyond that to show the cunning way in which there will be attempts at destroying the good that this Government has built up in this country.

What has been put forward by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the wild allegations, I do not believe the country of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman would endorse. Perhaps he is so out of touch with his failure to spend time in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman that he does not understand what his people over there want.

We know it is rare for the Member to spend any length of time over there, and I submit that rather than spending his time in this Honourable House debating a lot of theory and wild allegations, it could be better spent trying to do something for the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman who, I submit, he has in effect abandoned and is now in Grand Cayman and up in Bodden Town trying to stir further trouble up there—political, that is, Madam Speaker.

The fact of the matter is that this is the best that the economic development in this country has ever been. We have figures, and I will go into detail on these further on. Tourism is way up. Things are good in the hotel, restaur-rant and dive businesses. These are facts that cannot be disputed. We have seen in the area of building that there is a boom. The Member even referred to some of the companies that seem to be in serious financial difficulty are now finding jobs out there in the building sector—the one that he referred to earlier on.

In the financial sector we know that a boom is going on. We have led the way with a lot of legislation in promotion for the offshore sector in the area of mutual funds; the number of companies are up, the number of mutual funds are up. We now have the reputation for being one of the largest banking centres in the world, we are well regulated.

Madam Speaker, what I found interesting (I am sure the public will too) is that in his opening the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman really did not touch on anything of substance or significance. He made wild accusations of fear and victimisation. Victimisation of whom? The public out there is far more afraid of people who have Communist and Socialistic ideas in their heads, of people who have a past... and I am speaking generally here, Madam Speaker... of being of the mind, and more so of the dress, of the militants of the past—Che Guevara, and those people. That is what puts fear in this country. You do not see that in this Government or in the National Team. We are people who are stable; we do not have these wild ideas about changing the world and getting into the pure system of Communism and Socialism which has, unfortunately, failed even though it is still being pushed by a few losers who do not even realise that this has been destroyed.

We see, for example, the wild allegations that are set out in the Censure Motion. The Mover is still at a loss as to how to justify them. But I will tell you what the public out there is afraid of—they are afraid of people who want to change the Constitution of this country and move it into an independent country; people who are obsessed with power and who see themselves as Chief Ministers and leaders in this country. That is what the public is afraid of.

Those who supported that line of thinking in the power-hungry move to bring in an advanced Constitution here are all out of this Legislative Assembly, with the exception of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and he is still pushing areas which the public itself objected—to such an extent that it removed a whole Government.

This is where the fear exists. It exists because they realise that if you get a combination of radicals together, the group that I will deal with at a later stage, then you can see the writing on the wall and this country is going to suffer.

Something was referred to, and there was so much rambling here, but one of the criticisms levelled was in relation to the Government's position regarding Cuban nationals. Madam Speaker, if this Government had not negotiated to get the acceptance of Cuban nationals at Guantanamo, they would have still been in this country. The difference between paying $10 per day for a month or two, would have been a lifetime of paying in excess of $10 per day for them—in fact, it was costing us more than that.

If the economics of the Opposition are such that they cannot see the difference between paying a sum for two or three months and paying it for the lifetime of a person, then that is as misguided as this Motion is.

The reference that was made in relation to Immigration is once again a move to upset and destabilise the country. We have to remember that effort now appears to be very concentrated at disrupting and destabilising this country.

We have put out the Immigration Policies and there is no difference now from what it has always been, except that people's rights are no longer held up for years. When this Government came in there were hundreds of appeals that had not been touched by the previous Government—which this Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is now holding the hands of and trying to elevate and do what he can—even if it means destroying democracy and the right to privilege and speech in this House to do so. Some of those appeals have stretched back for several years before this Government came in. That is what should be told. We have cleared most of them up.

Where you find Mr. Ezzard Miller, Mr. Arden McLean, Mrs. Mary Lawrence, Mr. John Hurlstone, Mr. Linford Pierson, Mr. Oswald Rankine, and where you pull all of them together and look at the overall package, then you realise how good the present Government is.

I had someone come up to me the other day and specifically say to me that he did not support me and the National Team, which was a rare statement I must say. But he said, "If the alternative is the package that I see out there, then you will get my vote next time." What is happening now is a package of losers. They are people who are extremists in different areas... I left out Mr. Steve Scott, who has also been in some of these meetings. But when you look overall at that you realise how good this Government is, how good the National Team is.

This is where the fear comes in, Madam Speaker. It is bad enough if within the group there is only incompetence, but add... and I am speaking generally here,... when you compare incompetence along with militancy and the viciousness that sometimes has emanated in the past, you realise how worrying it could be. This is why the country rejected that lot and put them in mothballs.

But they are pulling together again. We have just seen on the floor of this Honourable House an attempt to support the Hurlstone Construction Company—an implication from the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, who does not get to Cayman Brac too often and not to Little Cayman at all that much. But we have a move now because Mr. John Hurlstone is back in the group. That is why it is important to look at how these things are unfolding. But it would have to be ludicrous for the Government to go out and enter into a contract when they are in a court case fighting the same person. That has to be ludicrous from anyone's point of view. This is how ludicrous the Opposition's approach to Government is.

On the one hand you are in court fighting a case and on the other hand you give a contract where you have to sit down and work with those people. Does anybody in business do this? Government has principles of business in many ways, but this is how shallow and incompetent the approach to Government is when we look at allegations of this sort.

I guess you can apply that strategy a bit further. If we were at war... or go back a few years when Great Britain was at war with Germany... but on the other hand they must also enter into a contract to build something? You cannot have a situation with two total opposites arising.

Madam Speaker, in relation to Immigration, the policies that have been put out as draft and discussion policies in a white paper, are out there for all to see. But, instead of trying to look at those and rationalising what the policies are, we just get wild allegations.

The Immigration Policies are fair, but they are firm. They have asked that certain things, such as training, be put in place by organisations that can put those in place for our people. I see nothing there that can be subject to criticism. The fact that the country is in a case of economic boom, business is growing, is a sign that things in Government are stable and good.

A lot has been levelled at education—because I am the Minister for Education, I guess. I do not want to go into a lot of detail about the past, Madam Speaker, but it is a fact that during the period that policies were introduced by the last Government, when Mr. Oswald Rankine was in the Portfolio, presumably with some discussion with the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, the school system had reached a stage where there had been rapid introduction of policies, and no one had the time or the ability to deal with how those policies were going to be implemented.

Perhaps one of the best examples is when the First Elected Member for Bodden Town brought a policy through this House to add another year. But ever since that was brought in (I think some 18 months had passed) no one knew where the year was going.

If that is the ability the Opposition is bringing to education and to this Ministry...

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order First Elected Member for Bodden Town?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker, the Minister who presently occupies the floor of this House is misleading the Honourable House when he says that I, as a Backbench Member, brought in a policy requiring that an additional year be added to the school leaving age. As a Backbench member, Madam Speaker, I cannot bring policies.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, perhaps you would like to explain what you...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What I meant, Madam Speaker, is that a Motion was brought to the House to add a year to it, and I am prepared to merely say that it was supported by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, rather than to have to go back and look at the Hansards.

The Speaker: You are not saying that he brought the Motion are you?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No, Ma'am, no. He voted for it.

The Speaker: Well, that is a different thing. I think one has to be very careful in what one says because if a person who is not a Member of Government is being accused of having brought something into effect and there is no truth in the fact, it really is a Point of Order. So once you clear that up, I will allow that to go by.

It was a valid Point of Order, but please explain further what you meant.

Thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Sure, Madam Speaker.

The policy that was brought in by the last Government in this House and supported by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, was to add another year to the school system, but nobody knew where it was being added. This is how misguided the system was that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman now seems to have forgotten about and is criticising the present system.

Let me point this out, Madam Speaker. The strategies that are being brought in for the Education Plan for the next five years are not my strategies. They should both, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, understand that 353 people in this country have brought in the policies that...

Mr. Roy Bodden: That is foolishness.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: ...and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town says it is foolishness. I hope that the 353 people out there will listen to him, and I hope that he will get up and say that these strategies brought in by the 353 people are foolishness. Let that Member stand up and tell these people it is foolishness.

I submit that this plan, which 353 people have brought in, has taken a lot of their time and dedication over the last year, and it contains good strategies and good policies. I have fully accepted them.

I had nothing to do with this process from the point of view that I was not on the Planning Team or any of the Action Teams. This is something developed away from the Ministry and this is where the confusion has come in with the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. He is attacking this believing they are my policies. I have accepted what 353 people have put together and let me say this, Madam Speaker, the old Calypso says: "10,000 Frenchmen cannot be wrong." If the First Elected Member for Bodden Town thinks that he is so bright and such an educationalist that he knows more than 353 people who put these strategies together, then let him stand up in the House and justify on what basis he is saying so. He is not attacking me. As I said, these policies are policies of the people of this country.

But this is how this Government works in relation to how the past Government worked and, I submit, how the Opposition sees that a Government should work. They believe in sitting down, writing out these policies, and not involving the public at large.

So you are back to a situation where the view is that one man is right—the First Elected Member for Bodden Town—and the public is wrong. When you get to that stage it is no wonder you spend all your life as a follower, rather than ever getting into a leadership situation.

I would like to challenge that Member, when he gets up to speak, to explain why 353 people are wrong in this Education Plan.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I will do that when you explain...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What was levelled in this House at education and the Education Plan is totally unfounded. It is, in my view, confusion by two Members of this House—the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town—who have not been teachers, one in about 20 years and the other in about 12 or 15. They do not understand and they are not up-to-date as professional teachers.

Half of the 353 people were professional teachers who practise their profession and I will rely on them any day. I have fully accepted this and I reject the views put forward by the two Opposition Members when it comes to giving advice on education and the school system. They have been defunct as teachers for a very long time. Like everything else, one has to keep up to date and be involved in the classroom and in education if one is going to understand what is going on.

I remember back not very long ago, I referred to the Welsh Joint Exams and one of the Members asked me what that is. I agree that it only came in about ten years ago, but I had assumed that they would at least have known that much.

The strategies set out have been laid on the Table of this Honourable House... and I would like to take this opportunity on behalf of this House (naturally excluding the two Members who attacked it) and the National Team to compliment and thank the staff of the Education Department and all those people who took their precious time to help build a system of education that is good for the children of this country.

That is where everything has to end. This is the future of this country, a generation of children that will be the leaders of tomorrow. Hopefully—and I know they will not if they follow policies like this—they will not be radicals or militants who are off on a single-minded obverse approach to life.

I am prepared to defend these policies throughout, and I am prepared to stand fully behind the 353 people who have produced this Education Development Plan. I believe that there is nothing that can be said by the two Opposition Members that can detract from what I regard as the best plan that the school system has ever seen.

The results are already coming in. From a situation where we had a lot of disruptions and a lot of behavioural problems two years ago when the National Team came in, we are now in a position where there is a lot more guidance within the schools and there is very little of the behavioural problems that we saw a couple of years ago. I am very happy for this; especially in the two high schools, there are a lot of students and it is good to see that they have now settled.

But you know, a lot of what was stirred then about the schools is once again being pushed by Members within this House. If there is one line of ability that I must say the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman especially has, it is his ability to stir things up and cause disruption. I cannot say that ability also goes on to the First Elected Member for Bodden Town because he merely follows and gets caught in the wake of it.

The social policies in this country have shown that juvenile crime is down from a high of nearly 300 convictions to an all time low (at least in the last few years) of under 200—somewhere in the area of 179 or 180. I submit that this has been to a large extent by the efforts of the churches and service clubs, and also of the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture who has done a lot to channel the efforts and the energies of young people to areas that are wholesome and away from the downside of crime and drugs.

While it is a combined effort, I think that Minister has really put forth extra effort to develop sports and to bring competitive sports to these islands. I know that he is quite capable of setting out his policies and he will do so.

The attack this time against this Government is so wide, it seems to range over everything that both the Elected and Official Members are dealing with. The results at the schools in the final examinations have been very good—CXC, GCSC exams have been extremely good.

I know that one Member referred to the problems that have been seen in the newspaper here and in Jamaica, but I guess there are controls with problems over the system in CXC, as over any system, and we can only hope that whatever the problems were that they will not affect us here too much.

But I would like to come back to deal with this a bit more at a later stage.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Minister take a suspension at this time?

Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.31 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.54 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister For Education and Planning continuing the debate.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

There have been aspersions cast against Cayman Airways and it seems that there are those who do not want to believe that Cayman Airways has considerably improved its position over the past two years. But then there are those who do not really wish to see anything good or any stabilising within Cayman Airways, or any other aspect of the Government.

It is a fact that under the last Government they lost US$34.6 million over a period of two and a half years. That was paid out of the pockets of the people of this country. They are still paying for that because a loan of US$26 million had to be taken out by this Government to pay for debts incurred prior to November 1992.

In that Government we had the other colleague of this group that I named earlier who is supposed to be the financial expert—Mr. Linford Pierson. Despite predicting some very fair, good and profitable positions for Cayman Airways, they continued to lose money to such an extent that in 1992, despite the fact that in the middle of that year in the June Session a Motion was passed to raise this CI$16 million for Cayman Airways, the country was in such a state that it could not borrow that money from the banks here.

But this is what the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town would like to forget. They are bringing back, or keeping company with, the same people who were rejected by the public two and a half years ago, the architects of the financial problems of this country—Mr. Ezzard Miller and Mr. Linford Pierson—who were Members of the Government back then.

The public will go on paying for that $34 million mistake... and, by the way, that was financed from $12.2 million that they received for selling the 727-200s, which I must say the two Opposition Members (as Backbenchers with us) had the wisdom to object to. That was when they were keeping company with us. The sale of those two 727-200s was a mistake. We would have owned them two years ago and had no lease payments to make on them.

So, if the wisdom that came through in the dismal financial position of the last Government is now one that the two Opposition Members are trying to associate themselves with—the two architects of that dismal stage—then we can expect that the country has nothing whatsoever from a combination where you add those two Members, Mr. Ezzard Miller and Mr. Linford Pierson onto the six or seven who are in the present group. That alternative is, indeed, frightening.

Cayman Airways itself, with the help of the staff, the Board and the public... because the public has always supported Cayman Airways. That is why anyone who is politically sensitive should know that trying to pound Cayman Airways, which is made up and supported by the public, or the Education policies that have been produced by the 170-odd teachers who are current and professional, with a further 170-odd members of the public taken from all strata of society; people who attack and attempt to damage policies which are so popular with the public have got to be taking a destructive approach, they are no longer representing their people.

While it is one thing to say that one is out of touch because an island is 80 miles away and you cannot get over there, or you are not going over there very often to check on your constituents, even a non-resident Member of the Legislature should be able to figure out what the generally accepted policies of the country are.

Cayman Airways has moved from a situation of very heavy losses ranging up to nearly US$14 million per year to a situation where, with the subsidy, we will see that there has been an operating surplus over all and throughout nearly every month of the year.

The Board, the Management and I have tried to be fair to see that the staff, who has been trodden upon and has had no salary raise for three or four years (some of them had their salaries reduced) were given raises and are not being asked to work with conditions that existed under the previous Government. Indeed, Madam Speaker, we know that Cayman Airways could not have existed. It was documented that Cayman Airways would have been liquidated in January 1993.

Because of the efforts put forward by this Government—the whole National Team—Cayman Airways is still going. While in the airline business one is never out of the woods financially, we are a long way out of it to a stage where the subsidy that is given is really very comfortable. Last year we would not have even used all of the subsidy, so we have some credit in the accounts.

On top of that, Madam Speaker, we paid $50,000 a month (which is $600,000 a year) towards a loan that the last Government left. After paying that we are still surviving. We have also paid off the Civil Aviation Authority that was owed a tremendous amount of money—millions of dollars. That was cleared. Our payments are current within a 30-day period.

At a later stage there is a Motion in this when I will go into a lot more detail to really show where quotes such as those made by Mr. Linford Pierson talking about a "sweetheart deal" of selling the 727-200s. That deal raped this country of millions and millions of dollars and set the stage for the financial wreckage of Cayman Airways when it subsequently lost close to $35 million in two and a half years.

The Motion talks about public pronouncements. I would like to make it clear to the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman that what the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture said about fees for work permits were his personal views. He said that at the meeting and also in the press. Everybody knows by his record that he is not anti-expatriate as has been alleged.

These are allegations to build up fear in the people of the country. There is an old Communistic tactic that if you tell the people the same thing over, and over, and over, and over, after a while they believe it. This seems to be the ringing over and over again of statements which are unfounded and which are only geared at disruption and instability within the country.

Talking about supplementaries. It is a totally different thing to have supplementaries when you have the money to pay it. What we were against were instances where either the Budget or the supplementaries had no funds to deal with even the recurrent expenditure of the country, much less to deal with the capital. What we had were instances (which I will show at a later stage) where the Government of 1984-1988 left a lot of money in the Government Treasury. But the last Government (who it now appears that Mr. Pierson, will be the new leader of, which the First Elected Member for Bodden Town will have to follow) managed within four years to spend all the money, not only what Cayman Airways had, but all the money that the previous Government had left. They managed to do this so effectively that they had no credit left to borrow from the banks in this country.

While there is a fair amount of detail around this, and I do not want to attempt to get into that this afternoon, it will be clearly shown that during the last three years of the last Government it is the only time that they were in such a deficit that they actually had to borrow to pay for the recurrent expenditure of the country. That is really a frightening stage because the contribution to capital in every year had been significant. Even 10 years back, Madam Speaker, the contribution to capital has been significant.

But in two of those years there was actually a deficit in recurrent expenditure of $9.5 million. In other words, that amount was a loss in recurrent expenditure that had to be covered from somewhere and we will see that this was done through loans and money taken out of the reserves and the surplus. So, there is nothing that the present Mover and Seconder of this Motion can learn from the past Government.

It is interesting to see that people of the same mentality seem to flock together, as we see with this list of people that I read out earlier, who seem to be getting together trying to come up with destabilising and disrupting factors within the country.

In a Motion of censorship, it is just not good enough to make wild and unfounded allegations. Some of these, in fact, do not seem to be very relevant to the substance of the Motion, but have been thrown in to show how irresponsible the Mover was in drafting this Motion.

I submit that same irresponsibility is something that the public can expect on the day which will never come—we are certain of that—when they have the upper hand in the Government or in this House.

What I find very interesting is that these Motions brought by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, or the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, with rare exception, are always negative Motions. They obviously have no solutions to the problems of the country. In fact, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has no solutions for his own island constituency, much less overall national solutions to the problems of the three islands as a whole.

What we find is that the whole approach to motions such as this is simply negative which can only be aimed at destabilising the country.

Madam Speaker, unwarranted expenditure... and we know that in the past motions were brought on that. We saw that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town was requesting the most expensive road, which was a road named 'The Roy Bodden Road' to be built at an expense that would have cost some $600,000 to his House. If they wish to see the unwarranted expenditure, a lot of that actually came after the Motion, saying that the Government should not be paving private roads where emergency vehicles, such as fire and ambulance should go in, but that we should be paving private roads which they requested—only. And some of them were actually requested some time after they brought a motion showing it was wrong, as I showed sometime back.

The public has to look not just at what is said, but at what is done. Here we have a situation where their request... there was even one request to put marl into somebody's yard by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

I sometimes think that they wake up in the middle of the night with some sort of nightmare and then we get the 80-odd number of questions that were asked this time—all aimed, as with this Motion, at causing disruption.

Where is the unwarranted expenditure? Anyone with a negative mind can find something to criticise in everything. But the progressive person has to take a positive approach. They have to look at the good side of life and try to come up with solutions; that, we know, can never emanate from a negative mind.

This Censorship Motion is a negative motion, and I submit that it has come about through frustration on the part of the Mover and the Seconder who cannot figure out why they are two lone voices crying out in the wilderness in a Legislature of 18 people. That wilderness goes beyond this House. They are crying in the wilderness of the Cayman Islands because they do not have the political ability to see the difference between what is good for the country and what is bad for the country.

If nothing else, there should be some ability to look and see what the people want before attempting to bring a motion that is going against persons in this House who were put in by an extremely large majority.

Better than associating with the group that I named earlier—the group I understand that is formalising now and has even sent out for donations in support of the group, they are getting on to more of a formalised political system—they should be spending time trying to assist the people in their districts and going over more to the Sister Islands and seeing how they can help.

In fact, an Opposition which is constructive and not destructive can have a place in our type of system. I believe that the two Members should remember some years back when we were a constructive Opposition. When we put matters and Motions forward they were to help the country rather than to waste the time and money of the Ministry's and the other Departments.

Not only is this Motion misguided but many of the questions take a lot of time and waste the public's money to deal with, which could be better spent dealing with matters that are more important.

Where is this Motion going to take this country? The attempts that have been made actually go very much against democracy. As mentioned in the last Motion, the Bill of Rights of 1688 was attempted to be changed in this House. We find that the move is always one that is aimed at precisely what the Censure Motion is talking about. It is aimed at causing social disharmony, fear and apprehension in the Cayman Islands.

If there is anything that can cause that, it is where you have an Opposition (of two at present) bringing a Motion which they know has nothing positive and can only be aimed at hurting the country. Once it goes out publicly that there is a vote of no confidence or a censure Motion, that in itself creates harm within the country. It creates apprehension. It creates fear. That must lead to social disharmony.

The policies that this Government has work. If Honourable Members of this House are not able to see that the country has moved out of the economic doldrums that it was in and is now in a stage of boom, if they cannot see that the country is progressing forward, that things are moving quite well... the only areas of disruption, quite frankly, that can be seen are the wide, destructive allegations that we have from time to time going out in the form of questions, motions or statements.

The financial position of this country is good. Tomorrow I will go into some detail on that because it is going to take some time to go through to show where policies that the present two Opposition Members opposed then, now seem to be adopted by them... inconsistencies, and sitting on the fence hoping that votes can be built up at the expense of the country.

I would submit that allegations made here, that persons had to apologise in the press for, statements that they made where there clearly was a breach of the law. But the law is there for everybody, and when untruthful statements are made in certain circumstances in breach of the law, instances of the newspaper were referred to, that is dealt with under the law.

Quite frankly, one of these references made by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman was in relation to Mr. David Wight who, like the two Opposition Members, has a very negative attitude, who, quite frankly, abuses me publicly even when my children are there. If they wish to stand up in here and defend people like that... In fact, Madam Speaker, I told that young man that I was going to speak to his father. There is no respect. No matter where I am this man comes up and abuses me. If the Member wishes to defend that... yes, he made statements about me that were wrong by law, and he had to put in an apology. But, he was presumably advised by his attorney that he had done wrong.

I am amazed that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman should go on in this country. That is the sort of thing that someone who is hot tempered could cause—social disharmony and apprehension in the country. That is the type of group, and the support of that group, that we are now getting in these islands.

Instead of trying to help someone like that, we have a situation where the Opposition is coming in here and trying to justify what is unlawful in the country.

I was at a stage where... Is it just about time for interruption?

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: Yes, it is almost 4.30. Would someone move the Motion for the adjournment?

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I move that this House do now adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10.00.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 tomorrow morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10.00.

AT 4.30 P.M. THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 A.M. THURSDAY, 8 JUNE 1995.

THURSDAY
8 JUNE, 1995
10.07 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

Question to Honourable Members and Ministers. Question No. 103, standing in the name of Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 103

No. 103: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture to provide a list by district and individual amounts of persons who have received assistance through the Social Services Department to effect home repairs.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

QUESTION NO. 103

Deferred

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, under Standing Order 23(5), I ask that this question be deferred to a later sitting in this meeting. The answer is not yet ready.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that the answer to question No. 103 be deferred for answering until a later sitting during this meeting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The question is accordingly deferred.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 103 DEFERRED UNTIL A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 104, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 104

No. 104: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if any charges have been made against any of the Cuban inmates of Tent City who took part in the fracas of 15th April, 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, the answer: No charges have been made against any of the Cuban inmates of Tent City who took part in the fracas of 15th April, 1995.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say what the extent of this incident was, and provide details of any injuries to persons and damage to property as a result of this incident?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The incident got very wide publication in the media. I do not have all the details, it so happens that I was off the island when it occurred.

It came about as a result of one or more of the Cuban migrants returning to the camp with alcoholic beverages. There was a confrontation. The alcoholic beverages were being confiscated and when other sympathisers in the camp saw what was going on they began throwing stones. There was damage to vehicles and some injuries. I do not have the extent of that here, but as I said, it was widely published in the media.

If the Honourable Member wants the specifics of that, I will certainly be prepared to supply him with a report on it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is my understanding that a female Immigration Officer sustained serious injuries and, in addition to that, some vehicles were damaged. These circumstances occurring outside of Tent City would lead to serious charges being pressed. I would like to know, Madam Speaker, why no charges were pressed in this instance? And I certainly welcome the Honourable Member's intent to provide these details.

Thank you, Ma'am.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs. I do not think you have any more to add.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I may just say, Madam Speaker, with your permission, that one of the things which hindered action being taken against the Cubans was positively identifying the perpetrators. The Immigration Officers were not able to positively identify the individuals—we know that it was quite a group.

What transpired was that on the 21st of April a large group volunteered to go to Guantanamo Bay. We understand that at least some of the perpetrators, whether the individual the Elected Member is speaking about was involved or not, volunteered to go to Guantanamo Bay and they did leave.

The main problem was the positive identification of the ringleaders in the incident.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 105, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 105

No. 105: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state the total number of illegal Cuban residents in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, the answer: The total number of illegal Cuban immigrants resident in the Cayman Islands is 21.

Of this total number, seven individuals are awaiting voluntary repatriation to Havana; two are awaiting conclusion of arrangements to resettle in Spain; and two have indicated a desire to leave by boat. No determination has yet been made in respect of the other ten persons.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say if the Government had any documentation prepared which would enable it to easily identify or keep tabs on these persons?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I am not sure if I clearly understand the question. Perhaps I can answer it this way: All 21 Cubans have been placed at Northward Prison, so we certainly know where they are. I would imagine there is documentation available as well.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is my understanding that in transit camps and camps of this nature, individual inmates have identification, including finger prints in most instances and photographs, which they are required to keep on their person always, even when they are resident inside the camps. This is what I was referring to, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, there are identification cards held by each individual. I am not in a position to say that they are carrying them while at Northward Prison, but certainly they were in their possession while at the camp. I would expect that they are still holding them.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable First Official Member would be in a position to indicate if any of the 10 persons who no determination has yet been made about are females?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, I know that there is at least one female in the group, there may be more.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say if any of the authorities have knowledge that this one female (or more) is pregnant?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, I do not have the specifics on that. If the Honourable Member would like I could try to get the information, but, obviously, that is a matter that would be confidential to the hospital authorities.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When the Honourable Member says, "no determination has yet been made in respect to the other 10 individuals", could the Member explain what is meant by that? Have any of those 10 individuals applied for political asylum or for consideration to go elsewhere? What exactly is meant by that?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

If I could refer to the original question: The term 'illegal Cuban resident' would refer to any that have not qualified for political asylum. They were all screened originally, and were deemed to be economic migrants and not political refugees. There has been an appeal process and their appeals have been heard and turned down. So they are not deemed to be political refugees.

With regard to any other requests by them, they have simply not made a request. This does not mean that the Government will not actively work on arrangements to see them part company with this territory.

I give the Honourable Member and this House the assurance that I will continue to work towards that goal.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 106, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 106

No. 106: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if any of the illegal Cuban migrants remain at large in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: It is believed that there were three illegal Cuban immigrants at large in the Cayman Islands. However, it is possible that some or all of them may have departed without the knowledge of the Immigration authorities. Efforts have commenced, and will continue, to seek out these persons—if they are still here.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say if these efforts included raids by members of the Police and Immigration Departments at residences in the Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, Madam Speaker, that is perhaps the primary way of seeking out these persons. If information is received that there may be a person being concealed, then the Police Officers, or Immigration Officers—primarily Immigration Officers—would carry out raids to find these individuals.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is the Honourable Member aware of any complaints from citizens regarding these raids, some of which were carried out by seemingly hostile authorities with no warrants for search?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

No, I have had no complaints. I am not aware of any complaints by members of the public regarding this matter.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Honourable Member give an undertaking to research into the matter? I am aware of one incident which was brought to my attention by a constituent.

The Speaker: Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

With respect, if there has not been an official complaint lodged, I do not know how I can investigate it. I would expect that if a complaint were lodged it would be with my Portfolio and I have no knowledge of such a complaint.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 107, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 107

No. 107: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if the proposed Health Insurance Plan will cover the cost of treatment for alcohol and drug addiction.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Since January of this year, the Health Insurance Advisory Committee has been meeting to consider a National Health Insurance Scheme for the Cayman Islands. The Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation anticipates that, acting upon the recommendations of the Committee, the Scheme would be implemented by November 1995 after passage of enabling legislation.

At this point in time the Committee has not completed its deliberations and I am not in a position to confirm that any National Health Insurance Scheme will cover the cost of any particular treatment.

I will say, however, that it is not my intention to ignore the plight of those in need and due consideration will be given to them during the deliberations of the Committee which is chaired by the Permanent Secretary of this Ministry.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister would be able to say if those individuals who suffer from drug and alcohol abuse who attend the Cayman Counselling Centre have to pay for these sessions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, not to the best of my knowledge. But I will check on this and pass the answer on to confirm this.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister would then be in a position to say how those people attending counselling sessions at the Counselling Centre have to be referred for further treatment, are dealt with?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

To the best of my knowledge, if help is needed, like the medical situations, they are handled through the social worker at the Hospital on an as-needed basis. If financial assistance is required it is provided.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 108, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 108

No. 108: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if the value of all the tenders for the proposed new George Town Hospital will be made public.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The answer is no. Under the Financial and Stores Regulations, Chapter 8, Section 8(7) (g) and (h), only the name of the successful tender and the bid amount is released, normally through the Gazette.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac & Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I imagine that the Honourable Minister is aware in the instance of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital, and it was quite precedent setting, that all of the persons who tendered agreed that their tenders would be made known publicly. Shortly following that, the Financial Secretary gave an undertaking that such would be considered in the future for Government contracts.

Would the Honourable Minister be prepared to consider doing such a thing in the process of tendering, which I imagine would be coming sometime in the foreseeable future?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, I will have to discuss this with the Department of Finance and Development and see what are the guidelines set out for such an undertaking.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 109, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 109

No. 109: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable

Minister responsible for Education and Planning if the spare parts for the Boeing 737-400s have been sold and, if not, what efforts are being made to sell them.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the answer: Cayman Airways Limited's most recent acquisition, the Boeing 737-200 VR CKX, has some similarities to the B737-400, particularly on the flight deck. Some spares may therefore be retained. The bulk of the spares are, however, for sale and this has been made known to potential purchasers. The Airline is presently receiving presentations and bids from possible buyers.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say if the value of these parts is recorded as an asset on the books of Cayman Airways?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Ma'am.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac & Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if the exercise of determining what spare parts might be usable on the 737-200s has been completed, so that the airline knows what parts are available for sale?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Ma'am. We have been trying to sell these for some time, but they have to be sold as a whole because there are some parts that can be sold very easily. To break them out of the full inventory of spares would mean leaving a lot of other parts that could not be sold easily, or may never be sold.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 110, standing in the name of Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 110

No. 110: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs when will the 100 percent increase in work permit fees for top professionals come into effect, as stated by the Minister for Labour, and reported on page 3 of the Caymanian Compass of Monday, 22nd May, 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, the answer: There are no plans by the Government to increase work permit fees by 100 percent.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac & Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Member say if the statement made to that effect by the Minister before mentioned was a personal view of his, or had this been contemplated?

The Speaker: I think that this question could properly be answered by the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs, and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am happy to answer that question because the substantive question has no substance to it, as it is based on a statement imputed to me, which I did not make. I have never said that Government will increase work permit fees for top professionals.

Madam Speaker, whether by poor paraphrasing, or by mischievousness, the report in the Compass did not accurately convey what was said at the meeting. This is the reason why the clarification was necessary in the next day's paper. I would have thought that Members asking this kind of question would have seen and referred to the clarification, but they chose not to.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Having heard the other part of the answer that was passed on for the Honourable Minister to discuss, and in asking him a supplementary... May I ask the Minister a supplementary, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: You may.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I would just like to let him know that the question was asked before the clarification statement was made by him in the newspaper.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister could then say if (as he stated the paraphrasing might have been incorrect) in fact it was not said that Government will raise these fees? Or if it was said that we will raise these fees or not?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, there has been a lot of politics thrown into this question and that particular meeting, and in particular to what I had to say. I will also check the House to see when the question was asked.

I would read verbatim from what I said at the meeting, and I quote (and I have all my meeting notes and I appreciate the opportunity to air this): "Ladies and gentlemen, I understand that there are 14,000 work permits in the country. Everyone say they need their work permit. Of course, they put more stress on the roads, the health services, and the schools, cluttering up the infrastructure.

"I believe this is an area we could get funds for the old people's pensions. I understand that there are 3,000 work permits for professionals; lawyers, accountants, and so on, people who are needed for the running of businesses in the country, and they are charged up to $5,000 per year for a work permit.

"I have talked to lawyers and accountants and they feel, like I do, that this is an area that could take a rise in fees.

"I feel if a lawyer can come into the country and make $200,000 per year, I do not feel he would gripe about paying $10,000 a year for a work permit. I do not feel that a firm would gripe about paying $10,000 for a work permit, once they get the amount of permits they need to run their businesses.

"The Immigration system is outmoded, it is causing a lot of problems, and needs to be revamped to encourage the granting of work permits quicker. My Ministry has nearly completed the Manpower Development Review and we are making suggestions for a serious change such as, different boards to deal with work permits, business licences and immigration matters.

"I feel that if a law firm needs ten lawyers, and an accounting firm needs 20 accountants, they should get them, but [be] made to pay more for the work permits and also to make sure that Caymanians are trained to take over down the years."

End of quote on that particular matter at the meeting.

The clarification, Madam Speaker, states exactly in fact, what I had to say.

Now, we have heard a lot about this in the press, and yesterday in debating the Motion before the House. They are using it for political purposes...

The Speaker: Excuse me, Honourable Minister, I think you have now answered the particular part of the supplementary. When it is time for your debate you can bring that in.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I certainly will. Thank you very much, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning.

We continue with Private Members' Motion No. 8/95, the debate by the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 8/95

CENSURE MOTION

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Motion that is before this Honourable House is, as I believe other Members will also point out, one of the shortest but most damaging motions that I think has ever come to this House. It deals with causing unwarranted expenditure, talking about the economic and social policies, and I would just like to read that again:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House has no confidence in the Government whose economic and social policies and public pronouncements are causing unwarranted expenditure, social disharmony, fear and apprehension in the Cayman Islands."

This Motion, Madam Speaker, is aimed at doing exactly what it is alleging against the Government. I will show in areas of the finance side that this is not so. The Motion has absolutely no recitals and it has no specifics in it. The two Opposition Members, out of the 18 Members of this Honourable House, know it cannot succeed and they have therefore brought it, in my view, to cause social disharmony, fear and apprehension in the Cayman Islands. That is all it is. It serves no purpose other than to stir up trouble in the Cayman Islands.

Madam Speaker, when we look at where the country was... and we have to remember that yesterday I named some seven or eight members—including the two Opposition Members here: Mr. Ezzard Miller, Mr. John Hurlston, Mr. Linford Pierson, and others, like Mr. Steve Scott—who seem to be going to these meetings and are somewhere tied in with producing the sort of motion that is now coming before this House.

When we look at the expenditure when the last Government was in here, we really see instances where the country was moving into a bankrupt position. We know that they had already bankrupted Cayman Airways by the time this Government came into Office.

Madam Speaker, the official Appendix V of the Government's accounts shows that in the years prior to the last Government, in other words up until the year 1988, the previous Government under Sir Vassell Johnson, Capt. Charles Kirkconnell, Mr. Norman Bodden and Mr. Benson Ebanks, left the country with total reserves and surpluses of $24 million. Back in 1988 and 1989 (because the budget would have been carried into 1989) the country was in a very good position. There were contributions to Capital in those years, and in every year in fact, coming from 1984. The recurrent revenue contributed to capital. That is like a person out of his own salary buying a house and paying for it, or paying for capital amount out of his salary.

In 1984 contribution to capital was $9.7 million. That was when we left the country, Madam Speaker, and we left it then in a very good position. It was carried on by the Government of late 1984 to late 1988.

In the following year, 1985, the contribution to Capital was $6.8 million; 1986—$7.4 million; 1987 from recurrent revenue to Capital was $11.2 million; and in 1988, $12.5 million. The previous Government's budget for 1988 (that went into 1989) was $14.8 million.

There, Madam Speaker, is where the economics of the country changed because that Government spent every penny it could get its hands on. Mr. Ezzard Miller and Mr. Linford Pierson and their Government proceeded to spend, and spend, and spend. In 1990, for the first time in the recent history of this country, there was a shortfall of $1.2 million where recurrent revenue could not cover recurrent expenditure. That is frightening because it is like a person whose salary cannot cover his recurrent expenditure.

Beginning in that year (1990), they totally reversed the situation where no money was put from recurrent revenue towards Capital—and that is frightening! It is really frightening because a country whose recurrent revenue is less than its recurrent expenditure has to ultimately go bankrupt.

How did they finance the Capital Expenditure that they had? They borrowed. In 1990 they had a deficit of $14.9 million...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order, Honourable Member?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on the point of relevance, this is a Censure Motion dealing with the Government which took office in 1992, and the accounts of one back in 1984, 1988, and so on, does not bear relevance to the financial performance of the Government since 1992 to date.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, there is a Point of Order in relation to what you have just been saying, because the Motion really concerns the Government which took office in 1992. If you could just briefly proceed from there on, rather than going back into 1984.

I do appreciate that there are some instances where there is an overlapping of expenditure, but please do not belabour the point of the previous Government because the Motion concerns this Government.

Thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, before you make the ruling, it would have been good if you had given me a right to reply.

You obviously have ruled. May I just say this... and I accept your ruling, I have no choice but to... but let me say this, Madam Speaker, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has gone way back into the dark ages and was left alone. He has dealt with a lot of matters that go back prior to this Government, and on a Motion as wide as this Censure Motion, I think that Members have to be given very wide latitude because there is no way of knowing whether the country has, as he has mentioned in his Motion now, economically, socially, and otherwise unless there is something to compare it to.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I think if you had listened to what I said, I said: 'I do appreciate that there is an overlapping of expenditure and that you would have to refer back...', but what is before the House now is dealing with the present Government which took office in 1992.

I did say that I understand and appreciate that you would have to go back a certain number of years, but certainly not to the dark ages.

So, would you continue Honourable Minister?

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I was at that stage dealing with 1991... But, if that is the way it should be, then so be it. I will go on to other areas which are very relevant.

What is putting fear into the people of the Cayman Islands at present, and in the immediate past, goes far beyond what is now being put before the House. What people in this country are afraid of—very seriously afraid of—is the radicalism, and the militancy that exist around certain politicians in this country. What people fear is a Government that will be taken over in the future by militants and radicals who would like to take us into independence. That is what racial disharmony... sorry, social disharmony is alleged in this Motion—fear and apprehension. That is what the people of this country are worried about. The message was sent loud and clear, Madam Speaker, in the last Election because they rejected the militants and the radical who wanted to take this country into independence.

I would like to now read from The Official Hansard Report of 26 February, 1992, and this is a statement made in this Honourable House by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. He said: "I am going to be out there, Lord sparing my life, vying to succeed in re-election along with my running mate. And whatever comes of the next election, whoever is elected, I am satisfied that the mechanism and the system proposed by the Commissioners and by the Select Committee is what is needed in my country, the Cayman Islands, to help the Government to function better."

We know that that was to advance the Constitution and to put in a Chief Minister. What is more frightening, Madam Speaker, is this statement, and it is taken from Mr. Gilbert McLean's speech in the Hansard. He states: "It is time that we move away [he said] from a God-like character called 'Governor' who has all the ultimate power and so on, and invites Members to hold certain responsibility and charges them with that responsibility to be accountable so that it does not hinder the Governor in seeing to the overall running of this country, and to the management of the subjects which are reserved for him.”

Madam Speaker, the day we move away from the character called the "Governor", this country is independent. There is no Governor in an independent country and this, I submit, is precisely what the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman stated here very clearly and what is the one thing that can cause social disharmony, fear and apprehension. The public out there is absolutely afraid of this country changing its political position. They are afraid of the country being taken over by people who are going to take it—against the wishes of the people, because the wishes of the people are very clear—into independence. I submit that the whole lot of the present "Team Cayman" or whatever they are calling themselves, is to move this country and advance its Constitution. That is where the social disharmony in this country is coming from. That is where the fear and apprehension is.

The people out there, Madam Speaker, especially with what was raised here about foreign persons in this country, are afraid of seeing this country go the way other countries in the Caribbean have gone. They are very happy with the Government that is here. At this stage, the present Government [is comprised] of people who live normal lives. We have no militant or radical aspects in our past. We run this Government and are satisfied under the Constitution that exists. What worries people is changing it and advancing it, and they know very well that whoever leads that next group, be it—and I must say this with all due respect—Mr. Linford Pierson, who is not a radical, let me say that, I want to say that to make it clear, he is not a militant, so I do not want to imply that in any way—but he may be the next leader of that group. But what is worrying, Madam Speaker, is that they all are striving for more political power—that Chief Ministership. That is why so much spite has been taken against me by people who oppose the Government. It is because I have been one of several people who has stood in the way of giving them that absolute power of Chief Minister and advancing the Constitution.

Madam Speaker, the statement that I read where the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman wants to move away—and look at the manner in which it is put—"It is time to move away from a God-like character called the Governor, who has the ultimate power...." To change the Governor of this country you must go independent! That is where the fear of people in this country exists.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Member has quoted from what he says is the Hansard of the House. I wonder, Madam Speaker, if the Minister would table a copy of the Hansard Report he is speaking about?

The Speaker: I am sure the Honourable Minister is in a position to table a copy of that.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Sure, Madam Speaker.

I need to read from some other areas, but I will table it.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Maybe copies could be received. It is The Official Hansard Report, 26 February 1992. His speech begins on page 131.

Madam Speaker, if there is fear and apprehension and social disharmony, it is that people in the country are worried that the good Government that they now have may one day be replaced by people who are only power hungry. It is absurd to allege, for example, that we are out there doing something other than trying to keep people in the private sector happy.

I am a lawyer, I practise in the private sector, and I would be naive, I would be biting the hand that feeds me to take an approach which causes—as this is set out—social disharmony, fear and apprehension out there among people. Unlike some of the politicians out there, I am a practising professional. I am not a defunct professional who has not practised for years. I am in touch with what happens in the private sector. My duty is to promote the Cayman Islands, to take positive approaches.

But, Madam Speaker, amongst that we have to temper our approach as Members of the Government in such a way as to take a positive attitude; that we try to assist the public with achieving what they wish to achieve providing it is good for the country. We are people of substance. If this country goes down, Madam Speaker, I will lose a lot and I will never do anything against my country or to try to give extra power, through being a Chief Minister, to myself when I know it will ruin the country or anyone else. So, this Government is responsible.

Quite frankly, Madam Speaker, for two Opposition Members to bring a Motion such as this, making these wide allegations supported with no recitals—it is the shortest motion I have ever seen, either they were in such a hurry to do it, or they did not have the competence to put it in— but they know it cannot succeed. It is two Members out of 18 Members in this House who brought it. So what is the purpose? The purpose has to be to create social disharmony, fear and apprehension in the Cayman Islands because it is just stirring up... and this is coming less than six months after a previous motion was brought in this House.

I know why they could not put any recitals or any WHEREAS clauses on this, Madam Speaker. It is because when they brought the last motion to this House, they brought as a reason the private roads. Just five months ago I laid on the Table the letters which go way back showing that those same Members had, immediately before they brought the Motion, and even after they brought the Motion, requested Government to do private roads.

One of those letters, Madam Speaker, that I laid on the Table of this House specifically had in it a reference to a letter of the 18th of September, 1990, and one of those roads was the Roy Bodden Road. We know, as was shown there, that that road cost more than every other private road that had been requested in all three islands—with some $600-odd thousand dollars.

So the reason why they could not put recitals is because the last time they put WHEREAS clauses, we showed the public how deceitful it was for them to come here and say that something is wrong, when they are asking the public and this Honourable House to do exactly what they are trying to condemn. They cannot have their cake and eat it.

If they are going to bring a Motion like this, Madam Speaker... I submit that it is making wild accusations with no recitals at all, and they cannot really achieve anything.

I laid on the Table of this Honourable House six, seven, maybe eight different letters showing that with the last No Confidence Motion both the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town—especially, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, who was even trying to get the road that went into his house paved—came by saying that the Government should not be paving private roads.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, excuse me. I have listened and this is the second time you have mentioned this matter. You did it yesterday, and you have also mentioned it twice. That is repetition and I would ask you not to repeat what you have already said in a debate.

Thank you.

Do you have a Point of Order, First Elected Member for Bodden Town?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker, in that the Honourable Minister is misleading the House because, as has been explained, and as the records and the Hansards will show, the road upon which I live is not the Roy Bodden Road. It is a public road. I explained that I have nothing to do with the road other than that I live on it. The Minister is misleading the House into believing that it is a private road. It is a gazetted public road and it is not my road. The Government, including his Government, gave it that name.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I have commented on what you have just said. Would you please not repeat any submission? Thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: May I say, Madam Speaker, I was reading from page 9 of the Gazette of the 15th of December, 1994, which I did not read yesterday. If the Member disputes something, it is down in the Hansard. The letters were laid on the Table of this Honourable House and it was back in 1990. It was not this Government who named it, the road is there and the parcel number is 14B/13—Roy Bodden Road (construct road)...

The Speaker: I appreciate that, but I think you also appreciate that since that time the matter has been cleared up and it should not be repeated again in that vein.

Thank you, Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, what I would like to say... and I will now begin to take objections after this on any other straying outside or straying back prior to those earlier times. So I put the two Members on notice of that. That is my right. It will be taken, and I will see what happens on it.

The Motion before this House is one, Madam Speaker, that has no foundation. It is, in my view, ill-founded.

It is a fact that the economic and social policies of this Government are policies which, while they have now been attacked by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, are policies they supported in the past. If we look at the National Team's Manifesto, we will find set out in it very clearly that at the time, Mr. Roy Bodden, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, who is shown here, was a part of the team. And those policies, which were adhered to and produced by all of us specifically say in relation to Health Services: "We are against the building of the new hospital in the swamp and we will review the hospital plans and documents and accordingly take any necessary action which is legal and prudent."

So one of the main policies that they are attacking now, of building the hospital where it is, was very clearly the policy of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town when this Manifesto went in. I submit that it goes also to show the way that Members have moved sometimes, speaking generally, in a very hypocritical way—having accepted something [then] trying to change course mid-stream, because they are now associated with Mr. Ezzard Miller whom they were fighting at that time.

He has persuaded them, obviously, and the public should know that if you see a development of that 'Team Cayman', or whatever it is called, of the people I have named, he will be a very prominent person influencing people if he is within it.

Perhaps the clearest statement is this one, and I am reading from the Hansard: "I have believed for a long time that the present hospital can serve us for some time yet, and that steps should be taken to improve certain areas of it to a standard so that the physical plant can be in a position to better do the job for which it was intended." That is the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

But these are the policies which they are now trying to put a Censure Motion against this Government [for] that both those Members adhered to and helped to produce, and specifically stated that they were against. Obviously, Mr. Ezzard Miller has now convinced them that what they were presumably doing then was wrong, and they must now come and attack the Minister for Health on these economic policies.

I submit, Madam Speaker, that the true belief of those two Members in relation to the hospital was, and possibly still is, that the hospital should be built and upgraded on the present site—exactly what the Minister for Health is doing. Yet, they are now attacking these policies—and I hope the public clearly understands that there were no doubts whatsoever... the Hansard bears out clearly that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman... and he did not even say "I believe then", he said: "I believe for a long time that the present hospital can serve us for some time yet, and that steps should be taken to improve certain areas of it to a certain standard. So that the physical plant can be in a position to better do the job for which it was intended." Nothing here about moving to the site in the swamp. We know that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town clearly supported that, yet they are now attacking the Minister for Health for doing what they had put forward at this stage, and it can only be to try to help the derelict past Executive Council.

You know, Madam Speaker, what can put fear and apprehension into the people of these islands is when one looks at the Master Ground Transportation System proposed by Mr. Linford Pierson, and presumably supported by the present Opposition Members to some extent. Back then they were Opposition. But we know that in meetings at that time they had put forward many things to increase import duties, and to even take and put a percentage of tax on the financial community, as they said in the Minutes, "the $350 billion which flows through Cayman's financial institution per year."

What the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is referring to here, about our approach with attempting to have a well paid professional civil service, and the small reductions we did... paragraph (g) of that document says: "The Civil Service reduced the number of civil servants to save money to pay for roads."

So I believe that the two Opposition Members are being caught in the net. When you are a public figure and you make statements, especially in this Honourable House, and you then change and go against those statements, especially if it is done in a hypocritical way, then they will come back to haunt you. People who change sides so often have, in my view, a very confused political mentality.

The only fear and apprehension that there is in this country is the fear and apprehension of having a government of socialist, communist or militant people.

You know, if you think of a little story along these lines, of a young man who during the heyday of the Cuban revolution may have put on the military fatigues of Che Guevara and strutted around the place—I am speaking generally—think how horrifying that might be if some 20 years later those views are developed and that person comes to power in a country. It is a frightening thing. Very frightening. I can assure this country, economic havoc would be wreaked in any country where...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, again I rise on a point of relevance. If the Minister for Education and Planning is off on communism and socialism and Che Guevara, he seems to have lost track totally. Perhaps we should get Dr. LeHee or somebody down here, Madam Speaker. It is totally irrelevant.

Madam Speaker, I submit that what he is talking about has no relevance to discussing a No Confidence Motion about this Government from 1992 to present.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister has again repeated Che Guevara, because I think you did it yesterday afternoon. I think it is recorded and I have already asked you not to repeat something because it is becoming a bit tedious.

Could you proceed to speak without repetition, Honourable Minister?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, if you are referring me to Standing Order 41, then I will sit.

Thank you very much, because I have not gotten to the content stage...

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I have not referred... I am just saying that you have repeated yourself, and this is the second time I have asked you not to repeat. I have not stopped you with your contribution, you can continue Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Out of an abundance of caution, I will conclude there, Madam Speaker. I will not run that risk.

The Speaker: If you so wish, Honourable Minister.
Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.23 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.51 AM

The Speaker: Debate continues on Private Motion's No. 8/95.
The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, permit me to open with a sobering reflection: It is a sad day indeed when a leader gets so discombobulated that he cannot defend his party and its policies. All I can say is that certainly never happened under the most withering fire to the former Leader of Government Business and the National Team. I am glad I am on the Opposition.

Madam Speaker, this Motion: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House has no confidence in the Government whose economic and social policies and public pronouncements are causing unwarranted expenditure, social disharmony, fear and apprehension in the Cayman Islands", is not only a relevant Motion but, contrary to what has been spoken by the last speaker, such a format is in order and is widely accepted.

Certainly, Madam Speaker, if the Honourable Minister was widely read and knowledgeable about modern Parliamentary procedures, he would understand that the modern trend is to frame motions this way and, certainly, in a Censure Motion there is no need for any recitals, or 'whereas clauses' as he calls them. And to substantiate my argument, Madam Speaker, permit me to quote very briefly from some texts with which I am familiar.

The first, Ministerial Responsibility, edited by Jeffrey Marshall and published by Oxford, page 36 and 37, reading briefly under the section: "Types of defeat", explicitly worded 'Votes of Confidence' (subtitle): "These clearly state that the House has, or has not, confidence in Her Majesty's Government and debate on them thus centres upon the issues of confidence. Governments may occasionally seek explicit votes of confidence but such motions are more usually tabled by the opposition, employing the negative wording."

Permit me Madam Speaker, to emphasise that: "but such motions are more usually tabled by the Opposition, employing the negative wording. For example, that this house has no confidence in Her Majesty's Government."

"By established conventions the Government permits a debate on them as soon as possible." And the last section, Madam Speaker, from this reference reads: "The carrying of an explicitly worded censure motion against the Government may be regarded as a most effective type of confidence vote. The passage of such a motion puts it beyond doubt that the Government has lost the confidence of the House."

I would like also now to draw reference to a second text, entitled: Ministers and Parliament: Accountability in Theory and Practice, by Dianna Woodhouse, published by the Clarendon Press, Oxford. Introduction: Chapter I, entitled: 'Accountability of Minister to Parliament': "A fundamental principle of the British Constitution and, by inference, the Westminster system of Government is that the government is accountable through its Ministers to Parliament. Such accountability is central to the concept of responsible government and may be regarded as essential in a system with a dominant executive."

Madam Speaker, this point is the most important, "The government is held accountable through its responsibility to the party and through the electoral process and by critical scrutiny of the mass media. It is also accountable to the courts for legality of its actions. These are all-important locations of accountability. But in a Constitution which centers upon supremacy of Parliament, accountability to the Legislature is Constitutionally of most significance."

Madam Speaker, if the Honourable Minister who is Leader of Government Business was as knowledgeable with his nine senior qualifications (as he likes to boast of them) as he should be, he would be familiar with these texts, and he would know that our Motion is quite in order. For, Madam Speaker, if the Motion was not in order it would not have passed the Chair. His argument about the Motion being the briefest Motion in history, how it has no recitals and no "whereas," perhaps he should seek to familiarise himself with developments in modern Parliamentary practice.

Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister last speaking should really be an authority on Censure Motions. Has he forgotten when he got us, the seven Backbenchers, into trouble and made the then Government slap us all over when he told them in the Committee Room that they should step down gracefully? Has he forgotten all of the furore surrounding that debate? Has he forgotten that he was the leader of that movement to topple the last Government?

It seems, Madam Speaker, that the Minister is good at giving, but very poor at taking. Perhaps he should seek out the edition of the Caymanian Compass, which carried that story in the headlines "Step down gracefully", and familiarise himself with those events in which he instructed us, the six Backbenchers, to take... leading us into a pit of acrimonious debate. Indeed, the Government went all over the island bamboozling us.

Now, Madam Speaker, in keeping with his character, he has lead his National Team Government into a debate and abandoned them at the height of the battle when they need him most, because he could not even defend their position. He got so discombobulated he ducked out.

This Motion is brought by the Opposition Members to evoke a debate, to hold the Government to account for what we consider mismanagement of the country's affairs and, in so doing, I argue that we are on the right track.

Madam Speaker, as I will go on to show, there have been too many instances, including instances where the present Leader of Government Business, the Minister for Education and Planning, has been one of the greatest culprits of mismanagement and taking advantage of his position as a Minister in Government. But before I get to that stage, there is something of critical importance which I need to say.

Madam Speaker, I have decided that the only way this whole business of the mischievousness which surrounds the road gazetted as the 'Roy Bodden Road' will come to an end is when I instruct my attorneys to write to the Government asking them to remove my name from that road. And I have taken steps to so do, because the history of the development of that road will show that when I bought the property from the late Mr. R. Selkirk Watler, I was the only resident on that road. The road at that time was just a trail through which I had to navigate with a four-wheel drive vehicle. Madam Speaker, I have changed vehicles since that time, but I still have a four-wheel drive vehicle. If I had my wish, the road would have forever remained private.

The Government gazetted it through no effort of mine but, I suspect, because Mr. Harvey Stephenson has one of the largest farming establishments in the country and I understand he works closely with the Government. It is through his insistence and lobbying, even now. I went down in there, Madam Speaker, only to raise my family in peace and comfort away from the hustle and bustle. I was quite prepared to live the kind of rural life that I thought I would lead. So, I have nothing to do with the gazetting of the road and the Government did not consult me when they chose the name. I suppose it was convenient to identify it by the fact that I was the only person living there. However, I have instructed my attorneys to write to the Government requesting that they remove my name from the road.

Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister who last spoke has tried to cloud this issue, as he is so expert in doing, by all kinds of insinuations of radicalism, socialism and communism—the old-hat technique, I call it—insinuating that people with whom the Opposition may be in association with will introduce this kind of disharmony into the country.

But I noticed, Madam Speaker, that he did not say anything about Nazism, Fascism and Racism, and he did not talk about those kinds of people who would like it to remain as South Africa was. And I wonder if that was a convenience on his part because he has something to hide, or because he may be disposed in that direction?

Madam Speaker, I also noticed that every time he tried to say 'social disharmony', he said 'racial disharmony'. I wonder if that was a Freudian slip? Or is it so buried in his mind that when he becomes intense it is his real intent and it automatically slips [out]? Like they say: Alcoholism reveals what sobriety conceals.

His problem, Madam Speaker, is not as he is trying to say—that he would not want political advancement. I do not know who on the Opposition wants any political advancement, because it certainly has not been articulated in this House since I have been in Opposition, nor has it been articulated outside by us or by anyone with whom we are associated. His problem with political advancement is that he would want the advancement if he was sure that he could be the leader. But because he knows no one would consider him for leadership in a fair runoff, he cries wolf when he thinks it suits him. But what he had better come to grips with, Madam Speaker, is the Brutus-like traits in his character. He would like leadership; but he wants it by default, like how he has it now—as the result of stabbing his colleague in the back.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Hear, hear! He is a Brutus.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Madam Speaker, that accusation is vividly borne out in the Caymanian Compass of Tuesday, 23rd May, 1995, when, in a statement: 'Governor refutes MLA's allegations', the Governor said that he, "on the advice of, and following lengthy discussions with, the other four elected ministers..." took a certain step. That Minister, who says he does not want any leadership and he does not want any Chief Ministership, was one of those persons consulted. And it is a pity that we cannot move a motion in this Honourable House to change his name and his title to Brutus, because he is a Brutus!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Hear, hear!

Mr. Roy Boddén: Madam Speaker, this Motion did not have anything to do with losers. He brought in the notion of losers—talking about "losers who can never expect to gain anything, and these losers, being a small minority of one leader and one follower..." I want to say something about that, Madam Speaker.

I understand that in the Calvinist Religion the doctrine of predestination is foremost. That means that the Calvinists believe that if you are born to be a slave, you must remain a slave; that it is a sin to try to elevate your status, but you must try to be the best slave ever. Well, I am not a Calvinist, but I want to tell you something about my position as a follower. If I give my word that I am going to follow someone, I am telling you, Madam Speaker, that I will endeavour to be the best, the most faithful, most deserving follower ever. Any person to whom I give my pledge to follow does not have to worry about me stabbing them in the back, the chest or anywhere else, because I am a man of my word; nor will I conspire to erode their position of authority or primordial position over me. See the difference between he and I.

And, talking about losers, Madam Speaker, has he forgotten that he lost $500,000 in a newspaper venture? Has he been successful in everything that he has put his finger on? Is he a King Midas? Well, I would like to know.

I am going to tell you something, Madam Speaker, talking about losers—he was at the right place at the right time, and I challenge him to explain to this Honourable House how he purportedly undertook a mission to promote the affairs of this country and, as we were made aware of in a letter written by Mr. Linford Pierson which was published in the Caymanian Compass, when he was supposed to be attending meetings promoting the Government's business he did not attend the meetings but was off on a tangent promoting his own interests. I want him to explain how...

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: Yes, may I hear the Point of Order?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: The Point of Order is that the Member is misleading the House. He is making an allegation against me that is untrue. If he has anything specific let him lay it on the Table, or give it to me.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Boddén Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Yes, Madam Speaker, I certainly will. I challenge the Honourable Minister to explain why, when he should have been promoting Government's business, he was not at the meeting, but was instead handing out—and I shall read it and lay it on the Table—a document promoting his law firm which reads: "The Partners: The Honourable Truman Boddén is the Minister of Aviation and Education in the Government of the Cayman Islands responsible, inter alia, for Cayman Airways."

"Mr. Boddén was an Elected Member of the Executive Council of the Government from 1976 to 1984 with responsibility for the Portfolios of Health, Education and Social Services and he has been an elected Member of the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands from 1976 to 1984, and from 1988 to the present."

"He was acting Attorney General of the Cayman Islands for periods during 1970 to 1972 prior to founding this partnership."

Madam Speaker, I challenge him to explain that.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town, could you read where that paper came from?

Mr. Roy Bodden: It came, Madam Speaker, from a brochure advertising and promoting his law firm.

The Speaker: Please lay it on the Table of the House. Honourable Minister, are you...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the only thing I... it must be my biography that he is laying on the Table. I do not know whether that is what he is now doing... which I have no objection to, it is in Martindale—Hubbell and...

The Speaker: Your Point of Order is not valid because he has presented something that is laid on the Table.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No, Madam Speaker. He said Mr. Linford Pierson, in a letter in the Caymanian Compass. That is what he said, and that is what I objected to. This is a different thing.

The Speaker: I know that. Have you got a copy, First Elected Member for Bodden Town, of that letter that was in the Caymanian Compass?

Mr. Roy Bodden: No, Madam Speaker, but it is published and I can get it, and give him time to do research.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would like to take a Point of Order.

The Speaker: There are two Members... just one minute, please...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: If he does not have it, then I object to his making allegations of what somebody else has said by something he does not have. That is unfair.

The Speaker: Well, perhaps he may not have it in his possession, but if it has been public... It is a letter to the press which has been widely publicised, I think he has every right to make a mention of that.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: If he is reading from a document, Madam Speaker, he has to lay it on the Table of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: He has laid one document on the Table, he made reference to a letter from Mr. Pierson which was in the Caymanian Compass of the 23rd of May, and that is a public document.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, if he has something and he is going to use it, he must have it, because he may speak on it, create the damage and then not produce it.

The Speaker: Yes, but I think in this respect, when it was published in the newspaper... it is not something that nobody else has had, this has been widely circulated.

Please proceed, First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I think that I have made my point on that issue and I will move on. Suffice it to say that such actions are a part of what this Motion challenges.

Madam Speaker, yesterday afternoon the Minister, in his usual misleading way, also tried to say that I objected to the efforts of the people who produced the strategies. I have never been on record as saying that I objected to any person so involved. What I have said, and what I will say...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I am rising on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

He is misleading the House. What I said yesterday was that he sat over there away from the microphone and made those objections. And I repeated it time again, and he did not challenge me on it, because he did say so.

If he is saying that he did not say so, it is untrue and misleading.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I have heard your objection. First Elected Member for Bodden Town would you like to explain, if it is possible?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, I was going to explain what I said.

I said that I did not put down or cast any aspersions on the strategies produced by these 353 people. I said only that, as far as I am concerned, I do not favour the Strategic Planning method for these reasons: In the Educational Administration that I studied... and, by the way, I heard the Minister make mention, as he usually does, to defunct school teachers referring to the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and myself. If, as trained and experienced teachers, we are defunct, then I wonder in what category that person falls who is neither trained nor experienced, such as he himself?

I said, Madam Speaker, that when I studied Educational Administration we were told that the weakness of Strategic Planning (because it was around from those times) was that it does not offer any definitive statements about what the strategies will cost. I prefer a method which allows the policy-maker or the administrator to arrive at some form of cost analysis.

To go further, Madam Speaker, to this point: I have not made any statement concerning his efforts to reform education outside of this House. That is his business, his priority, his policy, and as an educator I respect that enough. Although I might not agree with it, I will not attempt to put any hurdles in the way. I just know that if I was in the position I would try to involve the people in a different method and technique. Enough said on that.

Madam Speaker, the Government has caused upset in the community by its actions. And it does not matter who was a part of what when Manifestos were being made. The fact is that the whole dismantling of the infrastructure must cause this country significant expenditure to re-institute.

I have never declared that I have the monopoly on making a correct decision in every instance. But, by the same token, I do not feel embarrassed about any change of opinion or position that I have had, politically speaking. As I have said before, the great Winston Churchill changed parties seven times. What I can say, Madam Speaker, is that I am not associating with anyone who sued me for libel.

Madam Speaker, the National Team Government cannot get away from the fact... and speaking about stability, which is one of the points that this Motion seeks to address: Is it stable when the Government changes leaders mid-stream? Is that an example of stability? Or is that indicative of the social disharmony that we are talking about? Is it a hallmark of stability when the efforts and confidence of some people are being eroded by others?

Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister takes issue... and I listened to him, while preaching that he is such a supporter of democracy, using every opportunity to question and to denigrate the Opposition for bringing questions, motions, etcetera, to the House. He made several references yesterday to the questions brought in this sitting. I wonder if he has forgotten about the time when he was a Backbencher, how he would come to the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and myself and say: "Gilbert, you and Roy always seems to have so many questions, can I cull a few from you?" [Members' laughter] Has he forgotten those times?

Why is it so difficult now? Why is it such an unheard of and disgraceful thing now for the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and me to bring questions? Is it because we are asking him?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: That is it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: You know, Madam Speaker, I hope the Honourable Minister understands that it is nothing personal, but it is just that he needs to be reminded from time to time. As they say: "Nothing 'poisonal' at all."

Madam Speaker, we have a history of upsetting things. We have the disruption of the Civil Service under the excuse that it was large and unwieldy—7 percent had to be trimmed. Who is left? Caymanians? Now we have arrived at the point where the Civil Service has been increased by over 100. Yet, just about two and a half years ago we trimmed—the same Government, same tenure of office. Does this make for good Government? Or does it make for apprehension, uncertainty and disharmony?

We have the wholesale dismantling of certain infrastructures. We have the purchase of the Hawley's Estate, which to this day is not utilised in spite of all the expense we went through to acquire it. Most recently we have had a whole slew of upsetting statements, some of which are still being explained and talked about in an attempt to clarify and to water-down the damage which is already done.

I want to say this in all seriousness: Every person elected in this Honourable House has a tremendous responsibility to engage the brain before they engage the mouth. After the word is spoken, no amount of explanation can change the impression that has been left. If we talk about people cluttering-up the infrastructure we had better take heed, because these were the same phrases used by the Manley's in the 1970s...

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: You would know. [Members' Laughter] You and Gilbert would know.

Mr. Roy Bodden: ... and these were the same strategies offered by the people...

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Trevor Monroe...

Mr. Roy Bodden: They call Trevor Monroe.

I want to say something about Trevor Monroe. I wonder if they believe that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman was the only person in here who went to the UWI (University of West Indies), who may have met Trevor Monroe?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Only through Tivalley...

Mr. Roy Bodden: [addressing the Hon. Minister] Yeah? Well maybe you would find it of interest to know that the Chief Secretary, the Honourable Mr. James Ryan, majored in Economics. Ask him who were some of the people he had to meet, if not Don Robotham and Trevor Monroe. But you would not know that.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Yeah, but he was not down in Tivalley Gardens—it was you!

Mr. Roy Bodden: [addressing the Hon. Minister] I never went to Tivalley Gardens, because when I went to school in Jamaica there was no Tivalley Gardens...

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Brown's Town...

Mr. Roy Bodden: ...and I do not know anything about Brown's Town. I did not go to University there.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: You know about the destabilisation of Jamaica.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Well, you are the one...
Madam Speaker, that Honourable Minister...

The Speaker: Order! Please no talking across the room.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, thank you Ma'am. The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture is the one who is talking about expatriates cluttering up the infrastructure, and taxing them to the point where they will have to flee; or inducing capital flight, like they did in Jamaica, and send the cash by the suitcase-loads out of the country.

Madam Speaker, militants and socialists are no different from racists and fascists. I am neither, nor is the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. All we are, are loyal Opposition who want the best for our country. Madam Speaker, that is borne out by the debates and the issues that we bring forward in this Honourable House.

There is no escape, Madam Speaker, for the Government from this Motion. There is no way that they can say that under their stewardship this country is doing as well as it could be doing. They say that the last Government left the country bankrupt. I wonder, then, how are they going to explain that upon taking office they found $10 million in the Reserves and the first thing they did was to take $8 million out of it?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Now are you talking nonsense.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I wonder if that was a bankrupt Government—a Government that left $10 million in the Reserves, and a Government which allowed them to take $8 million from the Reserves?

Madam Speaker, believe you me, there are a lot of things which are going to have to be dealt with. I wonder how they are going to explain the purchase of a piece of land for about $800,000 which, when it was purchased initially, was purchased for less than $200,000? I wonder if this is good stewardship? I wonder if this is not reason enough to talk about unwarranted expenditure?

The Speaker: Honourable First Elected Member for Bodden Town, I must draw your attention to the fact that having a Member use the arguments of another Member is not tolerated. That has already been stated, and I would ask all Members in the future not to repeat an argument put forward by a Member, or repeat their own arguments, please.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, this Government, among many things, has the record for being the most widely travelled government in the history of our country for the time they have held office.

Madam Speaker, one example of that is the fact that the trip to Hong Kong, and I think there were two other destinations, New York and London, cost this Government $309,777. Yet, the Government, up until a few days ago, was not in a position to say how much business was realised as a result of this trip. Madam Speaker, we say that this is not good enough.

In addition to that, there were other trips taken by individual Ministers of Government. I would like to read into the Hansard of this Honourable House the details of these trips, because it will serve to show that much, if not all, of the expenditure incurred by these honourable gentlemen (under the pretence of promoting the country) is of questionable results.

Madam Speaker, let me say at the outset that what I am quoting from is a matter of public record, and if the Chair would like for me to table the documents I would have to beg a moment in order to request the Serjeant-at-Arms to photocopy them. But some of these documents I believe may already be privy to the House, since I got one from the Accountant General and the other from the Honourable Financial Secretary, and one came from the Honourable Clerk of this Assembly. So, what I propose to do, with the Chair's permission, is to read the documents and, if so requested, I could ask the Serjeant-at-Arms to provide copies to be tabled at the end of my reading them into the Hansard.

The first, Madam Speaker, has to do with the Official Travel Account from 1992 to 1995, and I shall detail the travel of the Ministers beginning with the Honourable Minister for Community Development.

THE HONOURABLE MINISTER RESPONSIBLE FOR COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT, SPORTS, YOUTH AFFAIRS AND CULTURE.

- 1) January 20th to 24th, 1993—a trip to Florida at a cost of $264.36;
 - 2) February 2nd to 6th, 1993—a trip to Miami at a cost of $413.14;
 - 3) February 25th to 26th—a trip to Miami at a cost of $315.20;
 - 4) March 12th, to the 12th March, 1993 (that is obviously an error) a trip to Aruba at a cost of $428.71;
 - 5) April 14th to 23rd, 1993—a trip to New York/London at a cost of $1,770.03;
 - 6) August 15th to 18th, 1993, a trip to Jamaica at a cost of $1,237.88;

 Making a total of $1581.89.

THE HONOURABLE MINISTER FOR EDUCATION AND PLANNING:

- 1) April 1993 a trip to Cayman Brac at a cost of $265;
 2) May 26th to 29th, 1993, a trip to the Bahamas at a cost of $629.51;
 3) July 7th to 17th, 1993, a trip to Bermuda and the United Kingdom at a cost of $1,869.63;
 4) December 5th to 7th, 1993, another trip to the United Kingdom for a cost of $683.75;
 5) July 94 a trip to Atlanta for a cost of $120.00;
 6) September 25th to 28th, a trip to Washington for a cost of $231.86;
 7) May 8th to 21st, 1994, a trip to Europe at a cost of $2,679.36;
 8) May 8th to 21st, 1994, again to Europe at a cost of $1,427.85; and
 9) February 1995, a trip to New York/London/Hong Kong at a cost of $2,516.01.
 Making a grand total of $10,422.97.

THE HONOURABLE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, AVIATION AND COMMERCE:

- 1) January 20th to 23rd, 1993, a trip to Florida, at a cost of $487.73;
 2) August 23rd—a trip to New York/London at a cost of $1,791.57;
 3) August 1st to 10th, a trip to Miami/Chicago at a cost of $2,090.10;
 4) September 4th to 12th, a trip to Aruba at a cost of $617.25;
 5) November 21st to 26th a trip to London at a cost of $1,429.99;
 6) December 7th to 10th, a trip to Miami at a cost of $1,019.08;
 7) April 17th to 23rd, 1994, a trip to New York at a cost of $1,931.93;
 8) May 7th to 20th, 1994, a trip to Europe at a cost of $3,879.77;
 9) June 1994, a trip to Barbados at a cost of $361.90;
 10) July 24th to 27th, a trip to Texas at a cost of $435.73;
 11) September 1994, a trip to Jamaica at a cost of $303.72;
 12) September 25th to 28th, a trip to Washington at a cost of $160;
 13) October 25th to 27th a trip to Barbados at a cost of $492.58;
 14) February 12th to 25th, 1995, a trip to New York/London/Hong Kong at a cost of $3,630; and
 15) March 24th to April 1st, a trip to the United Kingdom at a cost of $3,005.
 Making a total of $21,636.35.

THE HONOURABLE MINISTER FOR AGRICULTURE, ENVIRONMENT, COMMUNICATIONS AND WORKS:

- 1) April 14th to 27th, 1993, a trip to New York/London at a cost of $1,075.06;
 2) May 5th to 17th, 1993, a trip to Florida at a cost of

$2,351.62;

- 3) July 2nd to 10th, 1993, a trip to the United Kingdom at a cost of $1,958.18;
 4) July 1993, a trip to Jamaica at a cost of $1,215.05;
 5) July 27th to 29th, 1993, a trip to Florida at a cost of $533.20;
 6) May 7th to 14th, a trip to Florida at a cost of $1,071.45;
 7) August 1994, a trip to Pittsburgh at a cost of $1,767.10;
 and
 8) September 25 to 28th, a trip to Washington at a cost of $1,003.43.
 Making it a total of $10,975.09.

The total accumulative is $61,387.05.

I noticed that the figures from the Financial Secretary and those of the Accountant General bear a slight difference because the Financial Secretary's figures show accumulative total of $63,642.05.

But, Madam Speaker, may I hasten to add that does not include expenses incurred on Commonwealth Parliamentary Association's business, which I would also crave the permission of the House to read into the Hansard at this time.

The Honourable W. McKeeva Bush, JP—$594 in 1992; being expense incurred as attendance to the 38th Commonwealth Parliamentary Association Conference in Bahamas. In 1993, $3,466.44 for the conference in Cyprus; $3,506.44. I think that this appears to be an updated figure for the same trip. Mid-year Executive Committee Meeting in British Columbia at a cost of $2,035.70; the NCSL Conference in San Diego at a cost of $2,522.80; 40th Commonwealth Parliamentary Conference in Alberta, Canada at a cost of $6,248.98; Mid-year CPA Executive Committee Meeting in Norfolk Island at a cost of $5,626.19; and the Mid-year C.P.A. Executive Committee meeting in Malta at a cost of $2,944.51. Those are individual figures rather than accumulative figures.

Madam Speaker, as I said, this information is quite readily available. But if Honourable Members so desire I shall request of the Serjeant-of-Arms to prepare the relevant copies of the documents so that I may be able to...

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: On a Point of Order, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order, Honourable Minister?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I wonder if the Member would table his expenses for the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association Conference?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I am sure that you know that was already brought to the attention of the House, in a recent debate—his expenditure and travel to CPA Conferences. If I remember correctly, that is on record in the House. If you would like to bring that up again, you can do so. But it was recorded.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I will be doing that, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Would you continue, First Elected Member for Bodden Town?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I think, Madam Speaker, that the figures bear out the point that I wish to make: This Government has been the most travelled government in the history of our country. One significant note needs to be made: there is still much time left in their tenure of office, so there will undoubtedly be more such travel.

The Speaker: May we take the luncheon suspension at this time?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Certainly, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.15 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.43 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.21 PM

The Speaker: Debate continues with the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I need to make a clarification with regard to something I mentioned concerning the CPA passages. Some of these passages have been refunded, therefore they would not figure into the statistics which I read out before we adjourned for lunch. So I do not want to convey any confusion or the impression that this had not been done.

Madam Speaker, continuing now. One of the expectations of the public, and one of the means whereby apprehension and doubt are removed is by the Government providing ample notice on what it is intending to do and what it is intending to bring by way of Bills. Madam Speaker, it is accurate, indeed, it is both accurate and fair to remark that that was one of the selling points of the National Team and the Government. But the Government has not done a good job of this, they have not lived up to the promise; so, it bears emphasis that failing to deliver on this promise creates a certain amount of apprehension.

Madam Speaker, the Caymanian Compass of Wednesday, 19th January, 1995, very clearly and explicitly made the point in a column written by the Chamber of Commerce, entitled: "Public Notice on Bills". I will not read the whole column, as it is quite extensive. I will only say that in this column the Chamber of Commerce remarked that in the run-up to the 1992 General Elections the candidates' forum hosted by the Chamber enabled candidates to declare their position on ten major public issues, one of which involved advanced notice on Bills.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Standing Order 35(2) states: "It is out of order to attempt to revive in any debate a matter or reconsider any specific question upon which the House has come to a conclusion during the current session..."

We just dealt with that motion, Madam Speaker, by sending it to the Standing Orders Committee. The Standing Order goes on to say: "...except upon a substantive motion or rescission." I believe that I am right in calling his points out of order, in bringing this back into the debate when we have just completed it.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, that is not a valid Point of Order, because the Standing Order specifically says: "A specific question upon which the House has come to a conclusion..." Sending something to a Select Committee does not mean that the matter has come to a conclusion.

So that is not a valid Point of Order.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I am not going to question the Chair, but I would draw to your attention that we did take a vote—that means that that ends, it would revive when it comes back to us, from my understanding of the rules. But, as you have said, so it shall be.

The Speaker: But it is not really a conclusion, Honourable Minister. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, and I am glad that the Chair has posited that what I am saying is quite relevant, because I am discussing the Chamber of Commerce and its statement as it relates to apprehension in the community. The Chamber of Commerce, Madam Speaker, formally calls upon the Government to provide a statement to the public as to why they have not fulfilled this promise. Why have they denied democratic participation of the electorates?

Apprehension! Apprehension as a result of the public's inability to participate.

It is a matter of public record that the Chamber of Commerce is a watchdog and is perhaps, up to this point, the most influential and accurate thermometer as to the performance, not only of the Government but of individual Ministers and Members of Parliament. The Chamber from time to time voices its concerns, as it did in the article quoted.

The Government, especially the Honourable Minister who spoke for the Government, is always trying to portray the notion that the Opposition is disorganised, mischievous, and that what we offer is not constructive.

Madam Speaker, the Chamber of Commerce had this to say about the efforts of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and myself, as Opposition Members in this Honourable House, in an article in the Caymanian Compass on Wednesday, 7th June, 1994, "Views from the Chamber of Commerce" entitled: 'Good News for Democracy': "The Caymanian Compass of Wednesday, 31st May, featured an article on proposed motions by MLAs Roy Bodden and Gilbert McLean. Mr. Bodden has proposed that the public be given additional time to consider bills before they are tabled in the Legislative Assembly...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would like to take a Point of Order.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Member is now specifically referring to the length of time for Bills under the Standing Order—the motion just moved recently and sent to a Select Committee. It is very clear that once the motion is put, a vote is taken and it is sent to a Committee—there is no debate on it. What is happening now is an attempt to circumvent the Standing Orders.

Standing Order 84 specifically states: "When the motion is reached, the mover shall move the motion, and after it has been seconded, the question shall be put forthwith that the motion be referred to the Standing Orders Committee and if that question is agreed upon no further proceedings shall be taken on that motion until the Committee has reported thereon."

There was no right to speak on it then and, I submit, he is in breach of this order by attempting now to speak on a motion which he did not have a right to speak on at that time.

The Speaker: It is a valid Point of Order, and I must ask the Member, although he is quoting from what the Chamber of Commerce has stated in the article of the 7th of June, that this matter must be passed over. Would you go on to another subject? Thank you.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I respectfully bow to your ruling.

I will pass on the matter by saying that the Chamber of Commerce was only praising the efforts of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and myself, as responsible Opposition Members carrying out what we see as a very important duty.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yeah, right.

Mr. Roy Bodden: But, Madam Speaker, there are other areas which lend themselves to fear and apprehension which the Government has to take some responsibility for—certainly, the delay in implementing a Bill of Rights. The Hansards of this Honourable House will show that I have been persistent in my efforts to incorporate this essential doctrine into our Constitution. Would that the Government was of the same frame of mind to see such a necessity and such an urgency.

Madam Speaker, this whole business of a change in the Customs Law, when it came some time ago, still causes widespread ripples in the community. Yesterday, a letter was read by my colleague detailing what could clearly be termed as victimisation. What is striking, Madam Speaker, is that Government has an absence, it seems, of any regard for the suffering and the depravation brought on by these kinds of actions on legitimate enterprises and citizens.

Madam Speaker, I also have to wonder if the Government does not realise—and this especially goes to the Minister with responsibility for Education—that when he (as he did a short while ago) stands in this Honourable House and pokes fun at educated people by calling them defunct, that that, in itself, promotes social disharmony and apprehension?

But I want to say something in all seriousness, since he persists in castigating us as defunct school teachers: Perhaps it would be good for him to know what some elements of the public say about his abilities as an attorney. If an edict went out to hang attorneys and he was hung, someone would be in serious trouble for hanging an innocent man.

I say that, Madam Speaker, to ask what kind of country is this, where the Minister of Education pokes fun at education? Is this not, in itself, a manifestation of what this Motion is talking about? I hope he has taken note of what I have just said.

On occasions like these it is also the responsibility of the Opposition to bring to the attention of the Honourable House and the Government what is happening. Before I move on, I want to say that I heard the Honourable Minister for Education mention on many occasions that there are two of us on the Opposition—the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and myself—against 18 Members. Well, I wonder what kind of mathematics he is using when, up to yesterday, I heard the Fourth Elected Member for George Town say that he was sitting on a "little four inch fence"? Perhaps, Madam Speaker, like many things, that is a figment of that Honourable Minister's imagination.

Madam Speaker, I contend that the Motion is in order because the stewardship of the Government betrays a distressing level of confusion and a lack of any insight into the ills the country faces at this time which demand consistent and well thought-out policies, and not the discredited and untried quick fixes proposed by them. Certainly, the country is absolutely tired of the National Team heaping blame on past Governments, some [Members] of which I understand are never returning to active politics.

Madam Speaker, the aim of the Motion, contrary to the aim of the efforts spearheaded by the now Leader of Government Business when we were Backbenchers together, is certainly not to topple the Government. We are not asking anyone to step down gracefully. All the Motion says is: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Honourable House has no confidence in the Government." It is not for us to propose.

Just as I read from the text quoted at the beginning, the Motion is an indictment on the failure of the Government to deliver what they said they were going to deliver. The onus is not on me, nor is it on the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, for we are not in any position to make policy. It is, therefore, left to the Government to acquit themselves; to debate and convince Members of the Honourable House that they are not in breach of the confidence of the Honourable House.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I have listened carefully to the Opposition on this [Censure] Motion. In fact, when the Motion was sent to me by the staff of the Legislative Assembly, I had to wonder where the Opposition was going with this. I listened because they have not brought anything new, nothing other than what they have been saying all along.

But when a credible Opposition chooses to try to enlighten the country and the House that a government is all wrong and that things are in a disastrous situation, that Opposition—if they had the credibility and the where-withal—would lay before the country an alternative to what the government is doing. But they come with a Censure Motion, with no alternative and with no proof; nothing except wild allegations, insinuations and a down-right tearing down of the Honourable Minister for Education. Of course, they had their chance with me.

They have not produced any alternative, and when an Opposition in the Westminster tradition brings a Censure Motion they bring an alternative to the country and say: "Ladies and gentlemen, citizens of the country, this is what we offer you. We are the alternative government, and this is what we are offering you."

I ask the two of them: If they win the Censure Motion, who are they going to replace us with? They must tell the country. If they win the Censure Motion against the five Elected Ministers here, who will they replace us with? Is it the same group that has been stirring up trouble? Is it the same group that they have produced their subscription paper for—The Team Cayman? The one with the black hand shaking the white hand? Is that what they are going to offer the people of this country? The Black Power Movement? The Black Power sign? The Caribbean-style politics?

They have the barefaced gall to come here and accuse us of scaring people! I have never heard such vicious, outlandish attempts. It is in the true tradition of their schooling... and you heard who the First Elected Member for Bodden Town said that they associated with.

Now, Madam Speaker, I am going to try to deal with this attempt to discredit the National Team and the Ministers.

They began their debate by saying that the public was highly disgruntled in 1992, that the public had high hopes so they elected the National Team by a landslide victory: but those hopes were not realised. They went on saying nothing new, slandering people and insinuating things without proof—somebody told them this, somebody told them that—but no proof, only what they can concoct themselves. They are shelves of flowery language. They come from academia, they can do that—talk with no proof or substance.

First of all, the ploy... and let me deal with this issue first. The ploy of the Opposition, the two Members moving the Motion, to try and smear me or the government with a charge of being anti-expatriate is to cover-up their own history, to cover up their antics and their dislikes. If we could believe their ploy today of liking foreigners... but we know, and the Caymanian public knows, Roy Bodden and Gilbert McLean, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order please, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture is calling my name and that of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town which is not allowed under Standing Orders. He is posturing to catch attention, as he believes he will.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister did call names, but he afterwards corrected himself and used the correct terminology: "The First Elected Member for Bodden Town and The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman". So, I believe he realised the error and corrected it in time.

Would you continue, Honourable Minister?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, very much, Madam Speaker. I am sorry that I referred to them by their names and not their elected districts.

The people of this country know very well, and have heard remark after remark by those two men. For the First Elected Member for Bodden Town to come here and try to smear me as being anti-professional, or anti-expatriate... he should hang his head in shame. I wonder if he remembers his statement about Sir Milo Butler in the Bahamas? I wonder if he remembers that statement? I have not forgotten it. But it is not good to read everything to compound the problems.

I was discussing, in a public meeting with my constituents, the very matters that I raised in the Throne Speech—training and pensions. It is a fact that they have taken that... and I believe the paraphrasing was done deliberately because of the reporter that was there. I forgive them, because I clarified it promptly.

How could anyone try to imply that I, by what I said, did not like professionals, or that I was being "derogatory", as was the word used? And how can they say with all sense of propriety that the government is chasing people away to catch "trunk-loads of money", I believe were the words used by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Some other people have also taken it upon themselves—one, whose name was mentioned this morning by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, about some crane—I see him also writing in the press.

I believe that my record stands, and I will go into the records of this House to show that I am not a hypocrite and the people know that I am not a hypocrite. What those people who are writing letters in the press about expatriates should do... they would have done well, Madam Speaker, if when they were on the Caymanian Protection Board to have not given status and permanent residency with the right to work to certain people who today are not only interfering with the small business of Caymanians, but are also driving away the business of good long-term residents who have built up their businesses here for many years. They are not only driving Caymanians out of business, they are driving foreigners out too.

I did not sit on the Caymanian Protection Board, nor do I sit there now. But the public well know who got status and who got permanent residency with the right to work, and what business they are in today, and who gave it to them. I do not think that anyone can accuse me of being anti-expatriate or anti-professional.

Madam Speaker, please allow me to read from a Hansard. I have been consistent. I will just go back to the 16th of March, 1992, and perhaps some others. It is very important that I do. I want to quote from the Hansard, 16th March 1992: "When it comes to expatriate labour and opportunities for Caymanians, I am not a hypocrite. I have always said I support an immigration policy which would preserve, strengthen and expand the economic health of these Islands, by policies where long range growth for economic sectors is determined, and a system where labour budgets to fit growth needs are devised, and available Caymanian labour and the amount of foreign workers required is established to ensure quality growth to operate, strengthen and expand the international business sector which we are so heavily dependant upon, while ensuring that Caymanians are not shunted in their career opportunities."

Madam Speaker, that is McKeeva Bush speaking there, and I quote again from the same speech: "It is true that we have companies now from Europe, and I did not say that we did not, but we need to attract more European banks, other financial institutions, trusts, insurance companies and so on. What I was dealing with is the high net-worth individual who is most affected by the different European tax laws.

"It is a fact that the European Economic Community, through its tax structure, will drive away its high income professionals and high net-worth individuals. For example, a highly specialised German doctor will have to pay 60 to 70 percent of his income in taxes. These Islands, with the proper atmosphere conducive to investors I am saying must attract these kinds of investors with their investments.

"It is for these Islands to bridge the gap which is being caused by the European Common Market. This is what I was dealing with. We must actively go after that kind of business and effectively inform those targets about our advantages to be able to portray that we are not just another Island in the Caribbean with a shaky future. We must launch an in-depth campaign to convince them that we are the real alternative. I contend that if there is any new growing market into which we can develop, it can be sought in Europe. I am not particularly talking about the tourists, but much more about high finance and personal investment which I think is the future of this country."

Madam Speaker, I would like to quote again, and I quote from the Hansard of 5th March 1992: "Madam Speaker, I am going through the different components of the economy to perhaps see where new revenues could come from. If we look at the Banking Industry policy which already contributes a substantial amount to the public purse through Stamp Duty, Bank and Trust Licences and so on, our banking legislation could be examined to determine if any improvements could be made to facilitate banking industry expansion."

I went on to say: "I have long said that these Islands have much more space for development in the international business sector. While our financial industry has a good reputation, that reputation is not established everywhere.

"I feel that a world-wide bigger campaign is needed in order to let people know more about us and our good marketing public relations and communication in these target areas."

Continuing in the same Hansard: "Firstly, in trying to build our revenue base in order to keep down inflation the Cayman Islands should carefully target the European tourism market and increase its office representation in those areas. An appropriate marketing campaign should be devised aimed specifically at each target country as tastes and preferences of tourists vary widely..."

Madam Speaker, I would like to continue reading from the Hansards. I want to read from [3rd] December 1991: "Madam Speaker, the more foreign capital coming into the country, the more Caymanian workers, businesses and entrepreneurs would be able to accumulate capital of their own so that they can participate more and more in the development of their country."

I further quote: "If anyone thinks that this country can get ahead, can develop without foreigners and their investment money, they are sadly mistaken and fail to understand what has brought us this far. We, Caymanians and foreigners alike, must continue working together as working partners for a stable future."

Madam Speaker, does this sound to you or to any other Member of this Honourable House, like I am someone who is anti-professional or anti-expatriate worker, or expatriate-business? Or could it ever be seen that I am in the category likened to that of Jamaica (I believe, was the example used) back in the 1970s? Can anyone honestly say that, Madam Speaker, except for those people who know better, but are only playing politics; except for those people who have associated, who admit they went to school and mixed with the same people when Jamaica was being destabilised? Everyone knows that the two Opposition Members are cut from that kind of cloth.

Madam Speaker, the Hansards from the recent meeting record the same thing—let us bring foreign capital in, and let us train Caymanians.

My Ministry is dealing with the same things that I said should happen through the Manpower Development Review. How can they accuse me of being anti-professional or anti-expatriate?

Madam Speaker, what is hurting this country is when big and bold statements are made in this House and on the outside in public meetings by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman about this country. The business of the Opposition is to oppose. As someone said it was their first, second and third business. But nobody has ever said it is not the business of the Government in power to resist the Opposition. It is not the legitimate purpose of the Opposition to do things that tend to injure the country.

I say that group, or any other group, must present a clear alternative in terms of policies and aim so that there are real challenges for the people of this country in the future.

They are engaging in nothing but disruptive and destructive opposition—tearing everything down. They accused us of tearing things down. The things we are tearing down are things that the people of this country said they wanted torn down. Those were the plans of Ezzard Miller and that group that the country could not afford. Whether we have gotten off on the start that we wanted to or not, the fact remains that the people of this country chose and elected us, by very large number, to do just that.

Madam Speaker, what is hurting this country, and what will hurt it worse, is when Elected Representatives, in their want for power, take tapes of shows and publish them in a political meeting—such as the one done by the BBC, which is designed by outsiders who do not live here, designed by outsiders to injure the Cayman Islands as a properly run financial centre. When these intellectuals publish these things, and they get published and bruited abroad, who is it hurting but the country.

Yet they come into this Honourable House and don these attitudes of injured innocence and declare that they are the Lord Almighty knows-it-all who can do it all. They want to talk about something? Let them put out their record for the public to judge.

When it comes to the running of this country, if the public wants to dump this Government and take on the alternative in hiding—the Ezzards, the two Elected Members in here, the Linfords and all the others who were named by the Minister for Education and Planning—let them do it; let them do it by democratic means. If the people choose, I will live by it. But I do not believe that group is going to maintain the financial centre in the way that it has been maintained in this country up until now.

Madam Speaker, can they say that this country is falling apart and show proof of it? If things are as bad as they have said, Madam Speaker, why is there so much activity in our financial industry? How can they call us a Banana Republic, as they have been saying on the public platforms, when there are so many people from the outside—the investors—choosing the Cayman Islands?

Madam Speaker, in company registration (and this was up until March) there were 992 mutual funds. Since 1992 Banks and Trust Companies now stand at 559—more now but it is an increase of 27 up until that date. Company registration was up at the time 25,000, and, as of December last year, the figure that I had was 31,612. In 1992 there were 102 ships registered, and in 1994/95 there are 730. Does this sound like we are living in a country that is broken down, that nobody trusts us? We are not afraid of criticism, but it must be constructive and fair. If something is wrong, criticise it—but give us an alternative. Say this is what I will do and this is how I would do it. But are those two highfalutin Opposition Members doing that?

What I am really concerned about is the kind of philosophy being pushed by those two Members today—the same kind of political philosophy which made such wide allegations about giving guns to young offenders. This is not a philosophy that I will adhere to. When they talk about intellectuals and Jamaica... it was those people who destroyed it with their philosophies. It was those kinds of political confrontational tactics that destroyed the Caribbean back in 1970. You heard the First Elected Member for Bodden Town say who he was associated with.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order, First Elected Member for Bodden Town?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister is misleading this House because I made no statement, either in this House or outside of this House, concerning my association with anyone in Jamaica in the 1970s. Madam Speaker, I was not there and, for the Honourable Minister's record, I went to universities in Canada.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, can you explain your statement?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I was only referring to his explanation when he was speaking about Trevor Monroe and the others. It was he who mentioned the name, in talking about what they were doing and who went to school with them. I thought he was there back in the late 60s and the early 70s.

The Speaker: I think that perhaps you might continue with your speech Honourable Minister.[pause]

Would you wish for a suspension at this time?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you very much, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.21 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.51 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture continuing.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I believe that I have sufficiently dealt with this aspect of what was said in my public meeting. I think the House and the country understands—except for those people who want to play politics with it—that I am not what they try to portray and what the Opposition is now saying, and I believe that the Opposition knows better. They know better. But I say to them, that in their wanting to try and make me look bad, they have to understand that they are damaging the country.

It is on that basis that I will not go further into other things that were recorded in the Hansards, said by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, because it can do the country no good with all the things that are being said. So I want them to understand that I will refrain at this time from further dealing with it in the way that I could, but I have the Hansards showing what they have said, and if they push me into it, Madam Speaker, the Hansards will be laid on the Table for one and all to see.

Madam Speaker, many unfounded criticisms have been pushed at the Government, accusations made ... I do not know where he comes off at about Hurlstone Construction. What I do know is that when the last Government was in power, the cry was that the only people in construction who were getting anything was that particular company. I do not handle that part of the economy, but that is a fact.

I have no problem, Madam Speaker, with the owners of that company. What I have a problem with is the way they ran the country when they were in charge. Nobody else could get work... or, I should say, very little work was given to other people.

Madam Speaker, the Opposition Member for Bodden Town who spoke, said that we should engage the brain before the mouth. I agree with him, but he needs to tell that to his leader. He calls him "my leader". I wonder if his brain was engaged when he asked me, as the Minister for Health [at the time], to give contraceptives to pregnant women?

[Interruptions from a Member]

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [addressing voice across the floor] You just keep quiet because I am not done with you yet.

Madam Speaker, there was mention made about the seamen, and I will leave that to my honourable colleague, the Minister for Health, but they are in a better position because it is not abuse. I will leave it for him to deal with it. We have a good situation worked out now, where Caymanian seamen who are in need will be assisted.

If they know that something is not working they should say so. They should not come in here, Madam Speaker, saying what they heard ("I hear this and I hear that"), say what the problem is; for if there is a problem in what we have done, we would like to correct it because we are not hearing that ourselves.

Madam Speaker, I hear the First Elected Member for Bodden Town saying that he has taken steps to remove his name from the Roy Bodden Road in Bodden Town. This is after they have criticised the Government for spending funds in West Bay. The truth about it is that not all roads that are fixed or constructed by the Government have been gazetted. George Town, mainly, has a lot of gazetted roads, but the roads are not gazetted, especially in West Bay, where we have practically the whole western peninsula which is so widely populated with many homes being built. We have to rush sometimes to assist people in getting the fire truck, the garbage truck and ambulance to their homes.

That is the least that a progressive country can do. It is no different from what has been done over the years. So why criticise us? Why try to make us look as if we are doing something bad?

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town can take his name off the road, but the fact is that he still lives on the road and he will benefit from the $691,000 expenditure to fix it. So why criticise us? Be fair. That is all I say to them.

Madam Speaker, much has been said about the advertising conferences held by the Government in the three countries. There was one accusation made that Mr. Truman Bodden, the Minister for Education and Planning, did not attend meetings. That is not true. What is true is that at one meeting we were invited to talk to a large firm about locating to the Cayman Islands, at the same time of that meeting there was another meeting, and Mr. Bodden went to that one and the other group attended the meeting with the people of the large firm. There is no truth about his going off to do his own business. He went on Government's business like everybody else did.

The question must be asked: What was Mr. Pierson doing in that meeting? Not the trip, not the conference, but the one with the investors.

I have no apologies to make. Over the years I have, as can be ascertained from the Hansards I read out earlier, advocated advertising Cayman. There are many other things which are being done where I am glad that I was in the forefront when others chose not to say anything in the House about getting some of them done. I was on the Backbench, and the two Opposition Members know it because they were with us at the time. Some of the motions I brought asked for some of these things. So why not send us, their Elected Representatives?

When people are going to talk about the Constitution they will want to ask questions ... Madam Speaker, who are they going to ask? The Attorney General? No! Ask the Elected Representatives. And if they were in Government, it would be no different. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman knows that, because he has been a civil servant and he has been on many of these trips—boozing it up and having a good time, smoking big Cuban cigars and stuff like that. Now you want to criticize us? You should be ashamed of yourself!

[Voice from across the floor]

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: [addressing voice across the floor] Ask him, he likes them.

Madam Speaker, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town made mention about the different expenditures in travelling, and they are using this as a part of their vindictiveness against Government—over expenditure and mismanagement.

When I took over in 1993, the first thing we were faced with was the Cuban crisis. We did not know how to handle it. When I say that... we did not have the experience or the facilities. If the people in the country remember one of the places that [Tent City] was supposed to go was in Bodden Town. The people objected, in fact a petition was signed and they said that it should be taken down on Seven Mile Beach. That was where the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, and probably the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said it should be taken. Madam Speaker, I did not believe that it should go [on Seven Mile Beach] because that is in the heart of our tourism industry. We went over to Miami to look at what they had set up. From that we gleaned some good information. That is just an example of what we had to deal with.

I had to go to Aruba for the Drug Awareness Campaign. One of the things that I learned there was what I had always believed in, that we should attack the drug abuse problem in the districts. When I came back I set up the Community Development Action Committees. That is where that came from, and you can go right down the line and see that where I did official travel, I came back with good ideas which cost the Government little or nothing.

What they should say is that their colleagues of the past Government, in fact the two who now sit with them in their proposed new Executive Council (Mr. Pierson and Mr. Ezzard Miller) spent over $4 million in consultancy fees plus their travelling. Tell me what the country has to show for it! Tell me what. How much have we spent in consultancy fees, Madam Speaker? That is the difference. Sure, Government spends $2,000, $1,500 or $100, as the case may be, for us to travel. If you look at my responsibilities in comparison to some of the other ones; if you look at what I have accomplished, regardless of what they want to say; they cannot match the accomplishments that have been achieved in this country since 1993.

So how are we going to get things done? How are we going to move from one country to the next to examine similar situations? Ride a stick horse?

Madam Speaker, I really object to Members bringing the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association into this political arena. It is one thing that other chairmen and I have asked Members not to do, because it is not something to be drawn into the political arena. It is true that I have had quite a bit of travel, but there have been other Members as well. But that is what it is all about; that is how Members gain information, and that is how they know what is happening in other areas, and how we know a lot of times what not to do.

In dealing with my travelling expenditures for the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, I want to state quite clearly for all to hear, Madam Speaker, that expenditure is not paid by the Cayman Islands' Government. My expenditure is paid for by London by virtue of the fact that I sit on the international body, which is the Executive Committee. I sit there as one of the Regional Representatives for the Caribbean, the Atlantic and the Americas. We have two meetings—one in April and another in October. There are also meetings in between where we deal with all sorts of problems. Members know what it is all about.

The Member who spoke was never on the Executive Council, but he travelled for the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association. He went all the way to Australia—we sent him all the way to Australia to have a good time.

Madam Speaker, why come here and make people believe that the Government is doing something wrong, when he has been party to it? Why try to make them believe that I have been doing something so drastically wrong, Madam Speaker? This country has had only two Members of this Honourable House to sit on the international body as Regional Representatives, that is, the Deputy Speaker, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, and myself. But the expenditure is not paid for by the Cayman Islands Government, it is paid for by the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association Headquarters in London. I do not see how that could be mismanagement. Tell the country the truth!

Madam Speaker, I do not know how they expect to form a Government with the people who they are now mixed up with. Firstly, Madam Speaker, people expect you to be trustworthy. You cannot say one thing today, and then say something else tomorrow and expect the people of the country to follow you. They are bound to ask questions: "Wait a minute. Where are they taking us? Yesterday they said this was so, and today they are saying it is not so." You cannot do that on major policies. You have to be consistent, or else the outside investors will question your common sense and the safety for investment.

We heard them talking about the Cubans, and how badly we have dealt with them; we should not be paying for them, we should not send them to Guantanamo Bay. I read from the Hansard record the speech of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and I quote: "I think we need to look very carefully at the humanitarian side of this situation that we now have, while not encouraging these shores to be refuge for persons who are running from their individual countries. We are too small to sustain the economic burden, but I believe that the Government could and should seek to find other destina- tions or assist these refugees to find other destinations.”

What has the Government done, and why has he changed his position?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: [interjecting off microphone]

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [addressing the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman] What else were you going to do?

If we had not sent them to Guantanamo Bay, Madam Speaker, we would have had to send them to some other country, as he has said. But first we could only send them to some other country if that other country accepted them. What were we going to do?

They criticised us for going to Washington, D.C. What were we going to do, Madam Speaker, sit and do nothing? I do not believe that is the way you run a country. You do what is necessary, even though at times the Opposition, or those around you, may make you feel that you do not know what you are doing. But I do not believe in sitting down and doing nothing. I would rather be wrong than to sit down and do nothing—I must attempt to do something.

You cannot be one thing today and another thing tomorrow and expect the world to be your follower.

Madam Speaker, there has been much hullabaloo about the Turtle Farm. Bring back the former Director, they say. Madam Speaker, I believe that the Turtle Farm has a good Manager and good staff. They are searching for a scientist, and they will get one. While I was not involved in any shape or form—because they have their own independent board—I had no objection to his leaving the country. I served on the board for several years and I know what it was like to deal with that man. Every time he left the country there was a break-in at the Turtle Farm. When he came back he would not do an inventory. He was pulled down about it at several board meetings, but he would not do an inventory. Lo and behold, there was $164,000 missing, and we said that there would have to be an investigation.

What they wanted to do was an investigation of the clerks only. I said no, there had to be an investigation of the entire staff, because when I did my investigation what I found out was that the Manager would go to the sales clerks during the day—we know there is a lot of traffic, thousands of dollars going into the Turtle Farm—and he would go to the till and take out $1,500, $300, $1,000. He would just write on a slip of paper what the amount was which was placed in the till. At the end of the day that would be turned in to him and his wife. Yet they wanted to investigate the sales clerks—the people who were taking in the money.

I said that we should do a full investigation. It was at that time, because I would not support the renewal of his contract unless they did a proper investigation, that the Member at the time changed the Regulation where it said that there had to be a Member of the Assembly from West Bay on the board to where it could be just anyone from West Bay appointed to the board. I was taken off [the board]. They changed the Regulations. And what did you hear? Although a public statement was never made about it, they could not live with me on the board. There were other reasons why they could not live with me. I have no pity or objection to his going. As far as I am concerned, good riddance.

Madam Speaker, one of the things talked about by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town was the school leaving age. I do not know why he got into a hassle with the Minister for Education about it, because it is true that it was he and I who, on the 27th of February, 1989, got a Motion passed to increase the school leaving age in the Cayman Islands. So I do not know why he would get into a hassle about it.

I do not think there was anything bad about it. I think it was a good thing that the Member for Education, who has been the Member for Education for many years, should have done it. They cannot complain about the situation with education. I believe that education is in a better condition today than it was before.

When my son, who is now 18, was in school back then (around 1987 to 1989), there were three major changes to the education system of this country in one year. I do not remember what year it was. But to now say that the country does not want to hear the National Team talk about these things—that must be the few people that they are talking to in the country. But when you go widespread, people remember because peoples' children were affected by it. The only children who could get scholarships were those who were favoured.

I remember when we took over, certain people who I know could afford, who gave large donations by the hundreds of thousands (I heard), were getting full scholarships while other children who should have received scholarship were not getting them. Tomorrow, God willing, I will say what we have done in regards to student loans since they are saying that I am not doing anything for young people.

They cannot say one thing today and say another thing tomorrow, as the Opposition does.

Madam Speaker, this is why the public is not going to follow the Opposition and their 'Executive Council'. I heard that their 'Executive Council' is the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, Mr. Ezzard Miller, Mr. Oswald Rankine (that is the name, I do not know if he will run or not), and Mr. Linford Pierson. But I do not think anyone is going to follow them because I heard the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, who I expected always to be a person who knew something about education, say just a while ago that he does not support strategic planning.

Now, here is this letter to the Honourable Truman Bodden, the Member for Education, Aviation and Culture dated November 23rd, 1993...

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order, First Elected Member for Bodden Town?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister is deliberately misleading the House because I made no such statement saying that I do not support strategic planning. I said that it is not my preferred policy method for change.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I like his choice of words. What I had written down, and it is recorded in the Hansard, is, "I do not favour strategic planning...", straight. That is what he said.

The Speaker: Well, I think we are playing with words here, Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I think the Member knows how to do that, Madam Speaker. I really do not know semantics.

The Speaker: Can you please just proceed with your debate?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you very much.

What he said then, on November 23rd, 1993, in a letter to the Honourable Truman Bodden, Member for Education, Aviation and Culture, and I quote ... I wonder if I should read the whole letter... Suffice it to say, Madam Speaker, it says: "The choice of strategic planning, while not new to educational administration was, in my opinion, timely and relevant to the Caymanian educational establishment..."

How can anyone believe them when they bring a resolution so wide, so far, to expect to topple the Government in our Westminster tradition, which is what a Censure Motion does. An Opposition has to be credible, it has to offer alternatives. You cannot be today one thing and tomorrow another thing. The country will not, I know they will not, follow that kind of leadership.

Mr. Roy Bodden: There are no backstabbers over here, though. That is more than you can say.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I do not think that...

Mr. Roy Bodden: Brutus! Brutus!

[pause]

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, are you going to use your two remaining minutes to debate?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I am sorry, Madam Speaker, but this is one time I appreciate losing my composure.

[Member's laughter].

The Speaker: Would you like to move the Motion for the adjournment at this time?

Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY 9 JUNE 1995.

FRIDAY
9 JUNE, 1995
10.09 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Third Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. The first question is number 111, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 111

No. 111: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to provide a list of tenders for the hospital wastewater treatment plant.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The following four contractors were invited to bid on the new Hospital waste water treatment plant: 1) McAlpine (Cayman) Ltd; 2) Environmental Engineering Ltd; 3) Unit BCM Cape Ltd; 4) Arch & Godfrey (Cayman) Ltd.

Prior to the tender submission date, two of the contractors invited to bid notified the Water Authority that they were withdrawing from the tender. The two contractors were: McAlpine (Cayman) Ltd and Unit BCM Cape Ltd.

Bids from the remaining two contractors were opened by the Central Tenders Committee on 3rd February, 1995.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say if the term 'invited to bid' meant that these people were specifically requested to submit bids, or was it a case where advertisements were run and any company which could comply was encouraged to submit a tender?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, it was the latter. Advertisements requesting interested contractors to submit expressions of interest and qualifications were run in the Caymanian Compass and in The New Caymanian on Friday, 1st July, 1994. Four contractors responded to this advertisement and we proceeded from there.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 112, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 112

No. 112: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what Public Health Programmes have been implemented by the Medical Officer of Health during his term of office.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: The Medical Officer of Health has the responsibility for overall management (technical, professional and administrative) of all the Public Health Programmes in the Cayman Islands and for advising the Ministry on all public health related matters.

In addition to the ongoing and routine implementation of Public Health Programmes, the Medical Officer of Health has undertaken the following special projects during his term of office.

1. Introduced new vaccines in the Immunisation Programme as soon as they were available: e.g., MMR vaccine in 1983; Hepatitis B vaccination to Health Care Workers in 1988; Haemophilus B (Hib) vaccine in 1992.

2. Developed various health promotion programmes: for example:

- Initiated annual Health Week activities and annual screening programmes for diabetes and hypertension in 1983;

- organised the first Health Fair in 1985 and the second Health Fair in 1992;
- was instrumental in the development of education materials such as leaflets, radio and television spots and give-aways such as pens, key chains and magnets, all with health promotion messages;
- has organised the annual No Tobacco Day activities since 1988;
- was primarily involved in the development of a Smoking Cessation Programme initiated on the 31st May, 1995;
- conducted survey on the knowledge attitudes and practices of teenagers towards use of alcohol and drugs in 1985 to obtain data for planning purposes;
- developed the Heartbeat Cayman Project in 1991 to focus on prevention and control of cardiovascular diseases.

3. Organised Sexually Transmitted Diseases Awareness Week during 1985, 1990, and 1994 and the annual screening for Sexually Transmitted Diseases for the past eight years. In 1983, 1989, 1992 and 1994, organised education seminars for staff to enhance their knowledge of the management of Sexually Transmitted Diseases.

4. Developed national programmes for prevention, control and management of AIDS since the occurrence of the first case in Cayman in 1985. I would like to interject at this stage that he was also instrumental in helping to draft the legislation when Mr. Miller's AIDS situation came on board and the legislation to ban it.

Prepared medium-term plans 1989-1991 and 1992-1997, and sought funding from the Pan American Health Organisation; and has also organised Annual World Aids Day activities since 1990.

5. In order to strengthen and further develop the Genetics Programmes, organised the visits of Dr. Benke from Mailman Centre in Miami in 1982 and 1995, Dr. Matalon from Chicago in 1988 and Professor Graham Seargent from the Sickle Cell Clinic at the University of the West Indies in 1989.

6. Initiated the Drug Prevention and Treatment Programme in 1984, and continued to coordinate this until 1993.

7. Coordinated the development of the Employee Assistance Programme as a joint venture between the Government and the Chamber of Commerce. The programme was launched in May 1992.

8. Organised Public Awareness Programmes to alert the public to outbreaks of disease in the region and elsewhere and put in place necessary steps to prevent importation of these conditions.

9. To implement Government's desire to expand the improve community health care, developed the proposals for District Health Centres in Bodden Town, West Bay and North Side and soon to be, East End.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

May I ask the Honourable Minister if all of these programmes are currently still in place; and, also, how are they being monitored as to the success rate?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: To the best of my knowledge these programmes are all ongoing and would be monitored by the personnel within the Public Health Department by keeping data and referring back to it.

One thing that has come out of this is the genetics programme that has now been initiated. I am very optimistic about solutions coming about. As a matter of fact, I have been told that there is a very good chance that by the end of this year we may be able to isolate the gene that is causing the Cayman disease. I am very hopeful that can be brought about shortly.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say whether there are any plans to take a more progressive approach towards some of these programmes, especially in advertising and promoting educational awareness among the younger elements of the population?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker. To enforce this we have recently employed a Health Promotion Officer. Also, in our Strategic Planning (which will come on line later this year) educating our young people is very much emphasised.

I would also like to take this opportunity to address the many questions that have been raised about the Medical Officer of Health. I can only speak from having worked with him, but he is a very highly qualified professional. I would like to say to this Honourable House that I have the highest esteem for him. I have had no problems, especially having worked with him on the Bodden Town Health Centre. Right now we are getting ready for the one in West Bay, which I recently advised the Members from there about. This year we have plans in the Budget for North Side and also we will get the plans going for East End.

A person within the civil service who does a professional job to the best of their ability should not be politically victimised. I do not think, when a person is doing what he is supposed to do under the General Orders, that he should be continually harassed.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister could give us some idea of these steps that have been put into place under number 8: "Organised Public Awareness Programmes to alert the public to outbreaks of disease in the region and elsewhere and put in place necessary steps to prevent importation of these conditions"?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, in regards to the outbreak of Ebola disease in Zaire, he has already put that in there. Whenever any epidemic breaks out in the region... I am sure that most of us have seen the programmes and warnings that are put there. When people come in from these infected areas Immigration has the authority to flag these and have them screened, and if necessary quarantined.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say whether the educational seminars and programmes promoting the awareness of sexually transmitted diseases are held on a regular basis? And could the Honourable Minister give us an idea, for example, as to whether these programmes are staged in schools or at health clinics?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes Ma'am, these seminars are ongoing. As a matter of fact, up until November or December last year, I was in attendance at the one dealing with AIDS, where the authorities in the area from the University of Miami and the Caribbean presented these seminars at one of the hotels. The number of nurses and other health caregivers in attendance was incredible. I was very pleased to see the support it was getting and the awareness of our health care-givers participating and getting better prepared for the problems we have here in the Cayman Islands in relation to AIDS.

The programme also goes on in the schools.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 113, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 113

Withdrawn

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would beg leave of the Chair and the House to withdraw this question since, subsequent to my submitting the question, the information solicited here has appeared in the media and also over the airways making it unnecessary to have the question answered in this forum.

The Speaker: The question is that question No. 113 be withdrawn as the information has now become available through the media. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The question is accordingly withdrawn.

AGREED: QUESTION 113 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 114, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would ask that this question be deferred until later in the meeting.

The Speaker: The Member has to call the question first, then at that time you would ask that it be withdrawn.

QUESTION NO. 114

Deferred

No. 114: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning if the Federal Aviation Authority has placed any restrictions on the type of aircraft that Cayman Airways Limited can operate in the United States of America.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would ask that this question be deferred until later in the meeting.

The Speaker: The question is that Question No. 114, be withdrawn until a latter sitting during this meeting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The question is accordingly withdrawn.

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 114 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 115, standing in the name of The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 115

No. 115: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning whether he was aware, and did he agree that Cayman Airways Limited should enter into contracts to lease aircraft without a "Break Clause".

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Cayman Airways Limited, because of its past history, is not in a strong position to negotiate leases. In spite of that, the management has been successful in acquiring two excellent aircraft (one four years newer and one eight years newer than the previous aircraft). Together, these two aircraft cost approximately US$450,000 less per year in rental than the previous lease arrangements. One contract is for three years, the second is for four and one-half years. In such short contracts it is impossible in a seller's market to get break clauses.

When break clauses are included, the lease cost is increased. Cayman Airways Limited has never had a lease with a break clause, not even for the 15 year leases of the two 737-400s, which lease payments (excluding reserves for maintenance checks) totalled approximately US $112 million compared to the lease payments of the present two 737-200s which only total approximately US $8,130,000—that is, the exposure on the two 737-400 leases was approximately $104 million greater than on the present 737-200s.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the question asked: "Whether the Minister for Aviation was aware and did he agree that Cayman Airways Limited should enter into contracts to lease aircraft without a 'Break Clause'." I do not see a reply to that substantive question in what has been given here as an answer.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I thought the answer was clear: It is yes.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Minister is on record, in a large number of instances, speaking about, disagreeing with and confirming that under him such contracts could not be entered into with Cayman Airways. In fact, the one which he drew reference to most times was the one for $112 million (as mentioned here) with the 737-400s.

Is the Minister telling this House that airlines around the world or, certainly, Cayman Airways, can possibly get an aircraft to lease where that lease or contract has a break clause?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, if I had been entering into leases that could have committed Cayman Airways and, through guarantees, this Government to $112 million, by no means would I have entered into it without a break clause. The instances that the Honourable Member is referring to related to these leases where we were dealing with $112 million over 15 years. This is a short lease. In short leases such as this with so little money—the total commitments under the lease is US $8.1 million. That is a little bit less than one and one half-year subsidy to the airline.

It is impossible in very short leases such as this, where there is a fairly small amount of money involved, to get the break clauses. You can get break clauses in leases of this length, but the cost of doing so would be astronomical. One of these is for only three years, for example, when do you break it? Is it after the first year or the second year? But we are talking about very small amounts of money.

Here, the difference is that these are short term leases for $8.1 million compared to $112 million on two aircraft alone—we must remember that Cayman Airways had three 737-400s, not just two, so the overall cost was probably $150 million. I would never commit this country to $112 million, regardless of how many break clauses or other clauses were put into a lease.

This is the reason why we have such good rental. We are paying $450,000 less (the difference between $85,000 that we pay now and $110,000 (US) per month that we were paying before) on these leases. They are very good leases and, quite frankly, Madam Speaker, Cayman Airways is now in a position where I have no worry whatsoever that they cannot continue paying their leases. They are paying all their other debts—something that has never happened before in the history of Cayman Airways. We have entered into these in good faith and Cayman Airways can easily pay this—in fact, we are paying back the last Government's loan at a rate of $600,000 per annum, along with these leases. So there is no problem with it. It is a normal transaction.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would like to ask the Honourable Minister if he is saying that the companies were reluctant to have a break clause in the contracts for these two particular aircraft, or is he saying to the House that in such instances, where five year leases are concerned, you do not get break clauses in them?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, we could not get break clauses on these two aircraft.

The Honourable Member must remember that the airline business is not like running a very small business. There are other people out there trying to get these jets. One of these is a 1984 jet. It is something in the vicinity of eight years newer than another jet, which we were paying $110,000 for—which the previous Government had committed us to for three years without any break clause. It was impossible to get these clauses in it.

What I would like to point out again to the Honourable Member is that Cayman Airways is in a position where I am not going to break the leases. This was what happened with the previous Government when they had just about bankrupted Cayman Airways.

He knows that we both objected at that stage to the $112 million leases without break clauses. But I point out again that this is only US $8 million, and we are going to run those jets (they are very good jets) and we have them at an extremely good price. The rental per month for these much newer jets is considerably less, Madam Speaker, than what we were paying for the two reasonably old 737-200s that the last Government left for Cayman Airways.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Member say if he is aware of a magazine, Avmark Inc., and that in its April issue 1995, Lufthansa alone was selling 737-200s, some delivered in 1987, some in 1988, and that this magazine carries a listing of all sorts of various aircraft which is available, and that there may have been, and were, aircraft available that Cayman Airways could have gotten where we could have had break clauses?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, if you can reply to that, I will allow you to.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I do not know which edition or which issue he is referring to, but what I would like to say is that buying aircraft is not like buying toys. You have to go into detail with these, you have to see the quality of the aircraft. Cayman Airways turned down many aircraft that were offered.

In the end, you have to get the type of aircraft as near in quality and type to what is needed for the specific routes. Sure, you can go out there and maybe lease aircraft for less, but you get what you pay for. If somebody is offering an aircraft for little or nothing, then it means you may spend millions and millions of dollars doing D-Checks.

It is not as simple as just going out and picking up a magazine, such as Avmark, which is related to selling aircraft. When you look at the aircraft there are so many factors; and it is a very complex, detailed process when you lease them. All I can say is that I think we have two very good aircraft. One of them is a 1984 that came from British Airways where it was obviously well maintained.

I can really add no further to that, than to say that the time has come when the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman needs to get out of politics and leave Cayman Airways alone while it is making a profit and trying to move on.

The Speaker: Before we proceed to the next question, under question No. 114, I think the Honourable Minister asked that it be withdrawn. I think he really meant deferred. I just wanted to get that point clear...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is correct, Ma'am.

The Speaker: Deferred, not withdrawn. Thank you very much. The next question is No. 116, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 116

No. 116: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning how the annual inter-school sports events are planned and decided upon and who is responsible for their execution.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the answer: The inter-Primary School sports meet is an integral part of the Education Department's annual school calendar. It is planned by a Committee made up of Principals of each school and a representative from each school, both public and private, coordinated by the peripatetic physical education teacher under the guidance of the Senior Education Officer Training and Support Services. The programme of events for annual sports day is sanctioned by the Chief Education Officer on advice of the above Committee.

The same Committee is responsible for overseeing that the sports meet goes smoothly.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if, in the most recent of these events, there have been any problems involved with any schools, including the school children from Cayman Brac?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker, the instance I think the Honourable Member is referring to is when the last inter-school sports was scheduled. We got notification that the track, which was subsequently named the Truman Bodden Complex, was being worked on and the complex was begin worked on because of the upcoming CARIFTA games. The Primary School pupils came across and the venue had to be changed to the Bodden Town Sports Field.

One day was held at the Bodden Town Sports Field, and the second day was held sometime after and went off quite well. Assistance was given to the students and parents who had come over here who were not able to compete in the sports for the two days.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Minister say why there was no communication to the children from Cayman Brac who were travelling from another island to Grand Cayman? If they had been informed of the changes, they could have made proper arrangements for the housing of the children and all the other provisions that go into it.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I guess hindsight is 20/20. Looking back on it, perhaps it would have been better to notify them and to stop them from coming down. However, the decision was taken in what was felt to be the best decision at the time. It proved to create inconvenience.

While I knew nothing of the decision, I obviously take responsibility for it. I apologised to the schools in Cayman Brac publicly at an address that I gave some-time back, and I am a big enough man to stand here and apologise and take responsibility for what happened, notwithstanding that neither I or any of the Ministers knew about it. I am very sorry that we had that interruption. We tried to make up for it by assisting the parents, students and teachers so that their second day here... we did all we could to make up for it. It was an error. There was a judgment decision made at the time, and it is now history.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As history is alleged to repeat itself, could the Honourable Minister say if in the communications from the coordinator, or whoever else really planned these events, that he instructed different schools as to whether they should provide food and drink for children, or exactly what they were supposed to bring or not bring, and whether sufficient shelters are provided at these sites so that the children are not in the extreme heat as has been the case in the past?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Truman Bodden Sports Complex has a lot of shelter and most of the bleachers are covered. If the Honourable Member would be more specific, I am not certain what. . . . There should be no reason why children who wish to be under shelter at these annual sports—from the last meet, as well as in the future—cannot be under shelter. There is adequate shelter on both sides of the complex.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and this will be the last supplementary question.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if it is his intention, or the intention of the Department of Education, to hold inter-school events (be they high-school or middle-school) in this complex where there is supposed to be sufficient shelter for the children?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, as I mentioned in the answer, the decision on where these are held is dealt with by this committee. All I can say is that it is there and available, and I would assume that they would give that priority. But I would also like to say, Madam Speaker... and maybe this is what the Honourable Member is referring to. When the Cayman Brac students, teachers and parents came down the last time, we provided an air-conditioned room and refreshments at the Teacher's Department; they remained there in considerable comfort until they got back and left on the plane that night. Yes, we did do that. But, obviously, on the sports field it is not possible to provide air-conditioning to the whole field.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today.

The next item, Private Member's Motion No. 8/95. The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, continuing.

OTHER BUSINESS PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 8/95 CENSURE MOTION

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, the Motion under discussion is one of no confidence in Government. Under the conventions, protocols and history of the Westminster system, if this Motion of no confidence is passed, the Government is duty bound to dissolve the Legislative Assembly and call for a fresh Election. The Opposition has not said that this is what they want, but that is what will happen if the Motion is passed. That is the Convention's rules that surround a Motion of no confidence in Government.

There has been a lot said in the debate as I stated earlier, a lot of accusation, but no proof of any substance. Every sensible person has some concern today about their position in their country. I believe there is common agreement about Government's responsibility and about the needs of the people of these islands. But I think we all ought to agree that there is a high need today for a new spirit of unity, courage and hope about the future, and I think it is everybody's responsibility to not say or do anything that damages the future of our country. Nothing could be more tragic than, while pursuing short-sighted aims, we destroy the things we all believe in.

Let us not make the mistake of exaggerating things. All kinds of things happen in this world and in these islands that Government cannot do anything about. Government cannot make people honest. It cannot make people have ambition (we can encourage them), nor can we legislate morality. These things give all of us cause for concern, but we should not lose our heads—we must be rational. All of us ought to know that the forces of history are much greater than the trivial anxieties that beset us from time to time. There is practically no one in the world who does not feel the effect of the strains and tensions of one of the very great periods of history in all time, as far as I am concerned. As for me, I will continue to have my profound faith in the people of these Cayman Islands and in the future of this country.

There are many, many worthwhile accomplishments of the people and the Government of these islands. We have good civil servants.

Madam Speaker, one of the reasons for this Censure Motion being moved is that we, the Elected Members of the Executive Council, are damaging the faith of civil servants, as pointed out by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

As I said, we have good civil servants, but they themselves ought to know, that is the two Members moving the motion of no confidence, that the Government of this country, the Elected Members, have nothing to do with the tenure of civil servants.

In a campaign not too long ago, and in the great discussions of the revision of the Constitution, civil servants made it very clear that Elected Parliamentarians should have nothing to do with their hiring and firing. The Governor is responsible—and he said that he is solely responsible—for any firing or dismissals in the civil service.

I can speak publicly for the Elected Members in Executive Council because there has not been, at any time, any move by any one of us to hire or fire any civil servant that is under the jurisdiction of the Civil Service Commission, that is, the Public Service Commission. It is political.

In times when there is uncertainty, or when people have been retired, or fired (whatever the case might be), it would be good for the Opposition to get up and blame the Elected Members. But we have no say, no authority to do anything about it.

What we can do is to say to His Excellency the Governor when the matter is aired that we do not like it. In speaking for this Member, Madam Speaker, I do not like what has gone on—and I say that openly, as I have said so privately to His Excellency the Governor. But it is he who has the responsibility, and he has said that he takes his responsibility solely on civil service matters. Why not accuse him? Why not beat up on him, as they have beat up on the Elected Members of Government? You know why? Because that would not gain them any votes. They must make it look like it is the Elected Members that are doing this, what they call, 'dirty work'.

I do not like what I see. I see some hired, fired or retired, that I do not agree with. I make that publicly known in this House as I have done so privately. There are people who have served this country well. Now, if they are not doing their duty, then that is the Governor's prerogative to say they are not doing it. But you cannot blame the Elected Members. It is not fair for any person working in the civil service to say to the Elected Members that we cannot have anything in the Constitution that gives us any power over him, and then when he gets into trouble with his job . . . it is not fair for him to come upon an Elected Member and ask what we are doing about it.

If they want the Elected Members to do something, they have to stand up publicly and say to me, 'I want you to do something about what is happening in the civil service.' Then I can go to the public of this country and say that the people who are affected are asking us to do something about the situation. Up until now that has not been said to me.

I do not like what I see. I understand that a doctor is going to be terminated, but doctors get terminated often. But when it happens, I will say that I do not like it, because there are too many people in the civil service who have their ways. They have people that they like and, like all of us, they like some people and others they do not. That is the politics of the job. I stand here, and I speak personally, and say I do not like what I see because I do not believe that is the road to [take]. Where it leads us we will wait and see, but until the management of the civil service, the Civil Service Association, says publicly to the politicians or to the country that they need the Elected Members to have some say, I cannot go public—and I will not go public and say so, because it is they who are affected.

The workers of this country have come to me by the dozens and have said that there is a situation they do not like. They go to the Labour Board, and the Labour Board makes a recommendation and we try to change the law if it needs to be changed. But, the civil service is another matter—it is a Constitutional matter. If these things are going on, as has been alleged by the Movers of the Motion, then let the civil servants speak out themselves and tell us and the country that they do not like what is happening. Until then, this Minister cannot do anything about it except to say to His Excellency the Governor that I do not like these moves—and I have done that.

There are no two ways about it—we have a civil service that is hardworking. I am sometimes at that Glass House late at night and I have staff prepared to stay with me until the job is done. I can speak about them because they are close to me. They are prepared to stay and work odd hours to get things done. I have a secretary who is prepared to go in on Saturdays to get things done. I have a Permanent Secretary who takes work home to get things done. I have a senior and assistant secretary—all the assistant secretaries in my Ministry do the same thing, they are prepared to go beyond the call of duty. Nearly every night when I leave there, I look across from the elevator and I see the light on in the Hon. Financial Secretary's Office. Sometimes when I am going he is coming in late at night.

We have good civil servants. One thing we know is that we cannot please everybody. That is a fact. We will never please them. The [son of the] Almighty God gave up his life and still did not please people. We have good workers in this country too—we have good secretaries, good young people coming back from college. There are many, many worthwhile accomplishments by the people and the Government of these islands that can be highlighted, that can be printed on the front pages of the news media. We have many, many good young people throughout this country.

At my son's graduation the other day, the young lady giving the welcome said that in the United States 97.8% of the young people were good, clean, working, honest young people. It was less than 2% that caused the problems. But how often do the good ones get on the front page, or get editorialised? How often? Some people do not want that—the people who could be helping us.

There are many good accomplishments in the country: new clinics, new civic centres, halls for schools and a lot of work in sports. But everything cannot be accomplished over night or in four years.

Education is up and it provides an opportunity for everyone in this country. More scholarships have been granted than in the past. In my time and in the time of this Government, we have processed more student loans than anyone else. We are not hearing about that. Up until the time that we took over (the 31st December, 1992) they had a value of $1.4 million in student loans for all time—up until 1992. We surpassed that in two years. Children who were not able to get student loans can get them today. They do not have the hassle that they had before, and we are revamping the system. We have a new scheme through the banks, guaranteed by Government 100%, because we need to educate our children.

It was said in this House that we are doing everything against the foreigner. Under the old system they could not get student loans. Under the new system we will take the person who has been here long term and has permanent residence and, on the merits of their case, Government will assist them. I believe that we need to educate. I believe that a child who has been here for 20 years should be assisted if he needs assistance, because he lives and breathes and works in the Cayman Islands, and he affects the Cayman Islands.

But this is the same Government doing this that is being criticised as being against foreigners. How can you say that, when we have granted more permits (looking at the ratio over the past two years) than the previous Government? Yet, we hear them say that we are against foreigners. No one can say that they are not getting permits because the record does not uphold that statement.

It is good to criticise, but you must have facts, you must be truthful about it. What we are not prepared to do is give this country over hand and foot to those people who would undermine everything that has been built up here for their own self interests. We do have carpetbaggers, those people from abroad who come here to scrape up and go, without any good conscience about the people of the Cayman Islands. But, for all that, we must all coexist together and be about nation building.

Education is on the up-and-up. I am not saying that it is perfect, but from where I look, it is improving. Everything cannot be done over night, nor can it be done in four years. When I am dead and gone, the generation that follows will be totally different in their outlook because we choose to make things better throughout the country. Brain will find its metal, and ability will find its mark.

The difficulties we have to overcome, the challenges of the time, demand the highest level of leadership and understanding at all levels of the country. When people go to every one of the Representatives and complain, are they sitting them down and saying how much Government will do, or how much you are prepared to do for yourself? There must be leadership and understanding. Everybody has a responsibility to say, "This is my country, and here I stay and play my part in it." That is our responsibility—not to blow things out of proportion.

And when I say 'us', not only 'us' in this House, but the news media, the churches, the different social organisations, every one of us have a responsibility and people are playing their part. But there are those who choose to blow things out of proportion for their own benefit—whether it is political or monetary, or for some other gain. Is that helping the country?

We have heard of many charges of victimisation, but none of them can point a finger with any thread of truth that this Elected Executive Council has victimised anyone.

Madam Speaker, the country has a history, especially at election time, where these things are bruited all over the newspapers—letters are written and now we find a new way to put doubts in people's minds by signing letters 'name withheld', saying all kinds of evil in that letter. But we have a history that when it gets close to Election time these things are on the increase.

When you look at history, and I speak of the immediate past administration, just look at who has been victimised, look at who has been sued.

I hear the Member talking about the hospital and the Health Services Authority. I wonder if he forgot about the case that was won against them by doctors who sued them? In that situation they (the members of the Health Services) did not know whether they were coming or going. Today they are civil servants and members of the Health Service.

You hear them saying also that we are not doing anything for Caymanians. Today, the head of the Hospital is a Caymanian. When I took over the reigns of the Health Services in 1992 (November or December) someone from overseas [was to be brought in] and I stepped in and asked the Governor to do something about it. The Governor agreed, and today Mervyn Conolly is the head of the Hospital.

Madam Speaker, as far as I can remember, I had to break a contract, but I put my foot down and said, No! A Caymanian has the qualifications and he must take up the reigns. So, they paid the person a few days' pay and said they had someone who was trained and capable of taking the job.

There are many other Caymanians in head positions today in this country. For the first time in our history we have a Caymanian principal, Ms. Nyda Flatley, head of the High School.

We have a Caymanian Director of the Water Authority and a Caymanian Deputy Director. Caymanians are in charge, and there are many other Caymanians, not only in the Civil Service, who are moving up in the private sector as well, although not as fast as I would like to see. But there were no systems in place and that is what the Manpower Development Strategy is all about. On a timely and sensible basis, concurrent with the businesses, upward mobility for Caymanians is on the up and up. It is going to get better, if we make it better—it is not in our stars to fail, but it is within ourselves. Only the Caymanians themselves can be pushed to the extent that they cannot take it anymore, or they can lead and do the job properly and see that one and all are handled fairly in this country.

They said that we spent $14 million in supplementary expenditure in 1994. If we are to try to meet the needs of the country money will have to be spent, once expenditure does not outstrip revenue. At the end of the day, it is not how many supplementaries that we bring before Finance Committee, but it is what the financial position is at the end of the year. We did not end up in a deficit in 1994. By God's grace, we will not end up in a deficit in 1995 either. We have handled this country without any major expenditure as far as borrowing is concerned. The only major expenditure was $20 million that the previous Government passed along, but could not get the money—we had to borrow it, but they spent it. It was to pay their bills. Yet, they say that we are mismanaging the country. Let us take a good look at what is really typical of the Opposition.

In defence of their colleague—Mr. Pierson and Mr. Miller—they say that when the last Government was voted out they left $10 million to their good. They accuse the National Team of mismanaging the $10 million, that is, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. What they fail to tell the country is that their colleagues, Mr. Pierson and Mr. Miller, also left at the end of 1992 $7-plus million dollars in the hole, in deficits. So, how could they say that they left $10 million? We paid the $7 million they owed. They left the country with only $3 million in the general reserves—$3 million—when they found their colleagues, Mr. Miller and Mr. Pierson, found at least $30 million when they took over in 1988.

That is typical of the kind of dishonest tactics of the Opposition. Talk is cheap, but where is the proof? They have the burden of bringing the proof.

The Opposition has accused us of mismanagement in many areas. I will go on to deal with some of them later on. Over $200 million for roads was proposed by the last Government, but nothing on parks. Over US $50 million on a bad deal for planes, but nothing on sport fields for our children; $680,000 on a building to pull teeth, but nothing on prevention programmes for our children. Over $340,000 for Mr. Miller's Post Office—at $400 per square foot—in his district, but nothing for youth development. Yet, they have the audacity, the temerity, to accuse us of mismanagement?

They believe that people have forgotten. Not so. People do not forget. I still say to them that if they bring a Censure Motion here for a vote of no confidence—which means the Government must dissolve the Assembly and call fresh Elections if they win the Motion—then they should have an alternative on the Table of this House to say to the country, 'This is what we, as an Executive Council, are offering to the country...', what Mr. McLean, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and their other three colleagues, Mr. Miller, Mr. Pierson and Mr. Rankine, as I understand it is (I do not know, that is what the Minister for Education said).

Where is their alternative for the people of this country? What will be their stance on the problems that we are facing?

The Member who moved the censure motion said that

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, continuing.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, when we took the break I was beginning to get into the area where we were being censured for economic policy.

I do not think that the Opposition is capable of challenging the Government on our economic policy. I remember when the Government pushed for the reduction in fees. The Member moving the Motion, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman—who is touted as “the Leader”—disagreed with the reduction in fees. I remember the Caymanian Compass carrying the story (and I have it before me). He objected to the reduction in stamp duty on properties over $250,000. He said that “the sort of people who could afford those types of houses did not need that type of consideration.” Further, he said that “there was no evidence to show that this reduction in stamp duty would help stimulate the economy as it was intended to do.” That was Mr. Gilbert McLean speaking.

All of this has proven positive—when we did it the economy took off. I do not have the figures before me, but I hope that other Members will take the time to find out the difference.

Real estate was dead until this Government came in. It was not moving. They can blame it on other factors, but the fact remains that there are people out there with money, regardless of where they are, and if our policies are good they are coming here to spend money. It was good up until the time the stamp duty was increased to 10%, and when they did it, the investors and the real estate agents and everybody else said it would damage it, but they still went ahead. It killed the market.

Certainly, it has boosted the economy. In connection with their disagreement with Government in lowering company fees, I believe that since we lowered the company fees we have increased the register with close to 6,000 new companies. Yet, they say it is bad, that the Government should not have done it. They now have the nerve to try to censure us for economic policy?

Of course, his partner, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, said the same thing. Madam Speaker, I will deal with the two of them a little bit more because I know that others will come in support of them.

They criticised us about the Housing scheme. They can say that what I was saying about it was not clear, but the fact remains that today we have 50 homes built or bought in less than one year since we put in the scheme. Let me say that it is more the middle income person. What should I have done? Should I, because I could not get the banks to give the very low-income group loans, have done nothing for the middle income group? That is the question. Fifty families, 50 homes. Check the record before that. I am happy to say that I have been racking my brains and those of the Ministry's staff trying to find a proper way of [providing for] the very low income [group]. I believe that we now have it, and I will soon be making an announcement about this group and this area of housing. The future looks good, the scheme looks good. I believe that there are going to be many more homes by the end of the year, or at least prospects will look much better for that very low income group, which nobody wants to touch.

When you want to find an excuse to criticise something or chastise me, or try to make me look bad, then you can find a way to do it. That is what the purpose of the Opposition is. They will find a way to do it.

There has been a lot said about the proposed acquisition of land at Spotts for the National Stadium, as they call it. At no time, and at no place, did we say we were building a National Stadium. It has always been a National Sports Centre—a different kind of Centre for different kinds of sports. That has been changed (and this is public knowledge) to sports and recreation. Not that the park was not in it from the beginning, but as you go along, more and more ideas come in.

It is interesting to note in regard to this land that is being purchased from Rex Crighton, that a number of self-appointed valuation experts have attempted to confuse the public into believing that value for money will not be obtained. This is not only most unprofessional, but very misleading for the purpose of making us look bad. It should be noted that it is the Land Officers of the Government who negotiate on behalf of Government, not Members of the House. They negotiate for land purchases, they are professionally qualified valuers who are also involved in the assessment of all land transfers in these islands. So, as far as I am concerned, it is ludicrous to think that those Officers, those civil servants, who in this instance work closely with the Legal Department would commit Government to the acquisition of lands that were not in the realm of what they considered a fair market value.

It has been said that Mr. Crighton registered the title in his name on one day and that the consideration stated on the transfer forms reflected an amount of US$140,000; and that shortly thereafter he signed the contract to sell the parcel to Government for $800,000. That, of course, is not true, it was $759,000. But it should be noted that stamp duty on the parcel in question was assessed and paid on a market value of $830,550.

What was also omitted was the fact that the $140,000 which Mr. Crighton paid for the property was a historical figure and did not originate on the date that the transfer was submitted for registration. It was being purchased over a period of years. Furthermore, the property is being offered on a five-year instalment plan at 3%. Where else could the Government get that kind of deal?

Contrary to what self-appointed valuation experts might say, much of the land in the vicinity of the subject property varies in quality to a significant degree. For example, Mr. Crighton's property is essentially flat, dry land, while land further to the north is low-lying and subject to holding water.

The adjacent Cascades subdivision is a useful comparison. While they have a good quality access road and some minor landscaping, the majority of these parcels require the importation of a substantial amount of fill. Yet, these lots are being sold for between $70,000 and $76,000 and are generally 19,000 to 20,000 square feet. This equates to about $155,000 per acre—almost double what the Government is paying for the Crighton property.

Madam Speaker, there are other comparisons which the Lands Officer has identified. It shows that Government is, in fact, getting value for money. It is very unfortunate that there are those who always let the facts get in the way of a good story. It is also quite evident that those who are trying to castigate Government lack any appreciation for accepted professional valuation practices and discipline. I believe that the Government can defend its position insofar as value for money is concerned.

They not only criticise the Government for purchasing, they criticise Government for building there. The truth is that there was no where else. I met with the three Opposition Members, that is, The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. I sat them down and explained the dilemma that we had. The only option open to us was taking the property in exchange for some, and to give up the total lease on the West Bay property opposite Holiday Inn. We said: 'No! That should stay for the people whenever it reverts back.' They agreed. I showed them the plans and they agreed, the three of them.

I challenge them now to say otherwise, that I did not sit them down in that Committee room and explain the situation. They agreed that if we had to build the facilities over a long term, that that was the best area, that we had enough property and that it was central. Traffic coming from the east would have to go that way when things were completed, and George Town and West Bay traffic would not be as heavy. For instance, if you went on West Bay Road, the vast majority of the traffic would all be coming back at the same time. The three of them want to make it look like we are doing something wrong.

I am not saying that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town wants to say that we are doing something wrong. I hope not. But I know that he is going to speak and he will have his say. I know he asked a question about it. Truthfully, Madam Speaker, everything that he wanted to know was already public knowledge.

The good thing about it is that we have never planned to do the kind of things that were mooted. I heard one figure of $30 million. It is a 10-year plan and we have to plan. Look what has happened now, a private company, Johnson & Higgins (Cayman Islands) Ltd, has made a commitment. The truth is that when I met with them I never saw a more enthusiastic group, which, by the way, consisted of a lot of Caymanians. They wanted to do something because they know the country needs it. They know, they have families and they need the kind of project that Government has proposed over a long-term basis.

It is a fact that there is a lack of facilities for our children, play grounds and so on, and also a lack of nature tracks and shaded walking areas where families can spend more time together in the open air. So, Johnson & Higgins (Cayman Islands) Ltd propose a children's play area and nature trails where that kind of facility would be of benefit to the Cayman Islands. They propose to create a series of interlocking paths among the shrubs and trees around a central hub. If we can focus it in our minds' eye, that hub will be a clearing at the centre of the park with barbecue pits and a picnic area with children's playground beside it. Benches will be situated throughout the park—both in the central hub area and in the pathways. Information signs regarding the flowers and shrubs will be placed throughout the park and there will be landscaping, where required, on an ongoing basis.

But of current importance is that the natural flora, the trees, shrubs and so on, will be disturbed as little as possible because the paths will be created to wind around areas of particular interest. The only major clearance work will be that undertaken for the playground and barbecue pit area and picnic area. The retention of the natural undergrowth would be an absolute priority.

They propose that everything added to the nature walk will be of the highest quality to blend in with nature—the signs, pathways, benches, barbecue, picnic area and playground facilities. I am very glad that we have a company that has that kind of social conscience that recognises this as something which is of value to the country. These are the kinds of corporate citizens the country needs, and that I encourage, because they are not afraid to spend money on the people of the country, recognising that it will benefit them too in the long run. A satisfied people makes for a better working force and a better community.

The Opposition can criticise as long as they want, but as long as I am in Government, and have the responsibility for the social development of this country, I am going to encourage these projects and I am going to fight with every bit of strength and will that I have to see that money is placed in those areas because we have to spend money on our families. All the information that I have given about this is already public knowledge. I and the company have said it more than once.

But the truth is that there will have to be some sporting project there. We now have good facilities at the Truman Bodden Sports Centre and the Ed Bush Sports Centre, and we are doing North Side and East End, which will soon be opened, and Bodden Town. We now have a need for an indoor facility, which can essentially be used for the people in George Town—a district with over 15,000 people as of the last census. If our young people are ever to make it in swimming, we must get a proper pool so that our children can learn and be able to compete on an international basis. They cannot do it with the one we have, which has served its purpose. It is still serving there, of course, but we now need to move on or else our children will never get anywhere internationally. So we do need a 50-meter pool, and it will have to go there.

What we must realise is that Government does not have the land. We have to purchase land. This is the first Government that I know about that is land poor—we have none. Thank God that there are people in the community who say that they will sell us land over a period of many years. If that is not good management, if that is not caring about the people, then tell me what it is. It is easy to criticise, but when you have to sit down, when you have the responsibility and you have to come up with the programmes, and you do not pay $4 million or $5 million for consultants like the last Government, it is a big headache. But we are doing it in the interest of our people without spending $5 million as Mr. Pierson and Mr. Miller did, who are now part of the proposed Executive Council of the 'Team Cayman'.

What did they do? What did those two Members do, who are now part of the two Opposition Members' proposed Executive Council? They were selling off Government land. Do we not remember who the real estate man was who was supposed to have gotten the contract? Mr. Seales. How many pieces of Government property were being sold off over time?

There is no private company involved in any Government negotiation. It is true that I have a real estate business, but we have nothing to do... I would not want to earn one penny from Government if I was starving because there is too much ungratefulness. Even if it were done—and it would be done if we were involved, above board... there is correspondence going back for years and I believe that if Government buys land it should be done on a one-to-one basis and money should be saved. That is where Government saves money. That is not what Linford Pierson and the last Executive Council did. No. They had a load of Government properties to sell and they gave it to one of their colleagues.

They have the audacity to talk about the purchase of the Sports and Recreation Centre at Spotts when their two colleagues, Mr. Miller and Mr. Pierson, sold over 200 acres for $2 million for 62 years to SafeHaven. Why do they not ask their two colleagues to explain that? Was that a good deal, Madam Speaker? Was that good economic policy? Sixty-two years! I have nothing against the company. They are corporate citizens here and anything that I can do to assist them I will do because they have offered assistance to Government.

The fact remains that their colleagues, Mr. Pierson and Mr. Miller, sold the lease for 62 years for $2 million. And they complain to Government in a Censure Motion? I urge them to withdraw it. After we have debated it they should not put it to the vote; they should not have the audacity to ask for fresh elections because of mismanagement in financial matters.

Madam Speaker, as far as the social development is concerned, and as far as their Censure Motion is concerned about our social policies, I do not know where it is causing unwarranted expenditure and I do not know where our social policies are causing social disharmony, fear or apprehension in the Cayman Islands, because we are doing everything we can. And I can point that out as far as the social policies, which is what I want to deal with.

The thrust of my Ministry and this Government in the area of social policy is to contribute to the knitting together of the social fabric—not tearing it apart, as has been suggested. We must ask the question: What makes this social fabric to start with? What are the threads that bind? I would submit that the relationships between people; and, most fundamentally, within families and between people and their God are among the strongest of these traits.

I am conscious of the fact that one of the complexities of Cayman at this point in time derives from the existence side-by-side of the very modern and the very traditional Caymanian way of life. So, many people will therefore say that, yes, family life is very important to the life of the society, and will often follow this by saying that we have lost ground in this area and we need to recover some of what we once had. That is true.

However, the Government's policy is based on the position that no way has yet been devised to satisfactorily replace either the biological or the sociological roles of human families. As far as I can see, the natural family is best suited to do the job of properly raising a child. Children who are raised in institutions, for want of this natural environment, seem to do well to the extent that the institution can model itself after the family. Therefore, much of what I have to say on programmes and projects touches on the family, and much of our social policy is about the family.

We have extended the scope of the proposed UNDP Study on the Status of Women and Children in Cayman for the status of the family in the Caymanian society. This study is likely to have wide repercussions in terms of future actions in the area of Community Development.

Now, the Opposition can come back and say, 'Well, he is just doing it now.' I can only say that we cannot do everything at one time. But when it is done, it should set the terms for future action in the area of Community Development. I say again, the health of family life is essential to the health of the community.

The intended reform to the Juveniles Law (and they criticised that), the Young Parents Programme and the Cayman Islands Marine Institute, are initiatives all intimately associated with the family, seeking simultaneously to rehabilitate situations where the family structure has failed—not Government—at least temporarily, and to build up the capacity within the affected families to better manage such situations.

I should also mention here the After School Programme which is, again, intended to assist families in ensuring that children have proper supervision and a healthy environment to go to, especially in cases where private arrangements cannot be made by families themselves. We are really promoting the management of these programmes under the auspices of the churches, just as we have continued and broadened the ambit of the grant to churches to support their youth programmes.

We take these initiatives with the conviction that the church in our country provides the surest foundation for ethical guidance and sound character development. It is part of our larger effort to work more closely with the churches and to encourage their outreach to the community and involvement in public affairs.

The After School Care Programme... why is the Opposition not out there? If they wanted something to talk about they should have brought a Motion saying that more people should get involved. But we do not see them doing that. We cannot do any more than offer funding, and we have done that. We have talked, we have begged.

Take a district like George Town, which needs it so badly. There are only two or three taking it up, and they can only do so much—each group can only deal with a relatively... well, I should say, not a very large number of children. The Rehoboth Centre, one of the Pentecostal Churches and the Elmslie Church are doing after school care programmes, but I consider that this is one of the best areas for us to handle some of our problems with young people. It does cater to a time when children are not supervised, that time after school between 3.00 and 6.30, when parents are still at work and children are left to roam free. We know that they are left in front of the television or with the baby-sitter, and we realise that this is not the best thing for our country today. I have maintained that while it is good, it is educational, if unsupervised it is a detriment to the young elastic mind; when they see the kinds of programmes on television it only infiltrates their mind and encourages them to do wrong things. Unsupervised television for the young child is bad. BAD!

The After-School Programme is something that is seriously needed. I asked the Members for George Town to get up and do something about it because it is seriously needed in George Town and I, as the Minister responsible for Youth Affairs, cannot do it all. I need the assistance of Members and they should be working, rather than gallivanting... and I am talking about the Members of the House in general who constantly criticise Government, who are not doing anything. We have 15,000 people in George Town and a lot... I do not know what the age group is, but we need assistance with it and those of us who can be role models in George Town need to get up and do something because there are a lot of problems.

Yes, some people are doing—I know Members of the House have their own areas that they work in, people go to them and they are constantly harangued with the problems in the Community. But we need to do more. We cannot call on Government to do more and then curse Government for expenditure—because if you are not doing it, then Government will have to do it and we can only do it by expending money.

So, when they criticise McKeeva Bush, let them first ask what have they done to help better the situation. The Chamber of Commerce goes on a rampage sending out all sorts of information. What are they doing for young people in this country? What are they doing to assist the youth problems in our community?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I think you are straying far from the Motion that is before the House. Will you please get back on track?

Thank you.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Well, Madam Speaker, I would have thought that a censure motion... and I know that it is a lot of latitude, but when a censure motion—which, if passed, can call for fresh elections—says that the House has no confidence in Government whose social policies are causing unwarranted expenditure and social disharmony, fear and apprehension in the Cayman Islands..., I think I have to defend that. That is what I am trying to do!

The Speaker: But, Honourable Minister, you are going at such a length. You are asking Members to help you—that is really not part of the Motion. Please continue. You have about ten minutes more before the luncheon break.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I think I really need to ask for assistance because Government cannot do it all. All I am saying to Members is that instead of bringing motions for votes of no confidence, get out there in the community and do something about it. But I will abide by the ruling of the Chair.

Madam Speaker, in the coming year the Ministry, through the Social Services Department, intends to use the CODAC Committees to assist with the promotion of neighbourhood awareness and outreach programmes within each district. We intend to have a Youth Week with a National Youth Day, Family Week similar to the one held this year, we intend to continue to promote the after-school programmes. I must give high praise to the CODAC groups who have been doing a tremendous job in their respective districts. I believe they see the way towards pulling our communities and our islands back together. I encourage everyone to support their efforts.

George Town has none. We will intensify our efforts to get the programmes started and seek more volunteers under the time-release programme. These programmes are crucial to the welfare of our youth.

A very broad thrust towards community development, social development, has been initiated by the employment of Community Development Officers. These persons will be based in the districts and part of their duties will be to act as a liaison between the Social Services Department, the district residents and the CODACs and other voluntary agencies in the social sector. There are now three officers; one each for West Bay, George Town and one that serves Bodden Town, East End and North Side. Hopefully the 1996 Budgetary proposals will include provisions for two more officers to fully supplement the coverage of these officers' work.

The Social Services is doing its best with the requests that have been put before them by Members. I think that Cayman Brac cannot claim to have been forgotten because a lot of effort is being made there by the Government.

I see they have toned down their criticism on sports. A couple of months back I could not come into this House without being harangued with questions about sports.

There was not a day that passed when there was not a letter or some interview of the Opposition about sports policy. They cannot say anything at this time because we have done well. It is the best it has ever been handled, if I must say so myself.

With all that I have said, it is still not an exhaustive list of all the things that my Ministry has worked on, or programmes which were planned. So I think, looking at this and a previous statement made recently, it can be said that we have given a reasonable accounting of ourselves. But let me stress again that the matter of community or social development is a matter of brining our young people up to be good citizens; it is a matter of promoting our cultural development. These are not undertakings for the Government alone. That is what I was trying to get across just now.

Government cannot, and should not, do it all—and is not trying to do it all. People should do for themselves, for each other. We claim to be a friendly and caring society—let us really live up to this.

At this time, I am not able to do justice to the wide range of good works being undertaken daily through our churches, our social and cultural agencies both public and private, but I am able to say a huge 'Thank you' to all of those who contribute to these works—both paid and unpaid.

Our work shows that the efforts of the National Team have paid off, although we took over a very sorrowful state of affairs. No one can say that our investment in more Police Officers and in the police boat and in the new Task Force, and other investments in the dog programme (while not part of my Ministry is something that we have promoted, supported and spent funds on), have not paid off.

Certainly, there is no room for complacency. As I said, we cannot make people be honest, we cannot legislate morality; people have to vow to be honest within their souls. But a lot of work has been done.

When we look at the Police Report for 1994 it says, with the exception of drug offences, that "it is gratifying to report a reduction in almost every category of crime." That is not the way we found it. Of particular significance is the drop in the report of burglaries from 765 in 1993, to 595 in 1994—it is going down. There is no time for complacency, and the fact remains that the work of the Government has impacted positively on the negative influences in the country. It remains to be seen whether this overall trend will continue, but the enhanced police resources now available are impacting on the crime situation in a positive manner.

No one can give the impression that the National Team is a 'don't care' Government, or has not done something in these areas. It is a wrong impression for the Opposition to give, which falls on the basis that if the House votes for this no confidence motion we must have a fresh election. On what basis?

Let us take the Marine Institute. It is a very positive and moving programme for our young people, and I remember the criticism that was heaped upon us in Finance Committee by the Opposition. The role of the Institute is to provide cost-effective solutions to problems in the areas of juvenile offender rehabilitation and education. To achieve these goals residential and non-residential programmes have been developed as well as more intensive programmes for serious offenders. The programme's success is based on the use of motivators whereby performance must precede rewards. These procedures have been found to be highly successful in the classroom and within vocational training programmes. In addition, all the residents of the Marine Institute are exposed to exciting marine or other environment-related study programmes.

Madam Speaker, they say we are not doing something for young people. They should put their alternative on the Table of this Honourable House. Where is their alternative?

They said that they would not vote the funds for it, yet they said that they disagreed with sending children overseas. We know it costs in excess of $100,000 for one child per year. What would happen if we had to send the 30 children enrolled in the Marine Institute abroad?

I listened to their public meeting the other night and they said that they would not be supporting the Children's Legislation Bill because there is no Remand Centre. Madam Speaker, can you believe that?

You know, sometimes I get discouraged, and it was at that point that I said, 'Here we have intelligent people, who say they are from academia, not supporting it'—although they did say it had some good things in it. But they could not support it because we do not have a Remand Centre.

The West Bay lock-up is something that I have deplored, but the fact remains that it was the best place. We made it a little bit better, and while the children were there they could not be out burglarising or harassing others. It is not the best place, but it was the only place we had.

I have since obtained a commitment from Government to utilise the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital site, now that the Cubans have gone (that was our plan), and we are immediately redoing it for a proper Remand Centre for our juveniles. But I guess that I am going to be criticised for that too. You are going to hear that that is not the best place for them. But, we are going to utilise it, if I get the support, and so far Executive Council has passed the paper. Public Works and the Social Services Department are now with the architects looking to see how it can be configured.

Everything cannot be done at the same time, neither can we cure all of the problems overnight.

The Speaker: Would you take the luncheon suspension now, Honourable Minister?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, very much.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.15.
PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.47 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.23 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, continuing.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, when we took the break I was going to deal with juvenile crime statistics. Before that, I think I should clear up [what I said on] the after school programme.

The Second and Third Elected Members for George Town were in discussion with me on it and they did go out and talk to certain churches. And, Madam Speaker, before I move into the juvenile statistics I know that there are some efforts afoot by the Big Brother/Big Sister programme to strengthen what the NCVO is doing. This is a good move, but I hold to my position that the district of George Town needs a lot of attention, and I give a lot of credit to Members who are working in whatever ways to address people's complaints. But there is still a lot of work to be done. I hold to that position—a district of 15,000 people needs a lot more effort put into it.

Whatever position the Fourth Elected Member for George Town will take on this motion... as I said, the Opposition can gallivant all over the country, they can hold meetings in George Town, but they are not doing anything to affect the negative aspects of the district—or any district. That is what I was talking about. Whether the Fourth Elected Member for George Town supports the Motion (and I suspect we will hear from him) I hope he understands that he will be thrown, quite godly, into the Opposition camp... I await to hear how he will deal with these issues as pointed out in the Motion.

When you look at the Juvenile Court statistics, you will find that in 1992 there were 335 juveniles convicted. There were ten children at the age of ten years old; four children aged 11, and eight children 12 years old. When we look at their convictions, they were convicted for the possession of ganja—all of these 335 cases. Eleven were convicted for possession, 14 for consumption, four for possession of cocaine. That was for 1992. There were 118 convictions of young people for burglaries.

Immediately upon taking office, we started to highlight the problems, and the community started to get involved when we had the Business and Professional Women's Club out there talking about the need for parents to do more and the need for the community to get involved. There was a lot of community involvement. My Ministry was having a gigantic push on young people's problems.

We found at the end of 1993 that there was a decrease from the 335 to 206 juveniles convicted. The age group went down to 11 years of age. We had two children who were 11 years old. Possession of ganja went down to nine; possession of ganja with intent to supply went down to one. Consumption of ganja went down to five; possession of cocaine went down to zero. Burglary dropped from 118 convictions to 56.

For 1994, what do we find after all the efforts we made? The number of juvenile convictions went down to 164. The age group rose from eight-year-olds in 1992, to 12-year-old children in 1994, and that was for one child aged 12. The conviction for ganja possession was five; consumption of ganja was zero; possession of cocaine was zero; possession of ganja with intent to supply was zero. Burglary from 118 cases in 1992, went down to 16 cases. Yet we hear that we have not done anything, our social policy is no good and is causing disruption. Did this all happen by itself? It can be clearly seen that careful investment in quality programmes and in the Police has brought results.

They have made a big claim that I spend too much money on these youth programmes. The fact is that beginning with the high peak of juvenile crime when we took over in 1992, and using that as a base (for that is when our responsibility for management started) juvenile crime has decreased. We are not saying that it has gone down to the extent that we are complacent, because our efforts are only now being intensified.

In an editorial the other day the Caymanian Compass mentioned the same thing and said that they do not know what can be attributed to the downturn. That, I guess, was the gist of their editorial. But the truth is, the message that I get from the Juvenile Court is that where they used to spend all day in Juvenile Court, they are spending much less time—sometimes an hour or two in Juvenile Court. The Justices are sending good vibes—not saying that the problems are not still there, they are still out there, and we know that, and I agree with the Caymanian Compass editorial to an extent. But they cannot say (nor can anyone else) that this Government's efforts did not help the situation.

What we are saying is that when you are coming from the high peak of juvenile crime in 1990, 1991 and 1992 where it reached 335, to where it has now reached 164, you must pass through various regions of heights before you come to the place you want to be. Juvenile crime has decreased by actions taken by Government and by the community being galvanised—by programmes put in place by my Ministry and by the schools doing what they can to assist. Yet we have this Motion saying that our social policy is causing problems and not doing anything according to them; unwarranted expenditure causing social disharmony.

I am glad that the Marine Institute is working. We have just started as far as those kinds of programmes are concerned. The truth about money being spent and unwarranted expenditure is that the Opposition gives lip service to preventing children from becoming criminals, but not much money or effort had been put in place over the years—until we took over. Money was put into the Police and into the Prison and we emphasised prevention programmes for children so that they do not wind up as convicts. Prevention starting at an early age has always been the most rational and cost-effective approach.

What we have from my Ministry is a comprehensive, coordinated approach for families in trouble; extensive after-school programmes; improved prevention of teenage pregnancy, and stronger efforts to prevent drug abuse. I say that we have not spent enough money because we have spent less than 2% or 3% of the National Budget for 1993 and 1994 put together. They have only spent on infrastructural development less than $4.5 million. When you compare what we have spent for Police from 1984 to 1992, it is a total of $72 million. In our three years (up to this year) we have spent $36 million. So, we need to put money in prevention and we should stop being wimps trying to get political mileage—stop talking out of both corners of our mouths—and put more money into prevention. Otherwise, we can build prisons in every district—Cayman Brac to West Bay—and the prison system will never be large enough for the multitude of young criminals if we do not do something about prevention.

That is what we are trying to do, but for everything that we try we hear we should not do it. Of course, the Opposition, including those on the outside, will find ways and means of saying that this could be done this way or the next way, but what have they done to help the situation? That is what I want to find out: Other than to talk and get up in here and postulate, what have they done to better things?

Prisons are necessary for violent and hard-core prisoners who should serve their full sentences, and the Police are necessary. We have to spend, and we have been spending on that, but we must put more into prevention. If some of this $72 million had gone into young people over the past eight years, we would have had less problems today than what we have now.

In closing, we have done well and I do not think there is any room... if the Opposition can find and bring positive proof to where we can better the programmes—lay it on the Table. If they can bring better programmes than what I have, or they can improve upon them—bring them to my Ministry or call a press conference and say this is what the Government should do. Otherwise, they should withdraw the Motion because the Motion carries no truth to it, it does nothing for the country; it does not help the country and it does not help us. If any Member wants to vote for this they have their own conscience to deal with. As for those of us who have been steering this country on a true course during the last two and one half years, we have done our best. As for the nay-sayers amongst us, let us not—and this especially applies to those of us in leadership positions—sow seeds of dissension and discord; let us not encourage people to search for the negatives. We all know that life in Cayman is tough in many respects, as it is in any modern society, but it is also a very pleasant place to live and it is pleasant to live here precisely because the "wide-spread social disharmony, fear and apprehension", as quoted in the Motion, does not exist. It is a good place to live because the whole world is beating a path to our doorway and wants to come in to work or live here.

This Motion cannot cause the demise of this Government simply because the Government is not guilty of the tyranny of which it is accused. To the contrary, the Mover of the Motion may learn something about the real road to nation building if he were to pay more attention to the merits of our social policies and our economic policies.

Madam Speaker, the Motion has no basis. Therefore, from here on in I put anyone who would even think of trying to get a little mileage out of this, by saying on the one hand this and on the other hand that, in the same category as the two Opposition Members—fully and squarely Opposition.

If the Motion is carried the Governor will call a fresh election.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: If no one else wishes to continue the debate, I will ask the Mover...

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

First of all, my interpretation of this Motion regarding Censure of the Government is certainly not as far reaching as the previous speaker has been alluding to. From time-to-time in his debate he pointedly spoke about the Governor calling for elections, or the Government falling away. I would just like to read the interpretation that I am guided by in my understanding of the Motion.

On page 272 of [Erskine] May, under the heading of "Censure Motions," it reads: "From time to time the Opposition put down a motion on the paper expressing lack of confidence in the Government—a 'vote of censure' as it is called. By established convention the Government always accedes to the demand from the Leader of the Opposition to allot a day for the discussion of such a motion. In allotting a day for the purpose the Government is entitled to have regard to the exigencies of its own business, but a reasonably early day is invariably found. This convention is founded on the recognised position of the Opposition as a potential Government, which guarantees the legitimacy of such an interruption of the normal course of business. For its part, the Government has everything to gain by meeting such a direct challenge to its authority at the earliest possible moment."

As has already been stated more than once during this debate, Madam Speaker...

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Minister?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Yes, Madam Speaker. I am wondering if the Member will take a point of clarification?

The Speaker: You are rising on a point of order. Let us hear the point of order first.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Yes, Madam Speaker, I was really just asking the Member to continue reading from [Erskine] May, and if he does not want to read it, I will ask for a point of clarification. But continue reading that paragraph.

The Speaker: I do not know if the Fourth Elected Member for George Town would wish to do that. It really is not a Point of Order, if you want him to finish...

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, this is my debate, not the Minister's (for Sports). What I read, I read as I see fit to make the points that I am making. If the Minister for Sports was so devout in his efforts, maybe he should have read it when he had the chance.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: I do not have that issue. You continue reading. You read it. You are supposed to be honest.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister is alluding to my being dishonest. I am certainly not that—anything else in the world, but not that.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: No? Let us...

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I read the portion under Censure Motions, and if I had been allowed to continue my point would have been understood. The point that I wish to make as I go along, as stated before by previous speakers, is that the numbers which may support the Motion certainly will not allow for the Motion to be carried. So, to my mind it is obvious that the intent of the Motion was to be able to bring debate to this Honourable House to point out areas which Government may well wish to look into improving with regard to the way matters stand at present. If anyone wishes to take a different position, that is entirely their prerogative. Before I start to say anything, that is my position.

I noticed that just before he closed off his debate the Minister, in his style, made mention of any other Members (beside the Mover and the Seconder) who wished to talk about this or talk about that... and he made it a point to let it be known that if anyone debated in that fashion, he (the Minister) was going to place that one squarely in the camp as an Opposition Member.

Madam Speaker, that Minister has been here quite some years longer than I have, but I want him and every other Members in this Honourable House to know that neither he, or anyone else, holds a gun to my head to tell me what position I must take, or what position I will take in the future.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If that was his way to threaten me into submission, he has failed this time.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Do you think I did not know that from the beginning? Everybody takes his or her stand. You just cannot beat one or two; you have to do all four at the same time.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: To be very honest, Madam Speaker, I would not mind if you would use your authority to ask other Members who continue to speak during the time that I am speaking to keep quiet. I would be very grateful for that.

Let me first of all say—and this is in reply to other things that I heard this afternoon—I can truthfully and safely say that when I sought to be elected as a Representative in this country, I simply had one desire; and that was to be of service to the people of this country. Where I end up, who I end up with, or whatever position I end up with—whether it is in this House or outside of this House—whatever happens in the future has no bearing on my asking the people to elect me as one of their Representatives. I am simply grateful for opportunities in life and I think it is good when one can give back to one's community some of what one might get out of it.

I noticed in the heat of the moment the last speaker, in talking about his social programmes, got into the dis-district of George Town and started talking about inadequacies in the district. He mentioned that the Representatives should stop 'gallivanting'. He made a poor effort, in my estimation, about clarifying it afterwards, but I am not going to get into that afterthought—I am speaking about what he said first. He was speaking about the district of George Town.

Madam Speaker, the Minister said that the Representatives of George Town should stop 'gallivanting'. That is what he said. Now, I noticed that the moment we took the break the Second Elected Member for the District of George Town went over to take him to task because he apparently also took umbrage. The Minister was quick to clarify that he was not speaking about him. I know he certainly was not talking about the Minister for Education who sits behind him, and I really do not think he would go as far as to speak about the Lady Member who is not even present. By process of elimination, that leaves little old piddly me—the oddball who barely managed to scrape through the process to be able to sit here.

If the 'gallivanting' the Minister was talking about was the fact that I still socialise with people at this point in time... and if he wishes for me to sit down, I will give him a chance to say it again because I have no excuses to make for that; I so happen to enjoy the fellowship and camaraderie with the people that I have always enjoyed. If he is going as far as to allude that there may be something that I may be doing that, for instance, my wife might take issue with... I sincerely hope not.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Now, that is stupid...

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: By the way, Madam Speaker, you know, the Minister just said that I am stupid. I really wonder when he combs his hair which mirror he looks into.

Madam Speaker, I am not finished with this 'gallivanting', because I know my life and I know what I do; and I, for one, do not go about trying to do things to try to help in any way that I can just to let people see and hear what I do. I simply do the best that I can, given the circumstances that surround me.

When it comes to being a Representative of the people, it may well be his wish that I should not be one of them, and he might well do everything to make sure that I am not one of those elected again. That is his prerogative. But what I thank God for is that the decision is not his—it is the decision of the people. Like he knows so do I—they will decide.

I do not like to get like this because I sometimes have to be very careful. Nevertheless, I will be.

Madam Speaker, as one of the Representatives of the District of George Town, let me say to this Honourable House and to everyone who might hear (whether now or later), that I have been doing, and I will continue to do, the best that I can as one of their Representatives; notwithstanding the fact that I do not have the authority that others have. Sometimes I have to beg or plead for assistance. I do not have any problems with that. The truth is that when it comes to others I am used to doing that. Sometimes people do not know what others are faced with and it takes someone else to let everyone understand.

The other thing that I wish to say about 'gallivanting', Madam Speaker... and I was of two minds whether I should or not, but I think I will...

Madam Speaker, I have been a Member of a service club for nearly half of my 41 years... [long pause]

The Speaker: May we have a short suspension for 15 minutes?

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.02 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.26 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, continuing the debate.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker, I am so grateful to you for taking that short suspension so that I could gather myself together.

I stated my understanding of the intention of the Motion earlier. I will move on to point out various areas that I believe the Government of the day needs to be looking more closely at.

When we took the suspension, I had just mentioned a small fact about my being involved in a service club. Just to close that off, I wish to say that while I do everything possible to separate my life outside of that, because I know it does not need to be involved in other things, the truth of the matter is that sometimes when certain occurrences take place it is difficult to separate parts of one's life without it affecting others.

This Government, like any other Government (past or to come) has to understand and accept that insofar as its performance is judged—not by me, but by the people—human nature is simply going to let the people talk about anything that may not be quite right in their minds. The things that are all right are simply taken for granted, and that is just the way it is. So, to have certain things pointed out, and for them to be put to task from time to time, is only an opportunity for them to take stock and at least get those problems out of the way so that whatever happens down the line can be a new problem and not that one over and over again.

One of the problems that I have continuously spoken about, and will continue to speak about in this country, is the problem of Immigration. There are many aspects to be considered, and I am the first to admit that there is no easy answer to the problems which arise on a daily basis, simply because of the tremendous integration that has taken place over the years because of the growth of the Cayman Islands.

One might easily say that the Elected Government is not responsible for Immigration, but the truth of the matter is that the Elected Government does issue directives from time to time. While those directives come from Executive Council, which is chaired by His Excellency the Governor and includes the three Official Members, at some point in time the Elected Government comes into play.

I am sure that even though the Honourable Chief Secretary is the individual who actually has hands-on dealings with the day-to-day affairs of the Department, any problems that arise occur not necessarily because of a lack of sensitivity, but because of the way systems have been set up over the years and they sometimes find it difficult to make changes. Sometimes to make positive and effective changes there are some risks because whichever way you turn to satisfy one end of the coin, it causes a problem for another end. I understand that. But I hold the view that it has to be a situation of continual change in order to adapt to the times.

I hold the view today that the way the system is set up in dealing with the various types of permits, inclusive of dealing with appeals, it allows for too many individuals to undeservedly get hurt because the system does not allow for expeditious end results. While we may say that, as we go on and try to make changes from time to time, the majority of the public are being serviced properly, the truth is that the problems that arise because of Immigration can affect the lives of individuals to where it determines whether they eat or starve. While on a general level you may say that things are happening the right way, I am continually made aware of instances where, if I had been that person, I really do not know if I would have wanted to continue to live.

Very recently, I became aware of a situation where an individual had not been allowed to work in this country for the past eight months. The situation is not resolved, based on an appeal. The person has two children, a 15-year-old daughter, and another very young child—both children fathered by Caymanians. That person has an inalienable right to permanently reside in the Cayman Islands, but at the same time has been told that she cannot work.

I bring this example, not to test anyone's fortitude, but simply to point out the kinds of problems that occur and, if the right people do not holler and scream, it gets lost in the woodwork. It is a fact.

If we go into examining the entire situation, we will find that there are various agencies involved before due process can take place. It is my understanding that whenever an appeal is made, after fighting with the Department to get the facts from them, it is then forwarded to the Legal Department for them to give an opinion. It is then brought back into the system through the office of the Chief Secretary and it is then very possibly delegated. Then there is a wait for it to get on an agenda.

There may be no easy answer, but there are many instances when the length of time this process takes is simply too long for natural justice to occur. I am saying this afternoon that if we want to talk about the good things, that is fine. But while all the good things are happening—and some of us expect to be chiming about them morning, noon, and night—these bad things are also happening. If the Government expects that I, being made aware of this and being a messenger of the people, will not talk about it, then, I am sorry; they can class me any way they wish because by my not speaking about these issues I would certainly not be living up to the responsibility which I hold at present.

I do not necessarily wish to spend a very long time on this issue, but I want to impress on the Government—including the Elected Government, the Official Government and, if His Excellency listens to this, him too—because, while I have only spoken about a specific situation with the process, there are other matters which have to be examined. If it is such that someone else needs to hold the authority to deal with this appeal, then so be it. I do not care who it is. If it requires an independent Appellant Tribunal like other areas have (I am not here to say that is the answer), maybe it is worthwhile looking into and they could meet on a regular basis and the process would be expedited to where it is only a matter of weeks before these issues are dealt with and completed one way or the other; rather than [taking] a matter of months and, in many instances years—and that is not an exaggeration.

I remember having discussions with the Honourable Chief Secretary, and I am grateful for his enlightening me about the process and some of the problems. My aim is not to point fingers at anyone, but I am saying that this needs attention and the longer it continues the way it has been continuing, the more problems it will cause in this country.

We never know the far-reaching problems it causes. We have no idea until we get into some of the specific situations. We find, for instance, the specific situation I just spoken about (and I could have called another one, it just so happened to be the freshest one in my mind). You will find that because of that situation you have another family who is near and dear to that family who is barely able to make ends meet; and everyone is suffering trying to keep that family going because no one can work. It is a fact. It goes as far as people going to the Social Services Department. While due process does not take place, money has to be forked out by the Social Services Department.

It is certainly not that the person is lazy, and certainly not that the person is a bad person either. I am saying this, and I am saying it without reservation. This incident is not isolated. It is beyond that point now. So, that is one area of the Immigration Department and its necessary attachments that I see a major problem with.

There is another area of similarity where there are individuals who are in business. They go through the process of inquiring exactly what is required by the Board to make an application for a work permit. They are told to advertise for a certain period of time to see if there are any qualified Caymanians. They pray that a qualified Caymanian will come forward because they hate to know that they have to darken the doors of the Immigration Department. I am not saying anything bad about the Immigration Department, I am just saying it is always a problem. So, they go through that process, and no one applies.

They go as far as to advertise again and say, 'We ran such-and-such an ad on such-and-such a date and we have had no reply, and we really would like to hire a Caymanian.' They still get no reply. So, they make an application and the answer they get is "The application is refused on the grounds that a Caymanian could fill the post." Madam Speaker, many of these individuals are just like me—ordinary people doing their best to be good citizens to earn a living and make ends meet and, if possible, to put a little bit aside for those days of gray hair.

So, these people appeal and they go through the pains of going through all of the necessary prerequisites—and their business is going on without this person. Nine months later, the one person they have on a work permit is leaving the next month and they have not heard from that appeal yet. What do I tell them? Tough? I cannot tell them that.

I only bring those two examples to say that whatever it takes out of the Government, situations must be able to be dealt with and expedited. If they knew the answer was going to be 'no', they would have a different course of action. These people are in limbo.

The cute thing about that first example is that after eight months into the appeal, somebody discovered that this person had the right to remain permanently in this Island. They said: 'No, we are not going to deal with this appeal. This is funny. Let us send it back to the Board so they can save face and we can get this dealt with right because this person must remain here.' Eight months later! If that does not prove the point, Madam Speaker, then I give up.

Madam Speaker, I will move off from that subject because I know there are no easy answers. I also know that it is my fervent desire to see all Caymanians who are able to work placed in a job that they can manage in order for all of us to be able to survive. While we accept that at present there is much more demand for labour than the local supply, I am certainly not being a proponent of not making sure that any and all of our Caymanians are not placed rightfully in the work force. But, there are many, many instances similar to what I have pointed out. While we have to be very conscious to ensure that Caymanians are not bypassed for foreign labour, we must not go overboard and stymie the natural growth which will effectively take place once ordinary people are allowed to function within the world of business efficiently.

At some point in time this is a sore topic because everybody who talks about it has a different idea. But the bottom line is this: When it comes to operating our Immigration Policies through any Board or through appeals, etcetera, natural justice must be served for the sake of all concerned.

The other thing that I have a problem with is somebody knowing somebody and telling somebody else about a problem with that person, and before we know it the Board says: 'We do not want that person, we better refuse that work permit.' And no one knows the truth. You see, Madam Speaker, the Government can stand up and cry forever that they do not know anything about it, but it comes back to the point—like the Minister for Education said this morning about a certain issue, that while he did not know anything personally about it, he took responsibility for it. That is what happens.

From where I stand, I have no recourse but to advise the Government. I cannot go to the people who work the system and say they have to do something about it—who am I? So I am taking this opportunity to tell the Government that they must do something about this.

I am not telling them that they must do something about this so that they can look good and they can look bad, I really do not care—I do not! I do not care! I just want it right. The difference between me and a lot of people is that I have no aspirations to get anywhere else—I am happy with myself as I am... I certainly do not want to get any bigger, but, besides that, I am happy with me as I am. I just want to see it right.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: [addressing voice across the floor] Not quite, sir. Having that advantage might be greater than it is.

Anyway, Madam Speaker, I just wanted to reiterate that point so that maybe, while it is a difficult task, enough attention will be paid because it is an ongoing process—and I accept that.

I understand that if everyone gave up everything tomorrow and simply concentrated on that, the answers would not be forthcoming. I understand that. But we cannot say that because it is difficult we will leave it alone and hope for the best, that never works. It never works from the time we are children. We know what happens to children when we deal with them like that.

Madam Speaker, the other thing that I personally have a problem with (and, unfortunately, I experienced it again today) is that there are individuals who get caught up in the heat of the moment and by the time what is said is heard, quite likely what is heard is totally different from what was intended to be heard. The Government must understand that while I, as a Representative, am under the gun, they are under the cannon. I only get it sometimes. A part of the price that they pay for who they are, and where they are is being under the gun, which means... and I know it inhibits some of us, but that is tough... which means that the Government must on a whole—individually, collectively, some of them, one of them, all of them put together—must at all times be very careful in what is said and what is done; and how it is said and how it is done because of the natural tendency of the human being to interpret what they wish to interpret.

We keep hearing about things being blown out of proportion. Madam Speaker, the only way things cannot be blown out of proportion is to not exist. It is as simple as that. If it does not exist and one alludes to it or talks about it, then you can say it is a lie. But, if there is any chance of any misunderstanding, the best you can say is that you did not mean it like that.

You know what? Inasmuch as it might sound like a very touchy topic, I know that what I just said is the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Others will use a different tactic, and maybe I get the urge sometimes too, but I want the world to understand that I do my best to be fair in my debate. I do my best, even when it does not appear that way.

I am trying to be fair about this situation. But, when you have a string of events happening in your country that are said and/or done at a national level—even when they are misinterpreted—all you hear from everyone is, 'Uh-huh, I told you so.' That is all you hear. To go back and say now that the fault lies with those who misinterpret does not work. They are going to be there all the time. When we come and go they are going to be there. So, it is not by chiding them, it is to ensure that they do not have that opportunity, because it hurts. I am not talking personally, I am talking about the country—my country.

Madam Speaker, I daresay that the most recent incident about the... how did it go again? Oh... the cluttering up of the infrastructure. If the Government could just be open and relaxed, I bet they would say. 'Lord! I wish that did not happen.' That is what they are going to say. It is not to point a finger at this one or that one: 'Well, this should not have happened because this should have been the way it was said.' It has to come back to the source. That is my point.

I am not going to stand here and talk about who does not want foreigners here or whatever. The point that I am making is that along with the responsibility of an office goes the responsibility of one's actions and one's words. If everybody is not getting into trouble with it, then maybe one should take the time to find out why certain people do not get in trouble. Then maybe it will not happen.

Being blown out of proportion is after the fact. I do not worry about how it makes the Government look, or who wants to take on an individual; I make the point that it negatively affects the well being of my country. I do not have any answers for it when people ask me about it—that is my trouble. Even if I go as far as to say 'I do not believe that' or, 'I do not think that person would say that', it does not help. Does it? It does not. As insignificant a point as that might seem to be, the truth of the matter is that when little old me gets a spate of phone calls asking; 'What's happening?' and I have no answers, then I am really, really worried. When instances like that happen I cannot even say, 'Can I find out the truth and get back to you?', because the truth is so relative then that it is not funny. If I even go back and say, 'Well, this is what I was told, and it is the opposite of what you heard', that is not even going to change their minds because the die has been cast.

So, Madam Speaker, I would ask the Members of Government to pay heed so that we do not have to be fearful of situations getting to where we are not able to deal with them. Opinions are already [being] formed, and after opinions come decisions.

I have stated before in this Honourable House that in my humble opinion there seemed to be a lack of national direction; insofar as if we segregated the various Ministries and Portfolios one might well be able to say that individually these are doing everything within their power and working hard. But it is just like the colours of the rainbow—individually you see a certain picture, but when you put them all together you see something totally different. The point that I am making is that somewhere along the line—and I am addressing the entire Government, not just the Elected Government—we have to find the proper reasoning and the correct way in order for us to be doing long range planning at a national level. I am not trying to sound like an economist or forecaster or anything like that, but there are certain basic situations which are almost obvious to the ordinary person. What makes this country tick before each and every Ministry can function is the amount of money that can be spent at any given time. When each Ministry outlines its plans for the year it is combined and we end up with a budget.

The budget process, as I understand it, is to make realistic projections based on all the facts available as to how much money the country will earn within the fiscal year and, in so doing, to divide it in the order of priorities between the various areas that have to provide the goods and services and make sure that what you spend is within what you have budgeted, and does not exceed what you anticipate the country will earn. That way you do not have deficit spending.

I believe that in many instances money that is spent—I do not want to say haphazardly, because I do not want it to sound like it is just taken and thrown into the air, that is not what I am saying. But money that is spent without a real enough purpose in mind (if I may say it like that), could be better spent to give the people of this country better net end results.

I will use an example by way of roads. We sit here squabbling about how many roads get done and about roads being done in West Bay. When I walk in George Town all I can hear from the people is, 'When are you going to fix my road?' And we are back and forth at each other's throats over roads. In doing that we go as far as to devise the principles of these things. When that is all over, we still have not hit the real problem. When it comes to equipment, when it comes to manpower and when it comes to materials, the deployment of your equipment and manpower is very critical to your cost. When it comes to material purchases, the more volume you are able to deal with, even if it is on a timely basis, the better deal you must get. Is it not right? So, every year we worry for three months to decide which little piece is going to get done and we have the people from Public Works leaving North Side at 11.00 to run to West Bay by 2.00 to get one done and what is supposed to be done gets done; but, certainly, not anywhere as efficiently as it could be.

The point I am making here is that if we had some long term planning with regard to, not only the smaller roads and the ancillary roads leading off from the main roads, but also the main roads plus the roads that we propose to build... I am not one to stand up here to challenge anyone to refute it... I am simply saying that I have very strong doubts that the method I am alluding to will not bring about noticeable benefits with regard to how much goods and services we are able to provide for 'X' amount of dollars.

To be more specific, Madam Speaker, if we look at this Budget which was presented in November, along with the one presented the year before, along with what is projected for next year in the Estimates; the amounts of money for road repair and expansion of roads would easily be used to service a debt if one was incurred, for instance, by way of long range planning what it is costing us now that we are only getting two cents worth, when we could get 10 cents worth if we dealt with long range planning.

I am simply using that as an example to say that this country, at this point in time, needs to be making long range plans in order to develop our infrastructure properly—and get the politics out of it. Leave that to us idiots to argue about. What is good for this country at a national level is what should be dealt with. Let us talk about the other little picky things.

I think there is an accepted formula that countries should be dealing with servicing debt no more than 10% or 15% of its GNP. I may be taken to task at the end of the day for suggesting that we should go into more debt, but the difference in all that I am saying is that if your debt is controlled and you handle it properly, you utilise the funds in a much more efficient manner. Even when servicing a loan with interest you are far ahead of the game with the net end results. On top of that you will be able to see those results physically by the enhancement of the infrastructure in the country. I make no bones about that because I firmly believe that.

Sometimes I have a problem with the system because elections are held every four years and somewhere along the line we have all gotten into the habit where we spend one year familiarising ourselves with what is happening, we spend the next two years fighting, then we spend the next year trying to get re-elected. In the meantime the country is asking; 'What are those idiots doing?' I am not just talking about us in here, Madam Speaker, that has been happening for some time, and that is the way it is.

We have to be able to rise to the level where, notwithstanding the individual political aspirations of persons and/or groups, we can accept that as players in the game the type of long term planning that I am talking about is not stuff that we interfere with. It is proposals that we allow those who know to deal with and once we can see the sense in it we do not interfere. If people put us in next time, we do not interfere; and if they do not put us in next time, the other people do not interfere, because it is in the best interest of the country. We have not been doing that from the time that I have been paying attention to what happens in my country—and that is not yesterday.

I am asking for a new way of thinking in the whole scheme of things. Maybe one of these times we might hear some good results.

The Elected arm of Government (as I know the system, and as has been preached on quite recently here) has no dealings with the civil service by way of hiring and firing. It is the Governor's responsibility and the buck stops with him. I think, by way of the chain of command, the Honourable Chief Secretary is the Head of the civil service and everyone else answers to him and he answers to the Governor. That is my understanding.

Let me say this... and I hope I do not end up like the cartoon, but I am going to say it because I believe it. If certain things are fully left to the Governor and it is his dealing, then I believe that we should have some type of mechanism which allows for the people of this country to be able to have some say when it comes to our people. If someone wants to take that and bend it and twist it and talk about independence and communism, that is up to them. I am not dealing with that.

I firmly believe that... and let me just put a hypothetical situation here, maybe that will explain the point. If the Chief Secretary has misgivings about the termination of an individual in the civil service, then that should not be left where someone just arbitrarily says that person must go.

I see the Honourable Chief Secretary looking at me as if to say he wishes he could explain the system, because I do not fully understand it. I think I know a little bit more than I am saying. I choose to say it the way I am saying it because if I say it another way my point may not be taken.

I have very strong feelings about persons in my country who have ability and talents to offer my country who are cast aside. I have strong feelings. I believe that because we are so lacking in numbers as compared to the need for those types of people that, short of major differences, or physical confrontations or criminal action, we must be able to sit down and work this thing out. That is how I feel about it. Now, I am not asking everyone to agree with me, I am just saying how I feel.

I contend that the human element is not one to be cast aside in any dealings, whether it be professionally, personally or otherwise. So, while I am not one to point fingers and say it was because of this one why this one is not there anymore. It does not really matter to me. What matters to me is that these people are not there anymore. That is what matters to me.

I make that point, without an answer as to how to deal with it, but with the hope that the tide will be stemmed and we will not see anymore of such happenings. I would really like to be able to say that we are one big happen family. That may be far-fetched, but I guess I can only say it the way that I see it.

When it comes to the civil service some of us, or maybe all of us, try to be careful and try to give them kudos the best way that we know how because we know that is the largest group of people who are employed in this country. Naturally, when it comes to an election that number counts. Believe you me, Madam Speaker, I am not thinking about anything like that.

If there are problems in the Service and situations need to be rectified, I totally agree that they must be dealt with immediately, because I know the civil service is totally responsible for certain services which are provided to the public, and the public is the most important player in the game and it must be served. The truth is that, directly or indirectly, the public is paying the civil service so they must get the proper services provided.

But in that whole scheme of things, even when you have to run a tight ship, I think that we ought to be able to deal with those situations so that whatever transpires, wherever there is any adversarial situation that occurs, we are able to resolve it with the least damage done to any individual or group. From what I have seen happening recently, I have to draw the conclusion that I am not so sure that we are sensitive enough about the issue.

The point that I make is in the entire scheme of things, whichever way the chain of command falls (if it is the way it is supposed to fall, or differently) I frankly do not care, because what I say applies to wherever it has to go. That is the way that I see it.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: You are speaking in parables.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Third Elected Member for West Bay says that I am speaking in parables. Madam Speaker, I saw no frown on your face. I am quite happy that you understood and you were who I was speaking to. I am sorry if he does not understand.

If the Member wishes for me to say that His Excellency the Governor is who is ultimately responsible, then I speak that to him. If that is what he wants me to say, I have no problem with that because it is not said with any disrespect. I actually should have waited and allowed the Third Elected Member for West Bay to say it when he speaks, because he might have actually felt better saying it himself.

Nevertheless, the point that I make is that I feel very strongly about our Caymanians being displaced, even if those who have the authority determine that the end result is deserving. I am saying that I have a problem with that because I feel confident that in the majority of instances it is not the inability to perform but, rather, some type of personality clash. I am saying that whoever has the authority needs to be able to rise above that conflict and be able to resolve it without our having to displace those individuals, because all we end up with are bitter persons who had much to offer who would still be able to offer that if we had dealt with it differently. That is my point.

A while ago when I was speaking about long term planning I forgot to mention fiscal policy. I have heard previous Governments mentioned on several occasions, and what was in surplus and how it had to be used and matters such as that. What concerns me greatly today... and before I make the statement I have to qualify it by saying that as a Representative hearing the desires of the people and sometimes seeing things that I know are needed in the country, I will stand here and make demands in my own way to the Government about things that I see need to be done. But, I am sure that they have been where I am before so they know that the relativity of the job is there.

Having said that, I also firmly believe that along with any long range planning that we might engage in as we go along trying to do what we can for this country, I think it is important that we organise our Budget process somehow, so that we will be able to put aside a little more on a regular basis for a rainy day.

I know the cry for Government to provide all of these things for the people of this country, but I contend that out of the $170 million Budget we must be able to somehow put aside a little bit more than we have been into our General Reserves, so that when the situation we might not think about occurs, we will be better able to deal with it. Rather than spending the whole pay cheque over the weekend, we put aside a couple of dollars because we do not know if we might get sick or the children might get sick and we find ourselves in a quandary not knowing how to deal with the situation. I draw that comparison because I firmly believe that if we were so minded we could do a little bit better with that situation.

It is something that I take issue with on the principle of the situation where if we have a Budget of $160-odd million and we are hoping that by projections we will be able to put $300,000 into General Reserves. I am really not satisfied with that and I trust that when it is being dealt with next time that will be taken into consideration.

I will probably hear about that when somebody is crying for something and they say, 'No, blame it on Kurt.' I really do not care. That is something that we get used to after awhile.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.28 PM

The Speaker: I do not suppose you will finish.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Not this afternoon, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: May I ask for the Motion for the Adjournment of the House? Any Member may rise. The Honourable Leader of Government Business.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 14 JUNE 1995.

WEDNESDAY
14TH JUNE 1995
10.15 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Third Elected Member for West Bay to say Prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth, the Queen's. Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office. All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who are in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and even Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Question No. 117, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 117

No. 117: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to state by specification and time served what changes of doctors on staff at the George Town Hospital have taken place since January 1993.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Since January 1993, the following changes of doctors at the George Town Hospital have occurred:

Pathologist: One pathologist appointed Aug 1993 on a two year contract. Renewal recently granted for further two years.

Obstetrician/Gynecologist: One obstetrician/gynecologist was appointed on a locum basis on 11th October 1993 to 30th April 1994. Two part-time obstetrician/gynecologists provided cover from 30th April 1994 to 16th June 1994. A full-time obstetrician/gynecologist was appointed on 16th June 1994, on a two-year overseas contract.

Surgeon: One full-time surgeon (Registrar) was appointed on 1st September 1993 on a two year overseas contract. One locum Surgeon (Consultant) appointed on 30th October 1994 to 31st January 1995. One full-time Surgeon (Consultant) was appointed 20th January, 1995, on a two-year overseas contract Casualty Medical Officers: One full-time casualty officer was appointed on 17th December 1993 on a two year overseas contract. One full-time Casualty Officer was appointed on 12th January 1994 on a two year overseas contract. Another full-time casualty officer was appointed on 10th February 1994 on a two-year overseas contract. Locum doctors are used to cover vacation leave and vacant posts.

Internal Medicine: One full-time internist was appointed on 21st March 1995 on a two-year overseas contract.

Dentistry: One full-time senior dental officer was appointed on 3rd January 1994 on a two-year overseas contract. This Officer resigned effective 10th February 1995. One full-time dental officer was appointed on 1st April 1994 on a two-year overseas contract.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what vacancies exist at this institution at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: One vacancy currently exists for the post of Casualty Medical Officer. The post is currently being advertised in the United Kingdom and the Caribbean.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I wonder if the Honourable Minister can confirm whether or not there are medical officers planning to leave the service.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, one internist is scheduled to leave later on this year.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say how much notice is required from officers who are leaving the Government Service at this institution?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: To terminate a contract, three months' notice is given. If they are going to renew their contract there is a requisition of six months.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if this is a current practise? Since it is my knowledge that at least one staff member at this institution whose contract expired some time ago was in a state of apprehension for quite a while, not knowing what to do as a result of a late notice of contract extension.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, that is the practise. There are occasions when some glitches may develop where the timeframe is not met.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what the procedure is with regard to informing staff members when the required notice of extension of contract has not been posted to the officers involved?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, this is done through to the Public Service Commission, notifying the Personnel Department which passes it on to the Head of the Department.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 118, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 118

No. 118: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce if Government has received any complaints regarding an illegal condominium rental company operating on the Treasure Island Property.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: No complaints have been received regarding an illegal condominium rental property.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Am I to understand that the Government has no knowledge of an operation called the Treasure Island Condominium Strata Corporation which operates out of the Treasure Island complex?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I think the answer is pretty clear. We have no complaint—which was the question—we have no complaint about an illegal condominium rental company; whether it is Treasure Island or anywhere else.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether he has any knowledge of a letter written to an operation in June of 1994, advising them to cease operation as a tourist accommodation until the strata was officially licensed?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, according to our records the company I think the Member is referring to is licensed through 31 August 1995. So I do not know about any illegality.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 119, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO.119

No. 119: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning whether there have been any financial irregularities in the downtown office of Cayman Airways Limited at any time during this year.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the answer: There were irregularities in the city ticket office as a result of which two staff members were dismissed. This matter is presently under investigation by the Royal Cayman Islands Police.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if this is the reason why there have been major staff changes at the office?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, this is under investigation by the police and I would rather not comment any further on it. There have been dismissals, as was stated in the answer to the question.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 120, standing in the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 120

No. 120: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what is the cost of drawing the plans for the proposed remodelled George Town Hospital and its new innovations.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Over 80 per cent of the new George Town Hospital development will consist of brand new buildings, so it is misleading to refer, as this question does, to plans for the proposed remodelled George Town Hospital and its new innovations.

Our consultant's fees for the pre-contract work for the entire project is $900,000. My Ministry has no specific breakdown of this fee which would show in isolation the cost of producing drawings for only the remodelling part of the entire work being undertaken on the existing site. When compared to the new construction which will take place, the remodelling is a relatively small part of the project, making up approximately 16 per cent of the overall budget. Given Ellerbe Becker's fee of $900,000, it seems reasonable to estimate the drawing cost applicable to remodelling as approximately $140,000.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Minister say if these drawings for the site and the new buildings are available anywhere for public inspection?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Madam Speaker, not at this time. They are still in the final phases in meeting with the staff of the Hospital. But at the appropriate time they will be made available for the public.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Minister say if, when the plans are completed, a specific costing of the building would be done, and would that costing be known to the public?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker. As a matter of fact, the quantity surveyors are now working along with Ellerbe Becket on the detail costing as they go along, and they will be made available to the public.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if any of the remodelling is underway at this time, or any preparatory work?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Madam Speaker, not at time. Spaces that are now occupied will have to decant into the new buildings. Once they have vacated remodelling will take place on those.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if provision exists at this time for the payment of the $900,000 to Ellerbe Becket, or is this an ongoing cost which will go over into next year?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: It is in the Budget for 1995, but it is an ongoing process whereby, as and when they get certain stages, they will be paid.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 121, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 121

No. 121: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation how many cases of elective surgery have been rescheduled or cancelled since January 1994 to date.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The number of cases rescheduled since January 1994 to April 1995 is 328. The number of cases cancelled from January 1994 to April 1995 is 190.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The numbers that have been given by the Minister seem to be extremely large, to say the least. How far is the administration of the Hospital or the Ministry, which might be involved in this, able to deal with what is obviously a serious problem in delivering the health services at the hospital?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, these delays and rescheduling of cases may come about for different reasons: sickness which renders the patient a poor surgical risk (these are when the patients are rescheduled); sometimes patients do not show up at the Anaesthetic Clinic for admission to the Hospital.

At times the cancellations are due to a lack of space with beds at the Hospital. Other times patients change their minds and decide to go overseas for second opinions. But any alteration in the schedule of the operating room lists is done after informing the patients or after receiving a request from the patients for a postponement.

We do realise that we have a problem, and we are diligently working on it with the setting up of better facilities as we go along.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 122, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO.122

No. 122: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if the Public Service Investment Committee has done a report on the renovation and rebuilding of the old George Town Hospital and, if so, would he table the document.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Public Sector Investment Committee performs an internal advisory function to Executive Council and, as such, the advice or reports from it are not normally intended to be in the public domain.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Minister say if the Public Sector Investment Committee has done any study at all on this particular exercise involving the present George Town site?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, they have. And possibly in the future, on direction from the Financial Secretary's office, they could be released. But, I cannot make a commitment.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if the findings of this exercise were favourable in doing what is proposed to be done on the present site?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: As far as the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital is concerned, there was a study done and those findings were made available. Is there any chance that the findings of the Public Sector Investment Committee will be made available at the time the costing is done and the plans are completed for the Hospital?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, I cannot commit one way or the other at this time. It would have to be a decision made by Executive Council.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE HONOURABLE SPEAKER

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today.

Before proceeding to Other Business, I would like on behalf of the House to welcome back the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. We are happy to see him back and taking part in the proceedings.

OTHER BUSINESS PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

Private Member's Motion No. 8/95 —Censure Motion

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we adjourned on Friday afternoon, I was debating a point under the fiscal policies of Government. I just wish to reiterate that it is my view that in the process of preparing budgets this Government, and any other government, should be finding themselves in a position to deal with putting aside a reasonable portion of the earnings of the country into the General Reserves on an annual basis.

I am not suggesting that we should be able to put aside $15 million every year. There is an old saying that we always hear. "One-one cocoa fill basket"—if it was dealt with in that fashion, then the country would be able to have, within not too long a period of time, reasonable reserves in case of unforeseen emergency. Not only that, if one has cash in one's hand, one can always use that cash as leverage when it comes to borrowings. Likewise, a country; if there were reserves held then the Government would always be in a very decent position when it comes to engaging in borrowings, especially for the long term, which I think is the way we should be thinking if we are ever going to have our infrastructure coming anywhere on line with the growth rate the country has experienced.

Some people might think is a boring topic because it does not have all the flare that goes along with the other nice juicy things that we can talk about. But I feel very strongly about the position that I have taken on that. And to be very honest, up until this point I have not seen the Government leaning in that direction. So, I have stated my position on that and I will wait to see if it falls on deaf ears or not.

I said on Friday that the position I have taken with the Motion we are debating is simply that this is an opportunity for those of us who are not on the Government bench to be able to air our views and publicly cite inadequacies that exist, with the hope that the Government would be able to use its machinery to examine the veracity of those inadequacies and do something about them. If the Government takes offence at me or anyone else dealing with it in that fashion, I am sorry; but they have their job and so do I.

My job at this point in time is that of a watchdog. Each and every Member on the Government bench has been a watchdog before. They have been in positions where they had to take stands in order to do what, they felt was right, and in order to get Government to do certain things. Truthfully speaking, when it is someone else's turn to be the watchdog—and these people have to be watched—then, that is the way life is and I would like to believe that they would accept it. I do not expect them to curl up; but I want to say something this morning for those over there who may have thought that I might have curled up—they are sadly mistaken. It is not going to happen.

This weekend was a long weekend, and I certainly would not disappoint the Minister for Community Development, so I had to do a little bit of 'gallivanting' on the weekend. During my gallivanting I went down into a couple of places. I went down into one place called Rock Hole. I visited an old lady (a dear old friend of mine), and the first thing she said to me was: "You know, Mr. Kurt, they still have not fixed my roof yet."

I said: "You must be joking."

"No", she said, "on everything that I hold dear, I am telling you they have not come to fix my roof yet."

This is a situation that has existed for nigh on to a year and I thought it had been taken care of because it was on a list from the Social Services Department to get done from last year. I tried to check on it to find out what has happened and I was told that the 1995 Budget for house repairs was exhausted from the end of April.

There is a question that was asked in this House during the last Sitting, and when there was no reply I asked the question again in this Sitting. The question is asking the Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture to provide a list, by district and individual amounts, of persons who have received assistance through the Social Services Department to effect home repairs.

This is the second Session, and the way I understand it, and the way I have heard it, is that the Department has not been able to provide this information. Madam Speaker, here is a simple opinion: I have very serious doubts that the very capable Head of that Department would risk the wrath of the Ministry by not providing that answer. So I do not know where the answer is.

I wondered, when the same old lady said to me—when I called her to tell her that it is still on the list, but that I was very sorry to tell her that there are no funds available—she said, "I guess that money went the same way the money went for the roads, and we never anything out of it." I do not know, Madam Speaker, but I am told that I 'gallivant', and I must try to do something for my district. Well I am hollering for some people in my district now, and I want to see what is going to be done.

In case someone wants to throw a slur about the service club that I belong to, I just want to say that if nothing is forthcoming as has been promised this lady, then once we are able to physically get to it we will take care of that too—as we have been doing to the best of our ability in the past, while we are gallivanting all over the place.

Madam Speaker, I mentioned that a section of a budget was exhausted at the end of April. Now I have no doubt in my mind that the people who prepare the budget are professionals. But I also have a fair idea of the juggling that goes on in various areas to get the budget balanced whenever it is being presented. I would daresay that if this is, by any means, a typical example what the country is going to have to deal with this year—let alone the Cubans who are gone but not paid for at this point in time—I really wonder what will happen regarding supplementary expenditure if these other departments are to continue to function.

Madam Speaker, I vividly remember the first Budget. Session I sat in, when I heard everyone expounding that supplementary expenditure was not going to be the order of the day, and it was going to be prudent, planned Government that we were going to experience. No one can say to me and make me believe that there has been so much excess activity in that area that the Budget is run out at the end of April and we have to see ourselves through until November; that someone did not know that it was going to run out long before that. Which leads me to believe that whenever the Budget was being put together, it was put together with full knowledge that we were going to come back and talk about supplementary expenditure.

While this may seem to be funny business, I want to say this today because I firmly believe it: I have serious misgivings about anyone or any group who would deal with my country in that fashion. If it is not the case—and I pray to God it is not the case—then I will simply thank God that it is not the case, but I have serious misgivings about that situation. I will wait to see about supplementary expenditure, to see if the little vision I have had is a wild one or not.

While not purporting to be any expert (I know I am not), I believe that the country needs to be engaging in lot more long-term planning in many areas if we are going to be able to get maximum use of our dollars, and if we are going to be able to deal with the affairs of our country in the right way.

One of the things I firmly believe the political arm of Government, along with the Official arm, should be looking at is leaning towards having professionals plan the future of this country; people who are not necessary involved in the arena that we stand in today. Governments disappear, but the country always remains. If we are going to continue to reap and enjoy the benefits of the success that we have had by God's mercy so far without any real long-term planning, then we have to get our act together. If we deal with it like that, it does not matter who the Government of the day is. The Government of the day can stick to its chores and try to stay in power and deal with the way the country should be going. But if we have the basic plans in place and being operated on by the professionals, then we stand a chance of having a lot less money being wasted by changes in policies and funds being spent halfway then stopped—money down the drain with nothing to show for it.

Inasmuch as we might get acrimonious from time to time (maybe I am having my share of that today also), I hold the view that when it comes to the affairs of this country we must always be able to rise above that acrimony and be able to deliver what we have asked the people to put us in here for. So, with that in mind, I come back to the watchdog situation.

Madam Speaker, in my short tenure here I have seen a lot of things that I had not seen before, and I have heard a lot of things that I had not heard before. As time goes on the shocks are a little bit less because you get used to certain things. But when I recently took a very serious look at an issue which was a hot topic, I really wondered how certain things happen and I wondered how certain systems operate within the Government.

Not too long ago there was this 'White Paper', as it is called, that was passed around, supposedly a draft discussion paper on some amendments to the Labour Law. The truth of the matter is that in those proposed amendments there are several areas that make a lot of sense and areas that I certainly do not have any problems with if they are to be brought into legislation and enacted. However, there was one specific area which a lot has been said about, and when I fully understood what it was saying it frightened me. It frightened me to where I did not know what to say or do and thank God I was by myself, because I certainly would have looked lost to whoever else might have been there.

The proposed amendment, which basically stated that an employee would receive four week's salary for every year worked for the company—whether that employee walked off the job, was kicked off the job, or drove off the job it did not matter. To put it simply without trying to waste too much time, what it meant was that if there is a business that is going on in the Cayman Islands and it is 15 years old and there are 4 employees in that business who have been with that business from the time that business started; if this amendment was to take passage in law the way it had originally been proposed, it meant that those four employees simply had to go to their employer and say 'We are leaving you now, kindly give us each our cheque for $60,000 and we will see you later.' That employer would simply have to find $240,000 or be put in jail and the key thrown away. Someone would say to me—

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order Honourable Minister?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Madam Speaker, on the point of relevance. I am wondering how he is raising this when the Motion does not refer to it and nobody has raised it.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, that is not a Point of Order. He is replying to the Motion and one of the points I gather so far from his debate is the Labour Law. I think he has every right to do that if he is talking about the competence, or otherwise, of the Government.

Would you please continue Fourth Elected Member for George Town?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker, and I will come to the point.

I simply drew that illustration so that people could understand the danger in the proposed legislation.

Mr. Roy Borden: Hear, hear!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I do not know if those who were involved in putting that piece of legislation together fully understood the ramifications of that specific section. I can only say that if they did, I feel sorry for us because I do not know what is coming next. On the other hand, if it took the riling up of the people to make them understand what a problem it might have caused, then woe be unto us again, because that means that people are prepared to deal with specific situations that may cause a problem for certain individuals in this country, expecting to take it at a national level without any thought for the consequences.

It is accepted that this White Paper was a discussion draft. But no one in their right mind is going to propose anything, even if it is for discussion, if they do not think that is how it should be. If they do not think that is how it should be, Madam Speaker, who would take the risk of throwing something like that out? You know what else happened about it? When the you-know-what hit the fan and everybody started to scramble, somebody said, 'You know, these people are saying that we should not be dealing with this. If we want to address this situation we should be dealing with a National Pension Plan. That is all right, let us use it. We have had problems with pension before.'

So, they lay out this snow job. I really cannot blame them for that because if I was them I would try it too. The snow job is, 'Well, we brought it like this so we would put you in shock so you would understand that we need a pension plan.' If that is what it achieves then, thank you very much, let us move on and get the job done.

Madam Speaker, I have decided that I am going to say what I believe and until people show me proof of [something] different, then I will maintain that belief. If what I am saying here in conjecture has anything true in it . . . no one can tell me that we do not have some problems. It is a pity that this Motion has to be interpreted that there is an intention for the Government to fall. I personally would not like to believe that I have to partake in anything like that in my country, because that in itself creates social disharmony.

I can only paint the picture the way I see it. And even if it is not the way that I have said, no one can tell me that it is not worth it for this country for us to be talking about the problems so that we can address them. No one can tell me that. And that is my sole intention today.

Madam Speaker, while I was gallivanting over the weekend I went fishing early one morning by myself and I had a little talk with my God. I had to ask him what size I was—was I a man or a boy. Because when the Minister for Community Development is going to stand up in this honourable House—and I know when he is talking to me and when he is not. He knows that I know that. And he is going to say: 'Madam Speaker, the Motion has no basis. Therefore, I put anyone who would even think to try and get a little mileage out of this, by saying on one hand this and on the other hand that in the same category from here on in as the two Opposition Members—fully and squarely Opposition.' The only thing I forgot to do over the weekend was to go and ask my mother and father if they had sold me to him [the Minister]. I did not remember to go and ask them that.

But I want to tell everyone in this honourable House that regardless of how they see me operate and not like it, my sole intention here is to do the job I am here to do, and to do it in as responsible a fashion as I know how—even when it does not suit some of them. At times, I daresay, the two Opposition Members have not been pleased with me either, because I may have taken a different position. Chances are that will happen again. But there is one thing that I can say, we are always able to discuss whatever the differences are to try and see where the moot points are and what is salient and what is not, Madam Speaker. That is our job in here—Government Backbench, Opposition, independents, those who have a little four-inch wide fences, all of us. That is our job regardless of how we see where we fit at any time.

Madam Speaker, the Minister keeps talking about hot and cold. I want you to know that while I may speak the things he says, I am trying my very best to make them relevant to the issue at hand. I have not had a fever in a little while. The only hot and cold that I believe he is talking about is hot when I agree and cold when I do not. So I must not be hot and cold—I must either be cold all the time or hot at all times. What I have come to believe is that because I am not fully cold all the time his style of politics cannot fulfill itself because he cannot come out firing at me all the time and justify his actions. So he wants—

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Neither can you.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I have never tried to be like that.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: You know you are too—hot and cold. You do it all the time.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So, he wants to be able to do one thing or another.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: You are hot now!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, I just heard him say (and it proves the point to me) that I am hot now. So he has put me in the corner where I have to decide. That is what he wants me to do—do it one way or the other.

Madam Speaker, as far as I understand it, we do not have any political parties that I have to join. But if and when it happens (if I am around), I will deal with it accordingly. I am here to do what I think is best along with the rest of the Members in here and the people of this country together to do what is best for all of us. I am really trying to do that. If the Honourable Minister cannot satisfy himself that my style is worth it, then all he has to do is to pretend that I do not exist.

I am easy. But what he will not do is force me to do something that fits into his scheme of things. Oh no! Not him or anyone else. And I sincerely mean that.

I believe to go on and on, might actually take away some of the relevance. I simply wish to say that regardless of the differences in opinions, whether it is now, in times gone by or in times to come, I only want to see it right for all of us. If we differ in methods, I can live with that if we have to get on because one is not satisfied about what the other has said, I can also live with that. What I have a hard time living with is people who know different about certain situations and because of the given circumstances—with who is who, and who is linked up with whom—one actually stifles one's conscience at certain points in time. These are national issues that I am talking about. Everyone will have to do as they are rightly convicted to do. I certainly know that I can stand up here today and say that I have never done that, and I will never do that—not knowingly, certainly not knowingly.

Madam Speaker, it is my humble view that besides some rebuttals which I have had to make, some of the points that I have raised are worth listening to. They will look better in the eyes of the public; they will do more justice to this country if these issues are addressed in a positive fashion.

Finally, my support for this Motion, regardless of who wants to interpret it their own way, is simply to ensure that the Government is kept on its toes. I am doing my Job as the watchdog they once were, to make them perform the way they should as the Government this country. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Censure Motion before the House is one of the most power tools afforded to the Opposition. This type of motion is usually only brought when the Opposition has the potential to take over the Government. This Motion seems to be badly timed because the Opposition does not have the numbers or the plan to substitute for what the Government is doing.

In fact, the movers of the Motion do not seem to believe in it very much themselves because in contrast to a motion that had been seconded by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman (although not debated in the House), tabled on 2 March 1979, this Motion contains no recitals while that particular motion contained many.

This type of motion has bad effects, particularly in a country whose economy is very sensitive to the whims and idiosyncrasies of the offshore investment market. We know here today, as well as the movers of the Motion that what they have brought is a meaningless motion. However, the offshore investor who does not know, nor understand the day-to-day politics of the country, that this is a harmless motion, may see it as a Government in trouble and may have some hesitancy in enlarging their investments if this Motion were, in fact, a true expression of the state of affairs which currently exist. So, they are bound to put a different interpretation to the Motion.

It appears to me that neither the mover nor the seconder has very much against the present Government as a whole. From what I can gather from their debate since there were no recitals, the underlying reason for the Motion is to whitewash a couple of fallen heroes. This seems a fruitless task, and it reminds me of that nursery rhyme:

*Humpty Dumpty sat on a wall,
Humpty Dumpty had a great fall;
All the King's horses
And all the King's men
Couldn't put Humpty Dumpty together again.*

I believe they are wasting their time. It is a task that will not be rewarded.

To show that the movers do not really have their heart in this Motion, both of them seem to have made an effort to down-play the evil side of their Motion in their debates. I think they have some support from the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, as they continually talk about this Motion being an avenue for debate.

This Motion is not an avenue for debate, as was shown when a similar motion in the United Kingdom passed on 28 March 1979, and the Government was forced to resign. If this Motion could get enough votes to pass this House, the Government here may or may not resign.

I made an error a while ago in giving the date for that Censure Motion, which the second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman tabled. That date should have actually been July 1990, and I ask the permission of the House to note that.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order Honourable Member?

Mr. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, I have no knowledge of having tabled a Censure Motion in 1990. If my name were on such a motion I am certain that it would not contain my signature, and no such motion was before the House in 1990 that I am aware of, censuring the Government; nor did such come to the Floor of this House.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would like to table the document that I have here because it plainly says that it was seconded by—I did not say that he moved it—the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and Tabled in the Clerk's Office in July 1990.

The Speaker: Before you lay it on the Table, would you please read it? I must know the contents of it.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker. It was intended to be Private Member's Motion No. 16/90—Vote of no Confidence in the Members of Executive Council.

WHEREAS there is a state of unrest and uncertainty caused by the Government's mismanagement that prevails throughout this country;

AND WHEREAS the Elected Members of Executive Council [are] altering a fundamental principle of parliamentary democracy by adding non-elected Official Members to Finance Committee to vote public money;

AND WHEREAS the Government has introduced approximately $10 million of duties and taxes which are excessive and unreasonable;

AND WHEREAS the Elected Members of Executive Council are without the support of the majority of Elected Members of this Assembly;

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the duly elected Members of this honourable House record their lack of confidence in the Elected Members of Executive Council and dissatisfaction with the present state of affairs in the country.

That Motion was moved (although not debated in the House) by the First Elected Member for West Bay, and Seconded by Mr. Gilbert McLean, MLA, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. It was Tabled in the Clerk's Office this [blank] day of July 1990.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: I am sorry; the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town has not finished what he was saying.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: I am only going to add that at the bottom of this is the name of the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly. I do not believe that this Motion was debated but it was submitted to the House. I only drew a comparison between a motion that he had submitted and the one that is actually before the House.

The Speaker: I am afraid that it is not a point of order. If there was a motion that was tabled, although it may not have been discussed, he is Just using that in his debate as saying that something similar had been presented in 1990. So that is not a valid point of order.

Please continue, Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

I only want to make the point that neither the public or Members of this Honourable House should be lulled to sleep that what is before this House is Just for debate. This has a sinister intention and, as with all censure motions, if it is allowed to run its full course it could have disastrous results for the country.

Many of the allegations made by the mover seem to be lacking in strength. When examined closely they will prove to simply be the opinions of the movers and can therefore be interpreted by others to have far different connotations. They complain about how the Government has handled public business. This complaint was made in the first part of the mover's debate. If we examine this we will know that this Government took over in 1992 when the public business of Government was in a shambles.

By far, the biggest problem had been that the Government, in order to ensure the majority, brought Motion 3/90 which changed the structure of Finance Committee. It would allow the Government to bring Executive Council . . . and they alone could form a quorum in Finance Committee for [approving the] spending [of] its money because they would have the seven Members required to make a quorum, plus the Governor as Chairman.

In fact, both the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town had gone to London and complained about how the Government was managing the business. They were two of the most vocal members of that group not only in London but also in this House and on the outside as well. If anything at all caused the demise of the previous Government it was this solitary act.

How has the Government handled the business of the country? When they took over they changed Finance Committee back to the way it had been so that Elected Members alone would have full control of the spending of Government funds. This was a mandate from the people of this country. Every National Team Member campaigned on restoring Finance Committee to its original position. When they were elected they could not go and say, 'Well, these fellows were good boys, and we will leave it. We think they did right.' No. This Government had to change it. What was wrong with handling that matter in that manner?

In 1988, the Government of that day inherited a Government in a good financial position with a very large and adequate reserve. But over the four years this reserve was reduced, and at the time of the elections the little reserve that was left had to be used to pay for advance expenditure which the Government had charged through the New Year 1993. It was also used to make up the deficit which existed.

This Government—perhaps the Fourth Elected Member for George Town does not know this—has started to gradually rebuild the reserves and will continue to do so in the prudent fashion that they have embarked upon.

It is true, as the Fourth Elected Member for George Town complained, that there may be somebody out there whose roof has not been fixed. But this Government has done so much in this area that they cannot be faulted. The payments to indigent people have more than doubled, and many projects have been undertaken which benefit the needy.

But there is a limit to what can be spent in any particular area. We must not lose sight that the Government inherited a cashless Government with no ability to raise loans because of the sorry state of their finances. There were no reserves, except the little that was used for the cash advances that the old Government had created. What is even worse is that for the first time in our history, they inherited a Government with falling revenue and no ability to raise loans, as was shown when a resolution had been passed by this House to get a loan from the local banks for Cayman Airways. From the day that resolution was passed, the old Government was trying to coax the banks to lend them the money, and they met with strong refusals. It was not until this new Government took over and re-established the Government as a Government and put it back on a sound financial basis that this Government was able to draw down the loan which was so badly needed. So, how can they complain about how the Government has handled the business?

One Member complained about supplementary expenditure. It is my understanding from all the Financial Secretaries, that supplementary expenditure is normally only brought when there is excess revenue on that particular day to cover the supplementary expenditure; unless a loan is sought which will provide the revenue for the supplementary expenditure. I have been in this House for more than 20 years with several different governments. Every government in every year has brought supplementary expenditure. Supplementary expenditure is only a necessary housekeeping act. The Government cannot spend money which has not been approved by a Finance Committee.

Government is a living, moving thing. Government business changes day by day. No matter what plans have been made, no matter how smart the budget planners have been, new contingencies arise. The Government must revise its position.

I remember some years ago when Hurricane Allan hit Cayman Brac with devastating results. The Government had to step in quickly. I know the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman knows of this because he was the District Administrator at the time. The Government provided a large sum money; I believe something in the vicinity of $250,000 to give instant relief to the people of Cayman Brac. I understand that he managed that fund quite well. What would happen if the Government did not have the ability to provide supplementary expenditure from which those funds came?

No one dreamed that we would have had the problem with the Cuban refugees: but what could we do? We were bound by the International Convention on Refugees of which the Mother Country is a part. We were bound to take care of them. There was no other way to do it except by supplementary expenditure.

When this Government comes for supplementary expenditure, it is usually to cover a need which had not been seen in the previous year when the Budget was made up. One Member hopes that the Government will employ budget planners other than the people elected by the public to plan their budget. I can only say that they would be like the hired mourners in the time of Christ—performing simply for pay, not having any idea who had died, or what the situation was.

We have with us Elected Members of the Government approving the Budget. It is normally planned initially by the Civil Service and the Elected Members have a lot to do with the Capital Expenditure. These planners know the local situation and are best prepared to make a budget which is reasonable; but they cannot foresee the many situations that can arise. An additional post may have to be created, or some very necessary capital works have to be done, or there is some crisis like a hurricane or flood.

The point that I want to make is that this Government has responded to the situations which have arisen and has come forward with the supplementary expenditures to cover them.

The Member complains in the opening stages of his debate about the stopping of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital, which has cost this country millions of dollars. But that cost cannot be attributed to this Government. This Government would have been foolish to have allowed that mad scheme to continue where it would have cost much more, not only in the Capital cost, but in the recurring costs which would be with us forever and a day.

We know the hospital was to have been built on two sites requiring two sets of records, two Capital costs, duplication of staff and equipment. For example, the X-ray on one site could not be shifted to the other site when needed, so the cost had to be doubled—perhaps more than doubled. There was a high cost in reclaiming the swamp lands and constructing the new building. While very little had been said about it at the time, the existing hospital had to be renovated to carry out the many functions that the new dream hospital would not be performing.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Member take a suspension at this time?

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.40 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.07 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, continuing, on the actions taken by the present Government now portrayed by the movers of this Motion as being so bad, we need to look at a statement which the mover made. I quote from a part of his speech, "The National Flight Carrier, Cayman Airways, has also had its share of this Government's policies. These policies have been such that it has caused great expense to the country. Millions of dollars have been paid to the company to pay off various breaches of contract; there is now less aircraft flown by the airline and many persons have been displaced from their jobs—some, retired, others terminated." [Unedited Hansard 7 June 1995]

If there had not been a termination of the leases or the contracts which the mover complained about, we would not be here today debating this Motion; we would be out on our knees begging the United Kingdom for money just to balance our recurrent expenditure. The Member knows full well, because he was one of the leaders of the fight against the havoc that had been created in the Airline. Does he recall, or does the whole Island recall the lease of the Boeing 400 jets which were costing the Airline—and, as they had no money, this Government—something in the vicinity of $350,000 per month? Had those contracts been allowed to run their full time it would have cost far in excess of $100 million. But on the advice of the country, and on the mandate given to this Government at the last election, the Government negotiated [out of] this bad contract.

Certainly, it cost the Airline and the Government some money to get rid of these leases. But there was no alternative because the Airline had lost something like $30 million in the two years since the change had been made from the 727s.

So, if you have a bad situation, if you have your hand in the lion's mouth, you have to take your time and get it out. You have to try to get out from under whatever burden you are carrying with the least cost possible.

The Government had not been able to go Scott free, but this was not something they had brought upon themselves. This was something they inherited from previous Members of Government whom this motion now seems to whitewash. The Government took a bad situation and did the best they could to do away with the massive losses which had been incurred and which, by contract, would continue to recur had not this Government had the stamina to say no.

The mover complained of many small items. He complained that the Health Insurance Law has not been allowed to function. He himself could have told the public the reasons why. It was not adequate, it did not provide the benefits one would expect and it was totally wrong in its conception. He complains about the disbanding of the Health Services Authority. But, like the Cayman Airways fiasco and the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital, this body had to be subdued. This body had to be disbanded. Why? Because in setting it up all power had been transferred from anyone responsible for Government finances to the Member for Health. He quickly made himself the chairman of numerous committees so that instead of separating the Health Authority from politics he brought it deeper into the mire.

Actually, some of the complaints made by the mover are hardly worth stating. He complains about recent civil service matters and, like some of the people in the public, tries to blame the Elected Members for what has happened. The mover knows better, because for many years he had been a very senior civil servant. He knows that under the Constitution all matters pertaining to the discipline, the hiring, the firing of civil servants is the sole responsibility of the Governor. This present Governor, being the man that he is, has not shirked that responsibility. He has, in fact, made a public statement that he, Mr. Gore, is solely responsible for this civil service.

The Member complains about the amalgamation of two departments in Government. As I mentioned earlier, the Government is a living vibrant service subject to change and amalgamations, or separations, of departments. This has not been unknown in the past. I can remember when the Treasury and the Post Office were housed in one little building, and there have been times when departments that carried out different functions had to be separated. There are times when it is more economical to amalgamate certain departments.

The mover complains about block amounts put in the Estimates. How can that be the subject of a new complaint, when from time immemorial there have been blocked votes in the Estimates? There is a blocked vote for the maintenance of public buildings because the Government knows that throughout the year a door may break off some building or a roof may be damaged, some building may be in need of repair. There is usually a blocked vote for road maintenance. If you go through the Estimates, you will find many dozens of such votes because the people preparing the Budget cannot know at that time precisely what will require some expenditure.

He complains about the change of the road at the airport. I do not think this change, although finally approved by the Elected Members of Executive Council, was really initiated by them. This was a technical matter which is certainly for the benefit of this Island as a whole. The main reason for the change of that road is to allow the use of 600 feet of runway. That is just like adding 600 feet of additional runway to the existing airport, something necessary in this day of larger aircraft for the safety and well-being of all the people who use the jets. We could not very well move the airport. If it had not been extended in this manner, there would have been a very costly expense by moving into the North Sound.

I could go on with some of the frivolous reasons that they have given for this motion, but I do not think it is necessary to belabour them.

He does make one broad, sweeping, catch-all complaint, in which he says: "The matter of this country being afraid, that there is fear and apprehension, I contend is throughout at this time. If people speak they speak looking over their shoulder to see if it is going to be heard by 'them'—and we know who 'them' are..." This statement really amazes me. It is so imprecise and so open to conjecture that I doubt if the mover himself really understands this wild statement. As I move about this country, and as I move about George Town in particular, I see nobody who is afraid. There are some who have voiced their fear about what may come in the future—a fear of the shadow Government—but this is in the future and certainly is not the fault of the existing Government.

I agree with what Franklin Delano Roosevelt said when there were the same types of critics against him for all the good that he was trying to do in the social system and for the welfare of the United States. There were people running around talking about fear and trying to frighten the public. He made that classic quote: "We have nothing to fear, but fear itself." There are no duppies out there, so why should the public be afraid?

It is said that between the idea of a thing happening and the reality, that between the act and the motion falls the shadow. The only shadow that I can think of is the new team which, God forbid, may take over at the next election.

But, within the walls of this House and within the present Government we have people who were elected with an overwhelming majority to run this country, and these people have all performed well. Despite the stones thrown at them they continue to do a good job.

So, Madam Speaker, I cannot lend my support to a motion like this because the allegations in it are unfounded. The major items they complained about were the actions of this Government, which this Government had been mandated to carry out. I think that everyone in business circles and in the most humble dwelling must agree that these actions, although some of them distasteful, had to be carried out.

We hear about successful people, but successful people are only successful for one reason, and that is that they do the things that failures hate to do. Failures like to be nice to people; but if you are going to be successful you have to hit the anvil, and hit it very hard, and do whatever has to be done.

So, this Motion has exonerated the present Government in that the few arguments against the Government have failed in their forcefulness, and I believe that the Government will continue to function and continue to do what it has been doing in the right way. Thank you.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

After listening to a number of debates, I have to wonder if I am living in the same country as the proponents of this Censure Motion.

Experience is a hard teacher because she gives the test first and the lesson afterwards. Let us not prepare for a lesson that could possibly ruin us as a developing country through moves like this Censure Motion. We must find other methods and tactics to address problems that may arise, rather than through the moving of a Censure Motion.

With your kind permission I would like to refer (as have other speakers) to Erskine May in regard to the official Opposition and its definition on page 200. It says: "It is the largest minority party which is prepared [and this is the very significant wording] in the event of the resignation of the Government that this Opposition party could assume office. The Leader of the Opposition and some of his principal colleagues in both houses form a group popularly known as the 'shadow cabinet.'"

In reference to this House, there are not enough members on the Opposition to form a shadow cabinet. Continuing on page 272 of Erskine May, it refers to Censure Motions, and I quote: "From time to time the Opposition put down a motion on the paper expressing lack of confidence in the Government—a 'vote of censure' as it is called. By established convention the Government always accedes to the demand from the Leader of the Opposition to allot a day for the discussion of such a motion."

The Speaker: Excuse me, Honourable Minister, this has already been recorded. The Member for George Town read this same section. May I ask that there be no repetition?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: There is one section . . . could I please refer to it? It just says that "this convention is founded on the recognised position of the Opposition as a potential Government which guarantees the legitimacy of such an interruption . . ."

The Speaker: It is the same. It is a repetition of the same thing, Honourable Minister. Please continue.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, this Motion is broken down into two categories—the economic and the social policies this Government. When we look at the things which this Government has done to improve the social structure of these Islands, I have to wonder (as I said in my opening) if it is the same country we are talking about.

We have created, specifically the Minister of Sports, world class facilities in the opening of the Truman Bodden Sports Complex; a facility that is second to none in the world, where we saw our athletes compete in the recent CARIFTA games. It made most Caymanians feel very proud of this facility.

This Government was also very instrumental in [raising] the allowance the elderly receive through Social Services from $50 to $125 per month. [This is] another move where this Government has made every effort to help those in need and to improve the style of living for the less fortunate in the Cayman Islands. I know in the district of Bodden Town we recently acquired a home which will be developed for our elderly as a place where they can rest in comfort and dignity.

Just a few months ago I attended an open house at the Cayman Islands Marine Institute. It was heartening to see the facilities that are now provided there for our troubled youth—another effort made by this Government in regard to improving the facilities for the youth of the country. I had the opportunity at that opening to talk with some of the Justices who sit on the Juvenile Court. They freely admitted that since the inception of CIMI (Cayman Islands Marine Institute) there has been a dramatic drop in juveniles appearing before the courts.

The headline of the Thursday, 8th June 1995 edition of the Caymanian Compass says: "New centre credited for drop in school suspensions." Just briefly, it says: "The number of students suspended from Government's Secondary schools has dropped significantly since the opening of a special suspension centre in early January." It goes on to quote Mr. Albin saying: "The trend is quite positive. We have only had one repeat suspension from John Gray and two or three from George Hicks. It does seem the centre is acting as a deterrent. Figures confirm that it is having some effect on student's approach to behaviour."

As a matter of fact, Madam Speaker, this was highlighted in the Editorial of the Caymanian Compass, Friday, 9th June 1995, crediting the creation of this for our young people when they have problems at school. Yet it is [alleged] that the social efforts we are making to help our youth and the less fortunate people are not up par. I cannot agree with that.

In regard to the economic side of this Motion, when we look at the dramatic increase in tourism—if it had not been for tourism in the first two years of this administration when employment and construction were down—without a doubt in my mind, things would have been very difficult for us. But, as the records will reveal, there was a constant increase because of the strategies employed by the Minister for Tourism who encouraged tourists to come here. As a matter of fact, we were number 1 out of 24 Caribbean destinations in the highest percentage of arrivals to these Islands.

Economics. We see the construction that is now going on since we lifted the moratorium on hotels, and investor confidence has flourished. When we look at the Westin Hotel, Barclay's Bank, CNB (to start shortly), and hundreds of private homes and buildings being constructed, how can we be talking about the same thing as referred to in this Censure Motion? It does not make sense to me. The financial centre, the banks, the insurance companies, the mutual funds, all continue to grow. The Cayman Islands now leads the world's financial industry in pioneering proper laws and regulations to keep these Islands at the forefront of the industry.

This is what we have to say about the Financial Secretary: he never rests on his laurels. He keeps pushing, always thinking of ways to promote these Cayman Islands.

For the first time, conferences of major proportions were arranged in London, New York and Hong Kong. Our people will reap the benefits of these conferences as the multi-national countries come here and register funds so that we do not have to tax our Caymanians. This is what we are doing in regard to improving the economic stability of these islands.

There was much criticism on the reduction of the 10 per cent land transfer tax. But we know the benefit of that. Once again, it shows the forward thinking of this Government to develop this country. I would be the first to admit that we are not a perfect Government. But I will say that using the methods of a Censure Motion cannot be good for this country.

In the mover's opening, his very own admission was that these Islands "...were highly disgruntled over the many actions of the [past] Government." What happened after the last election is history. That is why we are in power—they were disgruntled and they made changes that we are now putting into effect for our Caymanian people.

The mover referred to the stopping of a number of ongoing projects—the Health Services Authority. The justification for our not allowing it to continue is recorded on page 49 of the Auditor General's Report. I would like to read one sentence from that to justify this. "However, during the Authority's two year existence it did not develop or institute any formal financial regulations to ensure the regular and proper conduct of its business by management and employees. So far as can be established, none of the consultancies examined was advertised or tendered either within the Cayman Islands or overseas." This is just one of the areas which caused concern for this Government. We would not be doing the people who elected us justice if we allowed these problems to continue. That is what this Government is all about. The Dr. Hortor Hospital was stopped.

It is true that $5 million or $6 million was lost in this move, as quoted by the mover. But, if we had projected forward some years to the overall cost to this country, it would have been prohibitive. We know that it would have cost some $16 million.

What is still not being put forward is what was planned for the present George Town Hospital site. I would like to read from a report—the Master Facilities Plan of the George Town Hospital—where it said, "Once the construction of the new hospital and transfer of inpatient facilities is completed, there would have been a further expenditure of $10,631,000 on the present site. This did not include the mechanical, electrical hook ups and other necessary equipment."

This is what I keep trying to tell them: sixteen million dollars, yes; but let us tell the rest of the story of what it would cost overall to make it a complete hospital—not just inpatient facilities, but out-patient, totalling over $27 million. Many people have said it would be more like $30 million by the time it was completed.

Madam Speaker, as was touched on by other Members, the civil servant situation is not the responsibility of the Elected Members. We have nothing to do with them.

It is hard to believe that Cayman Airways is still being criticised when, under the able leadership of the Minister for Education, we have for the first time in the history of these Islands been able to get it into a stable position. The two years prior to our taking over, $34 million was spent. Now, with the subsidy, we are able to realise a small profit. Does this indicate a Government the people do not have confidence in? Does this not demonstrate able leadership, putting forward programmes and ideas to come up with solutions to get us out of the financial mess that we were in?

Much criticism has been levelled against immigration. There are problems. But we are continuing to work on them. I had a member of the public sector say that for the first time in many years Immigration is now enforcing that when permits are granted, Caymanians will be trained to take over down the line. This is no lip service. This is trying to improve for the good of our country.

In regard to the Seamen's benefits, this was looked at. It was being abused, there were many people who could afford medical care, many very wealthy people were taking advantage of this Government. It is now being looked at and the Cayman Brac Association has now agreed with the Association in the Cayman Islands to similar benefits and they are now in the process of getting identification cards made up to eliminate any embarrassment at the hospital. If they qualify they will get their health benefits.

We recall the situation of unemployment prior to 1993. There were hundreds of people out of work. I am pleased to say that that percentage is now very small. I would venture to say that those who are not working are those who do not want to work because building is in progress and there are opportunities for employment. Just about everywhere you look someone is buying another car, building or adding on to a house. I feel good about this country. We are doing this without one cent of direct taxation on our people.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town mentioned the Hawley Estate. I am pleased to say that this is now before the Public Sector Investor Committee. Within a few weeks we will hopefully have the approval for this. We have followed the proper guidelines to the letter in the way these programmes have been put forward. I know that this will be a great benefit to these Islands as there are many troubled youth out there. Many of our young people have been hooked on the scourge of drugs. But I feel that with all of us working together we can help them, we can make them better citizens. We know that sending the user to jail does not help. They need counselling; they have to be put in an environment that is not conducive to continuing their drug abuse. These will not be criminals, per se, not violent people going in there. They are sick with a disease and are trying to get help that only professionals can give them. With the support of the community they can get back into the community and make themselves better citizens.

Madam Speaker, Strategic Planning was also touched on. It was said that this method of approach was not approved because there was no cost benefit analysis. I would just like to show a portion of the Health Facilities Strategic Plan and the amount of detailed work—it is almost two inches thick—in regard to the cost benefits analysis. I would just like to briefly read the idea behind strategic planning in regard to cost benefit analysis. It says: “Each action plan has a cost benefit analysis. These are very important because they ensure that the planning team and those in charge of implementation consider carefully whether there is an appropriate return on investment. Tangible and intangible costs are weighed against tangible and intangible benefits. Examples of tangible costs are outlays of money, time, facilities and other quantifiable expenditure. Examples of intangible costs are stress, resistance to change, community anxiety, doubts and fears, public outcry [like what occurred over the Dr. Hortor Hospital].” So, it is there, through strategic planning. I have adopted it in my Ministry and I will venture to say that most of the people who have come into contact with this approach have received it well. Much of it has already been implemented without any cost to this country.

It has been said that this Government changed the Leaders of Government Business midstream. To the best of my knowledge, this is something that was advocated just after the elections. The Honourable Minister of Tourism would do the first two years, and after that the Honourable Minister of Education would do the rest. This did not happen by accident. We said this from the inception.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Minister take the luncheon suspension at this time?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.54 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.35 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, continuing the debate.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I just wanted to touch on a couple of areas which the Fourth Elected Member for George Town noted in his contribution in regard to deficit spending.

If we go back and compare the last three years, as revealed in Government's Financial Summary from 1984 to 1994, we will see that in 1992 (when this Government took over) there was a deficit of over $7 million, in 1993 it had become a surplus of $2.2 million; and in 1994 it is projected at $3.1 million.

We all know that during 1994 this country faced a situation with the Cuban migrants that had to be dealt with. Thank God the vast majority of them have now returned [to Cuba] and we hope that this can come to a good final resolution without having too much adverse affect on the financial coffers of this country.

He also touched on supplementaries. Yes have had to bring supplementaries. But, as has been noted by other speakers, this is part of the financial operations of the Government. The difference with the Government is that up until now we have been able generate the funds to cover the exceptional needs that are requested through supplementary expenditure. We did not have to tax our people to the tune of over $20 million.

The public knows of the difficulties we inherited back in November 1992. There were no funds available to spend on our people and, as I said, except for the benefits of tourism, God only knows what would have happened to us. That kept us afloat until the public sector was able to generate the confidence to start construction to build hotels, banks and so on. I would like to reiterate the percentage of growth in the financial industry from April 1993 to March 1994, in comparison with the same period to April 1995. It is significant.

These figures reveal the confidence that the financial industry now has in the Cayman Islands. Company registration grew by 13.6%; Banks and Trust by 12.5%; Captive insurance Companies 31%. We all know the history of the mutual funds since we introduced legislation to bring this avenue of revenue to the country. At the end of March 1995, there were almost 1,000 mutual funds registered here. These are benefits that our people can receive without having to be taxed directly. These are indirect funds coming into the coffers of the country which our people can benefit from.

Madam Speaker, does this demonstrate a Government the public has no confidence in? I say no! I think one of the most significant changes in this country is what has been reported in the Royal Cayman Islands Police Report of 1994. It says that with the exception drug offences there has been a reduction in almost every category of crime. This is a significant milestone.

The Caymanian Compass of Wednesday, 7th June 1995, headed “Hong Kong Rich Look to Cayman”, the first few lines of that article say, “The Daily Telegraph in London and the South China Morning Post in Hong Kong recently reported that Hong Kong businessman Li Ka-shing has ‘moved his shares in the giant Cheung Kong company that he controls to the Cayman Islands’ . . . His personal fortune, thought to be well in excess of 1 billion pounds sterling . . .” Does this sound like a person who has no confidence in a place like the Cayman Islands? I say, no!

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Hear, hear!

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I think it is time that we stopped criticising and putting forth negatives, and try to work together for the good of this country. I venture to say that there is no place on earth as blessed as these three little Islands. We see problems everyday in the news that keep emanating from other areas. We see how lucky we are. Let us work together to keep it that way. There is nowhere else for us to go. I know that with all of working together we can make significant improvements in these Islands to make it a better place in which to live.

Finally, I would like to close with a couple of items from the Royal Gazette Limited, in the Bermuda Press referring to the Cayman Islands: “The Caymans enjoy a growing reputation because it has more regulation than any other offshore centre in the world. The Cayman Islands are a unique oasis. Here society offers a reminder of the kinds of standards that many western societies have lost over the past three decades. The God-fearing and very religious islanders wish it to remain that way. It is unbelievable that in 20-odd years you can change a country where there were not many jobs and most of the people were working in either the US or sailing on a ship somewhere. It is a level playing field with little crime and no corruption—something which is so prevalent in other countries. Cayman is a living example of what can be achieved with good Government and management. Consistently good decisions have delivered a high level of prosperity for not just a few, but for all of its citizens.”

Madam Speaker, as the old Proverb says: “A prophet is not known within his own country.” When you have the outside looking at the Cayman Islands in this position, yet among ourselves we tear each other down, it cannot be good for this country.

I close in saying that I cannot support this Censure Motion. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, in offering my contribution to the debate on Motion No. 8/95, the Censure Motion, a vote of no confidence on the Government, I would also like to read from Erskine May, page 272. I will not repeat what was read by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, but I will stress the section that says: “The convention is founded on the recognised position of the Opposition as a potential Government which guarantees the legitimacy of such an interruption of the normal course of business.”

In my opinion the Opposition in this parliament of three members does not have the potential to form a Government should this Censure Motion be carried.

The other paragraph says (page 272), for those who claim that this Censure Motion is not a motion to remove the Government from office, but a motion to bring about debate . . . and I am of the impression that those Members who make such remarks are not certain what a Censure Motion is . . . it says: “After a period of decline, the numbers of Censure Motions debated tended to increase during the late 1970s when Government majorities were small, although they were still infrequent. The Government was defeated on a motion of no confidence on 28th March 1979 and subsequently resigned.”

So, for those Members who are telling us that this Motion is just to bring about debate, I say they are talking total rubbish. If this Censure Motion is carried, the Government would have no choice but to resign.

In reading the Motion, I, like the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, feel the lack of recitals in this Motion was to avoid Standing Order 24(4) which says: “A motion shall not contain personal opinions or controversial allegations unnecessary to the main issue upon which the House is being moved to declare its will.” All we have heard in the debate by the mover and the seconder are personal opinions and allegations why this country has no confidence in this Government.

In reading the Motion I wonder if this Motion is a vote of no confidence in the Elected Members of Executive Council, because it does not specifically state Elected Members of the Executive Council. The Motion reads: “BE IT

RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House has no confidence in the Government whose economic and social policies and public pronouncements are causing unwanted expenditure, social disharmony, fear and apprehension in the Cayman Islands.”

I find it hard to believe that Members of this Parliament would bring a Motion stating that they have no confidence in the Chief Secretary, the Attorney General and the Financial Secretary, because if we are going to remove these gentlemen we are moving one step towards independence. Is this where we want the Chief Secretary to be called the “Chief Minister”, the Attorney General to be called the “Minister of Legal Affairs”, and the Financial Secretary to be called the “Minister of Finance”?

We have heard things like, “The Government stopped the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital.” Madam Speaker, as a Member of the National Team, and as one who went through this Island and campaigned in 1992, the stopping of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital was very high on the agenda of the National Team’s campaign. We had a mandate from the people of this country to stop this hospital and we carried it out. So I cannot see how these Members can now say that this is one of the reasons for bringing a vote of no confidence in the Government.

The National Health Insurance was another campaign issue, and as the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town said this morning, this was also stopped because we felt that it was not covering what we needed in a health insurance policy in this country.

The disbanding of the Health Services Authority. The mover of the Motion said: “The country has reverted back to the old form of a department under a Ministry and this has caused undue expenses, it has caused displacement of some people in the Health Services and it has caused an unsettled situation with the Civil Service.” I cannot see how, by disbanding the Health Services Authority and putting it back under central Government, it can cause unwarranted expenditure or undue expenses when the Authority now has the ability to call on various departments and expertise within the Government system; whereas before we heard the report regarding consultants for this and persons being employed to do this at this expense. I feel it will now work better under central Government.

We heard of the 7.5% cut in the Civil Service. Madam Speaker, His Excellency the Governor in his Throne Speech made it very clear that the Civil Service is his sole responsibility. I know nothing of the National Team Government requesting the cut of 7.5% in the Civil Service of this country.

We heard that because of the change in the Head of Department of Environment, and the Section Heads being paid as Heads of Departments, we have heard of Immigration policies where foreign residents have become afraid. Madam Speaker, all departments are departments which are directly under His Excellency the Governor. Maybe the Motion is portraying a vote of no confidence in our Governor. To me this is a very frightening situation when Members will accuse the Governor of doing incorrect things. We heard of civil servants being relieved of their duties. This, again, is something which the Elected Members of Government have no control over.

We heard of benefits which were being given to Caymanian seamen being stopped. The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation has ably explained the reason for this—for the abuse. The number of people who were entitled to free medical in this country (who could well afford it) would have brought us to our knees financially if they had decided to utilise these benefits rather than pay for them.

We heard of the Cuban situation. We had no choice. And in speaking on the Cuban situation, back a few months ago when some of them left this country and went to Belize and the Government of Belize returned them, I called the Members because I felt that we should go to the airport to stop these people from landing. One of the Members I called was the mover of this Censure Motion. His words to me were, "I feel that the one thing that could destroy this country now is the way that it is going with these Cuban refugees." How can he now come, one month later, and say that the country has no confidence [in the Government] when he himself had confidence in the Government back then, that we were doing the right thing to keep this country on track?

What I object to the most is to bring as a part of this no confidence Motion the travelling of the Ministers of Government. When the Budget of this country was discussed in November, every Ministry had a travelling and subsistence allowance. Tourism had an allowance of $69,750; the Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture had $45,690; Ministry of Health, $78,425; Ministry of Agriculture Communication and Works $27,030; Ministry of Education $17,210. I do not recall any Member of this Parliament objecting at that time to travelling allowances for any Minister of Government. For them to now stand up and read off the travelling expenses of the Ministers of this Government and not to have done something about it during the Budget is a waste of time.

The Minister for Tourism . . . if one is not prepared to go out there and sell the country to get the tourists to get here and spend money, then we may as well come out of tourism. When Ministers go abroad to sell this country it is much better than having advertising agents because people can deal one-to-one with the Ministers and know exactly how the country works and what is happening.

So, in my humble opinion, this vote of no confidence in the Government is a total waste of time, and our time in this Parliament could have been better spent debating what could be done to find a place a safety for the battered men and women of this country who are on the increase daily; or debating the problems of the Sister Islands to see what we as a Parliament can come up with to help the economic situation there, rather than standing here on the Floor of this House debating that the country has no confidence in the Government for the Ministers have ably put forward all their programmes since coming to office. They have stated improvements in all areas in the Cayman Islands since taking office, and I think that the mover and the seconder of this Motion would have been better off if they had put the Motion, since they wanted to evoke debate, as I read form page 425 of Erskine May: "Motions 'To take note': Debate may also take place on the Motion 'To take note.' This formula enables the House to debate a situation or a document without coming to any positive decision."

With a vote of no confidence the stability of this country is at stake. Investors get frightened when they hear of such things and they will have the whole responsibility on their shoulders should this vote of no confidence (which we know it will not) be carried today.

I ask them, after they have evoked the debate, which they claim the Censure Motion is supposed to do, withdraw it for the betterment of the Cayman Islands. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: If no other Member wishes to speak, would the mover wish to exercise his right of reply?

Mr. Gilbert A. Mclean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am very happy to reply to what has been said on this Motion of no confidence. I think that I should read this brief Motion so that anyone who has been listening to what has been said by the Government Ministers and Backbenchers for the past few days might not come any kind of conclusion other than that which would be consistent with the Motion. The Motion is No. 8/95 and reads: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House has no confidence in the Government whose economic and social policies and public pronouncements are causing unwarranted expenditure, social disharmony fear and apprehension in the Cayman islands."

As a first reply, I will speak on the matter of this Motion not having "Whereases". None of the Government Members speaking were aware that in its truest form a Motion is not supposed to have recitals or "Whereases." That says to me that the persons running the Government and dealing in the business of Parliament are unaware of the finer points of Parliamentary debate and they take little time (if any) to inquire and read on these matters.

This Censure Motion was only original in that I changed certain words from a Motion of no confidence that was moved in the House of Commons on 29th July 1980, by Mr. Callahan. I took this as an example. The Motion he moved was, and I quote from the text Parliament Functions, Practice and Procedures, by Michael Ryle: "THAT this Honourable House has no confidence Her Majesty's Government whose economic and social policies are spreading mass unemployment, undermining British industry and demoralising the country."

I used that Motion as a guide to the proper way of doing a motion and I said: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House has no confidence in the Government [meaning this Government] whose economic and social policies and public pronouncements are causing unwarranted expenditure, social disharmony, fear and apprehension in the Cayman Islands."

There can be no doubt that the Motion is correct and it is the proper way that a motion should be proposed in the House. Although I have proposed many motions since being a legislator—a dozen, two dozen (I really do not know the number right off)—and I have used "Whereases" . . . by using them one tends to create a situation that the Member for North Side alluded to under Standing Order 24(4): "A motion shall not contain personal opinions or controversial allegations unnecessary to the main issue upon which the House being moved to declare its will."

The man who claims to have all the education in Cayman, the Honourable Minister of Education, with nine senior degrees . . . I have been looking at the unedited transcript of his rambling on this particular Motion and he too spoke about the 'Whereases'. I have four times noted but I am sure there are more as he rambled on. Very seriously, Madam Speaker, I think it might be well to have our psychiatrist on hand when this Minister takes the Floor rambling on and on about unrelated matters to the Motion that is before the House.

He had remarks like this to make, and I think the other Members who spoke about this are following their mighty leader—he likes to talk about these leaders. He says things like this: “So this Government is responsible. Quite frankly, Madam Speaker, for two Oppositions to bring a motion such as this, that makes these wide allegations and is supported with no recitals, it is the shortest motion I have ever seen—either they were in such a hurry to do it, or they did not have the competence to put it in. But they know it cannot succeed.” Then he also said: “I know why they could not put any recitals or any whereas clauses in this, Madam Speaker. It is because when they brought the last motion to this House, they brought as a reason the private roads.” Again, he spoke about “So the reason why they could not put recitals is because the last time they put whereas clauses, we showed the public how deceitful it was for them to come here and say that something is wrong...”

Madam Speaker, my colleague and I debated among ourselves if we would put even one recital into this. We decided that we would not; we would follow the example in the text. I must say that I had a personal little perverted reason for not doing it. The people in this Government are incapable of true debate, they can only try to pick on some word or some phrase and go on rambling off into the unknown about it. So what this has proven, more than anything else, is that they are incapable of debating a matter. They were hoping that I would give them something to debate about.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [laughter]

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: They did not get that.

If they wanted to debate this matter, they should have tried to show that there was no social disharmony; that their economic policies were sound; that the pronouncements that they were making were sound in judgment and not causing any fear and apprehension. But they are incapable. They did not know how to do it. They did not know how to refute the resolve that said these things are actually happening.

I would like to quote from another text on this matter of ‘whereases’. It is taken from the text, Parliamentary Practice in British Columbia, Second Edition, by E. George MacMinn, LLB, QC, Commissioner, Legislative Procedure Review Act, Deputy Clerk British Columbia Legislature. I would like to quote a short section, and it might edify the people in this Government so they might not be so far afield next time: “Apart from the Chair’s power to reject motions when out of order, the Chair in Saskatchewan ruled that it has the power to edit motions which contravene the rules:

“Throughout the last few years, there has been discussion as to the proper form of a Resolution in regard to preambles. [The very thing these persons in Government are lost without] I refer all Hon. Members to Beauchesne’s Parliamentary Rules and Forms, Fourth Edition, 1958, page 165: ‘A substantive motion is a self-contained proposal submitted for the approval of the House and drafted in such a way as to be capable of expressing a decision of the House.’ And further on page 166, ‘A motion should not be argumentative and in the style of a speech, nor should it contain unnecessary provisions or objectionable words. Motions are usually expressed in the affirmative, even where their purpose and effect are negative.’”

Further, in Bourinot’s Rules of Orders, Revised by J. G. Dubroy, page 28, “A preamble is objectionable in any motion or proposed resolution. When a motion is agreed to, it becomes a resolution. It is a common practice to pre- fix preambles to a set of resolutions, but it is at variance with the correct parliamentary usage, and can be easily avoided by a careful framing of a motion.’ I want to emphasize to all Hon. Members that a preamble is argumentative and is not to be part of a motion. Certainly arguments can be offered during the debate on the motion, but should [not] be a part of it.”

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: See the next motion?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I trust, Madam Speaker, although most of the Ministers are not present, that their colleagues who are will pass on that bit of knowledge for their edification when it comes to motions in the future; and that the man with nine degrees will take note that he missed that particular one when he claims to be a lawyer of 50 years and he did not know something as simple as that.

On that point too, Madam Speaker, the nine degrees that the Minister for Education went on and on about in this transcript and what he could do and would not do—there is no question that he is ancient in mind. But if we were to take nine degrees, and unless he is about 100 years old right now, anyone knows that he cannot have nine degrees if we even take each of them being at three years to arrive at a degree and he, starting at age 16 or 17 . . . it would still stretch the imagination.

We all know, even if he does not, that they are the type of certificates that one can get on their wall by applying to become an associate of a particular institution.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, would you please now pass over that point and not dwell on it any longer? Thank you.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Member for North Side spoke about the fact that she was unaware of the National Team having anything to do with the reduction of the civil service. I would like to refresh her memory, and that of the Government who also may have forgotten, that in the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable G. A. McCarthy, BBA CPA, Financial Secretary, to the Legislative Assembly at the Budget Session for the year 1993, held on 5th March 1993 (these words are on page 13): “4. As part of the measures currently underway to contain costs, the Governor, in consultation with Executive Council, has established a Committee to effect certain retrenchments throughout the entire Civil Service, where such cutbacks will not impair the effectiveness of the Service. The overall goal will be to attempt to reduce the size of the Civil Service by 7.5% and thus the cost.”

Madam Speaker, the Minister for Health spoke regarding the question of funds and the financial state of the country. As I recall he and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town spoke about a Government that was bankrupt and broke, and how the National Team Government came into power and they saved the country to the state that it is presently in. However, in the same Budget Address of 1993, on page 11 under the caption “General Reserves”, the Financial Secretary said: “The balance in General Reserves at the commencement of 1992 amounted to $13M interest earned during the year and transfers out of General Reserves were $0.5M and $3.5M, respectively. The closing balance as at 31st December, 1992 was approximately $10.0M.” I think any Government, company or person with $10 million cannot be broke.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Can you show the overdraft?

Madam Speaker, could he continue reading from it? I think he should continue reading from it... the overdraft of $7 million...

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, perhaps you would ask if you can make an interjection next time.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I was asking the Chair, I thought you had noticed.

The Speaker: I am afraid you did not ask me.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, there have also been statements made by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, the Minister of Health, among others, including the Minister of Education, that now that they have gone against what was the stated policy in 1993 (that is, the situation of going against the practise of having supplementary expenditure which they now embrace), the Government then said through the Financial Secretary at page 14, section 7: "The Government has observed that one of the main causes, if indeed not the main cause, has been the too frequent use of Supplementary Appropriations over the past three years." Here the Financial Secretary is referring to the bad practise of using supplementary expenditures. It goes on to say: "To make this point more strongly, Madam Speaker, reliance on supplementary appropriations not only tends to encourage fiscal indiscipline in planning and preparing budgetary submissions, but together with too frequent a use of supplementary appropriations, these practices must be considered 'concealed time bombs' [in quotation marks] that threaten restoration of budgetary balance and ultimately fiscal stability."

Their economic policies have not adhered to what they were so willing to say would be their policies in 1993. The National Team Government has progressively relied on supplementary expenditure—millions of dollars. I am told that soon the Finance Committee is to be summoned to seek even more. They have been relying on supplementary expenditure, and will continue to rely on supplementary expenditure.

It is of little use to say that they are moving monies from one Head to another, therefore it is not additional. It is simple enough for a child to understand that if you have $1 million voted to do a particular project and you take that to do another, then the other one has fallen short. So however they cut it, they are not living up to what they said they would do in terms of supplementary expenditure.

While spending—and they balance it by coming to the Legislature for supplementary expenditure—they hid all sorts of various costs in the way the Budget was prepared for 1995. That is the reason why they have to come and get supplementary expenditure very soon, because the amounts put into the Budget were not the true costing of the things which they chose to undertake. But in March of this year, it looked good to say the Budget was balanced. That is how it was balanced.

Madam Speaker, that drives this country into unwarranted expenses because it is not factual and truthful budgeting. If the amounts are to be spent, if they are necessary, it is the duty of the Government to show this so that the country will be aware from day one what will be committed in expenses.

I need to reply quickly to the situation regarding the Cubans who were in this country for nigh on to a year. The Member for North Side quoted me as saying (and I do not agree that she was there taking notes that she quoted me verbatim in what I said). I think that what she said would have generally captured my view that I had been concerned from day one about the expense to this country. I said it in this House when, with the approval of the Chair, I was able to move a motion on the adjournment to discuss the matter, and I think that Members of the House expressed the same concern. So, I have been absolutely consistent in my concern about the costs to this country which I understand have still not ended, nor have they all been met.

However, I did not fancy myself as a legislator at the airport attempting to stop Cuban nationals from coming in at the airport if, indeed, they were coming here from Belize. I thought it more appropriate that, this being the bailiwick of the Government, the Chief Secretary would have instructed Immigration and the Police how to deal with such persons who were, or might be, coming to the Islands.

There is no question in my mind, or in my position that the Government handled the situation in a way that this country—unless the contrary is stated—is suppose to pay nigh on to $5 million to the mighty power, the United States, to take Cuban nationals back to Cuba. There is no way that I can justify that in my mind, or find that logical. It was the United States' foreign policy which caused the exodus of Cubans from Cuba. If they are going back home, why on earth would this country of 30,000 people have to pay $10 per day for persons for one year to the United States for keeping them in Cuba?

Of course, that has to be the responsibility of the National Team Government for causing that to happen. That deal was obviously cut and no one beside the Executive Council and, I would imagine the lady Member for North Side who went with the delegation to Washington, would have known about it. It became officially known when I asked the question: 'If there were any financial implication to the deal?', then it was told to this House. So, that also speaks to bad management that also speaks to unwarranted expenditure as the Motion says. Certainly, I did take the opportunity when we had a visit from two MPs here from the House Commons a few weeks back to bring that point to them. I asked them to see to whatever means to remove or change that undertaking because it is killing this country.

The seconder of this Motion, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, spoke about the travelling costs this Government has incurred, and I believe rightly so. One thing is certain: this Government is a travelling Government. The Country & Western song about 'Travelling Man' really suites this Government. It is cost and expenditure to this country and it cannot be good to have a Government in abstentia which, it seems, this Government is often turning out to be.

Moreover, Madam Speaker, it was the Minister of Education who, in his usual manner, did not just talk about travelling expenses, he talked about what was spent travelling in the CPA. Of course, he brought it up to attempt to make it look bad on the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, as if he were gallivanting all over the globe on his free will spending money at his own discretion.

The Honourable Minister responsible Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture spoke about how he did not wish the CPA to be brought into the political arena. It is a pity he did not so advise his colleague, the Honourable Minister of Education. He brought it up, and it shows that $61,387 went down the tubes on travelling from 1992 to the present time in 1995; and if one wants to see amounts spent on the CPA then, indeed, they need look to see the tens of thousands of dollars that were spent on travel for the Minister of Youth.

It is my understanding that some parts of these monies for the CPA are refunded, but it is also my understanding that it is not in its entirety. That is why the question of travelling was brought up, and why it clearly points to another area of expenditure employed by this Government. In many instances it is unwarranted.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Member take a suspension at this time?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.36 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.01 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, winding up the debate.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, when we took the suspension I was commenting on certain points raised by the Member for North Side. There is one point she raised which was raised by the Minister of Health, the Minister of Education and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, that being the question of the stoppage of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital and the claim that the National Team Government campaigned that they were going to stop that hospital.

I attended many of the meetings of the group that eventually wound up calling itself the National Team. I never heard on any of those occasions any such statement being made. In fact, a very politically astute person told me that it was at the last meeting, or the meeting before Election Day at North Side, on an occasion of great buoyancy and revelry that someone got on the platform there and stated that they were going to stop the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital. I believe most fervently that had the present Government stated those intentions in that kind of explicit manner during the 1992 Election, the result of that Election would have been seriously different.

The Minister of Youth said that I and the seconder bring no proof of the various allegations and statements. What is of the greatest concern where this hospital comes into discussion is that the Government, with reckless abandonment, decided that they would stop the biggest capital works [project] that had ever been undertaken in the country. That is shown in the Commissioner's Report on page 88, where it is noted: "The legal [department] estimated a total outlay on the project to date of CI$4,045,000." Still, the Government went ahead and stopped that hospital. That created a situation of unwarranted expenditure, and a waste of public funds that has never before been in the history of this country.

One could say—if they could satisfactorily find proof of all the many allegations that the Government had regarding that hospital—it was all right. But the Commission on it found exactly the opposite.

Figures given in a reply to a question asked on this by me on the kitchen equipment—although it was said that it did not have any kitchen—but the Government had to pay for the contract which was broken relating to the kitchen equipment, $15,730. For medical equipment it had to pay to Transmedical $134,000; and to William Cameron, the project manager, $48,864. In this reply it says that the termination cost was $4,472,740, plus the cost of the Commission of Inquiry $35,905; making a total of $4,508,645.

The Minister, in referring to it (because there have been additional costs since that time) said that there has been an expenditure of close to $6 million and no hospital. It has been used as a refugee camp. And we now hear it is to be used as a prison for juveniles. If that is the case, and if we are to believe that the grounds surrounding this site are subject to flooding, I wonder whether it is being suggested by the Government that they would place children into the area there so that they might drown. I do not think they are suggesting that because the truth is that ground there—that ground that was created, dug up, dredged, filled, whatever—meets engineering standards and there is no fear of that happening.

Their policy is that they at this stage do not see the wisdom of taking half of the money they are talking about spending on the old hospital site and finishing a building that is almost finished so that the country can have its hospital. Not any one individual—the country—can have a hospital.

The Minister of Education said that the Government was mandated to do that, and that it was a split site, and it did not have this and it did not have that. We have also heard on various occasions about having to take food from one site to the other. Why is it that the Government cannot simply tell the truth and the facts as they are? I refute that claim on the basis of what was found in the Commissioner's Report on page 33, under 'Kitchen Equipment Contract', where it says: "Tenders for this equipment were reviewed by Mr. Larry Kimbro, a senior associate of Systems Design International Inc. in Washington who recommended to HSA that Baring Industries be awarded the contract for $256,344." Now, Madam Speaker, that can buy a lot of cups and saucers. So, it had to be the case that that kitchen equipment was in that site and, indeed, would be there for the preparing of meals.

That cannot be an excuse to perpetrate the waste and unwarranted expenditure that is happening in this country at this time. It cannot be. If this Government wants to lay claim to having such sound fiscal and financial policies, why is it that up until now we hear of a $22 million hospital, and speculations to claim it will cost $22 million when there are no specific figures on it? Why are there no specific figures done before all that is going on at this time?

The plans are apparently not completed. If there is such openness in the Government's present policies regarding financial costs and expenditure, why is it so difficult for the Government to show or publish or get any contractor who wants to do this hospital they are talking about to agree that their bid would be seen as in the case of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital?

That was the first time, to the best of my knowledge in the history of the Cayman Islands that that was ever done—that all bids were made known to the public. It is on record. The Financial Secretary at the time, upon being asked, said it was a policy which the Government would be looking at to consider doing in the future. Page 46 of the Commissioner's Report shows each bid. The whole world knows what each bidder bid on that hospital. Anything less than the Government completing that hospital is one of the gravest instances of unwarranted expenditure, a waste of public money, and the people have received nothing for it.

The Minister of Education, and others, keeps reading and talking about what I said when the hospital was to have been built there. I myself have said that on various occasions. I stand here saying that when that question about building the hospital was there in the political arena, my objections were similar to those of the seven so-called Backbenchers at that time. But one thing is certain: After the Government had committed this country, after the credibility of this country was on the line, never would I—and neither did I—stand in this Chamber and say that I would have supported the motion which was brought as Private Member's Motion No. 8/92 by the present Minister of Youth, where, in effect, the motion asked this House to break the contract that was in place. That, too, is in the Commissioner's findings.

I would just like to read this brief paragraph, because it keeps coming up time, and time, and time, and time again. It is on page 23. It says: "On 20 July Mr. McKeeva Bush, MLA, moved Private Member's Motion No. 3/92 that, since the Financial Secretary had stated on 2 July that the new hospital contract had not been awarded as of that date, no money be spent out of the $18 million for the new hospital until the contract had been awarded by the Public Tenders Committee. The Financial Secretary's statement and this Motion seem to have brought about some misunderstanding and confusion in the Assembly. The Financial Secretary should more accurately have said that the hospital contract had not been signed (it had certainly been awarded) as of that date. It seems odd that nobody corrected him. In fact the tender selection and award of the construction contract to Hurlstone Construction had taken place as far back as 20 May (two months before) and it could not properly have been repeated by the CTC in July as demanded."

On my own behalf, this is what he notes: "Mr. Gilbert McLean, MLA, who had supported the Backbenchers in their vote against the Government loan guarantee on 2 July, seems to have understood the situation because he did not support this motion and it was defeated by nine votes to six." That was my position then, and that is what it is now and will always be.

I believe in good Government, responsible Government, and I certainly would not have been any part to what then would have happened. I found objections to it on the basis that it was the Government Executive that had entered the Health Services Authority, and it was not this Legislative Assembly. This Legislative Assembly should certainly not have been the body to break the contract as the Government eventually did.

A point that arises, and it has arisen in statements made by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, by the Member for North Side and also by the Honourable Minister of Education, is regarding what a Censure Motion or a no confidence motion is supposed to do. Read a half-a-dozen times or more is what Erskine May has to say about it; and we certainly all realise that part of it is to give opportunity for debate. We also know . . . and I do not know why that brings such fear and trepidation to anyone that if a no confidence motion is carried, then the people have the opportunity of voting in another Government or, for that matter, voting the same one in if they believe it is doing such a good job. So, that is basically the two premises on which this could work.

I certainly have no wish to say other than what are the facts and what is the truth, but, as noted by the Members who I just indicated, there are two out of 18 (as the Minister of Education said) who will be voting for it. The Member for North Side made it 3 out of 18. I am not sure of their figures, but they are off by at least one. The point is that the seconder and I believed there was a need to bring this Motion and we will most surely be voting for it. If they are so sure it will not pass, why are they so bothered; and why, then, did they not try to prove that the statement contained in the Motion was inaccurate by showing the opposite of what it was suggesting?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture asks who, if this no confidence motion carried, will fill the Government. Who would take over the Government? If there are any doubts in any of the minds of the Government Members (including the Backbenchers) that there are people who can take over the Government and run it better than it is now being run by the Elected Representatives, if they have any doubt they should consult the voters list for the six districts this country. I would hope that their suggestion does not reek of such arrogance that they would think that out of all the people in this country it is only themselves—and let me include 'us', all of us in the country capable of running this country. If there is an arrogance, surely that must be the supreme.

They should not just judge the two voices in the House who speak for the Opposition, for there are but two in here. But outside of this Chamber they are legion waiting who would be delighted for the opportunity of being able to vote again to choose a Government. I am certain. So the fear need not be about who would replace the Government; the fear is what it obviously is—that they would no longer be the Government.

The question of the civil service was also raised by various speakers, and that the Government has nothing to do with it, that it is a reserved subject of the Governor. I certainly know that, and I am certain that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town knows that. We know that within any organisation there is the formal organisation and there is the informal. We also know that the informal organisation can actually overwhelm the formal. If the Members believe that they have convinced the country that they have no view in regard to civil servants, nor express any views, nor in any way make their feelings known regarding civil servants, then they are mistaken—for the country does not believe that. As living proof we can look to statements made in this Legislative Assembly against specific civil servants and what has happened within a relatively short time after all those remarks began.

There is no doubt about it. It is clear what has happened. And it is open to the interpretation of all logic and sensible thinking people and they can draw their own conclusions. It is because of those conclusions reached by civil servants why they are afraid, and why they are apprehensive—and they are. That is why the country on a whole has apprehension, because they see the things that are happening.

Who can be responsible? The Government of the day is the body that has the authority to run the country to let it work or perform however it may. That is the body.

As for who in Government is included in the no confidence Motion, I know who the Government is and I would say to the Member for North Side that I believe she knows who the Government is in its totality. It is left to her and the country on a whole to determine the interaction and role that is played in the process. I claim to know, to a fairly accurate degree, how it works and to what extent and so forth and so on. Of course, in this regard, this Motion is hardly directed to the Official Members, for the Official Members are appointed by the Government. So a no confidence motion of this House cannot remove the Official Members, it can only remove the Elected Members—therein is where the power lies.

Madam Speaker, this Motion is warranted, it gives the opportunity to put before the eyes of the public the situation as it truly exists. It is quite true what the Minister of Youth said: the Opposition is not saying anything new. Certainly not. The Opposition is simply emphasising what is existing in the country and saying that something ought to be done about it. The way of saying and doing that in the Parliamentary process is by way of a Censure or No Confidence Motion in this House.

I would not attempt to go into the extensive rambling of the various Members who have spoken—

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: Honourable Member, will you be finished shortly? It is now 4.30.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker, if you will grant me a few minutes, I will be.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Mr. Gilbert A. Mclean: Madam Speaker, I would not try to reply to the many things that were said—some of them so far fetched and unrelated, in my opinion, that they would not deserve an answer. But, I would leave on this thought: While there is a vast majority of Government Members and an overwhelming vote against this Motion, this motion has brought to the attention of the Government just where they stand. It has highlighted things which are wrong and which need correcting.

As for the Opposition not being able to form a Government should the no confidence motion carry, the way it generally works is that today one is Government, tomorrow one is Opposition; today one is Opposition tomorrow one is Government. That is the way the cycle works. The Government need not believe that because today with their numbers they can say it was a waste of time to bring this motion; on another occasion, in the not-too-distant future, the people of this country will once again have the opportunity of calling the shots at the election poles.

The Motion that this Honourable House has no confidence in the Government whose economic and social policies and public pronouncements are causing unwarranted social disharmony, fear and apprehension in the Cayman Islands, I submit, has been proven by the Opposition. Unfortunately, at this time the Opposition cannot prove this in terms of the vote by numbers. But, who knows? That time might present itself soon. If not, the Opposition is convinced that it will be a part of another Government made up of other people who are willing and able in this society, to run the Government unlike what the Government of the day may believe. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion No. 8/95. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can we have a division, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker. You may. Madam Clerk

Clerk: Division 5/95

AYES:

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts
Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
Mr. Roy Bodden

NOES:

Hon. James M. Ryan
Hon. Richard H. Coles
Hon. George A McCarthy
Hon. John B. McLean
Hon. Truman M. Bodden
Hon. Anthony S. Eden
Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks
Mrs. Edna M. Moyle

ABSENT:

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush
Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson
Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr
Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson
Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy
Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell
Mr. G. Haig Bodden

Clerk: Three Ayes, eight Noes.

The Speaker: The result of the division is three Ayes, eight Noes. The Motion has, therefore, failed.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO.8/95 NEGATIVED BY MAJORITY.

The Speaker: May I now ask for a Motion for the adjournment of the House? The Honourable Minister of Education and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 tomorrow morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10.00.

AT 4.35 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 15TH JUNE 1995.

THURSDAY
15 JUNE 1995
10.07 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly. Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Question No. 123, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS AND MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 123

No. 123: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Member responsible for Finance and Development to provide a breakdown by statutory authorities of all loans and repayments being made at this time.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The breakdown by statutory authorities of all loans and repayments being made at this time is as detailed in the attached schedule. [see Appendix I]

The asterisks denote loans that have been made and are repaid in a basket of currencies. The corresponding repayments for these have been converted to United States' dollars for convenience. The repayment figure for all loans refers to principal only.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say what attempts have been made to negotiate the repayments from the basket of currencies to a standard currency, for example, the United States dollar?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, this was attempted sometime ago. We wrote to the Caribbean Development Bank and asked if it would be possible to pay off the loans denominated in Japanese Yen and Deutsche Marks, because we found that the... it is obvious to everyone that the rate of the Yen had appreciated significantly. We were told by the Bank at the time that they would have to get in touch with the Inter-American Development Bank through whom the funds were channelled.

It took them a long time to get back in touch with us but we were informed recently (not in writing) that we are now able to pay off these loans. They will not allow for currencies other than United States dollars to be paid off. The loans will have to be paid off in full.

Madam Speaker, I think it is to the advantage of the authorities to pay off these loans as quickly as possible.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, in the substantive reply, the last sentence says: "The repayment figure for all loans refers to principal only."

It may be assumed that interest is a significant part of what the Government will eventually pay on these loans. Does the Member have available what this figure would be? Or can he supply it.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the Honourable Member is correct, interest is quite a significant factor in all of these loan repayments. The most significant element of it would be the principal balance that is outstanding. The figure for the interest was not provided, but this can be provided in writing.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In the column showing the rate of 1.2, is that 1.2 over LIBOR? What does it really signify?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the rate of 1.2 reflects the rate of conversion of United States dollars to Cayman Islands dollars. That is the official rate. It converts to .8333, a recurring CI 3 cents to the US dollar.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 124, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 124

No. 124: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to provide a breakdown by statutory authorities of money paid to Government since December, 1992.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the answer: The breakdown by statutory authorities of money paid to Government since December 1992, that is, covering the years 1993 and 1994, is as follows:

1) Cayman Turtle Farm: contribution to Government Revenue—$320,000.

2) Civil Aviation: loan repayments—$4,579,317; contribution to General Revenue—$1,500,000; making a total of $6,079,317.

3) Community College: loan repayments—$366,059; assets repayments—$48,226; making a total of $414,285.

4) Cayman Islands Currency Board: contribution to General Revenue—$3,845,052.

5) Health Services Authority: loan repayments—$258,870; contribution to General Revenue—$774,470; totalling $1,033,340.

6) Port Authority: loan repayments—$497,751; asset repayments—$318,862; contribution to General Revenue—$1,165,125; making a total of $1,981,738.

7) Water Authority: asset repayments—$2,199,588; contribution to General Revenue—$950,000; making a total of $3,149,588.

Madam Speaker, the total that has been paid over to Government by the authorities, therefore amounts to $16,823,320.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker

Is it the case that these authorities keep a significant balance as a matter of policy, or is it the situation where the loan repayments and the contribution totals all of the monies the authorities make?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: No, Madam Speaker. By law the authorities are allowed to maintain various reserve balances. For example, the sum of $4,579,317 is not money that represents equity interest due to Government, but loans that have been guaranteed to Caribbean Development Bank on behalf of the Civil Aviation Authority. So this represents a flow through of funds on behalf of Civil Aviation Authority.

It is a question in terms of what are the pressing needs for the reserve balances to be maintained. But the authorities are not stripped of their cash balances.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Official Member can confirm whether or not the $774,000 for the Health Services; the $1,165,000 for the Port Authority and the $950 for the Water Authority... did these make contribution to Government prior to this period?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I am not aware of the Water Authority having done so, but I am aware of the Port Authority making contributions over the years and definitely the Currency Board, that authority has been making contributions over the years as well.

It should be borne in mind, Madam Speaker, that most of these authorities were revenue-earning departments before they were converted to statutory authorities. So, rather than contributions, in the past the full revenue of the authorities was available to the Government, plus the expenses used to be met from the General Revenue aggregate balance.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, maybe I should make my question more specific. In the case of the Port Authority and the Water Authority, what were the most recent contributions from these authorities prior to this period?

The Speaker: If the Honourable Third Official Member can supply that information... but that was not a part of the substantive question which asked the Government to state the payments made since December 1992, covering the years 1993 and 1994. I doubt if the Honourable Third Official Member is in a position to answer that.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I do not have the breakdown on an annual basis for years prior to the period for which the information was sought. The amounts that have been given in the answer to the question are the aggregate contributions. But that can be provided in writing.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 125, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 125

No. 125: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development to provide a breakdown of outstanding room tax, giving name of establishment and amount outstanding.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The breakdown of estimated outstanding tourism accommodation tax as at 31st May 1995, is as follows:

Time Period	Estimated T.A. Tax
Hospitality World Ltd: 09/78 through 04/95	$ 311,189
Cayman Islands Hotel: 06/92 through 04/95	$ 26,129
Plantation Village: 02 and 03/95	$ 19,944
Villa Caribe: 01/88 through 1990	$ 14,300
Seaview Hotel: 06/94 through 04/95	$ 13,182
Grapetree/Cocoplum: 01/95 through 04/95	$ 9,062
Driftwood Village: 03/95 and 04/95	$ 840
Island House Resort: 03/95 and 04/95	$ 720
TOTAL:	CI $395,366

Excluded from the amount of $395,366 are the following amounts totalling $621,016, accumulated under the tenure of previous owners, which is unlikely to be recovered (the period over which the debt was accumulated is indicated in brackets):

- $586,726—Treasure Isle Resort, (12/86 through 07/88).
- $13,580—Coral Caymanian (08/92 through 07/94).
- $13,400—Cayman Islander Hotel (07/88 through 09/88).
- $5,100—Island House Resort (01/88 through 06/90).
- $2,210—Grand Pavilion Hotel (11/91 through 01/92).

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Official Member explain his expression: "Unlikely to be recovered," whether it means that the Government is considering writing these amounts off.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, it is very possible that the Government will have to resort to that action.

In September of last year, the information was given on the Treasure Island Resort, and it was then mentioned that the previous owners were taken to court where a judgment was obtained against them. Madam Speaker, if this is written-off it will probably mean that the collection of it will not be pursued. We would rather keep it open on the records so that in the event any of the owners can be reached with the necessary assets to make good this sum of money, that the Government will then have the option of doing so.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I noticed that on the first list there is one organisation, Hospitality World Limited, with $311,189 dating from September 1987. I would like to ask the Honourable Official Member what attempt is being made to clear this balance, whether we have a system of making a monthly stipend towards settling this amount or if there is any procedure in place to clear the outstanding balance?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, this amount has been referred to the Legal Department and at this time efforts are being made to pursue the individual owners because the management company, in effect, has been stripped and does not have any assets.

So attempts are being made to reach the assets of the individual owners in order to make good on this sum.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Official Member could say if the Government is putting any protective measures in place to make certain that moneys due Government are paid prior to the change over of ownership?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Madam Speaker, measures are being implemented at this time, because obviously a situation like this would be in no one's interest to continue.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Third Official Member shed any light on the delinquency of these funds, seeing as these are monies which should have already been collected from this organisation? Why is there a delay or delinquency in these funds reaching the coffers of the Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, this is not an attempt to shift blame, but Honourable Members of this House will recall that the Government took a decision to transfer the collection of Tourism Accommodation Tax from the Department of Tourism back to the Treasury Department. Quite a lot of these arrears occurred at the time when the collection was under the administration of the Tourism Department. Not from the point of view that these establishments are not being pursued, but there was only a single officer dealing with all of this and keeping abreast of all the outstanding arrears.

Efforts were being made at the time, but now the Treasury Department has put in place a Debt Collection Centre and it is sufficiently staffed by various officers. So, where an establishment is recognised as being delinquent, this is not something that will be perpetuated for a long period of time.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, we know that the change was made to the Treasury Department, which I believe was the right one.

Could the Honourable Official Member say if he now has a system in place that is up and running for collections, and if these more recent outstanding amounts here are being pursued or collected? What is the status on them?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, all of these outstanding amounts are being pursued at this time. Every effort is being made, wherever results are not being obtained on a timely basis, to pursue legal action.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 126, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 126

No. 126: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if there is any policy in place regarding civil servants presenting and defending political policy in public forums as contained in "White Papers" for Bills.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: General Orders stipulate that:

"(1) No Officer may call a public meeting to consider any action or policy of the Government or actively take part in such a meeting; and

"(2) No Officer shall speak in public or broadcast in any way on matters which may reasonably be regarded as of a political or administrative nature, provided that: (a) the provisions of this Order shall not apply to an Officer acting in pursuance of his official duties and with prior permission of the Governor; and (b) the statements for publication of factual and technical information may be made by Permanent Secretaries, Heads of Departments and other Senior Officers with the prior permission of the Government."

Civil servants are not privileged to present their own views on policy matters to the public, but rather are expected to provide these to their superiors who are responsible for deciding on policy.

In summary, therefore, civil servants may be called upon to present public policy in the course of their official duties. Responsibility for defending that policy, however, rests entirely with the individual(s) responsible for deciding upon the policy.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, in the light of the answer given which, in effect, does recognise that the civil servant is the executor of the work and of policy, and really not one to present and defend it, has there been any deviation from this policy in recent times in practise, with, for example, the situation of the Labour Law?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, not to my knowledge. I have no information to that effect.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Since it is of paramount importance that the civil and political arms serve in their separate capacities, would the Member give an undertaking that this particular part of the responsibilities be adhered to in the strictest form so that civil servants may not come under possible political attacks, since they might, where they enter into debates or expressions with regards to political views in public forums?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, I hardly know how to respond to that. Civil servants are all very aware of the General Orders and they all have access to it. I have had no complaint about any deviation from this practise. Unless I receive a complaint it is difficult to take any action.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 127, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 127

No. 127: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture what has been the cause of disruption of water supply during the first three days of the week beginning 8th May.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Water supply was disrupted from the junction of Crewe Road and the eastern end of old Prospect Road through Bodden Town during the week of the 8th of May due to three breaks in the ten inch diameter water main feeding all areas east of this junction.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say what was found to be the technical problem causing these particular breaks in the pipeline?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, the problem dates back to the early days with the laying of the pipeline. Subsequent road work in the area creating additional pressure on the pipeline, combined with the poor laying accounted for the breakage.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It has been said in some quarters that the cause of these breaks is due to certain pieces of rock which is found in the material that was used as a base on which the pipes were laid puncturing the pipes. Could the Honourable Minister confirm if that is indeed the case and, if it is the case, is the Government looking to take any corrective action in this regard?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, my understanding of the matter is that it has nothing to do with any rock in the water line. The problem resulted from the line being laid directly on bedrocks.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 128, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 128

No. 128: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture what is the present rate being charged for house mortgages under the Government mortgage guarantee scheme and what was the interest rate at the commencement.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, the present rate of interest is 12 percent. The interest rate at commencement (August 1994) was 10-3/4 percent.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if, due to this large increase in the interest rate, there have been difficulties in re-payments on these loans, that the Government is aware of, under the loan guarantee scheme?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the Government has no knowledge of any report being made to us of any problems with re-payments. I think the banks are doing a good job, albeit the rates increased, but we have given in the region of between 50 and 56 mortgages.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Could the Honourable Minister say if, in the agreement under the scheme, there is a particular ceiling placed on interest rates? Or is there a possibility that they may fluctuate to whatever the current market rate is?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the only ceiling that I know about is the one of 3 percent above the Cayman Islands' dollar prime lending rate.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

The next item should have been a statement by the Honourable Second Official Member. There is an apology that he may not arrive in time to do so. Accordingly, it will be laid down for the following day.

Other Business, Private Member's Motion No. 9/95. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 9/95

SITUATIONAL ASSESSMENT OF CAYMAN AIRWAYS

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 9/95 entitled, Situational Assessment Cayman Airways, which reads:

"WHEREAS massive amounts of money have been paid into Cayman Airways Ltd. since 1993 to date and major changes in management, personnel generally, equipment and its operation have taken place; and

"AND WHEREAS there is a subsidy of four million dollars being injected into the airline by Government annually; and

"WHEREAS changes in aircraft have very recently been made and a change of top management imminent with the leaving of the present Managing Director;

"BE IT RESOLVED that Government consider commissioning Simat, Helliesen and Eichner Inc (SH & E), because of its familiarity with Cayman Airways Limited, as a result of its past study, or such other specialised entity to undertake a review or situational assessment of the airline at this time."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 9/95, having been duly moved and seconded, is now open for debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, this Motion is as a result of what appears to myself and the Seconder to be good management practise and good sense—that Cayman Airways, at this time, should be examined by an outside person to see what is its true situation at this point in time.

The airline has seen many changes in the past two years, among which have been changes in management. The former Managing Director was terminated and replaced by another person and he will be leaving the airline shortly, according to a public report. There have also been other changes, as we have been made aware of in this Legislative Assembly, where persons have left the airline by taking early retirement or taking certain offers that were made to them by management in scaling and cutting back on staff. Certainly, there have been considerable changes in aircraft. This has represented considerable financial commitment by the airline and, indirectly, by the Government through guarantees.

Cayman Airways each year receives $4 million in subsidy. So the people have a right to know what is the situation with the entity into which this money is being paid. The money has to be of the greatest concern, however there are other concerns and views which might be taken about Cayman Airways which have public connotations.

Cayman Airways has generally been looked upon as an object of pride by Caymanians. I believe one could add to this some non-Caymanians, for the mere fact that it continues to survive, what it represents and the services that it gives.

Cayman Airways is not a new acquisition, for Government came into full ownership between 1977 and 1978, when it had operated under a different type of arrangement. It has great importance to this country, in my opinion, in that it is the means by which the people of the Cayman Islands are guaranteed a communication by air between these islands and the outside world. To a lesser degree the three islands (through inter-island service) are connected with Cayman Airways. There are additional services in operation also.

It has forever been a very costly item to Government, and this has been through loans and cash injections. This has continued in recent times, and guarantees in large amounts have been necessary to a large extent. Another factor with regards to Cayman Airways is that from its very inception it has been undercapitalised, and that situation continued until 1993 when the largest loan amount was taken by the airline. It is my understanding that it was paid for after several long outstanding debts relating to its operation, its equipment, and various financial undertakings and dealings which had gone on prior to that time.

Madam Speaker, there is no entity—public company or statutory authority—existing in the Government to which they pay such a large subsidy as they do to Cayman Airways. This is an amount which appears each year in the budget, and it is a subsidy of $4 million—which is significant, to say the least.

In more recent times Government issued a guarantee which was approved in Finance Committee on the 24th March, 1993, for $2.6 million. On the 19th of July, 1993, Cayman Airways also had a $2 million loan, which was converted to a subsidy earlier. On December 21st, 1994, Government gave a guarantee on behalf of Cayman Airways for a rental of $3,060,000, and a maintenance and overhaul amount of $1,987,500 making a total of over $5 million. This was later amended to show a guarantee of $3 million. In April of this year there was another guarantee of $5,264,000. This collectively means that almost $13 million in guarantees have been given by Government on behalf of Cayman Airways since 1993.

There are few people, at least from a political standpoint, who at this time would try to argue that Cayman Airways should cease to exist and that Government should close down its operation. This is largely so because of the points I noted earlier: the services that it gives to the islands, and the fact that it is linked to the outside world for the people of the Cayman Islands.

We heard from the Minister responsible that Cayman Airways is doing well—it has made a profit. But while hearing those pronouncements, the accounts of the airline have not been forthcoming; the two things would seem to contradict each other. Now that there seems to be an imminent change in the management of the airline and, for the second time, a Caymanian seems to be slated to take over—albeit he will be a General Manager and not a Managing Director—it seems only right that the people of this country know the true situational assessment of Cayman Airways at this juncture.

For one thing it would give the Managing Director-to-be an opportunity to have something official to show where the airline is when he takes over. It would not be left to himself to lay claims to what he found, but it would be done by an outside body specialised in the business of Cayman Airways's operations.

Madam Speaker, in 1992 a study was undertaken by two well recognised companies who did a comprehensive study on Cayman Airways. It could hardly be said that any management of the airline would not have some detailed documented facts about Cayman Airways, along with recommendations as to what was thought to be its best courses of actions for its aircraft, its personnel, and the business which it might undertake.

In the Resolve, the Motion requests the Government to consider commissioning Simat, Helliesen and Eichner Incorporated (SH & E), or such other specialised entity, to do such an assessment. For myself and the Seconder it really does not matter which entity undertakes the assessment, but Airlingus, or SH & E as it was called, has already done a large scale study on Cayman Airways and they would be familiar with its operations. In our estimation it would be logical that one would seek to have this entity do so. It should hold down the costs because they would not have to go through the ground work information, and so on, on the airline.

Madam Speaker, this request of the Government is seen by myself and the Seconder as something that the Government may already see the need to do. If not, they should be willing to undertake the request because of the clear need for such a thing to be done at this time. It is, therefore, our recommendation to this honourable House, as contained in the Resolve of the Motion, that such a review be undertaken.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, in my view this Motion is geared to stir up political upheaval in Cayman Airways and to bring it back into the political arena so that those who wish to benefit in the next General Elections can use it as a political football. What I have done over the past years is to substantially take Cayman Airways out of the stage—many times the disgraceful stage—where it had been used by politicians to further their best personal interests relating to voting.

This is indeed a strange Motion because when Cayman Airways had consultants—not just one set of consultants... and I will show by the stack of consultants' reports that I have on this table here, the amount of paper and the fantastic costs that incurred—it was losing, and losing, and losing and losing.

After I became the Minister responsible for Cayman Airways we did the restructuring, and a new Managing Director was put into position. Cayman Airways is now at a stage where, with the subsidy, it is making a profit. Why in the world would someone, who knows very well the heavy losses of Cayman Airways (which I will show in detail) when they had consultants ... and believe you me, Madam Speaker, they had consultants. I doubt if anyone in a matter of months could even try to absorb the amount of advice that was given by consultants, mainly from Simat, Helliesen and Eichner Incorporated (SH & E). Why in the world would we go back to consultants when I have pulled Cayman Airways out of its financial problems?

Members in this House, at times, attempt to criticise me—and I think that is perhaps one of the most laughable types of criticism—for being too well qualified. But the people elected me into the House to sort out problems that Government had, and I do not think either the Mover or the Seconder can say anything other than the fact that Cayman Airways is now in a position that is 100 times better than it was back three years ago when SH & E and the other consultants were giving advice.

I do not like to boast, Madam Speaker, but my qualifications are not only in Law. I hold qualifications in Banking, I am a qualified practising banker—not defunct in any way—and I also hold qualifications in matters such as Credit Management and areas that are important to the management of a company. Therefore, I will show the public how, without the help of consultants, we have reached the point where we are.

Let me say this, Madam Speaker, I have nothing against consultants. But when you look at the facts, Cayman Airways was paying close to $0.5 million for consultants and there are reports here that I will go through on just about everything that Cayman Airways did or could have thought to have been doing—and it was making massive losses to the extent where the Managing Director recommended, as an option, to shut down and liquidate Cayman Airways on the 1st of January, 1993. Whether they like it or not, this Government, the National Team, has put a lot of effort in pulling Cayman Airways [out of debt], for if Cayman Airways continued to lose money at the rate of $12 million to $14 million a year the country would have gone bankrupt. That is why the last Government (and, as we understand it, the Government that is being put forward by some of the Opposition politicians these days) at the stage where Cayman Airways was losing at the rate they were going, and the losses made by the Government, both Cayman Airways and the Government would have been bankrupted. The country could not go on, Madam Speaker.

I believe that the two Opposition Members who put this Motion forward know very well because we opposed the heavy debts, the heavy losses Cayman Airways had back a few years ago when we were all together as Opposition Backbench Members. I do not understand now what this Motion is all about. If I could steer Cayman Airways the last two and a half years (when I say "I," I am talking on behalf of the Board, the Managing Director, and the persons who sit in at those Board meetings, such as the Attorney General, and the Financial Secretary, especially) out of the massive losses that it was making and, for the first time, it appears to have a future. But the aim of this Motion, Madam Speaker, like some of the moves in this Legislature, is now aimed at destroying Cayman Airways again. The Opposition, I know—

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Elected Member?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Minister responsible for Cayman Airways is wildly rambling again, and accusing me directly—not even through innuendo—of trying to destroy the airline by asking that a situational assessment be done on the airline.

Madam Speaker, I ask for your intervention.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister there is a point of order. We need to get out of allegations and, please, just confine yourself to presenting facts rather than allegations against what other people are proposing. Please, Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddien: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I will rephrase it: In my opinion this Motion is one that is going to seriously hurt Cayman Airways because when we bring in experts to do a situational assessment, it is going to throw it back in the political field. Now, whom-ever that cap fits may pick it up. I am speaking generally hereafter.

My view of this Motion is that it is going to damage Cayman Airways. I say that, Madam Speaker, with the full knowledge of the damage that has arisen in the past, and that we can expect in the future [if] Cayman Airways is put back into a situation where these assessments [are called for] and the experts begin to dig in and raise nonsense in relation to Cayman Airways.

This Motion achieves nothing. If Cayman Airways had not been losing the $35 million that it lost in two and a half years when it had experts, then I could understand it. But, if nothing else, they [should] accept that I have the ability to pull Cayman Airways out with the help of the National Team...

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Hear, hear!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: With moves, at times, against the National Team I have been able to pull Cayman Airways out of a situation where the last Government would have shut it down on the 1st day of January, 1993—perhaps to the joy of the two Opposition Members. That is what is hurting them.

Madam Speaker, if Cayman Airways goes back to making the losses that it made before then, they know—it is obvious, the Government could fall with Cayman Airways. So I submit, Madam Speaker, speaking generally, that the attack from now on is going to be against Cayman Airways in any way that they can cripple the revenue of this country or increase its debts.

Cayman Airways has progressed well. It has progressed well because I have managed to keep it from being a political football. My aim is to keep it that way, and I hope that the staff of Cayman Airways clearly understand that it is important that they keep out of the political arena and ensure that we carry on the business of Cayman Airways in the normal way and avoid the type of political overtones that an inquiry, or a commission it presumably is... because we are supposed to commission SH & E to carry out a review and a situational assessment of Cayman Airways.

Madam Speaker, it seems that this Motion is falling into the same mode the last Government fell into. They believed that if they surrounded themselves with experts from abroad, and spent millions of dollars, that they were supposed to get good results. But you cannot get good results unless the people who are giving the advice have sufficient sense to know what to do with it.

The last Government had more experts, consultants, buddies and friends, [to whom] they paid millions of dollars, than any other government in the world. There are reports, such as ones I will show here on areas of Cayman Airways, that I do not really know why they even did an assessment of it. The difference is that the National Team and this Government, and I, have had the ability to do what is nearly a miracle.

People accepted that with Cayman Airways draining this country at a rate of $10 million to $12 million a year it would had to have been shut down and hundreds of people would have been out of work; we would have had no airline, and we would have had damages. I will show how we have gotten out of the damage that was left by the last Government, which this Government could not have paid for had we shut down Cayman Airways in January of 1993.

I went through that assessment, Madam Speaker, because at the rate the airline was losing money, this Government could not have come up with $40 million to close it down. It was a simple fact. If I had not done something with Cayman Airways and got it back on its feet, Cayman Airways would have bankrupted this Government. It could not have raised $40 million just to put into Cayman Airways.

In fact, Madam Speaker, the last Government passed in July of 1992—I will go into that in some detail—a loan for US$20 million and they could not get it. The Government's credit was so bad that they could not get the $20 million—until the new Government got in and produced a budget early in the middle of 1993, and until the bankers looked at it, they were not prepared to lend that money. So the fact is very clear: if Cayman Airways had continued on, Government could not raise $20 million (we know they could not raise $40), therefore, Government would have been bankrupted along with Cayman Airways. That worried not just the people of this country, Madam Speaker, but also the United Kingdom Government as well because there were external international debts that they may have been morally obligated to pick up.

If anyone believes that the situation was nice and simple when I took over Cayman Airways... I looked at it, Madam Speaker, and I said a silent prayer and, thereafter—and thank God on this—Cayman Airways Board meetings began with prayers, the same way the House begins with prayer, which, I understand, does not go on the radio at all times... which I think should go on the radio, for what it is worth. But it is important for people to know the seriousness of the situation that existed at Cayman Airways then.

I do not mind saying that I looked at Cayman Airways with my many years of experience in businesses. While I said to my colleagues and the Governor that I would do what I could, I realised and said to them that this was one of the worst situations I had ever seen in any company during my 20-odd years in Law and in Banking.

I am also a qualified Administrative Accountant. I can understand balance sheets.

I do not believe that a situational assessment is going to get us anywhere, because I am going to now show that there was a situational assessment done by SH & E on November 30th, 1992. They came down here, presumably to give a report card on the Managing Director and on Cayman Airways. Now that I have explained the drastic stage Cayman Airways was in, let me just tell you what the assessment produced.

On passenger revenue SH & E gave an "A+" grade; on reservations they gave Miami "A," they gave Grand Cayman "incomplete"; Marketing-oriented schedules got "A-". Some of these items had no grades, I do not know what happened there, they did not have enough time because this was, in my view, brought in to cover the last Government in the mess that existed then at Cayman Airways. What is very interesting in 'aircraft leasing' they gave them no grade [Member's laughter]. When they were paying $310,000, their goal was $60,000 to $90,000.

In food and beverage expenses they gave them a grade "B"; on ground handling expense they gave them "A"; on advertising promotions they got an "A"; on aircraft fleet renewal—and this one is wild—they got an "A-".

For selling the 727-200s, taking the $12.5 million and wasting it within a matter of nine months, purchasing two 737-400s at a cost of approximately $7.2 million a year with a commitment of $112 million, then losing $34.5 million in two and a half years—they got an "A-" on it. For the inter-island service they got an "incomplete."

I am going to show that what the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is doing now, when he refers to the heavy subsidies, is going to hurt the Sister Islands. It is going to mean... and I will show where the losses that I now have are, and if the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac wants to reduce the subsidy and cut Cayman Airways out of Cayman Brac, then let him put it forward as a substantive Motion.

For other revenue they have an "incomplete," and an "A" on flight crew salaries and expenses.

The staff of Cayman Airways had not had a salary increase in two or three years and some salaries had been reduced. It was not until about a year ago that they received any salary increase. That, Madam Speaker, is most of what I think is relevant from this [report].

Now, that was SH & E's situational assessment of Cayman Airways. If Cayman Airways could get "As" when it was $40 million in debt; losing $10 million to $12 million per year; had law suits against it in the United Kingdom by GPA for money they could not pay, some $5.5 million; the Managing Director had stated that one of the options that would have to be followed, unless there was a massive injection of capital, was to shut down Cayman Airways—if they could get an "A" then, Madam Speaker, I do not need to hire them now. I can give myself an "A," because we are now back into earning a profit after the subsidy. In other words, the subsidy has not been used.

For the first time Cayman Airways, and I will show this further on in detail, actually has a buff on its overdraft of perhaps $1 million or $1.5 million, and we are paying back the loan the last Government left at a rate of $600,000 per year. Why in the world do I need an assessment?

My assessment, Madam Speaker, has been the public. The public overwhelmingly put me in this House and I believe, the public is happy with Cayman Airways. I believe the public gives what the National Team and I have done an "A". Quite frankly, SH & E would have to create a new alphabet when they look at the difference between what the situation was a few years ago when they did the assessment and the situation now.

I will show, Madam Speaker, that SH & E did not believe that this could be done. What I have done, the experts believed could not be done. So why would I need experts? It is just another waste of money.

I do not mind saying that when I took over Cayman Airways I cut out all the experts. I cut out a lot more than the experts. Money was being wasted all over the place and the Government at the time even had a firm of lobbyists in the United Kingdom in relation to Cayman Airways, which I did not even know existed—not on parliamentary matters but a lobbyist for Cayman Airways too. I cut the whole lot, including SH & E.

It seems to me that even the Chamber of Commerce in its assessment, despite where it ran off the track, gave an excellent report on Cayman Airways. I do not really believe that the Mover and the Seconder of the Motion can believe anything else other than that miracles have been done with Cayman Airways. There are problems that still exist, I am not saying that [they do not], but we have been able to deal with them.

We had a situational assessment done on Cayman Airways back in November of 1992. They got a report card showing literally "A" on everything when they were in such a state that they would have had to have been shut down within two months of that.

Madam Speaker, the Motion states that massive amounts of money have been paid to Cayman Airways since 1993. In my view, without saying any more and without the Mover expanding on it, is a totally misleading statement. The US$20 million that went into Cayman Airways was as a result of a Motion brought by the Honourable Norman Bodden in the Standing Finance Committee on the 3rd of July, 1992, to pay for past debts.

Madam Speaker, if I had been given $20 million to use in the future for Cayman Airways, I would have had the interest on that now at a rate of maybe 8 percent and still have had the $20 million because I did not need it. I could have used it, I could have used even $1.0 million out of it, but the $20 million was going to pay back the $40 million in debts left by the last Government.

Madam Speaker, notwithstanding getting a "A" report on SH & E's report card, if people have any doubt as to where Cayman Airways was, I would just like to read a few things from the Finance Committee Report of 3rd July, 1992, by the then Member for Aviation. I read:

"Madam Chairman, over the past two years the efforts of Government and the Members of Finance Committee have all been concentrated on helping Cayman Airways to succeed and survive.

"This help has been through financial assistance at various levels and through different means; through an annual operating subsidy which often proved inadequate, through guarantees and loans and through studies conducted by airline experts.

"The financial statements to June 30, 1991, were recently tabled in the Legislative Assembly. This shows very clearly the seriousness of Cayman Airways' situation."

He goes on to say: "Secondly, that a capital injection of CI$16.8 million be made as early as possible by Government, negotiating a loan from a bank or banks in the private sector,...." Well, it has to be that loan the Mover is referring to, but has very carefully put in the clause that does not identify why the massive amount of money had to be paid in, or where it was paid from. So this was an act of the previous Government.

The situation was clearly set out on page 10 of the Finance Committee Report by the Honourable Financial Secretary, it says: "When one looks at what the situation of Cayman Airways is as of the 31st of March, one can well assume that probably US$20 million or CI$16.8 million may not solve the problem initially."

"The Member [Mr. Norman Bodden] circulated some interim financial statements to Members of this House and it showed that as at the 31st of March, the accumulated deficit of Cayman Airways amounted to approximately $35 million."

So, Madam Speaker, there is no doubt... and he went on further to say on page 11: "Finally, I have never deluded myself into believing that Cayman Airways will ever make a profit, and the other Members may want to take issue with me on this, but I believe that once the operating aspect of Cayman Airways can be defined as to the likely revenue that will be generated as against the operating expenses and the subsidy decided upon by the Government, be it $3 million, $4 million, $5 million, $6 million, I think all of that can be brought together in order to achieve a break-even position."

So, the Government at that stage was looking at a possible $6.0 million of subsidy.

Madam Speaker, there is no doubt that Cayman Airways capital injection that we received in early 1993 was as a result of losses that had existed at the time and that were continuing. I want to point this out, it was not as if when I took over the losses stopped. The losses carried on for several months until the downsizing could take place.

The consultants were not the ones who said that Cayman Airways was bankrupt, it was the auditors. So, let us not confuse the auditors, whom we still have (external auditors) with consultants. They were not the ones who made the statements. Those statements were in the Auditor General's Reports of the latter years, I think maybe 1991 and 1992. The reports were very clear.

While the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is trying to say that Government only had the liability of the guarantees on the leases at the time, there was a statement in the audited report, which has now been removed, which specifically says that Government would be responsible for debts of Cayman Airways. I will read that back and deal with it because in my view that possibly put the liability of $112 million on Cayman Airway's and the Government's backs.

But, once again, without experts I negotiated (along with the help of the Managing Director, the members of the Board of Cayman Airways and the staff) out of a lot of liabilities—without the help of SH & E and the two Opposition Members.

In fact, the continuous questions put, especially by the Opposition Members, on Cayman Airways—some of them stupid questions, such as, "How many passengers have you carried in ten years?" which I fail to see the relevancy of—have only cost Cayman Airways more problems. We have wasted time having to answer them and they have consistently tried to chip away at it and, I submit, hurt Cayman Airways with some of the questions that have been raised.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Elected Member?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker, I think the Honourable Minister, in proposing that the Opposition poses stupid questions, is casting an un-flattering reflection on the Chair who has to approve questions. I object to the Honourable Minister describing questions as "stupid questions," when they have to pass the sanction and the approval of the Chair.

The Speaker: Again, that is a valid point of order, because questions receive the final approval of the Chair and come before this House. I do not think any Chair would admit stupid questions, and the questions receive answers in due course.

So, could you refrain from using that expression, Honourable Minister?

Thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Sure.

Madam Speaker, some of the questions which have been approved by the House, then, have wasted Cayman Airway's time, such as the one I mentioned. So I am not implying anything, the question was properly here. But I am saying that it has wasted the time and money of Cayman Airway's to reply to questions which seem to have only a damaging effect on the airline, from the point of view of Cayman Airways .

The Speaker: Would you take a break at this time, Honourable Minister?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.38 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.03 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning, continuing the debate.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I can pick up a consultant's report on just about anything that I want to or need to at any time. The report that I relied on heavily in the early days was one from Aviation Services of Ireland. This was just a short report (perhaps about 80 or 90 pages), and it was a report on aspects carried out in 1991 on Cayman Airways. It is one report that I went back to from time-to-time in the early stages.

Madam Speaker, the National Teams' Manifesto on Cayman Airways reads so closely to what was the right thinking then, even though we could not foresee the future, that it is sometimes frightening to realise how accurately the National Team assessed Cayman Airways' position and what should be done to curb the massive haemorrhaging of public funds that was going on then.

I would like to just read this, because it laid the ground work for the National Team's success with Cayman Airways—every member of that team, including the First Elected Member for Bodden Town who was a member of the National Team and also adhered to this Manifesto. What was in this was so accurate and worked so well, that I would like to read it. It reads: "We support Cayman Airways ("CAL") and regard it as valuable to the Cayman Islands' economy and to our people.

"Our objectives: 1) We believe that in accordance with paragraph 3.1—'Main Conclusion and Recommendation'—of the report of consultants Airline Services Ireland (ASI), CAL should "consolidate and optimise its present position in terms of market share, load factor, revenues and costs. In pursuance of this strategy every effort should be made to contain major financial and marketing exposures such as would be created by further fleet expansion...."

I would like to inject here, Madam Speaker, that we are very lucky to have the Managing Director that we have now, who was on one of the teams in the ASI report at the time.

The $450,000 that the last Government spent on all of these reports from SH & E, if they had tried to find one good person who had contributed to the reports as we did, and employed them at far less than that, they would have gotten better results. I think that the highest praise has to be given to Mr. Ray Wilson, who came to us from the Irish Airlines, for what he has done and the difficulties under which he did it, because in the early days politics were a lot more rampant in Cayman Airways than it is now. We are not going to let the airline go back to that stage.

Reading from our Manifesto: "2) CAL should have followed ASI's recommendation and should now by legal means reduce its fleet back to three suitable jets at reasonable lease rates.

3) Review CAL's routes where serious losses are made."

We know what happened there, Madam Speaker, with the New York route. Promotions done by Cayman Airways and the Government in New York... at one time the losses reached nearly $4.0 million in one year. That is money that came out of the public's pocket. We cut back the jet fleet to two and we eliminated some of the routes. We cut the Turks and Caicos route, the New York/Baltimore route, but kept the Sister Islands route. And I want to come back to that because the subsidy that Cayman Airways now receives is a subsidy largely for moving passengers freely to and from the Sister Islands.

Of all people to attack the subsidy is the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. It goes to show how out of touch he is....

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order, Honourable Elected Member?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister responsible for Cayman Airways, Education and Planning is deliberately twisting and misleading the House, in talking about me attacking the subsidies of Cayman Airways which are largely used for the payment of the aircraft to fly to Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: Honourable Members, I think there must be a certain leeway in discussion, but I think what is more important is that any sort of derogatory contribution should be eliminated.

Shall we not deal with the subjects as issues rather than inferences that Members may be "out of touch," or whatever. Please let us keep the debate on the issue before the House.

Honourable Minister, would you please continue?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, with respect, the second recital of the Motion says: "...WHEREAS there is a subsidy of $4.0 million being injected into the airline by Government annually." The Member has spoken on it. He has said...

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, you did infer that he was "out of touch," and that is the point that the Honourable Elected Member objected to and raised. I think that is absolutely unnecessary in a debate. Please continue. We know what is stated in the Motion. Let us leave out expressions of the way we think other people are—whether they are in or out of touch.

Can we just continue on the issue and the items before the House? Thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the subsidy itself that is paid—and I will show this—is paid largely because of the heavy losses that Cayman Airways has on the Cayman Brac route. And that is well known to Members of this House. That arises out of an effort to help the Sister Islands passengers travel at the same price from Miami or Tampa to Cayman as they do to Cayman Brac. Therefore...

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, please. Now you are entering into a debate with me. The Member has raised a point because you did say that the Member was "out of touch." That is the particular aspect of your contribution to which I refer. I think that we need to get away from saying that people are out of touch or anything in that respect.

He has raised an objection to that, and I am just saying could you please continue your debate without saying that the Member is out of touch, or any expression about how you feel about a particular Member. That is all I am asking

Please continue to go on with your debate, Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I did not realise that I had said anything about out of touch again. But I am just going to deal with the subsidy to Cayman Brac now...

The Speaker: Please continue, thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: ...and it is set out in the recital. That subsidy is there to help the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman so that their economy can thrive. It is there because people travelling on Cayman Airways go at the same fare from Miami/Cayman/Cayman Brac as they do from Miami or Tampa to Cayman or wherever. If the subsidy that has been spoken of by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, which apparently gives the Member concern, is pulled, then it is the equivalent of pulling the routes of Cayman Airways from Cayman Brac, because the subsidy is directly put in there to assist Cayman Airways in flying to Cayman Brac.

Therefore, Madam Speaker, any move by any Member—and speaking generally—to try to reduce that subsidy, or to in any way get at it, means that the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will suffer. It is there to assist those people and whoever does not understand that in this honourable House has a shortness of memory if they do not know why the $4 million in subsidy is there.

I know that there are politicians who over the years, and more recently, have attacked this but they have to understand that the repercussion and the fall-out is going to be on the population of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman because their tourism is going to suffer. Therefore, the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are going to suffer if the injection of subsidy is not given to Cayman Airways.

When we fly people on that route, and they do not pay anything extra, then we obviously must make a loss. I submit that anyone (speaking generally) who attacks Cayman Airways or the subsidy, is attacking the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman—and I am speaking generally—I submit that this subsidy has to continue. In fact, it looked to me as if the last Government was considering moving it up to $6.0 million. Anyone who cannot see how Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are benefiting from Cayman Airways and the subsidy they are getting, is distant to the problems of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Reading now from the Manifesto again, it says: "4) Strengthen CAL's Board of Directors and set guidelines with accountability to the Member for Tourism who must account to the public for expenditure of public funds on CAL."

Well, Madam speaker, we kept the same Board of Directors which Cayman Airways had, and that continued throughout the two-odd years since. We did set guidelines, and what has helped tremendously is that the Honourable Financial Secretary, the Attorney General and myself sitting in at Board meetings. Guidelines have been put out and there is accountability. We no longer have a Management Committee with very wide powers. And we know what happened in the early days, it appeared at times that the Executive Committee (which we abolished and which was mentioned in paragraph 5), made decisions which only came to the Board for ratification after [the decision had been made].

I read again: "5) Abolish the Executive Committee as recommended by the consultants and reduce the Managing Director's power and review this position."

"6) Institute better management, staff communication, participation and team work ethics and review CAL's reservation system."

These have all been done and it has worked.

"7) Seek a legal solution in relation to the two 737-400s which Guinness Peat Aviation (GPA) has a right to return in 1994 for three years at a total lease cost of approximately US$20 million."

The public needs to be reminded that there was a judgment against Cayman Airways in the United Kingdom by GPA of approximately $5.3 million. But three years into the judgment Cayman Airways had to take back two 737-400s at a cost of $20 million.

Madam Speaker, we negotiated our way out of that. That alone would have triggered the bankruptcy of this country because by then, when Cayman Airways had grounded the two 737-400s (one was taken back and the other was grounded) they had gone ahead and leased a third 737-400 from ILFC. If that was not economic madness, Madam Speaker, then I have never seen it. Because at that stage...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I move on the point of relevance in regard to the Resolve of this Motion which asks Government to consider commissioning an entity to undertake a review of a situational assessment of the airline, Cayman Airways, at this time.

The Speaker: I am afraid that is not a point of order, because the Honourable Minister is at liberty in expressing his view to bring in any relevant issue he wishes, which is what he appears to be doing at the moment. So, it is not a valid point of order.

Honourable Minister, would you continue please?

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Yes, Madam Speaker, we have to remember that SH & E in their situational assessment gave Cayman Airways an "A" for their, what I referred to as, economic madness.

So, we had a situation where Cayman Airways had gone bankrupt (and I will show this from the Auditor General's Report), and because of that, I submit, had been the selling of the two 727-200s and the leasing of the two 737-400s which they could not afford. While getting rid of one of them, and grounding another... and, by the way they not only owed money on the extra 737-400 at the end of 1992, but they also owed ILFC money on the 737-200s which they had.

What we now have is obviously better management and communication. Paragraph 8 of the Manifesto says: "8) In light of CAL's serious losses of US$20.0 million for the two financial years, 1990 and 1991 to 30th June 1991, and US$4.8 million for six months ending 31st December 1991, immediately action will be taken to reduce future losses."

That we have done, Madam Speaker. The National Team has put Cayman Airways back on its feet. I hope all Members of this House and the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will listen carefully. Paragraph 9 says: "9) Ensure that there are regular, practical flights to, from and between Cayman Brac and Little Cayman which are convenient."

We have increased the flights to Cayman Brac and we know that flights to Little Cayman have also been increased.

Perhaps, Madam Speaker, one of the things that created very heavy liability on Government... and I want to point this out because the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman seems to believe that because we have guarantees, now equalling about $8.5 million, that this is large compared to what existed before.

Madam Speaker, the audit by PriceWaterhouse dated the 4th of September, 1992, which would have been from December 1991, had this to say. I read: "Without qualifying our opinion, we draw attention to the following matters which are more fully discussed in Note I to the Financial Statement. At December 1991 the company's current liabilities exceeded its current assets by $20,422,488 and its total liability exceeded its total assets by $16,669,547." Therefore, the company was technically insolvent.

"In view of the significance of the excess of the company's current liabilities over its current assets; the company's inability to generate sufficient cash flow to meet its liabilities; the company's wholly dependant upon the financial support of the Government if it is able to discharge its obligations and continue to as a going concern.

Subsequent to 31st December, 1991 Government has indicated that it is intends to make $20 million available to the company to assist it to meet its financial obligations."

Prior to 31st December, 1991, it was well accepted by the auditors that Cayman Airways was technically insolvent and that at least $20 million was needed (as they put it) to assist it to meet its financial obligations. We know that in 1992 the situation worsened further, so the debts had increased to close to $40 million when taken in total. The statement of the Government continuing to assist Cayman Airways was one that obviously could have created liability.

Let us now look at some of the many reports here, and look at Cayman Airways today and where SH & E placed it only a few years ago. This is one of the reports of SH & E called, "Financial Feasibility Subsidy/Route Value and Future Development of Cayman Airways," which was done sometime on the 9th of August, 1991. On page 7 it states: "CAL's estimated financial year 1991 net losses are $7.9 million excluding subsidy."

So that is actually $12.3 million in loss. It goes on to say: "This corresponds to an extremely high 19.5% of pre-subsidy revenue. To frame the magnitude of this loss, consider that for an airline the size of Pan Am, a loss margin of 10% (1.5 of Cayman Airway's loss margin) would result in an approximate $350 million."

"Another way of looking at CAL's projected financial year 1991 loss is to portray it as $22,000 per day or over $20 per passenger."

And we know that that worsened.

The question of whether the present jets, as referred to in regard to the change of equipment, whether that was right or not... I do not believe the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman challenges the position that the selling of the 727-200s and the leasing of the 737-400s was wrong.

Madam Speaker, in a Dissenting Statement to the majority report of the Standing Finance Committee in 1989, the Report, signed by the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and myself set out what was a very wise position at the time. I would like to read just parts of the report. It says: "We, the undersigned Members of the Standing Finance Committee, [the three members] hereby submit the following dissenting statement objecting to the leasing of two 737-400s and subleasing CAL's 727-200s to preserve the present position until the matter can be properly dealt with."

The grounds are broadly... that we received a bundle of papers numbered in no particular order, about 89 sheets, some of which were not legible having been photocopied many times apparently, they were received by some Members as late as Tuesday afternoon for the meeting on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock.

We stated very clearly that the reasons for opposing them were that firstly, Cayman Airways had, for the first time in 1989, reached a stage where it was showing a profit that had not been shown maybe in 10, 12 or 14 years earlier. We pointed out that the present jets were on a lease purchase, and we know that Cayman Airways got $12.5 million for them and took an option to buy them back six years later at $16 million. I will not call that financial madness, but it was not very prudent financial management.

We pointed out in this that, "the leasing of another person's jet places a very heavy burden on Cayman Airways and a breach of the lease can mean loss of the jets, and we are back to square one with no flying equipment other than the shorts." This actually happened, Madam Speaker, and when we got into office ILFC was owed $1.5 million and they were taking back the last two 737-200s that were there. We met with them and got it put off and paid them money.

The minority report itself has set out in a summary form (because it is a fairly long report) the following: "The undersigned Members therefore, having regard to the shortness of time given the inadequacies of the documents and reports; the failure to fully present the case; reserving the present jets at the present position; the total failure to state the inherent risks of leasing new jets and sub-leasing the present jets; failure to consult the public on a matter of such major importance; the speed at which the deal was pursued without having other competitive bids at the time and the ultimate high costs brought about by the lessors of the 737-400s being able to name the price they wished, and a failure of Cayman Airways to produce and discuss its overall financial loss position. We have no alternative but to vote against the leasing of the 737-400s and sub-leasing the 727-200s to preserve the present position and to allow this complex matter to be dealt with in a timely and more informed comprehensive way."

This country would have saved $35 million by this wise minority report of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the Minister for Communications Agriculture and Works, and myself, who, at the time, were basically the Backbench Opposition Members. We had the foresight to know that the sale was wrong because we would have at this stage, from two years ago, owned the 727-200s and not have to pay lease payments on them. Can you imagine where Cayman Airways would be today? Owning assets—the 727-200s. Let me remind the House that they were 168 to 175 passenger jets, they carried 10,000 more pounds freight than the ones we now lease, and they were very much accepted.

If we could do what we did against the odds we had then, I would have been able to stand here and fully assure this honourable House that the future of Cayman Airways would be very bright because our profit would be in the area of $2.5 million more than it is now. Secondly, what we put into those 727-200s would improve the asset.

When we look at the wise words of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman (when he kept better company)... we looked at what SH & E had to say about his wise decision. On page 4 of the Report on Cayman Airways' Routes and Aircraft, SH & E said this: "CAL's decision to dispose of its B-727 aircraft was an excellent and extremely well timed decision. The disposal was well executed, generated substantial net cash, and has an annual continuing value to CAL in excess of $1.5 million."

"Replacement with B-737-400 aircraft was a good, [once again, was a good] but not necessarily the best, decision based on the facts at the time."

Now, Madam Speaker, I really do not believe that any Member of this House, including the Opposition, can stand here today and say that they support that opinion. I am not trying to get at the experts, okay? Consultants are consultants. But I want to show, Madam Speaker, with hindsight, how we were right and what the experts said at the time has proved to be so wrong, because we know that Cayman Airways' losses resulted directly from the leasing of the 737-400s—the Managing Director admitted it at the time, the Member responsible at the time admitted it, the Government admitted it at the time, and then there was a scramble within one year after leasing them to get rid of them.

So, I am not too sure whether the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, having made such a wise decision on his own without SH & E, now may wish to rethink their opinion on how wise, excellent and good the decision Cayman Airways made at the time and why we should go back and get another opinion from them.

In another area of the report on page 27 under "Fleet Decisions," SH & E stated: "By both subjective and quantitative measures, the B-727 disposal was an excellent decision; and replacement with B-737-400 aircraft was a good decision based on the facts at the time."

Madam Speaker, if the decision was excellent and good, how did the results turn out so bad and catastrophic? All I can say is that, at least at the time when we looked at it and subsequently made further statement, of which the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman was involved in, we agreed on those decisions.

The course we took then was one that was right and, unfortunately for the public of this country, because they have to pay back the $35.0 million of debts, they could have continued paying that over the next 16 years. It will not be forgotten early. That could have saved them if they had followed the Backbench at the time.

At the time the Government had the benefit of the accountant, Mr. Linford Pierson. In an article of the 2nd of August, 1993, in the Caymanian Compass, on the front page headlines, 'CAL deal with Alaska Airlines' I quote: "Almost an offer too good to be true". We know that that statement and, as it mentions in here, what Mr. Linford Pierson referred to as a "sweetheart deal," was the ultimate disaster for Cayman Airways.

Madam Speaker, that report goes on to say that the then Member, Mr. Linford Pierson, referred to this as a "sweetheart deal," and it was too good to be true because it is like selling a motor car to someone for $12 million (which is what we sold the jets for) and then buying it back five years later for $16.0 million. That just does not make sense; as the car gets older (as the jet gets older) it is bound to cost less.

They went on to say how Cayman Airways was now well capitalised for the first time—and we know that they went through that capital in nine months. Twelve and a quarter million dollars was blown in nine months. In fact, Madam Speaker, the Member at the time and the other Executive Council Members noted, "CAL was finally in a good cash position with the deal." That is true. For the first time Cayman Airways had capital. It had debts but it had $12.25 million in cash.

Not only did they spend the $12.25 million, but the $20 million that they passed in July in Finance Committee was also spent, partly before and partly after the sale of the 727-200s. By the way, Madam Speaker, they now appear newer than the 737-200s we were flying.

Be that as it may, Mr. Linford Pierson (the Member then) on the 10th of August, 1989, said words to this effect when talking about this: "You hear them talking about the sweetheart deal with Alaska Air? Of course it was a sweetheart deal, but none are so blind as those who fail to see. There are some of the Members of the Legislative Assembly who walk around with their heads filled with misinformation. They make you believe that they know what they are talking about. But how can they understand the intricate, complicated financial matters? [this is the interesting part] They are not trained in these matters, how can they understand them? It is difficult enough when you are trained on those matters, but they are the first and they are the loudest to shout information.

"The genesis and the basis for the sweetheart deal of Cayman Airways came about because of certain ... and I will not go into the detail of this because it will be in the newspaper tomorrow all mixed up, but it was because of certain tax concessions."

Madam Speaker, in looking back on this and having been chastised, not just myself but the entire Backbench at the time who were involved in this and who were against the sale, by Mr. Linford Pierson... Quite frankly, I wonder who got the sweetheart deals? Because it sure was not Cayman Airways—it bankrupted Cayman Airways.

Mr. Linford Pierson mentioned the large amount of profit that Cayman Airways was going to make. What a joke. Really, what a joke. But the unfortunate thing, Madam Speaker, is that the people of this country are now paying for that $35 million and they will be paying it for a very long time to come.

Even after the 727-200s were sold, the then seven Backbenchers, which included Mr. Franklin Smith, on the 10th of July, 1989, tried to stop the leasing of the 737-400s even though the sale of the 727-200s had gone through. Unfortunately the Finance Committee was made up of the three Official Members and the Government had its say.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, would you take a suspension at this time?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Ma'am.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.15 pm.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.49 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.36 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning, continuing the debate.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I was dealing with the fact that the consultants recommended in the Motion had stated quite clearly in several instances in their report that the decision to sell the 727-200s and lease the 737-400s was an excellent one, and in one instance a good decision; and that the report card (I will call it) of Cayman Airways, which is the situational assessment the Motion is now asking for, at a time when Cayman Airways was in very serious problems, came out with straight "A's" with the exception of one "B".

To bear that out, I would just like to read further from two different sections of the report by SH & E on Financial Feasibility. On page 7 of the 1991 Report, it states: "On its current path CAL will run out of cash, default and possibly face limited or full shut-down by October 1991. Although CAL and the Government have options to avoid a drop-dead situation, these options do not diminish the seriousness of the situation.

"CAL is solvent today only because of financial year 1990 Lease assignment revenue [and we know that is the $12.5 million from the 727s], additional Government loan guarantees and aggressive stretching of payables."

If that is not use of the English language in its most flamboyant way, saying that the company is, as they put it, "in a drop-dead situation"... The company (Cayman Airways) at that stage was in a situation where it could not continue without help. Perhaps one of the most amazing things that I think will give the present Cayman Airways and the National Team far more than straight "As," is a statement made on page 10 of the report in 1991. It says: "Thus, Cayman Airways Limited is un- likely to ever maintain sustained profitability due to structural reasons, no matter how excellent its management, planning and execution."

What they are really saying there, Madam Speaker, is that Cayman Airways will never make it. And with that in mind their performance is straight "As".

Well, without the help of the consultants, and a lot of hard work by the management, the board, the staff, myself and, most importantly, the way in which the National Team has stood by me in making decisions which were based on business experience and ability, Cayman Airways has done what the consultants said could never be done.

If anyone wondered what the future of Cayman Airways was going to be under the last Government... and we must remember that Mr. Linford Pierson and Mr. Ezzard Miller were the chief movers—Mr. Linford Pierson was the accountant who made those statements about the sweetheart deal on the sale of the 727-200s which ultimately crippled Cayman Airways. The responsibility must lie on their shoulders too, for the large loans that Cayman Airways now has to pay off.

Madam Speaker, the future of Cayman Airways was set out on page 12 of the report, and in an effort to avoid the impact of the statement, there was a footnote to it. It says: "Based on these factors, SH & E recommends an annual subsidy of $2.5 million plus or minus $0.5 million". That is all well and good, but it has a footnote No. 1 by it, and when you go to the footnote it says: "The transitional subsidy through year end averaging perhaps $1.0 million per month, excluding peak periods, would probably be necessary to permit rehabilitation."

Can you imagine this country popping $1.0 million a month (or $12.0 million per year) into Cayman Airways for the rest of its future?

After the 1992 General Election Cayman Airways was an economic and a national disaster. We have taken it out of that stage.

Now when we look at the past Government's history (or anyone's) on consultants... and one of the things that we are constantly reminded of by the two Opposition Members, who keep blaming us for spending too much money, is here we have Cayman Airways getting a little bit of money and they want us to now go and spend more money on consultants. We know that nearly $.5 million was spent on consultants—that is a lot of money—only to be told that where the company (Cayman Airways) was in, as they put it, "a drop-dead situation," they were given "A's" throughout. "No formal needs-assessment appears to have been developed by management prior to initiating discussions with consultants. And in five out of the 7 consultants studied no terms of reference were formalised between client and consultant." I submit that is exactly what probably happened because there were two consultants consulting on the same thing in the same year. That was the track record of the last Government, as set out in the 1993 Auditor General's Report in relation to consultants. It is perhaps the most confusing statement I have seen in the report because the Government had to be in a state of confusion in 1991. At the end I will tell the public how I assessed Cayman Airways and the simplicity with which I assessed it. But in Select Committee the report of the review of Cayman Airways tabled in the Legislative Assembly on the 9th of September, 1991, under "Terms of Reference," on page two of the report says: "The term of reference was to review and advise on the airline's development regard to aircraft selection and routes and to recommend improvements, if any, therein."

"SH & E elaborated in regard to questions arising out of the findings that: 'SH & E applauds the replacement of B-727s with B737-400s and feels that 'current conditions' dictate replacement of one B737-400 with two less expensive B737-200s or 300s.'"

This statement is in effect saying Cayman Airways did the right thing by leasing two 737-400s, and in the next breath, after applauding them for doing such a good job, they say that you must sell one of the 400s and lease two 200s or two 300s. This is a quotation taken from their findings. It is totally against what they have said.

But, in any event, replacing one 737-400 with two 727-200s would have been a greater economic disaster than keeping the one 737-400 they had. They had two 737-400s at the time, but, as we know, they were ready to take on a third and they had options to lease two other 400s. They could have ended up with five 737-400s which would have been an annual lease payment of $15.0 million.

We are very lucky that the National Team got in when they did because, Mr. Linford Pierson and Mr. Ezzard [Miller] of the last Government, had already put the country into economic disaster.

One of the things that I saw while reading the dissenting statement in depth was where we stated: "Option I"—there were three options that were put forward by the Government back in 1989] which was to keep and operate the 727-200s, showed very clearly that it is US$30,104.00 per month or $361,248.00 per year, cheaper to continue doing what we are now doing, than to lease the new jets and sub-lease our present 727-200s or to sell our 727-200s and lease and operate the 737-400s.

The Government, in my view, had to deliberately go against the economics of Cayman Airways at the time. What this infatuation was, in that they had to have these over-expensive 747-400s, is beyond me. On page 3 of the same report we quoted a statement from the Public Accounts Committee of 1988, of which Mr. Linford Pierson was the Chairman. If he is ever to be put back as a part of a government, as I understand he, Mr. Ezzard Miller and the two Opposition Members may be, this is what was in the report at that time. It states: "It is un- able [meaning the Public Accounts Committee and Mr. Linford] to determine whether the deterioration in Cayman Airways Limited is due to an inadequate subvention or managerial problems in the airlines.

“It recommends that Government clarify the consideration which are adopted for the level of subsidy for particular years.”

He was not able to tell whether the problems of Cayman Airways was an inadequate subvention (which is a subsidy) or managerial. It is frightening to believe that the same Mr. Linford Pierson, with the sweetheart deals, and Mr. Ezzard Miller are out there running around trying to form another government in the near future. It is a frightening thing. I submit that there is no way they have the ability to run a country.

The position of Cayman Airways at present is quite good. I do not believe that this House needs to pay a large sum of money out to SH & E, or anyone else, because the public is paying me, and it is paying Members of the National Team and the House to do the job themselves.

I must say that I have nothing against consultants, generally, but when things were in such a drastic stage we had consultants and we were paying them a large amount of money. At present we are in a very healthy position compared to what existed at that time. During the two years of 1990 and 1991 (I think it may have stretched into 1992), Cayman Airways paid $490,000 to consultants for advice. What is being brought forward here and asked for in this Motion is a situational assessment, and this, as we know, is a report card which the last Government got to look good before the elections. But it did not work, the people of this country know the difference between where Cayman Airways now is and where it was then.

The last Government, who, it seems, are now supported in their views on certain things by the two Opposition Members, is now moving to bring back consultants who gave about seven "As" and one "B" to Cayman Airways; who said that the changing of the 727-200s for 737-400s was excellent and good, presumably to get them to try and tender advice to me to go ahead and wreck Cayman Airways and get it back in politics the way it was when the National Team took over.

The last Government took the decision against the wishes of the Backbenchers—and we actually went to London and pointed out to the United Kingdom Government that Cayman Airways was heading for economic disaster. No one heeded our advice at the time. I guess what they heeded was SH & E's report that Cayman Airways was in A-1 condition. Yet, on the other hand, they were talking about financial disaster and the end of Cayman Airways.

We are out of a situation where we were nearly bankrupt, and we have done that by taking the loan that the last Government approved (but could not get), and applying it to pay off the past debts of Cayman Airways.

Madam Speaker, if I had had $12.25 million in cash (as Cayman Airways did in 1989) to work with in 1992, I would have been able to go out and purchase two 737-200s. That could adequately have paid for two of them and I would have had no lease payments. But that is the short-sightedness of the situation back in 1983 or 1984 when the Government that I was in then purchased the two 727-200s—it was on a lease purchase, we ultimately would have owned them.

So we went from a position where for the last two years we would have not paid any rent because we would have owned two very good jets, to a situation where they were sold—in my view under priced, despite what SH & E said—and all the money was spent within a short period of time.

I do not believe that this Motion is well founded at all. I believe that if this Motion is passed and SH & E or any other consultants come into Cayman Airways, it is going to create trauma, disruption—perhaps much to the satisfaction and delight of a few politicians who are in Opposition; probably much to the delight of the derelicts of the last government who are now trying to join some of those politicians who are in Opposition to make up a government for next time. It is not something that can serve Cayman Airways well at this stage at all.

The last Government, and those involved with Cayman Airways at the time, always put the blame for failure on other people. Whenever Cayman Airways got into trouble, somebody else was blamed—they blamed American Airlines, they blamed the fuel up in the far East, they always blamed somebody—and that is why they were basically blaming government. But that does not achieve anything.

The public has put the National Team in to find solutions to the problems. We are not floundering Opposition Members, speaking generally, with nothing to contribute, or no alternatives to the problems. We are out there solving problems, and if anyone believes that the public does not appreciate what the National Team has done for Cayman Airways, the way it has saved this country from perhaps $100 million or $200 million of debts that could have arisen... Cayman Airways at present has all the money it has to pay current with less than 30 days. We are now paying $600,000 per annum on a loan left by the last Government in 1992. Previously Cayman Airways never paid the landing fees to the Civil Aviation Authority, we pay that now.

Instead of giving $.5 million out to consultants as was done in the past, we have been able to give that money to the staff. You have to remember that the staff of Cayman Airways did not get their raise in salary because consultants (ILFC and GPA) had to be paid. General Electric had to be paid, by the way, for an engine that sat up there for three years and was a debt of $4.5 million with interest that I had to deal with getting rid of. I do not believe that the staff should have to go back to the stage where money that could be used to give them a small raise—which they had not gotten in nearly three years, some of them had a reduction in salaries—I do not believe that they would be overjoyed with glee to hear that they are not going to get a raise for another two or three years because we have to pay a consultant to come in and give the company a report card.

Madam Speaker, no matter what is said, no one out there can say that Cayman Airways is not in a much better position; it is in an extremely good position from what it was before. When I went through maybe two or three inches of documentation ranging from financial analysis to legal documents, and spent time with the then Managing Director trying to figure where the problem was, I was shown a graph that showed that every time Cayman Airways added another route or another jet, the loss got greater. The graph moved upward from the left to the right hand side showing that as they increased the number of jets and routes, they increased the losses.

I came to what may seem to be a simple solution—and let me say this, that was not all that went into it—but the logic was that if you lose more when you add jets and routes, then when you cut jets and routes you will be better off. That is an oversimplification of the position, but I did not need a consultant (nor did the Financial Secretary or anyone else) to come in and tell us that if a situation worsens when you do something, if you reverse it (other things being equal) it must get better.

This year is going to be hard, once again because of the fact that the last Government entered into leases both of which came up within five months of each other—which is economic suicide to have any large turnover of equipment coming close together because it is just too strenuous in trying to deal with two major turnovers of replacement of jets at one time. That will not happen again, but we had heavy expenditure to get the old jets into the shape that they should be in order to be returned—naturally, to be repainted, refurbished and whatever had to be done to the new jets coming in. So this year is going to be somewhat worse. But, Madam Speaker, I believe that subject to what goes below the line and what is above the line (so to speak) on the accounts of last year, that Cayman Airways is going to show a profit after the subsidy.

I think that we will find that there has been an operating profit, as far as I can remember, in literally every month of that year. This has got to be quite an achievement from the days where there was an operating loss in every month, and at one stage nearly $14 million in one year.

The comments that are consistently hurled over here about the Mental Health Law and me... Madam Speaker, if I was able to achieve what I did in that period of time, then I believe they better hurl the Mental Health Law at some of their colleagues of the past who, in my view, were economically crazy. Perhaps it should be considered as well in the light of bringing this Motion to the House.

We had a situation a week or so ago in which we had about $1 million of extra cash on the overdraft. In other words, we were about $1.0 under the overdraft limit. We are continuing to pay off the loan month by month, $50,000 per month, or $600,000 a year go towards the loan.

For the first time, and without the help of any large amount of capital... because we have to remember that the $12.2 million in capital for the sale of the 727-200s was supplemented with $20.0 million in loans, even though it was authorised in July of 1992, even with that Cayman Airways was not out of the red. It still had a financial problem.

We have tried to be fair with this. The last Government took from the staff to give to the large corporations, consultants, leasing companies, and let them suffer unduly. But if they are not aware of what they can expect if Cayman Airways shifts to the responsibility of either one of the two Opposition Members, or to Mr. Ezzard Miller or Mr. Linford Pierson, I submit they will be back out on the street with nothing and no pay raises, and perhaps no future.

I believe that this Motion is only going to stir up trouble at Cayman Airways. I believe that this Motion is ill-founded.

I think back to one of the more comical times when we asked what it would take to make a profit out of the New York route. We were told to fly the plane with 120% passengers. That is to give you some idea of the mental state of the people at the time, since that has been thrown across here.

When you look at where we are—and we are there despite the bombardment of questions to the Ministry regarding Cayman Airways, which take a lot of time and effort when staff have to be pulled off their regular job to get the information; and when you see the beginning of the line-up of the possible challenges to the National Team and the defunct and lost persons who are making that up—I believe that the people of this country can quite safely say that if Cayman Airways remains the responsibility of the National Team, if the Opposition will try to see positive things, try to help, try to do things that are useful to the airline rather than tearing it down and putting it into politics, then Cayman Airways has a future.

If Cayman Airways is thrown back into the political arena of persons who oppose this Government, generally, then the aim of those persons has to be a premeditated move to cause chaos within Cayman Airways and thus cause its ultimate downfall and liquidation.

I know that the Opposition Members got upset somewhat earlier when I was pointing out certain facts, but I will leave them with what the President of the United States, Harry S. Truman, once said: "I never give them hell; I only tell the truth and they think it is hell."

Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is a common and accepted understanding that Cayman Airways as a national entity provides this country with limited access to the outside world, and that this entity must continue to exist as it plays an important part in the national development of our country.

I argue also that, this being the case, the continued assessment of the airline becomes of critical importance. Cayman Airways has long moved from an area of symbolic importance to one of national budgetary importance by virtue of the fact that most recently the Government granted it a significantly large subsidy, and it also draws a subsidy to the tune of C$4.0 million per year.

I think that it is safe to say that no one is suggesting, as has been suggested in the past, that the airline is a bastion of Government waste. However, the inference of this Motion is that since there has been a significant community-wide rally, to the point of tolerating the downsizing of the aircraft, it is fair and reasonable to expect that the airline from time-to-time is put through some assessment.

Madam Speaker, I certainly do not have to argue about any qualifications that I have in business, no more than to say that certain principles of administration apply whether they come from Educational Administration, which I have a Masters Degree in, or Business Administration, and I have been involved in running a business for 15 years successfully. Certainly, Madam Speaker, I am well familiar with what assessment, what accounts shareholders and directors require. I find the suggestion that an assessment such as this, or some kind of audit by technical professional expertise as being something to place the airline into the arena of politics and political football, ludicrous. Any proficient manager must expect to provide, beyond the day-to-day accounting and entries in the ledger, professional and audited assessments at regular intervals, not only to satisfy himself or herself, but also as a requirement for the shareholders and directors of the company to show how their investments are being handled. Certainly, outside opinion adds weight and credence to any boast a manager or policy-maker may make in saying this company is being run well.

Madam Speaker, certain organisations send in their own people to see that you are properly managing the resources with which you are entrusted; that you are making the best of the advertising budget; that you are promoting the technical aspects of the products most effectively and, above all, to see that you are effectively utilising the material and equipment with which you work. We have heard from the inception of the National Team Government that Cayman Airways is doing well. Certainly, the Opposition has been tolerant. But I contend that the proof of the pudding is in the tasting—anyone can say that they are making a profit, the proof, however, is in reading or viewing the audited and certified statements.

There is something else I wish to say. It would be a poor business manager who could not operate a business successfully with a subsidy—so, that is nothing to boast about. If I were guaranteed $4.0 million annually, I could, with relative ease, operate successfully. So to say that Cayman Airways is going to make a profit after subsidy is certainly, by my criterion, not an achievement to boast about—it is the least one would expect under the circumstances.

Madam Speaker, the Opposition in this Motion is not even taking an issue with that. We are saying that we will accept that, but we would wish to see by this assessment what is happening with the airline now. It does not have to be with SH & E, the Motion only used that company as an example by virtue of the fact that they would have had some familiarity with the airline. It could be another organisation in a similar area. We are saying that we would like to see what is happening to the airline now. Are we making the best use of the subsidy, for example? Are we making the best use of the expertise we have on staff, routes and advertising?

Anyone with a modicum of ability can lay the claim that if you provide a reasonable subsidy, they can keep the company afloat. We have not seen the accounts—for too long now. I say that the ultimate test of the Honourable Minister's self-acclaimed success lies in the accounts; and until we get them I have to say that I remain to be convinced.

Madam Speaker, growing up in the 1960s I am well familiar with a saying that was popular at the time: "What if they gave a war and nobody came?" That saying arose out of the protest movement, or the anti-war movement, as it was then. What if there were no government to blame from 1989 to 1992? What would we do? As far as I am concerned we are operating on a clean slate—history began for us in 1992. I have no business with anyone else before that time, they do not exist. Cayman Airways, under the current regime, got the subsidy after the demise of the Government from 1988 to 1992. So that is where we begin; before that it is pre history, we do not need to go into that. So, I would caution and shy away from heaping all the blame on persons or personalities who were involved at that time.

Further, Madam Speaker, if they were so inept, if they were so inefficient, then why are they now haunting the Minister with responsibility for Cayman Airways? Because if they are not haunting him, I would like to know why he so often has to mention them? Why does the Minister not just let them die in peace? What he needs to tell us is where we are going from here. What is the next step now under his excellent management?

It is true that the Motion has merit. Contrary to what the Honourable Minister tries to portray, no one wants to bring Cayman Airways back into the realm of politics in which it floundered for many years before. But the Honourable Minister also has a very short memory because he must remember that he led the assault on Cayman Airways during the time that it mired in the politics, as he talked about. Regarding floundering Opposition Members with nothing to contribute, as his statement says, I do not know where they are, because if the Opposition had nothing to contribute, then, certainly, the Minister would not have tried so hard to convince us that he has created a miracle.

I take issue with several things that the Honourable Minister has said, but I want to highlight what I think is one important point which no one has taken issue with as yet.

It can be argued that there may be some persons interested in staying away from a situational assessment of Cayman Airways by an independent entity, for this reason: The present Managing Director of Cayman Airways was one of those persons involved in doing a study before. I am saying that in my management schooling and theory, I find a difficulty with that because how do I know that in this case someone did not write themselves into a job. That is all the more reason why I would wish to see an assessment by an outside independent entity—so that I would have access to a completely unbiased view. That is the reason why companies have external audits—so that a completely unbiased view can be had. I am saying that any organisation or entity which claims to be operating under modern scientific management must go through these kinds of assessments.

The Opposition did not lay any claims to any ability to read any balance sheet, but, by the same token, everyone involved in Cayman Airways is not an expert in the airline business either.

The significance of this reference to not being defunct escapes me, but if it is to convey the impression that there is something lacking in the people who raise certain challenges, in the people who make certain requests; if the significance of these kinds of statements is that these people are not up to a certain measurement, then I ask the Honourable Minister to look around. Certainly, he will find that among his Ministers some are in a similar, or worse, position.

I do not want to get into this business of throwing stones, Madam Speaker, but I am absolutely fed up with the stooping, and these insinuations and inferences to success or lack of success. I do not want to be nasty because I had some good prayers this morning. I just want to sound a warning that I can be like that. It is a pity that he does not take some of his success and pass it on to some of his colleagues who are in positions where...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a point of order, the Member is referring to me personally as "He" rather than "the Minister."

The Speaker: I am afraid that everybody has been mentioning each other so often.

Can I ask you, First Elected Member for Bodden Town, to get on with the debate on Private Member's Motion No. 9/95, please?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

You know, I have his weakness—he can give but he cannot take.

Anyway, Madam Speaker, far be it from the intention of the Motion to drag Cayman Airways into any political arena, but I appeal to the Honourable Minister's good business acumen and good business sense, because he has told us that he is a successful businessman and I really believe him, and I believe that he knows—certainly he says that he is a banker...

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, may I take a further point of order? The Member has said "he" six times rather than referring to me as a Member of the House. I know when the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman took that point when it was raised only once by the Minister for Community Development, the objection was upheld. This is six times he has referred to me as 'he', rather than referring to me as 'the Minister' or 'the Member.'

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I wonder if I should refer to him as 'she'?

The Speaker: Well, perhaps you could refer to him as the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning, please. Point taken.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning with responsibility for Cayman Airways says that his record in business is a successful one. I am certain that the Minister must be aware of the fact that in order to convince himself and others, being the good banker as was stated, certain assessments and audits have to be tabled in order to convince himself and others that the position claimed is the true position. This Motion is asking for nothing more than that. There is no hidden agenda, Madam Speaker, there is nothing evil or sinister about this.

The Mover, the Honourable Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and I, have as keen and as avid an interest in the success of Cayman Airways as any other Honourable Members of this House. But we are saying that we would like to be in an informed position so that we can justifiably promote the interest of the airline on the outside. We cannot do so now because certain information is lacking. We have nothing to go on but conjecture and what is aired from time-to-time by the Minister when he says that it is successful.

So, Madam speaker, there is merit in this Motion. I stand by my secondment of the Motion and I call on the Honourable Minister to pay heed and give credence to what we are asking, because a situational assessment at this time can only strengthen his position as well as that of the airline.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to preface my contribution to Private Member's Motion No. 9/95, Situational Assessment of Cayman Airways, with a few general comments that have to do with what I have observed over the past few days in the House.

I have noticed that there has been an ongoing debate—sometimes it has run into hours, and hours, and hours of prolonged debate—about what is sometimes said to be a Motion with no merit. If the Motions have no merit, then I can see little wisdom in wasting the time of the House to debate them at such length.

I also would like to make a few comments about civility. I think that it is very important in any forum, and in a House like this, to exercise civility. I would like to remind all Members in this Honourable House of a quote made by none other than the 18th century preacher Richard Cecil, who said: "Once there were two goats attempting to cross the bridge. When they got halfway across the bridge they found out that they could not cross and they could not turn back. Because of civility one decided to lie down and let the other walk over." He said that civility was born.

I believe that we may as well face the fact that the public is starting to get disgruntled and disgusted with some of the debates that they hear broadcasted from this House. I really believe that someone has got to speak up and that the tenor of our debate needs to change. At times there is absolutely no civility practised in the House, and I believe one side is as guilty as the other in this respect.

A member of my campaign committee decided to discuss this very issue last week, as I had a meeting. I believe it is not just his opinion, but I am hearing far and wide that the House is becoming just like the other House used to be. I will call on Members to let us try to rectify the situation to see that we debate matters in a more civil fashion with an attempt to reach a common ground in the interest of the country.

STATEMENT BY SPEAKER

The Speaker: Honourable Member, would you just sit for one moment, please? Thank you.

I have interrupted the Second Elected Member for George Town, because he is quite right. I think it is disturbing to know that in the midst of seasoned politicians we have a young politician who found it necessary to bring these matters to the attention of Members of the House.

Will you please continue your debate Honourable Member? Thank you.

CONTINUATION OF DEBATE

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to quote from an essay that was written by a bright High School student, and I think it will support some of the matters that we should be addressing. I quote: "The democratic system presupposes civil conduct in our courts and elected bodies. More generally, civility calls upon us to make an effort to see the other person's point of view and try to resolve differences democratically. It allows us to engage in dialogues with those whose ideas we oppose in a non-aggressive fashion. This leads to attempts to reconcile disagreements by seeking and moving toward common ground."

Towards the end of the essay, there is mention that: "...according to the well known Mark Kingswell, '... civility is basic to political life and pluralistic society, because it governs the continuing dialogue that makes such a society possible. Properly understood, civility may provide us with the most coherent and most progressive characterisation of social cohesion that we are likely to find.'"

Really the last paragraph that I will read from this essay, I found most stimulating, Madam Speaker. I read: "Civility does not preclude intense debate, nor does it lead us to back down from principles that really matter. It only means that we conduct our debates and defend our principles in an atmosphere of reasonableness and courtesy."

"Where there is civility and discourse, differences can be examined intelligently; they are not resolved by the unfair criterion of which party is able to shout the other down."

For a High School student to be so deep thinking and, really, to be so intelligent and observant as to recognise the importance of civility, I think we owe him lots of praise and he deserves lots credit. I shall not name the High School student, but I really believe that this young man is going to go places, and I do hope that we, although we are in a much loftier position than he is at the moment, would learn from his view points.

I would now like to go on to this Motion No. 9/95. It starts by saying: "Whereas massive amounts of money have been paid into Cayman Airways Limited, since 1993 to date, and major changes in management, personnel generally, equipment and its operation have taken place; and..." I do not think any of us would dispute that massive amounts of money have been paid into Cayman Airways. When this Government took office we had to try to re-capitalise the airline. We had to find $16.0 million, and it is important to say that this was because of the poor management of Cayman Airways. I believe the Minister has covered this adequately. Because of very poor management, the company was in serious financial problems. We had to find the money to re-capitalise the airline if it was not going to be liquidated. So huge amounts of money have had to be paid into Cayman Airways. As far as I am concerned, we are not so interested in laying the blame here, there, or any other place at the moment. But it is a fact that huge amount of money have been put into Cayman Airways in the recent past.

There have been major changes in management; we know that Mr. Ray Wilson is about to leave and although he will be retained on a consultant basis, a new manager has been appointed. There have been major changes in the company itself. I believe that most of these changes were necessary if we were going to have any airline at all.

The Honourable Minister knows that I have supported these changes and the decisions made in general that have taken place. Yes, there have been changes in the equipment. Recently, we know that we had to guarantee the lease of a plane for CitiCorp in December, and again in April we guaranteed a lease for a plane from Bullion Aviation. So there is nothing, in my opinion, inaccurate about that first recital.

"AND WHEREAS there is a subsidy of $4.0 million being injected into the airline by Government annually;". That is quite true. I understand that last year all of the money did not have to utilised. But, we have all agreed that it takes $4.0 million to keep the airline afloat that the Government would be willing to subsidise it because of the good benefits to the Cayman Islands.

It was my understanding that we all felt that we should do everything in our powers to keep the airline going. We also felt that it was not just the obvious benefits of the airline, but also the spin off benefits and the security of having the airline in the event that there is a pull out of other airlines. It is certainly reassuring and comforting to know that we have our own airline. We know otherwise how serious and severe it could be to our economy. It is very unlikely, in my opinion, that this would happen, but it is a possibility. For this, and many other reasons, we want to have our own airline.

I am proud of Cayman Airways, and I believe all of us will attest to the fact that we are extremely well treated when we fly Cayman Airways. Caymanians as a whole, seem to be behind Cayman Airways and they support the airline. So we are here to see to it that their wishes are respected.

"WHEREAS changes in aircraft have very recently been made and a change of top management imminent with the leaving of the present Managing Director;

"BE IT RESOLVED that Government consider commissioning Simat, Helliesen and Eichner Inc (SH & E), because of its familiarisation with Cayman Airways Limited, as a result of its past study, or such other specialised entity to undertake a review or situational assessment of the airline at this time."

It is my understanding that SH & E already acted as consultants for Cayman Airways. I remember reading part of the report, and I was never impressed by it, so this is one of the problems I have with this Resolve. I see no point in asking the same entity to come back to assess the airline for us. It also cost money. We noticed that as we go on the resolve says: "... or such other specialised entity...." I do not believe the Mover of the Motion would be upset if another organisation or firm assessed the airline.

The important thing in my mind is whether we think it is necessary to have a look at the airline at this point, then do something about it.

In view of all the recitals here, and because we know that Cayman Airways has not been in a healthy financial position for a very long time, I am of the opinion that it is very prudent to keep short accounts with the airline. I have to agree that I have not seen any accounts on Cayman Airways recently. I have not seen any balance sheet. But I have confidence in the Minister who is responsible for Cayman Airways. We have to remember, though, that not every person in this House has the contact with the Minister that I perhaps enjoy, and, certainly, the public is interested in knowing the financial position of Cayman Airways.

In doing such a review, many things could come to light that the Minister may not be aware of in his day-to-day routine. I believe that it would be prudent to undertake such a study. However, I do not believe that any study will do. I do not believe it has to be a very elaborate study costing the Government millions of dollars.

I believe that a proper audit informing the public of the true state of affairs in Cayman Airways would suffice. I will be told that it is a private company, I am sure, and all of these details the public does not have the right to know. But I believe that since Cayman Airways is 100% Caymanian owned, and it is a known fact that it has been a political football in the past, and will remain so, it is important for the public to understand—if not in specific details, in general terms—how the airline is doing.

Therefore, Madam Speaker, in general terms I do support this Motion and I would like to see to it that some kind of assessment is done where everybody understands what is going on at Cayman Airways. Not only am I, but other people are confident that the Minister is working extremely hard, and there is every evidence that things have turned around. Certainly, the airline is in a much better position than it was in late 1992. But that does not mean to say that there should not be some audit—and that audit should become public knowledge.

With that, Madam Speaker, I think I have made my point and thank you very much.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. G. Haig Bodden: Madam Speaker, Cayman Airways, has stabilised, it is out of the flux which it endured for some years. We know that the staff has received salary increases, something which was unknown. In fact, I remember in the early 1990s when many of the staff and crew members came down to this Legislative Assembly one evening on their knees begging for some help, as they had not received a salary increase for many years.

It is all well and good to do the study, but who is going to pay for it? Even the Mover and Seconder of the Motion are bemoaning the fact that the airline cannot make a profit without the subsidy which it is given. The Minister mentioned that there would a disruption of the airline. We know that these studies require the time of the staff, of accountants, of clerks who have to dig up information for the study. So the smooth running of the airline would be troubled.

I usually do not praise individuals, but there is no doubt that the Minister responsible for Cayman Airways, the Honourable Truman Bodden—whether you like him or not—has a good handle on what is happening with the company.

The present Managing Director, Mr. Ray Wilson, has done, in my opinion, more for the people of these islands than anyone else I can think of who has come from abroad. I would like to pay special tribute to the interest which he has taken under very adverse circumstances, and I would be happy if he continues to give some advice from time-to-time, as I hear he may.

I am also pleased to know that a local person will be promoted to the management position. A gentleman has been appointed who has spent many years with the airline, and who has received special training abroad. At the present time the airline has a good board of directors. There is no longer an Executive Committee making quick decisions—decisions which in the past put the airline into problems. We heard about the $35 million loss within two years. These losses have been replaced with operating profit.

Not only had the people who were responsible for the airline made losses, but they also destroyed the assets. They gave away the 727-200s for less than they were worth. And I understand some of the people who were in top position in Government are now trying to get back in so that they can buy the 727-700s back (as they agreed to do, because they took an option) many years later after the jets have worked in the Alaskan ice for much more than they were sold for. This has to be utter nonsense.

I see no need for consultants at this time. The recommendations and the policies put in place by Mr. Wilson and by the Honourable Minister have worked, and will continue to work if we give them the chance. I would not like to see the local staff demoralised to the point that they had been driven to on the evening they came down to the Legislative Assembly looking for help. I believe it is time that we give them a chance to go on working.

I will never forget a story I heard about Oscar Meyer, the man who made a fortune in the sausage business. In the early stages when he had his first factory, he found a man who was always sitting at his desk. He would ask, "What are you doing?" And the man would reply that he was planning.

The next day he would ask the same question and would receive the same answer. Then one day he asked again, "What are you doing?" and the man replied, "I am planning." Oscar Meyer replied, "Why the hell don't you stop planning and go to work?"

I think it is time we stop taking silly advice; and where we have found good advice, we get on with the job.

Many amazing things have happened with the airline. Its credit-worthiness has been restored. We know the dilemma the past Government was in, where the Government in this Legislative Assembly said that they would pay the loan and our local banks, knowing the true position of no management, no policies, nothing, said, "No, you cannot have the money." Those days are gone.

Some people do not like the style of our capable Minister with responsibility for Cayman Airways. But because of his undoubted ability, I think he is the perfect man for the job. I always think of the village blacksmith.

I consider the turnaround of Cayman Airways (and I do not need to go into the details because they were well put out by the Minister) to be one of the financial and economical miracles of this century. It was his expertise—I do not know anything about the degrees he has—that brought it about. He was the catalyst behind getting the job done. For the last 19 years that Minister has been involved with the airline. I remember he served during the 1970s as a member of the Board of Directors and he, being a lawyer, was often used to help with the very good contracts which were drawn up for the lease purchase of the 727-200s. Although he spent a few years in exile, he did a magnificent job for the airline and is continuing to do so.

I hear a lot of talk about subsidies. Let me deal with that. From its inception, when we had the old DC-3, the airline was given a subsidy specifically for the Cayman Brac route. I think the subsidy started at $100,000. I supported it, and I still support it for the reasons I will give later on. But our Health Services are subsidised, our Mosquito Research Programme is subsidised. Why? Because these are necessary programs for the welfare of the islands. What is the good of having money in the Treasury if the tourist are not coming here because of mosquitoes?

I wonder if Members know that the reason why the subsidy is given to the airline is for the same reason it is given to the Port in Cayman Brac? The reason is the small volume of traffic and cargo going to the Brac.

I recall, when we built the Port in Cayman Brac, we were unable to get the loan because the Caribbean Development Bank said that we could not have it for a Port in Cayman Brac because it could not support the Port. We had to go back to them and say, "If we put this Port under the Port Authority in Grand Cayman, will you give us the loan?" When they looked at the revenue from the Port Authority in Grand Cayman they readily agreed to give the loan. That is how Cayman Brac got its Port.

Well, Cayman Brac would not have the air service if it was not subsidised either by the Government or by the airline itself. We know that there is a great similarity between the two, because in the early stages the Port in Grand Cayman had to meet every loan payment on the Cayman Brac Port. There were even months when they had to pay off the overdraft at Barclays Bank to help with the operating expenses of the Port. Yet, I supported this because Cayman Brac needed a Port if it was to develop. Cayman Brac needs the use of the aircraft if it is going to develop.

So there is no use bemoaning the fact that we have to provide subsidy. I do not know if all the subsidy is used on the Cayman Brac route, but this was, and remains, one of the primary needs for the subsidy.

I hear Members bemoaning the fact that they have not seen the accounts of Cayman Airways recently. Well, I believe that I have a copy of the last account that had been put out by the airline. I too have not seen it recently because I just did not look at it. But the accounts are done on an annual basis and there has never been a problem in getting the accounts. This is not to say that the auditors always have it on the specific day when it is due, but, nevertheless, it is done. I think one of the reasons for bemoaning the fact that we have no report is because the Opposition may be suspicious that the report is going to be much better than the last time.

I cannot support this Motion because it would be a tremendous cost that we are not now prepared to pay for. As to the money paid into Cayman Airways, the Minister explained that carefully when he said that the US$20 million was to pay for the debts that this Government inherited in November 1992, and other debts that were accumulated.

In my opinion the request for the study, if passed, would not result in any positive gains to the airline; and because of the costs involved and the accounts that are beginning to show a favourable situation, I cannot support this motion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to offer my contribution on Private Member's Motion No. 9/95. I will start by saying that I cannot give my support to this Motion.

In the first "WHEREAS," it refers to the massive amounts of money that have been paid into Cayman Airways. It has been demonstrated that the funds which have been put into the airline were because of inherited indebtedness.

We know that in the early part of this administration we borrowed US$20 million; and because of the great difficulties experienced in the negotiation of getting out of the contracts with GPA, $5.2 million was paid as a settlement. This sum went a long way in relieving this country of massive liabilities which would have reached as high as $15 million. I think this was a fine investment on retiring this liability. Not only that, but you constantly hear about people breaking contracts. This is what happens in such a case. But, thank goodness, we were in a position to have the funds in place and the credibility in order for the banks to advance us the funds to make the settlements.

To the best of my knowledge there are no airlines in a healthy financial situation or making a profit. It is hard to believe that people expect a country of 30,000 people to be in a position to properly fund an airline consisting of two aircraft.

It is no secret what has happened in the two years since this administration has taken over. The facts are there, and there has been a dramatic improvement.

In the third "WHEREAS," it says that changes in aircraft have recently been made. Yes, Madam Speaker, this is another area that the Ministry has improved. This shows knowledge of what is going on by being able to replace other aircraft that had been leased. We know, and the figures are there in Finance Committee, the leasing of these two aircraft has saved this country in the area of $600,000. This is what eventually will show up on the books of Cayman Airways: [Our] being able to negotiate superior leases without getting the country into massive liabilities, as was the case when we took over two years ago when approximately $35 had been spent.

It was said that we could not bring in the situation prior to this Government taking over in 1992, but how can we possibly get away from the situation when we took over? The airline did not stop running, it was still an operating entity. But when we took over the airline, as an operating entity, spent over $35.0 million in the two years prior to our taking over. We took over and we were responsible for improving the situation. It could not be left there. As a Government, we were liable. This is why, as I said before, when we took office we had to borrow the money. Thank goodness we had the credibility that the banks would then lend us the funds.

Without a doubt the consensus of the public out there is that what has happened with Cayman Airways is really nigh on to a miracle. There are very few people out there who can refute that.

As the Honourable Minister has said, all payables are current and within 30 days or less. There are times when the overdraft is under the $4 million limit. Most of the funds for the overdraft are now being used to subsidise the route to Little Cayman and Cayman Brac. This is something that we have to bear until in the future, and I am convinced that, given an opportunity with the present management we now have there, this can be improved on so that we do not have to continually subsidise to the extent that we are currently doing.

It is my understanding that full audited accounts will be brought to this honourable House by September of this year to substantiate what has been said here, to show the dramatic improvement in the finances of Cayman Airways. It would be good for us to see them so that the 'Doubting Thomases' will then have the evidence in front of them.

With the respect the country has for the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning... I do not think he would have stood up here today, and said the things he has about Cayman Airways if he did not have the proof in black and white which will be presented later on in this House. These will be audited financial statements done in the proper manner.

We know that on many occasions in the past bringing the audited financial statements to the House had always seemed to be a very difficult task to complete. But I honestly believe that this honourable House will see accounts that have been audited by recognised firms before the end of this year and will once and for all put behind us what has really transpired.

Madam Speaker, there have been changes at Cayman Airways and, thank goodness, most of them have been for the good of the airline—guarantees by this Government and past Governments. Because of good management we are grateful for the guarantees that we have now put forward are in such a position that this country can now fund those guarantees, we now have the credibility from the outsiders. Above all else, we do not have $100 million hanging over the heads of people of this country.

As we all know, the present liability to this country for Cayman Airways with the guarantees is less than $9 million. The way in which this has been negotiated is that each month the liability is reduced; and for one of the aircraft, as I understand, it is down to $.5 million. This is sound business management.

I must at this time also pay tribute to Mr. Ray Wilson, the Managing Director. There is a foregone conclusion that for the work that he has done and for what has happened with Cayman Airways under his leadership, this country will always be indebted to him. I firmly believe that if he had not taken over the reins, there is no telling what would have happened.

As we all know, at the time the liabilities had been incurred, not only Cayman Airways would have gone under (as it has been put forward that it was suggested to put it into liquidation). What about the far-reaching effects on the coffers of this country? We would have suffered gravely.

I must say that in regard to consultants, from what I have seen being used by past administrations I am not convinced that it was to the benefit of this country. We know what was revealed by the consultants that had been used by the Health Services Authority, and when the Honourable Minister showed us earlier what the very people who could be possibly used as consultants in Cayman Airways, SH & E, had put forward did not benefit Cayman Airways. To me it seems as if they were a rubber stamp. Most people have said that for the first time in history Cayman Airways is no longer being used as a political football.

I would say in closing, that if Cayman Airways was not in good shape, all of the would-be politicians would be kicking it all over the islands. But I guess this is one of the penalties of success.

My feeling, Madam Speaker, in regard to the consultants that would be brought here is: do we really need them? Why do we not give the present management the opportunity to continue on the avenue they are now using to continue to improve Cayman Airways without expending another $.5 million?

I say if something is working and, working well, why should we try to fix it? Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Cayman Airways has always been used as a political football, and I guess it will be used again. But I feel that most of the people of the Cayman Islands have pride in Cayman Airways, and they would love to see it continue flying.

I remember when Cayman Airways was formed, and hard work kept it flying. But we were always able to pull through. I remember that when the National Team Government took over there were plans to liquidate it. People were sad and disheartened about it, but, again, with the help of the Supreme Being from above, and the Minister who could think and plan, we have survived and pulled through.

I think that we all should be congratulating the Minister, the management and the staff of Cayman Airways for they have done a job that called for a determination and a stout heart.

Madam Speaker, I do not see the reason why we should now spend more money than what is needed, so I cannot support this Motion.

Although I feel that the Mover and the Seconder perhaps have good intentions—I am not one to criticise or run someone down even when they make a mistake or do something wrong—but now that we have seen the light and are making a little money, I think that we should continue on that road. Why change?

Keeping the airline flying means working together. Let us hold our hands together and keep Cayman Airways flying and Grand Cayman happy.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION

The Speaker: It is now 4.27 pm, I doubt if any other Member would want to continue the debate.

If it is the wish of the House, I would ask the Leader of Government Business to move the motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I move the adjournment of this honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those again No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10.00.

AT 4.29 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 16 JUNE 1995.

FRIDAY
16 JUNE, 1995
10.13 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the First Elected Member for Bodden Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. Roy Bodden: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

Presentation of Papers and Reports. The Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

THE PUBLIC PASSENGER VEHICLES REGULATIONS, 1995

-AND-

THE TRAFFIC (TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS) REGULATIONS, 1995

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House The Public Passenger Vehicles Regulations, 1995; and The Traffic (Transitional Provisions) Regulations, 1995, in accordance with the provision of section 113 of the Traffic Law, 1991.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 129, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 129

No. 129: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to provide a breakdown, giving names and amount spent, of any works done on private roads in the Bodden Town area since January 1993.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Works done on private roads in the Bodden Town area since January, 1993 are:

- > March 1995 $2,000 Belford Estates/Marl Patching (completed 21st March 1995)
- > May 1995 $31,000 Bobby Watler Road relay and reseal (started 15th May 1995).

Many other private roads were requested, but priority had to be given to the public roads.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say when some other roads suffering from similar acute problems will be worked on?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As I mentioned, there are many other requests. It is our intention to do some of these roads this year. This will reflect in the next question.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 130, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 130

No. 130: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to provide a breakdown of the amount to be spent on capital works in Bodden Town during 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Capital spending planned or completed in 1995 by the Public Works Department in Bodden Town is as follows: (See Appendix 1)

Madam Speaker, this does not include other projects, such as the building for the Agricultural Department and the Abattoir, which will also be within our district. Of course, I did not include it under buildings because this is a Government project. But from those two we will probably be looking at another one million dollars in that district.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: On the first list, under the heading of buildings, with the exception of the clinic on which work is ongoing, and the stand-by generator, can the Honourable Minister say which of these projects, if any, is likely to be completed before the year end and, specifically, is any more work going to be done on the district play field before the year ends?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

With God's help, and with the support of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, we are hoping to do all of this work.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Honourable Minister in a position to say when work will resume on the play field?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, there is another property east of the Police Station that is presently under negotiation for purchase so as not to have to cramp everything together. Once that is done we will commence work on the play field.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what the position is regarding the negotiation for the purchase of this property? Has a price been agreed to and finalised, or at what level are the negotiations?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: With the push of the Hon. Mr. Anthony Eden and our Department of Lands the negotiations have been taking place.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 131, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 131

No. 131: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is the cost to Government for damages resulting from disturbances among Cuban inmates at Tent City and Northward Prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: At Tent City the Immigration, Social Services and the Public Works Departments have incurred damages amounting to approximately $12,500. There is also an outstanding claim by a local security firm for reimbursement of damaged and stolen property for about $17,000.

At Northward Prison the cost of damages incurred by Cuban inmates is $862.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member shed any light on how these claims are going to be settled?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, in respect to damages or losses by departments, these amounts will have to be included in the actual costs incurred by the Cubans.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In regard to the claim by a local security firm, is the Honourable Member in a position to say exactly how Government plans to deal with this? For example, is there a requirement that security firms carry some form of insurance liability that would defray these costs occurring in such situations, or does the Government have to bear all the responsibility itself in these kinds of claims?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The matter is now under assessment, and I would prefer not to comment specifically.

The necessary advice is being taken on this and we should know something in due course.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: For the edification of the Honourable House, would the Honourable Member undertake to inform us in writing if he would explore the possibility of the firm having some kind of insurance that would lessen the responsibility and obligations of the Government in circumstances where security firms are contracted by the Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: We believe that this is, in fact, in place now; but I prefer not to elaborate on this since it is being investigated.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 132, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 132

No. 132: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration what is the total value of claims against Government contained in the outstanding seven lawsuits.

The Speaker: The Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The total value of claims against Government is CI $11,987,183.80. Madam Speaker, a schedule giving details of those individual claims is attached to the answer for the information of Honourable Members of this House only.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Member say if the lawsuits are at a situation of abeyance at this time, or are they actively before the courts of law—any, or all of them?

The Speaker: The Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: All of these are cases that have been issued through the courts in Cayman. They are at various stages of the proceedings. Of course, they are all proceedings brought against Government as opposed to the other way around, therefore the impetus for pursuing them is with the plaintiffs, in other words, the entities mentioned in the schedule.

Now, in some of the cases those particular entities have chosen not to actively pursue the claim, but in others they are being pursued, and both Government and those parties are talking with a view to seeing if a settlement is possible. That is an ongoing process.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Member could give us some idea of when the cases on this list took place?

The Speaker: The Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, Madam Speaker. I think the question from the Member is really a follow up question to one that was asked previously. These lawsuits are all ones that are pending against Government since 1993.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 133, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 133

No. 133: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development if the guarantee provided by Government to the contributors for land adjacent to the Spotts Jetty has been cancelled; and what have been the total payments to the project, with breakdown by principal and interest.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The guarantee by Government for the purchase of land adjacent to the Spotts Jetty has not been cancelled, however the matter will be brought to Finance Committee's next meeting which will hopefully be within the next fortnight.

The answer to the second part of the question is that the total Government contribution to this project to date is US $48,670.46 which represents accumulated interest incurred on the loan up to the 31 January 1995.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if the matter of the purchase of the land at the Spotts Jetty is coming to the Finance Committee as a result of wishing to have the guarantee cancelled, or to have approval to pay the money that was not forthcoming under the original arrangement?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, that is asking a question in anticipation. He said the matter will be coming before Finance Committee, and at this time I do not think it is appropriate to ask why it is coming back to Finance Committee.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, can I ask the Honourable Member just what does the guarantee cover at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the guarantee covers the outstanding indebtedness to the bank. When this matter is brought to Finance Committee for the sum of money required to make settlement, this will remove the guarantee which is presently in place.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if the money for the purchase of this land was not approved in a recent Finance Committee Meeting—if I remember correctly, in the recent Budget that was approved?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I do not think that amount was included in the Budget.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 134, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 134

No. 134: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development if consideration is being given to allowing statutory authorities to increase repayments on loans where surpluses are realised in any given year to reduce expenses, rather than paying such surplus monies into central Government.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, no such consideration is being given at this time.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if by not so doing this provides money for Central Government that it would not otherwise have?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the contributions being made by the various Authorities to Central Government is one that is targeted for and is made known to the authorities. As a result of that it is included in Authorities' Budgets for a given year. It does not necessarily mean that all of the excess profits, or profits made by the various Authorities, are paid over to Government because, for various reasons, the Authorities are allowed to establish reserves. Also, part of those surpluses are used from time to time to fund projects that are determined by the various boards as necessary for the various Authorities' ongoing operation.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if monies which are paid into Central Government by the Authorities are only expected when the Government is underwriting or guaranteeing loans to those Authorities, or are funds also expected from the Authorities where they may not have a guarantee from Central Government for their financial operation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I think we need to recognise that when we look in terms of the authorities and what they represent... If we think back to the Port Authority and also the Civil Aviation Authority, these were departments where initially the full revenues of these departments were flowing into the Central Revenue stream of Government. But when a decision was taken to approach the Caribbean Development Bank for Financing Assistance for these authorities, then a decision was taken that the repayments of the loan should be the first call on the revenues. As a result of that they were then converted as autonomous agencies.

We should recognise that this stream of revenue that was initially coming into the Government should continue and not cease. It is not a question that the Government is seeking to strip the Authorities of their revenue, but it is necessary for contributions from these entities to continue to be made into the Central Revenue stream of Government, and it should be done on an ongoing basis.

If that is not done, the element of revenue that will be given up will have to be compensated for by putting in place alternative revenue measures.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

Statement by the Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

STATEMENT BY MEMBER OF THE GOVERNMENT

DEFERMENT OF THE INTRODUCTION OF THE PROCEEDS OF CRIMINAL CONDUCT BILL, 1995

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I have received requests from the Cayman Islands Law Society and from other professional organisations, including the Private Sector Consultative Committee, Chaired by the Honourable Financial Secretary, for further discussions on The Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Bill, 1995.

I am anxious that this important piece of legislation should be introduced with the consensus of the professional and financial community. Accordingly, I welcome full consultation with all interested parties and, for that reason, I laid the draft Bill in the Assembly during the March meeting of the House. It is clear that if the Bill was to adhere to its present timetable in the current meeting of the Legislature, then insufficient time would be allowed for that consultation. I therefore defer the introduction of this Bill until the meeting of the Legislative Assembly due to begin on Monday 11 September 1995.

I very much hope that those persons who wish to make representations and comments on the Bill will now do so in good time so that they may be taken into account well in advance of the next meeting of the Legislative Assembly.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Other Business. Private Member's Motion No. 9/95, continuation of the debate.

Would the Mover then like to exercise his right of reply? The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 9/95

SITUATIONAL ASSESSMENT OF CAYMAN AIRWAYS

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

To begin, I think it would be appropriate to read the Resolve of Private Member's Motion No. 9/95, entitled Situational Assessment Cayman Airways, moved by myself and seconded by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. The Resolve states: "BE IT RESOLVED that Government consider commissioning Simat, Hellisen and Eichner Inc (SH & E) because of its familiarization with Cayman Airways Limited, as a result of its past study, or such other specialized entity to undertake a review or situational assessment of the Airline at this time."

The 'Airline' is the national flight carrier of these Islands, owned 100% by the Government of the Cayman Islands through a state-owned company: Cayman Airways Limited.

Madam Speaker, I submit that is not such a startling request to any sensible person. In fact, yesterday's paper (Thursday, 15 June 1995), under the caption, "Money Laundering Report," commends Cayman's efforts. It states in the beginning: "Cayman's banking confidential laws do not inhibit compliance with recommendations for combating money laundering a recent review of Cayman and its financial industry has concluded. A three-person team carried out the review in January this year under the auspices of the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force (CFATF)."

Reviews are standard management procedures—wherever sensible, intelligent, logical, scientific management is in place. We know that financial institutions, professionals associated with the financial industry in the Cayman Islands, regularly claim that the Cayman Islands meets most, if not all, requirements when it comes to divulgence of information where criminal activity is concerned. The Financial Secretary in this House reaffirms to this House at various intervals that such is the case.

I do not think that anyone really distrusts the things he says in general principle, but there are always those persons, and the public at large, who may have doubts. Therefore, reviews are standard procedures to get up-to-the-minute, or up-to-date facts to prove one's position or statement. So, in asking for a review of Cayman Airways, it is simply asking for something that is standard in any situation like Cayman Airways.

I would point out that the brief paragraph I read from the newspaper did not say that the people from the Cayman Islands financial industry, or the Financial Secretary's Office, or the Attorney General's Office, carried out that investigation. It did not even say that these persons I just named were claiming to be miracle workers and could therefore do no wrong. In fact, the review was carried out by: "Mrs. Shirley Miller, a legal expert and Director of Legal Reform in Jamaica; Mr. Lance Sellman, a Law Enforcement Specialist and special advisor to the Ministry of National Security in Trinidad and Tobago; and Mr. Gordon Veal, a financial expert and manager of the Banking Services Division of the Bermuda Monetary Authority." These are persons who are really...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would like to take a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Minister for Education and Planning?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Member is referring to some investigation up in Trinidad, and it has no relevance to Cayman Airways.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister that is not a point of order because he did say that reviews are being undertaken by Financial Institutions. That is how he prefaced his remarks and he was using that as an illustration.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: As you so rule, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, would you please continue?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

If the Minister could stay out of the coffee room and stay in the Chamber he would hear what is being said.

The findings were that the Cayman Islands were well within what could be considered the high range of meeting the requirements of the Geneva Convention. What is very significant here is that the findings confirm an independent review of the Law commissioned earlier by Executive Council—I guess that would include the Minister for Education, or the Minister for Cayman Airways. So it seems that even where he is concerned on Executive Council, that is, the Minister for Cayman Airways, that is not unusual.

However, after I did my best yesterday to present a clear and logical reason as to why it would be desirable to have a review of Cayman Airways at this time, and I even went to the extent that I put in the things the Minister for Education likes so much—"Whereas" clauses, so he could talk about them—he believes that this is something which would stir up political strife and bring it into the political arena.

Yesterday the Second Elected Member for George Town spoke about civility, and I think there is a great need for it in this House. It is a small House, we all know each other, and I think it is greatly lacking. I do agree with what he said yesterday. But, when a Minister of Government, or someone replying for Government, takes the position as was taken by the Minister for Cayman Airways yesterday, then it is right that some of the things he had to say be rebutted.

Everyone knows that the Minister for Cayman Airways is a politician—

Mr. Roy Bodden: And not a miracle worker!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: And not a miracle worker. He was elected in a political lineup of a large number of people in 1992 by the people of George Town—as a politician. So, Cayman Airways already has a large dose of politics in it, in that he is associated with it.

It has always had politics. Cayman Airways grew out of politics under the term of office of the late, great, James Manoah Bodden. It was when it was a subject under his Ministry that it really became a full-fledged operation owned by the Government of the Cayman Islands. So it was born of politics. Should it ever cease to be, it would quite likely die from politics; or quite likely too, bad management, which seems to be espoused by the Minister responsible for it at this time in that he thinks a review is the worst thing for Cayman Airways.

The first time that Cayman Airways really knew anything about itself in a comprehensive manner was through the expertise of outside groups in 1992, when the Government of the day undertook to hire not one, but two specialised entities to examine Cayman Airways in its totality. Two entities were chosen, SH & E and ASI [Aviation Services Ireland], because the Government and all of the Members of this House—which included the present Minister for Cayman Airways—sat down and actually worked out the terms of reference that we all thought best to find out what was the case.

On two separate occasions, the present Minister supported a motion that I brought to this Legislative Assembly to try to get a study of Cayman Airways. In the last instance it was unanimously passed. That study produced volumes, indeed, as he said.

While he mocked what was said by SH & E—which I understand is one of the biggest firms in the United States, operating out of New York . . . in fact, as I look on the cover of one of their booklets it says: "New York, Boston, London, Hong Kong." So they spread themselves around the world even more than I initially thought. He derided them here in this Legislative Assembly yesterday, making fun that they gave Cayman Airways "A's" in this, and "A's" in that, and "A's" in the next thing. I think that must have been a particular document which he is privy to in his own right as Minister, because I see no such listing or grading in this report here. So that is something else that he must have been referring to. Anyway, they were singularly and regularly mocked.

He talked about consultants, and the worst thing in the world that could happen is to have consultants. He is apparently also a consultant.

What we all need to be aware of in this House is that the present Managing Director of Cayman Airways—who was showered with bouquets and verbal kisses for his efforts and his miraculous work in Cayman Airways by three different Members—was one of the consultants of that time who worked with Aviation Services Ireland—and I am reading from the cover of their report—"on behalf of the Cayman Islands Government."

Just to bring things into focus, I wish to read from page 5 of the ASI Report, of which the Managing Director, Mr. Ray Wilson, was a part. "Section 3.23, 'Salaries and Conditions of Service', paragraph 1: We find that the salaries of the two most senior executives are some 25% to 30% higher than would be normal for these positions. We appreciate that there were extenuating circumstances for this and that valid contracts are in place."

On page 27, under the caption "Position on four senior managers", section 6.12, I read: "The four executives considered in this grouping are: Managing Director US $130,000, or CI $104,000; VP-N. America, US $108,000 or CI $86,400; Sen Mgr Maintenance—

US $55,000 or CI $44,000; Sen Mgr Finance—US$ 63,460 or CI $50,770.”

It goes on to say: “The salary of the MD [Managing Director] appears to be high by a factor of some 30%. Here we have the problem of an individual combining the jobs of Chief Executive and an active line pilot. This situation always presents problems in terms of what is fair total remuneration and whether the arrangement is a sensible one given the levels of responsibility inherent in both jobs. It is however a question for the airline Board.”

That is contained in this report which anyone can read. It also includes the views of the present Managing Director, who was a part of this study. The salary is 30% more than it should be.

But, when I asked the Minister for Cayman Airways sometime ago in a question (which he does not like to answer) what was the salary of the present Managing Director, his reply was that it was approximately what the last Managing Director was making.

I make the point that to the best of my knowledge the present Managing Director does not fly the plane. So, we get a little vision or insight into the Board's thinking, or the Managing Director's, or the Minister's—wherever it would seem to lie among those particular persons or entities. With the Managing Director doing one job and receiving the same salary, it would seem that the Managing Director is being well paid to do whatever type of job he is doing—hopefully it is a good one.

The Minister for Cayman Airways also went on to say that when consultants had something to do with Cayman Airways it kept losing, and losing, and losing money. When he took it over it was not making money, but he has it now making money.

In point of fact and truth, the consultants had nothing to do with the running of Cayman Airways at the time that they carried out their study; they merely came and carried out a study and found certain things which existed in Cayman Airways. They wrote their report and made certain recommendations. It is false for anyone to give the impression that the consultants had anything to do with the running of Cayman Airways—except one consultant who was with the group (Air Services Ireland), whom the Minister appointed as the Managing Director.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: The Member is imputing something that is totally incorrect. I have no power to appoint a Managing Director, the Board does. Therefore it is an incorrect imputation in relation to me.

The Speaker: That is a valid point of order Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman,. Please correct that and continue with your debate.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I take the point made by the Minister for Cayman Airways, when he says it is the Board. But, I must point out that until yesterday I did not know that he sat on the Board along with the Financial Secretary and the Attorney General. That is what he said yesterday.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Minister for Education and Planning?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I am not a member of the Board—I do not sit on the Board; and the Member is once again either very confused or deliberately imputing something which is incorrect.

The Speaker: That is a valid point of order, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Minister for Aviation said on at least two occasions yesterday that he and the Honourable Attorney General and the Honourable Financial Secretary sit on the Board. Is he denying that, Madam Speaker? I will give way for him to clarify.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, we sit in at meetings of the Board, we do not sit on the Board. I am prepared to lay on the Table the document that the Member referred to earlier by SH & E, showing where Cayman Airways got all “A's” back in November 1992, if he wishes. If not, I will do a statement later.

The Speaker: Excuse me, Honourable Minister, I do not think that came into the point of order at the moment. Please, let us not bring in something that was not raised.

The Minister has said that he and the other Official Members sit in on the meetings, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. We will have to accept that.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Minister for Cayman Airways admits that he sits in on the Board—so do the other people that I factually named, as he did yesterday. It should be interesting to know—

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, I hate to belabour this—

The Speaker: Please, please, ‘on a point of order’!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: On a point of order.

The Speaker: Just a minute please, I must put your name down to allow you to speak.

Honourable Minister for Education and Planning. May I hear your point of order?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There is a difference between sitting in on the Board and sitting in on Board meetings. As the Member obviously does not know the difference, I draw his attention to it again. I do not sit in on the Board.

The Speaker: Well, it's a matter of semantics, but I assume, or I gather that you would be sitting in on meetings because sitting in on the Board would be a futile exercise.

Please continue Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Minister for Cayman Airways claimed that he has no dealings in the day-to-day affairs and operations of Cayman Airways. Quite often, up until yesterday, in reply to a supplementary question from the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, he claimed it was a private company. But he did say yesterday that he, the Minister for Cayman Airways, turned it around, that he virtually performed a miracle.

How does he perform that miracle? By being in his office and by Divine power directing that into the boardroom up at the airport? Or, does he and the National Team—

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Minister for Education and Planning?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Honourable Member is imputing that I alleged Divine power. That is nearly blasphemous, and I would ask him to withdraw it. I do not have Divine power.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, please be careful in your statements about Divine power, because I am sure we all appreciate that there is only One who has Divine power.

It is a valid point of order. Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, would you continue, and avoid such references?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I do believe that Divine power is with One source, and that is the Great Supreme of this universe. Therefore, only He could perform miracles—not the Minister who said that he did yesterday. That is my point, Madam Speaker.

With such a claim, one has to know what is being claimed. The Minister said that he and the National Team have fixed Cayman Airways. Well, all of the National Team Members are politicians and Members of this House, so if there is to be no politics in Cayman Airways, I wonder what was happening, or is happening, when he, the Minister for Cayman Airways, and the National Team are fixing Cayman Airways? Does it become politicised—even a little bit—on those occasions?

The fourth point I noted in the notes I took yesterday was that this claim was made.

Also, Madam Speaker, the Minister for Cayman Airways made reference to the fact that the last Government could not get the $20 million that was approved for it. Naturally they could not get it. They did not have that much time left in office. As I recall it was approved sometime in July, and on September 20 the House was prorogued and that was the end of it. Any Government takes time to negotiate a loan, and the Government of the day had to have taken time, as well as the Government of which he is a part.

What is very significant . . . and when we are getting down to facts and truth, this House, and whomever might listen to the broadcast, ought to be aware of the facts that the last Government—the last Minister, Norman Bodden, whom I must say was big enough to decide he was not going to run anymore in politics and stepped away from it—had the courage to bring a Money Bill to this House seeking $20 million. The other truth is that seven of us did not vote for that Money Bill, including the Minister for Cayman Airways. The Hansards of this House show it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Very quick to use the Money Bill.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Very quick to use the money he was, indeed. To talk about how great and powerful he, the Minister, was in being able to negotiate it and get it from the banks.

There is no proof whatsoever that the last Government, had they been in office, could not have gotten the same loan facility from the banks. If there were, I would hope the Minister would be delighted to tender it to this House for the eyes of everyone.

In another note that I have here, the Minister for Cayman Airways noted that when he took over the disaster, which he says the airline was, he said a silent prayer. He then went on to say that a prayer is said at the Board meetings before each meeting. That is something good. I, too, pray for it. I even pray for him—that he could change his ways.

Madam Speaker, we know that there was a contract entered into during the time of the last Government by the then Managing Director, the Board, and whoever else would have had any dealings with it, where it bound this country into a contract for 15 years without a break clause. It had Cayman Airways, the company—not the Government (the Government did not sign a guarantee for that)—bound to pay Guinness Peat Aviation $112 million over that period of time. In fact, even if the deal went sour (which it did) the Company was still liable for that.

Naturally, the costs were too high for each plane, which were two brand new 737-400s, costing $310,000 each, so $620,000 per month just on rental had to be paid. The Company could not continue to do that.

But what is of great significance is that there were five aircraft then in the possession of Cayman Airways. The Managing Director of that time was smart enough, and the Minister was smart enough, and the Board was smart enough, to negotiate on its own to have five aircraft, including two 737-400s that were right off the line (we were told). How does that compare with the Board of today, who, any time they want something comes to Government for a loan guarantee?

One of the things that the Minister for Cayman Airways went on about incessantly during the time that he was part of a group of seven then-called Backbenchers . . . he tore into the Minister for Aviation at every opportunity he got. He asked questions repeatedly about Cayman Airways—he did not consider questions stupid then—and he also thought that questions should be answered then. Where they were not answered, he sure ripped into him in debate over it.

One of the things that the present Minister for Cayman Airways shouted the loudest about was the fact that Cayman Airways had entered into an agreement with Guinness Peat Aviation for such a sum of money, for such a period of time, without a break clause in the contract, and assured this country and this House that such could never happen had he anything to do with it.

This week he stated in this House that he knew and agreed to two contracts signed by Cayman Airways for five-year periods without any break clauses. Do I detect any sort of double standard in this process? Is there any kind of double standard?

Who stands the liability of it all? The same people that the Minister for Cayman Airways said he was defending—the people! It is a liability on the people of the Cayman Islands.

What is he now doing about it? It seems like he gets encouragement often in these things because the one daily newspaper, the Caymanian Compass, on Tuesday, 18 April 1995, under an Editorial captioned: "Who's doing the barking?" went to great lengths to say what a wonderful management decision had been taken in getting this Bouillon aircraft 737-200 and getting it without having a break clause.

I would like to quote a few lines from this: "Three MLAs were concerned that there was no break clause in the contract. [Those three MLAs were the Second Elected Member for George Town, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, and me]. Mr. Wilson explained that a contract you could get out of was not a contract at all . . ." Madam Speaker, this really defies any logic, and this must really delight lawyers or make them wonder if this is for real.

It goes on to say: "...rent depended on how long they leased the aircraft; it was a seller's market; demand for such aircraft was high. He said that he had never been successful in getting a termination clause." Those are the words of the Caymanian Com- pass, the wisdom of the Managing Director, whom they say they are quoting here, and the agreement, undoubtedly, of the Minister for Cayman Airways.

They go on further to pick on the only three MLAs in this Legislative Assembly who thought something was wrong with it. It says; "Mr. Wilson has considerable experience and a good track record. [That is what the Minister for Cayman Airways says too] that is why he was hired. In his two years he has turned CAL around completely. It has not been easy: he has had some hard decisions to make, but, with the backing of the CAL Board and the Minister, he made them." Word for word what the Minister for Cayman Airways is saying.

What does the paper say about the three Members of this Legislative Assembly who are truthful and honest enough to stay in a position that was taken before, and to stay concerned about the welfare of this country? This is what they said: "The vote against the guarantee is tantamount to a vote of no confidence in the airline and those who have been put there to run it." Now we are being accused of voting no confidence in the airline by the papers, and in today's editorial they are going to town on the recent No Confidence Motion being a waste of the time of the House for the past four days.

They should have told the Government that. That would have been something logical.

This contract that the Caymanian Compass was so bravely defending without any break clause, goes on to say: "The contract has been examined by the Attorney General, the Solicitor General, CAL's Miami lawyers, the Minister and managers at CAL." So, when all of these people look at a contract that has $5 million liability without any break clause and say; 'Go for it', that makes it all right. The three Members get attacked: "The MLAs' opposition might be understandable if they had some knowledge of the airline business."

I wonder how much knowledge the Caymanian Compass has of the airline business. What we have knowledge of is the stability of this country and the proper spending of the people's money.

"The three MLAs claim they support the airline, yet when called upon to do so, they failed to live up to their words." I think that any newspaper or media in this country needs to understand that in this Chamber are a few legislators who have enough conviction, good sense and general knowledge of things—including the airline business—that when something is not right we will not vote for it irrespective of how many high rollers have said it is all right.

In ending this up it says: "The CITI Corp's aircraft guarantee came before Finance Committee twice, on 21 December last year and 11 January this year. At neither time was the matter of a termination clause raised." That is true, Madam Speaker, because I do not believe any Member of this House thought that after all that had happened with the Guinness Peat deal, and knowing that the Minister who claims to have done a miracle with it would never, ever agree to a contract that did not have a break clause.

The Speaker: Will the Honourable Member take a suspension at this time?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.34 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.09 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continuing the debate.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, when we took the suspension I was referring to a certain Editorial in the Caymanian Compass, and offering some differing views as to its supposed wisdom and logic.

In response to that particular Editorial the Second Elected Member for George Town wrote a letter to the newspaper on Thursday, 4th May, 1995, and it is captioned "CAL Aircraft Lease." He makes one point there that I would like to raise as something which I think the Minister for Cayman Airways, with all the wisdom he claims, should have thought about when he was sitting in on the Board meeting negotiating this contract for the aircraft.

The letter is by Dr. S. A. Tomlinson, MLA, and the first part of it reads: "Having read your 18th April Editorial concerning Finance Committee's guarantee for the lease of the B737-200s from Bouillon Aviation for Cayman Airways, I invite you to objectively answer the following questions: 1) Which deal would you support and embrace—the outright purchase of the B727-200 for the sum of $7.5 million, giving the airline ownership of the aircraft once the loan is paid off OR the deal guaranteeing the lease of the same aircraft for $94,000 per month for the next 56 months for a grand total of $5,264,000, at the end of which time the airline is no nearer owning a plane? Rent or buy, which makes more sense?" It says the 727-200 and I think it should have been 737-200 there.

The question is made by the MLA, and I believe that if Cayman airways is to continue, and, too, be logically and soundly managed financially, thought needs to be given to the lease purchase of aircraft and not simply just leasing aircraft from Bouillon Aviation or anyone else. What has been happening under the present Minister for Cayman Airways is that we are leasing planes and equipping them with collision avoidance systems—which was put on some of them because they did not have it, and which improves them—then giving them back; we are doing checks and hush kitting them, then handing these aircraft back to the owners. We have nothing, and they have an improved aircraft.

I believe that proper management would be taken if we look seriously at lease purchasing aircraft, suitable aircraft, not like the latest one we took on with an extra tank in the belly taking up luggage space which, I am told, has to be taken out at a cost of about $90,000, and then put back in when the aircraft will be handed back over to the people who originally had it.

The question of owning the aircraft can be illustrated by the fact that with the 727s, which Cayman Airways owned, the company was able to sell those aircraft because of the equity that it had for $12 million. So, even if the company should run into trouble where it would have to shut down, at least there would be equity and the company could seek a buyer because they would have something to sell. In the present situation, the company has no aircraft, and if it were forced to shut down for whatever reason, they would have no aircraft, they would have nothing to sell; and we would be in debt for $11 million or $12 million, still having to pay off the aircraft which are leased and for which there is no break clause in the contract.

If the Minister for Cayman Airways had spent time on that, I think he could compliment himself and give himself an A, as he says he has already done for his performance so far. It is interesting to note that while he gives himself an A for that performance, a survey by the Chamber of Commerce did not necessarily come up with the same lettering.

If I remember correctly, it was raised by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town that one of the consultants, who is now the Managing Director of Cayman Airways, is expected to be leaving, but would be offering consulting services. It is also my understanding that he would be sitting on the Board of Cayman Airways on these particular instances. But the new man who is being appointed as "General Manager" would not be doing the same thing. I have a serious concern about that. While the claims are that consultants caused the airline to go bankrupt and get into all sorts of trouble—even though one of the prime consultants is there running it now—we cannot give the same position and privilege to the Caymanian person who will be called upon to run that airline on a day-to-day basis, that he would be Managing Director of the Board.

Madam Speaker, if, like the Minister for Cayman Airways said, Mr. Norman Bodden (the former Minister for the airline) had had the opportunity the present Minister has available to him—all the cash injection that has gone on since 1993—the situation could have been much different than it was. Also, if the airline is in such wonderful shape, if everything is so perfect, as if by miracle; and if it is paying off so well all of its indebtedness within a 30-day period; and if there is such confidence in the Minister and the managing director, then why, oh why, is it necessary for the government to continue to have to underwrite loans and borrowings and financial dealings? If the airline is succeeding so well, why can the subsidy not be reduced? Or, if it is generating so much cash and functioning so well, why do we need to continue with the same subsidy?

On that matter of the subsidy, where the Minister for Cayman Airways said that that large subsidy is really needed because of his doing so much for Cayman Brac .

. . . he should really give up that old claim, because he is convincing no one on the Islands of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Surely, the people who have put their trust in me for two terms in this House know very well that if I had anything to do with that airline it would fly there virtually every day. It would also fly at least on a Saturday from Miami through Cayman Brac, just to give that island an opportunity to fly directly from Miami.

The people there understand that very well, for of any words of his ever spoken that will be remembered in this country will be those of his spoken at Julian's Restaurant at Spotts Bay in Cayman Brac, on Friday, 23 October 1992, when he declared to the people of Cayman Brac that if they did not vote for whom he told them to vote for they would get nothing.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Yes, Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: On the point of relevancy. Whatever was said in relation to voting at a restaurant some years ago is totally irrelevant.

The Speaker: I am afraid that there are a lot of things that may not have been relevant, but he is replying to a point and I think he is trying to make a point there of something that you said as a follow up. So I am afraid that it has to be allowed.

Would you continue Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As I mentioned a little while ago, Cayman Airways flying to Cayman Brac is something that is needed. It should never be a secondary thought, and I do not believe for one moment, nor can I be shown, that $4 million is spent for Cayman Airways to fly into Cayman Brac. So, the Minister can hand that particular thought to those people who might choose to believe most anything.

Another thing that one could wonder about is that the Minister claims he has kept the same Board since he has taken over. If that is the case, then it must be that that was not such a bad Board appointed by the last government. Why things were the way they were could not have been the fault of the Board, it must have been that it was cash-strangled and up against certain competition, and so on, in the very beginning of the onslaught of foreign carriers coming to the country. Those things must have really played a bigger role in creating a situation of cash shortage than he is prepared to admit.

If Cayman Airways is where it is today because of the Minister and the National Team, then it must have immense political interplay within it, around it, or over it. But the truth is that we do not know where Cayman Airways is today and that is what the Motion is asking for—to find out where Cayman Airways is.

The Minister gives himself an "A", and says we do not need any consultants, while he has one consultant who did the study in 1992 employed. We need to know where the entity, Cayman Airways, really is at this time. Where are the accounts? The accounts have not been forthcoming. If an airline, or any company, is running so good, why are the accounts for it unavailable? On what basis could the Minister assess this wonderful story? Is it on the smiling faces of the staff? Are their faces really smiling? Does he want us to believe that there is such absolute harmony, that everything there is hunky-dory? If that is the case, then get someone who is an independent person to come in and tell all of us here in this country. That is the point of the motion.

His charge that the Opposition would be happy to see political upheaval in Cayman Airways is ridiculous, like many of the ridiculous statements that he made yesterday in regard to two Members of this Legislative Assembly. If he, the Minister for Cayman Airways, and the National Team are solving problems like he says, then the ultimate solution would be—I say to him, the Minister—to resign! That is the final solution.

Another matter that was raised by the Minister is that he had to pay General Electric for an engine that he had to get rid of. One of the things that I wonder about seriously when it comes to Cayman Airways is what is happening to the $4 million worth of parts? The Minister has now been responsible for Cayman Airways for two and a half years, and in two and a half years we have not heard that the Minister has been able to sell any of those parts. That would be an immediate cash flow into the airline.

Another thing that I understand in regard to the present aircraft is that, while they are 737-200s, they are not technically the same. You cannot pull one part from one to put on another—they are different 737-200s. How does that explain his efficient management and the genius that is going on now in Cayman Airways? They are not the same—two 737-200s that are not the same, the parts are not interchangeable. How much of a [737]-400s parts will be workable in those planes is anyone's guess.

No one in this House, surely not the First Elected Member for Bodden Town or me, has spoken a word about stirring up any strife in Cayman Airways. Far be it [from that]. What we are attempting to do with this motion is to stir the minds of the Government to see that they can do something right. Is that too much to ask?

There are many reasons why there is a need for Cayman Airways to have a review at this time. First, no one factually knows what the situation is with Cayman Airways at this time for there is no proof of accounts or other technical data. The claims by the Minister for Cayman Airways are all that there is.

Another reason is that there is to be a change in top management. The present Managing Director is supposedly going to go, but he is not going to go—he will be around advising and consulting and still sitting in on the Board. The Caymanian who is to be taking over, supposedly running the airline, will be called a "General Manager" and he will not be sitting in on the Board.

The Speaker: Honourable Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, please do not repeat your arguments. That is repetitious. You have already said that.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: What, Madam Speaker, the term "sitting in on the Board"?

The Speaker: You have already said what will be happening to the present Managing Director. You have already said that the Managing Director will be sitting on the Board as a consultant. That statement has already been made by you. Please do not repeat it. Thank you.

Please continue.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, undoubtedly, the General Manager will be the person who is responsible for the day-to-day operations of Cayman Airways. That individual is being appointed to take up those duties beginning at some point in time. Neither the public, the Members of this House or I, believe that that person himself would be able to assess just where is he taking up from; but what is certain is that that individual could be the patsy for taking the blame for things which might be wrong now in the airline which are not known. It is unfair for that individual or any such individual.

Major change is coming about now. The miracle worker is moving away and an ordinary human being is coming in to take over. There needs to be a clean slate for that individual to begin with. I have been told, unlike what the Minister for Cayman Airways says, 'that everything is fine,' I have been told that there are certain problems which will occur relatively soon (I am told between now and September) for which someone is going to take it in the neck. Obviously, that will be the manager. Which manager? Let us check the time of changeover and see. Is it fair?

Even in government, Madam Speaker, when there is changeover of Heads of departments, and so on, there is at least some basic summation done, or there may even be an audit in the vote book so a person knows where they are taking over from. What will that individual be held for that he may not even have had any hand in whatsoever?

There are other things that a review could look at: charters, for example. Cayman Airways is now doing but two charters—St. Andreas, Panama, so on, now and then. One of the things that same SH & E Report recommended as far back as 1992 was that Cayman Airways should seriously explore the revenue-earning possibilities of Charters. We do not have a charter to North America anymore. At one time there was a charter to New York. That has all been changed, according to the Minister. He changed that, and gave himself an "A" for doing it.

Another thing that he changed and stopped was, according to him, having a lobbyist in England. I believe that that should be re-instituted, that was a good thing. I bet that British Airways has lobbyists in the House of Commons to help them with negotiating bilateral agreements and to put pressure on their behalf. I think we should have such persons there since we, in effect, are flying a route of the United Kingdom and Cayman Airways comes under that. I think that should be re-instituted and the wisdom of someone prior to him acknowledged for having appointed such a person.

I believe that a review would also look into how the operational side of Cayman Airways is functioning, which is very important. [This review] would take a look at routes and the feasibility of routes, for airline routes is something which has very specialised significance—which, I state, the Minister for Cayman Airways does not have the capability of doing, irrespective of whether he says he has a degree in credit managing and banking. We are talking about airline routes and the determination thereof, that is a science in itself.

I believe that a review would look at the maintenance part of Cayman Airways and how well that is doing. I understand that it is doing well to some degree. It is now in Grand Cayman, which at least offers opportunity for our own people to find employment. It would look at that situation, and it would even look at some of the spare parts that are being held and there might be advice forthcoming as to how dispose of them. If the Minister has all of these miraculous powers, how is it that he does not know how to get rid of the $4 million worth of parts being held there?

I think that a review would also look at the contracts without break clauses that have been signed and will give some views other than those of the Minister and the Managing Director. I believe that a review would look at the situation of just purely leasing an aircraft, and look at the feasibility of lease-purchasing an aircraft.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, on a point—

The Speaker: Honourable Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, you are repeating yourself again. That point was already raised by you.

Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: I was just going to make the same point.

The Speaker: Please continue, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I believe a review would look at the present Air Services Agreements which limit the capacity of Cayman Airways in flying its routes, and would be able to advise on what attempts should be made to amend the Air Services Agreement.

In speaking about that, a question asking if any limitations have been put on by the FAA in regards to Cayman Airways has been deferred in the House by the Minister because he supposedly needs information on it. Well, I have done a little inquiry myself and, as I thought about it, the answer could either be yes or no—it could only be yes or no; so there is nothing to research. But I am told that there is a restriction put on where we can only fly 737-200s; that we cannot upgrade to a 737-300 because under the wonderful management of the Minister, the Board and the Managing Director, there has not been adequate, systematic record-keeping to show certain data in regard to the aircraft. So a limitation has been put on the two jets of Cayman Airways, and a restriction that it must fly 737-200 which limits the capacity to 120 people.

I believe a review of the Air Services Agreement would recommend whether Cayman Airways should try to limit the capacity of airlines flying in here now. To the best of my understanding the limitation is now on the number of flights. But we well know that Cayman Airways' competition were told that they could only fly in from Miami so many times. So they simply flew a larger plane and brought in the same number of people in two or three flights. A review could advise on those types of Air Services Agreements.

A review could advise on the best way to attempt to continue to have a moratorium. A review could look at the aircraft and consider such things as hush-kitting these aircraft, what it would cost and what options might be available to Cayman Airways. Surely, a review would have some small comment about the accounts that have not been forthcoming and what they may or may not have included, and make queries about it.

In those same reports, both of the Air Services Ireland and the SH & E Report, it speaks about Mission Statements—statements as to where the airline is going and how. I would imagine a review would also have something to say about that as I am unaware of any Mission Statement (new or otherwise) recently publicised in this country about Cayman Airways.

A review could certainly address the matter which has long been debated in this country about Cayman Airways being a private company therefore we cannot be told this, that or the other thing about it; that is often said in this House [in answer] to questions and otherwise. But the question, then, is: If it is a private company, for which the Legislative Assembly has no right to query, why is it that whenever it needs a loan it is always the Legislative Assembly, or the Finance Committee it comes to, to underwrite those loans? Maybe a review could come up with a sensible answer to see exactly where Cayman Airways fits into that seeming contradiction.

The motion that is before this House needs to be accepted by the Government for the reasons I have stated, which, I postulate, would make sense to any reasonable man or woman. To not do so continues to allow Cayman Airways to be shrouded in the dark shadows so ably spread over it by the Minister for the airline who speaks so highly of himself and of where it is supposed to be at this point in time.

If there is nothing to hide, if there is nothing to fear from what could be found through a review, then there is obviously no logical reason why there should not be a review.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion No. 9/95: "BE IT RESOLVED that Government consider commissioning Simat, Helliesen and Eichner Inc (SH & E) because of its familiarization with Cayman Airways Limited, as a result of its past study, or such other specialized entity to undertake a review or situational assessment of the airline at this time."

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could we have a division?

The Speaker: You certainly may. Madam Clerk.

The Clerk:

DIVISION NO. 6/95

Private Member's Motion No. 9/95

AYES: 2

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean

Private Member's Motion No. 4/95. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/95

CONTROL OF LOCAL BUSINESSES

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 4/95, entitled, Control of Local Businesses, which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS there are a number of Caymanians who own and depend upon local businesses for their livelihood:- that is watersports, real estate agencies, boutiques, contractors' licences and other businesses;

"AND WHEREAS it is becoming increasingly difficult for these Caymanians to earn a decent, honest living in these areas because of unfair competition from foreign-owned companies which are attempting to monopolise these different industries;

"AND WHEREAS it is important to ensure that Caymanians continue to earn an honest living from their chosen areas of business to ensure the continuance of the social harmony that we enjoy in these Islands, which is one of the key reasons for our financial success;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT Government consider taking steps to ensure that new licences issued to industries as above, as well as any other businesses deemed necessary, are to Caymanians or to wholly owned Caymanian companies."

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Madam Speaker, I rise to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 4/95, Control of Local Businesses, having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

AMENDMENT TO MOTION

Standing Order 25(2)

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 25(2), I beg permission to introduce an amendment to this Motion. Standing Order 25(2) says, in regard to Motions: "Not less than two days' notice shall be given of an amendment to a motion unless, in exceptional circumstances, the Presiding Office so authorises otherwise."

Madam Speaker, I beg you to consider that.

The Speaker: Would the Third Elected Member for West Bay indicate whether he considers the circumstances to be exceptional?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Yes, Madam Speaker, I do.

The Speaker: Would you say why you think they are exceptional?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: There have been some concerns raised as to certain provisions of the motion and I think it would be in order to offer some enhancement to some of the wording in the motion, and to deal with the issue as a whole rather than wait the two days.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Accordingly, permission is granted to waive the two days' notice and the amendment can therefore be made.

Would you put forward your proposed amendment?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker, for your kind consideration. This is an amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 4/95, and it reads:

"BE IT RESOLVED that Private Member's Motion No. 4/95 be amended as follows: (1) That the words 'and other businesses' be deleted from the first recital; (2) That the words 'as well as any other business deemed necessary' be deleted from the resolve section; and (3) That a further new resolve section be added as follows:

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a Select Committee of all Elected Members be established to study other areas of local business, that the quorum be eight Members, and that public input be sought."

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I rise to second the motion for the amendment.

The Speaker: Before I put the question on the proposed amendment, I think that on the number (2), the last resolve section in the original motion says "as well as any other businesses", and this proposed amendment has "business". Could you just add "other businesses deemed necessary be deleted from the resolve section"? Is that in order? Thank you.

The question is that Private Member's Motion be amended as follows: "(1) That the words 'and other businesses' be deleted from the first recital; (2) That the words 'as well as any other businesses deemed necessary' be deleted from the resolve section; and (3) That a further new resolve section be added as follows:

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a Select Committee of all Elected Members be established to study other areas of local business, that the quorum be eight Members, and that public input be sought."

The amendment has been duly moved and seconded and is now open for debate.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, I ask your guidance... do I speak to the amendment or to the motion?

The Speaker: Well, to speak intelligently to the amendment you would have to include the motion, otherwise it would not make sense.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This motion has generated a great deal of interest in our community. There has been feedback in favour of this motion and then too, other sectors which have raised some concern with regard to what we are proposing. Let me mention up front that this motion does not, in any way, attempt to control the financial industry and its related services in this country. The motion also does not intend to be anti-foreigner.

As sensible and responsible legislators, we all recognise the necessity of foreign investment in keeping the economic and financial wheels of this country turning. Foreign investments have created one of the highest standards of living of any place in the world for our residents. We will continue to welcome foreign investments and foreign investors in this country.

May I just remind all of the key ingredients that have been responsible for the success that we have enjoyed in this country. We can boast of a stable government; no foreign exchange controls; social harmony; and the people of this country (that is, Caymanians) and those who reside among us (but especially Caymanians) have always been known for their warm hospitality and for welcoming anyone who chooses to visit or live among us. I am one person who would not want that situation or that advantage that we have here to ever change. I believe that the Cayman Islands are islands where people can come to relax and feel relatively safe. They receive a warm welcome and, as a result, we have attracted a lot of repeat visitors and business to this country.

But, Madam Speaker, on the other hand, as a representative of the people I do not think it wrong for me to call on government to consider putting in place measures and policies to promote or protect the local interests of Caymanians. Even the Bible tells us that any man who does not look out for his own household is an infidel. It is in order for us to promote and create advantages and benefits that would be to the sole benefit of our Caymanian people.

In this country, for far too long, we have sat back and done very little out of fear of doing the wrong thing. As a result, the situation in this country has deteriorated to the point where right now in certain areas as highlighted in this motion—that is, the watersports industry, the real estate industry, the construction industry, in particular, and other small businesses which Caymanians have relied upon to make an honest, decent living. . . I do not believe that any foreign investor would feel threatened by measures of this nature. Regardless of where you go there are provisions or policies in place that are geared to the local citizens of that jurisdiction.

I understand that there is similar legislation in place in jurisdictions such as Bermuda, and some of the other countries. Even in the great United States there are certain areas where only US citizens are allowed to benefit. So, I do not think it is out of place for us to take measures in hand to ensure that we continue to enjoy the benefits that we have had in this country for so long; that we protect the environment here so that visitors can continue to feel welcomed, where foreign investors can come in and feel comfortable and continue to feel safe with regard to their local investments.

There are a number of opportunities available to foreign investors in this country. I am not calling for any restriction whatsoever in businesses in the financial sector; I am not calling for any measures to close off the construction of hotels or condominiums. These are the areas that have, over the years, been financed and operated by foreigners. These things are necessary—these investments, these businesses, create employment for our local Caymanians. We should continue to encourage that type of activity in this country.

[I will now] specifically address those areas mentioned in the motion, the first of which is the watersports industry. Caymanians have always been known for their sea-faring success. Over the years when Caymanians had to do so, they became known as some of the world's best seamen. They sailed the seven seas. That was not too very long ago, when our Caymanian men had to resort to the sea in order to make a living. I am a young man, and when I was a boy that was the only option that I had available; I looked forward to going to sea—like so many of my relatives and friends—to earn a living.

They went to sea and sent home what was known as the 'allotment' to their wives or mothers who helped to build this country. They ran the household. What happened over the years . . . and that was not only going to "Southwell", as we used to term it, but a lot of our men were also employed in the turtle fishing industry, trolling back and forth between here and the Mosquito Cays fishing for turtle, also to support their families.

But, Madam Speaker, what happened over the years was that we then had Caymanian men who chose not to go to sea to make a living, but to stay at home. There were men, such as, Captain Ertis Ebanks, Captain Crosby Ebanks, Captain Gleason, Captain Marvin Ebanks, Captain Frank Ebanks, who were the pioneers in the watersports and charter fishing industry. These were the ones, contrary to what might be said today, who were responsible for creating the big tourist attraction that we have today known as "Stingray City". In the early days, these men were able to earn an honest, decent living in this industry to support their families. Our visitors enjoyed real Caymanian hospitality.

Over the years the watersports industry, or dive industry, has grown to where the Cayman Islands today now boasts of being the number one (or number two) diving destination in the world. The watersports industry today is big business. As a result, large foreign investors have seen the opportunity. They have come in through the assistance of Caymanian partners who get a piece of the action, and have attempted to gobble up all of the business; and in the process have hurt many small Caymanians who are finding it very difficult to continue to earn a decent, honest living in this industry today.

The large foreign-controlled businesses, even though a lot of them are 60% owned on paper by some Caymanians, have tremendous advantages compared to the small local Caymanian who is in this business. They have the cruise ship contacts, the contacts with big wholesalers overseas, they have contacts at the hotels and condominiums locally, and, as a result, they are able to sew up the business at the expense of Caymanians.

It has gotten so bad that some hotels even refuse to allow the local Caymanian operators the privilege of displaying their brochures in their lobby. So, the odds are against the small Caymanians at the present time in the watersports industry.

As a result of the difficulties that many of these small Caymanians have experienced, they have had to leave the industry and find jobs elsewhere to support themselves and their families. Today, the majority of the people who operate and/or work in the watersports industry are persons who are on work permits who have very little watersports experience and know nothing about the waters here around the Cayman Islands. Particularly—and this is a concern that I have raised on a number of occasions—since these people are here for two weeks and put in charge of boats that offer snorkeling trips and dive trips in the North Sound and to Stingray City. I have heard of several occasions where these boats have been rammed onto the reef in the North Sound, or they run aground on the shallow bars in that area simply because they do not know what they are doing.

We have a tendency to not do anything until we have a crisis. In other words, we are going to wait until someone gets hurt or killed in that industry as a result of someone's inexperience. Then government will jump in and put stringent legislation in place in order to try to correct the situation. At that stage it is too late.

One of the concerns that I have is that if you talk to persons who are here on work permits, be they dive masters, boat operators or personnel working in that industry, you find that they are paid very little to come here and work in this industry.

I remember talking to a young Caymanian who was working for one of these outfits and he told me that he was being paid US $5.00 per hour. What happens is that these people come in from jurisdictions where unemployment is high and they look forward to being able to work, to come down here and have a good time. Once they get here, not only are they employed in the watersports industry, but they get amendments to their work permits and work at night in the hotels and restaurants. They also get consent to work in the real estate industry on a part-time basis in order to supplement their income. Issues of this nature and the problems that Caymanians are now being faced with in this industry have to be addressed.

We had a public meeting at the West Bay Town Hall and after the meeting we met with a number of the local watersports operators. They have formed a new watersports association named The Cayman National watersports Association. In order to be a member of this association one must meet the requirement of being a born Caymanian. They highlighted some of the difficulties that they have experienced where, for example, they have called meetings with the hotel operators and management and offered them a piece of the action (maybe up to 20% commission) if they would be allowed to display their brochures on their racks in their lobbies. They flatly refused to even consider it.

Because of this attitude, many of these Caymanians are to the point where they are saying that they must have a piece of the action or they will see to it that nobody benefits from this industry. That kind of situation alarms me as a representative.

The membership of this new association consists of some 22 local operators. Some of the things they are recommending are: 1) To lift the current ban on distributing literature in Cayman's large hotels; 2) To establish deep water cruise ship moorings in West Bay; and 3) To build a landing jetty in West Bay on the west side of the island.

Like I said, they are all born Caymanians, honest Caymanians who have looked to and relied on a living from the sea all their lives. But what I am proud of is that Caymanians in this industry have started to organise themselves and, hopefully, in conjunction with the Motions and the Department of Tourism, their message can also get out there that if our visitors to this country want to enjoy real Caymanian hospitality, as far as the watersports industry is concerned, there are Caymanians who are still capable, willing and able to offer that service.

Many of them previously, on an individual basis, had approached the cruise ships about assistance. One excuse that the cruise ships always came up with is that they needed a million-dollar liability insurance policy in place. I have been informed by the members of this new association that this insurance is now available to them. So they are now in a position where they do qualify for consideration from the cruise ships for part of their business.

One of the recommendations that they also put forward is that not only should any future licences in the watersports industry only go to Caymanians or companies 100% owned by Caymanians, but that foreign controlled companies in this area should also be restricted as to how far or how wide they can expand.

I believe that the government has to step in and lend some assistance in this area. They can assist in a number of ways, not only by directing the Immigration Board to not license any companies in this area unless they are Caymanian owned, but by also ensuring that financing is made available to local Caymanians, through the AIDB, in order to finance their operations provided they can show a good business plan and that they have the ability to operate the business on a successful note. Government should encourage and ensure that financing is made available to local Caymanians—not only through the AIDB, but also through the commercial banks that are licensed and operating in this country.

I believe there is a need for government to establish some type of watersports board. We could have representation on that Board from the Cayman Islands Wa-tersports Association, the Cayman National Watersports Association, the Hotel and Condominium Association and maybe someone from the transportation industry could sit as a member of this board or committee. Also, maybe one or two legislators should sit as members of that board.

As I see it, the role of this board or committee would be to review any new applications or requests that may be submitted to government for any new boats to be brought in, to ensure that boats used in the industry are seaworthy; because there is a lot of concern out there right now regarding specific boats that were mentioned that are falling apart and still going out there on a daily basis filled with visitors. The concern is that one of these days someone is going to be hurt or killed in one of those boats—it may sink or someone will drown. They are really concerned about that. I think that this could be one of the functions of the new Committee or Board, perhaps with the assistance of the Port Authority or the marine section, to ensure the seaworthiness of those vessels that are used in that industry.

I believe that there is also a need to ensure that anybody who operates a boat in this area has the experience, qualifications and knowledge of the waters here around the Cayman Islands to operate that boat. They should have to satisfy the members of that Committee that they are capable of doing that and if they are that they be issued some type of licence that is renewable on an annual basis, or whatever time the Board deems necessary.

I also believe that with the assistance of the Department of Tourism Caymanians employed in the watersports industry should be assisted in getting business from the cruise ships. I know that what some jurisdictions do is to refuse to allow any pre-bookings whatsoever. I am not advocating that, but I believe that it is necessary that a representative of the new association, perhaps along with the Director of Tourism, should sit down with the agents and ensure that the new association gets a piece of the action. All that Caymanians are asking for is to get a little piece of the pie. They are not asking for everything, they just want the ability to be able to earn a living in this industry.

My recommendations in this area are: (1) that any new companies be 100% owned by Caymanians; (2) any licences issued in that area be issued only to Caymanians or 100% Caymanian owned companies. The other necessary thing that was brought to my attention is that we find situations where foreign investors come to a Caymanian who is tempted to do so-and-so, and asks him to form a company for them. They say: 'Here is $100,000 for the business, but I will control the business by acting as Chairman of the Board, President or Managing Director of the Company.' I believe it is also necessary for the Board to look at the make-up of that board and management of that company. I believe that what is recommended is that a Caymanian is put as Chairman or President of the Board, and also as the Managing Director—to ensure that once the company is formed and licensed a Caymanian will control the business.

I am recommending that some type of new Watersports Board be established for the purpose of determining the sea-worthiness of vessels used in the watersports industry; the licencing of operators in that area and to review and approve (or disapprove) any new requests that come to government for new boats that will be used in this industry.

I believe that once government takes that approach in regards to the watersports industry, we can head off some of the dissatisfaction and frustrations that our small Caymanians who are attempting to make a living in this area are presently experiencing. I honestly believe that that is the key to our continued financial success in this country.

The Cayman Islands has always been a place where Caymanians, regardless of what rung of society they may find themselves in, were always able to make an honest, decent living in this country. I believe that once Caymanians can continue to do that, they will not feel threatened or too concerned about the number of people who come into this country as visitors, or [those] here on work permits to fill jobs that Caymanians are not presently capable or available to fill. But Caymanians will continue to share in the success that we have in this country.

The other area mentioned in the motion is real estate agencies. I was pleasantly surprised at the reception I received from Caymanians who are employed in the real estate industry. Their comments were that this was very timely, necessary, and they really supported the idea of our doing something at this stage to protect Caymanians in this industry.

The real estate industry in this country is big business. We have some Caymanians who are doing quite well indeed in this industry. The opportunities in this industry continue to expand, but we see the same trend in the real estate industry, as I just mentioned in the watersports industry—the big foreign investors coming in and joining up with a Caymanian partner and controlling the business. One of the real concerns highlighted to me in my discussions with people in that industry is that they have right now multi-national real estate companies that are coming in here to operate in the Cayman Islands—Century 21, RE/MAX and agencies of that nature.

Those are franchises, and those franchises have certain requirements. For example, let us use Century 21—they require that a franchisee have a certain minimum percentage of all real estate listings in this country. Not only that, by their very nature they constantly demand adding agents. Because we do not have that many Caymanians available in this area, these agents have to be brought in from the outside.

The other concern brought to my attention was regarding part-time agents in the real estate industry. Many of these people are here on work permits, employed in the watersports industry making US $4.00 or US $5.00 per hour. But they see the opportunities available to them and apply for an amendment to their work permit and become part-time agents in the real estate industry in order to supplement their income. The concern is that these part-time people are only out to make a buck, there have been instances where they have not played by the rules. That hurts the reputation of the industry and those people who are reputable and who have a genuine concern and interest in doing what is right and who have a concern for the reputation of the Cayman Islands.

As a matter of fact, because of those problems, one of the considerations is that the Cayman Islands Real Estate and Brokers Association is eliminating part time agents in that industry. By the very nature of the business, if they can continue to get work permits for people who do not necessarily have the experience or qualification (but just an interest to come in here and work); rather than looking to see if they can find a qualified Caymanian who may have the ability and the interest to be trained in order for him to make a living in the industry, the preference is to apply for a work permit. Unfortunately, work permits at the present time are too easy to get.

I am not saying that we do not need people on work permits. There are certain areas of work in this country where Caymanians do not have an interest in working but a need is there for those services and we need to bring people in on work permits. There are certain positions that Caymanians have not attained at present, so we have to continue to offer work permits in these areas. But where we can find a Caymanian with the ability and the interest to be trained, the government should insist that he be trained.

The other complaint that I get from Caymanians is that there are people employed in the industry who really do not need the income. Some of these agents are staying at the Britannia and riding around in a Rolls Royce, a BMW or a Mercedes Benz. A lot of property owners are also listing their properties with agents in return for work permits for family or friends in order for them to also be in a position to sell the property and get a commission.

The number of abuses that are going on in this industry is amazing. Unfortunately, we Caymanians have not learned a whole lot from other nationalities. The Cubans look out for the Cubans, the Jamaicans look out for the Jamaicans, the British look out for the British, Americans look out for Americans . . . the Caymanians? The attitude amongst Caymanians—and I am glad to see that they are starting to organise themselves—is: ‘As long as I can make a living, I forget about you.’ That is what has promoted some of the problems we are experiencing in these areas.

One of the recommendations that is coming forward for that industry is that government should consider placing a ban on any further multi-national real estate companies being licenced to operate in the Cayman Islands.

There is also a recommendation that government should consider placing either a moratorium or a limit on the number of real estate agents that are issued work permits to come in here. I honestly support those recommendations. I believe that we have a sufficient number of companies licensed in this area. The Cayman Islands Real Estate Brokers Association wrote me when they saw the article on my motion, and they provided me with some very essential information. I would just like to read some excerpts from the letter:

“Of our 24 member companies, without exception, all are proper Caymanian companies with the majority controlled by Caymanians. No company is operating by virtue of a Local Companies (Control) Licence and, given our membership criteria and approval process, it is very unlikely that this will occur in the future regardless of a government-imposed moratorium.”

So, the real estate industry has also organised itself, and I understand that there is only one company operating in that industry that is not a member of this association. The association is a good thing because it disciplines and monitors what goes on in the industry. If necessary, they can take action to ensure that a person no longer remains a member if they do not abide by the rules. That is good because it ensures that the foreign investor who comes here to purchase a piece of property, or who buys a condominium or whatever, is dealt with in a professional matter. That is very important.

We have enough agencies in the real estate industry, and until that situation changes where we might have to issue new licences to companies that are 60% Caymanian owned, I would recommend that government consider issuing any new licences in this area to 100% owned Caymanian companies, or to the Caymanians themselves. When you talk about a Caymanian, he falls under the definition of the Immigration Law—someone who has Caymanian Status as well.

I believe that it is important for us to put certain controls in place in that area so that people who are employed in that industry do not find themselves in the same situation, now or in the future, as presently exists in the watersports and transportation industry (which is another area where a lot of our Caymanians are very frustrated and having a very difficult time in earning a decent living). I believe the time has come for us to also ask the government to consider issuing new licences in the real estate industry only to Caymanian owned companies or to Caymanians themselves.

I also believe, as has been recommended by Caymanians employed in that area, that government should consider placing a moratorium or a number with regard to the number of permits that are allowed to any one real estate agency. If we do not control the numbers at this stage, it is going to be another dog-eat-dog situation as in the real estate industry.

Madam Speaker, the other area that this motion covers is boutiques. That covers a wide range of businesses—the little T-shirt shop, the little flower shop, you name it, I guess we could basically cover it under a boutique situation. What we find at the present time are people with a lot of money who are allowed to operate here in the Cayman Islands. They are allowed to establish boutiques and are able to compete with, and not only compete with, but to destroy small Caymanians who are attempting to earn a living from that little business.

I believe that this is an area where we also need to look at putting some controls in place, and ensuring that any new licences in this area are issued to Caymanians. By that, I believe that the definition includes those who have Caymanian status.

The problem that we have in this country is that one person decides to go into a particular business and then you find 100 additional people deciding to go into this same business with no thought whatsoever of the number that business can support, and everybody suffers as a result. I believe that it is necessary for us to also look at issuing any new licences for boutiques in this country to Caymanians or 100% owned Caymanian companies.

One of the areas that the motion also covers is local contractors. I know that government is now in the process of attempting to address this issue. I think a bill entitled, "The Local Contractors Bill", will be brought in September, I think, in an attempt to regularise or improve the situation with regard to local contractors.

I recall the policy of the 1976—1984 Government where they had large foreign contractors—at that stage we had McAlpine and Hadsphaltic who were not allowed to bid on jobs of a certain size, I think it was anything under $250,000 that they were not able to bid on. That did lend some protection to the local contractors. What is happening today is that we have qualified Caymanians who are carpenters and masons, good builders, who are finding it very difficult to continue to earn a decent living in this country.

We have people being brought in by the large contractors who are paid $4.00, $5.00 or $6.00 per hour—cheap labour. As a result, many Caymanians are having a hard time earning a living. I believe that some controls have to be put in place and that Caymanians have to be protected in this area.

We have enough contractors in this country. I do not care what has to be built here—you can find somebody here at the present time who can build that for you. That is not a problem. Previously, the policy was that we had these people who were brought in (be they masons or carpenters) for specific projects. The condition was that once that project was finished those persons were to be repatriated. Over the years a lot of these people have been allowed to stay here. They were able to establish roots and, as a result, they are now in a position to compete and they get preference in a lot of cases because they have the contracts with local Caymanians. Like I said before, Caymanians do not want all of the business, they only want the ability to be able to earn a decent living in this area.

The motion also calls for government to consider the issuing of licences in this area in the future to Caymanians or Caymanian-owned companies.

I found it very interesting to see what the Chamber thought about this motion. In an article in the Caymanian Compass, on Wednesday, 14 June 1995, under the title, "Protectionism in Business," certain concerns were raised. One of the issues raised that I found amusing was the issue of 'fronting'. They said that if you have the requirement that any company in this area is 100% owned by Caymanians, what happens if a Caymanian marries a foreign spouse and they want to go into business. They are saying that the Caymanian spouse would have to front for their foreign spouse. That is nonsense, Madam Speaker. How can you front against yourself? Once you are married you are one as far as I am concerned. How can my wife front for me for them? They benefit, regardless of who owns the business. I do not have a problem with that. If a Caymanian spouse holds the shares in that company that is fine with me.

The other issue they raised was: what happens if the spouse does not qualify in this area? There is nothing in the Trade and Business Licensing Law that says a person has to be qualified to apply for a Trade and Business Licence. It does not say that. It says you have to be Caymanian. So, they raise issues that really do not make sense in a lot of cases—like they always do.

The statement they make here is, . . . let me read this Madam Speaker: "The Compass quotes Mr. Jefferson as saying: 'that it is difficult for Caymanians to earn a decent, honest living in these areas because of unfair competition from foreign-owned companies which are attempting to monopolize these different industries.' The Chamber cautions that Mr. Jefferson's remark is biased and smacks of nationalism."

Madam Speaker, I do not care who likes it from who does not—I am a nationalist. I am Caymanian, I promote Caymanian interests, but it does not mean that I am against any foreign investor in this country. I do take pride in being Caymanian. The minute you start emphasising or promoting these types of ideas, the first thing they try to label you with is being a radical, or anti-foreigner. I am no idiot; I recognise the value of the foreign investor, I recognise the value of the foreign financial industry in this country.

I hear a lot of Caymanians saying: "Boy, the good old days." Not me—I would not want to go back to the good old days where the mosquitoes were eating us and we could not find a job. I would not want to have to go on the iron shore and pick whelks. That was fun when you had to do it, but I do not find that too enjoyable anymore.

There is nothing wrong with having national pride or promoting national pride, or protecting certain industries or areas for your own people. What is wrong with that?

The other comment they made which I thought was very interesting, and which shows where their support is, is where they said: "Additionally, it is the nature of the business to grow and expand if possible. Indeed, the free enterprise is based on the arrival [they mean survival] of the fittest."

We adopt that philosophy here in the Cayman Islands. That is exactly what we have—the 'arrival' of the fittest. But the arrival or survival would not be the local Caymanian, Madam Speaker.

I have no apologies to the Chamber or anyone else for bringing a Motion of this nature, because I believe it is in the best interest of my people. This in no way sends any signals nor should it be misinterpreted by any foreign person or company operating in the Cayman Islands that I am promoting nationalism. What they are talking about there, nationalism... the context here is we are heading toward a situation like Cuba, where the government just took over banks and hotels and all of the other businesses. That is not the situation here. The dog will eat all of our supper the day that kind of philosophy is promoted in this country.

What I am asking the government to consider doing is with immediate effect to put in place a moratorium or controls on any new licences issued to companies in the watersports industry, the real estate industry, the construction industry and in the area of boutiques. This motion also calls for, through the amendment, a Select Committee to be established that will consist of the 15 Elected Members which would give us as legislators an opportunity to invite members of the public in to appear before us and say what, in addition to the areas Mr. Ebanks and I have raised, should be considered to be set aside for Caymanians. This is not intended to infringe on the financial industry that we have in this country. This is local businesses—be it little cleaners, whatever—this Motion is restricted to consideration in those areas.

Madam Speaker, I thank you for your time and I commend the Motion to this House.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes, and I ask Members to please be back in the Chamber by 10 minutes past 4 o'clock.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.54 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.09 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 4/95. The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to begin by saying that after such an enlightening presentation by the Third Elected Member for West Bay, I feel pretty confident that this motion is going to get unanimous approval.

It is a well known fact that there are problems brewing in our communities—be that George Town, East End, Cayman Brac, wherever—there are persons who feel that they are not getting their fair share of progress as our islands develop. They approach many of us representatives and legislators in an effort to see if something can be done so that they can enjoy the progress that the islands are making as a whole. I therefore feel that this Motion is very timely and appropriate, and I look forward to hearing the various points expressed by the various people as they contribute to the debate.

As Cayman progresses and business opportunities become more lucrative, and where there is the opportunity to make money, it is only natural that this will attract outsiders to our shores, and this is nothing more than we can expect. Such was the case in the California Gold Rush, etcetera. It is only natural that people will be attracted to this island. I do not think that anyone should ever insinuate that they are doing something wrong or other than they expected, but, at the same time, I think it would be remiss of us as Legislators and Representatives not to protect the interest of those we represent.

Now, if there were not a problem at all, and Caymanians were not complaining and did not feel that they were not being taken care of by the present legislation in place; in other words, if the Companies Laws and the Trade and Business Law and all these other laws that are in the statutes were working, then perhaps this motion would not be expedient. It is my firm belief that all the laws we have in place to protect our own people are, in fact, not working because we do have a problem on our hands.

The mover of the motion pointed out some of the particular areas of business that are very affected. He spoke about boutiques, watersports and real estate agencies. I thought that he went into elaborate details as to the where, when and how these various businesses are affected.

I noticed that in the amendment to the motion, which I found on my desk this afternoon, it is the intention to amend the resolve: "That the words "and other businesses" be deleted from the first recital;" and also, "That the words "as well as any other business deemed necessary" be deleted from the resolve section;" and to add a further resolve: "AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a Select Committee of all Elected Members be established to study other areas of local business, that the quorum be eight Members, and that public input be sought."

I must admit that I had some concern when I read the motion initially, and saw that it did leave it very wide open, not only for the various areas noted, but it did go on to be kind of all-encompassing and left to the discretion of... I am very happy to see that this amendment has been proposed because it makes it much easier for me to support the Bill.

I am not so interested in the semantics and the legalities and whatnot. I am more interested in the spirit of this Motion. What it is trying to do is ensure that our people can make a living in this the only place they can call home. That is very vital to me because I, for one, know that if this does not happen we are going to have social disharmony, unrest and the very things that we fear are going to happen. Unless we have a contented populace and unless we try to do something about it, it is not going to happen on its own.

As we have already heard, a free enterprise system involves the survival of the fittest. Many of the persons who come to our shores are far better equipped because of their past experience, education, etcetera, to survive in this our island home. Therefore, it seems very prudent for us, as legislators, to ensure that our own people can survive, that they will always have a job and that they can make money in their own country, their own home.

I do not think any Chamber of Commerce or any organisation should ever attempt to insinuate that we are doing anything else than what we were put here to do.

I remember during the campaign and shortly afterwards, there was so much talk about 'standing up for Caymanians', 'protecting Caymanians' rights', doing everything we could to make sure Caymanians had a fair part of the action. I am not at all in the least frightened when I read articles in the paper which seem to want to give the impression that we had better be so careful because all the investors are going to run. We are not talking about businesses and investments, and so on, that Caymanians are not qualified to undertake. We are not talking about those things. We are not talking about the banks, the trust companies and international organisations that have established themselves in the Cayman Islands. We are talking about simple businesses where there are sufficient Caymanians already amongst us to do the job. All that would happen if we allow other people to come in and participate, is that they would be put at a disadvantage.

We know that it is very healthy to allow Caymanians to compete amongst themselves, and we would never be able to stop that—we want to encourage that, we want to make sure that we can get the very best product. I believe in the free enterprise system and I believe that it should be encouraged. But, when we invite extraneous factors to our shores... and we know they are going to come because there is hardly any better place in the world than Cayman, despite the detractors and all the statements they want to make—so they are going to keep coming—unless we protect our own people then they surely will not want to come. Nothing is so bad as to go to an island—and many of us have visited such islands—where people are so disgruntled they lack stability; they are so ill-tempered and bad-mannered, full of expletives and so on, that you really feel like taking the next plane out. We never want to see a Cayman Islands like that.

Therefore, I think it is very important for us to do our part to make sure that our own people can survive in dignity in these islands. Like I said, there may be a few words in this motion that the legal minds might want to change, but I believe the Caymanian public wants us to support a motion like this to ensure that they have a fair chance.

If I were any other legislator, or anyone else, I would not even care two hoots about what people are saying because that is purely a scare tactic—where they say we are going to drive the investor out with a motion like this. It is nothing but a scare tactic and it is to make sure that they continue to deprive and rape this country of what other people should be benefitting from. So I am not impressed with people who come along with scare tactics.

We certainly welcome foreign investment to our shores, and there will be lots of room for foreign investment in Cayman—this is a growing, blooming type of blossoming economy, and there will be lots of opportunity for the foreign investor to come in here and invest and help us out and for us to help them because it is always a two-way street—one can hardly do without the other. We certainly welcome those well-meaning people and we want to see them make money and do well in this country. We will maintain the free enterprise system, while at the same time ensuring that Caymanians are not victimised and not disadvantaged in any way.

I too found that comment about nationalism very interesting. Nationalism, in the sense of national pride and looking after my own people and going the extra mile to ensure that the Caymanian populace is going to get first place in Cayman... I tell you, there is not a stronger proponent in Cayman than I in that respect. So, if the Chamber of Commerce is referring to that kind of nationalism they can come and talk to me.

The other sort of nationalism, where you want to take over banks a take over like in a communist country, I do not think the foreign investor even has to begin to fear that this is what we are intending to do here. So, for those well-meaning foreign investors, and all of those people who are fair minded, I think that they would support what we are trying to do here in the Legislature today. It is those people who are themselves warped in their thinking, who feel that they can come into another man's country and take over, that will perhaps object.

Cayman is for Caymanians. We welcome foreigners and will always make them feel at home, within reason. I want to remind people who have been using scare tactics that whenever you go into another man's country it is just that—unless you get status or citizenship it is not your country and you have to abide within the laws and mores of the country.

So, good luck to this motion, and thank you very much, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to utilise the five minutes remaining? (Pause) Do you wish to have an early adjournment?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: We have five minutes more.

The Speaker: Perhaps the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture would like to utilise the five minutes.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, any time I get a chance to speak, I speak! If I was going to speak...

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, I would recommend an early adjournment.

The Speaker: Is that seconded?

Mr. Roy Bodden: I second that, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: I am going to have to put the question... The Fourth Elected Member for George Town?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am sorry, Madam Speaker, I was just going to suggest that since the motion had been seconded we take a vote on it.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker: The question is, as proposed by the Third Elected Member for West Bay and seconded by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 tomorrow morning.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Monday morning at 10.00.

AT 4.25 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 19 JUNE 1995.

MONDAY
19 JUNE, 1995
10.09 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: Before we begin the matters for this morning, I would like to extend on your behalf a very warm welcome to the Lady Member for George Town who has been ill. It is good to see her back.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. The first question is No. 135, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 135

No. 135: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state the number of Exclusion Orders lifted since 1993.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer: Only one Exclusion Order has been lifted since 1993.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member inform the House as to how the decision to lift Exclusion Orders is made?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Each case would be considered on its own merits.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say from whom these recommendations come, whether it be a body, organisation or individuals?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Again, it depends on the individual case and the circumstances. Generally, the individual who has been declared a prohibited immigrant will quite often write and ask for reconsideration putting forward any additional information that may not have been available before, or a change in circumstances, as the case may be.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is it a requirement that such an applicant provide substantiating documents or references from persons of prominent standing in the society?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Again, it all depends on the circumstances. For the sake of argument, maybe I can elaborate a little more: If a person has been declared a prohibited immigrant by virtue of the fact that he/she was convicted in another country, let us say, the United States; and suppose the offence was a tax offence that is not an offence in the Cayman Islands but, at the same time, the person would have gone to prison for an extended period of time; then the person would be declared a prohibited immigrant in the Cayman Islands. But, after a number of years it may be that the person writes and asks for a reconsideration giving the details, and the government would then examine the case to make a decision.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In cases where the orders are lifted, are there any provisions attached, or when the order is lifted is an absolute order granted?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

That one is a little difficult to answer because, as I stated in the substantive answer, there is only one case since 1993, and in that case the person was granted permission to re-enter the Cayman Islands. There were no specific conditions attached.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 136, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 136

No. 136: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to state if any counsellor from the Cayman Counselling Centre provides daily counselling sessions at Northward Prison.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer: Presently the Cayman Counselling Centre has a designated Drug Counsellor assigned to Northward Prison with other staff members assisting in doing assessments with regard to appropriateness, attitude and motivation on individual inmates who express an interest in drug counselling.

Implementation of the educational programme, that is, videos, lectures and discussion groups, began 13 June, 1995. Cayman Counselling Centre is currently using a classroom provided by the Prison one day a week while awaiting space and additional staff. At this time an intensive programme which has been prepared will be implemented five days a week to assist the inmates in a smooth transition back into society upon leaving prison.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say how many prisoners avail themselves of this service at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Forty-seven, at this time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say if there is any follow up available for these counselling sessions when the prisoner has been released?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, they are now connected to the Counselling Centre for the follow up treatment.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I noticed in the answer given by the Honourable Minister that it only expresses an interest in drug counselling. I wonder if he could state if other areas of counselling are given at the Prison such as for a kleptomania (a person who is always in there for stealing), or is it strictly for drug counselling?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Madam Speaker, I cannot say if that is going on. Our main responsibility is the drug and alcohol problem.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Honourable Minister give an undertaking to investigate into the feasibility of addressing this need?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: It is not my subject, but I can talk to the Honourable Chief Secretary, or his Deputy, who I think is responsible for Northward Prison.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 137, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 137

No. 137: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if there is at the present time a fully functional Personnel Department at the George Town Hospital.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer: No, there is not at the present time a fully functional Personnel Department at the George Town Hospital.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister then state how personnel problems are addressed, and by whom?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

With the dissolution of the Health Services Authority on 1st January, 1994, the Health Services Authority returned to its former status as a government department. As such, personnel functions, that is, recruitment, benefits administration, compensation management, etcetera, are provided by the Public Service Commission and the Permanent Secretary of Personnel.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister tell us who recommends when personnel should be hired, and if someone is not performing, does all this go back to the Public Service Commission or straight to the administrator?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

There are two aspects: The hourly paid employees are recommended by the Head of Department, the permanent and pensionable would be through Personnel.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say who is responsible for keeping current personnel records if there is no Personnel Department at the hospital?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Head of Department, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: As the Hospital is one of Government's largest departments, and in large part its staffing is specialised, has the Ministry or the department considered that it might be best to have a functioning Personnel Unit within the Health Services Department? Is any consideration being given to it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Not at this time, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

Government Business, Bills.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

FIRST READINGS

THE DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Development and Planning (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

THE AGRICULTURAL AND INDUSTRIAL AID (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Agricultural and Industrial Aid (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.
Second Readings.

SECOND READINGS

THE DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Development and Planning (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I move the second reading of the Development and Planning (Amendment) Bill, 1995. This Bill merely permits tribunals to be established for the Development Plan representations, and for objections to be heard. It is impossible for one planning tribunal to deal with all of the several hundred applications. That is the reason for the Bill.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that a Bill entitled, The Development and Planning (Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a second reading.

The Motion is open for debate. [pause] If there is no debate, does the Honourable Minister have anything to add?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question that a Bill entitled, The Development and Planning (Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a second reading.

Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a second reading.

AGREED: THE DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Second readings.

THE AGRICULTURAL AND INDUSTRIAL AID (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Agricultural and Industrial Aid (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, Members are aware of Government's policy to amalgamate the Housing Development Corporation and the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board into a new entity which has, thus far, been referred to as the Cayman Islands Development Board.

The purpose of this amalgamation is to streamline the operation of this organisation to make it more efficient. In order to facilitate the proposed amalgamation, it is recommended that the Agricultural and Industrial Aid Law, 1978, be amended to empower the Board to prepare for the winding up of the activities before it is actually wound up.

An amendment to the Housing Development Corporation Law, 1981, passed in the Legislative Assembly in September 1994, empowers the Housing Development Corporation to prepare for its winding up and the formation of a new board. The draft bill of the Cayman Islands Development Board is being reviewed by the Committee and the recommendations will be made to Executive Council in July as to the makeup of the board and so on.

It is my intention to bring a Bill to this Honourable House in September to formally effect the amalgamation of the Housing Development Corporation and the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board.

The required provision for the AIDB has been prepared in the form of a Bill to amend the Agricultural and Industrial Aid Law, 1978. I trust that Members will appreciate this Bill as being just a housekeeping exercise, as was done with the Housing Development Corporation Law, 1981, in September last year to pave the way for the amalgamation in September 1995.

I commend the Bill to Members and trust that it will enjoy the full support of the House.

The Speaker: The question before the House is the second reading of The Agricultural and Industrial Aid (Amendment) Bill, 1995. The Motion is now open for debate. [pause]

If there is no debate, and unless the Mover has anything more to add, I propose to put the question.

The question is that a Bill entitled, The Agricultural and Industrial Aid (Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a second reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a second reading.

AGREED. THE AGRICULTURAL AND INDUSTRIAL AID (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: The House will now go into Committee to consider the two Bills.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE AT 10.30 AM

COMMITTEE ON BILLS

The Chairman: Please be seated.

The House is in Committee to consider the Development and Planning (Amendment) Bill, 1995, and the Agricultural and Industrial Aid (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The Clerk will now read the Clauses.

THE DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Clerk: Clause 1. Short title.
Clause 2. Amendment of section 2(1) of the Development and Planning Law, revised Clause 3. Amendment of Section 8(3) of the principal Law.
Clause 4. Amendment of the principal Law by addition of new section 38A.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 1 through 4 do stand part of the Bill. The Motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 1, 2, 3 AND 4 PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for a Law to Amend the Development and Planning Law (Revised).

The Chairman: The question is that the Title do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: TITLE PASSED.

THE AGRICULTURAL AND INDUSTRIAL AID (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

The Chairman: The Agricultural and Industrial (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

Clerk: Clause 1. Short title.
Clause 2. Amendment of the Agricultural and Industrial Aid Law, 1978.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 1 and 2 do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 1 AND 2 PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for a Law to Amend the Agricultural and Industrial Aid Law, 1978.

The Chairman: The question is that the Title do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: TITLE PASSED.

The Chairman: That concludes proceedings in Committee on a Bill entitled Development and Planning (Amendment) Bill, 1995, and The Agricultural and Industrial Aid (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The question is that the House do now resume. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. THAT THE HOUSE RESUME.

HOUSE RESUMED AT 10.33 A.M.

The Speaker: Please be seated. The House is resumed. Reports on Bills.

The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

REPORTS ON BILLS

THE DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING (AMENDMENT)

BILL, 1995

Hon. Truman M. Boddien: Madam Speaker, I have to report that a Bill entitled a Law to Amend the Development and Planning Law (Revised) was considered by a Committee of the whole House and passed without amendment.

The Speaker: The Bill is accordingly set down for Third Reading.

THE AGRICULTURAL AND INDUSTRIAL AID (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I have to report that a Bill for a Law to Amend the Agricultural and Industrial Aid Law, 1978, was considered by a Committee of the whole House and passed.

The Speaker: The Bill is accordingly set down for Third Reading.

Other Business. Continuation of the debate on Private Member's Motion No. 4/95, Control of Local Businesses.

OTHER BUSINESSPRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS*PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/95*CONTROL OF LOCAL BUSINESSES

(Continuation of debate thereon)

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Although I seconded the Motion, I still feel that there is something I should say, that is, that I rise to give the Motion my full support.

What the Motion is calling for is something that should have been done a long time ago, that is, providing some form of protection for our local small business people.

I still feel that although it may be late, it is never too late to do good; so, I hope this Honourable House will give this Motion its full support and that government will get along with the job of trying to help these people.

The small business people are being pressured, especially those mentioned in the Motion. I know that the watersports industry is suffering badly, they need help.

The watersports business was formed here by Caymanians in the early days of our development and it was run good. But, as it always happens, the big business people in that area have moved in now and are working as if to try to take the whole business over. The watersports business is something that we should preserve for Caymanians—Caymanians lived off that, and those doing it enjoyed that livelihood. It was like one big family operating together.

I know that one of our Captains, the late Captain Ertis, who was one of the first Caymanians who went into watersports—and he did a good job. I remember him also landing the biggest fish that was caught in the Cayman Islands. It was a Jew Fish, I think, 300 pounds—that was a huge catch. That fish was hung up under the grape tree on the seashore and people came down to look at it and take pictures. I remember seeing tourists there. What he should have done at the time was set up a cool drink stand and he could have made some money off the show. But, it brought friendship and people came and looked for him. He was always busy.

The other captains who followed also provided a good service to the tourists and they enjoyed it. Actually, the harmony and tranquillity that was brought to the people through those men is what brought the tourists back to the Island in those days. They loved and enjoyed it.

We are now where the big fish eats up the small fish. That is what is happening now to that industry and also to others. I feel it is high time that the government take steps to control this to put an end to this pushing, and give our local people a chance to live again.

Madam Speaker, we have large businesses here, such as the investors and bankers. We are not interfering with them. What we are speaking about are the local small business people. I say that it is now time for government to move forward and do something to protect them. I know that the pressure on one establishment is really bad and they are thinking about moving. If Caymanians were not people who have a loving heart and all this thought out, 'How would it look for me to do something radical or something rough?' they would probably have made a move already. I have had representation from the transportation side (the taxis) and they are looking for the government to step in and give them some help.

This thing is like a sleeping, boiling volcano—it will erupt if it is not stopped. I, for one, hope that something is done soon.

I give this Motion my full support. Thank you, Madam Speaker.
[pause]

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Private Member's Motion 4/95, which is presently before the House with its amendment, is one that I can support. My support is for a variety of reasons.

I believe there is a need for Members of the Legislative Assembly, be they Ministers or Members on the other side of the floor, when they are aware of problems in an industry, to try to take the necessary action which, hopefully, will bring an amicable solution to the perceived problem.

Many of us who grew up in Cayman, as stated by the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, know about the people who started the industry and know that the North Sound, particularly, was left for people who conducted snorkelling businesses as well as for bone fishing and other activities.

It was not many years ago that those operators in the North Sound who, by their daily visits to a particular area of the North Sound, where they had been feeding the stingrays for many, many years, developed what is now one of the most popular dive sites in the Cayman Islands. I think what is important is that they who developed it have an opportunity to reap the benefits from it.

We have seen the significant traffic to that area over a period of time; so much so that it is almost difficult on some days to pull up another boat. Sometimes some people who are heavy on the commercial side of watersports tend to forget who actually created it.

The control of local business is not anything new. I believe that one of the reasons why the Caymanian Protection Law was put in place was with that objective in mind. If we now find that the law is not working as effectively as it was intended to, then there is need to take another step. Rather than reacting to a crisis situation, I believe it is in our interest to head off any possible crisis and to resolve it as best we can, hopefully being fair to all parties concerned.

In my view this control of local business does not affect the financial industry. It is basically dealing with people who provide local business, such as in the watersports areas. The amendment to the Motion is calling for a Select Committee to be established to take public input on how other areas of the economy may be looked at, and maybe [recommend] possible solutions to difficulties that we now experience.

I believe that the local people in the watersports industry, who were there from almost as far back as I can remember, are going through very difficult times. If we are, as we have been, successful in promoting tourism to our shores, whether they arrive by an airline or a cruise ship, I believe that they too should get a little bit of what everybody talks about—trickle down economics—by tourism traffic.

I believe that the objective of the Bill is to preserve the present position, to not allow substantial increases in this area of watersports which would further dilute the business that is presently earned by the people in the watersports industry. We know there are dive operations that go on which are diving different parts of the waters around the island. Those who are here, as they say, are here. This Motion does not seek to do anything about them at present. As for the future, we will need to look at that carefully. Certainly, if you have a group of people who are not earning as much money from it as they believe they should (and I believe they should), then we need to take some steps to ensure that that happens.

The free market system is not a solution to every problem. It does not take a genius to figure out that people with significant amounts of money can capture just about any industry in these islands. My question is: if Government allows that to happen, is that fair? I say it is not.

I look forward to [listening to] other Members, who I feel certain will offer their contribution now that they understand what the Government is going to do in respect of this Motion. Not to prolong the debate—I have always believed in being brief and trying to get my points across as best the Lord helps me to do—I will take my seat by saying that I see no danger with this particular Motion, and I support it because I think it is right for the people of these islands.

[pause]

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, would the Mover of the Motion wish to exercise his right of reply?

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I did not mean to be too hesitant, but I will proceed at this time.

Madam Speaker, I must say that I was a bit surprised to see a Motion like this come before the House. We all know that Cayman is a very young country and that it has only been in the last 20 years that we have developed and become fairly prosperous. But we have always looked to foreign investment to help out with our cash flow, as well as help from outside in general.

If this Motion passes, even with the amendment, I believe this will encourage and create more fronting, as it is known. I think the public in general knows how I feel about fronting from a recent article in the Newstar magazine, where the Second Elected Member for George Town and I expressed our concerns about fronting.

One speaker mentioned how the big fish are eating the small fish and that it is dangerous. I am sympathetic towards small businesses that are suffering. We know that money talks and can move and help in any small business when they are under-capitalised and their cash flow is not in the position that it should be. But if this Motion passes... it is very dangerous.

Are we going to set a precedent by limiting certain sectors? Here it talks of real estate and watersports, but where will it stop? If we consider putting a limit for a certain sector, such as the watersports operators, are we then going to do this with restaurants?

While I was at home this past week, I took the telephone book and went through it and tried to determine how many restaurants we have with a trade and business licence. I came up with over 130 restaurants, according to the telephone directory, and less than 25 of those are owned by Caymanians. Are we, then, going to say that we have to limit restaurants? That they have to be 100% Caymanian owned?

We have the Local Companies (Control) Law in place that will take care of those being Caymanian owned, or wholly Caymanian owned. In section 14(4) it is stated very clearly there that: "The Board, in granting a licence, has the right..." and I would like to quote here from section 14(3), (4), (5) and (6), where it explains that: "(3) The Board may—(a) by written notice, summons a director of a local company to appear before the Board at the time specified in the notice... (b) on the appearance of the director in accordance with the notice put to him questions in respect of the directors, shareholders and other matters relating to the operation, financing and control of the company."

Under subsection (4): "The Board may, at any time by notice in writing, require a Caymanian who claims to be the beneficial owner of shares in a local company to forward to it such information as to his ownership of the shares as the Board may specify."

And subsection (5): "The Board may—(a) by written notice, summons a Caymanian who claims to be the beneficial owner of shares in a local company to appear before the Board at the time specified in the notice, being a time during normal working hours; and (b) on the appearance of the shareholder in accordance with the notice, put to him questions in respect of his ownership of the shares."

Under subsection (6), it goes on to state that if the individual fails to comply with this and when summoned the Board is unable to establish that the company is continuing to comply: The Board shall by; "notice in the Gazette, declare that, for the purposes of section 5(1)(a), the company is not to be taken to be a local company complying with section 5 or a company that is a wholly owned subsidiary of such a company."

What I have just read gives the Protection Board, which grants the local company a Trade and Business licence, the authority to write and question to find out whether it is Caymanian owned. I believe that this is all that we need. When we begin to tamper with free enterprise lots of problems come into play.

This past week I also read in the Time magazine concerning Nigeria and all the problems they are facing. What happened in Nigeria almost 25 years ago is slowly catching up with them in that all of the businesses there, including banks, are controlled by the government. The present government agreed that two banks could be privately owned. They have reneged on this. The Nigerians living in the United States were protesting with placards saying "Nigeria is Dead". I would hate to think that this is what we would like to have happen here. If we continue in this, perhaps this is what will take place because we have foreign investors coming and they will not be sure and will question if that is what will happen here.

In section 5 of the Local Companies (Control) Law provisions are also made, and I would like to quote: "5. (1) For the purpose of section 4(1)(a) a local company is complying with this section if—(a) it is Caymanian controlled; (b) at least sixty per cent of its shares are beneficially owned by Caymanians; and (c) at least sixty percent of its directors are Caymanians."

This Motion is saying that it must be fully Caymanian owned in these certain sectors, such as water sports. It is also considering some other businesses and it would expand into real estate.

But, Madam Speaker, the law is there. All we need to do is follow this law and I see no reason why we need to change it and have this Motion come before the House at this time.

Years ago when I was President of the Chamber of Commerce, one of the concerns of the members was the suitcase salesmen who were affecting the businesses here and we still hear complaints about this. A committee was formed to see how we could help the local businesses, that is, large and small businesses operating in Cayman against the suitcase salesmen. They come in for one or two days and take orders and this is in all sectors—chemicals, clothes, food, building materials, everything. This is what our local businesses face—the suitcase sales people. They have no overhead, and 90% of the time they do not even pay for a Trade and Business Licence or a temporary work permit which would cost them less than $100. Government is losing revenue there as well.

We have the laws, all we have to do is make sure that they are carried out, then the protection is there. I will agree that our people are suffering in certain sectors. I sympathise with them. But it is our own people who have created this, as I mentioned earlier, by fronting.

I believe that free enterprise is very important in any healthy society and if this Motion passes, and we start interfering with free enterprise, then our society will be in danger. We must always look at the position of free enterprise and try and preserve that free enterprise that we have as our present position.

Therefore, for the reasons that I have stated, I cannot support this Private Member's Motion 4/95, because I do not feel it is in the best interest of our free enterprise society.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to offer my views on Private Member's Motion 4/95, Control of Local Businesses.

At the outset I must say that the views expressed in the debate by the Mover of this Motion, about concerns of Caymanians versus non-Caymanians in business in these islands, very well reflects many comments that I have heard in this area as well. One could argue that there is more perception in this matter than there is reality; others would take a differing view. My comments will be largely based on what is provided for in the Local Companies (Control) Law, (Law 24 of 1971), 1995 Revision.

This question of who owns what in the Cayman Islands in the commercial field, came into focus by legislators long before us. As far back as the 13th of December, 1971, there was a law enacted which gave certain preference to Caymanian people and put in place certain restrictions where non-Caymanians could not enter the business world in general business enterprises in the Cayman Islands. There were amendments to it in 1974, 1977, 1979, 1980, twice in 1992, and on the 21st June, 1993.

I remember 1992 in particular, because there was a Select Committee examining the Caymanian Protection Law, and the name was changed to the Immigration Law. It was in that Select Committee that certain amendments were made to the Local Companies (Control) Law. These had to do with strengthening the law where fronting was concerned, and strengthening the law so that it became even more explicitly clear (if that were possible) where Caymanians were concerned in business, and the way that legislators at that time felt about the situation.

In the recitals it is noted that there are various Caymanians who earn a living by doing business in real estate, in boutiques, in watersports and in building contracting. I quite agree with that. We know that competition has increased over the years, for as the tourism business, particularly, has grown, there has been more demand for services in these particular areas. As the numbers grow the competition becomes greater.

It is also well known that excessive numbers in any field can dilute business to such an extent that hardly anyone finds operations profitable. I do not know if that is the case at this time in the Cayman Islands in these particular areas which have been mentioned. I would tend to think not, in that there is still ongoing business in these fields. There is economic and physical development in the country which would suggest that there is a growing demand for such services.

Madam Speaker, the Motion also speaks about unfair competition from foreign owned companies in these fields. I am not quite sure how to interpret that for, to the best of my knowledge, all boutiques, real estate agencies, watersports, and so on, are already Caymanian owned in almost every instance, except where what is called a Local Companies (Control) Licence has been issued to a company that does not have a Caymanian 60% shareholding.

Certainly, if one speaks of unfair competition, the government is in a position to deal with that matter through a Fair Trading Commission. Only a few months ago this House passed a Motion brought by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, and seconded by myself, to set up a Commission to look after the very same matter of fair and unfair competition in the commercial world. So, already, Government has the approval from this Legislative Assembly to deal with matters where there may be any unfair competition—be that coming from local businesses or Caymanian owned businesses which, through certain practices, are gaining unfair advantages and, indeed, it would come into effect if there were foreign owned businesses creating unfair competition for Caymanian businesses.

The Motion also notes that because Caymanians have been able to earn an honest living in the areas noted, this has helped the continuance of social harmony. Where there is social harmony there is normally a stable society; and where there is a stable society foreign investors will normally come to do business.

If I am to understand the various arguments that I have heard over the years in this country, each government purports to say that it wants and welcomes foreign investment. That being the case, it is not logical on the one hand to say, 'Yes. We want foreign investment', and then, on the other hand, there is another school of thought that says foreign investment may find itself unwelcome.

It is my understanding that there are laws, such as those dealing with the construction and operation of hotels, where these properties can be foreign owned outright, and operated in the Cayman Islands within the bounds of other areas such as the Trade and Business Licencing Law, the Public Health Law and all the others. So, there are boundaries already in effect where foreign owners can carry on business as they wish, and there are other boundaries where it is secluded for Caymanians.

This Motion is asking the government to consider taking steps to ensure that new licences issued to watersports operations, real estate agencies, boutiques and contractors, are issued to Caymanians or wholly owned Caymanian companies. I gather that by "wholly owned" we are talking about companies 100% owned by Caymanians.

I wish to refer to some sections in the Local Companies (Control) Law. Some of these may have been referred to by the last speaker. I trust I will be allowed to comment on them without my comments being taken as repeating what has been said, for I see it more as what is done by lawyers who quote the very same section and offer differing views on the matter. I trust I can offer my views and my understandings on these sections.

Section 5 of this Law says: "(1) For the purpose of section 4(1)(a) a local company is complying with this section if—(a) it is Caymanian controlled; (b) at least sixty per cent of its shares are beneficially owned by Caymanians; and (c) at least sixty per cent of its directors are Caymanians." That is a guarantee in this law, that the very same businesses which operate here locally, such as have been named in the Motion, have to have a majority shareholding of Caymanians. This section of the law also does not preclude these companies being owned 100% by Caymanians.

I refer to section 4 of this Law (which is referred to in section 5), the marginal note is: "Circumstances in which local business may be carried on." It reads: "4. (1) Subject to subsection (3), no company shall carry on business in the Islands unless it is so empowered by its Memorandum of Association and—(a) it is a local company which, at the relevant time, is complying with section 5 or is a wholly owned subsidiary of such a company. . ." No businesses can carry on local business unless they are Caymanian owned in the majority. Surely, if the law requires a 60% holding, the law would not be against Caymanians having 100%.

Section 5(1)(b) says "it is licensed under this Law and under the Trade and Business (Licensing) Law (Revised) and, at the relevant time, is carrying on such business in accordance with the terms and conditions imposed in such licence and not otherwise."

This Law further goes on to prescribe in section 5(2); "If for reasons beyond its control, more than sixty per cent of the shares in a local company cease to be beneficially owned by Caymanians, the company shall be taken to be complying with this section until—(a) a director becomes aware of the cessation; or (b) a director should, with reasonable diligence, have become aware of the cessation,". So the Law even goes on to make provision where, for reasons beyond its control, the majority position of Caymanians might change; then certain onus is put on the directors. Whichever of the two instances, that is, a director becoming aware of the cessation or a director, because of reasonable diligence, becoming aware of the cessation: "whichever is the sooner, [the company] shall then continue to be taken to be complying with this section if- (i) the directors immediately act in accordance with subsection (3); and (ii) the period mentioned in subsection (4) has not expired." That period is the period which the Board may give it to comply.

Madam Speaker, section 3 sets down how the Law prescribes that a company shall be considered owned by a Caymanian. Section 3(2) says: "For the purposes of this Law, a company shall be deemed to be Caymanian controlled if the Board is satisfied that effective control is not, either directly or indirectly, or by reason of any arrangement, artifice or device vested in, or permitted to pass to, persons who are not Caymanians."

So, the Local Companies (Control) Law is very specific, wide, definite and detailed on the matter of Caymanians owning businesses in the Cayman Islands.

Madam Speaker, the Local Companies (Control) Law also provides for specific considerations to be given by the Board if, under what is commonly called the LCCL (The Local Companies (Control) Licence), a person or company may wish to have more than 40%. In section 11 it sets down that where the Immigration Board, which is also the Trade and Business Licencing Board may grant such a licence, it can be granted for 12 years. But in deciding to grant that licence or not, the Board has to go through the following scenario: Section 11 subsection (3) says: "Subject to any general directions which the Governor may from time to time give in respect of the consideration of such applications, the Board shall, in deciding whether or not to grant a licence, have regard inter alia to the following matters—(a) the economic situation of the Islands and the due protection of persons already engaged in business in the Islands; (b) the nature and previous conduct of the company and the persons having an interest in that company whether as directors, shareholders or otherwise; (c) the advantage or disadvantage which may result from that company carrying on business in the Islands; (d) [which comes back to the Caymanian aspect of it] the desirability of retaining in the control of Caymanians the economic resources of the Islands; (e) the efforts made by the company to obtain Caymanian participation; (f) the number of additional people from outside the Islands who would be required to reside in the Islands were the application to be granted; [I skip to (i)] (i) whether the true ownership and control of the company have been satisfactorily established; and (j) the environmental and social consequences that could result from the carrying on of the business proposed to be carried on by the company."

So even the question of social implications is covered already in this Law.

Power is given to the Trade and Business Licensing Board, or the Immigration Board in section 11(4) which says, "...the Board may at any time revoke a licence." So there is also power there to protect Caymanians who might find themselves in any kind of unfair competition or where non-Caymanians might be attempting to carry on local business to the extent of over 40% shareholdings.

The situation which has come up time and again with regard to businesses in the Cayman Islands is that of fronting. I believe Caymanians in many instances have chosen to relegate themselves to positions where they do not truly own the businesses as this very law prescribes, but they pretend to own those businesses. In that regard, those businesses are, in my understanding, foreign owned and the Caymanian person is fronting for them.

I also understand that we have some well-known professional frontiers in this country—accountants, lawyers, businessmen—they front in areas of water sports, retail businesses—all over. That is a personal condition induced by Caymanians who place themselves in that position. Some of these persons who are 'fronters' are persons who are looked up to as wealthy persons in this society, outstanding businessmen. But they truly do not own the businesses in the majority that they say they own. How do we deal with that? I would imagine that those persons have taken steps to hide this particular fact. Where this is happening, this law also gives the Board unlimited power.

Section 14(1) says: "The Board may, at any time by notice in writing, require the directors of a local company to forward to it such information as to the directors of and sharholdings (including the classes of shares and the voting and other rights attached to each class) in the local company as the Board may specify."

Section 14(3) says: "(3) The Board may—(a) by written notice, summon a director of a local company to appear before the Board at the time specified in the notice being a time during normal working hours; and (b) on the appearance of the director in accordance with the notice put to him questions in respect of the directors, shareholders and other matters relating tot he operation, financing and control of the company."

I well remember that in 1992 when we were looking at the Immigration Law and this particular law, these were some of the concerns that were voiced by legislators then. They insisted that we had to try, as far as possible, to give power to the Board to stop this phenomenon of fronting in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Member take a suspension at this time?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.36 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.04 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continuing.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the break I was speaking about fronting and various powers given to the Board to correct this situation, as far as it might be possible, where we have our own Caymanian people knowingly and deliberately fronting for operations which we hear are really not owned in minority but, indeed, in majority by foreign persons.

I would like to refer to section 14(4): "The Board may, at any time by notice in writing, require a Caymanian who claims to be the beneficial owner of shares in a local company to forward to it such information as to his ownership of the shares as the Board may specify."

And 14(5) says: "The Board may—(a) by written notice, summons a Caymanian who claims to the beneficial owner of shares in a local company to appear before the Board..." and answer questions.

Madam Speaker, this matter of Caymanians feeling, or believing, or even knowing without the ability of proof, but still knowing what is happening, is covered at length in the Local Companies (Control) Law. There are serious penalties involved for persons doing that, for section 26, says: "(1) A person is required to make a declaration or to supply information for the purpose of this Law who—(a) fails to make the declaration; (b) fails to supply the information; or (c) willfully makes a declaration or supplies information that is—(i) false; (ii) misleading; or (iii) insufficient for the purpose required, is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction to a fine of thirty thousand dollars or to imprisonment for three years."

It also provides that: "(2) A person summoned to appear before the Board..." who does not come before the Board is liable "to a fine of thirty thousand dollar or imprisonment for three years." It further states: "(3) A Caymanian who, with intent to deceive, in any way represents himself to be the beneficial owner of a share in a local company if, whether a law or in honour only—(a) he holds the share in trust for, or on behalf of a person who is not Caymanian; or (b) he holds the share subject to a power of disposition exercisable by a person who is not a Caymanian, is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction to a fine of thirty thousand dollars or to imprisonment for three years."

I believe that, in part at least, the concerns voiced by the Mover and by other persons is for what is happening in business in this country where fronting is concerned.

I had a call from a person who is in the real estate business who said to me that he would like to let me know some of the things that are happening in the real estate industry. He spoke specifically about two businesses which, according to the information he gave me, are in effect not owned by Caymanians. He said the way the companies are structured internally each individual is, in effect, self-employed, thus they are playing a greater role in that company than would be allowed by the 40% allowed under this particular Law. Even in those cases, the Local Companies (Control) Law has a provision to deal with it.

In section 5 (3), where a person is actually acting in a way where they have more than is prescribed under this law, and where it has reduced the 60% shareholding, it says: "...the directors must serve written notice on the person who is not a Caymanian and whose beneficial ownership of shares in the company results in the percentage of shares in the company owned by Caymanians falling below sixty per cent requiring him to divest himself of at least so many of those shares as will result in at least sixty per cent of the shares in the company being beneficially owned by Caymanians."

In the two cases that I was told about, I believe there is a way open to other Caymanian realtors who believe that through such conditions they are having to face unfair competition and, that in truth and in fact, the companies are not what they appear or stated to be; the directors can serve notice on the non-Caymanian persons. I imagine that realtors do have recourse to the Immigration Board or the Trade and Business Licencing Board where they can express their concerns. The Trade and Business Licencing Board has unquestionable authority to call such persons and put them to proof.

I seriously doubt that more stringent requirements could be placed in the law, or that we could come up with a law or an amendment to this one to put on further restrictions; particularly restrictions which say that henceforth, watersports, real estate agencies, boutiques, contractors and so on, will be 100% owned by Caymanians.

Which brings me to the point that, in reality, where banks are concerned one has to prove, as is often said by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, that you do not need the money before you can get a loan. Money is not readily available to the many Caymanians who would wish to enter the various fields of commercial business in this country—not just in watersports and all the rest of it.

That is where investors who see the potential in it come in and, in effect, they become the banks. They put their money forward in good faith and good trust with these individuals. The problem occurs when those Caymanian—individuals chose to break the law and truly do not represent that 60% or more in the company. That is where the problem lies!

If the competition is such, and unfair competition comes into play, then Caymanians are creating that among themselves more so than anyone else.

This country has not developed to the point it has by the many business people getting loans, but by capital being put up by non-Caymanian persons. One might imagine that a foreign person would want to have full control of some venture that he has put his money into, but to do so is illegal; and for a Caymanian to front for him to do so is illegal. But, do we really want to say to the foreign investor that they can no longer invest in these particular areas?

What must a foreign investor generally feel when such things are done in this country? Already there is a condition where there is a certain feeling of resistance towards foreign persons in the country. I believe that to put a restriction, such as has been asked for in this Motion, could have a serious effect and cause foreigners in this country to take a second look at whether they invest further or not.

Under the Local Companies (Control) Law, all businesses are protected for Caymanians, and it clearly states that Caymanians must have the major control. I am sure that if capital was so readily available all Caymanians would have their boutiques and real estate agencies and watersports businesses and so on, but it is not that way, Madam Speaker. I believe that for such a restriction to come into place, conditions are seriously going to change in this country. I do believe that it will change.

The Motion also asks that a Select Committee be appointed to look at other businesses that will be included with those suggested in this Motion to be 100% Caymanian owned. Already we have various languishing Select Committees: we have the Sunday Trading Law, we have the Bill of Rights, the Register of Interests, the Code of Conduct, the Gambling Law and others I cannot even remember right now. I wonder what time it would take for something like this to also go to a Select Committee to decide which other businesses must be kept 100% Caymanian owned?

I believe that there are certain prejudicial business practices in this country, and I think these can be addressed as they come to light. I had a call from a former legislator, Mr. Franklin Smith, who related an instance to me where he tried to get a shop in one of the recently built places on Seven-Mile Beach to set up a fruit and juice bar. He told me that he was told (by a lady he spoke to) that it was a "plush" place, and that he really could not do such a thing. He also told me that there is another place over on Schoolhouse Road, or Eastern Avenue, where he attempted to do a similar thing and he met with a similar fate.

To me, that is improper business practice, and it is prejudicial towards certain types of business. Surely, persons who take that attitude are unaware that in a health-conscious world, juice and fruit bars are the modern way of life. Surely, he (Mr. Smith) is a person known in this country in this particular field and there is no reason why he, or others who might want to do that, should not have access to that opportunity on the Seven Mile Beach. If he can prove that he has the ability to pay and meet all the other requirements. They take liquor, beer and wine and all sorts of other things into these places, why could they not take fruit and juice?

I suggested to him that these types of business practices would come under the Ministry responsible for Commerce and that he should bring these kinds of matters to the attention of the Trades and Business Licencing Board.

As to the question of brochures where hotels are refusing to display them, I think this is a matter that needs to be looked at from the view of proper business practices. A hotel does have a right to decide what will be displayed on their hotel racks, but surely there can be no good reason why local businesses would not be allowed to have brochures in their racks. I think it is something that can be dealt with without having to resort to a law or any association that might attempt to tell the hotels they must. Such regulation should properly emanate from government in my opinion.

This Motion which asks for a restriction for Government to change its present policy (under, I would imagine, the Local Companies (Control) Law) to say that certain businesses in the Cayman Islands must only be granted 100% to Caymanians, restricts and limits the opportunities for business. It can do more harm than good. Already the law allows all local businesses to be owned in majority by Caymanians, so I think the Motion is superfluous to what presently exists.

I believe what is necessary is that the Trade and Business Licencing Board should be encouraged or directed by the Government to take seriously strong stands, and enforce the law where there is a perception that Caymanians may be up against unfair competition until such time as there may be, hopefully, a Fair Competition Commission; and where it is necessary, to call in a Caymanian person and make them prove their position in these companies. In so many words, I believe the law is there, it is strong enough, it needs to be enforced.

The Government, in Executive Council, can play its role when the Board refuses to make certain grants in this area by upholding, wherever possible, the decision of the Board.

Madam Speaker, the Chinese philosopher, Lao-Tzu said: "As restriction and prohibition are multiplied the people grow poorer and poorer. When they are subjected to over-much government, the land is thrown into confusion."

For the reasons I have stated, I cannot, in good faith and conscience, support this Motion which is now before the House.

Thank you.

[pause]

The Speaker: If no one else wishes to debate... The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Much like the elements, precedents have their role. But the elements—water, wind and fire—when they are our servants they are the best in the world; but when they become our masters they are the worst thing that can ever happen. So, too, are precedents. When precedents are to occur, extreme caution has to be employed.

When I am through with my short contribution to this short Private Member's Motion 4/95, quite likely I will be told again that I am saying this, on the one hand, and that on the other. But I do believe that in very important matters such as this, it is not responsible and correct for one to simply take a position and disregard whatever might not support that position.

In concept, Private Member's Motion 4/95 calls for some relief to be forthcoming for certain sectors of the business community in order to allow Caymanians latitude, not only to survive in their businesses, but to thrive. I do not believe that any one of us in here takes any issue with that position. I think every one of us would be very happy to find the solutions whereby this can be achieved while still retaining not only the harmony that is desirable in our country but; also the ability to move forward and grow the way the economy is now structured so that everything will work hand in hand.

The motion, which is called, The Control of Local Businesses, reads: "WHEREAS there are a number of Caymanians who own and depend upon local businesses for their livelihood:- that is watersports, real estate agencies, boutiques, contractors' licences..." in its original form it reads" and other businesses"; the proposed amendment deletes" other businesses."

In this Whereas section, if we read it as per the proposed amendment, the first question that comes to my mind is: If we take this route, the other areas that have not been mentioned will certainly have some Caymanians who feel that the country should take a stand to ensure that they are not threatened by competition from any other businesses that are not totally owned by Caymanians also.

A further proposed amendment which might be deemed to take care of this, reads in the resolve section: "BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT a Select Committee of all Elected Members be established to study other areas of local business that the quorum be eight members and that public input be sought."

I do not have a problem with the concept there for a Select Committee dealing with the entire Motion in this fashion, but there are many, many areas that have to be brought into play if one is to try to satisfy the concerns that are ringing in our ears. I daresay that I have had those concerns raised to me also. The unfortunate thing is that individuals who are faced with a specific situation quite naturally only look to solve their specific problems and to satisfy that problem. But what we as legislators unfortunately face, is having to do our best to satisfy those problems, while at the same time ensuring that the national good prevails. This, I believe, is where the hic-cough is in the debate that has come out so far, and which might ensue further. In my opinion, this is what we must be looking at.

There are certainly some problems which I feel need to be aired, to show that in order to achieve this it is not as easy as the Motion might be calling for. For instance, one of the immediate potential problems that I see is the fact that, as most of us would be prepared to say today, the way the Local Companies (Control) Law, reads (and I will not read the sections that have been dealt with by the two previous speakers) it is obvious that from those sections that they read, by and large, if the laws were adhered to, Caymanians would not have this inbred thought that they are being pressured by outside influences, and that their very survival is being threatened by those outside influences. We again come to the problem of fronting.

One of the problems I see is if we were to enact straightforward some kind of legislation—which is totally in line with the way the Motion is worded—I daresay there may well be many more Caymanians who would run the risk of breaking the law. They have their own desires, they see opportunities; but they will have difficulty in raising sufficient capital to get certain businesses started. There are usually two reasons why Caymanians will link up with foreigners to do business, and that is capital injection and expertise. I believe that if Caymanians do not have this opportunity, several of them may well be prepared to break the law in order to get this opportunity.

While we may be protecting one end of the entire cycle, we are also putting another segment of our society at risk because their hands become tied. The immediate response to this is that Caymanians should not front and the laws are there, so be it. The truth of the matter is that when Caymanians have aspirations, many times those aspirations are hog tied by the realities of the given situations—people do not have funds available because they are ordinary and they do not have a tree to shake it from. While one would very much like to say that once given the opportunity Caymanians could do certain things and engage in certain businesses, the truth is that many times there are very successful unions of Caymanians and foreigners operating businesses in this country. There are living examples of it, notwithstanding the abuse which may have taken place before, and which may take place in the future.

One of the problems is the way certain of our laws are structured. The legal minds have the ability to meet the requirements of our laws; and to also have side arrangements filed away which, while on paper the local person is a majority shareholder by way of 60% in a company, the foreign entity in actual fact owns either the majority or the entire company. This is one of the things that we must stop. It is more important nowadays to be able to do that, because in days gone by the country was not what it is now, and the numbers of Caymanians aspiring to be on their own had not grown to the point where we find as many as we do today.

So, if we take on board what is proposed in this Motion and completely deny other Caymanians the opportunity to be involved in businesses, albeit not totally owned Caymanian businesses, that is what I see as a problem.

As I mentioned before, while it may not seem at this time to be an important area, I get the feeling that this Motion can have a domino effect on many other businesses which have not been mentioned in this Motion. There will be pressure put to line those areas up with the other areas because the Caymanians will say, 'Look you guys, you have taken care of this sector by doing this and ensuring what they want to achieve. How can you separate us and not allow us the same privileges?' That may not be something that seems important, but I believe that is what is going to happen. If it happens, I do not see an answer for the people who ask that question, because they too have the same rights as others.

Which brings us to a further point that we have to consider at a national level: If we go that route and we take the hard line when it comes to local businesses and try to satisfy that immediate thought without looking at the entire situation, we run the risk of causing a serious crippling effect on this economy. That is the position that I hold.

If we take the time to look at all of the various businesses operating in this country, it is obvious—whether they are totally owned by Caymanians or majority owned, or otherwise—whenever a Local Companies Control Licence is issued and no Caymanians wish to participate in them, they are all intertwined and interdependent. While there are many areas of business that cater to the tourist trade, the truth is that many of the businesses are supplemented by local trade, in fact all of them—some to a lesser degree than others, I agree.

To be looking at singling out certain situations like this, could well for the larger effect at a national level, be actually cutting off our noses to spoil our faces. I believe that we have to look at it carefully, because the same people who quite rightly wish for us to enact legislation to protect them, also need to consider the fact that if we hog tie and hamstring certain situations their clientele will diminish. It is a fact.

For instance, if we say that we are limiting certain areas to Caymanians, it is possible to find those areas to be less booming and less expanding, and the other areas that will depend upon those areas to get business will find themselves getting less business.

For instance, in the construction industry, when businesses expand construction takes place; if businesses do not expand, there will be less demand for construction. That is just one example, and I am posing that simply to say that it is something we have to be looking at very carefully.

The other area that I feel very strongly about—and I stand to risk the wrath of everyone, but I nevertheless speak it as I know it and believe it—is the area where there are hundreds, if not thousands, of people who have been in this country for as many years as we might wish to remember who have not been dealt a fair deal by way of the Immigration policies that have been forthcoming over the many years. I feel that it is unfair to be saying to them at this point in time that, by way of this action, we are precluding them from being in business in this country in the future.

That problem is like this: There are many people who have been here for 20-odd years and in some cases 30-odd years; they have been accepted by us in this community. I will repeat myself, as I have said this on other occasions—they have worked side-by-side with us, they have rubbed shoulders with us, they are actually a part of us, but they do not know what their position is in this country. What this might well say to them is: "You have been married to a Caymanian for 25 years, but if next year you want to form a company, the Caymanian that you are married to will have to hold 100% of the shares of that company and you are worth nothing."

Others may say that that is not important, but I feel differently. I feel that these people should not have to face a situation like this. I genuinely believe that. The majority of these people are inter-married into our society. Their children are what we call Caymanian—we have to call them Caymanian—and we do not know what we are going to do with them. We do not know what is going to happen down the line if we do it like this.

We speak about social harmony, and I accept that there are Caymanians who feel very, very threatened by foreign elements coming in and operating businesses of the same kind and they feel like the foreigner is thriving and moving forward while they are being stymied. I understand all of that, and I do not wish for us to have to live with that without being able to do something about it. But, if we work along these lines without putting the larger picture in place before we take action, we may well be our own undoing. That is my position.

I have no problems if we are going to meticulously sit down, take public input and go through the whole scheme of things so that we are comfortable that we are not satisfying one arm of the situation and hurting another arm. I daresay that the way the Motion is worded, and if we go the route it suggests and tow the line, we might be creating more problems than we are solving.

Madam Speaker, never let it be forgotten that if we infringe on what I believe are the rights of these people who have been amongst us for so many years, we are also inhibiting the possibility of their being able to support their families who are, by-and-large, Caymanian. Whether we believe that or not, that is the view I hold.

One of the things we need to ensure when we look at the problems which exist, is that when we go to protect local enterprise, it must be protected in such a way that the economy is not affected detrimentally; that it does not simply satisfy a situation for the immediate term (because others are only concerned with what is happening with them right now); that we are going to cause those same people more problems down the line.

I can guarantee this: While we may be seeming to solve their problems immediately, if that causes more problems down the line we are going to get the blame for that too, even though they wanted us to do that then. They will say that we should have known—they do not have to know, but we do. That is why I believe that we need to look at this situation carefully.

I do not wish for the Motion to be forgotten and not addressed, but I think we need to look at ways to strengthen the existing laws in order to ensure that Caymanians are not trodden upon because others are able to fix papers to look different. I think we definitely have to lean strongly towards looking at these laws to ensure that that the proper protection is there.

I have great misgivings about specifically identifying certain areas and restricting businesses from being able to operate within certain given parameters, which, once they are adhered to, are acceptable. So, while we may have abuse going on in the one area now, going to the other extreme might create three more problems while solving the one. I would hope that in some way or the other we would be able to take the problem that has been identified in the Motion and deal with it in a fashion that will be right for all of us, both immediately and long term. While there are no easy answers forthcoming, I take the view that we must deal with it, but deal with it having taken all factors into consideration.

While I accept what the Motion wishes to achieve, I have a problem with the method it is using to achieve it. So, as it is, I will not be able to support the Motion, but I do accept the concept that is behind it.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.15.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.50 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.24 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 4/95. (Pause)

If no other Member wishes to speak, I will ask the Mover of the Motion to exercise his right of reply.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to thank those Honourable Members who stood in support of the Motion for their contribution, and I would also like to thank the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman for his lecture on the provisions of the Local Companies (Control) Law. I also thank the Fourth Elected Member for George Town for his contribution even though, as usual, he spoke in parables.

I believe that the provisions in this Motion are very specific. It only deals in areas where at the present time we have an over saturation, as far as participation of businesses, that is, the water sports industry, the real estate industry and boutiques.

This Motion does not in any way prevent local Caymanians from continuing to benefit from the establishment of businesses in this country. The provisions of the Local Companies (Control) Law will still be in effect and there will be many businesses that will continue to be allowed to be registered which are owned 60% by Caymanians.

I believe also that even though we are asking for these areas to be restricted to Caymanian ownership, there is no reason why foreign investors would not be interested in financing some of these businesses. It depends on the return that is offered by the local Caymanian.

I do not believe that we can do what the Fourth Elected Member for George Town is recommending—leave things to the elements (wind, water and fire). I believe we have done that for far too long, and that is the reason why we...

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order Fourth Elected Member for George Town?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, during my contribution I made no such statement that we should leave anything to the elements. I simply quoted a parallel, and at no time did I say that the elements should take charge of any situation. So the Member is misleading the House.

The Speaker: I think that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town has a valid point. Perhaps you would like to clarify that, Third Elected Member for West Bay, in your contribution. Thank you.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

He just mentioned about the elements and, like I said, he normally speaks in parables, so I was not quite sure what he was trying to say. I would just like to leave it at that.

I believe that the provisions of this Motion are very timely, and what I would encourage the government to do is to move on with regard to putting the provisions of this Motion in place with immediate effect, maybe with a directive to the Immigration Board with regard to new licenses in these areas.

I would also encourage (and I know it is your prerogative and up to your discretion), that the appointment of a Chairman of this Select Committee be done as soon as possible because I believe that we need to move ahead to ensure that these other businesses where there is protection necessary can be identified, and the proper conditions be put in place.

I do not see where acceptance of this Motion in any way poses any threat to foreign investors because, like I said in the beginning, I believe that regardless of where we go we will find certain businesses that are made exclusive to the local residents or citizens of that country. I believe that we should do no less here in the Cayman Islands.

What I am concerned about is, that if these conditions and issues are not addressed, that all of those concerns mentioned by the Opposition Members and the Third Elected Member for George Town will be a reality anyway. I believe that, especially in the area of the water sports industry and, in particular, the area of transport (which is one of the businesses I believe we will get some representation from), we are sitting on a time bomb in those areas. I believe that from what I have heard mentioned to me personally, many Caymanians are very fed up. Their attitudes are that if they cannot benefit from the economic success of this country, why should anybody else? That is a dangerous stage for us to be reaching in this country.

As a Representative, these matters have been brought to my attention, and I am only doing what I was elected to do, that is, to represent the people of this country. I believe this is a move in the right direction and I do thank Honourable Members for their support. Thank you.

The Speaker: The first question which the House is being asked to vote on is the amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 4/95: "BE IT RESOLVED that Private Member's Motion 4/95 be amended as follows: 1) the words "and other businesses" be deleted from the first recital; 2) that the words "as well as any other businesses deemed necessary" be deleted from the Resolved section; and 3) that a further new resolve section be added as follows:

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a Select Committee of all Elected Members be established to study other areas of local business, that the quorum be eight Members, and that public input be sought."

I shall put the question. Those in favour of the amendment please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could we have a division.

The Speaker: You certainly may. Madam Clerk.

The Clerk:

DIVISION NO. 7/95

Amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 4/95

AYES:8

Hon. James M. Ryan
Hon. Richard Coles
Hon. George A. McCarthy
Hon. McKeeva Bush
Hon. Anthony S. Eden
Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.
Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks
Mrs. Edna M. Moyle

NOES: 4

ABSENTEES: 6

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson
Hon. John B. McLean
Hon. Truman M. Bodden
Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson
Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell
Mr. G. Haig Bodden

The Speaker: The result of the Division is eight Ayes, four Noes. The amendment has therefore been carried.

AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/95 PASSED BY MAJORITY.

The Speaker: The next question which the House is being asked to vote on is Private Member's Motion 4/95 as duly amended. I shall now put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion has therefore been passed.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, can we have a division, please?

The Speaker: You certainly may, Madam Clerk. (Division No. 8/95 begins, but Abstention interrupts)

DECLARATION OF INTEREST

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I sent you a note requesting your ruling on whether I can vote on this part of the Resolution since I do own a real estate company. That is one of the things which is in the Motion.

Under Standing Order 80, I believe, I may be precluded from voting and I would like to have a ruling from you.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, you should have asked for that before the vote was taken because I was in the midst of a vote and I did not read your note at the time.

Does any Member object to the vote of the Honourable Minister? if not, I have no objection.

Since you know you have an interest in it you may decline to vote.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I will do that, but I will point out to the House that we were dealing with two separate Resolutions that is why I wrote to you asking about one and not the other. But I will abstain from voting as my conscience leads me to.

The Speaker: May we now have the division on Private Member's Motion No. 4/95 as amended?

The Clerk:

DIVISION NO. 8/95

Private Member's Motion No. 4/95 as Amended

AYES: 8

Hon. James M. Ryan

ABSENTEES: 6

Hon. John B. McLean
Hon. Truman M. Bodden
Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson
Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell
Mr. G. Haig Bodden

The Speaker: The result of the Division is eight Ayes, four Noes, and one Abstention. The Motion has been passed.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/95 AS AMENDED PASSED BY MAJORITY.

CHAIRMAN OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE

The Speaker: In accordance with Standing Order 69 (2), I appoint the Honourable Minister for Tourism as chairman of the Select Committee.

We now proceed to Private Members Motion No. 3/95. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 3/95

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO SECTION 9 OF THE MISUSE OF DRUGS LAW (1995 REVISION)

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I rise to move Private Member's Motion No. 3/95, entitled, Proposed Amendment to Section 9 of The Misuse of Drugs Law (1995 Revision)', and it reads:

"WHEREAS the Cayman Islands Drug Enforcement Agencies are becoming increasingly effective in their Illegal Drug Interdiction Programmes;

"AND WHEREAS, as a result, a tremendous amount of illegal drugs are being confiscated and have to be stored;

"AND WHEREAS accordingly to section 9 of the Misuse of Drugs Law (1995 Revision) the destruction of illegal drugs confiscated is subject to a hearing from the defence;

"AND WHEREAS the holding of these illegal drugs in safe-keeping creates a safety and security risk, not only to the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force, but the general public as well;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT consideration be given by Government to amend section 9 of the Misuse of Drugs Law (1995 Revision) to allow, provided that a sample is kept for evidence purposes, the destruction of illegal drugs confiscated in a timely fashion."

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker, I rise to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 3/95, Proposed Amendment to Section 9 of The Misuse of Drugs Law, (1995 Revision), having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, let me say at the outset that the reason for this Motion was not my idea, but was brought to my attention by someone who works in one of the agencies who has been involved in the destruction of illegal drugs that have been confiscated over the years.

The main problem is that when a consignment of drugs is confiscated, according to section 9 of The Misuse of Drugs Law, (Law 13 of 1975), the magistrate provides the defence with an opportunity to consent or object to the destruction of the consignment of drugs in question. It is my information that this has posed much difficulty over the years. As a matter of fact, I am told that there is a consignment of drugs now in safe keeping which has been there for the last eight months because the defence refused to consent to its destruction.

Madam Speaker, on a number of occasions I have been called upon by the police to be one of the witnesses to the destruction of illegal drugs. I was amazed at the quantity of drugs that was being held in safekeeping to be destroyed. I think the last shipment that I witnessed being destroyed was in excess of over 2,000 pounds.

Now, the real concern that I have is not that the drugs are being stored, because I guess you could find a place where this could be done. The main concern is the risk factor involved. When we deal with the drug world there are no rules and there is nothing to prevent people associated with a drug haul (be it on the inside or outside) to arrange for the Central Police Station or wherever the drugs are stored to be bombed. We hear of this almost on a daily basis in other countries, such as Columbia.

I see no reason why, when a consignment of drugs is taken into custody, it cannot be properly documented—pictures taken or whatever is deemed necessary to ensure that there is sufficient evidence at the time of trial. A sample of those drugs can be held for trial purposes, and the rest of the consignment destroyed in a timely fashion.

I believe that we cannot sit by and wait until we have an occurrence, the nature which I mentioned earlier, before we do something about it.

The other thing it does, Madam Speaker, is reduce the temptation and eliminate the rumours that we hear all the time with regard to casting aspersions on the police—the drugs getting back on the street and those sort of things. I believe that if we take steps to ensure that the drugs are destroyed in a timely fashion it will also minimise such rumour or innuendo.

Those are the main reasons why this amendment is being proposed, and I look forward with interest to hear what the Government has to say in regard to the provisions of this Motion.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, Private Member's Motion No. 3/95 is a Motion that I personally have no problem supporting, again much to the surprise of the Third Elected Member for West Bay. It is just a pity that with his biblical prowess he does not understand the parable better.

Madam Speaker, I rose very early in the debate because when the Government takes its position I wish to ensure that a question I have is dealt with, so that I and others may be satisfied. I wish to ensure that Government will be able to satisfy all of us that there are methods which can be employed that will maintain the strength of the evidence, even if the majority of the drugs is destroyed, when it comes time to using it for prosecution. I am not sure of the method that would be used to prove to the court the various quantities that we are talking about, I am sure there are methods. But I wish to hear exactly how they will work to make sure we are not doing something now that will cause a problem later.

The one observation that I wish to make is that if these drugs are going to be destroyed more expeditiously, then I just want to ensure that as few people as possible will know the time and venue so that security risks are lessened.

While I am sure the Mover of the Motion is dealing a lot with the security risks, there will also be the security risks of moving these illegal drugs from one place to the other for the purposes of destruction.

So, while supporting of the Motion, I wanted to make the observation and also satisfy myself that the court will be able to deal with these illegal drugs—while they are not able to be produced as evidence, once enough is proven that they did exist. I therefore support the Motion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

First of all, I would like to thank the Third Elected Member for West Bay for his interest in this topic. The matter of drug interdiction is a very important matter as far as the Legal Department is concerned, and of course, as far as the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force is concerned.

The section of the Misuse of Drugs Law to which the Member has referred allows for destruction of drugs held by the police pending the trial of a case. But before the drugs can be destroyed, first of all the prosecution (and the prosecution only) has to make an application to the court. In other words, it is not open for the defence to make that application, it is only the prosecution. But, Madam Speaker, the defence has a right to be heard on that application.

My submission would be that that is only correct. They should have a right to be heard for a number of reasons: 1) The preservation of evidence pending a trial, and by that I mean the original evidence (not copies, not samples, but the evidence), is one of the fundamental points of the prosecution of a criminal case. Although this particular Motion does not give any alternative to the section as it is presently worded, I am assuming that the Mover is indicating that he would like to see either no observations by the defence or possibly even the police or the prosecution being able to destroy the drugs without reference to anybody. I certainly would not like that to be the case.

I think the right person, and the right authority for making that decision is the judge in the court—not the prosecution, not an individual in the Police Force, not the Commissioner of Police, and not, indeed, myself. I think it is the right issue for a court of law to decide and I think it is correct for the court to hear from the defence first.

Now, it has been said, or maybe implied, that if the defence does not consent to this application, but objects, then that is it—the drugs cannot be destroyed. That is not so, Madam Speaker, there may well be occasions when the defence might take objection or might have some comments to make. But it certainly does not necessarily follow that because of that the court is not going to order destruction. What the court will do is hear the application from the prosecution as to why the drugs should be destroyed. The court will then invite the defence to make any observations they wish to make and, having heard both sides (so to speak), the court will make a decision as to whether the interest of justice would be best served by destroying the drugs or by leaving them intact in their entirety.

So, it is not a question of the defence being able to thwart a perfectly reasonable application by just saying; 'We are not prepared to consent; we are not going to say why, but we are just not going to say yes', and that is, therefore, going to somehow prevent the judge from making an order for destruction. No. The judge will take into account what is said by both sides and then come to a decision.

I should also say, of course, that I would not want Members to be under the impression that the prosecution would always wish to see drugs that are being held as evidence destroyed before a trial—far from it. On many occasions the prosecution may want to see drugs retained for a variety of reasons. I can give some instances, not specific instances, but the type of questions when the prosecution or the judge, if it comes before him, may feel that the drugs (the evidence) should be retained in their entirety and that a sample just will not do.

For example, could there be a doubt that all the material is the same? May arguments be raised that, while some of it may be the particular drug concerned, not all of it is? Was it all found at the same locality? Was it all found at the same time? And, of course, the other factor that has to be borne in mind once a conviction has been secured, is that the amount or quantity of the drugs involved has a material bearing on the sentence that is passed by the court. So, it is very important that a court is aware, not just of a drugs offence, but the amount of drugs that were involved.

Now, I am not saying that there are not occasions where those questions or similar questions do not come into play, and, therefore, it may well be appropriate for an application to go before the judge to have drugs destroyed. I am certainly not saying that it is good for narcotics to be kept if it is unnecessary, because the best thing that could happen to them, without a doubt—and I agree wholeheartedly with the Member—is that they should be destroyed and that is the end of them. But to destroy evidence before a trial takes place is something that should only be done with the greatest of care and with the greatest of circumspection.

The Member has referred to a particular consignment, but I am afraid that I am unable to speak to that, because I do not have any knowledge of that. I do certainly know that the prosecution have made applications in the past. I do not know the frequency with which they have been made. It is certainly not a matter that has been raised with me by either the police or my prosecuting counsel as being an issue that needed looking at.

I would hope that Members would accept that at the present time, whilst I am sure the mover has some genuine concerns, concerning this matter, section 9 of the Misuse of Drugs Law provides, in my submission, more than adequately for destruction where it is prudent and sensible and necessary, and I think provides for in the right manner.

I am unable to support this Motion because I believe that this particular section should be left as it is, and that the decision should be made by the court after allowing those persons who are interested to have their say.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I believe the Honourable Third Elected Member for West Bay would be happy to hear that my speaking on this will not constitute a lecture, but some observations fully in support with his idea and effort in this case.

Madam Speaker, having read this Motion and what it asks for, I think that the concern as expressed by the Mover of the Motion is indeed real. Large quantities, up to tons of drugs have been confiscated or seized in this country, and when one hears of large quantities of drugs being confiscated in this country, following hard on the heels of it are always suggestions that some of the drugs will soon be on the street, be it seized or otherwise. I have heard it dozens or hundreds of times.

I do not think it is the case that the Government has such large and available facilities to store things such as drugs to readily and easily have it properly guarded and so on. In fact, Madam Speaker, small amounts of drugs, such as cocaine, have disappeared in different instances from the airport or otherwise, because it carries such a high street value. It is my impression that some of the motivations of the Mover must have been taking such things into account. Surely, one of the reasons why I feel moved to support what is recommended here, is because of these real life situations that have occurred in the country in regard to storing large quantities of drugs which are seized or confiscated.

I have taken note of the statement made by the Attorney General and, indeed, I think I understand what he has put forward as to the part that is played both by the prosecution and the defence in instances where things like this have to be dealt with. However, I cannot believe if large quantities of drugs of whatever type are photographed, filmed, if needed, by video camera to show the largeness of the drugs; and some extracted from each packet, for example, into smaller packets, that this would harm the process of arriving at a legal conclusion. If that was done, the large amounts could then be ordered by the court to be destroyed.

I understand, in fact, that the court may do that now under the provision of section 9 of the Misuse of Drugs Law. It is my understanding that as a procedure as such, the court would be requested, if this section is amended, that once the court was satisfied that it had sufficient material both for the prosecution and for the defence to be tested, the court would simply give an order to destroy the rest of it.

If one thinks of the large amounts, suppose all of it were not the same material. Although there have been large quantities of illicit drugs in this country, I have no recollection that the large amounts have been taken to the court, or that any scientist, chemist, or laboratory technician has ever been ordered to go in to search in the large quantities of the various material.

Madam Speaker, I believe that this Motion does really address a practical concern, and certainly makes it less able for any kind of illicit action by whomever once large quantities of drugs are in custody by the Police Department or the Customs Department or whoever holds it. That, in itself, is an effort in the right direction where illicit drug use, possession and distributing is concerned.

Madam Speaker, I support this Motion because I believe it addresses a need where the misuse of drugs in this country is concerned, and it would relieve the situation of keeping large portions of any particular drug in storage while a case may play out over a week, month, or even years.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, I would ask the Mover if he would exercise his right of reply.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I must say that I was surprised that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town supported this Motion, and I was also surprised that the leader of the Opposition also supported this Motion, that is, Her Majesty's Opposition.

Madam Speaker, I also appreciated what the Second Official Member had to say on the Motion. But, after listening to what he had to say, I could only come to one conclusion: If only the prosecution can put up an application requesting the destruction of drugs, regardless of whether or not the defence consents to the application or not, once the application goes up in front of the prosecution for destruction, that is ordered by the courts. It lends itself to a question in my mind: Is the prosecution now responsible for the extraordinary delays that we have experienced in regard to the destruction of drugs? Is it because they have failed, or have been neglectful in putting before the courts an application for the destruction of drugs in a timely fashion? That is what it appears to be, Madam Speaker. If that is the case, that is a very serious situation indeed.

But the reason why I brought this Motion is that I am concerned about the general safety of the police because, as we all know, these drugs are stored by the police. Like the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said, there is no reason at all why you have to keep the whole consignment of drugs as evidence for any case. Like the Member rightfully said, when a case in on you do not haul the whole seizure into the court and say this is what these persons are accused of trafficking as far as the quantity of drugs. It is only a sample that is taken before the court.

If it is felt by the courts and the Attorney General's Office that this amendment is not necessary because the present provisions of the law are adequate, then I would recommend that we get on to ensure that these applications for the destruction of large seizures of drugs are [carried out] in a very timely fashion.

Madam Speaker, we hear almost on a daily basis of bombings and raids and all the other tactics that criminal elements have available to them in the pursuit of their drug business. I believe that if we continue the practise that we have of keeping these large quantities of illegal drugs in safe keeping over long periods of time, it is a disaster waiting to happen. I honestly believe that, Madam Speaker.

I would recommend that we do whatever is necessary, that is, the courts, the Attorney General's Office, the police to ensure that we do minimise such an occurrence in this country.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town posed a question with regard to the destruction of the drugs that as few people as possible knows about the destruction. This is presently the case. In addition to the police, there are certain citizens who are required to be present to witness the destruction. I am not recommending that such a procedure be changed. I think it is a very healthy one and it works.

So, Madam Speaker, as I said, I brought this Motion out of interest and concern for the safety and welfare of the members of the Police Force and also the general public as a whole, and also out of the concern for the reputation of these islands as a financial industry.

Madam Speaker, all we would need to have happen here is for CNN to carry a headline: "Bombing in the Cayman Islands", by some drug trafficker and it would immediately cause ripples in our financial industry.

So, Madam Speaker, I do recommend this Motion, and I trust that Honourable Members will see the genuineness of the recommendations and support the Motion.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is Private Member's Motion No. 3/95. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion has duly been passed.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 3/95 PASSED.

The Speaker: That concludes business for today.

I understand from the Honourable Third Official Member that there are two Government Bills which he proposes the House should deal with during this meeting; The Trusts (Foreign Element) Bill, 1995, and the Perpetuities Bill, 1995. These have been issued on Business Paper No. 4, today's date, and there remains the Third Reading of two Bills dealt with this morning.

At this time, then, I would ask for the adjournment of the House until Wednesday.

The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of the Honourable House until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 3.17 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 21 JUNE 1995.

WEDNESDAY
21 JUNE, 1995
10.27 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Member for North Side to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed in the Legislative Assembly. Oath of Affirmation to Mr. Donovan W. F. Ebanks, MBE, to be the Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS
OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF AFFIRMATION

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I, Donovan Ebanks, do solemnly and sincerely affirm and declare that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II her heirs and successors according to law.

The Speaker: Please take your seat, Honourable Member. I welcome you to what may be a short sitting of the House.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: First of all, I would like to apologise for the late start of the House this morning. Certain changes were required to be made to the Order Paper for today.

Proceeding to Business, Presentation of Papers and Reports. Report of the Standing Business Committee. The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

REPORT OF THE STANDING BUSINESS COMMITTEE (Meeting held 4th November, 1994)

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, I request to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Report of the Standing Business Committee meeting held 4th November, 1994.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, I do not wish to make a statement, I just wish to lay the second one.

The Speaker: The Standing Business Committee Report. The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

REPORT OF THE STANDING BUSINESS COMMITTEE (Meeting held 3 March 1995)

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I request to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Report of the Standing Business Committee meeting held 3rd March, 1995.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Report of the Standing Finance Committee. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development. There are two reports, perhaps you would like to do them both together?

(Meetings held on the 19th & 20th October, 1994);

-and-

REPORT OF THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE (Meeting held 11th January, 1995)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Report of the Standing Finance Committee for meetings held on the 19th and 20th October, 1994, and 11th January, 1995.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 73(5), the Standing Finance Committee met to consider two papers from the Financial Secretary which were circulated to all Members.

The Committee sat on Wednesday, the 19th of October, and Thursday, the 20th of October, 1994. The minutes of proceedings are appended to this Report.

Matters considered by the Committee: The first order of business by the Chairman was to direct the Members' attention to an article which appeared in the Caymanian Compass pertaining to the cost associated with the upkeep of the Cuban migrants. The Chairman noted that this information was the subject of a private meeting with Members of the Legislative Assembly and should not have been reported in the press.

Madam Speaker, at this time I would like to take the opportunity to apologise to the Caymanian Compass, in particular to Mr. John Redman, for the criticism in connection with this incident. The blame for the mishandling of this matter rests with the Portfolio of Finance and Development as the document which gave rise to this criticism was not classified as confidential or restricted, and was made available to the staff of the Legislative Assembly along with the regular agenda to be considered by the Committee.

CONSIDERATION OF SUPPLEMENTARY FUNDS: In accordance with Standing Order 67, the Committee considered the following financial requests.

The total supplementary appropriation approved was CI$5,886,006.00

Consideration of other matters recurrent expenditure virements between different sub-heads:

The Committee ratified the following recurrent virements, totalling CI$166,795 made between different sub-heads, as were approved by the Financial Secretary (in accordance with the provisions of Financial and Stores Regulations (1986) 2.70) during the period June through August 1994.

Variation of funds within the same classification under Capital Expenditure: The Committee ratified the following variation of funds made within the same capital classification, totalling CI$543,000.00, as approved by the Financial Secretary (in accordance with Financial and Stores Regulations (1986) 2.70) during the period June through August, 1994.

Capital expenditure virements between different classifications: The Committee ratified the following movement of funds totalling CI$2,978,636.00 between different classifications under capital expenditure (which results in a change of purpose of the original funds as approved by Finance Committee in the 1994 Budget).

Creation, deletion and regrading of posts for the period May—August 1994: The Committee ratified (in accordance with the provisions of the Public Finance and Audit Law, 1985, section 8.2.c) the creation, deletion and regrading of posts which took place during the period of May through August.

Request for authorisation to convert a loan to a grant to the Community Care Association of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman: The Government granted a loan in the amount of CI$ 200,000 to the Community Care Association of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to partially fund the construction and equipping of a facility for the housing of the elderly of Cayman Brac. The facility was scheduled to be completed and ready to receive its first residents in mid-1992. As a result of a lack of donations, the premises were not quite ready for occupancy. Consequently, the Association had no source of revenue on which to draw in order to make interest or principal repayment on the loan.

Executive Council granted a moratorium on interest repayments on 26th April, 1994. This moratorium extends until the Association is assessed as being in a financial position to make such payments. However, the Association is not in a position to commence the principal repayments which are now due.

The Committee therefore granted approval for the conversion of this loan for $200,000 to an outright grant.

Request for authorisation to seek a guarantee for a loan from a local commercial bank to the Cayman Islands Farmers' Co-operative Society Limited:

The Committee also approved the issuing of a guarantee from a local commercial bank to the Cayman Islands Farmers' Cooperative Society Ltd (CIFCSL) in the amount of CI$ 150,000.

Request for authorisation to vary the agreement—low income housing scheme: At a meeting of Finance Committee held in June, 1994, the Government agreed that First Home Banking, First Cayman Bank, Bank of Butterfield, and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce would be the lending institutions to the Low Income Housing Scheme coordinated by the Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs, and Culture. The Ministry sought the authorisation of Finance Committee to vary the agreement to allow any Bank or Company approved by Executive Council to provide financing to the Low Income Housing Scheme.

The Committee agreed by a majority (see division below) that the Ministry be authorised to allow any Bank or Company to provide financing to the Low Income Housing Scheme.

The Committee agrees that this Report be the Report of the Standing Finance Committee in respect of meetings held the 19th and 20th of October, 1994, to be laid on the Table of this Honourable House.

Turning now to the Report of the Standing Finance Committee of the meeting held on 11th January, 1995.

REPORT OF THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE (Meeting held Wednesday, 11th January, 1995)

At this meeting, on the 11th of January, the Committee considered and approved a request for authorisation to vary the terms of the guarantee approved by Finance Committee for Cayman Airways at a meeting held on 21st December, 1994. The details of the amendment were as follows: In accordance with Standing Order 67, the Committee approved a "Request for authorisation to vary the Agreement—Government Guarantee of aircraft lease for Cayman Airways Limited" as follows:

In accordance with the provisions of section 28(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law, 1985, approval was given to amend the existing Government guarantee (between Cayman Airways Limited (CAL) and Citicorp Leasing Inc) to read: "a guarantee by Government of rents (including reserves), interest fees, expenses or otherwise; provided that Governments' liability for amounts due and payable by the lessee (CAL) pursuant to the lease other than rent (including reserves), and any interest due thereon shall not exceed US$3,000,000.00." And further that: "the form thereof be settled by the Honourable Attorney General and CAL's United States of America's lawyers."

The Committee agrees that this Report be the Report of the Standing Finance Committee in respect of its meeting held 11th January, 1995. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: We proceed to Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. The first question is deferred question No. 86, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

DEFERRED QUESTION NO 86

No: 86: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to state the number of Companies registered since the registration fees were changed in March, 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker. The answer: Company registration fees were last changed on 1st April, 1994. The number of new companies registered from 1st April, 1994, to 31st March, 1995, is 5,535 or an average of 1,383 per quarter.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member state the number of these companies that emanated from the jurisdictions visited under recent promotions embarked upon by the Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development. I do not know whether you can answer that it was not part of the original question.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I am not in a position to give the details or to answer that question. It would require some research to be done.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Member would be able to tell us how these figures compare to last years figures?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, for the period in question for which the information is sought, the amount of companies registered was 4,418. Therefore, for the recent period given this would represent an increase of approximately 30%.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Third Official Member could also indicate whether the proportion of ordinary to exempt companies is the same, or if this has changed since last year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I would like to correct the information which I gave earlier. The increase in question was around 26% and not 30%.

Madam Speaker, we are seeing a significant increase in exempt companies. For example, for the quarter 1st April to 30 June 1993, the amount of exempt companies registered was 643. For that same period in 1994 it was 1,025. For the period 1st July to 31st September, there were 671 companies registered. For that same period in 1994 there was 1,043. For the period 1st October to 31st September 1993, there were 697 companies were registered, for that same period in 1994 the amount registered was 897.

For the period 1st January to 31st March 1994, the amount registered was 933. For the period 1st January to 31st March, 1995, the amount registered was 1,052.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, I beg your indulgence, just to make sure that I understand the answer. The question asked about fees being changed in March 1995. The answer states the fees being changed on 1st April 1994. Was the question incorrect?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the only change that took place in 1995 was the change to the restricted trust companies, not company fees.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I crave the Chair's indulgence to make a point of clarification. That is exactly the information which the question sought.

The Speaker: That was not stated... if the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development can reply.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I thought that could have been the direction the question was leading. But I also thought that this question was also well thought out, and, as a result of that, what was submitted to this Honourable House was the question that was intended to be answered.

Anyway, in regards to restricted trusts, the number of new companies registered to date since the licence fees for restricted companies were changed is nine. Of this nine, eight originated from Hong Kong and one from Bermuda.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member state if this figure shows a marked increase compared to the same time span in the previous year, and, if not, what would be the difference in income earned by Government since the change in the fees?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The number of restricted trusts on our records was 18. We were not having any requests on an ongoing basis for the issuing of new licences. It had gotten to a point of being static. We were made to understand that this business was going to Bermuda because they had a substantially lower fee than what was being charged in the Cayman Islands.

We also understand that although there was a preference for this business to be coming to the Cayman Islands, the British Virgin Islands also seemed to have taken their cue from the level of fees in Bermuda, and they also had their fees set to correspond with that charged in Bermuda as well.

So, this, together with the amending legislation that will be brought later on in this meeting today, we will hopefully see a significant increase in the number of these companies that are coming to the Cayman Islands.

Obviously, in reducing the fees of these companies on an annual basis from $6,000 to $2,000, we are going to see a significant differential in terms of decline in fee. But when we take 18 at $6,000, we are looking at $78,000. If we can attract an incremental increase in numbers and volume, to get the information out to the international financial community that we are a jurisdiction catering to this type of activity and, obviously, we have put in place the necessary review of fees in order to make ourselves more attractive, I think we should look at this arrangement not in the immediate short term, but from the medium to long term perspective.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8)

The Speaker: It is now a few minutes past 11.00 o'clock, the time at which Questions should cease. Since Question Time began at five minutes before the hour, would a Member move the suspension of Standing Orders so that this could be entertained?

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I move the suspension of standing order 23(7) and (8) in order for questions to continue to be taken.

The Speaker: May I have a seconder for that Motion?

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I second the Motion.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) in order for Questions to be concluded, the Motion having been duly moved and seconded. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Standing Order is accordingly suspended.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

The Speaker: We may proceed with supplementaries. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Begging your indulgence, Madam Speaker, and hoping that the Honourable Third Official Member would be able to entertain this, I wonder if the Honourable Member could expand a bit as regards other benefits that may accrue from such trusts being registered in these islands, over and above direct income to Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. There would be quite a number of spin-offs. First of all, we will continue to be in the forefront as a leading Financial Centre and, obviously, volume plays a significant part of this.

Employment opportunities will be generated because these trusts involve a lot of documentation that will have to be reviewed. In order for these services to be provided it will require that the personnel be employed to perform the services required.

So, overall, the islands will continue to benefit in an increase in the volume of these activities.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say, when the package has been totally reviewed, what procedures Government will be taking with regard to advertising them and letting the outside world know that we are now in a position to offer these services at a competitive level?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: On hand today is the coordinator of marketing and promotions. He is doing an excellent job in terms of keeping in touch with leading international magazines and also taking inquiries from overseas pertaining to the full scope of activities within the financial industry.

As soon as this is done this information will be passed to the international financial community by way of updates on the information that we are currently providing those organisations.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 95, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 95

No. 95: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development how much money has been repaid on the loans of US$5 million and US$2.117 million, respectively, borrowed by the Civil Aviation Authority.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the answer: Repayments to date on the Civil Aviation Authority loans of US$5 million and US$2.117 million, are US$4,813,737 (CI$4,011,448) and US$479,329 (CI$399,441) respectively.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say if these payments are on schedule?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, the payments are on schedule, but it is very disappointing because this Honourable House is very much aware of the fact that these two loans were denominated in baskets of currencies. Since for example, the obtaining of the loan in 1984 for $5.0 million, there has been a 300% increase in the rate of the Japanese Yen to the CI dollar. For example, in 1984, CI$1.00 could purchase 307.37 Yen. Today that CI$1.00 can only purchase 102.784 Yen.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I noticed in the supplementary that the Honourable Member says that discussions are ongoing with the Caribbean Development Bank to alleviate this problem by some kind of refinancing schedule. Is the Honourable Member at liberty to inform the House as to the progress being made at this point, and what are the prospects for the refinancing?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I can confirm that we have gotten an indication from the Caribbean Development Bank that the outstanding loan balances can be paid off.

We were initially told that the reason why they could not give a yes answer to us when we made the initial inquiry was that their source of funds was through the Inter-American Development Bank, and they would have to get the approval of that institution for the loan with them to be paid off.

Now, when the Auditor Generals' Conference was held in Cayman, the Auditor General for the Inter American Development Bank was also a part of the group that assembled here for the conference. The Auditor General took the opportunity to mention this to his counterpart and arranged for a meeting between that Auditor General [of Inter-American Development Bank], and myself. Apparently he got in touch with the Caribbean Development Bank. I am not saying that this was the case, but shortly thereafter, we were told that all the loans that were so denominated could be settled.

Madam Speaker, we have not really approached any of the local commercial banks as yet in order to obtain the necessary refinancing, but I would envisage that this would not pose any difficulty.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say if we are going to be liable for any penalties for early repayment of these loans from the Caribbean Development Bank?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I could not answer that with absolute certainty, but what we need to do is to get confirmation in writing from the Caribbean Development Bank in terms of what the terms of the settlement would be. But I would imagine, that since they did not really introduce a penalty for the loan that was paid off for the Water Authority, the same will obtain for these two loans for the Civil Aviation Authority.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 96, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 96

No. 96: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to state the revised figure for the accumulated balance for the year 1994 which will be shown in the statement of surplus and deficit account.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The unaudited figure for the accumulated balance for the year 1994, as shown in the statement of surplus and deficit account, is $2,457,676.

The Speaker: If there is no supplementary, the next question is No. 103, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 103

No. 103: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs, and Culture to provide a list by district and individual amounts of persons who have received assistance through the Social Services Department to effect home repairs.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the answer: Between January and March 1995, 16 housing projects have been completed with the help of the Department of Social Services. Of these 16, one, was in George Town; 14, in West Bay; none, in Bodden Town; one, in North Side; none, in East End; and 9, in Cayman Brac.

The Member will be aware that this vote covers more than home repairs and may include installation of plumbing, new rooms, or even in some desperate cases a complete home.

In addition, the total picture of housing assistance and its distribution by district requires us to also look at another vote covering rental assistance. The breakdown of this, for the period January—May 1995 is as follows: Long Term Rental Assistance (10)—West Bay, 2; George Town, 8; Bodden Town, Nil; East End, Nil; North Side Nil; Cayman Brac, Nil.

One-Time/Temporary Rental Assistance (25) West Bay, 2; George Town, 20; Bodden Town, 1; East End, Nil; North Side, Nil; Cayman Brac, 2.

The Department has observed that, and I quote: "over the years the largest numbers of requests for services tend to come from the District of West Bay followed by George Town, with a few from the eastern districts. This is true, not just for housing, but financial and other services as well. All cases are assessed to determine need and if need is verified, aid is provided."

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Minister state if at present there are—and if he knows, how many there are—outstanding requests from the district of George Town that have not been attended to?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I have asked for an update on all outstanding cases and this is still in process. But since there was a complaint about the answer, I decided to give the information that I had.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Notwithstanding the fact that information is still forthcoming, I wonder if the Honourable Minister would be able to say if, when the list is brought to his attention, there are funds available for any works to be completed on the list as present?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I would believe that the Elected Member had that information already because he made mention of it in his debate the other day that the housing vote was finished and we were seeking more funds. He himself said that the other day.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, having said that, if my memory serves me right I said that is what I have heard. I was only seeking an official answer because I did not hear anything officially. I would still ask the question because I have not had an official answer.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, is there anything you may add?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I thought I just said that is what is happening, new requests are being made.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Honourable Minister has said that these works may not only include, "installation of plumbing and the addition of new rooms, but in some desperate cases, a complete home". Is the Honourable Minister in a position to say what ceiling, if any, is placed on the amount which is spent on one vote?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I think it would be difficult for me to say because it would depend on the size of the family and so on. I know that we, through the efforts of the Third Elected Member for George Town, voted in the Finance Committee something like $30,000 for the district of George Town for one home. When that home was completed it cost $46,000, because of children. So, it depends on the size of the family.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac & Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if included in the 16 housing projects there were any instances where a complete house was built, and where was it built if, indeed, it was?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I am not sure, Madam Speaker, I just made mention of a house being completed in George Town. I am not sure. I do not have those figures, but that was a complete home.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Honourable Minister be able to verify that of the one-time temporary rental assistant list, if the majority of these were because of the fire that was experienced in the Watlers Road area which, out of 23, 20 were designated to the district of George Town?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the victims of the fire from Watlers Road area were a total of approximately $5,800.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 114, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 114

No. 114: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning if the Federal Aviation Authority has placed any restrictions on the type of aircraft which Cayman Airways Limited can operate in the United States of America.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTION NO. 114 STANDING ORDER 23(5)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would ask to defer that question under Standing Order 23(5), with the leave of the House.

The Speaker: Would that be deferred until the next meeting, or would you give that answer in writing?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I would answer in writing if the House finishes, because it appears that it will be finished today or tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that the answer to question No. 114 be deferred and, if the House continues beyond today, to a sitting during this meeting; if not, it will be answered in writing if the meeting terminates.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. THE ANSWER TO QUESTION NO. 114 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: I have been asked by the Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development to provide an opportunity for him to clarify a point under question No. 96, and I now give him permission to so do.

LEAVE GRANTED FOR THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER TO CLARIFY INFORMATION GIVEN IN REGARD TO QUESTION NO. 96

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In responding to question, No. 96, I pointed out that the unaudited figures for the accumulated balance for the year 1994, as shown in the statement of surplus and deficit account, is $2,457,676. I did not say whether this was a surplus or deficit, Madam Speaker. This is a surplus.

Thank you.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today. The next item is a statement by a Member of the Government. The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I find it necessary to clear the air on certain observations made by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, and reported on in the Caymanian Compass, regarding the matter of housing assistance provided by the Social Services Department, one of the departments within my Ministry.

The Member spoke of: 1) The alleged case of an old lady in Rock Hole with a roof to be fixed by Social Services; 2) he alleged that it was on a list from the Social Services Department to be done last year; and 3) he alleged that he was told that the 1995 Budget for house repairs was exhausted since the end of April.

If the Member knew of this case existing for over a year, why did he not inform me, as the Minister responsible? As far as the client goes, this handling of the matter makes a show of representation. However, effective representation might have been better realised if the Minister had been asked to look into the matter. Direct approach to the Department responsible places the department in a potentially sensitive position where it either denies the information and may be seen to be unhelpful, or releases it and may be seen as making life awkward for the Ministry. The Department appears to have released details of its lists in this instance, and added to that its budget status in this vote.

If this was in fact done, it indicates at best an error of judgment on the part of the staff member responsible, and indicates on the part of the Member a level of indiscretion in placing that staff member in a compromising position.

To put the record straight, the Social Services Department has advised, as follows, regarding this particular case of the old lady in Rock Hole. I read from a memorandum from Ms. Alicia Dixon, who is Acting Director:

"Further to our discussion regarding this client I write: The client had requested assistance with roof repairs. On visiting to assess the situation Public Works Department found that the house was too dilapidated to be repaired. They recommended that the house be demolished and a new house be built. The case worker, subsequent to the client's refusal to have her old home demolished, visited the client who, after talking with the caseworker, still refused to consider a new house being built. It was noted that the old house would need to be demolished to make room for the new one bedroom house being built, as the property could not accommodate a new structure in addition to the old one. The matter was then referred back to Public Works Department for further assessment as to any possibility of the roof being repaired in light of the client's refusal for anything else to be done. The feedback from Public Works Department is that it is not feasible to repair the roof with the house being in the condition that it is in. There has been no further contact with the client with regard to this matter.

"In light of current concerns, I will have the caseworker visit to assess the client's current disposition towards work being done. The usual routine in management of these cases is: once the assessment to determine need is done, a referral is made to Public Works Department for an estimate. If sufficient funds are available the client is included in those persons approved for work to be done. If no funds are available, the client is wait-listed for the service and advised of this. The case does not remain an active one, as no other services are usually being given. The case is usually assigned to the Social Work Assistant who is in charge of the housing programme. This worker then monitors the progress of the work carried out by Public Works Department and notes when it is completed.

"I trust the above information will assist you. [signed] Alicia E. Dixon."

The Member mentioned his Parliamentary Question to me regarding the breakdown of assistance through the Social Services to effect home repairs. He went on to say: "...the way I have heard it, is that the Department has not been able to provide this information. I have very serious doubts that the very capable Head of that Department would risk the wrath of the Ministry in not providing that answer. So I do not know where the answer is." [Official Hansard Report 14 June 1995]

Lastly, he said: "She [the old lady] said: 'I guess that money went the same way the money went for the roads and we never got anything out of it.'"

For the Member's information, the department was not able to provide all the information required when the question was initially asked, as is apparent from the answer that I provided to the question. The answer is broader than the Member seems to think.

The Member also seems to have taken full advantage of the outsider status of a MLA without Ministerial responsibility in allowing this constituent to take the view that he could do nothing about any funding shortfall which may exist. We all know that if such a situation is brought to light in any forum, including Finance Committee, it would receive sympathetic treatment. Again I ask, why did the Member not approach me? Why did he not draw this situation to my attention? Surely, it is of the greatest benefit to the little old lady in Rock Hole if the Member got me to deal with the matter expeditiously, than it is for the Member to use her case to try to score some points against me on the floor of this Honourable House.

This attempt on his part is made really obvious if you consider the fact that the Member could have spoken before me and, in his debate, asked for information. Instead he held out and spoke after me in order to score a point. Even after the Member spoke ... in fact, when we took the break I asked the Member to identify the case and he refused. I hope the Member will be prepared to accept the advice now given in dealing with similar matters in the future. The Member and the House in general should accept that I will do, and have done, anything that is humanly possible for any such needy case.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.36 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED 12.04 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker, I would crave your indulgence to make a very short personal statement regarding the one just made by the Honourable Minister.

The Speaker: You may.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

First of all, in the Minister's statement he referred to my putting the Department of Social Services and its staff in, what I would term, an almost untenable situation by my personal approach to that department. I think the inference in the statement was that what I was talking about was the information that was given to me by the Department. I wish to make it very clear, and the Hansards will prove it, that I did not mention in my contribution to the said debate, anything at any time regarding that specific department nor its members of staff with regards to me, either soliciting, or being given any information about the budget, or, for that matter, about any old lady in Rock Hole which I may have mentioned.

The indiscretion that he refers to is certainly not factual with regards to what he has drawn as a conclusion, because I did not call anyone's name, neither did I refer to anyone or to any department whereby I was supposedly given any information.

Finally, with regards to my scoring any points, which he mentioned in his statement, Madam Speaker, if the Minister thought for a split-second, he would fully realise that I simply borrowed a page from his arsenal.

The Speaker: We proceed to Government Business.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The Member has made a statement which contains controversial matter, which you allowed. I will not get into it because you allowed it, although Standing Order 31 says it should not be allowed. But the Hansard I have does say that he mentioned the Social Services Department several times. The Hansard is there for all to see.

The Speaker: Perhaps, Honourable Minister, since you have risen on what might be termed an explanation, could you please read the sections which refer to the Social Services Department, or the context thereof, please?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Perhaps, Madam Speaker, I should read the whole section that pertains to that question.

The Speaker: I think you could just take out the references to the Social Services Department since this seems to be the point of issue.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The part that he read when he spoke, Madam Speaker, he said: "This is the second Session, and the way in which I understand it, and the way I have heard it is that the Department has not been able to provide this information... I have very serious doubts that the very capable Head of that Department would risk the wrath of the Ministry in not providing that answer. So I do not know where the answer is." [Unedited Hansard 14 June 1995]

The Speaker: Well, Honourable Minister, the Member came in and discussed with me the point that he wished to make and I allowed it. Taken in the context in which your statement was presented I felt it was quite in order for the Member to have made the point that he did not approach any officer in the Social Services Department. I think that the matter needs to rest now.

We will continue with Government Business, Bills, First Readings. Suspension of Standing Order 46.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDERS 46

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 83, I would like to move the suspension of Standing Order 46, dealing with the requirement that 21 days notice be given before bills can be dealt with in this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The question before the House is the suspension of Standing Order 46 in order for two bills to be dealt with at this meeting without their specified notice. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Orders are accordingly suspended.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 46 SUSPENDED TO ENABLE STAGES OF BILLS TO BE TAKEN WITHOUT SPECIFIED NOTICE.

The Speaker: First Readings.

BILLS

FIRST READINGS

THE TRUSTS (FOREIGN ELEMENT) (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

The Clerk: The Trusts (Foreign Element)(Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and set down for Second Reading.

THE PERPETUITIES BILL, 1995

The Clerk: The Perpetuities Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and set down for Second Reading.

Second Readings. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

SECOND READINGS

THE TRUSTS (FOREIGN ELEMENT) (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, before I get into my comments on the bills, I would like to crave your indulgence to make a short statement in regards to the reason why the request has been made for the suspension of Standing Order 46.

The Government is ever mindful that, in accordance with Standing Order 46, bills be submitted to this Honourable House 21 days before they are to be dealt with.

Being mindful of this requirement, these bills were submitted to the Legislative Assembly on the 8th of June with a request for their circulation following which they would be dealt with at the September meeting. However, last Friday the Leader of Government Business and I were contacted with a request for the bill dealing with Perpetuities to be acted upon during this meeting. Implicit in this request was that the bill dealing with the amendment to The Trusts (Foreign Element) Law, 1987, should also be dealt with, but it was mentioned that it would not adversely affect the operations of our financial industry if this bill was held back until the upcoming meeting in September.

However, because the bills are dealing with the subject of trust activities, there is an advantage to dealing with both of them at the same time, hence the reason for both of these bills being on the Order Paper today.

We have been made to understand that the reasons for the urgency, specifically with the bill dealing with perpetuities are twofold: 1) To prevent certain pension fund activities registered here from seeking to be re-domiciled elsewhere due to deficiencies in our existing legislation; and 2) To allow the financial industry to favourably respond to inquiries to other major financial centres which are seeking to establish trust activities in the Cayman Islands.

As a leading financial centre it is necessary that we remain in the forefront with our legislative framework. We all recognise that there are certain risks (hopefully minimal) that can result from this approach, but this is a risk we take.

As we continue our efforts as a Government working with the financial industry to make Cayman more attractive for off shore services, we will be asked to fast track legislation such as what is being done today. In so doing, as I alluded to earlier, it is recognised that not all of the "i's" will be dotted and "t's" crossed in all instances. But to remain in the forefront I think the Government will have to put itself in a position in order to accommodate such requests.

I am thankful to the Honourable House for allowing the waiving of Standing Orders for these bills to be taken.

Turning now to the second reading, I beg to move the second reading of a Bill for a Law to amend The Trusts (Foreign Element) Law, 1987.

The Memorandum of Objects and reasons explains the effects of each section of the Bill. With your permission I will read only the introductory paragraph, which explains the general purpose as follows: "This Bill amends the Trusts (Foreign Element) Law to clarify the Law in view of developments since the Law was passed in 1987. The amendments are important technical changes to ensure the Cayman Islands remain an attractive jurisdiction for financial services relating to trusts."

The principal legislation passed in 1987 was intended to remove any doubt that if a trust is formed subject to the laws of this country, questions concerning the trust will generally be determined by the law of this country to the exclusion of the laws of other jurisdictions.

Part of the concern was that the trust concept exists only in England and other Common-law countries. Another concern was that in some other countries there is a legal principle of forced heirship. This means that people do not have the same freedom that we enjoy to dispose of our property as we please; instead, the law determines who takes the bulk of the property of a deceased person.

These forced heirs may also claim to set aside gifts and other property arrangements made by the deceased in his lifetime including trusts. Under English Common-law principles it was thought unlikely that forced heirs could succeed in enforcing such a claim in this country against a Cayman Islands trust, but it was thought appropriate to remove any doubt.

The principal legislation seems to have been successful in deterring a tax on Cayman Islands trusts. Furthermore, it has been widely copied by other offshore financial centres. However, in the period since 1987, legal practitioners here have become aware of some possible loopholes which ought to now be plugged.

This bill seeks to do so.

This is another joint effort between the Government and the private sector, and it is felt that if this bill is passed into law it will further enhance the attractiveness of these islands as a trust jurisdiction.

I commend this bill to this Honourable House. Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Trusts (Foreign Element)(Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a second reading. The Motion is open for debate.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

For several reasons, which I will elaborate upon, I am not disposed to waiving the Standing Orders to deal with this business at this time.

Concern has already been expressed about the necessity and the efficacy of extending the time period from 21 days so that Members and the public may have ample time to deal with these kinds of matters. Having regard that before the House at this time is machinery to take that into consideration, Moved by myself and Seconded by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, I cannot take such an obviously contradictory position.

The Honourable Member said in his introductory remarks that the Government is also mindful of this situation and he outlined that the business was indeed only circulated on the 8th of June. A significant observation emanating from his introductory remarks was that this Perpetuities Bill, which we are now called upon to pass, is new legislation—seeing that we have no such legislation currently in our jurisdiction.

Also, these bills are of a seriously technical nature and it would certainly have served those of us who would need to, to do some research and seek some counsel to put us in a position to argue intelligently, constructively and logically. Cognisance must be taken that not all of us are familiar, however widely read we claim to be, with this kind of technical legislation. I can speak for myself, but I am sure that is the position of other Members too.

When we get up to debate in this House we all like to debate from an informed and educated perspective. We catch enough hell as it is for debating, so I do not want us to lapse into the position where we cannot stand up to debate and offer contributions from an informed, educated and researched perspective. That is another reason.

While I can understand the reasons for urgency, as outlined by the Honourable Member, I am sure that the reasons for urgency could be given on almost all bills and motions brought to this House. I am concerned that these kinds of things only serve to convey the notion that the Honourable Parliament is a fast food joint where you come in, place your order and wait on your hamburger—take it and go. Not so, Madam Speaker. Far from it.

So, as I voted no, I am not in a position to... I would have expected that these kinds of things would have been intelligently thought out coming from the Honourable Member, and I am rather disappointed that he would expect me to give this my support. I suspect that probably the urgency for this emanates from an exterior avenue, and I am not convinced that delay until September, to allow Honourable Members to go into this at their leisure, to explore, seek advise read and research this, would be detrimental at this point.

This will not be getting my support.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the purpose for bringing this bill on short notice was clearly set out by the Honourable Financial Secretary. This bill has certain relationships in specific areas of the law to a bill that follows after it where the Government feels that it can attract business here that we may otherwise lose, unless we can get on with dealing with these amendments early.

The law itself is really only going to affect, in all practicality, offshore persons. It is not as if this is a law that is going to have any effect at all on persons locally. It is one that really deals with the foreign aspect of trusts.

It is very complex—and without appearing to be critical, I do not think that adjourning this until September is really going to help the First Elected Member for Bodden Town to understand it. It is a technical law that is largely within the realm of lawyers. From what I can understand it has been carefully looked at by the lawyers and the feeling is that we should attempt to get this bill through at this stage.

I can give some explanation, if that may be helpful, but the main amendments are fairly technical. The first one relates to the heirship right, and now these will arise in consequence, or upon anticipation of a person's death. That is the area that has been put in.

With trusts many times the conflict of laws between two different countries provides that they can be subject to the heirship laws of one country, whose courts will try to take jurisdiction, when, in fact, they are made subject to the laws of another country.

The difference between real property and immovable property is that real property is looked at more as realty; immovable property can include matters such as lease holds. That is the amendment to section 4.

Section 5 of the bill, which amends section 6 of the Law, is basically adding the words: "...nor is the trustee or any beneficiary or any other person to be subjected to any liability or deprived of any right." It is dealing with forced heirship rules under foreign law.

The other amendment is the question of enforcement of the foreign judgment, and that deals with the principle of enforcement as well as estoppel, basically saying that a foreign judgment will not be recognised, nor enforced, nor give rise to an estoppel (which is a barring of a right) under the heirship rights of 6A.

Paragraph 7 is the same as what is now in the law in that it applies to trusts and disposition of property both before and after commencement of the law which is basically the way this had to go. It will only affect a small portion of trusts in any event, of which it is not something that is going to have an impact on the day-to-day life of Caymanian people.

It is only in fairly narrow instances that the question of the foreign element of a trust would arise and the conflict with the laws of another country, and the question of which court has jurisdiction and whether foreign judgments are recognised for estoppel or enforced in our law.

Nobody likes suspending Standing Orders, but the Member seconded the suspension of standing orders this morning. I am sure that the suspensions will go on day after day in this Honourable House by those two Members, because they want to ask questions. So, when it suits them to suspend Standing Orders they do it. I believe that Standing Orders have been suspended more for the two Opposition Members to ask questions beyond 11 o'clock than for any other reason.

I support the Financial Secretary. I believe that this bill is one that can only help us. It cannot do any damage and it has no impact on the day-to-day life of our people here. It is mainly to trusts. It will not affect many Caymanians at all. Obviously, the question of foreign jurisdiction and forced heirship of a foreign country would not affect a Caymanian unless they were living in that country with a trust here which is really unlikely.

I support this bill.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, it has been my understanding from the first time I became a Member of this House that the business of Parliament is one of formality and certain practices and procedures which have been followed for centuries which we have copied from the British Westminster System. If we follow the same procedures and formalities each time, we tend to treat each thing in the same way with the same emphasis.

Only this Session has there been a Motion, as noted by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, asking that the Standing Orders look at the matter of the time for bills to be extended to 60 days. As it stands now it should take 21 days.

This bill which would bring into effect a new law was circulated in this House at exactly 11 o'clock on Monday—today is Wednesday. The Mover and the Minister speaking on behalf of Government noted the fact that this is a technically complex bill. The proposed Perpetuity Law.

I think that if this Legislative Assembly is to take on the image that whenever there is some concern in the financial sector to whatever extent of business it embraces, a law must come here to be passed right away because something is impeding tomorrow, is giving this Legislative Assembly anything but credibility—which it needs.

Last night I called a friend of mine, who is a lawyer, and read this bill section by section and asked him if he could give me some enlightenment on this. He did. From what I was able to understand (not being a lawyer) I thought I grasped the basic ideas of what it is dealing with.

I pointedly asked him if he saw anything in it which he believed directly impacted on the average citizen in this country. He told me no, that he was not really aware that there were any trusts locally set up. He said this had bearing on factors mostly external which would be doing business in this country.

I also understood that whereas matters now initiated in courts overseas may impact here locally, this law says that this will end; they will not after this law is passed. Any business relating to trusts will have to be dealt with in our courts. It appears to me that we would be making business for lawyers who would have to take such business to court. Altogether, Madam Speaker, I gathered from what I was able to understand last night, that it did not necessarily touch the average person here.

What I wonder about, is the way business is presently being done between other jurisdictions and this jurisdiction, where these trusts are concerned. Are there other countries that will view this as some move to stop what is happening now, which might gain their displeasure?

I notice that it referred to the bill which was pulled back until September—The Confiscation Bill. It seems to me it is a bit deeper and wider than what is being pooh-poohed as the story here—that it is so innocent that we should all just get up and vote for it.

I have concerns that the bill could have implications over and beyond what I understand or, what I could understand if this bill was brought back to the House in September after we all would have the opportunity to examine this and take such as advice as necessary.

In September it could be the first item on the Order Paper and passed the same way that I am sure Members are now sitting poised waiting to pass it. From my own perspective, I share the view of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. There is a side to the effort here, where this House is concerned, and it is about time that this House stopped seeing the Standing Orders suspended to pass these innocent little bills which are so necessary to get passed because it is going to make and shake such big trees in the financial industry.

Madam Speaker, suspending of Standing Orders to ask some questions that are down on an Order Paper for the country and the House to hear; suspending Standing Orders to pass a law that is not there now—one that the government admits is technical and complex and, indeed, amending another law which is, for all purposes, technical and complex—are worlds apart.

I see nothing wrong with waiting until the forthcoming meeting of the House, and I too will not vote for this bill at this time—that does not stop its passage, of course.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, when we discussed suspending Standing Orders for these two bills, I did not think we would incur the wrath of the Opposition, since financial matters and matters which tend to bring revenue into the country are something that we all tend to agree on.

There are no big issues in the country, the country must be reminded of this, so the Opposition nit-picks on every item to make a molehill look like a mountain. It is high time that the Members of the House, those who refuse to understand—the Opposition that is—and those in the country outside who believe that they know all about Parliamentary business, understand that the Orders of this House are capable of being suspended under the Standing Orders—any Order; Standing Order 83 gives the House the power to suspend any Standing Order at any time for a specific purpose by the consent of a majority of Members present.

That is what that is put there for, it does not say for questions, it does not say for any statements; it is for any specific purpose. We would be a poor government—any government, in my opinion, would be a poor government—when matters such as this matter now before us arises that we can not suspend Standing Orders with the understanding of Members of this House. Members of this House must understand that running a country is not like running a little shop. In very big ways, things come up that at times they may not understand, which cannot be said publicly for the good of the country. It is not right for any Opposition to get up and make a big thing out of the ordinary suspension of the Standing Orders. It is just not right.

It is not right to refer to this Honourable Legislature, or to anyone in it trying to make this Honourable Parliament a fast food joint. I am sure that is going to catch the headlines because it is catchy. I am sure that is what it was said for.

This House does not operate like that. The Opposition often likes to pull us up, saying we are being disrespectful to the Speaker. But who gives permission for this sort of thing to happen? The first person who has to agree is the Speaker. I dare say that the Chair does not operate this House like any fast food joint. I do not agree with every ruling, but it is ridiculous to suggest it.

The Chamber of Commerce, and the likes, must understand that they do not run the country. They are not going to run the country. This thing of 60 days for a bill cannot work in every instance. It cannot! We must, as legislators and Parliamentarians and the Executive who run the country, have room so that when certain things arise we can bring a bill. Members should be able to understand that it does not affect the general populace. It is not something that is going to create taxation; it is not something that is taking away any right from the court; it is not something that is doing the children any harm. It is something that will give the financial industry a new facility that is needed, that will bring business in. It does not affect the general populace, and when this comes before us as a government we will be derelict in our duty not to do so.

You know, Madam Speaker, this thing about intelligent talk, these slurs that often come across from the Opposition, they do not have a basketful of intelligence that we can call on. If they had it, I do not know if they as the Opposition would give it to us, because they are the Opposition. In this instance, this thing about intelligent talk I think is a slur on the integrity and the competence of the Financial Secretary. We have to give him his due. That is as far from the truth as the east is from the west.

I stay late at the Glass House sometimes, and I look across my corridor and the one light that is shining when I come out... is the Financial Secretary's. The one car is his. Sometimes the two of us (not saying that the other Ministers do not do it) are the last ones to leave.

It is wrong to leave any kind of impression that he has not given thought to this matter before us. He is very capable of determining what laws need amending and when they need amending, and I say that he has given this thought. Besides, he has a very competent and wide-ranging committee, the Private Sector Consulting Committee, made up of people who run the financial industry—lawyers, bankers, accountants, trust managers and so on—all of whom have the knowledge, understanding and competence to deal with these matters. I do not think that we should use this to score any points on the Government. This is something that we should be on all fours with.

It has no relationship, as I understand, whatsoever with the Confiscation Bill. That is a good example of a bill (since it was raised) that the industry has said they need time to look at. What has the Government done? Put it back until September. That is of a very technical nature.

It is time for one and all to understand that government must have the capacity to deal with matters when they arise. This is one such matter. It will bring us business, and with all the competition that they get up and talk about—we should be doing this and that because of the competition outside and the country needs it. How come now when we bring something the country needs they say they cannot support it?

I say it is time for the Opposition to put on a cloak of responsibility and shed their cloak of political activity that is only hurting us—them and the government. Indeed, their activities are hurting the country at large.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.15.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.49 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.28 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on the Trusts (Foreign Element)(Amendment) Bill, 1995. [Pause]

If no other Member wishes to continue with the debate, would the Honourable Third Official Member wish to reply?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I would like to commence by thanking all Honourable Members of this House for their support in allowing the passage of this Bill. I listened to the comments of those who spoke in favour of the relative Standing Orders being suspended in order to allow for the bill to be presented, and I have also taken on board the comments of those Members who have spoken against this suspension.

I have taken note of the comments by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. First of all, to suggest that bills are being moved through this House, or this House being compared to a fast food joint has certain implications...

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member, that point was raised already. Please do not repeat the arguments of another Member, all right? Thank you.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

To follow on from earlier speakers on this comment would suggest that the respect that is due to this House is not being given.

First of all, I have the highest regard for the Chair, for Honourable Members of this House, and knowing the significance of Parliament itself. It is not one that I would treat with disdain or take lightly, because to treat lightly the institution responsible for the formulation of laws within a given country is one that is difficult to describe that level of respect. This is definitely not the case. I pointed out this morning the reasons why these bills are being brought forward with such urgency.

Secondly, there was a comment in terms of the process by which bills are brought and their being thought out in an intelligent manner. If this reference was at a personal level, I will not get into it because I would not want to believe that was what was intended by the Honourable Member who made that comment. But I, and everyone in this House, recognise that these bills we have in front of us are very technical in nature. There is no need to pretend that they are not—they are. It has been pointed out that since the law was introduced in 1987 there have been developments occurring in the areas of trust activities. There have been certain deficiencies and essentially this bill attempts to correct those deficiencies. The bill in no way is linked to the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Bill that has been deferred until September.

The process by which bills such as this go through before being brought to the Legislative Assembly is of such where there is a Committee known as the Government Private Sector Consultative Committee. This Committee is comprised of 21 persons who are leaders within the financial industry of the Cayman Islands. These bills were vetted by members of that committee. The bills were circulated before the initial meeting, they came forward, they attended the meeting, questions they raised were dealt with and the bills were voted upon unanimously to be sent to the Legislative Assembly.

That committee consists of the President of the Cayman Bar Association, the President of the Cayman Islands Law Society, the President of the Cayman Islands Insurance Managers Association, the President of the Cayman Islands Bankers Association, the President of the Cayman Islands Society of Professional Accountants, the President of the Chamber of Commerce. These are just to name a few of the members of that committee.

The Committee is made up mainly of lawyers, we will have to rely on the expertise of those members because I am not going to pretend... I recognise my abilities and I also know my limitations. I am not going to lock myself away in a room and try to become conversant with every detail of such legislation before it is brought to the Legislative Assembly.

We have been made to understand that the reason why we have been doing so well with Mutual Funds in the Cayman Islands is because when we introduced legislation it is regarded as timely, necessary, intelligent and conducive to the conduct of such business.

We have been made to understand that the Financial Services Supervision Departments have been established in some countries, and these commissions are often manned by persons who, while they are competent in their various fields, may not be competent in the field of mutual funds. These documents to facilitate registration are voluminous.

What they do on a number of these commissions is they have persons vetting these documents who do not understand the implications and meaning to some extent of what they are looking for. In order to avoid dealing with it, these documents are put on shelves and the buck is passed from one person to the next. As a result, we have found that when we introduce legislation in Cayman the process of how it was going to work was outlined, we found that we had a very large influx of business and such business is continuing. We recognise that the expertise is in the financial industry itself.

Another point to bear in mind, if the question of intelligence dealing with the thought process is of such that not much regard seems to be shown for the time frame and the importance of this, this is definitely not the case. The government is very cognisant of this and recognises the importance of presenting bills to this House in a timely basis. However, if we are going to think of extending the time frame beyond the 21 days as set down in Standing Order 46, I think we will have to take a decision in order to discriminate to make a determination as to whether that extended time is going to embrace all pieces of legislation coming to this House or if legislation will be grouped into various categories and certain consideration allowed in different areas.

The reason for this is that we are the fifth largest financial centre in the world. We did not get here by accident. While we do recognise that we are a very important financial centre, if the Government introduces obstacles and they are seen as impeding this, we know what the end result of that is going to be.

With your permission, I would like to quote a few paragraphs from a magazine called Finance International, which looks globally at things happening within offshore financial centres. What is interesting is that 20 or 30 years ago I imagine that a magazine like this would have been 10 or 15 pages, but today it is over 184 pages, commenting on various jurisdictions and new ones that are forming. We are not the only kid on the block and I do not think that we should believe that we are, and with your permission, I would just like to quote a few paragraphs.

The Speaker: Would you like to have my permission, Honourable Member?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: You have my permission.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The title of the article is "Offshore", the sub-caption is "Take off—Offshore". It says: "Generally offering attractive tax rates and regulatory attitudes conducive to business, offshore centres attract many types of businesses, particularly banking, fund management and insurance. The model of these offshore centres is Bermuda, but newer less obvious locations have begun to challenge the offshore centres."

Commenting on Bermuda: "The story of Bermuda's financial centre began in the 1930s, but the most dramatic growth came in the 1960s when offshore captive insurance companies began to register on the island. Captive insurance are the offshore insurance subsidiaries of multi-nationals set up to provide in-house insurance at the low market rate with the benefit of regulations that are suitable to their activities. The number of insurance companies on the island has risen more than ten-fold since the 1960s, and there has recently been a renewed surge. The number of international insurance and re-insurance companies registered in Bermuda is now 1357, up from 1315 in 1994."

We know that we are dealing with a limited market of offshore financial services and when we see an upsurge in business activities taking place in Bermuda it is sending a message in terms of development occurring elsewhere.

Now we go to Mauritius: "Of the following pack, Mauritius is one of the fastest developing offshore financial centres. It is pursuing the objective of being the Hong Kong of the Indian Ocean. Having followed a classic pattern of economic development moving from an agricultural based economy in the 1960s to a manufacturing base in the 1970s and 1980s, Mauritius has now set up the legal, physical and economic infrastructure to encourage development confidence in Mauritius as an international financial centre."

So, that is one more centre that is added to those countries providing this service. We now go to the Bahamas.

"The Bahamas has grown rapidly as an offshore financial centre since the late 1960s when it was an offshore tax haven with little more than a few branches of foreign banks. Today government estimates put these assets, based on the banking centre, at more than $200 billion. The cornerstone for this is an absence of personal or corporate income taxes or capital gain taxes coupled with straight banking secrecy. But incentives like these are only valuable because of its political stability and proximity to the United States.

"The Bahamas became independent from the British Crown in 1973 and is now a parliamentary democracy. Financial services account for 10% of the gross domestic product. The banking sector employed some 3386 in 1993, and contributes well in excess of $200 million in direct expenditure. A growing number of banks have a physical presence in the island. Of the 415 banks licenced to conduct business from within the islands, some 166 have brought a physical presence. Once established, offshore financial institutions are not subject to any liquidity requirements and regulations are minimal. There is, however, ongoing consultation to ensure adherence to widely accepted norms. The Bahamas has attracted banks from as many as 36 different countries representing subsidiaries of the world's largest and most prestigious financial institutions."

It goes on further, Madam Speaker: "In 1989, the government drew up the International Business Companies Act after consultation with the banking sector in order to provide the offshore financial sector with the corporate vehicle that was administratively flexible and cost effective. More than 24,000 IBCs have registered since 1990."

I just thought I should underscore this point to show what is taking place and that the range of our competitors is increasing significantly.

We now go to Puerto Rico. "Puerto Rico is a late entrant into the world of offshore financial services, but it has a well defined mission. Hector [?] Commissioner of Financial Institution has been marketing the island as a base for structuring deals for the Caribbean and Latin American region. It is well placed for that role. Constitutional ties with the United States means that it can offer the political stability that many countries in the region cannot.

Offshore banks operating there are free from Puerto Rican domestic taxes and US withholding taxes."

There are also banking secrecy laws, although these can be over-ridden by court orders.

We have a range of financial centres developing in the region and we see where mention has been made that countries that depended on agriculture some time ago are now moving into the forefront and offering financial services. This is becoming a significant part of their economic activity.

We have to determine whether or not we are going to continue to keep ourselves in the forefront. I recognise that it is important for any piece of legislation being brought before this House to be well thought out. From what has just been mentioned in terms of Puerto Rico, the Bahamas and other countries in the region, the British Virgin Islands, Turks and Caicos, the US Virgin Islands, Bermuda, and the range of countries in the region offer all of these services. If we take an adamant position that we are going to lay down certain requirements; that we are going to be inflexible in terms of dealing with time limits set out in Standing Orders for bills being brought to this Honourable House, and we are going to adhere to that with such rigidity, I suggest to all Members that we will be putting ourselves in a position to move from the premier position that we are now in—which is fifth in the rank of leading financial centres.

If it is a question of my intelligence that we should adhere to the 60 days, I will have to differ...

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member, there is no discussion at the moment about 60 days. Please do not bring that into the debate. It is irrelevant.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: If it is a question that the time limit should be extended beyond the 21 days as set down in the Standing Orders, if this is the view they hold, I think I will have to differ from the thinking of a large majority of the persons within this Honourable House. To maintain the position that we are in, we will have to cultivate a certain degree of flexibility. I cannot stand by and do my job by believing that the best thing to do is to turn away requests from the financial industry that such bills should not be considered irrespective of their merits. I cannot do that.

Again, I thank Members for their support of this bill.

The Speaker: The question is that the Trusts (Foreign Element)(Amendment) Bill, 1995 be given a second reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a second reading.

AGREED BY MAJORITY. THE TRUSTS (FOREIGN ELEMENT) (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

THE PERPETUITIES BILL, 1995

The Speaker: The Perpetuities Bill. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the second reading of a bill entitled, A Bill for a Law to Modify the Law of the Cayman Islands Relating to Perpetuities.

The Memorandum of Objects and Reasons explains the effect of each section of the bill, but with your permission I will read the introductory paragraph: "This Bill seeks to change the rule against perpetuities which strikes down dispositions of interests in property that might vest too far in the future. At present the common law rule applies." The common law rule is a rule which stipulates that the life of a person is one plus 21 years. "In England and many other jurisdictions the rule has been substantially modified by legislation."

This is technical legislation relevant to trusts created in this country. Trusts are a major part of our financial business. The common law rule against perpetuity which we inherited from England has a number of drawbacks, all of which are well recognised in England and other common law jurisdictions.

It is a complicated rule which is not always well understood, even by attorneys. It should be noted that a mistake made in interpreting the existing common law rules could result in total invalidity of the trusts concerned. Further, a mistake, if made, may not be discovered for several years following the setting up of a trust, but will still have the same disastrous effects of invalidating the trust.

In England legislation was introduced 30 years ago to modify the rule by introducing a wait and see principle. Instead of seeing that a trust is invalid if it might last for too long a period, the English legislation provides that one must wait and see if the trust lasts too long. This bill will bring the 'wait and see' principle to the Cayman Islands. It would establish a basic perpetuity period at 150 years and enable the court to reform any trust which fell foul of the rule at the end of that period.

A number of other modifications and improvements would also be made. For example, pension funds would be exempted from the rule.

This bill, as with the other (bill), is as a result of co-operation between the government and the private sector. It is believed that when passed into law this will significantly enhance the attractiveness of these islands as a trust jurisdiction.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Perpetuities Bill, 1995, be given a second reading. The motion is open for debate. [pause] If there is no debate, does the Mover of the Bill wish to add any further comments?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, just to thank Honourable Members for their support.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Perpetuities Bill, 1995, be given a second reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a second reading.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Can we have a division, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: Madam Clerk.

MONDAY
11 SEPTEMBER, 1995
10.07 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Elected Member for North Side to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. The Legislative Assembly is in Session.

Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers.
Question No. 138, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 138

No. 138: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if Pan American Health Organization donated a vehicle to the Hospital in the past few years.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: In 1992 the Pan American Health Organisation donated a Toyota Station Wagon for the Cayman Islands Health Services Department primarily for the use of the AIDS programme.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Would the Honourable Minister state the specific purposes for, and the type of insurance, this vehicle carries?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The insurance carried on this is typical of what is being carried on all Government vehicles.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Would the Honourable Minister say who is responsible for driving this vehicle and what is its present condition?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, the staff of the Public Health Department and, to the best of my knowledge, the vehicle is still in fair condition.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Would the Honourable Minister state if this is used for private use, on the weekends in particular?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, it should not be used unless there is a visiting member from PAHO. The vehicle may be driven home over the weekend by someone if deemed necessary.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Would the Honourable Minister give an undertaking that a policy is in place for all the vehicles at the George Town Hospital?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug

Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I will look into this. I think the vehicle is normally parked at the hospital, unless it has to go somewhere in the case of an emergency.

The Speaker: The second question is No. 139, standing in the name of Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 139

No. 139: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if the George Town Hospital has a qualified medical secretary.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer is: No, the George Town Hospital does not currently have a qualified medical Secretary. Medical secretaries are very hard to find and several attempts have been made locally without success. Efforts to employ one will continue.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Would the Honourable Minister tell us who transcribes the doctors' notes, or takes instructions from the doctors for patients' files and so forth?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, the Executive Officer and the Chief Medical Officer.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say if there has ever been a medical secretary employed and, if so, how long has the post been vacant?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, about four years ago, but we are endeavouring to have this post filled. As a matter of fact, there will be a requisition again for next year.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Bearing in mind the length of time that the hospital has been without a medical secretary, might it not have been in the interest of Government to seek an individual locally to be trained for this position?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, the Member is right. We are endeavouring to fill this position. It is a very technical position. In fact, a number of the universities in the area do not even teach that subject. It is a very specialised area. We will endeavour to fill this position.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

What methods are in place to ensure that proper and adequate records are kept on behalf of the doctors and their patients?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Would you repeat the question?

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Certainly. Would the Honourable Minister state what methods are in place to ensure that proper and adequate records are kept? Is it done by the doctors, or what method do they use?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This is monitored by the new Chief Medical Officer and the Executive Officer from his department.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 140, standing in the name of Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 140

No. 140: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what arrangements, if any, were made for relief of Government's radiologist while on annual leave.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: The Government-employed radiologist took end of contract leave from mid-May to mid-August 1995. During this period a locum radiologist from the Hospital of the University of the West Indies provided cover on the basis of two days every other week, except for the last week in June 1995, when the locum covered for the entire week.

This arrangement was not as good as we would have liked, but the fact is that it was the best that could be done. Intensive efforts were made locally, in North America and the region to find a locum for the entire three months, but without success.

During this period some delays were possibly experienced in processing special radiological procedures, and this is regretted. Routine radiological and ultrasound services were not affected.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if efforts were being made prior to the radiologist's going on sabbatical (I so term because it was three months) to have someone cover?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, every effort was made to do this, but the problem is that these are areas that people do not like to come for one, two or three months. This is where the difficulty comes about. There was a local person who had done this in the past, but when the application was made to get a permit, there were some difficulties experienced.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is the Minister saying that the Immigration Board had a problem issuing a work permit for this period of time with the one local person who might have been able to fill this job?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Indirectly, yes, Madam Speaker. What had happened was that it was a person who is resident who, under the Law, was not allowed to work at that time.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say if under these (should I say?) extreme circumstances... I know when all stops are pulled out in other areas I have seen it happen... I am wondering how nothing could have been done to sort out this matter.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, I understand the situation. But I have also been told that he was off the Island on this occasion as he works in a foreign country.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Minister mentioned that he was on three months' annual leave. In the event that we could only have a person come on the two days, as stated, was there any negotiation with the radiologist that perhaps he could have taken one month and spread it out over the year, instead of leaving for the three months in its entirety on vacation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker. We were trying to negotiate with him to spread his leave, but it built up and he decided to go.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Honourable Minister state what steps are being taken so that this will not happen again?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Every effort will be taken to ensure that this does not happen again.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Honourable Minister say if any thought was given to seconding the former radiologist at the hospital, whom I understand now works in Finance, to cover the business of radiography at the hospital during that period of time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I am made to understand that she is a radiographer and not a radiologist.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This supplementary follows up the previous question. I am just wondering if, under the circumstances, the Honourable Minister might not think it fit to identify a local individual who might be qualified and prepared to be trained for such a post?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, we will be looking at this.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 141, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 141

No. 141: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to provide a list of all property the Government has bought and contracted to buy stating the terms of the contracts.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: It is utterly impossible for my Ministry to provide an answer to such an open-ended question. Government's land acquisitions predates the Registered Land Law, Cadastral and the original Land Registration Law. It would take years of research to carry out such an extensive investigation. However, should the Member wish to have a list of properties bought or contracted, he should state a specific date, and I will undertake to give the answer in writing.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, this question purely related to the term of this present Government. To the best of my knowledge, I had included that in the question. I apologise that it was left out, and if the Honourable Member could present that in writing, that would be fine.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 142, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman

QUESTION NO. 142 Deferred

No. 142: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works whether Government owns two condominiums at Foster Village and, if so, what is the present status of these properties.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg that this question be deferred to a later date in this meeting as the answer is not yet ready.

The Speaker: The question is that the answer be deferred until a later date in this meeting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The question is accordingly deferred.

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 142 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 143, standing in the name of The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 143

No. 143: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to state the present status of the proposed West End Post Office with regard to the land acquisition and commencement date.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: A site has been identified and negotiations completed in respect of the West End Post Office. However, the Director of Lands and Survey is awaiting supplementary funds to cover the costs associated with this acquisition. Until such time as the property is acquired, building construction cannot commence.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Minister say if there are any funds provided in the 1995 Budget for the purchase of this land, or for any part of the cost of this post office?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I think there are funds in there for the construction of the building, but not for the land purchase.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Minister say how it is that money was provided by the Government to build the structure where there was no land to build it on, and why no funds were provided for that particular project?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: There was a block vote in the Budget where the funds would be coming from.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Minister say, if there was a block vote sum in the Budget to purchase this, why the land has not been purchased? Was it not enough money, or has that money been used for something else?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I think there was about $1 million in the Budget for land purchases and there were many commitments in regard to land purchases. That is why this one could not come out of the $1 million.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Minister say if it is the case that no specific purposes were set at Budget time for the spending of that money, and is it left solely to the discretion of the Minister, his Ministry or Executive Council to do this?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, this is handled through the Lands and Survey Department and my Ministry.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to ask the Honourable Minister if there is a provision whereby money would be made available to purchase the land in order for the construction to go ahead? The Island of Cayman Brac needs the labour, and we certainly need the post office. If this could be done it would be very helpful to the Sister Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. As I pointed out in my answer, that is exactly what we are doing right now—securing supplementary funds. As soon as this is released we are hoping to get started on it.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is the Honourable Minister aware that in the 1995 Budget an objective for 1995 in Note 5, says that there is provided in the Budget $60,400 to acquire property for the construction of the West End Post Office and, if that is correct, could I ask the Honourable Minister what has happened to the money?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, that is quite simple. The property costs more than $60,000, so we must find the additional funds.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 144, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 144

No. 144: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to provide a list of road works completed to date, giving districts, names of roads and costs.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: It is utterly impossible for my Ministry to provide an answer to such an open-ended question. Roadworks in the Cayman Islands predates Public Works. Should the Member wish to have a list of roadworks completed, he should be specific about a date, and I will provide the answer in writing.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. My apologies to the Chair. Will the Honourable Minister give an undertaking to provide a list for the financial year that we are currently in?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Certainly, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 145, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 145

No. 145: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to state what is the current status of the proposed new Post Office for Bodden Town.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. the answer: Plans are currently being developed for the construction of a new Post Office for the Bodden Town District. The new building will be located in the general vicinity of the existing Post Office. The Lands and Survey Department is in the process of entering into negotiations for acquisition of the site. It is anticipated that land acquisition and construction drawings will be completed by the end of the year to allow construction to commence early in 1996.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister identify the site on which the proposed Post Office will be built?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I would prefer not to say anything more on this than what I have already said. It is going to be in the vicinity of the old Post Office. I do not want to prejudice any negotiations that may be going on.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Minister be able to state if the land which now houses the present Post Office is Government property?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer is yes.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

That being the case, is it fair to ask the Honourable Minister if the site which now houses the present Post Office will be part and parcel of the new site?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

That would be impossible to do because as I understand it the measurements of the present piece of property is only about 40 x 30 and the building is almost the same size.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I did not ask if the present site would be sufficient, I asked if it would be part and parcel of the new site.

The Speaker: I think this will be the last supplementary on this question. The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I believe we are saying the same thing. What I meant when I gave him the size of the property was that I do not see any space there that could be utilised for a new Post Office if the present Post Office is built almost the same size as the present piece of property.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 146, standing in the name of The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 146

No. 146: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works what steps are being taken to prevent further erosion of coastline in the vicinity of the Bodden Town Public Beach.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: Immediately after my Ministry was assigned responsibility for the subjects of Environment and Dredging, contact was made with the Florida Department of Environmental Protection to identify a specialist from within its Bureau on Beaches and Coastal Systems... (this was not only for the Bodden Town area, but other areas on the island) to review a number of coastal issues, including the Bodden Town public beach.

Based upon options provided by Dr. Clarke of the Bureau, the Ministry is currently considering which option to implement. The available options are: a) the construction of a breakwater to close the channel; or b) the construction of a sand retaining wall where the present beach conditions appear to have equilibrated.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say at what point the Ministry will be in a position to begin rectifying this problem?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As soon as the Ministry is satisfied and has considered the options given, we will take the necessary action.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Just to ensure that we understand exactly what is being said, can the Honourable Minister clarify which channel is under consideration for closing?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The channel that was cut through the reef behind the present public beach that has caused the beach to erode.

The Speaker: The last question is No. 147, standing in the name of Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 147

No. 147: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works whether Government has any plans to compile a comprehensive national road works plan.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer is yes.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister could give an indication as to what stage Government is at with this plan.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Presently, the Department of Public Works is working on a system for the country and I would just like to add that it will not be taking the pattern of the Master Ground Transportation Plan. It will be something that is reasonable and that will assist us with the traffic flow in the years to come.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In asking the question, I also intended for existing roads to be part and parcel of what I was looking for. With that in mind, I wonder if the Honourable Minister could let this House know if plans have been made, or if a survey has been done, regarding the present state and the life expectancy of existing main thoroughfares.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, that is a part of the plan. We are going to try to protect the present roads as much as possible. The main focus will be to work on the roads here in the Capital because I believe the roads here are probably worse due to the fact that we have had so many cuts as a result of the work of the various utility companies. That will be done and other areas of the Island will also be looked at.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Am I to understand then from the Honourable Minister, that a comprehensive national road works plan will have as its priority the upgrading of existing roads?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Member is correct.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I did not understand the Honourable Minister to state a time frame. Is that going to take place in 1995 or 1996? If it is taking place now, will this begin in 1996? When is it expected to be implemented?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The dates mentioned by the lady Member are exactly what I am hoping to be able to do—complete the plans this year and, God's willing, next year begin some of the road works.

I would like to say that this will probably have to be spread over several years because this will be very costly. But it is my intention to present the case (once I have costing) to Executive Council and then on to the Financial Secretary for funding.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I also wonder if the Honourable Minister would be able to say at this time if the cost of this national road works plan will have any effect on the annual district maintenance amount which has recently been allocated. I am just wondering if having a national plan will affect the availability of the maintenance funds or not.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, the maintenance vote will have to remain with the Public Works Department because from time to time you will find that because of an accident, or when something heavy drops from a vehicle we get cuts in the road, and we will have to continue to do this kind of maintenance.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

The next item is one which I know we all regret, but we have to place on record our deep regrets at the passing of one of our Members, Mr. George Haig Bodden. The following details will be read to become part of the record.

OBITUARY

The late Mr. G Haig Bodden, MLA, CLU
Deputy Speaker of the Legislature, who passed away on Sunday, 3rd September, 1995

The Speaker: Mr. George Haig Bodden was born in Grand Cayman on 23rd February, 1930. He was married with three children. Education: First-Third Year Jamaica Local Examinations; Chartered Life Underwriter Extension Course, University of Toronto.

His Career: School teacher from 1947-1954; Merchant seaman from 1955-1959; Customs Officer from 1960-1965; Comptroller, Executive Officer 1965-1966; Life Underwriter from 1966-1988, when he retired as manager of the local branch of Manufacturers Life but maintained a pensioner's contract; sales Manager for family business from 1988 to the date of his death, Sunday, 3rd September, 1995.

He was first elected to the Legislative Assembly on 22 September, 1972 until 1988, serving as the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town. He was elected a Member of the Executive Council when he served as a Member responsible for Lands, Agriculture, Natural Resources and later Communications and Works.

He was re-elected at a by-election in May 1990 and served until the date of his passing as the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

On the 2nd March, 1994, following amendments to the Constitution, he was appointed Deputy Speaker. In the New Year's Honours List for 1995, he was awarded the MBE by Her Majesty the Queen.

I had the pleasure of knowing Mr. Haig since 1960 when he joined the Government service as a Customs Officer. I also had the pleasure of working with him when he came into the Legislature in 1972. He and his colleague, the late Mr. James Bodden, were very assiduous in their duties as Elected Members. They were always seeking my advice so that their questions and motions were presented as provided for in the Standing Orders.

I also had the pleasure of attending two Commonwealth Parliamentary Plenary Conferences with Mr. Bodden, one in Jamaica in 1978, and the last in India in 1991. He was always a loyal Parliamentarian, and one who aimed to always uphold the aims and objectives of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association.

I know that we will all miss him and we place on record our deep regret.

May we stand for a moment of silence?

The House stood for one minute in silence (10.48 AM)

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Before proceeding to Government Business, I would like to say that under section 31A of the Constitution, the appointment of a Deputy Speaker will be done as soon as practicable after the vacancy occurs. This will be done at the Sitting on Wednesday. Bills, First Readings.

FIRST READINGS

THE YOUTH JUSTICE BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Youth Justice Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

THE CHILDREN BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Children Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.
Second Readings.

SECOND READINGS

THE YOUTH JUSTICE BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Youth Justice Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker and Honourable Members, while this Bill (and its companion) is by far the most important piece of work accomplished by those persons who deal with the problems of children and young people daily, and is the end result of much hard work by those people, I would much rather be dealing with something else than to accept that we have to take such measures in dealing with the consequences of the rapidity of social change and the upheavals in the course of our children's growth and the power of the social environment that affects adolescent development.

The Youth Justice Bill, 1995, seeks to reform the criminal law relating to young persons. It is a partner to The Children Bill, 1995, which aims to bring under one statutory framework the public and private law relating to the care and protection of children. Some of the reforms to be implemented by the Youth Justice Bill include re-constituting the Juvenile Court as a Youth Court with jurisdiction mainly to try summary offences. Parents who fail to attend court when summoned, or to take action as ordered by the court, will be liable to a fine up to $1,000.

Sentencing powers of the court will be extended to include a custodial sentence which may be imposed in accordance with the provisions of Schedule I. The Grand Court will be able to make the same orders on conviction of the young person as a Youth Court, but will be able to sentence the young person to a more substantial penalty if it decides this is appropriate.

The aim of the legislation is to provide a more coherent framework for the administration of justice with respect to young persons, and to provide a wider range of sentencing options to suit correctional and rehabilitative concerns.

The Bill is divided into four parts. In Part I there is provision for the law to commence in phases if necessary. The definition of 'parental responsibility' found in The Children Bill is extended to the Youth Justice Bill to identify those persons responsible for the young person. The definition of indictable offence, summary offence, and offence triable either way, are provided to avoid ambiguity. A 'young person' is a person under the age of 17.

Part II of the Bill deals with proceedings in respect to young persons.

Jurisdiction of the Youth Court: A Youth Court is a court of summary jurisdiction presided over by either; (1) a magistrate sitting alone; (2) a magistrate sitting with two justices, at least one of the justices being of the opposite sex of the magistrate; or (3) three justices of the peace, at least one of whom shall be a woman. A Youth Court has the same powers in relation to the exercise of its jurisdiction as any other summary court. It has the power to try all summary offences committed by young persons, except when the young person is charged jointly with an adult.

Mode of trial of indictable offences is determined in accordance with section 6, and the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code. Indictable offences categorised in the Criminal Procedure Code as Category A offences, such as murder and rape, are tried by the Grand Court only.

Offences triable either way (Category B offences) may be dealt with by the Youth Court with the consent of the prosecution and the young person charged, except where a young person is charged jointly with an adult person over age 17, in which case the mode of trial for that offence shall be determined by a court of summary jurisdiction other than a Youth Court.

The restriction previously in existence will continue, that is, the person authorised to attend court proceedings, reporting restrictions, and the duty of the police to ensure that young persons are kept separate from adults when being detained in a police station or being conveyed to and from court.

Duties of parents: In addition to requiring the parents to attend court, the parents may also be ordered by the court to cooperate with the Department of Social Services and to take such action as required. Failure by the parent without reasonable excuse to attend court, or to take an action as ordered by the court may result in the issue of a warrant of arrest and to the imposition of a fine not exceeding $1,000.

There is a right of appeal to the Grand Court, and subsequently to the Court of Appeal.

Bail or detention: The normal bail procedure for adults applies to young persons in police custody. Where a young person is detained, the police must inform the parents, the Social Services Department and the Education Department within 24 hours. The young person may be detained in a detention facility for a period not exceeding seven days until he can be brought before a court. Pending the building of a proper remand centre for young persons, the police will have to continue to detain young persons at the Police Station Lock-ups or, in extreme cases, at Northward Prison.

Remand: Factors to be taken into consideration by the court in determining whether a particular detention facility is appropriate for the period of remand include: The welfare of the young person; the nature of the offence; any breaches of the rehabilitation order or probation order; and the likelihood of the young person absconding, committing further offences or interfering with witnesses.

Notice and reports: Existing requirements will continue for adequate notice to be given to Social Services and for the obtaining of pre-sentencing reports and other information to assist the court in the determination of the proceedings.

Evidence of young persons: The circumstances in which a young person may give information on sworn evidence are set out more clearly.

Duties of the Court: The court must explain in simple language to the young person the reason for his being brought before the court and must, in cases where the young person is not legally represented, ascertain his defence to assist in questioning witnesses.

Part III—Offences, punishment: A full range of punishment is provided for young persons convicted of criminal offences from absolute or conditional discharge, mental health order, community service order, probation order, attendance order, youth rehabilitation order or custodial sentence.

The sentencing options added include: Community Service orders, which are essentially the same as contained in the Penal Code; Attendance orders as set out in sections 24 through 26 which may require attendance, for example, in drug counselling for a prescribed number of hours, or custodial orders which allow custodial sentences to be imposed in accordance with provisions of Schedule I for crimes other than murder, or offences for which sentence is fixed by law as life imprisonment in cases where the court is of the opinion that none of the other methods is suitable.

Youth rehabilitation orders replace the existing approved school orders and juvenile rehabilitation orders and are detailed in Schedule II.

Sanctions against parents: A court sentencing a young person may, if it determines that it is reasonable to do so, order the parent, guardian or other person having parental responsibility to pay the fine, compensation or cost imposed. The court may also, if satisfied it is desirable in the interest of preventing the commission of further offences by the young person, require the parents to enter into a recognisance to take proper care of the young person and exercise proper control over him.

The amount of recognisance will be dependent on the financial means of the parents, guardian, or other person having parental responsibility. The court may order the payment of a fine not exceeding $5,000, if the parent, or other responsible person, unreasonably refuses to enter into a recognisance. There is a right of appeal to the Grand Court, and subsequently to the Court of Appeal.

Cautions: In appropriate cases, the police may deal informally with a young person by means of a caution contained in a written statement. Where a young person commits further criminal offences and is convicted, the caution must be produced to the court prior to sentencing and the court may take previous behaviour into consideration when sentencing.

In Part IV, Miscellaneous and Supplementary Provisions, Contribution and Affiliation Orders: Persons having parental responsibility for the young person have a duty to make contributions towards the maintenance and for the benefit of the young person who is subject to a rehabilitation order. Payments made under an affiliation order may be applied as if made under a contribution order.

Appeals: The normal appeal procedure applies for appeal to the Grand Court against the decision of a Youth Court.

Procedure, forms and regulation: The existing court procedure and the forms used will continue until changed by rules made by the Rules Committee of the Grand Court. The usual power of the Governor in Council to make regulation is conferred by subsection (2).

Amendments, repeals, transitional provisions and savings: Details are set out in Schedule III to ensure that the changes made by the new law do not disrupt existing orders and are reflected in existing laws. Laws to be amended include the Criminal Procedure Code, the Penal Code, the Court of Appeal Law, the Prisons Law, and Prison Rules. Laws to be repealed include the Juveniles Law, 1990, and the Juveniles Joint Trial with Adults Law.

Court orders imposed under section 9 subsection (1) of the Juveniles Law 1990, will continue to have effect and, if relevant, may be reviewed by the court as if made under the provisions of section 20 of the Youth Justice Law. This means that the new powers of the court with respect to parents could be available against parents of a juvenile offender already sentenced under a probation order or juvenile rehabilitation order.

The amendments to the Penal Code include insertions of the offences relating to the neglect and other ill-treatment of children committed by adults who are presumed responsible for the child or young person.

Restrictions on the employment of children are also imposed with total prohibition of the employment of a child under the age of 10. School-age children, except where receiving work instruction at a school registered under the Education Law, or a rehabilitation school, shall not be employed: (1) during school hours on a school day; or (2) for more than two hours outside of school hours; or (3) to lift, carry or move anything heavy which is likely to cause injury; or (4) during the night between the hours of 10.00 pm and 7.00 am.

Provided that all regulations, procedures and forms can be prepared by the Legal Draftsman, training can be arranged using the existing resources for this law to come into full effect from January 1996. There are no immediate cost implications, although the development of a local detention facility is expected during 1996.

Arrangements are now being made in consultation with the Royal Cayman Islands Police to effect urgent refurbishment of the West Bay lock-up which is the facility used most frequently for detention or remand of juveniles.

This Bill is a very important one. It has been in circulation for many months. As I said in my opening, many persons from the staff of the Department of Social Services, Justices of the Peace and other Court staff, and members of the public have been involved with these Bills. I want to thank all of those persons who worked diligently over the years and past months to bring these Bills to where they can be presented today. I ask Members to give favourable consideration to the Youth Justice Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Youth Justice Bill, 1995, be given a second reading. The Motion is open for debate.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The search for solutions regarding the effective accommodation of young people in societies is by no means limited to us here in the Cayman Islands. Certainly, the challenges that we face are no less daunting than those faced by those authorities in other countries who are confronting the same problems. It is encouraging to note that we are trying to come to grips with our problem, and those aspects of the problem which are unique to a developing society such as the Cayman Islands.

In so doing, we can learn from the experiences of those in other jurisdictions. This leads me quite conveniently to mention that, as has been recognised by persons (including Honourable Members of this House), these problems are aggravated by certain happenings in our society which lead to a breakdown of families and a weakening of the social fabric—not the least of which is the need for both parents to be working.

Also (as I am often given to stressing) is the advent of television, almost as a kind of surrogate parent and, certainly, as a great entertainer and not infrequently, a baby-sitter. I would like to mention also the abnegation of responsibility by one parent. Often, and I have to say regrettably, in most cases that is the father. It has been documented by sociologists and social workers and other people who study this problem that one of the contributing factors to these kinds of problems experienced by young people is due to the absence of a father figure. It is true to say that for most parts, overall, the greater number of these problems emanate among the males, although it is not uncommon for females to go through these kinds of traumatic adjustments.

In the Caymanian context it is especially disconcerting because it seems that manhood in our society has been devalued, and many fathers abnegate their responsibility in the upbringing of the family, as if that responsibility ends when they have sired the child.

This Bill makes a valiant attempt to enforce an acknowledgement of responsibility and there are many sections of the Bill with which I am in complete agreement, such as the attempt to make parents aware of their responsibility for the upbringing of their children to the point where they are expected to accompany their children to court on the occasions when these children have to go to court. But it goes beyond that. It also should be stressed that this sense of responsibility and identification must not only occur when the charges (or the juveniles in this case) are in trouble, but before they reach that stage. As a matter of fact, it is ideal that this responsibility, this sense of identification, ownership and obligation, should manifest itself before the breakdown point; because it is one of the deterring factors that children, once they realise that they are loved, cared for and considered of worth, will think twice before they commit certain acts of delinquency.

It is good to see that there is an attempt to differentiate and make as a point of departure and distinction the fact that juveniles are to be treated distinctly different from adults in terms of breaking the law. I would also stress—although this is not necessarily a criticism of this legislation, but more of a reminder to those of us who seek creative solutions—that the emphasis must always be, not on the purely punitive aspects of the rehabilitation exercise, but on those aspects that will lead us to salvage as many of these persons as we possibly can.

It is to this extent that I emphasise my concern for the construction and implementation of a centre (be it a remand centre, or whatever we choose to call it) which will help us effectively meet the ideals for which we are searching in terms of rehabilitating these youngsters.

Some time ago I read a book authored by an eminent American jurist, entitled, The Rage to Punish. This jurist was making the case that much that is wrong with the justice system in the United States is that too much attention is being placed on punitive sanctions and not enough on rehabilitation, on education, on the inculcation of self-worth and self-esteem. So what frequently happens is that in many instances we have high percentages of recidivism. It is not so much that the criminal sub-culture is growing in numbers, as it is that those people who have passed through the system once are ill-equipped to re-orient themselves and, as a result of that, have to revert into the institutions from which they graduated or from which they passed out.

There is a lesson in this for us: We should seek to have at the earliest... and perhaps it would have been ideal to have had it in place now, this remand centre. I believe that the very fact that we have a physical structure tailored to meet the expectations and demands of these children with problems is a great part of the solution.

Certainly, if what we recently read about the physical state of the lock-ups in this country is any indication... that is all the more reason to believe that we should not, for any period no matter how brief, allow our charges to be in these conditions. I believe that if we are inhabitants of physical surroundings which are poor, discouraging and debilitating, it makes it that much more difficult for us to elevate our mental plane to the point where we can rise above certain kinds of deprivations.

The strong point in what is before us now must be that the efforts of parents, as well as the community, is drawn directly into this fray. I am by no means a romantic, but I find it necessary to remark how in times past, when we were not so materialistic, or when it was not so important for us to devote all our energies towards surviving, what a different society we had.

I am reminded almost weekly of the problems we face, and of the problems that this legislation is designed to alleviate, by just looking next door at the Juvenile Court. Certainly, it is regrettable to say that I have met parents, with juveniles as young as 14, who have thrown their hands up and given as an excuse that they cannot handle their children and the Government must take them over. While it is true that the Government and the State have a certain obligation and responsibility, I wonder if the Government told all those parents to have children.

That is not good enough in my opinion. I have to think no further than my own experience where I came from a family where my mother was widowed at an early age with five children. She did not need any State to take charge of us. Her 'State' was a couple of tamarind switches, and she never ran short of an inventory of those.

Given that the sense of abuse is the way it is now, I have to sometimes say that her punishment was always meted out judiciously. Certainly, she let me know what I was being punished for. I think that if the rod was used more often we would not have so many spoiled children. It seems we have deviated from the words of the Proverbs, in which the writer said: "Spare the rod and spoil the child," and "Foolishness is bound in the heart of a child, but the rod of correction shall drive it far from him."

I see that this is a worthy attempt to come to grips with the problems which are eating away at our society, because the more we have to spend on juvenile rehabilitation, I think would be the less financial resources we have to spend on scholarships. We must find a way to redress this problem before it eats any more at the soul of the Caymanian society, before it eats away any further at the social fabric of this country.

Many people argue (and I would say that there is some credence to the argument) that the problem as we know it does not emanate wholly and solely from Caymanian charges, but is brought about by an influx of people from outside jurisdictions who did not necessarily have the same kind of upbringing that we had. I do not know to what extent this is true, I just know that as legislators we have a responsibility to address the problem, and that those persons who live in our society (be they Caymanian or otherwise) have a responsibility to see that those youths in their charge are brought up worthy to be able to fit in and not to tear down.

I can say that this legislation has my support. I only say that I am a little disappointed that we have not reached a further point along the road to constructing a proper remand facility equipped with trained personnel who could offer counselling, educational programmes and, above all, who could inculcate a sense of self-esteem and self-worth in these young people. It is a surprisingly common fact to note that many of the problems encountered by these young people seem to stem from the fact that they have come from backgrounds where they have little or no sense of self-worth, self-importance or self-esteem. As a result of that, they seek attention and are led to believe that they are not important, that there is nothing at stake as far as they are concerned. They get to a point where they tear down society rather than trying to adapt.

Before I close, I want to give an example of the abnegation of parental responsibility that I consider has to be addressed, and to say why I am glad that this legislation is being brought.

For many years I have been involved in football. We have a club that not only caters to the senior level, but also to the younger players. A few months ago at the George Town Annex, I had an experience with a youngster whom I subsequently learned was 11 years old. Upon questioning, I found out that he had not been to school for six months prior to the afternoon of my experience. The group of youngsters from my club were gathered around and this young man came just on the periphery of the group. His presence became a subject of discussion, and some of the persons in the group asked me if I knew that he had not been to school for six months.

Upon questioning, I found out that his father was a Caymanian but the mother was not, and that it was true that he had not been to school for six months. I asked him why not, and he said that he did not have a father and his mother had to go to work. He was not registered in any school because his mother could not afford the uniform and all the various allowances.

I asked him through some other youngsters who knew him if he needed some assistance, and told him that I was prepared to try to get that for him, along with what meagre resources I could muster up personally. So we set a time when some of us could visit with his mother. Before that time however, the next week I asked why he did not come back. Some of the youngsters said that he was on remand because he had attempted to hold someone up with a starters pistol.

I say that to say that it is timely, because that was but one case. Who knows how many? The abnegation of responsibility—particularly on the part of fathers—is quite serious in this country. I would hope that with the implementation of this Bill into a Law we can begin to address these problems. I ask the Government to leave no stone un-turned in trying to get a proper facility where we can nurture and offer the counselling, guidance and skills necessary for these people.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.37 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.03 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to offer my contribution to the debate on the Youth Justice Bill, 1995. I am pleased to see this before the House at this time. When I first received this Bill, I thought it was very long and complicated. I have had some discussion with constituents regarding this and all the individuals to whom I spoke had very positive comments regarding what they had seen in this Bill.

I would like to say that I appreciate that the public had a fairly long time to offer input on this Bill. I believe this is very important for all Bills provided it does not hamper the operation of the Government in any way. We are grateful that we had this long opportunity to look at this Bill.

A lot of the emphasis here will be to help young people make a change. There are certainly a lot of charges and assignments that will have to take place, the powers of the court and the protection. There is a lot of confidentiality. I believe this is very important in dealing with our youth.

I think we are all aware that times have changed; that the strap is no longer used by parents, nor is it used in the school system like it was 15 to 20 years ago. The previous speaker mentioned 'sparing the rod and spoiling the child.' This is what we hear many of the people from the old school say is happening, and they wish that the strap was back into the system.

Unfortunately, we often hear of abuse. I think if parents are careful, and if they think that a strap is what will help to discipline their children, then I do not see how abuse can come in. Certainly, if they are hit above the shoulders, or in their faces... I think we would all agree that is abuse. There has to be some type of discipline which parents can use in guiding their children to know right from wrong.

I, too, would like to see the strap back in the school system. I certainly got a few in my day, and I certainly administered quite a few when I was a school teacher myself.

In section 5 of the Bill, "Assignment of summary charges to courts." I am pleased to see that an individual "who has attained the age of seventeen years shall be heard by a court of summary jurisdiction other than a youth court." We often hear that a juvenile is used by an adult—whether it is to steal, sell drugs, or to do something that is not uplifting, but evil—simply because they are juveniles and will be tried in Juvenile Court where they know there is a certain limit to the sentencing. Here, this assignment of summary charges can take place. This is good up until the age of 17. If an individual can drive at 17 and be responsible enough to be on our streets, then, certainly, they can appear in a Summary Court.

This also applies to a joint order of a young person with an adult, that it can be taken to a court other than a Youth Court. I think this is very good. Hopefully, this will act as a deterrent to prevent adults from using our juveniles in that they know that they can go to a Summary Court, other than a Juvenile Court.

Under 'the welfare of the young persons in Criminal Court,' in this Bill, they will be protected. In section 10 their identity will be protected. Also in sections 11 and 12 of this Bill the children's' identity will be protected. In section 11(b) it reads: "for ensuring that a young person who is a girl shall be under the care of a woman." I am pleased to see that this is actually spelled out in this Bill.

They have reporting restrictions, and perhaps the most important thing is the duty of the parent to attend court. This is so important—that parents are responsible. Many times, children will act up even when they have good, responsible parents. Some children can be easily corrupted and led astray. It is very fitting that the responsibility is placed on the parent or guardian, or the person with parental responsibility, to appear in court with the young person who is being charged with an offence or who is brought before the court.

The bail or detention of the young person is also spelled out in this Bill. In section 15, remand is laid out as well.

I also would like to have seen a remand centre in place at this time, but the Honourable Minister has shared with us his plans for a remand centre and I am sure that by the end of next year the centre will be up and running with trained personnel. A proper facility (and personnel) can monitor the individual that has been charged, whether he is placed on probation or whether he is sentenced to some type of fine. There will be a follow-up so that the trained personnel can try to ensure that this individual does not get in trouble with the law again.

It is very important that a proper remand centre is in place. Unfortunately, we presently have sub-standard facilities, and it is not wise that our youth should be sent to Northward Prison. I am sure that this will be taken care of.

Punishment of offences is laid out. There are several choices where an order can be "absolutely or conditionally discharging the young person; any condition being that he commits no further offences within twelve months of the date of the offence for which he was convicted;". Again, a properly trained person working in the remand centre will have that undertaking to follow up with the individual to make sure that he does not get into trouble again.

In section 20(2)(b), "an order under the Mental Health Law; (c) a community service order; (d) a probation order;" where the young person is found guilty of an offence an order can be made to confiscate any property the young person used in connection with the commission of the offence. This is very important. That way the individual cannot think that they can keep what they stole or have in their possession in connection with the offence. Hopefully, this will act as a deterrent, knowing that even if they go to court the property will be seized.

The power to order the parent or guardian to pay the fine. In most instances the parent or guardian has to pay the fine, but I am sure that at times the court must get the excuse that the parent is not capable of paying the fine. Here it is properly laid out in this Bill. The onus will be on the parent or guardian to make sure that the fine is paid.

Like any good system of justice, a person has the right of appeal. I am pleased to see that this is also laid out in this Bill. If a person who is sentenced is not happy with that sentence, then the right of appeal is laid out in this Bill as well.

Probation orders are spelled out in section 23. Attendance orders are in section 24, so that an individual can put back some hours into the community. Again, it will be monitored. There is also discharge and variation of attendance orders, and breach of attendance orders in section 26.

There is a large section in 27 dealing with the youth rehabilitation orders and there will be liaison with the Social Services Department as well as with the Department of Education, and a youth rehabilitation order can be given by the court to make sure that all of these systems are put in place.

As I said earlier, this is long overdue. There are fines in here if the orders are not adhered to of $1,000. I believe there is also a fine of up to $5,000 if the orders are not carried through. I think that this Bill will be followed and can help our youth, not only as a deterrent, but to help them come back. Hopefully, as individuals, they will only have to appear before the Juvenile (or any other) Court once. But we know that in some cases it is unlikely. Hopefully, their self-esteem can be monitored with follow-ups, and all of this is possible with this Bill. I hope that this Bill will be passed so that all these ideas and orders will be put into motion as quickly as possible so that the youth of our Islands will benefit from this Bill.

I therefore support this Bill. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I, too, rise to give my support to this very comprehensive Bill which has been put forward by the Honourable Minister.

As we can see by the number of pages, much time and consideration of the youth of our country has been put into it. This Bill affirms the principle that the welfare of the child is the paramount consideration of the court when deciding any question in regard to the upbringing of a child. This leaves no doubt as to what avenue to take in the event that a youth is having problems. There is much guidance in here, there is nothing left for anyone to wonder about in case of a problem.

One of the highlights I noted in the Bill is the education supervision orders which may be made by a court where a child is not being properly educated. This is a good area to place emphasis on because we know that where most problems come in is when a child is not being properly guided in the education system. He goes to school, gets frustrated, and from there on, because he is unable to communicate with his peers, is where the problems arise.

It also places great emphasis on enforcing the responsibility of parents, especially fathers. As the First Elected Member for Bodden Town said, too many fathers abnegate their duties to their children. When we see the children today running about after school, it is a shame. There is nowhere for them to go. This Bill will bring about relief and it will bring about more responsibility so that when the children go to court, the parents have a responsibility to be there with them.

It also defines the responsibility of the Department of Social Services. It emphasises that the main duty of the Social Services Department is to promote and safeguard the upbringing of children by their families. This is a new approach where counselling can be put in place for families having problems. We do not have to wait until the child has to go to court. There can be pre-emptive measures taken.

These are some of the highlights of this Bill, and I must pay tribute to the Minister and his assistants who have put this forward. I see this will have a far-reaching effect on the youth of this country. I believe we will see dramatic results in the years to come because of these efforts being put forward.

Thank you.

[pause]

The Speaker: If no other Member wishes to continue the debate, I will ask the Mover if he would like to wind up.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wish to thank the Honourable Minister who spoke in support of the Bill, as well as those Members on the other side who also spoke in favour of the Bill. I do not think there is too much for me to reply to, except that a Member who spoke raised the matter of the absence of a remand centre.

I know that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town has said in public meetings that he would not support the Bill because we had no remand centre. I do not wish Members to lull themselves into a false sense of hope with this talk of a remand centre because a remand centre is not a treatment or rehabilitation facility. In their reference to the West Bay lock-up (and it must be the West Bay Police Station lock-up, because children are not held in the George Town lock-up), it is just a holding facility until sentencing. Then that young person will go to his parental home or to the Cayman Islands Marine Institute or one of the approved schools in the United States.

Let us not make anyone believe that the remand facility can offer this treatment. What the country needs is a facility. We have to be careful because the best rehabilitation keeps the child as a valuable and active member of society and maintains links with families, school and employer; that is what the Cayman Islands Marine Institute is all about. Thank God, it is working.

I am dubious about building a large secure institution. We must provide a facility on a small scale. Right now the Marine Institute is the system that we are using, and we only have need for the three or four who are getting specialist treatment overseas.

I hope that in the very near future I will be able to have a facility where we will not have to use the West Bay lock-up. I am also hoping for a facility that can take the three or four young people overseas. That means that we would have to have specialist staff. But I support this because I have always been of the opinion that the Cayman Islands must provide its own institution rather than sending them to Minnesota, Florida, Philadelphia or anywhere else. The same money can be spent locally—to say that we might not have one or two who are such severe cases that we might have to submit them to institutions abroad, but we do not believe that this will be on a large scale.

So I thank Members for their input and, again, I ask them not to allow the public to believe that a remand centre is made for prevention. Prevention will come through the Government's efforts—our sports and other measures we have taken—along with the private sector's constant work as they have done over the years. We will continue to work to prevent our children from reaching the stage of needing a remand centre, or where this law will have to apply.

We can no longer get up in this Honourable House and talk about the good old days, and the sooner this country recognises it the better off we are. We would love to see some of those situations obtain today where a switching would suffice. But the community, the environment where our children must grow up and live, is completely different. As all parents know, we cannot (as the old people say) keep our children around the frock-tails at all times. There are times when they will be away from us, and we only hope that the moral fortitude that we have given them in the home will prevail on the outside.

I, as the Minister responsible for Youth Affairs, will continue to work along with the Government on prevention matters and programmes—many of which we have put in place—to assist our young children. Members of this House can help to encourage this by getting on the public platform, and instead of criticising everything we do talk about the many good institutions that exist in this country for young people to get involved in. There is scouting, the Girls' Brigade, the Pathfinders and many other Church-related organisations for young people. There is also, on a large scale, various sporting activities in operation now. There is the Duke of Edinburgh Award Scheme and there are so many other worthwhile institutions where our young people can become involved.

It behoves us as representatives to, rather than preach the negative, get up on every corner of the country and say to the young people, "You have it good in these Cayman Islands. While you do have your problems, and while you have pressures from your peers, from the environment, and a lot of other things that impact upon you, you have a wide range of opportunities in these Cayman Islands existing to make it good in life." That is what we need to be saying to the youth.

There was a festival song that said, "Nowhere better than yard." That is true. As far as I am concerned, there is no place better to raise my two children than these Cayman Islands. The Cayman Islands, as far as I am concerned, is a wide-open space with many, many opportunities for young people to become involved.

While parents face pressures and the drudgery of life, I believe that a new effort is afoot in the country. I believe that more and more parents are recognising the fact that they are the only 'State', the only power that can make a difference in their child's life—not the Government, or the Church alone. Those of us who have the God-given responsibility, who have brought children into this world, must stand behind (or with) our children. It is we who are responsible.

I encourage our children to continue to excel, those who are doing well.... That is another point: we should not always speak as if all the youth are doing poorly, because we have some very good young people in this country who are excelling in school; who are even playing their own part in the development of the country, taking part in environmental programmes, in the Churches. There are far too many good young people for us to make believe that all we have are problems. That is not so.

Madam Speaker, without prolonging this debate, I thank Members for their contribution and I look for their keen support on the companion Bill, The Children Bill. Thank you very much.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Youth Justice Bill, 1995, be given a Second Reading.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Second Reading.

AGREED: THE YOUTH JUSTICE BILL GIVEN A SECOND READING.

THE CHILDREN BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Children Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Is the Honourable Minister prepared to do that now, or would you prefer to take the luncheon break?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I wonder if we could take the break at this time?

The Speaker: I would appreciate that too. Proceedings will be suspended until two o'clock.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.40 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.10 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Youth and Women's Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Bill before us is one which relates to, as the Youth Justice Bill did, to provide for services by the Department of Social Services for children and others in need; to make provision for children's homes and voluntary organisations; to make provision with respect to child minding and day care for young children and for its connected purposes.

Madam Speaker and Members, the Children Bill is part of a comprehensive and far-reaching review of the legislation pertaining to children in the Cayman Islands. It is partner to the Youth Justice Bill that seeks to reform the Criminal Law relating to young persons.

The Children Bill proposes to reform and bring together under one statutory framework the public and private law relating to the care and protection of children. It will repeal and replace the Guardianship and Custody of Children Law (Revised) in its entirety, and the provisions of the Juveniles Law, 1990, pertaining to the care and protection of children. Laws which will be amended include the Wills Law (Revised); the Marriage Law (1995 Revision); the Matrimonial Causes Law, 1976, and the Education Law, 1983.

The Bill is divided into eight parts, each one relating to a different aspect of child law. But it must be read as a whole. Although it is lengthy and seemingly complex, it composes a readily understood and easily manageable body of laws which, among other things, creates new interrelationships and defines the role of the Department of Social Services.

It is important to note that the provisions of Part I affirm the interpretation of the Bill generally, by defining the rights of parents and guardians and stating the principles which the court must apply in considering certain cases such as the welfare principle and non-intervention principle. The court's power to appoint a guardian ad litem in order to safeguard the child's interests in certain proceedings is specified in section 41.

The schedules contain important details of the private law of child support, the duties of the Department of Social Services to children in the community, and to children they are looking after; the powers and obligations pursuant to a supervision order and the duties of other people and organisations caring for children—for example, child minders and registered children's homes.

The aim of the legislation is to provide a clear and consistent code for the whole of child law which is comprehensible to all who deal with this area to avoid problems caused by conflicting powers in public and private law and the confusion engendered by conflicting jurisdictions over children's cases. It is proposed that all issues pertaining to the care and protection, financial support and custody of children will be dealt with in one setting, the Grand Court to be developed as a Family Court.

Private law dealing with parental responsibilities: The Bill uses the phrase "Parental responsibility" to sum-up the collection of duties, rights and authority which a parent has in respect of his child. That choice of words emphasises that the duty to care for the child and to raise him/her to moral, physical and emotional health is the fundamental task of parenthood and the only justification for the authority it confers.

Unmarried fathers may obtain parental responsibility by making an application to the court. The aim, as with other provisions in the Bill, is to encourage both parents to participate in the child's upbringing.

Parental responsibility can be held by a number of people. Parents and guardians do not lose it when others acquire it, except if there is an Adoption Order or when a Care Order is made, but their freedom to exercise it is restricted. The Department of Social Services will acquire parental responsibility whenever a Care Order is made, or when they obtain an Emergency Protection Order.

Court Orders: In private law proceedings between parents or other individuals, the orders available look to practicalities rather than legal rights. Section 8 orders can be made in any family proceedings to regulate arrangements about children and the exercise of parental responsibility. These are Residence Orders which dictate with whom the child will live and replace orders for custody, custodianship, care and control; Contact Orders which allow for access to the child by other persons; Prohibited Steps Orders, a type of injunction which may prohibit anything being done in relation to the child, and Specific Issue Orders, that is where the court decides a particular question about the care and upbringing of the child.

There is also a power under section 16 to make Family Assistance Orders, which provide for help and supervision from a Social Worker or Probation Officer through counselling or otherwise to the child and his family. Unlike Custody Orders, they will not remove parental powers or authority from one parent and confer sole power and authority on the other. Rather, they will simply settle matters that neither party may then accept. Parents will still be able to act as parents in ways which are not affected by the order.

Family proceedings and the right to apply: The court may exercise its powers to grant section 8 orders in a wide range of family disputes whether or not an application has been made. Parents, stepparents, guardians, long-term caretakers and people with their consent can apply for Residence or Contact Orders without leave of the court. Other people—grandparents, foster parents, and the child—must seek leave to apply.

Public Law dealing with care: The new provisions are based on the concept of partnerships: (1) A partnership between the Department of Social Services and parents which supports children who need help within their families; encourages the maintenance of links with the family when children are looked after by the Department of Social Services and facilitates re-unification of the family; (2) a partnership with the Department of Social Services and the children they look after which seeks to involve children in decisions made about them, to value children's individual identity and to ensure that they are prepared for adulthood; and (3) a partnership between the Department of Social Services and other Government departments, for example, Education, other agencies and the voluntary and independent sectors, so that a seamless service is provided for children (and their families) who need help. Looking after children: It is now the direct responsibility of the Department of Social Services to provide accommodation for children who are in need. The Fit Person Order under the Juveniles Law, 1990, will no longer be relevant. Where the children are accommodated by agreement with the parents the arrangement is voluntary and no notice is required for a person with parental responsibility to remove the child in certain circumstances. Otherwise, a Care Order under section 31 is necessary and the children will be in care of the Department of Social Services while the Order remains in force.

The Department of Social Services will provide accommodation and maintenance for the child by: (1) placing him/her in a family or with a suitable person; (2) maintaining him/her in a children's home; or (3) making other appropriate arrangements which comply with Regulations made by the Governor. When we say by the Governor, the Members of the House understand that we mean by the Governor in Executive Council, it is not the Governor by himself.

Support for children in need: The Department of Social Services also has a duty to safeguard and promote the welfare of all children in need, to provide services to them and to promote their upbringing by their families.

Families cannot be required to accept services unless a Care or Supervision Order is made. The emphasis on creating a partnership with families by agreement on necessary services is intended to avoid the need for Orders.

One particular service in this part of the Bill is given prominence because of its importance to family support; day care and supervised activities for preschool children and the school aged children outside school hours and on the holidays. Here the Department of Social Services has a duty to provide for children in need and a power to provide more generally with help by way of training and advice to those caring for the children.

Because of the need to co-ordinate what is provided with the nursery school provision and to let the local community know what the situation is, the Bill expects the Department of Social Services, along with the Education Department, to publish a review of this provision within the first year of the commencement of the law and every three years subsequently.

Care and Supervision Orders: The court may make a Care Order placing the child in the care of the Department of Social Services, or a Supervision Order putting the child under the supervision of the Department of Social Services, or a Probation Officer if it is satisfied that the child is suffering or is likely to suffer significant harm which is attributable to either; (1) deficient care given to the child, (2) the child being beyond parental control, or (3) the child being beyond the control of his/her school or the Education Department. There is provision for interim orders to be made under section 38.

Education Supervision Orders: The Education Department may make an application to the court to have a school age child who is not in the care of the Department of Social Services and who is not being properly educated, to be placed under the supervision of the Education Department. Details of the Education Supervision Order are contained in Part III of Schedule 2.

Investigation of the child's circumstances: The court may direct the Department of Social Services to undertake an investigation of any child's circumstances in a wide range of family proceedings. It is not limited to one child of the family, the court's power to direct investigation exists alongside the Department of Social Services' duty to initiate investigation in cases of suspected harm under section 47 and its duty to take reasonable steps to identify children in need under Schedule 2 and paragraph (1).

Emergency protection: There is a new Order which may be granted ex parte or inter partes in cases where children need to be protected. Emergency Protection Orders last for eight days and can be extended for seven days, and are subject to review after 72 hours.

The court must be satisfied that there is reasonable cause to believe that the child is likely to suffer significant harm but an order may be available where access to the child has been unreasonably refused.

There will be some Committee stage amendments and this might be one of the areas that will have a slight amendment.

Registration of children's homes: All children's homes, that is, homes that are providing care and accommodation for more than three children at any one time, unless exempted by the Governor, must be registered and must maintain certain standards and be subject to inspection. The Department of Social Services must be satisfied that the welfare of the children accommodated in the children's home are properly safeguarded and promoted.

Public Law dealing with day care, duties for the Department of Services: As previously mentioned there is a duty imposed on the Department of Social Services to provide day care for preschool children and to supervise activities for older children who are in need.

Child minding and day care: The Department of Social Services has a duty to keep a register of persons who act as child minders on domestic premises while the Education Department must maintain a register of persons who provide day care for children under the age of eight on premises other than domestic premises. Child minders are defined as persons who look after one or more children under the age of eight for reward or payment.

Nannies must be qualified in accordance with the provisions of the Law. There are various circumstances in which the Department of Social Services or the Education Department may refuse registration including where the person to provide the service is not fit by virtue of a criminal record. Registration may also be cancelled in justifiable circumstances and offences may be specified by Regulations.

Now for the miscellaneous and general parts of the Bill. These provisions cover a number of relevant areas including joint research between the Department of Social Services and the Education Department, the provision of information for statistical purposes from voluntary organisations and other bodies providing accommodation for children. The effect and duration of Orders are specified in section 69.

Court procedures pertaining to the attendance of the child, the taking of evidence, the protection of privacy, are set out in section 70, 71, and 72. In proceedings during which an application for a Care Order, a Supervision Order or a Protection Order is being heard, section 73 prohibits a person from being excused from giving evidence on any matter or answering any questions while giving evidence on the ground that doing so might incriminate him or his spouse of an offence.

Restrictions are imposed on the use of the wardship jurisdiction at the requests of the Department of Social Services. An application may be made under section 75 for a warrant authorising any constable to assist a person in the exercise of powers under section 56 or 64 if entry has been refused, or there is a likelihood of being so prevented.

General provisions: Criminal liability based on negligence or knowledge of the individual may be imposed personally on a company official as well as against the company itself. Draft orders by the Governor amending Part I of Schedule 2, must be approved by a Resolution of this Legislature. Expenses incurred by the Department of Social Services and the Education Department under this law shall be payable out of money provided by the Legislative Assembly.

Service of notices may be effected by personal delivery or by post. Notices to a company or firm are duly served on a secretary or a partner of the company or the firm. Amendments, transitional provisions, savings and repeals are provided for in section 80 and detailed in Schedule 6.

Existing private law orders will continue to have effect subsequent to modification. Non custodial parents will have parental responsibility. Juvenile rehabilitation Orders made under section 32 (1) (d) or section 55A (2) of the Juveniles Law, 1990, will be deemed to be Care Orders made under section 31.

The transitional provisions and savings will correspond with the power of the Governor under section 2 to bring the new law into force in stages.

Madam Speaker, the introduction of the equivalent legislation in the United Kingdom saw a preparation period of over two years with every member of staff from residential workers to managers released for a specific training in the new law. Our jurisdiction, the Cayman Islands, is small in terms of population, but its population deserves the same quality of attention from trained professional staff when dealing with such sensitive issues.

Preparation time of one year is the minimum required and most of the provisions included in the law can be applied from January 1997. The registration and standard setting aspects of the law need to be started in January 1997, but will only be compulsory after September 1997.

Part I and II of the Children Bill (to give an overview of the Bill), define the terms used in the new law; define parental responsibilities and responsibilities of guardians; introduces family proceedings and the supporting orders including supervision and maintenance which can be implemented on the 1st of January, 1997.

Part III of the law defines the role of the Department of Social Services in relation to child welfare. It mandates the Department of Social Services to provide appropriate day care and accommodation assistance to children in need. It mandates the Department to support young people leaving care until settled into adult life.

All these procedures can be introduced from the 1st of January, but must be complied with totally (for fear of penalty, of course) by September 1997.

In Part IV the Department must provide services under Care and Supervision Orders and must provide for guardians ad litem in care proceedings. This should be complied with by January 1997.

In Part V: The Department must offer emergency protection for children at risk of significant harm and have a duty to investigate and report whereby children may be at risk or harm. These provisions can be implemented by the 1st of January, 1997.

Part VI and VII state that regulations and procedures are to be developed for the registration and maintenance of standards for children's' homes, pre-schools, and child minders where this is now not so. This process is to start in January of 1997, and the back-register to be completed by September 1997.

In Part VIII the Department is to research effectiveness of services offered and is to provide various return of information. Rules regarding evidence by children are defined in this section. These procedures are to be established by January 1997 and information is to be completed by September 1997.

Schedule 1 deals with procedures of financial relief for parents and will need to be budgeted for to be able to be launched in January 1997.

Schedule 2 sets standards and ensures that the services offered by the Department are appropriate and available. It asks for services to be publicised. This can start in January 1997 and should be completed by January 1998.

All other schedules are to be carefully studied to be ready for implementation on 1 January 1997. All Regulations are to be considered by the Legal Draftsman and be ready, together with forms and procedures, hopefully by January 1997.

Madam Speaker, this Bill will greatly enhance the way in which those persons who work for officers of the court and who are in the Department of Social Services look after the needs of our children with problems. No doubt we have problems. As I said earlier, Government is doing all it can to address prevention. These Bills, the Children Bill and the Youth Justice Bill, come into play when a child is already in problems, or there is evidence that he will be.

My policy for children is prevention. Of course no one needs to ask about the old adage: "Prevention is better than cure." Government will spend money where necessary, we will try to spend it wisely to effect favourably the problems that our children are faced with. I would hope that if the trend continues, there are more problems in our community, these Bills will assist the system in dealing with our children fairly.

There is no use for anyone to get up in the House and talk about the problems, or berate anyone inside this House or outside, for what may seem to be a lack of any kind of facility. What we need are workers. We do not need talkers.

I want to thank the Department of Social Services, and those in the court system, especially to thank the Justices of the Peace for their input and guidance on these Bills, and those persons in the community who had the interest over these five months to write to either the Legal Draftsman, to myself as the Minister, or to the Department of Social Services pointing out problems that they saw which could have been addressed.

Children raising children today is not an easy thing. As I look back on Kerry's and my experience in raising our children, I am impressed with the deeply gratifying investment we have made in them. As parents it is hard sometimes to grasp how much we learn from each other, how much we help each other, partly by coping jointly with the lassitude of life. As I walk through my community today it hurts me to see what parents are faced with. There are model families in our community in which children fulfill their potential, where there are parents who respect each other and their children enough who are both intelligent and are able to provide the best opportunities for them. There are others who come from perhaps a different strata of life where we see child abuse, child neglect; where fathers are walking away from their responsibilities. I make no apologies to anyone for any fine in this Bill that deals with those persons in our community who believe that being a father is just begetting a child.

It is time that the community stops talking, and it is time that what we are about to do is done. I have had some calls on this Bill and I know there are some people who are scared about losing votes in the upcoming election next year. I am not so worried about that, Madam Speaker. I am concerned about the state of affairs and what I see from my own perspective where parents (fathers especially) are not doing what they are supposed to do—their God-given responsibility.

Caymanians must awaken from this neglect and their self-centred beliefs and attitudes, and rebound from this great deal of explicit and implicit emphasis on getting all you can, and living for the moment. This attitude is completely inconsistent with the self-giving dedication and nurturing that good parenting demands. It is time to stop talking about building five and six bedroom homes when our children go without seeing their parents for the entire day. To do that in our environment, our economy demands that both parents are working more than one job (sometimes one in the day and one in the night).

Madam Speaker, most parents are deeply concerned about finding ways to raise their children successfully in this pushy modern world in which we live. What does it take now for them to grow up healthy and vigorous, decent and constructive? It must be started in the homes where no one else can do it but those persons who brought these children into the world. No one else can do it but them, at least the responsibility must first be theirs.

I take my hat off to our women. As a young father I learned about the necessity of renegotiating relationships as spouses and parents while our family grew and our children became older. I came to appreciate more the complexity of women's lives as they strive to balance the responsibilities of work and home. Out of that inexperience (I would say) we had to build our competence as parents (my wife and I), and it is now our job to balance their teenage desires with the necessity of protecting them from danger. It is a hard job, too, in the world in which we live.

I ask God to help me, and I pray to Him for continued guidance of young parents, young families in our country as they face the stresses brought on by a greedy society and never-ending, changing world. But we cannot stop progress. And when we talk about the old days—in the old days we did not have to worry about those things because we did not have much. We had all the time in the world to deal (grandparents, aunts or uncles or some good neighbour). We wanted progress—and progress we have. And this is the result.

As I said, I would rather be doing something else than to have to accept that in our Cayman Islands we have to take such measures to deal with the consequences, the rapidity of social changes.

Thank you, Madam Speaker, and I know that Honourable Members will give this Bill a fair passage.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Children Bill, 1995, be given a Second Reading.

The motion is open for debate. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This Bill is a companion Bill to the Youth Justice Bill, 1995, which was debated earlier. It bears a similar reflection: that we in this country have to come to grips with the serious challenges at this time and offer some protection to the younger members of our society who are vulnerable on many fronts. They are vulnerable because of their age and also because of the social and familial circumstances in which they find themselves.

Like the preceding Bill, it makes a valiant effort to come to grips with some of the things that have been plaguing (shall I say, for want of a more appropriate word) the development of young people in our society. The Honourable Minister, the Mover of the Bill, is true in his reflection that long ago (in spite of the fact that many of us are given to romanticising on occasion) it was not necessary to make this kind of consideration because, of course, the society was different. It is high time we realise that while it is nice to engage in the fantasies of long ago (supposedly an easier time, although materially, we were less prosperous) we have to realistically set that aside and roll our sleeves up in an attempt to meet the everyday challenges.

Madam Speaker, the Opposition shares the Government's concern and shares the effort put out by the Government as reflected in this Bill in coming to grips with these problems. We realise that if we do not address these problems and do not allow ourselves to be able to put rhetoric and political differences aside, we will be labouring in vain. It may well be that for too long we have passed the buck, and for too long we have engaged in finger pointing. Now is the time to settle down and be realistic. The longer we delay in trying to solve these problems, the worse it is going to get. It bodes no one well to continue to engage in political rhetoric and not attempt to address the problem from a practical standpoint.

Having said that, Madam Speaker, I would like to draw the attention of the Honourable House to something that I find problematic and maybe somewhat contradictory, and it is a matter that I think bears closer attention. I would like to draw reference to the Youth Justice Bill, 1995, clause 14 which deals with bail or detention of young person and subsection (c). I shall read clause 14 (1): "Where a young person has been taken into custody (whether or not with a warrant) and cannot be brought without delay before a court, the police officer in charge of the police station to which he is brought—..."

I will skip and go down to the problematic section which is subsection (c): "detains the young person in a detention facility for a period not exceeding seven days until he can be brought before a court."

I will now go down to subsection (4) (a), (b) and (c) of the same section 14, 'Detention facility, and its definition: "(4) In subsection (2), section 15 and Schedule 1 "detention facility" means -

- (a) any place declared by order of the Governor to be a detention facility for the purposes of this Law;
- (b) any police station lock-up; or

(c) Northward Prison, Grand Cayman."

For comparative purposes let me now refer the Chair to section 21 of the Children Bill, 1995. It reads: "21.(2) The Department shall receive and make provision for the accommodation of children -

(a) who are on remand under section 12 or 13 of the Youth Justice Law, 1995 at a place other than a prison or police station lock-up;

(b) who are the subject of a rehabilitation order imposing a detention requirement under section 27 of the Youth Justice Law."

There seems to be a contradiction between the two Bills.

Madam Speaker, that is the only point at which it strikes me that there needs to be some amplification by virtue of the fact that those sections in the two Bills may be at cross-purposes.

I was interested to hear how the Government plans to deal with the operation of children's homes and the whole business of responsibility and liability. From observation, and from the little knowledge I have, it seems that what the Government is attempting to do is certainly the most effective way of dealing with these children. However, we have to ensure that the facilities—the homes and the people engaged in caring for these children—are of the best calibre and the finest there is.

I say this to make the point that there is going to be an almost continuous need for not only registration and maintenance of standards, but for a continuous need for supervision and policing to ensure that the children in the care and custody of these persons have the best care, love, affection and resources available to them.

I note too the differentiation between "child minders" and "day care facilities". Cognisance is taken of the roles between the Social Services Department and the Education Department. I was pleased to note the degree of cooperativeness and the complementary nature in which these two Departments are functioning. It is my own belief that this is a strength that the problem with which we are faced cannot be amply handled by one department but, indeed, the solution lies in the complimentary nature with which the solution and the problem is being addressed by the two departments.

From what has transpired here, I feel that there are three clear and distinct concepts with which we are dealing: Remand, Detention, and Rehabilitation. For my own purposes I made a note which serves to remind us that we have to always be aware of the distinction between these three key concepts in the care and provision for these children.

I believe that of the three, greater emphasis by far has to be placed on the rehabilitation. This leads me conveniently to make the point to which I think the Honourable Minister made a brief reflection. One of the problems is that we have grown away from what was the old Caymanian tradition of family upbringing. One does not have to wander much further than church to see that there is often an absence of the entire family.

One of the causes of the problem is that in modern Cayman we are never involved in enough activities at the family level. Most often we see that the mother is the focal point of the family—the mothers drop the children off at Sunday School, they pick them up. On a rare occasion we see the family worshipping together as a unit. I think that this is a result of the development of a modern and complex society; but I do not by any means accept that because the father may be otherwise busy they are excused from their responsibilities.

Sociologists and social anthropologists tell us that in most families there is a need for a male figure. Heaven knows that we faithful ones in Caymanian society can do but so much. We need to take into consideration that only so much effort can be put out by the Government in the establishing of laws. It is the responsibility of the family unit to ensure that they do things together—especially worshipping together.

It seems to me that the implementation of these Bills into law is the beginning of our addressing the problems of children and youth justice. Certainly, much credit has to be given to those elements of our society who, in the absence of this legislation and with almost overwhelming problems, have held the fort to this point. I especially think of those persons involved in after school activities and the justices of the peace who so unselfishly give of their time, not only sitting at court, but offering advice and help. There is no need for me to make a long list because the Minister quite ably did that.

I only wish to say that these Bills are an acknowledgement of the complexities that we face. The position of the Opposition in supporting them is an acknowledgement that something needs to be done as quickly as it can.

I will end on a cautionary note: The passage of the Bills through Parliament is the easiest part. The more challenging parts are setting up the infrastructure and then for those of us involved in the community to make sure that what we have set down works.

Having said that, I can take my seat and assure the Government that this Bill, likewise, has the support of the Opposition.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This Bill which is seeking passage through this honourable House is, by nature of its 120 pages, one that involves many areas which need to be dealt with.

In the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons it states: "This Bill gives effect to the Government's commitment to undertake a fundamental reform of the civil law relating to children."

The Mover of the Motion and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town have delved into many areas. It comes to my mind that as painful an understanding that it is which comes to our minds today, it has to be accepted that either through lack of knowledge or basic irresponsibility, there are individuals in this society who bear children without thinking or without knowing about their natural responsibility after childbirth. As all of us knew it many years ago, the thought was 'if I starve, my child must not; if I fall, my child must rise; and should I die, my child must live.' Unfortunately, there are instances in today's world where that is not the thought.

One of the most cumbersome and worrying thoughts, having read this Bill, is the fact that there will be times when a government has to literally take on the entire responsibility of rearing a child, or a set of children. It is unfortunate that the thought even has to come to mind, much less taking action regarding situations of this nature, because the best that can come of that (regardless of every possible effort being put out) will still not equate to the natural family situation of a close-knit unit under which a child should be reared.

It is very hurtful to know that some of our own will have to endure their adolescence under those circumstances even when you do your very best to provide not only the basic necessities, but the right atmosphere for children who find themselves in this situation.

One of the difficulties I have with the Bill is that, because of situations being as they are in certain areas today, I fear that some individuals seeking an out (in the case of children who are basically unwanted) will make attempts to abuse what is being provided for in this Bill. I am just airing a few concerns which do not relate directly to the validity of the Bill, it is just some spill over that I am sure the original proponents of the Bill have thought of.

When it comes to the welfare of a child, it is a very difficult situation deciding how far one is going to go—whether it is with financial responsibilities, educational responsibilities, the moral upbringing of the child, and we could go on and on. It is important to each one of us that each child has the best opportunity to become the best that they can be. It is a difficult situation and I am sure that the department will have to have qualified manpower and financial resources in order to be effective in this area after this becomes law. They will be hard pressed in dealing with those difficulties to bring about the best end result.

I believe (as the Mover and the last speaker said) that the passage of this Bill is the beginning of a never-ending, arduous task. I hope that accompanying this legislation will be a 'beefing up', so to speak, of the education of individuals who have children and find difficulties, for various reasons, raising these children properly.

We know of abuse, we know of neglect; we know of clearly untenable situations—and we can cite 1,000 reasons why a Government department has to intervene to make serious attempts for a child to be reared properly. With the experiences that I have personally had in these areas (on many occasions because of what has gone on in our land and because people have fallen behind in many areas) I know there are many people who do not know how to cope. There are people who find themselves up against a wall—they have no job, they have children whom they cannot provide for. Because of the instability of the home environment they throw their hands up in the air and, out of frustration, they either totally neglect or they turn to abuse. Many times, these things which occur are not premeditated but, occur because of a reaction to what is going on.

In support of the Bill and its passage into law, I would just like to say that the task is certainly a mammoth one. I think that it is very important that the entire picture be looked at. I know that this Bill only allows for the dealing of the Bill, but I wish to take this opportunity to say that I hope each and every one of us in this Legislative Assembly would find the right reasons to support all of the other activities that need to go on in order to make the ills that this Bill is trying to correct less in our society.

The department directly involved in this is one which seems to have to keep broadening its shoulders because the burden increases on a daily basis. I hope that in looking at the problems that the Bill identifies, we are somehow able to widen the scope and address all of the areas from where these problems emanate.

I wish to take this opportunity to say that I fully recognise that these problems we are talking about today will either make us or break us in the future. I hope everyone else realises that. I will certainly support every move that is taken to address these problems. I support the Bill in its entirety.

Thank you.

The Speaker: If no other Member wishes to speak, would the Mover of the Bill wish to reply?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, just to thank Members who have spoken on the Bill, and to make a clarification on a remark made by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

He said there was a contradiction in the two Bills. I think what is giving him the impression that there is a contradiction is that the Member read section 21(2)(a) from the Bill before the House, that is, the Children Bill, which says: "...who are on remand under section 12 or 13 of the Youth Justice Law..." There is really no contradiction, but a typographical error. That 12 or 13 should say section 14 or 15 of the Youth Justice Bill. When you look at the Youth Justice Bill, that is what sections 13 and 14 are talking about. It is not a contradiction, but a typographical error, and that is all.

I do not wish to prolong the debate on the Bill, but to again thank those persons, including all the justices who made a contribution to the development of these two Bills. We have given five months for public debate; in addition, there is an explanation memorandum on both Bills which was sent to all Members. I believe that this is the first time any such assistance has been extended to Members to help them better understand what the two Bills will be accomplishing.

I am pleased, to an extent, that as the Minister responsible for Youth Affairs we have come to the conclusion of a very long spell of hard work.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Children Bill, 1995, be given a second reading.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been read a second time.

AGREED: THE CHILDREN BILL, 1995, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.38 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.04 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

At this time we would normally be going into the Committee stage of this Bill... The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would like to move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The motion before the House is that this honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

I shall put the question if no one wishes to debate it. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.04 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 13 SEPTEMBER 1995.

WEDNESDAY
13 SEPTEMBER, 1995
10.06 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable First Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. James M. Ryan: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Election of an Elected Member to be Deputy Speaker: This is in accordance with provisions of section 31A of the amended Constitution. The election will be by the Elected Members of the House, and I will now call for nominations.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

ELECTION OF DEPUTY SPEAKER

Nomination of Capt. Mabry Kirkconnell, MBE, JP

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to nominate the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman for the post of Deputy Speaker of the Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: That Motion will have to be seconded.
Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I humbly beg to second that Motion.

The Speaker: There is a Motion that the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman be appointed as Deputy Speaker.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, would you wish to speak to that?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In moving this nomination, I take into account the fact that the person chosen as Deputy Speaker must be someone other than a Member of Executive Council and the nominee is not.

Considerations, such as the length of service of persons normally nominated for this post is taken into account. The nominee, on completion of this term of office, will have served 16 years of unbroken service in the Legislative Assembly. There are only two other people in this legislature who have such seniority status, and those two are Members of Executive Council which prohibits them from being nominated.

Consideration is also given to the person who is versed in the matters of the Standing Orders. I do believe that the nominee is a person familiar with the Standing Orders, indeed, knowing the Standing Orders to an extent where he would be capable of functioning in that particular post with relative ease.

Not least of the considerations is the fact that the post of Speaker involves a particular style of dealing with matters; that is, objectively, impartially, and neutrally. The nominee can truthfully be said to maintain a mostly objective and often neutral position in many matters, which in this particular case would indeed enhance his consideration as Deputy Speaker of the House.

He is not specifically a member of the present Government, thus giving him the opportunity to function (if chosen to be Deputy Speaker) in a way similar to the way a person who is chosen for Speaker outside of the elected membership would function.

I think the individual is well regarded in maintaining his cool under fire. Thus I believe the nominee is a person who could rightfully be considered for this post. I do trust that other Honourable Members would be so inclined to agree.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Nomination of Mrs. Edna Moyle, JP

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wish to nominate the Elected Member for North Side, Mrs. Edna Moyle, for the post of Deputy Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Madam Speaker, I wish to second that.

The Speaker: There is a second nomination moved by the Honourable Minister for the Elected Member for North Side, seconded by the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay. Are there any other nominations?

The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, since you opened the first nomination to a short speech, I am wondering if I may be given that privilege?

The Speaker: You certainly may.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: In moving this nomination, I feel very certain that the lady Member for North Side has the experience and capability to fill this position very ably. She is a former Deputy Clerk. She has been well trained, as you know, and has spent many years dealing with the practice and procedure within the Legislative Assembly. I believe that she has the ability to keep order and promote the practice and procedures of this honourable House.

I am also aware that the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman does possess many of these attributes. Much of what was said by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman I realise does put him in a very strong qualifying position for the post of Deputy Speaker.

My nomination of the Elected Member for North Side is one that we have considered in depth, and at this time we feel that she is the best person to fill that position.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In seconding the nomination of the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to be the Deputy Speaker of this honourable House, let me first of all say that there may well be more than one person who is qualified to fill the post. But as others will have already made their choices, so have I.

The mover of the nomination, which I seconded, just about covered all the bases for the reason behind the nomination, but I would just like to read two small sections from a book entitled, Parliament, Functions, Practice and Procedures. One of the excerpts reads:

"On many occasions in the past a back-bencher, with no ministerial experience, has been chosen. He might possess the advantage of being well-known among other back-benchers on both sides of the House, over whom he would have to exercise authority, and he would know them. He would have the disadvantage, perhaps, of carrying less authority with the senior Ministers and ex-Ministers on the front-benches." [page 142].

The other excerpt reads: "The Chairman and his deputies have for many years been appointed from either side of the House. They never vote in the House or Committees—except to give a casting vote—and therefore, to ensure that the balance of strength between the Government and the Opposition is not affected by appointments to the Chair, it is now the practice to ensure that the four occupants of the Chair, namely the Speaker and the three deputy Speakers, are drawn equally from the two sides." [page 149].

While we do not have the option of three Deputy Speakers, and while our Constitution has variances whereby the Speaker need not be an Elected Member of the Legislative Assembly, I still hold true to the argument, notwithstanding the vast majority which the Government of the day has in this honourable House, that in all fairness to the balance of the operations of this House, even if the Deputy Speaker does not end up having much work to do during the remaining life of this House, I believe it is only fair if someone such as the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, who is very capable and held in high regard by all of us, be elected to this position so that the balance of this honourable House would most certainly appear to be in a better position and more palatable for all.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Just to be very brief. I have no problem with the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman being Deputy Speaker, however we did not agree on this. The majority of Members agreed on the Elected Member for North Side, who is a very capable person.

I do not know what balance is needed, no more than to be impartial. I believe that the lady Member for North Side is definitely that to both sides of the House.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Certainly, the years of experience and the respect accorded by Members of the honourable House to the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, places him in the position where he has to be considered as a serious candidate for the post of Deputy Speaker. His position is what I would term a non-aligned Member of the two factions, namely, the National Team faction and those of us who are the Opposition, is worthy of serious consideration.

I think that his performance in the House (certainly over the seven years that I have worked with him) demonstrates that he has the ability and capability to handle positions of responsibility fairly and impartially with the confidence of Honourable Members.

I would think that these considerations should warrant the serious attention of all Honourable Members in supporting his nomination, and I would ask that in the interest of being impartial and for true Parliamentary Democracy, that we give serious consideration to the nomination of the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman for the post of Deputy Speaker.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

About a year and a half ago the late Mr. Haig Bodden was elected as the Deputy Speaker of this honourable House. The last speaker mentioned 'non-aligned' Members. When Mr. Haig was nominated this did not come into play. I wonder why this is coming into play at this stage?

The lady Member for North Side can be quite objective. She is the Chairman of the House Committee, she has also served as Chairman of some Select Committees since 1992, and I find her to be very fair and objective. I also agree that the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is fair and objective. However, with her experience, the lady Member for North Side, having worked under the Speaker and knowing all of the procedures of Parliament, I feel that she is our best candidate at this time, and I will be supporting her.

The Speaker: Is there any further debate, or any further nominations?

The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I support the nomination of the lady Member for North Side because I feel that she can do a good job with it. She is very experienced. She has been Deputy Clerk, Chairman of Committees, and is well versed in the Standing Orders. I feel sure that she will be able to do a good job and be fair. I support her.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, and no further nominations, I would like to ask the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman if he accepts this nomination.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Yes, Madam Speaker, I will accept the nomination.

The Speaker: I would like to ask the lady Member for North Side if she will accept the nomination.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Both candidates have accepted nomination. We will require balloting. At this time the Clerk will have to prepare the ballots for Members to make their selection.

I would also like to ask the Honourable First Official Member and the Honourable Third Official Member to act as scrutineers for the election of the Deputy Speaker.

BALLOT PAPERS PREPARED

The Speaker: May I ask the two scrutineers to check and see if the Ballot Box is empty?

The Serjeant will now give out the ballots—one to each Member.

I think there is just one thing wrong with this ballot. According to the election process Captain Kirkconnell should have been before Mrs. Moyle, but I do not know if they thought a woman should come first.... It really makes no difference, if Members have no objection.

When Members have completed their ballots, will they please fold them?

[addressing the Serjeant] Just the Elected Members, please, Serjeant.

Please collect the ballots.

BALLOT PAPERS PLACED IN BALLOT BOX

The Speaker: Will the scrutineers please come forward now? As you get a ballot please read aloud the votes cast for each person. Thank you.

BALLOT PAPERS OPENED AND COUNTED

MRS. EDNA M. MOYLE, JP DECLARED DEPUTY SPEAKER

The Speaker: The result of the vote is nine ballots for Mrs. Edna Moyle and four ballots for Capt. Mabry Kirkconnell. Mrs. Moyle is therefore declared the Deputy Speaker of the Legislative Assembly.

Thank you Scrutineers.

On behalf of Members I wish to offer Mrs. Moyle congratulations, and also to say that she will not always be sitting in the seat in which she is sitting now because I have a programme of activities for her in the future.

We will now proceed to Questions.

Question No. 148 standing in the name of Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 148

No. 148: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development if Government is presently contributing to any pension scheme outside the Cayman Islands for medical personnel.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the answer: The Government, as a matter of policy, does not contribute to pension schemes outside the Cayman Islands for medical personnel. However, there is one exception which was put in place by the former Chief Medical Officer under the old Health Services Authority and which continues to be in effect under contract.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Could the Honourable Member say how long this contract is in existence for?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I do not have the specific period of the contract with me.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Member state whether this exception applies to an individual or a group of individuals?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, it applies to one individual under the existing arrangement. I understand that there was a previous employee but the contract for that employee has since expired.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Member explain to the honourable House why the Chief Medical Officer contributed to a pension scheme outside of the Islands on behalf of the Health Services if it is not the Government's policy? How did he get the authority to do it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, with the indulgence of the House, although I have the name of the employee in question, I would ask not to divulge such information. I will let the lady Member have this during the break.

Secondly, it is very difficult at this stage to make a determination as to why the policy of Government was violated, or why there was a deviation from the set policy. But it should be borne in mind that the Health Services Authority, when it was in existence, functioned as an autonomous body. The Public Service Commission would not have been consulted in the matter of appointment of employees.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.
Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Member state if this is the policy of all the other Authorities, or are there directives in place so that this event does not take place in the future?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I cannot say absolutely yes, that this policy would not apply to other Authorities. Up to this time I am not aware and, as I said earlier, the research that was done established that this was the only employee throughout any Governmental agencies with this arrangement in place.

The other Authorities, while they are autonomous bodies, are required to overall observe the conditions as set out under the General Orders and other Regulations of the Government.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

For purposes of clarity, the last line in his answer reads: "which continues to be in effect under contract." Does this mean that the individual is under contract, or is the individual part and parcel of the permanent, pensionable establishment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The individual is under contract, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I take it, then, that this means that this contribution to the pension scheme falls away when the contract for that individual expires.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: It should, because this is where the Government's obligation would cease.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Third Official Member give an undertaking that if the contract is renewed, that this does not happen with the pension?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member

responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, it would be very difficult for me to give that undertaking. In the first instance, the Health Authority has reverted to a regular department of Government. Finance and Development does not have responsibility for determining terms and conditions of services for employees.

What I can undertake to do is to pass on the request that has been made by the Honourable Member to the Ministry and the Personnel Department.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Honourable Third Official Member explain to us the difference in pensions with regard to members of the permanent and pensionable establishment, and the contracted officers of Government—meaning, is there any type of pension available to the contracted officers, or is there any other sum in lieu of such a pension?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, in terms of providing a full explanation on this, I think it would be necessary to defer to the Honourable Chief Secretary. Secondly, there is an allowance that is paid to contracted officers as a compensation for the absence of pensions. This is calculated as a percentage of their salaries.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the individual involved in this particular question be having the pension along with that allowance?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Madam Speaker, if the services of that individual continue to be contracted on an overseas contractual arrangement.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 149, standing in the name of Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 149

No. 149: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development if there have been any funds missing from any Government department since January 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the answer: The sum of $4,150 in cash was missing from the deposit to the bank made by the Courts Office on 18th May, 1995. The police are still conducting their investigation.

In accordance with Standing Order 23(5), I crave the indulgence of this honourable House to defer answering any supplementary questions that could compromise the ongoing investigations of this case.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In an attempt to not compromise the ongoing investigation, would the Honourable Member state whether this is the only case that is known to the Government during the year 1995?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Member could say if further steps are being taken to prevent this from happening again?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Steps are currently in place to avoid situations like this. But it is very difficult, and I do not think we can ever put any remedy in place to avoid fraudulent activities from occurring. At this time it is known that the funds were deposited with the bank, it is a question of making a determination to satisfy the police if the funds got to the bank.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 150, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 150

No. 150: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation which contractors are eligible to bid on the new George Town Hospital and will materials imported by the contractors for use on the site be free of customs duty.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The answer to the first part of the question is that our consultants carried out a pre-qualification exercise to determine what contractors were qualified to construct a project of this size. This began with three printings of an advertisement in the Caymanian Compass asking for expressions of interest and spelling out information which interested contractors would be required to provide.

Three contractors expressed interest. These were: Arch and Godfrey (Cayman) Ltd.; Hadsphaltic International Ltd.; and McAlpine (Cayman) Ltd.

After review by our Consultants and our project team, it was determined that all required information had been submitted and that all three were pre-qualified. All three have successfully completed major projects in this Island.

The answer to the second part of the question is: Yes, as was the case with the previous Hortor project, materials imported by the contractors for use on the site will be free of customs duty.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In the last part of the answer the Honourable Minister said that the contractors will be permitted to import materials free of customs duty. Was this material not imported by the Health Services Authority, and did not they have to pay customs duty?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I am told that no duty was paid on that project.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to ask the Honourable Minister if a list will be provided for the goods that will be imported free of customs duty and how it will be monitored.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, the successful contractors will be required to sign an affidavit that the goods to be imported duty free are to be used on the hospital project only.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to ask the Honourable Minister if the Government has ascertained that these are materials which cannot be procured on the Island, and to state what attempts have been made to ensure that this is so.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This figure will be supplied by the contractors and it will be up to them where they purchase the supplies. The contract will state that what comes in will be duty free and used only on the hospital.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say if we are to understand that before attempts are made to import materials from outside that some efforts will be made to ensure that materials required are not available locally?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, I think the First Elected Member for Bodden Town is right. This is one of the priorities given, that whatever is available locally should be used.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In a previous answer to a supplementary question regarding the checks and balances of the materials, would the Honourable Minister say if overriding the affidavits there will be any system in place equating the importation of the material to a bill of quantities as a matter of course?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, the quantity surveyors will have these figures for us.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Honourable Minister stated earlier that it would be possible that these materials would be purchased locally. Is this going to be written into the contract to ensure that a bid is at least taken from the local suppliers at all possible times, or how is this going to be enforced and monitored?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I will encourage that, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if, in the overall costing of the hospital project, they have taken into account the discount in terms of cost, that should be available by the contractors not having to pay customs duty?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, it will not include the duty. It was done in comparison to the way the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital was done.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, this will be the last supplementary on this question.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: As a matter of clarification, is the Honourable Minister saying that the costing of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital was done without due consideration to whatever amounts would be discounted on materials?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, cost estimates were done similarly, using the same comparison.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 151, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 151

No. 151: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation whether final planning approval has been given for the construction of the George Town Hospital.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Our consultants have applied for approval by the Central Planning Authority. It is our understanding that the matter was on the agenda for their 20th September meeting, which is next week.

The Speaker: It is now 11.00, if the Member wishes to ask supplementaries, will he ask for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7)?

¹SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) AND (8)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move the suspension of Standing Order 23 (7) and 8 to allow any supplementaries and questions remaining on the Order Paper to be taken.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended in order to complete Question Time this morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Orders are accordingly suspended.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23 (7) AND (8) SUSPENDED.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister would be able to say whether the plans approved in principle were altered by the time final Planning approval was sought.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, as the project evolves there are some minor changes, but overall, nothing major.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 152, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 152

No. 152: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if the property on which the George Town Seventh Day Adventist Church is located will have to be acquired to provide space for the new George Town Hospital, or any part thereof.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The answer is no, it is not at all necessary for this property to be acquired for this purpose. This rumour probably began as a result of Government's approach to the Seventh Day Adventist Church to see if they would provide a strip at the west end of their parking lot for an ambulance exit. This was only one option being explored. As it happened, the Church decided it did not wish to lose the strip of parking space and, since Government respected their wishes, the matter ended there.

The former Member responsible for Health during the last administration alleged a few days ago that Government was going to compulsorily acquire the Seventh Day Adventist Church property. That is the sort of thing that he would do, but it is certainly not the way my colleagues and I operate.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Hear, hear!

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Minister say if on any drawings associated with the plans for the hospital that any entrance, or such, is shown as coming over the property owned by the Seventh Day Adventist Church in George Town?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, as I said these were some of the minor changes that we looked at. The Consultants discussed a dedicated exit for ambulances going out. The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works and I sat down with the personnel of the Church... and it really bothers me, knowing the affiliation and rapport that this Government has had for many years with the Adventist Church, that people would allude that we would compulsorily acquire this site. This is the furthestmost thing from our minds, we would not do that.

The only thing I asked was that if they decided to sell, would they give Government the first priority.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: As it seemed that it was necessary to consider an entrance and exit for the ambulance service from the hospital, has there been any alternative to having such an entrance and exit on any other property for the hospital?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is currently proposed that the ambulances will enter the new hospital through the existing entrance on the road that leads to the Pines. They will exit through the existing hospital road entrance, which it is intended to have controlled by a light.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

For clarity, would the Honourable Minister state if the drawings which were submitted to the Planning Department for final Planning approval included an exit/entrance for ambulances through the existing Seventh Day Adventist Church parking lot?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I would have to clarify this, but I do not think so since the Church said that we could not use it. This would have to be one of the amendments which I referred to earlier.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

With the Honourable Minister having answered the way he has regarding the parking lot, can he say then that if the plans were approved with this parking lot included in those plans, that this would certainly not follow through, although it would be part of an approved plan?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I did not get the last part of the question. Could you please repeat it?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: What I am asking the Honourable Minister (because of not being sure of a previous answer) is if there is a possibility that final plans, having been approved, included a drive through entrance for ambulances through the parking lot of the Seventh Day Adventist church. I am simply asking the Honourable Minister if this were the case—and I am not suggesting that it is, because I do not know—but if it were the case, and the plans have been approved... let me ask the question: What would be done regarding the approved plans?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Madam Speaker, there has not yet been approval on this. The Consultants would have discussed with Planning the final submission, which will go in next week.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Taking into account the fact that the road to the Pines branches off of Smith Road, which is highly congested, and there is a four way entrance at the hospital that is highly congested, have the Consultants, or has anyone associated with the hospital drawing, taken into account how using this entrance will impact on the suitability of the hospital or the traffic flow?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, I am pretty sure they have looked at this and, as I said, we will be using a light at these entrances.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 153, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 153

No. 153: Mr. Roy Bodden asked The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning what was the cost of removing the overhead bins and the extra fuel tank from the recently purchased Boeing 737-200 by Cayman Airways Limited.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Cost of removing the overhead bins and the extra fuel tank from the recently purchased Boeing 737-200 was US $68,410.80.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say what the value of these items is and what are the plans for Cayman Airways with regard to these items?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That was not a part of the question and I am afraid that I do not really have that at present.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if the plane that had these tanks removed is the same plane that Cayman Airways has purchased?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say whether it is likely that these items will go into the inventory held by Cayman Airways?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: They will.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In a previous sitting I remember hearing the Honourable Minister suggest that Cayman Airways might have sought purchasers for this equipment. Bearing that in mind, I wonder if the Honourable Minister would state if Cayman Airways might actively seek to sell this equipment, as in the immediate future there does not seem to be any need for them?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, this will go into the inventory and be listed for sale along with it.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 154, standing in the name of Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 154

No. 154: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state what the Government plans to do about the deplorable conditions existing at the George Town lock-up.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The matter of the condition of the lock-up at the Central Police Station is being seriously considered by the Government and will receive urgent attention. To this end, plans and costings for the replacement of the facility are to be completed by the Public Works Department by the 5th of October.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Member state the reason why this has not been done before by the former Government? This has been in a deplorable condition for many, many years.

The Speaker: I do not know if the Honourable First Official Member can reply to that. I do not think that is a fair question to ask him.

Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Although costings have not been completed, I wonder if the Honourable Member would be able to state from where funds are going to be available if any action is to be taken in the immediate future?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is proposed that funds from the asset-sharing scheme, with which the Cayman Islands shares funds from the United States primarily, will be used for this purpose.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Pardon the ignorance, Madam Speaker, but I wonder if the Honourable First Official Member would explain a little bit more in detail what this fund is all about and what access we have to these funds and how much is available.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Under the MLAT (Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty) Agreement, the Cayman Islands Government does have an asset sharing agreement with the United States for confiscated funds and it is proposed to use some funds from this source for the project.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable First Official Member would be able to say if Government is well assured that whatever funds are needed to complete the replacement facility will be available from this source?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Whatever funds are available from this source will be made available for the replacement of the lock-up. If funds are insufficient, I am sure that I have the Honourable Members' support in Finance Committee to appropriate the necessary funding.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Member say if the George Town lock-up is still being used to hold persons?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I cannot say categorically that it is not being used, but I know that it had been announced by the magistrate that it would not be used to remand persons. I am really not in a position to categorically say that it is not being used.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Member could tell us if the destruction to the facility was done by the individuals being held, or if he is in a position to tell us who destroyed the facility.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I believe that time—the great destroyer of all things, and all men—is really responsible. Perhaps there has been some vandalism and destruction by individuals, but I rather suspect that time has been the main factor.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable First Official Member could say whether the replacement facility would be located at the same site?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: In my substantive answer I mentioned the date of 5th October, and hopefully by that time (or before that time) I will know for sure. I am not in a position to say exactly where it is going to be situated at the moment.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 155, standing in the name of Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 155

No. 155: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state the reasons for Government's decision to terminate the appointment of the former Chairman of the Immigration Board.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The appointment and termination of the Chairman of the Immigration Board is at the discretion of the Governor. The recent termination of the appointment of the former Chairman was done in accordance with this discretion. It is neither customary nor considered appropriate, to state the basis of either appointments or terminations.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Notwithstanding the method used for appointments or terminations (being at the discretion of His Excellency the Governor), would the Honourable Member be able to say if the decision to terminate his services was one done solely by His Excellency, or in consultation?

The Speaker: I do not think that is a fair question to ask, because that could not be allowed. The Governor has discretion and whether or not he consults Executive Council does not come into the matter at all.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Noting in the reply that it is neither customary nor considered appropriate to state the basis of either appointments or terminations in these cases, does this apply in the appointments to the chairmanship of boards, even where misconduct may have been the case, that there is no statement as to the termination?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I do not know if I have had a case where because of serious misconduct someone was removed, so it is difficult for me to answer that. The fact is that the Government is not obliged to state the reason, and I think I will leave it at that.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, and this is the last supplementary.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I do recognise the discomfort the question might raise, but I am wondering if the Honourable Member would be able to make any comments regarding the fact that it is a rarity (if not the first) where the termination took place during the middle part of the year rather than normally when replacements are done at the beginning of the following year?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs, if you wish to reply... but I am not pressing you to.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I think this, again, is within the discretion of the Governor. If a chairman or the entire membership of a board is changed during the year there is, in my estimation, nothing extraordinary about this. The decision can be taken to make changes at any given time.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.24 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12 NOON

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The House will now go into Committee to consider two Bills; The Children Bill, 1995, and The Youth Justice Bill, 1995.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE

COMMITTEE ON BILLS

The Chairman: Please be seated. The House is now in Committee.

We will first consider the Youth Justice, 1995, Bill. The Clerk will read the clauses.

THE YOUTH JUSTICE BILL, 1995

Clerk: Clause 1. Short title and commencement.

Clause 2. Interpretation.

Clause 3. Constitution of youth courts.

Clause 4. General jurisdiction of youth courts.

Clause 5. Assignment of summary charges to courts.

Clause 6. Trial of indictable offences and offences triable either way.

Clause 7. Power to order joint trial of young person with an adult.

Clause 8. Determination of age of young persons.

Clause 9. Power to hear case in absence of young person.

Clause 10. Sitting of youth courts etc.

Clause 11. Separation of young persons from adults in police stations etc.

Clause 12. Reporting restrictions.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 1 through 12 stand part of the Bill. There is an amendment to clause 12 (2).

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Chairman, we propose to amend clause 12 (2) by inserting the words, "or to imprisonment for a term of six months" at the end of the clause.

The amended clause will read: "12 (2) Any person who publishes any matter in contravention of any such direction shall on summary conviction be liable in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding $5,000 or to im- prisonment of a term of six months."

The Chairman: The proposed amendment is that at the end of clause 12 (2) the words, "or to imprisonment for a term of six months", after the full stop (.) be inserted.

Mr. Gilbert McLean.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Chairman, I did not quite understand what the Honourable Minister said.

The Chairman: I think what is said there is that the full stop (.) at the end of the number "$5,000" be removed and the words, "or to imprisonment for a term of six months", be inserted.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Chairman.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: That is what the amendment says.

The Chairman: Is there any debate?
The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Chairman, just for clarity. It says, "or to imprisonment...", does that mean that they can be fined up to $5,000 or be imprisoned for six months or both?

The Chairman: Honourable Mr. Bush.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: No. They can be fined $5,000, or go to prison for up to six months.

The Chairman: If there is no debate, I shall put the question that the amendment to clause 12 (2) be made. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Accordingly, clause 12 (2) is amended.

AGREED. AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 12 (2) PASSED.

The Chairman: The question now is that clauses 1 through 12 with the amendment to clause 12 stand part of the bill.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Accordingly clauses 1 through 12 with the amendment to clause 12 (2) stand part of the bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 1 THROUGH 12(2), AS AMENDED, PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 13. Duty of parent etc. to attend court.

Clause 14. Bail or detention of young person.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 13 and 14 stand part of the Bill. There is an amendment to clause 14.

Mr. Bush.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Chairman, we propose that in clause 14 (2) the words, "as soon as is practicable and no later than 24 hours", be replaced by the words, "immediately and no later than three hours".

Also clause 14 (2) (c) the words "seven days" be replaced with the words "48 hours".

The Chairman: The question is that clause 14 (2) be amended to read: "(2) Where the young person is not released on bail, the police officer in charge of the police station shall immediately and no later than three hours after the decision not to release the young person on bail"; and that subclause (2) (c) be amended to read: "(c) detain the young person in detention facility for a period not exceeding 48 hours until he can be brought before a court."

The question is that these amendments be made to 14 (2).

Mr. McLean.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Chairman, I have no problem with the amendments that have just been made. I would like to speak, however, on subclause (4) of clause 14 when the time comes.

Would it be appropriate to do so, Ma'am?

The Chairman: I think so, yes.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Chairman, I am wondering about clause 14 (4) (a), (b), and (c) where it says: "In subsection (2), section 15 and Schedule 1 'detention facility' means -

(a) any place declared by order of the Governor to be a detention facility for the purposes of this Law;

(b) any police station lock-up; or

(c) Northward Prison, Grand Cayman."

I am wondering if it was intended to be there as it is? I have heard much said about the lock-up facilities and alternatives to the lock-up. I am wondering if at this stage there is a wish to keep these two subclauses in the bill to define remand or detention facilities?

The Chairman: Mr. Bush.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Chairman, we propose to keep these in the law, that is why they are there. As has been said, the West Bay Police Station lock-up is the place where we presently keep those young people waiting for court on remand. We have to have some flexibility in the Law. So we propose to keep subclauses (b) and (c) as is.

The Chairman: If there is no further debate, I will now put the question that the amendments made to clause 14 (2) and 14 (2) (c) stand part of the Bill.

Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 14 (2) AND SUBCLAUSE (2) (C) AMENDED.

The Chairman: I shall put the question that clause 14 (2) and subclause 14 (2) (c) as amended stand part of the Bill.

Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Accordingly clause 14 (2) (c) as amended has been passed.

AGREED: CLAUSE 14 (2)(c) AS AMENDED PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 15. Remand.

Clause 16. Notice to Social Services and information to court.

Clause 17. Evidence of young persons.

Clause 18. Duties of court.

Clause 19. Pre-sentencing reports.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 15 through 19 do stand part of the Bill. The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Accordingly, clauses 15 through 19 stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 15 THROUGH 19 PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 20. Punishment of offences.

Clause 21. Power to order parent or guardian to pay fine, etc.

Clause 22. Binding over of parent or guardian, etc.

Clause 23. Probation orders.

Clause 24. Attendance orders.

Clause 25. Discharge and variation of attendance orders.

Clause 26. Breach of attendance orders.

Clause 27. Youth rehabilitation orders.

Clause 28. Cautions.

Clause 29. Breach of conditional discharge.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 20 through 29 do stand part of the Bill. The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Accordingly clauses 20 through 29 that part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 20 THROUGH 29 PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 30. Contribution orders.

Clause 31. Affiliation orders.

Clause 32. Appeals.

Clause 33. Procedure, forms and regulations.

Clause 34. Amendments, repeals, transitional provisions and savings.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 30 through 34 do stand part of the Bill. The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Accordingly, clauses 30 through 34 stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 30 THROUGH 34 PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that the Schedules do stand part of the Bill. There is an amendment to Schedule 3.

Mr. Bush.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Chairman, we propose that in Schedule 3 [Part VI A] paragraph 210B (2) (a), the words "two years" be replaced by the words "five years"; and in paragraph 210C (5) (a) the words "five years" be replaced by the words "twenty years" and in paragraph 210C (5) (b) (ii) the words "six months" be replaced by the words "two years".

The Chairman: The question is that the following amendments be made, in Schedule 3: paragraph 210B (2) (a) the words "two years" be replaced by the words "five years"; paragraph 210C (5) (a) the words "five years" be replaced by the words "twenty years"; and in paragraph 210C (5) (b) (ii) the words "six months" be replaced by the words "two years".

The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Accordingly, the amendments to paragraph 210B (2) (a) and paragraph 210C (5) (b) (ii) has been passed.

AGREED. PARAGRAPHS 210B (2) (A) AND 210C (5)

(B) (II) AMENDED AND PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for a Law to replace the Juveniles Law, 1990; to make further provision with respect to the treatment of young offenders; and for connected purposes.

The Chairman: The question is that the Title do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Accordingly, the Title do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: TITLE PASSED.

The Chairman: The next Bill is the Children Bill, 1995.

THE CHILDREN BILL, 1995

Clerk: Clause 1. Short title and commencement.
 Clause 2. Interpretation.
 Clause 3. Welfare of the child.
 Clause 4. Parental responsibility for children.
 Clause 5. Meaning of parental responsibility.
 Clause 6. Guardians.
 Clause 7. Welfare reports.
 Clause 8. Residence, contact and other orders with respect to children.
 Clause 9. Restrictions on making section 8 orders.
 Clause 10. Power of court to make section 8 orders.
 Clause 11. General principles and supplementary provisions.
 Clause 12. Residence orders and parental responsibility.
 Clause 13. Change of child's name or removal from jurisdiction.
 Clause 14. Enforcement of residence orders.
 Clause 15. Orders for financial relief with respect to children.
 Clause 16. Family assistance orders.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 1 through 16 do stand part of the Bill. The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Accordingly, clauses 1 through 16 have been passed.

AGREED: CLAUSES 1 THROUGH 16 PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 17. Provision of services for children in need, their families and others.

Clause 18. Day care for pre-school and other children.

Clause 19. Review of provision for day care.

Clause 20. Provision of accommodation for children: general.

Clause 21. Provision of accommodation for children on remand etc.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 17 through 21 do stand part of the Bill.

There is an amendment to clause 21. Mr. Bush.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Chairman, there was a typographical error in clause 21 (2) (a). We propose that the words, "section 12 or 13" be replaced with the words "sections 14 or 15".

The Chairman: The question is that the amendment, as was read out, stands part of the Bill. The motion is open for debate.

Mr. Gilbert McLean.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Chairman, perhaps I am missing the point, but in looking at clause 21 (2) (a), I see the amendment to the clauses it referred to read: "(a) who are on remand under sections 14 or 15 of the Youth Justice Law, 1995, at a place other than a prison or police station lock-up;"

I am wondering what it is supposed to be. Are they going to be in the police lock-up or will there be other places at which the children are to be accommodated?

The Chairman: Mr. Bush.

I think the other Bill says that there are three other places the Governor may declare a place of safety...

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Chairman, for that explanation. You are correct. The Youth Bill, 1995, contains sections where the Governor may name places for a detention centre. So when the Remand Centre is completed that will be the place of detention.

The Chairman: Does that answer your question, Mr. McLean?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Chairman, I simply read the clause. Am I to understand that the clause is supposed to mean when the Governor makes provision for it to be somewhere else other than those two places mentioned?

The Chairman: Yes, that is what clause 14 (4) of the Youth Justice Bill, 1995, says; "In subsection (2), section 15 and Schedule 1 "detention facility" means -

"(a) any place declared by order of the Governor to be a detention facility for the purposes of this Law;

(b) any police station lock-up; or

(c) Northward Prison, Grand Cayman."

So there can be three places the Governor can order.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I leave the point, Madam Chairman.

The Chairman: The question is that the amendment to clause 21 be made. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 21 PASSED.

The Chairman: The question now is that clauses 17 through 21, and 21 as amended do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Accordingly, clauses 17 through 21 as amended have been passed.

AGREED: CLAUSES 17 THROUGH 21 AND CLAUSE 21 AS AMENDED PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 22. General duty of Social Services in relation to children they look after.

Clause 23. Provision of accommodation and maintenance by Social Services for children whom they are looking after.

Clause 24. Advice and assistance for certain children.

Clause 25. Use of accommodation for restricting liberty.

Clause 26. Review of cases.

Clause 27. Inquiries into representations.

Clause 28. Co-operation and consultation.

Clause 29. Recoupment of cost of providing services etc.

Clause 30. Miscellaneous.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 22 through 30 do stand part of the Bill. The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Accordingly clauses 22 through 30 have been passed.

AGREED: CLAUSES 22 THROUGH 30 PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 31. Care and supervision orders.

Clause 32. Period within which application for order under this Part must be disposed of.

Clause 33. Effect of care order.

Clause 34. Parental contact etc. with children in care.

Clause 35. Supervision orders.

Clause 36. Education supervision orders.

Clause 37. Powers of court in certain family proceedings.

Clause 38. Interim orders.

Clause 39. Discharge and variation etc. of care orders and supervision orders.

Clause 40. Orders pending appeals in cases about care or supervision orders.

Clause 41. Representation of child and of his interests in certain proceedings.

Clause 42. Right of guardian ad litem to have access to Social Services records.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 31 through 42 do stand part of the Bill. The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clauses 31 through 42 passed.

AGREED: CLAUSES 31 THROUGH 42 PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 43. Orders for emergency protection of children.

Clause 44. Directions of the court in relation to emergency protection orders.

Clause 45. Duration of emergency protection orders.

Clause 46. Provisions supplemental to emergency protection orders.

Clause 47. Duty of Social Services to investigate.

Clause 48. Powers to assist in discovery of children who may be in need of emergency protection.

Clause 49. Abduction of children in care etc.

Clause 50. Recovery of abducted children.

The Chairman: The question is that 43 through 50 do stand part of the Bill.

There is an amendment to clause 50. Mr. Bush.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Chairman, in clause 50 (3) (c) there is a typographical error where it says, "as the child's", the word "to" should be inserted between the words "as" and "the" where it first occurs. So it would read: "(c) requires any person who has information as to the child's whereabouts..."

The Chairman: The amendment is as proposed by the Honourable Minister, and the question is that the amendment be made. The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Accordingly, the amendment has been passed.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 50 (3) (C) PASSED.

The Chairman: The question now is that clauses 43 through 50 as amended do stand part of the Bill.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clauses 43 through 50 as amended passed.

AGREED: CLAUSES 43 THROUGH 50 AS AMENDED PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 51. Refuges for children at risk.

Clause 52. Children not to be cared for and accommodated in unregistered children's homes.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 51 and 52 do stand part of the Bill.

There is an amendment to clause 52 (7). Mr. Bush.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Chairman, I think this again is another typographical error. We propose that in clause 52 (7) inverted commas (") be inserted immediately after the word "home" where it first occurs.

The Chairman: The question is that the amendment to clause 52 (7) do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The amendment has been passed.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 52 (7) PASSED.

The Chairman: The question now is that clauses 51 and 52 as amended stand part of the Bill.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 51 AND 52 AS AMENDED PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 53. Provision of children's homes.

Clause 54. Provision of accommodation by voluntary organisations.

Clause 55. Welfare of children in children's homes.

Clause 56. Duties of Social Services.

Clause 57. Persons disqualified from carrying on, or being employed in, children's homes.

Clause 58. Regulations.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 53 through 58 do stand part of the Bill. The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 53 THROUGH 58 PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 59. Registration.

Clause 60. Requirements to be complied with by child minders.

Clause 65. Appeals.

Clause 66. Offences.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 59 through 66 do stand part of the Bill. The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 59 THROUGH 66 PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 67. Research.

Clause 68. Returns of information.

Clause 69. Effect and duration of orders etc.

Clause 70. Attendance of child at hearing under Part IV or V.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 67 through 80 do stand part of the Bill. The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 67 THROUGH 80 PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that the Schedules 1 through 6 do stand part of the Bill. The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: SCHEDULES 1 THROUGH 6 PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for a Law to reform the Law relating to children; to provide for services by the Department of Social Services for children in need and others; to make provision for children's homes and voluntary organisations; to make provision with respect to child minding and day care for young children; and for connected purposes.

The Chairman: The question is that the Title do stand part of the Bill.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.36 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.11 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Before we begin proceedings, there are two matters which I would like to deal with. Firstly, at the morning Sitting the motion was moved for Standing Orders to complete the questions on the Order Paper, and it was not seconded.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

CORRECTION TO PROCEDURE
Re: Suspension of Standing Orders

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I beg to second that motion.

The Speaker: Thank you and I direct that the records accordingly be adjusted.

NOTICE OF MEETING

The Speaker: The other matter is that His Excellency the Governor departs on Wednesday and it has been agreed that the Executive Council should meet on Monday. In those circumstances the Assembly will not sit on Monday but on Tuesday instead.

I thought to give Members advance notice in order that they can rearrange their schedules.

Proceeding with the business on the Order Paper. Suspension of Standing Order 46(1), in order for the First Reading of the Labour (Amendment) Bill, 1995, to be taken.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 46(1)
*Reading of Bills

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, under standing Order 83, I beg to suspend Standing Order 46(1) to deal with The Labour (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 46(1) be suspended in order for the First Reading of the bill to be taken.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Standing Orders are accordingly suspended.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 46(1) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, we did do the Third Reading of the Children Bill and the Youth Justice Bill this morning. We did.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I do not recall, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Yes, you moved it and I put the question on the Bills.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Ma'am. Thank you.

FIRST READING

THE LABOUR (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Labour (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

SECOND READING

THE LABOUR (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Labour (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, since the enactment of the Labour Law, 1987, there has not been a comprehensive review with amendments to this important piece of legislation. To be effective it is necessary that changes in our society—and in this case our work force—be closely monitored, and Government's policies updated in order to anticipate or respond to these changes.

With this in mind, Government requested a small internal committee to conduct a comprehensive review of the Labour Law, 1987. This committee began its work in July 1994, and its report of recommendations in the form of drafting instructions was sent to the Legal Draftsman in October 1994.

The Review Committee conducted its work largely on the basis of evidence based on well documented written and verbal representations or complaints to the Ministry and the Labour Department, by both employees and employers; information gleaned from work place inspections by the Labour Department, loop-holes and ambiguities discovered as a result of labour hearings; the need to clarify the law for a better understanding and utilisation by both parties; and the resolve by Government to strengthen sanctions in the law to serve as a deterrent to those who choose to ignore the Labour Law.

Each section of the law was closely examined and those areas causing operational difficulties were identified for reform.

On March 24th of this year, I tabled the Draft Law as a White Paper in this honourable House. This received wide media coverage. Also, on the 24th of March I sent a copy of the Draft Bill to 19 of Cayman's professional and trade associations with a letter asking each association to review the proposal conveying their comments or suggestions to the Ministry.

Unfortunately, due to some misunderstanding the proposals were viewed in a very negative light, multiplied by a lack of will by certain private sector organisations to cooperate and engage in constructive dialogue.

Since the release in March of the initial white paper (which was a discussion draft to act as a guide for dialogue and to generate ideas for the solution to the identified problems) there has been much debate on the pros and cons of the proposals put forward by Government. Also, there was the unfortunate promulgation of some misinformation which resulted in sectors of the public becoming alarmed, as well as ill-will being created in the work place.

All of this could have been avoided if Government was given the opportunity, as requested, to explain or clarify any points of the initial proposal in a professional and constructive manner. Due to the complexities with some of the proposals in the white paper and requests for more time in excess of the three months originally given, and in order to explore ways in which the proposals could be refined, Government agreed (and announced on the 21st of April) that it would take a bill to amend the Labour Law to the Legislative Assembly in September instead of June.

This extension of time allowed the Ministry and the Government ample time to hear the views of all interested employer groups, as well as the employees in these Islands. Once public fears subsided, several groups began to come to the table to hold discussions, while others submitted written comments. Some meetings were held with the Financial Secretary's Consultative Committee, Cayman Contractors Association, Life Underwriters Association, the Agriculture Society, the Board of the Cayman Islands Hotel and Condominium Association, by a speech at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon; and some meetings with the Cayman Merchants Associations. There were also letters received by several Associations and other persons.

On the 8th of May, I participated as a member of a discussion panel on Radio Cayman's Open-Line Programme. This was a very useful public consultation exercise with many calling in expressing their frustration with conditions in the workplace, stressing the inadequacies of the existing Labour Law, and giving support to the reform of this piece of legislation. Others, of course, were not in support. All representation which we received as a result of this extensive public consultation process was carefully considered, with most of it found useful and therefore accepted.

In fact, when I outlined specific refinements to the Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon on the 31st of May, they were well received and endorsed by the vast majority of people in the audience based on their public comments, and comments made to me afterward. Even in his vote of thanks, the past President of the Chamber of Commerce admitted that the refinements were more in line with the findings of the Chamber's survey which was given to me that same day.

The Bill which Government is presenting in this House today has gone through enormous public scrutiny, and rightly so. There were (and still are) various individuals and groups in this country who have criticised Government about its intention and method in bringing this important matter to the forefront for discussion. I believe that the vast majority of the public remains very appreciative for the debate this matter has generated; the positive outcome to the democratic process, as well as to the rights of the worker and the employer; and the positive contribution to labour relations in general.

I am happy, Madam Speaker, to be a part of this democratic system in which a proposal can be issued as a White Paper, or a discussion draft for public review, which in the case of this Bill was from March to September this year.

Now, Madam Speaker, we heard a lot about dictatorship, socialism and communism, but if that exists anywhere in the world today it certainly does not exist in this country, and no one who is honest—and I stress that word HONEST—can say that this proposal by Government was not done in a democratic fashion giving people the right to agree or disagree.

Madam Speaker, I would like to now focus the attention of Honourable Members on the specific provisions of this amending legislation, particularly on some of the reasons for the proposed amendments.

The definition of "mental disability" is necessary for amendment relating to discrimination in section 72.

The amendment to the definitions of "predecessor employer" and "successor employer" is to close a loophole where a break was not defined and resulted in a number of cases in which the liability for severance pay was circumvented.

Section 64 is proposed to be amended to clarify the employee's entitlement to benefits in the event of a change in ownership of the employer's business. If the employee continues to be employed by the new employer, and is not paid the severance pay due by the past employer as negotiated between all parties, then the new owner or the successor employer is responsible for the payment of the severance to the employee if and when it becomes due.

The proposed amendment to section 7 (1) requires that the probation period be agreed upon in writing. This amendment ensures that both parties are aware of the probation period. It should be noted that under section 7 (4) of the Law, an employee on probation "may be terminated [with 24 hours notice] but reasons for such termination shall be given to the employee."

Sections 9 (1) (b) and 10 (1) are amended to allow the employer and employee to give notice of termination or resignation for a period at least equal to the interval of time between his paydays. This would allow for more notice rather than less, if mutually agreed between all parties. Notice does not have to exceed 30 days in either case.

Under the existing law, if an employee fails to give the required notice of his intention to quit to his employer he could forfeit all of his accrued vacation leave including that for previous years which may not have been taken as yet.

The proposed amendment to section 10 (2) (b), clarifies that the employee would only forfeit the leave accrued for the current employment year.

Section 13 (1) is proposed to have provisions inserted which allow for the granting by the employer of accrued vacation leave as a proportion of annual leave entitlement. Although this is now done by most employers, it is now allowed for in the law.

A new "vacation entitlement schedule" is also included in section 13 of the law. This proposed new entitlement schedule recognises long-serving employees and may also serve to motivate other employees to be or to become long serving.

Provision is made for regulations relating to vacation leave for specified industries or businesses.

A proposed new subsection (9) to section 13 entitles the employee to up to five days' compassionate leave per year under specific circumstances. While many employers presently offer this benefit there are some employers who insist that the employee must use his vacation leave or take unpaid leave in the absence of a compassionate leave benefit in the law.

"Serious illness" is defined in a new subsection (10).

The proposed section 16 (2) (a), makes a doctor's certificate satisfactory evidence of an employee's illness, however it allows an employer to reject or challenge a doctor's certificate as evidence of illness where there is reasonable evidence that the certificate was obtained in furtherance of a trend of absenteeism.

The proposed new section 18 (2) allows for additional maternity benefit of 20 days and half pay. The maternity entitlement remains at 12 calendar weeks, but the payment is proposed to be four weeks at full pay and an additional four weeks at half pay.

There have been cases where mothers have had to terminate their maternity leave and return to work due to financial pressures.

I know that some people were also against this, but they cannot call for better parenting and well being in our community if we do not have these benefits. The entire community talks about better parenting, they talk about the problems of children. But when it comes down to putting their money where their mouths are they do not want to do it. They get up and say that "Government did not want to do this, that or the next thing." But they have yet to agree to some of these social reforms.

They say it is communism. They say it is socialism.

Well, if I can rectify some of the cases that I know have existed in our country, then let them call me a socialist, let them call me whatever they may. But as a person who has the kind of Ministry that I have, and when we look around us and see the inequities that exist with our working women in some instances, then, as a Government, we must take a position and rectify some of these inequities in the society. Madam Speaker, greed for money means everything to some people in this town.

A proposed amendment to section 18 (4) allows for a further maternity benefit which gives leave in the case of adoption of a child under the age of three years old. There is no such provision in the existing law and this may benefit those parents who may wish to adopt young children from disadvantaged homes. The leave benefit varies in respect to specified age groups.

I will be making an amendment at the Committee stage to this section which makes the female employee eligible for this benefit every three years or every 36 months.

Section 22 allows for reasonable rest periods as well as a reasonable but unpaid lunch break. The application of these breaks will vary with each industry as specified in the bill. A Committee stage amendment will also be made to clarify these periods.

Sections 24 (a) and 25 of the principal Law allow non-managerial employees to opt out of overtime pay under specific circumstances.

Section 24 (a) is amended to replace reference to the Director of Labour with a new Labour Tribunal.

The proposed amendment to section 27 (3) of the law, will allow employers to suspend a worker without pay instead of termination, provided that a written warning was given and the employee continued with further misconduct or unsatisfactory performance. This provision fosters a better labour partnership as it allows an employee an opportunity to improve through remedial action or suspension rather than termination forthwith.

The proposed amendment to section 31 (1) requires that employers must provide a breakdown of wages, including gratuities, for every salary period. The existing law does not mention gratuity and a statement of wages can only be provided if requested by the employee. This amendment is particularly applicable to the hospitality sector.

Madam Speaker, Honourable Members of this House, as well as the public, are aware of the level of debate and anxiety which the initially proposed amendment to sections 35 and 36 of the Labour Law generated. The amendments relating to severance pay benefits as initially proposed, were never intended to be as broad and all-encompassing as was reflected in the first discussion draft of the amendments.

As I mentioned earlier, before Government was given an opportunity to explain its intention, there was a barrage of opposition from an array of associations which argued that the entire discussion draft should be withdrawn instead of adopting the workable sections and modifying the others.

The purpose of the proposed amendments to the severance provision was to assist loyal and hard working members of the workplace who are nearing retirement age, and who may have to terminate their employment due to confirmed health reasons. In the absence of pensions or other retirement benefits for these elder citizens, they would have to have some form of small retirement benefit in the form of a weekly or monthly payment so as to live in dignity in their old age.

However, Members are aware that Government subsequently conceded that this old age severance benefit could be better provided for in the upcoming pension legislation together with increased levels of financial assistance to the elderly in the Social Services Department, to be put in place in January 1996, God's willing. Therefore this proposal was withdrawn from the bill pending these other two alternative actions which I have just mentioned.

Madam Speaker, I think it is fair to say that the members of some of the associations agreed that they would be willing to pay an increase pension benefit for their long-serving employees who are over the age of 50, or who would not get any benefit so readily from a pension because the Pension Law would come at a time when they would be well up in age.

Madam Speaker, section 42 (1) (b) proposes to enable an employee to file a complaint for unfair dismissal after the normal probation period of three months, instead of after the fixed six months under the existing law.

Section 44 is proposed to be amended by adding subsections which clarify the sequence of events leading up to the redundancy of employees. This seeks to protect Caymanians and permanent residents to be the last to be made redundant by the employer under normal circumstances.

Sections 44 to 46 of the Labour Law allow termination for various reasons including misconduct. However, section 45 (3) is proposed to be amended to require that at least two written warnings must be given to the employee within six months in order for a dismissal to be fair.

The existing law provides for two written warnings within 12 months. In some of these cases, these warnings are for unrelated and minor infractions and are subject to abuse. The genuine employer should not try to simply write more warnings as a result of this proposed amendment, but operate under the spirit of the law and appreciate that an employee who may commit similar infractions within six months is in more need of correction than one who commits related or unrelated infractions within a 12 month span.

Proposed amendments to PART VI and VII of the Labour Law, sections 59 (2), 61, 64, and 66 deal mainly with administrative and procedural aspects in relation to the department—Labour Hearings, Appeals Tribunals and the increase in fines for contravention or ignorance of the law. In relation to the increase in the fines, it is hoped that this will serve as positive reinforcement for employers to obtain a copy of the Labour Law and Regulations, and make themselves knowledgeable of the contents so as to avoid committing breaches due to ignorance or disregard for the law. If employers follow the law, they should have no concerns about the increase in the fines.

A new section 66 (a) proposes to establish a Labour Relations Board. This Board can give or can serve as a significant resource to the department and the Director of Labour; assist in the resolution of complaints and, if so directed by regulations, assist in labour hearings. This Board will hopefully help to build a better spirit of cooperation between the employer and employee, as well as ensuring that the Department continues to cooperate in an impartial and independent fashion.

A new section 66 (b) establishes Labour Tribunals for the purpose of hearing complaints from employers and employees. It is envisaged that the new Tribunal will conduct labour hearings as and when they are needed, instead of these hearing being conducted as they are today.

Section 67 (1A), (1B), (1C), and 67 (b), and (d); sections 68 and 69 clarify the procedures relating to the receipt of complaints; the processing of the same; labour hearings; membership of the Appeals Tribunal; and the amount of an award by the Director upon which an appeal can be made against a decision of the Director.

Section 70 is amended to recognise the role of the new Labour Tribunal. The proposed amendment to section 72 (1) expands the provision to prohibit discrimination against the employee with regard to the employees exercise of their rights under the Labour Law. This includes pregnancy, physical or mental disabilities, and political beliefs. The existing law does not afford this protection and there have been cases of subtle and blatant abuse in these areas. It should be noted that section 72 (2) of the existing Labour Law does establish limitations for the employer in abiding with section 72 (1), in that the employer is not prohibited from taking of any personnel action genuinely related to an employee's ability to discharge their duties of the employment in question.

The three amendments in section 73 (1) and (2) include the fines for first offence, second and subsequent offences and continuing offences. The amendments proposed in section 74 (1) and (2) increases the fines for falsifying reports or records and for obstructing inspectors in the exercise of their duties under the law.

Madam Speaker, in conclusion, these amendments to the Labour Law are part of Government's manpower development strategy. If the country is going to ensure that able and willing Caymanians are given every opportunity to move forward, we must also ensure that their working conditions and the employers' labour practices are conducive to an environment of partnership between the employee and the employer.

Employees, too, must be committed to a good work ethic, to more productivity; they must be prepared for competitiveness and fairness to their employer. Employers also need to pay more attention to personnel and human resource matters. This is very important to the bottom line, and employers should therefore regard human resources as crucial to their success.

Both employers and employees are urged to read the Labour Law and become familiar with its provisions and protection rather than have to depend on people who do not understand or who wish to mix-up or mislead the public on what the Labour Law is all about.

After many months of debate and dialogue in searching for solutions, I am satisfied that this bill will achieve its objectives of clarifying, updating, and strengthening the Labour Law for the benefit of the employees and the employers, and for the sustainable development of the country in general.

I commend this bill to Honourable Members of this House, and trust that we will be able to enact the amending legislation which is mutually beneficial to all parties in our progressive, democratic society.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Labour (Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a Second Reading. The motion is open for debate. [pause]

Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Since all Honourable Members seem to be taking a little siesta, I will offer my contribution to a Bill for a Law to Amend the Labour Law, 1987.

In March when the proposed amendments were circulated, I too, strongly opposed most of the amendments. I said publicly that I disagreed with those proposed amendments.

Madam Speaker, I would like to thank the Honourable Minister responsible for presenting the Bill, for taking the time to listen to the public, getting their input, and actually giving over six month's time to study the draft Bill and get feedback.

I think he explained all the different meetings and consultations that he had with various organisations. I for one followed this Bill closely, listening to what the public was telling him in order to know what they wanted in the new amendments to the Labour Law.

I believe the employers and employees will be happy with most of the amendments before us today.

Under section 24 (a) where the Director of Labour acted as the judge of the Tribunal, where the complaints were filed with him then he would sit and hear the cases, this is being amended. I think this is very wise.

The Bill has taken a lot of time but I believe this is good, responsive and responsible Government in that the Minister has listened to what the employers and employees would like to have in the law.

Therefore, I will support this Bill at this time with these amendments as presented here today.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

[pause]

The Speaker: If there is no other debate, would the Honourable Minister wish to reply.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Wonders never cease. After all the brouhaha and the talk on public platforms by the Opposition, neither of the three got up today to say anything about the Bill. I am amazed! Not really, because I well understand their position. They should have supported the Labour Law and had to concede to try to get a few votes with the merchant class. Those who always object and who always fought the merchant class in this country never got up to say anything for the working man.

They will go out on a public platform where they have the say and where they can shoot off and blow up, and blow out of proportion, rather than stand up in the House and talk about the Bill (the substance) when it is actually presented to the House.

Madam Speaker, we do not propose to take the Committee stage today. With your consent, we will hopefully take it tomorrow because there are amendments that are not yet ready.

I appreciate the support from my colleague, the Third Elected Member for George Town, and each one of us must do as our conscience leads us to. She proposed to object to certain areas in the Labour Law and other Members of Government along with her. But if we have not done anything else, one thing we have done is to get broad-based consent in this country (which we did not have before) for pensions.

There are a lot of people today jumping on the bandwagon saying that we are doing the right thing, that pension is the right thing and severance should not take the place of it. I wonder if they have ever stopped and thought about the many old people out there who are over the age of 50, 60 and 65, who do not have anything coming to them.

Madam Speaker, this Minister took a lot of criticism and, as far as I am concerned, if I could be criticised for one thing, it was that I tried to get something for the working people in this country. But some of those persons today who are jumping on the bandwagon and now saying that they support pensions, did not before, they found all the excuses not to.

Where certain organisations (which would like to run Government from the outside) say they support pensions and not severance pay... certainly when you read letters like the one in the Caymanian Compass of July 19th, 1995, it does not give you any feeling of encouragement that they proposed to support pensions.

I thought I should read some of the letters, Madam Speaker, but I would not...

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, may I remind you that, as far as I know, we are discussing the Labour Law.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: That is what I am discussing too, Madam Speaker. What I am doing is tying the two together—the severance and the pension arguments and arguments put forward against the labour legislation.

As I have said, I do not propose to read these letters because I did not pay much attention when they were published in the press.

I will say that I have done what I felt was right with the labour legislation and I do feel that there is a lot of inequities in the work place and that those people who do not support the Labour Law are the ones who breach the law. Not to say that employees are right, because I can tell you that as an employer I have had to put up with quite a bit of some of the things I hear other people complaining about. However, when you consider that in this country there are people reaching the age of 60 who can be pushed out of their work without any benefits, then we ought to take notice of it.

I believe, as I have said, when all is said and done, I now have widespread commitment for pensions. I would hope that when it is put out for public comments later in this Session, I will get full support.

Madam Speaker, I can say no more on this. I thank Honourable Members of the House for their support, and I have done my best as the Minister responsible for labour. I hope that the amendments will be for the betterment of both the employees and employers.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Labour (Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a Second Reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: May we have a division, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: I do not think a division is necessary, I did not hear any Noes at all. I only heard Ayes.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Sorry, I thought I heard someone say no, but maybe not.

The Speaker: I did not hear any noes.

AGREED. THE LABOUR (AMENDMENT) BILL GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Proceeding to other business, Private Member's Motion No. 10/95—Fiscal responsibility Act. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 10/95

FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY ACT

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Procedure.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

POINT OF PROCEDURE

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, today is not Thursday, and Private Members' Motions are set down to be dealt with on Thursdays. I suggest that the Standing Orders would need to be suspended to allow this.

I notice that one Government Motion on Monday was taken off the Order Paper, and I wonder why Government Business is not being dealt with at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation, Leader of Government Business.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I am not certain whether the Honourable Member is asking me to go on with the Government Motion on the Building Code. If that is more convenient to the House I can, if they are not prepared to deal with Private Members' Motions.

The Speaker: I thought he was asking for an explanation as you are the Chairman of the Business Committee; if it was the Business Committee's wish that these Private Members' Motion be set down.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: An explanation on why... Well, what I have said is that I am prepared to go on with the Motion if he so wishes.

The Speaker: I think he was asking for an explanation, since today is not Private Members' day, and that a Government Motion which had been down yesterday is not on the Order Paper for today.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, when I discussed this with the Clerk, it was on the understanding (and I am sure that this is what happened) that they did get the consent of the Mover to put the Motion on the Order Paper today. But I am saying that to save time, if the House so wishes, I will move on with the Government Motion to allow the Honourable Member to begin in the morning.

The Speaker: With the exception that the Government Motion is not listed on the Orders for today.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, if the House will let me know what the wish is. . . What I can say is that if we are going to suspend Standing Orders to allow Private Members' Motions, obviously you would have to suspend it for different reasons for the present motion.

Whatever is convenient, to you Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: I do what the House wishes.

Is the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, in whose name the Private Member's Motion stands, ready to proceed?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Unfortunately not, Madam Speaker, because I was expecting that tomorrow, being Private Members' Motion day. I would be fully prepared to deal with the Motion then. I did not anticipate it coming to the floor today, although earlier I did tell the Clerk that if push came to shove I would in some way have to barge ahead. I am not prepared at all, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, Leader of Government Business.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, it appears that it may be the wish of the House that I suspend the Standing Orders merely to put the Government Motion on the agenda and proceed, which would allow the First Elected Member for Bodden Town to proceed tomorrow morning. I am happy to do that, and I so move.

The Speaker: Yes, if you would please move the Motion.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14 (2)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I move the suspension of the relevant Standing Order to allow Government Motion No. 4/95, Building Code, to be placed on the agenda. I am looking for. . . .

The Speaker: I think it would be Standing Order 14 (2), which is Arrangement of Business.

The Motion has accordingly been made by the Leader of Government Business, that Government Motion 4/95 be placed on the Orders for today. This would require the suspension of Standing Order 14.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Government Motion No. 4/95 will now be dealt with and Private Members' Motions put down for tomorrow, Thursday, which is Private Members' Motion day.

Honourable Minister, you can now proceed with Government Motion No. 4/95.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 14(2) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 4/95 TO BE PLACED ON THE ORDERS OF THE DAY.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 4/95

BUILDING CODE

(For Buildings Excluding Single Family Detached Houses Under 2,500 Square Feet)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I would just like to read this Motion. It is titled, Building Code (for Buildings Excluding Single Family Detached Houses under 2,500 square feet).

"WHEREAS:

"(1) A Building Code has been under review and discussion since the early 1980's.

"(2) On the 20th day of November, 1991 a Building Code being the Standard Building Code was laid on the Table of the Legislative Assembly and made public for comments and to be used as a guideline prior to being made into regulations. The Building Code Committee at its meeting on 8th August, 1995 approved this Code and it was also approved by Executive Council on 15th August, 1995.

"(3) At meetings on the 10th May, 1995, with the Society of Caymanian Builders and Contractors, the Cayman Contractors Association and the Cayman Society of Architects, Surveyors and Engineers, repeated their strong request for this Code to be adopted by regulations.

"(4) Single family detached houses under 2,500 square feet are not affected by this Code and are exempted from it. They will follow the present practice.

"(5) The Planning Department has been operating this Code for nearly four years and will continue to give courses on its practice.

"(6) Section 38(3) of the Development and Planning Law (1995 Revision) requires the consent of this Honourable House to make these regulations.

"NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the attached Building Code Regulations 1995 be hereby approved in accordance with the said Law."

This Code, especially at a time when we have seen the threat of Hurricane Luis, bears out clearly the importance of putting the Code in place and bringing it into law for the purposes of building in the three islands.

It is a code that has been in use for four or five years, and it has had three or four years of public exposure. It was laid on the Table of this Honourable House earlier, and is one that has been under discussion from the early 1980s.

This code goes to this Honourable House with the blessing of the Building Code Committee which did a tremendous amount of work during the time of my predecessor with finishing touches recently put on at their meeting. That Building Code Committee consists of representatives from the different contractor's associations, architects, engineers, Government Departments and individuals who have expertise in this area.

The Code itself is one which was requested by the associations because it will give certainty and the level of safety that we feel is necessary for buildings in the Cayman Islands.

Specifically, there is an exclusion of houses under 2500 square feet, and that will then follow, as far as possible, the present practice which is substantially to take areas, depending on the size of the house, from the Code (which are not onerous, but applicable) which keeps the safety of the smaller houses up to the necessary standard for hurricanes.

A lot of work has been done on this and I would like to publicly thank Mr. Kirkland Nixon and the Building Code Committee, as well as my colleague, the Honourable Minister for Tourism who actually dealt with a lot of this over a period of two years.

I would also like to thank Mr. McLeary Frederick, who put in very long hours as the Chief Building Control Officer, and who has really been the backbone behind a lot of the work that has gone into making this possible.

Also, the Director of Planning, Mr. Carson Ebanks, and Mr. Sammy Jackson, Legal Counsel from the Legal Department, as well as Mr. David Barwick, QC, who was really involved in quite a few years of work and pulled together the views of the Committees, the Departments and Associations to see this through.

I believe that this is a very positive step forward and I would like to thank the Caymanian Compass for their Editorial in which they stated that they felt this was very necessary. It was a very onerous task because the Code itself is a very substantial document, but it is one which is necessary in this day and age.

The Planning Department had in the past given courses on the practice of the Code and this we will continue to do because we have to assist practitioners in having the knowledge that they need to work under the Code.

At this time (and going hand in hand with this) we hope to publish within the next few months the guidelines that are used by the Central Planning Authority which will also assist the public. We are also hoping to get this into a nice pamphlet form so that a lot of the enquiries that now go to the Department, the public will have a booklet which will set out what the Department and this Code will expect on smaller projects, such as smaller houses. I think this will help the public tremendously.

Lastly, I always tell my Departments that the public pays my salary, and it pays the civil servants' salaries. We have a duty to assist them in any way we can, staying within the ambit of the law, to ensure that necessary obstacles are cleared out of their way and to promote good communications and good relations with the public. I am sure that with the improvements over the last three years in the Department, especially in the physical premises and with the staff, we will be seeing the fruit of that and I believe that the public will be much happier and things will move through the Department quicker than it did some years ago.

I have had no adverse feedback on this, and I would ask Members of the House to please support it.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Government Motion No. 4/95, "BE IT RESOLVED that the attached Building Code Regulations 1995 be hereby approved in accordance with the said Law." The Motion is open for debate.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to give my support to Government Motion No. 4/95, Building Code. I would like to congratulate the Honourable Minister and the Director of Planning for bringing this forward.

Having served on the Central Planning Authority and the Development Control Board during the early stages when we thought of introducing the Building Code, I know of the benefits. I feel that if we are to keep our building standards up, we need to establish and recognise this building code.

The high standard of building we received from our forefathers who were shipwrights, is one of the things that attest that we have had so little structural damage to our buildings over the years from hurricanes that we have. As their expertise is being lost, we definitely need to resort to a written Code in order for that standard to be maintained.

I give this my full support. I do have a few concerns which I would like to call to the Honourable Minister's attention. This will exclude single family detached homes under 2500 square feet. Unfortunately, with building costs being what they are in the Cayman Islands today, a 2500 square foot home could be a substantial investment and I think that maybe a monetary value, whereas you can build a rather inexpensive home (which is probably not what you would want) you can build an extremely expensive home with 2500 square feet. I think there should be some monetary provision put in to this restriction.

Not trying to be petty, but I noticed where the Director of Planning shall keep a register (hereinafter this Code is referred to as a register) in the principal office of the Planning Department. I am fully aware that the principal office of the Planning Department is in the Tower Building. This register will have very important information that will be needed by builders in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman as well. I do not know how extensive the register will be, how costly it would be to have a duplicate copy in the Development Control Board Office in Cayman Brac, but where practical I think it would be beneficial to ensure that the standards are maintained in the Sister Islands as well. I would like some consideration given to this.

I give it my full support. I know the benefit of proper construction. I think we have had a high standard of construction in the Cayman Islands, but it must be maintained.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Being a member of the Central Planning Authority during the time the Building Code was going through the review process, I too recognise the importance of such a document. I daresay that from time to time I have seen where others have experienced the wrath of substandard structures in various ways and there was no recourse because of such a document not being in place.

The previous speaker mentioned that he had a problem with section 4 of the Whereas section of the Government Motion where; "Single family detached houses under 2,500 square feet are not affected by this Code and are exempted from it." The point he raised is quite valid but, nevertheless, I think that for the normal homeowner, some of the regulatory practices which the Code calls for might also bring encumbrances.

I think a lot of the best results will occur when the Building Code is completely familiar to all builders. I see where the Planning Department has been operating this Code and will continue to give courses on its practice.

If there is a way to bring about a size and the monetary value, I do not have any problems. But I would not necessarily like to see the 2,500 square feet mentioned here deleted for a monetary value. As the previous speaker mentioned, a house less than 2500 square feet could be costly. But I think there are many individuals who still build their own homes as they are financially able to do so. I think that the situation behoves that the 2,500 square feet remain.

One of the very important factors which I believe needs to be understood is that many prospective homeowners and many prospective owners of commercial structures are not very well versed in the proper methodology of construction and without such a building code these developers can be left holding the bag, having to repair or do things to the structures when they are supposed to have been completed. This Code allows for contractors to be held responsible if such instances occur.

One of the other factors is the insurance factor. While there are external forces that may well help to decide on the rates of insurance, the truth is that when insurance prices are being assessed, adherence to a recognised Code is always one of the factors that mitigates when these prices are being fixed.

So, I raise those few points while giving full support to this Government Motion. I am sure the Planning department has every capability of ensuring that the Code is properly adhered to and also, I am sure that they will continue to spread the word so that people are well versed in the Code.

I therefore lend my support to the Motion.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I, too, want to give my support to this Motion. A Building Code is a very important thing, which we should all look to and carry out in a right manner.

We have always built good homes here in the Cayman Islands. But, as time goes on, it needs rectifying. This Code is the method and means to ensure that good homes are always built.

We cannot take a chance with hurricanes. We cannot build frail homes. With that, I give the Motion my full support.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, would the Honourable Minister like to reply?

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to thank the Members who supported this, those who spoke on it, and those who supported it silently. There is merit in a lot of what the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town said.

I agree that the Planning Department in Cayman Brac should have these Codes. However, the procedure on making these regulations—and I am prefacing what I say here—is that the regulations are made in Council and come here for an approval. It may not be possible to add it in to 6(1). What the Executive Council does, the Legislative Assembly has the power to alter. But it would not follow the proper procedure under the law. So I am giving an undertaking that if what I have added in to 6(1) hits a procedural problem, I will see that it is done from an administrative point of view.

I would like to merely add into 6(1) where it states that "the Director of Planning shall keep a register in the principal office of the Planning Department", and add in the Planning Department in Cayman Brac. I will achieve it one way or the other, either through this or administratively.

A lot of time went into how we should define the exemption of the 2500 square feet, or any other way, for purposes of this Code. A lot of different ways of doing this were looked at, including putting a value on the house. While I think there is merit in what the two Members have stated on this, the conclusion was that we should look at the gross floor area and restrict it to 2500 square feet.

We felt that if we put in a dollar amount, sometimes a very small house (as was quite rightly stated by the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman) could be valued at a very high amount, or visa versa—a house of 2500 square feet could have two considerably different valuations. The question of whether it should be gross floor area, gross living area and a lot of different things were looked at. The question was given a lot of consideration by the Building Code Committee, which is comprised of architects, engineers, builders, the associations, the Department, etc.

If we find that this needs further amendment, then I say to the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, that I will be the first one to bring it back to do the amendments. I know that this was the consensus of the Committee, having considered a lot of alternatives.

Other than that, I am just reiterating my thanks to the House for supporting this.

The Speaker: The question is Government Motion No. 4/95. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion has duly been passed.

AGREED. GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 4/95 PASSED.

The Speaker: That concludes matters for today. Will the Honourable Minister move the adjournment?

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Yes, Madam Speaker. I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 3.43 PM THE HOUSE STTOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 14 SEPTEMBER 1995.

THURSDAY
14 SEPTEMBER, 1995
10.05 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Order! Proceedings are resumed.

Presentation of Papers and Reports. Recommendations of the Manpower Development Advisory Committee. The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE MANPOWER DEVELOPMENT ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Recommendations made to Executive Council by the Manpower Development Advisory Committee.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The Committee is aware of Government's concern for training and long-range career development of able and willing Caymanians as a means of fostering economic development and labour tranquillity. The articulation of well-defined and workable manpower development policies and strategies are essential tools for achieving these important objectives.

Government's policy on manpower development and training, supports the Caymanianisation of positions within the public and private sectors whenever there are competent Caymanians to fill these positions. The policy fully requires that adequate training programmes become commonplace in order to ensure that Caymanians are able to fill responsible positions consistent with career paths and succession planning, and the development and monitoring of workable and specific labour budgets.

Ours is a country that has significant over-employment, together with a large number of foreign workers because of a lack of skilled persons to fill all of the demands in our economy. We are a service oriented economy which suggests that development of skills, a sound work ethic and good attitude is of strategic importance if these islands are to remain competitive in the global marketplace. At the same time, there are undeniable and well-documented cases of unfair treatment and insensitivity to the upward mobility of some of our qualified and/or experienced and willing Caymanians.

Government's establishment of this Advisory Committee demonstrates that it is confident that this initiative is a bold step toward meeting Cayman's need for long-range manpower development while working within a free enterprise philosophy.

The mandate of Government calls upon it to actively pursue this important policy through effective leadership. Time is of the essence in dealing with this challenge in a comprehensive, equitable and responsible manner. As an interim measure the Labour Department is being strengthened in order to play a greater role in the early implementation of Cayman's manpower development and training policies and strategies. However, if we intend to address the long overdue matter in a sensible and comprehensive manner, Government should face the fact that there will have to be sufficient new resources and an increased coordination of existing resources.

For years there has been much concern expressed about the absence of consistent training policies, programmes and career development paths for willing and able Caymanian manpower resources. In some institutions Government's policy underscores that Cayman must be forward thinking in regard to labour relations and manpower development. This Committee believes that any country with as many work permits as we have, representing a significant percentage of our working population as well as an increase in qualified and experienced Caymanians in the work force, must view the issue of training and succession planning as an area of strategic importance. If we are to ensure that the Cayman Islands' economy develops in a sustainable fashion, that is, where people feel that they and future generations will benefit from Cayman's economic development, our people must be developed to their full potential so that they can be equipped to play a greater role in our economic development.

Being a beneficiary of economic development will allow these people to have a greater sense of belonging and commitment to the development of our islands. Similarly, if our people feel that they are appreciated by their employers (not only through the pay cheque), and are given the opportunity to prove that they are capable of upward mobility, then they will be more productive employees and citizens, making a positive contribution to continued labour tranquillity as well.

The Committee finds that there are not enough Caymanians to fill all of the posts in our economy. There are also qualitative gaps, that is, a short fall in what is needed as compared to what skills are available among Caymanians. We also know that there are a few Caymanians who have less than desirable work ethics and attitudes toward work. These are all important challenges which we will need to address for the future. The quantitative gaps may never be totally closed, assuming the existing demand. It is, however, possible to establish policies and resources which can effectively accomplish specific goals.

No significant dent can be made in the skills gap in these islands without the full cooperation and support of the private sector. Government's role is to establish and maintain a supportive environment and to provide policies and direct assistance. Any comprehensive policy to deal with skills deficiencies may appear costly in the short term. The Committee feels that if these programmes are properly designed and supported they will pay for themselves in the longer term with a more qualified, skilled and productive work force.

The end product is to achieve a greater balanced overall demand and supply of Caymanian skills. The speed with which development has taken place has not provided the breathing space necessary or the formulation of a comprehensive human resource development strategy. The Committee therefore endorses this effort by Government to assess what policy and programme interventions are necessary to address this problem. The Committee agrees with the 1990 Manpower Demand Survey Report which states that the Government needs to articulate a well defined and comprehensive human resource development programme which, when implemented with complementary labour market measures, will systematically increase the supply of fully qualified Caymanians in line with the anticipated demand for such skills.

The Committee is fully satisfied that Government's intention is not to Caymanianise posts in the private and public sectors in an ill-informed fashion or within an unreasonable time frame. It is abundantly clear in Government's policy that the Caymanianisation of positions in either sector is for competent Caymanians. People will not be promoted simply because they are Caymanian, but because they are competent and willing to work hard so as to develop themselves and their careers in order to make a positive contribution to their employer and the community in general.

Our economy is based on the delivery of services. We have very few products to export at this time. It is therefore imperative that our employees are developed and motivated to provide the best services in order for these islands to remain competitive in the global marketplace.

There are, however, undeniable and well documented cases of unfair treatment and insensitivity to the upward mobility of some of our qualified and/or experienced and willing Caymanians. This type of approach is not in the best interest of our Islands. Managers and supervisors in this country have a responsibility to ensure that Caymanians are trained and developed, in order to assume a level of responsibility which they are capable of in accordance with clear, consistent and properly monitored career paths and succession planning.

The degree to which an employer trains and develops his Caymanian employees should not depend on whether or not a particular manager supports this type of approach because when that manager is no longer there these initiatives may fall away. What we need to encourage in all businesses above a certain size is the development of clear and consistent written policies on training, promotions and career paths. In this way everyone will know what the policies and expectations are and these would be consistent instead of contingent on the conviction of any one manager.

In order to fully examine this policy for implementation, the Executive Council appointed an Advisory Committee in July 1994. The Ministry for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture developed broad terms of reference to guide the Committee in its deliberations.

The Manpower Development Advisory Committee is comprised of 20 members representing a broad cross section of knowledge and expertise in the private and public sectors, all of whom have worked diligently in accordance with the Committee's terms of reference.

During the course of its work, the Committee decided to divide into smaller action teams. This was done in order to involve more members in a more effective fashion in dispensing the Committee's objectives.

The Committee also undertook a survey of private sector employers to gather information on existing policies and practices regarding the training and career development of their Caymanian employees. The information from this survey is used by the Committee in making these recommendations to Government on the policy framework and institutional strengthening which may be needed to prepare Government's manpower development and training strategy.

As mentioned earlier, the areas of training and manpower development are of strategic importance to continued stable economic development and good labour relations in this country. Time is of the essence in dealing with this challenge in a comprehensive, equitable and responsible manner.

It is therefore in the interest of everyone—employers, employees and Government—that we view training and manpower development not as a burden or an unnecessary cost, but as an investment in something which is crucial if we are to continue to enjoy the Cayman Islands as the best place in which to live or to conduct business.

As a small progressive country, we need to foster an environment which engages the commitment of employers, employees, associations and agencies where all parties accept training and make it a reality. If we all work together we will succeed.

The next stage is that Government will review the recommendations in detail. The decision as to which parts of the Report are workable for the country will be decided by Government in consultation with the private sector. The implementation process will then be put in place. The overriding principle which will guide Government's deliberations in this matter is that partnership between Government and the private sector is absolutely essential.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The next item, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 156 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 156

No. 156: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works what is the total amount of funds spent on road works in the district of George Town since the completion of the new airport junction.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, since 1st January, 1995, seven jobs have been done in the George Town district totalling $131,184.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Minister state what other road works are slated for George Town before this financial year ends?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, on August 3, 1995, 12 jobs totalling about $302,000 were selected for completion in 1995 for the George Town District Representatives. Weather permitting, these jobs will be done.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Minister say if the manpower is in place to have the jobs completed, as we know each district is screaming to have works done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I was told by the Members of the Legislative Assembly some time ago that if it was necessary to contract jobs to have them done, to do that. So, in the event of a shortage of manpower within the Public Works Department, we will continue to contract out jobs.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

On the list that was decided on 3 August, we asked that three roads be gazetted. Could you please state the status of the gazetting of those three roads?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, the matter is being dealt with and is presently with the Chief Surveyor.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 157, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 157

No. 157: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to provide a list of street lights, by district, for 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, since the beginning of 1995 a total of 320 streetlights have been installed in the five electoral districts of Grand Cayman. The following is a list by district: West Bay—13; George Town—24; Bodden Town—45; North Side—112; East End—126

It should be noted that a street-lighting programme has been in place since July 1994, and while the number of street-lights in some districts may seem to be disproportionate compared to, say, George Town and West Bay, this is not necessarily the case. The street-lighting programme actually began in George Town where 303 lights have been installed to date, with further installations scheduled for December, January and February.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Minister would be able to state when this street-lighting programme actually began in George Town?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I just gave the answer to that. I said it was in place since July 1994 and it began in George Town.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

My apologies for not hearing. I wonder if the Honourable Minister would be able to advise us if it makes sense at this point in time to be making individual requests from constituents for street lights, or whether the districts should simply wait and the programme will eventually encompass all of the areas including the subdivisions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Member is right to a certain degree, but should there be a case during the time that the programme is ongoing that any Member has an urgent need for a street light in any part of their district, and if we can help with the situation, I will be most happy to do my best on it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Madam Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say when the street light will be installed at the junction of Crewe Road and old Crewe Road.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I listen to Members, take their requests, follow the programme and send them on to Public Works, who in turn, sends it on to CUC. As far as the date of installation, I really cannot answer that question.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Madam Speaker, I have asked several times for this light to be installed at this junction. Could the Honourable Minister kindly ensure that this is carried out?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, as a matter of fact, I think there are going to be about five lights in that area. The request has been sent on and we will do a follow up.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Minister can tell us when the programme will continue in the George Town district.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I also answered that a while ago. I said we would be back here in December, January and February.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: My apologies again, Madam Speaker. Tunnel vision has set in it seems!

Having said that, I wonder if during the three months that the Honourable Minister mentioned, whether that means that the private subdivisions where most of the requests are coming from will be dealt with.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: All areas of George Town which have been requested and which fall within the programme will definitely be lit.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 158, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 158

No. 158: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to state whether any rodent control programme is in place for the district of George Town.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The rodent control programme covers all districts in Grand Cayman, including the George Town area. During the months of June through August, over 425 homes and 125 commercial establishments in George Town were inspected and treated for rodents.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Minister state how often the Prospect and Tropical Gardens areas are inspected for rodents?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I do not have a schedule of events as such. I would undertake to find out from the Department and let the Member know.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Well understanding the fact that the relevant department might not physically be able to inspect every premise, I wonder if the Honourable Minister would take this opportunity to advise us and the public, as to exactly what method should be used if individual homeowners and/or businesses have a problem?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would strongly suggest that if any establishment has a problem with rodents, that the first thing they should do is contact the department and ask for assistance.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 159, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 159

No. 159: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works if any thought is being given to sand-seal or asphalt the surface of the road leading to the Queen Elizabeth II Botanical Gardens.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Some minor work has been approved for 1995 to chip-seal the junction of the Botanical Park Road where it intersects with the Frank Sound Road. The cost to spray-chip this three-quarter mile stretch of road would be approximately $65,000 and no budgetary provision was made in 1995.

I would like to add that the Member for North Side has also spoken to my Ministry, and we have received another letter from somebody else with the same concern.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if there has been deterioration on that road to the extent that Government might consider a virement of funds for this exercise, if it is considered a priority?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

From time to time, the PWD has done minor works in filling minor holes in the road. However, there are many other roads in the country which take priority over that road which is not used as much as other public roads that are in much worse state than that one.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 160, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 160

No. 160: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is the position of the construction of a landing jetty at Point-of-Sand, Little Cayman.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The construction of the landing-jetty at, or near Point-of-Sand, Little Cayman, was completed on 8th September, 1995.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister give some idea as to the extent of these particular works and how much it is expected to serve the local needs for the Island?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, for the benefit of Honourable Members and the public who may not be familiar with the Point-of-Sand area, it is at the eastern end of Little Cayman, an area that has become very much used by residents and visitors alike, an area where a number of boats from Cayman Brac visit on an almost daily basis. But there has never been a place for passengers to embark to and from the boats. They had to wade ashore. Over the years there has always been a great deal of difficulty with this.

It was decided to put a pier, or landing jetty in so that boats could dock and passengers could alight. The project actually got started on 31st August and was completed in 10 days. I have not seen the completed project, but it is my understanding that His Excellency, on his final visit to Little Cayman, was very pleased with it and took the opportunity to declare it officially open.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 161, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 161

No. 161: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if the $840,614 for improvements at the George Town Hospital is a part of the proposed $22 million expansion package.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The answer is yes, the sum of $840,614 contained in the 1995 Budget under Vote 28-500-1-52-114 #4A, is part of the $22 million project for the new George Town Hospital.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Is the Honourable Minister in a position to give any indication as to what some of the items are that this money is supposed to provide?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

These funds are being expended on consultants' fees, project management, the construction of the materials management building which commenced on 2 August, and on the main hospital construction project which will commence in the latter part of the year.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if this amount of $840,000+ will actually be deducted from that overall amount of $22 million envisaged for the cost? Is this additional to that?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This would be included as part of the $22 million.

The Speaker: The next question is No 162, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 162

No. 162: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to state the number of scholarships awarded for the current academic year.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, thirty new scholarships were granted for the 1995/96 Academic Year.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister state the total number of applicants?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I do not have that, but I can assure the Honourable Member that everyone who applied and qualified did get a scholarship.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say that the low number of persons applying for scholarships this year was due to no graduating class from the John Gray High School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker, that was definitely one of the reasons.

I would like to add that there are actually 136 students on scholarships through the Government. One of the other factors as well is that the private sector has been granting more and more scholarships each year and students who may have applied in the past are now getting scholarships in the private sector. I thank the private sector very much for this.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister would be able to say if in granting scholarships to applicants the Government pays credence to their ability to fit in with their qualifications upon return?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Council has a list of priority areas and we always try to employ the students—and also during the summer, we have many students within Government and placed in the private sector for work experience where they do get familiar with the different departments in Government that they may be coming onto at the end of their scholarship.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Minister state if there is any coordination between the Department of Education and the Government's Personnel Department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We do everything we can to assist, and try to get the Personnel Department to accept as many students as possible. I think it is fair to say that there have been times when we have been disappointed (a very few times) when Personnel was not able to place students. They did go into the private sector. I think we may have lost one or two good students in that way.

However, since this is not my area of Ministry, it is really the Chief Secretary's, I would assume that there were good and compelling reasons why they could not be placed. Better liaison between the departments is something that we must always strive to do.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister would be able to give us an idea regarding the policy of the Education Council when it grants a scholarship to an individual? My understanding is that there is a bond that accompanies the scholarship or a payback, if the individual who is granted the scholarship does not become employed in the Civil Service.

In the instances where scholarships have been granted and on completion of the tertiary education the individual has not been able to be placed in the Civil Service, is that individual still responsible for paying back those funds?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, if the bond causes frustration through Government's act in this case, then the students are released to go into the private sector. When I say 'frustration', it is a legal phrase meaning we are the cause why the bond is not being enforced.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would be specific and say whether or not the person is released from the bond?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, they are looked at on an individual basis, but from memory, I think that all of those who could not be placed were released from the bond and allowed to go to the private sector.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 163, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 163

No. 163: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning What progress has been made to date with regards to the degree programmes to be offered at the Community College.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Progress to date on the introduction of the two year associate degree programme at the Community College of the Cayman Islands can be listed in six areas.

1. Physical Development:

(a) General Studies Building: Construction of this building was completed in March 1995. The building has three offices, four classrooms, and four laboratories (Language, Computing, Biology and Chemistry). These, in addition, to Phase I resources, are sufficient to meet the needs of the Associate Degree programme.

(b) Library Building: The space currently allocated for the library is insufficient to meet the needs of the Associate Degree programme. Construction of a dedicated library building is scheduled to start in November 1995 for completion in June 1996. Contracts have been signed with private firms for architectural and quantity surveying services. The advertisements for pre-qualification of contractors have been placed in the Caymanian Compass.

(c) Canteen/Multi-purpose Hall: Other than the Hospitality Kitchen and dining room, which are for training purposes, the College has no public dining area. A canteen/multi-purpose hall has been identified as the third and final building in the Phase II expansion of the campus. Construction of this building is scheduled to start in 1996.

2. Policies and Procedures and Associate Degrees: All policies and procedures that are needed for Associate Degree programmes are in place. Included here are: credit requirements; duration of programme; the adoption of semesters and credit hours; compulsory core subjects; credit distribution; senior level credit; fees/refund policy; scholarships; entry requirements; cheating; appeals procedure; student classification; advanced standing; period of candidacy; maximum load; probation; grading; graduation procedure.

3. Programmes/Specialisation to be offered: The decision was taken to continue to offer six subjects at "A" levels (History, Geography, Economics, Mathematics, Physics and Chemistry). This is aimed at satisfying the needs of Caymanian medical students (who have difficulty gaining admission to medical schools in North America) and the needs of children of non-Caymanians who are locally employed and who will need "A" levels for university matriculation.

Associate degrees will be offered in September 1996 in the following areas of specialisation: Computer Information Systems; Hospitality Management; Accounting; Business Administration; Literary Studies; History; Social Science; Language; Mathematics; Computing; Physical Science.

The College has been liaising with the Social Services Department, Education Department and Hospital and Health Services Department regarding the introduction of Associate Degrees in Social Work, Teaching and Nursing.

Other options currently under review include Associate Degrees in Banking, Electronics and Architecture.

4. Syllabi: As of 4th September, 1995, the syllabi for 63 of the 66 subjects required for Associate Degree programmes have been written.

5. Articulation: The College has decided to enter into articulation agreements with universities in the United Kingdom, the United States of America and the University of the West Indies.

All local associations which are members of the Chamber of Commerce, have been written to requesting that they identify United States of America universities which they consider acceptable in their field, and which are rated as highly competitive or above according to the Barron's Guide. This information will be used to identify appropriate American institutions with which to articulate. The final process of approaching institutions is scheduled to begin this term.

6. College Handbook:

A Handbook of the College will be required for articulation purposes. The initial draft of the Handbook has been completed and it is anticipated that, following the Board of Governors' approval, it will go to press by the end of November 1995.

I would like to thank the Chairman of the Board of Governors, the Third Elected Member for George Town, and the Principal and the Governors for the very heavy work they have put in to get us this far.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Just on a point of semantics, I would require some clarification on point 5, Articulation. Should this not read 'matriculation'?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I believe, and I am so advised that this is the right word.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May I request of the Honourable Minister with regards to association with United States institutions, what is the position regarding which of the accrediting commissions the Community College will be associated with?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: As mentioned earlier, we will be dealing with institutions under Barron's which are highly competitive or above. They will be subject to whichever of the United States qualifying institutions deals with those bodies.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I will phrase the question in another way. It is my understanding that colleges seeking association have to choose an accrediting commission. For example, there is the Association of Independent Colleges and Schools, there is the Mid-Atlantic Accrediting Commission, there is the North East Atlantic Accrediting Commission. Each commission has specific criteria and requirements which have to be met. That is what I mean.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This is not required for the Associate Degree being dealt with at the College. The college will be entering into the agreements with universities elsewhere, not just in the United States, and based on their assessment of the college, would then be accepting the credits from the Community College here in relation to programmes in their schools.

To keep the standard high is the reason why we will only be in the United States, articulating in relation to those rated highly competitive or above under the Barron's guide.

The Member is quite right, there are several bodies in the United States that do certify colleges and universities in the States, but we would not be setting up a campus in the States, if that is what he is referring to.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: No, it has nothing to do with setting up any campuses in the United States. It merely means that these people are like the auditors. I know from my training in educational administration that one of the requirements for accreditation is that a certain percentage of the staff must hold PhDs. This is the kind of criteria I am talking about. Will the Community College have to meet these kind of criteria?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Community College will meet the criteria necessary for articulation and acceptance of its qualifications by the universities and colleges that it reaches agreement with. It will be up to them to satisfy themselves if the associate degree is one that is acceptable to them.

In the United States there are these bodies, not in the West Indies or United Kingdom. The Community College will be entering into agreements with colleges and universities in different parts of the world, preferably where our students will be going on for further education.

I should say that we are following along the lines of what has been done in other English jurisdictions.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Minister state if it is correct that the college will only be seeking an association with other colleges and universities to accept the credits earned here?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is correct, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: It is now 11 o'clock. Before we proceed, we need a motion from a Member and a seconder for the continuation of questions.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Under the relevant Standing Order, I beg to suspend Standing Orders 23(7) and (8) in order to continue with the remaining questions for this morning.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: The Motion has been moved and seconded. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED.

SUPPLEMENTARIES (continuing)

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Under Part 3 of the Honourable Minister's answer, the specialisation to be offered, that is, the subjects listed at 'A' levels are History, Geography, Economics, Mathematics, Physics and Chemistry. It was said that "this is aimed at satisfying the needs of Caymanian medical students." I may be outdated, but I wonder if there is not a need for a biology course for these medical students?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, apparently not, even though it would appear that it is required.

I would just like to elaborate a bit on this. What we are talking about is while it is aimed only at satisfying, because in some areas this may not necessarily relate to medical students—any student who wishes to take the 'A' level examinations in these subjects could do so. Because medical students find it nearly impossible to get into a medical school, especially in the United States (unless they are citizens of the United States), we have to aim to qualify them for other institutions in the West Indies, the United Kingdom or even in Canada where it is also very difficult to get in.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is 'A' level Biology examination a necessity in order for medical students to gain entrance for tertiary education?

The Speaker: I thought the Honourable Minister had answered that. The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand that maths, physics and chemistry is what is necessary for entry.

For example, even though there is an 'A' level exam in Law, it is not a requirement to have an 'A' level exam in Law to enter the University or the Law School in England to study.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 164, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 164

No. 164: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning what is the total amount of spare parts inventory carried by Cayman Airways Limited at this time.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The net value of the spare parts inventory carried by Cayman Airways Limited at present is US$4,805,873.80.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say whether these spare parts are strictly for equipment currently carried or are there spare parts in the inventory which is not for equipment currently run by Cayman Airways?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Approximately half relate to the 737-200s that we now have. The other half relates to 737-400s and we are definitely endeavouring to sell those spare parts as a package.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 165, standing in the name of The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 165

No. 165: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation whether Government is negotiating the purchase of surrounding lands for the new hospital facility. I might add, before the question is answered, that this question was tabled before I heard any rumours about the Seventh Day Adventist Church.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the point is taken. No, Government is not presently negotiating the purchase of surrounding lands for the new Hospital facility as there is no need for such land for this project, or for expansion in the foreseeable future. However, a sensible Government such as this one, plans as far ahead as possible and so we are looking at the possibility of buying adjacent property if it comes on the market and the terms are favourable.

Along with existing Government-owned property adjacent to the site, this would even further enhance expansion possibilities for many, many years.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In the answer, it says "along with existing Government owned property adjacent to this site.." Is the Honourable Minister referring to the Lighthouse School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, if this becomes available. As we know, the Lighthouse School is growing and there is not too much space there for them to expand.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am wondering if the Honourable Minister could clear the matter up by simply advising that if the property became too small and the need to expand occurred, would other property be secured to relocate the school before Government took that property over?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This would be considered in discussions with my other colleagues.

The Speaker: The last question is No. 166, standing in the name of The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 166

No. 166: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation whether the National Health Insurance legislation will still be presented at the November sitting of the Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTION NO. 166 Standing Order 23(5)

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, under Standing Order 23(5), I ask that this question be deferred until tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that Question No. 166 be deferred until a later Sitting during the Meeting.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Accordingly the answer to Question No. 166 is deferred.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 166 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: Other Business, Private Member's Motion No. 10/95 Fiscal Responsibility Act.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 10/95

FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY ACT

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to Move Private Member's Motion No. 10/95, entitled, Fiscal Responsibility Act, which reads as follows:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Government consider adapting a Fiscal Responsibility Law similar to the Fiscal Responsibility Act 1994 of New Zealand."

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion, having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Realising that this Act may have been unfamiliar to some Honourable Members, my colleague and I endeavoured to make copies available to the Clerk's Office. I have a copy that I would also like to lay on the Table for perusal of interested parties.

The problem of fiscal responsibility is a universal concern among governments. In the recent past we have had several crises, but the problems have roots not only in the recent past, because in his tenure in the White House Herbert Hoover was recorded to have quipped, "Blessed are the young for they shall inherit the national debt." The problem concerned with responsible management of the national debt is not only a phenomenon commonplace to us now.

Perhaps this is a good time to also make the point that the bringing of this Motion has nothing to do with the way our Department of Finance is being operated. It is not intended to cast any aspersions on it. What the motion seeks for is more openness, particularly in reporting. It places the onus on politicians because I believe it is safe to say that we have reason to be proud of the way we have been operating. I find it important to make that point lest anyone misconstrue the intent.

The Economist of 1 April, 1995, on page 14, records: "On current trends, tomorrow's young will inherit a heavy burden. The gross public debt of the OECD countries (Organisation of Economic Corporation and Development Economies) has become gross indeed—swelling from an average of 35% of the GDP in 1974, to 71% last year."

This article goes on to record that New Zealand, the birthplace of many economic reforms, has thought harder than most about the best way forward. The result is the Fiscal Responsibility Act of New Zealand, which we are asking to be used as a model. This Act aims to shift the bias in budget planning away from such short-term temptations as pre-election tax cuts, towards long-term thinking about the consequences of current policies. What makes New Zealand unique is that it is the first country to prepare proper public sector accounts with a full balance sheet and operating statement similar to those of a private company.

The Economist goes on to say, "This limits the scope for fiscal deception. It also shifts attention to changes in assets and liabilities such as pensions commitment, which affect the sustainability of a country's fiscal position. It calls for greater openness and encourages greater parliamentary and public scrutiny. For example, the government must open its books before an election and it is also expected to set long term fiscal choice objectives." So, what characterises this system is greater transparency and predictability.

From time to time we often hear of charges of one political directorate leaving the country broke. This Act would not necessarily eliminate that charge, but it would certainly make available the facts as they exist. As I will show later, if we follow as a guide what is set out in the New Zealand Fiscal Responsibility Act, information would be made public by virtue of the fact that it will be laid on the Table of the Legislative Assembly, and by virtue of the fact that there will be monthly projections and accounts so that people can accurately follow what is going on.

Many of these things are done now, the difference being that our law does not require them to be laid on the Table of the Legislative Assembly, or to be discussed by Parliament except on the rarest occasions when special motions and provisions are brought. This Act would make it routine for these things to be done.

While I am at this point, let me hasten to say that why I suggest using this as a model is because from the information that my colleague and I have gained, this Act is being considered as a model by many countries that are serious at arriving at a sustainable level of economic development and a position where they can effectively manage national debt and economic growth.

Of course, there are some marked distinctions. In the New Zealand Act they talk about the Minister of Finance. Well, we do not have a Minister of Finance, we have a Financial Secretary. That is why I say it is to be used as a model, rather than to copy it as is. It does not necessarily have any bearing on our current political position, because I know that some people may try to seize the opportunity to say that what is advocated is something which is designed for independent countries. Let me put that to rest before it rears its head.

The model is characterised by three important planks: Proper financial accounts, which means that the government accounts, similar to private sector firms with a balance sheet of assets and liabilities, income and expenditure, are published regularly. Explicit targets: The Fiscal Responsibility Act sets out general principles for prudent fiscal policy. The last of these three has to do with openness. The Act requires a much fuller disclosure of information to allow closer scrutiny of budget policy by Parliament, the press, and the public.

Notable too is its flexibility. The Act does not bind the government to stick to a certain course. Rather, it says that where the government departs from a certain course, it must explain why it has departed from that course and state when it will likely revert to that course.

I think that the Act lends itself to a logical continuity from one political directorate to the next, or from the tenure of one government to the extension of that tenure if such is the case.

It has as its basis what is defined in the New Zealand Act as prudent fiscal policy, maintaining prudent levels. Prudent level has been defined as a ratio of the net debt of the gross domestic product below 30% in the short term and 20% in the long term.

Important too, the Act does not impose statutory targets that would be neither economically desirable, nor politically feasible. Instead, it operates by creating a series of incentives. A new government can set its own financial targets, but it must make its intentions fully transparent and consistent with the guidelines set out in the Act.

I do not intend to be very lengthy in my introductory presentation, but I request the indulgence of the House to read from the Fiscal Responsibility Act of New Zealand, five points which I think are fundamental to our understanding and eventual disposition to where this Private Member's Motion may fall. The points read as follows:

1. "By requiring the Finance Minister to report regularly to the House of Representatives on the extent to which the Government's fiscal policy is consistent with the specified principles of responsible fiscal management and to justify in his or her report any departures made by the Government from those principles;"
2. "By requiring all the Crown's financial reporting to be in accordance with Generally Accepted Accounting Practices (GAAP);"
3. "By requiring the Finance Minister to publish at least three months before the start of each financial year a budget policy statement containing the Government's long term objectives for fiscal policy, its broad strategic priorities for the budget for that financial year and its fiscal intentions for the next two financial years; to lay before the House of Representatives on the day on which the first Appropriations Bill relating to the financial year is introduced, a fiscal strategy report assessing the consistency of the budget with the budget policy statement and providing progress outlooks for the next 10 years, and an economic and fiscal update prepared by the Treasury for the next three years; and to publish in December of each financial year economic and fiscal update prepared by the Treasury for the next three years;"

4. "To publish before each general election an economic and fiscal update prepared by the Treasury for the next three years;" and finally,
5. "To lay before the House of Representatives, towards the end of each financial year, a fiscal update prepared by the Treasury for that year, including forecast estimated actual financial statements."

So, what we have is a system not unlike what is done in the private sector, but a system which calls for the setting up of a logical and open system of financial management, a system which eliminates the possibility of one set of politicians charging that they have inherited a bankrupt country, but above all, a system which enables the public, through the availability of public reports to be able to ascertain the effectiveness of success rate with which the government in power is managing the economic resources and assets of the country. It will help the government to keep track of certain things which impact upon the long term operation and position of the government by virtue of the fact that there will be a ready compendium of such things as guarantees, contingency liabilities and other kinds of fiscal obligation.

We are cognisant, and we speak about this often, of this need for effective fiscal management. All around us in the Caribbean and in the wider world, we read about countries which have been plagued by improper fiscal management probably brought on by politicians being taken up and deviating from what is a prudent financial management track.

I was up early this morning listening to the financial report on CNN. They were talking about Mexico. I am somewhat familiar with the Mexican system because in the other facet of my existence I have close dealings with a company which is operated jointly by the Mexican Government and a big corporation out of Japan. It is interesting to note that economic pundits suggest what happened in Mexico was the direct result of a government very intent on rapid economic development which made several gross miscalculations. Fortunately, they found the favour of the International Monetary Fund.

This morning the economic pundits were suggesting that the Mexican experience should serve as an example to countries at all levels of economic development, of things which they should avoid, implicitly suggesting that the model and the way to go is the way which New Zealand has embarked upon. It was suggested that more and more governments probably will be following the New Zealand model and it is expected that this Act, although implemented only in 1994, will gain, and is gaining, the attention of many countries.

We are familiar with the battle between the President of the United States and the Congress and the Senate in terms of their budget in trying to arrive at what is termed as a sustainable level of development. I think there are many elements in this Act that we could employ in the Cayman Islands which would help us arrive at a more effective system of fiscal responsibility. I will just focus on the presentation of making certain reports available on a regular basis through tabling them in the House and making them available to the press and the public.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.30 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.57 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate on Private Member's Motion No. 10/95. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I rise to offer my contribution to Private Member's Motion 10/95 which reads: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Government consider adapting a Fiscal Responsibility Law similar to the Fiscal Responsibility Act 1994 of New Zealand."

The Government is unable to support this Motion at this time. However, once given an opportunity to more thoroughly research and compare the provisions of this Act with our own legislation and accompanying regulations it is quite likely that certain aspects of our legislative framework could be modified by incorporating any useful provision that could be deemed an enhancement from this Act, especially in those areas dealing specifically with economic and fiscal reporting to this Honourable House, the principle of which already has the full support of the Portfolio of Finance and Development.

In this regard, what is being said supports the emphasis for increasing the frequency of reporting as mentioned by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. But, because of the fact that we cannot single out that item as a segment only, without considering the other aspects of the Act itself, that is why the Government is taking this position.

In summary the New Zealand Fiscal Responsibility Act 1994, as framed into law the process by which that country's economic and fiscal policy and medium to long term fiscal plans are developed, implemented and reported on.

Having agreed that this is the main purpose of this Act, it is important that we examine the background against which this legislation operates.

The Mover and Seconder of this Motion, being fully aware of the differences in economic environments between New Zealand and the Cayman Islands, have taken this into consideration and have accordingly drafted the Motion to suggest that the Government considers adopting legislation similar to, but not necessarily the same as, the Fiscal Responsibility Act. Notwithstanding this point, I wish to offer some thoughts on this Motion which will hopefully assist the debate.

Madam Speaker, the New Zealand Fiscal Responsibility Act is broken down into 19 main sections which, in the aggregate, focus on the need for improvement in the conduct of fiscal policy by specifying principles of responsible fiscal management and by strengthening the reporting requirements of the Crown.

The Act seeks to achieve this by requiring the following as detailed in its preamble. I have changed some of the words so that they are not exactly those as quoted by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

"Section (a): The Finance Minister to report regularly to the Legislative Assembly on the extent to which the Government's fiscal policy is consistent with the specified principles of responsible fiscal management and to justify in his or her report any departures made by the Government from those principles;"

"Section (b): All financial reporting to be in accordance with GAAP;"

"Section (C): The Finance Minister to (i) [and I would like your indulgence to quote exactly from the Act at this point]

"(i) To publish at least three months before the start of each financial year a budget policy statement containing the Government's long term objectives for fiscal policy, its broad strategic priorities for the budget for that financial year and its fiscal intentions for that and the next two financial years;

"(ii) to lay before the House of Representatives on the day on which the first Appropriations Bill relating to the financial year is introduced, a fiscal strategy report assessing the consistency of the budget with the budget policy statement and providing progress outlooks for the next 10 years and an economic and fiscal update prepared by the Treasury for the next three years;

"(iii) to publish in December of each financial year a half-yearly economic and fiscal update prepared by the Treasury for the next three years;

"(iv) to publish before each general election an economic and fiscal update prepared by the Treasury for the next three years;

"(v) To lay before the House of Representatives, towards the end of each financial year, a fiscal update prepared by the Treasury for that year, including forecast estimated actual financial statements for the Crown."

In response to Section (a) of the preamble of the New Zealand Fiscal Responsibility Act, the Government recognises that there are benefits to be gained by increasing the frequency of reporting to this Legislative Assembly, and will be looking at this as requirement in its review of our Public Finance and Audit Law. This will be expanded on further in my comments.

In response to Section (b) of this Act, the Government of the Cayman Islands now utilises the internationally accepted fund accounting method to compile its Accounts. The Auditor General's examination of our accounts is also based on internationally accepted accounting principles. New Zealand, however, utilises an accrual accounting method consistent with generally accepted accounting principles and this is indicative of that country's own situation whereby the Government is either directly, or indirectly involved in a wide range of trading activities. In fact, a recent article has highlighted that the New Zealand stands alone in many respects as a Government in this area.

The New Zealand Fiscal Responsibility Act [1994] has as its companion legislation, the Public Finance Act [1989]. Given the relatively short time in the introduction of this Motion, the Portfolio was not able to obtain a copy of the companion legislation. Although, the Financial Responsibility Act would seem to be quite definitive in its stated objectives, to consider the requirements of this legislation in the absence of the Public Finance Act, has not allowed my contribution to this debate to be more complete.

Given this situation, the best that can be done is that some assumptions will have to be made. It therefore follows that any conclusions, in my judgement, which may now appear reasonable could be improved given the opportunity to have researched and better understand the circumstances in New Zealand which led to the introduction of Fiscal Responsibility Act in 1994 following the introduction of the Public Finance Act in 1989. A full understanding of the events occurring in this transition period is necessary in order to understand what led to the recognition of a need for an expansion in reporting requirements, and further, to relate the interpretation of those circumstances to events occurring currently in the Cayman Islands.

A very poignant question which would seem to underlie the Public Finance Act and the Fiscal Responsibility Act is why the New Zealand Government has moved away from the traditional conservative and simplified Fund Accounting or Cash Accounting system employed by most governments [including our own] to an Accrual Accounting System normally employed by private sector and parastatal organisations.

As I said earlier, in the absence of having had the opportunity to thoroughly research this subject it is likely that the following are factors of significance in the New Zealand economy:

- (i) New Zealand continues to operate, despite significant privatisation in the recent past, a very closed economy which is heavily influenced or affected by its Government's intervention at all levels of the composite economic pie;
- (ii) To ensure that its revenue base can be assessed with a reasonable degree of predictability would normally involve the stringent application of macroeconomic management principles through fiscal interventions such as:
 - (a) sale and redemption of debt instruments on a revolving basis;
 - (b) active participation in the local economy through direct tax measures and price controls;
 - (c) adherence to production quotas by parastatal organisations; and

- (d) utilising its central banking system to monitor the country's import and export activities in order to carefully police its balance of payments.

Given the preceding assumptions, firstly it would be imprudent for the New Zealand Government to measure its revenue flow strictly on the basis of its likely cash receipts as its heavy involvement in various trading activities (through various parastatal organisations) would best be measured through the use of an accrual accounting system as found in commercial operations.

Secondly, its parastatal organisations trading activities would normally involve the ongoing replacement, upgrading, and introduction of new plant facilities. Prudent economic rationalisation would suggest that these investments should only be undertaken once it can be demonstrated that they are likely to yield positive net returns. We are all aware that plant and equipment are normally regarded as long term assets, and any attempt to recoup such investments over a period less than 10 years would have less than desirable consequences, especially in a heavily regulated economy where the Government and private sector are almost equal owners of the factors of production.

What is also quite interesting, Madam Speaker, is the emphasis placed on the preparation of financial projections with their underlying assumptions clearly stated, with particular attention being paid to the provision of a statement of cash flows for the year under review plus the next two fiscal years.

Madam Speaker, for any country whose economy is linked to trading in commodities, it is well known that the prices fluctuate significantly, and are quite volatile, not to mention having to comply with regional and international trade agreements. When a Government's revenue stream is inextricably linked to a wide range of trading activities, what is interpreted at a given time as being a favourable financial position, could, in a relatively short period become adverse.

A further consideration is that when a government is dependent on export earnings to finance its local operational requirements, variations in commodity prices will also adversely affect its revenue position.

Given the preceding economic variables, any accounting system which would allow for a government (such as the New Zealand Government) to fall into a trap of not having an immediate knowledge of its financial position would be courting the risk of finding itself in a bankrupt position, notwithstanding the fact that it could be very well endowed with assets and other natural resources. Furthermore, an assessment of the Government's fiscal position, as a pre-election requirement as set out in Section 14 of the Act would also be quite prudent. This assessment would serve as an inventory to ensure that what is passed by way of an operating entity from one political board of directors to another is evaluated as to its financial soundness, with a determination made as to the ability of such an entity to function as a going concern and, if not, to recommend what reforms or corrective measures, if any, should be implemented. This was also emphasised by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, and the Government is in agreement with this principle.

We are aware of the key differences between the economies of New Zealand and the Cayman Islands and this is important in order to avoid the pitfalls of importing systems which are not appropriate to our environment. I think that the Government, in making this point, recognises that there are other areas as mentioned and alluded to by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town may not be specifically relevant to the Cayman Islands. So this is why the position, as I mentioned earlier, is being taken by the Government of looking at this Act to take from it those functions which are relevant and which can be incorporated of which I will be commenting on later.

In summary, New Zealand, on the one hand, is an industrialised and highly diversified economy with a relatively wide tax base, encompassing both direct and indirect taxation measures. It is a relatively closed economy with high levels of governmental participation in, and regulation of, the productive sectors, which are mainly commodity based.

Madam Speaker, the Cayman Islands, on the other hand, have a small open economy heavily dependent on foreign trade and investment in services, with limited governmental participation in economic activities and regulatory frameworks which rely heavily on self-regulation by private firms and associations. By comparison, therefore, the Cayman Islands have a relatively simple economic structure and it is within this context that economic and fiscal reporting should be viewed.

Madam Speaker, in response to previously referenced section (c)(i) through (c)(v) of the preamble of the Act, the Government recognises the potential benefits to be gained by increasing the planning time-frame beyond one year. However, it does not support the publication of an economic and fiscal plan based on a horizon of 10 years. Such information maybe used for internal purposes, but given the small open dependant nature of our economy, publication of projections for periods in excess of three to five years is not considered feasible.

In understanding the Government's position on the ideas set out in section (c) of the preamble of the Act, it is therefore important that we are all aware of the state of development of the economic and fiscal planning, implementation, and reporting systems of the Cayman Islands. This of which I will now give a brief summary.

Madam Speaker, since 1992, the annual budget has provided for the preparation of Departmental Plans (D-PLANS), 3-year projections of capital expenditure and, in some cases, 3-year projections of recurrent and statutory expenditure tied to these Plans. In addition, the draft Medium Term Financial Strategy and Public Sector Investment Programme document is currently undergoing its third revision to encompass the period, 1996-1998. It is expected that with the finalisation of this third revision, combined with the rationalisation of, and enhancements to the budget preparation and implementation process; the ongoing activities of the Public Sector Investment Committee; and the update of the computerised debt recording and management system; that the key elements of a medium to long term fiscal planning process would have been put in place.

Madam Speaker, it is for these main reasons that the Government recommends that this Honourable House considers our own existing fiscal legislation and processes and seek to build on these rather than introducing new ones. This recommendation is consistent with the Government's stated objectives to review the Public Finance and Audit Law and Financial and Stores Regulations, the latter of which have already undergone substantial revision but await the completion of the revision of the Civil Service General Orders before finalisation. A Committee chaired by the Deputy Financial Secretary which steered the revision of Financial and Stores Regulations (1986) has been asked to steer the revision of the Public Finance and Audit Law (1985) once the ongoing revision of the General Orders is substantially complete.

Madam Speaker, this is not to say that the Public Finance and Audit Law and its associated regulations and financial control systems has not served us well. In fact, a review of the financial systems of the British Dependent Territories in the Caribbean, conducted during the early-1990s by Mr. John Codrington, on behalf of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, highlighted that Cayman had a model financial control framework which could be emulated by the other Dependent Territories and were subsequently recommended to these countries for implementation. The decision to commence a full revision therefore recognises that this law, like many others, will require amendment from time to time.

Madam Speaker, it is therefore proposed that the New Zealand Fiscal Responsibility Act be one of the various documents which would be referenced during the review to be undertaken by the Deputy Financial Secretary and his team.

Incidentally, the New Zealand financial control system was among several studied during the revision of our annual budget, project preparation and debt recording and management systems which commenced in 1991 and which is expected to culminate with the laying of the Medium Term Financial Strategy and Public Sector Investment Programme document during the first Meeting of the 1996 Session of the Legislative Assembly.

Madam Speaker, as pointed out, hopefully during this review process we will make every effort to obtain a copy of the Public Finance Audit Act because it is very important to see what that document is and also to make comparison between that and our Public Finance and Audit Law. As mentioned, the Government is in full agreement that there is a need for fuller and more open reporting to take place. In the review process, provision will be made in the update to the law that this be done biannually. The Government recognises that public debt is an issue not to be taken lightly. In this regard we have been exploring this. In fact, we have looked as far afield as Bermuda which has put specific legislation in place to ensure that the public debt at any one time does not exceed 10% of GDP. We are within that operational frame work.

At this time, the Government also recognises that it would be imprudent for any more than 10% of our recurrent revenue to be consumed within the repayment of indebtedness. These are factors to consider.

We are in full agreement with this, but the process that is being proposed for consideration by Honourable Members of this House is that there should be a certain level of tolerance for us to go through our Public Finance and Audit Law which has served us quite well. We do recognise that we cannot become complacent in this process. Reporting is very important and, while it may not necessarily be done on a monthly basis, at least half-yearly to this Honourable House is very important and I should point out that the Treasury gets out its financial position on a monthly basis. This deals with just the revenue and expenditure position.

The net balance is that at any one time the Government's indebtedness encompassing self-financing loan, public debt and contingent liabilities can always be made available.

In principle, the Government supports the idea that reporting is useful to this Honourable House and the people of these Islands, but because of the fact that the Public Finance Act, and the Fiscal Responsibility Act is quite wide and incorporates quite a number of principles, or principles not consistent with our accounting requirements, for this reason the Government cannot support this resolution as put forward.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Private Member's Motion No. 10/95, says; "BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Government consider adapting a fiscal responsibility law similar to the Fiscal Responsibility Act, 1994, of New Zealand."

Undoubtedly, anyone listening to the statement made on behalf of Government by the Honourable Financial Secretary, must accept that he is a person who understands the details and intricacies of financial management and the various forms thereof, including formats in accounting. I think that he has made the point that there is nothing wrong—that the Government can find nothing wrong—with the Fiscal Responsibility Act of New Zealand Act which the Motion refers to.

In fact, it did seem to me that he agreed with most parts of it, except for making relevant comments on certain points relating to the Cayman Islands that would follow in proper analysis. What puzzled me was why the Government then found it not possible to consider adapting a fiscal responsibility law using the New Zealand Act as a model.

There are certain things that are relevant in all societies. For example, the principle advocated by our Lord in the Ten Commandments, "Thou shalt not kill", this applies to most countries around the world. So, principles can be adapted also in financial matters. As has been read by the Honourable Financial Secretary and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, the Mover of this Motion, this New Zealand Act deals with certain principles. I quote what it says in the very first paragraph: "It is an Act to improve the conduct of fiscal policy by specifying principles of responsible fiscal management and by strengthening the reporting requirements of the Crown, in particular", the Crown being in our case the Government of the day.

I would like to refer to what the people of New Zealand consider principles of responsible fiscal management. I quote: "The principles of responsible fiscal management are: (a) Reducing total Crown debt to prudent levels so as to provide a buffer against factors that may impact adversely on the total Crown debt in the future, by ensuring that until such levels have been achieved the total operating expenses of the Crown in each financial year are less than its total operating revenues in the same financial year." That is a principle that I submit every country in the world could adopt and submit to.

"(b) Once prudent levels of total Crown Debt has been achieved, maintaining these levels by ensuring that, on average, over a reasonable period of time the total operating expenses of the Crown do not exceed its total operating revenues."

I also submit that, undoubtedly, that is a principle that all countries of the world could submit to. However, few countries of the world—it seems that New Zealand may be the only one who is brave enough and bold enough to set these down as principles in law.

"(c) Achieving and maintaining levels of Crown net worth that provide a buffer against factors that may impact adversely on the Crown's net worth in the future." Again, a principle any country could adhere to.

"(d) Managing prudently the fiscal risks facing the Crown; and

(e) Pursuing policies that are consistent with a reasonable degree of predictability about the level and stability of tax rates for future years."

I believe that those five principles as set down in the New Zealand Act, 1994 are as adaptable to any country as one of the Ten Commandments "Thou shall not kill".

Having looked at the principles as set down in this particular Act, we do know that no such thing exists in the Laws of the Cayman Islands including our Public Finance and Audit Law, 1985 specifically stated as it is in the Law of New Zealand. In fact the Public Finance and Audit Law, 1985, which I agree with the Financial Secretary, has served us well and I believe will serve us in the future, is set out in seven parts:

Part II deals with the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure and Appropriation which sets out basically how it is arrived at by the heads, subheads and so on.

Part III deals with Control and Management, which sets out the general powers of the Financial Secretary, powers to make regulations and give directions. It deals with the controlling officers, controlling offers to obey regulations and directions.

Part IV deals with the Receipt, Payment and Custody of Public Moneys and sets out the duties of the Accountant General, payments of moneys, banking and how guarantees and so on should be done.

Part V deals with Audit and speaks of the Auditor General, his appointment, his tenure of office, his salary and the like; the powers of the Auditor General.

Part VI deals with surcharge, power to surcharge, notification, right of appeal and the like.

There is then Part VII the Miscellaneous section.

While this is a Law that has and is serving us, it certainly does not set down specifics, details and principles of responsible fiscal management as firmly and explicitly as the New Zealand Act, 1994.

The Financial Secretary noted in speaking about the New Zealand Act, 1994, that because of New Zealand's system of Government and its way of trade, revenue and expenditures, it could prove disastrous should it fall into a trap in not knowing its fiscal position at any particular time.

I think that is true of any country and certainly of the Cayman Islands. I have certain concerns about how much is known about our fiscal position at any given time. When I say that, I do not mean that the Financial Secretary and Treasury Department may not know that, but the public is surely not aware of it. Certainly there is not the reporting system in place as is advocated in the New Zealand Act. That becomes of extreme significance when the whole country would be aware at any given time what is its financial position.

The public hears something about the financial position of the country once a year at Budget time. Then there is a general report and what is set down in the Budget. The amounts that have been paid in a particular year are being carried over to the next. And in budgeting as at the present time, the process is that it is possible to hide the true costs of projects and expenditures by putting small amounts in the Budget so that it can balance.

A law such as the New Zealand Fiscal Responsibility Act, 1994, hinders that particular thing from occurring. In fact, my colleague, the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, mentioned that in The Economist Magazine of April 1st, one of the things noted there is that as a first step, New Zealand has become the first country to prepare proper public sector accounts with a full balance sheet and operating statements similar to those of a private company. It notes: "This limits the scope for fiscal deception." I contend that we need such provisions in our Law dealing with our finances where percentage amounts of large totals can be placed and hidden.

If we were to adopt accounting systems such as is proposed here, everyone would know if a hospital is going to cost a certain amount. The projections would have to be there in the reporting system. The Financial Secretary on behalf of the Government would have to make clear that this is what is coming on board; this is how we propose to deal with it, and it would be truthfully and factually what were the extent of our financial commitments.

I can understand and accept the point made by the Honourable Third Official, the Financial Secretary that because of our dearth in areas of revenue we would not necessarily be in the best position to sit and try to project ten years ahead and say 'this is the amount of revenue we expect because of such and such ongoing revenue areas' for some of the big revenue areas are in imports which relate directly to tourism and it being a fickle thing, it would be difficult. However we could make some projection perhaps for a lesser period of time. But the principle is surely there.

The Financial Secretary mentioned the fact that the time of this Motion and the time that it would take him as the Government's financial advisor and manager, and indeed the Legal Department to study this legislation in detail, they would need time and I do agree with him. But that does not limit the fact that the Government could accept to consider such legislation.

I would let the Honourable Financial Secretary know that in the possession of the Mover and I, a complete copy of the Public Finance Act of New Zealand is available and will be made available if he should wish to have a copy. The Government need not have fear that there may be things contained in it that would make it difficult to consider adapting such a law in this country.

I am not an accountant but I am aware that there are different ways of dealing with accounts. I think it was mentioned by the Honourable Financial Secretary that we have adopted a particular form of showing our accounts which are those given to hiding certain financial positions. But should we do as contained in the New Zealand Act, 1994 which states; "Generally accepted accounting practice--All financial statements included in reports required under this Act shall be prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting practice." I think the Honourable Financial Secretary made reference to the fact that perhaps it is the only country that does so as far as Government accounting is concerned.

Other requirements of this law states that there must be a budget policy statement which would require the Financial Secretary on behalf of the Government (if adopted in a law here) "there would have to be a policy statement specifying Government's long-term objectives or fiscal policies and, in particular, certain variables: (a) the Crown's total operating expenses; (b) the Crown's total operating revenues; (c) The balance between the Crown's total operating expenses and the Crown's total operating revenues; (d) The level of the Crown's total debt; and (e) The level of the Crown's net worth,"

All of these are areas (and there are many more) which would inform this House and the people of this country and indeed, the people of the world who may be doing business here as to the Government's policies and financial standings.

The present Government is greatly given to strategies as is well-known. There have been various strategic plans in Education and Health, Drug Abuse and Rehabilitation and so on. The New Zealand Act provides for fiscal strategy report which gives (the Ministers in their case) the Honourable Financial Secretary (in our case) the "assessment of the extent to which the report containing an economic and fiscal update being laid before the House ..." would be consistent or inconsistent with the intentions originally stated, citing but one.

It provides that there would be economic and fiscal update where our Financial Secretary would be required to give after the introduction of the Appropriation Bill, an update on economical and fiscal forecast relating to the financial year to which the Appropriation Bill relates and to each of the following two financial years.

It has been noted by the Financial Secretary, that since 1992 the Budget has a certain format which shows certain projected costs up to three years. So this would fall in line to some extent with what is happening now.

The New Zealand Act provides for the "economic forecasts of the country which includes the Gross Domestic Product, including the major components of gross domestic product: consumer prices, unemployment and employment, current account position of the balance of payments." Some of these if not all, sure are relevant to our own position. It would, I submit, accord to principles of responsible fiscal management.

It provides for fiscal forecasts and very importantly in section 11, it speaks of "disclosure of policy decisions and other matters that may influence future fiscal situation." Under this section, subsection (4) says: "...of this section all Government decisions and all other circumstances that may have a material effect on the fiscal and economic outlook" would have to be disclosed.

If the Government was proposing a particular project or were thinking of it, or had made it a policy decision that that would be done, it would have to be disclosed and the Government would be required to say how it intended to do it or how it would handle the particular project. Surely, policy decisions of Government influence future fiscal situations.

Of course it also provides for a statement of responsibility which would require the Government, through the Financial Secretary, to undertake certain responsibility for any particular stand that was taken, there would be accountability for any particular policy decision which would be clearly set down in law.

The Honourable Financial Secretary, also referred to the reporting system that is advocated in the New Zealand Fiscal Responsibility Act, 1994. The Act refers to the half-year economic and fiscal update. Surely one of the things that could make a lot of difference in this legislature and the country would be to know what the true position of Government's accounts at least on a six months basis.

Personally, I have heard all sort of speculations that the Government presently is in the red, it may be so. If it is so, there is not too much that can be done about it because it would be a fact. But certainly it could be a fact known to the people of the country and we could hear how the Government proposes to change that position. The people of the country have a right to know about these things. It is not the sole purpose to have only the Government aware of what might be the economical and fiscal position of the country.

If supplementaries are necessary, we would know about it. It would be handled in a timely manner under such a law. There would not be hidden instances as has occurred in our situation. One thing in particular that I find very interesting in the Fiscal Responsibility Act, 1994 is, as stated in section 14, where it says; 'Pre-election economic and fiscal update--"The Minister shall, except as provided in subsection (4) of this section, cause to be published, not earlier than 42 days, nor later than 28 days, before the day appointed as polling day in relation to any general election of members of Parliament, a report containing an economic and fiscal update prepared by the Treasury."

If that was done in the Cayman Islands, certainly no Government henceforth and forever would be in a position to legally say that the position of the Government is "X", "Y" or "Z" in the days leading up to an election and it was "A" "B", and "C" when the last Government was in power. There would be full disclosure of the Government's position. It would not be as was stated for example, in the election campaign of 1992 "that the country was broke". that was sold to the public at large and I think they believed it.

The Auditor General's Report in 1993 found that there were approximately $10 million in reserve. So if you have $10 million in reserve, the country cannot be broke.

This is the type of situation that adapting such an Act, would change in this country. I believe that the Cayman Islands, of which I am a representative in this Legislature, this honourable House and all persons associated with us in this country could be better served, and it would make for a more open factual financial management if the Government (rather than saying it agrees with certain principles) gives an undertaking to consider (as the motion asks) adapting Fiscal Responsibility Act which would specify principles of responsible fiscal management among other things by strengthening the reporting requirements of Government. Naturally, I give this motion my full support.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.51 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.35 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 10/95. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I rise to make my contribution to Private Member's Motion No. 10/95 entitled Fiscal Responsibility Act.

I noticed that this motion was circulated on the 5th of September, 1995. However, I did not receive copies of the Law until this morning. I make that point because so often the Opposition and others accuse the Government of not giving adequate time to consider legislation and motions. I think today we find the Opposition being in that position.

The Motion, which does not tell you very much, reads: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Government consider adapting a Fiscal Responsibility Law similar to the Fiscal Responsibility Act 1994 of New Zealand."

It is my responsibility to know what, as far as statutes, is on the book of the Cayman Islands, but it is not my responsibility to know what any legislation is about in New Zealand. I think it would have been more useful if, at the time of circulating the Private Member's Motion on the 5th of September, a copy of that law was attached thereto.

I believe it was yesterday, or perhaps the day before, I saw a copy of The Economist April 1 issue, dealing to some extent with this matter. The article, which was entitled "The Great Escape?" mentioned that the country of New Zealand utilises a different system of accounting for its government than we do in the Cayman Islands. Our system is based on a cash accounting system whereas the country of New Zealand uses an accrual system.

I think the Financial Secretary pointed out in his contribution why that is so; for a country that is industrial by nature and its earnings come from many different sources, it is probably easier to do it that way. Not to say that the Government here could not move to that position as well, but at the end of the day, it depends on what the benefits are in changing the system.

If you have an accounting system that is reporting accurately the position of the Government, I think that should be the important factor.

In the article too, it goes on to say: "The Government [meaning the New Zealand Government] has defined 'prudent' as a ratio of net debt to GDP below 30% in the short term and 20% in the long term." I have heard numbers quoted to me about the Gross Domestic Product of the Cayman Islands being somewhat in the range of $600 million. If you have 30% of it being a prudent amount that you should borrow or have a public debt, you are talking about $180 million. No wonder they have to do a Fiscal Responsibility Act.

I sat quietly by and listened to the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, quoting from the Law the principles of responsible fiscal management and what they are. Madam Speaker, I beg a bit of tolerance, please. He talked about "(a) reducing total Crown debt." That is something the Cayman Islands' Government is doing. We do not need a law to tell us how to do that. You can write anything on a piece of paper; it is actually the persons who have the privilege of being in power to carry out fiscal management in a responsible way.

It goes on to talk about "(b) once a prudent level of total Crown debt has been achieved, maintaining those levels". When we came to this honourable House in November 1992, as the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said, there were $10 million in the General Reserve. But what he failed to mention is that there was also a $7 million deficit. So the factual position is that at the end of 1992 there was only $3 million left.

We tried to do something about that, but in 1993 (when we dealt with the Budget) we took the decision not to have any new capital projects. The reason why we took that decision was to ensure that ongoing projects (where monies had already been spent) would take priority and be completed.

Having taken that decision, we moved from 1992 with a deficit of $7 million to a position in 1993, with a surplus of (I do not have the accurate figure) in excess of $2 million. That is responsible fiscal management. It is not written in words, it is written in action. I believe that is the proof of what the National Team offers to this country.

It goes on to mention, "achieving and maintaining levels of crown net worth; managing prudently the fiscal risks facing the country." All we need to do sometimes is to look closely at the Budget. The capital section of the Budget shows original cost of the total project (in all cases), and it tells you about 1995, 1996 and 1997. So while it is not a comprehensive document, it is moving in that specific direction which this law tends to talk about.

Madam Speaker, after quoting all these laudable effects of the responsible fiscal management, the law goes on to another section which reads: "The Government may depart from the principles of responsible fiscal management specified in subsection (2) of this section...", which is the part the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman read, "...but when the Government does so any such period shall be temporary." Yet the law does not define what temporary is— is it a week, six months, 18 months, four years? it goes on to say; "The Minister of Finance shall, in accordance with this Act, specify the reason for the Government's departure from these principles;". A Government in power can always specify reasons, and generally give good reasons, but when they do, they depart from the reasons which were laudably quoted by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

You can have a law saying "you must do so", then the other part of the law says, "but you do not have to do it, you can go a different route". That is what the New Zealand Act is saying; first you must be a man and face the tune, but if you are not man enough to face the tune, then go through the back door—just tell them you are taking the back door route.

It goes on to talk about "The Minister shall specify the approach the Government intends to take to return to those principles." While he can make that quotation, if the approach is not 100% effective are you going to get back to it in a short period of time?

Madam Speaker, there are other things that can be written on paper too, and we search for the proof afterwards. In the National Team's 1992 Manifesto it reads: "Economy and Objective", 'Reduce spending without causing excessive damage to projects and exercise fiscal constraints'. I believe we have done that very effectively and that Government is now in a sound financial position. I continue to believe that we must act responsibly about fiscal management.

Responsible fiscal management in this same Manifesto was reversing Motion 3/90, putting it back in the hands of the people who have to report to their respective constituencies in this country. If they fail to exercise good responsible fiscal management, when they come to the day of the vote, I must say that I believe sincerely that the public will judge us on our actions and it will prove positively as regards to responsible fiscal management.

There were a number of comments made as well, such as, "I hear the Government is in the red". The only way the Government could be in the red is if the curtains are red. Certainly it is not in the cash books. When we look at the accomplishments in the three years in particular (including 1995), and the responsible fiscal management, laudable words quoted by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman also talk about this. In 1992 (as a comparison) the recurrent revenue for this country was $121 million; the recurrent and statutory expenditures for this country was $124.6 million ($3.6 million in deficit), that is the previous Government—that is their record.

In 1993, the recurrent revenue for this country was $135.3 million and some people say that what we did with the Civil Service was ineffective. I would ask them to look at this again. There was $135.3 million in recurrent revenue; $124.1 million ($.5 million less than 1992) and we contributed to capital expenditure, $11.2 million. That had never been done. The last time it was done was in 1988, it was never done in 1991 and 1992.

Not to belabour the point, Madam Speaker, but to make it, in 1994 the revenue excess over the recurrent and statutory expenditure caused us to contribute to capital expenditure $13.9 million. The only time it was greater than that was in 1989.

In 1995, it is estimated that the revenue excess over recurrent and statutory expenditure will be $17.2 million. The highest figure that we have ever reached in this country in terms of excess revenue over expenditure. That comes from responsible financial management and prudent control of expenditure.

You can write anything in a law, but I would venture to say to any country who has a better record of controlling expenditure than the Cayman Islands, please stand up. The Financial Secretary controls recurrent expenditure by issuing quarterly releases and you must justify why you are asking for a particular sum of money, given that you have not spent all that you had in the first quarter. I think that is the key to it.

There were some comments about hiding things in this Budget and hiding things in the other Budget. I have not seen any hiding, Madam Speaker. I have seen projects which had not been properly costed but the Government felt it was in the best interest of the people of this country to approve the projects subject to the total costs (in which case we found in some years a $10 vote) to come back to Finance Committee and seek the proper approval in order to place before that Committee the estimated costs of the projects and seek the approval of that body for the projects. There is nothing wrong with that; it is the proper procedure.

I have not seen too many governments which have been able to forecast an entire year (and probably forecasting before the year begins) that did not come up with a shortfall in some areas. If there is any, I hope they will stand up now.

The Cayman Islands is known not just for its financial industry, not just for its facilities as a tourist destination, it is also known for its fiscal management of its affairs and held up as a model in the Caribbean. So why would we want to go to New Zealand? New Zealand is far advanced in many respects, even in constitutional efforts. So I do not know what the lure is to adopt anything from New Zealand.

I believe there are amendments that can be made to the Public Finance and Audit Law, 1985, because several things that have been done in an administrative way should be couched in law. It does not make it any better, provided you are doing the exercises, but I see no reason why the Government (especially, not even being given adequate time to consider it fully) should adopt any other Government's legislation on financial matters. We are the country of record for fiscal management. We are the country of record as a financial industry. All people who come to us from different countries, including the United Kingdom, when they examine any particular detail usually they say, it is a model situation, whether it is legislation or otherwise. I am not saying that we are perfect because all of us can improve and we have items that can be worked on.

No matter what the comment may be on this particular piece of legislation, I personally have no reason to consider any other country's legislation. This Government has always moved for a balanced budget. It is an ideal that we live by and have lived by for many decades. It is an ideal that my predecessors (as Financial Secretary) preached, it is an ideal that I preached and it is certainly an ideal that the present Financial Secretary is preaching as well. We believe it is the right thing to preach. For if you have financial independence you can do whatever you want as far as providing services to your country is concerned. When you have to go cap-in-hand to someone else, you are in a different position that I wish never to see the Cayman Islands in.

The Member made reference on many different occasions to the idea of hiding things, Madam Speaker. We have heard many questions come to the House asking: "What is the revenue position of Government?" It has been given. There is no policy that says you should publish it every three months or every month, but the Government has it. I think the Financial Secretary (I hope I am not misquoting him) made similar remarks.

I think our system is as open as the questions that arise. You ask for information, you get it. As a matter of fact, Madam Speaker, there are (I would venture to say) no secrets in the Glass House because the Opposition gets it most of the time before we do. So how can there be secrets? I do not make that comment maliciously, Madam Speaker, it is a fact. I cannot offer any support to this Private Member's Motion.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, this Motion is one which is extremely short and one which the merit is about as large as the length of the Motion.

What is being sought here is to have the adaptation of an independent country's Fiscal Responsibility Act (that of New Zealand) adopted. This Motion is meaningless to this House and it is meaningless to the public because the public has not had the benefit of even one hour's notice as to what is the Fiscal Responsibility Act [of New Zealand]. Time and again we hear that notice must be given on this, notice must be given on that, but when it comes to motions such as this, the public has no clue whatsoever (nor did we) of what the Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1994 until it was laid on the Table of the House today.

This is a lack of responsibility of the two Members to the public and lack of responsibility in other areas, in giving absolutely no notice at all. So this Motion is really meaningless in my view. To go even further than that (even though I only had a couple hours to flip through the law) what was laid on the Table of the House today was in the Legislative Assembly since June 27th of this year. Why was it not put out to the public and the public given notice?

This is once again an irresponsible Motion that is trying to weave a web to suit the irresponsible acts of other people. In any event, the Law that is being referred to does not even stand alone. Throughout the Law it refers to what I understand is a very large Act—The Public Finance Act, 1989. In fact, the very definition is set out in section 2 of the New Zealand Act (which the Motion refers to) and has as its definition in the Public Finance Act, 1989 on page 3 subsection (2): "In this act unless the context otherwise requires, the terms have the meanings given to them by section 2 under the Public Finance Act, 1989." Now, where is that?

Madam Speaker, what I am saying is that this, in my view, is an irresponsible way to bring a Motion to this House to accept something that apparently the Opposition who has brought it does not even have for themselves. How can we sit down here and be expected to consider adopting something that we do not have?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Roy Bodden: On a point of order, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, First Elected Member for Bodden Town?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister is misleading the House when he says that the Opposition does not have the Public Finance Act, 1989. If he was in the Chamber this morning he would know that we do have that Act and that we made it available to the Honourable Financial Secretary.

The Speaker: That is quite correct, Honourable Minister. You may not have been here but the document is available.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, but why was it not laid on the Table of the honourable House would be my question to the Honourable Member.

Mr. Roy Bodden: [from across the floor] That is not our responsibility!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No, it is not the responsibility of that Member because it is irresponsibility to bring this Motion here and only lay on the Table of the House...I do not have access to what is handed out to other Members. If something comes to me formally, then it is the duty of a responsible Member of this House to lay it on the Table. In any event, when was that passed on to the Honourable Financial Secretary? It could have only been a few hours ago.

So throughout the Law that is being referred to, we have obviously another Law that has to be read in conjunction with the Fiscal Responsibility Act to understand what the contents of the Law are. Throughout the Fiscal Responsibility Act of New Zealand (which I will come to at a later stage) there are constant referrals to the Public Finance Act, 1989. Referrals in section 10 (4) through to (27) of the Public Finance Act.

In fact every material aspect of the Fiscal Responsibility Act comes under another law. This to me appears to be a law brought in by an independent country where you could have fiscal irresponsibility with Prime Ministers and Chief Ministers who most of the time are the Ministers of Finance, where they are elected members. I submit that in my view this Act is attempting to pave the way for this country to become as independent as New Zealand. When you go independent and begin to get Acts as this points out, and you have a sole Minister of Finance (as this law has) is when you need laws of this sort.

This Motion and many other motions that have been brought to this House are being picked up to pave the way (in my view) for the independence of this country. That will never happen, because the public neither wants the laws of independent countries, nor the constitutions, nor the powerful ministerial rights that are set out in the laws of independent countries.

When you look briefly at this Act, you will find firstly that it is an Act, not a law, which is what New Zealand's Parliament passes because it is an independent country. You will find that responsibility rests in an elected minister and we know how hard efforts were to put an elected Minister in this honourable House (that good gentleman is now in the Opposition's camp probably waiting to try to get in as an elected Minister of Finance). But our constitution does not provide for an elected Minister of Finance. While this may frustrate some people, these are the reasons why this country has not had the problems with finance that we find in independent countries.

This seems to me really as paving the way, as has been done so many times in the past, to squeeze in one other law that could begin pushing us on the road to independence.

Madam Speaker, fiscal responsibility at the end of the day depends on the quality and the ability of the people who manage the finances of the country. We can pass laws here until we are blue in the face, but until there is a continuity of responsible persons in this honourable House who take responsibly the position of the country's finances, and who are watchdogs for the public's money, then that is the way the country will remain in the stable financial position we are now in.

The Constitution of the Cayman Islands provides that where bills are introduced "...which makes provision for the imposing or increasing of any tax, for imposing or increasing any charge on the revenues or other funds of the islands or for altering any such charge otherwise than by reducing it or for compounding or remitting any debt due to the islands;..." [section 37 (2) (a)] they cannot be introduced except upon the recommendation of the Governor.

Madam Speaker, you will not find that in an independent country's laws because they do not have a Governor. There is at the most, in the phasing out periods a governor-general and it is always a move to bring in people who can circumvent the powers under this Constitution.

The Act that we are being asked to adopt gives the Minister who is an elected Minister of Government (who is normally the Chief Minister in most countries, because they always take the best portfolios as we know) and who has within his hands the absolute power to go ahead and impose taxes and spend money subject to his committee.

Further than that, our Finance Committee does not have the direct responsibility for spending money. It has to be referred back to this honourable House and subsequently an Appropriation Bill brought to the House.

We, as a Legislative Assembly, have restricted powers compared to a Parliament (as it is called in New Zealand) of that independent country. Section 29 of the Constitution says: "Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Assembly, may make laws for the peace, order and good government of the Islands." So what we have here are the checks and balances along with our legislation that is now in place, to give the fiscal responsibility that is needed.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman went backwards (as occasionally the Opposition do) into certain areas of accounts. He attempted to show that when there was a general reserve of the Government (when we took over office) that by itself showed that the country was fiscally responsible.

Madam Speaker, at the end of 1992 when there was a reserve of $10 million, there was a deficit on the current account of $7 million. But in that year—the only year in the past ten years—the Government's recurrent revenue was $3.6 million less than its recurrent expenditure: in other words the country was broke. The Government was spending $3.6 million more than there was, and that year it borrowed the full amount to cover the capital expenditure of $18 million. So when you add these figures up, the country was borrowing $18 million; it had to borrow $3.6 million from somewhere to pay off its recurrent deficit; and its annual deficit at the end of the last Government in 1992 was $21.7 million. These are the audited accounts of the last government.

If that is fiscal responsibility, then we are heading to where the other independent countries in the Caribbean have gone: bankruptcy, the total rejection of our people, the suffering that goes along with the hunger and lack of jobs that exist in those territories all around us.

To make things worse, 1990, 1991, and 1992, were the only three years in which (when you add up the annual deficit 1990 was $14.9 million; 1991 was $15.4 million; and 1992 was $21.7 million), the total deficit in that period exceeded all previous deficits of this country and would have equalled over $50 million. They are the advisors to certain politicians who are now putting up and talking about fiscal responsibility.

This Government took over a treasury—regardless of what has been said—in a year when the country had lost $21.7 million. To make things worse, Madam Speaker, it was at a time when one of the subsidiaries of Government (Cayman Airways), was losing up to $14 million per year.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the question of relevance. The Honourable Minister is babbling on into years past and what we are talking about is the possible adoption of a Fiscal Responsibility Act that would go from now into the future: not into the past.

The Speaker: I am afraid the matter of what happened in 1992 has already been spoken of and was allowed. But I will ask the Honourable Minister not to belabour the point because the Honourable Minister for Tourism covered these points in his debate. You would be repeating yourself.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, what I was dealing with was a statement made by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. That Member was the one who went back into past history and tried to say (as I have written down here) ... he dealt with the finances of the country in 1992...

The Speaker: I am saying that the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce dealt with that too. So that would be repeating what had already been said.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Very well, Madam Speaker. I rest my case on the $52 million in losses.

Madam Speaker, since that time (assuming that I can deal with the fiscal responsibility during the time I have been in Government) when we look at the annual surplus in 1993 there was a surplus of $1.6 million as against $21.7 million the year before.

We have come to a stage now where each year, 1993, 1994, and 1995, we have contributed money to capital expenditure. This is very important because in 1993, we put $11.2 million into capital and still had a surplus; in 1994, $13.9 million and the estimates for this year I think are somewhere in the area of $21 million. That money is coming out of our recurrent revenue. In other words it is like building a house from money that is taken from your salary.

We have not been borrowing for most of the work that we are doing; there have been very few borrowings and the beclouding of the finances in relation to the $20 million borrowed on Cayman Airways that I heard referred to, was not ours; it was to pay past debts. This Government borrowed it but it was to pay for debts of the past Government's spending. This is what responsible fiscal policy is all about.

Madam Speaker, I can speak with a considerable amount of authority because I am one who continues to be active in my profession. I am a qualified banker for nearly 30 years, I hold a degree in banking. I am actively a banker; I hold a degree in Credit Management, one in Administrative Accounting; (all current, I am not defunct in these) and therefore I can speak with a considerable amount of authority that I would never sit by and see fiscal irresponsibility in this country—

[Inaudible comment across the floor]

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I am not frustrated over the politics of the country. I will never do anything that is in any way irresponsible from a fiscal point of view because I have found. . . and as I will lay the accounts of Cayman Airways tomorrow, they will see what fiscal responsibility is all about as well. So what is being brought now is bit of a miserable attempt to introduce something that I submit, practically no one in this House really knows anything about, not if they had to read it since 11 o'clock this morning and have to stand up and speak on an independent country's law as is expected at this time.

There are no secrets in this country, Madam Speaker. There are a number of questions asked in this House by two Honourable Members exceeds probably every question asked for every other Member in the past 30 years. Anything that is asked of the Government, within our ability to give, we give it. If there is any doubt in any area, then questions are always asked and we give it.

So, Madam Speaker, in real life what we come back to is really the integrity of the people who run the finances of the country. This Government has responsible Members and Ministers in Executive Council and it has men of fiscal integrity. The biggest check and balance that we have in this country is the fact that decisions relating to Executive Council matters (would be Cabinet matters in New Zealand because they are independent) are dealt with by seven Ministers/Members and the Governor. Over and above that, they are the powers of the Governor that I referred to earlier, and while not everyone can have a speciality in all areas (that is impossible) within the team of the Executive Council (now existing), there is more ability to deal with the finances of the country than I submit, has ever existed. Which I also submit, is non-existent under the Oppositions and their colleagues perhaps, with the exception of one who seems to have drifted away from the camp. He does have a degree in accountancy. (laughter)

But I understand that some of the problems there may have come from who should be the Minister for Finance and the Chief Minister, so perhaps the Honourable Member may wish to laugh so I can see whether that is correct or not.

[Members' laughter and inaudible comments].

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: In any event Madam Speaker, they may have many ministers of education in the Opposition, but they do not have any in finance at the present moment.

So I would say that maybe they should resort to their speciality of education and move away from the complex responsibilities of the country's finances.

Madam Speaker, I therefore cannot support this Motion. Firstly, the public has no notice of what is going on. One of the laws that we are expected to refer to has not been laid on the Table of this House and the one that has been laid, seems like it has been in this country since June 27th, with no effort to pass it on to us.

I would really end by saying that at the end of the day fiscal responsibility is very clearly set out in our Law and Constitution. We have an extremely responsible Financial Secretary who is an Official Member of Executive Council (not an elected one) and long may he remain that way because once the continuity and the freedom from political influence remains in the seats of those three Official Members despite the fact of who may not like it; and as long as we remain a dependent country of the United Kingdom there will be fiscal responsibility in this country. The danger lies in the day that an Act such as this is brought in and elected Minister of finance is the signatory to the checks of this country, at that stage the public then will have to worry.

So I would say leave New Zealand and its laws and try to live on our Constitution and accept that we are a colony and not an independent country.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, Private Member's Motion No. 10/95, entitled Fiscal Responsibility Act reads as follows: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Government consider [I repeat, consider] adapting a Fiscal Responsibility Law similar to the Fiscal Responsibility Act, 1994 of New Zealand."

Not having any greater command of the Queen's English than I would consider average, my understanding of the Motion is simply as it reads, "that the Government consider..." I too, did not have copies of any relevant documents until Monday of this week (September 11th). When I saw the Motion, I asked the Mover if he would afford me copies of the relevant documentation so that I could consider it. At the same time I suggested that in order for the Government bench to be able to make a sensible response, they too, may need to see documentation.

In the Honourable Financial Secretary's response, it is obvious to me by his dealings with the Fiscal Responsibility Act, 1994, and its framework, that he has considered the various aspects of the Act. Regarding the timing of everyone being able to acquire a copy of the Act, I really do not know, but I take the point to say that while not having forever to look at it, I took the time out to do so since I got my copy Monday afternoon.

From my point of view (which even if it is insular in its own right, I consider it to be a fresh one) I consider it a bit unfortunate that the line drawn on the sides is not dealing with the issue at hand, but with the election bells ringing. I guess that is what is going to be the norm from now on—whether that is good or bad for us is really not for me to decide.

After listening to various speakers, the first point that I wish to make is that the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation, in making his contribution, chose to deal with the matter of independence. I am forced to address this issue because of the position I am taking on the Motion. My only comment with regards to his assessment of our ability to consider the adaptation of any laws from other foreign countries, is that probably 90% of the laws which prevail in this country today emanate from the Mother country, Great Britain. We have just passed a bill along with its companion legislation (the Children Bill, 1995, and the Youth Justice Bill, 1995) and it is only a matter of time before they become laws.

I remember from watching on the television a few mornings ago that it was specifically stated that these Bills were taken, by and large, from laws which are now in force in the United Kingdom. I would like to believe that the United Kingdom is an independent territory. So I wonder where independence holds its water in the line of argument that was brought regarding this Motion?

With the two pieces of documentation that I had the privilege to look at, I wish to quickly read a few excerpts from The Economist, April 1 1995, issue. The article has been mentioned before, but I do not think that the excerpts that I wish to quote have not been mentioned. The article entitled "The Great Escape?" states: "Its [New Zealand] Fiscal Responsibility Act passed last year, seeks to provide a fiscal framework that gives politicians an incentive to pursue policies in the country's long term interest rather than to suit short term political ones."

The very important point from that excerpt is incentive to pursue policies in the country's long term interest. I dare say it is known that that is one of my pet-peeves regarding the state of our country today—which has nothing to do with the Government of the day; it has all to do with a mind-set for the country. I personally believe that more long term planning needs to be the order of the day.

The other excerpt is, "New Zealand now publishes government accounts similar to those of private sector firms with a balance sheet of assets and liabilities and an accrual-based operating statement of income and expenditure." Before I go any further, my understanding of this Motion – because the word "similar" has been used, simply means that no one expects the Government to be able to take what is in the Act for New Zealand and say, 'Yes, this is what we think is right for us.

I think the intent of the exercise is to simply go thoroughly through the document mentioned, along with its companion legislation, and extract from them to put into use what may be relevant and welcomed for the well-being of this country in the future. That is my interpretation of what the exercise would be.

The other excerpt is headed "Openness" and it states: "The Act requires much fuller disclosure of information to allow closer scrutiny of budget policy by Parliament, press and the public." In their discourse I detect that some people may be taking exception and thinking that one may be saying that this is not the case today. I do not know about anyone else, but I am not saying that.

The statement I just read on 'openness' is simply one which, when put in practice, if there were stringent measures documented by legislation, takes away the doubt that one may have in one's mind with regard to that same openness. So to say that this legislation, if considered, would cast any aspersions on the method of activity with the Government in the Cayman Islands, is really something that does not need to be entertained in my view.

Again, my interpretation of the whole issue is simply a method by which one may be able to have legislation in place which allows for no doubt as regards to the methods by which fiscal responsibility is enhanced on a day-to-day basis in a country.

The next excerpt reads: "The Act does not impose statutory targets which would be neither economically desirable nor politically feasible, instead it creates incentives for policy-makers to act responsibly." Madam Speaker, while that may almost appear to have been originated by a chef of flowery language, as far as I am concerned, my being a part of any government would certainly welcome the opportunity to move forward in a fashion as described by what I just read.

In the Honourable Third Official Member's response, at various points he eloquently and very sensibly pointed out where there are some basic differences because of the type of systems that we are comparing. I accept those differences. But he also took the time to point out various areas where (my understanding is) he welcomed those thoughts as a matter of possible policy for Government.

He has said: "However, once given an opportunity to more thoroughly research and compare the provisions of this Act with our own legislation and accompanying regulations it is quite likely that certain aspects of our legislative framework could be modified by incorporating any useful provision that could be deemed an enhancement from this Act, especially in those areas dealing specifically with economic and fiscal reporting to this honourable House, the principle of which already has the full support of the Portfolio of Finance and Development."

Madam Speaker, my understanding from the second reading on this is that there is merit to what is being asked for. Now, I do believe that if it were not a question of pride and the line being drawn as I mentioned, the so-called Opposition (in retrospect) might well have passed out the document earlier. But that has already happened, and I cannot stand here and do anything about that. So to say that others may not have had ample opportunity to thoroughly examine the document, I take that point and I will not argue with it. But the truth is that in matters such as these regarding fiscal responsibility, the norm is for the Honourable Third Official Member, namely the Honourable Financial Secretary, to answer the motion giving the Government's position. That I think he did.

So on the one hand as I have just read, he has said that there is merit to what is being sought. He has also said: "Furthermore, an assessment of the Government's fiscal position, as a pre-election requirement as set out in Section 14 of the Act would also be quite prudent. This assessment would serve as an inventory to ensure that what is passed by way of an operating entity from one political board of directors to another is evaluated as to its financial soundness, with a determination made as to the ability of such an entity to function as a going concern and, if not, to recommend what reforms or corrective measures, if any, should be implemented." To me this is clarity at its optimum.

In his response the Honourable Third Official Member has, in his own way, literally stated that this is what he would like to see. At the end of the day the Government has already given its position that while it understands the validity of certain parts, when the details are examined its position is that it cannot accept the motion as it has been brought.

Having said that, I feel that it was worth it, if at least the measures that the Honourable Third Official Member has chosen to discuss in his contribution are employed as part of the policy.

Madam Speaker, one of the, for want of a better word, 'mistakes' that I see happening here . . . everyone can choose his own words and his own interpretation, but I do not see this as casting aspersions on the government of the day. I see it as simply an opportunity for our community to decide on a method of operation which will serve the nation much better today, tomorrow and from there on into the future. It does not matter who is here in the Legislative Assembly because Members will come and go.

The truth is, not one of us here knows for a fact that come November 1996 we will be here again. But during the time that we are here, it is our responsibility, regardless of whose side we are on, to ensure that what we deal with is with knowledge (that is ours) in the best interest of the country.

The Honourable Third Official Member went on to say; "It is for these main reasons [which I will not repeat because we heard them] that the Government recommends that this Honourable House considers our own existing fiscal legislation and processes and seeks to build on these rather than introducing new ones." So let us dissect.

This motion says, "BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Government consider adapting a Fiscal Responsibility Act similar to the Fiscal Responsibility Act, 1994 of New Zealand." At present we have the Public Finance and Audit Law, 1985. The Honourable Third Official Member has said that Government recognises that it has served well but that it is now undergoing a full review.

The truth of the matter is that if in their consideration they were able to take the salient points from the New Zealand document along with the [recommendations] of the review of the existing Public Finance and Audit Law and call it whatever they wish, in essence they are accepting what the motion wishes to accomplish.

So to have to say it the way it suits the Government, is really not something that I am going to argue about. But while others may think that this is a waste of time, I sincerely hope that the relevant issues that have been raised will be drawn from while going through due process with any new examination of the Public Finance and Audit Law with a view to encompassing all of these and addressing areas that were not addressed before.

Where others have chosen to speak about, the Government of the day and what the Government found, and what it has done, as far as I am concerned, whether what is said is true or not, to me at this point in time what we are discussing has nothing to do with that. The Government has done the best job in the world or the worst job has nothing to do with what this motion is about.

The Motion does not wish to address what has transpired in previous governments or the existing one, it simply seeks to identify areas that are relevant to be considered in order to set the course for this country in the long term. That is my position and my understanding of it.

The whole idea as I look at [the motion] is simply for a method to be employed which is sensible, worthwhile, and relevant to the [financial] operations of this country. As we grow we need to employ proper systems and try to find the bodies to suit it because proper systems will prevail as we bodies, [Members] come and go.

As I understand the position that the Government has taken and while I am supporting this motion, it seems as if it is a done deal in regards to the end result. I can only say that just as the Third Official Member, who replied on behalf of the Government, pointed out the many relevant sections of the Act being compared now, so too will I hope to see due consideration being given to extracting from those relevant areas in order for us to put it to good use in this territory.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 4.05 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.25 PM

The Speaker: We have five minutes left before the hour of interruption. Would any other Member like to begin his contribution within the five-minute limit please?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture, this is going to be your shortest speech.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I do not know whether I should begin. I wonder if the Leader of Government Business would move the adjournment?

The Speaker: Someone needs to make the proposition. If that is what Members wish I have no objection with it.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: My proposal is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: Is there any debate on that? If not, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

AT 4.35 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 15 SEPTEMBER 1995.

FRIDAY
15 SEPTEMBER, 1995
10.16 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Third Elected Member for West Bay to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SPEAKER

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town has sent apologies for absence yesterday and for today.

Presentation of Papers and Reports. The 1994/1995 Report of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs. The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

1994/1995 REPORT OF THE ADVISORY COUNCIL ON THE MISUSE OF DRUGS

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the 1994/1995 Report of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I have great pleasure in laying on the Table of this Honourable House the 1994/1995 Report of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs.

The following areas were addressed in the report: Treatment and Rehabilitation; Prevention and Education; Drug Interdiction; Justice and Sentencing; the Impact of Drugs in the Districts.

A total of 41 recommendations were made in this report, with the majority being made in the areas of treatment and rehabilitation. At this time I will highlight a few of the recommendations from each of the areas.

In the Treatment and Rehabilitation section, it was recommended that forensic laboratory capabilities be expanded following consultation with appropriate staff within the hospital laboratory service and the Royal Cayman Islands Police. A centralised inpatient substance abuse treatment programme was also treated as a high priority recommendation.

The Advisory Council has considered the changing society in which our children are growing up in and has recommended that young people be made aware of the increasing incidence of HIV positive persons amongst crack-users.

The Prison Services received attention in this area as the report states that appropriate measures be taken for the Prison to become a drug free environment in which the opportunity is taken to educate, treat and rehabilitate the prisoners to become useful drug-free members within society.

It was also proposed that adequate after-care be established for prisoners. A more gradual controlled release programme should be investigated. Parole could be made dependent on keeping full-time employment and remaining drug-free, as ascertained by urine sampling and attendance at drug counselling sessions.

In the areas of Prevention and Education it was recommended that formally adopted Drugs Discipline Policies be in place in all schools, with orientation and training of church youth workers and community workers taking place jointly in order to create a harmonious and congenial working relationship amongst them, and to ensure common purpose and focus.

Sports was another area targeted with recommendation emerging whereby all athletes representing the country should be tested for drugs prior to participating in sporting events. Effective parenting programmes should be made available to all parents in the districts to enable a more effective response in preventing substance abuse problems among young people.

Two recommendation highlights of the Drug Interdiction section of the report are: that the number of staff of the Customs Task Force be increased and that an analysis of all drugs be undertaken in the Cayman Islands.

In the Justice and Sentencing section, three recommendations that can be considered as very timely have been formulated. These are as follows: (1) Bail not be granted to persons sentenced to imprisonment for drug offences who opt to appeal their convictions while such appeals are pending; (2) Police increase their vigilance of juveniles involved in the drug trade and arrests whenever necessary; (3) that a campaign to publicise the often serious and sometimes fatal consequences of drinking and driving should be undertaken at least once a year with a view to making the practise socially unacceptable.

The final section identified was the Impact of Drugs in the Districts. Pertinent recommendations emerging from this section were: that the police allocate more resources to prosecuting the organisers of late night parties (sessions) held at private premises; that Alcoholics Anonymous strengthens its presence in the Sister Islands; and that parents more closely monitor their children's exposure to music, television programmes and concerts which glamourise sex, drugs and violence.

I am grateful to the Chairman and each member of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs who worked so diligently to prepare such a comprehensive report on one of the most serious issues which impacts on our entire society.

I am happy to be able to bring to your attention that the proposed Cayman Islands Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation 1995 to 1999, once approved, would enable a number of issues identified in this document to be addressed. Another positive point that I would like to make concerns the recommendation on the Forensic Laboratory.

It is envisioned that the Forensic Laboratory of the George Town Hospital should be operational by July 1996. I am hopeful that these 41 recommendations will be given serious attention by the departments, agencies, individuals responsible for making the recommended improvements. I also hope that the recommendations contained in this document will play an important role in the fight against drug abuse, prevention and rehabilitation.

The Speaker: Financial Statements of the Community College of the Cayman Islands for the period ended 31st December 1994 and 1993.

The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

FINANCIAL STATEMENTS OF THE COMMUNITY COLLEGE OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS FOR THE PERIOD ENDED 31 DECEMBER, 1994 AND 1993

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Financial Statements of the Community College of the Cayman Islands for the period ended 31st December 1994, with the comparative of 1993.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: The Community College of the Cayman Islands continues to be one of the best investments Government has made in the people of the Cayman Islands. In 1994 the Government Grant to the College was $1,300,000. From this amount the College pays its operating costs as well as repayments on three loans for Capital Investment, and repayment of the interest on the European Development Fund Loan, as repayment of the EDF loan does not commence until 1999.

In 1994, the College recorded other income of $295,777, mainly from school fees, including fees for contract courses provided for businesses. Additionally, through prudent management, the college was able to contribute $500,000 from its grant to the cost of construction of the new general studies building, thus reducing the amount of direct Cayman capital investment provided by government in the form of a grant.

The College also has a dedicated UWIDITE programme provided by the University of the West Indies utilised by a cross section of individuals in a variety of fields, both to upgrade their qualifications and to keep abreast of developments in their field.

The building programme is on schedule with a dedicated library building slated to be finished in 1996 and this will also house a library for the Cayman Islands Law School and followed by the construction of a Multi-purpose Hall in 1997.

The College continues to provide a variety of programmes including auto mechanics, construction, electricity, electronics, hotel certificate and hotel diploma, business, secretarial and commercial studies, including the advanced certificate in secretarial and administrative procedures being offered for the first time in the 1995/1996 academic year.

The college also offers professional courses such as the certificate of efficiency in insurance, and the certificate in insurance practise, the associate of accounting technicians, and the certificate in banking.

Starting in September 1996, the College will offer a variety of associate degrees, which I referred to yesterday in detail in a question that I answered. This will enable our students to complete the first two years of a four-year degree course locally before transferring overseas to complete their undergraduate studies.

In the academic year 1994/1995, 134 students were enrolled in the full-time programmes offered at the College. This included 43 students in the 'A' Level programme, 39 in business studies, 34 in technical studies and 18 in hospitality studies.

Seventy-nine students, most on day release from their full time jobs, were enrolled part-time in the programmes offered in Banking and Insurance. Individual registration in the extension or evening school department totalled 621. These students took a total of 706 courses.

In addition to this, in 1994 the customised contract courses offered at the College increased. In Grand Cayman courses were offered in collaboration with the Restaurant Association, the Bankers Association, Cayman Caribbean Utilities Company, Cable and Wireless, Truth for Youth School, the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, the Pines Nursing Home and the Education Council. Registration for these contract courses exceeded 250.

Special customised courses were also offered in Cayman Brac in collaboration with the Department of Tourism. The courses included housekeeping, front office, wine management, quality service, guest relations, communications and financial management.

The Cayman Brac courses were very successful with about 55 participants.

In summary, more than 1,000 individuals registered for courses and programmes that were offered at the College during the 1994/1995 academic year.

Student achievement over this period has also been gratifying. Four students achieved combined scores over 1200 in the SAT Examination. One student received a Certificate in Banking from the Institute of Bankers, three students received the Certificate of Proficiency in Insurance and three passed all 12 examinations required for the Associate of Accounting Technicians.

Despite the fact that the College as it now stands represents over $5 million in buildings and equipment, its value to this country cannot be valued in dollars, as its contribution to the human resource development of this country has increased every year since it was created 10 years ago by legislation.

I look forward to its continued development as it builds on its reputation as an outstanding further education institution. I would like to take this opportunity to extend Government's congratulations, as well as my thanks, to the Chairman of the Board, the Third Elected Member for George Town, who very ably chairs the Board of Governors. To the Board itself, also very much to the principal whose efforts have been the reason why this progress has been so successful, and to our staff and our students on another successful year of operation.

As required under section 11(6) of the Community College of the Cayman Islands Law, 1987, I am pleased to table the Audited Accounts of the Community College of the Cayman Islands for the year ending December 31, 1994.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Cayman Islands Health Services Authority Financial Statements for the years ended 31st December, 1993 and 1992.

The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

THE CAYMAN ISLANDS HEALTH SERVICES AUTHORITY FINANCIAL STATEMENTS FOR THE YEARS ENDED 31 DECEMBER 1993 AND 1992.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Cayman Islands Health Services Authority Financial Statements for the years ended 31st December, 1993 and 1992.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Health Services Authority was established under Law 14 of 1991 with effect from January 1992 as an autonomous statutory authority with responsibility for the management of various health care facilities in the Cayman Islands.

Although annual accounts were required under the law to be submitted by 30th June each year, the 1992 Accounts were not submitted until early 1994. Apparently the new Authority experienced a number of accounting problems which delayed preparation of the 1992 and 1993 Accounts.

An audit was carried out by Coopers & Lybrand Chartered Accountants, on behalf of the Auditor General assisted by the Government Audit Office and Internal Audit Section. Some of the 1992 audit-filed work, according to the Auditor General, was completed by May 1993 but the remainder was not completed until May 1995, due to staff losses of key personnel from time to time. I have been made to understand that separate accounts have not been provided for individual health care facilities and programmes because this would have been far too time consuming.

While the Auditor General and all those who assisted him in producing the audited financial statements for 1992 and 1993 made a commendable effort indeed, those statements are presented with a number of qualifications amongst those being the incomplete record of revenue under the former Health Services Authority.

It is evident from these financial statements that management of the Health Services Authority was not given sufficient time to prepare for financial autonomy as a statutory authority. Orders for computer equipment and software were not placed until October 1991 and the financial system was not operational until October 1992.

In addition, the Finance Department of the Health Services Authority was seriously under-manned in 1992 which resulted in an absence of internal controls in many important areas, particularly in revenue accounting, receivables and cash.

The main points arising from the Financial Statements are that it is not appropriate to compare these statements with pre-1992, or post-1993 cash accounts of the Health Services Department. The Health Services Authority accounts have been prepared on the accrual basis, as opposed to the cash basis for the Health Services Department.

The Health Services Authority made charges for services provided to civil servants and Health Services Authority personnel and their families. Under the cost basis system of accounting no charges are made to this category of patients. The Health Services Authority bore the full cost of some services and expenses that were accounted for under the votes of other Government departments under the cash system of accounting, for example, utilities, medical benefits and interest. The Health Services Authority accounts also include depreciation and bad debt expenses.

The next point is that Government revenues were paid to the Health Services Authority as grant revenue and to civil servants' medical totalling, in 1992, $11,994,300.16, and in 1993, $13,633,074.00.

The operating results were as follows: Revenue for 1992 was $15,325,407 and expenses were $16,481,593, with income loss from operations of $1,156,186. The net loss for 1992 was $4,364,233.

For 1993, the net income was $651,532. The final point that I wish to make on matters arising out of the financial statements of the Health Services Authority for 1992 and 1993, is that of an $18 million loan facility, the Health Services Authority drew down $6 million which was spent as follows: The Dr. Hortor Hospital, $3,296,996; Faith Hospital $1,998,130; Interest paid, $224,119; Miscellaneous, $1,494.

This totalled $5,520,739. Added to this was $107,321 due from general fund and $371,940 transferred to Government in 1994. As of 1 January, 1994, the Health Services Authority reverted to a Government Department for which I, as the Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, am accountable to this Honourable House. While this Government has inherited many problems resulting from the hastily set up Health Services Authority, that is now history. There are many lessons to be learned from this experience and, while there are still many inadequacies associated with the provision of health care in these islands, I pledge my complete dedication to addressing the issues in a timely manner.

Due credit must be given to all the health care personnel who carried on during this period of dramatic upheaval in the Health Services who continued to provide quality caring service to the people of these islands and our visitors.

In closing, I thank you for your attention during the delivery of this statement and do herewith recommend to the Honourable House the Financial Statement of the Health Services Authority for the years 1992 and 1993.

The Speaker: Audited Accounts of the Port Authority of the Cayman Islands for the years ended 31st December, 1994 and 1993.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

AUDITED ACCOUNTS OF THE PORT AUTHORITY OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS FOR THE YEARS ENDED 31 DECEMBER, 1994 AND 1993

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House, the Financial Statement of the Port Authority of the Cayman Islands for December 31, 1994, with comparison for 1993.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: It is appropriate that I begin my comments by voicing my appreciation to the Members of the Board of the Port Authority and the Director of the Port Authority for what I believe to be quality service to the public of these Islands.

It was a little more than a year ago when we added a small office at the airport so that all members of the public, rather than racing around George Town, could go to one location, clear their goods, pay their port authority charges and utilise their time in an effective way.

I believe it is important to point out that prior to 1993, to the best of my recollection, there had not been any contribution to the revenue of the Cayman Islands Government. Back in 1993 almost 90% of the profit made by the Port Authority was given as a contribution to the general revenue of the country, a sum of $737,000 of a net profit earned during 1993 of $823,254—almost 90%.

I believe we have started to move in the direction where Statutory Authorities remember who made the contribution to start this operation—the Government of the Cayman Islands.

We note too that in 1994 the bank balances at the end of that year drew a total in excess of $1 million. Almost $700,000 of that sum has been placed in a reserve to deal with the costs that are likely to be incurred, or damages to the dock by nor'westers and other acts of God.

We know that the deductible in an insurance claim is $500,000, so if we establish a reserve to deal with this, then the future profits of the Port Authority should move along with some degree of stability rather than getting wiped out by a huge cash loss, and not be in a position to make any contribution to Government's general revenue.

The profit for 1994 was in the region of $1.4 million. But we have also to establish in late 1993 costs of $0.5 million for the rehabilitation of the Cargo Distribution Centre. Therefore, in 1994, we were unable to contribute to the Government a similar sum as in 1993. In essence, the contribution was still much over $400,000.

We continue to remind ourselves of the services offered by the Port Authority. The Port has been looking at the needs of Little Cayman for a proper alignment control on the dock there. They have also been looking at the need in Grand Cayman for additional facilities for the public as well as persons involved in watersports activities—not for free, but for a cost.

I believe it is in the interest of the Cayman Islands that we move forward to provide additional facilities properly catered for the public waters and tourists in making sure that the quality of our marine environment remains healthy.

The Speaker: The Proposed Cayman Islands National Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation 1995—1999; and The Proposed Cayman Islands National Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation 1995—1999 Executive Summary.

The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

THE PROPOSED CAYMAN ISLANDS NATIONAL STRATEGIC PLAN FOR DRUG ABUSE PREVENTION AND REHABILITATION 1995—1999;

~AND~

THE PROPOSED CAYMAN ISLANDS NATIONAL STRATEGIC PLAN FOR DRUG ABUSE PREVENTION AND REHABILITATION 1995—1999 EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House The Proposed Cayman Islands National Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation 1995—1999; and The Proposed Cayman Islands National Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation 1995—1999 Executive Summary.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I crave the indulgence of this House to expound for a few minutes on this very important document. I am extremely pleased to be able to lay on the Table of this Honourable House, The Proposed Cayman Islands National Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation 1995—1999. This document has been produced through many long hours of work by over one hundred members of the different communities comprising the Cayman Islands.

Honourable Members of this House will recall that in April 1994 the newly-created Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation decided to embark upon a strategic planning exercise for its drug abuse prevention and rehabilitation programme. The primary objectives were to set clear directions for the programme, detail the cost of implementation over five years and to get support for the Plan through involvement of every sector of the resident population in the Cayman Islands. One other benefit that was anticipated was support (technical and financial) from the United Kingdom's Foreign and Commonwealth Office through the British Dependent Territories Regional Secretariat and the United Nations' International Drug Control Programme (UNDCP). I am pleased to say today that both organizations have reviewed the draft Strategic Plan this year and have commended the Government of the Cayman Islands for its initiative in this regard and the particular approach which was taken.

The version of Strategic Planning adopted by my Ministry is one formulated by Dr. William Cook of the Cambridge Management Group Inc. The "single goal" of the strategic planning exercise can be expressed through the Objective drawn up by the Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation Strategic Planning Team: "To have 100 percent of the resident population of the Cayman Islands free from all drug and alcohol abuse, and its ill effects within 10 years of the implementation date of the Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation Alliance Strategic Plan."

The strategic planning exercise was organised utilising an eleven step process as follows:

1. Communication about Planning.
2. Collection of data prior to Planning.
3. Selection of the Planning Team.
4. The First Planning Session.
5. Communication of the Draft Plan.
6. Selection of Action Teams.
7. The Second and Third Planning Sessions.
8. Preparation of the Executive (Summary) Plan.
9. Approval of the Plan.
10. Implementation of the Plan.
11. Annual Update.

Four Internal Facilitators were trained overseas by the Cambridge Management Group and bore the responsibility of steering the planning process through to fruition. Subsequent to this, numerous District Awareness Sessions were held throughout Grand Cayman, and one on Cayman Brac, so that the general public would both be informed about strategic planning and encouraged to participate. After this phase was completed, relevant data was collected for deliberation by 29 persons selected from Grand Cayman, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to be members of the Planning Team.

The First Planning Session took place 7th—9th July, 1994, at the Clarion Hotel. During this session fifteen beliefs, a mission statement, four strategic parameters, one objective and nine strategies were agreed upon by consensus.

I have previously stated the Objective which was produced by the Planning Team. In addition, the following Statement of Beliefs was compiled.

"We believe that there is a Supreme Being who loves us and is actively involved in our world.

"We believe that the spiritual nature of human beings must find expression in order for life to have meaning and purpose.

"We believe that each individual is ultimately responsible for his/her actions.

"We believe that education is vital to the survival and progress of a society.

"We believe that knowledge liberates and empowers.

"We believe that each person has the right to his/her opinions.

"We believe that all people have equal intrinsic worth.

"We believe that each person is entitled to unprejudiced opportunity to realise his/her full potential.

"We believe that people need each other.

"We believe that the family is the greatest influence on the value system of an individual.

"We believe that everyone has the capacity to make a valuable contribution to society.

"We believe that each person has a right to be safe and healthy.

"We believe that the individual's inner motivation is essential to positive change.

"We believe that a community prospers to the degree that its members nurture one another.

"We believe that each person has unlimited potential."

Every Strategic Plan has a Mission which is a bold statement of what the organisation will do for the people it serves.

"The Mission of the Cayman Islands Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation Alliance, a national network of governmental agencies and voluntary organisations, is to ensure that our society is free from drug and alcohol abuse, through unified action characterised by effective coordination by the Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, and the informed commitment of every member of our community."

The following Strategic Parameters, identified as "things the organisation will never do or always do" were identified by the Planning Team members. They are:

"We will not prejudicially discriminate against anyone.

"We will always honour the dignity of everyone.

"We will always work cooperatively to achieve our common mission and objective.

"We will accept nothing less than the highest standards of ethics and service."

As a result of many hours of deliberation by the Planning Team, nine Strategies emerged. Each Strategy was subsequently given to Action Teams who in turn developed Specific Results and detailed Action Plans for the Strategy.

"STRATEGY 1: We will establish coordination of all the efforts of Governmental Agencies, Voluntary Organisations and concerned citizens."

The Specific Results for Strategy 1 deal mainly with the gathering of and dissemination of information and the coordinating of programmes and services of all the entities concerned with Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation. The Specific Result of Strategy 1 Plan 4 recognises that the family unit is the most valuable component in Society and will need to be strengthened in order for the Plan to be successful.

"STRATEGY 2: We will conduct a comprehensive Education Programme on the dangers of drug abuse and its related problems with special emphasis on the family's pivotal role in the development of character and self esteem of each individual."

Strategy 2, Specific Results, deals with the Educational component of the Plan. It seeks to promote a positive life-style for individuals and to ensure that the education against drug misuse is relevant and accessible to all people in the Cayman Islands especially the teenagers.

"STRATEGY 3: We will ensure that a social and recreational network is established to provide and maintain facilities and services in each district."

The Specific Results of this Strategy address the importance of coordination and proper communication between organisations which provide social and recreational activities for the population. It proposes that District Councils oversee these activities.

"STRATEGY 4: We will ensure that legislation is in place to support and enable the accomplishment of our mission."

The Specific Results of Strategy 4 deal with ensuring that legislation is in place to achieve a marked reduction in drug misuse. The subject of routine drug and alcohol testing is also addressed.

"STRATEGY 5: We will guarantee treatment and rehabilitation services and facilities to meet the diverse needs of individuals."

Strategy 5 contains the greatest number of Specific Results and proposes the provision of a network of treatment and rehabilitation facilities. It proposes that there is a centralised outpatient substance abuse treatment centre supported by satellite services in each district. The provision of residential treatment and rehabilitation facilities are advocated including the provision of these for adolescent substance abusers.

Madam Speaker, let me at this juncture acquaint this Honourable House with the progress made on the Drug Rehabilitation Facility at Breakers. Since the Strategic Planning exercise made this recommendation, the decision was taken to commence the facility. The project has subsequently been given approval by the Public Sector Investment Committee for the Project Identification Phase. This means that now my Ministry can request that preliminary drawings be made and thereafter request planning approval. It is anticipated that some physical work can be commenced on the project before the end of this year.

Job opportunities for recovering abusers is an important link in the total recovery chain and this is one of the specific results which have been proposed in Strategy 5. Another new concept is that of sobriety homes where assigned individuals in each district would make available their homes for recovering substance abusers to drop in for fellowship and counselling.

This Strategy looks at the appropriate training of all health professionals and personnel officers in the identification of substance abusers and providing them with knowledge of proper referral procedures and finally, it recommends that the number of Caymanian Substance Abuse Counsellors is increased.

"STRATEGY 6: We will generate in each local community the motivation and capacity of residents to develop their own creative solutions."

If Specific Results are carried out for this Strategy as suggested in this Plan, local communities will become more aware of the substance abuse problem and thereby be led to own their problem. Creating an atmosphere of understanding, trust and cooperation between local communities and "officialdom", and providing basic self-help resources to assist them are other areas that are identified as helping in curbing substance abuse.

"STRATEGY 7: We will explore and develop all means whereby we can continuously monitor and record the onset, nature and extent of all aspects of the drug and alcohol abuse problem in our population."

Specific Results developed to address this Strategy include the selection and implementation of a confidential computerised system to provide statistical analysis in order to monitor and measure the substance abuse problem. A study should be initiated to determine the nature and extent of the problem and constant monitoring of the problem by data collection on an on-going basis should follow up on this initial study. As most people are aware, the problem of substance abuse is affecting children at an earlier age now and it is suggested that a survey of primary school children be carried out to glean information on the onset of the problem here in Cayman. Random drug testing for middle and high school age children would provide a means of monitoring the nature and extent of the substance abuse problem in older students. The Strategy also recommends mandatory drug testing by all employers to also estimate the extent of the problem.

"STRATEGY 8: We will develop, to the highest possible degree, our law enforcement agencies' effectiveness, including interdiction."

Strategy 8, then, deals with the tightening up of measures pertaining to law enforcement.

It is recommended that an independent Drug Task Force deal with the investigation and interdiction of drugs within all three islands. This Task Force would be directly responsible to the Governor. In addition to this, it is recommended that a committee be created to ensure that inter-departmental strategies are developed, communication is kept at a maximum and all the concerned Departments work in a concerted manner.

The establishment of a fund to be used by Law Enforcement Agencies in drug interdiction and the improvement of interdiction systems in all three islands were two other recommendations. It addresses the issue of dealing with allegations of official corruption and recommends that overall improvement of the communications systems be made to ensure confidentiality.

"STRATEGY 9: We will ensure that adequate funding is in place to support the initiatives of the Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation Alliance."

This final Strategy deals with funding to support the initiatives, and recommends the establishment of a Central Committee to oversee the implementation and coordination of fund-raising efforts. Commitment from community organisations would need to be obtained for this to become a reality. It recommends that financial penalties be increased on drug related crimes and these receipts be allocated to fund the Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation programmes.

Another recommendation is that grants are secured from the private sector to match contributions made by Government.

The final Specific Result of Strategy 9 requests that our existing approaches to foreign governments and major institutions be expanded to provide financial assistance to this Government to assist in its programme for drug abuse prevention and rehabilitation.

To summarise then, the main thrust for the Plan, recognising that many Government agencies and Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs) are involved in one way or another in the battle against drug abuse, is to coordinate their efforts through information gathering and sharing, and to encourage their cooperation with each other in making the best use of available resources. It is proposed that this coordination will be achieved by the setting up of a statutory body to be known as the Cayman Islands Drug Secretariat and that the role of the present Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (as the Secretariat's Board of Directors) will be strengthened to the extent that they will not only continue to advise Government, but they will also coordinate and monitor implementation of the Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation on an ongoing basis. Input from Government agencies, NGOs and "concerned citizens" will be through their membership on various coordinating committees of the Secretariat.

Abuse of alcohol has been identified as a problem with far-reaching effects within the resident population of the Cayman Islands and the Plan identifies ways in which this can be addressed and reduced.

The Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation has briefed all of the Government agencies and Non-Governmental Organisations (including the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs) that will be asked to implement various aspects of the Plan. Response has been very positive and at least one NGO, Cayman Against Substance Abuse, has already started work on the plans assigned to them.

The Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation recognizes the dynamic nature of the efforts of those concerned with drug abuse prevention and rehabilitation and notes that some aspects of the Plan may have already been completed, or are already in progress within various agencies.

Two examples are: (1) The consolidation of drug legislation by the Honourable Attorney General; and (2) within this Ministry, the setting up of a counselling centre on Cayman Brac.

A financial plan for implementation has been proposed. This is to be spread over four to five years and the Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation anticipates that the implementation of the Plan will be funded by each participating Government Ministry/Agency and NGO through their annual budget.

The main expenditures would be borne by the Ministries of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation ($2,196,926.00); Community Development, Sports, Women and Youth Affairs and Culture ($3,003,200.00) and also the Royal Cayman Islands Police ($1,027,882.00).

- ◆ Cost to Government $6,406,508.00
- ◆ Cost to NGOs 86,600.00
- ◆ Total Cost Over 4-5 Years = $6,493,108.00

Special mention must be made of the ongoing programme of the Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Women and Youth Affairs and Culture to promote and develop community/district based sports and recreational facilities and the fact that this is supported by the Plan.

Honourable Members will be aware that a number of projects, especially in the area of sports, are already well underway. For the sake of clarity, it should be emphasised that the anticipated expenditure by that Ministry in the area of sports and recreational facilities is projected as Cayman capital expenditure necessary to support its own programme. This expenditure is counted as part of the cost of the Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation simply because it is expected that a number of the implementation objectives of the Plan would be realised in this manner.

The detailed Plan is accompanied by an Executive Summary giving the detailed Action Plans and Cost-Benefit Analyses as accepted by the 29 members of the Strategic Planning Team at their third planning meeting in February 1995.

The financial plan has been reviewed by the Portfolio of Finance and Development which supports the Plan, subject to the regular budgetary procedures, and the Plan has been accepted by Executive Council.

As I have already mentioned, there were in excess of 100 people who were involved with the development of this Plan and I would like to express my sincere appreciation to each one of them here in this forum for the many hours of work spent on making the Plan one that this Government can be proud of. I would also like to thank the staff of my Ministry who, over the past fourteen months, have gone beyond the call of duty, completing the various tasks which have been involved in the entire process.

I herewith present the Proposed Cayman Islands National Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation 1995—1999 and ask each and every Member of this Honourable House to consider that the people of these three Cayman Islands have made clear to us, in these Plans before you, their desire and strong commitment to the objective of the Plan.

I now repeat the objective as follows: "To have 100 percent of the resident population of the Cayman Islands free from ALL drug and alcohol abuse and its ill effects within 10 years of the implementation date of the Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation Alliance Strategic Plan."

Madam Speaker, I daresay that if the people of these islands are prepared to set such a challenging and visionary objective for the drug abuse prevention and rehabilitation programme of this Ministry, it is incumbent on us all to do our very best to help and enable them to realise their vision for the future.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Financial Statement of Cayman Airways Ltd., for the period ended 31st December, 1994. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF CAYMAN AIRWAYS LIMITED FOR THE PERIOD ENDED 31 DECEMBER, 1994

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House, The Financial Statement of Cayman Airways Ltd., for the period ended 31st December, 1994.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the accounts of Cayman Airways are laid on the Table annually, normally in this meeting of the Legislative Assembly.

I am happy to report that Cayman Airways in December of 1994 made a net profit of $1,568,473. While the First Elected Member for Bodden Town is out of the Chamber, I hope that this will be passed on to him by his colleague. Cayman Airways has made a profit of $1,568,473, despite the bad reports and statements made to the contrary.

Cayman Airways has seen a very speckled history over the two decades it has existed. Cayman Airways has, as shown from the Accounts, been released through the efforts of the Board and the Ministry from the $110 million worth of liabilities and $40 million worth of liabilities, respectively, to Guinness Peat Aviation, and ILFC for the ill-fated 737-400 jets in 1989.

The comparative accounts of 1993 which are in these accounts before the House, had been projected by management in 1992 (under the last Government) to show a loss of $12.9 million. That loss was considerably reduced as shown by the accounts to where the net loss in 1993 was reduced to $3,988,487.

The decisions taken by management, the Board and the Government have now shown an increased stabilisation of Cayman Airways and, for the first time, there is a hope and a feeling of Cayman Airways being back on track—after being so badly derailed over the previous four or five years.

Despite the fact that a subsidy of $4 million is given to Cayman Airways each year, and this has been given under this and previous Governments, for the first time in a very long time, Cayman Airways is now (as will be seen from the accounts) paying to Government well in excess of $1 million in the form of Civil Aviation fees and Immigration and Customs overtime.

The actual amount paid in 1994 was $1,871,000. I say this because in past years fees were not paid to the Government and, therefore, Cayman Airways' accounts were always shown much better. Subsequently, the Government (within the period of these accounts) had to write off well in excess of $2 million for fees that were not paid.

That therefore means that nearly one half of the subsidy that Government gives to Cayman Airways is repaid to Government. That had not happened in some years, and definitely not in the tragic years when in excess of a $14 million loss was shown on the Accounts.

All accounts payable by Cayman Airways are current and within one month. Its overdraft limit of $2.4 million at the bank is rarely used to any extent, therefore, we are no longer a bad debt with the bank.

Having said that, the change over of two jets in 1995 was extremely expensive and if there had been proper planning this would not have occurred all at the same time which caused considerable disruption to the airline's business and trauma to the staff.

However, I had no control over that, nor did the Board because the leases were signed some years ago during the last Government's time and fell, unfortunately, to be renewed or terminated within a matter of a few months of each other. Planning in that respect is now in place and we have purchased the first jet which, I may say, I had no problem in getting the $5.2 million from the bank to do so. The lease on the other jet had been staggered one and one half years from the termination of the first.

I would like to pay tribute to Mr. Haig Bodden, one of the founding directors of Cayman Airways who fully supported Cayman Airways, not only as a director in the difficult years, but also with the appropriation of millions and millions of dollars to keep Cayman Airways flying. I have great regret that this great gentleman has passed on, and Cayman Airways has lost a staunch and good supporter. But we will keep up the good works which men like him have made over the past two decades in relation to Cayman Airways.

I also would like to thank the Chairman of the Board of Cayman Airways for his efforts; also my Permanent Secretary and Assistant Permanent Secretary who both deal with Cayman Airways matters; also our General Manager, Mr. Mike Adams, who Government, myself, and the Board have placed our full support in; the retired Managing Director Mr. Ray Wilson, who remains partly with Cayman Airways; our Attorney General and our Financial Secretary who sit in and assist, although not directly on the Board, and in the same capacity as myself, for the support they have given, especially in the purchase of the present 737-200. Also to Mr. Michael Marsden, who dealt with the legal aspects and assisted me greatly during the difficult stage of the purchase of the jet.

I think the greatest thanks has to go to the Royal Bank of Canada which financed this, especially to Mr. Chisholm and Mr. Dubrowsky who assisted and had the faith in Cayman Airways in this matter.

Thanks also goes to our auditors, especially Mr. Paul Anderton and, most importantly, to our dedicated staff at Cayman Airways who have made me feel that with the improved communications between us (the Board and Management itself) they now feel like they are part of a winning team that will keep and promote Cayman Airways in the future.

I was happy to know that staff pay increases were brought into effect again (which is the third time for some and the second for others in the past two years) as compared to nearly four years when staff got no salary increases whatsoever. We had the loyalty of those staff members.

I want to assure this Honourable House and all of the staff and management of Cayman Airways that despite my conservative approach to Cayman Airways, I honestly believe that the continuity and progress has to be in continuing to do what we do now in a much better way, leaving some flexibility to divert when lucrative charters are available. The trauma of constant changes (when some seven jets were changed in one year—unfortunately the year when the 737 had its unfortunate landing) is a very considerable cost. The change over on the jets from the old leased jets going out and new leased jets coming in, only two of them cost about $2 million. For that reason, with the bulk of that impacting on the accounts in 1995, we cannot expect the performance of the accounts as in 1994.

I can assure the public that my duty is to watch more prudently over their dollars than anyone else in relation to Cayman Airways and that prudence will be continued by the Board and the Government in relation to Cayman Airways.

I am very proud of Cayman Airways, I am very proud of its management and staff. It must give pride to Caymanians to also support and fly Cayman Airways, and I would ask that at every opportunity they so do.

The accounts will speak for themselves as to the details, but I would like to reiterate again that from the dismal loss of $14,310,056 in 1991, these accounts now show that Cayman Airways, for only the second time in possibly the past 12 or 15 years (with the exception of when the $12.5 million for the sale of the 727-200s which was put into the profit and loss accounts and, unfortunately, that amount could have bought the present 737-200s and we could have flown free of charge since 1989) this is the first time that Cayman Airways has shown a genuine profit of this amount, other than the one year it showed an amount of $900-odd thousand in 1989, immediately after which the two 727-200s were sold.

That profit (after subsidy) is one that I am very proud of. When you add on to the profit the nearly $2 million which was repaid to government you will find that Cayman Airways nearly broke even without the subsidy.

I commend these accounts to this Honourable House and ask all Members to continue to support Cayman Airways in the years to come.

The Speaker: Report of the Standing Orders Committee.

The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

REPORT OF THE STANDING ORDERS COMMITTEE (Meetings held 6 and 14 September 1995)

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Report of the Standing Orders Committee.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The Standing Orders Committee met to consider Private Member's Motion No. 7/95, referred to the Committee, in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 84(3), by the Legislative Assembly on the 5th June, 1995.

The Motion read: "WHEREAS in many instances the provisions of Standing Order 46(1) (i.e. that copies of Bills reach every Member not less than 21 days before they are proposed to be read a first time) have not been observed;

“AND WHEREAS the public have made known their desire to have a reasonably long time to consider the implications of Bills coming before the Legislature;

"AND WHEREAS, in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 84, Notice of Motion is hereby given to amend the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders (Revised);

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT Standing Order 46(1) be amended as follows:

"(a) by replacing the word "twenty-one" with the word "sixty" where it appears in the fifth line; and

"(b) by inserting immediately after the said Order the following Proviso—

"Provided that the Legislative Assembly shall, by majority vote, waive the prescribed sixty days notice of a Bill, only in circumstances where the proposed Bill is deemed to be expedient and in the best interest of good government."

The Motion was moved by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and seconded by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Committee held two meetings: (i) Wednesday, 6th September, 1995; and (ii) Thursday, 14th September, 1995, when the Committee considered the Chairman's Draft Report.

The minutes of proceedings form part of this Report and are appended.

Attendance was as recorded in the Minutes: Hon James M Ryan, MBE, JP, First Official Member (Chairman); Hon W McKeever Bush, JP; Hon Truman M Bodden, OBE, JP, Leader of Government Business; Hon Anthony S Eden, JP; Mrs. Berna L Thompson Murphy, MBE; Capt. Mabry S Kirkconnell, MBE, JP; Mr. Gilbert A McLean; Mr. Roy Bodden; Mrs. Edna M Moyle, JP.

Those not present were: Hon George A McCarthy, OBE, JP, Financial Secretary; Hon Thomas C Jefferson, OBE, JP; Hon John B McLean, OBE, JP; Mr. John D Jefferson, Jr; Mr. D Dalmain Ebanks; Dr. Stephenson A Tomlinson; Mr. Kurt Tibbetts.

The Committee rejected, by a majority vote, the proposed amendment to Standing Orders as set out in the Motion which read: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT Standing Order 46(1) be amended as follows:

(a) by replacing the word "twenty-one" with the word "sixty" where it appears in the fifth line; and

(b) by inserting immediately after the said Order the following Proviso—'Provided that the Legislative Assembly shall, by majority vote, waive the prescribed sixty days notice of a Bill, only in circumstances where the proposed Bill is deemed to be expedient and in the best interest of good government.'"

A Division upon the vote was called with the results being: two Ayes and six Noes.

The Committee agrees that this Report be the Report of the Standing Orders Committee in respect of its meetings held 6 and 14 September 1995.

The Speaker: In order for Questions to continue after 11.00, the suspension of Standing Orders is required, if a Member would so move.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I move the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8), since no questions had been asked before 11.00, in order to allow questions to be taken.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: The Motion has been duly moved and seconded. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Orders are accordingly suspended.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Deferred question No. 167, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 167

No. 167: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation whether the National Health Insurance legislation will still be presented at the November sitting of the Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation is still working towards presenting a revised National Health Insurance scheme to the Legislative Assembly in November 1995.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is the Honourable Minister in a position to say whether this proposed legislation will allow for Government's participation in a national health insurance, or if it will simply call for legislation to be in place with Government acting as a regulatory body?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Out of courtesy to the Committee, I would prefer to not answer this until we come to a final decision.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 168, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 168

No. 168: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works who is responsible for maintaining the grounds of the George Town Sports Complex.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: The Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture, through the Sports Office, is responsible for maintaining the grounds of the Truman Bodden Sports Complex.

This responsibility was assumed on 1st August 1995. Prior to this, Public Works Department had responsibility.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Minister kindly state if there is any equipment needed for the maintaining of the complex?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Maintenance of the playing field (which has been developed to a high standard) requires equipment on the level of expertise which we currently do not have among our resources. A decision was therefore taken to contract the job out to the end of the year and seek appropriate resources in the 1996 Budget to enable us to handle it in-house. Only two companies locally were known to have the necessary capability. Therefore, the 1996 Budget will include a request for new equipment.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac & Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Minister say if the persons responsible for the maintenance of the grounds also look after the general maintenance and care of the equipment on the site?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: I am not saying that a person who is to look after the grounds would not be able to do light maintenance, but certainly heavy maintenance will continue to depend on the Public Works Department.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 169, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 169

Withdrawn

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, with your permission and the permission of the House, after having spoken with the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs on this, I would request that this question be withdrawn.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that question No. 169 be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The question is accordingly withdrawn.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 169 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 170, standing in the name of The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 170

No. 170: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning what is the total cost of purchasing the 737-200 aircraft for Cayman Airways Limited inclusive of interest on the loan and other charges.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The purchase price of the 737-200 aircraft recently purchased by Cayman Aviation Leasing Ltd. and leased to Cayman Airways Limited was US$5.2 million. Interest on the loan, to be repaid over a five year period is approximately US$1,033,000. The five year finance fee is US$10,000. Attorney and other miscellaneous fees amount to US$18,000.

Cayman Airways Limited had paid reserves into Citicorp toward future "C" checks on the aircraft and this sum, amounting to US$272,000, plus the additional monthly reserves being set aside, will be placed on deposit and therefore partly offset the interest to be paid on the loan over five years.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac & Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Minister say whether the company leasing the 737-200 to Cayman Airways is owned by the Cayman Islands Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The answer is yes, it is a wholly owned company by the Cayman Islands Government.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 172, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 171

No. 171: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning when is the construction of a new Teacher's Centre at the Creek Primary School due to commence.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The land has been cleared and the construction of the New Teachers Centre at the Creek is due to commence on 18 September 1995.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if there are sufficient funds in the Budget for the construction of this particular Teacher's Centre, or is it partly estimated for in the Budget for this year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am advised that there are sufficient funds. I think there is approximately $80,000 in the Budget.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 172, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 172

No. 172: Mr. Roy Bodden asked if the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs would make a statement on the undertaking that was given on 22nd March, 1993 to place copies of the Colonial Regulations in the Library of the Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: A copy of the Colonial Regulations was placed in the Library of the Legislative Assembly in early 1993 following the undertaking given by my predecessor. Unfortunately that copy appears to have been removed from the Library.

The Clerk has obtained another copy and this is now available from the Library.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The copy now available seems rather outdated. Can the Honourable Minister say if this is the most recent version of the Regulations?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Yes, that is the most current version now in print.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 173, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 173

No. 173: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to provide the last statement of the Priscraft account detailing major transactions since June 1992.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTION NO. 173

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In accordance with Standing Order 23(5), I seek the leave of this Honourable House to have the answer to this question deferred, as it was not available this morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the answer to question No. 173 be deferred to another sitting during this meeting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The answer is accordingly deferred.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 173 DEFERRED UNTIL ANOTHER SITTING.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 174, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 174

No. 174: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if there are any exceptions to the requirements regarding Local Companies Control Licences beyond those listed in the Local Companies (Control) Law.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: There are no exceptions to the requirements of the Local Companies (Control) Law of which I am aware.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time. Proceedings will now be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.47 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.14 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The next item is Government Business, the nomination of an Elected Member to the Standing Public Accounts Committee.

The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

NOMINATION OF AN ELECTED MEMBER TO THE STANDING PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would ask that this matter be deferred and, if necessary, to waive Standing Order 14 so that this could be deferred with the consent of the House.

The Speaker: Do I understand the Honourable Minister to say deferred to the next Session, or the next Meeting?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The next Meeting in November.

The Speaker: This vacancy has been occurring for over a year now and it has not been filled.

The question is that the election of an Elected Member to the Standing Public Accounts Committee be deferred and this requires the suspension of Standing Order 14 (Arrangement of Business).

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The item is accordingly deferred until the next Meeting.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 14 SUSPENDED TO ENABLE THE NOMINATION OF AN ELECTED MEMBER TO THE STANDING PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE TO BE DEFERRED UNTIL THE NEXT MEETING OF THE HOUSE.

The Speaker: The House will now go into Committee on the Labour (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

BILLS

COMMITTEE ON BILL

The Chairman: Please be seated.

The House is in Committee to consider the Labour (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The Clerk will read the Clauses.

THE LABOUR (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Clerk: Clause 1. Short Title.
Clause 2. Amendments to the Labour Law.

The Chairman: The question is the Clauses 1 and 2 stand part of the Bill. Members have all been circulated with proposed amendments to the schedule. I would ask the Honourable Minister to...

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Chairman, with your permission we propose that in paragraph 2(6), the following be inserted after sub-paragraph (5): "(6) Adoption leave may be granted to any female employee once in any 36 calendar month period."

The Chairman: Shall we deal with that one first?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Ma'am, we can take each one.

The Chairman: The question is that in the Schedule to the Bill, paragraph 2(6) that the following be inserted after subclause (5): "(6) Adoption leave may be granted to any female employee once in any 36 calendar month period."

The proposed amendment is open for debate.

If there is no debate, will you go on to the next one then, we can put all the questions in one?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: We propose that in paragraph 3(1), subsection (2) (a) be deleted and replaced by the following: "(2)(a) of 3 to 5 hours, a minimum of 15 minutes break."

We are changing the "1" to "3". That is the change, Madam Chairman.

The Chairman: The amendment proposed is as stated by the Honourable Minister. Members have a copy of it and this is open for debate.

If there is no debate, please proceed to the next one, Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: It is proposed that paragraph 3, sub-paragraphs (3) and (4) be re-numbered (4) and (5) respectively and the following inserted as sub-paragraph (3): "(3) Section 27(2) shall be amended by deleting paragraph (d) and substituting the following:

"(d) bad or negligent work, other than a shortfall in cash collected by an employee on behalf of an employer or in a cash float provided to the employee by the employer."

The Chairman: The question is that the amendment, as proposed, be made. This is open for debate.

If there is no debate, Honourable Minister would you propose the next amendment, please?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: That in paragraph 8 the following be inserted after sub-paragraph (5): "(6) The Labour Law is amended by inserting immediately after section 77 the following new section: 'Directions. 77A. The Governor may give to any officer or statutory authority carrying out a function under this Law directions as to the execution of such function; and where any such directions are given that officer or authority shall comply with the directions.' "

The Chairman: The question is that the amendment, as proposed, be agreed to. The matter is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question that the amendments, as proposed, do stand part of the Bill.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. AMENDMENTS PASSED.

The Chairman: The question now is that Clauses 1 and 2, as amended do stand part of the Bill.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. CLAUSES 1 AND 2 AS AMENDED PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for a Law to amend the Labour Law.

The Chairman: The question is that the Title do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. THE TITLE PASSED.

The Chairman: That concludes proceedings in Committee on a Bill entitled, The Labour (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The question is that the Committee do report the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The House will resume.

AGREED. COMMITTEE TO REPORT TO THE HOUSE.

HOUSE RESUMED AT 12.28 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Report, the Honourable Minister.

REPORT ON BILL

THE LABOUR (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I have to report that a Bill entitled, A Bill for a Law to Amend the Labour Law was considered and passed in Committee with several amendments.

The Speaker: The Bill is accordingly set down for Third Reading.

Third Readings.

THIRD READING

THE LABOUR (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Labour (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I move that The Labour (Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a Third Reading and passed.

The Speaker: The question is that The Labour (Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a Third Reading and passed.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Third Reading and passed.

AGREED. THE LABOUR (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1995, PASSED.

The Speaker: The next item is the First Reading of the Church on Hospital Road (Incorporation) (Amendment) Bill, 1995. Suspension of Standing Order 46(1). The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 46(1)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I move the suspension of Standing Order 46(1) to take the Church on Hospital Road (Incorporation) (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The question is the suspension of Standing Order 46(1) so that the House can proceed with consideration of the Church on Hospital Road (Incorporation) (Amendment) Bill, 1995. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Orders are accordingly suspended.

Clerk: The Church on Hospital Road (Incorporation) (Amendment) Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. This very short Bill basically only changes the name of the Church on Hospital Road to "Agape Family Worship Centre", and does nothing more than that.

The church, which is an established church in Cayman, has decided that they wish to change their name and this is a tidying up exercise on behalf of that church.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Church on Hospital Road (Incorporation) (Amendment) Bill, 1995, be given a Second Reading. The Motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, does the Honourable Minister have anything further to say?

The House will go into Committee to consider this Bill.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 10/95

FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY ACT

(Continuation of Debate thereon)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I certainly thank you for your consideration at the break.

Normally this Motion should have been completed, but you have to take what is said in this House and what is said on the outside by the Opposition into consideration. We have to understand exactly what they are trying to get at.

To begin with, on the front page of today's Caymanian Compass, the Mover of this Motion is reported as saying that the proposal had nothing to do with the way the Department of Finance was being managed, what it sought was more openness.

Let us look at the whole procedure. During the Honourable Financial Secretary's contribution, a Law was given to him after he had made his contribution. I just want to say if they had the interests of the House at heart, they would have either given the companion legislation (which they obviously had) to Members, or made it available to the Department of Finance.

The Motion itself is not complete. Even if Government saw fit, or saw the need for the Fiscal Responsibility Act, which we do not, it would be at a loss to institute it without full knowledge, or measures such as the companion legislation, The New Zealand Public Finance Act, 1989. Here is why.

I would like to mention a few references in the Fiscal Responsibility Act. You will find these on pages 3, 8, 9, 12, 13 and 14 out of 15 places referring to the Public Finance Act. The Fiscal Responsibility Act relies on the definitions contained in the Public Finance Act to explain the terms used in the Fiscal Responsibility Act. To give an example, on page 3 in section 2, it reads: "In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the terms 'commitment', 'contingent liability', 'Crown', 'department', 'expenses', 'financial year', 'generally accepted accounting practise', 'Government', 'Minister, Secretary and Treasury', have the meanings given to them by section 2(1) of the Public Finance Act, 1989.

In other words, the Government could not put in place the Fiscal Responsibility Act without putting in place the other law of New Zealand, the companion law. I suggest that to bring a Motion calling for the adoption of one without the other does not make any sense and is an irresponsible act, with an Cayman capital A.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said that all the countries of the world should adopt this legislation. Both of the laws which are contingent upon each other, require a central banking operation, a Ministry of Finance—the whole system is predicated on a different structure, an independent structure of government.

The overriding objective of the Motion is to say that Government is not in favour of opening its financial operations to a greater level of scrutiny by this House and the public in general. This is as far from the truth as east is from west. We are all aware that there are several reporting activities already in place within Government—the annual account of Government, which is followed by the Public Accounts Committee's deliberations (which are public); the Public Accounts Committee Report (which is public); the Government's Minute, or response to these; the Annual Budget Address, which is normally delivered some three months after the accounts of Government are published.

The Budget statement carries objectives and priorities of the Portfolios and Ministries of Government. If we look at the Budget document, which is public, we will find that in the Portfolio of Finance and Development the ambit of the vote appears: "Expenditure relating to implementing and monitoring macroeconomic and fiscal policies and measures to promote sustainable economic growth and development."

Then it carries the Mission Statement: "To develop, implement and maintain macroeconomic and budgetary policies and measures to promote the sustained economic growth and development of the Cayman Islands, to manage the finances of the Government and exercise supervision and control in all matters relating to the financial affairs of the Cayman Islands."

Then it carries a review. Then it carries non-achievements and then the objectives. Also, for each department, for instance the Currency Board, the ambit of the vote says: "Expenditure relating to monetary supply within the Cayman Islands and other operations in accordance with the Currency Law (Revised) and its Regulations." It also has as its Mission Statement: "To provide the general public with secure and aesthetically acceptable Cayman Islands currency; to maximise return on investments and ensure the efficient administration of the Law." It then carries the review, the objectives and the outlying programmes, performance, target and indicators.

For each department, each unit, each Ministry and Portfolio, there are objectives and a wide understanding of what is permitted, what the Budget does for each year.

Not sooner than three or four months after the Budget's presentation, the Throne Speech is delivered which gives policies, priorities and reports on progress in achieving the prior year's objectives.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said that through their proposed law, if supplementaries were necessary they would know more about it. Throughout the year, and for every year since I have been in this Honourable House, the House meets four times. There are numerous Parliamentary Questions asked about Government's liabilities, such as borrowings and guarantees; questions asked about Government's revenues, expenditures and reserves; questions asked about projects and programmes, and questions even asked about rumours.

Further, every quarter the Economic and Statistics Unit publishes a report on the state of the economy and the finances, revenues, expenditure, surplus and deficit accounts, inflation rates and unemployment levels. If this is not openness, if this is not good accountability, then I would like to know what is.

The Honourable Third Official Member in his contribution, explained a further step that is now being taken by Government, by developing the medium term financial strategy and public sector investment programme process. This is being done to further develop and enhance our already numerous and varied reporting mechanisms. The medium term financial strategy proposes mid term reports to the Legislative Assembly.

Through the CPA, I try to stay abreast of what happens in Commonwealth countries. In New Zealand, they have income tax on personal and corporate income, property tax, excise tax, which gives cause for a completely different accounting structure.

In New Zealand, the Government had owned through the Parastatals (Authorities, as we know them), a significant portion of production in the country such as, agro-processing factories, livestock, agricultural lands and mining. We have none of this. The Government here is more a facilitator of development, rather than being directly involved in private sector activities that gave rise to the state of affairs, which New Zealand found itself in, in 1989.

New Zealand had to put these measures in place because not only was the Government some $4 billion in debt, but their authorities were also going broke and could not sell their products on the world market, which left their economy in a destabilised condition.

To support what I am saying, I will read part of the speech by the Minister of Finance on the Fiscal Responsibility Act. I quote:

"The last 20 years have been difficult ones for New Zealand. We have seen things we take for granted disappear. The world certainly no longer owes us a living, if indeed it ever did."

"Over that time, our initial unwillingness to adjust and live within our incomes has seen our net public debt levels rise from around 6% of the Gross Domestic Product in 1972, to almost 50% today. Unemployment has leaped from a few hundred in the early 1970s to a peak of just over 11% of the labour force a year or two ago. Our poor performance has meant that we have built up substantial debt, joblessness and other forms of human unhappiness."

"When you are in a hole, the first thing to do is to stop digging. Lapses of concentration by previous governments, for example, in 1989-1990, saw us start digging faster again."

To further quote him: "Having gone through 20 years or so of very unfavourable fiscal dynamics, New Zealand now has the opportunity of climbing into a reverse and favourable spiral. We currently spend almost $4 billion a year in debt servicing."

That state of affairs is completely the opposite from these Islands. We have had at least 20 years of growth, and the percentage of debt servicing is very low indeed. So, as much as the Opposition would like the public to believe that things are so bad that we need these kinds of mechanisms, that management of the finances has gone awry. The fact is that this is not so.

To further enhance my argument that New Zealand needs this Act and we do not, I would like to read a portion from the Asian Journal of Government Audit. It says:

"Up to the mid 1980s, Government administration in New Zealand remained heavily centralised. Criticism of central government administration included multiple and conflicting objectives or objectives which were insufficiently specified; too much emphasis and control of production input; too many restrictions on managers preventing them from making efficient resource allocation decisions; inadequate information for performance measurement purposes; lack of effective review mechanisms for dealing with poor performance in senior management."

"In the late 1970s and early 1980s, a series of changes were made in the existing system in an effort to improve the way the public sector was operating, but they met with limited success. From the mid 1980s a programme of more radical reforms commenced as it became apparent that more comprehensive initiatives were required.

"Following the election of a new government in 1984, the administration embarked on an economic programme which included removal of wage and price controls, lowering of the protection provided to local industry, reform of the taxation system and deregulation of the finance and other sectors of the economy..." None of which are applicable to the Cayman Islands.

I continue to read: "The public sector formed an important part of the reform process. The first area to be addressed was the trading operations of central government which were corporatised under the State Owned Enterprises Act, 1986. There were three broad objectives for creating State Owned Enterprises [or Parastatals, or authorities as we know them]; to separate commercial and non-commercial activities with government funding for non-commercial activities and commercial objectives for the State Owned Enterprises Board; to implement competitive neutrality, that is to remove all competitive advantages and disadvantages arising from State Ownership; to provide incentives for management to perform well."

None of this applies to the Cayman Islands, but demonstrates very ably why New Zealand had to introduce the Public Finance Act and the Fiscal Responsibility Act.

The Mover of the Motion said that we need to target our debt levels. The Honourable Financial Secretary, in his contribution, suggested that a target should be established for the amount of money the country pays in servicing its debt. He suggests 10%. I am happy to report that the direct public debt is currently less than 4% of local revenue, that is self-financing loans take 2% of local revenue, but that is reimbursed by Statutory bodies.

This is very prudent and within internationally accepted ratios and certainly manageable within these islands. To say that we need to target our debt levels is asking for something that this country has already done.

The mention of speculation that Government is in the red, comes from their political meetings and no person will be able to stop them from talking. That kind of mentality will say that because they do not have anything else to say. But the proof of the pudding is the tasting thereof.

I believe it was Shakespeare who said something like, "Gentlemen, the news of my passing was greatly exaggerated." That is the case with the statement about the government being broke.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town tried in his own way to impute that the Honourable Financial Secretary was in complete agreement with what they were trying to do. That is very misleading. All the Honourable Financial Secretary said, and I would like to quote from his speech, he said: "Minister to report regularly to the Legislative Assembly on the extent to which the Government's fiscal policy is consistent with the specified principles of responsible fiscal management and to justify in his or her report any departures made by the Government from those principles." What he went on to say is that through the Medium Term Financial Strategy they will be able to bring reports to the Legislature at mid year. That is all he said that could be taken from the Fiscal Responsibility Act. He said that we already had that in motion.

They like to jump up and say; 'But you say those things when we ask you something—you say you are already doing it.' That is what the Honourable Financial Secretary has told them. We do not need another law to allow us to do this. He is doing his work and that is what they need to accept.

To repeat, the Honourable Financial Secretary said; "In response to Section (a) of the preamble of the New Zealand Fiscal Responsibility Act, the Government recognises that there are benefits to be gained by increasing the frequency of reporting to this Legislative Assembly,..." But he already has this in hand, this is what he is doing.

Now to boost up his jumbling together of what the Honourable Financial Secretary said, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town said, "This is clarity at its optimum." Meaning that the Honourable Financial Secretary was backing them. I doubt that. Only those people who are so minded would believe that.

The Honourable Financial Secretary gave a list of significant factors on New Zealand's economic makeup. He said, and I quote: "...firstly, it would be imprudent for the New Zealand Government to measure its revenue flow strictly on the basis of its likely cash receipts as its heavy involvement in various trading activities (through various parastatal organisations) would best be measured through the use of an accrual accounting system as found in commercial operations." This is what they are pushing, but the financial statement of New Zealand takes into account the value of assets such as buildings, roads, and general Cayman capital works. When you add those together it would make any Government look good. But it does not mean that they can pay all their bills.

Our accounting system shows the cash that we receive and what payments we have to make in any given year, and we know what we have left. Does the world not know that the Government owns the Glass House (the Government Administrative Building); do they not know that the main roads belongs to the Government? Surely it would make the New Zealand Government's financial statement look good to have all those items included. If you were going to sell them... but we have never proposed that, and I have never heard that proposed.

I do not think that what the Fourth Elected Member for George Town had to say on this matter makes any difference. Of course, he did a good job in reading one part of the speech without relating it to the other part. But that is the job of the Opposition.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town also compared the Children Bill, 1995, and the Youth Justice Bill, 1995, to what they are now trying to do. But we do not need to be an independent country to operate these kinds of laws.

For instance, they have nothing to do with a Minister of Finance, a Prime Minister or a Central Bank, which are components of an independent structure and which are strong, integral parts of the two laws which we would need to introduce if we do such a law. The Children Bill and the Youth Justice Bill have more to do with the care and protection of young children. Certainly, we do not need to be an independent country to do so.

I will say to the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, that it only makes sense to copy from other countries that which is workable for us and will not cause any damage to the system which we now operate. For instance, we operate on the same Jurisprudence as the United Kingdom. However, New Zealand's financial structure is completely different from the Cayman Islands, partly because they are an independent country and we are not. I do not think that his comparison of the Children Bill or the Youth Justice Bill to what they are trying to do makes any sense.

I think Honourable Members on the Government side who have spoken have clarified well what we are doing and what has already been done. I agree with them that we do not need to incorporate what they are asking us to do. The Honourable Financial Secretary has said that a new reporting system is to come mid-year but that it is already in the works.

Why should we pick up on a law that is more complex, which is predicated on a different economic and political structure, where you have a Minister of Finance rather than a Financial Secretary who is a civil servant, and seek to implement it here in the Cayman Islands? I say we already have mechanisms in place, and continuing to develop these to suit our own environment is what is most needed.

So to sum up, I cannot agree with this Motion. It is just another way for the Opposition to try to give themselves credit saying that the country's finances are awry and thus we need these sorts of systems in place to keep politicians in check. They have amended that by saying that you do not know what you are going to get in the future. That is true, but I do not believe that we can incorporate what they are asking for, and it would not do us any good in our present system.

The National Team's record in financial matters (and that is what we are dealing with) has stood the test—when we consider what we found at the end of 1992 and how we turned it around at the end of 1993. These predictions of the Government being broke do not mean anything because you are going to find that up through the election. I say to Members of the House and the general public, do not pay any attention to the Opposition, what they are looking for is votes—and they are prepared to get them anywhere they can get them either by misleading the public on finances or something else.

The Motion itself does not make any sense because it asks us to introduce something similar to the Fiscal Responsibility Act of New Zealand, and it says nothing about the companion bill that would need to be put in place if we were to accede to what they want us to do.

Thank you very much, Madam Speaker. I thank the House for their time. I do not believe the Motion makes any sense other than what the Honourable Third Official Member said we needed to do, and he already has that in hand.

It is good to say here that the Honourable Financial Secretary, the Deputy Financial Secretary, and their staff, are doing a fantastic job. I believe he has support from the Government. They could not do this without the support of the Elected Members. So do not let anyone try to say different.

At the end of this year we will find out whether the Government is broke. I will end by saying this in regard to the Government finances and being broke, Shakespeare said; "News of my death is greatly exaggerated."

The Speaker: If no other Member wishes to continue the debate, I will ask the Mover to exercise his right of reply.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Perhaps I might begin an attempt to bring this Motion to the Chamber by placing the events in a chronological perspective.

The Motion had its birth from the discovery of an article in The Economist magazine dated April 1st, 1995, by my colleague, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I. When we read the article and decided that it would be prudent to investigate the Fiscal Responsibility Act of New Zealand, we came to the Assembly. Through the courtesies and good offices of the Clerk we requested of the Deputy Clerk to procure us a copy of the Fiscal Responsibility Act of New Zealand. The Deputy Clerk, in her usual courteous and efficient way, did the same for us. The Act is stamped June 27th, 1995.

Now, the Motion came to the Clerk's office on September 5th, 1995, but before that we further requested the Deputy Clerk to procure a copy of the Public Finance Act, 1989, of New Zealand. Again, with equal courtesy and efficiency she complied.

However, in this case we did not meet with the success we met with in the procurement of the Fiscal Responsibility Act. The Deputy Clerk was referred to another organisation, and it was tedious, difficult and time-consuming. She consulted us and we decided to abandon the attempt to get the Public Finance Act, 1989, through the Clerk's Office.

My colleague and I then contacted a mutual acquaintance that has access to the Internet and requested that he procure the document for us. In his usual gracious way, he complied. So it was on August the 20th, 1995, beginning at 13.27 hours (if my information is correct, and I know it is, that was a Sunday)... it took from then to 6.12 hours because he copied the New Zealand Public Finance and Audit Act from the Internet to his computer to the photocopier. He told us that had he thought of it he would have copied it to a diskette and it would have been inexpensive and less time-consuming.

I say that to make the point, that it is not the responsibility of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, or the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. We are not the Government. When we get bills that we are unfamiliar with we use resources available to us, including people in the legal profession in Cayman, to inform us. I am saying that the Government's excuse is flimsy and does not hold water.

It is not my responsibility, for if their Finance Department was as efficient as they say it is, first of all they would be getting copies of The Economist magazine and someone would have seen the article at about the same time the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I did. They should have been so minded and interested to follow it up.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Why?

Mr. Roy Bodden: So that denounces that theory. It is a good thing that they were given the Motion on short notice because had it been any longer, we would have had to spend the rest of our lives listening to the justifications as to why we should not consider this Motion.

The Motion asks that the Government consider adapting a fiscal responsibility law similar to the Fiscal Responsibility Act, 1994, of New Zealand. No more, no less—a consideration.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [inaudible interjection]

Mr. Roy Bodden: I am going to tell you that, and I am going to tell you a lot of other things. I just hope you listen.

I pose a question: Are we running from fiscal responsibility? That is the impression I get. In the article of The Economist on page 98 it talks about the principles of fiscal responsibility which reads: "The Government must justify any departure from its fiscal targets and say how it intends to get back on track." I intend to come back to the article in The Economist magazine and the Act itself.

I would like to spend some time now dealing with the comments made by Honourable Ministers. I would like to take that of the Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture first.

One of the comments that the Honourable Minister made had to do with the Public Accounts Committee's deliberations and the Public Accounts Committee's Report. He suggests that there is no need here for us to adapt any of the principles of fiscal responsibility using the New Zealand Act, 1994, as a model because we have the Public Account's deliberations and the Report. This is September, and I have scanned the Order Paper for today and I do not see anything about the Public Accounts Committee's Report being tabled. If our system is so efficient, tell me what is the explanation for its absence?

Under my chairmanship the Public Accounts Committee's Report was tabled on time, every time, for four years. Why is there a departure at this time if we are so fiscally responsible?

I do not know what kind of attempt was made to twist what was said by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town and the comparison he made. The comparison was straightforward, and that is that the reference to independence is completely irrelevant and inappropriate because we have used as models and examples in the past many laws from so-called independent countries. Indeed, our system of Government is predicated upon the Westminster system and Great Britain (the country from which that system emanates) is an independent country. But that does not mean because we have such a system that we are independent or that we want to go independent. So that negates that comment and reduces it to the category of "rubbish" where it rightly belongs.

The Honourable Minister also said that "we [the Government] have to take into account what the Opposition says inside the House and outside the House." That is true, and that is one of the reasons why we saw fit to suggest that we use the Act as a model for the fiscal responsibility law.

I must take time out now to make one point: This whole business of praising ourselves, of setting ourselves up as a paragon of virtue and enlightenment, of setting ourselves up as the best, I would like to know if that means we are saying we are so good that there is no room for improvement?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: No!

Mr. Roy Bodden: I want to make one observation. I look across there and I do not see any angels sitting on the National Team's Government bench. I do not see any haloes over their heads. I do not even see haloes, as one Member remarked at one stage, Madam Speaker.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [interjecting] You do not have any either. That is why we have to pay attention to you...

Mr. Roy Bodden: It is good for us to realise that even the most informed can at times learn from the less informed. I will only say to those elected Ministers of the National Team's Government that we all tread on terra firma, and that we all are expected to give account. So let us not lull ourselves into any false sense of security that because the Cayman Islands... and, heaven knows, I admire and love my country and hope and pray that our standard of living will continue and that it could improve. But I would be stupid to think that we are so far advanced that we cannot improve.

I read from the legends and myths that that is what happened to the people of Atlantis. Everybody knows that Atlantis eventually disappeared. Even the best historians are agog to explain its demise beyond the point that its populace grew arrogant and cocky.

Believe you me, for as much as the Government claims to have achieved and done, they could be well served by an instrument such as this Fiscal Responsibility Act. And I remind my good friend, the Minister for Community Development, Sports, Youth Affairs and Culture, that there is much to be done. It behooves us to not believe that we have arrived because, indeed, we are far from the arrival point.

The Honourable Financial Secretary, by his own admission said, and I quote: "Incidentally, the New Zealand financial control system was among several studied during the revision of our annual budget, project preparation and debt recording and management systems which commenced in 1991 and which is expected to culminate with the laying of the Medium Term Financial Strategy and Public Sector Investment Programme document during the First Meeting of the 1996 Session of the Legislative Assembly."

Now, I pose the question: If the New Zealand system was good enough to be considered for such an important undertaking, then what has happened to sour the system now so that an addition to the system (which the New Zealanders themselves found applicable and appropriate) should be thrown out of the window without even so much as giving it second thought?

The article in The Economist magazine says... by the way, let me say that The Economist magazine is one of the most widely read and respected magazines in the international financial world. It is a magazine coveted by both laymen and professionals. You know what it says about New Zealand and its system of fiscal responsibility? It says: "New Zealand now boasts the best framework for monetary and fiscal policies anywhere in the world." That is not the First Elected Member for Bodden Town or the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, Madam Speaker, that is The Economist magazine.

I want to make some comments on the contribution by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce. I was trying to understand the Minister's line of argument as I listened to some of the things he said. It is a pity that he did not take the time to think out the things he said because some of the statements he made are indicative of the arrogance and cockiness I mentioned earlier being responsible for the demise of the city of Atlantis. Earlier in his contribution he said; "Not knowing what the New Zealand Law is about, I do not believe it is my responsibility to know what it is. It is my responsibility to know what is, as far as statutes, on the book of the Cayman Islands, but it is not my responsibility to know what any legislation is about in New Zealand."

He goes on to say; "The Cayman Islands is known, not just for its financial industry, not just for its facilities as a tourist destination, it is also known for its fiscal management of its affairs and held up as a model in the Cayman Caribbean. So why would we want to go to New Zealand?"

He goes on further to say that in the Cayman Islands, "it is a model situation, whether it is legislation or otherwise.... No matter what the comment may be on this particular piece of legislation, I personally have no reason to consider any other country's legislation."

After that I realised that his defensive position was but an attempt to cover-up his own mediocrity when he was the Financial Secretary; his defensive position was but an attempt to cover-up his own glaring failures and inconsistencies when he held that post. His defensive position was but an attempt to cover-up his own irresponsible fiscal management because he spoke about Motion No. 3/90. I am here to tell him, through the Chair, that he was the author of that document, so he had to reverse it. The onus was upon him.

In The New Caymanian of the week of 28 August through 3 September, 1992, Mr. Alan Scott, in an interview entitled "Alan Scott: 'I served without fear or favour,'" had this to say when asked: "Is it correct that you were on leave when Government Motion No. 3/90 (change in the composition of Finance Committee) was approved by Executive Council?"

Mr. Scott replied: "I was indeed on leave when that was approved to go before the Legislative Assembly."

The New Caymanian further asked: "Would it have been possible for the Acting Governor to defer that motion or to seek the Secretary of State's advice?"

Mr. Scott replied: "Yes, the Acting Governor Mr. Thomas Jefferson has the full powers to the Governor under the Constitution while he is acting."

I know the Honourable Minister likes to stand up. Can he say that that is not so? Can he say that he is not someone who practised fiscal irresponsibility? Because that is what the Motion was, the epitome of fiscal irresponsibility.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I am happy to stand up if he asks me to.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, what is he going to say?

The Speaker: Are you rising on a point of order, Honourable Minister?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am rising on a point of order, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Minister?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The point of order is that I have never been the author of Motion No. 3/90. The Member for Bodden Town is seriously misleading the House.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town, can you clarify the point that you made?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Certainly, Madam Speaker. I read from a document which I made reference to. I have read from a statement made by the former Governor, Mr. Alan Scott, who said he was indeed on leave outside the country.

The Speaker: That is not the point. The point is whether the Honourable Minister at that time was the author of the Motion. That means did he compose Motion 3/90? Did it come in his name to the House?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I said that according to the article he had the option of seeking the advice of the Secretary of State.

The Speaker: That is a different thing altogether from what was said—that he was the author of the motion.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Well, Madam Speaker, you know... I believe Ma'am, that I just read...

The Speaker: No, no! That is not the point. I know what you just read. I heard that, but you did say that the Honourable Minister at the time was the author of Motion No. 3/90.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, he was the author in the sense that he was present at the meeting and the gathering when this motion had its genesis. Whether he wrote it or not, I cannot say, Ma'am. But he was in the hall, building, room or whatever from where this document emanated.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I do not think that I can accept that because the fact is that the Motion had to be moved by someone. Can you say whether it was moved by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce during his time?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, it is impossible for me to say that, I can only say that he was on the Executive Council.

The Speaker: That does not mean that he was the author. I think you will have to retract those words, because if he was not the author... that is what you said and that is what he is objecting to.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Well, I will bow to your ruling, Madam Speaker. But I say that he was present in the company...

The Speaker: That is not the point, Honourable Member, you did say that he was the author.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, you have asked me to retract and I will bow to your ruling.

The Speaker: If you retracted what you said, I think you should really apologise if you made an error in that respect.

Mr. Roy Bodden: If I said that he was the author?

The Speaker: All right, please continue—and I think it is time we got back to the substance of Motion No. 10/95.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The substance of the Motion is that as a principle of responsible fiscal management, Motion No. 3/90 could certainly not be entertained as responsible fiscal management.

The Minister further made the point that, "You can write anything on a piece of paper, it is actually the persons who have the privilege of being in power to carry out fiscal management in a responsible way." I agree, but I also make the point that it is also the persons in power who have the privilege of carrying out fiscal management in an irresponsible way.

I would like to quote, in substantiation of that observation, from a column by Morris Cargill who is the senior columnist of The Gleaner, and who has been writing for more than 40 years. He made the reference that, "Alexander Tytler made the following statement about democracy when he wrote The Cycle of Democracy in 1770, six years before the birth of this nation: [that is the United States] 'A democracy cannot exist as a permanent form of government. It can only exist until the voters discover that they can vote themselves largesse from the public treasury. From that moment on the majority always votes for the candidates promising them the most benefits from the public treasury, with the result that a democracy always collapses over loose fiscal policy, always followed by dictatorship.'"

I say that to make the point that while it is true that anything can be written on a piece of paper, it is the persons who have the power and privilege to carry it out; it is equally true that those persons have the power to manage the State's resources in an irresponsible way also.

Reference was made to a comment about the Government being in the red, and the Honourable Minister made the point that there has been nothing but good prudent fiscal management since the National Team's Government. Then I wonder, what is the explanation for the falling of the national reserve from $10 plus million as of the 31st of December, 1992, to $3 plus million a year later on the 31st of December, 1993? I wonder also, what is the explanation for the public debt which stood at $15 plus million as at the 31st of December, 1992 to $27 plus million as at the 31st of December, 1993 (an increase of 75%)? Is this good fiscal management? Is this fiscal responsibility?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, are you rising on a point of order?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: On a point of order, Madam Speaker. I believe the information that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town is giving in respect to the public debt as at the end of December 1992 is not correct.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town, may I hear an explanation?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I copied it from the last Auditor General's Report which was tabled in this House. Unfortunately, I do not have the copy of the report with me but it is open to checking.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, are you disputing the amount?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I do not have the exact figures here for 1992, but I do know from my memory that $15 million as a public debt could never be for 1992, which he is talking about. It may be 1972, but certainly not 1992.

The Speaker: Well, I think we need to get this cleared up. Is there any way that this could be done? I am sure that there must be a copy of the Auditor General's Report readily available.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, may I be allowed to continue my debate in the interim?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, you are challenging this point, is there any way you can find the document to substantiate the quoted figure?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I will take it as my obligation to provide that information to this House, because I am sure the Member is misleading the House.

The Speaker: Well, until such time the Member will continue his debate.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker...

[Hon. Third Official Member rose]

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member, are you rising on a point of order?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Madam Speaker. Just to clarify a point made earlier.

I do not have the exact figure of the public debt, but increase that is reflected on the statement for 1993 shows a loan that was raised by the Government on behalf of Cayman Airways Limited. This, as reported by the Auditor General, would have been a flow-through of funds, and because of the fact that it was guaranteed by the Government, it would have been factored in as part of the public debt. That would be the reason for the increase.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May I be allowed to continue now, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: Yes, please, First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would hope that the answer given by the Honourable Financial Secretary is to the satisfaction of the House and is a resolution of the matter.

There were a number of other comments and queries raised by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce, and I will deal with those in my usual timely fashion.

The Honourable Minister raised a point concerning what he claimed was a glaring omission in the New Zealand Fiscal Responsibility Act, in that he said while there was provision for departure from a certain fiscal path, there was no indication of any return to that fiscal path. I believe he was referring to what was mentioned in The Economist article when it said that the Government had to justify any departure and state how it intended to return.

I will now read from the Fiscal Responsibility Act, 1994, showing that his observation is without foundation.

On page 3 of the Act it states: "The Government may depart from the principles of responsible fiscal management specified in subsection (2) of this section, but when the Government does so --

"(a) Any such departure shall be temporary; and

"(b) The Minister of Finance shall, in accordance with this Act, specify --

"(i) The reasons for the Government's departure from those principles;

"(ii) The approach the Government intends to take to return to those principles; and

"(iii) The period of time that the Government expects to take to return to those principles."

So his comment is without foundation and without justification. I can only say that the reason for such a misunderstanding is that he did not take the time to peruse the Act as thoroughly as he could have.

I have been brought up to understand that the essence of learning is to be able to apply knowledge, so much so that we talk about 'applied' knowledge, pure mathematics and 'applied' mathematics. Applied knowledge in this case has to have its foundation and its tenets in this: If the wheel has already been invented, why should we waste time to re-invent it? If New Zealand (or any other country) has a law or an Act or any form of legislation which we could benefit from, why should we not try to incorporate those sections once it is relevant and appropriate? This Motion simply requests that we consider this to see if there is anything relevant, appropriate and applicable, and do likewise.

But that point escapes the National Team's Government. I will, at a later stage in my debate show why.

It did not surprise me when they got up and indicated that they were not prepared to support the Motion. They have never supported anything the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman or I have brought here. I would have been perhaps the most surprised person in the Cayman Islands if they had said that they were going to accept this even to consider it.

You know, Madam Speaker, the architect of their strategy is the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning. How he was able to read into this request any call for independence escapes my logic. It is a pity that out of the nine degrees he claims to have, and the 30 years' experience in finance, he never took a course in psychology, or abnormal psychology, because he needs to become familiar with the theory of self-denial. That theory has its tenets and foundation in the fact that when you hear someone get up and say repeatedly, 'I am not so-and-so', 'I am not such-and-such', 'I am not standing for this, I have never stood for that', in every audience and every gathering, they are on this trip of denying something—that is the person's foremost wish and desire.

I am led to believe that when he prays (as I know that he does) his prayer must be: 'Lord, would that the Cayman Islands were independent and I was the only educated person, and people like little black Roy Bodden were my slave...'

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Hear, hear! [applauding] I agree with you.

Mr. Roy Bodden: It seems to me, Madam Speaker, that he has a compulsion to talk about not wanting independence—every argument and every motion he weaves that into the debate. This Motion made no mention of that.

I want to quote what he said: "I submit that in my view this Act is attempting to pave the way for this country to become as independent as New Zealand. When you go independent and begin to get Acts as this points out, and you have a sole Minister of Finance (as this law has) is when you need laws of this sort.

"This Motion, and many other motions that have been brought to this House, are being picked up to pave the way (in my view) for the independence of this country. That will never happen because the public neither wants the laws of independent countries, nor the constitutions, nor the powerful ministerial rights that are set out in the laws of independent countries."

That is true! The country does not want that. All the country wants is a Bill of Rights, which he is holding up; all the country wants is people who are prepared to give it fiscal responsibility and fiscal integrity, which I will come to in a moment.

I want to say something else, I have never laid any claims to having nine degrees. I have never laid any claims to having 30 years' experience in high finance. But I have laid claims to having common sense, which that Honourable Minister clearly does not have.

The Speaker: May we have a break for 15 minutes? Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.36 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.56 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I did rise on a point of order, and I did undertake to determine what the true figure is for 1992 as regards public debt. What I hold in my hand is a copy of the Cayman Islands Government Report of Accounts for 1992. For the learned Member for Bodden Town, the Government's obligation is borrowings done directly for Government purposes and borrowings by Statutory Authorities for which Government also issues a guarantee.

The total self-financing loans for 1992 are $27.1 million. The total for public debt (which is borrowed directly by Government) is $15.8 million. So, the total public debt is $43 million.

When we get to 1993, because the previous Government caused us to borrow US$20 million, the public debt then climbs to $54 million. At the end of 1994 the total public debt was $61 million.

I could go on to say that to service that $61 million it only requires less than 6% of our revenue, unlike the position in New Zealand. While the Government had a general reserve of $10 million, what the Member winding up this Bill fails to say is that there was a $7 million deficit in the current account. There is no need for single entry bookkeeping. The need is to account properly.

At the end of 1992, only $3 million was available in the General Reserve. At the present time that General Reserve is over $4 million.

As regards irresponsibility of this Government, I think his facts are totally wrong.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am so happy that the Minister for Tourism—and former Honourable Financial Secretary—so vividly and clearly confirmed what I said in regard to the position of the public debt.

May I now continue with my debate?

This afternoon, I am naming the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning the 'Honourable Minister of Independence'. I had named him 'Brutus' before, but I am changing that name now to 'Minister of Independence' because every time he gets up it is clear that he has an obsession with independence. He said, "I am not frustrated over the politics of the country. I would never do anything that is in any way irresponsible from a fiscal point of view. I have found (and as I lay the accounts of Cayman Airways tomorrow, they will see what fiscal responsibility is all about). So what is being brought now is but of a miserable attempt to introduce something that I submit, practically no one in this House really knows anything about..." [Official Hansard Report 14 June, 1995].

I want to ask the Minister of Independence: who was responsible for purchasing the Hawley Estate? Is that fiscal responsibility? Who was responsible for paying $880,000 out of public funds for a parcel of land transferred the same day it was bought for $140,000? Is that fiscal responsibility?

Who was responsible for using public funds to have 41 private driveways paved? Is that fiscal responsibility?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, could we just leave all of that behind and just deal with the subject of the Private Member's Motion?

Mr. Roy Boddén: Madam Speaker, I am merely commenting on points raised, and I have but one point to make with the permission of the Chair because mention of it was made.

"So, Madam Speaker, I quote, 'in real life what we come back to is really the integrity of the people who run the finances of the country.'" [Hon. Truman Boddén Official Hansard Report 14 September 1995]

I wish to make the point that I have no facilities for people to hide ill-gotten gains; I have no facilities for registering companies. Can some other people say the same? Let us not talk about integrity, because it may be that too many people around here live in glass houses and should not throw stones.

Fiscal responsibility, as called for in the Motion, is about living up to our obligations as the trustees of the people. It is about making the system open and accessible. There should be no private nooks or crannies, there should be no need to get overly defensive.

It is common in literature now to talk about political correctness. Fiscal Responsibility is about political correctness. I would just like to make the point that it is what the people of this country expect, it is what they demand and it is what they should get.

The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning (whom I now call the Minister of Independence) also made the point that when he laid the accounts of Cayman Airways, we would see what fiscal responsibility is all about. I took note that he boasted of making a $1.5 million profit. If we are talking about fiscal responsibility, and if we are talking about integrity... I draw the attention of the Honourable House to page 5 of that Report. I would like to read:

"However, as at 31 December 1994, the Company's current liabilities exceeded its current assets by $2,245,379 and the Company remains dependent on an annual subsidy from Government (currently $4,761,905) to allow it to continue as a going concern. Government has indicated that its current policy is to continue to support the Company in the foreseeable future by the provision of an annual subsidy of approximately $4.8 million.

"In addition, Government resolved in August 1994 to assume $2,374,111 of trade payables owing by the Company to the Cayman Islands Civil Aviation Authority and Customs. Amounts assumed by Government have been reflected in the accompanying balance sheet as "Share subscriptions" pending the issue of further shares to Government.

"Government has also issued guarantees to the Company's principal bankers to secure borrowings aggregating $6.5 million, which at the 31 December 1994, comprised a term loan repayable over a period of five years (see note 7) and an overdraft facility."

Further, if we are talking about fiscal responsibility and integrity, I would draw the attention of the Honourable House to page 10, 'Contingent Liabilities':

"The Company is involved in a number of claims and investigations arising from operations in the United States, passenger injury and breach of contract. Management is actively contesting all such claims. The outcome and potential liability to the Company, if any, in respect of these matters cannot presently be determined but, in the opinion of management, it is unlikely that any such liability will be material to the Company's financial position."

In conclusion (if we are still talking about fiscal responsibility and integrity):

"Several Government departments and entities controlled by Government provide Cayman Airways Limited with certain services at nominal or no cost to the Company. The Company provides officers and employees of certain of these departments and entities with subsidised air travel.

"Due to the nature of the services provided, it is not possible to quantify the effect of these transactions on the financial statements of the Company for the year ended 31 December 1994." [page 11]

I contend that this Motion calling for an adoption similar to the New Zealand Fiscal Responsibility Act would eliminate that sort of double talk. How, on the one hand, can we talk about profit of $1.5 million, and then read about liabilities, subsidies and law suits?

I might only be a single entry bookkeeper, but if talk of that is not Alice in Wonderland economics, then tell me what it is—and they talk about fiscal responsibility and integrity. It comes back to a point I made: it is not accurate, nor is it politically correct. One of these days (sooner rather than later) we will get to the truth of things.

While on this point of fiscal integrity and fiscal responsibility, let me ask: Why did the bank recently depart from their usual practise and request the Government to give a guarantee which impacts directly on the Treasury, when this has not been the case in the past? As far as I am concerned, there are many loopholes.

It leads me to the observation that when this Parliament was populated by extension cords or, as my colleague the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman now terms them, 'rockers', this Honourable House could look rather smug and even succeed fooling itself. It has become obvious recently (sometimes painfully so) that for the first time this Honourable House and our country has entered the Rubicon, a dividing line which separates those of us who believe that fiscal responsibility and integrity are politically correct from those of us who believe that there should be limits on certain things.

I contend that the realists today are those people who hold those beliefs. The realists today are those people who are prepared to subject themselves to that kind of scrutiny, whether they use the New Zealand Fiscal Responsibility Act, 1994, as a model, or whether they use some other law as a model. The essence of representation comes down to the point that the people's representatives should be accountable. Let the records show that that is the position upon which I stand.

I did not come here to try to persuade anyone on the National Team, because even if I was correct—and they knew I was correct—they have their own motives for not listening. I will not try to persuade them.

I will only say this: let the records show that those of us who stand for this kind of transparency in Government are the true representatives of the people. I rest my case.

The Speaker: The question is Private Member's Motion No. 10/95. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES AND ONE AUDIBLE NO.

The Speaker: I think someone went astray somewhere along the line. May I put the question once more, please, Members?

Private Member's Motion 10/95. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May we have a division please, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: You certainly may.
Madam Clerk.

Clerk:

DIVISION NO. 10/95

Private Member's Motion 10/95

AYES: 3

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts
Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
Mr. Roy Bodden

NOES: 12

Hon. James M. Ryan
Hon. Richard H. Coles
Hon. George A. McCarthy
Hon. W. McKeever Bush
Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson

Hon. John B. McLean
Hon. Anthony S. Eden
Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr
Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks
Mrs. B. Thompson Murphy
Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell
Mrs. Edna M. Moyle

ABSENT: 2

Hon. Truman M. Bodden
Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson

The Speaker: The result of the division is three Ayes, 12 Noes. The Motion therefore fails.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 10/95 NEGATIVED BY MAJORITY.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 11/95.
The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 11/95

PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 11/95 entitled, Public Utilities Commission, standing in my name, which reads as follows:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government consider establishing, by law, a Public Utilities Commission to supervise, review and regulate water, electricity and telephone services in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion 11/95, having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate.
The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This marks the third attempt to have the Government accept this Motion, to have a Public Utilities Commission established in the Cayman Islands. I think if recent events stand as any indication, the public can certainly be well served by the establishment of a Public Utilities Commission.

As I understand it, a Public Utilities Commission is a common institution in many developed and Third World countries. In the instances where the commissions have been effective, the purposes served are as follows: The commission serves to be a buffer between those providing the utilities and the consumers; it serves often as disseminating point for information regarding the best way to utilise and take advantage of the services offered by the company. Importantly, too, such commissions serve as sounding boards for the policies of the companies by virtue of the fact that certain undertakings, such as significant raises in utility rates (while not being totally dependent upon the Commission) have, in most cases, to meet the approval of the Commission.

In the fourth instance, the commissions serve as panels for settling differences between consumers and the company. In each case where there is a Utilities Commission, the Commission has to respect the legal and binding agreement between the provider of the utilities and the Government (if they are different entities) and when there is variance between the provider and the consumer.

I do not understand why the case for a public utilities commission has to take three attempts and perhaps more in this jurisdiction. Even in the United States, which is the model most countries of the world seek to emulate, there are utility commissions and regulatory bodies.

Some time ago, we experienced what was unusual and uncommon in the service of Cayman Caribbean Utilities Company. It is my understanding that apart from the inconvenience, there was a destruction of items caused by the surges. It is also my understanding that there is no regular mechanism for the replacement of destroyed items in instances where this destruction occurs. So, many times a consumer is left to fend for themselves with no recourse but to complain to the company for replacement or reimbursement. It stands to reason that in such a cases the complainer is not likely to meet with success because they are complaining to Caesar about Caesar.

One morning, during the period of service interruption, I had the unfortunate luck of having some damage done to something in my home. On my way down into George Town I was speaking with some people, and I learned that one gentleman had his water pump burned, another told me that an overhead fan in his bedroom had been damaged; another one made mention of some other item in his house that was damaged. When I got to my office I made a call and reported the damage to one of the officers. I asked whether there was any prescribed way to make a claim. I was told that claims could be made and in many instances they were accepted, but that did not mean that there was going to be a reimbursement or replacement. What disturbed me was that I got the distinct impression that if I pressed the case the damaged equipment in my house would be repaired or replaced, but there would not likely be any toleration of the claims made by the other persons. I enquired whether it was being done because of the office I hold. I was surprised because I took great care to explain that it was a refrigerator that was damaged in my case which is bound to be more expensive than a water pump or an overhead fan (the other piece of equipment might have been a clock/radio, an alarm clock or some other electrical appliance).

Two things are important in this instance: Firstly, there is no independent body which is satisfactory to the claimant which would also be satisfactory to the entity that the claim is being made against. It seemed that if I were not Roy Bodden, perhaps my claim would not have been entertained either. I did not press my claim because I really did not need to, and would not have, out of principle, knowing that mine would have been entertained and I would have to face the constituents who were perhaps in a less able position than myself to have their cases examined. I demurred the offer to have my things examined with a possible reimbursement or replacement.

I wonder how many people are out-of-pocket because they have to replace items which are damaged through no fault of their own? I wonder how many people are out-of-pocket because of the nonexistence of a commission which could advise them as to the futility of making certain claims?

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30

The Speaker: Honourable Member, is it now 4.30, I understood it was the wish that we may conclude this evening. If so, would someone please move the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) in order that we may continue towards conclusion?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker...

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of order. This is the first that I am hearing that the House is to go on past the usual closing hour. Personally, I cannot see the need for it. We have been here in the House but a few days on this occasion. I do not think it would harm anyone drastically to come back on Monday to finish the work.

The decision has been taken (the usual one), I dare say, by the Government to do things this way. The two Members of the Opposition are not Members where the Government is concerned it seems, and I certainly object to it.

I had an appointment at 4.30 with the Governor. I do object to this whole process, Madam Speaker, because the process of the House seems to operate on the whims and fancies of the Government and this is just another instance of it.

The Speaker: I should say that I did tell Members that the House would not be sitting on Monday. If we adjourn now it would have to be until Tuesday.

It is now 4.30, what is the wish of Members? Would anyone like to move a motion? The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would move a motion that we take the adjournment now and resume on Tuesday. I, too, had an appointment with His Excellency the Governor this afternoon. It is an appointment which my colleague, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and I would like to keep because it affords us an opportunity to meet with His Excellency before he departs for retirement.

The Speaker: Are you moving the Motion that the House do now adjourn?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder to the Motion?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I beg to second it, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Motion before the House is duly moved and seconded that the House do now adjourn and resume on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

[Off the microphone] Does anybody want a division?

The House is accordingly adjourned until Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock... the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeewa Bush: Madam Speaker, I thought you asked whether the Ayes supported the motion.

The Speaker: I said the "Noes have it."

Hon. W. McKeewa Bush: But, Madam Speaker, we...

Hon. John B. McLean: But if the Noes have it...

The Speaker: Yes, I did say the "Ayes have it", that is what I said. And I said the "House is accordingly now adjourned."

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, if I may say this whole side said "No", and I heard three people over the other side say "Aye". So, could we have a division?

The Speaker: You certainly may. Madam Clerk.

Clerk:

DIVISION NO. 11/95

NOES: 7

Hon. James M. Ryan
Hon. Richard H. Coles
Hon. George A. McCarthy
Hon. W. McKeewa Bush
Hon. John B. McLean
Hon. Anthony S. Eden
Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.

AYES: 6

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks
Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts
Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell
Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
Mr. Roy Bodden
Mrs. Edna M. Moyle

ABSENT: 4

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson

Hon. Truman M. Bodden
Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson
Mrs. Berna L. Murphy

The Speaker: The result of the Division is six Ayes, seven Noes. Accordingly, the House will not adjourn until Tuesday.

Before I do make that declaration, the matter of Private Members' Motions is here, the Members have not finished, they have an appointment with the Governor. Irrespective of what the vote was, I think that some cognisance should have been taken of the fact that there were two Private Members' Motion; one to be moved by the Member for North Side, and this one is not finished.

Are we now saying that we are not coming back on Tuesday to finish the business of the House?

Hon. W. McKeewa Bush: Madam Speaker, as you were made aware, the Government felt that with a small amount of business left on the Order Paper, we could have completed business this afternoon.

We talked to Members and, as I understood it, most Members agreed and we went with the majority. That is the way it stands.

The Speaker: I do appreciate that, but the fact is that you knew that these Members had their business. Did you speak to either of those Members who were in the midst of their business?

Hon. W. McKeewa Bush: No, Madam Speaker, they were... normally as it is we said... so at the minute here. But I did not know that they had an appointment and we set our business accordingly, and the majority must carry.

The Speaker: Of course, I am not saying that, but I must make the point clear that I think that it was not a fair deal to the other Members.

The House is accordingly adjourned sine die.

AT 4.38 PM THE HOUSE ADJOURNED SINE DIE

NOTE: On 18th September a notice was sent to Honourable Members by the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly stating that, under Standing Order 9, the Honourable Speaker was summoning a Meeting of the Legislative Assembly on 21st September, 1995, to deal with the unfinished business.

SPECIAL MEETING
THURSDAY
21 SEPTEMBER, 1995
10.10 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Fourth Elected Member for George Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order! Proceedings are resumed.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SPEAKER

APOLOGY

The Speaker: First of all, I have an apology for absence from the Leader of Government Business.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS
OR AFFIRMATIONS

The Speaker: Administration of Oaths of Affirmation to Mr. Donovan Ebanks to be the Temporary First Official Member.

Mr. Ebanks, would you come forward please?

OATH OF AFFIRMATION

Mr. Donovan Ebanks, MBE, JP

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I, Donovan Ebanks, do solemnly and sincerely affirm and declare that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II her heirs and successors according to law.

The Speaker: Would you take your seat? I welcome you to this meeting of the Legislative Assembly.

Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Questions No. 175, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 175

No. 175: Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what were Government's reasons for granting Ellerbe Becket the contract to design the new hospital.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The answer: For many years the need for additional and improved health care facilities has been recognised in these islands. The previous Government's proposal to develop split-site facilities did not meet the approval of a majority of the Elected Members of this honourable House or the majority of the people of these islands. Following their victory in the 1992 General Elections, the National Team Government exercised its mandate and stopped the construction of the Dr. Hortor, so-called, Hospital. To fulfill our election manifesto promise to "ensure the best medical care possible and feasible in the Cayman Islands", Government, early in 1994, authorised a planning study resulting in a report entitled "Master Planning Study for George Town Hospital—September, 1994". After review by Executive Council, Government instructed that Phases 1, 2 and, later 3, be implemented.

The first major step in implementation is the appointment of a consultant to carry out design functions and prepare drawings, specifications and tender documents leading to award of a contract for construction. It was early recognised that the scope of this work was beyond the capability of the local Architectural/Engineering firms and thus an offshore consultant would be required.

A few years ago, a pre-qualification exercise was conducted for a similar project and eight firms were chosen to submit proposals. When the need for a Consultant for the current project was recognised, approval was sought from the Central Tenders Committee to accept the results of the previous pre-qualifications and to issue requests for proposals to the same eight firms. The rationale was that if we were to conduct another pre-qualification exercise, we might come up with firms just as good, but it was highly unlikely that we would find any that were better. The Central Tenders Committee concurred. As we checked the firms to determine if they were interested in making submissions, it was discovered that one of the firms had bought out another. Consequently, the firm that had scored ninth on the previous exercise was moved up one notch to maintain eight and, subsequently, on 7th February, 1995, request for proposal documents stipulating submissions prior to 4 PM 17th March, 1995, were sent to eight firms, including Ellerbe Becket. All eight submitted proposals prior to the stipulated time.

At 4.30 PM, 17th March, the Central Tenders Committee opened the packages and delivered the copies of the Technical Proposals to a sub-committee appointed by the Health Services Complex Steering Committee to perform the evaluation. The sub-committee was made up of representatives from: the Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation; the Health Services Department; the Finance and Development Department; the Public Works Department; and the Project Manager.

It should be emphasised that the evaluators worked independently. There was no consultation until evaluations were complete and no scores were changed as a result of discussions.

Ellerbe Becket was placed first by all five evaluators and there was a considerable scoring gap between them and the second place firm. Because of the unanimity of the evaluators, the Steering Committee recommended that the proposal of Ellerbe Becket Incorporated, working in conjunction with their local affiliate, Chalmers Gibbs Martin Joseph, be accepted.

After reviewing in detail a Report and Recommendations document to ensure that Government's proper procedures were followed, the Central Tenders Committee accepted this recommendation.

I have answered this question at length to demonstrate that this decision was made in the proper way and for the proper reasons without any political interference whatsoever.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who is contributing to the development of our new hospital. In particular, I record my gratitude to Mr. Dennis La Gatta, of Ellerbe Becket, who has been responsible for coordinating the many groups involved and who has very ably steered the project to its present advanced stage where the day-to-day management is carried now out by the local affiliates, Chalmers Gibbs Martin Joseph. I understand Mr. La Gatta, is moving on to new pastures, and I know that he will be able to look back with pride on his part in providing the Cayman Islands with a fine new hospital.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Madam Speaker, would the Honourable Minister tell the House if the stipulations to bid were advertised overseas, and where?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Madam Speaker. As I said in the first part of the answer, with the concurrence of the Central Tenders Committee, they agreed to eight firms which were short-listed.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Would the Honourable Minister tell the House what the legal commitments of the architects are to ensure that this job is completed on time and within budget?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, I do not have that document with me, but I am sure it would have been part of the process and included in the documentation. I could check to see, after verifying with the Legal Department if this can be made public.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister state if this is a normal procedure for the Central Tenders Committee, in that the tenders were short-listed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, not necessarily. But as I said, considering that earlier advertisements were placed in wide circulation and the eight firms had been chosen by the Committee; after conferring with them, to go back through the process would have probably set us back another two or three months in getting a much needed facility underway.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Can the Honourable Minister inform us whether the contract to construct the hospital will be advertised abroad?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug

Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, No. I think earlier in this sitting I mentioned that three companies have submitted their interest and are now on record.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 176, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 176

No. 176: Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what Government's reasons were for selecting Chalmers Gibbs Martin Joseph as the local consultants to design the new hospital.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: When the eight overseas consultants were requested to submit their proposals for the design and construction of the new hospital, they were advised that they should include a local affiliate. Of the eight overseas consultants who responded, four named Chalmers Gibbs Martin Joseph.

The independent evaluating team unanimously selected Ellerbe Becket's proposal as being the best by a significant margin. Ellerbe Becket in their proposal identified Chalmers Gibbs Martin Joseph as their local affiliate. Therefore, when the contract was awarded to Ellerbe Becket, the firm of Chalmers Gibbs Martin Joseph was selected as local consultant.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Madam Speaker, can the Honourable Minister inform us if by any chance there was any reverse psychology used in this selection process? This is very important to me from a political perspective.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, as I said, because of the notification that Ellerbe Becket would need to be affiliated with a local company, we were compelled as to whom we could select. However as we got into the process the firm selected to do the master planning study was Chalmers Gibbs Martin and Joseph who had extensive understanding and comprehension of what was presently on the hospital site. This, I feel, was one of the reasons why Ellerbe Becket may have chosen that firm knowing that going to another firm would have set them back considerably, perhaps into next year.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say what role the Public Works Department has played in the design, etcetera, of the new Hospital?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, at the moment they are members of the Steering Committee and the Project Manager, who I must say is an extremely capable person, works out of the Department's facility.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 177, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 177

No. 177: Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what action has been taken by Government regarding Private Member's Motion No. 8/94 entitled, "Compulsory Photo Identification Cards in the Cayman Islands" which was passed unanimously by the Legislative Assembly on 1st June, 1994.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Madam Speaker, the matter of photo identification cards is being considered in conjunction with other matters related to voter identification and the introduction of a 9-1-1 emergency system in order to avoid duplication and to achieve maximum effectiveness.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Member is in a position to give an exact time-frame for the identification system?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Madam Speaker, I can only give the response that it will be done sometime in 1996. I cannot be more precise than that at this time.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say if this will be done in conjunction with the election photo registration cards?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Madam Speaker, it is being considered in conjunction with the election photo registration cards, and whether it will be done as part of the process is yet to be decided.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Madam Speaker, can the Honourable Minister inform us whether there is a system in place to prioritise work done in the Legal Department?

The Speaker: I am afraid that that is not part of the question. You would have to address that to the Honourable Second Official Member in another sitting.

The next question is No. 178, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 178

No. 178: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state the present status of the construction of the launching ramp at The Village, Little Cayman.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Construction of the launching ramp at The Village, Little Cayman, is scheduled to commence in mid-October and is to be completed by mid-November.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if there are funds provided and sufficient workers to start the work as envisaged at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, Madam Speaker, there is $16,000 provided and it is proposed to do the work with labour from the Public Works Department in Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 179, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 179

No. 179 Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if emergency supplies and equipment for hurricane preparedness in Little Cayman have been acquired.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, equipment and supplies which have been acquired include: stand-by generator, five days supply of fuel; cots and blankets for 25 persons; 4,000 gallons of water; and food and basic medical supplies.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Member say where such supplies are stored in Little Cayman?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Madam Speaker, it is my understanding that all the supplies are at the shelter.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Member say if the shelter at this time is indeed completed, and where in the shelter would the supplies be at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Madam Speaker, my understanding is that the shelter is completed, but I am unable to say precisely where in the building the supplies would be located.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would like to ask the Honourable Member if he could give an undertaking to positively identify the accuracy of the information which he has no doubt been provided with. During the most recent visit by the Chief Secretary, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I (which was just a few weeks ago), there did not appear to be those supplies in the shelter at that time.

The Speaker: I am sure the Honourable Temporary First Official Member will give that undertaking.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Most certainly, Ma'am.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 180, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 180

No. 180: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is the position of the improvements to the West End channel dock in Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: In the 1995 approved Budget there are no funds allocated for improvements to the West End channel dock in Cayman Brac. There are funds allocated for improvements to the West End channel under subhead 51-113—Harbours and Docks Development, 09-02-002. These funds will be used to widen the inner reef access to the channel located west of the Tiara Beach Hotel. The work is to begin the first week of November and will be completed by the end of November.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Member say if this work is being contracted out, or will it be undertaken by the Public Works Department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Madam Speaker, bids will be obtained from the two locally operating companies with capability to do this type of work.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 181, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 181

No. 181: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is the current complement of the Cayman Islands Civil Service.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The complement of the Civil Service as of the 8th of September 1995, was 2,120 Officers.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say what the complement was at the inception of the adjusting exercise undertaken earlier?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I can give an indication that the complement at the end of December 1992 (which was prior to the exercise the Member is referring to which took place in 1993), was 1,701 posts.

But I should explain that that figure, at the 31st December, 1992, would have reflected the existing posts of the Health Services Authority.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable Temporary First Official Member will be able to say whether the complement today is the largest complement that has ever existed in the Service?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, Madam Speaker. I think most statistics only go in one direction. (Members' laughter)

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Temporary First Official Member state what numbers in this complement are due to the addition of the fifth Ministry?

The Speaker: I do not know if the Honourable Temporary First Official Member could do that at this time, as this was not part of the original question. But if he would like to, he can give an undertaking to supply it at a future date...

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Certainly, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say if this complement includes both those people on temporary employment as well as the permanent and pensionable establishment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 182, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 182

Withdrawn

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would crave the leave of the House to withdraw this question since I had the opportunity of raising it at the most recent Finance Committee Meeting.

The Speaker: The question is that question No. 182 be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 182 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 183, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 183

No. 183: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to state what progress the Government has made in its effort to alleviate the financial burden of the high cost of property insurance.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The high cost of local property insurance first began to become a financial burden in 1993. In October of that year Government appointed a Task Force to investigate the problem. The Task Force concluded that the high cost was driven by factors largely outside the influence of either local insurers or Government, a principal factor being the reinsurance market upon which local insurers are heavily dependent.

The Task Force also recommended that Government commission a Probable Maximum Loss study of the Islands which, if satisfactory in its conclusions, might assist local insurers in securing more favourable reinsurance terms and assist Government in the placement of its own insurance programme. That study has been completed and is now available to the industry. Its conclusions are largely favourable.

During 1995 the local insurance market has gone through a major downward pricing movement due partly to lower reinsurance costs and partly to competition. Current rates appear to be running at between 50 percent and 60 percent of those for the last year. It is safe to say that high cost is not today the problem it was a year ago.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say if this investigation is a conclusion or whether there are mechanisms in place for onward monitoring of the system?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, it is hoped that in the first instance the report that will be made available to local insurers (some of them have already received copies) will generate a dialogue, point out the scientific findings of the study, and also put the department in a position to carry out ongoing monitoring of the arrangements.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May I ask the Honourable Member if that report is going to be made available to Members of this House, or is it a report which will be privy to the insurance industry only?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, it can be, and will be, made available to Members of the House, but it would be useful for the industry to review the findings of the report and, in turn, to submit their views to Government. When it is tabled in this Legislature, hopefully during the Budget Session, the Government will then be in a position to put forward the views and findings of the industry about the report.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Member will be able to explain the method used to come to the conclusion that the current rates appear to be 50 to 60 percent of those for last year.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, that conclusion has been arrived at based on the findings of the Financial Services Provision Department.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 184, standing in the name of Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 184

No. 184: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture whether the Housing Development Corporation's mortgage portfolio has been sold.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: No, the Housing Development Corporation's mortgage portfolio has not been sold.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
Will the Honourable Minister be able to say whether it is still up for sale?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, we said it was many times.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
Will the Honourable Minister be able to say if Government is actively seeking a buyer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I thought I just said that.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
Will the Honourable Minister be able to say if there have been any offers to buy the portfolios by any outside organisations?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I think that answer is already public, but if he means people from within the islands, yes.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
In the series of answers that have been given, I get the distinct impression that I am going to have to pull teeth in order to get any answers.... Nevertheless, how has the Government arrived at a price they think would be an acceptable one?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the Member has no need to pull his own teeth. All these answers are already public knowledge as I have answered them in the House. But the Government has not yet arrived at any figure.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
Can the Honourable Minister state if there have been any offers, locally or overseas?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: No, Madam Speaker, there have been no formal offers, however interest has been expressed.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 185, standing in the name of Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 185

No. 185: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to explain why the $400,000 approved in the 1994 Budget for the specific purpose of land acquisition for the Harquail By-pass Road was not used for this purpose.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: There was no sum of $400,000 approved in the 1994 Budget for the specific purpose of land acquisition for the Harquail By-pass Road and, as such, my Ministry cannot explain why it was not used for this purpose.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 186, standing in the name of Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 186

No. 186: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable

Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works whether Government has identified a new location for the Mosquito Research and Control Unit.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The newly re-instituted Mosquito Research and Control Unit is to be accommodated within the new Department of Environment building presently under construction. The construction calls for the building to be completed by the end of January 1996.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As a matter of interest, will the Honourable Minister be able to say if in this inclusion there are any special requirements for the state of being for the building on completion for the Department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I wonder if the Member will repeat that question.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, I cannot remember it myself!

(Members' laughter)

The Speaker: The next question is No. 187, standing in the name of Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 187

No. 187: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce what amount has been spent by the Department of Tourism on advertising this year.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The amount spent by the Department of Tourism on advertising in North America up to the end of August, 1995, was CI$4,321,048.94.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Can the Honourable Minister state what percentage of the figure was allocated for Cayman Airways?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, the calculation that has been done indicates 79 percent.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Can the Honourable Minister state if this is more than the previous year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, may I mention that all of the advertising (as I know it) on behalf of Cayman Airways is done by the Department of Tourism. I do not believe that Cayman Airways has a marketing programme or advertising programme as they did in previous years. But the answer to the Lady Member's question is, yes, it has increased in 1995.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 188, standing in the name of Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 188

No. 188: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce what was the cost of the extra section of Cayman Airways Limited for the recent "Cayman Night" in Houston by the Department of or Ministry for Tourism.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The Department of Tourism did not charter Cayman Airways Limited to do an extra section for the Cayman Night in Houston.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister state then if this is the normal scheduled flight of Cayman Airways to Houston?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, my recollection is that Cayman Airways decided on its own to put on an extra section.

The Speaker: The last question is No. 189, standing in the name of Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 189

No. 189: Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if any Civil Servant was involved in an accident in July while driving a Government motor vehicle.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Ten Civil Servants were involved in motor vehicle accidents in July 1995. Seven of the accidents resulted in no repairs being required; two resulted in damages requiring repairs; and one resulted in damage to the vehicle which was deemed uneconomic to repair.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member state in general terms, Government's policy regarding civil servants being involved in accidents and damage vehicles?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Madam Speaker, the general policy is that if an officer is responsible for the damage then he is held financially accountable for it.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, will the Honourable Member tell this House if in any of the seven accidents the driver was arrested on suspicion for driving whilst intoxicated?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, Madam Speaker, in one accident the driver was arrested on suspicion of driving under the influence of alcohol.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member state what will be the outcome of the situation where the damage was uneconomical to repair?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Madam Speaker, in the case of that accident two charges have been made against the driver and internal action will follow the adjudication of those criminal charges.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Member will state what action is required under the General Orders governing the Civil Service when incidents of this nature happen?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Madam Speaker, the basic action that is required is for the Head of Department to report the matter and his recommendations to the Financial Secretary as to how the case should be resolved. At the same time, in instances where criminal charges result, internal action is always delayed pending the outcome of those charges.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The report that comes from the Head of Department, does that go to Personnel Department as well?

The Speaker: Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, Madam Speaker, it would be communicated to the Personnel Department.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. The next item, Statement by Minister of the Government.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

STATEMENT BY MEMBER OF THE GOVERNMENT

ANNOUNCEMENT OF CAYFEST A CULTURAL EXPOSITION WITH AN EMPHASIS ON CAYMAN'S YOUTH

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Earlier this year I announced my Ministry's intention to mount a major festival with an emphasis on youth. It is my strong belief, one that I know to be shared by many, that we must continually seek to provide our young people with opportunities to develop and exhibit their abilities in as many different spheres as possible, and to funnel their considerable energies into activities which promote healthy bodies, minds and spirits.

This past summer, at both the CARIFTA Games and the Shell Cup and other sports events, our young people made us proud with their dedication, discipline and commitment to team and country. Their efforts should continue to be encouraged and nurtured in every way possible.

Creative pursuits and cultural activities have always been a vital part of the Caymanian life-style. In the not-so-distant past, events such as kitchen dances, garden parties, dramatic presentations, concerts and other celebrations at various times during the year were customary in every district and much anticipated by all Caymanians, young and old.

My Ministry, in partnership with the Cayman National Cultural Foundation, which falls under my Ministry, believe the time is now ripe for an annual cultural exposition with an emphasis on youth, which will provide an environment where Caymanians, and in particular the youth of Cayman, will be given the opportunity to be involved in the fullest range of cultural expression. Among other things, there will be choir performances and presentations and competitions in dance, music, story telling, drama, painting, sculpture, ceramics and jewellery design, and in traditional activities such as rope making, thatching, basket weaving and cooking. This cultural exposition is to be called CAYFEST.

The purpose of CAYFEST will be multifold:

1. As a natural progression from the National Children's Festival of the Arts (NCFA), it will provide creative outlets and incentives for youth and other artists of varying ages, to express themselves and to gain wider exposure for their talents.

2. Though CAYFEST we will be able to present to the Caymanian and visiting population, entertainment in the form of diverse activities in the arts, and a celebration of youth and of the wealth of talent in the Cayman Islands.

3. It will also stimulate further activity in the arts, by the widest possible cross section of Caymanians striving for artistic excellence.

4. To encourage the fullest participation of the public, CAYFEST events will take place in a variety of venues across the country, including district halls, performance centres and outdoor venues.

CAYFEST Showcase, slated for Friday, December 15th, and Saturday, December 16th of this year, will give Caymanians a preview of what the full-fledged event will be like, with performances of drama and story telling at the Harquail Theatre on the Friday evening and a cultural panorama at the Lions Centre on Saturday. These components staged in December will serve to introduce the idea of a month-long cultural exposition in April 1996.

I encourage all Caymanians and others who reside here to give their support to this endeavour and to become involved to whatever extent possible to ensure the success of CAYFEST.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 11/95

PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Prior to events of Friday last, I was outlining some of the merits I consider a Public Utilities Commission would have, and some of the positive ways in which it could benefit the community. Let me say that the merits of this Commission would not only lie in improvement of services to the consumer, or affording the consuming public an avenue by which to address shortcomings, queries, or concerns; but would also serve to enable the company to provide the most effective service while becoming aware of the concerns of the consuming public, as and when these concerns arise. It would therefore enable them to be in the best position to provide service while redressing any grievances.

The call for a Public Utilities Commission, while at this time coming from the Opposition Backbench Members (the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and I) did not have its origin in our efforts. The records of this honourable House will show that the origin came in 1989 from the Member who is now the Minister for Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture, who now sits as a member of the Board of Directors of the Caribbean Utilities Company.

The call for this has, from time to time, received widespread support from Members of this House other than the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I, as the Hansards will show. I am anxious to hear how the Government is going to deal with the request this Motion brings. I would like to quote from the Hansard of 12th March, 1992, in which the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning had this to say regarding this request. I quote:

"I regard electricity, and I think the people here regard it as an absolute necessity in this day and age. It is something that has to be paid for promptly, I should say, by people who use it. Government has a very heavy duty upon it when they grant a franchise to ensure, firstly, that there are reasonable review periods, and I use the word reasonable in relation to certain major areas of the franchise if it is going to be over a long period of time. Secondly, notwithstanding its right to review aspects of it periodically, it does everything possible to protect the consumer."

Continuing, Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister said further: "I feel, and I have supported a motion, and I know I have done so in the Public Accounts Committee by recommending that some type of a commission be set up to deal with the problems that consumers may have with monopoly companies."

It can readily be seen that from time to time other Members—including present Ministers of Government—saw the necessity and the efficacy of institutions, such as this commission which the Motion now seeks to have in force.

I would like to say that I vividly recall the incident that the Honourable Minister is talking about, because it was under my chairmanship of the Public Accounts Committee that we had in-depth discussions about the need for a Utilities Commission based on the Auditor General's Report at that time.

The author (and this time when I use the word "author" I can substantiate) of this move is now the Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture. He brought this motion to the floor of the House on September 12, 1989. He spoke at length (as he is known to do) not only about his position, but also about the reason why he thought it necessary that we have the Commission. I have selected some of the most important points from his debate which I would like to share, if the Chair so permits.

I shall begin quoting again from the Hansard. I quote: "I believe in having some control of these essential services in a monopoly position." [He had just made mention of the Caribbean Utilities Company and Cable and Wireless.] "I believe that a proper Utilities Commission can help this country." [He went on] "The Commission I envisaged would be charged with the responsibility of keeping a constant watch to ensure the highest overall efficiency possible so as to prevent unnecessary or over inflated costs. And the final responsibility would rest to fix rates of returns in line with the rate warranted in such operations. Bearing in mind the fundamental fact that these utilities are sole franchises, that is an advantage that no other company in these islands have."

Madam Speaker, let me take a moment to outline the position from which I make this request. I recognise that it is true that this is a monopoly, it is true that this franchise offers certain advantages to the holders. But I am not coming down extremely hard against that because I am familiar with the history of the operations of the Utilities Company in this country. I appreciate the fact that it only operated successfully when it reverted to private hands, because while it was owned by the Government there were certain problems in its operation which I understand had their genesis in the Government being unable to collect the fees which were charged. So let me state that I appreciate it.

I am not speaking from the point of view that the franchise is, in any way, to be withdrawn or curtailed from those who have it now, but, rather, that while they hold the monopoly position they bear the responsibility not only of providing services (which they have until recently provided an exceptional service), but also to deal with legitimate complaints from consumers regarding the damage or destruction of their electrical items. So, over and beyond the provision of uninterrupted service, the provider has an obligation to afford the consumer some kind of recourse for their concerns and complaints.

Let me now continue in my quotation of the Minister for Youth. He said, and I quote: "A Commission would have the power to hold public enquiries. In exercising its powers they should be operating in a semi-judicial manner. Any person would have the right to appeal on a point of law or where any findings appear contrary to any evidence which might be brought out in an enquiry. It should be seen that every consideration is given to ensure the rights of the public are preserved."

"I would hope any commission set up would have power to ensure the services rendered by a utility as satisfactory and rates are reasonable. Also to assist the Commission in fulfilling its tasks it should be given the power to enquire into the nature and extent of utility services and to determine the standards which must be maintained in relation to such services."

"It should also have the power to negotiate with the utilities companies any rates to be charged. This should be one of the very pertinent duties of the Commission."

I agree that the foregoing should be within the parameters of the Commission. I agree that the Commission should have as one of its primary functions a responsibility other than investigation into rates, that responsibility being a primary consideration for the welfare of the consuming public. Let me say that in moving the Motion I am not necessarily preoccupied with the Commission being in a position to review rates set. I do not see the Commission which I advocate as a rate haggler primarily. I see their role as a kind of watchdog body that only comes into play at certain critical periods. I would not expect that the Commission would have any responsibility to go in and tell the utilities company (which is a private company) how to run the day-to-day affairs of the company.

I would rather expect that the Utilities Commission would be there to receive complaints, review these complaints most effectively on a periodical basis, whether it is every three months, depending on the number and the nature of the complaints, or every six months. The Commission would certainly not have anything to do with the internal and day-to-day affairs of the company.

I think that what the Minister was calling for at that time—and what I am calling for now—are basically on the same wave length. I shall continue to quote because I wish to point out how closely coordinated what the Member at that time (1989) was thinking, and what I am seeking today. I want to find out how much the Minister has changed his position and if that change is in any way influenced by his being a member of the Board of Directors of Caribbean Utilities Company.

"Commissions have contained the right of the Commission to prescribe the methods of submissions of accounts. That is important because it would facilitate any commission by ensuring the methods by which the accounts are submitted, stick to one form."

He continues, and I quote: "Commissions should have the power to require the utility to furnish such information as the Commission may require. All the Utility Statutes of the United States give the respective Utility Commissions similar power in order to regulate, for instance, the rates effectively. One of the basic requirements would be the knowledge of the cost of doing business and the information obtained by the filing of adequate reports. This would furnish the Commission with the relevant data."

I would like to pause here to interject something which I deem important. Recently there was a Government audit or review into the operation of Caribbean Utilities Company. As a result of that, the announcement was made that there would be a reduction in the rates of the individual consumer and a modest increase to the rates of the commercial consumer. This change was justified by virtue of the fact that the drop to the individual consumer would benefit that individual consumer because any decrease in the rate was bound to be noticeable and would help us, even in some minute way. I contend that that is a fallacy. I contend that there is a basic fault in that because you cannot on the one hand say that you are reducing it to the individual consumer while increasing it to the commercial consumer, because we still have to deal with the commercial consumers. The law of business says that they have to pass on those increases to their customers. What is happening is that you are taking away something from the one hand but giving it back to the other. It is my contention that there is a basic fallacy in that the benefit to the individual consumer in such an instance is not as great as it would seem. Indeed, the benefit may be more perceived than real.

Let me now continue with my quotations from the Honourable Minister's debate. "Suppose something is found to be affecting our people. Must we wait those 20 years to rectify it? That is absurd and is certainly expressing a mentality of a system which is perhaps not as popular as it used to be. Are those companies we, as legislators, should trust? But they have no confidence in our good common sense." Which I interpret to mean: Should we trust them to operate if they cannot trust us to set up some type of Commission?

I continue: "Now probably some bright fellow might say that Government provides protection by placing Government Members on the Board of Caribbean Utilities Company, for instance." [And this is so important I want to repeat this:] "Now probably some bright fellow might say that Government provides protection by placing Government Members on the Board of Caribbean Utilities Company, for instance. However, that has not always worked well for our people."

This, coming from someone who is currently Government's appointee to the Board of Directors, I want to see if his position has changed. I continue to quote him.

"In all instances, some of the very things we complain about continue year in and year out. [How true, Madam Speaker.] I feel and I know that a wide cross-section of the public share the same feeling."

May I ask: Was the Honourable Minister saying that the fact that Government had a Member on the Board of Directors of CUC was not in itself a guarantee that the public's interest was best being served? Let me continue to quote: "As far as a Public Utility Commission is concerned, I can associate myself with it, because I feel it is fundamentally good for our people and I feel the principles which would be enshrined in a Bill or any other measure will help to alleviate a state of affairs which I think are altogether wrong and not good for these Islands.... I think it is good to have such a Commission. Something backed by Law."

Madam Speaker, Roy Bodden, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, was not the author of this speech; and was not the author of this call for a Public Utilities Commission.

Turning now to page 13, and I quote: "I believe the services offered could be more technically efficient. It certainly should be more uniform. That is why we have the power surges in the lights. That is another reason for the commission. The question of technical efficiency is a technical matter, of course, and the test to be applied, if any. The measurement of efficiency are matters of engineering techniques and expertise. Certainly, I do not know of any one now on Government who sits on that Board to have that kind of technical knowledge, even though they would have managerial ability."

Permit me to read this and also pose the question: Has this situation now changed from the way it was in 1989? "The question of technical efficiency is a technical matter." The Honourable Minister went on to say: "Certainly, I do not know of anyone now on Government who sits on that Board to have that kind of technical knowledge, even though they would have managerial ability."

In strict debating terms, one could use this to beg the question then: What is Government's appointee doing on such a Board if they are, by admission (of an Honourable Member), promoting this Commission, if they are just there providing managerial ability which there seems to be a dearth of? Should the Government not consider appointing someone with more technical knowledge? Let me continue.

"Certainly, any Commission would be provided with an establishment according to its requirements and demands of its functions, so a report of power surges and such technical defects or faults or deficiencies or malfunction, if you may, would be subject to examinations and tests by the proficiency and technical staff of a good Commission and it would be established there, since any Public Utility Commission would be bound to abide by established international procedures and standards. As I said, that alone should make the Government change its position and accept the resolution."

This statement is as true in 1995, as it was in 1989. I am going to see what the Government, under the leadership of this Minister, is going to do regarding this resolution.

I have concluded my quotations. I just want to say that it is my understanding that this problem of the role of the utilities in this country came to light years ago, perhaps as early as the 1976 to 1980 political directorate under the Unity Team. I further understand that the services of an expert, Mr. J. J. Bradbury, were procured at that time. It is also my understanding that this gentleman had some interesting recommendations, including that some kind of commission be set up to do exactly what this Motion is calling for and to do exactly what the Honourable Member called for in 1989. Yet, to date, nothing has been done because political directorates lacked the will.

There is a point of which we have to be cognisant. I think the fault lies in the fact that political directorates and Governments allow themselves to be co-opted (as they say in sociology) by some of the very forces and elements that they should be seeking to regulate. Hence there is a conflict in that the interests of the people are not regulated and promoted as they should be. Therefore, tell me how in the world, if I am co-opted to sit on the Board of Directors of a company, can I represent purely the interests of the people? For on that Board, any dissension on my part will involve my being promptly ousted. The history of corporations shows that you can only sit on a board when you are prepared to abide by the majority decision. If you have serious moral scruples, the road is open—you tender your resignation or, if they think you are a dangerous or rebellious enough factor, they will promptly oust you.

I am saying that there is a certain conflict, particularly when that position is occupied by a Member of Government, or by the representative of the people, because it is equally applicable to someone who sits on the Backbench as it is to someone who sits on the Front bench.

There is also the question of confidentiality. Certainly, anyone privy to the entrails of an organisation by virtue of the fact that they are a member of its Board of Directors, cannot, without risk of incurring some serious sanction, betray minutes, happenings, decisions of that corporation—not even to one's closest ally. Again, there is the question of just how effective a politician is on some of these Boards.

The world is constantly changing. Values are changing and there is constant flux in all areas. As time goes by and these changes occur, it becomes increasingly important for us to realise who we are. I am sure that my upbringing is not unique to that of the Cayman Islands; it is not in any way peculiar to the norm.

One of the things that was instilled in me very early was that you have to know yourself. So Roy Bodden cannot say one thing and do another. The point I wish to make is that my principles have never changed, and will never (God forbid) change. Long before I could read Shakespeare, my mother quoted to me: "This, my son, above all: To thine own self be true; and it shall follow as the night the day, thou cannot then be false to any man." How can I set myself up as a protector of the people, and then allow myself to be co-opted so that I have disparate interests? "You cannot serve God and mammon."

I do not expect that the Motion will be accepted. I have made the best case I know how. I have stated the facts clearly, I have spoken with a sincere conviction. The rest is up to the Government.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.35 AMPROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.01 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 11/95. The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Motion before us, Private Member's Motion No. 11/95—Public Utilities Commission, is a Motion which I would say that every Member in this honourable House is sympathetic to. As a representative of the people, I constantly receive queries as to how the utility companies operate in the Cayman Islands. However, I am obliged to point out once again that this Government has obtained franchises and agreements, which were put in place long before we were put in office.

It is one thing or the other—we can go ahead and break the franchises, or, if some Members so wish, we can nationalise the utilities companies. But my question today is: Where will the Cayman Islands be heading if we take such a stand? I do not profess to have a legal mind, but I took the time to consult the individuals who know the Law in the Legal Department. What I am saying here is as a result of the legal advice which was given to the Government.

May I point out in the case of Cable and Wireless, that we found an agreement of 20 years? This commenced on 13 December, 1991. In the case of the water company, there is a franchise which began 11 July, 1990, and also runs for 20 years. In the case of Caribbean Utilities Company there is a 25-year franchise from 6 October, 1989.

Since I took over the Ministry, I have done as much (or more) as previous Governments in trying to do whatever possible to control rates and to see that they, especially the electric company of these islands, operate within the franchises. I have said in this House that I would have an audit carried out on Caribbean Utilities Company. This was done within the realms of the franchise. I reported back to the House on the findings which were actually nothing, as they were operating within the franchise.

We further negotiated with them on the rate structure, and I heard a previous Member speaking this morning about the way the rate structure is today. First of all, I have no control over the price of oil brought into this country. The point that I want to make is the reason why the rate structure has been changed to the way it is today: It is simply that the higher rate was initially placed on private homes because there were more to be connected to the utility company. Today it is different, and for this reason the higher rate has been applied to the commercial businesses. It is unfortunate that higher oil prices occurred at the same time that the rate was changed. As I pointed out here in the House, the decrease in the rate to private homes was scheduled over a period of years. Therefore, it would not have been seen on the first billing.

I am not here to try and defend any utility company. As I said earlier, we represent the people, and we try our endeavours to please the people as much as possible. But one has to realise that if a Government commits this country to a franchise agreement, it is one thing or the other—the incoming Government is going to continue under the franchise or, if we break the franchise, we face the consequences. I have not heard anybody, thus far, stand up and say to me to go ahead and break the franchise and face the consequences.

I am not going to take away the thunder from the Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration, and I am certain that he will go in depth explaining what I am saying.

The opinion given to my Ministry from the Legal Department started as such: "While the Cayman Islands enjoys limited parliamentary serenity, and this is one of the most sacred features of any modern parliamentary democracy, nonetheless, no responsible government would pass legislation which would put it into conflict with existing contractual agreements."

All I am saying here is that I am prepared, as Minister responsible in this instance, to do whatever is possible to strengthen the body which is provided for within the franchise in the case of Caribbean Utilities Company, which is the Electrical Inspectorate. We have already taken a decision that this body will be strengthened with professional individuals who will be able to report to Government (as in the case of the incident which occurred in the last few months with Caribbean Utilities Company) to guide us accordingly.

Presently, we do have an Electrical Inspectorate, but I have to say that it was never geared up to handle such incidents as what took place in Caribbean Utilities Company a short time ago. What I am doing presently is working through a company in the United States to find somebody who is completely independent from Caribbean Utilities Company, somebody who is knowledgeable, to be seconded to the Cayman Islands Government to work side-by-side with the present electrical inspector, who is Mr. Allan Moore, to report back to Government should we ever have a reoccurrence of what has taken place.

The Government has not taken this incident lightly. As soon as this occurred we met and discussed the matter. I visited the site. We heard from the directors and owners of Caribbean Utilities Company and I immediately ordered an in-depth report of what took place at the plant. I have to say that this is presently in hand and the Government will no doubt take the necessary, possible strong, decision once we have studied the sequence of events.

As I mentioned earlier, we have tried our best. As far as I am concerned, we have stayed within the franchises of all utility companies within these islands. I would further point out that contrary to what I heard here from the Member who spoke earlier—I think he said that he was aware that because of the surges in the electricity certain individuals had electrical appliances damaged—I would just like the record of the House to reflect, and the listening public to know, that this was one recommendation which my Ministry strongly emphasised: That Caribbean Utilities Company should honour any application made to them where somebody had damage done to their appliances. The report I received was that every application made was honoured. I consider that that was the correct way to go, and if there is somebody who has had a loss as a result of this, rather than us beating our chests on the floor of this House, get the claim in. If it is not into Caribbean Utilities Company, bring it to my Ministry and I will try my endeavours to see that the individual is compensated.

Speaking of a commission, it was further stated that this is common in other countries. Again, I would like to ask the question: Is it common in Grand Cayman for us to have occurrences such as what took place a few months ago? The answer is no. I consider that over the years, we have been fortunate to have a public utility service such as Caribbean Utilities Company because they have provided this country with the necessary electricity, even taking into consideration the growth which we have experienced in hotels and private homes. They have been able to keep up with it.

In other territories, especially other Caribbean islands, most times you can read in the papers about power cuts. They are completely different. I say that they should have some sort of commission which can be readily available. This is quite unlike us here. I would say that our success in the financial sector and in tourism speaks for itself. If we in the Cayman Islands did not have good electricity and good communications, I would think that we would not have as many banks and trust companies and other businesses as we do today.

While the Government is sympathetic towards the Motion which is presently on the floor of the House, as a responsible Government we must be aware of what is laid down within the franchises and agreements of previous Governments with the utility companies of this country. We will do as much as is humanly possible to strengthen the areas we can under the franchise, and we hope and trust that there will never be another occurrence of what took place.

As a Government, we will have to say no to this Motion.

The Speaker: The Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I do not wish to enter into a debate on the desirability, or otherwise, of a Public Utility Commission, or, indeed, the merits of any of the individual utility companies. I do want to speak about the legal implications that would have to be dealt with if consideration were given to such a Commission.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, and, indeed, the Mover of this Motion, referred to the existing franchise agreements in place. Those franchise agreements all have some considerable time to run. Of course, they did not all commence on the same date, but they all have roughly about 15 years to run. They also contain provisions for renewal.

Some of those agreements have been in force for many years, some are more recent, or have had recent amendments to them. But they are all exclusive franchise agreements, and they cover the three main areas of utilities, that is to say, telephone communication, the supply of power and electricity and water. Of course, the fourth utility company is our own Water Authority which does not operate under the terms of an agreement, but under the Water Authority Law. I would imagine that any proposed public utility commission would deal with all utilities, and that would embrace any provider of water.

The legal implication of setting up a commission would be how it could run along side the franchise agreements which are already in place. If it were to attempt to over-ride those agreements, then Government would undoubtedly find itself on the wrong end of a lawsuit.

The agreements are exclusive franchise agreements, and, as with any commercial contract which is freely entered into for which consideration is being given, it is not open for either party to unilaterally break it; neither is it open for either party to unilaterally change its terms. Unless the contract itself provides for those terms to be changed, then they can only be changed with agreement and consensus. That normally means after negotiation has taken place.

The problem for any public utility commission would be how to do the job it was set up to do, while, at the same time, not allowing Government to fall foul of breaking in any way the existing contractual arrangements that it had.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works has referred to advice his Ministry has received from the Legal Department, which is quite correct. I do not feel it would be right for me to quote in detail from that advice for the simple reason that the advice given refers to specific terms in these agreements, specific clauses, and those agreements are confidential agreements between the Government and the individual company. It would not be right for me to enter into a debate in which I made all the details of those agreements public. If I were to deal with the detailed legal advice from the Legal Department, that is exactly what I would be doing. But I can say to the House and to Members that these agreements do have provisions in them for the control of the utility companies. Some of those have been alluded to by the Honourable Minister.

Some of the agreements do make provision for the referral of any disputed matters to arbitration. So, the agreements themselves contemplate difficulties which may arise, and contractually deal with how those difficulties should be considered.

For a public utilities commission to have the sort of teeth which I am sure the Mover and Seconder of this Motion would like for it to have (and, indeed, I may say that if a public utilities commission is going to achieve anything it does need some teeth), I really cannot see how it is going to be able to have those teeth, or use them, without falling foul and breaching the agreements that we already have.

From a legal perspective, I think the alternatives are really this: While these franchise agreements are in existence, and given the fact that the Government does not wish to unilaterally revoke them or break them, then if any sort of further control is to be put in place which flies in the face of those agreements, it would have to be after prior negotiation with the franchisees, i.e., the utilities companies. I am sure that the Mover's concept of a public utilities commission is not that; it is a commission set up by Law that would have various powers assigned to it, would have various functions assigned to it and, surely, must have some teeth to make it work properly.

With the existing contractual arrangements that are in place, I do not believe that it would be possible, from a legal perspective, to achieve that while allowing these franchise agreements to remain as they are.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, as the Seconder of Private Member's Motion No. 11/95, I naturally support the Motion that is before the House. Before I speak directly to it, I think I would be dishonest if I did not say that I am in attendance at the Legislative Assembly today under protest, even debating this Motion now; for I think the House failed to follow its own procedure last Friday and this Motion, as far as I am concerned, would have fallen away with the adjournment of the House on Friday.

It is clear to me that the Government has no desire to entertain the concept of implementing or establishing a Public Utilities Commission. It is talked about by the Government as if it is one of the most farfetched ideas in the world, when it is really one of the most common authorities in many, many countries of the world.

I heard the Honourable Minister responsible for electricity and telephones speak very highly and consciously about franchises and contracts, and Government not breaking these. I seriously wonder what the difference in principle is between this Government breaking the most major contract that the country has every known—that of the construction of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital—and their even considering a review of the three exclusive franchises we hear about for water, telephone and electricity. It is very unclear to me what is so frighteningly different. If the Government is so concerned about three exclusive franchises which create businesses in the country giving them monopolistic power that directly impact on the people of the country, then what of the situation with the hospital which could aid the people of this country?

I do not think that this Motion made any recommendation about breaking contracts which are presently in existence. I heard no such suggestion offered by the Mover of this Motion, and I am certainly not making any. What is clear to anyone who tries to see it, is that three main utilities in this country (electricity, water and telephone) are tied up in exclusive franchises for long periods of time, as stated by the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, and also the Honourable Attorney General.

What that means to me as a Representative, and surely what it means to the people of this country, is that in the first instance those franchises may not have been in the best interest of the people of this country. For franchises to be in the best interest of the people is the whole purpose of good government.

It is my duty, as I believe it is the duty of all Elected Members in this House, to examine carefully situations which (if they are franchises such as these) will create greater financial commitment as the years go by on the people of this country which. It is surely not sufficient for any Minister of Government to get up and cry (which is common to the present Government) that 'the last Government did it.' Now that they are in the seat of authority and in power, theirs is the duty to do something about it.

The Mover of the Motion spoke to the fact that several years ago—in fact, 1977/78—there was a United Nations expert here who examined both Caribbean Utilities and the telephone company. He made certain recommendations then when the contracts were just about where they needed to be renewed that certain things should be taken into account, including setting up a Public Utilities Commission given certain authority and power to deal with the various utilities. At the time we did not have the public water utility.

As I recall, the recommendation at the time was that there be a person, or persons in the civil service who would coordinate and collect data which would be prescribed as relevant to the examination and analysis of the functioning of such utilities in the country, so that when a review or an examination needed to take place that expertise could be sought. I believe that that is still a very relevant concept of the way this Government could have in place a means for overseeing the process of the public utilities here in the Cayman Islands. I make no recommendations about the breaching of any contract that is in place. That is the way of the Government of the day—depending on which contracts these are. I believe that in the process of producing electricity there are other things to look at besides how much money the company is making and how much it is declaring as its profit and so on. I believe there are such things as looking at the physical plant and how that is maintained. I believe that in the case of the utility company there are certain decisions to be arrived at in terms of the equipment—the type, the length of time it is used, the write-off of this equipment; is there better equipment that could be bought to service the country? How long is the life of that equipment, and how much does it cost the country in the long run?

I believe that it is possible to examine the utility companies and find out if they are being efficiently run and see if there are improvements in actual operations. I think that there is scope for examination as to whether the people who are running these utility companies really are qualified to do so and whether there should be other personnel in place. I am sure that anyone who wishes to think about it could go on, and on, and see many other areas where having a supervisory body would be of use to this country.

One thing that is most outstanding (I do not think this exists in any other country in the world. I would have to see it in writing to believe it.) is that any country would give an exclusive franchise to an electricity company guaranteeing it 15% profit every year. Certainly, the Cayman Islands continues in a path towards a point when certain sectors of persons in this country, who are in the lower economic brackets, will not be able to pay for electricity. I wonder if there is any scope in Government re-examining that position in the face of good intelligence and what happens worldwide where public utilities are concerned.

Surely, we must all admit that some of the highest utility costs in the world are found in the Cayman Islands. We are not here today talking about the fact that we get such good service, and how we are not like other Caribbean Islands, and so on and so forth. I am thankful that we are not—and for the money that we are paying for electricity service we should have nothing less than the best. The question is: Are the various utilities in this country performing in the best way they could under these exclusive franchises, that only the Minister responsible—when moved to do so—will ask for an audit? Or should we have in place an organisation whose business it is to monitor what is happening in these utilities? That expertise does not necessarily have to exclusively be in the Cayman Islands.

A focal person here, assigned certain duties prescribed by technocrats who know what to look for in this, could be a very helpful and useful exercise. That unit or person could represent a Public Utilities Commission. At appropriate times examinations of these utility companies could be carried out.

The idea the Mover and I have is that a Public Utilities Commission would work alongside the franchises, as noted by the Attorney General; not try to remove or override them, but be the watchdog of the people to assure services are provided consistent with public utilities companies where it does not infringe on the franchise. It could be the body to look after this matter at regular intervals.

It cannot be sufficient, each time the electricity company wishes to have an increase in rates, for the Minister to simply look and say, 'Yes. From what I can see on your books, it looks like you need 3%, 4% or 5% more.' There needs to be expertise in place to see right now, for example, if there are not savings that could be realised if there were greater efficiency in the plant—be it telephone, water or electricity. We do not have that, and it seems the Government is not so inclined to have it. That is what this Motion is about, not about breaking franchises. This Motion is about using common sense and looking after the good Government of the country for and on behalf of the people.

This Government is now empowered to do something about it. Doing something about it is not by saying that the last Government handed out those franchises. Who knows, if this one had had the opportunity, maybe it would have been given for 50 years. Who knows? We are talking about the past and the present, and the present seems to indicate that there is a need for some means to act on behalf of the people of the country in a positive manner in relation to public utilities in the Cayman Islands.

I wonder about the situation where the public has complaints about rate increases in electricity. I wonder when there are complaints about failure in the electric supply which damages appliances in peoples' homes. I wonder about the situation with the telephone service where people have bills that sometimes shoot into large sums of money which were definitely not the true cost of telephone calls made by the persons so billed. There needs to be some means by which the people of this country can go to a particular body with their complaint where that body has the right to examine what they have to say and look into their complaints and act on their behalf.

I do not think that it is sufficient to say that one Ministry has the responsibility for that, and that Ministry is going to look into that matter. What is necessary is to have a specialised entity, body, or person, acting in such a manner. Is it not service to the public in these areas of utilities that we are talking about? Creating a fair balance between the producers of this service and the consumers is what it is all about to me. There are means for achieving this particular exercise.

I do not think it is sufficient to talk about someone who might have lost a refrigerator, a washing machine, or whatever, going over to the electric company and saying, 'This is what has happened to me, can you fix this?', and they say, 'Oh yes. Come along, we will fix it for you.' I do not believe that happens in every instance. I believe there are many instances where the people would never (for one reason or another) conceive of going to these utility companies to make a complaint. That is the way of life in this country—to be reluctant to act on one's behalf in such instances. That is, unfortunately, the type of society that the Cayman Islands tends to be—remain quiet and it will all go away.

I have no more to say, other than to say that a Public Utilities Commission structured in a proper organisational fashion, given powers consistent with looking after the best interests of the people and with sufficient expertise to deal with the various utilities in this country is necessary. It should be put in place and empowered, not to attempt to break any franchises which are in place, but to examine and deal with the efficiency of these services, thus providing the best service to the consuming public.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, would the Mover like to... the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

DECLARATION OF INTEREST

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Madam Speaker, I rise to declare my interest as I have shares in a utilities company, and I am a director of Cayman Brac Power and Light Company, Ltd. I will therefore abstain from voting or speaking on this Motion.

The Speaker: Thank you.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I rise to make a short contribution to this debate.

I think my colleague, The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, who put Government's position forward, clarified what we can and cannot do. But I do feel that as one of the Government's representatives on the Board of Caribbean Utilities Company, and after listening to the Mover, who mentioned Board members, I need to say a few words.

It is a fact, as the Mover read from the Hansards of 1989, that I brought a resolution to the House asking for a regulatory commission. I said then (as he read) that I believed in keeping watch over the monopolies. He went on to say that he wanted to hear what my views are today. I would have thought that he brought the Motion for something else. Nevertheless, I do not think that anyone can say that I have failed to give my view on any position, whether in this House or outside this House.

Let me state quite clearly for one and all to hear, I have not changed my position. I have not! I have no need to change. I still hold my own personal feelings on that matter; I would very much like to revert the franchise given to these monopolies but, as the Minister has said, we are precluded from doing this by Law. I am not talking about a malicious reworking, but one that is more favourable to the people. As the Minister said, we are precluded from doing that.

As far as the Member's remarks about political directorates being co-opted, this is not the first time that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town has tried to throw that in, even though the Member knows different. If he knows what he is talking about, he would understand that Caribbean Utilities Company did not put me on the Board. I hope neither he nor anyone else believes that anyone on that Board likes for McKeeva Bush to be there, or wants me to be there. I am there because the Executive Council (of which I am a part), which is headed up by the Governor, put me and the other two directors (Mr. Joel Walton and Mr. Phillip Barnes) on the Board—not the Caribbean Utilities Company's owners. They did not put us there, Government put us there as their representatives. There is no conflict. We are there as - Government's representatives, Caribbean Utilities - Company did not put us there.

I do not know how anyone honest who has any sense of fairness, morally or otherwise, can get up in this House or anywhere else on a public platform and blame McKeeva Bush, Joel Walton, or Phillip Barnes for the mess that the country is in today with the franchise. First of all, Government's representatives on the Board are in the minority. Three of us are against 10 of them. The most that we can do as the minority is to keep abreast of the corporate decision-making, and advise the Executive Council accordingly, while informing the Board of the Government's policy on issues before the Board, or raise questions about the company's operation and policies. As Government's representatives we make reports to Executive Council.

Let me inform this House that after the last meeting where the breakdown which occurred earlier this year was discussed, we made a report in Executive Council as to what we sought by the papers presented in the Board meeting of Caribbean Utilities Company. We told Executive Council that we were even more convinced that there needs to be a threatening of the ongoing regulatory activities. In response to this the Minister has already advised the House that this is being done. As three representatives on the Board, we can do no more.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town read from the Hansard, and I quote him: "Now, probably some bright fellow might say that Government provides protection by placing Government Members on the Board of Caribbean Utilities Company, for instance. However, that has not always worked well for our people in all instances. Some of the very things we complain about continue year in and year out. I feel, and I know that a wide cross section of the public share the same feeling." I have not changed my position on that. That is a fact. But not for want of myself and the other two directors making our case as to what we feel is wrong in Caribbean Utilities Company's business.

As the Government's representatives we can do no more, unless we go to court, and the public says without any... Well, let us say that we would have to have a clear understanding by the people of this country that they want us to take that franchise into court. If that were so, I would have nothing against it because I feel there needs to be much more regulatory activity than we have. We have reported that to Executive Council.

I say again, that the owners of Caribbean Utilities Company, whether they be shareholders in Cayman or outside of Cayman, did not put McKeeva Bush, Joel Walton, or Phillip Barnes on that Board. We were put there by Executive Council. I can tell the world that McKeeva Bush is not wanted on that Board. I go there and do what I can do best according to what I have to work with.

The Speaker: I would like to know what the wish of the House is because I understand that a Select Committee has been called to meet after the conclusion of business. Would we continue on towards the conclusion now? Is that to everyone's agreement?

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Far be it from me to make any suggestion to the Chair as to how to handle matters, but my winding up is not likely to be short.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I think we should try to finish this exercise, I am prepared to stay.

The Speaker: If there are no other contributions... The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, is it being suggested that we take no lunch break today?

The Speaker: I am in the Members' hands. I have asked...

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, may I move a Motion that we adjourn for the luncheon break and resume at the normal time after our luncheon interval?

The Speaker: Is there a Secunder for that Motion?

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Yes, Madam Speaker, I would like to second that.

The Speaker: The Motion has been duly moved and seconded. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. I will accordingly suspend...

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Could we have a division, Madam Speaker? I do not want to be task-some, but can we have a division, please?

The Speaker: Madam Clerk.

The Speaker: Under the circumstance, the Speaker will vote with the Ayes in order for the matter to be kept open. Proceedings are suspended until 2.00.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.03 PMPROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.08 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

If no other Member wishes to speak, would the Mover wish to reply?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I would like to take the opportunity in winding up to make a few points. I might yield to the request of my good friends on this side to shock the House by not taking too long.

I want to say in all seriousness that the call for the Commission must not be interpreted as meaning that we are in any way advocating any breaking of the current existing franchise agreement, nor are we suggesting that the Government take over the company. What we are saying is that it is possible to set up a commission within a legally accepted framework, a commission which is acceptable to the principles of the company to do the work that commissions do. I do not buy the excuse (and I think it is a lame one, as a matter of fact) that nothing could be done because the franchise agreement had been put in place before the National Team came to power. I believe that if there were the political will to do something, it could be done.

I do not buy the excuse that they cannot touch it because they would never subscribe to breaking the franchise. If they could stop or dishonour a legal contract, they could do anything that they so desire. Let me say that to negate that position.

I also want to make the point that I still remain to be convinced that there is no conflict when an Elected Member of Government serves on a Board like this. I made no mention of the other members appointed by Government to sit on the Board, but the point that I reiterate is that when you sit on a board of directors there are certain obligations which you sit there under. If the majority of the members on that Board feel that you are too much of a thorn in their side, it is plain and simple, they will get rid of you.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: They cannot.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Over and beyond that, any decision which emanates from that Board bears the implication that the members of that Board were involved in that decision—be it a good decision or a poor decision—because when the decision is announced, it does not come out saying that the majority agreed, but Mr. Roy Bodden dissented. It is reported as the decision of the Board, with no distinction. There is no provision for any delineation like we have in Parliament. There is no provision for divisions. That is the point which I take issue with when I say that the public's interest is not best served by having an Elected Minister sitting on the Board. It does not matter if it is Mr. 'X', or Mr. 'Y', the principle applies irrespective of who occupies the position.

We have to be careful that we do not get into a position like what the red Indians called speaking with a 'forked tongue'. We cannot say we are sympathetic to the Motion and vote against it, that is speaking with a forked tongue. That is duplicity at its height! Either you are for something or you are not. That reminds me of Agrippa's confession to Paul—"Almost thou persuadest me..." Almost, Madam Speaker. Almost.

The Electrical Inspectorate, however much it is strengthened, as mentioned by the Minister under whose responsibility this falls, is not the same thing as a Utilities Commission. One of the primary responsibilities of the Electrical Inspectorate is dealing with technical problems, the provision of electricity and seeing that certain technical standards are met. A Utilities Commission is calling for a totally different kind of system.

After listening to the Honourable Attorney General I have to ask if there is any clause in the contract which precludes the formation of a Utilities Commission, because I do not believe there is. We can only but make a point: I would like to say that the world needs men who cannot be bought, whose word is their bond and who, when they set themselves up to be the representatives of the people, abide by the decisions they have taken.

Whether the Motion carries or not, I consider that the Seconder and I have done our jobs. I finish with the warning that the people are watching and waiting. It is not for myself, or for the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman that I labour, but it is for the people, and according to their cries.

So, Madam Speaker, in a gesture of chivalry I will end my debate by appealing to the good conscience of all Honourable Members in supporting this Motion.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion No. 11/95, Public Utilities Commission. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

The Elected Member for North Side.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 12/95

APPOINTMENT OF ELECTED MEMBER TO THE STANDING HOUSE COMMITTEE

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wish to move the suspension of Standing Order 24(5) to allow Private Member's Motion No. 12/95, Appointment of Elected Member to the Standing House Committee, to be considered at this Sitting.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 24(5)

The Speaker: The question is the suspension of Standing Order 24(5) to allow Private Member's Motion No. 12/95, Appointment of Elected Member to the Standing House Committee, to be considered at this Sitting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Order 24(5) is accordingly suspended.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 24(5) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wish to move Private Member's Motion No. 12/95, Appointment of Elected Member to the Standing House Committee. The Motion reads as follows:

"WHEREAS Government Motion No. 2, entitled Appointment of the Standing House Committee, was passed by the Legislative Assembly in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 76, on 25th November, 1992;

"AND WHEREAS the Motion resolved that the Committee comprise five Elected Members, one of whom will be elected by the Members of the Committee as Chairman, and one as Deputy Chairman;

"AND WHEREAS the Committee currently comprises four Elected Members;

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable House appoint the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, Mr. Roy Bodden, MLA, to fill the membership of the Committee."

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 12/95, having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate.

The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: This Motion will not take very much time, as the Motion speaks for itself. A vacancy has occurred in the Standing House Committee due to the death of our colleague, Mr. G. Haig Bodden, who was a very valuable member of this Committee. I have requested that Mr. Roy Bodden, who also represents the district of Bodden Town, replace this member. I feel that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town will give a valuable contribution, as did his colleague.

I therefore ask the House to give this Motion its support.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to contribute to the debate? (pause)

If there is no further debate, I shall put the question that Private Member's Motion No. 12/95: "BE IT RESOLVED that this Honourable House appoint the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, Mr. Roy Bodden, MLA, to fill the membership of the Committee."

Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion has accordingly been passed.

AGREED. PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 12/95 PASSED.

MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 6/95

GOVERNMENT GUARANTEE CAYMAN ISLANDS WATER AUTHORITY

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I move the following resolution:

"WHEREAS on the 28th day of November, 1994, the Standing Finance Committee approved the following:

"1. to increase the current Government Guarantee of US$5.83 million to US$22.15 million, on behalf of the Cayman Islands Water Authority, in favour of Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Trust Company Limited who will provide funds to clear the existing loan with Caribbean Development Bank and to provide additional funds to construct the proposed Lower Valley Reservoir and Pumping Station and other works; and

"2. for the repayment of the Caribbean Development Bank Loan of US$6.2 million.

"AND WHEREAS on the 5th day of April, 1995, the Legislative Assembly, by way of Government Motion No. 3/95, approved the above;

"AND WHEREAS on Friday, the 1st day September, 1995, the Standing Finance Committee of the Legislative Assembly approved the following resolution -'In the event that the Water Authority is unable to meet its obligations under the loan, any sums payable in respect of principal and interest under the Guarantee shall be paid out of the General Reserve and Assets of the Cayman Islands Government.';

"BE IT NOW RESOLVED by this Honourable House that in the event that the Water Authority is unable to meet its obligations under the Loan, any sums payable in respect of principal and interest under the Guarantee shall be paid out of the General Revenue and Assets of the Cayman Islands Government in accordance with section 8B(3) of the Water Authority (Amendment) Law, 1987."

The Speaker: I need to make a correction here. The question is Government Motion No. 6/95. The Motion is open for debate. The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In 1986 the Government entered into a loan agreement with the Caribbean Development Bank which provided approximately US$7 million to the Water Authority for construction of the West Bay Beach Sewerage System. The funds for the loan were repayable in several different currencies, including units of accounts quotient which was based primarily on Japanese Yen.

Over the past nine years, the Authority has repaid approximately US$1,790,000 in principal on the loan. However, due to currency fluctuations the losses on the loan amounted to US$820,000. That is even so the sum of US$1,790,000 was paid against the principal, the principal outstanding was approximately $6 million at the time of repayment.

It was decided in early 1994 that the Authority would endeavour to refinance that loan, as well as secure additional capital for a pumping station and reservoir in the Lower Valley area.

The Water Authority entered into a new loan facility agreement for US$22.15 million with the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Trust Company Limited in late February 1995. This new loan refinances a previous loan for US$16 million with the same bank and includes additional funds for repayment of the Caribbean Development Bank Loan and construction of the Lower Valley reservoir and pumping station.

The loan from Caribbean Development Bank was repaid in March of this year. Section 8B(2) of the Water Authority (Amendment) Law, 1987, requires that the Legislative Assembly must approve any guarantee by Government and funds borrowed by the Water Authority. This requirement has been fulfilled through the resolution by Finance Committee on 28th November, 1994, and by Government Motion No. 3/95, earlier this year. However, section 8B(3) of the same Law also specifically requires that where the Governor is satisfied that there has been default in repayment of any principal monies or interest guaranteed by Government he shall, with prior approval of the Finance Committee, direct the repayment out of the general assets and revenue of the Cayman Islands Government.

The resolution by the Standing Finance Committee on 1st September, 1995, was required in order to satisfy the banks that all requirements set out in the above section of the Law had been fulfilled.

I move the resolution to ratify the resolution made by Finance Committee on 1st September in respect to this section of the Law so that the guarantee can be completed on behalf of Government.

The Speaker: If no Member wishes to debate, I shall put the question.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I do hope, and I know no Member spoke, but I thought I would raise this matter to clarify it, I do hope... that is if nobody is going to speak, Madam Speaker...

The Speaker: I do not see any Member who wishes to speak.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I trust that Members realise what happened. I know on Friday the First Elected Member for Bodden Town questioned the integrity of the financial operation in this respect, but it is just that the Water Authority Law had a specific section (which I outlined a while ago) which is different from any of the other Laws governing the authorities in the country. The Water Authority Law carries a specific section and this is what the banks asked be included in the resolution because it was not in the other resolution. That is all it is; it does not have anything to do with trust in Government or else they would not lend us US$22 million. If US$22 million does not mean good integrity, I do not know what else does.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is Government Motion No. 6/95. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion has therefore been passed.

AGREED. GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 6/95 PASSED.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: That concludes matters for this Meeting of the Assembly. It just remains for me to thank Members for their attention to their duties. I would also ask Members to bear in mind the three "Cs" that I would like to see observed: Communication, is one of the most important features that we can have in any working place; Co-operation/civility, and last, but not least, a Christ-like attitude in all of our dealings.

I want to thank the Clerk and other officers of the Department including the Serjeant-at-Arms, Mary and Anita, for their courtesy and support to Members.

Unless there is a necessity for one before, the next meeting will be the first Friday in November, I think it is the 3rd, which will be the Budget Meeting.

I would also like to announce to Members that from the 21st through 27th October there will be a series of meetings in Grand Cayman under the auspices of the Commonwealth Magistrates' and Judges' Association. The majority of the meetings will take place in this Chamber and in the Committee Room of the Legislative Assembly building.

The first meeting will be of the Lay Magistrates on Saturday the 21, including Justices from Grand Cayman and overseas, from 9.00 AM until 1.00 PM. The next meeting is on Monday the 23rd. This will be a Council meeting of the Magistrates' and Judges' Association. The President of the Association is the Honourable Chief Justice of the Turks and Caicos Islands, Mr. Kipling Douglas, who is a former Senior Magistrate in the Cayman Islands. I also had the honour of being elected as a member of this Council in Zimbabwe in August 1994, representing the Caribbean.

Members will be coming from different parts of the world—from Africa, Australia, Canada, the United Kingdom, and Jamaica. At the same time on Monday, there will be a concurrent meeting of regional members. They will consider a Bench Book for the Caribbean area.

On Tuesday the 24th through Thursday the 26th, there is a Judicial Education Seminar at which very eminent persons will make presentations. There will also be a workshop. I will be sending Members and Justices of the Peace details of the activities.

Thank you.

May I ask for a Motion for the adjournment until the 3rd November? The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 3rd November, 1995, at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until Friday, 3rd November at 10.00 AM. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against

No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Friday morning, 3rd November, 1995, at 10 o'clock.

AT 2.35 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 3 NOVEMBER 1995.

FRIDAY
10 NOVEMBER, 1995
10.10 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Third Elected Member for George Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order! Proceedings are resumed and the Legislative Assembly is in Session.

APOLOGY

The Speaker: First of all I have to offer an apology for the Member for North Side. She asked me to say that the arrangements for her to be off the Island had been made previous to the change of the original date set for the House.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

THE DRAFT ESTIMATES OF REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT FOR THE YEAR 1996

The Speaker: Proceeding with business, Presentation of Papers and Report, the Draft Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure for the Cayman Islands Government for the year 1996.

The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure for the year ending December 31st, 1996.

The Speaker: So ordered.

THE BUDGET ADDRESS

DELIVERED BY THE HON. GEORGE A. MCCARTHY, OBE, JP, FINANCIAL SECRETARY

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of the Appropriation (1996) Bill, 1995.

Madam Speaker, in the last Budget Address the Government stated that it would continue existing programmes and initiate new ones, to prepare these Islands for continued success well into the 21st century. The Address highlighted that the growing trend towards regionalisation and globalisation could have a major impact on the Cayman Islands, and it was necessary for us to prepare to meet the challenges that lay ahead. It was also emphasised that preserving and maintaining our image was an important element for the continued success of the Cayman Islands.

Since that time, the process of globalisation has intensified, and in particular the services industry which includes both tourism and finance, has advanced at an unprecedented rate, creating new avenues for business related activities. It is therefore heartening for me to be able to report that the numerous initiatives undertaken by the Government, in cooperation with the private sector, have helped us to take advantage of the new opportunities which are now emerging.

In February of this year, the Cayman Islands hosted three one-day conferences in New York, London and Hong Kong—all of which were successful. In addition, a very attractive and comprehensive publication, Guide to the Financial Services of the Cayman Islands, was developed to coincide with the three conferences. An international distribution of over 13,500 copies of this publication has already been made.

The value of these activities cannot only be measured in terms of increased business opportunities in the short run. They must also be viewed in terms of the opportunities provided to correct any misconceptions regarding the Cayman Islands' financial industry. These qualitative benefits, while not easy to quantify, more than outweigh the costs.

It is often said that our people are our most valuable resource. Government has always been cognizant of this fact, and since 1993 it has offered an average of 40 scholarships each year for higher education and granted 128 student loans. But the Government has not been the only one to offer such programmes. The private sector has also been instrumental in providing our young people with educational opportunities to develop the skills needed for the 21st century. Several local institutions have offered scholarships and student loan schemes to young Caymanians, and others have participated in summer work experience programmes.

Tomorrow's world requires highly skilled people, but it also requires another essential ingredient—technology. Rapid advances in telecommunications have made the world into one large village; and in many industries, speed and efficiency of communication is what gives companies the competitive edge. To this end, the proposed investment by Cable and Wireless in excess of US$90 million over the next five years, will provide the platform for enhanced services to meet customer requirements into the next century. Work on fibre optic distribution networks have already commenced around George Town and Seven Mile Beach and when completed, will provide the Cayman Islands with the latest in fibre optics technology.

The Cayman Islands is forging ahead into the 21st century with expanded financial services in the form of a Cayman Islands Stock Exchange. It is hoped that by May 1996, the first phase of the Exchange will become operational. The Exchange will commence as a primary listing exchange which will list securities, debt and equity instruments. This will provide the foundation for an expanded trading exchange at a later date.

It is clear that over the past year we have achieved a good measure of success, but we cannot become complacent. With God's blessing, Madam Speaker, the Government and people of these Islands have maintained the political and economic stability necessary for nurturing both the Financial and Tourism Industries. These, in turn, have generated opportunities in other sectors of the economy—real estate, construction, agriculture and utilities to name a few.

The confidence which the local and international community have placed in Government's ability to manage the affairs of these Islands, and to maintain this stability, has manifested itself in a number of ways. Examples include the relocation of the headquarters of the CITCO (Curacao Investment Trust Company) Group of Companies and the Cable and Wireless Caribbean operations to Grand Cayman; the commencement of several large scale investment projects such as the 350-room Westin Casuarina Hotel, the Barclays Bank Financial Centre, and the Cayman National Bank's Head Office.

These indicators of confidence are not cause for relaxation. The road along which we must travel is long and full of pitfalls. We must strive to remain competitive, but at the same time retain those attributes which have made us a jurisdiction and destination of choice.

We must constantly monitor the international and regional scene to be prepared to make adjustments along the way. We must continue to build on the foundation of private and public sector dialogue and consultation. And, last but not least, we must be prepared to provide the necessary educational opportunities for Caymanians to enable them to function in this competitive environment.

To this end, the Government is committed to building on the achievements of the past and providing the infrastructure and climate for continued growth and stability.

I shall now briefly review the current and future outlook of the world economy and subsequently, the domestic economy. Then, I shall discuss Government's revenue and expenditure performance for 1995. Finally, I shall present the Draft Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure for 1996.

THE WORLD ECONOMY

The world economy is now firmly in recovery. In 1994, growth in world output reached its highest in six years (3.7%) and although some moderation is expected in 1995 and 1996, a satisfactory growth rate of around 3% is forecast to continue.

The main industrial countries, particularly Japan and to a lesser extent the United States of America, are expected to have a slower rate of growth. But growth will continue to be buoyant in the developing countries: the Asian region will continue to grow at around 7%; slow-growing Africa is expected to have a turnaround; and the decline in the transition economies is forecast to be less steep. Overall then, the outlook for the next two years is relatively good. The Cayman Islands economy which is closely linked to the global economy is expected to benefit from this favorable external environment.

The "engine of growth" that has been driving the world economy is trade, and the recently-concluded Uruguay Round of World Trade Negotiations, together with the continuing growth of regional trading arrangements imply good long-term prospects for the global economy.

After some seven years of protracted negotiations, the Uruguay Round agreement finally came into effect on 1st January, 1995. It is the most extensive agreement ever signed and will be implemented by the newly-formed World Trade Organisation (WTO) which will replace General Agreement on Tariffs & Trade (GATT) in 1996. The agreement makes provisions for huge tariff reductions in manufactures (around 40% in the industrial countries); brings agricultural trade under multilateral discipline; and provides for increased market access.

Of particular significance to the Cayman Islands is the inclusion of new areas such as services in the agreement. In July this year, over 90 countries signed a financial services agreement pledging some degree of access to their banking, securities and insurance markets on a non-discriminatory basis.

With new markets expanding, capital flowing across countries and regions, and more and more services becoming tradable, the Cayman Islands will have to position itself to take advantage of emerging opportunities. The Government of the Cayman Islands is ensuring that the skills, technology and institutional structures which are important for success are being developed in line with the demands of the marketplace.

Allow me to emphasise one other point on this important topic of globalisation, Madam Speaker. Globalisation brings with it new and exciting opportunities for private individuals and firms. But it also accords an important role for Government in maintaining sound macro-economic management and in creating a stable environment in which the private sector can continue to grow and flourish.

In the years ahead, it will therefore become increasingly important to maintain and strengthen the relationship which exists between the private and public sector. This unique private-public sector partnership which has been built up over many years is central to the success of the Cayman Islands economy.

I now turn to Domestic Economic Events.

DOMESTIC ECONOMIC EVENTS

The favorable developments in the world economy had a positive impact on domestic economic performance, and I am pleased to report that in 1995 the local economy performed very well.

The main economic indicators reveal that a growth rate of around 5% is projected for 1995; inflation is expected to be about 3%; and positive growth in the finance and tourism sectors is expected to continue.

I will now take a more detailed look at the performance of the economy.

FINANCIAL AND BUSINESS SERVICES

The financial and business sector continued to fuel growth in the economy in 1995 and contribute to the overall development of these Islands. This contribution goes beyond the employment of some 3,900 persons—69% of whom are Caymanians. It also includes the important contributions to tertiary education mentioned before—through scholarships and student loan schemes—as well as the contribution to capital formation in the form of building construction.

During the year, the three main segments of the financial industry—banking, insurance and mutual funds—all registered positive growth. Progress is also being made towards the setting up of a Stock Exchange, enactment of legislation, and a vigorous marketing drive to ensure that the Cayman Islands is in a position to combat increased competition in the international financial arena.

The Cayman Islands' Mutual Fund industry continued its remarkable growth through 1994 and into 1995. The Mutual Funds Law (1993) has proven to be a catalyst for increased recognition of the Islands as the domicile of choice, and is achieving its objective to provide for flexible but effective regulation to a fast growing sector.

As at 3rd October, 1995, 91 entities had been licensed as Mutual Fund Administrators or had been exempted from obtaining a mutual fund administrator's licence; and some 1,001 entities had been registered or licensed as Mutual Funds. In addition, revenue from administrators so far in 1995 is some $865,000 compared to $660,000 in 1994.

The Banking industry also experienced significant growth during 1995. The value of deposits held by banks registered in the Cayman Islands totalled US$463.7 billion at September 1995—a 13% increase over the September 1994 figure. Altogether, there are currently 563 banks registered in the Cayman Islands, of which 70 have a physical presence. These include the Bank of China which the Cayman Islands welcomed to its shores this year. With this new addition, the Cayman Islands now has a representation of 47 of the world's top 50 banks.

Turning to the Insurance industry, it is important to mention that the Cayman Islands remains the world's second largest captive insurance domicile. The total number of licensed captives at 31st September, 1995, was 377 compared with 363 at 31st September, 1994. Of interest is the significant number of health-care related captives domiciled here—roughly one-third of the total—which include some of the largest American health-care systems. This group of captives wrote over $300 million premiums in 1994 and had total assets of $1.6 billion.

Madam Speaker, the positive growth in company registrations continued in 1995. As of October 31st, 1995, there were 33,792 companies registered in the Cayman Islands, an increase of 9% over the 1994 figure. Among these were 4,709 new company registrations in 1995.

With regards to shipping, the Marine Survey Department has recently been renamed "The Cayman Islands Shipping Registry." This change is not just cosmetic, however. The Department now has an expanded role and is aggressively promoting the Cayman Islands as a viable, safe and efficient port of registration. During the first half of 1995, 74 new ships were registered in the Cayman Islands, bringing the total to 785.

In 1995 the Government, in cooperation with the private sector, intensified its marketing activities in a number of important areas. The two most significant events which I mentioned earlier—the hosting of three one-day conferences in New York, London and Hong Kong, and the publication of the Guide to the Financial Services of the Cayman Islands—were very successful.

The Conferences attracted in excess of 500 delegates, and attendees rated the conferences as extremely effective. The overall success of this venture has been so encouraging that plans are being made to host similar conferences in 1997. The Guide to Financial Services publication is an ongoing project, and we have received numerous praises for its high quality.

The Government has also enlisted the services of Profile Corporate Communications Limited, a political and public relations firm, to enhance the international image of the Cayman Islands. Profile has already placed several editorials in leading European press; conducted media training courses with key government officials; and established a Cayman Islands Press Office in the United Kingdom. In addition, with the assistance of Mr. Thomas Russell, Cayman Islands Government Representative in the United Kingdom, and Mr. Colin Shepard, Chairman of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association (CPA), they have developed the "Cayman Islands Friends in Parliament Group."

Several other important ventures are expected to be completed before the end of 1995, including the 2nd Annual Offshore Funds Winter Forum which will be held on December the 3rd to the 6th. Labelled by the International Business Conferences (IBC) as the Industry's Definitive Offshore Fund Event of 1995, this forum will allow delegates a first-hand view of the extensive and sophisticated professional and financial infrastructure and other supporting facilities available in the Cayman Islands.

The Cayman Islands continued its drive towards ensuring that it maintains a modern and responsive regulatory framework. This year saw amendments to the Trust Law (1972), and the passage of the Perpetuities Bill (1995). In addition, amendments to the Insurance Law (1979) and the Draft Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Bill, which is presently being reviewed by the Government/Private Sector Consultative Committee, will be tabled during 1996, once consensus is reached between the Government and the financial community. The latter legislation is being put in place to help further safeguard the financial industry of the Cayman Islands from illicit activities.

Madam Speaker, I mentioned earlier that by May 1996 the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange will become operational. It is envisioned that the Exchange will be set up as an Ordinary Resident Company, and that enabling legislation to facilitate the setting up of this company will be circulated to Members of this Honourable House during this Meeting. Madam Speaker, I now turn to Tourism.

TOURISM

The tourism sector continued to experience positive growth in 1995, although at a slower rate than in previous years.

Figures up to September 1995 reveal that the number of stayover visitors was 272,061—an increase of 5.6% over the same period last year. This compares with the double-digit growth rates recorded in every quarter last year. Cruise ship arrivals, bolstered by a 45% increase in August, stood at 479,334—up 12.4% over 1994. Visitor expenditure estimates were also on the increase, rising by just over 12% for the period January to June 1995.

The United States market continues to be the major supplier of visitors to the Cayman Islands, but the number of United States visitors increased by just under 1% in 1995. The slowdown in United States visitor arrivals is due mainly to the slackening of growth in the United States of America. Whereas the United States' economy grew by a healthy rate of 4.1% in 1994, growth in 1995 has been around 3%.

The success of the diversification efforts undertaken by the Department of Tourism is reflected in the growing numbers of tourists from the European market. In January to September 1995, European tourist arrivals amounted to 28,145 compared to 22,582 for the same period in 1994—an increase of 25%. One important benefit of the European market is that tourists from that region tend to stay for longer periods than tourists from elsewhere. Therefore, they are more likely to visit all three islands and utilise a wider range of facilities.

Hotel occupancy rates in 1995 are somewhat lower than in previous years as a result of a shift to condominiums, private homes and time share usage. In the Visitor

Exit Survey carried out during the first half of 1995, roughly 66% of visitors reported that they stayed at hotels compared to 72% for the same period in 1994. Condominiums and private homes were used by 28% of visitors in 1995 and 24% in 1994. The use of time share properties was up 1% from 4.8% in 1994.

The prognosis for the remainder of the year is encouraging with advance hotel bookings indicating the likelihood of increased occupancy rates. Cruise ship arrivals are also expected to increase significantly with a number of cruise lines routing their ships through the Cayman Islands, following the recent devastation of ports in the Eastern Caribbean.

Looking further ahead, the tourism industry is preparing to meet the challenges of globalisation through a number of marketing, quality improvement and information technology initiatives. The Department of Tourism is continuing its marketing campaigns abroad in cooperation with the private sector, and intends to provide increased support and supervision to its overseas offices to enhance their marketing and promotions efforts.

The Department of Tourism also intends to restructure the monitoring and inspection system of the accommodation sector, carry out a program of training and development for the industry, and continue its tourism awareness activities. Further, given the growing importance of technology in the services sector, office automation is to be completed for all offices worldwide.

These activities, both on the international and domestic fronts, are designed to ensure that over time the industry continues to provide high quality services to visitors and is able to maintain its market share in an increasingly competitive environment.

I now turn to Agriculture.

AGRICULTURE

The Department of Agriculture continued to provide assistance to farmers to increase local food production through its many programmes. In 1995 a National Tree Crop Husbandry programme was re-instated and training provided to field staff in the use of farm chemicals. An Agricultural Land Capability and Land Use Study was also completed and a project to improve water storage in Lower Valley was redesigned and implemented.

Gross sales for 1995 at the Farmers' Market are expected to increase to $950,000, or by 8% over 1994. This is a slower rate of growth, compared to the previous one of 20%. One of the major factors affecting this slower growth was the ending of the Cuban Refugee Crisis in March 1995. In 1994, the Farmers' Market played a significant role in the supply of food to Cuban refugees.

In 1996 the Department of Agriculture will relocate to the agricultural hub in Lower Valley. It plans to undertake a number of projects including the improvement of slaughtering facilities; establishment of a small scale food processing operation; and further development of physical infrastructure. I now turn to Real Estate, Madam Speaker.

REAL ESTATE

Last year, a uniform rate of stamp duty of 7.5% was levied on all transfer of property, compared to a previous two-tier structure of 7.5% for transfers below $250,000 and 10% for transfers above this value. This change in the payment of stamp duty may have stimulated growth in the real estate sector, for the value of land transferred as at September 1995 was $155.2 million—an increase by 17% over the same period in 1994.

Government revenues from land and property transfers also increased by 17% over the same period. Revenues consisting of stamp duty, registry fees and survey fees amounted to $14.6 million as at September 1995, compared to $12.5 million for the same period in 1994. I now turn to Construction.

CONSTRUCTION

Approximately $113 million of planned new construction investment was approved in the first three quarters of this year. This is just under 3% less than the amount recorded for the same period in 1994.

The value of approved developments was largest for the "residential sector" ($42 million) followed by the "commercial/industrial" and other category ($31 million) and the "apartments/condominiums" category ($30 million). The Government sector ($9.7 million) accounted for only 9% of total approved developments, but it experienced very rapid growth over the period.

Among the new Government projects approved in 1995 were: the North Side Health Clinic, the North Side Civic Centre, the Bodden Town Health Clinic, the East End Road Realignment, and the Department of Agriculture Building at Lower Valley and the Department of Environment Building at North Sound.

BANKING

On banking: total loans and advances to residents up to September 1995 amounted to approximately $809 million, an increase of 7% over the same period last year. The distribution of loans across sectors remained roughly the same as last year. Personal and real estate loans accounted for half the total loans, and agriculture and construction showed some slight decreases.

The volume of total deposits in the first half of the year increased by roughly 7%. Demand deposits grew the fastest—by 13%, followed by a fixed deposit growth rate of 7% and a savings deposits rate of 4%.

PRICES

On prices: In the first three quarters of 1995, inflation averaged 2.5%, compared to 3.1% for the same period last year. This slower rate of increase in prices is primarily due to the lower inflation levels prevailing in the United States of America.

The United States America, as many of the industrial countries, has generally adopted price stability as a medium-term policy objective. Therefore, if consumer prices in the USA remain at their present low levels, prices in the Cayman Islands should remain fairly stable in the year ahead.

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK

On the economic outlook: In general, the prospects for growth in 1996 are favourable, although much will depend on the extent to which growth moderates in the USA. An economic growth rate of around 5% is expected in 1996.

Madam Speaker, I now turn to a review of public finances, commencing with the 1995 Forecasted Position.

PUBLIC FINANCES

1995 FORECASTED POSITION

The Portfolio of Finance and Development forecasts for 1995 indicate a total estimated expenditure of $171.9 million which is 3.4% less than the budget of $178 million. This is a signal tribute to the continuing vigilance of the Government in controlling public expenditures despite major unexpected expenditures such as those incurred in maintaining Cuban migrants.

Total receipts are forecast at $171.7 million, which represents a reduction of 2.1% when compared to the 1995 Budget figure of $175.3 million. However, taking into consideration the accumulated surplus brought forward from 1994 of $2.4 million, and the positive expenditure performance mentioned previously, the accumulated surplus for 1995 is expected to be $2.22 million. This exceeds the 1995 budgeted accumulated surplus of $0.17 million.

GENERAL RESERVE FUND

Madam Speaker, at the beginning of 1995 the General Reserves stood at $4 million. Interest to be earned during 1995 is estimated at $0.4 million. This will result in an estimated balance of $4.4 million at December 31, 1995, representing a growth of 10% in the Fund over the year.

PUBLIC SERVICE PENSION RESERVE FUND

On the services of Public Service Pension Fund. The Public Service Pension Reserve Fund was established on January 1, 1990, and has since grown to $15.5 million. Honourable Members will recall that the 1995 Budget Address noted that, in line with the Government's commitment to the provision of retirement benefits for all Caymanians, the Government had decided to increase its contribution to the Public Service Pension Fund from 4% to 6% of salaries in order to accelerate the growth of the Fund. This has already assisted in the achievement of this objective and the Fund is now expected to total $16.4 million at year-end 1995.

DEBT

On the Government's debt obligation. There has been considerable discussion in recent months on the state of public finances and, in particular on the size of the Government's debt obligations. In light of these developments, I wish to say a few words on this matter.

The total outstanding Central Government Public Debt was $37.02 million as at January 1, 1995. This will fall to $34.25 million by December 31, 1995, as a result of repayments made by the Government during the year. During the last 3 years, the Government has made only one major borrowing of $8.7 million other than the 1993 loan of $16.7 million made in accordance with a resolution of this Honourable House in mid-1992 for the recapitalisation of Cayman Airways Limited.

The public debt obligation as a percentage of recurrent revenue is 6.3%. Madam Speaker, this figure is below the accepted ceiling of 10% of recurrent revenue and well within the Government's ability to meet its debt service obligations.

1996 DRAFT BUDGET

On the 1996 Draft Budget. The 1996 Draft Budget is $202.69 million and does not include any revenue enhancement measures. It proposes new loan financing of $9.91 million for the development of health care facilities and the purchase of medical equipment, $1 million for the development of roads, $2.66 million for school buildings, and $2.59 million for public buildings. In addition, the Budget includes brought forward 1994 loan financing of $0.84 million which is slated for on-going 1994/95 projects that will be completed during 1996.

Of this total sum of $202.69 million, Recurrent Expenditure is estimated at $158.36 million, Statutory Expenditure at $14.6 million, Capital Acquisitions Expenditure at $5.95 million (exclusive of $2.4 million in medical equipment expenditure), Capital Development Expenditure at $22.1 million, and New Services at $1.68 million.

Total Receipts are estimated at $201.58 million. This total is comprised of recurrent revenue of $184.58 million, new loans of $16.16 million, and $0.84 million of the 1994 loan carried forward to 1996 for on-going projects.

Madam Speaker, when we take into consideration the forecast accumulated balance of $2.22 million carried forward from 1995, the overall accumulated surplus at year-end 1996 is therefore estimated at $1.1 million. Of this sum, it is proposed that a commitment be made to transfer $1 million to the General Reserve Fund at the end of 1996.

THE CIVIL SERVICE

Turning now to the Civil Service. The Government has been mindful for many years that the purchasing power of public servants was gradually being eroded by inflation. Accordingly, a provision of $7.5 million has been made to fund a 9% increase in salaries, wages and pension allowances for public servants and pensioners, respectively, effective January 1996. This increase accords with the recommendation of a small, in-house Salary Review Committee which recently considered the matter of salaries and wages. It will ensure that the purchasing power of public servants will be no less at the end of 1996 than it was at the beginning of 1993.

Furthermore, the Government acknowledges that if the erosion which had taken place prior to 1993 is to be addressed, a planned programme of increases is needed. The Government has accepted the Committee's recommendation, therefore, that a further increase of 6.7% is justified for January 1997, and that a full salary review, including correlation with the private sector, should be carried out in 1997 for implementation in January 1998.

Finally, on this subject, while the Government would have wished to accede to the Committee's recommendation that the contribution to the pension fund be increased by a further, and final, 5% of salaries, this is not possible at this time. However, the Government has agreed to review this situation during the course of 1996 and to consider whether at least a partial award is feasible.

APPROPRIATION (1996) BILL 1995

On the Appropriation (1996) Bill, 1995. Madam Speaker, I express my deep gratitude to the Members of this Honourable House, the Public Service and members of the various committees and the private sector that have assisted our Portfolio over the past year.

With God's help, Madam Speaker, our Portfolio looks forward to another year of cooperation towards the greater benefit of the well being of all the people of these Islands. In particular, I extend many thanks to the staff of the Portfolio of Finance and Development and Computer Services, Economics and Statistic Unit that have served so willing and faithfully throughout the 1996 Budget exercise and the year in general.

In closing, Madam Speaker, I recommend the Appropriations (1996) Bill, 1995, which sets out total Recurrent, Capital and New Services of $188.09 million. Not included in this Bill, but nonetheless forms part of the 1996 Budget document, are Statutory provisions totalling $14.6 million for the repayment of loans, pensions and gratuities.

Madam Speaker, reverting briefly to legislation under review, I commented that the Criminal Procedures

Bill is presently being reviewed by the Government Private Sector Consultative Committee. Madam Speaker, the Honourable Attorney General is very much committed to this review process and in discussions I have had with him, he mentioned that he is of the opinion that it may be necessary that the present Bill which was circulated earlier could be withdrawn and substituted by another Bill. It is anticipated that the revisions could be quite substantial.

The Government is very committed to its cooperation with the private sector because, as I mentioned, it is a necessary ingredient for ensuring that the Cayman Islands continue to prosper particularly in the financial industry.

We recognise that there are quite a lot of people and quite a lot of organisations that have placed trust in the Cayman Islands, and, as mentioned, we have seen where some very substantial entities have moved their regional offices to the Cayman Islands.

So on this Bill, I would just like to allay the fears of the financial industry about it going forward as is. The Honourable Attorney General in our last meeting of the Private Sector Consultative Committee, gave the assurance that he was quite willing to sit down and meet with a sub-committee of the Law Society, and other representatives drawn from the Cayman Islands Society of Professional Accountants, the Insurance Association, the Public Managers Association and whomever would like to be represented on the committee to ensure that at the end of the day the financial industry of the Cayman Islands is not threatened.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: A motion by the Honourable Third Official Member.

MOTION TO DEFER DEBATE

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I move that the debate on the Budget Address be deferred until Wednesday, 15th November, 1995.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that the debate on the Budget Address, that is, the Appropriation (1996) Bill, 1995, be deferred until Wednesday, 15th November, 1995. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

The debate is accordingly deferred until Wednesday, 15th November. I will now entertain a motion for the adjournment of the House by the Honourable Third Official Member.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this honourable House until 10 'clock, Wednesday morning, 15th November, 1995.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock, Wednesday morning, the 15th of November, 1995.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

The House is accordingly adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 10.55 A.M. THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 15 NOVEMBER 1995.

WEDNESDAY
15 NOVEMBER, 1995
10.12 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable First Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. James M. Ryan: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Order. Proceedings are resumed.

Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Question No. 225, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 225

No. 225: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration to provide a breakdown of the enrolment at the Cayman Islands Law School for the academic years 1993, 1994 and 1995 under the following categories: a) Caymanians; b) Non-Caymanians; and c) Non-Caymanians married to Caymanians.

The Chairman: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: For the 1993/94 academic year there was a total enrolment of 42 students. The breakdown is as follows: Attorney-at-Law Programme—4: Two Caymanians, one non-Caymanian and one married to a Caymanian; LL.B (Hons) Degree—26: Eighteen Caymanians, six non-Caymanians, two married to Caymanians; Diploma in Legal Studies—12: Nine Caymanians, three non-Caymanians.

For the 1994/95 Academic Year the total enrolment is 44 students with a breakdown as follows: Professional Practice Course—8: Eight Caymanians.

Attorney-at-Law Programme—One Caymanian; LL.B. (Hons) Degree—25: Sixteen Caymanians, eight non-Caymanians, and one married to a Caymanian; Diploma in Legal Studies—9: Eight Caymanians and one non-Caymanian; General Student—One non-Caymanian.

For the current 1995/96 Academic Year the total enrolment is 56 students. The breakdown is as follows: Professional Practice Course—7: Seven Caymanians; LL.B (Hons) Degree—30: 11 Caymanians, 18 non-Caymanians and one married to a Caymanian; Diploma in Legal Studies—16: 13 Caymanians, two non-Caymanians, and one married to a Caymanian; General Students—3: One Caymanian and two non-Caymanians.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say on what basis non-Caymanian students are admitted into the Cayman Islands Law School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: It is on the basis of their academic qualifications, the examinations that they have passed, in some cases (depending on what those qualifications are) an entry examination and, of course, the availability of places.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if to be admitted to the Law School non-Caymanians have to be legally resident in the Cayman Islands or is it a case where they can apply from domicile overseas?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, the perspective students can apply even though they are resident overseas.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member state if advertising is taking place outside of the Cayman Islands for entry to the Law School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Not that I am aware of, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say whether these overseas applicants have to obtain a student visa?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, if they are accepted for admission to the Law School, then they have to make an application for a student visa.

QUESTION NO. 226

The Speaker: The next question is No. 226, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

No. 226: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration to state the number of Government employees currently attending the Cayman Islands Law School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, the answer: The number of Government employees enrolled in the Cayman Islands Law School in all programmes for the 1995/96 academic year is 14 (11 Caymanians, one married to a Caymanian, and two non-Caymanians). Of these, six students are enrolled in the Diploma in Legal Studies Programme; four in the LL.B. Honours Degree Programme; three in the Professional Practice Course, and one is registered as a general student.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say what arrangements apply to these employees attending the Law School with regard to their work in the Government sector?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: It depends on the course that is being studied. The Diploma in Legal Studies is a part-time course, so the students enrolled in that course undertake their normal duties and are released for lectures they have to attend. As far as I am aware, Government releases them and pays them.

As far as the Honours Degree Programme is concerned, that is a full-time course and the students in that are released by their employers, but they make up as much time as they can on their own. In other words, the students attend the lectures which are scheduled during lunchtime (as far as possible), then the students work long hours outside normal working hours to make up the time.

It is fair to say that there has to be a considerable degree of flexibility by the employer to enable them to take those courses.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Excluding those students enrolled in the Attorney-at-Law Programme, does successful completion of the course of studies automatically place them in line for advancement or promotions within the Service?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: That depends on the Department, Portfolio or branch of Government they are working for. It is a considerable qualification to attain, and generally speaking a student employed by Government who embarks upon such a course does so with the blessings of his/her Head of Department and other senior figures in Government.

I would certainly hope that having attained the qualification that it would be reflected in some form of enhancement to their career.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 227, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 227

No. 227: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration to outline the fee structure paid by students attending the Cayman Islands Law School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, for the degree programme the fee structure is as follows:

Fee Structure—Degree: Caymanians/married to Caymanians: CI$825 per term or CI$2,475 per annum. Non-Caymanians pay CI$1,500 per term or CI$4,500 per annum.

Fee Structure—Diploma: Caymanians/married to Caymanians: CI$400 per term or CI$1,200 per annum (two courses studied). Non-Caymanians pay CI$750 per term or CI$2,250 per annum.

Fee Structure—General Students: Caymanians/married to Caymanians: CI$200 per subject per term or CI$600 per annum (one course studied).

In addition to the foregoing, all students are required to meet registration fees of Liverpool University as follows: a) Degree—Pounds sterling 506 per annum; b) Diploma—Pounds sterling 45 per annum; c) General Students—pro rated to the degree fee depending upon the number of subjects studied.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Honourable Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Second Official Member give us any idea as to what type of subsidy the Law School requires annually?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, it depends very much on the number of students that are admitted to the Law School annually. I understand that last year Government contributed approximately $150,000. This year because the number of students is up, it may be somewhat less. That also will depend upon how many students stay for the entire course.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say whether there are any other incentives offered to Caymanian students, or are the preferential fees the extent of incentives?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, I think the greatest incentive is that only Caymanians are allowed to continue to do the Professional Practice Course and become Articled attorneys in Cayman. All others have to stop when they have finished their degree course, and if they wish to qualify as attorneys, they have to do so elsewhere.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say whether these preferential fees carry a system of bond or contract, or whether it is sufficient that the students who qualify automatically remain in the Cayman Islands to put into practice what they have learned?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, there is no bond with those preferential fees. The fee levels are set by the Student Regulations and those reduced fees are an entitlement.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 228, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 228

No. 228: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs: a) how many Group Employees at present are hired by Government; and b) what is the difference in benefit received by the Group Employees and the Civil Servants in the pensionable category.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, the answer: Four hundred and ninety-eight group employees are presently hired by Government, of which 356 are Caymanian.

Group employees are entitled to medical, dental and optical benefits after doing three years' service for themselves as well as for their dependents; whereas permanent officers enjoy such benefits from commencement of duty.

Under 10 years of service, group employees are entitled to two weeks' severance pay for each complete year of service if terminated.

After 10 years of continuous service Caymanian group employees are entitled to a pensionable allowance in accordance with the Pension Law (1995 Revision), Chapter 121, section 27(1), whereas permanent officers are entitled to a pension. The pensionable allowance is 75 per cent of the pension.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable First Official Member tell us the reasoning behind Caymanians in the service for over 10 years remaining as group employees and not being considered in the permanent and pensionable category?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, the term "group employee" is intended to allow the employment of persons in some departments on a temporary basis. I am almost inclined to say that it is a little bit of a misnomer because we do have group employees who have worked in some departments for many years. Perhaps it is because the type of work they do would be considered temporary, but it is a fact that there are some persons who have been employed for many years.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The fact that this is a misnomer, would the Honourable Member be willing to say whether it is his Portfolio's opinion that it is time for this situation to be addressed because there may be some anomalies?

The Speaker: I think the First Official Member should not be giving a personal opinion, that is against the Standing Orders of the House.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable First Official Member be prepared to give an undertaking that the situation be looked into with a view of possibly considering some of the group employees who have been employed in the Service for many years towards a transition into permanent pensionable category?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, I do not know if I can give such an undertaking. The matter is not as simple as it may appear on the surface. Some of these group employees would be over 45 years of age and, therefore, cannot be considered for the permanent pensionable establishment. To begin with, they would have to be possibly taken on as local contracts.

Really, the matter rests with the Head of Department who would have these persons employed to put forward recommendations for the creation of posts for them and then the procedure would be worked through the Service.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Member can tell the House whose decision it was that these group employees not be considered pensionable until they had served, I think it is seven years, and not ten years?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, I wonder if the Elected Member for North Side could repeat the question. I am not sure I understand what she is driving at.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Whose decision was it that these group employees should have—in your answer you said 10 years, which I differ with you on, I say seven—before they can be considered in the pensionable establishment?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, I believe I am still misunderstanding the Member. It is not a question of after 10 years being eligible for the permanent pensionable establishment. The 10 years apply to the benefits which are given to group employees, that is, the pensionable allowance of 75 per cent of pension.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I think the question here is that in the Honourable First Official Member's answer he states: "after 10 years' continuous service Caymanian group employees are entitled to pensionable allowance." The Member for North Side was asking if it was actually 10 years or is it seven? Whatever the answer is, where did the decision come from? That is what the Member is asking.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. That is in the General Orders.

The Speaker: This is the last question, please, Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Just to ask the Honourable First Official Member a final supplementary. If in fact the General Orders is being reviewed, would it be possible during the review process to have a look at the situation we just questioned?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you.

Again, that is a little bit of an oversimplification of the problem. It also entails the Pension Law. But, yes, I will make a note to have the matter looked at in the review of the General Orders and the Public Service Commission Regulations.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 229, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 229

No. 229: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs how many applications for permanent residence have been dealt with by the Immigration Board since January 1995.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, 100 applications for permanent residence have been dealt with by the Immigration Board between January 1st and 31st October, 1995.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

I wonder if the Honourable First Official Member would be able to state how many have been granted, and refused, permanent residency?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, a total of 51 applications were approved.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Honourable First Official Member be able to say how many applications are pending?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, currently there are 67 applications for permanent residence with the right to work pending, and 37 pending in the category of permanent residence with independent means.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 230, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 230

No. 230: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if the new pay package for Police Constables is to be a part of a general salary review for Civil Servants.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, the recently agreed pay package for constables (referred to as the operational allowance), is not part of the general salary review for civil servants. It was agreed by Executive Council as necessary recompense for the long hours, risks and occupational hazards faced by the police constables, which are unique to policing. This stands separately from any review to Civil Service salaries.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable First Official Member state whether this pay package applies only to entry-level constables or to various levels of the Force?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: No, Madam Speaker, it applies only to constables.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say if the recent increase for civil servants is over-and-above what is termed as the pay package in the question?

The Speaker: Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, the salary award recently announced by the Honourable Financial Secretary in his Budget Address is completely different from this allowance to constables. It is given to recognise the occupational hazards of being on the beat.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if it is the case that all constables will benefit from this particular allowance, or is it attached to a specific category of constables in terms of their service?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

No, it will not apply to all constables; it applies to those who are out on the beat.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if this will apply across the board to those persons on the beat, whether they are contracted officers (local or overseas) and other constables within the Service?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, it applies to all constables who are out on patrol.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable First Official Member explain if police officers are allowed over time at any point in time?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

No, police officers are not allowed overtime.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if there are any indications at this time, that by the enhancement of these allowances it is attracting Caymanians to the Constabulary Force? Has it had any positive effect?

The Speaker: Honourable First Official Member, would you have evidence? Otherwise I will not allow it as an expression of opinion.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

No, I do not have any feedback at this point in time. It has only been introduced, as the Honourable Member knows, fairly recently.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 231, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 231

No. 231: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if there are any police officers who have accumulated long outstanding leave, or time off in lieu, which cannot be taken and for which they cannot be paid.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, a large number of officers accumulate outstanding leave or "time off in lieu." This is inevitable because of the nature of police work. This applies mainly to the officers on the Drug Task Force and the Uniform Support Group because of the very long hours worked consistently. They will accumulate the most hours and "time due." It is not a practicable solution to consider payment in compensation.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say, or does he have any idea as to the number of officers who may fall into this particular category at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The actual number was not available. I will be willing to provide that information in writing when it becomes available.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I thank the Honourable Member for the information he undertook to provide. I would like to ask if there is a method in place whereby these officers who have accumulated so much time off are recognised in any way. Can it be done through allowances similarly for the constables?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, the matter is now under discussion with the Commissioner of Police and we are looking at a number of ways in which we can address this. But we do not want to get into paying overtime when the move is to try to reduce this as far as possible.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Honourable First Official Member state whether the idea is to allow for compensation (whether it is time or otherwise) to be retroactive and, if so, retroactive to what period of time?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, I am not in a position to say whether it is going to be retroactive, and retroactive to what time. But, suffice it to say, the matter is under discussion.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 232, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 232

No. 232: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if the George Town lockup is still being used for the detention of prisoners.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, the lock-up is still in use, but funds have been appropriated for the project in 1996.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Based on reports which have been made public in recent times, have any of the highly unsanitary conditions been taken care of that would make it reasonable to assume this place should still be used by Government at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, efforts have been made to clean up the lock-up to try to make it as usable as possible. But the fact remains, ultimately the lock-up needs to be replaced.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In the Honourable First Official Member's answer, he states "that funds have been appropriated for the project in 1996." Would the Honourable First Official Member be in a position to state where the new lock-up will be located, and if the existing one would be demolished?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is expected that the new lock-up will be sited on, or near, the Central Police Station. It has not been finalised whether it will be sited near the present one or whether the present lock-up will be demolished and the new one placed on that site. That is yet to be decided.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Honourable First Official Member be able to state whether the lock-up is still being used for the detention of mentally handicapped individuals?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

No, I am not in a position to say whether it is being used. I do not believe it is, but I am not able to say categorically that it is not.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if any restrictions have been placed on the number of persons who are, and who can be held in that particular lock-up; or is there any restriction including the housing of prisoners and those who are retained there during the day awaiting trial in court?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

No, there is no restriction placed on the number of persons held at the lock-up to my knowledge.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Can the Honourable Member tell us the number of hours a prisoner can be detained at the lock-up before he is formally charged?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: No, Madam Speaker, I am not in a position to answer that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Would the First Official Member please clarify for us if men and women are separated in the detention area, and if that is part of the restrictions?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Yes, male and female detainees are separated.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, this will be the last supplementary on this question.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, it was stated by Government earlier that it was the intention to use funds which were available (I think, due to confiscation of moneys from drugs et cetera) to work on the lock-up. Is there no intention by the Government to start some type of work on this particular lock up during the rest of this year, and what time will they need for this to carry on into 1996?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Initially I said here in this honourable House that it was possible that funds from the Asset Sharing Scheme could be used. When I examined that, I found that the funds had been committed for another project. Initially that project had not gone ahead, but it got started around the time that I stated this so those funds are not available. The only thing that we can do, therefore, is to have funds approved beginning January of next year, unless this honourable House wishes to vote funds to start before that.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. Statements by Members of the Government.

The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs, and Culture.

STATEMENTS BY MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

YOUNG PARENTS' PROGRAMME

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the need for the Young Parents Programme arose out of the awareness of the effects that the lack of preparedness for parenting was having on young parents and their offspring.

Over several years the Department of Social Services has observed the way in which this lack of preparedness leads to a high increase in dependency on various Government departments. The general feeling in the Department was that if the matter was not addressed, the social, physical, education and economic status of these young unprepared parents and their children would continue to deteriorate.

In order to respond to the needs of this vulnerable group of young persons the Department of Social Services together with representatives from the Education Department, the Public Health Sector of the Health Services Department, and the Community College developed the programme which we refer to today as the Young Parents' Programme.

This programme has long been needed in this country. Many persons in this society frown upon young girls who become pregnant in their early teens and while we do not want to encourage this, we must realise that some young women do make mistakes, we must acknowledge that this is a reality. Teenage pregnancy is not a new phenomenon, it is a problem that is centuries old, and one that will never go away.

I feel that as a Government we are responsible for assisting these young women financially, if needed, by providing counselling for them; by ensuring that they acquire the requisite skills to care for their children; and also by ensuring that they complete their education. Our principal aims must be to help these young women retain their dignity, make them self-sufficient and to provide them with skills that will make them good and effective parents.

Last year, on June 11, the programme was started in the Joyce Hylton Family Life Centre, appropriately named after veteran social worker, Mrs. Joyce Hylton, whom we all know advocated for these types of programmes during her tenure in the Civil Service. The programme was officially opened on March the 7th, this year.

I am happy to report that I have received an annual report from the Social Services Department which indicates that the goals of the Young Parents' Programme are being met. They have listed the major components of the programme as being health, education, family and social services. These services are provided to two groups of clients and their children: 1) The Teenage young parents who have terminated their education due to pregnancy; 2) To the young adult parents who, because of early and repeated pregnancies, were deprived of educational opportunities and as a result face limited employment opportunities.

The programme is staffed by a Programme Co-ordinator, a Programme Educator, a Child Care Supervisor and two Child Care Assistants. While the Programme Co-ordinator manages the programme and provides daily supervision to other members of staff and the group of young mothers and their children, the Child Care Supervisor and her assistants provide support services to the young parents and their children emphasising parenting skills and techniques. The Programme Educator is responsible for providing basic primary and secondary education to the participants.

The general activities include Parent and Child activities; Home Management; Bible Studies; Computer Skills; Food and Nutrition; Handicraft; Health Studies; Cultural Awareness; Civic Studies; and Family Life Skills. Mathematics, English, Science, Social Studies, and Literature were taught up to the level of the GED (General Education Diploma) curriculum.

Activities which include the young children are cognitive development, social development, recreational activities, and motor development.

The sessions were conducted on a morning and afternoon shift basis, with a capacity of 15 parents. They were tested for their academic level and it was found that they were at different levels in their basic education. Consequently, the larger group was separated into three groups based on their ages.

Group One consisted of parents who were ages 14 to 17 years old, as follows:

Ages 14-16, Number of persons: 11; Status: Nine entered the programme pregnant, two entered with children.

Ages: 17 years, Number of persons 4; Status: Two entered pregnant, and 2 entered with a child.

Group Two consisted of parents who were ages 18 to 24 years old:

Ages 18-20, number of persons: 4; Status: Two entered with children, and 2 entered pregnant.

Ages 21-24, number of persons: 7; Status: All entered with children.

Ages 25-26, number of persons: 3; Status: All entered with children.

Group Three was created to continue with the provision of parenting skills sessions to the mothers who were attending the Community College. The ages were reflected in the aforementioned categories of ages 18 to 20 years (one parent), and ages 21 to 24 years (one parent).

There were at least 16 children who entered the programme with their parents. They were grouped according to their ages.

Group One consisted of six weeks old infants to nine months; Group Two consisted of nine months to 18 months; and Group Three consisted of 18 months to three years nine months.

The clients were referred to the programme from the Department of Social Services, Education Department and Public Health. Some clients entered the programme on a voluntary basis. There were approximately 13 young mothers and their babies in attendance during the initial week of the programme.

In September 1994, two mothers were admitted into the Hospitality Studies Programme at the Community College. In September 1995, three students were accepted at the Community College; two to pursue a course in accounts and one in hospitality.

At the end of July 1995, there were 29 young mothers who had been involved with the programme, some of whom have since withdrawn from the programme. Over the year the attendance fluctuated for various reasons.

At an open meeting held on July 14th, 1995, concerns of the programme were discussed. The majority of the young parents were satisfied with the care given to their children and the quality of education that they were receiving. Their main concern was further education opportunities at the Community College and job placement for practical experience.

An anniversary luncheon was held on July 28, 1995, at which clothing and hand-crafted items made by the girls were on display. The meal was prepared by the girls.

Madam Speaker, I am happy to report that on Sunday 5th, November, four young women received graduating awards for completing the Young Parents' Programme. Those were, Annie Mae Boddan, Kisha Ebanks, Linda McField and Melantha Wright. Tangible evidence of those young parents' commitment to taking control of their lives and living up to their responsibilities.

Madam Speaker, as a caring Government we must respond to the needs of our people. This programme is money well spent and I wish the young parents God's guidance in everything they do.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: At this time proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

THE APPROPRIATION (1996) BILL, 1995

COMMENCEMENT OF THE DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE

HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER, FINANCIAL SECRETARY, ON FRIDAY,
10 NOVEMBER, 1995

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Let me be the first to offer congratulations to you on your first opportunity to sit in the Chair since your election to that very noble post.

Madam Speaker, I am very pleased to see that the fiscal policy decision of the National Team Government, as highlighted by the Financial Secretary in his 1993 Budget Address, is finally paying dividend. With your permission, let me read a quotation from that address, under the heading, "1993 Measures for Consideration and Implementation":

"Because of the financial position which obtained as at 31st December, 1992, the Government has taken the decision that expenditure must be contained, commencing in 1993. No longer will recurrent and statutory expenditure consume 100% of recurrent revenue without any contribution being made to financing the cost of capital programmes! No longer will departments of Government continue to mushroom in growth by providing services, which, if deferred, will not impair the effectiveness of Government! No longer will statutory authorities be held to less stringent standards of accountability than line departments of Central Government!"

The result of that policy by Government has been an improved financial position of Government for the past three years. To highlight the dramatic improvements, we need only to take into account that as at 31st December, 1992, Government's financial position reflected a deficit of some $8 million which improved to a $2.4 million surplus in 1993.

We also reflected a surplus of $2.9 million at the end of 1994; a $2.2 million surplus in 1995; and for the year ending 31st December, 1996, we are still projecting a small surplus of $1.11 million.

What is significant is that all of this has been achieved with only $8.7 million in borrowings over the past three years. Government's fiscal responsibility has also acted as a catalyst to investors' confidence which has resulted in these islands experiencing an economic boom. We are in a very fortunate position because many of our neighbours continue to grapple with ways to kick-start their failing economies, while the Cayman Islands continues to set the pace for all to follow.

Also of significance is Government's decision about a year ago to roll back the stamp duty on land transfers from 10% to a uniform 7.5% resulting in a real estate boom in this country over the past two years.

What is also significant to mention is that the amendments to the Company's Law and the reduction in company fees has resulted in a significant increase in company incorporation in the Cayman Islands over the past year and a half.

The attractive Mutual Funds Legislation, which was also recently introduced by the National Team Government, has resulted in a record number of mutual funds being registered here in the Cayman Islands. This has also contributed significantly to Government's revenue.

Earlier this year when the Financial Secretary, accompanied by several of the Government Ministers and members of the private sector, hosted conferences in New York, London and Hong Kong, the Opposition tried to term it a waste of time and money. But the results from those conferences are now being realised here in the Cayman Islands in the form of new business.

What was also important was that during these conferences the undeserved, negative publicity that the Cayman Islands received around that time was put to rest. It has always been my opinion that this was money well spent. It is the position a pro-active Government would take. Rather than sitting on their laurels recounting their accomplishments, they continue to be out front setting the pace ensuring that these Islands continue to enjoy the financial and social reputation which we have enjoyed for so many years.

I recall when we took office in 1992 that things were not all well in this country. We had unemployment, construction was down, tourism was moving along at a snail's pace, Government's finances were in shambles. But after only three years of being in office the National Team Government has completely turned this economy around. All sectors of the economy are up. For example, tourism is at an all time high, construction is now running at full throttle, the financial community continues to expand at a very manageable pace.

What is also of significance is the fact that over the last three years this Government has added very needed facilities such as sports. We have also added additional classrooms to our schools, we have addressed the issue of district roads and other services that we need. We did not resort to any increase in taxes in order to accomplish this. This has all been achieved through proper fiscal management.

In the area of sports, we have now arrived at the international level by taking the decision two years ago to add national coaches for basketball, net-ball and soccer. This is beginning to pay great dividends in this area.

What I am pleased to also mention is that in keeping with our promises to the people of this country, next year we will continue the construction of a new hospital, district health clinics, a civic centre to house indoor games such as basketball, boxing and volley ball. Much has been accomplished in our first term in office. It has all been done in a very practical, very affordable manner.

As a government we believe that we can only run as fast as our resources allow us. We believe in living within our means, which in the long run makes a lot of financial and economical sense. The people of this country can be justly proud of the Government that they overwhelmingly elected in November 1992.

Let me now attempt to highlight in greater detail the level of accomplishments that this Government can justly be proud of.

In the area of education: Over the past three years we have awarded an average of 40 scholarships and 128 student loans to our young people to ensure that they have the opportunity to further their education, enabling them to one day return to this country to take up meaningful positions in our community. What was also very encouraging was that the private sector did quite a bit in this area as well, as far as financing and making scholarships available for young Caymanians who were interested in furthering their education.

We have come a long way in this country in the area of funding education. I thank God that I had parents who were prepared to make the necessary financial sacrifices to enable me to attend university. When I was growing up, unless you had a certain surname, and you had the right political and governmental connections, there were no scholarships available to Caymanians. It still annoys me when I see young people who have the desire to further their education sometimes experience difficulties with regard to funding.

There are (and I believe I am correct) some 15,000 work permits in this country. Why? Because we need people to fill positions. With that in mind, this Government should do whatever is necessary to qualify our young people to take some of these positions we now have to bring people in to fill.

I must also congratulate the Financial Secretary on his bold move in spearheading the establishment of a stock exchange here in the Cayman Islands. This only adds to the financial services offered from here. I believe that it would do well to increase the popularity and demand for services from within the Cayman Islands.

Our success in this country depends to a great extent on political stability. I believe the image of political stability which has been portrayed by this Government has made the foreign investors very comfortable. Evidence of this was the recent move of the Caribbean Headquarters of Cable and Wireless to Grand Cayman, the relocation of the Headquarters of the Curacao Investment Company Group to the Cayman Islands, and the commencement of several large scale investment projects such as the 350 room Westin Casuarina Hotel, the Barclays Bank Financial Centre, and the Cayman National Bank Head Office.

The environment which we have created has made many of our foreign investors and business people very comfortable to the extent that they want to be here in the Cayman Islands rather than anywhere else. That speaks well for this Government and its efforts in enhancing the image, life-style and success of this country.

The financial community continues to play a very important role in this country's development. I am pleased to see that there are something like 3,900 persons now employed in this industry, of which some 69% are Caymanians. This is very good, but we need to ensure that a greater number of these Caymanians are exposed to the type of training and advance education which will improve their qualifications, ensuring that a greater number enjoy the benefits available in this industry now enjoyed by senior management, the majority of whom, at present, are non-Caymanians.

I believe that we are moving in the right direction in this area, and I believe with the continued partnership with Government and the private sector we will see much accomplished in this area as far as training and promotion of Caymanians. I encourage those young Caymanians in that industry who are ambitious and want a career, to stop at nothing as far as furthering their education and qualifications. The rewards are great in that area.

As at 30th September, 1995, the number of banks licenced in Grand Cayman stands at 563. This also reflects that 47 out of the world's 50 largest banks now have their presence in this country. That speaks well for the reputation of this country. A lot of other islands and territories have tried to duplicate what we have done here as far as banking supervision, but the Cayman Islands have looked at it not only from the stand point of revenue earnings, but also serious about keeping a clean and reputable environment that only allows those entities of the highest calibre to do business from this country.

The number of licenced insurance companies stood at 377, which is up significantly from the year before. Again, this speaks well for the Financial Services Division and it does reflect the foreign investors' confidence in what we are doing in this country.

Mutual Fund Administrators now stand at 91. There were 1,001 mutual funds registered in the Cayman Islands. What is significant is that for some time Government has been moving in this direction. I recall that before I became a Member of this honourable House I accompanied the former Financial Secretary (who is now the Minister for Tourism) on a conference to New York where he addressed a number of financial institutions and people in the financial community about the attractiveness of the Cayman Islands in this area. It appears that this was a vision of foresight because in only a short period of time (I think we took care of the legislation last year or the year before) we already have on the books over 1,000 mutual funds.

The other significant thing about this is that it is an additional source of revenue. According to the Budget Address, revenue earned from these mutual funds amounted to $865,000 so far this year. That is good. I believe that we have to look at ways of expanding our revenue base to avoid going back to our people every time we need capital, raising car licensing fees, or garbage fees, or some other popular area of taxation. This speaks well for the Financial Secretary's Government and the financial community. It is evident that people welcome this service and are moving ahead to take advantage to do business with the Cayman Islands.

I recall in one of my former contributions to a Budget Address, when we were dealing with the issue of competition from the U.S. Virgin Islands in the area of company registration, I mentioned we had to become aggressive and look at ways to attract a greater percentage of this business—by, maybe, reducing the cost of incorporating a company here in the Cayman Islands. At that stage I recall being told that the demand for company registration was so great in the U.S. Virgin Islands that they had a 24-hour service going (around the clock) in order to keep up with the demand.

I am pleased to see that the moves brought forward by the Financial Secretary about a year ago in the area of amendments to the Company Law and the reduction to the company fees have resulted in a significant increase in company registration which now stands at 33,792 companies. That is a lot of companies and this reflects a 9% increase over 1994.

Madam Speaker, I have been corrected, it was the British Virgin Islands, not the U.S. Virgin Islands. [addressing an hon. Member] Thank you for that information. I am glad to see that we are now attracting a greater percentage of that business to the Cayman Islands.

Tourism continues to perform very well in these islands. I recall that in 1993 we had a record increase, the same thing in 1994; and at the end of September 1995, we are still running 5.6% above the record in those two consecutive years. This speaks well for the Minister of Tourism in that this just did not happen. The new method of promoting the islands has paid off.

What I am also pleased about in this area (which has been talked about since my first term here back in 1988) is that we diversified our visitor base to include visitors from the United Kingdom. Today that is a reality in this country. You can now board a flight at Owen Roberts Airport and when it stops you are in London. That has made travel back and forth to Europe very convenient. As a result we have experienced a tremendous increase in visitors from this area. I believe the percentage quoted was in the region of about 25% over the year before. The number was at 28,582. This speaks well for the Ministry and for the Government as a whole.

I am also very pleased to see that a harder line is being taken by the Department of Tourism in the area of the inspection of tourist accommodation. Many people come to this country and invest some money and then spend no money on maintenance. They charge exorbitant rates for visitors here in this country.

We have always promoted the Cayman Islands as an upscale tourist destination and our accommodation and services must reflect that level of service. I was very pleased to see the position taken by the Department of Tourism recently with regard to those properties which, despite being warned over a period of time to improve their facilities, ignored to do so. Finally they were told that if they did not get their act together and spend some money to put their facilities back in order, then there was no option but to close them. I believe that is the right approach to take in this very sensitive area.

I do not want us to get to the stage in tourist accommodation facilities that we have in other housing sections in this country where we have slums; where you find six, seven, eight, nine, ten people occupying a small place with one bathroom for all these tenants. That kind of activity here in the Cayman Islands is totally unacceptable.

What concerns me, and it is an issue which has to be addressed by this government, is that we need to ensure that a greater number of our people enjoy the benefits derived from tourism in the area of transportation, water sports and some of the other tourist-related services.

What concerns me is that rather than coming in and taking a position of sharing—in other words, we came, we found the Caymanians here, let us ensure that they survive in this area—we have big companies coming in who are controlled by large foreign investors who have the money, the contacts and the connections to be able to run the small Caymanian out of business. That does not speak well for us in this country.

One of the secrets to our success has always been the social harmony in this country, the ability of Caymanians to make a living, rather than doing as it was necessary to do in the past, travelling overseas to be employed in shipping just to make a living. The secret has always been that Caymanians have been able to stay here and make a living. We need to do more to ensure that this is done.

The other thing I believe is very necessary is that the tour operators, those who offer services to cruise ship passengers in particular, need to form some type of association to agree on a minimum fare they can offer the cruise ships to avoid the dog-eat-dog attitude environment which now exists in that area. You find one or two operators who will say they will do it for $6.00 a head, with another one saying he will do it for $3.00. That puts those operators in a position where none of them makes any money, and the only people who benefit from that service are the directors of the cruise ship operations.

I support the position taken by the Minister for Tourism, that pre-bookings must also be limited to the tour operators' capacity. What we have is a situation where a tour operator may book maybe 3,000 passengers for tours for the day, knowing full well that it can only accommodate 300 or 400. What this requires is bringing in other buses to accommodate the overflow. A lot of those additional buses were not air-conditioned, not in satisfactory road-worthy condition, and it just did not reflect the type of image we want visitors to this Island to have.

The transportation problem in this country is a real problem which has to be addressed from the standpoint of what we make available to our small taxi operators at the airport, as well as finding some creative means of ensuring that those who operate from the docks also get their fair share of business.

What we recently did in a motion (moved by myself and seconded by my colleague from West Bay) was call for a decision by Government to not allow any more foreign controlled companies with foreign investors to be allowed in the area of water sports and some of the other areas already congested and controlled by large operations. I believe that this will go a long way in attempting to address this very serious problem.

Government has also committed itself to assist the newly established Cayman National Water Sports Association comprised of all born Caymanians, which is one of their requirements, in advertising and also maybe allowing representatives from this association and other small entities to accompany them on promotional tours in order to expose their businesses and let the world know that there are others here in this country who are just as capable of providing a service, but with the additional Caymanian flavour or touch.

I believe that this is what our visitors want. I have heard many comments from visitors to the extent that when they come to the Cayman Islands they would appreciate seeing a Caymanian and being served and transported by a Caymanian. The reason they come here is because they want to experience the local culture, meet some of the local people and enjoy our way of life to a limited extent.

I believe that more has to be done in this area. Unfortunately, we have allowed the situation to continue for so long that it is going to take some time to correct the areas of transportation and water sports. We have too many persons and entities competing for the dollar in these areas.

Another very wise decision taken by the present Government was rolling back the stamp duty charged on the transfer of land from 10% to a uniform 7.5%. In order to raise additional revenue the former government had a two-tier stamp duty formula where on transactions up to $250,000 the rate was 7.5%, and any amount over that was 10%. What that basically did was kill the real estate market in this country. As a result of the decision taken by this Government, which is in line with the promises we made to our people, we have experienced a real estate and construction boom in this country for the past two years.

On the books right now there is something in the region of $13 million in planned new construction investment in this country. This covers all areas—residential construction, the value of $42 million; commercial and industrial and other construction, $31 million; apartments/condominiums, $30 million; and the Government sector $9.7 million.

I am pleased to announce that all of the contractors at the present time in this country have more work than they can handle. This was not the case when we took office three years ago. I recall many persons from all walks of life, from all over the island, being unable to find a job. That is not the case today. I believe that anybody who really wants a job at the present time can find a job—and a good job.

I believe that one of the things which must be addressed, and I know the Ministry is in the process of so doing, is that there must be some kind of consideration for a minimum wage in this country, especially in this area. We have people coming in here from desperate locations who just want an opportunity to work. They would work for $2.00, $3.00 an hour, and what happens is that contractors, wanting to cut costs and maximise profits, are employing a lot of these persons at this minimum wage, or this unacceptable hourly wage, at the expense of our people who cannot afford to work for those kinds of wages. When these persons convert even the $3.00 or $4.00 per hour which they are offered back into their currency it is plenty of money.

I believe that we are moving in the right direction in this area and I will be looking very carefully at the new proposals as far as areas and the amounts being offered to our people in the form of a minimum wage.

Public Finances: I am pleased to see that by the end of 1995 the General Reserve Fund will stand at approximately $4.4 million. It has taken some time to be in a financial position where we not only were able to meet our commitments, but were also able to contribute a percentage of the revenue to General Reserves in order to have some cushion, or some emergency fund to fall back on.

What I am concerned about (and this is an issue which has to be addressed, if not by this government, the next government) is the continuous expanse of the Civil Service. I was a civil servant for seven years and I have always been of the opinion that the civil service should be a very small, efficient and well-paid service. Many attempts have been made over the years to address this issue. The Governments who have been in power have not had the political will; there have been half-hearted attempts to do it.

When I talk about reducing the Civil Service, I do not talk about putting people out of their jobs, because I do not think that is necessary in this country. What you would find, if you had an objective review of the Civil Service, is that you could come up with three or four people in an area who you do not need. We have departments that may be short staffed which could effect a transfer. Not only that, any surplus of civil servants could then be worked in conjunction with the private sector to ensure that those persons are properly accommodated and able to find a position in this country to make a living.

I, for one, am very pleased that this government has been able to set aside a 9% increase and a pay award for Civil Servants. That is tremendous. For any increase whatsoever, we are talking about millions and millions of dollars because the service is so large. Even though Government may have the desire to do so, they do not have the financial means of carrying out that decision because they lack the resources to do so. I believe that we have to make our Civil Service attractive, we have to make it very efficient.

The other thing which has to be addressed, and as Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee I have voiced this every year for the past three years and I know my predecessor did the same thing, we need to be in a position where we address the different levels; the different qualifications that people bring to the Civil Service and pay them according to their qualifications.

At the present time, young Caymanians returning from universities with degrees in Accounting, Finance, Economics or one of the other majors, are not going to find the Civil Service attractive. We are talking about coming in at a Higher Executive Officer level at the present time. You cannot hold qualified people at that level. You may hold them for a year or two, but they soon look around and see what their counterparts are making in the private sector and they move on. I believe that the Personnel Department, and the Chief Secretary (who is in charge of the Civil Service) have to address this issue and see to it that the Service continues to be competitive as far as attracting the right calibre and qualified personnel, especially Caymanians.

I recall that for a number of years the Auditor General's Office had a very difficult time holding or attracting qualified staff because of this problem. I believe that the Service has to become very aggressive, very pro-active, to ensure that our young Caymanians who consider making a career in the Civil Service are properly and fairly rewarded.

The other thing which has concerned me over the past three years (for which the Elected Ministers have received the blame) is the number of senior Civil Servants who have been dismissed from the Service. Even the Opposition has jumped on this—that it is victimisation by the Government. It is not the Government, Madam Speaker. The Elected Members have no responsibility whatsoever for hiring and firing civil servants.

I believe that this type of action has to be addressed because at present the civil servants are asking, 'Who is next? Is it me, or you?' I think it creates a very unstable working environment for our civil servants, and I believe it is very unfair to the Service to have to work under those kinds of conditions. I trust that the Chief Secretary will take note of what I have said and see to it that the conditions in the Service I have outlined are addressed, and that this type of victimisation is discontinued in the future. I will have more to say on this victimisation in the Finance Committee and I will not deal with those issues here in the Budget Address.

I am pleased to report to my people in the district of West Bay that, as promised, next year we have scheduled the new health clinic. I must say that if it looks anywhere as nice as the one just completed in Bodden Town, it will be a facility which we can all be proud of. I went to the official opening of that facility in Bodden

Town and I was very impressed, not only with the quality of the construction, but the practical lay-out of the facility. I believe that it will go a long way towards addressing the health care needs in the district of Bodden Town. So we look forward to getting one in West Bay. Ours will be on a little larger scale.

I was also pleased to hear the Minister mention in one of his public meetings, that attached to every one of these health centres will be an ambulance. I believe that this is very necessary. It is unrealistic to only be offering an ambulance service from George Town. I think the other one is in North Side. When you consider a life or death issue, a couple of minutes can make a tremendous difference. I believe the time has come when we can afford to put these services in our districts so that if we have a problem in the district we can address it immediately.

I am also pleased to know that we will be addressing the issue of roads this year, that is the major arteries, the Harquail by-pass will be done. I believe the by-pass that comes in somewhere by the Lion's Centre will also be started in order to eliminate, as much as possible, the congestion we presently experience in this country around peak hours, first thing in the morning and at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

I am also pleased that in this Sitting we are bringing a Loan (Capital Projects) Bill to address the issue of a new hospital for this country as we promised. Construction on that facility has already commenced, and this year I think we are scheduled to start some other phases of that project. By 1998 that facility will be completed. It will be a facility that is very practical. I am very pleased that the facility will be designed based on the input from members of staff who work there on a daily basis, who know what the needs are and are able to say how and what the facility should include.

This will also be a facility that this country can afford; it will be on one site and I believe that once the people of this country see what this Government has in mind, as far as the new health facility, they will be very pleased with what this Government has done with regard to health services in this country.

It is amazing that in 1992, shortly after the General Election—when the last government lost—I heard comments made to the effect that they were glad they were not re-elected because the situation had gotten to the stage where they could not handle it financially. After three or four years of good stewardship, they are all clamouring to get back in here. For what? To repeat the type of fiscal irresponsibility that this country was subjected to for eight years? No, Madam Speaker.

I want to say to the people of Bodden Town ... I commented this morning that normally this debate was opened by our former colleague from Bodden Town, Mr. Haig Bodden, an outstanding leader who did much to promote this country, who did much in supporting services and facilities for the district of Bodden Town.

I read an article this morning headed: "Her Time has Come", referring to a particular candidate vying for the seat in the by-election. The only message I have for the people of Bodden Town is this: Be very careful who you elect as your new representative. Ensure that that representative is someone who is prepared to work with the Minister of Health, who is also a representative of Bodden Town.

Deputy Speaker: Honourable Member, would this be a convenient time for the luncheon break?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, I have about five more minutes and I will be finished.

Deputy Speaker: All right.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: As I was saying, it is important that the Minister and this government have the ability to continue his programmes at the district level, as well as the national level. We do not need that type of—and I am going to quote a famous statement from the First Elected Member for Bodden Town—we do not need that kind of "adversarial" type of politics in the House at this time. We need people who are prepared to work together, who are prepared to address the issues and concerns we are faced with in this country.

There was an article also in connection with an advertisement that was run by the same candidate from Bodden Town who tried to portray this Government as being financially broke. It tried to give the impression that there was total chaos and mismanagement. This country has never been better off financially. When the Financial Secretary approaches the financial institutions in this country asking for a loan of $16 or $17 million, he will have no problem getting the funds. Why? Because the financial community is convinced that Government is responsible and capable of meeting its financial obligations. That was not the case between 1988 and 1992, when we had expenditure exceeding on an annual basis our recurrent revenue; where every penny that was earned had to go to fund recurrent expenditure.

This country is not in that kind of position today. We live within our means, we operate on the basis of a balanced budget and the results speak for themselves and speak for this Government. This Government has done very well, and I want to congratulate the Financial Secretary for so ably putting across on behalf of Government its accomplishments over the past three years, and its objectives for the next year.

Madam Speaker, I want to say that it has been a pleasure for me to be a part of this Government over the past three years. They refer to me as the whip—I may not be the whip, but I am proud to be a part and a Member of the National Team because I believe that this Government has its people at heart.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Continuation of the debate on the Budget Address.
[pause] The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

May I take this opportunity to compliment you as you preside in the Chair as Speaker? I think it shows that we have the resources within our Parliament and although there are bumps, peaks and valleys, we can cope: the expertise is there.

Madam Speaker, I rise to speak on the Budget Address delivered by the Financial Secretary on Friday, which proposes the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditures for the year 1996. I believe that I am virtually forced to speak on this occasion because other than my worthy colleague, the Government Chief Whip who does not hesitate to speak on these occasions, it seems to fall on me to be next to reply.

The Budget which was presented on Friday reflects more, I think, the Government's ability to hide the financial situation of the country than to make it clear as to what is happening and what is intended to happen. I draw that conclusion for various reasons, one being the fact that the House which was scheduled to open (if I remember correctly) on the 3rd of November, was postponed to the 10th of November for the important matter of presenting the Budget.

Secondly, I saw the newspaper story of the 30th of October with the very lame and pitiful excuse that the reason why the House had not convened was because the Ministers of Government were in the various districts accompanying the new Governor on tours through the districts. I do not believe that was the real reason, Madam Speaker, because the Budget has been something which had been in the making for the past several months. If Ministers had to be there to see to its finalisation, indeed, that is their job—they are paid to do that job. And, like everyone else in the country, when you are paid to do the job and be on the job, if you are not on the job you get fired. At best you have the deduction from your pay.

I think the truth of the matter lies in that the Government found exceptional difficulty in arriving at a conclusion in the budget, one which would show what they hoped could be called a balanced budget. In fact, I am not sure that this could be truthfully called a budget. I think it would be more correct to refer to it as a 'fudget', derived from the word fudge which, according to Webster's, is; "to make up or invent; to foist or to interpolate a made up story; a creamy candy made of sugar, milk and butter, often flavoured with chocolate..” I think a lot of flavouring and peanut butter went into this particular exercise to get it to what was presented.

There was no mention, for example, of the Government's reliance on contingency warrants, or what used to be called advance accounts. But, for some time, certainly, this is something that is heavily resorted to by the Government as the events of the Finance Committee held about 30 days ago would prove. In that committee the Government came for $15.5 million more than what was budgeted and also within that request were amounts of monies that had been spent without the approval of the Finance Committee. The Finance Committee in that instance was being requested to rubber stamp what had been done.

I think the Budget is supposed to be a document from which one can really tell accurately what the Government is about, with nothing left out. For example, a project costing $1 million will be shown as costing $1 million and not $500,000. When it is known by the Government that it will cost $1 million, the sum is committed, it is the cost, and that is the fact. I do not believe that that is the state of affairs with what has presently been done in the document we have.

In the Financial Secretary's introduction, he spoke about training in these islands and that Government had been cognisant of the need by providing scholarships and student loans, that the private sector had also played its part in providing educational opportunities. I think that is good in that any sensible government should realise by the mere fact that we have almost 50% of our population made up of people who are not Caymanians in the work force in particular, it is necessary for us to train those we have.

My thoughts as far as training is concerned, go beyond the idea of sending someone to higher educational institutions to get a bachelor's degree, a master's degree (as the case may be). Training, I think, has to be the process by which the people of this country are taught certain skills to make them productive and useful in their jobs—from the lowest job (the dishwasher, the yardman) up to the accountant and the lawyer. Even with the average labourer there are certain skills that can be learned depending on where the person is labouring.

I believe much has to be done where training is concerned in this country. The Government needs to clearly indicate to all businesses and employers; be they corporations, companies, or individuals who are self-employed employing others, what is expected of them in terms of development of the people who work for them. In fact, I believe that there are many companies and firms owned by people whom we would normally call wealthy and rich, and recognise them as our own people, that they could be greatly helped and could help their businesses if they believed in the value of training.

Training for the person who really is aware and lives in the reality of our world should not end; it is an ongoing process for everyone—the employee and the employer. If I confine it more to the idea of the employee being trained, then I think it is extremely necessary that the Government takes detailed steps to state to the country exactly what is expected; how it is to be done, and what interaction is expected between the employer and the Government.

I believe that we enjoy considerable advance technology in communications. I think that we are competitive with many, if not all, of the islands in the Caribbean region. Certainly, we are close to those that may be better off than we are in this regard. I also grant that Cable and Wireless has done quite an outstanding job in this country in developing services and technology. It has also been quite outstanding in its interest and its efforts at training personnel. I think it has been ahead of many, if not all, businesses and companies in this country for several years. I believe that speaks well for the company and it means that there are persons locally in this country who have benefited.

In fact, I know of a time when a former manager was here and he took deliberate steps to train Caymanians to fill all the middle and upper management positions. At that time perhaps there were about two or three positions that were held by foreigners in that company. I do not know what the state of affairs is now, but I still see a number of local persons working there, and often times I have the opportunity of speaking to some of them to hear that others have been sent on training particularly in the technical areas.

Admitting that, one still has to expect, hope, and require that the business of this company is carried on in a way that spills off financial advantage to the people of this country both in terms of employment and in rates charged for services.

I believe that the charges, particularly the international charges, are on the high side of the scale. For that matter, I believe the local charges are high. Obviously, the company is making a profit and the Government is deriving some revenue from the licence of that company. I, however, believe that it needs to be kept under review and scrutiny.

I believe the Government and the people of this country would be well served if there were persons within the Government structure (particularly the Portfolio or Ministry who deal with this matter), who were as highly versed with communication technology which relates to Cable and Wireless, to always be in a position to know and to speak with authority and knowledge of changes taking place and claims being made for higher revenue or increase in prices. I do not know if that is the case at this time.

I also welcome the idea put forward by the Financial Secretary about the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange. It is my understanding that this has potential earnings for this country which can be of considerable benefit. In dealing with this, I believe Government should play the role largely of the regulator. It is my understanding (without claiming to be an expert in this field) that the business of trading in stocks is something where millions and billions of dollars are traded, and that it always has inherent in it the element that something can go wrong; be it a major scam, be it insider trading, or whatever. I believe Government should seriously look at having available to it persons with the ability to understand the way this game is played, whether they are legal persons or accountants. I would certainly believe that would be advisable.

I do not think these islands need or could withstand something major going wrong in dealing with this particular aspect of finances. I do not know if it is proposed to bring a law to the House in this Session. I certainly hope not, because I do not think any of us are experts in this field for the past two years. I think it is something which should be given sufficient time so that those of us with enough interests could ask those who are experts really what the law means, whether they considered it sufficient, as the case may be. If so, then we will have to see what such legislation entails.

The new hotel on Seven Mile Beach is indeed most imposing both in structure and demand for labour which cannot be supplied by the Caymanian work force. It is imposing as well in that it has overwhelmed the Government House where our Governor and Head of State resides. I personally believe that the condition that used to obtain there has been changed forever. There is also the demand for infrastructure: roads, water, electricity, you name it, all needed because of this hotel.

I do not know how much Government has received in Customs Duty from the hotel, or how much is yet to be collected. While there are those who argue that that is the best that has happened since sliced bread, there is also another side to it: are we prepared to pay for the demand that it will make on the infrastructure of this country? Are we prepared to deal with the large numbers of non-Caymanians (which out of necessity must come to this island) to fill the jobs which are going to be created? Are we prepared to deal with the wages the property will want to offer its employees?

I say that simply to make the point that it is my belief that all of the persons employed in this country are not necessarily here because there are not enough Caymanians available to fill jobs, but because those Caymanians demand higher wages than many properties are prepared to pay. The alternative, of course, is to then hire persons who are not Caymanians and by virtue of economic needs are prepared to work for less in wages. But then again, Madam Speaker, the question arises: Where do those persons who earn those wages actually live? What does that do in terms of crowding of housing, public health, and other things? I believe this needs to be addressed when we look at financial implications in this country.

The Financial Secretary also said, that "we must constantly monitor the international and regional scenes and be prepared to make adjustments along the way." I believe he is right, and that needs to be done. How well that is being performed, I question. As I think the Government of the day forgets considerably that particular aspect.

We should "build on the foundation of private and public sector dialogue and consultation." These are all nice words, nice ideas, but I do not believe the Government does that as it should. There is a severe lack in that field as well.

Definitely I do not believe it is true to say, "the Government is committed to building on the achievement of the past ..." because if that were true, then the Government would not have put out of operation the [Dr. Hortor Memorial] Hospital, a Health Insurance Scheme, a Pension Plan, and all of the many other efforts which were stopped. That is the reason why the Government of the day spent approximately $6 million to see that the people of this country did not get a hospital, and is now prepared to put the country into further debt through a loan of almost $10 million.

Madam Speaker, I would like to refer now to Tourism. This is an area in this country that is all-encompassing. It deals largely with people who visit this country, the people who welcome them. It deals with people's earnings and it also calls upon the many services in the country which are related to people.

I note, according to what the Financial Secretary said, that this year arrivals are down by approximately 50 per cent over last year. If there was double digit growth last year in every quarter, and it is 5 per cent up this year, it is half of what obtained in 1974.

Cruise ship arrivals have increased and I think we can explain that quite readily in that the Eastern Caribbean, unfortunately, has been subjected to repeated hurricanes. So, many things including tourism have changed in those islands, and the Cayman Islands have benefited from it. This is something which can easily point out to us the uncertainty of tourism, in that no one has control over nature and that one strike from a hurricane can move a booming island into a lot of rubble and destruction and years of fighting to replace it.

I think our sympathies can go out to the other islands while we also have to see ourselves as fortunate, having benefited from the increased arrivals of cruise ships and visitors.

I note that there is a slowdown of arrivals from the United States and it is suggested that it is because of the slackening of growth in the United States. I hope that is the case, and it is not that we are offering too costly a product here in these islands. As I believe while we should try to cater to the upper market in tourism (and it has always been that way until recently), we have to understand that there are less millionaires than there are paupers in the world; less persons with money than there are those who have on average.

I think it is necessary to continue a policy of diversifying, attempting to attract visitors from other countries. I understand that there is some increase from Japan, different European countries, including the United Kingdom which years ago had been down and there was little or no tourism from those countries. I also believe that in any of these countries we need to cater to the upscale traveller as far as possible, and realise that packages, while they bring numbers of persons, persons do not necessarily bring high numbers in expenditure. I have heard various complaints with regard to the latter of the different types of tourists we get at this time.

Recently there was something in the newspaper where the Minister for Tourism had, it was said, taken steps to discourage certain packages from the United Kingdom which supposedly were not as profitable as they were to be. All I would say about that is everything can be done, it depends on how one does it. With tourism we need to be very careful in that we are not dealing with boats and aeroplanes, we are dealing with people, and I think our goal should be to make visitors feel wanted and not the opposite.

There has been in recent times considerable muscle applied in relation to enforcing standards in hotels, if I am to believe what I saw in the newspapers. I have always been one who believes that we should insist on high standards and that there should be a proper inspectorate in this country to see that hotels maintain high standards. I am led to wonder why, if the inspectorate was doing an ongoing job any hotel could reach a point where it had to be issued a Closure Notice, particularly a few weeks before the high tourism season begins. I do not know what the situation is there, but I think it is something which seriously needs to be examined. Part of the job of the officials involved with tourism, other than travelling, is to see to the fact that the hotels in this country are kept at the standards they should be.

Madam Speaker, reference is made in the Budget Address to the matter of agriculture. There is little doubt that there is considerable amount of attention and money spent in this particular area. There are some visible improvements in livestock, in agronomy, in what the people are growing at this time. There is certainly quite a lot to be said for the efforts that have been carried out. I think the best purpose that agriculture can serve in this country is that as many people (average citizens) attempt to learn sufficiently how to grow vegetables in their yards which could mean saving some money at the expenditure of a little sweat. I think it is catching on to some extent and I trust that it will continue.

I see no reasons at this stage to believe that because of the type of soil these islands have we could ever reach the point where we will be competitive to any other Caribbean islands that have relatively vast areas that can be put to agricultural use. So I think that the expenditure for agriculture has to be realistically weighed as to how much can be accomplished by expenditure of the money.

If prices in this country is any indication of prices in the United States, then one has to believe that prices are rising very steeply in the United States, which I do not believe is the case to the extent that one finds, particularly in the supermarkets. I know that the Economics and Statistics Department, if I am not mistaken, carries out surveys on the Consumer Price Index. I think it is something which the Government needs to be cognisant of and understand that the movement in prices in this country affects the people and there should always be an ever present, proper dialogue between those who sell consumer goods. As I mentioned a few minutes ago, we virtually produce little to nothing for sale, we have to import; due to this, prices have a significant impact on our daily lives.

I see that the Financial Secretary has mentioned real estate and what it has brought in terms of earnings. I do not necessarily agree that because of the fact that Government lowered the Stamp Duty fee it is the reason why earnings have increased, as my colleague, the Third Elected Member for West Bay, said. However, real estate sales do bring in money to Government. When lowering charges as has been done, not just with stamp duty in relation to real estate, but also to company fees, Government should take a realistic look at, and have a friendly chat with, those who sell the services. I doubt very seriously that the real estate brokers reduced the amount they charge, or that the lawyers charged any less for their services. My question therefore is: Why must the Government always lose in the process?

The construction industry may be booming, but it must be booming in some areas only, for I regularly hear (from sub-contractors, at least, smaller operators in the industry) that they are having difficulty in doing and finding business. I do not believe it is simply a complaint for the sake of complaining. I think it is quite real.

This is a field which employs a lot of people; it is a field where the big companies tend to get the bigger piece of the pie, and these companies are in a position to strangle the smaller operators. If I am to believe some of the stories I hear, it would leave me with the impression that it is deliberate in some instances.

I gather that one of the things which is happening is that some of the bigger companies choose in many instances to bring people with certain skills into this country (supposedly because it is not available here); but that these skilled persons are indirectly associated with the big companies. In fact, when they award contracts to particular outside companies they are actually playing footsie with themselves.

Also, the workers who come here in some instances, while the Immigration Board is told on the application forms they are being paid "X" amount, they are not in reality being paid that wage. Needless to say, the implication for us in terms of money is that these workers, while they must spend a certain amount here, an appreciable part of that goes out of here. So the money is leaving the country. My opinion on that financial aspect is that we need to find means, as far as is possible, to keep the money here in this country.

I heard of many work disruptions on the Westin Hotel in various skilled areas with regard to wages, et cetera. I think the construction industry plays a vital role that particular interest ought to be paid by Government to what is happening in that industry. There will be those persons who will complain unreasonably, but there are definite areas where people in this country have the skills, they have the ability to do the work, but they realistically price it at what is our recognised going wages, and it is causing a problem. Perhaps the time has come to set up some means by which the bigger companies know that they get the big pie, but they must out of necessity pass on to the smaller operators an opportunity for employment. Perhaps ceilings, levels, or stratum can be put in place to the extent or value of the work.

I see noted here as Government's expenditure the North Side Civic Centre (which I would imagine, Madam Speaker, you are very pleased with); the Bodden Town Health Clinic, and the Department of Environment Building at the North Sound. That is quite another matter because the building of that has to be added to the cost of the Hospital and, certainly, the cost of demolishing the present building that houses that department. I have not seen the Government anxious to add those particular costs.

Deputy Speaker: Honourable Member, would this be a convenient time to take a 15 minute break?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

Deputy Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.20 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.50 PM

Deputy Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continuing.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: When we took the suspension I was commenting on the construction industry and the role which this particular industry plays in the islands.

Looking at the Budget Address of the Financial Secretary, I note that his department is forecasting an expenditure of $171.9 million. This will be less than the originally estimated budget of $178 million. It is a saving, and I wonder how significant it is that various projects which were to commence this year did not begin, and some that did will not be completed, thus if the money was not spent it would show as a savings this year.

It brings me to the point that I made earlier, that with the Budget there are ways and means available to take figures and make lovely pictures, while in reality it does not send away the costs which are involved and would be carried over to another year.

Certainly, if there was in place a Fiscal Responsibility Law, as was suggested by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town recently, the same scope would not be available in showing the financial position of the Government as it is now—which basically takes a year to really bring or show the accounts of Government. In effect the Government's accounts are usually a year behind, other than the estimated projections.

I believe that there is considerable scope for regular monthly or quarterly reporting of the Government's financial position throughout a particular year.

Government proposes for 1996 to borrow almost $17 million. From that will come monies for roads, which is approximately $1 million. One million dollars for roads. I would like to speak on the matter of roads for a brief moment.

From a situation where in 1994 a few million dollars were available, this year (1995) there is scarcely any, particularly when one takes into account the condition of the roads in this country. One million dollars will do the very slightest amount of work which needs to be done.

The areas that will benefit from road work, I see in the Capital Estimates under Local Loans and Construction of Roads, there will be construction and repairs to various roads in West Bay—$239,666...

DEPUTY SPEAKER'S RULING

Deputy Speaker: Honourable Member, I must draw your attention to Standing Order 63(2) which reads: "On the motion for the second reading of an appropriation bill debate shall be confined to the financial and economic state of the Islands and the general principles of Government policy and administration as indicated by the bill and the estimates." These estimates will be discussed in detail in the Finance Committee, so, if you can, keep your debate on the financial and economic state of the country on what you are referring to in the Estimates.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I thank you for your intervention, but I think you have just read from the Standing Orders that one would speak in debate about the general policies of the Government and the use of the finances as it is contained in the Estimates. If that is correct, I am referring to the Estimates on page 396. Indeed, I think I would be referring to the policy of choice of these particular roads versus the dozens or hundreds that no monies were allocated for.

Deputy Speaker: Honourable Member, I understand what you are saying, but I am asking you to keep the debate on the Estimates for Finance Committee and deal with the policies, financial and economic state, and administration of the Government.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I understand then that the allocation of these monies would not be considered a 'financial state of the country', and that these are here by no direct policy of the Government.

I dare say, I will have to leave that particular subject and wonder what is, then, the policy or state of the country regarding roads. Surely, there must be some policy present when the Government decides in the face of outstanding requests and glaring needs throughout the country for roads, that they would allocate but only $1 million towards the construction of roads here in the islands.

I wonder whether it would follow as the policy of the Government that millions may be spent on an advance account, or a contingency warrant, as seems to be the case (particularly since next year is an Election year), then come to the Finance Committee to have those amounts ratified. I think it is a serious breach of the rights of all people in this House to participate in the approval and ratification of monies, such as money for roads prior to it being done, if indeed the Government should resort to that particular type of action.

There is need in the West Bay area (and we hear of that) for relief on the West Bay Road where the Harquail By-pass is concerned. How much will be allocated there I am not quite certain. There is also an immense need for roads, improvement on roads, widening of roads, the creation of more lanes from the eastern districts of this island where only in August the findings of the Public Works Department were that there had been a considerable increase of traffic over and above what obtained along the West Bay Road. In fact, if I remember correctly, there was a slight decrease of about two per cent.

For this Budget to reflect the needs of the country and the needs of the people who pay taxes, fees on motor cars and otherwise at this time, I think that considerable more money should have been allocated for the development of roads over and above the $1 million that has been set down in the Estimates.

The need for roads extends not just to the main arteries as was suggested by the Third Elected Member for West Bay; that these are to be addressed. But there seems to be also a considerable need for work on roads that lead off the main roads that are Government owned, within subdivisions and otherwise, that were highlighted particularly by the excessive rains we experienced in recent months. If there is one complaint that I hear quite often, it is that work should be done, needs to be done, on roads in the island.

Madam Speaker, also included in this loan is an amount of $2.66 million for school buildings. I wonder how sufficient this amount will be to complete the work that is needed in the various Government schools? There have been loans entered into by the Government where they give these funds to private schools—private schools being limited to a certain sector of the community by virtue of the fact that they charge fees not charged in public schools.

I understand that there are various primary schools right now that need work done; extensions, repairs, and I wonder how far this particular sum will go? I trust that in Finance Committee Members will not be asked to approve these amounts en bloc, left to the discretion of the Ministers involved as to where it will be spent. I think that for such to be done is outside of what is required under the Finance and Audit Law, and that Finance Committee should be expected to approve money specifically for work which is to be done.

I do not know what the Government's policy is in this particular regard, but it is of significance that a loan had to be taken for this particular purpose. I believe that the Government has failed to address the needs of the Government schools to the extent it should have, over the past three years. This has brought the situation to where it is now. Policies which direct large sums of money to playfields, stadiums, parks, and the like, when there is no area in greater need of expenditure in this society than education: education both in paying professional staff to teach and in providing the adequate buildings which are necessary. The fact that this is being done now means that it is something that has been outstanding. I have indeed heard of instances such as the George Town Primary School, where this is so.

Part of the loan (a major part) is to build a health care facility. This amount is $9.91 million, according to the Budget Address. This amount, as far as I am concerned, should not be here in loan financing. This is the amount of money which, according to the Government, would be paid from General Revenue—official statements by the Government printed in the press as being factual. This hospital would be met in large from General Revenues. This is obviously not so, not if it is coming via a loan—this is but only part of it. To date the amount spent in regards to the hospital that was stopped, this amount brings it close to $16 million. I believe the Government's policy is seriously wrong not to want to build a hospital, but to stop one that should be built and expect that the public finds the situation laughable and agreeable.

In this particular instance the spending of this money affects other areas of Government's expenditure. It affects the building now used as a specialist school. It is to affect the building now used as the Mosquito Research and Control Unit. How wise is this expenditure of money, where it is to be spent, and the amount? It is almost impossible to believe that the amount which has been spoken of and tossed around as being the amount for which a hospital can be built, will indeed do so, particularly when one is talking about building it over five years.

This makes for bad financial management, directed or driven by a political policy which does not take into account the serious needs of the people of this country to have a medical facility.

The civil servants by statute have the right to expect certain monies once they have completed their required length of service, through the payment of pension that includes both the permanent pensionable establishment, and also those persons in the wage category who have worked a long period, if I am not mistaken. Only this morning there was a question regarding the payment to workers within the wages category.

The Government's contingent liability is in the area of $65 million and this is not funded. Government has set up a reserve fund according to what the Financial Secretary has reported, and at this time it has grown $15.5 million. I wonder just how Government is applying this money at this time; how comfortable is Government with the results that it expects to get in terms of interest from its investment; and how realistic is the amount being paid into the fund in the face of more persons being employed in the Civil Service and thus, increasing the liability? I note that it is expected that the fund will now reach the amount of $16.4 million at the end of 1995.

This leads me to the point regarding the Civil Service and its growth. In 1993 the axe of the Government was first to be used to cut the Civil Service back 7.5 per cent. It sent shock waves, to say the least, through the Civil Service and everyone wondered whether they would be part of the casualties. This cut was not achieved, and, according to what has been reported in this House, no further than about 5 per cent was cut. I am told it amounted to about 20 people. The effect that had, and the trauma it caused to the Civil Service could hardly have been worth it. The savings, as I recall, were also extremely small.

At this time the Estimates show that there has been a significant increase in the service. In 1994 the established posts were 2,043; in 1995 it is 2,157; and estimated for the coming year is 2,291. That does not seem to me like a very good success rate in reduction. It brings into focus the unwise policies of a government that hastened to say there would be decreases in the Civil Service without carrying out a proper study.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay spoke about the Civil Service and stated that he was alarmed at the increase; that he would like to see it reduced and there should be efficiency within the Service and it should be attractive to persons who may enter. I agree with him. But then it means that there needs to be a change in the Government's policy.

I believe that a sensible policy would be one where a full scale study and review of the Civil Service be done to determine specifically what numbers are really necessary. It could not be done overnight. In a month—two months, perhaps—but it can be done. In the process one could see if the rearranging of duties within departments is desirable, if that would achieve the purpose, and whether persons could take on more duties and responsibilities than they have at this time.

I believe that Heads of Departments genuinely request staff where they believe there is a need, and, indeed, where the money permits, they are engaged. But I think the Service has gone a long time without a total and complete review. That is now necessary and it should be a priority of Government by mere virtue of the cost to the country, as noted by the Member for West Bay. It can be done without trauma.

I believe too that, while certain money must be provided to pay civil servants (and that certain salaries need to be prescribed, as it is now), one should simply not fall within a salary scale. I think the time has come where through proper job descriptions, evaluations, and classifications, a salary can be prescribed for an officer who may not fall within any particular salary scale, but for what the real value of the job is.

I also think that we have reached a point where rather than a civil servant sitting and hoping and expecting that he will get an increment, it should be determined by merit and assessment rather than simply getting $30 or $40 as it falls within that incremental scale.

It is my understanding that there is available to the Government now a system of performance appraisal that has been looked at, considered to some extent—how far I do not really know. But what that particular system advocates is that money awards are done annually based on merit rather than falling within those salary scale points. If this is correct, I will certainly advocate that is something that requires priority consideration.

The Civil Service is long behind an increase in salary as I understand. To the best of my knowledge there has only been one award over the past three years—I think it was 5%—and now there is a proposal for an increase of 9%. I certainly support that idea: I recall that in 1992 an award was given; if I remember correctly it was about 14% still outstanding, according to what was calculated then. So, between that time and now, surely there have been major dynamics and changes which would require serious examination and thought.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

Deputy Speaker: Honourable Member, it is now 4.30 PM. Will you be finishing your debate shortly?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: No, Madam Speaker, I have quite a bit more.

ADJOURNMENT

Deputy Speaker: May I ask for the motion for the adjournment? The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning—Leader of Government Business.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Deputy Speaker: The question is, that this honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

Deputy Speaker: The Ayes have it.

The House is accordingly adjourned until 10 o'clock, tomorrow morning.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED
UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 16 NOVEMBER 1995.

THURSDAY
16 NOVEMBER, 1995
10.16 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed. Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 233, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 233

No. 233: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs: a) Using the Hay Formula what was the result of the Civil Service Job Evaluation Exercise; and b) If a report was done thereof, would the Honourable Member table a copy.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Job descriptions have been agreed between Heads of Departments and post-holders throughout the Civil Service for each established post. Individual posts were evaluated using the Hay Formula by panels of Civil Servants who were trained in the process of job evaluation, and the results of the evaluations have enabled the development of proposed grade and salary structures. Two options have been submitted by the Personnel Department for consideration.

On the second part of the question: Two Reports (one for each option) have been prepared by the Personnel Department and submitted to the Honourable Financial Secretary and myself for review. A date is soon to be set for discussion on the Reports.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Having heard the answer, I wonder if the Honourable First Official Member would be able to say, when all discussions are completed and decisions made regarding this evaluation exercise, if the document will become public.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. That depends on whether the report is accepted by Government or not.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Member can tell us how often the Heads of Departments review the positions of the individuals?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

There is an annual evaluation of civil servants by each Head of Department. There was a new evaluation form introduced a couple of years ago that requires an ongoing evaluation, as opposed to the old form used many years ago when a single annual evaluation was done. That is a separate exercise from the matter of the job evaluation pay exercise which the substantive question was asking about.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable Member would be in a position at this time to say whether either of the two options as outlined in the answer will have any major financial impact on personal emoluments.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: There will certainly be financial implications with either of the two options proposed. I would prefer at this stage to not go into the extent of those, but suffice it to say, yes, there will be financial implications.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable Member would be able to say what prompted the Civil Service to go through the job evaluation exercise?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The Budget Address in 1991 recorded a proposal to begin a job evaluation exercise in 1992. This was actually the start of the exercise. It was felt that the various scales used in the Civil Service, which had been introduced approximately ten years before, were ready to be reviewed. A review was called for and was started in 1992.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 234, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 234

Deferred

No. 234: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to state why the hard court surface at the John Gray High School has not been fixed.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I would ask that the question be put for a later date—next week sometime—as the answer to that will be coming from the Public Works Department.

The Speaker: In accordance with the Honourable Minister's request, the question is that the answer to Question No. 234 be deferred until a later Sitting.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The answer is accordingly deferred.

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 234 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 235, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 235

No. 235: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to advise if a deputy principal has been appointed at the Red Bay Primary School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The answer, Madam Speaker, is that I must remind the Honourable Member that the appointment of civil servants is a matter for His Excellency the Governor upon the advice of the Public Service Commission under the Constitution, and should not be questioned by that Honourable Member.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would imagine that the Honourable Minister for Education would know if a deputy principal has been appointed or not. Can the Honourable Minister not say from his general knowledge whether or not the Governor has appointed a deputy principal to the Red Bay School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, if you feel that I can answer this, notwithstanding the Constitutional position, I will do so. If not, I would rather not get into who had been appointed or the whys and wherefores of it.

The Speaker: I see no reason why you cannot say yes or no. I think that is what the Honourable Member would require. If other supplementaries come up which are not permissible, I will not allow them. Thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer is No.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 236, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 236

No. 236: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration if any consideration is being given to offering legal studies to the public outside normal work day hours.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer is, No. All lecturers at the Law School are employed pursuant to standard Civil Service contracts of employment which require employment during the hours of 8.30 AM to 5 PM. It would be unreasonable to require lecturers to work additionally in the evenings or on weekends, although, in fact, many do so on a voluntary basis.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. As the Law School seems to be catering to not just the training of attorneys now, but to persons qualifying for diplomas and degrees only, is it possible with the staff through any special arrangement or agreement, to teach what would be called night school in Law? This is the real information which is being elicited, if there are any possibilities of it.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, it would always be possible to offer tuition in the evenings, but I believe that would depend very much on additional staff. The problem is that the students taking courses for varying diplomas and degrees which are taught at the Law School attend, in many cases, the same lectures. So, the lectures on a particular subject for the Law Degree are the same lectures that are attended by those students who are studying for a diploma in legal studies.

If those part time courses (if I can call them that) were offered in the evening, then that would naturally affect the same lectures that are taking place for the degree studies. There are only five Law lecturers, including the director himself, at the Law School. If consideration were to be given to offer studies outside of those normal hours, then I am sure we would have to look at employing additional lecturers.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Member can say if there have been any requests made by people who may be interested in that type of class because they work during the normal working hours?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am told that there have been one or two requests in the past, but nothing has come to the director recently.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Would the Honourable Member then consider the possibility of some type of public relations programme to seek the public's input in regard to how many people might really be interested, to see if it warrants such a situation? With the usual situation of demand and supply—if there are enough numbers it would warrant the hiring of additional staff.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, I think that the Law School reacts to public demand. If there was public demand for this type of tuition we would, of course, consider it. If that demand is generated in the future, I can certainly say that we will consider it.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Second Official Member would consider the fact that representatives are asking the question: that the demand may well be there, and be coming through the representatives.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, all I can say is that I will react to any demand that is there. The people who are looking for that tuition need to ask and then we can react to it. I am not sure that I can do any more than that.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Would the Honourable Member undertake to do some kind of feasibility survey to determine definitively whether such a need exists or not?

The Speaker: I think he has been asked that in different words, public relations is the equivalent I would think, so I do not think he needs to reply to that supplementary.
The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to suggest then that a public relations campaign is a slightly different fish from a feasibility survey in which people are asked to respond as to whether they would be interested or not. A public relations campaign might be slightly different.

The Speaker: I think the results would be the same. Can we go on to question No. 237, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

QUESTION NO. 237

No. 237: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration if there are any professional and administrative staff vacancies in the Legal Department.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, there are no current vacancies in the Legal Department. The filling of a frozen Crown Counsel II post has been authorised. Subject to the approval of the salary in the 1996 Estimates for the Department, the post will be filled either by a newly qualified Caymanian attorney or articled clerk. There will be a vacancy in a Crown Counsel post in mid-January 1996 following the decision of the non-Caymanian holder not to renew his contract.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Could the Honourable Member say if any persons have left the department in recent times, and when all of the present posts are filled (including the one which is being reactivated) if that will provide staff at a level for the required efficiency?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I did not quite follow the question about whether staff have left the Legal Department. Perhaps the Member could repeat that part of it.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: That part of the question was: Has any member of staff left within the last few months which may have created a vacancy?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: No, there have not been any recent developments such as that. As far as the staffing levels are concerned, I think the present levels are adequate in terms of qualified attorneys. We are hoping that during the early part of 1996 we will get computers installed in the Legal Department that will enable a word processor to be on every desk. I think that will make a considerable difference to the administrative running of the department.

If there is any area where the department is deficient, it is on the administrative side. Although a paralegal/legal executive was recruited not that long ago, qualified attorneys are still being expected and having to perform tasks such as photocopying and filing, and so on, which is really not cost effective for them to do. That is an area we are continually looking at.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 238, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 238

No. 238: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration if there is any arrangement for legal training at the Law School for civil servants who work in related legal fields.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, the part-time Diploma in the Legal Studies programme is a legal qualification directed at those already in employment, being attractive to those in both the public and private sectors. This programme is open to any student satisfying the entry requirements of the degree programme and has proved to be of particular interest to those employed in legally related fields. The timetable has been structured so that most of the core subjects of the Diploma fall over the lunch time period, enabling students to use their own time where necessary to attend the Law School.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if he is aware of any particular Government policy that encourages persons in related fields, immigration and the like, and whether there is any financial support for doing so?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: As far as I am aware, Government does encourage civil servants to further their education, and that would include at the Law School. I dare say that the individual department will want to try to ensure that any further qualification will have some relevance to that department. But, if they are already employed in legally related fields, I am sure that would be the case.

As far as financial help is concerned, I believe that is confined to giving the employee time away from work to come to the lectures, although in many cases the employee does his/her best to make the time up.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Does training allow an officer who has qualified in the diploma course to be transferred to the Legal Department, and then perhaps on to higher professional training as a lawyer? Would it be that type of training?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: If a student who has passed the Diploma in Legal Studies exam wishes to embark on a career in the law, it would be in the role of a paralegal, or legal executive, because he would not be a qualified attorney. If we had a vacancy at the Legal Department he would certainly be considered, but we do not have one at the moment. There would be no reason why he could not be considered for that employment.

The other part of the question was whether they could go on to become qualified attorneys. The answer to that is yes. When a student has passed the Diploma in Legal Studies then that entitles them to go on to the degree programme. They would be exempt from the first year of that programme, so they would automatically start the degree programme at the beginning of the second year.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable Member could state whether the office of Attorney General, under which the Legal Department comes, would consider embarking on a programme to entice local aspiring attorneys to engage in articleship through that office in order to gain qualifications and at that time have permanent employment in the department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is the intention of the Legal Department to take on an articulated clerk as soon as the funding I referred to in a previous answer has been approved. That will be the first articulated clerk. My desire is that we have two articulated clerks in the department, but to probably not take them both on at the same time; we would take one on now and another in 12 months because they are over a two year period. It would be my intention to continue to take articulated clerks annually, provided we can find applicants.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 239, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 239

No. 239: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to make a statement regarding the Ministry's policy as to the visits to schools by the person masquerading as a pirate during the time of the Pirate's Week celebrations.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Ministry has no policy with regard to Mr. Ben Cherry (masquerading as Blackbeard) visiting schools. His visits are left to the discretion of each individual principal, according to whether his visit can fit into the school's schedule. Some principals use him as a resource person, since he talks to the students about values such as honesty and speaks out against drug use. Other principals are not able to accommodate his visit in the school day.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say what age students these talks are confined to?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Upper primary.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say if any reports have been made regarding any children being intimidated or frightened by the tactics of this person on some of his visits?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Not to the best of my knowledge, unless the Honourable Member has a specific incident that he would like to refer to.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say if he is aware that this visitor sometimes brandishes a sword-like weapon which is perceived to be dangerous?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I know of no danger to children from this. I would just like to remind the Honourable Member that during Pirate's Week, there are hundreds of people who brandish, as he would like to put it, these replica swords and put on pirate costumes.

The important thing about this is that he is speaking out against drugs; he is speaking about honesty and values which help the children. If his way of getting this through to them in his quest against drugs is this way, then it is good and positive.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 240, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 240

No. 240: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning what the total cost of financial assistance to children attending pre-schools since 1993 is; the number of children presently receiving assistance; the criterion used to determine need, and how schools are selected.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The total cost of financial assistance to children attending pre-schools since 1993 is $1,022,860. The number of four-year-olds presently receiving assistance is 143.

The Government's policy, which has been in effect since 1992, is that no Caymanian child of four years of age whose parents wish him/her to attend pre-school will be disadvantaged because of his/her parents' inability to pay.

The parents select the pre-school they wish their child to attend and apply for assistance to meet the cost of that pre-school.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say if all of these schools offer uniformity, or if some schools have different curriculum and different pupil/teacher ratios from others?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, they are private schools and they do differ in the respects he has mentioned. However, meetings have been going on with them in an effort to develop a standardised curriculum.

I would remind the Honourable Member, however, that this problem is one which I inherited from the previous Government. I did not agree with the decision of putting 205 pre-school children out on the street when there were no pre-schools to take them.

Many of the pre-schools have only arisen in the past few years. Our first aim has been to get them registered. When the 205 children were put out of the Government pre-schools there were only about three, or four at the most, registered pre-schools.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if the Education Department, or any persons involved therein, helped to select schools other than following the wishes of parents?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I am instructed that the parents make the choice on schools, as I said earlier.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say, since this pre-school condition has been in place for three years now, how far Government has reached in prescribing a general standardised curriculum course of studies?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The first role that Government undertook ... because in my view this was a mistake in 1992 when the decision was made by the last Government, and it is a mistake that is not easily corrected.... The first role that Government undertook was to get the schools registered because funds were being paid by the previous Government (and by this Government in the early stages) to schools that were not registered. But the children had to go somewhere and the lack of foresight and lack of feeling for these young children by the previous Government—when they were basically put out on the street, and the school rooms were used for other primary school purposes—is what has caused the chaos we had with it. The meetings have been held. In fact, I have a meeting today that will be held with the Executive of pre-schools. We are doing everything that we can to get them registered and to assist them with their curriculum.

The problem that was created by the last Government is a very complicated one, and it is not going to go away in the next year or two. No thought was put into it when they totally abolished the pre-school system within the Government. There was nothing I could do to correct this immediately because the physical premises were used for other purposes.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say how many of these schools are now registered and how many remain to be registered?

The Speaker: That is coming up under another question.

If you have no more supplementaries, we can go on to that question.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say if, by registration, that will mean that some uniformity of curriculum or courses of study will be effected?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We are working towards this, but I have to remind the Honourable Member that these are private schools. I do not ever intend to force my will, or the will of this Government on private schools. If they can be led into developing the curriculum with us (and I believe that they are eager to do this) then, by all means, this will happen.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Honourable Minister said in his answer that the Government pays out $1,022,860 to students attending these schools. My question is: What are the Government's requirements for paying this sum, since the Minister suggested that the Government is not minded to enforce its will on private schools. What does the Government get for this amount of public money being paid?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The last government put 205 four-year-old children out on the street. The decision was made then that Government would not entertain the reception classes (which I refer to as the pre-school classes). The only thing that could be done as a result of that decision (which I think was wrong) was to fund a programme by which the pre-school children were able to go into the private pre-schools. What Government gets for it (if you want to put it that way)... we paid $1 million for the mistake of the last Government and we are going to go on paying it because I do not think it is fair for four-year-olds not to get some pre-school attendance to prepare them for going into the primary schools.

The problem which has now arisen is that children are coming into the primary schools at all different levels and it is Government's problem. It is getting to be a serious problem. All I can do is try to work to correct the mistake that the last government made in the interest of the children, and that is what I am doing.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say if it is not a fact that he has been Minister for Education now for three years and that it was within his power to change the policy left by the last Government? Secondly, can the Honourable Minister say if the Ministry of Education or the Education Department feels that they have any obligation to set standards in these schools? And can the Honourable Minister give a list of the 205 children which the last Government put on the street?

The Speaker: The last question is an impossibility, I think the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman know that. If the Minister is prepared he could supply that information at some future date if he has the time to do so.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: You are quite right, Madam Speaker. If I were a magician I could not answer the number of questions that these two Members have given to me. I really do not think the list of the 205 children is any of that Member's business. He can ask the previous government who turned them out on the street if he wishes to have it.

Going on from that, so much had been changed in the Education system by the last government over a matter of nine months... they had radically changed the full system of the Government. There was nothing that the last government did not touch. I have not been able to deal any more than I have in these last three years with all of the problems they created.

This one is not an easy one. I would like to explain why. When they put the 205 children out on the street, they took the physical classrooms at each school because they added another year to the primary school. There is no way that you can wave a wand and produce reception classes, teachers, physical facilities and everything else to go with it.

The other thing is that if you suddenly add another 60 or 80 children, the size of those primary schools are going to be way above what is acceptable. They are the ones constantly saying that the ratio of children to teachers and the size of the schools... they are constantly criticising. These are some of the results. But they apparently were disregarded by the last Government when the decision was taken there.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I know you have explained it three or four times, and I think that you are getting to the stage where you are repeating yourself and it is going towards a debate which is not allowed. Can you just answer whatever is left to be answered specifically and to the point?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I have nothing else. It is just that the question is repetitive. It is as if the First Elected Member for Bodden Town could not remember that he asked me a full question which he just asked a supplementary on.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I beg to move the suspension of Standing Orders to allow question No. 241 to be taken today.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder for that Motion?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Seconded by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8)

The Speaker: The question is that Question No. 241 be taken and that Standing Orders be suspended to achieve this.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Orders are accordingly suspended and we will continue with question No. 241, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED.

QUESTION NO. 241

No. 241: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning: a) What regulations, requirements or standards are prescribed for the licensing of pre-schools; b) The number of pre-schools in these Islands by name and location; and c) How many are licensed.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker. In order to become officially registered, a pre-school must meet the following requirements: The operators must submit; a) the Education Department's application form for opening a pre-school; b) medical certificates for all staff members; c) proof of employment and professional certification of one qualified teacher on staff; d) proof that the qualified teacher is licensed to teach in the Cayman Islands; e) copy of the liability insurance for the pre-school; f) a list of all staff members and the jobs they hold at the pre-school.

Reports on the pre-school are submitted directly to the Education Department by the Fire Department, the Department of Environment and the pre-school supervisor.

Once all these documents are submitted, a sub-committee of the Education Council which deals with pre-school registration will then review the application and make recommendation to the Education Council.

When the last Government, in July 1992, radically (and I believe wrongly) abolished the Government's ten reception classes, 205 students under the age of 4 years, 9 months, were left without schooling. The classrooms were used to add a further year to the Primary Schools. This rapid and radical change was detrimental to the young children.

The number of pre-schools in the Cayman Islands total 19. These are as follows:

- 1) Miss Nadine's Pre-School—Templeton Pine Lake, George Town
- 2) Ren & Ren Pre-School—Barnes Road, George Town
- 3) New Testament Pre-School—Edward Avenue, George Town
- 4) Kiddie Kampus—Crewe Road, George Town
- 5) Montessori School of Cayman—South Church St, George Town
Cayman Kindergarten—North Sound Road, George Town
- 6) Karen's Child Care Centre—Smith Road, George Town
- 7) The Toybox Pre School—Walker's Road, George Town
- 8) Wee Care Centre—Smith Road, George Town
- 9) Sunnysmile Pre-School—Walker's Road, George Town
- 10) Little Angels Pre-School—Walker's Road, George Town
- 11) Tiny Tots Academy—Hinds Way, George Town
- 12) Little People's Pre-School—Hinds Way, George Town
- 13) Mini Kids Pre-School—Monument Road, Bodden Town
- 14) Corisue's Nursery—Lower Valley, Bodden Town
- 15) Love N' Care Pre School—East End
- 16) Reina's Child Development Centre—Town Hall Rd, West Bay
- 17) Shauna's Early World of Learning—Barkers, West Bay
- 18) Bothwell's Pre-School—Pond Road, West Bay
- 19) Jack & Jill Day Care—School House Road, George Town

Fifteen pre-schools are licensed. Four schools are being recommended for licensing at the next meeting of Education Council. One pre-school is to be relocated as it does not meet the physical requirements for registration.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say whether one of the licencing requirements is that these schools maintain a certain ratio of trained staff to untrained staff?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Looking at this list there is no provision for a day care centre in North Side, can the Honourable Minister say if the Education Department is looking at the possibility of providing such a service in the near future?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This is now being considered.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for today. Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 13/95—Regulatory National Training Programme. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 13/95

REGULATORY NATIONAL TRAINING PROGRAMME

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 13/95, entitled, Regulatory National Training Programme, which reads: "BE IT RESOLVED that Government prescribe, by regulation, details for a National Training Programme in workplaces, including the Civil Service, encompassing measures for reporting, monitoring and evaluating the effectiveness of such training."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I respectfully beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 13/95, having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Private Member's Motion No. 13/95 has been brought before this House by myself and the seconder because we believe it is of paramount importance that a national, systematic programme of training be started in the Cayman Islands which would provide the opportunity for all persons with jobs to be trained. When I say 'trained', I refer to the definition found in the Collins Revised Dictionary which reads:

"Train 1. To guide or teach (to do something), as by subjecting to various exercises or experiences.

2. To control or guide towards a specific goal: to train a plant up a wall.

3. To do exercises and prepare for a specific purpose.

4. To improve or curb by subjecting to discipline; to train the mind."

The idea is that a national requirement would be prescribed by Government which would apply within the private and public sectors requiring that persons in various jobs receive training to the optimum of their ability, and that the requirements in the various jobs would be known. There would be a system of reporting back to the proper authority in Government, such as the Immigration Department, Personnel Department, Labour Office or one that seems to have come about recently, the Human Resource Unit.

I think it is true to say that people in this country on a whole believe that training is necessary. It is something that is talked about often in this House, and we hear it arise in conversation quite often in day-to-day life. It is of particular importance from the standpoint of preparing Caymanian people to fill the jobs for which they may not presently be prepared, and which have to be filled (at least on an interim basis) by non-Caymanians on work permits.

There is the oft-repeated complaint that Caymanians are not getting a break in the jobs which they could do. I suppose that some of this is true and that some is perception, however, this Motion envisages that Government would forthrightly recognise the need for it by requiring that it be done in all work places so that in order for a work permit to be issued for a non-Caymanian of whatever nationality, the employer would be required to ensure that the opportunity for a Caymanian to understudy in that job was in place.

The need for this is already recognised in the Immigration Regulations. In section 6 of the Immigration Regulations there is a prescription in regard to training and recruitment. I would like to read these two sections. Section 6 (1) reads: "The Board may require an applicant for the grant or renewal of a work permit to provide details of any programme that he has that is designed to ensure that persons of Caymanian status are provided with the instructions and practical experience necessary to make them fully qualified to carry out the job concerned satisfactorily and as expeditiously as possible."

Section 6(2) reads: "The absence of such a programme or the failure to implement such a programme without reasonable cause constitutes a ground for denying the grant or renewal of a work permit."

Although this is in the Immigration Regulations, and I believe that it is adhered to, to some extent, or is required to some degree by the Immigration Board, this motion proposes that it will be specific—it will be mandatory, and there would be no situation where a programme was not present unless it was a situation where there was no need to train (for example, where someone was a domestic helper, or something of the sort), but in any other circumstance there would be a training programme in place.

It is already provided that a work permit may not be granted, and, indeed, I have heard of instances where applications have been refused because the Board did not feel that a particular employer or a particular business had provided a proper training programme. The necessity for this training programme does not confine itself purely to the consideration of non-Caymanians training Caymanians in a particular work situation. It also takes into account, say, a Caymanian firm with Caymanian employees, which is not providing sufficient instruction and experience for the employee to learn to do the job which he is required to do, whereupon an employer may terminate the employee and perhaps seek a work permit. This situation could also cause a regular roll-over of persons which really is not helping the employer or the employees. This Motion hopes to put forward such concepts to Government as being valuable and worth implementing.

The Immigration Regulations clearly state that persons should be provided with the instructions and practical experience necessary to make them fully qualified to carry out a particular job as expeditiously as possible. Few people would not see that as something desirable, and I believe that most employers would subscribe to that view—although, from the many complaints I get about conditions in different work places here in the country one would think that perhaps the idea is not understood to the point where employers are doing something that would be to their direct benefit.

The question then arises: How should the programme be designed or devised to provide instruction and practical experience? I suggest that it is possible and within reason for a person in a particular job to be guided by verbal instruction, at the point in time when they may not be doing something right, or could do something better if they knew how.

I also think that one of the best ways to instruct is by means of a written job description which clearly sets out what duties and responsibilities are required of the employee. It is my understanding that there is not a high percentage of job descriptions in the workplace in these islands, particularly in the skilled and semi-skilled areas. I believe that such could be prescribed by Government in the Immigration Regulations, perhaps by adding a section to it.

Instructions can also be given by audiovisual means. This could be accomplished during a 15 minute break on the job when work was not at a peak, by simply viewing an audiovisual tape—of which there are many in the world. Specialised companies provide these tapes for various categories of jobs which employees could be required to view and then get back into the practical execution of the task.

These are known and tested means by which instruction can be given. It is also possible that instruction can be received from a text or manual. There are other ways and means, those are but some.

One of the main reasons Personnel Management has found why people do not perform well is because persons are often not informed of their particular role and what is really expected of them. What are their responsibilities? What do they especially have to do because someone else is not expected to do that particular thing? Specifically what are their duties which, in effect, amounts to their tasks? What tasks should be performed on a daily or weekly basis in any particular given job?

Another problem in staff performance is that often individual workers do not understand how vital their role is to the overall organisation, or exactly where they fit in both in time and performance in the execution or the completion of the overall job. When they do, it has been found that people respond positively.

Another area that is vital to good performance and learning is to tell a person what standards are required of them, whether they are supposed to fill 50 baskets in a day, or move so many wheelbarrow loads from one location to another, or make so many trips by truck and how many loads they will haul, how many points they will wire in one given day and so on. These are all things that can be done to improve the overall training, understanding and practical experience of workers in the workplace.

Specific experience would be through the performance of the tasks and duties in which they would be guided and instructed. They would also benefit from being taught the best standard methods. There are various ways of doing a job. We hear the oft-spoken phrase: "There is more than one way to skin a cat," but out of all the ways, there is one that has been found to be the best. Learning the best method is important. Of course, the supervisor or the employer may not see the best method, but if they are open to suggestions from employees... it is often amazing how employees not only see the problem, but know the solution for it. Often, through intimidation, fear, uncertainty, or whatever, it just goes on happening one way without any improvement.

The Motion also seeks a form of reporting. Employers should be required to show that they have trained employees. If necessary they could inform the Labour Office where there is a complaint from someone who was dismissed, that, indeed, the employer did provide the training but the person did not take the training, or had the wrong attitude or whatever; or that the employer had a training programme in place but the person did not do the job properly, or perhaps it was a job that Caymanians time and again showed that they had a dislike for. They would then have proof when they applied to the Immigration Board that they had tried, and exactly what the situation was.

I believe that the best reporting could be done on a prescribed one page form. I certainly think it would be possible to prescribe a form asking pertinent questions on, say, a legal sized sheet.

Some of the things which I think could be included on the form would be basic information such as name, address, telephone number, date of birth, the educational requirements for the job and a notation as to the employee's educational level and prior experience. There could be information as to the extent of the instruction given to the employee, what method or routine was taught to the person on-the-job, the time spent on the instruction and methods; it could include the employees assessed proficiency in the job, their attitude to the job, their initiative, their attendance, did they come Monday to Wednesday and not show up after that? Were they always absent on sick time? Were they tardy? How was their cooperation with others? As required on the application for a work permit, what effort had been made by the employer to find someone locally? That list is by no means exhaustive, but it gives some idea of what I and the seconder have about this particular exercise.

These forms should be sent to the Immigration Board and, for that matter, to the Labour Office or Manpower Resources Office which would have a record on a particular individual. This would serve the purpose for the Manpower and Labour Resources Department if they knew that John Jones was in job 'X', and a report came in quarterly showing that he was tardy, had a bad attitude, or was always calling in sick and the employer had cause to be worried or concerned about it. In a year if the employer chose to terminate such a person, the conditions of what was happening on that particular job would be readily available both to the employer and the Labour Office. Certainly, if the Labour Office thought it wise or appropriate, they could visit that work place and have an opportunity for an exchange with the individual stating that the Labour Office was there to help, but not to help those who do not help themselves in not performing properly.

The Immigration Department would also know that a particular employer is trying to train a person; that they are succeeding so they may expect in a year or two that the person on a work permit could be replaced. It would be an ongoing, monitoring exercise and it would be one which would make things easy for all concerned.

I would think that it would not be unreasonable to require quarterly reporting exercises where a person is filling out a specific set of questions on a properly designed form with specific questions. Of course, if there was a situation where the Immigration Board chose to examine a situation, it is within its power to do so. If, for example, they were not satisfied with the reports they were getting, they could question it.

Such information should also clearly indicate to the proper licensing authorities whether there is cause for refusal, or could assist in making recommendations for that employer for promotions. The results this would bring to all those concerned would be that Caymanians could reach their full potential, and they could experience job satisfaction. Having properly trained persons would certainly mean that productivity for the employer would be increased. It would surely enhance better relationships among the staff with everyone knowing how to do his job, when to do it, etcetera. It would increase profits for the employer and, of course, where service is concerned, customers would find satisfaction by having been served quickly and efficiently.

Government for its part would have reasonable knowledge of what the overall national situation is in the area of labour and work. From the data received, Government would also be in a position to evaluate the effectiveness of the training programme and be in a position to determine what changes they thought necessary in collaboration with the employer or the private sector, or within the Government organisation itself through Heads of Departments and Supervisors.

The knowledge for implementing such a programme is already in place, for Government has expertise in the Government Training Unit. It has expertise in the Personnel Department of Government. It has expertise in the Labour Office, in the Immigration Office and there are various professional consultants available who could be hired to advise as necessary to develop such a programme.

Government is not being asked to spend any pots of money; it is being requested to do what is found to be sound management and to do what many developing and developed countries are doing to improve overall efficiency in its human resources and productivity in the country.

I contend that it is critically necessary to implement such measures as a means of utilising all of the human resources in this country right now. If one needs indicators, let us take the indicator on the West Bay Beach—the Westin Casuarina Hotel—which will need several hundred people. They cannot come from within our work force, but for what our work force can produce those persons would have the opportunity to understand, and be trained to improve their level of skill to eventually start the process of gradual movement upwards.

There is no reason whatsoever that in Government's prescribing a national policy or requirement it should not apply to the Civil Service. Of course, that would be prescribed by the Governor through the Chief Secretary, through the Permanent Secretary for Personnel, going through the right and proper channels. For the private sector, it would emanate through Law, likely the Labour Law or the Immigration Law as it is presently.

The Government has been talking about this since 1993, and such a thing has yet to happen. I therefore recommend this Motion to the Government to cause this to happen now, and to move forward with this to the advantage of all of the people of this country.

Thank you.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.23 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 13/95. The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, the Motion before the House asks "that Government prescribe, by regulation, details for a National Training Programme in workplaces, including the Civil Service, encompassing measures for reporting, monitoring and evaluating the effectiveness of such training."

I should say from the outset that this Motion is asking the Government to do something which it is already doing. Obviously, the National Team Government has the greatest concern for training and human resource development, that is why we established the Manpower Development Advisory Committee which has worked for over a year to produce recommendations to Government.

I would like to deal with a few of those recommendations, but before I do, I would like to briefly deal with this aspect of the Civil Service. The decision on the training of civil servants is the responsibility of the Public Service Commission which is set up by law and regulation. Constitutionally, the Governor is solely responsible.

The Member introducing the Motion has said already that there exists a training capacity within the Civil Service, however, I feel that we can make some recommendations. The Advisory Committee has done that. I would like to read from their recommendations, paragraph E: "The Committee also recommends that the Civil Service salary scale be reviewed to assess whether any inconsistencies and de-motivators exist. Additionally, a comprehensive training and succession plan for the Civil Service should be developed and implemented."

The Government feels, and the recommendations put to Executive Council say, that there is obviously a need for a new or comprehensively revamped and specific national framework to deal effectively with the important objective of manpower development and training. We full well recognise that this cannot be done over night. But the recommendations are that the Committee recognises that a national manpower planning and implementation capability should be established if the country is to experience success in this area.

It sets out the functions of the Unit which would include information gathering, assisting in the development or modifying of labour and training policies, assessing the labour implications of new projects and businesses seeking permission or licences, monitoring the expectations issued on grant or renewal of work permits, coordinating training programmes and initiatives or schemes, and generally fostering an environment of a partnership for training amongst the employee, employer and Government.

The next recommendation sets out to reduce the incidence of bias towards certain professional and post secondary qualifications. Several actions would be needed: 1) job vacancies should be classified in accordance with international labour organisation codes, for example, so as to standardise the job requirements and descriptions and assist applicants to better understand the job being advertised; 2) the stated qualifications and credentials of foreign workers should be verified, classified and also conformed to the standard code for Cayman.

It says that this can be achieved by the establishment of a National Equivalency Committee. The recommendations set out to deal with what the Member spoke about in regard to work permits—to reduce the incidence of unrealistic and inconsistent advertising for employment. It recognises several actions which would be needed. There must be safeguards in the advertising procedures which ensure that local Caymanian applicants are encouraged to apply. Advertisements should state the title of the job, type, name and address of the employer and the salary range (2) the conditions and procedures of advertising and submitting applications for work permits.

If Caymanians apply for the vacancy, the Committee says that the employer should submit these details with the application for the permit by submitting: (a) the name of applicant, qualification and experience background; (b) reasons why the applicant was or was not successful; (c) a copy of the refusal letter and interview report for the Caymanian applicant; d) a copy of the job description and expatriate applicant's resume.

It says that there should be a penalty for false advertising, or for advertising simply as a formality, unless exempt from advertising by Government policy for specific posts, industries or sectors.

There should be a penalty for false declarations by the employee for which the work permit is being sought. The employer/applicant is liable in such circumstances. It recognises that Caymanians who applied for the vacancy should be encouraged to send a copy of their application to the Immigration Board. I believe that some of these recommendations are being put in place already.

The recommendations also support consistency in the salary and benefits package for Caymanian and non-Caymanian workers who perform the same jobs. It says that there should be some means established of monitoring this and a penalty for abuse. In the event of a variation due to lack of qualifications or experience, there should be an incremental movement in salary and/or benefits when this gap is closed.

Crucial to the work of the implementation capability (that is the next stage) is the access to current and quality information. This is not readily available now. The Committee recommends that a proper labour market information system be developed—the use of essential features of Organisational Classification and Action Plan for establishing the system is shown in the Manpower Demand Survey Report of 1990.

As previously pointed out, the function of the activities of the new Manpower Capability should perform a range of services possibly in tandem with existing departments of Government, Labour and Personnel, and non-Government organisations, private sector associations. These activities should include information matching job opportunities, promoting manpower development and training, assisting in improving the skills and productivity of existing and new workers in all sectors. Future projects and programmes should be evaluated to determine their enjoyment and training implications.

It is evident that we have not been lying down, that a lot of effort has been put into these recommendations by the Committee. The recommendation is that the Manpower Planning and Implementation initiative would introduce a comprehensive national training initiative which addresses the gaps in skills from the vocational level up to the professional level in all sectors. So, Madam Speaker, we are not sitting down as the Member stated.

It recommends an apprenticeship system. My Ministry has formulated a document to implement a comprehensive scheme which will now be sent to Executive Council for approval. Already throughout the country we have different organisations which have set up apprenticeship schemes, American Airlines being one. Caribbean Utilities Company is doing a good job in regard to training and has set up and hired special training officers. So more and more companies are recognising that they have a job to do in partnership with Government and that Government is not going to sit down and allow this situation to continue where our people are not given proper training.

The implementation stage now, the overriding principle which guides Government's deliberations is one of partnership between Government and the private sector which we see as being essential.

As I mentioned from the outset of my debate, the Government is very committed to a comprehensive assessment of Cayman's long-range manpower development and has demonstrated its wish to allow this process to be as democratic and participative as possible. Where Caymanians have relevant qualifications there must be opportunities available, given the number and range of jobs in our country, for them to prove what they can do. But the whole point of manpower development is that it seeks to address that first step—the acquisition of relevant qualifications.

I should say that as much as we have done in the Student Loan Scheme, or any other initiative taken toward the objective of manpower development and training, it will not be much benefit without employers who are receptive and prepared to commit themselves to the development of the Caymanian work force. Some employers seem to fall into this category and others seem to be rather passive. Others still seem to have a blatant disregard to the claim of the Caymanian work force for priority attention in terms of their knowledge and skill development.

To put it bluntly, this latter category seems to sometimes actively discourage employees, if they have any—Caymanian, that is—from progressing. This will do us no good in the long run, and I hope that such employers will begin to facilitate their employees in taking advantage of training that is already available. Certainly, this is what the Manpower Development Strategy is all about.

We recognise that a form of apprenticeship or understudy guideline is needed. To my mind there is a need for the means to be in place whereby in our main industries there is an understudy who is given every opportunity for career advancement and genuinely assisted so that the day will come when that person will be filling top and middle management positions. This should be seen as a two-way street.

In any event it is my opinion that an understudy or apprenticeship scheme is timely, necessary and important to the welfare of our young people, and critical to the future of our developing country. I strongly believe that effective mechanisms must be found to comprehensively address training and the upward mobility for all willing Caymanians in our work force.

I have said before that it must be fully recognised that a country as small as ours produces professionals at a rather slow rate, simply because of the availability of manpower in smaller numbers comparatively speaking. Also, it takes an individual many years of study and hard work in order to qualify in his chosen field.

However, while these are some of the hard facts, it must also be borne in mind that what has so far accounted for this harmony in our small country is also due to the fact that Caymanians at many levels have been able to benefit and prosper from the growth and development of our own country as we all rightly should. Surely, it is not expecting too much, nor should it be considered unreasonable, for a young, energetic and qualified Caymanian (after he or she has gained a certain amount of experience) to eventually replace the person to whom he or she is the second in command, who is naturally on a work permit. This is, and must be, the natural course of events in any small developing country, and the Cayman Islands should be no different. This is certainly the way that I feel it should be within our country.

As I said earlier, there are some companies doing business here which have given many workers opportunities to move up the career ladder. In fact, some companies have expended large sums of money in training Caymanians to fill responsible positions in their organisations. I take this opportunity to sincerely commend those companies for so doing.

I am also aware that provision is made for the Caymanian Immigration Board to ask for and examine the training programmes of companies before approving work permits. Today, in spite of the many criticisms aimed at the Government, I am aware of several instances where Caymanians now hold prominent positions in some companies because of the Board's insistence that when there are local persons who prove themselves and who are good training material, they must be given the opportunity before those companies are allowed to bring in outside workers.

In examining the whole proposal realistically, all employers in the Cayman Islands should view the training and promotion of Caymanians as a very sound investment in the secure future of their business and, accordingly, a wise contribution to the stability which makes the Cayman Islands a good example in this sea of unrest and uncertainty around us.

The Government feels that its initiatives in this area, particularly in regard to student loans and other funding for students, manpower development and labour reform will be of great assistance in realising these objectives.

If Government was not doing anything, if we had not started from scratch, then the Opposition would have credibility in asking us to do something. But no one who is honest and sincere about what they are asking in this resolution can say that there is not now an ongoing initiative for a National Training Programme. It will, as the recommendations have stated, encompass measures for reporting, monitoring and evaluating the effectiveness of that training initiative. No one, who is not trying to just put down the Government for the sake of being Opposition, can say different.

This is not something that is going to take a short period of time, because even when you try to bring a law there are opponents ready to jump on the band wagon to browbeat us and tell us that we are mashing up the country because we want training. Already there is a move in certain quarters to put a monkey wrench in the efforts of my Ministry and that of the Government in this training initiative.

I say here today in all sincerity, if we as a government be so weak as to allow any business in this country to head off or to dismantle what we are now trying to do, which at least two dozen people have been working on for the last year and more, then God help us, because while we are reasonable today, you can be sure that those coming behind us—the young people in this country—are not going to wait forever. There is no reason why in this progressive country we cannot move faster with the upward mobility (as I like to call it) of our own people. This is what the Government's Training/Manpower Planning is all about.

Some time ago, probably five years ago, the then Government did some sort of demand survey. But it lay hidden in the cupboard and nothing was done for years. Now they expect me to do this overnight. The same ones that are jumping on the band wagon saying that I must do it now, are the same ones who are going to get up when the businesses pounce on McKeeva Bush—they are the same ones who will have meetings with them and encourage them to stir up trouble saying; 'They are not doing the right thing. Break them up. They are not doing the right thing.' My conscience is clear. I believe that we are on the right track and I am praying that the private sector will as a whole join hands with Government in implementing the recommendations as put forward by the Manpower Development Advisory Committee which is dealing with specific national frameworks with the objective of dealing effectively with manpower development and training.

Accordingly, I see no reason why I should offer any support to pass this Motion because they are only trying to do something which they know we are already doing. If they can convince some group or persons that the National Team is not doing anything they figure they can gain a vote. I say to the two Members, join hands and try to let us get on. When they know the private sector is going to brow beat the Government, stand up with the Government, do not beat down the Government.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to offer my support to this Motion because what is requested in the Motion is something which will be of tremendous benefit to the development of this country, both economically and socially.

Having listened to the Honourable Minister, I am left to arrive at the position that he completely misconstrued what the Motion was asking for. He went off on a tangent talking about student loans and all of that kind of thing. The Motion made no mention of student loans. What we are talking about, and what we are expecting is for the Minister to say whether he and his Government are minded to prescribe a national training policy in tandem with the private sector.

I note, too, that every now and then he made mention of people ganging up with the private sector on the Government. My reply to that is that if the situation were handled the way it should be handled, it would leave no scope for anyone to gang up on the Government. It seems to me that what is necessary is a sound policy presented in such a way as to be so attractive to the private sector that they could see the merits in the partnership. That is all.

I therefore must come to the conclusion that two things are lacking: either the political will to prescribe the national policy, or the ability to put such a policy together so as to make it attractive to the private sector.

The Mover elaborated at great length as to the efficacy of the Motion. I would like to spend some time on articulating how I see the partnership working. But, before going into that, please allow me to say that one of the great advantages of this (should it be developed as a partnership) will be that the private sector will have available to itself a trained, loyal, and professional work force. The Government will be rid of a great responsibility in having to provide for people who are unemployed, or unemployable because they do not possess marketable skills.

I share a certain obvious disappointment in the Minister's position because I vividly recall that he once made a statement in the newspapers to the effect that he was going to create solutions for the unemployable. This is what we are talking about; this is what this kind of training policy would seek to bring in to the forefront.

There are many lessons to be learned from what happens in the industrial world. Allow me to remark at this juncture that perhaps if we were to search we could get all the assistance we would need in this kind of situation from the National Labour Office in Geneva, Switzerland, the main thrust of which is putting together these kinds of programmes, advising and offering support to developing countries this kind of expertise and monitoring at no cost.

Every time the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I bring a sensible Motion here all the National Team Government can do is try to put it down because they claim we are trying to get votes or credit. Madam Speaker, let me say something: I did not see CITN taking any poll to say that we had a 52% disapproval rate and a 38% approval rate. So we are not about the business of getting votes. What we are trying to do is help Government keep on track to do what it should be doing to help the people. That is the Government's responsibility.

The world knows that one of the greatest economic successes lies in the Japanese society. All and sundry know that the reason for their success is that they have the best, barring none, training programme in the world. Even the great United States, the bastion of industrialisation and capitalism, has begun to use Japanese's models in certain of their industries in training programmes.

A case in point: What happens in certain sectors of the Japanese economy and work force? Anyone entering, enters at the same level, be they university graduate, high school graduate, or high school drop out. They go through a period of training peculiar and special to that particular organisation. After that initial period of training has been completed, then the employers allow employees to progress at the rate their ability and intelligence allows. So it is possible for someone to come in at a high school level at the same time as someone with a university degree and the holder of the high school diploma rises above much faster than the person with the university degree.

That is not unlike the principle in the Civil Service, which is a specialist service based on the fact that whether you have a degree or you just came in out of high school, you have to go through a special orientation. Your rise up the ladder depends on your ability to interpret and carry out the prescribed rules of the organisation. That is what we are talking about—a training programme which incorporates and inculcates this kind of training.

The strong point about this programme is that while you are offering this kind of training you are also building loyal employees. When you invest in this kind of training and these techniques, particularly if there are several things peculiar to the organisation in which the employees work, they are going to stay in the organisation longer, they are less likely to be mercenary.

One of the striking things that I learned when I had the privilege of doing a training attachment in Japan some years ago, was that Japanese company employees almost invariably never leave the parent organisation. Indeed, when someone has been trained by a particular organisation and they introduce themselves, they introduce themselves as being an employee of that organisation. We in the West, say, 'I am Roy Bodden, the son of Sunshine.' They would say, 'I am Mr. Henry Lee of Nissan Motor Company,' or Toyota Motor Company, so important is the attachment and so loyal are they to their place of employment.

I also found out that one would be regarded with suspicion if he attempted to leave one organisation and go to work for its competitors. The reason? They place great value in the time, money and concern which was given to them to provide the training so that they could move forward. They take great pride in that.

What we are saying is that the spin-off from this type of programme would be far away and beyond the purely economical, although we cannot discount the feeling of self-worth, the economic earning power and the prestige that it would afford these people who are enrolled in such a programme.

I want to speak a little bit about how we can monitor this programme. I would see, as mentioned by the Mover, that there would be a special form on which the report would be made in a prescribed form which would be standard throughout all organisations in all the places of employment. On this form would be the name and age of the employee, the title of the job for which they are to be trained, and their educational or entrance level (very brief)—university graduate, high school graduate or mature, if they were not a university or high school graduate but had reached an age anywhere past high school graduation.

Next, a detailed description of training, whether they were training for a mechanic, if it was specialised; if they were going into the electrical aspect of it; or if they were going into the air-conditioning aspect or some other specialised form; how long the training would take; what would be the evaluation steps, whether they would be formal exams constituted, or whether it would be purely based on completion of projects at regular intervals.

Then would follow information on the supervisor. What was the supervisor's experience? There would be a place for comments by the supervisor. This form would be required to be submitted to the Department of Labour, or the Manpower Office or Human Resources Office on demand.

In addition to that there should be a section called 'Inspectorate' which could arrive at a particular place of employ at any time and request to see the training records.

In the event that things do not go as planned... What if we have an employee who is not progressing as rapidly as he/she should progress? There should be clearly spelled out what steps would be in place when this happens. For the system to work there should be little or no room for ambiguity. If the person is good at the practical but not at the theory; or good at the theory but not good at the practical... in other words, there should not be a situation which can cause ambiguity so that when the Department of Labour says that they consider that training period concluded, the trainer should not be able to say the trainee has not lived up to expectations, therefore they have to find another person to train, thereby automatically extending their stay. If the form is sufficiently clear and the policy is sufficiently clear, it will eliminate these kinds of misunderstandings and ambiguities.

That is simple enough. That is standard in countries which have nationally prescribed training schemes. As a matter of fact, the Japanese Government, in the Ministry of International Trade and Industry, sets up these kinds of programmes in any country where Japanese companies have manufacturing or sub-assembly plants. They provide the training for the host countries themselves. There are scores of models for us to choose from if we are serious.

It is important that we pay serious attention to this request if only because it is impractical for us to think (as ideal as it seems and as much as we would like) that everyone will embark on a four year university programme. So we should make these kinds of training opportunities available. Indeed, certain training in technical areas is based on these kinds of programmes where the formal classroom time is limited and on-the-job training is more demanding and strictly supervised by virtue of a structured apprenticeship programme.

Such a policy would be especially helpful in re-training certain persons. Certainly, in a country where, for example, the tourism industry is to a certain extent seasonal, where the construction industry fluctuates, it would allow for a certain flexibility in those persons who participated in such a training programme by affording them the opportunity to move into the labour force where the demand is greatest for the kinds of skills they have to offer.

It would afford Caymanians the greatest opportunity of employment prospects by virtue of the fact that having been trained and experienced they would be automatically in line for the most attractive of these jobs whenever there were vacancies. That would allow us to always maintain a certain standard for our people where they would not have to worry about being surpassed or being inundated by outsiders.

Of some importance also, is that it would allow the participants in these kinds of schemes the flexibility and the enrichment of being involved in a technical area for a certain number of years and, eventually, if they were so disposed, to move into a completely different area. That would allow them the flexibility and the opportunity to move from a blue-collar level up to a white-collar level if they so wanted. They could save some of their earnings and further themselves by taking courses at the Community College or eventually going to a university. What we would have is a society where some of the people could be cross-vocational if they so desired.

All successful societies offer this type of training programme for their citizens. What we are asking for is simply a national policy prescribed for all and sundry.

I want to say too that it affords great opportunity for partnership between the private sector and the Government. When saying that, I do so with the full realisation that the private sector is eminently equipped to help the Government implement these kinds of training programmes successfully, particularly multinational or transnational corporations in that they will have had years of experience in other countries if not from their countries of origin.

I stand here believing that were such a proposal put in place, the attractiveness could be seen and understood, the proposal would be a partnership, it would be expressed with little or no room for misinterpretation or ambiguity. I am sure that the private sector would find it palatable—if for no other reason than it must be more attractive (it is certainly less expensive) for the private sector employers to employ people from the Cayman Islands as against bringing in foreign nationals to do these types of jobs, particularly, where they involve seasonal labour.

I do not buy the excuse that the Motion is brought here out of political expediency. The same way that the Government can invite us to stand with them... and certainly, Madam Speaker, let me say on that note that we have no objection to standing with the Government as responsible legislators when the Government is right. We have done so in the past, and we will continue to do so.

But there is another side to the coin. That is when we, as responsible legislators on the Opposition, bring Motions that the Government could put into effect for the good of the country, we expect them to see the efforts for what they are—even if they have to modify them to accept them—because, believe you me, it is true to say that we on this side (that is, the two Opposition Members) are as blue-blooded as any Member of Government, and we want the same things for the country that they want, namely, the best.

So, I give my full support to this Motion and pray that the Government may soften their old iceberg hearts and see the merits of this Motion and accept it for what it is—something which will greatly benefit our people to the credit of Government and Opposition alike.

Thank you.

[Pause]

The Speaker: If no other Member wishes to speak, would the Mover like to exercise his right to reply?

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I listened to the reply from Government with regard to the acceptance of Private Member's Motion No. 13/95, Regulatory National Programme. I do not think it is because it was Motion number 13 that it fell on hard times or rejection. It seems to me that it is standard procedure when Motions come from myself or my colleague, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

The Minister for Labour (among a majority of other things) alluded considerably to a document which he presented in this House in July 1995—Manpower Development Advisory Committee, Recommendations to Executive Council. I do not necessarily know the workings of this Committee (who is on it, how many and so on), but I do note that it is supposedly recommendations to Executive Council. In the time that he spoke, I was not able to arrive at what has been Executive Council's attitude or decision regarding these recommendations.

I would like to refer to some of the things he said and, indeed, what this document said—noting first that this was in July (and we are now almost at the end of the year) and apparently a decision is yet to be taken and something done about the recommendations.

In the recommendations, at (a), it says, and I quote: "...need for a new or comprehensively revamped and specific national framework to deal effectively with the important objective of manpower development and training. Crucial to this new frame work will be the development and promulgation of clear and fair expectations on what Government expects from employers and employees on the subject of manpower development training."

If I pause there, Madam Speaker, I say to the Minister and the Government that they should accept what this Motion asks for, for this Motion is asking precisely for clear and fair expectations of the Government to be expressed through a policy that says there shall be training nationally in the work place. A very simple, fair, straightforward statement: that Government requires the training be done nationally.

In this document, which the Minister referred to, it also says: "Assuming that the Islands economy will continue to grow at existing levels, and the difficulties encountered with managing the rate/pace of growth, the number of work permits are unlikely to decline significantly in the short term, and the training of Caymanians will be an even greater priority." How right I think they are.

I used the example of the Westin Casuarina Hotel this morning where there will undoubtedly be hundreds of people employed, and that is a good point for the significance of training. This document goes on further to say: "The issuance of work permits within the framework of a clear training policy must become a strategic interest." It is as if this document is arguing the request before the House.

Another section says: "The Immigration Board needs to stress more effective training and promotion of able and willing Caymanians in accordance with the conditions/expectations on work permit grants and renewals." Again, great foresight six months ago.

It also goes on to note: "In addition to other benefits accruing to employers and employees from this approach is obviously the reduction of frustration due to uncertainty and changing expectations." This Motion is not a new motion, for in September 1993 I moved the same Motion asking the Government to take some action then. I think that any one would admit that a bit of time has passed since then—more like two years—and Government was supposedly doing something then about it.

I say that because the Minister (who is still the Minister today) who had then assumed the responsibility for Labour said he was doing something about it. I quote him from the Hansard, 30th September, 1993: "Madam Speaker, as I said in the House the other day, I assumed responsibility for labour matters on the 31st of July [that must have been 1993]. Since that time, we have been familiarising ourselves with the functions of the Labour Office, and identifying areas pertaining to labour issues which will receive policy emphasis." It has taken two years and more of emphasising, apparently without results.

I quote the Minister as also saying: "Any conceptual guidelines, or systems, with regard to national training must realistically relate to our economy and our labour market." I agree. "I believe that there are key areas for partnership between Government and the private sector in connection with training because we realise that there is not enough emphasis on it. This whole matter of training and opportunities for Caymanians, not only for training but opportunity otherwise for promotion, is something that we have already started to act on." But even now, the Government is not in a position to make a policy statement to say that there should be training in the workplace nationally.

The Minister also added: "We cannot be fish and fowl, Madam Speaker. When I say that, we cannot expect to take in the whole world and then have a chance for our people. What we must do is see that our people are given the opportunity and they themselves must have the will to move forward. They cannot say, 'I am a Caymanian, therefore I must get this or that job'." That is true.

But, Madam Speaker, two years have passed and we have reached the time... not that anything is wrong, in my opinion, with the major recommendations to Executive Council, but they are touching on things such as student loans and all the rest of it. This Motion is not by any means getting into that broad of an aspect in this country in its request. It is simply saying take the first step and prescribe a policy that there shall be training. When you do that, then tell the persons affected what you mean by training and how they will report it to the Government.

There was quite a debate at that time. The National Team Government was at its zenith; mashing and smashing me and my colleague from Bodden Town was the order of the day—not that it has changed much. There were many more people for doing something about this matter than those against it.

One against it at the time was the lady Member from George Town, who said: "I would like also to assure Members of the House, and the listening public, that Government is trying to make sure that everything is in place for training in the workplace, and that our people are properly trained. If I did not have faith in the Honourable Member with this, then I would have to support the Motion. But I am not going to support this Motion, Madam Speaker." It depends upon what this Government calls 'doing something' about a particular request.

I quote, again, from the views of another Member, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, who said: "These people who do not know what kind of training policy to implement within their workplace, some of them are saying: 'I have six employees and two of them are on work permits' (I am just using this as an example), 'and I cannot believe that Government expects me to hire two more Caymanians to start up underneath the two work permits that I have so that they can learn what the two people who are holding the work permits are doing.' This is the type of misconception that, in my estimation, abounds."

I think the Member was correct. What this Motion is asking for, is to make it clear that this type of misconception is not the case.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town went on to say that: "...it is simply to have, by regulations, some guidelines for the various sectors of the private sector where people know exactly what is required of them and which way they need to go in order to satisfy what Government thinks is a reasonable direction to train Caymanians." [1993 Official Hansard Report—1 October, 1993]

More than two years ago, this was the opinion of Members of this House. At this point in time, the Government is still refusing to say to the people of the country that there will be a training policy and that this is what they expect as a simple start.

The Second Elected Member for George Town also spoke in favour of this. I quote what he said: "Personally, I would like to see a greater effort on the part of the private sector to ensure that there are training programmes in place. I know, as we have heard, that efforts are being made in this direction. But it is my personal belief that more effort can be made in this regard. As we campaigned last year this was one of the things that we dealt with, and what I contend is that over the last nine months things have changed, to some extent, because of the efforts made by the new Government. But there are still needs out there, everything is not rosy just because of efforts we have been making over the past nine months. There is a need to encourage proper training programmes, to put the pressure on private firms, to insist that these private firms do train our people so that they can graduate into the upper categories of work and become executives and, eventually, manage the various companies." [1993 Official Hansard Report—30 September]

Madam Speaker, all that this Motion is asking the Government to do is to say whether it really wants training or not. If the Government states that there shall be training, then such will obtain as Government's national policy in the private and public sector through the appropriate authorities, hierarchy system.

Then, to prescribe the details on the reporting it has been suggested (and I believe it is a reasonable way of so doing) that it be done on a straightforward form which is sent to the proper authority in Government, and that Government, in regulations which can be easily changed without reference, come into the Legislature to do it; that it be prescribed so that employers know that we expect them to give their employees some instruction be it verbally, through a manual, a lecture, a video, or whatever; and that they give them the opportunity to learn and acquire the skills for that particular job and that they report their assessment to us.

By that means Government is in a position to know whether the Caymanian given the opportunity is progressing or not, or whether it is a position where we should grant a renewal of a work permit. That is all this Motion is asking for. It has nothing to do with hindering the wide and outstanding scope of what is envisaged in the recommendations to Executive Council.

In fact, it helps it along by taking one small step in the right direction. It is the same old song; the same old music that the Government has been singing to for three years, but it seems like they are not prepared to dance. Certainly, the expectations of those people who can be helped are not being fulfilled.

This Motion means exactly what it says, and it presents an easy request to which Government can comply. I, therefore, once again recommend this to the Government as something that is necessary.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion 13/95: "BE IT RESOLVED that Government prescribe, by regulation, details for a National Training Programme in work places including the Civil Service encompassing measures for reporting, monitoring and evaluating the effectiveness of such training." I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May we have a division?

The Speaker: You certainly may.
Madam Clerk.

Clerk:

DIVISION NO. 14/95
Private Member's Motion No. 13/95

AYES: 3

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts
Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
Mr. Roy Bodden

NOES: 11

Hon. James M. Ryan
Hon. Richard H. Coles
Hon. George A. McCarthy
Hon. W. McKeever Bush
Hon. John B. McLean
Hon. Truman M. Bodden
Hon. Anthony S. Eden
Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr
Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks
Mrs. B. L. Thompson Murphy
Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell

ABSENT: 3

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson
Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson
Mrs. Edna M. Moyle

The Speaker: The result of the division is three Ayes, 11 Noes, the Motion therefore fails.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 13/95 NEGATIVED.

The Speaker: The next Motion is Private Member's Motion No. 15/95. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 15/95

CREMATORIUM FOR DEAD CARCASSES

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, would the Chair oblige me by waiting for a moment? I just requested the Serjeant to bring me a copy of the Motion. [Pause] Thank you for your patience, Madam Speaker.

I rise to Move Private Member's Motion No. 16/95, which stands in my name, entitled, Disaster Relief Fund...

The Speaker: Excuse me, Honourable Member, Private Member's Motion No. 15/95, Crematorium for dead carcasses.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, there is a mistake on my Order Paper because that is what I am going by. I beg your pardon.

The Speaker: I thought we should end with the carcasses this evening. [Laughter]

Mr. Roy Bodden: Please, Madam Speaker, I crave your further indulgence. [pause] Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 15/95, entitled, Crematorium for Dead Carcasses, standing in my name, which reads: "BE IT RESOLVED that Government consider procuring a crematorium suitable for the disposal of dead animals."

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 15/95, having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In moving this Motion, it is my observation and understanding that there is a need for such a facility, as the practice which now exists is highly unsatisfactory, unsanitary and unhealthy.

It is safe to say that we have developed a consciousness about our environment and the ecology, as well as about practical and safe practices regarding the disposition of these kinds of carcasses which prohibits us from disposing of them in the traditional ways known to Caymanians; namely, simply digging a hole and burying them, or dumping them at the dump site.

As one moves around the island, it becomes obvious that we have more than our fair share of wild dogs, to name but one type of animal which causes this type of problem. It is my understanding that the Department of Environment has tried to come to grips with this problem but their efforts have been stymied by the fact that there is a plethora of problems brought on by these numerous animals; namely, owners trying to dispose of them.

Importantly too, the problem does not only lie with the disposal of carcasses from nuisance dogs, but with other animals as well.

The Motion specifically requests a crematorium because this is the most efficient way of disposing of these carcasses, as well as being the safest way in terms of the elimination of any bacteria or liquids which may go into the ground and contaminate it. I firmly believe that, not only would this be a sound investment, it would eliminate what is obviously a grave and growing health hazard.

I make this request to the Government in the hopes that they may see fit to investigate into this problem with the view to providing the best solution.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I speak on behalf of the Government on Private Member's Motion No. 15/95.

I would like to say that the Government has a suitable disposal procedure in place for dead animals in this country. An area of the dump has been identified for this purpose and, unlike what was just said by the Mover... I am wondering if he knows where the dump is, because that area is identified as the dump and one would find nothing less there, and one would not expect to find water underneath that dump not contaminated.

The way it is presently being used is a cost effective way which has worked to date. Where we are advised by medical personnel that dead carcasses should be incinerated, we will do so. Of course, it will be done through Government's equipment at the same dump.

Instances where this will take place would be where it is believed that dead animals are infected with certain diseases and, no doubt, every step is taken at that time to ensure that no further contamination is spread. With regard to the ordinary death of animals, there is no reason why we cannot use the system which is presently being used. The area has been identified, a large area is cleared, a hole is dug, the carcasses are buried at a depth where they can create no more stench than one would smell when one visits a garbage dump.

What I would like to draw to the Mover's and Second's attention is what it costs to collect garbage and to dispose of garbage, and ask if they can honestly justify spending the kinds of funds it would take just to say that we are going to incinerate wild dogs. I am certain that the Financial Secretary can enlighten them on how much is spent on a yearly basis and what is collected in return for the service.

Every time the wind blows, one should not jump on the band wagon and come to this House with a Motion. I was expecting this Motion because some weeks ago certain individuals took a field day at the public dump. They took pictures and have been circulating them to various people in the country. The photographs showed where the Turtle Farm had dumped some of the refuse from the farm, namely, the intestines and heads of some of the animals; it showed where the Department had dumped some dogs. That is the place where that should have been taken.

Although the person snooping knew when to go to see it... yes, it had not been covered. Some people will try anything to prove a point. I know exactly where this is leading to because presently on this island today is an incinerator in the middle of a subdivision that is privately owned which was erected without Planning Permission. This is exactly where this Motion is leading to.

As far as I am concerned, it had no authority from me to come into the country. It came here prior to, and should have met with Planning permission. As far as I am concerned, if it is hoped that I will recommend that Government use that facility, one would be wrong because there is no need for it at this present time.

It is unfortunate that mountains are made out of mole hills. It is strange that people tend to know what garbage dumps are because I have seen them all over the world, and I have never seen one yet that did not put off a stench.

The Department of Environment and my Ministry are aware of the situation at the dump. We are constantly working there to try to upgrade it and if we see the necessity to upgrade this area to something else, I will be the first one to recommend it. But I will in no way try to create extra expense on this country at a time when we cannot afford it.

Therefore, my Government supports me in not supporting the Motion which is before the House.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I think if anyone needed confirmation about priorities out of whack, they would be convinced by the reply I just heard from the Minister responsible for garbage dumps in the country.

I seconded this Motion because I am aware that there is something called disease. Disease comes from all sorts of areas, including mosquitoes which fly around (of which we have an abundance) and often bite people; dengue, and the like, created there.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: A true revelation.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: We have another insect called flies, and they tend to fly around the environment as well, and while they do not normally bring a stench, they do not bring perfume. They do carry germs.

The Minister has seen, like I have, some pictures of turtle heads, dead dogs, and all the rest of it in the dump. I was absolutely astonished to believe that that is the way carcasses are disposed of.

As far as I know, the Hospital and the Health Services recognise that there is a need for certain items to be disposed of in a certain fashion. That is why I have seen at the Hospital red plastic containers labeled 'Medical Waste', which are supposed to be disposed of in a certain way; that is why I think I see certain vans or trucks marked with certain signs that they carry certain infectious waste. If it seems out of place to the Minister, it certainly does not seem out of place to me, having learned that much about environment and disease.

It is my understanding that there used to be a furnace or an incinerator at the hospital for certain medical waste. I do not know if it is still there on the compound, perhaps it has moved elsewhere, where these things were destroyed. I am also told that they burn ganja and cocaine in this country because they really want to get rid of it. I do not see any reasons as to why carcasses of animals could not be disposed of by burning if that would limit the possibility of creating disease.

I believe that the Minister is aware that there are incinerators in this island set up in subdivisions without approval of himself or the Planning Department, then it is his unquestionable duty to do something about that, and that would not necessarily be, in my opinion, to allow them to continue there; or even for people who have such things on this island which are unlicensed to make an approach to the authorities to put them in use.

The reason why I am supporting this Motion is that I am aware that there is a problem in this country in terms of finding space for garbage dumps here and in Cayman Brac. No one wants the garbage dump in their back yard. The irony is that those who have the most are normally the ones who produce the most garbage and they always tend to want these things in the area of those who have the least.

I recall that right in George Town about four years ago there was a major outcry when the last Government was attempting to take in space that had already been designated for a dump in this country.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I am drawing the Member's attention to Standing Orders dealing with relevance.

The Speaker: He had not finished what he was saying, so I cannot rule on that. I think he started to say something about an area for a dump.

Would you please continue, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, then I can make my ruling.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the Minister started off about garbage dumps and that being the place for carcasses. I am making the point that we have extremely limited space in this country—it is a major problem in this country—and my reasons for wanting this particular item that is going in a garbage dump, but should not rightfully be there, and therefore why I seconded this Motion. I think that is relevant.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I think you started saying that some place had been suggested for a dump. I want you to finish that thought, you did not quite finish. I think that is the point he was rising on.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The place I am speaking about is the very same garbage dump that has not been fenced in, and so on, which was to be fenced in and lined with certain liners to protect the environment. There was an outcry about the expansion of that dump, the very place that is now being used.

The Speaker: Thank you. I think that is quite relevant, Honourable Minister, and I will allow him to continue.

Please continue, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Following on the matter of the places for disposing of refuse in this country, anything that can be done to dispose of materials through burning or other means provides an opportunity for having that much more space for those things which must be disposed of in a dump.

This Motion speaks specifically about the health of this community, the health of us all. We know that flies and mosquitoes do not suffer from any type of prejudice whatsoever. They are like death—they deal with us all equally. So, this Motion should hardly be treated facetiously. I think it should be taken seriously.

If the picture which the Minister alluded to was run in the newspaper, it would shock us all and we should see the very great need for this Motion here this afternoon. The Minister of Health and the Minister of Planning and Environment and garbage and everything else would be very concerned as I am.

I support this Motion because it is about health, about people; it is about a clean, healthy environment.

The Speaker: If no other Member wishes to continue the debate, I would ask the Mover of the Motion if he would like to exercise his right of reply.

Mr. Roy Boddin: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I must say that while I had not expected the Government to accept the Motion, I was a little put off by the Minister's reasoning. To say that the country does not need a safe, proper and sanitary disposal unit for these kinds of carcasses—when we profess to be the leader in the field of banking and tourism—is to set oneself up as being as shallow in one's reasoning as a crab's back.

I do not know anything about anyone bringing any device into the country, instrument, utensil or machinery for such disposition illegally. If the Minister knows, then I challenge him to do something about it.

I brought this Motion to the floor (with the help of my colleague, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman) because it is an untenable and unhealthy situation, a time bomb and a health hazard, and it should not be allowed to continue.

If these are the same photographs, I would now invite the Serjeant-at-Arms to lay one set on the Table and to provide another set to the Chair. I beg you to 'steel' your stomach because these photographs are not pretty at all.

These photographs were taken around the 4th to the 18th of September of this year. Certainly, to dispose of dead carcasses of turtles, cows and dogs through a hole in the ground marked 'Dead Animals' is not good enough for the Cayman Islands on the eve of the 21st Century when we are just about to vote $202 million in a budget.

It poses a grave health hazard. As I understand it, the compound where these things are disposed of is not safe from predator animals. Certainly, flies and mosquitoes have wings. The matter having been treated so cavalierly by the Minister speaks with a resounding contempt for the health of the people of these islands. I hope that those involved will take note. I have no ax to grind, other than to see that the health of the people of this country is preserved by eliminating these kinds of hazards and wastes. I consider that the Seconder of the Motion and I have executed our duty to the best of our abilities, we brought the matter here before the Government and the Parliament of this country.

I know from my little knowledge that the efficient and safe disposal of these kinds of wastes is the concern of countries the world over. In the stone-age we resorted to burying and burning them. In this day and age, on the eve of the 21st Century, there are cleaner, safer and more efficient ways of disposing of them. A crematorium is one.

I made the distinction of a crematorium, as opposed to an incinerator, because in the operation of an incinerator, I understand that liquids (blood and other fluids) drip and clog the furnace. A crematorium is clean in that it burns the carcasses to ash, thereby killing all of the bacteria and those organisms which would prove to be health hazards. Are we to understand that the Government is saying that they have the best interest of the country at heart, yet they refuse to provide safe and efficient means of disposing of these kinds of things?

I know of no illegal device. But, certainly, since the Minister brought out that there was one, I would think that he should investigate what laws were broken (if any), and rectify the situation. Having rectified it, they should find out if the device could be of any assistance in helping us to alleviate the unhealthy practice which we are involved in now.

Let me say this: I do not think it is good enough for any Minister on the eve of the 21st Century to advocate that we keep burying dead carcasses in the Cayman Islands. I find that laughable. The health of our people should be a priority.

What this Motion speaks about is providing a healthy and safe treatment for these kinds of carcasses. The Minister spoke about spending a lot of money on incinerators and crematoriums, leaving the impression that this expenditure was not worth it. It could also be argued that money spent on overpriced land, expensive stadiums and repairing of private roads would also not be worth it. The point which needs to be made is that health is a need for all of the people, especially those who are young and susceptible to diseases borne by flies and mosquitoes.

The disposition of the Government as regards this Motion, and the contempt and cavalier attitude displayed by the Minister responding for the Government speaks with an obscene eloquence. No one who is serious about the disposition of the Government, need go further than that attitude.

I consider that we have done our duty. I understand from the Minister that there is some kind of device. He said it was brought in here illegally. I challenge him to do what he should do by finding out more about it; if laws were broken, bring the perpetrators to justice. But, in the mean time, he should bear in mind that the system which he is advocating for the disposal of dead carcasses is laughable.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Motion before the House is Private Member's Motion No. 15/95, "BE IT RESOLVED that Government consider procuring a crematorium suitable for the disposal of dead animals."

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May we have a division, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: You certainly may.
Madam Clerk.

Clerk:

DIVISION NO. 15/95 Private Member's Motion No. 15/95

AYES: 3

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts
Mr. Gilbert A. McLean
Mr. Roy Bodden

NOES: 11

Hon. James M. Ryan
Hon. Richard H. Coles
Hon. George A. McCarthy
Hon. W. McKeeva Bush
Hon. John B. McLean
Hon. Truman M. Bodden
Hon. Anthony S. Eden
Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr
Dr. S. A. Tomlinson
Mrs. B. L. Thompson Murphy
Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell

ABSTENTION:

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks

ABSENT:

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson
Mrs. Edna M. Moyle

The Speaker: The result of the division is three Ayes, 11 Noes and one abstention, the Motion therefore fails.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 15/95 NEGATIVED.

The Speaker: Continuing with Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 14/95. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 14/95 Deferred

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: May I just ask your indulgence, Madam Speaker? When we set these Motions down to continue today and tomorrow, I did not realise that the Minister who would be replying to Private Member's Motion No. 14/95 would be off the Island. We did agree that the Backbench, the Opposition Members, could set the Motions in the order they wished. I did agree to that. However, I now realise that in so doing one of them will be falling when he is away. I was wondering if we could either go on to another Motion or perhaps adjourn as we are nearly at the hour of 4.30 PM?

The Speaker: I think it would be reasonable to expect, since the Honourable Minister will not be present tomorrow, that Private Member's Motion No. 14/95 could be deferred until a convenient time. Would the Mover and Seconder have any objection to that?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, unlike the Government, the Opposition is extremely understanding and accommodating. Certainly, as for myself, having been refused the opportunity even after talking on three Motions to close the debate earlier (Government refused that), I certainly have no problem with deferring this until a time available to the Minister who would answer to it.

[Hon. Members speaking across the floor]

The Speaker: Could we just have a little order, please, until I finish the business? Then you can speak as much as you want after the House has closed.

First Elected Member for Bodden Town, would you have any objection to the deferment of Private Member's Motion No. 14/95?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I am usually an accommodating gentleman, so I will go along with that.

The Speaker: Well, thank you very much. It seems a good note to end on in spite of all of these dead carcasses.

If that is the wish of the House, then I could accept a motion for the adjournment, and we will continue with Private Members' Motions tomorrow once Standing Orders have been suitably suspended.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.27 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 17 NOVEMBER 1995.

FRIDAY
17 NOVEMBER, 1995
10.06 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Second Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed. Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers, No. 242, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 242

No. 242: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to provide the estimated cost for the construction of the Lighthouse School on the new site.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, it is not possible to provide an estimate at this time since the site has not yet been identified. Officials from the Department of Education are presently gathering information regarding design options for the special population the School will service. The ultimate plan will then be adjusted to fit the site that is selected.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if any sites have been identified with a view to the selection of one?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, as I mentioned earlier, the site has not yet been identified.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 243, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 243

No. 243: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning if the Planning Department passed any applications which feature completely closed communities with access only to those persons who live in the particular communities.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Planning Department does not grant planning permission for any applications. The grant or refusal of planning permission is the sole jurisdiction of the Central Planning Authority. However, the Central Planning Authority did grant planning permission for one such development, namely Vista Del Mar. This was on 27th January 1988.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker

Can the Honourable Minister explain how the social control agencies and the Government authorities gain access to this property?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would think they go through the gate.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: That is obvious, Madam Speaker. If it is a closed community with a gate and a lock, can the Honourable Minister say how these people gain access?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I cannot say specifically, but I am sure that if a fire truck wants to get in it will go through whether this is in the form of having a card to open the gate, or whether it is simply in the form that most of these gates are very easily opened. There are hydraulic pressure cylinders on them, and if an emergency vehicle wants to get in, it will go through.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is the Honourable Minister telling the House that he does not know what kind of devices are used to secure these communities, or whether the Police and the Fire Department have keys, decoders or whatever device is necessary to gain access to these developments?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I do not have that information but, the honourable Member can probably get it from one of the Team Cayman members (Mr. Ezzard Miller). It was put up during the previous Government's time. So he needs to question the previous Government on why they did it, and how they get in.

I really do not know, Ma'am, but I could find out and give him the information. But I suggest he just check with the previous Government and he could find out.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Minister say when the approval was given to have a "closed community" at Vista Del Mar?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I am beginning to believe that the two Opposition...

The Speaker: I do not think you need to say any more Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Ma'am. It is in the answer. I was going to refer him to that.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, is the Minister saying that the approval for the development was given in 1988 and included then that Vista Del Mar be a closed community with the locked gates for everyone to wonder who is there, how they gain access by sea or whatever? Were all of the approvals given, as approvals are given in part and in principle and otherwise?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, my instructions on this is that the approval was given on January 27, 1988. If the Members know something different, Madam Speaker, then I am happy to check it out. However, I do not have the Director of Planning here today, he is off the island. But I would be happy to check if they know otherwise.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: As this type of community must have a social impact on this country because it is something new, is there in place any Government policy of the National Team Party with regard to closed communities? Is this something to be encouraged or is it a one-off case?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Member is confused. There is no National Team Party. There is the Team Cayman Party and perhaps he is confusing us with that because one of those members, Mr. Ezzard Miller, was in the Government when this was done. I suggest that he ask them what they had in mind at the time. I do not know.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 244, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 244

No. 244: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state whether all members of the permanent pensionable establishment have written job descriptions.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, the answer: Job descriptions have been prepared for all members of the permanent and pensionable establishment and there is a job description for each position in the Civil Service.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say whether these job descriptions have been disseminated and also state whether it is the policy to discuss the job description with the member of staff by the Department Head or other senior person in the Department?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is the responsibility of each Head of Department to provide all their members of staff with job descriptions, and it is also their responsibility to discuss individual job description with staff members.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say if the job descriptions extend also to group employees?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker

Not normally would the format of job descriptions as we know them for permanent pensionable officers extend to group employees. I do know that some departments have job descriptions, perhaps a more simplified form for group employees. I do not know that that is throughout the service. It is not a requirement, but I do know that at least in one instance group employees have job descriptions of the sort.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Honourable Member has said what the case is. Can he go further to say why this is the case that the job description does not extend to group employees?

The Speaker: The First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker

Madam Speaker, it has not been a requirement in the past to have job descriptions for group employees, but I am proposing that the next phase of the job evaluation exercise in 1996 encompasses job descriptions for this category of workers.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Are the job descriptions in force at this time reviewed at intervals, and does it at the beginning of devising a job description involve the Operations and Management Unit of the Personnel Department at any time?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker

We have a Job Analyst in the Personnel Department who is involved initially in the preparation of each job description. Yes, job descriptions are reviewed with individual staff members by the Head of Department when dealing with their annual review. Those meetings involve discussions on job description.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 245, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 245

No. 245: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Member responsible for Finance and Development if any steps have been taken to reduce overtime payments in the Customs Department.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, on the 1st of July 1995, a two-shift system was introduced at the Customs Station at Owen Roberts International Airport. This new system is expected to reduce overtime payments by approximately C1$60,000.00 per annum.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Does the new two-shift system now eliminate the overtime payments in the Customs Department or will it be necessary to go further with the shift assignments?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the new shift system will not completely eliminate the payment of overtime. We would have to make a judgment call as to whether we should introduce a further shift system because it could get to the point where an additional shift system would exceed the amount of money that is now being expended to cover overtime cost.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member give the House some idea of instances where Customs Officers are required to work overtime, which has driven the overtime payment up to what we are aware it has been, even though now there has been an attempt to reduce it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, according to the Collector of Customs we have an increase in the number of flights that have been arriving over the years outside of the normal working hours. It seems that this will continue into the future, it is not something that will be abated or which the Customs Department has any control over.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Member can confirm whether or not the Government is actually reimbursed for overtime payments paid to officers?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Madam Speaker. The Government recovers the bulk of the cost of overtime payments made outside of normal working hours.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Is it a fact that the cruise ships pay these monies in full, that is it is recovered fully from them, but the same thing does not apply to the airlines? And is it the case that Government could collect in full from the airlines for this overtime payment because of the odd hours for which they require customs services?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, both ships and aircraft arriving outside of normal working hours normally pay the full cost of overtime incurred.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member explain, for the sake of clarity, if the overtime being reimbursed—the additional overtime that is being paid out by the Customs Department, is it extra paperwork that is done after hours by the assigned individuals who is on duty or what would that overtime be for?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Madam Speaker, the additional payment of overtime over and above what is recovered is normally to deal with the administrative responsibilities of the officers at the airport, such as additional paperwork in the office and, in addition, to cover the cost of those group employees who will have to be kept on to provide the services that are required.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Member would then take into consideration that steps be taken to perhaps cut out some of the paperwork to reduce that overtime if at all possible?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, it has been pointed out that the overtime payment in respect of the additional paperwork presently being performed, will gradually be eliminated as the computerised system for dealing with the computation of customs import duties is enhanced. This is presently being worked on and it is hoped that the system will be refined sufficiently to achieve that during the early course of 1996.

It has also been pointed out by the Collector of Customs, that plans are presently on the way to implement a shift system for the group employees who are there and this should also achieve a reduction in overtime payment.

The Speaker: The last supplementary, Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In incorporating the two-shift system, can the Honourable Member say whether this required employing more staff or if the system was put in place using the same number of staff?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the new shift system has been put in place using the existing Customs Department staff. I understand that we have had to draw on different sections within the Customs Department, such as pulling staff from the Task Force, but no new employees have been brought into the department in order to achieve the required complement for the new shift system.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 246, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 246

No. 246: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development how much has been collected from the 85 cases of outstanding customs duties.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the Customs Department provisional import entry procedure allows the large and frequent importers to establish a bond with a local financial institution, or put up a cash deposit, which allows these importers to clear their goods on a provisional basis, subject to full clearance at a later date.

With the exception of amounts under this established procedure, where the duty at risk is secured, the Collector of Customs is unaware of any cases where import duties are outstanding.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Following the answer given by the Financial Secretary, is it the case now where there are no amounts outstanding to be collected in cases of default or otherwise?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, there are cases of alleged evasion of customs duty, these cases are presently under review. But it is not a question that these cases are to be interpreted as underpayment of import duties until that is established.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker
Can the Honourable Member say what the normal review period is?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, it is difficult to fix a time that would constitute a normal review period. The Customs Department makes every effort as expeditiously as possible, to marshal the evidence in order to establish possible evasion of customs duty. This often times means referring such matters to the Attorney General's Department and consulting with overseas agencies in order to establish the true value of goods for which it is known or there is a general view that there has been an understatement of customs duty.

This normally takes about one week. We have had instances where some of these cases have been resolved in a short time, and others where the time had to be extended to allow for the evidence to be gathered.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In 1994 the Public Accounts Committee laid on the Table of the House recommendations. One of the recommendations to the Customs Department was to review the Law regarding collection of outstanding Custom duties. I think the Law states six months. Have any steps been taken to bring new legislation so that the Law can be amended to extend it past six months for duty evasion?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, at this time efforts are under way in reviewing the Customs legislation. Although the Law specifies a time of six months, efforts are normally made to ensure that cases being investigated are expedited. While six months define a time period, it is not seen as a target, whereby the cases are deferred to be completed within the six month period. If it can be done within a week or two, or as soon as the evidence becomes available for the case to be pursued or referred to the Attorney General's Office, it is done.

Every effort is presently under way or being taken to make sure that these cases are resolved as expeditiously as possible and the new legislation will take account of that. I would think also that the six months period at this time is deemed to be a reasonable time period for concluding existing investigation, it may be necessary to keep the time limit at the six-month period as set out in the existing legislation.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: How long have these investigations been going on?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, there is only one case at this time that has been under review for a period of 18 months. The rest of them have been concluded.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: For the sake of clarity, is it correct that the investigation by Customs Department is subject to a six-month limitation even where there may be large scale fraud of customs evasion? Is this actually what is being stated?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I understand that the Law at this time provides for a six-month limitation period in relation to certain types of fraud. That time limit can also be extended in cases where it would have to be pursued under civil law basis.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker

If six months is deemed as a reasonable period why has this particular case, as mentioned by the Honourable Member, been allowed to draw out into 18 months with yet no conclusion of the steps to be taken?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I have been made to understand that while the Customs Department makes every attempt to observe the six-month limitation period, in this particular case it involves marshalling the evidence and consulting the Legal Department. It is not a question that it has been deliberately drawn out. The case in question could not be expedited any faster than it is presently being reviewed.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 247, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 247

No. 247: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning when will the vacancy on the Public Accounts Committee be filled.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, under the Standing Orders of this Honourable House a vacancy for the membership of the Public Accounts Committee is filled by any Member, including the Member asking the question, moving a Motion to fill the vacancy.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Knowing that if I moved such a motion recommending anyone it would be refused—the House has always been guided by the wisdom of the Government in this regard—what is the Government doing to fill this vacancy in this very important committee of the House?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Standing Orders are very clear. The two Opposition Members bring all sorts of motions on carcasses and other things. If they regard this as so important, why do they not bring a motion on it, Madam Speaker? The Standing Orders do not say that I have to move a motion on this matter.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

APOLOGY

The Speaker: Before we proceed to Other Business, I have an apology from the Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture, who will be absent for the rest of the day from his official capacity.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14(2)

The Speaker: Suspension of Standing Order 14(2), the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I wish to move the suspension of Standing Order 14(2), so that Private Members' business may continue instead of Government Business.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that Standing Order 14(2) be suspended in order to enable Private Members' Motions to take precedence over Government Business until such time as that business is concluded. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Order 14(2) is accordingly suspended. We now move to Private Members' Business.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 14(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 16/95—Disaster Relief Fund. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 16/95

DISASTER RELIEF FUND

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I wish to move Private Member's Motion No. 16/95 entitled, Disaster Relief Fund, standing in my name. It reads as follows: "BE IT RESOLVED that Government consider setting up a National Disaster Relief Fund to be used as necessary in the event of a devastating hurricane or other disaster."

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to second that Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 16/95 having been duly moved and seconded, is now open for debate. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker

Madam Speaker, in moving this Motion it behooves me to express my appreciation to an acquaintance of mine who sometime ago, when we were discussing (as we usually do) events at home and in the Caribbean, gave me this idea among many others.

I think events of the recent past will clearly bring home to us the need to have a mechanism such as this available to us because the hurricane season is not over as yet. The past has taught us that we were not only fortunate, but must be protected by God, since most of our Caribbean neighbours suffered devastating onslaughts and some of them, if not having had their economies left in complete and total ruin, certainly are experiencing serious economic setbacks.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the Honourable Member who seconded this Motion, and I are both district representatives on the Hurricane Relief Committee for Bodden Town. So we are well aware of the kinds of physical preparations that a Disaster Relief Committee goes through at the beginning of the hurricane season. I would like at this juncture to take time out to commend the people who are responsible for spearheading these efforts. We normally are in communication with the Social Services Department, Miss Jen Dixon, or her department head. We are impressed with the efforts they make, but I do not believe that preparation in that way is the extent of what we should be satisfied with.

It is true that that is comforting and it will go a far way, but destruction brought on by hurricanes sometime goes beyond that, and if the experiences in the wider Caribbean as a result of this past hurricane season is to serve as any teaching experience to us, I think it is high time that we seek to set up a special fund.

I believe that we have earmarked in our Budget for disaster relief a sum of approximately $4,000. This is fine as a token sum—something set aside to create an awareness among us that we should seek to prepare. Certainly, it is a far way from being of any practical assistance should we be hit by a devastating storm, the likes of which was experienced in other parts of the Caribbean.

Madam Speaker, my acquaintance and I were discussing this issue and we came up with two methodologies by which such a fund could be set up. First we discussed an aspect of cooperation between the Dependent Territories: Bermuda, the British Virgin Islands, Turks and Caicos, Anguilla, Montserrat, and the Cayman Islands. Then we suggested that the fund could be set up on the basis of each Dependent Territory putting in a certain amount and, in the event of a drawdown, that territory would be guaranteed that they will get no less than the amount which they contributed.

For example, if all of the Dependent Territories were devastated by a hurricane in one year, it would be guaranteed that they get no less than what they put up. For example, if the Cayman Islands put up $250,000 they would be guaranteed that they would get no less than the $250,000. Ideally, the fund would be structured and administered on the basis that those experiencing the greatest disaster would be in a better position to draw down the largest amount of funds.

What happens in the event of one territory having to draw down a large portion of the fund in one year? Well, it could be worked out in any number of ways. The replenishment of the fund could be based on the territory's ability to put back the money in one year, or perhaps terms could be negotiated. We were not very concerned with this because this is a matter that could be worked out by the administrators (the respective governments).

In moving this Motion, we think that the ideal situation would be each territory contributing on an annual basis until the fund reaches a respectable amount of say, $5 million to $7 million. The ceiling is relative, the territories may want to set any ceiling they feel comfortable with and, certainly, they can base it on disasters in the past and how much it took to rebuild their economies or get populations back to some normalcy.

If a regional sum is set up among developing territories, it would be administered by perhaps a directorate of the Financial Secretaries of the respective territories, or their nominees, or anyone else they choose. It would be kept in an escrow account to be used exclusively and specifically for the purpose of disaster relief. So that is one methodology, Madam Speaker.

It could also be done exclusive to the individual territory, in this case, the Cayman Islands. We could set up our own fund peculiar and exclusive to us, in which case we could set aside as much as we can afford to set aside each year. We may want to start with, I would suggest a sum of the significance of $.25 million. Each year as we can afford it, we add something into the fund until we reach the level where the Government deemed comfortable and reasonable to cap it with a ceiling.

Madam Speaker, I believe that either of these two proposals is worthy of consideration. Quite honestly, I would feel comfortable with whichever the Government chooses. We could go the collective route of having a common fund for the Dependent Territories, or we could have an exclusive fund peculiar and exclusive to the Cayman Islands.

I would also suggest that if we embark on such an effort, we may gain the favourable eye of other countries. I am thinking especially of the metropolitan countries which do not really give us any grants since we are not grant-aided, but may consider contributing to such a fund seeing that in the event of serious disasters it would be morally incumbent upon them to offer us some kind of financial assistance, being of the foremost priority.

If we are fortunate, we may even gain the attention of some of the large transnational and multinational corporations which have offices in the Cayman Islands that may contribute out of a sense of community and out of a sense that many of their employees will probably be affected. This would be one way of being good corporate citizens, as we sometimes say.

I believe that there is some merit and, certainly, if the recent past is any indication, we need go no further than Time magazine of September 11th, 1995, issue on pages 65 and 66 in the 'Science' section entitled 'Hurricane Onslaught—The Worst Storm Season since 1993 could be the start of a dangerous trend'. The article is written by one Madeleine Nash of the Time Science Bureau in Chicago. It is not necessary to read the entire article, but I would crave the Chair's indulgence to read certain sections beginning on page 65: "No one under retirement age can recall a hurricane season quite like this one. 'Not since 1933', says Bob Burpee, director of the National Hurricane Center near Miami, 'have so many hurricanes formed so early in the year.'" He is quoted as saying that up to that point, "...12 tropical storms have materialized off the west coast of Africa, six of which had grown into full-fledge hurricanes. The bad news is that more big storms are on their way, and before the end of No- vember, when the season officially ends, one or two may slam into land with savage power."

Madam Speaker, it turned out that that prediction was absolutely correct. "But even if that does not happen, an ominous question remains: What, if anything, does this unnerving spate of extreme weather signify? Is it just a meteorological fluke, a one-season anomaly? Or could it signal a potentially devastating long-term trend? Atmospheric scientist, William Gray of Colorado State University, fears the answer is the latter."

Professor William Gray of Colorado State University is recognised as the foremost authority on hurricanes in the world. He says; "The large number of storms this year seems unusual only because the United States has experienced a hurricane lull for the past 25 years. A correction is now overdue and, when it comes,' he warns, 'we are going to see hurricane damage like we have never seen before.'"

Madam Speaker, the article goes on to say that hurricane damage and the force (the devastation of hurricanes in the future) will be so devastating that damage to property will be in the billions of dollars.

Indeed, Professor Gray says; "We need only to look back to the 1950s and 1960s when 21 hurricanes pummeled the United States, to see what could lie ahead for coastal residents. Those hurricanes took hundreds of lives in the United States and thousands in the Caribbean. While lives can be protected by early warning and prompt evacuation, protecting property is another matter."

He speculates that "...if hurricane Andrew had veered just 20 miles further North on its destructive path through South Florida in 1992, it might have done $100 billion in damages rather than the $25 billion which it effected."

Madam Speaker, the regional newspaper of the Caribbean, Caribbean Week, in the Issue of September/October 1994, Vol. 6, No. 26 details the misery of Marilyn. On page 2 it says that on the French Island of Guadeloupe; "Guadeloupe's Regional Assembly decided to grant the victims US$750,000 in aid to help them recover from the damage and destruction they suffered."

I make mention of those figures to state that what is being proposed is considerably not farfetched and not some pie in the sky. The Opposition in submitting this Motion for consideration by the Government does so with the full realisation and understanding that it behooves all of us, to be as prepared as we can be and certainly, if we are wise and learn from the Biblical lessons, in the days of plenty, we will put aside something especially for occasions like this.

I leave the Motion now, Madam Speaker, in the hands of the Government and hope that they may see merit in giving favourable consideration to either one of the two proposals given. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I rise to comment on Private Member's Motion No. 16/95, which proposes a setting up of a National Relief Fund to be used in the event of a devastating hurricane or other disaster.

The Government recognises that this Motion has been prompted, as said by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, by the unfavourable experience within the regions combined with the high cost of insurance rates over the past three years which have caused a number of homeowners to take a decision not to insure their properties. There are obvious risks inherent in the decision not to carry insurance, and the Government is aware of this.

However, the Government is unable to support this Motion as there is already some mechanism in place for dealing with eventualities such as national disasters. This mechanism is a General Reserve Fund which represents funds set aside by the Government to help finance any extraneous expenditure requirements such as would arise in the event of a national disaster.

It should be noted that the General Reserve Fund is a protected fund and cannot be utilised without the express authority of the Legislative Assembly. It is generally augmented with either all or part of the Government's operating surplus at the end of each fiscal year, and may also be increased by allocating a certain percentage of recurrent revenue to it.

This year the Government has taken the decision, as set out in the recent Budget Address, to transfer a sum of $1 million into the General Reserve Fund. The position in relation to the General Reserves will have to be kept under constant review and it is the view of the Government that the balance in the fund should be kept at an average of 20% of recurrent and statutory expenditure for any given year. To achieve this target, the Government is currently considering the implications of setting aside 3% of recurrent revenue in future years for the purpose of boosting the fund. This is one of the measures which is being proposed in the Medium Term Financial Strategy Document to be tabled during the February 1996 Meeting of this honourable House.

The setting up of a National Disaster Relief Fund in addition to the General Reserves would divert the attention of the Government away from the policy issue now being reviewed for building up the General Reserves. The setting up of a fund would mean having to either raise additional revenue or divert funds committed to existing programmes.

Further, the only means by which this Government could raise additional revenue for a fund of any meaningful significance into which substantial contributions would have to be made on an ongoing basis is through the introduction of new taxation measures, or increases in existing ones. At this point in time, the Government would not wish to burden the resident population with any measures aimed at raising taxes.

The Government recognises that in establishing a parameter for the fixing of the General Reserves, there will be a need to define and document the operational guidelines of the General Reserve Fund. These guidelines should embrace the defraying of the expenditures in relation to national disasters and other emergencies. This being the case, there will not be a need for a setting up of a specific Disaster Relief Fund.

I should also mention that during this Meeting of the House, there will be tabled a document which is the Probable Maximum Loss (PML) Study, which has been carried out. This was prompted by questions and a Motion brought to this House a few years ago. This came out of the high increases in insurance rates that we have been experiencing over the past three years. This document has demonstrated that the standard of construction in the Cayman Islands far exceeds that to be found in some of the other Caribbean Islands.

Madam Speaker, I travelled to some of the countries that experienced devastating consequences during the recent hurricane season. I must say that when we compare some of the structures there, I do not think we could put those structures on par with what presently obtains in the Cayman Islands. Notwithstanding this fact, as pointed out, the General Reserve Fund is presently under review. The idea of what is being thought of by the Government is that there should be a central fund.

If we were to take the General Reserve Fund at this time and attempt... if it could be topped up today to represent 20% of Recurrent and Statutory Expenditure, that would mean carrying a balance of approximately $34.6 million. Over-funding this by taking 3% of General Revenue and putting this into this fund it will take a couple of years for this target to be achieved. But that sum would represent a substantial balance that could cover the extraneous expenditure requirements of the Government during national disasters.

Another aspect to consider in all of this is that we have to be very careful in terms of how we look at this, although it is one that merits attention, and one which the Government should pay attention to, because in the absence of the General Reserve Fund, I would agree with the First Elected Member for Bodden Town—there would be a need for a specific fund to be set up. But based on inquiries the Insurance department and I have made, we have been arguing with the locally operating insurance companies and quite a number of them have told us that they are having difficulties in terms of adjusting their rates any lower than they are presently, because they are very much dependent on the whims of what is felt by re-insurers who are elsewhere. What they normally do is group the Caribbean Islands together.

We have now made available to the local insurers the PML Study and also when it is tabled in this House, and is studied very carefully by Honourable Members, it will be seen that it is not that our standards far exceed all of what exists in other Caribbean Islands, but we can understand why, if we are faced with hurricanes of the same magnitude as experienced in some of the other islands, the damage as we would experience in these islands would quite likely be less unfavourable than some of those countries have experienced.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: As the Secunder of this Motion, I support the request made in the resolve: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government consider setting up a National Disaster Relief Fund to be used as necessary in the event of a devastating hurricane or other disaster."

The Motion is asking that Government set aside certain monies to be used specifically in cases of national disaster relief. I listened to what was suggested by the Financial Secretary, that, in fact, the money which Government sees as being available to it to respond to this type of condition in the country would come from the General Reserve Fund. While it has passed through my mind that from time to time monies from that fund could be used in times of disaster, I have also thought more of that fund as money being available to Government where there were no loans available as desired. Indeed, if Government fell short for whatever reason in its revenue, it could turn to the General Reserve Fund to keep itself going. That is my general impression. Not to say that what has been suggested by the Financial Secretary could not be done with money from the General Reserve Fund.

I believe, however, that in this day and age it is wiser and better for this country to set up a fund, specifically, a National Disaster Relief Fund, which the country at large would know exists for that particular purpose. I think that if Government were to take the initiative to set up such a fund that it could reasonably look to at least some of the larger businesses in this island to contribute to some extent. I am not here to say how much. But the fact that such a fund would be set up specifically for the purpose of disaster relief would have a specific attraction in itself, to businesses in this country.

This fund would be something that all persons could relate to. If we just think of the hurricanes which have been in this region this year alone, it is truly staggering. In fact this year, from all reports, has been the worst there has ever been. The eastern Caribbean Islands, in particular, have been hit repeatedly by hurricanes with loss of life and hundreds of millions of dollars of destruction to property. In fact, this country contributed money to these islands in its effort to help its citizens.

It is a warning to the Cayman Islands. It would be wonderful if we knew that another hurricane would never hit these islands, that it would pass by and we would have some wind and rain and surge tide, but never to the point where it would cause destruction as it has in the other islands. But we know that sooner or later our day will come.

Most businesses in this country would have insurance on the buildings and whatever properties these businesses may own. Indeed, I think that a large percentage of the population of this country has home insurance which would pay to a large extent for buildings which may be destroyed in a hurricane.

From Government's perspective I suggest that a sizeable percentage of this population has no home insurance, and that if we did suffer from a hurricane disaster, the only way this number of persons could be helped would be by turning to Government. Government, of course, would have a duty to assist in this regard. It is time Government takes steps to specifically plan for such an occurrence. Hopefully it will be a long time in the future.

My colleague, the Mover of the Motion (the First Elected Member for Bodden Town), has suggested two ways that it could be approached; collectively with other Dependent Territories... although we have discussed that, I tend to favour that less than attempting to take care of the situation for ourselves, which was the second suggestion offered.

During the time I have been thinking of this Motion and the possibilities and probabilities that can occur in the Cayman Islands in the face of a hurricane strike, I wondered whether there existed any possibilities that Government could insure against what may become its liabilities. I spoke with three persons involved in the insurance industry and one of these persons did say that he believed there are certain possibilities in such a thing.

He suggested that there would have to be certain known quantities, such as, how many houses the Government believed might be damaged by making an assessment as to their structural integrity; it would have to take into account realistic figures by Quantity Surveyors, as to how much it would cost to replace suitable houses for the people involved; and it would have to take into account such things as materials to be used, and so on. However the individual did conclude that for insurance companies to offer insurance [coverage] there would have to be some known specifics, and particular amounts. Apparently, if an amount is known it would give some leeway for local companies to consider taking up a part themselves, seeking to layoff in the normal way through other insurance companies certain amounts to cover it.

I then tried to ascertain what it would take for Government to get, say, $25 million in coverage. He made no commitment in that regard because he said a lot of things would have to be taken into consideration; the frequency of hurricanes in this region, how much damage the Cayman Islands has experienced, and do certain probability forecasting as is normal for insurance companies. But it is my view that if Government were to start a Disaster Relief Fund the money could accumulate so that within a reasonable period of time it would be sufficient to pay premiums for some block amount of coverage for any given year.

This insurance person also said that he believed there would be some possibilities in looking at that, where, if the Cayman Islands for the extent of insurance it may buy for the purpose of the commitment it may be liable to pay did not have to call upon say, for 1996, 1997 or 1998 as the case may be, there would be the possibility of the premium being reduced accordingly.

I think there are possibilities on that side as well, of course, they would need to be investigated within the insurance community to see what they collectively might think about it. Insurance as we know covers flood, different losses, different degree of losses. All of these things would have to be taken into account, it was my understanding.

However, I do believe that if Government at this time, specifically undertook to consider putting in place a National Disaster Relief Fund, it would provide a beginning for something that could grow and something that might bring about the participation in this effort of various businesses. No one involved in a hurricane disaster or earthquake or otherwise will be spared. Really, such a fund could be an excellent community effort.

I recall that in 1980 when Cayman Brac was hit by Hurricane Allen, if I remember correctly Government put up like $60,000 and there were various contributions from banks, and other organisations that went into the fund which were used to renovate people's houses. It was along that line that I was thinking a specific fund might find favour in the community.

Madam Speaker, Government must have the last word in this matter and, as I said, I think what the Financial Secretary has said in regard to the General Reserve Fund, can be taken seriously. But, indeed, that fund is very small compared to the disaster that can be created with one strike from a hurricane. That General Reserve Fund (as it is called), could be better used for general purposes and a new fund be created for the specific purpose of disaster relief.

I support this Motion, Madam Speaker, as I believe it is very timely. It is something which the country and the Government need to do with all the signals and examples that we have had at this time.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.28

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.57 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 16/95. Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Private Member's Motion, No. 16/95—Disaster Relief Fund. As the Motion reads in the Resolve section: "BE IT RESOLVED that Government consider setting up a National Disaster Relief Fund to be used as necessary in the event of a devastating hurricane or other disaster."

I have listened to the Mover and the Seconder, and also the Third Official Member in giving Government's position on the Motion. I note with interest several aspects which I will touch on.

Firstly, let me say that while two scenarios for possible ways to implement such a fund were presented by the Mover, I will be inclined to deal with the scenario where the Cayman Islands would have a fund of its own and where it would not be part and parcel with other territories.

I say that because I believe if it were the other way around (looking at it from the surface), the Cayman Islands would probably be at the shorter end of the stick if and when the fund needs to be active.

When we look at these Cayman Islands, we thank God almost on a daily basis for the near misses, and for being spared so many times. The truth of the matter is that that has been our history; we really never know the time when we may be faced with a very serious national disaster such as a hurricane with the winds and rain that come with it.

We have boasted that the integrity of our construction is of a very high calibre and if such a disaster were to take place, we would end up in a better physical shape than many of the other territories that have experienced similar situations. I will agree with that, but in the same breath I have to make mention that like everywhere else in the world we are no different and, there are many pockets within the geographical area of these islands where housing is substandard. Unfortunately, I think it is fair comment to say that in the vast majority of those areas the properties are uninsured. Madam Speaker, this is where we will have the larger part of the problem if a disaster occurs.

It is obvious that those areas I referred to are going to be areas where people would not be self-sufficient enough to be able to restructure their lives and homes on their own accord. These areas are also the most densely populated ones. So it is only natural that the number of persons who will be affected in the event of such a disaster will be large compared to the remaining areas of the country.

Having established that, I think it is obvious that there is much merit to the intention of this Motion. I dare say there may well be several ways to implement such a fund, and we have had various proposals during the debate. My mind tells me that those are little insignificant parts of the equation that could be worked out subsequent to accepting the thought. I think the important aspect of this Motion is not so much the mechanism, but the principle.

In the Government's reply the position is basically this: Such a fund can easily be incorporated into what we term the "General Reserves". I note with interest the good intentions that seemed fairly obvious in the Honourable Third Official Member's delivery on the topic. But first let me say, I respect the fact that while the Honourable Member speaks for Government, it means that he speaks with collective responsibility. Therefore, as I will prove in short order, I cannot accept (simply by way of history) that those good intentions are going to prevail and become a reality.

I have stood in this honourable House on more than one occasion and chimed in on the fact that our general reserves are nowhere near what they should be. Whatever equation we work out on an annual basis when budgets are being prepared, one very serious area that has to be addressed at all times and on an ongoing basis is the General Reserves.

There was a time when General Reserves (if my memory serves me correctly and I do not have to be exact to prove the point) were up to somewhere close to $30 million. It matters not to me what transpired to deplete those reserves, it only tells me that it can happen again. If we look in recent history we see that the demand for the services to be provided by Government are continually increasing. I am sure even with the preparation of the last budget (which we are in the midst of debating now) it is fair comment to say that it must have been a monumental task to get it to appear the way we see it now.

Madam Speaker, in considering the Motion, while I can see tying it to the General Reserves, I think the distinction has to be made and one cannot go on the premise that if you deal with the General Reserves in the right way the disaster relief fund would naturally be in place. I cannot take that just as it is said.

I hold the view that they can be tied together, but there must be a distinction. As I alluded to a very short time ago, the reserves obviously fluctuate and, the truth is, sometimes there are good reasons for those fluctuations. I will not get into the why's and the wherefore's, the fact is that it happens and recent history proves that.

If we are to retain a disaster relief fund there must be some mechanism in place that would have the reserves as a constant, rather than a fluctuating figure which appears on an annual basis for the simple reason that we know not whence it cometh, therefore we cannot structure our lives that we will have the reserves up whenever the disaster hits, and when we know it is not coming it can be depleted. It does not work like that. It does not work like that because we simply do not know when it is going to happen.

Madam Speaker, the General Reserve at present I think is somewhere in the region of $4 million. While projected estimates for year end 1996 are on paper, we will go on the premise that they are as close to being realistic as one may expect with the trends. It still does not tell me at the end of the day that the General Reserves are going to be higher a year from now. In fact, it is more likely that the reserves may be a bit lower. I do not want to deviate too far into the budget, but I need to use some of the information to make the point.

While it is very heartening for me to hear that there is some consideration being given to having steady growth to the General Reserves, I maintain that there must be a distinction to make a disaster relief fund a constant figure, in fact, a constantly growing figure; albeit, it could well be under the umbrella of the General Reserve Fund but with its own little niche.

Let me give one quick example to prove my point regardless of the good intentions that might prevail. In last year's Estimates there is a statement which comes under the heading of Public Debt. It says, "Government will not be undertaking any new borrowings in 1995." I also remember distinctly hearing that the new hospital was going to be funded on a timely basis and it was going to be done without borrowing, but out of Recurrent Revenue. That has not been the case and the point is not to debate why it was not the case, the fact is, it has not been the case.

A disaster relief fund, albeit, it may seem as something that is far removed from us at present because there is no imminent danger, is something that we have to bear in mind constantly. Without extending the points of this argument too far, I will beg indulgence to repeat one more time: if it is important enough to the country a disaster relief fund must be under a mechanism which allows for it to be constant, not a fluctuating figure.

In the reply by the Government regarding this Motion it was said that the setting out of a fund would mean having to either raise additional revenue or divert funds committed to existing programmes. The line of argument used to make the statement follows through, but I beg to differ from its origin. That is why I do not accept the statement as one which holds the situation as was put forward in that line of argument.

It also goes on to say: "Further, the only means by which this Government could raise additional revenue for a fund of any meaningful significance into which substantial contributions would have to be made on an ongoing basis is through the introduction of new taxation measures, or increases in existing ones. At this point in time, the Government would not wish to burden the resident population with any measures aimed at raising taxes."

Madam Speaker, I by no means have full knowledge of everything that goes on, simply because I do not have access to it. But I do not believe that there is no other way to set up such a fund than to raise revenue in different forms than what exists in order to start the fund. I think it is simply a matter of priority. It is simply a matter of whether we want to drive a Mercedes Benz, but have to walk barefooted; or whether we can drive a nice Toyota and have a decent pair of shoes. That is my opinion.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So, Madam Speaker, in order to accept the Motion, the Government would simply need, at this point in time, to take the merits of the principles which are being expounded about the Motion. Those principles simply come out of a concern for the welfare of the people.

Once those principles are accepted, then Government would have the latitude to do what it sees fit regarding the mechanism by which the fund could be established and maintained.

I dare say, if Government does not wish to entertain the Motion by accepting it, then it is my view that it fails in certain responsibilities to the people of this country, notwithstanding how much we all say we care and wished for better.

I support this Motion. I do not believe that any difficulties necessarily have to arise by way of revenue measures to implement such a fund. Therefore, if the Government's view is that it cannot accept the Motion as it appears that it will not pass, and even if it is done without us talking about it again, they may see the wisdom of it and do the right thing.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Madam Speaker, back in the 1980s when there were problems arising out of a hurricane the Government very effectively dealt with those problems within its means. The Honourable Financial Secretary has clearly pointed out that in the event of any type of natural disaster, not just a hurricane, any act of God or any other matter that arises, whatever the Government needs to do, the means will be there for doing that.

The two types of funds the Mover of the Motion put forward, one being a common fund with other Caribbean countries, has many problems with it. We know that many of these countries are not... none of them in fact, as well off as the Cayman Islands and we know the difficulties they face many times in trying to make their contributions in small amounts to the Caribbean Regional Institutions and Funds that exist, much less contributions such as $.25 million per annum.

We also know that the Cayman Islands are lucky not to be in the direct hurricane path. Many of the Leeward and Windward Islands are in the direct path of hurricanes and are therefore subject to far more direct hits than the Cayman Islands. In any event, that type of fund in which we would put in say, $250,000 (as the Member mentioned), and would be able to withdraw it does not really, in my view, make sense to have as a common fund. If we are going to segregate the money then we keep it ourselves and keep it here.

The Financial Secretary has also pointed out that we have [money in] reserves. But more than that, this Government now has a credit rating with the banks, something that I could have seen if back in 1991 and 1992 the Government had no credit rating and it was impossible for it to even raise the loan of $16 million for Cayman Airways, the banks would not lend the Government the money. Well, we are not in that position now because our rating and ability to manage the country's affairs is such that banks lend us money. It would have been unheard of four or five years ago for a bank to be prepared to lend Cayman Airways $5.5 million to buy a jet. In fact, the Government could not borrow the loan a few years ago.

So what is important is that the credit rating of the present Government has now been restored. We are no longer in a bankrupt position. Along with this I think we have to look at the fact that buildings in the Cayman Islands have always been far better than they are in many of the other islands. I am not boasting about this, I am stating a fact. Despite the fact that the Building Code of Southern Florida has only been adopted recently, we have complied with it. When Hurricane Gilbert hit the Cayman Islands there was damage, but our buildings withstood the fury and were much better than those in the other islands.

We have always had reserves. In fact, we are adding another $1 million, and we have heard the undertaking of the Financial Secretary of the 3% that will go into the reserves. So we are always in a position with the credit and the reserves we have to deal with an emergency if indeed we need it.

It is not a simple matter as was mentioned by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, that you can just take out a $25 million insurance policy (Government can) for a natural disaster, such as, a hurricane. You can only take out insurance when you have an insurable interest in the property.

I cannot take out insurance on my neighbour's house because I have no insurable interest in it, nor can the Government. You cannot just take out insurance in limbo, a bank that has a charge on a property has an insurable interest in it and, therefore, insurance can be obtained.

So it would not be a matter for us to say that we are going to set aside $1 million to buy $12 or $15 or whatever million dollars worth of insurance to cover other people in the event of a disaster. I do not believe that type of insurance works that way.

We also know that whatever the Opposition may say about the United Kingdom, whenever there has been a natural disaster the United Kingdom has always gone to the assistance of her colonies. That is one thing they tell us.

As the Honourable Member who is raising this knows, while it may not be liked, the United Kingdom and the European Emergency Fund do exist, and they have helped us as well as other countries in the past. Perhaps the Opposition Members have forgotten, but the new section in the Constitution (section 47A) provides for the emergency sitting of this honourable House.

Perhaps they have forgotten because I know that they and the previous Government concentrated only on getting a Chief Minister in the Constitution. But there are many other good things, such as emergency powers to this Legislative Assembly (not to any single person like the Chief Minister which is contained in there). Also, the Governor has further powers in the event of an emergency under section 7(2)(c). I believe that the Members who brought this Motion had good intentions, but they are going about it incorrectly.

The present position that we have in relation to insurance generally is being looked at by a committee, as the Honourable Third Official Member has mentioned, and this in many instances... and Madam Speaker, most people these days do have mortgages on their houses or buildings and normally their insurance policies cover these areas.

I must say that this Motion for a National Disaster Relief fund at least makes considerable more sense than if they had put forward a fund for burying dog carcasses. So there are some merits in the Motion at this stage. But I believe that we are now well covered in what we need to do and, as I said earlier, to get insurance by Government that will cover third party interests on their property, I do not believe it is possible in the insurance field.

In summary, if there is a national disaster the Government is both legally and financially capable of dealing with whatever relief is necessary. I also believe that as we assisted other Caribbean Islands and the Falkland Islands, that that assistance will come naturally from the United Kingdom and other countries—God forbid, if we ever need that kind of assistance. I think that we all have to pray to the good Lord that we never really ever get to a stage where we are faced with a major national disaster.

Thank you.

The Speaker: If there is no other debate, would the Mover of the Motion exercise his right of reply?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Certainly, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, it never ceases to amaze me how the Government forms excuses and gives spurious reasons as to why they cannot support Motions brought by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and myself, even when they admit that there is merit to the Motion. Madam Speaker, like Festus told Paul, "almost though persuadest me."

In listening to the last speaker, the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning, it would seem that the National Team is so omnipotent that they have taken over dictating to nature as to what force of winds should be visited upon us. I stand amazed—

POINT OF ORDER
(Blasphemy)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would like to take a Point of Order here. If he is imputing blasphemy to me, then I would ask him to withdraw it because I never imputed that anyone had any power over nature. I said that we should pray to the good Lord that it never happens. So there has never been any statement by me that would impute blasphemy.

The Speaker: Honourable First Elected Member for Bodden Town, perhaps you would like to rephrase that.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I bow to the wishes of the Chair. I will rephrase that by saying that I stand amazed that the National Team has become so persuasive that they can persuade nature as to what force of winds to visit upon us. I am still amazed.

Madam Speaker, this is not a cavalier business. We are talking about a distinct and serious possibility. There is no Building Code... structural Engineers have been awestruck by the devastation done by winds with strength up to 200 miles per hour. I am reading from the Caribbean Week Newspaper of September 30th to October 13th, 1995 on page 9. I do not care how great the Building Code is, these people are engineers... and there is no guarantee. While I would admit that the standard of construction in the Cayman Islands is certainly to be complimented, I would stop far short of saying that, generally speaking, throughout the islands we have such a high standard of construction so as not to have to be concerned about the devastating effects of winds of up to 200 miles per hour. Madam Speaker, we are living in a dream world. But that is typical of the National Team Party. They were born in a dream world and continue to live in that dream world.

[Addressing inaudible voice from the floor] But at least I woke up and that is why I left them behind in their dreams. And it is documented, Madam Speaker, that I left them.

The General Reserves as I understand... and let me put this matter to rest because this has to be a serious matter and a serious point must be made. The General Reserves are constructed or formulated to be Government's own insurance (if we want to describe it as that) in the event of circumstances where the Government needs money to get the country started again.

Let us take an argument for supposition sake: The Glass House (made of glass). If it were to be devastated as well as a large percentage of the structures throughout the building, and the Government has to draw from the General Reserves, what is its obligation? The Government's obligation in that situation is to reconstruct their own facility and get their own Governmental structure going. So, the rest of the population will have to wait. And that is so because to do otherwise would be inviting chaos and anarchy. So it is not good enough to say that the general reserves can be used in these circumstances.

The Government Members in their usual way twisted and turned until they lost essence of what is being asked. We are asking for a special fund. Not for something to be included in the General Reserves because we understand what it is for. I am saying again, it is not farfetched for a hurricane so devastating to wipe out the Cayman islands and a lot of the other Dependent Territories.

You know, coming from someone who likes to boast of his degrees in Finance and Financial Management, and the 30 years' experience in high finance, I was astounded by the Minister for Education and Planning suggestion that we should not bother to look out for ourselves, but should depend on the United Kingdom and the European communities and be beggars when we can take steps to help ourselves. God helps those who help themselves. What this motion is asking is that we consider setting up something to help ourselves.

Of course, I believe that the United Kingdom would exercise its moral obligations and responsibility and help us. But what if at the same time (which is not farfetched) it had to help Bermuda, Montserrat, BVI, and the Turks and Caicos Islands? We would then have to wait in line and, you know what they would tell us, "But you guys are rich. So you have to satisfy with a lesser amount".

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: That is right.

Mr. Roy Boddén: As far as the European communities are concerned, I read where Hurricane Marilyn wiped out Guadeloupe; the French would not give us money over Guadeloupe. Neither would the Dutch give us over St. Bath. Government has the responsibility, the National Team Government should exercise its responsibility and its moral obligation. It does not matter to whom the credit is given. What matters is that a situation has been brought to the attention of the Government which can be rectified. And certainly, it was not the suggestion of any member speaking in favour of the motion, that the government use this as an excuse to raise taxes. All they have to do is take money from somewhere, perhaps build one less stadium, or buy one less Hawley Estate.

The suggestion as to provision in the Constitution for the Legislative Assembly to meet in the event of a natural disaster, I wonder what purpose it would serve when there are no funds to dispense? Ha, a completely senseless excuse.

The kind of fund I would like to see, and I noticed that the Minister for Education and Planning tried to twist the motion and mislead the House, because I specifically mentioned the Dependent Territories; Bermuda, the British Virgin Islands, Montserrat, Turks and Caicos, and the Cayman Islands, these territories are at the cutting edge of the Caribbean and they all have reasonably good records. I pose that as but one of the two alternatives I gave. I certainly do not know of any circumstances where the Dependent Territories have defaulted on any serious financial obligations or commitments.

I did fortify my argument by saying, that in the event of a drawdown, no territory would get less than their contribution. So that would be a no loss situation. The last thing I would want is for these kinds of situations to be administered by politicians because believe you me, wisdom born of experience tells us that it would end up in a pile of bickering, accusations, and claims of victimisation. I need go no further than what happened in a neighbouring territory some years ago where it was claimed that the government in power victimised those persons who were known supporters of the opposition, and indeed, some of them are quacking and claiming up to now that they have not received the relief and materials which were due to them as a result of the disaster.

What I would like to see, Madam Speaker, is a fund administered by people outside of day-to-day politics, especially set up and accountable to the Government and people. That can easily be done.

I wish to make another point that I think is the strength of the argument we have laid down. We have suggested that outside entities perhaps transnational and multinational corporations would consider contributing to such a fund, but these entities would certainly not consider contributing to the General Reserve Fund of the Cayman Islands' Government. I am sure they could be persuaded perhaps they would even volunteer to contribute to a special disaster relief fund.

As to the point made by the Minister for Education and Planning about credit rating, if a bank in the Cayman Islands gets wiped out in the event of a hurricane we would be wasting time to go to that bank to get a loan. Their first priority would be the construction of their own physical facilities and records. Even if they had money to lend, we would have to wait because their first obligation would be to themselves.

So to say that we have good credit rating and are able to borrow is not a good enough excuse not to take measures to fortify and alleviate conditions that could detrimentally affect us. It is a fundamental principle of common-sense, Madam Speaker. It does not mean that because I am getting paid at the end of the month that I should not save some money today.

I wish to make a serious point and to say that I hope the insurance companies that operate in this island do not take this as a licence to raise their fees when it is not warranted. I wish to make the observation that I hope they do not try to justify to us that because of the devastation in surrounding territories, they have to raise rates offered to consumers in the Cayman Islands.

I want to take that a step further and introduce a corollary. As one moves throughout the constituencies, one frequently hears complaints about persons not being able to afford insurance, and certainly, most commonly, not being able to afford comprehensive coverage on their properties as a result of the exorbitant rates of insurance companies. I say this, being cognizant and appreciative of the efforts made by the Government in their attempt to come to grips with this [situation].

I am not laying any blame on the Government. I am just drawing the illustration to make the point that this makes it even more incumbent upon us to make provision for such fund. Here is what is the norm: those properties that have no mortgages are most likely not to carry full and comprehensive insurance.

Indeed, some people tell me that they only carry insurance to cover the value of money loaned. So what we are proposing is not some scheme out of Alice in Wonderland; it is not a farfetched idea. Rather it is something which will set the Government in a good position should a disaster of this magnitude occur, to be able to offer widespread relief to the reconstruction of physical facilities.

Madam Speaker, to proclaim as the Minister of Education and Planning did that we seem to be out of the path of the hurricanes is an ignorance to geography.

We brought the Motion in good faith. Quite frankly, we did not expect it would be accepted, but we would like the honourable House to know that the three of us who spoke in favour of the Motion did so out of a genuine concern from climatic trends and that in the event of a disaster, facilities should be made available to help our people.

Madam Speaker, we have done our duty, may God continue to protect us.

The Speaker: The Motion before the House is Private Member's Motion No. 16/95—Disaster Relief Fund:

"BE IT RESOLVED that Government consider setting up a National Disaster Relief Fund to be used as necessary in the event of a devastating hurricane or other disaster."

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, may we have a division, please.

The Speaker: You certainly may. Madam Clerk.

Private Member's Motion No. 18/95. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 18/95

DEVELOPERS OF HOUSING SUBDIVISIONS TO IMPROVE ROADS

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 18/95, entitled, Developers of Housing Subdivisions to Improve Roads, standing in my name, which reads:

"BE IT RESOLVED that Government consider requiring developers of housing subdivisions to improve roads where necessary to prescribed minimum standards;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that in instances where Government undertakes improvements on substandard roads in subdivisions to relieve distress to residents, that arrangements for joint financial contributions between Government and parcel owners be devised, and that a charge be placed on unsold parcels until the component cost to Government is recouped."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 18/95, having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Housing subdivisions as we know them first came about in the 1960s. Since those times housing subdivisions have grown by leaps and bounds. Few of them are fully populated in terms of available land versus the number of houses there, but they are found in all areas of Grand Cayman, indeed, subdivisions are in Cayman Brac and even in the smallest of the three islands, Little Cayman.

When subdivisions were first approved and when development of these first came about, the standards which obtained were those then in place. The requirements of Government were certainly very limited in that we did not have a Planning Law and a Planning Board developed to the extent it is at present. The person having land can get approval for a subdivision and, indeed, once they had a road (to whatever extent that was) and approval to divide the land into so many parcels, they in effect had a subdivision.

Roads, in particular, were not built to the standards that they are now, nor were these requirements in place for them to be built to the levels, the width and the type of construction which is now in place. In the older subdivisions, particularly, we will almost inevitably find that the roads were built from marl, marl being a material that while it hardens, it also washes away when we experience heavy rains.

Because there were no requirements in place at the time when the early subdivisions were made, we find that it is in these subdivisions where there are serious problems with roadways. The early subdivisions also tend to be the most populated because land was cheaper then and it tended to remain that way with some escalation in costs over an extended period of time. So we find more houses and more people living in these subdivisions.

Nowadays, the standards are much higher for developing roads, the cost to build the roads is much higher, the cost of the land is much higher, therefore the cost of any parcel in most subdivisions now is higher. Because of this, we find less people in the subdivisions—basically those persons who can afford present day prices.

At best, in the early subdivisions we might have found what we called spray and chip, certainly hot mix or asphalted roads were out of the question. The roads in the early subdivisions have now deteriorated to a point where it is causing serious problems and distress to residents in these subdivisions. This year, particularly with the heavy rainfall we experienced with passing hurricanes and the like, a tremendous amount of rain over and above what is normal, many surfaces on the roads have washed away, or have huge holes in them, sometimes they seem almost impassable.

The people have now turned to Government to remedy this situation, not that this can legally be found to be Government's responsibility but, as usual, when the people are in distress in most instances, particularly a majority, they turn to Government for assistance.

The people who owned the early subdivisions have sold them, took their money and left, or spent it and remained here, whatever, but that is the way it presently sits. Some of the older subdivisions were sold in whole or in part and one would assume that in some instances there would be individuals or companies who owned these subdivisions to whom residents in the subdivisions could turn to and request that they do something about the roads. Then again, from those early times, there were hardly the kinds of contractual agreements between the seller and the buyer and few obligations on the developer to really provide the type of road that should have been provided. So, again, it falls back on the buyer to be stuck with roads that are below standard.

Few of the persons who own these parcels of land are in a position to fix these roads, even if they tried to do so collectively. I recall back in 1977 or 1978, when I worked in the Ministry of Communications and Works, an approach was made to Government by the people living in Prospect Park for assistance with the roads. At that time the Government of the day initially thought that the Government would bring the road up to a particular standard if the homeowner would assist with 50% of it.

I remember one particular road being costed. It was one of the main roads in that subdivision. As I recall, at that time it was about $4.00 per foot that it would have cost to build the road. The idea was that each parcel owner whose property touched the road would pay $2.00 for whatever would be the road-frontage of their parcel and the Government would meet the other half.

That was the way it was intended to go, but certain political gyrations occurred and Government decided that it would undertake the work and the road was gazetted and Government did, indeed, fix this road. It was the first major work on it which brought it up to a standard which was acceptable.

I dare say that as far as subdivisions go, that was the subdivision that saw Government assisting with bringing roads up to some minimum standard. There are many others in this country now that do not meet prescribed minimum standards at this time. Certainly, one can think of the situation in Belford Estates in Bodden Town where flooding is a serious problem. The roads there were not built to the proper main sea level height, or a measurement above that, and they have major problems.

In these types of subdivisions a concern of Government needs to be that while there may be certain distress to the residents with complaints and requests for help, it can also mean that there are certain health hazards.

I am aware that one of these early subdivisions has been examined by Government authorities. They have found that there are serious health concerns. In some of the earlier subdivisions we find conditions where, unlike these days when septic tanks are properly built and sealed, the designs of the early ones were just four sides with no bottom. So, when heavy rains occur with flooding, there is a health hazard; there can be contaminants that come into the road.

In fact, I have had occasion to see a letter in recent times concerning one such situation in a very small subdivision in the Bodden Town area where it seems clear that since the roads were not built to the proper design not only is there flooding from the adjacent pond, but also there is a problem with flooding from lots where there are houses with contaminants coming into the street. In this particular case, it was reported that a child travelling on the road in the water, as children will do, no doubt happily walking through it, developed a skin condition which could be traced to being in contact with the water in that area.

There is little doubt that the roads in the earlier subdivisions are in need of being developed to prescribed minimum standards. One might ask where Government comes in on this particular exercise, since it is not Government's land. One could argue that it was the duty of the Government in the first instance to prescribe standards which would have enforced building specifications so that these roads would now not be in the state of disrepair they are.

The recommendation is therefore, at this time, that the Government prescribe minimum standards for these roads; that the Government require the developers to meet these minimum standards since there are such problems within these subdivisions on these roads; and, that where Government determines conditions are so bad—as it has in various instances, where they have actually gone in to some areas and done work with Government's equipment, used the public's money and Government materials to improve it—that Government believes there is a compelling reason to assist in situations where persons who own these subdivisions (be they parcel owners or the developers), who are not willing or not able to do so and must act, then Government would seek to work out some arrangement with the parcel owners (homeowners in some cases) assisting in paying part of the cost.

These costs will be much higher nowadays than they were 20 to 25 years ago. Of course, it will be more difficult for homeowners to pay, but it is not unrealistic to ask parcel owners, or homeowners, to take part in paying something that will be of benefit to them, the reason being that any time there is an improved road going into a subdivision it will immediately increase the value of the property and the house in that particular subdivision. So it is only right that the Government would expect that they should be contributors to the cost.

There have been instances that I have heard about, and people have approached me and said, "If the Government would consider fixing this road, I would be prepared to pay something towards it over a period of time." I think that is possible to arrange, be it over 15 or 20 years without there being any interest attached. But people needing this assistance, who are not getting it otherwise, would actually have paid for, or been involved in relieving their own condition.

Where the Government may expend public money to do this type of work, as it has in the past, and whereby so doing it would increase the value of land to the developer, be it a company or individual, surely it is reasonable that Government place a charge on the unsold parcels of land. Once those parcels are sold, after the road has been placed in proper order, the value is increased and the developer will only stand to gain. When Government's component comes out from a sale, then they could remove the charge as does the bank. If a bank gives a mortgage to build a house on a particular parcel of land, it takes a charge on it. When the borrower has discharged his duties to the bank, the charge is removed.

In considering whether I would bring this Motion or not, I tried as best I could to inquire from the Planning Department, from the Public Works Department, from persons whom I thought would know what the present situation is, whose names I certainly will not call for fear it might bring them into disfavour for giving basic straightforward facts on procedure...

Mr. Roy Bodden: Victimization, you mean.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: That is the word.

I was told that the PWD prescribes the specifications to which roads should be built. Certainly in the time that I spent in the Portfolio (now Ministry) of Communications and Works years ago as a Civil Servant when approvals were given on roads it would always have a clause which said 'to be built to a standard approved and satisfactory to the Chief Engineer of PWD', that being Government's technical advisor in that regard. I understand that they still carry out this particular duty. While they prescribe the standards to which it should be built, the material, the height, the level and so on, it fascinated me to learn that it is not the Public Works Department that decides if it should be a spray and chip road or a hot mix road, it falls to the duty of the Central Planning Authority. Why it should be that way, I simply do not understand.

Why, if we are talking about subdivisions, is it felt sufficient for some to be chip and spray, and others to be hot mix? Why is there not simply one choice, one decision, one requirement in the terms of resurfacing the roads? This is what I gathered from what information I was able to get.

In summary, I think this Motion is bringing to our attention that there are many subdivisions in this country where roads are of an extremely low standard. The developers did not do what they could have done; the Government did not require them to do what they should have done; residents of the country have bought parcels and built homes on them and with the traffic that now moves in and out of these subdivisions the roads have deteriorated to a serious level.

They were not built properly and because as areas were filled to bring lots up to certain levels there was less land available for water to settle and soak down; there are more roof tops, more water runs off into the roads. All of these problems have aided and abetted the deterioration of these roads.

The Government, having failed in the past, not necessarily this Government, to prescribe minimum standards and see to it that they were enforced should now see to it that it is done. A requirement should now be put on the developers or the owners of these subdivisions. If they bring them up to the minimum standards they would fall in line for Government to take them over as public roads. That, of course, would have to be a decision made by whichever Government, whenever, and it certainly means bringing more cost on to the Government to maintain those roads.

If Government is going to have to assist its people work on these roads anyway, it seems reasonable that they should place some requirements for them to be brought up to some standard. If Government must do it alone, then Government must have some recourse to recoup its money to help on other roads and in other situations.

It is reasonable for the Government in examining or doing any work in this particular area to try to work out an arrangement with the people who are affected and have them contribute some part (be it whatever) and, whichever Government undertake this task would have to do so. Certainly it cannot be reasonable to continue as has happened in the past, where large sums of monies have been spent on private roads, private driveways, for government not to be able to get back some of the money, in whole or in part, that it has spent.

So, Madam Speaker, this Motion is before this House because there is a major need in this country to have something done to rectify and improve the situation with roads in the many subdivisions of this country. Not forgetting for one moment that I am sure it is necessary right now to spend millions of dollars on the main roads to bring them up to proper standard. This Madam Speaker, could not be done at one time (all in one effort), but the Motion is saying to Government that there is a problem and here are some suggestions as to how we could begin to tackle the problem.

Therefore, Madam Speaker, I recommend this Motion to the Members of this House.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, the first portion of this Motion is fully covered as far as I am concerned, that is, that Government prescribe minimum standards for roads that are built in subdivisions. The Public Works Department, Planning Department, and the Lands and Survey Departments are the departments responsible to make sure that these standards are in place. Roads in subdivisions presently built must comply with these standards or they will not be certified. Therefore, no lots can be sold by the developer without the proper documentation.

In order for proper documentation to be given and the property correctly transferred all standards must be met: the prescribed standards, the right width as laid down by the Planning Department, the depth of the road, and the final surface application whether it is seal and chip, or asphalt/concrete.

So as far as I am concerned Madam Speaker, the first part of the first resolved section of this Motion automatically falls away.

On the second part of the Motion, I would stress to the Mover and the Seconder that in many of the subdivisions with bad roads are the areas with the poorer people of this country. Presently we are working on four such subdivisions, two of which are in Bodden Town and two in George Town. I can also think of a few others in the district of Bodden Town and here in George Town.

I would like to ask a question from this section of the motion: If Government is being asked to pressure these poor people into paying added taxes? At least from reading the Motion that is what it is suggesting. The Motion is further suggesting that Government place a charge on properties in subdivisions and that the landowner be made to pay before that charge is removed. Madam Speaker, all of us in here is aware of what a charge on someone's property is all about. I am certain that at one stage or the other we have all dealt with banks, and it is a fact that if a charge is placed on someone's property and they cannot pay the amount of the charge, the property is confiscated. So am I to hear from these two Members that in these poorer areas where one has achieved that much in life to buy a piece of property the Government should pressure them with taxes, put a charge on their property, and if they cannot pay, confiscate it? I do not think this is fair.

You know the last Motion before this House just a few hours ago, the last speaker was the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and one of his last comments to us was that if you walk around the districts in this island you will find people who can hardly meet an insurance payment. I guarantee him and this honourable House that the cost of constructing roads in this country today far exceeds any insurance premiums you are going to pay. So, if he is aware that they cannot pay an insurance premium; how is it that he can stand in this House and second a Motion that will add taxes to those same individuals?

Madam Speaker, the Mover of this Motion has no problem with the outcome of this motion because we all know that the Lesser Islands today have much better roads than we have here in Grand Cayman. But I guarantee the First Elected Member for Bodden Town that his district is one that suffers as I have pointed out, and I am sure that his people will not be pleased.

How can we as a government in our right senses go to the developer who has in most cases sold the properties, used the funds and has left the island and say we are going to order them to fix the roads? This Government, Madam Speaker, considers individuals in those subdivisions tax payers the same as anyone else in this country, even if it was only the 7.5% which they paid to get that little piece of property, they are still tax payers.

I think this Government's duty is to continue (as I mentioned about the two subdivisions in George Town and the two in Bodden Town) assisting these persons within the financial means of this country, trying to work on those roads and not have to go to the extent this Motion is suggesting.

Madam Speaker, only a short time ago this Government was ridiculed, we were pulled over colds, we were kicked around on the floor of this House, we were told everything, except being called gentlemen and ladies—simply because we thought it important to try to address this same problem by fixing a few roads in a few subdivisions. Of course the stink was made on the West Bay area, but we have been fixing them all over the island. Again, the Elected Member for Bodden Town, from the records I have, has requested more than most other Members here in this honourable House. So how can we be faced with such a Motion now, to say that we must go ahead tax the people further and if they cannot pay we take their property. This is very unfair and as far as I am concerned, Madam Speaker, this Minister will be no party to it. I feel certain that I speak on behalf of the whole Team when I say, 'we will not stoop to charging the poor people more and pressure them with more than they are already burdened with'.

We have a very large expenditure for the district of Bodden Town, next to Belford Estate that will service only a few homes and is costing this country approximately $750,000. I wonder if the First Elected Member for Bodden Town realises that if I put this into force, that his share of that $750,000 is going to be a substantial amount. I wonder if he would feel the same way that he is advocating for me to charge those poor people within these subdivisions.

I heard stories of residents in Prospect being prepared to fix roads and to pay. I have heard that ever since I took over the Ministry. But I would invite the Members moving the Motion to tell me: Once Government fixes the roads how many when called to put their money where their mouths are, how many are prepared to do that? You can count them on one hand. I have not seen as a matter of fact, anyone coming forward saying: 'Yes, this is the cheque go ahead'.

So when you hear that hot air Madam Speaker, it just has to pass you by. Work will be carried out in as many of these subdivisions as I have said, as is humanly possible within the finances of this country.

The Honourable Minister on this side from the district of Bodden Town constantly tries his best to work along with us and, as I have said, we are presently working on two subdivisions there. We are working on two here in George Town and this is the way it will be. Mention was made of one in Bodden Town where the water comes from the swamp onto the road. Madam Speaker, we have a worst case than that right here in George Town for those who know Templeton Estates, but what can I or the Public Works Department or the National Team do about an area that has been developed with low roads? The individuals have built their homes and when it rains because the roads are too low the houses are too low... if the government goes in and constructs higher roads, then they will be blamed for flooding the area.

So we are trying our best to upgrade the roads. We are trying to put in drains where possible, and if there is anyone else who can wave a magic wand in here I would like the answers.

Madam Speaker, mention was made why [the specifications] should not be across the board on the type of roads that are prescribed for subdivisions. I thought that this was simple; properties on Seven Mile Beach or in that area are valued many times more than properties in Bodden Town, East End, and North Side. I think it would be very unfair to the purchaser and the developer to enforce that they in developing their development have to have the same type of roads as we find on Seven Mile Beach. After all, the demand will be there, the price is there, and in most cases developers in the districts I have mentioned, are catering to the local people. Where in the world would they find the money to purchase properties at a higher rate? Some of those poor people whom I mentioned find it hard to purchase at the low rates that now exist. So that is the reason why we have to prescribe two types of roads.

Madam Speaker, again I would add that it is now being enforced and it will be enforced as long as I am the Minister. I cannot say what will happen when I leave. I share sympathies with these people because I go around and look at these subdivisions; the Members for George Town and I have driven around the district. I have driven around with the Members for Bodden Town, with the lady Member for North Side, and I know the roads in my district. We have a problem and like all other problems, regardless if the Opposition believes it or not, this Government tries its best to come to grip with them and work on these problems.

Madam Speaker, you know I would not close without touching on something that was said partly by the Second Elected Member [for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman] and the words actually flowed from the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, that is to say the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman started by saying that he was going to be very careful not to call names because—and of course the other Member backed him—of victimisation. I would like to tell the two Members that as far as I am concerned, I have no part in that. I need not to know any names because there is always a leak any place you go, and I would have been upset if [the person the Member consulted] had not told him the correct standards. But from what he has said it seems that on that occasion he was informed correctly and the standards are as I have pointed out. So, as far as victimisation is concerned, I would only say to them look elsewhere and not to me because I am not that sort of person.

Madam Speaker, the Government feels that we are doing all within our powers to address the situation in the best interests of the people of this country. We are trying to do it taking into consideration that especially, those who have the problems are the poorer class people (and I say that with the greatest respect), but any community has those types of persons. It is our intention as I have said earlier, to work within the financial means of the country and we will try our best to do as many roads as possible. I think that is all anyone can expect of us.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, I rise to offer my contribution on Private Member's Motion No. 18/95 entitled 'Developers of Housing Subdivisions to Improve Roads'. When I heard the Mover outlining the intentions in this motion, the words that kept coming to my mind were taxes, more taxes, and more taxes. What is amusing is that I think it was last year the same two Members brought a Censure Motion on this Government for attempting to assist the people with roads especially in the district of West Bay.

Now what they are proposing here is nothing more than the introduction of a subdivision road tax. With the cost of living in this country most people have difficulties even at the end of the week to find an extra $100 to go to the supermarket to purchase food. How in the world are we as representatives going to say to the people, 'You do not deserve to drive on a good road and, if you live in a subdivision we will penalise you because if Government goes in and fixes those roads you are going to have to bear some of the costs?' That is totally ridiculous Madam Speaker, and totally unacceptable.

In this Sitting some of the motions that have been brought to this House make me really wonder how in the world—especially the two Members who brought this one—come up with these ideas. It is obvious that those two Members do not have any real desire of being re-elected in 1996. One of the reasons why the people put us in this House is to assist them with good roads, good schools, good play fields, good sporting facilities, and other services that they cannot afford to provide for themselves, and also in line with our promises to the people, good health care facilities.

Madam Speaker, you can imagine as the Honourable Minister mentioned, if Government went along with this scheme [as proposed by the Motion] saying 'Yes we will do this'. . . I do not know how many landowners are in Belford Estates, but I understand it is estimated to cost in the region of $600,000 to $700,000. Let us say there are four landowners in that area and you divide that sum by four: we are talking in the region of $150,000 per landowner. Even if you give them 15 or 20 years to pay it back, first of all who is going to collect?

One of the major problems we have in this country right now is the collection of revenue as far as Government's revenue is concerned. Now we are going to put the burden on the Financial Secretary's Office to say that we are going to go out and fix roads and his staff go out and collect from those land owners. Totally ridiculous, Madam Speaker!

I am one representative and I share the same philosophy as the rest of the National Team, that we are prepared to provide as many services to our people as quickly as possible by the financial restraints of our resources.

Madam Speaker, I also hear a lot of people with a very strange philosophy—and I am not saying that we do not have some people who can help themselves, who rely on Government for providing a service. I have heard many people say there are a lot of older people in this country who are poor—barely able to make ends meet and need services. The attitude is if their children cannot give it to them then those poor persons should do without the service, be it food, be it shelter, be it electricity, or be it roads. I believe that is the wrong message to send to our people.

Our people are proud people, they are hard working people, but most people in this country right now are finding it very difficult indeed to make ends meet. One of the things that this Government has been very careful with, regardless of the demand for services in this country, is that in our first three years in office [Government] avoided as far as possible any new taxes to our people. Why, Madam Speaker? Our people are already suffering with a huge burden of taxes and the cost of living in this country.

I support the present policy in place regarding planning, that if there is a subdivision going on there is a minimum standard that has to be met as far as roads are concerned and the Planning Department and other agencies responsible must see to it that those standards are enforced. But as far as the old subdivisions are concerned (and these are the ones which are giving us problems at the present time), in a lot of instances the developer sold the property, completed his development and moved on. Now we are going to tell those poor persons in that area: Go find the developer regardless of where he is, make sure that he comes back here and fixes your road because we are not prepared to assist. Unreasonable, Madam Speaker. Totally unreasonable.

As I have said, I honestly question whether or not these Members bringing these kinds of motions, sit down and think them through regarding the consequences and the burden they are going to impose upon our people.

I think it was just yesterday, there was a Motion calling for a crematorium for dead animals. Madam Speaker, I have always been a lover of pets. I have always had dogs, cats, chickens, you name it. But when one of my animals died I dug a nice little hole in the ground, stuck him in there, covered him up, said a prayer and that was the end of it. That is all we are doing for our beloved people. When they die we do that—we put them in the ground.

So to sit here and propose services that are first of all very impractical, unaffordable, just because they read it out of some magazine or because somebody who has a special interest comes to them and says this would be a good Motion, bring it... I believe that when we come to this House we have to be responsible, we have to be prepared to represent all of the people, not only the favoured few.

Let me ask another question. They are saying that Government must go out and do these roads: where is Government to get the funds from? Do you mean for Government to borrow the money, because they do not have the resources to do them all at one time and then, say to the people, 'We had to borrow $9 million to do these roads now we are going to tax you to get it back'? That is totally unreasonable.

The Members for West Bay, especially, took a pounding last year. The other Members of the National Team took a pounding for having the guts to . . . Since I was elected in 1988 I have had roads in the district of West Bay that I was trying to get fixed. I am talking about roads for people who do not have access to their homes...

SPEAKER'S RULING

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I am going to have to ask you to stop. This is the second time you have repeated that. You have also repeated a statement made by the Honourable Minister. That is not allowed under Standing Orders. Please confine yourself to the subject which is before us now, Private Member's Motion No. 18/95.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker, that is what I am trying to do.

It is totally unfair for those Members to come to this House and expect us, who are part of the National Team, to tax our people to this extent for a service which in the past had been provided free of cost within the limits that are afforded by our financial resources.

I trust that the persons in their districts take note of the issues which they are bringing to this House and I personally will not be supporting this Motion when it goes to the vote.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, I would ask the Mover if he would like to exercise his right to reply.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am delighted to reply to some of the misleading, ignorant, double-talking, foolish statements that I have heard come from the Government side of the House and their supporters with regard to this Motion.

First of all, the Motion asks Government to consider requiring developers of housing subdivisions to improve roads where necessary to prescribe minimum standards. In presenting the Motion, I spoke of the serious problems, health-wise and otherwise found in the old subdivisions, to consider requiring the developers to bring these roads to prescribed minimum standards. Now it is clear that this Government, if we take what the Minister has said, does not believe the Government has a duty to make such a request of the people who have created the highly substandard roads.

Apparently because now there are supposedly in place required minimum standards what has happened in the past does not matter. Or, what has happened in the past by people who have profited, it is now the responsibility of the Government to correct, and that this country has at its disposal all the means to correct these situations without even an effort of saying to the people affected in these areas, 'Would you like to help? Would you have a wish to put in even $50 towards this? Would you like to have the opportunity to assist? We have costed these roads and found that they will cost so much, we are prepared to help, but you are being asked to help.'

One very salient point that has to be made in this is that when funds were misappropriated in 1994 to fix 41 private roads in West Bay, it was public funds going for private purpose. Unless all of the people can so benefit, it cannot be morally right to select a few by a particular government and do those for the purpose of acquiring votes in the forth coming election that at least one Member has alluded to.

These are private roads, they are not public roads and this Motion very carefully took that into account. The first thing it says is to require those people who built substandard roads (which cause people to suffer) to bring those roads up to minimum standards.

The second Resolve carefully says that in instances where Government undertakes improvements on substandard roads in subdivisions to relieve distress to residents—a very personal thought, a very personal act. It is the relief of distress to our citizens, that the Government seeks to see that there are those who will contribute some financial effort to it.

It is the same as pensions. Those who say that it is something desirable says the employer must put half and the worker must put half. It is no different than that and it leaves it open to whatever arrangement the Government might want to make, if any at all and that the very same people whom the Minister for Roads has said have made their money and run away—that is what he said, that they made their money and are gone—then, what is so wrong in trying to find those people if they are still around; if they still own a large part of that subdivision, and say to them, 'Chum, you have sold lots to 25 people. There are 25 houses and every day of their lives, these people drive over holes and caverns; we believe we have to fix these roads, but when we fix it we are fixing your private road which is going to give you greater value on those lots. If we do it, friends, even if we have to amend the Law, we are going to put a charge on it because we mean to help them and not to benefit you.' What is so wrong about that?

When the Minister for Agriculture, gets into those intonations of care and love, feelings for the poor people of this country, he does not impress me because he has no more caring for the poor people or the rich people of this country, nor will begin to have [more] than I have—and my record proves that because I always find myself on the end getting beat up for taking up the poor man's cause.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True! We are one and alike!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: So, if he is using Government's money now and talking about the poor people and what he is bestowing on them, supposedly in two subdivisions of Bodden Town and two in George Town, I would think that the developers of those subdivisions, if they are still alive and well and who went with their money, must sure be laughing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: They are laughing all the way to the bank!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: They must sure be laughing!

They should laugh tonight when they hear the Minister for Roads say, 'Sure, you built substandard roads and you sold to those poor people, and those poor people are in distress; I am going to take the poor people's money and pay for your wrong!' They must sure be laughing!

The Minister for Roads asked if Government is being asked to put a charge on somebody's property. That is what this Motion says: that if in the older subdivisions the people who owned them still own the parcels in Belford Estates or otherwise, the developers still own them and Government is going to fix the roads, that is going to give them greater worth. Yes, the Motion is saying charge those unsold parcels.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True. That is the way it should be!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: That is what the Motion is saying.

But he, the Minister, as he intones about those poor people, he thinks it is right to fix those roads at the expense of all the people of this country, raise the land value of the developers and give it to them and smile. He believes that he is imputing my good intentions by all that he has said.

There are people other than people in Bodden Town who cannot pay insurance. There are people all over this country finding it difficult to pay insurance and pay lots of other things. Those types of persons are always in the majority. That is why any proper well-thinking Government will always move to protect those persons who are poor. If tonight he wants to do something, let him read what the Bible says about protecting the poor.

How can the Government ask developers, he (the Minister) said, to fix the roads when they have sold out and left the island? That is what he should do. He should have been challenged at least to the extent that he would have asked the Lands Officer or whomever could research this information, to find out who owns these roads before he goes ahead spending the money he apparently is so graciously spending for the poor people to come here to talk about it when, as I believe, most of these old subdivisions have the majority of lots still owned by the developers and when he fixes the roads—who benefits? The poor people? Only in a very minor way.

As for this Government being kicked around and criticised for fixing a few roads in West Bay, they were not kicked around. This Government misappropriated funds and used it on private driveways. He knows where that is recorded, it is not just me saying that. He knows why there is no Public Accounts Committee Report on it either. Which is hindering the people of this country from knowing some of the things which they should know right now about that situation.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay, who sang the same song, is the Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee. So he knows why. I know why too, but, unfortunately, the situation of the Standing Orders of this House is that certain information cannot be made known to the public until such times as certain things take place. Regrettably.

SPEAKER'S RULING

The Speaker: May I ask the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to refrain from speaking about repairs to the West Bay roads? Please discontinue that.

[An Hon. Member's interjection] You can run but you cannot hide!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I know that Prospect Park was the first instance where Government was going to jointly undertake with residents to fix the roads. If he is now a Minister for Roads and he wants to know where the money is coming from for those who say they want to help, or where is the money, it is his duty to find out. Indeed, if at this stage there are still persons who are willing to do so, and he has heard about it ever since being in the Portfolio, then it would seem to me that he would have made some kind of an arrangement to see that there is a proper agreement between Government and the people and that they pay as they agreed to.

As for forcing anybody, or pressuring the poor people to pay, that is absurd. This Motion said nothing about such a thing. It says that if Government decides to do something on these roads, it should seek some dialogue with the people and hold the people who created the substandard roads to some charge for improving the value of their land.

If there is a subdivision called Templeton Estates, is there something wrong with the Government (which is the state, the body representative of the people) acting on the behalf of the people through the proper Ministry to find out who owns that—if anyone, besides the people who apparently are distressed in that area—and require them to make some changes; to maybe pay to have a drain put in that subdivision? What is so wrong about that? Or must the developers of that also sit back and laugh because the Minister is bestowing kindness on the poor people in this subdivision.

The Minister spoke briefly about the situation of roads and subdivisions in Cayman Brac. Amazingly enough, even in the small island of Cayman Brac and the smaller island of Little Cayman, subdivision roads are hot mix asphalt. Are they such wealthy people in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman? There are some, but the majority sure are not. They have less chances for employment. I know of people working there in jobs similar to those in Grand Cayman, earning less, but yet they are able to purchase a piece of land (not outright), although in most instances it is purchased right here in Grand Cayman. They struggle and they also build their houses. But, they are so fortunate to have roads that have asphalted surfaces which should last 10, 15, 20 years.

Oddly enough, in Grand Cayman it cannot be done. The reason is because apparently—and this is a real kicker—in this country on a whole to subdivide it takes money to do so. Whoever develops has to have access to some money. Anyone knows that from the requirements of the Law and when they go to the bank, the bank knows that certain roads have to be built to certain standards. Yet, the Central Planning Authority here is one which can say in Grand Cayman, 'Put down chip and spray, that is all right, because there is a benevolent Government coming behind to put down the hot mix.'

Something is wrong in this country. I would like to know whether poor people who, as the Minister said are referred to with the greatest respect do not have the same right to drive on hot mix roads as do others with money.

I think that there is quite a revelation here this afternoon in that it is clear that this Government has a policy where it takes public funds and uses them to the benefit of a handful of individuals who should have paid in the first instance on the pretext or the excuse that they are helping the poor. It is a perversion of good government that public money is not employed to the benefit of all.

I do not know where this business of taxes comes to the mind of the Third Elected Member for West Bay, because it is only he and his Minister have been talking about taxes.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay also said how careful he and the National Team had been to not bring any taxes since 1993. Well, that is absolutely untrue for in 1993, 1994, and 1995 taxes were imposed in the country. Let the record show, and for those who are interested, they can easily find that in the Estimates.

This Member also spoke about a Censure Motion, and indeed a motion was moved in this House and what happened in the first instance with regard to a censure motion is typical of what that National Team Government does when it comes to perverting the practices and process of government (practice and process in this Legislative Assembly for that matter). Here the drama was played out when the House was adjourned in the middle of a Censure Motion.

What a wonderful story for the Parliamentarian and for the examination of Commonwealth nations around the world! Quite an exercise! Quite an exercise! It is a pity that it did not reach that magazine... something to study; it speaks about the government and it speaks about the parliamentary process in the Cayman Islands.

One thing I noticed plenty of is that the National Team Government really knows how to grin; everything is funny.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [laughter]

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Everything is funny! That which is trivial is made serious, and that which is serious is laughed about!

Madam Speaker, unlike what the Third Elected Member for West Bay may believe, I do have intentions to continue in politics come the next Election—God willing I am alive—and of being elected. I believe that I can do that on the basis of standing (as I have done) for what is right and proper and even when I am outnumbered 13 to one that is still all right. That has never bothered me. So, I would assure him that is my intention.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Member take a suspension at this time?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.59 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.20 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continuing.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, when we took the suspension I was briefly commenting on the fact that, yes, I intend to be a candidate in the forthcoming Election and I believe (just to briefly add to that thought), that next year a lot of people are going to be judged on their record, including the Government of the day and that recording is going to show quite a few things. I am prepared to stand on mine in terms of motions which have come to this honourable House on matters of national concern; the hundreds of questions asked so that the public may know. And I trust that all of those persons other than myself in this House, feel as prepared to be judged on theirs.

Madam Speaker, this motion that is before this House this afternoon is one which deserves some degree of common sense and understanding to know that it is about making a difference for people; people who no longer live in the areas or districts they did before and in some cases not in the same locations in which they were born and grew up and that within these areas there are communities in themselves and these poor people (as the Minister for Roads referred to them—and poor they are I think, by the way they are treated, not so much that they are poverty stricken—the Government should act on their behalf to see to whatever extent is possible to have those persons who first sold them the land do something which they should have done in the first instance.

It is a call for Government to look at the road it is travelling in regards to how public money is spent and the reasons the Government perceive for spending it. In fact, if standards are now prescribed for roads in subdivisions (as the Minister says there are), then perhaps the time has come too, for inspecting these roads by using proper instrumentation core cutting them rather than doing visual inspection as these roads that are approved even in the present subdivisions may well prove to be what they are not.

And as for the Minister saying that what I had said “was correct for a change” on what I gleaned from the people I spoke to in the Planning Department and Public Works Department, I can assure this House that in both instances when I called those departments to find out what should be basic information available to any developer or otherwise, I identified myself by saying ‘I am speaking to you and I believe the information that I am asking for, you can give me as you would anyone from the public. I do not wish in anyway to jeopardise you, if it is something you cannot tell me, please let me know’. At least in one case in one department the individual said to me, “Please understand, I have not talked to you”.

So, again, when the Minister trumpets on behalf of the Government and himself, that is the opinion of one of the people in the department who gave me the information. I say that that is the climate of people being afraid and intimidated with regard to even giving basic information to me, a Member of this Legislative Assembly that he could give to other people of the public. I assured him that I simply wanted the information so that I would not make an inaccurate statement.

Madam Speaker, no more could be said to this motion, in that this is a motion that is necessary to deal with a matter that presently exists in this country; a matter that is not going to go away, and it might strike the Government that for as many of these roads that are repaired and are not gazetted, have remained the property of the individuals who own them. If Government gazettes them then they include those roads and add to the list that Government must continue to maintain, fix, and repair.

So the overall effect is one of expense to the country. There is nothing wrong in having the people who should have fixed the roads in the first instance, bring them up to a required standard if Government is going to be the benevolent benefactor and take over the care of these roads.

Madam Speaker, I leave this Motion to stand on its own for the good sense that it entails and for the resolves which ask Government to take certain wise action in this particular situation.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion No. 18/95: "BE IT RESOLVED that Government consider requiring developers of housing subdivisions to improve roads where necessary to prescribed minimum standards;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that in instances where Government undertakes improvements on sub-standard roads in subdivisions to relieve distress to residents, that arrangements for joint financial contributions between Government and parcel owners be devised, and that a charge be placed on unsold parcels until the component cost to Government is recouped."

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, may we have a division, please?

The Speaker: You certainly may.
Madam Clerk.

The Clerk:

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 18/95
NEGATIVED.

The Speaker: May I have a motion for the adjournment of the House. The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning—Leader of Government Business.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this honourable House until Monday, at 11.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

AT 4.33 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED
UNTIL 11.00 AM MONDAY, 20 NOVEMBER 1995.

MONDAY
20 NOVEMBER, 1995
11.27 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed. Suspension of Standing Order 23 (7) and (8). The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) & (8)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I move the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8).

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23(7) and (8) be suspended so that questions can be taken after 11 o'clock. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Orders are accordingly suspended.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

The Speaker: Question No. 248, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 248

No. 248: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to provide a breakdown of the number of students currently enrolled at the Alternative Education Centre by gender, age and grade.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. As at 1st November, 1995, there were 12 students enrolled at the Alternative Education Centre. The breakdown of these students is as follows: Two female students between the ages of 14 and 15 who are both in year 10; Ten male students: two between the ages of 12 and 13 in year eight; three between the ages of 13 and 14 who are in year nine; three between the ages of 14 and 15 who are in year 10; two between the ages of 15 and 16 who are in year 11.

Additionally, on this date there were six students in the Suspension Centre.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister give an indication of the average stay of these students at the Suspension Centre, and at the Alternative Education Centre?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: To attempt to give an average stay, since some of these are there for a short period and some for a long period, in my opinion would not achieve very much. I do not have it. If the Honourable Member regards it as relevant, then we will have to go back and take all the students over the past year, work out all the time that they have been there and divide it by the number of students. I do not see what this would achieve.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say if the curriculum at these two Centres includes the regular curriculum at the respective schools from which the students were sent, or are there additional courses that the students at these Centres are required to take?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the curriculum is similar to what they would be doing that year in the specific school which they came from. I would expect that there would be extra classes relating to specific problems that the children have and these would be quite diverse.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say, for the sake of clarity—because I am a bit confused about what the Member said about the average stay and so forth—if it is alternative education, is that not the point of taking the students out of their present environment where they are disruptive and putting them in the Centre? Is that not the whole idea for alternative education?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker, that is the purpose.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to ask the Honourable Minister if the honourable House is to understand that once these students are removed from the regular schools that there is no chance for them being brought back into the main stream? What I meant when I asked about the average stay was whether it was taken on the basis of over a year, or three months, six weeks, four months or six months, before they are placed back into their main stream classes at the high schools.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Normally the children only go there on a temporary basis. We have had several of them main-streamed back into their respective schools. So, as soon as they are brought up to a standard by which they can go back into the main stream, they do so. It is not meant to be a permanent facility, as such.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 249, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 249

No. 249: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning what formula exists for the provision of financial assistance from Government to private schools.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The present formula for the provision of yearly grants to private schools is based upon per capita enrolment and age of students. In addition, small schools are given an additional flat grant of $10,000 per year. This formula has not been changed since the early 1980s and is presently being revised.

In keeping with Government's policy to assist schools who undertake capital development such as the addition of specialist rooms and equipment, some schools have received special one-off grants for a particular project.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister explain to the House what are some of the criteria for being given one-off grants? What are some of the projects that would warrant being given a grant?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: For example, where a school is in need of computer equipment, or where they are doing a project by adding classrooms and that, in itself, is relieving Government of a very heavy annual financial burden.

For example, if a school is adding, say, rooms for 300 students, that immediately relieves Government of $1.5 million of recurrent per annum. We would assist them, as we have done in the past.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say whether the Government makes any assessment of the requests, or whether the grants are simply given on the basis of the request.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, that Honourable Member either approves or disapproves, and the Opposition normally disapproves any requests that are made. But obviously, we do look at the reason for it. We do assess it and if we feel that it is necessary and good, and that it is saving Government a lot of money, which it always does, then we go ahead and bring it here for approval by this honourable House.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I have very little patience for the cavalier attitude. What I meant is that when a request is tendered, does the Government send anyone... for example, if a request is made for the improvement of library facilities, does the Government send anyone from the Education Department or the Ministry to make an independent assessment. For example, if it is made with a view to purchasing additional computers or expanding the library space, does the Ministry send anyone to confirm that the request is reasonable within the bounds?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: All requests are looked at very carefully and are properly assessed.

If that Honourable Member has a problem and does not like private schools, then I am not...

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: Excuse me, would you both sit down?

Honourable Minister, I think you have answered it. I do not see the necessity to make any expression about the Member. You have given him an answer, I think that will suffice.

Let us go on to the next question, No. 250, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 250

(Withdrawn)

[No. 250 Mr. Roy Bodden: What is the total liability to date of the Cayman Islands with regard to those Cubans repatriated to Guantanamo Bay from the Cayman Islands?]

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I crave the indulgence of the Chair to have this question withdrawn from the Order Paper.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that Question No. 250 be withdrawn.

Is that seconded? The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I second that, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Motion has been moved and seconded. The question is that Question No. 250 be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The question is accordingly withdrawn.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 250 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 251, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 251

No. 251: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works if the major interior construction changes at the Government Administration Building meet with fire safety and evacuation requirements.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. According to the Public Works Department, the changes meet with fire and evacuation requirements except for two external stairs which were costed and submitted in the 1996 Budget.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister confirm that at this time there are certain fire hazards in the building, and what is the plan of safety in the event of a problem where there needs to be an evacuation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

For those who know the Glass House, that was built as far as I am concerned as a fire hazard because the stairs and the elevator are situated in the centre of the building.

The renovations that were done did not in any way cause any further confusion than what was already there. What we are doing is that at present we have plans to put in stairs on the outside of the building to try to overcome any problem that we can.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say if these requirements were in the plans that were originally submitted for the renovations in the Administration Building when they were submitted to the Planning Department, or were they submitted to any authority for the renovation to this building?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, one of the first things I undertook when I went back to the Glass House was to try to find a way to put a staircase on the outside of the building. It is not the easiest building to deal with because it is all glass and it has taken considerable time with the professionals to try to work something out that will be best for the building.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 252, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 252

No. 252: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works if any applications for dredging licences are pending Government's approval or have received approval in principle.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer is, yes.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say what he means yes to, or does he mean that there are licences pending Government's approval and some have been approved in principle?

The Speaker: I am sure that the Honourable Minister can read and I believe the reply answered both questions. I do not know if he has anything else to add, unless you want to add an additional supplementary.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say how many applications are pending and how many have been approved in principle?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: There are about four that have been given approval in principle, and about three pending.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister state who have submitted these seven applications?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, are you in a position to answer that?

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would prefer not to give an answer because it is only approval in principle and I do not want to expose names of companies and/or persons on the floor of the House at this time.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Is the Honourable Member saying that approval in principle is in truth not an approval and, if so, what more has to be done for these applicants to actually start the dredging process?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Approval in principle means exactly that, 'approval in principle'. At this time, if the Chair would indulge, I do not want to give any more information on this.

The Speaker: Proceeding to the next question, No. 253, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 253

(Deferred)

No. 253: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works what is the process to be followed when an application for a dredging licence is applied for.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I would appreciate if this question could be deferred and set down for answer at a later date in the Meeting.

The Speaker: The question is that the answer to question No. 253 be deferred until a latter time in this Meeting.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the House is being asked to defer this question. Can the Honourable Minister give some indication as to why he is asking for this because procedure should be procedure?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Certainly, Madam Speaker. I need not say to you how many questions have been down on the Order Paper dealing with dredging. And of course, civil servants are overburdened as it is, more so when we have to deal with almost 200 questions. That is the reason. If the answer were ready I would have given it.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question that the answer be deferred until a later sitting during this Meeting. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Ayes have it, the question is accordingly deferred until a later sitting during this Meeting.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 253 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 254, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 254

No. 254: Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning what is the projection for increased business for Cayman Airways Limited for the coming year.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The airline business is a very competitive industry subject to multiple and varied external factors which can affect the overall performance.

By conservative estimates, and all other things being equal, Cayman Airways Limited is forecasting for approximately a 5 per cent increase in passenger revenues next year. This increase is expected to come as a result of a more aggressive airline marketing strategy, closer working relationship with the Department of Tourism and providing in-house certain services that had been previously out sourced.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say if this 5% projected increase would mean increased flights or increased passenger loads.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Both, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 255, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 255

No. 255: Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning if there are any plans for additional routes or flights to be flown by Cayman Airways Limited during 1996.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: Cayman Airways Limited has conducted feasibility studies on one proposed new route for 1996. This proposal is before the Board and shareholders for consideration, but no decision has been taken to date.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would be prepared to say what this route is, or is this not a convenient time to do so?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, that Honourable Member knows the airline business as well as I do. I would rather not say so at this time, but I am happy to whisper it to him later confidentially.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 256, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 256

No. 256: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to state if any action is being taken to do the necessary remedial works at the George Town Primary School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: The remedial works at George Town Primary School have been mostly completed. To date the following items have been completed:

- 1) The numbering of all classrooms (1—40).
- 2) The screens have been installed in boys' and girls' bathrooms.
- 3) A low wall has been built around the shade tree/flower bed in the yard.
- 4) The air-conditioning unit in the reading unit has been bolted down.
- 5) Guttering and fascia board in the Infant Block have been replaced or repaired.
- 6) The lights on the Infant Block walkway have been repaired.
- 7) The lattice by the office has been fixed.
- 8) The drains have been enlarged to 8 inches in diameter and have been drilled deeper.
- 9) The hall doors and library doors have been repaired.
- 10) Rotting wood that was identified has been replaced.
- 11) The parking area has been reconstructed and a covered walkway connecting it to the school was constructed.
- 12) The library was extended, re-carpeted and significantly improved.
- 13) Floor tiles have been replaced in the bathroom.

In addition to these repairs, work was recently begun on a major re-wiring of a number of classrooms to increase the number of outlets and to enable additional fans and lights to be installed.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In the Honourable Member's answer, he stated that the remedial works have mostly been completed, and at the end of it he mentioned the re-wiring of the classrooms in order to facilitate other fans and lights which are necessary. Are there any other outstanding items that have not been addressed and not included in the answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This appears to be all. There are certain provisions for next year which the Honourable Member will see in the Budget when we reach Finance Committee. I would just like to point out that it is a mammoth task in two months to get all the repairs on all schools completed. The list here is short compared to some that we have had in other schools. I do my best, and so does PWD, especially Mr. George Manderson, who I would really like to thank for his help.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am sure that the Honourable Minister is aware of a letter we received as George Town Representatives regarding the school. Was it because these remedial works were not requested by the principal, or was it that PWD was so stretched that they were unable to complete it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: The previous principal, despite what he said at a graduating ceremony, did not come forward and ask for a lot of these repairs to be done. It was not until the principal recently appointed there for this term put this into motion... she is very energetic, very capable, and a lot of this has been done in the short weeks that she has been in the school.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Minister say if the re-wiring works which have just recently started will simply continue until completion, or will there be any gaps in between?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I would hope it would continue. If there are any gaps, they are going to have to deal with me and also with the Chief Education Officer and Permanent Secretary. I would like to see this completed as soon as possible.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 257, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 257

No. 257: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to outline any plans being formulated to correct the obvious gap which has been discovered between what infants are learning at pre-schools, and what the curriculum expectations are at entrance level in Primary Schools.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, plans have been in progress since February 1995 to assist preschool personnel with the knowledge needed to promote and encourage the overall development of the child.

A curriculum guide for pre-schools is near completion and will be in place by the end of this term.

A meeting was held with the Year One teachers in the Government Primary Schools and personnel from the Education Department in order for the teachers to voice their concerns and make suggestions for possible solutions to the problems.

Another meeting was held with the pre-school operators and teachers to enable them to discuss some of their problems and concerns and what solutions they may have. As a result of these meetings it was the consensus of everyone involved that continuous dialogue between the two levels is paramount.

An Early Childhood association has been formed which includes representatives from both pre-schools and primary schools.

At the same time, the curriculum guides which cover Years One to Three at primary level are being reviewed.

In terms of curriculum expectations at the entrance level of primary school, the expectation is that by five years of age children will have developed fine motor skills, are able to recognise shapes and colours, are able to follow basic directions and have learned how to get along with others.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is the Ministry satisfied that the year that had been taken out of the primary school—the first year, the Kindergarten year—that its being placed in the hands of the private sector is the most desirable?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I have to draw a distinction between satisfactory and necessity. I think that moving 205 pre-school children as the last Government did from the Government system, and basically putting them on the street when there were only three registered pre-schools (which had the capacity to take a fraction of them), was wrong. Necessity dictated that since an extra year had been put into the primary school in the grade six year, the classrooms that were used for reception classes had already been taken. This was one of the radical changes made by the last Government in the school system and it has had a very detrimental effect on the children.

What we are trying to do is to assist the private pre-schools so that they can come up to the accepted standard. As I answered a short time before, about 22 of them are either registered or will be registered shortly. One has a problem with physical premises and is moving elsewhere.

In these circumstances, this is the best that can be done and it is a policy that I must, out of necessity, accept at this stage.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: While the Honourable Minister, in his most recent answer alluded to the fact that the Kindergarten year is not possible at the primary schools at this point in time, would he specifically confirm that physical space in the primary schools at this point in time does not allow for this possibility to exist?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I can confirm that it is physically impossible to put the reception classes back into the schools where they had been removed in 1992.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say if future planning is geared towards putting this first year back into the primary schools or if it is the view that they will simply try to upgrade the existing private schools to meet the growing demand?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: With the exception of one primary school and maybe two where the pre-schools cannot get those children into the pre-schools, the Government has no intention of bringing back a full scale pre-school system.

I would like to point out here the danger when there are radical changes destroying a system such as the pre-school system in Government which took only a matter of a stroke of a pen. It had been developed over many years and you just cannot, when you radically change things in the education system, correct them overnight. It takes a long time before changes such as this can be corrected.

I believe that we can help the private pre-schools to upgrade to the standard where they will fill the gap, but it cannot be done overnight. This is what the last Government should have realised when they demolished the reception classes in the pre-schools.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if it is a fact that as far back as 1978 when he was Minister for Education, one of his then employees, Dr. Frank McField, made certain recommendations in regard to primary schools and upgrading them? That was a long time from now. What thought was given to that?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, I have a reasonably good memory, but I cannot remember what Dr. Frank McField or anyone else did back in 1978. The Member has made a statement. I cannot say whether it is true or not.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today.

Other Business, Private Members' Motions, Private Member's Motion No. 17/95—Drug Rehabilitation Joint Effort.

The First Elected Member for Boddén Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/95

REHABILITATION JOINT EFFORT

Mr. Roy Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to move Private Member's Motion No. 17/95, entitled 'Drug Rehabilitation Joint Effort' standing in my name, which reads:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government explore the possibility of a joint effort in the drug rehabilitation with Canaan Land Foundation."

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 17/95 having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate.

The First Elected Member for Boddén Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: In this introduction to Private Member's Motion No. 17/95, let me state that the merits of the Motion are based primarily on the fact that from all indications it would seem that the Canaan Land Foundation is eminently equipped to cater to the drug rehabilitation needs of our country. It would seem that what they lack is some assistance in providing the resources, especially the physical facilities. It is my understanding that this organisation can draw on human resources from the United States where the Canaan Land organisation operates several of these facilities.

I suppose it was a matter of sheer coincidence that at the church I attend the sermon yesterday was delivered by the founder of this organisation. I had an opportunity to speak with this gentleman after the sermon. One of the things he told me was that in the United States the success rate of state institutions in this regard ranges between 2% and 6%, while at organisations such as Canaan Land success rate ranges up to 86%. Indeed, he mentioned in his sermon that there was at least one Caymanian at one of the institutions operated by Canaan Land in the United States and by all indications this young man is doing fine.

Several weeks ago I was invited by the Seventh-Day Adventist Congregation in West Bay to participate in their Youth Day exercises. I met another graduate of the Canaan Land effort, a Caymanian, who gave a testimony as to her experience prior to entering into the rehabilitation at Canaan Land, and after. I was most impressed.

One of the things she said, and one of the things which was highlighted yesterday, was that it is recognised that one criterion for success in these kinds of efforts has to be the development of some form of spiritual sense within the individual. Indeed, yesterday the founder said that is the greatest failure among those persons who attend state institutions.

My concern as a legislator goes beyond that, although these things certainly will have to be borne in mind and I place great credence in them. What I am also concerned about is the duplication of resources, particularly in a small country where, although it is recognised that rehabilitation efforts are something which we need, we are catering to the same audience.

Therefore, I have to call into question the efficacy and the necessity to operate competing institutions, particularly when the Canaan Land Foundation has resources that they can draw from, established in the United States in terms of programmes, personnel, in terms of people who have successfully passed through the programme and can serve to offer themselves as models and to offer testimony as to the effect of their programmes.

Significant too is that the Canaan Land Foundation in the Cayman Islands already has the land and has already started constructing physical facilities. Indeed, it would strike me that the Government must recognise what they are doing since the Government gave them the donation of about $40,000.

I would suggest that the Government, even at this stage, take a serious view and explore the possibilities of entering into a joint effort in this regard.

This is particularly significant because the Government, through the Minister in a report in the Caymanian Compass, of Tuesday, 31st October, 1995, is on record as saying that the start-up cost for the Government's centre is $1.5 million with an estimated annual operational cost of $476,123 per annum. Additionally, there is to be a $2.2 million expenditure. The Minister also announced the formation of a Drug Secretariat at a cost of $86,000 with an annual cost of $170,000 per annum.

In all, I think that the Minister indicated that over the next five years the Government was prepared to spend some $6.2 million on the drug rehabilitation effort. Not a paltry sum by any means.

I, therefore, posit that the Government and the Government's drug rehabilitation efforts in the Cayman Islands at this time might be more effectively served by some kind of joint venture. Joint ventures in these kinds of efforts are quite common.

It is understandable that if Government is to contribute to a foundation such as this it would have to make certain demands. Cursorily, I have spoken with at least one of the moving forces behind the Canaan Land Foundation efforts here, and the impression that I have been left with is that they would not be averse to providing the Government with whatever demands they made which were reasonable.

I think that I cannot, at this stage, say much more than that. I only implore the Government to think this over seriously since it would strike me that it would need much less than the amounts suggested by the Honourable Minister, were a joint effort with the Canaan Land Foundation entered into.

Secondly, we would already have the experience of the Canaan Land Foundation and could draw upon the resources of the foundation, not only the physical resources here, but also the personnel resources and their varied experiences from their various operations in the United States.

Importantly too, we could learn from the experiences of those Caymanian people who have already had the opportunity of going to Canaan Land and whom I understand at least one is preparing to be a counsellor and may even be able to come back here and offer help to our people.

I believe that it would be a sensible approach. It would certainly be an approach that could save the Government considerable finances. It may meet the expectations of both the Canaan Land Foundation and the Government.

So, by way of introduction, that is all I have to offer at this point.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to respond to Private Member's Motion No. 17/95, proposed by the Honourable First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

The Motion asks that Government explore the possibility of a joint effort in Drug Rehabilitation with the Canaan Land Foundation. I will begin by advising Honourable Members of this House that the Ministry for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation maintains open dialogue with the Board of the Canaan Land Foundation.

As the Honourable First Elected Member for Bodden Town said, this year alone (1995) the Ministry, with the approval of Government, budgeted $40,000 to the Foundation, which has already been released to the Board. We hope to do the same thing in 1996. Just a short time ago the Executive Council and this Government waived the duty on the importation of their second steel building.

The Canaan Land Foundation, by the participation of some of the Members, has been involved in the formulation of this Ministry's National Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation 1995—1999. This plan was tabled in the Legislative Assembly in September of this year. All Members of this Honourable House have been provided with a copy of the detailed plan, including the cost benefit analysis for each of the nine strategies.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town touched on the cost of some $6.2 million over the five year period, but that cost does not only affect the facilities that we offer, but it goes across the complete involvement of all of Government's departments, including Police, Drugs Task Force, the different provisions which have been recommended by almost 200 people involved with the plan, the sporting organisations. This is what that $6.2... as a matter of fact, a lot of that has already been developed, as we have seen in recent times.

Honourable Members may already be aware that through strategic planning my Ministry undertook to set clear directions for its Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation Programme to detail the cost of programme implementation over five years, and to gain support for the plan through the involvement of every sector of the resident population in these Cayman Islands.

Strategy number 5 proposed that: "We will guarantee treatment and rehabilitation services and facilities to meet the diverse needs of individuals."

A group of volunteers under the guidance of trained leaders, collectively known as the Action Team, considered what specific actions were required to achieve specific results necessary for the implementation of that particular strategy.

I am pleased to tell the House, and the Mover and Seconder of this Motion, that one of the members of this Action Team is the wife of the project manager of the Canaan Land Foundation. We had a lot of input into this and I will briefly touch on the recommendations of this Action Team.

It says: "Residential facilities for treatment and rehabilitation of substance abuse clients, as well as provisions of residential facilities for treatment and rehabilitation of adolescent substance abuse clients. For this specific result it was recommended that we should develop a cooperative agreement with an identified facility for placement of adolescent substance abusers, i.e., the Canaan Land Home."

This is recorded in our National Drug Plan.

I would just like to briefly touch on an area that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town spoke on, and that is covered in the Canaan Land idea of rehabilitation.

The Canaan Land Home of Grand Cayman, in its 1993 Business Profile, described itself as a Christian Residential Facility offering a one year programme for the rehabilitation of young men 14 years and older. This speaks of the clientele that Canaan Land will address. These are substance abusers who lack the life skills necessary to cope successfully with an increasingly complex society.

I understand that the Canaan Land Home of Grand Cayman is formally registered locally as a non-profit company. According to the profile, Canaan Land of Grand Cayman believes that the answers to all of life's questions and solutions to all of life's problems are to be found in a study of God's word and in developing a relationship with Him. As such, Canaan Land of Grand Cayman will require each of its prospective students to accept its Christ-centred programme. The student must also commit to a minimum one-year programme amongst other requirements.

It proposes to request the help of the Cayman Counselling Centre to evaluate prospective students and the financial plan is that the programme will be funded entirely by individual church, corporate and Governmental donations and subsidies. I have already touched on Government's contribution last year, and what is hoped for in 1996.

The cost of students referred by Government will be borne by Government and those students unable to contribute financially would be accepted free of cost. Currently, the cost of clients being referred overseas by Government for rehabilitation is approximately $16,335 (US) per person for the 30-day programme, including medical detoxification. A further cost of $200 per person per day applies to those clients who participate in the Halfway House Programme.

The Halfway House Programme allows clients to go out to work on community service during the day, and in the evenings participate in structured programmes for support. This allows the clients to be gradually prepared for their return to full responsibility of his/her life-style.

In 1995, records revealed that there were 80 new cases of chemical dependency with a total of 12 overseas referrals. There were 95 new cases in 1994. Historically, Government has funded 95% of the cases referred overseas on an advanced basis. It is projected that by the year 2000, there will be 122 new cases of chemical dependency identified. Clearly, then, demand exists, and will continue to exist for the immediate future, yet the needs of the chemically dependent are not being met by the presently available range of services and programmes.

For many chemically dependent individuals and their families, several factors play an important role in their choice of a suitable residential rehabilitation centre: costs, relapse rates, confidentiality, philosophy and the type of rehabilitation model. In Canaan Land's programme for 1993, they would be catering to a specific age group and a specific sex, namely, young men 14 years and over.

The Ministry for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation proposes through the Breakers Rehabilitation Centre to reduce the demand for, and consumer abuse of drugs in the Cayman Islands, as well as to enable chemically dependent individuals to achieve and maintain sobriety locally; then to re-integrate them back into society through a 30-day residential programme for both men and women 18 years of age and older.

I can tell you now what is being done at this stage for younger ones. They are being seen at the CIMI in West Bay and we have our counsellors go in there regularly to meet with them. So the problem is now being addressed.

The model of rehabilitation will be based on the 12 steps of Alcoholics Anonymous. Clients will be expected to adhere to these principles or seek rehabilitation elsewhere. For some clients it may be necessary to be admitted to the Halfway House Programme for further support before re-integrating them back into society. Patients are expected to pay for the services provided, and for those unable to pay a financial arrangement with Government will have to be agreed.

I believe that the services and programmes proposed for the Canaan Land Home of Grand Cayman and the Breakers Rehabilitation Centre are complementary to each other. Canaan Land will offer services to not only young men 14 years and older, but also young men who lack the life skills necessary to successfully cope with an increasingly complex society. The Breakers Rehabilitation Centre will provide services to both men and women 18 years and older who are substance abusers.

I would like to thank the Mover and Seconder for sharing their concerns on the Drug Rehabilitation Programme and ask for their continued support as we develop the programmes. I urge all of my colleagues to take a closer look at our National Drug Plan, see how they can get involved. It may not be totally perfect, but it has been developed by a few hundred of our Caymanian people who are very concerned about our children and the future of our beloved Cayman Islands. These people are very committed and have now accepted the responsibility to make a concerted effort to help reduce our drug problem.

On Wednesday night last week, my Ministry hosted an appreciation dinner for all those who worked so diligently and unselfishly on our Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation. I was extremely impressed by the huge cross section of people who had volunteered to help tackle this drug problem.

In closing, I must say that Government cannot support Private Member's Motion No. 17/95. Government already has open dialogue with the Canaan Land Foundation and proposes to maintain such dialogue and to continue to work with them wherever possible as the Ministry sees this as teamwork—Government doing its share. And we are not averse to any private group wanting to come in to help us with this. We look forward to more groups like Canaan Land assisting Government. This is the only way, by taking this partnership and going forward, that we can successfully make a serious impact on drug abuse in these islands.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As the Secunder of Private Member's Motion No. 17/95, Drug Rehabilitation Joint Effort, I certainly stand convinced that a joint effort between Government and an already existing organisation can best serve the drug rehabilitation process here in the Cayman Islands.

I think there is very little doubt in this country that we have a problem with drug abuse. Certainly much is said about it ever so frequently in the press and otherwise. It is spoken about from the pulpit in the churches and there are numerous families that are affected by it. The question is, What do we do about it?

I think it is a balancing act for most fortunately it is a much, higher percentage of people who do not abuse drugs than those who do. I have often thought about this particular condition in our society and I sometimes believe that more money is spent assisting the drug rehabilitation process than assisting those of our youth and our society on a whole towards achieving goals and objectives as the majority in the country really strive to do.

This Motion envisages not just a relationship as has been spoken about by the Minister for Drug Rehabilitation, although I think it is good to know that there is an open dialogue between the Government Ministry with responsibility for drug rehabilitation and the Canaan Land effort. Certainly, it should be as I believe both are interested in achieving similar goals.

I have had opportunity to speak with at least two of the main players in the Canaan Land effort. It strikes me that they must surely be believers in doing something about the drug abuse problem in this country and doing something about the drug rehabilitation effort because they were motivated to the point where they acquired land on which a building could be constructed. They have worked at acquiring money to construct the building and it is my understanding that this has reached a considerable distance in being completed.

I think it is laudable as well that the Government has contributed certain money directly to this effort. And I think that what is being suggested is that Government would continue to assist this effort with cash injection to the point that the Canaan Land Drug Rehabilitation Programme could really get started and begin to work the way it is envisaged.

Not that Government should simply hand out money to this project and have no say in what is involved therein. A joint effort is being asked for in this particular case, which would include the findings of the people who have been involved in developing a plan. The Minister referred to this earlier. The people of the Canaan Land Foundation who, as best I understand, do have certain expertise in this, and that this programme could be developed jointly to the extent that Government could achieve its overall goals and the Canaan Land programme could obtain its objectives.

The fact that the Canaan Land effort has a strongly religious based element is certainly not a negative to its success. I am aware that most of these, if not all of these drug rehabilitation programmes, including the one that is often referred to because of the way it has developed and the success it has had, the Hazelton Project, they have a strong religious based element in it. They may use different terminology, such as, one's Higher Power, and they may not specifically refer to any denomination. But the religious aspect of it is very much present.

From what I can understand through the people involved in this, it seems like there is really no true success without being able to achieve a recognition by the person who has a drug problem. And that he or she has to get into something deeper than the ordinary day-to-day self, recognising that the strength needed to deal with this comes from something more spiritual than they recognised before. So, I do not see a conflict in that particular effort.

One of the things that Government needs to be conscious of is the amount of money that the programme such as the Minister spoke about, is supposed to cost this country. I think $1.5 million initially, to get the place in Breakers, the Hawley Estate, brought up to a point where it can serve the purpose. Over the past few years I have heard varying costs associated with that project. But what I believe is that if it is estimated at $1.5 million it is likely to cost twice that amount to get it to where it is operational.

To the best of my understanding, there has also been considerable resistance in that community to the idea of having a rehab centre there. I think from the perspective of the Canaan Land project it is in an area which lends itself to development by cultivation, gardening, which is one of the things that is taught in these types of programmes and it gets one closer to nature in terms of the woods. So it does not have that type of negative in that regard.

There have also been statements recently about a Drugs Secretariat. I think, whether it is called a secretariat, or a unit, or if there are two or three professionals, the country needs people who are going to monitor, examine, and analyse our situation with drug abuse and rehabilitation being ever mindful that there may need to be changes, and so on. But, again, we are looking at costs that are going to become recurrent expenditure.

Much is said nowadays about working with the private sector. If it is the case that there is a private sector effort with regard to drug rehabilitation, it simply seems wise that the Government should undertake a joint effort which could be cost-saving to itself, achieve its end and assist with what is already in place.

This matter of drug rehabilitation and drug abuse is going to be with us for some time to come. I am not one who for one moment believes that by the year 2000, or in 10 years, there is not going to be any drug abuse or need for a drug rehab effort in this country. I am one who believes that there is going to be a need and it will have to be an ongoing concern in this country I dare say forever, unfortunately.

So, whatever position the Government should take in regard to drug rehabilitation needs to be one which can be weighed realistically to see what will be its economic impact to this country. We cannot afford to spend significant sums of money in this drug rehabilitation effort. In so doing, we may not have sufficient money to spend and assist that larger part of the population and young people who are really wanting something better than drug abuse, who may fall prey to it by lack of financial assistance.

I believe that the Resolve of this Motion asks for something which should be done and which can be done quite easily since Government is already involved in the effort with Canaan Land. Surely, it ought to fit with the many statements made by this Government about its commitment to joint efforts between Government and the private sector. In this case, the joint effort that is requested is with the Canaan Land foundation which is already in place.

So, Madam Speaker, I support this Motion and I would certainly recommend it to the Government for its attention and consideration.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, I would ask the Mover if he...

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would first like to thank His Excellency and Mrs. Owen and you, Madam Speaker, and Members of this Legislature for attending the National Education Conference today and for allowing us the extra time to do so this morning.

This Motion is one that is once again, geared at attempting to bring a motion on something that is already in process. As more and more of these Private Members' Motions are brought, we see very clearly that they are looking at good projects and good things that Government is doing, and then they bring a motion saying that we should do it in an effort to perhaps get the public to believe that this is an idea originating with them. In other words, this Motion, like some of the other ones, has been brought to get political mileage.

As the Honourable Minister stated, the Government is now helping the Canaan Land Foundation, the members of that foundation are on the Government's Planning Team, and there is obviously a very caring approach taken at present. Gone are the days where we had the previous Minister, Mr. Ezzard Miller, stand up in relation to drugs saying that he was writing off a generation of Caymanians. That is not this Government's approach and, indeed, it is not the approach of this House.

It was, perhaps, one of the most damaging statements that has ever been made. It is especially important that every young person lead normal lives and that they be in a world as free of crime and drugs and problems as possible. I understand that the main effort of the Canaan Land Foundation will be in assisting youngsters of the age of 14 and above. By all means this will fit in with the effort that Government is making.

We discussed in the Select Committee that we would double the penalty on drugs and crimes where adults committed these within the precincts of schools or where children were involved or used for purposes of drugs or crimes. We have to send a message to people in this country who push drugs, that it is not going to pay, and that they must especially keep away from the youth of this country. I hope that when the Penal Code comes here doubling the penalty for crimes committed either within the precincts or within 1,000 feet of schools or within any civic centre areas where there are social functions, or the using of juveniles in the commission of crimes, the penalty will be doubled. I hope that the support for that is the same as what appeared to be the full support in the Committee.

I have the utmost faith in the Honourable Minister, I believe that he is doing a very good job. He has taken over a Ministry part-way through a term and it is never easy dealing with a Ministry when you begin at the beginning of the term, much less when you take it up a year into the term. I support his efforts, I believe that his planning is sound. I know that his intentions are good and I believe that what he is doing will show very good results and that from his efforts Cayman will be much better off.

Added to that, I also believe that the many service clubs, the churches, foundations such as this, must all pull together in an effort to deal with drugs and crime in this country.

The Motion is really superfluous. This has been done, is being done and will continue to be carried out in a partnership between Government and the private sector. My only sadness is that if the two Opposition Members had pushed the partnership and joint effort between Government and private schools, rather than opposing private schools, but extended—

POINT OF ORDER (Misleading)

Mr. Roy Boddén: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order, First Elected Member for Boddén Town?

Mr. Roy Boddén: Yes, Madam Speaker, the Honourable gentleman speaking is once again imputing false motives and is misleading this House. I would challenge him to show where we stood in the way of any joint efforts between the Government and private schools.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, we are discussing the joint effort of drug rehabilitation which has nothing to do with private schools. I think that is out of order. The mere fact of imputing what others might think or do is incorrect. Please avoid that.

Thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, if I may just mention there was opposing of funding for private schools, that was all that I was referring to and it is a fact. But I will move off that subject as you have ruled.

So the Government, the service clubs, the churches and all of the private organisations such as CASA are in a very determined joint effort to see progress in the fight against drugs and the fight against crime in this country.

Government's policy has been, and will continue to be, that wherever possible there will be a joint front between the private sector and Government in this area.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.57 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.33 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Continuation of the debate on Private Member's Motion No. 17/95. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, fortunately and unfortunately sometimes for me I find that when it comes to Government Business and/or Private Members' Motions, I have not had the privilege of discussing a motion with either the proponents or with those who disagree. I stand here this afternoon speaking truthfully, by saying that as I have seen this motion, beside my own research, I have only known Government's position and the mover and second's positions simply by the contribution of the debate.

The Motion reads: "BE IT RESOLVED that Government explore the possibility of a joint effort in the Drug Rehabilitation with the Canaan Land Foundation. It is accepted by-and-large that misuse of drugs and addiction are becoming more widespread in our little island. There can be no such thing as over concern for the problem." I listened to the arguments put forward earlier and with your permission Madam Speaker I would like to quote a few areas from the Honourable Minister's response to the motion because I will use those few areas to assist in making the points I wish to make.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, that means that you are going to repeat what he has said?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That is why I asked your permission, Madam Speaker. If I am not allowed to do that I will have to—

The Speaker: I do not think so. You can refer to it but please, not repeat it again.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I will refer to it. Thank you.

The Minister in his reply has said that the Government already this year has given $40,000 to the Canaan Land Foundation. He also informed us that the National Strategic Plan for drug abuse prevention and rehabilitation involves some of the members of the foundation and in doing so, he said—Madam Speaker, if I may stop for a second to just make sure—am I allowed to quote any sections at all or not?

The Speaker: That would still be contravening Standing Orders.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, I just wanted to be clear.

The Minister in various sections has literally said to this honourable House that the concept of the Canaan Land Foundation and the specific areas that it hopes to attack in rehabilitation are certainly welcome by one and all, including the Government. The foundation has proposed to cater to adolescents from 14 years and up, and there is a notable difference in that what is being done by Government is from 18 years and up. So certainly it is obvious that there is a gap to be filled by the Canaan Land Foundation. Notwithstanding the fact that they are only going to be dealing in the foreseeable future with male residents and the Government intend to accommodate both gender which is good.

The Minister states that it is obvious that the demand does exist for the type of treatment which is intended to be provided by both parties, namely Government and Canaan Land Foundation and it will continue for quite sometime. He also states that he believes that the services and programmes proposed for Canaan Land Home and the Breakers Rehabilitation Centre are complementary to each other. He looks forward to more groups like Canaan Land assisting the Government.

It is obvious to me that the Government recognises the potential value of the Canaan Land Foundation and the home that is under construction at present. Madam Speaker, not being able to quote (and I appreciate what you have said) it is a bit difficult for me to express the points I intended to, I will try to cover them as best as I can. It is my view—

POINT OF ORDER (Clarification)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: On a Point of Order, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, it is purely for a clarification on debate. Am I understanding the ruling of the Chair correctly, that it is ruled 'repetition' if another Member is quoting from the Hansard and comment made thereon?

The Speaker: That is correct because what he is doing right now is speaking immediately after a member has spoken and he has the facility of having the Hansard which is normally not available. That is the point on which I am making the ruling.

If you are speaking on a point made by a member, you can do so but you cannot read extensively unless it was a Hansard from a few years back which would not have been in people's memories. What the Minister has said, is in recent memory and should not therefore be read extensively from.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, are you rising on another Point of Order?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: No, Madam Speaker. Just to ask a further clarification on that point. It would be permissible for a short quote to be specific as to what the Minister said if it was a—

The Speaker: Well, that is left to what you would call a short quote. So we are going to be specific about that.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: One sentence perhaps.

The Speaker: Well, if he can find something in one sentence. I doubt it very much.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Let us not split hairs anymore...

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I will continue. I hope to be able to make my points.

I was about to say that having listened to both sides of the argument it was fairly obvious to me that there is really not much of a difference in opinions being passed. I think in truth and in fact, wherever the Canaan Land Foundation can operate and be of some assistance within the country the Government appears to be totally receptive. Going a bit further and assuming that we all agree with the concept, then it is my view that while the Canaan Land project may vary in its approach and may also be a bit limited in its aspirations [in comparison with] what Government is proposing, it would behove the Government to be as involved as is reasonably possible with the Canaan Land project [while not letting it interfere with the progress of Government's programme].

Madam Speaker, I hold a view that it is important for Government not only to support such a project, but I think it is obvious that Government should have more resources, and with great respect, probably enhanced resources, than the Canaan Land project. I am just giving my limited knowledge of how it is. And with that in mind, Government certainly could ensure not only the viability of the Canaan Land project, but also the quality of the services being provided by being more involved.

I think in some portion of the Minister's delivery, he mentioned overlapping of the use of facilities whereby the proposal to request the help of the Cayman Counselling Centre to evaluate prospective students and the financial plan being one where the programme would be funded by individual church, corporate and Government donations and subsidies. He also mentioned the cost of student referred by Government would be borne by Government and those students enable to contribute financially would be accepted free of cost. So it is obvious that some of the services which are either now being or will be provided by the Government would be utilised back and forth by the Canaan Land Foundation. This certainly points to me to the possibility of a happy marriage.

Madam Speaker, in trying to be totally objective and truthful, I firmly believe that every one in his or her right mind in this country would want to take advantage of, and assist in whatever way possible to help with this demonic disease which is spreading among our people.

I have no qualms about who is who, who is to take credit, and who gets thanked. I simply would like to see positive results.

I believe that the Government in its wisdom almost having proven by the Minister's contribution, that there is already a relationship that has been developed between the two entities, should have no right reason not to accept the motion and what it ask for. Unless there is something wrong with my ability to comprehend, I do not see any reason behind the fact that there may be some thing already started by one situation and someone else asking for it to be formalised, should I say. I do not see why the two should conflict. It would always make sense to me that even if one is in motion and going from point A to point B, if one has the advantage of another insight in the same direction, it should always be good to add that— not necessarily to duplicate the thought process, but to enhance what one has by taking from whatever the other has which is not included in what one had originally. But it seems that the order of the day is not for that to happen. And yet we all say from both sides of the fence that we should be working more closely to get the country going in the same direction, rather than fighting over who is steering the ship. Frankly, it does not matter to me, once the direction is the right one.

In listening to the arguments, Madam Speaker, the Government has already given its position that it is not supporting the Motion. I do believe that there is merit to the thought of enhancing the relationship between the two entities. Maybe they have thought about it, but I have not heard it come out in any prior debate. I would recommend to the Government without holding Canaan Land Foundation and its ideals too much in check, certainly whatever professional facilities are available should also be made available to these people.

I hold a view, and I think they will not be offended, that while they have all the good reasons for wanting to do what they want to do, they may well be limited to professional resources and other areas. It is also possible that the converse exists: in some areas they may have some professional expertise which the Government may not at this time have access to. So the point I am making is that, if you draw from both areas, Government may well end up with not only a better concept, but with better end results.

I also heard one person mention social charitable organisations and the churches. Let me say this because I had a personal experience in this area with the Canaan Land Foundation. One of the great difficulties that Foundation has had from its inception, is that human nature being what it is, many caretakers of funds raised are not quite prepared to risk exposing those funds and not see the results before hand. While that is not necessarily the best way, it is human nature and some people are very conservative in that approach.

So I hold a view that once the Canaan Land Foundation becomes operational there certainly will be monetary and other contributions coming forward once it is seen as something that is real and working. I wish not to decide on whether that is the right or wrong way of thinking; the fact is I happen to know that is a way of thinking. So I am saying that if the Government can provide the assistance to help the Foundation to get going, I am certain that the financial burden of such an operation, and also Government's operation, will be accepted by the community at large as one that is the responsibility of all. I am sure that assistance would be forthcoming once this happens.

So I would urge the Government to continue the dialogue that is said to have been established and to try and set up a situation where both entities work hand in hand so that better results may be achieved. And even if it is the position at this time not to accept the motion, then if what I have asked for is achieved, the Motion in itself would have succeeded to bring more focus on this situation.

In setting aside the personalities, which we must be able to do, Madam Speaker, I think that it is in the interest of the country and it is the responsibility of us, as legislators, in this honourable House to do everything possible in our means to see programmes, such as the one we are discussing now, enhanced to their best potential in order to bring about the positive results we wish to see in the communities.

Thank you.

The Speaker: If no other Member wishes to speak, would the Mover exercise his right of reply.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I have a few points to make and I am going to begin by addressing those that I consider of a spurious nature before I resort to dealing with the more serious and sensible argument.

I remember when I was a student at Mico College many years ago, if someone uttered something that did not make any sense a saying by students was, 'If you had nothing constructive to say, you should have kept in your seat.' It is a pity that the Minister for Education is not a Miconian because he could sometimes save himself some embarrassment. With regard to his comment about the Opposition bringing the motion because we realise that the Government is already doing something and we are just bringing the motion to try to get credit.

Let me assure the Honourable Members of this House that nothing could be further from reality. What I would like to tell the Minister for Education to do when he is disposed, is to check the Order Book and see the kinds of questions and motions brought by the two Members of the Opposition and, if he cannot judge for himself, ask those who are capable of judging if there is anything trivial or cavalier about what we bring to this House.

The business of drug abuse prevention and rehabilitation, I can assure him, is a business that is close to our hearts. He may not know it living in his cloistered, sheltered, and rich world, but I certainly know it on the trenches of the youth of this country, on the football field and other areas where I meet them on a daily basis. If his cocoon does not allow him to expand beyond his cloistered and protected world so that he pokes fun and brings his cavalier attitude to everything, then I would say he is the loser and it is he who is out of touch and not the Members of the Opposition who bring this Motion and similar ones.

Madam Speaker, political mileage? That really does not matter to me. I know what I stand for, what my principles are, and I am going to continue to advocate and articulate them. The Motion is simple enough; it asks that the Government explore the possibilities of a joint venture effort in drug rehabilitation.

Listening to the argument put forward by those persons speaking on behalf of the Government, I have some serious questions and concerns, Madam Speaker. It seems to me that beginning with the Honourable Minister who replied, the Government has failed to make the connection that these people are dysfunctional; these people who fall prey to these substances are dysfunctional members in our society and for the concept of rehabilitation to be successful it must be in sync with what the society accepts as morally upright and morally correct. I interpret what they put forward as saying that the state's idea is of a greater significance and will have greater effect because we have chosen to ignore the spiritual aspect.

Madam Speaker, I made the point over and repeated that the successful programmes of organisations like the Canaan Land Foundation realise that the only way these dysfunctions can be obliterated is with the creation and development of a spiritual rehabilitation in the persons who come to these clinics and rehabilitation centres. That is why the records of the state-run institutions only have success rates varying between two and six per cent. Yet, these organisations with a religious and spiritual base have a success rate of 86 per cent.

Now, Madam Speaker, is the Government saying that they are Republican? For only in a Republic would this kind of ideology be put forward. Certainly. May I remind them that this country was built on Christian ethics and spiritual foundation. Are we abandoning that now to the American concept where they take prayers from schools and where the religious aspect is down played in any programme the state puts forward? I hear the Members of the National Team grunting, Madam Speaker. I must be hitting them.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [inaudible interjection]

[Pause]

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Hansards will show the Minister's comment that Canaan Land Foundation's programme being based as it is on the solution to life's problems resting in the word of God and that the students must submit to a one-year programme can only lead one to question whether the position put forward by the Government, means that were it not for this particular leaning they would have no objection.

I am saying that there can be no rehabilitation in these circumstances without a spiritual rebirth.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [laughter]

Mr. Roy Bodden: The evidence suggests that in cases where the programmes are not based upon this, the rate of recidivism is high, money is wasted, and people's lives are played with.

In order to be successful in these programmes we must have a concept of what is morally correct and we must inculcate and indoctrinate that concept into the people who come to these centres. Failure to do that is a failure of rehabilitation. This country was built up and is based on that kind of inculcation.

We have to be careful that we are not creating an organisation and an institution of permanence, that we are not admitting that we are defeated, and that we are overwhelmed by this problem. The creation of a secretariat; a secretariat conveys a sense of some permanence. The very creation of a secretariat is an admission that the problem is so extensive that it may never be completely alleviated.

There is an advantage in a joint effort in that an institution and an organisation like the Canaan Land Foundation can, with little disruption, adjust and realign itself depending on the results. The same is not so easy when the Government commits itself to an investment in infrastructure and budgets, and personnel that quite often have to be increased on an annual basis. We do not have to go far, Madam Speaker, no further than the CIMI (Cayman Islands Marine Institute) which started with $1 million and we have only two graduates. Are we creating another CIMI? Is that what we are doing? There is a grave danger in this and sensible people, a Government that was committed...

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: On a point of order, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, the Member is talking about $1 million spent on CIMI. Can the Member say where he gets these figures from?

The Speaker: Well, that is not a Point of Order.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Well, just for information, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town would you continue?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, one has to be careful that one is not creating a situation where one is trapped with a greater commitment each year to funds in which the results do not justifiably bear out the expenditure.

This business of drugs and its demonic presence in the country did not just spring up, Madam Speaker. It did not just spring up. It had its manifestation way back, no doubt because political directorates in the past did not pay as close attention to the social development as they could have paid. I hear people trying to heap blame on a former Member by saying that a statement was made about writing off a generation. But I wonder what about those people, who when they were an important part of the political directorate... [Interruption from across the floor]. Madam Speaker, I am not grinning. I am no Cheshire cat...

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [Interruption]

Mr. Roy Bodden: In my debate Ma'am, I am serious. I wonder about those people, who when they had the power in 1976 to 1984, did not do anything for sports; did not do anything for the social development; did not do anything for the development of these youth. The same people who say now, that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and myself are bringing these motions to get political mileage.

So, it strikes me that it behoves none of us to talk about anyone mentioning writing a generation off. This problem that we are faced with is our problem and if we are serious legislators, we would enter into the kind of effort that this motion is proposing. I am tired, Madam Speaker, of the National Team Government reinventing the wheel; if they were reinventing it with substantial improvement I would not say Nay.

You know Madam Speaker, the Opposition can only bring forward certain issues.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: No, you all can work too. You can work...

Mr. Roy Bodden: The records can show that those of us on this side work where we can work.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Talk, you can talk.

Mr. Roy Bodden: My record is eminent as far as working with young people in this country is concerned. And since the National Team Government is ignorant, I will just refresh their memory. I, Madam Speaker, single-handedly have been involved in the organisation and formation of a football club from 1970 and at this time I have one of the best organisations in the country; it is the model that the Cayman Islands Football Association is using for other clubs that enter the association. I continue to be involved on a daily basis with the youth to the point where I have taken them overseas on two occasions—

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [inaudible] ...what are you doing now? Bringing questions!

Mr. Roy Bodden: That is more than the irreverent person shouting, has done and is doing, Madam Speaker.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Take them overseas? I... [inaudible]

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I say that this is an issue that the Government is bound to consider whether now or later, because if not they are going to fail and they are going to have to resort to an effort like this.

In the final instance, Madam Speaker, I want to make mention of this point which is not a trivial point. Some years ago a motion was brought to this House, it was Motion No. 5/93. Let the Hansard show that this was a request for the Government to reconsider purchase of this proposed property in Breakers. The basis of that motion was that the people in this area, the people where this rehabilitation centre is supposed to be located, objected against it going there. They approached me as one of their representatives and they also approached the now Minister (under whose Ministry this rehabilitation centre falls and is being constructed).

On the occasion of that debate, this is what the Minister had to say, reading from the Hansard of that debate: "Thank you Madam Speaker, as a former resident of this area, it is my obligation to bring to this honourable House the concerns of some of the residents of the little town of Breakers. I am sure the Honourable Member understands these, I would like if he would address Government's stand on this, some of the problems that the people fear, the security of the place, the types of services that will be offered there whether it would be like a hospital, or whether facilities will be provided to the people in this area.

"As I have said, as soon as time permits, I would ask that the Honorable Member, please meet with the people of this area and go over their concerns whatever the results may be."

Such a meeting, Madam Speaker, never took place and the concerns remain—

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Yes, Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, I did have a meeting with the church group in Breakers and talked about—

The Speaker: Excuse me, that is not a Point of Order, Honourable Minister. If you would like an explanation after he is finished I can allow you to do that, but it is not a point of order.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: It was just a point of clarification, Ma'am.

The Speaker: You can do that after he is finished. I will allow you to do that. Please continue First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, the concerns of my constituents remain. These concerns could be alleviated, completely eliminated if the Government would seek to explore whether they could achieve their objectives by entering into a joint venture with the Canaan Land Foundation.

It goes further, the Honourable Minister voted with those of us who proposed Government reconsidering the purchase of this property. I would like to know what miracle has happened now, what magnetic line has been crossed over for the Honourable Minister to change his position.

Madam Speaker, I stand by the motion brought. I think it is sensible, I think it is reasonable, and I only have to say that those of us who supported the motion have done our honest duty to the country. We may not have the numbers to win, but we have argued truthfully and persuasively. I say that this problem in our country can best be addressed by this joint effort and I rest my case.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Minister for Health like to make his explanation now, before I put the question.

POINT OF EXPLANATION

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Just to briefly let the House know what I did and in regards to the last thing about the magnetic line that I crossed. I visited the Hazelton Foundation Centre in West Palm Beach. After seeing that and being convinced there was literally no danger to my people, I went at that time and talked with them about what I found and that I did not see any problem [with the centre being in Breakers]. That was the reason, Madam Speaker.

Thank you very much for your permission.

The Speaker: I shall put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 17/95: "BE IT RESOLVED that Government explore the possibility of a joint effort in the Drug Rehabilitation with the Canaan Land Foundation." Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May we have a division please, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: You certainly may. Madam Clerk, please take the division.

DIVISION NO. 18/95AYES: 3

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 14/95

NATIONAL MINIMUM WAGE BY CATEGORY

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 14/95—National Minimum Wage by Category. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I wish to move Private Member's Motion No. 14/95, National Minimum Wage by Category which reads:

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT national minimum wages, by category, be prescribed by Government, similar in form to those which Government prescribes for its Occupational Groups and Wage Scale in the annual Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure.”

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 14/95 has been moved and seconded and is now open for debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, this Motion is asking that Government take steps to prescribe minimum wage by category similar to what it does for its occupational group employees in the Civil Service. This motion has come about for the second time to be moved by myself, and seconded by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, due to the fact that there are in this country many complaints regarding the amount people receive in wages for the jobs they do.

Firstly, I would note the fact that Government, many years ago, had an ad hoc way of paying workers in the wage scale, as it is termed, or in vocation skills and semi-skills. The wage format that presently exists came about at the time of the advisor to Government, Mr. Bleasdale. There have been some changes of course, in the number of jobs that have been added to the various categories, but the format remains the same. Of course there have been differences also in the hourly wages.

There are two concepts in the matter of minimum wages. One is that there should be just one amount of money prescribed, meaning that a person cannot earn less than that prescribed amount. And there are those who say that is preferable. There is certainly much merit in having even that format. However, just to have one minimum wage means that a job which should be for argument sake, $7 per hour as a minimum wage may well attract say $3 which could be that prescribed by a national minimum wage—singly. The persons who were paying $3 to an individual for doing a $7 per hour job would not be breaking the Law.

To have minimum wages prescribed by categories, group together jobs which are similar in requirements; educationally, skills, safety levels, and in any given particular hardship as the case may be. I would like to cite an example as is shown in Appendix 1C of the Estimates for 1996. If we look in category A, the jobs that are grouped there is caretaker, messenger, porter, maid, watchman, cleaner, and assistant cook. In the line which shows the hourly wages there are three amounts; $4.68, $4.88, and $5.08. This is showing as far as Government is concerned, that any of the seven categories of workers could be employed and be paid any of the three amounts I have just cited. The very least in the amounts of hourly pay they could receive is $4.68.

If a person was paid the $4.88 or the $5.08, it would reflect among other things, the experience the person has, or their level of skill and they could be slotted in to one of those amounts. But what this particular format recognises is that that category of workers as listed should earn certain hourly wages and that there may be variance in the wages depending on what each individual may have in their own right to offer the employer.

If we look in category B, there again is a grouping of vocational workers or hourly paid workers. For example grouped in category B there are: groundsman, head caretaker, head cleaner, lab attendant, storeman, office attendant ii, cleaner, street cleaner, security guard ii, telephone operator, nursing attendant, and receptionist. Madam Speaker, again this category of workers (skilled and vocational) are grouped together because there are certain similarities in duties to be performed. The salaries attached to that category are $5.29, $5.51, and $5.73. Again it is recognised that a person might be brought in at any one of the three salaries depending on their experience, ability, and skill.

Within the employment of the Government of the Cayman Islands it is recognised that it is possible to group or classify certain types of jobs together and apply to them a certain minimum wage. The wages are supposed to reflect the value of the job in the workplace, the availability of those types of workers, the amount of skill it takes to do it and so the job is actually valued. So, job value is one of the important things taken into account here.

It is unfair to an individual employee who is clearly performing a job with a certain level of skill and responsibility which requires certain experience where that person should be making $6.00 or $7.00 and paid only, say, $4.00. When that happens it means that the person is not being paid for the value of the work he is doing.

There are those who will, of course, argue that the market forces decide that, and that you can get persons and pay them a lesser wage and that is the way the system works. What that does not recognise is the fact that each of those employees require, like all the rest of us, a certain amount of money to be able to live in this country.

Since this Motion has been tabled, it has prompted Government into its already-being-done mode, including an Open Line call to Radio Cayman. If I were to take some of the comments into account, there are certainly a number of people in this country thinking like I am on this subject. In fact, many people in this country have spoken to me about this particular state of affairs.

While I was listening to the programme (and I did not hear it all), callers quoting the Minister for Labour were not on the lower side of the scale. My general impression was that there are many people employed who feel they are not earning sufficient wages for the jobs they are doing.

There is only one way for the Government to bring about a situation where some standard can be applied and that is through the application of a minimum wage by category.

The situation in the Cayman Islands is such that if we take all three of these islands, their size would be the size of some country or province in other parts of the world. In fact, many counties would be bigger than these islands altogether, to say nothing at all of the population. In large, developed countries—take the United States, for example—different states may pay different wages. Things may be cheaper in some states. In other countries you have large wholesale depots where people can go and purchase hardware, clothing or food in bulk, thus taking advantage of being able to buy more cheaply than going to the supermarkets in those places where it might be higher. We have no such thing in the Cayman Islands.

The wealthiest of us to the poorest of us shop in the same supermarkets here in George Town, Grand Cayman and in Cayman Brac, at those same shops and superettes and so on. It is common ground, everybody meets there and everybody has to pay the same prices for the same goods. It goes without saying, that when one takes into account the various inescapable costs of living: electricity, telephone, the cost for medical care, the cost of children going to school, gas and oil for the car, a certain amount of money is necessary for the average person in this country to really live, although he may survive below what might be considered a reasonable average standard.

The main reason I argue that we find so many people now (particularly women who would have been housewives had they not been out there working), having to work two jobs is because the one job is not paying sufficient. So they work within 24 hours two jobs to earn what they would have earned on one.

Of course, we are talking about the occupational group and, unfortunately, the level of skill is certainly not on the level of an accountant and there are always variances in earnings. But if we even take the skilled and semi-skilled persons, we can still attach to the categories of jobs a fair minimum wage for the work activity required.

In the hotel industry I have heard it hundreds of times that the workers are making a good salary—that on the two-week pay period they took home $750, with tips. So they did! So it is hard to argue that tips are not considered money—it is. The difference is that the tips are made up from that extra money taken from customers (10% or 15% as the case may be) which is paid in addition to the basic wage. The basic wage in some instances is simply ridiculous and atrocious.

In Cayman Brac—and I have heard of instances here too—I know the basic wage to be at $1.75, $2.00, $2.20, $2.25, per hour. In an eight-hour day at $2.00 per hour that is $16.00 per day for our people working for eight hours. What can $16.00 buy? How do you pay electricity bill with that? Those families are often the largest, with many children. How do they survive unless they can earn wages that are reasonable for the job they are doing?

Of course, in paying what is reasonable, there is one enhancement which can be made to it, and that is to train the person in that particular skill or vocation so that by their performance and productivity they can enhance their employer's profit margin which is what the employer is looking for. The employer who is reasonable may enhance the wages.

This matter of wages in this country is a serious one. It is affecting hundreds, or a few thousand of our people. It is one thing being employed and it is one thing to work a full workday: what you carry home in wages is another thing. That is the complaint that I hear time and time again. I marvel quite often at how we as society boasts the highest per capita income in the Caribbean and boast of what we have, yet it seems as if many businesses simply feed on the ability of getting particular jobs done for the very least they can.

The complaints continue and the only way the Government can be in control to respond to the complaints of the people is through prescribing a means by which it can monitor and control and set standards based on realistic values for jobs.

It is not all that hard to find what would be a reasonable minimum wage by category. I hold in my hand the Appendix 1C out of the Estimates, and certainly Government is the largest single employer and Government has one. It would not necessarily suit another business, but it could be adjusted.

I suggest that one of the ways one could arrive at minimum wages by category, would be to take the wage sheet used by Government, say, in the construction industry or their association; take the one used in the Restaurant Association and all the various other employers' associations and strike an average. That would be one of the best indicators and one of the ways of arriving at it.

Of course, it can go into more detail in that there are available to the Government (if it should so choose), professionals who are able to look at our social condition and our work force and actually categorise persons much better than any of us here would ever claim to do. Or for that matter, much better than Government has set down here, and come up with a minimum wage by category. It needs to be done, Madam Speaker. It needs to be done to rectify the situation occurring in this country.

The situation where people are not earning sufficient money is hurting us socially. Families are being affected where the parents, and often a single parent, must work two jobs; the children are at home, often unsupervised—and the Devil finds work for idle hands, children get into problems.

Hurting this country as well is when employers, be whoever in whatever area, seek to hire non-Caymanians to do a job at a much lower wage than a Caymanian would. Where would those persons who work for those scanty wages live? Must they not seek out in our country areas where they can get for the least penny (like they are paid)? Most certainly. So, as the numbers swell, so do [the number] of those who have little.

The housing condition has reflected that type of situation. It is in that type of situation that crime stems from—out of sheer want. If we are to live up to the many [things we] boast about; how well off we are, it has to be time for the Government to act on bringing about changes in the workforce where all employees in this country know if they are messengers they fall within this category of workers and cannot be paid less than $6.68 per hour, like, for example, the minimum wage paid by Government.

Nursing attendants would know that no one could pay them, again using the example of the Government's wage scale, less than $5.29 per hour. Employers, as well, know when they sit down to plan their budget for any given year or any given expansion or, for that matter, any given reduction, how much they will save or how much it will cost them in terms of the wages they will have to pay if they want to stick strictly to the minimum wage by category.

This Motion is asking for an action that needs to be taken now. We are talking about social ills. We were talking only minutes ago about the matter of drug rehabilitation. Check to see how many of those persons are caught up in drug abuse or racketeering in drugs, and who come from those families who earn the least in the totem pole.

It is no good boasting about our per capita income and not living realistically with what is happening in this country socially. I certainly stand convinced that something needs to be done. It matters not that there will be no doubt unrealistic and stupid, ignorant scare tactics or statements made about Government undertaking or wanting to undertake [a minimum wage by category] and tell employers what they should pay. All of that Government needs to do. What they can do in truth and honesty is attempt to change the present economic position for the largest group of employees in this country who, in many instances (not necessarily all) are not earning sufficient money for the jobs they are doing.

If the employers in the hospitality industry are as they are now, taking extra money away from their customers to pay wages, why do they not let it reflect in the basic wage of those employees? Then there would be a difference. For if there were no gratuities included, and the employees in the hospitality industry must live only on the basic wage (and they cannot properly live on that), it goes without saying that they are not being paid enough.

I am not one who believes that those people in the lower wage-earning scales do not count their pennies. They are forced to do it, more so than those who earn more. I believe the time has come for this country as a whole to have the opportunity of benefiting from its Government taking steps in the direction of prescribing minimum—I stress the word MINIMUM—wage by category.

This recommendation works hand in hand with another Motion I brought a few days ago, which was not accepted by Government: that of training. The two go hand in hand. One hand is lost; I shall wait to see whether this hand will also be cut off.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 4.00 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.21 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 14/95.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Mover of the Resolution began by stating that since the Motion was tabled it motivated Government to have a call-in programme so that Government can say we are doing something. I could very well say that the Motion was only put in now that they know Government is doing something.

Roy Bodden: (Interjecting) What about 1993?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: You always live in the past! You go back to 1993!

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, please address your remarks to the Chair! You know that by now.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, that is true, but the Member likes to live in the past and I would not want to tell you to tell him to go back to the past.

The Speaker: You are now in the present. Please continue in the present, will you?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, this matter, I said back in 1993 that we were not going to rush in to set a minimum wage. I quote what I said in November, 1993. I said: "We are looking at the whole matter of a minimum wage and I am not rushing in just to say I have a minimum wage. That is going to be scrutinised properly and a lot of time spent on it."

That is a fact. That is what we have been doing as a Ministry. We appointed a committee and we are awaiting the results and the input from that committee. In the meantime we are gathering our own information. We had gotten to the stage where we needed to some input from the public and we felt that going on Radio Cayman and discussing the matter was a good way of getting public information.

I do not think that we are at any cross purposes as to the need for a minimum wage because I do know that there is a category of people who make less than what the Government's statistics say is necessary. I believe that in the hospitality sector there should be a minimum of $6.25 per hour. Government statistics say it takes that much for a certain category of people to live. When I say live, not to live in luxury, but to live with the very basic necessities of life.

I believe that the merchants (that is the wholesale, retail distribution sector) should also pay $6.25 per hour as a minimum. The construction sector, as I understand it from the two official contractor associations in the country, has prescribed $7.50 per hour. But we do know that while the Cayman Contractors Association (I cannot recall the title of the other one) prescribes this, there are people out there who are not within those associations who are paying much less. That is another kettle of fish to deal with.

We have said that from the Agricultural and Domestic sector workers, that this could be mutually agreed by the employers and the employees. That is one way of dealing with that category since that is a fickle sector to deal with.

I agree, and have agreed for a long time, that the cost of living is affecting many families in the country. Statistics tell us this. But we have to be careful because on implementing this minimum wage it impacts directly upon those same people. Immediately, and I believe the Mover mentioned this, we are going to hear from a sector that Government should not prescribe a certain wage. We will probably hear that McKeever Bush is a Communist or a Socialist. If the whole Legislative Assembly supports it, as I am hoping, then you might hear that they are Communist or Socialist too. That would be a new twist.

But we do not have any means in our free enterprise system of setting price controls of any kind. The minute you add a cost of a dollar or a cent on any business, they are going to recoup it. The only way they can get it back is to add to their prices. That is the fall out.

So these are the things that have to be balanced and they can put it up, we have no way to control that. I am aware of this and Members ought to know this: the one thing that I believe we must do is to set the minimum wage. I believe that we should set it as I have mentioned.

In the Government sector semi and unskilled labour will get an increase due to the raise that we have put forward for civil servants. If you look at the hourly group, semi and unskilled labour, the lowest in Category A, let us say, is $4.68. That would move to $5.10 for the lowest, and at $5.54 at the highest hourly wage in that category.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: Honourable Minister it is now 4.30 PM. I do not expect you to finish. Is it the wish of the House to adjourn now or to continue for a little longer?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, Members can do what they... I could probably wind up in 10 minutes, but I certainly cannot wind up in two or three minutes.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Boddin: May I respectfully move that we take the adjournment at this hour?

The Speaker: Is there a seconder for that?

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I beg to second that.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 00 AM WEDNESDAY, 22 NOVEMBER 1995.

WEDNESDAY
22 NOVEMBER, 1995
10.37 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Fourth Elected Member for George Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 258, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 258

No. 258: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to state what, if any, are the plans for the repairs of the basketball court at the George Hicks High School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The plans for the new Physical Education (PE) changing facility at George Hicks High School include the upgrading and expansion of the hard court areas at the school. The revised plans have been approved and the project is included in the 1996 capital budget.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Honourable Minister may not be in a position to answer, but nevertheless, I will ask if he is in a position to say when this might begin.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I cannot say. The economy is now so good that it is getting extremely difficult to get anyone to do any building because all of the building contractors are at a boom. It will be some time in this coming year.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Bearing in mind the answer the Minister just gave, I wonder if the Minister would undertake to see if the minor repairs which could actually get the basketball court operational might be effected before the entire project gets started. I do know that there are some minor repairs which could make it operational even if it is not up to scratch.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That sounds reasonable and sensible and, by all means, I will do so.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 259, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 259

No. 259: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to provide the enrolment statistics by class for the Red Bay and George Town Primary Schools.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The enrolment at the George Town Primary School and the Red Bay Primary School as at 14th November, 1995, is as follows:

George Town Primary School

Year	Classes	Enrolment	Average
2	4	75	19
2	3	52	17
3	3	60	20
4	2	47	24
5	2	39	20
6	4	74	19

Red Bay Primary School

Year	Classes	Enrolment	Average
1	2	67	34
2	2	60	30
3	2	61	31
4	2	58	29
5	2	53	27
6	2	50	25

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I noticed that with regard to the Red Bay Primary School, the first four classes average is around 30 students. May I ask the Honourable Minister what the pupil/teacher ratio is for these classes?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The pupil/teacher ratio for the first three is 34 for year 1, year 2 is 30, year 3 is 31.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say whether these sizes represent an increase from the inception of the school?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I really do not know, Madam Speaker, I will have to find that out. The question that was asked was for present statistics, not past.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say if, based on any studies that may have been done or any accepted norm, if the average student/teacher ratio that prevail in these statistics that have been provided is what is considered an acceptable average, or if there is any difference he may be able to point out.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Under the Standing Orders, that is an opinion. I do not know whether he wishes to express it, but it is an opinion that I really do not wish to...

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I really did not take that to be an expression of opinion. I thought it might have been something that you would be aware of.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, it has to be an opinion, he is asking me what is a satisfactory size, I believe that is what he is asking.

The Speaker: I would not deem that to be an expression of opinion, otherwise I would not have allowed the question.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Very well, Madam Speaker, I do not have the answer.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 260, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 260

No. 260: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture to provide the names and job descriptions of those persons holding responsibility in the Bureau of Women's Affairs.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I am the Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture:

Job Description: The Minister is responsible for the following Subjects, Departments and Sections, Statutory Authorities, Boards and Committees.

Subjects: Archives, arts and cultural activities, care and protection of young persons, community development, ecclesiastical matters, employment, ex-servicemen, history, historic and cultural sites and monuments (except Pedro Castle), industrial and workplace safety, labour matters, library services, low-cost housing, museums, probation, public assistance, refugees (welfare of), sewage, social security, social welfare, sports and recreation facilities, theatre, voluntary organisation, water, youth activities.

Departments and Sections: Cayman Islands National Archive, Cayman Islands National Museum, Human Resources, Public Library, Social Services, Sports.

Statutory Authorities, Boards and Committees...

[The First Elected Member for Bodden Town rose]

The Speaker: Excuse me, Honourable Minister, First Elected Member for Bodden Town, are you rising on a point or order?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

May I draw the Chair's attention to the fact that I asked for the job description of those persons who hold responsibility in the Bureau of Women's Affairs? Certainly, matters like sewerage, et cetera, could hardly be considered responsibilities in the Bureau of Women's Affairs.

The Speaker: I would have thought that all that was read by the Honourable Minister was well-known to other people and I had assumed that it would be those involved directly with the Bureau of Women's Affairs.

Would you go on to the second page, Honourable Minister?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. As you know, you can hardly assume things in this House at times. They did not say what they wanted. They said to provide the names and job descriptions of those with responsibility in the Bureau of Women's Affairs. Well, I am one of those persons, but I will go on to the next person who is Ms. Lucille Seymour, Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture:

Job Description: The Permanent Secretary in the Ministry is:

- 1) The Minister's senior advisor and is responsible to see that approved policy falling within the purview of the Ministry is implemented;
- 2) She is responsible for the efficiency of the organisation and staff of the Ministry Office;
- 3) Her duties are complementary to those of the Minister who, under the Constitution, must answer to the Legislative Assembly for all subjects of his Ministry;
- 4) She is responsible...

[The First Elected Member for Bodden Town rose]

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town, I think you made your point and I have accepted that point. Is there anything else?

POINT OF ORDER

(Repetition)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker. This is but a repetition. This still does not meet the requirements that I expected and which I think the question is begging. I wanted to find out who is responsible, for example, for abused spouses, these sorts of things.

I know these other things already.

The Speaker: Well, I would hope that the balance of the answer (which is very long) would cover that. I will ask the Honourable Minister to proceed.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: I am asking the Honourable Minister to proceed with the conclusion of his answer.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: I think I was down to the Permanent Secretary's responsibilities:

- 4) She is responsible for keeping the Minister promptly and fully informed of developments, matters requiring decision, and progress with policy implementation of all subject in her Ministry;
- 5) With reference to policy matters, she is responsible for ensuring that a question has been thoroughly examined in all its aspects at official level, including financial, personnel, legal and in relation to subjects which are relevant but the responsibility of other portfolios, before it is submitted to the Minister;
- 6) She is a channel of communication between the Minister and Government Departments, Statutory Boards and Authorities, the District Commissioner, commercial firms, organisations and societies and Minister of the public;
- 7) The Permanent Secretary is the Chairman of any co-ordinating Committee for the Ministry and, assisted by the advice of Heads of Departments within the Ministry, it is her special duty to co-ordinate their functions;
- 8) She is responsible for the preparation of annual estimates for the Ministry in accordance with the time-table laid down by the Financial Secretary and for referring them to the Minister prior to submission. She is the Accounting Officer for Ministry expenditure only;
- 9) She is responsible for preparing replies to, and supplementary information for, questions in the Legislative Assembly;

10) She is responsible for preparing speeches for her Minister for the introduction of Bills, Motions and replies to other business in the Legislative Assembly;

11) She is responsible for preparation of Executive Council papers for her Minister;

12) She is responsible for the timely dispatch of business within her Ministry;

13) She is responsible for ensuring that all decisions by her Minister are properly recorded;

14) She is responsible for the recording of minutes of meetings concerning her Minister's Ministry;

15) She is responsible for proper organisation of the office procedure within her Ministry;

16) She is primarily responsible for the training programme within the Ministry and Departments therein in consultation with the Permanent Secretary (Personnel) and the Training Officer;

17) She is responsible for ensuring that suitable publicity is given to policies, achievements, decisions and legislation affecting the Ministry after clearance in matters of importance with her Minister;

18) She is responsible for briefing her Minister on the suggested line to take in interviews or discussions on Ministry topics and for furnishing him with the relevant papers.

 Clerical Officer

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, can the Honourable Minister say whether the organisational chart is complete, that is, whether the officers noted here are the complement of persons in this bureau?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The answer is that the persons I named in the organisational chart and those given the main responsibilities are the only persons we have now working in his capacity.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I noticed that there is an absence of women from the broader society. Can the Honourable Minister say why the complement consists of persons exclusively involved in the Government sector and why no women from the broader community hold any responsibility?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the Member has been in this House going on seven years, he ought to know that this is the Ministry I am talking about, the staff, and the staff are civil servants. His question was to provide the names and job descriptions of those persons holding responsibility in the bureau of Women's Affairs. That is the Ministry's responsibility at present.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is the Honourable Minister saying, then, that it is his philosophy that responsibility must be exclusively confined to the civil service sector in this bureau?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It seems that the Member is going on to something else, but if he wanted that he should have asked it at the beginning.

There is the Ministry responsible, and the persons I named out with all of their responsibilities. Then there is an advisory council with many persons on it.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister tell us how long this Higher Executive Officer's position has been filled and what action has been taken since she has taken up her position in setting up the bureau?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Higher Executive Officer came to our Ministry in September. During that time she has been working within the Ministry to formulate the objectives and outline programmes for the year on the policy. We did form a council which consists of many prominent persons in the community which I believe will, and can, make a good contribution to the advisory council.

But, if I did not cover all of the answer, I could well go on to give the objectives which have been formulated by the Permanent Secretary and the Officer in charge of Women's Affairs, if necessary.

The Speaker: At this time it is necessary to suspend Standing Orders if we are to continue with questions.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) & (8)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the suspension of the relevant Standing Order in order to continue question time.

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder for that?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Orders be suspended in order to continue with Question Time.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Orders are accordingly suspended. We can proceed with Questions.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED.

SUPPLEMENTARIES CONTINUED

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Will the Honourable Minister be able to describe to us the terms of reference of the advisory council he just mentioned in the last portion of his answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The terms of reference for the Council are being worked on by the steering committee that has been appointed.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
Would the Honourable Minister undertake to provide those terms of reference in writing?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
Yes, we intend to have a full public discussion. I believe that the steering committee would be very happy to assist the Ministry with that. We are going public with it.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: At best, the job descriptions given here are generalised. While they touch on the matter of women's affairs, is it the case that there is no specific job description with clear responsibilities and duties stated for the subject of women's affairs?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
I do not know how much clearer I can be, Madam Speaker. I have given him everything that exists in the Ministry relating to the lady in charge, the PS and everyone else who is in charge. It is all in that answer, it is for them to find it.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 261, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 261

No. 261: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to provide a schedule of road repair works to be undertaken including type of repairs to be done and cost/estimate per job.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It is impossible for me to stand on the shoulders of the past and peer into the future to determine the schedule of road repairs to be done and the costs. However, if the Member is referring to calendar year 1996, the answer is available in his copy of the Estimates already presented to this honourable House by the Honourable Financial Secretary.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
Common sense should have told the Honourable Minister that that was what was being asked.
Madam Speaker, I would like to ask the Honourable Minister what the priority is for this mentioned schedule?

The Speaker: May I just say that in the future I am asking all Members, whether Ministers or persons asking questions to refrain from making unnecessary remarks.
The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, if the Member would like a sensible answer, I would like for him to give dates on his questions because I cannot give a sensible answer if he does not ask about a specific time.

The Speaker: My last statement referred to both question and answer, please.
The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker, the date is 1996, this financial year coming.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.
I can say no more to that than I have said. It is in the Budget and I was not prepared for anything further than what I have said.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 262, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 262

No. 262: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation: a) What health services could not be delivered at the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital which was stopped; and b) Could the Minister table any documents in support of his reply.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Members of this Honourable House and the general public will recall that there were two serious weaknesses with the Hortor Memorial Project that led the majority of the Backbenchers in the Legislative Assembly and, eventually the electorate, to vote against its going ahead. These weaknesses were the location in the swamp and the fact that it was to be a split site operation. In November 1992 Caymanians wisely gave the National Team the mandate to provide instead a properly planned, sensibly funded new health care facility.

It was claimed at the time by the previous government that the country was supposedly going to get a new hospital for $17,245,693 (including professional fees). Little, if anything, was said about the fact that a further $10,631,000 was to be spent on upgrading the George Town site to convert it into a centre for (and I quote): "... Out Patient, Clinical and Ambulant Care, Public Health and related services." [Source: Complementary Report to Master Facilities Plan George Town Hospital—June 1992]

In other words, there was to be a total expenditure of $27,876,693 on TWO—I repeat TWO sites—in order to have a complete health care facility offering what the new Cayman Islands Health Services complex will offer on one site.

The Hortor project was purely and simply an "inpatient facility" and indeed is called that on page 6, and page 3, of the February 1992 Master Facilities Development Plan. That is why it was necessary to upgrade the George Town site as I have mentioned already.

One of the strange things about the Hortor Project was that although certain services were not to be available there, others were to be duplicated, that is, provided by Hortor and at the George Town Hospital site. For example: Pharmacy, Laboratory, Radiology, Physiotherapy, Dietary, Administration (personnel, finance), Medical Records, Plant Operations and Maintenance, Housekeeping, Security.

Laundry was to be done at the existing George Town site and moved back and forth—at a cost of course.

The following services would not have been provided at the Hortor site: General Practice/Family Practice and Specialist Clinics, Public Health Services, Eye Care Services, Dental Services, Outpatient Mental Health Services, Hospice Services (Hospital care for the terminally ill), Geriatric Services (Hospital care for the elderly), Ambulatory Surgery, Hyperbaric Chamber.

So, on the one hand we have duplication of services at Hortor and, on the other hand, inadequate services also at Hortor. The duplication would have involved the expenditure of unnecessary funds; the inadequacies were to be addressed at the George Town site. The development of this site is detailed in two documents: a) Master Facilities Development Plan—Report for George Town Hospital—Grand Cayman; b) Master Facilities Development Plan—Complementary Report for George Town Hospital—Grand Cayman.

The Complementary Report gives the probable cost of the development as $10,631,000.

On 18th August, 1992, the then Chief Executive Officer of the Health Services Authority, advised by facsimile the Executive Engineer of the Public Works Department that he accepted the 1992 Master Facilities Development Plan, including the Complementary Report, which he mistakenly thought Ellerbe Beckett had submitted when in fact they were produced by their local consultants Chalmers Gibbs Martin Joseph. The former Chief Executive Officer's exact words were and I quote: "Please be advised that we accept the proposal regarding additional fees for the re-design of the Faith Hospital addition", and to continue: "We also accept the Master Plan document received from Ellerbe Beckett yesterday (that is, 17 August, 1992) and confirm their completion of the contract in relation to the George Town and Faith Hospital Master Plans etc."

To table the two Master Facilities Plan documents referred to in this answer would involve the expense of photocopying over 1,400 sheets of paper. With your permission, Madam Speaker, I would prefer instead to provide the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman with a copy of both documents so that he may verify what I have said. I would also be happy to provide any other Honourable Member with a copy if they request one.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on page 2 of the reply, the Minister stated that the services of dietary, which would include kitchen would be duplicated at the Dr. Hortor Memorial site and the George Town Hospital site. The House has been previously told that there was no provision for dietary services at the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital.

Could the Honourable Minister comment on that?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, the first document that I saw did not reflect that, but afterwards it was pointed out that it was at both places.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would it be correct that the Minister is saying that the very same care which was envisaged by the consultants and the last Government for use of the present site, is being worked on now in the old site with additions being on that present site?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, I am pleased to say that the project is now out to the contractors. It has been out to tender and we hope to soon get a response from the contractors. This is a complete development of the entire site including all of the facilities and specialities I have noted on page 2 that would have been on the two sites.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Is it the case according to the answer given that the inpatient facility with the rooms (and all else that was there) is possible to be built according to the consultants on the present site in the space and without removal of adjoining buildings and so on that are owned by Government, such as the Lighthouse School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: We have no intentions of removing the facility for the Lighthouse School. As a matter of fact, I think earlier in this sitting it was mentioned that that would be left there.

The space that is available has been looked at in great detail by the consultants and is being built and designed for future expansion. It will be constructed in a manner where there will be space for expansion on the MRCU site.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Member confirm that the intention of the use for the present George Town Hospital will in effect be a clinic for this district with some additional services such as the eye care services for which there is a separate building and no more.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This is what was put forward in the complimentary report, but thank God all of these services will be included in the development of the new complex.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 263, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 263

No. 263: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if the total of $6,907,252 for overseas medical expenses as of 31st December, 1993 is recoverable and, if so, what progress has been made in doing so.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: According to the document entitled, 'Report of the Accountant General and Accounts of the Government 1993', between the years 1988 and 1992, a total of $7,279,447 in advances for overseas medical expenses accumulated. Up to 31st, December 1993, $372,195 was repaid leaving the total of $6,907,252 as the balance at the end of 1993.

In the Accountant General's Report for 1994, repayment received to December 1994 amounted to $659,673, leaving the outstanding balance at $6,619,774 at the end of 1994. From January 1995 to September 1995, the sum repaid was $225,998.26 which would suggest a balance at the end of September 1995 of $6,393,775.74.

The outstanding balance is recoverable and repayments have been made, but, as we all know, progress is slow as there still exists in the minds of some of our people the belief that Government can and should pay these costs. This is a most unfortunate misconception that has been allowed to develop and we are vigorously trying to remind people of their financial obligations to Government incurred through overseas' medical assistance. Statements have been and will continue to be mailed out to people and every effort will be made to recover balances that are due.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say if there is in existence any type of written contractual agreement between people and the Government which would cover the amount of $6.3 million outstanding, and if these documents have any schedule of payments over a period of time.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I would have to check prior to 1993, but the procedure now is that there is a promissory note signed by the people with two sureties stating that they will pay these funds. We are trying to get this expanded to be a legal document which can be defended.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Is the contractual agreement in a form that Government could legally require persons to pay the amount which Government has spent on their behalf or those who might be assuming the responsibility ties for them?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, I would have to refer this to the Attorney General's office for discussion to see if it could be defended in court. But this is one of the efforts that we are now doing in the Ministry to make sure that this is addressed in the future.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Has the Minister found that since the Health Authority was disbanded and made a department under Central Government that the unfortunate misconception that he referred to in his answer in the minds of people, that Government should and can pay for their health services, has increased?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, I could not honestly give a response to that, but I think we all know how some of our Caymanians are in regards to paying their bills. Once Government has undertaken to try to help these people, many of them who are able to bear the financial obligation should give Government a break and try to repay it.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 264, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 264

No. 264: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to give the amount spent on overseas medical expenses since January 1994 to date.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: The amount spent on overseas' medical between January 1994 and 31 October 1995 was C$8,404,795.16.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Minister say if the figure of $8.4 million is included in any of the repayments as previously stated, or is the $2 million additional for this year, as such?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, the payments would have continued, but these were... and I can give the breakdown for 1994. Total expenditure from January 1994 to December 1994 was $5,133,592.62. Expenditure for exempt patients was $2,250,401.80. Advance for non-entitled patients (those who are not civil servants, veterans, or those entitled), was $2,883,190.82.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In light of the Minister's reply which is very forthright, which I appreciate, is there any consideration being given to bringing about a situation where somehow the entitled persons, whom I gather are the civil servants referred to there, for them to be covered by insurance so that insurance could defray some of these costs?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

That is a good observation. As Members of the House know, we are in the final stages, but I plan in this sitting to make a statement in regard to this. I hope to also lay a white paper on the insurance programme later on in the sitting of this House.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 265, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 265

No. 265: Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture what are the plans for Veterans' pensions and when will they start receiving it.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Because the National Team Government recognises the value of the service given by veterans, assistance will be given to Caymanian ex-servicemen for their widows which will be starting at the end of this month.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Minister say whether this will be paid monthly, quarterly or annually?

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This will be a monthly payment, as I said, beginning the end of this month, retroactive to September of this year.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if the figure to be given out to these veterans will be the same for all?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Madam Speaker, it will be for all.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Can the Honourable Minister say whether he has any knowledge of some of the senior veterans who would prefer getting theirs in a lump sum?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I did have some representation from certain people in that regard. Government finds it impossible to pay a lump sum figure. We can pay a monthly figure of $200 retroactive to September—they will receive three months' pension at one time.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Minister be able to say if there are any veterans who have applied for this assistance who have not qualified for it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: We, in conjunction with the Veterans Association, have developed a list. We are working from that list. They all seem to be qualified, those alive, and of course those with widows. We will be paying to widowers as well.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member will not be present this afternoon. He is leaving to go overseas. I also note that the two Members for Bodden Town will be absent as the Governor is visiting Bodden Town this afternoon.

Statements by Members of the Government. A Statement by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

STATEMENTS BY MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

TRAINING OF CAYMANIANS

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

For years there has been much concern expressed about the absence of consistent training policies and programmes and career development paths for willing and able Caymanian human resources. In fact, in most general elections, including 1992, most candidates discussed this issue and included it in their manifesto. Calls have also been made in this honourable House, and in public forums and the media, for a revamping of the existing system dealing with training and work permits.

It is a well-known fact that this Government is concerned about the training and long-range career development of able and willing Caymanians, as a means of fostering sustainable economic development and continued labour tranquillity. The articulation of well-defined and workable human resource development policies and strategies are essential tools for achieving these important objectives.

As the House should be aware, Government's policy on manpower development and training supports the Caymanianisation of positions within the public and private sectors whenever there are competent Caymanians to fill these positions. The policy further requires that adequate training programmes become commonplace in order to ensure that Caymanians are able to fill responsible positions, consistent with reasonable career paths and succession planning.

After much preliminary work by the staff in my Ministry, including a review of all of the volumes of the Manpower Demand Survey Report of 1990, as well as reviewing literature and reports from other countries and organisations (which had been collected and requested by my Ministry over the years), Government decided that it was then timely to refer the matter to an advisory committee.

In order to fully examine this policy for implementation, Executive Council appointed an advisory committee in July 1994, and my Ministry developed broad terms of reference to guide the Committee in its deliberations. The Committee (the Manpower Development Advisory Committee), is comprised of 20 members representing a broad cross-section of knowledge and expertise from the private and public sectors. The terms of reference of the Committee, which were previously provided to this honourable House in an answer to a Parliamentary Question, guided the Committee in its deliberations, analysis, fact-finding, and consultation with the private sector.

In order to underscore the democratic and consultative method which the Committee employed in carrying out its work, and to demonstrate that the Committee did not simply rubber-stamp any pre-conceived notion of anyone, I wish to take some time to outline the sequence of the Committee's work in coming up with its report to Government.

Madam Speaker, it appears that some individuals have received and have been circulating a copy of the confidential report of the Committee, and have been mischievous in making wild assumptions and employing scare tactics concerning Government's intentions in the area of human resource development and training. I am making this statement today to try to put this matter in its proper perspective.

SEQUENCE LEADING TO PREPARATION OF COMMITTEE'S DRAFT REPORT

After the establishment of the Committee was approved by Executive Council in July 1994, members were appointed and meetings commenced. Meetings of the Committee were held on: 20th October 1994, 8th November, 11th January 1995, and 14th February.

At the 14th February meeting, the Committee agreed to establish 4 small sub-committees from its full membership. These four smaller groups would allow for better and more detailed analysis of their tasks, in accordance with the terms of reference. The four sub-committees and the Chairmen of each were:

1. Assessment of current situation—Mr. Leonard Dilbert (then Permanent Secretary in the Ministry);
2. Examination of existing systems—Mr. Daniel Scott;
3. Consultation and fact finding—Mr. Sam Basdeo;
4. Institutional and regulatory strengthening—Hon. McKeeva Bush (Chairman).

These sub-committees became operational and served as Action Teams; the sub-committees and individual members of each provided information and feedback to the Ministry for the preparation of the draft report, which had also commenced in tandem with the establishment of the sub-committees.

After the sub-committees finished their work and the draft report was prepared, the entire Committee then reconvened to examine this draft report.

Meetings were held on: 30th May, 5th June, 8th June, 13th June, 22nd June, and 27th June. These meetings considered the draft report to Executive Council, which was dispatched under confidential cover to all Members of 19th May.

At these meetings from 30th May to 27th June, each paragraph and section of the draft report was discussed in detail; all input carefully noted and changes made when there was a majority of Members in favour of changes or amendments, or where there was serious concern expressed.

After each meeting, minutes as well as extracts of the draft report showing the changes were sent to all Members, including those who did not attend, so as to keep everyone updated on the review process and to verify that the changes were acceptable to all Members. In some cases further changes were made at successive meetings.

In the case of all meetings of the committee or its sub-committees, written notices were dispatched in advance, and there were telephone reminders of the meeting on at least the day of the meeting.

FACT-FINDING AND CONSULTATION

The Committee undertook a survey of private sector employers, through their respective associations, during the period 15th February to 15th March 1995; approximately 850 survey forms were dispatched, including 550 to the Chamber of Commerce which did not send the survey out to its Members. The purpose of the survey was to broaden the consultative outreach, and to gather information on existing policies and practices regarding the training and career development of their Caymanian employees. While only a small percentage of the survey forms were returned, there was quality feedback received from some members of the following associations: Bankers Association; Contractors; Medical and Dental Society; Real Estate Brokers; Insurance Managers; Architects, Surveyors and Engineers; Business and Professional Women's; Watersports Operators; Hotel and Condominium; and the Accountants Society.

The findings of this 1995 survey were generally consistent with the 1990 Manpower Demand Survey. Several key areas were confirmed by the similarities in the findings of both survey and this underscored the need to correct these deficiencies as a matter of priority.

THE CURRENT STATUS OF THE REPORT ON MANPOWER DEVELOPMENT

Madam Speaker, the report of the Committee was presented to Executive Council in July, through my Ministry; it was formally considered by Executive Council in September 1995. As this House is aware, I made recommendations to this House in September, which confirmed the areas which Government felt could be accepted at this time as Government's policy.

This House will recall that when I tabled that document, I said that Government would establish a small committee which would review the recommendations in detail, and in consultation with the private sector would formulate an implementation plan and schedule. The over-riding principle that would guide Government's deliberations was that partnership between Government and the private sector is absolutely essential. Government fully recognises that no significant dent can be made in the "skills gap" or in upward mobility of Caymanians without the full collaboration and support of the private sector. Government feels that if a proper training environment is established that it can pay for itself in the long term through a more qualified, skilled and productive work force.

The subjects of training and human resource development are of strategic importance to the continued stable economic developments and tranquil labour relations of this country. No longer can we continue to address this strategic interest with Band-Aid solutions; time is of the essence to deal with this challenge in a comprehensive, equitable and responsible manner.

Other progressive countries have also seen the need for this and have established or strengthened their regulatory or support systems to deal with this important national interest. For example, in Bermuda there is the Apprenticeship and Training Act of 1971 that is soon to be replaced with new training legislation. Germany, Australia and Japan also have training legislation and well structured programmes. The United States of America, has a manpower development and training programme which was established under the Manpower Development and Training Act of 1962, and is now part of their Labour Code.

I trust that this Government and future governments will not defer this important matter any longer, and will not apologise for far-sighted decisions which, in this case, will only result in making this country more prosperous and more able to compete in the global marketplace.

It is therefore in the interest of everyone—employers, employees and Government as well, that we view training and human resource development not as a burden or an unnecessary cost, but instead as an investment and something which is crucial if we are to continue to enjoy the Cayman Islands as the best place in which to live and to conduct business. If we do the opposite and, by our actions or insinuations, cause this worthwhile effort to be scuttled, then I am afraid of the long-term consequences; in the very least, such neglect will ensure that this and future generations will be the losers.

I am appealing to the private sector employer organisations to establish or re-invigorate their training committees to conduct such initiatives as conducting needs assessments to identify skill gaps, introduce specific training programmes and courses to help Caymanians to acquire these skills, and to monitor the performance and upward mobility of the staff members who have the urge to move forward.

It is often quite easy to criticise Government when it tries to put something positive in place, but I would like to see alternatives and initiatives being proposed by the private sector and not only the criticisms and objections to Manpower Development.

As a small progressive country, we need to foster an environment which engages the commitment of employers, employees, associations and agencies, where all parties accept training through life and make it a reality. If we all work together, we can succeed.

Thank you, Madam Speaker, and I hope that this statement puts to rest those malicious and unfounded allegations being pushed in this country by those people who only want to keep down a working force that needs to be trained.

The Speaker: At this time I propose to suspend proceedings until 2.15 PM, but until I do that, a paper was circulated to Members. I had hoped to have an explanatory note typed in readiness for this, but that does not seem to be possible. I would like to have a discussion with Members at 2.00 PM in the Committee room, all Members please, for an informal discussion and then the House will resume at 2.15.

Proceedings are accordingly suspended.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.49 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.26 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture, continuing with the debate on Private Member's Motion No. 14/95.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 14/95

NATIONAL MINIMUM WAGE BY CATEGORY

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, when we took the adjournment on Monday afternoon, I was saying that the cost of living in the Cayman Islands is indeed already very high for all of us. If those of us who are making a decent salary find it hard (at times), how much more would those people who are making less than $1,000 per month be in need?

Based on the government statistics an average household in the Cayman Islands needs $1,176 per month in order to cover the basic needs. In 1994, for example the average monthly household expenditure on a basket of basic goods, that is, staple foods, clothing, mortgage or rent, utilities, toiletries, school expenses, etcetera, was $1,076 and approximately $700 per individual. This is what they needed to live on in this country, but also according to a survey Government statistics in March of this year it was discovered that there are over 1,000 Caymanians who are earning less than $833 per month.

We do know that there are hotels paying less than $4 per hour using gratuities to bring up wages to less than $5 per hour in some areas and less than $4 per hour in others. This is ridiculous, Madam Speaker. It would not be so bad if all the hotels were paying the gratuities, but we do know that this is not happening in this country. Madam Speaker, what kind of country are we building? We are just now talking about nation building. Is it conducive to nation building for working people to be living below poverty line? Recently, I had a pow wow, brief meeting with the Chamber of Commerce representatives and I had some preliminary notice that they cannot support the minimum wage that should be [implemented] in this country which is $1,000 per month. Even that is living below what the Government's statistics say should be the salary: $1,076 per month. They say they cannot support it. They cannot support $6.25 per hour for a basic wage of $1,000 per month. They also gave me notice that hotels will not be able to pay the $6.25 per hour.

While Government has to be reasonable, we cannot ask someone who is making less than $833 per month to be reasonable when it takes over $1,100 per month for him or her or a family to live on. Reason gets thrown out of the door, Madam Speaker, because when people cannot meet their commitments they go running to someone, either the representatives in this House or they will steal.

It is time that people like the members of the Chamber of Commerce understand that gone are the days of slavery. But the truth is they can get every work permit they need; that is the problem. If that were not the case and Government—and I am saying Government, because I hold Government responsible including all of us—were doing the job we should be doing, the Chamber of Commerce would not be able to be as strong as they are. They would not be able to get up in every nook and cranny in this country and insult Ministers and Members of this House and do as they please.

We have in the wholesale and retail industry, 317 Caymanians making less than $833 per month. Hotels and Condominiums, 155 persons making less than $833 per month. Business Services which I understand... Madam Speaker, I do not know quite what all of that is, but there are some in the business services according to statistics, 104 persons making less than $833 per month. Public Advertising, 21 employees making less than $833 per month. In the construction industry there are 76 Caymanians making less than $833 per month.

I said on Monday that the two main contractors association pay a minimum of $7.50 per hour. These would be what I call scattered construction people around the place who can work on permits, I guess, and pay employees that kind of money. And of course, the poor old Caymanian who they say does not want to work, for him to take a job at times—76 of them are being paid $833 per month. That is the kind of situation that exists in this country!

We can boast about all that we have in this country and all that has been created, and there are many people who have worked hard to build this country. It is not only the business people in George Town that have worked hard to build this country. The main people in this country who have built it are not getting anything out of it. That is the problem in this country.

The Chamber of Commerce and all the rest of those who ban together to kill anything that this Ministry puts forward will do and say things to protect themselves. Greed, greed, Madam Speaker! The problem I see in this country today is greed! More and more and still more of the almighty dollar! There are groups and individuals who care very little about the working man in this country. From what I can see, they want the poor to be poorer and by the looks of it, that is what will happen if we do not take a stand as Members of this House. But I will address the Members of this House.

I will say this, if you do not stand up, if you expect McKeeva Bush to stand up here in this little corner and take all the ridicule, the name-calling and you as Members go out there and stab me in my back and not support me, then how am I going to get anything done? How am I going to get anything done, Madam Speaker?

I hope and pray that Members in this House will support us when we move forward with these things because it is the people of the Cayman Islands (over 1000 of them), you know Madam Speaker, I was not going to give the statistics, but the truth is that there are 2,266 non-Caymanians who are making less than $833 per month. You tell me what that is going to do to the social infrastructure in this country? That is what I want to find out from Members in this House.

You know what is going to happen, Madam Speaker, and is already happening, crime and more crimes and then it will not be of any use for this honourable House passing an Estimate for $200 million because it will not come. It will not come. Because it is going to get so bad that people will not want to come and invest money here.

You know what, those people who are building houses in Costa Rica or Boca Raton, up in Fort Lauderdale can go there, but you and I, Madam Speaker, and I would dare say the rest of us in this House are going to have to live right here and put bars on our windows.

I tell you what, Members, I am sick and tired of the Chamber of Commerce, because if you sit down with them and try to move forward into sensible things, they take private reports (which are not reports that government accepted but are working documents) and read such rubbish into the news about more red tape and inflation and Immigration Board to be absorbed into Civil Service.

Madam Speaker, anybody can make recommendations, but it is the Government of the Cayman Islands that has to put them in place. We have said what we have accepted and what we will work with. Why are these paragons of virtue in our community so evil? Why? Why are they so evil to do the kinds of things ... after you sit down with them, they still go ahead ... and then they say that they expect me as a Minister ... you know he should behave himself.

Let me tell you all something, Madam Speaker, if there is not someone who will stand up and take these people head on and say there has got to be something done in this country, we are not going to be able to live in this country. I think I have said enough.

The House and this country know my record. I do not talk, I try to do something and if people can say I am not trying to do anything about training, about instituting a proper minimum wage, then I do not know what to do. All I can say is, I am working. I have been working ever since I have been in office, and ever since I have had these responsibilities to bring about the necessary changes in collaboration with the private sector. It is not all members in the private sector, there are a few greedy pharaohs in this country who want to keep everyone down. They want to go back to the days of slavery when they had upper control and they owned every business in these Cayman Islands. They cannot do it, not as long as the people in West Bay gave me a seat whether it is in here or on the front bench of Executive Council or on the front bench on the Opposition side, I will always be on the side of the working man because he needs people who will speak out for him. He does not have anyone to talk for him. The business people ban together, they have the money, they do all they want to do, and build themselves into these chambers of commerce (as people call them chamber of politics and a few other choice names that I prefer not to grace these hallowed halls with).

Madam Speaker, I am not agreeing to the motion because we have been working on it. The motion did not spur me into anything. I have been working a long time. It takes a long time because as you all can see if we rush ahead and do the wrong thing, we will be hurting the people who we are trying to protect. I cannot agree with the Motion, but the Opposition is on the right track in asking for something to be done, but that is what we are doing. All I ask, is for them to be understanding, to assist, and when [people] in the business sector approach them, they do not agree but stand up and say, the Government is doing the right thing and we are assisting the government. That is a good opposition.

I say to the leader of the Team Cayman, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, that is what he should be doing. I urge him to stand up and support Government on this. We cannot support the motion because we are already doing what it is asking for. We have to take time with the proposal because there are things that will have impact and hurt our people. There are no price control in this country and naturally, costs will escalate even a bit.

I would hope that they would be more reasonable, but I doubt that group of people (Team Cayman) can be reasonable in looking at the news report of theirs. After we have tabled recommendations in the House, the [news] report says nothing about it, Madam Speaker. They still went and print that report. They are a bunch of no . . . Well, Madam Speaker, I had better stop. When I talk about the people I need to help, I may say too much, my heart may get full and I do not want to sit down for that reason. But I say to honourable Members, I am doing all that I can but there are people in this country who need at least $6.25 per hour to live. The sooner we accept it the better we are.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker

Madam Speaker, I also rise to offer my contribution on Private Member's Motion calling for Government to revise the minimum wage that is available in this country.

I would have hoped that Government and even Members of this Legislative Assembly, would not have had to deal with issues of this nature. In that those businesses that operate in this country would have had a genuine interest in ensuring that whatever wages are paid to their staff at least enable them to maintain a certain standard of living. For many years we have had the haves and the have-nots in this country and what has happened over the years is that gradually that power base has been eroded because more and more Caymanians are able to get out and qualify themselves to establish their own businesses and find other opportunities to make a living. This has been good for our country and in my opinion has been one of the keys to our continued success: the ability for Caymanians in order to make a decent income to enable them to maintain a certain standard of living.

I remember in 1992 during the political campaign in our Manifesto one of the issues we promised the people we would deal with is the issue of training and employment of Caymanians and also ensuring that our Caymanians are able to earn a decent income. I recall shortly after the Election there was a Job Fair that was organised by the [Chamber of Commerce] at the Hyatt Regency Hotel. I attended the Fair and looked at some of the advertisements that were displayed regarding vacancies. I was appalled by some of the wages that were offered for those positions.

I recall one in particular where a hotel was looking for members of staff and were offering something like $2.50 per hour. Now, who in their right minds can say, or even be in a position to accept a job making $2.50 per hour? That would be bad enough if they were being paid the $3.00, $3.25 or $3.50, whatever most people in the hospitality industry make and if they were getting the gratuities that were earned. But that is not the case; there is still a lot of abuse in that area.

So what happens is that our people are gradually slipping to such a level that they find it continuously impossible to make ends meet. As a result, many of our Caymanians (a lot of them are single parents) have to hold down two jobs to make ends meet. This creates social disharmony because people are coming in from the outside from destinations where employment opportunities are much less than they are here, and are eager to find employment at any wage to the detriment of our Caymanians who live in this country.

I am not sure what the base rate should be as far as a minimum wage. The Honourable Minister mentioned $6.00 for one category and $6.25 for another. I am not saying what that base rate should be but I think, whatever that level is it should be arrived at (as the Minister proposed) by a committee comprising of members of Government, members from the private sector who can arrive at a satisfactory minimum wage to all parties involved and, one that is fair for people who are employed in those respective areas.

I believe that the time has come for us as legislators to ensure that our people are able to earn a decent hourly wage. If we find that this is not being done, then we must through legislation ensure that our people get what they deserve as far as fair wages for their services. What it does as well is, it takes away many of the jobs that could be held by Caymanians, if they were being offered a decent wage, as a result of the cheap labour that has been allowed to come into the country. You have at present a serious housing problem. All you need to do Madam Speaker, is walk down into the Swamp area (Off Eastern Avenue) and other areas where employees who are on work permits working for these dismal wages are forced to live in order to have shelter while here.

Madam Speaker, I believe this is a totally unaccepted situation, one that has to be addressed and reversed at this stage. The Honourable Minister for Labour can count on my support when he moves forward to putting in place the minimum wage he referred to.

For many years since I have been in this House, I have always been conscious as to who I represent in this House. I do not represent the Chamber of Commerce. I have never been a Member who has been guided or has had a genuine interest as far as what their views are regarding anything I bring to this House, once I know it is in the best interest of my people.

I believe the Chamber of Commerce has a role. Their role is to promote local commerce and opportunities for other Caymanians to share a little more in the success of this country. But the Chamber of Commerce has to recognise one thing, that they are not government. They are not in a position where they dictate to Government what issues or policies are put forward. I believe they should have a genuine opportunity of perhaps offering their advice on certain issues that affect them. We as legislators must move forward with issues and address problems that we know exist in this country and affect our people, regardless of whether or not the Chamber of Commerce or anyone else for that matter, opposes and does not support that type of legislation or policy.

So, Madam Speaker, I, for one, support the Minister on this Motion. He is getting on with addressing this very important matter, that is, the minimum wage and I also agree with the approach where we should introduce it on a phased basis where it would be introduced in the hospitality industry first, or the construction industry or whatever, but it should be done in phases over a period of time. So that we are in a position to monitor how effective it is and where we can adjust, if necessary, whatever actions we take. It is time for us to move on in dealing with issues that affect our people on a daily basis as far as their very financial survival.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker

Madam Speaker, this motion which reads: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT nation minimum wages, by category, be prescribed by government, similar to those which government prescribes for its Occupational Groups and Wage Scale in the annual Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure", is just about repetition of another private member's motion which was brought in September of 1993. To my mind the most important part of the Motion (which needs to be carefully looked at) is where it says "by category." I think that many of the fears that may arise from the introduction of a minimum wage law will certainly arise with a minimum wage across the board not being properly categorised.

First of all let me say that the Motion does not really call for a specific time frame, so it certainly does not inhibit the Government and they can follow the course that they have set. The other point I wish to make is that to my mind, I think as is obvious from the debate that took place regarding this motion, all the Members who have spoken are in favour of some type of minimum wage whether it is from the Government side or from the Backbench. So my view is that the Government would be in a very sound position if they were to accept this Motion. What they would have done by doing so, is to ensure that there will be total support for certain types of minimum wages to be introduced once all of the specific areas have been ironed out.

We must bear in mind that while the mover has alluded to certain figures, the Motion does not call for a specific figure. I believe that is where it is going to be very important and while it may come as a shock to the Minister, I really do agree with him when he says that this is something that requires much consideration and one has to move very carefully in bringing this into reality.

Madam Speaker, others may hold different views, but it is my belief that the disparity of wealth in any country including these Cayman Islands, is something that has to be watched very carefully as the growth of a nation takes place. To put it very simply, if the gap between those who have and those who do not is allowed to continually increase, it will not take very long for what those have to be worth nothing. To explain that, it is very simple: if whether by design or by volition of outside forces or by whatever means it becomes very obvious to the masses in a country that there are but a few who control the wealth of that country sooner or later they will ask the question, "Where is our share?" So not wanting to incite the mind of anyone too far, I simply make that point because it is not something that anyone of us can brush aside and not think about.

I grant that there are many other areas that have to be thought about when we think of the disparity of wealth, such as, training and equipping the masses to be able to cope with the ability of their earning power, social problems that go along with it, the family unit and the natural breakdown which occurs when the disparity continues to widen.

As others have pointed out before, people simply find themselves unable to afford to live. It would be the greatest pity in the world if the people of this country were not to come to grips with this fact and be able to deal with it collectively.

We always speak about being able to look at the mistakes of others. If ever there were glaring situations that would prove the point that I am trying to make about the disparity of wealth, then certainly it has surrounded us for as long as I can remember. Not just in one country, but several that are not very far from us. And without calling names, we have seen the many backward things that have happened in those countries, such as, violence, and other types of things which only set those countries further years behind.

Having said that, we still have to be very careful because at this point in time in looking at a minimum wage, we are also dealing with one side of the coin and not necessarily being immediately able to balance the wheel. There are certain natural inflationary situations in my mind that will occur because of the introduction of minimum wages which may in turn almost undo the good that may have been done to the majority of the people under which category this falls.

We do not have, as mentioned before, price controls and if the cost of operating a business goes up there will be increasing costs to the consumer to balance that. So I do agree that these things do have to be thought out properly.

Madam Speaker, I am not equipped this afternoon to say what I believe the right minimum wage should be by category. I think it is almost necessary for some type of actuarial process to take place in order to arrive at a right minimum wage because it can have a very negative effect if the figures arrived at are not realistic.

So I would warn that whatever is being done, be done not just by one's thinking, but actually by proper research to have all the facts available in order to come up with a right minimum wage. If it is done in this fashion and realistic figures are arrived at, it will certainly have less negative effect when it comes to inflation.

As has been mentioned, the hospitality industry is one area that needs to be looked at very closely. There are many people who work in that industry who feel that they are underpaid. On the other hand there are some properties I am sure that deal with gratuities in the right manner so when that is done and all is added up, it balances itself out.

So I would say that we have to be very careful that in prescribing a minimum wage the amount in gratuities do not fall away causing people to earn less at the end of the day. I am not suggesting that has to happen. I am simply saying that we have to be very careful so that the formula of gratuities... because I do not think that there is any law prescribing the amount of gratuities that has to be charged. So we have to make sure that both sides are satisfied when dealing with this matter in order that the ordinary employee does not end up losing rather than gaining.

Another statistic that was brought to mind in earlier debate, concerned non-Caymanians. While one might say that the job of a representative is to represent his people, the truth is, there are others who are here who are not Caymanians and need some type of representation for more reasons than one.

There is a view that if a minimum wage is prescribed in certain categories of workers, it may cause employers to pay less because they would simply tow the line and those people who were earning a certain amount of money might end up earning less because what is being earned now is above what may be the minimum wage prescribed.

The truth is, I do not subscribe to that train of thought because there are many natural competitive forces in the private sector that will dictate differently.

The other thing is, while it has not been mentioned specifically, when we look at minimum wages in the various categories, we also at some point during the period of arriving at a formula, have to look at incremental stages of minimum wages. While that may seem to be a little bit overbearing, it is a very important measure to look at when it comes to protecting both employers and employees.

Many of the points that I would raise, have already been raised and I wish not to be repetitious. So let me simply close by saying that I can understand that there may be fears on both sides (employers and employees) about a minimum wage. I would expect and hope that in dealing with this situation the Government will allow as much input as possible from the given sectors so that they may have all the relevant facts available during the decision-making process. But let me say that it is my firm belief that by-and-large some type of minimum wage needs to be prescribed in order to protect the workers of the masses.

There are many employers who do not feel the need for a minimum wage and there are many who may not feel that need quite rightly so, but I wish for them to remember and think that there are others who—and it will happen wherever we go and we are certainly no exception—will not deal with the employer/employee relationship the way they should. There needs to be legislation in order to ensure that this takes place.

The basic concept behind this Motion is to simply ensure that individuals who live and work in these islands get an honest day's pay for an honest day's work. There are responsibilities which are inherent with the employee. I do not believe that people who work should be thinking of the minimum wage law whenever it is enacted as a measure for them to have some type of relief. It is simply a measure for them to get their just due, but it has no bearing on them producing any less for what they receive.

The Motion as I have said before, notwithstanding what I may have heard, is certainly one that has all the best intentions. It seems to be one that Government is in total agreement with whether it is a cart before the horse situation, or whether it is not. It matters not to me, I simply examine the motion for what I believe it intends to achieve and that is what I base my decision on whether to support or not to support it; whether it be private or from the Government. Even though I have heard what I have said, I still believe that if Government wishes to, by good faith ensure that this very, should I say, touchy situation be addressed properly by one and all in this honourable House, then this is their opportunity to show good faith, having proven the merit of the Motion by accepting it. I therefore support the Motion.

[Pause]

The Speaker: If no one else wishes to continue the debate, would the mover exercise his right of reply.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I have never known of an instance in this House, during the past seven years that I have been here, where everyone who spoke agreed with the Motion before the house, including the Government and yet it cannot be accepted.

I would expect that if the Government, through the Minister who appealed to the Opposition for the support in bringing about a minimum wage, which obviously the opposition is in agreement with having brought the Motion, the Minister would accept the Motion. In accepting the Motion the House on a whole would have the opportunity of expressing its will and thus, giving approval to the actions which the Minister says he is now attempting.

I believe that by accepting this Motion the Government could only but strengthen its hand. The Minister could only but strengthen his hand in his effort to bring about a minimum wage that he says he wishes to do.

To address some points which have been made, I think one of the ways that Government could help itself thereby helping the people of this country is to make available to the public some of the information the Government has on this matter. Certainly, if this Motion did nothing more than illicit some of the information the Minister for Labour gave, then it has served some good and positive purpose. I believe it is important to deal with facts; facts that are statistically known, facts that may be known otherwise. For based on facts a Minister can move forward to bring about a change in whatever way may be necessary.

Madam Speaker, I do not know why the Minister felt reluctant to give the statistics which are available to his Ministry. He knows that there are 2,266 non-Caymanians making less than what he has said had been found to be the bare minimum necessary to live, and to avoid going below the poverty line. This is one of the most salient points made by the Government, and this is the true basis for so many complaints from the people who are affected by not earning reasonable basic wages.

The complaints that I hear time and again, and I would believe many Members hear, is that there are non-Caymanians in the work force who are working for much less than the Caymanian is willing to work for. Or that the Caymanian is being forced to work for a wage where they feel they are not being paid reasonably and fairly, simply because if they do not fall in line and work at that wage the opportunity is open to the employer to hire someone externally to do the job for a lower wage. That is the heart and soul, to a large extent, of this whole matter.

I see many non-Caymanians working in these islands, and it is well-known that there are over 10,000. While I believe that because of the tendency to feel frustrated—and may I say Caymanians—Caymanians who believe that they should earn more, direct that feeling of resentment toward those persons who are working for less money than they believe is reasonable for the job. Therein lies what should be one of the main concerns in this country.

Some of those people working for less are in effect forced to work longer hours simply being told by their supervisor or employer that they have to work longer than the average work day. They feel personally obliged because that is the only way that they, at the end of any pay period, realise any amount of money they need to survive.

That is what minimum wage by category is all about, that everyone affected can feel satisfied to the extent that they know they are earning at least what it takes to provide for themselves minimally.

I think that the information as given by the Minister in regards to the findings of the ongoing study is very necessary for a clear understanding of what the facts show is to be received by all persons concerned, particularly those who are affected—the employees.

I have heard the Minister say that it takes at least $1176 per month to maintain the average household, and about $700 for an individual per month. That says something about the household and the family, and it says something about the individual.

It is also very interesting to know the numbers that fall below the figure of $833 per month, which, again, seems to have been determined to be another level of survival. I think this type of information is vital to this country and it will hardly explode our myth of everyone being wealthy here—for that is a myth, it is nonsense. That is something that I believe we should wisely get away from. If we want to count per capita (which makes us sound good in one area in the financial world or whatever) so be it. But reality is something we should always attempt to keep ourselves focused on; reality lives with each individual in this country and in each household.

There is obviously a need to improve the earnings of certain numbers of people in this country. If those persons earn more money, they can spend more money for their necessities. If one could even stretch the imagination to believe that they do spend some small amounts on some leisure, then it also provides an increase there.

The employer might say that what it does is cost them more money, thus reducing the level of profit they prefer to make. But there is profit, and then there is profit. One can make reasonable profit, or one can make exorbitant profit. I contend that one should try to arrive at acceptable, reasonable profit.

Perhaps, and certainly in some sectors and in some firms it will be an increase to the employer, it will cause the cost of living to go up. But, people are not as uninformed as many people tend to think they are. I believe that if the Government does something about this matter of minimum wages, that that large group of employees who unfortunately do not earn what they should now, their collective resistance and heightened emotional feeling with regards to employers simply using that to find cause to increase prices unreasonably, will have an effect on helping to hold the prices to where they should reasonably be.

If those who need the most can be helped, one would assume that they would be willing to help themselves. They would feel more wanted and involved, they would feel more cared for.

If the Government finds that the Chamber of Commerce, or any other such associations or organisations, are directly resistant to a minimum wage by category, there are various methods which can be employed. I do not know to what extent the Chamber of Commerce or any other such association has been informed of the facts and the figures, the statistical data which we heard about this afternoon. But, surely if that statistical data can stand on its own and cannot be disproved, the Government has strong legs to stand on. The Government is then in a position to move forward to do what it needs to do.

I remember a history professor once saying in a lecture, "Facts are sacred and comment is free." If the facts can be proven, the Government can fortify itself to do what it should do. In so doing the Government can also make its pleasure, or displeasure known if persons, or firms, or employers, take steps to react unreasonably to the efforts that might be attempted.

Surely, the employees would not be endeared to the employers, and I am one who believes that employees are much more valuable than what they are often given credit for. Few employers would have businesses if they did not have people to work for them.

I think that this is one gap that can be bridged. Certainly, if the Minister and the Government are soliciting the support of the Opposition and the support of the House, the only way to get that is to get the House to express its will through the acceptance of a Motion or a law as the case may be. There is indeed an excellent opportunity in this instance.

I do not know exactly how the figures of $6.25 and $7.50 as a minimum wage were arrived at. I certainly do believe that it is possible to arrive at a factual minimum wage. If the Government believes that the opposing forces are so strong against it, questioning its ability to determine this, then one can resort to the expertise available which can prove or disprove their position.

What does seem extremely clear is that the Government needs to arrive at a position. It should not be something held secretly so that one has to wait until there is a motion in the House to know about it. I believe that the public at large should get involved at least by knowing what is going on, the findings and what is being discussed by Government with the Chamber of Commerce and other associations. Should not the working people know about it? They are the ones being talked about. I think they should. They do have views and voices and in certain instances the people will speak up.

If the numbers as stated by the Minister are considered unacceptable by the employer associations, then, certainly I would advocate that the Minister seek, to whatever extent is necessary, the assistance of experts in this field to check the numbers and see whether they can uphold the questions or criticisms from the other side. I do not believe that the Members of this House, or the two Opposition Members, would stand resistant to what can be factually proven since the idea is by myself and the Seconder that this should really come about.

When one takes the situation of underpaid persons in this country into account, it paints a complete picture of social problems and difficulties in this society. It is within Government's means to do something about it.

In the Budget is included an amount to increase the salaries of civil servants. Years ago when I was a civil servant, and I am sure they say so nowadays, civil servants said that as soon as Government gave an increase the merchants simply went up on their prices and took what they had received in terms of an increase. That is something which I have heard over the decades. It supposedly also works in tandem with the market forces; there is more money out there so the sellers of goods and services make their attempt to collect it.

I say that to make the point that prices do rise. We can expect prices to rise if the cost of goods go up, if Customs duty goes up—various factors can occur which cause prices to rise. Everyone in his own way has to rise to the occasion to be able to buy or afford what they were buying before at a lesser price.

So, an argument which might come from those resistant to this, that it is going to cause an increase in living... well, what is new about that? Government's role becomes one to see that as far as possible that increase by those employers is kept within what is reasonable.

The statisticians can show this. They are the people who are the experts, they have the data from the goods coming into our ports and the Custom Duty attached to it. I believe it is possible. What it takes is the political will.

An old tactic for any Government, including this one, is to keep complaining about an issue, keep bringing up negatives about a particular issue and keep the Government going on and on without taking the initial step. That tactic has been successfully used by various associations and organisations in this country over many, many years, including now. But it falls to Government duty and no one can undertake that duty besides the Government.

I think the case has been clearly made for Government to prescribe national minimum wage by category. The Government agrees with it. The Government says it is doing something about it, so the Government should wisely accept the Motion which, in effect, would be the approval of this Honourable House on its ongoing efforts or certainly one that would strengthen its efforts.

The Opposition, myself and the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, can but raise these matters, can but bring them before this House seeking the approval to give Government the approval to go out and do it.

What is certain is that the people expect it, the people need it and the people are conscious of those who try to get things done. I dare say that the Government will succeed 100% when the vote is taken on this Motion to not accept anything that was brought to the House at this time by Private Members' Motions, or the Opposition, even in cases where it fully agrees with what is being put forward.

The Motion is thus before the House to express its will as it may.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion 14/95, "BE IT RESOLVED THAT the national minimum wages by category be prescribed by Government similar to those which Government prescribes for its occupational groups and wage scale in the Annual Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure." I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, could we have a division?

The Speaker: You certainly may. Madam Clerk.

Clerk:

DIVISION NO. 19/95

Private Member's Motion No. 14/95

AYES: 2

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts
Mr. Gilbert A. McLean

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION 14/95 NEGATIVED BY MAJORITY.

The Speaker: Government Business, continuation of the debate on the Second Reading of the Appropriation Bill.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

THE APPROPRIATION (1996) BILL, 1995

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER, FINANCIAL SECRETARY, ON FRIDAY 10

NOVEMBER, 1995

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I have run out of steam. I will forgo debating it further, and leave it to the others to debate.

The Speaker: Would you prefer to take a suspension for 15 minutes?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: It would make a little difference to my throat if we did do that.

The Speaker: You could have asked me, you know.

Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.50 PMPROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.11 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When I stopped speaking last week, Wednesday, I was speaking about the Civil Service. I was noting that there is an increase of 9%, which has been placed in the Budget to pay civil servants.

This increase, to the best of my understanding, does not really reflect the amount of the salary that they would be due based on what is known about the civil service salary structures at this time in comparison to the private sector and also taking into account the cost of living and so on.

While this amount may be paid now and it will certainly mean an increase to the Civil Service, I think it is wise financial management that the Government should, right now, straight away, be preparing and, indeed, have set aside certain money for paying civil servants in an amount which is really due. Also, amounts which would be determined by outside persons who would come in and examine the Civil Service at this time. A complete salary review like the Rolf Waller Review, or like those which followed.

As I mentioned when I was speaking on this matter a week ago, I think the time has come when rather than simply expecting all civil servants to fall into a particular scale, with only an increment to look forward to, cash awards should be made based upon careful examination of the jobs and job appraisals. These appraisals should not be left until the end of the year. There should be certain reporting processes during the course of a year so that the year is really a culmination of assessments along the way.

In this year's Budget, there is $2,482,688 estimated to be paid—I dare say it will be much more than that because it may not really represent exactly what will be the cost, or that may not represent the persons who will be employed within the Civil Service in the coming year at certain salary scales which might be known, so that may not be the true figure, it may well be more. I think it is likely to show that it will be more. That is called contracted officer's supplement, interpreted to mean the 15% over and above the basic salary that a limited few civil servants are paid. These persons will also get the 9% increase I am told. It cannot be fair or reasonable to continue to do this as a policy. It is foolish, it is ignorant, it is unfair.

If the Civil Service Association is the type of association I know it to be, the Government will have to discontinue that practice. The argument is that the people who come here lose the opportunity of getting their pensions in the countries which they leave and that what the Government of the Cayman Islands in its generosity, and apparently because we must have all the money in the world, does is pay that 15% more each month for these people who are on contract. I have heard that argument at least a dozen times by persons in Government. It is ridiculous and absurd.

Any person coming to the Cayman Islands to work, knows they are coming to work for a particular salary. They make a judgment call whether they wish to leave their country. Work and wages go hand in hand, and few intelligent people—and I believe all contracted officers are intelligent people, they make an intelligent decision to come here full well knowing that they will make 15% more and over and above the local counterpart.

I would like to advocate that if the Government is going to continue the argument that they can reduce the $65 million unfunded for the civil servants down the line and find the money to enhance salaries across the board by 15%; then say to all the civil servants in the country, 'Suppose we enhance your salary by 15%, would that suit you?' It might be surprising to see how many would take that course of action. If they were given the opportunity right now of 15% more over their basic salary it might surprise one and all that they might not wish to wait until 55 or 60 years old, not knowing whether they will make those times or not. Those people getting this kind of money are getting paid here and now. It is unfair and is something that should be stopped.

Any kind of reasonable review would advocate that. The least I would expect is that the Civil Service Association would make some recommendations in this regard.

I certainly support the increase to the Civil Service, but the fact that it is the largest recurrent expenditure in the country, every sensible scientific management effort that can be made, needs to be made to bring the Civil Service, its salaries and otherwise into realistic perspective.

Another area of expenditure which the Financial Secretary spoke about in his debate was the construction industry and the new Westin Hotel. In terms of possible earnings, the Government had certain losses according to the reply to a Parliamentary Question which I asked, and which was not answered verbally, but in writing. The question was: "What Custom duty concessions were given to the Westin Casuarina Development."

The answer was: "Madam Speaker, under section 48 of the Customs Law, approval was granted for 5% import duty to be applied on all dutiable building materials, as the duty on building materials varies from 15% to 20%, the concession would vary from 10% to 15%."

I think clearly the Government has lost 10% to 15% Customs duty over and above what it could have made had the materials been charged at the going Customs fee.

The Cayman Islands have now moved away from the time when concessions of 2% were given to attract hotels to come here. This country now has hotels in number and in requirement for labour way over what can be provided locally. In a similar comparison, people coming from overseas to work in the Civil Service are no longer coming here to do a favour, as in the years when I can remember 25% gratuity was paid at the end of the contract.

Those days are gone. We are living in a time when the development of this country has become attractive to people and investors coming here. And few hotels, if any—perhaps we should say none—should at this stage come in for those types of concessions. If they are providing jobs, for whom are they providing them? If one says that it is an outlet for purchasing food on a large scale, from where is the food being purchased and in what currency? There is an inflow and outflow daily of hard currency with regard to hotel operations.

Madam Speaker, I hear the Minister saying “tell us about the duty”. Well, does Government not collect duty in its own currency? How does that help the foreign currency payments?

These are the types of realisms I believe the Government needs to become cognisant of. Doing less is not doing what we should for the country. And certainly if we are creating jobs, again I ask: Who are the jobs going to? Given the few Caymanians available for the task, where is the money going to? The money earned by those employees is changed into foreign currency, as they rightly should, to send out of the country. So who does it really profit in that regard?

Monies have been provided for the Police Force, certainly not enough to provide for all its needs, both for personnel or for equipment. It has to be within what the Government can afford. The Police are being given another consideration, with which I agree—that of allowing constables certain allowances which will at least scale back the amount the Government will ultimately have to pay in pensions, since pensions are not calculated on allowances. But with the growing concern of crime in this country—and while thankfully we do not have murders every day and when we do have a murder which is much more often than ever before—it is still a shock to the community which shows that we still retain certain values and expectations that those things should not happen here.

I think it is necessary for the Government to seriously look at police services in this country. I like the term the new Commissioner of Police is using—Police Services, rather than Police Force. I think his thoughts are projected in the right direction, especially when we hear of excessive force being used here and elsewhere in the world. So if we should lead the way in considering it a service, I think that is very good for us. It is a good example for us to set for the rest of the world.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION

The Speaker: Honourable Member, it is now 4.30 PM. I do not expect you will finish this afternoon.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: No, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: May I ask for the Motion for the adjournment?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 23 NOVEMBER 1995.

ADJOURNMENT

THURSDAY
23 NOVEMBER, 1995
10.10 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the First Elected Member for Bodden Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. Roy Bodden: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed.

Administration of Oath and Affirmation to Mr. Donovan W. F. Ebanks, MBE, to be the Temporary First Official Member.

Mr. Ebanks, could you come forward, please?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF AFFIRMATION

By Mr. Donovan W. F. Ebanks, MBE

Hon. Donovan W. F. Ebanks: I, Donovan Ebanks, do solemnly and sincerely affirm and declare that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II her heirs and successors according to law.

The Speaker: Please take your seat. On behalf of the House, I welcome you.

Presentation of Papers and Reports, Government Minutes on the Public Accounts Committee's Report. The Honourable Third Official Member.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

GOVERNMENT MINUTE ON THE PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE REPORT ON THE REPORT OF THE AUDITOR GENERAL ON THE ACCOUNTS OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31 DECEMBER 1993

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House, the Government Minutes of the Public Accounts Committee's Report on the Report of the Auditor General on the accounts of the Cayman Islands' Government for the year ended 31st December, 1993.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Question No. 266, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 266

No. 266: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to state whether the Ministry of Education or the Education Department has received any representation from parents and guardians of the George Town Primary School during the period January 1993 up to October 1995, regarding the dilapidated state of the school buildings.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Ministry received four letters from the members of the Working Group of the George Town PTA during the month of October.

The first letter was written on 19th October, and Ministry officials met with these parents on Monday, 6th November. Many of their concerns had already been corrected as part of the ongoing schedule of maintenance at the school.

Other concerns such as the air-conditioning of the school hall is scheduled for completion in 1996. The use of the playing field at the school was another main issue and a policy on use of the field in keeping with the general policy has now been issued.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Will the Honourable Minister say why, in light of the regular maintenance programme which he informed this House about, did this representation have to be made for these schools?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I do not quite follow what the Member is asking. Is he asking why the people have made representation? The answer is, because they felt they should.

I would say probably about 35 out of perhaps 45 matters were dealt with during the summer. I met with the PTA executives and they are now satisfied with things. I am not sure why this Member is still stirring it.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say if any of the conditions expressed in this letter were mentioned on the visits to the George Town Primary School by the former Principal?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the former Principal seems not to have seen any of these problems. It was not until the new principal, Miss Marie Martin, who is a Caymanian, took office that many of these conditions were brought to light; and it was only brought to light fairly late during the summer vacation. We moved as quickly as we could to deal with them, but I am afraid the former Principal did not raise these conditions.

Every quarter I go to all the schools, Madam Speaker, and sit with the staff and ask what are the problems. I make notes and try to correct them. On this occasion, I did meet with the PTA.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Will the Honourable Minister say whether these problems emanated from oversight on the part of people who do periodic maintenance?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, it is the duty of the Principal to bring these matters to the attention of the department. The department then requests the Public Works Department to assign someone to deal with them. However, during the course of the summer vacation of two and a half months, all of the major maintenance on the schools have to be done. It is a major task.

Once a week I get a complete schedule and monitor

it and someone is assigned to deal with it. But despite the fact that I am now going on to a continuous maintenance schedule so that certain things can be done during the weekends, or perhaps very short holidays, major matters such as painting of buildings, roofing that has to be replaced, would have to be done during the summer.

It is just not as simple as sitting here asking why something is not done. A proper system is in place, proper monitoring is done and I take an interest in it, Madam Speaker. But sometimes the Principals miss things or they do not, as in this case... perhaps what inspired this question is the former Principal. He seemed to have had his eyes closed to many things up there which in my view were probably only set to make room for questions, such as the one this Member is asking in an effort to get at me. But he is gone.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say if there is a full-time maintenance man at the school and if so, is he in a position to tell us what his duties entail on a regular basis?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, a person is there full-time. He deals with the grounds and minor maintenance. It is one of the few schools really, that we have this in. I missed the last part of the question.

The Speaker: Honourable Third Elected Member for George Town, would you repeat that for him, please?

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Is he in a position to explain what the maintenance man's regular duties are? What does he do on a daily basis? I think you explained it, thank you.

QUESTION NO. 267

The Speaker: The next question is No. 267, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

No. 267: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to state the instrument of guarantee which is required by Government from the large scale importers of commercial goods.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, of the Customs Law 1990 allows the Collector of Customs, if he thinks fit, to take security by bond for the observance of any condition imposed by Customs.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Will the Honourable Member say whether any consideration has been given to requiring cash security in lieu of bonds?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Madam Speaker. At this time security is normally covered or the bond arrangement, by combination of a bank guarantee or cash deposit.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 268, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 268

No. 268: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to provide the gross revenue collected by the Customs Department for the months June through September 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the gross revenue collected by the Customs Department for the period June through September 1995 totalled CI$21,222,632.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Third Official Member be able to say how that figure compares with the same period for the previous year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, it is an increase of approximately $1 million over the previous year. For the same period June through September 1994, the amount collected was $20,315,650.00.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Member have any idea as to what this was attributable to?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the assumption to be made is that it is the growth of activities taking place within the economy.

QUESTION NO. 269

The Speaker: The next question is No. 269, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman

No. 269: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development whether the Government has settled any of the outstanding loans with the Caribbean Development Bank to eliminate large interest payments resulting from various fluctuating currencies.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the Government has concerns about large interest payments resulting from fluctuating currencies, but more importantly, the Government is concerned about the variations in principal repayment sums caused by these changes. The two areas of Government affected by this are the Water Authority and the Civil Aviation Authority which both had negotiated multi-currency loans with the Caribbean Development Bank (CDB).

In this regard, the Government has held discussions with CDB in an attempt to reach agreement on a currency-swap whereby the most volatile currency (being the Japanese Yen) would be swapped for US dollars. These discussions, however, were not successful since the loans were, in fact, part of a much larger on-lending package made to CDB by the Inter-American Development (IDB). To single out the Cayman Islands for special treatment in this arrangement would require the agreement of IDB and the other co-borrowers, and this was not possible.

Given this situation, the Government took action in early 1995 and repaid the Water Authority multi-currency loan by borrowing from a local commercial bank. Honourable Members should note that negotiations with CDB in respect of the Civil Aviation Authority's multi-currency loan are continuing and that a proposal from CDB to refinance this loan is expected by early 1996.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Third Official Member be in a position to say, given the prevailing situation before the local borrowing was done compared with the fixed currency now, how much money might have been saved with the change?

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I do not have that information on hand since the repayment date, but I can give an undertaking to provide it in writing.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

Would the Honourable Member let us know if the interest rate now is fixed or if it is floating?

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the interest rate is floating with LIBOR on the current loan.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Member say if there were any penalties in paying off the loan with the Caribbean Development Bank on behalf of the Water Authority before the borrowing period, and if so, how much?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, there were no penalties charged by the Caribbean Development Bank.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Seeing that in many instances the loans are within a basket of currency, is there any move by Government to look more to making loans from local institutions where it may be possible to borrow in US currency if the interest rates are favourable?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, at this time the Government pursues a combination of borrowing arrangements. Often times loans are negotiated with local banks where interest rates are seen to be more favourable than borrowing from Caribbean Development Bank. I should point out that since the time these loans were extended by CDB, they have recognised that quite a number of borrowing members have gotten in problems as a result of the loans within the basket of currencies that fluctuate significantly. The Caribbean Development Bank has taken a decision to avoid such borrowings.

So as a result of that (the present arrangement) I should point out, that CDB is now pursuing arrangements with IDB for the paying off of the Japanese Yen component of these loans and to transfer those into equivalent sums of US dollars. The loans as such will be denominated in US dollar currency.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Member be able to say when these loans were originally negotiated?

The Speaker: The Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, in 1984 and in 1988.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Member say if the Water Authority is now enjoying a solvent position and is able to meet these payments on their own?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I have not spoken to the Water Authority in regards to their financial position, but I would assume that is the case because if it was contrary the Government would have been informed that they are unable to meet their loan payments.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Just for clarification, are those repayments made directly by the Water Authority to the lending institution.

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the repayments are being made directly by the Water Authority to the lending bank.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 270, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman

QUESTION NO. 270

No. 270: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration if any action is being taken to limit the number of attorneys graduating from the Law School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, the answer is no. The only limitation on the graduation of law students is governed by the academic qualifications required to enter the Law School and the examination results achieved by a student at the end of the course. Only Caymanian students may progress to the professional practise course.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Has there been any recommendations to Government by any of the law firms or associations that the number of attorneys should be limited in the islands for economic reasons or otherwise?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: No, Madam Speaker, I am not aware of any such representations.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Member say if it would be the case that attorneys could be limited if law firms refuse to allow them the opportunity to article which I understand is a part of becoming an attorney?

The Speaker: I think that is a hypothetical question and I do not know if the Second Official Member would be in a position to answer that. It requires an expression of opinion.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am willing to give an explanation, Madam Speaker, if that would help.

The Speaker: If you wish please do so.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The qualification as an Attorney-at-Law requires firstly, the completion of degree studies, then the successful completion of a Professional Practice Course, and then a period of articles. If the private sector (for whatever reason) was reluctant to take articulated clerks, of course Government is in a position to take them. I have previously stated in this sitting that the Legal Department intends to take an articulated clerk very shortly and will do so on an annual basis.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 271, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman

QUESTION NO. 271

No. 271: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration what is the total number of full-time and part-time lecturers at the Law School stating their individual qualifications.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, the answer: The total number of lecturers at the Law School with qualifications is as follows: a) Full-time: 5 (including the Director of Legal Studies); b) part-time: 1 (unremunerated).

The details of current members of academic staff are as follows: Mr M C Davies, LL.B (Hons)—Director of Legal Studies; Mr J A Epp LL.B, MCJ, Barrister—Lecturer in Law; Mr A Darkoh-Agyeman, LL.B (Hons), LL.M, Barrister—Lecturer in Law; Ms H Neilly, B.Sc (Hons), LL.B (Hons), MA; M. Phil, Barrister—Lecturer in Law; Mr S Cooper, LL.B (Hons)—Lecturer in Law; and Mrs A Goddard (part-time, unremunerated), LL.B (Hons), Solicitor.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: This part-time lecturer: is this what one might term charity work?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, Madam Speaker, this is pro bono work by a lady who is resident in the Cayman Islands. She has her qualifications as a solicitor and has kindly agreed to help the Law School on a totally unremunerated basis as and when required.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Based on the number of staff as outlined in the answer, is the Law School capable at this point in time of handling more students and, if so, approximately how many more without increasing staff?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, I gave some figures of the student in-take for this year which is at the moment 54 students. That is approaching the maximum number that the school could comfortably cope with. Possibly 60 students would be about the maximum. The real constraint would be accommodation more than anything else, the school could not physically accommodate more than approximately 60 students.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is the Director a lecturer?

The Speaker: The Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, Madam Speaker, he is part of the teaching staff and carries out lecturing duties like any other member of staff.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 272, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 272

No. 272: Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture, to give an update on the progress of the plans for the indoor sporting facilities for West Bay.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. To date, working site plans for the proposed Civic Centre Complex, located beside the Ed Bush Playing Field, have been completed by the Public Works Department. Actual work is to begin early 1996.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Can the Honourable Minister say what facilities will be provided in the building?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, in addition to the auditorium which will be built to take indoor sports, there is a kitchen area, rest rooms, storage area, janitorial services and a special training room.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Can the Minister say whether any funds have been placed in the Estimates for next year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Madam Speaker. Funds are in the Estimates for 1996.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Does the Minister have the plans available?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, what I have is a sketch that I can pass to the Members, if you would permit.

The Speaker: Certainly.

[Circulation of sketch]

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Minister say if the basic layout of the Civic Centre is something similar to the one in the district of Bodden Town where it can be used for an auditorium and for indoor sports? If that is the case, would the Minister be able to say whether there are any plans downline for something similar for the district of George Town?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, first of all I believe they are trying to keep Civic Centres throughout the country in the same style. Yes, it will be able to house indoor games.

As to the George Town district, the Government, I suppose would be akin to start plans for that when the people put us back in the House next year, God willing.

Madam Speaker, in the plan I passed to the Fourth

Member for West Bay, it includes plans for Bodden Town playing field. I am wondering if I could get it back.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

Government Business, continuation of the debate on the Second Reading of the Appropriation (1996) Bill, 1995. Is the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman ready to continue?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

THE APPROPRIATION (1996) BILL, 1995

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER, FINANCIAL SECRETARY, ON FRIDAY 10 NOVEMBER, 1995

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, yesterday when we took the suspension I was speaking about the matter relating to police as it appears in the Estimates. I was making the point that Government should give some priority to expenditure on police services because of the increasing number of crimes in the country and the need for having police officers with proper equipment, training, and so on.

I observe by briefly going through the Estimates that there are some monies provided for replacement of motor vehicles. It seems that the police may be able to get some cars replaced. As I recall, last year when this year's Estimates was being dealt with, there was a request for a large number of vehicles which I think the police were able to prove were necessary. I doubt seriously that has been addressed to the extent it should, since that time. Perhaps the time has now come for a provision to be made whereby there would be one sizeable capital outlay for purchase of vehicles and at the same time bring in a system of maintenance and set certain limits when they could be disposed of and at least earn some money.

I noted also that the new Commissioner of Police seems to prefer the idea that the Police is a service and not a force, as the Force connotes I dare say, force. Really it is a protective service that the police offers.

I tend to believe that the police are certainly more satisfied during recent times because I have heard less complaints being made prior to the change over in administration. I think that is commendable and I wish all involved the best of success.

However, I do think that it is important for Government to allocate enough money to provide the police service with the motor vehicles that are needed. For to have less than is required or to have those which break down quite often (as we have been told) does not really help the purpose when it comes to responding [to crime] or getting officers from one location to another.

In the Estimates for 1996, there are various items showing varying amounts in regards to receipts of revenue and I would like to refer to a few. One is the Tourism Accommodation Tax that is estimated in 1996 to fall by $1,149,494 below the revised figure of 1995 of $9,534,494. I really cannot figure out why this would be the case since there is a new hotel coming on line with over 300 rooms. I would imagine that accommodation tax would increase and indeed, this year accommodation tax was increased from 6% to 10%. So I would imagine there should be an increase in this area, but it is shown here as a reduction even though alcoholic beverages show an increase of over $1 million and the Government estimated $12 million in revenue from that.

I do not know if it is the case where less people are expected to consume more alcoholic beverages even though the physical numbers are reduced according to the Estimates forecast.

I see also that the Government is expecting $700,000 from the sale of Government property. I hope that in Finance Committee the Financial Secretary will be in a position to say what property is being sold. These situations are such that one hears about the sale of these properties after the fact and in actuality the Finance Committee does not have to approve these sales. They can be done by Executive Council. But while the Government purchases land at very exorbitant prices, it would seem that what Government has now it should hold on to and not dispose of.

In fact, I think that the time has come for Government to seriously consider another building that would house some of Government's departments because it seem that ever so often there are some renovations in the two main buildings the Tower Building and the Glass House (the Government Administration Building). I know that Government had considerable land in the Half Way Pond area—to the best of my knowledge, it is zoned commercial. Perhaps it might be a good idea if Government looked at doing some development at that location and take some of the traffic from the town's centre which would for one, ease congestion at bit.

It seems however, that Government expects continued increase in work permits in the country. This I believe is so because with the coming on line of the Westin Hotel which must be staffed (several hundred I would imagine) there would be the need for more work permits and generally speaking, there does not seem to be any let-up in this regard. Government estimates to earn $11 million in 1996...

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order, Third Elected Member for West Bay?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I refer to Standing Order 63(2), as the Member appears to be going into the Estimates.

The Speaker: I think that the provisions of that particular Standing Order quite clearly state: "On a motion for the Second Reading of an Appropriation Bill debate shall be confined to the financial and economic status of the islands and the general principles of Government policies and administration as indicated by the Bill and the Estimates."

The Appropriation Bill is now being given a Second Reading. Members have been supplied with copies of the Estimates and I think it is quite clear. There is no ambiguity there. They can bring up some points which are in the Estimates, but not in great details. I understand the Member to be making a point about the policy and I think he is at liberty to do so.

So that is not a Point of Order.

Please continue Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I thought the Third Elected Member for West Bay would have concluded as he had been instructed by the Chair. It would seem that his Government should be happy to have someone speaking since no one from the Government bench rises and I understand basically that they are all unprepared to speak on this subject.

Madam Speaker, another area of revenue that is in the Estimates is royalties from dredging. For next year the Government estimates to earn $388,947. I do not believe this will be done, Madam Speaker, and I think this is something more fudged into the Budget than it is a reality. I understand quite reliably that over the years since various licences have been issued that the people of this country have been systematically robbed by royalties not being paid. In fact, I understand that there are hundreds of thousands, if not, millions of dollars now outstanding that should have been paid to the Government by dredging operations.

I would like to make the point with regards to dredging, that the ocean floor around this country belongs to Her Majesty the Queen or Government because of its constitutional standing and also by the people of these islands—all of the people. The only way all the people can benefit from dredging is if Government collects a fee from granting licences. The Government must collect that fee because by so doing, it is collecting money into the treasury of this country so all the people of the country can benefit.

It could hardly have been the idea of the people of this country to allow four or five people to dredge the bottom of the ocean for millions of yards of fill which they in turn sell and make millions of dollars without paying the appropriate fees. There can be no excuse. They dredge up the ocean floor onto dry land, in the mangroves or wherever... and as I understand it, the cubic yards are supposed to be measured. Either they pay a certain amount of money per cubic yard or they give the Government so much cubic yards of fill. I know that has been an arrangement in the past, but I think what is happening at this time (if even half of what I am hearing is the case) is nothing short of racket.

I take great cognisance of the fact that the Minister responsible for this when asked a few questions bobs and wheels and dodges and runs from answering them. According to the Minister responsible for dredging there are seven applications, some pending and some approved in principle. I also hear from sources that I give some credence to, that there are supposedly applications before the Government for massive large scale dredging. If that is the case, I hope that when the people's marl is being taken from the ocean floor, they are going to get their due fees. And moreover, this Government is going to pursue the outstanding monies which have not been paid into the Government coffers... where three or four operations benefit, make millions of dollars, from dredging the ocean floor, make land for themselves and the people do not get the benefit of the marl from their ocean floor.

The reasons and excuses that I have heard over the years as to why this is not collected are numerous. It would strike some people forcefully that if the dredgers can dredge up a million cubic yards of fill and sell it at $9 per cubic yard, that is $9 million or some where there, the people should get their dues.

Having looked at the receipts, I would like briefly to refer to the area of Expenditure. For example, I see that estimated for 1996 for overseas medical fees is $1 million. I think that is some fudging too because on average... and only yesterday the Minister for Health was able to inform the House that the average expenses seem to be running $2 million and over. So to put $1 million in the Estimates would hardly be realistic. So some where along the line it means that Government will have to come for supplementary expenditure.

There are commitments to persons... What was most revealing to me yesterday was the term "legally eligible" for medical aid which seems to be largely to the civil servants. It is really astonishing to know that the legal commitment Government has to provide tertiary medical care to the Civil Service reaches into $4 million and odd. I dare say, that has not been spent on even 80% of the civil servants, it is a very small percentage... in the United States where the costs are so exceptionally high.

So that is the kind of financial situation we are looking at and certainly, I support any Government action that will bring about a proper and reasonable medical insurance scheme. For if the Government has to continue with these types of expenditure without some way of balancing it, or without the means of insurance it is going to get real serious for us. The Civil Service is increasing in staff, it is over 2,000 now and one can expect it will become larger.

It seems to me that this should be a major priority area in comparison to the Capital section where Government is committing $1,772,101 to sports grants and the like. I think, Madam Speaker, that this country needs to get its priorities right because while it may be meeting a political agenda to have stadiums and sports facilities, medical services are essential even for the best athletes, to say nothing of the old and aged. I can speak about it, I cannot cause it to happen because I do not have that authority, the Government does.

Financial assistance as well in expenditure has moved from $790,000 in 1995, to $2,316,100. That is an increase of $1.5 million and that is saying something to us about our social state. I think it is an indicator towards the need for a national pension plan, a mechanism whereby everyone can be covered under a safety net so they have the opportunity of paying a percentage of their salary into a scheme so that when they reach retirement age, they can be assisted by their own savings and benefit from the pension. That is a serious increase. It is going in the direction of social services, and more and more it is becoming clear that people are not benefiting to the extent they should and could, from our healthy economic state that we like to talk about.

Madam Speaker, I also see that sports grants for 1996 are to be in the amount of $468,300 an increase of $226,000 over 1995. Again, spending on sports is fine, but I say sports persons need medical services.

Support grants—$1,590,559 an increase of $833,194 over this year. Again, it points to moneys being expended for the social needs which are obviously there to be met, but Government directly from its revenue can only meet so much without a mechanism, such as, pension or other similar coverage. It is very significant too that 1996 is an Election year, so no one is hurt by any assistance that is given during these times.

Of great significance is that after so much spending this year, on construction of roads, maintenance of roads, repair of roads, only $1 million is provided for next year for all the islands—$1,118,080 and this will come via loans. I hear considerable talk in recent times about the Harquail Bypass and which has been talked about now for the past three years. The need for it does not have to be established because it is very well known. Moneys are constantly diverted in the Budget to be spent in other areas including some moneys that have been earmarked for work on the bypass in the past. For it has never been costed, at least it is not known in the Estimates nor has the cost of it ever been stated in this House, to the best of my knowledge, but amounts such as $400-odd thousand had been placed in the Budget for it and was used elsewhere. Yes, I am made to understand that certain work along that area that is taking place. If that is the case I wonder how this can be done when there is no money at all provided for it in the 1996 Estimates? It should be most edifying to know through what mysterious means this is to be achieved.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: [Inaudible interjection]

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Magic? I understand it is magic. The kind of magic that happens here in this country with the Estimates and Government's expenditures is what cost the people of this country dearly. We will hear of that magic at the end of the year when the Government comes for $15.5 million supplementary appropriation. The magic is transposed into more expenditure and more debts to this country.

Madam Speaker, speaking of debt, the Government of the day boasts of what geniuses they are with the handling of Government's funds, claiming that the previous Government left the country broke which we know is not so by the Auditor General's Report. There were over $10 million left in Reserves which is now down to $4 million. The factual position as given by the Auditor General on the debt of this country, when one takes central Government and the statutory agencies, the self financing loans, in 1992 were $38,731,292; in 1993, $58,560,793; in 1994, $64,552,195. These figures can be checked in the Accountant General's Report.

Now for 1995, we do not know that figure as yet and we will not know until the end of 1996; this is one of the things wrong with the way the Government budgets. If we take the $64 million and add to it, at least the $22 million for the Water Authority that increases it this year to $84,522,195. That of course would be the loan—one of those self-financing loans—that Government took on behalf of the Water Authority.

If we take Government's guarantee for Cayman Airways this year—$4,386,667 that would then bring this year's figure up to $88,908,862. And if we add to it the purchase of the aircraft for Cayman Airways (which Government has underwritten again) of $4,333,333 it would bring this year's figure that I have and can find to $93,242,192. Then if we take the loan the Government intends to take for 1996 of $16,600,000 at least the Government's debt with central and statutory authorities self-financing loans would be $109,842,192.

Madam Speaker, these are figures I have from answers to questions and of course we know about the loan that is to be taken in 1996. There is also at least one Minister, the Honourable Thomas C. Jefferson in replying to the motion on Fiscal Responsibility Act, who acknowledges that this year, from 1992 where it was $38 million there are serious increases in Government expenses. When he said, and I quote: "The total self-financing loans for 1992 is $27.1 million; the total debt which is borrowed directly by Government is $15.8 million. So the total debt is $43 million. When we get to 1993 because the previous Government caused us to borrow $20 million (US) the public debt then climbs to $54 million. At the end of 1994, the total public debt is $61. million." According to the Accountant General's Report it is $64,522,195. We add together the self-financing loans and the loans to central Government.

So it is even higher than the Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce was prone to admit.

Madam Speaker, I have concerns about the debt increase in this country and even though the Government has increased taxes in 1993, on work permits, this year it increased taxes on Tourism Accommodation Tax (from 6% to 10%). Expenditure is overtaking the Government's revenue year by year. In fact this year is a good example where the Government did not have the $202 million it proposes to spend and in truth would be in a deficit position without the loan it proposes to take.

When we take into account that this Government is prepared to earmark $1 million of the General Reserves for a disaster fund, one begins to see a picture emerging as to what must be the policy, the belief, or the intention of the Government of the day.

Madam Speaker, as I look at the year's Estimates I see very little more for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman than what was there for last year. The Statutory Expenditure shows an increase of $218,131,000. So there is very little change in that area.

Under expenditure for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman again, there is a little amount of $180,000 provided for maintenance of buildings and indeed, there is quite a lot of need. The maintenance of roads is only $210,000. It is here in road works that Government is able to help Cayman Brac and Little Cayman most. For it provides the greatest opportunity for the people who get employment in the Public Works Department. That will do very little indeed.

The construction of roads, along with the maintenance and anything associated with the construction of roads will allow some employment. Out of the $1 million allocated, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman get $23,000 to remove obstructions from the roadsides and $22,000 to install a ramp. It is not a very happy state of affairs for those entities that are called the Sister Islands... And Madam Speaker, I would like to just refer to that term for a moment and to say in this honourable House that there is no such place in the Cayman Islands as the Sister Islands. This honourable House changed the term "Lesser Islands" in all its legislation by a unanimous decision to acknowledge that Cayman Brac has a name and so does Little Cayman. Sister Islands is not the name but in Government's documents and correspondence I see regularly the Sister Islands. I wonder what they are talking about and whether any legal contract has been drawn up where someone signed on behalf of the Sister Islands. It would seem not to be legal to me.

Cayman Brac gets other little amounts which I am sure will be spent in the way it was intended and Government will get value for money as it always does over there. But certainly, it does not come in for the creme where there is any creme, but I suppose one needs to be thankful for small mercies.

I think that education has not had its fair share in terms of Government's spending in at least providing physical facilities for Government Schools. Government's schools have, as we have heard in various instances, not been attended to, not had the renovations, not had the extensions which they should have had, while the Government has moved into taking loans to assist private schools to acquire physical facilities to the amount of $1.5 million.

The point I have made each time that has happened is the point that I would like to make again at this [juncture] is that charity begins at home and the Government must first take care of its schools. If the Government finds itself in a position where having taken care of all the requirements of its schools then, and only then, could it reasonably be thought to be right to go to borrow money to give to private schools.

Private schools provide schooling, but exclusively to a percentage of the population that can afford to pay school fees. Government schools provide education for all.

On the matter of schools, I think it is time that the Government consider schools for special education no matter how small they are, for the islands of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Special education is needed there, as it is needed here in Grand Cayman. The children who need special education in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman cannot come here to live because it would mean that the parents would have to come with them or would need to have some means for people to care for them while they go to school here. So there is a need and I think that money should be earmarked for it. Something needs to be done in this area real soon. I say again, the islands of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman form part of the Cayman Islands and they have a right to expect and require and demand their fair share of the Government budget.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: . . . been saying that all along . . . just starting now.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, perhaps the biggest blunder for the Government of the day was when the Government paid $6 million to ensure that the people of this island did not get a modern hospital facility and having spent that, has done nothing over the period of three years to replace that facility that could have been; has piece-meal spent large sums of money on the old structure which forms the George Town Hospital and now would take a loan for $10 million to begin a new structure which right of way is costing—before anything is built—$16 million. The $10 million is but the first phase.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: [laughter]

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture, is sounding off across the floor and he is the architect who killed that hospital project; then he ran away and left it to his colleague who must now defend it.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: [Inaudible interjection]

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: He jumped for Sports, Culture, and Women's Affairs after leaving the country devoid of a hospital.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Why? Because I would not give pregnant women contraceptives?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: And after doing away with the Health Authority and the Pension Plan which were in place, he did away with all of that...

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: On a Point of Order, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order?

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I think the Member traversed this ground in his debate when he began last week, and he seems to be repeating his usual inconsistencies—no one wanted the hospital stopped more than he.

The Speaker: Honourable Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, would you continue the debate? I do not think there is a clear Point of Order in that.

Mr. Roy Bodden: [laughter]

The Speaker: But please do not repeat any of your previous arguments.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I can assure you, Madam Speaker, that I am not repeating any previous arguments. The comments that I made a few moments ago were new and in addition to remarks which I made regarding the hospital.

Madam Speaker, this is the biggest capital expenditure that the Government envisages this year, that of the hospital. I will say that I do not believe the Government is wisely undertaking to build another hospital on the present site, and that $6 million spent is far too much without having anything to show. I can admire the loyalty of the Minister of the day for Health, having been handed the disaster that he will consistently continue to try to undo what was done for him. While I do not think it should be built there, I do sincerely trust that when another Government comes into power—and undoubtedly another Government will, emerging out of the 1996 Election—that Government will not be so far removed from reality and consideration for the people that if that structure gets started, would be so stupid and criminal to think about stopping it. I do sincerely trust that what has happened to the country from that action and the shock waves we are still feeling, we have indeed paid dearly for.

Madam Speaker, this budget that has been brought forward by the Financial Secretary on behalf of the Elected Members of Government has a lot of fudging because if the true cost and value of things were shown in every instance where amounts are shown, it would take this Budget into a much larger amount. As I have pointed out just a short while ago, $1 million for one thing could hardly be the cost of paying overseas medical expense for next year if we take the trend over the years.

I would like to say to the Financial Secretary that the last thing he needs to do is take any comments which might be critical of the Budget... except where they are in fact wrong (and where I am concerned it would surely not be intentional as I try to stay as close to the facts as possible). His predecessor eleven years after he left the Civil Service blamed the Government for what was supposedly the atrocious way the finances had been handled while he was the one who was handling them. So if he bears no blame and on the principle established by himself, surely then, it is not our present Financial Secretary to be blamed, it is the Elected Government of the day.

There is a large amount in the Estimate as well for Cayman Airways ($4 million). I do not think that anyone is arguing the necessity for having Cayman Airways, and we all know that it needs a subsidy—although the present Minister for Cayman Airways would pretend that it does not, saying it is making a profit of $1.5 million. We know that could not be so if Government is injecting close to $5 million, as was shown in the last financial statement last year. It was given various loans and amounts payable to statutory authorities, such as the Civil Aviation Authority (and Government provides certain free services, which it should). A little bit of truth would keep this country in better touch with the true situation regarding Cayman Airways.

One of the things that has helped Cayman Airways to reach where there is some semblance of enough money to run the Airline, where a lack of money has always been a problem with it, was the loan which Cayman Airways took, the $16 million CI, or $20 million US.

We hear the Government of the day stating the last Government took that loan and that they did not. Well, I think for the sake of truth, just like the Government could break a loan agreement with the banks in regard to the hospital, they surely could have broken the agreement for the $16 million loan. The truth is that they needed that money. The Minister was the one who, along with his Ministers, boasts that because of their credibility and good management of Government, they were able to get the money that had been approved by the House.

I would also point out that the Minister for Cayman Airways quoted against that recapitalisation back in 1992. He is on record as voting against that. I will quote one brief statement from the 1992 Official Hansard Report, where the present Minister said: "I believe that the money which Cayman Airways has recently received is sufficient to keep it going for some months to come. I have had to think long and hard in relation to this bill and I have had to weigh many things, including the national interest of the country in reaching a decision on this loan of $16.8 million." He voted against it, Madam Speaker.

I wonder, as he did then when he said: "What I have noticed is that the Member for Tourism has not said precisely how the $16.8 million is going to be spent. I am not going to stand here and give an open cheque of $16.8 million to be put into the capital and/or loan. It seems as if it would be a loan rather than a capitalisation with what the Member has said to the Directors and Management of Cayman Airways..."

Mr. Roy Boddén: Read on brother, let those words haunt him!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: ... and in the light of the failure to carry out the reports by the experts which could have saved this country millions on top of millions of dollars."

That is what the Minister then said about it and about what a wonderful report SH&E (Simat, Helliesen and Eichner, Inc) had written and the Air Lingus Report. I have since heard those reports ripped apart for their content.

I make the point for the element of truth. Let us be truthful about what is happening here. Let us tell the truth in regards to the financial condition of Cayman Airways, full well knowing (and we all agree) that it needs a subsidy, but do not say today that the Government had to take a loan for Cayman Airways. It had to take the loan, yes. But not because the last Government got that loan, but because there was no other way out of helping the Airline.

Lastly I read the sentence where it says, quoting the present Minister for Cayman Airways: "Today we are looking at a loan of $16.8 million. The reason why I have brought this out clearly is that I believe that if the proper steps had been taken and taken early enough, we would not have had what I call a national financial disaster on our hands because the nation will pay for the $16.8 million." The nation is going to pay for the $16.6 million next year too. It is going to pay dearly for it and it seems that the same fears that were in existence then continue to be in existence now.

The Courts Building continues to need work, there is not sufficient space. It has been talked about for so long and nothing has been done. It is an area I would encourage the Government to act on quickly. It seems that there is no decrease in the work which the Court is expected to carry on.

Broadcasting—now Information and Broadcasting—is in a very pitiful state of affairs. Crowded into one building that was built for the radio station is now Information and the radio station. I have seen boxes piled to the ceiling by the door and elsewhere. I still do not believe that combination was a good one. Government Information is Government's propaganda vehicle and when I say propaganda, it is the correct term for putting out information from Government, and I do not mean it in any derogatory sense. It puts out what the official information of Government is.

I think that over the years Radio Cayman has been paying its way. I have said many times at Budget time, and I would like to note this again, that Radio Cayman should be put into a statutory authority and given the opportunity to function as it could. I believe that the time has also come for Government to enter into the television field to disseminate information along the lines of a public broadcasting system. That is not happening now.

Television gives the opportunity to develop people there to enter this field. We have it privately now, but I do think that Government needs to have its own, no matter how small an operation it may start out to be.

The building which houses Radio Cayman does provide space and area which was designed, I am told, for a television room.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, can we take the suspension at this time?

All Members have been invited to a Thanksgiving luncheon. I therefore propose to suspend proceedings now. We will resume at 2.00. I ask Members to make every effort to commence promptly at 2.00.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.56 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.04 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continuing the debate.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I had concluded my debate at the time of the suspension.

The Speaker: I am sorry, I did not realise that. [Pause]

I believe that the function of the House is to continue the debate on the Second Reading of the Appropriation (1996) Bill, 1995.

If no one wishes to continue, I will ask the Honourable Third Official Member if he would like to wind up his debate.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I must say the winding up of the debate on the Budget is somewhat of a surprise because I was expecting for it to be a longer debate. Under these circumstances it seems I will have to thank Members for their support and the two Members who have spoken, the Third Elected Member for West Bay for his support of the Government's financial stewardship, and also the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman for his comments as well.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman gave some figures on the Government's public debt position. I think it is necessary for me to comment on what the Government's position was as at the end of 1992.

Based on the information which is available, the Government's public debt position as at the end of 1992 was $42.9 million. This can be broken down into: Statutory Corporations, or self-financing loans $27.1 million; Central Government indebtedness $15.8 million. At the end of 1993 this climbed to $54.1 million reflecting a 26% increase over the year end 1992 provision.

The 1993 position was then comprised of Statutory indebtedness $26.5 million; a reduction of approximately $600,000 from that of 1992, and public debt climbed from $15.8 million to $27.6 million. This took into account the drawdown in respect of the loan for the recapitalisation of Cayman Airways, and it also recognised a reduction that would have come about as a result of payments made by Central Government against its aggregate indebtedness.

At the end of 1994 we see Statutory Authorities, or self-financing loans at $24.1 million and the public debt climbing from $21.6 million to $37 million. This took into account the borrowings that were introduced in 1994 in order to finance the capital development programmes. Essentially $8 million plus. Also it would have recognised reductions that would have come about from repayments as well.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: On a point of order, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: According to the figures which the Financial Secretary is giving about the year 1994... is not the summary at appendix 2 of the 1996 Estimates correct where it shows $37,024,723, and $27,497,472, which would make it $64 million if you add the two together.

The Speaker: It is a point of clarification. Would the Honourable Third Official Member please explain?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Appearing in the Estimates as referred to by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman represents the preliminary position of the Treasury. What I am now referring to is the final position as concluded by the Treasury in respect of these years. So the figures I am quoting are the correct figures as provided by the Treasury Department.

The Speaker: Are those figures readily available to the House or is it the first time you are presenting it?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, these figures can be made available to be tabled in this Honourable House.

The Speaker: I think it is rather unusual to table something after you have already presented your Estimates. Why do you not have copies readily available to Members right now? Please, before you continue I think it would be in order to have that done.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the information I am presenting is in response to the arguments put forward by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, it is not a question of introducing anything new.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I think that it is new material. The Financial Secretary is saying that the financial position of Government is different than what is on appendix 2 here. This, supposedly, is taken from the report of the Accountant General and this is the end of 1995, and one would assume these would be the correct figures.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the page the Honourable Member is referring to is about the seventh page from the rear of the Estimates. It shows that the Central Government's indebtedness is $37 million which corresponds with the figures I quoted earlier. So this is not new, this is in agreement. Where there is a difference is where the Estimates is showing a figure of $27.4 million for Statutory Authorities and what I am now reading from is saying $24 million which is a difference of $3 million.

The aggregate position therefore, according to my document which I have in my hand, is $61.2 million which is a reduction of $3 million as against what is presented in the Estimates. The document in my hand is an updated position since the figures in this Estimate were compiled. So essentially, we are looking at a difference of $3 million in Statutory Authority indebtedness.

We are looking at the position at the end of 1994 and the correct position is $61.2 million, which is $3 million less than what has been stated in the Estimates. We are looking at a difference of $3 million. The reason is because of the refinement that has taken place.

Let me point out that when we present these Estimates in the House during the Budget Address, it is not a question that the figures are compiled the day before they are brought here. These are figures that we would have commended rounding up three or more months in advance. When we get to the end of the year it is not unusual to find that there is a difference.

Granted, the difference of $3 million can be regarded as quite material in relationship to the self financing loan. But overall, we are seeing a progression. If we were to take this, even on the basis of what is in the Estimates itself, just using the Estimates, the 1992 position has not changed. The aggregate position as at the end of 1992 was $42.9 million. At the end of 1993 it has gone to $54.1 million. At the end of 1994, if I were to substitute the figures inside the Estimates, although these figures have since been refined to show that they are $61.2, and take it at $64 million, we are seeing an increase of approximately $10 million.

In effect we would have had an increase of less than 20% during this period.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Estimates show what the Accountant General said was the position as at 31st December, 1994, we are one year from that, so we must assume that the Accountant General's and Auditor General's reports which have been out for some time must be the correct figures.

If it is not, it means we are being misled and I want to ask that at least the Honourable Financial Secretary table the document that he is quoting from for the benefit of the House.

The Speaker: Honourable Member I do not think that anybody is being misled because as you have rightly referred, the figures in the Estimates are up to 31st December, 1994. The Financial Secretary has already explained that the refined figures following that time—this is now November, so I think he is quite in order in presenting what is at this time the true financial picture.

Would you continue Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development?

I am sure that he will be letting each Member have a copy of that document.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Even if it remains at $64 million, as presented in the Estimates, if I take the position not to change those figures, we are looking at an increase of approximately $10 million. Although I know the figures I read earlier are more accurate, we are looking at an increase of approximately $10 million.

When we add the $16.16 million on to this $64 million, we are looking at approximately $80 million. That will effectively be the position. But when we add the $16.1 million on to the Central Government's indebtedness, we are taking $37 million, and when we add $16.16 on to this, we are coming up with approximately $51.16 million.

The Statutory Authorities is where this disparity comes about. But with the self-financing loans this honourable House and you, Madam Speaker, are aware that the Government initially made a repayment up front and recovers the cost of the repayment from the Statutory Authorities themselves. What this honourable House would have to be concerned about... while it is concerned in terms of direct indebtedness and contingent liabilities of Government, the element that constitutes a direct burden on the General Revenue will be the Central Government indebtedness. It is a question of servicing the $51 million. This is the position and this takes into account the projections through the end of...

So, with no new borrowings being made in 1995, and the projected borrowings as set out in the Estimates for 1996, we are looking at slightly over $50 million as constituting the Central Government's indebtedness.

Another point that I would like to clarify is that in his address this morning, the honourable Member pointed out that looking at the revised revenue position for tourism accommodation tax, gave the figure as $9,534,494. I know that this was an oversight by the honourable Member. The revised position as shown in the Estimates is $6,354,000, which is substantially below the $8,385,000 projected as the revenue to be derived from this source for the year 1996.

The reason for the disparity between the approved 1995 of $9,534,494 was mentioned during the winding up debate on the 1995 Budget, or at a subsequent date. The increase in the tourism accommodation tax from 6% to 10% which should have come into effect on 1st June, after the Honourable Minister for Tourism met with the industry, a decision was taken that it would be best for this increase to be implemented at a later date. It was agreed that it would be introduced on 1st June, and we know that the first five months of the year represents the front loaded months for tourism. As such this is where that element of tax would have suffered the reduction that it did. We are looking at a reduction in excess of $2 million. This is what accounts for the difference.

What we see here is the position of 1996 taking everything rolled up. Obviously the 10% will be effective right across the board for 1996.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman also commented on Immigration fees reflecting an increase. It is true that we are having an increase in terms of persons coming into the islands. As a result of that we are seeing a commensurate increase in Immigration fees. But the Member is very much correct that the Government must be concerned about this. But we are having quite a substantial increase in activities within the financial industry. As a result of that we are having a commensurate increase in work permits.

I think the Government must look in terms of the Financial Services Sector being a service industry. It was necessary when we introduced the Mutual Funds Legislation, I do not think anyone would have envisaged the level of growth which has taken place in that short time span. Job opportunities are being created. I think it is much better for us in the interim to allow the work permits that should be granted in order to retain the job opportunities within the Cayman job market rather than for those opportunities to be exported overseas. In the absence of the manpower in order to carry out the necessary administrative activities, this is normally what would take place. We know that even with the increase we have seen in non-nationals coming in to fill the job opportunities being created, we have quite a lot of back-room activities taking place in some of the other Financial Centres as a result of Mutual Funds activities in Cayman.

We can envisage a further increase in this because this is to be assumed once the stock exchange is introduced. We are then going to see, instead of these vehicles being formed in Cayman with the administrative activities being dealt with elsewhere, we will then provide great opportunities for a greater bulk of the work related activities to be done in the Cayman Islands. We know that the level of skill required are not those that come about in a short term. It will take some time for the local industry to develop the necessary expertise.

I have also looked at the comments in the papers that suggested that with the increase taking place in Government's expenditure, there is a need to look very carefully at how much of Government's revenue is being allocated toward Capital Expenditure. This is something this Government and past governments have always been concerned about.

This year we can see that approximately $10 million will be going in to fund Capital projects from local revenue. I think there is always a need for recurrent expenditure to be looked at very carefully, particularly the element that is being applied to personal emoluments. Since the introduction of the Budget in the House, one Member in particular (I think the Second Elected Member for George Town) was saying today that this is an area which the Government will have to look at very carefully.

I think it was mentioned in the Budget Address that an exercise should be carried out whereby the entire service will be looked at because we can look in terms of value for money, and we know, in terms of the Civil Service being a service-centred activity. This will require quite a bit of manpower. I do not think of it as waste. We have to be very prudent and vigilant to make sure that empire building is not taking place within any department and that the level of manpower available to carry out work-related activities to the optimum level of efficiency required for any department to function effectively, that only the required members of staff to achieve that are in place.

Overall, we have to be very careful in 1996 as in past years. It is not a question that we see growth taking place in the Budget, so as a result of that more resources are available. But we have to be sure that in the long run we are achieving good macroeconomic management. There is accountability and stewardship on the part of controlling officers.

One point I would like to mention, and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman made reference to it this morning, about certain areas of under collection of revenues. In this regard he was quite right.

I think this is where the controlling officers will have to ensure that they follow through with their stewardship and obligations to ensure that revenues due to Government are collected.

I know from the feedback of certain information provided during the recent Public Accounts Committee sitting that certain controlling officers seem to have conveyed the impression that the collection of revenue is not their responsibility any more and should become the responsibility of the debt collection unit of Government.

This is absolutely wrong because every person that is paid a salary has an obligation to make sure that whatever his or her responsibilities are, they are efficiently and effectively carried out. Where departments are established to raise revenue in order to fund the services provided by Government, a controlling officer who fails to carry out that responsibility is also shirking a part of his responsibility.

These are areas where, as we move forward into the 21st Century, we have to look very carefully. The budget is not just a document. It represents an instrument of economic policy. We are using this instrument in order to marshal our resources for the betterment of society overall. I think we have a very good track record behind us and we must continue into the future with no less vigilance.

I would once more like to thank you, Madam Speaker, and Honourable Members of this House and the staff within the Portfolio of Finance and Development, my Deputy who has spent many long nights in the office, the staff of the Economics and Statistics Unit, who put together the economic section of the Budget. They have done an excellent job and continue to look very carefully into Government's macroeconomic management policies.

I am also thankful to the controlling officers, although I mentioned earlier that some of them take the view that the collection of revenue should not be given a priority, I should say that the officers who do this are in the minority because I know that the bulk of the Civil Service is very much concerned to ensure that all work-related activities that each officer is accountable for is normally done.

Thank you all, very much.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Appropriation (1996) Bill, 1995, be given a second reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Second Reading and stands committed to the Finance Committee together with the Draft Estimates previously laid on the Table of the House.

AGREED. IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PROVISIONS OF STANDING ORDER 63(3), THE DRAFT ESTIMATES AND APPROPRIATION (1996) BILL, 1995, STOOD REFERRED TO THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE.

The Speaker: It is now left for the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to set a date for Finance Committee.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I would like to propose that we meet tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock to commence the proceedings.

The Speaker: Accordingly, Finance Committee will meet under the chairmanship of the Honourable Third Official Member tomorrow, Friday, 24th November, 1995, at 9.00 AM.

I will now ask for the adjournment of the House until proceedings in Finance Committee have been concluded.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this honourable House until the conclusion of the proceedings of the Standing Finance Committee.

The Speaker: The question is that this honourable House do now adjourn until the conclusion of the proceedings of the Standing Finance Committee.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

The House is accordingly adjourned until after the conclusion of proceedings of the Standing Finance Committee.

AT 2.37 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL THE CONCLUSION OF PROCEEDINGS OF THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE.

MONDAY
11 DECEMBER, 1995
10.20 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. John B. McLean: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Order. Proceedings are resumed.

The Oath of Allegiance to Miss Heather Dianne Bodden, to be the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. Miss Bodden, will you please come forward to the Clerk's table?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

*To Miss Heather Dianne Bodden
To be The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town*

Miss Heather D. Bodden: I, Heather Dianne Bodden, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II her heirs and successors according to law. So help me God.

The Speaker: Would you take your seat in the place allotted for the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town?
[Third Elected Member approaches wrong seat]

The Speaker: The seat is in the back.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: The House Committee changed it to that one.

The Speaker: I was not aware of that and I think that she should sit in the place that has been set aside for the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. Thank you.

On behalf of this honourable House, I welcome the Third Elected lady Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am truly honoured to have been given this great mission by the people of the Bodden Town District. To all those who have placed their confidence and trust in me, I would like to say: You can count on me.

My sincere thanks go out to the voters and to all my friends and loyal supporters. Thanks also to the media for their fair and balanced coverage.

I would also like to extend my deep appreciation to the members of my campaign committee, especially those who nominated me, Mr. Jerry Wood and Mrs. Kadie Ebanks. All the committee members have shown so much energy, enthusiasm and dedication throughout this race.

My enduring gratitude goes to the National Team and the other Elected Members who have been so supportive of my candidacy from the very beginning. Finally, my warmest thanks to my family. Without their encouragement and belief in me, I could never have taken on this challenge.

As I step into my new role, I would like to express my deep respect to the man I have been chosen to replace, Mr. Haig Bodden, whose long career of public service to the people of these islands will never be forgotten. It is my goal to live up to the expectation he had for this position.

Besides being a great moment in my life, this is also a very historic moment in political life in Cayman—as I am the second woman from Bodden Town to be elected to Parliament. I believe I was elected to fill this position on the strength of my track record, but also on the strength of my character. The voters of Bodden Town have had an opportunity to see what I have achieved in my community, and they know that I have only one desire—to do even more for all of my district. They also know my unshakeable faith in God and my commitment to the Christian principles of honesty, integrity and charity towards others.

Our country has made significant strides in the past several years on both economic and social fronts. The December 6 vote was in many ways a show of confidence in this progress and a desire to see this forward movement continue.

I am pleased to see that our young people are more optimistic today than they have been in quite some time. Their future is brighter and the opportunities offered to them are bigger and better than ever. They are more likely today to engage in healthy activity with the wise investments Government has made in sports. This positive situation is reflected in the decrease in juvenile crime which is down significantly since 1992.

Government must continue to pave the way to a brighter future for our young people. For far too long the social needs of Cayman were left on the back burner. This is changing now. At the same time, economic development is overwhelming us so it is more important than ever for us to be vigilant and to hold on to our heritage, culture and our identity. If we lose those precious assets we will fail to live in peace and harmony with those around us, and that has never been our way of life in Cayman.

My main focus over the next year will be on the immediate needs of my constituency. There is much to be done, but we will be working on a strong action plan that will improve not just basic infrastructure, like roads, schools and street-lighting, but also the quality of life for everyone.

There are many social needs to be attended to, particularly those of our young people and senior citizens who require special care as they are more vulnerable now than the rest of us. I have also made it my goal to work closely with my two female colleagues in the Legislative Assembly on the issues relating to women's rights.

Finally, I would like to make this pledge to my district and to the people of Cayman: I am here to work for you, to work in a spirit of cooperation and harmony to make these islands a better place to live for all of us.

Madam Speaker, allow me to close by saying: "The woods are lovely, dark and deep. But I have promises to keep, And miles to go before I sleep..." It is with great joy that I set off to go the extra mile for my people.

Thank you, and God bless.

[Applause]

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 10.23 AM

REPORT OF THE STANDING BUSINESS COMMITTEE (Meeting held 1st June, 1995)

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House, the Report of the Standing Business Committee for meeting held 1st June, 1995.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

REPORT OF THE STANDING BUSINESS COMMITTEE (Meeting held 8th September, 1995)

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House the Report of the Standing Business Committee for the meeting of the 8th September, 1995.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Draft discussion of a Bill for a Law relating to the Provision of a Health Insurance Bill.

The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

DRAFT FOR DISCUSSION OF A BILL FOR A LAW RELATING TO THE PROVISION OF A HEALTH INSURANCE BILL

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House the Draft for discussion of a Bill for a Law relating to the Provision of a Health Insurance Bill.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This is a draft of a Bill for a Law relating to the Provision of Health Insurance. I would like at this point to stress to honourable Members and the public at large that this is a draft bill and it is being tabled to give the entire community the opportunity to provide input and feedback.

These islands have been richly blessed over the last 30 years, and we can not say now as we could then, that we are a place that time forgot. As we have developed we have had to recognise that issues which did not affect us in the past, certainly do now. The need to protect ourselves against rising health care costs is only one of these issues.

I would like to give an overview and the background of where we came from and where we are at now.

Honourable Members will remember that following the General Election held in November 1992, Government suspended the previous health insurance legislation—The Health Care Insurance Law, 1992, and The Health Care Insurance Regulations, 1992—in order to reassess many of the concerns that were felt and expressed prior to the election. A committee was set up by the then Ministry and the private sector which began the process of investigating the provision of realistic health insurance coverage.

Among the concerns referred to above were:

(i) the very strong belief on the part of health insurers and others that the prescribed maximum premium for a standard health care insurance contract was unrealistic and unworkable and would therefore have, of necessity, to have increased dramatically in the second and successive years of operation;

(ii) a widespread belief that if insurers were not prepared to sell the basic package at the mandated premium, they would not be allowed to sell any other kind of health insurance in the Cayman Islands. Many employees feared, that as a consequence of this, they would lose excellent existing benefits under their present health insurance schemes; and

(iii) the prescribed maximum premium for a standard health care insurance contract for those over 65 was felt by many to be unnecessarily high.

These concerns apart, this Government remains extremely concerned at the increasing cost to Government of providing health-care locally for the resident population and overseas for Caymanians. To compound the problem there has developed over the years, a marked resistance to repay Government for services provided locally and for funds advanced to individuals for treatment overseas.

Government recognises that there are various categories within the resident population of the Cayman Islands to which it is committed to provide access to free health care benefits. It is a fact, however, that the numbers in certain of these categories continue to increase and Government must consider how it may best protect itself against the risk of costs arising out of cases of catastrophic illness.

Government is giving consideration, while drafting the Regulations, to the following:

Indigents: Common decency and compassion demands that we recognise that those individuals who have demonstrated that they do not have the means to pay the premium under the standard health insurance contract must nonetheless have equal access to necessary health care. Government must therefore be prepared to subsidise the premium.

Civil Servants and Pensioners: Government has made provision within certain limitations to cover the cost of tertiary care overseas for eligible civil servants, their spouses and dependants, as well as Government pensioners and their spouses and widows. Government also provides free health care at all Cayman Islands Government health care facilities for these categories of persons and will take out health insurance coverage for them. While it is not estimated that the cost of such cover will reduce Government's current level of expenditure, the expenditure would be contained to a predetermined figure.

Seamen and Veterans: Government has made provision for retired seamen age 55 and over and their spouses (or widows) as well as members of the Veterans Association and their spouses (or widows) to receive free medical treatment, excluding optical and hearing aids, at all Government health care facilities.

It should be noted that retired seamen and members of the Veterans Association who are at present also covered by health insurance, are required to use these policies to pay for health care fees incurred by them.

There are also various categories within the resident population where Government will continue to incur costs:

The 65 and Over Age Group: The premium under the proposed standard health insurance contract is expected to be significantly higher for this age group. Where the need can be demonstrated, Government will determine how best to assist.

Government Advances to Individuals for Tertiary Care Overseas: Government has had limited success in recovering fees paid to health care providers overseas on an advance basis for those unable to pay when fees are due. Government must place responsibility for making provision for such eventuality firmly in the hands of the recipients of health care services. Government must therefore ensure that proper securities are in place, and that legal instruments drawn up to secure the advance payment by such parties, will stand up in a court of law and that penalties will be prescribed under the Regulations for those in default of payment.

With respect to requests to Government for advances to pay medical fees, residents are strongly encouraged to avoid relying on this potentially costly approach to managing unforeseen high costs for medical treatment. Government expects to be repaid by all those who have the means. Relying on the standard health insurance contract to provide coverage for minimum benefits is not a solution to this problem, and residents who are able to do so, should take out additional coverage.

Patients Receiving Treatment for Communicable Diseases: Patients being treated for certain communicable diseases such as AIDS, are potentially very costly to Government. Government must devise a means of "spreading the risk" of such costs.

Treatment of Mental and Nervous Disorders, Drug and Alcohol Addiction: Government must also give consideration to what provision can be made for the individuals within this category.

Government is now seeking to ensure that the burden of payment is shifted from Government to the recipients of health care services. For this reason, it is proposing that health insurance is mandated by law for the entire resident population of the Cayman Islands and that payment will be due, through health insurance coverage, for all services provided at Government health care facilities in the Cayman Islands unless that user or service is otherwise exempt. I stress again that at this stage we are seeking public consideration and feedback on this draft bill.

Of paramount consideration is the fact that any premium under any proposed health insurance plan is affordable for the entire population and, in particular, for those categories that are deemed to be most in need of health insurance coverage. To this end the desirability of a comprehensive health plan covering most eventualities must be balanced against what the health insurance premium will cost. Government must not leave itself in a position where, having mandated health insurance, finds that the enabling legislation soon proves to be unworkable due to the inability of many individuals to pay the premiums.

With this position in mind, Government through Executive Council authorised the Minister of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to set up a Health Insurance Advisory Committee in order to proceed towards the goal of providing a national health insurance programme for Caymanians and legal residents. Memberships of the Committee consisted of Ministers of Government, the Chief Secretary and representatives from the following:

- The Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation
- The Financial Services Department
- The local Insurance Industry
- The Chamber of Commerce
- The Bankers Association
- The Cayman Islands Medical and Dental Society.

The Terms of Reference for the Committee are:

- (i) Examine and report on all aspects related to the issue of providing health insurance coverage to all Caymanians and legal residents;
- (ii) Review all present and past health insurance coverage proposals for the Cayman Islands and identify existing issues affecting, or obstacles preventing, such coverage being put in place;
- (iii) Consider appropriate solutions (with as accurate and detailed costing as possible) to any issues or obstacles as identified under the preceding terms of reference; and
- (iv) As a priority, to examine and report on with recommendations, the various health insurance options open to Government so that it may discharge its obligations as regard to health care for eligible civil servants.

The Health Insurance Advisory Committee commenced its series of meetings 25 January, 1995.

I wish to express at this time my appreciation to all Members for their support and advice since then.

I turn now to a review of the objectives of the draft bill and will provide a brief summary of the main clauses.

This Bill seeks to establish a system of compulsory and voluntary health insurance in the Cayman Islands whereby most persons, including the unemployed, can obtain health insurance.

Under clause three, an employer is responsible for effecting and continuing in force, a standard health insurance contract on behalf of himself, his non-employed spouse, his employees and the non-employed spouse and children of his employees. Any person who is not covered by a contract effected by an employer must effect a contract on his own behalf and that of his unemployed spouse and his children unless he cannot afford to do so. The Governor in Council may exempt any employer or employee from the provisions of this clause.

Payment of Premium: Under clauses four and five, an employer is required to pay the premiums under a health insurance contract but he is entitled to deduct half of the cost of the premium for the employee and the total cost of the premium for the spouse and children of the employee from the remuneration of the employee.

Unlawful deductions by employer:

Clause six provides that it is an offence for an employer to deduct more than the amount he is entitled to deduct and an employer is liable on summary conviction for such an offence to a fine.

Employees must provide information to employer: An employee is required under clause seven to keep his employer informed of all facts related to the employer's liability to insure that employee. An employee may be fined for failure to comply with this requirement.

Provision is also made, under the Draft Bill, for the following:

An employee may recover from an employer who has failed to effect a standard health insurance contract or to pay the required premiums, a sum equal to the amount of any benefit lost;

It is also provided that any person may voluntarily conclude a contract of health insurance with a licensed insurer. That is to say, it is not the intention, under this law, to prevent any person from concluding with a licensed insurer a contract of health insurance which provides benefits either for himself, his employees, his spouse or children which are greater than those contained in a standard health insurance contract. For the purpose of clarity, a licensed insurer is an insurer licensed under the Insurance Law (1995 Revision);

The Draft Bill also provides for claims to a health benefit or questions arising in connection with a standard health insurance contract, to be determined in the first instance by a regulatory agency and for an appeal to the Grand Court arising from any decision by the regulatory agency;

Finally, in clause 18, the Draft Bill specifies the matters for which the Governor in Council may make regulations which shall be subject to affirmative resolution.

Anticipated Benefits and Maximum Premium: I turn now to the Anticipated Minimum Benefits and will comment later on the expected maximum premium.

The prescribed health care benefits are the minimum benefits prescribed by the Regulations to be included in a standard health insurance contract. This, however, shall not limit the health care benefits to be offered by any licensed insurer under the standard health insurance contract to the prescribed health care benefits.

Anticipated minimum benefits: Though this is as yet not finalised, it is anticipated that the prescribed health care benefits will include the following:

HOSPITAL SERVICES (IN-PATIENT)

- ♦ Accommodation and meals.
- ♦ Physicians', specialists' and surgeons' services.
- ♦ Anaesthesia, use of operating and recovery rooms.
- ♦ Use of all In-Patient care units.
- ♦ General and special duty nursing services.
- ♦ Oxygen, surgical and medical supplies, surgical appliances, implants, drugs and medications.
- ♦ Inhalation therapy, physiotherapy and other rehabilitative therapy.

- ◆ * Routine laboratory and pathological studies (including overseas referrals of such studies by government physicians).
- ◆ X-ray and ultrasound services.
- * Tests will be specified.

OUT-PATIENT SERVICES

- ◆ Primary care physician office visits.
- ◆ Specialist office visits.
- ◆ * Routine laboratory tests and pathological studies.
- ◆ X-ray, ultrasound and mammography studies.
- ◆ Haemodialysis.
- ◆ Inhalation therapy, physiotherapy and other rehabilitative therapy when prescribed by physician.
- ◆ Pre-hospital services. (Ambulance service for essential cases).
- ◆ Emergency room services.
- ◆ Antenatal services at a Government health care facility.
- ◆ Medication/drugs prescribed on an out-patient basis at a Government health care facility.
- * Tests will be specified.

In the case of both in patient and out patient services, some limitations will have to be placed on routine laboratory tests and pathological studies as the range is so extensive that it would not be possible to cover them all within an affordable premium. The intention is, however, to cover the tests most commonly required by physicians.

THE PRESCRIBED HEALTH CARE BENEFITS WILL NOT INCLUDE:

- ◆ Orthopaedic braces, prosthetic devices, etc.
- ◆ Maintenance repair of any artificial limb or other artificial appliances.
- ◆ Cosmetic or plastic surgery unless necessary to correct traumatic injury.
- ◆ Dental work or treatment, dental X-ray, extractions, fillings and general dental work except dental surgery for the excision of impacted teeth, or a tumour/cyst, or treatment of sound natural teeth damaged as a result of injury.
- ◆ Aids for vision and hearing.
- ◆ Diagnostic services performed to satisfy the requirements of third parties.
- ◆ Treatment of mental disorders, nervous disorders, chronic alcoholism or drug addiction.
- ◆ Custodial, social care or rest cures.
- ◆ Transfer by ambulance.

PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICES

Fees will be PAYABLE by the patient for the following Public Health Services:

- ◆ International health e.g. vaccinations for international travel.

- ◆ Home health services.

On the other hand, fees will NOT BE PAYABLE for the following Public Health Services: School health services, health promotion, contraceptive services, immunization, Well Baby Clinic visits, post-natal home visits, parentcraft classes and for patients who are being investigated or treated for communicable diseases, e.g. AIDS, tuberculosis, malaria.

The prescribed health care benefits are based on the current schedule of fees as set out under the Health Services (Fees) Law, 1993, for services provided at Cayman Islands Government health care facilities.

Consideration is being given to how the payment for health care treatment provided outside the Cayman Islands under the standard health insurance contract can be effected.

THE REGULATIONS

The Regulations are in the process of being drafted and will be determined to some extent by response/reaction to the Draft Bill for the Law. Regulations shall be made for the purpose of carrying the Law into effect and may, among other things, prescribe the health care benefits to be covered by the standard health insurance contract; and prescribe the maximum premium that may be charged in respect of a person under a standard health insurance contract.

It is anticipated that Government will consider a delay of two years after commencement of the implementation of the scheme before effecting increases in the fees under the Health Services (Fees) Law, 1993. This will allow time for the Law now proposed and the Regulations to come into effect and for experience gained thereby to be utilized for future revisions of the Law and/or Regulations.

It is further anticipated that coinsurance rates from 10-20% will apply. Under the coinsurance rate, the person insured will be required to bear that portion of the cost (10 or 20%) of the health care provided under the standard health insurance contract.

For children and adults up to age 64 the maximum premium per person per month is expected to be from $40 to $67 at a 10% coinsurance rate, and $34 to $55 at a 20% coinsurance rate. The rates may be reduced by $3—$12 per person per month depending on the coinsurance rate if the provision for prescription medication provided on an out-patient basis is removed from the prescribed health-care benefits under the standard health insurance contract.

The above estimates are based on feedback from five providers of health insurance coverage who are licensed to operate in the Cayman Islands. It applies to individuals up to and including age 64. The same level of benefits, if the 65 and over age group is included, would result in an estimated premium of $42 to $100 per person per month, whatever the age of the individual.

To include the 65 and over in setting the maximum premium would result in an increased premium rate for the rest of the population. On the other hand, to single out the 65 and over would mean that the estimated maximum premium for them could be expected to range from $60 to $190 at a 10% coinsurance rate and $55 to $180 at a 20% coinsurance rate. The rates may be reduced by $7 to $20 per person per month depending on the coinsurance rate if the provision for prescription medication provided on an out-patient basis is removed from the prescribed health-care benefits under the standard health insurance contract.

It seems logical, therefore, that two maximum premium rates should be set. One rate would apply to children as well as adults up to the age of 64; the other rate would apply to the 65 and over age group. For the two thousand plus residents who are 65 and over and in those cases where the need can be demonstrated, Government will have to determine how best to assist with the premium.

There would be nothing in the proposed Regulations that would prohibit licensed insurers operating in a competitive market from offering a lower premium for the prescribed minimum benefits under a standard health insurance contract.

PUBLIC INPUT

Madam Speaker, as I have made clear, this is a draft bill still awaiting consideration by and feedback from the community at large. Government is very sensitive to the fact that people are having more and more demands made on them and that it must listen closely to all parties concerned. On the other hand, we must face the fact that Government cannot continue to bear so much of the increasing cost involved in maintaining a healthy population.

Government is not some external organisation, Government is all of us. Money not collected as revenue from reluctant debtors means money not spent on upgrading or expanding services, or improving the infrastructure. We as individuals must take some of the responsibility for providing for ourselves, even though this may mean that we have to reconsider our priorities and how we spend our personal income.

Health care funding and access to health care by all of a nation's citizens are major issues of all modern countries whether they be developed, or developing. There are no easy solutions and I am certain that here in the Cayman Islands, Government will have to be prepared to make some difficult decisions in the years ahead in the area of health care provision and its associated costs. To deny this is to simply stick one's head in the sand.

This draft bill is a beginning and I urge all Caymanians and residents to familiarise themselves with it and to provide input and feedback. It is proposed that the draft bill will be revised to take into account feedback received from the public.

In the meantime, drafting of the proposed Health Insurance Regulations will be finalised and these will also be put out for public discussion and feedback. The Regulations will also be revised following feedback.

God willing, in March, 1996 the revised Bill for a Law Relating to the Provision of Health Insurance, along with the revised health insurance Regulations will be presented to the Legislative Assembly for approval.

Thank you. Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Water Authority Annual Report.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

THE WATER AUTHORITY ANNUAL REPORT 1994

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House, the Water Authority Annual Report for 1994.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The year 1994 brought many significant changes to the Water Authority, both in staffing and in its direction. I am pleased to report that the Authority weathered these changes well and is, in fact, a stronger and more cohesive organisation than it was at the end of 1993.

The Water Authority continued to strengthen its financial position in 1994 with a 14% increase in operating revenue during the year. This was accomplished primarily through increased water revenue resulting from expansion of the water distribution area into Bodden Town and Pease Bay. Total operating revenue for 1994 was $7,467,689, plus sundry income of $361,276 which was paid to the Authority for licencing fees, agency work, and water supply royalties.

A significant achievement during the year was an 85% increase in the net profit ratio based on net surplus before extraordinary items. This increase was realised despite significant foreign exchange losses from the now repaid long term loan with Caribbean Development Bank, and was mainly due to an improvement in the operating surplus which increased by 67% during the year.

Total operating expenses increased only marginally from $5,553,298 in 1993, to $5,597,356 in 1994, despite a significant increase in sales.

The Authority benefited from cost reductions from a renegotiated water supply agreement with its primary water supplier, Ocean Conversion Ltd. In addition, electricity consumption was reduced on the sewerage system by repair work which was completed in mid-1993, and the Authority aggressively shopped for less-expensive alternative materials for water supply and sewerage connections. As a result the gross profit ratio also increased during the year from 15% in 1993, to 25% in 1994.

Administrative expenses increased by 33% in 1994, compared to 18% in 1993. This increase was mainly due to the July 1994 increase in salaries, staff training and benefits, bad debts, and insurance expenses. In addition, staff salaries which had been previously costed to the water supply project were carried as administrative expense in the latter part of 1994.

The Authority's return on capital employed was 3.64% for 1994 (3.99% for 1993). This marginal decline was due to the capitalisation of the cost of the Bodden Town water supply project which was completed in June 1994. However, the effects of this project will be reflected by increased future revenue. Therefore, the long term forecast is for an increasing return on capital employed.

The liquidity position of the Authority is consistent with the prior year, even though there was a marginal decline in cash and cash equivalent of $103,600 at the end of the year.

The Water Authority was able to contribute excess revenue in the amount of $250,000 to Government's General Revenue in December 1994. Although this expense was not originally budgeted by the Water Authority, payment was possible because of better than anticipated water sales during the year.

The Authority recognises that in this day and age of ever-increasing costs, it is of paramount importance to constantly assess operations in order to identify areas of expenditure in which savings can be found. Two of the largest expenses for the Authority are water purchases and debt interest.

At the year's end the Authority was in the advanced stages of negotiations to re-finance one of its early project loans with a local bank in order to reduce currency exchange losses, and to secure more favourable financing terms. In addition, the new agreement (which was signed in April 1994 with Ocean Conversion Ltd.), will insure a more stable cost for water over the long term.

The former Director, Mr. Richard Beswick, resigned from the Authority in May and was succeeded by the former Deputy Director, Mr. Frederick McTaggart. Several staffing changes occurred at the upper management level of the Authority in order to adjust to this major shifting of responsibilities. Fortunately, the resources were available within the Authority to accommodate these changes and no additional outside staffing was necessary.

I am pleased to confirm that the Authority now has a Caymanian Acting Director and Deputy Director, and that three other Caymanians were promoted to positions of greater responsibility.

The Bodden Town Water Supply Extension was completed in May at a cost which was almost 7.5% ($630,000) under budget. PetroserVICIOS Limited was the contractor for this project and also for the rest of the Authority's water distribution system. With the departure of PetroserVICIOS it was necessary for the Authority to increase its own resources to keep up with the growing demand for piped water in all parts of the country.

In August the Authority took delivery of a trenching machine for use on water service installations, and a second service connection crew was hired on in September. At the end of the year plans were well underway to purchase a larger tracked trenching machine in order to carry out large diameter water main extensions and new projects.

The Cayman Brac public water system continued to operate efficiently in 1994 and received a sales boost when Government chose to strictly enforce the Water (Production and Supply) Law after a hotel in Cayman Brac attempted to import and operate a new water production plant without the required concession from Government. The dispute was resolved and the hotel continues to use the public water system as its exclusive source of water.

Ocean Conversion Limited completed the expansion of their water production plant at Red Gate Road by early December, in accordance with the new Licence. At the end of the year efforts were well underway to replace their electric-driven high pressure pumps with more efficient diesel-driven positive displacement pumps, and commissioning was scheduled for early 1995.

Central DeSal Limited, however, continued to experience problems with their plant and it was unclear at the end of the year whether the plant would ever function as required in their licence which was signed in August 1993.

Funds have been approved in the 1996 Water Authority's Estimates for further extension of the water distribution system using in-house resources, and it is expected that these funds will be used to extend the piped water system from Midland Acres in Bodden Town through Breakers and up to the cross-island road. The public sewage collection and treatment system which serves the West Bay Beach area continued to operate smoothly, but also continued to require more maintenance expenditure than other Authority operations.

Two rehabilitation projects were scheduled for 1995. One project, which will commence at the end of December 1995, involves the in situ rehabilitation of 38 concrete manholes using the same method that was used to rehabilitate nine pumping stations and 35 manholes back in 1991 and 1992.

The other project which was completed in January 1995 consisted of lining approximately 460 meters of damaged gravity sewer pipe using the same in situ repair process which was utilised in 1992 and 1993 to repair the major portion of the Authority's 150mm diameter clay gravity sewer. It is expected that these types of projects will continue to be necessary in the future as the sewage collection system grows older.

Both Government and the Water Authority have recognised for some time the urgency to fully investigate the need for a centralised sewage collection and treatment system for George Town. Funds have been budgeted by the Water Authority in 1996 to complete a comprehensive Project Feasibility Report that was started in 1993. Part of this report will include the results of a joint Department of Environment/Water Authority coastal water quality monitoring programme that commenced five years ago. The data, which has been collected at various points in Hog Sty Bay, will be used to determine whether any land-based human waste contaminants are finding their way into coastal waters, and to establish any trends in the results.

Funds have also been allocated by the Water Authority in 1996 to construct a pilot scale sewage treatment system which would later be used as a model to increase the capacity of the existing sewage treatment works off of Seymour Road to accommodate sewage flows from the George Town area. The Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs, and Culture has been contacted by three international companies which have expressed interest in constructing and operating a sewerage system in central George Town.

Staff training and development continued to be a high priority in 1994 and the Deputy Director's post was redefined to include this area of responsibility. Several courses were sponsored for staff at the Community College during the year.

The Authority and Government continued to support the education of three Caymanian engineering students who will return to work with the Authority in 1995 and 1996.

The Authority has accomplished much over the past 11 years. Yet there is still much work ahead, not only to keep up with growth within existing service areas, but to properly plan for the future so that everyone in this blessed country has access to a safe and wholesome water supply; and to insure that this country's natural beauty is maintained by providing proper wastewater treatment and disposal. Proper monitoring of groundwater resources will ensure that this precious resource is available for future generations.

I am pleased to announce that Mrs. Gelia Frederick-van Genderen, a Caymanian from Bodden Town, and the Deputy Director of the Water Authority, has just completed the degree of Doctor of Philosophy through the Civil Engineering Department of the University of Surrey in the United Kingdom.

I am proud to say that the Government of the Cayman Islands gave full financial support for this study during the initial four years when full student registration was required. And the Water Authority, through study leave and laboratory assistance, fully supported Mrs. Frederick-van Genderen's research.

The research was carried out on the Water Authority's wastewater treatment plant and offered new scientific knowledge into the treatment of saline sewage using Waste Stabilisation Ponds. Valuable new insight into the performance, hydraulic retention times and factors influencing design have been identified as a result of this study. The results of this research will not only prove very useful to the Authority for improving the operation of its own plant, but have made a significant contribution to the scientific knowledge of waste stabilisation pond design around the world.

It gives me great pleasure to see our own Caymanians achieve such a high level of education and be recognized by world renowned experts in this field. I congratulate Dr. Frederick-van Genderen and the Water Authority on this achievement.

I would once again like to express my deepest gratitude and that of Government to my fellow Board members and to the staff of the Water Authority for their dedication and continued commitment to the mission of the Authority. Although some times were indeed difficult during the year, I am pleased that the Authority as a whole has remained focused on the future and its unlimited potential.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Agricultural and Industrial Development Board Report for the year ended 31st December, 1994.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

AGRICULTURAL AND INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BOARD REPORT FOR THE YEAR 31 DECEMBER, 1994

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I am pleased to lay on the Table of this honourable House the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board Report for the year ended 31st December, 1994.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am pleased to be presenting the Annual Report on financial statements of the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board for the year ended 31st December, 1994.

Members will recall that when I tabled the Annual Report of the AIDB for 1993, I highlighted a resource dilemma with which the Board was confronted.

As Members are aware, the Board has relied on the Caribbean Development Bank as the principal source of funding for its lending activities. Where as funding from that source has been adequate for the financing of agricultural and industrial credit, there has been a problem with student loans. The high cost and restrictive conditions attached to the Caribbean Development Bank's funds for student loans has made it impossible for the Board to access these funds. As a result, the Government has had to provide supplemental funding for the Board's Student Loan Programme over the past four years.

With the escalating demand for student loans, budgetary support for the programme was becoming increasingly burdensome. A new way had to be found to deal with the problem and a committee was set up by my Ministry to review the guidelines for the Board's student loan scheme with a view to working with the local banking sector to meet the demand for student loans.

Following on this review, my Ministry turned to negotiations with a number of these local banks with a view to their providing the funding for a new Government guarantee student loan programme.

I am pleased to report that this initiative has borne fruit. An agreement between the Government and the participating banks was concluded and signed last July for them to provide funding of $1.75 million CI dollars for the programme. This programme is now on stream and is being administered by the AIDB.

During the period 1987 to 1992, there were 102 student loans approved for a principal value of $1.4 million (CI). During the period 1993 to October 1995, there were 117 student loans approved with a principal value of $3.5 million (CI). Of the latter, 15 loans amounting to $382,800 have been approved under the new guaranteed student loan scheme.

Although the laying of the ground work and the coming on stream of the new student loan scheme was the most significant highlight of 1994, there were other major accomplishments. Just over 40 loans amounting to some $627,000 were approved during the year. The Board's total assets stood at $2.8 million, an increase of 15.2% over the 1993 figure of $2.4 million.

This significant increase in total assets was due to the very substantial increase of $475,892 in loans to borrowers. The Board's surplus from operations in 1994 increased by a very satisfactory 51.6% from $89,207 to $135,261. However, due to a foreign exchange loss of $19,172 in the translation of the CDB's loan balances, the Board ended the year with a surplus of $116,089, an increase of 1.2% over the 1993 figure of $113,000.

The Board's accumulated surplus stood at $776,621, an increase of 17.6% over the comparative figure for 1993. The Board maintains its position as the prime provider of credit in the Cayman Islands of human resource development. It also maintained its position as a prime provider of credit for agricultural advancement by virtue of the propulsion of its resources that were employed in that sector.

The efforts to amalgamate the Board of the AIDB with the Housing Development Corporation continued during the year under review. A new entity embodying the current functions of both institutions, as well as new functions under discussion, is expected to come on stream during 1996.

All in all, 1994 was a year of creditable accomplishments for the Agricultural and Industrial Board and for this I am grateful to my colleagues on the Board and the management and staff for their dedicated service during the year.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Interim Report of the Select Committee of the whole House to review a Register of Interests for the Legislative Assembly and a Code of Ethics of Conduct for Legislators.

The Chairman of the Select Committee, the Member for North Side.

SECOND INTERIM REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE (OF THE WHOLE HOUSE) TO REVIEW A REGISTER OF INTERESTS FOR THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY AND A CODE OF ETHICS AND CONDUCT

FOR LEGISLATORS

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 72(1), I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House the Second Interim Report of the Select Committee of the whole House to review a Register of Interests for the Legislative Assembly and a Code of Ethics of Conduct for Legislators.

The Speaker: So ordered.
The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: The Select Committee of the whole House established to review a Register of Interests for the Legislative Assembly was appointed by the Legislature on the 9th day of June, 1994, upon the passing of Private Member's Motion No. 11 of 1994.

On the 7th day of December, 1994, the Legislature passed Private Member's Motion No. 29/94 entitled 'Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators'. The Motion resolved that "this Honourable House refers the matter of legislation for a Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators to the Select Committee reviewing a Register of Interests for consideration as 'companion' legislation."

With the passing of both these Motions, the Select Committee's terms of reference were to make recommendations to this honourable House in regard to both a Register of Interests and a Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators.

Private Member's Motion No. 11/94 set the Committee to comprise all Members of the Legislative Assembly.

In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 69(2), the Honourable Speaker nominated the Elected Member for North Side, Mrs. Edna M Moyle, JP, to be the Chairman.

In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 72(1), the Select Committee wishes to report that it is unable to conclude its deliberations before the end of this Session of the Legislature. It has met on eight occasions, namely:

- (i) 20th of July, 1994,
- (ii) 25th of August, 1994,
- (iii) 7th of December, 1994,
- (iv) 13th of April, 1995,
- (v) 10th of May, 1995,
- (vi) 21st of September, 1995,
- (vii) 30th of October, 1995, and
- (viii) 27th of November, 1995, when it considered this Second Interim Report.

The Committee also held informal discussions on the 10th and 24th of August, 1995.

The Committee has, in accordance with its terms of reference, invited the public to participate by way of written representations and oral hearings and is, at the present time, considering a Draft Registration of Interests Bill.

The Select Committee agrees that this Report be the Second Interim Report of the Select Committee to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The Second Interim Report of the Select Committee of Elected Members on Fundamental Rights Clause of the Constitution.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning, Chairman.

SECOND INTERIM REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE (OF ELECTED MEMBERS) ON FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS CLAUSE OF THE CONSTITUTION—
GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 4/93

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay upon the Table of this honourable House the Second Interim Report of the Select Committee of Elected Members on Fundamental Rights Clause of the Constitution under Motion No. 4/93.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The next item: The first interim report of the Select Committee (of Elected Members) on Control of Local Businesses. The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce, Chairman of the Committee.

FIRST INTERIM REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE (OF ELECTED MEMBERS) ON CONTROL OF LOCAL BUSINESSES

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House The first interim report of the Select Committee (of Elected Members) on Control of Local Businesses.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Second interim report of the Select Committee (of the whole House) to review the Gambling Law.

The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

SECOND INTERIM REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE (OF THE WHOLE HOUSE) TO REVIEW THE GAMBLING LAW

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House the Second interim report under Standing Order 72(1) of the Select Committee (of the whole House) to review the Gambling Law.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Second interim report of the Select Committee (of the whole House) to review the Sunday Trading Law.

The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

SECOND INTERIM REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE (OF THE WHOLE HOUSE) TO REVIEW THE SUNDAY TRADING LAW

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House the Second interim report of the Select Committee (of the whole House) to review the Sunday Trading Law.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Analysis of losses as a consequence of the hurricane and earthquake hazard in the Cayman Islands.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

ANALYSIS OF LOSSES AS A CONSEQUENCE OF THE HURRICANE AND EARTHQUAKE HAZARD IN THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House a report setting out analysis of losses as a consequence of the hurricane and earthquake hazard in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, this report summarises work by EQE International Limited undertaken in October and November, 1994 to assess catastrophic losses to property in the Cayman Islands working with KPMG Peat Marwick Mitchell and Company as part of a study on behalf of the Cayman Islands Government.

The report provides a detailed assessment of probably maximum losses in the Cayman Islands in regard to wind, storm and earthquake. It is the first such report commissioned by Government from an internationally recognised firm specialising in such studies.

The report has its roots in a recommendation of the Government appointed task force on the high cost of insurance, which believed that such a report would be of some assistance to our local insurers in their efforts to contain reinsurance expense.

At the same time the Financial Services Supervision Department expected to find the report useful in evaluating the adequacy of all local insurers reinsurance coverage. Government would also be able to quantify its own exposures arising out of a major hurricane.

In broad terms, the report is useful in all of these areas. It rates the Cayman Islands as likely to enjoy a low level of vulnerability to major hurricanes or earthquakes than some other areas of the Caribbean, this low level being chiefly due to better construction standards together with the lower likelihood of a major hurricane strike as evidenced by past experience worked into a wide range of computerised projection.

Local insurers now have a technical appraisal to substantiate their case for Cayman receiving more favourable re-insurance terms which is already bearing some fruit.

The Financial Services Supervision Department is also able to accept that the level of re-insurance purchased by those insurers is at an adequate level and Government is able to quantify in financial terms its exposure arising from the deductible within its own insurance programme.

From Government's viewpoint the report has been useful in its indication of likely storm damage to both the Seven Mile Beach properties and Government-owned property portfolio, and will assist considerably in future planning for dealing with the economic aftermath of a major hurricane.

I should also point out that the report has some technical provisions and analyses continued therein. Any Member of this honourable House or any member of the public who wants to get a better understanding of these tables and analyses, the financial consultation can be made with the Deputy Inspector of Financial Services with responsibility for insurance.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Report of the Accountant General and the audited accounts of the Cayman Islands Government for the period ended 31st December, 1994; and the Report of the Auditor General on the Audited Accounts of the Cayman Islands for the year ended 31st December, 1994.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

REPORT OF THE ACCOUNTANT GENERAL ON THE AUDITED ACCOUNTS OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT FOR THE PERIOD ENDED 31 DECEMBER, 1994;

-and-

THE REPORT OF THE AUDITOR GENERAL ON THE AUDITED ACCOUNTS OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31 DECEMBER, 1994

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House the Report of the Accountant General and the audited accounts of the Cayman Islands Government for the period ended 31st December, 1994; and the Report of the Auditor General on the Audited Accounts of the Cayman Islands for the year ended 31st December, 1994.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Speaker: Report of the Public Accounts Committee on the report of the Auditor General on the Audited Accounts of the Cayman Islands Government for the year ended 31st December, 1994.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay, Chairman of the Committee.

REPORT OF THE PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE ON THE REPORT OF THE AUDITOR GENERAL ON THE AUDITED ACCOUNTS OF THE CAYMAN IS-

LANDS GOVERNMENT FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31 DECEMBER, 1994

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In accordance with Standing Order 74(5), I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House the 1995 Public Accounts Committee Report.

The Speaker: So ordered.
Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Report of the Standing Public Accounts Committee and the Report of the Auditor General on the Audited Accounts of the Cayman Islands Government for the year ended 31st December, 1994.

Reference: The Standing Public Accounts Committee of the Cayman Islands Legislative Assembly, established under Standing Order 74, met to consider the Report of the Auditor General on the Audited Accounts of the Cayman Islands Government for the year ended 31st December, 1994, as prepared and submitted by the Accountant General.

On the 25th of November, 1992, following the General Elections held on the 18th of November, the first Meeting of the 1992-1996 Legislature was held whereat the Members of this Committee were elected. The Members of the Committee are: Mr. John D Jefferson, Jr., Chairman; Mrs. Berna L Murphy, MBE—Member; Mrs. Edna M Moyle, JP—Member; Mr. Anthony S Eden—Member; Mr. D Dalmain Ebanks—Member. Mr. John Jefferson, Jr., was elected Chairman at a meeting of the Committee held on the 6th of January, 1993.

On the 2nd of March, 1994, following an amendment to the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order, Mr. Anthony Eden was elected as the fifth Minister to Executive Council, following which, on the 5th of September, 1994, the Honourable Minister tendered his resignation as a Member of this Committee to the Honourable Speaker of the Legislative Assembly. To date, a nomination for his replacement has not been put forward.

In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 74(1), the Committee considered the following papers: (1) The Report of the Auditor General on the Government's Audited Accounts for the year ended 31st December, 1994; and (2) The Report of the Accountant General on the Accounts of the Government for the year ended 31st December, 1994.

The Committee also used its Report for the year ended 31st December, 1993, as a reference paper.

The Committee held seven meetings, being: (i) Wednesday, 20th September, 1995; (ii) Friday, 20th October, 1995; (iii) Friday, 27th October, 1995; (iv) Wednesday, 8th November, 1995; (v) Tuesday, 14th November, 1995; (vi) Tuesday, 21st November, 1995; whereat the Committee considered and approved its Report; and (vii) 28th November, 1995.

The attendance of Members of the Committee are recorded in the Minutes of Proceedings which are attached.

In accordance with Standing Order 74(8), the following persons were in attendance: Mr. Nigel Esdaile, Auditor General; Mr. Joel Walton, Deputy Financial Secretary; Mr. Alan Mason, Accountant General

Also in attendance were Mr. Kenneth Jefferson, Audit Manager—Audit Office; and Mrs. Sonia McLaughlin, Chief Accountant. Miss Sheree Ramsay, Auditor—Audit Office, also attended the meeting held on the 20th of October, 1995.

The following persons were invited to appear before the Committee to provide information on the dates stated:

20th October, 1995

- (1) Mr. Carlon Powery, Collector of Customs
- (2) Mr. Kearney Gomez, MBE, Permanent Secretary for the Ministry of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works
- (3) Mr. Harding Watler, Permanent Secretary for the Ministry of Tourism, Aviation and Commerce
- (4) Mr. Timmy Hubbell, Asst. Secretary to the Ministry of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works
- (5) Mrs. Aline Wood, Acting Registrar of Lands
- (6) Mr. Christopher Lambert, Asst. Lands Officer
- (7) Mr. Michael Kiron, Telecommunications Officer
- (8) Mrs. Joy Basdeo, JP, Permanent Secretary for the Ministry of Education and Planning
- (9) Mr. Sam Basdeo, Principal of the Community College of the Cayman Islands
- (10) Mrs. Mary Miller, Chief Education Officer
- (11) Mrs. Jennifer Smith, Asst. Secretary to the Ministry of Education and Planning, Secretary to the Education Council
- (12) Mrs. Marjorie Beckles, Assistant Education Officer—Pre-Schools
- (13) Mr. Neil Graham Woods, Acting Permanent Secretary, Personnel
- (14) Hon. Richard Coles, Attorney General

27th October, 1995:

- (15) Miss Andrea Bryan, Permanent Secretary for the Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation
- (16) Mr. Mervyn Conolly, Director of Medical Services
- (17) Miss Betty A. Ebanks, Asst. Secretary to the Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation
- (18) Miss Deborah Drummond, Director of the Department of Environment
- (19) Mr. Walling Whittaker, Chief Environmental Health Officer, Deputy Director of Environmental Health Section
- (20) Mrs. Gina Petrie, Deputy Director in Charge of Protection and Conservation Unit, Department of Environment
- (21) Mr. Gerald Maguire, Chief Immigration Officer
- (22) Mrs. Christine Mitchell, Finance Officer, Department of Immigration
- (23) Mrs. Deanna Look Loy, Director of Social Services

(24) Miss Alecia J. Dixon, Deputy Director of Social Services

(25) Mrs. Josie Welcome, (former) Administrative Officer of the Social Services Department

(26) Mrs. Netha Ebanks, Administrative Officer, Department of Social Services

(27) Hon George A McCarthy, OBE, JP, Financial Secretary and Chairman of the Currency Board

(28) Miss Cindy Bush, Manager, Cayman Islands Currency Board.

COMMITTEE'S FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS: The following is a summary of the Committee's findings and recommendations:

(1) REVENUE RECORDING AND DEBT COLLECTION—This is the third successive year in which the Public Accounts Committee (PAC) has examined selective areas where revenue recording and debt collection have been weak. The Committee is obligated to comment on this ongoing problem once again. Reported arrears of revenue at 31st December, 1994 totalled $12.5 million. The true figure is undoubtedly higher, possibly in the order of $20 million. Two of the areas cited in the Auditor General's Report (Stamp Duty on Leases and Garbage Fee Collection) were highlighted by this Committee's predecessors in 1987 and 1991, respectively. It is disappointing to report that no effective action has been taken in the intervening years to address these problems. The Committee also took evidence on two other revenue sources, dredging royalties and radio and television licence royalties. In both these areas, licensees frequently fail to honour their financial obligations, apparently with impunity.

In recent years, the Committee has noticed recurring problem areas in Government's debt collection. In the Committee's 1992 Report it was suggested that recovery of outstanding medical fees could be handled by an external debt collector. This suggestion was not implemented by Government. The Committee examined medical fee recording and collection again in 1995 and, while revenue recording at the hospital has improved noticeably, it is evident that this has not been complemented by effective debt collection.

The Committee took evidence from the Honourable Attorney General on the role of the Legal Department in the debt collection process. It is clear to the Committee that this department does not have the capacity to undertake debt collection on the massive scale now required. Furthermore, the Honourable Attorney General does not consider debt collection the responsibility of his department. The Committee concluded that there are a number of inter-related issues and lists the following:

- ◆ It is not clear where ultimate responsibility for debt collection lies. There are no standard procedures prescribed in Financial and Stores Regulations which Controlling Officers can follow. Only a few debts are referred to the Treasury or Legal Departments for action, usually in the form of a final demand letter.
- ◆ The threat of legal action in final demand letters is invariably never carried out. This only serves to further undermine the collection process. There is presently no credible threat of court action for the vast majority of Government debtors.

- ◆ Debts must be collected at an early stage.
- ◆ The cash based system of accounting tends to obscure departmental inefficiencies in revenue recording and collection, because revenue is only recognised when received. The annual Statement of Assets and Liabilities does not reflect amounts owed to Government. There is therefore an ever-present danger that these monies can be overlooked forever.

The Committee notes that there are plans to establish a central debt collection unit within the Treasury Department by early 1996. This proposed unit will use a computer based system to create and issue all legal documents necessary to process problem debts through the Court system. For the longer term there are tentative suggestions to develop a centralised system to monitor accounts receivable as an integral part of the proposed Integrated Financial Management Information System (IFMIS). This is not expected to be fully operational for another two years.

Recognising that efficient and effective revenue collection is essential if Governments are to achieve their policy goals, the Committee wishes to make the following observations and suggestions:

- ◆ Responsibility for recording revenue transactions and managing debt recovery rests with Controlling Officers in the first instance. These Officers have been reminded recently of their financial duties and responsibilities by His Excellency the Governor.
- ◆ Controlling Officers have specific responsibility for ensuring that effective financial management systems are in place, including the collection and accounting of revenue. The Committee therefore holds Controlling Officers fully accountable and answerable for incomplete revenue recording and laxity in pursuing monies owed to Government.

The Committee recommends: (a) That all Controlling Officers should review revenue accounting and collection procedures as a matter of priority. Any deficiencies in records, systems or personnel should be reported to the Honourable Financial Secretary so that remedial action can be taken.

(b) That proper procedures should be developed to guide Controlling Officers who experience difficulty in debt collection. In particular, the respective responsibilities of Controlling Officers, the Accountant General and Legal Department should be clarified.

(c) That high priority must be given to the establishment of a suitably staffed and equipped debt collection unit.

(d) That Government should consider whether the cash basis of accounting is conducive to the efficient and effective management of revenue receivables.

(2) STAMP DUTY ON LEASES—Failure to collect

Stamp Duty on leases has been a long-standing problem. The Committee's predecessors last reviewed the position in 1987. This Committee considers that the absence of effective action over the past seven years to address the matter is unacceptable. The Lands and Survey Department is not able to estimate the extent of revenue loss on commercial leases, but thought that it could be as high as 50%. It is clear to the Committee that substantial revenues are being lost each year.

The Committee notes that a new Assistant Lands Officer has been employed. A major part of this officer's duty will be to pursue collection of stamp duty on commercial leases. The Committee took note of the assurance provided by the department that systematic enquiries will be made to establish the existence of all dutiable commercial leases. The Committee would like to be informed (in the Government Minute) of the results of these enquiries in relation to the 92 properties highlighted in the Auditor General's Report.

The Committee has been assured by the Acting Director of Lands and Survey that loopholes and deficiencies of law and practice are being addressed. The Committee was informed that the Stamp Duty Law is being revised. Members of the Committee trust that the law revision will:

- ◆ clarify whether lessor or lessee is responsible for payment of stamp duty; and
- ◆ resolve the issue of whether duty should be payable on residential leases. The Committee is of the firm opinion that public awareness of the requirements of the Stamp Duty Law should be improved.

(3) RADIO AND TELEVISION LICENCE FEES—

Commercial broadcasting in the Cayman Islands began in 1992. At present three television stations and one radio station are operating. Government policy has been to require a licence fee and royalty payment from operators. The royalty fee of cable television is 7.5% of gross revenue while 2% of revenue has been proposed for radio station Z99FM. Total revenue received to July 1995 amounted to $90,516. The Committee was informed that commercial broadcasting has caused a drop in Radio Cayman's revenues of approximately $1.75 million since 1990.

A permanent cable licence for Cayman International Television Network (Caribbean) Limited (CITN) was issued in July, 1994. The Committee was surprised to learn that permanent licences for Z99FM and Cayman Television Services Limited (CTS) had not been issued. The Committee has been assured by witnesses that these licences will be finalised imminently. The Committee was told that the main reason for the long delays in issuing permanent licences was the periodic reallocation of responsibility for broadcasting between portfolios. Notwithstanding these administrative changes, the Committee considers that delays in excess of three years are unduly lengthy. Receipt of royalty fees are dependent on the issue of a permanent licence. Administrative delays therefore affect revenue collection.

There are a number of issues concerning CITN royalty revenue which require clarification. It is not clear to the Committee the date from which CITN's royalties are payable. Additionally, Executive Council is said to have granted a 12 month moratorium on royalty fees from the commencement of cable broadcasting. The MMDS licence is silent on a moratorium period and does not specify the commencing date for royalty assessment. Witnesses were not able to clarify these points. As a result of these uncertainties, the Committee was unable to establish the extent of revenue arrears.

The Committee recommends that these issues be resolved without any further delay and prior to the issue of permanent licences for Z99FM and CTS.

The Committee further notes that CITN's licence requires the submission of annual audited financial statements to Government. This is a necessary control element to ensure completeness of royalty revenue. The Committee is concerned that the licensee has failed to provide these audited accounts, despite numerous requests from the Ministry concerned. Since presentation of the Auditor General's Report, the Ministry has received some recent quarterly audited statements of revenue and the latest annual unaudited management accounts for WestStar TV Limited. Ministry officials confirmed to the Committee that these statements do not meet the licence requirements. The Ministry has requested advice and assistance from Government's Internal Audit Unit to analyse WestStar's accounts. This exercise is continuing.

To date no financial statements of CITN have been submitted.

The Committee is fully aware that MMDS subscriber revenues are payable not to the licensee (CITN) but to WestStar TV Limited. Similarly, the Committee notes that royalties received by Government to date have been paid by WestStar TV Limited. The Committee enquired about the relationship between WestStar TV Limited, CITN and CTS and was informed that there is a management agreement in place between CITN and WestStar TV Limited which has been reviewed by Government. While the Committee does not advocate Government's interference in matters of private enterprises, the Committee strongly recommends that there be an adequate regulatory environment to monitor compliance with all aspects of broadcasting licences, including licensees' financial obligations.

(4) STATEMENT OF LOSSES AND WAIVERS—Reported losses and waivers of revenue amounted to $2.3 million for fiscal 1994. This figure is incomplete because the extent of customs waivers for 1994 could not be determined.

The Committee noted that the computer language in which the Customs Import/Export System is written makes the extraction of such information difficult. The Committee accepts that while Government informs Customs of its directives on waivers of customs duty, manual compilation of the total waiver for 1994 would have been unduly time-consuming. The Collector of Customs advised the Committee that the computer system is being upgraded, and waivers of customs duty should be available for inclusion in Government's 1995 financial statements. The new computer system is expected to be operational by early 1996.

The Collector of Customs confirmed that a waiver of customs duty on building materials for the Westin Casuarina Hotel on Seven Mile Beach has been granted. The purpose of the waiver was to stimulate the local construction industry. Customs duty is levied on relevant building materials at a rate of 5% compared to the standard tariffs of 15—20%. Customs duty waiver for this project was not included in Government's 1994 financial statements. The Collector of Customs does not believe that the waiver value for 1994 was material. The Committee takes note of the explanations provided and is satisfied that full disclosure of all customs duty waivers will be provided with effect from the 1995 accounts.

(5) HOSPITAL FEES—This is the third successive year in which outstanding medical fees have been mentioned by the Auditor General. Revenue arrears have increased significantly over the past three financial years:

There is also the problem, still unaddressed, of pre-1992 unpaid hospital fees. No one knows how much is owed because of widespread errors of omission and duplication in 1991 and earlier years. The Auditor General estimates pre-1992 receivables at between $3 million and $4.5 million. Thus, gross medical receivables are probably in the region of $7-8 million.

From evidence taken by the Committee in 1993 and 1994, the Committee was under the impression that action was being taken, or planned, to enforce debt collection. It is now apparent to the Committee that these good intentions have not been translated into positive results. The Committee therefore concludes that medical fee debt collection has been largely ineffective and agrees with the Auditor General's statement that at present, there is no credible threat of legal action to enforce debt recovery. This is a thoroughly unsatisfactory situation which cannot be allowed to continue.

In the Committee's 1993 session, the Committee was assured by the Solicitor General that legal personnel were being hired specifically for the task of debt recovery. The Committee was further assured in 1993 and 1994 by the Health Services Department that debt collection was being actioned through the Legal Department. Yet, when 70 cases owing $223,000 were passed for Court action, Legal Department was unable or unwilling to become involved. The Hon. Attorney General told the Committee that the legal executive hired for debt collection had to be switched because criminal work had reached high levels. The Committee finds it completely unacceptable that this situation has been allowed to drift for three years.

This sorry episode illustrates a disturbing lack of co-ordination and co-operation between the departments of Government ostensibly responsible for medical fee debt collection, that is, the Medical Health Services Department, the Legal Department, the Portfolio of Finance and Development and the Treasury Department. Clearly the Committee's previous recommendations and concerns have not been taken seriously by either Government or the civil servants involved. The Committee is exceedingly disappointed about the lack of effective action in this area.

The Committee urges Government to address this problem as a top priority and does not expect to have to repeat this recommendation in its next report.

(6) GARBAGE FEES—Garbage fees are an important Government income source comprising some $1.1 million of recurrent revenue in 1994. Effective collection has been an ongoing problem for many years and significant arrears have accumulated. The Committee took evidence from the Director and Deputy Director of Environment on this subject.

According to the annual statements of Arrears of Revenue, outstanding garbage fees have grown from $0.1 million in 1988 to $0.9 million in 1994. The Department subsequently confirmed to the Committee that prior to 1994 arrears were understated because past practice was to report arrears for each financial year to Treasury instead of the cumulative position. The Department suggested that as much as $700,000 per annum might be lost through all forms of non-payment, but the Committee have been unable to reconcile this evidence with the arrears information provided in the annual accounts of Government. The Committee was informed of various factors which have contributed to accumulation of arrears. First, the Department considers a staff of two to administer the recording and collection of garbage fees as insufficient. Second, inadequacies in the computer system have contributed to the arrears accumulation. Third, Legal Department is not able to assist in the large scale collection of overdue fees. Fourth, although garbage fees are recoverable as civil debts, there is no fine or other penalty prescribed in law for non-payment. Once again the Committee has concluded that final demands for payment, which are not subsequently actioned, undermine the basis of debt recovery, thereby reducing garbage fees to an "optional" tax.

The Committee took note of evidence that the computer system is to be upgraded; that governing legislation is being reviewed for possible amendments; and that renewed efforts are taking place to collect garbage fees arrears, first from civil servants, and later from the general public. Members of the Committee are not convinced that these measures are either sufficient in substance or urgency to address this major problem.

Arrears do not reflect revenue lost due to incomplete records. The Committee was told that the full extent of lost revenue is not known. The Department readily admits that the customer database is incomplete, especially as regards residential properties. Commercial property records are now kept relatively up-to-date by liaison with the Central Planning Authority. The Department considers that an island-wide housing survey would be necessary in order to update fully residential property records. However, this would involve all staff over a period of six months, which the Department considers to be an unrealistic approach.

The Committee recommends the following: (a) Amended legislation to introduce fines for the non-payment of garbage fees; (b) Automatic deduction from civil servants' salaries for both annual fees and accumulated arrears; and (c) Garbage fee records (database) to be fully and completely updated by 31 December 1996 and necessary improvements made to the computer system.

(7) DREDGING ROYALTIES—The Committee took separate evidence from officials on financial and environmental issues and proposes to deal with financial matters under the general heading of revenue recording and debt collection. The Committee's comments on environmental matters are elsewhere in this report.

Dredging royalty fees are approved by Executive Council upon the recommendation of various advisory committees. The Committee notes that standard royalty rates of $1 per cubic yard for suction cutter dredge and $2 per cubic yard for dragline method appear to have evolved about 20 years ago. In practice, these rates are never applied and commercial developers have been permitted to extract marl for as little as 25 cents per cubic yard. Taking into account developers' extraction costs and market prices for marl, the Committee considers present royalty rates to be too low. In two cases cited by the Auditor General, concessions on standard royalty rates were worth over $1.1 million. It is clear to the Committee that royalty rates should be fixed at realistic minimum levels with no concessions whatsoever. In addition, there is a strong case for an "environmental surcharge" which should be viewed as an inducement for licensees to adopt sound environmental policies and practices.

The Committee also notes that royalty fees for another major project were fixed at artificially low levels in order to compensate for commercial risk. In the interest of transparency, the Committee does not consider it appropriate to mix subsidy with revenue.

The Committee finds it unacceptable that licensees fail to provide timely reports of quantities extracted. This is a major loophole which prevents assessment of royalties payable. A further weakness is that surveyors who are hired to measure quantities dredged report to the licensee rather than to Government. The Committee was glad to hear from witnesses that this significant loophole will be closed in future licence agreements.

Members of the Committee are greatly concerned that no relevant or reliable evidence of the final quantities dredged for any of the five completed projects could be produced to the Auditor General. In the worst instance, two projects had been completed for over three years but the licensee had failed to submit any acceptable report of the quantities dredged and had not complied with the royalty conditions. Members of the Committee were astonished to learn that the then Ministry of Tourism, Environment and Planning had no knowledge of this situation or of the attendant revenue arrears until it was reported by the internal auditors. While the Committee agrees that the frequent inter-ministerial transfer of responsibility for dredging does not assist smooth administration, it is evident that there has been a serious breakdown in communications. This unsatisfactory situation has now been remedied and the Committee was told that final hydrographic surveys have been submitted for all projects. The Committee trusts that these surveys will be reviewed by competent persons within Government before royalty calculations are finalised.

Another worrying issue which concerned the Committee was the frequency with which licensees ignored the financial obligations of their dredging licences. Overall it appears that administrative and financial monitoring controls have been very weak and personnel lax in addressing revenue collection matters. However, the Committee was relieved to learn that revenue collection is at last being taken seriously. The total of dredging revenue arrears in the four cases cited by the Auditor General has been revised upward to $512,037. The Committee was assured by the current Controlling Officer that payments are expected in the near future. In one case where royalties have remained outstanding for over three years, the Committee noted that Government had purchased marl costing $379,000 from the licensee. The Committee was amazed to learn that these large purchases did not trigger the pursuit of overdue royalties owed by the same licensee.

On occasion, licensees persuade Government to accept marl or land in lieu of royalties payable. While this may be attractive superficially, the Committee wishes to emphasise that the exchange of land or marl for royalties should be avoided because it infringes the principle of prior Parliamentary approval for expenditure.

The Committee also took evidence on a non-commercial dredging project undertaken on Cayman Brac during 1993. Witnesses were unable to explain why the contractor was allowed to remove almost ten times as much material valued at over $160,000 as was originally envisaged. The Committee is concerned that no action has been taken to regularise this matter. The present Controlling Officer has undertaken to investigate and determine whether Government obtained value for money with this project, which also appears to breach the spirit of the Public Finance and Audit Law.

(8) ENVIRONMENTAL ASPECTS OF DREDGING—The Auditor General's Report highlighted a number of environmental issues incidental to revenue collection. The Committee took evidence from the Director of Environment, the Deputy Director, Protection and Conservation Unit (PCU) and the Permanent Secretary of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

The Committee notes that the Cayman Islands' environmental policies have not yet been fully developed. Draft dredging guidelines were not prepared until late 1993 and these have still not been formally activated. The Committee was told that there is no comprehensive legislation in place to safeguard the marine environment from the effects of dredging as the Islands' existing marine conservation Laws do not cover dredging. However, the Committee was encouraged to learn that environmental legislation is being reviewed. Some witnesses expressed the need for further legislation to include statutory backing for dredging guidelines. The last independent environmental impact assessment on the effects of dredging was completed 20 years ago. Witnesses agreed that there is a pressing need for a comprehensive re-assessment.

Against this background, the Committee was encouraged to note that scientific and technical advice is always considered before dredging licences are awarded. In the two most recent projects, all recommendations of the (now) Department of Environment were incorporated in the licence agreements.

The PCU does not have adequate statutory authority to suspend licences in cases of environmental damage or breach of specific licence conditions. The normal procedure is to refer such matters to the responsible Ministry. The Committee has doubts as to whether this approach is effective.

At present, departmental costs of environmental monitoring are not recovered from licensees. The Department was unable to provide any estimate of these costs, which include aerial surveillance and efforts by the Unit's marine conservation officers. The PCU's monitoring capacity is stretched during major dredging projects. It appears to the Committee that there is a strong case for recovering the cost of environmental monitoring from licensees and this position was supported by witnesses.

The Public Accounts Committee does not wish to question or dictate Government policies.

The Committee recommends the following: (a) There should be a thorough independent review of all aspects of marl dredging; (b) There is need for comprehensive legislation to regulate dredging activities. This legislation should be developed following the independent review suggested above and should incorporate dredging guidelines; (c) The existing Marine Conservation Laws should be extended to encompass dredging. The Department of Environment should be given statutory backing for its role of protecting the marine environment; (d) The costs of environmental monitoring should be passed on to licensees.

The Speaker: At this time, proceedings will be suspended until 2 PM.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.04 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, the next heading in the Public Accounts Committee's Report is Excess Expenditure—$524,775 for Head 25—Health and Human Services.

(9) EXCESS EXPENDITURE—$524,775 FOR HEAD 25—HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES—This unauthorised expenditure relates to Overseas Medical Expenses and occurred as a result of several factors:

- ♦ administrative oversight during the transfer of responsibility from the former Ministry of Health and Human Services to the new Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation;
- ♦ confusion as to where these expenses were to be charged, which was further complicated by

- the allocation warrant procedure;
- ♦ failure by Treasury Department to block payments once the authorised budget has been reached; and
- ♦ limitations of the Treasury computer system.

The Committee closely questioned the Deputy Financial Secretary, the Accountant General and the Permanent Secretary. The Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, and Members of the Committee, have been assured that accounting procedures have been amended to prevent a recurrence. When authorised budgets are nearing depletion, the Treasury now "locks" the account to prevent further payments. The relevant department is alerted and is responsible for seeking additional funds or virements through established procedures. These arrangements were not in place during 1994. The Committee accepts these explanations and expects that no excess expenditures will be reported for 1995.

(10) PUBLIC DEBT—Two main issues emerging from the Auditor General's comments on Public Debt were of interest to the Committee.

An amount of $840,339 was drawn down on the 1994 Capital Project Loan and remained unspent at the end of 1994. The interest rate offered by bankers on Treasury's deposit accounts is substantially lower than that charged on loan funds. Government therefore suffered a net interest cost from the early use of its loan facility.

The Deputy Financial Secretary spoke on this matter. He accepted that the point raised was valid and was appreciated by Government. Funds had been drawn to meet the estimated cost of certain capital projects which were due to have been started by the year end. Several projects did not start on the expected commencement dates with the result that funds drawn were unspent at 31 December 1994. The Deputy Financial Secretary assured the Committee that every effort is being made to "fine-tune" the timing of future loan drawdowns. The Committee accepts the explanation offered, and notes that action is in hand.

The Auditor General notes that the drawdown of $550,900 from loan funds to reimburse the Community College for its phase II construction costs was unnecessary as the College had accumulated nearly $800,000 cash at the end of 1994. Such funds could have been used to finance the College's expansion. The amount reimbursed by Government was placed on short-term deposit with the College's bankers. Interest received is less than the cost of loan funds. In net terms, there was an overall interest cost.

The Community College's Principal and the Permanent Secretary of Education and Planning gave evidence on this matter. Both stated that Government promised to "match" the costs incurred by the College on its expansion programme. They stated that the amount should not be viewed as a reimbursement. It was also reported that most of the $550,900 received from Government would have been spent by the end of 1994, had the construction been completed by 31st December 1994. Evidence was subsequently submitted to the Audit Office confirming that part of the College's accumulated funds at 31st December 1994 were used in 1995 for project costs.

The College's latest known cash position was $789,000 in mid-April 1995. The Committee agrees with the views of the Auditor General that the College's significant cash balances should have negated the need to draw loan funds in 1994 for its expansion programme. The Committee recognises that the College is an autonomous entity with its own Board of Governors and should therefore enjoy a degree of financial freedom.

The Committee recommends that Government's future funding of the College should be linked to the latter's cash position.

(11) INTEREST ON CASH BALANCES—The Committee reviewed the results of the Auditor General's performance audit of Treasury investment practices between 1992 and 1994. The Committee concluded from the audit that Treasury's operations were unsatisfactory in several areas. Most notable was the failure to comply with investment guidelines approved by Executive Council and the failure to effectively monitor deposit interest rates.

The Accountant General was not able to offer any explanation why Treasury staff were unaware of the existence of the investment guidelines. These had been prepared by the former Accountant General for distribution to the Chief Accountant and the Auditor General, amongst others.

It is clear to the Committee that Government's interest earnings were not maximised over the course of the audit study. One obvious example of this was a call deposit of US$7 million which attracted interest at only 1% per annum, whereas the market rate was around 3%.

The Accountant General told the Committee that four local banks have at last agreed to refund a total of $55,413 to Government in respect of interest underpaid on various deposits. The Committee was told that the banks were not contractually bound to make any restitution but when challenged, had agreed to make ex gratia payments for transactions in 1994 only. The banks would not entertain any claims for 1992 and 1993, the periods in which the Auditor General found most inconsistencies.

The Committee notes that the Portfolio of Finance and Development had considered creating an investment section to manage all local short-term investments of Government and statutory authorities. The Portfolio decided against this proposal as there was the very important issue of the independence of the Currency Board and the Public Service Pensions Fund. It appears to the Committee that the Treasury Department's resources will be further stretched in 1996/97 with additional responsibilities for the debt collection function and for developing a new Integrated Financial Management and Information System (IFMIS). The Committee therefore considers that it would be appropriate to re-examine the desirability of creating a specialist investment function within Government, which would also have the effect of freeing up senior managers' time for other duties.

The Committee is generally satisfied that the Treasury Department has sufficiently tightened investment procedures; a proper audit trail is now maintained; seven-day deposits have been introduced; and new systems have been developed to maximise cash balances available for investment. The Treasury Department told the Committee that interest earnings are expected to top $600,000 for 1995, compared to $476,000 for 1994 and $185,000 for 1993. Based on the information and explanations provided, the Committee is satisfied that appropriate remedial action has now been taken.

(12) CURRENCY FUND—The Currency Fund reported a loss of $2.1 million, during 1994, resulting from the sale and devaluation of its US Treasury Bond holdings. Losses on the Currency Fund's investments are quite separate from its other operating activities, on which a healthy $1.7 million profit was made. The Committee sought an explanation as to the causes and effects of the investment losses.

The Chairman (the Hon Financial Secretary) and Manager of the Cayman Islands Currency Board provided evidence to the Committee.

During 1994 inflationary concerns in a strong American economy led to increases in US interest rates. This factor led to a fall in US Treasury Bond prices. The Currency Fund held US Treasury Bonds at the start of 1994 and, in the context of a worldwide decline in bond prices during the year, losses in the value of its investment holdings were inevitable. The extent of the losses suffered could have been minimised if the Currency Fund had switched its investments into cash. This, in turn, would have reduced the amount of interest earned by the Currency Fund. The Committee was pleased to hear that the unrealised investment losses suffered during 1994 were being reversed in 1995. At 30th September, 1995 unrealised gains in the value of investments stood at $907,000 while realised profits made on the actual sale of investments amounted to $463,000.

The role of local management also featured in the Committee's discussion. The Committee was told that the Currency Fund is managed by the Currency Board. Cash deposits are the only assets of the Currency Fund which are controlled directly by the Currency Board. No losses have arisen in respect of such balances. The Committee appreciates that the Currency Board does not possess sufficient resources or expertise to become involved in the daily management of the Currency Fund's external investments—on which the 1994 losses occurred. The Currency Board's responsibility thereto was discharged by issuing Crown Agents Asset Management Limited (CAAML) with a series of operating memoranda as to permissible investments and their maturity profile. Within the framework of the operating memoranda, CAAML had full discretionary powers in its investment decisions.

The Committee learned that the Currency Board has discontinued the services of CAAML. Effective 1st January 1996, the new investment managers will be Schroder Capital Management International Inc. (Schroder). Witnesses stated that the costs of external investment management under Schroder are expected to be $14,000 per annum, (16%) less than fees currently paid to CAAML. The Committee noted that management fees are based on the value of the investment portfolio and not on the performance of the investment manager. The Chairman of the Currency Board stated that he would not endorse a switch to a performance-based measure, as this might induce investment in securities with increased risk.

Comments were given by the Chairman as to the performance by CAAML. He stated that CAAML had been investment managers to the Currency Fund for 24 years and overall they had performed reasonably well. Although 1994 was an exceptionally bad year for the US bond market, the Currency Board found it unacceptable that CAAML did not foresee the extent of the likely losses in the value of US Treasury Bonds. Indeed, CAAML predicted that the investment losses would have reversed by the end of 1994. Overall for fiscal 1994 the Currency Fund's external investment achieved a total return of negative 1.82%; this compared poorly with its benchmark index return of negative 0.17%. The Honourable Financial Secretary stated that CAAML did not present convincing explanations for this under-performance.

The Committee is satisfied from the evidence presented that Officers of the Currency Board have at all times complied with relevant laws regulating the Fund's permissible investments. CAAML itself has conducted the investment affairs of the Currency Fund within the ambit of the operating memoranda issued by the Board. The ultimate effect of the unrealised losses was that the Currency Fund's operating profits were utilised in the Fund's General Reserves to compensate for the unrealised investment losses, and this reduced the contribution to Government's General Revenue to $0.4 million from a budgeted figure of $1.6 million. Of paramount importance is the fact that the stability of the Cayman Islands Currency was not affected in any way by the unrealised investment losses.

The Committee recommends the establishment of benchmarks to measure local investment performance.

(13) REFUGEE COSTS—The Committee notes that the total cost of maintaining Cuban asylum seekers from January 1994 to June 1995 was almost $4.5 million. The final cost of this exercise was not known when the Auditor General tabled his Report. The main costs outstanding relate to the provision of United Kingdom police personnel and possible claims from the United States Government for refugee support costs of $10 per refugee per day at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

The Chief Immigration Officer confirmed to the Committee that no costs had been billed by the United States Government. The Committee was told that the Cayman Islands was trying to monitor the refugee situation through the Office of His Excellency the Governor and the United Kingdom Ambassador in Washington. However, accurate information was difficult to obtain and no reliable figures were available on the numbers of Cubans paroled into the United States. The Committee strongly recommends that in the event of any claim from the United States' authorities, the Cayman Islands Government must insist on the highest standards of evidence combined with rigorous vetting before any payments are made for refugees lodged at Guantanamo Bay. The Committee further urges that any request for funds for this purpose should be brought before Finance Committee prior to any agreement with, or payment to, the United States' authorities.

The Committee was told that bills for United Kingdom police officers had now been received from United Kingdom police authorities. The amount involved is not known. The Committee urges the Government to seek financial assistance from H M Foreign and Commonwealth Office to meet these costs, which the Committee expects will be substantial.

Most of the Committee's examination was directed towards the cost of providing security services at Tent City, which had amounted to over $700,000 by 30 June 1995. The refugee problem was a national crisis, involving several Government departments and agencies and the Committee accepts that the Immigration, Police and Social Services Departments were under great pressure. Nevertheless, Controlling Officers are responsible and accountable for their actions; especially for ensuring that funds under their control are properly managed even in times of crisis.

The Committee can accept that there was insufficient time for a public tender for security services but finds it unacceptable that the Immigration Department was unable to provide documentary evidence of price quotations. There is also no written contract between Government and the security company.

The Committee was alarmed by the disclosure that the Social Services Department had failed to carry out even elementary checks to confirm that security services invoiced had actually been provided. The Committee received some assurances from the Controlling Officer that she was fully satisfied as to the propriety and accuracy of invoices paid by the Department of Social Services. The Committee however fails to understand the basis on which these assurances have been provided and finds the explanation unconvincing.

It was brought to the Committee's attention that the Cayman Islands continues to provide free accommodation and utilities to several of the Cuban migrants who were granted refugee status. The Committee fails to understand why this situation has continued for so long and recommend that these services be terminated forthwith.

(14) PRE-SCHOOL GRANTS—In its consideration of Pre-School Grants, the Committee's examination was directed towards: (i) the administration of the pre-school grant scheme; and (ii) the targeting of assistance.

The Committee has not concerned itself with the policy merits of the previous Government's decision to phase out the reception class in Government Primary Schools with effect from the 1992/93 academic year.

Pre-school assistance for eligible Caymanian children has been available since 1992/93. Eligibility guidelines for assistance were developed by the Education Council. Assistance of up to $300 per month for a 10-month period is available to parents who disclose monthly expenditure (including pre-school costs) in excess of monthly income. The numbers of persons receiving assistance have grown from 64 in 1992 to 183 in 1994/95. The Education Department received 210 applications for the 1995/96 academic year, of which 140 have been approved.

The Committee's main conclusions are as follows:

- ◆ Detailed rules and procedures for operating the pre-school scheme were not fully developed by the Education Department, which was not properly resourced to administer this programme.
- ◆ The cost of pre-school assistance increased substantially over the costs initially advised to the Legislative Assembly in 1992. Pre-school budgets have been overspent in 1993 and 1994. In turn, this has caused pressure on the remainder of the Education budget.
- ◆ The Committee was not satisfied that information about the existence of the scheme was widely available to the public and notes that 83% of Year 1 students in 1993/94 did not benefit from the scheme in 1992/93.
- ◆ The Committee is disturbed by the numbers of children who do not attend pre-school. The Auditor General reported that only 74% of Year 1 children at Government Schools in 1994/95 attended pre-school, compared to 93% of children at private schools. Attendance at pre-school was only 56% in one district. The Committee was shocked to learn from witnesses that only one child in five of the current Year 1 at George Town Primary has attended pre-school.
- ◆ Almost $100,000 in direct assistance has been paid to three pre-schools since 1992/93. The Officers of the Department told the Committee that grants to two of these schools had been terminated with effect from September, 1995 and that assistance for the third school will continue up to the end of the 1995/96 academic year.
- ◆ One fundamental weakness of the scheme was the failure of the Education Department to obtain suitable proof of applicants' income. The Committee has been informed that this weakness has been rectified with effect from 1995/96.

- ◆ Another major issue is the Department's inherent difficulty in verifying applicants' monthly expenditure. As far as the Committee is aware, this problem has not been addressed.
- ◆ The Committee takes note of the numerous anomalies disclosed in the Auditor General's Report. These matters have arisen because assistance was provided for every eligible child in 1994/95 without strict regard to the financial position of parents according to the guidelines approved by the Education Council.

The Committee recommends that: (a) greater media publicity about pre-school financial assistance should be provided to the general public; (b) the Education Department should investigate thoroughly the reason for the low pre-school attendance statistics at certain Government Primary Schools; and (c) the basis on which financial assistance is presently granted to parents should be reviewed. Scheme guidelines should be clear and easily understood by applicants, operationally sound and sufficiently robust to withstand external scrutiny.

(15) ARREARS OF LOANS AND MORTGAGES—NON CIVIL SERVANTS—The Committee was informed that over $45,000 in loans was owed to Government by 18 persons, most of whom are former civil servants. All of these cases are delinquent, with no payments having been received on any of the accounts for over four years. The Committee also notes that there were seven delinquent mortgages totalling $93,455 owed by former civil servants as at 31st December 1994. No repayments have been received on four of these loans for over four years. In most cases, Government does not hold a first charge on the property, making recovery difficult.

The Committee is concerned that these delinquent loans do not seem to have been pursued vigorously enough by the Treasury Department. The Committee recommends immediate recovery action of these outstanding amounts, if necessary, through the Courts.

(16) ACKNOWLEDGMENTS—The Committee wishes to place on record its sincere appreciation to Mr. Nigel Esdaile, Auditor General; Mr. Kenneth Jefferson, Audit Manager and his staff, for their thorough and honest assessment of the various operations of the Government, its Departments and Statutory Authorities; to Mr. Joel Walton, Deputy Financial Secretary and Mr. Alan Mason, Accountant General for their assistance and advice to the Committee; to the persons who appeared before the Committee for their co-operation and valuable information offered; and to the Clerk and her staff for their assistance to the Committee.

(17) REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE—The Committee agrees that this Report be the Report of the Standing Public Accounts Committee on the Report of the Auditor General on the Audited Accounts of the Cayman Islands Government for the year ended 31st December, 1994 and laid on the Table of this honourable House in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 74(5).

DEFERMENT OF DEBATE

Standing Order 24(9)(viii)

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 24(9)(viii), I recommend that any debate on the Public Accounts Committee's Report be deferred until the tabling of Government's Minute on this report.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: In accordance with Standing Order, the Report of the Public Accounts Committee is deemed accepted.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay moved a motion that the debate on the Public Accounts Committee be deferred until the Government Minute is laid on the Table of the House.

Do you have a seconder for that motion? The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Madam Speaker, I beg to second that motion.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that debate on the Public Accounts Committee's Report for the year ended 31st December, 1994 be deferred until the Government Minute is laid on the Table of the House by the Honourable Financial Secretary. The motion has been moved and duly seconded.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

The debate is accordingly deferred until the Government Minute is laid on the Table of the House.

AGREED. DEBATE ON THE PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE'S REPORT DEFERRED UNTIL THE GOVERNMENT MINUTE IS LAID ON THE TABLE OF THE HOUSE.

The Speaker: The next item is Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Eleven o'clock has already passed. If we wish to continue with Questions, suspension of a Standing Order is required and may be moved by any Member.

Any Member who has a question to be asked can move the suspension of Standing Order if he wishes the answer to be given.

The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) & (8)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the relevant Standing Orders so that Members can ask their questions.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23(7) be suspended in order to allow questions to be dealt with because the time has passed for questions.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11.00 AM.

The Speaker: We will now deal with questions. The first one is No. 273 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 273

No. 273: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to state what programmes are being offered at the Alternative Education Centre.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the primary aim of the Tutorial Centre of Alternative Education is: To return those students placed out of mainstream schools because of the difficulties they are experiencing in coping with the school system to their emotional and or behavioural disorders.

In order to facilitate this aim students are placed on Individual Educational Programmes (IEP) to ensure they follow the same courses in Mathematics, English and Social Studies that they would be pursuing at their mainstream school. In addition, supplementary work is given in these subjects to remediate any individual problems a child may be experiencing. An additional educational programme is provided which offers an adapted curriculum in the following areas: Basic Science, Music, Art, Physical Education, Computer Studies, Life Skills, and Home Economics.

Secondly, all students are placed on individual treatment programmes to ensure their emotional/behavioural disorders are individually identified and strategies and programmes developed to modify and correct their problems such that they will cope with mainstream schooling on their return. Ten of the 12 students at the Tutorial Centre were referred for emotional/behavioural disorders—of these ten, eight are being re-integrated for between five and 18 of their 30 lesson periods per week.

We also have two students at the Centre on Chief Education Officer's Thirty-Day Long Term Suspensions. These students will be observed, assessed and recommendations made to the Education Council concerning their future placement.

Suspension Unit The primary aim of the Suspension Unit is: To ensure students placed out of mainstream schools for short-term suspensions are placed in a structured and supervised setting where they can, as far as possible, continue their normal education.

In order to facilitate this aim, students follow the same courses in English, Mathematics and Social Studies as they would in their mainstream school. In addition, supplementary work is given in these three subjects and also in reading.

In the case of all students, whether at the Tutorial Centre or the Suspension Unit, individual counselling, by a trained counsellor, is available to all students and their parents.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Minister say if any of these students have been assessed or tested for attention deficit hyperactive disorder?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker they have been screened by the Education Psychologist for it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister state the co-operation between the centre and the parents of these students?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the School Council liaise with the parents of the children at least three to four times per term.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Minister say how many students were screened for attention deficit hyperactive disorder and how many are taking counselling or treatment for this disorder?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, two were screened but not considered to have that disorder.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 274 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 274

No. 274: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is Government's present procedure for response to SOS calls for rescue at sea.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, the Marine section of the Royal Cayman Islands Police is responsible for dealing with SOS calls. The location of the source of the call and existing weather conditions are the main factors considered in determining the form and scale of the response.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Would the Honourable Member say if there are any regards to the distance from where the call may be coming from?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, yes. The distance from the Cayman Islands or whichever is the nearest point, is a factor. If the distance is considered too far or weather conditions might not permit we have to look at other means, for argument sake, air assistance.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Member say if there is any charge levied by the Government with regards to responding to these calls?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, not normally but it depends on the nature of the call. For argument sake, if someone calls and says that he has run out of fuel and needs to get towed in, then it is only fair that Government be reimbursed for this. After all we are not offering a marine-towing service. But if there is a genuine emergency then there would not normally be a charge.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Does Government have any arrangement with any other jurisdictions, say for example the United States, for response by its coast guard in cases where the Cayman Islands might not be able to meet specifically the rescue call?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yes, over the years there have been arrangements with the United States' coast guard in instances where we are unable to deal with [SOS] calls. But in recent times I believe there have been instances where local facilities, for example the helicopter, has been used when the marine facilities owned by the police are unable to deal with the emergency.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Member say if in recent times the Government has refused to respond to any SOS calls?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Not that I am aware of, but if there is a problem and equipment happens to be out of service and the utilisation of other equipment elsewhere is not feasible, then the private sector may be asked to assist.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 275 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 275

No. 275: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is the status of the review of the Public Service Commission's Regulations and General Orders.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, terms of reference were provided by His Excellency the Governor who appointed a working group to review the Public Service Commission's Regulations and General Orders.

Submissions from Heads of Departments and a number of individual Civil Servants are being considered by the Group at this stage.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Member say if the Cayman Islands Civil Service Association is also working in this particular exercise of the review?

The Speaker: The First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, yes both the Civil Service Association and the Public Managers Association are involved. His Excellency did appoint a representative from those associations to serve on the Working Group [Committee]. However, up to this point although we have requested submission from these associations, I do not think there has been any submission received from either association.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 276 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 276

No. 276: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture; (a) If $12,000 has been paid towards the development of the Bodden Town public beach; and (b) If so, to whom was the payment made and are there any guidelines set by Government for accounting for this money.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, (a) Yes, $12,000 was paid toward the development of the Bodden Town Public Beach, and (b) A cheque was made payable to the Bodden Town Public Beach, E.G. Terry. It is a donation to assist with the purchasing of materials and building supplies. The Ministry will normally visit the project on completion and will follow the progress of the project.

Bills and receipts will be forwarded to the Ministry.

Since this question was publicised, it has raised rumours of impropriety. The Ministry has found none whatsoever!

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In the answer the Minister has said that [someone from] the Ministry would normally visit the project [site] on completion. Is it the case where someone in the Ministry has been directed to visit the project site to see just how it is progressing and how the money was spent?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Seeing that the beach in question is supposed to be Government owned (which is a public beach), is there in place any design for structures, such as ramp or any other development that might be placed on this particular beach?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I cannot say anything about ramps, I have not seen any being built there, but I certainly know by visiting the project that the works are continuing.

Madam Speaker, I would like to say to this honourable House that we understand how much public beaches can cost because we are developing one in West Bay. If the Member searches the Estimates, he will see the amount that has been allocated for that beach. We can take that as comparison to other public beaches that Government has assisted with. From that the [Member] can see the costs that lie in developing a beach. This one in Bodden Town is no different than any of the rest.

If you want something done, you have to pay for it. My advice to the Member is that he should help.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Is fixing the beach from the heavy erosion that is taking place there part of the money that is allocated? In that there have been concerns expressed about the heavy erosion and in fact a Minister has made reference to this particular situation.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I am no expert on erosion. I like to build, but I understand that a study has been done on the erosion of the public beach.

I should say to the House as far as I can recall, the erosion of the public beach has nothing to do with the beach itself. The erosion came about by the clearing of a channel in the reef which was requested by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and others as well.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: May I hear the Point of Order.

POINT OF ORDER (Misleading)

Mr. Roy Bodden: The Honourable Minister is deliberately misleading the House and I demand that he produce the records where I requested that the channel be cleared.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I do not think that I am misleading the House in any way. I said that this was my understanding that the First Member for Bodden Town among others had requested this channel to be cleared.

If he is saying that he did not, I have to accept that, but that was my understanding of the whole situation. Nevertheless, the two beaches as I have said, cannot be tied directly to the building of the public beach [in Bodden Town]. The erosion of the beach was caused by something separate. It is a problem and a study has been initiated on it.

If the people of Bodden Town need continued assistance, the Ministry and the Government will continue because we believe in assisting our districts and helping our people, not to tear down their names as is being tried with this question.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 277 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 277

No. 277: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture to state if the two recent graduates of the Cayman Islands Marine Institute have been successful in finding gainful employment.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The two recent graduates of the Cayman Islands Marine Institute have been successful in finding and maintaining gainful employment.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Minister say if there is any attempt to keep track of these young graduates and if there are any support services available to help the graduates of the institution in their search for gainful employment upon graduation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

To graduate from the Cayman Islands Marine Institute—and I am glad that this question is being asked because enough untruth has been spread about it—students have to complete all aspects of the programme to the satisfaction of the Director.

The final aspect of this programme is in Continuing Care which places a student in gainful employment or full-time further education while still remaining under the supervision of the institute. Both of these graduates substantially had assessed work experience before being allowed to graduate.

Both students remain in full-time employment; one with Cable and Wireless and the other in the tourism industry. They continue to receive support from the institute Community Co-ordinator and will be tracked and supported for three years after graduation. This is all part of the programme of the institute, that they are assisted in getting employment and are worked with to help keep their jobs.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 278 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 278

No. 278: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is the total number of taxi licences held currently.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister [responsible] left on an urgent matter, but when he was going out I asked... I do not think he...

The Speaker: It looks as if the Honourable First Official Member wishes to say something.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, the question was passed over to me since it is a police matter.

There is a total number of 274 taxi licences currently held.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Through you I would ask, if these licences are exclusively held by Caymanians and their spouses?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, all persons holding taxi licences must be Caymanian.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable First Official Member say if consideration is being given to a ceiling for the number of taxi drivers at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, the present number has been the number for some time. No new licences have been issued for quite some time.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Member say if there are any applications pending and if so, how many?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, it is my understanding that no new applications are being entertained at this time. So the answer is no.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Member then say if there is in effect a quota of 274 licences that have been put in place informally?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, yes, and there is an unofficial moratorium on the issuing of more taxi licences.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member state which department determines this number? Was it done by the Traffic Department or whom?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Since 1992 no new permits have been issued and it is my understanding that this number was fixed at that time. It was agreed by the Commissioner of Police and other persons in Government.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Has the Honourable Member received any complaints or depositions from Caymanians or the spouses of Caymanians wishing to enter the taxi business that persons other than themselves have been successful in obtaining taxi licenses to the exclusion of Caymanians?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: No, Madam Speaker, I have received no such correspondence from anyone.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if his Portfolio, the Police or any Government authority knows if these 274 taxis are providing sufficient service or is there a need over and above what they are providing?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I have no information on that. I cannot say that I have had any representation to the effect that they are insufficient. I do not know if anyone else has that information, but I have none.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

God forbid that it happens. I wonder if the Honourable Member can say if, in the case of one of these licences being a deceased person, if someone is allowed to fill the gap.

The Speaker: I am afraid that is a hypothetical question and...

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, I am simply asking if the quota is at 274, not everybody is going to live forever, will the quota remain at 274?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

No new applications are being entertained for any reason at all, not even if one of the present licence holder passes on.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say what is the difference, if any, between a taxi licence and an omnibus licence, and if the omnibus licences are included in this figure of 274.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The current list of taxi licences does not include licences to drive omnibuses. Perhaps the Member could repeat the question for me.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I understand the part of the answer stating that taxi licences do not include licences to drive omnibuses. Can the Member state what is the difference between a taxi licence and an omnibus licence and if there is a difference, how are these licences issued and how are they differentiated?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The difference, I suppose, is that a person having an omnibus licence cannot drive a taxi. For argument sake, I have had an omnibus licence for about 20 years, but I am certainly not licenced to drive a taxi—it is a separate licence. The whole issue of this will be examined. In fact there are discussions going on now (as the Member will know) on the new Traffic Law and Regulations. This whole issue is currently under discussion.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town, this will be the last supplementary on this question.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Will that review include a formal study or assessment (or census if you will) of the number of taxis now in operation with regard to whether the number can adequately service, or if the number is too large for the business which we now experience?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

That is a mouthful the Member has asked for! Suffice it to say that the Public Transport Board, as provided for under section 41 of the Traffic Law, will be in charge of the renewal process from 1996 onward. The forerunner of this is now under discussion.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today.

We next proceed to Government Business. Bills, Report on Bills.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

REPORT ON BILL

THE APPROPRIATION (1996) BILL, 1995

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I am to report that the Appropriation (1996) Bill, 1995, was considered by the Finance Committee of the whole House and approved without amendment.

I would also like to move that the Appropriation (1996) Bill, 1995, be given its Third Reading forthwith.

The Speaker: Third Reading.

THIRD READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1996) BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Appropriation (1996) Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, the Appropriation (1996) Bill, 1995, be given a Third Reading and passed.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has been given a Third Reading and passed.

AGREED: THE APPROPRIATION (1996) BILL, 1995, PASSED.

The Speaker: First Reading.

FIRST READING

THE LOAN (CAPITAL PROJECTS) BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Loan (Capital Projects) Bill, 1995.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

Second Reading.

SECOND READING

THE LOAN (CAPITAL PROJECTS) BILL, 1995

Clerk: The Loan (Capital Projects) Bill, 1995.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of a bill entitled a Bill for a Law to authorise the borrowing of up to CI$16,160,000 for the financing of Capital Projects as specified in the schedule to the Bill.

As set out in the schedule, the sum of $16,160,000 will be applied against the following Capital Projects.

The first item is for $2,400,634 for medical equipment, of which $2,238,859 is for the Health Services Department in Grand Cayman, and $161,775 for the Faith Hospital in Cayman Brac.

The second item on that schedule is for $1,000,020 for the construction of roads. This figure includes the construction and repairs of various roads in West Bay, George Town, Bodden Town, North Side, and East End.

During Finance Committee it was resolved that the sum should be increased by $300,000 by a corresponding reduction of the provision under Head 52-114, Health Care Facilities. This $300,000 is to allow for road work development in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The third item of the schedule is for $7,510,000. This was amended as mentioned earlier and reduced by $300,000. Accordingly it has been amended to read $7,210,000 for Health Care Facilities Development.

A further break down for some of the major items is: $800,000 for the construction of a Health Clinic at West Bay; what was previously $600,000 for the construction of the new hospital in George Town was reduced by $300,000 to read $5,700,000. This is the item specifically from which the $300,000 was obtained.

Two hundred thousand of this $7,210,000 is for the construction of the district health centre at North Side; $110,000 for the construction of a new sewage plant at the George Town Hospital; $100,000 for Project Management Services relating to the new hospital and $300,000 for construction of a Health Care Centre at East End.

The fourth item on the schedule is for $2,594,069 for Public Buildings. This figure includes a number of projects. The major ones are: $1,200,000 for the construction of the new Department of Environment Building; $260,000 for the conversion of existing buildings into district libraries in West Bay, East End and Bodden Town; $250,000 for the conversion of the Hawley residence into a Drug Rehabilitation Centre; $106,438 for the construction of a fire escape for the Government Administration Building; and $300,000 for the construction of a remand centre.

The fifth and final item is for $2,655,277 for school buildings. This figure includes a number of projects. The major projects are: $65,000 for the construction of a new classroom at Creek Primary School; $100,000 for the upgrading and extending of walkways for the John Gray High School; $294,454 for the replacement of windows, refurbishment and roof repairs to the George Hicks High School; $80,000 for the construction of a multi-purpose hall at Spotts Bay Primary School; $125,000 for the centralised waste water treatment plant for the High School, Community College and the Truman Bodden Sports Complex; $200,000 for the replacement of school buildings at the George Town Primary School; and $150,000 for the construction of four classrooms at the Savannah Primary School.

According to the Treasury's records, the indebtedness of Central Government as at 31st December, 1995, will be $34.12 million. If the assumption is made that the full $16.1 million plus the $840,000 remaining from the 1994 borrowings will be used up in full during 1996, the net indebtedness of Central Government as at 31st December, 1996, should be $45.92 million after allowing for scheduled repayments of $5.14 million during the year, that is, 1996.

The total Public Debt comprising Central Government debt of $45.92 million and the self financing loan of $16.86 million as at 31st December, 1996, should amount to a total of $62.78 million.

As the details in the Estimates in support of this Bill have already been supported by Honourable Members during Finance Committee, I now commend this Bill to this honourable House.

The Speaker: The question is that a bill entitled, The Loan (Capital Projects) Bill, 1995, be given a Second Reading.

The Motion is open for debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am sure that this Loan (Capital Projects) Bill, 1995, would not be amended by one iota if I so requested, or moved the Motion giving three times the necessary allotted time. So I will but comment on some of what is supposed to be done with the money as I have just heard from the Honourable Financial Secretary.

I am one who is grateful to hear what the breakdown is supposed to be at this time, not that this will not be altered along the way by the Government and, indeed, vired to other projects.

First of all, I do not agree with the money allocated to renew the present George Town Hospital, nor do I support it. I think the Government should be made to get the $6 million of the people's money which was wasted in stopping the facility that should have been completed and use that instead.

Construction of roads is something every one in this country knows is necessary. Certainly, $1 million will do little to nothing to the great and pressing need. If anything, I think a larger amount should be allocated to that.

School buildings—that is Government school buildings—are many. One only has to observe to know that these have been allowed to deteriorate to an extent where there should be immediate work and the necessary extensions done to provide the necessary education services.

Public Buildings: There are public buildings which need work and among them I do not really see (if I recall what the Financial Secretary said), a large allocation for buildings in the Breakers area at the Hawley Estate. I still believe that the money could be better spent in entering a joint venture to provide the services proposed to be provided from there, in view of the recurrent cost that it will involve; taking into account that the private sector church-based group is already doing something in that direction.

If the money regarding the refurbishing of the George Town Hospital could be removed and allocated towards finishing an almost completed hospital, I would support this bill, but in that it will not, I do not [support the bill].

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This bill that is being opposed by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, is one which deals with very important facilities. It deals with the health care facilities, to begin with, and what is very clear is that there has undoubtedly been a change of heart by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman since a few short years ago.

The National Team, in its Manifesto, which was adhered to and signed by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, clearly stated that we would stop and build the hospital on the site where it presently is. So, he cannot at this stage say that he agrees with his leader who is opposing it.

If this facility was not so important and vital to the country, where it was to be built would not have spurred considerable debate some time back. What is clear is that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman specifically stated back in 1991 and 1992 that the hospital should be built on the present site where this money is going. Indeed, he cannot challenge those views.

Back on the 29th November, 1991, he specifically stated in this House, words to this effect. I am showing here that if this bill had come then, it would have been fully supported by him.

"I personally believe that the MRCU should be ideally moved from there. Take that to the area of land that the Government owns in the swamp on the dike road. Ideally that is the business it is in.... Knock it down and use that large area there that the people of this country have known as forever as the Hospital and build a new Hospital there in phases. I cannot support the idea of entering head long into three major expenditures at one time..."

On the site itself, on that same day he said: "We are talking about expenditure and there is no one, except the Member, that has said that $16 million can build that Hospital and fix that site. What I read in the papers from one of the engineers and so on, was that the mud was not any deeper than what it was somewhere down around Lime Tree Bay. He is fixing his posture. [and this was in relation to Mr. Ezzard Miller] Nobody is going to nail him down when it takes $10 million to fill the site [talking about the new hospital site]. He said, 'Well look I told you it would not take more than that and after all they had a dredge down there.' That is what we need to look at."

Lastly on this point, we have on the debate on the Loan (George Town)(Amendment) Bill, 1992, on the 11th March 1992 Hansard, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said: "I have believed for a long time that the present Hospital can serve us for some time yet and that steps should be taken to improve certain areas of it to a certain standard so that the physical plant can be in a position to better do the job for which it was intended."

So there can be no doubt that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has changed his position on this point. There can be no doubt that he supported (against Mr. Ezzard Miller) putting the hospital on the present site and doing exactly what the Minister for Health is now doing. There can be no doubt either that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town supported exactly what the Minister for Health is now doing in our Manifesto.

The public can see the difference when they look at the way those Members have changed their posture and they have done what suits them best at the time for political expediency.

Mention was made of the cost of school buildings and the question of repairs by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, but if that Member would take the time to look at some of these schools he would see that they are well maintained, they are well run and that there is an Education policy in place that has been put there by 353 members of the public of whom half are professional teachers or professionals in the area of education; and that when anyone attempts to criticise the policy, they are basically criticising their own electorate and their own voters.

A lot of the policy relating to these buildings would have come out of the Action Plans put together by the public, basically, because every district was made the subject of dealing with these policies when the Strategic Plan was going through. I am satisfied that the school buildings and the school system are good. It is not my system, I accepted what was put forward by the members of the public whom I think are far better able to deal with these matters and by no means defunct in their profession.

We had a question about the impact of this loan on the Government's borrowings and the Government's finances. To put this concisely, between 1993 and 1995 the contribution of this Government to Capital Projects such as these from Recurrent Revenue was $42.3 million. In other words, we have taken out of our salary, wages or income, $42.3 million and put that into Capital Works. So this is $42.3 million that has been saved. It has gone into Capital Projects.

The previous Government from 1990 to 1992 contributed nothing at all to Capital Projects. In fact, they borrowed $3 million to supplement their recurrent expenditure. This has to be understood clearly. It is like a person who is drawing a salary, taking money to buy their house, rather than paying for it over a period of time with a loan.

We have had sufficient surplus each year to contribute $42.3 million from recurrent revenue to Capital.

The borrowings from 1993 to 1995... up until this Bill, this Government has only borrowed $8.5 million. The $16.6 million of Cayman Airways debt was as a result of previous Government's debt. That resolution was passed in June 1992. They are not borrowings that this Government has made. The only amount that we have borrowed so far is $8.5 million. The $16.6 million for Cayman Airways all went for past debts, nothing out of that amount went to the future of Cayman Airways.

The public debt has seen us make repayment during 1993 to 1995 of $33.83 million. We have repaid $33.83 million of previous Government debt, while we have only borrowed $8.5 million during our time.

When you add together the surplus that we have put into Capital Expenditure of $42.3 million, to the repayment of $33.83 million, you will find that we have paid into Capital and repayment of loans $76 million during that time that we have only borrowed $8.5 million. So this amount today, the $16 million, will only (and this will be over a period of time because this cannot be spent in one year) bring the total borrowings to $25 million; whereas we have repaid $33 million on previous Governments' debts.

The attempt by Team Cayman to produce (presumably for election purposes) the distorted and obviously very frightening facts of public debt . . . indeed what the Honourable Financial Secretary stated shortly after to correct it will really show the frightening part of this. They have taken for 1992 the Central Government debt of $15 million; in 1993 they have taken Central Government debt of $27 million; and when they hit 1994, they move it up to $61 million by adding on the debt of the statutory corporations. What they have done, in an effort to frighten the public, is to make comparisons when it suits them, and added $24 million of debt in one without adding it on to the previous ones.

If this was deliberate, it is obviously very serious and misleading and (as this says) a very frightening thing to believe—that people could so distort true figures to the extent they have. I was happy that (as the Honourable Financial Secretary has said) the debt between 1994 and 1995 has actually decreased by 14.9%, instead of the increase that Team Cayman tried to show of 121%. The true facts are that between 1993 and 1994 the increase had only been 13%. This has to be a deliberate and very frightening matter.

As I have just been reminded by my colleague, they still could not fool the people. The fact is that the loans of this country for the first time are well under control, the public debt is reducing and this table that was in the statement made by the Honourable Financial Secretary, has been laid on the Table of the House for all to see.

This Government has been a responsible Government. We are conservative in our approach to finance, and the private sector, the banks, know that they can trust us. Unlike 1992, when it was impossible to raise a loan by the Government because of the bad financial position at that time, borrowing of some $40-odd million in three years and losses of some $34 million by Cayman Airways in two and a half years, we are able to have financial integrity and financial confidence from the banking community. That in itself pays credence to a well-managed country—debt that is well-managed.

Therefore, I am very pleased to support this Bill. The money is being spent on Capital Projects. No money is being borrowed, as was borrowed by the last Government to pay for recurrent revenue. In other words, they were not living within their means, they borrowed all the money for Capital, whereas in this instance this year alone we have contributed about $8 million to Capital Projects.

These five projects here, four categories of projects, the medical equipment, health care facilities, construction of roads, public buildings and school buildings, this money will be going toward assets and therefore will be shown as being improvements to the country as a whole.

I fully support this and I ask other Members to please do so.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Loan (Capital Projects) Bill, 1995, as outlined by the Honourable Third Official Member, involves various sections with various amounts totalling $16.16 million. In general, the purpose of the various amounts are fairly obvious. There are a few concerns I have which might not necessarily relate to the amount in question, but certain methodologies when it comes to arriving at certain figures. I am quite sure that the Honourable Financial Secretary will be able to respond to these in his winding up.

The first amount, which is $2,400,634, for medical equipment, has already been basically explained to be just what it is—medical equipment. For the upgrading of medical services both here and in the Brac, for whatever reasons, the truth is whenever we can afford to do such upgrading it is certainly in the best interests of the people that it be done.

The next amount for the construction of roads, I have a few questions on. I thought they would have been dealt with during Finance Committee, but unfortunately, and I guess inadvertently, certain things did not get dealt with.

In the Estimates explaining these amounts which form part of the Loan Bill, the section which deals with this is headed 'Construction of Roads'. In looking through the various areas which make up the total amount, I see where certain amounts are dedicated to the construction and repair of roads. I wish only to speak for the district which I represent at this time and the part which forms the total for this borrowing.

There is $238,267 for construction and repairs to various roads in the district of George Town. I remember when we had allocated funds last year for construction and road repairs in our district. When we got the various estimates from the PWD, it was obvious that the amount allocated ($400,000) was no where near what was really required to even put a dent in all the areas that needed assistance with roads.

It was projected in the 1995 Estimates that there would be an amount (either $400,000 or $500,000) which would have been allocated to the district of George Town for road repairs. I see where under Loans for Construction and Repairs to Roads there is this amount of $238,000 which is much less than what was projected for the year.

There is also another amount in the roads' repair vote, the maintenance vote, $230,000. My main concern with how the Estimates are worded is, will this amount which forms part and parcel of the Loan Bill for the construction of roads in the district be for new roads, existing roads, or what type of roads? I greatly fear that my district is going to find itself with hardly any funds whatsoever to execute any major repairs or maintenance of roads which are direly needed.

It reads 'Construction and Repairs to various roads', I am not being given a very clear answer as to how the funds will be used.

I noticed in the same 'Construction of Roads' section, which forms the $1.418 million out of the bill ($1.3 million plus another amount from a 1994 existing loan which is added to it to make it the $1.48 million), that for the construction of the Harquail Bypass road which includes Red Gate and CUC extension in George Town, there is an amount of $10, which is what we would simply term a token vote.

There has been some brief explanation as to why there is only a token vote. The explanation that I have thus far is, that because there have been no firm estimates forthcoming, no amount could be budgeted for. I have also been told that it is planned for this road to be built during fiscal year 1996.

It has also been said that the construction and financing of this road is going to be put out for bids. My understanding of this is that whenever a bid is accepted for the construction of the Harquail Bypass road it will be put out to tender again for private parties, a bank or a group of people who will put in a bid to finance the project. I am assuming that would mean that the Government would seek the most acceptable terms of borrowing, regardless of whether it is an institution or private enterprise. It would simply entail the best terms of interest, probably for the longest period of time so as not to interfere with the ordinary workings of the Government.

Having said all of these things, of which some are assumptions (I think fair assumptions), the truth of the matter is, if this is going to be done in the fiscal year 1996, then if there is an agreement for someone to construct the road, the balancing act will be a loan. To me, this means that whatever amount is agreed upon for the construction of this road a corresponding entry of a loan amount has to be put for the equation to balance.

At this point in time I am trying to be as candid and pragmatic as possible. But I find it hardly acceptable, for even if the loan is over a long period of time and all of the money (certainly the majority of it) will not be paid back during the fiscal year, the truth is that for such an exercise, which I am estimating to be near $10 million, it will be no different than either one of these figures presented as part of the Loan Bill today. It leads me to the point where the amount of $238,000 being allocated as the amount for construction and repairs to various roads in George Town, whether that amount is going to get gobbled up as part and parcel of whatever has to be done in the preparation of this larger project.

Mention was made that if, and when, this Harquail Bypass is constructed it will signify that the district of George Town will be getting the majority of money spent for roads, so why should any of its representatives be complaining? I would think that it is obvious for all and sundry to see that this bypass, while it will certainly serve a purpose (and I do not have any problems whatsoever with doing it), it certainly is not being done to facilitate the people of George Town. So while it has to be built in the district, it is simply a matter that George Town being the capital, and so many business entities, the airport, the hospital, the port and other major facilities, are located in the district of George Town, it is obvious that the majority of people have to commute through, and to, those various areas. I do not wish to hear that because this amount of money is being spent in the district that we should be happy and shut up.

I have made my point regarding this road. For whatever it is worth, the intention is simply for the budget process to be straight forward. I maintain that I have great fears about certain things which the other representatives for the district and myself agreed on last year, which could not be done because of financial constraints, but would certainly have been done this year. It seems to me that we might well not be in a position to get these projects completed.

Not for myself alone, but for all of us who represent the district, it is part of our responsibility. So I raise the question and it can only be left as to what type of answer is forthcoming and whether it is satisfactory. Not in these Estimates, Madam Speaker, but in the Estimates before—in the 1995 Revised Estimates—for the Harquail By-pass there was an amount of $1.31 million approved which included the Red Gate and the CUC extension. While that may be assumption on my part as to how it reads, and I quote: "Harquail By-pass—$1,310,000 including Red Gate and CUC extension." The Revised Estimates for 1995 was $1,310,000 and we are still dealing with the Red Gate and CUC extension which is the very beginning of the by-pass road. My question on that is, was the figure of $1.31 million simply a jump start and was it not sufficient in regard to the CUC and Red Gate extension?

There was also a figure in the 1995 Revised Estimates for the Crewe Road bypass from the Lion Centre to Halfway Pond of $150,000. There is no mention whatsoever in the 1996 Estimates for the Crewe Road bypass.

It is said again that this might be done during this year and if it is going to be done, I wish someone could show me how. I do not know what the $150,000 that is part in parcel of the 1995 Revised Estimates did for the bypass, whether it was used for research or it was not spent, I would like to know that also.

Madam Speaker, on many occasions I have alluded to and pressed on about long-term planning. I take this opportunity to say it one more time. We are not getting value for our money spent because we are dealing with reactive measures and are not as proactive as we should be—proactive meaning, planning for down line. That is not a today problem.

Earlier in Finance Committee certain questions were raised and when certain irregularities were noticed it was said that this is what had been done for 20 years. I have no doubts about it, but I have serious doubts as to whether we should continue like that.

For public buildings in the Estimates there is fairly a wide range of projects that include roughly the $2.6 million. Suffice it to say that if we were to go through each and every project the only assumption to be made is, that priorities in various areas [have been set] and policy makers have made their decisions with regard to where they intend to exercise those priorities.

Under School Buildings—51-122 is $2.65 million. The question that I have on some of these amounts has been partially answered already, but I noticed that several allocated amounts are sums of $25,000 and less which certainly cannot complete the indicated projects. What I am not 100% sure of by way of these estimates—some of them have 1997 projected figures, but I learn from the 1995 Estimates that it really does not make any sense to bank on those projected 1996 figures because by the time the next year comes around they will vary. That might be for good reasons, but certainly you cannot depend on these figures being true for the next year.

There is proposed construction of several buildings and the amounts that have been indicated cannot complete the projects. While one may rely on the obvious fact in the Projected Capital Expenditure, during the course of the year it will become fairly obvious that certain amounts will not [be realised] because various agencies cannot physically make it happen.

One is left to wonder why do we engage in the plans if we know that these things are not going to happen. It is not a question of intention and it is not a question of whether the best thing will get done. I bring to question the way that we are all accustomed to dealing with the process. I accept that any government of the day will need to prove to the country that it is making every attempt possible to address as many areas. Madam Speaker, we might at some point because of pressure from opposing factors or supporting factors spread ourselves too thin, while in truth and in fact with reassessment we really do not achieve as much as we should.

I guess that if one so desired, one could make a case for other issues. The overview here is: as representatives receive the Estimates which include from time to time a certain amount of loans that have to be approved, if those estimates do not contain exactly what is intended to be accomplished, then it is very difficult for us as representatives to come to grips without either becoming paranoid or loaded with questions as to which direction exactly are we heading in.

Not with vast knowledge, I believe that the actual budget process needs to be looked at because the Civil Service arm (who are the preparers), and the elected arm (who are the policy makers), always find themselves in last minute problems because the Budget has to be delivered by a certain time. For days and sleepless nights there is gridlock because various department heads who make their requests always put the policymakers in a quandary because if the requests are going to be met there is no room for anything new to be done to prove that the job is being done.

I do not suspect that this will change—that the departments in making requests will not want more than can be provided for them. But at least if the system allows for a more streamlined situation and something which gives a better timetable, then I hold the view that the end result for the country must be better.

I raise these questions on the Loan Bill, Madam Speaker, not to throw aside the intention (certainly not), but with full admission it has taken me a little while to get a fairly good grasp of the process. I do not profess at this point in time to be able to lecture on the subject, but I think by now I have a fairly good grasp of it. I really believe that not by anyone's volition, but by an accepted process which is fast becoming unacceptable, we are finding ourselves with shortcomings that can be overcome. It is not going to take one person to solve the problem; it is going to take a lot of co-operation.

The fun and games that the Backbench and/or the Opposition may have with the government of the day—while the official arm has to sit and listen—might be better served if what we are dealing with is loaded with facts, little less of your intentions, and our ability to deal with what we know at the end of the day will happen—which is a rarity at present. I trust that what I have just said might be thought about and perhaps in the future those of us who remain will be able to contribute more to the future and well-being of the country.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to give support to the Loan (Capital Projects) Bill, 1995. As I have said in the meeting during Finance Committee when we discussed medical equipment which is set down here at $2,400,634, there are many items that make up this amount—items that are very much needed at the hospital. Most of it right now is for equipment that we can use and as the development of the new hospital progresses we will be able to use them there.

Let me give a brief overview for the benefit of this honourable House, to where this equipment will go. For the Forensic Lab four pieces which will be: a new Dophlier Ultrasound machine, CR X-ray machine a mobile X-ray machine (because if the one we now have breaks down we have to wait a considerable time for X-rays to be done), an Auto Analyser for the Lab, and Endoscopic pieces of equipment for the kit. Also included is equipment for laparoscopy surgery which we have embarked on over the last couple of years. It has saved this country several hundred thousand dollars for procedures that can now be done here instead of overseas.

The next big item in the Bill is the $7,510,000. We are going ahead with the hospital and as most honourable Members know, I have done my very best to keep politics out of this. I honestly feel that it is because of the politics that this country we now enjoy, except for medical facilities, is ranked among some of the best countries of the world. It is time that we put this behind us and go ahead. We need this facility, we have the finest providers of medical care anywhere in the world, but they desperately need a proper facility in which to work.

Since I have taken over this Ministry, everything I have done in regard to the hospital with the support of my colleagues has been done in the proper manner. There have been no shortcuts and I refuse to rush into this without the complete involvement of all medical personnel and technicians. What is being put forward for this country is done at a professional level without politics being involved.

This is not my hospital or the Ministry of Health, or the National Team's hospital. This is what our dedicated medical providers feel is best for this country. They are the ones who have to work there and this is what we are attempting to do now; to provide them with these facilities.

The other area we are looking at here in the Bill, is the construction of roads, public buildings, schools buildings. I think the record of this Government for the last three years can justify what we are doing. I will not say, as has been said before... just a limited amount of funds that we have borrowed, but these are things that we need to keep the infrastructure going. Our people deserve, and must get these services. This is what the Bill will accomplish.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Mover wish to exercise his right of reply?

Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, we propose to take the adjournment if the Chair will allow.

The Speaker: We still have five minutes.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, there is a special reason why we are asking the Chair to agree. I know you were not notified, but for the five minutes, I crave your indulgence.

The Speaker: I will accept a motion for the adjournment. Honourable Minister.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I beg the adjournment of this honourable House until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until 10.00 AM, Wednesday, 13 December, 1995.

AT 4.27 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY 13 DECEMBER 1995.

WEDNESDAY
13 DECEMBER 1995
10.10 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Member for North Side to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.
Order. Proceedings are resumed.

APOLOGY

The Speaker: There is an apology for the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, who will be arriving later this morning.

Presentation of Papers and Reports, review of salary and allowance. The Honourable First Official Member.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House, the Review of Salaries and Allowances 1996.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Report of the Standing Finance Committee for the 22nd June 1994; 21st December 1994; 4th August, 1995; 1st September, 1995; and 4th December, 1995, the Honourable Third Official Member.

REPORTS OF STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this honourable House the Reports of the Standing Finance Committees for Wednesday, 22nd June, 1994; Wednesday, 21st December, 1994; Friday, 4th August, 1995; Friday, 1st September, 1995; and Monday, 4th December, 1995.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, at the meeting held on the 22nd of June, 1994 the Committee considered and approved a sum of $5,734,267 for various Heads of Departments within Government; this included a sum of $1,644,547 representing a 5% salary increase to civil servants.

The Committee also considered and approved various other items as appearing under Other Matters referred to Finance Committee for consideration.

The Committee agrees that this Report be the report of the Standing Finance Committee in respect of the meeting held on Wednesday, the 22nd of June, 1994.

REPORT FOR 21 DECEMBER, 1994

Madam Speaker, at the meeting of Finance Committee held on Wednesday, the 21st December, 1994, the Committee considered and approved a sum of $2,454,043 for various Heads of Departments within Government. The Committee also considered and approved various items appearing under Other Matters referred to Finance Committee for consideration. The only exception is, the Committee deferred its decision on a request for the authorisation under the relevant sections of the Financial and Stores Regulations to write off two sums of $25,721 and $400.

The Committee agrees that this Report be the report of the Standing Finance Committee in respect of the meeting held on the 21st December, 1994 which is to be laid on the Table of this honourable House.

REPORT FOR 4 AUGUST, 1995

Madam Speaker, at the meeting of Finance Committee on the 4th of August, 1995 the Committee gave consideration to a request which in accordance with Standing Order 67, the Committee approved a request for the authorisation of the Government's guarantee approved by Finance Committee on the 24th of December, 1994 for Cayman Airways Limited to purchase an aircraft as follows: "In accordance with the provision of section 28(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law, 1985, approval was given for the issue of a Government guarantee to a selected bank for up to seven years for up to US$5,300,000 for a loan to Cayman Airways Limited or another company owned by Government which will do a back to back lease upon the loan conditions to Cayman Airways Limited for the purchase of a Boeing 737-200 aircraft;

"AND further that the form thereof be settled by the Honourable Attorney General in consultation with the Honourable Financial Secretary and Cayman Airways' lawyers."

The Committee agrees that this Report be the report of the Standing Finance Committee in respect of the meeting held on Friday, the 4th of August, 1995.

REPORT OF 1 SEPTEMBER, 1995

Madam Speaker, at the meeting of Finance Committee held on Friday, the 1st of September, 1995 the Committee expanded the terms of its guarantee for US$22.15 million issued in November, 1994 to CIBC on behalf of the Water Authority to read:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT in the event that the Water Authority is unable to meet its obligations under the loan, any sums payable in respect of principal and interest under the Guarantee shall be paid out of the General Revenue and Assets of the Cayman Islands Government.

"The Necessary follow-up resolution of the Legislature will be brought at a subsequent meeting commencing on the 11th of September, 1995."

Madam Speaker, the Committee agrees that this Report be the report of the Standing Finance Committee in respect of its meeting held on the 1st of September, 1995.

REPORT FOR 4 DECEMBER, 1995

Finally, Madam Speaker, at the meeting of the Standing Finance Committee held on Monday, the 4th December, 1995 the Committee unanimously approved a sum of $176,000 to cover the cost of retirement assistance to ex-service men.

The Committee agrees that this Report be the report of the Standing Finance Committee in respect of its meeting held on Monday, the 4th December, 1995.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Report of the Standing House Committee, laid by the Chairman, the Elected Member for North Side.

STANDING HOUSE COMMITTEE REPORT

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 72(5), I beg to present to this honourable House the Report of the Standing House Committee for the year 1995.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Report of the Standing House Committee of the Cayman Islands Legislative Assembly:

1. APPOINTMENT OF MEMBERS

In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 76 which reads, "The House may appoint other standing select committees as required from among its Members."

At the First Meeting (following the 1992 General Election) held on the 25th of November, 1992, Government Motion No. 2 appointing the Standing House Committee and setting out its terms of reference, was moved by the Hon J Lemuel Hurlston, MBE, JP, First Official Member, and passed unanimously by the Legislative Assembly.

The Motion reads: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT, in accordance with Standing Order 76, the House appoints a Standing House Committee charged with the duty to make recommendations to the House Committee in respect of --

- a) matters affecting the working conditions, comfort and facilities for Members during meetings of the House;
- b) matters affecting the working condition, comfort and facilities for the staff of the House;
- c) the operation and maintenance of the library of the House, and the provision of research facilities;
- d) the maintenance, upkeep, furnishing and equipment of the Legislative Assembly Building;

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Standing House Committee shall comprise five elected Members one of whom will be elected by the Members of the Committee as Chairman and one as Deputy Chairman;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the quorum for the Committee shall be three Members of the Committee including the Chairman or Deputy Chairman.”

2. ELECTION OF STANDING HOUSE COMMITTEE

In accordance with the provision of Government Motion No. 2, the following Members of the Legislative Assembly were duly elected on the 25th of November, 1992 to be the Members of the Standing House Committee: Mrs. Edna M. Moyle; Mrs. Berna Murphy, MBE; Mr. G. Haig Bodden; Capt. Mabry S Kirkconnell, MBE, JP; Mr. Gilbert A. McLean.

3. APPOINTMENT OF CHAIRMAN AND DEPUTY CHAIRMAN

On the 6th of January, 1993, in accordance with Standing Order 70(7), Hon. John B. McLean, JP, being the longest continuous serving Member of the House, called a meeting of the Committee for the first time and acted as Chairman.

At that Meeting, on a motion moved by Mrs. Berna Murphy and seconded by Capt. Mabry Kirkconnell, Mrs. Edna M. Moyle was nominated and duly appointed as Chairman.

On a motion moved by Mrs. Edna Moyle and seconded by Hon. John B. McLean, Capt. Mabry Kirkconnell, MBE, JP, was nominated and duly appointed as Deputy Chairman.

4. APPOINTMENT OF REPLACEMENT MEMBER

Following the passing of the late Mr. G. Haig Bodden, MBE, on the 3rd of September, 1995, Mr. Roy Bodden was nominated by Private Member's Motion No. 12/95 which was moved in the Legislative Assembly by Mrs. Edna M. Moyle, JP, Chairman of this Committee, and seconded by Mr. Gilbert A. McLean. The Motion was passed on the 21st of September, 1995.

5. MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE

The Committee held four meetings: Thursday, 4th May, 1995; Monday, 30th October, 1995; Friday, 8th December, 1995; and Wednesday, 13th December, 1995 whereat the Committee approved its Report in accordance with Standing Order 72.

6. ATTENDANCE AT MEETINGS

The attendance of Members is as recorded in the attached Minutes of Proceedings.

7. RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE

The Committee made the following recommendations:

- a) that vending on the precincts of the building be discouraged;
- b) that a card-swipe system be installed at the rear entrance;

- c) that a proper design and quotation be sought from PWD for the electrical rewiring of the Building in line with current requirements and standards and based on the department's present and projected needs for electricity supply; and further that the quoted sum should be included in the Department's 1996 Budget in order that the work can be undertaken in 1996;
- d) that the street lights on the roof of the building be replaced with proper flood lights on the technical advice of the Public Works Department and the Lands and Survey Office;
- e) that a request be made to the responsible authorities for the installation of a pedestrian crossing in front of the building, or in close proximity, as a matter of urgency;
- f) that a closed circuit television monitor be installed for the use of the Hansard Recorder in order to monitor sound levels in the Chamber;
- g) that Members of the Legislative Assembly be provided with official business cards;
- h) that arrangement be made to provide Members with Photo Identification similar to those issued to Civil Servants;
- i) that every effort be made to acquire membership to Internet for use of Members and staff and to establish a link with other Parliaments for the accessing and sharing of information such as Laws and precedents;
- j) that the Chief Secretary be asked to enquire from the Departments of Customs and Immigration if protocol exists or could be instituted whereby Members of the Legislative Assembly can be afforded the courtesy of priority processing upon arrival and departure at ports of entry in these Islands;
- k) that the steps to the front and rear entrances be cleaned on a regular basis to avoid evident "lime bleeding" between the seams of the tiles.

8. ACHIEVEMENTS

The Committee is pleased to report that the following improvements to the Legislative Assembly Building and working conditions of staff have been put in place to date:

- a) That the installation of the security system has been completed;
- b) That exterior lights have now been installed to the front and rear of the building;

As was recommended in the Committee's previous Report:

- c) Chairs and cabinets for staff offices have been purchased;
- d) Mail boxes for Members are now available;
- e) Five Personal Computers and monitors and some of the ancillary software and hardware systems have been installed. It is hoped that the additional equipment will be purchased and installed during 1996, depending on the availability of funds;

- f) An enclosed storage cabinet will be installed in the Common Room, replacing the existing table.

9. REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE

The Committee agrees that this Report be the Report of the Standing House Committee to this Honourable Legislative Assembly.

Madam Speaker, under the same Standing Order 72(5), I move that the recommendations contained therein, be adopted by this honourable House.

The Speaker: The Second Elected member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: The question is that the Report of the Standing House Committee having been moved and seconded, be adopted. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

The Report and the recommendations thereof have been duly adopted.

AGREED. REPORT OF THE STANDING HOUSE COMMITTEE ADOPTED.

The Speaker: Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Question 279 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS AND MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 279

(Withdrawn)

No. 279 Mr. Roy Bodden: State whether the National Education Curriculum will come on line before September 1996.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, I crave the leave of the House to withdraw this question since much of the information solicited was given in answer to a previous question by the Minister.

WITHDRAWAL OF QUESTION NO. 279

The Speaker: The Member has sought the withdrawal of question No. 279. Is that seconded by a Member?

The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I would like to second the motion, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The motion having been moved and seconded is put to the House to withdraw question No. 279. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question No. 279 is accordingly withdrawn.

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 279 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 280 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 280

No. 280: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to explain the process by which scholarships from Government are awarded and to provide details of the requirements which must be met by the applicant.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, once an application has been submitted and the basic criteria are met, the applicant is invited to an interview. The interview panel includes the Head of Department for the respective area of study and is established by the Education Council for that purpose.

The interview panel then makes recommendations to the Education Council for its final decision on the awarding of scholarships.

Applicants are then informed of the decision of the Education Council.

Eligibility/Academic Requirements:

(1) For academic courses, students must have either (a) or (b) below:

- (a) at least five 'O' Level passes, including English and Mathematics or Science of not less than "C" grade or equivalent. A minimum of three subjects must be passed at any one sitting; or
- (b) a High School Diploma with at least a 2.75 average over the last two years of High School and a composite SAT score of not less than 850; or

(2) Applicants for academic courses, who did not initially meet minimum requirements, may be considered for financial assistance if they:

- (a) are at the time attending an Approved Institution; and
- (b) have maintained an overall GPA of 2.50 or above in a minimum of 12 credit hours or equivalent with no failures at that institution for their first year and a GPA of 3.00 in a minimum of 15 credit hours or equivalent with no failures thereafter.

(3) For non-academic courses, applicants not in possession of (1)(a) or (1)(b) must:

- (a) have at least Grade D in the GCSE or equivalent in a numerate subject and English; or
- (b) demonstrate proof of basic skill in numeracy and English;
- (c) have completed foundation courses, if available on the Island, with an acceptable level of attainment or have demonstrated expertise on the job verified by an employer.

Other Requirements: In addition to academic requirements, applicants must:

- (a) comply with Part IX of the Education Law 1983;
- (b) be 18 years of age or older;
- (c) supply satisfactory character and school references;
- (d) be accepted by an institution approved by the Education Council for the relevant course;
- (e) provide proof of Caymanian status;
- (f) demonstrate financial need;
- (g) provide a medical certificate;
- (h) make application by 31st March for scholarships/award for the ensuing academic year;
- (i) sign the prescribed student bond; and
- (j) secure two sureties to the bond.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Minister say whether the application form for academic and non-academic scholarships are the same?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Minister say whether the application form for a scholarship and the form for financial assistance is the same?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, we only give scholarships (which is financial assistance). So it is all the same, the grant of money. I am not too sure what the Member is trying to distinguish.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Minister say if there is at this time any consideration of reviewing the application process so that the information required on the application forms can be streamlined?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, at the last meeting of the Education Council, it agreed to set up a committee to review this matter.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 281 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 281

No. 281: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning is the Government allowing onshore mining of marl at this time.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Applications for the onshore mining of marl are accepted by the Planning Department. Each application is given individual consideration by the Central Planning Authority who makes recommendations to the Executive Council.

There are at present two operational onshore marl pits.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say whether any further applications are at this time under consideration for onshore mining?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, I am not a member of the Central Planning Authority. I really do not know. This is information (I guess) we could find out.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 282 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 282

No. 282: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning if an additional year has been added which would increase the school leaving age.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, yes, an additional year of schooling has been added. I would have thought that the Honourable Member asking this question would have remembered that his colleague, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, moved Private Member's Motion No. 1/89 which was passed in this Honourable House on 27th February, 1989, to increase the school leaving age.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I remember numerous motions passed in this House and Government did nothing about them and this could have been one of them.

Is the Minister saying that there is an increase to the school year and what at this time would be the average age of a student graduating from High School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, I would really have thought that as many times that I have answered this question the Honourable Member would have remembered.

Yes, the extra year was added. The last Government when this Motion was passed did nothing about it. However, I did something about it because it was the wish of this honourable House. The average age is now 16+ and the year was added in Year Ten as a foundation year.

If the Honourable Member thinks back to when this House passed the motion, it did not state which school year it should go to. But indications were given (as I remember it) that it should have been in the High School. The foundation year has been in place for over a year.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The age of 16+ the Minister mentioned as the average age of graduation, does it provide the opportunity for persons doing the GCSE (or the equivalent) both in the lower and upper grades, and is there any in-house or national examinations that is provided at this time?

The Speaker: I do not know if the matter of examination comes in, but the Honourable Minister can answer the first part.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I was thinking of 'O' Level and 'A' Level. Is 16+ the age when students take the 'O' or 'A' Levels, or is there any such thing left in existence?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Yes, Madam Speaker. At that time they take either the international GCSE or they take the CXC. As the Member knows there are other areas of examinations that they take, such as Pitman's and others. In other words, this is the end of school for 'O' Levels. 'A' Levels as the Member knows, the time for sitting those examinations is two years later. So we are looking at age 18+ which is average because some children may be older than others.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Minister say what was the basis for the decision taken to add the school year to that section of the process?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, when this motion was put by that Honourable Member, he did not know where it should go. When I took over the Ministry three years ago, we had to take a decision. The decision was taken after full consultation with teachers and members of the public and the feeling was that it should go in Year Ten which is the foundation year to give an extra year leading up to the final exams.

There were other places where it could have gone, but the advantages of putting it to Year Ten exceeded those of the other sections it could have gone in.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, the motion asked for two years to be added and I specifically suggested that it be added at the end to bring the school leaving age to 18. I want to find out from the Minister if there was an empirical basis for the decision, that is, if there were any surveys done to find out what section of the school year this addition would have proven most effective?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the view of the practising teaching professionals (which I am afraid that Honourable Member ceased to be a practising teacher over ten or 12 years ago) is that it should go in Year Ten as a foundation year in that there were more advantages than adding it at the end of the schooling when examinations were being taken.

There is an extra foundation year of preparation for examinations and children have to be at an advantage with an extra year of preparation rather than adding it to the end.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Minister has referred to Year Ten a number of times, can he associate that to any particular form (indeed if there is any such thing as forms) as there used to be in the schools. He spoke of a foundation year in Year Ten. Also perhaps give an indication of what is the period of time he is talking about, is it ten years from primary up to secondary, or what is this Year Ten supposed to be?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Year Ten is Form Three. You have forms three, four and five to prepare for examinations instead of two years. If you put the additional year to Form Six... I am not sure what the Honourable Member is referring to, all I can say Madam Speaker, is that this has been confirmed by 353 persons of the public, most of them practising teachers. I want to stress this—PRACTISING TEACHER; people currently in the profession who understand education (not people who are out of the profession 15 or 20 years) and their views and the view of the public was that Year Ten was the place for the additional year to go. I accepted what the practising professionals put up.

Madam Speaker, referring back to the motion in which the Honourable Member said was to add two years, it did not refer to two years.

The Speaker: I would hope that Question Time is just what it says, "Question Time" rather than Members going into debate answering back and forth. Please avoid that in the future.

This is the last supplementary, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, it does not matter to me whether it is year 16, I was attempting to discover what form the additional year related to. What I would like if the Minister can do so, now that he has said that Year Ten [is where the additional year went] what is the case now, is it that a student does three years in Form Three, or is it simply that an additional year has been added that Year Ten is now Form Three?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, Form Three is Form Three, it is not two years, it is one year.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 283 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 283

No. 283: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs whether Civil Servants are now permitted to be directly involved in political campaigns and can serve as political advisors to politicians or campaign committee members.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, the answer is no. Civil Servants have recently been reminded of the limitations which apply to their involvement in activities of a political nature and a copy of that reminder is attached.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Member say if there are any penalties meted out to civil servants who breach these particular regulations as stated and referred to in the attached circular?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, Madam Speaker, civil servants who choose to actively involve themselves in political activities will be disciplined in accordance with the General Orders. Without making a statement perhaps it is a useful opportunity for me to remind all civil servants that I will not tolerate their political involvement or their activities in political matters and I will see that cases are dealt with according to the General Orders.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say what would be the procedure in the event that persons wish to bring to the attention of Government or the Civil Service, to whom should such reports be made?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, any report of political involvement by civil servants should be made to the Chief Secretary's Office.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 284 standing in the name of The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 284

No. 284: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is Government's position concerning trade between the Cayman Islands and Cuba.

The Speaker: The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, Government's position concerning trade between the Cayman Islands and Cuba is that it will not be directly involved, however, there is no restriction on the private sector engaging in trade with Cuba.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if there is a requirement for private sector firms, businesses, or individuals to have any special licence to carry on such business with Cuba?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In the substantive answer, I said that there are no restrictions and no licence other than what would be required for a business to operate within the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time.

We proceed next to Government Business. Second Reading of The Loan (Capital Projects) Bill, 1995. At the adjournment of yesterday's meeting, I called on the Mover, the Third Official Member to reply.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE LOAN (CAPITAL PROJECTS) BILL, 1995

(Continuation of Second Reading debate)

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Madam Speaker, I have listened to what Members and some persons politically motivated on the outside had to say about the loans that Government proposes to enter into. I fail to see how the Opposition inside and outside, can ask for so many things to be done in the country, yet say that Government should not raise taxes or borrow. My question to all Members of the House and those on the outside is, "Where is the money going to come from to do the things that need to be done in this country"? Or where is the money going to come from to accomplish the many [items on] the shopping list that Ministers receive from Members of the House or sometimes those on the outside?

We have chosen to borrow very little over the four years and this has been done by building up the economy so that we would not need to tax our people as was done in 1990 and 1991. Taxes were put on everything, stretching the taxable items in the country to their limit.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town refers to the Government's policy of borrowing, yet he has asked for so much to be done. I might ask him also where is the money going to come from to do all the road work he now says needs to be done in George Town? Road work that the Honourable Member has requested. I will come back to roads in a few minutes.

I want to say something, Madam Speaker, since I heard someone mention the Civil Services pay increase, that we should not have given the civil servants another raise then we would not have had to borrow.

I cannot agree with that scenario, because the truth is, the civil servants' salaries are far behind those in the private sector. The increase we gave in 1994, and the raise made effective as of 1st January, have brought the value of salaries to the highest level in five years in terms of purchasing power. But we still have a problem and the country must face this problem and realise it. Members of the House have to be sympathetic toward it. We are still losing good civil servants to the private sector because the Government cannot match what the private sector can pay.

Madam Speaker, as a service-oriented country, we had better understand that [in order] to provide all the absolutely necessary backup services that Government is required to provide, we must have good staff. We must have good staff. We cannot expect in this country to continue expanding the economy and say the Civil Service is too large or that it cost too much [to operate]. Even if we continue along the private sector path of expansion as we have been going on, where the private sector is expanding let us say, in the financial industry. This immediately impacts on the Civil Service. Who is going to do the necessary follow-up? Who is going to regulate? Is it not the Civil Servants?

Madam Speaker, to deal with the many requests takes sheer manpower and, to put off paying the civil servants a raise will only give us more problems; we will lose that much more staff.

The country wants more sporting facilities. There is constant questioning when we are going to do this in the districts? When will we get this programme at the national level or district level? There is need for more educational facilities. There is need for more and better health facilities. Over a period of years, there have been promises and the neglect is blatant by the huge increase in troubled young people in the country. As a result the country had to come to grips with its social problems, there had to be facilities and programmes [put in place] to tackle the increasing wave of juvenile crime.

We cannot cure these problems or even have a positive impact if we do not spend on programmes or build the necessary facilities that can make a positive impact [toward addressing these social problems]. This Government has spent more on education than any four-year administration. We have spent $80 million on salaries for civil servants, that is in education, such as teachers, administrative and other staff; schools buildings, and related amenities - $80 million. I think this is an achievement for a four-year government. The last government spent $54 million.

On sports we spent less than $7 million. And I understand from the Civil Service staff in my Ministry that the total cost of staff in the sporting area is some $800,000. If we add that up for four years, we will see how much has been spent on facilities and programmes for sports.

So Madam Speaker, for those people who talk out of both corners of their mouths, crying down the rise in juvenile problems (crime) and then say we should not spend more money on [programmes and facilities] let them understand that we have hardly spent anything that is needed to impact positively on the social problems of the country. But we have made a good start and I am satisfied that we have made a good start.

Now Madam Speaker, the Fourth Elected Member from George Town mentioned the Harquail Bypass. I believe he said that the bypass road is not built to facilitate the people of George Town. While it will not cure all the needs associated with roads in George Town, (and I sympathise with the Member), it will help to alleviate the traffic that converges into George Town. The bypass road is needed and we are behind in building it. It should have been built a long time ago and the Government must now move forward with it. I trust that no one in the private sector or any Members of this House is not throwing any stumbling block into the construction of that road. We have to move forward with it and we have to move forward now.

Some years ago there was a grandiose plan to spend $250 million on roads. At the time the people of this country said that we couldn't afford to spend this kind of money on [road construction]. We cannot afford to take people's land and not pay them for it and the House at the time (the majority of us) listened to the wishes of the people and that plan was scrapped.

Madam Speaker, the Government has been moving along as best it can... and the Minister responsible have to listen to all the complaints, not only from Members of the House and his fellow colleagues, but from people in the public. Sometimes you do one thing believing that you are helping based on all the information you have been given, and it still does not please all the people. I believe we have done well in tackling the problem of road in the country. There is much more that needs to be done.

Some districts use a lot of their money over the past three years and if we go through the districts we will see, the funds have been used to pave the edges of the roads. We did not do that in West Bay. The funds that we were given (that a lot of people complained about), were used to fix the roads that lead to people's houses, people who did not have any road. We did not fix the edges of the main roads throughout the district of West Bay. If you go through the rest of the districts you will see that is where a lot of the money went. So do not blame any particular district and say one district got more funds than the other because as far as road works are concerned, the Minister split funds as equally and as best he could and Members agreed with him.

So the rhetoric that we hear about expenditure for roads in West Bay or anywhere else, I have just given a good explanation of why some districts did not do what I call, "the private roads." We took the money allocated for West Bay and fix the roads so that people can get to their homes, so that fire trucks can access roads in cases of emergency, instead of being stuck between two light poles. We remedied those kinds of situations where the poor people in the district of West Bay could not afford to build roads.

So, Madam Speaker, the road problem is not going to go away. I believe that the Government is on the right path with the policy that we are moving forward with. We can only do so much with what money we have. Nobody wants to pay any taxes, no one wants to see an increase on import duty. I would say that with as many cars as we have in this country (imported everyday) - I have never heard one Member of the House, nor any Opposition Member on the outside, be it the Democratic Alliance or be it Team Cayman or any Member of the National Team Government, say raise the tax on cars. NOT ONE! No one wants to see that. No one wants to see increase in garbage collection. Many people do not know it, but the Government of this country subsidise 25% of garbage collection for business people in this country. I say that should not happen, but it does! I am not going to increase any taxes or fees on the collection of garbage for people who are not even working to subsidise the business people in this country.

I am a business person myself, I have a place of business and I pay my garbage fee. But when you go through the figures which were given to us by the Finance Department, the Government of this country is subsidising the collection of garbage for businesses - 25% I was told. We are only collecting 75% of the cost, so that means that Government is subsidising 25%.

Health Services. I wish that the Opposition would get off that old hobbyhorse of the stopping of the hospital. The fact remains that the people of this country said that they did not want the hospital in the swamp. For anyone to say that the National Team Government has not carried out their mandate - and the mandate you are given has to be what you campaigned on, in our Manifesto we said; "We are against the building of the new hospital in the swamp, and we will review the hospital plans and documents and accordingly take any necessary action which his legal and prudent. We believe that the building of the new hospital at this time is extravagant and against the wishes of the majority of Caymanians. It was certainly against the majority of the elected Members of the Legislative Assembly. We believe that Government cannot afford this project and is now mortgaging the income of future generations."

If anyone can say from this document that the National Team Government did not say to the public of this country that we would take the necessary prudent steps, then I do not know what else they want us to say. We have carried out our mandate.

There are things as far as this Loan Bill is concerned... it calls for the construction of health care facilities. We told the people... in the Minister's statement he told the people that the project is going to be financed from local revenue and from borrowing. This is what he said. He gave the cost of $22 million as against the cost of $27.8 million up front. There are things that this House must understand were not left on that project. I am only raising it because it is touted so often in this House and was touted in the debate on this bill.

The fact remains that the road network was not included; the duplication of staff was not included, and we know that was going to add $2.5 million to annual recurrent cost. So all these things were not taken into consideration. That was the extra cost to just house the hospital up there, not including the duplication costs. These figures came from the study that the Government at the time had done by Ernst and Young, the Public Sector Investment Committee. These are the figures that came from them, that is why the Government at the time was against it.

I think it is time we get off and let us stop spending time on this hospital issue. The Government broke ground in August. By the end of October 1996 we will have the Material Management Building, this is now costing Government $60,000 per year in rental, plus the other headaches that go along with it. Those new buildings will contain a new morgue, a hyperbaric chamber, forensic laboratory, it will contain the operating theatres and the necessary laboratory. It will contain the maternity and paediatric section of the hospital; it will contain the mental health, the physiotherapy and intensive care unit. We know that these are necessary things. Why are [they] spending time trying to throw stumbling blocks in the path of the Government? It helps nothing.

One thing I know is that this country needs more revenue. Yet, people are saying that the economy is going too fast. People are saying that we have to slow it down. People are saying "do not bring in other people to work. How are we going to run a country if we do not do these things? If we do not let the economy go, who is going to pay for the services? If we are going to expand the economy it means more people. My policy is (as I said in West Bay in May, where it got twisted around and they are now trying to say that I am anti-foreigner) if we are going to have people and we have to expand the economy because we need the funds, to expand we need more people. I simply said that if a business needs people once they can hire the Caymanian and we give them [a work permit] then charge them the relevant permit fee. I am not against that in any way, shape or form. If you want to come here to work, you pay for it. That is my policy. If an accounting firm needs ten people and they cannot find a Caymanian, they must know they need the people, the economy must be doing that much better... So the one thing that I would like to hear from Members of this House is suggestions on where to get revenue.

I have given the Financial Secretary my views on where I think we can get revenue. Until we do those necessary things, we will either have to borrow, or we will have to raise taxes. The Government has been prudent in not raising loans to the extent where we are above the limit that is prudent to manage the country, as far as repayment of loans. We have tried not to increase any fees or raise any taxes that would be detrimental to the people of the country. I do not believe that we could have done any better.

I do not care whether it is the National Team or the Democratic Alliance, or whether it is Team Cayman, I believe that the management of the country has been the best in this four year period than at any other time. I say that either Members bring their suggestions to the Honourable Financial Secretary for new revenue, or they go on television or to the newspaper, but bring some ideas. It is time to stop criticising, it is time to start working. That is what I want from Members.

Thank you, very much.

The Speaker: If no one else wishes to continue the debate, would the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development wish to reply?

The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to give my support to a Bill for a Law to authorise borrowing of up to $16,160,000 for the financing of specific Capital Projects.

It is well known in this country that I have advocated for many years the improvement of medical facilities here. Long before I became involved in politics, and ever since, I have advocated that we need to improve. I have never been charged with Executive responsibility. The records show that I supported previous Governments in funding for the hospital at that time. I have always said that nothing is more important than the health of our country.

Likewise, the decision has been made to proceed with this health project and I give it my full support. I look forward to the time when the modern facility will be available to serve the needs of the people of the Cayman Islands.

It is also gratifying to me that our Government is in a position to expend this amount of money on Capital Projects which helps the economy, to employ people, and certainly, in my district it is a very essential commodity as we depend very heavily on Government for employment.

I am most grateful to the Government that they have seen fit, as the Honourable Third Official Member outlined in moving this Bill, that $300,000 was being added to the amount for the construction of roads which will be allocated to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I am very grateful for this, as it will certainly make the difference of employment and our economy will be able to continue at its normal pace, rather than an unemployment situation.

As I said before, it is gratifying that the Government is in a position to spend this kind of money within the Cayman Islands.

I am also gratified to see much being accomplished in my district with the education curriculum and in the physical structures of the different schools. Certainly, we can do nothing better as my priorities are health first, then education. I think if we do not have a healthy society and an educated society, the future will be very dim for the Cayman Islands.

So, with these few words, I fully support the Bill.

The Speaker: Is the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development now ready to wind up the debate?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to thank Honourable Members for their support of this Bill. I have noted the comments made by the various Members, specifically the comments made by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

He raised a question on the Government's policy relating to the Government's road programme. He specifically wanted to find out how the allocation for the district of George Town would be dealt with. I communicated this request to the Honourable Minister with responsibility for the subject, and also the concern that was raised in connection with the financing of the Harquail Bypass.

The Honourable Minister is of the view that the answer provided to a parliamentary question earlier in the course of this meeting would have dealt with those concerns. At an earlier meeting (I am not sure if this was in response to a parliamentary question) the answer was given that in relation to the provisions for the various districts at the beginning of the year the Minister with the responsibility normally meets with the various district Representatives. A decision is then taken in terms of what roads should be given priority.

On the question of the Harquail Bypass, the Minister (in his response to a parliamentary question) indicated that once a decision was taken in terms of how the programme would be pursued in early 1996, then a decision will be taken by the Government in terms of how the means for financing the development cost of the project will be pursued. He elaborated by pointing out that he did not want to go into detail because, presumably, his Ministry was working out the likely approach that would be taken in dealing with this matter.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town also raised a question in terms of expanding the time allowed for the Budget preparation. We have been keeping this under constant review, building on the experiences of successive years. Normally we have plans in place during the course of any given year for what would be deemed a reasonable time to allow for the Budget preparation exercise. But it is obvious to everyone in this honourable House that the budget preparation process is becoming more complex from year to year. This is a very vital key area to be looked at because if this honourable House is to be informed of the decisions of Government, the Estimates and the budgetary process is the means by which the Government's economic policy is imparted or, for the greater part, articulated. It is very important to us in the Portfolio of Finance and Development and this suggestion has been taken on board. I should mention that we have been looking at this ourselves.

With these few words, I would like to thank Honourable Members for their support of this Bill and you, Madam Speaker, for allowing the presentation.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: That concludes business for this meeting of the House.

Before asking for the adjournment until a date to be fixed by His Excellency the Governor for next year, I would like to thank all Honourable Official Members and Ministers and Members of this House for their hard work during the days since we first met. I know it has been a long time, but Members have been very assiduous in their work.

Just a bit of information I have noted: there were 43 sittings of the Legislative Assembly during 1995; seven sittings to consider the Appropriation Bill and the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditures; six sittings for supplementary appropriations. Standing and Select Committees met for approximately 34 sittings, and I believe there were various informal meetings of those committees. So that makes a total of about 90 daily sittings for the Assembly during this year, which is about a quarter of the year.

I understand that a meeting of the Finance Committee is scheduled for the 26th of this month (December). I do not know how many Members will be present. Most Members like to go off on leave at this time. But it does show that Members have been working very hard and I want to thank them.

I also would like on your behalf to thank the Clerk, Deputy Clerk, and all members of the Legislative Department for their hard work. Members will know that the Clerk and Deputy Clerk have also been very hard working in these select committees, some have met for long periods of times, and I know there were occasions when there was no quorum.

I also would like to pay a special vote of thanks to the Serjeant-at-Arms who has always been very prompt, very courteous to all Members and me in anything he could do, and very efficient. I know you would also want me to thank Mary and Anita for all the delicious lunches—particularly, during Finance Committee—and the other refreshments which kept all the Members bound in the Common Room (they did not want to leave). For the number of times I saw Members leaving the Chamber, I knew it was to go out and try all of these delicacies. So that is very much appreciated.

We have now entered the Christmas season, and I think that all of us need to pause these days and to ponder anew the meaning of Christmas; it is very special in the Christian celebration. Many people will be attending churches. Probably some who have not gone during the year will listen to the sermons and join in the singing. I hope that all leaders in the Cayman Islands will evidence the true spirit of 'Goodwill to all people'. It is so easy to think good thoughts about those who live next door to us, those with whom we work, those that we come in daily contact with. We need to endeavour to put aside all petty jealousy, dislikes, or whatever discord may come into our minds particularly about people who may not think as we do, who probably have different ideas of the way to go about things, but that is what makes life so interesting. If we were all the same, mind you, it would be a very dull world.

But I would ask all Honourable Members, members of staff, and others, that as we go to praise God for his goodness to us that we would do so in love and that we would endeavour to live at peace with everyone. I pray that God will especially bless you and all your families during this Holy season and I hope that we may all go forward into the New Year with a new spirit of dedicated love and service for our fellowmen in these Cayman Islands.

I will now ask for a motion for the adjournment of the House. The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning, Leader of Government Business.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this honourable House, sine die and if I may I would like to say a few words with your permission.

The Speaker: You certainly may.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Madam Speaker, I would like to wish a Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year to you and your family; and to all Honourable Members of this House including the Opposition; the Clerk, the Deputy Clerk, the Serjeant-at-Arms and the staff, and also Miss Mary and Anita.

I would also like to thank the staff of Radio Cayman who toiled to bring these proceedings to the public; the staff of the Caymanian Compass especially Mr. Redman and Mrs. Manni, and also CITN. Madam Speaker, I would especially like to wish all people in Cayman, but especially my constituents, a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year! Last, but very importantly, I welcome the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and assure her of our support and assistance during this year.

To everyone, I just wish God's richest blessings on them in this happy season.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn sine die.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned sine die.

AT 11.44 AM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED SINE DIE.

SPECIAL MEETING
WEDNESDAY
27 DECEMBER, 1995
9.52 AM

[Mrs. Edna M. Moyle, JP, Deputy Speaker in the Chair]

The Deputy Speaker: I will ask the Fourth Elected Member for George Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Deputy Speaker: Please be seated.
Order. Proceedings are resumed.

APOLOGY

The Deputy Speaker: Apologies for absence have been received from the Honourable Third Official Member and for his place to be taken by the Deputy Financial Secretary who has to be appointed Temporary Third Official Member of the Legislative Assembly who, as such, has to be sworn in before he can act as Chairman of the Finance Committee.

Mr. Walton, will you please come and take the Affirmation?

Point of Procedure

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of procedure. I observe that there are Members in the House (the House having convened) who are not attired as is required by Members. Is there some special dispensation for this?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, while I am not one of those persons, notice in relation to this meeting was fairly short. It is because of this that some Members do not have on a coat. However, I should point out that the business of the House will not in any way be affected by the fact that a Member does not have on a coat, and the Standing Orders do not state that one should have a coat. I really ask if we could constructively get on with the business of the House.

The Deputy Speaker: I too, have noticed this, but due to a mix-up and the short notice, I was prepared to waive the requirement of wearing a jacket so that we could swear in Mr. Walton and get on with the business of Finance Committee. So we shall proceed.

Mr. Walton.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF AFFIRMATION
By Mr. Arthur Joel Walton, JP

Hon. Joel Walton: I, Arthur Joel Walton, do solemnly and sincerely affirm and declare that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II her heirs and successors according to law.

The Deputy Speaker: We welcome you, Mr. Walton, please take your seat.

That concludes proceedings for this morning. I will now ask for a motion for the adjournment of the House.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I beg to move the adjournment of this House sine die.

The Deputy Speaker: The question is that this honourable House do now adjourn sine die. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Deputy Speaker: The Ayes have it. This House accordingly stands adjourned sine die.

AT 9.56 AM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED SINE DIE.
