EDITED
FRIDAY
16TH FEBRUARY, 1996
9.41 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Minister to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Pastor Alison Ebanks, Cert. Hon: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, Charles, Prince of Wales, Diana, Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that they may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of their high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Clerk will now read the Proclamation.

PROCLAMATION NO.4 OF 1996

Clerk: "Proclamation No. 4 of 1996 by His Excellency John Owen, Member of the British Empire, Governor of the Cayman Islands.

"WHEREAS section 46 (1) of the Constitution of the Cayman Islands provides that the Sessions of the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands shall be held at such places and begin at such times as the Governor may, from time to time, by Proclamation appoint;

"NOW THEREFORE I, the Governor, by virtue of the power conferred on me by Section 46 (1) of the Constitution of the Cayman Islands, do hereby proclaim that a Session of the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands shall be held at the Legislative Assembly Building in George Town, on the Island of Grand Cayman, beginning at 10.00 a.m., on Friday, the 16th day of February, 1996.

"Given under my hand and the Public Seal of the Cayman Islands at George Town in the Island of Grand Cayman, this 31st day of January in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Ninety-six in the Forty-fourth year of the Reign of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

God Save the Queen."

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I propose that this Honourable House do rise to await His Excellency the Governor and re-assemble on his arrival to receive a gracious message from the Throne.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that the House do now rise to await the arrival of His Excellency the Governor and to receive a gracious message from the Throne.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly suspended.

AGREED: THAT THIS HOUSE DO RISE TO AWAIT HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR AND RE-ASSEMBLE, ON HIS ARRIVAL TO RECEIVE A GRACIOUS MESSAGE FROM THE THRONE.

THE HOUSE SUSPENDED AT 9.50 AM

The Serjeant-at-Arms: His Excellency the Governor.

The Speaker: Your Excellency, I have pleasure in inviting you to address the Honourable House.

THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR
MR. JOHN OWEN, MBE

Madam Speaker and Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly, it is with great honour and humility that I present my first speech from the Throne.

Cayman is a major player in international finance and a premier destination for tourism. Financial Services and Tourism are the engines which drive our economy and generate our wealth. Other Countries are now trying to emulate our success.

Such success comes with international responsibilities. During the Cuban migrant crisis the government and the people of these islands showed the world that Cayman, at considerable cost, accepted and discharged its responsibilities under international agreements. We also have a responsibility to safeguard our unique marine environment not only for our children but for the children of the world. Our responsibilities to the international community in the fight against drug trafficking, and money laundering are fully recognized by this government. In the context of our financial services industry your Governments aim is to maintain these islands as a quality destination for quality money.

The responsibilities of success do not only rest on the shoulders of government. We all have responsibilities. Twenty years ago a visitor wrote that these islands had 'a continuous tradition of forthright sturdy individualism together with habits of self discipline and self reliance born of sea faring'. The history of the islands is full of stories that reflect the independent nature of the people of Cayman. These were people who were strong and self reliant - and proud of it.

As Cayman progresses and patterns itself more and more on the life-styles and attitudes of more developed countries, we must not forget that this nation's success was founded on your forefathers' sense of duty to their community, their civic pride and their self sufficiency.

In a nation state, government has a duty to the citizens. It has a duty to provide the services to maintain law and order, ensure care for all and offer education and training for the people. Teachers, nurses, police officers and other civil servants provide the services for the community. But they alone cannot educate your child, care for your sick or elderly or maintain the discipline needed for a well ordered society. Our forefathers shared in these duties knowing that they had a responsibility for the good of their families and their communities.

Government also has a duty to manage and deliver services to its citizens in the most cost-effective and efficient way. With this in mind, during 1996, I will be reviewing all areas of Government services.

As the Legislative Assembly convenes today to make laws and policies to further the progress of this nation let us not forget that while Government has a responsibility to the people we also have a responsibility to ourselves, our families and the communities in which we live. Government alone cannot safeguard the future of these islands. We must all take responsibility for that task.

Let me now proceed to report on the activities and intentions of the various Ministries, portfolios and departments.

THE JUDICIARY

Work on improving the facilities and procedures of the Court will continue. A consultant in Court Administration will work there for several months in 1996. The need to enhance Court related administrative procedures have been recognized, both by the Courts themselves and by a resolution of this Honourable House.

Rented accommodation to relieve immediate pressure at the Court building, and to enable planning for the longer term has been found. Negotiations with the prospective landlord are proceeding.

A good response has been received to press advertisements for a puisne judge following the departure of Mr. Justice Schofield to take up duties as Chief Justice of Gibraltar. Interviews will take place next month.

THE PORTFOUO OF INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

A Committee, under the Chairmanship of the Chief Secretary, has begun a review of the General Orders and Public Service Commission Regulations. The exercise is a challenging one, but is equally of extreme importance to the future well-being of the public service. The exercise is scheduled to be completed later this year.

A major exercise of evaluating all jobs in the public service has been going on for the past few years. It will be completed shortly. Following a period during which appeals can be made the results of the exercise will be implemented, most likely as part of the next scheduled salary award in 1 January 1997. At the same time the existing staff appraisal system will be revised with the objective of moving toward a system which will link performance and pay.

THE ROYAL CAYMAN ISLANDS POLICE

In 1996 the programme to civilianise some non-operational police posts will continue. As a result more police officers will be deployed to operational duty.

The continuing replacement of old and unreliable vehicles and equipment will allow the Police to provide a more effective service.

Whilst efforts will continue to attract well-educated and better qualified Caymanian recruits to the Police Service, it will be necessary in 1996 to continue short-term secondments of constables from the United Kingdom.

The Royal Cayman Islands Police will strive to improve and develop community relations in order to enhance public confidence. A schools liaison

THE PRISON DEPARTMENT

The Prison Department will continue to maintain a high standard of discipline among staff and inmates. Security will be carefully maintained, and staff and inmates' training and welfare programmes will remain high priorities.

A sentence planning programme for each prisoner will start shortly. This is aimed at improving their chances for a more positive future on release towards which objective all inmates will be given meaningful work and activities.

Counselling, including drugs counselling, will continue on a larger scale.

THE DEPARTMENT OF IMMIGRATION

In 1995 the Immigration Department was preoccupied with the Cuban migrant problem which was resolved in November with the involuntary repatriation of the last of the Cuban migrants. Under an agreement between the governments of the United States, Cuba, Britain and the Cayman Islands all future Cuban migrant arrivals deemed to be economic migrants under the terms of the 1951 Vienna Convention on Refugees and UNHCR guidelines will be repatriated to Cuba. I am determined that these islands will not be a stopping place nor a haven for economic migrants.

After the completion in 1995 of the consolidation and amendment of the Immigration Directions, which are the policy instruments for Government in immigration matters, the focus of attention in 1996 will be the Immigration Board procedures and training in the department to address the needs of new recruits, senior staff and customer service standards.

INFORMATION AND BROADCASTING DEPARTMENT

On 1 February, the functions of information and broadcasting were separated. The Department of Broadcasting will retain responsibility for the operation and management of Radio Cayman which will celebrate its twentieth anniversary this year; Government Information Services which will operate as a unit under the Portfolio of Internal & External Affairs plans to launch an information television programme in 1996.

DISTRICT ADMINISTRATION

I am concerned about the imbalance between the level of economic activity on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman as compared with that on Grand Cayman. This is why I took the decision to hold an ExCo meeting on Cayman Brac, the first in 25 years. I shall hold a further meeting there in 1996. I am equally impressed by the commitment of the Sister Islands residents to address the situation. There is much potential in the Sister Islands and Government will continue to work with the citizens of the islands to stimulate a level of economic activity appropriate to sustain the population and arrest emigration.

Cayman Brac:

Cayman Brac still has not seen positive economic growth. Government's contribution is still largely responsible for keeping the local work force employed.

Conservative growth is being recorded for visitors. Diving remains the number one attraction for those who come. An article in a recent issue of an American climbing magazine featured Cayman Brac as an attractive rock climbing destination. The advantages of promoting climbing activities on the Bluff will be carefully considered, and the necessary steps will be taken to ensure that it is not detrimental to the Bluff's natural beauty.

Little Cayman:

Little Cayman has seen rapid development over the past two years. This trend is set to continue into 1996. Consequently and to address the concern that too much is happening too fast, Government in consultation with the people of Little Cayman will embark on a planning exercise to monitor and control the development of this island.

Tourism shows healthy growth with major facilities recording good bookings for 1996. Several condominium projects are nearing completion and will be available early 1996. Southern Cross Club has upgraded all its facilities which will be available to the public in general. A Police Officer is on full time duty for the first time.

Projects for 1996:

Marine facilities will be upgraded by widening the West End channel access in Cayman Brac and providing a boat launching ramp at Point of Sand's jetty in Little Cayman. Land was recently purchased to enable the improvement of facilities at both the Primary Schools and High School.

Spot Bay's cemetery wall will be completed to improve protection from heavy seas. A new Sub-Post Office is proposed for West End, with upgrades to other Sub-Post Offices. Phase II of the multi-purpose building in Little Cayman will be completed and the Public Works Department compound will be relocated from Blossom Village to a site near the multi purpose building.

Housing facilities for Government workers on Little Cayman will be up-graded. Office accommodation will be provided for the Police, including a holding cell for detainees.

PERSONNEL TRAINING, MANAGEMENT AND COMPUTER SERVICES

During 1996 the Personnel and Training Department will provide management development programmes, implement a new grading structure and review the performance appraisal system.

Computer Services will implement several new or replacement computer systems in some Government Departments.

A new computer system to assist in the administration of financial and human resources is being developed. The project, guided by a steering committee chaired by the Accountant General, is expected to be completed soon.

THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

The Legislative Assembly sat for a total 44 days in 1995 during which various Select and Standing Committees tabled Interim Reports on their activities throughout the year.

Five Select Committees are continuing their deliberation with the view of presenting their final reports before the House is dissolved later this year. These committees are reviewing, respectively, the fundamental rights clause of the Constitution, the introduction of a register of interests for the Legislative Assembly and a code of ethics and conduct for legislators, the Sunday Trading Law, the Gambling Law, and the control of local businesses.

The Standing House Committee, the Standing Business Committee and the Public Accounts Committee remain very active and have presented their reports on a regular basis.

New efficiency measures will continue to be applied to the editing of Hansard reports.

THE CAYMAN ISLANDS GOVERNMENT OFFICE IN THE UNITED KINGDOM

The promotional and recruitment activities of the London Office have been improved by the location and quality of its new offices. A branch of the Shipping Registry will be established there early this year.

ELECTIONS

I was most impressed with the professional manner in which the recent by-election in Bodden Town was managed. I commend the Supervisor of Elections and all his able staff. With general elections scheduled for this year, I recognize that the scale of the responsibility will be substantially multiplied but I look forward to the same quality of performance.

The Elections Office will be embarking on the compilation of the 1996 register of voters starting on Monday, March 11th, and as in the past, will be obtaining information by a house to house enquiry.

THE PORTFOUO OF LEGAL ADMINISTRATION

The Law School

The present academic year is encouraging with twenty eight new students enrolled, and an overall enrollment of fifty four.

Legislative Drafting

The Legislative Drafting Department dealt with sixty five pieces of primary and subsidiary legislation and orders in 1995 and expects an equally busy year in 1996.

THE PORTFOUO OF FINANCE AND DEVELOPMENT

In 1996 the Portfolio of Finance and Development proposes to review and revise the Public Finance and Audit Law, and Financial & Stores Regulations, establish the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange and an Integrated Financial and Manpower Information System.

THE CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT

1996 will prove to be another busy year for the Customs Department starting with improvements to the Customs entry processing system, followed by comprehensive reviews into procedures relating to inter-island traffic, warehousing controls, in-land Customs controls and the Customs legislation. Training will also play a large part in the success of the Department and, with assistance from the Caribbean Customs Law Enforcement Council, a basic Customs course is planned to coincide with a review of future training needs.

THE GENERAL REGISTRY AND SHIPPING DEPARTMENT

New computer technology designed to enhance the efficiency of company registration procedure will be available to the private sector in 1996. Company Managers will then be able to access options such as to check and reserve company names, order certificates on-line, and ascertain the local representatives of the companies on the register.

As a result of the islands reputation as a responsible registry becoming more widely known a 25 percent growth in shipping registrations is projected for 1996.

THE ECONOMICS & STATISTICS OFFICE

The Economics & Statistics Office is currently preparing to conduct National Accounts and Balance of Payments surveys early in the year. Both of these surveys will provide background information for an in-depth look at the impact of Tourism in the Cayman Islands. During the year the office will also assist in preparing data relating to gender issues.

THE BUDGET AND MANAGEMENT UNIT & INTERNAL AUDIT UNIT

In 1996 the Unit plans to further streamline budget procedures and computerise the authorization and issuing of warrants. The decentralization of selected central votes for the 1997 Budget to give more accountability to controlling officers will be pursued. Major reviews of the Legal Department, Economics & Statistics Office and Financial Services Supervision Department are planned.

The primary goal for the Internal Audit Unit (IAU) for 1996 is to strengthen internal controls in major government systems to ensure that revenue and expenditure are accounted for correctly, in a timely manner and in accordance with the Public Finance and Audit Law and the Financial and Stores Regulations.

THE CURRENCY BOARD AND PENSIONS BOARD

As 1996 marks the 25th Anniversary of the Cayman Islands Currency Board, a comprehensive review of the existing legislation will take place so as to ensure that the law meets the increasing needs of the Banking Sector. The Board will be committed to managing a Production Plan which will include the printing of new banknotes incorporating the latest security technology. In 1996 the Board plans to implement an automated multi-currency accounting system contract for an actuarial assessment of the Pensions Fund and to provide an information booklet/handbook on the Public Service Pension Plan.

FINANCIAL SERVICES SUPERVISION DEPARTMENT

Efforts are under way to carefully select a suitable replacement for the Inspector of Financial Services who will shortly leave the public service.

THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT

In 1996, the Treasury proposes to improve its accounting system and introduce a computerised procedure for reconciling bank accounts to the Treasury records. The Department also plans to refine the system of forecasting the Government's financial position, particularly with regard to revenue collection, and to set up a centralized Debt Collection Unit within the Treasury.

THE MINISTRY OF TOURISM, AVIATION AND COMMERCE

The Ministry will continue to oversee the development of a number of projects namely:

Botanic Park

Several new features at the Botanic Park are scheduled to become open to the public in 1996. Chief among these are the Visitor's Centre, the Heritage Garden, the Floral Garden, and the Lake.

Pedro St. James

The restoration of the building will be completed next year, along with landscaping, outbuildings, walls and gardens.

Modern support facilities are being developed separately as part of a visitor centre. The two-year project will include a multi-media theatre, restaurant, a resource centre and gift shop. Boatswain Bay School House Restoration Government has provided financial assistance for the restoration of the Boatswain Bay School House by way of a grant of $80,000 to the National Trust. The restored building will be used by the district to display local arts and crafts.

West Bay Public Beach Facility

In 1996 cabanas and rest room facilities will be constructed at the public beach in West Bay for the benefit of the public.

FIRE DEPARTMENT

A new Emergency Operations Centre (E.O.C.), specializing in coordinating, command and control of hurricanes and other natural and man made disasters, should become operational during the early months of the 1996 Hurricane Season.

The year 1996 should see the introduction of a Fire Code which is complementary and necessary to the Building Code passed into Law during 1995. The code to be introduced has been used by the department for many years as guidance on standard requirements.

An extensive training programme will commence in early 1996.

PORT AUTHORITY

The Port Authority will be taking delivery of a container crane in 1996.

A system of permanent moorings for the George Town harbour is planned to be initiated during the year.

The Authority has submitted a plan to the Planning Authority for approval in principle for the construction of a third landing for cruise passengers. A jetty is also planned in this development to accommodate the Watersports industries activities in catering to cruise ship passengers.

TOURISM DEPARTMENT

Efforts in the year ahead, will build on those of 1995 with the introduction of the Tourism Development programme, which will address issues such as improvements to the Hotel Licensing System and training and development initiatives within the sector. A series of public awareness activities will also be held through the year.

During the first quarter of this year, work will be completed on automating the Department's offices world-wide. This will allow for a much more proactive and efficient operation.

Overseas marketing and promotions will continue to maintain its aggressive pace. Emphasis will be placed on maintaining the islands' share of Caribbean tourism, in the face of increasing competition not only from within the region, but from the rest of the world.

CIVIL AVIATION AUTHORITY

Expansion to the Customs Hall, Arrival Immigration Hall and the Departure Lounge at Owen Roberts International Airport will be undertaken in early 1996. These alterations and additions are necessary to accommodate the safe and efficient movement of passengers and baggage. Following the conclusion of feasibility studies regarding the development of an airport in Little Cayman it is expected that this project will begin in 1996 as it is vital to the safety of aircraft operations on that island.

THE MINISTRY OF HEALTH, DRUG ABUSE PREVENTION AND REHABIUTATION

In 1995 the Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation laid the foundations for the achievement of major objectives in 1996.

HEALTH INSURANCE

After taking into consideration feedback from the community on the Draft for Discussion of a Bill for a Law Relating to the Provision of Health Insurance every effort will be made to present to the Legislative Assembly for approval in 1996, a Revised Bill along with Health Insurance Regulations.

HEALTH SERVICES

New and Improved Facilities

The design plan for the Cayman Islands Health Services Complex has been completed. The project is now out to tender to select a contractor for the construction of the facilities. Construction will begin in the first quarter of 1996 and will continue for the next two years.

Part of this project, a 10,000 square foot materials storage building, is nearing completion on the present hospital site. It will be operational by June 1996. As a result, Government will realize savings on rented space and the Health Services Department will benefit from having immediate access to supplies stored in a secure, hurricane proof facility.

Government is committed to providing new health centres in each district and the first of these, the Nurse Jessie Ritch Memorial Health Centre in Bodden Town, was officially opened in October 1995. Construction on the West Bay District Health Centre is scheduled to commence in the first quarter of 1996. Plans are also in progress for the design and construction of district health centres in North Side and East End.

Strategic Plan for Health

The Strategic Planning exercise for the Health Services Department has been invaluable in charting the future for the best possible health care system that the Cayman Islands can afford. Following approval of the Plan by Executive Council, it will be tabled in the Legislative Assembly in March 1996, with full implementation beginning subsequently.

Hospital Services

Two million four hundred thousand dollars ($2.4M), was approved in the 1996 Budget for the purchase of medical equipment. The procurement of this equipment will significantly strengthen the provision of medical care to patients and will enhance the diagnostic capabilities of the Health Services Department.

Public Health Services

A National Plan for Workers' Health in the Cayman Islands will be developed in 1996. As a component of this proposed plan a programme entitled "Working for Health" will be initiated to encourage healthier life-styles, along with other health promotion activities and programmes.

Mental Health Services

In 1996 a consultant will conduct a review of the Mental Health Programme, with a view to improving existing services and identifying areas where expansion of the present programme is required to meet the growing needs of those patients with mental health problems.

Fees Collection

In 1996 the Health Services Accountant will focus on the problems of outstanding accounts for both domestic and overseas medical treatment.

DRUG ABUSE PREVENTION AND REHABIUTATION

During 1996 a National Drug Secretariat will be set up to co-ordinate implementation and monitor activities of the drug strategic plan.

A public information programme on the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse funded by US$45,000.00 assigned by the U.K. Government for drug demand reduction initiatives will be undertaken in liaison with the United Nations International Drug Control Programme (UNIDCP).

The need for local drug rehabilitation was reinforced in the Drug Plan. To this end planning approval for the renovation of existing buildings on land owned by Government at Breakers is presently being sought and it is anticipated that this work should be completed around mid-year.

CAYMAN COUNSELLING CENTRE

In addition to the routine out-patient programmes, the following new programmes instituted last year will continue in 1996. These are adolescent programmes serving the school system and the community: Cayman Islands Marine Institute; a training programme providing an overview of drug addiction issues for nursing students; and a full-day programme of group and individual therapy for inmates at Northward Prison.

In 1996 there will be expansion of the programme at Northward Prison from one day per week to five days per week and the adolescent programme will be increased from two days per week to three days per week. The training programme for student nurses will expand during the year to include training for other health professionals and personnel officers.

The opening of a full-time out-patient programme for the Sister Islands on Cayman Brac last year set the precedent for another objective of this Unit for 1996, which is that satellite programmes will be provided in the districts. Detoxification procedures at the George Town and Faith Hospitals will be further streamlined by the end of 1996.

THE MINISTRY OF EDUCATION AND PLANNING

The review of the first year of implementation of the Five Year Strategic Plan for the Development of Education in these islands will take place in April 1996. The Chief Inspector of schools has been appointed, and will take up his appointment in April. He will be joined by two Senior Inspectors, appointed from the teaching service. The School Inspectorate will then begin an audit of all government schools to set the baseline of standards needed before individual inspections of schools and programmes can commence.

Three schools will complete their site-based planning, by which the national plan is translated into an individualized programme of work for their school. Three more schools will begin their site-based planning exercise. All government schools are required to complete their site-based planning exercise prior to 1999.

Work on the National Curriculum will continue with teachers working in subject teams under the guidance of a curriculum planner. By September 1996 parts of the National Curricula will be tested in primary schools.

New administrative guidelines for the allocation of pre-school grants will be implemented in time for the new academic year. Registration procedures for school entry are being revised, to make the process easier and to involve school Principals in registration at the school sites.

A comprehensive forward planning policy to encompass the development of a new primary school in the West Bay area, and expansion of the Savannah Primary to a two-stream school will be developed. The design of a new Lighthouse School on a new site will be completed.

A policy to strengthen and expand the use of information technology at all levels of the system, including the use of the Internet, will be accepted and in use. Access to appropriate software will be increased, and staff training in the use of computers in education will be intensified.

The capital works programme will continue. A new Teachers Centre will be built on Cayman Brac, as well as an infant block at the Creek Primary School. The building programme at the Red Bay Primary School will continue with the addition of a multi-purpose hall. A sewerage treatment plant to serve government schools on Walkers Road, as well as the Community College and the Truman Bodden Sports Complex will be built as a matter of priority.

The Community College will begin offering the Associates Degree in fifteen areas. A new library and media centre at the College will begin this year. The College will also develop articulation agreements with agreed institutions in the region and the United States which will make it possible for our students to complete the first two years of their college programme locally, and then transfer to accredited colleges and universities to complete their undergraduate degree.

Government will continue to assist private schools in their capital development projects to ensure that the numbers of school places at both primary and secondary levels are increased.

The Education Council will be revising its guidelines for scholarships to take into consideration the Guaranteed Student Loan Scheme, and the new offerings at the Community College. Additional support and advice for students intending to study overseas will be offered through annual seminars delivered during February and March which will make the college application process easier and more reasonable for parents and students. These seminars will also be offered on Cayman Brac.

PLANNING

The Department continues to offer workshops and seminars to familiarize the construction industry with the Building Code. A pamphlet on Guidelines for Planning will be published by the Central Planning Authority. The three special tribunals set up to deal with objections to the revised Development Plan will complete their work.

The computerised tracking system used with planning applications will be further refined, and the objective of ensuring that such applications are dealt with in a speedy and efficient manner will be met.

The Ministry will continue to meet with representatives of the construction industry to deal with their concerns and to work towards a Constructors Law to insure that high building and professional standards are maintained in the industry.

CAYMAN AIRWAYS

The Board of Directors of Cayman Airways Limited will begin a strategic planning exercise for the company. This will allow employees at every level of the industry to have input in planning for the next century. The exercise started in January with awareness sessions for staff in Grand Cayman and Miami. The Board has also decided to try and attract young Caymanian graduates as trainees in various departments.

With the addition of the Orlando route, the future of the airline is looking better. Government's recapitalisation of the airline as well as the annual subsidy has enabled the airline to retain a good credit rating in the industry. For its part, government is exploring the possibility of purchasing a second 737-2C0 series aircraft to complement the first jet, which is leased to Cayman Airways through Cayman Aviation Leasing Ltd. a wholly government owned company.

THE MINISTRY OF AGRICULTURE, ENVIRONMENT, COMMUNICATIONS AND WORKS

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Capital projects will continue in 1996. These include the start-up of the construction of a Government slaughter facility by August 1996, commencement of on-site works for the Department's new offices at Lower Valley and the construction of an alternative access road to the growing agricultural complex at the Lower Valley farm.

In 1996 two national training courses for farmers will be conducted. The courses will deal with livestock nutrition, post-harvest handling and marketing of crops.

A Plant Propagation Policy will be implemented this year. This will provide for the services of a plant propagator and propagation material for improving traditional and non-traditional fruit-tree crops.

This year, the department will give high priority to its continuing programme to educate consumers about the quality and value of locally produced foods. Approved projects will stimulate greater efficiency in food production, more food security, and better health for residents through the availability of fresh foods with high nutritional value.

LANDS & SURVEY

Increased revenue is being collected because of the buoyant Cayman Islands Real Estate market. Government activities related to land and its developments also reveal an increasing upward trend. Paper is gradually being replaced with electronic storage. This contributes to the Department's success in continuing to meet the demands placed upon it.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

The Telecommunications Section of the Ministry is being strengthened with the addition of technical and administrative staff. A new Telecommunications Centre is being located at the former Caribbean Basin Radar Network site at the airport. This purpose built facility will provide a permanent home for operations and maintenance support to the Government radio communication and paging networks, the new 9-1-1 centre and the broadcasting equipment of Radio Cayman.

The Sister Islands will benefit in 1996 as the new communications tower project is completed. The new 200 foot high self-supporting structure is designed to withstand hurricane force winds of 200 miles per hour. Improved radio communication throughout Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will enhance the emergency services and other Government departments.

ENHANCED 9-1-1 EMERGENCY COMMUNICATION SYSTEM

This Ministry has embarked on the implementation of an Enhanced 9-1-1 Emergency Communications System with the hiring of an E-9-1-1 project manager. Upon completion of the street naming and numbering, E-9-1-1 will be launched on Grand Cayman starting in September.

POST OFFICE

The Post Office will continue to improve its operations and services to customers. Particular attention will be given to both private and public sector businesses whose large volume of mail requires special attention. The International Express Service has been a success and the service will be expanded beyond the 130 countries now being serviced. With an emphasis on service to customers, postal staff will be provided with continuous training to ensure that the best possible service is rendered.

DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENT

This year, the Department of Environment celebrates two significant milestones. It is the tenth anniversary of the Marine Parks system, and the 30th anniversary of Mosquito, Research and Control Unit. Commemorative events are being planned for both anniversaries.

During this year, the Department of Environment, will undertake a full-scale review of its working legislation, will improve revenue-collection procedures, and will move into the departments new building.

The Environmental Health section will continue to improve its recycling programme for aluminium, waste paper and used batteries in Grand Cayman. This programme will be extended to the Sister Islands.

The construction of a new sanitary landfill on Cayman Brac will begin this year. And this section will also be introducing a programme to monitor occupational health.

The MRCU will undertake a review of the methods used to control the mosquito population, with a view to improving existing techniques and introducing environmentally acceptable new techniques where feasible.

The unit will strengthen its inspection programme to more accurately identify and map mosquito breeding sites. This will enable control techniques to be designed for maximum efficiency.

Field and laboratory research on insecticide resistance will also be done so that an efficient resistance management strategy can be developed.

Protection & Conservation Unit

The Protection & Conservation Unit will implement a coral reef monitoring programme in the Sister Islands. The unit will also begin to assess the carrying capacity for dive sites in all three islands.

The Marine Parks Management Plan will be completed this year and the unit will research natural conch replenishment patterns. The potential for whelk culture and restocking in selected areas will also be researched.

The main attraction of these islands for tourists is our marine environment and pristine beaches. I have often heard it said that Cayman's greatest beauty lies below the surface. We must safeguard our marine environment. Not only because it is the main attraction for tourist but because we hold it in trust for future generations. But the marine environment is a fragile one. What takes nature hundreds of years to build can be destroyed or damaged in minutes.

With much attention being given today to environmental concerns the world over our own efforts in marine conservation are becoming more and more important. This year is the Tenth Anniversary of the introduction of the Marine Conservation Law. The celebrations to mark the creation of the marine parks will involve a public awareness programme. This will give us all an opportunity to become educated about concerns over our marine environment and the solutions needed to ensure that this underwater treasure is safeguarded for future generations. But this is not only the responsibility of the conservationists and government. We need to help. If only that we should know the conservation rules, follow them and set a good example for those around us.

Executive Council has decided that there shall be no further dredging in the North Sound, except for an approval granted to Caymarl Ltd. to excavate the balance of material (784,100 cubic yards) that remained under a licence granted in 1988 for the dredging of 2 million yards of material from the borrow pit offshore the marl pit, just north of the George Town Barcadere. In addition, to further the final upgrading of the George Town Barcadere the Government will also consider an application from Simmons Enterprises for the excavation of 122,200 cubic yards which will complete the dredging of the basin at this location, to facilitate an increased amount of vessel traffic and usage.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT

In 1996 the Department will continue to provide project management, architectural, quantity surveying and construction supervision to government departments and authorities. The department will continue to emphasize hurricane resistant, low maintenance and quality construction.

The Building Maintenance Unit will continue to service and implement various improvement programmes related to school buildings, government office buildings, staff houses, recreational facilities, and other buildings during the year.

Road maintenance will focus on the backlog of road surfaces that are at, or near, the end of their original service life.

In new road construction, design and survey work has commenced on the Harquail Bypass and preliminary plans are being prepared for the Crewe Road Bypass. Work on the Harquail Bypass will begin during the second quarter of this year on a Finance and Build" package that will be negotiated jointly between the Ministry, the Public Works Department and a consortium of local contractors which will be chosen as a result of an invitation to tender which will be published shortly. There continues to be a shortage of marl which will have an impact on road construction.

THE MINISTRY OF COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT, SPORTS, WOMENS' AND YOUTH AFFAIRS AND CULTURE

1996 OBJECTIVES:

In 1996 the Ministry is poised to continue and build on its achievements and initiatives in 1995.

SOCIAL SERVICES

In 1996, the Social Services Department will continue to intervene in particular cases of need. It will also work with other public and private sector agencies and individuals to help dysfunctional individuals and families so that they can be given the support they need to become productive citizens.

The Department will continue to identify trends within the community and to recommend solutions for improvements. It will continue to coordinate the work of the various agencies including the Community Development Workers and the District Community Development Action Committee groups.

The Department will play a major role in analyzing the findings of the Family Study. It will also have an important role in implementing the accepted recommendations. In the Crime Survey, which may be undertaken after the Family Study is completed, the department will play a similar role.

There are plans to develop a National Youth Band this year so as to introduce orchestral music to the community. These will be established along with a comprehensive youth development policy and accompanying programmes.

The department intends to coordinate the provision of proper Adult Day Care Centers in West Bay and Bodden Town.

This year the department plans to use more external resources while ensuring that departmental resources can be efficiently used to meet demand. To this end, the department will be restructured to ensure greater efficiency and better use of resources.

A Discussion draft of a proposed National Pensions Law by the National Pensions Plan Advisory Committee will be presented to Executive Council. It is expected that a National Pensions Bill will be presented to the Legislative Assembly by mid-year. While the legislation is expected to come into effect in late 1996, there will be a moratorium of six months before it will begin to be enforced.

SPORTS

The sports office will continue to oversee the management and maintenance of Cayman's new and upgraded sports facilities. In order to support the continued development of sports, the Sports Office will work with the sporting associations, District Sports Councils, Technical Directors, local Coaches and other agencies in the public and private sectors.

Work will continue on the Cayman Islands Cricket Oval in West Bay, as well as playing fields in Bodden Town and Breakers. Facilities in Old Man Bay (North Side) will also be improved. Improvements to the pool and the seating at the Lions Aquatic Center are also planned; and additional practice fields and parks will be provided or improved as funds allow. Work will continue on the planning and site works at the National Sports and Recreation Centre in Spotts with the park being built by Johnson & Higgins being completed this year.

The Ministry plans to spearhead the development of a revised sports development policy this year. A schedule of organized summer camps will be established.

The Ministry will encourage greater cooperation with educational institutions so that a comprehensive Physical Education and Sports curriculum can be offered. A national Sports Foundation Law will be proposed.

WOMEN'S AFFAIRS

The legislation for an Office of Women's Affairs was passed in the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands in January, 1995. Since the recruitment of a liaison officer for Women's Affairs in October 1995 the development of the Ministry's activities concerning Women's Affairs has been steadily progressing towards the establishment of an Office of Women's Affairs for the Cayman Islands.

The Ministry has hired a consultant on Women's Affairs for the period March 4th to 10th. The consultant will work with the Ministry and the Steering Committee on Women's Affairs and with a gathering of women's groups. The consultancy will cover the observance of International Women's Day on the 8th March. The purpose of inviting the consultant is to provide, through her experience and expertise, the initial guidance and advice that the Ministry and the Steering Committee need in order to establish a firm structural outline for an office for women's affairs.

CULTURE

(National Museum, Cultural Foundation, Library, & Archives)

The National Museum will improve its facilities so as to continue to offer displays and exhibits which reflect on Cayman's cultural history. Publication of a souvenir visitors' guide, and a book about the "Wreck of the Ten Sails" are planned for 1996.

The National Cultural Foundation will play a pivotal role in spearheading the 1st annual Cayfest to be held in July of this year.

This year the Government intends to renovate and convert the Town Halls in West Bay, East End, and North Side into district Libraries. The National Library will also promote after-school and vacation Library programmes for school children, as well as promoting the use of Library services by teachers and students.

The National Archive intends to work closely with educational institutions to put in place a social studies curriculum for both primary and secondary schools and identify which literature and documents from the Archive can be condensed and used in schools. Work on the publication of a new history of the Cayman Islands is to start in 1996.

ART DEVELOPMENT

A task force made up of representatives from the Museum, Cultural Foundation, Visual Arts Society and private and public sector headed by Mrs Carol Owen is being set up to advise the Government on the feasibility of building a National Art Gallery whose function will include the development of contemporary Caymanian painting and educating children and adults in its art in schools.

LABOUR/HUMAN RESOURCES

Following the passage of the Labour (Amendment) LAW, 1995, the Department will continue its pro-active role in fostering good labour relations through promoting increased awareness of the labour legislation as well as promoting sensitivity towards employees as part of the employer and employee relationship. The department will be coordinating the work of the new Labour Relations Board and the Labour Tribunals.

The Department will assist with the implementation and stewardship of the manpower development strategy. This includes apprenticeship schemes, and support services such as : job training and re-training, job referral and placement, and preparing entry-level and lesser-ability workers for the work place.

The Department will continue to assist with the work of the Minimum Wage Advisory Committee, as well as the Advisory Committee for the Review of the Workmen's Compensation Law.

HOUSING DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION (HDC) AND AGRICULTURE & INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BOARD (AIDB): H.D.C

In 1996 the H.D.C. is expected to play a greater role in the administrative arrangements and counselling/support services for the Guaranteed Home Mortgage Scheme. This scheme is enjoying a good rate of acceptance and success. At the end of 1995 approximately 70 Applications for Guarantee were approved from the 4 participating Banks. Many of the borrowers have either moved into their new homes, or the homes are still under construction.

Early in 1996 the Board of the H.D.C. expects to conclude the sale of the Mortgage Portfolio. When the Portfolio is sold to the successful bidder from Cayman's Banking Sector the terms of the Loans will remain the same as obtained under the H.D.C.

The Net Surplus from this sale will be used to support a new housing scheme for lower income Caymanian families. The Ministry has been examining various systems for affordable housing in the region. It is the intention that suitable houses will be provided for a monthly mortgage payment of between $300.00 to $400.00 per month.

The H.D.C. will also undertake a Survey to gather current data on the needs, issues and trends pertaining to housing in these Islands.

A.I.D.B

The Agricultural & Industrial Development Board continues to play a leading role in the administration of the new Guaranteed Student Loan Scheme. This is being seen as a progressive vehicle for human resource development.

Efforts are being made to integrate this Scheme into overall human resource planning through better collaboration with the Education Council and the Labour/Human Resource sector.

The Board is also continuing to promote lending to small Caymanian owned business ventures. Funding for these loans presently comes from a Line of Credit from the Caribbean Development Bank and efforts are underway to identify other sources of funding.

The Ministry is also examining the creation of a Small Business Development Agency. This will complement the small business loan scheme of the A. I. D. B.

WATER AUTHORITY

In 1996 the Water Authority and its Board are expected to continue to play an important role in effecting Government's policies in relation to water and sewerage utilities.

New storage and pumping facilities are presently being constructed in Lower Valley. This should improve service to the Eastern Districts. The piped water network will be extended to Breakers in 1996. The Authority will also assist with coordinating the provision of piped water to East End in 1996.

Working together with the Department of Environment, the Water Authority is continuing its efforts to find a permanent solution to the sewage disposal problems associated with live-aboard boats in the North Sound. The Authority will also continue to assist with coordinating the provision of a sewerage scheme for the greater George Town area.

CONCLUSION

Honourable Members, as I conclude my first Speech from the Throne, I should like to record my thanks and congratulations to the members and officials who provided the material to assist me in the preparation of this speech. The level and quality of work produced by the Civil Service is first class. You can be proud of them.

Finally, as you embark on the first sitting of the new Session of the Legislative Assembly, I wish you God's Blessing in your deliberations and debates. And I pray that Almighty God in his mercy and wisdom will continue to bless and guide the people of these Islands and all who serve them.

At this point, Honourable Members, I will draw your attention to this splendid lectern from which I am delivering this Throne Speech today. This lectern was made by inmates at Northward Prison. I congratulate them on its craftsmanship. It is an honour to me to be the first to use it.

EDITED
THURSDAY
22ND FEBRUARY, 1996
10.08 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have an apology from the Honourable Second Official Member who will be absent for a few days. Mr. Michael Marsden will be administered the Oath to act as the Temporary Second Official Member.

Would you please come forward, Mr. Marsden?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

(Oath of Affirmation Administered by the Clerk)

Mr. Michael Marsden

Mr. Michael Marsden: I, Michael Marsden, do solemnly and sincerely affirm and declare that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to Law.

The Speaker: Please take your seat and, on behalf of the House, I welcome you.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, question No. 1.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 1

No. 1: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, if Government has been approached by Cable and Wireless (Cayman Islands) Limited, to institute a new system for the installation of telephone lines in homes and businesses? If so, what does it entail?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

QUESTIONS NOS. 1, 2 AND 9 DEFERRED

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Questions 1, 2 and 9 on the Order Paper are directed to me, and I would appreciate very much if they could be set down for a later date in the Meeting, as the answers are not ready. I have already spoken to the Members concerned.

The Speaker: The question is that the answers to questions Nos. 1, 2 and 9 be deferred until a later day during the sitting.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. QUESTIONS NOS. 1, 2 AND 9 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 3, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 3

No. 3: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what is the criteria for being licensed as a Counsellor in the Cayman Islands, and which Law provides for such registration.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The question does not specify which type of counsellors are being referred to. There are, for example, counsellors in the medical field, marriage and guidance counsellors, drug abuse counsellors and counsellors in the Employee Assistance 22nd February, 1996 Programme. Qualified Social Workers also do a lot of counselling, but they are not classified as counsellors.

With respect to counsellors in the medical field, the Health Practitioners Law (Law 20 of 1974) (1995 Revision) does not list counsellors as a health profession subject to the Law under Part 2, section 2 (1) of the Schedule. However, it does list 'psychology' in sub-paragraph (l).

On that basis the Health Practitioners Board has encouraged counsellors in the medical field to come forward and be registered. It should be emphasised that this is not strictly required by the 1974 Law. Two counsellors in private practice are currently registered and both are counselling psychologists.

Those in Government employment, for example psychiatric social workers, are automatically registered by virtue of their Government employment. These counsellors are vetted for registration in the same manner as other health care professionals. Their credentials and curriculum vitae are scrutinised to ensure that the skills and experience they claim are consonant with the educational background and training.

The proposed revision of the Health Practitioners Law does specifically refer to Counsellors.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, my supplementary question is basically answered in the last paragraph of the answer. I would like to enquire a bit further from the Minister if all of the counsellors as listed in the immediate top three paragraphs would be included in this revision for registration, since it does appear that counsellors and counselling have become a considerable necessity in the country.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker, there will be. Under the Health Inspection recommendations which were put forward last year most of this is seriously being encouraged. The redoing of the bill is now in process and it will include this.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 4, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO.4

No. 4: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development what arrangements are in place for repayment to Government of Civil Service mortgage loans.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The loans are repaid according to an amortisation schedule, with interest calculated at 5 per cent per annum, calculated on monthly reducing balance. The monthly re-payment is equal throughout the period of the loan. The repayment period varies, but is usually between 12 to 15 years.

The re-payments are deducted from the monthly salary of the Civil Servant. If any Civil Servant leaves the Government Service before re-paying the loan in full, he/she is required to make payments in cash or by cheque to the Treasury on a monthly basis.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is there a specific officer assigned to ensure that these mortgage payments are made on a regularly scheduled basis?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, that is a part of the work of the Treasury Department. It has not been assigned as yet to any specific officer.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member state whether any of these loans are in arrears at this time?

The Speaker: The Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: There are 13 cases of arrears at this time totalling $162,206, of which five have been referred for debt collection. These five cases in particular are more than a year in arrears.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say how this situation was allowed to happen?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, this essentially comes about upon civil servants leaving the service. We have no control or access to their salaries. We take it on good faith that they will continue to make the monthly repayments, although notices are sent out to them frequently reminding them of their obligations to the Service.

I should point out, Madam Speaker, that this will be addressed more seriously under the new debt collection structure that will commence in the Treasury Department as of the 18th of March.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Madam Speaker, could the Honourable Member tell us in what year the loans that are in arrears were made?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, that information is not available. The only dates we have are those on which the loans were last serviced.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Bema L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member tell us the procedure for applying for a loan in order for a mortgage to be taken care of?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, in the first instance a civil servant is required to be a member of the Civil Service Association. The Credit Committee of the Credit Union does the vetting in terms of determining whether the borrower meets all of the qualifications as set out in the guidelines that have been drawn up by the Civil Service Association and agreed to with the Government.

Once this is done a recommendation is made through the Treasurer of the Management Council Association to the Financial Secretary for a loan to be approved. Normally, when this is done the civil servant must first of all qualify, and consideration is given to the security to ensure that it is adequate.

Normally, because of the fact that the loan would have been granted in the first instance to give the civil servant a start in the construction of his home, the Government puts itself in a position to accept a second mortgage over the property with the first mortgage being allowed to the institution that will be doing the primary financing.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.
Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In that kind of arrangement, can the Honourable Member say how the Government's interest is secured?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Government's interest is normally secured with a second mortgage being taken on the property to ensure that the borrower has adequate life insurance, so that in the event of death the proceeds will be sufficient to defray the mortgage obligation to the Government.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 5, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO.5

No. 5: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development what the outstanding balance on personal loans made to Civil Servants is, by amount and name of borrower.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTION NO.5 Standing Order 23(5)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 23(5) I would like to seek the leave of this Honourable House to defer the answer to that question until Monday, 26th of February.

The Speaker: The question is that the answer to question No. 5 be deferred until Monday, the 26th of February.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 5 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 6, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 6

No. 6: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to state whether the investigation into financial irregularities in the down-town office of Cayman Airways Limited has now been completed.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the answer:

The investigation is complete. The case is now with the Legal Department.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 7, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO.7

No. 7: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is the existing policy regarding placement of Civil Servants following completion of tertiary level studies.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, the answer: The practice is for a Civil Servant to return to his substantive post. The policy is laid down in General Orders, Chapter 3, Paragraph 19 and states that: "The Government does not commit itself to offer promotion to an officer on successful completion of any course nor will it guarantee re-employment to any Officer who has resigned during a course."

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Member say, in deciding on specific tertiary level studies, if the Personnel Department and/or Heads of Departments are involved in being specific regarding upward mobility of the individual within the Service?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Head of Department normally makes the recommendation to the Personnel Department (I am involved in it as well), and it goes to the Public Service Commission.

As far as upward mobility is concerned, it depends on the availability of vacancies.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

Notwithstanding the availability of promotional positions for the individual, if Government allows the individual time off for tertiary level studies, is it done in a synchronised fashion whereby the intention is for these studies to be applied by that individual in a specific area within the Service whether it be down line or in the immediate term?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The areas of specialisation would certainly be considered and we would hope that on return the person would be re-employed in the area of his/her specialisation. Of course in some instances, for the sake of argument take the MBA which offers a fairly wide range of study, the persons may not necessarily be employed in the specific area of their studies.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

Are these tertiary level studies usually funded by the Government or are there many instances when civil servants simply request study leave in order to complete studies on their own?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: These cases of tertiary studies are normally funded by Government. I believe there is one case where the person's application came in too late to be funded and that person, I think, is funding his own studies.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: This being the case, is it that Government pin-points individuals within departments (either through the Department Heads or the Personnel Department) for the tertiary level study, or is this something where individuals make requests to Government for tertiary level studies?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Normally the Head of Department makes the recommendation for the funding. Of course, it would in all probability be started with the individual. The individual might be looking at a post down line that may not necessarily be open, but the person is looking at promotion opportunities and when the request comes in it is considered and would be funded in the following year's allocation where possible.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: This being the case, that through Heads of Departments the Government agrees to fund tertiary level studies for civil servants, is any means tests done, one that lines up the proposed study with the forward thinking of Government regarding the placement?

I hate to sound like I am prodding, but I have not gotten what I... perhaps it is partially my fault. What I am trying to determine is that notwithstanding the fact that every individual who may go off to tertiary level studies within the Service is not able to complete and come back and be placed into a position equated to those studies, what is the programme if Government agrees to these studies? What is the long term situation regarding those individuals being able to apply their newly acquired knowledge within the Service?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is hoped that whenever and wherever possible these individuals who go off normally to do second degrees, will be placed in a job in their area of specialisation. But it does not always work that way in practice. If there is no vacancy, then they have to be placed in another post and whenever the opportunity arises they will be considered for that post.

On one hand it would probably be a bit unfair to keep a young Caymanian from getting higher qualifications, but at the same time we cannot always guarantee that person will be placed in the specific area of their specialisation. Certainly wherever possible we will endeavour to do so.

The Speaker: This will be the last question. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: When Government decides to fund tertiary education for a civil servant does the Government agree that the person needs further education in that particular field, and is it Government's policy that the person is thereby a specialist in that field and the whole idea is for that person to be placed in that specific field within the Service?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Quite often the decision to approve funding is based on the fact that it is felt that it would give the individual the necessary tools to do his/her job better. I think what has to be realised is that many people who fall in this category are in the administrative grades and are really not specialists. They report to the Chief Secretary as their Head of Department, and under the Public Service Commission Regulations they can be moved to any post within the Service.

While we try where possible to utilise their areas of specialisation, quite often it is useful for them to gain valuable experience in other areas before taking up posts in their specific areas of training.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 8, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO.8

No. 8: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning what are the plans, both in the short-term and long-term to alleviate the severe shortage of space which is now occurring in the Primary Schools in the district of George Town.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: It is not so much a shortage of space as a rise in the number of live births which is causing the problem. After remaining constant for quite some time, the number of births in 1991 rose dramatically by almost two hundred births over 1990 (486 as opposed to 301). It is this rise in the birth rate (which we anticipate feeling the effects of in 1996) which is driving our long-term plans.

For the district of George Town, we propose to make Red Bay Primary a three form entry level school in the two infant classes only. We anticipate being able to accommodate 90 children in year one, using the new bigger classrooms and teachers' aides to assist the infant teachers. In George Town Primary we will build a block of classrooms which will enable the School to accept 90 children in year one as well.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the long term, if both of these Primary Schools are able to accommodate more children at the entry level, it seems obvious that as each year passes there will be more students in each successive class. I do not see mention in the answer regarding how they are going to be accommodated. Would the Minister be able to comment on that?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, the intake of the Government Schools and also of the private schools (which take one-third of the students presently) and some expansions within both the Government and the private schools will take into account these increases. Obviously there will have to be a follow through from year to year to deal with the children.

It makes no sense at this stage, to build a classroom for year six when it may not be filled for another four or five years from the intake at present. So it has to be something that is phased in on the basis of when the classrooms will be used.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I referred to exactly what the Honourable Minister just said and asked specifically if as each year passes the increased number in year one will be moving up to year two, notwithstanding any private schools. Are there plans in motion to accommodate these students so that the same thing does not continue to occur each year in the various levels as time goes by?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, as the years move in to the years above, the Ministry will provide a classroom for that year. What I am stressing is that you do not go now and build a primary school with six classrooms leaving five empty. That is not what we are looking at. As each year progresses, yes, the necessary classrooms will be there to take the students.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

Given the increase experienced in recent years is any consideration being given to the potential increase that might continue to occur at the entry level?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the entry level is largely geared toward the number of births that occurred five years before. So we know for five years what it is going to be and there has been no substantial increase since 1992 (there were 520 live births, in 1993 it was 527; in 1994 it was 531). So we do not expect a proportionate increase in the next three years to the increase that we have had which has now driven this problem.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today.

Statement by Members of the Government. The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

STATEMENTS BY MEMBERS/MINISTERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

EX-SERVICEMEN

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, this statement is being made with the hope of clearing up any misunderstanding or doubt in regard to the handling of the financial assistance to the ex-servicemen managed by my Ministry.

The decision to grant financial assistance to Caymanian ex-servicemen was approved in the Legislative Assembly on the 16th of June, 1994, stemming from a Private Member's Motion (No. 15/94) moved by the late Mr. G. Haig Bodden. Much talk has surrounded this issue for many years but no initiative was ever taken.

In the debate on this Motion, some Members confirmed their desire to see Government address the matter of any financial assistance in a broad manner, covering all ex-servicemen. With these points in mind, Executive Council began by using the terminology 'Caymanian ex-servicemen' in its guidelines to my Ministry and recommended that the Ministry add other criteria as felt necessary, which was also to be re-submitted to Executive Council for ratification.

The complete guidelines to date are as follows:

a) Only Caymanian ex-servicemen or their widows are eligible.

(i) Caymanian: The ex-serviceman would have to be Caymanian or to have had Caymanian status at the time of qualifying service.

(ii) Qualifying service means having served in the armed forces of a country during war time. This should be limited to service during WWI and WWII, the Trinidad Royal Navy Voluntary Reserve, the Home Guard, the Royal Fleet Auxiliary Supply, the Armed Forces of Great Britain during one of the above wars and the Merchant Marines during one of the above wars.

(iii) The war zone must be specified in all applications.

'War zone' means any of the following: seas in the vicinity of a war or areas specified under section (a)(ii); the North Atlantic extending as far down as the eastern Caribbean; the Gulf of Mexico; the Caribbean Sea; the Pacific Ocean including the seas around Southeast Asia; the Indian Ocean; the Middle Eastern Gulf and the Mediterranean Sea.

(iv) Widows of ex-servicemen: A woman who was married to an ex-serviceman or who was his common-law wife at the time of his death. Divorcees are not eligible.

(v) (a) Merchant Marine means a person who was a seaman operating in one of the above war zones.

(b) Ex-servicemen dishonourably charged are not eligible.

(c) Persons who are not on the approved list but who wish to be included to receive assistance should provide one or more of the following as proof of service:

i) discharge papers;

- ii) sworn affidavits from two veterans who served with the applicant or who are aware of the service; or
 - iii) other documentary evidence of qualifying service. For example, medals and awards.
- (d) A deadline of December 31st, 1996 has been set as the final day for the receipt of applications for persons to be included in the list.
- (e) Identification will be required when collecting cheques. If anyone other than the applicant will be collecting the cheque, that person should have a letter authorising them to collect the cheque and have a valid identification card with photo. If the same person will also be completing the application form, they should have all the relevant information to fill out the application.
- (f) Application forms can be handed in or inquiries made at the Ministry on Wednesdays or Thursdays only at 10.00 am to 12 noon.

The Department of Finance started the initial work to begin the award of this assistance, and on the 15th November, 1995, the project was handed over to my Ministry, Community Development, Sports, Women & Youth Affairs and Culture, which had responsibility for Veterans Affairs. A paper, from my Ministry, was forwarded to Executive Council to obtain the funds to start the processing of payments. This was approved in Finance Committee in the Budget Session. As stated in the guidelines from Executive Council, this assistance was granted to all Caymanian ex-servicemen. As in many projects of this nature, much experience was gained during the collection and processing of applications. This led to the guidelines being taken to Executive Council to be further modified.

Decisions were made to discontinue the award of assistance to persons who served in the Korean and Vietnam wars, as the intent in the first instance was that it should relate only to persons who had seen active service, or serviced the war effort of World War I, and World War II. A further decision was made to set the deadline for the cut-off of retroactive payments at January 31, 1996. Applications received after that date would be processed for the month in which they were received with no retroactive benefit offered. A decision was also made to grant assistance to members of the Home Guard, their widows or common-law widows of ex-servicemen. This also included an insertion to a(i) of the guidelines that the Caymanian ex-servicemen or their widows would have to be ordinarily resident in the Cayman Islands at the time of qualifying service.

Lists for the award of these benefits were submitted by: the Veterans Association (Grand Cayman), the Cayman Brac Veterans and Seaman Association, and concerned citizens also submitted names and affidavits of persons who gave service and risked their lives for these islands in Great Britain, and in the other war zones, by serving the war effort in one way or another. The Ministry also had a search done by the archives which also produced a list of persons involved in the two wars.

Further submissions to the Executive Council were made to discontinue the award of war benefits to eligible Caymanians who were living overseas and to change the cut off date of application.

As of today there have been approximately 450 applications processed and assistance given. This project was a very large and time consuming one, and I offer great appreciation to all of my Ministry's staff who put in so much effort and patience in this assistance to our senior ex-servicemen, who too, gave of themselves in the past when the need arose.

This well deserving action by the Government is, I feel, one of the greatest humanitarian acts for many years. I sincerely wish, some people would not sour it by trying to use it as a political football, people should learn to live and let live.

SHORT QUESTIONS Standing Order 30(2)

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A McLean: Under Standing Order 30(2), I would like to ask a brief question of the Minister, if you will permit.

The Speaker: You may. Permission is granted.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if in the process of payment of monies prior to the various changes he has cited in his statement, monies were paid to persons other than those who are now considered eligible? If this money was improperly paid, what steps are being taken to recover it for the Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I think I outlined in the statement that at the onset the agreement was to give to Caymanian ex-servicemen, and that started off in the very first instance and included some nine persons who had served in the Vietnamese and the Korean Wars. So they got the retroactive benefit and the payment in December.

As I have said, steps have been taken to discontinue this as the intent was to serve what I term the "Great Wars" and that this should be for persons ordinarily resident in the Cayman Islands.

Madam Speaker, I should further add that there are no steps being taken to collect the money given. It was given with good intention, received with good intention and I think this country would do well to leave it alone.

The Speaker: Other Business. Private Member's Motion No. 1/96 - Collection of Public Debt with Enabling Legislation. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 1/96

COLLECTION OF PUBLIC DEBT WITH ENABLING LEGISLATION

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 1/96 entitled, Collection of Public Debt with Enabling Legislation and it reads:

BE IT RESOLVED that Government take immediate steps to collect the large outstanding revenue due to the Treasury including contracting out debt collection to legal entities as necessary and legislate or amend such Laws and Regulations as required to clearly define whose responsibility it is for collection in any given instance and to provide penalties for non compliance by the accounting officers.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 1/96 has been duly moved and seconded, and is now open for debate.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

A fundamental principle of businesses, such as governments, is that collection and control of cash flow is crucial to its successful operation. To this extent there is a move among many governments worldwide to improve the systems by which they collect, control and regulate cash flow. Many governments are now looking at moving away from the cash accounting system and moving toward an accrual system of accounting because it is realised that the accrual system has some significant advantages, in that it can be immediately ascertained what amounts are outstanding, to name but one instance.

It is very important that in a country such as ours - and comparatively speaking we are small with respect to some other countries, nevertheless the control, collection and regulation of our cash flow is just as important. Indeed, perhaps it is more important when we consider that our smallness in scale does not mean that we have any less obligation to provide services for our people.

It seems that the time has come for us to put in place a more effective system of collecting monies owed to the Government. Perhaps it should be stated that collection of money is always a precarious exercise. Certainly, it is that way in the private sector. I have reason to believe that in the public sector it is no less precarious: indeed it may even be more precarious since unnaturally some people may claim that because it is the Government (and they form a part of the Government) they do not bear any obligation to honour those obligations. Whereas in the case of the private sector they may not necessarily have the same claim.

Importantly, too, pursuit of debt collection always seems to arouse ill tempers in people. Indeed, when this Motion was made public the suggestion was made to me that I should abandon the Motion because it was going to cause me to lose support and votes because people will not take kindly to me suggesting that the Government should go after them.

I am reminded of the saying left us by Clare Boothe Luce that "courage is the ladder upon which all other virtues climb," so if I am going to lose votes by standing for something which I believe is right and which I certainly know will enable the Government to function and deliver needed services, then I have to lose votes. But I will not be deterred from my encouragement and my suggestion that the Government do this. The private sector does this to the point of hiring people to hound bad debts; even to the point of taking people to court and getting judgments against them.

I think that there needs to be some kind of enlightenment or understanding which portrays the notion that obligations contracted legally and in good faith must be followed through by all parties. When the Government's garbage collection, for example, breaks down there is no end of complaints. Why is it, then, that when it is time to try to round up people who are delinquent or who have abandoned the idea of paying for the service we get complaints? I do not believe it is fair for people to expect that we as representatives can protect them from these kinds of obligations and responsibilities; and I do not believe it is fair to us as politicians and representatives of the people to be dissuaded from stating our position because we know only too well that when these services break down, all of us (the government as well as the representatives of the people) are complained to and are bombarded and sometimes threatened with withdrawal of support.

So it seems reasonable and important to state at the beginning that it must not be interpreted that this move is personal in any way. What it is, is a move to maintain the efficiency and ability of the Government to function as it should in providing the services that governments are expected to provide for their people.

With the recent tabling of the Auditor General's Report we have come to realise that these amounts which are outstanding are significant indeed, for the Accountant General's and the Auditor General's Reports specifically provide the figures. On page 24 of the Accountant General's Report the total list of arrears since the 31st of December, 1994 amounts to some $12,494,145. In a Budget such as ours (of little over $200 million) this is indeed a significant sum and I do not think that any government, let alone a government on the scale of ours, could be expected to write off or forgive debts of this magnitude.

I think we need to realise that in the private sector debts are never written off because then there would be no incentive for people to go into business. By the same token we should not expect the Government to write off debts, irrespective of the fact that we may say in a democracy that the people form the government. There are times when I think this might be a political problem as much as it is an administrative problem. Be that as it may, however, it makes no sense to point blame. What is important is that we craft a system which is effective.

Now, I am of the opinion that this is not an easy solution, for if the situation arises where the Government has to take people to court, we know that there is a certain amount of risk and disfavour in that exercise. But, by the same token, that may be the clearest, most logical and inexpensive way.

I also do not necessarily believe that we should arrive at a system where all the blame is left with the accounting and controlling officers, and when the system breaks down we penalise them. I would rather see us arrive at a system where, while the Accounting and Controlling Officer is the person who has responsibility, we give him the mechanism and the teeth to get the job done in such a way that he is not unduly at risk, where they cannot be singled out for opprobrium or revenge.

That is the challenge, and by way of introduction I will leave the matter at that point.

The Speaker: The Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I rise to comment on Private Member's Motion No. 1/96, with these few remarks: I am happy to report that initiatives already commenced by the Government in dealing with collection of outstanding revenues currently encompass all of the suggested action being proposed for corrective measures by this Motion.

I should point out that the implementation of corrective measures in recent years has been shared with Members of the Public Accounts Committee and, to a somewhat lesser extent, with the Honourable Members of this House. Notwithstanding these corrective measures, the Government does recognise that there is further work to be done, but is pleased to advise that such measures are in fact in hand.

The Government is fully committed to reducing arrears of revenue and maximising revenue from all sources. This task is being tackled in a number of ways. Firstly, inclusive in the $12.5 million shown as outstanding as at December 31st, 1994, is a backlog of old debt which has accumulated since the mid-1980s requiring action.

In order to tackle this the centralised Debt Collection Unit (of which this Honourable House has been advised) will commence in the Treasury Department on the 18th of March, 1996, when the Treasury Debt Collector will take up his post. The Collector is a qualified paralegal officer who is being transferred from the Legal Department who will bring the skills and experience needed for the Government to deal with the arrears. In conjunction with the Treasury Revenue Controller, the Treasury Debt Collector will identify and review all cases of arrears of revenue and commence legal proceedings in any case where this is necessary in order to clear the backlog.

Secondly, all Controlling Officers will ensure that revenue due currently is quickly followed up and apply pressure to debtors to pay. The arrears of revenue must be dealt with promptly, and delinquent debtors will be brought to account. This will require that Controlling Officers liaise with the Treasury Debt Collection Unit at an early stage to secure payment of debts.

In respect of debtors for medical fees, the Health Services Department is currently reviewing arrears with a view of recovering fees owed in all cases where this is possible. In general, Controlling Officers will provide arrears of revenue return to the Treasury every three months as required by the Financial and Stores Regulations. This procedure has slipped in the past, and instead of being done on a quarterly basis it was done at the end of each financial year.

The Government intends to issue a clear message to all of its delinquent debtors. In the past, debtors have ignored requests and reminders for payment of debts. The new arrangement will be efficient and ensure that Government debts are taken seriously; Controlling Officers and the Debt Collecting Unit will work a strict time limit and debtors will be brought to the Courts if necessary.

In order to more quickly deal with the existing legal work load, consideration is being given as to whether to use a local firm of attorneys or debt collecting agencies to assist with debt collection. In cases where this is done, debtors will be required to pay the legal fees and court costs if they failed to pay the amounts due and are summoned.

Whenever possible the Government will discontinue services to debtors if their debts are not paid. There will be a coordination between the departments of Government so that if any person or company owes any money to Government, they will not get the benefit of Government's services or, for example, be issued work permits and/or business licences or other services.

The capability to achieve the level of coordination required to allow this to be done will be facilitated by the introduction of new computing technology within the Government.

In this regard, the Government is developing a fully integrated computer Accounting System so that information regarding debts can be coordinated. This will greatly assist the process of efficient revenue collection and debt recovery. The new system will provide a centralised database of all existing debts and will be on-line and instantaneously available to all controlling officers and the centralised Debt Collection Unit for use. The existing problem with delays in the submission of reports on arrears of revenue will be corrected, and the Government's ability to identify bad debtors will be greatly enhanced as their credit history will be known to all areas of Government to enable adequate and efficient discharge their respective functions.

To further enhance the existing organisational structure of the Portfolio of Finance and Development, we have taken a decision to fill the post of Assistant Financial Secretary. This post has been vacant since the promotion of the current Deputy Financial Secretary in April 1993. This new person will advise and assist the Financial Secretary and the Deputy Financial Secretary in implementing and maintaining policies agreed upon, for sustaining prudent financial management, and the integrity of transactions consistent with the provisions of the annual Appropriation Law.

In particular, the Assistant Financial Secretary will liaise with the Accountant General, the Director of Budget and Management Services Unit, and Controlling Officers in the Debt Collection area and ensure that adequate resources are available to support their efforts.

The Motion does speak to the subject of the adequacy of the existing debt collection legislation. This matter has been thoroughly researched and the position of the Legal Department is that there is already adequate legislation, both primary and secondary, to ensure that revenue is collected and to penalise those responsible for its non-collection. Further, in support of this position the Legal Department is satisfied that controlling officers have a legal duty to take all measures including civil action to recover amounts owing.

The Government has a legal service under the Attorney General, who will be called upon to issue proceedings, obtain judgments, and enforce them on receipt of instructions from individual departments and the new Debt Collection Unit.

If there is a peak in legal work, outside firms and/or debt collectors will be used regularly to supplement the resources that already exist. In addition, further legislation has been drafted (and is currently under review) which seeks to improve the position of the Government in the event of the liquidation of a company's assets. This legislation affects several pieces of existing legislation and is expected to further secure the payment of Government taxes in the event of liquidation of a company which has outstanding debts with Government.

In light of these actions, the Government is unable to support this proposal as the Motion has, in fact, been overtaken by events. However, the Portfolio of Finance and Development will undertake to consider as part of its future plan of action for debt collection any feasible recommendation that might arise during this debate.

Some further comments, Madam Speaker. According to a recent exercise carried out by the Acting Director of Internal Audit in regard to the $12.5 million outstanding as at the 31st of December, 1994, it has been identified that approximately $3,133,000 was collected during the course of 1995.

However, it is unlikely that the remaining balance will be collected in full (that is the $9.2 million), as the review by the Acting Director has revealed that in many instances the amounts reported by Controlling Officers as at the 31st December were overstated, and contain sums that are presently known to be uncollectible. An example is the Tourist Accommodation Tax of approximately $.5 million due from the previous owners of the Treasure Island Resort, and also a loan in respect of Stamp Duty on that property for the same amount of $.5 million that was due from the previous owners as well.

To be more specific: for example, on page 24 of the Accountant General's Report it shows that under 'Other Import Duties', the amount of $1,127,339 was due as at the 31st of December. However, the Acting Director of Internal Audit has found out that this amount was overstated by $468,645. The remaining difference between these two figures amounts to $658,694. Included in this figure however, were amounts totaling $180,000 due from other Government departments. So the net figure which should have been shown in the Report as outstanding and due from the public at large was $478,694, which is less than half the amount that is shown.

I should point out that against this $478,694, the amount collected in 1995 was $306,100, which leaves a balance of $172,000. This $306,100 approximates 70% of indebtedness reported as due, or the correct amount which should have been reported as due as at the 31st of December, 1994. So progress is being made in this regard.

As I mentioned earlier, Madam Speaker, the Report shows that, for example, the amount outstanding for motor vehicle duty was $2,823. This amount was collected in full as at the 31st of December, 1995. The Report also shows the amount outstanding for gasoline and diesel duty as $1,810. Again, this was collected in full as at the 31st of December, 1995. The duty on tobacco products was $44.00. This was collected in full. The amount shown as outstanding on Tourist Accommodation Tax was $1,081,467. Of this amount $118,033 was collected as at the 31st of December, 1995.

I should point out, Madam Speaker, that it is unlikely that the remaining balance of approximately $900,000 of tourist accommodation tax will be collected in full. Although the Honourable Member who introduced the Motion said that a decision should not be taken hastily to write off the indebtedness of Government - which I agree with - I think we will have to shift these amounts into some form of dormant state so as to prevent them from recurring and inflating the amount of revenue that would seem to be collectable, because this would suggest that this is money which is good and can be reached, but definitely is not the case.

For example, the past owners of the Ramada Treasure Island Resort, as I mentioned earlier, owe approximately $587,000 which is money due for Tourist Accommodation Tax between the period 1986 to 1989. Of this $900,000, over $400,000 was due from Hospitality World for Tourist Accommodation Tax collected between 1987 and 1984. Separate action is being pursued in consultation with the Legal Department on this matter.

We know that the owners of this company have formed a new company. In response to Parliamentary Questions in this Honourable House, the deviant practices of this company have been brought to light. I must say that the new company is paying the tax which is due, but until we resolve the existing balance against Hospitality World, we will be looking very carefully. I must say that work is in hand in looking at the licensing arrangements or the structure of the present company because I am not sure if honesty prevailed under the arrangements with the previous company to shift into a new entity. It is likely that the same practices will continue. This is not to say that is the case, but the old indebtedness will have to be resolved before any faith and trust can be established with the remittances and arrangements of the new company in their dealings with the management of the properties on behalf of owners.

Of this sum of $900,000, we see that $75,000 is due from the past owners of the Cayman Kai Resort. We attempted to collect this money, but were advised that upon the distribution of dividends by the liquidators who dealt with this property, it was unlikely that the Government would be in a position to collect this amount. So this accounts for the $900,000.

On Travel and Cruise Ship Tax, the amount stated as outstanding as at the 31st of December, 1994, was $777,786. This amount was collected in full as at the 31st December, 1995.

Traders Licences of $109,209 and Agricultural Department fees of approximately $19,270, these amounts are presently being examined by the Acting Director of the Internal Audit Unit because time did not permit for a thorough examination to be done. I would not want to run the risk of bringing information to the House until it is fully examined.

Another large amount shown as outstanding is the amount of $2,294,959 due for companies fees. According to the Acting Director of Internal Audit (and I will read from our notes): "The nature of this business is such that some companies are set up, never trade, or cease trading, and have no desire to pay fees. Periodic reviews of the Company Register are carried out and these different companies are struck off.

"In 1995 companies which had not paid fees since 1992 and 1993 were removed from the Register. The defunct companies account for $300,000 to $400,000 of the reported arrears. Other companies in arrears for 1994 and 1995 will undoubtedly have to be removed from the Register the next time a review is carried out by the Registrar General. Therefore, some of the arrears highlighted in the 1994 Government Accounts cannot be classified as amounts that are collectable."

In this regard, Madam Speaker, it is very difficult for the Government to implement measures in order to enforce the full payment of fees during the course of any given year because we know that over 90% of the companies that enjoy current status normally pay their annual fees. But often when the principals of companies take a decision to continue the use of those companies, they normally do not write and advise the Registrar General that this is so. This is normally reflected by non payment of fees. But I should point out, from other information that has also been provided, that we have seen growth occurring annually in the Companies Registry and these non payments of fees are normally more than compensated for by new companies coming onto the Register.

In future, Madam Speaker, rather than just pulling off a figure at the end of the year, I think analysis should be carried out to establish what companies are enjoying current status, and what will be continuing, because there is no point in believing that companies which have moved into a defunct status will be paying their fees to the Government.

I should also point out, however, that of this amount for the year 1995, over $500,000 ($.5 million) was collected. So it shows that efforts are underway.

On disinfection fees, the Report shows $15,270 outstanding. Of this amount $1 1,360 was collected as at the 31st of December, 1995. So it shows that over 80% of the amount is due.

With Garbage Fees, this is a perennial problem. The amount due as at the 31st of December, 1994, was $953,185. Of this sum approximately $638,570 represented arrears from the period 1992 and previous years. I must say, Madam Speaker, it is known (and it might have been pointed out to this Honourable House on previous occasions) that this figure was extrapolated and we do not have specific documentary evidence to substantiate that this amount is collectable or who the owners are. We know that until 1992 the Accounting System was not enhanced. So it is just a question of extrapolating based on the population-base that the garbage fee collection should have reflected an interest by this amount.

When we look in terms of the amount realisable, based on information available, that would range about $300,000. During the course of 1995 approximately $47,237 was collected. We have to look very carefully in terms of how we deal with this $638,000 because it is unlikely that it will ever be collected and it will continue to inflate future arrears.

With Hospital Fees there is a further problem with this and efforts are underway in order to try and address this. For example, of the $3,880,140 reported as outstanding as at the 31st of December, 1994, $1,642,416 related to fees not paid on transactions entered into in 1994. For the year 1993 it was $1,330,873.

However, there is a sum of approximately $7,000 that should be classified as doubtful debt. This, I recall was looked at on a previous occasion by my predecessor. When bills were sent out to debtors a lot of them turned up showing where they had paid the money to the Government. Because of these discrepancies within the system, it put the Government in an embarrassing position.

Madam Speaker, at the next meeting of Finance Committee a decision will have to be taken as to what amount of this indebtedness should be written off in order to secure the soundness of debts we know are collectable. We know from the comments given by the Minister with responsibility for the Medical Services, that efforts are now underway in terms of getting the Health Insurance moving. We are hoping that this will abate this problem.

We have also seen, of the $18,000 due for ship registration fees, approximately $10,300 collected. Land Registry fees, showing $3,300 due, $1,700 was collected.

We see tourist reservation fees due as being $32,988, we also saw where $3,181 was collected. There is approximately $29,590 for previous years and we are looking at this very carefully to see if this was a figure that was extrapolated and whether it can be collected.

With Work Permit fees, it shows that the amount due as at 31st December was $750,175. Again, with your permission, I would like to read the comments of the Acting Director of Internal Audit: "Work Permit fees are shown as being in arrears by $750,175 as at 31st December, 1994. The Immigration Department had difficulty in responding fully to our inquiries in the very limited time available, but it does seem that this figure is probably overstated and the amount that is collectable should be $545,165. There may be some difficulty in collecting because of the difficulty of transferring from the old to the current system." Like the hospital fees, this amount may contain certain discrepancies. So this is being examined thoroughly.

What this is showing is that of the amounts that were outstanding as at 31st December, 1994, and inclusive in the sum of $3,133,462.44 mentioned as collected earlier, we have seen where substantial efforts have been made. It is not a question that the amounts outstanding as at 31st December are being ignored. I should point out that we have outstanding and due as at 31st December, 1994, a sum of $592,768 representing a loan that was made to the previous owners of the Treasure Island Resort. This was a combination of stamp duty and import duty that was owed by the company. We have known that it is unlikely that this sum will ever be collected because the previous owners do not have assets that can be reached. This is a sum that will continue to inflate the indebtedness.

So when we look at the $12.5 million, it sounds like a very large figure and it also conveys the understanding that this is money that can be reached. But the efforts so far by the Director of Internal Audit have proven that this is definitely not the case. What we will have to do is clean up this figure and extract from it debts that we know can be demonstrated by documentary evidence where we will not have the difficulty in terms of being refuted by debtors when they can demonstrate that payments have been made. Rather than controlling officers extrapolating figures, over stating figures and giving these figures over to the Treasury Department (and as a consequence the Auditor General comments on them and these figures find their way into the report to the Public Accounts Committee) more detailed examinations will have to be carried out to establish that they are accurate.

Following the comment by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town in terms of moving to an accrual system, we cannot input into that system, even if we were going to list these figures as receivable, monies that were uncollectible. Obviously, we would have to make provision for doubtful debt. Under this arrangement, approximately 50% of this amount stated as due would have to be reserved, provisions would have to be made, so we would have to look very carefully.

I have also taken on board the suggestion that many countries are now moving to an accrual system. I do recognise that there are certain advantages in terms of moving to this system in that such a system better reflects the measurement of Government's revenue potential. There is also an inherent danger in that it will be reflecting a sum of money that will be over and above the cash that is collectable, or that is available. As a result, there could be tendency by any Government to spend based on that measurement which we know will not be realised in full.

Under the cash accounting system there is protection in that the Government spends on the basis of what is collected. It has its drawbacks in that it does not reflect the amounts owing at the end of the year. I would think that without committing ourselves to it, we have moved into a modified cash accounting basis. Not only does the Auditor General's Report and the Accountant General's Report show the amounts due or collected during the course of any given year, it also shows the amounts due and collectable, arrears that are collectable, such as what I have done.

As I said, efforts are being made to pursue the current indebtedness - the $12.5 million mentioned and spoken about so often in the Report of the Public Accounts Committee. This is not a sum that can be collected in full. It will have to be cleaned up to extract the amount due and collectable.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: It comes as no surprise to me that the Government does not accept this Motion and that the Government says, through the Financial Secretary, that what the Motion is asking for is already being done. That is standard procedure by the Government in any instance where the First Elected Member for Bodden Town or I bring a motion to this Legislative Assembly.

This particular Motion comes at a time when there has never before been an Auditor General's Report that has delved into the financial situation of the Government in terms of revenue owed to it as it has in this particular case.

Having listened to the Financial Secretary and his admissions to huge sums of money being owed to the public of this country, I firmly believe that this Motion is extremely timely and provides an opportunity for all Members of this House to express some view as to the rightness or wrongness of Government's collecting revenue owed to it.

From my own perspective, Jesus himself is recorded in biblical history as saying "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's." Whether or not one chooses to give the name of 'Caesar' to the Cayman Islands Government in this case... surely this Government (or any Government of the world) only has revenue through collection of taxes or fees for services which it provides. Government provides few goods - its business is basically services and fees which it charges the private sector for business which the private sector carries on.

It is pertinent to note that when we talk about Government in this regard it surely brings into play the concept of Government "...of the people, by the people, for the people - for the money collected by the entity (Government) is really spent on behalf of all the people of the country. So for there to be large amounts outstanding and not paid to Government, means that Government cannot best serve the needs of all the people. On the other hand, it is creating a special and privileged few who can carry on business or get services from the Government, and not pay like the rest of the people are expected to, and who indeed do.

When money is owed to any business in this country it has to take steps to collect. If it does not collect the money owed to it, it goes broke. In the same manner, if Government does not collect money which is due, then it will go broke, and must borrow money which it would not have to if this revenue were paid. Any way one looks at the situation, the country is worse off for the present state of affairs.

The fact that some of the money which the Auditor General says is due has been accumulated over a period of time, is no excuse whatsoever for the situation to continue. There needs to be a consciousness in Government first - that Government is not doing a wrong by collecting revenue on behalf of the people; that it is not wrong for the Government to prescribe fees, unless those fees can be shown to be blatantly unjust. There has to be a consciousness in Government that for it to function as the business which it is, it has to be in the business of debt collection as well as expending money. I believe that particular type of consciousness does not seem to exist in the Government at this time, nor has it in the past.

According to the Auditor General's Report, there is $12,494,145 owed in arrears of revenue. When one thinks that there is only 31,500 people in this country, that is a very frightening statement. That is something which any Government, including this Government, should make its greatest priority. If the Government had this amount, quite likely it would not have needed to borrow the $18 million to balance the budget, in order to do what it plans to do this year.

The Auditor General's Report, referring to the arrears owed to Government through hospital fees, brings another set of figures into play which is indeed staggering. On page 18 it says that, "...at present over 20,000 individuals and companies owe Government money for dishonoured cheques, unpaid tourism accommodation tax, unpaid medical bills and unpaid garbage fees alone." Twenty thousand people! Included in this is dishonoured cheques and unpaid tourism accommodation tax. If we just take those two items alone, people have the audacity to write cheques to the Government - the giver and enforcer of laws - and the Government is not doing what it should do to stop that type of practice.

If one writes a dishonoured cheque, any business or any bank is going to collect. If you do it to a law firm, straight away you get sued. So why should Government be any different? Why should Government, of all the entities, do little or nothing about this type of thing?

One of the country's largest industries is the Tourism industry. It brings millions of dollars into the country in any given year, and it has been identified by various studies that this is the case. Hotels, guest houses, condominiums, whatever, offering accommodations, do not offer that accommodation for free - they get paid for that accommodation; they collect money. From that money Government should get a fee and there are hundreds of thousands of dollars outstanding to Government.

Just last year a Law was passed (an amendment or a new Law) which gave Government greater strength and ability to collect money from tourism properties where they were supposed to pay fees. There were certain time limits set for money to be collected and if it was not collected there were penalties. I seriously wonder how much things have changed from what was happening prior to that, to what is happening now since that Law was passed. There appears to be a general attitude that Government is not supposed to collect its revenue, particularly in a specific area where Government knows that money has been collected which it can demand be paid. This does not appear to be happening.

In speaking on the matter of tourism collection, the Financial Secretary spoke of the Treasure Island Resort and how money may not be collected from that because it has changed hands, and so on, and so forth. My question is: How does the Government allow these properties to change hands, from whichever hand to the other, when it comes down to the point where the Government has hundreds of thousands (or millions) of dollars outstanding to it? How do they allow that to happen? Surely, if it was private enterprise and two companies were in litigation, or a company and an individual were in litigation over monies due, those companies would not transact any change of ownership without the complainant getting their money out of it. How is it that Government allows these things to happen and not collect its revenue? It is a slackness beyond belief.

I think that it has to be the failure of some section, department, or whatever, of Government. Here, I think the Motion correctly asks that, where it is necessary, Laws be legislated or amended, or regulations be made which clearly define whose responsibility it is for collection. If it is the Treasury, then the Treasury needs to do it. Whichever department or officer within a department who needs to collect the revenue should collect it.

It should be defined in Law. Surely the Legal Department, including the Courts of Law, must be involved in the process of collecting through the weight of the Law where this does not happen.

Certainly, there are not sufficient persons in the Legal Department. The Auditor General has been told that the “Legal Department has intimated that it does not possess the resources to undertake debt collection on the massive scale now required.” We definitely ought to be able to pay more lawyers if we collected the $12 million that is outstanding. So the two go hand-in-hand. If it requires more staff in the Legal Department, then, clearly, we need to provide more staff to the Legal Department. If that is what it takes, then that is what needs to be done.

As one reads the Auditor General's report and his findings, one easily gets the impression that there is a serious lack of definitive regulations or laws when it comes down to collection of Government's money, and who is responsible for so doing. It seems like there is a clear opportunity for officers to shirk their responsibilities in terms of collecting Government's money. For example, under the heading 'Advances - Official Travel - Deferred Expenditure' in the Auditor General's Report, he says, “There was a substantial increase in the amount of un-cleared travel advances. At the date of our audit, a total of $269,712 was outstanding and had not been accounted for.”

Here the Auditor General is talking about money that has been advanced to Government officials - Heads of Departments, Permanent Secretaries, Ministers, everybody that has the right to these advances. Two hundred and sixty nine thousand dollars! Over a quarter of a million dollars! It goes on to say: “Numerous officers had multiple advances outstanding for as long as 18 months. Advances are supposed to be accounted for in full before any further application for advance can be authorised.”

What on earth is going on in the Government as far as revenue management is concerned? One surely has to wonder. To give an inside picture of what it is costing in some instances, I quote the Auditor General again: “Auditors found 93 un- processed travel claims, which had been submitted by traveling officers, in a desk drawer in Treasury Department; 84 of these claims had been held by Treasury for one month or longer and at least 13 unprocessed claims involving advances totalling $16,177 related to travel undertaken in 1993.” Now, this is the Auditor General doing an audit in 1995 of the 1994 accounts. Something is frighteningly wrong.

It is the duty of the Government to put a stop to it. It is the duty of the Financial Secretary as the person in charge of the country's revenue under the Law, the Ministers of Government, the Governor, the Treasury, everyone, to put a stop to this type of thing.

It is not as if the Government is doing something against the people, it is purely good public management (financial management, I might add).

Of the Treasury Department, the Auditor General says, “The Treasury Department explained that the backlog had occurred because priority had to be given to other work to the extent that overtime was being worked and other tasks were prioritized at the expense of official travel. Excessive processing delays can also cause budget management problems for controlling officers when expense accounting is postponed to a later financial year.”

Naturally, this would occur. It does not take a genius to know that one or two things need to be done; either the duty in the Treasury (if we take the instance of these travel advances) needs to be reassigned to someone who would have the time to deal with these advances on a timely basis; or, if everyone is occupied to the optimum doing other duties, it is necessary to employ more staff. It does not take a genius to know that. Why has it not been done? Certainly, by having the adequate staff they, in turn through collecting, are providing for their own salaries.

What sort of system is in place? What type of Government administration presently obtains where this type of thing can happen?

The Speaker: Honourable Member do you expect to be finished shortly'?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: No, Madam Speaker, I have a few more remarks.

The Speaker: We could take the suspension, but I need to say that it has been represented to me by the Government that it would wish to take an early adjournment, possibly at two o'clock, this afternoon. Therefore, I will suspend proceedings now for half an hour.

Thank you.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.10 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.47 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continuing.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: When you adjourned proceedings I was speaking on the Motion dealing with revenue collection, expressing some views as to my concern in various areas, making note of a few items which have been identified as areas of arrears as noted in the Auditor General's Report.

One sentence is quite outstanding in this report, where he said, “In my opinion, revenue recording and collection is the major problem area of Government’s financial administration.” Also, where he says, “Substantial evidence has been accumulated illustrating that debt collection is not given sufficiently high priority by some controlling officers.” That is shown to be true in a very vivid light in a statement made by the Financial Secretary when replying on behalf of Government about companies which do not pay the fees required of them, and because of that there is large and outstanding revenues to be collected.

Initially we can presume that the companies registered pay the prescribed fee so that they can be registered. But it would seem that some position needs to be taken as to how long the Registrar of Companies has allowed fees to be outstanding before striking those companies from the register. It is my understanding that the Registry of Companies is now computerised and as such I would imagine there is virtually instant access. If a reasonable time limit is given from the date that revenue should be collected, and if that time passes and Government in the normal of process of things believes that it might be necessary to give this person a longer time to pay, so be it. But there needs to be a cut off point when the companies are then struck from the register.

There may be those who have a genuine cause not to have paid, but they will have to pay the penalty for having their company renewed. Surely, it should lessen the number who have no intention of renewing again because they do not have any intention of carrying on business as planned. Therefore, that would suit the condition which the Financial Secretary described when he said that some arrears in revenue are shown, but in reality they are not real because the persons are not carrying on business. I think there could be something done in that respect.

Certainly, the fact that the Registry of Companies is now computerised is an ideal opportunity for the Government to send out (by fax) notices to these companies so that when these become due and they do not receive some indication, then that is an even better indication whether they should remain on the register.

On the matter of companies, perhaps the most revealing thing the Financial Secretary said in regard to that was the case of Hospitality World which was allowed to form a new company owing Government large outstanding revenue which apparently was an attempt to not pay those fees. How could any Government agency, Registrar of Companies, Business Licensing Board or whatever, not have sufficient information to know that they owed Government?

Even more frightening is that, if they did have that information, that they licensed a new company for the same people to carry on business.

These types of conditions are bad for the country, for Government and for us as a people. I come back to the request of the Motion for Legislation be put in place, or be amended, or regulations be put in place where money can be collected. It should not be the case where one has to depend on a particular policy of a particular Government at a given point in time about debt collection. Policies can change from Government to Government; or even the same Government might take a different view mid-term. Debt collection for the Government needs to be absolutely grounded in legislation that clearly prescribes Government’s policy. There should be no doubt on behalf of any Government Administration or anyone who might owe Government money.

Another area of Government debt that has come to light is in the area of the television operation here on the Island. There are three that are licensed by the Government. It would appear from the Auditor General’s findings, and those of the Public Accounts Committee, that there are large amounts of money outstanding that have not been paid, even though licences have apparently been granted. It is really inconceivable, because each day that is an operation that is ongoing.

There is also the case of a radio station where money is owed. How can Government, the Executive, the Administration, we as legislators, possibly not feel a compulsion to see that those things are not allowed to happen because they affect the country and the people we represent? We must assume that each day these businesses are earning money and, if properly run, each day there would be attempts to improve revenue to themselves as business entities. How can it be allowed to happen, where the meagre amounts that Government is due are not being paid?

The Financial Secretary also spoke about the fact that some of this money (which he read from the Internal Audit) may not be collectable. In that case, let us find out what is not collectable based on facts and figures and write it off. Start collecting what is collectable straight away. That is what this Motion is asking for. Let us not allow people who should pay into the revenue of this country to continue to do what they are doing. There is nothing personal about collecting. It is totally impersonal. The most impersonal entity, I would suggest in collecting, has to be Government because it encompasses all. Everybody is required to pay into that body monies in various instances.

I was glad to hear that certain modifications are being made in the cash system under which Government presently operates. If it is necessary to change the cash system to an accrual system or partial accrual system so that there is better knowledge of what is owed to Government and what should be collected, that it is more up-to-date and it takes less time to know, then that is surely what Government should do.

With most laws there are certain penalties. It should be no less the case in what is being asked for in this particular Motion where it says that it should be clearly defined who is responsible for collection in any given instance and to provide penalties for non-compliance by the accounting officers. Perhaps there are accounting officers who are not aware that it is their responsibility to collect. Perhaps there is no regulation in place to guide them as to the process that they must go through in collecting. It needs to be defined.

If in the Public Works Department, or some licensing board, there are fees that have not been paid, the person who should collect those fees ought to know what the next step is if it is not paid. Do they refer it to the Treasury? Do those persons refer it directly to the Legal Department? When it goes to the Legal Department, does it go to some specific officer there and is there a proper processing place to deal with it straight away? If it is the case, as the Financial Secretary said, that someone with legal knowledge is being put in the Treasury, and a special post is being set up, then we ought to do that post-haste. It cannot be allowed to continue.

There are many penalties in the Law, but if laws are not enforced and the penalties are not enforced, like a psychology lecturer of mine used to say, "human beings tend to forget." If there are penalties, if someone has something to fear by not carrying out a particular responsibility, then it tends to prod the memory and the correct course of action.

The public can only depend on the Civil Service as a machine which goes on in its own right carrying out the business of Government impartially. The public must count on its Elected Representatives to supervise and direct policies and matters when they seem not to be happening the way they should. This Motion could not be more timely in the light of what we now know regarding Government's revenue collection - or the lack of its revenue collection. It should be a signal call to the Government - not to say that something is being done and grant assurances in this Legislative Assembly about what is planned to be - it should be done forthwith. It needs to be done forthwith. Certainly, it should not be left to policy consideration which can change from time to time, or as frequently as the policy-makers choose to change them. It should all be set down in legislation and regulation so all can be guided by it to do what is correct.

I support this Motion because this Motion is asking Government to do the right thing for this country and to do it in the right fashion. To do it only by assurances of things hoped for is not the way to proceed; which is the way it appears to me the Financial Secretary is saying it will be done.

I trust that by an accident the Government will see the wisdom and logic put forward in this.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M Bodden: This Motion deals with a problem that has existed from the time the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman was the Principal Secretary in the Government. We can look back through the different Auditor Generals' Reports and see that going back, for example into years such as 1990 and 1991, similar reports were made; even as far back as 1988.

The machinery, as far as the legal aspect of collecting debt goes, now exists in the laws. In fact, not only does Government have access to the civil collection of debts, as does the public in general, but in many of the laws there is specific legislation to deal with the collection of debts such as the tourist accommodation tax referred to earlier.

The Finance and Stores Regulations have clearly laid down the responsibility of the officers who have to account for this. As the Honourable Financial Secretary stated, these are all in place at present. The move is to set up a Collections Department and to have that fully staffed and dealing with collection of outstanding debt.

What is important (and it does not seem to have been understood by the Opposition Members) is that this is not a debt that has just arisen - it has been accruing, probably from the time that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman was in the Government, or maybe from the time that I was a civil servant. Somehow these have not been written off as would happen in the normal course of things in the private sector. Each year bad debts are written off to the bad debt P/L Account and provisions are made for future bad debts. Every business has bad debts. There are no two ways about that. But it is important that we look at finding a way so that we write these debts off annually.

The Auditor General stated (at page 16) that in 1994 there still remained arrears of revenue of $7,488,634. A lot of this is very old debt. As we know, there is a six year limitation period after which debt cannot normally be collected and this is extended in some instances where it is revenue under specific laws. So we have a situation where some of this debt is probably not legally collectable because it is statute barred.

Much has been said to highlight the fact and make it appear that this is a problem which has just arisen for this Government. But these debts extend into many other areas. The problem does not arise with just debt.

For example, in 1993 the Auditor General (at page 35) had this to say: "The Audit Office is aware of a further $900,000 of water connection work which had been carried out in 722 house lots in eight subdivisions, all at no cost to owners or developers." So it is not just collection of debts. This was when Mr. Linford Pierson was in charge of the Water Authority. That would not show up as a debt because that has been written off as revenue not collected.

Lastly, another section states: "The results of the exercise by the Auditor General confirmed under billing of $2,634 on two accounts, plus under billing of $1880 on one other account. These irregularities occurred during the period of August 1991 to January 1993 and were attributable to the deliberate manipulation of water meter reading." We know that the Public Accounts Committee established that that $1880 was Mr. Linford Pierson's account.

So, there are areas in this that go beyond what Members have raised here.

I am a Fellow of the Institute of Credit Management and therefore a qualified credit manager. I have been for many, many years. It is not easy to collect debts that extend beyond one month. The general rule-of-thumb is that you collect most of your debt within 30 days. After you hit about three months it becomes very difficult. So vigilance is very important in dealing with credit.

It is a fact (as stated by the Honourable Financial Secretary) that Government has really not had in place a credit department with qualified staff who could pursue the collection on a regular basis. However, there are some accounts that will never be collected because they are incurred by companies that go into liquidation. What the Legal Department and the Credit Department will have to decide is which of these accounts is worth pursuing and which are not. You can always send a judgment on an account. Many times you cannot enforce it because there is nothing there to collect money from. So it is referred to as a hollow judgment and there is no use in following it.

Another problem we have to face is that the public is generally more reluctant to pay Government than they would be the private sector. On the other hand, some fees are billed. For instance, I have constituents who have been billed for garbage fees when the garbage truck cannot get in and therefore collects no garbage. But by law they have to be billed. So the Government department is legally right to bill them even though they are not providing the service. That is an unusual case. But there will be some instances where bills cannot be justified.

I am satisfied that what the Honourable Financial Secretary has put in place is something that will begin to come to grips with this. He will have to write off a lot of the bad debt because we will never collect it.

One of the Members went into the question of Advances and read from the Auditor General's Report, but what I found out after coming into Government was that... and I do not take advances, it is such a problem to sort out afterwards that I just do not. So he was not referring to me when he was speaking about the $700 that was outstanding. I am sure that all Members of the House pay these when they arise, but there have been delays in that area.

While the Motion is one that does flag a very old problem, I think it is misguided in two areas: I do not think that we need to amend or legislate regulations and laws for there to be collection of debts. I think the legal structure is clearly in place. I do not quite follow the reference to contracting debt collection out to legal entities, especially from the two Opposition Members who have opposed consultancy and agencies as much as we have in the past. I am not too sure who they have in mind to collect the $12 million in Government debt.

POINT OF ORDER

(Imputation of false motive)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, First Elected Member for Bodden Town?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker. Erskine May page 380, "The imputation of false or unavowed motive." The Minister says he is not too sure whom we had in mind to collect Government's debts. The Honourable Minister should read the Motion because we did not come here proposing for anyone to collect Government debt.

The Speaker: I am sure that the Honourable Minister did not mean that you had a specific company or entity in mind. I did not get that from his inference.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, that is his evil sneaking way of getting these things across.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, please continue.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: In this Honourable House we have to try to behave like gentlemen and ladies, and I will just remind the Member of that.

I was reading from the Motion. The Motion says: "...including contracting out debt collection to legal entities if necessary." I do not see why...

The Speaker: I have already asked you to please continue with your debate.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Ma'am. I just do not understand why he got upset.

Mr. Roy Bodden: [interjecting] We will not retain your law firm.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: While I am a qualified credit manager, I can assure you that I am not going to end up collecting Government's debts.

The Speaker: I hope you are assuring the House and not the Honourable Member.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am assuring the House, Madam Speaker. I just find this a bit comical in that I am trying to be constructive and I am getting all this thing about evil and everything else. We have to try to keep this House on a good basis.

I really think the Motion is misguided. We do not need to amend the laws. Anyone who has a bit of common sense (which I believe occasionally is lacking in some areas)...

Mr. Roy Bodden: Including yours.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: (I really was not referring to that Honourable Member. I wish that he would just shut up.)

...they would then realise that the necessary legislation is there.

On a comical note, if in 1985 when the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman spent four weeks in law school, he would have had another four weeks, he would have learned the laws relating to debt collection and maybe this would have been a different Motion.

The laws and regulations are in place. I do not think that we have to contract the debt collection out. That is being done by the Honourable Financial Secretary. It will be put in place. What is important though, is that there be a system by which the proper aging of debts is computerised so that on a weekly basis there can be print outs that go into the departments showing the arrears of debt. As I said before, vigilance... once a debt goes beyond 30 days... is very important. The follow up has to be fairly quick if these are to be collected.

Barring the fact that much of this $12 million (and we know that a very large part of this arose in the last two decades before we came into Government - when other Governments were in place) the writing off annually would also be important. So I cannot support the Motion. I think it is a political one attempting to pick up a few political votes here and there, as usual, which we find being brought at this time of the year.

I think this one is misguided and, in fact, we are doing as much as Governments in the past have done and more to collect this debt.

I cannot support this Motion.

The Speaker: If no one else wishes to debate the Motion,

I will ask the Mover if he wishes to exercise his right to reply.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In the arguments given by the Government there is some semblance of wisdom to what was said by the Honourable Financial Secretary in his reply. Certainly, we who brought the Motion recognised that it is not a problem easily addressed. In his response, the Financial Secretary went into some intricate detail as to the extent of the problem. His explanation exceeded the scope which I had envisaged. I feel compelled to mention a few things which arose out of his response.

The first thing is that in any civilised society withholding of monies due to the Government is a serious offence, indeed, more serious than non-payment of debts to an individual. Some countries, like the United States, take this seriously; more seriously, some people argue, than crimes such as murder, etcetera, because of the fact that you are not only stealing from one person, but you are stealing from all the people.

To hear that some people go to such an extent to defraud the Government that they liquidate one company and, with the same brazen efforts, form another company using the same office, is somewhat mind-boggling, to say the least. So, I would hope that while the Government has not seen fit to give consideration to our request, that they recognise that entities and individuals who are so brazen should not be allowed to operate with impunity. That is, of course, taking into consideration the fact that we pride ourselves (quite rightly so) on being an international financial centre of some repute. But we cannot have entities flaunting these kinds of circumstances in the face of Government.

I have to also acknowledge that part of the problem is not necessarily that a lot of monies are owed, as the Financial Secretary rightly pointed out. Some monies have been collected. But perhaps there is room for improvement in the system so that we can have an accounting or an accrediting of monies that have been outstanding and have been collected at more regular intervals.

Listening to the Financial Secretary, I realised that the risk can be that some of the monies owed can be greatly misconstrued since he mentioned that monies recorded in some of the documents from which we quoted, have since been collected. I note his comment that the Government is striving for some modification of the system now being used. I understand that there are reservations with the accrual system, but I think there is a need to modify the system which we now have in place to a system which the Government can be comfortable and satisfied with, which also allows us to have a more accurate position that what we have now.

I also believe that there are other ways in which we can improve the system. The Financial Secretary mentioned that he was prepared to take into consideration any suggestions. By coincidence, a few evenings ago I was approached by one of my constituents who was lamenting the fact that she had tried to pay a small hospital bill but was deterred by the energy that had to go into the effort - she had been twice to the hospital in George Town and was not successful. Upon visiting the clinic in Bodden Town she tried to pay the bill only to find out that the staff at the clinic were not equipped to receive Government monies in that kind of circumstance. Indeed, she went on to tell me that they did not even have a photocopier to be able to photocopy the bill and note that she had paid it, as she was prepared to take that as a receipt. I think that, perhaps, some consideration might be given to these types of operations. I do not know if it is feasible but it certainly would be convenient and eliminate the excuses some people make that they have difficulty paying their bill. Although it was a small amount, that adds up and becomes big figures. So there is room for examination and improvement. I welcome the promise and the undertaking that this will be done.

It is unfortunate that we have to write off large amounts of money which have been owed by tourist facilities, particularly under the circumstances. The Government, in good faith and purely upon consideration, stepped in to alleviate a situation which was untenable, ugly, and had the potential to blacken the face of the Cayman Islands. What does the Government get in return? An abnegation of the responsibility by those whom the Government stepped in to help.

It is unfortunate that we cannot collect the monies owed by the Treasure Island Resort. It is unfortunate that after the Government took the steps to help them that someone left such a large tab. It is unfortunate because I am sure that the Government has to have some apprehension about giving this type of support in the future. I do not know if anything can be done in this case because the principals are out of the jurisdiction and it is expensive to hire firms in the United States. Perhaps it is best, as the Financial Secretary said, for the Government to lay this aside in some kind of account and not try to actively pursue it because it might well mean that we would spend millions trying to collect hundreds of thousands of dollars. I think it is necessary sometimes to operate on principle, but I do not think we can afford to go to that expense.

The Minister for Education quite rightly said that the problem existed from a long time ago. While that is true, that does not exonerate us from carrying out our responsibility now to see what can be done to alleviate this problem and collect these outstanding monies.

I do not see the relevance of dealing with the water bill of a former Member of the House. He certainly has no connection to me, and I do not think he has any connection with his colleague. While I give him the respect due to a former Member, I do not feel compelled to come to his rescue, as I am too busy defending myself from the Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Yes. Come on...

Mr. Roy Bodden: I am sorry if the Honourable Minister took any of the comments personally. They were purely impersonal and made in the spirit that we all together have an obligation. While the Government bears the brunt, all of us together have an obligation to see that monies owed to the Government are collected. It is only by so doing that the Government can continue to offer the services which the public expects.

I want to say that great responsibility must be placed on the Legal Department and the Attorney General's Office. It is that entity which must provide the legal expertise when necessary to inform the Government departments concerned as to how best to collect the money.

The Honourable Minister who spoke last made reference to collection agencies. I do not know what the Government will do, what avenue they will take, but I see (and from business experience I know) that collection agencies are becoming more popular in Cayman. Unfortunately, I do not believe that the legislation which allows them to be as effective as they could be is in place. It is difficult for even the most assiduous of them to be as effective as they could be as a result of this lack of legislation.

I want to comment on something which I find very surprising. It is something I have heard complaints about, that is, the impunity with which people write cheques when they know that there are no funds in their account to cover it. If that were done in jurisdictions like Canada and the United States, that would be a criminal offence. These people should not be allowed to operate with impunity when they carry on that type of behaviour. It is destructive to the person for whom the cheque is written and it gives them favour which they do not deserve. They receive goods and services in good faith, and I am familiar with the problem.

I also know that many businesses operate with a surcharge for this type of behaviour. But Government operates at a disadvantage because it cannot add $25 or $50 for a service which it did not provide: yet, Government is out-of-pocket with the money...

[an Honourable Member interjecting]

Mr. Roy Bodden: They do? Well I am glad to hear that. I stand corrected.

I think that this is not only a problem with Government, but a problem with the private sector and I wish that something could be done to educate (if it takes education) or to put the correct sanctions in place so that this type of destructive behaviour is discontinued.

I am disappointed that the Government did not see fit to accept the Motion. I am disappointed that the Minister for Education sees it as another political move to garner another couple of votes for the Opposition. It was not that at all. Even though this is an election year, it is not sufficiently close to that time that we have to be that desperate yet. The Motion was brought because we realise that there is a problem.

I will leave on this note, since everybody seems to be in such cordial spirits: Edmund Burke was recorded to have remarked that Government is the contrivance of human wisdom to provide for human wants. Men have a right to expect that these wants will be provided for by this wisdom. The challenge is now for the Government to get around this problem.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion No. 1/96, Collection of Public Debt with Enabling Legislation. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES and NOES.

The Speaker: The Noes have it. The Motion therefore fails.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 1/96 DEFEATED.

The Speaker: I am just wondering if this is a convenient time to take the adjournment. May I ask the Honourable Minister for Education for the adjournment?

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 1.42 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY 23RD FEBRUARY, 1996.

EDITED
FRIDAY
23RD FEBRUARY 1996
10.08 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Third Elected Member for George Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands. Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen. The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: Before proceeding to Business, I take great pleasure in welcoming on behalf of the Honourable House, the Honourable Members of Parliament of the United Kingdom who are present for a brief period this morning.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. No. 10, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS QUESTION

QUESTION NO. 10

No. 10: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture how much fill will be needed for the National Stadium/Sports Centre project in Spotts.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, the answer: Once again may I say to this House that there is no National Stadium project and I wish that questions would not refer to one. What is planned is a Sports and Recreation Centre with a lot of emphasis placed upon the park and other facilities for children and families. This is a project which is to be phased over ten years. It will not begin this year nor next year from Government's point of view. We know that Johnson and Higgins will develop the park at no cost to Government and they are quite ready to begin now. I can say that it is expected that on-site excavation will take place extending and linking the two ponds that presently exist. This exercise will provide quite a bit of material.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Honourable Minister has said in his reply that 'the excavation on site will provide quite a bit of material.' Is there any accurate measure by the Public Works Department or other Government agency as to how much fill this site will use?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I doubt it, as the project has not reached that stage.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. 23rd February, 1996 Hansard 3

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Minister has said that Johnson and Higgins will undertake to develop this park and it will be no cost to Government. Is it the case that they have blindly undertaken this with no idea of what the cost will be to them including the filling and the excavation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I doubt that a company with the management expertise of Johnson and Higgins would go in to anything blindly. But certainly this Government appreciates their offer to develop a public park where children and families can be entertained in a positive environment.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Minister has said that Johnson and Higgins will develop the public park. He also made mention of a sports and recreation centre. Are they going to be involved in the development of this sports and recreational centre or would that be the responsibility of the Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, all Members of this Honourable House know from statements made by myself, from their questions in the past and from newspaper reports (which I know they have read), that Johnson and Higgins is developing a public park—nothing else.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 11, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 11

No. 11: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture when was authority granted by the Legislative Assembly for the payment of pensions to the various categories of persons termed 'Veterans' who have to date received them.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer: Agreement was voiced in the Legislative Assembly when Private Member's Motion No. 15/94 was moved by the late Mr. G Haig Bodden, MBE, on 16th June, 1994, and was passed unanimously for assistance for volunteer ex-servicemen and their spouses. Actual consent from Finance Committee was received in the Budget Meeting of November 1995.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Is it not a fact that people who received monies from Government as pension were persons who took part in the Vietnam War or were in the Vietnam War zone, for example, and the Motion which was passed in the Legislative Assembly specifically spoke of 200 people who had served in the Trinidad Navy?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, in the statement I made yesterday morning I outlined very clearly the process that this financial assistance took. The Motion talked about the Trinidad Volunteer Reserve Group, but Members of this Honourable House in their debate made mention of other areas. Certainly, in the Cayman Islands there existed what was known as the 'Home Guard' which helped defend this country in World War II. When the Executive Council studied the matter, we agreed to extend the assistance to as many as we could, as Members had requested in their debate.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: As this matter was approved by the Legislative Assembly to make these payments to members of the Trinidad Navy, how could Executive Council give approval to include other persons not included in the Motion which was approved without the approval of the House?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, that Member should know that the House does not vote funds. It is the Finance Committee that vote funds. As I stated in the substantive answer, it was the Finance Committee that gave the consent

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, is the Minister saying that the Legislative Assembly is not the body which approves funds and expenditure in this country, and is it not the case that Finance Committee is but a sub-committee of the House which looks after the business of finances?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, call it what he will—the House does not vote funds. The House might make a recommendation to Executive Council which takes the decision to send the matter to Finance Committee.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister explain how the numbers were increased from the 200 the Legislative Assembly, and, by the same token, Finance Committee, gave permission to pay these pensions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, in a statement yesterday I outlined very clearly the procedure. It came about from recommendations made by the Veterans Association in Grand Cayman, from the Seamen's and Veterans' Association of the Sister Islands; it came about by recommendations from Honourable Members in this House. Also, as I outlined yesterday, the Ministry researched through the Archives which produced a list that contained names which were not suggested by anyone, but who served in both wars especially World War II. That is how we got our information.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister state if any of the veterans who received funds in the form of a pension returned that money to the Government if they participated in the Vietnam War?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, as I outlined yesterday some nine persons who received assistance in December were persons who gave their services in the Vietnam and Korean Wars. When Executive Council decided (and the House and the Finance Committee gave approval), we talked about Caymanian ex-servicemen. I do not know who else is going to ask those nine ex-servicemen to give back the funds, but it will not be the Minister responsible for veterans affairs.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In view of the statement just made by the Minister, is it not the case where people who received Government monies (and therefore public funds) and did not qualify should return those funds to Government? Is it not his responsibility to see about it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, the people of this country and Members of this House should stop playing politics with what I think is one of the greatest humanitarian acts this country has ever taken. Some nine ex-servicemen received assistance probably amounting to $5,000. These persons did give their service whether it was in the two great wars or not, and I do not believe this country should go back to them and ask them for the $800 they each received. I think it will do this country well to leave the matter alone. If they had been killed, Members of this Honourable House would be the first ones to jump up and ask, 'why is the Government not doing something to remember them.'

The Speaker: The last supplementary. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Is it not a fact that by virtue of their services (since these men served in the United States Armed Forces) that they should therefore be the primary responsibility of the United States' Government and not the Government of the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, it could be that they served directly under the United States Armed Forces, but the fact remains that they are Caymanians who applied and they got through. Bearing in mind that no one gave service without some sort of pay—no one: not the Trinidad Royal Navy Volunteer Reserves; not the Home Guard, who this House recommended; not anyone. It might not have been a big salary, but I am sure it was appreciated at the time and the fact remains that they did receive payment. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 12, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 12

No. 12: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if Government, through the Police Department or otherwise, granted licences for firearms to bodyguards or such security personnel within the past two years.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, the answer: Government has not granted licences for firearms to bodyguards or other security personnel within the past two years.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Member say if he is aware that there may be bodyguards or such security personnel in these islands who offer security services where it is alleged they are armed?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Madam Speaker, I am not aware of this and if security guards are armed they are in contravention of the Law.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say if there have been any applications within this period of time mentioned for security personnel to be granted licences to carry firearms?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. To my knowledge there have not been any applications for security guards or similar personnel to have firearms.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town. Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member state if there is any monitoring of the employees of these firms in order to control and see that these licences are not granted to individuals before they go to work for the security firm?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. We do not monitor the activities of the security firms, but if any employee, or prospective employee, of a security firm applies for a firearms licence we would know about it. The only licences that are granted for handguns would be to bona fide members of the Gun Club.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member say if there has been any application from a mysterious person who, it is said, is a billionaire living in these islands (Mr. Kenneth Dodd) for firearms licences for bodyguards who protect his property and family?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. No there has not been.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 13, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 13

No. 13: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to state whether there have been any objections to the proposed drug rehabilitation facility in Breakers.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Some objections have been received by the Ministry from a polling survey which has been conducted in accordance with Planning Regulations. The Survey is designed to poll landowners of property located with a 1,500 foot radius of the proposed Breakers Rehabilitation Centre. A letter explaining the proposed project accompanied the polling form. A total of 45 letters were sent from the Ministry to local addresses. The Ministry has been advised by the Planning Department that it has also received some objections for the same project, but the extent of this is not yet known by the Ministry.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say, with those objections received and perused, what the basis is for these.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, that was not part of the questionnaire that went out. I cannot say if there was anything definitive in there on that.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Minister could say, of the 45 letter sent out, how many objections have been received?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, due to the fact that the polling is not completed, I would prefer not to answer that at this time. But when it is completed I will share it with the Honourable Member. It has not yet gone to Planning for final approval.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 14, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 14

No. 14: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to inform Honourable Members as to the status of the 9-1-1 Emergency System.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer: The Enhanced 9-1-1 Emergency System is progressing according to schedule. The contract for the provision of the entire system has been awarded and is to be installed and tested in May and June. Staff recruitment is currently underway which, when completed, will lead into an extensive training programme. The training programme will continue throughout the scheduled implementation stages. A major public education programme is about to commence which will provide insight into the use of this new Emergency System, and will include not only the general public, but all of the schools as well. The target date for the system going on-line will be September 1996. There will be an extended testing period after the installation to ensure a smooth transition. Madam Speaker, I will undertake to keep the House informed of progress.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether it is a fact that the site has been moved from what was originally planned and built (at the Fire Station), to someplace else?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer is yes. The new site will be the Police Department.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister provide this House with the reasons for this move, when the site at the Fire Station was specially built to house the emergency system?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Member is far from being right. The building was not especially built for the 9-1-1 system. It was going to be housed in a portion of that building, but after having conducted a final evaluation of the project (prior to entering into the contract for the system) it was determined that the majority of calls are of police nature. With the grouping of EMS and Police in Central Dispatch, and utilising the same staff there would be a savings of approximately $378,000.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether there had to be any modifications or work done on the site at the Police Station where this system will be housed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. No modifications were necessary.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 15, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 15

No. 15: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to state how much money has been paid to date on the loan contracted by the Civil Aviation Department in 1987.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the answer: The sum paid against the loan of $16,843,626, to date, is $1,419,841.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member state what the duration of this loan is?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The time period is for 40 years.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say whether the figure of $1,419,841 represents regularly scheduled amortised payments?

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the bulk of this figure represented a combination of adjusting entries to recognise the indebtedness of Cayman Airways to the Civil Aviation Authority. This was dealt with by a provision made in the 1995 Estimates when it was presented to this House.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Member say if this amount was passed on to the Civil Aviation Authority as a payment because of indebtedness by Cayman Airways? I wish to find out if this amount was taken into consideration with the annual subsidy to Cayman Airways.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, that amount was taken into account in addition to the annual subsidy.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Honourable Member in a position to give the House the outstanding balance on this loan at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the outstanding balance would be approximately $15,400,000.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In a previous answer to a supplementary question the Honourable Third Official Member stated that the amount was taken into consideration in addition to the annual subsidy to Cayman Airways. For clarity, does it mean that this amount was written off in addition to the amount which Government subsidises Cayman Airways with on an annual basis?

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, rather than saying that it was written off, it was an adjustment against the loan balance which brought about a reduction in the amount owing to the Government. But this has been recognised in the Government's record as an equity interest in Cayman Airways. So the amount has not been lost.

QUESTION NO. 16

No. 16: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state the process by which individuals are recommended and chosen for the Queen's New Year's and Birthday Honours.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, the answer: Twice a year His Excellency the Governor requests nominations from Senior Civil Servants for awards to deserving individuals. Any Member of the public may make written recommendations to His Excellency the Governor for an award to a deserving individual. In making a recommendation it is stressed that long service is not sufficient grounds for the award. A firm policy was made by the British Prime Minister, John Major, that honours should be awarded on merit for exceptional achievement or service over and above what normally might be expected, and that meritorious work in the voluntary sector and service to the community should have more emphasis. Awards should not be automatic or follow simply as a result of doing a particular job. The decision in respect of nominations for awards is made by His Excellency the Governor in his sole discretion.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Honourable Member's answer stated that '...a firm policy was made by the British Prime Minister, John Major, that honours should be awarded on merit for exceptional achievement or service over and above what normally might be expected...'. We have just recently had some awards made because of people's involvement in the Cuban Refugee crisis. Was this not their normal job?

The Speaker: That is an expression of opinion. I do not know if the Honourable First Official Member is required to...

Hon. James M. Ryan: Madam Speaker, I might simply say that I do not think that was an ordinary job for any of the civil servants or other persons involved.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Would the Honourable Member say if, when he refers to His Excellency the Governor this is the Governor on his own, or is the Executive Council involved in this process and nomination?

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I think it was clearly stated that the decision is by His Excellency the Governor in his sole discretion, which excludes Executive Council.

The next question is No. 17, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 17

No. 17: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to explain why Planning approval was refused for one of the proposed buildings for the Department of Environment on North Sound Road.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer: The Central Planning Authority, in a letter to the Department of the Environment dated 12th December, 1995, gave the reason for refusal of MRCU's out-building as "...the concerns raised by the objectors are valid". These concerns related to: (i) noise and waste associated with the maintenance of vehicles; (ii) the impact of chemical storage, mixing and preparation in the surrounding areas; (iii) groundwater contamination from washing vehicles, the repair operation and chemical spills; and (iv) air contamination and chemical smells as well as airborne chemical residues or vehicle emissions. These concerns must be evaluated in the context of the facts presented to the Central Planning Authority that: (i) no vehicle maintenance will be carried out on site, only calibration and testing of three fogging machines; (ii) there will be no storage of fogging chemicals on site; (iii) amenity damage, although pronounced during the construction period, will be restored once the project is complete; and (iv) there will be no garbage trucks parked on site to cause air contamination.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Minister say if construction at any level had begun on the building?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer is no.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Based on the fact that Planning approval was denied, can the Honourable Minister state the Ministry's intentions regarding the situation at hand?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Department of Environment, not the Ministry, has appealed the decision.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you for the clarification. Can the Honourable Minister state what the basis of the appeal by the Department is? DISALLOWED (Expression of Opinion)

The Speaker: I am afraid that asking for an expression of opinion. The Honourable Minister is not allowed to do that.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, if the Department has appealed the decision they would have stated their reasons for that appeal. I am not asking for an opinion. I am asking for the reasons for the appeal.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister can you answer that?

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Just to say if something is on appeal I would not want to state what we are appealing on. I think that would have to be heard first.

QUESTION NO. 18 (Deferred)

No. 18: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce to provide an update on the Pedro Castle renovation project.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I beg leave under Standing Order 23(5) to have this deferred to a future meeting.

The Speaker: The question is that the answer to question No. 18 be deferred until a later date during this sitting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The answer is accordingly deferred.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 18 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: Other Business. Suspension of Standing Order 14(2). The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14(2)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I move the suspension of Standing Order 14(2) to allow Private Members' Motions to continue.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 14(2) be suspended in order for Private Motions to be considered at this time. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 14(2) SUSPENDED.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTION

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/96

DREDGING OF THE NORTH SOUND

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 2/96, entitled, Dredging in the North Sound, which reads:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government consider commissioning an environmental impact study by recognised experts in the field, to be paid for by Government, and if the study finds that some further dredging may be done within acceptable limits, that Government tender the dredging works, secure the marl for use in public infrastructural development such as roads for the Island and sell any surplus marl;

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT Government halt all dredging or proposed dredging until the said study has been presented to the people of the Islands and the Legislative Assembly for consideration and debate."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 2/96 has been duly moved and seconded, and is now open for debate. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This Motion before the House relates to the question of dredging in the North Sound, something which has been ongoing now for many years; something which produces on one hand material from the ocean floor for fill and other such purposes, and also from an environmental point of view causes considerable damage to the marine world.

The material that is taken from the North Sound is known as "marl", and there are different quantities and qualities of the various types (some ingredients of it being silt which is unusable, not settling into any solid form). The Motion which is now before the House recognises that there has been massive dredging in the North Sound over the years.

Since the time of one major study, the Wickstead Report, successive Governments—including this one—have allowed people to dredge the North Sound without the benefit of any scientific study or knowledge of the damage to the environment. In recent times there has been much said about dredging, particularly that the Government of the day has gone to great lengths to deny that it has given approval for what would be the most major dredging operation that has ever taken place.

It is well known that there has been some talk of dredging since last year when I asked the Minister for Agriculture about applications for dredging, and whether or not any had been approved. The answer then was that there had been applications and that some had been approved in principle. Little more than that was forthcoming. However, the public—which tends to be concerned about matters of the environment, even if the Government is not—had become aware that approval was given for a major operation in the North Sound.

It went on to the extent that all the Members of the National Team issued a letter in the newspaper of the 22nd of January, saying that there had not been any application to dredge the North Sound 65 feet deep and 600 feet wide, which was signed by all the Members associated with the National Team Government. It was clearly an attempt at semantics and an attempt to try to hide the fact that the Government had given approval it was just a question of how deep.

When matters continued and there was persistence (by the newspaper, for one) that there was an approval on the 12th of January, two Ministers (the Minister for Community Development and the Minister for Tourism) were quoted in the newspaper stating that they were surprised to hear that there was, and that they were unaware of a dredging application which had been approved in principle. I seriously questioned that position.

As Ministers of Government they must know if approval was given since it is given by Executive Council. Whether or not they were present at the meeting when the approval was given, they are privileged to papers concerning meetings. The only other thing could be that they did not read their papers, or that they were excluded from having those papers, which no one would believe.

This operation was given approval for six million cubic yards of fill to be dredged, as noted in the newspaper of Friday, the 12th of January, 1996. According to the newspaper (and I did speak with someone associated with the article) they had asked for some technical advice when they said "...to take that amount of fill it would equal a channel 6.82 miles long by 300 feet wide by 15 feet deep.". That was quite accurate in terms of engineering calculation. What we now know about the dredging in the North Sound is that the Government gave approval to dredge from, say the tip of West Bay, straight up to Newlands—six million cubic yards was the amount approved.

The Ministers cannot convince the country, nor anyone who knows anything about the Government's process, that any Permanent Secretary would have written a letter saying that there was an approval without it having been approved by the Executive Council. No Permanent Secretary would have done that. So it was approved!

On the 25th of January the Government, having realised that the word was out on this matter, admitted through the Minister for Agriculture that, 'Yes, approval had been given.' No doubt the Government heard that the newspaper had certain information, evidence and documents. Certainly, I had received in the mail documents relating to that operation. I think it is very critical to know that approval was given from the 11th of September, 1995, from the Ministry of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

A copy of the letter I received was addressed to Mr. Heber Arch, c/o Arch and Godfrey Cayman Limited, Box 233 George Town, Grand Cayman and it reads: "Dear Mr. Arch, Re: Intercostal Waterway Proposal—North Sound I am directed by His Excellency the Governor to advise that approval in principle has been granted in respect to your North Sound proposal dated 12th of July, 1995, which would serve to link all canal developments between Batabano and Omega Bay as well as the Main Channel. Please be advised however, that approval for the issuance of a costal works licence to dredge the 6 million cubic yards of material, is reserved at this time, following the outcome of a full technical review of the application including an Environmental Impact Assessment by a firm approved by Government and at the expense of the applicant."

The map attached to the letter shows the cut along the coastline. It shows a 600 foot trench and it shows 18 feet on it as being the depth. Madam Speaker, I would like to table these two documents. This particular approval is so massive that it is good reason for the Government to try to hide the fact that the approval had been granted. It would be covered up to this point in time, in my opinion, had the information not become available to the press, myself and others who have received it.

What is peculiar is that this approval is given to the Chairman of the Planning Authority, a chairman—politically appointed by the present Government; being the person who would chair a meeting of the Planning Board when, it is my understanding, Planning comes into the process of approval for dredging.

POINT OF ORDER (Misleading the House)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I would like to take a point of order.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, may I hear the point of order?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Honourable Member is misleading the House, he knows that under the Constitution dredging is dealt with only by the Executive Council, not by the Central Planning Authority. That is a fact. He is misleading the House by saying that the Central Planning Authority deals with dredging. That is an impossibility.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, perhaps you would like to correct that.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I cannot accept what the Minister has said, in that it is my understanding that the Planning Department does play a part in the consideration of dredging operations in this country, and has in the past, including when people had to give notice of areas to be dredged which could be viewed at the Planning Department. That is the point I am making. I am not trying to take anything away from the Executive Council. In fact, the point I am making is that the Executive Council gave the approval and did their best to deny that the approval was given.

The Speaker: I still think that the Minister has a valid point. Approval is given by Executive Council and it is not considered by the Planning Board, as such. I must accept that, and I ask you to retract that in your speech, please. Thank you.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, if that is the way it is presently played, then that is the way it is. I really do not know. It is a very confusing state of affairs with dredging in any event, particularly based on what the Auditor General has found out about it. But if that is the way it is, that is the way it is. I suppose that is the policy of the Government at this time.

Madam Speaker, the amount of fill which is approved to be dredged—six million cubic yards—at an easy figure of $10 per cubic yard for sale of that, would place in the hands of anyone with the approval $60 million. I understand that at this time marl is selling as expensively as $11.25 per cubic yard.

I would like to say at this point in time that the Governor said in his Throne Speech, on behalf of the Government of the day, that there will be no more dredging in the North Sound. He then went on to name who could dredge. I want the Government (and I call on the Government) to tell the people of the Cayman Islands and this House that they do not have the slightest intention of allowing this dredging which has been approved by them for six million cubic yards to take place.

The information that I have is that this was said because of the fact that there is a lot of heat on now regarding the dredging deal. It is their belief that they shall be re-elected in November, and this particular dredging operation will indeed go on as planned. The situation is one where everyone in this country should be concerned. Some of us Legislators who have heard about deals behind the scene with this particular dredging operation, that there is much more than meets the eye; that there are bigger and more sinister forces behind this operation benefiting from it which would create special areas in the North Sound, eventually leading to (from what has been said to me) special islands, where special people would live, where considerations have been given to possible gambling in the North Sound

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [laughter]

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The National Team has said that this is not so in their letter of the 22nd, but they also denied that there was an approval given. So I wonder what the situation is regarding the rest of what I have mentioned.

Madam Speaker, I would like to speak a bit on the reasons why dredging in the North Sound should be halted. First I would like to look at the economic and the management process of Government regarding how it is handling dredging; the collection of its fees, its royalties and the rest of it. Until that can be reversed, then Government should not even think of any further dredging, but should be trying to collect the money that is owed to it.

I have tried to find information on the matter of dredging, and I have found some external to the island, but certainly the only reference that I think exists with specific points on dredging is that which has been done in the Auditor General's Report. Perhaps in support of what the Minister has said, the Auditor General makes the point (on page 29 under 'Dredging Royalties') that, "Dredging and other coastal works are authorised by the Governor in Council. Coastal works include the construction of docks and jetties and may be defined as works carried out on Crown property seaward of the high water mark. My predecessor last examined this subject in 1986 and disclosed that up to 80,000 cubic yards of material had been dredged without adequate controls. The dredging licence in question was open-ended and had no time limit or physical excavation boundaries. This report also highlighted that Government would gain only one acre of filled land in lieu of royalty fees. In fact, the land in question was not transferred to Government until 1994, some 11 years after the dredging licence was issued."

He goes on to mention "The Public Accounts Committee noted the loss of potential revenue and recommended that guidelines be established for future control of dredging projects. The Government Minute only addressed the specific project reported by my predecessor."

Madam Speaker, that gives a synopsis of what dredging was and is, and apparently continues to be in the Cayman Islands; something which has a very serious impact on the very environment that we boast so much about—the marine environment; one of the chief attractions in this country for people visiting these shores, upon which the whole concept and saleability of Tourism is, in effect, built.

The Auditor General looked at five basic areas when he went into a considerable examination of dredging. In fact, in his 90 page Report he took up 10 pages to deal with this matter (I daresay, due to the fact that it had such environmental implications, and because of the loss of revenue to Government). The Auditor General spoke about "...the deficiencies in assessing the royalty fee structure; the inadequate control and supervision to determine they quantity of material extracted and the royalty payable to Government; swaps of land and fill material in exchange for royalty debts; the absence of appropriate debt recovery action; and problems in monitoring dredging activities effectively."

When he looked at the assessment of the royalty fee he made some very surprising, and I think startling, discoveries. I will read a few lines from the Report where it states, referring to a table: "...royalty rates have ranged between 25 cents and 50 cents per cu yd of dredged material." That is applicable to people who sell it at $10.00 per yard, and to those, including Government, who pay market prices when it is sold.

He also says: "The Lower rate of 25 cents appears to have evolved in 1987 on projects A and B [and A and B were SafeHaven and the North Sound Marl Pit] compared to a 'standard' charge of $1 per cubic year. The DIT [Dredging Inspection Team] recommended the concessionary rates of 25 cents and 50 cents per cu yd for Project B [the North Sound Marl Pit project] in order to compensate the licensee for the commercial risks associated with the project."

These things are most peculiar because the ocean floor of the North Sound belongs to the Crown, the people of the Cayman Islands. It does not have to be disturbed, for starters; and if someone wishes to disturb it, they go in knowing (like any business) that there are certain risks. Where does the situation begin or end that Government grants certain concessionary charges because of commercial risks?

The Auditor General did note, and I quote: "These rates appear to have become the established norm for a period. However the PCU [Protection and Conservation Unit] has consistently recommended a minimum standard royalty fee $1 per cu yd, where a suction cutter dredge is used, or $2 per cu yd for the more environmentally harmful drag-line method of extraction."

This relates directly to damage to the marine environment; what Government might get, does get, or should get as a royalty, and the killing that is done by the people who dredge.

The Auditor General also notes that there has been only one case where the $1 was implemented. He is also quoted as saying, "There was no evidence on project files of any link between the royalty fee payable and the commercial value of material extracted."

We have reached the point in time where large areas of the North Sound have been dredged, and the dredging of these areas has virtually brought little or no money to Government, as compared to what the people who get permission to dredge earn from it (such as those who fill land and those who sell marl). I have tried, with the assistance of someone in the Real Estate business, to get a list of some of the places that have been dredged in this country where the land from the ocean floor (the people's land) had been taken to make subdivisions for particular persons or companies. I have come up with something like 19 places.

Among them is: North Sound Estates, Sunrise, Patrick's Islands, Omega Bay Estates, Bonnieview Estates, Admiral's Landing, Red Bay Estate, Brittany Bay, Herron's Landing, J's Subdivision (in the back of Industrial Park), Snug Harbour, The Landing, The Links, Crystal Harbour, Governor's Sound, Cayman Islands Yacht Club, Vista del Mar, an unnamed subdivision near Salt Creek, The Shores. Madam Speaker, if one looks down on this country when flying across the North Coast (like on the way to Cayman Brac) there are huge areas of marl dredged in.

Take Brittany Bay, for example. One does not see a single house there. It does not even look as if there is shrubbery. Huge areas have been dredged in from which people who own these properties can profit. As far as I am able to gather, there are about 1,000 lots (on which there are no buildings) available. Again from the information that was available to me, the person suggested that perhaps about 40 houses per year may be built from which perhaps 25 years of inventory could be realised. So the question comes back: Why do we allow further dredging for subdivisions which immediately destroy the mangroves? Why does the Government allow it to happen? If it is marl for roads, then we need to decide and determine where these roads are because there are a few roads being built in this country and, indeed, there are more that need to be patched with hot-mix and asphalt. From what was uncovered by the Auditor General in informal enquiries by the Protection Conservation Unit, production cost (loaded) was about $4.25 per cubic yard using the cutter dredge, and $3.50 per cubic yard for the less expensive dragline method. Government royalty fees over the years appear to be static.

The Auditor General has also said, "Revenue maximisation does not appear to have been a policy objective and there is considerable evidence of various concessions being provided to licencees."

Madam Speaker, is this to continue?

Is the Government to allow this to continue?

It seems so, because it is doing exactly that by allowing dredging to continue.

Then what of the quantities of marl that have been taken out of the North Sound?

One must wonder. The Auditor General offers a thought on that as well when he says: "As a basic control measure, regular reports of the quantities of dredged material removed from the licensed area should be made by the licencee's surveyor to the Protection Conservation Unit. In earlier projects these reports were supposed to be submitted at monthly intervals, but current practice stipulates weekly reports. Examination of departmental files confirms that this reporting requirement is ignored by most licencees."

How can the Government even think of allowing further dredging in the face of these conditions? We have not heard about any enforcement of the rules. We are hearing about more dredging. It says, "No action has ever been taken by either the Ministry or the PCU to enforce submission of dredging volume reports." In other words, what we are looking at is people given licences to dredge, and they are supposedly going to dredge 1,000 cu yards, but they may dredge 100,000—and they dredge. They do not make any reports. Neither the Ministry nor the Protection Conservation Unit does anything to insist that reports be made and check the accuracy.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, do you expect to finish your presentation shortly?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: No, Madam Speaker. I have quite a bit more I would like to present on this particular Motion.

The Speaker: May we take the suspension at this time for 15 minutes? Proceedings are suspended.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.31 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.58 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continuing.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the suspension I was speaking about the findings of the Auditor General relating to the quantities of material dredged up, how there is really no accurate way to know if what the licensee is claiming is true or not. It seems they do not even so much as bother to send in reports to Government; and there is little or no enforcement against this.

It is further noted in this regard by the Auditor General that, "...first in the absence of a detailed hydrographical map there are real practical problems in calculating the volume of material removed from the borrow pit. As a result the total amount of royalties owed to Government including any penalty amount for excess quantities removed cannot be established."

Yesterday the Financial Secretary was speaking about a Debt Collection Unit. Indeed, it is on the front page of the newspaper today. I wonder if this is going to be included in that particular amount. How can the Government even consider the idea of more dredging without collecting the money which is owed in instances like this? I know a lot has been said about there being a shortage of marl. Well, up until now I have not heard where this shortage is taking place. I understand there is marl available on the island, and I know of no road works (including the claim about the Harquail by-pass) where there is not sufficient marl, if marl is to be used. I also know that the major supplier of rock fill material claims that there are large stock piles of it available.

So what is the real reason behind the idea of further dredging—even though Government says no more dredging of the North Sound?

The Motion speaks about Government taking an active role on behalf of the people to ensure that what is in the licences, or what is done with dredging, is legal. There is also a comment regarding that as well by the Auditor General when he says; "...there would be much better control if surveys of the burrow pit could be carried out by surveyors appointed by, and reporting to, Government instead of the licensee. This would provide an independent confirmation not only of the quantity removed but also compliance with the specific terms of the licence, especially areas dredged and depth of cut. Excessive depths have been a feature of earlier projects and are an important environmental consideration."

The Government was quite gleeful when I read the letter where they gave approval for the six million cubic yards and where it said that they required an assessment on the dredging. The difference is that when you tell the person who wants to take that marl to find someone to do an impact assessment, what comes into play there is (to whatever degree it might reasonably come in, even from a scientific perspective) for them to show good cause why the employer of that impact study can do what they want to do. With Government, they would simply be looking to get the hard cold facts (as it might be said scientifically) for better or for worse.

That was a recommendation by the Auditor General. Indeed, that is the recommendation in the Motion before this House—that it must be done by Government. Government must pay to have an assessment done, not the person who wants to dig six million cubic yards of marl out of the North Sound.

On page 33, the Auditor General again notes: "There is evidence of several licensees exceeding the authorised duration of dredging licences, apparently with impunity."

Those are strong statements made by the Auditor General of this country reviewing this particular situation.

He draws reference to the Shores dredging operation where he says that the licensee had permission to work for 10 months. It should have ended by March or April of 1995. "The original project appears to have been completed by November 1994, including additional 19,623 cu yds dredged at the request of Government to assist neighbouring land-owners."

What that means is difficult to understand. This company was given permission in 1994 to dredge 200,000 cubic yards for re-sale to the public. That approval did not go to the Environmental Assessment Committee, or to the Protection and Conservation Unit, it was simply approved by Executive Council—which claims that no more dredging will be carried out in the North Sound; but you, and you can dredge.

Of very great significance on this question of dredging and the present state of affairs, which impacts on what Government has done and is doing, is where the Auditor General notes, "I could find no relevant and reliable evidence of the total amounts dredged for any of the five projects examined, all of which have, or should have, terminated. As a result I am unable to calculate the total amount of royalties payable by each of the licensees. Closer study revealed a disturbing history of inertia by those involved."

There needs to be a halt put to dredging. No more dredging until all of these matters can be attended to. Now, of amazing significance is the question of debt collection in relation to dredging which has taken place, and which is to take place.

On page 35 the Auditor General notes: "Although royalty arrears have existed since February 1991 these have not been disclosed to the Legislative Assembly in the annual Statements of Arrears of Revenue. The most serious arrears case [is North Sound marl pit], where at least $85,125 has been owed since February 1991, and [George Town Barchadere], where $37,872 plus interest, has been owed since 1982."

He comments further: "It is pertinent to disclose that between 1991 and 1993 Government departments purchased fill material costing $379,000 from [North Sound Marl Pit]. These substantial purchases were never linked with the licensee's failure to pay dredging royalties and Government did not exercise any common law right of set-off."

I am reliably informed that the persons associated with these two projects here identified are the same people who have been given approval by Government to further dredge the North Sound. What sinister, unbelievably corrupt conditions could exist that could bring about such a thing?

How can any one individual be a friend of the country, owing that kind of money to the country, and be allowed to further dredge when we know that (for starters) Government cannot accurately determine the amount of dredging that has already taken place? How can it be done?

How can it be done without a direct study commissioned by Government to have dredging in the North Sound assessed?

It should not be done. It is questionable in every way, shape and form. In this particular instance, the Auditor General also states: "Following the audit inspection, there has been a series of meetings and exchanges of correspondence with the licensee in an attempt to collect royalties owed. However, no further payments have been made. The licensee has attempted to link payment of outstanding royalties to an extension of the dredging licence, but to date this proposal has been resisted. None of the arrears cases have been referred to the Legal Department."

It seems as if there is no further resistance if, indeed, the licensee can now continue to dredge I think some of these conditions here are a result of crony-ism—friends of the Government. It has been in the past and is in the present—it could not be otherwise in the face of such illegalities and monies outstanding to Government. Of course, there are the Environmental issues which have to be taken seriously into account.

I see where the Auditor General has said: "Dredged marl has been essential for road construction and land reclamation in recent years, and A significant element of the Islands' economic development is based on the construction industry. No comprehensive studies have been carried out to establish how much land reclamation is desirable in the long-term or the forecast quantities of dredged marl which will be needed in future years." This is what the Motion which is before the House is asking, that such study be done, such determination be made so that we can move from a position of being reactive, to being good friends and neighbours.

The Environmental side of things is such that we should all be concerned, bearing in mind the hundreds of acres of mangrove which has been removed. Anyone who knows anything about the North Sound, since all the dredging has taken place, would be aware that in a Northwester, or any kind of strong wind (northeast or otherwise) the North Sound now turns to a sea of milk. I have witnessed that with the dredging going on in the North Sound. I have also seen the North Sound with a strong Northwester blowing—it does not have to be that strong for that matter. We should all be concerned about the problem of turbidity being created due to dredging.

I have here a study done by Metro Dade County Environmental Resources Management, entitled "Biscayne Bay Restoration & Enhancement Program." It is a summary report on its physical and biological characteristics. I would just like to read a few brief extracts from it relating to what happens when the bottom is dredged, when that turtle grass and that seaweed and all of that stuff we know in the North Sound has been removed, and what they have found. I am told this is an ongoing study and survey there.

I quote from page 33: "Seagrasses reduce turbidity by trapping suspended material and stabilizing bottom sediments. Seagrass blades act as a baffle, slowing currents and allowing fine-grained sediments to settle out of the water. The dense root network of some seagrass beds, especially turtle grass, inhibits erosion of the substrate, even during strong storms and hurricanes."

I guess we can picture in our minds where we would stand in terms of strong storms and hurricanes for the amount of dredging where the seagrass is gone.

On page 35 the comment is made in the summary of this study: "Rather, repetitive suspension of soft, fine bottom sediments from dredged areas within the Bay appears to be the main cause of persistently high turbidity levels." I am wondering if the Government has no concern that these things are happening and will occur in the North Sound.

Something that is dear to many of us is the question of fishing, where the report says: "Statistical analysis shows that seagrass is the single most important factor for those areas tested in determining the abundance of most of the important species of fish. This analysis also suggests the abundance of many species increases with increasing grass density. A significant positive correlation in seagrass density was found for all species of fish, except sand perch. This suggests that some increase in fish abundance could be realized (at least theoretically) even in existing seagrass areas if density could be increased. Conversely, low fish abundance and diversity appears to be correlated to absence of seagrass and high turbidity."

One of the things the environmentalists keep telling us about the North Sound is that it is the place where the juvenile fish come from. They are born there, and from there they go out to inhabit other areas of our island. There is a chart here that gives some really incredible figures. In the report it says: "Considering the usual direction of environmental change, it is pertinent to assess the potential loss in fish abundance if seagrass or hard bottom communities are destroyed."

They deal with grunt, snapper, all fish, crustacean and fauna. What is found? Where the hard bottom is dredged, Grunts (which we know) will be reduced by 64%; Snappers by 95%; All fish by 64%; All crustaceans (conch, lobster, the like) 34% and all Fauna 51%. The decrease where turtle grass was removed was: Grunts by 91%; Snappers by 99%; All fish by 90%.

On the opposite side: "From the opposite perspective, if a given area of barren, dredged bottom could be converted to sea grass habitats, the theoretical percentage of increase in average biomass for that area would be: Snappers 7300%; Grunts 1043%; All fish 874%; All crustaceans 172%."

There is a problem in the North Sound which is being ignored by Government for reasons which are secretive and not borne out about concerns for fill material. We do not need six million cubic yards of fill in this island for Government to carry on its work.

I have a photograph of the dredging in the North Sound by one of the people given permission to dredge. There are no traps, no diopters there for catching the silt, and so on. I have seen this while flying between here and Cayman Brac. If a proper scientific study by the Protection and Conservation Unit were done, we could have this type of thing (which is a picture of the Port of Miami with dredging going on, as much, perhaps, as is being dredged in that other photograph) where you can see only the slightest discoloration at the edge because it is being properly done.

I would like to table these two photographs, and I have sufficient copies to give to every Member of this House. Later I will ask the Serjeant-at-Arms to hand them out for the benefit of all to see. I wonder whether we want the type of situation shown in the North Sound to continue, or whether we want a complete study to see what should be done.

The Government, in its usual style, says that it is doing what my colleague (the First Elected Member for Bodden Town) and I ask to be done. But during the Throne Speech a Minister was most animated and heard to later say, "See how we knocked the wind out of their sails? We said there is not going to be any more dredging."

What the Government says and what the Government does are two different things. I do not believe the Government really means there will be no more dredging, because in one breath they say there will be no more dredging, but two more people can dredge—and without any kind of study whatsoever of what has happened in the past, what is to happen now and what will happen in the future.

We do not know what our damage is to date. Certainly, one outstanding point needs to be made: The marl in the North Sound is for the Crown. It is for all of the people of the Cayman Islands, and not for any one particular individual or company. If more marl is to be taken from the North Sound, the people should have first and exclusive access to it. It should not be taken by people to whom Government must go to buy marl, even when they owe Government hundreds of thousands of dollars. It should be taken by Government if such can be proven to be acceptable within reasonable limits of damage.

Government should use that marl for the benefit of the people of this country on a whole. Let the Government then be the one to sell marl to gain the millions for the Government Treasury. The Motion before the House is not defeated by Government stating that there will be no more dredging in the North Sound—but Caymarl can dredge, and Simons' Enterprises can dredge . . . but in the meantime hundreds of thousands of dollars are outstanding to Government.

This Motion is not defeated by that because one of the main concerns is the need to find out just where we are now and just how much damage has been done. Can there be more dredging right now? Which boats are to be accommodated in the George Town Barcadere that cannot be accommodated there now? There are no answers to these questions.

So this Motion with all of its consideration is before this House, and well-thinking legislators who do not want to see damage done to the North Sound, who believe that Government should be accountable, and who believe that Government has a right to its fees and taxes will support this Motion. Those who do not will vote to defeat it. I leave the matter to the will of the House.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I have to reply on behalf of the Government to the Motion which is before this House. I would like to start by saying that I have never heard so many professionals on dredging in the North Sound as I have heard over the past few weeks. It is interesting to know that with so much dredging which has taken place in the North Sound over the 33 years that this interest has grown overnight simply to try to find something to introduce to the political bandwagon. I am not going to say anything different than what has been said before.

As far as I am concerned (and until I left my office this morning) I know of no coastal works application being filled out for the dredging which has caused so much stink in the North Sound. That is the only way that approval could be granted by the Government of the Cayman Islands. I know that those who constantly talk about this matter are sensible people. No doubt they understand what approval in principle means. But it is constantly twisted to make it sound as if the Government has taken no steps to deal with dredging in the North Sound properly; it is made to look as if we allowed them to go there and take six million cubic yards of material.

I even heard the last speaker say that no Principal Secretary in his right mind (I think he said) would go ahead and sign a letter on his own: Yet, he turned around and read the same letter which began by saying; "I am directed by His Excellency the Governor to advise that approval in principle has been granted."

How far are we going to take this thing?

This one issue has taken more time . . . and, of course, the usual advocates get out there among the people and stir them up just for the sake of politics. They are going to stand in here and tell us that they care so much about this country and the North Sound?

Dear God!

It is a good thing that the good Lord is not like man, and man not like the Lord. I tell you, I do not think some of them would step in here or leave this Chamber. It is ridiculous, Madam Speaker, especially to constantly introduce individuals' names and accuse the Government of having special friends. Perhaps they do. They speak for themselves. But when I enter these hallowed Chambers, I leave my friends outside.

I wish for it to be stated clearly that all of the remarks in the Auditor General's Report with regard to outstanding royalties were not licences that were granted by this Government. If the last speaker had only waited until I had an opportunity to address a question which is before this House, he would have been better informed as to how much of that royalty is outstanding.

There is also a section in the Auditor General's Report that deals with dredging in Cayman Brac since the time that the last speaker has been in this House. I wonder why that was not read. Is he in support of that? Or is he saying to the House that he did not know about it? When this matter came before Executive Council, it was dealt with—and dealt with in the correct way. We gave no assurances to anyone that if a coastal works application was put forward that full permission would be granted. That is why the legal term 'approval in principle' was used.

For this Motion to come here and say that Government is not taking steps to find out what can be done in the North Sound is utter rubbish. My department is presently working on terms of reference for the North Sound, something which was given to them long before this Motion came before the House. So for them to sit over there not knowing what is going on with regard to departmental operations, trying to mislead this country is ridiculous.

As far as I am concerned, this is not going to be a cheap exercise. Thank God we can see from the Throne Speech that there will be no more dredging. But my honest opinion is that if there were new applications, the best persons to pay for it would be those persons who would benefit from it. I see nothing wrong with that, once the individuals who are doing the study are recommended by Government.

As far as I am concerned, I believe enough has been said with regard to dredging in the North Sound. If this is what some people believe is going to get them elected... I think we still have sensible people out there who realise exactly what is taking place regardless of what is said about this Government.

Sometimes we are accused of going slowly on projects. That is correct, especially with projects that are environmentally sensitive. Since I have been in charge of that department I make sure that it is looked on, and looked on again.

I do not just jump into it, as the Opposition would try to make the public believe. As I pointed out, this Government is being blamed for dredging in the North Sound in a general way, and it is ridiculous because the main projects that have been done there were done under licences from past Governments.

As for the photos floating around here awhile ago, how can we honestly present pictures of the Miami Harbour to compare with the North Sound? I think that is most ridiculous when everybody knows that when you dig in the North Sound you are going to hit white marl. That is a fact. When you dig in the Miami Harbour you bring out black slush. How is that going to have the same effect on the water? I know as much about the Miami Harbour as those presenting the pictures. I am not saying that silt was not shown on the one here, but when you have the wind blowing in the opposite direction in any part of this Island and the sea becomes rough, you will find the same effect. I live on the south side of the Island and it is the same way when the wind blows around. So that is no excuse. It is utter rubbish.

To talk about the detriment to the North Sound—it is a known fact that we have different zones in the North Sound: we have the replenishment zone, we have the environmentally sensitive zone; nobody would ever think of dredging in either of those zones. Talking about from tip-to-tip... the plans which I saw (that are in question), do stretch along the coast line; but if one flies over that they will see that that coast line has already been tampered with. If I read the proposal correctly it was to make a safe passage along the coast line.

As I said, if dredging is done properly there is nothing wrong with it. The shock came when they realised that the Government was on top of this, that we were dealing with it; and we dealt with it the right way. Madam Speaker, you have two people in this House who believe that they can control this House. But they cannot. They are in the minority.

Any slurs that they want to throw from that side do not deter John McLean. I am doing my job. I did not lie about anything. What I said in there I will say here, and I will say before any court—those are the facts. You should not twist the facts because that is where the problems come in.

Madam Speaker, it is a bad thing when one tries to grab at a straw for political reasons. Government cannot support such a Motion. We are doing what is right. We have proven that, and we will continue to do so. As far as no reports being made on dredging in these islands—that is stupidity. When there is a dredging project, it is constantly monitored. Accidents will happen.

I believe that the picture we saw there was probably just that. As far as I am concerned, as long as I have responsibility over the department responsible for this, I will see that whatever is right for this country is what will be done.

The Speaker: This might be an opportune time to suspend proceedings until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.37 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 2/96. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The Motion at hand reads:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government consider commissioning an environmental impact study by recognised experts in the field, to be paid for by Government, and if the study finds that some further dredging may be done within acceptable limits, that Government tender the dredging works, secure the marl for use in public infrastructural development, such as roads for the Island and sell any surplus marl;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT Government halt all dredging or proposed dredging until the said study has been presented to the people of the Islands and the Legislative Assembly for consideration and debate."

The main thrust of my argument this afternoon will surround the dire necessity for an environmental impact study to be done for the North Sound. No doubt the Motion stems from the approval in principle for the dredging of some six million cubic yards of fill in the North Sound.

While one may argue the specific application, I think attention needs to be drawn to the threat to the North Sound with or without the application mentioned before. It is obvious that were this approval to take its full course, the character of the North Sound would be altered; the impacts would be adverse as, more importantly, would the perception of the local residents. Currently, the North Sound is a relatively tranquil, undisturbed, natural setting. Going back to the proposed project, something of that scale would result in dramatic changes in many ways in the North Sound.

This is a preamble to more important things, but allow me to continue.

There would be unavoidable and irreversible environmental impacts associated with such a project. The deposition of dredged spoil material into the North Sound will most certainly result in mass destruction of living reef and bottom sea grasses. Another point which has to be taken into consideration is the perceived relationship between dredged spoil disposal in the North Sound and turbidity and visibility along the Seven Mile Beach reef.

One might ask: 'what kind of craziness is this young man speaking about?', but there have been occasions when knowledgeable people have linked the turbidity and depreciation of visibility on the north side, especially along the Seven Mile Beach area with dredging and the 'fines' (as they call it) spread into the North Sound when this takes place. The 'fines' are what an earlier speaker referred to as the 'milky way'.

The point that I wish to make regarding the Motion is let us all withdraw our swords and look at the real issue at hand which is the health and well-being of the North Sound which is also related to the well-being of the people of this country. Even without this massive dredging, the consequences of man's actions (and even natural phenomenon if not properly regulated and managed) will further degrade the natural environment in the North Sound. In other words, a management plan for the North Sound is needed in the worse kind of way.

This can only be conceptualised and realised if an in-depth environmental impact study is commissioned. There are many ways to look at the existing problem. Individuals see it from various points of view, depending upon where they sit at various points in time.

For instance, if I were a land owner along the water front of the North Sound, and I had a fairly large tract of land, my first thought would be to realise the best return for my investment. There is nothing wrong with that thought.

The difficulty we face as legislators is understanding this, while accepting our responsibility of making decisions with everyone's interest borne in mind. It is always a difficult task to strike a balance. What we are faced with today has been a continuing situation. I do not care to discuss which Government.

I take the position that this Government (and any Government to come), in order to ensure that proper decisions are made, must have all the pertinent facts available to them. It is my view that we do not have all the facts at present. The only bible that we have regarding the North Sound is a report done in 1975 in conjunction with the Natural Resources Unit, and I believe it was done by a Dr. Wickstead, with support from agencies both inside and outside the country. If we are to go by that report, we will notice that since then there have been many things proven to be true.

But the report is 20 years old and there are those who do not necessarily hold that report as the bible to go by. It is obvious that it has not been treated as the bible because of the various things which have happened since then—which would not have happened had the report been followed. The EIS (as I will refer to the environmental impact study) is one which has to be done. I note that the Minister who spoke on behalf of Government made reference to the terms of reference for the North Sound.

I do not know whether he was speaking about the terms of reference for a study or exactly to what terms of reference he was alluding. It is my view that the experts that we have within the Service are quite capable of drawing up terms of reference in order to commission such a study. There are a few firms that are fully qualified. I daresay that the people in the Service are aware of these matters and of these firms. There are many of these types of firms that one could get these results quite readily from. The argument put forth regarding the cost of such a study... even if I am touted as such, I daresay that I am not one who advocates Government spending money unnecessarily. In my view, this is such an important matter, that I think Government should look seriously at being the proponent of such a study, rather than waiting for an individual, or a conglomerate wishing to do a large scale development, to get such a study done.

One can argue both sides, but my view is that while it may be a costly affair (touted as costing probably $1 million), the truth of the matter is that if private enterprise wishes to develop, and even if Government has to approve the firm they wish to conduct such a study, there is always the lingering thought that you work for who pays you regardless of what anyone else may think. I cast no aspersions, but by perception alone (if nothing else), there are those of us who may never be satisfied getting it done in another fashion. It is obvious, if we look from the demographics point of view, the ocean side of the West Bay peninsula is 95% developed—finished, completed.

All that happens there is the turn over in the hotel rooms and the rental of the condominiums, which are sold and change hands from time to time. By and large, the scope for development for that side has dwindled to almost nil, comparatively speaking. It is fairly obvious that developers, when looking at what we may term as the 'hub', are going to turn their eyes to the other side which has sea frontage. That obviously means the wetlands leading to the North Sound.

Again, just about 100% of that is swamp land in the immediate vicinity of the North Sound. As you go back a bit it tends to get dry. But for any large scale development to take place one certainly is going to have to seek reclamation of the property. It is obvious that dredging is the most sensible option for developers to look at. Having established that, I make the point that there will be no fewer applications for this type of development in the foreseeable future, rather, they will intensify. If we also look at the ownership of land along that strip, it is obvious that there are very large tracts of land and not many people owning small tracts of land.

Again, this makes the situation conducive for this type of development to take place. The catch 22 that any Government will find themselves in is when these applications come, is what to use as a rule of thumb as to what is reasonable to allow and what is not. There is no shame in saying that none of us here is qualified enough to make the right decision. The truth of the matter is (if we are straightforward and unbiased) that none of us here is expected to make that kind of decision. But if we had all of the facts available in front of us, then the task would be a lot easier. We might rest easier knowing that we had done what was right for the future well-being of the country. We refer to dredging—and there are so many other areas that are not isolated from dredging.

If one examines these things closely, one would understand the wide ramifications that large scale dredging in the North Sound will have, and the long-term effects down the line. The mere fact that that is possible lends to the thought that we should have the facts in front of us. For those who think that it is proper to get up and say that dredging must stop, that is not necessarily the right thing to say either. For those who feel that the North Sound is just a mass of water and if you do anything like dredging it will not mean anything, they too are wrong. In trying to strike the balance with the argument, I think the key is where do we want to be, and how do we want to see this Island of Grand Cayman 10, 20 or 30 years from now.

Although it has taken a long time for us to be dealing with issues which should have been dealt with a long time ago, the truth is that we should not be like everybody else and continue to procrastinate because they are not easy to deal with. Let us not be guilty of that. Let me draw a small reference which may seem farfetched and totally out of whack when we talk about dredging. It is my view that any terms of reference for an environmental impact study done by private enterprise would be localised to the specific request of that private enterprise.

The issues that we need to address go a bit wider. Years ago there were oil transfers being done off Little Cayman and Cayman Brac. These have ceased. Lately there is talk of such transfers taking place again. With a total abundance of caution, the mere fact that this might take place allows for the possibility of an accident. We do not even want to entertain the thought of what might happen.

There is need for information to be collected on inter-island current patterns. While it may seem that I am off the deep end, if all that information would be available to us we may be able to foresee what the end result would be.

This is the type of information that this country needs to have on hand that we do not have. We might say 40 years from now that it was a waste of time because nothing happened. If nothing has happened 40 years from now, we will thank God for his blessings. That information will not be wasted because between now and then none of us can look in a crystal ball and know that it will not. It is a sin to bury the dead if you could have saved them.

A Motion such as this might not necessarily have encompassed all the pertinent areas that need to be discussed, probably from lack of knowledge and because of its intention. But I hope that we take this opportunity to ensure that we get the machinery going to allow this study to take place. If the public outcry has been about an approval in principle for large scale dredging, let the positive result be that a proper study is done so that all eyes and ears can be wide opened whenever decisions of this nature have to be made.

The other benefit to be derived upon completion of such a study is that one could easily outline for any future development what is acceptable and what is not. The developers would know how far they can come to expect the rules to be bent because that is the name of the game. That is not anything that is out of hand. But if you know where you stand, you know what not to ask for.

The political arm of Government will not wonder 'How can I tell this guy no?' You will know to tell the guy no, because you will have the rules. As it now stands you are in trouble. That is for all of us.

One of the other very serious effects of the dredging that has taken place (and I daresay it will continue) is the total decimation of the storm belt. That storm belt is what many people refer to as the nasty mangroves which are unsightly and sometimes carry a scent.

A lot of people would say that the world would be a better place without it. Let me state a few facts: Some of the narrowest land in this country is located in the Seven Mile Beach area. It is also some of the lowest-lying land. As I mentioned before, the sea side is completely gone from that point of view. There are buildings there and, while they may seem to be solid, I dare anybody to tell me that they do the job of the mangroves. They cannot.

The Law as it stands, whenever any development takes place in the area designated as the storm belt (I think that was done in the 1977 Development Plan), the Law specifically states that there should be a 300 foot buffer zone, meaning that from the water's edge coming back in 300 feet there should be that buffer zone left as a storm belt for it to serve its purpose (there are many purposes that it serves besides being a storm belt), the idea being that all development that takes place must take place inside of 300 feet from the edge.

It is not that I wish to be specific, but I can only be specific if I make the point. The Safe Haven development was 2,800 feet of storm belt on the North Sound. Their original approval (and the one smiling at me I know remembers it) did not grant that storm belt to be taken out because the CPA was sticking to the Law. But because of the nature and the magnitude of that development it went to an appellant tribunal and an appellant tribunal was convinced that because of the magnitude of that development, the storm belt must go.

I cannot blame the developer for wanting the storm belt to go because he wants the place to look pretty. I cannot blame him because he wants to create a beach on the water because it certainly makes for it to be a more attractive development. They might have a commercial lot on the seaside, a hotel might develop there. That is not what is wrong. If the rules were set and they were adhered to, then whatever type of development takes place will take place within those ambits. Every time we mention the word 'precedent' in here... that is the big word each and every one of us has so that if we do this now, this is what is going to happen later.

When the next developer comes and we tell him, 'Look, you have to leave 300 feet of storm belt there', they say, 'You did not do that for the man up the road. Who are you talking to?' This is what we are faced with. The question is not whether the developer is insensitive; everybody fits the role in any society. The Financial Secretary is the Financial Secretary; the developer is the developer—so on and so forth. So, it is not saying that the developer is this or that. No! It is obvious what the developers are all about. I drew that reference to show how susceptible we are.

I would be reading for a very long time to make mention of the many purposes that storm belt serves. Suffice it to say that two-thirds of the marine population depend on that storm belt for survival. That is what Dr. Wickstead said in consultation with a dozen more qualified personnel. In the 1932 storm (I was not there either, Madam Speaker) the Island of Little Cayman saw several areas being over-run by the sea from one side to the other, so I am told. Because the majority of us have not seen something like that in our lifetime we tend to think that it cannot happen.

Not being a precursor of doom, but simply stating a fact, the longer it takes to come again, the shorter it will be coming. That is a fact. That same storm belt that I referred to, especially down on the West Bay peninsula, serves a purpose that is very difficult to quantify. While without it, it may look nice from the aesthetic point of view (depending on the individual), it does serve its purpose. I trust that those who live there will learn to recognise that purpose. The point in all of this, and the reference that I drew, is simply to say that without all of the facts in front of us we are exposed to a continuation—if not a proliferation—of the things I mentioned before. It is not going to serve us good in the end. Mention was made of the marine life.

Those here who have taken the time and who have studied this area, whenever they talk to the lay person they seem to be off the deep end. I do not profess to be one of those who do not understand that certain sacrifices have to be made in order to allow sensible development. I am not suggesting that one must not allow for reality to set in. But when we look at the marine life in the North Sound, and the possible serious long-term effects of over dredging (if I may call it that), I cannot fathom how every one of us here would not say for the sake of the people and ourselves, and those to come after us, let us ensure that whatever type of development we are going to allow along the periphery of the North Sound, is done with acceptable damage, because there will be damage. In order for us to ensure that we only allow the type of development that will cause acceptable damage then we must know; to know we must have the facts; and to have the facts we need, with proper terms of reference, an EIS with much broader ramifications than might be initially envisaged by many. As we talk about marine life... and I keep drifting away because something else comes to mind. I think of the pure (and I use the word pure in more ways than one) pleasure that many of us get from going fishing in the North Sound.

There are those who might say that Kurt should learn to go outside the reef instead of fishing in the Sound. There may be merit to that. But not all of us like the same type of fishing. I can promise the world that there are many Caymanians (and others who reside here) who gain much pleasure from either going fishing in the North Sound or taking the family out for a very slow boat ride and looking at all the wonders of the North Sound, not to mention the tremendous increase in the tourism dollar derived from the natural beauties of the North Sound.

Those natural beauties are all surrounded by the marine life in the North Sound. Not to be able to see these wonders will make that trip not worthwhile. Very soon locals and visitors alike will stop going into the North Sound. There are those who hold the view that dredging actually allows for more fish and marine life to gather. I have heard it said that when you dig a borrow pit it becomes a fishing Mecca.

The truth is that fish feed on molluscs and little crabs and other little creatures. That is a part of what is termed the ecosystem and the food chain. Whenever the natural seabed is disturbed, all it does is bring all these little creatures out in the open. So for a little while the fish have a big feast. That is what they are talking about. I too have experienced that. But as soon as the first feast is over, and the land settles, the 'fines' smother the seabed with all of the turbidity. They realise that there is no more food to be had and they disappear.

All of what I have just said is coming home to the onus that we have. For whatever reason it has come to a head, and I think it is time that we take advantage of it and make sure that we do what is right. If we do not have the facts before us, the very next step is that we are going to hear about a referendum—that if anything like this comes we are going to have to have a referendum for the people. The people certainly have that inalienable right. But would it not be much better to have a proper study conducted; to have proper terms of reference drafted for the study to be conducted, for each and every one of us to have total access to all of that information?

When it is all over no one can say that if we do this we really do not know what will happen—we will know. Then we can decide how much hurt we want to take, because when it comes to development it is very rare to have a win-win situation. There is always a price to pay. At least, if we have the information in front of us, we will know what the price we have to pay is for any development.

Dr. Wickstead said: "The prime consideration has been that which, in my opinion, forms the main concept of Conservation. This is not to say that nothing should ever be touched or removed, but to identify natural resources and, if exploitable, then to recommend how to exploit these resources fully without destroying the environmental and ecological framework of the whole." That nicely says what I was trying to say before. That is exactly the way we should be looking at it in my view.

Dredging, also in my view, has a direct impact on the rate of development in the country which is, again, paralleled with difficulty in Government having to decide on what is an acceptable rate without passing up the chances of having ongoing development. But at the same time the big question mark is if we are doing the right thing. Are we going too fast? Are we overheating the economy? These are always questions asked. One might say that is a blessed problem because on most occasions we are not wondering where the next dollar is coming from.

Let me say this: If we believe that we can continue in this ad hoc fashion, knowing full well that the living God has always taken care of us and will simply just keep everything in hand and it will just keep on happening just right forever, we are sadly mistaken. We have to be either the luckiest people in this world or the most God-blessed people. I suspect it is a bit of both, but it is not going to continue forever.

There are things which we must look at immediately—not tomorrow, not when the next Government takes over, not when the heat is off. There are things we have to look at immediately; otherwise the whole country is going to be in trouble. It is not good for him to be blaming me; or for me to be blaming him as to who did not do what right. Let us not get to that point because the nature of the beast is political, even when that does not exist. So let us please not look at it from that point of view.

Whoever wishes to find fault with any presentation of mine or any other, I do not have a problem with that. But I know that even if what I am saying does not sound very good, I know it is sensible. I know it is right. I am not saying this for any one of us to feel lacking. I am saying that it is a battle that we are all in and we have to deal with it. Even when we differ at various levels, it is still something that we all have to deal with and a responsibility that will not go away.

In 1975 Dr. Wickstead said: "I am given to understand that there is enough recovered land available now which, if built upon according to the plans available, has the potential to increase the population of Grand Cayman by a factor of three; but still there are these applications for filling and building. The [Government] must take a long hard look at this clearing and filling programme. It will be appreciated that the most developed strips of land are narrow in width and any removal of any protective barriers will expose any developments to the elements."

The point I am making is about the reclaimed but undeveloped land. In 1975 there was enough undeveloped reclaimed land which if utilised in its natural setting would be able to increase the population threefold. In 1996 it must be at least twice that. While the population has grown, certainly, the amount of reclaimed but undeveloped property has grown much more in relation.

I know the risk that I run, but I have to be as truthful as I know how to be. The risk is that many of them who understand may say, 'I wish he would hush because that is stopping us from doing what we want to do.' Unfortunately, on the other hand, the majority just might not bother to listen. There is no corner for me to turn when I am through, but that is alright. When I finish I will know that I have done my best on the issue. This situation about reclaimed property and the amount being undeveloped must lead one to wonder what kind of rape we will commit before we do something about it.

I go back to a point I made earlier: The onus is not on any developer to have a conscience. A developer is in the business of developing to make money. It is up to the Laws of the land in which that developer is developing to ensure that the developer develops in a fashion acceptable to the land. This is what we are talking about today. But if we think for two minutes (and when I mention it you will understand why a lot of things have prevailed in Cayman today) we will also understand why it is going to get worse tomorrow if we leave it alone.

Madam Speaker, Dr. J. H. Wickstead said (and I think he was referring to staffing problems in the hotels), "It seems all the more unreasonable when one considers staffing problems. There is already a shortage of trained staff in the present hotels; [and he was speaking about hotels here I am not specifically speaking about hotels, I am talking about the rate of development] any additional hotels would undoubtedly exacerbate the problem unless large numbers of non-Caymanians were brought on to the Islands, a possibility which would need serious consideration by the Cayman Islands Government."

That was in 1975, that was what he was talking about then. Today we are faced with the ever growing problem of what is acceptable for the indigenous population. How far are we accepting integration processes?

How many almost unemployable Caymanians are screaming their heads off because employers have brought in trained personnel from overseas to do the job?

Can we say the employers are at fault?

No! Whatever business they are in—especially if it is in the tourism industry—it is competitive. If I go to one hotel and the service is bad, I will go to the Front Desk and ask to them 'to pay for what?', and once there is space elsewhere, that is where I am going. So, they have to run their properties efficiently.

I do not even know if I should really go any further with this, but do you see the problem? I am not talking... I really mean this for whatever anybody might think, this has nothing to do with any one of us here. This has something to do with something that is not going to go away. We may say that the problem I just alluded to is separated from the point at hand, but it is not. Large scale development is equated to the Seven Mile strip, both sides of the water.

As bees are to honey; any development which is to take place is going to require dredging. When we talk about an environmental impact study and the terms of reference, the problem that I just pointed out is a part of the terms of reference which has to be examined. They cannot be separated; besides the fish not living in the water, what happens to us humans? That is a real problem.

There are other points, Madam Speaker. I have not had the time to gain access to the information, but I am throwing the point out because I have my doubts about it. I do not know if any major water lenses have been identified along the West Bay Peninsula. Let it be borne in mind by those who may think differently, that a water lens does not necessarily exist under rock. A water lens can exist at various subterranean levels almost anywhere.

While that might not be considered a factor because we have the Water Authority, the Cayman Water Company, and others providing water to the country, the last thing in the world you want to do is tamper with major water lenses in a country such as this. Part of the terms of reference of the EIS (Environmental Impact Study) I referred to would be to identify any major water lens that might exist so that any dredging, whether it be inland or not, be considered very carefully because as you disturb the ground it is obvious that the water quality below would certainly be lessened.

It might not seem to be a point worth considering, but I throw it in because if it is to be done that should be one of the considerations also. Let me just quickly read from a small document—it is long enough now that I am not taking tales out of school.

The very first word on this document is the word "Secret". So it is a secret document, it is the property of the Cayman Islands Government Executive Council—do not get nervous, this is from a long time ago.

Have no fear!

'Natural Resources Study': "Although these studies are planned to cover all basic marine parameters, emphasis should be placed on those primarily concerned with, or affected by, the practical needs of development in the Cayman Islands; e. g., fill and sand by dredging or other means.

"Therefore, it is expedient at this early date for the Executive Council to consider and enumerate the future development needs affecting the sea bottom, coast line and littoral swamps in order that the marine study can solve or minimise the detrimental side effects of such development activity, or advise where an area can only be protected by leaving it in its virgin state. Some major examples follow: (a) Sand: There is an urgent need for building purposes. [This was in 1975]. This can be obtained from the beach ridges or from the Sounds. Investigations should be made with the object of answering the following questions: i) Which is the most expedient ecologically? (ii) If the Sounds are, and in particular North Sound, the study should predict on the basis of current, turbidity, wave slope and depth of sediment which area could be exploited with least environmental damage. b) Marl fill by hydraulic dredging: Fill is essential to development in the Cayman Islands. It can be obtained by dredging and/or draglining in the open sea or by encapsulation. Thus, (i) which method is the most expedient for the least environmental damage? (ii) Which localities in the Sounds could be worked to create the least damage through turbidity and/or sedimentation? c) Coral reefs: Skin diving, glass bottom boating, etcetera, are an important attraction for the tourism. It is believed that the Cayman Islands are fortunate enough to have flourishing reef ecosystems and these should be protected. Therefore: (i) Which areas are the worthiest of total protection by the creation of underwater parks? (ii) Are there other areas where licenced removal of the flora and fauna could be allowed? (iii) what would be the quantitative index needed to control this? d) Removal of mangrove and reclamation: Mangrove can be divided into littoral mangrove and deep swamps removed from the sea. 49 (i) How much of this could be safely removed? (ii) would large reclamations of the deep swamps be more desirable than fringe filling along the North Sound. It is recommended that the Natural Resources Study team be requested to give special attention during the studies to the subjects mentioned in paragraph 3 of this submission, and where possible to provide this Government with answers to the questions posed therein."

Madam Speaker, all that I am saying now is that someone was worrying about it 20 years ago. Unfortunately, many of us still worry about it 20 years hence. That is why it is important that we do something about it now so that 20 years from now someone does not pick up the Hansards and say, 'My God, you mean this has been going on this long?'

There is another factor which I daresay needs mentioning (and there is at least one person in here to whom it is very near and dear): Destruction of the mangrove is tantamount to dredging—the amount of dredging, and the type of dredging that is allowed. For any one of us who has been in the North Sound, either in the early morning or late evening (I will try not to exaggerate to make the point) in the period of an hour into the very light/darkness, one sees hundreds, if not thousands, of birds going back and forth depending on the time of day. Not just one type of bird either, all types of birds—in flocks by the dozens.

They live on the periphery of those mangroves in the North Sound. They not only survive there, they thrive there. They actually migrate from one side to the other—I am not 100% certain of the rotation basis and why, but I know that you see them going back and forth. It is probably a type of food that is available at a certain time of the year. We have nesting areas known as Booby Cay and all of that.

Especially on the Western Peninsula there are thousands of birds that live in the mangroves. They can have all the mangroves if someone can safely tell me where the birds are going to go afterwards. I do not have a problem if they can assure me of the nice home they are going to have for them. Until such time I have a problem with it. Madam Speaker, population, construction, land development and tin-can economy all eventually lead to environmental degradation and incipient pollution.

The need for nature management has become obvious to us all. First, it is necessary to educate by quantitative evidence the simple fact that conservation in a small island environment is sound economics. If we look at the size of the island, we will see that Grand Cayman covers 76.4 square miles. Twenty years ago, 42 square miles of that 76.4 was wet lands, mainly composed of tidal mangrove swamps. I could not find anyone in the past two weeks to even give me an approximate idea of how much of it is left. It is things such as this that we need to know. This is what affects our rainfall.

The boring topic that I have had to discuss, while it is boring it is very important to us. With all the development that has taken place... in 1975 someone had a reasonable figure for how much wet lands existed in Grand Cayman. No one in the various attached professions today, would even venture to wager a guess of what it is now. I do not know if it tells anybody something, but it tells me something. Mention has been made about turbidity, I have touched on it.

Something else that needs to be addressed is the acceptable level of siltation, if and whenever dredging is to take place. My thoughts have no bearing on whether individuals who engage in dredging should be put into untenable situations—nothing of the sort. The two pictures that a previous speaker compared; whether one was Miami Harbour, which is full of black slush, and the other is the North Sound which is full of white marl, the method to prevent siltation would stop black slush or white marl. So it does not matter.

The point that I make is that when we talk about what is allowed and what is able to be allowed, there must be very stringent rules and regulations under which people are able to operate. No one, I daresay (even the two individuals who I know are being allowed to continue the project they have started) would wish to purposely harm the environment. I do not think that for a second, but, unintentionally or nor, it can happen. I am saying that these are areas which need to be tightened up.

I believe that those who are supposedly monitoring the situation probably are not able to operate in such a way that they can get the job done. I am not 100% sure; to be honest and I have not really spoken to anyone very recently. But the point is that time and time again, when dredging has taken place in the North Sound, I have seen (not from the sky, but on the water) what is being referred to as the 'milky way' stretching at least four miles.

Madam Speaker, that is unacceptable in anyone's language. Twenty years ago that was unacceptable and what a lot of the people do not know is that there are actually times that are better for dredging. There are types of prevailing winds which are conducive to it, and others which are not. The prevailing winds have an association with the current in the North Sound.

I can assure you that damage can be lessened if all of that information is known and collected where one could easily say, 'this is how we should do it, these are the best times to do it. Let us schedule it in this fashion. If a certain type of weather is going to persist for two days, we will work on the weekend, but we will not work today or tomorrow because of weather.' It sounds like stupidity, but it is such a sensitive issue that that is the way it has to be dealt with and we do not have all of those facts readily available to us. This study will provide these facts.

While I said that the North Sound is relatively undisturbed at present, the proof of the matter is that there is a fair amount of small boat traffic on a regular basis there. For anybody who is able to venture into the Sound (it is no longer only on weekends, but on any day) there is a fair amount of activity there. This also lends assistance to the turbidity factor. If siltation is not minimised by proper screening, once the fines are allowed to stray any distance it becomes almost impossible for them to get chance to settle because of the boating activity.

We cannot tell the boat owners not to travel in the North Sound. So I make that point to stress how important it is that whatever dredging might be allowed to take place, that it take place in the safest fashion allowing as little siltation as possible. Madam Speaker, I think I have worn out my welcome, but let me summarise all that I have been saying by reading a statement that was made as early as 1974 by the World Bank. It reads: "The quest by the developing nations of the world for higher standards of living often involves the deliberate modification of the natural environment to achieve economic objectives. However, such activities sometimes result in concomitant losses of ecological, health, or cultural value, or all; and in the long run, increased cost to society. Such losses, which may vary widely in magnitude, may result from the failure to consider environmental consequences during project planning and design, or from the lack of knowledge and information necessary to prevent the eventual impact. Even if undesirable effects are forecast, information on cost-effective environmental safeguards may not be known, or economically competitive project alternatives are often unavailable."

I think what can happen to us is obvious, Madam Speaker.

Let me say that if the Government does not accept this Motion, for whatever reason, I am still challenging the Government to commission with proper terms of reference an environmental impact study because it is vitally needed. I am confident that the people of this country will support such a study because in the long-term (and, I daresay, in the medium-term) to not do it will make us penny-wise and pound-foolish. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I was just wondering, since it is getting near to the time to adjourn, and I know there are other matters on shortly this afternoon, if this might not be an appropriate time to adjourn five or 10 minutes earlier. We all have something to try to get to a bit later.

The Speaker: Would you like to put that motion?

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I put the motion that this House do now adjourn until Monday, at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until Monday morning at 10 o'clock. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Monday, morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.10 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 26TH FEBRUARY, 1995.

MONDAY
26TH FEBRUARY, 1996
10.11 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable First Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. James M. Ryan: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands. Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen. The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Deferred Question No. 5, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 5 (Deferred)

No. 5: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development what is the outstanding balance on personal loans made to non Civil Servants by amount and name of borrower.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I will have to seek the leave of this Honourable House in accordance with Standing Order 23(3) for this question to be further deferred. I will provide the answer to it during the course of this meeting. The answer that I have prepared is based on the amount of loans made to civil servants and not non-civil servants.

The Speaker: The question is that the answer to question No. 5 be further deferred to a later sitting during this meeting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The answer is accordingly deferred.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 5 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: Question No. 19, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 19

No. 19: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce what the total number of overseas employees in the Department of Tourism is, giving a breakdown by category, location and the 1995 total staff cost for each area.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer: Fifty-five persons are employed overseas by the Department of Tourism. These staff are located in the United States of America and London, England. There are two categories of staff. Fifty persons fill Sales and Marketing positions and five persons are in the administrative and clerical group.

Total salary package is CI$1,572,396.00. The United States of America accounts for CI$1,403,328.00 and the United Kingdom for CI$169,067.00.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In the recent past there has been information in the newspapers that Government was seeking to get representatives in Spain, I think, and also Germany. Are these included under the London section in the reply given?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: No. We read the question to say overseas employees, meaning the persons whom the Department of Tourism and the Ministry of Tourism directly employ. We did not read it to include agencies.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Does the Cayman Islands Government, through the Department of Tourism, pay any fees to the various agencies in other locations that do service for the department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Yes, we do.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say then what the number of persons associated with the Department of Tourism who receive fees is, in that the intention of the question was to gather who is employed by Government and to whom fees are paid out of the funds for Tourism.

The Speaker: I do not know if the Honourable Minister can answer that.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: What I can answer is that we have representation in Japan, Canada, Germany, Spain and Italy. As to how many people and what the costs are, we did not provide that information because the question really did not ask for it.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Are the five persons employed in the administrative and clerical group in the United States or in England. Exactly where are they located?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think there is a mixture; some of them are at the administrative arm of the North American Department of Tourism Office in Miami, and one or two may be in the United Kingdom.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Where does the ultimate responsibility for decision-making lie, in terms of what decisions are taken in these various areas? Is it with the various points overseas, or is it ultimately here in Grand Cayman?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The ultimate decision rests with the Director for Tourism who is housed in Cricket Square, Grand Cayman.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 20, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 20

No. 20: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce what is being done to address the Caymanian/expatriate issue as identified in the 10-Year Tourism Plan by Coopers & Lybrand.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: The 10 year Tourism Plan prepared by Coopers & Lybrand was not accepted by Government.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say when this decision was made public, and was it stated in the Legislative Assembly that this Report was not accepted, seeing as parts of it were extrapolated into a document prepared by his Ministry, which is supposedly based on the Coopers & Lybrand Report?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, my recollection is that the 10-Year Tourism Development Plan prepared by Coopers & Lybrand was laid on the Table of this Honourable House in 1992 by the Executive Council Member responsible for Tourism.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Is it the case then that, as far as this Government is concerned, the 10-Year Tourism Development Plan by Coopers & Lybrand is not being followed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: What we are following is the 5-Year Tourism Management document which was approved by this Honourable House in 1995. As a matter of fact, the implementation strategy for that plan is now being looked at by a team of (for lack of a better word) consultants.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if any details out of this 10-Year Plan (which cost a few hundred thousand dollars) are included at all, or are being used by the new study that is underway?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac knows that the answer to that is yes. The basis for the 5-Year Tourism Development Plan is that plan he referred to.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 21, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 21

No. 21: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture how the term 'Veteran' is defined by Government for the purpose of paying pensions to this group of individuals.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The term "Veteran" is defined as follows: Ex-servicemen would have to be ordinarily resident in the Cayman Islands, be Caymanian, or to have had Caymanian status at the time of qualifying service; have served in World War I and II, the Trinidad Royal Navy Volunteer Reserve, the Home Guard, the Royal Fleet Auxiliary (supply), the Armed Forces of Great Britain and the Merchant Marines, all during one of the above wars.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. In the reply the Minister has said, "the ex-servicemen would have to be ordinarily resident in the Cayman Islands." Is it the case that Caymanians who may have served in these wars, the Trinidad Navy or wherever, and not living here now are excluded from payments?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, in the statement I made the other day, I explained that when we began the process of taking in everyone, payments were made to persons living overseas. I explained that that was since amended so that they would have to be ordinarily resident in the Cayman Islands. I should explain also that perhaps there is no one living from World War I, but we included World War I just in case. We did not know who would come and ask for assistance.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. From the point of view of fairness it would seem that persons who have served in the Cayman Islands who are Caymanian, but who may not be living here, should be due the pension. Are any of these persons living overseas now receiving it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I explained that in the first instance, they had received the retroactive payment for four months. I believe they could have received the January payment—I am not sure. I am asking the House not to hold me to that as I cannot remember at present. But the decision was taken that we could not continue.

However, I said last week that if any one of those persons living overseas has any problem and they make a case to the Government, we would consider their need. We do understand that they are living in the United States where they get Social Security. In fact, the Member asking the question now as to why we do not give it to them, just last week was asking if we were going to take it back from some.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 22, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

No. 22: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to state if any customs duties on furniture imported by the developers of the Westin Casuarina Resort remain outstanding at this time.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the answer: The Westin Casuarina Resort project was granted a duty concession on 'dutiabale building materials' in October 1994. This concession allowed for importation at a concessionary duty rate of 5 per cent, rather than 20 per cent which is the normal rate for building materials.

During 1995 the Resort imported certain items of furniture to complete the project believing that these items were also covered by the concession. Although the eligibility of the furniture was questioned, the consignment was released at the 5 per cent duty rate pending further enquiries and legal advice. The matter is, as yet, unresolved, but Customs is in negotiation with legal representatives of the Westin Casuarina Resort to recover the duty. The duty at stake is CI$243,438.28.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say whether it was stated that the duty concession applied to building materials exclusively?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The concession stated "building materials", but apparently when the request was made by the principals of the hotel they asked for the concession to be granted on a similar basis to that which was granted to the Radisson Hotel. The view was taken that that was the concession they had received. Subsequently, when it came to light that building materials covered construction materials only, and would not include furniture and fittings, it was referred to the Legal Department for an interpretation at which point it was understood that it related to building materials only. This is where the exclusive element of it can be regarded as having been agreed upon.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say if a separate application was made for concession on the furniture when this was discovered to be the case?

The Speaker: The Honourable Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, yes. A separate application was made, but Counsel held to the original position in that the duty concession related to building materials only, and not furniture and fittings.

QUESTION NO. 22

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Member say if this application was made before the consignment of furniture was released, or after?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: It was made after. The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say if, when the application was received for an extension of the concession similar to that given to the Hyatt, a written reply was given stating Government's position regarding limiting the application to building materials only?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Looking back to the basis of the original decision when their request was initially considered, at the time the hotel developers were advised (based on the decision taken by Executive Council) that what was granted related to building materials only.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 23, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 23

No. 23: Mr. Roy Bodden asked The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to state what rules or guidelines exist for regulating entitlement to pre-school grants.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the answer: The existing regulations for the distribution of pre-school assistance to needy parents are as follows: (a) one parent must be Caymanian; (b) the child must fall between the ages of 3 years 9 months and 4 years 9 months, i.e., the funds assist children with pre-school fees the year before they enter formal schooling; (c) the applicant is assisted up to a maximum of $300 per month for 10 months (September to June); (d) applications are reviewed again in January of each year to determine whether any changes have occurred in the parents' status; (e) initial application is evaluated by the pre-school supervisor who forwards the relevant documents to the Chief Education Officer for approval.

A sliding scale based upon the combined salary of the parents and the number of dependents in the household is being proposed by the Education Department, in response to the Auditor General's Report. Applicants would also be required to submit verification of income. If accepted, this would be a change in the 1991 policy which stated that "No child should be disadvantaged by the reception programme being taken out of the Primary School".

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say when these guidelines were drafted and when they will come into effect?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister. Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The guidelines were drafted in 1991 by the previous Government when they, I think very wrongly, abolished pre-schools and reception classes in the Government school system. They brought it in, it has not worked well and what we have now is merely the last part of this question that is a purported change. The rest of these policies were in force for some time.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Minister be in a position to state what cost to the country, on an annual basis, this programme of pre-school assistance adds up to?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, although that was not part of the original question, if you have the information... Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I do. Up to 31st of December, 1995 there were 143 children receiving grants in the amount of $354,669.75. Is that sufficient?

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Based on the fact that the existence of the problem has been recognised, are there any long-term plans to remedy this situation within the public school system?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: One of the radical changes that was brought in by the last Government was this policy, which in my view was wrong. It was wrong to, especially with the handicapped children in the Lighthouse School, abolish the pre-school aspect of that (in other words the first year before school).

It was also wrong to abolish the classes in Government schools. The dilemma that I found myself with was that the classrooms in which these children were going to school (the reception classes) had been taken over because one extra year had been added to the primary schools.

Therefore, there was no way at all possible with this wrong change of policy by the previous Government, that I could do anything in the short term. I should point out that this was only one of the many radical changes made in the system over a matter of about nine to twelve months. I was trying to put out the fires and correct the problems in another five or six areas. In the long term, in East End and North Side we are looking at reintroducing the reception classes, areas where pre-schools adequately deal with reception classes and the pre-school side.

Obviously, the Government would not embark on a policy to bring in reception classes at this stage. We may have to look at one or two of the other districts on the adequacy of these. I should point out that when the decision was taken to abolish reception classes, at that stage I think there were only three pre-schools registered and in operation. There was really no one to take these children.

So at the beginning the children had nowhere to go and a lot of them lost out on that one year which has now seriously put them at a disadvantage when they enter the primary schools. The other problem is that this mistake has to be corrected by the Year One Primary School Teachers. It is not easy because children coming into the schools are of a very wide range of ability; some of them have been to pre-school and their abilities are considerably more than those who have not.

So the problems that have been created are going to go on for sometime, but in the long term I think we have all pre-schools that are in operation, with the exception of one in East End that is now being transferred into what I mentioned earlier, where the East End school will do three years nine months, to four years nine months. A house has been purchased adjoining the school that will take the younger children. This is at present in coordination with the PTA. We are looking at how best to deal with that.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Recognising the restrictions faced at present, there has been talk for quite some time about rules, regulations, and guidelines for the operation of the pre-schools to ensure the quality of the product. Are these guidelines now in place and, if not, can the Minister tell us what is happening?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Those guidelines were one of the first things that went into place and have been for the past three years or so.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Are the guidelines specifically tailored to ensure that when the youngsters graduate from these pre-schools to the entry level at primary schools they are up to a certain level, so that the disparity which now exists does not continue?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The guidelines that I referred to relate to things such as entry, conditions of the premises to make sure that there is at least one teacher there. The curriculum itself is now being worked on at the same time as the National Curriculum for the schools, generally. No, that is not in place now.

But you must remember that up until recently the pre-schools were not even registered. We first had to go through about 18 months of trying to bring them up to a standard to get them registered; to see that the guidelines to that extent were followed and the curriculum is the second stage which is being dealt with now.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Following up, but specifically to ask the question that I just asked in a different way: Is the curriculum that is now being developed geared for exactly what I asked for?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister. Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is correct, and it is actually already drafted, some of it is with the pre-school principals at present.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is this a curriculum to which these private pre-schools will have to adhere as a mandatory condition, or is it a simple recommendation as a way for these pre-schools to operate?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Government's policy has been not to force on private schools anything of this sort. However, we have found that private schools have always cooperated and accepted many of the improvements that have arisen within the system. We hope that the Association for the pre-schools will accept these guidelines and implement them. Therefore we will achieve this through leading the private pre-schools into using them, rather than having to legislate and force them to use these guidelines.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is it then the case that when these curriculum guidelines are developed and proposed to the private pre-schools, those who choose not to adhere to the proposed curriculum simply can do so if they wish to?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I will have to cross that bridge when I come to it, but they are in the Association, they have assisted in putting the guidelines and the curriculum together. Therefore I do not see any logical reason why they would not accept the guidelines. If it does come to the stage where I have to look at that (I am being optimistic and I have always found the private schools to cooperate—they have been very helpful to Government) I believe that cooperation will continue. I do not believe in forcing people to do things. That was the past Government's problem. I believe in leading them into doing things and allowing them to be involved in developing the guidelines themselves, therefore it is far easier for them to accept it.

The Speaker: The last supplementary, the Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Could the Honourable Minister say if the pre-school supervisor visits the schools on a regular basis?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister. Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand that she does visit them. I will take the lady Member's hint that perhaps we should get this done on a fairly scheduled basis. What has really happened is that some of the pre-schools needed more help than others. Therefore she has visited those that we were trying to get registered far more than she visited those that were operational and going well. Perhaps scheduled visits should be taking place now that all are registered.

QUESTION NO. 24

No. 24: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to give an update on the proposed National Road Plan.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The National Road Plan includes both new roads and improvements to existing roads. The full plan also takes into account minor works such as shoulder improvements, additional turning lanes, sidewalks and pedestrian ramps, drainage and traffic control devices. The problem of old substandard sub-division roads will also be addressed. In addition to identifying and scheduling the work, a longer period of up to ten years is needed for land acquisition, utility works and funding arrangements.

A National Road Plan must naturally dovetail with the Development Plan and take into account the needs of both the business and residential sectors. An immediate need is to identify alternate road corridors to address the problem of traffic congestion on the present roads. The first corridor identified for construction is the Harquail bypass which Lands and Survey is presently reviewing. An extension of the Harquail bypass further north will be necessary to adequately relieve the congestion on the West Bay Road. There will also be another corridor from Batabano Road to West Bay Road. The Crewe Road bypass with extension further east will be required to alleviate traffic congestion from the eastern districts.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Minister say which Government agency is in charge of developing this road plan, how long that particular agency has been working on the plan, and if there is a time frame regarding any possible tabling of the road plan and what the plans regarding any legislation are?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The work on the National Road Plan is being carried out by the Public Works Department. Whenever it is completed I will definitely lay a copy of it on the Table of the Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: With no hidden agenda attached, does the Minister have any idea when this road plan might be completed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: The most I can say is in due course.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the substantive answer the point was made regarding the dovetailing of this plan into the review of the Development Plan. Is the acquisition of corridors of primary importance in order for any proposed road plan to become a reality?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I would have to say yes to that; we would have to have the corridors.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the answer to the question a section reads: "In addition to identifying and scheduling the work, a longer period of up to ten years is needed for land acquisition, utility works and funding arrangements." Can the Minister expand on this part of the answer regarding the ten years, meaning is it that it is expected that acquisition of the road corridors will take up to ten years?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. If Members recall from the Estimates given just on roads for the George Town district, the cost to the country, if we have to do a National Road Plan and carry out the works in less than ten years... I hardly believe that we would be able to afford it even in ten years taking into consideration certain areas that we would have to build the roads; the cost of land and, of course, the cost of material for the roads. So the reason for the ten years is that it will be stretched over that period.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say if the bypass at Crewe Road will commence this year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister. Hon. John B. McLean: As was pointed out, the Harquail bypass will hopefully be started this year and, with God's help, I hope it will be close to finished. Thereafter, the Crewe Road bypass will start. However, the Public Works Department will be looking at the route and will try to get the route gazetted so that once we have completed one, we can just start on the other.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the answer to the supplementary just before the last one, the Minister gave an explanation regarding the ten years and the cost involved with doing works. To ask specifically the question about the ten years, is it that it is anticipated that it is going to take ten years for acquisition of 26th February, 1996 Hansard 17 the road corridors, or is that with a different time frame plan?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Once the route is established it is then for the Lands and Survey Department, if Government gives the go ahead, to acquire the property. The 10 year period is not for us to acquire property. It is the span over which we are hoping we will implement the National Road Plan.

No. 25: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce (a) To provide a timetable for the installation of permanent moorings in the George Town Harbour; and (b) If Government is considering the installation of permanent moorings in the Spotts area. The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, the answer: (a) The permanent moorings project will include both the design phase and the installation of three moorings in the George Town Harbour. At present, the Port Authority, in consultation with the Central Tenders Committee, is in the pre-qualification stage of tendering for the design phase which will include surveys of the area, design of the moorings and costings. After the final design has been accepted by the Port Authority, the Central Tenders Committee will process the tender for the installation of the moorings. It is hoped that this project will be completed in time for the 1996/97 Winter season. The answer to part (b): The Port Authority is not considering the installation of permanent moorings in the Spotts area at this time.

The Speaker: It is now 11 o'clock, and if there is a wish to continue to the conclusion of Question Time, any Member may move the suspension of Standing Order 23(7).

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I move the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) to allow the questions that are proposed to be asked to be completed.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder for that Motion? The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: The Motion is moved and seconded. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. We may continue with Question Time.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister say if the proposed plans for the permanent moorings in the George Town Harbour are parallel to the policy of not allowing any more than three cruise ships to visit the island at the same time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The reason for the three moorings is because the George Town Harbour can only accommodate three permanent moorings allowing the ships to swing 360 degrees without coming in contact with one another.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Regarding the answer to part (b) of the question, that the Port Authority is not considering installation of permanent moorings in the Spotts area at this time, is this purely a financial consideration, or is it not considered worthwhile?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The protection of the marine environment is always a worthwhile thought, but the problem is financing to do it all at one time.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister say what is expected to be the cost per permanent mooring when they are installed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: That would be absolutely impossible as we are now looking to design permanent moorings. We have before us four firms which have come forward for consideration in the pre-qualification stage for the design and costing. So it is difficult for me to give the costing at this time.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: While not considering the Minister's answer to be cast in stone, are there any estimates whatsoever which have been discussed that may give us an idea of the cost?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Permanent moorings can range in all sorts of values. I am hesitant to even quote a figure on that. It can range from $100,000 to $1 million each. It depends on what is decided to be necessary in terms of the need in the George Town area. There will be three shallow moorings which will be at the lower end of the value quoted.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Will the cruise ship operators play any part at all in the installation of these moorings?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: We have been in consultation with the cruise lines for the last 12 or 18 months on the same issue and, obviously, they are going to continue to play a prominent role in it. We do not want to end up like some countries to the North who decided to install permanent moorings without talking to cruise lines and then the captains refused to use them.

The Speaker: The last supplementary. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Have these cruise lines been approached by the Government, or have they made any offers regarding the cost of installing these permanent moorings?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: We have been talking to the cruise lines about installation of permanent moorings for them to play a part in the decision-making process to ensure that all parties are aware of what is being installed to ensure that cruise lines and the captains of those ships will use the permanent moorings once they are installed.

QUESTION NO. 26⁽¹⁾

No. 26(1): Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture to outline the process by which the Ministry decides that persons are eligible for long-term financial assistance since its removal from the Department of Social Services.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

To determine eligibility for long-term financial assistance, the Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture has drawn up guidelines. In accordance with Government policy and the approval given by Finance Committee, persons who are disabled, handicapped, or who are 60 years of age or more, who are in need and are not working or do not have other means of income for their basic needs must be given financial assistance. It is also provided that written representation in the form of an assessment questionnaire should be made to the Ministry on behalf of each applicant. The procedure is coordinated and implemented by the Financial Assistance Committee which will deal with all requests.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer provided by the Honourable Minister does not state whether it is for Caymanians or persons normally resident in the Cayman Islands. Could the Minister kindly clarify that please?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: All financial assistance is for people resident in the country.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The answer refers to an "assessment questionnaire". Is this the same as the means test which used to be provided and, if it is not the same, is there any means test which is done in order to give the Committee full information during the assessment process?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The questionnaire contains many more questions than those asked by the Social Services.

For instance, it asks: When was the last time you worked? What was the salary, monthly/weekly? Do you have steady income assistance? Do you currently receive assistance from any of the following; pension, social security, veteran's pension, alimony, insurance, other sources? Do you live on your own? Do you pay rent? If yes, how much? If no, with whom do you live and what is the relationship? Do you have compulsory monthly expenses (monthly/weekly)? Do you have any medical expenses? Do you receive assistance from Social Services? They ask to list the amount. What is the name of the Social Worker? Do you have dependants? What relation are they to you? That is the sort of information it asks.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister say if the individuals seeking financial assistance are those who have to complete the questionnaires, or it is completed through some other means?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: In the Finance Committee of November or December (whenever it was), I said at the time that persons not connected to an individual could make a referral. In the past, representatives of the people (Members of this House) would make referrals to the Social Services Department. I said then that that would not change, they could still make the referrals to the Ministry. But a person needing assistance can make a request on his own; he can ask his representatives to complete his forms. A person can ask anyone to fill out a form.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Upon completion of the questionnaire when formal application is made, can the Minister outline the method by which the answers on the questionnaire are verified?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: As I have said in the substantive answer, there is an Assessment Committee and those persons scrutinise the applications and would seek further input if they desire.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Are the Social Workers in the Department of Social Services utilised in any manner regarding verifying the application?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: If needed, the Assessment Committee would certainly call on Social Workers, yes.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Would the Honourable Minister clarify how residents in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman would deal with this situation; will it be through the Social Services or what is the procedure?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, as I understand it from the Permanent Secretary, are dealt with separately.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister expand on the operations of the Financial Assistance Committee, namely, how many members, where are they drawn from, how often do they meet, and is there any consideration given when decisions are made to allow financial assistance that there may be some people who need temporary assistance, but given the right assistance may be placed into meaningful occupations?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The persons who serve on the Financial Assistance Committee are: The Permanent Secretary, the Assistant Secretary from the Ministry, the Director and the Deputy Director of Social Services. Reassessments can be made on a six months basis.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. Statement by a Minister of the Government. The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

STATEMENTS BY MEMBERS/MINISTERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

NATIONAL FLORA AND FAUNA SYMBOLS

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, recognising that features of a country's natural environment play a significant role in its evolving culture and due to such characteristics such as uniqueness and social value, flora and fauna may be regarded as symbolic of a national and cultural identity. Accordingly, the Ministry established an ad hoc committee comprised of persons with knowledge of matters concerning the local history, culture and environment to advise on the selection of a Cayman Islands National Flower, a National Tree and a National Bird.

The Committee, chaired by Miss Theresa Leacock, includes Miss Anita Ebanks, Mr. Geddes Hislop, Mrs. Gina Petrie, Mr. Fred Burton, Mr. Lennon Christian, Mrs. Joyce Hylton, Mrs. Heather McLaughlin, and Mrs. Arthurlyn Pedley representing the National Trust, National Museum, National Archives, Garden and Orchid Societies, Department of Environment and Government Information Services.

With the objective of promoting awareness and pride and the protection of the species, the purpose of the Committee was: (1) To determine the qualifying criteria for candidates for national tree, bird and flower; (2) to articulate and execute the process of selection and (3) to spearhead the subsequent promotion of a national tree, bird and flower.

The qualifying criteria established by the Committee and approved by Executive Council are: (1) A biological uniqueness to Cayman (that is, the specie or sub specie must be endemic); (2) it must be representative of all three islands (that is, must truly be national and, preferably, the species should not be the symbol of another country); (3) the social and cultural role and value; and (4) inherent beauty (must consider visibility).

The candidates qualifying under this criteria were: Flower: Wild Banana Orchid, Cordia flower; Tree: Silver Thatch Palm, Ironwood, Cordia; and Bird: Chip Chip, Bananaquit, Ching Ching, Parrot. The polling exercise was conducted throughout the period of April the 17th to June the 30th, 1995, votes were accepted either by using the ballot sheet drop box, mail, telephone, or facsimile submission.

A strong educational element was employed in the promoting of public participation, as well as the understanding of the qualifying criteria. The cumulative result was a relatively high overall participation level, particularly by primary school students, as well as an extremely high level of comprehension of the qualifying criteria. Just under 2,000 ballots were received and the choice of each category led the vote by large percentages.

The public's choice and those accepted by Executive Council are: The Wild Banana Orchid for the National Flower, chosen by 68%; the Silver Thatch Palm for the National Tree, chosen by 75%; and the Cayman Parrot for the National Bird, chosen by 75%.

In addition to the usually acceptable status and conditions endowed by legislation to National symbols, and in the interest of ensuring a genuine cultural identity, a further condition should be that if members of the general public or other legal entities create and use images of the National Flower, Tree, and Bird for whatever purposes, the flora and fauna should be depicted true to their natural likeness.

To promote awareness and appreciation, the following special events and programmes are to be initiated: A Visual Arts Show and Contest with a formal presentation by Government as part of our country's observation of Earth Day International 1996; a Philatelic (Stamp) issued at sometime in the future; the Development of Education kits for schools and youth camps; and the Production of Promotional materials for schools, the general public and Department of Tourism. It is my hope that Members of this Honourable House, other leaders of this country, and the general public will endorse these representatives of our Caymanian flora and fauna as National Symbols and be the first to embrace another part of our Caymanian heritage.

The Speaker: At this time proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED 11.23 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.50 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The suspension of Standing Orders is down to be moved by the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14(2)

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the suspension of Standing Order 14(2), so that Private Members' Motions may continue.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 14(2) be suspended in order to allow debate on Private Member's Motion No. 2/96 to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Orders are accordingly suspended.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 14(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 2/96—Dredging in the North Sound. The Third Elected Member for George Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/96 DREDGING IN THE NORTH SOUND

(Debate continues thereon)

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I rise to make my contribution to Private Member's Motion No. 2/96, regarding dredging in the North Sound.

As this is an election year, it is no surprise that a hot issue will arise. In December someone who strongly opposes this Government mentioned that the National Team Government had given permission for dredging the Sand Bar and Stingray City. Of course I was unaware of this, but knowing how this individual opposes the National Team I immediately contacted my colleagues in Executive Council.

This is the type of propaganda that Opposition will spread because the public knows that the present Government (the National Team Government) is very sensitive to the environment and that it would in no way allow dredging to take place which would destroy Stingray City and the Sand Bar.

Eventually it came out that an application had been made to do a channel, and, again, this was wrong. I signed a letter along with other Members of the Team (which was published in the newspaper) stating that we had not received an application for a channel of a certain size and width and depth, and so forth, as was circulated on the marl road. I will admit that the Government did not handle this issue in the right manner and a statement should have been made sooner. However, we are not perfect. We dealt with it as quickly as we could.

The application that I signed the letter about stated that the dredging would be from Omega Bay Gardens down to Crystal Harbour and it would be for "X" amount of cubic yards of marl, and it would also clean up the existing depth created by the various dredging. When we heard of dredging in previous years being carried out along the coastline of the North Sound, there was a lot of public outcry against it. I remember when the dredging was taking place in Snug Harbour, the public was upset that it was being dredged—that trees were being destroyed, we would have no rain in that area.

Today, I know of one house lot selling in that area for over $70,000. People do not like change, but when it comes to the environment I can understand people being concerned. Permission was granted, and the letter from the Permanent Secretary was laid on the Table of this Honourable House stating that "in principle" it was granted. I have spoken to lawyers, and they say that this is not binding. However, if Government had not looked at the proposal from the private individuals who applied for the dredging licence that would have been another story.

I have heard the public speaking of previous Governments that would not even listen or look at proposals from private individuals regarding certain businesses or land being developed. It is a year since we have been looking at the Harquail bypass and other alternate roads in and out of the Capital. It would have been another story if Government had not considered them. Like I said, the Government is sensitive to this area and when they responded, the Permanent Secretary for the Ministry stated that it would be given "in principle", provided they did an impact study. If they would like to dredge then it is their responsibility to pay for this impact study.

I think the Government stated that they would have to do the impact study with the approval of the Natural Resources Department and then come back where they would take a look at it. At least this is how "in principle" was explained to me, and this is what is stated in the letter. That is how I understood it.

This Motion before us asks that "Government halt all dredging or proposed dredging until a study has been presented to the people of the Islands and the Legislative Assembly for consideration and debate." Again, the Governor and the Government are one step ahead of the Opposition. In the Throne Speech the Governor said that there would be no more dredging in the North Sound except for the two licences which were already granted back in 1988 and 1992, I believe were the dates. We must be very sensitive to development and our environment and if the Governor and the Government in Council believe after getting feedback from the public that this is what is best for the North Sound, then we have responded.

I believe a lot of representation from the people of the islands regarding dredging in the last several months has been heard, and it has already been taken into consideration. Until that study is done by those individuals, then the dredging will not take place. I am not sure where marl will come from if we are looking at building roads and maintaining our present roads. I am sure there must be acres of land in the interior which can be mined to secure marl, and I am sure that some developer will come along with this proposal as well.

Some amount of mining for marl has to take place if we are to continue with our national road plan, especially since it was outlined this morning that the Public Works Department is working on it. Certain members of the public have even said that we should import marl and it can be done for "X" amount of dollars and sold even cheaper than what we are presently paying. I am not sure of this, but the normal procedure will take place when the Government is bidding for marl for the building of roads (putting it out to tender), and I am sure the best and lowest possible price will be looked at by the Government.

No study has been done on the North Sound since 1975, which is quite a long time. I believe the Government was wise to put the onus on the private individuals who applied for this licence to dredge to have to come back with their own impact study. That way it will not be an expense to the Government and the study will be done. It would then be approved by the Government department responsible for the environment. I believe at this time that is sufficient. I agree that no further dredging should be done simply from the number of telephone calls and conversations I have had with the people whom I represent.

Therefore, the Government (as declared by the Governor in his Throne Speech) will do no further dredging. I am satisfied that this will take place. I cannot support this Motion because it is already being dealt with. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Government's position as set out in the Throne Speech (that there will be no further dredging in the North Sound other than the commitments for areas that licences had been granted back in 1988) is very clear. There can be no doubt about that at this stage. However, there are some areas that need to be dealt with and looked at, and some representations that have been made which I think need to be clarified.

The position in relation to marl and dredging in the islands was read from the Wickstead Report in considerable depth by the Fourth Elected Member from George Town. But there were certain sections he failed to read which obviously do not support the position that he and the Opposition had taken at one stage.

The report has set out several recommendations, and in Section B, Part IV, which is headed "B 4.5 Recommendations for Dredging Operations. It says: "Dredging to be limited to the southern fringe of Sound with the following boundaries [and it sets out grids]. Approximate estimated yield from this area is 12 million cubic meters of marl fill." So there was, in 1976, an estimation of some 12 million cubic meters of marl fill. In the second paragraph it says: "Five meters [which I understand is 15 feet] to be the maximum depth below sea level to which dredging may go in, in either the Sound or Black Mangrove region."

So with all of the cautions that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town set out, he failed to say that there had actually been recommendations for dredging of substantial fill. I know that he was a member of the Planning Authority from 1985 to 1991, so he would be aware of this report and he obviously approved all of the substantial dredging such as SafeHaven and the early Caymarl dredging in relation to the land itself. What I am trying to do here is to show that despite the cautions set out in the Wickstead Report, there was in fact a recommendation to dredge down to 15 feet and mine some 12 million cubic meters of marl.

There are other areas which are interesting, and I am only dealing with that because it was dealt with before in depth. The report deals in with sand, it deals with operations that were dealing with canals, and it seems that in many parts of the report it has taken (while looking at the environmental aspects and weighing them carefully) into account the fact that development in any country needs to go on.

One of the areas mentioned (and I am getting this Report photocopied so that I can have the opportunity to look at it in depth) related to the recommendations on canals, access channel, and borrow pits (section B (7)(vi)). It says: "Residential canals can be biologically productive, recreationally valuable, and assets to housing developments." It goes on to set out different things relating to it. It is all in meters. I understand it was done under the metric system which was coming in then. I am reminded by my colleague who is responsible for this matter, that of all the permits granted by Governments in the past—not by us—and the Planning Authority in the early days when that was involved, did not even go near what was recommended at that time.

One of the things that also worries me is that with the increased number of power boats in the North Sound there is a very marked increase in turbidity. It is interesting that in the course of any one day, perhaps 30 to 40 large propeller-driven boats (the sail boats do not affect the North Sound) crossing it from all different angles create very considerable amounts of silt. In places like Florida, that turbidity is reduced by having properly marked channels in which boats would remain, rather than going into the shallow areas.

But it is interesting that the Wickstead Report, on page R.10 (which is headed R.4 North Sound as an amenity centre), says: "An aspect to this which is very important to stress is that I am thinking specifically in terms of wind-powered boats with perhaps a small auxiliary for emergencies and not power boats that are solely propeller driven. The general shallowness of North Sound (and the importance of the surface stability at the bottom has been noted in previous reports), does not require a very large or very powerful boat to disturb the bottom with its propeller." I fully support this.

Let me state again that I fully support Government's decision to stop the dredging. But what is being said here is that with the increase in power boats—the dive boats, boats carrying a lot of people—we are getting increased turbidity in the Sound which is also bad. One way of reducing that is to keep them within a specific path so that each boat's propeller would be churning up mud or silt only in the one area. I am not a specialist in this area, but I did find that quite interesting.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town has obviously been into this in great depth since 1985, perhaps, when he was on the Central Planning Authority. Those were the days when these very large projects were dealt with in depth. I do not profess to know the report as good as the Honourable Member does, but what I will do is get a copy of this and look at other aspects. I support what the Member has said in areas where caution has to be exercised. When there is an application for dredging the procedure normally follows the fact that there is a Coastal Works application that has to be sent to the Ministry and it requires approval because it relates to coastal works.

Once that is returned a report is required. Let me just state this: Any application to Executive Council must go to Executive Council. We need to make that clear. If somebody makes an application to Council, then it has to go to Executive Council. Letters come in all the time regarding all range of matters and they go to Executive Council where the request should rightly go. After the initial request then an environmental impact study is carried out by the Department of Environment. After that, a report would come to the Ministry along with the Department of Environment's comment on it along with their recommendations and/or conditions.

A formal application comes to Executive Council and it is at that stage that the matter is dealt with. Much has been made of a letter dated the 11th of September, 1995, signed by Mr. Kearney Gomez as Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. It was interesting to see that when the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman read the second paragraph, he looked somewhat amazed.

The reason for that amazement is because it does not support what has been consistently said publicly by the Opposition, and in many instances by their violent supporters who have been trying to push this issue.

POINT OF ORDER

(False allegations)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Yes, Second Elected Member, may I hear the point of order?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Minister for Education has just spoken about the violent supporters of the Opposition. I know nothing about any "violent supporters". I would assume that only violent supporters would support him. I ask that he not make such allegations.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I believe what I said was that... I did not impute that the violent supporters are that Member's. By no means. I was talking about supporters generally, outside, who opposed or who were in opposition to dredging.

The Speaker: You have made that quite clear, I will accept that.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Sure! I would never make that representation because I know they were not his.

The Speaker: Please continue, then.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: So I would go on, Madam Speaker.

It says: "I am directed by His Excellency the Governor to advise that approval in principle has been granted in respects to your North Sound Proposal dated 12th July, 1995, which would serve to link all canal developments between Batabano and Omega Bay as well as the Main Channel. Please be advised, however, that approval for the issuance of a coastal works licence to dredge the six million cubic yards of material, is reserved at this time...", This is very important: "is reserved at this time."

I go on: "...following the outcome of a full technical review of the application including an Environmental Impact Assessment by a firm approved by Government and at the expense of the applicant."

This letter does not legally bind the Government to issue any licence. It is a letter that obviously came to Executive Council upon which decision was reserved. So it is untrue for the opposition to dredging (I am talking about opposition to dredging, not Opposition in this House when I speak that way) including the violent part of that opposition to try to say that Government is obligated under this letter to issue any licence.

The decision is reserved, it says; "Please be advised that approval for the issuance of a coastal works licence to dredge the six million cubic yards of material, is reserved at this time...", and it goes on, "...following the outcome of a technical review of the application including an Environmental Impact Assessment by a firm approved by Government and at the expense of the applicant."

So this letter puts it beyond a doubt that all Government did, regardless of any confusion of what is "ap- proval in principle"... because in different aspects and different types of transactions "approval in principle" carries a different meaning. But you have to look at the peculiar aspect of the case, in this case it was clear that the approval was reserved. It would then have followed the process that I outlined earlier; an application in depth would have to be made on a specific form to the Department of Environment (as filed with the Ministry, I think) and that would trigger an environmental impact study which the Government would direct, but which would be paid for by the applicant. Why should Government pay for a study for that specific application?

After that is done the Department of Environment does an assessment and then a detailed application comes up to Executive Council. This is the way it has always followed during our time. Knowing the period of time these studies take, and the period of time that the Department of Environment takes to look at matter this complex, it is nothing that would have happened within the next nine months to a year, or thereabouts.

So I hope that puts to rest any question that all we did was look at an application that came in and say to them, follow the process and at the end of that we reserve our decision and will make it at that time. That is why it was very simple for Government to take the position it took. We are obligated under the 1988 dredging agreement, and obviously we cannot stop that, otherwise we would be subject to damages because that is legally binding. But we have nothing binding with these applications.

I stress again that when people write or make application to Executive Council, we have to look at all sorts of letters. What I cannot do, and what would be wrong, is if an application came to me that should have gone to Executive Council, for example, for me to stop it and say it cannot go to Executive Council... constitutionally I cannot do that. So a lot of these different letters come up and they range from anything between things such as asking the Governor to exercise the prerogative of mercy for someone in prison, through to all sorts of requests perhaps relating to specific types of businesses, etcetera.

From there I would like to go on to deal with areas raised by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The licences for the vast amount of dredging, in fact, the 4.1 million cubic yards authorised to be dredged in the North Sound, were granted by previous Governments. So the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, when he purportedly swipes at the Government, is only hitting people like Mr. Ezzard Miller and Mr. Linford Pierson who were the Executive Council Members during part of the time, and the earlier Executive Council Members who dealt with dredging. SafeHaven was issued—and I am taking this from the Auditor General's Report—in June of 1988; the North Sound Marl Pit, October 1988; and Crystal Harbour was in November 1992. They totalled 4.1 million cubic yards.

So the attempt to put this problem of dredging on the back of this Government simply does not exist. What we have dealt with has really been peanuts, and only dealt with borrow areas within borrow areas which existed there and to small amounts that were dealt with. Nothing is in the area that could even reach a million cubic yards. This whole thing is aimed at hurting Mr. Ezzard Miller and Mr. Linford Pierson who people are now politically linked with.

They need to remember that this is not our problem. We have given no decision under that letter they have tried to smear us with. I am reminded that one of the largest areas of erosion in the island is at North Side. I have seen pictures here for a channel that Mr. Ezzard Miller had dredged in that area which has caused serious erosion. So we are not the people to blame for this.

I have two young children. I enjoy going to the Sand Bar and I take them there as much as anyone else. I would be one of the last persons to touch or do anything to hurt the environment of Cayman. Some development must go on, but it must be carefully monitored, carefully controlled. When you look at how some of these dredging matters came about it will perhaps lead to a bit of the history as to why these large amounts were approved then. On page 31 of the Auditor General's Report it states: "File for SafeHaven was archived and was not made available to the Audit Office." Where is the file?

In relation to that project, the 1992 Public Accounts Committee's Report stated that, "In these circumstances the Committee was surprised to note that negotiations with SafeHaven's representatives were concluded within a period of two hours." That related to the extension of the lease in the dredged area by Mr. Linford Pierson who, himself, apparently carried out the negotiations. I will come back to that at a later stage under the Throne Speech.

A lot is left to be desired in relation to the operations in the past. We have to remember that many times, along with the granting of the dredging, the Central Planning Authority allowed very extensive canalling in 1988, and thereabouts, in the mangrove areas. There must be progress. I am not being totally critical, but I am pointing out that if the Opposition and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town want someone to criticise, then they must criticise their colleagues who are now linked with them who were in Government at the time. I think we find that there has been a lot more caution exercised in recent years in relation to all types of dredging operations.

There have been small ones done by some of the critics in fact, as the Minister for Lands and Survey pointed out. Even within areas where you cannot even drop an anchor (environmental zones) docks have been put out. To go on as the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman did, talking about gambling on islands and all of this, is total illusion. It is nearly like trying to create nightmares. There has never been any application to us for gambling or for an island or anything else.

So I would say that that Honourable Member must be drawing this from the days when his colleague was in Government, as I understand when they were getting ready to put down a massive operation for cruise ships or transshipment or whatever.

POINT OF ORDER (False implication)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Yes, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, may I hear the point of order please?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I have never had any colleague that I know anything about who has received any application for gambling, ever! I do not know what the Minister is talking about. It is absolutely unfounded.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, can you...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, he raised this question about gambling and islands. I said I knew nothing about it and he must have heard it from his colleague. Where did he get it from? Or did he just make it up? I find this very funny. He raised an issue which I am entitled to comment on.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, what the Minister said was that "my colleague in the past had received applications for gambling." I have no colleague that I know anything about who received any applications for gambling.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I would ask that whatever is said, please be specific rather than saying something that might give rise to an implication which you may not have intended.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It just goes to show that when one makes wild assertions, they can sometimes come back to haunt one. I will get off gambling now, but I think both the Opposition and we ourselves know that no applications have been made to us, and I do not know why this was introduced trying to impute that applications for gambling had been made.

The Speaker: In any case, Honourable Minister, please do not talk anymore about gambling. Thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Ma'am. I am very happy to keep away from that. There are other areas that were approved, as I mentioned, under the previous Government such as this channel at North Side for Mr. Ezzard Miller when he was in here, which has caused a lot of erosion.

Another one that has been pointed out is that they approved a fair amount of brine from CUC's water plant going into the North Sound. Somehow the Opposition has forgotten about these things because they are now politically in bed with some of the people who made these decisions.

One of the areas that perhaps needs to be discussed is that, from what I can see, marl is in serious shortage at this time. Marl either has to be taken from the seabed, in which case it is marl that the Government owns and can probably get at, say, $4.00 per cubic yard, or at least (according to the Auditor General's Report) $3.50 if it is done through draglines or $4.00 if it is done through the hydraulic dredge.

If Government is to build roads, it is going to need a very substantial amount of this, say, perhaps 300,000 cubic yards or 400,000. The cost of marl now as I understand it ranges between $13 to $14 per cubic yard when you can find it. So the cost of building roads is going to be considerably more (looking at it from an economic point of view) if we have to buy marl, as against using marl that is being dug from the Crown's property. I believe that no matter how we go, whether the marl is dug from the land (which it will now have to be, I guess) or whether it is taken from the sea, development will have to come from somewhere. Someone came up with a view of bringing in marl from some of the other islands.

This, I have been told from a professional point of view, has very many serious implications: 1) The risk of disease when you bring in large amounts of soil from abroad, diseases such as the hoof-and-mouth (I do not know what is referred to there) but obviously diseases which can affect animals; 2) the possibility of poisonous snakes, that especially was pointed out to be quite a risk; 3) insects, many of them unknown here.

We know we do not need any more of them with our present mosquito problem which is well under control but which still exists. There is also the question as to where you would unload all of this and stockpile it. Obviously, you would have to quarry some channel somewhere to get it off because you could not unload all of it in the middle of Town. 4) I guess the cost of this would be horrendous. So I think that is fairly well ruled out.

I do not think that we need to run the risk of bringing in the Aedes Aegypti mosquito or bringing in poisonous snakes or anything of that sort. So it is left, in reality, to the fact that marl in this country must either come from the land or the sea. If we have to build substantial roads (and we are now faced with the Harquail bypass and the Crewe Road bypass) then it must come from somewhere. Where that will be, I do not know. I have taken the decision with Executive Council (and it seems the popular view) that there should be no new dredging licences. I think there is a limitation of one hundred and something thousand on one, and six or seven hundred on the other.

I pose that question just to say that there are always other further implications of any act that is done. I would also like to stress that these days decisions relating purely to dredging are made through the Executive Council and not through the Central Planning Authority, except where it is part of an overall project such as SafeHaven and the marl pit that did go to the Central Planning Authority in 1988 or thereabouts. It would still happen that if the application related to both land and sea, then the land part would be dealt with by the CPA and the sea part by the Executive Council.

After looking at the situation here and weighing it as a whole, this Motion actually falls away at this stage because Government has stopped (should not say stopped), has not granted, and has never granted these large dredging licences as alleged. All that we are now doing is honouring the small amount that remains within borrowed areas which were originally approved many years ago. I have nothing against carrying out an environmental impact study, I think that would be good. It obviously will cost a lot of money, and if, as the Motion recommends, Government is going to pay for it, then I think the Member needs to further tell the public how much that is going to be. Normally, when applications for studies are put in, the private applicant pays for it so that Government does not end up paying for it.

I would not want to get into the business of Government selling marl. I think the days when the Communists ran all of the business in the country (the Socialists)... that is the way they did things. In this instance, for example, they would dredge up marl, not let anyone else sell it, and sell it to the private sector. Well, this is a Democratic Government and I believe that the less Government interferes in the private side... in fact, the more the private sector can do, the better off the people of this country will be. Normally the private sector does it in a more economical way than Government does.

So I would be very much against what this Motion refers to here—taking a socialist position, saying 'no more dredging, Government is the sole provider of marl in the country', and then selling it to the private sector under a monopolistic situation. The countries in the Caribbean which took the socialist approach in the past are now no longer in existence. They have been destroyed by this approach. Beyond that, I have no problem with what the Motion says about the Environmental Impact Study. I would prefer that Government not have to pay for it, I do not see why we should. The other areas that relate to getting marl for public development, for the roads and that sort of thing, I would be for.

But this Motion, as I said, falls away because, in fact, Government has already stated that it will be granting no further dredging rights. I think the Motion itself is political and ill-founded and, like all motions of that sort, it will fail.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.40 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 2/96. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Being the seconder of this Motion it could quite naturally be expected that I would have some comments on it. By way of clarification, let me put to rest any frivolity suggesting that this Motion was brought here merely to seek political mileage or to create political mischief.

The Motion has its merits in the realisation that we as the elected representatives of the people have a serious duty to manage and hold in trust the resources of this country for future generations. In so doing, it is our responsibility to ensure that these resources are not extravagantly or recklessly disposed of. If that were the case, then when the time comes for us to give account of our stewardship, history will not be too kind to us.

More importantly, those persons who will have quite rightly expected us to manage the resources prudently will have been sorely disappointed and the country and future generations will be worse off. We can learn from the experiences of other countries and, if we are prudent, avoid many of the pitfalls which they fell into because they had no previous experience to base their actions on. Certainly, in the matter of dredging there are great lessons we can learn from our neighbours to the north, especially Florida, which bear many physical, environmental and economic positions to us here in the Cayman Islands.

From my understanding this kind of development started in Florida perhaps in the early years of this century, but the awareness came into being around the 1960s. I would like to quote briefly from a document entitled 'Dredging in the Florida Keys', a document published by the Harbor Branch Foundation. It is publication No. 33. Its editor is Mr. George M. Griffin.

In the introduction he states: "In the late 1960s and especially in the early 70s, the rate of development in the Florida Keys increased rapidly and undesirable effects began to be reported. The problems mentioned most often in newspaper and magazine accounts was a supposed relationship between excess siltation produced by dredging and the decline in health of the coral reefs which lie several miles offshore." This document is based on field research and ongoing monitoring of dredging in Florida.

The basis of this document was recommendations made for the monitoring and managing of these operations with a view toward controlling damage done to the marine environment.

I crave the indulgence of the House to read from page 49, "Recommendation 9", which runs from (a) to (e). "It is recommended that research into the technology of dredging and its potential effects continue. At present there is insufficient quantitative knowledge of at least five points: (a) the tolerance limits of organisms to increased sedimentation and turbidity; (b) the width of mangrove fringe and/or the laessia beds necessary to provide adequate natural suspended sediment traps (that is, natural water clarification); (c) the ultimate depositional site of the excess particles generated by the dredge; (d) the optimum methods of pro- viding oxygen-bearing water to the perimeter and other interior canal systems; (e) the size-distribution of the dredge effluent and the possible effects of changes from the natural size distribution on the respiration of some of the important organisms of the inshore area."

I want to say that I, like other speakers, do not set myself up to be an authority on dredging or on the effects of dredging. But what my colleague moving this Motion and I did, was to avail ourselves of information that we could use to sensibly put forward our views on this issue.

Let me clarify our emphasis: It is that an environmental impact study be done. It strikes one as being bad management to move from one extreme to the other; to grant approvals in principle to dredge six million cubic yards and fill, then, out of crisis management and when the heat is turned up, to say no more dredging. It may be that the environmental impact study will show that limited and controlled dredging can be effectively done. We do not know.

Without such an impact study we may never know. It is my understanding from the resource person with whom we spoke, who is a professional engineer and who is employed in this kind of work in Florida, is that the North Sound is the spawning ground and juvenile nursing area for much of the marine life found around the Cayman Islands.

We understand from our conversation that one of the concerns that we should have with dredging in the North Sound is that if the effluent and the silt dredged up in the North Sound were by any circumstance to find its way outside of the North Sound (where it is now contained) to any of the premier dive spots we have now, that we can kiss those dive sites good-bye.

It was suggested to us that we have to take into consideration the fact that we are sometimes struck by hurricanes which could disturb the silt and take it out through the channels of the North Sound area where it is presently and normally contained. That is a fear that we have to live with if any extensive dredging is carried on in the North Sound. It is also my belief that no one in their right mind would wish for this to happen. I say that because we need to take care. I will show later on in my contribution that in many jurisdictions dredging is taken so seriously that Government and authorities require the dredgers to put in place certain mechanisms. In many jurisdictions these are referred to as restoration and enhancement exercises.

I want to make the point that the dredgers' obligation is not limited to paying royalties for dredging up the amount that he or she has a license to dredge, but in many jurisdictions they have an obligation to restore the environment to as near its natural state as they possibly can. We were told by the engineer in Florida that in Florida a dredging developer is required to re-plant 10 square miles of seagrass for every square mile destroyed. So it is not an exercise taken lightly by the authorities and developers who apply for these licences.

We understand that before an operation is agreed upon certain baseline information has to be gathered. This information includes what is growing on the bottom, how the bottom communities are composed, what kinds of fish and marine plant life are there.

Secondly, an understanding of the coastline dynamics: whether there are any shallow bars, any ridges, inlets, bays; whether the subterranean structure is composed of soft silty material, or if it is hard rock. It is also necessary to know of the lateral movements of the sand; what interrupts the coastline drift, and the water circulation patterns. It was suggested that the North Sound would have to be studied as an ecological unit in itself. Certainly, Caymanians from all walks of life, but especially those familiar with the North Sound, realise and admit that the North Sound is the spawning ground and habitat, the juvenile nurturing ground of a variety of marine life in these islands—snapper, grunt, even sea turtle. It is a delicate area which has to be cherished.

It is also my understanding that there are three principles in dredging: the first is to avoid negative impact. We understand that it is totally impossible to avoid negative impact in dredging operations, so steps are taken to minimise this negative impact. We have evidence of some of those steps in the pictures which were circulated in the dredging operation at the Port of Miami by the establishment of silt screens which contain the silt within a certain area from which it can be effectively managed.

If one examines the picture carefully, one can see that it is impossible to screen all of the silt. There is a little white spot underneath one of the screens. It is totally impossible to capture all of this silt. What can be done limits the amount of silt which escapes. Comparatively speaking, if we examine the other picture we will see that the screens are wholly ineffective. The whole area is milky white. There are none. It is floating all over the sound. I do not know how long it has been there, I only know that it takes a matter of months to settle, if it settles completely at all.

The third principle in addition to minimising the impact is mitigating the impact. That means replanting seagrass and resetting disturbed reef by making artificial reefs. So the areas of reef and rock cut by the dredging operation are replaced by old wrecks, old cars or whatever, which give the coral an opportunity to reform and grow within the shortest possible time. We understand too that in this jurisdiction and this area of the world, the foremost authority on dredging and its effects (like in Florida and the Cayman Islands) is the Rosenstiel School of Marine and Atmospheric Science located at the University of Miami, called RSMAS for short. It is understood that at this school the most experienced and foremost scientist has a corpus of relevant and current knowledge on dredging and its effects in the area of Florida, which would have some relevance to our jurisdiction here in the Cayman Islands.

What we are talking about is not a frivolous exercise. It is not something which was brought to effect political mileage. By agreement with the Government we decided there would be no campaigning and no political one-upmanship in this session. We set the June sitting as the time when campaigning would begin. So what we are talking about here is a serious concern that we wish to draw to the Government's attention.

This leads me to mention that when we were researching material on this debate, through the offer of a good friend we perused the Worldwide Information Network, the Internet as it is commonly called. We found a very interesting and relevant case study of Cockburn Cement Ltd., in Western Australia. It is unfortunate that I did not duplicate this document, but let me say that it is a document which any Government could use as resource material. This document goes to great lengths not only about the disastrous effects of dredging, but also how significant ecological studies are set up. What is interesting is that it delves into great length about seagrass and, the importance of seagrass and its intrinsic biological value, not only to the marine life, but to us as human beings. It is no exaggeration to say that this material is an education in itself.

Perhaps its most important contribution is the fact that it spells out in intricate detail the requirements of the Ministry in Western Australia, as far as the obligation of the developer is concerned, with regard to restoration and enhancement. One significant difference (and I do not know how expensive these studies are because it gave no figures) is that this study is different from what we are requesting. I will explain why our request is the way it is in a moment. In this study the authorities in Western Australia required the developer to do this study.

However, the study was overseen by the authorities and the Government of Western Australia. Every step of the way (as far as the study was concerned) was monitored and communicated to the Government. I will not get into the ramifications of the importance of seagrass and all that. I will only say that it was a stringent requirement that the developer replace as much of this seagrass as could be successfully done, as it was realised that this was the strainer of silt and sedimentation as well as a haven for small and delicate marine life.

The reason why those of us concerned with the Motion requested that the Government bear responsibility is the fact that there is a well-known adage that says, 'He who pays the piper calls the tune.' If Government were to pay, then they would have almost absolute control on the exercise. Certainly, Government would have exclusivity to the material generated by the research and would not have to depend on the generosity of the paying entity to have a corpus of knowledge as to what was done. It is unfortunate that the National Team Government mishandled the situation to such an extent that this whole controversy emanated from a leaked document which gave approval in principle for the dredging of six million cubic yards.

It now turns out that that 'in principle' approval no longer exists. But the National Team Government has not said if that approval has been nullified, cancelled, postponed or otherwise negated. They only now say that there will be no more dredging in the North Sound except in these two instances. Certainly, if one takes as evidence letters to the Editor in recent issues of the Caymanian Compass, there is no doubt that this issue is indeed an emotional issue. As with all emotional issues, sometimes events get out of hand.

Let me say that the responsibility of the Mover and I as representatives of the people, is one which we hold sacred and take seriously. Our objection to the business of dredging in the North Sound is limited to statements that we have made and perhaps will continue to make from the political platform and from our position inside this Honourable House. I certainly had no knowledge of any violence associated with the effort against dredging until it was mentioned by the Minister who last spoke.

Although I must admit that I am not the most ardent follower of CITN, I am aware that the news carried some flash of a demonstration at a public meeting one night. Anyone who knows these Members, knows that we would distance ourselves from that kind of irrational and dangerous behaviour. While I will be the first to admit that we have our differences with the National Team Government, we have always maintained the civility and scrupulousness to air those differences in the hallowed chambers of this House where they should be aired. It might not be necessary, but I want to state for the record that we had no part in that. I cannot say who did it. I am not the police and I did not investigate.

I do not consider it my business. Indeed, I am prepared to continue along the route I am going. I will only add to that as a footnote, that it is not my style, has never been my style and at my ripe old age in this business I do not ever want that to become my style. The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works said in his speech that he had never come across so many professionals on dredging in the North Sound than he has over the past few weeks. While that may be so, I believe that the sudden outburst of professionals on dredging is as a result of the concern that people have over such a delicate issue.

I have said that in my opinion the whole furore could have been avoided if the National Team had taken a different tactic. I do not know, and I am not prepared to get into the semantics of what 'approval in principle' means, only to say that it would have been good if at the very initial instance there had been an admission, an explanation at that point as to what 'approval in principle' means. I disagree with the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works in this regard. I disagree vehemently.

It is right, it is reasonable to expect that people are going to talk about the detriment to the North Sound under these circumstances and conditions. We talk about turbidity, salinity and effluent sedimentation. True, but we do not know to what extent there has already been irreparable damage done to the marine life in the North Sound. Certainly, if we are to believe the professionals and the experts, we must be concerned about siltation and floating sediment. If we agree that this is an environmentally safe zone, then we have to be even more concerned. There is almost a compulsory obligation for us to arrive at some point where we understand the implications of what further dredging on any scale in this area will do. I want to make a point.

The economic development of the Cayman Islands, as I understand it, is based in a large part on this kind of development. That is the reason I say that it might not be the best strategy to withdraw completely in our shell and say no more dredging—period. The best strategy might be—as the Motion quite rightly seeks—for us to have some study so that we can be aware of the effects. Can we dredge on a limited scale? Can we dredge on a larger scale? What are some of the things that we have to provide? What are some of the implications with which we are faced? I am also suggesting that this will tell us what the obligation of the developers should be. The time might well be that we start some kind of restoration and enhancement unit and that, if not in place already, the Government investigate the possibility of starting an environmental resource management unit which can be their source of consultation and the Government's arm in ensuring that these kinds of operations restore a part of the disturbed area to as close as its natural position as possible. It is mind-boggling to think that six million cubic yards of marl at $10 per cubic yards would fetch $60 million.

So I think that a developer has some obligation even beyond ensuring that silt and sedimentation do not detrimentally affect the North Sound; that they would have some obligation to restore the disturbed area as close as possible to its natural state. Sixty million dollars is not a paltry sum. We must learn from what is happening in Florida and Western Australia and other jurisdictions and require developers to do some restoration and enhancement to disturbed areas.

The Minister for Education likes to remind us about the past. In many instances this is good because unless we have a knowledge of the past we will not do very well in the future. But I want to say that I do not feel that it is my obligation, and I am not so generous with my penitence to take it upon myself to apologise for any mistakes or travesties made by the past Government. I had no brothers in that cabinet. If they made mistakes, they must bear the consequences. I have no association with the Minister who was at that time responsible for granting leases. I do not feel compelled to bear any responsibility that he should bear. If there is any flogging to take for any travesty, he must take the flogging himself—he will not be getting any help from Roy Bodden.

The remark was made by the Minister for Education and Planning that the Government was going to need some 300 to 4,000 cubic yards of marl for its road work and other works. The question was posed as to where it was going to come from if not from the dredging operation. It is interesting to learn that one of the questions posed to the person with whom we spoke was: What about onshore mining of marl? Comparatively speaking, how does that fit in with dredging in the sea?

The answer came unequivocally that it is by far the lesser evil. In fact, the engineer told us that in many developments in Florida, that is the route that people are taking now because with in-shore mining, developers can get more lake front lots than they can with onshore, particularly in a limited area.

Also, it was brought to our attention that the effluent and run-off is routed back into these reservoirs and lakes which are left after in-shore mining. In the final analysis, the engineer said that the developers have the option of turning these lakes into breeding aquariums and fresh water reservoirs for fish like tilapia and shrimp which can be grown on a commercial scale.

I say that to say that in a subsequent sitting, the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works answered me to the extent that this type of mining had been discontinued by the Government in the Cayman Islands. It is my understanding that we have a few people who would be interested in applying for approval to do some onshore mining of marl. I would like to see some kind of assessment made as to how effective this would be in meeting the needs that we presently have for marl, even some kind of assessment as to the detrimental effect, other than what is talked about: the unsightly business of these open water lots. As a matter of fact, if we follow the development of road building and acquiring of fill in this country, we got much of it in the early stages from just this type of work—backhoe and dragline digging.

I understand that recently there has been another approval in principle by the developer of the Heron Harbour site for 225,000 cubic yards to be dredged under channel maintenance. I say that to underscore a point: We need to arrive at some position as to how much dredging can be done. I do not believe that we can continue developing a certain way with no dredging at all. Consequently, the Motion has merit.

POINT OF ORDER

(Misleading)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, if I may just take a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Minister?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Honourable Member has said that approval has been given for Heron Harbour to dredge some 225,000 yards. To my knowledge that has not come from the Government, so if he is imputing that we have approved dredging there, that is a totally incorrect statement. He may have an explanation for it, however.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden I am not imputing that it came from the Government. I am saying that it is my understanding. Just like the Government said at the beginning that they had no knowledge of the six million cubic yard approval in principle, I do not expect anything other than that. I made no accusation of the Government. If I were accusing them I would have said that they gave permission. I did not say that they gave any permission, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you. It is not a valid point of order. Please continue.

Mr. Roy Bodden I argue that this Motion is relevant and timely, and that if we in this country are to follow a sensible development path we need to arrive at a point—by virtue of an environmental impact study—where we know exactly what we can and cannot do in the North Sound. I also say that I am of the firm opinion that there is scope for some onshore mining of marl. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I rise to give my contribution on Private Member's Motion No. 2/96, entitled Dredging in the North Sound.

First of all, let me say that I welcomed Government's announcement through the Throne Speech that no approval would be given in the future (that is, between now and November 1996) for any dredging in the North Sound. I think that is very wise and something that the people as a whole welcome. The issue of dredging was one that was addressed extensively in the Auditor General's report of the past year, and one that also comprised a large portion of our Public Accounts Committee report. I continue to support the position that the PAC took on this issue and their recommendations.

For the benefit of the House, I would just like to state those again. On page 9 of the PAC report, it says: "The Committee recommends the following: (a) There should be a thorough independent review of all aspects of marl dredging. (b) There is need for comprehensive legislation to regulate dredging activities. This legislation should be developed following the independent review suggested above and should incorporate dredging guidelines. (c) The existing Marine Conservation Laws should be extended to encompass dredging. The Department of Environment should be given statutory backing for its role of protecting the marine environment."

I continue to hold that view. The issue of dredging is a very sensitive one here in the Cayman Islands, one that people feel very strongly about. Rightfully so. I believe that the time has come for Government to take a very serious look at the feasibility of any future dredging. I know we continue to need marl for construction purposes, and there is always a need for limited dredging for future development.

But I honestly feel very strongly about this, and for that reason I have no problem with the first resolve in this Motion which says: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government consider commissioning an environmental impact study by recognised experts in the field, to be paid for by Government..." I believe that the Government has to arrive at a policy position with regard to dredging.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: We cannot be in a position where these feasibility studies are only done when an application comes before Executive Council for approval.

These are my views. These are not the views of the National Team or the Opposition. These are my personal views on this issue. I see no reason why Government should not pay for these studies. Government has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on less important issues such as bringing in consultants. I believe that because so much depends on protecting our marine environment that this would be money well spent.

Let me also add that I was a bit surprised to learn that Government had even granted approval in principle for dredging in the North Sound of the magnitude that I later learned was involved. I was personally very disappointed. Prior to becoming a representative of the people, I worked in Government in the Banking Department. One of the responsibilities I had was to review applications for banking licences.

The process called for a recommendation to Executive Council (if everything was in order) saying grant approval in principle—subject to certain outstanding details being submitted subsequently. Once those outstanding requirements were submitted, the licence was automatically granted. If Government is saying that is not the case in this instance, then that has to be clarified. I honestly believe that this issue has gone so far and so deep that Government now needs to look at the situation and say that it is not only Executive Council that has the authority to approve applications for dredging in the future, but I would go as far as to say that those applications then should come to this House for ratification.

Mr. Roy Bodden Hear, hear!

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: As a Member of this House who does not sit on Executive Council as a Minister, to be held responsible for actions that I do not necessarily agree with I think is totally wrong.

As a representative of the people I must be in a position to have some influence in what I believe is right from what is wrong as it affects my people in this country.

To my knowledge the last study that we have on the impact of dredging is the 1972 or 1976 Wickstead Report. That is a long time ago—20 years ago. One of the things we depend on in this country, which is so important to tourism, is our marine environment. As a result of our marine environment the Cayman Islands is one of the premier dive destinations in the world. We have to be very careful to ensure that that position is protected. I was concerned when they put in place the Marine Protection Laws, from the standpoint of the local fishermen. But that decision at the time was a very wise one, because we see the results of that legislation today.

The other thing which concerns me with regard to dredging (and I am not talking about this Government here, I am talking about Governments of the past) is there seemed to be a position where they granted approval for dredging and there was little or no follow up to ensure that the developer was doing what he was supposed to do with regard to the conditions under which that approval was granted with regard to collecting royalties that were due.

I am also very concerned from the standpoint that I do not believe that Government has the ability at hand to measure what is extracted. In other words, they are in a position where they have to depend on the honesty of the developer. If he says he dredged 100,000 cubic yards of marl, then that is what he pays.

Government has to have the ability to monitor these operations and ensure that they comply with the conditions under which that approval is granted. I remember when I was campaigning in 1988 to become a representative of the people, the SafeHaven project was a very controversial thing. I remember on a number of occasions going into that area to watch the effect of that dredging operation on the waters in that area. Depending on where the wind was coming from at the time, there were trails of silt extending for hundreds and hundreds of yards into the North Sound—even though the dredging was done very close to shore.

The North Sound today has become a sanctuary for so much of the marine life that live in our waters. There are so many of our Caymanian people who depend on the North Sound for their livelihood, especially from my district of West Bay, that I do not believe any future dredging should be approved in this area before an extensive environmental impact study has been completed. My other concern is that there is a group of wealthy individuals coming into this country. I get the impression (from what I have heard about them) that they believe everything in this country is for sale...

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: ...including our future. Some of them do not have any concern or interest whatsoever with regard to the results of any damage caused by any activity. Their only concern is the financial benefit they gain from that activity.

The Cayman Islands has always prided itself on being an environment of integrity, and I believe that we have to ensure that that environment continues in this country. I recall that when I was acting as Inspector of Banks for Government, there was a gentleman who came to see me one day with regard to a banking licence application. I asked him why he chose the Cayman Islands rather than going to the Bahamas or Panama or some of the other jurisdictions that offer these services. He told me that it was plain and simple: He could go to the Bahamas and get a banking licence, but it would cost him $10,000. If he got a banking licence in the Cayman Islands, he knew it was based on merit. That is of the utmost importance—that the integrity of our jurisdiction is maintained. The other concern I have (and I am not saying that Government is stooping to this kind of thing) is that there are some Caymanians who for financial gain will also sell their birthright.

All I am saying is that we who are representatives of the people have to ensure (and let us put aside what the First Elected Member for Bodden Town keeps referring to as adversarial politics when it comes to issues that affect the welfare of our people) that the issue of dredging, especially in the North Sound, be addressed and addressed on a bipartisan basis.

I believe that the decision with regard to dredging should extend beyond the life of this particular Parliament, that is, the one that ends in November 1996. We have to put a policy in place and all future Governments will have to be guided by those policies and decisions. For us to just leave this on a per government basis puts us in a position where we take an unnecessary amount of risk. I believe that this is an issue that has to be addressed. I believe that the present Government was very wise in making a decision not to entertain any future applications with regard to dredging in the North Sound, but I think it has to extend beyond that. We have to develop an overall policy with regard to dredging anywhere in this country.

As I said before, I support the recommendation that we commission an extensive study of the feasibility of dredging in the future and the impact it may have on our marine environment. Based on what I have said, I honestly cannot support the idea of Government securing the marl then being in a position where they farm it out to whomever needs it. On the other hand I feel it is important for us to be in a position that whatever applications we grant in the future are properly monitored and based on sound findings as a result of a feasibility study.

With regard to construction and development we will have to look at that issue in a very serious light. We might have to look at alternative materials. But we cannot afford to sell the future birthright of our children for a couple of dollars at present.

Some Hon. Members: [Applause] Hear, hear!

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson A. Tomlinson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It appears to me that the dredging issue is being blown out of proportion, not only outside of this House, but inside the House. Listening to the last speaker, I would have thought that Government had either given approval for dredging in the North Sound, or was about to. I think it is absolutely essential for the public to realise that no approval has been given for dredging in the North Sound.

That is the situation. As I understand it, a proposal was made to Government and Government looked at that proposal. One important part of the proposal was that an impact study would be done and paid for by the developers before anything would be done. It would be decided after the results of the impact study whether or not permission would be given for the dredging. As far as I am concerned, that would have been a very good thing to have.

This Motion talks about having an impact study and a feasibility study done to find out what the effect would be on the ecology in the North Sound and the marine environment. To have the developers pay for that impact study would have been the sensible thing to do. At the end of that, if it was quite clear that it was not a sensible thing to dredge in the North Sound, then they would not have gotten the approval.

I think that we missed a golden opportunity to have an impact study done. I, for one, realise how important the North Sound is to the country, that it is a sanctuary and it is very environmentally sensitive and certainly politically sensitive both inside and outside of the Legislative Assembly. What I would like all and sundry to understand is that no approval has been given.

The Government cannot help if people make proposals to it. I do believe that if the matter had been handled a bit differently by the Government that perhaps a lot of the backlash would not have occurred. For instance, I feel that it is appropriate to say that if the Minister responsible had dealt with the issue, and if he had been the spokesman for the issue, perhaps that would have been the wise way to go. There were hiccoughs in how this whole thing was dealt with, but that does not say that the whole thing is wrong and that Government is to be blamed because a proposal was made to them.

A proposal has been made. No approval has been given and we have missed an opportunity to have an impact study paid for.

At some time in the future an impact study will have to be done irrespective of who pays for it. Grand Cayman is a very flat country, there is a lot of swamp and we have a shortage of marl. Things have to be done. I, like the late Mr. Haig Bodden, feel that eventually a decision will have to be made—human beings have got to come before birds and fish. I feel that the Government does not deserve the lashing it is getting about dredging. There was perhaps a problem in how it was handled—a little too much or too little was said and so on. But no approval has been given and it is now time to move on with this thing. I think we should leave the dredging issue behind because I think we are beating a dead horse.

[applause by some Hon. Members]

The Speaker: If no one else wishes to speak, would the Mover like to exercise his right of reply?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

If there is one thing we must not do, it is put dredging behind us. We need to keep it very much in focus before us. Because the matter is of such vital importance to this country, those of us who believe that country is important, and it takes precedence over commercial ventures, we must stay focused on this question of dredging.

If one needs anything to show that approval for dredging has been given (let us forget for one moment the six million cubic yards) I would just like to read from page 20 of the Governor's Throne Speech where it says; "Executive Council has decided that there shall be no further dredging in the North Sound, except for an approval granted to Caymarl Ltd. to excavate the balance of material (784,100 cubic yards) that remained under a licence granted in 1988 for the dredging of 2 million yards of material from the burrow pit offshore the marl pit..."

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: By the last Government.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: "...just north of George Town Barcadere..."

Approval has been granted for 784,100 cubic yards. That interprets into money $7,841,000 at $10 per cubic yard. The Governor also goes on to say; "In addition, to further the final upgrading of the George Town Barcadere the Government will also consider an application from Simmons Enterprises for the excavation of 122,200 cubic yards which will complete the dredging of the basin at this location, to facilitate an increased amount of vessel traffic and usage."

That is the latest word we have on dredging by the Governor in his Throne Speech. So there are approvals in place. Caymarl stands to make $7,841,000. Taking the standard amount charged by Government, $.50 per cubic yard, the Government will only get $392,050 out of it. Simmons Enterprises will stand to get $1,222,000 and Government will only get $41,100.

So, there is a serious problem with regard to dredging in this country. I believe in stating that which I know to be so and that which I believe. I want to say this afternoon that I absolutely admire what the Third Elected Member had to say in his brief contribution to this debate on dredging. I believe it was absolutely factual. I do not believe that anyone can effectively argue what he has said. While I feel sure he will vote with the Government in the final analysis, I admire the fact that he realises his role in this House is one where he can speak his mind which he can factually prove.

After all, he is the Chairman of the PAC whose findings clearly state in the very first recommendation (and he is not by himself here there are five other people on that PAC who made the same recommendation which he enforced here this afternoon).

I would like to make that point where he is concerned on his contribution on this matter. About this dredging being political—it sure is! I have been surprised about the amount of concern expressed by the public on this matter of dredging. Obviously, school children are sufficiently aware and know what is happening. We have heard some of their essays and so on. Certainly, there are different societies here expressing concern about it and, overall, I am truly heartened to see that there is one issue affecting this country that people on a whole in this community are seriously concerned about. If the general public can be concerned, certainly those who the public have elected to represent them should surely be concerned.

Added to the latest amounts which the Governor spoke about in his Throne Speech, we also know that approval has been given to dredge six million cubic yards. That is contained in the 11th September, 1995, letter where it says, and I quote: "I am directed by His Excellency the Governor to advise that approval in principle has been granted in respect to your North Sound proposal dated 12th July, 1995, which would serve to link all canal developments between Batabano and Omega Bay as well as the Main Channel."

That is the concern of the people of this country.

Every one, including non-scientists and simple fishermen, worry that a 600 foot wide channel cut from the main channel will constantly cause the silt in the North Sound to boil up because it cannot settle and that it will make the situation there 100 percent worse than it is now. Without any dredging now, when a northwester or some strong wind blows, the whole North Sound turns into milk. It is not turning that colour because of the red dye that comes from the roots of the mangroves; it is turning that way from the silt that cannot and will not ever settle in the North Sound.

So there is need to be concerned—seriously concerned. Some Members of the Government have talked about handling the situation in a better way. I agree. First of all there needs to be honesty. That is fundamental and basic, but it eludes the present Government seriously. There needs to be in place an attitude by Government to tell the people the truth. There needs to be a consciousness that the people have the right to be told the truth. There needs to be a clear understanding that those persons who now posture to be all things unto all people are only directors for four years appointed by the people to do the people's business; that the shareholders meeting is called every four years to appoint new directors, therefore they are not given unlimited power to do as they chose and see fit to do.

These things are absent in this Government. When I was speaking, the Minister for Education jumped up to interrupt me, saying that the Planning Authority had nothing to do with approvals for dredging. I did not accept what he was saying because I knew better. I wish to quote what the Minister for Education said; "The Honourable Member is misleading the House, he knows that under the Constitution, dredging is dealt with only by the Executive Council not by the Central Planning Authority. That is a fact. He is misleading the House by saying that the Central Planning Authority deals with dredging. That is an impossibility." (Hansard 23rd February, 1996)

It is not an impossibility, it is incomprehensible that he does not know it—yet he is responsible for it. He had to get up here today and sing a different song, that when it deals with land usage and water usage that Planning comes into it. He had to change that tune completely.

I want to know if there is dredging going on anywhere and, if marl is being dredged out of the sound, where is it put? in the sky? Or is it put on land? Is it put in at Canal Point where he might think no special approval is given? If it is put on land who decides what is done on land if it is not the Planning Authority?

That might have changed too. I would not swear on that part of it. But Planning is involved in it. It has to be, and it would be fascinating to know where six million cubic yards of marl would be put in this island. We have not heard that. Someone just wants the right to dredge it and Government says, 'Sure, you can dredge it.' But where will they put it? Whose land will it fill? Which friends and cronies would benefit? The whole exercise of misleading the public and not telling the truth and informing the public runs real deep. In the 12th of January 1996 Caymanian Compass, the people of Cayman Watersports Association had met with Minister of Sports and Culture, the Hon. McKeever Bush, along with Tourism Minister, Hon. Thomas Jefferson. " ...20 members of the Cayman National Watersports Operators Association... met in an effort to dispel a number of marl road rumours [forgive the pun on the marl] that have circulated recently about dredging applications for the North Sound."

Several of these members said: "They were a bit surprised when the Ministers said they were unaware of a dredging application that has apparently been approved 'in principle' by Government."

One must weigh whether those Ministers knew or not. If they did not, then this country is in more trouble than we think. If something so big could have happened and they did not know; if they did not read their papers, if they were excluded from getting those papers, or if they forgot—this country is in more trouble than we think. They did not know that approval had been given for six million cubic yards which would equal (according to the paper) "...a channel 6.82 miles long by 300 feet wide by 15 feet deep." They did not know that approval had been given to extract that kind of marl from the North Sound.

(Mr. Roy Bodden: laughter)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I quote again from this where it says; "...the public has the right to come to the Ministry and inspect the plans,' Mr. Bush said. He said he had checked with the Ministry of Works earlier and "no such (formal) application has come to the government. He admitted, however, that he had not seen the letter granting approval in principle and was unaware of the approval."

Again I say that it is like the time of the former President of the United States and Watergate, when the buzz-word was that he was wrong if he knew what happened at Watergate and did not do what he was supposed to have done, and he was wrong if he did not know that such had happened.

This paper also says; "Mr. Bush pointed out to the members that the letter in question 'did not come from ExCo,' but the Permanent Secretary for the Ministry of Communications and Works."

Let me pause right there for a moment, Madam Speaker. Obviously, the elected Government does not want to take any responsibility for this approval; it had not come from ExCo, it came from the Permanent Secretary so the poor Permanent Secretary is getting it in the back of the head.

I would now like to quote what this particular Permanent Secretary's Minister said from the transcript of the 23rd February (last Friday). He obviously missed the point when I said that no Permanent Secretary in his right mind would ever write such a letter to anyone in the public saying they had approval to dredge if he had not received that from an unquestionable authority. This is what the Minister for dredging says: "I know that those who constantly talk about this matter are sensible people. No doubt they understand what approval in principle means. But it is constantly twisted to make it sound as if the Government has taken no steps to deal with dredging in the North Sound properly, it is made to look as if we allowed them to go there and take six million cubic yards of material. I even heard the last speaker say that no Principal Secretary in his right mind (I think he said) would go ahead and sign a letter on his own: yet, he turned around and read the same letter which began by saying; 'I am directed by His Excellency the Governor to advise that approval in principle has been granted.'"

Obviously, here the Minister has absolutely missed the point; totally and utterly missed the point because the point that I made which he did not understand was that the Principal Secretary (or the Permanent Secretary which he in fact is) wrote that letter only because there was approval in Executive Council and he could therefore proceed to write the person on behalf of the Governor—having been directed by the Governor.

On the one hand one Minister is saying that it was the Permanent Secretary who wrote the letter and they did not have anything to do with it, and, on the other hand, the Minister for Education was getting up telling me to remember one thing—that approval only comes from the Executive Council. That is the state of affairs in this country at this time. Five separate Governments when there should be five Ministers operating one Government. That is only one instance of glaring contradiction; contradiction which did not happen by accident, it was deliberate, because they called a public meeting to make these announcements, so it could not happen by accident.

If they did not know, they should have surely said, 'I am saying this, but I do not know what the real situation is', as they do so often when they answer questions in this House. They are the Ministers responsible for something and when we ask a question we hear, 'I am made to understand...'

Of course they are made to understand, but they do not have to make themselves understand when they are standing here in the Legislature, they are supposed to be able to speak from a point of fact from what they have been made to understand long before this. The newspaper also states in this article; "One CNWOA member questioned that even though the letter is only approval in principle and not formal approval, 'How is it possible for this letter to out without Executive Council knowing about it?'"

That is one of the things that this whole country is asking about and this is one of the instances when it is clear to everyone in this country that there was some deliberate attempt by Government to mislead the country into believing what has now become a known fact to all—the six million cubic yard dredging and on top of that the new dredging approvals in the North Sound to bring to the dredgers $7 million and $1.2 million respectively.

I wish to refer to some points raised by the Minister for Planning. There are a number of points that I think I need to reply to, but there is one that is absolutely alarming. I would like to speak to that first. If he is reading from a prayer book, this Minister (and I mean this most solemnly, seriously and in no way blasphemously) gets into this thing of Communists and Socialists. I wonder if that is a lingering pressing condition of his mind, or, as my good friend the First Elected Member for Bodden Town talks about the psychology of denial, where he is constantly denying this thing because it is so much a part of him that it has fused his mind. But he made one statement today which I think he ought to clarify for the House and the country at large, because maybe he has gone totally over to the other side—normally we look for equilibrium, but who knows. "I would not want to get into the business of Government selling marl. I think the days when the Communists ran all of the business in the country (the Socialists)... this is the way that they did things."

I was utterly astounded because this Minister is making an ultimate statement. I never knew that in the history of the Cayman Islands the Communists ran this country. If that is the case, I say he has a mission to go to the Governor this evening and tell him what he knows about Communists running the country.

He has a right to go to the Commissioner of Police to tell him what he knows about Communists running the country. Call on him to explain what such a radical (as he likes to talk about) Socialistic, Communistic statement is about.

He went on to fortify what he was saying about it in that he also said; "In this instance, for example, they would dredge up marl, not let anyone else sell it, and sell it to the private sector. Well, this is a democratic Government and I believe that the less Government interferes in the private side... in fact, the more the private sector can do, the better off the people of this country will be."

So he went on to fortify the statement that Communists have been running this country. I do not know who they are, but I will certainly say one thing: I know one person in this country who (in my opinion) could be the best Communist there ever was. With all the qualities of dictatorship, spitefulness, vindictiveness, wickedness—everything mixed up in one.

Mr. Roy Bodden True, true! Tell it, speak the truth!

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I know one.

The Minister for Education went to some length to say that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town failed to read certain sections from the Wickstead Report where it said that it was a possibility to dredge from the North Sound 12 million cubic meters of marl. While the Auditor General is says he has only found where 4-odd million has been taken, I daresay that is because of the fact that there had never, ever been an accurate measurement of the fill that has come out of the North Sound.

It could well be way over the amount of 12 million cubic meters of marl. That is why the Motion requests a scientific study, not just for a six million cubic yard project, but for the North Sound as a whole. As the Third Elected Member for West Bay said, we would know.

The simple matter of knowing. We would know what the national position is scientifically. We could therefore make national policy based on fact. It would become easy for anyone administering the matter of dredging henceforth and forevermore if there is to be more dredging in the North Sound. Certainly, I believe the Wickstead Report (and I have not had the opportunity to study it like the Fourth Elected Member for George Town has) gave serious warnings as to damage that would occur and which has occurred in the North Sound.

He gave warnings about dredging. I doubt very seriously, unless someone with a special knack at twisting what is said would find that the report said dredging is a good thing and that we should go ahead with all haste and dredge out that North Sound—dredge out 12 million cubic meters. In fact, I note that on the last comment of the Auditor General on this matter, on page 38, he says; "The Wickstead Report (1975) recommended that dredging should be followed by periods of recovery. The PCU and CWAC have consistently advocated minimum dredging periods in order to reduce environmental damage. I note that an early 1983 project was scheduled over five years and project B1 continued for approximately four years."

Project b(1) is North Sound marl pit. So the Wickstead Report did not fortify the position of dredging. In fact, it warned us about dangers of dredging. That was 20 years ago, as noted by various speakers. Twenty years, Madam Speaker, two decades. Anyone born in 1975 is past the age of responsibility by two years. We do not know what the situation since that is when at least a dozen more places have been filled in, mangrove swamp lost and major dredging in the North Sound.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, do you expect to finish shortly?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: No, Madam Speaker. There are a lot of things that I need to reply to and I have considerable notes prepared.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: Before I ask for the adjournment, I would like to say that an apology has been received from the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works for his absence this evening, and the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture asked to be excused shortly after 3.00 to attend a funeral. May I ask for the Motion for the adjournment?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM, Wednesday, 28th February, 1996.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 28TH FEBRUARY, 1996.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
28TH FEBRUARY, 1996
10.17 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the First Elected Member for Bodden Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. Roy Bodden: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, The Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Question No. 26, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO.26 ⁽²⁾

No. 26(2): Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what is the present status of the proposed George Town Hospital.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The first work undertaken on the site of the new hospital was the installation of a waste water treatment plant to replace the existing inadequate one. This plant has been functioning since last year.

The first major new building on the site, the materials management building, is nearing completion and will be turned over to the Health Services Department at the end of March. Tenders have been received for the main construction contract and these are presently being evaluated. It is expected that the contract will be awarded on Friday, 15th March, 1996, with construction beginning shortly after.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Would the Honourable Minister elaborate on the materials management building, which I assume is the large building to the south end of the present hospital compound? Just what is that size of a building to be used for?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As the House probably knows, we have been paying something in the order of $60,000 in rent over the years. This building will be used for storing all of the medicines and other supplies needed for the hospital.

It has also been designed with the serious catastrophic happenings in mind, so that we would also have space for casualties. This is one of the main reasons.

The plan was designed to take into consideration the development of the health services over the next 10 to 15 years.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In the substantive answer the Honourable Minister has said that tenders have been received for the main construction contract and that these are presently being evaluated. Does this mean that they have been received by the Public Tenders Committee, or is it the case that the Government Executive Council... who is evaluating the tenders?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: It is now with Central Tenders Committee who does the evaluations.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the answer to the question the Honourable Minister has said that the tenders received for the main construction contract are presently being evaluated. I think it is estimated that the completion cost for the new contract will be in the region of $22 million. For the Budget this year, I think we have just under $10 million. My questions are: With the main contract being awarded is it only to the tune of $10 million? Is it going to take place over a longer period, and where is the rest of the funding coming from?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The building will be phased over a period of two to three years. Funding will be provided as we go along which, as has been put forward, will be by loans and recurrent revenue.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Minister say that the main contract, when awarded, will be in line with that three year period, or will it be different contracts awarded over that period of time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: It will be one contract in order to save money.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Minister say if it has been circulated to the various tenders that their bids must be limited to $22 million or is it an open-ended contract that they can bid any amount they choose?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: An estimate has been done by the quantity surveyors and this would have been shared in the tendering stage with the contractors and they will put forward realistic costs at this stage.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 27, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO.27

No. 27: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what is the latest data on the number of HIV cases in the Cayman Islands and what is the current Government programme for dealing with this disease, including public education.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. To date, the total of known HIV positives is 37. Of these 37, 16 have died after developing full-blown AIDS. Of the remaining 21, three are AIDS cases and 18 have no symptoms despite being HIV positive.

For dealing with the disease, Government's programme is aimed at the prevention of local transmission of the disease and the reduction of the otherwise serious personal and social impact that HIV infection has in the Cayman Islands.

It is well known that transmission of the virus occurs through sexual activity, from contact with contaminated blood or from a mother to her newborn child. In the Cayman Islands, the AIDS prevention and control programme adopts as the basis of its approach, four strategies commonly used internationally. They are as follows:

(1) The prevention of sexual transmission of the virus is targeted through promotion of safer sexual behaviour and the provision of early diagnosis and treatment of sexually transmitted diseases. A public health nurse has been designated as coordinator for sexually transmitted diseases and she, along with the Health Promotion Officer and other health care workers organise workshops, seminars in the workplace and public information campaigns for the general public, including school children. These are intensified during the annual Sexually Transmitted Diseases Awareness Week which is held to coincide with World AIDS Day.

(2) The second strategy is the prevention of transmission through blood. In order to achieve this, the following measures are in place:

- all blood donors are screened for HIV;
- all blood units are tested prior to transfusion;
- disposable syringes and needles are used for all injections;
- all surgical procedures are conducted under sterile conditions;
- medical waste is disposed of through incineration.

Fortunately, intravenous drug use and the sharing of needles, which is a major cause of AIDS in other countries, is not at present a problem in the Cayman Islands.

(3) The third strategy involves efforts to prevent the transmission of the virus from the mother to her child. To achieve this all pregnant women attending antenatal clinics are screened for HIV infection and if this is found to be present, counselling is provided to inform the patient of treatment presently available which can substantially reduce the risk of transmission to the baby. In addition, counselling about family planning and actual family planning services are offered to people who are HIV positive.

(4) The fourth strategy addresses the need to reduce the personal and social impact that HIV has on both individuals and the country at large. This involves aspects of prevention of the spread of infection as well as management of those who have become infected. In addition to measures already mentioned, Government offers the following services:

- Free health care is provided to all HIV infected Caymanians.
- Appropriate drugs are stocked and made available through the Hospital pharmacy.
- Blood tests to monitor the HIV client's defense mechanisms are offered twice a year.

- Home health care is provided by the STD coordinator for patients who need it. This is provided in consultation with the Internist and the Medical Officer of Health.
- Counselling is offered to families of HIV patients by the STD coordinator in association with other healthcare providers such as physicians.
- Medical officers and nurses and other health care providers are trained in the management of HIV patients through workshops held locally and through attachments at overseas hospitals and clinics.
- The Social Services Department offers assistance to needy cases.
- Screening for sexually transmitted diseases including HIV is offered free during the annual STD Awareness Week.

As can be seen, Government provides a range of services designed both to prevent the spread of HIV infection and to assist those who are infected. It is intended that the provision of these services will continue and will be enhanced if, or when, the need arises.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say what sanctions exist so as to prevent persons who have been tested HIV positive from continuing to engage in promiscuous or destructive behaviour?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I must say this would only happen in a police state. It would have to come from interest and one's feeling for his fellow human being. To the best of my knowledge there is nothing in place enforced by law to stop this.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

May I request that the Honourable Minister give some consideration to this as many Members may be aware that recently there was a case where the Immigration Department sent someone off the island (even though the Court had the person for trial) because the person continued to engage in promiscuous and dangerous behaviour to other persons.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Madam Speaker, in this instance, as this was a foreigner who would be encouraged to return to his homeland, this is one way that it can be controlled. But for Caymanians, I do not know what imposition we could put besides sending them to jail. Would the public accept that?

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Minister say if there has been any policy directive given to the Immigration Department with regard to testing for AIDS for people coming into the islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Not to the best of my knowledge. I would have to defer that to the Chief Secretary.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I would like to ask the Honourable Minister, notwithstanding under whose responsibility it may fall, but I think it is very important that the issue be addressed. I think it would probably have to involve the Ministry in tandem with the Honourable First Official Member's office. I think it is very important that something be made with regard to rules and regulations on it.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I will bear that in mind.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In his answer, the Minister mentioned 'public information campaigns for the general public, including school children. Could the Honourable Minister tell us what age school children that would involve?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is designed for the Health Education for schools and youth groups in the primary schools. It would be year 6 John Gray High School; year 10 and 11, George Hicks High School, the senior year (year 9), and other seminars which were held on the 9th and 10th of September. For the teacher training there were over 250 in attendance. We have also done awareness in the workplace for Cayman Airways, Caribbean Utilities Company and other places.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Earlier the Minister made a reference in reply to a question regarding penalties for persons who live promiscuously knowing that they can transmit HIV. There have been a number of cases in the United States where these persons have been prosecuted for murder because they have knowingly subjected persons to this. Is the Government considering any such penalties by legislation in this particular regard?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I do know that this area has been addressed in our Health Strategic Plan. As for the criminal side, this is something that we can address when we review the Penal Code.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 28, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 28

No. 28: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if the 5 per cent Custom concession fee allowed in the past for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman in prescribed circumstances is still in force.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer: Yes, the 5 per cent custom's duty concession allowed in the past for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman in prescribed circumstances is still in force.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Would the Honourable Member expand on what the prescribed circumstances are?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In respect to Customs import duty for Cayman Brac, there are three categories in place. One is foreign retirees subject to the receipt of an affidavit in a form prepared by the legal draftsman, attesting to his/her retiree status. Let me explain a bit further: The import duty is reduced from 20% to 5% in these cases. The second case is for Caymanians living abroad and wishing to return and resettle. Finally, condominium developers.

Those three categories are in respect to Cayman Brac. So, persons falling into those groups would apply and be eligible for the 5% duty concession.

In the case of Little Cayman, only Caymanians living abroad wishing to resettle applies.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Does this concession only apply to construction materials for houses, or is there a spill over into other areas?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I do not have the original decision before me. It was put in place in the mid 80s. As I recall, at that time it applied not only to construction materials but to certain appliances and furniture as well. I would not like to commit myself and say that in all three categories it still applies, because I have not been dealing with it for the past three or four years. It is a matter that falls under (as the Member will know) Customs which is the responsibility of the Financial Secretary.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Member could elaborate on a situation which exists: In the 60s, many persons from Cayman Brac migrated to Grand Cayman because of the economically depressed situation in Cayman Brac. There are some of those who now want to return to the Brac. Would they be allowed any duty concession?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

No, these would not apply if the wording used originally is strictly applied. It says: 'Caymanians living abroad wishing to resettle.' Of course, the Member will know that persons living in Grand Cayman are not really considered living abroad. However, that is a matter that perhaps warrants consideration. If cases are put forward I suppose they can be considered.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Member say if Government (in the light of the seriously depressed economic conditions in the Brac at this time) intends to look at the possibility of allowing Cayman Brac residents to have those concessions for building materials where they might be attempting to build a house, which would be a great relief to them considering the wages and so on; and whether any thought is being given to reviewing those particular guidelines to widen them to help with the situation on the Brac?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: As the Member will know, there are a number of initiatives and suggestions being considered for revitalising the economy in Cayman Brac. I daresay that the suggestion he has put forward in his question could be an area for consideration. At the moment it has not actually been considered.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Member say if over the years since this concession was introduced it has proven to be a worthwhile incentive by way of the number of homes being built by those who fall into the category increasing?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

That is a difficult one to answer. I would say, having been involved in the administration of it for the first few years, yes, it was beneficial to Cayman Brac. A number of applications were approved and it generated reasonable amount of employment. I do not have up-to-date figures on what it has been for the past couple of years.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 29, standing in the name of Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 29

No. 29: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture to give an update on the low-cost housing proposals being examined.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. As soon as the Ministry has completed its discussions on low-cost housing to the point of publication, information will be forwarded to the Members.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 30, standing in the name of Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 30

No. 30: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture to provide, based on the eligibility guidelines set for the award of assistance to ex-servicemen, a list of eligible persons as at 5th February, 1996, giving the total number of persons qualifying under each category.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The number of veterans by category is not available presently and will be forwarded in writing as soon as possible.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 31, standing in the name of Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 31

No. 31: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture based on the available figures to date, what is the estimated annual cost for assistance to ex-servicemen.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker. The estimated annual cost is $1,166,000.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: For purposes of clarity, would the Honourable Minister say if this is based on the recently quoted figure of 450 people times $200 per month for 12 months?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: It is more like 500 people at $200 per month.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Minister state whether (while the question is based on anticipation he might venture an answer) it is anticipated by way of the number of applications still being dealt with whether this figure will increase?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: We hope not.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Minister be able to say if there are other applications being processed at this time and if there are, does he have any idea how many there are?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: There is something like 25 applications being processed at present.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Minister say if there has been a cutoff date decided?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: We have decided on a cutoff date, but it needs further deliberation and I would not want to name a date presently.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Again, for clarification, I take it that while the Minister does not have a firm date, he is saying that a date will be decided upon?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: That is correct.

The Speaker: That ends Question Time for today.

Other Business. Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 2/96, Dredging in the North Sound. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, concluding his winding up.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/96

DREDGING IN THE NORTH SOUND

(Debate continues thereon)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: When the House adjourned on Monday afternoon, I had been making certain observations regarding things that were said by the Government in regard to making excuses for dredging permission which it granted, and the Government's attempt to let it appear that the two newest dredging approvals were simply there waiting to happen.

The Minister for Education and Planning had spoken about the Wickstead Report and one would have gotten the impression that the Wickstead Report was encouraging the Government to dredge 12 million cubic yards rather than give warnings (as is its general theme) to the damages caused by the dredging.

That Minister also said that in speaking about Florida, that turbidity is controlled by having clearly marked channels in Florida. I do not know that to be the case. I tend to have my doubts as I did when he attempted to have me and the House believe that the Planning Department has nothing to do with dredging in the Cayman Islands. We know it does. When he went and took the time to inform himself, he was no doubt told that the Planning Department must give its approval to where marl is placed in these islands when dredged from the Sound.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Minister?

POINT OF ORDER
(Misleading the House)

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: The Honourable Member is misleading the House. He says that I have gone and taken instructions from Planning. I would like him to produce the evidence of this because my statement was clear; the decision for dredging in water comes solely from the Executive Council.

If he has evidence that I have been down to the Planning Authority and asked for advice on this, let him produce it or withdraw it, please.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, can you substantiate your statement?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, if the Minister did not go to the Planning Department to find out, he should have. I know that he called persons from the Planning Department to him to try to disprove my position that Planning was involved. I state that it is my belief that this occurred.

The Speaker: I am asking you if you have any evidence: you said "it is a belief of yours"?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I have no video of the Honourable Minister going to the Planning Department to find out from the Director of Planning.

The Speaker: Please be careful in making statements. One must be mature about this whole thing. If Members make statements that they cannot prove that would be unacceptable. Please refrain from such statements in the future.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: What I know and have proof of is that the Minister interrupted me in my debate where I was presenting the Motion (I have the benefit of the transcript), just like he did awhile ago saying that I was misleading the House, when he said; "The Honourable Member is misleading the House, he knows that under the Constitution dredging is dealt with only by the Executive Council, not by the Central Planning Authority. That is a fact. He is misleading the House by saying that the Central Planning Authority deals with dredging. That is an impossibility." [23rd February, 1996] Those are his direct words, Madam Speaker, from the Hansard.

That is proof that the Minister was either trying to mislead me, the House or whomever. But—

(Misleading the House)

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I must object at this stage, again. The honourable Member is now for the second time misleading this House. What I made clear in my debate was that the seabed and dredging, under the Constitution, is with Executive Council. Only the land areas relate to the Central Planning Authority. I made that clear throughout my debate.

The difference between the jurisdiction of the land and the seabed.... and that statement is correct. The seabed and the dredging and the sea is solely the responsibility of Executive Council. I wish he would come off trying to mislead in these areas.

The Speaker: I have become a bit confused by the Second Elected Member's continuation of that part of the argument because I think the Honourable Minister did clearly state... and I see no area where he had been misleading when he made the presentation in regard to who gives the authority for certain areas. I think that is clear.

I will ask the Second Elected Member once more if he would continue his debate without bringing in any further statements of what was said by other Members.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I was quoting what the Member said from the Hansard. It is what he has said on the matter of the Planning Authority.

SPEAKER'S DECISION RE: UNEDITED HANSARD TRANSCRIPTS

The Speaker: Before the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman continues his debate, I have reached the stage where I am going to make a decision shortly that there will be no quotations or unedited Hansard transcripts available to Members without prior editing. This is not done in other territories and I think that this takes up entirely too much time and the ladies in Hansard cannot get on with the proper transcription.

I will eventually be sending a note to all Members and this will apply to every Member of this House that in future there will be no requests for transcripts unless authority is given by the Speaker and the Speaker has had an opportunity to edit the transcript after it has been edited by the Senior Editor in this department.

Transcripts will be allowed to be presented for the balance of this Meeting because I appreciate that Members have become accustomed to it. But there will be a cutoff date which will be at the end of this Meeting.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I am sure that the Members of the House welcome the prior knowledge of this. It will surely mean a big turn around in what has become a practice and convention and it might pose some difficulty in checking the accuracy of matters or statements made. However, I shall continue with my reply on the Motion.

Still referring to statements made regarding the Minister for Planning, he made the point that when dredging is to be carried out, there is a need for a coastal works application. I understand this has been standard procedure from who knows when. Also, that applications must go to Executive Council, and then an environmental impact assessment is carried out by the Environmental Unit.

I see a certain weakness in this for in instances where Executive Council decides to give approval for applications to dredge, be they in principle or otherwise, there seems to be nothing in correspondence to would-be dredgers that if the environmental impact assessment showed that it would be damaging and that it should not be done, that indeed it would not be done; that Government would not give approval. Certainly, the Auditor General has pointed out that even in cases where the Environmental Unit had made recommendations, both in terms of the amount to be charged as royalties, or about damages, it has not been followed in terms of approvals of Executive Council.

There was no surprise when I read the second paragraph of the letter written to the person who received the six million cubic yard approval. For, indeed, I read all of it with no attempt to leave out any (as is sometimes done in this House when making a point). I note where the letter says there has to be an environmental impact assessment. Again, there is nothing in there saying that if that assessment is done and it was found to be damaging, that approval would not be given.

Indeed, if the person should go ahead and spend large sums of money to do this assessment that he is paying for, how then does Government say, 'Based on the Environmental Impact Assessment that you have paid for, which says this should not be done, we are not going to give you approval to dredge'? It does not make sense.

Undoubtedly, it must become a situation where legal action could be taken against the Government. That is why there is a need for an Environmental Impact study being done now, so that this Government and future Governments may know what is the policy position.

In this regard, one needs to seriously look at the findings and recommendations of the Public Accounts Committee which is the watchdog committee of this House that oversees Government's expenditure and makes a determination as to whether there has been value for money.

On page 9, the very first recommendation made by that Committee reads: The Committee recommends the following: "(a) There should be a thorough independent review of all aspects of marl dredging." An independent review. The only way that one can have an independent review is a review which is commissioned by Government and not by someone seeking to dredge the North Sound.

That Committee in its report which was brought to this Legislative Assembly in December, also said: "(b) There is need for comprehensive legislation to regulate dredging activities. This legislation should be developed following the independent review suggested above and should incorporate dredging guidelines. (c) The existing Marine Conservation Laws should be extended to encompass dredging. The Department of Environment should be given statutory backing for its role of protecting the marine environment." This would seem to imply that the scientific findings of the Department of Environment would have a greater role to play and, indeed, would seem to guide the decisions of Executive Council, rather than Executive guiding the decisions of everything.

Another very crucial recommendation, and the last one: "(d) The costs of environmental monitoring should be passed on to licensees." So, if dredging is granted, the cost of the unit would be paid by the licensee. Most surely that would have to be substantial if conditions were changed to where anyone who dredges the North Sound can do so and choose to tell Government what they say have been the amounts taken out.

That recommendation should not be laid at the foot of the Third Elected Member for West Bay who also referred to this in his debate on Monday; for there are four people who form the Public Accounts Committee of this Legislative Assembly. At the end of the report that I am looking at now, the names of those persons are: "Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr; Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks; Mrs. Bema L Thompson Murphy; Mrs. Edna M. Moyle."

It will be very fascinating to see how these Members of the Legislative Assembly will vote on this Motion when the time comes with those recommendations made - not only for the Legislative Assembly, but for the country at large.

The Minister for Planning, as some of his other colleagues (including those who arrived minutes before the Legislative Assembly was about to adjourn), put great stock in their accusations that the vast amount of licences were granted by Ezzard Miller and Linford Pierson. Supposedly, by my criticising these licensees, I was swiping at these people.

These are inaccuracies that I think need to be addressed. Indeed, it would be remiss of me if I did not try to truthfully rebut that statement which was played over and over again. In the table in the Auditor General's report, five different operations are shown which the Auditor General looked into in depth. In this table, it shows that in November 1992 Crystal harbour was granted a licence to dredge and that the outstanding royalties—monies owed to Government—from this operation is $244,499.

I would not swear as to what date in November of 1992, whether that would have fallen within the period of the last Government or within the time of this one. I would tend to believe the latter, seeing what happened since 1992 with land exchanges and purchasing of land for more money than it was worth and all the rest of it.

One thing is certain; it was not the last Government in Executive Council in September of 1993. It shows that the Shores received approval in September 1993. The Shores got an amendment to that approval in June 1994. It got another amendment in July 1994, and it got a further amendment which was not even prepared by the Government - they simply just went ahead and did it. That shows an outstanding amount owed to Government of $100,000. That is what is in that table.

I think it would do us all well if I just quoted precisely from the paragraph relating to that particular instance so that all may know that what has been said about the last Government giving these licences, and because the last Government gave the licences these are supposed to continue on. Certainly, the last Government left in place a legal and binding contract regarding the building of the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital and this Government sure put an end to that. It left in place an education plan and this Government sure put an end to that. The last Government left a 10 year Tourism Plan in place which, as far as I am concerned, is the most fundamental wide-sweeping study that I have ever seen, inclusive with implementation plan. This Government sure put an end to that.

The last Government left in place a health insurance plan which should have gone on in Select Committee. This Government sure put an end to that. It left in place a pension plan and this Government did away with that—

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER
(Relevance)

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Minister?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What is the relevancy of a pension plan and a medical scheme to this? In fact, the honourable Member is going over an area that he has read about three times from this list of dredging contracts from the Auditor General's report. This now is not relevant. I am not sure how health insurance gets into dredging in the North Sound.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I have listened very carefully to what the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has said. He is using these as a comparison to what the last Government did comparing it to what this new Government has done. I think that was brought up in a debate by other Members and he is just using that for a comparison.

I think he has made his point and it is not a point of order, but I would ask him now to continue with his other submissions.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you very much, Madam Speaker, for explaining to that Minister who keeps bobbing in and out of the Chamber. If he stayed around he might hear.

Lastly, I think that... He says 'some of us have a job.' I think his job at his legal firm is more attended to than his job of Ministerial duties.

The fact that the seamen could also get free medical was changed. However, on this question of the Shores, and this is vital to a consideration of this—

[Some Members talking across the Chamber]

The Speaker: Order! Please let us have some silence in the House.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: —illustrating what is happening in the Government process that should be stopped; that should be attended to and addressed by all of the Elected Members of Government, by the Financial Secretary, the Attorney General, by the Governor, in my opinion.

On this particular four times amended situation with the Shores which first received approval in 1993, the Auditor General makes these observations: "There is evidence of several licensees exceeding the authorised duration of dredging licences apparently with impunity. The most recent example of this is Project D [which is the Shores] where the licensee had permission for a 10 month operation. This should have terminated by late March/early April 1995. The original project appears to have been completed by November 1994, including an additional 19,623 cu yd dredged at the request of Government to assist neighbouring landowners. In November 1994 the licensee applied to dredge a further 200,000 cubic yards of material for resale to the public from an area adjacent to his existing licence. This proposal was not referred to the EIC [(Environmental Assessment Committee)] or the PCU [(Protection and Control Unit)] prior to approval by Executive Council."

In other words, dredging here is truly within the full authority of the Executive Council for 200,000 more cubic yards received approval from Executive Council without even coming to the attention of their two scientific units.

He says, "I have several concerns on how this arrangement was administered." These are key: "First, the licence extension was never executed because the licensee failed to provide the detailed hydrographic informa- tion when required by the Legal Department.” The extension was never executed—never signed—because the Shores management refused to respond to the Legal Department. Now, we wonder what the Legal Department and Executive Council did about what must surely be a favourite licensee of theirs.

“Second, dredging operations were continuing when audit officers visited the site in May and June 1995. So far as I can establish, the licensee had no valid written authority to continue operations beyond the March 1995 termination date of its original licence.”

That is outright lawlessness by someone given approval by this Government, and not brought to answer for it. People in West Bay have told me that nobody knows how much marl was dredged in that operation. They have also suggested to me why it really did not matter to the Government either.

The third point that the Auditor General makes is: “No dredging reports have been received in respect of the license extension”. They extended it four times and the Shores operation has not even so much as sent one single report saying ‘Government - buzz off.’”

The Auditor General says, “Therefore, [it was] not possible for me to determine the amount of royalties payable.” What a piratical situation.

[some Members laughter]

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: It is no wonder we celebrate Pirate’s Week!

Fourth: “No royalties have been paid to date on the licence extension despite Executive Council’s direction that royalties should be payable in equal monthly installments from the commencement of works.” No royalties have been paid. And I guess it is possible that they are still dredging down there.

The fifth point made by the Auditor General is: The rate of royalty was fixed at 50 cents per cubic yd without reference to either the EAC or the Protection and Conservation Unit. It may be recalled from paragraph 1.57 above that the standard rate of royalty for this project was $1 per cubic yard. The original licence specified 40 cents per cubic yard because part of the project was intended to improve an existing boat channel.

Now, when this Government can explain this kind of corrupt, illegal practice that has been allowed since 1993 to now—

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education.

POINT OF ORDER
(False imputations)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I object to that. The honourable Member is imputing corruption and illegality to Government and I wish him to either prove it or withdraw it.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I heard the imputation and this is not a fair presentation of what you are saying, although certain things were contained in the report. There has been no indication, as far as I can see, of any illegality.

Please continue without further reference to illegal activities or otherwise to the Government. I think you can make your point without expressing your opinion in the manner in which you have done.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, if the Minister is worried that I was calling him corrupt, I was not doing that. Certainly, I could not question his legality, for he ever reminds us of that particular side of himself.

The point that I was merely making is that everything that should have legally taken place, did not. The fact that no licences were issued or signed and this operation continued on, taking Government’s marl and material was, at best, embezzling—

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I have asked you to discontinue that because you have presented that a couple of times. Please do not repeat yourself. Would you please move on?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I think that there can be no doubt whatsoever that before anyone in the Government or their supporters on the Backbench talk about licences granted in the past by another Government, they need to seriously explain those granted by this Government.

As the Minister for Planning says about putting things on the back of the National Team, something like that being peanuts, I do not know who is counting. Neither do I know about any erosion or dredging in North Side that was ordered by Mr. Ezzard Miller. Certainly, if there is erosion in North Side by a channel or any such area, it would seem that this Government would rectify the situation and try to do something about it.

While they are correcting that, it would also seem right that they should make up their minds to do something one way or the other about the erosion of the public beach in Sodden Town for which it gave approval to trench out to the reef.

The question of SafeHaven was raised and, oddly enough, SafeHaven is the only operation where (according to the Auditor General) the fees were paid. Whether they were charged enough and so on is quite debatable, but that was the operation where the fees were paid.

The Minister for Education went on to talk about pumping concentrated salt into the North Sound. Surely, if that were started during the time of the last Government (which I seriously doubt, for I recall reading in the newspapers that this was being done at the desalination plant and it has certainly been within the past two years), and if something was wrong with that, how does the Government sit around and allow this to happen if this is damaging to, as has been suggested, or not in the best interests of the environment? How does it sit around and talk about the last Government having given approval? Why do they not stop it? Why do they not do something about it? It is pathetic that everything that this Government should do, and can be held accountable for not doing, they say we cannot hold them accountable because they are only sitting down watching it happen—the other Government ordered it to be done. Would that they had done that with the hospital!

I cannot tell the public how much an environmental impact study will cost. It is not my place to even presume to do so. I cannot respond on that as the Minister for Planning would have me. One thing I can tell the public is that it is the responsibility of the Minister for Planning and the Minister of Communications to find out if they are going to pay the slightest attention to the Public Accounts Committee Report and the general feeling and expressions of the public on a whole. It is their business to find out. It is their business to enquire who is best suited to be engaged to carry out such a study - and then look about engaging them.

We need to stop what is happening—just like the Government stopped the hospital; they need to stop the dredging. Also, the Government needs to stop making statements which would make people who are extremely stupid, unable to discern and understand, believe (which would be the Caymanian public) that on the one hand there is no more dredging, but they are going to allow another million-odd cubic yards to be dredged. All of the people in this country understand that it cannot be both. It has to be one or the other.

As for the claim that this approval for the 700 cubic yards is an ongoing exercise they are allowing, the Auditor General has pointed out that all of these licences have lapsed because they have gone over the time. The Legal Department has pointed out that when the time has passed, whether or not the amounts which could have been dredged have been, makes no difference—it lapses. Moreover, the Auditor General has also pointed out that when it goes 30 days over in payment of Government royalties it can be stopped. So there is still no excuse.

Again, I come back to the point that the Government has not spoken to: Is it the intention of the Government to not allow or to stop the dredging of six million cubic yards of marl? That has not been answered.

There is supposedly a shortage of marl that is affecting things here. That is why the North Sound has to be dredged. I take note of the fact that the Government does not think it is proper to engage a dredger (if dredging must be done) where they will only pay $3.50 to have it dredged and loaded on land. Something is apparently wrong with that. They do not believe in that, but they can ask other people to go and dredge it and sell it to them for $12 to $14 per cubic yard.

I received a letter today (and I think most Members of the House got a copy of it) from Quarry Products Ltd. To the best of my knowledge this is the largest quarry operation in the islands. I would just like to quote a few sentences where it says: “This company was formed in 1975 as a direct result of the shortage of processed aggregate that was needed for the then booming construction industry.” What I find particularly significant is the paragraph that says: “I recently paid a visit to the Public Works Department and asked an engineer what roads were being held up waiting for marl. He laughed and said ‘none’.”

It is very significant where he says: “During the middle of 1995, I met with representatives of the Portfolio responsible for roads and discussed their future needs as to the much-heralded Harquail and Crewe Road by-passes. Together with the PWD we determined that a total of ‘200,000 cubic yards of fill would be required for the Harquail, and 50,000 for the Crewe Road by-pass’. As a result of these meetings, this company has inventory and is ready to ship 250,000 cubic yards of material when and if those projects come to fruition.”

The letter further says: “We own 200 acres of quarry land in the interior of East End and have in reserve over 7 million cubic yards of material.” Significant is what it is sold for: “Over 10 years ago in 1984 we sold shot rock for $10 and produced in that year a total of 70,000 cubic yards of material. Today, 12 years later, we sell shot rock for $12 and last year produced over 300,000 cubic yards of material.” In terms of cost, it is clear that there is at least one alternative to marl, that is, rock—which I am made to understand is much more suitable, particularly for roads because of the compaction element of it.

I would assume that the writer of this letter would be in a position to verify this, having taken the steps to write this to the Members of the Legislative Assembly. I would assume that if he was put to task he would have some proof of this. I mention it because there are obviously alternatives.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, will you be finished shortly?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I would say in another half an hour, at most.

The Speaker: May we take a suspension of 15 minutes at this time?

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.47 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.12 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continuing.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

There is a point that I think is necessary to be made: Any dredging from now onwards has to be a matter of new approvals. It cannot be, as is claimed by the Government, extensions of past licences. There are approvals which are being given now. One would hope that at least now charges would be made on the licensee by Government for at least $1 per cubic yard which has apparently been recommended time and time again.

To fortify what I have said about these licences being expired, I would like to quote a sentence which bears this point out as made in the Auditor General's Report. He says: “I could find no relevant and reliable evidence of the total amounts dredged for any of the five projects examined; all of which should have terminated.”

One approval [for dredging] mentioned in the Throne Speech owes monies to Government (as of the time of the Auditor General's Report) totalling $122,997. One cannot be absolutely sure, but, certainly, any reasonable person would hope that the approval to Simmons Enterprises would not be structured similarly as that given to the Shores.

I think it is important for Government to look at alternatives for the supply of fill material for roads and otherwise. I read excerpts from a letter from Quarry Products Ltd., claiming that they had fill material available and what the prices are. But I think if there is to be further dredging, serious consideration ought to be given to looking at allowing (through an impact study making determinations on this) inland dredging or digging of marl.

Many of us know there are some marl pits, as we call them, where there are lakes. While these alter the original surface of the earth, we have water in these pits which could be used in a reverse osmosis or desalination process. There is some opportunity for using these lakes for recreational purposes in areas where they are in subdivisions (as they are in some). There is opportunity for looking at mariculture in terms of rearing shrimp or certain kinds of fish which thrive in fresh water. These are but some thoughts which have occurred to me if the situation of inland digging of marl is allowed as an alternative.

I understand that there are some persons who have applied to Government to dig marl in areas which are remote, in the interior where there are very large parcels of land; and the land could be developed into subdivisions or into large recreational areas using that fill for roads and also using those lakes for recreational purposes.

I have no more than my views on it, but what we could obtain inland, in my opinion, would certainly not be damaging to the marine environment. Even our drainage system (for what we have in this country)... the Public Works Department tends to sink deep holes rather than send drains down to where it pours off into the sea. I understand that would have adverse effects on the marine environment.

I think we also need to take into account that, in the case of Caymarl, they will stand to make $7.8 million on the amount of cubic yardage which they will supposedly be allowed to take out. In the case of Simmons Enterprises, they will stand to make $1.2 million if we just take the basic figure of $10 as being the cost per yard of marl.

Government stands to gain little royalty if charged at previous prices. Certainly, if royalties are to be charged (as I would trust would be the case) there has to be some mechanism where Government determines that the right amount is taken out as per the contract, and that monies for it are collected.

I am not certain what the Minister for Communications and Works means by his Ministry setting terms of reference for the North Sound. If this means that there is some effort being made to commission an impact study, then that is good. I think that there is considerable expertise within Government to draw up terms of reference based on at least one reference I have heard about a report of theirs in the past.

An impact study is necessary to determine where we are today, the extent of damage to the marine environment in the North Sound, and whether or not we can continue with further dredging in the North Sound. That is why the Motion before this House (and I would just like to refer to it once again) asks: BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government consider commissioning an environmental impact study by recognised experts in the field, to be paid for by Government, and if the study finds that some further dredging may be done within acceptable limits, that Government tender the dredging works, secure the marl for use in public infrastructural development such as roads for the Island and sell any surplus marl;

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT Government halt all dredging or proposed dredging until the said study has been presented to the people of the Islands and the Legislative Assembly for consideration and debate..

Madam Speaker, this Motion is in keeping with public concern about dredging in the North Sound, and it is certainly in keeping with the recommendations of the Public Accounts Committee which this House has been privileged to and which this House has, in effect, accepted.

Any attempt by this Government to blame past Governments for its present action has absolutely no place in reason. Certainly, while I know that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and I are in the minority (as we were reminded by the Minister for Communications and Works) and that we cannot control this House, I am pleased to be a part of a two-man minority that has the courage and conviction to bring before this Honourable House matter which are of national importance, which should be of concern to all of the Elected Members of this Legislative Assembly.

I do not accept, as the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works has said, that this Motion is suggesting nonsense. It is not! This Motion is based on sense and good conscience.

I believe that the persons supporting this Motion verbally have made the case for acceptance, and I now leave my support of this Motion intact and to the will of the House as to its acceptance.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Private Member's Motion No. 2/96, Dredging in the North Sound. In accordance with Standing Order 24(12) I propose to put the Motion in two parts. The first part will be:

FIRST RESOLVE - PART I

BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government consider commissioning an environmental impact study by recognised experts in the field, to be paid for by Government, and if the study finds that some further dredging may be done within acceptable limits, that Government tender the dredging works, secure the marl for use in public infrastructural development such as roads for the Island and sell any surplus mad;

I shall put the question on Part I. Members will realise that they will be voting on Part I of Private Member's Motion No. 2/96. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES AND NOES..

The Speaker: The Noes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May we have a Division, please?

The Speaker: You certainly may. Madam Clerk, please take a division.

SECOND RESOLVE (PART II) DEFEATED BY MAJORITY.

The Speaker: Government Business. Government Motion No. 1/96, the Development and Planning Law (Revised) (Amendment to the Development Planning Law, 1977).

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESSMOTIONS*GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 1/96*THE DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING LAW (REVISED)
(AMENDMENT TO THE DEVELOPMENT PLAN 1977)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I beg to move Government Motion No. 1/96:

WHEREAS:

(1) Notice for two months was published inviting objections and representations on George Town Central Block 14BJ Parcels 13 rem 1 and 14 in relation to rezoning from low-density residential to commercial. Thereafter the Central Planning Authority recommended in the proposed Development Plan that the said land be rezoned to neighbourhood commercial. The said land is bounded on the north by the five storey Uglan building and on the south by apartments.

(2) Notice from at least two months was published inviting objections and representations on George Town Central Block 14C Parcel 297 in relation to rezoning from medium density residential to commercial. The central Planning Authority recommended in the proposed Development Plan that the said land be changed to commercial. The said land is bounded on the south by the Compass commercial building.

BE IT RESOLVED by the Legislative Assembly, pursuant to the powers conferred on it by the Development and Planning Law including section 8 thereof and every other power it enabling, that the Development Plan 1977 (being the plan referred to in subsection (5) of the section 6 of the Law) be this day altered by the amendment of the Plan as follows:

1. That George Town Central Block 1 48J Parcel 13 rem 1 and 14 be rezoned from low density residential to commercial.

2. That George Town Central Block 14C Parcel 297 be rezoned from medium density residential to commercial.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 1/96 having been duly moved by the Honourable Minister is now open for debate. Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This Motion follows several that have been made in the past, and relates to a re-zoning of two parcels of land that persons have made application to the Central Planning Authority for which has followed the period of notice to the public to allow for objections and representations. Also, it carries the recommendation that the property zoning be changed by the Central Planning Authority.

I do not think I can add very much more to it, other than to say that one of these was made nearly four or five years ago, so they have been waiting for quite some time.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Before the Honourable Minister winds up with this Motion, I would like to ask a couple of questions in order to make an informed decision.

I personally do not have any problem with the rezoning of the two parcels mentioned in the Motion, but I do know that there are many others pending. While the Motion only addressed the two parcels at hand, I wonder what is being done with regard to the other applications pending, and how it relates to the review which is ongoing with the Development Plan.

In seeing the two applications brought before the House, I am not sure the others (and I may be wrong, and I do not profess to have full knowledge of the number) 300 rezoning applications are being questioned in the review process of the Development Plan.

My question is: Exactly what is happening with the process? If it is going to be a long drawn-out situation, will these others simply have to wait in line? Perhaps the Minister could deal with that aspect when he winds up.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to support Government Motion No. 1/96, the amendment to the Development Plan 1977. This is very timely. As the previous speaker said, I am sure there are other lots and parcels that need to be rezoned due to development in these islands. I am sure that the Minister and the Planning Department have a very good reason for presenting these ahead of others.

I believe that George Town block 14BJ Parcel 13(1) and 14 are in the vicinity of Eden Rock, and the George Town Central Block 140 is on the road leading to the North Sound coming off of Thomas Russell Way leading towards the North Sound.

I am sure that most individuals are aware that commercial enterprise is moving more out of the centre of George Town. The rezoning of these two blocks and parcels is very timely and important at this time. However, the previous speaker mentioned other parcels, and I am sure that these will be dealt with in a timely manner, as well as the review to the objections to the Development Plan which is an ongoing process.

Therefore, I support this Motion at this time.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate I will ask the Mover if he would like to exercise his right to reply.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to thank the Honourable Members who spoke.

What the Fourth Elected Member for George Town raised is a question of when we would expect the Development Plan to come to this Honourable House. The stage that it is in now is that when I found out the amount of representations (some objections some representation) that we had on it, what the Legislature did was allow three tribunals to sit. They are now sitting with very senior lawyers chairing them. I would like to thank these many people, because they are made up of a minimum of three people who are giving their time freely to deal with this.

The task is a very big one. Even though there are about 315 listed objections, some of them actually involve many people. What has happened on some of these parcels of land, for example on just this one there are 50 parcels of land affected. Mainly, members of the National Trust have individually signed the representations and objections. So on each of those 50 parcels there are 65 objectors. If they all exercise their right to be heard (because they have that right), we would be looking at 3,255 people. This has caught me by considerable surprise because I am not certain whether each of the objectors on each of the parcels will exercise their right. I do know that some of them will. I know that the process will be lengthened considerably because of that. This is not the only block that this many are on, in fact, there is another one with 50-odd parcels that has 78 objections to each parcel.

It would have been better - and I say this for future direction of the National Trust - if they had put in their objection and supported it with the names of their members. That way we would only have one objection to deal with, rather than objections from individual persons, most of whom are their members.

I cannot really tell the Fourth Elected Member for George Town definitely when the plan will come here because I do not know. All I can say is that I am doing everything that I can to clear away this type of legal problem and many of the other legal problems that have arisen in relation to the plan. If it happens that time runs out (which it appears it probably will because we are getting to the end of our term), at least most of the legal process would have been dealt with so that whoever has Planning next year can move fairly rapidly in dealing with the plan.

I really do not know, and I cannot estimate when we will come to the end of the hearing process by the Development Tribunals. Until that is done and the findings are transmitted to the Central Planning Authority, which must then go through them and make recommendations to Executive Council, and Executive Council moves it on to the Legislative Assembly which then considers the overall plan, we are really not much beyond first base, so to speak, at this stage. But I am doing everything that I can to try to deal with this.

In the meantime there are Caymanians who are being held up on the change of use, some of whom have been waiting for a very long time. I think the time has come to take some of these, once this process has been gone through, and we at least get some of them out of the way. But I will do everything within my own power, and I assure the House of this, to try to get the Development Plan procedure out of the way because it needs to be done. It is very much needed.

However (and I keep stressing this because I think it was the Chamber of Commerce that said I should speed it up), the democratic process will not be sped up. It must take its proper legal process. If that drags out over the next three to five months, then so be it. But I am not going to short-cut any legal process in an effort to try to bring the plan here. I think that would be cut wrong.

So, within the law, I will do everything that I can to deal with this and it is now taking an extremely large amount of time in my Ministry. To each one of these objectors, for example the 3,255 that I mentioned, notices have to go out. Because each one of them has a right to object on each parcel it is taking a lot of time. We are proofing as many as we can, we are trying to consolidate as well; but consolidation can only be legally carried out with the consent of all those whom it affects.

I am hoping that something can be done where we can consolidate and do fewer hearings than we would have had to have done. So I give the House the undertaking that I am doing what I can. While I would not have followed the steps where the last Government began it, I am not criticising them now. I am just saying that the steps started then (which was to begin with the Development Plan and then look at amending the regulations and the Law) were the wrong way around. The Law should have been amended, the regulations should have been amended, then the plan should have come in. This is another area of legal complication that the tribunals will have to look at. However, as it is now, the previous Minister, my colleague and I, came into this process partway through and I am trying to do everything that I can.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question before the House is Government Motion No. 1/96. I shall put the question.

Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Government Motion No. 1/96 has therefore been passed.

AGREED. GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 1/96 PASSED.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.20 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.39 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate will commence on the Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency the Governor, Mr. John Owen, on Friday 16th February.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

COMMENCEMENT OF THE DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY MR. JOHN OWEN, MBE. GOVERNOR OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS, ON FRIDAY, 16TH FEBRUARY, 1996

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to make my contribution to the first Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency, Mr. Owen, outlining projects and Government's intentions for this coming year. There are many good projects and activities which are to take place in 1996—not just because it is an election year, but because we have good Government.

In the introduction of the Throne Speech, Mr. Owen made an appeal to the community to help Government deliver services to its citizens in the most cost-effective and efficient way. He went back to the people of these islands when he stated that the people were strong and self-reliant, and proud of it.

For a long time now we have heard individuals say 'let Government pay for it', 'Government can do this'. But Government is a business, as well as having a duty to deliver services. There is no reason why it cannot be efficient and cost-effective. Maybe we need to educate our citizens to know that nothing is free. Services have to be paid for. Someone has to pay for it; we should not take the attitude that because Government can provide the service it is free. That is not the right attitude.

In moving on to the Judiciary Department, I am happy to see that the courts have been relieved of the congestion in their physical surroundings, and that they will have additional room so that the courts can operate efficiently and effectively. Since this Speech I believe that a new judge has arrived and has taken office.

The Committee reviewing the Public Service Regulations and Orders is diligently working and there is good news in that non performance can lead to dismissal. If an individual is not performing in the private sector they are dismissed; I see no reason why this cannot take place in the public sector as well. If an individual does not perform and is not contributing, then why should he stay on in the Service? I am sure that because some people know they can get away with non performance that is why they seek to get into the public service. So I am happy to see that this will be changed moving towards a system that will link performance and pay.

The Chief of Police should be commended since taking up his post here in our islands. He has initiated some very good programmes, and it takes a good leader to get people to perform. If we have a good leader (which I believe he is) then it will filter down to the individuals serving under him. The officers will pull up their socks and will want to do what the leader expects of them.

He has put a lot of these police posts out to civilians. That is very commendable and seems to be working very well, especially in the George Town area where he has many officers deployed. On behalf of the other representatives of George Town, I would like to thank the Chief for this programme. I hope that they will continue with this in the other districts.

More reliable vehicles have been provided. We saw pictures of old vehicles being replaced by new ones in the Caymanian Compass recently. I am sure that we would all like to provide more, but this will take place in due course as the money is available.

We will have to continue with short-term secondment of constables from the United Kingdom, but with the public relations going out regarding the police force, I am sure we will attract more locals, especially with the school liaison programme which will be introduced this year.

The Prison Department continues its high standard of discipline amongst the staff and inmates. It is unfortunate that a murder trial is ongoing at this time regarding the murder at Northward Prison. But for the individuals in Northward prison there are a lot of good programmes and training to assist them to come back into the public and have meaningful work, so that they can fit back into society upon their release.

Drug Counselling and other educational programmes are in place and this is also commendable.

The Department of Immigration is still very much talked about by the public. I am happy that the Immigration Board is working and the directives seem to be in place and are being followed.

I think the Members of the Board should be thanked for the time and energy which goes into the many hours in which they serve in their capacity on the Immigration Board. They are to be thanked and commended for this.

I am happy to see that an agreement has been reached with Cuba so that Cayman will not be a place for refugees, such as what we endured last year. Good things are happening at the Immigration Department, and I am sure that the Honourable Chief Secretary (who is responsible for this department) will continue to work closely with this department and the officers and with the inquiries which they must handle on a daily basis.

I am not sure if, as some members of the Democratic Alliance Team say, they will 'clean up' the Immigration Department. I am sure that all politicians hear of complaints and would like to 'clean up' the Department of Immigration. But this is the department reserved for the Honourable Chief Secretary and his Deputy who is assisting him. So, I am not sure how this will take place. They are human beings; they make mistakes like we all do. It is a very difficult task with the number of different individuals from all over the world, with work permit applications and with extensions. Sometimes it is the Caymanian's own fault when you hear, 'Oh, this one has been here for six months on extensions.' If the individual is examined, it is sometimes found that it is the Caymanian who has stood responsible for this individual to get an extension, then another local complains about it. Perhaps it is time for our Caymanians to look long and hard at this and try to better understand the workings of the department and not try to harbour them, but go through the right channels and make sure that, if they are to work, that a permit is in place and not continue getting extensions and then complain that we are overrun by expatriates.

Moving on to Cayman Brac. Executive Council met in Cayman Brac, but not because this is an election year (as expressed in letters published in the Caymanian Compass). I believe Executive Council last met in Cayman Brac in the early 1980s and the Legislative Assembly met there in 1971. It was because Executive Council cares and has concern about Cayman Brac that they decided to meet over there to hear the concerns of individuals in Cayman Brac. As good listeners, I am sure that they assured the people. By the correspondence in the Caymanian Compass the people of Cayman Brac are satisfied that Executive Council and Government in general will continue to try to keep positive economical growth for Cayman Brac.

The environment is very sensitive in Cayman Brac. I am happy to see that climbing on the bluff will be carefully considered so that the bluff will not be destroyed, and that its natural beauty will be protected.

Little Cayman is developing more rapidly than Cayman Brac, I understand. I can understand why, as Little Cayman is very beautiful. That seems to be the hot place for a lot of people from Grand Cayman to buy lots and build a weekend get away. I hope that all development will be closely looked at and controlled to keep Little Cayman's identity.

In the 1996 projects, as outlined on page 6 for Cayman Brac, there are a lot of capital projects taking place. The residents there cannot say that the National Team Government is not doing anything for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Perhaps they would like to have more, but funds are limited and we are doing the best with what we have.

Moving on to Personnel Training Management and Computer Services: I was a bit disturbed with (and I discussed this at length with the Community College Board) a circular that went out from the Personnel and Computer Services Department stating that the Computer Department is no longer responsible for computer training in the different Government departments, and that they recommended two private companies for the various departments to learn how to use their computers.

This seems to be a serious undermining of what the Community College is trying to do. Here, Government has set up the Community College and invested a lot of funds in computers and staffing. No consideration was taken by the Computer Services Department in working with the Community College to provide training. I hope that this will be corrected, and I am sure that the Principal of the College will offer (and put in place if it is not already in place) any type of training that the department would like, if he is approached and aware of it.

So often in Finance Committee we vote funds for various Government Departments to purchase new computer systems. I hope that they will take advantage of the Community College in assisting them.

The Legislative Assembly sat for a total 44 days in 1995. There are other Committees. Even though we are not present within the walls of this honourable House, all politicians work very hard and diligently to represent their people to the best of their ability.

It was with interest that I noticed a letter in the Caymanian Compass recently, saying that we had not reduced our salaries. We are constantly working, not just sitting in this Legislative Assembly, we are on the outside working. The individual writing that is, I am sure, aware of that. I feel our salaries are justified and I see no reason for changing it for the long hours and days that all Members of this House put in trying to represent our people.

The Cayman Islands Office in London is very well utilised for recruiting. I would like to say that Mr. Thomas Russell, who is in charge of this office, does a very fine job in promoting these islands. He has Cayman at heart. I am sure it was as a result of his keen interest that the Friends of Cayman group was formed by Members of Parliament in the United Kingdom. As a result, we had six visiting MPs last week seeing what Cayman is all about—how we operate and live and conduct business here.

It was recently announced that the voters list will begin to be compiled on 11th March. I encourage all individuals who are eligible to vote and exercise their democratic right. I hope that more than the 10,000-odd individuals registered in the last election will be enumerated and listed and that they will go out and vote.

The Law School is progressing very well with an enrollment of over 54 students, and a current enrollment of 28 new students.

Even though we are tied to the United Kingdom, one day I would like to see our own Caymanian Attorney General (no offence to the Honourable Attorney General serving us at present). It would be quite an honour if we could have our own local Attorney General and Legal Draftsman in place as a result of our Law School. I see no reason why this cannot take place sometime in the near future.

Coming before this Session of the Legislative Assembly will be a Bill for a Law to establish a Stock Exchange for these islands. I believe this goes hand-in-hand with our finance and development, our banking and insurance and shipping registry that we are trying to promote. Hopefully this will be passed, and I am sure that all Members will consider it. It will complement the other financial services provided here in Cayman.

The Customs Department has also moved over the past year. I hope that the plans will continue so that the Customs Administration and Department will be combined at the Owen Roberts Airport.

The Customs entry processing system is to be improved. I have had some complaints by merchants that it is too time consuming to clear goods. Hopefully this will improve and the time of busy people will not be wasted.

A projected figure of 25% growth in shipping registration for 1996 is realistic. I hope this will be realised.

Under the Budget and Management Unit of the Internal Audit Unit, internal controls are being reviewed and a Central Debt Collection unit within the Treasury will be established.

I wonder if the setting up of this unit will be more expensive for Government. I hope that the Financial Secretary has done a thorough investigation to make sure that this will be more profitable than putting it out to private debt collectors, and that we will not be spending more to collect money due Government.

As a Member of the Public Accounts Committee, it was surprising to me when witnesses advised that debt collection was not a priority in different departments. So I hope this will be addressed with the establishment of this debt collection unit. If Government does not have money, we cannot provide the services that so many people are looking for.

The Supervisor of Financial Services will be leaving the public service shortly. I am sure it is with much regret that the public sees her leave. I wish to thank her for her time and services in making our Financial Services Department so successful, and I wish her good luck.

The Ministry of Aviation Tourism and Commerce is working toward restoring and having more projects for our tourists to visit. Tourism seems to be booming. Of course the Opposition will say it is no thanks to this Government, but I am sure there are a number of reasons for tourism to be increasing yearly in the percentage that it is. We should continue to look closely at the services provided for the money individuals spend to come here. I hope the restaurants and all the gift shops give very good service for the money being spent.

The Fire Department is a very well run department, and I am happy to see the introduction of a fire code. As usual, extensive training is given by this department. I am sure many of us saw in the media how the Fire Department initiated training for individuals working on a hotel site in operating fire extinguishers and what to do in the event of a fire.

The Port Authority will be taking delivery of a new container crane in a few weeks. I am wondering if this is really necessary, but I am sure the Port Authority Board would not go to this expense if they were not sure it was needed. I hope that the use of this crane will not increase our cost of living if there is going to be a charge added for its use onto the Port Authority fees. I also hope that if a ship has its own crane they will be allowed to use it and not be told that they will have to use the crane now at the Port Authority.

Permanent moorings for George Town has been talked about for years. Only this past week the Honourable Minister for Tourism answered a question in this House regarding the initiation and establishment of permanent moorings. He thoroughly explained that very shortly three moorings would be in place in the George Town Harbour. Again, moorings were talked about and, finally, it is a reality. I hope that this will be considered in other areas, such as Spotts, so that the environment would be protected.

Madam Speaker, not just because I am Chairman of the Board of the Community College, but the College was left out with no coordination between the Department of Tourism and the College with the training programme. Three or more individuals will be hired in the Department of Tourism. At the College there is a hospitality suite and kitchen. No consideration was given to the College by the department in working out this training programme they are putting in place with the private sector. Again, this is very disheartening for the Community College.

I wonder why this trend of the left hand not knowing what the right hand is doing continues when all the money is invested by the Government and they work much closer together.

The Civil Aviation Authority is aware of the need to expand at the Owen Roberts Airport. On weekends, especially, there is hardly any standing room with the number of flights coming and going. I am happy to see that the expansion will be taking place early this year.

Little Cayman will be getting an airport as soon as the Feasibility Study is completed. I am sure this will take place with the input and help of the residents and, at best, the cheapest possible cost to the people of these Islands, in providing a safe landing strip for aircraft in Little Cayman.

The Ministry for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation has certainly been working. The hospital has taken a bit longer than we all expected (that is, the new complex). Stopping the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital was what the public wanted including Members of the Opposition who continually say, oh, it should not have been stopped. Yet, before this Government took over they were saying that it should have been stopped. Now that they are the Opposition, they say it should not have been stopped. I am not sure how you can please those Members of the Opposition when we dealing with what the public wants in stopping the hospital. We did that.

A modern and efficient health services complex will be completed and it will not be a split system as was proposed for the previous hospital. I am sure that we will all be proud of those new and improved facilities which will provide health services for the people of these islands.

Clinics will be established in the outer districts for the residents there bearing in mind the traffic congestion, and mainly for some of the elderly people living in those districts, it is very difficult to travel into George Town to use the hospital at all times. I am happy to see that plans for district health centres will be put in place and that these will be erected.

Health Insurance: We would all like to have seen a Law relating to this Health Insurance coming before this House before 1996, but in revising the Bill and in providing health insurance regulations which will accompany the Bill (and not like the Chamber's News and Views that was published recently, calling for Health Insurance Regulations to accompany the Bill) they will accompany the Bill. Members of the public can rest assured that they will be presented with the revised Bill which the Honourable Minister said he will be bringing to the House.

This Bill will be phased in, and I am sure all workers will be required to have insurance at least 6 to 24 months before it is mandatory. It will be slowly phased in along with the Pension Law. Now, I understand that there are reservations that we are getting the Health Insurance and Pension Laws all at the same time. I am sure the Health Insurance will be taken into consideration first and then the Pension Law will be phased in after the insurance scheme is up and working. However, I do hope that all workers who will have to take out health insurance and have a basic plan for when they are sick or when it is needed, will be educated and will understand what is being provided by the coverage which they are purchasing.

The saying goes 'you get what you pay for', and I am sure that some individuals will pay $40 or $50 (whatever the fee will be) per month and they will expect to get all sorts of coverage. So I hope that the individuals will be educated and will understand what the coverage is in the basic plan, so that when they have to pay co-insurance, or if it does not meet all the needs of the individual, then the Ministers and the politicians will not get the blame for saying we have to have Health Insurance and it is just a rip off. I hope that this will be taken into consideration and individuals will understand their coverage and know what is being provided by the Health Insurance policy they are paying for.

Two point four million dollars was approved for the purchase of medical equipment. I am sure that this will be put to good use at the hospital. Hopefully (after being ill myself) a scanner will be included with the equipment. I am sure the Minister knows that all the equipment for the $2.4 million is badly needed and the list is being prioritised to make sure that the equipment will be put in place very quickly.

Finally, I am happy to see that mental health services will be addressed and reviewed to know what is needed. For so many years members of the public who are mentally ill have been neglected; they have been held in Northward Prison or the West Bay lockup simply because we do not have a mental health facility. But this is being included at the new hospital. A review will take place, and I am sure those patients with mental problems will be identified and not left on their own simply because the previous Government felt that it was not important to address the problem of mental health in these islands.

The non-collection of fees due to the Health Services is very high. This has been discussed here and motions were brought on the collection of fees by the Government. This is very frightening; but it is good that the new Accountant will be concentrating on collecting outstanding fees both for the local hospital and the overseas medical treatment that individuals received and are not in too much of a hurry to repay the Government. This is frightening, and I hope individuals will just come forward if they have received treatment, and if they are in any way able then they should pay because it is depriving others who perhaps need overseas or local treatment. If the funds are not there the services cannot be provided.

The Drug Secretariat will be set up in order to carry out the Drug Strategic Plan. This is very important in that we do have drug abuse in our society and we need to help those individuals. The need for drug rehabilitation was reinforced in this Drug Plan. Again, the Government does not always move as fast as the private sector. I would have liked to have seen the renovation of the Rehabilitation Centre at Breakers started at least by this time, but it has not. I know that it will be very shortly.

The Canaan Land project, which is a private project, was recently in the news where it will be up and running this year. I was a bit saddened when they mentioned individuals in the private sector, but they did not mention that the Government had made a contribution of $45,000 to their project. I know that Government is very appreciative and that they will assist in the rehabilitation of individuals, especially young men, to help them turn around their lives and in getting off drugs. So the Government does support Canaan Land Foundation, and I am happy that the project will be up and running shortly.

Cayman Counselling Centre seems to be meeting the needs in our society. It has expanded not only physically, but with their programmes they will also be expanding their services to Cayman Brac and working at Northward Prison five days per week. They are to be commended in trying to meet the needs that are so badly needed at the Prison.

Moving on to the Ministry for Education and Planning: The Minister has done a great job with the Department of Education in getting the Strategic Plan and the site-base planning up and running. Their planning exercises will be completed by 1999 and this is to be commended... in such a short time. There have been some critics, but I feel that what the Minister is doing with the Strategic Plan is very worthwhile and a National Curriculum will be tested in the primary schools by September of this year. That is encouraging.

Many capital projects continue in the schools, not only in Cayman Brac, but also here in Grand Cayman, especially George Town. I will just touch briefly on those since that is the constituency that I represent. The Red Bay Primary School will continue with their expansion, and the George Town Primary School will be receiving additional classrooms. School buses for both of those schools will be provided by the Minister because he realises (and some representation has come from parents of these students) that we need school buses. With additional funding from this honourable House, I am sure the Minister will put out all efforts to make sure that those buses are secured for the Red Bay and the George Town Primary Schools.

George Town Primary is a very good school. Often in the district of George Town you will hear, 'Oh, Red Bay School is getting this, and George Town is getting left out.' That is not the case. Red Bay is a newer school and George Town Primary is a very good primary school. The Red Bay Primary School might be physically better in some instances in that it is newer, but when you visit the George Town Primary School at public functions where you see the children singing, reciting, dancing and performing, I am very happy and proud to see those students from that primary school. There are very good, caring and dedicated teachers in both schools, and I know that George Town Primary has the same as the Red Bay School and this should be put to rest.

By September of this year the Community College will be offering associate degrees in 15 areas. We are looking at articulation with colleges from overseas so that when an individual works towards an associate degree here, they can transfer to colleges in North America. The associate degree will be accepted and they would only have to concentrate on their major when they transfer to other colleges in the United States. This is very gratifying, more students can take advantage of scholarships, and I am sure the Education Council will look closely at awarding more scholarships to Caymanians to attend the Community College in order to obtain their associate degree before moving on to North America or to the United Kingdom.

The construction of a new Library media centre at the College has just been started. The staff and board members work very closely. I would like to use this medium to thank those individual staff members, and especially the principal of the Community College, and members of the board for their dedication in the efficient running of the College.

As a matter of information, over 5,000 students have passed through the Community College since its inception in early 1989. It is very gratifying to know that our people are taking advantage of the subjects and that the extended facilities are being provided at the Community College.

Government will continue to assist private schools. I believe that is very important. People have a choice in providing education for their children and if they would like to send them to private schools, and can afford it, then it does take some of the burden off the public schools, especially in the primary and secondary levels. I am sure that private schools will meet the needs just as well as the public schools.

The Student Loan Scheme has been privatised, and this is good. I am sure that the Education Council will take advantage of the Community College in offering more scholarships.

The Planning Department is not as talked about and criticised as it used to be since the new Minister has taken over this department. Not only have they expanded physically in their surroundings, they now have better working conditions in the department and have also been computerised. I am sure that this has helped in their efficiency and in dealing with applications, and questions. In working with the Inspectors for George Town especially, there are many problems which they complained about such as the enforcement of injunctions of the Planning Law, in that there is no teeth in the Law for making sure that someone can be stopped with an injunction. I am sure the Honourable Minister will be addressing this shortly by changing the Planning Law and Regulations.

The 1992 election campaigns were very concerned about Cayman Airways, that was a very hot. I think the Minister and the Board of Cayman Airways and all the individuals working with and for Cayman Airways have done a very good job in turning it around and they should be proud of their airline.

With the expansion to Orlando I am sure that the airline will pick up additional revenue in that it seems to be a popular route. They have already added additional flights over the Easter weekend. So it was an eagerly sought after route for Cayman Airways to take, and I am happy to see that this is being done.

The Ministry of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, along with the Department of Agriculture and the Agricultural Society, should be commended for the beautiful show that took place just last week (Ash Wednesday). After hurricane Gilbert in 1988 the former Member did not see fit to assist the society and the department in getting the show [back on track]. In 1993, when this Honourable Minister (the current Minister) took office, the Agriculture Show on Ash Wednesday took place.

I remember how diligently he worked in 1993 to get that show going. Each year it seems to be getting better, and Caymanians can be proud of the fruits and vegetables and the healthy livestock that were on display at the show last Ash Wednesday. There are many problems with growing things, but 'where there is a will there is a way'. I am sure that once things are grown locally and with to the awareness of health and so forth, locals will support the farmers by purchasing their produce and meat, etcetera.

In visiting the Farmers' Market, I believe it needs to have better supervision for purchasing of produce and making sure that it is better run. I hope that this will be addressed by the chairman of the Co-operative Farmers' Market.

The Lands and Survey Department has undoubtedly increased revenue. I am sure decreasing the stamp duty from 10 per cent to 7.5 per cent certainly helped in getting land transfers moving again. Everywhere you drive in these islands it seems that everything is for sale. I am sure we can look for additional revenue from lands being sold and exchanged.

The 9-1-1 system is soon to be coming on stream. Again, the Ministry has worked closely in getting this done and it should be starting in September. This is a necessary project for emergency and communication systems for these islands. I am sure statistics will prove within one year that it is well worth having this system in place.

The Post Office continues to serve the public well and, together with the Customs Department, it is a very important revenue-earning department for the Government. In addition to the new Express service they are looking at providing other expanded services. They are to be commended in that area. The whole physical appearance of the Post Office, the training and the sorting centre that will be put in place this year over at the Airport will only enhance the efficiency of the Post Office and the public certainly will be more appreciative of the services that are rendered by that department.

The Department of Environment seems to be working well. They are now working on the review of legislation; it needs to work on its debt collection as well and make that a priority. Hopefully, the new building on the North Sound Road will be sorted out for the residents in the area, and some agreement will go before the Tribunal for working out the erection of the new building so the residents over there will all be happy with the end result of the project.

The Environmental Health section: I would like to see more coordination between food sales and safety in handling foods. I feel that the Health Department needs to monitor this more closely. From the time I was elected I have talked about this, and I hope that it will be a priority for the Environmental Health Department. I am surprised that more food poisoning does not result, not through the fault of the establishments.... But it is hot, and all sorts of elements come into play when dealing with food (cooked or raw). This needs to be addressed by the department.

The MRCU continues to spray and work towards eradicating the mosquitoes. They are also to be commended.

The Marine Parks Management will be working on the whelks. Years ago (especially in the South Sound area) there were thousands (and I am sure you are aware of that coming from South Sound) of whelks on the iron shore. Today when you go there (and I am not sure what the reason is) there are hardly any whelks. I am sure they will work toward replenishing them like they have done with the conchs in their research working toward replenishing the Marine Parks. Our marine environment is very important and we must try to take care of it for our children and their children and be good stewards of our environment.

The dredging issue has been very hot, and it has been discussed previously so I will not comment further on it. But I am happy to see that no more dredging will be approved as stated here [in the Throne Speech] by the Governor.

The Public Works Department continues work in the supervision of Government's Departments and Authorities. I think perhaps it is time, since His Excellency believes in privatisation, that this Department be looked at very closely so that some of the management and supervision could be privatised. They do a very good job and anything that I request of the Department in writing to be done for the district of George Town, they are very efficient and try to work on it; that is, buildings—I cannot say the same with roads. But, again, all Members of this House contact them for the roads engineer and the Department to be working on the roads. It seems that George Town is left for the last. Unfortunately we are the Capital and I am hopeful that this year roads will be addressed much quicker for this district than was done in the past years.

Speaking of roads, I believe roads will be a very hot issue in this upcoming election. There was very little emphasis on the maintenance in the past several years and the original life-span of some roads is slowly deteriorating. I believe that only with a large loan for roads and proper funding will we get the roads that are necessary for these islands. This should be prioritised and done because I feel it is very important.

George Town, as I mentioned, will be getting some road works done - not as fast as the representatives would have liked, but the Public Works Department is working with us. Proper costing for what is needed will be provided by the Department so that we can get additional funding for the roads in George Town.

I will not touch in great detail on projects for the district of George Town which have been, or are going to be, done. I believe the Minister for Education will be dealing with this. But projects have been completed, contrary to what the Opposition said. George Town is the Capital and when we receive things such as the Hospital, the Sports Complex, expansion to schools... they are all in the George Town district. So we are working. I am not sure what else they would like to have done in George Town.

In the previous Government there was a member on Executive Council for George Town and one-third of the projects were not finished. This Minister for Education and Planning, who is now serving on Executive Council, sees to getting things completed for the district. I am very happy to see that we do have a representative for George Town on the Executive Council. I believe he is working to the best of his ability to get projects done for the district, and not only for George Town, but for the island and education in general.

The Social Services Department is being restructured and they are working diligently. When people are turned down we hear that the Social Services Department would not help them. But there are means tests in place to assess individuals with their needs and if an individual is not assisted then the Social Services Department must have a reason. No one is perfect, they make mistakes, I am sure. But they can only provide services for so long and for so many. Again, the public must learn that they can not have everything they would like from the Government; Government can only assist to a certain extent.

The community workers are working very hard along with CODAC and the District Community Development Action Groups. I know that the community worker is working very closely with members of the community to improve the areas that they live in. I would like at this time to thank the Community Worker for George Town for the many hours that he has put in. For the last several months he has worked very hard in Watler's Square, Rock Hole and other areas. He enjoys working with individuals and always follows up after the community has been given some guidance.

I remember that this was one of the things that the A-Team talked about when we were campaigning, in putting Members into the communities to work with residents so that they could have a better living and working environment. It cannot be done from an office, and on behalf of the people in George Town, I am appreciative of this individual working with us.

The crime survey has not been done as yet, but will be undertaken after the family study is complete. I know that crime must surely be levelling off. If not, it must have dropped because we read in the newspapers under the 'Police Report' of certain offences, but I believe that it is declining. Again, the programmes that the Commissioner of Police has put in place have helped to deter the commission of crimes that were taking place. I wish we did not have any crime and I am sure that all Members and individuals would like to see it that way, but it is a reality and we all need to work together to eliminate it as much as possible.

The different activities put on by the Ministry for Community Development, and the Youth Band which is putting together an orchestra for the community, should be commended. When you hear the National Choir and the Youth Choir perform you can really enjoy them, and appreciate the efforts of these young people in their performance. The individuals working with these young people are to be commended in getting them to perform in the manner in which they do.

I touched on the Pensions Law earlier. The Advisory Committee will be presenting it to the Executive Council and I am sure that sometime later this year it will come before the Legislative Assembly for approval. Hopefully that will be phased in so that the working community will have the Health Insurance Law and then the Pensions Law to follow.

The Sports Department has many programmes in place and there are a lot of individuals who give their time freely to work and make sure that sports play a very important role in the community. For many, many years previous Governments talked about sports and, finally, it is a reality with this Government. They are working to ensure that proper programmes and facilities are in place. I would like to thank Johnson and Higgins for their generous offer to provide a Recreational Centre in Spotts. I am sure this will be greatly appreciated by the public and we will certainly assist (that is, the Government) with the planning of this centre to make sure that it is the best for all concerned.

The summer camps will be established by the Ministry. Football Camps were brought back and, again, having attended those camps over the years it is very gratifying to see the number of individuals and children who take advantage of them.

The office of Women's Affairs (the Motion calling for it was passed in January last year) is slowly coming on stream. There are many issues that this office can deal with and I hope it will continue to progress (and not get bogged down in bureaucracy) and meet some of the needs of the women and families in the community. I am sure that, like everything else, it takes time; but it needs to be addressed and worked on at a much faster pace. The Steering Committee is meeting and I am sure it will continue and hopefully very quickly will be established.

I work with the National Museum and the Public Library on behalf of the Ministry of Culture. I would like to thank all the members of the Board, the staff, and especially the volunteers who give of their time. The Education Liaison Officer whom we are hoping to put in place at the Museum to work in the schools should be a reality this year.

The Library was looked at closely for expansion and it was felt that the outer districts should have library facilities before addressing the National Library here in George Town. This was unfortunate for me because as chairman of the Library Committee, I had hoped that we could have expanded the library before that was done. But with limited funds we can only do so much. I am sure that in due course the library will be renovated and expanded to provide a better service.

I, too, would like to thank the individuals who are involved at the library and the committee for their time and effort in the success of the library.

Art development in these islands is slowly expanding; people are coming to appreciate and understand art in a much broader sense. It is also gratifying to see that a National Art Gallery is being considered and looked at. Hopefully, one day it will be a reality for our community and our islands.

The Department of Labour is working with the new Labour Regulations Board and the Tribunals. The Ministry talked about the work of the Minimum Wage Advisory Committee and the Workmen's Compensation Law. I do not agree with the minimum wage, but I am sure that will be looked at in due course and I will vote accordingly with feedback from the public.

The Housing Development Guaranteed Mortgage Scheme: At the end of 1995 70 applications were approved by four participating banks. I am sure many of these individuals are very happy that they now own their own homes. As the Minister told us today in answering a Parliamentary Question, lower income Caymanian families will have an opportunity, as soon as negotiations are completed, to get affordable housing between $300 to $400 per month.

One area that needs to be addressed is the rental properties, especially in George Town where tenants' housing is not improved and yet the rental rates increase. I am not sure if this is Government's responsibility to dictate rental cost, but I am sure that the Planning Department and the Department of Environment need to take a closer look at housing and what is being charged by individuals in these islands and no sub-housing should take place for tenants.

The Agricultural and Industrial Development Board seems to be working well. I must say we do enjoy good quality water, although I am sure the Authority has its problems. Septic and sewerage systems are costly in the construction of new homes. I am sure that the Department of Environment and the Water Authority will look at solving the sewage problem in the North Sound very shortly.

One of the areas that this Government has fallen down in is public relations. Many good programmes and projects have taken place and are going to take place in 1996. But, of course, like anything else only the bad things are talked about and the good projects seem to get hidden. I believe that good public relations is important. This has been discussed at length by Members of the Government and no solution has been arrived at. I am sure that the public in general is appreciative of the many services provided by Government, and I feel that some can only be provided if the funds are there and the monies are collected. I hope that this will get priority by the different Heads of Department and the Unit that will be put in place.

Thank you, Madam Speaker, for your indulgence. I also thank all Members of this honourable House for the time given to me.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

As we approach the 21st century the Cayman Islands, like many other countries of the world, are faced with some immense challenges. Indeed, it would not be inaccurate to say that some of the problems with which we are faced are intractable and demand a unified approach to problem solving if we are going to be successful in our efforts as a small developing community in overcoming these problems which, I might add, in many cases seem to baffle and puzzle other countries, including developed countries.

In my response to the Throne Speech as read by His Excellency Governor Owen on February the 16th, the first observation I wish to make is that I noticed that a new description was used by His Excellency in his reference to these islands and our country. When he said "In a nation state, government has a duty to the citizens. It has a duty to provide the services to maintain law and order, ensure care for all and to offer education and training for the people. Teachers, nurses, police officers and other civil servants provide the services for the community."

I want to key in on the words 'nation state'. It is true that if we use the criterion of the seemingly rapid rise in our population over the last decade, the description of the Cayman Islands as a nation state is one which is apt indeed. I hope that in describing us as a nation state that is the basis on which the description emanated.

But to return to the challenge and the necessity for a concerted and unified effort, we are no less influenced by events in the world as are other countries with much larger land mass and population. We are both confronted with the same problems.

One of the things that concerns us and has been a theme now for some time is: At what rate should we continue to develop? This, I posit, is the $64 million question. In current literature there is a relatively inexpensive book, written by Sir James Goldsmith who is an eminent and wealthy man respected for his views on addressing questions of development. The title of the book is The Trap. It almost sounds like a novel. But the Times of London says, "The Trap should be required reading for all those committed to the interplay of ideas and action in politics."

Let me go a step further to say how The Trap came into being. It was the basis of a series of lectures which Sir James Goldsmith gave at the Sorbonne University in Paris, in October of 1992, to a gathering of some 2,000 postgraduate students from many different parts of Europe. What struck me as I perused the book was its relevance to what we are going through now and its relevance to what we heard in the Speech from the Throne; its relevance to questions that we are struggling to come to grips with, such as the notion of dredging in the North Sound; this business of how many tourists can we comfortably accommodate; this whole business of how far we should strive to develop economically, and at what point does this kind of development become counterproductive?

I want to draw reference in particular to page 19 of the introduction because it relates to a conversation and a meeting which has some relevance to our situation by virtue of the fact that Sir James Goldsmith relates an encounter that he had with the Prime Minister of Anguilla, which at that time had a population of about 9,000. Sir James says: "I lunched with the then Prime Minister. The island is very beautiful. It has long white beaches and hospitable people. I asked him about his plans for developing the island, and this is more or less what he answered: 'This island is our island and we are happy living here. We have two alternatives, either we can develop at a reasonable pace and in a way which supplies jobs and well-being to our people, or we can choose the policy which has been applied in practically all our neighbouring islands. We can aim at rapid and maximum development. After a great deal of thought we chose the former of these two policies. If we had decided to develop tourism as fast as possible and build great hotels and apartment complexes one next to the other, then we would need to move to a policy of massive immigration so as to be able to operate such an economy."

"We realised that the inevitable result would be that we would become a minority in our own country and we would not be spared the growth in crime and drugs and other social tragedies which seem to be the inseparable companions of rapid development, tourism, and substantial immigration."

"Our island would no longer be the same. That is why I have always campaigned that we should be content with the optimum development capable of producing good employment for our people while at the same time, maintaining our way of life." How striking! How relevant, Madam Speaker! How current! Would that more of us would take the advice of the Anguillian leader!

Imagine, a population of 9,000 could easily be dismissed as insignificant and yet, with such a sense of destiny and such a sense of responsibility and commitment to his people!

One final example in this chapter which Sir Goldsmith narrates is that in his travels he visited the Kingdom of Bhutan (which I understand is in the Himalayas). The King of Bhutan in his annual address to his people declared that he was more interested in the gross national contentment of the nation than in the gross national product.

Those two examples in a nutshell crystallise the challenges which we face and are quintessential examples of what His Excellency the Governor meant when he spoke about the duty of the Government to its citizens in terms of the services it has to provide and, by inference, the rate of development.

In the January 29th, 1995 issue of Time Magazine, in the section entitled, 'The Nation', author George J. Church poses the question relative to the United States: "Are we better off?" and he says, "In the material world Americans are doing well, but they are paying a high price in work and worry." The same is true of the Cayman Islands: In the material world Caymanians seem to be doing well, but we are paying a high price in terms of work and worry.

Then there are those who would declare that we really are not better off because, while we have an availability of more products and amenities and luxuries, we have fallen into the trap where we have to work harder, longer and longer, to provide for the same things which were taken for granted so many years ago when we had far less outbreaks of stress and worry.

To reiterate: It is, indeed, a challenge to find the right path for the Cayman Islands and the right rate of development, for I realise that we are on a treadmill from which we cannot get off easily and which I sometimes think we dare not slow down. If we do, we run the risk of some faction or element screaming that they are not doing as well as they were, or could, because they are not making as much money or they had to give up one job. So it is a trap, Madam Speaker, and we have to continue to find a way to deal as best we can satisfactorily with this.

I want to say that in our development we have had the full gamut of what the Chief Minister of Anguilla spoke about when he spoke about crime and the drugs, and being a minority in our own country. It seems that there is no end to the situation. I was reading in the newspapers sometime ago about work permits being granted at the rate of 200 per month. I do not know if that alarms anyone else, but it certainly does alarm me. For it brings home to me the realisation that if this is going to be the trend, then a decade from now we may have to take a magnifying glass to find persons like ourselves among the mass of population that this country will have. It is not that I am in any way mean, or that I am in any way not generous with my hospitality, but I have to realise that there is only so much in the Cayman Islands.

Even the great United States has now decided to take a hard line against some form of immigrants and has decided to try to structure themselves in such a way, because they are receiving pressure from the populace of the United States, some of whom claim to be losing strides. So for us in the Cayman Islands, the challenge is no less; we have to find a sensible balance and try to ride the treadmill at a speed which allows us to keep that balance and to keep that equilibrium so that our own people, particularly the young (of whom much will be said later by myself and others) do not feel excluded. But also, Madam Speaker, for those of us who are now mature and, especially, those who came up during the formative years who for one reason or the other could not avail themselves of the educational means and mechanisms to acquire marketable skills and trades.

So in our development we have to pay special attention to this lest in our haste to develop we leave behind those of our own who need help most, but who are unable (through no faults of their own) to be competitive. Then, too, along with this we have imported the accompanying problems, drugs, crime, and pressures that bear on the society and lead to breaking of the law.

One of the things that I have always been concerned about is the amount of crime (serious crime) in a small country such as ours. I think that it speaks something about the attitudes of our people. Certainly, from my background in sociology, I would have to say that the explanation lies not in genetics, not in heredity, but in the pressures which are being brought upon some of our people who lack the skills to cope in ways except to resort to drugs and ways which mean striking out.

Some years ago when I had much more leisure time, I used to collect the Court's lists and fiddle around on my computer with the types of offences and try to speculate as to the background of the people who commit such offences. I regret now that I did not save what I had done because it was my intention to publish in an impersonal way, what I saw as an alarming increase in crimes against the person: grievous bodily harm, assault, causing actual bodily harm.

My colleague and I went across to the Courts yesterday and we were looking at a list which was put up there [on the notice board]. I counted the number of cases now before the court of offences by young people. I was surprised!

If we speak to some of these people we are left with the clear notion and understanding that many of the things they do is out of a sense of frustration; out of a sense of a lack of confidence in their abilities; and out of a sense of hopelessness with the situation in which they find themselves.

Hence, from here on in, we can quite rightly expect that more pressure, more dependence, more reliance is going to have to be placed on what I call social control agencies. But that is not where the ideal solution lies. The ideal solution lies in some kind of education which allows these people, at whatever stage they find themselves in, to come in to the system and equip themselves with marketable skills that they can go out and earn an honest and legitimate livelihood.

My argument is: while the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force will always have a place in our society, we cannot reasonably expect the police to do the job by themselves. Heaven knows they are doing a commendable job, and I might take the time to say that from what I have read, I like the philosophy of our new Commissioner, Mr. Anthony Grey, and I wish him all the success. I think he is on the right track in trying to get his own force in a position where they gain the respect and confidence of the community and where they are further professionalised. But even if he were to achieve the impossible and bring all of his officers up to their optimum level, their efforts still would fall short because they cannot do the job by themselves.

We have to improve on the total system, including the rehabilitation of persons who break the law and have sanctions put upon them by the authorities. I want to say that numerous times in this honourable House I have lamented the fact that we are not generous enough, that we are not sufficiently forgiving toward some of these people who go to Northward Prison, particularly those who commit what the sociologists call victimless crimes. We are not sufficiently generous towards these people and as a result of that many of them resort to recidivism; they go and commit the same offence over and over again until they become permanent residents of Northward.

I am particularly referring to those people whose emphasis is on using drugs - not the dealers, not the sellers, the victims are the users. I have seen them in my own constituency, and it is unfortunate. If one takes the time to speak with them one will find that in most cases it is through no fault of their own. Some people have managed (it must be through the help of God) to rehabilitate themselves with a little help. Others continue to struggle and it is like the Sisyphian myth—they kept rolling the stone up the hill only to lose control and have it roll down again—and they go back to prison.

I see them come looking for jobs and they come and tell me stories about being turned away, being spurned, being derided. Yet we have people in this country, business people, wealthy people, employers who put pressure on the Government, who scream 'fill up the system, get rid of them, get rid of crime', who do not take a minute to realise that they can be of help in reducing crime by giving some of those persons (particularly those persons whom I have stressed do not have criminal records for assault, things like rape, causing grievous and actual bodily harm) one of the most menial occupations.

I want to say something in all seriousness (and I do not know why I keep relating these experiences because it seems that they are not taken seriously and some people seem to think

I am a theorist; a theoretical fool who is full of ideas which are gleaned from books and experiences but cannot work). Years ago in the 1970s the Canadian Government found that if they continued to imprison these young people at the rate they were doing, they would have no one capable of joining the Armed Forces; no one capable of entering the Civil Service at the Provincial and the Federal level. Let me add this sobering footnote, the population rate of increase that Canada experienced at the time is very similar to the population increase we have at this time. So if we do not address the problem, I do not know what we are going to do in a few years hence. We will forever have to resort to large-scale importation.

We need to continue to accelerate and be more generous in our efforts to rehabilitate, to place trust and to have some faith in our own people. Also, most importantly, we need to exercise greater efforts in nailing the top dogs in drug operations. I would love to see who some of the financiers are. I would love to see who some of the masterminds are, as I know many other people would love. It is easy to catch the users. Anyone who has any knowledge of their communities can know where the bag, truck or car loads of them are any day the sun rises. What we need to drive home is that we are also serious about pursuing the big boys.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I do not expect that you will be finished this afternoon?

Mr. Roy Boddén: No Ma'am, at the rate I am going I could cruise all year if allowed to.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION - 4.33 PM

Standing Order 10(2)

The Speaker: I think we are going to have to bring a halt right now to your 'cruising' until tomorrow morning.

May I ask for a Motion for the adjournment? The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.33 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 29TH FEBRUARY, 1996.

EDITED
THURSDAY
29TH FEBRUARY, 1996
10.11 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Minister for Agriculture to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. John B. McLean: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: I have two apologies for absence, one from the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, who is sick, and we hope he will have a speedy recovery. The second is from the Honourable First Official Member who is overseas on official business.

Accordingly, Mr. Donovan W.F. Ebanks, MBE, is appointed the Temporary First Official Member.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS
OR AFFIRMATIONS

(Oath of Affirmation Administered by the Clerk)

Mr. Donovan W.F. Ebanks, MBE

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I, Donovan Ebanks, do solemnly and sincerely affirm and declare that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II her heirs and successors according to law.

The Speaker: Please take your seat, Honourable Temporary First Official Member. I welcome you to the Legislative Assembly.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: I have an apology from the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman who will be a bit late. He has asked that the questions standing in his name be put down at the end in anticipation of his arrival before termination of Question Time.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 35, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO.35

No. 35: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs are any new directives being considered by Government in regard to permanent residence.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: The matter of the granting of permanent residence is subject to regular review. However, there are currently no new directives under consideration by the Government.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Member give a brief reply on the method by which these applications are dealt with? Are they dealt with on a regular timetable or are they dealt with as they can be?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The applications are dealt with on a regular basis. The Board meets on a weekly basis and while at one stage there had been a practice of applications being accumulated and dealt with at intervals, the current practice is to deal with them as they are tendered within a weekly timetable.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the previous answer, the Honourable Member noted that there is a review which is ongoing from time to time. Could he say if there is any one document with all of the prerequisites collated into one document which outlines eligibility for permanent residents.

The Speaker: Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The application form for permanent residence sets out what is required. There is instruction provided on the form in terms of supplemental documentation that has to be submitted with the applications.

I know of no single document which amalgamates the provisions of the law and the provisions of the directions.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say, because of the fact that no applications for Caymanian Status are being entertained (that is, applications by right) that this has led to a policy which is more inclined to grant the applications which are put in for permanent residence?

The Speaker: Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Applications for status by right are being considered. Applications for status by virtue of residence are subject to a quota and currently there is no available quota.

It is perhaps true that the absence of consideration of that category of applications for status has led to some increase in the number of applications for permanent residence. I think the number in 1995 was 224 and the number last year was close to 300.

To answer the specific question as to whether this has led to any new policy or direction in dealing with permanent residence, no, it has not.

QUESTION NO.36

No. 36: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs how many applications for permanent residence were dealt with in 1995.

The Speaker: Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker. A total of 309 applications for permanent residence were dealt with in 1995.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Would the Member say how many of these applications were approved and how many were denied?

The Speaker: Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Of the 309, 77 were refused and 167 were approved. Sixty-five were either deferred or were pending at the end of 1995.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the very last part of his answer, the Honourable Member said that 65 were either deferred (and I am assuming that is for further information) or still pending. Is it a fair assumption that 309 applications were handed in to be dealt with, and that there were no others put in but not dealt with during the course of the year?

The Speaker: I think the Honourable Temporary First Official Member has stated clearly that 309 applications were dealt with in 1995. Can you add further to that Hon. Temporary First Official Member?

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, Madam Speaker. Perhaps I can simply say that the pending component of that 65 would include applications which have not yet been considered. They are being administratively processed before being put to the Board for its adjudication.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 37, standing in the name of The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO.37

No. 37: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to explain the procedure from the time a dredging application is received until a final decision is made whether or not to approve an application.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer: All coastal work applications (including those for dredging) are submitted on the prescribed forms (Coastal Work Application forms) to the Ministry of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. These applications are submitted in quadruplicate and must include proof of having advertised a notice of application in the local press for two consecutive weeks and also include other additional information such as hydrographic surveys, bottom profile and structural section drawings.

At this time, the public is invited and certainly entitled to view the plans at the Ministry and make representations (objections) at that time.

The Ministry forwards a copy each to the Department of Environment and to the Department of Planning for input and recommendations. Once these reports are received, the Ministry submits the application for consideration by Executive Council who has sole responsibility for coastal work matters.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Minister say if there is a time limit involved for public input when the public is invited to view the plans and make representations?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. We try to do at least two or three weeks.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Minister say if there are any circumstances under which these regulations may vary?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wonder if the Member is speaking of the regulations or the time frame. Which?

Mr. Roy Bodden: The regulations.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

If it was, say, a huge project and of course the public asked for more time, definitely it varies because being the sensible Government that we are we would extend it to appease the public.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

In the last part of the answer to the question: The Ministry forwards a copy each to the Department of Environment and the Department of Planning for input and recommendations. Once these reports are received the Ministry submits the application for consideration by Executive Council who has sole responsibility for coastal works matters.

When the recommendations are received from the two departments, does the Ministry then (based on those recommendations and public input) form an opinion and in the submission to Executive Council it is received from the Ministry with a recommendation to approve or not to approve?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: The input of the departments mentioned would be placed in the paper along with whatever objections or representations that were made by the general public. The paper could go either way, it could go with a recommendation for Executive Council to make a decision, outright or if it was not a controversial issue, it could go with a recommendation from the Ministry to say it was recommended.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Prior to this (I am not sure of the time) there was (I think it was called) a dredging inspection team which was made up of laypersons and individuals not necessarily employed by Government. Does such a team still exist and if so are they active in the process?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Not by the same name. But we do have a Technical Advisory Committee in the Department of Environment that carries out the same duties.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So the Technical Advisory Committee is made up of civil servants and they are basically the unit which gives the recommendations from the Department of Environment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: That is correct to a certain degree. We have to take into consideration the civil servants involved are technical people with the expertise in that field.

The Speaker: I will now call on question No. 32 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO.32

No. 32: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works how are quantities of marl from dredging decided and what is the formula for calculating royalties.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, the answer: Quantities: Dredging applications are normally accompanied by a detailed hydrographic survey, prepared by a licensed surveyor of the area under consideration. A maximum depth is specified and based upon that information, the quantity of material to be removed from the seabed is estimated.

At the completion of dredging, a second hydrographic survey is conducted. The difference between the pre-dredging survey and the post-dredging survey yields the actual quantity of material dredged and adjustments in royalty payments are made on this basis.

Formula: Royalty payments relate to the applicant's right to 'use or 'occupy (in the case of docks) Crown property. Executive Council acts upon behalf of the Crown. Crown, as landowner, has the right to impose any royalty fee it deems appropriate. Therefore, no set formula for the calculation of royalties exists.

Royalty fees generally correlate to the extent of environmental impact and implication of the coastal works project being considered for a licence.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Does it mean in the reply, in the area of quantities that a hydrographic survey is carried out by the licensee when an application is submitted? Or is this done by some scientific person employed by the Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: The applicant would hire a surveyor to do the work.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Is any effort made during the time that a dredging operation is in progress for qualified persons employed by Government to measure depths and check indeed to see if these operations are kept within the bounds of this survey?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Under the license granted the Government reserves that right to be able to check at any time they see fit.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Minister say if Government before these dredging applications are approved, has a method by which it verifies the original depths of the seabed before the dredging commence?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: I believe I covered that in the first answer I gave.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, referring to the question I just asked. Does the Government check at any time during the ongoing dredging operation to see if licensees indeed do stay within the parameters set out for them?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: The answer is yes.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Minister say, if it is found that licensees have dug to a greater depth than has been permitted by license, what then occurs as far as Government is concerned?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: I mentioned that the difference between the pre-dredging survey and the post-dredging survey would tell the exact amount of yield from any dredging project. So the most I can say to the Member is, if we should have a doubt the same answer here would apply in order to find out the yield from whatever project.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: It is clear enough that the measurements will show the amount of yield. But it is my understanding that certain depths are prescribed to limit the damage to the ocean floor. What happens regarding any kind of environmental damage that results from excess dredging or depth?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: I have not encountered one of those so I cannot answer the Member.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, which will be the last supplementary.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the answer the Minister has said that "...at the completion of dredging a second hydrographic survey is conducted." Would the Minister say if this second survey is conducted by the Government or by the licensee?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. This is verified by the Government.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 33 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman

QUESTION NO.33

No. 33: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works what has been the cost to date for the construction of the piece of road from the area known as 'Cottage', going eastward.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: This road construction was known as the realignment of the road at Half Moon Bay. As of 1st February, 1996, total capital spending for the construction of the realignment is $755,695.00.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if this road is now completed, and whether any amounts to be paid are still outstanding?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: That section of road is completed and it is my understanding that this is the cost of the full project.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Minister say if the road which existed will be used for access to the beach property or will the property which has been created between the old and new road be joined to the beach-front property so that there will be one road access for those properties?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that there will be one main road. The property in front of the parcels mentioned will revert to the individuals, I think, on the sea side. It is also my understanding that properties on both sides of the road were owned by the same individual. So in order not to pay compensation in certain areas, it was easier to afford the piece of property to the landowner.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: For the purpose of clarity, the section of old road which is supposedly now closed, for all intents and purposes will no longer exist?

I am assuming it was a gazetted road. My question is, where the new road is created (I am assuming that has gone through the gazetting process or will go through the gazetting process) will the other old section be gazetted and be part and parcel of the land which will be joined with the beach property?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: I would have to say exactly what the Member has just said. My understanding is that a portion of this property has already been blocked off by one of the landowners and the old road will definitely revert to the owners of the property. In so doing, definitely it will have to be gazetted and the new road will have to be gazetted also, that is the first portion of the road.

The second portion of the road that is known as "Old Half Moon Bay", is slightly different. My understanding is that some compensation will be paid in that area. That is why I carefully worded my answer to say that in a certain area, which was the first area of the road.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: When the Minister says: Some compensation will be paid, is he saying that the landowners will compensate Government for the land area taken up by the road that will be given to them, or will Government be paying the landowners for putting a road through their properties?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: I made it abundantly clear; the first part of the road going east from George Town, that section will revert to the landowners. It will be gazetted and considered part of their parcel of land. The other end going east to Old Half Moon Bay, there is a section (a short section) that the landowner will be compensated because the road had to be moved, in order to straighten it, fairly close to the front of the home.

QUESTION NO. 34

No. 34: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture how many persons have received 'Veteran Pensions' to date and how many applications are pending, giving a breakdown by name, district and category.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: Approximately 450 people have received ex-servicemen's benefits as of 29th February, 1996. It is not possible to give a breakdown according to districts, but as soon as this information is available, the answer will be given in writing.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say why the information by district is not available, in that one would presume everyone who applied had to give an address?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: As I have said it is not available as yet and as soon as I have it, I will tender it in writing.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

Government Business, continuation of the debate on the Throne Speech. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY MR. JOHN OWEN, MBE, GOVERNOR OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS, ON FRIDAY, 16TH FEBRUARY, 1996

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Yesterday, at the conclusion of the day's sitting, I had just reached the section in my contribution where I wanted to mention some of the comments on page five of the Throne Speech, specifically dealing with the Department of Immigration and Broadcasting.

I am happy to know that the union between the Government Information Services and Radio Cayman has fallen asunder because when it was announced from the beginning I thought it was a somewhat unholy alliance. It is not that the two are entirely at cross purposes, rather it is that they have fairly specialised roles. As such, any union would be bound to experience difficulties which were not easily resolved.

Let me say, now that the union has been annulled, that I hope the Government will see fit to develop the Government Information Services in keeping with their stated aim in the Throne Speech, where we can have a television programme which is informative and educational. I think it is appropriate to describe it as a programme by which Government can issue its propaganda and get out information and details necessary for the public.

I recall my years as a student in Jamaica, in the 1960s, when their Government Information Services started. It was by this kind of effort that they were able to build up and, in spite of the problems experienced in that territory, they have a fairly good, widely respected and recognised Government Information Service. I look forward to hearing of the further developments of this service.

I have stated in this House often, and by my actions have demonstrated, that I have always been a supporter of Radio Cayman and I wish it well. In my capacity as a manager in the private sector, I am always very supportive in terms of sponsorship and using that media for advertising because we have found that it is a fairly effective source of advertising and it provides good value for money. Indeed, from our surveys, the value for money is far better than what we get from the printed media.

I do not know much about District Administration except to say the comment from His Excellency about his being concerned over the imbalance between the level of economic activity on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman as compared to that of Grand Cayman, calls into question (perhaps as much as anything else) a moral obligation as to what is fair and appropriate in a budget of $202 million. Certainly it is not inconceivable to think that if things were so structured, expenditure in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman should at least come to 10% of that over the year.

It is a challenge for us to arrive at a point where these two islands can develop in such a way so that the problem which exists now with young people and school leavers finding it absolutely necessary to immigrate in order to find gainful employment... I think that going into the year 2000 this is a challenge we need to seriously work on. We cannot have the population of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman being like what Oliver Goldsmith described in his poem "The deserted Village. I think we owe it to the people because they are as loyal and conscientious contributors to the taxes as those of us in Grand Cayman. We have to find a way to treat them accordingly. I will leave that for the policy makers and bureaucrats.

I want to say something with regard to Personnel which I am rather surprised about. It has occurred to me that when people apply for posts (and this is not only limited to the Government sector, I gather that it is also a practice in the private sector) credentials and certificates are received from the applicant. In the world where I exist that is a no-no.

It runs a rampant risk of encountering fraud and imposters of no mean order.

The correct method is for someone to provide the name of the institution. The onus is upon that person to arrange with the registrar to have a certified copy of a certificate or transcript forwarded to the prospective employer. I was amazed to know that in 1996 someone can apply for a job in the Cayman Islands and pull a certificate, diploma or degree out of their attaché case and it is accepted as truth. People laugh at me and say that I am defunct. But it is good that I am, because no one could ever run that past Roy Bodden.

The Legislative Assembly is fortunate indeed to operate in the kind of environment in which it operates. We have efficient and courteous staff and we get efficient and courteous service. I believe that there is room for some improvement. I am puzzled by the fact that in other jurisdictions the Speaker would be the Head of the Department; and the Speaker would be the one who sets the tone of the development. I make this observation not to say that what happens now is not efficient or that it does not work, but it seems appropriate that it be the way I am suggesting. I am concerned that in our situation the office of the Speaker is not accorded the respect and rights that should be accorded to it. For example, I would think (and protocol and common sense in management would demand) that the office of Speaker should carry with it at least someone who would be a private secretary to the Speaker. I hope that in the near future these observations could be considered. I do not believe that it is appropriate, nor are we doing justice to the office of Speaker, to have a Speaker who does not have any specifically assigned assistant.

Certainly in other jurisdictions (even in those less economically well off than we are), that office carries with it the necessary and requisite support staff. I say that with the hopes that my comments will be taken in the light in which they were cast, and that these improvements would be forthcoming in the next little while.

As a body, the Legislative Assembly, the Parliament, sat for a total of 44 days in 1995. In addition to our regular sessions we had various Select and Standing Committees. I am concerned that we are approaching the time when we are not going to (in an election year with the business of all those who will be defending and contesting), be able to finish all of the committee work which we have started. I deem much of that work of crucial importance to the future of this country.

I speak with special reference to the Select Committee on the Fundamental Rights. It is unfortunate that we are no further along in this work than we are. I would like to draw reference to a text by Elizabeth Wynn Davies, entitled The Legal Status of British Dependent Territories. I would like to read some brief sections from pages 234-235 of that text: "The Constitutions of the British Virgin Islands and the Cayman Islands are the only remaining dependant Territory constitutions in this region that do not include provision for the protection of the fundamental rights and freedoms." That was from page 234.

On page 235, the author goes on to say: "In 1970, two reports of the Cayman Islands Legislative Assembly's Select Constitution Committee (which consisted of all the Elected Members of the House) recommended that constitutional provision should be made for the pro- tection of the fundamental rights and freedoms in the Cayman Islands.

"In 1991, the Cayman Islands Constitutional Commissioners recommended that such provision should be included in the Cayman Islands Constitution, stating that: 'There was almost unanimous request for the fundamental rights and freedoms, i.e. a Bill of Rights, to be included in the Constitution. With this request there can be no disagreement and since these fundamental rights and freedoms are to be found in the Constitutions of nearly all other dependant territories, we recommend that they be enshrined in any amended Constitution of these islands.'"

Finally, Elizabeth Wynn Davies goes on to write: "The Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands and the Select Committee have agreed with this recommendation but it has not yet been put into place, although other Constitutional recommendations have been."

I feel a special sense of frustration with the lack of this Fundamental Rights Bill. The Hansards of this House will show that it was I who on two occasions during my first term unsuccessfully moved that we have fundamental rights in the Cayman Islands. It seems that I may leave Parliament and we will still not have any fundamental rights and freedoms. I am left to wonder if it is not by design rather than by accident.

Similarly, too, there are other important committees which we need to work on posthaste. Those are the Select Committees on the Register of Interests and the Code of Ethics. It is imperative that we, as responsible representatives, set these in motion as much for our own protection as for the efficacy and efficiency of the smooth-running of future Parliaments.

I again want to crave the indulgence of the Chair to quote something from a text entitled, Who will tell the people: The Betrayal of American Democracy, written by William Greider. He states on page 15: "The Most troubling proposition in this book is that the self—correcting mechanisms of politics are no longer working. Most of them are still in place and functioning but, for the most part, they do not produce the expected results. Some of the mechanisms have disappeared entirely. Some are atrophied or blocked by new circumstances. Some have become so warped and disfigured that they now concretely aggravate the imbalance of power between the many and the few."

Greider was writing, of course, about the United States. But, certainly, the United States can claim no monopoly on those kinds of actions. I would hope that we in this Parliament would see fit to put in motion the kinds of mechanisms that will not only sustain democracy, but help it to grow.

I cannot continue without making comment on the expediency of the changing of the Standing Orders to suit the circumstances the Government wishes to avoid, specifically in this case changing the Standing Orders in a way which sometimes blocks Members' questions which are not answered in a relevant and appropriate time, but are rather submitted in writing long after the information can be effectively used by the Member. It is a trick, a quirk of expediency. I understand that politics consists of such tricks and quirks, but if you are really sincere about true Parliamentary democracy, then, certainly, we have to find better ways of dealing with these kinds of situations.

On the elections: It is true that the Elections Office is a highly professional and well-organised office. I agree that the by-election in Bodden Town was conducted in a very professional manner; professional and unquestionable as far as the conduct of the Elections Office and its officers are concerned. However, if one were to move about the community of Bodden Town, even now there is a feeling that some odious practices came out of that election.

We have evidence in this House (through a question that was brought in a previous sitting) that there were concerns that civil servants may have been involved to the point beyond which they should have normally been involved. I worry about what I call this 'graying' of the area, and some people in my constituency have not taken it lightly. It runs the risk (if it continues and is encouraged by any entity, be it Government or Opposition) of destroying the independence of the Civil Service. This has been the death of many countries that could have been prosperous today - Ghana, Nigeria, Kenya, a myriad of them. There is an encyclopedia of countries where this kind of thing happened - small, at first. I hope that we can avoid this.

I expect that civil servants will attend meetings and hear what the candidates have to say. How else could they vote appropriately and intelligently? I certainly do not expect them to be on campaign committees or to be cajoling or bad-mouthing people - be they Government or Opposition. I hope that the civil servants are sufficiently wise and sound to shun anyone who encourages them to do so because they will be putting themselves in a position where they can only be castigated and sanctioned and they will lose their independence. Politicians may come and politicians may go, but the civil servants should seek to remain in a position where they can work with all and sundry, dispassionately, honestly and effectively. It is only then that these islands will continue to progress. Enough said on that.

We heard earlier in this sitting that the Portfolio of Finance and Development is faced with a number of challenges. In section 9 of the Throne Speech, the very first paragraph says: "In 1996 the Portfolio of Finance and Development proposes to review and revise the Public Finance and Audit Law, and Financial and Stores Regulations, establish the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange and an Integrated Financial and Manpower Information System."

On page 11 the Treasury Department proposes to set up a debt collection unit. I want to say that this seems to be a rather ambitious agenda for one year. I wonder how much we can really achieve given that each of these developments is going to take a considerable concentration of manpower and a reasonable amount of time. I would caution that whichever is deemed the most important be tackled first and done most efficiently, because I am sure that those persons involved do not need me to tell them to try to do one thing well, rather than to try to do many things and wind up with all of them not done well.

We are doing well in this Portfolio because, in addition to all of these what I call internal concerns, we have to keep an eye open for external detractors who try to put our jurisdiction down. Perhaps this is a good time to say that I was taken aback by the comments of some of the visiting Parliamentary Delegates from the United Kingdom. I was left with the impression that they really did not have too many scruples about torpedoing us. Some of them seemed to have the mistaken notion that we are not a jurisdiction of some scrupulousness and meticulousness.

Quite a few people called me and drew my attention to an interview with a couple of them on the local television. During the brief interval that I engaged some of them in conversation, I tried to make it crystal clear that when it comes time to defend the reputation of the Cayman Islands there is no gap between Government and Opposition. If anyone wants us to close ranks, they can try to question our integrity and they will be surprised and shocked to see how quickly we go over on the other side, or the other side comes over here as the case may be.

I think that the point has already been taken (and I am sure that the Financial Secretary is well aware of this) that it might be time to find someone who can give us good public relations and publicity emanating out of Europe beaming from the United Kingdom, because we really do not deserve some of the things people try to pin on us. I have said before, privately and publicly, that I will rise to defend the Government any day in its efforts to keep the Cayman Islands a reputable and respected financial centre. That is what we are working towards and that is what we deserve to be. Nobody, but nobody, can say when they came to us with reasonable recommendations that we have not tried to accommodate them.

I cannot speak from the point of view of the policy-makers, I can only speak from the point of view of what comes to the floor of the Parliament and what has been debated here before. So my position is that I may have differences with the Government on other fronts and in other areas, and will continue to have, but when it comes time to defend the integrity of the country, I am fighting on the Government's side.

I want to leave this Portfolio by reiterating the importance of the Treasury Department setting up an effective debt collection unit. As was stressed in a debate earlier, it is important that persons for whom Government provides service, or who receive goods in good faith, honour their obligations to pay. It is unfortunate, but I suppose it is a reality of the times, that the Government has to take these kinds of measures.

In doing so, however, we will be no different from other Governments who go after bad debts and pursue people. As I said before, I know it is difficult. I would only caution that the unit be structured in such a way that the civil servant is protected from the wrath of any entity or individual, and that the politicians be so effectively buffered that no one can come to them expecting them to waive the regulations and change the obligations when they have to pay Government monies which have been contracted in good faith.

I look forward to the setting up of this unit and to its effective and efficient running. As a footnote I will say that it certainly has my support. I would love to see examples made of some people.

I would now like to come to the Ministry of Tourism, Aviation and Commerce. I will limit my comments mainly to tourism. The first point I wish to make is that it is unfortunate and regrettable that we have come to the place where we gauge success in the tourism sector mainly on numbers.

I think that we need to approach this with some caution. This, in all honesty, has not just happened. It is not necessarily as a result of any direction of this particular political directorate, but I honestly believe that it arose because it is the easiest, most practical, and most widely accepted criterion on which we base success.

If you say that last year I had 100, this year I have 200, anyone hearing that would think that you are doing better this year than last year. That may be so. The point I wish to make is that if we get into this kind of system where that is the only criterion, what will happen is, sure, we will gain (and I want us to gain), but that will also put pressure on our infrastructure and the support services and the ability to find people to fill all of the vacancies in the hospitality industry.

In the February 23rd issue of the Caymanian Compass there was an article saying that tourism is growing, and that in January there had been a 16% increase. I think that somewhere in the article it says that 1995 was a record-setting year for total arrivals with more than 1 million reported. So we have reached the 1 million mark now.

I find that calls for a pause - when we think of three small islands of about 200 square kilometers having 1 million visitors a year, with a permanent population of only 30,000. I think it is necessary for us to monitor this situation carefully. To go significantly beyond that is going to create an obvious need for us to develop more supporting infrastructure - roads, sewer systems, all these kinds of support services which are necessary.

What may happen is that we may reach a point at which the increase in numbers becomes counterproductive, because in order to service these visitors we have to enter into the almost immediate expense of building up our infrastructure.

So it is good that we have come this far and have done this well. I only say that it is time to clean the lenses and check this out. All of this strain falls on the Government for advertising. This is unfortunate. When we have a bad year, nobody gives the Government a little break; the private sector complains and wants to dump the Government. Sometimes politicians like myself do that too! So there is a sense of balance and perspective here because all of this advertising expense comes from the Government coffers.

I do not want the Government to get into a position where it is only deemed successful if they can increase the numbers successfully each year. I am going to say something, which I am going to throw out as a challenge: I think the time has come for an examination of the role the private sector plays and to, quite rightly, expect the private sector to take some of the responsibility. Let me say what I mean by responsibility: some of the expense of advertising and publicity. The time may be now to explore the possibilities of some kind of partnership. I do not think it is fair to expect the Government to carry the brunt of the burden all of the time, especially in those cases where establishments do not pay the Government their accommodation tax, and who knows what else. I think that it is an appropriate time to re-examine the relationship.

I want to briefly discuss the attitudes and philosophies of our people and what we can do to improve them so that we do not become complacent or disgusted. It is difficult in our environment to remain open, amenable and perfectly hospitable all the time. We have some problems, but by and large the Cayman Islands offer a reasonable standard of living to persons here.

One of the difficulties I find, from listening to complaints that I get, is that if we do not continue to work on attitudes we are likely to come to a point like the Bahamas experienced, where our welcome is not as sincere and obvious as it could be.

I guess that I can best explain this by saying that we always have to show the distinction between service and servility. We have to get across to our people that there is dignity in labour. If you have to wait on tables, that is an honest living.

When you go to the bank on Friday, the teller does not ask you if your dollar came from waiting on a table, or if it came from a Lawyer's Office, or the Legislative Assembly. If it is legal tender, the teller takes it; it has the same benefits, it offers you the same privilege as that of a person who sits in a three-piece suit in the highest tower overlooking the waterfront in George Town.

So our people need not feel self-conscious if they are waitresses, barmaids, waiters or busboys. What I want to say is that they should not limit their ambition to being that, they should try to rise in the establishment.

I also want to say that what they can do to develop an appreciation of this is to dine out themselves sometimes and get some experience.

My colleague and I, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, always remark that this country is unique; because this is one of the few places in the Caribbean where people of my colour can go and be waited on by Europeans, who make us understand that they are happy to be tipped by us.

Indeed, the phenomenon is so striking that about a year or two ago we took the eminent Professor Rex Nettleford (from the University of the West Indies) to an establishment. He latched upon it right away. He said it was striking, and that it really had some significance. This is a unique setting in the Caribbean, one of only a few places where we could sit and be waited on by Europeans and not by natives.

I say that to show that our people need not feel self-conscious, and we should try to offer them opportunities, be they formal education-wise, or be they awareness sessions where they can have these kinds of encounters and exchanges, to see that it is not necessarily the worst thing in the world to be employed as a waiter or waitress, nor is it menial work. They are making a meaningful contribution.

I have always been taught that there is dignity in labour. What I would love to see, however, is that the hotels and establishments genuinely provide opportunities for our people to become upwardly mobile where they demonstrate the skills and abilities to be; and, also, that they treat them fairly when it comes time to wages, salaries and gratuities. In spite of all the efforts that have been made, there are still far too many complaints about people feeling shortchanged. People will not have completely pleasant attitudes if they believe they are not getting a fair wage for a fair day's work.

I think the challenge runs both ways. There is a responsibility for the employee to perform willingly, efficiently and fairly. But, by the same token, there is a responsibility for the employer to treat the workers fairly. Let them see and understand that they are being treated fairly, and when they come to question certain practises, explain the methods to them in such a way that they can grasp the reason and rationale.

I know a few of those people from my constituency. They are hardworking, industrious and honest. They sometimes complain to me, and I feel sorry that I am unable to help them in the situations because I know they are telling me the truth, and I know they are being taken advantage of. Owners and employers need to understand that we have accepted them and extended to them genuine Caymanian hospitality; but we do not want them trying to shortchange and exploit our people.

It should be a partnership in which they can realise reasonable returns on their investment; but also a partnership in which those people who work and labour for them can feel they are fairly treated. These employees do not have any share in the venture. All they are getting are the salaries and wages they are working for. Some of them get the bare minimum, the rudiments, the basics, when it comes to things beyond the salary and wage.

I do not think this is for the Government, but it is for the private sector. I think there is room if we are going to continue to be competitive, because the Government is making its efforts known in the area of the Pedro's Castle development, and the National Trust and the Botanical Park. I think that there is a fertile area for the private sector to get into ecotourism projects which seem to be a growing fad now, and by our very tropical nature should offer some scope.

I see the future success of tourism as I stressed earlier, being a partnership between the Government and the private sector, with the Government providing and being responsible for certain things and providing the guidance and philosophy; and the private sector assuming some share of the responsibility particularly when it comes to advertising and public relations. Maybe they would want to work out an arrangement in the Ministry. Of course they say he who pays the piper calls the tune, and it could not be expected that the Government would allow them to call all the tunes, but they could work out some amicable agreement where they could have some input. It would put the Government in a better position where they could have revenue to spend on other things, or to spend more efficiently, even within the same area.

The Speaker: Would this be an opportunity where we could take a short suspension?

Mr. Roy Boddén: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.34 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12 NOON

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Boddén Town, continuing the debate on the Throne Speech.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In concluding what I have to say regarding tourism and the Tourism Department I want to record my disappointment in the fact that the 10-Year Tourism Plan as put forward by Coopers & Lybrand (and which the last Government left in place) was not adopted. I think it is regrettable because it is the most comprehensive document I have seen (and I have read a few) regarding the future development of this country. It addressed every important issue, and in not adopting the plan I think we lost a good opportunity, if not some ground, to come to terms with some of the serious problems which challenge us. One is this whole issue of Expatriate versus Caymanian. That plan had a formula, and it was a peoples' plan in that there was wide consultation. A final plan was arrived at as a result of wide consultation by the representatives of Coopers & Lybrand.

I make the observation also that we have to find a way to bridge the gap of continuity between a departing political directorate and a succeeding political directorate. If we have to re-invent the wheel every time we are given a chance to be the political directorate the country will forever suffer and we will forever be swimming against the tide.

I hope there will be some way in which we can implement some of the strategies outlined in that plan because they are so obvious. These problems will not go away, they still need addressing and we need someone with the courage and conviction to tackle some of them once and for all in an effective and sensible way. They should also leave the persons who are affected by the decisions with some understanding and confidence.

As a corollary to this whole business of development, I want to say that I am beginning to become alarmed now at the fear many Caymanians have about the country being sold out. Indeed, the mention of corruption and corrupt practises in its myriad forms are expressed time and again by persons with whom I come in contact; persons from all walks of life, from the humblest, to those most sophisticated and educated. Certainly, from time to time the stories that we read in the newspapers do not allay some of these fears. I think there are legitimate grounds for their concerns.

What happens in the wider world also comes into play. Just this morning I was listening to the BBC news and I heard that ten senior politicians in India had been arrested just yesterday - some anti-corruption bust. But reverting to our situation, what is disconcerting about this is that we are so small, a microcosm in comparison to these other societies. So if and when these situations exist here, the results would be far more devastating than when they occur in a country like the United States, Great Britain, or India.

I was interested in this whole phenomenon years ago, and I am still an omnivorous reader when it comes to these kinds of things, because one day I would like to be in a position where (I might not be an authority, but...) I would have some respected opinions and perhaps I might be so ambitious as to author something in this regard.

I was reading issues of Newsweek Magazine (December 25th, 1995 with January 21st, 1996) and I was struck by an article beginning on page 56 titled 'Graph busters' and it says: "Around the world newly empowered citizens are rising to bathe the ancient disease of official corruption." The article is authored by Michael Hirsch who said: "Corruption is not just a moral problem. Economists and international organisations are beginning to point out the serious damage that corruption can do to economic growth and prosperity. International investment is the lifeblood of many economies and because information travels so quickly, and because reputations can be made and destroyed in a single headline...", and he cites the examples of Nigeria with its rampant corruption and recent hanging of an activist writer.

Michael Hirsch goes on to say, "Cynics point out that the fight against corruption is as old as the disease itself." And he says: "Today, anti-corruption methods are rarely as draconian as some used in the past. One reason the Roman Catholic Church insisted priests remain celibate, some scholars say, was to remove the temptation to seek favours for their families. Like today's methods it did not always work. Hence we have the word "nepotism" because the priests soon favoured their nephews as their heirs. So they still carried on the practice although they had no sons." So the word nepotism comes from 'nephew' because the priests acquired assets (monies or whatever) and gave them to their nephews.

It would be perfect if we were to remain free of these kinds of allegations and this kind of talk. But unfortunately we are not, and I say again that our very behaviour demands the kind of scrupulousness that takes us away from this kind of thing. Let me say that I am not so naive as to believe that detractors will not always come up and manufacture and fabricate things. What I am saying is that we have a situation in the country where a significant portion of the population is already non-Caymanian; the majority of the investments are made by non-Caymanians, so it is easy to fall into a trap.

It is almost frightening when I hear stories of the type of wealthy people who come to these shores. I would rather 30 different wealthy people came than one super wealthy person. We are walking a tightrope. There is no escaping... the whole controversy over dredging really had its genesis in that kind of stuff. We cannot escape and we, as the Members of this Honourable House, have a tremendous responsibility to our constituents to ensure that we keep ourselves free from any of these kinds of allegations which can be substantiated.

I want to say that many years ago I had the privilege of attending the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Government (as it was called then, now they have changed the name to the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs). I remember that one of the first lessons from one Professor was, "Let me tell you what happens in countries; people come in and they target certain people." He went on to explain what he meant by 'targeting' people, and he gave instances of countries like Panama, Nigeria, and some of these other countries. People get picked off and lose their pristine reputations because someone offers them something that they figure they could not get easily. Unfortunately, we have to contend with this kind of thing in Cayman too, and it becomes a moral dilemma as well as an economic dilemma. Whether we accept it or not rumours abound, and we hear them everyday about people being bought, people selling the country. "The country is for sale", some people say.

The dangerous thing is that he who pays the piper calls the tune. It seems that our position here in keeping with trends in the rest of the world since 1995 (according to Michael Hirsch in his article), is that there is an upward trend. The article gives a chart that shows countries on a scale of corruption from zero to 10. It is interesting to note that of the least corrupt are New Zealand, Singapore, Denmark, Italy, Canada, Britain, and the United States. I gather from this article that in those countries there are very stringent obligations and restrictions on public figures - bureaucrats, as well as elected officials.

We have always to be open and vigilant and to conduct ourselves in a way that is unimpeachable and irrefragable. As difficult as that may seem, that is the goal we have to aim for.

Development in our country entails all aspects and facets of our society, but it is only if we educate our people to the degree where they can partake of what is going on in the society at the levels at which they are comfortable that we are going to have an ideal situation and a society, as the King of Bhutan says, "We have gross national contentment." This leads me conveniently to speak a little bit about Education and the responsibilities of the Government.

I noticed in the Throne Speech that there is going to be continued development in education, both in the physical and of curricula and staffing nature. On page 16 the comment is made about... "A sewerage treatment plant to serve the Government schools on Walkers Road, as well as the Community College and the Truman Bodden Sports Complex will be built as a matter of priority." I have to wonder if the building of this plant is not going to detract from other buildings which are needed and which, as stated in the last Budget Address and also in the Throne Speech, are going to be built. I would further comment that had the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital with its accompanying sewerage plant been built, how convenient would it have been for these sewerage systems to link into that treatment system at little or no further expense to the Government at this time.

It is my belief that it is the duty and responsibility of any Government in power in this country to provide a first class public education system for all its citizens, be they rich or poor, black, white, or brown.

I believe that education should be the vitality of the nation and, like Napoleon said about the Citizens' Army in France which he started in 1798, it should also be the purification of its morality and the real foundation for all of its habits. I am not sure that what is happening now can fit such a tall order.

It seems to me that there are some people who are labouring to stop the progress of knowledge. To this I would only say: If they think they are going to hold back this progress they are labouring under a delusion. But I am concerned because it has been recognised that the plans which were left (the 5-Year Education Plan) by the last Government had been jettisoned, and we have completely started on a new course.

It had been stated that private schools cater to approximately one-third of the schools population in the Cayman Islands and that this saves the Government $10 million a year. I noticed that since about the 1970s the Government had one modern high school, and in 1996 - over 20 years later - the Government still has only one modern high school. In the meantime the private sector - which some people feel obligated to subsidize with public funds - has one at the moment and there are plans for two or three more.

The public high school caters to the vast majority of students. One would summarise that of this vast majority of students there are many who cannot afford the high fees charged by the private high school. While I am the first to agree that there is a place for private schools in Cayman and that Government should offer some assistance, I say that charity begins at home and we should not deprive ourselves; nor should we help them to set up a system with public funds which far exceeds what the Government's system offers. Our first obligation must be to the public school system and to the Government system. So we have to be careful that we do not get the reputation of helping to the extent that we deprive the public school children and those who cannot afford the exclusivity offered by the private schools.

When the National Team Government came into power there was this new Education Plan which called for the establishment of three more high schools including one in Bodden Town. These high schools would have a complement of 500 students which, according to modern educational trends, is regarded as the complement of students for an effective and efficient high school system. Even in the inner cities of the United States there is a move towards breaking up the large high schools in terms of making the numbers smaller so that they are more manageable and so that there are fewer problems - behavioral, confrontational, social, you name it - and the budget for the schools can be easily regulated.

We had a plan which was jettisoned... and I thought that there were only four horsemen of the Apocalypse, but it seems that there is a fifth one, because the Minister for Education threw that plan out. He destroyed it. Now we graduate 250 to 300 students per year from the Government High School. It was stated that last year of that 250 to 300 students, 17 had academic scholarships.

I am often described by that Minister as defunct, but I want to tell him something: If he had sought my advice I could have told him that 17 out of 250 is not nearly a high enough percentage. There should have been about 20 to 30 of those students on academic scholarships from a good system. Of that 17, it is not clear how many, if any, came from private schools, thus compounding the problem.

The true measure of a good system is one which can take an average student and make him/her bright, and take a poor student and make him/her average. In a system where 300 students graduate... in my books anything less than 30 able to qualify for academic scholarships would not be good enough.

I do not know how all of the things mentioned to be done in education are going to be done, given the resources that we have. I see that the George Hicks High School is supposed to have additional classrooms; there was supposed to be the continuing physical development of the Red Bay Primary school in addition to other smaller projects. Now in the Throne Speech there is mention made of the establishment of a new library and media centre at the Community College, and a new primary school in West Bay and, of course, the addition to the expansion of the Savannah Primary School and the Infant Block at the Creek Primary School.

I am led to believe that some of these developments will never take place by virtue of the fact that the time line is upon us. Then there is a question of cost. I am concerned too, because if we do not keep up with education our people will never benefit from the economic development which the country is experiencing.

I noticed from a question asked in a previous session that while it is true the Government helped (and helped generously) the private schools, the help given by way of financial assistance to the International College of the Cay-man Islands was significantly less. I wonder what is the reason for this lack of generosity? Certainly if the excuse is the fact that the International College is a competitor of the Community College, so are some of the private schools competitors of the Government school system.

Then, too, there has been no move to incorporate sections in our Education Law which would relate to private schools and their establishments. How can we have a system where some people exist outside of the system? I have made this point before and the point bears repeating. I think that it is high time that we review the Education Law. It is an old law and it can be made more efficient and more applicable.

For example, I have difficulty with the Minister being the Chairman of the Education Council. The Minister in any Ministry should be in an impersonal position when dealing with people who come to the Ministry to make complaints. He/she should be in a position where they are the last court of appeal. That is the modern trend in public management and public administration. To be otherwise is to put oneself in a position where one risks criticism for being partial or for being in favour of an individual or a particular situation.

Unless we get a better education system, unless we find time to get on with the job, our people will never catch up. I think that we should focus more of our efforts on computers and what they can do to enhance learning in our classrooms. I said previously in this Chamber that we should seek to enter the field of computer assisted instruction. It is a fertile field which would enable us to develop classroom skills in our students giving them the confidence they need when they enter the world of work to be familiar and knowledgeable with the computer and all the things the computer has to offer. This would also enable us to link up with the outside world without leaving the Cayman Islands.

I read about schools in New York being linked up with schools in Los Angeles, London, Germany, Munich and Bon, through the Internet. Madam Speaker, this is not expensive...

Mr. Roy Bodden: I hear people laughing. Well, I do not know what the source of their laughter is about, whether it is what I said or their lack of understating of what I am saying. People are beginning to say that if developments continue, in a few years books as we know them will not be the kinds that we are used to because we will be able to have the whole Encyclopedia Britannica on CD-Rom.

I get the impression from the comments and the grunts that hear, that some people thought I would have stood up here and thrown bouquets and laurels. I throw bouquets and laurels when they are due, but I have a reputation for speaking my mind and speaking the truth. If the truth hurts, then I bear no responsibility for those who suffer pain. Perhaps they would do well to bear their pain in silence because the sadist in me, when I hear them squeal and holler, will only prod me to give them more pain.

We cannot get away from the fact that more could have been done. Less effort should have been spent on destroying the foundation that was laid. There are numerous similar exercises where the infrastructure and foundation was left in place was dismantled in favour of something else. Now, with November around the corner, the Government should realise that it has to play catch-up and increase the pace.

I believe that the future of this country lies in the kind of education system which allows every child, not only those who are privileged to go to private schools, but every child, to develop to the extent that they can benefit from what is happening in the Cayman Islands economically.

When it comes to Health Services we suffer a similar fate: complete dismantling and a reversal of the infrastructure and foundation that was laid. We are still talking about a hospital while people are inconvenienced and suffering. I wonder when we are going to be in a position to say that we have a modern hospital and an up-to-date health services?

I want to say that we are continually challenged by the problems of drug abuse and rehabilitation. I wish that there was some way we could get it across to our people in far greater numbers and with far greater effect than we are doing now in spite of the efforts being made, that drugs are destroying them. I do not know because sometimes it seems that it is a hopeless cause.

Just last evening as I was driving home, I stopped by the Post Office in Bodden Town to check my mailbox. There was a gathering of children (I would say if they were not primary school age they certainly were middle school age, but they were not beyond the middle school age) sitting down in a group of boys and girls older than they were. I stopped and said, 'Excuse me, have you no homework? Have no place to go? Why are you not at home?' Madam Speaker, the kind of answer I got is the kind of answer I could not repeat in these hallowed Chambers. People near the congregation spot had been telling me of this, and I had noticed it, but that was the first time that I attempted to engage them in conversation. People who go to use the telephones in the call boxes are disturbed and taunted by them. Some of them I noticed riding around with machetes stuck on the back of their bicycles.

There is a general realisation of hopelessness because it seems that the police are ineffective in dealing with them. These were juveniles, and that is an indication of what is to come!

Yesterday afternoon a gentleman told me that at three o'clock in the afternoon he saw one of them in the company of some known drug dealers walking up Walkers Road - at three o'clock in the afternoon! The gentleman told me that he could almost guarantee that wherever they were going and whatever they were up to, it was no good. I found out that the little ones are used as mules and peddlers by the older ones because they are told, 'Listen, if the police catch you, they can't do you anything.' We have to find a way to stop that if our efforts are going to be productive.

I am familiar with what is done, and we are making some progress. But it seems to me that to wipe out this scourge we almost have to deal on a one-to-one basis and go out like the Jehovah's Witnesses - knock on the doors and request to be invited inside, if you call them to the Town Halls they will not come, if you call them to the Civic Centres they will not come, if you call them to the Church they will not come. God knows we cannot afford that expense of operating on a one-to-one basis. It is most discouraging.

I suppose that many people, cynics and people who want to explain away, say that it is the price we have to pay for progress. Well, I do not think it is good enough to say that we have to accept that and give up on the problem. While it is true that a certain amount of it is due to progress, I think that all of us have a moral obligation and responsibility. I have to concede that for all of the faults of the Government, we will not be able to solve the problems if, when the Government puts infrastructure in place, it is not being used, or the people who are affected do not come forward. I think we need a moral awakening in the country.

As representatives there are those of us who try to go out of our way, but we cannot take all of our time, as sympathetic as we are and as much as we would like to hold the hands of the people, because it would mean that others are going to be neglected. But I wonder about the kind of future we are going to have in Bodden Town and other places if some of these people do not come forward, or if we do not reach them and try to rescue them.

I noticed in the Throne Speech that mention was made of converting the Town Halls of some districts into district libraries. There was an omission of any district library for Bodden Town, yet I recall a request being made to consider the conversion of the old clinic into some kind of library-cum-resource centre. I hope that the omission does not mean that no consideration is being given but, rather, that in this case it means reference was being made to the Town Halls. I believe that if we have a little library-cum-resource centre we might be able to attract some of these young people who congregate in the evenings across from the Post Office, particularly if we can get a few computers. We can lure them in under the pretext that they can play some computer games. I would be prepared to help in whatever capacity I can; indeed, I have spoken to some persons who said that they would be prepared to help in the acquisition of some computers once we get a place where we could use them adequately and effectively.

While I am on this note talking about problems in the community and young persons and the family, I want also to say that I am very concerned about the breakdown of families in this country. Just a few days ago I was talking to a Marriage Officer who told me that he has discontinued the practice of asking someone after their spouse because he is discouraged by the number of times he has been told, "Well, we broke up two years ago, three years ago, a year ago, four years ago."

I notice that in Michigan, in the United States... I was viewing a programme rather recently and there is a great outcry now for the authorities to make it more difficult for people to dissolve unions especially where children are involved. It was most fascinating. When children are involved, particularly if they are at a young and malleable age, and their parents go to court they are invariably never granted a dissolution. The court recommends that they go and seek counselling, sometimes up to as long as three years; and if there is no amelioration then they go to court again, and the court suggests another route. So now there is a move to seriously view the dissolution of unions with greater care.

The commentator was saying that Michigan is the leading state in that practice, but other states within the United States are following suit because it is realised that many of the problems of the inner cities have their origin in the fact that families have broken down and that some of these problems could be alleviated if both parents were working towards the upbringing of the children. I hope that this kind of move would be contagious, infectious, and would spread worldwide even to our little country of the Cayman Islands. It seems to me that in far too many cases enough effort is not made to salvage families. People approach disbandment with an almost cavalier disregard even when young children are involved.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the luncheon suspension?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.52 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.43 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The First Elected Member for Sodden Town, continuing the debate.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the lunch break I was talking about the breakdown of family structures in the community. I wish to make the point that with the evidence that I as an amateur have been able to gather it is my observation that the problem stems from a breakdown in relationships, a lack of respect and an inability or a reluctance to accord respect and to reciprocate. It is a pity that we do not have available to us any formal opportunities for learning about this. But I also want to say that this whole business of lack of respect is not only limited or confined to outside of this Parliament or to families, I think that much of it happens inside of here too.

It seems that there is need for much improvement in the relationship between those people who find themselves in the Governing positions and those of us who find ourselves on the other side - particularly the Opposition. Really, I cannot understand, it is absolutely mind-boggling to me the lack of respect and the lack of sense of protocol that exists. It is unfortunate that the Chamber is not full because I think that this is something that everyone should hear.

Recently, the Minister for Education and Planning made a visit to one of the schools in my constituency to perform a ceremony, I think it was opening an art room. I only learned about the visit when I read it in the newspaper a day or so immediately following. By sheer coincidence one of the classes at the school invited me to give a little talk about how the Government of the Cayman Islands is structured. When I went to the school the principal, with whom I am acquainted by virtue of the fact that when I was principal many years ago she taught under me, asked me why was it that I had not bothered to attend this ceremony. I told her the reason why I did not attend was because, first of all, I did not know about it, and because I was not invited and I only read about it a day or so afterwards in the newspaper.

That is not by any means an isolated incident, but I want to say that there is virtually no other place in the civilised world where a situation like that would happen. Persons do not have to love me personally, I have my family for that. But certainly the position I hold in trust for the people deserves some respect, and protocol would demand that if someone is visiting my constituency or the constituency of which I am the First Elected Member, that I would be given the opportunity, or certainly notified. It happens with other Members too. My colleague, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, suffers similar fate.

I come back to the point that relationships in the broader community cannot be expected to be better if this is the kind of relationship existing among leaders of the country's Parliament. I would hope that if the shoe were on the other foot I would not be so narrow-minded or so insular, or feel so threatened.

To revert to the complaints I hear about the breakdown of families, many of them emanate from a similar lack of respect between one or both mates. Common courtesy (as my mother used to call these things) and decorum dictates that we communicate at certain levels with each other. Sometimes we as the leaders can but lament the breakdown in the wider society because in our positions we do not set any examples worthy of following.

It concerns me, though, and I hope that we can find the fortitude and the formula to reverse the breakdown in our society, otherwise we will be confronted with the same kind of problems that the inner cities of the United States and other countries are confronted with - rebellious, disenfranchised and alienated youths.

I want to make a few brief comments on the Ministry of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. That Ministry, like the others, has its challenges to face, the most obvious being the necessity to come to grips with a sensible road system throughout Grand Cayman. I would say that time is of the essence seeing that we are developing all of the time, and lands which could be used for corridors and roads are being developed at a rapid rate and the cost of building roads no doubt increases year by year. Every year we import additional automobiles. Time is of the essence for us to provide a realistic solution.

We are challenged, too, by the need to arrive at sensible policies and programmes to protect the environment while being in a position to satisfy the demand for greater and greater physical development.

We are only holding our positions and the resources of this country in trust for future generations. It is important that we remember this when we make decisions and when we are confronted with choices. There is now a growing consciousness about protection and conservation of the environment. I heard as recently as one day this week, people saying you cannot eat conservation.' If we destroy or upset the balance of nature too radically, we will be confronted with problems greater than we can solve easily. There are those of us, myself included, who believe that the outbreak of such things as the Ebola virus, and Marburg virus are really not purely accidental, but is nature's way of telling us 'Hey, you are upsetting the balance'.

I want to say that we have an obligation to develop, but to develop sensibly taking into consideration the fact that we are only the trustees for future Caymanians. Those of us who argued in favour of the establishment of an Environmental Impact Study said that we favour a protection and conservation unit; we believe it has its place, and we would encourage the Government to work on this department.

The Public Works Department continues to struggle to satisfy all, including persons like myself, who make requests and demands through the Ministry. I think that they do well, but I am not saying that their services could not be improved. I expressed gratitude to those who work conscientiously, and it is purely coincidental that I see them now in my constituency improving the road shoulders and in some cases widening the roads. Heaven knows it was desperately needed and it will certainly make it safer for pedestrians, and for those who drive it will give them a bit more maneuvering room. I hope that we can find a way to be more efficient and able, within our means and resources, to achieve a greater level of satisfaction - although some people still complain that there is far too much extravagance and waste.

I want to deal now with page 22 of the Throne Speech and talk a little about the Ministry of Youth. I want to begin by making the observation that I have noticed many of the functions and services previously handled by the Social Services Department are now emanating directly from the Ministry. I want to express concern with this practice and say that it is somewhat a departure from what has been the practice in the past, where financial assistance came directly through the Social Services Department.

I want to make the point again that there is a need for an obvious separation of the position of the Minister from other units which can dispense with these kinds of functions and assistance. It would be in keeping with what I call an impersonal relationship; one way of avoiding a catalogue of controversy, suspicion, and accusation. Importantly, in an election year there are bound to be hints and aspersions. This is not to say that anything untoward is happening or will happen, it is just sometimes better for the areas to be black and white, especially as this was the case in the past.

I lay down the challenge, and I do not know from whence the answer will come, but I would expect to hear the reason and rationale for this change from past practice.

Recently there has been a flurry of activity regarding sports and sports facilities. I think that the country has always had a certain level of sports-mindedness and we are doing well. I see that certain organised sports like football and basketball are holding the interest of our youth. Softball, too, has been experiencing exponential growth (and the popularity among some of the young people exceeds my imagination), even though I remember years ago, shortly after the Cuban Revolution when we were a transient point for refugees on the way to Miami, baseball was a popular sport. I remember playing myself against some of the teams, including a team which was composed entirely of Cubans. So I think we have arrived at the point now where we need more programmes in place.

I want to say that I had hoped that the onus for these programmes would not have had to come from the Government, but I am satisfied that the Government is going to have to spearhead the effort because, for whatever reason, the support in some communities for some sports is not as forthcoming as it should be. I would hope that the private sector would also, to a greater extent, rally to help the Government.

There have been some successes but there is room for improvement. I would like to take a moment to express appreciation to some people who helped in a little organisation which I spearheaded some years ago in Bodden Town. Persons like Coach Gilley Seymour, Neil Prendegrast and Mr. Azzis, who gave of their time to help with our football club (which I stand here proudly to say I have a team in the Second Division). We have an Under-19 Team, an Under-16 Team and an Under-14 Team, roughly 100 youngsters in a football programme in Bodden Town. We get some help from a corporate sponsor, Kentucky Fried Chicken, we get some help from the Government by way of uniforms, but much of the expenses also have to be defrayed by other people, including yours truly, because we try to inculcate the philosophy where we do not expect charity to provide everything. I do not believe this organisation is unique, but what is unique is the level and the kind of organisation we have, because our organisation, I am told, has been looked at as a model for the Football Association to encourage other football teams to emanate.

I think that we make certain demands on Government for facilities, but when the Government provides the facilities the people in the community, including the parents, have to make some effort to see that the facilities are being utilised and that there are people who are capable of supporting the programmes. So I would hope that in the next little while, to complement the facilities that we have, the Government could find some way of encouraging and helping with the various programmes in the districts.

I have thought that one of the ways in which the Government could really help motivate and send a clear message is to try to identify persons who have skills to offer, like Gilley Seymour, and send them away either on secondment or on brief stints of training, perhaps three months at a time, until they have reached a level of expertise where they could quite comfortably and realistically be given the responsibility to start these things in the communities. I know some years ago that is how the Ministry of Youth and Sports started in Jamaica. I believe we have many potential athletes and from time to time we read of their performance and witness their performances in the newspaper and otherwise.

I believe that we can go a long way towards providing constructive activities, but the focus should now be on programmes. Again, in all fairness to the Government, I do not think that we can expect the Government to be the 'be all and the end all', putting unreasonable demands on them. We should try to help however and wherever we can.

But, again, I noticed some experiences in Bodden Town where the parents for the most part abnegate their share of responsibility and some of them do not even come out to see their children play and encourage them. This is a pity and is really unfortunate. Sometimes it is no wonder that we do not achieve more success than we do, because winning is certainly not everything. How nice it would be for a youngster to see his mom and dad out there cheering him on when he is playing a game - even if he does not win a gold medal or come first - just cheering him on. Then, at the end of the game, they could go up to him and say, 'Good effort son, next time try a little harder.' I mean we as the coaches and as the founders of the programmes do that, and can do that, but it does not have the same effect if their mom or dad did it.

So the responsibility lies beyond the Government and it is unfair (even though I am the greatest critic the Government has) for us to expect the Government to provide the facilities and then come and cheer on the players too. Really, they have other responsibilities.

I think that when all is said and done we still have some way to go. We will only achieve success and continued prominence if we find ways to narrow the differences, ways to improve relationships and to place less importance on who is what. Believe you me, it does not significantly matter who is Government and who is Opposition - if the Cayman Islands suffers, we all suffer. It does not matter who is Government and who is Opposition if we lose our good name and reputation. What matters is not winning or losing an election, it is not being an opposition of two (as I am frequently reminded in this chamber), or three (as I am corrected); but what matters is all of us pulling our weight, helping each other and being responsible for developing the best Cayman Islands that we know how. It is unfortunate, but it is a reality of life that sometimes brings out the best we have to endure criticism, and sometimes criticism which is not constructive. I make no apologies for any criticism that I make. I would only footnote it by saying that whenever I criticise it is given with the best of intention in the hope that it will improve the performance of the entity or individual whom I am criticising.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to offer my contribution to the debate on the Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency the Governor. I am very pleased and honoured that the people of Bodden Town have made it possible for me to be one of their representatives in the House and to make my contribution.

The speech given by His Excellency outlines the projects that will shape not just our economy, but our lives in the community in the coming years. There is ample material for lengthy debate and discussion, however, I will limit my comments to those points which I feel are the most critical and important to me. Perhaps one day I will become long-winded, but for the time being I will stay short and to the point.

First I would like to state that it is reassuring to see so much progress being made on so many fronts and to see concrete plans outlined on so many issues. These plans certainly indicate that much action is in the works. As we move forward we must be certain that we are taking a long-term view before taking short-term action. Our vision must always include the intangibles, we must not measure quality of life with an economic yard-stick. We must not forget the importance of family and spiritual development. When we talk about progress we must strive for harmony that reigns in a society where no one feels forgotten.

The programmes put forward by the Ministry for Community Development appear to be well-rounded including the areas of culture and sports. Nevertheless, I believe the findings of the Family Study and subsequent Crime Survey hold the key to our solutions on how best to help the youth of today and conserve the integrity of the family.

While I appreciate that most Caymanians enjoy a high standard of living, I am amazed how many people in my district are still in need. There are many who are helpless, and some who could help themselves but for whatever reasons are not able. This issue needs attention, and I look forward to taking a closer look at the restructuring of the Social Services Department as it relates to the problems in my district.

On the subject of development, we as a community encourage growth. However, growth purely for the sake of growth can lead to negative consequences down the road. We must not fail to consider the consequences for tomorrow of the actions we are taking today. We are already feeling the strain of rapid growth on our roads, our environment, and our human resources.

Cayman is a very small place with lots of talented and ambitious people in a hurry to enjoy the fruits of our economic development. We need to have a plan in place to manage this growth. We must avoid being reactive as has been done so often in the past. One of my key concerns relating to managing growth is our level of commitment to protecting our environment.

Cayman is a tiny place with some 33,000 residents, and yet our environment and our infrastructure have to handle over a million people a year. This puts a strain on all of our resources. At the current rate of growth, it is projected that our landfill area for garbage disposal will be full to capacity in six years. I encourage Government and the Department of Environment to strengthen our recycling programmes and to increase efforts to educate the public on the importance of adhering to the programmes as they are put in place. We need a long-- term plan for dealing with this critical issue.

I am very delighted to see that tourism is showing tremendous growth so far this year with an 18% increase recorded in January. While I recognise the important contribution this sector makes to our economy, it too impacts on our environment and our infrastructure, once again calling for managed growth. Hopefully our people will agree with the Tourism Management Plan and make certain that growth in this sector is managed in such a way as to protect the delicate balance of our environment.

I strongly encourage educational programmes that teach both our residents and our visitors how to protect Cayman's natural resources. It is my understanding that there is discussion about the need to educate our people as to the importance of tourism to our economy. I strongly believe that we need an educational programme in this area. Cayman promotes itself abroad as a friendly and welcoming destination. However, sometimes, for whatever reasons, our people do not always present themselves in this way. We must learn to keep the welcome mat brushed off, standing ready for our visitors from abroad since they play a very important part in our livelihood.

People come to our islands because they feel safe and welcome. We must all do our part to ensure that these visitors enjoy their stay and return. After all, they come here for the most part with abundant goodwill and a desire to enjoy their interactions with our people.

We must also encourage our young people to take pride in the fact that we have a strong and flourishing service economy. It is important that they respect those who work in the service sector because our welfare depends on tourism and hospitality revenues.

As for tourism products, I am pleased that we will see a number of new attractions coming on line this year, such as Pedro's Castle and additions to the Botanic Park. These new heritage and land attractions will make our islands attractive to a broader market and give tourists a truly cultural experience.

It is also very encouraging to see that Cayman Airways is seeing much improvement in its activities. The addition of the Orlando gateway will bring additional visitors to Cayman and dollars to the National Carrier.

On the issue of security in our islands, I commend Commissioner Anthony Grey for his move to civilianise a number of non-operational police posts. As a result we are seeing more police officers in operational duties. I have seen where this increased level of enforcement has already had a positive effect in the community, especially with respect to traffic violations. Residents are enjoying the added benefits of a higher degree of security for their families and their property. However, these islands, as small as they are, continue to be plagued with too many drug users and drug traffickers. It is my hope that these officers will take a very tough stance on this issue and put the fear of God in these criminals.

On the issue of roads, I note that over the years we have spent much money improving the shoulders of the main road through Bodden Town. What I would like to see for my people are road improvements that will make it easier for people to get to and from their homes. This is particularly critical during the rainy season when water settles and aggravates the problem on these smaller roads. We urge Government to spend more money on these interior roads leading to homes.

Regarding youth development, I have noted that the prime time for our youth to get into trouble is during the after school hours, before their parents come home from work. The Ministry for Community Development has been actively addressing this problem. I plan to get more involved in my ongoing commitment to youth development.

I will be approaching the Minister about setting up an after school programme for the district of Bodden Town, for which I will also be making an appeal to the young parents for their assistance, as I believe this is very much needed in Bodden Town.

Finally, I would like to state that I am proud to be a Member of the House and a part of the Legislative process. I aim to make a valuable contribution to the welfare of these islands and I look forward to working with all of you to this end. I really appreciate the work the Honourable Anthony Eden has accomplished in Bodden Town with his leadership. Certainly, we have more to do and, with my assistance now, we can accomplish more.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

[pause]

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, I think this would be a good time to take our break.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

After the Throne Speech was delivered by His Excellency the Governor, I heard remarks like, "This is an election year", and then, "Not during this meeting, but during the June Meeting we will start the campaign." But, somehow, I think the campaign has started in this meeting, and I guess I might as well join the line.

I would like to thank His Excellency the Governor for his first Throne Speech delivered in this Honourable House. I think it was a very good speech and it speaks for itself. Perhaps the delay in people standing up to speak is because they are finding it hard to rebut the speech.

In making my contribution I would like to speak on the Throne Speech section by section. First of all, I would like to congratulate His Excellency for the comment he made in the introduction of his Speech, where he says: "In a nation state, Government has a duty to the citizens. It has a duty to provide the services, to maintain law and order, ensure care for all and offer education and training for the people. Teachers, nurses, police officers and other civil servants provide the services for the community. But they alone cannot educate your child, care for your sick or elderly or maintain the discipline needed for a well ordered society. Our forefathers shared in these duties knowing that they had a responsibility for the good of their families and their community." Those words are very strong.

Being one of the older members in this Parliament, I am well aware of the care that was given to the sick and the elderly, and of the efforts parents made to provide education for their children, not depending upon anyone to assist. It would be my dream for these islands to return to that sort of care and a dedication to the education of our children. But these are the things that come with progress, and we must accept that when our sick and our elderly are not cared for and maintained, disciplining of our children is no longer there. Some parents (and I must say, I do not think it is the majority in our islands) are not worried about the education of their children. This is where the Government will have to take a stand. We must offer every child in this country the opportunity to move up in their education. That provision must be made for them.

The other paragraph in the introduction of the Throne Speech that I would like to mention is: "As the Legislative Assembly convenes today to make laws and policies to further the progress of this nation, let us not forget that while Government has a responsibility to the people we also have a responsibility to ourselves, our families and the communities in which we live. Government alone cannot safeguard the future of these islands. We must all take responsibility for that task."

I was in the common room when the First Elected Member for Bodden Town was speaking on the behaviour of the young people of our country, how they are riding on bicycles with machetes pushed into their clothes somehow. I think I heard the remark that, "it was not to chop bush." I think this is where we as legislators and members of our community have a responsibility. Rather than standing on the floor of this House making comments which now make these children believe that they are macho boys and girls, we must stop and talk to them and find out the reasons. Let us show our community spirit and our community involvement in helping the youth of the Cayman Islands.

I will now turn to the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs. I note with interest that there is now a committee in place that is reviewing the General Orders, the Public Service Commission and Regulations of the Civil Service. I hope that at the end of this exercise some recommendation will be made in regard to civil servants holding posts called 'personal to holder', who have held these positions for many, many years, and who have reached the top of the salary scale for that position. There are no recommendations being put forward to increase these salary scales, but those persons stay in those posts year after year without any increase until there is an increase for the entire Civil Service.

These people are very loyal civil servants in that they know that they are filling a position that is personal to them, but they continue to arrive at work before 8.30 am and they continue to remain there until after 5 o'clock, but they are going nowhere. We are no longer a responsible Government when these people are allowed to continue as they are because they are going to become disillusioned and leave these jobs, leaving the Civil Service without very good workers.

As I have said in this Parliament on one or two other occasions since being elected, I am greatly concerned over what is happening in the Civil Service with our young people going overseas, returning trained in a specific area (whether that area be the medical field or the financial field), reaching the top of their salary scale and there being nowhere else for them to go. For them to be able to advance financially they must ask for a transfer to another department which has nothing whatsoever to do with the field in which they have been trained.

It is stupidity for us to send our young people overseas to train them in specific areas then when they return and work for some years they get to where they can go no further and that training is lost. I feel that what we must do is look at the situation very carefully with a view to providing specific salary scales for these people, sending them overseas for refresher courses (advancement in their own field) rather than being transferred to another field.

As I said in this Chamber in my debate on the Budget Address (I think it was), the other problem with young Caymanians going overseas and returning qualified is that they come back with their Business Administration degrees, their Masters in Business Administration, or Bachelor of Science, whatever it is, and they are put in posts at an Executive Officer's salary scale. These young people have spent many hours, many years, getting a professional qualification and they must be recognised in their own country by being put in a salary scale equivalent to their qualifications.

If this is not addressed in the very near future, the Civil Service, in my opinion, is going to suffer a severe brain drain because these young people are going to move on; they are going to be offered better jobs at better pay. Whether we want to admit it or not, better pay is one of the main reasons why these young people have gone overseas to further their education. They are loyal civil servants, and I am certain they would like to remain in the Civil Service, but with the cost of living in this country whether it be for an apartment, for food or whatever it is, these young people are going to look for better salaries.

The old days of the civil servant standing by and being loyal, spending his 30 or 35 years in the Service (and at the end he gets his pension) are long gone. Until we can show these young people some appreciation for their going overseas to improve themselves educationally, coming back here with a profession to take up their rightful places in this country, we will not keep them in the Civil Service.

I am not just talking off the top of my head, I think we have had this happen in the Audit Department on one or two occasions. I think we have had it happen in the Computer Services Department, and other departments of Government. So it is a real problem and it must be addressed.

I will now turn to the Royal Cayman Islands Police. I, too, would like to join other Members in extending my appreciation to the new Commissioner, and to congratulate him on the drive to improve and develop community relations in order to enhance public confidence in our police force. I feel that the programme which the Commissioner of Police has put in place is needed, as the public's respect for the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force was very low at the time when the new Commissioner took over. I would like to wish him every success in his venture to gain back the respect of the public as far as the police force is concerned. I can promise him that whatever I can do as a legislator to help him in this venture, I am prepared to do.

In one breath I am praising the Commissioner of Police and, in the next I am a bit disappointed that in this Throne Speech there is no mention of the provision for a police officer in the outer districts such as Bodden Town, North Side and East End at least 24 hours a day. If they cannot give us 24 hour a day service, at least give us a visible officer 12 hours a day.

On numerous occasions I have had reason to call the North Side Police Station and I get no answer. I am put through to the Bodden Town Station, and I get no answer, and then I am put through to the central Station. In this day and age with the increase of drug usage, and as we have seen in the area of Rum Point just recently, the drop off of tremendous amounts of drugs, I think it is now a priority to give the outer districts a 24 hour police officer or the visibility of a police officer at all times.

I know we have heard the argument in this Legislative Assembly that to provide a 24 hour service there will be a need for eight police officers for each district. Perhaps this is correct. They are the experts, I am not. But I find it hard to believe. I hope that the Governor, together with the Commissioner of Police, will see that the outer districts are given proper policing.

I am proud to see that the School Liaison Programme will be introduced in 1996, because I think we need to get back to where our children realise that a police officer is their friend and not their enemy. You will hear kids saying, "Oh, the policeman does not care for me." Where these kids are getting this from I do not know. I think that the School Liaison Programme will improve the relationship between the police and the children of the Cayman Islands.

I will now touch briefly on the Prison Department. I am very happy to see that security at Northward Prison will be carefully maintained and that staff and inmate training and welfare programmes will remain high priorities during 1996. I am exceptionally pleased to read that a sentence planning programme for each prisoner will start shortly. This is aimed at improving their chances for a more positive future upon release, the objective being that all inmates will be given meaningful work and activities.

This is a much needed programme because we have provided the services in Northward (that is, the Government) where these inmates who choose to further their education are given this opportunity. But I think it is a waste of money and time unless there is some programme in place so that when these unfortunate persons leave that compound they can secure employment and find themselves back into society and not be rejected.

We can set in place many programmes in Northward Prison as we can afford, or as we would like to. But until there is an education of the general public that these persons have paid their debt, many people will be hurt by their actions and will not want to accept them back into society. As a Government we have a part to play in educating the general public to accept them and give them a fair chance to come back into the society.

I note that counselling, including drug counselling, continues on a larger scale. This is very much needed because I believe I am correct in saying that over 50 per cent of the inmates in Northward Prison are probably there on some drug related charges. I have advocated for many years (even before coming to these hallowed chambers as a representative) that while we put a lot of effort into arresting the users of drugs we must deal with the suppliers of these illegal drugs in our country. These people are arrested on numerous occasions, we do not hear anything about them going to court. We will read it in the newspaper and know that they are back on the street. I think the new Head of the Drug Squad has made it his duty to concentrate on trying to capture the illicit suppliers of this killer in the Cayman Islands.

Numerous homes have been wrecked because of these people who supply drugs. They have no regard for law and order, or for the pain that they are bringing upon the young people of the Cayman Islands and the parents of those young people. I think this Government has tried its best in every way to address the problems of drugs. More of us should get involved and become community spirited.

I am not boasting in saying this, but for a number of years I have tried my best to have some of the users of illicit drugs live with me to try to curb their habit. This is what we should be doing, instead of making bold statements that we must write off an entire generation to the use of drugs. That statement will go down in history, particularly in the hearts of the mothers of these children in these islands.

Instead of trying to do something to alleviate that burden on those parents we are saying, "write them off." Had these children been our children would we make such stupid and bold statements? I say no!

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I would like to call your attention the fact that there is no quorum in the House.

The Speaker: Serjeant-at-Arms would you please check and see where the other Members are?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: I was hoping that this would be a good time to break. That is why I called your attention to it.

(Members' laughter)

Mr. Roy Bodden: The evening is far gone, but I say continue, Ma'am.

The Speaker: I think we can continue without a break. Anyone who wishes to go outside can do so.

Please continue, Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: The next section that I will touch on briefly is the Department of Immigration. His Excellency the Governor made a very strong statement in the first paragraph under this department. I read: "I am determined that these islands will not be a stopping place nor a haven for economic migrants."

Had we someone at the helm when we had the influx of Cuban refugees making such a strong statement, perhaps this country would not have been brought almost to the brink of financial ruin.

I hope I will not be called out of order if I dare go into the Department of Immigration. I, for one, have no further authority in dealing with civil servants other than to vote salaries, and I do not intend to deal with it any other way.

I hope that I will not hear that the lack of administration in that department and the low morale of the civil servants working there is because the Heads of the Department are dealing with the Cuban refugees. It is time to put that problem behind us and let us now get on and deal with the actual problems of the immigration situation in this country.

Just this morning I was glancing through the classified advertisements in the newspaper. There were one or two ads that actually jumped out at me. Perhaps I will be told that this is not the duty of the Immigration Department, but I feel that it is, because when an application is made there is a process this application has to go through. It has to go to someone at the Immigration Department with all its attachments - the advertisement attached, letters, et cetera.

We must be more vigilant. One, in particular, says: "Christian Youth Worker, With a love for children and young people. Good interpersonal relationship, willingness to get along well with others and an ability to offer basic counselling. College degree and computer skills necessary." Now, if I were in that department clearing these applications to go before the Board, this would jump out at me right away. There is someone already in mind for this position. It is so hurtful when one says, 'Christian Youth Worker' and one is prepared to circumvent the laws to bring in someone that is not a Caymanian.

The other one says: "Chicken Chicken/Shift Supervisor", and goes on to say: "Qualified Caymanians are encouraged to apply for the position of Shift Supervisor. Enthusiastic person with good communication skills and several years of restaurant management, and computer experience need only apply. Some college level education and demonstrated skills needed." How many of our young people who took it upon themselves to leave this island, who, coming from close-knit families, went out into that big wide world to a university and worked four years for a degree, are going to come back and be a shift supervisor to operate a cash register and set up a shift roster?

The third and last one, which is the best of all, says: "Prior to the application for a work permit, applications are invited from suitable qualified Caymanians for the position of superintendent. The successful candidate will have a minimum of 15 years experience in supervisory level and be capable of working with a minimum of supervision." Superintendent of what? The police? The churches? The superintendent of the schools? Superintendent of what? We are not even being told, because in my belief there is someone waiting in the wings. No Caymanian is going to apply. We will be told 'no Caymanians applied, therefore we need a work permit.'

These are the things that the Immigration Department must be more vigilant about, because I do not even know if these advertisements are copied and handed to members of the Board prior to their meetings.

District Administration: I, too, would like to commend the Governor for taking the initiative to convene an Executive Council meeting in Cayman Brac - the first in 25 years. He has stated that he intends to hold further meetings there in 1996. Perhaps it would be a good idea to once again hold a meeting of this Parliament in Cayman Brac, to let our Sister Islands know that we do believe that they are a part of us.

I, too, would like to say to the people of the Sister Islands that they have one way about them (for the lack of a better word right now) that I have always admired and which is lacking in Grand Cayman. They know their needs, but they are prepared to help themselves; they do not wait for the Government to hand them everything. I am proud of the people of the Sister Islands. It would be a good thing if we as legislators could instill in our people here in Grand Cayman that they can do some of the things that the people of the Sister Islands do for themselves.

I am proud of the projects that are proposed for the Sister Islands for 1996: "Marine facilities will be upgraded by widening the West End channel access in Cayman Brac and providing a boat launching ramp at Point of Sand's jetty in Little Cayman. Land was recently purchased to enable the improvement of facilities at both the Primary Schools and High School. Spot Bay's cemetery wall will be completed to improve protection from heavy seas. A new sub-post office is proposed for West End with upgrades to other Sub-Post Offices. Phase II of the multi-purpose building in Utile Cayman will be completed and the Public Works Department compound will be relocated from Blossom Village to a site near the multi-purpose building."

"Housing facilities for Government workers on Little Cayman will be upgraded. Office accommodation will be provided for the police, including a holding cell for detainees." Seeing that no representative of the Sister Islands is a part of the National Team, I think the National Team should be commended for looking after the Sister Islands and seeing that they are getting their fair share of development and money.

The next section that I would like to touch on briefly is Personnel, Training, Management and Computer Services. I have read this section on Personnel, Training (I emphasise Training) but I see nowhere that training has been mentioned. It says: "During 1996 the Personnel and Training Department will provide management development programmes..." is this considered training?, implement a new grading structure and review the performance appraisal system.

"Computer Services will implement several new or replacement computer systems in some Government Departments."

"A new computer system to assist in the administration of financial and human resources is being developed. The project, guided by a steering committee chaired by the Accountant General, is expected to be completed soon."

I have read through the Throne Speech and, if I am not mistaken, there are either two or three sections that have specifically mentioned training for their officers. The Fire Department is one, and I think the other one is the Tourism Department, and there was another I cannot remember. If this department is specifically responsible for the training of civil servants, one would have thought that they would have given us some policy as to what their training programmes would be for 1996.

I would have liked to have seen under this section words to the effect, 'the goal of this department for 1996 would be to have as many Caymanians as possible with the necessary qualifications filling top positions, such as Computer Services.' I specifically mention Computer Services, not out of any gripe with the person who is the Head of the Department, but I have been hearing numerous persons speaking recently on the young Caymanian who is filling the second or third position in that department who has a Bachelors Degree; a very brilliant Caymanian who was told that in order to advance he needed a Masters Degree. He took it upon himself and hurriedly went off and got his degree. How long are we going to stifle these young Caymanians? They will be taken from the Civil Service (as I have said before) by the private sector of this country. There is going to be a ricochet effect because other Caymanians who are qualified are being stifled.

I know that legislators have no business in these matters, but I think that I do have a business in any matter concerning the young Caymanians of these islands. (The word "Government" in these latter days, means the five elected Ministers of Executive Council. This is not what I mean and it is said by some people in Jamaica, "cock-roach don't business in fowl fight). But if the Government does not set an example by promoting and advancing its people, how can we expect the private sector not to stifle them?

Stories have been told to me by reliable people (they have no reason to lie to me or to exaggerate) but there are young people in this country who are with banks, trust companies, for three or four years and all of a sudden there is a position for an Assistant Manager. A person is sent from overseas with absolutely no knowledge of banking or trust company work. These are the things that we as legislators have got to do something about.

We have people in our country, and we need people (I hope that no one takes it that I believe we do not need outside workers in these islands). We need them. I will be the first to say it. But, particularly when we deal with the Civil Service and we have people who are not Caymanians who will have to make recommendations for a Caymanian who is next in line to replace them, how long will that Caymanian have to stay second in command? I would not make a recommendation to lose my job in paradise.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Laughter.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I just speak the truth.

I think that the Temporary First Official Member has the same concerns about some of these things that I have mentioned. I think he was on a Committee dealing with the Revision of Salaries. I was reading the report one night about one o'clock and there were slight recommendations in it for people who hold these positions 'personal to holder', and those who have reached the top of their salary scale. I would like to ask him if he would convey to His Excellency that we are not giving any command, we are asking him to look into the situation, to be vigilant and see that our people are allowed to advance at every opportunity.

I would like to touch briefly on the Legislative Assembly. I will only say that as Chairman of the Committee for the Introduction of a Register of Interests to the Assembly and a Code of Ethics and Conduct for Legislators, I have every intention of bringing this Committee to a conclusion with legislation before this Honourable Legislative Assembly is dissolved. I am hoping that we will be able to do this early in 1996, hopefully at the next sitting, Madam Speaker.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Hear, hear!

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I am not a person who will start something and leave it up in the air at the end of my term. There is no guarantee, until the last ballot paper is counted, that any one of us will return (even though we feel confident). I would like to bring this to a conclusion as soon as possible.

I will touch briefly on the new efficiency measures.

"New efficiency measures will continue to be applied to the editing of Hansard reports." This is very important, and I feel that whatever is necessary must be done to provide proper editing staff (if it does not exist at this time) to have these Hansard reports completed.

I remember the days when I sat and took the minutes of this House in shorthand. With your guidance, Madam Speaker, these reports were available for the next sitting. I think we need to provide this department with proper staffing so that the same thing can happen once again. I think the 1992 to 1996 Hansards are outstanding, but there is still a backlog of the 1988 to 1992 (I am not certain of the years). We need to do whatever we can to bring them up to date.

Elections: The Governor said that he was most impressed with the professional manner in which the recent by-election in Bodden Town was managed. I, too, would like to congratulate the Supervisor of Elections and his able staff. But I would like to go a little bit further to see the election supervision done in a professional manner. I hope that during the campaigning for the General Election in November, that as the people who want to represent the people of this country we can carry out clean campaigns and not attack one another with personal matters. It has started in my district - not by speaking, but by sending copies of letters with very nasty remarks at the top.

I was sent a copy of a letter written to the public. I have no problem with that. I can defend my position, and the people of North Side will judge me on my performance. But when people will stoop to writing nasty remarks, which if seen by the wrong people can be misconstrued, where decent citizens of this country who are trying to do a job for their people can be marred by such rude and nasty remarks... There is no forgiveness, particularly when people making these nasty remarks are over the age of 80.

I am a little bit disappointed that there is not a voters' registration card system in place for the election in November; but I am certain that there is a legitimate reason why it has not been done. I have every confidence in my Government that if it could have been done for the November Election it would have been done. Let us hope, and put every effort in place, so that by the next election this system will be in place.

I am going to pass over the Portfolio of Legal Administration very quickly. I hope that my remarks will not be found to be rude, but I will only say two words, "lacking information".

The Portfolio of Finance and Development: I would like to congratulate the Honourable Financial Secretary on a number of points. He has taken the decision to "...propose to review and revise the Public and Finance Audit Law, and Financial and Stores Regulations, to establish the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange and an Integrated Financial and Manpower Information System." These are big jobs to take on, and if I am not wrong (I stand to be corrected), I think it states under the Financial and Stores Regulations that when jobs are put out to public tender that the contractors have to come up with a performance bond. I think that some research into this needs to be done. What we are finding in Cayman is that the smaller contractors cannot get above a certain level to get these jobs, for the mere fact that they are not in a position to come up with that exorbitant performance bond.

A lot has been said about my regarding of the building of the North Side Civic Centre, such as 'imagine all this construction is going in the district of North Side and she, as a representative was not trying to get jobs for the contractors in the district'. It is so sad when people will open their mouths and say things that they do not know anything about, because anyone who is spreading that rumour could have come to me (as I believe I am the most humble politician in this Parliament) and asked. I went out of my way to see my people, to ask them to submit tenders for the building of that Civic Centre. One contractor did, but his obstacle was the performance bond. Whatever assistance we can give to our smaller contractors to get them above that level and get the large jobs, let us look and see what can be done.

I would like to thank the Financial Secretary for saying that during the year the Economics and Statistics Office will also assist in preparing data relating to gender issues. If I am correct, I think it is the first time that any statistics relating to rape, abuse, domestic violence, etcetera, is going to be prepared.

Of course I will be called a feminist here again, but I do not mind. We have women on the outside who support the Opposition saying that we should have never brought a motion to set up a Women's Office. But I did, because I thought it was needed.

I would also like to thank the Honourable Financial Secretary where he proposes under the Treasury Department that "...in 1996, the Treasury proposes to improve its accounting system and introduce a computerised procedure for reconciling bank accounts to the Treasury records." This will be a step in the right direction because I think this is one of the problems that the Auditor General had during his inspection of the Treasury Department. I do not think it was anything that was done deliberately, but I think if we can provide the people in these departments with the proper equipment, with the proper accounting system, whatever it is (computers), their jobs will be made easier and we can expect better results in the future.

Revenue collection: I have heard a tremendous amount of talk about this since this House started. Recently we heard the Financial Secretary put forward what he intends to do to collect the revenue owed to the Government of these islands by setting up a debt collection unit within the Treasury. I am a bit disappointed that this collection unit had not been put in place prior to now. I think that in 1995 we sat in Finance Committee and voted funds for a legal employee to be appointed specifically for the collection of debts. But better late than never.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Oh yeah!

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: The Ministry for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce: I would like to congratulate the Minister on the Botanic Park, a project in my district which provides jobs for a few of the people who are interested. There is one particular young man working at the Botanic Park for whom I have the greatest of respect, and I hope that one day (with training) he will advance to one of the top positions at the park. Perhaps Honourable Minister, in his reply, will give me some good news and inform me of the great things which are lying in the wings for this young man from North Side.

The Fire Department: Madam Speaker, this is one department that I can always throw roses at. The officer in charge is a dedicated person. I know that someone is going to take my interest in Caymanians out of context to the point that I do not want (I do not call them expatriates) foreign labourers in these islands. Nothing could be further from the truth, Madam Speaker. But I am proud when one of us will take the decision and bring into the departments of the Civil Service young Caymanians who are capable, and give them the training and encouragement to move up the ladder.

I am proud of the Fire Department. Some of these young men, one in particular (I do not know if he is still there, but I hope he is) had problems, and I am certain he had searched far and wide for a job and the Head of the Fire Department took him on board. I hope he is still there and improving himself.

The Port Authority: I just have one comment to make along the lines of what the lady Member for George Town said regarding the container crane delivery. I have been told that this will allow freight costs to be reduced, or I think I read it in the newspaper. But I hope with the delivery of this container crane that the persons now operating the crane facility on the dock will not be pushed out of business or have to park their cranes, but that something will be there so both can work in conjunction with one another.

I am glad to see that plans have been submitted to the Planning Authority for the approval in principle (let us use these words very carefully, because they can cause great discussions) for the construction of a third landing for cruise ship passengers. I heard at a public meeting that when one uses the words 'approval in principle' it is legally binding no matter how they are used. Well, I would like to congratulate the Minister on this proposed jetty because I think it is well needed.

Tourism has progressed by leaps and bounds since the new Minister took over. I do not think that people can stand in 1996 and say that this was because of programmes that were put in place prior to the last Government's leaving office in 1992. We should have reaped the benefits of that advertising in early 1993. We still cannot be reaping it in 1996. This has got to be good advertising by the new Minister and the members of his staff in the Department of Tourism.

I would like to say that the new Director of Tourism has had it rough at times but she has stuck with it. Personally, I believe that she is doing good and is prepared to work with the people in the hospitality industry and to find training programmes wherever possible for our Caymanians. It has been said on numerous occasions that the hotels are not prepared to take on Caymanians. This is true to a certain extent, and whether it is being called nepotism or otherwise, I stand on the floor of this House today and say to my son (who is involved in one of these hotels and has done his utmost): Bring Caymanians into that industry to continue the good work. Even though it is constantly being said that if the Caymanian is at the top, Caymanians will not be given jobs.

I say to other Caymanians who are in positions in the hotel industry to follow that example and help your own people. Until we as Caymanians unite and are put at the forefront to help our own people, we will not advance and will be constantly bickering at the number of people who are being brought in to take jobs.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION - 4.31 PM

Standing Order 10(2)

The Speaker: Honourable Member, will you be completing your speech shortly?

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: No, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Can I ask for the motion for the adjournment at this time? Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye.. .Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.32 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 1ST MARCH, 1996.

EDITED
FRIDAY
1ST MARCH, 1996
10.10 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to say prayer.

PRAYERS

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. No. 18 standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 18

No. 18: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce to provide an update on the Pedro Castle's renovation project.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Stabilisation of the building and all masonry work on the walls of Pedro Castle have now been completed. A contract for the framing has been awarded and work is about to commence within the next few weeks. The slate to be used for roofing has been shipped and is due to be delivered on site shortly. It is also expected that the floorings will be completed around the same time as the framing and roofing. A bake-oven structure is nearing completion.

Although not part of the historic period, the old Steadman Bodden's house has been relocated on the Pedro Castle site and restored. It will serve as an interpretation centre until the main visitor centre is operational.

In 1995 a contract for the multi-media show was awarded and production has commenced. This show will depict the history of the Pedro Castle and is being developed in close consultation with the Historic Sites Committee and the National Archives. A short six minute promotional video is completed and is about to be aired locally as well as overseas as part of the tourism promotional efforts.

The main visitors centre has been designed and costed. It is proposed that this entire facility be funded by a loan from the Caribbean Development Bank. This has caused some delays, but is now about to be finalised and Government approvals obtained. The centre will consist of a retail shop, offices, restaurant, resource centre and multi-media theatre.

It is expected that the restoration of Pedro Castle itself will be completed around September 1996, but the main visitor centre is not expected to become operational until the summer of 1997.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Minister say what was the initial projected completion cost of this project?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think that information has been made available on many occasions. I do not have it now with me.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister say, based on information he has on hand, if the initial projected cost is on line at present, or if the cost projected now exceeds what was originally conceived?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The present projected cost is on line with the original amount (I do not have the exact amount), but it is certainly not outside the original estimate, if anything it will be less.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Minister say if the project is on schedule as it was originally anticipated?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: No. It is off schedule a bit due to a variety of reasons.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister expand on the awarding of the contract, meaning who received the contract?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The tender for the framing was awarded by the Central Tenders Committee, and I believe (if I am not incorrect) the company is CAT Construction.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the answer the Minister says: "It is proposed that this entire facility be funded by a loan from the Caribbean Development Bank." When the project was initially envisaged and made public, my recollection is that it was to be funded through Government's recurrent revenue. Would the Minister be able to say why the change of tactics has come about?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: There is really no change. Basically, we have said from the beginning that it will be a combination of funding from local revenue and funding from loan.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister say if projections have been made whereby the loan will be repaid from revenue derived from the operation of the facility?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Feasibility studies have been carried out, advice has been received as to marketing the project, and we have analyses which indicate that the project will pay for itself over a period of time.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Minister say if when he stated that a contract for framing was awarded to CAT Construction, he implied it is a contract for the building work, the construction work of the castle, and whether it is a local company? Which company receives the contract for the multi-media show production?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The contract for the framing (those of us who remember the Pedro Castle building, there is a central core of stonework) will be the lumbering and moving on to install the roof of that building.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: There is still the question of whether the construction company is a local company, and who was awarded the multi-media show contract?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The answer to his first question is that CAT Construction is a company that has a local Trade and Business Licence in the Cayman Islands. So I assume it is a local company. I would not go on to say that it is totally owned by local people.

Regarding the multi-media show contract, I do not have that information in my file at the moment.

The Speaker: The last supplementary. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister say if the retail shop and the office, etcetera, are going to be sublet, or operated within the confines of Government?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: All the details on that have not been finalised. The proposal is that the restaurant, in particular, will be sublet (put out to tender to whoever is interested in the bid for that service).

The Speaker: The next question is No. 38, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 38

(Deferred)

No. 38: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning whether Government still allows on-shore mining of marl and, if so, what are the requirements to be met.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: I would ask to please defer this question. It was originally asked of the Minister for Communications and Works and he sent it across, but somehow I do not have the answer ready. I will have the answer ready for Monday or Wednesday. I did mention that to the Honourable Member who asked it.

The Speaker: The question is that the answer to question No. 38 be deferred until a later sitting during this Meeting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 38 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 39 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO.39

No. 39: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works what Government is doing to secure the massive outstanding amounts owed to it for dredging.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As reported by representatives of this Ministry to the Public Accounts Committee in October 1995, the amounts owing to Government for dredging stood at $512,037.00 at that time. This outstanding royalty was represented by: (i) Caymarl Limited - $288,947; (ii) Crystal Harbour - $203,999; (iii) The Shores - $ 19,091, making a total of $512,037.

Since that time, Government has received payment of $203,999 from the Crystal Harbour development, and $19,091 from The Shores, leaving an outstanding amount of $288,947.

Government has been in negotiations with Caymarl Limited and it is expected that the outstanding principal amount of $288,947 will be paid in the very near future. It is our understanding that Caymarl Limited has now secured the financing to pay off this outstanding debt.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Is it the intention of Government to receive the payment of $288,947 from Caymarl Limited before it allows it to further extract marl from the North Sound as stated in the Throne Speech?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: That is part and parcel of the new licence.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 40, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 40

No. 40: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce what the major annual tourism promotions in which the Department of Tourism participates are, and what is the average cost per event.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The major annual tourism promotions are: World Travel Market (London), International Travel Bureau (Berlin), and BIT (Borsa Internazionale de Turismo) Milan. Overall these shows attract 165,530 trade persons and 310,000 consumers. The average cost for the three events is CI$7,633.00. Major funding support from the European Union is obtained to subsidise the cost of these events.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I notice that the Minister said the average cost for the three events was $7,633. Is it that each event costs $7,633 what exactly is the amount?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: My apologies, Madam Speaker, and to the Member. The average cost per event is $7,633. My apology.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Minister say what sort of financial support is received from the European Union? I think it is very good news that they offer some subsidy for it.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Unfortunately I do not have that information with me. But what I can say to the Honourable Member is that the European Union contributes to these particular trade shows and they pay directly, so the remaining balance is paid individually by countries that participate.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister say, based on statistics, what type of results have been achieved by these trade show (by way of numbers) coming to the islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The reference that I would give is that, prior to attending these trade shows in 1994, there were very few European countries (such as Germany, Austria, The Benelux, Italy, Spain, to name a few) that had any increased percentage over the previous year.

Since doing major promotions in the area and attending these trade shows, all of the percentages are up in comparison to 1993 or 1994.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: While this question might be slightly straying, I hope the Minister will condescend to answer. The fact is that the North American market is the largest market, and based on the answer no major promotions are dealing with that market, would the Minister be able to say whether it is something that is taken for granted, or how is promotion dealt with?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: We have regional offices in Los Angeles, Chicago, New York, Houston, and Miami and we have representatives in Tampa, Atlanta, Boston and Baltimore. During the year they carry out promotions in their respective regions and are assisted by the head office (that is the North American Head Office) with these promotions. I do not know it that completely answers the question.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Minister have any idea what type of cost is involved outside the estimated advertising annual budget for the Department with these promotions that are dealt with in the North American continent?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think the Member is asking a question to try to pin-point how these promotions done by the regional offices are funded. I can only refer him to the Budget for the Tourism Department, because each office has an allocated expenditure for the year. That expenditure covers the cost of the individuals who work there as well as their promotional work in the field.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 41, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 41

No. 41: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs: (a) How many applications for Caymanian Status have been received from January 1995 to date; (b) how many were approved in 1995; and (c) how many were denied in 1995.

The Speaker: Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan W. F. Ebanks: A total of 233 applications for Caymanian status were received from January 1995 to date; a total of 196 applications for Caymanian status were approved in 1995; and a total of 18 applications were denied in 1995.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Member be able to tell us by category how these applications were granted?

The Speaker: Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan W. F. Ebanks: The grants were broken down as follows: Descent - 7: section 15(3); Citizenship - 1: section 15(4); Marriage - 115: section 15(5); Marriage to persons now deceased - 2: section 15(6); Legitimate descent - 24: section 15(7); Descent including grandparents - 36: section 15(8); and Losing Caymanian status at 18 years of age - 11: section 15(9).

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Of the total figures for those applications, and deducting the number approved and denied there is a balance of 19. Are these pending further information or where have they gone?

Hon. Donovan W. F. Ebanks: Those would be the applications which are pending a decision.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say if there are any applications which have not been dealt with that were received before January 1995?

The Speaker: Honourable Temporary First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan W. F. Ebanks: I am unable to answer that, but I can undertake to provide an answer to the Member.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 42, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 42

No. 42: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to give a time frame for commencement and completion of the proposed Harquail Bypass Road.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: A specific start date for road construction has not been set. Survey and soil testing on the south part of the road near Paddington Place (Z-99 radio tower) is now underway.

This survey work should allow complete detailed land acquisition estimates to be made by mid March. A supplemental funding request can then be considered by Finance Committee. If land acquisition funds are approved, we believe it will take until the end of May for the land to be secured. If funding arrangements for construction are worked out, construction can then start 1st June. Depending on the weather and the amount of equipment available, construction could be completed within 18 to 24 months.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Minister have any indication regarding the tendering process for this bypass road?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: That would take place as soon as the things I mentioned in the substantive answer are completed.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So it is a correct statement to say that tenders have not been invited thus far.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary First Official.

Hon. John B. McLean: That is correct. We have received proposals from individuals but no tenders have been submitted.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In prior forums the Minister has stated that along with the tendering for construction the Government would also seek tenders for the financing of the construction of the road. In his answer to this question he states that a supplemental funding request can then be considered by Finance Committee.

I am not very clear on whether the two are in line or we are talking a different language at this point. Would the Minister please explain?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: What the Member has said is correct, but regardless of what route we take to commit this country to fund, it will have to come to Finance Committee.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Coming to Finance Committee (again for the purposes of clarity), would the Minister be able to say whether this would simply be to authorise direct borrowing or to authorise guaranteeing borrowing by other entities?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. John B. McLean: If Government decides to go the route of seeking financing, that, in turn, would have to come to Finance Committee. If Government should decide to go the other route mentioned by the Member, that, too, would have to come to Finance Committee.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Contrary to an opinion that I may have formed, Government has not made a final decision as yet as to how it is going to finance the project?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister has made that quite clear, I believe. I do not think that requires an answer.

The Speaker: That now completes Question Time for today.

The next item, Government Business. Debate on the Throne Speech. The Elected Member for North Side continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY MR. JOHN W. OWEN, MBE, GOVERNOR OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS, ON FRIDAY, 16 FEBRUARY, 1996

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the adjournment yesterday evening I had just about completed my presentation on the Ministry for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce. I would like to say to the Honourable Minister and the Director of Tourism that I appreciate their involving the people of this island in the exercise being carried out now by the Ministry and the Department, by allowing our people to meet with the consultants to air their problems. In my opinion, the end result of the Implementation Strategy will be what the people of these islands want.

Unfortunately, I could not be in my district last night when these gentlemen were there due to a prior commitment (which if of another nature I would have cancelled and had been with my people) where I was installed as president of an organisation at an installation ceremony. It was quite hard for me to cancel that appointment.

I had the opportunity, as offered by the Minister to Members of this Parliament, to meet with the consultants in this Legislative Assembly Building. I must say that I was extremely impressed with the professionalism of these gentlemen and with their ability to sit and listen to the four Members who attended that meeting. They understood where we were coming from and agreed with us where they felt they should. They put forward points which they felt needed discussion.

I think the Civil Aviation Authority has taken a very good decision in deciding to expand the Customs Hall, the Immigration Arrival Hall and the Departure Lounge at the Owen Roberts International Airport. This has become a priority, as the Minister of Tourism, the Department of Tourism and the Portfolio increase the number of visitors to our islands by air as well as by sea, to begin as soon as possible.

We know that most of our visitors are from the North American market, and we know that when they pay money they expect service. We cannot disagree. If we want them to continue coming to the Cayman Islands we must provide whatever facilities are necessary to make their stay better each year.

The first impression of any tourist is a lasting one. Thus the confusion at the Owen Roberts International Airport in the Customs and Immigration Halls when we have all our airlines arriving more or less within 15 minutes of each other can be a lasting impression. I congratulate the Minister and his departments and the Civil Aviation Authority for making the decision for this to take place in early 1996.

I will now touch on the Ministry for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

In the Throne Speech, His Excellency says: "In 1995 the Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation laid the foundations for the achievement of major objectives in 1996." Health insurance is a very important subject. If we do not bring health insurance into this country I am afraid that the number of overseas referrals which the Government now has to guarantee, in some cases picking up the bill, are going to embarrass us financially.

I commend the Minister for providing a Draft Discussion Bill for a Law Relating to the Provision of Health Insurance. In his presentation he said (and I gather from this that the feedback on this Bill has shown some concerns; I, too, have had people mention their concerns to me) ...every effort will be made to present to the Legislative Assembly for approval in 1996, a Revised Bill along with Health Insurance Regulations.. I told him that he has my full support and the sooner this legislation is brought to this Parliament, the better it will be for the Government of the Cayman Islands financially. I think that it must be strenuously emphasised to the companies providing insurance that the legislation will specify insurance policies that would benefit workers who will be contributing. If the Government were to investigate some of the policies provided for workers in these islands they would be totally shocked at what benefits are derived.

I will ask the Minister to make a vigilant and strong effort to ensure that the provisions in this law for the type of insurance to be provided will give our people a service for which they will contribute, and from which they will reap benefits. “Health Services New and Improved Facilities. At last the Doctor Hortor Memorial hospital project can be closed for good. The Honourable Minister has worked diligently to bring to fruition a facility for medical services for the people of this country and to provide a facility at a cost which the people can afford. The construction of the facility... will begin in the first quarter of 1996 and will continue for the next two years. He has already started on part of this project, with ...a 10,000 sq. ft. materials storage building, is nearing completion on the present hospital site. It will be operational by June 1996.” I think the entire Cayman Islands will be proud of the facility which this Minister and his staff are working so hard to provide for us.

I say his ‘staff’, and I think he has included in this project the people working in the Health Services of this country from the top to the bottom. They should know best what facility the people of this country need.

I would like to congratulate him on the new Health Centres proposed for each district. I attended the opening of the Nurse Jessie Ritch Memorial Health Centre in Bodden Town. That is a facility which the people of Bodden Town can be justly proud of. Remember, the Minister has worked and provided them with a facility to service their needs.

As the Member for North Side, I look forward to when the Health Centre in my district is opened in 1996. My people and the people of East End are on the furthest end of the island from the George Town facility. I think many of the persons travelling from those districts to the George Town Hospital could be serviced by a health care centre in their own districts. It would prevent them from travelling for 45 minutes (some of them are old) and alleviate the number of people being treated at the George Town Hospital.

It will also help the people of West Bay. I think it is time that the West Bay District Health Centre came on line. We know there are people who claim that West Bay gets this and that first, but the National Team has tried to provide for every district in this country. It is only natural that we are not able to provide a health care centre for each district at the same time. We cannot afford it. So we work towards providing facilities for all districts.

I was quite pleased to be a part of the approval of the Two million four hundred thousand dollars ($2.4M), in the 1996 Budget for the purchase of medical equipment.. I believe the provision of medical care to patients can be enhanced with diagnostic capabilities of the Health Services Department if we have the equipment present on site.

I think it will cut down on some of the overseas medical treatment because if we are able to diagnose the problem, we may be able to treat them here. If we cannot diagnose we have to send them overseas.

Under the Public Health Services, it is good to see that a National Plan for Workers’ Health in the Cayman Islands will be developed this year. This is long overdue. We know that in jobs being filled by people in these islands there are things being used which can be detrimental to their health. We must educate the employer and the employee.

Mental Health Services has long been near and dear to my heart. I think it was in my debate on the very first Throne Speech after I was elected to this Legislative Assembly that I stated clearly that a facility and a programme for the mentally ill of these islands was a priority. We have reached the stage in the development of these islands where it is no longer acceptable for our mentally ill to roam the streets with nothing being done. If there is a problem they are arrested and they are taken to the George Town Lock-up, or put in Northward Prison. This is not suitable. There must be a provision for facilities where they can be admitted and treated for their problem.

Fees Collection: As I understand it, we have now employed an accountant at the George Town Hospital who is working on this problem. I believe that the non-collection of hospital fees is not always that the people do not want to pay. I think that sometimes it is a mix-up. I do not know exactly how to explain the situation, but I will use an example of what happened to me. I think I used it in Finance Committee here before.

My daughter was ill and was taken as an outpatient to George Town Hospital. Blood tests were done. I went to the hospital one day and I was given the bill. On the bill it said three blood tests. I knew she had only had one. I gave it back to the young lady at the front and she said she agreed with me, that my daughter only had one blood test.

I requested that she give it to the accounting department and send me a bill itemizing exactly what Rebecca had had done. This was in August of 1995. This is now March 1996. I have never received another bill.

I know Mr. Cumber, the Administrator, is trying hard to get these anomalies straightened out in order to start collecting on these bills and with the newly appointed accountant this can be done.

Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation: I would like to congratulate the Honourable Minister and his staff for having the strength to go forward with the renovation of the property purchased by Government in the Breakers area for the Drug Rehabilitation Facility. Amidst all of the criticism the Minister has stood firm on his convictions. I would like to remind the people of that district that no district would like a facility next to their beautiful homes, but a decision has to be taken. These young people have to get help. They have to be given a service in their own island. I do not believe that they have chosen to go this way; I believe that drug addiction is a disease, that alcoholism is a disease and God has told us to care for this type of person.

I believe it was Miss Joanne Barnes who had a very nice letter concerning the facility in Breakers. I hope that the people who read that letter who were objecting to this facility will now reconsider and join hands with the Minister to have this facility completed for our local drug abusers in order to get them back on the right way of life.

I believe that the Cayman Counselling Centre is doing a very good job. It will continue to do this job as long as we are prepared to provide the facilities and the money for them to do so. It was stated, “In 1996 there will be expansion of the programme at Northward Prison from one day per week to five days per week and the adolescent programme will be increased from two days per week to three days per week.” I congratulate the Cayman Counselling Centre and the Ministry for putting this additional counselling in place at Northward Prison. It is needed. As I said yesterday, I think 50% or more of the inmates at Northward Prison are there for drug related problems.

I think plans are being made where we have district counselling. I know there are a number of young people in my district whom, I am sure, if a facility were provided nearer to home, would find themselves to these sessions trying to better their lives. I know a number of them have called me stating that they need help, asking if I would call the counselling centre. I have done this and they have received help. I think to provide this service nearer to the districts will be a tremendous help to the young people in the Eastern Districts.

The Ministry of Education and Planning: We have heard a number of aspersions cast at the Minister. He walked into, as the Minister of Education after the Elections in 1992, a situation with the education system in this country that I believe only he with his patience and his legal mind could unravel and put back on its feet.

I see that "Work on the National Curriculum will continue with teachers working in subject teams under the guidance of a curriculum planner." I think one of the biggest mistakes ever made in this country was to change our examinations without a national curriculum first being put in place. I congratulate the Minister for working so diligently over the last three years on the national curriculum - which is something which cannot be presented in a year or two. Much thought and work and planning have to go into a national curriculum.

I say to him again, as I said to him in my presentation on the setting up an office for Women's Affairs, that I hope that tourism and sex education will play a big part in the national curriculum of these islands. Tourism being one of the mainstays of this country and education should go hand-in-hand. Sex education can no longer be swept under the carpets in the Cayman Islands. I come from the old school where sex education was a no-no. But it can no longer be that way, and it must be provided for our youngsters.

I noted that "Registration procedures for school entry are being revised, to make the process easier and to involve school Principals in registration at the school sites." This is a very good idea and I commend the Minister.

But there is another thing I would like to see, and maybe this will have to work hand-in-hand with the Minister for Health, that school medical will be offered at the district health care centres for children entering the district schools. I know on a number of occasions I have had calls from parents of children entering the primary school who objected to having to take their children either to George Town or another district for a medical for entry into school. They felt there should be some provision at the district health centres.

Much has been said in the past few years about the number of scholarships being granted. I ask the question: How many children applied for scholarships out of the graduating classes of our schools? I have the answer which tells me that approximately 230 students graduated in 1994; 39 scholarships were granted in 1994; 51 applications were submitted; 31 scholarships were approved in 1995; 28 scholarships were accepted; some applicants accepted scholarships from the private sector after they had applied to the Government; some applications were withdrawn because of a lack of response from colleges to which applications were made; some students decided to wait another year to go off to college. In 1995 we did not have a graduating class coming out of our high school. This was because of the extra year which was added in year 10. Students repeated a year thus no graduating class.

I know that the Minister for Education will tell this Honourable House how many scholarships were granted to our people prior to 1992. In 1994 I think someone said there were 17 and 30 out of 300 students would be good. I see here that in 1994 39 scholarships were granted out of approximately 230 students graduating. That was very good.

I know personally that there are students overseas who graduated in 1994 who are not on Government scholarships because they were too young to qualify, but their parents have taken on the cost of offering them further education. I am certain that when they have reached the age to qualify for a Government scholarship as the Minister has done during his term as Minister of Education, they will be looked at and granted if they qualify.

The Community College: I am happy to see that a College programme locally will be provided and the transfer to accredited colleges and universities from the Community College for the first two years of the College programme will be provided.

Just this week I was standing on the front steps of this building and a young man said to me that the Community College should be providing electrical courses for the number of young people who have not gone on after high school who are sitting at Elizabethan Square - but they only offered 12 places. This had me extremely concerned. I spoke to the Principal of the Community College. He confirmed that there are only 12 places for Electrical Engineering, and that they were having trouble filling those 12 places. Why should the Government provide more places at more expense if we are not taking the opportunity to use the provisions which are already there?

The Principal also said to me that the College provides 130 places for subjects to be studied. I would feel that if I applied for Electrical Engineering and could not get that, and I really wanted to pursue my educational goals, I would apply for another subject until there was a space available.

Much has been said about this Government assisting private schools. I believe that this is one of the best decisions ever taken, as long as it is not at the detriment of our own public schools. I know that this Honourable Minister will not allow this to happen. Any problem that I have had with the North Side facility, whether it be the building or a problem with the teachers, he is willing to listen and correct the problem.

I would like to quote from the Education Law, 1983, section 14: "Subject to the provisions of section 22(9) it is the duty of the parent of every child of school age to cause such child to attend at a suitable school on every day on which such school is open unless: (a) such child is, in the opinion of the Chief Education Officer receiving sufficient instructions suitable to its age in some other way; or (b) such child is prevented from such attendance by ill health or any other cause whether temporary or permanent which the Chief Education Officer deems sufficient."

As I am not one of these politicians to read a part and leave out the best part, I wish to read section 22(9) so that no one will think that I am hiding something: "A pupil who has been expelled from a government school shall not be re-admitted to any government school without the approval of the Council. The other section that I would like to read is section 21: In all Government schools:- (1) children who possess Caymanian Status shall be admitted free of payment of any tuition fees, but shall pay fees for books and equipment set forth."

We say that the Government should not assist private schools, or that they should not give so much money to private schools, but I think it was in the Budget that education is costing this Government $17 million. Under this Law, the Government has to provide education for every school child in this country. It does not say only Caymanians, it says every school child. If this Government had to provide facilities to school every child in the Cayman Islands, I believe that figure for education would be somewhere in the range of $25 million.

By assisting these private schools to further expand and provide places in high schools I think is an excellent idea and it takes a big burden off the Government and the people of this country to find the funds to provide these services.

Some may argue that children can be discriminated against entering these private schools. The provisions are right here in the Education Law against discrimination which can be dealt with.

Cayman Airways: Thank God the 1996 election will not use poor old Cayman Airways as a political football. The reason for this were the decisions taken by the Minister responsible. There were some hard decisions. He got a lot of flak from the public. But they were the right decisions in order for the airline to survive and the Cayman Islands to have an airline for its people.

I am glad that the board has also tried to attract young Caymanian graduates as trainees in various departments. The first thing that has to happen with trainees (and I hope the Hon. Minister will pardon me) is that a Caymanian must be found to train these young Caymanian trainees. I would also like to say that maybe it is time that Cayman Airways, when it is financially fit, assist some of these young Caymanians who have gone overseas and qualified themselves with the commercial pilot's licence. The Caymanians require some 700 hours before they can be employed by a commercial airline. This is very expensive for these young men and women. Some of them have to hold jobs to pay their bills, and for them to take off and find $40-$55 thousand to complete this training and pay their bills and take care of their families during that training period is pretty tough. I say that whatever we can do to assist these young Caymanians to fulfill that dream to sit in the cock-pit of our own national airline, we should do.

I am proud of the announcement of our new destination - Orlando. I think this will prove to be a profitable route for Cayman Airways. It will also increase our tourism. I am told that it is normal for the European tourists to take a two week holiday. They go to Orlando and seek out another destination. They spend the first week in Orlando and seek out another destination the second week. Sometimes it is the Bahamas or another island. I think the decision that the Minister and the Board of Cayman Islands have taken to put Orlando on our route will prove profitable and we will get some of those tourists which the other islands have been receiving.

The Ministry of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. I think the Minister should be congratulated on the recent Agricultural Show. This entire island should thank the Minister for bringing back that famous Agricultural Show which was discontinued and that everyone in Grand Cayman (and I think the Sister Islands) looked forward to each year. It has been brought back in a better way.

The display of fruit, vegetables, cattle shows that the Minister who now holds that Portfolio has agriculture at heart. I am certain that he knows the Cayman Islands has a long way to go to be able to produce enough food to feed our people. But we have the ability here with our dedicated farmers who, under terrible conditions, are still able to provide a lot of food, cattle etcetera in these islands. I say to him that he has my support 100% in whatever can be done to promote agriculture.

I congratulate him on the 9-1-1 Emergency Communication System which he has seen fit to bring into these islands which will be launched in September. I feel that this will prove very helpful to our elderly and our lock-ins and so forth.

The Post Office: I think the up-grading of the George Town Post Office will go down in the history books of these islands because of the Minister's dedication and that of the Postmaster General, Miss Corrine Glasgow. I congratulate them both for the tremendous improvement that has been brought about at this facility. And we know that there is need and space for more improvement, but Rome was not built in a day. I am very saddened that the Postmaster General has decided to resign from her position. It saddens me because I feel that she had been doing a terrific job and it saddens me to know that a woman has reached this position and has shown that she is capable of making a difference. Now this problem has come about (be it what it may, I have no inside information as to the actual cause) but I am certain that there must have been reasons for the decision that was taken. It would be good if this problem could be ironed out and somehow that young lady be returned to her position. I have been told that as a politician I have no business in Civil Service matters.

I would ask the Minister that in 1996, if it is at all possible, to provide the people of Old Man Bay with a physical facility. I do not say it has to be a $350,000 post office, but a facility where they can go and collect their mail and also to help the lady that is now offering the services to the people of Old Man Bay. If she had a physical facility where she could go and deal with the mail it would help her and help the people of Old Man Bay.

The Protection and Conservation Unit. I feel that this unit has done an exceptional job in monitoring coral reefs, taking of conchs and so forth. I am glad to see that the potential of whelks culture and restocking in selected areas will also be researched. At the detriment of perhaps losing one or two votes in my district, I am going to say that it would be nice to add to the protection of whelks some protection for the land crabs. I know a lot of people who use the meat of the land crabs to help them with their expenses, but I think what is happening is that there are people now who are collecting the land crabs with the spawns (which Caymanians have never done and will never do), and eventually if this continues there will be very few land crabs. So I would ask the Minister to look at putting in place some protection.

That good old subject of 'dredging' and I read: "Executive Council has decided that there shall be no further dredging in the North Sound." I am no expert on dredging but having an area in my own district that was created solely by dredging, and having talked to elderly people on the number of fish that used to be there prior to dredging and the increase of the number of fish there since dredging (and having fish in that area myself), I know the number of fish that were there did not leave because of the dredging that took place. They left because they have been out-fished.

I have talked to older people in the East End area and they have told me that in the North Sound there are more fish in the areas that have been dredged. I know that I had the opportunity to put forward this information during the debate on the motion, but mention was made in that debate (and I think I have seen it in the Editorial of the Cayman Compass either yesterday or the day before) regarding the recommendations of the Public Accounts Committee and the question was asked: How are the Members of that Committee going to vote on the motion? That was obvious. We had the Throne Speech delivered and we were not deliberating on the Public Accounts Committee's Report and the Throne Speech is explicit: "Executive Council has decided that there shall be no further dredging in the North Sound,.... The Public Accounts Committee's recommendations in my opinion now fall away. Should any future government decide that they should have marl dredging, then the Public Accounts Committee's recommendations can be considered."

(inaudible interjection by Hon. W. McKeeva Bush)

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Convuluted or non-convuluted, I speak from belief and from the bottom of my heart and facts.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Right!

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: The Minister responsible for Public Works Department needs all the flowers there are in the world to be thrown at him (all the bouquets) because there are so many demands for the services provided by the Public Works Department made by each and every one of us in this Parliament for our districts. And we would like it done now! The worst part about it is that this is 1996 (an election year) and not only the Members of the National Team will be making demands on that department, but also the Opposition - which is their right. We, as the National Team, have no more rights than they do, but the Public Works Department will have to try and produce.

I would like to thank the Minister for the work that the Public Works Department has undertaken in my district; the street lighting, the road repairs, the repairs to Government buildings which were left to fall into disrepair for numbers of years until it cost so much to repair they decided to sell them for little to nothing. I must say that the Public Works Department has done a tremendous job in the upgrading of the roads in North Side; the upgrading of the buildings; the addition of air-conditioning to the School Hall and the Town Hall, to make them better for the children and people holding public meetings. The next time Team Cayman comes to my district, the Town Hall is now air-conditioned and they shall not get hot under their collars.

I believe the Public Works Department undertook in the past years in all the districts of these islands (and I can speak specifically for North Side) more road work than was done in that particular district in the eight years prior to me being elected. I guess that this stems from the fact that a representative, who no longer represents the people, says the people of North Side need a representative to represent them nationally, internationally, and not locally. I would like to know how much international business do the people of North Side carry on.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: (laughter) His, International Health Care Services.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: The Ministry for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture: It is good that the Minister who has this tremendous, portfolio is large in stature because if he were not big he would slump beneath the criticisms that are levelled at him inside and out side of this House. But I often hear him say, 'when I am criticised it is because I am doing a good job and I do not worry.' I must say that the Minister of Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture has shown his capability to this country, not by being vocal but by the actual facilities that have been provided under this ministry.

Some have said that too much emphasis is being placed on sports. I cannot agree with that. I believe that if the previous Minister who handled the responsibility for sports in these islands had paid more attention and provided more facilities over the years, the amount of money that had to be spent would not have been so great. I cannot believe the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac said that money should not have been spent on sports.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: (laughter) What do you want to spend it on?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The hospital that was stopped.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: The provision of community development workers for the districts of these islands I felt was timely. If feel that these workers can relate to the children and the people in the community who need more help. They can relate to anyone in these communities and I think that they are doing a good job. The District Community Development Action Groups is another plus for this Minister. We go back to these words "West Bay, West Bay." He provided these groups in every district as far as I know.

I congratulate him on the family study that is being carried out and look forward to the implementation of the accepted recommendations of this study when it is completed. The crime survey is another priority to let us find out where we have the major problems and why we have those problems.

The National Youth Band is very good, but here I would like to pause. I know that the outer districts are supposed to take part in the national choir. I was a little disappointed when we had the Prayer Breakfast, while the national choir performed well, I did not see one familiar face from my district. That is not the problem of the Minister, it could have been a lack of transportation to attend practices and so forth. It is not the problem of the representative of North Side. This Member gave the North Side School (which has the largest number of the children who would be involved in the national choir and the national youth band) a brand new bus.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Hear, hear! Take that Gilbert.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: It is a good thing that I am debating the Throne Speech and not the backward and forward things that have been thrown from the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman because he would be totally shocked at the answers that would come over the air.

I see that the Ministry intends to coordinate the provision of proper Adult Day Care Centre in West Bay and Bodden Town. These are needed and I always admire the facility that has been provided in East End. There is one person at that facility who has proven that these facilities are a plus to our elderly people. That person happens to be my uncle, and the change that has come over this man since being taken into the centre and getting proper care is unbelievable.

At this point I would like to draw attention to the provision of $10,000 in this year's Budget to provide plans for a Senior Citizens Day Care Centre in the district of North Side which is much needed. There are a number of elderly people in my district who may not need to stay overnight at a physical facility even though we have two Members at the Pines Retirement Home, and one in East End from the district of North Side who is full-time. My greatest concern is for those elderly who are on medication and who are at home all day by themselves (because everyone has gone to work). To provide a Senior Citizens' Day Care Centre where these people can be dropped off in the mornings by their families on their way to work will be greatly appreciated by the people of that district because their medication would be administered on time, they would be given a hot meal and some sort of handiwork, plating or whatever, to keep their minds occupied.

The Speaker: Would the Member take a suspension at this time?

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.38 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.03 PM

The Speaker: The Member for North Side continuing.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: When we took the suspension I was dealing with the Ministry for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

The provision of sports facilities in these islands over the last three years has been tremendous. The benefits to our youth cannot be named particularly in my district, there are a number of young boys who are juvenile problems juvenile delinquents who have repeatedly asked me, 'Mrs. Edna, can you get us a basketball court?' In 1996 a basketball court will become a reality for these young boys and girls in my district. They have become interested and involved, particularly in basketball, that they are now having their own hoops made up or their parents are buying them and putting them up at the side of their yards. Driving through that district you can see these young boys out there involved in something that is beneficial to them rather than walking around the district making a nuisance of themselves.

As long as I am in this Parliament, my support for sporting facilities for the young people of these islands will always be there. The Minister, I must emphasise again, has taken criticism but he took it for his people.

The National Sports and Recreation Centre in Spotts. When this recreation centre becomes a reality, I am certain that the people of these islands will use it. I think there is a walking track to be provided, If we drive the South Sound road after 6 o'clock in the evenings we will see the number of people who are walking. The motorists have no respect for these people who are walking so to have a safe walking track will be a plus.

Summer camps are to be applauded. Again I say (and perhaps I will become repetitious, I apologise) that such things as summer camps can be alternated. If they are in George Town one year, perhaps we could provide them in Bodden Town the next year, and the next year in West Bay, North Side. So that all the children have an opportunity...

(inaudible interjection by an Hon. Member)

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: And Cayman Brac. (Thank you for reminding me. Because we look after Cayman Brac. But in speaking one can overlook something which is not deliberate) ...so that they can make use of these summer camps.

As it has been pointed out by the Minister, on several occasions in reference to the National Sports and Recreation Centre, this facility is not going to be an overnight project. It is going to be phased over a ten year period. So that all of these blarney stories about a national sports centre is going to be built in Sports, the Minister has made it very clear what this facility will be. He is very good and loud at making it clear; he speaks very clearly when dealing with matters concerning his Portfolio.

I am proud to see that the Ministry during 1996, intends to encourage greater cooperation with educational institutions so that a comprehensive physical education and sports curriculum can be offered. Having been a sports person during my time in school, the emphasis that was placed on physical education at my school helped one's mind to be kept clear; it gave them the opportunity to develop their gifts. Perhaps I was gifted, but having attended school in Jamaica and returning afterwards there were no provisions in this island for me to continue. But I know a number of my schoolmates who have done well in sports.

I think this is the beginning. I, for one, congratulate and support our National Football Team. But I think if these young men who give so willingly of their time had proper physical education and sports curriculum in school, they would have advanced much further than they have, even though I say they have done well. Perhaps it is timely for this physical education and sports curriculum to be developed for the Under-14 football teams so that they will be given a better opportunity at further advancement.

I now move to a subject very dear to my heart - Women's Affairs. Having brought this motion to this House early in 1995 to set up a Women's Affairs Office, I would like to congratulate the Minister, the Ministry and the Steering Committee for bringing about this office. As I understand, on March the 8th (which is International Women's Day) they intend to launch the office of Women's Affairs.

March the 8th is observed throughout the world as a United Nations International Women's Day and it is hoped that on that day a decision will be taken to declare that day in the Cayman Islands, International Women's Day.

I have stayed clear of the actual development of this Women's Affairs Office, although I was appointed to be a part of the Steering Committee. Because I brought the motion and most people know that I can have an overbearing personality when I believe in something, I did not want to put upon the Steering Committee my ideas that they might have agreed with just because I was the politician who brought the motion. I rather it be the way it is set up with some very educated and experienced working women of these islands.

I say to the Minister that I look forward to educational programmes on our television for women. Some may say that the women of the Cayman Islands take advantage of educational opportunities. This I can agree with, particularly when it takes further education. But there are so many of our women who must be educated on the prevention of things like, breast cancer. These services must be offered to them and the quicker we do this the better the chances are in having healthier women in our society.

They must be educated as to where they can turn when there is abuse, particularly domestic abuse. Since this motion was brought to this Honourable House and unanimously passed (I do not know if it has been on an increase or more cases have been reported by the local press for which I thank them) it has brought out into the open and to the attention of the people responsible that this is a serious problem. A very serious problem! I think it stems from a circle; grandfathers beat grandmothers, fathers beat mothers, and sons beat wives, daughters beat husbands, and we have got to break this circle.

On that point being reminded of daughters beating husbands, the Business and Professional Women's Club wishes to work very closely with the Ministry responsible for Women's Affairs and to show that the women of this country want no special treatment for abuse than the men who are abused. We are going to launch in November, Sixteen Days of Activism against Gender Violence. But the women and the men, if they are out there and are being abused, are not aware of where they can go to seek help. It is not my intention to portray that I would like to see marriages dissolved. I believe we should use this Women's Affairs Office and provide the necessary services, provide facilities for the abused, so that they can be taken away from the situation, and whomever is doing the beating (whether it be the husband or the wife) can be counselled and something can be worked out where we can get these people back together. All should realise that abuse is not what a marriage should consist of.

I say that I believe that the real victims of abuse in most instances are our precious children. We hear stories of them squealing when daddy hits mummy, or mummy hits daddy. These are lasting impressions and we as a country and as legislators must do everything we can to stop this abuse in our society.

The last section of this Throne Speech that I will speak on deals with Labour and Human Resources. The Minister responsible for this department has a very large burden to carry, in that he must portray in fairness to the employer, and fairness to the employee. And no matter what he does for the employers they are going to say it is unfair and no matter what he does for the employees, they are going to say he is unfair. A position has to be taken in the Cayman Islands and when I say this, I speak as Edna Moyle, personally. I have not discussed this with the National Team Members and I do not know their feelings about it, but because of my concern for the working people of these islands we need to return to a roll-over policy in this country. I would like to stress here, in case I am interpreted incorrectly, that for many years to come this country will need foreign labour whether it be top management, middle management, or at the bottom (supervisors), but I say that when people are given work permits and allowed to remain in these islands for 14 years with young Caymanians working below them and, at the end of those 14 years that Caymanian is no further ahead than he or she was when they started 14 years ago has got to stop.

It is like a bomb that is about to explode (and the situation in the Cayman Islands is ideal), it can work for those who are among us as guests on work permits; and it can work for the Caymanian, but let us show them that he or she can contribute and by contributing they can move up on the ladder. If I were on a work permit in another country and at the end of ten years I was able to train a young person from that country and say to him/her, 'Here are the reigns, you take over and develop your country', I would have done a good job.

We must insist that the Caymanians who are filling these positions are given training, whether it be on-the-job or otherwise. These companies which are contributing to this country by their mere presence are contributing to their coffers. It is time they find among their staff Caymanians who have the ability, the willingness, the loyalty to go off and train and come back with their certificate to fill these positions. The days of Caymanians like myself (I grew up with my father, a good old born and bred Caymanian) who bow and say Mr. and Mrs. and say this and say that are over. We must give our Caymanians every opportunity - not as the Chamber of Commerce said some months ago, that Caymanians should be satisfied with a small piece of the pie. That was an insult to the Cayman Islands. A grave insult to our Caymanians.

It is as I said in my debate yesterday about the problems in the Civil Service, of people who have young qualified Caymanians (brilliant Caymanians) as their Deputies and have to give the go ahead for them to move up. They are not going to do it. Let us be realistic! We are all human beings. And the Chamber of Commerce is in that position, naturally they want us to issue as many work permits as possible, it is to their gain. I believe that our Caymanians are capable. Nobody is going to tell me that we do not have Caymanians in this country who can fill some of these jobs. Nobody! It is just that they are not being given the opportunity.

We have heard that the Caymanians' attitude in the labour force is, 'I am a Caymanian and I have to have a job.' I do not agree with that attitude and I feel that we as Caymanians must perform as good as anyone else on a work permit. We must be prepared to further our education, but when we have done these things we must be given our rightful positions in the jobs in this country.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Hear, hear!

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: When the Minister brought the amendment to the Labour Law, there was a hue and cry, there were emergency meetings held by organisations. Until we as Caymanians unite and uphold our Caymanians, we have a long way to go. When he was trying to get through the Labour (Amendment) Law (more benefits for the people), everyone cried out on the cost. If these services that are necessary are not contributed to by those persons in business, the full responsibility falls on the shoulders of the Government. Then we hear that the Government should not be doing this, the Government should not be doing that for the elderly, the Government should not be doing this for that. But what are we going to do? The private sector is not prepared to help them. If Government does not help them several of them will starve. When it comes to the elderly in the Cayman Islands we must hold the greatest of respect for them.

We sit here today and we live in a beautiful island. We have a standard of living next to none in the region. But I wonder if people ever stop to think about why we have been able to achieve this standard of living; why we have been able to bring about an island that people would like to invest in. I know it is because of the legislation that is on our books and I know it is because of the vigilance of the persons responsible. But if we move back in time, it is due to our elderly. They were the ones who made us the men and women that we are today; they were the ones who kept the families together; they were the ones who inched and pinched to pay the school fees to help their children advance educationally. They were the ones who had the foresight to look at their children and say: 'Take your education seriously because the day may come (particularly for their daughters) when someone abuses you in a relationship and you will want to move on. They can take your clothes, they can take your money and your food; they can take your house, but they cannot take your education. With your education you can move on to great heights in your country.' It is because of these elderly Caymanians why this country has advanced.

(applause by some Hon. Members)

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: There is one sentence at the end of His Excellency's Throne Speech which I will touch on briefly before ending my debate. It says: "The levell and quality of work produced by the CMI Service is first class." You can be proud of them. I do not think that a statement could be more earned by our civil servants than this. These people work very hard, they take a lot of abuse from the general public, letters are written that the only thing the National Team did since they got in was to increase their salaries twice. I do not think that it was this Parliament that brought the motion to increase salaries, nor this Member for North Side. I wonder if these people are saying that because the National Team's Government has done so well with the finances of this country, and have been able to offer these hard working civil servants two increases in salary since our time in this House, that they did not deserve it.

I believe that those civil servants deserve every penny of that salary increase. I also believe, and I am certain that the salary I draw as a Member of this Legislative Assembly... I work extremely hard for my people. If it is 4 o'clock in the morning and there is a problem, or if it is 2 o'clock in the morning and there is a problem, I am there. Perhaps I was the one who said that salaries would be cut, but that was because the last set of Members did not work for their people.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Hear, hear!

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I have come to the end of my contribution, but there is one bouquet that passed me (because I know when my friend on the right gets up to speak he is going to talk about the bouquets I threw at my Ministers. I throw bouquets where they are due.), that is the one for the North Side Civic Centre. A dream for the people of this district has come about. They now have a facility that they can be proud of. They now have a facility that is next to none in these islands.

But when representatives of this Parliament have been elected because of their concern for their people, this will always happen, and this is what the Ministers and Members of this Honourable House presently sitting are all about: their People.

I say as His Excellency the Governor said: "I pray that Almighty God in his mercy and wisdom will continue to bless and guide the people of these Islands and all who serve Him."

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: If Members would prefer to take the luncheon break at this time and come back at 2 o'clock?

I understand there is a Business Committee Meeting at 2 o'clock. Is that correct? Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I move the suspension at a time that would suit you, Ma'am. So you can adjourn until 2 o'clock.

The Speaker: I think probably until 2.15 pm and the usual meeting at 2.15 will take place at 2 o'clock. Proceedings will be suspended until 2.15 pm.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.33 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.28 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on the Throne Speech. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I also rise to offer my congratulation to His Excellency the Governor and the Government for the excellent state of the Union Address that was recently presented in this Legislative Assembly.

What impressed me more than anything else was that for the first time in a number of years this country is not faced with any serious major issues. Just out of interest I went and looked at some of the Throne Speeches that were made back in 1992, the first part of 1993 and at that stage tourism was down 6% in 1992; unemployment was still a problem and the government of the day (that is the past government) was grappling with solutions for these problems.

Today we boast of full employment, boast of all time increases for tourism; the financial community is moving along well and the construction industry seems to be at full throttle. I recall many of the contractors (to whom I speak today) were sitting on their hands a few years ago and today their message is, 'We have more business than we can handle.' That speaks well for this Government and its leadership. I believe that the people of this country were very wise in their selections in 1992 and there are leaders in place today who are capable and honest, who have the confidence of the financial community and the country as a whole.

I believe that if people were honest they would have to say that things are much better today than they were four years ago when we took over. We still have a number of issues that need to be addressed, but so much time was spent on reversing the financial position of Government, curtailing the runaway policy of expenditures as compared to revenue, that sufficient time was not available to deal with many of the issues that we should have dealt with. They are being addressed and I will mention in greater detail further on in my debate some of those issues that I feel still have to be addressed.

I welcome the plan for the review of the Civil Service as mentioned in the Throne Speech. I honestly believe and support the philosophy or approach that is planned, that is where pay relates to performance. We need to take a very revolutionary approach (a new approach) to the service as far as how we go about reducing costs, eliminating some of the inefficiencies and be in a position where we can attract and reward those good Caymanian civil servants who chose to make the Service a career.

I believe that the structure of the service does not lend itself to much incentive as far as civil servants are concerned regardless of how efficient they are, the many long hours they put in and what contribution they make. They are only paid a certain salary for their labour. As an employer myself, I realise how important it is to keep your staff motivated, and keep them in a frame of mind where they feel that they are appreciated and their performances are recognised.

In the private sector some of the things that are in place are: Employee of the Month selection, where one is given a monetary award for outstanding customer service. They are also recognised in groups at staff meetings. Management, on the other hand, shares in the profits by way of performance bonuses. These are some of the types of approaches I think we need to take regarding the Civil Service. Rather than tying a civil servant down for 30 or 35 years and the only thing the Government can offer him is a little pension at the end of the day, the Service has to be in a position where there is more flexibility as far as Heads of Departments are concerned. One of the approaches that we may have to take (and I think we may have to be revolutionary in our thinking) is to say to a Head of Department, Here is your budget for the year and it does not matter to us how many people it takes for you to accomplish your objectives. But if you are able to bring it in under-budget then perhaps you might get a bonus, an increase or perhaps an extra week or two vacation.

I honestly believe that the size of the Service has to be addressed. Every year the percentage of civil servants and the services or benefits increases. Which means that every year there are less funds available to do all the other things that our people need (roads, additional schools) and the other services that are required and demanded by them. So we need to be in a position where the Civil Service is attractive, where we compensate performance and, at the same time, attract the very best among us as far as qualified Caymanians are concerned. For too long the Service has become a dumping ground for persons who cannot compete in the private sector or for persons here on a part-time basis whose wives (or husbands) need jobs for one or two years. We do have a Service that we can be proud of, but it can be improved. Those civil servants who do pull their weight will welcome such an approach as stated by His Excellency.

I am also pleased to see the new approach taken with the administration of the Police Force where a lot of the administrative jobs that were being done by police officers are now being administered by civilians. I also welcome (and I have seen them in my district and other districts especially the district of George Town) the sight of officers on foot patrol. That lends itself to better public relations. It gives the officers an opportunity to meet, mingle and establish relationships with members of the public and also puts them in a position where they can gain the confidence of members of the community which is so important in supporting or assisting them in doing their job effectively.

I can honestly say that we have a new Inspector in charge of the West Bay Police Station, Inspector Wood, an outstanding young Caymanian officer who has become involved in the community since being assigned to West Bay. He goes into the schools and tells the children about the dangers of drug abuse and other things, and has gone beyond that, having fund raising events to assist persons in that area who fall victim to accidents. It is amazing the amount of cooperation that the unit in West Bay has gained as a result of the approach by that officer and his staff.

So I do congratulate the police and the Commissioner on his revolutionary approach. The further they go in this direction improving their public relations, I believe the more effective they become.

The other thing that I want to mention is how effective the Task Force has been regarding the fighting of crime and eliminating or minimising the issue of drug trafficking or drug abuse. They are very vigilant and at the present time their success is very noticeable in the districts.

The other thing that I am also aware of is the marine patrol unit which is continuing its vigilance in protecting our shorelines. This must be constantly reinforced because even with that there are still a lot of drugs and firearms that are illegally being brought into this country by canoes or fishing boats from the outside. It is very important for us to do whatever is necessary in order to curtail this type of illegal activity here.

I am also pleased to hear of the future plans regarding the Prison in terms of the sentencing programme, increasing and expanding the drug counselling services and also continuing to upgrade and extend the educational opportunities to inmates in prison. One concern I have. I think it was in my first term I moved a motion regarding establishing a programme to assist inmates upon being released from prison in finding gainful employment. Many of our young people today are falling victim to drug abuse, acquiring a police record. They go to prison and upon their release it is held against them for the rest of their lives. If we do not reach out and try to assist and offer these young men and women a second chance, then all that is going to happen is that they will become repeat offenders and continue their life in criminal activity.

This effort has to be spearheaded by the Government and be supported by the private sector. I see no reason why we cannot employ some of these ex-prisoners in the Civil Service in the hourly paid department where they can earn an honest living, perhaps cleaning our beaches, cleaning the roadways, corridors, and any general maintenance programmes the Government has in place for schools or public buildings. Honestly, I see no reason why some of the hotels and other establishments cannot provide these young men and women with the opportunity to serve in different capacities in their establishments. If they are given the opportunity and they mess up, then they have no one to blame but themselves. But I believe that everybody deserves a second chance.

I recall in 1988 (when I had my first experience in politics) sitting in the West Bay Town Hall from sundown that evening to 11 o'clock the next day being involved in the counting of the ballots. I said to myself, there must be a much more efficient process than this. I said, well I trust that by 1992 the process will have been improved. But we went through the same process in 1992. I think it even took a little longer in 1992 because we had a few more votes to count. What I am not thrilled about is that in 1996 we have to go through the same process in counting the ballots.

We, as a country, boast of being modern and civilised and we enjoy the best of technology. But I honestly do not see why there is such hesitation in this area. I understand the Election Supervisors have recommended certain equipment to be purchased in order to improve the efficiency during the election process. For some reason this has not come on stream as yet.

I heard some Members mention that it would take the fun away, but I do not regard it as a whole lot of fun sitting there for 12, 14, to 16 hours monitoring a count. I believe that time could be better served celebrating with our people after we win an election.

One of the recommendations was that we introduce a voter's registration process whereby once one turns 18 (which means that one would be eligible to vote) one is given a voter's registration card and it allows one to be in a position on voting day, to turn out at the poll and present one's card allowing one to vote. Now because that process is not in place we deprived a lot of young people of their privilege to vote because the cut off process is so early (I think it is in March or April) that persons who turn 18 during that time are allowed to vote, after that time they have to wait another four years. So I believe that if we had the voter's registration card programme in place we could extend the cut off time a bit nearer to the election, perhaps as close as September or October since election is scheduled for November. I trust that whoever is responsible for moving this process along will take the necessary steps in order to improve the system. I do not believe that the Ministers are to be blamed, I just believe that the Civil Service bureaucracy is probably at fault.

We are sometimes very hesitant to change even when it is in our best interest. What will happen this year as a result, because we probably have another 200 or 300 young people who became eligible since the last election, is that we will get home around midnight the next night waiting on the count. Anyway, I will continue to be a part of the system, and look forward to some improvements when they are put into effect.

It would be good if two hours after the polls are closed we were in a position to give the results, which means by 7 or 8 o'clock we would know who our new representatives are and we could move on with the business of the country.

We must also congratulate the Minister for Education today as one of the primary promoters of the Cayman Islands Law School. Today the institution can boast of some of the finest Caymanian graduates (young persons as well as other Caymanians have taken advantage of it) who come out with a very good education. They are well prepared and they move in to take up responsible positions with Government and the private sector. This kind of approach needs to be taken with other areas of shortage in this country, because this is a good example of a programme that has worked very well.

Another concern I have is the amount of time it takes to get new legislation drafted at present. For example, the Traffic Law, 1990, was approved here in the Legislative Assembly back in 1990. We recently received the regulations, but many of the provisions of that Law have still not been put in place. I keep getting excuses. One of the areas that I have a great deal of interest in is transportation. One of the things that we need to be in a position to do is to issue the respective licences depending on the type of transportation you are offering, whether it is a taxi licence, tour bus operator's licence and perhaps a ground transportation licence (that is for those people who operate between George Town and West Bay, or George Town to some of the other outer districts). At the present time that is an area that we definitely need to address.

I checked with the Police Department and their attitude was that there is nothing they can do because this licence is not in place whereby we can implement it and force people who provide the service to apply. As far as I am concerned, as long as they possess the required licence for that particular size vehicle, that is the extent of their interest at the present time. What the absence of this law has done is create chaos. Everybody and their grandmother who can find a bus to operate between George Town and West Bay, or from George Town to East End, is out there competing with our Caymanians in trying to make a living. It makes it very difficult for our Caymanians who depend on that industry for their livelihood.

I urge the Government to address this very serious issue to see to it that whatever licences or regulations or amendments that have to be drafted are drafted. My approach has always been, if you have someone responsible for doing something and he cannot get it done, you have one or two choices; (1) if he is overworked you give him additional staff, and (2) if he is not capable of doing the work then remove that person. There are so many alternatives in this country regarding legal advice that I see no reason why some of these types of legislation cannot be drafted by people with legal ability in the private sector, reviewed by someone in the Legal Department and, if it is okayed, it is put into force. This situation will only continue to get worse if we do not address it at this stage.

I do not think it lends itself to good administration if we as legislators approve legislation, then three or four years later it cannot be brought into effect because of the inability to draft regulations.

Regarding the Portfolio of Finance and Development, I want to add my congratulations to the Customs Department for achieving its outstanding milestone for the last budget revenue (which was the highest in the history of this country). It appears that whatever goals we set for that department regarding revenue, we must recognise that the Customs Department is the most important revenue-earning department in Government. And it does a good job. I am proud that it is one of the few departments in Government where we have no problem attracting young qualified Cay-manians. The collector is a Caymanian, he has three deputies who are Caymanians and then there is the support staff who are all Caymanian. That speaks well for the leadership of the department.

One of the concerns I have (and the Customs Department is expanding and has to move ahead regarding the services and the responsibilities that it undertakes especially, in the day and age we now live), is that they have to develop expertise in fraud detection and all the other illegal activities that people engage in in order to evade the customs duties. As I have said, this department has worked in harmony for many years. As a matter of fact, my first job upon graduating from High School was as a Customs Officer. Back then Mr. Clarence Thompson was the Collector of Customs. This department has grown over the years and it now boasts of modern facilities and runs in-house training programmes for the officers. We need to do whatever we have to do to ensure that the harmony within that department is maintained.

I am aware of some division which exists at the present time, caused by the new Customs Advisor who has been brought in (and let me say that this is not the first advisor that the Customs Department has had). We had a gentleman by the name of Mr. Lally there for many years and his role was strictly that - an advisor. He was there to show the young Collector of Customs exactly what he had to do as collector and also to assist with training the young officers. But he did not get into the day-to-day management of the department. The Customs Officers loved this gentleman and they were very sorry when the time came for him to leave. Since his departure we have had a new advisor who, according to my information, has caused all kinds of disruption in that department, because he did not come in as the advisor. I honestly believe that he wants to be the Collector of Customs and a dictator like so many persons from the outside.

My uncle from North Side has said that as long as they come here on an aeroplane with a briefcase, we all regard them as experts. I believe that that department has the expertise and experience in-house to carry out whatever programmes are necessary for expansion in the department.

If you need to send someone away on secondment in a specialised area, let us do that. These officers, as I have said, are capable and willing to expose themselves to whatever additional course may be required in order to be in a position to effectively carry out their responsibilities.

I trust that the Financial Secretary, who is the head of this department, will be wise and exercise care regarding any future decision taken to extend the time of this gentleman here in the Cayman Islands. It was my understanding that this gentleman's contract (which was a three month extension) expired in April. But it is now being mooted that it is going to be renewed for another year. I do not believe that it is in the best interest of that department, but we as politicians are not supposed to get involved in Civil Service matters. So I have to be very careful, even with the prodding by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, I cannot allow him to lead me down blind paths and then turn his back on me like he did regarding the vote on the Chief Immigration Officer the other day.

(Hon. Members' laughter)

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: So, I am very serious about this. I think it is time for us in this country to give our Caymanians a chance to prove that they are capable of doing the jobs that are available. Half of the people I see coming here, have to be taught what they are responsible for in the first place, then, once they learn what their responsibilities are, they take over. But as I have said, I believe this department has the expertise in house to deal with whatever programmes it embarks upon and that expertise should be utilised. As far as I am concerned he failed to carry out his responsibilities in the first place. He, the Chief Immigration Officer, wasted a whole year or whatever it was, rather than meddling in the department he should have been out there training the staff as he was brought in to do and take care of the other things that fell within his responsibility.

I have confidence that the Financial Secretary and the Collector of Customs will do the right thing regarding this issue.

I am also very pleased to see that plans are well in hand for the establishment of the debt collection unit in the Treasury Department. I think it is planned that the person who is employed will have a legal background and it would be a person specifically responsible for the issue of debt collecting.

I was one of those who, from the very beginning, did not believe that passing on this responsibility to the Legal Department would have worked. The Legal Department is very busy taking care of their responsibilities with respect to the courts, and I do not think it would have been fair to put them in charge of debt collection. I would say that is not a legal responsibility. You need legal advice on certain aspects, but it is strictly an administrative responsibility.

There is a lot of money owed to Government, and I would daresay that if Government had collected what is owed to them today that the Financial Secretary would be in a much better position to meet the daily demands for projects and other requests that he is faced with. Government has to be run as a business, and one gets the impression (it is perhaps the wrong impression) that these things are only looked at when some politician or somebody else brings it to the forefront; garbage fees, hospital fees and all the other services that the Government offers to its citizens. Government must operate in a businesslike and professional manner and ensure that those who can afford to pay, pay.

I am very pleased to see the scheduled tourist attractions outlined in the Throne Speech (that is, the improvements at the Botanic Park in Frank Sound, the restoration of Pedro Castle) because one of the things that we are very short of in this country is tourist attractions. We have the Conch Shell House, the Turtle Farm, and we have Hell, but beyond that what we have available is somewhat limited. We have to continue to provide new attractions to our visitors who take time out to visit us.

I am also pleased to see, and I support the idea of the plans to restore the Boatswain Bay School house where some of the women from the district will be able to display their arts and crafts to tourists who visit from time to time. I believe this would also encourage our local arts and crafts which are becoming a rare culture among us. And I think it is important for us to be able to pass on to our children our Caymanian heritage and former way of life.

I am pleased to see that plans are well on the way for the establishment of the West Bay district public beach

(which will consist of cabanas, rest room facilities) where people in the district will have a convenient place to swim. I believe this is very positive and speaks well for the representation of the district.

I have heard many comments regarding the reasons for the recent performance in the tourism industry. The Opposition has said it is as a result of the well-grounded base that the former Member put in place. It has nothing to do with the former administration. That is total nonsense! The former Governor, Mr. Scott, delivered his last Throne Speech back in 1992 (I am not sure when it was), and one of the things that was mentioned was that tourism was down some six percent. It was a real concern based on the trend that was taking place in that industry. In those days there was interest in trying to diversify our tourism resources from just being 90% or 95% from the United States. There was also an interest to expand that industry to attract the European visitor. We now have direct flights from London to the Cayman Islands because of the present Minister's ability.

As I have said, this is a major accomplishment because I am told that the European visitor stays a little longer and spends more money. What this also does is it allows us to diversify our tourism sector. Every time there is a hiccup in the United States, we feel it here by way of a slowdown in tourism. But with the diversity we are able to minimise the effect that those hiccups have on us.

One of the areas that I honestly believe we need to address (and this has to be a joint effort, perhaps, between the Minister of Tourism, the Minister for Community Development and even the Minister for Education) is a proper training programme in the tourism industry. I think it is a good place to start for there are thousands of persons, I would say, at the present time who are employed and have to come from outside the Cayman Islands, because we do not have the expertise among the local Caymanians.

I believe that one has to look at the type of wages that are being offered in order to attract persons in that industry. Who can live on $2.50 per hour or $3.00 an hour? It is very difficult. As a result of that what is happening is that we are not able to attract Caymanians in the numbers we need to in the industry.

There was an arrangement in place where every winter we allowed the huge hotels to bring in a certain number of workers from Ireland to assist during the height of the tourist season. This was not in this Government's term alone but by the previous government. But that has encouraged those large hotel operators to say, "We can get labourers, so why should we even attempt to find local Caymanians to bring into the industry?"

The visitors who comes to our shores to enjoy our beaches, our friendly environment, want an opportunity to meet some of the local people. I have heard comments to the effect of, 'I have been here for three days and have not met a Caymanian as yet. When I came in the taxi driver was not a Caymanian, my hotel maid is not a Caymanian, the waitress at the restaurant is not a Caymanian.' If I go to Jamaica, I want to be in a position where I can meet some of the Jamaicans. If I go to England, I want to meet English people. So when the visitors come to the Cayman Islands, they want to meet Caymanians.

I believe we need to really look at what is being offered in the way of wages, not only in the tourism industry, I believe this holds true for other industries as well. As a Government and as leaders we should be able to say, "Ladies and gentlemen, you have an opportunity to operate in this country, but here are some of the conditions: one is to employ as many Caymanians as are available."

I get young men, in particular from the district of West Bay, who have called to say, 'Mr. Jefferson, I have been to the hotels, I have been everywhere and I cannot find a job.' But when you walk into those hotels, nine out of the ten faces you see are people who are foreigners. They are not doing any job that a Caymanian would not be willing to do and would welcome. I believe we have made it much too easy to obtain a work permit in this country at the expense of some of our people.

I know there were plans (as I have heard it mooted) about raising work permit fees especially at the professional level. I support that 100%. I believe there will always be a need to bring in persons from the outside

(I honestly believe that), but more and more Caymanians are going abroad with the assistance of Government scholarships, personal financing and are qualifying themselves with the idea of coming back to find employment. A lot of times what happens when they get back here, they are told, "We do not have any jobs available for you." This is total nonsense.

Government has to set the example in this area, because I was told recently that two young persons came back qualified as social workers and were told that there are no positions available. What do you do? We should be in a position that if there is no position available, we create a position and say that there is an officer on contract whose contract expires within a year. Let the person work along with that individual and when the contract is up he moves out and the young Caymanian moves in.

We are living in a very unrealistic world if we believe that a foreign person is going to come into this country train a Caymanian on a voluntary basis to take over for him and move on. Nine Out of ten times that does not happen because I would daresay, the Cayman Islands is probably one of the best places they have been to, the benefits and salary they get here they cannot get back at home (the chances are that back home they are unemployed), and it is a tax free environment. So they do very well. They are not anxious to train a Caymanian and leave.

This is where leadership comes in. Being leaders does not always put us in a very popular position, but being a leader sometimes you have to do what you have to do. This is something we must insist on, that more of our people are trained and that they have a career path available to them where they can see where they will be in three to five years and also be given an opportunity to earn a decent living. What I have seen happen in some of the big hotels, they put a token Caymanian at the top and that is it.

Another thing that I have seen which is very discouraging, is that we harp on the idea that we want

Caymanians advancing by being promoted, but a lot of times when they get in the position where they have influence in the decision-making process they are our Caymanians worst enemies. Rather than try to genuinely promote and recruit Caymanians, they could not care less. They would rather employ a foreigner than employ their own Caymanians. So I believe that training is an area we need to do more about, and we also need to remind the employers of their responsibility to provide opportunities for those Caymanians who are willing and able to work.

The Director of the Port Authority has done a good job by keeping commerce moving and seeing to it that this country is supplied as efficiently as possible with the goods and services we need. The port is also responsible to a large extent, in conjunction with the Tourism Department, with cruise ship arrivals. Every year there is a lot of emphasis placed on the number of cruise ship passengers who visit the Cayman Islands. This is a good business and I would daresay that the Cayman Islands is probably one of their premier destinations. But I believe Government has to take the initiative to see to it that it is shared fairly. We need to be in a position where we maximise the returns from the tourism industry.

I have taken a few cruises myself (my wife and I) and I know what the passengers are told on those ships. The night or so before you reach the next port there is a briefing where a booklet is given out (and this is gospel to 95% of the passengers on those ships) and they are told that if they want to buy jewelry, do tours or whatever these are the establishments they must visit or the tour buses they must take. I find it kind of comical at times to see some of these cruise ship passengers in these back roads looking for this little shop here and there. For what and why? Looking for these bargains which they are told about on these cruise ships. They are told that if they take anyone else other than who was recommended, they cannot be guaranteed first class service or a quality product. Basically, what that is is deceptive advertising. A lot of times it is at the expense of the passenger himself.

An example of what I am talking about is, you are on that cruise ship and come to the Cayman Islands and want to go on an island tour. The chances are that it will cost you $25 or $30 per person to take that tour. Out of that $30, say the local tour operator probably gets $8 per person. The other $22 goes into the pocket of the cruise ship operator. Whereby, if those passengers were allowed to come ashore and make their own arrangements it would probably cost them $10 to $15. So that is the reason why we hear comments such as, 'The Cayman Islands is one of the most expensive destinations around.' Why? because it is artificially priced by the cruise ships operators for them to maximise their return.

The persons I feel for in that industry are the small taxi operators and independent bus drivers. I did it for a year and a half. It is very discouraging to sit there and watch hundreds of people move and not one in a position to pick up any of the business. Sometimes you can spend the whole day out there and not even move to the beach (which was $2.00 per person when I was doing it).

One of the big promotions is Stingray City. We see bus after bus, and the business is all controlled by foreigners. They have the money, they have the contacts, and are able to make the arrangements, and they carry the passengers off by the hundreds to Stingray City while many of our local dive boat operators and snorkel boat operators sit there and watch the parade go by.

You know the kind of resentment that creates among our people? When I see that Mr. Dalmain is able to feed his family, and day after day I sit out there not able to benefit from that business - and I am a Caymanian.... It does not create good feelings. So I believe it is time for us to address this issue.

My Government has done very well over the last three years in addressing the issues that we are faced with in this country. But we still have a little work to do, and this is one of the areas that we need to address.

I believe that we need to have a round table pow-wow with representatives from the Tour Bus Operators Association, the Independent Operators Association, the cruise ships and perhaps representatives from Government to sit down and say 'Ladies and gentlemen, we need a solution. Either you assist us in finding one, or we will find one ourselves. But this cannot continue to take place.' This has gotten to the extent where, if you are a small dive boat operator, even the hotels refuse to allow you to display brochures in their lobby, in other words, put something on the racks with all the other brochures to allow you to promote your business. Now that is going a little too far. As I have said, it only creates ill-will and resentment among our people. It has to be addressed.

I see that there are plans by the Port Authority for a third jetty. I would say, I trust that it is not planned for the Hog Sty Bay area. On a cruise ship day, downtown is so congested especially in that area, people walking up and down making nuisances of themselves. As I have said, we need to be in a position where we farm out the benefits that we receive from that industry to other districts where taxi drivers and bus operators are able to at least pick up a fare by taking passengers from wherever they are going into town for shopping. We do not need any further congestion in Hog Sty Bay, and I trust that this development is not planned for that area.

One thing to remember is that Government is going to have to dictate to those cruise ship operators what the rules of the game are. I am aware that the present Minister has sat down with them time and time again attempting to get their cooperation in resolving this problem. They give the impression that they will cooperate, then find some way of getting around whatever they agree on, going right back to what they were doing before. So I believe it is time for us to address this issue once and for all.

Some people are not going to be happy, but that is of little concern to me. What has to be the guiding principle is what is in the best interest of this country and our people.

Moving on to the Ministry for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, I am very pleased to hear of plans to introduce a National Health Insurance programme in this country. It is very much needed, and I know the Minister has been working from the time he has been in office (and the Minister before that) in trying to arrive at a plan that is affordable to all and one that will work. But it is an issue that has to be addressed. We have to be in a position where the employer and the employee make a contribution to this very important issue.

What happens at the present time is that most people do not carry a personal health insurance or the company they work for does not offer it. So if someone gets sick or has an accident that financial burden falls on the Government. In most cases they are referred overseas and in a lot of instances it costs the Government and the people of this country hundreds of thousands of dollars. So I look forward to seeing the details of the programme and be in a position to support this very essential service which we need in this country.

I am heartened to see that plans are well on the way for the construction of the new hospital. I think in answer to a question the other day, the Minister replied that the bids were in and will be handled by the Central Tenders Committee. Hopefully the contract will be awarded shortly and we can get on with the continued construction programme for the health facility.

One of the things the National Team promised our people was that we would provide a health facility that they could be proud of and one that the country can afford. I went to the ground breaking ceremony sometime ago when they were constructing the storage facilities and I also had an opportunity to view some of the plans for the new hospital and talk to some of the medical staff. What I was most impressed with was the level of enthusiasm among these officers and also to learn of the magnitude of the input they had in these plans. I think that is the right approach because they work in this facility on a daily basis and see the weaknesses. So they are in a position to make recommendations for the best, practical facility.

I congratulate the Minister and tell him to keep moving forward with his plan because he is doing a fantastic job.

The Speaker: Would you take a suspension at this time?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.4.8 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.15 PM

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Madam Speaker, when we took the break I was dealing with the Health Services. I mentioned that plans are well on the way for the new hospital. It is my understanding that this facility will be completed within the next two years - the entire process. I believe that at that time we will have a facility we can be proud of, one that we will be able to afford, and one that will meet the health care needs many years in the future.

It is time that the Opposition drops the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital issue. Even they are convinced (that is the two Opposition Members in this House) that it could not work. It is just that at the present time they find themselves in the company of the former Member for Health, who did not listen to anyone but went ahead and did what he felt like doing with the support of his colleagues in Executive Council. That could not work. As I have said, I think it is time for us to put that issue behind us. At the present time that is of no concern to the majority of the people in this country.

I recall that the hospital was a major issue in the 1992 General Election. The National Team told the people before they were elected what they were going to do - we were going to stop it and construct a hospital on the existing site which seemed to have the support of the majority of the people. So it is time for us now to join forces, mend the fences in this area and support the new Minister for Health on the new hospital project. Even the First Elected Member for Bodden Town (my good friend) was part of the National Team.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Emphasis on was.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: He ran as part of the team and subscribed to the same manifesto we did and that issue was a part of our Manifesto - a hospital on the existing site.

I am also pleased to learn that plans are well on the way for a district health centre for West Bay. Construction will start shortly and hopefully we will have it in place between now and early September. There are also plans for one in East End and North Side. What I like about this Government is that all districts have benefitted during our administration: East End did not get everything nor did West Bay get everything or George Town get everything, we shared it up very fairly, including the Sister Islands. They have gotten a fair share of the Budget on an annual basis. We continue to take that approach regarding services that are needed by our people regardless of who they supported and which district they live in.

I support the Minister regarding his approach on drug abuse prevention and rehabilitation. But it really pains my heart to see the number of young people who have succumbed to the disease (I would say) of drug abuse. Young people whose health have been ruined, whose reputations have been ruined, whose ambitions have been lost and they move from one hour to the next wondering where they can get their next high or hit from. I believe that there is a need for greater district vigilance. I am a sort of dictator when it comes to this sort of thing, because I see many of our young people in the middle of the day just roaming back and forth, playing no essential role whatsoever, just looking for drugs.

We need to address this very serious issue in this country. I do not know how you address it, but we need to find a solution to this problem. I think it is too easy for those persons who are interested to get involved in that activity to get drugs. It is a very difficult thing to shut off because you are surrounded by water but I believe that a little country this size, we have to try to gain greater control over this scourge in this country.

The other thing that concerns me is that it is evident that there are certain well known individuals known to be engaged in this type of illegal activity. They have cars, homes, boats, the very best of what is available and they do not work. It seems that they can go from year to year with no break in their activities whatsoever. It baffles me because if we know who those persons are perhaps the police should know. But we have to get to the place in this country where, politically or otherwise, all of those boys or girls who engage in that sort of activity have an "X", and the leaders say, irrespective of your support, this type of activity is not going to be encouraged or condoned. 'If you are drug trafficking and are caught, you must pay the penalty.'

I believe we are much too tolerant regarding this issue. We need to impose stiffer sentences. I also understand that the 1976 to 1984 Government had put in place minimum mandatory sentences for drug trafficking. What that did when someone went before the court was put the magistrate in a position to hand down a minimum sentence. I think it was wrong to remove those mandatory sentences, leaving it up to the discretion of the court. Some of the decisions taken recently regarding drug trafficking do not in themselves discourage that type of activity. I believe we have to increase the sentences and we have to reinstitute in the law mandatory sentences.

We may not be in a position where we control (and I would not want to be in that position) but we as legislators should be in a position where we know if someone goes before the court and is convicted of this type of activity the minimum they are going to get is 15, 20 or 25 years. We know offhand what the position is going to be. The magistrate then is in a position where he can use his discretion to give him 15 years instead of five years. But we have to start from a minimum position in regards to this type of sentencing.

I believe that greater emphasis and effort has to be directed at controlling drug traffickers in this country. Those, as I have said, who are well known and who live with us in the communities should be arrested; and when convicted their assets should be seized. Young people coming out of school see them as heroes, and that is basically what they have become. They walk around wearing 20 gold chains, and rings on every finger. They drive flashy cars that you and I cannot afford. They seem to be able to do as they like and make good money even though they lie around until 10 o'clock, while you and I have to be at work by 8.30 in the morning. This does not encourage young people in our country to choose an honest way of life.

I recall one trafficker who was convicted and came running to the politicians for assistance. My position is that I have no desire whatsoever for that kind of activity. I do not condone it, nor do I support it, and anyone who takes the risk of engaging in it and gets caught, then the courts and the prison system must deal with him. But I believe that we need to be in a position where there is greater emphasis and effort placed on dealing with this type of activity in our districts.

I am also pleased to learn that plans underway for the renovation of the facilities that were purchased for the purpose of rehabilitation (that is resident rehabilitation). This is a facility that we dearly need in this country. The former Government's approach was that if somebody needed an overseas referral they would be willing to consider it. That has not happened and the reason why it has not is because it is so expensive to send somebody overseas to one of those Rehabilitation Centres. The success rate is not high. Because you move an individual out of this environment, and put him in an environment for three to six months - and he is fine while he is there. But when he comes back here he moves into the very comfortable surroundings and within a short time he is right back into that activity.

If we had a facility here where persons could become residents and, perhaps on a release programme, they are able to go back for the evening or weekends and gradually be released into society, this would be more effective in treating this problem of drug abuse. It would also reduce the cost because it does not matter if 100 persons need the assistance or two persons, we would have the facility and the personnel to provide the service; so to maximise the use of the facility, would be a plus. Every person who has an interest in fighting this difficult addiction would be in a position to get the opportunity he needs. Right now that is not the case. It is very expensive to refer someone overseas for treatment and a lot of times the Government says, 'We can treat that person locally. He does not need an overseas referral.' Why? The majority of the time that decision is based on the financial cost for that service overseas.

I welcome the announcement that this facility will be coming on stream pretty soon. This is an issue that I have campaigned on since 1988, and I am pleased to see that pretty soon this will become a reality in this country.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION - 4.30 PM

The Speaker: Honourable Member, do you expect to be finished shortly?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: No, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: In that case may I ask for the motion for the adjournment?

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Monday, at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 4TH MARCH, 1996.

MONDAY
4TH MARCH, 1996
10.06 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Member for North Side to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed.

Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Deferred question No. 1, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 1

No. 1: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works has Government been approached by Cable & Wireless (Cayman Islands) Ltd. to institute a new system for the installation of telephone lines in homes and businesses and, if so, what does it entail.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer: Yes, Cable & Wireless has approached Government and has adopted a new policy which provides its customers with a choice of contractors for the installation of telephone lines in homes and businesses. The new policy (named, Regulated Interconnect) still allows customers to choose Cable & Wireless for the installation of telecommunications wiring.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister elaborate on what is given in the answer as a choice of contractors for the installation of telephone lines in homes and businesses? To the best of my knowledge, when someone desires to have a telephone line installed, Cable & Wireless sends its technicians who have the know-how. How could persons other than these fit the bill?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The contractor or individual interested in carrying out such a job would have an opportunity to take an installation course in the telecommunication wiring at the Community College of the Cayman Islands to become approved for such installation which would bring them up to par with the Cable & Wireless technicians.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Would the Honourable Minister state if this is the actual connection from the pole to the building, or is it within the building only?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. That would be the wiring of buildings.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say what kind of impact this would have on the waiting time we now experience in regard to getting a new telephone?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is my understanding that this is one of the reasons it has been encouraged by Cable & Wireless - because the waiting period has been for long extended periods, especially for larger businesses, and it has become somewhat of a burden for Cable & Wireless to keep up with the wiring. Years ago we had the electric company do wiring. That stopped when the boom period started. This is similar now. For this reason they support the idea of individuals becoming knowledgeable in wiring and the course can be taken at the Community College where someone can become certified.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Have any figures been looked at as to what difference in cost, which might be incurred with a private contractor doing it, versus Cable & Wireless, and will Cable & Wireless ultimately have to approve the wiring within the building?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Yes, the installation would have to be up to the standard of Cable & Wireless. Of course they will have to approve it before the final connection of house to pole. The cost, as I understand, would vary depending upon the project (residential or commercial). It is my understanding that the inspection cost, the approval in principle, for residential would be free of charge, the plans would be free of charge and there would also be no charge for random inspection. The interim inspections would be $50, and final inspection would be $100.

On commercial, the interim inspection would be $100 and the final would be $200. Approval in principle and plans and random inspections would all be free.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Is it that plans, as referred to in the Minister's reply, would actually have to be drawn plans approved by Cable & Wireless prior to electricians putting in the installation there?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As with the electrical plans where the points are shown where one would like to have electricity, it would be similar with the plans for telephones. It will be on the same plan, showing points for communications.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 9, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

DEFERRED QUESTION NO.9 No. 9:

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to give an update on the ongoing street lighting programme.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. The answer: The details below are: a) the number of street lights installed; b) areas that are completed; c) areas that are not completed and; d) anticipated completion dates for the areas not yet finished.

Frank Sound to Bodden Town - 27 lights remaining to be installed

West Bay - Pond Road to 4-way stop March 1996

Additionally, continuing requests from Members of the Legislative Assembly from the various districts are regularly included in the programme.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Minister say exactly what method is employed when dealing with the requests from the representatives?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I often receive calls from Members asking for lights. Most of the time, I receive a letter identifying the area where the light is wanted. I in turn will contact the Public Works Department which will then deal directly with CUC to have the light installed.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Minister say if he knows of any long outstanding requests for the district of George Town which have not been dealt with?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

All the areas of the island have requests in much longer than anybody would like them to be. But the George Town district is the one district that we have had to attend to areas that are renowned for drugs and each time, as we get on the programme the way we would like to, we have had to change it to put in lights in the various other parts of George Town. This is why you will find that we have a greater number of 400 watt lights. We have had to do the water front straight to South Sound, we have had to do various areas - I think the most recent one is by the hospital where somebody was mugged right in the car park.

If there are some outstanding ones, we hope to get to them, but this is the reason why we have not addressed that as yet.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if there are any plans (outside of the normal public roads mentioned in answer to the question) to deal with subdivision areas from which requests have been coming, the larger subdivisions, especially?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

That is nothing new; we have been doing this ever since the programme has been in place. As I receive requests, if it is in a dark area or areas where it is suspected that drugs are sold or used, we try to put that on our priority list. Many of these requests have been in the larger subdivision areas as the Member has just pointed out.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Minister give an undertaking to this Member that whenever the programme reaches into the George Town district proper, that the Representatives for George Town will be able to meet with the Minister in order to deal with several outstanding matters? Having understood his answer, and accepting that there is reasonable method employed to solve the problem, and time is of the essence, would the Minister be prepared to meet with the Representatives so that we may be able to deal with some of these outstanding requests, as well as others that have been pointed out which we find (because of the ongoing programme) almost senseless to request at this time?

If we could get together with the Minister perhaps we could get some programme going mainly for areas where people live, not just main thoroughfares.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I have no problem meeting with any Representatives of this Honourable House. However, if there are areas that the Member is concerned about, and if he submits them to me, when we are in that area we will have them done. I think he knows this very well, because with the exception of the few which he thinks have been behind for some time, I would have thought that appreciation would have been shown for the many areas that we have done here in this district.

Just last year we put in over 100 lights here in George Town. The report I received, especially from the police, is that it has assisted them a lot with the areas of known criminal activity I mentioned earlier.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Should I fail to be grateful, it is not intentional. But my main concerns are with regard to things which are not done. So my question still remains - and I ask the Minister when he considers the time to be right if he could schedule a meeting with the representatives of the district.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The three other Members for George Town have met with me on various occasions and thanked me for the lights which have been installed in this district. I have no request from them to meet for further lights. I have made it abundantly clear that I have no problem meeting with any Member of this House, especially if it is going to help the country. I believe that the more lights we can put, especially in the areas I have mentioned, the better for this country. We are now aware of the many attacks that we have had on tourists. This is the reason why we have had to do the thoroughfares before we do the individual places like the Member is concerned about. I hope that he will agree with me on this.

QUESTION NO.43

No. 43: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture how many guarantees have now been given under the Housing Mortgage Scheme, with a breakdown of amounts and percentages of equity.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: As at 20th February, 1996, there were 28 guarantees executed by the Financial Secretary on behalf of Government in respect to the guaranteed Home Mortgage Scheme.

The dollar amount of the 28 guarantees issued by Government is C1$935,000 which represents the standard guarantee of 35% of the upper layer of each of the 28 mortgages. The total dollar amount of the mortgage loans which have been approved by the four participating banks to date is C1$7.4 million.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. It has been said in public and I would ask the Minister if it is indeed possible that Government guarantees up to 100% on mortgages and if any have been requested or given, other than the 35%?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, the answer is no.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 44, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO.44

No. 44: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce to explain exactly how the new Taxi Rank area will function.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: The Taxi Rank on Thomas Russel Way is still under construction and the Port Authority has not yet completely finalised how it will function. When such details are finalised, I will inform this Honourable House in writing.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: From looking at the site, all appearances indicate that it is nearing completion. Does the Minister know, or have any idea when this facility will begin being used?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The facility has not been handed over to the Port Authority. My answer is that the functions have not been completely finalised. It really means that this matter has to be before the Port Authority Board to finalise it.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

Government Business: The Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing the debate on the Throne Speech.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY MR. JOHN OWEN, MBE, GOVERNOR OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS, ON FRIDAY, 16TH FEBRUARY, 1996

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker. When we adjourned on Friday I was dealing with the Ministry of Health, and I had arrived at the role of the Cayman Counselling Centre. I want to congratulate the staff at the centre and also the staff at the Cayman Islands Marine Institute, on the very effective programmes that they have put in place. From some of the young people that I have come in contact with, it is very evident that they have had a very positive impact on their lives.

I know, in particular, in the district of West Bay, that there are a number of young men who attend the Cayman Islands Marine Institute. These were what we would term 'bad boys'. Today they are productive citizens who hold jobs. They seem to have gotten their act together as far as fitting into the community.

I am also very pleased to see that the Counselling Service at Northward Prison will be expanded from one day per week to five days. The statistics tell us that 75% to 80% of the prisoners in Northward are there for drug related illegal activity. My opinion is that if they are there for drug consumption, regardless of whether or not they want to attend, they should be required to attend these counselling classes. What concerns me, and I have gotten to the stage where I believe that the Government has to lead by example, not only that, I think Government has to insist that we get the cooperation and participation from the private sector with regard to providing employment for prisoners once they are released from prison.

Many of those ex-prisoners are young Caymanians who have made mistakes, but who are genuinely concerned and interested in getting on with their lives, fitting back into society, being in a position where they can support themselves and their families through honest employment. It is very difficult for these persons to find employment once they are released from prison.

I have advocated for a long time that there has to be a coordinated effort; somebody has to be in charge of a programme of this nature who works closely with Government and the private sector; one who advises the private sector and Government as to when certain inmates are being released. I also encouraged that a programme be started (and I think it is being done now) where some of these prisoners are allowed to go out on a part time basis to work while they are serving their sentences. By doing this the employer has an opportunity to see what the person is capable of doing. The prisoner adjusts and is mentally prepared to move on once he is released from prison.

I believe this is very important because a large percentage of our young people find themselves with a criminal record basically because of drug consumption. It is important for us to deal with this very important issue because if these young men and women cannot find honest employment, upon being released they will drift right back into the criminal activity which put them in prison in the first place. I believe Government should make this a priority and see to it that a programme of this nature is put in place.

Overall, I believe that the Minister for Health is doing a good job. He has only been there for two years, and the number of programmes he is spear-heading and putting forward are important programmes which we need in this country to address the many issues and problems we are facing. I congratulate the Minister and tell him that he has my support. Continue to keep up the good work.

Madam Speaker, I would like to move on to the Ministry for Education and Planning. I am pleased to see that the programme of implementing the new curriculum in schools is being done. I am aware that there is quite an effort at the present time at the West Bay Primary School; there are a lot of teachers and parents who are involved. I believe that is the approach that should be taken where you have the input from teachers and parents regarding the future educational needs of this country.

One of the areas that I am concerned about in education is special education in this country. I recall Rev. Shepherd from the Presbyterian Church in Boatswain Bay (I think) who was responsible for spearheading the Special Education programme as we know it today. I think the way it worked was that once Government saw the results of those efforts, they gradually moved in and took over the programme. What I am concerned about (and I was not aware of this until just recently) is that when the former Member for Education, Mr. Benson Ebanks, removed the reception classes at the Government Primary Schools, the reception class at the Lighthouse School was also eliminated.

This has caused numerous problems, because those young children who have special educational needs now have to be dealt with at home or in the few pre-schools which are capable of taking them in and seeing to it that they are supervised. It makes it very difficult for the private pre-schools to deal with children who have special needs along with all the other normal pre-school aged children.

The other thing that is surprising to me is the number of our children who fall in this category today, that is, special education.

The Sunrise Centre and the Lighthouse School facilities are bursting at the seams; they need additional space, they need additional equipment, and they need additional staff. I am aware that the Minister (that is the present Minister), has commissioned a team of educators to determine what their needs are and have plans to address those in this area. I would just encourage that Minister to make this a priority. These young people are part of our community and they need the attention that they deserve.

What has also been very encouraging is that a number of students from the Sunrise Centre, in particular, have been able to go out and secure employment to support themselves which makes them feel that they are productive members of our society. That is good, Madam Speaker, very, very good indeed.

I am constantly amazed at the accomplishments of these institutions (considering the limited space and the facilities that they have) and the kind of results they have gotten from working with, especially, physically handicapped, members of our community. A lot of these prior to attending these institutions were crippled, unable to support themselves; unable to even do basic things for themselves. Today, they are walking, they are able to find (as I have said before) employment by which to support themselves. They are doing very well indeed within the community. We must make the Sunrise Centre a priority.

If we cannot find a piece of property on which to build a facility, then we must expend every effort to see if we can find some place which can be renovated for this purpose. The situation is becoming very acute and has to be addressed. But I have confidence in the Minister for Education and Planning, and I am quite sure that like myself, he has made this area of education a priority.

I also want to congratulate the Principal and staff at the West Bay Primary School and the Education Council for recently taking the stand against Rastafarians in schools. I recall (I think it was my first term) getting a call from one of the parents. She said, "Mr. Jefferson, I am just calling to let you know that the principal of the school refuses to allow my child to attend school because he has dreadlocks (or long hair)." I said to the parent, 'I support that policy 100%, and if you want your child to attend school, then let him cut his hair.' I still maintain that position and I congratulate the school and the Education Council for having the guts to take and maintain that position.

One of the things I am proud of, as far as this Government is concerned, is the level of assistance that we have continued to give to the private schools in this country. It is recognised that if the private schools were not up to the standard that they are, then Government's responsibility regarding additional schools and other facilities would be much higher indeed. It is expensive for Government to provide the facilities that we require in this country for education.

I believe assisting the private schools is a good investment. I also believe that the private schools keep the Government schools on their toes, competitively because of the high standards that are maintained. So I do appreciate the level of support that we continue to give to the private schools and I trust that this policy will continue in the future.

Madam Speaker, I have one concern regarding Planning. When individuals who want to play it by the rules apply to the Planning Department for approval of a plan, it appears that the Planning Officers (some of them) impose (should I say unnecessary?) conditions as far as the approval process is concerned.

What this does is frustrate the persons who want to do it correctly. It also encourages people who want to build in the future to, rather than applying to the Planning Department for the necessary approval, go ahead and build anyway.

On the other hand, I believe that the Planning Department has to be more vigilant in stopping and discouraging the amount of illegal construction that goes on in this country. Not only illegal from the standpoint of not having the approval, but the kind of standards which are utilised and the kind of conditions that these persons allow people to live under are totally unacceptable.

I am aware of areas where I doubt there has been any Planning approval, where they have 10 or 15 apartments with tenants sharing a single bathroom or shower. This poses all sorts of health problems. I believe that Environmental Health and Planning have to work much closer together in order to eliminate this type of construction activity in our community.

I know for a fact that even in my district of West Bay we have had problems with this where developers has no regard for health or for the environment. They do whatever they feel like doing while renting these places.

What happens is that they become a nuisance to the entire community. Neighbours are affected by the stench and all the other things that go along with those sites because they are not built according to the rules and all the other things required by the Planning Department.

I encourage the Planning Team to continue to maintain a very high standard for construction, but at the same time to be reasonable with regard to requirements and to also focus on dealing with illegal construction in this country. That is a much more serious problem than trying to impose unreasonable conditions as far as applications are concerned.

I am pleased that the process has been streamlined where the Director and the Chairman of the Central Planning Authority has the authority to deal with residences and apartment complexes. This does speed up the process and also allows the Central Planning Authority to deal with construction applications from the commercial side rather than being responsible for all types of activities requiring approval.

Let me just finalise the Ministry of Education by commenting on Cayman Airways. I am very pleased to see that Cayman Airways is looking at the possibility of buying another 737-200 aircraft. I think this is a very good move. I am proud that Cayman Airways can hold its own with proper management and a Board in place that knows what it is doing, along with Government's support at a certain level.

Cayman Airways is no longer a political football, the airline is doing very well and is holding its own against the feared competition that has come into this country. I believe that Caymanians are still very patriotic and a large percentage of them continue to fly Cayman Airways with confidence and pride because the airline is doing very well. I believe that the airline is in very good hands at the present time. I want to also congratulate the Minister for Education for his very capable leadership in these areas. I believe that he has done a very good job.

Moving on to the Ministry of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works: This is also a very big and important Ministry. I just want to say that we should continue to recognise the role of the Mosquito Research and Control Unit. I think they are celebrating their 30th anniversary. Just yesterday we had some guests at our home and we were discussing the Cayman Islands and the progress that has been seen here. The couple had not been here for 15 years and they were amazed at the amount of progress and development which has been made since their last visit.

They asked me how it was in the days before the MRCU was established. I told them that I recalled those days very vividly. The mosquitoes were so thick that if you ventured outside you either had to have a smoke pot or a Shamrock limb to keep them away. I recall hearing of instances when they were so thick that they actually smothered cattle grazing in the fields.

The investment in MRCU was a good one and continues to be a good one. I believe that we must continue to support that very important unit.

The improvements to our Postal facility in George Town, and also those in some of the outer districts, are very evident. I believe that there has been tremendous improvement. We must recognise those who are responsible for that very worthwhile improvement.

The 9-1-1 Emergency System is well in hand and I think it is a very important thing. It is difficult to try to remember the number to call in the time of an emergency. At present, I think we have a separate number for the Fire Station, one for the Hospital, one for the Police and to have one system and one number, regardless of what the problem is, makes it much simpler. I am very pleased with the capabilities of this service, in that if one is on the line and unable to finish the communication because of a problem (maybe a heart attack) the system allows identification of the location of the caller so that the rescue squads can go and take care of the matter.

Public Works has been very busy over the last three years doing a fantastic job as far as meeting the demand for roads in all districts. I believe that we have done as well as we could do with the funds we have available for roads. I would like to see us get back to the programme which was adopted by a previous Government where on an annual basis they budgeted for a certain number of miles of paved roads. The main corridors are getting old and I think this is an area we definitely need to address. Rather than going out and borrowing $100 million like the former Government wanted us to do, we should do it over a period of time as we can afford to do it. That makes it practical and before long we will be able to re-pave the roads that need re-paving.

The positive comments that we have received in regard to the piece we have done in West Bay shows that our people appreciate that. We have to be responsible and live within our means. That has always been the policy of the present Government.

I am also very interested to see the completion of the Harquail and Crewe Road bypasses to give us some relief from the traffic congestion along the Seven Mile Beach area and for those coming from and going to the Eastern Districts. Traffic is becoming a serious problem in this country. I believe that it is one that we as a Government will have to address.

Everyone talks about the congestion, but no one wants to hear about being in a position where some Government decides it is time for us to start looking at the necessity of reducing the number of cars imported into this country. It is like the work permit situation - everybody is concerned about the number of expats we have in the country, but everybody wants a maid. We cannot have our cake and eat it too. I think this is an issue which has to be addressed.

I would just like to say that regardless of where you go, at peak hours there is always a traffic problem. As big and extensive a road programme as the United States has, at 8.00 in the morning, and 5.00 in the afternoon, they are faced with the same problems that we are faced with in regard to traffic.

I believe that the Harquail bypass and the Crewe Road bypass will assist in relieving the traffic situation at peak hours.

I would also like to congratulate the Minister for Communications and Works for continuing to do such a good job.

The Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture: I want to say how proud I am to have this Minister as one of my colleagues in the district of West Bay, and to also congratulate him on his accomplishments over the past three and a half years. It shows that when you have a Government in place that has the interests of the people at heart, and has the support to get things done, much can be accomplished in a very short time.

His accomplishments in the area of sports have been very evident. Today the Cayman Islands can boast of some of the most modern sporting facilities of anyplace in the Caribbean. I believe, even on a global basis, that we can be proud of the sporting facilities that we have in this country.

I recall that it made me proud to sit in the bleachers of the Truman Bodden Sports Centre during Easter last year when we had the CARIFTA Games. I think that every Caymanian who attended was proud of the facilities we have in that area where we can host international competition.

What I am also pleased to see is that the sporting facilities have not been confined to any particular district. The programme has been extended to all districts and the plan is that every district will have proper facilities for the young people of that area.

When the Cayman Islands Basketball Association hosted the under 14 finals at the Lions' Centre, I was very pleased to see the standard of basketball among these young people. It speaks well of the Cayman Islands Basketball Association, the President, Mr. Tony Scott, and our national coach, Mr. Voot O'Garro. He has embarked on a district programme, having activities in Bodden Town, East End, West Bay and he is extending the sport to the primary school level at the present time.

Sports play a very important role in any community. The more young people we can occupy in a healthy activity like sports, the fewer we will have to worry about getting in trouble. It encourages a clean and healthy life-style and the investment in sports will be felt and will carry those young people a long way in life. It teaches them responsibility and discipline and the idea of commitment. I believe that regardless of what the Opposition wants to say (and they have said a lot) about spending too much money on sports... How do we put a monetary value on the life of a young person?

I think that for too long there was no emphasis and no concern for activities of this nature. Every dollar that we spend on sports has been an investment that is well worth it.

I am excited about the new sporting complex that is proposed for West Bay where we will have a community hall capable of hosting major functions. Also, being in a position to be used to host international competition, maybe in boxing, basketball, netball, and all the other indoor games that we participate in today.

We can boast of being one of the wealthiest countries in the world, and for so long we deprived our people of such a basic facility. I believe that this Government has the interest of the people at heart and I believe that the people appreciate the accomplishments in this area. So I want to say to those athletes who are looking forward to the indoor sporting facility being built, that it will be started this year and they will be well on their way to having that facility in place as soon as possible.

I was at the George Town Primary School facilities and I was angry about the deplorable state of the facility in that area. I spoke to Mrs. Martin, the Principal, who was just recently selected as the Woman of the Year (and she is doing a good job), but she too was very concerned with the state of those facilities. She told me that she did not allow her children to use the basketball courts because of all the broken glass and the broken down fences. There are buildings there - one that was built as a changing room - which are not in working condition, not maintained. It allows for illegal activity in that area, especially after dark. So this is a good project for the representatives from George Town between now and November to visit that school and see what the needs are, to put in the request to the respective Ministers to improve that situation. That is totally unacceptable in the day in which we live.

Mrs. Martin believes that the building should be brought up to a usable standard or knocked down so that it does not continue to be a nuisance as far as illegal drug activity. I believe that it would be money well spent (because that area is used a great deal by the community. I know that the hockey players practise there on Tuesdays and some of the basketball teams also practise in that area) to find somebody as a custodian or security guard and to ensure that Environmental Health has garbage disposal bins in that area which are picked up frequently. That is another problem. We put bins in an area which sit there for weeks overflowing and all of a sudden people start dumping their garbage on the ground.

I believe that this is an area which has to be addressed. One of the reasons I feel so strongly is because I went to school there when it was called the Secondary Modern School. I know that we did not have a security guard in those days or a maintenance man, but the grounds were kept clean. Every Friday there was a team in place responsible for going out with garbage bags and collecting the trash. It is used by the community, and I believe that between the Education Department and the Ministry of Sports something should be done to ensure that the facilities in that area are properly maintained.

I also applaud the Minister for his efforts in relation to the National Cultural Foundation. I believe it is vital for us as Caymanians to retain and be reminded of our culture. The only concern I have in that area is that I believe that more Caymanians have to be placed in positions of influence with regard to that type of activity because what we normally find is that rather than promoting our culture, those in charge promote the culture of the area they are from. I believe that we need Caymanians in place who are qualified and who have an interest in this area. It is very important for us to remember and be reminded of our roots

The Minister has also done quite a bit with regard to addressing the labour issue in this country through the amendment of the Labour Law and increasing the fines and penalties for abuse in that area. I believe to a certain extent that the situation has improved. But one area that still has to be addressed is the issue of gratuities in this country.

As far back as the 1988 campaign, it was my philosophy that the Government had to appoint or employ persons with the necessary accounting background capable of carrying out regular inspections at the condominiums and hotels.

I am also aware that in the 1995 Budget we made a provision for a person of that calibre. I only recently learned that someone has been employed in that post, but one who does not necessarily have the capability or background to carry out those inspections. I am fed up with the number of complaints that I get from employees of these condominiums where the management is obviously sharing in the gratuities - which is illegal, according to the Labour Law - at the expense of our Caymanian people who work in those areas and earn a living from that industry.

The attraction with regard to working at a hotel or condominium is not necessarily the wages, because in most cases they are very low (I think much too low). But if the person can get the gratuities which are earned, then it makes sense for the person to work. But when one is making $2.50 or $3.00 per hour and the management steals the gratuities, it does not lend itself to a very healthy situation at all.

I am aware that the Minister is looking at the possibility of employing someone from one of the big accounting firms in the private sector to assist in this area. He would not only be responsible for looking at the gratuity end of things, but would also be used to ensure that the amount of tourist accommodation tax paid is correct. This will be money well spent and an issue which has to be given priority as far as we are concerned.

I look forward to the Minister making a statement (or including it in his contribution) as to what he has been able to achieve as far as finding persons with the necessary qualification to go in and inspect these condominiums and hotel complexes to ensure that things are being run properly as far as distribution of gratuities and to also ensure that Government is getting the tourist accommodation tax that they are entitled to.

I believe that all that has to happen is that they go out there and find one or two culprits and make an example of them. That would discourage others who may be tempted to abuse that privilege of gratuities from doing so. The Labour Law has some very severe penalties in the instance where abuse is discovered. I believe that if people are caught abusing this privilege they should be prepared to pay the penalty.

I look forward to the Minister making some kind of comment on his plan for dealing with the gratuities issue in this country.

I am also very pleased with the amount of financing that has been made available through the AIDB and also the Commercial banks for scholarships and student loans. There is no greater investment than the education of our young people. The Minister has been very effective in getting the cooperation of the commercial banks. I believe that these young people who are being assisted are responsible and once they have finished their education and come back and find a job they will be more than happy to repay those funds that have been borrowed for their education.

The one concern I have is that once our young people go abroad to further their education, that they will be able to find meaningful and worthwhile employment in the areas they have been trained in when they return. I am not sure what the latest statistics are on the number of work permits we have in the financial community, but there are many. I think that as a Government we have to be responsible for ensuring that our young people, once they are qualified, are able to move up. It has always been the excuse that we cannot find enough qualified Caymanians so we have to bring people in from the outside. Now, when we do have some qualified Caymanians, they are still being kept down by employers who are here on a work permit.

I believe that much can be accomplished with the cooperation of the Government and the private sector in this area. But we need to see much more done in this area. As I mentioned on Friday, it is much too easy to get a work permit and this discourages the employer to find a Caymanian.

For someone on a work permit they can dictate their hours, the conditions under which they work. What it also does, as far as the employer is concerned, is put them in a position where they can dictate for the next four or five years (or whatever the term of that permit is) exactly what that employee does. They hold their means of livelihood through that work permit.

It makes sense to find local persons who are willing and able to work in these areas. First of all they would not have to worry about a work permit. In most cases they would not have to worry about housing or a car allowance and all the other benefits extended to persons on work permits. It makes sense because there are people within the community participating in the financial community. This lends itself to stability: Once people see that they are part of the success process, then the chances are that they are going to be very careful ensuring that the environment remains stable and progressive, because they stand to lose themselves, if anything goes wrong.

I recall that shortly after the 1992 political campaign (and this was something that we campaigned on - training and promotion of Caymanians) it was amazing how many persons and establishments that I spoke to were singing that song. They were setting up training units or programmes to ensure that Caymanians in their respective areas were trained with the idea of providing employment in those areas. I believe that it is better for us to allow the private sector to take the lead, but if they are not going to do it on a voluntary basis, there must be some understanding as to what is expected of them in this area.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient opportunity to take a break?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.37 A.M.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.59 A.M.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I am almost at the end of my contribution. I just feel that overall we have a lot to be thankful for in this country. Government has been successful in turning the financial position around in the past three-and-one-half years; Government's credibility with the financial institutions has been restored. Unemployment is down to the extent where I believe that anyone who really wants a job can find one. The financial community continues to move ahead at a very positive and manageable pace. Tourism is up, even compared to last year and the year before. I think it was up some 16% to 18% in January as compared to last year.

We are moving ahead on all fronts. I do not see any areas of major concern. Now that we have addressed the issue of Government's financial position, unemployment, tourism and all of the areas that affect us nationally, I believe that we can focus on the three areas where I still have a concern.

One area is transportation. Another is the issue of the Port Authority, the Civil Aviation Authority and also the issue of ground transportation, that is, those persons who engage in providing a service between the districts. At the present time there is total chaos, especially in the ground transportation side of things. I called the inspector who is in charge of traffic and I was told that he was waiting on a Ground Transportation Licence to be drafted by the Legal Department. That was a month to six weeks ago and I have not heard any more. But the problem continues to exist.

Each week a new bus comes on stream, not driven by a Caymanian, who will go out there and compete with our Caymanians in this area. It ties the hands of the police in that if there is not proper regulations and requirements in place, then there is only so much they can do to see to it that these persons comply. I believe that it has to be straightened out. It has gotten to the stage where our Caymanian people who depend on transportation for their livelihood are finding it extremely difficult to make a living in this area.

If a licence needs to be drafted in order to put this system in place, then let us get on with it. If the Legal Department is not in a position to do it, then let us get someone from the private sector to do it, but let us get it done. Transportation is an issue that has been with us for a long time. Government after Government has grappled with how to address it. Frankly speaking, I am not at all pleased with the idea that something cannot be done.

I have always believed that if one has a problem, one should try to find a solution as quickly as possible. This is an area where we need solutions. A large number of our people are employed and do have their own vehicles. They depend on this very important industry for their livelihood. I do not think that Government can leave it to the forces out there, in other words, survival of the fittest, because the ones who will survive are those people who have the money and the contacts to drum up business. The only people who will really be hurt are our people.

It is not asking too much when the people who elected us say that we have a problem in this area and ask us to please deal with it. I know how difficult it is in that industry. I depended upon that for a year and a half myself in order to support my family. It was very difficult and it is becoming increasingly worse. There are no controls in place at the present time and things are getting worse. We get people constantly coming into this industry and there are no guidelines, no controls no requirements. The police are not in a position where they can supervise the activity. Their only concern is that the persons possess a licence to drive that type of vehicle.

Especially in the case of cruise ship lines, they are controlled by big businessmen who are not necessarily Caymanians and the majority of the business is not controlled by Caymanians. They have the clout and the money for advertising and promoting, they know who to deal with, as far as the cruise ships are concerned, and they take a large percentage of the business.

I believe that anyone who comes in here should at least have enough conscience to say, 'We have made a good living in the Cayman Islands, let's ensure that harmony continues to exist. I will share some of the business.' But that does not seem to be the mentality of the people coming into this country and getting involved in business.

I believe that it is time for the Government to do something, and there are many ways it can be done. I fully support the idea of participation, but I believe that some kind of caucus has to be held with the idea of not just talking about the business, but finding solutions. I believe that if we go in with that kind of approach that the big boys who are so greedy and not prepared to share will come up with a reasonable compromise.

The message I want to leave is that this cannot continue as it is today. It is very disheartening for one who owns a boat and who depends on snorkeling/diving trips to Sting Ray City or the North Sound, when one sits there like Lazarus watching hundreds and hundreds of people going out on boats not owned by Caymanians, hoping for the crumbs to fall in their direction.

What concerns me is that if it is not addressed it is going to cause us some serious problems in the future. I am not talking about five or ten years down the road, I am talking about in the immediate future. A lot of our Caymanians (as tolerant as they are) are getting fed up with the idea of being a Caymanian and not being able to earn an honest living in this field.

When I graduated from college in 1973 I made a decision to return to the Cayman Islands to work and to live. Why? Because this is my country! I believe that Caymanians must continue to be able to earn a living in their country. They must! I believe that in order to ensure this, Government must play a greater role in seeing to it that this happens.

One of our largest off-shore competitors is probably the Bahamas. A lot of negative things have been said about the Bahamas. I had the privilege of visiting there myself. As I understand it, one of the things that the Bahamians insist on is that their people be trained, that they have an opportunity to move up and that they have an opportunity to share in the success of the country. No one can fault a Government for taking that kind of a position. The Bible says that the man who does not take care of his own home is worse than an infidel. We must take care of our own people.

This is an area that I am very concerned about and I have always had an interest in it. Before I decide to hang up my political spurs, I would like to see this very important issue addressed in a very positive way.

I believe that there is enough business out there for everybody. As a representative, all I am saying is that we must ensure that our people get their fair share. I do not subscribe to the philosophy of the Chamber of Commerce. I think they made a comment the other day to the effect that Caymanians should be satisfied with getting a little piece of the cake. Why should we? I do not think we should settle for a little piece, I think we should get our fair share.

Transportation is an issue which has to be addressed. One of the problems that I see is that no one Minister is responsible for the subject on a whole. We have one who is in charge of the Port, one who is in charge of the Airport, and another in charge of ground transportation side of things. It has to be a coordinated effort. Those same people who run the routes between the districts are the same people who operate at the airport and to a large extent they also operate at the port.

I believe that this is an area that has to be addressed. It is really hurting us as a Government because a lot of our people depend on this area for making a living. We get all kinds of feed-back that these taxi operators are making so much money out there and that what we are hearing is not true. As I said before, I know what it is like to try to earn a living in that area. Even when I was there it was very difficult and probably hundreds of people have gotten in the industry since I got out of it. So it must be even worse now than it was then.

The Minister for Tourism has done well with regard to assisting the water sports operators (that is, members of the Cayman National Sports Association) through promotions. He has also invited representatives to accompany him on trade shows and that type of thing. That is very positive. But I believe that it is time for us to also deal with the other water sports operators and hotels, with regard to ensuring that they also assist the Caymanians engaged in this area for their livelihood.

Labour is another area which has to be addressed as far as gratuities are concerned. I am aware that the Minister is addressing that issue. I believe the sooner the better, because there is a lot of abuse out there. It is at the expense of our Caymanian people.

Overall, I think that we have a lot to be proud of as far as the accomplishments of the Government over the past three and one half years. I believe the majority of Caymanians do recognise what has been done in such a short period of time, taking into consideration the conditions which existed when we took over in 1992. What I am proud of is that we have not played politics as far as facilities or services are concerned, regardless of what district needed it, we have attempted to be very fair to ensure that all districts got the services and facilities that they needed.

What amazes me is that in 1992, when things were so bad, even the past Government's attitude was that they were kind of glad that they did not win the election because they did not know how to deal with the issues that we were facing at the time. Now that things are robust and rolling again, they want to come back and take over.

There have been two teams mentioned - Team Cayman and the Democratic Alliance - who are putting themselves up as Opposition. I have always been proud of Caymanian people. They have a lot of common sense, you know. I remember in the by-election how our people remembered what had been accomplished in the short period of time we were in power even in the district of Bodden Town. They now have representatives who have an interest and who are in a position to see that the district gets its proper facilities. Team Cayman and the Democratic Alliance will have to find other means of employment after the 1996 election, because I believe that the people appreciate what has been accomplished by the present Government; and I believe that we are well entrenched for another four years and we should move on with the programmes and projects we have planned for this country.

I would like to also throw out a little bit of advice to the Members who are contesting the elections. They should stay in their districts and deal with the issues we are faced with in those districts. I believe that at the end of the day the Caymanian people will do the right thing as far as returning the present Government, that is, the National Team Government, to power.

I want to close by congratulating His Excellency the Governor and the Government for presenting such a well balanced and positive state of affairs with regard to what exists at the present time in the Cayman Islands.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Government somehow reminds me of a quotation by Sir Winston Churchill made in 1912 in the British House of Commons. He said, about a certain Member of Parliament, "He is one of those orators of whom it was well said, 'Before they get up they do not know what they are going to say; when they are speaking they do not know what they are saying, and when they have sat down they do not know what they have said.'"

For two weeks since the Governor delivered his Throne Speech I have watched the Government Bench, in particular, squirm in an effort to get up to speak about the wonderful things which it is doing - although that is set out so lucidly by the Governor on their behalf in the Throne Speech.

In the Thursday 11th March, 1993, issue of the Caymanian Compass, it said; "MLA for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, Mr. Gilbert McLean, declared himself a Member of the Opposition. 'I see that as my role', he said, opening the debate on both the Throne Speech and the Budget Address in the Legislative Assembly on Wednesday, the 10th of March." At least now I have the attention of the Government Bench. They can cackle now and they can write, because, as usual, they will surely have something to talk about when I am finished.

I have never regretted the fact that I chose to be the only one in this House who took up the role of Opposition. I would never want to be caught in what I have found in the past three years to be the Government's style of management, nor would I have wanted to be in a position to support what I have seen happening in many instances. I know that in a Democracy the role of the Opposition is vital and I often wonder what would have happened in this country and this legislature if there had not been at least one voice who dared to speak in Opposition. Fortunately, I was joined by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town in an effort to speak from the other side.

I am reminded that in 1990 Her Majesty's Privy Council (on the 22nd of January) made a 'landmark ruling in favour of any and all Opposition within the British Parliamentary style of Government when it ruled on the case of Leonard Hector v. The Attorney-General. This single voice in the island of Antigua was constantly being beaten down by the Government of the day for daring to speak against that Government. The Privy Council ruled that, and I quote: "In a free democratic society it is almost too obvious to need stating that those who hold office in Government who are responsible for public administration must always be open to criticism. Any attempt to stifle or fetter such criticism amounts to political censorship of the most insidious and objectionable kind. At the same time, it is no less obvious that the very purpose of criticism levelled at those who have the conduct of public affairs by their political opponents is to undermine public confidence in their stewardship and to persuade the electorate that the opponents would make a better job of it than those presently holding office. In light of these considerations, their Lordships cannot help viewing a statutory provision, which criminalises statements likely to undermine public confidence in the conduct of public affairs, with the utmost suspicion."

There is no doubt in my mind that since the time I chose to fulfill the role of Opposition in this House that, while no laws have been passed to make it difficult or impossible to make a statement, there have been more twists and turns in this Legislative Assembly including changing of a law, the Standing Orders of this House, to make it difficult to ask questions and also to bring motions. That has certainly been done.

The Governor delivered his Throne Speech on the 16th of February, and today is the 4th of March. As I mentioned, I have had the opportunity of speaking on the Throne Speech since I have been a Member of this Legislative Assembly as a representative of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

I shall speak on some of the matters raised in the Throne Speech, and I propose to deal with them in the sequential order in which they appear in the Throne Speech. I think something of importance has been noted by the Governor in his introductory remarks, where he says: "As the Legislative Assembly convenes today to make laws and policies to further the progress of this nation let us not forget that while Government has a responsibility to the people we also have a responsibility to ourselves, our families and the communities in which we live. Government alone cannot safeguard the future of these islands. We must all take responsibility for that task."

I agree with that statement in that while persons elected in this House have a certain responsibility to those who elected them, there is some responsibility to one's self, bearing in mind that the Government Executive is the body which has control of, and is the authority for the day-to-day conduct of affairs for Government. People like myself (an ordinary Member of the Legislative Assembly) can but verbalise the needs, make requests and hope that something will be done. While I take responsibility for anything which I must do, I really cannot take responsibility for doing what the Government Executive is supposed to do.

I do not posture to be anything but an ordinary human being who has to try to survive like everyone else, and, indeed, take care of personal family matters and otherwise. Sometimes I think that the situation becomes confused in people's minds as to what a representative is and how much is reasonable to expect of one.

The first subject the Governor spoke about was the Judiciary. He said; "Work on improving the facilities and procedures of the Court will continue." I do not know to what extent this is being done, but I certainly believe that something needs to be done in this area. It is painfully obvious that there is not sufficient space for the court to operate properly in the building originally built for it. I believe that a priority should have been to increase the size of the Court Building. It could have and should have been extended out with a proper structure of steel and concrete over the large car park, with offices built on a second floor upward to provide the necessary space.

If one goes through the front door of the Court Building now, one would get the impression that they are entering a place with security such as Fort Knox would have. One goes from one steel door to the next as one moves from the entrance in the lobby to where the courts are situated. I think that speaks very loudly of the times. If that kind of security is necessary, it says something about us socially.

Once inside, it becomes clear that there is not sufficient space. If one is bold enough to venture into the public bathroom, one will seriously wonder where the Public Health Department has been. I think a major priority is for a proper physical facility to be provided for the courts, taking precedence over sports facilities and the like which are being lavished with Government's money.

I do not know what the procedures in the courts are, but anything that would speed up the process and the procedures would be something desirable. Certainly, in the Court Building now there are many, many more faces than I have known and seen over the years.

I also see that the Governor says that rented accommodation for the Court Building will soon be necessary. What I have to say about that is that it will no doubt fatten the pockets of the people who offer these buildings to be rented. That same money which the Government would spend in paying rent (which is dead money as far as ownership goes) should be spent in getting a proper mortgage to pay for the necessary improvement and extension of the Court Building. It would be interesting to know which buildings are to be rented, how soon, where and for how much.

Under the Governor falls the Portfolio for Internal and External Affairs. The Governor has said that a review is in progress of the General Orders and Public Service Commission Regulations. I seem to recall hearing this several years ago. If I am not mistaken, it was in 1993. If I am correct, even one year ago, one would wonder what massive and major changes need to be made to the Public Service Commission Regulations and the General Orders that between the Government Administration and the Public Manager's Association, and the Cayman Islands Civil Service Association they could not make the necessary recommendations and have those changes made.

Also, there is what is termed a major exercise of evaluating all jobs in the Public Service which has been ongoing for the past few years. That certainly has been a long exercise, one that should have long come to an end. I quite honestly believe the reason why this exercise has not completed is that there is not sufficient political will, administrative will and, for that matter, the will of the various Civil Service Associations, to see it through. It should strike someone that it is necessary purely from a management point of view.

It also makes a lot of sense from a dollar point of view, in that it will determine how much money is spent in paying for the various jobs within the Service. I can but hope that this exercise will be carried out as quickly as possible so that it might assist the Civil Service Association which has been under serious assault since 1993, since the present Government has taken office.

I note too that the Annual Performance Report (now termed Staff Appraisal System), has been long talked about. I am told that a certain means or method for doing this is in place which relates more specifically to the true performance of an officer. I am also told that this has been explained at some length by people in this field and it is all a matter of foot-dragging why this is not in place. For the sake of the Government administration and the Civil Service I trust that it will move somewhat quicker than it has in the past.

The country needs a Police Force. We have one which overall provides protection and service to the community. I am particularly impressed by the attitude of the present Commissioner where he has chosen to see the police force not as a force but as a service. He has said as much. To the best of my knowledge he is moving his management and supervision in that direction.

I saw fairly recently that he has also issued a Code of Conduct for the police. I think that is necessary. While, generally speaking, I think that the police perform within the law and conduct themselves in a matter which is appropriate, there are instances where this does not happen. If there are no particular rules or regulations in place to point this out, a person might argue that they do not know. However, if there is a written code, excuses lessen for people who do not practise what they should. We heard during the Budget Debate over a year ago that there was a serious need for police vehicles. I think that any sound-thinking administration or Government would see to it that these are provided. They can be provided for what is a relatively small amount of money compared to what is spent in other directions. I think this should be addressed immediately so that the demands on the Police Service can be better dealt with.

There are presently policemen from various parts of the world in the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force. I do not know how many would attempt to argue that that is an ideal situation, certainly I would not undertake such an argument. I believe that if there is to be a coercive force (and that is required in every civilised society), the persons so employed should be those tied into the very entrails of that society, culturally, socially and otherwise. There has to be inherent difficulties where persons not of this society are expected, in addition to police duties which are clearly defined, to relate to the social/cultural aspect as well. I think that serious efforts need to continue to finding Caymanians who will fill all of the jobs in the police force.

I am happy to know that the present Commissioner has also set up a system whereby various officers are on the beat, covering various sections of the community to make contact with the people to bridge the gap where there may be a lack of confidence by the public in the Police Force. A good relationship between the public and police makes it more difficult for criminal activity to go on because the public will report criminal activity or breaches of the law.

The Prison Department is similar to the Police Force in terms of having Caymanians who keep in custody the people who are sent to prison by the Courts. Again, I think effort needs to be made to find persons who would be interested in becoming trained in the profession of being a prison officer. That is a profession in itself. It does not require one who has large feet and stout arms to overpower a prisoner. Nowadays it is clearly understood that people such as prison officers are people who need to be highly trained in understanding human behaviour and handling people in the stressful situation that a prison environment always is.

It is also encouraging to hear there are some plans for a sentence planning programme for each prisoner which is supposed to help him when he gets out of prison to be rehabilitated back into society. On that point I would like to say that when someone goes to prison (man or woman), they receive the punishment prescribed by the Court. When they come out of prison they are then as they were before - a free person. Society really has no obligation to continue to punish them by making life difficult for them once they have done their time as prescribed by law. I sometimes think that one of the difficulties ex-inmates find is that society reacts as if they should be permanently excluded.

The Speaker: Would the Member take a suspension at this time?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12:55 P.M.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2:35 P.M.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: When we took the adjournment, I was commenting on that section of the Throne Speech dealing with the Prison Department. I think it very appropriate that there should be drug counselling in the prison in that many of the inmates are there as a result of breaching the law relating to the Misuse of Drugs. In fact, I would feel (and certainly there are statistics to prove it) that the majority of cases somehow relate to drugs. I think it has reached a point where some serious thought has to be given to the fact that so many of the youth of this country, particularly, are becoming prisoners because they were found consuming drugs or that traces of some particular drug was found in their urine.

I believe that the time has come when someone has to seriously examine the situation to determine whether three months, four months, or a year in prison stops someone from using drugs and make a serious determination as to whether the victims are the ones to be punished by imprisonment or whether those who perpetrate the trade of drugs should be more severely punished. Certainly, counselling is a necessary part of the rehabilitation process, and therein some attempt can be made to turn around the thinking which caused the people to become involved in drug usage in the first instance; to say nothing of the fact that some effort needs to be made by providing alternatives.

The people involved in drugs (and I think it is being done now) seem to come from the lower end of the economical scale. They tend to have less skills than they need to earn a living and turn to the quick method, which in this country (and many other countries) is the sale of drugs. Then, in their despair, they resort to the use of drugs as an opiate.

We know, as the Governor has said, that the Department of Immigration has been involved in the process of screening illegal Cuban immigrants in the past. Now those who have been determined to be genuine refugees have received the proper Immigration recognition and the others have been repatriated. It is heartening to hear the Governor say, "I am determined that these islands will not be a stopping place nor a haven for economic migrants."

Here, one has to be aware that there are millions of dollars still outstanding in an agreement between this country and the United States about the repatriation of the Cuban migrants. So when the Government speaks about the situation with regard to what the finances are in this country, the only way one can get the true picture is to bear in mind that under the terms of the agreement between this Government and the United States, there could well be a call for about $5 million to pay for the $10 per day, per person, for keeping these Cuban nationals in Cuba.

I think it is wise that attention be given to the Immigration Board because I think that commerce on a whole seems to revolve around the Immigration Board. Here the numerous work permits are processed, and here (if we believe everything that is said) commerce would simply begin and end if there were not in place work permits, which give employment to thousands of non-Caymanians.

On the question of work permits I have said before, and I say again, that I do not believe that in each and every instance, each and every work permit that might be in place is necessary. I believe that there are instances where work permits have been issued because the work permit gives employers cheap labour; that although it takes time and effort, and some money initially, to get persons on a work permit, that there are employers who resort to that rather than pay a better wage, as would be demanded by a Caymanian to do the same job.

Of course, a Caymanian has the option of no fear or threat of a work permit to work a work-day and to demand pay (extra or double time as the case may be) for working past a work day. I have heard of various instances where persons on work permits work 10, 12 or 14 hours a day, and I have also heard that in some instances these people work for straight time. This is something which I think the Government needs to look at seriously. While there are those who talk about it in glowing terms from the Government side, I think that they have friends and associates who fall within the category of holding that 'whip' of a work permit over the heads of the people who work.

I am personally happy to know that the Government Information Services and the Broadcasting Department, or Radio Cayman, are being separated. From the day that I heard that they were being combined (supposedly because of their similarity) I disagreed with that particular exercise. I think the two are distinctly different. They serve different functions and I am happy to see where (by a one-liner which says; "On 1 February, the functions of information and broadcasting were Separated") that has finally come about.

Radio Cayman has served this country well for 20 years. I think it has a lot more to yet offer. The variety of its programming is something which is desirable, and I personally believe that it could be varied even further with the creation of local programmes. I think the staff is dedicated to Radio Cayman and they would welcome the challenge of doing this. I think there is much to be done in that particular direction.

I say again, as I have said over the past seven years, that I think Radio Cayman should also be developed into a television studio producing necessary information for our citizens. I see where the Government Information Services will operate as a unit under the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs where it plans to launch an information television programme in 1996. Just what this will entail, I am not quite certain. Whether it will be something similar as to what I see running on channel 24, I am not sure. But I think that is more suited to Radio Cayman and television even if the GIS inputs information to be broadcast.

I come now to District Administration, or the administration of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman - something that is very near and dear to me, in that I try to contribute as best as I can to ever put before Government the case for the two islands of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I never try to sell their position on the fact that they are 'sisters' because I have no way of checking their gender - they may be brothers! I notice that everyone has referred to the 'Sister Islands'. Such a condescending terminology to say the least!

The islands of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are unique in that they have their own special topography. They have a very small population compared to Grand Cayman, and they are separated by about 90 miles of water from the main Island of Grand Cayman. Their geographical location has always placed them in a position where they tend to find themselves as the outsider of the three islands. This has been said by residents of that island long before my time. This has been brought to the attention of successive Governments, and the situation, while it has improved in some instances in terms of infrastructure, really does continue to find itself on the short end.

The Governor noted in the Throne Speech, "I am concerned about the imbalance between the level of economic activity on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman as compared with that on Grand Cayman." I am, and I am sure the majority of people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are very happy to note that the present Governor seems to give considerable thought to helping the situation of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I am grateful, and I am sure the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are.

The present Governor visited those islands shortly after he came here and has held a meeting of Executive Council there. It is encouraging to know that he said that the Government will, ". . . work with the citizens of the islands to stimulate a level of economic activity appropriate to sustain the population and arrest emigration..." which goes on quite regularly and, it seems, almost naturally.

I think that Cayman Brac and Little Cayman have become at this time a real scratching post for the National Team Government. Suddenly, after three years of doing nothing supposedly, this Government now is overflowing with exuberance to help the lot of Cayman Brackers. I do not believe that, and I expect that little will be done except talk. This Government is excellent at that. And like with everything, when you make a suggestion, they say that they are already doing that.

I had the opportunity (thanks to His Excellency The Governor) of going to the Brac when he visited on both occasions. I cannot say that same courtesy is extended by the Elected Ministers of Government when they are visiting there, but I can say as a fact that I was informed well ahead of time that His Excellency would be attending a meeting in the Brac and he certainly made it known that he would like for me to be there if I could, as one of its representatives.

I am encouraged by the fact that citizens of the Brac have come forward to further express what I (and my colleague, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman) have been attempting to do as their representatives. These citizens have gotten together a committee where they made a list of the needs and so on, and on the occasion at the Aston Rutty Centre the whole Executive Council was there.

I did not attempt to get into the forefront of that effort by the citizens, for I am convinced that the Government deliberately does or does not do things because I am one of the representatives of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Governor made it quite clear that it was not a political meeting, and my Elected Colleague and I were members of the audience. I had gone there at 7.00 in the morning to make sure that the seating arrangements were in place. I believe it was not a political meeting until the point in time when it was announced that the committee would be heard and the Candidate for Cayman Brac, chosen by the National Team way back in 1992, Mrs. Julianna O'Connor, was to be making a speech there (I understand because she had made submissions to His Excellency The Governor on behalf of 'her' people).

Well, I thought that should have been sufficient. Certainly, it was supposed to have been the show of the people of Cayman Brac who formed that committee. But it was not. Politics is what it was.

There I learned a new form of address that is now apparently employed in relation to the Brac where His Excellency the Governor said: Honourable Members of Executive Council, ladies and gentlemen and Mrs. Julianna O'Connor. "That is the kind of politics that is being played out where the Brac is concerned. Rather than the help that is supposedly coming in on the wings of the dove for Cayman Brac, there was also an Open Line programme about Cayman Brac. While the District Commissioner would normally be someone appropriately asked to speak on matters relating to the Brac, neither of the Elected Representatives of those two islands were included as panelists. The National Team candidate, Mrs. Julianna O'Connor was definitely there.

It is a sick ploy for doing what the Government has been doing now for some time. Certainly, some people (whose voices I recognised on the Open Line) made it very clear how they felt about the situation and they reinforced areas of need for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. About two years ago another committee headed by Mr. Nolan Foster wrote to the Government asking that Government consider giving some concessions for fees in setting up companies and so forth there. A year later he received a letter saying that the Government would not wish to do that because it might be taken that that is some kind of discount centre within the islands. Yet, the Executive Council could go to Hong Kong and in a hotel they could pretend to change the law that discounted the scale of fees from $6,000 down to about $1,400. I wonder if there is any difference, and where the consideration should be given.

Cayman Brac has the unfortunate situation of losing a considerable number of its older residents in recent times. The pathway that we all must tread seems to be coming to an end for many on that island now. Additionally, the young people of that community, upon graduating from school (normally around 16 in any given year) must leave that island because there are no jobs. Cayman Brac is not producing, on average, 16 jobs per year to hire school leavers. That is how serious it is.

While there is infrastructure in place - lights, telephone, water to some of the island, and now a fuel depot where fuel can be stored, roads are there as well - there is not the economic activity to sustain the increase of 16 jobs per annum. It is a serious problem for any well-thinking Government.

In truth, Government still needs to keep in place the Government services - the Hospital, the Public Works, the Administration and so on - there is no great likelihood that that can be scaled back. What is there could take care of a population of 3,000 just as easily as it takes care of a population of 1,000. During the time of the presentation to the Governor a few weeks back, there was an informal survey done by some of the group and they came up with a number of 1,006 indigenous people resident on that island. That has fallen from 1,300 over the past eight or nine years. So there is a problem in Cayman Brac.

I say that I believe, and I know, that there are certain areas that the Government can help and change by a policy decision. It has not happened because deliberately they have been on a punishment trip with those two islands there. That has been since 1992. Anything that the Government might do to try to have the people of Cayman Brac believe otherwise, they should be advised that they are not dealing with people who do not take the time to think. They do. And they remember too.

They remember, for example, that when the whole National Team went to Cayman Brac on the 23rd October, 1992, that their spokesman, the Leader of Government Business, the Minister for Education, told the people of Cayman Brac - and the people have reminded me of what was said at that meeting time and time again; "Lastly, I want to say please remember that without a team behind your candidates they are not going to be able to achieve anything. They can sit on that Backbench as a lone voice and cry for four years, but they are not going to get anywhere. Remember that the support of this National Team - and it's 13 of us, and God's willing we are going to make the next Government because we are going to get the majority. We support Julianna all the way and we will see that what she wants for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman she will get. We are also prepared to work with Mr. Parker Tibbetts and we are asking you to support Mr. Parker Tibbetts, but we are not with the balance of those candidates out there and don't let them kid you."

Those are the words that were spoken. If the Minister does not remember it, when he sees it on video tape during the upcoming campaign, he will remember it.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: [interjecting] You show us what you have done for the people's sake. That is what you have to do.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, what has been happening is deliberate. If the Government wants to make a change with the airline, all it takes is Government taking the decision to tell Cayman Airways they will fly to Cayman Brac during the daylight hours and the evening. The Managing Director, or the Manager or whatever he is now called (they have taken that title of Managing Director away from the Caymanian Manager), will be told that the Government wishes to have flights scheduled in the daylight hours. It can be done. They would also schedule flights from Cayman Brac in the daylight hours when people do not have to get up at 5.00 in the morning or earlier to catch a flight at 6.00 AM coming out of Cayman Brac. That does not help tourism in those islands in any way whatsoever, except to make visitors unhappy.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: (inaudible interjection.)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Minister for Education says he is running in Cayman Brac. I would like to see that! I encourage him to do that!

(Members' laughter)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, just so that this does not... I think the Member heard what I said. I said I am not running there. So, I do not know what he is on, he said I am running...

The Speaker: Is this a point of order, Honourable Minister?

POINT OF ORDER
(False Imputation)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It sure is, Ma'am. He made a deliberate attempt to say that I am running in Cayman Brac. That is not what I said. I said I am not running there, so I cannot understand why he is raising it.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member, can you indicate what your comment was?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I can hear him talking from across the floor, and I heard say that he was running. If he is now saying that he is not, then I will accept that. But I would encourage him, as that would be a good place for him to run.

(Interjections)

The Speaker: Excuse me. I have to deal with the point of order. If what you thought he said is a misunderstanding, then that is not a point of order. In the future just make certain, and if you do not understand what someone has said, please ask them.

Please continue.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The people of Cayman Brac have also made it known that they would like to see the start-up of a cruise ship visit. This too can come about if the Government is so minded. But the Government is not. It is too busy getting cruise ships to call here in Grand Cayman.

In three years, there is no question whether it is possible to find one cruise ship that would call at the Brac. Even once per month would mean a great deal to that island. That requires a Government policy decision.

It is also my opinion that Government can give consideration to a reduction in fees for companies and trust companies and the like to operate in Cayman Brac at a lesser price than they charge here in Grand Cayman, setting in place certain requirements; for example, that there must be a manager and a secretary which would at least give two jobs to someone on that island. Two jobs in an office means a whole lot in that community. There is no doubt about that whatsoever.

Until the policy of the elected Government changes, and until I believe there is genuine feeling as expressed by the new Governor of this country in regard to Cayman Brac, things are not going to improve a whole lot. If there can be more arrivals and more planes flying there - even other carriers, we do not know that some of them might not be interested in going there, and if Cayman Airways is in such wonderful shape, and taking on all sorts of competition, let them fly there. What made the difference in Grand Cayman was that there were so many flights coming to this island bringing people who saw and who wanted to invest. It can make a difference for that island.

Speaking about running on the Brac, or being a candidate on the Brac, I do not know how much relief it will be to the National Team, but I have decided that I will not stand as a candidate in the forthcoming election in Cayman Brac, and I informed the people of that island as I said I would, one year before the time. But I will be doing everything in my power to see that Cayman Brac gets its fair share wherever I may be. I will always stand opposed to any Government that would treat those islands as outsiders.

The needs of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman cannot be over-emphasised. If something does not happen soon, the population is going to continue to shrink and Government is going to be faced with a bigger dilemma than what there is now.

I wonder why, just like the Government extrapolated out of the Coopers & Lybrand Tourism Report (or should I say plagiarised?) parts which became the Government's policy plan, I wonder why they did not chose the parts of that report which clearly set down things which could be done to help the economy of Cayman Brac. For example, why did they not see the good recommendation that recognised that there are three islands forming the Cayman Islands and that tourists should be encouraged to enjoy a little of all three islands during their visit. Why was that not done? Because there are too many people here involved in grabbing every tourist dollar possible! I think that in their minds there are not too many places where they can see the need to share with their brothers and sisters on the other two islands.

The projects which are to be carried out in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are small projects which happen each year and provide some employment. The most employment comes via road works as it employs more people. But when these projects are completed, there is again no employment.

I am convinced that Government needs to follow a serious policy of inclusiveness in tourism to help Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Little Cayman, to a larger extent (because of its size) is having quite a good spurt forward in its tourism development. Cayman Brac, on the other hand, is not. But through tourism a greater number of jobs can be created, and through the creation of jobs it makes every difference in the world in that community.

No one needs to gloat who believes that the people the National Team put up to run in Cayman Brac are going to meet with success, because they are in for a great surprise.

I will now turn to Personnel, Training, Management and Computer Services. In the Personnel Department I understand that there are at this time various 'Acting' positions. Since the departure from Personnel of the former Permanent Secretary, Mrs. Manderson, when she went to take up the position of District Commissioner in Cayman Brac, there has been an 'Acting' Head who is a contracted officer. I do not believe this is a good situation in any department where it is possible to find a Caymanian to fill the post. It is my understanding that there are at least two young Caymanians who are highly qualified in personnel management.

I have done some inquiry on the periphery of what goes on there and I have heard various reasons and excuses given why they are not more involved in the process. One that I heard is that they need certain experience. I think as much was said in the Finance Committee when we were dealing with the Budget for 1996. The question then arises: How does one get experience without getting the opportunity to get it?

The amazing thing is that there was a greater effort to Caymanianise the Civil Service in the 1970s than there is right now. I know that to be a fact. All of the more senior managers in Government (including, for example, the Honourable First Official Member across the isle) came out of that era. Why, when we are in the 1990s and about to enter the 21st Century, are we not making as great an effort to put our own people in the jobs?

Of course they are going to make mistakes, everyone makes mistakes. But they need to have the opportunity. As for the Civil Service, I believe there is something lacking in constructive dismissal where you create a scenario of conditions where people get so fed up they leave. That is happening hand over fist now in our country. The latest victim of that kind of environment is the Postmaster General, Miss Corrine Glasgow. She has resigned. Who would believe that this competent, able young woman just picked up her handbag one day and said, 'You know what? I am going to resign. I am rich now, I am going to resign.' What sensible person would believe that?

I postulate that what is happening in the Civil Service is that the whole environment is not conducive to staff development. The assurance is not there for the civil servants from the political side where they know that, yes, indeed, there is a strong will and desire to see them move. It is not there from the Administration to the extent that it should be. It is simply just falling down and it needs to be corrected and improved.

What happens when a civil servant goes and gets the highest qualifications he can get - his Masters degree? The next step is a Ph.D. He comes back to the island and hears that he does not have any experience. How long must it take to get that experience? I have heard a reply from Government since this meeting of the House (through the Chief Secretary) that persons who go to study and learn a certain discipline may not be placed in that type of job when they come back. What is the use of sending them then? Why not send them to do Literature or English, or something where they will just learn to write and they can go from pillar to post, as they say?

If you send someone off to be an accountant, then that person should come back to be an accountant. If you send someone to be a doctor, they should be a doctor; an engineer should be an engineer and should not have to be an accountant. It is absolutely absurd to think that we are sending our own people overseas to spend three, four or five years of their lives to qualify (and I would assume in areas that the Government sees the need), and then when they come back they hear nonsense that they do not have any job there.

There is nothing that hinders a parallel job being set up to allow the person to come into the field within the job they have been trained to do. That is covered in the Interpretations Law. Two jobs can be created side-by-side.

Why is it not being done? Because the whole situation is out of kilter! That is why it is not happening. The Cayman Islands Civil Service Association has gone through so many metamorphoses that I wonder where it is at this point in time. Certainly, from afar it does not seem as if too much is being done about terms and conditions of service and matters such as the progression of its members into jobs for their various competencies. Something is wrong. Something needs to be done to correct it.

The country cannot be run the way it should be if it does not have the qualified persons in the posts to do it. I contend that no one (no matter how concerned) on a contract will feel the same way as a Caymanian does about his country, to take nothing from any professional who might be in a particular job. There is nowhere else for us to go. Where else are we going to go? Why, with a minuscule population (that with the indigenous people along with the non-indigenous people only comes up to 30,500) would we want them to go anywhere else?

We have Computer Services. If there is any place in the world that is computerised, it is the Cayman Islands - right, left and centre. According to the Throne Speech, Computer Services will "implement several new or replacement computer systems in some Government Departments." I wish it would complete the process here in the Legislative Assembly, at least. It would be a good pilot project so that the benefits to be derived from the specialised programming here could be fully realised.

We also hear that, "A new computer system to assist in the administration of financial and human resources..." I wonder in what way. If that computerisation is going to see to it (as we hear is supposedly being done) that it is going to be a good collection system for Government, then fine. Or, if it is going to create a system for human resources so that any Tom, Dick or Harry who knows that there is a vacancy at the Higher Executive Officer Level, and that anyone can go to a published Civil Service list and know that their son or daughter could have a try, because they fall within the grade, and that they would automatically have an opportunity instead of the constant personalised choosing that seems to go on within the system, then fine.

I turn to the Legislative Assembly. I find this institution very near and dear to me. I find a certain satisfaction in learning as much as I can about its practises and processes and about its historical evolution. I think it would be good for all of us to take such an attitude because there is much to be learned about how Parliamentary practises all evolved; the way it functions under the Westminster system; the way it compares to the American system which evolved out of that but made certain changes, and develop a respect (which I believe it deserves) for this institution.

That respect can best be shown on the basis of honouring its traditions, its conventions, its practises and procedures, its Standing Orders which are not played with at the whims and fancies of the Government; where Laws come here within the correct time limit to come before this Legislative Assembly, and where Standing Orders are not suspended like some game.

I think we have an outstanding physical plant here as a Legislative Assembly. It needs certain innovations. Some are taking place, have taken place and are to take place. It needs the necessary equipment to make it work properly and there should never be a question, where something that would perfect the efficiency of the Legislative Assembly....there should be no quibbling - it should be done. I also think that in terms of the administration of the Legislative Assembly, we need to get our act right.

I remember many years ago under a former Governor, Mr. Lloyd, he made certain changes in the Civil Service which basically made the staff of the Legislative Assembly a specialised staff. They did not come into the general main stream of job-to-job or the general moving around as in the general administration. I remember that at the time there was some query in the Civil Service Association over it. Eventually he did give an explanation in writing as he normally did. Basically it was accepted. Since that time I have had opportunity of reading in Erskine May and in other authorities how Parliament is set up. I think that for this Legislative Assembly to be correctly administered and organised structurally, we need to reach a point where we have, as in other Parliaments, the Speaker as the Head of the Department and the organisation set up so that it is properly structured on down - the Clerk, the Deputy, and all the other posts, the Serjeant-at-Arms with all the various functions and so on. It is generally that way, but I think the process needs to be completed. I think it can make for the best management of this department. I trust that the next Government will take this up with His Excellency the Governor and the necessary changes will be made.

Under the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs we also have the Cayman Islands London Office. We have heard that the promotional and recruitment activities of this office have been improved by the location and quality of the new offices. I cannot speak to this, as I do not know where in London it is considered the best office location, but I certainly do have a high regard for the former Governor who heads that office, Mr. Thomas Russell, and I do believe that he did his best to find such a location.

Certainly, I have found the service and particularly his advice very helpful when on one or two rare occasions I have been in England and gone and spoken with him. His advice was very helpful and I am sure that it continues to be for Caymanians who might go there or people who may be inquiring about the Cayman Islands.

I do not know how much having a Shipping Registry there will help our shipping efforts. I can only hope that it would because I do not believe that up until now that department is paying its way, which is what I believe was the original intention.

I too wish to pay my respects to the people who administered the by-election in Bodden Town. I happened to have been one of the counting agents in the station that night. A large number of people asked why I did not call for a recount since it was so close. I said then to them, and at a public meeting since that time, that had it been counted a dozen times it would have been the very same count. The people who conducted the affairs inside of that station went to the furthest extent to make sure that everyone there saw exactly what was happening, heard exactly what was happening and they did not hesitate, if they were asked a question, to answer it.

There is another election coming up which will be for all of the seats in this country, elected seats, that is, in the Legislative Assembly - 15 altogether. As with every election, there are exceptionally high levels of activity, pros and cons and all the rest of it. There are many things that can be pointed to during this time that have 'forthcoming elections' written all over them. That is the way it should be. Everyone who is interested in the election process, or who intends to be in it, must now begin to get in gear for the process. It is a time of choosing by the people - and choose (I certainly say to everyone) they should.

However, even with all the unpleasant parts of it - the nastiness, the mud-slinging - there is within that certain rules set down in law. I want to say to all and sundry that some of the things which happened the Tuesday night before the by-election on Leroy Frederick's Beach in Bodden Town will not happen in this forthcoming election. Paint cans are going to be ruled out of order. Money which might be passed in any way to influence anyone is not going to happen. I call on the Special Branch and the supervisor of elections and all those involved to start putting in place the machinery to look after those particular matters right now.

I also have a concern about a practise that I see which I cannot see supported in any Law - Election Law or otherwise. I noticed it in the 1992 election and I also noticed it in the by-election where election officials snatch away copies of the register of voters from people who have them, supposedly to protect the voters.

I have brought to the attention of election officials that I think there is something seriously wrong with it. Every candidate and their agent has the right to have one of those registers so they can check off (as does the official sitting at those tables) who comes in.

What is most important (as far as I am concerned) is that the candidates or their agents can say, 'Yes, Mr. so-and-so did vote. I have that name struck off', and they can in effect back up what has been claimed by the election officials. If those voter's lists are taken away, the only word that we have as to who voted there is what the presiding people say. The only way you can look at that is to go to court. I think that should be avoided.

The thing that people complain about is that people might come to encourage them to go out to vote and they do not want to be molested and so on is no reason or excuse about taking those away. I think what is important is that people do be encouraged to go out and vote. Nobody puts a gun to anybody's head and tells them they have to go to vote. Surely, on that special day once every four years, it cannot be wrong for someone to come and ask if one is going to the polls or if they need transportation. I do not see anything wrong with that, and I think that practise of taking away those registers should cease. As I said, I can see nothing which supports it legally. If it is a practise, I think that practise should cease.

The process of registering voters will start on the 11th of March, which is only days away. I trust that every person in this country will take the need to be registered seriously; and not just to be registered, but to vote. It is absolutely essential. Then realise that when they vote it is a secret vote and they have the legal, unquestionable right to vote for whom they choose. I trust that this will go smoothly.

I believe that as in the past, we can have exemplary elections in that there have been few instances of going to court over malpractices in election in this country. The cases have been very few and far between. No one has ever heard in this country where ballot boxes are found in cane fields and so forth and so on as we hear about in other countries. I think we are very fortunate in that regard.

The Speaker: Will the Member take a suspension at this time?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.47 P.M.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.12 P.M.

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman continuing.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, when we took the suspension, I was commenting on the Election and the process of elections on the island. I wish to make the observation (as I have never seen it before and indeed, I claim considerable knowledge and experience of being a civil servant for a number of years in service and, also having a knowledge of practise and procedures and of the taboos involved for the civil servants versus the political arm of Government) on the unhealthy involvement of a few civil servants during that political campaign.

There is something called the "separation of powers", and indeed, the political arm is separate from the administrative arm, and for good reasons. The administrative arm, being the machinery of government, goes on irrespective of which Government is in power; governments come and governments go, but the civil servants go on forever. So the saying goes. People within the service who are supportive of the present Government and some of its Ministers seem to believe that that support has to be given through an involvement which goes beyond the performance of their duties in the jobs which they may hold. Everyone in this country has the right to support whom they want, every civil servant has the right to support whom he wants, but when the situation comes to the point that civil servants would unwisely be involved in political committees, or be in public places mouthing off and carrying on about one candidate in their favour and the next one against, it trespasses on the rules. It makes bad for the process of Government's administration. For where a civil servant feels that they are so involved or obligated to any given candidate, it has to influence their attitude towards another even in dealing with them in their regular jobs. It also places them in a position for feelings of resentment when those Ministers and Members of the Legislative Assembly are no longer around and new ones come about, because people are human beings. That is one of the main reasons, from my knowledge and experience, why it is that way. I state that based on the fact that there are those who long before me made those things very specific by instructing me as a civil servant. You have civil servants who are in daily contact with Ministers, Permanent Secretaries and otherwise, who are there to carry out the responsibilities of that post, to follow the directives, to follow the policies, decisions which are laid down and, beyond that their involvement as to their likes/dislikes is supposed to end.

I make a promise to any civil servants whom I see and know are involved directly (as I know some were in the Bodden Town By-election), they are going to hear their names ringing from political platforms like they would not imagine. It will be left then to the administration to deal with as they know they should. This goes to all the various categories of civil servants, including (and certainly, particularly) the police force which is always expected to be the most impartial in any action of theirs which must only come about as a result of the enforcement of the Law.

A point I wish to comment on is the situation with regard to the lack of action in bringing to a close the various Select Committees which have now in the work for year in this Legislative Assembly. Of top priority there is the Select Committee dealing with the Bill of Rights. I do not believe that there is going to be any Bill of Rights put forward between now and November. And I do not think it is an accident why this has not happened. I think it is as a direct result of the Government not making it happen. I have heard all sorts of stupid and ignorant remarks from people now and then about the Bill of Rights (including one or two instances among some of my colleagues in this Legislative Assembly), such as, it is going to cost the Government so much money and there is going to be so much litigation, and so much this and that. It is difficult to believe that the people of the Cayman Islands would not want to know there was in the Constitution a Bill of Rights. It is most unbelievable, but it is true.

I suppose part of the problem is that there has never been one. Not that those who have gone before did not want it that way or recommend it, but that we so blissfully go on seeing things happen, letting things happen and no one believing perhaps in his right to the extent that he would want to go to court to see to it that he has his rights upheld. What is of interest is that in the report by the Rt. Hon. Earl of Oxford and Asquith in 1971 there was a call for a Bill of Rights. Now, if I am not mistaken, in 1971 (25 years ago) the wise people of the Legislative Assembly, namely Mr. CA. Hunter, Mr. T. W. Farrington, Mr. W. W. Conolly, Mr. Alford Scott, Mr. Trevor Foster, Mr. John D. Jefferson, Mr. Ira Walton, Mr. Craddock Ebanks, and Mr. B.O. Ebanks, asked that a Bill of Rights be included. That was a majority report, and even in the minority report (signed by Miss Annie Huidah Bodden and Mr. Allen Burkley Bush) a request was made for that then. It is now 1996, and we still have no Bill of Rights. But what makes it even worse is the fact that there was a Bill of Rights in the Constitution given to this country in 1992 and in 1993 it was taken out by the National Team Government. They were studying it, they said. They must be still studying it.

There is also a Register of Interests and a Code of Ethics and Conduct that is supposed to be dealt with. I do not believe there is going to be any Register of Interests or Code of Ethics between now and November (again, it is not by accident), nor is there going to be a law dealing with Sunday Trading or amendments to the Gambling Law. It is pertinent to note that making reports to the House in many instances is really meaningless, because all the report might say is "We met on Thursday for ten minutes and we do not have any report to make." So until a report comes to the House and a Bill is drafted and passed, then the situation continues just like it was before. We boast that we have so much and, apparently, we do not even have the sense to have a Bill of Rights.

As the world moves on, anyone who stays with the times knows that it is becoming more necessary as the state assumes more authority (and supposedly more responsibility for its citizens) its citizens need to be protected from the state by having a Bill of Rights. The conditions in the country are such that a Register of Interests and a Code of Ethics for all Legislators is indeed long past due. I trust that the chairperson of that particular committee (the Member for North Side) would endeavour to see that something comes of that.

The situation is very strange, indeed, for I remember distinctly the British Officials in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (as we walked back from a theatre where we had lunch with them in 1990, that is seven members of this Legislative Assembly) suggested and recommended that we should bring legislation to Parliament for a Register of Interests similar to what was in Hong Kong (which I gather was legislation along those lines as the Code of Ethics and Conduct End so on).

I wonder if the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has also fallen asleep over the last six years where they now believe there is no need for such a thing in the Cayman Islands. Obviously, they do not have their ears to the ground if that should be the case.

I, for one, am pleased to see that the Law School continues, and that 28 new students have just joined. There seems to be two particular areas where Caymanians do extremely well: the field of accounting and the field of law. I think the success rate is remarkable. I do not believe (as other people have said) that we are getting too many lawyers in Cayman and that we need to issue degrees and not encourage people to become practitioners of the law. I think it is as necessary as ever, because everything seems to have a legal connotation in life now, and if by sheer numbers alone it might have some influence on the fees that one has to pay, for that reason alone it would be good to have more lawyers.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION - 4.30 PM

Standing Order 10(2)

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I do not think you will finish this afternoon.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: No, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: May I have a motion for the adjournment of the House?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 6TH MARCH, 1996.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
6TH MARCH, 1996
10.10AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Deferred question No. 3, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

DEFERRED QUESTION NO.3

No. 3: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works why was the Customs Law, 1990, the Customs (Temporary Provisions) Regulations, 1995, published in Extraordinary Gazette No. 21, dated 29th December, 1995, extended again.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The question is directed at me, but it is dealing with Customs. My Ministry passed it on to the Hon. Third Official Member for answer. It is my understanding that he would like to defer it further to prepare the answer.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTION NO.3
Standing Order 23(5)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, every effort will be made to have the answer completed so that it can be provided to this Honourable House during this meeting.

The Speaker: Would you move a motion for the deferment?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Madam Speaker. In accordance with Standing Order 23(5) I seek the leave of this Honourable House for the question to be deferred until a date to be fixed during this meeting.

The Speaker: The question is that the answer to question No. 3 be once more deferred until a later day during the sitting.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The answer is accordingly deferred.

AGREED. QUESTION NO.3 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: Question No. 45, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO.45

No. 45: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development what is being done to collect and receive an accounting for the large amount of money outstanding in connection with official travel as identified by the Auditor General in his latest Report.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: The Treasury has dealt with the backlog of accounts. A hard line position was taken and in many cases deductions were made from Civil Servants' salaries to clear their travel advances. The balance owed as at 31st December, 1995, was $47,197.84 consisting almost entirely of advances paid in the latter part of 1995. A hard line continues to be taken with officers who do not submit claims or clear unspent balances due to Government.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Could the Honourable Member say if the amount of $47,197 has been collected since the end of December 1995, or if any part thereof remains?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The majority of that amount has been cleared. There is a seven day period in which officers who travel are required to submit their claims to the Treasury. As I mentioned part of that balance represented claims which were submitted to the Treasury but which were not cleared through the accounts prior to the 31st of December.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Bern L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Could the Honourable Member give an explanation as to what a 'hard line' entails?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: In the first instance a time limit is now set which allows officers who travel overseas a period of seven days to submit their claims. It is not discretionary any more. Once this is not done, if they refuse to submit their claims within a reasonable period, a deduction is made from their salaries.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 46, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO.46

No. 46: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to state if any of the alleged Custom's duty evasion cases have been settled.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: Two of the outstanding commercial fraud cases have been settled by the Customs Department.

Of the remaining two potential fraud cases, one is going through the process of appeal through the courts, and a fourth has been referred to the Legal Department for recovery of duty through civil action. I therefore request the indulgence of this Honourable House on the two cases pending to not divulge further information as to do so might affect their respective outcomes.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member state in the two cases that were settled, what amounts of money were involved?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: In the first of the two cases, the alleged evasion was $61,192.63. The penalty for restoration applied by the Customs Department amounted to $106,560.

The second case was $17,536.48. Two amounts were levied as penalties. The first was $53,923 and a further $39,000 was added.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say if it is a policy of the Customs Department to levy penalties in these kinds of cases?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The law empowers the Collector to levy penalties.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Apart from the two cases which we gather are sub judice, can the Honourable Member state if there are any other outstanding cases left to be settled?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: There are no further cases outstanding.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 47, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 47

No. 47: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to state the Government's debt recovery action plan.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: The Government is fully committed to reducing arrears of revenue and maximising revenue from all sources. This task is being tackled in a number of ways.

Firstly, there is a backlog of old debts which have accumulated and require to be dealt with. The Centralised Debt Collection Unit will commence in the Treasury on 18th March, 1996, when the Treasury Debt Collector will take up post. A qualified paralegal officer is transferring from the Legal Department and will bring skills and experience needed for the Government to deal with the arrears.

In conjunction with the Treasury Revenue Controller, the Treasury Debt Collector will identify and review all cases of arrears of revenue and commence legal proceedings in any cases where this is necessary in order to clear the backlog.

Secondly, all controlling officers will ensure that revenue due currently is quickly followed up and apply pressure to debtors to pay. Any arrears of revenue must be dealt with promptly and delinquent debtors brought to account. This will require that controlling officers liaise with the Treasury Debt Collection Unit at an early stage to secure payment of debts.

In respect of debtors for medical fees, the Health Services Department is currently thoroughly reviewing arrears with a view to recovering fees owed in all cases where this is possible.

Controlling Officers will be required to provide arrears of revenue returns to the Treasury every three months as required by Financial and Stores Regulations.

The Government intends to issue a clear message to its debtors. In the past, debtors have ignored requests and reminders for payment of debts. However, the new arrangements will be efficient and ensure that Government debts are taken seriously. Controlling officers and the Debt Collection Unit will work to strict time limits and delinquent debtors will be brought to court, where necessary.

To deal with the legal work load, consideration is being given to the use of a local firm of attorneys or debt collection agency to assist with debt collection. In such cases debtors will be requested to pay legal fees and court costs if they fail to pay and are summonsed.

Government will, whenever possible, discontinue services if debts are not paid. There will be coordination between departments so that if any person or company owes any money to Government they will not get the benefit of Government services. The ability to achieve this objective will be greatly assisted by the new integrated computerised accounting system, so That information regarding debts can be coordinated and be made available on-line' to all those officers who require such information in order to carry out their respective jobs.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to ask the Honourable Member if deprivation of Government services will be extended to include deprivation of medical attention.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Medical attention could be a life and death situation. I would imagine that discretion would be used depending on the nature of the medical attention being sought.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Can the Honourable Member say if the Government has the facilities to accept payment by credit card at departments other than the hospital at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: No, the hospital is the only department allowed to accept credit cards.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. May I ask the Honourable Member to give some consideration and explore payment by this facility? It seems that increasingly we are becoming a cashless society, and many people have credit cards and use them as sources of payment, as this might help Government to collect some of its outstanding debts.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

This option will be explored. But, thinking about the nature of the services provided by Government, if it is to be used by other departments it will be in limited cases.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In answering question No. 47, the Honourable Member stated that Government would whenever possible discontinue services if debts are not paid. There have been experiences in the past with garbage collection where many individuals would actually prefer not to have to utilise these services. If this principle prevails in that area, I think you will find some people who would use this method to avoid dealing with the Department of Environment with these fees. Would the Honourable Member say if any consideration has been given with regards to this position?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: At this time the Garbage Collection Regulations makes it a requirement that all garbage collection fees be paid. This will be looked at. There are certain services that will be provided irrespective of non-payment, that is why in answer to the question I said that services will be discontinued wherever possible. In these instances I do not think that in penalising the person for non-payment that this could result in an unacceptable position within the community. Given the level of garbage fees currently being charged to the average homeowner, I do not think that will pose too much of a burden. So it is just following up to ensure that Government does its part to send out arrears notices. As I mentioned the use of debt collectors will also be considered as part of this new arrangement.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 48, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO.48

No. 48: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development how many contingency warrants have been issued since 1st January, 1996.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker, the answer: Nine contingency warrants have been issued to date, four of which have been issued for the same purpose, but under different expenditure Heads.

The total of these warrants is $162,004. Of this sum, $143,678 represent amounts approved at the December meeting of Finance Committee, but time did not permit the controlling officers to make payments in 1995. Therefore, the authority to expend these funds lapsed.

Included in the total is $62,039 which will be offset by the transfer of an equivalent sum from the asset-sharing deposit account that is presently being held by the Treasury Department.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Member explain to the House the exact procedure were calls for a contingency warrant to be issued?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Public Finance and Audit Law provides for the Financial Secretary to issue a contingency warrant which is a written authorisation to meet an urgent need for payment to meet expenditure where insufficient provision is shown in the Budget. This warrant authorises the Treasury Department to make payments to meet the urgent need as and when presented by the relevant controlling officer.

A contingency warrant is an interim measure and the necessary appropriation has to be sought by the Finance Committee in order to clear the warrant.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Member be in a position to say if during 1995 there were an excessive number of contingency warrants issued?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The first meeting of Finance Committee in 1995 was held in September. As a consequence of that approximately 160 contingency warrants were issued totalling $15.2 million. These represented the virement of funds or where funds were blocked in order to enable expenditures to be incurred under other subheads.

When we look at the $15 million, that would have represented approximately 7% or 8% of the annual Budget for 1995. So it is a question of determining what would percentage of the Budget would be considered over and above acceptable.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: As the Member knows, Finance Committee can be called to meet at any time. Can the Honourable Member say why it took until the ninth month of the year to hold the first Committee meeting?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: This was the first year that had occurred. Every effort is being made to ensure that meetings are held quarterly. It is a combination of circumstances. A question of fixing the Finance Committee when all the Ministers of Government are available. Also the time will allow for Members of the Legislative Assembly to be available as well.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

Statements by Honourable Members/Ministers of Government.

The Honourable Temporary First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

(10.38 am)

STATEMENT BY HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS OF GOVERNMENT

Resignation of Miss Corrine Glasgow, Postmaster General

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Madam Speaker, as has been recently reported in the local media, Miss Corrine Glasgow has resigned her post as Postmaster General. While I have no desire to either judge the actions of this lady, or to defend the actions of the Public Service, I do feel obligated to fill in a bit of information to a story which appeared in last Friday's issue of the Caymanian Compass.

In particular, it was reported, and I quote: "Miss Glasgow tendered her resignation in December to Chief Secretary Mr. James Ryan and it was accepted. On 16th February she said she wrote to Mr. Ryan to withdraw her resignation but she received a reply letter refusing her request."

It is correct that Miss Glasgow's resignation was tendered in December - on the 6th, in fact. It is at this point that I wish to interject my additional information.

The effective date of her resignation was given as 5th January, 1996. On 13th December an undertaking was given to Miss Glasgow to re-examine a number of personnel matters which were of particular concern to her on the understanding that she would be withdrawing her resignation. Unfortunately, the withdrawal was not forthcoming and the effective date of 5th January, 1996 passed.

After Miss Glasgow confirmed on 15th January that she was unable to withdraw her resignation, the Chief Secretary requested on the 17th January that she indicate a new effective date. When neither withdrawal nor a new effective date had been received from Miss Glasgow by 12th February, and in light of the previously mentioned reviews having been concluded, the Chief Secretary took the decision to accept the resignation and specified her last working day as 29th February.

The Speaker: Government Business. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman continuing the debate on the Throne Speech.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY MR. JOHN W. OWEN, MBE, GOVERNOR OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS, ON FRIDAY, 16TH FEBRUARY, 1996

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, when the House took the adjournment on Monday, I had just commented on the section of the Throne Speech dealing with the Law School. I think that the Law School of the Cayman Islands has served this country well. I think both the students and the lecturers are to be commended.

Unlike what I have heard in some instances (about the Law School not being of a high standard) I think that it has produced lawyers of a very high calibre. Indeed, the studies there measure up to recognised university levels in England. In fact, students at the Law School receive their LL.B. from the University of Liverpool. I do not believe that any efforts whatsoever should be taken to slow down the number of persons qualifying as attorneys-at-law, for the Cayman Islands needs attorneys-at-law. While one may say there are many, I think the majority tend to be non-Caymanian. Surely, there is a growing need for legal services in the Cayman Islands.

I think more people would make use of the Law School if they could attend classes in the evenings. I believe it would be a good innovation for Government, and the various authorities who deal with the Law School, to look at that possibility.

One does not necessarily have to go into purely the practice of law once they attain a degree. It is a qualification that can help people in other areas such as banking, accounting, and the like. Certainly, I do not think any citizen would be harmed by having some basic knowledge of the law. I have been asked by different persons whether anything could be done to allow classes in law to be held in the evenings. All that I can do is what I am doing at this instant, mention the fact that Government should perhaps look at allowing studies to be taken in law at the Law School in the evenings.

I have heard on various occasions that the reason for Bills coming late to this Legislative Assembly is because of drafting being held up. I do not know how accurate that is. I tend to believe that certain blame lies in the fact that the Government cannot make up its mind as to what it wants put into legislation, therefore the drafting professionals cannot really draft something which they cannot get the full intention of. I think there are now two persons who deal with drafting. If it was a lack of having sufficient personnel, I certainly look forward to having that situation changed in that it has become more the practice and the rule, rather than the exception, for Bills to come here late, and then the Government resorts to the suspension of Standing Orders.

I think the Portfolio of Finance and Development is one of great importance. This is true in any country because without money little happens in the way of providing services or otherwise for the people of the community.

I believe that the Public Finance and Audit Law needs some amendment and the Financial and Stores Regulation needs some amendment, for I think that the Government could not have gotten into the situation it has, in terms of debts outstanding to it, if there had been in place laws and regulations which were very specific on the matter of Government debt collection. Whether it needs to be an exercise where handbooks are provided (and I think that would be a good idea) to the officers who control the vote books, or whether special training sessions need to be put on to educate people in the various departments as to Government's practices in collecting revenue, something needs to be done quickly.

The Auditor General showed in his Report, up to 31st December, 1994, that there was approximately $12 million outstanding. I understand that some has been collected since. But if Government had in its coffers that money owed to it, it may not have been necessary to borrow the money to balance the Budget and to carry on the Capital works.

Also in place to be dealt with in this meeting of the House is a Bill dealing with the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange. I do not propose to debate that Bill at this time, but that is a very big step being taken in the Cayman Islands. I think we need to have more reason for it than that it would be good advertising for the islands and that other jurisdictions providing financial services such as ours have a stock exchange. From what I can understand about a stock exchange, it is very serious business. I am not quite sure how well-equipped we are to take it on.

The Customs Department continues to provide the largest amount of revenue for the country because of fees collected on all goods which come into the Cayman Islands. I think it generally does a very good job and the people who work in that department are to be commended on how well they see to the business of tax collection.

There are, however, various instances where large amounts of money have not been collected and have been long outstanding. There is, for example, money outstanding regarding the new Westin Hotel where they brought in furniture which was not taxed at the correct rate. The amount outstanding is $243,328.00. Whatever causes such problems needs to be fixed. For if it was $243 it would be a different thing, but we are talking about almost a quarter of a million dollars. That is a large amount to leak through the collection process.

I think there is need for Customs, the Ministry of Tourism, the Executive Council and all parties concerned, when granting waivers or reductions in customs duties for any operation (least of all hotels), to clearly define what the process is. It should be set down in law or in regulations. There should be proper forms so that everyone would know, and no one would mistakenly allow $.25 million in taxes to go by because they thought it was 5% when it should have been 20%. Whatever may be needed to correct the situation ought to be attended to.

I have had occasion in recent times to be at the Airport where the Customs Department does a major part of its collection. I observed the interaction between the public and the Customs Officers there. One thing I noticed was that almost all of the officers were young, and I think that is commendable in itself. It shows that the older officers are moving on and making way for the younger officers. But also I observed one thing there that I claim to have some knowledge in, as I am a trained Training Officer. I think it is necessary for some training to be done in Customer Relations. I observed on the spot some instances where members of the public, apparently with every willingness in the world to pay the Government what they came to pay (not contesting the amounts to be paid), found themselves being sent from one hole in the glass to another, then back to another, and it made for great time-wasting both for the people who were there to pay and for those who were collecting. I think it needs to be seriously looked at.

Again, I observed that some of the officers did not seem to be fully conversant with the computer in the collection of these funds. Certainly the time spent at it and the talking back and forth between the customer and the officer clearly indicated to me that something was wrong. I do not know if it is the programme. I do not know what it is. I simply raise those points because of what I observed.

As far as customer relations go, it is possible for a policeman to be snapping handcuffs on your hands and squeezing them real hard while looking at you and smiling. So I think good temper is necessary in any instance where the public comes into contact with Government Officers offering a service such as Customs. I would certainly encourage, in any training that is offered, that Customs Officers be taught that a pleasant attitude is one to be desired.

I know that I am commenting a fair amount on this particular aspect, but it is a sight to see people in the Customs Department trying to pay their taxes. There is the import form. Now, I claim to be able to read and write and add two and two. On the wall there is a copy posted which supposedly guides one on to how to fill out the form. As I understand, the Customs Officers are not supposed to fill out the form for people like they used to. But I do implore the Financial Secretary to see if the step-by-step directions on to how to fill out the form could be made a bit clearer with perhaps one or two examples in each column. People are not unwilling to pay, they just have great difficulty in calculating what has to be paid based on these instructions. I, myself, have attempted to fill it out on a few occasions. I simply go next door to the Customs Broker and pay $35 or $40 to get it filled out. It certainly puzzles me, and I daresay it puzzles many other people.

There are not sufficient numbers of Customs Brokers to do the work for the public. The public may not even be fully aware that there are such persons and sometimes people may be importing a mattress or a piece of furniture and not choose to go to a Customs Broker because they believe they can simply go in and pay the duties and get out. But that form, that overwhelming form, catches them in mid-stride.

Overall I think that the country is fortunate to have in place the type of Customs service that it does, and the many very sharp individuals on staff in this particular department.

I think also commendable is the fact that the Customs Department is doing an extremely good job in drug intervention in conjunction with the Canine Unit. Altogether, I think the country is doing quite well in this direction.

The Economics and Statistics Office of Government has been developed to an extent where I think we can be quite proud. The Compendium of Statistics is helpful to anyone who would take the time to examine it. I think from the point of view of business investors in this country, that must be one of the first things they would want to know - exactly what are the statistics of the country in various areas. I must say there are many that can be examined in the Compendium of Statistics.

This is an area that I believe can and should be further expanded. I believe it would be helpful to include statistical data compiled on various aspects of Government's functions, be it cheques issued by Government, be it the number of debts coming in which require decision-making, or whatever. With statistics, scientific numerical data, managers are better able to arrive at accurate conclusions. I would recommend that administration-wise, Government's statistic professionals should look to see if there are not areas where they could create statistical data which would be of use to the management process.

For many years it was felt that an economist was not a necessary person to have, but I am glad to see that since those times we are back to where we understand that an economist is necessary. I have been made to understand that the one we had around here years ago was not what he claimed to be and I hope that whatever has to be done in terms of selecting these persons to make sure of their credentials is done. Anyone who is taking money under false pretenses, I believe that Government has every right to collect its money which has been wrongly taken.

Each year we have a Budget. I think the work in that unit becomes greater each year since we are attempting to come to full force in dealing with money management in modern and scientific ways. However many people it might take to man this unit, then I think that ought to be done.

The Budget Document itself has given more information over the years, and certain of the statistical tables and charts are helpful in getting a better impression of the Budget. Sometimes I find it a bit confusing in the capital side of things where we find the title of 'Roads', for example, appearing in two places. I am wondering if that could be done in a way where there would be a vote for roads and, under that heading it would show whether it is a local loan or borrowed money. It is purely an observation of mine. Perhaps it needs to be the way it is, but it does seem like a duplication of the same topic in the Budget.

The Internal Audit Unit must be doing its job quite well too. I understand that it is from what they and the Accountant General do that the Auditor General is able to do his review when auditing. I understand that there are now a number of young Caymanians fully qualified in this area and I am very glad to hear that.

I must say that I have never before this year really seen such a comprehensive review in an Auditor General's Report. I would imagine that in a large part it was due to the internal audit. The two need to work hand-in-hand. Anything that they can find to improve collections, the better off the country will be.

We seem to be changing our currency notes again. If it is for the sake of making the money more difficult for counterfeiters to reproduce, then I am all for that. When our notes changed to all one colour it did not make it easier for shading them. Prior to that they were in separate colours and that made it easy. If it is easier to have them looking more alike and inserting in them metal marks or whatever, I am for that. We in this small community have had several instances where people were smart enough to make notes that fooled people quite often. I understand that a few attempts have been made with our currency notes. Certainly, the American dollar catches regular transformation down here in this society, for in recent times we have had notices from police to beware of counterfeit notes.

Altogether, I think the Finance Department functions quite well, but there is always need for improvement. Many areas of improvement have certainly come to light this year from the reports of the Accountant General, the Auditor General and the Internal Audit, which the Financial Secretary has more access to and that would not necessarily be publicly known.

The Financial Services Department is one upon which we depend considerably. That really only drew a one-liner in the Throne Speech. I do not know if it was taken for granted that we understood the magnitude of that so only one line would do. My opinion in this regard is that within its human resources we need to look very seriously at qualifying as much staff as we can in the business of Financial Services, be that in banking, trust work, accountancy or whatever. We need to do that. It is not sufficient to have a Caymanian Head of Department moving on to greener pastures (which is now the case).

I understand that the structure is such that she is not being replaced with one of our own, she is being replaced with a contracted officer.

We cannot be claiming to be doing so fantastically well and overlook the need for the development of our own human resources in this area. That is something that I think should be quickly attended to, indeed. In the process of Computer Services doing this review, and the integration of the service and staff members and so on, I think there are certain areas that need to be focused on. This is one of them - where persons need to be trained and need to know that they are upward-bound able to reach the highest level they can within the department.

The Ministry of Tourism, Aviation and Commerce is one of the very important Ministries in this country. Say what one may about financial services, I still believe that the largest money-earner for the Cayman Islands is tourism because it is so multifaceted. It is an important job for the Minister who fills that post. It is an important job for the Director, it is an important job for everyone involved in the Tourism effort - persons here and those whom we employ overseas.

I think it is perhaps more susceptible to difficulties simply because, to the larger extent, it deals with people. If we want to find how many difficulties there are in the world let us look at people and we will see how many there could possibly be.

I think it was a major mistake that this report I hold in my hand (the Cayman Islands Portfolio of Tourism, Aviation and Trade, a 10-Year Tourism Development Plan - 1992 to 2002) was not accepted by this Government. Another mistake made by this Government. Yet, what has been called this Government's plan has parts which are plagiarised, and which are to be implemented piece meal. That is why right now I suppose we are paying a few hundred thousand dollars more to find people (consultants) who are supposed to tell us how to implement these pieces, when in this 10-Year Plan it is absolutely complete; chapters and tables in explicit detail tell how to implement the recommendations made there.

The re-invention of the wheel is not necessary. I think, though, that if this was accepted, then what the Government is doing or not doing might have to be attended to. For example, the question of expatriates versus Caymanians would have to be addressed. That has not been addressed under this Government. We hear remarks about the 'expatriates cluttering up the infrastructure', but we do not hear sound policies on how we can educate Caymanians to understand the need for the presence of expatriates, and for expatriates to understand the society and the culture in which they find themselves. We do not find that.

On page 10 of this report I referred to, by Coopers & Lybrand, the 10-Year Tourism Report, is one sentence speaking about the absolute size of the population being a barrier to tourism growth. The people who did the study said this: "Simply put, there are not enough people for the jobs that can be created." We know that so well. Not enough people for the jobs... We have just brought on line another hotel when one of the recommendations in this report under the 'Accommodation Strategy' said, and I quote: "A moratorium on Seven Mile Beach should be placed on all tourist accommodation development: hotels, apartments, condominiums, until the occupancy rates begin to approach effective operating capacity levels (about 80%). Based on detailed calculations shown earlier, it is expected that an annual growth rate of 5% over the next five years will result in hotel occupancies reaching these levels in 1998." This is 1996.

I do not think that a proper scientific approach is being taken to all of the growth we hear about where this whole matter is concerned, particularly when we are creating more hotels when a comprehensive study showed that we should not. On top of that, we are giving them reduction on Customs duty from 20% to 5%. How does it make for good logic and sense?

Cruise ship moorings we have heard about for the past three years, and we are hearing about it again. We have heard, we do not know how much it is going to cost and how it is going to be done. In 1992 the same study I have referred to says: "Permanent deep water moorings for cruise ships should be constructed immediately to prevent further damage to the reefs which is the lifeblood of the dive industry, a premier tourist attraction of the Cayman Islands." Not done! If this was accepted it would seem that something would have been done about that.

Tourism involves taking a careful look at our human resource strategy. This includes providing as many Caymanians as possible with the opportunity to be trained in those jobs, with the opportunity of receiving a fair wage, with the opportunity of having proper terms and conditions of service; of having insurance, workmen's compensation and all of those things. This is not the case. It is interesting to note the comment in the Human Resources Strategy, as found by the Coopers & Lybrand Group, where it says: "Caymanians currently in the work force can be replaced by Caymanians over the next 20 years, because 37% of the total Caymanian population is under the age of 20 and 43% is between the ages of 20 to 49. This, however, depends on a 'no growth', similar job number and a very low turn over scenario." We know that is not happening.

It is one thing to talk about tourism and the number of tourists who are coming here (as noted by my colleague, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town), but is it quality in terms of money being spent, or it is quantity in terms of packages where three or four people stay in a room and pay $25 per night?

Tourism has affected our society and there are certainly things we cannot change. We do not want to change the benefits that it brings. But we need to be aware of the sociocultural impact of tourism, the false images that it may create for our population who believes that being a tourist is just for the rich and famous. That is not true! It is working people worldwide, in many instances, who save to come to these islands. They are paying our high prices for the luxury of sitting on the beach and getting a suntan. We, as a people, need not be envious of that because there are those of us who travel to other countries and we, for all practical purposes, are visitors or tourists. We indulge in other countries in ways that we do not do in our own. But there needs to be a clear understanding among our people in this particular regard.

As I mentioned earlier, the Minister was quoted in the Caymanian Compass, sometime ago, as saying that he had to stop the packages that were not bringing money into the country, along with some of the long-haul flights. Having persons around with no money to spend certainly brings into focus that there are all types of persons who visit other countries.

I think this is one of the most important areas that we must address - the whole sociocultural impact of tourism. I hear less and less people saying now that, "Things are fine on my job and I do not feel that people are taking my job away." I hear continuing stories of people working longer hours to earn more money to be able to make it. I hear comments about the people who serve in restaurants and in many of the hotels and otherwise, that there is not a single Caymanian. This in one of the things that we need to face head on in this situation of Caymanians and expatriates.

The Tourism Report that was not accepted makes this very straightforward observation under the heading 'The Relationship between Caymanians and Expatriates is an Issue that must be addressed', and it states: "In terms of the 'Tourism Issues Iceberg' the issue of the role and place of expatriates in Caymanian society has been to date a 'covert issue.' It is an issue that is 'below the water line'! It is time that this issue was brought above the water line. If it is not, it has the potential to become a significant barrier to the achievement of the 'willed future.'" I agree.

If we are going to continue to have tourism, which I think we will and we should, we are going to have to deal with that situation. For the people who are non-Caymanians in this society are here for the long term (be they rolled over or not), those bodies are going to be necessary to keep in place the jobs that we have created.

The Speaker: Would the Member take a suspension at this time?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.30 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.55 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman continuing.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When looking at the aspects of tourism, I cannot forget to take into account the fact that Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are part of the Cayman Islands, although I think in a large part it has been forgotten by this Government, deliberately and otherwise.

In the Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan which was brought to this Legislative Assembly in December 1994, there was a question about it being a policy or whether it was a plan. The plan takes a particular statement out of the Coopers & Lybrand 10-Year Development Plan, which I think is worth noting because this situation continues indefinitely.

On page 12 of the Coopers & Lybrand Report (which is the same page of the piece meal document that the Government took out) makes this observation; "During discussions with Caymanians it became clear that a 'we/they' relationship exists between residents of the Sister Islands and residents of Grand Cayman. The relationship is somewhat like the one that exists between a branch plant and a head office. People in the branch plant, the Sister Islands, want some independence and autonomy. They also want their needs to be understood and addressed by the head office.

"At the present time, the people in the Sister Islands do not believe their needs are being fully met. Their specific frustrations include the following:

"An unsatisfactory level of tourism focussed air service; frequency, type of aircraft and scheduling are unsatisfactory.

"Inadequate representation of the Sister Islands in tourism marketing programmes and investment; and "A feeling that they are just not listened to, nor given adequate information.

"Whether these frustrations are reflecting reality or perception is not the issue. To implement an integrated, three island, tourism development plan will require collaboration between stakeholders on all three islands This element of the country's existing reality needs to be addressed."

That, among many other parts, is why I think it is such a good report, for the people went to such lengths to find out the real heart and soul feelings of the people of these islands, indeed, for them to make their own assessment.

Talking about things (except when it comes to counselling and so on) does not help too much. Government requires certain action to be taken, and where it is not taken the people suffer.

Only this morning on television I saw where taxi drivers were saying that there is a major problem with ground transportation at the dock. A year (or a year and a half) ago this House passed legislation brought by the Minister for Tourism outlining strong penalties for the management of that condition. Yet, in 1996, it is still a problem. Problem solving is what Government should be addressing.

This morning, too, we heard in this Legislature why a section of the Customs Law was renewed again. We will hear about that later. In one of those magic moments in this House under this Government, late in the night the Customs Law and the Traffic Law were changed - supposedly to take care of the problem. They were going to stop buses of a certain size from being imported. What is happening? I ask. Where are the positive results? Where is the fix-it team in handling these situations? When, I ask, is Cayman Brac getting its share of tourism?

There can no longer be an excuse that the Government is just hearing it from me. The Governor took the entire Executive Council to Cayman Brac and they heard it from the citizens. It has been the same, year, after year, after year. It is nothing new.

Back in 1992 the Coopers & Lybrand Group made this statement when they said: "However, if tourism to the Sister Islands is to be facilitated, convenient scheduling is critical. This is true not only for the stay over destination visitor, but for those visitors from Grand Cayman who might be encouraged to take a side trip, spending a day or two on the Sister Islands as a way of providing new things to see and do for repeated visitors and extended length of stay." Much needs to be done in tourism over and above the number of tourists who are coming here.

The benefits need to be shared by all people who work in the tourism industry; they need to feel that they are a part of it and that they benefit the way they should. I certainly believe that to facilitate tourism it is necessary to expand the Civil Aviation Authority, and I am pleased to see that plans are in place for extension of the Arrival/Immigration hall and the Departure Lounge at the Airport. For whatever reason it seems like all of the airplanes that fly into this island arrive at about the same time. Activity there moves from high peaks to virtually no one in the terminal building. I think, however, that it is very important to have this area extended to accommodate people comfortably, and for the Government's staff to deal efficiently with the process of Immigration and Customs.

Yesterday (Monday) evening, I had occasion to be at the George Town Hospital visiting someone who had had an operation. I heard about a lady from Savannah, whom I know quite well, who has a serious problem with diabetes needing to be hospitalised. But there were no beds. She was on a drip in the outer section called Emergency or outpatient (who knows at this time and place). There were people coming and going, as is always the case at the George Town Hospital. There is no time of day in that hospital when there are no people needing health services. Forget the story that Caymanians like to go to the doctor, and insurance companies are afraid that if they do not allow persons to pay a certain portion of the fee that they may go just because they have insurance. That is foolishness. Ninety-nine point nine percent of the time we are a people who stay home sick to the point that when we go to the hospital it is almost a crisis situation.

For the times that this House has been told that there is no need for beds, and there is no such thing as people being turned away... I do not know who the Government thinks it is fooling. It sure is not fooling the suffering people of this country. It is not fooling the people who, of necessity, must go there for services. There is no Apogee Medica Hospital for them to go to (the one that the hospital was stopped to provide space for). The people suffer through the inadequate conditions at the hospital. The people suffer because this Government stopped them from getting a hospital they could have gotten. There is talk about the good hospital we are going to get. The only thing we have gotten so far is about 10,000 square feet of storage space. I guess it is the biggest storeroom in the Cayman Islands. Where are the priorities?

If this Government believes for one minute that the excuses it is attempting to make about a hospital - that it is cheaper to build a hospital for $22 million than for $16 million - are going across the intelligence of the people, it is making a mistake. A terrible mistake. If they believe, too, that stopping the hospital to accommodate Apogee Medica and trying to sell the people of this country that they were acting in their best interests is going across, it is anything but the facts.

If anyone wants to know what really happened, or wants an independent view of that exercise of stopping the hospital, they ought to consult the Commissioner's Report. He carried out a Commission of Enquiry and was appointed by this Government. Certainly, one would imagine that if this Commission was set up and something was found to have been wrong that the Government would have been rather gleeful. But in summing up, the Commissioner said, and I quote: "Clearly, a great deal of effort, thought, planning and expertise, by many people went into this project and it could fairly be said that it deserved to succeed."

The Government made sure that it did not succeed, and the people now pay the price - both in poor medical facilities and in cost to the country. I must say that I admire (and I find it quite incredible) how a handful of medical personnel - nurses, doctors and the rest of it - manage within the inadequate facility that is our George Town Hospital.

The latest I hear is that the costs are expected to be so high for the 'cheaper' facility, that they are now looking at changing the roof design and the corridors to try to save money. What a situation!

As for the health insurance that we hear about, we do not know really what the situation is on that. I certainly do not know. The only way that I have some inkling about what is going to happen is through a report in the newspaper of Friday, 9th February, where the Minister is addressing the Chamber of Commerce. He said that: "Anticipated maximum premium per person, per month, for children and adults up to age 64, is expected to be $40 to $67 at a 10% coinsurance rate, and $34 to $55 at a 20% coinsurance rate."

What I vividly remember is that this country had the opportunity to have insurance where everyone knew it would only cost them $22.50 per month. The employer would pay the other part of it. We also knew specifically what it would cost the elderly citizens and that was tied down for a two year period.

The Minister who destroyed the Health Services and the hospital is asking, how much? Let him tell the people how much it is going to cost the country.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Tell them how much your plan costs. Tell us.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: When anyone talks about costs to the country, he, the Minister now for Community Development, bears all blame.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: You could be blamed for everything. That is not strange.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: We do not know what it will cost, and the amazing thing about it is that we have not heard that there is any actuary that has come in to do an independent study, as was done in 1992, to get the various facts and figures from the various insurance companies and do an actuarial review where he could specifically say what the costs were going to be and what the insurance companies would make off those fees. We have not heard anything like that.

This game seems to be played out by the insurance companies themselves who stand to benefit when the Government subjects the whole population to a mandatory insurance scheme. What a state of affairs. For three years the Government has been planning strategies for health, and during that time health services have been deteriorating. We have a real problem in this country.

We have not heard about the fees, which we heard so much about, charged at the hospital, being changed. Certainly not, because those fees were set after recommendations by the Public Accounts Committee and the Auditor General and all the rest of it. They were set. Realistically, if they were reviewed at this time they would be found to not be covering the actual costs of the hospital.

What is happening to the people of this country is that they are paying dearly for the mistakes of the Government; of the Minister for Community Development...

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Of Ezzard.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Of the Minister who destroyed the hospital and ran!

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Tell us about your new hospital.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Apogee Medica could not foot the bill. I wonder if it was to fit the pocketbooks of those associated with it?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Tell us who Apogee Medica is.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: In November of last year I asked the Minister for Health to give the amount spent on overseas medical expenses since January of 1994 to date. The answer was: "The amount spent on overseas medical between January 1994 and October 31st 1995 was $8,404,795.16." I wonder how many people are comforted by that? How many people would not be afraid that that situation is what we face in the Cayman Islands?

The Minister for Community Development keeps shouting for me to tell him who Hospital Apogee Medica is. Well, according to the documents I have, there is a letter from a business called Intramed Inc., 102 Tremont Way, Augusta Georgia, 30907, dated 14 January, 1993, addressed to "Excellency McKeeva Bush, C/O Government Glass House, Executive Council, George Town, Grand Cayman" It says: "Your Excellency..." and sets out the proposal of Apogee Medica. I would like to table this document for anyone who might like to be similarly informed about it. There obviously were in place big time ideas and concepts which fell by the wayside as many of these things do. The people are the worse off for it.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: (interjecting) I am going to table Donahue, so you might as well table that one.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Education is one of the most vital concerns needing to be addressed in this country. It creates for us good citizens, and it makes for a better community. When Dr. Sybil...

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order Honourable Minister?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The Member was reading from a document which he said he was going to table. Is he tabling the document or not?

The Speaker: He said he would be tabling it. I am sure he will.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: As I was saying, at the Keynote Address for the Third National Education Conference, held here on 20th November, 1995, the guest speaker, Dr. Sybil Wilson of Brock University, said that Aristotle said a good citizen is one who does good. The challenge of the curriculum can be seen as a challenge to develop good moral citizens. This challenge is frequently expressed in the aims of education.

She pointed out that there can be two types of situations: One, like in Alice in Wonderland. She quoted from that well-known story, where it said, "Cheshire puss, would you tell me, please, which way I ought to walk from here?"

"That depends a good deal on where you want to go,' said the cat."

"I don't care much where,' said Alice."

"Then it does not matter which way you walk,' replied the cat."

"As long as I get somewhere,' Alice muttered."

Or, in comparison, she quoted Jean Rousseau's voice saying, "We have physicists, geometers, chemists, astronomers, poets, musicians and painters a'plenty; but we have no longer a citizen among us."

I think the question to be answered is whether we want education to do for us what it should do in the Cayman Islands - inform and improve the quality of life for our people. We have to determine whether we want a national curriculum under which all schools can work so that we can measure standards. We want to determine whether we need and want school facilities that will provide the proper accommodation for students.

I know that a plan which was in place was scrapped by the Government of the day, and has not been replaced in similar fashion with a plan. Where does it leave the children of this country? Where does it leave the teachers? Where does it leave the parents, and where does it leave the business community on a whole? That has not been answered and there is a serious need for an answer.

I see that the Minister for Education has other plans for Cayman Airways. We are supposedly going to buy another plane. We are buying another old 737-200. I wonder now if it is the second one we are presently operating, which was purchased under a contract with no break clause, but which is now going to have the clause broken to buy it, as was done in the case of the other one, for $5 million. I wonder. Or is there going to be another old 737-200 out there that Cayman Airways will be interested in purchasing.

There were about three Members of this House who argued that leasing a plane with no equity in it over five or 10 years, as the case may be, did not make a whole lot of sense when the plane could be purchased. But is it the right plane? If we are not looking in this country for a more modern, fuel-efficient, noise-abated plane, we cannot be looking in the right direction. I seriously wonder about the idea of Cayman Airways buying another 737-200 aircraft.

I think the occasion of the Agriculture show brings into focus just how much Caymanians are doing in terms of raising crops and animals. It seems like there is more of an awareness by the populace keeping their home gardens (if no more than to reduce the cost to themselves). It is encouraging to those who do give some thought to agriculture when they see the variety of fruits and vegetables grown in these islands.

I hope that this will continue so that there will be more of this, as it is (for one reason alone) one of the ways to stop the outflow of hard currency from these islands to the United States and elsewhere where food supplies are bought.

I sincerely trust that the Protection and Conservation Unit will be given the opportunity to do what it is supposed to do - protect and conserve the environment. Right now it seems to be falling victim to the cutter-head of the dredge. If we are to preserve this situation, then this Unit ought to be given every opportunity to do what was intended for it to do. The people who work there ought to be given a free hand to do what their job descriptions require them to do. We need to change the laws to empower them and we need done it quickly and immediately.

The Cayman Islands needs to have a complete objective study done on the effects of dredging in the North Sound immediately, to determine the damage and to know where we go from here.

I would like to comment on Social Services, which falls under the Minister for all services.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: You know Madam Speaker, if I were...

The Speaker: Honourable Minister.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, I would like to cut in. If he could refer to me in my right capacity under the Standing Orders. I do not usually do this, but they do this all the time. So let them refer to me correctly.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, would you in the future please refer to the Honourable Minister in his capacity as The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture? Thank you.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I was referring to the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture, and also the departed Minister to Health.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, am I departed, or am I here?

The Speaker: I think you are very much here!

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, there seems to be a growing trend in this country for a sector of our community to have need of Social Services. That is perhaps one of the most taxed areas of Government for there are not sufficient persons, certainly not to the extent that there could be, to do the job required of them. I believe that those people in the Social Services have as high a degree of stress as the distressed persons who often go to them daily for assistance.

While there is always room for improvement, they cope quite well. In fact, that is the information that I have, although I do get complaints from some persons from time to time.

The Social Services Department is set up specifically to deal with the needs of the people in this community which others do not deal with; to hear the problems of people that others do not hear; to hear of distressed situations where people do not have any money and they need Government to assist them. Those persons who work there are under obligation to keep that information confidential, under the regulations of the Civil Service.

They are trained to deal with people in that capacity. There are no Ministers of Government who are expected to do this. It is not their duty, except to hear a complaint and refer people to the Social Services. It has always been that way. But there has been a sudden and dramatic change. It has come about since the time of the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

It has changed to the extent that now in the Ministry there is an amount of $1.7 million for Financial Assistance. Why, I ask, has that come about? Why is that $1.7 million not with the Social Services where it belongs? They can make an independent determination of where assistance is needed, and it need not be coloured by any political view as to who is in need of that.

Out of that vote we heard that pensions to veterans are to be paid. The Finance Committee approved in one instance $179,000, right behind that, $110,000; and during Question Time we heard that recurrent revenue expenses for these pensions alone is going to run close to $1.5 million per annum. Why?

Too many things in this country are taking on a politicised image. Where any Minister is the benevolent giver, to any extent, of such things, it naturally buys from the recipients a certain feeling of goodwill toward the benevolent giver. In other words, it takes on the tone that it can help win votes. Is that the reason?

I have heard people in this community, business people, at that, speak of that vote as a 'slush fund'. The Minister is on record as saying that the Social Services is not really dealing with the matter to the extent that it should be, therefore it is necessary for him to do that. I wonder what qualifies him in that regard, or any group of persons in the Ministry.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: On a point of order, Madam Speaker.

POINT OF ORDER (Misleading)

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Minister?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: The Member is misleading the House. I have told the House that we have set up a committee; that the committee handles it, that the Treasury pays it out. I have said all that many times. He is misleading the House to say that the Minister is handling these funds. That is not so.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I did say the Minister or any persons within the Ministry. Why not the Social Services?

The Speaker: In either case, I am sure that he did not mean the Minister personally, but it would come under the Minister's Portfolio. I accept it at that. Please be careful with your comments in the future, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

May we take the luncheon suspension at this time? Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.44 PMPROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.43 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman continuing.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, before I continue to speak I would like to hand to the Serjeant-at-Arms a copy of the document I quoted from earlier which I said I would table.

When we took the suspension for lunch, I was commenting on the fact that financial assistance has now been moved to the Ministry of Community Development from the Social Services Department, where I think it belongs. I commented that it gives the wrong impression towards a benevolent political giver and I think it is inconsistent with the way accounts are or should be handled in Government.

The Minister commented that he does not deal with financial assistance, but that it is dealt with by certain members of his staff whom he has appointed to a Committee. The Minister has been very visible in giving out pension cheques in the recent past, so dealing with money is left to anyone's conclusion and opinion as to what it involves. I have seen a tent set up to the east of the Administration Building where cheques were supposed to be handed out by he himself to the veterans. I know he was handing out cheques to people in Cayman Brac, including a cheque for at least one dead person whose name was called but who could not answer the roll. So it is, indeed, a question of perception in these matters.

This question of pensions to veterans is something which I hear a lot about. This morning I received a call from someone who had heard that the common-law wife of a veteran would be eligible for benefits. He asked me if I would check into it to find out if this was the case. This whole state of affairs has been poorly handled, I think, and it certainly brought a lot of political focus. For example, the letter which was sent out on the 19th of December to all veterans and their widows, signed by the Minister for Community Development said: "It is with great pleasure that I forward to you on behalf of the National Team Government, this small token of appreciation from the people of the Cayman Islands for the contribution made by you, your spouse and family, for dedicated services with the allied forces during the World Wars."

Those pensions are not the magical work of the National Team Government. Those are the funds of the Treasury, which were approved by all the Members of the Legislative Assembly - all of the elected members who make up the Finance Committee - to be paid to those eligible persons. As far as I am concerned, it was wrong and misleading for such a letter to be sent out in such a manner. It is certainly something new, as far as Government's correspondence goes.

Evidently there was such a rush to pay this money out that some persons who received it appear now to not be eligible for it, including persons who had been in the Vietnamese War which was a war fought by America. Of course, while some Caymanians who were born here were involved, this only means that they changed their citizenship and found themselves in the Armed Forces of the United States. But we understand that nine such persons have been paid money - money, which supposedly they were not due to receive, and which no attempt will be made to collect. But it has been stopped.

While, on the other hand, people who actually served in the Trinidad Navy or the British Navy during the last World War who are eligible for it will not receive it because they, or their spouses as the case may be, are not living in the Cayman Islands. I cannot believe for one moment in time, that someone who is eligible to earn that pension will not be paid because they are not living here. They gave their services and they are qualified; they are eligible and it is unfair to those persons not to receive that pension.

I think the fact that there has been some recognition of the common-law spouses of some of these eligible servicemen is good and proper, because there are situations in the islands where persons have lived together as husband and wife for many years but were not married in the church. They were married in terms of being together as those who had taken vows. So I think that it is good logic, and it is right and proper.

Where some people found themselves excluded simply by not living in Cayman, even where they have sent an application for claims and would be found eligible, is the highest degree of unfairness that I think could come about in this whole affair.

What strikes me about it is that while they are eligible it seems, they are not on the island, therefore they cannot vote. I do not know if the two go hand-in-hand.

POINT OF ORDER

(Imputing improper motive)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, on a Point of Order.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Development.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I have been listening to this Member...

The Speaker: May I have one Member standing? Please continue.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I have been listening to this Member dealing with this Social Services and Veterans' benefits. In his speech he has made references to slush funds several times, and he is now into vote-getting. I think that is imputing improper motives.

The Speaker: I have already asked the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to be very careful with his remarks while making his presentation. Will you please avoid anything that might indicate that someone is doing something improper?

Please continue.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I have had calls from various persons who feel that they are eligible for this, including persons who believe that it is unreasonable for some people whom they know do not qualify to receive these pensions; while others who are qualified and eligible under the now prescribed requirements are being refused the opportunity of this pension, particularly because they are not living in the islands.

We would expect that the monies expended now would be reduced in the future in that the persons who are eligible

(having been veterans in the last war, or their spouses) will be deceased in the future, thus the expenses paid will be accordingly reduced. However, the point that I make on it all is that within a Governmental framework this matter of payments can be handled (and as far as I am concerned should be) directly by the people in the Social Services Department who can make that determination - as it is their business to do - and the money can be paid from the treasury or be mailed out.

They do not have to go through the process of collecting it from a political Ministry in the Glass House.

I have certain concerns as well about what is happening with monies being spent or given out, supposedly as sports grants. In a recent newspaper article the Minister for Community Development is shown handing a cheque, in one case for $50,000 to someone in West Bay, and another cheque for $30,000 to Mr. Tony Powell in Breakers for the Breakers Play field.

I heard much about the latter cheque during the Bodden Town By-election; the generosity of the Government and all that the Government was doing for sports, and what the people who are associated with sports would be doing. The point that I am making is that the money being spent on sports in this country is over and above what can be considered reasonable in the face of so many other areas of need, such as medical services, education, and the like.

I know from the days when I was in the Service that the Government gave grants or paid certain expenses for sports clubs and associations. But the way it was done in those days was when a bill was brought for a particular item or cost, the Government issued its cheque when it was satisfied that this was all in place. Now, Government's money (in denominations of $50,000 and $30,000) is being handed out. I raised the point in the Finance Committee during the last meeting and I was told that, supposedly, the accounting comes afterwards. There is something really wrong with that form of accounting in Government, in my opinion.

The Government's statistics show that the highest average salary in the country is $3,004 per month. That means that the amount of $50,000 could almost pay the salary of two of the highest paid persons in the country in one deal, where a cricket field or some such thing is involved. The Statistical Abstract also shows that labourers and unskilled persons in this country earn an average of $724 per month. So, with $50,000 and $30,000 a number of persons in this island could be employed for the whole year. I think we are seriously missing reality in this country, and what is happening ought to stop.

Government business is not being conducted in the usual conventional manner with these huge handouts of money all over the place, sports and other areas included.

We understand that the Housing Development Corporation is seeing its last days in existence and the Mortgage Portfolio is to be sold. I have always said that I think it is a mistake to do so because financial institutions do not jump up and dance about helping those people at the lowest rung of the economic ladder. Certainly, in the Cayman Islands we do not find that happening.

There is a large number of people who need assistance. Government had in the Housing Development Corporation a means by which they could address this. They had a staff which was trained in the whole business of mortgages and assessing the ability to pay and so on. Now it stands to lose that because it is being closed down. We hear about this wonderful new idea of guaranteeing homes on the island. Supposedly (like many things the Government says), there is a new venture to provide lower income housing. They claimed that they were already doing that, they were offering those mortgages for as much as $100,000. Now they have reduced that figure realising that that could never represent lower income. I think it is unfortunate, but this certainly needs to be addressed, and quickly.

I saw in the newspaper of Wednesday, 14th February, the headline 'The Church Calls for Clean Election.' I read it with interest. There is one particular part that caught my attention, and I wonder just what it means: "We commit ourselves to oppose and if necessary expose any candidate who violates such standards as would advance human dignity and nation building." I am not quite sure how to interpret that.

I am wondering how far that is intended, or whether there will be an intrusion of something new - the churches into the election process in the forthcoming election. I do not disagree with the various standards which it speaks of in this article, such as, "...the church is urging voters not to accept any gifts or any other form of enticement as an inducement to vote for any candidate." I think that is right and proper, but I wonder about that particular statement. I hope that somewhere along the line there will be a clarification on that because it would be most unusual and unwise for our churches, which attend to moral and spiritual needs, to become embroiled in what might be considered a counter-campaigning effort against persons who might be perceived not to meet the standards which have been emphasised by the churches.

There are many things which need attention in this country. Among them is the question of the issuance of work permits. I recently saw a front page article on that particular aspect of life in these Cayman Islands. It said that most of the work permits were now up-to-date and so on. I think that careful attention needs to be paid to the issuance of work permits - how many are issued, to whom they are issued - to ensure that when they are issued there was not a Caymanian in a position to do the job for which the permit has been issued.

I have said this many times. I have been criticised in some instances about it, while other people agree. I have found it necessary to speak on matters where other Members of this House prefer (for whatever reasons) not to speak, because I believe in them, or I believe it is the right thing to do. Perhaps it would be right at this time, purely for purposes of the record, to factually refute some of the nonsensical arguments that I have heard time and again about myself and my colleague, the First Elected Member for Soddan Town, opposing things in this House.

I have endeavoured to speak on any point with which I think it is right to disagree. In the majority of instances, I make that known and I speak to the other side of the story, and I support the business which is before the House. The staff of this Legislative Assembly have very kindly collated some statistical data for me (which I hold in my hand) regarding Private Members' Motions, Government Motions, and Bills, which have come to this House since 1993. Just for factual purposes, it shows that my colleague, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, and I have brought over the past three years and three months a total of 43 Private Member's Motions; 37 were rejected by the Government. It also shows that the Government in toto brought 94 Motions and Bills. He and I voted for 85. That is an outstanding record on both sides, but one clearly shows the negative attitude that the Government has for everything which comes to this Legislative Assembly brought by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and myself.

We recently had a visit from six Members of Parliament from the House of Commons. I understand that they are part of an effort called Friends of Cayman, which to me has strong positive connotations - to have persons whom Members of this Legislative Assembly know personally and can have direct contact - who have come and have seen, and who should be in a position to counter certain negative stories which come out regarding the Cayman Islands. These stories were apparently in the minds of even those who came here.

There was one in particular, whom I saw on the morning television show, who pointedly talked about money laundering and laundering of drug money in the Cayman Islands, and that the Cayman Islands needed to pass legislation to put an end to that, and so on. It is my understanding that he was referring to the Confiscation Law that has been around here for over a year. I support the legislation that is in place now which allows the Government to deal with matters relating to money laundering and all the other criminal offences which may come about, but I have a serious concern about passing that particular piece of legislation. I suppose I am the only one prior to now who has mentioned it, but that legislation is most peculiar in that it seems to allow courts abroad to make demands of the Cayman Islands, which the Cayman Islands is virtually expected to carry out, in regard to seizing of assets and so on.

It has another peculiar aspect about it in that...

The Speaker: Honourable Member you are anticipating a Bill that will be coming before the House which you will have a chance to debate.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I understand that it is coming in a different form. I was simply mentioning one or two things which come to mind that I found in it. So be it, until that time.

My concern is that the British Government seems to be more consistent on that piece of legislation, and I have been told by legal authorities that should this House even refuse to pass it, that it can be passed through what is called Order in Council. I think that could have very serious repercussions for this country.

I was talking about this with someone and the person said to me 'suppose they do that and it destroys our financial institution, and we become dependent on England like some of the other territories?' I said to the individual that they should be aware that the Cayman Islands does not fit the general profile of dependent territories who are, because of economic straightness, always begging for or depending upon help from the United Kingdom Government. The fact that a little island like this has achieved to the extent that it has makes us highly disliked by the industrialised nations of the world who see this country as keeping money away from their tax collectors. They do not give a hoot if they break us here and put us in a begging posture, because that is the profile that fits the Caribbean - and has ever fitted it since the days of slavery.

All of us in this Legislative Assembly ought to get real wise and real smart and understand that going and saying to the big powers, the G-7 nations, that we are so honest, so clean, that we are not doing this or not doing that, does not matter a row of pins to them. We have got to get real smart, and real wise, real fast in that particular regard. I would say to all that we can go down the shoot quicker than we might be expecting.

The Speaker: I think the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has now completed his four hours.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: It might be an excellent time to just complete it.

Thank you, very much.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I rise to make my contribution to the debate on the Throne Speech so ably delivered by His Excellency the Governor, Mr. John Owen, on 16th February.

It was a very comprehensive document which covered much ground. Before I go into that, I would like to preface my debate by paying my gratitude to the electorate of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman as this is the 16th time that I have had the opportunity of listening to a Throne Speech delivered in this Honourable House by various Governors, as well as having the opportunity of representing the people of that district.

During these 16 years, I have had the opportunity to see much physical development in all aspects. Our country has developed as a tourist attraction, a financial centre and an excellent place in which to live. We should all be very proud of our educational system and of the standard of living that we are able to have in such a small land mass, consisting of three islands. I hasten to add that the Cayman Islands is made up of Grand Cayman, the most developed of the three islands, and the seat of central Government; the Island of Cayman Brac, which is quite a considerable distance behind in development; and Little Cayman which is making economic strides presently.

All in all, I want to impress upon all Members of this House that if we look back into the History of these Islands (I have the advantage because I am older than most Members, and can remember the Cayman Islands at a different stage of its development) we will realise that we have come a long, long way. I caution all today, as this is an election year, to ensure that everything we say will lead to the development of the Cayman Islands and not the breaking down of what our forefathers and we ourselves have developed.

It has been said that Rome was not built in a day. But it certainly disintegrated from within in a short period of time. Today I think our biggest enemies are those of us within our own territorial waters who would strive to destroy us. It is imperative that we all work together and look to our Heavenly Father for guidance, so that what we say and do will help to continue the prosperity that we have enjoyed over these many decades.

His Excellency the Governor said in his Throne Speech "The responsibilities of success do not only rest on the shoulders of government. We all have responsibilities. Twenty years ago a visitor wrote that these islands had 'a continuous tradition of forthright sturdy individualism together with habits of self discipline and self reliance born of sea faring.' The history of the islands is full of stories that reflect the independent nature of the people of Cayman. These were people who were strong and self reliant - and proud of it." I say to all of us today: let us continue that tradition.

I am the only Member now serving within this legislature who does not live on the Island of Grand Cayman. Therefore, I will be making most of my contribution on the district which I represent, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Before that, I shall touch briefly on other departments, Ministries and Portfolios of Government.

I go first to the Judiciary. I am glad to hear that an additional area will be made available for the courts. We all know they are extremely crowded and this is extremely necessary. It is my hope that within the very near future additional courts and storage space will be available for those working in that department.

I would like to express my appreciation to Mr. Justice Schofield, who recently left our islands, for the service he rendered here in the Cayman Islands.

While touching on the Courts Building, I would like to ask the Legal Department and the Judiciary to consider relocating the Magistrate's Court in Cayman Brac to the Aston Rutty Centre, as it was located there prior to the construction of the new Government Administration Building. The Government Administration Building in Cayman Brac has run out of space. All the departments working within that building are extremely crowded. I am thankful to say that the Magistrate's Court does not have to be used too frequently, and I feel that with the Chief Justice's consent the Aston Rutty Centre could be made available to serve the needs of the Magistrate's Court with minor expense and that the space now occupied by the Magistrate's Court in Government Administration Building at Stake Bay could be used for other departments.

For many years we have asked for additional funds to enlarge the Government Administration Building, but due to financial constraints it has not been forthcoming. We were able to make a small addition for the Social Services Department, but there is still a need as all other departments are housed within that building.

The Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs: We are proud that we have a native Bracker as Chief Secretary. We wish him all that is good. We feel that his being responsible for District Administration is excellent. He is doing an excellent job in guiding the District Administration, and having had over 10 years experience in that office, he has all the qualifications and knows the needs.

I would like to congratulate the new Commissioner of Police of the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force. I am very proud of the policies he has instituted since becoming Commissioner. I think the idea that he publicly stated, that the police is a service and not a force is very fitting as we need a strong alert police service which can be a friend to all and protect us at all times.

I am happy that he has seen fit to recommend that a full time constable be stationed at Little Cayman. This is necessary. It has been necessary for some time and I feel that the islands will benefit. We certainly will be able to have better police protection and control over what goes on within the island of Little Cayman with an experienced full time constable on duty there.

There are other programmes that the Commissioner has installed here in George Town. I particularly think that foot patrol by police is an exceptionally good idea. It gives one an opportunity to see the police. When the police cruise through the district at 30 mph in an air-conditioned vehicle, he is barely seen and he cannot see what goes on within the district. We need the beat patrol. I hope that as time goes on it will be installed in the larger districts of Grand Cayman where I think there is a need for it.

The Prison Department: Unfortunately, the population at Northward Prison does not seem to be reducing. Therefore, we must continue to improve the facilities there. I hope the visitor's block will be completed. I am very pleased that the drug counselling will be increased there, and I will deal more with this when I deal with the Drug Counselling Department. It is important that we rehabilitate the unfortunate people who are forced to serve at Northward. If they are incarcerated there for long periods of time and come back out only educated by criminals of a worse nature than themselves, we are the losers. We need rehabilitation.

The Department of Immigration: During the Cuban crisis here in Cayman, this department had a major responsibility. I think it disrupted a lot of their activities. I hope now that that is over that they will be able to get back to the real purpose of the Immigration Department. I look forward to the community on a whole being better satisfied with what is coming out of the Department of Immigration.

I do not live on this island, but I have ears and I hear the same things as other legislators. Therefore, I am concerned that we improve the services of our Immigration Department.

Our Immigration Officers are the first to meet our arriving visitors. Unless they are pleasantly greeted, and their needs are served (whether it be an extension of time, or whatever)..., each and every officer must perform his duties in the most civil manner possible because the country would not need an Immigration Service if people did not come to our island - these people make their jobs possible.

I am glad to know that the Immigration Board is now able to deal with work permits on a faster basis than in the past. There does not seem to be so much waiting time. It is encouraging to see that they can deal with the issues as they come up.

While speaking on Immigration, a deficiency I see in Cayman Brac is the fact that in the Customs Department it has been necessary for many years to have a Deputy Collector of Customs and an Assistant Collector on Cayman Brac. I know that Customs is the largest revenue earner in the country, and I understand the heavy work load that they have. But, for a person serving in the Immigration Department there is no chance for promotion. The Senior Immigration Officer who is in charge in Cayman Brac is a very dedicated individual, but the only possible means for him to get an increase in salary would be if he left the island and came to Grand Cayman to work.

We need his expertise in Cayman Brac, therefore I feel his grade should be increased with the responsibility that he must shoulder as the only Senior Immigration Officer on Cayman Brac. I ask that this be considered when the re-grading of posts is looked at. Cayman Brac does not need to lose its citizens to Grand Cayman. We need to encourage people to return. The cost of living is high, and a man with a family must earn whatever he is capable of earning in his productive years.

Information and Broadcasting: I want to again say how important Radio Cayman is to the residents of my district. We look to that for information and what is going on in Central Government and in Grand Cayman, and, particularly during the hurricane season for weather reports. Although we are promised year after year that relay stations will be established in the shade areas of the bluff, so that residents in Spot Bay and Watering Place (who live rather close to the bluff) will be able to receive Radio Cayman - this still has not been done.

The television station has been able to overcome this problem with their signal, but Radio Cayman still promises us that the equipment is on order and it will be done. I am confident that it will be done, but I am today asking when?

As I said earlier, I will skip District Administration because I want to end my debate with that subject.

Personnel, Training, Management and Computer Services: I am grateful that the training of our department heads and personnel is ongoing. In recent months there have been courses in Cayman Brac where some of the senior personnel have been brought from Grand Cayman to attend courses there which enabled them to see first hand what goes on outside of Grand Cayman, and this gave an opportunity for the department heads in Cayman Brac to meet their counter parts here in Grand Cayman.

I am also encouraged that Computer Services is moving ahead in management, but we still have a problem with the upward mobility of our Caymanians within the departments. I think training is very, very important.

The Legislative Assembly: It is doing an excellent job, and I congratulate you, Madam Speaker, in your capacity, and also the Clerk and her entire staff. We all are very sympathetic to Miss Mary, the one who has provided so well for us over the years, in her illness. We hope that she will continue to improve.

We have seen much improvement within this department since I came in in 1980. I think if we all stood at a distance and looked and saw where we came from, I think we would realise that we are a progressive country and that we are moving ahead.

I do not believe that our constituents generally realise the amount of work that is done by the Legislative Department. They feel that we only meet a few times a year; they do not realise that we have Select Committees and the amount of work there is within the Department for the Clerk and her staff.

Many Select Committees have been ongoing for a very long time - very important Committees. I look forward to many of those being completed before the end of this year. The Standing House and Standing Business Committees have important functions as well as the Standing Orders Committee. I realise that it is only because we are able to regulate ourselves that it is able to function as efficiently as it does.

I am glad to see that new efficiency measures will continue to be applied to the editing of the Hansard Reports. This will mean a lot to future generations as they read the history of these islands and what took place within these hallowed Chambers.

I would like to express much gratitude to Mr. Thomas Russell, the Cayman Islands Representative in the United Kingdom, also to his able assistant, for their efficiency in representing the Cayman Islands and also for their kindness to us all whenever we visit the United Kingdom. I do not think there will ever be a fitting replacement for Mr. Russell, and I hope that he will be able to continue with us for a long time. I think he is ably suited for the job, having expertise in so many fields which contributes to the excellent job that he does.

As we approach the election in November, we certainly hope that this will be a peaceful well organised election. I have much confidence in the Supervisor of Elections and his Deputy and their entire staff. I have no doubt in my mind that it will be conducted in a proper manner. I just hope that those of us who campaign will remember that everything we say has a reflection on the Cayman Islands as a whole. When we think we are talking about an individual, we are actually talking about our country. I ask each and every candidate to be cautious. Campaign, yes, but be very factual and straightforward in your campaigning.

I would like to once again state that I feel the time is now that we should have a full time supervisor of elections. I think our registration should be on a continuous basis. Due to the passing of the late Haig Bodden we had to have a by-election and although late in the term, the only ones able to vote in that were the ones who qualified prior to the 1992 election. There is a cut-off date for the 1996 election which is rapidly approaching.

We are not able to extend the franchise for the right to vote at 18 to people, as our Constitution says, if we do not have them registered to vote. Therefore, I feel it is time that we have continuous registration and an up-to-date voting list of all registered voters available at all times. I would ask the powers that be to give serious consideration to this because most countries less developed than we, have that facility.

The Portfolio of Legal Administration: The Law School is a credit to the Cayman Islands. It makes me feel good when I see the number of our young Caymanians, both male and female, who have qualified as attorneys at law here in the Cayman Islands. We have a need for attorneys and without having a Law School here it would have been impossible for many who would only have been able to attend on a part time basis to secure their degree. It has been exceptionally beneficial and I congratulate the entire staff of the Law School.

I am also glad that the Legislative Drafting Department is now fully staffed. We always have a need for legislation to be drafted and prepared. In order to keep up with the number of amendments to legislation and what have you, I am glad that this is functioning. I would not be surprised if we have to further expand that department.

The Customs Department: This department certainly comes in for accolades each year for the amount of money they are able to collect. I am very proud of our Customs Department, also their vigilance in looking out for illicit drug trafficking. I think a necessary ingredient is for them to meet our visitors with a smile and to be a courteous as possible.

I am also gratified that the manning clause of our Shipping Registry has been clarified so that we are now able to get more ships registered in the Cayman Islands. It is my hope that within the very near future that can be a revenue earner for the Cayman Islands. Certainly, it was unfortunate in the very beginning that the clause was not worked out. But I guess everything takes time and at that particular time there were many large ships that wanted to register here but who could not comply with the British Board of Trade manning requirements.

I still believe that the time has come that we need a registry of yachts at the Port Authority. I feel that would be beneficial in keeping track of the locally operated yachts within the territorial waters of the Cayman Islands. It is done in most other countries. They would not have to comply with all the international requirements of shipping. The Port Authority could establish their own marine requirements. It could be a revenue earner, and could certainly give us control over who and what is floating in our territorial waters.

The Budget and Management Unit and the Internal Audit Unit are all functioning well. Other Members have spoken on that at length, so I will not delve into that.

The Currency Board and the Pension Board both are very important to this Government. It was a very excellent decision when the Currency Board was established. I often wonder where this country would be if that decision had not been made when we decided not to use the Jamaican Currency any more. I wonder where our financial stability would have been. I feel many good decisions have been made and the establishment of the Pension Board is very important.

The Financial Services Supervision Department: I would like to thank Mrs. Dilbert for the service she has rendered to this country during the time she was head of the Financial Services Division.

I had the opportunity of going on that trip last year to New York London and Hong Kong. I was very proud to see how this country was accepted in those territories and the able way in which our Financial Secretary, the Attorney General and all the other Ministers were able to present the true story of how our Government operates. We held our heads very high as one of the leading off-shore territories.

I go now to the Ministry of Tourism Aviation and Commerce. Every Minister within this Government has done all within his power to move ahead. I am encouraged with the development within the Department of Tourism. I think we all realise that we depend heavily on revenue from tourism to keep our economy buoyant. We must be prepared to spend money to advertise and keep the department going and to inform the rest of the world about the Cayman Islands.

The Department of Tourism and the Minister have not only attempted to tell the world about the Cayman Islands, they are attempting to improve the Cayman Islands to encourage those who come here to want to come back. For that, I congratulate them. I think the establishment of the Botanical Park, the restoration of Pedro's Castle (and I could go on and on listing the many projects) will develop something for the tourists to go back and tell their friends about so they will want to visit. I think for too long we have depended upon scuba diving. That attracts one element, but we are a very fortunate territory in that we have three destinations all at different developmental stages. As we create attractions we are no longer only depending on scuba divers, but will get people who want to come for the beauty of the tropics, the bird watching, and the list goes on and on. I think the mature approach that the Department has taken within the last three years will do much to encourage continued growth in this department.

I am also most grateful to both the Ministry and the Department for the inclusion of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman in their advertising programme. It is encouraging for those of us who live there, and certainly encourages the tourists to travel there. I just ask that we concentrate on developing.

One can come to Grand Cayman and see a developed island. One goes to Cayman Brac and sees a much slower pace. I feel that we can concentrate on the bluff in Cayman Brac (we do not have a beach like Grand Cayman). It is unique. It has facilities which can be developed, it is two-thirds of the land area in Cayman Brac, and I think that whatever potential we have for development rests on the bluff.

The restoration of Pedro's Castle is very gratifying to me in that history relates that my great-great-grandfather built Pedro's Castle. That certainly brings it close to me and I am happy that it will be restored and be something that will live on far beyond my time. I think that is what we must continue to do - look to the future and develop the Cayman Islands.

The Fire Department: This is something that we all depend on heavily. I do not think people appreciate the Fire Department until they have a tragedy. I lost my home some years ago, and I know exactly what they did for me by getting there as quickly as they did, and how professionally they handled it. I am very proud of the young firemen that we have in the service. The Chief Fire Officer has done an excellent job in developing that service. It is a guarantee to us that when we need them they will be there, and when they arrive, they know what to do.

The Port Authority: I am very pleased to see that the Port Authority will be taking delivery of a container crane in 1996. I think this is a piece of equipment they have needed for many years. I am glad to see it. I understand it is a very large piece of equipment capable of handling much larger ships than now dock at the George Town port. Therefore, this is looking to the future.

I cannot say that I am as happy to read about the implementation of permanent moorings as I am of the crane on the dock. I do have some concerns about permanent moorings in George Town. I am afraid that they are going to limit the number of cruise ships able to use the Port of George Town. A Captain will not come to a permanent mooring as easily as he will come to drop his hook, because he can drop his anchor where he wants to put it rather than having a pilot take him to where it has been pre-arranged.

As a former master mariner, I have reservations about a large ship at a permanent mooring. Nevertheless, the decision is not mine and I will wait to see how it works.

The Port Authority has also been making plans to extend the docking facility in Cayman Brac. If anything develops in the way of a free trade zone, that may be necessary. We look forward to talking to the Minister about that as time progresses.

Civil Aviation: I am very happy to see that the Owen Roberts International Airport Terminal building is going to be enlarged. I think that both the departure and arrival areas are much too small for the number of aircraft which arrive and depart so close in time to one another. I think that it will certainly help the expansion to the ticket area. Great improvements were made to that area a year or two ago and I feel confident that the expansion of the other area will be just as beneficial.

The airport development in Little Cayman is something that I look forward to with keen interest. I realise that it will be a costly exercise, but that is one of the expenses of progress. I look forward to seeing that develop.

The Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation: I would like to congratulate the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation for all that he has accomplished and for all that he has on the drawing board since taking over this Ministry. I realise that it is very difficult and he shoulders much responsibility. I think the strategic planning exercise was extremely wise. The inclusion of the public in these policies will make it much easier to implement in the future, and I honour his judgment in what has taken place.

Health Insurance is an item that I have felt is necessary in these islands from the time I was a child. As the cost of health care increases worldwide it becomes ever more necessary. The generosity of our Government (by providing guarantees for so many of our citizens in time of need) has created a very large contingent liability on the resources of this country. There is no chance of health care costs reducing. With the high cost of malpractice insurance, it will continue to go up and up.

I look forward to the introduction of health insurance. This will take the burden off of Government. It will be shared by employer and employee, and will give a sense of security to all. Fortunately, I have been able to carry health insurance from the time I was a child, being able to present an insurance ID card when I need health care. That is certainly better than having to worry about where I will find the thousands of dollars necessary for a deposit. This is a step in the right direction.

When the previous Government spoke about the construction of a hospital, I asked that they first attempt to establish health insurance to help pay for the cost of the hospital and take the burden from Government. Unfortunately, the priorities were not arranged that way. Here we are today still having a problem. So I look forward to receiving this Health Insurance Bill, and I certainly hope that it will be at a rate that people of the Cayman Islands can afford to pay because I do not think that any of us can afford to be without it.

The new and improved facilities are progressing well. I know the storage building is nearing completion. This has been a need at the George Town Hospital for many years. I look forward to the other projects as they come forth.

I am also happy that the Government has seen fit to establish the district health clinics. The Nurse Jessie Ritch Memorial Health Centre in Bodden Town, is a credit to that district. I look forward to the other districts getting their own clinics. We are very proud of the health facilities we have in Cayman Brac. We realise that every district needs health care as close to home as possible.

I also note with interest that $2.4 million will be spent in 1996 for medical equipment for the George Town Hospital. I think there is $161,000 in the Budget for equipment for the Faith Hospital in Cayman Brac. I hope that all of this will be implemented during the year.

The Mental Health Service is an area the Cayman Islands has always lagged behind in. I realise it is a very costly area of treatment, but it is something that is not going to go away. We have to provide the necessary infrastructure. Just having someone say that a person needs care is not going to do the job. I am thankful that in the Brac we do not have too many people with this problem, but we do not have a facility where those who do have this problem can be comfortably kept. It is a growing need there.

It is my hope that once the rest home in Cayman Brac is operational that the Sister Islands Community Care Association can work out some kind of an arrangement with Government to build a small mental health facility on the property next to Faith Hospital to serve the needs of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

What happens so often with the mentally ill is that we healthy people tend to make them worse by telling them that everything they do is wrong, when they feel that everything we do is wrong. They need special treatment. The quicker we can get them into that, the better it will be.

It is my hope that once the new hospital facilities here in George Town with all the diagnostic equipment is operational, we will be able to reduce some of our overseas medical treatment. That is what is so costly. If by having facilities on this island, we can make the necessary diagnoses and not have to send them overseas, then we will have saved a considerable amount of money.

Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation: The Governor said: "The need for local drug rehabilitation was reinforced in the Drug Plan. To this end planning approval for the renovation of existing buildings on land owned by Government at Breakers is presently being sought and it is anticipated that this work should be completed around mid-year." I am glad to see this.

For many, many years, we have toyed with the idea that it was cheaper to send people overseas for rehabilitation. We met with experts from Hazelden and other places and they did not give me that impression. They spoke of a cure rate of less than 20% because of the environment there was different than the environment from whence they came.

What I got from the meetings I had with the experts was that a rehabilitation centre within our own territory was the answer. It was not accepted at that time, but I am glad that it will now be a reality. I feel that this will be money well spent. If we do not rehabilitate these individuals they will be a liability on this Government for as long as they live. If we can spend some money and rehabilitate them, they can go back into society and earn their own way and not be a burden to the country, to say nothing about their standard of living and their life-style returning to what it should be. The country will be a better place.

Cayman Counselling Centre: This too goes hand-in-hand with what I have been saying about rehabilitation. I am glad that the Cayman Islands Marine Institute has been established. I look with interest at how the educational arm of the CIMI functions. Certainly, we want to know that persons in there receive education equal to their ability so that they can achieve academic success. Not only do we want to discipline them, we want to educate them at the same time.

Drug Addiction has taken a high toll of young people in the Cayman Islands, especially here in Grand Cayman. Unfortunately, it is now creeping into the Brac. Cayman Brac has its problems. I am very glad that the Minister for Health has seen fit to establish a counselling centre in Cayman Brac. Already, we can see much good being accomplished there. Many young people who were hooked on alcohol are now going to work on Monday mornings, which is something very unusual.

It goes beyond that because some who were on hard drugs now realise that there is an alternative. The money spent on this will be beneficial and I pledge my support to the Minister to help in any way to make this a success.

It certainly grieves me to see young men and women whom I knew from the time they were born destroying their lives. The sad part is that they do not realise what they are doing.

The Ministry of Education: I have had the opportunity, under the Honourable Minister for Education, to serve on the Education Council. I am presently Chairman of the Sister Islands Education Board for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I am very happy to have had the opportunity to work very closely with him. I am most grateful for all of his efforts in improving education throughout the islands. He knows the needs, he is keenly interested and is doing something about it. To me that is what is important - knowing what needs to be done and having the initiative to get it done.

We have a good educational system. We are now installing an inspectorate which will further improve the system. There has been much argument over external examinations, but I think that if we look at the results of the Cayman Brac High School in the CXE Exams last year, we will see that our children can do it. All we have to do is give them the opportunity and provide the tools and teachers to impart the knowledge to them.

He is keenly interested in developing the physical plant of the schools. I speak to him very often of the needs for my district. I feel that is my responsibility. He is sympathetic to our needs. Realising that there are financial restraints which we all have to be guided by, he has never told me that he would not do something. He is always willing to listen and I deeply appreciate the cooperation I receive from him.

Our schools in Cayman Brac are in good shape. We recently purchased additional land for the playing field in Spot Bay and we are trying to get additional property around the West End Primary School, and we want to build another classroom at Creek. That will pretty well take care of the needs. As we all know, there has been a decrease in population in the Brac, not an increase like you face here in Grand Cayman. Nevertheless, the infrastructure for education is well in place.

I have had numerous discussions with the principal of the Community College. Some local individuals have pledged financial support if we can get a vocational and technical training facility built at the Cayman Brac High School. Initially he suggested that we bring the students from Cayman Brac to the Community College where they have this facility ongoing. But I carefully explained to him that that is what we are trying to prevent. When our people leave Cayman Brac they seldom return. So the important thing is to leave them in that environment and provide them with the tools and skills to make a living on Cayman Brac. He has agreed. With some funding from the private sector and with the Minister's assistance and the assistance of the principal of the Community College, we hope to get the vocational and technical block established at the Cayman Brac High School. It will be supervised by the Community College. That may sound a bit funny, but that is how we have to do it in the Brac.

We are somewhat disappointed that we have not been able to get the Teacher's Centre underway in Cayman Brac. We have presented some alternatives to the Minister and are awaiting a decision from him. We hope that in the near future there will be some development on the Teacher's Centre in Cayman Brac as well as the building of the classroom at the Creek Primary School.

I am encouraged that the Community College is offering an Associate Degree in 15 different areas. This will be a terrific asset to many of our young people. Many of our school leavers are too young to get scholarships. Some have to wait around for a couple of years or so before they can go on to college in North America or the United Kingdom, wherever they go.

If they can attend the Community College and work towards an Associate Degree, the first two years will be accepted by an institution overseas. They will be two years ahead in their education and will have been able to remain at home. I think it will be beneficial to the young student in that his opportunity to earn a living will come earlier and he will have parental supervision longer by remaining at home. I look forward to its introduction.

The Governor also said; "The Education Council will be revising its guidelines for scholarships to take into consideration the Guaranteed Student Loan Scheme, and the new offerings at the Community College. Additional support and advice for students intending to study overseas will be offered through annual seminars delivered during February and March..." This is now ongoing.

I think this is very important because many of our young students do not have any idea what it means to attend college. I think these seminars will acquaint them with how to prepare their schedules and introduce them to the different life-style at the University or College. This will prepare them to attend the institution and enable them to study. As I said before, if they avail themselves of the opportunity of the Associate Degree from the Community College, they will be two years older and more mature.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION - 4.30 PM Standing Order 10(2)

The Speaker: It is now 4.30. May I ask for a motion for the adjournment?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. John B. McLean: I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 7TH MARCH, 1996.

EDITED
THURSDAY
7TH MARCH, 1996
10.12 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 38. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

DEFERRED QUESTION NO.38

No. 38: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning whether Government still allows onshore mining of marl and, if so, what are the requirements to be met.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Yes. While there is not a standardised set of requirements to be met, the Central Planning Authority considers a number of factors, such as, but not limited to:

- existing and potential future use of the surrounding land;

- access to the site;
- hydrological considerations;
- ecological factors;
- proposed use for the site post-excavation and;
- input from other Government Departments.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Bema L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Could the Honourable Minister say if there are any royalties due Government and, if so, when did this come into the regulations?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Quite a long time back. There is an application fee which relates to the potential number of cubic yards. I think that is set at 15 cents per cubic yard, or $750 plus a fee calculated at the rate of 10 cents in respect of each cubic yard to be excavated, whichever amount is the lesser. It came in under not the last Government, but the previous one, 4th July . . . I am sorry, this is the revision. Somewhere in 1991. I am sorry, what I have here is the revision. I do not have the exact time.

However, I should say this, to have to pay the equivalent of a royalty for an application when they may not excavate that marl, I find that very harsh. Perhaps it needs looking at because it looks like this is payable on the application whether they dig the marl or not. It does not seem to be a very fair way of doing this.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Minister say if the Government has received any applications in recent times for the mining of marl on the island?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: One application, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Is Government looking at land mining of marl as an alternative means of acquiring marl material versus having it dredged, or are any studies being done in this direction?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I only have responsibility for the Central Planning Authority. All I can say is that applications are looked at when they come in. I would not like to give an opinion beyond that.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 49, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 49

No. 49: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration if any criminal charges will be laid as a result of the investigation into the allegation of insurance fraud as reported in the Caymanian Compass of 15th August, 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The report of 15th August, 1995, referred to allegations that certain companies in the Cayman Islands had placed their property insurance through overseas insurers who had failed to insure those properties adequately or at all. No criminal offences have been disclosed in the Cayman Islands and no criminal charges have been laid there. Investigations have commenced in New Hampshire, United States of America, and may provoke further investigations in Cayman.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if arising out of the investigations are any recommendations which could serve to strengthen the practise and educate consumers so that this kind of occurrence would be alleviated in the future?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am dealing with this question on the matter of criminal responsibility. The regulating of the insurance industry falls under the Honourable Third Official Member. To my knowledge there have been no recommendations for any changes as far as the regulation of insurers is concerned. But I think that it is true to say that the Financial Secretary is considering whether any advice should be given in respect of this type of insurance in the future. But I do not think there are any recommendations as such.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today.
Government Business. The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman continuing his debate on the Throne Speech.

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY MR. JOHN W. OWEN, MBE, GOV-

ERNOR OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS, ON FRIDAY, 16TH FEBRUARY, 1996

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker. When we took the adjournment yesterday afternoon, I was discussing the Education Council under the Ministry of Education and Planning. The Education Council plays a very important function in regulating policy for our education system in both islands. It also interviews scholarship applicants. I think that with the benefit of the financial assistance being offered by Government we are able to do much needed funding of scholarships. It is a known fact that tertiary education cost is on the increase worldwide and we are carefully looking at the amounts given for scholarships in the past.

The Education Council is also considering the heavy work load that many students are required to carry to complete their Bachelor Degree within a four-year period. It has now looked favourably at funding the cost of one summer session, which I think has been a good step, because forcing a student to carry a load beyond is their ability only causes a low grade point average and often frustrates the young student and causes him to fall behind, and many drop out.

It is important for the Education Council (under the able leadership of the Minister for Education and the Permanent Secretary) to keep this in mind as we look forward to a better educated community. As these young people become qualified we will be able to achieve greater success in the private sector and in the Civil Service. We hear much about upward mobility, and in order for them to compete with expats holding degrees, they need to be equipped with that tool also.

I feel that, although often times decisions do not meet the approval of everybody, every decision taken, is taken with the best interest of education and the student's benefit in mind.

I will now move on to Planning. The Cayman Islands being a young country needs close scrutiny by Planning. The Planning Department serves a very important part of our development. Unless we control our development and it is done in a proper manner, we could have a very disastrous situation in the years to come. We have heard much about the consequences of dredging in this House during this meeting of the Legislative Assembly, both in the North Sound and in mining on land.

The Central Planning Authority having control of development and the granting of permission to develop on Grand Cayman and the Development Control Board, which controls development in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, are two very important statutory boards and they are both doing a good job.

I would like to speak on the need for additional space for the Development Control Board and the Planning Assistant stationed on Cayman Brac. Yesterday I stated that the need for additional space in the Government Administration Building in Cayman Brac is crucial. The Planning Assistant has to use a conference room in Cayman Brac as he has no other office space assigned for Planning. It is my hope that the need for space for this important department and others will be addressed.

Cayman Airways: This is a very important part of the Cayman Islands' infrastructural development. I think we must realise that it is the connecting link between and within the Cayman Islands. I think that those of us living away from Grand Cayman appreciate Cayman Airways even more than those on Grand Cayman because they can go to the airport here and choose from many international carriers. They all have schedules around the same time and they do not have to wait. Cayman Airways is the only choice for international travel from the Brac and Little Cayman. Thanks to Island Air we do have that service, but that has been done with the blessing of Cayman Airways and it is absolutely necessary for the inter-island connection.

I am proud when I fly Cayman Airways and see that most of the crew in the cockpit are very competent Caymanians. I feel very safe flying under their command. It is gratifying that as we approach this election we will not have to be bombarded with Cayman Airways as the political football. It is now stabilised and I am very grateful to the Hon. Minister for Education and Planning for his leadership, to the Board of Directors of Cayman Airways and to the staff for they are a dedicated group of individuals doing a good job.

I now move on to the Department of Agriculture. I have had the opportunity of seeing agriculture develop in Grand Cayman over a long period of time - long before I became involved in politics. I served these islands before air service on a little freight and passenger vessel bringing foodstuff and passengers between the three islands, between Jamaica/Cayman Islands and Tampa/Cayman Islands. It is hard for me to realise how much and how fast these islands have developed.

Often we are an ungrateful people; we speak of this and that which should have been done. Unfortunately, it is said that hindsight is 20/20, but I am grateful to those who have come before us and who made a foundation and preserved Parliamentary Democracy so that I can stand here today and say what I feel.

The Minister for Agriculture, being a farmer at heart and for most of his adult life, is very qualified to head this Ministry. As I go over the islands and see the farms, the different fruits, I am very grateful that we are taking preventive measures in halting the importation of products that might bring damaging insects and other things that would damage our products which are grown here in the Cayman Islands.

The Agricultural Show is certainly a credit. It is something that we can all be proud of and it shows us that with some hard work and determination, products and farm animals of the highest quality can be produced here in the Cayman Islands.

I look forward to attending the Agricultural Show whenever I can because it certainly makes it obvious that we are progressing. I would like to call upon the people of Cayman Brac to give serious consideration to the establishment of a mini-Agricultural Show on Ash Wednesday. Having a much smaller population and not being blessed with arable land of the quality of Grand Cayman, it would be nowhere near the show that you have here, but at least it would show that we are making progress. I know that this year there were yams and other products at the show which were grown in Cayman Brac. If they can make the show in Grand Cayman, they certainly could be shown in Cayman Brac as well. I would like to plant that seed in the people's minds and see if next year we could put something together.

Land and Survey: Had this Department not been established and Cadastral Survey been carried out many years ago, I do not think we would have seen the development that we are seeing today. It is really interesting and educational to go into the Lands and Survey Department and see the modern equipment that they have available today. Much progress has been made and I congratulate that department.

Also, in the telecommunication, the introduction of the 9-1-1 Emergency number will certainly be a great step forward here in Grand Cayman. Often I watch a programme on television which shows the benefit of such a service. Very often you call one number and still have to call another; but this will be a number that will get you the kind of service you need.

I note with interest the construction of the new Telecommunication Tower on the Brac. I am told that once that is completed it will improve the Government's telecommunication system and make it more operable with Grand Cayman. I am asking again that consideration be given to installing the tower which is being removed in Cayman Brac in Little Cayman which would put that island in the main telecommunication system.

The Post Office: Vast improvements have been made in our Post Office. We all admit that additional space is needed, but, certainly, we can see great strides being made during the present Minister's term in office. From the time I came into this House, building a new post office and expansion has been talked about, but many obstacles have been in the way - one mostly being financial constraints. I feel that if we can wait a little longer that too will become very modern.

The Department of the Environment: I think the passing of the Marine Conservation Laws was a very bold step. It was not popular at the time it was passed. Much opposition was voiced against it. But I think that anyone who will speak their mind fairly will say that it has certainly been a great advancement in the development of our Marine Park system.

Thirty years ago the Mosquito Research and Control unit was put into operation and anyone who is old enough to remember beyond that period knows how necessary it is, and how much our life-style has been transformed by the introduction and continued development of the Mosquito Research and Control Unit.

I am glad to see that there will be events scheduled to commemorate the anniversary of these important milestones. I note again with interest that property for the sanitary landfill on Cayman Brac will be purchased. The sanitary landfill will be re-located, I am told, to the Bluff from out of a wetland area where it has been for many years. I look forward to seeing this become a reality.

We also have in place a controlled separation of toxic waste. We now have some place to dispose of old batteries which contain a considerable amount of lead. We all hear of the harmful effects lead poisoning can cause to our health. So it is my hope that regular shipments of these used batteries and other items which cannot be disposed of in a sanitary landfill in Cayman Brac will be transported here where they can actually be disposed of in a proper manner with the facilities that you have here in Grand Cayman.

I now wish to briefly speak on the Public Works Department. The Public Works Department has much responsibility in the construction and maintenance of roads, buildings, etc. I would like to see things done faster from time to time, and maybe my idea of how it should be done is different, but I am not charged with the responsibility for that and I do not have the expertise. Therefore, I am grateful that we are seeing road improvements with safety aspects in mind and the maintenance of our buildings is far improved over what it was in past decades. Construction costs are extremely high. So, if they can be maintained and not have to be replaced after a short life, the country will be much better off.

The Public Works Department has a major task. While I am speaking on that, the Honourable Minister spoke about a national road plan in answer to a Parliamentary Question a few days ago. I would like to see something similar to this looked into in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I think just seeking a certain amount of money to provide employment each year for our people is a must. But it is possibly not getting the very best results. I am as guilty as anyone else of standing here and pleading the cause of my people, how we need employment because the private sector cannot employ them, but I really feel that if we sat down and decided where roads would be built on the bluff and what road improvements would be made over the next 10 to 15 years on the two islands, we would have some idea of how we could seek financing to do it and not keep looking each year for enough money just to create employment.

During my lifetime I would like to see Cayman Brac and Little Cayman get more in the mainstream of development because unless we do more to bring it into the mainstream, it is a dying society.

The Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture: This Ministry has great responsibility. It must look after the social needs of our people. I think great strides have been made in providing financial assistance to many of our people. I could talk for days on what is being accomplished, and on what I would like to see. I would like to congratulate the Hon. Minister, for he has certainly gone out of his way to make this a full time active Ministry.

The Social Services Department has a big task and I support his decision to take some of their responsibilities - if he knows they can be handled more efficiently at that level. They have to be looking constantly at what the poor, less fortunate people need and evaluate through means tests and whatever else is necessary, and the financial assistance, and what have you... but there is so much more to that than they can be expected to accomplish, even in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

I have supported him in the introduction of the church sponsored youth programmes, the after school programmes, which I see serving a great need. I think they will have great beneficial social effects within both islands as so many young children, because their parents both have to work, do not have supervision after school. I visit these after school programmes frequently, and I see the benefit. I talk with the children, though many of them are very young, and they are all enjoying it. They have a purpose and some place to go when they leave school.

We are looking at the National Pension Law and I look forward to discussing this at length and the implementation of a pension plan. Had a plan been established when the financial centre came into existence, the senior citizens of today would have security. Unfortunately, it was not looked after. There is nothing we can do today except try to start it now.

We must all realise that someone over 45 years of age will not be able to benefit directly from a pension plan because they will not have contributed enough at their normal retirement age. So the quicker we can get this established, the better it will be for the future welfare of the people of the Cayman Islands.

I have had many discussions with the Minister regarding sports development. I was involved in sports during my college and high school years. I know the benefit, and I am very supportive of what is being done. We must all realise that nothing can be done without money. What costs a certain amount today will cost more next year. Putting it off is not going to make it cheaper, it is just going to deprive the people of these islands of these facilities, and cost the Treasury more money if it is delayed.

I feel that the physical education and sports curriculum within our schools has helped immensely, but without facilities on which to participate and further excel we will never go anywhere. The establishment of a sports complex here in George Town and in West Bay and plans for other districts is worthwhile and I support them.

I could not stand in this House and not talk on the Housing Development Programme that has been installed with a Government guarantee. I have seen the benefit to people who have been wanting to build their own home for many years. Many of them do not particularly want to spend a lot of money on a home, but construction costs are extremely high and it takes a lot of money to complete a home. Over many years the financial institutions have not been prepared to loan sufficient money based on the salary that most of these people earn. With the Government guarantee of 35%, many young people have been able to get homes. I have checked on several in my district and they are making their payments and enjoying their homes.

Also, the availability of funds on the Student Loan Programme which is guaranteed by Government is now enabling many of our students who were not able to get scholarships to borrow money at a reasonable rate. With the Government guarantee, the banks are prepared to lend money over the duration of their studies. This too will help to further the educational uplifting of our people.

It is my understanding that the Ministry is also examining an affordable housing system for people of a lower income bracket than what is being handled by the Government Guaranteed Housing Scheme. The mortgage payments are hoped to be between $300 and $400 per month. This is an amount that I think most of the people who need homes (with both members of the family working) will be able to handle without too much problem. Certainly, it will help to improve living conditions within the three islands.

The Water Authority has done much to contribute to the health of our people. We had the Water Company here in Grand Cayman for many years but I do not think that private company was prepared to expend the quantity of money necessary to make potable water available to the entire island as the Government has done through the Water Authority. It is money invested in the health and welfare of our people. Hopefully, as time goes on it will be an investment for the Treasury of this country.

In Cayman Brac we recently saw the improvement in the quality of water. It is my understanding that the Government now owns the reverse osmosis plant and is operating it under the Water Authority and that the quality is much improved. This is much appreciated. We still have a very limited piped water system, and I would ask if something can be done to gradually (on an annual basis) increase the piped water system which would increase the sale of water and reduce the expenditure. If the Cayman Brac facility were under the Water Authority it would be a great help to the people of Cayman Brac, and would also eliminate the expenditure to Government over a period of time.

Before leaving that Ministry, I would like to congratulate the Government on the introduction of the veterans' benefits. Over many years I have seen the need for this. We are a small country, but we had many people who risked their lives - some making the supreme sacrifice leaving widowed spouses who in some instances need financial assistance. I feel with the Government being in a financial position to fund it, it is a good gesture and I congratulate the Government because every previous Government had the opportunity to bring it forward, but did not. So the Government of the day must get credit for the veterans' pensions.

I have had many people in my district ask that I convey on their behalf to Government their great appreciation for the benefits they are receiving and to wish God's richest blessing to all who made it possible.

District Administration: I shall try to be as brief as possible. I, like His Excellency the Governor, am concerned about the imbalance between the level of economic activity on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman as compared with that on Grand Cayman. I am grateful that His Excellency saw fit to bring the Executive Council to Cayman Brac for the first time in 25 years. I am encouraged that he says there will be other meetings during 1996.

We realise that we cannot force an investor to invest his money where we want him to; he will invest where there is the most return on his money. I feel that with further infrastructural development on the Brac we can be better prepared to meet the investors' needs.

Cayman Brac has a unique characteristic in the Cayman Islands inasmuch as it has the bluff, which is a limestone rock running the full length of this island like a wedge from the sea level at the western end to some 140 ft. elevation at the eastern end. This has the ability to attract cable cars, rock climbers, and there are many things which could be developed through the characteristics of the bluff which cannot be done in Grand Cayman, nor in Little Cayman. I feel that if this national road plan were to incorporate Cayman Brac and Little Cayman it would show where the roads would go and it could be further developed to provide infrastructural needs for investors.

There are large tracks of land on the bluff which could be used for hotels or what have you, but you have to show the people how they can get a return on their money before they are going to invest it.

Much has been said about trying to turn the economy of Cayman Brac around. But I honestly feel that we must look to take on projects which we can control. It is my belief that if the national airline would seriously consider the establishment of a departure at 6.00 PM on Friday to the Brac, and I realise that this would delay the Jamaica flight by about one hour, but if this were done, it would enable many people living on Grand Cayman (both of Cayman Brac origin and others) to visit the Brac for the weekend. This would create a boost to the economy. It would not be that costly to the airline as it is my belief that the additional passengers would pay for the trip.

We find that the Saturday afternoon flight has helped. I know it is a contention of management within Cayman Airways that the flight goes to Miami without a full load. For most of my life I have been involved with transportation. Very often we had to go from Trinidad to Puerto Cortes Honduras with an empty ship in order to reposition ourselves for a load of lumber for Jamaica. That is what is happening to our national airline. It has to get the aircraft to Miami for the night flight. Whether it flies empty or full it cannot meet its schedule in Miami unless the plane returns to Miami. So the actual charge of not having a full load cannot be placed on the inter-island service. It is a matter of repositioning the aircraft, and that is a must. If we check the records here, many of the flights returning to position the aircraft at any of the gateways are not payable. I feel that we must concentrate on our domestic tourism. We see a great benefit from the people of Grand Cayman coming to the Brac. They seem to enjoy themselves, they spend quite freely. Some have bought land and built homes. We have sort of a captive audience that we could actually cash in on immediately. We would not have to do a lot of promotion; we just have to put the flight in space. But when someone has to wait at the airport... sometimes I arrive home on Friday after midnight (at 12.15 or 12.30 AM). That is not conducive to someone's spending an enjoyable weekend. They will not travel at that late hour.

I realise that this would still necessitate the last flight on Friday night as it is imperative to have the aircraft in place for the Saturday morning departure which averages well over 100 persons. I ask that consideration be given to this as it certainly, in my opinion, could be one of the cheapest things that the Government could do to help improve our economy.

I also ask that every effort be made to assist us in getting the rest home operational. It is my understanding that the money is available. The need is there. There are many people, some who can help to pay their own way, other who will have to be helped. But in addition to providing the care that is so desperately needed by the people of those two islands, it will create some 14 additional jobs. Fourteen jobs in a small work force like we have in Cayman Brac, is a big item. We do not need millions of dollars to turn our economy around. We need to start small and grow.

I am encouraged that the Ministry of Tourism is pursuing the possibility of sinking a ship for a dive site off Cayman Brac. I feel that this is going to be extremely beneficial once it has been inhabited by marine life. It will be a great attraction.

We have found that tourism in Cayman Brac has reduced since larger facilities have been built on Grand Cayman. The main attraction has been Bloody Bay wall. Cayman Brac desperately needs some new attraction to bring tourists back to Cayman Brac.

Some private individuals have put forth the idea of creating a marina in the pond adjacent to the airport runway at the western end of Cayman Brac. This would have very beneficial effects. It would provide fill for infrastructural needs. It would provide a safe harbour for boats and eliminate some of the unpleasant odours emanating from those wetland areas. It would also create construction development. I do not believe that a channel dredged on the western end of the island with proper breakwaters on each side would be detrimental. I do not have the expertise to say this, but seeing how protected the western end of Grand Cayman is (except in nor'westers), I believe that the western end of Cayman Brac would be the proper place for an inlet channel.

We also have a problem at Saltwater Pond and Fence Pond which could be drained through this same project which would solve the unpleasant situation there.

While in Cayman Brac, His Excellency the Governor spoke on the possibility of Government locating some of its services on Cayman Brac. I have not had the opportunity to discuss this further with him, but any job that could be created on Cayman Brac would certainly be very beneficial. As I said before, we have a small population, and small numbers add up.

The people of Cayman Brac are proud people. We believe in self help. We do not want to beg. But we do not want to see what we have called home all of our lives further deteriorate. As the older people pass away, we go down and down. It is my understanding that there are slightly over 1,000 people now living on Cayman Brac. I can remember when there were over 2,000. When the last census was taken it was 1,600. This certainly shows that we are on the downward track. The cost of living is high. People cannot live if they do not earn; if we do not have employment on that island they have to leave. Right now, as students graduate from high school it is almost like giving them a one-way ticket because they have to go somewhere else (either Grand Cayman or further afield) to further their education and seek employment. If they do qualify, there are no jobs available on the Brac. They can only return to visit.

We cannot continue in this state. We cannot do it alone. We are appreciative for all that the present Government has done. I do not wish to be misunderstood; we have had excellent support from the elected Executive Council over their term of office. We had the support of the previous Governments in financial assistance. Unfortunately, as Government has other expenditures, we realise that sooner or later this money will have to be reduced and we want to be in a position to where we can earn our own way.

I would also like to suggest that a sports complex on the Brac would encourage domestic tourism. If we had facilities for soccer, cricket, basketball and other sports, practise games could be held in the Brac which would bring the teams, their coaches and supporters to the Brac. These people might enjoy themselves and then return. That would enable the use of the island to excel its talent and be better prepared. While the sports complex is being constructed it would provide employment. All in all, we would reap benefits from the day it commences. It would not just be during the construction, but the life of the whole community would be invigorated by the introduction of sporting facilities within the Brac.

Very often groups want to come to the Brac, but there is no place for them to play. The Cayman Brac Cricket Team did exceptionally well last year, but all games had to be played in Grand Cayman. If there were facilities there, this would help us to get on with the development we so badly need.

As I come to my conclusion, I want to say that I am not a spreader of doom and gloom, but I do feel that it is my responsibility as a representative of my people to plead their cause in this hallowed hail.

With the private sector and Government working together, as His Excellency said, is the only way we can look forward to bettering our position. The Governor said: "The responsibilities of success do not only rest on the shoulders of government. We all have responsibilities. Twenty years ago a visitor wrote that these islands had 'a continuous tradition of forthright sturdy individualism together with habits of self discipline and self reliance born of sea faring.' The history of the islands is full of stories that reflect the independent nature of the people of Cayman. These were people who were strong and self reliant - and proud of it." I stand here today proud of the people of the Cayman Islands and with the help of all, we can make the Sister Islands the success they need to be, that they deserve to be and with God's help we shall prevail.

In conclusion, Madam Speaker, I thank you for your indulgence, and I thank honourable Members for listening. Finally, I would like to close with words from the Throne Speech, where His Excellency said: "I wish you God's Blessing in your deliberations and debates. And I pray that Almighty God in his mercy and wisdom will continue to bless and guide the people of these Islands and all who serve them."

Thank you, Madam Speaker, and God bless the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.20 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.52 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on the Throne Speech. The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is an honour and privilege for me to make my contribution to this Throne Speech, delivered by His Excellency the Governor, Mr. Owen. I would like to welcome Mr. Owen. I think he did an excellent job on his first Throne Speech. As we have seen him develop and administer this Government, I think these islands can be proud of what they have seen so far.

In his introductory remarks, he touched on some key and relevant points. I would like to briefly reinforce some of those. It is something that behooves all of us to remember, that is: "The responsibilities of success do not only rest on the shoulders of government. We all have responsibilities."

The time has passed when we as citizens of this country can continuously look to our neighbour to put into place the infrastructure needed to make us grow and continue in the enviable position which we are now in. This cannot be accomplished unless we put our hearts and souls into it. "In a nation state, government has a duty to the citizens. It has a duty to provide the services to maintain law and order, ensure care for all and offer education and training for the people. Teachers, nurses, police officers and other civil servants provide the services for the community." Too often we, as families and as parents and as adults, expect the unexpected from these providers. It is like sending our children to school and we expect the teachers to be there to baby-sit and do every little thing. It comes to a stage where the child needs correcting and we as parents are not there to give support to the teachers. The first thing we do is head for the Principal and try to seek revenge against them. We must, if we want to continue the stability we have in this country, enforce the discipline that is necessary at the school level. It must not start at the high school, middle school or primary school, we must accept that responsibility beginning at home with our own children.

The Police Force: I must say that since the arrival of our new Police Commissioner, Mr. Grey, a great job is being done. There is good leadership, good programmes are being put forward and this is a new and exciting approach which we have not been used to for a long time. The district presence of police officers is very important. It was a good idea as it gives a sense of safety and satisfaction to our people when we see the police in our midst. We know that if anything develops they are there to assist us.

We must continue to encourage our own Caymanians in this field. I think a great step has been taken toward that end when we agreed to bring certain areas of the police force up to a respectable standard of pay. This is the commitment of this Government and wherever possible we will continue to encourage and assist these people who we depend upon so much in this country.

The Royal Cayman Islands Police will strive to improve and develop community relations in order to enhance public confidence. A school liaison programme will be introduced in 1996. This is also a great idea. Having the police go into the schools makes the students realise from an early age the importance of law enforcement and having to obey and listen to corrections which may be made by senior persons.

I saw in the paper recently where they will be coming to my district of Bodden Town on the 2nd of April to share some of their ideas. I welcome this opportunity and I urge the people of Bodden Town to come out, get involved and listen to the ideas being put forward by the police.

The Prison Department continues to develop. It is pleasing to see that a sentence planning programme for each prisoner will start shortly. This is aimed at improving their chances for a more positive future upon release, the objective being that all inmates will be given meaningful work. This is another sensible approach. It is very difficult for these inmates to come back into the real world if there is no preparation done for them. This is a good step forward.

Counselling (including drug counselling) will continue on a larger scale at the prison. I am proud of my Ministry's involvement in this, but I must say that we need more support in this area as on occasion we have drug abuse within the prison system. We must come to grips with this problem of drugs being available in the prison. There is no use in providing counselling if they are so stoned that they cannot comprehend what the counsellors are trying to help them overcome.

Recently, in the United Kingdom mandatory drug testing was advocated. It took a while for this to start over there, but I think that down the line this is something that we should consider here in the Cayman Islands.

In a report called 'Tackling Drugs Together', it was said that: "...the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act of 1994 introduced powers for prison officers to require prisoners to provide a sample of urine for drug testing purposes. The new rule is to be policed by a wide spread drug testing programme and acts both as a deterrent to those who wish to misuse drugs within prison and as a means of identifying those who may need assistance. Mandatory drug testing is one of a series of measures that will help to deter drug taking and enable prison managers to detect the prevalence of use in their establishments. Simultaneously, the Government is committed to providing cost effective treatment and rehabilitation services to drug misusers in prison as well as outside."

It was interesting to note in a recent issue of the Caymanian Compass, which carried an article entitled, "China winning anti-drug fight", that, "In Beijing [where the story originated] it was said: 'China has made progress in the past five years in combating illicit drug use and trafficking an official report said. Some 5,349 have been sentenced to death or life in prison in connection with some 125,000 drug-related cases between 1991 and September 1995', the newspaper People's Daily, reported."

This may seem to be a harsh approach, which I do not advocate this for the casual user. But we must put our foot down when it comes to the dealers, and send a message that we will no longer tolerate the ruination of this country by these people infesting our youngsters with this deadly drug.

It was a pleasure for me to accompany my colleagues to Cayman Brac earlier this year when we visited that island and, for the first time in 25 years, held a meeting of Executive Council. The next day we had an open meeting with the people of Cayman Brac and it was interesting to hear the many ideas they put forward. There is no doubt in my mind that the people of Cayman Brac, the industrious and resourceful people that they are, will bring that island back. We will need to give support, but once they know that we will give it, they will find a way to get it done. I look forward to working with them, along with the rest of this Government.

While we were over there, we visited Little Cayman and I am a bit perturbed about the fast development of that little island, and I hope that the necessary required standards will be put in place so that we do not have second and third class housing that, if we have a serious hurricane, will be wiped out.

The next subject I would like to touch on (as most people preceding me did) is the elections. It was a very significant election held on the 5th December last year. It resulted in the election of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, and as many people have said to me, who has brought a breath of fresh air to politics and to our district of Bodden Town.

Members of the Opposition have talked about the involvement of civil servants. But I stand here to say that we are blessed with the quality of civil servants we have. I would venture to say that they are the best trained, and probably the most dedicated Civil Service in the world, and they must not be denied their democratic right of expression. They know capable and competent representation when they see it. Freedom of expression so frequently touted by the Members of the Opposition must be upheld.

These very hard-working and dedicated Civil Servants work tirelessly on community projects day and night and in their spare time. I know this as a matter of fact. It has come to the stage where the public expects them to go above and beyond the call of duty: yet, some people will stoop as low as to complain to the Chief Secretary to deprive our dedicated civil servants of their democratic right of expression which probably prompted a circular last year from the Hon. Chief Secretary's office.

For the record of this Honourable House and for the public to know to what extent civil servants can be involved, I would like to read into the record and then table this circular, with your permission, Madam Speaker.

It is dated 25th October, and the subject was: Political Activities of Civil Servants: "The attention of all Civil Servants is drawn to the General Orders Chapter 9 - Conduct of Officers, (paragraph 11 and 17), which deals with political activities at all times, but particularly during an Election period. It follows from the above that officers should not:- (a) be actively involved in a candidate's public meetings by speaking, being on the platform, distributing literature, or other activity that promotes a particular candidate, or slate of candidates; (b) write letters to the press supporting a particular candidate, or giving views on political matters; (c) canvass or collect funds in support of a political candidate; (d) hold office in or take part in the management of any political organisation; (e) place bumper stickers on personal vehicles supporting a particular candidate or group of candidates; (f) support candidates by radio broadcasts."

You should also refrain from responding to "side-walk surveys giving your views to reporters on candidates or political issues." He did go on to urge the people of the district to get involved and exercise their democratic right of expression and to vote.

In closing on this subject, all I have to say is that if these would-be leaders were doing the right thing, they would not have to worry about how the Civil Service or the rest of this country voted. It has been said that it was a paint can election. But I certainly hope that in this next election it will not be another rum and coke election either.

Going on to the Portfolio of Finance and Development. The continued outstanding performance of the Customs Department which leads the way in revenue contribution..., we must continue to give these officers within the Customs Department tremendous support and more assistance. We must continue to provide them with the canine unit. This unit saves them a lot of work and it is easily done with the canine unit. I urge legislators to support any requisitions that may be brought forward from this department.

Moving on to Tourism (which I do not have to say too much on) how can we argue with success? We know this degree of success was not totally dependant on the Government which was in place in 1992. As a matter of fact there was little growth when we took over in 1992. Since then we have grown from strength to strength. In the last figures released, we were approaching 14% for the first month of the year. I know that the approach being used by this Honourable Minister to develop Tourism for this country is not necessarily based on the arrival numbers. For those of us who had the opportunity to attend the meetings held by the Implementing Team know that this was not one of the areas emphasised. One of them said that instead of bringing in 20 people to spend a certain amount of money, we could bring in half that amount who were of a higher quality and in a better financial position. This is the areas we are looking at and developing without putting too much more burden on the infrastructure of this country.

Many questions have been asked in regard to the duty paid by the new Westin Hotel. If we remember in those days when construction was at a stand still, this Government, led by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, approached that company and encouraged them to come here. Yes, we sacrificed a few dollars in collected duty, but what did the building of that hotel trigger in these islands? What has been the result? It has triggered the largest construction boom we have ever seen in the history of these islands. That is what has happened. It was a sacrifice, but it was something that we needed to get this country moving again. Many of us will remember the extremely slow pace of things in 1992.

I now move to my Ministry of Health Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation. As this House (and most of the public) knows in December (1995) we tabled the Health Insurance Bill, relating to the provision of Health Insurance. We have been sharing the ideas of this law with the public. I have addressed the Chamber of Commerce, the Life Underwriters Association and the Cayman Merchants Association. The support is basically there and many of them said that we must go forward and bring it as quickly as possible. My philosophy is that we must look at this carefully and get complete input from the public to get what is best for these islands. I will afford the public every opportunity to give their input on the plan.

There was a letter in the paper a few weeks ago talking about Caymanians having to pay up to 20% of the bill. This has not yet been put into law, but the professionals and those of us who deal with insurance know that if something is not put in place the premiums will absolutely skyrocket when someone wants an aspirin or a Panadol and it has to be charged back to the insurance company. Just the administrative paper work alone would be humongous. This is the reason for putting this forward.

Most of us who are presently covered by insurance will see that we are required to pay a certain percentage before the insurance payments kick in. I am amazed to still be hearing about the cost of the hospital in this Honourable House. I do not know what I need to do to make the cost clearer. With your permission, I would like to read from a pamphlet which I circulated last year in regards to the 'Cayman Islands Health Services Complex; YOUR NEW HOSPITAL - THE FACTS' In this very same letter which spoke about the health insurance, the person writing the letter said it was going to be a $16 million hospital. For the record, I would like to read what I put out to the public regarding this... and this has not been challenged by anyone. If it was not so, I am sure that Mr. Miller and his supporters would have had something in the paper.

I stated: "You have to add on to the $16 million hospital another $1,245,693 for professional fees, plus another $10,631,000 which was the cost under the 1992 Master Plan to fix up the George Town Hospital total care of facilities which the Dr. Hortor lacked. That is a total of $27,876,693 for the two sites."

This Government's hospital will be on one central and easily accessible site. I can assure this Honourable House that the total cost of the new hospital will still be below the $27 million that was the total put forward by Mr. Ezzard Miller back in 1992, despite inflation in the cost of doing business over the last four years which, by today's figures, would probably be up to $30 million.

I am happy to say that on the 15th of this month the Central Tenders Committee will award a contract for this Hospital and within days actual work will continue - because since this Ministry took over in 1994 we have built the Sewerage Plant, the Materials Management Plant which will be handed over at the end of March.

They talked about a 10,000 square foot warehouse, that was not my idea put forward, this is what has been put forward by the people who work in our Health Services. This is what they felt we needed. Also put forward was that in the event of a serious catastrophe we would have space to take care of people. It is a well built building and it will house all of our medicine and supplies without our having to truck two or three miles up. In the event of a serious hurricane we will have easy access to desperately needed medication. This is one of the reasons why this Materials Management Building has been built. Not only that, it will save this Government's coffers approximately $60,000 a year which has been paid in rent for someone else's building.

People ask why we are spending this amount of money on health services. I would like to share some statistics from Pan American Health Organisation and World Health Organisation with this Honourable House on America's Health Statistics. In this report it is said: "The Cayman Islands' Gross National Product per capita was $26,200." We actually have the highest per capita income in all of the Americas. But total health expenditure as a percentage of the Gross Domestic Product we rank 38th of the 48 countries in the Americas in the amount of GDP that we spend on health services. Is it any wonder that this country now finds itself in the crisis we are now experiencing? We must accept the responsibility because without proper spending on health we cannot develop a healthy nation.

Just last week the people from CAREC were here sharing the importance of development of better health care for the entire Caribbean with our financial industry.

Earlier in this sitting, a question was asked with regard to AIDS and if an individual deliberately infected another person. My extremely dedicated staff have the answer ready for me, and I will read from the Penal Code, Law 12 of 1975, under section 154: "Negligent act likely to spread disease: Whoever unlawfully or negligently does any act which he knows or has reason to believe to be likely to spread the infection of any disease dangerous to health is guilty of an offence." So, this has been addressed and it is in there.

To continue in this vein, in our Health Care Strategic Plan, strategy number 8, Plan number 7 also goes on to expand on this. In the area of disease control it says: "(1) We must review the present laws; 2) Amend present laws to make it a criminal offence to knowingly transmit or engage in any activity that will transmit a life threatening disease to another person, i.e., HIV; Develop protocol for the disclosure of health status of persons with life threatening diseases for those most at risk, i.e., spouse or significant other; Implement national multimedia awareness programme to educate the public regarding the legal implica- tions of knowingly transmitting life threatening communicable diseases. Enact legislation to require HIV testing at Cayman Islands Government laboratory for all applicants for work permits and residency purposes. Require HIV and HEP testing for all marriage licences."

A number of people have looked down on our approach of strategic planning, but these are strategies put forward by several dozen of our own Caymanians and people working within the health services as to how we, as Caymanians can address this problem without having to go overseas to bring in this expertise. I would venture to say that there is not too much more that we could think about as professionals than what we are now doing through our Health Strategic Plan.

At this time I would like to share a few excerpts from the 1995 Annual Report on Vital Health Statistics. Life expectancy at birth in the Cayman Islands is now 77 years. There were 485 live births and three neonatal deaths in 1995. Interestingly enough, the major causes of death were diseases of the circulatory system, mainly heart diseases and malignant neoplasms.

I would like to take this opportunity to urge all Caymanians to become more aware of proper and regular exercise in order to help us with heart disease. At the George Town Hospital, the process of tendering and purchasing supplies was computerised. A medical journal data base on CD ROM was made available to clinical staff. Staff training on computer applications continued. Plans were finalised and materials and equipment ordered for the implementation of a fibre optic network to link the Laboratory, Radiology, Dental, Public Health and Administration Buildings to the main computer system. This network will be the foundation for computer expansion into the new Health Services Complex Buildings.

All on-call doctors and other senior staff have their own radio and pagers. A doctor is available on the compound of the hospital around the clock. Security measures at the hospital were strengthened to prevent all unauthorised access. Hospital admissions totalled 3,622 with a 2% increase, and out patient and casualty visits showed a 4.3% increase, rising to 48,285 in 1995.

The Medical Records Department of the George Town Hospital operates two shifts per day over the hours of 7.30 AM to 11.00 PM. There are over 50,000 records registered in the computer system, with the creation of approximately 500 to 600 new dockets per month. Births and deaths documentation is done in liaison with the Registrar General's Office.

The Laboratory Services is a very special area of the Hospital and I would venture to say that it is headed by a world class pathologist. He has done a tremendous job there in organising the services that we now provide. Services are provided in blood banking, haematology, clinical chemistry, medical microbiology, serology, histopathology and cytopathology.

Autopsy services for forensic and hospital purposes are provided to establish the cause of death. The laboratory service continued to be busy carrying out 205,820 tests, and increase of 14%.

The Laboratory is open until 11.00 PM weekdays in order to reduce time for emergency calls and to complete any remaining tests on specimens collected during the day. The Laboratory has introduced a number of new tests to reduce cost of overseas referrals and turnaround time for the results. No overseas referrals are required in the areas of histopathology and cytopathology due to the full development and utilisation of these services.

A common complaint at the hospital is the time that we have to wait on a prescription. After looking at some of these numbers I can better appreciate the time it takes to get a prescription filled. The Pharmacy services are provided by two pharmacists with the support of five pharmacy technicians. The Department is open from 9.00 AM until 6.00 PM weekdays, and from 9.00 AM to 2.00 PM on Saturdays. Thirty new pharmaceuticals in the area of dermatology and oncology were added. Prescriptions dispensed in 1995 totalled 99,006, an increase of 6% over 1994 which comes out to an average of 307 prescriptions per day. This is one of the reasons why we have to wait an hour, or half an hour sometimes; there are so many prescriptions being filled there.

The extended care unit, the wing of the Pines Retirement Home, is an integral part of the Hospital. As such, it is not limited to geriatric cases, but is designed to serve persons of any age requiring intermediate or long-term nursing care. Patients in this category in the Acute Care Wards only are transferred to the unit.

In its 10th year of operation, the unit is fully utilised, thus reducing overcrowding and unnecessary utilisation of Acute Care beds.

Mental Health Services: A comprehensive community based mental health service system is in place in the Cayman Islands. One hundred and twenty three patients in Grand Cayman, and six patients in Cayman Brac were admitted to the Hospital for psychiatric management. A total of 1,723 outpatient visits were made to the psychiatrist and the psychiatric social worker.

The community mental health nurses visited the districts daily including domiciliary visits, the prison, geriatric homes, day care centres and district health centres. This year, with the support and expertise of the Pan American Health Organisation, we will be doing a comprehensive review of our mental health services. I look forward to this as we are now in the final stages of our hospital project and these will be incorporated in that.

Under Dental Services: In October of last year a nationwide oral health survey under the sponsorship of the Pan American Health Organisation was undertaken by the Dental Department. Results of the survey will help to set dental policies for the next decade. Plans are currently underway to strengthen dental services to some of the currently underserved groups, such as, the Joyce Hylton Centre and home bound individuals in the districts.

Prison Health Service: The clinic service operated by a registered nurse under the direction of a medical health officer ensures that the inmates are provided outpatient services as needed. Regular visits are made to the prison clinic by the district medical officer, the psychiatrist and a dental officer.

Public Health Service: Health advice to international travellers is provided on a regular basis and necessary vaccines are administered. Ante-natal, post-natal and family planning services are available to all Caymanians free of charge. Health assessments, including vision and hearing, are mandatory for admission to school. School nurses ensure that all children are fully immunised. Defaulters are followed up in the school system.

District Health Centres: There were 33,115 patient visits, an increase of 8.9% to district health centres in Grand Cayman. Visits to the Public Health Centre at Faith Hospital were 422. There were 8,163 home visits by the public health nurses in 1995, an increase of 2% over 1994. Immunisation coverage continued to be highly satisfactory, exceeding the targets set by the World Health Organisation. Figures for the year were 91% for polio, 91% for DPT, 96% for MMR and 70% for BCG, 90% for haemophilia, influenza B vaccine. Immunisation is provided free of charge by Government in order to ensure a continued high rate of coverage. The Cayman Islands has adopted the two-dose schedule of MMR vaccines as approved by the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Georgia.

Influenza vaccine continued to be offered to high risk groups and other interested individuals. Hepatitis B vaccination was offered to all healthcare workers.

The Genetics Programme: The Genetic Coordinator's capabilities were strengthened with her attachment to Mailman Centre and the Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami, and the Sickle Cell Clinic in Jamaica. Genetic counselling continued to support groups in relation to genetic disorders to assist the community in supporting each other were initiated. Testing for Cerebella Ataxia gene localisation was achieved with the assistance of the Mailman Centre.

I must say that I am pleased that since this Government has taken over we have activated this which has laid dormant since the 1980s. I am very pleased that we are now making progress in this. Later on this year, I hope to share some of the breakthroughs that we have made in this area by working closely with these overseas foundations.

The Nutrition Programme: Plans for evaluation of the menus in schools were completed. Nutrition counselling clinics at the hospital and the district health centres were conducted. The Nutritionist is also responsible for advising the dietary services at the Faith Hospital and providing nutritional counselling to the residents of the Sister Islands... (I beg your pardon, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman).

Many questions have been asked about the sexually transmitted disease programme and I am proud to say that under the Medical Officer of Health this has been very closely watched. The incidence of communicable diseases was very low in 1995. The incidence of sexually transmitted diseases continued to be a concern and education and surveillance activities were intensified. Since the first diagnosed case, a total of 16 AIDS deaths were recorded as at 31st December, 1995.

There were three AIDS cases and 18 HIV positive persons in the Cayman Islands. This Government remains committed to strengthening the AIDS control programme through intensified educational activities. To this effect, a public health nurse was appointed coordinator for sexually transmitted diseases.

The major achievement in the programme during the year has been completion of blood handling education sessions in all schools, both government and private, who desire to have them. A work shop for teachers on HIV and AIDS was conducted to enhance their knowledge and to facilitate assistance to the students. The workshop was attended by 200 teachers.

The Speaker: Would this be an opportune time to take the luncheon suspension?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.41 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation continuing.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the break I was addressing certain areas within the hospital and some of the accomplishments that we have been able to achieve in 1995. We will continue in that vein.

The international agencies through which the Health Services Department works, PAHO and WHO, continue to lend their support to primary health care and the development of a local health services. PAHO very ably assisted with the oral health survey conducted in October 1995, with the support from the World Health Organisation collaborating centre in Texas. Also, we are grateful for the help provided by the Dental Department of Jamaica.

PAHO offered fellowships in the management of sexually transmitted diseases and genetics programmes. The Caribbean Epidemiological Centre (CARE(s) provided technical assistance for laboratory service. This was very helpful to us when we thought there was an outbreak of dengue fever in the islands. We are grateful for the help offered by CAREC and the quick response time in which they were able to deal with our samples which were sent overseas.

The Caribbean Food and Nutrition Institute continued to support various local nutritional programmes. Training in the Health Services Department: Training continued to place emphasis on continuing education for all staff. In-service credits of 10 hours annually are mandatory for all staff in the nursing service and staff continue to benefit from regular updates in CPR, IV Therapy and EKG Interpretation. A number of ongoing programmes are in place in Cayman Brac.

The summer employment programme offered to students interested in careers in the health services continued to be well supported by students and Government. Students have shown interest in many sections of the health services department. The nursing service has been greatly appreciative of this programme which continued to make a significant contribution to the recruitment of local people to the profession.

Three staff members, the statistical officer, the medical records supervisor and the information systems technician attended a PAHO sponsored workshop on the implementation of the 10th revision of the International Classification of Diseases, better known as ICD-9, in Kingston Jamaica.

Clerical Officer commenced studies in Medical Records and statistics at C.A.S.T. in Kingston, Jamaica, in September. The course is funded by PAHO and continues through August of this year. Local workshops continue to be encouraged and we've been well supported by all healthcare workers. In addition, Medical, Nursing and other staff attended overseas workshops, conferences, seminars and training programmes on a variety of subjects. Greatly contributing to this ongoing training is the development of a structured continuing medical education programme in association with the Baptist Hospital. This features periodic visits by specialists from that institution and attachment of medical and nursing staff to Baptist Hospital in Miami.

As we have heard some Members of the Opposition and the public in general talk about how terrible things are at the hospital, literally of our health services being a white elephant, I say that this Health Services Department is a very functional entity within Government operated by very dedicated and hard working professionals.

I would venture to say that if the previous Member, Mr. Miller, had listened to these people we would now have in place a good hospital located in the right place.

Another area I want to touch on in my Ministry is Cayman Counselling Centre. In 1995 the Cayman Counselling Centre experienced growth in physical accommodation as well as in the scope of its programmes. In March of last year, Cayman Counselling Centre relocated to Paddington Place which provided more privacy and increased space.

An additional three counsellors were employed to assist in the implementation of expanded services. Some of these services were as follows: an adolescent programme serving the school system and the Cayman Islands Marine Institute. I have been getting some very positive feedback from both CIMI and the schools in regard to our drug counsellors being made available to assist these troubled children in times of need. We cannot possibly put a price on having these services available to our young children.

A full day programme of group and individual therapy for inmates at the Northward Prison; a training programme for student nurses at the George Town Hospital to give them an overview on the subject of Substance Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation and its relationship to the nursing profession.

One of the highlights of 1995 was the opening of the full time out-patient programme in Cayman Brac. It is noteworthy that the counselling centre was able to be staffed by a fully qualified counsellor who is a native Cayman Bracker.

Administratively, Cayman Counselling Center developed and documented policies and procedures which included its own internal drug policy. Training for staff was emphasised and three staff members attended the Florida School of Substance Abuse to fulfill their continuing education requirements.

As an off-shoot of Cayman Counselling Centre, the next area I want to touch on is the Breakers Rehab Facility. As I have said before in this Honourable House, before any major policy decision was set in place, I made it my business to go overseas to visit the Hanley Hazelden Rehab Centre in West Palm Beach. I had to have it in my mind that a facility like this being placed in a small district like Breakers would have no adverse effect on the people there.

I was convinced of that as I saw in close proximity to the Rehab Centre, homes and interaction very close to businesses and hospitals. After speaking with the management there, I felt that there were literally no problems. As a matter of fact, I was told by the manager that never once in their 10 years of operation did they have any incidence of violence.

I have been sharing this with the people and I have undertaken to go there with a couple of our own Caymanian Counsellors. They shared with some of the residents of the area and gave testimonials. I was very touched by our young Caymanians who have been able, thank God, to lick the problem. One of their cries was that if only when they were experiencing these difficulties they would have had someone to turn to, they may not have sunk to the depths they did.

This is what I am now focused on to see that it is brought to fruition. This is not a situation in which I may become popular, but when I see the suffering of our young people, I know that we must take a step. No matter where we go with this facility, the people will have the 'not in my back yard' philosophy. This is something we need and the longer we delay, the worse it will get.

During the run up to the elections in December last year, there was a forum held at the Civic Centre in Bodden Town. One of the questions asked of the candidates was if any of them would support the Breakers Rehab Centre. Unless my memory fails me, I believe there were only one or two. I am pleased to say that the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town was one of those people. As a matter of fact, some of the people there said, "take it and put it in McKeeva's back yard!" I think that was a crying shame for these islands. This is not McKeeva's problem, this is the entire country's problem. If we do not face up to it (as the old people say), 'dog eat our supper.'

Ever since the election in December a very small handful of highfalutin hypocrites who have their minds in the gutter have been trying to discredit and smear the lady Member from Bodden Town and myself with trash talk. As I stand before God and man... I do not compromise my moral standards. I ask those few critics to desist from judging me on their own standards.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Hear, hear!

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Leadership means that at times we have to make difficult decisions that will not be popular to a few people. But we must look at the long-term benefits for the majority. I am convinced that this is needed for our people. Toward that end, we have followed the proper procedures as set down by Planning. It is now with the Public Sector Investment Committee. We have given people the opportunity to object. We will not deny them their democratic right. I am pleased to say, without giving specific figures, that of the responses we have so far received, they are positive responses.

Before leaving my Ministry and the different departments that fall under it, I would like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to and thank the dedicated workers I have working along side of me. I do not go in there and stand over them, I go there and we work together for the betterment of this country.

When I see the dedicated workers at the hospital, and in different areas, the efforts that they put forward working under extremely difficult circumstances, I am very proud of them.

I move on to the Ministry of Education and Planning. Once again, a great effort has been made in this area.

Work on the National Curriculum will continue with teachers. I am pleased to say that members from my Ministry and CASA are very much involved in this new curriculum being put forward, writing into this something that should have been there a long time ago, that is, addressing the drug problem that we now experience in these islands.

In years gone by, when we spoke to people like Mr. Benson Ebanks, in West Bay, he did not see the relevance of that at that time, but it crept up on us overnight. We are now suffering because of that. The only way for us to improve and make significant increase in demand reduction is through the education of our children. The sooner we start this, the better.

We cannot wait until high school and middle school, we must start at the primary age level. As parents, we must take responsibility for the life-style we live and make ourselves accountable for our children. This is what it is all about, taking and accepting responsibility. No matter how much they criticise strategic planning, this is the basic concept of it - involvement of us all, taking and accepting responsibility and stop passing the buck. Until we do that we will not be successful in our struggle against drug abuse or anything else for that matter.

There is a comprehensive forward planning policy to encompass the development of a new Primary School in the West Bay area and expansion of the Savannah Primary to a two-stream school. This will be developed as we go along.

When the Minister for Education first approached me with this I had already written to the Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Community and Lands asking that this piece of land adjacent to the Savannah school be looked at and procured for future development as this was the last piece of land close by which would be used by the people of this district.

The other plans that we envisage there down the line will happen over a period of years. But we had to first secure the land. The little post office has just about outgrown its usefulness. We need a play field. Many of the softball teams come from that area. We also see it being used for that.

I am pleased to know that we have been able to secure this land with the support of Members of this Honourable House and the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

I am very proud of the two Primary Schools in my district, the Bodden Town Primary and the Savannah Primary. They are very popular schools and we all know that this area is the fastest developing district in the Cayman Islands. We must provide the infrastructural support for future development by looking forward and preparing.

I must pay tribute to the principal of our John Gray High School, and the principal of our Middle School. I am proud to know that they are both Caymanians. They are doing a wonderful job. I can personally speak about what is being accomplished at the George Hicks High School by the principal. I would say that the standard of equipment, resources and education available there is second to none anywhere in the world. The teachers are available and the new concept of sharing with parents, encourages us to come in and find out about our children.

My youngest son goes there. Last term he got a grade in Science that I was not pleased with. According to him, it was the teacher. I did not go by what he said. His mother and I went with him and we sat down and spoke with the teacher, stating that never before had he gotten a grade so low in this subject. We wanted to know what was happening. We found out that the standards specifically set by this teacher were at such a high level, she challenged the students to bring up their level of work. I told my son, Brian, that he had to pull his socks up. I am proud to say that his last report showed dramatic changes, in fact, he was first in his class in that subject.

I know that there are some parents out there who, when their children tell them some nonsense about the teachers, want to run down to the school and pound on the teacher. We must not encourage this, we must hear both sides of the story and then make a sensible judgment.

One of the most pleasing developments has been the unique and innovative method used to increase the attendance of the PTA meetings. I was overwhelmed by the attendance at one of the PTA meetings, using the principle of 'Men Only.' At that meeting we had a group of young Caymanians (seven people) who came and talked to us from their hearts, from their personal experience. It was an overwhelming and humbling experience. In attendance that night were over 100 fathers and brothers. They even reported about it on television.

This is what the principal idea being put forward in strategic planning is all about, the involvement of individuals. Until we involve the parents, the families, we will not get to first base.

At the last reporting session which was held a couple of weeks ago, I had never seen so many parents. The parking lot at the school was jammed. There were hundreds of parents. So I say that whatever is being done and proposed by the Strategic Planning approach must be given a chance. We must stop tearing it down until we understand what is being done - go to the schools and find out and stop being critical. Give it a chance. It can only work if we, as parents, take responsibility.

I have heard talk about the previous Education Plan. To have called it a 'Plan' would have required quite a stretch of the imagination. A good example is that they wanted to add one extra year of school. Until we took over they had still not decided where they wanted to put that extra year of education. That is just one example, not to mention the management and the fiasco which occurred over the Kindergarten year where, we have subsequently found out, students (especially at the Lighthouse School) were left hanging out to dry. It was a crime, and we talk about adopting the past Education Plan?

Who was involved in that? Were the parents there? We brought in some experts who did not even share in the philosophy of the way we do life here in Grand Cayman. They must understand that we are a unique island/country and we need to adapt plans to the way and manner in which we do things.

We were asked to bring in a Bill of Rights, including Freedom of Expression, where one school age child can be different from over 5,300 children who have to wear uniforms and abide by a certain dress code. We have been operating by this high standard for decades. I say that it is high time that we stick to those principles which have been in place and have contributed to bringing the Cayman Islands to one of the highest standards of living in the world - renowned for safety and friendliness.

In a conversation with one of the visiting MPs recently, they commented that they hoped that they would not give in to this pressure. I, for one, will not. I have heard talk about the scholarships. I am pretty sure that if we go back and look at the facts, never before in the history of these islands has it been more readily available for our children coming out of high school to have the opportunity to go to college and expand their education. These are facts. Not only a handful of the rich and special ones picked, but any child that qualifies under the guidelines of the Education Council can and, thanks to the efforts of the Honourable Minister for Community Development, it is now much easier for our children to get grants.

This is what this Government is all about, trying to help our people, our elderly, our veterans. Much talk has been going on about assistance to veterans. If we do not help them, who will? When they were out there shedding their blood for freedom, our older people in days gone by fighting mosquitoes, backing logwood and buttonwood trying to keep this country afloat, must we now deny them a decent way of life? It is a small contribution, a drop in the bucket, but we must somehow show appreciation for those who are in need. They must qualify, naturally, because I do not advocate that those who are not in need should be getting this contribution. But if they need it, by God, we should help them.

Cayman Airways is like tourism.., what can I say? Where we have come from with Cayman Airways is nothing short of a miracle. Just three short years ago this Government took over a frightening mess. There were obligations, because of borrowings, amounting to close to $100 million. I think they were prepared for the company to go under. But the Honourable Minister who receives his generous share of criticism brought in a manager who understood the operations of an airline. He has been able to turn it around.

Despite figures shared from the accounts in this Legislative Assembly, we still have people raising doubts. I think this is grossly unfair for such an effort which has been put forward. We must go forward and work together in what we are doing.

This is our island and if we do not work together as a group... it is only we who can tear it apart from within. Constant criticism does not help.

I go on to the Ministry of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. I would like to pay tribute to the Honourable Minister and his many departments. I am still amazed to see what can be grown in the Cayman Islands, as was so ably shown at the Agricultural Fair a couple of weeks ago. The cattle, the goats, the horses. . . sometimes I have to pinch myself and ask 'Are we in the Cayman Islands?' I remember four years ago when the then Minister, Mr. Linford Pierson, and his group had done away with the Ash Wednesday Agricultural Fair. It was thrilling to see the first one we brought back at the Lion's Centre where so many Caymanians came together and were so proud that it had been returned.

We know of the efforts of his Ministry on the E-9-1 -1 system and I am made to understand that when it comes on line it will be of great benefit to our people, especially the elderly and the infirmed where, if they are having problems, they can pick the phone up and their location can be identified by this sophisticated system.

I need not comment on the Post Office, as we have all seen the dramatic changes that have taken place there. I must pay credit to those involved in bringing it such a long way.

I must speak briefly on the Public Works Department. There is no section of any business in the world that has taken more pounding and more criticism than the PWD. When we look at those dedicated civil servants working there, sometimes with limited resources, and the amount of work that they accomplish, I take my hat off to them. We must give them support.

The maintenance of the roads: Naturally, if we had the funds this could have been put in place. Instead of some of the highfalutin things being brought forward from the last administration, these were not addressed. One little piece of road was worked on up by the Jennet T I think was the extent of their road works. Here we are, now facing a tremendous amount of maintenance work, which, I must say I am grateful for, specifically in my district of Bodden Town, which is taking place on the shoulders of the roads. Bodden Town has been left behind for too long. Thank goodness that with the help of the National Team, and the support of our Backbenchers, we can see the changes not only Bodden Town, but in North Side, in East End, in West Bay, George Town, Cayman Brac and even in Little Cayman. It takes working together.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Hear, hear!

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: It is not just one or two of us out there; we are doing this as a team. There is no constant criticism as we have heard about censorship over the West Bay roads. When we really found out about those 'private roads', we found that some of those led to the homes of the elderly and places where fire trucks and ambulances could not enter.

I would venture to say that in the entire history of Governments prior to this one, never have more street lights been installed than in the street lighting project being put forward by this Government. Naturally, the Minister and his departments cannot take care of all of them, but you have to admire the programme he has put forward where certain areas are prioritised. When we look at the reduction in crime in some of these areas, we must give him praise for his contribution in the area of lighting and making these islands a little bit safer.

There is a little lady in Bodden Town who could not understand why we put the bright lights in Bodden Town. She said they were too bright and that she could not sleep. Anyway, we will keep trying, as we all know the Big Guy from above came down and he was not appreciated. We will make an all out effort to do the best we can for the majority of the people.

I now move on to the Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture. Talk about Minister's being maligned, it is a good thing that he is a big fellow. As I have said, not too many other Ministers have done what he has accomplished in his short three years as a Minister for the youth and the elderly, in this history of these islands. That goes back to my first cousin the late Jim Bodden. Many of the ways that the Honourable Member has reminds me of his fight for our people and he is doing a great job carrying it forward.

As he says, his department intends to coordinate the provision of proper adult care centres in West Bay and Bodden Town. I look forward to when the one in Bodden Town is completed. With the support of this House we were able to purchase a house and two acres of land behind Cumber Avenue. I have been reliably informed that one of the service clubs will offer assistance later this year enabling this project to become operational. For that we are grateful.

Even before this, our community group, under the able leadership of one of the Community Development officers (Mr. Tony Scott) had identified this as a project that we would work on in Bodden Town and move forward to provide comfortable facilities for our elderly people. I cannot give enough praise to that gentleman. He is one of the most energetic and dynamic organisers I have ever had the pleasure of working with.

I must offer my thanks to the Minister of Community Development for his foresight in establishing these officers. There are two other ones, and I am made to understand that there will be provision for another one later this year.

What has happened in certain areas of this island is history. One example I would like to draw upon is the Watler's Road. This is nothing short of a miracle! In December I was invited there for a Christmas Tree lighting and I was absolutely amazed at the improvement in that area. That was accomplished by bringing people who wanted to help together. They just needed someone to lead them and show them what to do.

This Community Development Officer was approached by my colleague, the newly elected Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, to help us get organised in the community and to work in our district. As we all know, from the involvement she has had in the Savannah/Newlands group, this is one of her strong points. She and Mr. Scott worked together, the rest is history. In the district of Bodden Town a bipartisan group is now working on a community project, the Coe-Wood Beach. It is a thrilling experience to go out there on a Saturday and see 10, 20 and up to 50 people from the community working together for the benefit of our district. When we talk with some of the older people they are so uplifted, and are there working side-by-side, not necessarily doing a lot of hard work, but they are there making their small contribution.

We are seeing something in Bodden Town that we have not seen for several decades - the young and the old working together. We see the elderly sharing stories of times gone by. On a Saturday I think it is the talk of the island. People from all over the island are stopping by to help.

I must thank those who have helped us so diligently, and the wonderful ladies who provided not only breakfast, but lunch for all these people. We had a special young lady from Caribbean Utilities Company, who brought a pot of soup in the evening. I invite any of my colleagues here to come out and share this experience with us. This is what communities are all about, bringing us together without politics.

The next area I move to in this Ministry is sports. We get nothing but praise for the improvements accomplished in three short years in the area of sports with the facilities which we can now boast of. These are second to none in the world (The Truman Bodden Complex), where we hosted the CARIFTA games a couple of years ago and, more recently, the Shell Cup. When we talk to these people from overseas, we get nothing but praise.

This Government took a lot of pounding because of that, but look at the results, look at our young people; talk to the juvenile courts! Where were we four years ago? We had 300-odd children who went through our juvenile courts. Thanks be to God, last year it dropped to around 100 or so.

It has been advocated that we should build more courts. I say, no! We must get to the root of the problem.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Hear, hear!

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: We must help our young people before they get into these problems. We must do preventive maintenance.

Those of us who were in the military, like the Honourable Minister for Tourism, know preventive maintenance is highly spoken of. We can keep these children occupied with basketball, football and softball. It is unbelievable what the national basketball coach has done in this country. It is fantastic. I must pay tribute to this gentleman. In the last competition our two little teams from Bodden Town (under 14 age group) were in the finals and in the semi-finals. These were children who had never had the opportunity before to play. I am proud to say that one of them won the district championship.

What hurts me is the amount of money that had been used for prisons and jails prior to this Government. If we had spent a fraction of this . . . I think the Honourable Minister said that $70 million was spent on that. If we had used a small portion of that money in those days to help our young people, what a difference it could have made.

We still need a gymnasium where the children can play indoors, with a good wood floor so that when they fall down they do not get skinned to the bones, as I see happening up at Bodden Town. This is money well spent when we spend it on our young people.

I look forward to starting the playing field in Bodden Town . . . well, we have already started, the ground-breaking took place last year. I look forward to bringing this up to the standard I have seen in other districts of this island. I know the funds are there, it is just a matter of bringing everybody together.

I can assure the Minister that the group of young people from Bodden Town will be there by his side where Government does not have to do everything, they will be assisting in any way possible.

Funds from the Breakers Community Group (who took it on themselves to get this going for the young people of Breakers) were also criticised. I must thank Mr. George Powell for the interest he has taken and for the advancement he has made with the little play field in Breakers. I am grateful for this.

I see where: “This year the Government intends to renovate and convert the Town Halls in West Bay, East End, and North Side into district libraries.” I know that funds are there also for Bodden Town. We may not use our district Town Hall, but we have an area there (the old clinic) which we look forward to developing. This has been a project identified by our committee group in Bodden Town with membership throughout the district.

We have tremendous resources available in this group, which gets so much criticism, but they know they are doing it for their district of Bodden Town. It does not matter who comes there, whether it is Government, or me, as a politician, or other Members. They are focused and they want to see things made better for Bodden Town. They constantly work toward that end.

Every Wednesday evening we try to get together. Sometimes the group is small, but we meet. We plan and we look at what else can be done and identify areas. We have a long, long list. I encourage the members of my constituency to come out and join us and see what is going on. See the improvements that can be made, not only in Bodden Town, but in every one of the electoral districts. It can be accomplished by all of us working together for the good of these islands.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture took a lot of harassment when he introduced the efforts to get housing for our people. Once again, what has happened is history. Over $7 million has been loaned to people who, prior to this Government, could not get a loan because they could not come up with that first 30% or 35%. We have enabled them to do that.

The Water Authority seems to grow from strength to strength. I am pleased to see that later on this year an extension will be going into Breakers. I know the people of Breakers will welcome that. There is a gentleman there who wants to do some developing, build a little cottage and he has inquired. I am pleased to let him know that we will be coming out that way later on this year.

In closing, I must give praise to you for the establishment a few weeks ago of prayers during the lunch break. I just wish it was possible for all Members to share in this moment of time with our Maker. I must praise the Honourable Financial Secretary who was able to guide us today in your absence. I think this is a wonderful thing you have created and it is one more way to keep us together as legislators in trying to take politics out of this. When it comes to God and helping people, politics should have nothing to do with it. It has to be what is good for the people.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Hear, hear!

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Finally, for those doomsday prophets who try to scare and mislead our people into believing that the National Team Government has done nothing, I would like to compare this article written by one of the development companies, Cayman Islands Realty and Development Ltd, the Market Report of the 1996 winter season. Compare this to 1992 when we took office when just about everything was at a standstill.

We remember the $7.5 million deficit this Government inherited, not to mention the $55 million that had been accumulated before funding during the last four years of that administration. Tourism was down, rampant accusations of 10% was all over the place. There was no construction. Never before in the history of these islands had we seen such a major problem with unemployment. I know we are not perfect, but we have tried. We have come a long way since 1992. Just to briefly read, “The Overall Outlook: The activity which we have seen in September and October of 1995 has been higher than at any time previous in Cayman history. Nineteen flinty-five has been a great year for real estate. We have reached the point where one property sells every day in the Cayman Islands.”

Is that the same island that we hear is in so much trouble . . . and the Government is constantly criticised for everything we do? My colleagues share with me some of the problems they are experiencing in one of the islands. We should be thankful to our Heavenly Father for the blessing he has bestowed upon us to live in a place like the Cayman Islands. I have been all over the world, and there is not one place that I would exchange for my beloved Cayman Islands. We can only keep it this way if we, as responsible citizens, work together toward that end.

This final forecast in this newsletter: “If you are a visitor and do not yet have flights or accommodation for this winter you are in trouble. If you are a local working resident and plan long holidays this winter, forget it. Nineteen ninety-six should be the best year yet for the Cayman Islands in terms of business activity.”

Our forecast then is for very sunny economic skies during 1996. I would like to leave that message with our people out there. Let them make the comparison to see what the true story is. Thank you.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Hear, hear!

CLOSURE OF DEBATE

Standing Order 38

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, under Standing Order 38, I move that the question be now put.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I beg to second that motion.

The Speaker: I will not put the question because I still think there are a minority of people who need to speak. But if no one stands up within the next couple of seconds... (pause)

An hon. Member: Five, four three two . . .

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I now take the time to make my contribution to the Throne Speech which was delivered by His Excellency the Governor of these Islands on 16th February. I have to congratulate His Excellency on the way he delivered his speech to this Honourable House, being his first time making a Throne Speech. I have to give him a big hand for his deliverance.

The way that he delivered himself I think says here is a job well done, the way this Government is running the country. Looking back at what we found three years ago up until now, I feel that it is nothing but a job well done. It took the National Team Government to do it. To get this island to the condition where it is now where everyone is enjoying themselves, from where it was in 1992 is something close to a miracle. Why this country was brought back is because our Government works together as a team, all for the betterment of these islands. Although we have some opposition, they could not stop us. I pray that they will get converted and join in with us for the balance of this term.

For the Cayman Islands, islands with their own integrity, we have to say that these islands are dependant on off-shore business. To rebuild our condition was not an easy task. First of all, relying on offshore business to come into this island meant we had to prove to them that they should accept this island. To do that we had to rebuild our stability. Thank God we were able to do that. We rebuilt this country and as it goes we are still building. We have put these islands back on the map where we are the envy of most countries. I do not think too many really give us the congratulations we should get, but they have to admit that Cayman has a technique that they do not have.

The progress we are making is something that is hard to believe. Progress or prosperity does not come to anyone on a platter or does not grow on a tree that you can go and pick it off, it has to come through hard, honest work and good planning. That is what the National Team Government has shown the world it can do.

Tourism is one of the main contributors to our economy. We are now enjoying a booming tourism season. That did not just happen. The Minister for Tourism is a dedicated hard working man. His plans and drive are for the betterment of this country and this is what he has proven could be done. I think we should all congratulate him for it. But, it is as everything else goes, we are going ahead with all departments, some faster than others, but each one of them has their Minister to run them. They are honest hard working men.

Tourism brings not only the tourist to the islands, but it develops work that would not be here if it were not for tourism - construction of hotels and condominiums and the feedback that we get from the people that are working in the industry. This all goes along with what I said about planning - it has to be the main thing.

Education: The Minister for Education has also done a good job with that. The system has advanced through him and his Board and there has been a visible improvement at the schools. He is also the Minister in charge of Cayman Airways. We have to take our hats off to him because he has done a good job with that. He has brought Cayman Airways from the brink of collapse to where it is flying in the air again like a supreme being. It looks so good that they are now planning on buying another plane. He also made some expansions at the airport. All of this goes along with progress.

Agriculture: Here again is another department that has worked hard and has shown what could be done as far as agriculture in these islands. One only had to look at this last show and they would realise that they had to congratulate the Minister for it. It takes a lot of hard work and planning to keep this going. But this is his line and I know that he will continue doing what has to be done.

Sports: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture is doing a great job with it. I, for one, have to congratulate him all the way. He has done more for sports in the past three years than any Government has ever done. In fact, I cannot say that any other Government ever did anything for sports. He has taken licks for what he has done. People have claimed that he should not have spent so much money on sports, but if the people would only look back and see that sports is an education, they would be right. One thing it does is help the youth to keep them in the right form.

If we think that sports is not a builder... take the youth in sports today. If they did not have it they would be on the streets. It is bad enough now as it is. How much more would there be if the youth paying attention to sports were also out there on the streets? This is why I say it has been one of the greatest things that money could have been spent on. It is money well spent. Whatever has to be done in sports, I, for one, will be supporting the Minister on.

The Housing Development: Here again, is something that people did not talk well of. Some people got homes who never would have otherwise. This is something that the Minister really put himself out to do, and he did it.

The design plan for the Health Complex has not been completed, but will soon be. This project will be going ahead. The Minister is doing all he can do and we have to back him and support him. The part of the project that has been started will soon be finished and operational and saving this Government money in rent.

This year we are coming to is an election year. I know that the Opposition is getting their heads together. There is one thing I would like to say: When the campaign is on, I ask that they focus on issues and not mud slinging. Mud slinging will get us nowhere. I do not think it will help anyone win the election. People nowadays are not like before, they know a bit about politics and they are looking for the Members who can really help the country, and those who have helped it. With that, they will be voting for whomever they think are the best people.

All departments seem to be moving ahead. One other department I want to congratulate because I always champion them, that is, the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force. I feel that they have the right man there now behind the helm as Commissioner of Police. His moves are proving successful. He has the ability to perform and lead in the manner of policing.

The police are out there now mixing with the people which is one of the main issues - that they get to know each other (police and residents). Some go to the schools to make friends there with the school children. They realise that he is their friend. Whenever the police are around, you feel a space of safety or protection. Everything is not falling in place as fast as we would like (the other districts are calling for police service 24 hours a day), but we will eventually get there.

I see where the Minister also plans to start a youth band. This is something that will help the youth to be good people. Getting them interested in the band will make them feel like they are doing something for their country and for themselves. That is a very good move.

The Minister has also been taking blows over the veterans pension. I have to say that it is high time that the veterans got their pension. This is not something that happened over night. This has been talked about from just after World War II. Facts be known, they were even supposed to get a post war pay after the demobilisation of the war. That did not happen. Then we took up a motion asking about the pension. Nobody was interested in the pension. .

Now, the Minister has gone about it and got it going. If there has been any mistake in it, paying out money, I will not criticise him about that. Most every person old enough who tried to get on the pension was probably sailing to sea during the war. Whether they were in Europe, or in the Caribbean, they were still in the war zone because it was all over the world. If they feel like they should have something, I say good for them. But, let us give Caesar what belongs to Caesar. The Minister is doing a great job.

Before I take my seat, there is something else that I want to speak about. We are all acquainted with Castro shooting down planes last week. President Clinton has declared that he is going to tighten up the embargo on Cuba, and that he will punish any country that gives assistance or that does business with Cuba.

It has been on my mind, so I have to say this: There is a weekend flight that goes to Cuba and I think that Government should take a look at this and see what is going on because we would not want President Clinton to put an embargo on us. It would be bad for us if the United States said they could not trade with us anymore. With that, I ask Government to take a keen look into this and to my colleagues and friends, as I said about the upcoming election, I wish you all luck and may the best man win.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I was going to check my mailbox two days ago when someone stopped me and said: Have you learned to swim amongst the sharks yet without being bitten? I could not answer the person then, and I am not so sure I can answer them now, but hopefully I will survive.

As I begin to give my contribution to the Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency the Governor, let me first of all say that I recognise that the Government has a large enough choir for the singing of the accolades. I do not think that I have to waste time talking about what is right. What I do promise the Government is that in all of my observations I will be as fair, as unbiased and as factual as I can be. I hope that they will listen to my observations on what I do not see as being right, so to speak, and that even if it is not conducive for them to accept that publicly, that they will at least pay credence to what they think merits their looking into.

In the Governor's preamble, he mentioned that ". . . government has a duty to the citizens. It has a duty to provide the services to maintain law and order. . ." and social harmony. Government also ". . . has a duty to provide the services to maintain law and order, ensure care for all and offer education and training for the people." As I have said before in this Honourable House, law and order and social harmony are the two key ingredients that we must accept as the nucleus for the success of this society. As I said, I think it is my job to point out any inadequacies that I see prevailing. I will do that in the best interest of the people of these islands. What I will not do is dwell in the past because I believe that it only makes sense to dwell in the past if one is learning a lesson. What I will attempt to do is to speak about now and the future.

I hear comments from those wondering who coached me on these words. For all those who think different, let me say that they are my own.

As we move into the Throne Speech, the very first section is the Judiciary. The Governor stated that work will continue on improving the facilities of the Court. The Honourable Minister for Health made a point that is valid when he said that concentration should be put on spending money in the areas of preventative education with regard to drug abuse and crime with the youngsters so that the Courts do not continue to increase in activity.

Having said that, the fact is that we cannot turn back the hands of time, and we can expect that Court activities will not decrease. It is fitting because I think we all understand and accept that the facilities in the Courts are very cramped and something has to be done with regard to looking into the long term. If it is a situation where in the immediate term rented accommodation has to be the answer, then I guess I cannot say that I have a problem with that. But, we have been talking about the cramped space in the Courts (like a lot of other things), and various alternatives have been examined. I do trust that some specific measures in this vein will be forthcoming.

The truth is that inasmuch as we, who wear several hats, try our best to ensure that we are at least as good a role model as we can be in order to create the right impression with the youngsters, the pace this society has been going unfortunately adds distractions on a daily basis. Certainly, the Courts are not going to go out of existence so I think we should be looking to provide enhanced provisions in order for them to function.

We can look at what has to take place now, the various outside locations that have to be used for Court sittings. The Court Building is nearly 25 years old, so while it was serving its purpose for many years (and I do not suggest that one has to create a brand new facility), I think we should be looking at providing more space even if it is at the same location.

Having said that, I will be talking about many things which I see the need for, but let me immediately say to the Government that I recognise we do not have an unlimited bank account. I understand and appreciate that the juggling act is continuous and that it is all going to boil down to a matter of priority.

As I continue on, I will do the best that I can to distinguish an order of priority on the various aspects of the different departments and other peripheral areas that I see as priority in the services that are provided for the country by the Government.

Moving on into the Throne Speech, the Royal Cayman Islands Police: I too would like to add that I believe the new Commissioner of Police has the best of intentions. He is also fairly innovative. I do believe that his approach is one that is very conducive to bringing back some of the trust which has been lost over the years between the community at large and the police.

I also understand that he has had to (and will continue to have to) make some decisions which individual people may think are harsh decisions, but I do believe that those decisions are made with the best interest for the Force and the people of the country at large.

The one aspect regarding the Royal Cayman Islands Police which I really wish to add total support to is the idea of it becoming a service rather than a force. The word force implies just that, and I do not interpret the fact that he is trying to create a service to mean that force will not be used when necessary. In providing a service with the Royal Cayman Islands Police, I believe that there will be a lot more community involvement, and we might well find ourselves in a much better position to solve the crimes as they occur because one witness who is prepared to speak out saves so much time, money and labour to solve the crime. That is where we are sadly lacking in these islands. It is obvious that it is because of the distrust I mentioned earlier.

I wish to now refer to something that I wish someone would consider in regard to the Caymanianisation of the Royal Cayman Islands Police.

I have been made to understand that the test which is given when one makes application to join the Royal Cayman Islands Police is, in relative terms, a simple one. The observation that I make, with the greatest of respect, is that I believe that if many of the policemen whom we hold in high regard had to take that test they would not pass. Good will, the right attitude, loyalty and all those other things put together go a long way. I hold the view... though not for a minute am I suggesting that people should be allowed to enter into the force if they cannot pass that test. I believe that we should not be taking the view that if they take the test and do not pass it, that is it. I do not hold that view.

Youngsters have come to me pleading (and I am not making this up)...they know me, they want to know if there is anything I can do because they want to become a policeman. But they have taken the test and failed by however many points it is. It is my view that if we have Caymanians, male or female, who have that fervent desire to serve the country in that manner, whether it be looked upon as an occupation to earn a living or simply a desire to be of service and earn a living in the meantime, I believe that we should provide some means to put them through some type of scholastic training to bring them up to that level, also hold the view that on the average it probably would not take any more than three months.

One could counter that argument by saying that if they were so interested they would go and learn what they have to learn. The difference is that those of us who talk like that know that we could pass the test; those who do not pass the test are not that well in tune with their own volition to know exactly what to do.

I hold the view that the accomplishments that would take place by providing something like this would be many fold. While we are not talking hundreds and hundreds of people, the truth of the matter is that it is one way of providing a young Caymanian with a job and the inherent discipline is obvious. I think that it is a very good avenue to make someone a good citizen. I do not think that it would be a costly affair. In fact, one could take the argument further and say that if you are taking recruits and you need X amount of recruits for every six months (or whatever period), one could actually say that we are going to be having the test done on such and such a date, if you feel that you need to get a bit of brushing up, this is exactly how you can go about it.

It may be a very simple thought, and it may be one that will fall away, but I hold the view that if we expect to go beyond lip service to Caymanianise the Police Force, then even if my idea has to be torn apart and made a better case, that is fine. That is the best I can come up with now, and I think it is workable.

With no disregard and with no disrespect, Madam Speaker, it is a shame when we have to import policemen en masse. When I say it is a shame, I do not mean it is a shame that finger pointing needs to go on. I am not suggesting that. It is a shame for us all. While we might say that we should not be producing individuals from our education system who cannot pass that test, we know better. The day might come when the level of graduates will come and we will not have to worry about that, but what has been happening for many years is that many of the students who graduate are only at a certain level of education.

I do not hold the view that persons from abroad, generally speaking (and this is with no disrespect to them... maybe I apologise too much, but that is my nature) can be a part of the Royal Cayman Islands Police and feel how our own should feel about what has to be done. I think everybody will do their job, but that is one of the areas in public service where one more occasion than not, these people are called beyond the call of duty to serve. It is my belief that if we have individuals who wish to participate in that process but because of a lack of scholastic aptitude they are denied that privilege, then we must provide the means by which they can participate in this.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION - 4.30 PM Standing Order 10(2)

The Speaker: It is now 4.30, Honourable Member.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I will not be finished this afternoon, Madam Speaker.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: Before I call for the motion for the adjournment, I just wanted to say that there will be a meeting in the Chamber at 5.30 pm. I will ask Members to put their papers away. Thank you.

May I now ask for the motion for the adjournment of the House? The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.34 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 8TH MARCH, 1996.

EDITED
FRIDAY
8TH MARCH, 1996
1009 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Second Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Order. Proceedings are resumed. Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Deferred question No. 5. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 5

No. 5: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development what the outstanding balance on personal loans made to non civil servants is by amount and name of borrower.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Currently there are 15 personal loans owed by non Civil Servants amounting to a principal sum of $114,851. These include one case of theft where criminal prosecution is pending, involving a sum of $70,490. It also includes another case which accounts for $8,500 where the Government made payment for advertising to a company which failed to deliver the services due to bankruptcy. The remaining 13 loans, totalling $35,861, are loans made to former civil servants for such purposes as medical expenses and scholarships.

In addition, there are 27 mortgage loans owed by former civil servants which involve a principal sum of $295,280.23. Some loans continue to be serviced satisfactorily by the persons concerned, but there are 13 cases of arrears accounting for $197,510.05 (that is interest of $35,304.03 and principal of $162,206.02).

All of the arrears of personal loans and mortgage loans are being followed up by the Treasury, and emphasis in the pursuit of these arrears will be further intensified by the Debt Collection Unit when it becomes operational during the course of this month.

Attached is a list detailing the names of the borrowers and the amounts outstanding.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Member say if mortgage lending within the Civil Service continues?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, it continues.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member explain what the procedure is, and if there are any limits to the amounts loaned to civil servants? What period of time are the loans usually for?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The limit ranges between $25,000 and $30,000. The persons who qualify to borrow are persons who are on the permanent and pensionable establishment of the Civil Service and members of the Civil Service Association.

The procedure that is in place is that the Credit Committee of the Credit Union is used by the Civil Service Association in order to vet the applications to ensure that all the requirements are met.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say if any contact is kept with those 13 persons mentioned earlier to ensure that they have not left the jurisdiction?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Every effort is made by the Treasury Department to send out notices to these persons on a regular basis, but because the desired response in terms of servicing the indebtedness has not occurred, it cannot be vouched whether they are on or off the island.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Honourable Member say whether Government is holding a charge on the 13 properties that are in arrears?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, in many instances a second charge is being held on the properties in question plus all of the borrowers are required to have a life insurance policy in place.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Would the Honourable Member say if it is a requirement that those civil servants who qualify and obtain loans, and who leave the service, are required to settle the outstanding amount within a certain period of time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, we try to ensure that all the borrowers adhere to the time limit that was agreed upon when the loan was initially granted. This means that if a loan was granted for a period of twelve years and a civil servant resigns at year seven, the remaining period for which the loan balance has to be met would be five years. This will have to be looked at more carefully in the future to ensure that we get assignments over their salaries from their prospective employers. All of the present procedures will be examined.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: For the purpose of clarity, would the Honourable Member say if on some of these delinquent loans (which I am assuming were given for mortgages for houses) no charge was taken by the Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A McCarthy: Madam Speaker, looking at the list (which is the third page attached) there is only one case where a charge was not taken over the property. The reason was that the Government found itself in a very embarrassing position because this lady was working in a sensitive department in the Service and creditors were contacting the Chief Secretary's Office and also the Personnel Department (it is the name of the second person appearing on the last list). The then Chief Secretary, the Principal Secretary of Personnel and I met and came to a decision where it was felt that to save further embarrassment (especially with the financial industry) that assistance should be rendered. A report was put to the Public Service Commission regarding the activities of this person.

This is the only person's name I see on the list that I do not believe we got any security other than the likelihood of a life insurance policy that would be assigned to the Government.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Would the Honourable Member give an undertaking that in cases where persons hold mortgage loans and then leave the Civil Service that the outstanding balance must be settled within three months after leaving the service? It strikes me that what this does is deprive other civil servants who are loyal from getting mortgage loans because there may not be enough money in the pool when they apply. I think the requirement should be that the outstanding balance must be settled within three months after their departure from the Civil Service.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I, for one, would be very happy if that suggestion could be enforced. We can see that some of the balances on the lists are quite substantial. Unless we can get the cooperation of the prospective employers of these persons, I do not think they would be in a position to pay off these loans. It is likely that the institutions where they would be going to work would have to give them a salary advance in order to settle these outstanding balances, or other arrangements would have to be made with their existing banker. This is a consideration that will be employed.

For practical reasons it may be better for the existing arrangement in place to continue. But what we are going to try to do in these instances, instead of allowing arrears to run for years as has happened in the past through being lenient, we will allow a period of six months. This will be one of the measures that will be considered, and wherever the loans are not being serviced we will seek the cooperation of the principal mortgage holder to either enforce the lien or take over the obligations that are outstanding against a second charge.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. Government Business. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town continuing the debate on the Throne Speech.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY MR. JOHN W. OWEN, MBE, GOVERNOR OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS, ON FRIDAY, 16 FEBRUARY 1996

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we adjourned yesterday afternoon I had about concluded my contribution regarding the Royal Cay-man Islands Police. To finish up let me summarise by saying that I feel it is very important that serious efforts be made, and innovative methods used, to Caymanianise the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force as much as possible.

Going on to the Prison Department: This department has had its ups and downs over the years. I noticed in the Throne Speech that His Excellency referred to staff and inmate training and welfare programmes, and he said that these programmes will remain high priorities. We have spoken on many occasions in this honourable House (before my time and since my time) regarding inmates and what becomes of them after they serve their sentences. I understand that there are some moves afoot to try to put in place a system whereby job placements and follow-up service can be provided for these individuals in order for them to be able to come back into society and become productive citizens.

It is obvious that the thought process here is to try to lessen and minimise as much as possible the number of repeat offenders. While I have a limited knowledge, and I accept that, I am not convinced that at this point in time enough emphasis is placed in this area. I know that discipline and order have to be maintained, and I do not suggest that Northward Prison should be run as a hotel. But I do believe that the majority of prison terms are not indefinite, and it is obvious that persons who are serving sentences will be released. I think emphasis should be placed on ensuring that these individuals are able to fit back into society upon release as best as is possible. Specific training programmes need to be identified. I believe some of these programmes are going on, so I am not suggesting that nothing is happening. But I do not think it is possible to put too much emphasis on this.

There also needs to be education among private businesses and the public sector. While I do not condone wrongdoing, if a stigma becomes permanently attached to someone who has erred, and who had to pay the price by serving time in prison, and the public at large simply writes that person off, then the truth of the matter is that we may as well become a police state and have all types of severe and extreme punishment for any criminal activities.

I accept that in the majority of cases it is of their own volition that they commit these crimes. If the individuals who have paid the penalty for these crimes are outcasts, the chances are that nine out of ten (if not ten out of ten) will simply revert to the way they were before, because they see no light at the end of the tunnel and they see no future.

It is difficult, because not many people will say, 'Well, I chose to hire an ex-convict', but we should be prepared to take the chance and do the best we can with by hiring these people to ensure that the risks are minimised. We need to consider that very seriously. That does not exclude the Government.

I know of a specific instance where an individual was hired by the Government. He did not hide the fact that he was an ex-prisoner, but the system did not call for those facts to be outlined before the person was hired. Because of his past record (not for murder or anything like that) of something that happened perhaps five or six years ago, the Government simply laid the person off when it was discovered. Now, that is perhaps warranted by them, but my mind tells me that this is not a good example set by leadership.

Without going further into that matter, I think it is very important that we examine the situation. It is not something the Prison is responsible for by itself, there are many attached services. I have had conversations with the Minister for Health, and I know that the Cayman Counselling Centre is making strides in dealing with drug counselling there. I wish to ask that as much emphasis as possible be placed on these programmes. We are not going to win them all, but we can win as many as we possibly can.

Moving on to the Department of Immigration: First of all, let me say as gently as I can that I have never claimed to be someone who is going to clean up the Immigration Department. I have a lot of respect for the individuals who work there, and I realise the strain under which they continuously work. But I believe that there is a lack of policy directives in certain areas. The main reason for that is because those areas are very sensitive and delicate to deal with.

I do not have to dwell on the Cuban crisis - hopefully it has been put to rest and we are moving on. The costs absorbed were not nice to think about or see, but that is a part of life and we have to go on and learn from those experiences, and hope that we do not have to face issues like that in the future.

My contention with immigration has nothing to do with the department. I have spoken on this issue on more than one occasion. I have accepted, by answers given to Parliamentary questions in this sitting, that there is a bit more tolerance being exercised in the one area that is my pet peeve, but horror stories continue to prevail.

There are many people living on this island who have been here for the greater part of their lives, and are (what I used to hear them called in the olden days) "no-whereians". They have nowhere to go, not because Cayman is a good place to live, but they have no other family connection anywhere else. If they visit the land of their birth they are given a week to travel, but they are not considered to come from anywhere.

While it may not be considered the responsibility of the Department of Immigration or the Portfolio responsible, I believe that many of these individuals simply do not pay attention to this serious situation until somebody suddenly says, "You are an over-stayer."

They will say, "But I am 22 years old, and I have been here for 21 years of my life."

"I do not care, you are still an over-stayer."

That is still happening. Again, like many things that are wrong in life, we do not necessarily find a person to blame for the situation. I am airing this situation because I believe it is high time the country found a method to harness all of these people and decide who the country is prepared to accept and do what has to be done. If the country is not prepared to accept some of these people, then let them know.

Without being too blunt, Cayman is no different from anywhere else, and it is obvious, simply by statistics, that the birthrate in any given nation is highest in the lowest income bracket. We are no different here. Many of the situations I speak about are multiplied because of what I have just said. I know that sometimes when certain situations face the people in the department they look up to God, and say, "Why me Lord?", because they do not know what to do.

It is not an easy situation to deal with. We have on the one hand the cry from certain sectors of the population about being overrun by foreign nationals. We have on the other hand the private sector, the entrepreneurs, the small business people crying for work permits because they need help. Again, I know that is a balancing act. It is a tough one, but it is my contention that if because the situation is delicate it is not dealt with head on, it is only (like everything else that is a problem) going to multiply if left alone. Human nature being what it is (and I certainly do not claim to be an exception), whenever there is a problem that we can avoid dealing with and it does not mean that life ends, we are going to put it off. We have all been in that situation at some time.

This has been going on, and on, and on - forever! As time passes it multiplies and gets worse. Each time we thinks about it it gets harder to think about, so we would rather think about something else. When it blows up in our face... I will have to face it too, but I will know that I wanted to do something about it. This situation is not one that is isolated to an elected government, it is not one that is isolated to an elected representative from a specific district, because they might have less of it to deal with or more of it to deal with, it is something that has far-reaching ramifications and none of us will escape it when it blows up. I refer to it simply as the "us" and "them" syndrome.

I still contend that it does not have to be a problem with which we can never deal because of its magnitude. Whatever approach is taken to deal with it, there are going to be some hard decisions to be made. But I believe that if natural justice, fair play, and concern for the country are the basic ingredients for the thought process, we will get the best answer possible. There is never going to be a situation where we are not going to find an individual who is faced with a problem that we cannot solve with a policy. What we cannot continue to do is because we know this one, this one is all right, we are going to take care of this one; but that one we do not know, and we do not hear much from that one so we can leave them where they are. It is not going to work. This is something that I could probably repeat myself by bringing up different examples to make the point. But it is something (election votes or not) that is going to cause us so much trouble in this country that if we leave it alone one of these days we ourselves will be wondering where else we can go.

I do not know about anyone else, but my backyard is full of fruit trees, and I really have nowhere else to go, and I would not want to go anywhere else. It is a serious issue and because it is a cancer and not a heart attack (which kills you right away), it is left alone.

I noticed in the Governor's Throne Speech under 'Information and Broadcasting Department' the wonderful idea of the amalgamation of these two departments has not worked out to be such a wonderful idea at all. I can only say that I hope that those who understand the difference in the operation of these two departments will allow them both to function and give them the support they need.

I also understand that the Government Information Services is going to be needing a new premises because it seems that the building (which houses Radio Cayman) cannot accommodate them. I look forward to seeing what is going to be done regarding putting GIS back on its sound footing and allowing it to function.

Next is District Administration. The lady Member normally teases me about being a "Bracker" and I tell her she is a "South Sounder." On a serious note the Sister Islands (Cayman Brac and Little Cayman) have had their share of problems. I am probably a typical example of what has gone on in Cayman Brac especially, over the past 30 years because of the lack of many things. The order of the day was to hold home dear to home, but move on in order to better one's self because opportunities were very limited. Today there is not much difference.

The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, in his usual style, made some valid points regarding incentives and things that could be looked at to assist the Brac. What is happening is that because of the topography, Little Cayman has a lot more beach and, while not being heavily populated, it is developing in its own right. There are a lot of land sales going on.

It is important that planning procedures or regulations (and the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman did mention this) for construction and such things not be left to everyone's will and volition, where we end up with low quality structures that are not esthetically pleasing to the eyes.

I have also had a cursory look at the proposed plan for the marina for Cayman Brac. I do not know all of the facts, but I think that by way of information received it is acceptable (that there be no damage, or potential damage to the land, because of its location) it is a good incentive.

There is a retired gentleman who, like myself, is from the Brac but has lived in Grand Cayman for many years. He owns a home in Cayman Brac. He told me that it is his belief that if the proposed plan were to become a reality, one-third of Grand Cayman's population would be over on the Brac just about every weekend. He might have exaggerated to emphasise his point, but I do believe that once it is done properly, it can be something that would boost the economy.

The Member also called for the extension of a National Roads Plan to include Cayman Brac. I will discuss that later on, Madam Speaker.

I, too, would like to urge the Government to go a bit further to try and lend as much support as possible regarding what can be done to attract tourists, and what can be done to create jobs. But in order to create jobs we have to create business. So perhaps there could be some type of incentive that could be looked at.

I feel the urge to tell the Honourable Financial Secretary to say that the first 1,000 companies registered in Cayman Brac would get a special rate for registration... But I know that when he compares that with what we have in Grand Cayman it might not be conducive. I throw that out because we can never tell what side of the bed we may wake up on any given morning.

On to Personnel, Training, Management and Computer Services: I was pleasantly surprised, and happy to hear other Members of this Honourable House singing one of my songs on upward mobility. If we check the Hansards there are at least seven occasions in the past three years where I spoke in this House about training and upward mobility. While it extends all the way into the private sector, I hold the view that the Government of the Cayman Islands must lead the way by example. I wish not to say that nothing is being done in this direction, but as I said about the Prison, I do not think enough can be said about putting emphasis on this topic.

I have always held the view that individuals need to be identified, they need to know where in the Service they can go once they have acquired certain qualifications and have performed in a certain way. I contend that once the majority of these individuals know that is the case, they will rise to the challenge. I do not believe that this is the case now.

I understand that there is dialogue going on between the Education Council and the Personnel Department. On so many occasions I have heard of people going off (not people who were in the service before, but sometimes them too) for additional training or to acquire higher educational standards, coming back with no place to go.

I remember that during the Budget Session it was explained that there were a few supernumerary positions (I think that is what we call them) created to accommodate returning graduates until they fit into the stream of things the way they should. That is sensible. But it is all to do, as far as I am concerned, with the long term. From what I have read and understood the term is 'succession planning.'

Unfortunate, but true, people suddenly die, problems arise and people suddenly leave the Service. Not to become personal at any point I will not use any example, but I can think of three recent situations where because of the displacement of certain individuals it is more than probable that at the end of the day someone will have to be recruited from overseas to fill the posts. Those posts were vacated by Caymanians. My nature is not to drive the nail into the coffin, I simply wish to make the point.

I know that what I have just said is factual and irrefutable, and I also know that no matter what is said and done tomorrow morning the problem will not be solved. I also know that it can be solved, it is far from impossible. The bodies are there, the minds are willing; the potential is there, the ability is there, it is all a matter of planning. It is a matter of harnessing the energy in those bodies, identifying the line of succession, letting people know where they can go in the Service and providing them with the opportunities. I contend that in most instances nature will take its course.

Some people take a dim view when it comes to training, tertiary education and scholarships for individuals in the Civil Service. They say, "Why are we doing this when half of the time they leave and go into the private sector?" My answer to that is, at least we know we have one more trained Caymanian in the private sector. So the truth of the matter is, nothing is lost. Nothing, whatsoever.

With proper succession planning, whenever that odd occasion arises it is not going to be a big deal because there will be a person next in line if and when it happens.

The other thing that I believe will do well is the study that is now being done, which is almost complete, whereby all the jobs in the Civil Service are going to be evaluated. Performance is going to be the key for financial reward. I believe that if this becomes the order of the day (and I like how the process is being done because it is said that after the completion there will be a process of appeal so individuals who are not totally satisfied with the results can justify their case), it will not only increase the efficiency of the Civil Service, but once it is done properly Caymanians by their nature will strive to do their best and will find themselves well entrenched. With the potential of upward mobility according to their performance they will be quite happy to stay in the Civil Service. That can only go well for us.

In his short address on the elections, the Governor congratulated those people who conducted the last by-

Election in December last year. I think all those persons are capable, they handled themselves well and the Supervisor and his staff are to be commended.

What I am a bit disappointed about is the Voter's Registration Card System which was being touted. On more than one occasion between the last Election and now, I heard from various quarters that this was what was going to happen. I have no idea what the initial cost will be, but it is obvious that it will lead to a less time-consuming election and people will be more encouraged, once the system is in place, to exercise their right to vote. I do not think it will cost a fortune, but I believe it is something that needs to be looked at.

Unfortunately, we have this knack, because it is a little while from now, of leaving it alone. Then, all of a sudden, 'a little while from now' passes and it is 'now'. Oh Lord! We do not have time to do it. A lot of things happen like that. It is bad enough when we personally have those bad habits, but when it comes to running the country it is really not acceptable.

So without knowing all of the details of why this has not been done, whether it was not dealt with early enough, or whether it was not considered a priority because of the cost involved, I still believe we need to do it. Once it is done the continuing process does not become a very expensive exercise.

The Portfolio of Legal Administration: The Governor has said, for the present academic year . . . 28 new students enrolled and an overall enrollment of 54. That is very encouraging, but I know that there might be a problem within the legal environment in these islands regarding these students being able to find a place in that field upon graduation. I cannot comment too much on this because I really do not know the answers. What I will say is that it is obvious, from the Caymanians who have become legal practitioners, that our Caymanians not only hold their own in the legal profession, but they can also excel. So I trust that it is being looked at carefully to ensure that as more local lawyers come on stream, they are not ostracised because of the entrenchment of others. This is not something that may face us overnight, but if left alone (like a lot of other things) we will have the lawyers striking too. We do not want this to happen.

I move now to the Portfolio of Finance and Development. I see where there is a proposal to review and revise the Public Finance and Audit Law, the Financial and Stores Regulations, and there is going to be an established Cayman Islands Stock Exchange and an Integrated Financial and Manpower Information System. The Cayman Islands Stock Exchange Bill will be coming to us in this sitting, so I do not need to address it at this point in time. But I think it is very timely for the Public Finance and Audit Law and the Financial and Stores Regulations to be reviewed and revised.

One of the two issues I wish to bring to the attention of this Honourable House is the 'Medium-term Development Plan' which was done by the professionals in the Civil Service. Without the benefit of having it in front of me (because it has not been tabled) it is something that I cry out for in my mind when it comes to the operations of Government. In every area that we look at, if we look without prejudice, we can find the lack of any type of long term planning.

It is my understanding that what is being prepared now is the third attempt at a Medium-term Development Plan. It might well be prepared already; I am not 100% sure. I simply refer to questions answered in this Honourable House, and also part of the delivery by the Honourable Financial Secretary in his Budget Address. What became of the first two? I do not know. Why have they not been utilised? I do not know. It has been said that this new plan will be tabled shortly. I hope it is, and I hope it is adhered to because I have every confidence that the people preparing such a document know what they are doing.

The term 'Medium-term Development Plan' may seem generic, but I venture to say that if and when we take a look at it, specific situations will glaringly stare us in the face. Again, because it is not easy to deal with, we tend to push it aside as long as we can until we can do no better. So I look forward to seeing this Medium-term Development Plan. I also pray for the mercies of God that it does not just sit on the Table and fall by the wayside as so many other plans similar to this one have done in the past. I cannot stomach what somebody else does because I need to do it too. I say no more on the matter.

The other situation that I wish to address is the general reserves of this country. On several occasions in this House I have spoken about it, but before I say what I am going to say about it, let me preempt it by saying that I know that when I am finished somebody is going to say, "Well, on the one hand he is calling for this and crying for that, and on the other hand he still wants us to save money." Let us return to home: we have 1,000 wants daily whether it is for ourselves, our wives or our children - everybody wants something all time. Those who control the funds have to temper those wants with needs, and also put up for a rainy day. Fortunately (or unfortunately) where I fit in right now is with the person who wants. But I understand how it is in reality and I am able to talk about the other side of the coin.

In the last Budget Address, the Honourable Financial Secretary said that "the Government plans to place between 3 and 4% of the annual recurrent revenue into General Reserves." So many times something is said and a decision is made. Then something changes afterwards. I no longer believe in words. So I call on the Government that during the review of the Public Finance and Audit Law to put that in legislation. If it is put into legislation it has to happen. If it is deemed necessary to touch it, then let them deal with the legislation. At least the country would be 100% sure that nothing can happen without everyone knowing. If legislation is in place to undo it we have to have more legislation.

I hold that view as close to my heart as I can get it right now. There is nothing that could change my mind about it. Let me say this: God has blessed us tremendously, and we have not had the ill-fortune of extended periods of want in the nation. When you have what is called 'depression', and we have had bits and pieces and a little taste of it, people in this country have no idea what it is like today. Those who lived it prior to the great success story will by now have memories that they do not want to think about it. So even they are not used to that. We do not know what lay ahead in the future for us.

One might say that it is just a nice idea. Let me tell you the reality of it. If (by forces over which we have no control, or by the twist of fate which we know nothing of) we run into a problem with the two main pillars of our economy (either one of them or both depending on what the occasion is), I would not want to talk about what would be facing us in this country. Ninety-five percent of the people in this country have based their entire existence (and I do not blame them for it, really) on their present earning power. If something happens to us, God help us.

That is one reason for General Reserves. But it is not the only reason. Whether some of us are willing to say it or not, or whether we couch our words or push it to the side, if this country is ever going to catch up with infrastructure it is going to have to engage in sensible long-term borrowing. Even if somebody gets up after I speak and finds reasons to say that is not so today, they are either hiding the truth from themselves or... 'forgive them Father for they know not what they say.'

General Reserves, if sensibly built up over a time, would be used exactly as people use their savings. It affords us a lot more leverage, it affords us to be able to borrow. Simply put, it gives us credibility not just by word of mouth and a balance sheet, but by having money in the bank. So having said that I will wait to see whether or not my idea is taken on board, or whether it seems to be farfetched and outlandish.

There are other areas of finance and development which I could speak on. I would just like to make brief mention of the Estimates and the Annual Budget, and sincerely hope that accompanying this Medium-term Development Plan will be some method to employ the preparation unit whereby we do not have in the budget for this year what the estimates are, then for next year what the projected estimates are what we want to see for next year. By the time we get to next year's estimates and compare the two they are like chalk and cheese.

I can live with whatever criticism comes my way about that. But I firmly believe that when it comes to spending the country's money we do not get anywhere near the value for the money we should because it is spent in a reactionary fashion. It is not spent in a planned fashion.

Let me say what I compare it to. I compare it to a big road crew operating in East End and they are in the middle of an operation which they have about five days left to complete. There is a minor job in West Bay to do and someone calls and says "Look, stop what you are doing up there and put your manpower in place. Get your equipment down to West Bay and do that job now. Then when you are finished you go back to East End and finish that job." The lesson is simple: Allow completion of what was started, mobilise the crew one time, take them down to West Bay and get them to do the job. We are saving time and money.

I am not speaking about any one area. I am speaking as broadly as I can - total, everywhere, any way we want to discuss it in the Estimates. I contend that if there is some type of plan that we are working toward, we know where we are heading. We are not saying that next year we are going to fix this and then when next year comes, "Oh, this one is hollering for that so we better deal with him now. This can wait for another year." We are just going around in circles.

Let me say that it is not because I do not understand why things like that happen, because the first thing that someone will say is, 'if you, Kurt, were in that position you would do the same thing.' All I can say is that I beg to defer because I am not in that position. But I know that what I am saying makes sense. What I am saying is not something that has been happening now. That is the difference with me. I can deal with it without talking about who did this and who did that. I do not care about the who this and the who that. If Willie Jerushah was in here right now it would not matter to me. The point that I make is that we have to devise more efficient means to operate.

You know what else I believe? I believe that given the opportunity those who know how will do that. I am not going to say anymore about that.

The Speaker: Before you go on to another subject, honourable Member, could we take the suspension at this time?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Certainly, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Before I announce the suspension, I propose to take the luncheon break today at 12.15 p.m. So I will ask Members to return to the Chamber in 15 minutes' time. Thank you.

Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.27 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.52 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town continuing.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, when we took the break I had just finished speaking on the Portfolio of Finance and Development. I made mention of the Estimates. I remember one thing worth mentioning and it has to do with the meetings of Finance Committee.

Finance Committee is usually held on a quarterly basis, although a meeting can be called by the Financial Secretary whenever necessary. Very recently a question was asked in the House, and was answered thus, "...for the year 1995 some 160 contingency warrants were issued. The first meeting of Finance Committee for the year was held in the month of September." Notwithstanding the good reasoning for why Finance Committee did not meet before September, I wish to say that it is not an acceptable situation to me.

I know that the Government has to operate and I know decisions have to be made. I am not crying specifically for myself to ensure that I am a part of the decision-making process. But the truth is that as one of the representatives, at the end of the day I am held accountable for the country's money and how it is spent. Whenever Finance Committee Meeting does not take place and contingency warrants have to be issued, in actuality what happens is that the Finance Committee simply becomes a rubber stamp. So, I would like to state for the record that in the future, whatever has to happen, Finance Committee should meet regularly in order for the spending of the country's money to go through due process as it is outlined and as it should happen.

One can argue the point that if contingency warrants become the order of the day there is really no need for Finance Committee to meet. Inasmuch as one might get angry and say that I am not voting for this or voting for that, when bills are incurred by the country no one in his right mind is going to say: 'I am not going to pay them.' So I would not plead, but state again that this is unacceptable.

I cannot remember on any occasion since being a Member of this Honourable House that when Finance Committee met, Members (including myself) were given any more than three days' notice. Members still came to meetings whenever they were called. So I do not find an acceptable situation whereby it is said to be impossible to find a right date when Members can meet.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Hear, hear!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: One might really think that is just picking for the sake of picking. I also happen to know (and I do not want him to even make any expression on his face) that that inhibits the Financial Secretary in his operations. I know that is not the way his life is supposed to be. If Finance Committee does not meet, he is the one who issues the contingency warrants. So I really hope that we are able to operate in a different fashion in the future.

Madam Speaker, the Treasury Department plans to refine the system of forecasting the Government's financial position.... There has been much talk in this sitting, questions being asked and answered regarding revenue collection. As the Honourable Financial Secretary has stated 'there is to be a centralised debt collection unit setup within the Treasury.' That is taking place right now, I know, and within a short time it will become an active unit in that department.

I can only say that very delicate situations will occur, but as we all know Government has to function like a business. So I would hope that the Unit is put in place, the rules and regulations are set down, parameters under which it has to operate are made very clear and it goes on about its business.

Moving on to the Fire Department: There is not much to say about the department except that it is efficiently run. There are loyal people within the service and the chain of command is intact. The Chief Fire Officer has done an exemplary job in making sure that at least 98% of his staff are Caymanians (from all walks of life), not many of them with any high level of education, but they are all drawn in line and given proper training and are performing their functions exceptionally well. I think that it is commendable to know that proper training has been put in place for the majority of these young Caymanians. They have a career and they have all the self-esteem desirable for them to perform, and they do a good job.

The Ministry of Tourism, Aviation and Commerce: The restoration of Pedro's Castle and the support facilities that go along with it is on target. It is something that I believe will be a much enhanced attraction for the tourism sector. Although I do not know exactly how it is going to operate, I certainly believe that once it is handled properly it will enhance the diversity of the tourism product being offered.

I get these wild ideas sometimes, and I throw them out because I do not have enough facts to be able to make a case and say that what I am saying will work.... but, nevertheless, I will throw the idea out. There is always talk about the local work force in the tourism industry. Statistics show that probably about 70% of those employed in the tourism industry are Caymanians, and if we compare the chain of command at the various properties we will note that of that 70% employed who are Caymanians, about 95% are employed at the base level of these properties. That is not the worst case in the world, and there are two different ways of looking at it, because in every area we always strive for upward mobility for Caymanians. There is always going to be the point where we wish to let the people of the country know that it is not a degrading job within the industry, and there must be opportunities given to those who enter the work force in that capacity to be able to get proper training and be able to advance. I will come back to that point, but I made it to say this: It is my belief that in order for Caymanians to feel almost a compulsion to look to the tourism industry as an occupation, we need to have the means by which we can prepare them so that they can compete for the jobs.

While we can argue that there are specific areas both at the High School and at the Community College where there are subjects relating to the tourism industry being taught, many of the individuals who find themselves without an occupation, and who are simply looking a job', lean toward the tourism industry because that is where most of the opportunities prevail. It is all a matter of numbers. There are (at a guesstimate) probably 2,000 people employed in the tourism industry, and it is said that one of the main ideas behind the development of the industry is for Caymanians to reap the benefits. This also will spill over into the work force. But for our Caymanians to reap the benefits in the work force they must be hired at the various levels to allow them those opportunities.

I contend that the Government should create more of a marriage between property owners and the entrepreneurs in that area so that the need for workers can be met with properly trained Caymanians.

Let me give an example. If we look at a waitress or waiter in one of the larger properties, whether it be restaurants on their own, or restaurants within the hotels, I venture to say that is where the tables are turned in that you probably have only 20% employed in that field as Caymanians, if not less. I do not have actual figures, but I know that I am not far off. The others are foreign labourers. I do not believe that we can expect the ordinary person who wants a job as a waitress or waiter to be able to simply walk in and ask for the job and perform all the niceties that it entails - it is simply not going to happen. A lot of our people do not realise the earning power that these people have because of tips and gratuities. Not only that, a lot of our people do not have the confidence in themselves (where they will not feel that they are in a demeaning situation) to be able to do such a task and do it efficiently.

The marriage that I am talking about is specific training in this area. Some of the properties are prepared to deal with on-the-job training, but because most of them are busy it is difficult for them to justify that training while they are open for business and earning their keep. So if some place like the Pedro Castle area had some type of facility created (and I say this not that it is tied to and has to be the Pedro Castle area, but I am not excluding it), whereby we would be able to operate it and the prices would be very reasonable, there are people who because of the attractive rates would utilise that facility. They would be fully understanding that it is a training facility and not everything would be perfect, there would still be acceptable situations whereby they could still come and have a decent vacation and the rates would be a little less. That seems to be something that is not acceptable at this point in time, but I have a longing and a lingering feeling that it would certainly enhance the chances of our Caymanians being hired to these properties.

I use the example of waitress or waiter, but it is not limited to that: the rooms have to be dealt with, there is front desk staff that has to be dealt with, night audit to take place. If there was a small restaurant facility we would have chefs and all the other ancillary jobs which make up the full package.

Years ago when I was going to school in Jamaica, there was a place called Casa Monte Hotel which was a training facility. A friend of mine used to work there and I would visit fairly often. The place was always active - totally active all the time - and because it was a training facility it did not mean for a second that people in training were not able to be presentable and acceptable. All that has to take place is that there be enough skilled professionals supervising the situation in order to make sure that life goes on; people get trained and fall in line.

Some people will say, 'Well, I do not think these hotels are going to hire the locals, because look at these flashy looking waitresses who come from abroad.' I contend that my local people can be made to act, look and perform as well. I also contend that the property owners would be happy to hire them once they are at an acceptable level.

The Speaker: Can we take the suspension at this time?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2 o'clock.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.15 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.12 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town continuing.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: When we took the luncheon break, I was talking about training in the hospitality industry. I suggested that a facility could well be put in place for training by Government in concert with those who are in the industry, the owners and proprietors of the various facilities.

Let me quickly make a few points to show why I think there is good reason for this. The majority of the industry which employs foreign nationals has to pay work permit fees, there are also repatriation fees and, in the majority of cases, they have to provide accommodation for these individuals - all of which would not have to be provided if Caymanians were in these positions. I think that without making any guesses at dollar values, this is a significant amount of money, especially for the larger property owners to be paying out on an annual basis.

If they were guaranteed that we had trained locals to fill these positions, I see no reason why they would not take advantage of hiring these locals. The truth is, I do not think it is a situation where there should be much room for discussion. The way the situation is at present, I do not think the country is in a position to make demands of these people because we cannot guarantee them that we have trained personnel to fill these positions.

Much of the argument about foreign labour coming from our locals is because they view these foreigners as taking away their jobs. If we had the vast majority of our locals employed, then whatever foreign labour was needed to sustain the work in the industry would not matter to us because we would know that our own were taken care of. That is where the crux of the problem is.

I strongly advise the Government to meet with these people and make plans to pursue something of this nature. Having work-shops and seminars which last two or three days will not hack it. It is well intended, I am sure, but at the end of the day that is not going to prepare our people to fill these posts. If we are truthful about it, if the situation were reversed we really would not want to be hiring people who are not equipped to do the jobs because our efficiency rating would be lessened. We certainly would not have that many people returning to the properties because they would not have had great experiences. I think that the onus is on both parties.

While I believe that there may be inherent problems because of past experiences, I believe that if the slate is washed clean and a fresh look were taken at this view, I think the property owners would be receptive and would share in the cost. I am sure the other costs which they now incur would be lessened by their being able to hire locals, and that would balance the equation.

Moving on to a subject within tourism which is a bit more touchy: I wish to make a few comparisons with two documents which I hold in front of me. The first document is the Coopers & Lybrand Ten Year Tourism Development Plan; the second is the Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan.

The overall purpose of the Coopers & Lybrand Plan was to provide a clear set of policies, strategies and implementation guidelines for the Development of tourism in the Cayman Islands which would continue to stimulate the economy for the benefit of the Caymanian people while preserving their heritage, culture and the environment of the islands. This document is very comprehensive and it gives in-depth understanding into the necessity of tourism management in the Cayman Islands.

I am going to make a few comparisons, but before doing so, let me quickly read a short portion of the 'Executive Summary' from the Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan "In 1992 Coopers & Lybrand Consulting undertook an extensive investigation of tourism in the Cayman Islands, and prepared a Ten Year Tourism Development Plan. The Plan was designed to aid Government and the People of these islands to fine-tune strategies to remain successful in the increasingly competitive global tourism environment. The Policies presented in the following document are for the most part based upon the findings and recommendations made by the consulting group. Where necessary, revisions have been made to reflect today's existing reality."

Under the section of "Human Resources" in the Ten Year Plan it reads, "Will be managed consistent with growth and the desire to involve more Caymanians in the industry: A primary reason for pursuing the economic development opportunities that result from the tourism industry is to provide Caymanians with job opportunities." There were eight recommendations, but I am only going to quote two of them. One was the introduction of career planning; and another was equipping the people to reach a high level of performance through training. I think this is in line with what I was trying to say earlier on.

It goes on to say: "As mentioned previously, those who benefit from the recommendations should also be part of the cost associated with those recommendations." So, this document also agrees with Government and the private sector sharing part of the load while both derive benefits.

The document also explains the reasons for training. It says: "The concern by Caymanians is not the tourists who come to enjoy the resources and products that are made available to them, but rather the people who have employment in and who manage the industry. This concern is significant and it needs to be addressed so that it does not become a stumbling block to tourism growth in these islands." Part of the growth management procedures imply training, customer satisfaction, human resources.

Madam Speaker, this entire document is pertinent, but I know that you are not very patient with quoting much, so I will not. I am sure that there is good reason for that, but let me say that in this document it says: "Historically it has been shown that uncontrolled growth typically results in a degeneration of product and service." It says: "The resources which motivate tourists to come to the Cayman Islands must be maintained at a high level of quality."

The Speaker: Perhaps I should say to the Honourable Members and Ministers that under Standing Order 32 (4) the provisions are: "A Member shall not read his speech but may refresh his memory by reference to notes and may read extracts of reasonable length from books or papers in support of his argument."

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Having quoted those various excerpts from the document, I wish to make a few comparisons with the other document.

In its Executive Summary, the document (which is the document which is being used now) says: "There can be no doubt that the tourism industry also creates social costs (e.g. traffic congestion). If properly managed, these should have minimal adverse impacts on the lives of Caymanians." The various excerpts I have read from the Ten Year Development Plan addressed the need to pay attention to infrastructure and its ongoing requirements as compared to the rate of growth.

Tourism development is easily paralleled to the growth rate in the country. It has to do with the number of bodies residing in the country, whether they be indigenous or not. It has to do with the construction of lodgings and it is not something that can be separated from the infrastructural needs of the country. The Ten Year Development Plan has specific objectives dealing with infrastructure.

Nevertheless, the point that I wish to make about the Ten Year Tourism Development Plan with the portions that I have addressed is that they are as relevant today as they were in 1992. If we look at the document being used now, in my opinion it is nowhere near as in-depth a guideline as the Ten Year Tourism Development Plan.

Let me also say regarding the Ten Year Tourism Development Plan that the process followed in its production was specifically designed to include as wide a cross-section as possible of our entire community. Workshops were held both in Cayman Brac and in Grand Cayman. Many interviews were held by the consultants with the hoteliers, the retailers, bankers, taxi drivers, airlines, cruise lines, lawyers, accountants, legislators, civil servants and many others. The plan was not a Coopers & Lybrand plan. They simply collated and coordinated all of the information.

It is my understanding that the individuals directly involved with the preparation of this plan exceeded the figure of 300. Strategic Planning is something which is being used in other Ministries..., and I do not have a problem with strategic planning, it involves a lot of professionals in the various relevant areas, but if this plan had input by all the people representing these various sectors, then how much different a strategic plan was it from any other strategic plan?

What is happening now is that in the document being used they are now going from district to district meeting with people. I do not know how much participation there has been so far, but the question that I would ask (and I wish for the Minister to address) is: if this document is based upon the findings and recommendations of the consulting group (namely, Coopers & Lybrand), I would like to know where are the revisions which have been made in this document, as compared to the other to reflect today's existing reality?

I do not claim to have the best understanding, but I have gone through the documents (and it might be said that I am not looking for it, but I am willing to be proven wrong), and I do not see where the vast revisions have been made. I would like to know what those revisions are so that I can fully understand it all, and so that I can get a real good grasp of this document's increasing relevance as compared to the other document.

The other thing that the Ten Year Tourism Development Plan addressed in great detail was how all of the plans were going to be accomplished. The Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan is skeptical, at best, with these details.

If it is the Government's position that what 300-odd people put together, and decided was the course of action the country should take, is unacceptable, then my understanding is that the consultants have now been brought in to tell us what is acceptable. If that is not the case, then I simply ask what was unacceptable about the various implementation plans that were part and parcel of the Ten Year Tourism Development Plan?

There will be answers forthcoming about these documents, and I have exposed myself to those answers for good reason. What I can only hope for, when the bulldozing is finished, is that the consultants will pay credence to the Ten Year Tourism Development Plan in whatever they are going to put forward for this country. The Ten Year Tourism Development Plan literally addressed what everyone who lives in Cayman understands as regards the problems that we face and the things which have not been dealt with, even though we are enjoying good growth rates and figures for tourism.

At this point in time I am not questioning what is happening in the Department of Tourism or their marketing strategies. I am not suggesting for a minute that these strategies are not workable and not doing the job. What I am talking about is the long-term possible negative effects that will naturally occur because of this growth and our lack of will to deal with it before and during the fact, and not after the fact. We are no longer before the fact, we are now during the fact.

I do not know if the thought of the day is that I should not have to deal with something that is not mine. But if I were operating a successful business, and I dropped dead and someone else took over, if the business had been successful it could not have been all bad. Certainly, new blood can bring new ideas and new innovations, but I would think that the sensible thing would be to enhance what exists and not to have to start from scratch again.

The view will be taken that because the Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan is basically extrapolated from the Ten Year Tourism Development Plan, that the first document is no problem. But just by sheer size alone, it is obvious that the document prepared in 1992 has much more information than the new document. I can only surmise that all of the information that was left out and not used in the new document was unacceptable. That means that 300-odd people - many of whom were professionals, and others who had been in the tourism industry for some 30 or 40 years - really did not have any idea what was going on. I guess that is left to be seen. I am very curious to know what, if any, are the revisions made in order to reflect today's existing reality.

The last thing I note about this document, The Tourism Management Policy Implementation Plan (which is the new document), is that out of 40 pages the only place I see where it addresses to any degree at all the infrastructure, is on page 2 where it says, under the heading 'Purpose': "It is designed to: Provide an approach to tourism development, including related infrastructure and recreation facilities and services for visitors and residents that are appropriate to the purposes and the land capability of the areas in which they are located;..." That statement is fine, but it just related to infrastructure by the by. Whether a different Minister is responsible for looking after infrastructure or not, the two cannot be separated. Whether someone else is responsible for making sure that we keep up... In fact if we look at the responsibilities within the Ministries there are other Ministers who would be involved in infrastructure - just about all of them. I know that everyone has their own responsibility, but they all overlap; one cannot separate dealing with the area of tourism and doing everything to ensure that the quality and the numbers are right without dealing (at the very same time, not afterwards) with infrastructural needs.

One of the things that was recognised when the Ten Year Tourism Plan was put together by Coopers & Lybrand (and they called it a national tourism committee I suspect it no longer exists), was: "The national tourism committee is envisioned as elevating and creating a prime focus for the tourism industry. It is composed of the Members from the four Portfolios [in 1992 there were four Portfolios] thought to be the most important for tourism development. By having the four Members of those Portfolios 'linked' to a common goal (that is, tourism development), it is felt that the needed profile for the industry is created." The four Portfolios identified were: Tourism, Aviation and Trade, Finance and Development, Education, Environment, Recreation and Culture and Communications Works and Agriculture. They are all in different names now, but the point is that with long range planning we cannot be dealing with one aspect without the other.

As far as I am concerned, this new document singularly and solely addresses providing the best product possible to invite as many tourists as possible to these islands in order for tourism to enjoy good sustained growth. So it is not my point to say that the document has no value; my point is that the document is isolated to all of the good things which create the good numbers at the end of the day and the document does not in any meaningful way address the other areas that must be dealt with when we are dealing with this matter.

As I said, I hope to understand where the changes have been made to relate to the order of the day.

Moving on to the Ministry for Health: The Minister in his contribution yesterday outlined in much detail the activities of his Ministry. He talked about the new facility which is underway. The area that I wish to quickly address is health insurance.

On more than one occasion I have asked the question in this House as to when a National Health Insurance Plan would be proposed. I am happy to know that it is in the works. But as I have talked to some people I also recognise that there are some inherent problems which must be dealt with. I understand and accept the view that there are many areas which may not be initially addressed, and will only come with the plan being utilised and experience showing where changes have to be made. But I think that there are some basic ideas, and I am sure the Minister will ensure that those who are dealing with this document will have a look at the problems.

A simple problem that comes to mind (which I have heard) is that if you are hiring an individual to do a specific job which might only last for a few hours, there are certain things which have to be ensured regarding health insurance. I do not know how matters such as that are going to be dealt with, but we cannot have it so that while it serves good purposes in one way it also inhibits people from doing their daily tasks in another way. Those are things which need to be addressed.

I wish to briefly touch on Mental Health Services. On more than one occasion we have talked about this and, unfortunately, it is always something that is not very nice to have to talk about because we do not wish for people to be in that condition. But the truth is that they do exist among us.

I understand that a consultant is being hired to conduct a review of the Mental Health Programme with a view to improving existing services and identifying areas where expansion of the present programme is required to meet the growing needs of those patients with mental health problems. What I do not see here is any mention of facilities to house these people.

It is a problem, I know, but we do need some type of facility to house these people no matter what type of services we offer. When we walk through George Town we see some of them. There are some of them who are kept in and the whole family's life is just about nonexistent because of the situation. It is just one of those hard facts of life that we have to deal with. I really hope that in the big picture of the new Health Services facility that this situation is looked at.

Moving on to the Ministry of Education and Planning: The Minister for Health mentioned yesterday about working in conjunction with the Ministry for Education to ensure that drug abuse prevention, education and exposure to the problems of drug abuse, is made known at the primary level. I have said in this Honourable House that I believe it is not something that we can wait until the age of adolescence to make part of the curriculum. I am happy to hear that both Ministries are working toward this goal.

We cannot do too much in this area because while it will not cure all ills, education is certainly the best weapon that we have to fight that scourge.

There is a specific item which I have to deal with and it comes under the Ministry of Education and Planning. It is something that was mentioned by the Third Elected Member for West Bay regarding the basketball courts at the George Town Primary School and the deplorable condition they are in because of broken glass and bottles on them. The Headmistress at the school has not allowed the children to use those facilities out of fear of their getting injured.

I wish for him and for others to know that on a prior visit to the school (probably about three or four months ago) by George Town representatives, the situation was brought to light. The Minister was there, the Chief Education Officer was there, and it is my understanding that there is communication between the Ministry for Education and the Ministry for Sports in dealing with the situation. So, as deplorable as it is, it is not a situation that is unknown and I daresay that the people who are responsible for dealing with it may have something to say about it themselves. But mention was made, the concern was raised, and it is in the hands of others.

I have some concerns with education, especially for my district. I understand, from a question answered in the House recently, that the problem of overcrowding at the entrance level in the two primary schools in George Town is a problem that is now understood and being addressed. I come back to my song and my chorus about long term planning. I am certain the Minister faces problems on a daily basis regarding education, not just in my district, but in others. I would hope that some type of long range planning for the physical structures is dealt with. The Estimates of 1996 for the various improvements and additions to the schools, but let me just make the point by saying that the George Town Primary School has to have physical upgrading, it is becoming over-crowded again. It was unbearable before the Red Bay Primary School came into being. Now both schools are bursting at the seams.

We again refer to that juggling act, where priorities are concerned, but I am sure that the Minister understands and accepts that education is hardly anything that one can put second in line.

The Governor mentioned that the "...capital works programme will continue. The building programme at the Red Bay Primary School will continue with the addition of a multi-purpose hall." I see no mention of the George Town Primary School. For those who have a feel for both facilities and who go there and see the children as they are in the classrooms, see that it is tolerable right now. But it is obvious that with the increase in numbers in the space of two or three years, we are going to be facing the same problem in another year or two. It has, in fact, already started to occur, and stop-gap measures have been put in place to accommodate the children. But it is only going to get worse and I hope that we do not have to be fighting each other over what should have taken place when we find ourselves with dozens of parents complaining about not being able to find space for their children.

I understand the Savannah School is slated to have two classes for each year to accommodate just about the same number of students again. It might do well to consider the same thing for the Red Bay School, although there will be need for physical structures there. Short of that, I think we will be looking at a new school.

It is not something that we can sacrifice anything for in this country. We must be dealing with the situation expeditiously. In passing conversation with one of the senior officers in the Department of Education, I heard that it is recognised that long range planning has to be looked at. I trust that it will be, because it is going to be disheartening if it is not done and we end up with a situation at the George Town Primary School like we had four or five years ago where the children were literally sitting on top of each other. I hope that we do not have to face that situation again.

In this sitting the Minister for Education (who is also the Minister for Planning) alluded to the fact that the review of the Development Plan will not be completed until 1997. I understand the problems that he faces with the objections, and the various tribunals that have to hear the objections to and complaints about the proposed Development Plan. But, God forbid, having gone this far, it ends up like the other attempts made prior to this. One of the most important aspects of the Development Plan Review is the road corridors which have to be recognised, accepted and put into place. I will talk about it later on when we deal with roads, I will make the point about the corridors. While individuals have their fusses, I hope they can be resolved as amicable and expeditiously as possible.

One of my main concerns with the Development Plan Review is the establishment of these road corridors, because that again is an area that we have to look at and make serious long-term plans in order to be able to create proper land use as the country develop and in order to prepare for the future rather than the future preparing for us.

The item in the Governor's Throne Speech is the Ministry for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. Firstly, I want to touch the Post Office. The Governor has said that "the Post Office will continue to improve its operations and services to customers." Other speakers before me have mentioned the vast improvements in recent years; the customer services facilities have been greatly enhanced, the ambiance inside the building has been greatly enhanced and staff morale has been very high.

The lady who was very instrumental in this achievement is one of the few people whom I have seen in a leadership role being able to use discipline to raise staff morale. That is a feat worth mentioning. I know a lot of the members of staff at the Post Office. I speak to some of them quite often. For about the last one and a half years there has been a tremendous change in their outlook and there have been vast improvements in their output. The unfortunate events which have recently occurred leave me very saddened. I am not so sure whether it is totally in order for me to talk about this matter at any level, but I will say this: I am saddened to see Miss Corrine Glasgow no longer being the Postmistress General.

To take politics out of the matter, because it really has nothing to do with politics. I understand quite clearly that the events which led to Miss Glasgow's not being the post holder anymore has nothing to do with politics. I think that the unfortunate series of events which have taken place have left us with a lesson. Like the lady Member for North Side said in her contribution, I sincerely hope that there is some way to resolve the matter and let us get on with Miss Glasgow's being at the helm at the Post Office.

Those who work there would be very relieved and happy. The Civil Service would be enriched by her presence.

With some knowledge I am convinced that this is one of those situations where no one, from the top of the Civil Service right down, wishes to the Miss Glasgow not remain in the Service. I believe she wishes to continue her duties. So whatever the barriers are they must be able to be climbed. While the issue at this point in time may seem to be a dead one (I think everybody has had a little bit of a breather), I sincerely hope that those who have to be directly involved in the process would take it upon themselves to sort out the matter. This is not a situation where anyone wants to be rid of anyone. So I hope the matter can be resolved.

Nevertheless, during the days and weeks to come I guess we will see what happens regarding that matter. I have a situation here that I am forced to speak about under the Department of Environment. On national television this morning there was a situation brought to light regarding the new compound for the Department of Environment in the North Sound.

In an answer to a recent question I asked of the Minister responsible, he outlined that planning permission was refused for one of the buildings on North Sound for the Department of Environment and he listed the various reasons why the Central Planning Authority refused the application. The other building was approved and is nearing completion, but the Central Planning Authority which by law is bound to pay credence to the concerns of the citizens of the country had a problem with approving that building. In the answer the Minister went on to say, "No vehicle maintenance would be carried out on the site, the only thing that would be done would be calibration testing of three fogging machines." Specifically, he said that ...there would be no storage of fogging chemicals on the site." Now what was on television this morning showed various drums which had been placed on the same site and the labels on the drums read: AUTO DEBRUM-14 CONCENTRATE (which is an insecticide). Without reading all the details of the label what it talks about is very harmful to children and is dangerous.

The Minister has spoken to me about this matter and having raised this I wish to let it be made clear that the people of that neighbourhood who have raised concerns (they, too, have their rights) are not a large number of people, but as one of the representatives for the district I also represent them. I know that the other representatives for the district are very concerned about the situation. The truth of the matter is that fate has a funny way of manifesting itself sometimes. These people have been raising concerns about this building and how they see it affecting their lives. For many months they have gone through the entire process.

The Central Planning Authority has decided, based on arguments put forward from both sides, that it is not in the best interest to allow the building to be constructed. I know that the Department must get on with its business, but when conflicts of this nature arise it is incumbent on Government to be super sensitive to the concerns raised by individuals who have built their homes, who have just about everything they own invested in those homes, and they are living right next door to the proposed building.

It could be argued that there are other industrial-type operations going on in the vicinity. But whether one wants to debate the issue or not, the concerns raised by these people (especially with what transpired recently), have proven to be genuine concerns. I do not know what is going to be done about it, and I do not think there is any satisfaction to be gained by those individuals unless we find somewhere else to house the facility. The Appellant Tribunal will decide based on what is presented to it.

What I have brought to light here (which is probably known by everyone by now because of the television coverage) needs to be addressed by the Minister. I do not think for a minute that the Minister knew about the situation, otherwise he would not have committed himself by saying that this type of material would not be stored on site. However, while the Minister did not store it on the site, someone else did. We will see what the explanation is.

When you speak to these individuals who live in the area most of them have been there for over ten years, some for fifteen years going on twenty years. It is really hard for them to have to be dealing with this situation after all those years. I sincerely hope that something will be sorted out regarding the situation.

There are a few areas of concern that I have dealing with the Public Works Department. I am sure that the other representatives of other districts are (not attacked, but close to that) approached on a daily basis about roads. For the district of George Town, specifically, when the Public Works Department did a survey and costing regarding upgrading, fixing and maintenance of roads a few months ago, it was estimated that the areas that they covered would cost in the region of $5 million. The amount which we have in the Budget to operate with this year is $238,000 - less than 5% of what is needed. That gives a good picture of what we are up against.

If Governments before had dealt with the situation we might not be faced with such an acute problem as we are now. But I am sure we all understand that no-one here can turn back the hands of time. The fact is, this is a problem we are facing now. I am only talking about George Town, the district I represent now, but will quickly go into the wider parameters. There are large subdivisions where pot-holes are easily the size of me - that is a big one - and the representatives have been asking for these roads to be fixed and the money is just not available.

I hold the view that when it comes to that part of our infrastructure (I am not even talking about new roads, I am talking about fixing the existing roads in the subdivisions and also the main thoroughfares) if the continued outlook is one whereby whenever the budget is depleted and whatever little can be spared we use, we will not get value for money.

There are those who will say that I am supporting and proposing huge borrowings for the country. But if all the bad governments before did nothing about it, and into the fourth year of this wonderful Government still nothing is done, then I would like to know which Government is going to deal with it if we continue in the same fashion. The point that I make is, if the people of the country knew that there was a planned course of action, if it was going to take two years or three years to deal with the situation in its entirety we all would know what is in play and people would understand and wait. What is happening to us now is that none of us knows which road is going to be done the next time around.

If we add up all the smaller amounts dealing with patchwork, I would venture to say that we are probably spending between $3 million to $4 million for the year. But because we are dealing with it in this fashion we never get value for money. What it takes the Public Works Department to go into a subdivision and do a little bit of patchwork on the roads (which will last until it rains again) is certainly not the way we are going to get the best results. I believe that we are better off looking at this with a specific plan in mind. I firmly believe that funds which are expended for roads throughout the districts for the various menial jobs on an annual basis (which are only done halfway and next year we have to go back and do them over) could be applied to one lump sum. If it is borrowed and the works are phased properly, before we know it we would have the situation in hand and be able to deal with maintenance work. At this rate we will never catch up and will never be in a position to catch up, utilising the same methods we are utilising now.

It may sound as if the dollars and cents do not add up, but I promise anyone here (and I am sure the Minister himself can verify this) that the patchwork that is done (which is simply a band-aid situation over a period of time) ends up costing just as much as if the funds were available to do the job right, which would give us another 15 or 20 years extended life to the road.

The majority of roads that we have in our districts have almost reached the end of their life span. What are we going to do then? If we believe it is just subdivisions that I am talking about, it is not! They are but a part of the problem and come to the forefront because everyone screams about them - and rightly so.

It is not only those roads that we have to worry about. Just about every main thoroughfare which the majority of people in this country travel will very soon be at the end of their life-span and we will be watching and waiting to see when the final breath leaves the body. I am suggesting that the Government take a very serious look at this situation.

I do not believe that proper financing would mean any additional cost to the country. It simply means that we would be able to plan our projects in the best way possible. We would get value for money by being able to mobilise the equipment and the manpower in a sequenced fashion which gives the best results. It would be most cost-effective, and we would be paying it back out of the money that we now use to do patchwork which gives us no result. That has to make sense. I know that I am not the only one with that idea. I know there are others who have that or a similar idea.

I firmly believe it is a route for us to take. As representatives we are continually fighting about this district getting more than my districts, and my people are hollering and yeah, yeah, yeah. It is never going to stop unless we deal with a concerted effort and with a plan in mind that will take care of everyone.

I noticed that in the Governor's contribution he spoke about the proposed Harquail bypass. He said, "In new road construction, design and survey work has commenced on the Harquail bypass and preliminary plans are being prepared or the Crewe Road Bypass. Work on the Harquail Bypass will begin during the second quarter of this year on a Finance and Build package that will be negotiated jointly between the Ministry, the Public Works Department and a consortium of local contractors which will be chosen as a result of an invitation to tender which will be published shortly."

In the answer to a question in this sitting of the House which was asking for a time frame for commencement and completion of the proposed Harquail bypass, the Minister responsible for Public Works gave as part of his answer: “Supplement funding request can then be considered by Finance Committee after the survey work is completed and land acquisition estimates are made. If funding arrangements for construction are worked, construction can then start on the 1st of June.”

I speak about this specific situation to simply air my views, hopefully to give food for thought regarding the way this situation will work. In answer to questions and debate earlier, my understanding was that the Harquail bypass was going to be tendered in a manner which included construction cost and the organising of financing for the project. In the Governor's contribution he basically said the same thing. In supplementary questions to the Minister it appears that it is not cast in stone, that is to say it is not a definite situation. It appears that the bypass road is going to be put out to tender in such a way that both construction cost and the organising of finances are part and parcel of the tendering process.

It is my belief that there is no sensible reason for Government to need a private contractor to organise financing. At the end of the day any private contractor who wishes to bid for the job and organise the financing through a financial institution will be seeking some type of guarantee from the Cayman Islands Government in order to secure himself. To me that is a given because no one in their right mind would operate differently. If the Government has to guarantee the situation, Government might as well deal with the loan on its own.

The other thing is that I do not believe there is anyone who would engage not just in tendering for the job, but also seeking financing of that magnitude, who would simply do that for nothing. It just does not work like that. It is going to cost us somewhere along the line. So I am hoping that since there seems to be some change of heart, that whenever this project comes to the Finance Committee it comes with two separate situations and what is sought is a loan - a loan which the Government is engaged in which is totally disassociated from the tender for the construction of the road. I just cannot see any sense in doing it like that without bearing additional cost to the Government. If the Government is going to be held responsible in writing, then the Government might as well be responsible in negotiating and dealing with the loan; then there can be no questions asked if the Government deals with it straight without a middle individual.

If the funding is for ten years, or fifteen years, or twenty years, would somebody build a road that is going to cost somewhere between $8 million or $10 million and then be held responsible to pay back the loan for that time? Again, I do not see them doing that without, at the minimum, Government making a guarantee plus other pages of red tape to secure themselves. I hope that my point is taken and when it is dealt with it is dealt with in that fashion.

The Speaker: Would you take a suspension at this time?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Ma'am.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.03 PM

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town continuing.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, when we took the break I was going on to speak about another answer to a question that was posed in this sitting (and I am still under the heading of Public Works). The question asked the Minister responsible to give an update on the proposed National Road Plan. In the answer the Minister identified the scheduling of the work. He said, “... longer periods of up to ten years are needed for land acquisition, utility works and funding arrangements. A National Road Plan must naturally dovetail with the Development Plan and take into account the needs of both the business and residential sectors.” He also said that “...an immediate need is to identify alternate road corridors to address the problem of traffic congestion on the present roads.” I chose those excerpts from the Minister's answer to say that I could not agree more with the statement. It comes down to that chorus about long-term planning.

The problem that we face (I have mentioned it before in other areas) is regarding the infrastructure. My sincere fear is that it will never be meaningfully addressed because the longer we look at the problem the more it magnifies in front of us. Everything that faces us in these directions is nothing new; it has been talked about for years. The only thing that happens is that as time goes on every time we look at the problem it becomes more difficult, but all the same problems still exist. The answers are not easy.

The Minister mentioned in the answer that it will take up to ten years to deal with land acquisition, the utility works and funding arrangements. There was an old plan that was talked about from 1983. There was the Master Ground Transportation Plan which had gone a certain distance in the process, but the Member at the time got cold feet and withdrew it because of pressures from many areas. The problem is still here.

If we want to take the view that we can leave it for someone else to deal with because it is nothing easy for us to deal with, I guess we can fall in line as others have. But the problem is not going away.

I see where roads are being gazetted today that were in the process of being gazetted many years ago. The gazetting process was never completed. It is sad that whenever anything of such importance to the well-being and the future of this country always gets thrashed about. We fight about it and find reasons why this part is not good, and why that part is not good. I know that as the Master Ground Transportation Plan had many good points about it, there is always the argument that ensues about the costs (while I am here giving out the wish lists, I know that we cannot do everything at one time). But the costs are not as important as the fact that we have a plan that we will follow however long it takes us to complete. That is the point that I think is important to us right now.

I hope that the people who are engaged in this plan will utilise the plan prior to this and dust off the ones that have been shelved and make use of them, because what was relevant then is certainly relevant today for hardly anything has been done, if anything at all.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.41 PM

I seriously wish to make the point that for the few who may sit here and listen to what I am saying with a cocked-ear thinking, 'I have to listen carefully because I wonder how what he is saying will affect me', that is not the concern at hand. It is unfortunate that this disease has existed among us forever. The concern is what we have to do regarding long-term planning for the country.

I am not an expert in many areas, but I have been around quite long enough to understand and accept that when we deal with national issues practicing band-aid procedures is not going to get us anywhere. Many of the cuts are much wider than a band-aid can handle. When we talk about the roads and go back to something of the past, we are always concerned about who was dealing with it, when what is of importance is the problem and what we are going to do about it.

I fully understand that each representative or group of representatives from the districts will always be throwing out wants and wishes to satisfy the public, because it is that same public from whom they gain their support. Perhaps the things that I am saying right now do not seem to bear relevance because it makes life for us a bit more difficult, and we have to think harder. I say this evening that the problem we face in this country today is not going to be solved by bickering with each other. It is not going to be solved by us taking things personally. It is going to take all the various agencies, all the representatives, all the personnel working full-time to come together in a concerted effort with a planned approach. If we do not have a properly planned approach, at the end of the day the quality of life in this country is going to diminish. We are going to be wondering what has happened and why. Then everybody is going to point fingers at each other and say, "It was not me. It was him, it was her."

Every time we get into a specific issue we get sidetracked with the personal aspects of things. It is my belief that the professionals who are in the Civil Service have the ability to play their role in conceiving and putting together sensible plans. It is also my belief that they have the ability, once the policy-makers decide on major policies, to set those plans in motion for the country to move forward.

As I discuss these closing aspects of the problems that we face, I would like to quickly read from a keynote address which was delivered by Dr. Sybil Wilson at the Third National Education Conference. The Doctor said: "The complexity and the diversity of our modern world calls for multiple voices. Those voices are the voices of our citizens, young (and not so young), male and female of various shades and tones. Invariable some voices ring out more loudly than others and thus we have our leaders in our several communities, be they political, educational, religious, social, sports, or linguistic communities. But we always hope that those voices ring out with wisdom and truth." She says, "True national pride respects multi cultural diversity. The nurturing and care of each is the responsibility of the entire community." Madam Speaker, it is my hope that the areas that I have addressed in the Throne Speech will bring to light certain issues that we have to deal with.

I know that Rome was not built in a day, but there must be some serious effort towards dealing with the issues that face us - the larger issues. The individual issues are issues which we will have to deal with from day to day, but if we get consumed and do not look at the broad picture, very soon we will have a little more than we can handle and it will get worse as time goes by. So I hope that after we are through with all the positioning that is expected of us (it is an election year), that we get down to the business of not simply running the country, but doing the things that need to be done.

In closing let me say that I have been proud to be a representative for the district of George Town. I will continue to do the best that I know how, given the tools that I have to work with. I will continue to point out difficulties that we face and issues that need to be addressed. It is my hope that those who have the authority to deal with these issues will pick up the mantle and do what has to be done so that we can look forward to a better country. Thank you.

The Speaker: I do not expect that any Member would want to begin their reply at this time, we have just about nine minutes left. Could I ask for a motion for the adjournment?

Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock on Monday morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock on Monday morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. ..Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.22 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM, MONDAY, 11TH MARCH, 1996.

MONDAY
11TH MARCH, 1996
11.05 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Temporary First Official Member to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. Proceedings are resumed. Commonwealth Day Message 1996 from Her Majesty the Queen.

MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

COMMONWEALTH DAY MESSAGE 1996 FROM HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN, HEAD OF THE COMMONWEALTH

(Read by the Hon. Speaker of the Legislative Assembly)

“The theme for Commonwealth Day this year is ‘Working in Partnership’. This theme reminds us that we can achieve much more if we work in a team, making use of each other’s different skills and experience, than if we are all separately trying to do the same thing. A successful partnership depends on mutual respect and friendship, and what matters is not what people are but what they can contribute to the common purpose. Partnership builds on experience, drawing lessons from the past and cementing shared friendships, and it looks to the future as it tackles the challenges of the present.

“The Commonwealth is an excellent example of this kind of partnership. The 53 sovereign nations who belong to it have vastly different social and ethnic traditions, but it has been able to fashion unity out of this diversity and to become a working partnership of governments and peoples. One of the most valuable aspects of this partnership is the network of Commonwealth Non-governmental Organisations which link members of a wide range of professions and activities: architects, engineers, journalists and broadcasters, doctors and vets, magistrates and judges, and so on, and help them to benefit from each other’s experience and to work together for the common good. There are thriving partnerships between the Universities, the parliamentarians and the Trade Unions of the Commonwealth countries. In the arts, literature and music, there are Commonwealth links which enrich the cultural life of all the members, and there is also a friendly rivalry in a wide range of sporting activities.

“The Heads of Government of the Commonwealth set out its fundamental aims and principles in a statement adopted at Harare in 1991, and last November in New Zealand they agreed on an important Action Programme to give that mission statement a real cutting edge, with the emphasis on democracy, development and consensus building. Those aims, like so many others, can best be pursued in partnership both within the Commonwealth and on a wider global scale.

“Young people learn early the value of taking part in teams and tackling projects in partnership. I hope that you will carry those lessons into later life and, with the idealism and clear vision which the young can offer, help to build lasting partnerships to make the world a better and safer place.

Elizabeth R.
11th March, 1996.”

OBITUARY

(The Late Capt. Keith Tibbetts)

The Speaker: As Members are aware one of our past and old parliamentarians Capt. Keith Tibbetts passed away recently. He had been sick for a long time and, Members will recall that he was a vibrant and ardent Member of the Legislature during the time of his service.

As usual I will ask the Clerk to convey, on behalf of the House, sincere condolences to his widow and family. I will ask Members at this time to stand for a moment of silence in respect.

MOMENT OF SILENCE

The Speaker: Please be seated.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have an apology from Mr. Roy Bodden, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, who is attending a school function in that district.

Government Business, continuation of the debate on the Throne Speech.

The Second Elected Member for George Town.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY MR. JOHN W. OWEN, MBE., GOVERNOR OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS, ON FRIDAY, 16TH FEBRUARY, 1996

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Dr. Stephenson A Tomlinson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Listening to the Governor deliver the Throne Speech on the 16th of February, I felt justifiably proud, and also challenged by the very ambitious programmes outlined for 1996. We are but a population of 30,000 and if we accomplish so many things in such a short period of time, it will be nothing short of record breaking.

The Governor reminded us in his preamble of the character of our forefathers - and I better be careful since there are so many women in the House now, I will say fore-parents! He reminded us of how strong they were and we know that our foreparents had vision and that they were a tough breed. They were self-reliant and were of an independent nature. I think it was quite appropriate for the Governor to remind us of the qualities of our foreparents.

Although some of us may have to thread new paths, I believe that all of us will need every ounce of determination and human creativity our foreparents had and perhaps even more.

It was Ann Landers who said "Opportunities are often disguised as hard work and many people do not see them." It was Ralph Emerson who said, "Hitch your wagon to a Star." We will not only have to grasp opportunities, but we will in instances create opportunities. I believe it is well within the reach of our generation, and generations to come, to continue the success story of the Cayman Islands.

We are in the middle of a boom. Things have not been quite so good for a long time. Ask the realtors, the hoteliers, banks, anyone in the country and they will tell you it is booming. Everything is booming; we are in the middle of a boom. Recently I read the Real Estate Report (I think a Minister also referred to that report) and I believe that is exemplary of what is going on in the country, things are booming at present.

This was not the situation in 1992, and these things did not just occur by serendipity; these things occurred because of hard work on the part of the present Government. We can all be eternally grateful for the changes that have occurred in the Cayman Islands. I believe that 1996 will be even better than the past three years from all accounts and reports.

This country is very fortunate when we consider the fact that we have virtually no natural resources. Because of foresight we enjoy a very healthy financial industry, and a booming tourism industry. The Governor made mention of these two industries in his preamble. Our Government is committed to doing everything in its power to make them even better.

In 1993, we passed the Mutual Fund legislation and what has happened since then is remarkable. I am told that we have outstripped Bermuda and three other jurisdictions in mutual fund assets in that short period of time.

In mid-1996 we expect that the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange will be up and running. This, to me, is an example of foresight and I believe that the future of the stock exchange is bright. I believe it will be quite a success and that it will complement our financial industry and generally enhance things here in the Cayman Islands.

I would like to caution the Government to see that it gets a fair share from the stock exchange. We need money to build our infrastructure, and while it would not serve us, it would not help us to be greedy I would like to see Government getting a fair share from the stock exchange - not just breaking even.

The Alma Mater of the National Team is "Building for the 21st Century." Notice I say 'Alma Mater' and not slogan'. To me that is very significant.

This year (1996) reminds us that we are less than 46 months from the new millennium and there is a lot to be done. I believe that is why the agenda of the Government is so heavy. Time is short and there is so much to be accomplished.

Gone are the days when everything could be done manually. Like it or not, we are in a new technological age and if we go through the Governor's Throne Speech we will see where many efforts are being made to computerise various departments. Efforts are being made to trade information giving easy access to information so that things will become more efficient. We have to maintain our competitive edge in the international market place.

Easy access to information due to computerisation in the Courts, Customs, Companies Registry, Financial Services, Police, Planning and other Government Departments is starting to pay off, in particular with the General Registry. All senior managers will be able to access information in the General Registry later this year. I believe that is a major stride forward. This is going to be welcomed by the private sector and will make our Government and, in turn, the country as a whole more efficient. Having direct access will avoid many of the headaches which have existed in the past.

The Civil Service has to be efficient. Government is obviously committed to providing the tools necessary and as a result we can only hope that the efficiency of the Service will be enhanced.

There is an ongoing review of the General Orders and the Public Service Commission Regulations. I understand that the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs will soon be completing the major exercises of evaluating all civil servants' posts. The concept of a hard day's work for a good day's pay must apply in the Civil Service also. I believe this revision is timely and it is the way we should go and that performance should definitely be linked to pay.

I would like to interject at this time and say something that I did not say in the past meeting regarding the 9% increase in civil servants' pay last year (I think it is effective this year). We know that the Civil Service is deserving of a salary increase and I fully support it. However, I feel that the increase should not have been across the board. I would have much preferred a greater increase for the lower paid civil servants and less percentage increase for the senior civil servants. I believe that would have been a better move.

For example, persons making $1,600 per month could have benefitted greatly from a 16% increase and persons making $6,000 per month could do with perhaps a 4% or 5% percent increase.

The Government is doing all it can to ensure easy access to information and that the Civil Service becomes extremely efficient. There are complaints from the general public about the Service's inefficiencies. There will always be complaints, Madam Speaker. We must, however, do all we can to ensure that it is as efficient as possible.

New technology has its flip side too. As computerisation comes on line there must be a familiarisation period (and I believe the public understands that). So there will be hiccoughs at times.

I understand that at present, for instance, the Customs Department has just installed a new computerisation system and it is causing some delays. But I believe the public understands that this will occur before people are fully familiar with the new system.

We must not allow technology to roll over us - overwhelm us, it must remain our servant. It must never become our master. In the midst of this plethora of informatics we must allow the human spirit to survive and human creativity must not be buried beneath an overabundance of data and paper so that we do not know where we are going.

Government is often criticised about mixing up priorities. This complaint I believe, is a hackneyed one; I have heard it from the time I was in my teens, and now we are singing the praises of the past Government. I believe that we will forever have people who feel that whatever the Government is doing is not correct and that it is mixing up its priorities. It is a very delicate balancing act.

I am reminded of situations where patients have come to me and said, "Dr. Tomlinson, this is the worst thing that has ever happened to me in my life, have such a severe back ache", the next one has is a severe ear ache. But to them that is the worst thing that can happen to them. Government on the other hand has to look at the general situation and take a broad overview and do what is necessary for the country. It depends on the need.

Having said that, I would like to state some of my perspectives regarding priorities. Firstly, we must protect the country from external and internal threats; safety and security for all has got to be high on our list of priorities. We depend on the United Kingdom and the United States in the event of foreign invasion. Response time must be quick in such an event to prevent undue harm. To the best of my knowledge this is in place. Or is it?

At present the police are the only on-the-spot force to combat threats to internal security. During the Cuban migrant crisis (in 1995 the Governor referred in the preamble of the Throne Speech to the Cuban migrant crisis again it is in this Throne Speech 1996) the need for a Cayman regiment became obvious. There were some very intense moments during the Cuban migrant crisis. At times there was fear of a riot and even insurrection. If I remember correctly in the Throne Speech of 1996 the Governor remarked that ever since the influx of Cuban migrants the need for a Cayman regiment has been more evident. Recently, a Government delegation, he said, had gone to Bermuda to observe that country's regiment. He reminded us that the Government was considering setting up a Cayman Islands regiment to assist the country in times of need particularly in times of natural disaster, a Cadet Corp. as a disciplinary service where young people can be given guidance in self-control and discipline.

I know that after that Throne Speech the Government received quite a lot of flak about this Cayman Regiment and it was not an extremely popular idea with the public. However, I want to make it clear that I, for one, feel that a Cayman Regiment is necessary, albeit a small one. I believe that this idea should not be scrapped, it should be implemented. We have to ensure safety and security in this country. I believe it is something that we should take a new look at, although as far as I know, no moves were made to implement it in 1995, we should take a fresh look at the idea of a Cayman Regiment.

As far as the Cadet Corps is concerned, from the time I was a teenager I felt that it would be extremely good for persons graduating from high school to do at least a year service in the Corps, except, of course, in some exceptional cases. But this would greatly enhance the calibre of persons hitting the work force once they have completed time in a Cadet Corps.

People in the Cayman Islands Regiment would not be busy at all times as other regiments are in times of crisis. But in times of peace they could be involved in telecommunication, at the dock and in airport activities. They could also be involved in maintenance programmes and in other essential Government services. Just imagine if Cable and Wireless fails to function. This country has got to maintain contact with the outside world. A Cayman Islands Regiment could not only be helpful in such instances, but in time of natural disaster, they could come to our rescue and help us immensely.

I would like to say a bit more on the Cuban migrant crisis. When we had such an influx of Cubans (I believe it was in the region of 1,500 migrants) it strapped and stretched our resources greatly. We did as well as we could and coped fairly well with the situation. We made appeals to the Mother Country which gave us a few tents and a few thousand pounds (I do not know whether we got the money) and a few police officers. We ended up having to pay their salaries. I can very well understand our having to take care of our domestic affairs and foot the bill. In fact I would not want any help in this regard. I am proud that the Cayman Islands is in a position to look after the expenses incurred by us. But when we have migrants, especially in that proportion, coming to our shores, one would expect some sort of relief and assistance from the mother country.

I believe that what occurred during the Cuban migrant crisis is a crying shame. Without saying that, I would not feel relieved. I have been very frustrated by the way the United Kingdom acted during this crisis. It is very shameful.

High on my priority list is the availability of food and sustenance. We know that most of this is imported and transportation comes into to play. Is there any reason then why this Government attaches such importance to Cayman Airways and the shipping industry? Also all the efforts that have been made in agriculture. Despite the lack of arable land in Grand Cayman, many efforts are being made to improve agriculture. I especially welcome the plant propagation policy. The fact that we will have a plant propagator I believe it is going to enhance agriculture.

Shelter comes next on my list and, of course, there are so many other priorities. We cannot forget health, education and just the opportunity to make a living. Any Government which cannot employ its people and ensure that they can make a living should retire in my opinion. In this respect, we have seen where the unemployment rate has dropped from approximately 450 people to less than 100 in three short year. Therefore, this Government is doing fantastic work when it comes to unemployment. We are providing so many jobs for people, indirectly and directly, and I do not believe there should be any complaints in this regard.

All and all, we have a very prosperous country. For 30,000 people to make this all possible is remarkable. Thirty thousand people is just a village in other countries. Let us look around, what other group of 30,000 people can boast of two international airports? their own national airline? telecommunication system such as ours? per capita income of more than CI$35,000 per year? What other group of 30,000 people can boast of a standard of housing like ours? the kind of public sanitation that we have? sports centres as we have, educational standard that exists here? What other group of 30,000 people can boast of their own Law School? Could they boast of the presence of the International College of the Cayman Islands, a Community College that is constantly expanding its curriculum to meet the needs of students, UWIDITE services and a health care system that is up against that available in the United States of America - the super power of the world. All of this in a relatively crime free environment! We should all be eternally grateful.

However, there is a down side to all of this, and I wish to touch on how it affects work ethics. When there is so much employment, when there is so much prosperity, I see that it has adversely affected work ethics in this country. It is extremely difficult not only to get workers but to get good workers.

I am not playing politician anymore, I am talking about the facts as they exist. People turn up late for work and the quality of their work simply stinks at times, Madam Speaker. These same people run to the Labour Board and complain about employers, and if it were not for employers in this country I wonder where we would be. Work ethics are at an all time low in Grand Cayman. Something has got to be done about it. Obviously, this is an extremely difficult problem to resolve. But I know (and many other people in this country know) how terrible work ethics are at the present time.

The Governor began by reminding us of the importance of our financial industry. For years I have been aware that there are forces at work desperately trying to destroy our reputation as a premiere international financial centre. Books and movies habitually depict this jurisdiction as the number one place for drug traffickers and money laundering. Calculated efforts are also made by persons in very influential places and positions to willfully, I believe, spread this misinformation about the financial industry of the Cayman Islands. All of this I believe is for their own pecuniary advantage.

Government has been desperately trying to counteract this situation. I am aware of many efforts that are made by Government to give facts, figures and the correct information, and still there is this barrage, this continued effort on the part of so many destructive forces all in an attempt to tarnish Cayman's image as a premiere international financial centre.

We must continue to counter this by providing accurate information about the calibre of our financial centre. We know that the industry is well regulated and the world has to also know. They have to be reminded over and over again. We have to make every possible effort. We are doing it, and we have to continue to do it.

So many who have arrived on our shores with misconceptions soon express utter amazement at the sophistication, efficiency and honesty of the financial industry here. They soon become 100% satisfied that we do have all the appropriate safeguards in place to ensure that ill-gotten funds do not come in and permeate the system. Yet it is surprising who tries to destroy the financial industry here. All because of jealousy, ill-will and self interest.

I would like to go on to the Governor's presentation regarding the Departments, Ministries and Portfolios. He began by informing us about what is going on in the Judiciary. I believe credit should go to the Third Elected Member for George Town for bringing the Motion to this House to upgrade the Court's administrative procedures which we all agree are badly needed. I am glad to hear that her Motion is bearing fruit and that something is being done to improve the administrative procedures at the Courts.

There is no question that more space is needed, and I do hope that the space required has been found. I believe His Excellency said that a building has been found. I do not know which building it is, but I hope that it is ample and will improve the functioning of the courts.

The Royal Cayman Islands Police Force: I have always felt that every effort must be made to make conditions in the RCIP attractive to young graduates. I believe that the salary, lack of overtime pay, grueling hours, availability of better jobs (or at least that is what I am told by people who are interested in entering the police force) are disincentives to their joining the police force.

I know that there have been great improvements in the force especially since Mr. Grey has taken the helm. I know that salary has increased. They still do not get overtime pay, but I would ask the Portfolio to take a look at the Police Force and find out why is it that talented young Caymanian are not eager to go into the force. I believe this should be addressed. We do need Caymanians in the police force. A mixture often helps in my opinion, but we need more Caymanians; they understand the country, and I believe we will get better results.

The idea of there being more police officers in the field is certainly welcome. I believe this should also spill over into the Social Services where we need social workers. It appears too that headway is being made to improve community relations by the Police Force. Without the help of the general public the police are almost impotent. Therefore, this move on the part of Mr. Grey is the way to go to improve community relations and to get the help of the general public.

There has been much ado about the absence of directives in the Immigration Department. There have been letters in the newspapers about this. I was surprised, however, to see some of these letters because Government spent much time in 1994 and 1995 to come up with new directives. These directives were given to the Immigration Department. The Immigration Regulations were consolidated and amended and we spent hours on this. As far as I know the Immigration Department has these new directives. I believe if they use them it will avoid some of the confusion they say exist. They should also make the department more efficient.

The hot potato seems to be the status and residence issue. My view on this matter is that persons who have lived in the Cayman Islands for more than ten years, who invested and helped to build the country should be given permanent residence with the right to work. If this is not Government's intention then these persons should be asked to leave within a given period of time.

Caymanian status is another matter. I believe Caymanian status should be by right and persons having blood connection should get status. For others a rigid quota system should be maintained.

Regarding District Administration. It is true that things have not been as active in Cayman Brac as they have been in previous years. Government has ensured over the years that the Brac has the infrastructure it needs (and we all know that it has an excellent infrastructure), but for some reason the private sector is not developing the way we expect and hope it develops.

I believe that a proper marina in Cayman Brac would help the situation. I further believe that the schedule of Cayman Airways should be changed to some extent (and it is very difficult I understand to get the schedule right) to ensure that it is advantageous to the development of the Brac. Tourism is important here and it is also important in the Brac. If the airline service is just right, then I believe we will see a growth in tourism on that island.

I do not know too much about the prospect of mountain climbing in the Brac, but I noticed that the Governor thinks that it has some potential. Perhaps that should be pursued.

Things are buoyant in Little Cayman, and Government has stepped in to make sure that there is police presence on a 24-hour basis; that there is a multi-purpose building. The land fill site was completed. Infrastructure is being put in place to ensure that Little Cayman develops properly. Also, the airport in Little Cayman is being looked at now and I believe that something will be done in the near future.

Regarding Personnel, Training, Management and Computer Services, this seems to be a very busy department. I notice that Computer Services will implement several new or replacement computer systems in many Government departments. The new grading structure and the Performance Appraisal system will be completed shortly. All of this will make the Civil Service more efficient. It has my best wishes.

Very little was said by the Governor about the Portfolio of Legal Administration, one of the most important in Government bearing in mind the nature of our economy. The Law School has produced many fine lawyers and so many of them complain that some local firms regard their qualifications as substandard (and second best, too, I have heard that from lawyers), and that they have great difficulty establishing themselves in some local law firms because there is a prevailing sentiment that their qualification is substandard to some foreign qualifications. I would suggest that if this is so, then something should be done about it. If the Law School is not producing lawyers up to scratch, then let us do something about it. If this is not the case then let us insure that our young lawyers get fair treatment once they graduate.

I wonder how many graduates of the Law School are working in the Government's Legal Department? Perhaps more should be.

Recently Government has lost a spate of legal cases. I am told that if we lose the appeal to the privy council that we might end up having to pay out in the region of CI$1 million to plaintiffs. Government turns to the Legal Department for sound legal advice and guidance, and it expects to get it. I do not know the reasons why these cases have been lost. I know that one of them was ongoing even before this Government took over. But there has to be something wrong why so many cases are being lost.

I believe that we have to look at it. This is the public's funds that will have to be paid out. If we keep losing these cases it will be utter waste. I suggest that Government really needs to take a good look at what is going on in the Legal Department.

I am excited about the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange. This is an example of where once again Government has foresight - the type our forefathers had. I believe that it has great prospects and it is going to succeed. Just let us make sure that the Government gets more than just peanuts out of it so that we can build our infrastructure.

My eyes caught what the Government plans to do in the Treasury Department, namely, "to set up a centralised Debt Collection Unit within the Treasury." I understand that it will soon be functional and it is time that we have this in operation.

There is a prevailing attitude that if Government does a service for us (lends us money) that we owe Government but we do not have to be in a hurry to pay back Government. This is a prevailing attitude here and I think that Government is doing the right thing to make sure that there is a Debt Collection Unit in the Treasury Department so that this money can be redeemed. I do not believe people should get off. I believe that they should be made to feel responsible and made to act responsible and pay Government whatever is due.

I would like to go on to the Ministry for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce. This Ministry is a very active one and we see the results. I support all the projects that are outlined here in the Throne Speech. I would just like to ask the Minister to inform us about the cabanas. I am not sure if they are for the Seven Mile Beach or for the others.

(an inaudible interjection by a Member)

Dr. Stephenson A Tomlinson: Yes, because I know there are sufficient cabanas and rest room facilities on the present public beach. So the Minister will tell us about that no doubt when he makes his contribution.

I am one who feels that George Town needs a central park. I have been shouting from the house tops, saying it since I have been elected, and so far no progress has been made to get a central park. I remember that the Third Elected Member and I, and also the Minister for Education, went to see a beautiful site for a central George Town park. Unfortunately, that did not come to fruition. I believe the private sector bought that property and buildings have been constructed on it. A central park in George Town is something we should have. We need it, the tourists need it, and we should have it - it is the Capital!

Every year accolades are piled on the Fire Department which we all know is very well run. It is known for its prompt responses and its efficiency in action. If this was any different I would be disappointed. This has got to be about the best staffed department in Government. When one considers the number of emergency calls they get per annum as compared to the ambulance service, for instance, we quickly see a sharp discrepancy in staffing. Do not ask about pay. Why it is that recruits to the ambulance service start at such a low salary compared to Fire Officers? Government needs to look into this.

The Ambulance Service staff has only a mere 17 persons compared to over 100... I found out last night that 112 men are employed in the Fire Service. The ambulance service gets as many as 15 calls per day. How many does the Fire Service get? Yes, they do a good job... as far as I am concerned they ought to.

The Throne Speech gets very trite in some sections; permanent mooring for George Town, slaughter house for Lower Valley, the Harquail and Crewe Road Bypass, the hospital even. We have talked about these issues long enough. We have talked and talked - now let us do them. We need them. The House supports them unanimously. The public is crying out to get them done. So let us do them and stop talking about them. That is all I have to say on that.

I would like to go on to the Ministry for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation. I have perused the Health Insurance Draft and will have my critique ready for the Minister in about a week's time.

The Minister and I do discuss matters pertaining to health very frequently. I will say here on the floor of this House that it is not that he does not try to get in touch with me, but I wish I had more time to spend with the Minister when it comes to matters pertaining to health.

The Health Insurance legislation seeks to ensure that every citizen of the Cayman Islands will be able to afford health care by having health insurance. The Objects and Reasons of the Bill is most commendable. We have got to make sure that the benefits are ample and satisfactory. We have got to make sure that whenever a person gets medical attention the benefits apply irrespective of where they are received and that the premiums are affordable.

To do this, it will be necessary to put riders and stipulations on the benefits. For example, no insurance company will be happy to offer unqualified coverage for mental illness and alcoholism unless the premium blows your mind. But insurance companies will consider providing coverage for, say, a predetermined number of outpatient visits and a maximum of, say, 30 days' hospitalisation per annum.

Similarly, we can get insurers to provide coverage for overseas medical care for a reasonable premium by specifying a limit. The use of ceiling will keep the premiums affordable, yet provide coverage needed by almost 100% of the population.

I also support coinsurance fees. Unless people are directly responsible for some of the costs the system will be abused. The Canadian Health Care System is a glaring example of this, emergency rooms are packed with non-emergency problems and the system is falling apart from within and from a lack of funds. In our case it will not be lack of funds, it will be that the premiums are not affordable.

I cannot wholeheartedly support differential premiums. I see no reason why insurers cannot offer a universal premium from cradle to grave. Our elderly citizens are least able to afford high premiums and this needs to be offset by the healthier working population paying a slightly higher premium. Reimbursement to physicians has to be more prompt than it is at present for it to be acceptable by the medical community.

These are just a few points which appear in my critique and this matter will be discussed in great length with the Minister in the near future.

In any case, we put the Health Insurance Law on hold. I would like to assure the public through you, Madam Speaker, that the new Health Insurance Law will be (and it has to be) a lot more effective and workable than the previous law. We better make it so or we will be the laughing stock of the last Government.

The hospital building is due to be started soon. The material management building is nearing completion as the Governor and the Minister have told us. All of these are excellent moves which are overdue. I am delighted to hear that the hospital building will be started within the next few weeks.

There is no question that this is a well planned hospital which is not just going to be a building (as some of us feared from the plans of the last Government), it will be properly equipped and as a result of technology and equipment we will have far fewer people having to go to the United States of America for diagnosis. It will have extremely good diagnostic capability. I believe for the size of the population it will be about the best hospital in the world.

The only thing is to get it going, and I certainly will do everything I can to assist the Minister to see that the hospital is completed.

I have said that the two things I would have liked to see accomplished during my tenure in the Legislative Assembly were the construction of the hospital and that the economy was back on track. The economy is fine, I only hope that I can see the hospital near completion within the next year or two.

Regarding Cayman Airways, I would like to sing the praises of Cayman Airways. This has been a success story, and I know that we have said it over and over, but Cayman Airways is really doing better, and better, and better. There are many people who are responsible: the Board, the people who work for Cayman Airways, the Minister, the Government. At any rate, Cayman Airways is doing much better.

The public knows that I fully supported the purchasing of the aircraft, and Government's intention to purchase a second aircraft shows the confidence we have in the airline. My argument against leasing versus purchasing is that I see no wisdom in paying a lease and at the end of it owning nothing, versus paying off a loan and owning an aircraft. Furthermore, why should we spend so much money on maintenance and end up with nothing? We may as well maintain our own aeroplanes.

Government has made a wise decision, and although it is not quite clear in the Governor's Throne Speech what is really going on, I am told that one aeroplane has been purchased and plans are now in place to purchase a second aeroplane. So we have to say 'Bravo' to Cayman Airways, and best of luck to all who work so hard for the airline.

Regarding the recent occurrences with the Postmaster General, I would like to make a few statements. I read the statement made in this House regarding the Postmaster General with great displeasure. I regard this lady as a very able Caymanian who has shown that she can get the job done. There have never been so many improvements at the postal services before Miss Glasgow took office. For her to be treated in this manner is intolerable.

I know what was said in the statement, and I also know what really went on. How long are we going to allow this to continue? How long are we going to sit down and allow our able, talented young Caymanians to be kicked out of the Civil Service and be replaced by foreigners? This is not good enough! This is not good enough, and I am telling you all this is one issue that has infuriated me. Simply infuriated me.

Miss Glasgow simply wanted three posts upgraded to groom the staff so that when she retired, or whenever she decided to leave, Government could be in the position to pick one of them to replace her and the efficiency would continue. The other issue was that she was promised more space at the Post Office and was not given it. For her to do her job properly she needed more space. She did not sit down and do nothing about it. During all of this hoopla she found out that she could get the space at Hampstead Limited, near the Airport where the mail sorting would occur and she could have another Post Office outlet there.

All she was doing was working. What happened to the lady? She lost her job because of doing good work.

We should be ashamed of ourselves. I do not believe for one moment that Miss Glasgow should be out in the cold. I tell you what, if there is anything that can be done to convince the Governor to reinstate her, I fully support it. I believe everybody in this House should support it, Madam Speaker. I really believe so.

This is a crying disgrace! It is a crying disgrace. I have never seen anything quite like this. Are we all impotent in this House? Can something be done?

I would also like to talk about the new Environmental Health Building. Many protests have come to our attention, we have people in the area writing us letters. I went up there and I saw it. Now I know that we need this new building and I also listened to the constituents. Their contention is that toxic chemicals can be harmful to them in the neighbourhood, especially with young children around. I ask: Has any study been done to see if there is any merit in what they are saying? I mean do we know whether what they are saying has some substance?

When I discussed it with one or two people (and I would like to say they were not politicians) who worked in Government, what I was told was that they should have known better than to move there and to build their houses there. That is what I was told '...because they knew it was an industrial area.' Now, how callous can we get? We need to address this and I understand that even after the Central Planning Authority (CPA) decided not to store the chemicals there, somebody in Government is now appealing it. That should be left to rest.

Many roads in my district are an utter disgrace. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town spoke about pot-holes as large as himself (laughter). I know of accidents that have occurred because of people swerving from these pot-holes. I also know that one car broke off its tie rod in one of the pot-holes. I can tell you that I know of a case where a woman had a miscarriage because her husband, while driving, dropped into one of these pot-holes.

So there are pot-holes in George Town that need attention. The one thing I wish to point out to the Government (I know that they know it, but I want to point it out today) is that George Town has more roads than other districts; it is most heavily travelled, and it must get a bigger budget for roads than the other districts. It is as simple as that.

What is $238,000 to fix roads in George Town? I am very dissatisfied with the amount of money that has been apportioned to George Town for roads. We also need more money to fix our roads.

Now, what have I been saying about all of this? What I told the Minister and the Government is that if we need a loan, let us get it. Let us get a loan. Why are we sitting here thinking that the roads are going to get better? If we need a loan - $10 million - let us get it. This is one thing that our tax-base does not allow us to pay for on the spot. So let us get a loan. Even if our children have to help pay it off they should because they are going to be using the roads the same way we use them. But we need money to get our roads fixed and I am urging the Government to get the roads fixed.

If approval is needed for a loan to fix our roads (even in this Session of the House) let us get it done. Let us get some good roads in Grand Cayman. We cannot allow ourselves to grind to a halt just because we need a few good roads.

There are enough people in here who championed the cause of employees. Employees, as far as I am concerned, are vital and without them this country would not be able to go ahead. There is no question about that. When I am finished I guess some people will say, 'he does not know where his votes are coming from', but I am interested in employees and that is why I want to champion the cause of employers. Were it not for employers in this country where would we be? They are the ones who take the risks. They are the ones with the capital and the world needs money. Let us understand that, the world needs money. They can invest in other locations besides Grand Cayman, even Caymanians can do that. So let us remember to give employers their right.

I hope that in these Labour Tribunals and Labour Board relations that it is remembered that employers are the ones out there sticking their necks out and they do so much to ensure that we have a vibrant Cayman. Now, if people do not want to vote for me for that, that is all right too.

Let us not be too quick to strap the employer, let us try to accommodate him. For, too often nowadays - far too often - disgruntled employees with poor work ethics want too much for nothing, then quickly run to the Labour Board about nonsense. Gone are the days when everyone earned a full day's pay for a hard full day's work in Grand Cayman; some do it but not everyone. Those days were much better, and we had better get back to them.

The Guaranteed Home Mortgage Scheme has helped many people. I believe that the Minister should be given a lot of credit for trying to put this together so that people could get housing. I believe that there are over 70 people who have been helped. I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Minister for all that he has done in this regard.

People are being helped, however the scheme is not for the poor man. We need a real low income housing scheme. One of the advantages of the Guaranteed Home Mortgage Scheme is that it has helped people because they did not have to make the down payment which was necessary before. At any rate it has helped. So it has been a good thing. But we do need a real low income housing scheme. Not poor quality houses, but affordable housing so that people in the country can be well sheltered.

I was delighted to hear that the net surplus for the sale of the Housing Development Corporation Mortgage Portfolio will be used to this end. That is a beginning. More money will be needed, and I believe if we all help the Minister with his good ideas we will come up with the answer to help these very poor people who need housing.

Having said those things, Madam Speaker, you will remember when I began my contribution I spoke about how good this country is. I mean that. We have the best country in the Caribbean. This is the gem of the Caribbean and we want to keep it that way. We want to ensure that it is that way for our children and grandchildren to come. This is a precious little country but there is a lot still to be done.

My wish for us in 1996 is a year characterised by a passion for the work we do and compassion for those who are travelling with us on the journey.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.20 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.47 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on the Throne Speech. The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I feel privileged, once again, and I thank God to be able to offer my contribution to the Throne Speech. I wish to publicly offer my thanks to His Excellency the Governor for such a well delivered speech - one of the best, if not the best, I have heard. I am thankful for his diligence, his ability and dedication which he has demonstrated in carrying out responsibilities.

I wish also to record my thanks to all Members who recognise the work and accomplishments of my Ministry and who took the time to say thanks' for what was done in their districts. I say to them that we accomplish things together. If we fight with one another we can hardly succeed.

When His Excellency was speaking, I had to ponder how far we have come. How fortunate this country is in comparison to the rest of the world. When His Excellency outlined the many projects, programmes and plans for 1996, my Permanent Secretary mentioned afterwards that all of this is being done in our small country of 30,000 people.

Have we stopped to think just how fortunate we are? Of course we have problems, but I know that as a Government we have not abrogated our responsibilities, we have made a determined effort (with some success too!) in tackling the problems of our country. For anyone to think that the happiness of a people, the progress of a people, the forward and upward movement of a people, lies entirely in the field of worldly possessions is to exclude completely whole areas or factors that are not at all contingent on money or wealth.

I would like here to mention a poem that was written in the early part of the 20th century, around 1930 or thereabouts. I quote: "It takes a mighty fire to create a great people/It takes a mighty fire to smelt through steel." To create and temper steel takes patience and endurance. The poet went on in other verses to express his faith in the people of his country in these words: "But oh what steel and what people are my people/The mold is not yet made that perhaps can unite and make my people one/But more important than the mold is the temper of the steel, the spirit of my people/It is difficult steel to smelt, it is crude and simple, dark and deep...", and he expresses his faith again: "But oh what steel and what people are my people/When that steel is smelted and when that steel is tempered and when that steel is cast/What people shall my people be.."

Notwithstanding our problems, I have faith in the people of the Cayman Islands. I do not believe that we have come to the end of our time or the end of our rope. No! Rather, I have much confidence in the 21st century. Our people are resilient and have made it through the worst of times. But it is our job as leaders to shape and mold this country so that our people, whom I say are like steel, will benefit.

I am amazed, when the economy is doing well and so many opportunities abound, when so much has been accomplished in three years, that so much hopelessness can be pitted by the Opposition. How can we expect our people to have the will to advance, believe in themselves or to even achieve when they are constantly being told that there is no hope for them? Or that the country is so corrupted that it is falling apart? Perhaps this dark attitude of the Opposition is because of a lack of positiveness. Perhaps that is why they have failed so often and so miserably.

I understand that it was the ploy of the Communists to tell the people something often enough and soon they would learn to believe it. But we are not a Communistic State and people have their eyes open.

We have heard a lot from the Opposition Members about what is happening in other countries. I have visited several countries (developed countries, developing countries), and I can tell the people of the Cayman Islands (as the popular festival songs says "There is no place like yard") There is no place like home. There is no other country I would rather live than in our Cayman Islands.

The Eastern Caribbean States, with places such as Anguilla, have their own way of life, their own problems which we would never want the Cayman Islands to experience. But even that little island is doing excellent. Whenever I visit those countries to attend conferences and meet leaders from those countries, they say to me: "Bush, you have it good in the Cayman Islands. I wish we were like the Cayman Islands where your standard of living is so good and you do not have to pay taxes."

The Cayman Islands is not Anguilla, it is not the British Virgin Islands, or Jamaica, or Trinidad and Tobago, or any of those countries. We are different. I do not care what kind of scenario a person gives, we are a different case. Every country has a different case. I do not appreciate anyone trying to make us look like or seem like any other country. While we do have a historical connection, to some extent, with Jamaica for instance, we are still not Jamaica. As one of the people elected with responsibility for Culture, I detest the efforts of some people who try to copy slavishly other countries; the talk, the driving habits that I see taking place on our streets today.

Yes, there are many positive things from the rest of the world that we can copy, for example the steel drum (the steel pan as it is known). That is a positive instrument that I think has an impact in the Cayman Islands and one that I welcome; one that our young people, and perhaps our older people if they got involved with it, can learn quickly and have learned quickly.

There are some cultures that have no place in the Cayman Islands. For instance, I noticed in recent times music is played on the public beach along the West Bay Road, especially on a Sunday (sometimes late at night too, I understand), and the sound speakers are as big as a room. When you pass by all you can hear is boom, boom, boom, boom!

There are long time residents at nearby properties, some who have lived there for more than 20 years. No one should be harassed by this kind of commotion on a Sunday, or late at night. I know that this kind of fete goes on in other countries in the region, but it is not something I condone on a Sunday. No one in this House loves music more than I (and I love to dance too), I find it relaxing and it helps me to keep fit. As far as I am concerned it is good for the soul. Sunday is a holy day here in these islands, and if people want to party, then they should do it without being a nuisance to others. This is not a part of our culture.

I am going to take steps - I hope I can get support for it, I have no doubt I will - that that abomination be stopped. We cannot be like every other country. What people shall my people be if we try to be like other countries?

I want to get back to this matter of development which was derided by the Opposition. Is it by strange coincidence that when tourism is flourishing and doing well that we hear the country does not need any more? When it was down, as it was in previous years, we heard that we needed more tourists. Is it by strange coincidence that when the country is doing well with development the detractors say there is too much development, and we have to slow down development, and the extremists say stop development?

Is it by coincidence that Members of the House and some members of the public, who say that development is bad and that we should stop it or slow it down, are the same ones who are themselves developing businesses hand over fist? Is it not strange that the ones who set fire to the fire station are the ones jumping up and down in the streets saying where is the fire truck? We cannot have our cake and eat it too. My question is: What are the alternatives to development? While everyone talks about the needs of the country, I wonder who has stopped to ask where the money will come from?

Many of the countries touted by the Opposition as models for the Cayman Islands' development have a long way to go in offering the kind of services that we offer our people without serious intrusion by taxation on their salaries. Everybody wants new roads, better health care services, and we need other health services. We all get free education and most of the services provided by the Government are free.

If development is discontinued, or if the investor gets the notion that he is not wanted here, I wonder - resilient though we be - what people shall my people be?

I heard talk about wealthy individuals coming to our islands. I am not going to put them down. Would you rather have us overrun by poor people? I do not think so. I do not think it behoves any Elected Member to recklessly go about creating doubt and talking about corruption and tying projects to it simply because a person is purported to be rich. Members say that they are responsible, upright and honest - then they need to show that. We need rich people who are capable of doing the kinds of development projects which will enhance the standard of living for Caymanians.

It is not a paradox that sometime ago we heard the notion that we should pass some kind of legislation that only Caymanians get into business. Is it not strange that the same ones who were talking about the rich people coming here and how we should not have them, are the ones saying if we do this we are going to kill incentives, we are going to stop the business people, the rich people from coming here? Well, what is it that the Opposition wants?

There seems to be a concerted effort to discourage progress and keep our people poor, to take them back to where we were a long time ago with nothing but mosquitoes. To be a progressive country where we provide the necessary services and a quality of life that brings national contentment, we must have rich people coming here to invest.

Of course, as a Government we have to balance development. We have to take care of the environment because we do not know the extent of trouble that could hit us with an unbalanced environment. I am no scientist, but I do read, and I have to wonder sometimes what is happening to our world with the changes taking place.

Some Members of the Opposition are managers in the private sector. Well, I wonder where they think the money comes from to do business for their firms. Perhaps the Opposition has to learn that there are things that they should not smear, cast doubt on and make malicious imputations about. The Opposition is sadly mistaken.

I am sorry for this country if they keep that mentality going and put together a government. Perhaps we will be a utopia like Anguilla, according to the Opposition Members. Then what people shall my people be?

It did not surprise me that the Opposition Members would try to smear the by-election in Bodden Town. It was a clear defeat for Team Cayman. To attack civil servants, to blame the public's rejection of the bitterness, the hate and downright scandalous campaign I saw taking place tells us what to expect in the General Election in November. I do wonder whether blaming civil servants was because of their involvement in the past? I have to wonder whether, in fact, civil servants were involved in the by-election in Bodden Town, and the past came back to haunt the two Members complaining.

I do not know that any civil servant was involved. I did hear the Members making their complaint. They came into this Honourable House casting aspersions on others, saying all manner of evil, talking about calling names as if they were some paragon of virtue in the election campaign.

I think it is hypocrisy for any Member to come here casting aspersions on civil servants, trying to make them look like they were involved in an election campaign. I have a newspaper going back to November the 18th, 1988, and on the front page, entitled "Brac Winners", I see the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman with both hands in the air victoriously being held up by none other than the Acting District Commissioner at the time, Mr. Audley Scott.

You hear the acrimonious speeches about civil servants' involvement in politics. I take this example and attach it to all the other accusations that have been made about me and other Elected Members of this Honourable House. I wish to God we had sincere men in the Opposition rather than those who are not sincere.

I believe that the people of Bodden Town will have a tamarind switch in soak for the Opposition for saying that the people took money as payment to vote in the by-election. I hope they use it!

In regard to the General Election due in November, God's willing, I believe that the people of this country will in the majority choose wisely. If they choose me again I will be thankful because it is a wonderful experience to be at the helm in whatever capacity, whether as an ordinary Member or as an Elected Minister, of our developing country where so much evolved in such a short span of a year. It is taxing, and I guess we have acquired some gray hairs, but it is a privilege to serve in this House.

I do not believe that our people will turn down results for rumours, scandalous attacks and dishonest imputations. I believe the people will not choose candidates who have done nothing to prove that they can do something for this country. Personally, I intend, God's willing, to go to every district to tell the people of the good work, the good plans and projects of the National Team Government and leave it to the people to choose wisely.

The Opposition went to great lengths in the last couple of months last year and in this Session to try to make people believe that the country is operating outside of the law in dealing with its finances.

We hear much talk about contingency warrants and talk that due process should prevail. We hear that contingency warrants inhibit the Financial Secretary because he is the one who authorises them. Madam Speaker, this Government (and other governments) has observed, and we are observing due process of the Law. The Opposition should take the time to read the relevant laws such as the Finance and Audit Law which gives the Financial Secretary permission for authorising contingency warrants.

A few months is not a long time between Finance Committee meetings. We are not dealing with years where it would not matter if we took a year or two years to get to Members. We are dealing with a few months in between Finance Committee meetings. This is what the framers of the Finance and Audit Law knew would happen. There has to be space for Government to operate and then come back for authorisation from the Finance Committee.

How else are we going to run a country? Do you think we can put a budget together with all the items on the shopping list and the wants that some Members request of us? Let the public come to us after a Budget has been passed. Can we not do something about it? Do you think we are going to wait until November when we present the next Budget? What kind of Government would we be?

We are not operating outside of the Law and it does not behove any Member to try to make the public believe that the country is not operating in a proper financial manner.

In dealing with the criticisms, before I deal with my Ministry, I heard one Member talk quite a bit about the behaviour and treatment they should get. The First Elected Member for Bodden Town said, and I quote: "Really, I cannot understand, it is absolutely mind— boggling to me, the lack of respect and the lack of the sense of protocol that exists. It is unfortunate that the Chamber is not full because I think that is something that everyone should hear." I go on to quote him further, "...but certainly the position I hold in trust for the people deserves some respect, and protocol would demand certain things."

I further quote: "I would hope that if the shoe was on the other foot, I would not be so narrow-minded or so insular, or feel so threatened..." and the crux of it was "...sometimes we, as the leaders, can but lament the breakdown in the wider society because we in our position do not set any examples worthy of following."

That was the First Elected Member for Bodden Town; coming from a Member who refuses to come to prayers of this Honourable House.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER
(Misleading)

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order First Elected Member for Bodden Town?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, the Honourable Minister is misleading the House when he says I refuse to come to prayers. I pray in this Assembly as I am supposed to pray.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, what the House does outside of its normal sitting hours is not something for which a Member should be castigated or otherwise.

Would you please refrain from that? Thank you.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, I understand your ruling. But I am drawing from what the Member has said about protocol, the lack of respect and the breakdown in the wider society because we in our positions do not set any examples worthy of following. I am not talking about in the House. I am talking about an example where we pray together as Members outside of this House and he refuses to come.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I do not sup with publicans.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I have said that is not a part of what goes on here. We are only concerned with what goes on in the House. Please do not continue in that vein.

Thank you.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Member proved my point when he said he does not sit or sup with publicans. It has proved my point. I have gotten it across.

Taking from what he said here Madam Speaker, I only want to say that we should be honest. We should not be hypocritical in our actions and speeches in this House.

Mr. Roy Bodden: "Physician, heal thyself."

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I have never purported to be something that I am not. Perhaps it is the only reason why some people do not like McKeeva - it is because I am so clear, I am not transparent.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town talked about the absence of a library for Bodden Town, yet he asked for one sometime ago. He went on to say that they would help with computers. You come down to the 11th hour during an Election year and talk about 'You would help'? Why did he not do so before this time?

Let me say something: It is not for the want of a public library in Bodden Town why he carried out his suggestion. They have a Town Hall which is empty most of the time, a big Civic Centre which is empty most of the time. It is not for a shortage of buildings in Bodden Town, it is because they spent their time doing something else - holding meetings, forming political groups and talking about the National Team. The hour is late to come now talking about 'he would help.'

They are so quick to impute false motives and insinuate bad things that they do not pick up the Budget of this country and look inside to see what exists for their own districts. They are so willing to paint Ministers ba... I am sorry, Madam Speaker, I had hoped not to have to refer to them, but these are things which they have talked about. If the Member had picked up the Annual Budget and looked on page 402 he would have seen "...conversion of a district library in Bodden Town plus air-conditioning for $80,000." It is contained in the Budget. He is so quick to say that the Government is doing something wrong.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman lamented the fact that Mrs. O'Connor spoke at the meeting of Executive Council with the citizens in Cayman Brac. I do not know why he should be so hot about that. She wrote a long list of the things she thought would help the Brac. The young lady is constantly writing to Ministers of Government asking them to do things in Cayman Brac. Something the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has never done.

I appreciate that Mrs. O'Connor and the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman (usually not together but separately) write and ask for things, or suggest what can be done and needs to be done in Cayman Brac.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman got on his hobby-horse again trying to protect his candidate, the former Member for Health, when he talked about this commission that was set up and nothing was found to be wrong. I said at the end of that commission, and I say again, the Government would not have gotten a good hearing because the star witness died and took the evidence with him. Certainly, if I had the evidence that he had, the evidence he showed us... and remember he would not give it to us because the former Member had fired him and they were fighting so he was trying to have leverage over the Government - copies of the cheques for $75,000.

Madam Speaker, believe you me, they would not be able to stand in this House and talk about nothing was found wrong. There were a lot of things radically wrong with what happened.

Mr. Roy Bodden: (Inaudible interjection)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, if some people would do their work, there would be no need for them to come in here and ask for things that are already being done.

I believe that we have done the right thing. We did what the two Members and the public wanted with the hospital. do not think that they are getting anywhere with their confused state of mind about this hospital.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman went to some length about Hospital Apogee Medica and someone writing a letter to me calling me "His Excellency." Well, I am glad that somebody mentions something positive because what the Opposition usually calls me cannot be put on the air. Sure, someone put forward a proposal to do a hospital here, but it was not all what the Government wanted. While there were some positive things about that proposal, there were things that we could not support. No one hid anything about the proposal.

I want to read from the Hansard of February 1993 where I said: "Recently a group of investors from out of the United States and Europe mixed together came to have a look-see at that hospital. They said that anybody building a hospital in that swamp must have been crazy. They want to do some development in health facilities and they have a pretty good plan, but they refused to go in that direction."

On top of that there was an article in The New Caymanian, Friday 10th - Thursday 16th, December, 1993, and this is what Dr. Mobley said in an interview: "'It is not an indictment of the original design', says Dr. Mobley, '...but our structural engineer had some reservations. I am in no position to say whether the site was sealed properly. On re-examination we decided it was not an appropriate site to put down a hospital. Constructing a road to the site (which would have proven to be costly), was one of the main reasons for abandoning the business plan', he said."

I think the man said they wanted to build a hospital, and in this article he says that the plan was before he learned about the abandoned hospital. It further states: "...Once the investors learned about the incomplete hospital they visited Grand Cayman." This is what the doctor said. Well, does this not tell us that Government stopped it before talking to the people, and that it could not have been as the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac imputed?

What is strange (but then nothing amazes me), is that he produced a copy of the business plan - copy No. 2. I have copy No. 1. The only two copies that were circulated. But these are the times we live in, and if anyone thinks they are fooling me, they are making a big mistake. For when they believe that they can hand out information to try to make someone look bad and that they can fool Ministers..., there are ways and means of knowing where the information came from.

I am happy to report that over the past year the Social Services Department continued its various programmes and activities. It had the very difficult task of helping with the preservation of our social fabric. Last year was an eventful one for them. The new year commenced with the department still being very much involved with the care of almost 1,200 refugees at Tent City.

Without fail, the two Opposition Members have said and imputed all kinds of evil concerning financial assistance to the elderly and handicapped persons and the ex-servicemen, as they have done with all of my programmes. They talk about getting votes and mentioned something about a fund with a business person calling it a "slush fund." Whoever this business person is, if he went that far into a conversation with the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac then he is in the same category. The Holy Bible says; "As a man thinketh, so is he."

While listening to the two Elected Members I had to wonder what it is that they want, and why it is that they are not consistent, because I find inconsistency a brother to instability. When you examine what the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac says, and I quote him, regarding Social Services: "That is perhaps one of the most taxed areas of Government. For there are not sufficient persons to do the job required of them."

He went on to say, "I believe that those people in the Social Services Department have a higher degree of stress as the distressed persons who often go to them daily for assistance."

Then he goes on in another statement to say (and this is where the inconsistency comes in): "However the point I make on it all is that within a Governmental framework this matter of payments can be handled directly by the people in the Social Services Department who can make determinations." What is it that they want?

This is the worst kind of political game... or is it that the Opposition is so confused they cannot, or refuse, to think straight? It is impossible for any reasonable person to hold an argument and make a case saying how someone is overworked, yet say in the same breath a few minutes later that the same person should get more work.

The Speaker: Would this be a time where we could take the luncheon suspension, Honourable Minister?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30 pm.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.44 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.41 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture continuing.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Madam Speaker, when we took the luncheon suspension I was dealing with the Opposition's criticism of the financial assistance given to the elderly and handicapped.

We have no apologies to make regarding moving the responsibility of financial assistance from the Social Services Department to a Committee in the Ministry. I stated in December that a Committee made up of staff from the Ministry and from the Department of Social Services would be the persons handling this matter. That is what is happening.

There were accusations made that we were peddling the assistance to the elderly for votes and that I, as the Minister, was involved. I, as the Minister, in no way have any influence over who gets that financial assistance. One thing I do know is who, in my district and other districts as well, needs assistance. I do not need any degree in social work to recognise who is in need. My knowledge of the people I serve, practical experience with their situations, and my deep concern for those in need in this country is sufficient. I do not sit on the Committee to pass judgment on who should receive and who should not. The Committee deals with the applications.

A few days ago I read from the application form while responding to a question in this House. That application is no different from the one Social Services is using.

As a representative of the people I do what I have always done, that is, refer people to the Committee. I wonder if because the two Elected Members complaining are so interested in who should or should not receive assistance is why they have not made any referrals to the Committee? This is what representatives should do; if they know of someone they refer them to the Social Services Department. The people in my Ministry are just as qualified to handle the situation. No one in the Ministry writes a cheque, the Treasury staff does this, as is usual.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town stated that he wants an explanation as to why the system has changed. As I have said, I gave that explanation in Finance Committee in the November meeting.

The Elected Member spoke about the need, and to quote: "...of keeping an impersonal relationship. It would be one way of avoiding controversy, suspicion and accusations, especially in this election year." Are you kidding? Do we really believe that the Member and his colleague who criticise the financial assistance would not be doing the usual thing of making accusations and insinuations in order to make us look bad? I do not think so. But let me again explain, and hopefully the two Members will understand this time.

The system, as of December last year, was administered by social workers who are the advocates for their clients as well as the bearer of arms. This leads to jealousy and resentment as individual clients feel they do not get their rights. Every Member of this House has heard complaints from Caymanians, whether it is true or not, that foreigners are being favoured more than they. It has been the established practice for several years that social work in the Cayman Islands be operated through a fully qualified work force, therefore all social workers have had at least three years academic training at a University in the United States, Canada, Britain or the West Indies, to the level of a Bachelor's degree in Social Work. This academic training is essential for social workers to have the necessary skills to deal with the very complex social problems which exist in our islands today, such as, child abuse and juvenile delinquency.

However, social workers spend at least two days per week on the administration of financial assistance, much less to say having to go out and take down information.

As far as I am concerned, this is an expensive waste of the resources at a time when other social issues urgently require professional attention. To me as a Minister, the humane, empathetic, sensitive approach required of social workers in their professional life does not equip them well for administering these funds.

There are many pressing social problems impinging on the lives of ordinary Caymanians. These problems can be frequently addressed by individuals who have the support of skilled professional counselling. The social work staff is just such a group with training in many disciplines, including Sociology, Human Growth and Development, Psychology, Social Administration, Criminology and Law. These practitioners (our social workers) should be able to make people function better in many different ways and in various settings.

The supervision of offenders in the community must be a high priority for the continued reputation of these islands as being relatively crime free. Social Workers have the skills to make a difference in the lives of these delinquents, but have case loads, of enormous size because of financial assistance which, in my opinion, prevents any meaningful intervention. Other social problems, such as marital disharmony and spousal abuse, are becoming increasingly visible in our society, and are not being addressed because of different priorities in the allocation of work.

I believe that the administration of the financial assistance should be taken out of this subjective environment and be placed separately as happens in most developed systems, whatever the political colour of the administration. Britain, Trinidad and Tobago, the United States of America, Canada and Bermuda, for example, all separate the social assistance (or financial assistance, if you may) from their Social Services, Children Services and Human Services.

What I am trying to do is to begin a service that will give our elderly people who have no income, and the handicapped, some dignity and relief from the poverty which they are experiencing, as their just and fair entitlement according to the criteria that the Government laid down. It was accepted by the Finance Committee in the meeting dealing with the Budget.

It is strange that while those Members criticise they have no better suggestions. In fact, they did not vote against the move in the Finance Committee. It is on record. Yet, to come here to this Honourable House and make the world believe that something radically wrong is being done with the finances of this country is nothing short of dirty political tricks in this election year.

If the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman (and anyone else for that matter) does not want these changes, then there is always the Election and they can try their best there. But as of now, I am going to see that our elderly and needy persons get the funds that have been voted for them [in Finance Committee]. These are the people who have built this country.

We hear a lot said about who has done what in this country, and just think where we were some years ago. Think of our elderly people, some of whom are not coping well with the Cayman of today, or the cost of living of today because they worked at a time when salaries were low. So, if they were lucky to have a pension - the vast majority of our elderly people over 60 years of age are not receiving pension (if they worked in these islands) because of the forces that say: They should not have received a pension).

Look at the number of women in our community who have worked in the hotel industry. For instance, who do we think made that tick a couple of years ago before the flood of new-corners? Who made that work? Families and children were left along while those women worked two jobs sometimes. I have not forgotten these things, Madam Speaker. I simply speak from experience. Any Member who throws cold or dirty water on this programme of Government should be ashamed of themselves.

Just think of the men who went out to the Mosquito Quay and braved the weather. Some did barking. The little industries that were here back in the 1940s and 50s. Some of them are still alive today. We cannot make children do for parents because a lot of children have their own responsibilities with children of their own.

I get very upset when I hear about some business persons calling this vote a slush fund, because those same people probably were the masters of the old days who worked our people like slaves. What I say to Members in this House is that they should be out in their communities looking at needs and making suggestions, making referrals, and telling the people if they are in need where to get help. But as for this talk about the social workers, they have a job to do that they have not been able to get done. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman criticised me and has said this. They have a job to do in trying to deal with the many problems which cannot be addressed in this country. They are the ones who are equipped to do it. They should be dealing with these problems. So why throw dirty water on something as important as this vote.

Not much good was said about the assistance for the veterans. However, never in the history of this country has a more humanitarian decision been made than the one by the National Team to give the veterans some assistance. Veterans, wherever they were, did a great service not only to this country but to the world. If we think back to World War I, where I understand about 15 million men sacrificed their lives, that was supposed to be a war to end all wars; to reject once and for all the idea that might is right. When World War II proved that hope was in vain, freedom loving nations sacrificed another 10.5 million lives. That time it was to save the world from tyranny and to preserve what we refer to as 'our free democratic way of life.' Some veterans gave services on the frontline of the battle fields, others did their part by assisting in many ways. Innocent ships were torpedoed and seamen lost their lives. That was happening right off our shores, as I understand it. Those who survived the battle would not have, were it not for the battle ships; the supplies carried by men who did not experience fighting, but who did their part to make sure that their comrades were kept in food and other supplies. Who carried the ammunition? Who carried the other supplies?

For all the talk about who should and should not get assistance coming from the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, it took everyone working together to rid the world of the Axis Force.

The two Opposition Members and others who might have nothing better to do, can talk all they want. As long as I am the Minister responsible for veterans' affairs, veterans will get the assistance from the Government because it is something that should have been done many years ago.

I heard the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay saying that this was something that had started from 1945. Who did it? Did anyone come up at times when the country had $30 million in General Reserves? The times of Benson Ebanks? No one offered to do anything. To those living veterans or their spouses living overseas, should they be in need and inform the Government we will bend backwards to assist.

I do pose the question to those persons who say that the men who served in the Vietnamese and Korean Wars should not get assistance, but at the same time say that those living abroad should get when those persons could be collecting social security or other pensions: Is this fair? Do you mean to say we should not give those in need here in Grand Cayman, but we should give to those who collect a pension overseas? What kind of logic is that coming from the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. It is just something else for him to complain about.

He made a lot of noise about me handing out cheques. Tell me what was so wrong with me handing the cheques out in public to deserving veterans. I was not taking anything from anyone. I did not prepare the cheques, nor did I prepare the applications. The staff did the applications and the Treasury did the cheques. I was giving them out.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman made mention about a cheque for someone who is dead in trying to say that the staff did not know what they were doing. But if he was so interested in such an incident why did he not ask for the facts regarding the matter, instead of coming into the House to talk about dead people?

The truth is, we had a few cases where old men had made application to the Ministry but before they could get the cheque they passed on to glory. The cheques were already printed by the Treasury, so, of course, we sent them to the surviving spouse. What a thing for him to bring up.

If I had my way, all veterans would get the financial assistance. I am one person, and we do have budgetary constraints. It is time that one and all leave well enough alone in this matter of pension to ex-servicemen. Stop making a political issue of this worthwhile cause. I say to the public, it is time for one and all to stop.

You know, that is one of the things wrong with this country today; we cannot bear to see somebody else get something even though we might be getting it also. That is why Caymanians sometimes fall behind and others move forward much faster. It is indicative of a wider scenario; jealousy is a bad thing, envy is a bad thing. I say, leave well enough alone.

Regarding this letter mentioned by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman which was sent out from the Minister, I have no apologies to make. When that group wants to curse and blame the National Team for things when they go wrong, they do it. They say the National Team did it. Well why should I not say that the National Team Government did this excellent thing?

I saw a letter in the newspaper signed by one Benson Ebanks - it is now in the hands of my lawyer - but if he was so interested why did he not do something for the veterans and the elderly people when the country had a lot of money? Of course, he did such a poor job with education and left us with this mess... but we cannot do things for people if we do not care about people. If you do not care about people you will not do anything for them. That is the best thing that I can say about Benson Ebanks.

I have said it before that were it not for the National Team's will and my drive and commitment to see this thing through, the veterans would not get the financial assistance they received. Team work! Yes, we have an official arm of Government, but my Ministry is charged with that responsibility and they supported the policies of the Government. A long time has passed when the country had a lot of money and no one did anything about it. Yet they are kicking up a lot of fuss today about this veterans' pensions. If the National Team does something good, say it is the National Team. They certainly blame us for a lot of things we have not done, and make accusations about things we know nothing about.

What is wrong with the veterans' pensions? Can the Member tell me, Madam Speaker?

If I have a policy and it translates into votes..., that is what a politician is all about. People will make their judgment accordingly - they are not stupid. People know, they understand. But that is the Opposition's big scare. The National Team must not do anything because they might get votes. Then, when we do nothing, they say, "Why are you not doing something? I really hope, as I have said, that the Sodden Town[ers] whip them soundly and send them out in the wilderness.

For the first time in the history of these islands Community Development Officers were placed in the districts. There were only three posts approved, one was placed in George Town, one in West Bay and the third one covered North Side, Sodden Town and East End. The officers were appointed at the end of May last year and, before going out into the field, they all had to undergo a month of rigorous in-house training.

I have advocated these positions ever since I have been in this House, and it is my intention to have another officer in place shortly. I remember a Motion in the Finance Committee, moved by the late Mr. G. Haig Bodden and I, to get a social worker for Bodden Town. It is not since today that I have been interested in Sodden Town. I am thankful to the Government for the Community Development Officer in East End who covers the eastern districts and the appointment of a new person for the Bodden Town Electoral District.

It took a long time to get someone placed there because it was about 10 years ago that the Motion was passed. I am proud of that. I have visited all my Ministry's programmes in the outer districts and I am indeed pleased to see the kind of harmony and community spirit that exists in Bodden Town with people trying to get things done for their district. I am proud because that is the Caymanian way of the past when we used to help each other. So I am really proud to see the kind of togetherness that exists. It speaks well for a good thing and I say to the electoral district of Sodden Town: Keep up the good work regardless of whom you support, because it is your district, it is where you live (perhaps work) and sleep with your children. You can only get a better community if you work together at it. For those who do not come out and assist them, they know what to do with them in the Election.

The Community Development Programme is a new strategy being used by the Department of Social Services for service delivery. Its purpose is to facilitate community organisations, to coordinate resources and to encourage the community towards its own problem-solving efforts and shared goal achievement.

We heard sometime ago, when the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman was speaking, that this money given as a grant for the community was wrong. Why is it wrong? Why is it wrong for the Government to give funds to a community that is doing something to assist themselves?

Take the Bodden Town project, for instance. The Opposition Members spread all manner of evil about that project last year. But use it as an example, the people of Bodden Town are building that project and it is going to be worth a lot of money when it is completed. Government has given them a few thousand dollars, but they put in the labour. Now these are things that we are saying need to be done in our communities. Well then, how much more would the Government have to put in if no one does anything to assist? Is it not a partnership that we want in this country where the Government gives some and the community gives some? Is that not better?

Why take it upon ourselves to criticise and exaggerate and say all manner of evil against the people who are doing it, trying to make them look as if they are criminals? It is wrong for Members go come into this House and do that. It is a downright disgrace when good honest people in the community, upstanding citizens, go out of their way to do something. Some of them are old and may not live a long time to enjoy these facilities, but certainly our children will. Why criticise them and make the world believe the money is being used for other purposes? It is wrong.

As long as I am the Minister responsible, that is the way we are going to try to do it - a partnership. If the community can do something to help themselves we will give them a small grant and they have to make it accountable for the Auditor General. That is the way it should be.

I saw the Breakers project and I said, "Look at this. This is what $30,000 is doing. This is what all the noise is about, a big play field for the community and a play ground for the children." I went there (and we know it is not a big community) and they had a group of young men working there together. Government does not have to come up with the hundred of thousands of dollars that it would take to build a play field and to put in a play ground for children. Yet the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac made a big to-do about this vote. He questioned the vote, "it was not for sports" as he said. It was for the public park in West Bay that is being built between Scholars International and the Government. How else are we going to get these needed facilities for our people? We all cry the need for social development and positive programmes and places for our children to go and things for them to do. Yet, when we give the funds to assist a big racket is being made trying to make it look as if there is no control of finances in the country.

That is the job they are trying to do. They started it last year with a Motion about Financial Responsibility. What we need is more responsibility from the Opposition. We have enough Laws on our books today to do anything, enough to run three countries perhaps. What we need is for them to be more responsible and to stop throwing dirty water on these worthwhile projects.

When you look at the efforts made in George Town (and I hear some of the young ladies on Radio Cayman talking about the efforts that were made in the Watlers Square project) by one Community Development Worker and the community working together; galvanising the positive forces in the community; yet you hear them say, 'The National Team did not do anything,'... well who did it? If we did it, why should we not say we did it?

The Adult Special Needs Programme continues to provide care and assistance to clients at the Social Services Department who are unable to care for themselves. Most of these clients fall into the category of elderly, dependent, home-bound, mentally or physically disabled, in failing health and economically indigent. This programme is headed by a Supervisor and is staffed by 35 Community Care Workers in Grand Cayman, 15 in Cayman Brac. We are going to revamp the Cayman Brac system which I will talk about a little later on.

It provides direct care services to individual clients throughout Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac. There are currently over 80 clients in the programme. While the Department is doing a good job, it is concerned with the increasing numbers of referrals it receives.

During this year, we hope to closely monitor the elderly population in order to accurately identify persons needing assistance. The Department has recognised the urgency of educating the general population to become sensitive to the needs and concerns of the elderly. So this year we hope, through public education, to encourage and motivate families to be more caring and responsible for their aging family members.

In addition to maintaining clients in their homes, at the Sunrise Cottage in East End and at the Pines Retirement Home, the programmes also caters to 15 adults at a Day Care Centre located in the West Bay United (which is now the John Gray Memorial) Church. We are grateful to the church for its assistance given to the Government.

This year the centre will be relocated to its own premises where a small residential component will be put in place. It will double as a residential facility and a day care facility for the elderly. The property has been purchased in West Bay and we hope to get the programme off and running, hopefully, by May.

In the district of Bodden Town an Adult Day Care Centre will commence this year in the facility bought for that purpose in 1995.

We can never do too much for our old people. They deserve everything that this country can do for them. When the lady Member for North Side was speaking she made the point that it was the elderly people in this society who built our country. We should do everything we can for them. She has made representation about the needs in her community and hopefully we will have some funds so that we can start this year with the programme. At least we hope to get plans drawn so that we can see the facility that would be needed.

The Cayman Islands Marine Institute continues to provide rehabilitative services to young persons with severe behavioural problems at the Bonaventure House. The centre now has an enrollment of 35 students with a further five on the Social Service's waiting list. This is the highest enrollment since the inception of the programme. We have about a 95% monthly attendance rate with 50% of our students having perfect attendance. I think this is good.

A new component has been added to the daily programme (that is, the Cayman Counselling Centre) which now conducts counselling sessions three times per week at the Institute.

One of our students has started a course in the Community College while two others have started working three days per week.

A number of students have started part-time weekend jobs. The students are doing so well that we can make them become involved in the community. They have assisted at the Pines Retirement Home.

Last year two students completed the programme and are now employed in the private sector. We heard a lot from the First Elected Member for Bodden Town about the failings of the programme because we never had more than two people graduating. It is not a programme that just pushes them out. It is one that works with them and their families to try to bring them around in the community.

Contact is still maintained with those young men and their employers through the Programme's Community Coordinator. I make my enquiries of their welfare and performance and, I must say as the old people say: So far, so good.

Students currently attending the institute are at various stages in the programme even though the programme is still quite new and will take several years to achieve all of its objectives. There are encouraging signs coming from its first year and a half of operation. There has been a marked decline in juvenile crime statistics over previous years. I feel that this can be partially attributed to the success of this programme and the work done in other areas in the community.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister it is now 3.30 p.m. I understand that all Members of Executive Council have a meeting to attend. At this time I would entertain a motion for the adjournment until Wednesday.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that the House do now adjourn until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 3.31 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 13TH MARCH, 1996.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
13TH MARCH, 1996
10.16 AM

The Speaker: will ask the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. John B. McLean: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana, Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have an apology for absence from today's sitting from the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Government Business. Continuation of the debate on the Throne Speech. The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY MR. JOHN W. OWEN, MBE, GOVERNOR OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS, ON FRIDAY, 16TH FEBRUARY, 1996

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. When we took the adjournment on Monday I was dealing with the Cayman Islands Marine Institute, commenting on different programmes at the institute, and I made the point on how well the students are doing. Lastly, I would like to say that we are planning a Girl's Resident Programme which was in the newspaper I think yesterday, Tuesday, 13th March) to provide eight beds for short-term stay. Presently the girls must remain at the West Bay Lockup because we are unable to provide overall services which we currently provide for the boys as far as the residential facility is concerned. While we do not have a lot of girls in the programme, there is a need for a girls' facility at the Cayman Islands Marine Institute.

I would like to offer my sincere thanks to the many persons in the community who offered assistance to the institute. A lot of people contributed in different ways. The Justices of the Peace have paid special attention to the institute, and I thank them for their concerns. Some of them serve on the Board.

I would also like to thank the Members of the Board. The Board has the kind of people on it who are very conscious of the needs of young people. They are assisting us not only with the institute, but are very involved in the need for a remand centre. I do thank them for their sincerity and efforts.

On the subject of a remand centre, plans are underway for the development of a system to meet the need for a secure accommodation for juveniles. The Department of Social Services is being advised by specialists in the field in the United States and the United Kingdom. In the interim, however, juveniles who are felt to be in danger to themselves or others are detained at the West Bay Lockup which is currently on the way to being refurbished. Arrangements have been made with the Director of the Marine Institute for support from that programme to these students. That support can consist of day release to the Marine Institute or, in the more high risk cases, the provision of educational and recreational material as well as counselling to enhance the quality of life in the West Bay Lockup. Most juveniles awaiting trial or sentences remain at home with close Social Service supervision, if required, or are in attendance at school or at the Marine Institute, but are restricted by reporting requirements or curfew.

Until we have a remand centre... and I believe we have some funds in the Budget and we should use the abandoned hospital site, since we have put so much funds into it for the maintenance of Cuban refugees and to utilise it in many different ways for a correctional centre. I would hope soon that one of these days (although it could be the case that we may never) we will be able to have those children who are sent to the United States remain in the islands in our programmes. That, as I have said, may never be the case because of the different types of behavioral problems they experience, but I am hopeful.

Madam Speaker, in June last year the Children Bill and the Youth Justice Bill were passed into Law. The Children Law is part of a comprehensive and far-reaching review of the legislation pertaining to children in the Cayman Islands. It is partner to the Youth Justice Law which seeks to reform the Criminal Law relating to young persons. Details of the two laws were provided during the March Session of the House last year. The Bills were circulated among the general public for input several months prior to being passed. These two Laws, particularly the Children Law, represent the fundamental changes in the manner in which the Social Services Department, the Department of Education, the Legal Department and the Judiciary act regarding issues of child affairs.

The introduction of the equivalent legislation in the United Kingdom saw a preparation period of two years with all persons using the Laws to be trained. A preparation time of one year is the minimum required for the Children Law, and most of the provisions included in the Law can be applied from January 1997, that is, next year God's willing.

In December of last year the Social Services Department conducted a one-day workshop to explain the two laws to Ministry staff, Social Workers, Justices of the Peace, Education personnel, Courts staff and all other users of the Law.

We are experiencing problems with young people as some Members have mentioned. I do appreciate the constructive remarks from certain Members of the House, however, the Opposition demonstrated their nonsensical and reckless indifference to the needs of young people to have sporting facilities. How can anyone who is a parent, a representative, and one who even purports to lead a political group, put forward the suggestion that too much money is being spent on sports, but that the Government should spend more money on the courts?

I would ask the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, if this is the position of Team Cayman? I agree that the Courts need space. It is now over 20 years' old and I guess it is being used much more than was envisioned back in the early 1970s when it was built. God knows we have much more development and the need for it. Cayman today is an international centre. No one denies the need for space at the Courts. I put forward the idea sometime ago we could perhaps go upstairs with the building. It looks like a building that was made for something to go upstairs. But the response was that there would be no parking. To be able to park somewhere close to where you want to go these days is something that can no longer happen in George Town. We will no longer have the days where we could park our cars by Barclays Bank's front door and run inside and run back out. We just cannot do that anymore. Time has evolved, and I believe that we need to give people the incentives through Planning, to move further out of town as far as development is concerned. Be that as it may, space is needed and there is a problem in the Courts. But our children must come first.

How can anyone bemoan juvenile delinquency and the problems of young adults and other problems in the society, yet totally disregard the programmes that are used as preventative measures to combat the negative influences which impact on our children? I cannot understand that kind of reasoning.

Is the Courthouse and Prison not the end result of the thoughtless and don't-care attitudes by persons who should have been in the forefront of a meaningful policy for prevention in this country? Government over the years has spent a tremendous amount of money, millions of dollars on police, courts and prison. In the last eight years alone this country has spent over $100 million on police and prisons.

I was berated (and I know that there are people not only in this House, but on the outside who constantly berate me for spending money on sports), saying that we are spending too much money on sports. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, said that we should spend money on the courts, education and health care and not on sports.' Those were his exact words. As I said, in the last eight years this country has spent over $100 million on police and prisons. From 1993 to this year (1996) this Government has spent a total of $67.3 million on health care; we spent $80 million on education. So we are spending on these important areas. This is good, it is what is needed and this is the only way we can get anything - by spending money.

I ask the question: How much was spent on sports? We have spent less than $7 million and that includes salaries for sports personnel. Less than $7 million! If we do not give our youth facilities to carry on these programmes, then we can build prisons in every district. We can employ 2,000 police officers; we can build five hospitals and will still not have enough space to hold all the young criminals who will be imprisoned in the country. We have to spend money on our children.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town mentioned young people with machetes on their bicycles. He, too, bemoaned the need to do more. We will have them carrying more than machetes if we do nothing.

We are no longer able to feel the freedom that we felt when I was 13 years old. Nobody feels that way anymore, when we could leave our cars open, leave our doors open. Times have changed. That is progress, and some people say we should not say that it is progress, but it is a sign of the times we live in.

I listened to a tape of one of the meetings of the Opposition. There were the two Opposition Members mouthing off the Government with their scare tactics: We were going to give young people guns. They were criticising the idea of a Cadet Corps. While I know that idea was not taken up by the Government, I believe an editorial was written in the newspaper saying that we do not need it. I am not sure of the full tenor of the editorial. But I say this today without any apologies: The country needs something to instill discipline and give the kind of rigid programming that will curb some of the kinds of behaviour by youths, as the First Elected Member for Bodden Town mentioned.

Sports alone will not reach all the youths of this country, and I believe, that something such as a cadet corps can work. I looked at one in Bermuda and it is doing well. There is one that is working well in Barbados.

It is no use complaining about the actions of young people and about what they say to you on the streets that cannot be said in the House. It is no use complaining about the delinquent behaviour in our communities if we are unwilling to do the things that are necessary; to stand firm, to put aside political propaganda, to put aside the feeling that the Government should not get anything done because it will give me a better chance to beat them at the polls. Put aside those feelings, or else this country is not going to get anywhere.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town said that I am preaching to the converted. Well, why do they preach differently in the public? They have opposed practically every programme that I have brought to this House, the very things that could help the same things they complain about. I tell them that not all their fowls have come home to roost as yet. They are going to swallow many of their words and criticisms.

We began our administration in 1993 with a policy and a mandate to bring about a change to the deterioration in the social sector of this country. We have not accomplished everything we set out to do; nor could we do so in four years, given the budgetary constraints of the country, and also the sheer man-hours needed to complete the many things facing the country. But we have made strides even though the reshaping of our childrens' future has not been an easy task.

I would like to give this House an update from the Juvenile Court's statistics which I think bear out my point of the strides we have made in the country. We have seen a consistent decline in juvenile criminal cases in comparison to 1992, we can say today it is better - praise God. In 1992 the number of juveniles sentenced was 335; in 1995 the number was 115. I think we should say: Thanks be to Almighty God.

I want to look at some of these statistics. When we examine them we see that in 1992 we had crimes committed by juveniles from the age of 10 years old. In 1995 we had no crimes committed by that age group.

In 1995 the youngest juvenile convicted was 11 years old, and in 1992 there were four 11 year old juveniles convicted. Most of all, I am pleased to see the reduction of youths in trouble with drugs. For all the accusations that have been made regarding myself and the Government, these statistics make me feel good. As I have said, what is important is that we have seen a decrease in the age groups of children who are convicted.

When we look at the juveniles convicted for drug offences in 1992 for the possession of ganja, there were 11; in 1995 only three were convicted with possession of ganja, with intent to supply - two, in 1995; one in 1992, consumption of ganja - 14, in 1995 - 5 possession of cocaine - 4, in 1995 - none; possession of cocaine with intent to supply - 5, in 1995 - none; consumption of cocaine - 2, in 1995 - none.

One of the things that I am most interested in, because of a Bill to come before the House (and Members should take note of this) - burglary - 118, in 1995 - 2; theft - 16, in 1995 theft and attempted theft went up by three to 19. The crimes dealing with traffic offences are 85 in 1992 and in 1995 it went down to 45.

Madam Speaker, who can say that our efforts are not being rewarded? Who can say that we should spend more on the courts and not spend money on sports? Who can say that we should not give funds to Breakers to do a public park/beach, but should spend it on the courts? Who is to say so? While we do have problems, these statistics (and we have to go by statistics) are proof positive that the efforts made by the Government (and the new spirit that I see) in the country is paying off. I know we are going to have some cases made that is was not due to this, but I am waiting. So, while we do have problems, we have a long way yet to go. That is why I am saying that I am hopeful for the 21st century.

While parental responsibility is much farther away than where it needs to be, I believe in the country. There is a realisation by one and all that Government alone cannot do it. I know that pressures to make a living and paying the bills continue to drag our people down, but I say to parents; spend more time with your child/children! It is not good enough to just send them to school, we have to make sure that they study and do their homework.

The stresses on us all makes it difficult perhaps for some of us to remember that the richness of life is found in slower moments, that the formation of creative young minds is accomplished not only by the hours spent in the classrooms but, as one writer put it; '...also by watching three branches move and the dust fall. And that love within our families flourishes when there is time for love.' Of what good, I ask the country, is two cars in the driveway and a four bedroom house, if we lose our children? Yes, we must try to give them a better life. I certainly did not want my children to grow up knowing the things that I had to do without, such as going to Sunday-School bare-footed and having two pairs of pants. I remember washing one and wearing the other the next day to school. Today some parents can give their children five dollars to take to school. That is good. But of what good is it if we do all of that, give them all of those things and then leave them to come home alone and watch television and for the television to be their role model?

By God, what I see on television at times is not good enough for adults, much less young elastic minds. I am not criticising any entity in making money. What I am saying to parents is that it is their God given responsibility to do more. No matter how good our homes are, our children can get into problems if we do not pay attention to them.

I love my wife and family, but that does not say that problems will not take hold. As my mother used to say; you cannot keep the children around your frock tail all the time. It is impossible.

So all the gloom and doom that is preached by the Opposition does not bear out what they have said. There is a new feeling in the country to do more. There is a decline in what was found in 1992. I believe that the decline in juvenile crime is a sign of the community and Government working together. This is power! This is the only way to bring about social changes. Not by fighting each other; not by tearing each other down; not by telling people that the Government is corrupt like Nigeria or any other country.

I believe the future will get better if we work at it. As we join together and find the strength of our commonalities. I believe from what I have seen in our social development, from the Community Workers in Bodden Town, those in Watlers Road (where I believe the biggest impression was made), a new web is being woven - and it will come slowly, but it will come. We can see it, feel it and we can hear it coming. Although we still hear the old weaving of the web as it woven, we can also hear the sound of strands being pulled across, new stands being created - the strands of time and trust returning.

We are doing well and while there are still problems, we are doing much better than the Opposition is giving us credit for.

The Governor made mention in the Throne Speech of the development of a youth band and that is planned for this year. I believe this is necessary to start preparing for a National Orchestra which is also necessary for our cultural development.

I am pleased (and I have always noticed it) that there is a tremendous amount of natural talent in our country especially among our young people. If they are harnessed and trained and given a chance we will see results. Look at the results! We only have to take a glance at the results from the Overseas Music Examinations in which our Caymanian students took part. This year there were over 100,000 children taking part and seven of our students (I believe) were placed at the top in the first one percent. Is this not good? Does this not tell us something?

Another good example was the Commonwealth Examinations in which the Cayman Islands received honourable mention. Twenty-three students received commendations from the Royal Commonwealth Society for their work on the Commonwealth Essay Competition. The Cayman Islands was placed in the top echelon. Is this not telling us something? Is this not telling us that there is nothing more precious than our children and that we need to create the kind of atmosphere, the kind of country, to give these young children an opportunity?

At my son's graduation the young lady giving the opening prayer remarked that in the United States 2.5% of young people are bad, 97.5% are good. But the ones who get the most publicity, the ones who millions of dollars are spent on is that 2.5%. While we have some problems (problem children, problem parents) we have a tremendous amount of good young Caymanians, and foreigners, in our country who love... and I should say this: FOREIGNERS who love these Cayman Islands, want to be a part of it and are trying to live together.

We have a lot of young people who we can walk with hand-in-hand, who are good examples, and it is them who we continue to hold up and give credit to. That is why back in 1988 I brought a Motion to this House asking for a Caymanian Scholarship to encourage our young people in whatever field they excel, to give them that scholarship and title and for it to be recognised nationally. When did it get done? Just last year the Government recognised it and I thank the Permanent Secretary for Education and the Minister for getting that through.

We have to praise and give our children a chance to excel and when they excel we have to make sure that we recognise it.

Madam Speaker, efforts are still being made to bring the Social Services Unit in Cayman Brac on par with the office in Grand Cayman. A team from the Computer Services Department and Social Services visited Cayman Brac's new office to install the case management system and train staff to use it. Staff from the Cayman Brac Office travel regularly to Grand Cayman to participate in departmental and other training, and attend various meetings. Something that they never did before.

This year a member of the clerical staff of the Cayman Brac Office commenced a four month training course in social work at the University of the West Indies and on her return it is hoped that she will take up the post of Assistant Social Worker.

I recently paid a visit to the Brac, and I agree that there are needs for a restructuring of the Social Services Department there. I am glad for those people, the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and others, who have brought it to our attention several times. We get complaints that persons over there are not being dealt with and there is favouritism. Human beings, being what we are, will get those complaints, but we are looking at restructuring and hopefully that can begin soon.

A lot of hard work is put into the Young Parents Programme by all concerned to fulfill the main objective of the programme. Events over the past years lead me to believe that every effort is being made to help the young women who participate in the programme to retain their dignity, make them self-sufficient and to provide them with skills that will make them good and effective parents.

In its initial stage it was stressed that the programme should be viewed as community-based with support coming from the community. The department and the Ministry are very thankful for the generous donations and assistance received from the Leo's Club, the Lady Lions of Tropical Gardens and a number of private individuals. I must say that I am very proud of the Lady Lions of Tropical Garden, a very dedicated group of women who see the need in the community and attempt to do something about it in a genuine manner. I certainly appreciate those women.

Fifteen young women and their children participated in the programme at any one time. Some have entered the world of work while others are pursuing studies at the Community College and follow-up continues even after they leave the centre. But I am so pleased because this is a group of young people who hitherto no one paid any attention to. They got in problems, they were removed from school and were left to either create more problems or wonder around trying to make ends meet. When we stop to think, some of them have entered the world of work from the drive they received from the programme.

I remember a title of a book given to me by the Permanent Secretary for Education entitled, 'Even Eagles Need a Push.' That is so true, Madam Speaker. So true! But because of the evident benefits to the young mothers, dialogue has already started with the Ministry for Education regarding making participation in this programme compulsory for all girls who become pregnant while attending school and to return them to full-time schooling, as far as possible, shortly after the birth of their child if they are still below the school leaving age.

One thing that we have not been able to complete as yet (as much as I would want it) is the involvement of young fathers and the parents of young mothers in the programme. We hope to accomplish this during 1996 because it is mostly the fathers who we need to get at in the community. As I have said, we see a resurgence of pride, parents wanting to do something.

I noticed that some 100 fathers attended a Parents/Teachers Association meeting at one of the high schools. This is a good sign of what I talked about earlier. We need to get to those young men because there are too many of them running around believing that they can tamper with young girls and walk away free; leave their responsibility. Watch out that we do not have to put it into a Law to force them to attend a programme like this.

The purpose of the study of the family of the Caymanian society is to satisfy the demand for answers which presently emanate from a wide cross-section of the society. These questions relate specifically to the concerns such as the changing cultural pattern expressed in the apparent family dysfunction; changing roles and the responsibilities within the family; increases in child associated deviant and criminal behaviour and the ability of the Department of Social Services to satisfactorily address these problems.

We heard about them doing financial assistance, but there is much work to be done by social workers in this country.

The Department of Social Services has, over the years, been faced with the task of designing a programme which will best satisfy the welfare needs of these islands. Its stated philosophy stems toward a preference, and this is our policy: For maintaining and support of children within their families and communities. The Department has found itself, over a time, responsible for a range of social welfare services ranging from housing, rehabilitation through residential and rehabilitative care, to case work for battered women. It has become clear that over the 30 year period of the existence of the Department there has been a substantial increase in the demand, which has from time-to-time necessitated the development of new alliances within and without the public sector.

It shows the demand for readjustment of the Department itself and the continued, I should say, re-tooling of staff to serve the new clientele, all of which is now becoming necessary to redefine the policy and mandate of the department.

It is hoped that this family study will go a far way towards addressing these problems. It will provide critical data to the Department and the Ministry and recommendations with respect to reviewing the existing programmes and introducing new ones to respond to the social needs in the country.

Madam Speaker, I hope that the study will be completed by April of this year and that I can make a public announcement regarding these programmes.

Much continues to be said in this Honourable House, and elsewhere, on the strategies and the importance of training and career development of our people. I wonder how many are consistent enough to support the old measures which are necessary to ensure that these ideals translate into real progress or mutual benefits between the employee and the employer and their spoken words do not remain as mere words and rhetoric.

As the Minister responsible for Human Resources, I am pleased of the fact that in the past few years we have made some tangible efforts in dealing with some of the issues and regulations pertaining to labour relations and human resource development. Practically any time you go to make any changes you are going to get a fuss because nobody wants to change from their old ways, particularly if they are asked to cough up more money or if a situation arises which compels them to give more money. Where there is change that is needed, I am not afraid to move forward.

I heard one Member talking about the need to take care of employers. That is true. No Government should unnecessarily battle with employers. Not all employers are unfair, most of them adhere to the laws and do a good job. But there is a lack of training in the country. We will continue the proactive role of the Human Resource Department in the fostering of good labour relations through promoting increased awareness of the legislation as well as building sensitivity towards resource development on the part of the employer and employee.

The Department is charged with coordinating the work of the new Labour Relations Board and the Tribunal.

Hopefully, this new participatory and corporative approach will result in less labour disputes and when hearings are necessary, to a quick and amicable resolution.

At this point in time an assessment of the staff support, which the new Labour Relations Board and Tribunal will require, is being undertaken. It is the intention that these new bodies and their support staff are operational to the extent that it satisfies as many people as possible. It is well known that we are concerned about training, about long range career development and succession planning. The articulation of a well defined and workable Human Resource Development policy and strategies are essential tools for achieving these important objectives. How else are we going to get training?

As Honourable Members are aware, we support through our policies, manpower development and training and the Caymanianisation positions within the public and private sectors whenever there are competent Caymanians who want to fill these positions. The policy further requires that adequate training programmes become commonplace in order to ensure that Caymanians are able to fill responsible jobs consistent with fair career paths and timely succession planning.

We can mourn all we want, but the fact is that we have to put in place a policy for one and all, including Government, where our people are given a chance to be trained. After much preliminary work by the staff of my Ministry including a review of all the volumes of Manpower Demand Reports of 1990, as well as reviewing literature and reports from other countries and organisations, we put the matter to an advisory committee.

I tabled a summary of this report in this Honourable House last year in September, and outlined the sections of the report of the Manpower Development Advisory Committee which Government was prepared to accept at the time.

I do not know how much time I have left, Madam Speaker, and I have quite a bit to cover. I might end up having to ask for some extra time. But no one can say that Government is not attempting to get training done in the community.

What I find hard is that we constantly get bickering from the Chamber of Commerce. I was reading recently their report on their Training and Manpower Development Committee (they have one set up now), it says, "The Committee intends to invite all Chamber members and their employees to say exactly what kinds of training are needed and wanted and in what areas of school education levels are inadequate.... It further says, ...the Committee hopes that its findings will enable the Chamber to put forward a free enterprise alternative to the Draft Training Law published last year by a Government Committee of mainly MLAs and civil servants." By God, Madam Speaker, how dirty can people get, when this committee was made up mostly of members of the private sector? The Chamber had at least one or two members on the Committee and they print this, which goes overseas, to say ...to put forward a free enterprise alternative to the Draft Training Law... Which draft training law was published by Government? Can anybody tell me? I do not know of any draft training law being laid on the Table of this House. There is none! I do not want to go through all of Government's suggestions, but if they say to put forward a free enterprise alternative, it is saying that the Government or someone is trying to put forward something anti-free enterprise.

Here are some of the things Government suggested: The Manpower and Planning Implementation Unit would work with Education to promote pursuit of careers by school leavers.

It calls for an implementation of an apprenticeship system. It says, "There is a need for a new and specific national frame work to deal effectively with manpower development and training. Crucial to this would be development and promulgation of a clear and fair policy on what Government expects from employers and employees. Issuing of work permits within the framework of a clear training policy must become a strategic policy."

It went on to say, "The Immigration Board needs to stress more effective training and promotion of able, willing Caymanians in accordance with conditions and expectations and work permit grants and renewals."

The Committee says, "The function of this Unit [that they are pushing] would include gathering information; assisting in development or modification of labour and training policies; assessing the labour applications or implications of new projects and businesses which seek permits and licences; monitoring the expectations, issued and grants of renewals of work permits; coordinating training programmes and initiatives and fostering an environment of a partnership for training among the employee, employer and Government."

What is so different about these suggestions? I thought that these are things you would find in a free enterprise system as we operate. The fact remains that it should have been done a long time ago. The country would have been allowed to develop to the extent where we do not know sometimes who we have or what we have. But I cannot see why the Chamber of Commerce would say that this is something different from free enterprise.

Institutions in this country need to stop this bickering. This is a Government that has pushed development to the extent that work permits have been on the increase. No one can say that they do not get the work permits they need. Of course, we are hearing today, as we heard about development and tourism, that there are too many work permits being granted. But I have heard calls from within this House to grant more work permits. When we grant more work permits they complain that we have granted too many.

What one and all have to realise is that we are going to have people as long as someone says they need a permit and push the Government to grant it. What else are we going to see but people walking up and down the streets. If we grant work permits for a new hotel what else are we going to see but an increase in work permits? We have to accept that there are not enough Caymanians (as I have said on Monday) to do all the work which development brings. We expect development because we want certain things that we are not going to pay taxes on. So the money has to come from somewhere else. This is all bound up in this.

One of the situations that I am concerned about is the number of people who have work permits and who may not need them. I know that some of my constituents has said to me, "What are you doing with all these Jamaicans?" That is a big thing and perhaps I will lose some votes by mentioning it, but it is a fact. The truth is that not everybody can have a helper, a gardener, and every other labourer they want and not see people around. People cannot go around saying we cannot have all these people, but give me a work permit for my helper. We cannot say that.

Recently, a young man who usually comes to my house said to me, "Mr. Bush, I need $5.00" (he does not usually ask for much, and I usually assist him because I know him). That morning I took him around the back of my house and said, 'You see out here? I have a little plantation. I want you to pull the bushes and you will get more than $5.00. You have at least four days' work.' Madam Speaker, you know what he said to me, "You think I am a Jamaican or what?" This is the mentality that exists, and until Members in this House accept it and put hearts and hands together to do something about it, it is not going away. We cannot have development... We do not want to pay taxes, we want to take home all of our money and expect to get all the things we need and want and yet not see other people around? One goes with the other.

I have had occasions, when I saw jobs being advertised in the newspaper, to call up as Minister or go and see the people. One job in particular for a Gas Station Attendant (which we usually call them, but let us say a 'Maintenance man in the Gas Station') 36 applicants; four Caymanians, one still at school age; four persons on permits that are held by other persons looking part-time job; 28 other foreigners, 20 of whom were women.

Does that not tell us something in this community? Does that not say something to us and every other citizen in this country, employers and all? Some people are too eager to go and apply for a work permit. Now we need the labourer and that would show us that we do not have the Caymanians. Or it could say the other thing that Caymanians are employed and there are people who have work permits, but do not have work. Permits are being granted to people where either the work is finished or something else. It can tell us several things.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister would you take a break at this time?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Ma'am.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.32 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.03 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the break I was dealing with the Human Resource Development and strategies for manpower development and training.

Whether the Chamber of Commerce, or anyone else for that matter, believes that we can get away from training Caymanians, then they do not really understand the forces of youth. While some of us might be able to take and review things differently, young people are different and will live in different times with different pressures and they are not going to wait.

I am happy to say that recently Executive Council has approved the preparation for the restructuring plan for the Human Resources Department. The broad functions of this re-tooled department will include labour relations, career development training, including apprenticeship schemes and productivity, the Guaranteed Student Loan Scheme, Pensions Inspectorate and probably financial assistance. Those are my ideas for the department.

We can be effective only if a proper Manpower Planning and Implementation Unit is established in Government. As well as being responsible for implementing and stewarding the above functions, the department will also be expected to continue to provide various support services including facilitating job training and retraining, job referrals and placement, assisting with the preparation of entry level and less able workers for the world of work.

I know that the Third Elected Member for West Bay, and others, perhaps mentioned the people who are coming out of prison. I got Executive Council to agree to formalise a pilot project where ex-prisoners will work in the environment. Some of this has been taking place, but as I have said it will be formalised. We cannot expect the private sector to take on these ex-prisoners if Government is unwilling to do so.

I believe that this programme will be one where we will be able to take them in on a probationary period for six months to see their work ethics; see if they are on time, see if they do their work properly, see if they follow instructions, etcetera. Upon the completion of that six months we can perhaps give them a certificate saying that they have completed the course. If they do not show up timely in the first six months, then we give them a further six months to see how well they come along. But we have to give them guidance, we have to be willing to assist, and this programme is being formalised and will be published shortly.

I note that there were several influential individuals and groups both in this House and outside, who were quick to criticise me when Government proposed bold initiatives for training of workers in the country. It is now interesting to see that many of those same individuals have concluded that these initiatives are what it may take to prudently prepare Cayman's work force for the 21st century without disrupting the economy with draconian measures that many other countries had to resort to.

I trust that we will all work together to take the sensible and bold steps which are needed to enhance our strategic human resources. While constructive criticism is always useful, I trust that the critics of these initiatives will not resort to harmful misinformation, such as what the Chamber of Commerce published in the newspaper and other tactics to sabotage our efforts.

I am also concerned about the fragmented approach to training in these islands which appears to be implemented. Various groups seem to work independently and without the benefit of overall communication and coordination. For example various Government Departments and Ministries that conduct various courses and seminars without communicating with other possible users or partners. Likewise in the private sector, there are similar cases of this fragmented approach.

While Government is appreciative of all efforts which were made over the years to train our people, it is my opinion that it is now time to put in place a proper coordinated framework to better facilitate training for the public sector as well as the private sector. I believe this training must be closely linked to the needs of our economy and that formal courses, short courses, technical and vocational training and certificate courses should be done. All that can be done locally should be done.

My Ministry's view on this matter is to help to formalise an environment for training and to promote the philosophy that a trained society is a much better alternative for both the employee and employer. As I mentioned earlier, promoting this environment is one thing, but the actual implementation of these strategies will most likely require the development of new resources in order to carry out the technical and specialist functions that will be crucial to the success of human resource development in our island.

We do get complaints (as I have said earlier) from those who are trying to undermine the Government, but they better think carefully of the forces - and I do not mean just the walk-foot boy - at all levels that are complaining about the lack of training and upward mobility. I trust that our Government and future governments will not defer this important matter any longer and will not apologise for farsighted decisions which, in our case, will only result in making this country more prosperous and able to compete in the marketplace.

It is therefore, and I stress this, in the interest of everyone - employers, employees and Government - that we view training and human resource development not as a burden but, instead, as an investment in something which is crucial if we are to continue to enjoy our Cayman Islands; the best place in which to live and to conduct business. If we do the opposite, and by our actions or insinuations cause this worthwhile effort to be scuttled, then I am afraid of the long term consequences. The very least such neglect will ensure is that this and future generations will be the losers.

I am appealing to private sector employer organisations to establish or re-invigorate their training committees to conduct initiatives such as need assessments, identify the gaps in skills, introduce specific training programmes of courses to help Caymanians to acquire these skills and to monitor the performance and the upward mobility of the staff members who have the urge to move forward.

I agree with the Fourth Elected Member for George Town when he says, "While seminars and workshops and such can help alert employees to certain needs and situations, it cannot take the place of proper training programme." Training must take place, the right kind of training, and without hassle, Madam Speaker.

Members of this House also should not go out and join forces with those out there in objection to Government's plans for training. Some Members have an unholy bad habit of saying one thing in this Honourable House talking about the need for certain things such as training, but when they get out there in the public with their supporters, business friends and others, they sing a different tune.

If Members of this House can be so, to say the least, double-talking, how can my Ministry succeed, especially when they are joined by others in the upward echelons of the public service? That is a combination for my Ministry to beat or overcome. But I am not going to stop, and the Opposition Members must learn this because it is them to whom I am speaking.

I feel that if we must have national contentment, with the genuine training and enhancement of our people in the work place, be it in tourism, banking, law firms or wherever, this can only take place if our people see a genuine effort being made to do training in the country. It is not a short term goal for me in any shape or form. If I am not back in Council after the next Election, I would hope that any Government that is in place will continue to work on a long-term basis for proper training of our employees. As I have said, be they members of a law firm, banks, the tourism industry or in the retail sector, wherever, it must come.

It is no longer good enough for any bakery owner in this country (as we were told by one) to tell us that they were not going to hire Caymanian girls to be their Front Office clerks. Why not? They had to get a work permit. Why? What people shall my people be if they are not given an opportunity to be a simple clerical officer.

As a small progressive country, we need to foster an environment which engages the commitment of the employers, employees, associations and agencies, where all parties accept the training through life and make it a reality. If we all work together, we can succeed and avoid the labour related problems which have destroyed our economies

There is no use in people believing that they can do as they please because it is their business. Capital is one thing, being an employer is another thing, but you cannot do your business without an employee. The quicker we get together and give that person a chance, push him forward... as I have said even eagles need a push.

There has been much grumbling about the recent incident in the Civil Service involving Miss Glasgow. I am only going to make reference to one thing. For the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to say that she had no political assistance... how can we give her assistance? And why blame the Government? Why blame Elected Members or any politicians?

Madam Speaker, you cannot speak out of the two sides of your mouth. When he was making that statement, I said to myself, he should remember that they (the Opposition) went on national television and said that it was a clear breach of the Constitution for me and Members of this House to have interfered with Mrs. McCoy's problem. We were not telling anybody to do this or do that. What we said was that we would take our own actions. How can he now come and say that we should interfere and give political assistance? But, of course, that is typical of the Opposition.

There are problems in the work place with people moving forward. People are not getting the opportunity which I think is due to them and our people (young people) have a dream. I will end this section with this poem titled 'A Dream Deferred', it reads:

*What happens to a dream deferred?
Does it dry up like a raisin in the sun?
Or fester like a sore –And then run?
Does it stink like rotten meat?
Or crust and sugar over – like a syrupy sweet?
Maybe it just sags like a heavy load.
Or does it explode?"*

I will not further trespass on this area, but I hope every one heard that poem 'A Dream Deferred', for to defer training which will damage the future of our children who are graduating from school, does not give present employees a chance to better themselves is a dream deferred. Will that dream explode in the future?

To all of those people who are saying that we are doing nothing for young people and the districts, I want to say that we have some After School Programmes; five in George Town, one in West Bay and two in Cayman Brac. We have well over 200 children involved in these after school programmes.

This is a good programme, I do not need to go through it. But I was delighted to hear the Lady Member for Sodden Town talking about the need of a programme in her district.

Bodden Town is a fast growing district, and I see a lot of young people who need to be in such a programme. As we are aware of those sitting in groups by the Post Office as indicated by a Member, this is something they can be involved in and this is what we need; representatives seeing a need and coming to Government and saying, 'I want something.' I will say to the lady Member that I will do everything I can to see that Bodden Town starts at least one after school programme.

We assisted the churches by giving them a grant for a youth worker. We are now assisting 19 such churches; Cayman Brac - 4; George Town - 9; West Bay - 3; East End - 1; North Side - 2. We are going to do something in Bodden Town.

Since my Ministry took over the responsibility for women's affairs, it has been very busy in examining ways of how best to deal with that matter. A Committee, as I understand, was set up and will soon submit their report and we will go forward from there.

As far as I am concerned at this stage in our development it is important to place emphasis on the subject. When the Motion was brought by the two lady Members (the Third Elected Member for George Town and the Member for North Side) it highlighted the serious problems that were either covered up or just ignored. When we see the degree of abuse from pictures... I did not know that people had it in them to do that to someone else. It is a time to look at the role of women in the family, in the workplace, in Government and throughout our community. We have to look at their strength, their perseverance, their ambition and their invaluable role in the growth of our nation.

The Caymanian Compass had a very good editorial (I do not know whether it is today's or yesterday's paper) about the responsibilities for this subject. It said something to the effect that emphasis should not be placed on rural women, but we need to look at women who are really in need in the community. This is a challenge I throw out to this society. I agree with them. There are many women in need of friendship, counselling and assistance with their problems to move from day to day. This is what the Government intends to do. But, of course, we will not place emphasis in one place.

Our women of the Cayman Islands have always been strong and capable. If I should say so, I think you, yourself, Madam Speaker, and the women in this House have been a good example to other women. Women have been our teachers, mentors for certain things, our caregivers, raised our children, taught us in Sunday School and I believe some very good role models exist in this country - some have gone on to glory, some are still living, Mrs. Ena Watler and the mother of the Minister for Education are women I look up to, simply because I belong to the same church and I know that as an elder of that church they are people who raised their families without much mention of praise and glory on the front pages of the Compass. But this is indicative of the women in our society.

We are not a backwoods country, we are not like Nigeria nor Guyana. We have our own makeup, and we have to take our case as it is. Let us all remember that there are problems that impact on women which we need to address and which must be addressed in this country. To those who may say that the recognition of women's issues is unnecessary, we must remember that when our women are in a positive position; our children, our men, our society will be in a positive position as well.

Sports: Government conducted a number of programmes either directly through the Sports Office or indirectly through sports grants given to approximately 33 national associations. I see a letter in today's paper which I will not pay credence to, Madam Speaker, because I do not believe that the author wrote the letter. I think he is just being an agency for other frustrated minds. All I will say is that if that particular person would come and talk to us rather than writing to the press things which he know not, then perhaps things would be much better for him. But I do know that he was offered the position to be National Coach and he refused.

As stated earlier, Government has hired coaches for the areas of netball, football, basketball, cricket and swimming, in addition to three sports instructors in the Sports Department. All three officers assist most of the primary schools on a regular basis either with their Physical Education or Physical Recreation Programmes.

I know that there is an After-School Programme in West Bay in which over 100 children are involved and it is being done by a few people, one of them is the Deputy Sports Coordinator, Mr. Bernie Bush. Age-group intra-district competitions are being conducted in the areas of basketball, football, netball and cricket. With that in mind, last night was a glorious night (and a glorious sanction to that letter in today's paper) when we had our young boys under age 18 defeating Jamaica. That is a programme paid for by the Government. Who is it being paid for by if not by Government?

I congratulate Mr. Scott, the patron who is also the Third Elected Member for West Bay, and most of all Victor (Voot) O'Garro, a Christian man, and one who can deal with children and deal with adults also. That is what a coach is all about.

There is no use having a bit of expertise if you cannot deal with people. How else are you going to coach? Therein lies the problem with the letter.

The following is a breakdown of the various sports and numbers involved:- (1) Basketball: Under-14 Teams approximately 100 young boys, Under-16 Teams approximately 100, Men's teams - 80. and Women's teams - 60; (2) Netball: Under-14 and Under-17 teams approximately 145 girls; (3) Cricket is to be started soon with the Under-13 team of approximately 80, Under-15 team of approximately 80 boys and Men's team approximately 250 are involved; (4) Football: Under-16 boy's teams - 80; Under-19 boy's teams - 100, Men's team over 1,000 and women's team over 200. Then we have softball which is mostly done by the private sector and I believe baseball is done at the West Bay playing field. You should see the amount of interest, and one thing I love about those games is that parents are always there. I am glad to see that sort of encouragement.

In swimming there are approximately 500 children from all age groups registered for classes at the Lion's Aquatic Centre for this current season. There are three swimming instructors employed to be at the swimming pool.

It should be observed that I have only mentioned the areas in which Government has hired a coach with the exception of the baseball and softball. However, there are programmes going on in other areas in which young people are very much involved; sailing, badminton, marshal arts, rugby, tennis, track and field, athletics and volleyball, to name a few.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many volunteers who are involved in the various programmes and to appeal to others, especially the parents of the children involved, to assist where possible.

It should also be noted that the coaches who Government has hired are also preparing local coaches. One outstanding case in point is in basketball where the coach prepared the Under-19 National Team members as coaches who coached the Under-14 districts' teams. So, as for the inquiry made by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, he should get his facts straight before making any derogatory remarks. The same coach prepared the Under-16 girls as officials and they officiated in that particular tournament. Coaches hired for other sports are doing likewise.

Government will continue to promote summer camps in as many areas of sports as is possible, to ensure that our young people are involved in wholesome, worthwhile activities during the summer months when they are on vacation from school. So far the summer camp is doing very well. But what we do need is for people to genuinely get involved because Government cannot pay for all the manpower that is needed to assist with the many different young children and young people who are involved. Conditions at the George Town Primary School field were mentioned, and I will speak on it for a minute because we have some responsibility in that participants in sports use the school field. If we remember it was the very first field we had in this country. The Ministry has expressed some concern regarding the George Town Primary School field. This is a field that has been used by the community because there are no public open space in that area, nor are there any playing fields in that area. But we have done the following in late 1995 and earlier this year to improve the facility. We assisted in repairing the canteen and removed the room from the top which had become an eye sore. We provided the Football Association with funding for refurbishing the lighting. It is my understanding that improvement to the light will take place shortly.

The few ground maintenance staff that the Ministry has visit there at least once weekly to assist in keeping the place in a sanitary condition. We have had meetings between the Education Department and the Ministry of Community Development to discuss renovation plan and to put it forward for implementation. Follow up of that meeting is being down to insure that the proposed renovation, such as the hard court to be place closer to the school, the entrance to the school should be widen for better turn-around and extending the school front by moving the fence closer to the school field, thus giving more front space for the children to move freely around the front is done.

Last month my Permanent Secretary and I, along with representatives from the Public Works Department visited the facility. The Ministry has concluded with the Public Works Department that it would remove the present building (that is the bathrooms and changing rooms) and put in place a better constructed building including an office to be used by the current users: football, basketball and hockey players as well as providing a small play area for the children of that area.

It was also agreed that a joint meeting between the two Ministries (Education and Community Development) to discuss these improvements which can mutually benefit the school and the community should take place in the near future. The facility is to be treated as a priority.

The suggestion of a full-time custodian is a good one and Government shall look at the possibility of employing someone. I hope when the request comes forward that Members will not hem and haw, but will support it.

The problem with glass bottles, etcetera, on the Annex field is because it is used by all and sundry in that area. We find beer bottles and different glass bottles which are not thrown there by the sports persons using the field, it is done by other persons who are unsupervised at these functions.

Government and the Civil Aviation have entered into an agreement to provide a park at the Smith Road/Old Agricultural ground to facilitate the many people who relax there during their lunch hour. It is a common thing to see cars parked there because really there is no open space in George Town. We have been trying to find open property as close to central George Town as possible, but that seems to have been elided.

It is the intention of the Ministry to enhance the area by giving a face lift to the present pavilion, renovating it to provide permanent public toilets and to landscape the area by planting trees. It should be noted that the Cricket Association will continue to use the site as a cricket facility, especially cricket for the youths.

It is also suggested, and we have discussed it with the Civil Aviation, the development of a park opposite the Foster's Food Fair on Airport Road which was used for a park years ago. This area lends itself naturally to the development of a park. Currently this site is frequently used by people on their lunch hour to relax, by children who play on the dilapidated slides and swings and by the Volleyball Association who use it as their main venue for volleyball games. It is intended to enhance this area by providing a fence to prevent vehicular traffic through the park thus promoting safety for our children, providing public toilets, to clear the pond to better facilitate the viewing of the land turtles, birds and fish that live in the pond and to refurbish the swings and slides and provide other park facilities.

It should be noted that the Volleyball Association would continue to use this venue for their games. Public Works Department is assisting the Ministry with the development of these parks. It is anticipated that these projects will get good support from the private sector.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, will you be finishing shortly? Or can we take the luncheon suspension now?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: I think we better take the luncheon suspension.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.48 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.34 PM

[Hon. Edna M. Moyle, Deputy Speaker in the Chair]

Deputy Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture continuing.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Madam Speaker. May I say that it is good to see you in the chair? I give the chair notice - I am not asking for special favours but I do believe that I will be needing some more time and I need the indulgence of the House.

When we took the luncheon suspension, I was dealing with the parks in George Town. I want to add that in connection with the Annex field (the George Town Primary school park) the Ministry is proposing the development of a park with playing areas equipped with swings, slides and so on for young children, public toilets and seating accommodation and planting of trees to beautify the area.

Members should be aware that CayFest will be held this year. Over the years, the Cultural Foundation has worked somewhat toward broaden the base of Caymanians involvement in cultural activities by creating training programmes, awarding grants to local artists and producing their work in the form of books, musical recordings and stage plays. In the same period the Foundation has provided inspiration and instruction for our artists by bringing in art practitioners from the Caribbean region and further a field.

We now have a roster of Caymanian plays, an invigorating Art Committee for the growing number of Caymanian painters and Cayman's first art book featuring the work of Miss Lassie. We also have a recording of Mr. Radley Gourzong's music on the market. We have a strong interest in dance. We have developed a core group of Caymanian stage performers. We have an annual show where all the nationalities who live in Cayman combine in a local play call "Rundown."

I was in this year's Rundown - and rundown it was - I did not hear anything much positive in the play, it was just simply rundown and I should say obnoxious in a lot of areas. Nevertheless, we do have a play. Some years I enjoy it, but this particular year I think a lot of it was unfounded and I believe that when such a play is put on it should be factual; make fun from facts but not from hearsay in the community. When I left the play, my daughter asked me, "Dad, did the Opposition write the play or what?"

(some Members' laughter)

As I have said I believe when we have these plays if they are creating something for fun on the life in Cayman it should be based on facts. I will not go further into it, but, as an illustration, in 1995 the Cultural Foundation spanned a wide range of artistic endeavours and focused seriously on both national and international talent.

In the visual arts, the Caribbean Art Exhibition mounted here included the work of five local painters (two of them Caymanians) attracted over 6,000 spectators. In this regard, I should say that we have commissioned a Task Force to examine the need for a national art gallery. In recent years with the growing interests in art such things as the workshops and the Carib Art Exhibition last year at the Harquail Theatre the impetus for a notational gallery of art has been growing. In addition, it has long been my concern that so many of our young people show promise in art seem to drop it completely after leaving school because there is no place for them to continue. So for those two reasons, earlier this year I assembled a focus group to look at the situation and they have already made good progress down that road. This task force is headed by the Governor's gallant lady, Mrs. Carol Owen as chairman, the Permanent Secretary from my Ministry as ex-Officio, Miss Anita Ebanks, Mr. David Martins, Mrs. Lesley Biegleman, Mr. Carson Ebanks of Planning, Mr. John Doak, Mr. Danny Owens and Mr. Miguel Powery. The artists and the art teachers and the people who work in Culture have endorsed the idea of a national art gallery as necessary if we are to develop our people's interests in painting and sculptor.

The gallery will become a repository for the art our people produce, but even more importantly, it will become a propellant for our artists because it will give them something to aspire to, a goal to reach if you may, to have their work in this gallery housing the nation's best creations. It does not end there, another important component of the gallery will be an instruction programme for all our artists, young and old, in a separate area of the gallery or a separate building. Another concept the focus group is looking at is to take this instruction side into the districts, in small pockets at first, but leading to a scenario where budding artists in West Bay, East End, North Side, Bodden Town and Cayman Brac and Little Cayman can become involved in creations that may one day hang in the national art gallery.

The Focus Group/Task Force is examining this whole question in detail regarding location, funding organisation, staffing, building size, and so on, and will make recommendations to the Ministry on these structural points.

I see this whole effort as resulting in two significant developments; one will be the creation of an impressive permanent home for our art, the other will be a mechanism for people to exercise their artistic sides in familiar surroundings of their district. In one sentence:

We will be bringing our people to the arts (that is the national art gallery) and arts to our people through the district programmes.

I have been asking for this district programme for a long time since I took over and I hope that we can have it through Cayfest which is to be held in July. This Focus Group/Task Force is looking at ways and means of bringing it to the districts. I want to say thanks to Mrs. Owen and the other members of the group. This is something for the future and we have to start now. It might be that we will get some benefactors in the community who will contribute to such a worthwhile cause. This is part of a cultural development and I would hope that people will come forward and offer assistance in whatever way they can.

The Cultural Foundation ran three workshops in paintings and ceramic and cosponsored a sculpture workshop with the Visual Arts Society. We also funded the participation of Caymanian arts; artists Mrs. Lassie Bush, Mr. Bendel Hydes, Mr. Miguel Powery and Mr. Phillippe Bush at Carifesta in Trinidad and Tobago last year.

In the performing arts, apart from Rundown, theatrical offerings included the Falling Angels which was performed by invitation at the Rugby School Festival of Creative Arts in Warwickshire, England and on the Harquail Theatre stage; three winning plays from the playwriting competition; a professional recording of Country and Western standards by Mr. Roy Bodden of Radio Cayman which was produced by Hopscotch Studio here, and in the overseas arena, Dance Unlimited made a very strong impact for Cayman at the Carifesta in Trinidad.

In the literature arts, free instructions in creating plays and poetry attracted aspiring writers from a cross section of the community and 12 publications with a Caymanian focus were also displayed at Carifesta. Now, this year in addition to its slate of ongoing work, the Foundation's plans include the formation of a semi-professional theatre company with participants attending classes in acting, singing and dance. This year will see a series call "Cayman Catch" where Caymanians will be presented on the Harquail stage with various reminiscences of early Cayman. The plan for this series, taped in conjunction with the National Archives is to be taken to wider audiences through television.

Since 1994, when I took responsibility for Culture, I have been stressing the need for our presence in the districts and this year with additional funding from the Ministry, that thrust has begun with the inauguration of the National Arts Festival - CAYFEST which will run through the entire month of July in every district all over the country.

The roster for Cayfest (which is growing by the week) begins with the recreation of an old time Caymanian boat launch and a catboat race with a least five boats and ends with an all day Caymanian garden party at the Lions Centre where every artistic expression under the Cayman sun will be presented for all to enjoy. In between Cayfest we will offer art shows, dance groups, singers, musical combos, church choirs, architectural displays, photography, culinary arts, hand crafts, sports, poetry, jewellery, and the list goes on. But suffice it to say, Cayfest will have every aspect of artistic talent that this country possesses on full display. Portable lighting and sound units will be acquired so that the districts' presentations will have a professional touch and the events will be advertised at the district level as well as at the national level.

Deputy Speaker: Honourable Minister, your allocated time has now expired. Will you be finishing shortly?

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I crave the indulgence of the House to complete my speech and ask for the suspension under Standing Order 83.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 32(6)

Deputy Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 32(6) be suspended to allow the Honourable Minister to complete his debate on the Throne Speech.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

Deputy Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 32(6) SUSPENDED.

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you very much for your indulgence, Madam Speaker, and I do thank the House for its kindness.

If any Member of this House needs extra time they will get it if they are making a constructive contribution. We should not waste the time of the House. I will say that to my good friend the First Elected Member for Sodden Town who remarked about the Opposition's time.

Every weekend in July in every Town Hall or Civic Centre in the country our people will be displaying their talents; their creativity, their artistry, their imagination and, every day of the final week of July will see some aspect of our artistry showcased. On the eve of this artistic outburst, the Cultural Foundation will be establishing an ongoing presence in each district so that the interests generated by Cayfest can be translated into small units in various disciplines designed to stimulate artistic activity at the district level. This will then become a circular process with Cayfest activities generating interests in the district which will in turn become the breeding ground of activities for Cayfest. Cayfest, by nature of its very wide panorama, has all the earmarks of becoming an event which hopefully will attract a full cross section of our community. Judging by the enthusiasm already being displayed for it, I predict that this festival will eventually reach into every corner of our country; giving us confidence in our abilities, bringing enjoyment to many, making us all feel proud.

I would hope that we can get a motivational speaker from outside the country, someone whom is well known and who can relate to our young people, to come in and speak on one of the weekends at perhaps a youth rally. I have had many suggestions, and the one that I like best is General Cohn Powell. I say that to the House and the country hoping I will get some support for it, but that is the direction in which we are aiming. For our young people, in particular, this event will prove to be very dynamic and, indeed, one of the ingredients of Cayfest will be a Youth Day featuring the celebrity guest whose life story can and will inspire and motivate our young people.

The National Museum had a milestone year in 1995. It was a time to review past accomplishments such as the many changing exhibits which were created; the numerous artifacts, specimen and art pieces which were collected, the educational programmes, classes and special events which were held and thousands of residents and visitors who have enjoyed tours of the Museum.

This year will be a year of continued growth as the Museum moves forward with its responsibilities as outlined in the Museum Law; "collecting items of historic, scientific and artistic relevance to the Cayman Islands and using those times to educate the public about Cayman's heritage." The museum will also seek to increase revenue from non-governmental sources through more aggressive marketing, fund raising projects, product development and sales.

In connection with the preserving of our natural heritage, I am concerned that not enough is done to preserve ship wrecks and so forth in the country. Perhaps it is even late, if there are any worthwhile ones left that we do not know about, but I do hope that this year I can bring an amendment to the Wrecks and Salvage (Amendment) Law regarding preserving that element of our heritage.

In September, October or November of this year, the Wreck of the Ten Sails exhibit will be taken to each of the districts in Grand Cayman as well as the Sister Islands if funding can be secured. A popular book about the wreck written by the Museum Archeologist will be published to coincide with the travelling exhibition. Utilising a grant from the United Nations Development Bank, the Museum will create a comprehensive master plan for the next five years as it moves beyond its 5th anniversary and into the second half of its first decade. It will possess a well thought-out plan for its continued growth and development.

I hope to start discussion between the Museum staff and the owners of the Powell Museum in West Bay to make that some part of the National Museum. The Powell's Museum is one that has so much in it and I do not know how much assistance Government has given them, but I do think that we need to assist them. We have begun preliminary discussions and I am hopeful that it can become an adjunct of the National Museum.

Before I close I want to mention something about gratuities. This problem still alludes the Government and I have some plans which I am not going to make public, but they will soon be put in place. Hopefully, this stealing of gratuities by some properties will stop.

What I will make public is that if those properties that we know are stealing (we do not have the evidence in our hands, but we know that they are stealing gratuities) do not stop and start doing better by June, I will see to it that a financial audit is performed at least on an annual basis on the books and records of the properties and a specific report issued to the Government by the independent auditing firm. Testing to proper calculation and payment of gratuities will be allowed under the law.

I believe that room tax should be included because nothing has alluded us any more than this issue of gratuity. We know that they are taking the gratuities belonging to the workers. We know it! We do not have the evidence. So while I will be taking some measures (which I cannot reveal at this time) I am revealing the idea of the financial audit and the amendment to the law dealing with gratuities. It is a disgrace as to how some properties can flout the law. It is a disgrace! How many years have we talked about stopping them?

While some actions have been taken by the Finance Department, there is still a lot of room left for disagreement. The only way that we can satisfy this disagreement is to put in place provision for a financial audit on the books and records of these properties. It is not their money; it belongs to the people who work for them.

I want to mention a matter in my constituency, that of the John A. Cumber Primary School - the public school. I wish to record my thanks to the Minister and his Permanent Secretary for their efforts in particular on education at that school. I would like to especially say a word of thanks to the teachers at the John A. Cumber Primary School. Currently the enrollment is 450 students very large school. Just think of the handful of teachers who deal with this many children; they are doing well.

There are 21 classes ranging in size from 19 to 25, but we need more teachers. I think we are short of one teacher and that is in the process. Support staff consists of a full time reading resource person, one part-time speech and language pathologist for two days per week and one librarian.

There is some vacant position since September, one learning/emotional and behavioral disorder specialist. We have a computer room with 24 computers. I really congratulate the Ministry on this. I will talk to the Minister and his staff about the needs of the school. I know that they will have a listening ear for the needs of the John A. Cumber Primary School.

I support any additional funds for education. I support any additional funds for the primary schools, especially one of this size needs a lot of attention.

There was mention about a new school because of the need for space and I would hope that we could take the old John A. Cumber Primary School and develop the site for continued education for the district of West Bay. The community is big enough for such a programme to offer basic education, such as reading, mathematics, literary skills.

I think this is needed. I think parents need this. A lot of parents cannot help their children, and sometimes the children cannot do better in school because they have no assistance from that avenue. I believe for the future this is something that can be done and I am going to put that forward to the Ministry. Consideration must now be given to the building of another primary school due to an increase in enrollment at the school.

One suggestion is for the present site to accommodate years one to three, and for a new site to accommodate years four to six. Each school could operate as a four-stream school with each class averaging not more than 20 students. I do hope that I can see a marked increase in the efforts at the primary school.

I appreciate the many visits of the Minister and his Permanent Secretary, but this is the only way that we can know what is going on - if we visit. This was a failure of the past Member for Education, Mr. Benson Ebanks. He did not know what was going on. He did not know that the school was being built without windows.

Property is available in West Bay for this new school, and I, as well as my colleagues in Executive Council and fellow colleagues in the Assembly, assist the Minister with whatever he needs.

Madam Speaker, this is the first time in many years (and many long debates) that we hear actual praise for the Police Force. Not one word of opposition about Cayman Airways. I have been here 12 years and this is the first time that I can say that I have heard Elected Members say that they are satisfied with what the Commissioner of Police is doing; the first time that the Opposition Members never criticised Cayman Airways. This is proof positive that the Government is willing to put its funds where its mouth is, and have been judicious with what little funds it has to make things happen for the country.

There is a Bill on the Order Paper to create a Stock Exchange. A stock exchange for these small islands shows the vision of the Government, and I am thankful to our colleague, the Honourable Third Official Member, for his efforts. All of this shows the confidence placed in the Cayman Islands.

In spite of all that is said and all the opposition that is thrown at us, we have done extremely well. Do we not remember the opposition to the Housing Scheme? Look at the many things that were said about me, things that were imputed. Today 84 people have homes.

We heard first that the Housing Scheme was exclusive. We should not do it; we heard that Government should not do the guarantee because people would not pay their mortgage. Then we heard that no one was going to get houses. Remember the First Elected Member for Bodden Town calling it a hair-brained scheme. I am proud of that scheme, and I thank the Government (the official side) and the Financial Secretary for his assistance with the guarantees.

The Opposition opposed the Marine Institute. We now have an enrollment of 35 students and five more are waiting. What do we think would happen if we have to keep sending them overseas? In fact, it is getting difficult to send anyone overseas. But if we had to send them overseas at $100,000 per year, how much would that cost us? While the Marine Institute cost us less than $1 million.

Look at the opposition to sports. We have come a long way, Madam Speaker. Every programme put forward was criticised and improper motives were imputed by the Opposition. Juvenile crimes have dropped from 335 when we took over in 1992 to 115 last year. Is this not a good Government?

We were talking earlier about the work permits in the country. When we took over there were over 1,000 Caymanians registered who were out of jobs. As of Friday, there were 84 registered, and 35 of them were foreigners looking for a second job. They are willing to work. I cannot blame them for that.

Is this not saying that the Government has done well? We have revived the economy. We lowered the fees on company registration and at the last count that I have, as at the end of last year, we have 33,000 registered companies.

We have put Mutual Fund legislation in place. We are receiving $1 million from that. Look at the problems that existed in the Shipping Registry. The last administration was so incapacitated that they were saying, 'close it down.' The Government worked out those problems and we now have over 500 more ships registered and the Government's revenue has grown over 60% more than in 1992.

I congratulate the Financial Secretary and his staff. We had something to do with it as well, we worked together.

Last year, in spite of the problems with the Civil Service where people had to leave (as we have seen again this year), it is something that brings bitter gall to my mouth. Last year over 156 Caymanian civil servants were promoted with substantial salary increases. Among these promotions, since we took over, for the first time in our history we now have a Caymanian Principal at the John Gray High School, and at the George Hicks High School. We now have a Caymanian director of the Health Services.

They said that I did not do anything, but I remember when I took over in 1992, they were bringing someone from Minnesota. I said it could not happen. Two Caymanians are now head of the Water Authority. A Caymanian also heads the Turtle Farm and, for the first time, a Caymanian is head of the Special Branch in the Police Force.

The Civil Service had to be brought up to par as far as salaries are concerned. We gave the civil servants an increase in 1994, and a 9% increase this year which I understand brings the value of salaries to the highest level in five years in terms of purchasing power. Who can say that we are not doing well? Pensions will come on stream this year. How long has that aluded this country? How many years have we heard that there is no pension and we need to get one? As soon as one is put on the table the Opposition springs up about it.

Health Insurance is going to be coming into force. I see where someone is saying, 'No, don't do that.' When will be a good time to do it? If not now, when? If not us, who? Now is an accepted time. Madam Speaker, we have done well and I am proud to say that it is getting better.

To summarise on my Ministry, we have granted more student loans than any other Government. From 1987 to 1992, only 102 student loans were granted. Between 1993 and October 1995, 117 student loans were granted. Student loans went from a value of from $1.4 million between 1987 and 1992 to $3.5 million between 1993 and 1995. Who can say, that our initiatives are not resulting in more people getting education. Training opportunities for our young people have been allowed and bring a grater number of qualified Caymanians into the work force.

We have done well. We live in changing and challenging times. We have our problems; traffic, the need of training for our young people and other problems. But as I have said from the beginning of my debate, we Caymanians have more to be thankful for than any other country in this region and most others that I know about. A lot of Caymanians are fairly well off to the extent that no one is starving, while millions around the world are suffering. Starvation is still a cause of death in the world today.

The quality of houses is excellent. If we look around this country, look at the types of homes that are being built... and we are trying to assist those persons in the lower-income bracket who need help. Our pioneering forefathers, who made these islands what they are today, took the position that all the blessings we enjoy are gifts from a Divine Providence which we have not earned by our own efforts or merits. This was a sensible view based on the practical experience of people who knew that as individuals they could not add one quill bit to their stature, nor make one blade of grass grow in the field. Our people were God-fearing, and were not afraid (nor ashamed, as it seems some people are today) to acknowledge their dependence on their Creator for the sun and rain and for good health which supplies the energy to work and till the fields and reap the harvest which gave them their livelihood.

Things seem to be different today. Do we ever stop to give thanks for what we have, and for what we have achieved and for where we are? We say we do, but there is reason to doubt our sincerity.

I remember when hurricane Marilyn passed so close here last year... People said it was luck. I say, Divine Providence. Our actions speak the loudest, they indicate that far too many persons are motivated by the idea that as individuals or corporations, small and large, they are entitled to whatever they can get no matter who has to pay the price. That they can take more out of the economy than they have put in, regardless of who suffers as a result.

It is true that there are persons who seem to reject any move to assist the less fortunate in our society. There are those who refuse to pay just and fair benefits. There are those who take that which does not belong to them, by their actions they are saying that might is right and they owe thanks to no one. This seems to be a trend, but it is the road to disaster and destruction in my opinion. What a people are my people?

I, too, wish to see a society more caring and loving for each other. This is the Caymanian way, this is the Caymanian culture - fast disappearing, sad to say - but we still have the blueprint for that society in the Ten Commandments; the Law of the Prophets, and in the Sermon on the Mount. This has not changed, but to build that society requires heart power more than brain power. It requires inner change, a change of heart, a change of mind, a change of attitude and a new spirit in our land. We can build this society for the future. We must build it; if we do not, the chances are that we will have one built for us. One shaped by ruthless forces of materialism and greed.

The problems we must overcome are man-made problems, but there are no easy, quick man-made solutions. I contend that to find those solutions we must get back to the example of our forefathers and seek Divine help and give our Creator his rightful place in our personal and national affairs.

I, too, wish to see heavy emphasis and reliance placed on such homely but enduring virtues as moral integrity, courage, most of all compassion and common sense. By and large our people are good and honest, they are made of that steel I spoke of earlier in the opening of my debate, but given the times we live in and the different influences upon us, when that steel is melted, when that steel is tempered and when that steel is cast; what people shall my people be?

As for me, Madam Speaker, The woods are still lonely, dark and deep, and I have promises to keep and miles to go before I sleep. Miles to go before I sleep.' I say: Land of my birth, I pledge to thee loyal and faithful and true to be. This marks my 12th year in this Honourable House, and I am pleased that I have accomplished things personally, some of them took eight years to get done. I can say to my colleagues in Executive Council and other Members that I am ready to fight the General Elections and God's willing, I will tell the Opposition it will be a fight for them.

May Almighty God bless the Cayman Islands.

Thank you, Madam Speaker, and I do thank the House for its indulgence.

Deputy Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.33 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.00 PM

[Hon. Speaker Presiding]

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on the Throne Speech. The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I wish to begin my contribution to the Throne Speech by thanking my constituents in West Bay for giving me the opportunity to serve them, and to thank the Members of the Legislative Assembly for their confidence in me by placing me in this ministerial position where I can serve all our people of the Cayman Islands.

There is no greater respect our people can pay to us than what they did for us in 1992. It is for us to hold that respect near and dear to our hearts. We need to continue to do what we promised the people then now and in the future, and continue to listen to their wishes. Additionally, there is no greater confidence that colleagues of this Honourable House can show than to elect a person as Minister, or an Executive Council Member of this country. Many times we think about it, but we never take the time to publicly say how grateful we are for the opportunity. I do so today.

I am honoured to join previous speakers in congratulating His Excellency the Governor on the content and delivery of the Throne Speech. I was particularly struck by the kind, but candid words he used in the beginning of his speech when he says; "Financial Services and tourism are the engines which drive our economy and generate our wealth. Other countries are now trying to emulate our success. Such success comes with international responsibilities." Those words alone should quicken our steps as we charge the course and move this country towards the 21st century.

We cannot rely on the fact that we were the first country in the Caribbean to sign a Narcotics Agreement with the United States of America. We cannot impress by quoting the fact that we moved on to sign a Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty, or that we have model legislation in all areas of the financial industry. No, we have to press on. Our challenge, I believe, is to stay at least one step ahead of our competition and monitor how world events and political fevers that run in countries around the world may affect us.

There is, in my view, no time to stay quiet; we must get out in the market place and promote ourselves. I was particularly impressed with the around the world financial industry promotion that we did last year in New York, London and Hong Kong. I publicly congratulate the Honourable Financial Secretary and the private sector for their performance at those events.

I know the Honourable Third Official Member to be an able man and I am sure that he will make his mark as Financial Secretary of this country (to some extent I think he has already done so). I will continue to support his objective to maintain the professionalism within the financial industry and to carefully move the industry forward to maintain our competitive and successful position.

Previous speakers have commended him in relation to the accomplishments following the passing of the Mutual Funds Legislation. I do not propose to go in detail, believe the public is well informed on that issue. But I think it is an historic event, to have in this Legislative Assembly meeting legislation to establish a Stock Exchange. I congratulate the Honourable Financial Secretary for bringing that before this Honourable House. I think the Cayman Islands have reached the maturity level which actually requires this facility to be put in place.

While Government undoubtedly has its role to play, and we all agree with His Excellency the Governor who reminds us that each one of us in Cayman has his or her role to play in our responsibility from any angle - the Financial Industry, the Tourism Industry, the community and the family - we should return to the example so well established by our parents and theirs. That example is that good children create good communities, good persons for the labour force and good community leaders.

It all begins with the family unit and this Government, through the Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture (and I believe he spoke for at least five hours, so I do not propose to repeat what he has said), has accomplished great things for the family. The facilities and programmes which are put in place, whether we look at sporting facilities or look at the establishment of the Cayman Islands Marine Institute, or the After-School Care Unit, I believe we have made through his Ministry a tremendous impact on the social development of this country.

The example I referred to from our predecessors did not stop there. It required attendance at church where at least once a week we came to the House of God to give thanks and to sing praises to Him; to have many portions of the Holy Bible taught to us in Sunday School, and at least some of us also attended Wednesday and Friday night services. We did not have much choice, our parents said, "You are going." There were young people's services (as best I can reflect) every Friday night and most of the time were led by young people.

We still have some good young people around today. We just need more of them. We need also as parents and leaders of this Legislative Assembly and Government to encourage that kind of participation, it builds the principles of true leadership and the principles that we carry through our lifetime.

In my view, this is the key ingredient in building the men and women who make good communities. But the Government cannot do that for our people. There are (and this is my belief, Madam Speaker) more churches in the Cayman Islands than probably anywhere else in the world. So, really, we have no excuse for not attending church. Young and old alike need God's guidance, and being in the House of the Lord is the best way I know of strengthening good values and principles which the good Book teaches us about.

We need to stop changing our values to suit other people. Cayman has special characteristics, so let us hold fast to that which is good; that is the Christian principle. I believe it is the reason why we refer to this country as a blessed one. The Cayman Islands is a country that our dear Lord has blessed in such a way that everyone should take time to pray. May I commend you, Madam Speaker, for our prayers which we hold every day prior to reconvening the House after lunch to pray and gather in this House to invigorate our souls.

None of us are perfect, and for those who believe or infer that we, particularly the Ministers, should be I have found a poem. I would like to share it at this time:

"Perhaps he sometimes slip a bit;

Well so have you.

Perhaps some things he ought to quit;

Well so should you.

Perhaps he might have faltered.

Why?

Why all men do and so have I

You must admit; unless you lie, that so have you.

Perhaps if you would stop and think

When painting someone black as he, as some folks do;

Perhaps if we would recollect;

Perfection we would not expect;

But just a man half-way correct; [or woman] like me and you."

My perfection or non perfection I leave to the public to judge.

I would like at this moment to deal with some comments on the Tourism Management Policy and the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan made by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said, and I quote: "I think it was a major mistake that this report which I hold in my hand [meaning the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan for 1992-2002] was not accepted by this Government Another mistake of this Government." I think he failed miserably to prove this Government's decision a mistake.

Then he went on to say, and got a little nasty in the process as well: "Yet, what has been called this Government's plan are parts plagiarised to be implemented - piece meal." What does he cite as his reason for saying it was a mistake not to accept the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan? He says, "...the Tourism Management Policy does not address the sociocultural aspect of tourism..." that is his favourite subject 'expatriate versus Caymanian', "...yet it is mentioned in the Tourism Management Policy document." He cites "permanent moorings for cruise ships should be constructed immediately as we are not doing just that." meaning we are not doing anything about it.

The Port Authority last year agreed to move forward and have the permanent moorings put in place. We are not experts, so we do not claim to have the ability to decide what permanent moorings to install. We went about it by advertising in the Caymanian Compass for several weeks. Where was the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman while this was being advertised? He apparently does not know that we have done this. Did he see the advertisement? Or is he playing politics with this subject.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman also talked about a moratorium along Seven Mile Beach. That is another one of his reasons. Is the responsibility of a Government to put moratoriums in place when over 1,000 people are registered out of work, or is it to find work for these 1,000 people? I would think that the latter is the case

We did just that, the moratorium expired and we said that we were not going to put it back in place, because we wanted to ensure that every person in the Cayman Islands who wanted to work had the opportunity to do so. We moved forward and gained the developers' commitment. We got the construction industry back on line after about 18 months of work. They tried to use the Westin Casuarina as a political football, but it was, and is, the start of the construction boom that we are now talking about. While everything did not go to our satisfaction, it certainly made work available for those people who were unemployed.

I have much contact with small contractors and what I hear from them is that they just cannot keep up with the work anymore. They have their hands full. In some cases they have to tell the person who wants to construct a house to find someone else, because they cannot do it. Yet, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman wants us to have a moratorium in place; for what? To keep people out of work! To make sure that we commit suicide in this country so that he can take over the Government, he and his cronies? Not as long as I have a vote, Madam Speaker. I am going to leave him.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town (I think) came this time to put on his nasty rhetoric as well when he addressed the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan versus the Tourism Management Policy. He said, and I quote: "If it is the Government's position that what 300-odd people put together and decided was the course of action the country should take is unacceptable, then my understanding is that the consultants [meaning the ones the Department of Tourism recently hired] have now been brought in to tell us what is acceptable." Now, he knows better than that.

I wonder if he read the Tourism Management Plan. More nastiness by the same Member: "I do not know if the thought of the day is that I [meaning me] should not have to deal with something that is not mine." What an accusation, Madam Speaker. What he is saying is that because the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan was not put together by me, that I do not have to follow it. He goes on, because he is in his nasty mood and says, "But I would think that the sensible thing would be to enhance what exists [meaning the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan] not to have to start from scratch again."

More nastiness, and I quote what the Forth Elected Member for George Town is saying, "I can only surmise that all of the information that was left out and not used in the new document was unacceptable. That means that 300-odd people - many of who were professionals, and others who had been in the tourism industry for some 30 or 40 years, - really did not have any idea what was going on." [Hansard 8 March, 1996.]

It is almost as the lyrics of the song that says, 'What a difference a day makes.' What different decisions the Fourth Elected Member can reach at different times. It must now be an Election year.

May I remind the Fourth Elected Member for George Town of what he said about the Tourism Management Policy in December of 1994, when he made his contribution to the Adoption of the Tourism Management Policy. He said, and I quote: "The Tourism Management Policy has many goals that are in line with my thinking." -, this is what he said, not me, "..It is not a document that should not be supported." Now a few days ago he is finding all kinds of fault with it, making all kinds of nasty remarks.

What pains is that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town have gone through in trying to find a subject to be used for political purposes in the General Elections. We will see. I wonder if these Members had actually read the Tourism Management Plan since it appears by some of their comments that they are trying to make the people of this country believe they have such an interest in tourism. I wonder if they attended the district meetings that the consultants held a week ago.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I do not expect that you will be finished. If additional time is given would you conclude this evening, or may we ask for the adjournment of the House?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I have a little more to say, and I believe I will not be finished this afternoon.

The Speaker: Would you then move the motion for the adjournment?

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 10(2), I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY MORNING, 14TH MARCH, 1996.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION - 4.30 PM

Standing Order 10(2)

EDITED
THURSDAY
14TH MARCH, 1996
10.10 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have an apology from the Honourable Temporary First Official Member for his absence this morning.

Government Business. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce continuing the debate on the Throne Speech.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY MR. JOHN W. OWEN, MBE, GOVERNOR OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS, ON FRIDAY, 16TH FEBRUARY, 1996

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Before I begin to deal with the issues of my debate I would like to inform Members of the House that the Stock Exchange Bill will follow the conclusion of my contribution, as the Third Official Member will be travelling and will not be available on Monday morning. So I alert Members to expect that Bill to come forward once my contribution has completed. The Financial Secretary will then be asked to move the suspension of Standing Orders to allow that to happen.

Yesterday when we took the adjournment I was dealing with comments made by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. I believe my closing remarks were, "I wonder if these Members had read the Tourism Management Policy since it appears by some of their comments that they are trying to make the public of this country believe they had such an interest in tourism." I asked, why (if that was so) did they not attend the district committee meeting of the team dealing with the implementation of the Tourism Management Policy and pass on to that team their views so that they could be taken into account in the implementation strategy.

I wondered, too, whether the meeting specifically arranged for Members of this Honourable House to attend on Tuesday morning in the Committee Room was attended by those two Members.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I heard it was not attended by you.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: It did not need to be; it was for you. Additionally... and perhaps they need to correct me, I am unsure if they attend any of the meetings, or any of the prayer meetings that you have had, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I think I already mentioned to a previous Member that the matter of prayers is not part of the discussion in this House. It is an outside matter.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I thank you for the reminder, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Good, thank you.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: One thing is certain; they come here and bellow all sorts of nasty remarks about tourism management policies in the hope that members of the public will believe it when they listen to the radio at night.

I know that they are trying to play politics with the subject and they really have no sincere interest in the subject. If they did have a sincere interest they would have taken the time to research what I said in December 1994 (and this is why I call them all nasty comments), when I moved Government Motion No. 9 dealing with the Adoption of the Tourism Management Policy for 1995 to 1999.

Let me quote what I said: "The purpose of this document [meaning the Tourism Management Policy] is that it presents the key recommendation endorsed by the Government for a Five-Year Tourism Plan. It is based on the contents of the 1992 Tourism Development Plan, but spans the year 1995 to 1999 instead of the 10 years originally proposed."

Why, then, is the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman using this word plagiarism? It is nonsense! How can it be plagiarism if you declared to the public where the information came from? In academic terms plagiarism is when you take somebody's idea and claim it to be your own, not acknowledging anywhere in your paper or verbal discussion where the information came from. I ask the Member to check the dictionary to make sure he understands what the word 'plagiarism' means.

Based on these words, how can the Fourth Elected Member for George Town make all these nasty comments and inferences, trying diligently to make Tom Jefferson look bad in the eyes of the public? I say to those two Members that I will leave the public to be my judge on my ministerial performance.

I know what I have accomplished for the people of these islands (and I did not do it alone) with the assistance of the National Team, civil servants and persons in the private sector. I want to ask one simple question: What has the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, or the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, accomplished in the last three years for their respective districts? I wish they would get up and tell me what they did. It is a simple and honest question, and I leave the public to judge them based on what they have done in their three years.

Since the two of them made such nasty remarks, I just want to take some time to read what the National Team's Manifesto said in 1992 as to what we were going to do in relation to Tourism should we win the Election. It reads: "Our policy (1) to maintain and improve upon what we presently have to offer our tourists."

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town obviously did not read that because his comments are far from the understanding of our policy. He is saying that we are forgetting other people, that we are discarding their advice, and all sorts of wild accusations.

Continuing, "(2) to promote and expand our share of the tourism market especially in relation to tourists in the middle and upper income brackets." Not the package deals that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman loves to refer to. It is his hobby horse.

Our objectives? "(1) We intend to promote in conjunction with the private sector the training of Caymanians in Tourism. We undertake to examine working conditions in the Tourism Industry with a view to improving them. (2) We will continue to promote Tourism in the North American Continent. (3) We will broaden the base of our tourism product by enhanced promotions in the United Kingdom, Europe and the rest of the world where the currencies are now strong causing vacations to be more affordable." Plenty of evidence for accomplishments there, Madam Speaker.

There are direct flights from Gatwick by British Airways; major promotions in Frankfurt, Munich, Germany; Vienna, Austria; Milan, Italy, Rome; three cities in Spain, Valencia, Barcelona and Madrid; and the traffic is up from those countries. All of the statistics are showing increases from middle and upper income bracket people. "(4) We will review the current moratorium on new hotels and continue to encourage the construction of hotels in all districts." Proof there too.

We have encouraged the expansion of Morritt's Tortuga Hotel up in Colliers, East End. They had a lot of trouble with the previous Government in getting any kind of concession or encouragement. We made one rule: You will have what is yours. We will give favourable consideration, too, but the Government wants what it is entitled to. This is the operation, this is the way we deal.

We even got a five star hotel approved by the Central Planning Authority for Pease Bay. I do not know if the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman (who lives in Pedro) deserves it, but there are more people in that area than him. We will see. "(5) We intend to promote Caymanisation in the Tourism Industry such as hotels, restau- rants, watersports, and taxis. We intend to examine reports already submitted on the mooring of cruise ships to bring the matter to a publicly accepted solution."

That is moving forward. I said that yesterday. We are moving on with the cruise ship moorings and we hope (we are not experts) that before the Winter Season 1996/97 starts they will be in place. But I believe one of the main objectives of the National Team under Tourism is now gathering steam. That is the seventh item: "We intend to work hand-in-hand with the tourism industry to increase occupancy in hotels and the number of customers in restaurants."

There have been so many restaurants opening up in this country in the last three years, and when I go around I see a lot of tourists eating in restaurants. We know how much we have to pay to eat in a restaurant in Cayman, and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman talks about package tours.

I have visited the Grand Old House, the Thai Orchid Restaurant, Pagoda, Hemmingways, the Caribbean Club, not to name them all, but those are some of them and they are full of tourists.

I want to list a few accomplishments by this Government in the area of Tourism and Aviation. If I repeat myself once or twice, Madam Speaker, I pray for your indulgence. We successfully hosted the only Ecotourism Conference in this country with a resounding success; so much so, that the items discussed and the decisions that were taken at that meeting in May of 1993 are the cornerstone of Ecotourism activity in the Caribbean Tourism Organisation.

We introduced an amendment to the Planning Law to allow the Director of Planning and the Chairman of the Central Planning Authority to approve certain categories of development applications. For what purpose? To speed up the service to the public.

You know what the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman (and I hope I am not misquoting him) said in essence? 'It is not going to work. It is not going to make any improvement.' Talk to the public, let us hear what their reactions are to it.

When we took office the penalties under the Marine Conservation Law for polluting the waters around the Cayman Islands drew a grand penalty of $5,000. This is what the man in the street calls peanuts. We said either it is zero or it is something sensible, and if we want to get the attention of anyone who has items with the ability to pollute our waters, we are going to raise this penalty to 500,000 Cayman Islands dollars, and we did it. We do not hear about a lot of pollution going on in the George Town harbour any more. Everybody has taken notice. Why? because the penalty is so stiff. If you have to spend a little money to protect yourself, you are going to do it.

The first meeting ever held by a Cayman Islands' delegation with the cruise lines (as far as I know) took place under my stewardship. What was the result when the whole Caribbean was in trouble getting an increase in Cruise Tax? We got our agreement at the table. We have a good relationship with the cruise ships. It is the only way to work in the future for the people of the Cayman Islands and to ensure that the prosperity that we have today is retained for our children and theirs.

Throwing darts at people who have money and come to the Cayman Islands is nonsense. Who do we want? Perhaps the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman can tell us. Perhaps he wants the people who he referred to on the package deals who are not coming here. But we know the kind of people he is talking about.

Let us talk about the record that my friend across the floor does not like to hear me talk about.... [laughter by some Members]: record years in tourism air arrivals in 1993, 1994, and 1995. He is still saying it belongs to the previous Government. We lost the Marketing Director in North America for the Department of Tourism in the first quarter of 1993. He had better things to do, he went on to a better job.

In 1993 we lost (for medical reasons) the Regional Sales Manager in Chicago. We lost the Regional Sales Manager for London also in 1993 because the trust [fund] her ancestors left her came into play; she said it was time for a rest, she was going to take it easy and off she went. We even changed Directors of Tourism. I wonder if they want to give this credit to the previous Government as well.

For the first time in the history of the Cayman Islands we held the first Tourism Conference in the 1994. Do you know what the people of the tourism industry and the private sector said? 'Do not stop now, this is what we want. It is a learning experience, it cements the bond that creates good partnerships.' So what did we do? We held the second one last year to further the improvement of that partnership. We allocated an entire day to the private sector to do their presentations as to how they saw 1996 and what assistance they needed to make their section of the tourism industry work to their satisfaction. They will get it.

I failed to mention one important point. In 1993 we changed the entire overseas advertising programme. We did not throw away all of the material that was already designed and printed, and for which Government had paid money, we utilised it all. When that material ran out, our new material, "Ours and Yours" came into play. It did not fully come into operation until 1994.

The inauguration of our scheduled service from the European market: None other than the charter service of Caledonian from Gatwick in December 1994, followed in March by British Airways deciding to establish two days a week rather than one day a week (which is the charter) scheduled service from Gatwick, England.

Tom Jefferson could not have taken any more blows than he took for that issue. Where are we today? The decision was as right then as it is now; it is the gateway to Europe and, lest anybody forget, Europe is one of the wealthiest continents in this world. We even went on to have a developer agree to construct a major four star hotel - another great asset for the future. It is the type of accommodation which is in demand and can only be in demand by those persons who are in middle- to upper-income brackets given the prices they are being charged.

We have restructured the Department of Tourism to enable us to move forward with the Tourism Management Policy. Anyone who believes that the department (which was founded in 1992 when I took office) could implement any tourism policy, needs to seriously re-examination that view.

We have completely automated all the overseas offices - London, New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Houston and Miami - and they are all tied in directly to the headquarters here in the Cayman Islands. So access to information, E-mail from the Director to any specific office . . . like they say, "A piece of cake," Madam Speaker. A piece of cake!

I am not going to cite any more achievements. I craved your indulgence, and I think you have borne with me, but sometimes some Members across the floor, particularly the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and to some extent (now coming a close second) the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, say so many things that you have to make sure they get corrected. My job is to correct them.

Let me leave this subject and offer some comments on transportation. I do not believe I need to say this, but I will.

The subject of transportation is not mine, but I have been charged with responsibility by His Excellency the Governor for Ports and Airports and my Ministry plays a part in the transportation process.

I have said from 1993 that transportation is a national issue which needs all arms of Government working together with proper legislation to adequately manage it. The image that taxis, tour buses and the buses that transport residents from each district to George Town, create is a national image. No solution will be found until a national management approach to the problem is effectively addressed and taken.

When the National Team assumed responsibility for the Government, we found that the total number of omnibuses and taxis registered and licensed was 143 omnibuses and 270 taxis. We found that the transportation services (to put it mildly) is saturated with buses and taxis. There was tension between the tour bus operators and the taxi operators - so much so, that in 1993 there was a protest by taxi drivers when large tour buses were imported.

Government moved quickly to amend the Traffic and Customs Laws to require the Governor in Council to grant permission to import any bus over nine seats and to also require permission before it was placed on the roads. While the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman calls it, and I quote, "One of the magic moments in this House under this Government in the late night the Customs Law and the Traffic Law were changed, supposedly to take care of the problem."

Firstly, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman scolds us by saying, "problem— solving is what Government should be adjusting itself to." Then, when we fixed the problem, he tries to chastise us by saying, "it was one of those magic moments in this House under this Government in the late night...." It was fixed at that time. What double talk. Does he believe he is fooling the people of this country? I say, a resounding, NO! Those pieces of legislation brought more control over operations in transportation and reduced the tension among the operators at the time.

The Government will also be moving forward shortly to bring into force more regulations to come to grips with the problem of transportation. I am not saying that there are no problems, but I remind the Members that tour buses and taxis lined up along South Church Street are not on Port Authority property. So the Port Authority Law and Regulation does not control any situation which may arise there. What controls that is the Traffic Law. What controls taxis and buses on the streets at the hotels and at the restaurants is the Traffic Law. We now need to bring that into play to sort out more of the problems.

The Port Authority Law and Regulations can only control those tour buses and taxis when they are physically on Port Authority property, meaning when they are in what we call the 'horse shoe' at the port.

It was in 1994 that we put together guidelines for taxi and tour bus operators at the Port. In particular, I refer to the Port Authority (Licensing of Vehicles) Law, 1994, which gives the Port Authority authorisation to licence and inspect vehicles, licence drivers and operators and also the power to suspend and revoke vehicle licences. It also imposes a penalty for obstructing any authorised officer in his or her duties.

We made arrangements for a meeting to take place here in Grand Cayman with the cruise representatives and members of the taxi group. We went on to further arrange for representatives of the taxi operators at the Port to travel to Miami and discuss with the Operational Committee of the cruise ships their desire for taxi operators to receive a larger piece of the action, and to put forward a proposal to do tours for cruise ship passengers.

We gave them every assistance. But we cannot tell a taxi driver what fare to charge passengers in their proposal. We should not. What I did tell them is that their fare must be competitive.

Last October we restricted the number of passengers that tour bus operators can pick up at the Port. Another attempt to give the taxi operators more passengers.

We found that although an operator might only have 100 seats under his or her control, he was booking 150 to 200 passengers and bringing in other operators to assist him with the process. We put a stop to it and said, if you only have 100 seats you can only be allowed to pick up 100 passengers per tour from the cruise ship. That is in place. After a number of personal visits to the Port, I have held discussions with the Port Authority Officials and put in place more controls, more security officers, and we have advertised for two more taxi dispatchers. There is a move to ensure that we understand, on a daily basis, how many passengers are being transported by each tour bus operator and to ensure that it is in accordance with the restricted number. We are also monitoring passengers transported by taxi operators from the Port.

We hope to know accurately (because in this day and age we have to verify most of what we hear, we just cannot take it for granted) how many passengers are being moved by tour buses and taxis. Steps will be taken to bring a better equity of fairness to the service. But I still say to taxi drivers: Watch the fares you are charging. If you are charging $15 per person and the tour bus operator is charging $11, then we can all appreciate how difficult this situation is to resolve in order for the taxi driver to get a fair share of the market. It is a very competitive market, indeed.

I come now to watersports. I did mention earlier the Customs Law that was brought and put in place. The same one that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman talks about as 'one magic moment under this Government in the late night.' I can assure the people of this country that the control which we established has paid handsome dividends because the Government now has control over who gets permission to import a boat. I would go on to say that this control has halted the demise of the small indigenous watersports operators.

We do not come here and tell how many applications we get from people who are already in the business, or who has the money to expand their fleet of boats and take more business away from the small operators. But it is a fact that the Government has turned down many applications. I would not be surprised if there is an appeal soon on a recent application which was turned down. We have to stand up for the small indigenous watersport operators who actually created (some of them) Stingray City: Capt. Gleason, Capt. Crosby, Capt. Marvyn, Capt. Frank (I might not get all the names). Those are the people who have been operating in the North Sound taking people bone-fishing, snorkeling, providing marinated conch, throwing the conch that is too tough to eat overboard causing the stingrays to feed on it and over a period of time every time the boats arrive, here come the stingrays. This, in my simplest terms, is how over a period of years stingrays congregated in Stingray City and the sandbar area.

These indigenous watersport operators, small though they are, have formed their own association known as the Cayman National Watersports Association. We have been assisting them. They have the ability to do advertising, but perhaps not as significant as it should be, to break into a market that is very competitive.

The Department of Tourism has paid for advertising in Horizon magazine, two full pages of displays on their boats, to help them to receive a bigger portion of the business. I am not going to go into detail as to whose boat and on what page, but what I am going to do, with your permission, Madam Speaker, is to lay the magazine on the Table. Let the Members all read it.

I have never heard about this kind of help before. We have also given them assistance in the magazine What's Hot! In Cayman . . . We are paying for advertising there too every month of this year. I have the magazine and can also lay that on the Table.

We put out a new watersports brochure and made sure that all of the small operators we were aware of at the time were included on the back of that brochure which gives, by legend, what sort of services they provide and gives the telephone number where they can be reached. I lay this on the Table as well, Madam Speaker.

In the April issue of Skin Diver Magazine (which is not yet available to the bookshelves, but I have a copy) on pages 73 to 75 there is an article on the North Sound experience which features one of the original people, Capt. Crosby, with his guitar. It also lists, on page 74, small watersport operators. I will lay that on the Table too, Madam Speaker. I lay this on the Table so that there is no question as to whether we are doing it. People do not really have to believe what Tom Jefferson is telling them. It is on the Table, they can read it.

Most recently we arranged for the Vice President of one of the cruise lines and his Director of Excursions to come to the Cayman Islands to sit down and talk with small operators who come to the Port Authority seeking to have Stingray City trips who, on many occasions, go home with nothing. For the benefit of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, we are going to fix that too.

Let me move on. I sincerely believe that there is a need for additional legislation for the watersports industry to be effective by all the wishes we have for it. There is a need for the licensing of boats and for the legislation to say what the total number of passengers which can be safely transported on a boat is. There is a need for a certificate of crew after a short local training course.

When we think of legislation my humble view is, the simpler the legislation the most likely we are to get cooperation in what it is seeking to accomplish. Licensing of boats in my mind is primarily to require that an identification number be placed on it and to ensure the safety and seaworthiness of the vessel itself. It should also deal, as I have said earlier, with the total number of passengers that can be safely accommodated.

By certificate of crew, I foresee a local course which the Department and the Port Authority will coordinate or support, where persons in the industry who are not able seamen or competent captains can gain the required knowledge and skill. May I also add that jet skis and wave-runners, in my view, need to be part of this legislation. We need them to be licensed. We need to be able to put a proper identification mark on those machines.

I will make sure that we invite members of the two Watersports Associations to meet with the Port Authority and the Department of Tourism and anyone else believed to be relevant, and myself, to brainstorm ideas of what this legislation should contain. I am going to make every effort to put that legislation in place before this House dissolves.

Moving on. The Port Authority, in conjunction with hotels along Seven Mile Beach, has been marking a channel from the beach to the 200 yard buoys which run parallel to the beach from Northwest Point to the Radisson. The channel is a buoyed-off area, 50 to 75 feet wide leading from the beach to the 200 yard marker. We are proposing five channels and they are located at (1) Beach Club/Hyatt Hotel to be shared by both, (2) Radisson, (3) Holiday Inn, (4) Westin Casuarina and (5

Public Beach. Due to the breakdown of some equipment they are not yet complete, but as I understand they have been buoyed off from the beach going out at least 70 yards. We are going to push to make sure this is in place. It will be required that these channels be used by dive boats and other boats as well as jet skis and wave runners when approaching the beach where the speed-limit will be 5 miles per hour.

Hotels have been cooperating and we have requested them to buoy off their swim areas as well. These actions are seeking to maintain the safety of swimmers, divers and persons who ride jet skis and wave runners. We have met with the commercial people who rent these wave runners and jet skis. They have put forward their views, and some of the things I have said fit squarely within their views. They feel that these jet skis and wave runners should be registered; they feel that the minimum age for riding a jet ski or wave runner should be at least 16 years old, perhaps higher, and that one should have an identification card to verify that age. They have undertaken not to rent any jet skis to persons seen consuming alcohol, or believed to be under the influence of alcohol. All jet skis must leave and return to the beach at 90 degrees and that is in conjunction with the channels that we are marking.

I want to address a comment made by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town on contingency warrants. His comment is framed in such a way that the public could draw the conclusion that Government was not operating within the Law in dealing with the finances of the country. If that was his intention, I take issue with his remark. The Public Finance and Audit Law of 1985 under section 21 clearly reads: "...where the Financial Secretary is satisfied that due to exceptional circumstances an urgent need had arisen for payment - (a) to meet expenditure - [he may do so] by contingencies warrant under his hand authorise the Accountant General to pay from public moneys an advance of moneys to meet that need."

There is more wording than that but I do not want to overdo the situation. The issue of contingency warrants is very much a procedure laid down in the Public Finance and Audit Law of 1985, and this Government has (and will continue to) operated the finances of this country under that Law. So let us not let the Fourth Elected Member for George Town put any other idea in anyone's mind about this Government not operating properly.

I want to jump around a bit among subjects if I may, and say in all honesty and humility that over the last three years tourism has been nothing short of that magic moment that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman spoke about. I do not expect any words of appreciation from him. He sees his job as the need to make me look as black as mentioned in the poem I quoted from yesterday. His eyes must light up when he thinks of himself as being the Minister for Tourism in 1997. What a dream. Let us not wake him up, let us leave him to dream.

I think it was one year ago that the Caymanian Compass interviewed some stakeholders in the tourism industry who said that tourism arrivals were down. He was then quick to jump and say, 'The Minister of Tourism takes credit for increases in tourism arrivals, he must now take blame for these decreases in arrival traffic'. When our statistics were later produced, it proved the story to be inaccurate. But do you catch the point, Madam Speaker and Honourable Members?

During the last three years, (1993, 1994 and 1995) tourism has grown steadily. What does the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman say? (Remember he is opposition): 'The Minister of Tourism is concentrating on quantity, packages, packages, packages'. When the traffic was inaccurately said to be down, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman goes on the attack blaming the Minister for Tourism, who must do something about it.

He tries to say (among other things) that what has been accomplished in tourism in the last three years is all luck. Madam Speaker, I found a poem entitled 'Luck,' that suits him and that idea of luck as well. It says:

*He works by day and toils by night;
He gave up play and some delight.
Dry books he read, new things to learn;
And forged ahead, success to earn.
He plowed on with faith and pluck;
And when he won, men called it luck.*

So did the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. But let me educate him, as well, by reading the correct reasons for the accomplishments during the last three years.

In the words of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, suitable words, not just for me but everyone connected with the industry of tourism: "Heights by great men reached and kept/Were not attained by sudden flight/But they, while their companions slept, were toiling upward in the night." A very appropriate poem.

We know who had been sleeping. We know who did not even read the Tourism Management Policy - the same two Members.

The National Team has utilised the last three years to put the economy of the Cayman Islands back on a sound foundation. We have fixed the broken financial record, the responsibility for checks and balances, by reversing Motion 3/90, and caused only Elected Members of this House to be Members of Finance Committee; yes, for the Honourable Financial Secretary to take his rightful seat as chairman of the Committee.

We have established strategic plans in Education and in Health; we have streamlined the operations of the Central Planning Authority. We have dealt with the backlog of the Immigration Board. We have put Cayman Airways in a sound operational position. We have established facilities for our youth; we have established programmes for our youth. We have improved our roads, with more to be done, of course. We have attracted British Airways with scheduled services from Gatwick... and the list goes on. There are still some areas that need fixing and we will dedicate ourselves to accomplishing those as well.

I would like to make some comments on the economy of Cayman Brac. Although we changed our advertising programme in 1993 (and as I said, it did not fully come into operation until 1994), that advertising programme, 'Ours and Yours,' features all three islands. All of our advertising material, all of our brochures - the whole way in which we operate - is to stimulate tourist arrivals to all three of our lovely cherished islands. The results show that Little Cayman and Grand Cayman are doing well. However, Cayman Brac is not attracting visitors in sufficient numbers year round.

So what should we do about the situation? Late last year (before Christmas) we summoned a meeting with the Sister Islands Tourism Association (that is the Department of Tourism and the Ministry and the Sister Islands Tourism Association), to put their ideas together on what they thought would be a good approach to solving this problem. This was before we had the Executive Council meeting over in Cayman Brac. After that meeting we followed through - we had our meeting. Perhaps he is right to say that we had that historic meeting. I was impressed with the Sister Islands Tourism Association Executive Committee and those persons who were present there on January the 30th. I was impressed with their positive and creative ideas and their willingness to put money on the table to assist with the advertising of their island.

I offer my congratulations to Mr. Ben Perry and his members of staff on firmly establishing a partnership with the Department of Tourism and the Ministry. We are going to be advertising Cayman Brac specifically in order for it to gain more exposure in addition to the usual 'Ours and Yours' promotions.

We are working on advertising to niche markets, such as bird watchers and cyclists, to name some. We are going to work with Cayman Airways and Island Air to ensure timely connecting flights to Cayman Brac.

I believe the First Elected member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is correct (and I hope I am not misquoting him in any way) when he said, "...the establishment of electrical power in Utile Cayman and the construction of a small hotel and condominiums has caused divers who are attracted to the world renowned dive sites, Bloody Bay and Jackson Wall, to no longer need to stay in Cayman Brac." So the Brac has suffered because of recent development. If those statements are correct, then in my view we need to find a method (an item) whereby the attractiveness of Cayman Brac can stand on its own image locally and internationally.

Grand Cayman has Stingray City and Little Cayman has Bloody Bay Wall and Molly the manta-ray. We are hoping to obtain a ship to sink in the Cayman Brac waters and Executive Council has given its approval to the project. So people of Cayman Brac, we are going to bring more visitors to your lovely island - God willing.

I want to know if the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is going to support us on this.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: When you bring her.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: When I bring her?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I mean a cruise ship.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The song says, 'Watch Me'. I believe the sinking of this ship in the waters of Cayman Brac will provide the attractiveness to divers that Cayman Brac lacks at the moment, when compared to Stingray City and Bloody Bay Wall and Molly the manta-ray.

Let us dream for a minute. The sinking of this ship on a Saturday afternoon could also create a wonderful occasion for local persons in Grand Cayman to spend the weekend in Cayman Brac to view the sinking and to have a weekend of celebrations, including a Sunday Church service.

What is a fact is that in the United States divers and ship wrecks are drawn together like steel and a magnet. It is the reason why Florida has the largest ship wreck programme in the world today. It is the reason why Caribbean countries such as, Anguilla, St. Croix, St. Lucia, Barbados, St. Thomas, Roatan and Honduras have been deliberately sinking ships at dive attraction sites. I believe that with God's help we are going to put Cayman Brac at the right level.

Some people do not want to take Tom Jefferson's words for it, but I got a letter from the Vice-President and executive publisher of Skin Diver Magazine and he says: "I understand the Government has approved the purchase of a boat that will eventually be sunk as a wreck in Cayman Brac to form a ship wreck attraction. Needless to say, we at Skin Diver are very excited about this project and intend to devote major editorial coverage to this new diving attraction."

"In my opinion [the opinion of one of the top people in the dive world], a major ship wreck of this magnitude could be just the thing to change the direction of the Brac's economy and generate a whole new wave of diver-tourism to this island."

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, may we have a suspension for 15 minutes?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Certainly, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.34 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.01 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce continuing.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker. When we took the suspension to have a little break, I was talking about the upcoming launch of the Tourism Education, Training and Awareness Programme in 1996. The official function is scheduled for the 29th of March and all Members of this Honourable House, among others, will receive an invitation to His Excellency the Governor's residence... and I publicly thank him and Mrs. Owen for agreeing to host that event.

The Ministry of Tourism through its Department of Tourism is embarking on a programme of Tourism Education, Training and Awareness activities. Some of these programmes are new while others are being re-introduced. However, all of these programmes will be ongoing.

Over the years the Cayman Islands Tourism Industry has developed and grown to an enviable position in the Caribbean tourism arena. However, factors such as increasing competition (both regional and international), the need for all development to be sustainable, the importance of preparing our own people to be an integral part of this growth and development and to be supportive of the industry, have heightened the importance, and, indeed, the urgency, of developing and executing ongoing tourism education, training and awareness activities.

Ralph Waldo Emerson was truly correct when he said, "The true test of civilisation is, not the census, nor the size of cities, nor the crops - no but the kind of man [or woman, I add] the country turns out."

Our people do make a difference and the Department of Tourism's 1996 Human Resource Development Programme to be undertaken by the Tourism Development Services Unit is seeking to ensure that they are equipped to reach the high level of performance that this highly competitive industry demands.

A number of programmes will be offered to our young students in the primary and secondary schools; to persons employed directly or indirectly in tourism; to our own Department of Tourism staff and to the community at large.

The Department will be working closely with the Department of Education, the individual schools, the Hotel and Condominium Associations, the Government Information Services and, let me not leave out, the Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture, to name a few. The partnership approach will be emphasised in the development and execution of these and other programmes. Some of the programmes to be re-introduced will include presentations in schools, summer work experience programmes, tourism quiz and debating competitions, tourism learning packages for schools, a monthly radio programme (for lack of a title) "Talk Tourism," a monthly newspaper column (another possible title) "Tourism Connection". On the 29th of March we will also name the chairman of the Tourism Awareness Month.

We have clearly recognised and have restructured the Tourism Department to be able to accomplish this, Madam Speaker. We can no longer confine our efforts in this area to one week or one month in each year.

The Annual Tourism Awareness Month will therefore now be the combination of our ongoing tourism education, training and awareness activities.

Madam Speaker and Honourable Members, we recognise that it is the responsibility of the Ministry of Tourism and the Department of Tourism to initiate and facilitate programmes such as these. However, the success of these programmes lies in the partnership approach. We cannot accomplish this by looking with blinders on at what the public service can do. It must be a partnership between the private and public sectors. We owe it to our present generation and future Caymanians and all stakeholders to undertake programmes such as these. To do otherwise would be folly.

On the 5th of March we held a luncheon at one of the hotels to alert our partners and stakeholders to our plans, and to seek their cooperation; to outline to them the part we hope they will play in these programmes, and we ask for their full support and cooperation in building a better Cayman as we move into the 21st century.

The Human Resource strategy of the Tourism Management Policy identifies eight tactics which are in keeping with the quality service components of commitment, communication, accountability and recognitions. I name these eight tactics: (1) strengthening the collaboration of all stakeholders, (2) launching a major communication and education campaign, (3) coordination of recruitment efforts, very important one, (4) introduction of career paths, (5) development of performance standards of all jobs in the industry, (6) equipping people to reach a high level of performance through training, (7) creation of data gathering models and methodologies unique to the industry, and lastly, (8) addressing the sociocultural impacts of tourism.

The Cayman Islands Department of Tourism; Tourism Development Sociocultural programme, a new area of activity being undertaken by the department seeks to implement the overall product and human resource strategies through specific ongoing programmes. In this first year of implementation (1996) the Department of Tourism is introducing a number of new programmes and reintroducing others that have been suspended for one reason or another. These programmes will cover training programmes for persons working directly or indirectly in Tourism, training programmes for Department of Tourism staff (local and overseas), programmes for primary and secondary schools, and programmes for the general public.

The Department of Tourism did a Training Needs Assessment Survey which was carried out to determine the effective and cognitive learning needs of persons working within the Tourism industry. Using the data from that survey, programmes of training, workshops and seminars have been developed for 1996 and, hopefully, will be continued on an annual basis with appropriate amendments being made as the data changes.

I propose to request that the Government look closely at scholarships in the area of tourism. As we move forward with programmes and achieve some success in attracting the younger generation into the Tourism Industry in more numbers, we need to ensure that it is not just the bottom we are talking about, but also attracting young people who have the ability to pursue higher education to be trained in the management side of tourism facilities.

Mr. Roy Bodden: (inaudible interjection)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am hearing a lot of support from the other side, Madam Speaker, and I am grateful for this. I think it is what the country needs. If there is ever one item that should be able to unite us all, it is training of our youth; of preparing the younger generation to take their rightful place in this country in whatever specialisation they so wish to have.

But you know how this whole thing grew up? We started off in the banking arena, in the trust business, the accounting business, the legal business and it was great social esteem to say, 'I am working at Barclays Bank PLC,' 'at Scotia Bank' or 'Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce,' among others. The person more or less felt that they had achieved. And they had. What we have not done is say to those young people, 'There are career opportunities available in the tourism industry.'

When we hear someone talking about the Tourism Industry and the people who are working in it, we hear about housekeepers and bellboys, but we never hear about executive chefs, or the front desk manager. We never really hear about the connoisseurs and, in addition to that, we never hear how much money they earn in those positions. If we do not tell them, how can we attract them?

A person who is a teller at a bank might think that they are making a lot of money earning $12,000 or $15,000 per year. But you know what the average food server in a hotel makes? When you say food server and waiter and waitress some people begin to turn up their noses. I cannot, Madam Speaker. I was an officer's mess boy on a ship for 16 months. I woke up at 5 o'clock in the morning and finished usually at 8 o'clock. There is nothing wrong with it; it is earning your wage in whatever occupation you get.

But do you know that a food server (waitress or waiter whichever one you want to use) earns? In the range of $25,000 to $30,000 per year. We have some people turning up their noses. Do you know that a cocktail server is in the same bracket? Sometimes we hear comments such as: "Who, me? I am not going to be a bartender." Some people fail to realise how much a bartender makes. On an annual basis they earn between $30,000 and $40,000 in a major hotel in Grand Cayman.

A Restaurant Manager who is responsible for overseeing the restaurant and staff (this is not an area where gratuities come into play as they would for the food server or the bartender) earns $28,000. The Assistant Food and Beverage Director responsible for overseeing the restaurant managers and outlets makes on the average, $37,000.

What about the Food and Beverage Director who is generally responsible for overall operations, loading equipment, budget, purchase and forecasting? They earn $53,000. The younger generation does not know this, and I do not believe the Second Elected Member for Cayman, Brac and Little Cayman knows it either. I know he is not listening.

The Cook in a hotel (and I am not talking about an Executive Chef) the first rung on a cook's ladder, can earn between $20,000 and $25,000. There is another level call Souse Chef, they earn in the range of $28,000. They are responsible for food quality, presentation and overseeing the cooks. The Assistant Executive Chef who oversees the Souse Chef and who is responsible for food quality and presentation and creativity earns about $37,000.

There are not a whole lot of people working in a bank who are making more than those sums of money, but we have to create the education in the community, the education of the young people and the education, specifically, of the parents of these young people.

An executive chef responsible for all chefs and kitchen personnel, overseeing labour and food costs and control and ordering, earns $53,000. I only hear about those numbers when a person is a lawyer or a partner in an accounting firm or a manager of a bank. The opportunity in Tourism for a career is wide open. Let us unite and do the job to put our young people in place; to provide encouragement and training, and to stand by and make sure that they get their fair opportunity to ride the rung of the ladder of promotion so that they reach their highest level at which they can perform.

I was talking about turning up our noses at waitresses and waiters (and the fact that I was an officer's mess boy for 16 months), that is where some general managers start - washing dishes. Today they are earning $80,000 to $100,000 as General Managers of a hotel. Even if it is $50,000, that is a lot of money for washing dishes. They only gave me $70.00 (US) per month for the washing of the dishes that I did.

Thank God for that opportunity, it helped to make me the person I am today. Education is not only found in books and at Universities, it is gained as you move through life and different challenges and, to some extent you might think, burdens.

I am going to ask the Governor to focus on tourism when we think about educational scholarships, but our first step is to ensure that we educate the public, that we educate the children, and that we educate the parents regarding the career opportunities that are available.

I want to give a bit of information on Tourism, as I understand it, and what it looks like for 1996. In the United States the economy experiences continued steady growth at a projected 3% in 1995 and 2.5% in 1996. The unemployment level has also fallen from 5.8% in 1994 to 5.6% of the labour force in November 1995. These developments, together with a fall, and the balance, of payment deficit all spell good news for travel.

In 1994 over 45 million Americans travelled abroad, almost a 5% increase over 1993; and estimated arrivals for 1995 in the United States (their figures are not confirmed as yet) is 47.4 million, a 2.1% increase in the number of Americans travelling abroad. According to a report which I read, a total of $US 56.2 billion was spent by Americans travelling abroad in 1994. It was projected to increase to $60 billion in 1995. So the prospect for 1996 certainly looks good.

The weather which the North American continent has been experiencing over the last three months... I think my poem of luck may not apply in this case. So we are off to a good start in tourism arrivals. We closed the year 1995 with almost a 6% increase in total air arrivals over 1994.

In cruise ship traffic we experienced almost a 14% increase.

I took note of what the First Elected Member for Bodden Town said in his contribution, and I quote: "While 1995 was a record setting year for tourism arrivals with more than one million reported,...." So we have reached one million mark now. I think he might have been making a sincere point, but no where in our plan or projection were we seeking to have 682,000 (almost 683,000) cruise ship visitors come to our shores. As a matter of record, when we came to assume the responsibility for Tourism, that year cruise ship arrivals were 613,470. We have been saying for the last three years that 600,000 is enough. So what happened in 1993? We had almost 606,000 cruise ship passengers. We were down by about 700 passengers. Then what happened in 1994? We were at 599,000 passengers. But we cannot control the acts of God, Madam Speaker.

Several islands in the Eastern Caribbean got totally wiped out by hurricanes Louise and Marilyn: St. Thomas to name one, St. Croix, another; St. Martin, another; Antigua, another one. If Cayman is going to remain in the business of tourism we have to be flexible, especially when we know that it is a temporary situation. The reason why we went to the one million mark the First Elected Member for Bodden Town talked about, is because of those cruise ship passengers who visited the Cayman Islands from September to December 1995 pushed us over the 600,000 mark.

I think he has always been the person who said (I do not wish to misquote him) that it makes more sense to increase air arrivals. That is exactly what we have been doing. In 1993, we had an increase of almost 46,000 people over 1992. In 1994, we had an increase of 54,000 over the number in 1993. Then they jumped up and said, 'Oh, you got too many people. You are dealing in quantity!'

So we said, "All right, let us address our minds to it," and that is one of the reasons why we had less than a 20,000 increase from 1994 to 1995. But the other principal reason is that in 1993 and 1994 we utilised tourism as an engine to stimulate the economy of this country to put people back to work and improve the occupancy rates in the hotels.

They did not want to see that, they wanted us to leave the moratorium in place. Our responsibility is to make sure that our people find work, that they can put their hands in their pockets and put food on the table for their families, that they can put their hands in their pockets and assist their families in need. Not to rigidly hold fast to a cemented position that because somebody else put a moratorium in place, you have to do it too.

It is the reason why we moved forward with the construction of another major four star hotel to create work for the people in the Construction Industry. Some people forget, you know. How many people were out of work? Not just the 1,000 who were registered, small indigenous construction contractors could not find anything to do. Nobody had any money to do anything. What we did was right; we put people to work. The small indigenous contractor is busy. Everyone I talk to is busy. We do not hold fast to things that do not work. Why should we?

Land sales in this country went down to the bottom of the bucket because of the 10% stamp duty. We reversed it and what happened? Ask the Accountant General. He is finding so much money from stamp duty... I was tempted to say, he does not know what to do with it, but I am sure he does. This year, in the first two months alone, over $3 million in stamp duty has been collected on the basis of $33 million worth of land being transferred. That is the success story. Put that in your pipe and smoke it!

I take the time every day, almost religiously, to watch the weather channel. Each time I watched it over the last three months (and I have a sister who lives in New York) I smiled. That kind of weather can only be to our advantage.

We released information in January on tourism arrivals (and it came out at the starting block blazing down the trail of the 100 meter dash) which showed a 14% increase. It is off to one of the best starts in our day. We are not done as yet. We also have the figures for February - 11.5% increase. You know what? Every region is up; and they want to give that praise to the former Government too.

The United States is up by almost 11% (this is the cumulative figure for January and February); Canada is up by 16.8% (almost 17%); the United Kingdom is up 13%; Europe is up - 29%; Japan is up almost 32%; other areas of the Caribbean almost 40% and the rest of the world - 29.4%. Of the overall cumulative, 12.6% is the year-to-date figure so far.

I want to also impart to you, Madam Speaker and Honourable Members, some further details. We stated our promise to this country to expand the European market and diversify the base of Tourism. All of us put our shoulders to the wheel to achieve this. We are gaining ground. Arrivals from Austria are up almost 38%; from the Benelux countries, up 60%; even from France, where we have no representation, arrivals are up 15%; Germany - 27%; Italy - 24%; and Spain, where we established our representative, arrivals are up 51%. So at the end of February arrivals so far for the year totals almost 68,000 people.

There were some references to information in the Caymanian Compass about a man and a woman. I am not going to quote their names, but reference was made by the Opposition about it... and permanent residence was not given to them by the National Team Government. I want them to put that in their pipes and smoke it too. Their team members are the ones who gave the permanent residence. If the lady cannot find $3 million she should stay where she is. Do not give her any bail.

The Speaker: Would this be a time where we could take the luncheon suspension, Honourable Member?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.46 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.39 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce continuing the debate.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Before we took the luncheon break I was quoting statistics on arrivals from the European continents: the Benelux countries, Austria and others. I noticed that the two Opposition Members were making a real joke of it. I tried to respond at the time, but I did not have all of the information. I want to say that what was on Radio Cayman's news this morning is what I am about to read, so it is not in anyway sub judice. It reads: "A Swiss woman charged with fleeing her country with her husband and millions of dollars after he declared bankruptcy, was denied a lower bail amount in a local court hearing yesterday.

"Magistrate Peter Jackson rejected the request by Barbara Kruger of Bern, to reduce her bail to $50,000 from $3 million.

"The Magistrate had granted Mrs. Krueger bail on March 7th, but several bail requests by her husband, Peter, have been denied.

"The Krugers left Switzerland in 1993 [and this is what the two Opposition Members were laughing about trying to imply perhaps that it was this Government's responsibility] after Mr. Kruger declared personal bankruptcy and creditors claim he owed them $272 million. Then in August 1993, the Bern Bankruptcy Office charged Mr. Kruger with violation of Swiss bankruptcy law, theft and obtaining property by deception among other charges. Mrs. Kruger was accused of participating in the bankruptcy law violations I am coming to the crux of it.

"Barbara and Peter Kruger are being held in Northward Prison. They were arrested last month at their home in Cayman Kai. The Krugers who have had permanent residence since 1990 [and repeat: 1990], are said to own a house, condo units, a 38-foot boat and an airplane here in Cayman."

I emphasised 1990 because I think there was insinuation that the arrivals coming from Austria and the Benelux countries were people of this calibre, and that this Government had given the Krugers permanent residence.

I want to say to the two Opposition Members that their colleagues (one in the Democratic Alliance and the other in the Team Cayman) gave permanent residence to them in 1990.

POINT OF ORDER (Misleading)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Member?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: The Honourable Minister is absolutely misleading the House by saying that any colleague of mine in Team Cayman gave permanent residence to anyone from Switzerland or Austria since no member of that team was on the Protection Board - and it is the Protection Board or Immigration Board which grants such status or residence. I am associated with no such person.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: It is no secret in Cayman that all of the people on the Immigration Board are appointed by the Government of the day, and appeals from that Board go to the Executive Council. So what is the Member talking about? Does he not want us to name Ezzard Miller or Linford Pierson?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I am not certain if anybody knows if the application by these persons had to be appealed. You are mentioning an appeal now. If a board had been appointed, I am sure that the members of the board dealt with the applications as they came before them. I doubt if a member of any Government could be said to have given membership or status to a particular group of people.

I would prefer that innuendos not be made in the future about other Members without some valid grounds and further information. I think we should get away from that and proceed with the business under discussion, which is the Throne Speech by His Excellency the Governor.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, the point I was making is that it happened under their watch. But I bow to your ruling and will move on. These things sting pretty hard.

Before I leave the subject of Tourism, I want to ask the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman (who has now declared his candidacy for Bodden Town) to tell the House where we can find these $25 hotel rooms that three and four persons occupy which he referred to in his contribution.

I notice he is not jumping to his feet. Perhaps there is no such place. Certainly, I need to be educated if there is such a place. I know of none.

One Member asked me to explain a certain portion of the Throne Speech under the Ministry for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce. That short paragraph read: “In 1996 cabanas and rest room facilities will be constructed at the public beach in West Bay for the benefit of the public.”

I think he rightly thought that public beach rest room facilities and cabanas are already on the Seven Mile Beach public beach. What I am referring to is a public beach where a parcel of land just before the junction of Northwest Point Road and Town Hall Road (in other words, just north of the cemetery as we enter the district), was bought in 1993 to be developed as a public beach for the people who live within the district of West Bay.

We have since bought another parcel of land around the corner as you drive onto Northwest Point Road at the same junction to provide additional facilities and parking for the residents of the West Bay area. That was what His Excellency the Governor was referring to under the Ministry for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce. We intend to build rest room facilities and cabanas and for this to be another community project as well.

We have followed the very able model developed in Bodden Town by the Honourable Minister for Health and the lady Member for Bodden Town.

I move now to the Botanic Park. We are in the process of receiving the necessary approvals to begin the construction of a proper Visitor's Centre, gift shop, and a cafe. It is important to make the point that it is likely that all of these buildings will not be completed this year.

We will concentrate (like all other Ministries and Departments) on what can be done with the funds provided in the 1996 Budget. We will push to complete the Visitor's Centre and portions of it may have to be used for a gift shop and perhaps a cafe as well.

We also hope to establish the Heritage Garden this year and we have already secured a house in the district of East End which is over 100 years old. I understand it is the home of the late Julius Rankine, and it was donated by Mrs. Evageline Rankine. I wish to publicly thank her and her family for this generous donation. It will form and create in our minds (when it is completely restored later this year) a journey into the past, where we can view the fantastic craftsmanship in woodwork which will teach us about our people who lived during the late 1800s.

It is expected that the floral display garden, lake and reservoir will be constructed as well. I am certain that the people of this country will be proud of the beauty we will create when the floral gardens are completed later this year.

This is part of our vision: To create a Botanic Park where our people will be excited when they view it in all its God-given splendor. A park which can be attractive to visitors, yet wholly in keeping with the Caymanian ambiance and way of life.

Before I leave this subject I would like to offer my thanks to all of the volunteers who now and in the past, and hopefully in the future, have and will give so un-hesitantly of their time and money to make it the success that it is already. I give my special thanks to the staff, and wish to say how impressed I am with Teddy Ebanks from North Side. He is, in my view, one of the cornerstones of the Botanic Park operation. We sent him to Canada for training last year and we hope to continue to assist him in his development. Nothing would please me more than to see him in the not-too-distant future as the manager of the Botanic Park. I believe that accomplishment would bring the park in line with all our visions for it.

I wish to make a few comments on Pedro Castle. The oldest structure in the Cayman Islands, Pedro St. James Castle, the birth place of democracy, is well on its way to being fully restored to its original design. The castle restoration should be complete later this year and the baker-oven structure has already been constructed. The Steadman Bodden's home has been fully restored and is now operational.

The Visitor's Centre will be constructed and will have a multimedia theatre, a restaurant, a resource centre and a gift shop. Completion of the Visitor's Centre is scheduled for 1997.

It is our present view that the restaurant will be better operated by someone from the private sector and it will, when the time is right, be advertised so that everyone interested will have an opportunity to tender.

The attractiveness of the Cayman Islands will be significantly enhanced by this project; the history, the culture, the politics, the way of life will come very much to the forefront of our minds as we visit and appreciate this magnificent structure in Savannah.

I am proud of the National Team Members who have allowed the dreams and wishes of many Caymanians and residents to come through, and we, God willing, plan to celebrate that completion later this year.

The Government was recently informed that the Caribbean Development Bank had approved a loan for the Pedro Castle project (it is in US dollars - $5.79 million) and is now moving forward to deal with it. The interest rate is 7.75% and there is a five year grace period and 12 years to pay off the loan. During the grace period only interest will be paid giving the project time to become operationally self-sufficient. I believe that is how the project should be viewed from the inception.

I want to comment briefly on the proposed National Pension Plan. I believe that the Government is moving in the right direction. I know that many employees in many firms around Grand Cayman have not had an increase for some time. I would ask employers to be quite sensitive when they implement this plan. It would be wrong for an employee who has not had an increase in his wages in two or three years to have to take money out of that to put into a pension fund, ending up with less money than he had two or three years ago. I do not think that is the right way to implement it,

I can only use as an example the way the Government actually established its pension fund five or six years ago. The Government gave the civil servants a 4% raise and took it back and put it into a pension fund. It left the civil servant's salary unaffected, but created the fund for that civil servant's future.

I make those few remarks because I believe it is essential to do so at this time. I have heard some complaints from my constituents who actually fall within that category of not having had an increase in wage for a couple of years. I support my colleague, the Minister for Community Development, whole heartedly in his efforts on this particular subject.

I would like to publicly thank members of the Air Transport Licensing Board, the Civil Aviation Board, the Hotel Licensing Board and the Port Authority, as well as the Chief Fire Officer, the director of Civil Aviation, the Director of the Port, the Director of Tourism, my Permanent Secretary and staff, and the staff of all the departments and statutory authorities for the able and cooperative way in which they serve the public and for the assistance they have given to me in my responsibilities.

I pray that Almighty God continues to bless all of us and the people of the Cayman Islands so that we will continue to make the right decisions so that the future of our children, their children, and future generations will be maintained with the same quality of life and prosperity that we sometimes now take for granted.

As I mentioned when I began the continuation of my debate this morning, it is proposed that we now suspend Standing Orders to allow the Stock Exchange Bill to be taken. I now leave that action in your capable hands.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDERS 44(1) 49(1) & 53(1)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: In accordance with Standing Order 83, I would like to move the suspension of Standing Orders 44(1), 49(1) and 53(1) to allow for the second reading of a Bill entitled, A Bill for a Law to Establish the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange, The Stock Exchange Authority and for Connected purposes, to be followed by the Committee stage and Report thereon.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Orders 44(1) through 49(1) and 53(1) under Order 83, be suspended in order for all of the stages, with the exception of the Third Reading, to be dealt with at this time on the Bill to Establish the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange.

The debate on the Throne Speech will continue after the Bill has been reported thereon.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDERS 44(1) 49(1) AND 53(1) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: We can now proceed to the First Reading.

CAYMAN ISLANDS STOCK EXCHANGE COMPANY BILL, 1996

Clerk: The Cayman Islands Stock Exchange Company Bill, 1996.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first and set down for Second Reading.

SECOND READING

CAYMAN ISLANDS STOCK EXCHANGE COMPANY BILL, 1996

Clerk: The Cayman Islands Stock Exchange Company Bill, 1996.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In moving the Second Reading of this Bill, A Bill for a Law to Establish the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange, the Stock Exchange Authority and for Connected Purposes,

I would like to state that the last 20 years have seen the emergence of the Cayman Islands from a few islands in the Caribbean which used to be tagged 'The Islands that Time Forgot,' to a major international financial centre. This leap from obscurity to international prominence did not happen by accident. As we are aware, it took commitment and foresight of the legislators of the day who were bold enough to listen and work with the early banking and other institutional pioneers in promulgating relevant legislation, and a responsive regulatory infrastructure to create an environment that would be seen as attractive which would continue to appeal to the international financial community in regards to its professionalism and expertise.

We are therefore indebted to such pioneers who initiated, fostered and put in train a legacy of commitment to maintaining the financial infrastructure of these Islands which have now arrived at this point where the introduction of a stock exchange is a timely and fitting addition.

Having now arrived at this strategic juncture, if we are to make our mark in enhancing the attractiveness, and thus secure the viability of our financial industry for future generations, we cannot afford to court complacency by merely talking about our current standing of preeminence in what has become a fiercely competitive global arena of offshore financial services. It is no longer sufficient to point to our political stability, sophisticated professional services and excellent communication, when all of our would-be competitors are claiming the same advantages.

What has always distinguished these islands as an offshore financial centre, in addition to the undoubted strength of our stability, professional calibre and excellent infrastructure, is another unifying and vital factor: that is, the ability to respond to the market place by harnessing the expertise, judgment and experience of industry professionals and Government in true partnership. The Bill to establish the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange is a product of this partnership.

The Cayman Islands is, in fact, one of the few major offshore financial centres which does not have a stock exchange. It is therefore seen as very timely to remedy this situation and position ourselves for the 21st Century. The establishment of an exchange is a significant undertaking and corresponding care is being taken to ensure that what is being created will be attractive to potential users and, as importantly, operate within a proper regulatory regime.

I would like to note that the stock exchange is considered first and foremost an enhancement to the array of services available in the Financial Sector and not primarily a source of direct net revenue to Government in the short-term. It is, however, expected that over the medium and long run licensing and listing fees from the exchange will both fund its operating costs and make a significant contribution to the Treasury. In addition, the revenue-generating potential of this investment in the stock exchange will also accrue to the financial services sector which will have multiplier effects on the economy.

I should also note that the exchanges development plans will address the need to select and train local professionals as far as operations require so that the stock exchange becomes an integral part of the financial services sector and not just a clip-on accessory.

This would equally apply to providing all interested segments of the financial services industry with the information necessary to enable full advantage to be taken of the facility and the new opportunities it represents.

I will now turn to the Bill itself. The Bill endows the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange with the sole and exclusive right to operate one or more securities markets in the Cayman Islands with the capacity to deal in securities of all descriptions. However, the initial implementation phase will concentrate on the provision of a listing facility targeted primarily at mutual funds. Our research has indicated that Cayman Islands Mutual Funds are currently listing on other exchanges, and it is hoped to be able to repatriate that business.

It is recognised that the listing function, being the initial commencement phase or point of trading activities, will generate relatively modest activity, but it is seen as a sensible and measured point of entry.

Progression to a full trading exchange including the servicing of domestic needs for capital formation will be the subject of further detail analysis in terms of (1) market characteristics and potential; and (2) additional resource and support requirements for the exchange. It is anticipated that the exchange membership will spearhead this progression to a large extent.

Regarding the structure of the exchange, it will be constituted as an ordinary resident company with all of the shares being held by the stock exchange authority on behalf of the Cayman Islands Government. The authority is a dedicated regulatory body for the exchange and, as such, will not participate in its day-to-day operations. The authority will comprise the Financial Secretary, the Inspector of Financial Services, the Attorney General or his assignee and other public officers appointed by the Governor on the recommendation of the Financial Secretary.

The day-to-day operations of the stock exchange will be managed by a council appointed under the company's Articles of Association which may in turn appoint paid staff necessary to actually run the facility.

Membership of the exchange will be conferred on application to the authority for a licence in four categories. These are: Listing Agent; Broker; Broker/Dealers and Market Maker. It is envisaged that local law firms, accounting firms and financial institutions will apply to be listing agents. Brokers, Broker/Dealers and Market Makers will be admitted from the ranks of those similarly recognised by one of the major exchanges to give an extra level of assurance that Members on the high risk trading side are of the highest calibre.

The structure of the exchange was designed to combine the appropriate degree of regulatory control with significant private sector participation. Indeed, without the council and the exchange membership the exchange will not be able to function successfully and reach its full potential.

When I commented earlier that the primary thrust of the exchange will not be necessarily to focus on the revenue generation that will come about in the short-term, there are indications that the stock exchange will be quite viable from the very beginning. But we are hoping that as we get closer to becoming operational, we will be in a position to look more closely at a firm figure in terms of what that contribution will be to general revenue. Its viability can be established from an indication of the activity in the number of mutual funds that are now registered in the Cayman Islands.

I think it would be useful to give an historical perspective in terms of what has led to the development of this Bill being brought before the Legislative Assembly today.

As mentioned in this Honourable House on previous occasions, we have the Government Private Sector Consultative Committee. This is a forum whereby the Ministers and Members of Government are able to dialogue with the various members of the private sector. These are persons who are holding key positions, such as presidents of the various associations and persons who are established within the community, who are on the stock exchange and are called core members. This is an ongoing committee where ideas that can enhance the financial industry in looking at other aspects of Governmental operation, and also putting ideas across for further considerations are normally put forward during these committee meetings.

I will just read from the operating document: "The stock exchange subcommittee was formed [and this is a sub-committee of the Government Private Sector Consultative Committee] in August 1994 to consider the feasibility of a Cayman Islands stock exchange. As a result of this committee's positive findings the Financial Secretary sought to obtain approval from Executive Council in November 1994 to pursue the establishment of a Cayman Islands stock exchange. The subcommittee identified the project background and objectives as follows:- Project Background: There are currently no stock exchanges or other investment exchanges in the Cayman Islands. Indeed, the Cayman Islands is one of the only major financial centres which does not offer these facilities."

When we consider the volume of financial activities that is taking place in the Cayman Islands on a daily basis, and when we look at the extent of our financial industry and consider that we have over 900 mutual funds at this time registered in the Cayman Islands, to have these registered here as Cayman Islands funds and to not have a stock exchange on which they can be listed, suggests that this is an essential facility which must be put in place.

Offshore financial investment activity has largely consisted of privately placed debt and equity transactions between sophisticated investors who do not require high levels of regulation or an access to liquid market in the relevant investments beyond that already provided for under the terms of the issue.

What we are saying here is that the credibility of the funds being registered in Cayman (which are primarily being registered by institutional investors) has long been established within the international financial community. Therefore, starting out with a listing function will be minimising the risk, as such, because rather than going to a full-blown stock exchange operation that would require expertise over and beyond what will be available at the inception...this is what we are guarding against. Therefore we are minimising the risk by taking this very cautious approach.

The document goes on to say: "A number of interrelated factors have converged to create the momentum for the establishment of a stock exchange, namely, evidence that Cayman Islands exempt offshore companies requiring access to a listing of both debt and equity securities have listed in other countries." The document names these countries, but I will avoid doing so because I do not think it would be the proper thing to do.

“The emerging risk of other jurisdictions with stock exchanges denying access to the Cayman Islands registered offshore companies, thereby putting the Cayman Islands financial services sector at a strategic disadvantage.”

We know that today we have quite a number of countries in the region (especially within the last five years), and elsewhere within the European Community, that have been looking very closely at what we have been doing in the Cayman Islands. Although we have been in the business of offshore financial services for quite a considerable length of time (and when we consider the volume of transactions that take place here on an ongoing basis) we are surprised that quite a number of countries have financial industries not as well regulated as the Cayman Islands, as suggested by the volume of mishaps occurring within their various communities. We have found that they take pot shots at us from time to time.

What we need to do is put ourselves in a position where no one can create a difficult situation for us making the Cayman Islands less attractive by not allowing our mutual funds or other structured vehicles to be registered on a stock exchange. This has not happened as yet, but we do know that jealousy is real.

“The strong probability that developments in the global capital market will generate an increasing demand for stock exchanges based in off-shore tax free jurisdictions.”

The seminars that have been conducted in the Cayman Islands, including the Banker's Association Biannual Conference held here in November 1995, quite a number of the persons who spoke to me and other persons, suggested that we really needed to have a stock exchange facility in place. From all indications, in terms of these discussions, there is a real expectation that this facility is needed and should be in place and pursued without delay.

“The overriding imperative for the Cayman Islands to remain competitive in an extremely competitive industry in which Cayman could stand to lose business which it would otherwise attract if it provided a listing facility.”

If we have gotten to the juncture where we recognise this very important need (and we have been bold in the past, and very innovative while being cautious), given the level of competition that we are faced with in the international financial community, and do nothing about it, I think we would be courting complacency.

“The increasing trend for institutions to necessarily invest in exchange listed debt and equity securities because of domestic regulations or internal investment requirements.”

This is another fact or feature that suggests that there is a need to give consideration to the establishment of a stock exchange.

“Project Objectives: The primary objective as identified by the Committee - To enhance the global competitiveness of the off-shore financial services sector of the Cayman Islands through the phased establishment of a stock exchange, with the first phase being the establishment of a primary listing exchange. The secondary objective is to provide a facility for the domestic financial market. The degree of gearing to this will depend upon demand and the ability to effectively progress from a listing to a full trading facility.

“. . . firm of attorneys (namely, W. S. Walker and Company) recently targeted major law firms and financial institutions in New York, Boston, Washington, Tokyo, London and Hong Kong, indicates that a Cayman Islands stock exchange has the potential for success providing that it has clear precise listing procedures; is flexible enough to handle companies from many jurisdictions and is able to distinguish itself from its main Competitors.”

There are certain countries named, and this section goes on to say that we should distinguish ourselves by being more cost effective and that the listing procedures should be less time consuming.

It then goes on to say: “Regarding item 3 above [which is the last paragraph I quoted] this would mean positioning ourselves vis a vis existing average listing costs of $4,000; annual maintenance fee of $2,000; and processing time of four to six weeks.”

When it is suggested that a listing cost of $4,000 could be charged for the up-front registration, with an annual maintenance fee of $2,000, given the numbers I mentioned earlier, by extrapolation, it would suggest that this would constitute a fair amount of revenue to the Government.

All of these factors are being taken into account in the planning for the stock exchange. This paper is as a result of further deliberations of the Committee on the form the stock exchange should take, as principally expressed in the proposed enabling bill which Members of this House have had the opportunity to peruse by now.

Under Key Issues and Types of Listing to Admit, the stock exchange will allow for a listing and trading facility for the following: Equity Securities in Cayman Islands' established companies, limited partnerships and mutual funds, debt securities of Cayman Islands' companies, securities of Cayman Islands' incorporated companies undertaking business inside and outside the islands; commodities and derivatives.

The Committee further goes on to say: “It is strongly recommended that at the outset only the lowest risk categories be admitted, namely, (1) and (2), consistent with the intention to commence with a listing function. The other two categories, (3) and (4), represent a significant greater regulatory burden and the risk of share holder funds being lost is also greater.”

Exchange ownership: Under this, the comments are: “The enabling bill constitutes the Cayman Islands stock exchange as an ordinary resident company of which Government is the sole share holder. It is important to understand that in this context ownership equates regulatory control in much the same way as the Financial Services Supervision Department can be said to own the financial services sector. Thus the authority is a dedicated regulator for the exchange setting the operating environment and allowing the council and the exchange members to give shape to the exchange as the market dictates within that environment. It is considered imperative that the stock exchange be owned by the Government to enable the appropriate degree of control to be exercised over the facility, both as to what types of listing to permit, and who are admitted as exchange members [under the four membership categories mentioned earlier].”

The reputation of the Cayman Islands is fundamental to its integrity and must be protected at all times. One unfavourable event emanating from the stock exchange would be sufficient to derail the entire financial services sector from which there would be difficulty in obtaining or getting back to a point of recovery. That is why we have decided to be very cautious and to go with instruments being registered now on established and recognised exchanges being registered by mutual funds managers in Cayman who have demonstrated the competence, capability and expertise to develop the necessary documentation, examine the structure, so that these instruments can be listed without difficulty. It is that same expertise that will be brought to bear when starting off the listing functions of the Cayman Islands stock exchange.

“Operating Rules: In addition to the enabling legislation, rules regarding the operation and management of the exchange will be needed, as well as listing rules for the admission of securities. Both of these are currently being drafted, based upon Luxemburg and the London Rules for review by the sub-committee. Once the rules are finalised, approaches will be made to the International Federation of Stock Exchange or other appropriate body for official international recognition or to the international organisation of securities commission.”

This should indicate to Members of this Honourable House that the Bill under consideration has been very much involved and it has consumed quite a considerable amount of time on the part of the Government in its deliberations with the sub-committee that continues to maintain its existence for reviewing the rules. It will be an ongoing committee. We do believe that once the listing activities start that it will not be the end, that we will in time be gearing up to move in the direction of becoming a full-blown trading facility.

As I said, we have to weigh the risks in tandem with the emerging expertise that will be developing. At the end of the day it is much better for us to take five, six or seven years ensuring that what we have in place is workable, has the respect of the international financial community and the confidence of the local financial industry and the Government, than to rush ahead for the sake of generating massive amounts of revenue.

This will be done. At the end of the day we will have achieved all of this. But I think we must do so on the side of caution.

As I said earlier, the Cayman Islands stock exchange function will be geared towards mutual funds, a segment of our financial services sector in which we are excelling internationally. It will be very beneficial to be able to market Cayman as a ‘one-stop shop’ for these funds.

The trading function is more complex and carries a higher risk, so what we allow to be traded will be the subject of careful policy consideration. At the moment, the likely initial categories appear to be: equity securities in Cayman Islands companies; limited partnerships and mutual funds and debt securities of Cayman Islands companies and perhaps blue chip securities of foreign companies currently traded on a major exchange. These categories may be expanded as prudence dictates.

Interestingly enough, I visited another major offshore financial service centre. This was shortly after I was appointed as Financial Secretary in 1992. The plan on the drawing board of that centre at the time was to become a ‘one-stop shop’ for the various range of financial services that were being offered. At that time, they had a stock exchange in place, but I do not think that it was operating at the level that it has since been operating within the past two years.

We know that the administration of that country has been looking closely at what we have been doing in these islands. From time to time, I have had representatives of the various banks come into my office to talk with persons from other institutions within our financial industry in an attempt to get a lead in terms of getting a basis of comparison for what obtains in their jurisdiction as against what we are doing in the Cayman stands. We have since learned that while it is useful to share information, there is a need for us to be guarded. This is why we are taking this approach in bringing this Bill to the Legislative Assembly.

We initially thought that we could become operational by the 1st of May, but I am taking a conservative approach that while we could probably achieve this, I think for myself and the Government to have the confidence in the operation of the stock exchange, we are hoping that the doors will be opened by the 1st of August or the 1st of September. We need to have our infrastructure in place, we need to have our computing equipment and our regulatory staff, we need to have persons who are trained and who understand the documents being presented and not have these documents being shuffled or put in someone’s drawer because they do not understand the complexity of the issues.

At the same time we need to look at a staffing structure which will enable us to identify the group of Caymanians who will be trained. Initially, we know we will have to bring in expertise from the outside, but we are hoping to run a training programme in tandem with the expertise being brought in. In time we will have a financial service regulatory body staffed by Caymanians.

This Bill before the House should therefore be viewed as the enabling legislation under which the authority, in cooperation with the Exchange Council is responsible for developing the actual operating rules for the exchange. Only when all these rules are in place, will trading of securities through the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange be allowed to commence. Once these rules are completed, it is intended to submit them to the International Federation of Stock Exchange and the International Organisation of Securities Commissions to gain official international recognition for the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange.

As I trust will be gleaned, this Bill is timely, proactive and strategically necessary. I commend it to this Honourable House.

In presenting this Bill, I want to make special mention of Miss Deborah Drummond who has been the secretary to the sub-committee of the Government Private Sector Consultative Committee. One cannot imagine the amount of work that this lady has done in terms of researching the rules and legislation from various jurisdictions and talking with various attorneys. There are quite a number of local firms and persons who have assisted the Government in bringing this Bill to this honourable House today.

I would like to thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question before the House is the Second Reading of the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange Company Bill, 1996.

Before anyone begins the debate, proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.41 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.00 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Second Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Stephenson. A. Tomlinson: Madam Speaker, thank you.

I rise to support the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange Bill. I said in my contribution to the Throne Speech that I believed this was creative and that I knew it was a step in the right direction and that it would enhance our financial centre. Most financial centres throughout the world have a stock exchange and this will only enhance our financial centre as an international financial centre.

The stock exchange will be well run from what the Financial Secretary has outlined. I am confident that it will be well run and I agree entirely that it should be operated by Government since the reputation of these islands are at stake. There are some individuals who have expressed the view that it should be privately operated, but I do believe that it should be run by Government with an authority in charge and a council operating the authority.

My main concern about the authority is to make sure that Government has in place ways and means to ensure that it gets proper returns from the authority. I have no doubt that a lot of money will come in and there will be a lot of trading of securities. As Mutual Fund legislation proved to be very successful, I am sure this will prove to be successful as well and that it will be active and the stock exchange will see great interest worldwide.

I noticed that the stamp duty will not apply as in section 15(1): The provision of the Stamp Duty Law shall not apply to any instrument which relates to the issue or transfer of security.... I am asking the Honourable Financial Secretary to outline in his reply exactly how Government will be making money from the stock exchange, so that not only some of us, but the entire country, will understand how the Government will in fact make money from the stock exchange.

As I have pointed out, it will be necessary for the Government to amass monies from the stock exchange. I do not want to appear greedy, but I believe it is important not to just have the glucometer, but also the various strips that go with it. This is not a case where we are going to get fees just from companies registration etcetera. We want to make sure that perhaps there are trading fees in place, transactions fees, whatever, but the Government must ensure that in some way it is going to benefit from having a stock exchange in the island and not find itself just breaking even.

I think that, having said that, I wish the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange every good wish and I know it is going to be a success. I look forward to the Honourable Third Official Member's reply.

Thank you.

The Speaker: If no other Member wishes to continue the debate, I would ask the mover if he would exercise his right of reply. The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I would like to thank Honourable Members for their support of this Bill.

The Second Elected Member for George Town, I would like to thank him especially for his comments and for wishing the Government well in the establishment of the stock exchange.

He asked if I would outline how the Government will generate revenue from the stock exchange. Firstly, there will be a fee for the listing of instruments (for example, mutual funds) on the stock exchange.

I mentioned in the presentation that there were suggested levels that could be charged for the initial listing. One company from its research gleaned that the figure as suggested by the international community averaged in the region of $4,000 per entity. It was also suggested that there could be an annual maintenance fee that would equate to 50% of the $4,000 ($2,000).

Given the volume of Mutual Funds companies that we have formed in the Cayman Islands, that would translate into a significant amount of revenue. Where I differ slightly is that while I recognise that Government must look at revenue, because of the importance of the stock exchange and the likely risks associated with focusing only on the revenue aspect of it, I think we need to take our time and make sure that we develop the expertise and competence to closely vet the instruments that will be put forward for registration. It is much better for us to aim for quality rather than quantity.

For example, we may have investors who are having difficulty in getting, let us say, structured financing arrangements, who are registered on other stock exchanges, and they see the Cayman Islands as new and assume that there is a level of vulnerability. Given the fact that the regulators here would just be going through the learning-curve process (in terms of scrutinising the documentations) and looking closely at asset structures (in terms of Mutual Funds vehicles), there is the potential for one or two to slip through which would otherwise not have been allowed to go through.

So it is much better for us to go with those instruments that are presently passing through the Cayman Islands for a registration and going on to other jurisdictions (such as Luxembourg and Dublin) to be registered.

As I mentioned the one-stop shop' arrangement, the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange would allow for these entities to be registered and for their registration to be recognised. So at the onset, although the stock exchange will have the capacity to generate revenue, the revenue-generating aspect of it will not be the primary focus. We are hoping that in the medium to long-term this will be a significant factor to consider, but most, and more, importantly, is the fact that emphasis should be placed on operating a stock exchange of the highest quality so that whenever we are scrutinised by other bodies we are seeking to affiliate with, and also when we are being looked at by other Governments who have had the tendency to direct criticisms at us because of our success in the past, we can be seen as operating a very sound regulatory regime.

Interestingly enough, shortly after the airing of a documentary 'Dirty Money,' back in 1994, there was a major securities company that set up office here in Cayman. The Vice-president came down for the opening and I asked him if he is aware of the documentary and he replied "Yes."

I said, "It is interesting to see a company of your stature coming to the Cayman Islands in light of all the things being purported to be taking place here."

He said, "I will tell you something, those things are only being given credence by the uninformed community. Before we took the decision to come to the Cayman Islands, we carried out our research and looked at all the other off-shore financial centres and the Cayman Islands was the only jurisdiction conducive to our operations."

Their operation is of the highest quality, it is not a question that they were looking for an area that would condone risks, but from their research they would have examined very closely the structure of our Governmental processes. They would have looked very closely at our regulatory regime, they would have looked at the regulatory environment, they would have looked at the expertise of the operators within our financial industry, they would have looked at our physical infrastructure; and all of these, when combined, suggested that the company should move here.

Therefore, the other companies that are here are not here by default. If they take time to carry out their research to ensure that they are coming to an environment that will allow for their asset base to be protected, it is incumbent on the Government that, whatever initiatives are pursued or new ventures entered into, they should be carried out with an equal amount of caution.

In the end we know that we are successful today, and we have to be thankful to God for our success, but we have to employ the highest level of prudence and to make sure that what we have is an environment that we continue to strive and make efforts to improve upon.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Cayman Islands Stock Exchange Company Bill, 1996, be given a Second Reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Second Reading.

AGREED. THE CAYMAN ISLANDS STOCK EXCHANGE COMPANY BILL, 1996, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: The House will now go into Committee to consider the Bill.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE AT 4.14 PM

The Chairman: I think that perhaps I should bring to the attention of all persons who come to the Legislative Assembly, that it is customary to rise when the Speaker rises, irrespective of their position.

The House is now in Committee and the Bill to be considered is the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange Bill, 1996.

COMMITTEE ON BILL

CAYMAN ISLANDS STOCK EXCHANGE COMPANY BILL, 1996

Clerk: Clause 1. Short title and commencement.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 52(2) (Amendments)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Chairman, there are certain paragraphs containing certain discrepancies that will need to be amended.

In accordance with Standing Order 83, I would like to move Standing Order 52(2) to allow for these amendments to be presented.

The Chairman: I shall put the question that these amendments now be made. Those in favour please say Aye.. Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Standing Orders are suspended.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 52(2) SUSPENDED.

The Chairman: Do you have copies for Members, or are they such minor alterations that we do not require copies?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: They are minor, Madam Chairman. Under normal circumstances copies would be available, but these were brought to my attention during the course of this afternoon.

The Chairman: Would you please go through them one by one?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Chairman, I am going to ask the assistance of the Honourable Attorney General who listed these corrections, with your approval.

The Chairman: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Chairman.
The first amendment is to section 5(3) in the second line and entails the deletion of the word "stock."

The Chairman: The question now is that the word "stock" be deleted from subclause (3) of clause 5. If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 5(3) is amended.

AGREED. CLAUSE 5(3) AMENDED.

The Chairman: The question now is that clauses 3 through 9 with subclause (3) as amended do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AGREED. CLAUSES 3 THROUGH 9 PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 10. General powers of the Council.
Clause 11. Rules of the Exchange.
Clause 12. Approval of Articles and rules by the Authority.
Clause 13. Register of trading members.
Clause 14. Accounts of the Council, etc.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 10 through 14 do stand part of the Bill. The question is open for debate.
I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. CLAUSES 10 THROUGH 14 PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 15. Exemption from various statutory provisions.
Clause 16. Companies not deemed to be engaged in or carrying on a trade or business.
Clause 17. Suspension of trading.
Clause 18. Conflict between laws.
Clause 19. Exemption from Civil liability and indemnity.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 15 through 19 do stand part of the Bill. The Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Chairman, there is an amendment to section 19(2) in the first line to insert after the word 'shall,' 'upon his appointment'. So it will read:
An Exchange member shall upon his appointment indemnify the Government...."

The Chairman: The question is that clause 19(2) be amended by inserting the words 'upon his appointment,' after the word 'shall'.

The amended subclause will now read: "(2) An Exchange member shall upon his appointment indemnify the Government against any liability, action, claim or demand whatsoever in respect of any act or omission under this Law by such Exchange member when acting in that capacity."

The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate I shall put the question that the amendment be made to subclause (2) of clause 19. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. CLAUSE 19(2) AMENDED

The Chairman: The question now is that clauses 15 through 19 do stand part of the Bill.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. CLAUSES 15 THROUGH 19 PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for a Law to Establish the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange, the Stock Exchange Authority and for Connected Purposes.

The Chairman: The question is that the title do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. THE TITLE PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that the Bill do now be reported to the House. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. THE BILL TO BE REPORTED TO THE HOUSE.

HOUSE RESUMED AT 4.23 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.
The House is resumed.
Reports. The Honourable Third Official Member.

REPORT ON BILLCAYMAN ISLANDS STOCK EXCHANGE COMPANY
BILL, 1996

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I have to report that a Bill entitled, A Bill for a Law to Establish the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange, the Stock Exchange Authority and for connected purposes was considered by a Committee of the whole House and passed with certain amendments.

The Speaker: The Bill is accordingly set down for Third Reading.

We have just seven minutes left, and I think we should have the adjournment and tomorrow we will continue the debate on the Throne Speech.

The Speaker: I will ask the Fourth Elected Member for George Town to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have an apology from The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce for his absence at this morning's sitting.

Government Business, continuation of the Debate on the Throne Speech. The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY MR. JOHN W. OWEN, MBE, GOVERNOR OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS, ON FRIDAY, 16TH FEBRUARY, 1996

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

First of all, I would like to thank Almighty God for the great opportunity to address this nation on another Throne Speech. I have had many opportunities to do this, this year being my 20th year, but each time I do so with great pride.

Let me also join other Members in congratulating His Excellency the Governor on his first Throne Speech in this Legislative Assembly. It goes without saying that it is a document which has far-reaching effects on this country and it paints a picture of exactly the way it is.

Let me say that I am proud to be a part of the National Team Government. This Government has done many good things for our country and for our people since taking office in 1992. If I may say so, it has all been because of team work, although many times (if we were not strong men and women) we would have packed it up and gone home, because right in this honourable House we have been called everything except gentlemen and ladies by a small Opposition. But we have the strength; we have brought this country from a depression to where we can be proud of it today. We are going to continue to run this country on the same course.

We made it abundantly clear in our Manifesto that our policy was to pull the economy out of its recession and to start repaying Government debts to strengthen and build up the economy of this country. Let me say, contrary to all of the rhetoric we hear from the Opposition in this House and on the outside, that the honest, truthful business people of this country will tell you we have advanced and brought this country back to its sanity.

At this point I would like to issue a warning: While we have it good, and the Cayman Islands can be considered the pearl of the Caribbean—and I stand by those words, the pearl of the Caribbean . . . because as we look at neighbouring islands we can see what this sort of Opposition and tearing down of a country has done. This country has a majority of sensible people. They know exactly what is right for this country and, while they remain silent at this point in time, the day of reckoning is in November. The people of this country are well aware that this Government has helped them to carry on their businesses, helped them to keep their children in school, to keep food in their homes. They know exactly who was a part of this Government when it started, they know who today remains a part of this Government and they know the reason why we have had backsliders. I honestly believe that was one of the best things that could have ever happened, and it happened in the early days when we could continue with the work that we needed to carry out in this country.

This Government has handled itself well. We have had many unexpected crises dropped upon us. Let us take the Cuban situation in this country. We were not expecting that. God knows we were not. But we faced it well. Contrary to all of the stupid opposition that we received on that (that Government was doing nothing), let me say that we could do no more than what we were doing. We realised that those who said fix their boats and send them back were radical in their idea. We realised that there was more to it than that, we are subject to certain Conventions as long as we are part of the United Kingdom - and God help us the day we are not! Regardless of whether we like it or not, that has been our success story thus far. I know there are some who do not like to hear that in here, but I do not think the country will ever give them a chance to change that.

The Governor said: "The responsibilities of success do not only rest on the shoulders of government." That is correct. True words. Regardless of whether the Opposition in this House believes that they are a part of us or not, these words should remain in their minds. All that they are doing is not good for this country. When you take to a platform and try to rile people up on every issue.... That cannot lead to good for the country. As representatives of the people we should become united and try to fight the cause and put it right instead of lambasting the Government on these occasions.

Mr. Roy Bodden: You would want a one party state.

Hon. John B. McLean: That is what you would like, of course.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, please do not...

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am the last one who would like a one party state. But I would like an Opposition that does not oppose just for the sake of opposition, as do the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and his colleague. That is not sensible Opposition, if that is what he wants to hear. I am not talking about a one party state. Maybe that is fresh in his mind, but not in mine.

The people of this country are a proud people. We have a lot to be proud of. What we have today did not come by flight. It came because of the men and women of old. At this point I would like to pay tribute to persons such as the late Capt. Keith Tibbetts, Miss Annie Huldah Bodden, Mr. G. Haig Bodden, the late Mr. Jim Bodden, Mr. Burkely Bush, and the names go on and on. We continue to build upon the foundations they started, let us not forget that. We must remember that a foundation can be strong, but it can also be destroyed. It is for us to safeguard.

I would like to move on to address certain areas of the Throne Speech. The Governor addressed the problems of the Judiciary and the space needed for the courts to operate properly. Let me say that the Government is quite aware of this. We are working toward expanding that space. The courts must continue to operate in a fashion so that this country can remain proud of it. The standards must remain high. In order for this to happen, one of the things necessary is proper space.

I watch the movements of judges and lawyers almost on a daily basis from one side of the road here in front of the Legislative Assembly Building to the other side, moving from the Court House to the Town Hall. As far as I am concerned, that is not a good arrangement. We are presently looking at adequate space close to the Court House. Furthermore, we must realise that we are no longer living in the days of long ago. We have radicals in the world today. We cannot allow ourselves to be open to this sort of thing.

Judges have to rule on cases and then they have to walk across the street and go over to the Court House. As far as I am concerned, the lives of those individuals are not safe operating in such a fashion. I think it is very important for us as a Government to act as quickly as possible, which we are doing, to correct the problem.

May I pay tribute, at this point, to the Civil Service of these islands? As far as I am concerned, we have an outstanding Civil Service in the Cayman Islands. As in any organisation, we have those persons who do not come up to par. But that is beside the point. We have many, many dedicated civil servants who continue to assist the Government. We must be realistic about this. No Government can succeed unless the civil servant is there to administer the policy.

I am proud of the departments which fall under my Ministry. I have tried in every way for the years that I have been in charge, to work closely with not only those under my Ministry, but throughout the Civil Service. I give the assurance that this is what I will continue to do. I beg for others to realise that they are only human beings and that we can only expect so much. We must also remember that it goes both ways. They work along with us, and we must be willing to work along with them.

I would like to touch briefly on the Police. I would like to congratulate the new Commissioner of Police, Mr. Grey. It is my opinion that he has started off on the right track. I think he is doing all in his power to brighten our police force. The one thing that I admire about him is that he seems to be someone whom the officers throughout the ranks are able to talk with at any time. I also pay great respect to the Drug Department.

I think we have a strong force there. We must continue to offer whatever assistance is needed to the police force. I have said many times that it is our only means of protection. We are unlike other islands with a stronger force to rely on. We need to keep the police department aware of our support, not only by Government, but by everyone in this country. We can speak about crime, we can speak about drugs, but the police cannot do it on their own.

I would like to thank the Commissioner of Police for trying to strengthen the police presence in my district. I am very pleased with Sgt. Wood who is in charge there. I think he has now gotten the respect of the people out there. He is working as hard as he can to correct the problems he has come up against. I give him assurance that I am prepared to work along with him for the betterment of my district.

With regard to the Prison, I will only say that it was good to see the prisoners come out and assist us in preparing for the Annual Agricultural Show. Often we think of prisoners as being locked up in Northward. I would be the last one to say that if somebody commits a crime he should not be punished, but I believe that in bringing our prisoners out and allowing them to work on occasions such as I just mentioned, or even allowing them to work on the sides of the road, does that calibre of person more good than harm. I would only say to the Member responsible for the Prison to continue to do this.

We must work along with these individuals to ensure that once they are back in society they can take their rightful place. Again, I would like to say thank you very much to the Director of Prisons for the assistance which they gave to us.

It was very enlightening to walk around and see the many things that are now done at the prison - the woodwork, the ceramics, the handicraft - all exceptionally top class. I think that it is only right that the public know this because for whatever reason a large portion of the public believes that prisoners are locked up at Northward doing nothing but spending taxpayers' dollars. It is much different from that. I support what they are doing in there.

A previous speaker spoke on ground transportation and the problem with omni buses and taxis. Indeed, this is a national problem. We have been working steadfastly to try to come to grips with this. Unfortunately, all of the regulations which fall under the Traffic Law, 1991, have not been fully drafted. Therefore, many portions of the law cannot be enforced.

At this sitting it is my intention to lay on the Table two regulations which cover ticketing and the use of radar guns under the new law. It is my hope that by the next sitting of this honourable House we will have other regulations in place so that we can get on our way in trying to come to grips with the problems that exist. I believe that with these regulations in place and with the new law (although there will have to be a few amendments to the law) we will see some sort of sanity brought back.

The Drafting Department has been under a lot of strain. It is my understanding from the Second Official Member that the staff there has been strengthened, and no doubt they are working continuously to come up-to-date with the regulations which are behind.

I turn to District Administration. During Budget Time this Government tried its best to share funds amongst the various districts as best it could. We did not forget the Sister Islands. All of us would have liked to have offered more to each district, but we could only share what was there to be shared. The fact remains that we are aware that the needs of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will have to be met. We will continue to do what we can to assist those islands.

Again, we have heard many remarks concerning the Brac and Little Cayman. It is a known fact that the Government is steadfastly working, trying to do things for the Brac. I think it was the Minister for Tourism who spoke about trying to put an added attraction on the Brac. The Government was lambasted for that, yet we are told that we must do something. To always be negative, never giving an alternative is not good. I have no problem working with someone who has the interests of those islands at heart. I have done so in the past and I give the assurance that I will continue to do so.

The Minister for Tourism and I will be working quite closely on the project which he spoke about here a few days ago. We know that while there are those who are kicking us around for it, we still have people who think a lot about Cayman Brac and Little Cayman who are willing to work along with us to make the project become a reality. I believe that it will be an added attraction. I believe it will be a new selling point for Cayman Brac, as far as tourists are concerned, as well as the locals. A large portion of our people are also interested in diving.

I turn to the Cayman Islands Government Office in the United Kingdom. Many years ago, when the Government took the stand that we were going to hire Mr. Thomas Russell to be Government's representative in London, the negative people said it was a waste of Government's funds. Today, if we tell the truth we will say that was one of the best things the Government could have done because it has saved (and will continue to save) this country hundreds of thousands of dollars by having a gentleman like Mr. Thomas Russell there. Long may he live!

Recruitment for the Civil Service is a good example. Before, probably half a dozen people would fly from Grand Cayman to London to recruit. With a knowledgeable person like Mr. Russell on the spot, along with his able staff, we can depend upon his expertise to ensure that we recruit the calibre of persons which we need in this country. I pay tribute to that gentleman. I had the opportunity to work with him inside of and outside of this House. I offer praise where I know it should be.

With regard to the upcoming election: When I reflect upon my entering the political arena 20 years ago, and then compare it to today, it is a whole new ball game. For whatever reason, we have moved right on to the American way of campaigning. The place is littered with stickers; cars are littered with them; if that is progress, then that is what we are into.

The only thing I will say on what is facing us is that we Caymanians trying to get a seat in our respective districts should endeavour to do it in an orderly and smooth fashion. Gutter politics will do this country no good. We have already seen it in certain areas of campaigning. We have heard numerous remarks concerning the by-election in Bodden Town. We do not need this in the Cayman Islands. We need persons who will go to their electorate and say, 'This is what I stand for', and 'this is what I will do if elected', and 'this is what I have done during my time as an Elected Member', not digging up each other's personal life and digging into family life. I do not think that does this country any good. To hear nasty remarks about this one giving paint, and this one giving dollars... Madam Speaker, I do not think that anyone is stooping to that. I would have to see that with my own eyes. But nasty propaganda will get us no place.

I tell the electorate of this country to bear this in mind. I urge each and every one to exercise their right to vote, it is their right and I urge them to vote wisely. There are many who will get out there and lambast this Government during the election, saying that we have done nothing for this country. I trust that the electorate in each district will turn that back to them and ask them what they have contributed. In most cases, even in their respective jobs, when they could have helped this country they did not.

I believe that the National Team will once again be a team to reckon with. It is simply because we have followed our Manifesto which we presented to the people in 1992. We will continue to do what we promised the people.

I would like to say how pleased I am with the progress of the Law School. I know persons, such as the Hon. Truman M. Bodden, worked very hard to make that school a reality. Today we can be justly proud of the results. It has allowed many Caymanians an opportunity that they would otherwise not have been afforded if they had to go abroad for education in the field of law. Again, I believe that the money that has been spent in that area is money well spent. We should continue to upgrade and to promote it.

The Minister for Tourism mentioned several things that assisted with the boost in construction for our people today. I would just like to say that he was so correct. When we took office construction was almost unheard of. Through his hard work and the support of the National Team Government we were able to bring on line the Westin Hotel. He spoke about that, so I will not repeat it.

I would also like to say how pleased and proud I am to know that I have in my district a facility like the Morrith's Tortuga Club. That project created jobs for my people during the construction stages, and now in caring for the tourists and locals alike. A very fine facility, one of which I would like to see a second one of in my area.

Many of my people who had to travel to work at the Seven Mile Beach are now afforded the opportunity to work in their own district just a short ride from their home. This is most important in the day and age in which we live, because most times both parents are out to work and away from the children. We know of the problems that come about as a result of this. So when at least one parent can be in the district, as the saying goes, 'a stone's throw' from where they live, it makes all the difference.

It was asked who we were developing for with regard to hotels. I do not believe that any sensible government with a population the size of the Cayman Islands would ever believe that we could construct a hotel here and staff it completely from among our people. But that is only one side of the coin. Let us look at the spin-offs which come from having such a facility constructed.

Regardless if we acknowledge it or not, some of the construction dollars will go to our people. There will be some who will be employed. What about the duty and stamp duty that the Government receives on imported materials and, of course, land transfers? It is not directly going to our people, but indirectly. It takes such funds to keep this country running today.

What has happened during our tenure in office? Being a sensible government, and going the route we have, we have been able to go along on an even keel and never have to bring taxation on our people. That is completely different from the last government. The people of this country will never forget the package that the past government laid on the shoulders of the people of this country - $20 million. If nothing more than that, it is a great achievement for the National Team Government. As my colleague the Minister for Tourism says, the Opposition can put that in their pipe and smoke it too!

Thank God for the foresight of this Government. Thank God for His guidance, that we were able to do things for our people and keep up the services without further taxation. I am proud of that. With all of that, we should ask ourselves: What else did we do? Look at the sizeable investments that this Government has attracted to this country; look at the outstanding businesses. I am proud to say that I was a part of it.

The Regional Headquarters for Cable and Wireless came here because of support from this Minister and the National Team Government. I am proud of it. Other territories were there with open arms begging them to come. Because of the confidence in the National Team Government they were willing to come to us. As I said, I am proud of it.

These are the things that the people of this country must reflect on come election time. While this Government has been able to attract such investors to this country, there is a group out there today falling all over themselves with their attitudes. This can easily destroy what we have built.

Let us reflect on places like the Bahamas. When I started working with the Royal Bank of Canada, Nassau was considered the place for banking. Because of bad political management and the escalation of crime, who in the territory today boasts of having such a banking industry? The beautiful Cayman Islands. All fact, Madam Speaker. We have built an industry here that is rated throughout the world and we as a country and as sensible people must continue to protect it.

There are many would-be politicians in this country today. It is not because of the love they have for the Cayman Islands, they are getting into politics to take revenge. That is not right. It is not good for our country. When you are going to go into something with hate in your heart, how can you do justice to the country? There is too much of that existing, and I need not call names because that is spelled clear enough.

I am proud to be a Caymanian. I am proud to have been one who has given 20 years of my life to the management of this country. I have done so with pride. When I started here 20 years ago, there were many days when Mr. Craddock Ebanks and I shared a patty because there were no salaries then. Thank God I weathered the storm. I see the fruits of our labour today. I will stick with it as long as the Good Lord and the constituents of East End support me because I have children growing up, I have a grand-child and I would like to see this country remain as good for them as it was for me.

That cannot be done with some of those whom I see out there standing on paint cans today - that must be the paint can they were talking about in Bodden Town. Anyway, let me say that we must continue to be positive and keep the good ol' ship Cayman on an even course. We have worked too hard and too long to allow those without a care in the world to come and destroy it.

With regard to the hospital: I will not go into that because my able colleague, Mr. Anthony Eden, has dealt with it properly. I would just like to say that one of the issues this Government campaigned on was to stop the hospital in the swamp and to construct a hospital that would cost this country less money and afford the people of this country an excellent service. This is well on its way.

We are not only talking about a central hospital, but the National Team Government has looked at the needs in each district. We have plans in each district to put a facility where our people can be offered the care due them. The Minister for Health came in late in the day, but he picked up the mantle and, thus far, has done an excellent job. When I hear those prophets of doom (though they be few in this House) who once were a part of us, campaigning to stop that hospital in the swamp, criticising what we are doing as far as constructing a new hospital simply because they have joined up with other people who feel that way... Madam Speaker, I am a man who would die in his boots for believing in something. I am not going to be tricked into believing that by joining someone I have to change my mind and say that what I stood for in an election (for which my people actually elected me on) becomes wrong. How much respect is there for their constituents and the people of the Cayman Islands?

I know of instances where individuals were brought in from among those who are opposing us today on this hospital to tell us how to build a hospital that was not in the swamp. We were shown blue prints of hospitals that could have been built - and it should not have been built in the swamp. That Member was the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. What do we hear today? It was wrong to stop the hospital in the swamp: yet he was the Member who brought in somebody to show us how we could build a hospital that should not be built in a swamp - because he was a part of us at that time. He has a short memory. But I believe that we have done exactly what the people of this country wanted. We campaigned on it and we won the election in full force and we are going to give the people of this country a facility of which they can be justly proud.

We are going to make sure that there are health clinics in each district that we can be justly proud of. Thank God that I already have the property for the one in my district, and the plans are already drawn. We are going to get it. We have a clinic in my district, but it is some 20 years old. When that clinic was built, it was said that it was a waste of money, and that it was too big. Thank God that my district has progressed to where we have outgrown it. It has served us well and I am still proud of it. But for the expansion of the future, for the growth of my district, and for the promotion of better health care services to my people, I must have another constructed.

The health of our people is most important. A healthy society has to be a good society. We can boast (thank God) that we in the Cayman Islands are on top of the services that we offer to our people. Think of neighbouring countries where we constantly hear of outbreaks of typhoid, cholera, you name it, dengue... but, because of the diligent efforts of Government and other persons in authority, we have been able to stay on top of this. That is very important and we must promote that, not destroy it.

What better could my colleague the Minister for Health have offered the people of Bodden Town than a beautiful clinic? But we are aware of those who have ridiculed him because of that. I have heard stupid remarks relating to where the clinic was built. But, if I were a Bodden Towner I would be proud of it. I know the people of Bodden Town will no doubt remember those individuals who opposed it. They will also remember the good name of Anthony Eden who steadfastly fought to get it there.

On the matter of drug abuse, I am very much concerned, especially for the young people in this country. It has been said more than once that we need to come to grips with the big guys in the drug trade. I wholeheartedly agree with and support that. As we reflect on what these islands were, as far as that is concerned, and we see the way that drugs have gotten into our society, it is a very sad situation. Those big dealers (as they are called) should be ashamed of themselves as they go from district to district and look at the good healthy persons who have literally been turned into zombies. How can one live with one's conscience? I see that as bad, or worse, than putting a gun to somebody's head. At least the person is taken out of his suffering. But when it comes to destroying somebody with drugs, that is prolonged punishment.

I believe the funds this country has spent on trying to stop drugs and trying to rehabilitate those who are addicted is money well spent. As long as I am one of those in control I will have no problem whatsoever in trying to budget funds to fight this. It is something that all of us must be concerned about because one does not have to use it to be threatened by it. Many a good innocent man has lost his life simply because of somebody's use of drugs.

I will briefly speak on Education: I am so proud of the high standards of education in the Cayman Islands. It is good to talk to people, especially people from the North American Continent, and to hear the praise offered to our standards of education here. This did not happen by itself. I am proud to have a colleague like the Honourable Truman Bodden, a man who has his mind and soul in what he does; a man who has worked to promote education for the young people of this country. I say to him, to his Ministry and his Education Council, you are doing an outstanding job. But I encourage them to stand firm when it comes to discipline and codes in the schools of the Cayman Islands, regardless of the minority force out there. I think that the Ministry and the Department and the Education Council of this country owe it to the people of this country. I want to know when my children go to school that the discipline is there. Parents who do not believe in a teacher disciplining their child, should keep their children at home.

I believe that all schools should wear uniforms. That is the way it has been and that is the way it should be. It goes further than that: I believe that in addition to uniforms children should be well trimmed. Somebody taking issue because the Department, the Ministry and the Council feel it is not right is rubbish. I think they should stand by their guns on it. That is not taking away anybody's rights. If they go by the rules and wear a uniform, then they must finish preparing their children so that they can associate themselves with their fellow students.

I am proud of the standard of the Primary School in my district. I am proud of the principal in charge. This morning I was offered the opportunity to declare sports day officially opened. The discipline I saw there made my heart feel good. I heard the principal speaking to the little ones. I could clearly see the discipline she has instilled into these little ones. This is what we need - and we need to start at this young age.

Of course, she could not have done it by herself. It took the interest of parents and the assistance of teachers to do what she is doing out there. Recently, through the assistance of the National Team Government, I was able to have that school physically upgraded. As far as I am concerned, it is one of the most outstanding primary schools at this time. I was also able to have a school bus purchased for my school. The gratitude that I was shown made me feel good. Each morning when I see that bus moving through my district picking up those little ones who either had to walk, or be driven by their parents on their way to work... all of that is behind us. We have a bus that will pick the children up and return them home safely to their parents.

We have purchased property adjacent to the primary school on which a preschool will be operated. This is being worked on at present and within a short time we are hoping to offer the services of that preschool. I thank all of my colleagues for showing me such support in the necessary upgrading of the school in my district.

I will briefly touch on the National Carrier, Cayman Airways. I feel heartened to know that in recent times our national airline has been out of the political arena. God knows it has been kicked around from (as the saying goes) pillar to post. But now we have an airline that we can once again be proud of. The Minister with responsibility must be commended for the job he has done with the national airline, with the support of the National Team Government.

It was a very hot issue in the last election and we told the people that this country could not continue on the trend it was going with regard to creating more and more debt as far as the airline was concerned. We campaigned that if elected we would correct this - and we have! It is a pity that the last Government did not see fit to hold on to the 727s that we had. If they had, the millions of dollars that went down the tube would today be available to spend on more deserving things. As the saying goes, let bygones be bygones; with the help of God we have been able to purchase a jet for the country. If it continues on the trend it is going, we will be able to purchase another.

I am also pleased to see that they are presently thinking about opening another route into Orlando. Many of our people travel to Orlando throughout the year. The service of our own national airline will now be available. I think it is a good move and I hope and trust that it will work out for the airline. The people of this country can be justly proud of the action this Government took in the area of Cayman Airways.

It is a known fact that before we took office the past government had been unable to secure a loan for the airline. Because of the confidence in the new Government (the National Team Government) we were able to secure what was necessary to take care of what had been created. We did not have to go to the banks. The banks came to us. That is confidence in the first degree.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Minister take a suspension at this time?

Hon. John B. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.27 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.59 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, continuing.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the break I had just about completed my thoughts on our national airline. I would just like to add that it is very encouraging to know that not only are we taking care of airplanes, but we are also taking care of the staff. Today we can boast of a Caymanian Manager, Mr. Mike Adams, who is in charge of our national airline. In Miami we have Mr. Oliver Hill, another Caymanian. Here in Cayman, as far as maintenance is concerned, we have Mr. Tibbetts. I believe that the national airline is a very good example of what the National Team Government believes in as far as making sure that persons such as I mentioned are in charge.

I picked up the newspaper and I noticed that the resort which I mentioned earlier, Morrith's Tortuga Club, actually took the time to show their gratitude and pay respect to our national airline. I seek the indulgence of the Chair to read what it says. "Morrith's Tortuga Club and Resort proudly announced that for 1995 calendar year we were the largest on island producer of passengers for the national carrier. Thank you, Cayman Airways, for your wonderful service to our guests from your proud supporter Morrith's Tortuga Club."

I mentioned awhile ago the route to Orlando. It is my understanding that the airline will be putting on two extra flights for the Easter Holiday. We are making very good progress as far as our national airline is concerned.

I now turn to the Ministry for which I am responsible. I will deal with it accordingly, beginning with Agriculture. When we took office, the National Team Government stated clearly in its Manifesto what they would do with farming if elected.

Our policy was; "To provide everything possible which is necessary to promote agriculture in the Cayman Islands and to fulfill our motto of Freshly grown crops and more healthily reared animals to produce a healthy food supply for our people.' Our aim will be to spend reasonable sums of money to strive towards self-sufficiency in food on a similar basis to the principle of spending on tourism."

We have taken the path of our policy with regard to agriculture in the Cayman Islands. "Our Objectives: 1. To follow such recommendations of the five year development plan as we feel are necessary and desirable." We have done this. Thank God we are now in the process of extending the plan to take us into five or ten years in the future.

Our second objective was: "To reinstate the Smith's Road Nursery..." This has been done. This has been money well spent because that little showpiece is one of the areas where the tour buses take the tourists around George Town. That and the Turtle Farm show the various things which we try to grow here in the Cayman Islands. We are also moving some of these crops to another demonstration farm at Lower Valley.

We also stated that we would "...make available to farmers the best quality animals, a qualified grafter, the necessary equipment..." for the pasture clearing. We have done all of this.

Our fourth objective: "To locate a proper Agricultural Department, in phases..." at the demonstration farm in Lower Valley. As one reads the Throne Speech, it can be seen that later this year we hope to have this started and hopefully completed.

Objective number five was: "To encourage farmers to specialise in specific crops..." rather than one farmer branching out into a lot of different crops. Thank God we have been successful to a certain degree.

We also said that we would make available to farmers certain funds that could be loaned on a small scale. It was placed in the first budget after we took office.

Another objective was for a full scale poultry farm. While we may say that we do not have a full scale private poultry farm, we do have a poultry farm at the Prison. This has all been put in place with the assistance of the Department of Agriculture. We said that we would support the Farmer's Market and the Agricultural Society and we continue to do that.

I made it a point to say that if elected we would definitely have the annual Agricultural Show back on stream. Six weeks after being in office we put it in place for the people of this country, and it was one of the best shows ever held in the Cayman Islands. Each year it continues to get better and better.

We also said that we would provide proper slaughtering facilities. It is only a matter of time before we shall commence construction. We said that we would encourage hydroponic crops and vegetables. Thank God we have Mr. Godfrey (and his son) who is presently producing top quality lettuce at the hydroponic farm right here in George Town. There is also another couple (a foreign couple) presently working toward another one.

We have seen the interest because even in recent times another fully equipped farm store has been opened.

I would like to encourage the farming sector. I would like to encourage importers of produce and meats to cooperate with the department and to cooperate with the Farmer's Market; to try their endeavours to take as much as is humanly possible of what is grown locally.

With all of that we have certain problems which, like any problem, will take all of us together to overcome. We have importers in this country who continue to import flowers, plants, produce and animals. I would like to appeal to them to work together with the Department, the Ministry and all those concerned with such products and animals, so we can be sure that when something comes in here we are not going to be faced with another disease or pest.

There are many, many insects and diseases around us that we have to be careful with. At this point in time one of the most destructive insects in the territory is what is known as the Hibiscus Pink Mealy Bug. I would like to table some information on this because it is for all of us to try to keep this out of the Cayman Islands.

It is my understanding that places such as Trinidad, Grenada, Australia, St. Kitts and Nevis are all infested. As a matter of fact, the last I heard about Grenada was that the one crop upon which they heavily depend on, nutmeg, was almost completely devastated.

We have taken a stand within the Department and Ministry to do whatever is necessary to keep it out of the Cayman Islands. But we need everybody's assistance.

I would like to share what we call a 'Pest Alert' which gives information on this, so that the Members can see for themselves what we are up against.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I understand it is the wish of some Members to suspend now until 2.30 Proceedings are suspended until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.14 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.43 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, continuing.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the suspension I had started to deal with my Ministry. I was speaking on agriculture. I seek the indulgence of the Chair to go back to something which actually falls under Education, information of which I was not aware until we took the break.

Some of us had an opportunity to visit the Light-house School. I encourage all Members of this Legislative Assembly to visit that school. I know that the Minister will probably deal with this, but I would like to say that while I am very pleased with the way the teachers are working so hard, I see a pressing need for us to take action to provide a larger facility where they could do an even better job than what they are doing.

I would like to say that Mrs. Marge Quinland, the lady in charge, is doing an outstanding job. I was pleased with what I saw as I went from classroom to classroom. I know that it takes a special person to carry out such a task. It was really touching when some of the little ones tried to greet us. I would say that it really touches one's heart to see the little ones like that. I urge Members to let us try and support whatever the Minister is going to put forward with regard to that school. At the same time, if at all possible pay the little ones a visit.

Going back to my Ministry and agriculture, I would like to say that I was most pleased with the result of another Agricultural Show. It is a proven fact that the people of this country wanted the annual Agricultural Show back on line. Ever since I took office and had the show started again, we have seen an increased interest each year by the public. They have offered the support we were hoping for. As long as I am in charge I am going to try my best for a bigger and better show each year.

I heard what the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman had to say with regard to a mini-show. I give that my full support. I think it is a very good idea and he is to be commended for making such a presentation on behalf of his island.

The only thing I would not encourage is for it to be held on the same date as the show here in Grand Cayman. In the same way our friends from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman visit with us for our show, I am certain that many of us would visit with them if they have that show. Should the Member want to organise something like that he can depend upon my support and that of the Agricultural Society and Department here in Grand Cayman.

I would also say that I was very pleased to see the nice letter which the Chamber of Commerce put forward in regard to the Agricultural Show on Wednesday, 6th March. It read as follows: "The 30th Annual Cayman Agricultural Society Show was held on Wednesday, 21st February. The show is one of the largest gatherings to take place in the islands with attendance of some 4,500 residents. In recent years the major improvement on the goods on display at the show has been in the area of quality. The variety of produce and livestock at the show has become extensive and the methods of farming have grown increasingly sophisticated. In addition, recent shows have been made increasingly entertaining, particularly for the young attendants, with games, parades, and this year, the first musical horseback demonstrations. In spite of continued success of the annual show, many people regard farming as unimportant to Cayman. It is regarded by some as a thing of the past. It is true that when we think of commerce in Cayman, we generally think of tourism, finance and related industries. This is unfortunate, as agriculture quietly plays a vital role in Cayman. Thirty years ago when the Agricultural Society was formed, Cayman had no self service supermarkets. Most of us went to a store and handed over a list to be filled by the clerk. All of our other needs were provided ourselves in small plots and, in some cases, orchards. Today, Cayman is thoroughly up to date with nearly any product for sale in the US being available on the shelves of our supermarkets. Indeed, we tend to think of food as something which is imported, however, a considerable amount of the food we eat is produced locally. In the last five years there has been an increase in both the quantity and quality of local production. The farmers of Cayman now supply 19% of all the beef which we see in our supermarkets, and 27% of the produce. Why is this important to us as consumers? Why does it matter where our food comes from? The Chamber of Commerce has long promoted the buy Caymanian concept. The more we spend at home, the stronger our economy becomes. Everyone benefits. However, with the consumption of locally produced foods there is an additional benefit. In times of need such as after a northwester, when a ship does not come in, the stock on the supermarket shelves disappears alarmingly quickly. Were we to experience a major national crisis such as a direct hit by a hurricane, it is entirely possible that within a week we would be fighting over the remaining food. There can be no question that the advent of regular shipments of imported food has changed Cayman for the better. However, our prosperity has enabled agriculture, like other local industries, to advance over the years. There is a farmer's cooperative, a Government Agriculture Department exists with agronomists and other advisors; a modern central abattoir is slated to be constructed by Government. Today's farmer plays a vital role in the infrastructure of Cayman and is deserving of the full and continued support of Government and the general public."

The way this letter closes is exactly the way it is. The National Team Government continues to support agriculture in the Cayman Islands. We will do whatever possible within our resources to make sure that the farming community is promoted and that they have their fair share of whatever is necessary to do the promotion.

In the Department of Agriculture we continue to offer technical advice, both in animal husbandry and plant life. We have started a quarterly newsletter which is full of technical advice in both areas. I have a copy that is entitled 'Agroscope'. It is not an up-to-date copy, but it is the one I had in my files. I would like to lay it on the Table so that Members will be fully aware that we are trying in every respect to reach out to the farming community and to promote agriculture in Cayman.

At the beginning of 1996 the Department of Agriculture convened an annual forum in the form of a retreat involving my Ministry, the Department of Agriculture, relevant Government departments and agencies and a delegation of active and well-informed representatives from the farming community, supermarkets and the Chamber of Commerce. These deliberations revealed that there is a growing interest and support for agriculture by those present who interact commercially with agriculture.

Tremendous progress has been made in agriculture since the launching of our Agricultural Development Plan. For example, it has been determined that the average annual volume of local agricultural production between 1992 and 1995 was CI$1.6 million. As reported, local production of fruits and vegetables represented 27% of all fruits and vegetables consumed in the Cayman Islands.

As I read from the letter awhile ago, 19% of all beef consumed in the Cayman Islands is produced by local farmers. All quality stuff. It was clear to see the quality produce and animals which the farming community displayed at the 30th Annual Agricultural Show, which was a great success.

I felt proud because I recall that when I first taking over Agriculture, farmers in this country concentrated on quantity rather than quality. Thank God today that has been changed and we have quality and, in some instances, we have both quantity and quality.

As I started to say this morning, despite the progress we have made, we still must be very careful in the Ministry, Department and other areas concerned. We have the threat of the introduction of diseases and of the mealy bug and we must always be aware that although the agricultural sector has grown tremendously over the years, it can be destroyed over a very short time. We are currently free of such a pest. As I said earlier, I cannot say too many times, especially to the importers in this country, that we must be on top of this and use our better judgment. We must make sure that we cooperate with the Department of Agriculture and let us make sure that we keep agriculture here on a clean footing.

At the Agricultural Show it was an historic occasion when I spoke about the Agricultural Hall of Fame. On the 3rd of July this year we will have our first induction into the Hall of Fame.

We have individuals, some who have passed on, others who are still with us, who have played a most important part in building what we have today in agriculture. The names put forward for the first inductees will be Mr. Will Wallace Bodden; Mr. William Nixon; Mr. Ulrich McNamee; Mr. Bertram Ebanks; Mr. Ashley Godfrey; Mr. Paul Smith; Mr. John Bothwell; Mrs. Myrtle McHayle. They are all deserving individuals who have played a very important part in making sure that agriculture continues.

We are hoping, as I touched on earlier, to move the Department of Agriculture Administration facility to the Lower Valley site. We believe that having a central point for Administration Building, demonstration farm, abattoir, and the Agricultural Pavilion will allow the farming community to have a central point on the island whereby we will be able to service them better.

We also will continue to upgrade the facility which is presently utilised for the show. Technical training and assistance, two training courses in livestock nutrition, post harvest handling and marketing to enhance the efficiency of local farmers are to be conducted by the University of the West Indies.

It is our belief that we must continue to encourage the younger individuals especially to become involved in this very important part of our economy.

Recently I visited the Red Bay Primary School. The Department will be working quite closely with that school in trying to put in a system where the children will be able to utilise grow-boxes and learn what it is all about to plant. I believe that this is exactly where we need to start. As children going to primary school we did so. For those of us who wanted to continue doing so, we did. But we had an early start, and it is true that what is imbedded in the mind of a child often remains.

We must remember from whence we came because in years gone by most homes had their own kitchen gardens. Most families raised a few pigs and chickens. For whatever reason, over the years we moved away from that situation. It is good to see that the interest is there again, especially among several young people throughout the island who are raising cattle, goats and, in some instances, crops.

I am pleased that the Department of Agriculture and my Ministry have worked in a direction to lead the farming community to where it is today. The lady Member for North Side had good things to say with regard to agriculture. I am grateful, and I accept that on behalf of my department. We have tried over the years to make it easier for farmers to access their properties. Again, this has opened up a whole new era within the farming community. Previously it operated under very, very tough circumstances. We spoke of horseback, mule-back, or human-back. Even the donkey! But today, many farms are driven to on a daily basis. Even if somebody is only farming part-time, he can put in a day's work then go home, jump in his vehicle and access his farm and do some work there too.

I turn to the Lands and Survey Department. The ongoing buoyancy of the Cayman Islands Real Estate continues to reveal itself in the revenues collected by this department. In the first two months alone, over $3 million in stamp duty was collected on the basis of some $33 million worth of land transferred.

In pursuit of further stamp duty the Lands Officers have been actively seeking out leases upon which stamp duty has not been paid. This is a very important department and we will be working steadfastly to ensure that whatever is owing to the Government will be collected. There is much to be done. The revenue is needed and we will do everything possible to make sure it is collected.

I will touch on Telecommunications. I would like to confine myself to the new system which we are presently putting in place, the 9-1-1 system. Currently there are three emergency telephone numbers in Grand Cayman - 500, 555 and 9-1-1. Basically, 9-1-1 is the emergency number. We are presently in the process of putting in place the enhanced 9-1-1 system to be completed by the Fall of 1996.

What will this do? This system will allow citizens of the Cayman Islands access to the emergency services of police, medical and fire. It is a system whereby if somebody becomes ill at home 9-1-1 can be dialed and at the same time it can be traced back to that residence. It all goes hand-in-hand with the street naming and numbering which is also in train. Both must come at the same time.

We are trying our best to give this as much publicity as possible. Again, in each of the schools we will be doing presentations. We have already started. We have come up with a little magazine which explains exactly what the 9-1-1 system is all about in a very simple way so that the children and adults alike will understand it more fully.

I have been questioned in this House on the 9-1-1 system, but let me say that I believe, from what I have seen thus far, once this is in place we will be able to better serve our people, especially in time of need in the areas mentioned.

It made my heart glad when we introduced the TDD part of the 9-1-1 system which is the Telephone for the deaf and dumb. A girl who was unable to communicate before by voice from the district of West Bay, was hooked up to the system and she sent me a message thanking me for opening up the world for her. She stated that she was now able to communicate with friends and family, something she had never been able to do by telephone in her lifetime. I was very touched.

If there is no other praise or recognition for this system, I am happy with that one because I know there are many others out there who will be afforded that system which will help them to communicate as all other persons in our community.

We have in place a consultant who is doing all of the necessary work. Prior to this consultant's coming I went to a small town in Boston with a population similar to ours. I saw firsthand exactly how this thing works. It is a system that we can continue to add on to. In fact, once we have the street naming and numbering in place, if a police car is sent out on patrol to check a certain area, the dispatcher will be able to trace that vehicle from point A to point B. As a matter of fact, I saw the system in operation and it was possible to key in and tell the speed at which the car was travelling. It is all necessary, especially in a territory like the Cayman Islands where we are catering to so many tourists on a yearly basis.

I can imagine that it must be somewhat confusing to the average American tourist in a time of need here in the Cayman Islands, not to have such a service. Thank God that it is on its way and I hope and trust that it will be the means of saving lives in the future.

I turn to the Post Office. In line with the Postal Development Plan in 1992, prepared by the British Postal Consultancy Service, the year 1995 saw continual improvement in the Postal Services; a year in which all traffic and revenue records were broken. Building on foundations laid down three years ago, when the implementation of the plan was initiated, a wide range of issues were addressed.

As part of a continuing programme of up-grading, the refurbishment of the Bodden Town, Savannah, West Bay and Hell Post Offices was carried out, including the installation of air-conditioning at these offices. Site acquisition for the establishment of new offices at Bodden Town and West End Cayman Brac was started. Detailed costing and plans for the new mail processing centre at the airport were finalised.

Mail collection services, already doubled in the previous year, were further enhanced by the installation of ten Mail Drop Boxes placed around Grand Cayman. Box delivery services were further improved by the installation of various boxes in the different parts of the island.

When I first took over the Ministry, my Permanent Secretary and I travelled to London and got hands-on knowledge of the British Postal Services. We were taken through the operations there. Until that time, although recommendations had been made by the British consultant, no steps had been taken, no policy was taken with regard to trying to implement the recommendations.

Immediately I took a paper to Executive Council and the consultant was brought on the scene. I am speaking of an individual with many, many years of experience. Today, I am pleased to say that, thus far, the many plans which he has actually drawn up, including the new building at the airport, have all paid off.

At this point I would like to pay special tribute to the lady who was actually in charge of the Post Office's day-to-day operation, Miss Corrine Glasgow. I was saddened to know that she decided to resign. But life must go on. During her tenure she did a good job in implementing certain things which were put forward by the consultant. She did an excellent job with public relations. It is unfortunate that she decided to resign.

As has been mentioned, we are hoping that as soon as the funds are available plans already in place for a Mail Processing Centre will be started. This, in itself, will assist us in offering to the general public a much better service. It will allow us to utilise the present Post Office in George Town for light mail only. Bulky mail will be disbursed from the new facility.

I am also hopeful that in the near future in my district we will be able to renovate the Post Office and improve on the services there and throughout the other districts. I would like to see the time come when we can go back to offering postal services as well as collection of other revenues as was done many years ago. I know that certain things can be done now, but not in every Post Office. The reason is that we need better facilities, which we are presently working on.

The Seven Mile Beach Post Office has grown from strength to strength. It is a Post Office that surpassed many of our expectations. It continues to grow. Also, the area known as Hell is another Post Office which continues to attract the tourists who come to our shores. It is these areas that we must continue to promote and ensure that the tourists and locals alike are satisfied with the services which they receive.

I turn to the Department of Environment. I would first of all like to publicly apologise to certain residents who live in the North Sound, close to the DOE building. For some time I have answered questions in this House with regard to what would be kept at that new facility. The assurance was given that no spray chemicals would be there. That is exactly what is intended. Unfortunately, a week ago certain containers were stored there which appeared from their labels to be chemicals used to spray mosquitoes. It was a very unfortunate situation and one which I was very upset about because the assurance had been given and if those containers were going to be placed there, it should have been a sure case that the labels were corrected to show the correct contents of the drums at that time. What happened was that the solution in the drums was one that is used to disburse oils which may wash up on the beach. The containers were emptied of the chemical used for spraying and these containers were used for this disbursing, but the labels were not removed.

I met with a small group of residents from that area. I gave my apologies. It is my intention to meet with the group again and speak with them and reassure them that their fears are no fears at all because the chemicals in question have been kept at the airport facility and right now we are making preparation to better house them at the airport.

The other concern was that the garbage trucks would be kept at that facility. That too has been corrected. The garbage trucks will be kept at the dump. Already we have constructed a place to keep them.

I am sorry to know that this took place. I know that certain MLAs were upset about it - and they rightfully should have been. Just a few days before that the assurance was given and that is the way it should have been.

Moving on to the MRCU. I would like to say that at present we have been able to secure a veteran of 30 years, Mr. Frank Wilson, Entomologist, to be in charge of this unit. He comes to us with many years of experience in controlling mosquitoes in Florida. Thus far it is my understanding that he is on the ball here in Cayman, doing his best to improve on what we have in place as far as the control of mosquitoes is concerned. This is very important for our island, especially since we cater to so many tourists. Of course, it is also important to our people. Many of us remember the unpleasant situation which existed years ago in certain areas with the mosquitoes. I believe that funds spent in this area are funds well spent. We must continue to do whatever research is necessary so that we can remain on top of the situation.

Since I have had the responsibility for this, we had an occasion a few months ago to become very worried about the buildup of resistance by the mosquitoes to the insecticide used. With the new insecticide we are using, it seems that this situation is under control. I believe that as we continue our programme which Mr. Frank Wilson is presently working on, that we will remain in control of the situation. We also continue to place larvicides in the ponds and along with that we also do areal spraying.

Speaking of the Environmental Health Section, I would like to say that this section is doing a very good job, especially in the area of recycling. We continue to collect and ship in bulk things like batteries and plastics, we also collect burned oil, and it seems as if we may have found a market for worn out cars and old equipment.

This is very important because we are fast running out of space to bury this sort of garbage. Some statistics are as follows: Aluminum cans - we shipped one 40 foot container in 1995 weighing about 12,000 pounds; we collected value per ton of $1,020 (US), or about 49 cents per pound. The total revenue generated after such a shipment was approximately $3,500. We have projected shipments for 1996 of about four container loads. We are hoping to show a profit.

With regard to lead batteries, we have been able to get a price of $110 per ton (US). The figures are: 1994 - three shipments; 1995 - five shipments; and already in 1996, one shipment. The total revenue generated (excluding 1996) is about $6,000.

One may look at this and say that we are not making very much money from it. But my view is that once we are covering the cost of shipping it, getting it out of our country and making a profit (however small that may be), it serves us well to get it out of our country and save on the land space.

With regard to cardboard, the price per ton is about $70 (US). In 1995 the number of shipments was 29; in 1996 we have had eight shipments thus far. It is projected that in 1996 we will make a small profit. At the same time, let us just think of the space that we would have used up at the dump if all of this had to be buried. It is believed that we are presently diverting some 570 tons of waste from our land fill. That is saying a lot.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Minister take a suspension at this time?

Hon. John B. McLean: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.39 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.04 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, continuing the debate.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

When we took the break I was going through some statistics on garbage collection and shipment of bulk items abroad. I would just like to share a little information with the House in regard to the amount of garbage generated here every year. It is my understanding that 27,260 tons of garbage is generated each year; 24 million aluminum cans are imported; the cans represent 1.7% of the waste at the landfill in Grand Cayman. Cardboard represents 12%; and we generate over 10,000 potentially hazardous lead batteries each year.

Shipping the amounts I mentioned earlier shows how important it is to this country to be able to get that amount away from this island back to the United States where they can better deal with it.

Currently, the department recycles aluminum cans, cardboard, Christmas trees, and batteries. The trees are turned into mulch and are given to locals. We have several areas for collection and once it is turned into mulch, the department makes announcements and allows people to collect it. It is hoped that in the near future the department will also implement a newspaper and office paper recycling programme. Office paper represents 2% of the landfill and newspapers 5%. It shows us that if this can be collected and recycled we will be doing our country good.

We have to realise that aluminum cans do not disappear once they are thrown away. It takes years and years for them to decompose, I guess it would be correct to say 500 years. It is the same thing with Styrofoam and plastics. It brings me back to what I mentioned earlier when I said that I had visited the Red Bay School. There were two projects started there; one was an agricultural project, and the other was a recycling programme. I was really impressed to see what the students had collected along the beach area of North Side, even in a small section of that beach. We saw aluminum cans, Styrofoam, needles, just about everything you could think about. Of course it was material that would have taken many, many years to decompose.

I was happy to immediately speak with the students encouraging them and their families to recycle. At the same time I had the Department of the Environment send somebody over from the Public Health area to make sure that they received a good lecture on it. We also sent over tracts with information and some collection containers for cans and other disposable items.

I believe that this is the place for us to start - the schools. It is a known fact that adults may often times see something, but because of the pressures at work tend to not concentrate on it the way they should and take the necessary action. With a child it is a completely different matter. That child will continue to nag mother and father and to remind them of something like this. I believe that if we can get a programme such as we did in the Red Bay School established throughout the schools, especially the Primary schools, it will undoubtedly help us a lot in the many efforts which the department is making.

We must also realise that lead batteries create a potential health risk. If we continue to bury them sooner or later this will be seeping into our ground water. Regardless of whether we like it or not, we have already damaged certain areas on this island with the burial of old cars and batteries and the likes. I think the time is right for us to press forward like the department is doing and to do our utmost to make sure that this sort of thing is stopped.

I also mentioned old vehicles. It is amazing to see the space taken up at the dump with each old car that we have to cover up. It is even worse when you think of a dump truck, or bulldozer, or crane. We are trying to make proper arrangements abroad. All of this can be shipped back to the United States.

I have heard suggestions made that perhaps we should look at the possibility of utilising some of this to create reefs around the islands. Of course, without saying much to that, a lot of people will tend to disagree. It could work, because I recall several months ago (probably a little more than that, probably a couple of years ago) when I travelled to Cuba and was taken to an artificial reef that was made from things like old tractors, old cars and old sunken ships. I do not recall right now the take of lobster per day from that area, but it was tons. It is my understanding that this is an ongoing process. These reefs were created right around. I say that to mention one of the proposals put forward. As I mentioned we are trying our best to get it out and take it back to where it can be disposed of properly.

The other area I would like to briefly touch on also falls under the Public Health Department: the problem we are faced with today is cemetery space. We have established a cemetery committee and we have put terms of reference together for them. We have to look into the future to try to come up with a solution. The fact remains that as we travel throughout the island we will find that the quality of land utilised years ago for cemeteries does not exist anymore. It has been taken up by construction of condominiums, etcetera. Furthermore, we have to be realistic about the fact that that type of land is very, very expensive. It is my belief that one of the reasons that type of land was used in the first place was simply because there was no other use for it and, along with that, in those days graves were dug by hand.

Today, we are blessed in the Cayman Islands (as I have said many times today) because we have equipment with which we can do just about anything here on the island. I believe that the time has come when we have to look at other types of property where we can create cemetery space.

I believe that it is now extremely necessary to start, and we have made a start. In some districts it is almost a crises situation. I know that some years ago I was able to secure some property in my district. A few days ago I walked by that plot and in just those few years I can see how it has filled up. The adjoining lands are already taken.

This is something to which I have asked that priority be given, Of course, in whatever we do I will keep the House informed and whatever we come up with I will seek the input of the MLAs in the various areas.

I would now like to touch on the Cayman Islands Turtle Farm. I was given responsibility for this about a year ago. I would like to report that it continues to do well. I have recently taken on another Caymanian, Mr. Joe Parsons, a person who worked well under the Manager before Dr. Wood. In the words of Dr. Wood, Joe Parsons happened to be second to him in the world when it came to dealing with green sea turtles. I am really pleased to see that the young man thought so much of his country and the farm that he was ready to leave a family job and return to work with us.

Recently the Managing Director, Mr. Atlee Ebanks, resigned. I would like to pay tribute to him for the work he carried out during his time. I enjoyed working along with him. Again, contrary to what was on the road (that I was going to replace him with a foreigner), I am pleased to stand here this evening to say that the gentleman who has taken over for him is none other than Mr. Ken Hydes, a son of the soil from the West Bay district. He is a very knowledgeable young man who came up under the umbrella of Dr. Wood, and somebody who is well respected by his staff.

When we did the change over about three weeks ago, I was very pleased to be told by literally every staff member there that they were so pleased with the announcement that he would be the manager and that they were committing their full support to him. This means a lot because when we are dealing with something like the Turtle Farm, there is no space for pulling or pushing one another. It is something that calls for team work.

We have certain plans for the future of the Farm, some have been before the Board of Directors, others will be going before them. We believe that there is still much that can be done on that property to add to the attraction which is presently there. We now have a very fine restaurant there. The tourists are supporting it well. It is these areas that we are going to brush up and improve upon, also the gift shop.

There is never a problem in selling the meat. All locals in the Cayman Islands have a special taste for turtle meat. Nowadays, those who actually get meat from the Turtle Farm appreciate that it has come a long way. The quality is as good as the turtle from the wild. We are going to work hard to try to keep the animals healthy. Mr. Parsons has a very watchful eye on the herd. We had a good laying season this year, so I think that with care and protection of what we have there, that will continue to be a number one showpiece for the tourists who visit our shores.

The gift shop is almost impossible to penetrate on certain days of the week when we have many tourist ships in. This is an area which the Board of Directors and I will be looking at and trying to expand upon. I would like to pay a tribute to a very good Board of Directors because we have all business-minded people who are quite knowledgeable, like the Second and Third Official Members; I have the Minister for Education; Mr. Ken Hydes; a lawyer, Mr. Parsons - all good, qualified people; Capt. Charles Kirkconnell, one of the best businessmen in town; my Permanent Secretary and myself. We have a good team and we find ourselves working well together.

I hope that the day will come when we will be able to expand the herd to where we will have no problem meeting the local demand for meat. As it is now, I liken it to gold dust; the stew meat is something that sells as soon as it comes on the market.

Someone is telling me to put the price down. Where there is a demand we can keep the price up! We are hoping that once production gets to where we have sufficient meat to deal with the market properly; things can then be looked at. I would not want to see the price continue to climb the ladder, I would like to see it stabilise and, if possible, be reduced. But at this point in time we have to keep it where we can continue to support the Farm.

With regard to the steaks, this is something being taken on by the locals because for a long time Caymanians looked at turtle as stew. The restaurants and others are assisting us greatly there. Recently I established an outlet with the Farmer's Market and other companies have been patronising the Farm very well. We are well on our way, and I will continue to keep a watchful eye and do whatever is humanly possible to continue to improve it.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, it is now 4.30. Do you expect to be finished shortly?

Hon. John B. McLean: No, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: In that case I will ask for a mot adjournment. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Madam Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock Monday morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Monday morning. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM, MONDAY 18TH MARCH, 1996.

MONDAY
18TH MARCH, 1996
10.17 A.M.

The Speaker: I will ask the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Administration of Oath of Affirmation. Mr. Joel Walton will you please come forward?

Hon. A. Joel Walton: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

In accordance with the requirement of section 74(7) of The Legislative Assembly Standing Orders (Revised), I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Government Minute in response to the Report by the Public Accounts Committee on the Report of the Auditor General on the Audited Accounts of the Government of the Cayman Islands for the period ended 31st December, 1994.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Government Business. The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, continuing the debate on the Throne Speech.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY MR. JOHN W. OWEN, MBE, GOV-ERNOR OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS, ON FRIDAY,
16TH FEBRUARY, 1996

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

On Friday when the House was suspended, I was about to deal with the Public Works Department, another department which falls under my Ministry.

The Public Works Department continues to be criticised by just about everybody. It is unfair because the Public Works Department happens to be the department that looks after works for literally every other department within the Government. It is for this reason that they come under more criticism than any other department.

If we think of road works and clearing of the sides of the roads, it is all work that is exposed to the general public at any time. It seems as if the public (and, indeed, some of us within this House) believes that we have a calibre of individuals working at Public Works who have no feelings. That is not correct. These are members of the Civil Service who are most exposed to the heat. They are out there working on roads, or trimming the sides of the roads - yet, should mid-day come and the men take a break, or they are seen sitting under a tree 'catching five', I have to accept calls the rest of the evening from people saying 'your men are wasting time.' It is so unfair. Nobody stops to realise that when somebody is exposed to the type of heat we have in the Cayman Islands that it is only human that at some point they must seek a little shelter.

I would like to say that I am pleased with the production of the Public Works Department over the last three years, contrary to what critics may want to say. At times I have had to say to myself during the last three years, 'My God, it is almost inhumane the way those men are working.' I can think of instances during the Cuban crises. If it had not been for the dedication of the men working in that department we could have never, ever kept up with what we had to do, such as providing accommodation for the Cubans. At the same time, they had to continue their other jobs. But with all of that I can think of no one time that I called upon that department when the response was not there. It was weekends, nights, right around the clock. I believe that it is due to the fact that they are committed to their jobs and to their country that they continue with all the criticism to do the good job they are doing.

We have Caymanians in that department whose work spans back to 1967. I think in one case it goes as far back as 1959. If that is not dedication to what I consider a hard job, then I would like to know what is.

For the past three years, much road work was carried out. Not just in one district, but throughout the island. Every district can boast today that they have been receiving for the last three years as much as was financially possible in their district through the efforts and hard work of the Public Works Department.

It is my hope that for these long-serving individuals we will be able to have a little function and offer them some sort of award later on this year. I think it well deserved and it will be money well spent. It is due to them, they are our people; and, as far as I am concerned, with those years of dedication, there is no reason why it should not be done. As a matter of fact, I think it should have been done a long time ago.

Road Works: One Member spoke a few days ago about the number of pot holes here in George Town, and was concerned that only $238,000 was allocated for a big district like George Town. Let me say that I wish I had the funds available to me to put in $2 million per district. Each Member in this Honourable House is aware that the reason for the $238,000 is simply that the amount allocated for road works was shared among the various districts.

The matter was brought to Finance Committee where each one of us happens to be a Member. The most I can say to anybody is that if there is a sum in the Budget which you are not satisfied with, then the opportune time is at Budget time and Finance Committee. Air your views there, not in the debate on the Throne Speech, because it was already taken care of at Budget time.

I also was not satisfied with the figure allocated for my district. But I knew what was in the Budget. I knew what the share for the district of East End was. What I have had to do is share it and put it on the roads of priority in my district.

As I normally do the first of the year I visited with MLAs from various districts and I asked them to identify the jobs which they think are most necessary. Once that is done I then give the Public Works Department the task of costing the roads. That is circulated and then we ask the MLAs to tell us exactly what their priority is.

I do not know what more the Minister can do. What I told the Minister and the Government is that if we need a loan, let us get it. I had Public Works Department do a costing. I know more or less what is needed in this district or any other district on the island. The figure costed in this particular district is $5 million. I cannot do the work if I do not have the money.

The Public Works Department has made certain suggestions as to how we could spend the $230,000. It is not carved into stone because it is entirely up to the Members from that district to tell us. It is just a matter for us to make suggestions based on the road work left from last year.

When the list is available to us and the funds are released to us, Public Works Department is ready to start. The most I can say is that we must realise that this year is a short year. There is no use in our waiting until the last minute expecting miracles. We need to get started as soon as possible.

Just to point out certain things that were carried out in George Town, for the fiscal year 1993 there were about $250,000 spent. These were funds spent on raising the Thomas Russell Way. We did a section going west by the Sleep Inn. We did some work to the Taxi carpark; we did work on Seymour Drive and rebuilt a portion of the North Sound. We did shoulder work in South Sound; North Church Street; around the English shop. We re-sealed the Watler's Road. We did work by Dorcy Drive and the port facility at the airport.

In 1994 we did the Crewe Road realignment; we did the overlay to Crewe Road to the Lion's Centre; we did sidewalks by the Middle School and Catholic School. We re-sealed a portion of the South Sound Smith Cove Road. We did shoulders around North Church Street; marl work on the Middle School Dyke Road. We did West Bay Road and Palm Heights corner; we re-sealed a portion of Eastern Avenue.

In 1995 we did some work on the Crewe Road realignment, the same piece at the airport which was finishing work; we sealed a portion of road by the middle school and we finished a piece of sidewalk. We did some work by Dorcy Drive and the Port; some more shoulder work on the junction of Eastern Avenue and Nixon. We did the road construction in Templeton Pine Lakes. This is one of the roads I mentioned earlier that came on us out of the blue after that terrible rain storm we had. The Public Works Department was ready and prepared, and as soon as the funds were made available we were in there. From all reports that I have received the residents in that area are more than thankful and happy about the work.

Areas of road at Washington Avenue were constructed; we did Truman Myles Road; we put in a third lane by Sleep Inn; and we did a second phase of Eastern Avenue and finally, the fence and sidewalk were completed by the Middle School. We are looking at a total of $2.394 million over the past three years.

Work has been carried out down here and, like anywhere else, my district is no different. I know that we had a number of pot holes come out over-night with the last rains. This will continue to happen because once the earth becomes saturated we will have this sort of thing unless we are prepared to go all the way with hot mix. As it is right now, we have to use the seal and chip; it is much cheaper and we can get a lot more work done as far as miles are concerned. I would like to see it all done in hot mix, but it is an added cost.

As I mentioned, it is my understanding from the Financial Secretary that we are well on our way with what was provided in the budget as far as securing some financing. I believe that is the way we will have to go. We will have to spend funds as they become available. There is no good in the public thinking that we can just go and get huge loans. It was mentioned in here that we should get the loans even if our children have to help pay.

One of the things that this Government campaigned on was that the other Government had created huge debts. Whatever this Government does we must be mindful of what our campaign consisted of. That was one of the things we said. As far as the finances of this country are concerned, I will have to be guided by the Member who holds responsibility for finances. If he should say to me that funds are available, he happens to be the responsible Member and I would have to work in accordance with his better judgment. I cannot go ahead and permit road work for which I have no way of paying.

I think the Fourth Elected Member for George Town spoke about the national road plan. He remarked that the cost is not as important as it is to have a plan. That is quite true, but we have to look at it from the point of view of once having secured corridors then, if we are saying within that corridor we will construct a road in the future, that means that the property over which that corridor runs would not be able to be utilised by the owner. The next step would be for that individual to seek compensation. So we have to take the cost into consideration. It we are going to tell somebody that they cannot use their property, I think it is only fair for us to compensate them for any hardship.

He also mentioned his concern over the large subdivisions and the need for road work to be done. He said it seemed as if sufficient money was not available at this time. I would just like to say that I share his concern. If it were my constituents who were calling on me on a daily basis, then I would have to be concerned.

He went on to ask: If all the bad Governments of the past did nothing about it and four years have passed and this good Government has done nothing about it, where will we end up? I just pointed out that over the three years we have done something. It was not to do all of the roads, but we have done what we could within our financial means. I believe with the way the economy seems to be going that we should be able to continue to work towards correcting these problems. The most that I can say is that if there are urgent needs, we will have to look at them on the basis of that and try to address them as best we can. If there is a case that deserves urgent attention and we need to find funds, even if it has to be diverted from somewhere else, we may have to look at it from that point of view.

With regard to the Harquail bypass, I know that everyone is anxious. I answered a question here not too long ago laying out the time frame on it. The most I will say on it at this time is that we are progressing according to the time schedule that I gave here. Hopefully in a short time we should be on our way.

I would now like to turn to another department within my Ministry, the Department of Vehicle and Equipment Services. I would like to say that they continue to carry out work for which the department was put together - of course, at a very high standard. The vehicles are maintained there, and all other vehicles for Government are purchased through the same department.

Also, that department continues to be responsible for the fuel and lubricants for all of Government's vehicles. It is a known fact that for many years there was an old service station on the Public Works Department compound. In recent times we have been able to negotiate with the two fuel companies on the island, Esso and Texaco, and I am pleased to report that this morning the contract was signed between Esso and DEV to provide a very sophisticated system to be housed on the property in front of where DEV operates. It will be a service station and it will also carry the other lubricants and oils that go with the gas station. It will be through normal working hours with two staff members. It will also be a 24-hour station. During off hours each driver of the vehicle will be provided with a card system which will identify the vehicle, the person, and keep records of the fuel used and in what vehicle it will be used.

We believe that it is a good system and it is hoped that the contract for construction will be awarded in a few days. The completion date is for around the end of July. It will be a facility with three 6,000 US gallon double-walled fiber glass storage tanks; two red-jacket submersible pumps; two Wain-Dresser Quadro Electronic card control dispensers with four hose outlets capable of serving two vehicles with either of two products at the same time. Each dispenser will be fitted with in-line fuel filters. It will have one reinforced concrete cover over the tanks. It will have electronic pumps and controls and it will be what I consider a top class facility that will allow the necessary control on the products used by Government equipment and the necessary control on those who will be utilising the equipment and receiving the fuel.

As I mentioned, this facility will be immediately in front of DEV on the property where the garbage trucks were housed for some time. It should enhance the area and we are certainly looking forward to having the facility in place by the end of July.

I will move on from my departments to touch briefly on Sports. I would like to go back to our Manifesto of 1992 to clearly state our policy: "We will emphasise the significance of Sports to all, encourage participation, and develop proper facilities throughout the Cayman Islands."

It is so disturbing to hear certain individuals crying down the actions which have been taken in regard to Sports in these islands - something which should have been done many, many years ago. This Government (with the assistance of the Minister responsible) has seen fit to try and do as much as it can to promote sports, and all at once it seems as if certain people are saying it is a bad thing.

I believe that money spent on sporting facilities, as this Government has spent in these islands, is money well spent. We continue to cry down the young people of this country for getting themselves into drugs and other things that are not legal.

What better can we do than to provide them with something that they can do to vent their frustrations?

I would like to say that I am a proud representative of my district to have been able to achieve a sporting facility such as the full size field that is in my district and to also continue to be able to upgrade it. Not only that field, but the facilities at the Primary School in my district. Also the other field which is more or less used as a practice field. We have a couple of hard courts and, thank God, almost on a nightly basis these fields are being utilised. I am not here to judge, but where would some of these young people be if these facilities were not there for them to use? We must ask ourselves.

I was pleased to know that the world renowned Mr. Peli was able to open the field in my district. This is history as far as Sports is concerned in the Cayman Islands. As we move around we will see that sporting facilities are not confined to any one district. We have the Ed Bush field in West Bay; we have the Truman Bodden Field in George Town; facilities which are heavily used by the young people, and the old in some instances.

We should be thanking Almighty God for the progress we have made in this area rather than throwing it down because one does not agree with this Government, or they do not like the Minister responsible for Sports. I think that is very ridiculous. The fact remains that each one of us achieves something during our time in office. If it fell his fate to achieve so much in sports, thank God, because the country needed it.

There are certain games today where we can have world competition here in Grand Cayman. We could not do that before. We must look at that from another point of view. Each time such competition is held in Grand Cayman, it is not just a matter of going and kicking a ball, what about the hotel rooms that will be rented? What about the added groceries that will be sold? What about cars that will be rented? What about the airline tickets sold? There are many, many spin-offs.

Most importantly, we are doing something good for the youth of this country.

I was pleased to know that the football group in my district felt so strongly about one of their past players, Mr. Donovan Rankine, that they had the field named in his honour. Again, it says something for what Sports is doing here in these islands.

At present I am also working on a hard court facility in the Gun Bay area and, with God's help, and as funds become available, I will be approaching the Minister for a small field in that area too.

It is my understanding that since Government has taken the action it has with regard to sports, that already we are seeing a difference with the court records as far as crime in that area. This is a great achievement. This is what we were hoping would become of this. It is working, and we pray to God that it will continue to show a change in that direction.

When I visited the Lighthouse School a teacher pointed out a young man to me who had been in problems many times. Out of the blue he had approached her and asked if he could come by and assist at the school. This young man was well dressed, white shirt and necktie. He came and volunteered his services. All of us MLAs who were visiting there congratulated him and encouraged him to continue. This is the sort of thing we need, rather than having these individuals transported from a court house to Northward. If we can have them in society where they rightfully belong, then we are talking of building a good community. Failing that, it is going to be the reverse - we are going to be building more criminals.

With our history here in the Cayman Islands, we have lived too good for too long to allow this to happen. We constantly talk of building on foundations laid down by our forefathers. While if we check those records we will find that they were good records, we never heard of drug trade, drug trafficking and all of the ills that go with it.

What has brought it on? My firm belief is that we have a generation in this country today who, because of not having sufficient things to do such as I have mentioned, and, of course, lacking in proper guidance, they got off on the wrong track and ended up in some cases very, very bad off. It hurts my heart. Even in my age group, persons who grew up with me who were brighter than myself and others... today when I look at them it really makes me wonder. I thank God that I, a one-parent child, had the strong guidance of a good mother. In some cases it goes further than that, because I have seen children with both parents who still fall along the way.

As far as I am concerned, whatever we do, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, West Bay, North Side, East End and George Town, Savannah, Bodden Town, whatever part of this island where we spend money to develop proper sporting facilities, I say it is money well spent. We only need to continue to try to keep it instilled in the minds of our young people that the facilities are there and we must continue to use them. The facilities, without proper guidance still would not work. Thank God, it seems as if in every case that I have heard about, the guidance is there and the young people are doing well.

I would like to encourage the Minister, who has been ridiculed so many times because of sports in the Cayman Islands, to continue what he is doing. Let us continue to look after the needs of the young people in this country and try whenever possible to encourage them to be good citizens. Let us try to make sure that it is nipped in the bud before it goes too far.

In many districts there is a move to renovate Town Halls and to develop proper libraries. Let me say that this is most important. One only needs to speak to a child who does a lot of reading versus one who does very little, and you will immediately be able to tell the difference in intelligence. Encouraging our children to read more and promoting it through constructing proper facilities in the districts is most important.

A long time ago we heard about the public library here in George Town. I knew that when I wanted a book to read as a child in school, that I had to get off the bus and go to the library here and rent a book. I did so. But there were many who did not think about spending the time to do that. If we are reaching out to them in the respective districts, I believe that this will be money well spent. We will be assisting the children to assist themselves. I commend this move and, as I have given the Minister the assurance, in my district I will do whatever possible to make it become a reality.

I also have to touch on the Old People's Home in my district. Again, responsibility for this is under the same Ministry. Just to give a little history on that home, the old building in which it is now housed was an old abandoned teacher's cottage. A lot of people thought I was just having a brain storm and that it would be money wasted. Let me say that that little facility has housed many, and is still housing them, in their later years. It is an example to any other district as to what should be done to take care of this calibre of person in their last years. We have had persons in there from all over, and the district continues (whenever it is possible) to open its arms to its neighbours and friends who need the use of that facility.

I try to go there as much as possible, especially on weekends to see exactly how it is going. But I am now to the point where I am concerned about the size of it, and I am going to try to extend it because I think it has proven to us that it is necessary and needed. My district continues to grow and all of us become a day older each day. One of these days some of us may be sitting on the porch sharing stories. I believe in preparing for the future and I know I have the support of the Minister responsible. He is a person like myself, especially concerned for the less fortunate.

I would like to touch on the Water Authority. For many years now my district has generously supplied other parts of the island with water from the main reservoir on the island. The Minister has given me the assurance that he will work along with me to get piped water to my district.

It is very encouraging to see from the Governor's Throne Speech that 1996 is the year. We have the supply here and I know that we have been able to have the water trucked from the reservoir to the district, but I think the time has come that it should be piped in and instead of someone having to pump water into cisterns, we should be able to operate like other places and just turn the tap on in our houses. The people of my district will greatly appreciate this. I urge the Minister responsible to try his endeavours to push it as fast as is humanly possible.

This brings me to the end of my debate on the Governor's Throne Speech. I would again like to state that we are in this Honourable House for the same reason, to represent our country and our people. I would like to encourage all of us, especially in the upcoming general election, regardless of what side we may be on, to remember that it is the same country we are trying to represent and let us try to do our campaigning in an orderly fashion. I think we are all grown men and women and we should be able to conduct ourselves accordingly.

I would like to pay a special tribute to you, Madam Speaker. You have been so patient in that Chair with all of us at times. As a lady you have been doing a fantastic job keeping order among us men. Thus far, the three ladies have been behaving themselves well.

I would also like to say to the Clerk and her staff that they continue to do a good job. As I have said more than once, in any way that I can offer my support to them I will continue to do so.

With those words, I would once again like to thank the Members of the House for listening and to you, Madam Speaker, for keeping law and order as we go along.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It is not usual for Official Members, perhaps recently, to make a contribution to the Throne Speech, although I gather that in the past the Chief Secretary has done so where appropriate. Certain disparaging remarks have been made about department that fall under my responsibility, and I feel it would be remiss if I did not take this opportunity to address and answer them.

The Legal Department is staffed by qualified attorneys in whom I have the highest admiration. They work under enormous pressure, there is always more work than it is easy for them to deal with, and they carry out their duties admirably.

There has been a suggestion that the department has not succeeded in certain cases in the recent past. I conclude that those references are to civil cases (I am certainly not dealing with criminal cases), yet at the same time as that remark was made it was stated that these cases are under appeal. That really makes a nonsense of the remark because the whole point of an appeal procedure is to enable an unsuccessful litigant to take his case to a higher court in order (he hopes) to have the decision overturned, or reversed. So, no party to litigation has won or lost until that appeal procedure is finished with, or the person entitled to an appeal has decided not to do so. In the instances in question, that appeal procedure is far from finished; it is very premature to make any statement as to who has won and lost.

The other point I would like to make is that the Legal Department is the department of attorneys that deals with all cases on behalf of the Cayman Islands Government. The cases which we referred to were commenced by others against the Government, and the Government is therefore obliged to react to them. They were not initiated by Government. The Legal Department is in the position of being obligated to then represent the Government in those proceedings.

If I may say so, Madam Speaker, it is no more appropriate for the Legal Department to pick and choose which cases it chooses to deal with on behalf of Government than it is for a medical practitioner to pick and choose what treatment or what patients he treats on the basis that some may be more difficult to treat than others, and may, in fact, turn out to be incurable. Nobody would seek to put any blame on a person who carried out that obligation properly. The Legal Department is under an obligation to deal with whatever cases are brought against Government, and it does so quite properly and quite professionally.

I wish to place on record my full support for the attorneys and Crown Counsel in the Legal Department and I welcome this opportunity to publicly endorse their work.

The Cayman Islands Law School was also mentioned in what I considered a very strange remark, that in some way the people regard the qualifications given by the Cayman Islands Law School as being inferior. I cannot believe that that is really true, and I am truly horrified if people do feel that.

The Cayman Islands Law School awards its degrees (which are now honours degrees) in affiliation with the University of Liverpool in England. Those degrees are every bit as hard, and carry exactly the same weight, as degrees awarded by that University itself in England. This is no second class degree awarded by the Cayman Islands Law School. It is an honours degree and it has to be truly earned - and it is.

It is a respected qualification, not just in the Cayman Islands, but overseas. In fact, students who pass the exams here in Cayman and who are awarded an honours degree can use that, and are entitled to go to England to take the Professional Practise Course there which then entitles them to be called to the Bar of England and Wales or, after a period of articles, to be admitted as solicitors.

There is no requirement to take any further qualification. The degree that they obtain here is all that is required to gain entry into the Professional Practise Course; as it does here in Cayman, where those who attain the degree can, if they wish, go on to take the Professional Practise Course, serve a period of articles and then be admitted as attorneys, provided, of course, that they are Caymanians.

The Cayman Islands Law School has been particularly successful in recent years and, although I have given these statistics to questions in the past, it does not hurt to say them again. In 1995, there were 10 successful candidates who passed the honours degree examination, and one who passed the ordinary degree which has, in fact, been phased out. Of those, three passed with a 2-1 degree, that is a second class honours degree and those degrees are not easy to achieve. For three of our students to get a 2-1, I think is a tremendous compliment to their hard work and to the quality of the Cayman Islands Law School.

That is borne out by the number of enrollments that we now have for the Law School. Nothing succeeds like success. If you are being successful and if the students of your academic institute are successful then, of course, other people want to join. That is exactly the case now. We had a record enrollment in the Cayman Islands Law School for the academic year 1995/1996 of 56 students which is not far off the capacity of the Law School at the present time.

So, I would submit that that goes to show very clearly that people regard the qualification that is obtained at the Cayman Islands Law School as a very important qualification; and that the students who attain it show their academic worth.

I may say that it is also borne out by the fact that the attorneys who qualify at the Cayman Islands Law School are able to find employment here in the Cayman Islands either with the Cayman Islands Government or in the private sector. Indeed, attorneys who have started their professional employment in the Cayman Islands Government have on occasion moved over to the private sector. I think that shows that the private sector is just as impressed with the students and the attorneys who come through this programme as the Government is.

I would like to give my appreciation to the lecturers and staff at the Cayman Islands Law School and to repeat my congratulations to those students who get through these very arduous exams and go on to start their professional career.

That is all I really have to contribute to the debate on the Throne Speech. I just wanted to deal with two of the departments under my Portfolio that had suffered some criticism. I hope that I have been able to do so.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Before I ask the Mover to wind up the debate, proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.27 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT NOON

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning winding up the debate.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: I would like to begin by thanking His Excellency the Governor for his very clear and unequivocal Throne Speech. We have a very able Governor with extensive experience in business to guide the Cayman Islands. He has my full support, and I believe the full support of this House, and the support of his Government.

I believe that the introduction made by the Governor has brought out clearly that for these islands to continue to develop there has to be a partnership between the private sector and Government. As he has quite rightly stated, it is the duty of Government to "...maintain law and order to ensure care for all and offer education and training for the people." He went on to say, however, that the public has to take responsibility for their share as our forefathers did in the past, assisting Government and the islands to progress.

I intend to go reasonably quickly because I believe the public has spent a long period attempting to listen to this. I would like to begin with the Judiciary and to state that we have a very good Judiciary which is very ably staffed. We have good Judges, Magistrates and a good staff. But it is now critical that we get a new extension to the Courts building. At times we have six courts operating in a building that was built to house only two. The bringing in of the new Grand Court Rules has helped the Courts considerably and also the legal practitioners.

On Internal and External Affairs: The Police, especially with our new Police Commissioner, are doing a very good job. They are subject to criticism at times, but that is the nature of police work. They have a very difficult task. At times the police make decisions in split seconds. It is easy in court to take days analysing and pointing fingers saying that they were wrong, but I think that all-in-all we have to appreciate the difficulty and also the risk that the police take in their position of dealing with law and order.

I am happy to see they have issued a letter in relation to public order at public meetings, and I will be dealing with that in some depth at a later stage.

The Prison Department: Compulsory drug counselling and education is something that I think will assist inmates considerably.

On Immigration: We have a very good Immigration Board. It continues to function well and the areas in which I think we have problems deal with the administration side, not the Immigration Board. I, too, join Members in saying that I would like to see better enforcement. I would like to know more clearly who is here and who is overstaying. This cannot come about unless the proper computer systems are in place and what I call the aging reports (what I will deal with in depth under Planning), where applications can be traced to see where the hold up is from the time the letter comes in to the time a decision is made by the Board, or the Immigration Office. I would like to see that in several departments where I think it would assist. I know, however, that the First Official Member is working very hard towards this, and I merely say it as part of what he is now doing that I think is along the right line. But Immigration is controversial and it always will be. Its enforcement is critical to the future of these islands.

Broadcasting and Information: I know that Radio Cayman has had its problems in recent years in getting its share of advertising. I worked with the Director for the short period it was in my Ministry, and I attempted to assist as much as I could there. It is a difficult task with some 30-odd people after the same advertising dollar.

District Administration: At the meeting we had in Cayman Brac, the clear message His Excellency and other Members got is that it must be a matter for the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to decide what they want. Once they decide exactly what they want and where they wish to go in the future, it is the duty of Government to assist them. I know that the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman has steered those islands in the right direction (in his good captain's way). He has been able to stay calm and guide Cayman Brac and Little Cayman in the right direction in the middle of a lot of controversy stirred up by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. If a future Member for those two islands would like to see how they can get the best for the country, just watch him. He is the best example (of anyone I have ever seen) of someone able, regardless of whether he is regarded as independent or favouring one side or the other, to get things done in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Miss Juliana O'Connor has worked very hard. She is very compatible with the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and I merely express a hope that in the next House we will see these two Members filling those chairs: one with the return of the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman (who is over-capable) and, secondly, at the abandoned chair left by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. He abandoned those islands long ago anyhow, so I think it is time for the chair to be filled by someone who can assist the First Elected Member. I am sure that it will be Miss Juliana O'Connor.

Cayman Airways gets blamed for never doing enough. I know that we have to strive to do more and more. We will continue to do that on the airline services, but it is difficult. We have two jets and more flights in there now than when Cayman Airways had five jets.

I really believe that there is much more than just airline flights behind Little Cayman's progress because Cayman Airways does not fly in there. I really believe there has to be some other ingredient. I stress that there has to be some ingredient other than Cayman Airways flying in there at whatever times would be better, because Little Cayman has progressed and Cayman Airways does not fly there. In fact, the passengers coming in on Cayman Airways at night have to take a further flight to get to Little Cayman.

My duty, and the duty of Government (especially as stated by the Governor recently), is to assist Cayman Brac and the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman in getting what he has struggled for over many years to get for his islands.

To just deal with one statement that was made by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, that Cayman Brac was being treated as an outsider.... That was not by Government. All I can say is that that Honourable Member is the outsider to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. If anyone is treating them like an outsider, then it is that Member who is doing so. I pledge to work as hard as I can to assist with the building of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

I would like to go on to deal with my own district before going on to deal with other areas.

There comes the usual question that was so prominent in every other election, and that is where you had people in this Honourable House who did nothing; who forgot about the little man, who (now that election time is near) are out talking about the little man and what they are going to do for the little man. Well, I can assure you that George Town has got a lot done in the past few years.

I would like to deal with two specific areas which have been raised (and under Education I will deal with the George Town Primary School). In the area of roads we have seen (and I will only deal with one year because there has been a considerable amount each year) the following roads done. I would like to only deal with the detail of 1995, because I do not want to be in here all day. I would like to touch on some of the major areas of 1993 and 1994.

In 1993 Thomas Russell Way was raised and rebuilt; the third lane of the West Bay Road was hot mixed from Sleep Inn down to the Treasure Island Resort; the Thomas Russell Way Taxi carpark and road to it was completed; Seymour Drive and parts of North Sound Road were rebuilt; shoulders in South Sound; the North Church Street shoulders at English Shop were rebuilt; Walkers Road had Phase I re-sealing, with shoulders on North Church Street upgraded. Dorcy Drive and the Port Authority were repaired.

In 1994 there was the Crewe Road re-alignment at the Airport - an extremely good road which cost a lot more than was estimated, unfortunately, but that is now a bit of history; Crewe Road from the Lion's Centre there was a hot-mix overlay which is very good; there were sidewalks built and the repair of the Middle School Road at the Catholic School area going into the Middle School. South Sound Road had re-sealing in the Smith Cove area; North Church Street shoulders from Mary to Bodden Streets were completed. The Middle School Dyke Road was marl based; the West Bay Road and the Palm Heights corner; Eastern Avenue was re-sealed in Phase I.

In 1995 the major job areas dealt with were as follows: Dorcy Drive and the Port container junction was started 27th June, finished 27th August. I would like Honourable Members to know that I have a lot of detail here, but I do not propose to give that detail, just to show what has been done.

The Primary School west car-park modification; Middle School Road, parts of the sidewalk and shoulders were completed. There was soil testing and a study done in relation to the Harquail Bypass; Eastern Avenue and South Church Street had a second applications. Eastern Avenue/Nixon Road signal lights have been ordered and a parcel purchased to deal with that corner. That is slated to be dealt with this year. Washington Avenue area, re-sealing; in another area the road was raised and rain wells were installed. I have the parcel numbers of these areas, for example: drain and shoulder areas were repaired in 13D 106 and 169, opposite Batabano Road. We extended a 30 foot road in the Washington Road area. There needs to be further work in some of these areas, but I am pointing out how much has been done because Mr. Linford Pierson and his... I do not know what to call them, the Wight brothers... have been going along with some of the people who are trying to tear down George Town and, obviously, to get back they are using this for political purposes.

Vernice and Irene Road in Templeton Pines was done; Truman Myles Road was sealed, both sides of the 'Y'; West Bay, third lane shoulder was also worked on. Some island markings at new Crewe Road and Smith Road were raised.

Major maintenance work: Crewe Road hot-mix patch on Eastern Avenue/North Sound Way. Maintenance on Andrew Drive, repairs and construction; Crewe Road shoulders at the Airport; Crewe Road shoulders at South Sound to Durty Reids, that strip that gives the third lane coming down into town; Crewe Road shoulders South Sound to Red Bay School. Reconstructed Palmdale in the Crewe Road area; maintenance on the Queen's Court area at Sleep Inn; the road in Biggy's subdivision, storm repairs were done. Smith Road at the Pines Road junction; South Sound swamp drainage was dealt with; George Town Primary School playfield fence corner; Crewe Road hot-mix patch Eastern to North Sound Way.

Minor jobs: Cricket pitch; marl patch carpark (these are all roads, so even though I am not referring to roads sometimes it is the roads opposite these areas). Marl patch in Omega Gardens; marl patch at the Bird Sanctuary Road; marl patching Crewe Road bypass; at English Point there was some clean-up; also at the carpark in George Town at the Library; the minor repairs to the Agricultural Building carpark; removal of the cattle dip and clean-up in that area. Marl was put in the Crewe Road bypass dyke road; also drainage channels clean-up along several areas.

There was trimming of trees along the road, maintenance of the road at the hospital; maintenance in the area of the Roxanne Road.

In George Town 20 new wells were put in for drainage purposes in 1995. So, a lot has been done. A lot needs to be done, but I would like to show those who are levelling the criticism where we stood in late 1992 and 1993.

In the Auditor General's Report of 1991 (during the Government of Mr. Linford Pierson and Mr. Ezzard Miller) it says under Expenditure and Road Maintenance and Road Construction: "No precise figures currently available, but it is estimated by the Public Works Department that as much as $25 million over the next five to 10 years will be required to be spent on road maintenance representing over 100 miles of roads that will need urgent attention. Therefore, based on a 10 year period, the Government would have to spend an average of $2.5 million per year, which is nearly 400% more per year than actually spent in 1991." (page24).

On page 25 the Auditor General said this: "The following observations and findings resulted from my officers' broad review of public road maintenance and construction. The last major road improvement project undertaken by the Government was in the mid-1970s with work extending into the 1980s." Everybody knows that was the Government of Mr. Jim Bodden, Mr. Haig Bodden, Mr. John McLean and Capt. Charles Kirkconnell. During those eight years the last major road improvements were done. So what had happened was that for the previous eight years to 1992 nothing had been done on repairs. One or two major roads had been built - very short roads, like the Dr. Roy pass up here which was needed, but, once again, that little piece of road cost $1 million. So the criticism in regard to the Airport... if the cost had been the same as for the road going by the Jennett Building, we would have only had the two bends in Crewe Road and nothing else.

At page 25, the Auditor General said: "The last major road improvement project undertaken by the Government was in the mid-1970s with work extending into the 1 980s. This involved the reconstruction and resurfacing of much of Grand Cayman's roads."

In that report he went on to say that at that time they estimated it would have taken $10 million to deal with road repairs. So for the eight years that Mr. Linford Pierson, Mr. Ezzard Miller and those were in the Government, they did nothing in relation to those repairs. When we took over Public Works estimated that no major repairs had been done, and $10 million of maintenance was left to be done.

We have done a lot of this, but you cannot expect in the three years that have gone by to deal with what has not been done in the past eight years. We had a programme during the 1976-1 984 Governments in which we did a certain amount of extension to roads and new roads every year, but we did the maintenance, It is clearly brought out in the different Auditor Generals' Reports that the only thing that was being done at that stage (if at all) was to draw up elaborate plans, like the Master Ground Transportation Plan. People do not drive on plans, they drive on roads. In the meantime the roads deteriorated.

My question is very simply this: What has the previous Government done in relation to roads except to leave a legacy of pot holes that it will probably take two Governments' period to clear off? There has been nothing done for maintenance and no major project, as the Auditor General pointed out, on roads in the past eight years before the Government took over.

This year there is a programme on roads in place and we hope... and I know the Honourable Member for Communications and Works dealt with this so I do not propose to go over them, only to say that our plan is one which is joint - the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, as well as the other two Members in George Town all go out together and look at roads. We all endeavour as much as we can to get the roads repaired and to do as much as we can. All I can say is that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town is in the same boat as I and the other two Elected Members are. So, if Mr. Linford Pierson chooses to criticise and say that nothing much has been done in George Town, then it is very obvious that his criticism does not just fall on me, it falls on others, including his colleague.

The street lights being put in George Town is another area where we can show what has been done. I take my hat off to the Honourable Minister for Communication and Works. I know that he has a difficult job trying to deal with all of the requests put in by all the Members and Ministers because everyone wants theirs to be done first. I must say that this year I too have joined in some fairly serious pressing to get a few areas done where I think we need lights. I have done it in the past, but not quite as forcefully as now.

He has put in 134 of the mainly 400 watt lights in George Town. George Town is lit up. Crime is down as a result of that. I thank him very much. I know that this was probably meant to be so, but I always heard that you could do 99 things right and if you did not do that 100th thing you would get criticised. Well, he did 134 right, he forgot one and somebody took the Mickey out of him. All I would say is that it was done with good intentions. I am sure that he will get some further lights for us in George Town.

When you look at some of the things that were done in the past, presumably for George Town, you wonder who they were done for. For example, we see that one of the prime pieces of property in George Town, the property that Government owns which is leased to SafeHaven,... Let me say that I fully support developers coming here and being reasonable and fair. I will deal with that at a later stage. What I am saying has nothing to do with SafeHaven Limited. That property, which would have come back to our children, was increased from 50-odd years to 99 years. The Public Accounts Committee of 1992 stated: "In these circumstances, the Committee was surprised to note that negotiations with SafeHaven's representatives were conducted within a period of two hours."

What really happened was that for $1 million down and $1 million over 10 years without interest - and I point that out, without interest - that property was put back to 99 years. My personal view is that Government's properties, Government's leases and any increasing of Government's leases on major properties, should be controlled by legislation that is updated and which would only pass if a majority of Members of this Honourable House agreed to it. Normally this has to happen because it comes to Finance Committee, but this was a very good example because these were the days when Finance Committee was called at very short notice. It was kept in secret, nobody knew what was going on until it finished and we had deals like this struck by Mr. Linford Pierson in two hours.

If they want to find out what was done during the last Government's time, this is one of the things. The other one was the Campbell Building. I do not intend to read from the Public Accounts Committee's Report, or from the Auditor General's Report, but we know that cost $200 per square foot - $200 CI per square foot, twice as much as building a new building at the time. Did it go through Public Tenders and that sort of thing? At a later stage I am going to show the way the previous Government operated in relation to public tenders because it is an important part of the control of the finances of this country.

I pose the question to Mr. Linford Pierson and his struggling supporters out there: What has he done for George Town in the last four years? In fact, he has not even been here, he has been contributing to the economy of Hong Kong. That is where he has been for a considerable amount of time.

What I will go on to is relevant, because in the Throne Speech the Governor stated in relation to public order... and these are things that were raised at the meeting when the Wight brothers (and I refer to the twins when I say that because I have respect or Mr. and Mrs. Wight and the rest of the family, but like everything else, not everyone turns out like you want them to be). I would really like to know what has been done for the little man by him in the past four years during the time he was still in Cayman.

I would now like to go on fairly quickly to deal with a few other areas in the Throne Speech that are not under my Ministry.

I believe that the Legislative Assembly is very competently run. We know it is very ably presided over by you, Madam Speaker. I think you continue to have the compliments of all of us within this Honourable House. I will be speaking at the end in relation to that, but there was a matter raised by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town relating to the changing of the Standing Orders. I would like to put our side of the way we see things.

The Standing Orders have nothing in them that says we should only put a reasonable amount of questions. I have been bombarded with them, sometimes into the 30s of questions per session in which my staff waste day, after day, after day preparing answers. Some are relevant, some are what I would refer to from the Department's and Ministry's point of view as time-consuming nuisance questions - like, how many passengers did Cayman Airways carry in 10 years? That takes a lot of time. We have to remember that this is the public's money being spent on these questions. There is no restriction, Members can ask as many questions as they wish. They can only get a certain amount answered each day, but let us look at what has been levelled about the three month time for bills.

Motions can be more important than bills at times. Only 21 - not even 21 days now, I think motions can be brought on the five clear day principle. When you have a motion that is a motion of no confidence in this Honourable House, that is the most serious measure that can ever come before a Legislative Assembly. It is a type of motion that topples a Government. It brings a country to a screeching halt politically. There is nothing there where the Opposition gave us three months. It should be six months on a motion of that sort.

When these questions are too long and too difficult I think much more time should be given so that the staff in the departments are not disrupted because they have to leave everything to try to get on with answering the questions right away.

When we look back at Motion 3/90 (which I will deal with later on) and some of the other changes, we see that where you have the allegations of waiving of Standing Orders... ask the public who waives the Standing Orders literally every day when this House is sitting. It is the Opposition now. It is just that the Government did it before to allow them to ask questions beyond the one hour period. What I am saying is let us be fair about this. If Members are saying that there should be three months for every bill (which I know they are not saying, they say for minor bills it should be less), then for major motions why should it not be three months? A motion to censure and topple the Government, which would ultimately destroy the country because there would have to be elections within a period of three months or so... why not sufficient time for the Motions?

I have full faith and confidence in Mr. Russell and the United Kingdom Office. I fully support what he has done. It saves the Government a lot of money and he has helped the country considerably.

The Law School is very dear to me. I must say that I fully support what the Honourable Attorney General has said. The law degrees in this Law School are of a very high standing. They are honour degrees from the University in Liverpool and the University of Liverpool's standing is very high in the legal world. If anyone is criticising the Law School's degrees it has to be out of lack of knowledge of the standards there.

I also know that the Legal Department is one in which it is not an easy task to deal with. Law is not a precise science. It is not that one plus one equals two; opinions are given, attorneys give opinions, judges make opinions based on the opinions given by both sides. The judges' opinions are then looked at on appeal. It is really the opinion of the last appellate court that in the end determines what the results will be.

So the Honourable Attorney General and the Legal Department do have times when they will find that opinions that they hold - as in every case one lawyer's opinion is not upheld by the judge - it is a question of adversarial litigation where one side succeeds and the other one does not.

I would ask that we bear that in mind also that the Honourable Attorney General has had a lot of staff changes in the Legislative Drafting Department and he gets as much pressure from us as anyone from time to time. But he does a good job and his Department does a good job. Not everybody is perfect. I give him and his Department as much support as I can. I believe that the crucial role in legislation drafting is one that at times requires extra staffing. I will always support him with that.

I would like to turn briefly to some areas of the Portfolio of Finance and Development. I heard between the questions and some of the debate what appeared to be antagonism against investors in this country. I should say serious criticism. But we have to remember that this country needs investors. We have to ensure that what they do is fair and reasonable. If they invest money, they expect a reasonable return. What is wrong, and what can only hurt the stability of this country, is when Members attack them unnecessarily on the floor of this House, which, in my view, we have seen this time and that is bad for the country.

Looking back, it was one of the tactics used in Caribbean socialism (speaking generally) to break down the then structure of society when it was going to be changed for the better. What did we get out of that? We got the attacks on investors. Investors withdrew from a lot of the Caribbean islands. The theory of socialism was that you take from the rich and give to the poor. What happened was that the investors left the country, the poor became a lot poorer and look at the Caribbean around us now where these attacks were made on investors in the name of democratic socialism or whatever. This should be a big enough example so that people in this country do not take that approach. We are a democratic, capitalist country. We must remain so if we are going to progress. With it must come a tolerance of investors who, like I said, are fair and reasonable.

I remember a speech at one of the Caribbean conferences held in Miami in which one of the country's ministers stated that tourism was bad for the country because it brought so many problems and ills to its people. I look back (that was maybe 10 or 12 years ago) at that country now and he, as well as his then Prime Minister, have had to admit that that was wrong.

I am saying that it is not that the country should just look at investors without any reasonable controls, but we must, in a democratic, capitalist country, be fair and reasonable to investors; encourage them in areas that help the country. Every time money is invested here... and we have to remember that those people did not make their money here, they bring it with them from another country and invest it here. We should endeavour to keep the good investments. If there is going to be attacks on them they do not have to take it; they will pick their money up as they have done in other Caribbean countries and go elsewhere. In the end, those countries' poor people got a lot poorer. Today, they look at us and say how right we were to remain a Crown Colony, how right we were to remain capitalists.

I call on Members here not to get into this name calling. There are times when criticism can be there and it can be reasonable but bear in mind where others have gotten in this socialist approach of simply grabbing from one group and trying to spread it to another. I believe that those in need in this country have to be taken care of, but I believe that the Honourable Minister for Social Services has very ably dealt with that area. I will deal with that later, but I fully support him in those areas.

The Speaker: Would you take the suspension at this time?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.53 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.33 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: Before the Honourable Minister continues his debate, I would like to welcome the students from the John Gray High School who are sitting in for some time. I hope that they will glean some information and be stirred by the proceedings.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning, continuing.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I, too, would like to add my words of thanks to the students for coming here, and I hope that they will find it interesting. It is here that the laws of the country are made, including the laws relating to schools and society in general.

I would now like to go on to Cayman Airways to deal generally with it and with some of the comments that have been made.

It is very clear that since the reorganisation and restructuring of Cayman Airways we have moved to a stage where the airline does have a future and, as this Honourable House can well see, I do not run here every few months for a few million dollars to bail Cayman Airways out as was done in the past.

The reduction in staff and routes and equipment (which went from five jets to two) was traumatic and difficult. I continue to thank the staff of Cayman Airways for seeing it through and staying with it during that time. There have now been three raises to staff, whereas in previous years there had been no salary raises at all. In fact, there had been reductions of some salaries.

We know that the loss of Cayman Airways reached an all time high in 1991 of $14,310,056. That is a frightening sum for a country which had a national budget in the area of $100 million. Each person in this country had to indirectly pay $14 million for losses that had occurred. Indeed, over two and a half years some $34.6 million were lost by Cayman Airways. If one thinks of it as to the amount of schools that could have been built, or the amount of roads which could have been paved, or applied to anything else, we would see the difference between capital expenditure and the profit and loss accounts showing losses of that amount ($34.7 million). What do we have for it? Nothing!

The Manifesto of the National Team set out several objectives for Cayman Airways. These have in my opinion all been achieved, in fact, they have been exceeded. The first objective stated that we believed that Cayman Airways should "...consolidate and optimise its present position in terms of market share, load factor, revenues and costs. In pursuance of this strategy, every effort should be made to contain major financial and marketing exposures such as would be created by further fleet expansion..." This has undoubtedly been done.

While our market share is somewhat less because we have two jets instead of five, at least we have brought the losses to within acceptable limits and with the subsidy in 1994 we actually made a profit of $1.5 million.

"2. CAL should have followed ASI's recommendation and should now by legal means reduce its fleet back to three suitable jets at reasonable lease rates." We have reduced back to two because the study showed that to be the least cost stage. This House instructed me to reduce Cayman Airways to a least cost operation and that is what we have done. I have refused during the three years it has been under my responsibility and Ministry, to allow them to expand until I was satisfied that the consolidation had taken place and Cayman Airways had economically stabilised.

We are going into Orlando, but that route is one that I believe will be good for the country and that Cayman Airways has the capacity to do it and we will, in fact, contribute to the bottom line by going in there.

"3. Review CAL's routes where serious losses are made." This was done. We cut quite a few of them - New York, Turks and Caicos, Baltimore, and a lot of the ones that were expected to be brought in.

"4. Strengthen CAL's Board of Directors and set guidelines with accountability to the Member for Tourism who must account to the public for expenditure of public funds on CAL." This has been done and the guidelines of what the management can do - in fact, they are not guidelines, they are set rules - and what the Board can do and what the Government can do are very clear. For example, there can be no expansion of the routes or no purchase of jets unless the Government (this House, the Legislature) agrees to having that expenditure. It will, of necessity, require a guarantee.

"5. Abolish the Executive Committee as recommended by the consultants and reduce the Managing Director's powers and review this position." That has been done. The Managing Director's power has been considerably reduced from three years ago and is operating well.

"6. Institute better management, staff communication, participation and team work ethics and review CAL's reservations system." The restructuring of Cayman Airways has brought about better communication. There is considerably more team work. I think there could be more, but we have to appreciate that when the National Team came into power there was a lot of internal politics in Cayman Airways. A lot of that is now gone, and a lot of external politics has now gone. We are in a much better position staff-wise.

The reservation system has been reviewed once. In fact, it is undergoing a review again.

"7. Seek a legal solution in relation to the two 737-400s which Guinness Peat Aviation (GPA) has a right to return in 1994 for three years at a total lease cost of approximately US$20 million." If this Honourable House remembers, there was a judgment in the United Kingdom for about $6.5 million against Cayman Airways because it had broken the leases on two 737-400s. We managed to repay that - we had to, we had no choice. We were able to get out of any future commitment from the $20 million of lease payments.

While I know this is history, it is clear that obligations such as that could have destroyed this country financially and brought it to its feet.

"8. In light of CAL's serious losses of US$20.4 million for the two financial years, 1990 and 1991... take immediate action to reduce future losses." That has been done and I am happy to say that it has been well contained.

I should point out that the changing of two jets in one year is highly unusual. These are normally staggered so that one comes up every three years. In the 1994 and 1995 period we are going to see the impact of those two jets in one year which, unfortunately, has to be written out of profit and loss in the one year. They cost us in the area of close to $3 million between the leasing of the jets and the necessary repairs and refurbishing before they are handed over.

I now know that much of Cayman Airways' losses... for example, in 1990 I think they changed nine jets in one year. That had to be extremely costly. I think that was the year of the $14 million loss. Thank God we are buying one and we have leased the other for long term (there are about four years left to go). This will not recur. Any refurbishing we do on the one we bought will increase its value as an asset.

"9. Ensure that there are regular, practical flights to, from and between Cayman Brac and Little Cayman which are convenient." I spoke on that earlier. We have done all we can in that respect.

I believe that I can go out of office in due course with the satisfaction that I have done as much as I could. I believe that I have performed substantially what I promised in the Manifesto.

If we look back at some of the rash decisions made during that period leading up to what was actually the crisis period, where the Government had actually looked at closing Cayman Airways down in January 1993... I mean there was no question any longer of being prepared to accept that the country could afford to keep pumping $10 million, $12 million or $14 million a year - every year - with the law suits, because we settled one with ILFC that had another 11 or 12 years left to run, on maybe $100 million. We managed to settle that and get out of it.

In the Caymanian Compass of Wednesday, 2nd August, 1989, there was a statement in it to this effect: "Speaking as a Member of ExCo and a professional accountant, Mr. Pierson said the deal is a good one." It went on to say: "The deal was too good to be true." [which was the headline about the selling of the 727-200s] It goes on to say: "An ExCo Member staunchly defended CAL, particularly the airline's right not to answer questions about its commercial operations and lease arrangements." Even the very lease arrangements were not allowed out publicly because ExCo sat in secret.

We know the other phrase used about the selling of the 727-200s was the 'sweetheart deal'. I think the public must remember that because the sweetheart sure was not the public's pockets. They paid, and they paid, and they paid, and they are still paying on some of that because we have a $20 million debt taken out to pay for a part of Cayman Airways' losses. I did not get any of that money for capital for the future. Even if I had been able to get $5 million out of it we could have done wonders with Cayman Airways.

The sweetheart deals and these statements about the deal being a good one, and Mr. Linford being an accountant... I think this House and the public need to remember that was the quality of the single entry bookkeeping, as one Member mentioned, that went on at the time. When one pays that amount of money - when the public pays it - I think they should be constantly reminded of who caused it: Mr. Ezzard Miller, Mr. Linford Pierson.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman levelled the only criticism this time of any sort at Cayman Airways when he said that Cayman Airways was buying another old 737-200. He went on to talk about how we should have gotten the right kind of aircraft. That same theory was put forward... indeed, that same Member signed a Minority Report with me stating that we should have kept the 727-200s. He knew why we jointly signed that report. It was because of the new jets, the 737-400s, which were probably costing $30 million to $40 million in total, and we would have been paying in the area of $3.6 million per year per jet. We could not afford that. I think everyone in these islands would like to have new jets, but the harsh reality is that we cannot afford them.

This is the difference in the National Team's view. We have business experience, we are not only experienced in Government, but in the running of good business - you do not spend more than you make.

He has practically no experience in business so he may feel that a decision to buy more jets is good. But the country cannot afford it. If Cayman Airways lost $14 million when they followed that theory and bought new jets, I assure you they are going to lose a lot more than that today if they buy new jets. It is a matter of business practice, a matter of preserving the public's money and trying to conserve. The jets are good, they are safe. We are now buying one and, hopefully, we will be able to buy the second one, as His Excellency said in his Throne Speech, because I believe that makes sense.

In fact, it was Mr. Haig and I along with the then Financial Secretary, Sir Vassel, who went to Costa Rica to negotiate the purchase of the 60% shares in Cayman Airways which was really the beginning of Cayman Airways as we know it. In fact, Mr. Haig was one of the first Directors under that new structured company and he voted for all of what Cayman Airways got in Finance Committee over the many years.

That is why it hurt me to know that Capt. Miller refused to fly over as requested by Mr. Haig's family at his funeral, because he had done so much for Cayman Airways. I was happy to see yesterday that Cayman Airways did fly over for someone else who contributed so much to this country in many areas. That was ever so evident at Capt. Keith Tibbetts' funeral. I had the pleasure of working with him in this Honourable House for four years. It was perhaps the one time - because I rarely get angry, I am a very calm person - that I was extremely hurt and angry. I will admit that, because I missed a considerable part of Mr. Haig's funeral trying to get the Captain to leave the plane to have the manners to speak to me by telephone.

However, I had to think about this over a period of time. I decided that whatever happened there internally must follow the proper course. That is now over and it has followed the proper course. If ever I was really tempted in my life to do something rash it was then. It really hurt me bad. I merely pass it on, Madam Speaker, to say that Cayman Airways has gotten where it is because I have had the sense and business approach to know when I have a right to intervene and when not to intervene.

I believe that Cayman Airways has a good future. I have always supported it. I always will. I believe that it has contributed tremendously to this country. Even though there are going to be ups and downs, we have seen where Northwest has withdrawn one of its scheduled flights to Miami. Despite the difficulty of the airline business, if it is properly managed and watched, with the Minister understanding the parameters of what he can and cannot do, and if we just follow good business lines, then it will continue.

To be very frank, I do not see any one in the new political groups who has the experience to deal with Cayman Airways and keep it on its keel. As I said, the good accountant, the sweetheart deals, I think this country will never forget that because it will pay for another 15 years for that sweetheart deal.

I would now like to turn briefly to the Planning Department. I have only had this for a short period of time. During this time I have endeavoured to have the time in relation to planning applications reduced. That has been done. We have set up a tracking system with an aging part to that system so that I can know within a few days how long applications have been in. It traces it through from the time the application comes in until the final decision is given. This is needed in places like Immigration.

There are many problems remaining, but we are struggling to deal with them. I have always told the staff within my Departments that we are paid by the public so we must try to help the public. We must try to be positive. I find that many times negative approaches are taken when it is so simple to say yes. That has to be done within the law.

I think the approach has undoubtedly improved considerably, and I am much happier with the way that Planning has dealt with applications from the administrative side, and from referring.

We have got the Building Code out which I think was a major achievement. It sat there for some 10 or 12 years. When one or two of the present geniuses who are now running for election had Planning under them, they got nowhere with it. Also, we will be having the Planning guidelines coming out very shortly and also brochures which will explain the Planning process in certain areas.

We have also seen the appeals, which were backed up, brought up to date. Some of these extended back into the last Government's time and have now been dealt with. What is important for the public to understand is that unlike in the past, where an appeal could be filed and the grounds of appeal not given (and that holds up the process), that cannot now happen. If people file Planning appeals and they do not give the grounds, it goes before the Tribunal to be struck out. They then have to ask for an extension. If it is not extended, then their right of appeal is struck. We cannot have people filing appeals and not completing the process with the appeal remaining there for years.

I have already dealt with the Development Plan, only to say that in my short time in Planning I have propelled the process along towards a stage where it can ultimately come before this Honourable House. There have been many, many objections, some of them done in such a way that it has slowed down the process considerably. As soon as the sittings of three tribunals finish I will then look at the assembling of this by the Central Planning Authority and will await their recommendation. I do not believe it will come in time to catch this Government's sitting of the Legislature. The new Minister of Planning, and if it is me (God's willing) I would be in a position to do all of the legal work, a package would be there and it would then be a matter to bring before this Honourable House.

A press release is coming out with the highlights of the Planning Report. In relation to anyone who thinks that a lot has not been done in George Town, I would like to state a few of these things: "The number of applications granted Planning permission increased over 24% in 1995. A total of 834 applications were approved with a total value of over $171 million. George Town was the site for 52% and also accounted for 63% of the total value of applications approved." This is not happening by itself. The Government is creating a climate for this development to go on.

Moving to the Department of Agriculture, Environment, Communication and Works: I do not think it can be said often enough how very ably the Honourable Minister for Agriculture has managed his Ministry. He is a gentleman with a lot of experience. He first came into this Honourable House in 1976. I hope he does not mind my giving some dates here because he was extremely young at that time. So it has no imputation on his age. He was in his early 20s at that stage.

He has been a Minister for Agriculture now on two different occasions in Government with a total of eight years experience at the end of this term. I think the highlight was bringing back the Agricultural Show. I always enjoy taking my children there and seeing the different displays. Most important has been his support in dealing with the many requests for roads and lights and everything else that goes with it. He has responsibility for telecommunications, a very complex area. He has very ably dealt with it. For the first time we have seen something that if it saves one life will be worth it - the 9-1-1 system. It is very necessary and he has very ably brought this in.

He has the Post Office under him. There have been great strides under him. The problem, such as it may be, with the question of staff is not the Minister's responsibility nor that of any Member of this House, despite the fact that sometimes it seems that one of the Opposition Members does confuse that and tries to state that it is the Government. It is clearly the responsibility of the Governor and has nothing to do with the responsibility of the Ministers.

The Department of the Environment continues to function. I think it was very clear that there was consternation and confusion on the part of the critics relating to the marl when they heard the statement that there would be no more marl mining in the North Sound. That is one thing about His Excellency, he has the ability to put what he means very ably and clearly and it leaves no area for misunderstanding.

Moving on to deal with the Education part of my Ministry.... But before I do so, I would like to deal with one area that affects George Town. It is the fact that at a public meeting (reference was made to this in the Throne Speech, although not necessarily this meeting) that the Second and Third Elected Members for George Town and I had on the steps of the Court House we had the Wight twins with another four persons actually come up on the platform, take placards and hold them within a foot or two of us, and at one stage actually spoke over the microphone. They also put their tape recorder on the podium where we were trying to speak and went on very loudly at times, in fact there were times when each one of us was stopped, our train of thought being broken, or they shouted us down. One of them kept referring (and I merely say it as a fact) to Mr. Linford, and the signs that they had dealt with things like 'nothing is done in George Town', and other things about dredging. We had to take the decision whether we would continue or not because it got to a stage where we could have been forced to shut down.

I had that in 1984 at an election campaign held at the Anderson Square Building where some of those same people came and shut down my public meeting. We are coming to the question of what I have heard kicked around in here about fear and threats and that sort of thing. Speaking generally, those people who interrupted our meeting, wrongly interrupted it. It is one thing for persons to stand in the audience and shout and say things. That is tolerable. But for them to actually come up and position themselves on each side of us, literally within touching distance of us, holding up placards and shouting 'he's wrong,'.... In fact, in my opinion (for what it is worth), it is unlawful.

I am happy to see that the police issued a warning on 11th March, 1996, where they reminded people that "...disorderly behaviour likely to prevent or obstruct transaction of the business of the meeting, or the use of threatening, abusing or insulting words or gestures or behaviour with intent to provoke a breach of the peace and inciting others to do so are all offences under the Public Order Law."

A letter was printed in the newspaper on 23rd February, 1996, purportedly signed by Mr. Linford Pierson and two others in which it said: "Upon inquiring into this matter [meaning the problem we had at the meeting] we have been informed that the disturbance came about as a result of frustration over the general policies of this Government and, in particular, the approval in principle granted by Executive Council for the proposed massive dredging in the North Sound. They also felt that nothing had to date been done to benefit the people of George Town since the National Team Government came to power in 1992."

As I said earlier, there are four Members in George Town. What I found most disturbing with this letter, and I attribute that aspect to one of these purported signatories (the one on the top) is that it attempts to give a reason to justify that type of behaviour. There is no justification in law for behaviour that is against the Public Order Law.

What would be very interesting, because it is already coming out, is that Mr. Linford Pierson is stating these very same things, 'nothing is being done in George Town', or the problems with dredging, or policies relating to the National Team Government. I would be naive to sit here and believe (and so would the public) that this attempt was something that was hatched up by those six people at that meeting. They are not that smart. Who signs the letters that are constantly attacking the George Town Members? One of the Wight twins - Chris Wight - who has been a staunch supporter of Mr. Linford Pierson for as long as I can remember. The letters coming out signed by him... I am not so naive to believe that he is writing them. He is not that smart.

The public must understand that the talk (which I am going to deal with a bit further on) by the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman where he (or one of the Members) talks about fear and violence and that sort of thing - and this has nothing to do with them, let me make that clear - is a type of political tactic that has been used in other islands. It ultimately destroys... it affects the people who cause this violence because the country will ultimately suffer because of a result of it.

Let me say this: I am smart enough, as is the public, to realise who the main person pushing in these areas is.

The schools: I am not going to attempt to cover a vast area here because this country and the parents and teachers and the public know that the school system is on a proper footing. There is proper planning and there is progress. If there was just my talk about progress that would be another thing, but look at the results in the exams. In the Caribbean Examinations Council Exams the best results in the whole of the Caribbean were in Cayman.

If you look at the GCSE results, they are very good. If you look at the schools, as some of the MLAs have from time to time, then I think you will see clearly that the schools are moving on. What is most important is that the planning process has involved the teachers, the parents and the public. When anyone (and that would be the First Elected Member for Bodden Town) picks and criticises the present strategic planning for education, they are criticising the 350 people who did it. I merely accepted it at the end of the day. The present plan for education has been put together by the parents, the teachers and the public of this country, and that cannot be wrong. I did not go through and change any of it. This thing was accepted literally in the form it came in. It is not my plan, it is a plan produced by the professional teachers and the public.

Turning specifically to the George Town Primary School, because there has been criticism levelled in quite a few areas. Let me just say that I think the public realises that National Team Members are basically independent and can say whatever they wish in this House. If it needs to be defended or corrected, I, too, have a right to make a reply to it.

I have tried harder... and I am sure that I have done more for George Town Primary School than any other Member who has had responsibility for it. I want to just take the time of the House to show what has been done in this short period since September when Miss Marie Martin became principal.

On the buildings: The screens have been installed in the bathrooms; there are new school signs; numbering of all classrooms has been completed; door handles installed; the library extension completed and fully air-conditioned; extra lighting in all classrooms. These may seem like little things, but a lot of lights have been put into those classrooms. New fans have been installed in rooms 14 and 19; rotten lumber replaced in Room 25; the hall in the Hearing Impaired Unit; drains have been re-drilled; guttering has been installed; a Teak that was in one of the rooms has been repaired and the roof; the provision of sand for the play area on the football field. This is now maintained weekly by the Sports Office. I will deal with that in depth further down.

Hockey players have removed utility poles from around the net ball courts. The area generally has been cleaned up and up-graded.

Yes, there are problems at times because we have people going there unlawfully causing malicious damage to property.

I do not want to go any further, but I have a list here of what has been done in all schools, especially what has been done in George Town. It will be seen that during the summer (I am only going to deal with a few of these because it is some 20-odd different things) the building of a low wall around shade trees for flower beds (these are little things, but important); lattice work by the office has been repaired; lights on the walkway have been fixed by the infants block; guttering and fascia board at the infant block; a new inlet for the water cooler. It is very clear that anyone talking about what has been done has not been going around the schools. There is no way that a Member sitting in this Honourable House can find out what is going on in the classrooms unless they go up there.

I am sure that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town (who is looking straight at me) knows that I invite MLAs to come to the George Town School. And we have visited it. I naturally did not invite the Third Elected Member for West Bay because this was George Town.

I think that the Minister for Sports has dealt fairly ably with that area.

I would like to thank the Cayman Ministers' Association for the support that they have given me most recently in relation to the problem with the Rastafarians, and also thank the United Church for the stand they have taken on ensuring that public order is properly maintained and that the elections are run properly.

I would now like to deal with the barrage of criticism that has been levelled at schools by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. I must say that I would have thought that he would have had a better grasp of what was going on in the school system and would not have raised some of these things as he did.

For example, there are times when all Members are invited to the Lighthouse School. Some show up, some do not. There is no reason why an MLA should not know what is going on at the schools in Bodden Town or Savannah and be there. It is not a question of being hand fed from the Ministry. I guess what I should say is that it seems that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town has run out of positive things to say when I look at the Tong list of what he has raised.

What I do not follow is how, for example, the sewerage plant is going to distract from other buildings on Walker's Road. We have $40 million invested in school buildings on that site and a sewerage treatment plant is needed to enhance that site. It is evidence of Government's good planning for the future, and it is necessary. It will be done in a way that will not detract, but will enhance.

This is the first time that the school system actually knows exactly where it is going. There is a detailed plan in place put together by 353 people - half of them professionals in education. In contrast to the 1991 Education Plan, it is so superior it makes the 1991 Plan appear to not even be a plan at all.

Let us look at the 1991 Plan. It consists of 15 pages and some appendices. They did it so quickly that some of this is actually handwritten. It is a plan that from 1991 until 1994 was only a plan - nothing under it had actually been done except in the last nine months when there was a move which actually radically changed and totally disrupted the students and the school system in this country. It was in effect for three years and nothing of any consequence was done.

But the first thing that was supposed to have been done was to have the Education Department reorganised to deal with it. That was never done. They got around to stopping schools, they put the preschoolers in the Lighthouse School out in the streets because there were no pre-schools to take them at that time. What really was there was like the other plans that the Government of that day did. They were only plans: the Master Ground Transportation Plan, but nobody fixed the holes in the roads. There was an Education Plan with nothing being implemented.

That Education Plan has many good recommendations. This is the point I am coming to. It would have been far more constructive to have said that this plan failed because they did not have the ability to implement it in the areas where it was implementable. There were some areas of that plan that could not be implemented. Many of them, far more than a majority of the recommendations are actually incorporated in the new plan. But supporting it is 150 pages of action plans which actually set out what has to be done, who has to do it, and how much money it is going to cost. But that takes ability. To be frank, in their desperation to try to get something done, we had decisions being taken that did not even make sense. A year was added to the school system but nobody knew where it was. This is how bad it had reached. There was no precision. It was 17 pages.

The criticism that has been levelled, and I actually had staff go through and set out what was added into the new plan and what was not. But it would take a considerable length of time to move through it. Needless to say, for example, the reorganisation of the Education Department has been completed. There are posts to be filled. We do not appoint staff, it has to go through the Public Service Commission. In due course we will get those.

The criticism that was levelled was not supported with anything positive. This is where there is a difference between the people who do and the people who talk about it. I have always worked behind the scenes, but I get things done. I am not up front in the press as much as some of the other politicians. But I do my work, and I work hard. I can assure the public, as they know, their Education Plan that they have put together is good. It is sound, and the implementation of it has started. In fact, some 80-odd action plans are now moving on.

One of the major defects of the old 1991 Plan was the fact that it did not touch special education. Can you imagine something as important as that not being touched? There is a theory in many of the other Caribbean Islands that in this quest to create equality, which is what socialism is aimed at bringing about, that everyone is born substantially equal as far as their ability in school goes. They even take it that far. At the end of the day, we have children who need help. We have slow learners and we also have children who are very bright. They also need special help because they will burn out in a normal classroom unless they are given extra work to keep them interested in more advanced study areas or areas of interest.

We have now just gotten back a full report on special education and that will be part of the basis along the present education plan put together by the public to deal with special education which is so important - the Lighthouse School, Sunrise School and the Special Education Unit.

If you want to look at fundamental gaps in a plan, I submit that is one. But it may well have seen the view at the time, because, as I say, in many islands they do not accept that these problems exist in the learning process and they leave everyone in the same classroom. At the end of the day we have some children who are very frustrated and burned out.

The First Elected Member for Bodden Town said: "...because the Minister for Education threw that plan out. He destroyed it. Now we graduate 250. to 300 students per year from the Government High School. It was stated that last year of that 250 to 300, 17 had academic scholarships.

"I am often described by that Minister as defunct, but I want to tell him something: If he had sought my advice, I could have told him that 17 out of 250 is not near a high enough percentage. There should have been about 20 to 30 of those students on academic scholarships from a good system. Of that 17, it is not clear how many, if any, came from private schools thus compounding the problem. [Hansard 29 February, 1996]

This could only come from a lack of listening, because it cannot come from a lack of knowledge. We had 31 scholarships approved, so we have exceeded the expectations of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. He has admitted that there is a good school system.

In 1994, 39 scholarships were granted - twice the amount that the Member mentioned was granted in 1995. All I can say is that if he cannot see the positive things in the education system, if he is prepared to criticise the Education Development Plan 1995-1999 put together by the teachers and the public, then he had better watch out that the next shadow Minister for Education might not be another loser - the recently Team Cayman promoted candidate, Mr. Oswald Rankine. At least he is retired from the system.

Moving on, I want to touch on one other thing because the results in the schools are good and I do not think that I need to stand here and say this. The public is not going to accept what the First Elected Member for Bodden Town has stated about all of the faults and problems he has listed. In the Commonwealth Essay Competition, Cayman had 23 students commended, some highly commended.

The Caymanian Compass stated: "The standard of musicianship among school children in Cayman is definitely above worldwide average." Quoting from the Commonwealth Report: "Just two failures out of 44 exams sat, Cayman's children have fewer failures and more merits than other candidates average worldwide", commented Mr. Frost, noting that about 100,000 children and adults took the Trinity College Music Exams every year." Over and above that is the fact that the standard (and this was spread through Government and private schools) of the Education system is high.

I would like to deal with one other area in this, that relates to private schools. We have private schools now taking in one-third of the students in Cayman. We have compulsory education. Either Government has to school these children, and the cost to Government would be another $8 million to $9 million a year; or we can give grants (which we now do) in the area of $75 million to recurrent expenditure. Anybody looking at it purely from the economic point of view has got to realise that it is in the economic interest of this country to support private schools.

Why the Opposition Members oppose private schools is beyond me, because it is not good economics and it is not good democracy. I think that parents should have a choice. If they wish to send their children to a specific school, whether it is private, public or whatever, they should have a choice. It also keeps Government on its toes from the competitive edge which it provides.

I am happy to say that the vast strides that we have made, because Government always ensures that Government schools have what they need first, in what we have made in education has come about because we have taken the approach that private schools are good for the country.

Back when I first got into the Government in the 1970s, there was a document that had been signed by the previous Government that said if you sit Caribbean Examination Council Exams, you can sit no other exam. They were set on days so that you could not sit an exam from the United Kingdom. The mentality of the day - the socialist mentality - was that there should be the indoctrination of the nation in the very limited way that they saw fit. It cut out having competitive school exams. Not only in that area. The Law School was created because they also tried to do it in law. There was a document to that effect.

What I am coming to is this: there was a school of thought then that everything as far as possible should be Government run and Government controlled. What they did was take over private schools. Do you know what happened in the end? They destroyed the whole school system. Good private schools that were taken over by Governments back in the 1970s under the socialist policy were wrecked. Today they realise that they would have been much better off leaving private schools alone and having them function properly.

The allegations talked about elite schools. We hear it raising its head again. This was one of the basis on which they destroyed the private school system in other Caribbean islands and in the end the whole standard of education in the country dropped. It was destroyed.

What I am saying is that it is dangerous, very dangerous, to try to follow the system that has failed so miserably in the Caribbean and has left those countries destitute. Whereas, we have continued on because we have respected the church, because the church came under a lot of attacks in those days as well, not just the schools. We have to get away from causing problems and making allegations in relation to the private sector schools. I fully support them and I will do all I can, provided it is not to the detriment of the Government schools, to assist them.

Madam Speaker, ICCI performs a very important role in Cayman and I fully support it. I started again to give them their grant. I think there may have been a bit of confusion somewhere, but that will be cleared up, I can assure you. I also signed their certificate approving them as a school, so what was said in relation to them does not relate to me, it relates to the colleagues of the two Members, or the Member who was talking about it. They are the people who cut their grant for eight years and would not give them their school's certificate.

The Speaker: Would the Honourable Minister take a suspension at this time?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.47 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.09 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning, continuing.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Turning now to a lighter subject, even though there is one area in Education that I will deal with later on. The Currency Board and the Pensions Board are very important. They have very ably dealt with managing the currency and pensions. I, in fact we tried to get it into the Constitution that money for pensions could not be touched by politicians. I think this is still very important, that money relating to pensions for anyone (not just civil servants) should be isolated in such a way that it cannot be taken for other purposes. In too many countries we have seen this happen.

The Financial Services Supervision Department is extremely important. They are now branching out into new areas such as the stock exchange, and we will have a bill later on coming with that. This is providing the second largest amount of revenue to tourism.

The only thing I would say on the Treasury Department is that it would be good if some type of a system was put in there that dealt with applications when they come in and when they are finalised. For example, when somebody applies to get their deposit back from the Immigration, they put someone on a work permit, many times months and months go by. While it is in Government's (I should not say Government, because we do not do it, it is in the Treasury's interest to hold on to money as long as they can)... areas like that could be speeded up if a computer system was in place giving the date when the application was made and when it was finally dealt with.

I see a lot of smiles here, so I believe that everybody may have had that problem of trying to get money back out of Treasury once it is paid in.

What I even found more interesting (and this is my own personal view), I have stopped taking advances when traveling because when I get back it takes so long to get it reconciled, I cannot even remember what has gone on. That is just a joke.

Treasury generally does have a difficult task. It has competent people, but maybe it needs looking at in these areas. It is just a bad custom that has gone on where they are reluctant to let go of money.

The Third Official Member is reminding me that it is so hard to get it. I take his point there. They do process a large amount of transactions, so I appreciate the problem that they have.

One thing I wish them luck on is their centralising of debt collection. If they can find some system to get people to promptly pay their debts to Government, I think it will be the miracle of the century.

It is important because there is a fair amount of money outstanding. Most of it did not come during the time of this Government, but a qualified Fellow of Institute of Credit Management or some other similar qualification should come in and organise the department and chase up the accounts early. What one does not get within the first 30 days is about 30% gone. When it stretches into 90 days, it goes up to 65% to 70% that you will never get. Some of that is statute barred going back 10 or 12 years.

The Fire Department, under the able Minister for Tourism, and Kirkland Nixon, continues to function very well. It has saved many lives over the past years and also provides a support at the airport in relation to Cayman Airways and the jets. I fully support the Minister's move to introduce the Fire Code which will be complementary to the Building Code. I will assist in any way that I can in that area.

The Port Authority is continuing on. I have only one area of caution with it. I understand that they are purchasing a crane. It would be very unfair (and I sure that will not arise) if they require ships that have cranes not to use their cranes, because at the end of the day the money is just going to be passed on to the public at large. They lift a container of potatoes and the extra amount goes on to that. I know the Minister is very wise and he will ensure that the Authority does what is fair and reasonable.

They continue to handle large amounts of cruise ship passengers. This is going to increase and I welcome the new watersports facility that is proposed. I think the development of the Port area is as important (and more important in many respects) than at the airport since it deals with a much larger number of passengers.

The Civil Aviation Authority I found to be one of the best organised departments that I have seen in Government. I am sure that that continues on. They have given Cayman Airways and the other airlines good services. The new expansions are very good. I believe that this will continue.

However, with the increase in passengers each year, there has to be constant expansion and updating of methods, which I am sure my able colleague is fully dealing with. It would be good if we could see something completed as far as a final decision in relation to the Little Cayman Airport. I think the safety there as in any airport is very important. I believe that we should endeavour to get whatever tests remain for the site to be completed and a decision made.

Sometimes we have interest groups who do not necessarily represent the majority of the people, but who are very vociferous. They have to be understood and listened to, but at the end of the day it is what the majority of the people of the Cayman Islands want that is important. When it comes to safety, the question of aesthetics or anything else should not even be considered if it affects the safety of lives. That is why I said earlier, if the 9-1-1 system saves one life it will have been worth the money and the effort that the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works has put into it.

I will deal with Tourism at a later stage.

Moving on to the area of Community Development and Sports. The areas under culture are very important. I know that he has very ably continued supporting this area of his Ministry. He has the capable assistance of the Third Elected Member for George Town in the Library and the National Museum. I know he finds her support (as I have) to be very good. She is very capable. This most important area, the culture of the islands, has to reach a realistic stage where we generate more and more toward what is Caymanian culture.

Sometimes (and I have been criticised for saying this) I have the feeling that what is labeled Caymanian culture is sometimes a bit foreign in some respects, or linked more to other Caribbean islands. The mixture of cultures is good, but I think when we look at putting on functions such as national festivals, that we do as much as we can to promote local culture. Indeed, the schools also have to play an important part. I know that the Honourable Minister fully supports and promotes the schools as the school children are involved in these many times.

The Development Board and the AIDB have been very ably covered by the Honourable Minister. I would like to leave the Water Authority for tomorrow because I have a few special things to say in that area.

I am happy to see the strides that have been made in the area of Social Services, the very bold and good moves that the Minister has made in these areas. I have always found Social Services to be one of the most difficult things that I had to deal with because it was extremely varied, very complex. Very often matters relate to a single person and it has to be looked at very subjectively and in relation to that person's position.

Government is committed to ensuring that those who are in need get that which is necessary.

Madam Speaker, I was just wondering if we are at the interruption stage?

The Speaker: We are actually five minutes away.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: We have five?

The Speaker: My clock says five minutes.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: After that trip (I have to say on Cayman Airways) to Cayman Brac from five in the morning until last night...

The Speaker: I have no objection if you would like to move the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.25 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM, WEDNESDAY 20TH MARCH, 1996.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
20TH MARCH, 1996
10.07 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Member for North Side to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Administration of Oath of Affirmation to Mr. Donovan W. F. Ebanks, MBE, to be the Temporary Honourable First Official Member.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS
OR AFFIRMATIONS

(Affirmation Administered by the Clerk)

Mr. Donovan W. F. Ebanks, MBE

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I, Donovan Ebanks, do solemnly and sincerely affirm and declare that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II her heirs and successors according to law.

The Speaker: Please take your seat. Once again, I welcome you on behalf of the House.

Government Business. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning, continuing the winding up on the debate of the Throne Speech.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY MR. JOHN W. OWEN, MBE, GOVERNOR OF

THE CAYMAN ISLANDS, ON FRIDAY, 16TH FEBRUARY, 1996

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I would like to begin this morning by dealing with the financial and economic position in the Cayman Islands at present.

Anyone in the islands now realises that this country is in an economic boom. It is not that it got there of its own accord, it took good governance over the last three years to pull the country out of the economic recession that we had slipped into during the period of the last government (1991-1992) as it moved down and things got worse. Not only did things get worse financially and economically in the island, but things got considerably worse inside of the Cayman Islands Government and its finances.

The situation was that there was a very rapid increase in the country's debt because the Government, in the last three years that they were in, did not have the contribution to Capital that was necessary to keep the country on a sound financial footing. If we look back at the accounts (and I am taking this from the Accountant General's Financial Summary) we will see that in the years immediately prior to the last Government that the revenue was in excess of the recurrent expenditure. Thus, with the exception of the years that the surplus from the previous governments was used, we saw a very rapid deterioration in the finances of the country. They moved from a situation where there was normally a surplus of between $7 million to $10 million (in other words they were making more money than they were spending on the recurrent side), to a situation where in 1990 the recurrent revenue was $101.8 million and the recurrent and statutory expenditure had increased to $103 million; in which year there was no money to contribute to Capital and, therefore, $1.2 million was borrowed to pay for the loss on the recurrent side. This is very frightening because the Capital itself had to be financed out of the reserves that the country had, and through loans.

In the year 1990 they expended a further $13.7 million on Capital, so the total loss for that year was $14.9 million. That trend worsened in 1991 in the overall situation, even though in that year the recurrent revenue was $113.2 million and the expenditure was $111.4 million, leaving only $1.8 million to be contributed to Capital Expenditure. However, Capital Expenditure was $17.2 million. This, once again, was money that was taken, or borrowed, from earlier Governments' buildup of reserves.

In fact, in that year the loan was $14.1 million, so we had a situation where the overall loss had considerably worsened from a loss of $14.9 million to approximately $15.4 million. To make things worse, in 1992 the country's recurrent revenue was $121 million, but recurrent and statutory expenditure increased to $124.6 million which meant they had to borrow $3.6 million just to deal with salaries and the running of the Civil Service, the payments for statutory expenditure and interest.

In that year, despite the fact that there was no money out of recurrent revenue, they went ahead and spent $18.1 million on Capital. We saw in 1992 the accumulated deficit rising to $21.7 million.

What does this add up to? It adds up to the fact that if you are spending more than you are making, then you are headed into bankruptcy. It is impossible to continue this trend. That is, in my view, one of the compelling factors why the electorate in this country totally removed the three Executive Council Members who ran in the 1992 elections. They had taken over from a Government (comprised of Sir Vassel Johnson, the previous Financial Secretary; Capt. Charles Kirkconnell - two very good businessmen who had run the country well during that period) and ran the country into a stage where they had losses of some $21.7 million in 1992 alone. This is frightening because we have to remember that simultaneously Cayman Airways was losing $34.6 million in two and a half years. When you add it together, you are looking at nearly a $60 million loss in a matter of three years. That is frightening, and the plans were already in place from the previous Government to borrow the $20 million for Cayman Airways.

When we look at 1993 we see the beginning of the turn around in the country. Slowly, the turn was taking place because this Government, the National Team, knew that you cannot go on spending more than you are making, or one day reality comes back and you are bankrupt.

In 1993 the recurrent revenue was $135.3 million and the recurrent and statutory expenditure remained the same at $124.1 million. In fact, it was half a million dollars less than the previous year. We therefore had $11.2 million to contribute to Capital. That is the first time since 1989 that there had been any significant contribution to Capital.

In that year the Cayman Airways loan for CI$16.7 went through. Therefore, we had that which was brought into the accounts at the time, but it went to pay past debts. This was not Capitalisation as I mentioned earlier that we had put in place. In fact, the Motion was passed in June of 1992, but the loan could not be borrowed by Government.

When we got in, they would not lend us the money either. The banks wanted to see our budget. They wanted to see that we were going to take the necessary steps to correct the finances of the country, or we could not get the money. It was not until the summer after we had put in place the necessary checks and balances. In fact, I think it was nearly a year later that we were able to borrow the $20 million US for Cayman Airways to pay the last Government's losses.

Another thing (and I will deal with this under another heading), Motion 3/90 had been reversed where a minority of four or five Elected Members along with the three Official Members could dictate the finances of this country. It is totally different now. It is a very vast majority of 10 Members on the Backbench and five Members of the Government.

At that time there were only four Elected Members of Executive Council, and eight on the Backbench. We know (and I will deal with that in some depth later on) the trend that we set, whereby our revenue was exceeding our expenditure as it did in that year by $11.2 million, continued, in 1994 recurrent revenue was $152.1 million and the expenditure was $138.2 million, leaving a surplus of $13.9 million.

I would like to use an example here. This was like taking money out of one's salary and paying a lump sum payment on a house. We were at that stage putting $13.9 million to buy Capital - paying for roads, paying for schools, paying for whatever. This is a very important aspect because the country had, for the first time, seen a turn around in its finances.

In 1995 the contribution to Capital was estimated at $17.2 million with recurrent revenue running $171.9 million. Madam Speaker, what I have here dealt with the estimates then, but, as far as I know, they were substantially the same in the final accounts. So we had $171.9 million in recurrent revenue, and recurrent and statutory expenditure was $154.7 million which gave $17.2 million, or thereabout (somewhat less than that, I think $14 million) contributed to Capital. It was a surplus, money that the country had made as a profit and then put back into Capital Expenditure.

This year there will be the same trend. We will make more money than we are spending on recurrent revenue.

What does this all add up to? We had the three years of constant spending. The last government's main role was to spend, and spend, and spend. Nobody paid any attention to trying to increase the revenue of the country, except (and I hope the country never forgets this) the $10 million taxes put on by them shortly after they got in after the 1988 Election, and a further $10 million in 1990 - $20 million in taxes. Even with that, they showed shortfalls in their revenue. In other words, they made $3 million less than they spent in the three years (1991-1992) and they proceeded to spend $49 million on Capital Expenditure and that was either taken from the reserves or it was borrowed. The borrowings got quite heavy. As I said, in 1991 alone, the loan was $14.1 million.

These people are coming back, that government, in the form of Mr. Ezzard Miller and Mr. Linford Pierson, telling this country that they can save them. They cannot help themselves, and they sure did not help this country financially in the four years they were in. Despite a boast that was made by Mr. Linford Pierson, who said, I am an accountant, and this is good for the country', or a good deal, or whatever, and he consistently said that he was an accountant. He knew better, but he (or the Government) went on a spending spree that bankrupted this country. I do not believe that the people of this country are prepared to put people of that sort back into this Executive Council because the trend is going to be repeated.

All that saved this country during the previous Government's four years is that they had a very heavy and well put together and organised Opposition that kept them from the excessive spending such as the $200 million on the Master Ground Transportation Plan and the millions and millions of dollars that were wasted on contracts that did not go through the Tenders Committee (and I have a list of those that I will deal with under this).

What have we done for the country financially for the past three years? In 1993 we paid towards previous governments' debts $9.58 million; in 1994 we paid $8.85 million; in 1995 we paid $15.40 million and this year (while I do not have the figure on that) it is probably going to be somewhere nearer to $15 million, maybe $12 or $13 million. So, in three years we repaid nearly $34 million on the past governments' debts. During that period, our borrowings were under $10 million.

During that time as well, the National Team contributed about $40 million to Capital. In other words, our surplus was approximately $40 million that we put into Capital works - roads, schools, playfields, the infrastructure of the country. So, all in all, we can say that between the repayments and the loans in the three years, and the contributions to Capital, that we have seen some $70-odd million to the good.

This is very important because the previous government in its three bad years, and in the year after the election (we were stuck with the previous years' government), they also had the previous years' governments' budget, so to speak, or projects to carry on. Other than where the government of 1984 to 1988 left the budget (and in that year, 1989, they did quite well because in 1988 the difference between the recurrent revenue and the expenditure was $12.5 million) the last government (not the last government, the one before that of 1984 to 1988) actually left the country in very good shape. There are no two ways about it. They had two good businessmen as I mentioned earlier, an ex-Financial Secretary, and a former Executive Council Member, Capt. Charles. They had the country on a good footing. The deterioration came in the last two years, extending over into the runoff of the following year of the previous government.

To do some of the major projects this year, there will have to be a limited amount of borrowing by the Government. We cannot get out of that. But out of this $70 million that we have contributed at this stage, we have only borrowed under $10 million. That is very important because the country is about $60 million to the good at this time between the contribution of the $33 or $34 million to repayments of loans and the $40 million of the surplus that we have made that has gone into the payment for Capital works.

Team Cayman produced what they called 'The Frightening Facts' in an advertisement in the Caymanian Compass that cost them obviously a lot of money. I want to just say this: When you find people (speaking generally now) with no apparent sizeable means of wealth, spending substantial sums of money (and am speaking generally), which obviously may not have come from their own sources, then it is obvious that it had to be raised through gifts from someone else, or through loans that they have borrowed. When I place ads in the paper I do not splurge, because I know the value of money. It is my money, that is the difference.

Speaking generally, the public needs to watch people (some without apparent jobs at the time) who will be coming up in this next election carefully - the very heavy expenditure, for example, on television ads. That is a lot of money. These are thousands and thousands of dollars that have to be paid out.

The same way that they take the gifts from other people and spend that money in a very generous way, I submit that those people should not be put in this Legislative Assembly because they are going to take the public's money and waste it the same way that they are wasting the gifts they have gotten for the upcoming elections.

Gifts do not come without conditions. If somebody gives $10,000 to somebody, for example, it carries with it...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER (Relevance and False Imputation)

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: On the matter of relevance, and also the matter of imputing that a declared political group, that is, Team Cayman, has accepted gifts which may be questionable. He is assessing how much Team Cayman apparently spent on certain ads. Perhaps he could tell the House how much it cost the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development to be on the television 54 minutes...

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman...

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: ...scandalising Mary Lawrence.

The Speaker: I am afraid that is not a point of order. Both of you will have to take this up in your election campaign. This is not for the House to be told about anything like that.

I would ask the Honourable Minister if he could proceed and try not to talk about assumptions of who may have received gifts or anything else. This should not be brought into the House at this time. It is not part of the Governor's Throne Speech.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I was very careful to say 'speaking generally'. If that honourable Member had been in the House he would have heard that. I did not impute anything to him, let me just say that.

The Speaker: I am aware of that, Honourable Minister. I made a note that you did say 'speaking generally': But you did say 'Team Cayman', and you did mention gifts of $10,000, or whatever it was. Please avoid that in the future. Thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Fair enough, Madam Speaker. If the hat fits, so be it.

The advertisement put out by Team Cayman called 'The Frightening Facts', covered four pages. They tried to frighten the country with the facts in that, of which some were fully erroneous. The Financial Secretary laid a paper on the Table of this House showing that what had been put in the advertisement by Team Cayman was incorrect. Instead of the debt increasing the way they had tried to show it, it had, in fact, actually gone down in the year they said it had increased by $24.4 million.

This is what is frightening, Madam Speaker, about putting in people who will cause this type of frightening thing. Sure, what was put in that advertisement was frightening. But it was not true. The Honourable Financial Secretary laid on the Table of this House the truth. Instead of increasing by $24 million, it had, in fact, gone down.

I am going to talk a bit about what is frightening, because this was also raised by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. Past history (speaking generally) has shown that the way society has been attacked and the way people have risen to power who could not have otherwise gotten into power is when they create frightening things; when they have attacked the investors of the country and when their move is to destroy the Government at any cost - which normally means destroying the country. If the country is brought to its feet it is very simple for people who would not be in positions of prominence to get in there at that stage. They disrupt the country. That has financially, socially and politically destroyed many a country in the Caribbean.

The attacks that relate to talking about fear and corruption, which the First Elected Member for Bodden Town mentioned in his speech, is the type of thing that should not be brought up publicly in this House unless there are very clear facts to support it. This is the way fear is created - wild allegations saying (as the Member said): "I am beginning to become alarmed now at the fear many Caymanians have about the country being sold out. Indeed, the mention of corruption, and corrupt practices in its myriad forms are expressed time and again by persons with whom I come in contact . . ." [Hansard 29th February, 1996]

This is not correct in my view. This country is stable. This country lives under a free democratic rule. If it did not, then the two Opposition Members would not have the freedom that they have in this House: They say what they want, they put whatever motions they want, they have their say and nobody stops them from having their say; they get up on public platforms and have that say. They come in here...

Mr. Roy Bodden: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER
(Misrepresentation)

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, First Elected Member for Bodden Town?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker, the misrepresentation of language and the accusation of misrepresentation. I did not mention anything about an undemocratic government. I said that people with whom I come in contact express fear of corruption. Is the Honourable Minister saying that he has proof that I have not been approached by these persons concerning this fear? Or is he twisting my argument to say that I am saying that the country is undemocratic?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, may I hear a further explanation as to your reason for...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the undemocratic part relates to my views of this country. What I said in relation to the expression of fear and corruption was that if somebody comes to that Member and talks about fear and corruption he should be responsible enough to ask them 'what is your fear?', and 'where is the corruption?'; but not to come into this House and make wild allegations like this. This is my view, and it has nothing to do with twisting the facts because I have in my hand what that honourable Member has said.

What I am saying now relates to the fact that I do not agree with what that honourable Member has said. I am saying that this is a democratic country in which there is no fear and no wide-spread corruption and no corrupt practices, or whatever has been alleged in this. That is all I am saying.

They are my views, I am not attributing them to him, because he is looking at the negative side of this – I am looking at the positive. This is the reason why people succeed in life, they take a positive approach.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I will say that I must agree that there have been so many expressions which could best have been avoided in this House, and I would say that the view you have expressed is a very reasonable expression in view of what has been said.

On the other hand, I am sure that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town is quite correct when he said that he had been approached by people who probably feel some fear. But people can be afraid without really pinpointing where the fear might come from, or what might happen. The other point which you have stated is that we could look at the things which have happened in other Caribbean territories; and while it does not necessarily mean that it is going to happen here, one should be on guard.

I feel right now that in the future all Members need to be very particular in the expression of any ideas or opinions in this House which could give rise to different views being taken. I do not consider this a valid point of order for me to rule on. I am just asking Members to be careful and, in the future when discussing matters, to stay with the issues.

Shall we get away from picking on what other people have said? If someone comes up with a deliberate misrepresentation of a fact... you have stated that an issue was published by certain people and that the Financial Secretary corrected it with a paper, and I think that is all that needs to be said. If someone has said something that is incorrect and it is corrected, just leave it at that. It has been corrected. I know it is election time, but when it comes to matters of the Throne Speech, I do not think that we should really go too much into explaining what you feel other Members meant.

Can I ask you to proceed with caution, Honourable Minister?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am, however, in a position of winding up. So I have to deal with what has been put forward by other Members. Indeed, it is my duty to deal with what has been put forward. That is all that I was trying to do, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: I appreciate that, sir. I am just asking if you would be very careful in expressing your opinions on matters which might give rise to misunderstandings or anything else which would not add to the debate on the Governor's Throne Speech.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Sure.

However, Madam Speaker, what I am now doing is expressing my opinion on the state of this country. It has nothing to do with any Members of this House. That is what I would like to go on and develop.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: In a country where we have 48 of the largest 50 banks, in a country where we have some of the largest insurance companies from other countries in the world, there can be no doubt that the financial and economic status of this country is extremely good. It is excellent; otherwise they would not be here. We have to be careful with what is said or done in this country that we do not drive that business away. It is important that the country remain stable. To get that stability there has to be sound people with sound business knowledge in positions where decisions are being taken. Any derogation from that principle, any attempt to instill instability or fear or anything else that is not supported by fact is, in my opinion, irresponsible by anyone who makes those statements.

We did not get here over night. It has taken a lot of hard work by people like Sir Vassel Johnson, people in the Service and in this Honourable House, to get where we are today. I do not intend to stand here and see it destroyed by a few frustrated people who have never made it in their business or in their lives, and I am speaking generally.

Mr. Roy Bodden: You ought to look around and see some of your friends.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It seems like the cap fits someone. I hear rumblings in the background.

Mr. Roy Bodden: That is right. I said look around at some of your friends and see if they are making it at their businesses.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The position here with the bringing in of the Stock Exchange Law will further consolidate Cayman's position. It is important that we project abroad an image of stability in these islands to continue the business of this country; especially people in the Executive Council and in this House and in positions in the Civil Service where decisions are being taken to go abroad to represent this country. It has to be responsible people with some experience at projecting the right image and the right attitude - and it has to be a positive attitude.

I have gotten where I am in life (and I am very happy with it) because I have a positive attitude. I look at things and I try to see what is good about them, and how we can go about developing an idea or a business. Not the approach where people are saying 'how can I find something to criticise in this?', or 'why is it bad?' You cannot achieve any heights in this world by taking negative attitudes, especially when the negative attitudes are not supported with viable alternatives.

To criticise in this House and have no alternative does not help this country, it hurts it. That is why I am now trying to put forward (and I believe this Government has put forward) what is needed to keep this country financially stable.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Why do you not ask—

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the rumbings continue over in that corner. The saying goes, 'You throw a rock, he who squeals got hit.'

I would like to go on to deal with an area that I left when I was speaking before, and that is Tourism.

We have seen strides in Tourism that are unprecedented. We have seen the Minister for Tourism, very ably and capably, take this country along, open up the areas of tourism in Europe and the Far East that are so vital for spreading tourism throughout so that we are not dependent on the North American Continent totally. He has made vast improvements in the structure of the department; that Minister has spearheaded many moves that have been very positive and the results have been good.

This is what the National Team is saying at this stage: Look at the facts. The country is in a very good financial position. Tourism is up, we have direct flights out of London; and this has come about by the investors in this country, the people in the hotel and tourism industry having a good Minister and a good Government and National Team to support the development of this country.

We have to remember that Tourism is the largest source of revenue in this country to the Government. It affects all aspects of our society. The tourist dollars are spread over all and I commend the Honourable Minister in what he has done and I will support him in every way possible to continue this trend. In fact, this is what Cayman has been built on - the positive approach that has brought into this country the necessary infrastructure and development.

From there, I would now like to go on to deal with an area in Agriculture, Environment, Communication and Works. The Honourable Minister has quite a work load, and the difficulty of some of these departments (difficult from the point of complexity and demands on the Minister to deal with certain things), and I am very happy that he has very capably (since 1976 both in this House and on Executive Council) been able to propel this Ministry to great heights.

That Honourable Minister is a very quiet and unassuming person, very much the way I used to be in some of the earlier years. I am still the same, but I now believe in defending when I have to defend, where, perhaps in the past, I took a docile approach to it. He has taken and moved complex areas, but extremely vital areas, such as Lands and Survey, into the computer age. I know that was begun previously by the Honourable Minister who had it then, but we see the Lands and Survey Department, which is so crucial to the contribution, not only to the Cayman Islands generally, but to the revenue of this country, getting a very advanced mapping system, a very advanced registry system in place and this has been tied in with the advances in the Companies Register, which is under a different Minister.

Undoubtedly, I think that the Minister for Agriculture will best be known for getting Agriculture, which was not just neglected for the four years that the then Executive Council Member, Mr. Linford Pierson, had it, but it was abandoned during that period. We saw the destruction of things like the Agricultural show.

Telecommunications is a complex subject. Prior to this I had the responsibility for dealing with one aspect of the radio and television licences. Most of that has now been completed as was stated in the Minute which was laid on the Table of this honourable House earlier. The last of that is now being dealt with. But these are complex legal matters. Putting together a contract relating to television or radio is not something which can be done overnight.

I fully commend him. He has some difficult parts to his Ministry in that it is hard to please everyone, such as, the Protection Conservation Unit under the Department of the Environment, but the National Team's approach, which has been clearly shown, is that we are prepared to take all necessary and reasonable steps to protect the environment, bearing in mind, as one Member said earlier, that protection of the human race has to ultimately come before protection of the fish and trees. But we have that balance and we have always tried to get it right - to preserve as much as we possibly can without totally stopping development in the country.

I would now like to deal with what has received quite a bit of criticism and talk - the Health Services, If I had to choose a person to take over the maze of legal complexities of health, and what was in fact a tangle, then I would at any time choose the Honourable Minister for Health. In his own quiet way he has very ably come to grips with a complex situation that was very politically explosive, and used as a whipping horse by certain political figures in this country against the National Team.

He has brought calm and I can nearly say serenity to that area; he has taken a larger part of the politics out of it. He has organised a totally disorganised area because with the dismantling of the statutory corporation it takes a while to put the pieces together as they should have been left from the early stages. The results will be that the country will get a first class medical facility at the end of the day. The Honourable Minister believes that, the staff at the hospital and the Health Services believe that, and they fully support him.

His process of sharing the decision-making and the power through strategic planning is one of the best things that he could have done. He has pulled together people who are looking at the positive side. It is so easy to criticise and tear things down, it is not easy to build up. It takes a while to pull together the highly professional staff to support such a major but critical undertaking. If the expenditure for that hospital saves one life that would otherwise not have been saved, it will be worth the fight and the cost.

The Minister for Health has my full and dedicated support. I will assist him in any way that I can. I know that the people of Bodden Town are as proud of that Minister as the National Team is. I know they will show that in the next election.

The Minister has taken a new approach to the difficult area of Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation. He has taken a positive approach to this area. We do not have to cast our memories back very far when the former Minister for Health (Mr. Ezzard Miller) made the statement that he would write off a generation of the youth of this country, an alarming statement which has now been turned around and we are seeing a reversal of the approach. It is not correct to write people who are hooked on drugs off. No one in the human race should ever be written off, much less a generation of the youth of this country. We have seen the reduction in crime in this area. We have seen the positive effects of the counselling system and the development of the Cayman Counselling Centre. We have seen inroads made at Northward Prison where at one stage, and perhaps even now, over half of the population have gone there because of crimes related to illegal drugs.

Having begun the Ministry half way through has made it, in my view, about four times as difficult for that Honourable Member to achieve what he has in such a short period. There are talkers and there are doers, and in Bodden Town the two National Team Members, the lady Member and the Minister for Health, are doers - they get things done. They are the people that this country needs.

From there I would like to deal with some of the criticism, even though I know this has been very ably dealt with by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture. He has a very diverse portfolio in his Ministry and he has taken the Social Services area, which I must say was under me for eight years, and I found that most difficult to deal with because of the diversity of the problems. There would be problems relating to the elderly, for example, who needed money to assist them with food, or there was the situation of abused wives or situations of juveniles who needed care and protection. Nearly every decision has to be taken on the basis of a subjective approach. You have to look at the person, you have to look at the situation and then deal with it. That is what makes it so complex. He has very ably come to grips with this, he and the Department, and he has carried out the National Team's view that if people are in need, the Government must help.

However, for those people who can help themselves and do not do so, my view is very clear - they do not need help, they need to learn to work and get a job. That may seem a bit harsh, but that is the reality of the situation. The Government cannot spread itself to the stage where people who have the ability to support themselves are supported by Government. The policy is clearly not to do that, but to help those who need help.

The National Pensions Law that will be coming to this House, hopefully in June, is one that will be implemented, as the Minister stated, the following year; so the impact of that will not come in this year. It would not be right, in my view, to have both the Medical Insurance and the National Pensions Laws impacting on employers and employees at the same time. It would be heavy. So that will be set apart and the public need not fear that there will suddenly be two areas (the Pensions, as well as the Medical Insurance) coming in at one time.

Sports: The Honourable Minister for Sports has done more in these three years (and I am man enough to admit it) than was done by any of us in the past for sports. At one stage it was under my Ministry. I did as much as I could with the means that we had at the time, but the youth of this country owe the Minister for Sports a great debt for what he has done in sports. As I say to school children when I attend the sports day at the schools, a healthy body contributes to a healthy mind. It also has, in my view, been one of the areas with the most impact on reducing juvenile crime which has dropped by half in the last three years. That is absolutely amazing. The churches, youth clubs, sports clubs and the Lion's and other service clubs have altogether, with a lot of work by individuals, contributed to the turn for the better we are seeing with our youth. There is no monetary value that we can put on that. That generation will come up with a far more wholesome and better outlook and they are the people who will fill these Honourable Chambers in due course and money that is invested in sports cannot be better invested.

Madam Speaker, the . . . I cannot really call it the Democratic Alliance, but I know that Mr. Linford's theme seems to be what has been done in George Town?' I spoke earlier on the roads that had been done, the improvements in the schools, and I would now like to deal with the improvement in sports in George Town.

We have seen the completion of the Sports Complex that was named after me (which I originally began), and I thank the Minister and National Team for supporting the Complex being named after me. However, that has put Cayman into the international competitive sports world. Until we could have a facility that was of an international and an Olympic standard then our athletes would always be at a disadvantage. What was done by the last government or the previous one... when I left that sports complex in 1984 it had an asphalt track which was the base for laying the rubberised track that is now on it. Much had been done to lay it out. After about two years that asphalt becomes very hard. If anyone in this honourable House has seen a child's knees and hands when they go down on that asphalt while running they would appreciate that if Mr. Linford, Mr. Ezzard (or whoever) wants to ask what has been done in George Town, I would ask them why they did not do something about that. Why did they not finish the sports complex? Do you know the amount of injuries that young children have had on that asphalt? It was totally left, literally abandoned for the next eight years.

If the people of this country, especially the parents of school children can thank anyone, then they can thank the Minister for Health for upgrading that field. Do you know what is amazing? The people who are criticising are out in their little shorts running around on that same track and then turning around saying that we should not spend the money on it. I must correct myself, I meant the Minister for Sports. I guess I had health on my mind thinking of the damage to young children when they fell on that track. That has been put in place and it is a first class facility used by the critics who continue to criticise it - so it has to be good!

Despite a bit of criticism in relation to the Annex, or the George Town Primary field, the Minister explained that the field itself was subject to the Football Association, and they had put the little building on it. The maintenance for that falls under Sports. That is why I think the Third Elected Member for West Bay was, perhaps, attempting to contribute to the school something that was not their responsibility. But a lot has been done there. We have seen an upgrading of the Annex. We have seen several things in the area of improved clearing of litter, because after a football match there can be a fair amount of litter there.

We have also had the private sector involved, the Park and Playfield at the Watler's Road area has now been leased from Government. A club house with the company playfield, squash courts and possibly tennis and basketball courts will be going in. This will be another plus for George Town. The Johnson & Higgins part of the Park at Spotts which is being developed by them, is one that will also enhance sports in the area. The Lion's pool did not go in during the last government's tenure of office, it went in during ours. That has been upgraded and we thank the Lions for what they do in that area.

There has been upgrading on the George Hicks playing field and at the Smith Road old agricultural grounds. Quite frankly, the Wights should bow down to the Minister for Sports every time they cross because that Minister is building them a first class cricket pitch in West Bay. Even at that we continue to upgrade the field that they play on.

We have assisted with the upgrading of the Prep School playfield and these were largely private sector, but with some assistance from Government here and there. Also, the John Gray playfield. The Ministry is going to assist a church with the development of a park.

We have seen Government put down the sports floor to facilitate indoor sports such as basket ball, net ball and volley ball at the Lion's Centre. We have seen all of that come to fruition and we have seen international matches played there.

There have been talks with the Yacht Club in relation to sailing and also talks for assistance with the Tennis Club. There have been considerable grants made to 33 national sports associations, many of these are George Town people. So this is what the National Team has done for George Town, including cricket, softball, football, sailing, etcetera.

At the Washington Square and at Watler's Road, we have seen the park that we have put in place there with the assistance of the people which has also been assisting the youth. We have seen the Youth Centre which the Rotary Central Club was involved with.

There are a lot of programmes and facilities which have been put in place. Also, the bus shelter programme continues in George Town. Where were the bus shelters from the last Government? They were all promises to the little man whom they abandoned after they got in.

We also have coaches, and this is very important because we are not just dealing with facilities, but the Minister for Sports has put coaches in the foot ball, basket ball, net ball, cricket, swimming, track and field athletics. Those first five are already in place, the other will be appointed. Most of these people who use these facilities are in George Town.

I am very proud of what the National Team has done in George Town. I am very proud, as well, of what the Fourth Elected Member for George Town has done for his George Towners, even if his colleague seems to believe that nothing has been done in George Town. That is one thing that I believe will get straightened out after I state all of these facts.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, could you take a suspension at this time?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.26 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.52 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning, continuing his debate.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Minister for Agriculture has reminded me that in the Agricultural Department recognition was shown to 25 persons in the form of awards at a function held at the Grand Pavilion Hotel on 20th January, 1996, at a function which he hosted. These officers had given from five to 22 years of dedicated service to the promotion of agriculture to these islands. I would like to join him in also adding my congratulations to them. We have a lot of good people in the Civil Service.

We had something similar to this at Cayman Airways in which 10 year to 25 year pins were given out.

The Chief Education Officer is fairly ill, and I would ask Members of this Honourable House if they would remember her in their prayers. We hope for her speedy recovery.

The Water Authority (page 26 of the Throne Speech) has now gotten onto a sound footing. The Minister for Sports and the Water Authority has done a very exceptional job in clearing up and getting this Authority back on a good footing. I think that the problems which surrounded the Water Authority were very concisely summed up by the Auditor General in the 1993 report where he said, at page 34, that he had carried out an audit on the water authority. He said this: "The results of this exercise confirmed under-billing of $2,634 on two accounts, plus under-billing of $1,880 on one other account. These irregularities occurred during the period August 1991 to January 1993 and were attributable to the deliberate manipulation of water meter readings. This practice appears to have ceased completely with effect from January 1993."

Well, that was when the National Team Government got in and the manipulation and under-billings stopped. We know that one of those under-billings was for the Minister, Mr. Linford Pierson, and one was for the manager.

One other area on this which that shows we are getting back on a good footing is that the large sums that were spent in the Water Authority and the irregularities that were found there (and we know that the manager is no longer there, he ceased to be manager under the National Team's Government) during the last Government's time (and I am still reading from the Auditor General's Report): "The Audit Office is presently engaged in a comprehensive audit of the Bodden Town Water Supply project which is focusing on: - materials supply contracts with Propax Industries Exports Limited..." We know that was a cheque for some $800,000 that he was investigating at that time - and still is, I understand. I will say no more on it except to say that if the National Team had not intervened there, this continuation of what appears to have been deliberate misappropriation (the under-billing of water bills and what not) - and the Bible tells us that he who is dishonest in little is dishonest in much, or words to that effect.

I will move off this now to go on to deal with an area that was touched on and dealt with in some depth - the Bill of Rights and the Constitution.

There is a Select Committee on the Bill of Rights sitting which is comprised of all Elected Members of this Honourable House. That has been sitting for some time, and is now getting into an advanced stage. This was raised at a time when the Constitution was under review. I would like to put that in its proper historical perspective.

We know that the Majority Report of the Legislature, dated 28th October, 1991, which was signed by the two Opposition Members and all of the then Government, Mr. Linford, Mr. Ezzard and the other Members, sought to introduce a series of amendments to the Constitution. The first one we find in paragraph 5 (and I am taking this from page 15 of the report) was that the then government recommended: “(ii) that the number of Official Members be reduced from 3 to 2...” So, they were taking an Official Member out of the House. That would have been (of all people) the First Official Member, the Chief Secretary.

In paragraph 6 headed “Creation of the Post of Chief Minister, they recommended...”

Mr. Roy Boddén: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER (Relevance)

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, First Elected Member for Boddén Town?

Mr. Roy Boddén: Yes, Madam Speaker, relevance. Is the Honourable Minister addressing his comments to the Bill of Rights (or the absence of a Bill of Rights), or is the Honourable Minister addressing his comments to the Constitutional Recommendations which was not a part of the Throne Speech?

The Speaker: First Elected Member for Boddén Town, that is not a point of order because the Governor in his Throne Speech did speak about the various committees which have not yet concluded their deliberations. The Committee on the Bill of Rights is one of those. The Minister may continue.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

We also found that the recommendation of the Bill of Rights came at the time when another recommendation (which perhaps some Members of this House do not want to hear) that “the post of Chief Minister be created and held by an Elected Member of the Assembly.” In paragraph 8, the appointment was by the party itself.

The tenure of office of Ministers at paragraph 11 stated that “...subject to the Committee’s recommendation there shall be two Official Members. It is recommended that the new Constitution provide that the seat of an Elected Member shall become vacant, the Chief Minister vacates his office, or, if the Minister’s appointment is revoked by the Governor, acting in accordance with the advice of the Chief Minister...”

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, I am going to have to stop you there because the discussion, or the point made by the Governor in the Throne Speech....

Will you sit for a moment while I speak, please?

The Governor made a point about Committees, and one Committee was the Select Committee on the Bill of Rights. I do not think it is necessary for you to go into any details because whatever happened prior to that, the Bill of Rights is now before the Committee. It is on that issue that you should be speaking, please.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, I was trying to set the history behind how that came up. I will move off that. Needless to say, a lot of this came about at a time when the country had rejected the Constitutional Amendments put forward by the then Government and the two Opposition Members, which people would perhaps like to forget. But this is the time when this Committee came about as a result of these things.

The Committee itself is sitting with all Elected Members and actions taken have (as can be seen from these reports) by and large been unanimous. It is coming to a stage where the public will be invited to give their views.

The stability of this country came about as a result of the clear rejection of views that are now currently held by would-be politicians, who are attempting to get into this House who support taking this country into independence. I will move off that subject.

I would like to go into depth in relation to the hospital site itself. Abandoning the hospital site which the last government had chosen was clearly understood by the public when the election results came out. But it was known to Members before that time what the public view was.

In a poll that was taken on the 22nd and 23rd of April, 1992, a survey, carried out by the Committee to elect Mr. Linford Pierson, found that only 20% said that we should go into building the new hospital at that time, and 54% said no. The public has always clearly preferred the site that this hospital is now on. It is hard to reconcile the fence-jumping that we have seen when we know that the First Elected Member for Boddén Town very clearly rejected the new hospital site (in our Manifesto, the National Team’s Manifesto) and said that it should be built where the present hospital now is.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Madam Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER
(Misleading)

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, First Elected Member for Boddén Town?

Mr. Roy Boddén: The Honourable Minister is deliberately misleading and imputing false and unavowed motives to me because nowhere in the National Team’s Manifesto is it stated that the hospital should be built on the site of the present one.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Let me put this beyond a doubt by just reading what this says. That is all I intend to say. What I have said goes beyond that. It says under Health Services: "We are against building of the new hospital in the swamp [that is the site of the new hospital - the swamp] and we will review the hospital plans and documents and accordingly take any necessary action which is legal and prudent."

"We are against the building of the new hospital in the swamp." Very clear. That is all I am saying. I am not trying to take it beyond that. But...

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I take your point and I must say that this is not a point of order because what you have read there clearly says that the hospital would not be built in the swamp and at that time the proposal was to build a hospital in the swamp, so that would have been the site.

That is not a point of order. Please continue.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It is going to be difficult for the differing views that obviously exist, both in relation to what some Members of the Team Cayman, such as the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, hold, and those of, for example, Mr. Ezzard Miller, who Obviously is, and was totally committed to putting the hospital in the swamp.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman up until not that long ago had made some very strong, and I should say very clear, statements that the hospital should not be built in the swamp. This was on the 11th March, 1992, when that honourable Member said: "I have believed for a long time that the present Hospital can serve us for some time yet and that steps should be taken to improve certain areas of it to a certain standard so that the physical plant can be in a position to..." do a better job. That was also reinforced when that honourable Member said on the 19th November, 1992: "I personally believe the MRCU should ideally be moved from there. Take that to the area of land that Government now owns in the swamp on the dyke road..." He went on to say: "Knock it down, use that large area there that the people of this country have forever known as the hospital and build a new hospital there in phases. I cannot support the idea of entering headlong into three major expenses at one time in that area."

Lastly, in the Hansard of the 11th March, 1992, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said this: "Madam Speaker, this situation is one where I think the Government has failed and the Member [that is, Mr. Ezzard Miller] has failed to do what they should have done in the time since this was first given until now. I think it is largely due to the desire to build a new hospital since the time that the needs for the present Hospital were identified."

Clearly, in 1992 the views of both the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman were that the last Government (of which Mr. Ezzard Miller was a Member, actually a Minister responsible for Health) stated categorically that the Government had failed and that he (Mr. Ezzard Miller) had failed. That supports fully our position that not only did the public hold the view that we should build a hospital where the Minister for Health is putting it (on the present site), but every Member in this House, including the Opposition, held that view and also probably campaigned on it - and won the election on it, at least one Member did - as part of the National Team.

How the Democratic Alliance will reconcile these major differences in views is left to be seen. I think it is so important that the public and this Honourable House be reminded that the National Team is still together (with the exception of one Member) as it was three and a half years ago.

I have one other area which deals with a lot of what has been said about financial controls. I am aware that there is a request by the Third Official Member to rise early.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the break?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.15 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.42 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning, continuing. I think you have 20 minutes left.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Budget and Management Unit and the question of control and accountability: What we have done is to apply the Financial and Stores Regulations to the Statutory Authorities and this came because of the many contracts that were given out in 1989, 1990 and 1991 that did not comply and, in fact, had not passed through the Central Tender's Committee but were actually given out directly by the Ministers at that time.

As an example of this, the Auditor General in his 1989 Report, after saying that he had carried out a review of the procedures that Government uses to contract, stated: "43 (ii) Significant numbers of contracts are not scrutinised or approved by the Central Tenders Committee." He actually listed 18 of them in 1989 which were not approved by the Central Tenders Committee that were over $100,000 and should have been approved. Secondly, he stated: "43 (iii) Contracts for consultancy services are not always subject to open competition and large consultancy contracts have not been reviewed by the Central Tenders Committee." Lastly, he said: "4.3 (iv) Not all original copies of government contracts are passed by Controlling Officers to the Accountant General for his safe keeping."

One example that he gave was that one contract for some $1.2 million was considered by the Committee but was let in 1990 by the Department concerned before full approval was obtained from the Committee. We know that was the Motorola Contract.

It has been very good to see the stand that has been taken by the churches in recent times. I would like to thank Reverend Cowan for his call for peaceful elections in his letter. Also, the churches' stand in relation to gambling which is clearly ruled out in our Manifesto.

The beginning of these Sessions in this House by prayer (and also Cayman Airways Board Meetings begin with prayer), and the support we get from the prayer sessions here at lunch time is very good. It is very much in line with the view that despite the differing views and people, the one thing that can unite people is prayer and the Lord. I think that it is so important that all Members should attend as often as possible.

We have seen a fair amount of negative press from time to time. In relation to that, I often wonder why the press on the television does not cover things like 300 children on Sports Day. It would give such a good positive impression instead of normally someone talking about the negative things, crime or some nonsense going on in politics or whatever. I would call on them to not take literally the press adage that 'the only good news is bad news', but to get some good news in there.

Look at it another way - if you have 600 parents looking at the television screen to see their child on Sports Day, that has to be something that will financially help the television, even if only for that reason.

The call for peaceful elections is most important at the present time in view of the problems that the three Elected Members for George Town have had. I think it is the duty of all candidates to ensure that their staunch supporters are kept away from causing any breach of the peace or breaking of any laws. Reverend Cowan's letter was very timely as it came a few days after the disruption of our meeting.

I believe that the public is looking to put people in who abide by the peaceful way of life that we know. If someone wishes to have a meeting, then they have every right to have it, and they should be heard.

The country on a whole is in a very good position. One area that I support, and I will assist (and I have assisted with the Battered Wives Amendment to the Law) the two lady Members who have spearheaded the entrenching of the women's desk. The lady Member for North Side who is very able, both nationally and internationally (I think she has been on far more conferences and represented us abroad more than any other lady Member within the House, excluding yourself, Madam Speaker). . . she is very capable and established this very early and, with the Third Elected Member for George Town, along with the lady Member from Bodden Town, she will continue to push forward in this area I am sure. Whatever support I can give, I will be happy to do so.

I would also like to thank the stalwart of sports, the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, for all that he has done, especially in the area of Boxing. Throughout the years, long before he was a politician, he gave very much of his time to the youth of this country, and he continues to do so.

Lastly, I would like to also thank the Second Elected Member for George Town for all that he has done in the area of medicine and health services. He has spent a lot of time assisting the Minister for Health, and also sitting on boards there. I guess that until the reality of five weeks of constant Legislative Assembly where we can get very little else done comes home, do people realise the sacrifice that Members in the Legislative Assembly do give for their country. However, I think it is one's duty, and what I have done over the last 20 years I have done fully for my country and will continue to do so as long as possible.

At this stage, I think my call is for a positive approach when it comes to propelling the economy along and for people and politicians generally to avoid attacks that are unjustified in relation to scare tactics, fear and this sort of thing. We have a good country and, if I may say so, we have a good Government. The country is in a good financial state. There can be no doubt that with the country in the state it is now and with things moving the way they are, continuity is the key to the future. We must continue on the course that we are now taking, and to do so there are no better people to do it than those who have put the country on the course that it is on.

I pray that Almighty God will continue to help the country, help its people and I believe that with His help we can achieve much more.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The debate on the address delivered by His Excellency the Governor, having now been concluded, I shall put the Motion: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable Legislative Assembly record its grateful thanks to His Excellency the Governor for the address delivered at this Meeting.

SECOND READINGS

FIREARMS (AMENDMENT) BILL 1996

Clerk: The Firearms (Amendment) Bill, 1996.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I beg to move that a Bill for a Law to amend the Firearms Law, 1995 (Revised), be given a second reading.

This amending Bill comes about following amendments that were made to the Firearms Law in 1993. Members will recall that the amendment at that time substantially increased the penalties available to the courts for the more serious firearms' offences. That had a number of results, one of which is to be rectified by the amending Bill before the House at this time.

The offences now carry substantially increased penalties. Because of this they have been taken out of the automatic jurisdiction of the Summary Court.

There are some offences in the Firearms Law that specifically state that they are dealt with, can be dealt with, and should be dealt with, summarily. But for the more serious offences that was not stated. Because of the increase in the penalties, it has been ruled upon by the Grand Court that those offences should all be triable on indictment. That is to say, by the Grand Court, and only by the Grand Court.

I make no criticism of that ruling whatsoever. I am sure it is absolutely right. But the consequence of that is that any of those offences now has to be dealt with by a preliminary hearing in front of the Magistrates. If they find that the preliminary case has been proved, then it goes to the Grand Court, the date has to be set and it is dealt with by a jury trial.

In some cases that is the very proper route for it to take. But some of these cases, although they can be serious, are of a relatively minor nature. It would be perfectly proper for the Summary Court to deal with them and their powers of sentencing are perfectly adequate. But they are not allowed to do so. It has to go to the Grand Court and the full procedure has to be complied with.

The purpose of this Bill is to make these offences what I would term 'either way' offences. What that means is that they may be tried in the Summary Court, or they may be tried in the Grand Court. Initially, it is the defendant (the accused person) who has the right to decide whether he wishes the case to be tried in the Grand Court. That is an election that he can make, and it would apply to these offences.

If the offence is a relatively minor one, and if the accused person consents to its being tried in the Summary Court, and if the prosecution agrees, and, most importantly, if the Magistrate who is hearing the application agrees, then it could be dealt with in the Magistrate's Court and it could (if everyone agreed) be just one hearing. It would not have to go and be tried before a jury in the Grand Court. There are many instances where that would be the appropriate venue for it to be dealt with.

The Legislation itself refers to various offences in the Firearms Law. It may be helpful if I refer to those offences. I do not intend to read them out at length, but I think it would be useful for Members to know the actual offences that we are dealing with here that will become Category 'B', or 'either way' offences.

Any Members who have looked through these offences already, will see that they are all the offences that contain substantial fines and, in many cases, a maximum term of imprisonment of 20 years. One can readily see why the Court at this time was reluctant to allow them to be heard purely in the Summary Court.

The first offence which was section 3(2) and deals with the importation or export a firearm that is brought into the country without a permit. Section 4(2) is in relation to a visitor to the island who fails to declare a firearm even when required to do so by a Customs Officer. (I am thinking in particular of instances that have caused concern and the way they are dealt with at the moment.) Someone who arrives here on a private boat has a firearm with him for his own protection at sea, fails to declare it to the Customs Officer and is then charged with this type of offence. He is no doubt seeking to move on to another island with no plans to stay for any great length of time in the Cayman Islands, but as the matter is at the moment he is obliged to stay here until the full process has been gone through including the Jury trial, if, indeed he contests it. If he pleads guilty, there is no need to have a jury. But now, he will be able to elect to be tried in the Magistrates Court and if the prosecution and the Court agree it could be dealt with there and then. He could be given his penalty and if it were not a custodial sentence, he would be on his way. That is a great saving in Judicial time, Court time and indeed the time of attorneys as well.

The next offence is under section 5. This also relates to visitors to the island and it is really an extension to the previous offence, retaining the firearm upon a vessel. Section 8 relates to receiving as a gift, or purchasing a firearm for someone under age, or allowing someone under age to have one.

Section 12 relates to altering a gun, in particular shortening the barrel. There is no more lethal weapon than a sawn-off shot gun. Section 15 is having possession of a firearm other than in accordance with the terms of a firearms licence.

Then we come to section 18. These are probably the most serious offences of all. Section 18(6), (8) and (9). Section 18(6) is having a firearm with intention to commit offence or to resist arrest; (8) is having a loaded firearm in a public place; (9) is trespassing or entering a building as a trespasser with a firearm. In other words, all those three offences are using a firearm in furtherance of another offence, and would generally be regarded as the most serious offences.

I would stress that this amendment does not mean that the Summary Court is going to deal with all those serious offences whatever happens. Far from it! It is a question of degree, and it is a question for the Court to decide whether it is appropriate for the Summary Court to deal with them or whether it should go as it does not to the Grand Court to go there. It does not necessarily have to be a trial to be heard in the Grand Court if the Magistrate feels that the offence is of such a serious nature it could go to the Grand Court anyway for the Grand Court Judge to pass sentence.

I can also reassure Members that as far as those last three offences are concerned, I think in the majority of cases those offences would go to the Grand Court because in most instances those offences would be charged in connection with other offences such as burglary, robbery, or whatever, where the firearm was used in furtherance of that crime.

I do not think that I need to go into any more detail. I hope I have explained enough for Members to appreciate what the amending Bill is seeking to achieve. If any Members do have any queries, I will be very pleased to do my best to answer them when I wind up.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill, entitled The Firearms (Amendment) Bill, 1996, be given a second reading. The Motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question that a Bill entitled The Firearms (Amendment) Bill, 1996, be given a second reading. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. THE FIREARMS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

MISUSE OF DRUGS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996

Clerk: The Misuse of Drugs (Amendment) Bill, 1996.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I beg to move that a Bill entitled

A Bill for a Law to amend the Misuse of Drugs Law (Second Revision) be given a second reading.

Let me start by apologising to the House for the fact that there are a number of amendments that I am going to have to move to this very short amending Bill, amendments that I intend to move in its Committee stage. I think it would be helpful for me to actually mention them now and explain why I am going to have to move them.

The Bill was drafted and, indeed, passed through Executive Council and on its way down to the House before the Misuse of Drugs Law and, indeed, the Penal Code were revised by the Law Revision Commissioner. So the references to those Laws in this amending Bill, and the references to section numbers in this amending Bill I regret to say have all changed because of the 1995 revision.

Even the title to the Bill is wrong because it is not to amend the Misuse of Drugs Law (Second Revision), but it is to amend the Misuse of Drugs Law 1995 Revision. Of course, that is mentioned within the body of the Bill as well. The section that we are dealing with of the Misuse of Drugs Law 1995 Revision is section 6, as opposed to section 4. The subsection is still the same, subsection (2), but it is section 6 not section 4.

The three sections that are mentioned in the Penal Code have also changed. Instead of 219, 220 and 221, they are, in fact, 230, 231 and 232.

So, I do apologise, Madam Speaker, to the House and, indeed, to you, for those changes. The law revision process is, of course, an ongoing process and I am afraid sometimes this happens and I take the responsibility for not spotting those before it actually was published. I will need to move that in Committee and I hope that Members will be understanding on that.

As far as this amending Bill is concerned, the new section will allow the police to request a sample and test a suspect who is arrested for various offences. At the present time they are allowed to test, in fact, require testing, not just request testing, under the Misuse of Drugs Law. But only where the person concerned has been arrested for an offence under the Misuse of Drugs Law. In other words, unless he is arrested for a drugs offence, he cannot be tested.

The police have for some time felt that extra powers were needed because they were of the opinion and the evidence appears to fathom out that many of those arrested for theft offences were under the influence of drugs when those offences were committed. It is widely believed that many of those offences are committed to obtain money to obtain drugs. So, the police requested and this Bill was then drafted to enable constables to require a sample, require a test when a person had been arrested not just for a drugs offence, but for the serious theft offences. They are: robbery, burglary and aggravated burglary. Those are the three sections in the Penal Code to which I have already referred.

It is not for any offence of dishonesty, only for the serious offences of dishonesty. This will now allow the police to require the accused arrested person to undergo a test. If it should happen that as a result of that he has also committed a drugs offence, if that should be the case, then he/she could find themselves charged with a drugs offence as well.

In this way, by allowing this testing, it will first of all give evidence and statistics so that whether or not people are committing offences to feed a drug habit will be a matter of fact, rather than, at the moment, an educated guess.

It will also have the benefit that if they have been dealt with by the court, the court will be able to take this into account and when a penalty is passed, or a sentence is passed, then if it relates to drugs the appropriate counselling and treatment can be given. Whereas, at the moment, anyone arrested for this type of offence is purely an offence of dishonesty and they are dealt with on that basis and very often the court is not in possession of all that it should be in possession of and will be in possession of if these tests are carried out.

It is really an extension of the powers that are already there under the Misuse of drugs Law, but are now extended to these three specific serious theft offences. I hope that is sufficient explanation to Members, but, once again, if Members of the House have any questions, I will do my best to answer them when I wind up. Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Misuse of Drugs (Amendment) Bill, 196, be given a second reading. The Motion is open for debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: I suppose what have could be said to be a query. It is my understanding that in law there needs to be probable cause and that police cannot simply arrest a person unless there is probable cause to believe that there are drugs being used, or, indeed, a person has been associated with a robbery, aggravated assault, whatever; and that arrest for committing a particular offence relates to that specifically and for that particular offence there are certain penalties attached.

It occurs to me that at some point in the history there were powers granted to the King's men and authorities that persons could almost be arbitrarily arrested and an end came to that in the 16th or 17th century, if I am not mistaken, when this was changed so that people would not be arbitrarily arrested. It had to relate to a particular possibility that a person did something they were being arrested for.

If this amendment goes through, does this not then overlook that particular principle or practice where a person might be found to, indeed, to have burgled a house or property, if without probable cause that they may have also consumed some type of drug, they are also tested for that and let us say found positive, how does that play in reality to the law as far as I am made to understand in this particular case?

If one seeks to provide a longer sentence of imprisonment or fine, then perhaps it might be well to look at the penalties attached to the offences that have been identified in this Bill and which appear under the Penal Code. It is my understanding from what the Attorney General has said that it could mean a longer sentence; they could be charged for one offence and charged for another if found using drugs.

I note here in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons that it says; "The amendment will provide the police with a further weapon against drug related crimes." I suppose it is a matter of what the person is being arrested for in the first instance because the question of the drug consumption seems to be secondary to the first offence for which the person might be arrested.

Is it hoped that by a longer sentence it will stop offenders from burglary and also from the consumption of drugs? Is there any proof of that is the question that I raise, whether it proves that a person who commits burglary was using drugs or not. I do not know exactly what is the reasoning more than what has been said by the Attorney General and that the request has come from the police. I wonder if other deterrents are available for these particular circumstances.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to support this amendment. I have grave concern, and I am sure that the overwhelming majority of the public have the same concern about drug dealing and trafficking and about the commission of acquisitive offences such as theft and burglary by those addicted to drugs in order to fund their habit.

I believe that more focused efforts against drug related crimes will help to make our communities safer and reassure the public. Fear of crime can be as damaging to communities as the actual incidence of crime.

Drug related crimes encompass any criminal activity either to fund or as a consequence of drug misuse such as criminal acts by persons acting as a consequence of drug misuse, acquisitive crime, such as theft burglary, and fraud to finance drug misuse and the laundering of the profits of drug trafficking either to fund further smuggling attempts or to allow unrestricted use of these assets.

Research indicates that as far as the public is concerned, the most important element of drug related crime is acquisitive crime to finance drug misuse. As we all know here, at Northward Prison, over 60%, are there for drug related charges.

I see this as not only acting as a deterrent, but also as another way of identifying the problem that is out there. For those people who have a drug problem, we can offer relief to them. I know that the Drug Advisory Council has advocated this for many years. I think it is also done in the United States and in the United Kingdom.

I honestly think that with the grave problem that we are now experiencing here with drugs, it is time to take off the kid gloves, stop pussy-footing around and get serious and do what we need to do to address the problem of drugs. If we do not take this in hand and do whatever is needed to put a stop to it, it may overtake us all.

With those few words, I support this amendment.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Madam Speaker, I rise in support of the Bill, but I have some qualms about it. It is not something that the House can address; it is something that Government has to address.

When a person is caught, and we put them in prison after we find out that they have committed a crime because of drugs, the important thing is what happens when that person is in prison and when they come back out. I say this for all Members and the Government to hear because we have commissioned to do a programme and it is going to cost money to do that, and I am just saying that when the time comes to get the money that we need to do it. What is going to happen is that more people will go in for drug related crimes. In my opinion, that is what will happen as a result of this.

If they are doing it for drug reasons, we need to know. We need to have those statistics. We need to have sufficient programmes for them. I am in agreement with the Bill, but when we go to find funds to do the programme, we need all Members to agree.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

Under different circumstances this is the kind of Bill that would bring concern. However, because burglary is such a serious crime and because it seems that we have such a drug problem, it is my opinion that this Bill is worthy of Members' consideration and support.

Be that as it may, however, I would caution against arriving at the position where we are content with treating the symptoms and allowing the malady to grow unrestrained. By that I mean that in this instance I see merit in supporting the testing of those who burgle to ascertain whether that burglary is probably caused by an addiction to drugs, or whether it is motivated by some other phenomenon.

In the case where culprits are found to have drug traces in their specimen, I would suggest that, as far as possible, the sanction does not end at merely the punitive, but that these people should be made to undergo drug counselling while in prison for the duration of the sentence, and also compulsorily, when they are released, they should be placed on the rosters of the Drug Counselling and made to continue to be monitored to see that there is no element of recidivism.

This business of burglary has to be viewed seriously because in the annals of criminology, while burglary is a crime of opportunity, it is also regarded as one of the most serious crimes in that many people hold the view that whoever would burgle would kill. This is an added reason why it is important that we arrive at a motive for these kinds of crimes (i.e., whether it is drug related or whether the person is a plain pathological criminal). It seems to me that if we ascertain that someone is behaving a certain way because of drugs, then it allows us to more easily arrive at a successful treatment programme.

It certainly puts us in a position where we can screen the hard core from those who have some extenuating circumstances. So, I think it is a Bill that is worthy of Members' attention and I would also add in closing that while it is easy to catch these kinds of people, I would express the desire and the hope that continued efforts (if not exaggerated effort) will be expended on those who deal and those who finance these kinds of ventures so that we not only catch the small guys, the users, but that we catch the big guys, the dealers, the financiers and the peddlers as well.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: From the point of view of interdiction, I certainly understand what is being hoped to be achieved. I am certainly quite prepared to lend my support to the Bill.

When the Honourable Minister for Health spoke about the percentage of drug related burglaries and the number of prisoners in Northward, I think he quoted 60%. If memory serves me right, it is higher than that. I am not correcting what the Minister said, I am emphasising a point - the percentage is higher than that.

One of the things that I would like to make an observation on, while it is probably extended beyond this Bill, is the accessibility of drugs to prisoners while in prison. It is my view that if someone is thought by the police to have committed a burglary to support a drug habit, I also hold the view that because of the horror stories of accessibility of drugs in prison, while these persons are incarcerated, they should be subjected to random drug tests also.

I am not one who simply wishes to see someone kept down, I also have very serious concerns, and I have voiced this on occasions before now, regarding the process of rehabilitation and genuine and concerted attempts of putting programmes in place both during incarceration and after people have completed their sentence in order to become productive members of society again.

While that is an extension to the Bill at hand, I also voice my concern there. I heard the Minister for Community Development allude to some type of programme. I also heard the Minister for Health talk about other programmes from the Cayman Counselling Centre in his contribution to the Throne Speech. I do trust that real attempts are going to be made in line with this so that we can see some positive results.

I very seriously ask the Honourable Second Official Member (either through this channel presently, or through whatever other channel is available) to consider the possibility of creating a situation where these people are subjected to random drug testing and they will know that they are liable to be prosecuted again if they are found to be using drugs while in prison.

I support the Bill, but there are other circumstances beyond this. I hope the situation is examined.

Responsibilities fall all over the place, and I think this is maybe not the right forum to discuss who is responsible for curbing the availability of drugs in the prison, but it is something that I have had individuals who have been there sit and freely tell me of situations that they were part of. It is almost unbelievable. So, I hope that part of the situation can be examined.

Nevertheless, as it stands (while it does not have as wide parameters as other may wish for it to have) I think it does have good intent and I think it will serve a useful purpose and I therefore support the Bill.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I will try to address the various observations that have been made by Members. There is certainly no intention, and this Bill does not empower random testing for drugs. The police are not entitled to require any person to undergo a test - only if they have already been arrested for one of the offences set out in this amending Bill.

Of course, if they already had any evidence sufficient to arrest that the person had consumed drugs, they would arrest him under the Misuse of Drugs Law and they would have the ability to require a test now under the legislation as it is. This presupposes that they do not have that evidence. It is not available; but, nevertheless, they suspect that drugs could have been consumed. In order to arrest somebody, there has to be a certain level of suspicion. We assume that he has not reached that level, they therefore arrested him for the offence that they do suspect him of committing which is burglary, robbery or aggravated burglary and then they are allowed to test under this amending legislation.

That is not a novel concept at all. In fact, it is the concept which is used now for motoring offences. If the police stop a driver suspected of committing a moving traffic offence, and having stopped him they then suspect that he has consumed alcohol or drugs and his ability to drive is impaired by that, they are quite entitled to test him. But they do not need to have formed that suspicion before stopping the vehicle in the first place; they merely have to be stopping it for a traffic offence. Again, of course, there is no power for them to do random stops; they have to suspect something.

Again, it is not a novel concept; it is just being expanded to these serious theft offences and from drugs offences.

Another point raised was the treatment, in other words, the hope that this amendment would not just result in people being sentenced to longer terms of imprisonment, but that they would actually receive some beneficial treatment for their drug addiction. I think that is the real benefit from this amendment because the counsellors and those who are charged with this responsibility cannot treat those people whom they do not know are suffering from the problem. This will make it clear that a particular individual is a drug addict, or does have a drug problem and will allow him to be treated, something that is not necessarily available at the moment because the authorities are unaware of the problem. I hope it certainly will have that effect.

It has also been suggested that perhaps random drug testing should be looked at, but within the confines of prison. I do not think that the forum is the right one at the moment to debate that issue, but I am quite prepared to undertake to the Member to look at that possibility and to discuss it with my colleagues. I believe that such a change would require an amendment to the Prisons Law, in fact, rather than the Misuse of Drugs Law to accomplish that. It is an interesting proposition and it has certainly been said before that drugs are available in prison. That is certainly nothing peculiar to Cayman, that is a problem I think throughout the world. Clearly, it is not helping an individual who has a drug problem if he is allowed to feed it whilst in custody. It is one opportunity where if he is given the right treatment he has a real chance of coming off drugs and we should do everything that we possibly can do to encourage and facilitate this.

I welcome Members' support, and I welcome those who have spoken, and I commend the Bill to the House.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill, entitled the Misuse of Drugs (Amendment) Bill, 1996, be given a second reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a second reading.

AGREED: THE MISUSE OF DRUGS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996, BILL GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: The House will now go into Committee to consider two Bills.

COMMITTEE ON BILLS

(House in Committee at 3.46 PM)

The Chairman: Please be seated.

The House is now in Committee. The first Bill is the Firearms Bill (1995 Revision). The Clerk will now read the clauses.

FIREARMS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996

Clerk: Clause 1. Short Title.

Clause 2. Amendment of the Firearms Law.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 1 and 2 do stand part of the Bill. The Motion is open for debate. If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 1 AND 2 PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for a Law to Amend The Firearms Law (1995 Revision).

The Chairman: The question is that the title do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: TITLE PASSED.

MISUSE OF DRUGS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996

The Chairman: The next Bill is The Misuse of Drugs (Amendment) Bill, 1996.

Clerk: Clause 1 Short Title.

Clause 2 Section 4 amended.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 1 and 2 do stand part of the Bill.

The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I move that leave be given, in the absence of the required notice, for me to move the amendments.

The Chairman: In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 52 (2), leave is granted to introduce the amendments without the prior two days' notice.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you. The amendments that I move and propose are in section 2 of the Bill. That in place of section 4 subsection (2), it reads section 6 subsection (2) of the Misuse of Drugs Law; and then in brackets, instead of "Second Revision" it reads (1995 Revision).

Further down in paragraph (b), there are three sections of the Penal Code instead of "section 219 it should read "section 230; in place of 220" it should read '231'; and in place of '221' it should read '232';

Finally, at the end of that line where it says "The Penal Code, after that it should say The Penal Code (1995 Revision)". Those are the amendments.

The Chairman: I think you will need to do the short title too.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The short title is, I think, correct. Is it the long title you want me to do?

The Chairman: No, the short title. It is originally down as "The Misuse of Drugs (Amendment) Law, 1996."

Hon. Richard H. Coles: That is correct, Madam Chairman.

The Chairman: Fine.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: It is the long title that needs amending.

The Chairman: It is the 1995 Revision.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, instead of second revision. But the short title is, in fact, in order.

The Chairman: The question is that the amendments to clause 2 do stand part of the Bill. The Motion is open for debate. If there is no debate I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The amendments to clause 2 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: AMENDMENTS TO CLAUSE 2 PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 1 and 2, as amended, do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 1 AND CLAUSE 2, AS AMENDED, PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for a Law to Amend the Misuse of Drugs Law (1995 Revision).

The Chairman: The question is that the Title do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: TITLE PASSED.

The Chairman: That concludes proceedings in Committee on two Bills. The question is that the Committee do now report. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The House will now resume.

AGREED: COMMITTEE TO REPORT TO THE HOUSE.

HOUSE RESUMED AT 3.51 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The House has resumed. Reports on Bills. The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the suspension of Standing Orders to allow the Third Reading of both these Bills to take place today.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 47 be suspended in order for the Third Reading of two Bills to be taken today. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Orders are accordingly suspended.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 47 SUSPENDED.

THIRD READINGS

FIREARMS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996

Clerk: The Firearms (Amendment) Bill, 1996.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, I beg to move that a Bill entitled the Firearms (Amendment) Bill, 1996, be given a Third Reading and passed.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Firearms (Amendment) Bill, 1996, be given a Third Reading and passed. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Third Reading and passed.

AGREED: THE FIREARMS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996, GIVEN A THIRD READING AND PASSED.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Third Reading and passed.

AGREED: THE MISUSE OF DRUGS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996, GIVEN A THIRD READING AND PASSED.

The Speaker: That concludes the business for this Meeting.

Before I ask the Honourable Minister for the Motion for adjournment, I would like to thank Honourable Members for their hard work since the beginning of this Meeting, which was the 16th of February. Members have worked very hard and have been regular in attendance wherever possible.

I wish to also thank the Clerk, the Deputy Clerk and the other members of the staff of this Legislative Department for their hard work. In particular, on your behalf I would like to thank Anita, who kept you well fortified with refreshments. I think she did a sterling job and it shows that she was well trained by Miss Mary.

We still ask for your prayers for Miss Mary who is overseas at present receiving medical treatment.

I would also like to thank the Special Branch Officers who were here and also in particular Jewel, who had to fill in many times to open the door, otherwise it might not have been possible for me to pass through one half of it.

I need to give the Serjeant-at-Arms my grateful thanks for attending on the Speaker and for his assistance to all Members.

Finally, I would hope Members get a period of rest before the next sitting of the House because if the debate on the Governor's Throne Speech is any indication, we are going to be longer in June and even much longer in September before the General Elections.

May I ask the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning for the Motion for the adjournment?

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday, 19th June, 1996.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, 19th June, 1996. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, 19th June, 1996.

AT 3.57 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY 19TH JUNE, 1996.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
19TH JUNE, 1996
10.00 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Elected Member for North Side to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever, Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Order. The Legislative Assembly is in session.

APOLOGY

The Speaker: First of all I have an apology from the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman for his late arrival this morning.

Proceeding with the Orders of the day. Questions. Question No. 50, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 50

No. 50: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning what the ratio of pupils to teachers in the Government Primary Schools is.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the pupil-teacher ratio in Government Primary Schools is 1:13, which is one of the best in the world.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if there is any one individual school among the Government Primary Schools where the ratio is greater than this?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, some are a few more, some are a few less. What he has asked for is the ratio in all schools, and that is what he has received.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if there has been any fluctuation in this ratio over the last three years?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, that is not part of the question and I do not have that information.

I should point out that to go back many years to get information for this sort of supplementary takes up a very large amount of the good time which the teaching staff can use to do better things.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The question, in my opinion, seems reasonable since it takes into account the tenure of the Minister's time in office. I would really like to have the answer.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I therefore suggest that at the next meeting he ask the question: "What is the ratio of three years ago compared to the ratio now", or "the ratio each year compared to now".

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister give an undertaking to provide the answer, Madam Speaker?

The Speaker: I think the correct way to do this is to have another question set down for the next meeting in September with proper notice.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: There have been some reports of classes with as many as 36 children to one teacher. Can the Honourable Minister say if by including the various schools in Cayman Brac, which are small, that these numbers have come down to such a very small pupil-teacher ratio?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, there is a question standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town asking about 36 students in a classroom. I propose to answer that supplementary when that question is asked. Perhaps that question is set down to be asked today, I am not sure, but it is between today and Friday.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, the question that I put to the Honourable Minister is whether because of adding the schools, etcetera, in Cayman Brac the ratio has been brought down. Realistically, I do not think one can believe that this obtains in all classrooms.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the best answer that I can give on this is to give the average ratios in each schools. The John A Cumber Primary School - 1:19; George Town Primary - 1:14; The Lighthouse School - 1:3; Red Bay Primary - 1:17; Bodden Town Primary - 1:15; North Side Primary - 1:7; East End Primary - 1:13; Savannah Primary - 1:16; Spotts Bay Primary - 1:9; Creek Primary - 1:6, and West End Primary - 1:8.

I had hoped that the Honourable Member would be happy that the district he represents has such a low ratio, rather than attempting to criticise it.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 51, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

No 51: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning what criteria was used in the selection of the Sun Country Aircraft for the period when the Cayman Airways Limited plane was undergoing maintenance checks.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, the answer: The criteria used in the selection of Sun Pacific to provide a service while Cayman Airways Limited's aircraft were undergoing maintenance was availability, cost and physical condition of the aircraft. In addition, certificates of airworthiness, air operation, registration and insurance are all required to be in order before a charter agreement is signed.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say if during this period of usage of the Sun Pacific aircraft there were incidences where the maintenance and air worthiness of the aircraft came into question?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I understand that these aircraft are licensed under United States laws and all the certificates such as registration, airworthiness, and operations have, as I stated in the answer, complied with those laws. I cannot comment on the United States laws, I am basically passing on information as it was given to us from the authorities in the United States.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Honourable Minister then saying that he is unable to answer the question, or he is unwilling to provide the answer?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I thought I answered the question. If he asks it again, I will endeavour to provide the answer.

The Speaker: I think what I heard the Honourable Minister say in reply to the first supplementary appeared to be the information the Member sought.

Do you have another supplementary, Honourable Member? Ask it please.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I will repeat the question, which was: During this period of use of the aircraft was there any incident which called into question its air worthiness or its maintenance record?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The answer is no.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 52, standing in the of the First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 52

No. 52: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning to state the names of the schools and the amounts of Government grants to pre-schools since January 1995.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The names of the private pre-schools to which grants are paid in respect of pre-school assistance for Caymanian children are as follows:

Pre-Schools	1995	1996
Shauna's	$ 60,700	$ 34,100
Miss Nadine's	20,661	8,640
Little People's	16,700	7,200
Cori Sue's	10,800	2,240
Edmer's S.D.A.	4,440	--
Sunny Smile	27,030	19,200
Bothwell's	32,960	30,450
Toy-Box	18,950	8,281
Karen's CCC	26,443	17,850
New Testament	4,900	7,140
Reina's	13,000	8,850
Cayman Prep	2,400	--
Mini-Kids	37,190	16,648
Ren & Ren	25,420	11,100
Cayman Kinder	21,095	7,500
Wesleyan	4,140	3,600
Truth For Youth	8,250	2,250
Loving Care	26,704	1,120
Kiddie Kampus	4,890	6,470
Triple C	19,170	6,378
Little Angels	10,540	4,800
Tiny Tots	19,800	7,800
Wee Care	9,580	6,150

Total Grants to the Pre-schools Assistance Programme for 1995 was $425,668; and total grants to June 1996 is $217,767.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say if these grants are paid exclusively in respect of pre-school assistance?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, these are all pre-schools which are all registered. This is assistance to them.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say if the sole criterion for this is that these monies are paid as subsidies for the attendance of children to these pre-schools?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, it is a grant. I do not know what the Member means by "subsidy"; it is money paid to the schools from public funds. It is the same as money paid to the other schools from recurrent funds to educate children as well. There is a difference. This large amount paid here.... These children are not in compulsory education. What is paid to Primary School s is to educate children who would have to be educated in primary schools. There is a direct obligation there.

This arose because the last Government put out 205 children, including those in the Lighthouse School and pre-school system, and totally abolished it. This subsidy was something which had to go to cover them.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I noticed that the Honourable Minister is confused. May I then ask the Minister to clarify the contention as to what was published in a recent issue of the Caymanian Compass that one of these schools, namely, the Tiny Tot academy, received no grant from the Government, and also, what is the difference between what the Minister sometimes calls a "grant" and sometimes a "subsidy"?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, a rose by any other name is just a sweeter rose. The money paid to the pre-schools comes out of public funds to educate children who are not under the compulsory system. Tiny Tots received a grant. It comes out of grants which this House in Finance Committee votes. The Head is 'Grants' and it is the same as with the Primary School s - it is public funds paid to the schools to educate children. There is no difference between them; money is money and it is paid for the same purpose.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 53, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 53

No. 53: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works when does Government plan to construct the second building at the new Department of Environment site on North Sound Road.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. I seek the indulgence of the Chair to change one word in the answer, instead of it being "February", I would like to refer to 13th May, in my answer. The answer is as follows:

As the Member was informed on 13th May, 1996, during the sitting of Finance Committee, no second building is going to be built.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Department of Environment made planning application for this second building. The plan was refused by the Central Planning Authority and the Department gave Notice of Appeal. Can the Minister state if the appeal process was completed and, if so, what was the result of that appeal?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker. As you are aware, a lot of time was spent on this subject during Finance Committee on the 13th of May - which was last month....

The Speaker: Honourable Minister may I stop you for a minute? Are you referring to Members, or are you referring to the Speaker being aware?

Hon. John B. McLean: Madam Speaker, I was just bringing it to the attention of the Chair. I will reword it. The point I am making is that in the Minutes of Finance Committee...and I will draw the Member's attention to the section, which reads as follows: "Mr. Chairman, I now know where the Member is coming from, He might as well have asked me that question earlier. The building that he is speaking of would have housed some of the staff members, not the administrative staff, but staff such as swampers. It was felt that we would have to house them somewhere else."

I need not go into this because he knows as well as I do, the problems we have had with the community and the opposition that has been put forward to the Planning Department. As a matter of fact, if it will help the Member I will say that the appeal that was put forward by the Department of Environment has been withdrawn.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker. Having heard what the Honourable Minister just said, I did not hear at any point where he has said that the building is not going to be erected. But in his answer he said "...no second building is going to be erected." Let me ask the Honourable Minister if it means never ever, or simply because there are no funds available at present?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I am going to read again from the Minutes of Finance Committee to show the Member that I did in fact say that the second building was out of the picture. We had no funds to build a second building and the other point was that there had been a lot of opposition to the building. Government had made other arrangements and, therefore, there would be no second building.

I crave your indulgence Madam Speaker, just to lay this on the Table and perhaps the Member can peruse this for himself.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 54, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 54

No 54: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning if there are plans in process for increasing the staff complement at the George Hicks High School by September 1996.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddien: Madam Speaker, the answer: Both the registration and the staffing process for the George Hicks High School are ongoing. However, should the enrollment increase over the 1995/96 school year, then the staffing will be increased to meet the increased enrollment.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state at what point in time his Ministry will know if the staff enrollment will increase and, whenever the time is, will the Department of Education then have time to recruit staff?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I am instructed that within another two weeks we should know the complement of the school, and the answer is yes, there is time to get staff.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Minister state if there have been any requests from the administration of that school for additional staff regarding the present need?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, since under the Constitution I am not involved in staffing matters I would have to ask that question of the appropriate departments, the Personnel Department and the Public Service Commission. The Member clearly knows that I do not get involved with staffing matters and under the Constitution. It is a non-political matter dealt with by non-political bodies.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 55, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 55

No. 55: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning if the Minister is aware that there are several classes at the George Hicks High School with over 35 students each.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Madam Speaker, unfortunately, due to the shortage of time I attempted to have this dealt with over the telephone today and it is not ready. I will have it ready for tomorrow, if I could ask that it be delayed until then.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Madam Speaker, unless I am greatly mistaken, I have the written answer in my hand.

The Speaker: I am a bit perturbed about that, Honourable Minister. Can you explain?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, as you know, as the House knows, questions did not come to us until Thursday. Even though they may have been at the Legislative Department from three weeks prior to that and being timed, there were delays. I do not want to get into that, but we only received those questions at the most a day's notice before the end of last week. I had to set down most of the questions to me for today when I dealt with the business of the House in the Business Committee in the hope that I would have gotten these answers ready. I attempted to correct several by telephone before I came to the House and, unfortunately, this one was not properly corrected.

But since it has been handed out, Madam Speaker, I will go ahead and answer it that way.

The answer: The class rolls at the George Hicks High School show that there are four boys' Physical Education classes in Year Eight with more than 35 students. There are no academic classes with more than 35 students at the present time. There are two Set One classes with 33 students and a total of only 10 other classes with 30 or more students. The rolls also show that 120 classes have 20 or fewer students and the Physical Education classes are the exception.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the Minister's answer, while making light of the situation, the fact is that there are two classes with 33 students and 10 other classes with 30 or more students. Is the reason for this because of a lack of staff or a lack of physical space?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, it is neither a lack of space nor of a lack of teachers, it has to do with timetabling. If the Honourable Member will note, there are 120 classes that have 20 or less students.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Minister just stated that the problem has to do with the timetable. Has anyone made any attempt to correct that situation, even though the Minister has pointedly stated that in comparison there are many classes that have fewer than 20 students? But even though this is a so-called "minor" problem, are there any attempts being made to correct it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, this is being looked at in detail for next year. I need to explain how this comes about. It depends upon the students' requests for subjects and sometimes when classes are taken in there are much higher numbers for certain subjects than we anticipated. So there are two problems when dealing with schools within this area: (1) the number of students who come into the classes; and (2) the choices that the students make for that year.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Of Years Seven, Eight and Nine at the George Hicks High School, in which of these years are students allowed to choose their subjects?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Madam Speaker, in all three of the Years.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 56, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 56

No. 56: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development what disbursements, if any, have been paid to the vendor of the Cayman Foods building and the First Baptist Church building.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, no payments to either vendors have been made to date.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Seeing that on the 13th of the month just passed it was approved that certain sums of money would be paid to persons associated with these two properties, are there any agreements as to when money will be paid?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, any payment to be made would have to be after the Loan Bill, which is set down to be dealt with in this Honourable House, has been finalised.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: According to a letter from the Minister for Education yesterday in our local newspaper, it in effect stated that money might not be paid at all for these properties. Is it not the case that when Government comes seeking funds for a specific purpose, such as the purchase of the Cayman Foods building or the Baptist Church, that is what Finance Committee gave its approval to do?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Madam Speaker, during the course of any meeting of Finance Committee approval for funds to be disbursed would normally be given. But in this instance, because the expenditures have been linked to the Loan Bill, in order to ensure proper cash-flow management it is essential that the funds are in hand before disbursements are made.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 57, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 57

No. 57: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development if there is a legally prescribed percentage that a bank can lend to any one borrower with regard to either their deposits or capital in the bank.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, the answer: The Banks and Trust Companies Law does not prescribe what percentage of a bank's capital or deposits may be lent to any one borrower. There are, however, lending guidelines established by the Financial Services Supervision Department (in terms of capital) to which a licensee must adhere.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Can the Honourable Member tell the House what this guideline is in relation to how much any single borrower can make, as it concerns the original question.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy : Madam Speaker, under the guidelines a bank in relationship to its capital may lend 10% or more for medium- or long-term loans, and this is normally done with collateral. Another area in which lending may take place is up to 25% for short-term loans which are normally 180 days or less. These are in relation to self-liquidating loans. A further provision is for up to 50% for loans which are 100% backed by cash, provided that both the deposit and the loan are made in the same country and currency with matching maturities, and an outside legal opinion confirms that the agreement includes a legally binding right of setoff between deposit and the loan.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

According to what the Member has just said, it seems that 50% would be the highest amount that could be loaned, meeting the other requirements as he has stated. If a bank in the Cayman Islands was lending 80% of its capital to any one borrower who did not have that, would it then be in breach of the requirements of the Banks and Trust Law?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I have been made to understand that the conditions that I have just outlined can be exceeded. It depends on the nature of the institution, particularly where the institution is a subsidiary of an overseas institution and the overseas institution guarantees exposure of the local entity.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 58, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, before that question is asked, may I ask for it to be set down at another time in the name of the Minister for Communications and Works, please?

The Speaker: Could I just put the question first? The Member will read it...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I just did not want the Captain to hand this one out if he had it.

The Speaker: ...and then when you are called upon to reply you can do so. Thank you.

Question No. 58, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I was not aware that we had a Captain handing out papers in the House. I thought we had a Serjeant-at-Arms.

The Speaker: Well, that is splitting hairs either way.

QUESTION NO. 58

No. 58: Mr. Gilbert A. McLean asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education and Planning what is the detailed breakdown of costs amounting to $717,653 for the construction of four classes at the Savannah and George Town Primary Schools.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, that reference was, in fact, to the Serjeant-at-Arms. I affectionately call him (unofficially) the Captain. I apologise for that.

Madam Speaker, I would ask that that question be set down in the name of the Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works who will answer it. Thank you.

The Speaker: So you would wish for that to be set down for another day?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: For another date, Madam Speaker.

QUESTION NO. 58

(Deferred)

The Speaker: The question is that Parliamentary Question No. 58 be set down for another date, and that the question be answered by the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 58 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

Proceeding to Government Business, Bills. First Readings.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

FIRST READING

LEGAL PRACTITIONERS (AMENDMENTS) BILL, 1996

Clerk: The Legal Practitioners (Amendments) Bill, 1996.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996

Clerk: The Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1996.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

Suspension of Standing Order 46 - Reading of Bills. Who is dealing with the Fire Brigade Bill? Honourable Minister for Education and Planning, will you move the suspension of Standing Orders?

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER S (Standing Order 46)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I move the suspension of Standing Order 46 to allow this Bill to be taken.

The Speaker: I think it would refer to the three Bills to be given First Reading.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I move the suspension of Standing Order 46 in relation to the Fire Brigade (Amendment) Bill, 1996; the Loan (Capital Projects) Bill, 1996; and the Loan (Capital Projects) 1993 (Amendment) Bill, 1996.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 46 be suspended in order for The Fire Brigade (Amendment) Bill, 1996; The Loan (Capital Projects) Bill, 1996; and The Loan (Capital Projects) 1993 (Amendment) Bill, 1996, to be given a First Reading.

I shall put the question, those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Order 46 has accordingly been suspended.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 46 SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: First Readings continuing.

Clerk: The Loan (Capital Projects) 1993 (Amendment) Bill, 1996.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

SECOND READINGS

LEGAL PRACTITIONERS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996

Clerk: The Legal Practitioners (Amendment) Bill, 1996.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles : Madam Speaker, I would like to move that a Bill entitled a Bill for a Law to Amend the Legal Practitioners Law (1995 Revision) be given a Second Reading.

The Speaker: So ordered.

(10.51 AM)

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Madam Speaker, this Bill seeks to amend the Legal Practitioners Law to allow firms of attorneys in the Cayman Islands to incorporate their practices under the Law, and Regulations will be brought in by the Governor-in-Council to set up the parameters for this as shown in the amending Bill before the House.

This amending legislation was brought forward by the Government at the request of local attorneys and, in particular, the Cayman Islands Law Society and the Caymanian Bar Association. The amendment was, of course, drafted by the Legislative Council, as is normal, and the Bill has been commented upon by both the Cayman Islands Law Society and the Caymanian Bar Association.

The Bill, as I have stated, will allow regulations to be made by the Governor-in-Council prescribing the way in which firms of attorneys practising in the Cayman Islands may be incorporated, that is, to enable them to be incorporated with limited liability.

At the present time attorneys can either practice as sole practitioners on their own account, or in unlimited partnership. That does have certain repercussions in the event of any action being brought against attorneys for negligence or, indeed, any other claim against the firm. It has proved more of a problem in recent years because of the very high awards being made in respect of professional practice claims in the United States. That is not just limited to lawyers, but extends to both accountants and, in particular, the medical profession.

To pre-empt any difficulty here in Grand Cayman, this amendment was considered desirable. I would hasten to add that the clients of attorneys will not suffer as a result of this amendment, neither will they have their ability to claim against an attorney for work that is done incorrectly inhibited in any way. What this Bill will do is to limit the liability between Cayman Islands' attorneys inter se, that is to say among themselves. So it will mean, for example, that although one attorney still remains liable for the work that he undertakes on behalf of a client, if he/she defaults and there is an action brought, then the liability of his/her partners and associates in the firm will be limited by the limited liability of the incorporated partnership. In other words, partners will not, if they take advantage of this amendment, necessarily be liable to the full extent of their personal assets for the deeds of others within the firm. I hope I have managed to explain that without getting too involved.

The regulations which will come into effect when they are passed by the Governor-in-Council (and I would add, Madam speaker, that they have, of course, already been drafted and some consultation has taken place with the professional organisations in Cayman, and that is continuing) will provide for certain basic requirements. Probably the most important is that there will be compulsory professional indemnity insurance for these incorporated firms. That is something that is not compulsory at the present time. Most firms of attorneys in Cayman do carry their own professional indemnity insurance because as a matter of commercial sense it is very wise for them to do so. But there is no statutory requirement for that. However, if they choose to take advantage of this amendment and incorporate their practices, there will be a statutory requirement. I am consulting with those professional bodies at the moment to establish what would be the right level of insurance coverage.

The incorporation will also be limited exclusively to attorneys who are admitted to practice in the Cayman Islands. No others will be allowed to be members of the company, that is to say, shareholders in the incorporated company, neither will they be allowed to be directors. So it is entirely qualified attorneys who will comprise these corporations.

They will also have to identify the fact of incorporation to their clients and that will probably be done by means of some notice on their note paper and other professional communications to clients, so that those who are dealing with the firm will be fully aware that they are dealing with an incorporated practice and not with just an unlimited partnership. Again, the form of wording is something that we are still working on.

Madam Speaker, I think I have covered most of the sections within the amendment Bill. It does refer to section 10 of the substantive Law, not applying to a recognised body. For the information of Members, section 10 is the section that prohibits anyone other than a qualified attorney from carrying out certain acts, particularly representing someone in court in Cayman, or drawing up various documents for reward. The recognised body incorporated under this amendment will be exempt from that provision. In other words, it will be authorised to carry out those acts.

The final provision in here, the new section 22, gives details of maximum fines that can be levied in the event any incorporated firm contravenes this Law, in other words, is incorporated without complying with this law or with the regulations.

Madam Speaker, I hope that I have given enough information without getting too technical, and if Members have any comments or questions, I will do my best to address them. Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is that the Bill entitled the Legal Practitioners (Amendment) Bill, 1996, be given a second reading. The motion is open for debate.

If there is no debate, I do not know if the Second Official Member would wish to add anything.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Not at this time, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The next Bill is the Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1996.

PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996

Clerk: The Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1996.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of a Bill entitled, A Bill for a Law to Amend the Pensions Law (1995 Revision).

The Speaker: So ordered. The Honourable Third Official Member.

(11.02 AM)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, as Honourable Members are aware, discrimination against female officers within the Civil Service has been an issue for some time. Although we have made some progress towards eliminating discrimination by amending the Civil Service General Orders, it still exists under the provisions of the Pensions Law. It is therefore imperative that this matter be addressed now to ensure that the Civil Service provides equal employment opportunities for both its male and female officers. Accordingly, I hereby present to this Honourable House the Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1996, the main purpose of which is to repeal those sections of the Law which make distinction between male and female pensioners and pensionable officers.

In addition to the proceeding amendments, the Bill also provides for an increase in the rate of Government's contribution to the Public Service Pensions Fund. The current rate of its contribution is 4% of each employee's salary or wage, and Government has undertaken to increase this to 6%. In doing so, the Fund will provide benefits for all male and female pensionable employees and their dependants, and the Government is committed to supporting the eventual implementation of a fully funded pension scheme.

There are 12 clauses in the Bill which detail the amendments made to the various sections of the Pensions Law, 1995. For ease of reference I have attempted to provide a brief summary of the various sections of the Pensions Law that are to be changed, and to point out the changes that will be made in accordance with the relevant clauses of the Bill.

Clause 1 of the Bill provides for an amendment to section 1 of the Pensions Law which sets out the title of the Law. It is proposed that the Law be called the "Pensions (Amendment) Law, 1996."

Clause 2 of the Bill provides for an amendment to section 2 of the Pensions Law, which lists in alphabetical order certain contexts within the Law, and provides for a definition of the same. The Bill adds "spouse" to the list of contexts and provides its definition.

Clause 3 of the Bill amends section 10 of the Pensions Law which states that contributions to the Fund shall be made by contributors (persons employed in the Public Service under the Government of the Islands on pensionable terms, and the Government). It also states that contributors and the Government shall contribute to the Fund in equal proportions (that will be 4% of the contributor's basic salary or wage). The amendment to this section provides for Government to increase its contribution on behalf of each contributor from 4% to 6%. This will also apply to statutory authorities.

Clause 4 of the Bill amends section 15 of the Pensions Law which currently sets out the circumstances in which a pension may be granted. This section also has a proviso which provides for gratuity to a female officer where such an officer resigns from the Service upon marriage or is required to retire on account of her marriage. The Bill proposes that this proviso be repealed.

Clause 5 amends section 17 of the Pensions Law which provides the grounds on which a person may retire from the Service. One of the grounds for retirement in the case of a female officer is on account of her marriage. The Bill amends the Law to provide that a female officer shall not be compelled to resign from the Service because of her marriage.

Clause 6 amends section 21 of the Pensions Law which states that "pensions cannot be assignable or transferable except for the purpose of satisfying a debt due to Government or on an order of the Court for the payment of periodical sums of money towards the maintenance of the wife, former wife, or minor child of the officer."

Section 21 will be amended by deleting the word "wife" and substituting the word "spouse".

Clause 7 amends section 22(3) of the Pensions Law which states that "where a pension or other allowance ceases as a result of a person being adjudicated bankrupt, then the Governor or Secretary of State shall direct the payment of the pension or allowance that the person would have been entitled had he/she not become bankrupt or insolvent to the maintenance or benefit of the wife, child, children, or other dependants as the Governor may determine."

This section of the Pensions Law will be deleted and a new subsection will be created. In this new subsection a husband of a female officer is included among the dependants to whom the Governor or Secretary of State may direct the payments of money to which an officer would have been entitled, had that officer not been declared bankrupt or insolvent.

Clause 8 amends the Pensions Law by repealing section 26 and substituting a new section 26. Section 26 provides for pensions to be paid to dependants of a male officer which include a widow, a mother, or a child and children where such officer is killed on duty. The new section 26 provides for the payment of pensions to dependants where an officer - male or female - is killed while on duty.

In accordance with this amendment a widower is now entitled to a pension, or a part thereof, to which his spouse would have been entitled. Further, the father of an officer who was wholly or mainly dependent on the officer for financial support may be granted a portion of a pension on the death of the officer.

Clause 9 repeals section 27 of the Pensions Law and replaces it with a new section 27. Section 27 of the Pensions Law provides for a pension to be payable to the widow and children on the death of a male pensioner or pensionable officer who has completed ten years of pensionable service. The new section 27 provides for the payment of a pension to the widow, widower, and children of a male or female pensioner or pensionable officer.

Clause 10 of the Bill repeals section 28 of the Pensions Law which provides for the payment of pensions to the children of a female pensionable officer who has completed ten years' pensionable service and who dies without leaving a surviving husband.

Clause 11 amends section 29 of the Pensions Law which specifies the person to whom a pension may be paid for the benefit of children entitled to such pension. These persons include a mother, or a legal guardian of the children. This section of the Law will be amended by including a father among the persons to whom such pension may be paid.

Clause 12 of the Bill amends the First Schedule to the Pensions Law by deleting regulations 7 and 14 which both deal with marriage gratuities to be paid to a female officer having held a pensionable or non-pensionable office and who resigns from the Service on or with a view to marriage, or is required to retire from the service on account of her marriage.

Regulation 21D of the First Schedule of the Pensions Law relates to service of an officer other than a pensionable officer, which if taken into account under this regulation, the officer shall be deemed to be holding a pensionable office. This regulation is amended by deleting reference to regulation 7 which, as amended above, is to be repealed.

Regulation 28 of the First Schedule deals with the payment of ex-gratia allowances to Caymanians who have held an office in the service of the Islands.

Paragraph 9 of this regulation states that the provision of the Law relating to the payment of pensions or other benefits under the Law, including the circumstances in which benefits cease to become payable, shall apply to payment of ex-gratia allowances. This regulation is amended in paragraph 9 by including the word "widower" in line three of that paragraph.

I would like to take the opportunity, at this point, to mention that a further amendment will be moved during the Committee stage on this Bill which seeks to place group employees on the same level as persons who are presently on the permanent and pensionable establishment.

At this time, group employees who qualify for a pension are entitled to 3/4 of the pension that is payable to a person who is on the permanent and pensionable establishment. As Members are aware, during the 1940s and through the 1970s, group employees were considered as part of Government's temporary work force. However, in more current times group employees are employed full-time and have often completed long years of service. The current Pensions Law only allows for group employees to receive 3/4 of the pension which a pensionable officer would receive. Therefore, there is a need for changing that concept of group employee and, in particular, the pensionable benefits to such officers.

These amendments will invariably have the effect of increasing the Government's pension obligation. This will require that an actuarial assessment be made in early 1997, at the latest, taking into account these additional provisions that are now being made. As Members will recall, a copy of the Wyatt Actuarial Report was circulated to Members in this House, I think during the course of 1995. All of these amendments would suggest that those figures will be substantially increased.

It is important that at the end of the day equity prevails. Accordingly, the Government recognises that the changes to the Pensions Law to eliminate discrimination, especially against female pensionable officers, have been long overdue. I commend this Bill to Honourable Members.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1996, be given a Second Reading. The Motion is open for debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

(11.15 AM)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, I am pleased to see this Bill which amends the Pensions Law. Some of the clauses it proposes to amend will remove the discrimination that exists up until this time against women.

I remember that back in the 1970s representation was made through the Cayman Islands Civil Service Association on matters which related to female officers in the Civil Service, and it was most obvious that the Law had many clauses that were biased towards male officers. Recommendations were made then, and in several instances, that they should be changed. Nothing happened. I suppose one might say nothing happens before its time.

I am happy to see the changes that have been proposed here which, I daresay, will be passed today.

The Financial Secretary mentioned that consideration has also been given to include persons who have worked in the Civil Service for long periods of time for pensions even though they are not on what is termed the "permanent and pensionable establishment." I believe it is a modern view. It is a sound, sensible and fair thing to do, for there is a large percentage of Government employees who do not fall in the category of permanent and pensionable establishment, but, of course, they have been working upward of 20-odd years.

I have a concern with the amendment which deals with the increase in money paid by Government, that of 6%, into the Pension Fund. That is highly under funded. When the Bill says that "Government will pay 6% for each contributor's basic salary or wage" (as the case may be), what we are talking about here is a greater increase on the recurrent revenue of the country. I think most of us know that pensioners have first call on the revenue; therefore pensions must be paid irrespective of what else gets paid.

It is my understanding that the philosophy behind that is that such persons have worked for what they are due in their pension, thus it is considered fair that they should receive what they have worked so many years for. However, I believe that Government needs to look seriously at having the Public Service included in a National Pension Scheme, because that group of people represents the largest single group of employees in the country. Of course, the Pension Fund being underfunded is putting increasing strain on the revenue of this country. There needs to be some means by which public employees receive what they have worked for, and what is due to them when they retire for whatever reason. It should not be in the present fashion it is where the Government is attempting to pay as they go.

This increase in the revenue of the country increases the liability of Government, and by Government simply trying to pay 6% more to increase the amount in the Fund is not funding it to cover all pensions that are now a liability to Government. That particular aspect, I think after an actuarial review, needs to be looked at seriously. There is talk now about a Pension Bill that is coming before this House. I think the Civil Service should not be indefinitely kept as a group where there is mounting liability, not having the benefit of what could possibly be done through having them included in a wider and more comprehensive scheme.

Madam Speaker, on that note I give this Bill my support. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

(11.23 AM)

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

My contribution will be very short. I am one Member of this Parliament who, since the day I was elected, has sought and worked towards the removal of discrimination against female officers in the Civil Service. Today is a day for all female civil servants in the Cayman Islands to be proud of. To say that it has come about in the 1990s is... as the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said, "I guess once it is here, it is here and it is not too late."

There is one point I see in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons that I would like clarification on. It says: "Clause 8 amends the Pensions Law by repealing section 26 and substituting.... the father of an officer who was wholly or mainly dependent upon the officer for financial support may be granted a portion of a pension on the death of the officer." When I looked in the Law, it refers to both mother and father. I wonder where the mistake is, whether it is in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons or whether it is in the body of the Law. I would ask the Honourable Financial Secretary to clear that up in his reply.

I congratulate him in bringing this amendment which is long overdue to female officers in the Civil Service.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

(11.25 AM)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Madam Speaker, I support this Bill. I know that it has been driven to a large extent by the three lady Members in the House, and I believe it is also approved by the fourth lady Member - you, Madam Speaker - although I know you are in a different position. The equality under this Law is important to ensure that ladies who are in the Government Service have equal rights as their male counterparts. I fully support the removal of the differences between male and female under the Law.

The question of Government's pensions being underfunded is a matter which, unfortunately, governments over the past years did not take seriously. The only serious move at attempting to bridge the gap has been taken by this Government. I believe we (when I say that, this Legislature not just the Government), have gone further in Finance Committee to appropriate funds that can be applied towards bridging the gap between the unfunded part of the pension fund and bringing it up to a fully funded position.

As far as I can remember, the contingent liability when we came into Government was probably $50 or $60 million (give or take a few million, it does not matter). We have now started to cover the unfunded part by past governments.

I feel very strongly that Government should press on (not just us, because it is going to take successive governments to do this) to fully fund the Pensions Fund. I tried, when we were dealing with amendments to the Constitution, to have it entrenched in the Constitution that pension funds were segregated and could not be used by Government. Unfortunately, I was not able to get that included in the Constitution even though a section was put in that dealt with a Savings of Rights in relation to pensions.

The money that is paid in by civil servants has to be funds that will be held in trust by the Government for them. I know that the Honourable Financial Secretary has now segregated that amount into a separate account.

I remember when I was on the Backbench a few years ago, and the Government was in serious financial problems, they added as reserves the money that was held for pensions. I fought that strongly. I am happy that the Financial Secretary has now separated the funds, because those funds are for civil servants' pensions and should not be touched by Government or taken into the overall financial position of Government.

I fully support this Bill. I know that the National Pensions Bill that my Honourable colleague is going to bring in this Meeting will also deal with areas relating to the general public. I would say that the civil servants should be given a choice as to whether they wish to remain with the pension scheme they have, or whether they wish to choose other pensions. I am not going any further into this, but I just say that because I know the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman raised the issue.

I should point out that the Civil Service and the Pensions Fund are matters for the Governor under the Constitution. It is really up to them to speak to the Honourable Chief Secretary and perhaps to sort out what is best for the Service.

Other than saying that, I am a very strong supporter of separating the payments for pensions by civil servants from anything that a politician can touch. While I know that we will not touch it, we never know in the future who will. So it is for their safeguard. It would have been much better if I could have gotten it entrenched in the Constitution. Even though I did get the Savings of Rights entrenched in the Constitution, which I think is quite a considerable achievement.

I support this Bill. I think that the three lady Members have a glorious day. This is one of the several things that they have been able to bring into the House to make men and women equal, as we all are.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Perhaps this would be a convenient time to take the suspension for 15 minutes.

Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.32 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.07 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on the Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1996.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mrs. Berna L. Thompson Murphy: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to make my short contribution to a Bill to amend the Pensions Law. I would not like to be repetitious in going over the discriminating clauses that have been removed, but I will say that I am very pleased to see that they have been removed and that the Law will be equal to all in the near future.

I have a few questions, and perhaps the presenter of this Bill could answer them in his reply. The rate of contribution is 4% for the contributor and 6% for the Government. I wonder if he could explain the rate at which these were derived. Also, under section 26, subsection (1), paragraph (c), subparagraphs (i) and (v) mention is made that "the officer's annual emoluments at the date of the officer's injury, or $30 a year whichever is the greater," this seems to be a very small amount. Again, I wonder how this figure was arrived at.

As one of the previous speakers mentioned, I, too, would like to see the Public Service included in the National Pensions Scheme. Perhaps this will take place when a national pension scheme is presented and the Government will become a part of that.

According to the Wyatt Actuarial Report, which was presented to this Honourable House sometime last year, the present Fund is very underfunded, and it would take quite a large sum to bring it up. However, as I understand, the Government is not taking from the Pensions Fund at this time, but it comes out of the general fund for pensions. Then I am sure the Fund will slowly be brought up and be funded. As it is presently, it is very underfunded. Hopefully this will catch up in the near future.

Madam Speaker, I support the amendment to the Pensions Law and give it my wholehearted support.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Environment and Planning. I must apologise, I saw you standing just before we took the suspension. I wondered whether you were coming in or going out.

(12.09 PM)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I am happy to accept your apology. I rise to support the Bill for a Law to Amend the Pensions Law, 1995. It begins to put into place what the female civil servants should have had for many a day. However, as they have said, there is a time for when these things occur, and, to some extent, nothing happens before its time.

I believe the Government is moving forward in the right way to ensure that the Pensions Law gives equal treatment to male and female civil servants.

I have to commend the lady Members for bringing the Motion before the House, and the three lady Members who are in complete support of this Bill. I am sure I can assume without the possibility of correction, that you, being a former civil servant yourself, are happy to see this Bill before the House. I do not believe there is need for any long speech, but I believe the women of this country deserve equal treatment. I totally support this Bill along with the female population of this country.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

(12.11 PM)

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to offer my support to A Bill for a Law to Amend the Pensions Law, 1995. I am very happy to see it before this House today. I am particularly pleased that it is going to be addressing the anomaly that has long been in place - discrimination against female civil servants.

I would like to commend and congratulate the lady Members of this Honourable House for their efforts in this regard. I would also like to commend the many female civil servants who have championed this cause, one, in particular, the former Permanent Secretary of the Personnel Department, now the District Commissioner of Cayman Brac, Mrs. Jenny Manderson. She has long pressed for this and I believe that it will be welcomed by all.

I am also happy that the Bill has started to address the matter of pension contributions. It is a step in the right direction. As other Honourable Members and Ministers have said, there is still a way to go, and I trust that we will see it addressed in the near future so that civil servants can be assured of their pensions at the end of the day.

I am also pleased, Madam Speaker, that my colleague, the Honourable Third Official Member, is going to move the amendment during Committee stage to include group employees along with their established colleagues in the Service for equality in pensions. This is another anomaly that has been around for a long time, and I am pleased that we will see this come about. It will, indeed, be a great encouragement to the many group employees who have served, and who will continue to serve, in this country. Their contributions are just as important as the contributions of those persons on the permanent and pensionable establishment. Without further ado, I offer my full support to this Bill.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

(12.15 PM)

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to offer my support to this Bill. Today is a great step forward for the women of this country. I pledge to continue to support any other legislation that may be brought forward for the betterment of women in these islands.

I would also like to take this opportunity to thank the Members and Ministers for making this possible.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

(12.16 PM)

Capt. Mabry S. Kirkconnell: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I rise to give my full support to this amendment to the Pensions Law, 1995. During the number of years that I have been in this House, I have been a great advocate for equality between male and female civil servants. I have seen cases in my own district (and here in Grand Cayman as well) where hardships were created because of the way the Civil Service Regulations and also the Pensions Law had been written.

I would like to congratulate the Honourable Third Official Member and the entire Executive Council for bringing this amendment to the House today. I am also very happy to know that the Government is addressing the need to increase the funding ability of the Pensions Fund. I was a Member of the Government which voted in support of the initial establishment of a separate pension fund. It is sad that that was not done some 10 or 20 years before. Nevertheless, hindsight is 20/20, and we are grateful that it is now a reality. This increase in the percentage will contribute towards it.

I would also like to say that I felt for many years that group employees should have been addressed and placed in a permanent establishment. Many of them have made a career out of working for Public Works. This is true in my district, and it is true here in Grand Cayman. It was not their choice not to be on the permanent and pensionable establishment but they continued to be paid on the basis of group employment. Then, upon reaching retirement age, they had to go through hassles to prove their eligibility to receive remuneration from the Government in the form of gratuity or pension. I am happy that the Honourable Third Official Member has brought a motion to amend this Bill. I certainly give that my full support.

I congratulate the House in passing the motion, the lady Members in bringing the motion. I know it is a great day for the female employees of the Civil Service. With these words, Madam Speaker, I give this Bill my full support.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

(12.19 PM)

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I, too, rise to give my full support to this far-reaching amendment to the Pensions Law. Other Governments in the past have paid lip-service to correcting this anomaly in the Law. This is the first Government to put words into action.

As mentioned in clause 3, with the amendment to section 10 of the Law, this Government will increase its contribution on behalf of each contributor from 4% to 6%. Once again we are doing this to make things better for our dedicated civil servants. This Bill has my full support.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Bodden Town.

(12.20 PM)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

It seems that this Bill has unanimous support among the Honourable Members of this House. That is as it should be, since it seems that pensions have assumed pivotal importance in our society at this time. On the threshold of the 21st century, this, too, is as it should be.

What the Bill seeks to do is to address some anomalies that have long existed in this society. While it is true that many promises were made by previous political directorates, the time has come when this Parliament is now in a position to take the bull by the horns, so to speak.

I am happy that this Bill will, to a great extent, equalise the system among the two genders and will serve as ample encouragement to those females who have laboured long, hard and conscientiously, sometimes under the most adverse circumstances, to keep the Civil Service arm of Government functioning. It gives me not a little pleasure to stand up and say that I, too, am happy to add my small portion in support of their labours which have long gone unheralded in this respect.

I am also happy to know that the Government is at last taking the opportunity to increase the funding of civil servants' pensions which, as we all know, have been grossly under-funded for some time now. This attempt to increase the contribution will still not be the ideal, but it is a step and it has to be appreciated as a recognition that something needs to be done. I can only hope that we find ourselves in the fortunate position where we can continue to make these increases so that we can bring the funding up to the level where the Pensions Fund should be.

Madam Speaker, I am happy to lend my support to ventures such as these, and I hope that the good Lord prospers us so that we may continue to make these kinds of moves.

Thank you.

The Speaker: If there is no further debate, I would ask the Honourable Third Official Member to reply.

(12.25 PM)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, I would like to thank all the Honourable Members of this House for their overwhelming support of this Bill.

I think I will start by observing the comment made by the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, in which he has said that what this Bill seeks to do is to eliminate some of the anomalies. This means that we have now put ourselves into a forward mode, in that we are underway with action that is necessary to address some of these problems associated with the Government's pension obligations.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman said that the increase of the contribution from 4% to 6% will represent a further burden on the Government's coffers. This will definitely be the case. We know that to correctly address this situation in the future it will require that further demands be made upon the revenue sources of Government. We do recognise that this is an obligation which cannot be shunted aside; it is one that will have to be dealt with. If we were to go back in time, we would find that past governments recognised the need for action to be taken in this regard. In 1991 a decision was taken to establish the Pensions Fund. I think at that time the Law was also revised, or certain aspects of it. It was at that time that a decision was taken that the Government should start the Fund by making a contribution amounting to a sum of 8% of employees' salaries. It was agreed that of this sum, 4% would be paid by the employees and 4% by the Government.

The question was raised by the Second Elected Member for George Town, as to the basis of the increase from 4% to 6%, and what that is based on. It is not based on any scientific formula, only that any increase in the fund over time will reduce the Government's overall liability under the Pensions Fund.

Going back to the Wyatt Report which was tabled in this House in 1995, it was suggested at that time that if the Government took into account the liability in respect of the past service costs and if the Government decides at any time to put in place the necessary funding arrangements to take into account the funding of the past obligations plus the present service costs, that would require having to contribute in excess of 20% of employees' salaries. So the overall contribution into the Fund will be in the region of 10%. But I should say that the situation as it is, is just an interim measure and work is presently being done at this time which is drawing on the resources of the Chief Secretary's Office.

The Chief Secretary and I recently had a meeting with the Pensions Board, and this is an area that we are reviewing with a view to putting forward a proposal to the Government. The Government has also made a request that this be done so that we can keep abreast of the liability, and also, to see what interim measures can be put in place in order to develop a programme to ensure that in time a fully funded pension scheme will be implemented.

We know that the longer this is left unattended, the greater the increase will be in liability. I believe that this Government (or any government) will continue to show a commitment to addressing this very sensitive area. From the indications today in this Honourable House it can be seen that whatever reasonable measures are introduced will have the support of all Honourable Members.

The Member for North Side raised a question as to whether there was a discrepancy between the amending clause in the Bill and the reference section to that clause in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons. This is under clause 8 which amends section 26 of the Law, and has to do with the payment of a pension to the father of an officer who dies in the line of duty without leaving a spouse, and whether it was an oversight in excluding reference to the mother. It is not an oversight, because the present Law provides for such a payment to be made to the mother of an officer who dies in the line of duty. So this amendment is to include the father.

I will not attempt to address the issues associated with the deficiency in the Pensions Fund, because there will be recurring issues that will be coming to the Legislative Assembly until they are fully addressed. I should say, very briefly, that we have taken a decision that there is a need to have a further actuarial assessment of the Government's pension obligations done at this time. For the mere reason that on each occasion (such as what we are now doing) where benefits are increased to spouses of both genders, where we are also including the group employees, it means that that will further increase the liability under the Pensions Fund and also increase the urgency for the deficiencies to be addressed.

Madam Speaker, I would like to thank Members for their support.

The Speaker: The question is, that the Bill entitled, the Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1996, be given a Second Reading.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: It is necessary to correct an omission. I did not put the question on the Second Reading of the Legal Practitioners Bill. This was drawn to my attention by the Clerk and I would like to put the question on the Second Reading on that Bill.

I shall put the question, that the Legal Practitioners (Amendment) Bill, 1996, be given a Second Reading.

Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: They Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE LEGAL PRACTITIONERS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Second Readings continuing.

FIRE BRIGADE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996

Clerk: The Fire Brigade (Amendment) Bill, 1996.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Aviation and Commerce.

(12.33 PM)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

I beg to move the second reading of a Bill for a Law to Amend the Fire Brigade Law, (1995 Revision). The Bill will make several amendments to the Fire Brigade Law (1995 Revision).

Since the original enactment of the Fire Brigade Law in 1979, development in the Cayman Islands has brought a widening in the responsibilities of the Brigade which now, in addition to fire fighting and prevention, undertakes the rescue of persons involved in vehicular accidents and other dangerous events such as chemical spills. This Bill seeks to give statutory recognition to these new functions and to provide the basis for the promulgation of a modern and comprehensive Fire Code.

Clause 1 gives the short title of the Bill and provides for its commencement to be fixed by order of the Governor in Council.

Clause 2 alters certain definitions in the Law to take into account the changed functions of the Brigade, which I will refer specifically to in a minute.

Clause 3 adds the new responsibilities to those imposed on the Chief Fire Officer by the original Law, and Clause 4 makes a consequential amendment to the provisions relating to his powers.

In Clause 6 the duties and powers of officers are broadened by the provisions of clauses 5 and 6 to take into account the new tasks which the Brigade undertakes.

In Clause 7 it is expected that when the proposed new Fire Code is brought into force it will make specific requirements regarding the matters now dealt with by the use of administrative directives under section 11 of the Law. Accordingly, this section is repealed by clause 7 of the Bill.

Clause 8 augments the regulation-making powers in section 15 of the 1979 Law to enable the promulgation of a Fire Code and to ensure the legality of its detailed provisions.

Clause 9 of the Bill is designed to bring up to date penalties which may be imposed for breaches of the Law.

Madam Speaker, to move specifically to the present Law, in section 2 dealing with definitions, the Bill seeks to repeal the definition of "calamity". Calamity in the law reads as follows: "...means an occurrence by which life or property is endangered; "fire hazard" means any state of affairs tending to increase the likelihood of a calamity"; these two definitions are being repealed and new definitions are being put forward in the Bill. For "fire hazard" means a hazard arising from fire", and following on the definition of "hazard" means any event, condition, act or thing, which may cause or increase the likelihood of death, injury or illness to human beings, domestic animals, livestock, or wild life of the lost of, or injury to, property of any kind."

Clause 3 of the Bill deals with an amendment to section 5 which deals with the Chief Fire Officer's duties and responsibilities.

In clause 3 of the Bill it seeks to repeal section 5, subsection (e) and repeals the words "the enforcement of this Law". It also repeals the word "and" in subsection (d).

The Bill goes on to add four new responsibilities, the new section (e) would be:

- "(e) the release and rescue of persons and property from vehicles, aircraft and vessels in hazardous situations;
- (f) the control and mitigation of the effects of the escape or spilling of any hazardous substance;
- (g) any other responsibility or duty imposed on him by this Law; and
- (h) the enforcement of this Law."

So this new subsection (h) is actually being moved from section 5, subsection (e) to subsection (h).

Clause 4 is seeking to amend section 7 of the Law. Section 7 reads:

"7. The Chief Fire Officer, in the course of carrying out his duties, shall have towards the general public, powers equivalent to the Commissioner [in this case we are talking about the Commissioner of Police] in the carrying out of his duties and shall take precedence over the Commissioner when, and only when, [these words are being repealed] he is engaged in fighting a fire which has not been brought under control."

The Bill is adding subsection (b) to say: "or in carrying out any of his duties falling within the scope of paragraphs (e) and (f) of section 5.", which I read earlier.

Clause 5 of the Bill deals with an amendment (and some of this is consequential), to section 8 of the Law which deals with the duties of officers, that is, fire officers. It adds the words "(f) carrying out of the duties imposed on them by this or any other Law;".

There is a new section in clause 6. First, the words "fire fighting" are repealed, and "calamity" is repealed, as we did in the definition, substituting the words "immediate danger from any hazard to which this Law relates".

Subsection (4) of section 9 is being deleted and a new subsection is being substituted to read:

“(4) Without prejudice to the provisions of subsection (2), the Chief Fire Officer and any officer authorised in writing by him has, subject to section 14, right of entry to and search of any premises at all reasonable times for the purpose of carrying out any duty imposed upon him by this or any other Law.”.

In subsection (5) of clause 9, the words "fire-fighting duties or averting a calamity" are repealed and new words are substituted to read: "carrying out any responsibility or duty imposed by this or any other Law."

Earlier, Madam Speaker, I made mention that section 11, which deals with directions from the Chief Fire Officer, is being repealed and the replacement for it will be the Fire Code.

In section 15 of the Law, which deals with regulations giving the Governor powers to make regulations, there are some amendments as well. Subsection (i) and (j) are being deleted and new subsections substituted:

“(i) prescribing the form of any notice, order, permit or other document or thing required by the Law to be served, made, issued or done;

(j) securing with respect to building or premises that any standards laid down under this Law are observed;”.

These are clarified powers under the Law which give the Governor the power to make regulations. These items are specifically dealing with the regulations being made by His Excellency the Governor in Council. There are other powers, in (k):

“(k) securing the installation and maintenance in proper working order of systems, machinery and other things for the elimination or reduction of fire hazards, the control or management of fires and hazardous events;”.

There is a new (l):

“(l) empowering an officer at a fire or a place where there is immediate danger from a hazard to which this Law relates to take, or direct, such action as may be necessary to control or extinguish the fire or avert the danger, to perform any rescue and do such other things as are reasonably necessary in the performance of his duty;

(m) authorising an officer exercising any power conferred by a regulation made under paragraph (l), by use of reasonable force if necessary, to prohibit any person, vehicle, vessel or object from approaching any fire or place, to remove or cause to be excluded for any reasonable time any person, vehicle, vessel or thing from any area affected or likely to be affected by the fire or danger concerned;

(n) preventing any obstruction of, or hindrance to, any officer performing any duty imposed upon him by this Law;

(o) promulgating a fire prevention code for the better ensuring of safety of life, health and property from fire and the other hazards referred to in, or prescribed under, this Law;”.

It goes on:

“(p) authorising the delegation by the chief Fire Officer to any person of all or any of his functions or powers, either absolutely or conditionally;

(q) prescribing the circumstances and conditions upon which fires may be permitted in any open space;

(r) restricting the use of combustible materials in the construction of any building;

(s) regulating the storage of any combustible or hazardous substance;

(t) prescribing conditions of recruiting and employing probationary and voluntary officers; and

(u) prescribing anything required to be prescribed by this Law.”.

There is a new section 15, subsection (2): "A regulation made under this section may provide a penalty on conviction of a breach of it or of any other such regulation not exceeding the penalty provided for in section 16."

The penalty at the present time in the Law, in section 16 basically says that "anyone who is guilty of an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine of $500.00", that is being increased in the Bill to a penalty of "$5,000.00" That more or less brings it up to modern day levels of penalties.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Fire Brigade (Amendment) Bill, 1996, be given a second reading. The debate will take place after we resume at 2.30 p.m. Proceedings will be suspended until 2.30 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.49 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.42 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: Before debate commences on the Fire Brigade (Amendment) Bill, I need to make a few comments concerning the previous habit of Members getting extracts of the transcripts of speeches before they have been edited.

I know in the past Members have been going to the two ladies who do the transcribing. It has proven very burdensome, because it will be observed that in many of the debates, extensive reading of Hansard from previous years (quite far back) goes on. It means that everything is duplicated and work doubled.

At this present time there is only one Hansard Reporter in the Office, the other one is on leave until Monday. Therefore, I am asking all Members to refrain from requesting extracts or documents at this time. If Members wish to have something very important, I would prefer that the request be made to me and I will see if the lady can do this, which also includes her other day-to-day work of transcribing.

Before any transcript is given out it must be edited. It is most unfair for unedited transcripts to be in the hands of any person, because there are always, perhaps, errors and if these errors are not corrected beforehand, they are really not the best thing to continue to be had.

I am asking Members for their support in this matter. We are all willing to assist wherever possible, but I think Members will appreciate that there is a limit sometimes to what can be achieved and everyone needs to take the other officers into consideration. So, may I ask for your support in this matter? Thank you.

The question before the House is the Second Reading of the Fire Brigade (Amendment) Bill, 1996.

The motion is open for debate. [Pause]

If there is no debate. I do not know if the Honourable Minister would like to add anything further to his presentation.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Madam Speaker, I think it is always important to say how much we appreciate the support of the Members of the Legislative Assembly, whether orally or silently. I believe the mark that is made by the Fire Service in these Islands is the reason why there is no debate on the item. They know it is in good hands.

Thank you, Madam Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that the Bill entitled the Fire Brigade (Amendment) Bill, 1996, be given a second reading.

I shall put the question, those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Second Reading.

AGREED: THE FIRE BRIGADE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996 GIVEN A SECOND READING.

MOTION WITHOUT NOTICE

The Speaker: Motion without notice, the Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy : Madam Speaker, I beg to move a motion that the Loan (Capital Projects) Bill, 1996 and the Loan (Capital Projects) 1993 (Amendment) Bill, 1996, be taken together. The reason for this is because these Bills are connected.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that the debate on the Loan (Capital Projects) Bill, 1996 and the Loan (Capital Projects) 1993 (Amendment) Bill, 1996, be taken together for second reading and debate.

I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THAT THE FOLLOWING TWO BILLS BE DEBATED TOGETHER.

SECOND READING

LOAN (CAPITAL PROJECTS) BILL, 1996

-together with-

LOAN (CAPITAL PROJECTS) 1993 (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1996.

Clerk: The Loan (Capital Projects) Bill, 1996, and the Loan (Capital Projects) 1993 (Amendment) Bill, 1996.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

(2.48 PM)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Madam Speaker, as mentioned during the meeting of Finance Committee held on the 13th of May, two Bills would be brought to the Legislative Assembly, the first one being the Loan (Capital Projects) Bill, 1996. This Bill, which is presented to this House, seeks to authorise the Government to borrow up to $10,685,268 for the financing of capital projects as detailed in the Schedule of the Bill and is broken down as follows:

HEAD	AMOUNT IN CI$
52-104 LL Civic Centres & Museums	$200,000
This amount is to cover the additional costs of providing a hurricane shelter and community hall at Gun Bay.
52-106 LL Construction of Roads	$4,050,000

This amount is to be applied in the carrying out of road improvements within various districts in the Cayman Islands as follows:-

George Town	$2,650,000
West Bay	$400,000
Bodden Town	$250,000
North Side	$250,000
East End	$250,000
Cayman Brac	$250,000

52-113 LL Harbours and Docks $37,000

This amount is to cover the improvements to the West End channel access in Cayman Brac.

52-119 LL Public Buildings $709,774
Of which $650,000 is to cover the cost of completing the Department of Environment's building and the remaining $59,774 is to cover the cost of refurbishment of the Court House.

52-120 LL Purchase of Lands $2,221,518
This amount is to enable the purchase of various parcels of lands and properties (details of which were provided to Members during the meeting of Finance Committee.

52-122 LL School Buildings $1,420,000
This amount is to allow for the construction of additional classrooms at the George Hicks High School, together with the construction of a sewage treatment plant. The sewage treatment plant is estimated at a cost of $320,000.

52-123 LL Sports Centres and Parks $846,976
This amount is to cover the cost of developing community parks within the various districts, a cricket pitch, and softball and baseball facilities.

52-127 LL Post Office Buildings $1,200,000
This amount is to be applied in the development of the Mail Processing Centre at the Airport.

Turning now to the Bill to amend the Loan (Capital Projects) Law, 1993. This Bill provides authority to borrow up to $8,130,171 to finance capital development projects set out in the 1994 Budget and broken down as follows:

• Construction of Roads	$3,156,070
• Agricultural Development	$427,067
• Medical Facilities	$1,000,000
• Purchase of lands	$200,000
• Sports Centres and Parks	$712,034
• Community College Buildings	$2,635,000
• School Buildings	$1,435,306

At the meeting of Finance Committee held on the 13th of May of this year, it was stated that while the total amount authorised would remain unchanged, the Government would bring an amending Bill to the 1993 Law to reallocate unused funds to other Capital Development Projects initially not specified under this Law.

These unused funds totalling $2,046,566 are the balance from the sum of $2,635,000 which was initially borrowed to fund the Phase II expansion of the Community College. However, only $588,434 of the 1993 loan was used towards this project as the balance of that project's cost was financed from the annual grant provided to the College by the Government.

This Bill, therefore, proposes the reallocation of $1,435,306 to the construction of four classrooms at the George Town Primary School and four classrooms at the Savannah Primary School.

It is further proposed that the balance of $611,260 be allocated to finance the development of sports centres and parks, mainly the Botanic Park and the St. James Pedro Castle project.

During the meeting of Finance Committee, I mentioned that the Public Debt of the Government as at the 1st January, 1996 (this figure is unaudited) was $33,293,268. The draw-down (from the 1993 amendment of $2 million added to the loans approved as a part of the Budget exercise in November) of $16,160,000; taking into account repayments that are programmed in 1996 of approximately $6.8 million gives an estimated Public Debt position as at the 31st of December of approximately $45 million.

Taking into account the additional borrowings of $10.6 million as proposed under the Loan (Capital Projects) Bill, 1996, when this is added together we arrive at a total debt of approximately $57 million. It was pointed out during Finance Committee that the sums in the 1996 Budget to meet the loan obligations amount to approximately $11.6 million. When that is taken as a percentage of Recurrent Revenue, this translates into approximately 6.3% of the annual revenue that is being used up.

If we factor in the additional provision that will have to be made to account for the repayment of the $10.6 million, plus the draw-down against the 1993 loan, we can see that the figure that has been arrived at by the Treasury Department suggests that it could increase to approximately $13.4 million. This, when taken as a percentage against the 1996 Revenue figures, suggests that approximately 7.2% of the annual revenue will be used up.

We should bear in mind that we have been experiencing growth in the revenue trends over the year. So when we take the $13.4 million, while that will remain fixed, if we take it as a constant, or the numerator, and we look at the 1996 Revenue figures of $184.5 million, it is likely that in 1997 and onward we will see progressive increases in this figure.

I am not suggesting that further loans will not take place, but we will have to look at this denominator to see the extent to which growth is taking place. If we extrapolate this into future years, we can see that if borrowings continue at a prudent level it could be awhile before this figure of 7.2% would be substantially exceeded.

It has always been argued that the Government's repayments obligation should not exceed 10% of General Revenue. Every attempt will be made to ensure that this will not occur. We have got to watch our figures, as I have said earlier, very carefully. So the combined position that we have in front of us this afternoon seeks for approval to vary the 1993 borrowings, to use up the balance of approximately $2 million that remain uncommitted until this time, plus the sum (as was agreed during the course of Finance Committee), which has since been increased slightly by $1 million, to a total of $10,685,268.

I submit these Bills to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The question is that Bills entitled, The Loan (Capital Projects) Bill 1996, and The Loan (Capital Projects) 1993, (Amendment) Bill, 1996, be given a Second Reading. The motion is open for debate.

The Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.
(3.02 PM)

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean : Madam Speaker, I simply will not join the fray and sleep while such a frightening sum of money is being sought in this Legislative Assembly by way of loans about four months after the annual Budget of $202 million was approved, of which $16.6 million was also loan funds.

These two Bills display financial imprudence, recklessness, and dishonesty. To come for this amount of money by way of loans, particularly in the 1996 Bill... the Government had to have known this amount of money was needed in the first instance when they brought the Budget in December of 1995.

I suggest that this amount of money for these various projects was not brought to this Legislative Assembly, because if that had happened the public would have been even more concerned about the way money is being handled in the Cayman Islands by the Government of the day.

The Budget of 1996 (that is, the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure) was only balanced because of the loan which was taken. If this additional amount had been added to it, it would have been the largest single amount that has ever been taken as a loan. The fact is that in December the Government did not honestly put in all the money that was necessary do the projects it wished to do, therefore, the budget was not factual. If we look at the Bills which are before the House at this time, they are still not true in terms of the money needed. For example, the cost of the purchase of the Cayman Food s building, which the Minister for Education and Planning is now apparently saying is not agreed to be purchased, is $1.4 million. But included in this total sum is something like $350,000. So there is about $1,050,000 that is not truly accounted for in expenditure. It is certainly a liability to the country, but by design it is done that way in an attempt - although it is right before our eyes - to be hidden or lost sight of.

There is also a Post Office building which the ill-fated former Post Mistress, Miss Glasgow, said was necessary. In fact we know the story surrounding that episode; that her statements, among other things, made her politically unacceptable. Yet, 90 or 120 days later, Government comes to Finance Committee to get money to erect the same building which supposedly could not be done prior. Again, great dishonesty in this type of financial management because this building supposedly is to cost $2 million (something like $2.3 million), and how much is down in the Bill? Only $1.2 million. Strange financial management. Strange accounting with the people's money, but clear indication that the Government does not have a plan, does not have its priorities right, and moment to moment, things change on a political whim or fancy.

The Financial Secretary has said (and really I do not lay this bad financial management at his footstool, he is but the person charged by Law to take care of the finances and the expenditure of the country based on the political policy of the day) that this amount of money which will soon be voted for by a majority here in this House will put Government's debts at approximately $57 million. Now against that I weigh the fact that according to the last Census taken here in the Cayman Islands (and this is just last year sometime) there are 31,500 people in this country and approximately half of them are non-Caymanians. So, if, for whatever reason, a downturn should occur here (Heaven forbid!), we could be shocked into the reality of our situation. But perhaps the Government of the day would try to persuade us all that the Government's revenue would be the very same if we took out half of the population which pays into the Treasury the amounts which make it possible to have a $202 million budget for this year, plus about another $16 million in loans.

The thing about loans where governments are concerned, is that in the majority of instances a government can get loans because they are 'government'. It is an agreement that is entered into by which all the people of the country are bound - even if they must be taxed - to fund the money to be repaid. Certainly, loans have to be repaid, and these loans will have to be repaid.

It is all well and fine for us to look at the situation right now and say that taking a percentage of the annual Budget we are only committed in terms of loans to about 7.2%, and that we are still below that magic figure of 10% over which most people claim we should not go.

I think that this great rush and this immense spate of spending is generated basically through two things: bad management and, in another five months or so, a general election. So all the things that might have been done over the past three and a half years - but were not - are being done now, due to the political views of the day.

Construction of roads was a mere paltry sum of about $1 million in this year's Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure. Several of us said that it was unrealistic, that it was incomprehensible; it was ridiculous because roads had reached a point of deterioration where something would have to be done, and that a realistic amount of money should have been placed in the Budget for them.

But, oh no! It was not done that way. Four months later the Government comes for $4 million for roads by way of loans. I would imagine that they feel reassured and they can say that the Budget was balanced in December. The truth is, it was not. It was very unbalanced, like the general state of affairs in the country where money is concerned.

School buildings are included in this Bill. I distinctly remember earlier this year (the first Session if I remember correctly) a question to the Minister for Education, asked by my colleague the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, about school buildings and their adequacies and so on. There was a long list of things that had been done, including fixing of screens, and this and that; an answer which would evoke more laughter than fact. We also heard at that time about a mathematically-exact way the Education Department was using to calculate birth rate, and how the Government would know how many classrooms would be necessary. If anyone had believed that, they would have been mistaken.

I remember (and I am sure the Hansard can prove it) that I specifically asked if what was being said by the Minister meant that the required space and accommodation the schools needed at this time was there. If I remember correctly, the answer was "Yes, Madam Speaker, that is what I am saying.". Yet, four months later it is necessary to come for $1,420,000 to build classrooms for schools which undoubtedly need them. They needed them from way back when we were reassured that everything was hunky dory. That is consistent with the way Government has set its agenda and priorities, which is putting this country more and more into debt.

I have said this on many occasions. The other Opposition Members of the House have said this, and usually it evokes laughter from the Government bench. But those are the realities in this country.

There are other situations which impact on our finances, not just these moneys that we are debating now by way of loans. There are contingent liabilities; there are millions of dollars worth of lands that have been bought with a relatively small down payment, but it is down in black and white that the $1.5 million or the $2 million has to be paid. But that does not show up in the ledger as it should, and that it is more debt to the country. That is simply hidden away through such device.

In some of these instances, for example the Post Office - I read about two days ago in the newspaper that a contract had been signed. Now, I am of the opinion (and I would have to see otherwise in black and white) that if McAlpine... (is it McAlpine or Hadsphaltic? one of those companies, I think it is Hadsphaltic) has taken the contract, if it cost $2.3 million, then $2.3 million is written in that contract and not $1.2 million. If the money is not there, where, then, is the money to pay for this contract? It is the most reckless and unbelievable form of financial manipulation going on in this country right now.

A hospital that we hear is to cost $27 million... and we hear a contract has been signed for that for $20 million or so dollars. I ask: Where is the money for that? There was only $9 million borrowed. Again, I bet that no one signed any contract with those contractors for less than the full amount that was given...

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: On a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order, Honourable Minister?

POINT OF ORDER (Relevance)

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: I believe we are debating $10 million for the Loan (Capital Projects) Bill. I do not see anything in that Bill regarding hospitals.

The Speaker: I think the Second Elected Member was using that as a point of illustration for, as he calls it, mismanagement. As long as he does not go on at great length, that is not a valid point of order.

Can you continue the debate, Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman?

Mr. Gilbert A. McLean: Madam Speaker, in this Bill before the House - we are talking two, not one, two money Bills at one time - we are talking about financial management, good fiscal responsibility. We should not reach a point where we commit these islands to such debt. It is unrealistic, particularly when we are spending something like $1 million on such things as a cricket pitch, when we do not have enough space in the waiting room at the Hospital for people who are seriously ill.

Last year the First Elected Member for Bodden Town brought a motion to this House asking for a change in the way we do our accounting, more towards the accrual system. This would show all the liabilities up front and it would not be possible to push half of a $20 million contract aside or half of a $2.3 million contract for the Post Office aside and pretend it is not there, while on the other hand we have a serious liability for it. That was shot down like so many other motions that he and I have brought to the House. It sure does not make the problem go away.

It was interesting just a little over two weeks ago when the same Member (the First Elected Member for Bodden Town) and I visited the United Kingdom to speak to some of the officials at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. We noted that one of their great concerns is the financial well-being of the dependent territories. As it was stated to us, should a territory fall flat on its face it ultimately becomes the responsibility of the United Kingdom Government. At least somewhere, with the people who have the ultimate responsibility for these islands, there is some sameness of thought that good financial management is necessary. That is not reflected in these Bills before us, for some of the reasons for which the moneys are included and certainly not where part of the money that is committed is being left out.

Madam Speaker, we need some heavy doses of good prioritising of things to be done in this country. We need to know clearly, that, yes, it is necessary to have eight classrooms and that they do not wait three and a half years to be built on the eve of an election. We need to know, yes, three and a half years ago, that $200-odd thousand dollars were needed to rectify the situation at the Court House which is now supposedly going to be done. We need accurate, factual, truthful, proper money management. When it was known that to make an attempt to put a hospital on the same site where it is presently the MRCU building would have to be removed and taken into the North Sound where it will cost almost $3 million.... The $800,000 here, and the $500,000 in the next place, and the $900,000 in another, does not make the cost go away.

As for the matter of the swamp, it seems that we should not build a hospital there, but we can build the school in the swamp. I do not know which is the most important - the place you deliver health services from, or (if the swamps are as fearful as they are) whether the upcoming generation will be drowned. That is a riddle that I am sure the Government has figured out as well.

Of course, in speaking of money, we have approximately four acres of land that was bought by Government in Spotts for a National Stadium which the Auditor General says is constantly under water, even in dry weather like this. (Inaudible interjection)

That is the one that is where it always is 365 days a year. It is a pond, and the rest we dance a jig around.

These Bills seriously lack the proper thinking and proper management which this country needs, particularly in the purchase of lands section of one of the Bills where the total is $10.6 million. I wonder whether these are true costs. According to the Government's valuator they are not: Yet, we are paying a difference of $.5 million over and above what that individual recommended. There is something in that which is very important to me. If you truthfully purchase a parcel of land for $10,000, wherever, that valuator is the person you believe when he states that the true value is $18,000. That is the person who can say it is $18,000, and the person (who knew they only paid $10,000) has to pay stamp duty on the $18,000. Now where does it put the office of that individual as an adjudicator in such matters if the Government itself is taking that attitude towards it? How does it place citizens of the country in regard to that type of action? Up until now, all the Members of this House have not seen the valuations that were given in the purchase of lands.

These are the things that we all should be concerned about. There is only one thing that is absolutely clear and certain about these two Bills, and that is that these Bills will be voted into existence and the country will be further in debt.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

(3.27 PM)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Madam Speaker.

These two Bills deal with the authority that this Legislature is asked to give in relation to the projects that are set out in them. The Bill that relates to the 1993 project is, as the Financial Secretary has mentioned, a variation of the previous Loan (Capital Projects) Bill where there was money that remained in relation to the Community College. That, in itself, goes to show the House that there are times when Loan Bills do go forward and the full amount of money is not spent.
